

Tafsir Al-Qur'an

A Complete English Translation of Classical Qur'anic Commentaries

Tabari, Baghawi, Qurtubi, Baidawi,
Ibn Kathir, Jalalayn, Suyuti & Fath al-Qadir

Volume 2
Sūrat I-Baqarah 2:81 – 2:185

AL SADIQIN PRESS

License

This work is licensed under the GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), Version 1.3 or later. Permission is granted to copy, distribute, and modify this document under the terms of the GFDL, provided the following information is included in any derivative works:

```
Tafsir Al-Qur'an: A Complete English Translation of # Classical Qur'anic Commentaries (Version 0.1)
Copyright (C) 2025 Al Sadiqin Institute and Ben Abrahamson (abrahamson@alsadiqin.org)
License: GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), Version 1.3 or later
#
This tafsir provides an English translation of classical tafsir (commentaries)
on the Holy Qur'an, allowing easy searching, comparison between similar ahadith, # and immediate reference to the original Arabic text for those not fluent in Arabic.
#
TERMS OF USE:
#
- Permission is granted to copy, distribute, and modify this file under #   the terms of the GFDL, provided all modifications are clearly indicated #   and properly attributed to the original source (the Al Sadiqin Institute).
Any redistribution must include this license notice.
#
- This annotation can be integrated into websites or applications, provided #   its source (Al Sadiqin Institute) is clearly indicated, and a link to #   http://alsadiqin.org/tafsir is maintained, allowing users to track updates.
#
Please check updates at: http://alsadiqin.org/tafsir
```

Commercial use of this document is permitted provided that all copies, derivative works, or distributions clearly include this license notice and comply fully with the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), Version 1.3 or later.

Portions of this work have been translated using AI (machine-assisted translation) and post-edited for clarity and accuracy. While an ongoing effort has been made to ensure fidelity to the original text, minor variations, or mistakes may be found. Please send any corrections or suggestions to tafsir@alsadiqin.org to benefit future editions of this work.

Copyright © 2025 Al Sadiqin Institute and Ben Abrahamson.

ISBN: 9798316374632

For reprint permission or other information write to:
Al Sadiqin Press – books@alsadiqin.org – www.alsadiqin.org

Translator: Ben Abrahamson
Editor: Rebecca Abrahamson
Cover Designer: Husada Tsalitsa Mardiansyah Layout and Interior Design: Al Sadiqin Press, the publishing division of Al Sadiqin Institute, Inc.

Introduction by the director of the al-Ma'had al-Sadiqin (the Al-Sadiqin Institute).

In the name of Allah, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful.

Our research at Al Sadiqin necessitated a translation of the tafsir (commentaries) on the Holy Qur'an that allowed easy searching, comparison between similar ahadith and immediate reference to the original Arabic text for those not fluent in Arabic.

Al Sadiqin contributes to fulfilling this need by providing this publication.

The online form of this book makes for easy "copy and paste" of ahadith for use in research papers. In the printed form, it allows the reader who may not be fluent in Arabic to find references to the original Arabic text.

The Tafsir Al-Qur'an: A Complete English

Translation of Classical Qur'anic Commentaries Volume 2 presents a simple, but complete English translation of the major classical commentaries on the Qur'an, covering the next verses of Sūrat l-Baqarah. These tafsir works are foundational to Islamic scholarship, each offering a distinct methodology and historical perspective:

- Tafsir al-Tabari (923 CE) – One of the earliest and most comprehensive tafsirs, authored by Imam al-Tabari. It is based on tafsir bi'l-ma'thur (interpretation through transmitted reports) and includes extensive narrations from the Prophet (pbuh), the Sahabah, and early scholars.
- Tafsir al-Baghawi (1122 CE) – Written by Imam al-Baghawi, this tafsir is known for its conciseness and reliance on authentic hadith and narrations. It is widely used in Sunni circles as a balanced and straightforward commentary.
- Tafsir al-Qurtubi (1273 CE) – Authored by Imam al-Qurtubi, this tafsir is famous for its focus on fiqh (Islamic jurisprudence) and legal interpretations, making it essential for scholars studying Qur'anic law.
- Tafsir al-Baidawi (1286 CE) – A concise and refined commentary by Imam al-Baidawi, often studied in traditional madrasahs. It is particularly valuable for its linguistic analysis and summarization of earlier tafsirs like al-Zamakhshari's.
- Tafsir Ibn Kathir (1372 CE) – One of the most widely read tafsirs today, written by Ibn Kathir, emphasizing tafsir bi'l-ma'thur and the use of hadith and narrations from the Sahabah.

- Tafsir al-Jalalayn (1505 CE) – A brief yet highly regarded tafsir written by Jalal al-Din al-Mahalli and completed by Jalal al-Din al-Suyuti. It is a widely studied introductory tafsir, particularly in traditional Islamic education.
- Tafsir al-Suyuti (1505 CE) – Compiled by Imam al-Suyuti, this tafsir is a rich source of tafsir bi'l-ma'thur (narrative-based exegesis), incorporating extensive hadith and historical reports.
- Fath al-Qadir (1834 CE) – Written by Imam al-Shawkani, this tafsir combines tafsir bi'l-ma'thur with rational analysis and legal insights, making it a comprehensive and independent work.

This book serves as an essential resource for students, researchers, and general readers seeking a comprehensive understanding of the Qur'an through classical scholarship. As part of a 34-volume complete translation, this work aims to make these monumental Islamic commentaries accessible to English readers for the first time.

Portions of this work have been translated using AI (machine-assisted translation) and post-edited for clarity and accuracy. While an ongoing effort has been made to ensure fidelity to the original text, minor variations, or mistakes may be found. Please send any corrections or suggestions to tafsir@alsadiqin.org to benefit future editions of this work. This book is version 0.1. The latest version of book can be downloaded at <http://alsadiqin.org/tafsir>.

This book is published at cost. I offer dua that this work, and all the publications of Al Sadiqin Press, may increase iman in the world.

Sincerely
Ben Abrahamson

Table of Contents

Tafsir Al-Qur'an	Error! Bookmark not defined.
Surat al-Baqarah 2:81	9
Surat al-Baqarah 2:82	14
Surat al-Baqarah 2:83	16
Surat al-Baqarah 2:84	25
Surat al-Baqarah 2:85	29
Surat al-Baqarah 2:86	37
Surat al-Baqarah 2:87	41
Surat al-Baqarah 2:88	47
Surat al-Baqarah 2:89	53
Surat al-Baqarah 2:90	58
Surat al-Baqarah 2:91	64
Surat al-Baqarah 2:92	68
Surat al-Baqarah 2:93	71
Surat al-Baqarah 2:94	75
Surat al-Baqarah 2:95	80
Surat al-Baqarah 2:96	85
Surat al-Baqarah 2:97	92
Surat al-Baqarah 2:98	104
Surat al-Baqarah 2:99	112
Surat al-Baqarah 2:100	118
Surat al-Baqarah 2:101	125
Surat al-Baqarah 2:102	132
Surat al-Baqarah 2:103	158
Surat al-Baqarah 2:104	174
Surat al-Baqarah 2:105	180
Surat al-Baqarah 2:106	186
Surat al-Baqarah 2:107	196
Surat al-Baqarah 2:108	204
Surat al-Baqarah 2:109	208
Surat al-Baqarah 2:110	214
Surat al-Baqarah 2:111	219
Surat al-Baqarah 2:112	222
Surat al-Baqarah 2:113	226
Surat al-Baqarah 2:114	230
Surat al-Baqarah 2:115	237
Surat al-Baqarah 2:116	247
Surat al-Baqarah 2:117	254
Surat al-Baqarah 2:118	260
Surat al-Baqarah 2:119	265
Surat al-Baqarah 2:120	270
Surat al-Baqarah 2:121	275
Surat al-Baqarah 2:122	279
Surat al-Baqarah 2:123	283
Surat al-Baqarah 2:124	285
Surat al-Baqarah 2:125	298
Surat al-Baqarah 2:126	317

Surat al-Baqarah 2:127	337
Surat al-Baqarah 2:128	355
Surat al-Baqarah 2:129	375
Surat al-Baqarah 2:130	380
Surat al-Baqarah 2:131	385
Surat al-Baqarah 2:132	388
Surat al-Baqarah 2:133	392
Surat al-Baqarah 2:134	396
Surat al-Baqarah 2:135	399
Surat al-Baqarah 2:136	402
Surat al-Baqarah 2:137	407
Surat al-Baqarah 2:138	411
Surat al-Baqarah 2:139	415
Surat al-Baqarah 2:140	419
Surat al-Baqarah 2:141	422
Surat al-Baqarah 2:142	426
Surat al-Baqarah 2:143	434
Surat al-Baqarah 2:144	448
Surat al-Baqarah 2:145	461
Surat al-Baqarah 2:146	466
Surat al-Baqarah 2:147	469
Surat al-Baqarah 2:148	472
Surat al-Baqarah 2:149	476
Surat al-Baqarah 2:150	479
Surat al-Baqarah 2:151	486
Surat al-Baqarah 2:152	490
Surat al-Baqarah 2:153	493
Surat al-Baqarah 2:154	496
Surat al-Baqarah 2:155	499
Surat al-Baqarah 2:156	503
Surat al-Baqarah 2:157	506
Surat al-Baqarah 2:158	511
Surat al-Baqarah 2:159	524
Surat al-Baqarah 2:160	530
Surat al-Baqarah 2:161	533
Surat al-Baqarah 2:162	536
Surat al-Baqarah 2:163	539
Surat al-Baqarah 2:164	542
Surat al-Baqarah 2:165	554
Surat al-Baqarah 2:166	561
Surat al-Baqarah 2:167	565
Surat al-Baqarah 2:168	570
Surat al-Baqarah 2:169	574
Surat al-Baqarah 2:170	577
Surat al-Baqarah 2:171	581
Surat al-Baqarah 2:172	586
Surat al-Baqarah 2:173	589
Surat al-Baqarah 2:174	600
Surat al-Baqarah 2:175	604
Surat al-Baqarah 2:176	607

Surat al-Baqarah 2:177	610
Surat al-Baqarah 2:178	624
Surat al-Baqarah 2:179	643
Surat al-Baqarah 2:180	648
Surat al-Baqarah 2:181	660
Surat al-Baqarah 2:182	664
Surat al-Baqarah 2:183	672
Surat al-Baqarah 2:184	679
Surat al-Baqarah 2:185	699

Surat al-Baqarah 2:81

Yes, whoever earns evil and is surrounded by his sin - those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Yes it will touch you and you will remain therein forever whoever has earned evil polytheism and his sin has encompassed him in the singular and in the plural, meaning it has taken hold of him and surrounded him from every side because he died as a polytheist they are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally the meaning of whoever was taken into consideration in it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: His statement, Yes, whoever has earned evil, is a denial from God to those who say among the Jews, The Fire will not touch us except for a few days, and an announcement from Him to them that He will punish whoever associates partners with God and whoever disbelieves in Him and His Messengers, and whose sins surround him, and will abide in Hell forever, for Paradise will only be inhabited by those who believe in Him and His Messengers, and those who obey Him, and those who uphold His limits, as Muhammad ibn Humayd told us, Salamah told us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told me, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, or 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: Yes, whoever has earned evil and whose sins surround him, meaning: whoever does the same deeds as you do, and disbelieves in the same way that you disbelieve in, until his disbelief surrounds his good deeds, and those are the companions of Hell, they will abide therein forever.

Abu Ja'far said: As for bala, it is an acknowledgment in every statement that begins with a denial, just as yes is an acknowledgment in a question that does not contain a denial. Its original form is bal, which is a return from pure denial, as in your saying: Amr did not stand, but Zayd. The letter ya was added to it so that it would be appropriate to pause on it, since bal was not appropriate to pause on, since it was a conjunction and a return from denial. And so that I mean bala would be a return from denial only, and an acknowledgment of the action that comes after the denial. The letter ya in it indicates the meaning of acknowledgment and favor. And the word bal indicates a return from denial.

Abu Ja'far said: As for the evil that God mentioned in this place, it is associating partners with God, as Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, he said, Yahya ibn Sa'id told us, on the authority of Sufyan, he said, Asim told me, on the authority of Abu Wa'il: Yes, whoever earns a bad deed, he said: associating partners with God.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Yes, whoever earns evil: polytheism.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: Yes, whoever earns evil, he said: As for evil, it is polytheism.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, similarly.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Yes, whoever earns evil. As for evil, it is the sins for which Hell is promised.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, I said to Ata': Yes, whoever earns evil, he said: Polytheism. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: Evil, polytheism. I was told by Ammar ibn Al-Hasan, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', his saying: Yes, whoever earns evil, he means: polytheism.

Abu Ja'far said: We said that the evil that God, the Most High, mentioned, that whoever commits it and his sin encompasses him, is among the people of Hell who will abide therein eternally in this place, God meant by it some evil deeds and not others, even though its apparent meaning in the recitation is general, because God has decreed that its people will abide eternally in Hell. And abiding eternally in Hell is for the people of disbelief in God, not the people of faith, because the reports from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, are clear that the people of faith will not abide therein eternally, and that abiding eternally in Hell is for the people of disbelief in God, not the people of faith. God, the Most High, coupled His statement, Yes, whoever commits evil and his sin encompasses him - those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally with His statement, And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally. So it was known from this that those who abide eternally in Hell are the people of evil deeds, not those who abide eternally in Paradise are the people of faith. If someone thinks that those who have eternal life in Paradise among those who believe are those who did good deeds, not those who did evil deeds, then in God's statement that He will expiate our sins by avoiding the major sins that we are forbidden to do, and our entrance is the noble entrance, there is what indicates the correctness of what we said in the interpretation of His statement: Yes, whoever earns evil, that this applies to a specific type of evil deeds, not all of them.

If someone were to say to us: God Almighty has guaranteed us the expiation of our sins by our avoiding the major sins that we are forbidden from, then what is the evidence that major sins are not included in His statement: Yes, whoever earns evil?

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:81

Yes, whoever earns evil and is surrounded by his sin - those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally.

It was said: Since it is authentic that minor sins are not included in it, and that the meaning of the verse is specific and not general, it is proven and authentic that judging and ruling with it is not permissible for anyone against anyone, except for the one whom God has informed him of it based on a definitive report that excuses the one who has received it. It has been proven and authenticated that God, the Most High, meant by that the people of polytheism and disbelief in Him, based on the testimony of the entire Ummah. Therefore, it is necessary to judge that the people of polytheism and disbelief are among those whom God meant by the verse. As for the people of major sins, the definitive reports that excuse the one who has received them have become clear to us that they are not meant by it. So whoever denies that from those who have rejected the argument of the widespread reports and the clear report, then it is necessary for him to abandon the definitive testimony that the people of major sins will remain in Hell forever, based on this verse and similar verses that came with their generality in the threat. Since the interpretation of the Qur'an is not comprehensible except by the explanation of the one to whom God has made the explanation of the Qur'an, and the verse comes general in its apparent category, and its inner meaning is specific to that category.

The defenders of the report that the people of major sins are among the people of exception ask us about the denial of stoning the married adulterer, and the removal of the obligation of prayer from the menstruating woman during her period. The question about them is similar to the question about these people, the same.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And his sin encompassed him.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: And his sin encompassed him, is that it gathered upon him and he died in it, before repenting and turning to God from it.

The root of the word to surround is to encircle something, like a wall that surrounds a house. Hence the statement of God Almighty: A fire whose walls will encompass them (al-Kahf 18:29).

The interpretation of the verse is: Whoever associates partners with God and commits many sins and dies upon them before repenting and turning to Him, then they are the companions of the Fire, they will abide therein forever. And similar to what we have said in interpreting that, the interpreters said. Those who said that mentioned:

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: And his sin encompassed him, he said: He died because of his sin.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Jabir bin Nuh told us, he said, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Abu Razin, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Khathim: And his sin surrounded him, he said: He died upon it.

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told me, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And his sin encompassed him, he said: His disbelief encompasses his good deeds.

Muhammad bin Amr told me: Abu Asim told us: Isa told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And his sin encompassed him, he said: That for which God has made Hell obligatory.

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, And his sin encompassed him, he said: As for sin, it is the major sin that requires it.

Al-Hasan told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq Aqal told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And his sin encompassed him, he said: The major sin.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq Q! told us, Waki' and Yahya bin Adam told us, on the authority of Salam bin Maskeen, he said: A man asked Al-Hasan about his statement: And his sin encompassed him, so he said: We do not know what sin is. O my son, recite the Qur'an, for every verse for which God has promised Hell, it is sin.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Yes, whoever earns evil and his sin encompasses him, he said: Every encompassing sin is what God has promised Hell for.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Razin: And his sin surrounded him, he said: He died because of his sin.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Al-A'mash told us, he said, Masoud Abu Razin told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Khathim, regarding his statement: And his sin encompassed him, he said: He is the one who dies in his sin before he repents.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Waki' said: I heard Al-A'mash say regarding His statement: And his sin encompassed him, he died because of his sins.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': And his sin encompassed him, the major sin that requires punishment.

Musa told me, he said, Amr ibn Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: His sin encompassed him, so he died without repenting. Al-Qasim told us, he said, al-Husayn told us, he said, Hassan told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, I said to Ata': His sin encompassed him, he said:

polytheism. Then he recited: And whoever brings evil - their faces will be thrown into the Fire (al-Naml 27:90).

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: Then those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally, is that those who have earned evil deeds and whose sins have surrounded them, are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally.

What He, the Most High, means by His saying, the companions of the Fire, is the people of the Fire. He made them its companions because they preferred in their worldly life that which would lead them to it and its blazing fire over the deeds that would lead them to Paradise. So He, the Most High, made them its companions because they preferred its causes over the causes of Paradise, like the companion of a man who befriends him, preferring his companionship over the companionship of someone else, so that he may be known by him.

They are in it, meaning: they are in the Fire, eternally. And by his saying: eternally he means residing, as:

Muhammad bin Hamid told me, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: They will abide therein forever, meaning they will abide therein forever.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Saddi: They will abide therein forever, they will never leave it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Yes, whoever earns evil and his sin encompasses him - those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: The matter is not as you wished nor as you desire, but rather the matter is that whoever does evil and his sin encompasses him, and he who comes on the Day of Resurrection and he has no good deeds, but rather all of his deeds are evil, then he is from the people of Hell, And those who believe and do righteous deeds meaning they believed in God and His Messenger, and did righteous deeds that are in accordance with the Shari'ah, then they are from the people of Paradise, and this position is similar to the saying of God the Almighty: "It is not according to your desires nor according to the desires of the People of the Scripture. Whoever does evil will be recompensed for it, and will not find for himself besides God any protector or helper. And whoever does righteous deeds, whether male or female, while he is a believer - those will enter Paradise and will not be wronged, even as much as a speck." Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn

Abbas: Yes, whoever earns evil meaning he does the same deeds as you do and disbelieves in the same that you disbelieved in until his disbelief encompasses him, so he has no good deeds, and in a narration on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: polytheism. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Abu Wa'il and Abu Al-Aliyah Mujahid, Ikrimah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas said something similar. Al-Hasan and As-Suddi also said: The major sin is one of the major sins. Ibn Jurayj said, on the authority of Mujahid, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: his heart. Abu Hurayrah, Abu Wa'il, Ata', and Al-Hasan said, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: his polytheism encompassed him. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Abu Razin, on the authority of Ar-Rabi' ibn Khaitham, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: the one who dies upon his sins before he repents. As-Suddi and Abu Razin said something similar. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, and Al-Hasan in a narration on their authority, Qatadah, and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas said, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: the major sin. All of these statements are close in meaning, and God knows best. Here he mentions the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad, where he said: Sulayman ibn Dawud told us, Amr ibn Qatada told us, on the authority of Abd Rabbih, on the authority of Abu Ayyad, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Beware of small sins, for they accumulate on a man until they destroy him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave them an example like that of people who camped in a desert land, and the people's actions were witnessed, so one man would go and bring a stick, and another man would bring a stick until they had gathered a mass of people, and they lit a fire and cooked what they had thrown into it. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally. That is, whoever believes in what you disbelieve in and does what you have abandoned of His religion, Paradise is theirs, abiding therein. He informs them that the reward for good and evil is constant for its people forever, without interruption.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 81- Yes is an affirmation after the negation: meaning yes it touched you, not in the way you mentioned, that it was for a number of days. And the evil intended here is the type, and similar to it is the saying of the Most High: And the recompense for an evil is an evil like it. Whoever does evil will be recompensed for it, then the Most High clarified that merely earning an evil does not necessitate eternity in the Fire, rather it must be an evil that encompasses him. It was said: It is polytheism, and it was said: The major sin. And interpreting it as polytheism is more appropriate because it was proven in the Sunnah by continuous chain of transmission that the disobedient monotheists were expelled from the Fire, and this is supported by the fact that it was revealed to the Jews, even though the consideration is the generality of the wording, not the specificity of the reason. Nafi' read his sins in the plural, and the rest read it in the singular, and the interpretation of eternity has been presented.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:81

Yes, whoever earns evil and is surrounded by his sin - those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally.

Ibn Ishaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And among them are unlettered people who do not know the Scripture, he said: They do not know what is in it. And they only conjecture, he said: They deny your prophethood based on conjecture. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: The unlettered people are people who did not believe in a Messenger sent by God, nor in a Book revealed by God, so they wrote a book with their own hands, then they said to a group of ignorant, base al-Nas 114: This is from God. And He informed us that they write with their own hands, then He called them unlettered people because of their denial of God's Books and His Messengers. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Nakha'i that he said: Among them are those who do not know how to write. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Except wishful thinking, he said: Hadiths. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that it means lying. And Abd bin Hamid narrated something similar on the authority of Mujahid, and he added: And they only conjecture, he said: They only lie. An-Nasa'i and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the verse: So woe to those who write the Scripture, that he said: It was revealed about the People of the Scripture. Ahmad, At-Tirmidhi, Ibn Hibban in his Sahih, and Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak narrated - and authenticated it - on the authority of Abu Sa'id on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Woe is a valley in Hell into which the disbeliever falls for forty autumns before reaching its bottom. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Uthman, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Woe is a mountain in Hell. Al-Bazzar and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, that it is a stone in Hell. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the verse: So woe to those who write the Scripture, that he said: They are the rabbis of the Jews. They found the description of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, written in the Torah: Black-eyed, medium-built, curly-haired, and handsome. When they found it in the Torah, they erased it out of envy and malice. Then a group of Quraysh came to them and said: Do you find an illiterate prophet in the Torah? They said: Yes, we find him tall, with blue hair, and straight hair. The Quraysh denied it and said: This is not one of us. Ibn Jarir narrated from him regarding his statement: A small price he said: A worldly commodity. Woe to them he said: The punishment is upon them for what they wrote with their own hands of that lie. And woe to them for what they earn he said: What they eat with the common people and others. The author of Al-Durr Al-Manthur mentioned traces from a group of the Salaf that they disliked the sale of copies of the Qur'an, citing this verse as evidence, but there is no evidence for that. Then he mentioned traces from a group of them that they permitted that and did not dislike it. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi

Hatim, Al-Tabarani and Al-Wahidi narrated from Ibn Abbas: The Jews used to say that the duration of the world is seven thousand years, and we are only punished for every thousand years of the worldly life for one day in the fire, and it is only seven numbered days, then the punishment stops, so God revealed regarding that: "And they said: The Fire will never touch us" the verse. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: The People of the Book found the distance between the two ends of Hell to be a distance of forty, so they said: We will not punish the people of Hell except for the amount of forty. Then, on the Day of Resurrection, they will be bridled in the Fire and will walk in it until they reach Saqar, in which is the Tree of Zaqqum, until the last day of the numbered days. Then the keepers of the Fire will say to them: O enemies of God, you claimed that you will not be punished in the Fire except for a numbered number of days, but the number has passed and eternity remains. So they will be taken ascending, exhausted on their faces. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that the Jews said: The Fire will not touch us except for forty nights, the period of time during which the calf was worshipped. And Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah who said: "The Jews gathered one day and argued with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: 'The Fire will not touch us except for a few days, forty days, then people will replace us in it.' They pointed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, putting his hands on his head: 'You have lied. Rather, you will abide therein forever. We will never replace you in it, God willing.' It was about them that this verse was revealed: 'And they said: The Fire will never touch us.'" And Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, with a similar chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Ahmad, Al-Bukhari, Al-Darimi and Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked the Jews in Khaybar: 'Who are the people of the Fire?' They said: 'We will be in it for a short time, then you will replace us in it.' So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to them: 'Be gone! By God, we will never replace you in it.'" Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, "Say: Have you taken a covenant from God?" meaning a pledge from God that it is as you say. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he interpreted the covenant here as meaning that they said: There is no god but God, they did not associate anything with Him nor did they disbelieve. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement, Or do you say about God that which you do not know? He said: The people said: Lies and falsehood. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Yes, whoever earns evil, he said: Shirk. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah and Qatadah something similar. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah regarding his statement, And his sin encompasses him, he said: His Shirk encompasses him. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his statement, Yes, whoever earns evil, meaning whoever does the same deeds as you do and disbelieves in the same way as you disbelieve until his disbelief encompasses his good deeds. These are the companions of the Fire, they will abide therein eternally.

and assimilation in both. Then those are the companions of the Fire, they will abide therein in the Hereafter, just as they abide therein in its causes in this world. They will abide therein eternally, permanently, or they will remain there for a long time. As you can see, the verse does not contain any proof that the person who commits a major sin will abide eternally, nor does the one before it.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

81. Bala and bal and bala: two letters of correction, and their meaning is to negate the past report and confirm the future report. Whoever earns a bad deed means polytheism. And his sin has encompassed him The people of Medina read his sins in the plural, and encompassing means surrounding something from all sides. Ibn Abbas, Ata, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Ar-Rabi' and a group said: It is polytheism that one dies upon. It was said: It is the major sin. And encompassing him means that he persists in it and dies without repenting. Ikrimah and Ar-Rabi' bin Khaitham said: Mujahid said: It is the sins that surround the heart. Whenever he commits a sin, it rises until it covers the heart, which is the rust. Al-Kalbi said: His sins destroyed him, the evidence for this is the Almighty's statement: Unless you are encompassed 66-Yusuf meaning you are destroyed. Then those are the companions of the Fire, they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

81- Yes is proof of what they denied about the Fire touching them for a long time and a long age in a more general way, to be like proof of the invalidity of their statement, and it is specific to the answer to the denial whoever earns a bad deed ugly, and the difference between it and sin is that it may be said in what is intended by the self, and sin is predominant in what is intended by the accident because it is from error, and earning is: bringing benefit. And its connection to the bad is in the manner of his saying: Then give them tidings of a painful punishment.

"And his sin encompassed him" means it took control of him and encompassed all of his conditions until he became as if he was surrounded by it, with nothing of his aspects being free from it. This is only true in the case of the disbeliever because even if someone else has nothing but the belief of his heart and the admission of his tongue, the sin does not encompass him. That is why the early Muslims interpreted it as disbelief. The realization of that is that whoever commits a sin and does not desist from it, it will drag him to repeat the same sin and become immersed in it and commit what is greater than it, until the sins take control of him and take hold of his heart, so he becomes naturally inclined towards sins, approving of them and believing that there is no pleasure other than them, hating those who prevent him from them and denying those who advise him in them, as God the Most High said: "Then the end of those who did evil was the worst, because they denied the signs of God. Nafi' read his sins. It was read his sins" with the heart

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:82

And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:82

And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by his statement, and those who believed, is that they believed in what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought. What is meant by his statement, and did righteous deeds, is that they obeyed God, established His limits, performed His obligations, and avoided His prohibitions. What is meant by his statement, those, is that those who are like that are the companions of Paradise, they will abide therein eternally, meaning: its people who are its people, they will abide therein eternally, residing forever.

This verse and the one before it are an announcement from God to His servants about the permanence of Hell and the permanence of its people in it, or the permanence of Paradise and the permanence of its people in it, and the permanence of what He has prepared in each of them for its people, as a denial from God, the Most High, to those of the Jews of the Children of Israel who said: The Fire will not touch them except for a few days, and that after that they will go to Paradise. So He informed them about the eternity of their disbelievers in Hell and the eternity of their believers in Paradise, as Ibn Hamid told me, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally. That is, whoever believes in what you disbelieve in and acts according to the religion you have abandoned, Paradise is for them, abiding therein eternally. He informs them that the reward for good and evil is constant for its people forever, never ending.

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said, And those who believe and do righteous deeds, meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, Those are the companions of Paradise, they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are three issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: By God means that the matter is not as you mentioned. Sibawayh said: By God and Na'am are not nouns. Rather, they are two letters like ba and others, and it is a response to their saying: The Fire will not touch us. The Kufians said: Its origin is ba which is used to contradict the first, and the letter ya was added to it to make the pause better, and the letter ya included the meaning of affirmation and blessing. So ba indicates the rejection of denial, and the letter ya indicates the affirmation of what comes after. They said: If someone said: Didn't you take a dinar? and you said: Yes, the meaning would be: No, I did not take, because you confirmed the negation and what comes after it. So if you said: By God, the meaning would be: I have taken." Al-Farra' said: If a man says to his friend: You owe him something, and the other says: Yes, that is confirmation, because he has nothing against him. If he said: By God, it would be a response to his saying, and its meaning is: Yes, I owe you. In the Qur'an: Am I not your Lord? They said: Yes. If they had said: Yes, they would have disbelieved.

Second: The Almighty's saying: evil. Evil is polytheism. Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata': Who committed evil? He said: Polytheism. Then he recited: And whoever brings evil - their faces will be thrown into the Fire. And this is what Al-Hasan and Qatada said. They said: And the major sin.

Third: When God Almighty said: Yes, whoever has earned evil and his sin has encompassed him, it indicates that what is suspended on two conditions is not fulfilled with the least of them. Similar to it is God Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who say, 'Our Lord is God,' and then remain steadfast, and his saying, peace be upon him, to Sufyan ibn Abdullah al-Thaqafi when he said to him:

O Messenger of God, tell me something about Islam that I will not ask anyone else about after you. He said: "Say: 'I believe in God,' then be steadfast." Narrated by Muslim. This meaning and what the scholars have said about it have already been discussed in the words of God the Almighty to Adam and Eve: And do not approach this tree, lest you be among the wrongdoers. Nafi' read his sins in the plural, while the rest read them in the singular, and the meaning is abundance, like the words of God the Almighty: If you should count the favors of God, you could not enumerate them.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: The matter is not as you wished nor as you desire, but rather the matter is that whoever does evil and his sin encompasses him, and he who comes on the Day of Resurrection and he has no good deeds, but rather all of his deeds are evil, then he is from the people of Hell, And those who believe and do righteous deeds meaning they believed in God and His Messenger, and did righteous deeds that are in accordance with the Shari'ah, then they are from the people of Paradise, and this position is similar to the saying of God the Almighty: "It is not according to your desires nor according to the desires of the People of the Scripture. Whoever does evil will be recompensed for it, and will not find for himself besides God any protector or helper. And whoever does righteous deeds, whether male or female, while he is a believer - those will enter Paradise and will not be wronged, even as much as a speck." Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Yes, whoever earns evil meaning he does the same deeds as you do and disbelieves in the same that you disbelieved in until his disbelief encompasses him, so he has no good deeds, and in a narration on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: polytheism. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Abu Wa'il and Abu Al-Aliyah Mujahid, Ikrimah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas said something similar. Al-Hasan and As-Suddi also said: The major sin is one of the major sins. Ibn Jurayj said, on the authority of Mujahid, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: his heart. Abu Hurayrah, Abu Wa'il, Ata', and Al-Hasan said, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: his polytheism encompassed him. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Abu Razin, on the authority of Ar-Rabi' ibn Khaitham, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: the one who dies upon his sins before he repents. As-Suddi and Abu Razin said something similar. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, and Al-Hasan in a narration on their authority, Qatadah, and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas said, And his sin encompassed him, meaning: the major sin. All of these statements are close in meaning, and God knows best. Here he mentions the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad, where he said: Sulayman ibn Dawud told us, Amr ibn Qatada told us, on the authority of Abd Rabbih, on the authority of Abu Ayyad, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Beware of small sins, for they accumulate on a man until they destroy him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave them an example like that of people who camped in a desert land, and the people's actions were witnessed, so one man would go and bring a stick, and another man would bring a stick until they had gathered a mass of people, and they lit a fire and cooked what they had thrown into it. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally. That is, whoever believes in what you disbelieve in and does what you have abandoned of His religion, Paradise is theirs, abiding therein. He informs them that the reward for good and evil is constant for its people forever, without interruption.

Fath al-Qadir

82- And those who believe and do righteous deeds meaning whoever believes in what you disbelieve in and does what you have abandoned of His religion, then for them is Paradise, abiding therein. Abd bin

Hamid narrated from Qatadah regarding his statement: And his sin encompasses him he said: It is the major sin that causes its people to be in Hell. Wakee' and Ibn Jarir narrated from Al-Hasan that he said: Everything for which God has promised Hell is a sin. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated from Al-Rabi' bin Khaitham who said: It is the one who dies in his sin before he repents. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Al-A'mash.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

82. The Almighty said: And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

82- And those who believe and do righteous deeds - those are the companions of Paradise; they will abide therein eternally. It is the custom of God Almighty to follow up His promise with His threat, so that His mercy may be hoped for and His punishment may be feared. The conjunction of deeds with faith indicates that it is outside its meaning.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:83

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, "Worship none but Allah, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, and the needy, and speak to people kindly, and establish prayer, and give zakah." Then you turned away, except for a few of you, while you were averse.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:83

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, Worship none but God, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, and the needy, and speak to people kindly, and establish prayer, and give zakah. Then you turned away, except for a few of you, while you were averse.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel in the Torah and said Do not worship with the letter ta and the letter ya except God report with the meaning of prohibition, and it was read: {Do not worship} and be good to parents with goodness kindness and to relatives kinship is in apposition to parents and orphans and the needy and speak to people a good word of enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong and being truthful in the matter of Muhammad and being kind to them, and in a reading with the letter ha with a damma and the letter seen with a sukoon, a source of description in which there is exaggeration and establish prayer and give zakat so you accepted that then you turned away you turned away from fulfilling it, in it there is a shift from absence and what is meant is their fathers except a few of you, and you are turning away from it like your fathers

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: We have already demonstrated in our previous book that the covenant is a verbal noun derived from the word to swear an oath and similar things that confirm a statement. So the meaning of the statement is: And remember also, O company of Children of Israel, when We took your covenant that you shall not worship except God, as Ibn Humayd told me, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when We took the covenant of the Children of Israel means your covenant that you shall not worship except God.

Abu Ja'far said: The readings differ in the reading of His statement: Do not worship. Some of them read it with the ta', and some of them read it with the ya', and the meaning is the same. The reading with the ya' and the ta', and to say Do not worship and Do not worship while they are absent, is because taking the covenant means taking an oath. Just as you say: I took your brother to stand up, so you tell him what you know about the absent person because he is absent from you. And you say: I took him to swear that you will stand up, so you tell him what you know about the one being addressed, because you had addressed him with that, so that would be correct and permissible. Likewise, His statement: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, [saying], 'You shall not worship except God,' and Do not worship. Whoever reads that with the ta', then the meaning is addressing, since the address had already been made with that. And whoever reads it with the ya', then it is because they were not addressed with that at the time of the reporting about them.

As for the raising of La 'ibadoun, it is with the ta' in ibadoun, and it is not made nasb by an which could have been used with La 'ibadoun illa God, because if it was suitable to be used with a verb and it was deleted and not used, the correct way of speaking about it would be to raise it, as God, the Most High, said: "Say: 'Is it other than God that you order me to worship, O ignorant ones?'" (al-Zumar 39:64). So he raised l'badoun because an did not enter into it with the alif indicating the meaning of the future, and as the poet said.

Oh, you who deter, I attend the battle and witness the pleasures. Are you immortal?

So he raised the letter ahdara even though it is permissible to include an in it if it is deleted, with the letter alif which comes with the meaning of the future.

It was only appropriate to delete that from His statement: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship,' because of the apparent indication of it in the speech, so it was sufficient to indicate what was apparent from it.

Some of the grammarians of Basra used to say: The meaning of his statement: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship except God,' is a narration, as if you said: We made them swear: You shall not worship, meaning we said to them: By God, you shall not worship, and they said: By God, they shall not worship. And the one who said that is close in meaning to the meaning of the statement we made about that. And similar to what we said about his statement: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship except God,' the people of interpretation interpreted it. Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: He took their covenants that they would be sincere to Him and not worship anyone other than Him.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi' regarding his statement: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship except God,' he said: We took their covenant that they would be sincere to God and not worship anyone other than Him.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship except God,' he said: The covenant that was taken from them at the table.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And to parents, do good.

Abu Ja'far said: And His statement, may He be glorified: And to parents, good treatment, is in apposition to the position of the omitted that in worship none but God. So the meaning of the statement is: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel that they would worship none but God, and to parents, good treatment, so He raised that they would worship none because that was omitted, then He connected to parents to its position, as the poet said:

Muawiyah, we are human beings, so be patient, for we are neither mountains nor iron.

So iron was placed in the accusative case in conjunction with the position of mountains, because if it did not have a prepositional ba' in it, it would have been in the accusative case. So iron was placed in conjunction with the meaning of mountains, not with its wording. So it is the same with what was described in His statement: And to parents, good treatment.

As for the goodness, it is in the accusative case because of an implied verb whose meaning is conveyed by his statement: and to parents, since its meaning was understood. The meaning of the statement, if he had made the omitted word clear, would have been: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, that you would not worship except God, and that you would do good to parents. So it was sufficient to say: and to parents, instead of saying: and that you do good to parents, since it was understood that this was its meaning according to what was apparent from the statement.

Some Arabists have claimed that its meaning is: And be kind to your parents, so the ba in parents is a connection between kindness and it is placed before it.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: That you worship none but God, and be good to your parents. So they claimed that the ba' in parents is a connection to the omitted word, I mean be good, so they made that into two sentences. The sentence is only diverted to what they claimed from that, if there is no way for the sentence to be consistent with one sentence. As for the sentence, there is a way that is understood to be consistent with one sentence, so there is no way to divert it to two sentences. Another is that if the statement in that were as they said, it would have been said: And to the parents, be good, because it is only said: So-and-so was good to his parents, and it is not said: He was good to his parents, except on the basis of a forced statement.

But what we have said about it is what we have said, which is: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel with such and such, and to parents, good treatment, as we have explained before. So good treatment then is a source of speech, not of its wording, as we have explained in previous similar examples.

If someone says: What is that kindness that was taken from them by the covenant of parents?

It was said: Similar to what God has imposed on our nation for them, such as doing good to them, speaking kindly, lowering the wing of humility out of mercy for them, showing compassion for them, showing mercy to them, praying for their well-being, and other similar actions that God has urged His servants to do for them.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And the relatives, the orphans, and the needy.

Abu Jaafar said: He means by his saying and the relatives, and by the relatives they should maintain ties with his relatives and kin.

Qurbah is a verbal noun based on the estimation of the verb, from your saying, So-and-so's womb brought me close to him, meaning kinship, proximity, and proximity.

As for orphans, they are the plural of orphan, like prisoner and prisoners. Orphans include both males and females.

The meaning of this is: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, [saying], 'You shall not worship except God,' alone, without any other equals to Him, 'and to parents, do good.' And to relatives: that you maintain kinship ties and recognize their rights, and to orphans: that you show them mercy and compassion, and to the needy: that you give them their rights that God has made obligatory upon you, your wealth. The word muskeen is the one who is humble and submissive due to poverty and need, and it is derived from mouskanah.

Poverty is the humiliation of need and want.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And speak to people in a good manner.

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say: How was it said: And speak to people in a good way, so that the speech was a command without a command preceding it, but rather the speech is running from the beginning of the verse in the form of a statement?

It was said: Although the speech was in the beginning of the verse as a report, it is appropriate in its place to address, with command and prohibition. If instead of: Worship none but God, it was: Worship none but God in the manner of God's prohibition of them from worshipping anyone other than Him, it would be good and correct. It was mentioned that this is the case in the reading of Ubayy ibn Ka'b. It was only good and permissible if it was read in this way because taking the covenant is a statement.

The meaning of the statement, if it had been read in this way, would have been: And when We said to the Children of Israel: Do not worship except God, as the Most High said in another place: And when We took your covenant and raised the Mount above you, [saying], 'Take what We have given you with strength' (al-Baqarah 2:63). Since it was good to place the command and prohibition in the place of: Do not worship except God, He connected it with His saying: And speak to the people in a good way, to the place of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:83

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, "Worship none but Allah, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, and the needy, and speak to people kindly, and establish prayer, and give zakah." Then you turned away, except for a few of you, while you were averse.

Do not worship, even though each one of them differs in meaning from what is in it, because of what we described of the permissibility of placing the address with the command and prohibition in the place of Do not worship. So it is as if it was said: And when We took the covenant of the Children of Israel: Do not worship except God, And speak to the people in a good way. This is similar to what we have explained previously: that the Arabs sometimes begin the speech in the manner of reporting about the absent in the place of narrating what they have reported, then return to reporting in the manner of addressing, and sometimes begin in the manner of addressing, then return to reporting in the manner of reporting about the absent, because of the two meanings in narration, as the poet said:

Treat us well or badly, we are not to be blamed or diminished if you are diminished

It means: I followed.

As for Al-Hasan, the readers differed in his reading. The majority of the readers of Kufa, except for Asim, read it: Wa Qoolu al-Nas Hasna with the opening of the Ha and the Seen. The majority of the readers of Medina read it: Hasanan with the Damma of the Ha and the Sukoon of the Seen. It has been narrated from some of the readers that he used to read: Wa Qoolu al-Nas Hasna with the example of Fa'ala.

The Arabists differed about the difference between the meaning of his saying: Hasan and Hasanan. Some of the Basrans said: It is of two meanings: Either what is meant by Hasan is Hasan, and both are linguistically, as is said: Bukhl and Bukhl, or that Hasan is made to mean Hasan in the simile. This is because Hasan is a source and Hasan is a good thing. This would then be like your saying: You are only eating and drinking, and as the poet said:

And horses have entered upon her, horses greeting her, and a painful blow has struck them.

So he made the greeting a strike.

Another said: Rather, al-Hasan is the general name that includes all the meanings of al-Hasan. Al-Hasan is some of the meanings of al-Hasan. He said: That is why God, the Most High, said, when He recommended the parents: And We have enjoined upon man, concerning his parents, good treatment (al-'Ankabut: 8), meaning that He recommended him concerning them all the meanings of al-Hasan, and He commanded all other people to do some of what He commanded him concerning his parents, so He said: And speak to people in a good manner, meaning some of the meanings of al-Hasan. Abu Ja'far said: What this speaker said about the meaning of al-Hasan with a damma on the ha' and a sukoon on the seen, is not far from being correct, and that it is a name for its type by which it was named. As for al-Hasan, it is an attribute that occurs to what it is described with, and that occurs with a specific thing. If this is the case, then the correct reading of His statement: And speak to people in a good manner is because the people were only commanded in this era in which it was said to them: And speak to people to use al-Hasan from speech, not the other meanings of al-Hasan that are without speech. That is an attribute of a specific meaning of al-Hasan, which is speech. Therefore, I chose to read it with the opening of the ha' and the seen, rather than reading it with the damma of the ha' and the sukoon of the seen.

As for the one who read it: And speak to people in a good way, he contradicted the reading of the people of Islam by reading it in this way. It is sufficient evidence of the error of reading it in this way, that it is outside the reading of the people of Islam, if there is no other witness to its error, so how is it outside the known speech of the Arabs? This is because the Arabs hardly speak with fa'la and afa'al except with the definite article or with an addition. It is not said: ja'anī ahsan, until they say: al-ahsan. Nor is it said: ajmal, until they say: al-ajmal. This is because afa'al and fa'l are hardly found as descriptions except for something known and familiar, as you say: nay, your brother is the best, and nay, your sister is the best. It is not permissible to say: a woman is the best, and a man is the best.

As for the interpretation of the good speech that God commanded and described their affair from the Children of Israel in this verse, that they should say it to the people, it is what Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Bishr bin Ammarah, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, in his saying: And speak to the people in a good way, He also commanded them after this creation: to say to the people in a good way, to command those who did not say it and were reluctant to say it, There is no god but God, until they say it as they said it, for that is a way of drawing closer to God, the Most High. He also said: Good is also gentle speech, from the good and beautiful manners and noble character, and it is from what God is pleased with and loves.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And speak to people in a good way, he said, speak to people in a good way.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And speak to people in a good way, he said: Truthfully regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated on the authority of Yazid bin Harun, who said: I heard Sufyan al-Thawri say regarding His statement: And speak to people in a good way, that he said: Command them to do good and forbid them from evil.

Harun bin Idris Al-Asamm told me, he said: Abd Al-Rahman bin Muhammad Al-Maharbi told us, he said:

Abd Al-Malik bin Abi Sulayman told us, he said: I asked Ata bin Abi Rabah about the words of God Almighty: And speak to people in good terms, he said: Whoever you meet from the people, speak to him in good terms. He said: I asked Abu Ja'far, and he said the same.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Al-Qasim told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far and Ata' bin Abi Rabah, regarding his statement: And speak to people in a good way, he said: to all people.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata', similarly.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And establish prayer.

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: And establish prayer, is to perform it with the rights that are obligatory upon you in it, as Abu Kurayb told us, he said: Uthman ibn Sa'id told us, on the authority of Bishr ibn 'Amara, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, who said: And establish prayer, this. And establishing prayer is the completion of bowing, prostration, recitation, humility, and devotion to it in it.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And give zakat.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously explained the meaning of zakat and its origin.

As for the zakat that God had commanded the Children of Israel to pay, whose affair is mentioned in this verse, it is what: Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said, Uthman ibn Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Bishr ibn Amara, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And give zakat, he said: Giving zakat is what God had imposed upon them from their wealth in the form of zakat, and it was a tradition for them other than the tradition of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The zakat of their wealth was an offering to which a fire would descend and carry it, so it was accepted. And whoever the fire did not do that to, it was not accepted, and what was offered was from an unlawful gain: from oppression or deception, or taking something other than what God had commanded him to do and made clear to him.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And give zakat, meaning by zakat: obedience to God and sincerity. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: Then you turned away, except for a few of you, and you were averse.

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God, may He be glorified, about the Jews of the Children of Israel, that they broke their covenant and violated their pledge, after God had taken their pledge to be faithful to Him, that they would not worship anyone other than Him, and that they would be good to their fathers and mothers, and maintain family ties, and be kind to orphans, and fulfill the rights of the poor towards them, and command the servants of God to do what God has commanded them to do and urge them to obey Him, and establish prayer with its limits and obligations, and pay the zakat of their wealth. But they disobeyed His command in all of that, and turned away from Him, except for those whom God protected from among them, so they fulfilled their pledge and covenant to God, as:

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Bishr bin Amara, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: When God, the Almighty and Majestic, imposed on them - meaning: on those whose matter God described in His Book from the Children of Israel - this which He mentioned that He took a covenant from them with, they turned away from it, finding it burdensome and hating it, and they sought what was easy for them, except for a few of them, and they are the ones whom God excepted, so He said: Then you turned away, meaning: you turned away from obeying Me, except a few of you, He said: the few whom I chose for My obedience, and My punishment will befall whoever turned away and turned away from it, meaning: they left it out of contempt for it.

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told us, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then you turned away, except for a few of you, and you were turning away, meaning you abandoned all of that.

Some of them said: God Almighty meant by His saying: And you are turning away, the Jews who were at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and He meant by the rest of the verse their ancestors. It is as if he went to the meaning of the words: Then you turned away, except for a few of you: Then your ancestors turned away, except for a few of them, but he made it a speech to the remnants of their offspring as we mentioned previously. Then He said: And you, O group of their remnants, are also turning away from the covenant that was taken from you regarding that, and your abandoning it is as your predecessors abandoned.

Others said: Rather, His statement, Then you turned away, except for a few of you, and you were turning away, is addressed to those Jews of the Children of Israel who were among the immigrants of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and He condemned them for breaking the covenant that was taken from them in the Torah, changing God's command, and committing His sins.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains ten issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel. We have already discussed these words. There is disagreement about the covenant here. Makki said: It is the covenant that was taken from them when they were brought out from the loins of Adam like atoms. It was said: It is a covenant that was taken from them while they were

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:83

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, "Worship none but Allah, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, and the needy, and speak to people kindly, and establish prayer, and give zakah." Then you turned away, except for a few of you, while you were averse.

rational in their lives on the tongues of their prophets, and it is His saying: Worship none but God. And worshipping God is affirming His Oneness, believing in His messengers, and acting according to what He revealed in His books.

Second: The Almighty said: Do not worship. Sibawayh said: Do not worship is related to an oath, and the meaning is: And if We make them successors, by God, you will not worship. Al-Mubarrad, Al-Kisa'i, and Al-Farra' permitted it. Abi and Ibn Mas'ud read Do not worship as a prohibition, and that is why the speech was connected to a command, so He said: And stand up, "Say," Establish, and Give. It was said: It is in the position of a state, meaning We took their covenant to be monotheists, or not to be stubborn. This was also said by Qatrub and Al-Mubarrad. This is only correct according to the reading of Ibn Kathir, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i, They worship with the ya from below. Al-Farra', Al-Zajaj, and a group said: The meaning is: We took their covenant that they will not worship except God, and that they will be good to their parents, and that they will not shed blood. Then an and ba were deleted, so the verb was raised because they were gone, like the Almighty's saying: Do you command me to do other than God? Al-Mubarrad said: This is wrong, because everything that is implied in Arabic works like an explicit noun. You say: And a country I cut off, meaning there is a country.

I said this is not a mistake, rather they are two correct views, and based on them Sibawayh recited:

Oh you who deters, come to the battlefield and witness the pleasures. Are you immortal?

In the accusative and nominative cases, the accusative case is based on the omission of an, and the nominative case is based on its deletion.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And to parents, good treatment. That is, We commanded him to be good to his parents. In this verse, God the Almighty linked the right of the parents to monotheism, because the first upbringing is from God, and the second upbringing - which is education - is from the parents. For this reason, God the Almighty linked thanking them with thanking Him, saying: That you be grateful to Me and to your parents. And being kind to one's parents means treating them kindly, being humble towards them, obeying their commands, praying for forgiveness after their death, and maintaining ties with their loved ones, as will be explained in detail in Al-Isra', God willing.

Fourth: The Almighty's statement: and the relatives. The relatives are connected to the parents. The relatives mean kinship, and it is a verbal noun like raji' and al-'uqba, meaning, and We commanded them to be kind to the relatives by maintaining ties of kinship. This will be explained in detail in Surat al-Qital, God willing.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying, And the orphans.

Orphans is also an appositive, and it is the plural of an orphan, like companions is the plural of companion. Orphanhood among the children of Adam is due to the loss of a father, and among animals is due to the loss of a mother. Al-Mawardi narrated that an orphan is said among the children of Adam in the loss of a mother, and the first is well-known. Its origin is isolation, it is said: an orphan boy, meaning isolated from his father. An orphan house: meaning there is no poetry before or after it. An orphan pearl has no equal. It was said: Its origin is slowness, so the orphan was named after it, because righteousness is slow to come to him. It is said: he becomes orphaned, he becomes an orphan, like he becomes great. And he becomes orphaned, he becomes an orphan, he becomes an orphan, like he hears, Al-Farra' mentioned the two faces. And God has made him an orphan. This indicates compassion for the orphan and the urging to sponsor him and protect his money, as will be explained in An-Nisa'. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The one who takes care of an orphan, whether he is his or someone else's, he and I will be like these two in Paradise. Malik pointed with his index and middle fingers. Narrated by Abu Hurayrah and included in Muslim's collection. Imam Al-Hafiz Abu Muhammad Abd Al-Ghani bin Saeed included in his collection a hadith on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Dinar Abu Saeed Al-Basri, who is Al-Hasan bin Wasil, who said: Al-Aswad bin Abd Al-Rahman told us on the authority of Hissan on the authority of Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

No orphan sits with people on their plate and the devil approaches their plate. It was also narrated from the hadith of Hasan ibn Qays, who is Abu Ali al-Rahabi, on the authority of Ikrimah, "on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever takes an orphan from among the Muslims to his food and drink until God Almighty makes him independent, his sins will be forgiven for all, unless he does an unforgivable deed. Whoever God takes away his two most precious things and he is patient and seeks reward from God, his sins will be forgiven." They said: And what are his two most precious things? He said: His two eyes. They said: And whoever has three daughters or three sisters and spends on them and treats them well until they grow up or die, his sins will be forgiven for all, unless he does an unforgivable deed. Then a Bedouin who had emigrated called out to him and said: O Messenger of God, or two? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Or two. Whenever Ibn Abbas narrated this hadith, he would say: By God, this is one of the strangest and most deceptive hadiths.

Sixth: The index finger is the finger next to the thumb. In the pre-Islamic era, it was called the index finger because they used it to curse. When God brought Islam, they hated this name and called it the index finger because they used it to point to God in monotheism.

It is also called swimming. It was named thus in the hadith of Wa'il bin Hajar and others, but the language followed what was known in the pre-Islamic era and it prevailed.

It was narrated that the fingers of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were longer than the middle finger, then the middle finger was shorter than it, then the ring finger was shorter than the middle finger. Yazid bin Harun narrated: "Abdullah bin Yazid bin Muqsim al-Ta'ifi told us that my aunt Sarah bint Muqsim told me that she heard Maymunah bint Kurdam say: 'I went out on a pilgrimage that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, performed, and I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on his mount, and my father asked him about some things. I saw myself amazed, as I was a girl, by the length of his finger next to the thumb over the rest of his fingers.' So his, peace be upon him, saying:

"He and I are like these two in Paradise," and his saying in the other hadith:

I, Abu Bakr and Umar will be gathered on the Day of Resurrection like this, and he pointed with his three fingers. He only wanted to mention the stations and the supervision over creation, so he said: We will be gathered like this and we will be supervised, and likewise the one who takes care of an orphan will have a high station. Whoever does not know the status of the fingers of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, interprets the hadith as meaning that they will be joined together and close to one another in a place of closeness. This is a far-fetched meaning, because the stations of the messengers, prophets, truthful ones, martyrs and righteous ones are different ranks and stations.

Seventh: The Almighty's statement: and the needy. The needy is also an appositive, meaning that We commanded them to be kind to the needy, who are those who have been afflicted by need and humiliated. This includes urging charity, sympathy, and checking on the conditions of the needy and weak. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

"He who strives for the widow and the poor is like one who strives in the cause of God - and I think he said - and like one who stands in prayer without tiring and like one who fasts without breaking his fast." Ibn al-Mundhir said: Tawus considered striving for sisters to be better than striving in the cause of God.

Eighth: The Almighty's saying: And speak to people in a good way. Hasan is an accusative of the verbal noun in the sense, because the meaning is to improve your speech. It was said that the meaning is: And speak to people a good word, so it is a verbal noun not in the sense. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read Hasan with the opening of the Ha' and the Seen. Al-Akhfash said: They have the same meaning, like Bukhl and Bukhl, and Rushd and Rushd. Al-Akhfash narrated: Hasna without a tanween on Fa'la. Al-Nahhas said: This is not permissible in Arabic. Nothing of this is said except with the Alif and Lam, like Al-Fadhla and Al-Kubra and Al-Husna. This is the saying of Sibawayh. Isa bin Omar read Hasan with two dhammahs, like Al-Halm. Ibn Abbas said: The meaning is: Say to them there is no god but God and command them to do so. Ibn Jurayj: Speak to people truthfully regarding the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and do not change his description. Sufyan Al-Thawri: Command them to do good and forbid them from evil. Abu Al-Aaliyah: Say good words to them, and deal with them in the best way you would like to deal with. All of this is an exhortation to good morals. A person should speak to people gently and have a cheerful face, with the righteous and the wicked, the Sunni and the innovator, without flattery and without speaking to him in a way that he thinks will please his school of thought, because God the Almighty said to Moses and Aaron: And speak to him with gentle speech. The speaker is not better than Moses and Aaron, and the wicked is not more evil than Pharaoh, and God the Almighty commanded them to be gentle with him. Talhah ibn Umar said: I said to Ata' that you are a man who gathers people with different desires, and I am a man of sharpness, so I say some harsh words to them. He said: Do not do that! God the Almighty says: And speak to people kindly. This verse includes the Jews and Christians, so how about the Hanafi? It was narrated that the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said to Aisha: Do not be obscene, for if obscenity were a man, he would be a bad man. It was said: By people he meant Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, as in his saying: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? It is as if he said: Speak to the Prophet, peace and blessings of God be upon him, in a good way. Al-Mahdawi narrated on the authority of Qatadah that his saying: And speak to people in a good way was abrogated by the verse of the sword. Abu Nasr Abd al-Raheem narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Ibn Abbas said: This verse was revealed at the beginning, then the verse of the sword abrogated it. Ibn Atiyyah said: This indicates that this nation was addressed with similar wording at the beginning of Islam. As for the report about the Children of Israel and what they were commanded to do, there is no abrogation in it, and God knows best.

Ninth: The Almighty's saying: And establish prayer and give zakat. This has been discussed above. The address is to the Children of Israel. Ibn Atiyyah said: Their zakat is what they used to pay, and the fire would descend on what was accepted, and it would not descend on what was not accepted, and it was not like the zakat of the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

I said: This needs to be transmitted, as it was proven in the spoils of war. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The zakat that they were commanded to give is obedience to God and sincerity.

Tenth: The Almighty's saying: Then you turned away. The address is to the contemporaries of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and He attributed to them the turning away of their ancestors, as they were on the same path in turning away from the truth as they were, as he said - a Shanshana I know from Akhzam - except a little like Abdullah bin Salam and his companions. A little is in the accusative case as an exception, and the exception according to Sibawayh is in the accusative case because it is similar to the object in reality. The meaning is: I excepted a little: And you are turning away is the subject and predicate. Turning away and turning away have the same meaning, but they differ in wording. It was said: turning away is with the body, and turning away is with the heart. Al-Mahdawi said: And you are turning away is a state, because turning away indicates turning away.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:83

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, "Worship none but Allah, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, and the needy, and speak to people kindly, and establish prayer, and give zakah." Then you turned away, except for a few of you, while you were averse.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Blessed and Exalted mentions to the Children of Israel what He commanded them to do and took their covenant on that, and that they turned away from all of that, and intentionally and deliberately turned away while they knew Him and remembered Him, so the Almighty commanded them to worship Him and not associate anything with Him, and with this He commanded all of His creation, and for this reason He created them as the Almighty said: And We did not send before you any messenger except that We revealed to him, 'There is no god except Me, so worship Me.' And the Almighty said: And We have certainly sent to every nation a messenger, [saying], 'Worship God and avoid false deities.' This is the highest and greatest of rights, and it is the right of the Blessed and Exalted to be worshipped alone, with no partner for Him. Then after it is the right of the created beings, and the most emphatic and deserving of that is the right of the parents. For this reason the Blessed and Exalted links His right with the right of the parents as the Almighty said: Be grateful to Me and to your parents, to Me is the final destination. And the Blessed and Exalted said: And your Lord has decreed that you worship none but Him, and to parents, good treatment. Until He said, "And give And in the two Sahihs, "On the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, I said: O Messenger of God, which deed is best? He said: Prayer at its proper time. I said: Then what? He said: Honoring one's parents. I said: Then what? He said: Jihad in the way of God." And for this reason it came in the authentic hadith, "A man said: O Messenger of God, who should I honor? He said: Your mother. He said: Then who? He said: Your mother. He said: Then who? He said: Your father?" Then He brought you nearer, then He brought you nearer." And the Almighty's saying: Do not worship except God. Al-Zamakhshari said: It is a statement with the meaning of a request, and it is more emphatic. It was said that its original form was that you do not worship except God. And it was transmitted from those who read it from the predecessors, so the an was deleted and it was raised. It was narrated from Abi and Ibn Masoud that they read it Do not worship except God. And this interpretation was transmitted by Al-Qurtubi in his interpretation from Sibawayh. He said: Al-Kisa'i and Al-Farra' chose it. He said: And the orphans are the young ones who have no income from their parents, and the poor who do not find what they can spend on themselves and their families. And we will discuss these categories in the verse of women, which God the Almighty has explicitly commanded us in His saying: And worship God and do not associate anything with Him, and to parents, do good. And the Almighty's saying: And speak to people kindly, meaning speak to them kindly, and be gentle with them. And this includes enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong with what is right, as Al-Hasan Al-Basri said in His saying: And speak to people kindly. So, good is from speech. He enjoins what is right and forbids what is wrong, is patient, forgives and pardons, and says to al-Nas 114: Good as God said, and he is every good character trait that God is pleased with.

Imam Ahmad said: Ruh told us, Abu Amir Al-Khazzaz told us, on the authority of Abu Imran Al-Joni, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Samit, on the authority of Abu Dharr, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Do not belittle any good deed, and if you cannot find it, then greet your brother with a cheerful face. Muslim included it in his Sahih, and Al-Tirmidhi, who authenticated it, on the authority of Abu Amir Al-Khazzaz, whose name is Salih bin Rustam, on his authority. It was appropriate that he ordered them to say to al-Nas 114: Good after he ordered them to do good to them in action, so he combined the two sides of good deed and speech, then he emphasized the command to worship Him and do good to people with what is required of that, which is prayer and zakat, so he said: And establish prayer and give zakat. And he informed that they turned away from all of that, meaning they left it behind them and turned away from it deliberately after knowing about it, except for a few of them. God ordered this nation to do something similar in Surat An-Nisa', saying: And worship God and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, and the neighbor who is near of kin. And the neighbor who is a stranger, and the companion at your side, and the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, God does not like the arrogant and boastful." So this nation rose from that in a way that no nation before it had risen from, and praise and thanks be to God. Among the strange narrations here is what Ibn Abi Hatim mentioned in his interpretation: My father told us, Muhammad ibn Khalaf al-Asqalani told us, Abdullah ibn Yusuf, meaning al-Tanisi, told us, Khalid ibn Subaih told us, on the authority of Humayd ibn Uqbah, on the authority of Asad ibn Wada'ah: That he would go out of his house and not meet a Jew or a Christian without greeting him. So it was said to him: What is the matter with you that you greet a Jew or a Christian? He said: Indeed, God the Most High says: And speak to people in a good manner, which is peace.

He said: And it was narrated on the authority of Ata' al-Khurasani something similar to it I said and it has been proven in the Sunnah that they do not initiate the greeting, and God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

The interpretation of the covenant taken from the Children of Israel has been presented. Makki said: The covenant that God took from them here is what God took from them during their lives through the tongues of their prophets, which is His saying: 83- Do not worship except God and worshipping God is to prove His Oneness and believe in His Messengers and act according to what He revealed in His books. Sibawayh said: His saying: Do not worship except God is the answer to an oath, and the meaning is, We made them swear by God that you do not worship except God, and it was said: It is a statement in the sense of a command, and it indicates the reading of Abi and Ibn Masoud do not worship as a prohibition and it is also indicated by what is connected to it from His saying: And say "And establish And give" and Qatrib and Al-Mubarrad said: His saying: "Do not worship" is a circumstantial clause: meaning We took their covenant whether they were monotheists or not stubborn. Al-Qurtubi said: This is only based on the reading of Ibn Kathir, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i "They worship" with the lower yaa. Al-Farra', Al-Zajaj and a group said: Its meaning is that we took your covenant that you will worship none but God, that you will treat your parents well, and that you will not shed blood. Then he deleted an and the verb was raised because it was no longer there. Al-Mubarrad said: This is a mistake, because everything that is implied in Arabic has the same function as an explicit verb. Al-Qurtubi said: It is not a mistake, rather they are two correct interpretations, and based on them he recited:

Oh, you who deter, I attend the battle and witness the pleasures. Are you immortal?

In the accusative case, because he said: brought, and in the nominative case. And being kind to parents: treating them kindly, being humble towards them, and obeying their commands, and all other rights that God has obligated upon the child towards his parents. And kinship: a source like return and afterlife, they are kinship - and being kind to them: is connecting with them and doing what they need according to one's ability and to the extent one's capacity reaches. And orphans is the plural of orphan, and an orphan among the children of Adam is the one who has lost his father. And among all animals: the one who has lost his mother. And its origin is isolation - it is said: an orphan boy: meaning isolated from his father, and the poor is the plural of poor, and he is the one who has been inhabited and humiliated by need, and he is poorer than the poor according to most linguists and many jurists. It was narrated from Al-Shafi'i that the poor is in a worse state than the poor. The scholars have mentioned comprehensive evidence for this research in its places. The meaning of his statement: "And speak to the people kindly" means speak to them kindly, so it is an attribute of a deleted source, and it is a source like good report, and Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read Hasan with the opening of the Ha and Seen. Zaid bin Thabit and Ibn Masoud read it the same way. Al-Akhfash said: They have the same meaning, like Bukhl and Bukhl, and Rushd and Rushd. Al-Akhfash also narrated Hasna without a tanween on Fa'la. An-Nahhas said: This is not permissible in Arabic. Nothing of this is said except with the alif and lam, like Al-Fadhla, Al-Kubra and Al-Husna. This is the opinion of Sibawayh. Isa bin Omar read Hasna with two dhammahs. It appears that this statement that God commanded them with is not specific to a specific type, rather everything that is true of being good according to the Shari'ah is among the things that this command is true of. It has been said that this is the word of monotheism, and it has been said: Truthfulness, and it has been said: Enjoining good and forbidding evil, and it has been said: other than that. His statement: And establish prayer and give zakat has been explained above, and it is addressed to the Children of Israel, so what is meant is the prayer that they used to pray and the zakat that they used to give. Ibn Atiyyah said: Their zakat is what they used to pay, so the fire would descend on what is acceptable, and it would not descend on what is not acceptable. His saying: Then you turned away. It was said that the address was to those of them who were present during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because they were like their predecessors in that, and in it there is a shift from the third person to the second person. His saying: Except a few is in the accusative case as an exception, and among them is Abdullah bin Salam and his companions. His saying: And you turned away is in a position like the accusative case as a state, and turning away and turning away have one meaning, and it was said: turning away with the body, and turning away with the heart.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

83. God the Almighty said: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel in the Torah, and the covenant is the strong promise You shall not worship except God Ibn Kathir, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read لا عبادون with a ya', and Al-Kharun read with a ta' because of God the Almighty's saying And speak to people kindly meaning do not worship, so when it was deleted, the verb became raised, and Abi bin Ka'b read: Do not worship except God as a prohibition To parents, good treatment meaning and We enjoined upon them to be kind to their parents, being dutiful to them and compassionate towards them and submitting to their command, in what does not contradict the command of God the Almighty And to relatives meaning and to relatives, and kinship is a source like goodness And orphans plural of orphan, which is a child who has no father And the needy meaning the poor And speak to people kindly truthfully and truly regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so whoever asks you about him, tell him the truth and explain his description and do not conceal his matter, this is the saying of Ibn Abbas, Sa'id bin Jubayr, Ibn Jurayj and Muqatil, and Sufyan Al-Thawri said: Command them to do good And forbid them from evil. It was said: It is gentleness in speech and dealing with people with good character. Hamza, Al-Kisa'i, and Ya'qub read: Hasanah with the opening of the Ha' and the Seen, meaning good speech. And establish prayer and give zakat, then you turned away you turned away from the covenant and the pact except a few of you and that is because a people among them believed and you were turning away like your fathers turned away.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:83

And remember when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, "Worship none but Allah, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, and the needy, and speak to people kindly, and establish prayer, and give zakah." Then you turned away, except for a few of you, while you were averse.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

83- "And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship except God.'" This is a statement in the sense of a prohibition, as in the Almighty's saying: "And let no scribe or witness be harmed." It is more eloquent than an explicit prohibition, because it implies that the one being prohibited hastened to end, so it is a statement about it, and it is supported by the reading: Do not worship. And the conjunction of "say" to it is in the sense of saying: And it was said: Its meaning is that they should not worship, so when it was deleted, it was raised, as in His saying:

Oh, you who deter, I attend the battle and witness the pleasures. Are you immortal?

It is indicated by the reading: that you shall not worship, so it is a substitute for the covenant, or an object of it by deleting the preposition. It was said that it is the answer to an oath indicated by the meaning, as if he said: And We made them swear that they would not worship. Nafi', Ibn 'Amir, Abu 'Amr, 'Asim, and Ya'qub read it with a ta', narrating what they were addressed with, and the rest with a ya' because they are absent. And to parents, good treatment is related to an implied word, which is: And you do good, or do good. "And relatives, orphans, and the needy" is in apposition to parents. And orphans is the plural of orphan, like friend and companion, and it is rare. Miskin is a passive participle from sukoon, as if poverty silenced it. And say to the people good meaning a good word, and he called it good for emphasis. Hamzah, Al-Kisa'i, and Ya'qub read Hasan with two fathahs. "Hasan is read with two dhammahs, which is the language of the people of Hijaz, and Husna is on the source like Bushra", and what is meant by it is what is in it is good manners and guidance. "And establish prayer and give zakat" meaning by them what was imposed on them in their religion. "Then you turned away" in the manner of turning away, and perhaps the address is to those of them who were present during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and before them in the manner of turning away, meaning you turned away from the covenant and rejected it. "Except a few of you" meaning by it those who established Judaism in its original form before the abrogation, and those of them who converted to Islam. "And you are turning away" people whose habit is turning away from loyalty and obedience. The origin of turning away is going from confrontation to the direction of display.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:84

And remember when We took your covenant, You shall not shed one another's blood nor expel one another from your homes. Then you acknowledged it, while you were witnesses.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when We took your covenant and said You shall not shed one another's blood you shall not shed it by killing one another nor expel one another from your homes you shall not expel one another from his home then you acknowledged you accepted that covenant and you bear witness against yourselves

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: His statement, And when We took a covenant from you, 'You shall not shed one another's blood,' is similar in meaning and syntax to His statement, And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, 'You shall not worship except God.'

As for bloodshed, it is pouring it out and shedding it.

If someone says: What is the meaning of his saying: Do not shed your blood or expel yourselves from your homes?

He said: Or were the people killing themselves and expelling them from their homes, so they were denied that?

It was said: The matter is not as you thought, but they were forbidden to kill each other. So killing one of them was like killing himself, since their religion was one, so they were like one man. As the peace be upon him said: "The believers, in their compassion and sympathy for one another, are like one body. If one part of it complains, the rest of the body responds to it with fever and sleeplessness."

It may be possible that the meaning of his saying: Do not shed one another's blood is: A man among you should not kill another man among you, and be punished for it in retaliation, and thus be a killer of himself, because he was the one who caused himself to deserve to be killed. So it is attributed to him that the guardian of the murdered man killed him in retaliation through his guardian. Just as it is said of a man who commits an act for which he deserves punishment, and is punished in the same way: You brought this upon yourself.

And similar to what we said in the interpretation of that, the people of interpretation said. Those who said that mentioned:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And when We took your covenant, 'You shall not shed one another's blood,' meaning, you shall not kill one another, nor expel one another from your homes, and your soul, O son of Adam, is the people of your religion.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, regarding his statement: And when We took a covenant from you, 'You shall not shed one another's blood,' meaning, you shall not kill one another, nor expel one another from your homes, meaning, you shall not expel one another from their homes.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Do not shed one another's blood, he said: Do not kill one another unjustly, nor expel one another from your homes, so that you, O son of Adam, shed the blood of the people of your religion and your call.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then you acknowledged.

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: Then you acknowledged, is that you acknowledged the covenant that We took from you: You shall not shed one another's blood nor expel one another from your homes, as Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: Then you acknowledged, he says: You acknowledged this covenant.

And he narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Jaafar narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similarly.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And you bear witness.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed as to who was addressed by the words: And you bear witness. Some of them said: This is an address from God Almighty to the Jews who were among the Jews when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to him during the days of his migration to him, rebuking them for neglecting the rulings of the Torah in their hands, the rulings of which they acknowledged. So God Almighty said to them: Then you acknowledged, meaning by that, the acknowledgment of your forefathers and predecessors, and you bear witness, to their acknowledgment of the covenant taken from them, that they would not shed each other's blood, nor expel themselves from their homes, and you believed that this was a right from My covenant upon them. Among those who narrated the meaning of this statement from him is Ibn Abbas: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: And when We took your covenant, 'You shall not shed one another's blood, nor expel one another from your homes.' Then you acknowledged, and you were witnesses, that this is a right from My covenant upon you.

Others said: Rather, this is report from God, may He be glorified, about their forefathers, but He, may He be exalted, brought out the report about them in a manner of addressing them, in the manner that we described in all the verses that are similar to it, the interpretation of which we have explained previously.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:84

And remember when We took your covenant, "You shall not shed one another's blood nor expel one another from your homes." Then you acknowledged it, while you were witnesses.

They interpreted his statement: And you bear witness, to mean: And you are witnesses. Those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Adam told us, he said: Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, regarding his statement: And you bear witness, he said: And you are witnesses.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of this, in my opinion, is that His statement, And you bear witness, is a report about their ancestors, and includes those addressed among them who lived during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, just as His statement, And when We took your covenant, was a report about their ancestors, even though it was addressed to those who lived during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. This is because God Almighty took a covenant from those who were at the time of the Messenger of God, Moses, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the Children of Israel, in accordance with what He has explained to us in His Book, and He made it obligatory for all of their descendants after them to follow the rulings of the Torah, just as He made it obligatory for those who were at the time of Moses among them. Then He rebuked those He addressed with these verses for their and their ancestors' breach of that covenant and their denial of the covenants they had promised Him to fulfill, by His statement, Then you acknowledged and you were witnesses. Since it was addressed to those of them who were at the time of our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, then it is meant for everyone who was confident in the covenant from them during the time of Moses and after him, and everyone who bore witness to the truth of what was in the Torah. Because God, may He be glorified, did not specify some of them without others in His saying: Then you acknowledged and you bear witness and similar verses. The verse could possibly mean all of them. So if that is the case, then no one can claim that it meant some of them without others. And the same is the ruling of the verse that comes after it, I mean His saying: Then you are those who kill yourselves the verse. Because it has been mentioned to us that their first ones used to do what their last ones used to do, those who lived in the time of our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are two issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And when We took your covenant, which was previously discussed. Do not shed your blood, referring to the Children of Israel, and after them was included in the meaning. Do not shed your blood is like Do not worship in grammar. Talhah bin Musarraf and Shu'ayb bin Abi Hamzah read it with a damma on the fa', which is a language, and Abu Nahik read it with a damma on the ta', a shaddah on the fa', and a fathah on the seen. Pouring means pouring, which was previously mentioned. And do not go out is conjoined. Yourselves: the soul is taken from the preciousness, so the soul of a person is the most noble thing in him. The house: is the home that contains the buildings of residence, unlike the home of a traveler. Al-Khalil said: Every place that a people inhabit is a house for them, even if there are no buildings in it. It was said: It was called a house because of its rotation around its inhabitants, just as a wall was called a wall because it encloses what it contains. You acknowledged is from acknowledgment, meaning with this covenant that was taken from you and your forefathers. And you bear witness from the testimony, meaning you are witnesses with your hearts to this. It was said: The testimony means attendance, meaning you are present to shed your blood and expel yourselves from your homes.

Second: If it is said: Does anyone shed his blood and expel himself from his home? It is said to him: Since their religion was one and their command was one and they were among the nations like one person, killing one another and expelling one another was considered killing themselves and banishing themselves. It was said: What is meant is retaliation, meaning that no one is killed and killed in retaliation, as if he shed his blood. Likewise, he does not commit adultery or apostasy, as that makes blood permissible. Nor does he corrupt himself and be banished, as if he expelled himself from his home. This is an interpretation that is far-fetched, even if its meaning is correct.

The matter was that God Almighty took a covenant from the Children of Israel in the Torah that they would not kill each other, nor exile each other, nor enslave each other, nor allow each other to steal, and other acts of obedience.

I said: All of this is forbidden to us, and all of this has happened due to the tribulations among us. To God we belong and to Him we shall return! And in the revelation: Or He may confuse you into sects and make you taste the violence of one another. And it will come. Ibn Khuwayz Mandad said: It is possible that what is meant by it is the apparent meaning, that a person does not kill himself, nor leave his home foolishly, as the Indians kill themselves. Or a person kills himself from the hardship and calamity that befalls him, or wanders in the desert and does not take shelter in homes out of ignorance in his religion and foolishness in his patience, so it is general in all of that. And it has been narrated:

"Uthman ibn Maz'un pledged allegiance with ten of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they resolved to wear hair-scarves, wander in the desert, not stay in houses, not eat meat, and not have intercourse with women. report of this reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he went to the house of Uthman ibn Maz'un but did not find him. He said to his wife: What is the hadith that I have heard from Uthman?"

She hated to divulge her husband's secret and to lie about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. She said: O Messenger of God, if something has reached you, then it is as it has reached you. He said: Tell Uthman, are you breaking my Sunnah or not following my religion? I pray and sleep, I fast and break my fast, I have intercourse with women, I stay in houses, and I eat meat. Whoever turns away from my Sunnah is not of me. So Uthman and his companions turned back from what they were doing."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, denouncing the Jews who were in Medina at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what they were suffering from fighting with the Aws and Khazraj, that the Aws and Khazraj, who were the Ansar, were idol worshippers during the pre-Islamic period, and there were many wars between them, and the Jews of Medina were three tribes: Banu Qaynuqa, Banu Nadir: allies of the Khazraj, and Banu Qurayza: allies of the Aws, so when war broke out between them, each group would fight with its allies, and the Jew would kill his enemy, and another Jew might kill another from the other group, and that is forbidden to them in their religion and the text of their book, and they would expel them from their homes and plunder what was in them of furniture, goods and money, then when the war ended, they would free the prisoners from the defeated group in accordance with the ruling of the Torah, and for this reason God the Almighty said: Do you believe in part of the Book and disbelieve in part? And for this reason God the Almighty said: "And when We took a covenant from you, that you would not shed your blood And do not expel yourselves from your homes" meaning do not kill one another, nor expel one another from his home, nor support one another against him, as God Almighty said: "Then repent to your Creator and kill yourselves. That is better for you with your Creator." This is because the people of one religion are like one soul, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "The example of the believers in their love, mercy, and communication with one another is like that of a single body. If one part of it is ill, the rest of the body responds to it with fever and sleeplessness." And God Almighty said: Then you acknowledged, while you were witnessing meaning then you acknowledged knowing this covenant and its validity, while you were witnessing it. Then you are these ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes verse. Muhammad ibn Ishaq ibn Yasar said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then you are these ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes verse. He said: God informed them of that from their actions, and He forbade them in the Torah to shed their blood. And he imposed on them the ransom of their prisoners, so they were two groups: a group of them were Banu Qaynuqa, who were allies of Khazraj and Nadir, and Qurayza, who were allies of Aws. So when there was war between Aws and Khazraj, Banu

Qaynuqa would go out with Khazraj, and Nadir and Qurayza would go out with Aws. Each of the two groups would support its allies against its brothers until their blood was shed among them, and they had the Torah in their hands, knowing in it what was against them and what was for them. The Aws and Khazraj were polytheists who worshipped idols and did not know Paradise or Hell, nor resurrection or Day of Judgment, nor a book, nor lawful or unlawful. So when the war laid down its burdens, they ransomed their prisoners in confirmation of what was in the Torah and took it from one another. Banu Qaynuqa would ransom those of their prisoners who were in the hands of Aws, and Nadir and Qurayza would ransom those of them who were in the hands of Khazraj, and they would seek what they had taken of their blood, and they would kill those of them who were killed among themselves in support of the polytheists against them. God says: God the Almighty mentioned Him when He informed them of that, Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? That is, do you ransom them according to the ruling of the Torah and kill them, while according to the ruling of the Torah, one should not be killed, nor should one leave his home, nor should one support against him who associates partners with God and worships idols other than Him, seeking worldly gain? This story was revealed about what they did with the Aws and Khazraj, as far as I have been informed. Asbat said on the authority of Al-Suddi: Qurayzah were allies of the Aws, and Nadir were allies of Khazraj, so they used to fight in a war among themselves. Banu Qurayzah fought with their allies, Nadir, and their allies, and Nadir used to fight Qurayzah and their allies and defeat them, so they would destroy their homes and expel them from them. So if a man from both sides was taken prisoner, they would gather around him until they ransom him, and the Arabs would taunt them about that, saying: How do you fight them and ransom them? They said: We were commanded to ransom them, and it was forbidden for us to fight them. They said: Then why do you kill them? They said: We are ashamed that our allies should be humiliated. That is when God, the Blessed and Exalted, reproached them and said: Then you are these people who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes (al-Anbiya' 4:10). Asbat said on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of al-Sha'bi that this verse was revealed about Qays ibn al-Khatim: Then you are these people who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes (al-Anbiya' 4:10). Asbat said on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of Abd al-Khair, who said: We raided with Sulayman ibn Rabi'ah al-Bahili in Balanjar and besieged its people. We conquered the city and captured captives. Abdullah ibn Salam bought a Jewish woman for seven hundred. When he passed by the head of the diaspora, he went down to him. Abdullah said to him: O head of the diaspora, would you like an old woman here from your religion to buy from me? He said: Yes. He said: I took it for seven hundred dirhams. He said: Then I will give you another seven hundred. He said: I swore that I would not reduce it from four thousand. He said: I have no need of it. He said: By God, you must buy it from me or you will renounce the religion that you are following. He said: Come closer to me. So he came closer to him, and he recited in his ear from what is in the Torah:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:84

And remember when We took your covenant, "You shall not shed one another's blood nor expel one another from your homes." Then you acknowledged it, while you were witnesses.

"You will not find a slave from the Children of Israel except that you will buy him, and he will set him free. And if they come to you as captives, you may ransom them, although it is forbidden to you to expel them." He said: Are you Abdullah ibn Salam? He said: Yes. So he came with four thousand, and Abdullah took two thousand and returned two thousand to him. Adam bin Abi Iyas said in his interpretation: Abu Jaafar, meaning Al-Razi, told us, Al-Rabi bin Anas told us, Abu Al-Aaliyah told us: Abdullah bin Salam passed by the head of the exodus in Kufa, and he was ransoming women who the Arabs had not had intercourse with, and he was not ransoming those who the Arabs had had intercourse with, so Abdullah said: As for it being written in your book that you ransom them all, and that is what the noble verse has guided you to, and this context is a condemnation of the Jews for their implementation of the matter of the Torah, which they believe to be correct and contradict its law, despite their knowledge of that and their testimony to its correctness, so for this reason they are not to be trusted with what is in it or with its transmission, and they are not to be believed in what they concealed of the description of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description, his mission, his exit, his migration, and other matters of his that the prophets before him, may God bless them and grant them peace, informed us about, and the Jews, may God's curses be upon them, concealed it among themselves, and for this reason God Almighty said: So what is the reward of those who do that among you except disgrace in the life of this world meaning because of their disobedience to God's law and command, And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe... The punishment is a recompense for their disobedience to the Book of God which is in their hands. And God is not unaware of what you do. Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter. So the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 84- "Do not shed The discussion of it is like the discussion of Do not worship" and it has been mentioned before. Talha bin Masraf and Shu'ayb bin Abi Hamza read it with a damma on the fa', and it is a language. Abu Nahik read it with a damma on the ya', a shaddah on the fa', and a fatha on the seen. Pouring: pouring, and it has been mentioned before, and what is meant is that some of them do not do that to each other. And the house: the home that contains the buildings of residence, unlike the home of travel. Al-Khalil said: Every place that a people inhabit is their home even if it does not have buildings, and it was said: it is called a house because of its rotation around its inhabitants, just as a wall is called a wall because it surrounds what it contains. And His saying: Then you acknowledged from the acknowledgment: meaning that you acknowledged this covenant taken from you in the state of your testifying against yourselves with that. It was said: the testimony here is with the hearts and it was said that it means presence: meaning that you are now testifying against your ancestors with that, and God Almighty had taken in the Torah from the Children of Israel that they would not kill each other, nor exile each other, nor enslave each other.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

84. The Almighty said: And when We took your covenant, 'You shall not shed one another's blood' meaning, you shall not spill one another's blood, meaning, you shall not shed one another's blood. It was also said: Do not shed the blood of others lest your blood be shed, so it is as if you shed your own blood. And do not expel one another from your homes meaning, do not expel one another from their homes. It was also said: Do not mistreat those who live near you, for you will force them to leave because of your mistreat. Then you acknowledged this covenant as true and accepted it. And you bear witness today to that, O group of Jews, and you acknowledge acceptance.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

84- "And when We took your covenant, you shall not shed your blood nor expel yourselves from your homes" in the manner previously mentioned, and what is meant by it is that some of them shall not attack each other by killing or expelling one another from their homeland. Rather, He made killing another man killing himself, because of his connection to him by lineage or religion, or because it requires retaliation. It was said that its meaning is do not commit what makes it permissible to shed your blood and expel you from your homes, or do not do what ruins you and turns you away from eternal life, for it is killing in reality, and do not commit what prevents you from Paradise, which is your home, for it is the real expulsion. "Then you acknowledged the covenant and admitted its obligation, and you are witnesses" is an emphasis like your saying: So-and-so acknowledged as a witness against himself. It was said that you, the present ones, are witnesses to the acknowledgment of your ancestors, so attributing the acknowledgment to them is metaphorical.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:85

Then you are the ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you then believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Then what is the recompense of those who do that among you except Disgrace in the life of this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment. And God is not unaware of what you do.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Then you O these people kill yourselves by killing each other and you expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another in which the ta' in the original is assimilated into the dhaal, and in the light reading by deleting it you cooperate against them in sin in disobedience and aggression injustice. And if they come to you as captives and in the reading captives you ransom them and in the reading: {ransom them} you rescue them from captivity with money or something else, which is what was entrusted to them and it that is the matter is forbidden to you to expel them connected to his saying and you expel and the sentence between them is an interjection: that is, just as it was forbidden to leave the ransom, and Qurayzah allied with the Aws, and Nadir with the Khazraj, so each party would fight with its allies and destroy their homes and expel them, and if they were taken captive they ransomed them, and if they were asked why do you fight them and ransom them? They would say we were commanded to ransom, and it would be said then why do you fight them? They say, Be ashamed that our allies will be humiliated. God Almighty said: Do you then believe in part of the Scripture? which is the ransom, and disbelieve in part? which is abandoning killing, expulsion, and demonstration. Then what is the reward of those who do that among you except disgrace? humiliation and degradation in the life of this world. They were disgraced by the killing of Qurayzah, the exile of Nadir to Syria, and the imposition of the jizya. "And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe punishment. And God is not unaware of what you do."

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: There are two interpretations of his statement: Then you are these: One of them is that what is meant by it is: Then you, O these, so he left out O because of the indication of the speech on it, as he said, Joseph, turn away from this (Yusuf 12:29), and its interpretation is: O Joseph, turn away from this. So the meaning of the speech then is: Then you, O group of Jews of the Children of Israel, after your acknowledgement of the covenant that I took from you: You will not shed your blood, nor expel yourselves from your homes, then you acknowledged after your testimony against yourselves that this is a right I have over you, and it is necessary for you to fulfill it for me, you kill yourselves, and expel a group of you from their homes, cooperating against them, in your expulsion of them, with sin and aggression.

Cooperation is a demonstration. Cooperation is called a demonstration because some people strengthen each other's backs. It is an interaction from the back, which is some people supporting each other's backs.

The other aspect: that its meaning is: Then you are a people who kill yourselves. So it goes back to the report about you.

And the word these stands between them and the report about them, just as the Arabs say: I am this one standing, and I am this one sitting. And when it is said: I am this one sitting, it is also correct and permissible: You are that one standing.

Some Basrans have claimed that his saying: these in his saying: Then you are these, is a warning and emphasis of you. He claimed that even though you is a metaphor for the names of the group of those being addressed, it is permissible to emphasise them with these and those, because it is a metaphor for those being addressed, as Khafaf ibn Nudbah said:

I say to him, and the spear frames his back: Be clear, I am that.

He means: I am this, and as God Almighty said: Until, when you are in the ship and it sails with them (Yunus 10:22).

Then the people of interpretation differed about who was meant by this verse, similar to their difference about who was meant by His statement: And you bear witness. Mention of the difference of opinion among those who differed about that:

Muhammad ibn Humayd narrated to us, Salamah narrated to us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq narrated to me, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad narrated to me, on the authority of Ikrimah, or Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Then you are those who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting each other against them in sin and aggression to the polytheists, until you shed their blood with them, and expel them from their homes with them. He said: God admonished them for that, from their actions, and He had forbidden them in the Torah to shed each other's blood, and He had made it obligatory for them in it to ransom their prisoners, so they were two groups: a group of them from Banu Qaynuqa', allies of the Khazraj, and Nadir and Qurayza, allies of the Aws. So whenever there was war between the Aws and the Khazraj, Banu Qaynuqa' would go out with the Khazraj, and Nadir and Qurayza would go out with the Aws, each group supporting its allies against its brothers, until they shed their blood among themselves, and they had the Torah in their hands, knowing from it what was against them and what was for them. The Aws and Khazraj were polytheists who worshipped idols. They knew neither Heaven nor Hell, nor resurrection nor Day of Judgment, nor a Book, nor what was forbidden nor what was permissible. When the war ended, they ransomed their prisoners, confirming what was in the Torah and taking it from one another. Banu Qaynuqa ransomed their prisoners from the Aws, and Nadir and Qurayza ransomed those from the Khazraj, and they shed the blood they had taken and the dead from among them, in support of the polytheists against them. God the Most High said, when He rebuked them for that: Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? That is, you ransomed him according to the ruling of the Torah, and you killed him, while according to the ruling of the Torah, he was not to be killed, nor to leave his home, nor to support against him anyone who associates partners with God and worships idols instead of Him, seeking worldly gain.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:85

Then you are the ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you then believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Then what is the recompense of those who do that among you except Disgrace in the life of this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment. And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

This story was revealed about what they did to the Aws and Khazraj, as far as I have been informed.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told me, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And when We took a covenant from you, [saying], 'You shall not shed one another's blood, nor shall you expel one another from their homes,' then you acknowledged it, and you were witnesses. He said: God took a covenant from the Children of Israel in the Torah: that they would not kill one another, and any male or female slave you find from the Children of Israel, buy him or her for the price paid, and set him or her free. So the Qurayzah were allies of the Aws, and the Nadir were allies of the Khazraj, and they fought in the Battle of Samir. So the Banu Qurayzah would fight with their allies, the Nadir and their allies. And the Nadir would fight the Qurayzah and their allies, and they would defeat them, destroy their homes, and expel them from them. So if a man from either party was taken prisoner, they would gather around him or her to ransom him. The Arabs would taunt them for that, and say: How do you fight them and ransom them? They said: We were commanded to ransom them, and it was forbidden for us to fight them. They said: Why do you fight them? They said: We are ashamed that our allies should be humiliated. That is why when God, the Almighty, rebuked them, He said: Then you are those who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting each other against them in sin and aggression.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: Qurayzah and Nadir were two brothers, and they were in this position, and the book was in their hands. And Aws and Khazraj were two brothers, then they separated, and Qurayzah and Nadir separated. So Nadir was with Khazraj, and Qurayzah was with Aws, and they fought. And some of them killed each other, so God, the Most High, said: Then you are those who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes the verse.

Others said: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, he said: It was among the Children of Israel: If they oppressed a people, they would expel them from their homes. And they took a covenant from them that they would not shed their blood, nor would they expel themselves from their homes.

Abu Jaafar said: As for aggression, it is the two verbs of transgression. It is said: So-and-so transgressed in such-and-such with aggression and aggression, and he transgressed, transgresses, transgression, and that is if he exceeded his limit unjustly and tyrannically.

The reading of Tazaharoon differed. Some of them read it as Tazaharoon on the model of tafa'aloona, so they deleted the extra ta, which is the last ta. Others read it as Tazaharoon, so they stressed it, with the interpretation of Nathaharoon, except that they assimilated the second ta into the tha, because their points of articulation are close, so they made them both a stressed tha. These two readings, even though their wording differs, they agree in meaning. It is no matter which one the reader reads, because they are both well-known languages, and two readings that are widespread in the lands of Islam with one meaning, and there is no meaning in either of them that would merit choosing it over the other, unless someone chooses the stressed Tazaharoon, seeking to complete the word.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Then do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part?"

Abu Ja'far said: By His saying, the Most High: And if they come to you as captives, ransom them, He means the Jews. He rebukes them with that, and makes them aware of the ugly deeds they used to do, so He said to them: Then you, after your acknowledgement of the covenant that He took from you: You shall not shed one another's blood, nor expel one another from your homes, you kill yourselves, meaning: you kill one another, and while you kill those you kill from among you, if you find a captive among you in the hands of someone other than you from among your enemies, you ransom him, and you expel one another from his homes, and your killing them and your expulsion from their homes is forbidden to you, and leaving them captives in the hands of your enemy is forbidden to you, so how can you permit killing them, and not permit leaving their ransom from their enemy? Or how can you not permit leaving their ransom, and permit killing them? And both of them are the same in the ruling that is necessary for you regarding them. Because what I have forbidden you to kill and expel from their homes is similar to what I have forbidden you to leave them as captives in the hands of their enemy. Do you believe in part of the Book in which I have imposed My duties upon you and made clear to you My limits, and I have taken upon you to act in accordance with My covenant, so you believe in it and ransom your captives from the hands of your enemy, and you disbelieve in part of it, so you reject it and kill those whom I have forbidden you to kill from among your religion and your people, and you expel them from their homes, even though you know that disbelief in part of it is a breach of My covenant and agreement? As: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid ibn Zurai' told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: "Then you are these, you kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you believe in part of the Book and disbelieve in part?" Do you believe in part of the Book and ransom, and disbelieve in part of it, killing and expelling? By God, their ransom is faith, and their expulsion is disbelief. So they would expel them from their homes, and if they saw them as captives in the hands of their enemy, they would ransom them.

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told me, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them. You know that this is against you in your religion, "and it is forbidden to you" in your book, "to expel them. So will you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part?" Do you ransom them as believers in that, and expel them as disbelievers in that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them. He said: If you find him in the hand of someone other than you, you ransom him, and would you kill him with your own hand?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, he said, Abu Ja'far said: Qatada used to say regarding His statement: Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? So their expulsion was disbelief, and their ransom was faith.

Al-Muthanna told us, Adam told us, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Ibn Abi Al-'Aliyah, regarding His statement: Then you are the ones who kill yourselves Qur'an 1:17, he said: It was among the Children of Israel: If they oppressed a people, they would expel them from their homes, and they had taken a covenant from them: that they would not shed their blood nor expel themselves from their homes, then they ransomed them, so they believed in some of the Book and disbelieved in some. They believed in the ransom, so they ransomed themselves, and they disbelieved in the expulsion from the homes, so they were expelled.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Adam told us, he said: Abu Ja'far told us, he said: Al-Rabi' bin Anas told us, he said: Abu Al-'Aliyah told me: Abdullah bin Salam passed by the head of the exiles in Kufa, and he was ransoming women who had not been raped by the Arabs, and he was not ransoming those who had been raped by the Arabs, so Abdullah bin Salam said to him:

It is written in your book: Ransom them all.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Do you believe in part of the Book and disbelieve in part? He said, their disbelief is killing and expulsion, and their belief is ransom. Ibn Jurayj said: He says: If they are with you, you kill them and expel them from their homes, but if they are taken captive, you ransom them? It has reached me that Umar ibn Al-Khattab said in the story of the Children of Israel: The Children of Israel have passed away, and you are the ones meant by this hadith.

Abu Ja'far said: The reciters differed in the recitation of His statement: If they come to you as captives, you ransom them. Some of them read it: Prisoners, you ransom them, and some of them: Prisoners, you ransom them, and some of them: Prisoners, you ransom them, and some of them: Prisoners, you ransom them.

Abu Ja'far said: Whoever recites this: And if they come to you as captives, then he intended the plural of the captive, since it was in the form of fa'il, like the plural of the names of those with disabilities whose singular comes in the form of fa'il, since captivity is similar in meaning in the harm and distress that befalls the captive with some of the meanings of disabilities, and the plural of what is attached to it was attached to the plural of what we described, so it was said: captive and captives, just as it was said: sick and sick, broken and broken, wounded and wounded.

Abu Ja'far said: As for those who read it as 'asara, they took it as a plural of fa'laan, since the plural of fa'laan which has fa'la may share the plural of fa'il, as they said sakāra and sakāra, and kasāla and kasalā, so they likened 'asir and pluralized it once as 'asāra and another time asra with that. Some of them claimed that the meaning of 'asrā is different from the meaning of 'asāra, and they claimed that the meaning of 'asrā is the captivity of the people without their being taken captive by the one who took them captive, and that the meaning of 'asrā is the meaning of the fate of the captive people in the hands of the captors by taking them captive and taking them by force and force.

Abu Ja'far said: This is something that has no basis in the language of any Arab. But it is based on what I have described of the plural of the prisoner once as fa'li, because I have explained the reason, and once as fa'ali, because I have mentioned: of their likening its plural to the plural of drunkard and lazy and the like.

The correct reading in this regard is the one who reads and if they come to you as captives, because fa'ali in the plural of fa'il is not widespread in the speech of the Arabs. So since that was not widespread in their speech, and it was widespread and prevalent among them, the plural of the attributes that had the meaning of pain and time, and its singular was estimated as fa'il, was fa'li, like what we described before, and one of those was the captive, it was necessary to include it with its counterparts and forms, and to pluralize it and not others who differed from it.

As for the one who read you ransom them, he meant: you ransom them from their captivity, and those among you who took them captive ransom you with them, so your captives ransom you with them.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:85

Then you are the ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you then believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Then what is the recompense of those who do that among you except Disgrace in the life of this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment. And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

As for the one who reads that, You ransom them, he meant: O group of Jews, if those whom you expelled from among you from their homes come to you as captives, then you ransom them and rescue them.

This reading is more pleasing to me than the first, I mean: prisoners they ransomed, because what the Jews are required to do in their religion is to ransom their prisoners in any case, whether the captors ransomed their prisoners or not.

As for his statement: And it is forbidden for you to expel them, there are two interpretations of his statement: And it is, one of them is that it is a metaphor for the expulsion that was mentioned earlier. It is as if he said: And you expel a group of you from their homes, and their expulsion is forbidden for you. Then he repeated the expulsion that comes after And it is forbidden for you, repeating it, because there is a distinction between the expulsion and it, a statement.

The second interpretation is that it is a pillar, since the waw with huwa requires a noun to follow it without the verb. So when the verb was presented before the noun that the waw requires to follow it, huwa was given priority, because it is a noun, just as you say: I came to you while your father was standing, meaning: and your father is standing, since the waw requires a noun, so it was sheathed with huwa, since the verb preceded the noun, to make the speech correct, as the poet said:

Tell Abu Yahya if you find him on the camels with dry sweat in their armpits.

That Al-Salami, who is in Dhariya, the Emir of Al-Hama, has sold the rights of the Banu Abs.

With a garment, a dinar, a sheep, and a dirham. Is it raised by what is here a head?

I gave it to him, because he asked for the name of the baptism.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then what is the reward for those among you who do that except disgrace in the life of this world?

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: What is the penalty for he who does that among you? is: For he who among you kills a person and disbelieves by killing him, by breaking the covenant of God that He decreed upon him in the Torah, and expels a group of you from their homes, supporting their enemies from among the polytheists against them, unjustly and aggressively, and contrary to what God commanded him to do in His Book that He sent down to Moses, there is no penalty. He means by penalty: reward, which is the compensation for what he did of that and the wage for it, except disgrace in the life of this world. And disgrace means humiliation and degradation. It is said from it: a man was disgraced, he was disgraced with disgrace, in the life of this world, meaning: in the immediate world before the Hereafter.

Then they differed about the disgrace with which God disgraced them for their previous disobedience to Him. Some of them said: That is the ruling of God that He revealed to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: To punish the killer for the one he killed, and to exact retribution in retaliation, and to avenge the wronged from the wrongdoer.

Others said: Rather, it is taking the jizya from them as long as they adhere to their religion, humiliating and degrading them.

Others said: Rather, that is the disgrace that they were punished for in this world: the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, expelling the Nadir from their homes at the beginning of the gathering, and killing the fighters of Qurayza and taking their children captive. That was a disgrace in this world, and they will have a great punishment in the Hereafter.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe punishment.

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe punishment is: And on the Day the Hour comes, whoever among you does that will be returned, after the disgrace that befell him in this world as a punishment for disobeying God, to the most severe punishment that God has prepared for His enemies.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: On the Day of Resurrection, they will be returned to a punishment more severe than the punishment of this world.

There is no meaning to what the speaker says. This is because God, may He be glorified, only informed us that they will be returned to the most severe meanings of torment, and for this reason He included the definite article in it, because He meant by it the entire type of torment, not one type of it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And God is not unaware of what you do.

Abu Ja'far said: The reciters differed in the reading of this. Some of them read it: And God is not unaware of what they do with the letter ya', as a way of informing about them. It is as if they derived from their reading the meaning: "So what is the reward for those who do that among you except disgrace in the life of this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment. And God is not unaware of what you do," meaning: about what those whom God has informed about do, they will have no reward for their actions except disgrace in the life of this world, and their return in the Hereafter to the severest punishment.

Others read it: And God is not unaware of what you do with the letter ta' in the form of addressing. He said: So it was as if they were...

They read: Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? And God is not unaware, O Jews, of what you do.

The reading that I like the most is the reading of the one who brought the letter ya' closer, following His statement: So what is the recompense of he who does that among you? and His statement: And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned. Because His statement: And God is not unaware of what you do and so on is closer than His statement: Do you believe in part of the Book and disbelieve in part? So following the one that is closer to it is more appropriate than attaching it to the one that is further from it. The other interpretation is not far from being correct.

The interpretation of His statement: And God is not unaware of what you do, is that God is not unaware of their evil deeds, but rather He is recording them and preserving them for them until He punishes them for them in the Hereafter and disgraces them in this world, humiliating and disgracing them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: "Then you are those who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting each other against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Then what is the reward of those who do that among you except disgrace in worldly life, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest of punishment. And God is not unaware of what you do."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, denouncing the Jews who were in Medina at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what they were suffering from fighting with the Aws and Khazraj, that the Aws and Khazraj, who were the Ansar, were idol worshippers during the pre-Islamic period, and there were many wars between them, and the Jews of Medina were three tribes: Banu Qaynuqa, Banu Nadir: allies of the Khazraj, and Banu Qurayza: allies of the Aws, so when war broke out between them, each group would fight with its allies, and the Jew would kill his enemy, and another Jew might kill another from the other group, and that is forbidden to them in their religion and the text of their book, and they would expel them from their homes and plunder what was in them of furniture, goods and money, then when the war ended, they would free the prisoners from the defeated group in accordance with the ruling of the Torah, and for this reason God the Almighty said: Do you believe in part of the Book and disbelieve in part? And for this reason God the Almighty said: "And when We took a covenant from you, that you would not shed your blood And do not expel yourselves from your homes" meaning do not kill one another, nor expel one another from his home, nor support one another against him, as God Almighty said: "Then repent to your Creator and kill yourselves. That is better for you with your Creator." This is because the people of one religion are like one soul, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "The example of the believers in their love, mercy, and communication with one another is like that of a single body. If one part of it is ill, the rest of the body responds to it with fever and sleeplessness." And God Almighty said: Then you acknowledged, while you were witnessing meaning then you acknowledged knowing this covenant and its validity, while you were witnessing it. Then you are these ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes verse. Muhammad ibn Ishaq ibn Yasar said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then you are these ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes verse. He said: God informed them of that from their actions, and He forbade them in the Torah to shed their blood. And He imposed on them the ransom of their prisoners, so they were two groups: a group of them were Banu Qaynuqa, who were allies of Khazraj and Nadir, and Qurayza, who were allies of Aws. So when there was war between Aws and Khazraj, Banu Qaynuqa would go out with Khazraj, and Nadir and Qurayza would go out with Aws. Each of the two groups would support its allies against its brothers until their blood was shed among them, and they had the Torah in their hands, knowing in it what was against them and what was for them. The Aws and Khazraj were polytheists who worshipped idols and did not know Paradise or Hell, nor resurrection or Day of Judgment, nor a book, nor lawful or unlawful. So when the war laid down its burdens, they ransomed their prisoners in confirmation of what was in the Torah and took it from one another. Banu Qaynuqa would ransom those of their prisoners who were in the hands of Aws, and Nadir and Qurayza would ransom those of them who were in the hands of Khazraj, and they would seek what they had taken of their blood, and they would kill those of them who were killed among themselves in support of the polytheists against them. God says: God the Almighty mentioned Him when He informed them of that, Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? That is, do you ransom them according to the ruling of the Torah and kill them, while according to the ruling of the Torah, one should not be killed, nor should one leave his home, nor should one support against him who associates partners with God and worships idols other than Him, seeking worldly gain? This story was revealed about what they did with the Aws and Khazraj, as far as I have been informed. Asbat said on the authority of Al-Suddi: Qurayzah were allies of the Aws, and Nadir were allies of Khazraj, so they used to fight in a war among themselves. Banu Qurayzah fought with their allies, Nadir, and their allies, and Nadir used to fight Qurayzah and their allies and defeat them, so they would destroy their homes and expel them from them. So if a man from both sides was taken prisoner, they would gather around him until they ransom him, and the Arabs would taunt them about that, saying: How do you fight them and ransom them? They said: We were commanded to ransom them, and it was forbidden for us to fight them. They said: Then why do you kill them? They said: We are ashamed that our allies should be humiliated. That is when God, the Blessed and Exalted, reproached them and said: Then you are these people who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes (al-Anbiya' 4:10). Asbat said on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of al-Sha'bi that this verse was revealed about Qays ibn al-Khatim: Then you are these people who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes (al-Anbiya' 4:10). Asbat said on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of Abd al-Khair, who said: We raided with Sulayman ibn Rabi'ah al-Bahili in Balanjar and besieged its people. We conquered the city and captured captives. Abdullah ibn Salam bought a Jewish woman for seven hundred. When he passed by the head of the diaspora, he went down to him. Abdullah said to him: O head of the diaspora, would you like an old woman here from your religion to buy from me? He said: Yes. He said: I took it for seven hundred dirhams. He said: Then I will give you another seven hundred. He said: I swore that I would not reduce it from four thousand. He said: I have no need of it. He said: By God, you must buy it from me or you will renounce the religion that you are following. He said: Come closer to me. So he came closer to him, and he recited in his ear from what is in the Torah: "You will not find a slave from the Children of Israel except that you will buy him, and he will set him free. And if they come to you as captives, you may ransom them, although it is forbidden to you to expel them." He said: Are you Abdullah ibn Salam? He said: Yes. So he came with four thousand, and Abdullah took two thousand and returned two thousand to him. Adam bin Abi Iyas said in his interpretation: Abu Jaafar, meaning Al-Razi, told us, Al-Rabi bin Anas told us, Abu Al-Aaliyah told us: Abdullah bin Salam passed by the head of the exodus in Kufa, and he was ransoming women who the Arabs had not had intercourse with, and he was not ransoming those who the Arabs had had intercourse with, so Abdullah said: As for it being written in your book that you ransom them all, and that is what the noble verse has guided you to, and this context is a condemnation of the Jews for their implementation of the matter of the Torah, which they believe to be correct and contradict its law, despite their knowledge of that and their testimony to its correctness, so for this reason they are not to be trusted with what is in it or with its transmission, and they are not to be believed in what they concealed of the description of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description, his mission, his exit, his migration, and other matters of his that the prophets before him, may God bless them and grant them peace, informed us about, and the Jews, may God's curses be upon them, concealed it among themselves, and for this reason God Almighty said: So what is the reward of those who do that among you except disgrace in the life of this world meaning because of their disobedience to God's law and command, And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe... The punishment is a recompense for their disobedience to the Book of God which is in their hands. And God is not unaware of what you do. Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter. So the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:85

Then you are the ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you then believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Then what is the recompense of those who do that among you except Disgrace in the life of this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment. And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 85- "Then you are these" meaning you are these spectators who are present and you disobey what God took from you in the Torah and you kill yourselves until the end of the verse. It was said: These are the object of the preposition "I mean", and it could be said: It is the object of blame or specificity: meaning I blame or I specify. Al-Qatibi said: The estimation is "O these" Al-Nahhas said: This is a mistake according to the saying of Sibawayh and is not permissible. Al-Zajaj said: These mean those, meaning then you are the ones who kill. It was said: These are the subject and you are the predicate that comes before it. Al-Zuhri read: you kill with emphasis. So whoever made his saying: "You are these" the subject and predicate made his saying: "you kill" an explanation because the meaning of his saying: "You are these" is that they are in a state like their ancestors in breaking the covenant. And whoever made these a vocative or an object of the predicate as we mentioned made the predicate you kill and what follows it. His saying: "You two are tasahharoon" with emphasis, its original form is tatathaharoon, the taa was assimilated into the dhaa because of its proximity to it in articulation, and this is the reading of the people of Mecca. The people of Kufa read tathaharoon with an abbreviated form by deleting the second taa, because the first one indicates it. The original form of tasahharah is assistance, derived from back because some of them strengthen others and are like a back to them, and from this is the saying of the poet:

You demonstrated from every direction and perspective on one thing, yet you are still one century

And from this is the saying of God the Almighty: And the disbeliever is a supporter against his Lord and His saying: And the angels after that are a supporter. And captives are a state. Abu Ubaid said: Abu Amr used to say: Whatever is in their hands is captives, and whatever comes as a captive is the prisoners. The linguists do not know what Abu Amr said. Rather, this is like saying sakāra and sakrā. Hamzah read šrā. The rest read šarā and šarā is the plural of asīr like ʿawāta is the plural of qatayṭil and ḥarjā is the plural of jareeh. Abu Hatim said: Asrā is not permissible. Al-Zajjaj said: It is said šarā just as it is said ḥakāra. Ibn Faris said: It is said in the plural of asīr asrā and asrā. End. So it is strange that Abu Hatim denies what is proven in the revelation. The majority read it, and the prisoner is derived from šir, which is the chain with which the load is tied, so it is called a prisoner because it is tied tightly, and the Arabs say: I have stolen him, meaning I have tied him, then every captured person is called a prisoner even if he is not captured. His saying: He ransomed them is the answer to the condition, and this is the reading of Hamza, Nafi' and Al-Kisa'i, and the rest read He ransomed them. Ransom is what is found of the prisoner to release him. It is said: he ransomed him and he ransomed him: if he gave him his ransom. The poet said:

Stand up, O redeemer of your prisoner. For I see no meeting between my people and yours.

His saying: And it is forbidden for you to expel them The pronoun refers to the matter. It was said: It is ambiguous and explained by the sentence that follows it. Al-Farra' claimed that this pronoun is a pillar, and it was objected to that by saying that a pillar does not come at the beginning of a sentence. Expelling them is raised by his saying: It is forbidden and it takes the place of the predicate. It was said: Rather, it is raised by the beginning and forbidden is its predicate. The commentators said: God Almighty had taken four covenants from the Children of Israel: to refrain from killing, to refrain from expelling, to refrain from demonstrating, and to ransom their prisoners. They turned away from everything they were commanded to do except ransom, so God rebuked them for that by saying: Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? And disgrace means humiliation. Al-Jawhari said: "Khaziyyah with a kasra means to be humiliated and disgraced. This punishment that God promised to the cursed Jews has come to pass abundantly. They have become greatly disgraced because of the humiliation and disgrace that has befallen them through killing, captivity, the imposition of the jizya tax, and exile. God will only return them on the Day of Resurrection to the most severe punishment because they have committed a grave sin and a terrible transgression." The majority of scholars have read yardun with a ya' below it. Al-Hasan has read it with a ya' above it, addressing. The interpretation of His statement, And God is not unaware of what they do, has already been presented.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

85. The Almighty's saying, Then you are these, meaning: O these, and these is for emphasis, kill yourselves, meaning kill each other, and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting each other against them, with emphasis on the dhad, meaning you support each other. The ta' was assimilated into the dhad, and Asim, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read with a light dhad, so they deleted the ta' of interaction and kept the ta' of address, like the Almighty's saying, And do not cooperate, meaning both of them: you cooperate, and the supporter: the help in sin and aggression, disobedience and injustice, and if they come to you as captives, and Hamza read: captives, and they are the plural of captive, and their meaning is the same, you ransom them with money and you rescue them, and the people of Medina, Asim, Al-Kisa'i, and Ya'qub read you ransom them, meaning you exchange them, he meant: ransoming the captive for the captive, and it was said that the meaning of the two readings is the same.

The meaning of the verse: Al-Suddi said: God Almighty took a command from the Children of Israel in the Torah that they would not kill each other, nor expel each other from their homes. Any male or female slave you find from the Children of Israel, buy him for the price and free him. So the Qurayzah were allies of the Aws, and the Nadir were allies of the Khazraj, and they used to fight in the Battle of Samir. So the Banu Qurayzah and their allies fought the Banu Nadir and their allies, and if they were victorious, they would destroy their homes and expel them from them. And if a man from either party was taken prisoner, they would gather around him until they ransom him, even if the prisoner was from their enemy. So the Arabs would taunt them and say: How do you fight them and ransom them? They would say: We were commanded to ransom them. So they would say: Why do you fight them? They said: We are ashamed that our allies should be humiliated. So God Almighty reproached them for that and said: Then you are these people who kill yourselves. The verse has an inversion and a delay and its organization and you expel a party of you from their homes, supporting each other against them in sin and aggression and it is forbidden for you to expel them. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them. So it is as if God Almighty took four covenants from them: to refrain from fighting, to refrain from expelling, to refrain from supporting each other against them with their enemies, and to ransom their captives. So they turned away from all of them except ransom.

God the Almighty said: Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Mujahid said: He means that if you find it in someone else's hand, you ransom him and kill him with your own hand. Then what is the reward of those who do that among you, O company of Jews, except disgrace, torment and humiliation, in the life of this world? So the disgrace of Qurayzah was killing and captivity, and the disgrace of Nadir was expulsion and banishment from their homes to Adhra'at and Jericho in Syria. And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe punishment, which is the torment of the Fire. And God is not unaware of what you do. Ibn Kathir, Nafi', and Abu Bakr read it with a ya, and the rest read it with a ta. God the Almighty said: Those are the ones who purchased.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

85-"Then you are these" is an exclusion of what they committed after the covenant and the acknowledgment of it and the testimony to it. And you are the subject and these is its predicate, meaning that you are after that these deficient ones, like your saying you are that man who did such and such. The change in the description is in the place of the change in the self, and their number is in consideration of what is attributed to them in their presence and in consideration of what will be narrated about them in their absence. And the Almighty's saying: "You kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes" is either a state and the agent in it is the meaning of the indication, or an explanation of this sentence. It was said: These is an emphasis, and the predicate is the sentence. It was said that it means those and the sentence is its connection and the whole is the predicate, and "you kill" was read as an exaggeration. "You cooperate against them in sin and aggression is a state of the subject of you expel", or of its object, or both. And cooperation is cooperation from the back. Asim, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read it by deleting one of the two ta's. It was read with the pronunciation of it, and you show off with the meaning of you show off. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them. It was narrated that Qurayzah were allies of the Aws, and Nadir were allies of the Khazraj. So if they fought, each group would help its allies in killing, destroying homes, and expelling their people. And if one of the two groups was taken prisoner, they would gather around him until they ransomed him. And it was said that its meaning is if they come to you as captives in the hands of the devils, you would rush to rescue them with guidance and preaching while you waste yourselves, like the Almighty's saying: Do you enjoin righteousness upon the people and forget yourselves? And Hamzah read asra which is the plural of asir like jareeh and jarha, and asara is its plural like sakra and sakara. And it was said that it is also the plural of asir, and it is as if he likened it to the lazy person and the plural of its plural. Ibn Kathir, Abu Amr, Hamza and Ibn Aam read you ransom them as and it is forbidden for you to expel them connected to His statement and you expel a party of you from their homes, and what is between them is an interruption, and the pronoun refers to the matter, or is vague and is explained by you expel them, or refers to what is indicated by you expel them from the source. And their expulsion is a substitute or clarification Do you then believe in some of the Scripture? meaning ransom.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:85

Then you are the ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes, supporting one another against them in sin and aggression. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them, although their expulsion was forbidden to you. Do you then believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Then what is the recompense of those who do that among you except Disgrace in the life of this world, and on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment. And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

unaware of what you do" confirming the threat, meaning God, the Most High, is watching and does not ignore their actions. Asim read in the narration of al-Mufaddal, you will be returned to the address because of his saying "from you". Ibn Kathir, Nafi', Asim in the narration of Abu Bakr, Khalaf, and Ya'qub work on the pronoun referring to whom.

"And you disbelieve in some" meaning the sanctity of fighting and exile. "Then what is the reward for whoever does that among you except disgrace in the life of this world" such as killing Qurayzah and taking them captive, and expelling Banu Nadir, and imposing the jizya on others. The root of disgrace is humiliation that is shameful, and therefore it is used in both of them. "And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the severest punishment" because their disobedience is more severe. "And God is not

Surat al-Baqarah 2:86

Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter. So the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter by preferring it over it so the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided they will not be prevented from it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement, are those about whom He informed us that they believe in some of the Book, so they ransom their Jewish captives, and disbelieve in some of it, so they kill those whom God has forbidden them to kill from among their religion, and they expel from their homes those whom God has forbidden them to expel from their homes, in violation of God's covenant and agreement in the Torah to them. So He, the Most High, informed us that these are the ones who bought the leadership of this worldly life over the weak, ignorant, and stupid people of their religion, and they bought the vile and worthless foods in it with faith, which would have been theirs in the Hereafter, had they brought it instead of disbelief, eternal life in Paradise. God, the Most High, described them as having bought this worldly life with the Hereafter, because they were satisfied with this world with their disbelief in God in it, in exchange for the bliss of the Hereafter which God has prepared for the believers. He made their share of the bliss of the Hereafter, due to their disbelief in God, a price for what they bought with it from the vile worldly things, as:

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter, they preferred a little of this world over a lot of the Hereafter.

Abu Ja'far said: Then God, the Most High, informed us that since they sold their share of the bliss of the Hereafter by abandoning His obedience and preferring disbelief in Him and the lowly things of this world over Him, they have no share in the bliss of the Hereafter, and that what they have in the Hereafter is the torment, and the torment will not be lightened for them in it. Because the one for whom the torment will be lightened in it is the one who has a share in its bliss, and these people have no share, because they bought their worldly life for their Hereafter with what was in this world.

As for his saying: nor will they be helped, he informed us about them that no one will help them in the Hereafter, and he will ward off God's punishment from them through his help, not through his power, nor through his intercession, nor anything else.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Then you are these You are in the nominative case as a subject, and it is not expressed, because it is implied. The taa' of you is damma because it was fatha if you addressed a single masculine, and kasra if you addressed a single feminine, so when it was dual or plural, nothing remained but the damma: these Al-Qutbi said: The meaning is O these. An-Nahhas said: This is a mistake according to Sibawayh, and this is not permissible. Az-Zajjaj said: These mean those. And you kill is included in the relative clause, meaning: then you are the ones who kill. It was said: These are nominative as a subject, and you are the predicate that comes before, and you kill is a state of these. It was said: These are accusative with the implication of I mean. Az-Zuhri read you kill with a damma on the taa' with emphasis, and likewise Why did you kill the prophets of God? This verse is addressed to those confronted and does not allow it to be attributed to the ancestors. It was revealed about Banu Qaynuqa, Qurayza and Nadir from the Jews. Banu Qaynuqa were enemies of Qurayza, and Aws were allies of Banu Qaynuqa, and Khazraj were allies of Banu Qurayza. Nadir, Aws and Khazraj were brothers, and Qurayza and Nadir were also brothers. Then they separated and would fight each other, and when war broke out they would ransom their prisoners. So God reproached them for that, saying: And if they come to you as captives, ransom them.

The Almighty says: You cooperate. The meaning of you cooperate is that you cooperate. It is derived from the word back, because some of them strengthen others and thus become like a back to them. From this comes the poet's saying:

You pretended to be a teacher, you gathered around one person, you are still one century

Sin: the act for which its doer deserves blame. Aggression: excessive injustice and transgression. The people of Medina and Mecca read tathaharoon with emphasis, assimilating the taa into the dhaal due to their proximity to it. The original form is tatathaharoon. The Kufians read tathaharoon with a lightened form, deleting the second taa because the first indicates it. The same applies to wa-in tathaharoon alayhi. Qatada read tathaharoon alayhi, and all of it goes back to the meaning of cooperation. From this: And the disbeliever is, against his Lord, a supporter. And His statement: And the angels after that are a supporter. So inform him.

The Almighty said: And if they come to you as captives, ransom them, although it is forbidden for you to expel them. There are six issues in this:

First: The Almighty's saying: And if they come to you as captives is a condition, and its answer is tafawwadhum, and as-sara is an accusative case of state. Abu Ubaid said: Abu Amr used to say: Whatever is in their hands is the captives, and whatever comes as a prisoner is the prisoners. The linguists do not know what Abu Amr said, rather it is as you say: sakārī and sakārī. The group read as-sārī except for Hamzah, who read as-sara on fa'lā, the plural of asīr meaning captive, and the ḍab - in its breaking if that is the case - is fa'lā, as you say: qaṭīl and qaṭīlā, and jareekh and jareekhā. Abu Hatim said: as-sārī is not permissible. Al-Zajjaj said: as-sārī is said as-sārī, and fa'ālā is the original, and fa'ālā is included in it. It was narrated from Muhammad ibn Yazid, who said: as-sārī and isrā' are said, like ẓarīf and ẓarīfā'. Ibn Faris said: it is said in the plural of asīr and as-sārī, and it was read with them. It was said: Asari with the opening of the hamza and it is not high.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:86

Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter. So the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.

Second: The prisoner is derived from the word Isar, which is the rope with which the litter is tied. He was called Asir because it is tied tightly. The Arabs say: Qad Asrar Qutbah, meaning he tied it. Then every captured person was called Asir, even if he was not taken prisoner. Al-A'sha said:

Poetry tied me to its house as captors tie donkeys.

That is, I am in his house, meaning that he reached the end there. As for the family in the Almighty's saying: And We strengthened their family, it refers to creation. A man's family is his relatives, because he is strengthened by them.

Third: The Almighty's saying: Ransom them This is how Nafi', Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read it. The rest said: Tafdawhum from al-fidda. And al-fidda is the request for ransom for the prisoner in their hands. Al-Jawhari said: If the first letter of al-fidda is broken, it is lengthened or shortened, and if it is opened, it is shortened. It is said: Get up - my father ransomed you. Some Arabs break fida with tanween if it exceeds the lam of the jar specifically, so they say: fida lak, because it is indefinite and they mean by it the meaning of a supplication. Al-Asma'i recited for Al-Nabigha:

Wait, may all people be sacrificed for you, and for the wealth and children you have produced.

It is said: Fadaahu and Fadaahu if he gave his ransom and saved him. He ransomed him with his soul, and Fadaahu yafdihi if he said I made you my ransom. And they ransomed each other, meaning they ransomed each other. Ransom, redemption and redemption all have the same meaning. And Fadaatu nafsi if you release it after paying something, meaning I ransomed, and from this is the saying of Al-Abbas to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: I ransomed myself and ransomed Aqil. They are two verbs that take two objects, the second of them with a preposition. You say: I ransomed myself with my money and I ransomed him with my money. The poet said:

Stand up, redeemer of your prisoner. My people and yours, I do not see any meeting between them.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying, And it is forbidden for you to expel them. is the subject and a metaphor for expulsion, and forbidden is its predicate, and expelling them is a substitute for he, or if you wish, it is a metaphor for the conversation and story, and the sentence that follows it is its predicate, meaning, and it is forbidden for you to expel them. So expelling them is a second subject, and forbidden is its predicate, and the sentence is the predicate of he, and in forbidden is a pronoun whose agent is not named, Jews, which takes the place of the predicate of forbidden, and the sentence is the predicate of he. Al-Farra' claimed that he is an imaad, but according to the Basrans, this is a meaningless mistake, because he is not at the beginning of a sentence. It is read he with a silent ha because of the weight of the damma, as the poet said:

His throw does not increase his wealth nor does it increase his number.

Likewise, if you use the letter lam and thumma, as has been mentioned previously. Our scholars said: God Almighty had taken four covenants from them: to refrain from killing, to refrain from expelling, to refrain from demonstrating, and to ransom their prisoners. But they turned away from everything they were commanded to do except ransom. So God rebuked them for that with a rebuke that is recited, saying: Do you then believe in part of the Scripture? which is the Torah, and disbelieve in part?

I said: By God, we have turned away from everyone with the tribulations, so some of us have supported each other, whether it is against the Muslims or against the infidels, until we have left our brothers humiliated and subdued, and the rule of the polytheists applies to them. There is no power or strength except with God, the Most High, the Almighty.

Our scholars said: The ransom of the captives is obligatory even if not a single dirham remains. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: The verse includes the obligation to free the captives, and the reports from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he freed the captives and ordered their release, and this is the practice of the Muslims and there is consensus on it. The release of the captives must be from the public treasury, and if it is not, then it is an obligation on all Muslims, and whoever among them does it, the obligation is dropped from the rest, and this will come.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: So what is the reward for he who does that among you except disgrace in the life of this world? Subject and predicate. Disgrace is humiliation. Al-Jawhari said: Khaza with a kasra means to be humiliated and disgraced. Ibn Al-Sikkit said: He fell into a calamity. And God disgraced him. Khaza also means to be ashamed, so he is Khazayyan. A people are Khazayyan and a woman is Khazayyan.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned. The general reading is they will be returned with the letter ya, while Al-Hasan read they will be returned with the letter ta as a direct address. "To the most severe punishment. And God is not unaware of what you do." This was previously discussed, as well as: Those are the ones who purchased the verse, so there is no meaning to the repetition. Day is governed by they will be returned.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, denouncing the Jews who were in Medina at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what they were suffering from fighting with the Aws and Khazraj, that the Aws and Khazraj, who were the Ansar, were idol worshippers during the pre-Islamic period, and there were many wars between them, and the Jews of Medina were three tribes: Banu Qaynuqa, Banu Nadir, allies of the Khazraj, and Banu Qurayza: allies of the Aws, so when war broke out between them, each group would fight with its allies, and the Jew would kill his enemy, and another Jew might kill another from the other group, and that is forbidden to them in their religion and the text of their book, and they would expel them from their homes and plunder what was in them of furniture, goods and money, then when the war ended, they would free the prisoners from the defeated group in accordance with the ruling of the Torah, and for this reason God the Almighty said:

Do you believe in part of the Book and disbelieve in part? And for this reason God the Almighty said: "And when We took a covenant from you, that you would not shed your blood And do not expel yourselves from your homes" meaning do not kill one another, nor expel one another from his home, nor support one another against him, as God Almighty said: "Then repent to your Creator and kill yourselves. That is better for you with your Creator." This is because the people of one religion are like one soul, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "The example of the believers in their love, mercy, and communication with one another is like that of a single body. If one part of it is ill, the rest of the body responds to it with fever and sleeplessness." And God Almighty said: Then you acknowledged, while you were witnessing meaning then you acknowledged knowing this covenant and its validity, while you were witnessing it. Then you are these ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes verse. Muhammad ibn Ishaq ibn Yasar said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then you are these ones who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes verse. He said: God informed them of that from their actions, and He forbade them in the Torah to shed their blood. And He imposed on them the ransom of their prisoners, so they were two groups: a group of them were Banu Qaynuqa, who were allies of Khazraj and Nadir, and Qurayza, who were allies of Aws. So when there was war between Aws and Khazraj, Banu Qaynuqa would go out with Khazraj, and Nadir and Qurayza would go out with Aws. Each of the two groups would support its allies against its brothers until their blood was shed among them, and they had the Torah in their hands, knowing in it what was against them and what was for them. The Aws and Khazraj were polytheists who worshipped idols and did not know Paradise or Hell, nor resurrection or Day of Judgment, nor a book, nor lawful or unlawful. So when the war laid down its burdens, they ransomed their prisoners in confirmation of what was in the Torah and took it from one another. Banu Qaynuqa would ransom those of their prisoners who were in the hands of Aws, and Nadir and Qurayza would ransom those of them who were in the hands of Khazraj, and they would seek what they had taken of their blood, and they would kill those of them who were killed among themselves in support of the polytheists against them. God says: God the Almighty mentioned Him when He informed them of that, Do you believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? That is, do you ransom them according to the ruling of the Torah and kill them, while according to the ruling of the Torah, one should not be killed, nor should one leave his home, nor should one support against him who associates partners with God and worships idols other than Him, seeking worldly gain? This story was revealed about what they did with the Aws and Khazraj, as far as I have been informed. Asbat said on the authority of Al-Suddi: Qurayzah were allies of the Aws, and Nadir were allies of Khazraj, so they used to fight in a war among themselves. Banu Qurayzah fought with their allies, Nadir, and their allies, and Nadir used to fight Qurayzah and their allies and defeat them, so they would destroy their homes and expel them from them. So if a man from both sides was taken prisoner, they would gather around him until they ransom him, and the Arabs would taunt them about that, saying: How do you fight them and ransom them? They said: We were commanded to ransom them, and it was forbidden for us to fight them. They said: Then why do you kill them? They said: We are ashamed that our allies should be humiliated. That is when God, the Blessed and Exalted, reproached them and said: Then you are these people who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes (al-Anbiya' 4:10). Asbat said on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of al-Sha'bi that this verse was revealed about Qays ibn al-Khatim: Then you are these people who kill yourselves and expel a party of you from their homes (al-Anbiya' 4:10). Asbat said on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of Abd al-Khair, who said: We raided with Sulayman ibn Rabi'ah al-Bahili in Balanjar and besieged its people. We conquered the city and captured captives. Abdullah ibn Salam bought a Jewish woman for seven hundred. When he passed by the head of the diaspora, he went down to him. Abdullah said to him: O head of the diaspora, would you like an old woman here from your religion to buy from me? He said: Yes. He said: I took it for seven hundred dirhams. He said: Then I will give you another seven hundred. He said: I swore that I would not reduce it from four thousand. He said: I have no need of it. He said: By God, you must buy it from me or you will renounce the religion that you are following. He said: Come closer to me. So he came closer to him, and he recited in his ear from what is in the Torah: "You will not find a slave from the Children of Israel except that you will buy him, and he will set him free. And if they come to you as captives, you may ransom them, although it is forbidden to you to expel them." He said: Are you Abdullah ibn Salam? He said: Yes. So he came with four thousand, and Abdullah took two thousand and returned two thousand to him. Adam bin Abi Iyas said in his interpretation: Abu Jaafar, meaning Al-Razi, told us, Al-Rabi bin Anas told us, Abu

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:86

Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter. So the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.

Al-Aaliyah told us: Abdullah bin Salam passed by the head of the exodus in Kufa, and he was ransoming women who the Arabs had not had intercourse with, and he was not ransoming those who the Arabs had had intercourse with, so Abdullah said: As for it being written in your book that you ransom them all, and that is what the noble verse has guided you to, and this context is a condemnation of the Jews for their implementation of the matter of the Torah, which they believe to be correct and contradict its law, despite their knowledge of that and their testimony to its correctness, so for this reason they are not to be trusted with what is in it or with its transmission, and they are not to be believed in what they concealed of the description of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description, his mission, his exit, his migration, and other matters of his that the prophets before him, may God bless them and grant them peace, informed us about, and the Jews, may God's curses be upon them, concealed it among themselves, and for this reason God Almighty said: So what is the reward of those who do that among you except disgrace in the life of this world meaning because of their disobedience to God's law and command, And on the Day of Resurrection they will be returned to the most severe... The punishment is a recompense for their disobedience to the Book of God which is in their hands. And God is not unaware of what you do. Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter. So the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.

Fath al-Qadir

And likewise the interpretation of 86- Those who purchased and His saying: It will not be lightened is information from God Almighty that the Jews will continue to be in a severe punishment that is necessary for them with the jizya, humiliation, disgrace and disgrace, and that will never be lightened for them as long as they are there, and there is no supporter for them to defend them, and they will not have victory in themselves over their enemy.

Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And when We took a covenant from the Children of Israel, he said: "He was admonishing them: meaning your covenant." Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And speak to people kindly, he said: Enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong. Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Shu'ab on the authority of Ali regarding his statement: And speak to people kindly, he said: He means all the people. And Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ata'. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Then you turned away, he said: That is, you abandoned all of that. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: Its meaning is that you turned away from obeying Me except a few of you, and they are those whom I chose for My obedience. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu

Al-Aliyah regarding his statement: Do not shed your blood, do not kill one another, nor expel one another from your homes, do not expel one another from their homes, then you acknowledged, this covenant, while you were witnesses, and you were witnesses. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Then you acknowledged that this is a right of My covenant upon you. Then you are the ones who kill yourselves meaning the polytheists until you shed your blood with them. And you expel a party of you from their homes he said: you expel them from their homes with them. You support each other against them in sin and aggression. So whenever there was a war between the Aws and the Khazraj, Banu Qaynuqa' would go out with them with the Khazraj and the Nadir and the Qurayza with the Aws. Each of the two parties supported its allies against its brothers until they shed their blood. Then when the war ended, they ransomed their prisoners, confirming what is in the Torah. And if they come to you as captives, you ransom them and you know that this is upon you in your religion. While it is forbidden to you in your book because of their expulsion. Do you then believe in part of the Scripture and disbelieve in part? Do you ransom them believing in that, and expel them disbelieving in that. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter, he said: They preferred a little of this world over a lot of the Hereafter.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

86 - Those who have exchanged the life of this world for the Hereafter, the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided. They will not be prevented from the punishment of God Almighty.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

86- "Those are the ones who have purchased the life of this world at the price of the Hereafter." They preferred the life of this world over the Hereafter. "The punishment will not be lightened for them" by canceling the jizya in this world, and the torture in the Hereafter. "Nor will they be aided" by removing both from them.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:87

And We had certainly given Moses the Scripture and followed up after him with messengers, and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear proofs and supported him with the Holy Spirit. So is it that whenever a messenger came to you with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? Then a party you denied and a party you killed.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And We gave Moses the Scripture the Torah and followed him up with messengers that is, We sent them messenger after messenger and We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs miracles such as raising the dead and healing the blind and the leper and We supported him We strengthened him with the Holy Spirit from adding the described to the description, that is, the Holy Spirit Gabriel, because of his purity, walks with him wherever he walks, so you did not go straight So whenever a messenger came to you with what your souls did not desire of the truth you were arrogant you were arrogant about following him, the answer to whenever, which is the subject of the question, and what is meant by it is rebuke So a party of them you denied like Jesus and a party you killed the present tense for the narration of the past situation: that is, you killed like Zachariah and John

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying, We gave Moses the Book is that We sent it down to him. We have already explained that the meaning of giving is bestowal, in what has passed before.

The book that Moses, peace be upon him, was given to him is the Torah.

As for his saying: And we stood behind him, it means: And we followed one after the other, as a man stands behind another: if he walks in his footsteps from behind him. Its origin is from the nape of the neck, and it is said from it: I stood behind someone's nape, just as it is said: I followed him: if you were in his back.

He means by his saying: after him, after Moses.

The word messengers means prophets, and they are the plural of messenger. It is said: He is a messenger and they are messengers, just as it is said: He is patient and they are a patient people, and He is a grateful man and they are a grateful people.

What God, the Most High, means by His statement, And We followed him with messengers, is that We made some of them follow one another on one path and one law. Because everyone whom God sent as a prophet after Moses, peace be upon him, until the time of Jesus, son of Mary, He sent him with the command of the Children of Israel to establish the Torah, act according to what is in it, and call to what is in it. That is why it was said, And We followed him with messengers, meaning on his path and law, and acting according to what he used to act upon.

Abu Ja'far said: He means by his saying: And We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs, that We gave Jesus, son of Mary.

What is meant by the clear proofs that God gave him: the arguments and evidence of his prophethood that he demonstrated at his hands: such as bringing the dead back to life, healing the blind, and other similar signs that demonstrated his status with God and indicated his truthfulness and the validity of his prophethood, such as:

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told us, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told us, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs: meaning the signs that were placed in his hands: such as bringing the dead back to life, creating him from clay in the form of a bird, then breathing into it and it became a bird by God's permission, and healing diseases, and information about many of the unseen things that they stored in their homes, and what was returned to them from the Torah, along with the Gospel that God had revealed to him.

Abu Ja'far said: As for the meaning of his saying: And we supported him, it is that we strengthened him and helped him, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak: And We supported him, he says: We aided him. It is said from this: May God support you, meaning He strengthened you, and he is a man with hands, and with a hand, meaning: with strength. And from this is the saying of Al-Ajjaj:

Who changed my hand?

Meaning: In my youth, the strength of gray hair, and from it the saying of another:

If the arrows are gathered together, the one who breaks them is the one with the fortitude and the strength of his hands.

Meaning: by hand: strong.

Then there was a difference of opinion regarding the interpretation of his statement: With the Holy Spirit. Some of them said: The Holy Spirit with which God Almighty informed us that He supported Jesus is Gabriel, peace be upon him. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit. He said: He is Gabriel.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit, he said: He is Gabriel, peace be upon him.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:87

And We had certainly given Moses the Scripture and followed up after him with messengers, and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear proofs and supported him with the Holy Spirit. So is it that whenever a messenger came to you with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? Then a party you denied and a party you killed.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit, he said: The Holy Spirit is Gabriel.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And We supported him with the Holy Spirit. He said: Jesus was supported by Gabriel, who is the Holy Spirit.

Ibn Hamid said: Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, who said: Abdullah bin Abdul Rahman bin Abi Al-Hussein Al-Makki told me, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab Al-Ash'ari: "A group of Jews asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Tell us about the spirit. He said: I ask you by God and by His days with the Children of Israel, do you know that he is Gabriel? And he is the one who comes to me? They said: Yes."

Others said: The spirit with which God supported Jesus is the Gospel. Those who said that mentioned:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit, he said: God supported Jesus with the Gospel as a spirit, just as He made the Qur'an a spirit, both of them are the spirit of God, as God said: And thus We have revealed to you a spirit of Our command (al-Shura 42:52).

Others said: It is the name by which Jesus revived the dead. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Munjab narrated that Bishr bin Amara narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit. He said: It is the name by which Jesus revived the dead.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of this is the one who said: The spirit in this place is Gabriel. Because God, the Most High, informed that He supported Jesus with it, as He informed in His statement: "When God said, 'O Jesus, son of Mary, remember My favor upon you and upon your mother when I supported you with the Holy Spirit so that you spoke to the people in the cradle and in maturity, and when I taught you the Book and wisdom and the Torah and the Gospel'" (al-Ma'idah 5:110). If the spirit with which God supported him was the Gospel, then His statement: When I supported you with the Holy Spirit, and when I taught you the Book and wisdom and the Torah and the Gospel, would be a repetition of a meaningless statement. This is because according to the interpretation of the statement of the one who said: The meaning of When I supported you with the Holy Spirit is: When I supported you with the Gospel and when I taught you the Gospel. And no one can be supported by it except as his teacher, so that is a repetition of one statement, without adding meaning to one of them over the other. This is a contradiction in speech, and God, the Most High, is too exalted to address His servants with what does not benefit them. Since this is the case, then the corruption of the statement of those who claim that the spirit in this place is the Gospel is clear, even though all of God's books that He revealed to His messengers are a spirit from Him, because dead hearts are revived by them, turning souls are revived by them, and misguided dreams are guided by them.

God Almighty called Gabriel a spirit and added him to the sacred because God created him a spirit from Himself, without the birth of his son's father. So He called him a spirit and added him to the sacred. The sacred is purity, just as He called Jesus, son of Mary, a spirit of God because He created him a spirit from Himself without the birth of his son's father.

We have previously explained in this book that the meaning of sanctification is purification, and holiness is purity, from that. The people of interpretation have differed in its meaning in this place, similar to their difference in the place we mentioned.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: Jerusalem is the blessing.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Jaafar narrated to us, on the authority of his father, who said: Jerusalem, which is the Lord, may He be exalted.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit, he said: God, the Holy. And He supported Jesus with His Spirit, he said: The attribute of God, the Holy. And he recited the words of God, the Most High: He is God, other than whom there is no god, the King, the Holy (al-Hashr 59:23), he said: The Holy and the Holy are one.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Amr ibn al-Harith told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Abi Hilal, on the authority of Hilal ibn Usamah, on the authority of Ata ibn Yasar, he said, Kaab said: God, the Holy One.

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His saying: So, whenever a messenger comes to you with what your souls do not desire, the Jews from the Children of Israel.

Muhammad bin Amr told me that, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid.

Abu Ja'far said: God, the Most High, says to them: O group of Jews, the Children of Israel, We gave Moses the Torah, and We sent messengers to you after him, and We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs and arguments, when We sent him to you, and We strengthened him with the Holy Spirit. But whenever a messenger of Mine came to you with something other than what your souls desired, you acted arrogantly and oppressively towards them, as your leader, Satan, did. So you denied some of them and killed others. This is what you will always do with My messengers.

His saying: Whenever, even if it came out as an awkward statement in the speech, it is in the sense of report.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And We gave Moses the Scripture meaning the Torah. And We followed means We followed. Following means following and riding behind, taken from following the nape of the neck, which is the back of the neck. You say I followed him if you came from behind him, and the rhyme of poetry is named from it, because it follows the rest of the speech. The rhyme is the nape, and from it the hadith:

The devil ties a knot at the back of your head. Al-Qafi and Al-Qafwa: as milk and other things are saved for someone you want to honor. Qafwat a man: I accused him of immorality. So-and-so Qafoni means I accused him. Qafwati means I chose him. Ibn Duraid said: Ibn Duraid said: It is as if it is one of the opposites. The scholars said: This verse is like the saying of God the Almighty: Then We sent Our messengers in succession. Every messenger who came after Moses came to confirm the Torah and command its adherence until Jesus, peace be upon him. It is said: Rusul and Rusul are two languages, the first is the language of Hijaz, and the second is the language of Tamim, and whether it is with an addition or not. And Abu Amr used to lighten it if he added to two letters, and make it heavy if he added to one letter.

The Almighty said: And We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs, meaning the arguments and evidence, which are what God mentioned in Al Imran and Al Ma'idah. Ibn Abbas said: And We strengthened him, meaning We strengthened him. Mujahid and Ibn Muhaisin read We strengthened him with a long vowel, and they are two dialects. With the Holy Spirit, Abu Malik and Abu Salih narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Muammar on the authority of Qatada, who said: Gabriel, peace be upon him. Hassan said:

Gabriel is the Messenger of God among us, and the Holy Spirit is not hidden.

An-Nahas said: Gabriel was called a spirit and was added to the Holy One, because he was created by God Almighty as a spirit without the birth of his son's father, and Jesus was also called a spirit for this reason. Ghalib bin Abdullah narrated on the authority of Mujahid, who said: The Holy One is God Almighty. And Al-Hasan said the same: The Holy One is God, and His spirit is Gabriel. Abu Rawq narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak on the authority of Ibn Abbas: By the Holy Spirit, he said: It is the name by which Jesus revived the dead, and Saeed bin Jubair and Ubaid bin Umair said the same, and it is the greatest name of God. And it was said: What is meant is the Gospel, and He called it a spirit just as God called the Qur'an a spirit in His statement, the Most High: And thus We have revealed to you a spirit of Our command. And the first is more apparent, and God Almighty knows best.

The Almighty said: So, whenever there came to you a Messenger with what your souls did not desire, meaning, what did not agree with them and suit them, and the ha was deleted due to the length of the name, meaning, what you did not desire, you were arrogant about answering him, despising the messengers and rejecting the message. The origin of hawa is the inclination toward something, and the plural of ahwa is ahwa, as it came in the revelation, and the plural of ahwa is not ahwa, although they said in nada "andiya," as the poet said:

On a night in Jumada al-Adan, in whose darkness the dog cannot see the trumpet.

Al-Jawhari said: It is anomalous. Desire was called desire because it causes its owner to fall into the Fire. Therefore, it is usually only used in what is not right and in what is not good, and this verse is one of those. It may also be used in what is right, and from that is the saying of Umar, may God be pleased with him, about the prisoners of Badr:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, liked what Abu Bakr said and did not like what I said. Aisha said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the authentic hadith:

By God, I see that your Lord hastens to fulfill your desires. Narrated by Muslim.

The Almighty said: A group you denied. A group is governed by you denied, and likewise and a group you kill. Among those they denied were Jesus and Muhammad, peace be upon them, and among those they killed were John and Zachariah, peace be upon them, as will be explained in Subhan, God willing.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Blessed and Exalted describes the Children of Israel as being stubborn, obstinate, disobedient and arrogant towards the prophets, and that they only follow their own desires. So the Almighty mentioned that He gave Moses the Book, which is the Torah, but they distorted it, changed it, and disobeyed its commands and interpretations. And He sent messengers and prophets after him who rule by His law, as the Almighty said: "Indeed, We sent down the Torah, in which was guidance and light. The prophets who submitted [to God] judged by it for those who were Jews, and the rabbis and scholars [associated themselves with God] by what they were entrusted with of the Book of God, and they were witnesses thereto." The verse: And for this reason the Almighty said: And We followed him up with messengers. Al-Suddi said on the authority of Abu Malik: We followed, and others said: We followed behind, and all are close, as the Almighty said: Then We sent Our messengers one after the other, until the prophets of the Children of Israel were sealed with Jesus, son of Mary, who came with a disobedience to the Torah in some rulings. And for this reason God gave him clear proofs, which are miracles. Ibn Abbas said: From the revival of the dead. And He created him from clay in the form of a bird, and He breathed into it and it became a bird by the permission of God, and He healed diseases, and He informed them of the unseen, and He supported them with the Holy Spirit, who is Gabriel, peace be upon him - what indicates to them his truthfulness in what he brought to them, so the Children of Israel's denial of him intensified, and their envy and stubbornness for contradicting the Torah in some of it, as God the Almighty said, informing about Jesus: And that I may make lawful for you some of what was forbidden to you, and I have come to you with a sign from your Lord verse. So the Children of Israel treated the prophets in the worst way, so a group of them denied them, and a group of them killed them, and that was only because they came to them with matters that contradicted their desires and opinions, and with the obligation of the rulings of the Torah that they had acted to contradict, so that was difficult for them so they denied them, and perhaps killed some of them, and that is why God the Almighty said: So is it that whenever there came to you a messenger with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? So a group you denied and a group you killed verse.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:87

And We had certainly given Moses the Scripture and followed up after him with messengers, and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear proofs and supported him with the Holy Spirit. So is it that whenever a messenger came to you with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? Then a party you denied and a party you killed.

The evidence that the Holy Spirit is Gabriel, as Ibn Masoud stated in his interpretation of this verse, and Ibn Abbas, Muhammad ibn Kaab, Ismail ibn Khalid, As-Suddi, Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas, Atiyah Al-Awfi and Qatadah followed him in this, with the Almighty's saying: The Trustworthy Spirit has brought it down upon your heart that you may be among the warners, is what Al-Bukhari said. Ibn Abi Al-Zinad said, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha: that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, placed a pulpit for Hassan ibn Thabit in the mosque, and he would defend the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O God, support Hassan with the Holy Spirit as he defended your Prophet. This is from Al-Bukhari as a suspended hadith, and Abu Dawud narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Sirin and Al-Tirmidhi, on the authority of Ali ibn Hajar and Ismail ibn Musa Al-Fazari, all three of them, on the authority of Abu Abd Al-Rahman ibn Abi Al-Zinad, on the authority of his father and Hisham ibn Urwah, both of them on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha with it. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is good and authentic, and it is the hadith of Abu Al-Zinad. In the two Sahihs, from the hadith of Sufyan ibn Uyaynah, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah: That Umar ibn al-Khattab passed by Hassan while he was reciting poetry in the mosque, so he looked at him and said: I used to recite poetry in it and there was someone better than you in it. Then he turned to Abu Hurayrah and said: I ask you by God, did you hear the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Answer on my behalf, O God, support him with the Holy Spirit. He said: O God, yes. And in some narrations: that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Hassan, Satirize them - or incite them - and Gabriel is with you. And in Hassan's poetry, he said:

Gabriel is the Messenger of God among us, and there is no concealment in the Holy Spirit.

Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Abdullah bin Abdul Rahman bin Abi Hussein Al-Makki told me, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab Al-Ash'ari: "A group of Jews asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Tell us about the spirit. He said: I ask you by God and by His days with the Children of Israel, do you know that it is Gabriel who comes to me? They said: Yes." And in Sahih Ibn Hibban, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The Holy Spirit inspired in my heart that no soul will die until it has completed its provision and its appointed time, so fear God and be fair in your request." Other sayings - Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Munjab bin Al-Harith told us, Bishr told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And We supported him with the Holy Spirit. He said: It is the greatest name by which Jesus revived the dead. Ibn Jarir said: I was told by Al-Munjab and he mentioned it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated from Saeed bin Jubair. Al-Qurtubi also narrated it from Ubaid bin Umair who said: It is the greatest name. Ibn Abi Nujayh said: The spirit is the guardians over the angels. Abu Jaafar Al-Razi said from Al-Rabi bin Anas: Al-Quds is the Lord, Blessed and Exalted, and this is the saying of Ka'b. Al-Qurtubi narrated from Mujahid and Al-Hasan Al-Basri that they said: Al-Quds is God, the Most High, and His spirit is Gabriel, and this is the saying of Ka'b. Al-Qurtubi narrated from Mujahid and Al-Hasan Al-Basri that they said: Al-Quds is God, the Most High, and His spirit is Gabriel. So based on this is the first saying. Al-Suddi said: Al-Quds is the blessing. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Al-Quds: Purity. Ibn Jarir said: Yunus bin Abdul-Ala told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Ibn Zayd said regarding the words of God Almighty: And We supported him with the Holy Spirit, he said: God supported Jesus with the Gospel as a spirit just as He made the Qur'an a spirit. Both are spirits from God, as God Almighty said: And thus We have revealed to you a spirit of Our command. Then Ibn Jarir said: The most correct interpretation of that is the saying of the one who said: The spirit in this place is Gabriel, for God Almighty informed that He supported Jesus with it as He informed in His words, "When God said, O Jesus, son of Mary, remember My favor upon you and upon your mother when I supported you with the Holy Spirit so that you spoke to the people in the cradle and in maturity, and when I taught you the Book and wisdom and the Torah and the Gospel," the verse, so He mentioned that He supported him with it. So if the spirit with which He supported him was the Gospel, then His words: When I supported you with the Holy Spirit so that you spoke to the people in the cradle and in maturity, and when I taught you the Book and wisdom and the Torah and the Gospel, would be a repetition of a meaningless statement, and God Almighty It is more honorable and sublime that He addresses His servants with what does not benefit them with it. I said And among the evidence that it is Gabriel is what was presented at the beginning of the context, and praise be to God. Al-Zamakhshari said, with the Holy Spirit, with the Holy Spirit, as you say: Hatim al-Joud and a man of truth, and he described it as holy as he said: and a spirit from Him, so he described it with specialization and proximity as an honor. And it was said: because the loins and the wombs did not contain it, and it was said: with Gabriel. It was said: with the Gospel as he said in the Qur'an: a spirit from Our command. And it was said: in the name of the Greatest God who used to revive the dead with His remembrance, so his words included another statement, which is that what is meant is the spirit of Jesus himself, the holy and purified. Al-Zamakhshari said in the words of God Almighty: So a party you denied and a party you killed, He did not say and a party you killed, because he intended by that to describe them in the future also because they tried to kill the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with poison and magic, and he, peace be upon him, said during his death illness: The food of Khaybar has not ceased to come back to me, so this is the time for my aorta to be severed. I said And this hadith is in Sahih al-Bukhari and others.

Fath al-Qadir

87- The Book: The Torah, and the rhyme: following and following, taken from the nape which is the back of the neck, you say: I followed him: if you came from behind him, and from it the rhyme of poetry is named because it follows the rest of the speech. What is meant is that God, the Almighty, sent messengers after him whom He made follow him and they are the prophets of the Children of Israel sent after him. And the clear proofs are the evidence that God mentioned in Al Imran and Al Ma'idah. And support: strengthening. Mujahid and Ibn Muhaisin read And We supported him with a long vowel and they are two languages. And the Holy Spirit is from adding the described to the attribute: meaning the Holy Spirit. And the Holy: purity, and the Holy: the purifier - and it was said: it is Gabriel with whom God supported Jesus, and from it the saying of Hassan:

Gabriel is God's trustee among us, and there is no concealment in the Holy Spirit.

Al-Nahas said: Gabriel was called a spirit and was added to the Holy because he was created by God without birth. It was also said: The Holy is God Almighty, and his spirit is Gabriel. It was also said: What is meant by the Holy Spirit is the name by which Jesus revived the dead. It was also said: What is meant by it is the Gospel. It was also said: What is meant by it is the spirit that was breathed into him, God supported him with it because of the strength in it. His statement: With what your souls do not desire means with what does not agree with them and is not suitable for them. The origin of desire is the inclination towards something. Al-Jawhari said: Desire was called desire because it causes its owner to fall into the Fire. God Almighty rebuked them with these words entitled with the hamza of rebuke, saying: So, whenever there came to you a messenger from you with what does not agree with what you desire, you were too arrogant to answer him, despising the messengers and rejecting the message. The fa in His statement: So, whenever there came to you a messenger from you with what does not agree with what you desire, you were too arrogant to answer him, despising the messengers and rejecting the message. The fa in His statement: So, whenever there came to you a messenger from among ... is for conjunction with an implied meaning, "We gave you, O Children of Israel, from the And a group is in the accusative case because of the verb that follows it, and the fa is for detail. Among the group are the deniers of Jesus and Muhammad, and among the group are the ones who were killed are John and Zachariah.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

87- The Almighty's saying: "And We gave" We gave Moses the Book the Torah, all at once and We followed and followed after him with messengers messenger after messenger and We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs the clear indications, which are what God mentioned in Surat Al Imran and Al Ma'idah. It was said: He meant the Gospel. And We supported him strengthened him with the Holy Spirit Ibn Kathir read Al Quds with a sukoon on the dal and the others with a damma on it, and they are two languages like terror and terror, and they differed about the Holy Spirit. Al Rabi' and others said: He meant by the Spirit the Spirit that He breathed into him, and the Holy is God, He added it to Himself as an honor and a specialization like the House of God, and the She-camel of God, as He said: So We breathed into him of Our Spirit 12- At-Tahrim and a Spirit from Him 171- An-Nisa. It was said: He meant by the Holy Purity, meaning the pure Spirit. He called His Spirit Holy because it was not contained in the loins of the males, and the wombs did not contain it. The menses, it was only an order from God the Most High, Qatada, Al-Suddi and Al-Dahhak said: The Holy Spirit is Gabriel, peace be upon him. It was said: Gabriel was described as holy, meaning pure, because he did not commit a sin. Al-Hasan said: The Holy is God and His Spirit is Gabriel. God the Most High said: "Say: The Holy Spirit has brought it down from your Lord in truth" 102- An-Nahl. And the support of Jesus by Gabriel, peace be upon them, is that he was ordered to walk with him wherever he walked until God ascended with him to heaven. It was said: Gabriel, peace be upon him, was called a spirit for his kindness and his position in the revelation that is the reason for the life of hearts. Ibn Abbas and Saeed bin Jubair said: The Holy Spirit is the greatest name of God the Most High, by which He revived the dead and showed people wonders. It was said: It is the Gospel, for which a spirit was given to him just as (the Qur'an was made a spirit for Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, because it is the reason for the life of hearts).

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:87

And We had certainly given Moses the Scripture and followed up after him with messengers, and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear proofs and supported him with the Holy Spirit. So is it that whenever a messenger came to you with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? Then a party you denied and a party you killed.

God the Most High said: And thus We have revealed to you a spirit of Our command 52- Ash-Shura. So when the Jews heard the mention of Jesus, peace be upon him, they said: O Muhammad, there is nothing like Jesus - as you claim - did, and not as you tell us about the prophets, so bring us what Jesus brought if you are truthful.

God Almighty said: So whenever there came to you, O community of Jews, a messenger with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant. "You were arrogant and thought too proud to believe." So you denied a group, such as Jesus and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and you killed a group, such as Zechariah, John, Isaiah, and all the other prophets whom they killed, peace be upon them.

the pauses, or to indicate that you are still in it, for you are hovering around killing Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, had I not protected him from you. For this reason, you bewitched him and poisoned the sheep for him.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

87- And We gave Moses the Book meaning the Torah and followed him up with messengers meaning We sent messengers after him, as the Almighty said: Then We sent Our messengers in succession. It is said that he followed him, and he followed him with it if he followed him from the back, like his sin from the sin And We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs the clear miracles such as raising the dead and healing the blind and the leper, and informing of the unseen. Or the Gospel, and Jesus in Hebrew is Absho'. And Mary means servant, and in Arabic it is for women like Al-Zir is for men. Ru'yah said: I said to Al-Zir that Mary did not reach him. Its weight is Mufa'il since Fa'il was not established, and Aydanahu and Qawwanihu, and Aydanahu was read with a long vowel with the Holy Spirit with the Holy Spirit as you say: Hatim al-Jud, and a man of truth, and he meant by it Gabriel, and it was said: the spirit of Jesus, peace be upon him, and he described it with it because of its purity from the touch of Satan, or because of its honor with God Almighty and that is why he added it to himself Almighty, or because the loins and wombs did not contain it, or the Gospel, or the greatest name of God with which he revived the dead, and Ibn Kathir read al-Quds with a sukun in the entire Qur'an So every time there comes to you a messenger with what your souls do not desire with what you do not like. It is said hawwa with a kasra if he loves, hawwa with a fatha, hawwa with a damma if he falls. And the hamza was placed between the fa and what it is connected to as a rebuke to them for following that with this and astonishment at their condition, and it is possible that it is a resumption and the fa is for conjunction with what is understood, you were arrogant about faith and following the messengers. A party you denied, such as Moses and Jesus, peace be upon them. The fa is for causality or detail. And a party you killed, such as Zechariah and John, peace be upon them. It was mentioned in the present tense to narrate the past situation, to bring it to mind, for the matter is terrible. Or to take into account

Surat al-Baqarah 2:88

And they said, Our hearts are covered. Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And they said to the Prophet mockingly Our hearts are covered plural of aghlaf, meaning covered with covers so you do not understand what you are saying. God Almighty said: Rather to interrupt God has cursed them He distanced them from His mercy and let them down from accepting for their disbelief and their lack of acceptance is not due to a defect in their hearts So little do they believe ma is redundant to emphasize the little, meaning: their faith is very little.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: There was a difference in the reading of this. Some of them read it as: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' with a lightened and silent lam. This is the reading of all the countries in all regions.

Some of them read it as: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' with a heavy lam and a damma.

As for those who read it with a sukoon on the lam and a light lam, they interpreted it as saying: Our hearts are in coverings, ghitaat, and ghalaf. Ghalaf according to the reading of these people is the plural of aglaf, which is the one who is in a ghalaf and ghatha, just as it is said of a man who is not circumcised, aglaf, and a woman ghalfa. And as it is said of a sword when it is in its sheath: a ghalaf sword and a ghalafaa bow, and their plural is ghalaf. Likewise, the plural of what is from the adjectives whose masculine is af'al and its feminine is fa'laa, is pluralized as fa'l with the first letter damma and the second letter sukoon, like ahmr and humr, asfar and safar, so that is a combination of the feminine and masculine. And it is not permissible to make the 'ayn of fa'l heavy, except in poetic necessity, as Tarafa ibn al-'Abd said:

Boys in our council stripped her of her roses and blond hair

He wants: blonde, but the hair forced him to move the second one, so he moved it. And from it is the report that:

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Al-Hakam bin Bashir bin Salman told us, he said, Amr bin Qais Al-Mala'i told us, on the authority of Amr bin Murrah Al-Jamali, on the authority of Abu Al-Bukhtari, on the authority of Hudhayfah, he said: The hearts are four, then he mentioned them and said among what he mentioned: And a heart that is covered and bound, and that is the heart of the disbeliever.

He who said that means: that it is in covers:

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said,

Ibn Ishaq told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning covered.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Abu Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Our hearts are covered, meaning in a covering.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning the hearts that are sealed.

Abbas bin Muhammad told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj said: Abdullah bin Katheer told me, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' that is, they have a covering over them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, he said, Abdullah bin Katheer told me, on the authority of Mujahid: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' they have a covering over them.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, Sharik told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, regarding his statement: Our hearts are covered, he said: They are covered.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning they do not understand.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered.' He said: It is like His saying: Our hearts are within coverings (Fussilat 41:5).

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Our hearts are covered, he said: There is a seal on them. He said: It is like his statement: Our hearts are within coverings.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: Our hearts are covered, meaning they do not understand.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered.' He said: They say: There is a covering over them, which is the covering.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement, Our hearts are covered, he said, he says: My heart is covered, so nothing of what you say reaches it, and he recited, And they said, 'Our hearts are within coverings from that to which you invite us' (Fussilat 41:6).

Abu Jaafar said: As for those who read it as ghalaf with a fatha on the lam and a damma on it, they interpreted it as saying: Our hearts are ghalaf for knowledge, meaning that they are vessels.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:88

And they said, "Our hearts are covered." Rather, Allah has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe.

He said: The word ghalaf according to their interpretation is the plural of ghalaf cover, just as the word book is the plural of books, veil is veils, and shihab is shihabs. So the meaning of the speech is according to the interpretation of the reading of those who read ghalaf with the lam moved and with a damma. The Jews said: Our hearts are covered for knowledge and are vessels for it and for other things. Those who said that mentioned:

Ubaid bin Asbat bin Muhammad told me, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Fadil bin Marzouq, on the authority of Atiyah: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered.' He said: They are vessels for remembrance.

Muhammad bin Amara Al-Asadi told me, he said, Ubaidullah bin Musa told us, he said, Fadil told us, on the authority of Atiyah, regarding his statement: Our hearts are covered, he said: They are vessels for knowledge.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad told us, he said, Fadil told us, on the authority of Atiyah, similarly.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Munjab, who said: Bishr bin Amara narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered.' He said: They are filled with knowledge, and do not need Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, or anyone else.

The reading that is not permissible other than his saying: Our hearts are covered, is the reading of those who read covered with a sukoon on the lam, meaning that it is in membranes and coverings, due to the convergence of the evidence from the reciters and the people of interpretation on its correctness, and the deviation of those who deviated from them with what contradicted it, from reading that with a damma on the lam.

We have shown that what the evidence has agreed upon is evidence for whoever receives it. And what the individual has brought, it is not permissible to object to what the group has brought, which establishes the evidence in terms of transmission, word and action, in a place other than this, so that makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this place.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Rather, God cursed them for their disbelief.

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be glorified, means: Rather, God cursed them. Rather, God distanced them, kept them far away, expelled them, humiliated them, and destroyed them for their disbelief, their denial of God's signs and proofs, and what He sent His messengers with, and their denial of His prophets. So God, may His praise be glorified, informed us that He distanced them from Him and from His mercy because of what they did of that.

The root of the word curse is to expel, banish, and exclude. It is said: May God curse so-and-so, meaning he curses him with a curse, and he is cursed. Then the object is declined, so it is said: He is accursed. From this is the saying of Al-Shamakh bin Dirar:

The quail was terrified by him and I banished him from the place of the wolf like a damned man

Abu Ja'far said: In the statement of God, the Most High, Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, is a refutation of those Jews who said, Our hearts are covered. Because His statement, Rather, is evidence of His denial and rejection of what they claimed, since rather does not enter into speech except to contradict what is denied. Since that is the case, it is clear that the meaning of the verse is: And the Jews said: Our hearts are covered from what you call us to, O Muhammad. So God, the Most High, said: That is not as they claimed, but God excluded the Jews and kept them far from His mercy, and expelled them from it, and humiliated them for their denial of Him and His messengers, so few of them believe.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: But few of them believe.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in their interpretation of His statement: So few of them believe. Some of them said that its meaning is So few of them believe, meaning that only a few of them believe. Those who said that were mentioned: Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, saying: Yazid ibn Zari' told us, saying: Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, so few of them believe, by my life, those who returned from the polytheists were more than those who returned from the People of the Book. Only a small group of the People of the Book believed.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: So few of them believe, he said: Only a few of them believe.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: They do not believe except in a little of what is in their hands. Those who said this were: Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Abu Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatadah, So little do they believe, he said: Only a few of them believe. Muammar said: And someone else said: They do not believe except in a little of what is in their hands.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of His statement, So few believe, is what we have mastered, God willing. It is that God, the Most High, informed that He cursed those He described in this verse, then He informed about them that they have little faith in what God revealed to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. That is why He put His statement, So few, in the accusative case, because it is an attribute of the infinitive that was not mentioned. Its meaning is: Rather, God cursed them for their disbelief, so they have little faith. Thus, what we have explained has made clear the corruption of the statement that was narrated from Qatadah regarding that. Because the meaning of that, if it were as it was narrated that he meant by it: So few of them believe, or so few of them believe, then the few would be in the nominative case, not in the accusative case. Because if that was its interpretation, then the few would be a subject in the nominative case. So when the few and what is in the meaning of who or who has been lost are in the accusative case, then what remains is not subject to a subject. That is not permissible in the language of any of the Arabs.

As for the Arabists, they differed about the meaning of ma in His statement: So few of them believe. Some of them said: It is redundant and has no meaning. Rather, the interpretation of the statement is: So few of them believe, as the Most High said: So by mercy from God, you were lenient with them (Al Imran 3:159) and what is similar to that. So he claimed that ma in that is redundant, and that the meaning of the statement is: So by mercy from God, you were lenient with them. And he recited in support of his statement the following verse of Muhalhil:

If Abbanin came to propose to her, no suitor's nose would be dyed with blood

He claimed that it means: the suitor's nose was stained with blood, and that ma is redundant.

Others denied what the speaker said about what, in the verse and in the verse that he recited, and they said: This is only from the speaker starting the speech with the report about the generality of all things, since what was a word that gathered all things, then made specific and general what it made general by what it mentioned after it.

This statement is more correct in our view, because adding something that does not provide meaning to speech is not permissible to add to God, may He be glorified.

Perhaps someone might say: Did those about whom God said that they believe little have little or much faith, so that it would be said about them: They believe little?

It was said: The meaning of faith is belief. The Jews, about whom God told this report, believed in the oneness of God, in resurrection, reward and punishment, and disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood. All of that was an obligation upon them to believe in, because it was in their books, and among what Moses brought them. So they believed in some of it, and that was the little of their faith, and they disbelieved in some of it, and that was the much that God told about them that they disbelieved in it.

Some of them said: They were not believers in anything, but it was said: They believe seldom, and they are disbelievers in all of it, as the Arabs say: I have rarely seen anything like this. It was narrated from her, as she heard it: I passed by a country that rarely grows anything but leeks and onions, meaning: It does not grow anything but leeks and onions, and similar statements that are uttered to describe something as few, and the meaning in it is the negation of all of it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered.' Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe.

God the Almighty said: And they said meaning the Jews Our hearts are covered with a sukoon on the lam, the plural of aghlaf, meaning they have coverings. It is like His statement Our hearts are in coverings from that to which you invite us meaning in vessels. Mujahid said: Ghalaf has a covering over it. Ikrimah said: It has a seal over it. The linguists said that ghalfat means to sheathe the sword, so the heart is aghlaf, meaning concealed from understanding and discrimination. Ibn Abbas, Al-A'raj and Ibn Muhaysin read ghalaf with a damma on the lam. Ibn Abbas said: meaning our hearts are filled with knowledge and do not need the knowledge of Muhammad (peace be upon him) or anyone else. It was said: it is the plural of ghalaf, like khimar and khamr, meaning our hearts are vessels for knowledge, so why do they not understand from you when we have comprehended so much knowledge? It was said: the meaning is how can the knowledge of Muhammad (peace be upon him) be hidden from them. God responded to them by saying: Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe. Then He explained that the reason for their aversion to faith is that they were cursed for their previous disbelief and audacity, and this is the punishment for a sin that is greater than it. The origin of the word curse in the speech of the Arabs is expulsion and banishment. The wolf is called la'een accursed, and the banished man is called la'een accursed. Al-Shamakh said:

The quail was terrified by him and I denied him the status of a wolf like a cursed man

The point of the speech: The status of the cursed wolf is like that of a man, so the meaning is that God has distanced them from His mercy.

It was said: From His success and guidance. It was said: From all good, and this is general. So little is an adjective for a deleted source, the meaning of which is: So little faith they believe. Muammar said: The meaning is that they do not believe except a little of what is in their hands and they disbelieve in most of it, and little is the accusative by removing the letter of description. And what is a relative clause, meaning they believe little. Al-Waqidi said: Its meaning is they do not believe little or much, as you say: How little he does such-and-such, meaning he does not do it at all. Al-Kisa'i said: The Arabs say we passed by a land that rarely grows leeks and onions, meaning it does not grow anything.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning in coverings. Ali bin

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:88

And they said, "Our hearts are covered." Rather, Allah has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe.

Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning they do not understand. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning they do not understand. Mujahid said: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning they have a covering over them. Ikrimah said: They have a seal over them. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: They do not understand. Al-Suddi said: They say, 'Its cover,' meaning it is a covering. Abd Al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada: So you do not comprehend or understand. Mujahid and Qatada said: Ibn Abbas read Ghalaf, with a damma on the lam, and it is the plural of ghalaf, meaning our hearts are the vessels of all knowledge, so we do not need your knowledge. Ibn Abbas and Ata' said this. Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, meaning God has expelled them and distanced them from all good. So little do they believe. Qatada said: Its meaning is: No. Only a few of them believe. And they said, 'Our hearts are covered' is like His saying, And they said, 'Our hearts are within coverings from that to which you invite us'. Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam said regarding His saying, covered, he said: You say, My heart is covered, so nothing of what you say reaches it. He recited, And they said, 'Our hearts are within coverings from that to which you invite us' This is what Ibn Jarir preferred, and he cited as evidence what was narrated from the hadith of Amr ibn Murrah al-Jamali from Abu al-Bukhtari from Hudhayfah who said: Hearts are of four types, and among them he mentioned a covered heart that has incurred wrath, and that is the heart of the disbeliever. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman al-Arzami told us, my father told us, from my grandfather, from Qatadah, from al-Hasan regarding His saying, Our hearts are covered, he said: They are not circumcised. The meaning of this statement goes back to what was mentioned previously about the impurity of their hearts and that they are far from goodness. Another statement - Ad-Dahhak said from Ibn Abbas, And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' he said: They say, our hearts are covered and filled, and they do not need the knowledge of Muhammad or anyone else. Atiyah Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they said, 'Our hearts are covered,' meaning, vessels for action. This is the meaning of the reading of some of the Ansar in it, as narrated by Ibn Jarir. They said: Our hearts are covered, with a damma on the lam, as Al-Zamakhshari transmitted, meaning the plural of ghalf, meaning vessels, meaning that they claimed that their hearts were filled with knowledge that they did not need any other knowledge, just as they used to boast of the knowledge of the Torah. For this reason, the Almighty said: Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe, meaning that the matter is not as they claimed, rather their hearts are cursed and sealed, as He said in Surat al-Nisa 4: And their saying, 'Our hearts are covered,' rather, God has set a seal upon them because of their disbelief, so they believe not except a little. They differed regarding the meaning of His statement: So little do they believe, and His statement: So little do they believe, so some of them said: So few of them believe, and little: their little faith means that they believe in what Moses brought them regarding the matter of the afterlife, reward, and punishment, but it is a faith that does not benefit them because it is overwhelmed by what they disbelieved in that which came to them. By Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Some of them said: They were not believers in anything. Rather, he said: They rarely believe and they are disbelievers in everything, just as the Arabs say: I have rarely seen anything like this, meaning I have never seen anything like this. Al-Kisa'i said: The Arabs say: Whoever commits adultery in a land that rarely grows, meaning it does not grow anything. This was narrated by Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him. And God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

And the word al-Ghalaf is the plural of Aghlaf, which here means: the one who has a covering that prevents speech from reaching him, and from this, Ghalfat al-Sayf means I made a covering for it. It was said in Al-Kashshaf: It is borrowed from al-Aghlaf who is not circumcised, as in his saying: Our hearts are covered from that to which you call us. And it was said: Al-Ghalaf is the plural of Ghalaf like Hammar and Hamr: meaning our hearts are vessels for knowledge, so why do they not understand from you, and we have comprehended a great deal of knowledge? So God responded to what they said, saying: 88- Rather, God cursed them for their disbelief. The origin of cursing in the speech of the Arabs is expulsion and banishment, and from this is the saying of Al-Shamakh:

The quail was terrified by him and I denied him the status of a wolf like a cursed man

Like an expelled man. The meaning is: May God distance them from His mercy. A little is an adjective for a deleted source: meaning a little faith. They do not believe. "Ma" is redundant, describing their faith as little because they are the ones about whom God has told us about their stubbornness, arrogance, and intense obstinacy, and their distance from answering the messengers, which He has told us about. Among that is that they believe in some of the Book and disbelieve in some of it. Muammar said: The meaning is that they do not believe except a little of what is in their hands and disbelieve in most of it. Based on this, a little is in the accusative case by removing the preposition. Al-Waqidi said that it means they do not believe a little or a lot. Al-Kisa'i said: The Arabs say, We passed by a land that rarely grows leeks and onions, meaning it does not grow anything.

Ibn Asakir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And We gave Moses the Scripture meaning the Torah in one detailed and decisive sentence and We followed up after him with messengers meaning a messenger called Samuel the son of Babylon, a messenger called Manshabiel, a messenger called Isaiah, a messenger called Ezekiel, a messenger called Jeremiah who is Al-Khidr, a messenger called David who is Abu Sulayman and a messenger called the Messiah Jesus son of Mary. These messengers were sent by God and chosen from the nation after Moses, so We took from them a solemn covenant that they would convey to their nation the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the description of his nation. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority regarding his statement: And We gave Jesus, son of Mary, clear proofs he said: they are the signs that were placed in his hands such as reviving the dead and creating him from clay in the form of a bird, and healing diseases. And the report of many of the unseen things, and what was brought to them from the Torah and the Gospel that God revealed to him. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority regarding his statement: And We supported him he said: We strengthened him. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: The Spirit of Jerusalem is the name by which Jesus revived the dead. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid that he said: Jerusalem is God Almighty. Al-Rabi' bin Anas narrated something similar. He narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Jerusalem is purity. He narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi that he said: Jerusalem is blessing. He narrated on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid that the Spirit of Jerusalem is Gabriel. He narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud. Abu Al-Shaykh narrated in Al-Azmah on the authority of Jabir on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The Spirit of Jerusalem is Gabriel. It has been proven in Sahih that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O God, support Hassan with the Spirit of Jerusalem. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr regarding his statement: A group, he said: A group. He narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The heart was named so because of its changeability. Al-Tabarani narrated in Al-Awsat on his authority that he used to recite Our hearts are covered with a heavy meaning: How can we learn while our hearts are covered for wisdom? Meaning vessels for wisdom. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from him regarding his statement: "And they said: Our hearts are covered," filled with knowledge that do not need the knowledge of Muhammad or anyone else. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from him regarding his statement: Our hearts are covered, he said: In a covering. Ibn Ishaq and Ibn Jarir narrated from him that he said: In coverings. Ibn Jarir narrated from him that he said: They are the hearts that are sealed. Waki' narrated from Ikrimah and Ibn Jarir from Mujahid similarly. Abd Ibn Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated from Qatadah that he said: They are those that do not understand. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Abi Al-Dunya narrated in the book of Al-Ikhlās and Ibn Jarir from Hudhayfah that he said: Hearts are of four types: A covered heart, and that is the heart of the disbeliever; a plated heart, and that is the heart of the hypocrite; a bare heart in which is like a lamp, and that is the heart of the believer; and a heart in which is faith and hypocrisy. So the example of faith is like a tree that is nourished by what is good, and the example of the hypocrite is like a sore that is nourished by pus and blood. Ahmad narrated with a good chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Saeed that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Hearts are of four types: a bare heart in which there is a shining lamp; a covered heart tied to its covering; an inverted heart; and a plated heart. As for the bare heart, it is the heart of the believer whose lamp has light in it; as for the covered heart, it is the heart of the disbeliever; as for the inverted heart, it is the heart of the hypocrite who recognized and then denied; as for the plated heart, it is a heart in which there is both faith and hypocrisy. So the example of faith in it is like that of a plant nourished by good water, and the example of hypocrisy in it is like that of an ulcer nourished by pus; whichever of the two substances overcomes the other, it overcomes it." Ibn Abi Hatim narrated a similar hadith on the authority of Salman al-Farisi, with a chain of transmission ending with him. Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement: But few of them believe, he said: None of them believe except a few.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

88- And they said meaning the Jews Our hearts are covered the plural of aghlaf which is covered with a membrane, meaning that there is a covering over them so they do not comprehend or understand what they are saying, said Mujahid and Qatada, similar to the saying of God Almighty And they said, Our hearts are within coverings 5 - Fussilat Ibn Abbas read ghalaf with a damma on the lam and this is the reading of al-A'raj and it is the plural of ghalaf meaning our hearts are vessels for all knowledge so they do not need your knowledge, said Ibn Abbas and Ata' and al-Kalbi said: Its meaning is vessels for all knowledge so you do not hear a hadith without comprehending it except your hadith which you do not understand nor comprehend, even if there was good in it you would yearn for it and understand it.

God the Almighty said: Rather, God has cursed them God has expelled them and kept them far from all good because of their disbelief, so few of them believe. Qatada said: Its meaning is that only a few of them will believe, because those who believed from the polytheists are more than those who believed from the Jews, meaning few of them believe. The accusative of little is in the state of the verb. Muammar said: They do not believe except a little of what is in their hands and they disbelieve in most of it, meaning few of them believe. The accusative of little is by removing the preposition, and what is a relative clause based on their statement. Al-Waqidi said: Its meaning is that they do not believe little or much, like a man saying to another: How little you do such-and-such, meaning you do not do it at all.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

88- And they said, 'Our hearts are covered' covered with natural coverings that what you have brought cannot reach them nor can they comprehend it, borrowed from the uncircumcised who is not circumcised. It was said that its origin is ghalaf, the plural of ghalaf, so it was lightened. The meaning is that they are vessels for knowledge. They do not hear knowledge except that they comprehend it, nor do they understand what they say. Or we are independent of what is in them from others. Rather, God has cursed them for their disbelief is a response to what they said, and the meaning is that they were created with the innate nature and the ability to accept the truth, but God let them down with their disbelief and nullified their readiness, or that they did not refuse to accept what they say due to a defect in it, but rather because God the Most High let them down with their disbelief as He the Most High said: So He made them deaf and blinded their sight, or they are cursed disbelievers, so where do they get the claim of knowledge and independence from you? So little do they believe So little faith they believe, and what is more is for exaggeration in the smallness, which is their belief in some of the Book. It was said: He meant by little nothingness.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:88

And they said, "Our hearts are covered." Rather, Allah has cursed them for their disbelief, so little do they believe.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:89

And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them - and before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved - but when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them of the Torah, which is the Qur'an and before before its coming they used to pray for victory seek help against those who disbelieved they said, O God, grant us victory over them through the Prophet sent at the end of time but when there came to them that which they recognized of the truth, which is the mission of the Prophet they disbelieved in it out of envy and fear for leadership, and the answer to the first question is the answer to the second question so the curse of God is upon the disbelievers

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And before that they used to ask for victory. Al-Hakim included in Al-Mustadrak and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Dala'il with a weak chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Jews of Khaybar used to fight Ghatafan, and whenever they met, the Jews were defeated. So they sought refuge with this supplication: O God, we ask You by the right of Muhammad, the unlettered prophet, whom You promised us to bring forth for us at the end of time, to grant us victory over them. So whenever they met, they used to supplicate with this and Ghatafan would be defeated. Then when the Prophet, peace be upon him, was sent, they disbelieved in him, so God revealed: And before that they used to ask You, O Muhammad, for victory over the disbelievers.

And Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Jews used to seek victory over the Aws and Khazraj through the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before his mission. When God sent him from the Arabs, they disbelieved in him and denied what they used to say about him. So Muadh bin Jabal, Bishr bin Al-Bara', and Dawud bin Salamah said to them: O group of Jews, fear God and submit, for you used to seek victory over us through Muhammad, while we were polytheists, and you used to tell us that he would be sent and describe him by his description. So Salam bin Mishkam, one of Banu Nadir, said: He did not bring us anything that we know of, and it is not what we used to mention to you. So God revealed: And when there came to them a Book from God, the verse:

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: And when there came to them a Book from God, confirming what is with them, and when there came to the Jews from the Children of Israel, whom He,

the Most High, described as a Book from God, he meant by the Book the Qur'an that God sent down to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, confirming what is with them, meaning confirming what was with them from the books that God sent down before the Qur'an, as: Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: And when there came to them a Book from God, confirming what is with them, and it is the Qur'an that was sent down to Muhammad, confirming what was with them from the Torah and the Gospel.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them, which is the Qur'an that was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, confirming what was with them of the Torah and the Gospel.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "And before that, they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved. But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it."

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved, is: And these Jews, when a book came to them from God confirming what they had, from the books that God revealed before the Criterion, they disbelieved in it, they used to pray for victory through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The meaning of prayer is seeking victory, they used to pray for victory through him against the polytheists of the Arabs before his mission, that is, before he was sent, as Ibn Humayd told me, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told me, on the authority of 'Asim ibn 'Umar ibn Qatadah al-Ansari, on the authority of elders among them who said: By God, this story was revealed about us and them, meaning the Ansar, and about the Jews, who were their neighbors, meaning: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved, they said: We had prevailed over them for a long time in the Age of Ignorance, and we were the people of polytheism, and they were the people of the Book, so they used to say: Our Prophet, now that his mission has come, his time has come, he will kill you as 'Ad killed Iram. When God Almighty sent His Messenger from Quraysh and we followed him, they disbelieved in him. God says: But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it.

Ibn Humayd narrated, Salamah narrated, Ibn Ishaq narrated, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, a client of the family of Zayd ibn Thabit, narrated, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or Ikrimah, a client of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The Jews used to seek victory over the Aws and Khazraj through the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before he was sent. But when God sent him from among the Arabs, they disbelieved in him and denied what they used to say about him. So Muadh ibn Jabal and Bishr ibn al-Bara' ibn Ma'rur, the brother of Banu Salamah, said to them: O group of Jews, fear

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:89

And when there came to them a Book from Allah confirming what was with them - and before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved - but when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of Allah is upon the disbelievers.

God and submit to Islam, for you used to seek victory over us through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, while we were polytheists, and you used to tell us that he would be sent and describe him according to his characteristics! Then Salam ibn Mishkam, the brother of Banu al-Nadir, said: He has not brought us anything that we know of, and he is not what we used to tell you! Then God Almighty revealed regarding that from their saying: "And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them - although before they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved - but when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers."

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of the family of Zayd bin Thabit, told me, he said, Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn `Abbas: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved, meaning: They used to pray for victory through the uprising of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the polytheists of the Arabs, meaning by that the People of the Book. But when God sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they saw him as someone other than them, they disbelieved in him and envied him.

Muhammad bin Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ali al-Azdi, regarding the statement of God: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved, he said: The Jews used to say: O God, send us this Prophet who will judge between us and the people, they used to pray for victory and seek victory through him against the people.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ali al-Azdi, who is al-Barqi, regarding the statement of God, may He be glorified: And before that they used to seek victory, and he mentioned something similar.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated: Yazid narrated: Saeed narrated: Qatada said: And before that they used to pray for victory over those who disbelieved, the Jews used to pray for victory through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, over the disbelieving Arabs before, and they said: O God, send this Prophet whom we find in the Torah to torment and kill them! But when God sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, they saw that he was sent from someone other than them, and they disbelieved in him out of envy of the Arabs, even though they knew that he was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they found him written in their Torah. But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, he said: The Jews used to seek victory through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the polytheists of the Arabs, saying: O God, send this Prophet whose name we find written down with us, so that he may torment and kill the polytheists! But when God sent Muhammad, and they saw that he was not from among them, they disbelieved in him out of envy of the Arabs, even though they knew that he was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. So God said: "But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers."

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: "And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them - although before they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved - but when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it." He said: The Arabs would pass by the Jews and harm them, and they would find Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the Torah, and they would ask God to send him so that they could fight the Arabs with him. But when Muhammad came to them, they disbelieved in him, even though he was not from the Children of Israel.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I said to Ata' about his statement: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved, he said: They used to pray for victory against the disbelievers of the Arabs through the emergence of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they hoped that he would be one of them. But when he emerged and they saw that he was not one of them, they disbelieved, although they knew that he was the truth and that he was the Prophet. He said: "But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers."

He said: Ibn Jurayj told us, and Mujahid said: They begin with Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, saying: He will come out.

So when there came to them what they recognized and it was from others, they disbelieved in it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said, and Ibn Abbas said: They were seeking victory over the infidel Arabs.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told me, on the authority of Abu Al-Juhaf, on the authority of Muslim Al-Batin, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it, he said: They are the Jews, they recognized Muhammad as a prophet and they disbelieved in him.

Al-Munjab narrated that Bishr narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved, he said: They used to pray for victory, saying: We will help Muhammad against them. But they were not like that, they were lying.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I asked Ibn Zayd about the statement of God, the Almighty: "And before, they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved. But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it." He said: The Jews used to pray for victory against the disbelieving Arabs, saying: By God, if the Prophet whom Moses and Jesus had given glad tidings of, Ahmad, had come, we would have victory over you! And they thought that he was from among them, and the Arabs were around them, and they used to pray for victory against them through him, and seek victory through him. But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in him and envied him, and he recited the statement of God, the Almighty: Disbelievers, out of envy from themselves after the truth had become clear to them Al-Baqarah 2:109. He said: It had become clear to them that he was a Messenger, and from there God benefited the Aws and Khazraj with what they had heard from them that a Prophet was coming.

Abu Jaafar said: If someone were to say to us: What is the answer to his statement: And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them?

It was said: The Arab scholars differed in its answer. Some of them said: It is one of those whose answer was left out, sufficing with the knowledge of those addressed by it of its meaning, and with what has been mentioned of its likes in the rest of the Qur'an. The Arabs sometimes do that when the speech is long, so they bring things that have answers, then they omit their answers, because their listeners are satisfied with their knowledge of its meaning without mentioning the answers, as God the Most High said: And if there were a Qur'an by which mountains could be moved, or the earth could be split asunder, or the dead could be made to speak, but to God belongs the command entirely (Ar-Ra'd: 31), so He left out its answer. The meaning is: If there were a Qur'an other than this Qur'an by which mountains could be moved, they would have been moved by this Qur'an, sufficing with the knowledge of the listeners of its meaning. They said: So too is His statement: And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what is with them.

Others said: The answer to his statement: And when there came to them a Book from God is in the fa in his statement: And when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it, and the answer to the two conditions in disbelieved in it, is like your saying: When you stood up, and When you came to us, you did well, meaning: When you came to us, when you stood up, you did well.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: Then the curse of God be upon the disbelievers.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously demonstrated the meaning of curse and the meaning of disbelief sufficiently.

The meaning of the verse is: God's disgrace and His distance from those who deny what they have recognized as the truth of God and His prophets, who deny what has been proven to them as true regarding the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. In God Almighty's telling of the Jews what God told them about them in His saying: But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it, the clear statement is that they deliberately disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, after the proof of his prophethood had been established for them, and God had cut off their excuse that he was His Messenger to them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And when there came to them meaning the Jews. A Book meaning the Qur'an. From God confirming is an attribute of the Book. It is permissible in other than the Qur'an to put it in the accusative case as a state, and that is in the Mushaf of Abi in the accusative case as narrated. When they had with them meaning the Torah and the Gospel informing them of what was in them. And before that they used to ask for victory meaning they used to seek help. And asking for help is seeking help. I asked for help: I asked for help. And in the hadith:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to seek victory through the vagabonds of the emigrants, i.e., he sought victory through their supplications and prayers." And from this is Perhaps God will bring victory or a command from Him. Victory means opening something that is closed, so it goes back to their saying I opened the door. Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Sa'id ibn Abi Waqqas that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

God has given victory to this nation through its weak ones, through their supplications, prayers, and sincerity.

Al-Nisa'i also narrated on the authority of Abu al-Darda' who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

Seek me the weak, for you are provided for and aided only by your weak ones. Ibn Abbas said: The Jews of Khaybar were fighting Ghadhfan, and when they met, the Jews were defeated. The Jews returned with this supplication and said: We ask you by the right of the unlettered Prophet whom you promised us to bring forth for us at the end of time, to grant us aid against them. He said: So whenever they met, they supplicated with this supplication, and Ghadhfan were defeated. When the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was sent, they disbelieved, so God revealed: And before, they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved meaning, through you, O Muhammad, until His saying: So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:89

And when there came to them a Book from Allah confirming what was with them - and before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved - but when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of Allah is upon the disbelievers.

The Almighty's saying: And when there came to them is an answer to lama when they and what follows it in His saying: And when there came to them they did not recognize according to Al-Farra', and the answer to the second lama is they disbelieved. Al-Akhfash Saeed said: The answer to lama is omitted because the listener knows, and Al-Zajjaj said the same.

Al-Mubarrad said: It is an answer to lama in His saying: they disbelieved, and the second lama was repeated because of the length of the speech. This indicates confirmation of the sin and emphasis on it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: And when there came to them, meaning the Jews, a Book from God, which is the Qur'an that was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, confirming what was with them, meaning of the Torah. And His statement, And before that they used to pray for victory over those who disbelieved, meaning that before the coming of this Messenger with this Book, they used to pray for victory over their enemies from the polytheists when they fought them, saying: A prophet will be sent at the end of time, with whom we will kill you as 'Aad and Iram were killed, as Muhammad ibn Ishaq said, on the authority of Asim ibn 'Amr, on the authority of Qatadah al-Ansari, on the authority of some of their elders, he said: By God, this story was revealed about us and them, meaning the Ansar and the Jews who were their neighbors, meaning: "And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them, and before that they used to pray for victory over those who disbelieved. But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it," they said: "We had prevailed over them by force for a long time in the Age of Ignorance, and we are people of polytheism, and they are people of the Book, and they say: A prophet will be sent now." We will follow him, his time has come, so we will kill you with him as the people of Aad and Iram were killed. When God sent His Messenger from Quraysh and we followed him, they disbelieved in him. God the Most High says: "But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers." Ad-Dahhak said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: And before that they used to pray for victory over those who disbelieved, he said: They used to pray for victory, saying: We will help Muhammad against them, but they are not like that, rather they lie. Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubair told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That the Jews used to pray for victory over the Aws and Khazraj through the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before his mission. When God sent him from the Arabs, they disbelieved in him and denied what they used to say about him. So Muadh bin Jabal, Bishr bin Al-Bara' bin Ma'rur, and Dawud bin Salamah said to them: O group of Jews, fear God and submit, for you used to pray for victory over us through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, while we were polytheists, and you used to tell us that he was sent and describe him according to his description. So Salam bin Mishkam, brother of Banu Nadir: He did not bring us anything that we know of. What is it that we used to mention to you? So God revealed regarding that from their saying: And when there came to them a Book from God confirming what was with them the verse. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved meaning: They used to pray for victory through the uprising of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the polytheists of the Arabs, meaning by that the People of the Book. So when Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent and they saw him from among others, they disbelieved in him and envied him. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: The Jews used to pray for victory through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the polytheists of the Arabs, saying: O God, send this Prophet whose name we find written with us so that we may torment the polytheists and kill them. When God sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they saw that he was not from them, they disbelieved in him out of envy of the Arabs, even though they knew that he was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. God the Most High said: "But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers." Qatada said: And before that, they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved. He said: And they used to say: A prophet will come. But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. Mujahid said: "But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it. So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers." He said: They are the Jews.

Fath al-Qadir

89- And when there came to them meaning the Jews a book meaning the Qur'an, and confirming is a description of it, and it is in the Mushaf of Abu Mansur and its accusative is in the state, even though its owner is indefinite, it is specified by its description by his saying: from God and his confirmation of what they have of the Torah and the Gospel, that he informs them of what is in them and confirms it and does not contradict it. And the opening is seeking al-Nasr 110: that is, they used to ask God for victory over their enemies through the described prophet at the end of time whose description they find with them in the Torah, and it was said: The opening here means the conquest: that is, they inform them that he will be sent and they make them know that, and the answer to what is in his saying: And when there came to them a book it was said: it is his saying: So when there came to them what they did not recognize and what follows it, and it was said that it is omitted: that is, they lied or something like it, this is what Al-Akhfash and Al-Zajaj said. Al-Mubarrad said: The answer to the first lama is his saying: they disbelieved. The second lama was repeated due to the length of the speech, and the lam in al-kafireen is for the genus. It is possible that it is for the covenant, and this is from placing the apparent in place of the implicit, and the first is more apparent.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

89. And when there came to them a Book from God meaning the Qur'an confirming in agreement with what they had meaning the Torah and they meaning the Jews before" before the mission of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, "would seek victory seek help against those who disbelieved" against the polytheists of the Arabs, because they used to say when a matter troubled them and an enemy attacked them: O God, grant us victory over them through the Prophet sent at the end of time, whose description we find in the Torah, so they were victorious, and they used to say to their enemies from the polytheists: The time has come when a Prophet will emerge confirming what we have said, so we will kill you with him as we killed Aad and Thamud and Iram." But when there came to them what they recognized" meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, other than the Children of Israel, and they recognized his description and attributes "they disbelieved in him" out of envy and spite. "So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

89- And when there came to them a Book from God meaning the Qur'an confirming what was with them of their Book, and it was read in the accusative case as a state of the Book because it is specific to the description, and the answer to lama is omitted and indicated by the answer to the second lama". "And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved" meaning they used to pray for victory against the polytheists and say: O God, grant us victory through the Prophet of the End of Time described in the Torah. Or they would grant victory to them and inform them that a Prophet would be sent from among them, and his time had drawn near. The "seen" is for emphasis and to indicate that the subject is asking about himself. "So when there came to them what they recognized" of the truth. "They disbelieved in it" out of envy and fear for leadership. "So the curse of God is upon the disbelievers meaning upon them, and the apparent was brought to indicate that they were cursed for their disbelief, so the lam" is for the covenant, and it is permissible for it to be for the genus and they enter into it as a primary entry because the speech is about them.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:90

Evil is that for which they have exchanged their souls - that they should disbelieve in what Allah has revealed, out of envy that Allah should send down of His bounty upon whom He wills of His servants. So they incurred wrath upon wrath, and for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:90

Evil is that for which they have exchanged their souls - that they should disbelieve in what Allah has revealed, out of envy that Allah should send down of His bounty upon whom He wills of His servants. So they incurred wrath upon wrath, and for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

What an evil purchase they have made what they sold for themselves meaning their share of the reward, and what: an indefinite noun meaning something, distinguishing the agent of what an evil thing is and the one specifically blamed that they disbelieve meaning their disbelief in what God has revealed of the Qur'an out of envy is the object for it So that they might disbelieve: that is, out of envy that God should send down with the emphasis and the indefiniteness is for emphasis upon wrath they had deserved before by fabricating the Torah and disbelieving in Jesus. And for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The meaning of the Most High's words: How evil is that for which they have sold their souls is: How evil is that for which they have sold their souls.

The root of ba'isa is ba'isa from ba'us. Its hamza was made quiescent, then its vowel was transferred to the ba', as was said in dhallalta dhallat, and as was said for the liver, kabd, so the vowel of the ba' was transferred to the kaf, because the ba' was made quiescent.

It may be possible that it is ba'isa, even though its root is ba'isa, from the language of those who transfer the vowel of the 'ayn from the verb to the fa', if the 'ayn of the verb is one of the six throat letters, as they said man la'ab "al-'ab" and man sa'ima "is'ima," and this is what is said to be a widespread language in Tamim.

Then it was made an indicator of blame and rebuke, and it was connected to what.

The Arabists differed about the meaning of ma with bi'sma. Some grammarians of Basra said: It alone is a noun, and an yakfiru is an explanation of it, like: Yes, Zayd is a man, and an yanzal God is a substitute for anzal God. Some grammarians of Kufa said: The meaning of that is: Ba'sa is the thing with which they bought themselves that they would disbelieve. As for the noun bi'sa, and an yakfiru is the second noun. He claimed that an yakfiru if you wish, you can put an in the nominative case, and if you wish, in the genitive case. As for the nominative case: Ba'sa is the thing that they do this that they do. As for the genitive case: Ba'sa is the thing with which they bought themselves that they would disbelieve in what God revealed out of envy. He said: His statement Bad is what their souls have put forward for them, that God is angry with them (al-Ma'idah 5:80) is similar to that. The Arabs make what is alone in this chapter, like a complete noun, like his saying: So what an excellent thing it is (al-Baqarah 2:271), and What an evil thing you are. And he cited as evidence for his saying that the rajaz of some rajaz poets:

Do not rush in your journey, for indeed, it is slow and we do not take care of it.

Abu Jaafar said: The Arabs say, How bad is a marriage and no dowry, making what it alone a noun without a connection.

The speaker of this article does not allow that what follows ba'isa is a temporary definite noun, and its predicate is a temporary definite noun. He claimed that ba'isa is like ba'isa al-shay' bih bayhu nasuf the evil thing they bought themselves with. So ma connected to it has become a temporary noun, because ashtarawu is a past tense verb connected to ma, according to the speaker of this article. And if it is connected to a past tense verb, it is a temporary definite noun known, so the interpretation of the statement then becomes: ba'isa bih karhumu their disbelief is ba'isa the evil thing they bought themselves with. And that is not permissible in his opinion. The corruption of this statement has become clear.

Another one of them claimed that an is in the accusative case if you wish, and in the nominative case if you wish. As for the accusative case: you return it to the ha in bih as a repetition of two sentences. It is as if you said: They bought themselves with disbelief. As for the nominative case: it is repeated in the place of ma that follows ba'isa. He said: It is not permissible for it to be in the nominative case as you say: Ba'isa the man Abdullah is.

Some of them said: Bisama is a single thing that raises what comes after it. As it was narrated from the Arabs: Bisama is a marriage and no dowry. So Bisama is raised by Bisama, just as it is said: Bisama Zayd, and Bisama ma Amr, so Bisama is raised, with what came after it from the ha. It is as if you said: Bisama is the thing with which they bought themselves, and an is translated from Bisama.

The first of these sayings is the most correct, the saying of those who made bi'sama raised by the reference of the ha' in his saying: they bought with it, just as they raised it with Abdullah when they said: bi'sama Abdullah, and made an yakfaru a translation of bi'sama. The meaning of the statement then is: what a bad thing the Jews sold themselves for, their disbelief in what God revealed out of envy and jealousy that God would send down from His grace. And an in his saying: an yakfaru bi'an God is in the accusative case. Because he means by it that they disbelieve in what God revealed: in order for God to send down from His grace to whomever He wills of His servants. The position of an is a reward. Some of the Arab scholars from Kufa claimed that an is in the genitive case with the structure of ba. We chose the accusative case for it because the report before it is complete, and there is no preposition with it to lower it. And the preposition does not lower an implied word.

As for his saying: They sold their souls for it, he means by it: They sold their souls, as Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: How evil is that for which they sold their souls, he says: They sold their souls that they should disbelieve in what God has revealed out of envy.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hasan told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Mujahid said: How evil is that for which they have sold themselves, the Jews, they sold the truth with falsehood, and concealed what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought by making it clear.

Abu Jaafar said: The Arabs say: I bought it, meaning I sold it. And they bought, in this case, Come on from I bought. And the speech of the Arabs, as far as we have been informed, is that they say: I bought, meaning I sold, and I bought, meaning I purchased. And it was said: The buyer was called a buyer because he sold himself and his worldly life for his afterlife. And from that is the saying of Yazid bin Mufrij Al-Himyari:

I bought a cold, I wish I had been cold before

And from it is the saying of Al-Musayyab bin Als:

He is given a price for it, but then he refuses it and its owner says: Why don't you buy it?

He means: I sold a cloak. And perhaps I bought is used to mean: I sold, and I bought to mean: I bought. The widespread discussion about them is what I described.

As for the meaning of his saying: out of envy, he means by it: aggression and envy, as Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, out of envy, he said: meaning envy, and they are the Jews.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Ghagya, he said: They were unjust towards Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they envied him, and they said: The messengers were only from the Children of Israel, so what about this one from the Children of Ishmael? So they envied him that God would bestow His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: Out of envy, meaning: out of envy that God would bestow His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants, and they are the Jews. They disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', similarly.

Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of the verse is: What a bad thing they sold their souls for, disbelief in what God revealed in His Book to Moses of the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the command to believe in him and follow him because God revealed from His grace - and His grace is His wisdom, His signs, and His prophethood - to whomever He wills of His servants. He means by it: to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, out of envy and spite for Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, because he was from the descendants of Ishmael, and was not from the Children of Israel.

If someone says: How did the Jews sell themselves for disbelief? It will be said: How evil is that for which they have sold themselves - that they should disbelieve in what God has revealed. Is anything bought for disbelief?

It was said: The meaning of buying and selling among the Arabs is the transfer of one's property to another, in exchange for something he takes from it. Then the Arabs use this for everything that is exchanged for something from his work, whether good or bad. So they say: Yes, what someone sold himself for and Bad is what someone sold himself for, meaning: Yes, the gain he earned, and bad is the gain he earned if he made it inherit good or bad through his efforts. Likewise, the meaning of the words of God, the Most High: Bad is that for which they sold their souls, when they ruined themselves by their disbelief in Muhammad, so they destroyed them. God addressed them and the Arabs with what they know in their speech, so He said: Bad is that for which they sold their souls, meaning by that: Bad is that for which they earned themselves through their efforts, and bad is the exchange they took from their disbelief in God in their denial of Muhammad, since they were satisfied in exchange for the reward of God and what He had prepared for them if they had believed in God and what He had sent down to His prophets with the fire and what He had prepared for them through their disbelief in that.

This verse and what God has told in it about the Jews' envy of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his people from the Arabs, because God made prophethood and wisdom in them and not in the Jews from the Children of Israel, until that led them to disbelieve in him, despite their knowledge of his truthfulness and that he is a prophet sent by God and a messenger sent by Him, is similar to the other verse in Surat An-Nisa', which is His saying: "Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say of those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way.' Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses, you will never find for him a helper. Or do they have a portion of the kingdom? Then they would not give the people even a speck on a date stone. Or do they envy the people for what God has given them of His bounty? But We had already given the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom." (An-Nisa': 51-54)

Surat al-Baqarah 2:90

Evil is that for which they have exchanged their souls - that they should disbelieve in what Allah has revealed, out of envy that Allah should send down of His bounty upon whom He wills of His servants. So they incurred wrath upon wrath, and for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: That God sends down from His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants.

Abu Ja'far said: We have already mentioned the interpretation of that and explained its meaning, but we will mention the narration with the correction of what we said in it: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told me, on the authority of 'Asim ibn 'Umar ibn Qatada al-Ansari, on the authority of elders among them, his statement: In order that God should send down from His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants, meaning that God Almighty made it for others than them.

Bishr told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: They are the Jews. When God sent His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, they disbelieved and thought that he was sent from someone other than them. They disbelieved in him out of envy of the Arabs, even though they knew that he was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. They found him written in their Torah.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, similarly.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', similarly.

Musa told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: They said: The messengers were only from the Children of Israel, so what about this one from the Children of Ishmael?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ali al-Azdi, he said: It was revealed about the Jews.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: So they incurred wrath upon wrath.

Abu Ja'far said: What he meant by his saying: And they incurred wrath upon wrath, is that the Jews of the Children of Israel returned after what they had been upon of seeking victory from Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and seeking his help, and after what they had been telling the people before his mission that he was a prophet sent, turning back on their heels when God sent him as a prophet sent. So they incurred wrath from God, which they deserved from Him by their disbelief in Muhammad when he was sent, and their denial of his prophethood, and their denial that he was the one whose description they find in their book, out of their stubbornness towards him and their envy of him and the Arabs, for a previous wrath that had been from God upon them before that, preceding His second wrath, for their disbelief that was before Jesus, son of Mary, or for their worship of the calf, or for other sins that they had committed in the past, for which they deserved wrath from God, as Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah ibn al-Fadl told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told me, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, as narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: So they incurred wrath upon wrath, so wrath upon wrath, His wrath upon them for what they had wasted of the Torah while it was with them, and His wrath for their disbelief in this prophet whom God had brought to them.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Yahya bin Saeed and Abd al-Rahman told us, they said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Ikrimah: So they incurred wrath upon wrath. He said: Disbelief in Jesus, and disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Abu Kuraib told us, Yahya bin Yaman told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Ikrimah: So they incurred wrath upon wrath, he said: Their disbelief in Jesus and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Ibn Humayd narrated that Jarir narrated on the authority of Mughirah on the authority of Al-Sha'bi who said: People will be divided into four categories on the Day of al-Qiyamah 75: A man who believed in Jesus and believed in Muhammad, may God bless them both, will have two rewards. A man who disbelieved in Jesus and believed in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will have one reward. A man who disbelieved in Jesus and disbelieved in Muhammad, so he incurred wrath upon wrath. A man who was a disbeliever in Jesus from the polytheists of the Arabs, but died in his disbelief before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he incurred wrath.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: So they incurred wrath upon wrath, God's wrath upon them for their disbelief in the Gospel and Jesus, and He was wrath upon them for their disbelief in the Qur'an and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: So they incurred the wrath of the Jews, because of their alteration of the Torah before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out, because of the wrath, because of their denial of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and their disbelief in what he brought.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: So they incurred wrath upon wrath, meaning: God's wrath upon them for their disbelief in the Gospel and Jesus, then His wrath upon them for their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and in the Qur'an.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: So they incurred wrath upon wrath. As for the first wrath, it was when God became angry with them regarding the calf. As for the second wrath, it was when they disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said: Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said: Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Ata' and Ubayd ibn Umair, regarding his statement: And they incurred wrath upon wrath, he said: God's wrath was upon them for what they were in before the Prophet's departure, may God bless him and grant him peace, of their changing and disbelief, then He became angry with them regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he departed, so they disbelieved in him. Abu Ja'far said: We have already explained the meaning of God's wrath upon those of His creation with whom He became angry and the differences of those who differed regarding His description in what has preceded in this book of ours, in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment, is for all people who deny the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, a punishment from God, either in the Hereafter, or in this world and the Hereafter. Humiliating is that which humiliates its owner, disgraces him, and clothes him with humiliation and disgrace.

If someone says: What punishment is not humiliating to its sufferer, so that the unbelievers are humiliated by it?

It was said: The humiliating is that which we have shown is that which causes its owner to be humiliated and disgraced, in which its owner will remain forever, never moving from his humiliation to honor and dignity. It is that which God has made special for the disbelievers in Him and His Messengers. As for that which is not humiliating to its owner, it is that which was a purification for its owner. This is like the thief from the people of Islam, who steals what is required of him for amputation, so his hand is cut off, and the adulterer from them who commits adultery and the prescribed punishment is carried out on him, and what is similar to that of the torment and punishment which God has made as expiations for the sins with which He punished its people, and like the major sinners from the people of Islam who are tormented in the Hereafter according to the extent of the crimes they committed, so that they may be purified from their sins, then they enter Paradise. For all of that, even if it is a torment, it is not humiliating to the one who is tormented with it. For God's torment of him with it was to purify him from his sins, then He brings him to the mine of honor and dignity, and makes him eternal in the bliss of Paradise.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: What an evil thing they have purchased. In the speech of the Arabs, Ba'sa is a complete expression of blame, just as Na'am is a complete expression of praise. And in each of them there are four languages: Ba'sa, Ba'sa, Ba'sa, Na'am, Na'am, Na'am, and the doctrine of Sibawayh is that ma is the agent of Ba'sa, and it is only used with generic and indefinite nouns. And so is Na'am, so you say Na'am al-rajul Zayd, and Na'am rajul Zayd, so if it is accompanied by a noun without an alif and lam, it is always in the accusative case, but if it has an alif and la, it is always in the nominative case. And rajul is in the accusative case as a distinguishing feature. And in Na'am there is an implied word according to the condition of interpretation, and Zayd is in the nominative case in two ways: as a predicate of a deleted subject, as if it was said: Who is the one being praised? I said: He is Zayd, and the other as a subject and what precedes it is its predicate. Abu Ali permitted it to be followed by a relative or non-relative ma, as long as it is vague and applies to a large number and is not specific to one person in particular. The meaning according to Sibawayh is: Basah al-shay' bih ath-thaqqahu yu-kaffaru. "An-an-yakfaru" is in the nominative case as a subject and its predicate is in what precedes it, like your saying: Basah al-rajul Zayd, and ma according to this statement is a relative pronoun. Al-Akhfash said: Ma is in the accusative case as a specification, like your saying: Basah al-rajul Zayd, so the meaning is: Basah al-shay'an ath-thaqqahu yu-kaffaru. So Bah-a-rajul yu-kaffaru according to this statement is an attribute of ma. Al-Farra' said: Basahma as a whole is one thing, like hubbatha. And in this statement there is an objection, because it remains a verb without a subject. Al-Kisa'i said: Ma and ibtiratu are like one noun that stands on its own, and the meaning is: Basah al-shay'u yu-kaffaru. This is rejected, because na'am and ba'as do not enter upon a specific definite noun, and buying has been identified by adding it to the pronoun. An-Nahhas said: The clearest of these sayings is the saying of Al-Akhfash and Sibawayh. Al-Farra' and Al-Kisa'i said: That they disbelieve, if you wish, the an is in the accusative case in response to the ha in bih. Al-Farra' said: That is, they bought themselves by disbelieving in what God has revealed. So bought means sold and purchased, and the meaning is: What a bad thing they have chosen for themselves, since they have exchanged falsehood for truth and disbelief for faith.

God the Almighty said: Baghyan means envy, as Qatada and As-Suddi said, and it is an object of the verb for which, and in reality it is a verbal noun. Al-Asma'i: It is taken from their saying that the wound has become corrupted. It was said: Its origin is the request, and that is why the adulteress was called Baghyan. That God may send down is in the accusative case, meaning that He may send down, meaning for the sake of God sending down favor upon His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Kathir, Abu Amr, Ya'qub, and Ibn Muhaisin read that He may send down in a lightened form, and so is the rest of what is in the Qur'an, except for and what We send down in Al-Hijr, and in Al-An'am that He may send down a verse.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:90

Evil is that for which they have exchanged their souls - that they should disbelieve in what Allah has revealed, out of envy that Allah should send down of His bounty upon whom He wills of His servants. So they incurred wrath upon wrath, and for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment.

God the Almighty said: So they returned meaning they returned, and this is what is said most of the time about evil, and it has been mentioned before. With wrath upon wrath has been mentioned before, meaning God's wrath upon them, which is His punishment. It was said: The first wrath was for their worship of the calf, and the second was for their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. This was said by Ibn Abbas. Ikrimah said: Because they disbelieved in Jesus and then disbelieved in Muhammad, meaning the Jews. Saeed narrated on the authority of Qatadah: The first was for their disbelief in the Gospel, and the second was for their disbelief in the Qur'an. Some people said: Support and severity of the situation upon them, not that He meant two wraths caused by two sins. Humiliating is taken from humiliation, which is what necessitates eternal residence in Hell, unlike the eternal residence of the disobedient Muslims, for that is a test and purification for them, like stoning the adulterer and cutting off the hand of the thief, as will be explained in Surat An-Nisa' from the hadith of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, God willing.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Mujahid said, How evil is that for which they have sold their souls. The Jews bought the truth with falsehood and concealed what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought by making it clear. Al-Suddi said, How evil is that for which they have sold their souls. He said, They sold their souls. He said, "How evil is that for which they were satisfied and turned to it from disbelief in what God revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, instead of believing in him, supporting him, and aiding him. What drove them to do that was transgression, envy, and hatred for "that God should send down from His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants." There is no greater envy than this. Ibn Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Sa'id, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, "How evil is that for which they have sold their souls, that they should disbelieve in what God has revealed, envying that God should send down from His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants." That is, that God made it from other than them. "So they incurred wrath upon wrath." Ibn 'Abbas said, in wrath upon wrath, so He became angry with them for what they had neglected of the Torah, which is With them, and He became angry with their disbelief in this Prophet whom God sent to them I said and the meaning of they deserved is they deserved and deserved and settled with anger upon anger, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: God became angry with them for their disbelief in the Gospel and Jesus, then God became angry with them for their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and in the Qur'an, and from Ikrimah and Qatadah something similar, Al-Suddi said: As for the first anger, it was when He became angry with them regarding the calf, and as for the second anger, He became angry with them when they disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and from Ibn Abbas something similar. And the Almighty said: And for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment. Since their disbelief was caused by oppression and envy, and the origin of that was arrogance, they were met with humiliation and degradation in this world and the hereafter, as the Almighty said: Indeed, those who disdain My worship will enter Hell in humiliation. That is, humiliated, contemptible, abject, and resentful. Imam Ahmad said: Yahya told us, Ibn Ajan told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The arrogant will be gathered on the Day of Resurrection like ants in the form of people, and everything of smallness will rise above them until they enter a prison in Hell called Bolus, and the fire of the fire will rise above them, and they will be given to drink from the mud of corruption, the juice of the people of Hell."

Fath al-Qadir

And in his saying: 90- "B'isama" is a relative or a description: meaning, "B'is a thing or something they bought themselves with" said Sibawayh. Al-Akhfash said: "Ma" is in the accusative case as a specification, like your saying: "B'is a man Zayd". Al-Farra' said: "B'isama in its entirety is one thing that is composed like Habbatha". Al-Kisa'i said: "Ma and they bought" is in the position of one name that stands on its own, and the meaning is: "B'is their buying that they disbelieve". And his saying: "that they disbelieve" is in the nominative case as a subject according to Sibawayh, and its predicate is what precedes it. Al-Farra' and Al-Kisa'i said: If you wish, it was in the genitive case instead of the "ha in bih": meaning, they bought themselves by disbelieving. And he said in Al-Kashshaf: "Ma is an indefinite noun in the accusative case explaining the subject of B'is", meaning something they bought themselves with, and the one specifically blamed is that they disbelieve, and they bought means they sold. His saying: Baghyan means envy. Al-Asma'i said: Baghy is taken from their saying that the wound has become corrupted, and it was said: its origin is the request, and that is why the adulteress was called Baghyan. It is the reason for his saying: they bought and his saying: that He should descend is the reason for his saying: Baghyan meaning that He should descend. The meaning is: they sold themselves for this cheap price out of envy and competition that God should send down from His grace upon whomever He wills of His servants. Ibn Kathir, Abu Amr, Ya'qub, and Ibn Muhaisin read that He should descend with the light vowel. So they returned means they returned and became worthy with wrath upon wrath. The meaning of Baghya and the meaning of wrath have already been mentioned. It was said: the first wrath was for their worship of the calf, and the second was for their disbelief in Muhammad. It was said: their disbelief in Jesus then their disbelief in Muhammad. It was said: their disbelief in Muhammad then the transgression against him. It was said: other than that. Al-Muhin is taken from Al-Hawaan. It was said: it is what necessitates eternity in the Fire.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

90. "How evil is that for which they have exchanged their souls. Ba'isa and Na'am" are two past tense verbs used for praise and blame. They do not act like verbs. Their meaning is: "How evil is that for which they have exchanged falsehood for truth."

It was said: The purchase here means the sale and the meaning is evil what they sold their souls for, that is, when they chose disbelief and they gave themselves to the Fire that they disbelieve in what God has revealed meaning the Qur'an out of envy meaning envy. The root of baghy is corruption. It is said that the wound became corrupted when it became corrupt. Baghy is injustice, and its root is seeking. The aggressor is the one seeking injustice, and the envious oppresses the envied to the best of his ability, seeking to remove the blessing of God the Most High from him. That God may send down from His grace meaning the prophethood and the Book upon whomever He wills of His servants Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The people of Mecca and Basra read yanzil with a light except in Glory be to Him in two places And We send down from the Qur'an 93-Al-Isra' and until He sends down 93-Al-Isra'. Ibn Kathir makes them both heavy. The Basrans made that He may send down a verse 37-Al-An'am heavy. Ya'qub added a heavy by what He sends down in An-Nahl and agreed with Hamza and Al-Kisa'i in making wazil light. 21 And We send it down only in due measure in Al-Hijr. And they returned with wrath means they returned with wrath upon wrath Ibn Abbas and Mujahid said: The first wrath is due to their neglect of the Torah and their alteration, and the second is due to their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Qur'an. Qatada said: The first is due to their disbelief in Jesus and the Gospel, and the second is due to their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Qur'an. Al-Suddi said: The first is due to the worship of the calf and the second is due to disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. And for the disbelievers: those who deny the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from among all people is a humiliating punishment in which they will be humiliated.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

90- "What a miserable thing they have purchased for themselves is an indefinite noun meaning something that distinguishes the subject of the implied bad, and bought" is its description and meaning they sold, or bought according to their assumption, for they assumed that they had saved themselves from punishment by what they did. "That they should disbelieve in what God has revealed is what is specifically blamed out of envy seeking what is not theirs and envy, and this is the reason for that they should disbelieve rather than bought" for the separation. "That God should send down" for sending down, meaning they envied Him for God to send down. Ibn Kathir, Abu Amr, Sahl and Ya'qub read it with a light pronunciation. "From His grace" meaning the revelation. "Upon whomever He wills of His servants" on whom He chose for the message. "So they incurred wrath upon wrath" for disbelief and envy of the one who is the best of creation. It was said: Because of their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, after Jesus, peace be upon him, or after their saying that Ezra was the son of God. And for the disbelievers is a humiliating punishment, meaning their humiliation, unlike the punishment of the sinner, which is a purification of his sins.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:91

And when it is said to them, "Believe in what Allah has revealed," they say, "We believe in what was revealed to us," and they disbelieve in what came after it, although it is the truth confirming what is with them. Say, "Then why did you kill the prophets of Allah before, if you are believers?"

Surat al-Baqarah 2:91

And when it is said to them, Believe in what God has revealed, they say, We believe in what was revealed to us, and they disbelieve in what came after it, although it is the truth confirming what is with them. Say, Then why did you kill the prophets of God before, if you are believers?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(And when it is said to them, Believe in what God has revealed, the Qur'an and other things, they say, We believe in what was revealed to us, meaning the Torah. God Almighty said: (And they disbelieve) the waw is for the state in what is beyond it, other than it or after it of the Qur'an while it is the truth, the state Confirming a second emphatic state (of what is with them. Say) to them Then why did you kill that is, did you kill the prophets of God before, if you were believers in the Torah, in which you were forbidden from killing them, and the address is to those who were present from the time of our Prophet, with what their fathers did because they were pleased with it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: And when it is said to them, and when it is said to the Jews from the Children of Israel who were among the emigrants of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: Believe, meaning believe, in what God has revealed, meaning in what God revealed of the Qur'an to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, they said, 'We believe,' meaning we believe, "in what has been revealed to us, meaning: in the Torah that God revealed to Moses.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they disbelieve in what is beyond it.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: And they disbelieve in what is beyond it, and they deny, what is beyond it, means: what is beyond the Torah.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of behind it in this context is: other than it. Just as it is said to a man who speaks well: There is nothing behind this speech, meaning: the speaker has nothing other than that speech. Likewise the meaning of his statement: And they disbelieve in what is behind it, meaning in what is other than the Torah, and in what came after it of the books of God that He sent down to His Messengers, as Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: And they disbelieve in what is behind it, he says: in what comes after it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And they disbelieve in what comes after it, meaning what comes after it, meaning: what comes after the Torah.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And they disbelieve in what comes after it, he said: in what comes after it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And it is the truth, confirming what is with them.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, And it is the truth, confirming, is: what is beyond the Book that He sent down to them from the Books that God sent down to His true prophets. What He, the Most High, means by that is the Qur'an that He sent down to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as Moses told me, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And when it is said to them, 'Believe in what God has sent down,' they say, 'We believe in what was sent down to us,' and they disbelieve in what came after it, which is the Qur'an. God, the Most High, says, And it is the truth, confirming what is with them. And He, the Most High, said, confirming what is with them, because the Books of God confirm each other. In the Gospel and the Qur'an, there is a command to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to believe in him and what he brought, just as there is in the Torah of Moses, peace be upon him. Therefore, He, the Most High, said to the Jews when He informed them of what was beyond their book that He sent down to Moses, peace be upon him, from the books that He sent down to His prophets: It is the truth confirming the book that is with them, meaning: It is in agreement with what the Jews deny.

He said: This is report from God that they deny the Torah, just as they deny the Gospel and the Criterion, out of defiance of God, in opposition to His command, and in transgression against His Messengers, may God's prayers be upon them.

Say in the interpretation of his saying: "Say: Why then did you kill the prophets of God before, if you were believers?"

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: "Say: Why then do you kill the prophets of God?" Say, O Muhammad, to the Jews of the Children of Israel who, when you say to them: Believe in what God has revealed, they say: We believe in what was revealed to us: Why do you kill, if you, O group of Jews, believe in what God has revealed to you, His prophets, and God has forbidden in the Book that He revealed to you to kill them, rather He has commanded you in it to follow them, obey them, and believe in them? This is from God, the Most High, as a denial of them in His saying: We believe in what was revealed to us, and as a reproach to them, as: Moses told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, he said: God, the Most High, said while reproaching them, meaning the Jews: Why then did you kill the prophets of God before, if you were believers?

If someone says: How was it said to them: Why did you not kill God's prophets before? and the ink began with the wording of the future, then it was reported that it had passed?

It was said: The Arabs differed in their interpretation of that. Some of the Basrans said: The meaning of that is: Why did you kill the prophets of God before, as the Most High said: And they followed what the devils recited (al-Baqarah 2:102), meaning: what they recited, and as the poet said:

The vile man ordered me to insult him, so I left him and said, It does not concern me.

He meant by his saying: And he commanded and I passed by. And he provided evidence that this is the case, by his saying: So I passed by him, and he did not say: So I passed by him. And he claimed that the verb fa'ala and yaf'ulu share one meaning, and he cited as evidence for that the saying of the poet:

I come to you to thank you for what has passed, and to fulfill what will be in the future.

He means by that: what will happen tomorrow, and in the words of Al-Hutay'ah:

Al-Hutay'ah will testify on the day he meets his Lord that Al-Walid is more deserving of an apology.

Meaning: He bears witness, and as the other said:

I do not spend the morning or evening without seeing myself among you in a state of disgrace.

He said: It is morning, then he said: Nor did I spend the evening.

Some Kufi grammarians said: It was said, Why did you kill the prophets of God before? So he addressed them with the future tense of the verb and its past meaning, just as a man rebukes another man for what he did in the past and says to him: Woe to you, why did you lie? And why did you make yourself hated by people? As the poet said:

If we were related, you would not have given birth to me as a mean person and you would not have found it useful to acknowledge it.

The reward is for the future, and the entire birth has already passed. This is because the meaning is known, so it is permissible. He said: And similar to it in speech: If you look at the biography of Omar, you will not find him doing wrong. The meaning is: you will not find him doing wrong. So since there is no doubt that the matter of Omar was past, it did not occur to the mind that it was future. Therefore, it was reconciled with his saying: Why did you kill the prophets of God before? He said: And those who were addressed with killing are not the killers, rather the prophets killed their ancestors who had passed away, so they took them over to that and were satisfied with it, so the killing was attributed to them.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct view in this regard, according to us, is that God addressed those Jews of the Children of Israel who had known the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) as He addressed them in Surat al-Baqarah and other surahs, regarding His previous kindness to their ancestors, and regarding their ancestors' previous ingratitude for His blessings, their commission of sins, and their audacity towards Him and His prophets. He attributed that to those addressed by it, similar to the Arabs saying to one another: We did to you on such and such a day, and you did to us on such and such a day, in a manner that we have explained in more than one place in this book of ours. They mean by that: Our ancestors did that to your ancestors, and our forefathers did that to your forefathers. Likewise in His statement: Why did you kill the prophets of God before? Since it had come out in the form of a report from those addressed by it, a report from God, the Most High, about the action of their predecessors in the manner that we have explained, it was permissible to say before, since its meaning was: Say: Why did your forefathers kill the prophets of God before? It was known that his saying: Why did you not kill God's prophets before? was better than the actions of their predecessors.

The interpretation of his saying before is: before today.

As for his saying: If you are believers, he means: If you are believers in what God has revealed to you as you claim.

Rather, He meant by that the Jews who knew the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and their ancestors, if they and you, as you claim, O Jews, were believers. Rather, God, the Most High, reproached them for killing their forefathers, His prophets, when it was said to them: Believe in what God has revealed. They said: We believe in what was revealed to us. Because they were the ones who killed the prophets of God, along with their saying: We believe in what was revealed to us, taking charge and being pleased with their actions. So He said to them: If you are, as you claim, believers in what was revealed to you, then why did you take charge of the killers of the prophets of God? That is: were you pleased with their actions.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "And when it is said to them, 'Believe in what God has revealed,' they say, 'We believe in what was revealed to us,' and they disbelieve in what came after it, although it is the truth confirming what is with them. Say, 'Then why did you kill God's prophets before, if you were believers?'"

God the Almighty said: "And when it is said to them, 'Believe' meaning, believe 'in what God has revealed' meaning the Qur'an, 'they say, 'We believe' meaning, we believe 'in what was revealed to us' meaning the Torah. 'And they disbelieve in what is beyond it' meaning other than it, according to al-Farra' and Qatada: in what is beyond it, and this is the saying of Abu Ubaidah, and the meaning is the same.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:91

And when it is said to them, "Believe in what Allah has revealed," they say, "We believe in what was revealed to us," and they disbelieve in what came after it, although it is the truth confirming what is with them. Say, "Then why did you kill the prophets of Allah before, if you are believers?"

Al-Jawhari said: 'Behind' means behind, and it may mean in front.' It is one of the opposites. God the Almighty said: 'And behind them was a king' meaning in front of them, and its diminutive is 'Waray'ah' with a 'ha' and it is irregular. 'Wara'ah' is in the accusative case as an adverb. Al-Akhfash said: It is said, 'I met him from behind', so you raise it to the extreme if it is not an adjective, making it a noun when it is not established, like you say, 'from before' and 'from after', and he recited:

If I did not believe in you and I did not meet you except from behind behind

I said: And from it is the saying of Abraham, peace be upon him, in the hadith of intercession:

I was only a friend from behind behind. Behind behind: also the son's son.

The Almighty's saying: "And it is the truth" is subject and predicate. Confirming is a confirmatory state according to Sibawayh. When they are with them is in the accusative case with the preposition lam, and with them is its relative clause, and with them is in the accusative case with stability, and whoever old made it a letter.

God the Almighty said: "Say: Why then did you kill the prophets of God before?" This is a response from God the Almighty to them in their saying that they believed in what was revealed to them, and a denial and rebuke from Him. The meaning is: How did you kill when you were forbidden to do so? The address is to those who were present with Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, and what is meant is their ancestors. The address is to their children, and because they were the guardians of those who were killed, as He said: And if they had believed in God and the Prophet and what was revealed to him, they would not have taken them as allies. So if they took them as allies, then they are in their position. It was said: Because they were pleased with their action, so it was attributed to them. And the word you kill came in the future tense, which means the past tense, when the ambiguity was removed by His saying: before. If there is no ambiguity, then it is permissible for the past tense to mean the future, and the future tense to mean the past.

Al-Hutay'ah said:

Al-Hutai'ah will testify on the day he meets his Lord that Al-Walid is more deserving of an apology.

Shahada means testify. If you are believers meaning if you are believing in faith then why did you accept the killing of the prophets? It was said that in means what, and the root of lam is lam, the alif was deleted to differentiate between the question and the report, and it should not be stopped on because if it is stopped on without a ha' it would be a mistake, and if it is stopped on with a ha' it will be increased in blackness.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: And when it is said to them meaning the Jews and their likes from the People of the Book Believe in what God has revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believe him and follow him they say, 'We believe in what was revealed to us' meaning believing in what was revealed to us of the Torah and the Gospel is sufficient for us and we do not accept anything but that and they disbelieve in what is after it meaning what comes after it and it is the truth confirming what is with them meaning and they know that what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the truth confirming what is with them is in the accusative case as a state, meaning in the state of his believing what is with them of the Torah and the Gospel, so the argument is established against them with that, as God Almighty said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons then God Almighty said: Then why did you kill the prophets of God before, if you were believers meaning if you were truthful in your claim to believe in what was revealed to you, then why did you kill the prophets who came to you with confirmation of the Torah that is in your hands and ruling by it and not abrogating it, and you know Did you believe them? You killed them out of oppression, stubbornness and arrogance towards the Messengers of God. You follow nothing but whims, opinions and desires, as God the Almighty said: So, whenever there came to you a Messenger with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? So a party you denied and a party you killed. Al-Suddi said: In this verse, God the Almighty reproaches them: "Say: Why then did you kill the Prophets of God before, if you were believers?" Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Say, O Muhammad, to the Jews of the Children of Israel, when you say to them, Believe in what God has revealed, they say, We believe in what has been revealed to us. Why did you kill, O group of Jews, if you were believers in what God has revealed? God has forbidden in the Book that He revealed to you, killing them. Rather, He has commanded you to follow them, obey them and believe in them. This is from God as a denial of their saying, We believe in what has been revealed to us, and as a reproach to them. And indeed, Moses came to you with clear proofs, meaning with clear signs and conclusive evidence that he is the Messenger of God and that there is no god but God. The clear signs are: the flood, the locusts, the lice, the frogs, the blood, the staff, the hand, the parting of the sea and their shade with clouds, the manna, the quails, the stone, and other signs that they witnessed. Then you took the calf, i.e., as a deity other than God, in the time of Moses and his days. And His saying: after him, i.e. after he left you to the mountain to commune with God Almighty, as God Almighty said: And the people of Moses took after him from their ornaments a calf, a body that lowed, "and you are wrongdoers," i.e., you are wrongdoers in this action that you did by worshipping the calf, and you know that there is no god but God, as God Almighty said: And when their hands fell and they saw that they had gone astray, they said, 'If our Lord does not have mercy on us and forgive us, we will surely be among the losers.'

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 91- In what God has revealed is the Qur'an, and it was said: every book: meaning they believed in the Qur'an or believed in what God revealed of the books. "They said: We believe" meaning we believe in what was revealed to us meaning the Torah. And His statement: And they disbelieve in what is beyond it Al-Farra' said: in what is other than it. Abu Ubaidah said: in what is beyond it. Al-Jawhari said: Behind means behind, and it may mean in front of them and they are from the opposites. And from it is His statement, the Most High: And behind them was a king meaning in front of them, and this sentence, I mean and they disbelieve, is in the accusative case on the ropes: meaning they said: We believe in what was revealed to us while they were disbelievers in what is beyond it while this that is beyond what they believe in is the truth. His saying: confirming is a confirming state, and these are intertwined states, I mean his saying: and they disbelieve, and his saying: and it is the truth, and his saying: confirming. Then God, the Most High, objected to them when they said: We believe in what was revealed to us, with this sentence that includes a question that serves as a rebuke: that is, if you believe in what was revealed to you, then how do you kill the prophets when you were forbidden from killing them in what was revealed to you? And even if this address was to the Jews who were present, what is meant by it is their ancestors, but since they were satisfied with the actions of their ancestors, they were like them.

meaning the Torah. 'And they disbelieve in what is beyond it.'" is a state of the pronoun in they said, and behind is originally made a circumstance, and is added to the subject, meaning what is hidden by it, which is His creation, and to the object, meaning what is hidden by it, which is in front of Him. Therefore, it is considered one of the opposites. And it is the truth, the pronoun refers to what is beyond it, and what is meant by it is the Qur'an. Confirming what is with them, is a state of emphasis that includes rejecting their statement, for when they disbelieved in what agrees with the Torah, they disbelieved in it. Say, 'Then why did you kill the prophets of God before, if you were believers?' is an objection to them regarding killing the prophets while claiming to believe in the Torah, which does not justify it. Rather, it was attributed to them because it was the action of their fathers, and that they were pleased with it and determined to do it. Nafi' alone read that the report of God is with a hamza throughout the Qur'an.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

91. The Almighty said: And when it is said to them, 'Believe in what God has revealed,' meaning the Qur'an, they say, 'We believe in what was revealed to us,' meaning the Torah, that is sufficient for us, and they disbelieve in what is beyond it, meaning in other books, like the Almighty's saying: But whoever seeks beyond that 7-Al-Mu'minin, meaning other than it. Abu Ubaidah said: [with what is beyond it] meaning in other books, and it is the truth, meaning the Qur'an, confirming is an accusative in the state of what they have of the Torah. Say, to them, O Muhammad, "so why did you kill," meaning did you kill the prophets of God before? "And why": its root is when, so the alif was deleted to differentiate between the accusative and the interrogative, like their saying in what and with what? "if you are believers" in the Torah, and you were forbidden in it from killing the prophets, peace be upon them.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

91- And when it is said to them, 'Believe in what God has revealed,' meaning all the revealed books. "They say, 'We believe in what has been revealed to us,'

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:92

And Moses had certainly come to you with clear proofs, then you took the calf after him while you were wrongdoers.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:92

And Moses had certainly come to you with clear proofs, then you took the calf after him while you were wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And indeed Moses came to you with clear proofs with miracles such as the staff, the hand, and the splitting of the sea then you took the calf as a god after him after he had gone to the appointed time, and you were wrongdoers by taking it

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja`far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: And Moses came to you with clear proofs, is that he came to you with clear proofs indicating his truthfulness and the truth of his prophethood, such as the staff that turned into a clear serpent, and his hand that he brought out white for the onlookers. And the splitting of the sea and turning its land into a dry path for him, and the locusts, the lock, the frogs, and all the other signs that demonstrated his truthfulness and the truth of his prophethood.

God called them clear signs to make clear to those who look at them that they are miracles that no human being can produce except by God's making it possible for him. It is the plural of clear sign, like good and good things.

Abu Jaafar said: The meaning of the statement is: O group of Jews of the Children of Israel, Moses came to you with clear signs of his matter, his truthfulness, and the validity of his prophethood.

And His statement: Then you took the calf after him, while you were wrongdoers, God Almighty says to them: Then you took the calf after Moses as a god. The ha in His statement: after him is from the mention of Moses. And He only said: after Moses, because they took the calf after Moses had departed from them, going to his Lord for his appointment, as we have explained previously in this book of ours.

It is possible that the letter ha in ba'dahu refers to the mention of coming. Then the interpretation of the statement would be: And Moses came to you with clear proofs, then you took the calf after the clear proofs came, and you were wrongdoers. Just as you say: You came to me and I hated it, meaning: I hated your coming.

As for His statement: And you are wrongdoers, what he means by that is: You did what you did of worshipping the calf, and that is not your right, and you worshipped other than the One whom you should have worshipped. Because worship is not appropriate for anyone other than God. This is a rebuke from God to the Jews, a reproach from Him to them, and an announcement from Him that if they did what they did of taking the calf as a god, and He does not possess the power to harm or benefit them, after they knew that their Lord is the Lord who does wonders and wonderful deeds that He performed through the hands of Moses, peace be upon him, of matters that no one from God's creation is capable of, and that Pharaoh and his soldiers were not capable of, despite his brutality and the large number of his followers, and the closeness of their time to what they witnessed of the wonders of God's rule, they are quicker to deny Muhammad, peace be upon him, and to reject what is in their books, in which they claimed to believe, of His description and attributes, despite the distance between them and the time of Moses, and closer to denying what Moses brought them of that.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And Moses came to you with clear signs. The lam is the lam of the oath. And the clear signs are the Almighty's saying: And We gave Moses nine clear signs. They are the staff, the years, the hand, the blood, the flood, the locusts, the lice, the frogs, and the splitting of the sea. It was said: The clear signs are the Torah and what it contains of evidence.

The Almighty's saying: Then you took the calf is a rebuke, and then is more eloquent than and in rebuke, meaning after looking at the verses and bringing them, you took. This indicates that they only did that after a period of time to look at the verses, and that is greater than their crime.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: And when it is said to them meaning the Jews and their likes from the People of the Book Believe in what God has revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believe him and follow him they say, 'We believe in what was revealed to us' meaning believing in what was revealed to us of the Torah and the Gospel is sufficient for us and we do not accept anything but that and they disbelieve in what is after it meaning what comes after it and it is the truth confirming what is with them meaning and they know that what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the truth confirming what is with them is in the accusative case as a state, meaning in the state of his believing what is with them of the Torah and the Gospel, so the argument is established against them with that, as God Almighty said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons then God Almighty said: Then why did you kill the prophets of God before, if you were believers meaning if you were truthful in your claim to believe in what was revealed to you, then why did you kill the prophets who came to you with confirmation of the Torah that is in your hands and ruling by it and not abrogating it, and you know Did you believe them? You killed them out of oppression, stubbornness and arrogance towards the Messengers of God. You follow nothing but whims, opinions and desires, as God the Almighty said: So, whenever there came to you a Messenger with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? So a party you denied and a party you killed. Al-Suddi said: In this verse, God the Almighty reproaches them: "Say: Why then did you kill the Prophets of God before, if you were believers?" Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Say, O Muhammad, to the Jews of the Children of Israel, when you say to them, Believe in what God has revealed, they say, We believe in what has been revealed to us. Why did you kill, O group of Jews, if you were believers in what God has revealed? God has forbidden in the Book that He revealed to you, killing them. Rather, He has commanded you to follow them, obey them and believe in them. This is from God as a denial of their saying, We believe in what has been revealed to us, and as a reproach to them. And indeed, Moses came to you with clear proofs, meaning with clear signs and conclusive evidence that he is the Messenger of God and that there is no god but God. The clear signs are: the flood, the locusts, the lice, the frogs, the blood, the staff, the hand, the parting of the sea and their shade with clouds, the manna, the quails, the stone, and other signs that they witnessed. Then you took the calf, i.e., as a deity other than God, in the time of Moses and his days. And His saying: after him, i.e. after he left you to the mountain to commune with God Almighty, as God Almighty said: And the people of Moses took after him from their ornaments a calf, a body that lowed, "and you are wrongdoers," i.e., you are wrongdoers in this action that you did by worshipping the calf, and you know that there is no god but God, as God Almighty said: And when their hands fell and they saw that they had gone astray, they said, 'If our Lord does not have mercy on us and forgive us, we will surely be among the losers.'

Fath al-Qadir

The lam in His statement: 92- And indeed is an answer to an implied oath. And the clear proofs may be intended to mean the Torah or the nine verses referred to in the statement of God Almighty: And We gave Moses nine clear signs or it may be intended to mean all of them, then you worshipped the calf after considering those clear proofs while you were wrongdoers with this worship that came from you out of stubbornness after the proof was established against you.

Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: And when there came to them a Book from God, confirming, he said: It is the Qur'an, confirming what is with them, of the Torah and the Gospel. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Abu Nu'aym, and Al-Bayhaqi, both of them narrated in Al-Dala'il on the authority of Asim bin Umar bin Qatada Al-Ansari, who said: Our elders told me that none of the Arabs knew more about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, than us, because there were Jews with us and they were People of the Book and we were idolaters. When they heard something they disliked from us, they would say: A Prophet will be sent now and his time has come, so we will follow him and kill you with him as 'Aad and Iram were killed. So when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent, we followed him and they disbelieved in him. So it was about us, by God, and about them that God revealed: And before that they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved. Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Dala'il on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ibn Mas'ud and some of the Companions who said: The Arabs would pass by the Jews and harm them, and they would find Muhammad in the Torah and ask God to send him as a prophet so they could fight the Arabs with him. But when Muhammad came, they disbelieved in him since he was not from the Children of Israel. Something similar to this has been narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas from more than one source with different wordings but similar meanings. Something similar has been narrated on the authority of others from the Salaf. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: How evil is that for which they have sold themselves, he said: They are the Jews who disbelieved in what God revealed and in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, out of envy and spite for the Arabs. So they incurred wrath upon wrath, he said: God became angry with them twice for their disbelief in the Gospel and Jesus, and for their disbelief in the Qur'an and Muhammad. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Out of desire that God should send down meaning that God made him from someone other than them. So they incurred wrath for their disbelief in this prophet upon wrath that was upon them for what they had done to the Torah. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah something similar. He also narrated on the authority of Mujahid its meaning. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu al-Aliyah regarding his statement: And they disbelieve in what comes after it he said: what comes after it. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Suddi who said: what comes after it: meaning the Qur'an.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

92. The Almighty said, And Moses had already come to you with clear proofs, with clear evidence and dazzling miracles, then you took the calf after him, while you were wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

92- And Moses came to you with clear proofs meaning the verses mentioned in the Almighty's saying: And We gave Moses nine clear signs "Then you took the calf meaning as a god after him after Moses came, or went to the mountain and you were wrongdoers" is a state, meaning you took the calf wrongfully by worshipping it, or by neglecting the verses of God Almighty, or an objection meaning and you are a people whose habit is injustice. The context of the verse is also to invalidate their saying "We believe in what was revealed to us" and to draw attention to the fact that their method with the Messenger was the method of their ancestors with Moses, peace be upon them, not to repeat the story and so on after it.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:92

And Moses had certainly come to you with clear proofs, then you took the calf after him while you were wrongdoers.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:93

And when We took your covenant and raised the mount above you, [saying], Take what We have given you with strength and listen. They said, We hear and disobey. And they were made to drink into their hearts the calf because of their disbelief. Say, Evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you, if you are [true] believers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when We took your covenant to act according to what is in the Torah and We raised the mountain above you when you refused to accept it so that it would fall on you and We said Take what We have given you with strength with seriousness and diligence and listen to what you are commanded with acceptance they said, We hear your saying and disobey your command and they made the calf drink into their hearts that is, its love mingled with their hearts as a drink is mixed (because of their disbelief. Say) to them How evil is that what your belief enjoins upon you in the Torah, the worship of the calf if you are believers in it as you claim. The meaning is that you are not believers because belief does not command the worship of the calf, and what is meant is their fathers: that is, so likewise you are not believers in the Torah and you have denied Muhammad, and belief in it does not command the denial of him.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And when We took your covenant, and remember when We took your covenants, that you take what We gave you of the Torah which I revealed to you, that you act according to what is in it of My command, and refrain from what I forbade you in it with diligence and energy from you in that, so you were given your covenant to act according to that, when We raised the rope above you. As for His saying: And listen, its meaning is: And listen to what I have commanded you to do and accept it with obedience, like a man saying to a man commanding him to do something: I hear and obey, meaning by that: I heard your saying, and I obeyed your command, as the rajaz poet said:

Hearing, obedience and submission are better and more beneficial for Banu Tamim

What he means by his saying: Hearing is accepting what is heard and obeying what is commanded. Likewise, the meaning of his saying: And listen is accepting what you hear and acting upon it.

Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of the verse: And when We took your covenant is: Take what We have given you with strength, and act according to what you have heard, and obey God, and We raised the mountain above you for that reason.

As for his saying: They said, 'We have heard,' the speech came out as a report about someone absent after it had begun with an address. This is as we have described, because when the beginning of a speech is a narration, the Arabs address one another and then return to reporting about someone absent, and inform about someone absent and then address one another, as we have explained before. So it is the same in this verse, because his saying: And when We took your covenant, means: We said to you, and you answered us.

As for his saying: They said, 'We hear,' it is report from God about the Jews from whom He took a covenant to act according to what was in the Torah, and to obey God in what they heard from it. They said when that was said to them: We hear your word, and we disobey your command.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they made the calf drink into their hearts because of their disbelief.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that. Some of them said: And they imbibed the love of the calf into their hearts. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And they imbibed the love of the calf into their hearts, he said: They imbibed its love, until it reached their hearts.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And they drank the calf into their hearts, he said: They drank the love of the calf because of their disbelief.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And they imbibed the love of the calf into their hearts, he said: They imbibed the love of the calf into their hearts.

Others said: The meaning of this is that they gave them to drink the water in which the filth of the calf had been scattered. Those who said this mentioned: Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: When Musa returned to his people, he took the calf that he found them devoted to and slaughtered it, then burned it with a fire, then scattered it in the sea, so that there was not a sea that flowed that day except that some of it fell into it. Then Musa said to them: Drink from it. So they drank, and whoever loved it came out drinking gold. That is when God the Almighty says: And they had drunk the calf into their hearts because of their disbelief.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: When he was dragged and thrown into the sea, they faced the flow of water and drank until they filled their stomachs, and that caused those among them to become cowardly because of his actions.

Abu Ja'far said: The first of the two interpretations that I mentioned regarding the statement of God Almighty: And they made the calf drink into their hearts is the interpretation of the one who said: And they made the love of the calf drink into their hearts. Because it is not said of water: So-and-so drank into his heart, but rather that is said of the love of something, so it is said of it: So-and-so's heart drank the love of such-and-such, meaning: he was given that drink until it overcame him and mixed with his heart, as Zuhair said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:93

And when We took your covenant and raised the mount above you, [saying], "Take what We have given you with strength and listen." They said, "We hear and disobey." And they were made to drink into their hearts the calf because of their disbelief. Say, "Evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you, if you are [true] believers."

I woke up from it after an inner love, and love is a disease that your heart drinks

Abu Ja`far said: But he left out mentioning love, contenting himself with the listener understanding the meaning of the words. Since it was known that the calf does not drink the heart, and that which the heart drinks from is its love, as God Almighty said: And ask them about the city that was by the sea (Al-A`raf: 163), And ask the city in which we were and the caravan in which we came (Yusuf 12:82), and as the poet said:

I have been given a pitch black drink, a clear drink, a clear drink

He meant by that: black poison, so he was satisfied with mentioning black instead of mentioning poison, so that the listener would understand the meaning of what he meant by his saying: I gave black poison to drink. It is narrated:

I have given water to a black man who has been drinking

The Arabs may say: If you want to look at generosity, then look at Harim or Hatim. Mentioning the name is sufficient instead of mentioning his action, if he is known for his courage, generosity, or similar qualities. From this is the saying of the poet:

They say: Fight, Jameel, in a raid! And fight against Tayy and its fighting.

Say in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Say, 'Evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you, if you are believers.'

Abu Ja`far said: By that, God, the Most High, means: Say, O Muhammad, to the Jews of the Children of Israel: What a bad thing your faith commands you to do, if it commands you to kill the prophets and messengers of God, to deny His books, and to reject what came from Him. The meaning of their faith is their belief in what they claimed they believed in from the Book of God, when it was said to them: Believe in what God has revealed, and they said: We believe in what has been revealed to us. And His statement: If you are believers, means: If you believe, as you claim, in what God has revealed to you. God only called them liars by that because the Torah forbids all of that and commands the opposite. So He informed them that their belief in the Torah, if it commands them to do that, then what a bad thing it commands. Rather, this is a denial from God Almighty that the Torah commands something that God hates in their actions, and that believing in it indicates something of disobeying God's command, and an announcement from Him, may He be glorified, that what commands them to do this is their desires, and what drives them to it is oppression and aggression.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And when We took your covenant and raised the Mount above you, [saying], 'Take what We have given you with strength and listen.' We have already discussed this. The meaning of listen is obey. It does not mean the command to understand the statement only, but rather what is meant is to act upon what you have heard and adhere to it. From this is their saying: God hears whoever praises Him, meaning He accepts and responds. He said:

I called upon God until I was afraid that God might not hear what I was saying.

That is, he accepts. The rajaz poet said:

Hearing, obedience and submission are better and more beneficial for Banu Tamim.

They said, We heard. There is disagreement as to whether this expression actually came from them verbally, or whether they did an action that took the place of speech, in which case it would be a metaphor, as he said:

The basin was filled and my cotton said, Slow down, you have filled my stomach.

This is an argument against them in their saying: We believe in what was revealed to us.

The Almighty said: And they made the calf drink into their hearts. That is, the love of the calf. The meaning is: their hearts were made to drink it. This is a simile and metaphor expressing the fact that the matter of the calf was firmly established in their hearts. In the hadith:

"Trials are presented to the hearts like a mat, stick by stick. So whichever heart absorbs them, a black dot will be placed on it." Hadith, narrated by Muslim. It is said that his heart is imbued with the love of such-and-such. Zuhair said:

I woke up from it after an inner love, and love is what your heart drinks as a disease

The love of the calf was expressed by drinking rather than eating, because drinking water penetrates the organs until it reaches their interior, while food passes them and does not penetrate them. One of the followers added to this meaning and said about his wife Uthma, who he had rebuked for some matter and divorced her, and he loved her:

Othma's love has penetrated my heart, so his desert walks with the hidden

He penetrated where no drink, no sorrow, and no joy reached.

When I remember the covenant, I almost fly, if only a human could fly.

Al-Suddi and Ibn Jurayj said: Moses, peace be upon him, cooled the calf and scattered it in the water, and said to the Children of Israel: Drink from that water. So they all drank, and whoever loved the calf, gold filings came out on his lips. It was narrated that no one drank it except that he went crazy, as narrated by Al-Qushayri.

I said: As for scattering it in the sea, this is indicated by the Almighty's saying: Then We will scatter it into the sea as a blast. As for drinking the water and the appearance of the coolness on the healing, this is refuted by the Almighty's saying: And they drank into their hearts the calf. And God Almighty knows best.

God Almighty says: "Say: 'Evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you.'" That is, your faith which you claimed in your saying: We believe in what was revealed to us. It was said that this statement is addressed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was commanded to rebuke them, that is, say to them, O Muhammad: Evil are these things which you have done and which your faith enjoins upon you. We have already discussed evil and praise be to God alone.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty enumerates their mistakes, their violation of the covenant, their insolence and their turning away from it, until He lifted the mountain upon them until they accepted it and then violated it. For this reason, They said, 'We hear and disobey.' The explanation of that has already been presented. And they made the calf drink into their hearts because of their disbelief. Abd al-Razzaq said, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatadah. And they made the calf drink into their hearts because of their disbelief. He said, they made its love drink until it reached their hearts. Abu al-Aaliyah and al-Rabi' ibn Anas said the same. Imam Ahmad said: Issam ibn Khalid told us, Abu Bakr ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Maryam al-Ghasani told me, on the authority of Khalid ibn Muhammad al-Thaqafi, on the authority of Bilal ibn Abi al-Darda', on the authority of Abi al-Darda', on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said, Loving something blinds and deafens. Abu Dawud narrated it on the authority of Haywah ibn Shuraih, on the authority of Baqiyah, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Maryam, on his authority. Al-Suddi said: Moses, peace be upon him, took the calf and slaughtered it with a file, then scattered it in The sea, then there was no sea that flowed on that day except that something fell into it, then Moses said to them, drink from it, so they drank, and whoever loved it came out with gold on his drinkers, and that is when God Almighty says: And they drank the calf into their hearts. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abdullah bin Raja' told us, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Ammarah bin Umair and Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Sulami, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: Moses went to the calf, and put the files on it and cooled it with them, and he was on the bank of a river, and no one who worshipped the calf drank from that water except that his face turned yellow like gold, and Saeed bin Jubair said: And they drank the calf into their hearts, he said: When the calf was burned, it cooled and then blew up, so they sipped the water until their faces returned to saffron, and al-Qurtubi narrated from the book of al-Qushayri: that no one who worshipped the calf drank from it except that he went crazy, then al-Qurtubi said: This is something other than what is here, because the intended meaning of this context is that it appeared on their lips and faces, and what is mentioned here is: They had drunk the calf into their hearts, meaning while they were worshipping it. Then he recited the words of Al-Nabigha about his wife, Uthma:

Othma's love has penetrated my heart, so his desert walks with the hidden

He penetrated where no drink, no sorrow, and no joy reached.

When I remember the covenant, I almost fly, if only a human could fly.

And His saying, Say, 'How evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you, if you are believers.' That is, how evil is what you have relied upon in ancient and modern times, from your disbelief in the signs of God, and your opposition to the prophets, then your reliance in your disbelief on Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. This is the greatest of your sins and the most severe matter for you, since you disbelieved in the Seal of the Messengers and Master of the Prophets and Messengers, who was sent to all of mankind. So how can you call for yourselves to believe, when you have committed these ugly deeds: from your breaking of covenants, your disbelief in the signs of God, and your worship of the calf instead of God?

Fath al-Qadir

The interpretation of taking the covenant and raising the mountain has been presented. The command to listen means obedience and acceptance, and it does not mean merely perceiving with the sense of hearing. From this is their saying: God hears whoever praises Him, meaning He accepts and responds. From this is the saying of the poet:

I called upon God until I was afraid that God might not hear what I was saying.

93- We heard is in its proper context and meaning: that is, we heard your words with our sense of hearing and we disobeyed you: that is, we do not accept what you command us to do. It is possible that they intended by their saying: We heard what is known of their playing and using deception in addressing their prophets, and that is by taking the words of God Almighty: Listen to their true meaning, that is, hearing with our senses. Then they answered by saying: We heard meaning we perceived that with our ears in accordance with what you commanded. However, since they knew that this was not what God Almighty intended, rather what He intended by the command to listen was the command to obey and accept, they did not limit themselves to this deception, but rather they added to that what is the answer according to them, so they said: And we disobeyed. And in His saying: And drink is a powerful simile: that is, their hearts were made to be able to love the calf as if they were drinking it. Similar to it is the saying of Zuhair:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:93

And when We took your covenant and raised the mount above you, [saying], "Take what We have given you with strength and listen." They said, "We hear and disobey." And they were made to drink into their hearts the calf because of their disbelief. Say, "Evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you, if you are [true] believers."

I woke up from it after an inner love, and love always drinks from your heart

The love of the calf was expressed by drinking and not eating, because drinking water penetrates the organs until it reaches their interior, while food bypasses them and does not penetrate them. The ba in His statement, because of their disbelief is causal: that is, it was because of their disbelief as a punishment and failure for them. And His statement, Say, 'How evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you' means your faith in which you claimed that you believe in what was revealed to you and disbelieve in what is beyond it. For this action, which is your saying, We hear and disobey, in response to what you were commanded to do in your book and the covenant was taken from you, is a caller to you with the most eloquent call, contrary to what you claimed. Likewise, what you did of worshipping the calf and its love descending from your hearts to the level of drink is one of the greatest indications that you are liars in your statement, We believe in what was revealed to us, not truthful. If you claim that your book in which you believe commands you to do this, then how evil is that which your faith in your book enjoins upon you. And in this there is mockery of them that is not hidden.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

93. And when We took your covenant and raised the Mount above you, [saying], 'Take what We have given you with determination and listen.' That is, respond and obey. Obedience and response are called hearing because of proximity, because it is a cause of obedience and response. "They said, 'We hear' your statement, 'and disobey' your command. It was said: We heard with the ears and disobeyed with the hearts. The people of meaning said: They did not say this with their tongues, but when they heard and received it with disobedience, it was attributed to the statement in an expanded manner. "And they made the calf drink into their hearts because of their disbelief." That is, the love of the calf. That is, its meaning is: The love of the calf entered their hearts and mixed with them, like the infusion of color due to the intensity of the association. It is said: So-and-so is infused with color if his whiteness is mixed with redness. In the al-Qasas 28: Moses ordered that the calf be cooled with a cooler, then thrown into the river, and he ordered them to drink from it. Whoever had any love of the calf left in his heart, the blackness of gold would appear on his drinker.

God Almighty said: "Say: 'How evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you,' that you worship the calf instead of God. That is, how evil is the faith that enjoins upon you the worship of the calf, 'if you are believers,' according to your claim. That is because they said: 'We believe in what was revealed to us,' so God Almighty denied them."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

93- "And when We took your covenant and raised the Mount over you, [saying], 'Take what We have given you with determination and listen.'" That is, We said to them: Take what you have been commanded to do in the Torah with earnestness and listen with obedience. "They said, 'We hear your word and disobey your command.' And they made the calf drink into their hearts." Love for it engulfed them and its image was ingrained in their hearts, due to their intense passion for it, just as dye engulfs a garment and drink ingrains the depths of the body. And in their hearts: a statement of the place of intoxication, as God Almighty says: They only eat fire into their bellies "because of their disbelief" because of their disbelief, and that is because they were anthropomorphists, or incarnates, and they did not see a body more amazing than it, so what the Samaritan suggested to them took root in their hearts. Say, 'Evil is that which your faith enjoins upon you' meaning the Torah, and the specific thing being blamed is omitted, such as this command, or what includes it and other uglinesses of theirs listed in the three verses, obligating them if you are believers is a confirmation of the criticism of their claim to believe in the Torah, and its meaning is if you are believers in it, it did not command you to do these uglinesses, nor does it permit you to do them because of your belief in it, or if you are believers in it, then evil is that which your belief in it enjoins upon you, because the believer should not engage in anything except what his belief requires, but belief in it does not command it, so then you are not believers.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:94

Say, If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you and not for the people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Say to them If the home of the Hereafter is yours meaning Paradise with God exclusively specifically and not the people as you claimed then wish for death if you should be truthful The two conditions are connected to wish for, so that the first is a restriction in the second, meaning that if you are truthful in your claim that it is yours and whoever has it prefers it and the way to it is death, then wish for it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: Say, If the home of the Hereafter is yours, then you will have it exclusively with God. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah who said: The Jews said, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew. So God revealed: Say, If the home of the Hereafter is yours, then you will have it exclusively with God.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This verse is one of the arguments that God used for His Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) against the Jews who were among his immigrants, and He exposed their rabbis and scholars with it. This is because God, the Most High, commanded His Prophet (peace be upon him) to call them to a just cause between him and them, in the dispute that existed between him and them. God also commanded him to call the other group of Christians when they disagreed with him about Jesus (peace be upon him) and argued about him to a decisive contest between him and them. He said to the group of Jews: If you are right, then wish for death, for that will not harm you, if you are right in what you claim of faith and nearness of status to God. Rather, if you are granted your wish of death when you wish, then you will only be at ease from the fatigue, hardship, and trouble of this world, and you will be victorious in the company of God in His Paradise, if the matter is as you claim: that the Hereafter is exclusively for you and not for us. If you do not give it to them, people will know that you are the liars and we are the ones who are right in our claim, and our matter and your matter will be revealed to them. The Jews refused to answer the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because they knew that if they wished for death, they would perish, their worldly life would be lost, and they would be destined for eternal disgrace in the Hereafter. The group of Christians who argued with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about Jesus, when they were called to a Mubahala, also refused to do so. It has reached us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If the Jews wished for death, they would die and see their seats in Hellfire. If those who challenged the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out, they would return without finding family or wealth.

Abu Kuraib told us that Zakariya bin Adi told us that Ubaidullah bin Amr told us, on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Adam told us, he said, Othman bin Ali told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Then wish for death, if you should be truthful, he said: If they wished for death, one of them would choke on his saliva.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Abd al-Karim al-Jazari, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement: Then wish for death, if you should be truthful, Ibn Abbas said: If the Jews wished for death, they would have died.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told me, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, Abu Ja'far said: In what I narrate: He informed us on the authority of Sa'id, or 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: If they had wished for it on the day he said that to them, there would not have remained a Jew on the face of the earth who did not die.

Abu Ja'far said: The lies, slander, and oppression of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were revealed to those who were confused about the matter of the Jews on that day. The argument of the Messenger of God and the argument of his companions against them became clear, and it has not ceased, praise be to God, to be clear against them and against others from among the people of all religions.

The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was ordered to say to them: Wish for death if you are truthful, because, as we have been told, they said: We are the children of God and His beloved ones (al-Ma'idah 5:18), and they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian (al-Baqarah 2:111). So God said to His Prophet Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him): Tell them: If you are truthful in what you claim, then wish for death. God exposed their lie by their refusal to wish for that, and He proved the argument of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him).

The people of interpretation differed about the reason why God ordered His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to call upon the Jews to wish for death, and in what manner they were ordered to wish for it. Some of them said: They were ordered to wish for it as a supplication against the lying group of them. Those who said that were mentioned: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told us, on the authority of Saeed, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: God said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you, to the exclusion of all other people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful," meaning: Call for death against whichever of the two groups is more lying.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:94

Say, "If the home of the Hereafter with Allah is exclusively for you and not for the people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful."

Others said: Bishr ibn Muadh told me, he said: Yazid ibn Zari' told us, he said: Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you and not for the people," that is because they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian (al-Baqarah 2:111) and they said: We are the children of God and His beloved (al-Ma'idah 5:18). So it was said to them: Then wish for death if you are truthful.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, he said: The Jews said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian (al-Baqarah 2:111), and they said: We are the children of God and His beloved (Al-Ma'idah: 18). So God said: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you, to the exclusion of the people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful," but they did not do so.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you" (al-Baqarah 2:111), that is because they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian (al-Baqarah 2:111) and they said: We are the children of God and His beloved (al-Ma'idah 5:18). As for the interpretation of his statement: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you," he is saying: Say, O Muhammad: If the delights and pleasures of the home of the Hereafter are for you, O group of Jews, with God. So he was satisfied with mentioning the home, rather than mentioning its delights, so that those addressed by the verse would know its meaning.

We have previously explained the meaning of the Hereafter, so there is no need to repeat it here.

As for the interpretation of his saying: pure, he means: clear. Just as it is said: So-and-so was pure for me, meaning he became mine alone and a description for me. It is said from it: this thing was pure for me, so it is purely and sincerely, and pure is a source like wellness. And it is said to a man: this is my purity, meaning: my purity from the exclusion of my companions.

It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he interpreted his saying: pure as meaning exclusive. This is an interpretation close to the meaning of the interpretation that we mentioned about that.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, he said, Bishr bin Amara told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Say, 'If the home of the Hereafter is yours,' he said: Say, O Muhammad, to them, meaning the Jews: If the home of the Hereafter is yours,' meaning Paradise, with God exclusively, he said: exclusively for you.

As for his statement: except for the people, what is indicated by the apparent meaning of the revelation is that they said: The Hereafter is for us exclusively with God, apart from all the people. And it is clear that this was their statement without excluding from it any of the children of Adam, as God informed us about them that they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian Al-Baqarah 2:111, except that it was narrated from Ibn Abbas that he said something other than that: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, he said, Bishr bin Ammarah told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: except for the people, he says: apart from Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions whom you mocked, and you claimed that the truth was in your hands, and that the Hereafter was yours, apart from them.

As for his saying: And wish for death, its interpretation is: you desire it and want it. It has been narrated from Ibn Abbas that he said in its interpretation: So ask for death. Wishing is not known to mean asking in the speech of the Arabs. However, I think that Ibn Abbas directed the meaning of wishing, since it was the love and desire of the soul, to the meaning of desire and asking, since the question is the desire of the questioner to God for what he asked of Him.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, he said, Bishr bin Amara told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then wish for death, so ask for death, if you are truthful.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively yours, to the exclusion of all other people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, that God the Almighty says to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively yours and not the people's, then wish for death, if you should be truthful." That is, claim death on the authority of which of the two groups is more lying, so they refused that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers." That is, with their knowledge of what they have of knowledge, and even disbelief in that, and if they had wished for it on the day He said that to them, there would not have remained a Jew on the earth who did not die. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: So wish for death, so ask for death. Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Abd al-Karim al-Jazari on the authority of Ikrimah, his statement: So wish for death, if you should be truthful. He said: Ibn Abbas said: If the Jews wished for death, they would have died. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ali bin Muhammad al-Tanafisi told us, Uthman told us: I heard al-A'mash say: I do not think it was except on the authority of al-Munhal, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: If they wished for death, one of them would choke on his saliva. These are authentic chains of transmission back to Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said in his interpretation: It has reached us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If the Jews wished for death, they would die and see their places in Hell. And if those who challenged the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were to go out, they would return without finding family or wealth." Abu Kurayb told us that, Zakariya bin Adi told us, Ubaydullah bin Amr told us on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Ismail bin Yazid al-Ruqi, Furat told us on the authority of Abdul Karim with it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashir told us, Surur bin al-Mughira told us, on the authority of Ibad bin Mansur, on the authority of al-Hasan, who said: The saying of God: They would not have wished for it because of what their hands have put forth. I said: Have you seen if they loved death when it was said to them, Wish for death, would you think they would have died? He said: No, by God, they would not have died even if they wished for death, and they would not have wished for it, and God said what you heard: "And they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers." This is strange from Al-Hasan. Then this is what Ibn Abbas interpreted the verse with, which is the specific one, and it is a supplication against which of the two groups is more lying, them or the Muslims, in the manner of a mutual cursing. Ibn Jarir transmitted it from Qatadah, Abu Al-Aaliyah, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, may God have mercy on them. Similar to this verse is the statement of God in Surat Al-Jumu'ah: "Say, 'O you who are Jews, if you claim that you are allies of God to the exclusion of mankind, then wish for death, if you should be truthful.' But they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers. Say, 'Indeed, the death from which you flee will surely meet you. Then you will be returned to the Knower of the unseen and the witnessed, and He will inform you of what you used to do.'" So the curses of God are upon them, because they claimed that they are the sons of God. And his beloved ones, they said: None will enter Paradise except those who were Jews or Christians, they were called to the Mubahala and to pray against the most lying of the two groups among them or among the Muslims, when they refrained from that, everyone knew that they were wrongdoers, because if they were certain of what they were doing, they would have gone ahead with that, but when they delayed, their lie was known. This is like the Messenger of God called the delegation of Najran from the Christians after the proof was established against them in the debate and their arrogance and stubbornness to the Mubahala, so he said: "So whoever argues with you about him after what has come to you of knowledge, say: Come, let us call our sons and your sons, our women and your women, ourselves and yourselves, then let us pray together and invoke the curse of God upon the liars." So when they saw that, some of the people said to each other: By God, if you pray together with this Prophet, not a single eye will remain among you that blinks, so at that time they inclined towards peace, and paid the Jizya willingly while they were humiliated, so he imposed it on them, and sent with them Abu Ubaidah ibn al-Jarrah as a trustee, and something similar to this meaning or something close to it is the saying of God Almighty for his Prophet to say to the polytheists, Say, 'Whoever is in error, let the Most Merciful extend to him a term.' That is, whoever is in error among us and you, then God has increased what he is in, extended to him, and led him astray, as will be explained in its place, God willing.

As for those who interpreted the verse to mean if you are truthful, that is, in your claim, then wish for death now, and these people did not resort to the Mubahala, as was decided by a group of theologians and others, and Ibn Jarir leaned towards it after he approached the first statement, for he said: The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you, apart from the people," the verse, this verse is among what God, the Most High, used as evidence for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the Jews who were among his immigrants, and He exposed their rabbis and scholars with it, and that is because God, the Most High, commanded His Prophet to a just case in what was between him and them of disagreement, just as He commanded him to call the other group of Christians when they disagreed with him about Jesus, son of Mary, peace be upon him, and argued with him about him to a decisive Mubahala between him and them, so He said to the group of Jews: If you are right, then wish for death, for that will not harm you if you are right in what you claim of faith and the closeness of status from God to you so that He may grant you your wish of death if you wish, for it is only You will find rest from the fatigue, toil, and hardship of this world and will attain the proximity of God in His gardens if the matter is as you claim, that the Hereafter is exclusively yours and not ours. If you are not given it, people will know that you are the liars and we are the ones who are right in our claim, and our affair and your affair will be revealed to them. So the Jews refused to answer that because they knew that if they wished for death, they would perish and their world would be lost and they would be in eternal disgrace in the Hereafter, just as the group of Christians who argued with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about Jesus refused to answer the Mubahala when they were called to the Mubahala.

This statement is good in the beginning, but its end is questionable, because the proof against them does not appear on this interpretation, as it is said: It does not necessarily follow from their belief that they are truthful in their claim that they wish for death, because there is no necessary connection between the existence of righteousness and wishing for death, and how many righteous people do not wish for death, but rather wish to live long in order to increase in goodness and raise their status in Paradise, as came in the hadith: The best of you is he whose life is long and whose deeds are good. And they have the right to say on this: So here you are, O Muslims, believing that you are the people of Paradise, and you do not wish for death when you are healthy, so how do you hold us accountable for what is not required of you? All of this arose from the interpretation of the verse in this sense. As for the interpretation of Ibn Abbas: None of that is required of him. Rather, it was said to them, "Half-words, if you believe that you are the friends of God without the people, and that you are the sons of God and His beloved, and that you are from the people of Paradise and those other than you are from the people of Hell, then engage in a mutual cursing on that and supplicate against the liars among you or others, and know that the mutual cursing will inevitably eradicate the liar." So when they were certain of that and recognized his truthfulness, they refrained from engaging in a mutual cursing because they knew of their lies, their fabrications, and their concealment of the truth about the description and attributes of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they knew him as they knew their sons and were certain of it. So everyone knew their falsehood, their shame, their misguidance, and their stubbornness. Upon them are the curses of God that continue until the Day of Resurrection. This mutual cursing was called a wish, because every person who is right wishes that God would destroy the one who is wronging him, especially if that was an argument for him in clarifying his truth and making him appear. The mutual cursing was by death because life, according to them, is life. They are very dear to them because they know of their bad end after death, and for this reason God the Almighty said: "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers. And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life" meaning for a long life because they know of their bad end and their losing end with God, because this world is a prison for the believer and a paradise for the disbeliever. They wish they could delay the Hereafter for as much as they can, and what they fear will inevitably happen to them, even though they are more greedy than the polytheists who have no book. This is from the category of linking the specific to the general. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim al-Batin, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And who are those who associate others with God? He said: The non-Arabs. Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak from the hadith of al-Thawri, and he said: It is authentic according to their criteria, but they did not include it. He said: They agreed on the chain of transmission of the interpretation of the Companion, and al-Hasan al-Basri said: And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life. He said: The hypocrite is the most greedy of people, and more greedy than the polytheist for life. One of them would like, that is, one of the Jews would like, as the order of the context indicates. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: One of them would like, that is, one of the Magians, and he goes back to the first, if he could live a thousand years. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Muslim Al-Batin, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: One of them would like to live a thousand years. He said: It is like the saying of the Persian Dah Hazarsal, who says: Ten thousand years. And it was also narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair himself, and Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq told us: I heard my father say: Abu Hamza told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: It is the saying of the Persians, the Hazarsal of Nowruz and the Mahrajan. And Mujahid said, One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: Sin made them love a long life. And Mujahid bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Saeed and Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live a long life, meaning it will not save him from the punishment, because the polytheist does not hope for resurrection after death, so he loves a long life, and the Jew has known what shame he will have in the Hereafter, because he wasted what he had of knowledge. And Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live a long life, he said: They are those who opposed Gabriel. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Ibn Omar said: That will not save him from the punishment, nor will it save him from it. Abdul Rahman bin Zaid bin Aslam said about this verse: The Jews are more eager for life than these people, and these people would like one of them to live a thousand years, but it will not save him from the punishment even if he lives a thousand years, just as the life of Iblis did not benefit him since he was a disbeliever. And God is Seeing of what they do, meaning He is All-Knowing of what His servants do of good and evil, and He will reward every worker according to his work.

Say, "If the home of the Hereafter with Allah is exclusively for you and not for the people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful."

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 94- "Say: If the home of the Hereafter is yours" is a response to them when they claimed that they will enter Paradise and no one else will share in entering it, and an obligation to them with what shows that they are lying in that claim, and that it is issued by them and not from proof, and purely is in the accusative case as a state and it is the predicate of was is with God or it is the predicate of was is purely, and the meaning of purity is that no one else will share in it with them if the lam in His statement: from among the people is for the genus or the Muslims will not share in it with them if the lam is for the covenant. This is more likely for their statement in the other verse:

And they said, 'None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew or a Christian' and He only ordered them to wish for death because whoever believes that he is from the people of Paradise, death is more beloved to him than life, and since that was a mere claim from them, they refrained.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

94. The Almighty said: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter is with God for you" This is because the Jews made false claims such as their saying: The Fire will not touch us except for a few days 80-Al-Baqarah "And they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian" 111-Al-Baqarah and their saying: We are the children of God and His beloved 18-Al-Ma'idah. So God the Almighty denied them and imposed the argument on them and said: Say to them, O Muhammad, If the home of the Hereafter is with God for you meaning Paradise with God purely meaning exclusively from among the people, then wish for death meaning desire it and ask for it because whoever knows that Paradise is his abode longs for it and there is no way to enter it except after death, so hasten it with your wish if you are truthful in your statement, and it was said: then wish for death meaning claim death for the false sect. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If they wished for death, every one of them would choke on his own saliva, and there would not remain a Jew on the face of the earth who did not die.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

94- "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you" specifically for you as you said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew and its accusative is in the state of the home. Outside of the people the rest of them, and the lam is for the genus, or the Muslims and the lam is for the covenant. Then wish for death if you are truthful because whoever is certain that he is from the people of Paradise longs for it, and loves to be freed from the home of impurities, as Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: I do not care whether I fall upon death, or death falls upon me. And Ammar, may God be pleased with him, said at Siffin: Now I will meet the beloved Muhammad and his party. And Hudhayfah, may God be pleased with him, said when he summarized: (A beloved has come in need. He who regrets will not succeed) meaning: on wishing, especially if he knows that it is safe for him and no one else shares it with him.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:95

And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:95

And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth of their disbelief in the Prophet, which entails their lying and God is Knowing of the wrongdoers the disbelievers, so He will punish them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God, the Most High, about the Jews and their hatred of death, and their refusal to respond to what they were called to by wishing for death, because they knew that if they did that, the threat would descend upon them, and death would befall them, and because they knew that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was a messenger from God to them, and they denied him, and that he did not tell them anything except that it was true as he told. So they were wary of wishing for death, fearing that God's punishment would befall them for the sins their hands had committed, like what: Muhammad ibn Humayd told me, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, according to what Abu Ja'far narrates from Sa'id ibn Jubayr or Ikrimah, from Ibn Abbas: Say, 'If the home of the Hereafter is yours' the verse, meaning: Call for death on which of the two groups is more lying. So they refused that regarding the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. God says to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth, meaning: because of their knowledge of what they have of knowledge of You, and their disbelief in that.

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said: Uthman bin Saeed narrated to us, he said: Bishr bin Amara narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they will never wish for it, he said: O Muhammad, they will never wish for it, because they know that they are lying. If they were truthful, they would have wished for it and desired to hasten to My honor, so they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth.

Al-Qasim told me, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Then wish for death, if you should be truthful. The Jews were most afraid of death, and they would never wish for it. As for his statement: for what their hands have put forth, he means by that: for what their hands have put forth. It is only an example, similar to what the Arabs use in their speech, so they say to a man who is taken to task for a crime he committed or a crime he has committed, and is punished for it: This has befallen you for what your hands have wrought, for what your hands have earned, and for what your hands have put forth. So they attribute that to the hand. Perhaps the crime he committed, for which he deserved punishment, was with the tongue, or the private parts, or any other part of his body other than the hand.

Abu Ja'far said: This was said by attributing it to the hand, because the majority of people's crimes are committed by their hands, so the speech was based on attributing the crimes that people commit to their hands, until everything for which a person was punished, which he committed with the rest of his body's parts, was attributed to it being a punishment for what his hand committed.

Therefore, God, the Most High, said to the Arabs: And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. He meant by this: The Jews will never wish for death because of what they put forth in their lives of disbelief in God, in their disobedience to Him in following Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought from God, and they find it written in their Torah, and they know that he is a prophet sent. So God, the Most High, attributed what their hearts concealed, their souls concealed, and their tongues uttered of envy of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and transgression against him, and their denial of him and rejection of his message to their hands, and that it is from what their hands have put forth, because the Arabs knew the meaning of that in their logic and speech. Since God, the Most High, only revealed the Qur'an in their language and dialect. It was narrated from Ibn Abbas in this regard: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, he said, Bishr bin Amara told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Because of what their hands have put forth, he said: Because of what their hands have put forth.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Because of what their hands have put forth, he said: They knew that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was a prophet, but they concealed it.

As for his saying: And God is All-Knowing of the wrongdoers, He, may His praise be glorified, means: God is All-Knowing of the wrongdoing of the children of Adam, their Jews, Christians, and all other people of other religions, and what they do.

The injustice of the Jews: their disbelief in God in their opposition to His command and obedience to Him in following Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, after they had sought his help and his mission, and their denial of his prophethood while they knew that he was God's prophet and messenger to them.

We have already demonstrated the meaning of injustice in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

When the Jews made false claims, God Almighty narrated them in His Book, such as His saying: And they said, 'The Fire will not touch us except for a few days,' and His saying: And they said, 'None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew or a Christian,' and they said: We are the children of God and His beloved. God the Almighty denied them and made them face the proof, saying: Say to them, O Muhammad: If the home of the Hereafter is yours, meaning Paradise, then wish for death, if you are truthful, in your statements, because whoever believes that he is from the people of Paradise, death is more beloved to him than life in this world, because of the bliss of Paradise that he will attain, and the harm of this world will be removed from him. So they refrained from wishing for that out of fear of God for the ugliness of their deeds and their knowledge of their disbelief in their saying: We are the children of God and His beloved, and their eagerness for this world. For this reason, God the Almighty said, informing us with His true statement: "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers," confirming their lie. Also, if they wished for death, they would die, as was narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

If the Jews had wished for death, they would have died and seen their place in Hellfire. It was said that God prevented them from expressing their wish and limited them to holding back so that He would make that a sign for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. So these are three aspects of their abandoning their wish. Ikrimah narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, and they wished for death, that what was meant was that they claimed death for the more lying of the two groups, from us and from you, but they did not pray because they knew of their lie.

If it is said: Wishing is sometimes done with the tongue and sometimes with the heart, so how do we know that they did not wish it in their hearts? It is said to him: The Qur'an speaks about that in its saying: And they will never wish it. If they had wished it in their hearts, they would have expressed it with their tongues in response to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to invalidate his argument, and this is clear.

The Almighty said: Purely is in the accusative case as a predicate of was, and if you wish, it is a state, and it is with God in the position of the predicate. Forever is a time adverb that applies to little and much, like now and time, and here it is from the beginning of life to death. Ma in his saying by what means who, and the pronoun is omitted, and the estimation is that you brought it forward, and it is a source and does not need a pronoun. And their hands is in the position of raising, the damma was omitted from the ya' because of its heaviness with the kasra, even though it is in the position of the accusative of its movement, because the accusative is light, and it is permissible to make it sukoon in poetry. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers is a subject and predicate.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, that God the Almighty says to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively yours and not the people's, then wish for death, if you should be truthful." That is, claim death on the authority of which of the two groups is more lying, so they refused that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers." That is, with their knowledge of what they have of knowledge, and even disbelief in that, and if they had wished for it on the day He said that to them, there would not have remained a Jew on the earth who did not die. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: So wish for death, so ask for death. Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Abd al-Karim al-Jazari on the authority of Ikrimah, his statement: So wish for death, if you should be truthful. He said: Ibn Abbas said: If the Jews wished for death, they would have died. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ali bin Muhammad al-Tanafisi told us, Uthman told us: I heard al-A'mash say: I do not think it was except on the authority of al-Munhal, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: If they wished for death, one of them would choke on his saliva. These are authentic chains of transmission back to Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said in his interpretation: It has reached us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If the Jews wished for death, they would die and see their places in Hell. And if those who challenged the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were to go out, they would return without finding family or wealth." Abu Kurayb told us that, Zakariya bin Adi told us, Ubaydullah bin Amr told us on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Ismail bin Yazid al-Ruqi, Furat told us on the authority of Abdul Karim with it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashir told us, Surur bin al-Mughira told us, on the authority of Ibad bin Mansur, on the authority of al-Hasan, who said: The saying of God: They would not have wished for it because of what their hands have put forth. I said: Have you seen if they loved death when it was said to them, Wish for death, would you think they would have died? He said: No, by God, they would not have died even if they wished for death, and they would not have wished for it, and God said what you heard: "And they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers." This is strange from Al-Hasan. Then this is what Ibn Abbas interpreted the verse with, which is the specific one, and it is a supplication against which of the two groups is more lying, them or the Muslims, in the manner of a mutual cursing. Ibn Jarir transmitted it from Qatadah, Abu Al-Aaliyah, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, may God have mercy on them. Similar to this verse is the statement of God in Surat Al-Jumu'ah: "Say, 'O you who are Jews, if you claim that you are allies of God to the exclusion of mankind, then wish for death, if you should be truthful.' But they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers. Say, 'Indeed, the death from which you flee will surely meet you. Then you will be returned to the Knower of the unseen and the witnessed, and He will inform you of what you used to do.'" So the curses of God are upon them, because they claimed that they are the sons of God. And his beloved ones, they said: None will enter Paradise except those who were Jews or Christians, they were called to the Mubahala and to pray against the most lying of the two groups among them or among the Muslims, when they refrained from that, everyone knew that they were wrongdoers, because if they were certain of what they were doing, they would have gone ahead with that, but when they delayed, their lie was known. This is like the Messenger of God called the delegation of Najran from the Christians after the proof was established against them in the debate and their arrogance and stubbornness to the Mubahala, so he said: "So whoever argues with you about him after what has come to you of knowledge, say: Come, let us call our sons and your sons, our women and your women, ourselves and yourselves, then let us pray together and invoke the curse of God upon the liars." So when they saw that, some of the people said to each other: By God, if you pray together with this Prophet, not a single eye will remain among you that blinks, so at that time they inclined towards peace, and paid the Jizya willingly while they were humiliated, so he imposed it on them, and sent with them Abu Ubaidah ibn al-Jarrah as a trustee, and something similar to this meaning or something close to it is the saying of God Almighty For his Prophet to say to the polytheists, Say, 'Whoever is in error, let the Most Merciful extend to him a term.' That is, whoever is in error among us and you, then God has increased what he is in, extended to him, and led him astray, as will be explained in its place, God willing.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:95

And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers.

As for those who interpreted the verse to mean if you are truthful, that is, in your claim, then wish for death now, and these people did not resort to the Mubahala, as was decided by a group of theologians and others, and Ibn Jarir leaned towards it after he approached the first statement, for he said: The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you, apart from the people," the verse, this verse is among what God, the Most High, used as evidence for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the Jews who were among his immigrants, and He exposed their rabbis and scholars with it, and that is because God, the Most High, commanded His Prophet to a just case in what was between him and them of disagreement, just as He commanded him to call the other group of Christians when they disagreed with him about Jesus, son of Mary, peace be upon him, and argued with him about him to a decisive Mubahala between him and them, so He said to the group of Jews: If you are right, then wish for death, for that will not harm you if you are right in what you claim of faith and the closeness of status from God to you so that He may grant you your wish of death if you wish, for it is only You will find rest from the fatigue, toil, and hardship of this world and will attain the proximity of God in His gardens if the matter is as you claim, that the Hereafter is exclusively yours and not ours. If you are not given it, people will know that you are the liars and we are the ones who are right in our claim, and our affair and your affair will be revealed to them. So the Jews refused to answer that because they knew that if they wished for death, they would perish and their world would be lost and they would be in eternal disgrace in the Hereafter, just as the group of Christians who argued with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about Jesus refused to answer the Mubahala when they were called to the Mubahala.

This statement is good in the beginning, but its end is questionable, because the proof against them does not appear on this interpretation, as it is said: It does not necessarily follow from their belief that they are truthful in their claim that they wish for death, because there is no necessary connection between the existence of righteousness and wishing for death, and how many righteous people do not wish for death, but rather wish to live long in order to increase in goodness and raise their status in Paradise, as came in the hadith: The best of you is he whose life is long and whose deeds are good. And they have the right to say on this: So here you are, O Muslims, believing that you are the people of Paradise, and you do not wish for death when you are healthy, so how do you hold us accountable for what is not required of you? All of this arose from the interpretation of the verse in this sense. As for the interpretation of Ibn Abbas: None of that is required of him. Rather, it was said to them, "Half-words, if you believe that you are the friends of God without the people, and that you are the sons of God and His beloved, and that you are from the people of Paradise and those other than you are from the people of Hell, then engage in a mutual cursing on that and supplicate against the liars among you or others, and know that the mutual cursing will inevitably eradicate the liar." So when they were certain of that and recognized his truthfulness, they refrained from engaging in a mutual cursing because they knew of their lies, their fabrications, and their concealment of the truth about the description and attributes of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they knew him as they knew their sons and were certain of it. So everyone knew their falsehood, their shame, their misguidance, and their stubbornness. Upon them are the curses of God that continue until the Day of Resurrection. This mutual cursing was called a wish, because every person who is right wishes that God would destroy the one who is wronging him, especially if that was an argument for him in clarifying his truth and making him appear. The mutual cursing was by death because life, according to them, is life. They are very dear to them because they know of their bad end after death, and for this reason God the Almighty said: "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers. And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life" meaning for a long life because they know of their bad end and their losing end with God, because this world is a prison for the believer and a paradise for the disbeliever. They wish they could delay the Hereafter for as much as they can, and what they fear will inevitably happen to them, even though they are more greedy than the polytheists who have no book. This is from the category of linking the specific to the general. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim al-Batin, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And who are those who associate others with God? He said: The non-Arabs. Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak from the hadith of al-Thawri, and he said: It is authentic according to their criteria, but they did not include it. He said: They agreed on the chain of transmission of the interpretation of the Companion, and al-Hasan al-Basri said: And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life. He said: The hypocrite is the most greedy of people, and more greedy than the polytheist for life. One of them would like, that is, one of the Jews would like, as the order of the context indicates. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: One of them would like, that is, one of the Magians, and he goes back to the first, if he could live a thousand years. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Muslim Al-Batin, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: One of them would like to live a thousand years. He said: It is like the saying of the Persian Dah Hazarsal, who says: Ten thousand years. And it was also narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair himself, and Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq told us: I heard my father say: Abu Hamza told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: It is the saying of the Persians, the Hazarsal of Nowruz and the Mahrajan. And Mujahid said, One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: Sin made them love a long life. And Mujahid bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live a long life, meaning it will not save him from the punishment, because the polytheist does not hope for resurrection after death, so he loves a long life, and the Jew has known what shame he will have in the Hereafter, because he wasted what he had of knowledge. And Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live a long life, he said: They are those who opposed Gabriel. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Ibn Omar said: That will not save him from the punishment, nor will it save him from it. Abdul Rahman bin Zaid bin Aslam said about this verse: The Jews are more eager for life than these people, and these people would like one of them to live a thousand years, but it will not save him from the punishment even if he lives a thousand years, just as the life of Iblis did not benefit him since he was a disbeliever. And God is Seeing of what they do, meaning He is All-Knowing of what His servants do of good and evil, and He will reward every worker according to his work.

Fath al-Qadir

That is why the Almighty said: 95- And they will never wish for it. And what is in His saying: Because of what their hands have put forth is a relative pronoun and the pronoun is omitted: that is, because of what they have put forth of sins, the doer of which is not safe from punishment, and is not even hopeful of entering Paradise, let alone being certain of it, let alone it being purely for him and specific to him. And it was said: God the Almighty turned them away from wishing in order to make that a sign for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. What is meant by wishing here is: uttering what indicates it, not just its occurrence in the heart and the soul's inclination towards it, because that is not intended in the context of argument, situations of dispute, and situations of challenge. Their abandonment of wishing or their turning away from it is a miracle for the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, because they used to behave arrogantly and boldly towards God and His prophets with false claims in situations other than what the revelation has narrated about them. They did not abandon their habit here except because it was established for them that if they did that wish, death would befall them, either for a matter they knew, or because of a turning away from God, the Almighty. It may be said: It is proven that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was forbidden from wishing for death, so how could God command him to command them with what is forbidden in His law? The answer is that what is meant here is to oblige them with the argument and establish the proof of the invalidity of their claim. His statement, And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers is a threat to them and a record against them that they are like that.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

95. God Almighty said: And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth because they know that they are lying in their claim. He meant because of what their hands have put forth meaning what they have put forth of deeds, and he attributed it to the hand [and not to the rest of the limbs] because most of the crimes of a person are committed by the hand, so his deeds are attributed to the hand even if the hand has no work in them. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

95- And they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth of the causes of Hellfire, such as disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Qur'an, and distorting

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:95

And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers.

the Torah. And since the working hand is specific to man, a tool for his ability through which he performs all his deeds and most of his benefits, he used it to refer to the soul sometimes and to ability at other times, and this sentence is information about the unseen and it was as he reported, because if they wished, it would have been transmitted and become famous, for wishing is not an act of the heart to be hidden, rather it is to say: I wish for such and such, and if it were in the heart, they would have said: We wished. And from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, if they wished for death, every person would choke on his saliva and die on the spot, and no Jew would remain on the face of the earth. "And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers" is a threat to them and a warning that they are wrongdoers in claiming what is not theirs, and denying it from those who do.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:96

And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life, even more than those who associate others with God. One of them would like to be granted a life of a thousand years, but that will not remove him from the punishment. And God is Seeing of what they do.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And you will surely find them I am of oath the most eager of people for life and more eager than those who associate others with God those who deny the resurrection for it because they know that their destiny is the Fire, unlike the polytheists because of their denial of it wishing wishes one of them could live a thousand years law is a source meaning that and it and its connection are in the interpretation of a source of the object of wishes but it is not any of them that it will remove him distance him from the punishment of the Fire that he should live a long life the subject of muzazaha meaning that he will live a long life and God is Seeing of what they do with ya and ta, so He will reward them. Ibn Suriya asked the Prophet or Umar about the angel who brings the revelation, so he said Gabriel, so he said he is our enemy who brings the punishment, and if it were Michael we would have believed because he brings fertility and peace, so it was revealed:

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life is the Jews.

He says: O Muhammad, you will find that the people who are most eager for life in this world, and most averse to death, are the Jews. As: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told me, on the authority of Muhammad ibn

Abu Muhammad, as narrated by Abu Jaafar on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life, meaning the Jews.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, Al-Rabi' told us, on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life, meaning the Jews.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similarly.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Their hatred of death is due to their knowledge of the shame and long-term humiliation that awaits them in the Hereafter.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And among those who associate others with God.

Abu Ja'far said: What God, the Most High, meant by His statement, and among those who associate others with God, is more eager for life than those who associate others with God, just as it is said, He is the bravest of people and from Antarah means: He is braver than people and from Antarah. So too is His statement, and among those who associate others with God, because the meaning of the statement is: You will find, O Muhammad, the Jews among the Children of Israel, more eager for life than those who associate others with God. So when more eager was added to people, and there is an interpretation of from, it was made clear after the conjunction, in response to the interpretation we mentioned.

God, the Most High, described the Jews as the people who are most eager for life, because they know what has been prepared for them in the Hereafter despite their disbelief in what the polytheists do not acknowledge. They are more averse to death than the polytheists who do not believe in the Resurrection, because they believe in the Resurrection and know what torment they will suffer there. The polytheists do not believe in the Resurrection or the punishment, so the Jews are more eager for life and more averse to death than them.

It was said: Those who associate partners with God, the Most High, who said that the Jews are more eager for life than them in this verse, are the Magians who do not believe in resurrection. It was mentioned that those who said: They are the Magians: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, And among those who associate partners with God, one of them would like to live a thousand years, meaning the Magians.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And among those who associate others with God, one of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: The Magians.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And among those who associate others with God, he said: Jews, more eager for life than these.

Mention of those who said: They are those who deny the al-Qiyamah 75: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin

Abu Muhammad, as narrated by Abu Ja'far on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, or 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life, even more so than those who associate others with God. This is because the polytheist does not hope for resurrection after death, for he loves a long life, and the Jew has known what shame he will have in the afterlife, because of what he has wasted of the knowledge he had.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's

Surat al-Baqarah 2:96

And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life, even more than those who associate others with God. One of them would like to be granted a life of a thousand years, but that will not remove him from the punishment. And God is Seeing of what they do.

saying: One of them would wish that he could live a thousand years.

Abu Jaafar said: This is report from God, the Most High, about those who associate others with God, who informed us that the Jews were more eager for life than them. God, the Most High, says: One of these polytheists, who are hopeless, with the passing of his world and the end of his life, would wish to have a resurrection or a life or joy or happiness after that, if only he could live a thousand years, until some of them made the greeting of others: ten thousand years, out of their eagerness for life, as: Muhammad bin Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq told us, he heard my father Ali, Abu Hamza told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: One of them would wish only to live a thousand years, he said: It is the saying of the Persians: Sal Zah Nowruz is a free festival.

And it was narrated on the authority of Naim al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ata' ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: One of them would like to live a thousand years. He said: It is what the polytheists say to one another when they sneeze: Zah Hazar sal.

Ibrahim bin Saeed and Yaqoub bin Ibrahim told us: Ismail bin Aliyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: Sin was made to be beloved to them for a long life.

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ali bin Ma'bad told me, on the authority of Ibn Ulayyah, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, regarding his statement: One of them would like, and he mentioned something similar.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life, until he reached even if he were to live a thousand years, the Jews, were more greedy than these for life, and these would have liked for one of them to live a thousand years.

And he narrated on the authority of Abu Muawiyah, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: It is the statement of one of them when he sneezes and sneezes, he says: Ten thousand years.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long, and living long, which is a long life, will not remove him from the punishment of God.

His saying he is a pillar, because what the noun is more requested than the verb, as the poet said:

Is it raised by what is here the head?

The an in an ya'mur is a nominative, with muzahzaha, and the huwa with ma is a repetition, a pillar of the verb, because the Arabs find the indefinite before the definite.

Some of them said: He with what is a metaphor for mentioning lifespan. It is as if he said: One of them would like to live a thousand years, but that lifespan will not relieve him of the torment. He made that he may live a translation of He, meaning that lifespan will not relieve him of it.

Some of them said: His saying: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long, is similar to your saying: Zaid will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long.

Abu Jaafar said: The closest of these sayings to the truth in our view is what we have said, which is that he is a pillar, similar to your saying Amr is not standing.

Some of the people of interpretation said that the an in His statement: that he lives means: and that he lives. This is a statement that contradicts the meanings of the well-known speech of the Arabs. Those who said this were: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he lives, he said: and that he lives.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similarly.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: That he lives long, even if he lives long.

As for the interpretation of his saying: by moving him, it is by distancing him and turning him away, as Al-Hutay'ah said:

They said: Move away, we have no need of you, and none of us can mend it.

He means by his saying: he moved away, he distanced himself. It is said: he moved away from you, he moves away, he moved away, and he is far away from you, meaning: he distanced himself.

The interpretation of the verse is that a long life will not remove him from the punishment of God, nor will it spare him from it, because life must come to an end and will return to God, as Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told me, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, as I narrate on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, or on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long, meaning: it will not spare him from the punishment.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told me, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long, meaning: Even if he lives long, that will not relieve him from the punishment nor save him.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similarly.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: One of them would like to live a thousand years, but that would not remove him from the punishment. They are the ones who visited Gabriel, peace be upon him.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: One of them would like to live a thousand years, but that would not save him from the punishment. The Jews are more eager for life than these people. These people would like to live a thousand years, but that would not save him from the punishment. If he lived as long as Iblis lived, that would not benefit him, since he was a disbeliever, and that would not save him from the punishment.

The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: And God is Seeing of what they do.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His statement: And God is Seeing of what they do, is that God is the One who sees what they do. Nothing of their deeds is hidden from Him. Rather, He encompasses all of them, and He is the Preserver and Rememberer of them, until He makes them taste the punishment for them as recompense for them.

The root of Basir is Mubsir from the saying: I saw, so I am Mubasir, but it was changed to Fa'il, just as Musma' was changed to Sami', "Adhab Mu'alim" to Aleem, "Mubdi' Al-Samawat" to Badi', and so on.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life meaning the Jews. And more greedy than those who associate others with God It was said: The meaning is and more greedy, so and more greedy than those who associate others with God was omitted because of their knowledge of their sins and that there is no good for them with God, and the polytheists of the Arabs do not know anything but this life and have no knowledge of the Hereafter. Do you not see the saying of their poet:

Enjoy the world, for you will perish from the pleasures and beautiful women.

The pronoun in one of them in this statement refers to the Jews. It was said that the speech was about life, then the story was resumed about a group of polytheists. It was said that they are the Magians, and that is clear in their supplications for someone who sneezes in their languages, which means live a thousand years. The thousand was mentioned specifically because it is the end of the decade in the calculation. Al-Hasan believed that those who associated others with God are the polytheists of the Arabs, and they were singled out for that because they do not believe in resurrection, and they wish for a long life. The root of sannah is sanah. It was said that it is sanwah. It was said that there is an inversion in the speech, and the meaning is that you will find them and a group of those who associated others with God the most eager for life.

The Almighty said: One of them would wish that he could live a thousand years. The root of yud is yuddud and it was assimilated so as not to combine two letters of the same type with vowels, and the vowel of the dal was changed to the waw, to indicate that he does something. Al-Kisa'i narrated: I wished, so according to this it is permissible to say yudd with a kasra on the waw. The meaning of yudd is: to wish.

The Almighty said: And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live long. Grammarians differed about he. Some said: It is the pronoun of the one who preceded, the meaning is that one of them will not be removed, and the predicate of the beginning is in the accusative. That he should live long is the subject of muhazzah. A group said: It is the pronoun of al-ta'mir, and the meaning is al-ta'mir will not be removed, and the predicate is in the accusative, that he should live long is a substitute for al-ta'mir according to this statement. Al-Tabari narrated from a group that they said: It is a pillar.

I said: There is some distance in it, because the right of the pillar is to be between two related things, like his saying: If this is the truth, and his saying: But they were the wrongdoers, and the like. It was said: Ma is a Hijazi verb, and it is its name, and the predicate is in bi-muzahzahu. A group said: It is the pronoun of the matter and the affair. Ibn Atiyyah: There is some distance in it, because what is preserved from grammarians is that it is interpreted by a sentence free of a preposition. And his saying: bi-muzahzahu, zahatha means distancing and moving away. It is said: I moved him away, meaning I distanced him, so he moved away, meaning he moved away and distanced himself. It can be intransitive and transitive. The poet said about the aggressor:

O Taker of the soul from a dying soul and Forgiver of sin, save me from the Fire.

And Dhu al-Rumma recited:

O He who takes the soul from a body that has disobeyed for a long time and forgives sins, save me from the Fire.

Another said in the necessary:

My friend, why does the darkness not move and why does the light of dawn not become clear?

Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

Whoever fasts one day for the sake of God, God will remove his face from the Fire for a distance of seventy years.

God the Almighty said: And God is Seeing of what they do. That is, what these people do, one of whom would like to live a thousand years. Whoever reads it with the letter ta', then the meaning is: Say to them, O

Surat al-Baqarah 2:96

And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life, even more than those who associate others with God. One of them would like to be granted a life of a thousand years, but that will not remove him from the punishment. And God is Seeing of what they do.

Muhammad: God is Seeing of what you do. The scholars said: God the Almighty described Himself as Seeing in the sense that He is All-Knowing of the hidden aspects of things. And the All-Knowing in the speech of the Arabs is the one who knows something and is an expert in it. From this is their saying: So-and-so is All-Knowing in medicine, and All-Knowing in jurisprudence, and All-Knowing in meeting men. He said:

If you ask me about women, I am a doctor who specializes in women's diseases.

Al-Khattabi said: Al-Basir is the All-Knowing, and Al-Basir is the One who sees. It was said: God Almighty described Himself as Al-Basir in the sense of making visible things with sight, meaning perceiving visible things through what He created for them of perceiving tools and power. So God is Al-Basir of His servants, meaning He makes His servants sighted.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, that God the Almighty says to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively yours and not the people's, then wish for death, if you should be truthful." That is, claim death on the authority of which of the two groups is more lying, so they refused that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers." That is, with their knowledge of what they have of knowledge, and even disbelief in that, and if they had wished for it on the day He said that to them, there would not have remained a Jew on the earth who did not die. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: So wish for death, so ask for death. Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Abd al-Karim al-Jazari on the authority of Ikrimah, his statement: So wish for death, if you should be truthful. He said: Ibn Abbas said: If the Jews wished for death, they would have died. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ali bin Muhammad al-Tanafisi told us, Uthman told us: I heard al-A' mash say: I do not think it was except on the authority of al-Munhal, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: If they wished for death, one of them would choke on his saliva. These are authentic chains of transmission back to Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said in his interpretation: It has reached us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If the Jews wished for death, they would die and see their places in Hell. And if those who challenged the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were to go out, they would return without finding family or wealth." Abu Kurayb told us that, Zakariya bin Adi told us, Ubaydullah bin Amr told us on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Ismail bin Yazid al-Ruqi, Furat told us on the authority of Abdul Karim with it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashar told us, Surur bin al-Mughira told us, on the authority of Ibad bin Mansur, on the authority of al-Hasan, who said: The saying of God: They would not have wished for it because of what their hands have put forth. I said: Have you seen if they loved death when it was said to them, Wish for death, would you think they would have died? He said: No, by God, they would not have died even if they wished for death, and they would not have wished for it, and God said what you heard: "And they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers." This is strange from Al-Hasan. Then this is what Ibn Abbas interpreted the verse with, which is the specific one, and it is a supplication against which of the two groups is more lying, them or the Muslims, in the manner of a mutual cursing. Ibn Jarir transmitted it from Qatadah, Abu Al-Aaliyah, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, may God have mercy on them. Similar to this verse is the statement of God in Surat Al-Jumu'ah: "Say, 'O you who are Jews, if you claim that you are allies of God to the exclusion of mankind, then wish for death, if you should be truthful.' But they will never wish for it because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers. Say, 'Indeed, the death from which you flee will surely meet you. Then you will be returned to the Knower of the unseen and the witnessed, and He will inform you of what you used to do.'" So the curses of God are upon them, because they claimed that they are the sons of God. And his beloved ones, they said: None will enter Paradise except those who were Jews or Christians, they were called to the Mubahala and to pray against the most lying of the two groups among them or among the Muslims, when they refrained from that, everyone knew that they were wrongdoers, because if they were certain of what they were doing, they would have gone ahead with that, but when they delayed, their lie was known. This is like the Messenger of God called the delegation of Najran from the Christians after the proof was established against them in the debate and their arrogance and stubbornness to the Mubahala, so he said: "So whoever argues with you about him after what has come to you of knowledge, say: Come, let us call our sons and your sons, our women and your women, ourselves and yourselves, then let us pray together and invoke the curse of God upon the liars." So when they saw that, some of the people said to each other: By God, if you pray together with this Prophet, not a single eye will remain among you that blinks, so at that time they inclined towards peace, and paid the Jizya willingly while they were humiliated, so he imposed it on them, and sent with them Abu Ubaidah ibn al-Jarrah as a trustee, and something similar to this meaning or something close to it is the saying of God

Almighty For his Prophet to say to the polytheists, Say, 'Whoever is in error, let the Most Merciful extend to him a term.' That is, whoever is in error among us and you, then God has increased what he is in, extended to him, and led him astray, as will be explained in its place, God willing.

As for those who interpreted the verse to mean if you are truthful, that is, in your claim, then wish for death now, and these people did not resort to the Mubahala, as was decided by a group of theologians and others, and Ibn Jarir leaned towards it after he approached the first statement, for he said: The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter with God is exclusively for you, apart from the people," the verse, this verse is among what God, the Most High, used as evidence for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the Jews who were among his immigrants, and He exposed their rabbis and scholars with it, and that is because God, the Most High, commanded His Prophet to a just case in what was between him and them of disagreement, just as He commanded him to call the other group of Christians when they disagreed with him about Jesus, son of Mary, peace be upon him, and argued with him about him to a decisive Mubahala between him and them, so He said to the group of Jews: If you are right, then wish for death, for that will not harm you if you are right in what you claim of faith and the closeness of status from God to you so that He may grant you your wish of death if you wish, for it is only You will find rest from the fatigue, toil, and hardship of this world and will attain the proximity of God in His gardens if the matter is as you claim, that the Hereafter is exclusively yours and not ours. If you are not given it, people will know that you are the liars and we are the ones who are right in our claim, and our affair and your affair will be revealed to them. So the Jews refused to answer that because they knew that if they wished for death, they would perish and their world would be lost and they would be in eternal disgrace in the Hereafter, just as the group of Christians who argued with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about Jesus refused to answer the Mubahala when they were called to the Mubahala.

This statement is good in the beginning, but its end is questionable, because the proof against them does not appear on this interpretation, as it is said: It does not necessarily follow from their belief that they are truthful in their claim that they wish for death, because there is no necessary connection between the existence of righteousness and wishing for death, and how many righteous people do not wish for death, but rather wish to live long in order to increase in goodness and raise their status in Paradise, as came in the hadith: The best of you is he whose life is long and whose deeds are good. And they have the right to say on this: So here you are, O Muslims, believing that you are the people of Paradise, and you do not wish for death when you are healthy, so how do you hold us accountable for what is not required of you? All of this arose from the interpretation of the verse in this sense. As for the interpretation of Ibn Abbas: None of that is required of him. Rather, it was said to them, "Half-words, if you believe that you are the friends of God without the people, and that you are the sons of God and His beloved, and that you are from the people of Paradise and those other than you are from the people of Hell, then engage in a mutual cursing on that and supplicate against the liars among you or others, and know that the mutual cursing will inevitably eradicate the liar." So when they were certain of that and recognized his truthfulness, they refrained from engaging in a mutual cursing because they knew of their lies, their fabrications, and their concealment of the truth about the description and attributes of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they knew him as they knew their sons and were certain of it. So everyone knew their falsehood, their shame, their misguidance, and their stubbornness. Upon them are the curses of God that continue until the Day of Resurrection. This mutual cursing was called a wish, because every person who is right wishes that God would destroy the one who is wronging him, especially if that was an argument for him in clarifying his truth and making him appear. The mutual cursing was by death because life, according to them, is life. They are very dear to them because they know of their bad end after death, and for this reason God the Almighty said: "And they will never wish for it, because of what their hands have put forth. And God is Knowing of the wrongdoers. And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life" meaning for a long life because they know of their bad end and their losing end with God, because this world is a prison for the believer and a paradise for the disbeliever. They wish they could delay the Hereafter for as much as they can, and what they fear will inevitably happen to them, even though they are more greedy than the polytheists who have no book. This is from the category of linking the specific to the general. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim al-Batin, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And who are those who associate others with God? He said: The non-Arabs. Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak from the hadith of al-Thawri, and he said: It is authentic according to their criteria, but they did not include it. He said: They agreed on the chain of transmission of the interpretation of the Companion, and al-Hasan al-Basri said: And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life. He said: The hypocrite is the most greedy of people, and more greedy than the polytheist for life. One of them would like, that is, one of the Jews would like, as the order of the context indicates. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: One of them would like, that is, one of the Magians, and he goes back to the first, if he could live a thousand years. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Muslim Al-Batin, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: One of them would like to live a thousand years. He said: It is like the saying of the Persian Dah Hazarsal, who says: Ten thousand years. And it was also narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair himself, and Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq told us: I heard my father say: Abu Hamza told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: It is the saying of the Persians, the Hazarsal of Nowruz and the Mahrajan. And Mujahid said, One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: Sin made them love a long life. And Mujahid bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live a long life, meaning it will not save him from the punishment, because the polytheist does not hope for resurrection after death, so he loves a long life, and the Jew has known what shame he will have in the Hereafter, because he wasted what he had of knowledge. And Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And it will not remove him from the punishment that he should live a long life, he said: They are those who opposed Gabriel. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Ibn Omar said: That will not save him from the punishment, nor will it save him from it. Abdul Rahman bin Zaid bin Aslam said about this verse: The Jews are more eager for life than these people, and these people would like one of them to live a thousand years, but it will not save him from the punishment even if he lives a thousand years, just as the life of Iblis did not benefit him since he was a disbeliever. And God is Seeing of what they do, meaning He is All-Knowing of what His servants do of good and evil, and He will reward every worker according to his work.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:96

And you will surely find them the most greedy of people for life, even more than those who associate others with God. One of them would like to be granted a life of a thousand years, but that will not remove him from the punishment. And God is Seeing of what they do.

Fath al-Qadir

The lam in his saying: 96- And you will find them is the answer to an omitted oath, and the indefiniteness of life is for disparagement: that is, they are the most eager of people for the most insignificant life and the shortest stay in this world, so how about a long life and a long stay? And he said in Al-Kashshaf: He meant by the indefiniteness a specific life, which is the long life, and Al-Razi followed him in that in his interpretation. And his saying: And among those who associate others with God it was said: It is a new statement, and the meaning is: And among those who associate others with God are people one of whom would like and it was said: It is conjoined with al-Nas 114:that is, the most eager of people and more eager than those who associate others, and based on this his saying: one of whom would like refers back to the Jews to clarify their increased eagerness for life, and the reason for mentioning those who associate others with God after mentioning the people despite them being included among them is to indicate the increased eagerness of the polytheists among the Arabs and those similar to them from others. So whoever was more eager than them, and they are the Jews, was extremely eager to an extent that cannot be measured. They reached this level of greed that is superior to that of the polytheists, because they know what punishment will befall them in the Hereafter, unlike the polytheists of the Arabs and others like them, who do not acknowledge that, and their greed for life was less than that of the Jews. Although the first is a departure from the discussion of the Jews to other polytheists of the Arabs, it is more preferable because it does not entail any obligation, and there is no harm in digressing to mention the greed of the polytheists after mentioning the greed of the Jews. Al-Razi said: The second is more preferable because it is more effective in invalidating their claim and revealing their lie in their saying that the Hereafter is for us and not for others. The answer to this is that what made it preferable was indicated in the Almighty's saying: And you will find them the most greedy of people. Resuming the discussion of the polytheists does not entail that they are not among the people, and the letter alif was mentioned specifically because the Arabs used to mention that when wanting to exaggerate. The root of sunnah is sanahah, and it was said: sanwah. There is a difference of opinion regarding the pronoun in his statement: And it is not a thing that will move him away, so it was said that it refers to one of them, and the meaning is: And not one of them will move him away from the punishment that he will live long, and on this basis his statement: that he will live long is the subject of move him away, and it was said: It is for what is indicated by live long from its source: that is, and life long longevity will not move him, and his statement: that he will live long would be a substitute for it. Al-Tabari narrated from a group that they said: It is a pillar, and it was said: It is the pronoun of the matter, and it was said: What is Hijazi and the pronoun is its subject and what follows it is its predicate and the first is more correct, and likewise the second and third are very weak because the pillar only occurs between two things, and for this reason they call it the pronoun of separation, and the fourth in it is that the pronoun of the matter is interpreted by a sentence free from a preposition as Ibn Atiyah narrated from the grammarians. And moving away is moving away, it is said: I moved him away so he moved away and distanced himself, and from this is the saying of Dhu al-Rummah:

O He who takes the soul from a body that has disobeyed for a long time and forgives sins, save me from the Fire.

Al-Basir: the one who knows something and is an expert in it. From this comes their saying: So-and-so is an expert in such-and-such: meaning he is an expert in it. From this comes the saying of the poet:

If you ask me about women, I am a doctor who specializes in women's diseases.

Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: And they made the calf drink into their hearts, he said: They made its love reach their hearts. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah that when the Jews said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, the verse was revealed, the verse: "Say: If the home of the Hereafter is for you," the verse was revealed. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Qatada. Al-Bayhaqi narrated in al-Dala'il on the authority of Ibn Abbas that his statement: Purely for you, apart from the people, means the believers, so wish for death, so the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said to them: "If you are truthful in what you say, then say: O God, cause us to die, for by the One in Whose hand is my soul, no man among you says it except that he chokes on his saliva and dies on the spot." Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: So wish for death, meaning they claimed death for whichever of the two groups was more lying, but they refused. If they had wished for it on the day he said that, there would not have remained a Jew on earth who did not die. And Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Abu Nu'aym narrated on his authority that he said: If the Jews wished for death, they would die. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on his authority. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on his authority that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: If the Jews wished for death, they would die and see their seats in the Fire. Ibn Abi Hatim and al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on his authority regarding his statement: And you will find them the most greedy of people for life, he said: the Jews. And even more than those who associate others with God, he said: that is because the polytheists do not hope for resurrection after death, so a long life is required, and the Jew has realised his shame because he wasted the knowledge he had. And it will not remove him, he said: by giving him something. Saeed ibn Mansur, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and al-Hakim narrated on his authority regarding his statement: One of them would like to live a thousand years, he said: it is the saying of the non-Arabs when one of them sneezes, He will be resurrected, meaning live a thousand years.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

96. And you will find them The lam is the lam of the oath and the nun is an emphasis on the oath, meaning: By God, you will find them, O Muhammad, meaning the Jews, the most greedy of people for life and of those who associate others with God. It was said: It is connected to the first, and more greedy than those who associate others with God. It was said: Then the speech with his saying for life then he began of those who associate others with God and he meant by those who associate others with God the Magians. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' said that they were called polytheists because they spoke of light and darkness.

He would like wants and wishes that one of them would live a thousand years meaning to live a thousand years, which is the greeting of the Magians among themselves, they say live a thousand years and every thousand is Newroz and a festival, God Almighty says: The Jews are more eager for life than the Magians who say that and it will not remove him distance him from the torment from the Fire that he should live a long life meaning his long life will not save him. [Zahzahu wa zahzah] from torment or zahzah: intransitive and transitive, and it is said zahzahu fa zahzah and God is Seeing of what they do.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

96- And you will find them the most greedy of people for life from the one who finds with his mind running the course of knowledge, and its objects are they and the most greedy of people, and the indefiniteness of life because it is intended by it an individual of its individuals, which is: the prolonged life: and it was read with the lam. And of those who associate others with God is carried on the meaning as if he said: more greedy of people for life than those who associate others with God. And mentioning it individually is for emphasis, for if you are very greedy since they did not know anything but the immediate life, and the increase in rebuke and reprimand, then when their greed increased - and they acknowledge the punishment on the greed of the deniers - this indicates their knowledge that they are going to the Fire, and it is permissible that it is intended and more greedy than those who associate others with God, so greed was deleted because the first indicates it, and that it is the predicate of a deleted subject whose description is one of them would like on the basis that what is intended by those who associate others with God is the Jews because they said: Ezra is the son of God, meaning: and among them are people one of whom would like, and it is for the first two a statement of the increase of their greed in the manner of resumption. If he were to live a thousand years is a story of their friendship. If means if only and its original form was if he were to live a thousand years, so it was made in the third person because of his saying he would like, like your saying he swore by God that they would do so. And it is not to remove him from the punishment that he live a thousand years is the pronoun referring to one of them, and that he live a thousand years is the subject of that he live a thousand years, meaning that none of them can remove him from the punishment by his living a thousand years, or because of what he indicates. That he live a thousand years is a substitute for it. Or from them, and that he live a thousand years is its explanation. The original form of sanah is sanwah because of their saying sanawat. It was said sanah like jibnah because of their saying sanahtuhu and sanahat an-nakhlah if the years come upon it, and zahzah means distancing. And God is Seeing of what they do so He will reward them.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:97

Say, "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of Allah, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

Surat al-Baqarah 2:97

Say, Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of God, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Say to them Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel let him die of rage for indeed he has brought it down that is, the Qur'an upon your heart by permission by the command of God, confirming what was before it before it of the books and guidance from misguidance and good tidings of Paradise for the believers

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, the verse K Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Anas who said: Abdullah bin Salam heard the arrival of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was in a land collecting dung. He came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I will ask you about three things that only a prophet knows: What is the first sign of the Hour? What is the first food of the people of Paradise? And what causes a child to be drawn to his father or his mother? He said: Gabriel told me about them just now. Gabriel said: Yes. He said: That is the enemy of the Jews from among the angels. Then he recited this verse: Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, for he has brought it down upon your heart. Sheikh al-Islam Ibn Hajar said in Fath al-Bari: The apparent context is that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited the verse in response to the Jews, and that does not necessarily mean that it was revealed at that time. He said: This is the reliable one, for there is a story other than the story of Abdullah bin Salam that has been authenticated about the reason for the revelation of the verse. Ahmad, al-Tirmidhi, and al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Bakr bin Shihab on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Jews came to the Messenger of God and said: O Abu al-Qasim, we will ask you about five things. He informed us of them, and we knew that you are a prophet. So he mentioned the hadith, and in it they asked him about what Israel had forbidden himself, and about the sign of the prophet, and about thunder and its voice, and how a woman is mentioned in the masculine and feminine, and about the one who brings him report from heaven until they said, then tell us who is your companion? He said, Gabriel. They said, Gabriel, that one descends with war, fighting, and torment, our enemy. If you had said, Michael, who descends with mercy, plants, and rain, it would have been better. So it was revealed.

And Ishaq bin Rahawayh narrated in his Musnad and Ibn Jarir on the authority of Al-Sha'bi that Omar used to come to the Jews and hear from the Torah and wonder how they could believe what was in the Qur'an. He said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by them and I said: I ask you by God, do you know that he is the Messenger of God? Their scholar said: Yes, we know that he is the Messenger of God. I said: Then why don't you follow him? They said: We asked him who would bring him his prophethood. He said: Our enemy is Gabriel, because he descends with harshness, severity, war and destruction. I said: Who is your messenger from the angels? They said: Michael, who descends with rain and mercy. I said: What is their status with their Lord? They said: One of them is on His right and the other is on the other side. I said: It is not permissible for Gabriel to be hostile to Michael, and it is not permissible for Michael to be at peace with the enemy of Gabriel. I bear witness that they and their Lord are at peace with whoever...

Then I came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I wanted to inform him. When I met him, he said, Shall I not inform you of the verses that were revealed to me? I said, Yes, O Messenger of God. So he recited, Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel until he reached the unbelievers. I said, O Messenger of God, by God, I did not leave the Jews except to come to you to inform you of what they said to me and what I said to them, but I found that God had preceded me. Its chain of transmission is sound up to Al-Sha'bi, but he did not meet Umar. It was narrated by Ibn Abi Shubayh and Ibn Abi Hatim through another chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Sha'bi. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir through Al-Suddi through Umar and through Qatadah through Umar, and they are also disconnected.

K and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from another chain of transmission on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila that a Jew met Umar ibn al-Khattab and said: Gabriel, who your companion mentions, is an enemy to us. Umar said: Whoever is an enemy of God, His angels, His messengers, Gabriel, and Michael, then God is his enemy. So it was revealed on the tongue of Umar. These chains of transmission strengthen each other. Ibn Jarir transmitted the consensus that the reason for the revelation of the verse was that.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: All scholars of interpretation agreed that this verse was revealed in response to the Jews of the Children of Israel, when they claimed that Gabriel was their enemy and that Michael was their friend. Then they differed about the reason for which they said that. Some of them said: The reason for their saying that was because of a debate that took place between them and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the matter of his prophethood. Those who said that were mentioned:

Abu Kuraib narrated that Yunus ibn Bakir narrated from Abd al-Hamid ibn Bahram from Shahr ibn Hawshab from Ibn Abbas that he said: "A group of Jews attended the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Abu al-Qasim, tell us about some characteristics that we ask you about, which only a prophet knows. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Ask whatever you wish, but give me the covenant of God and what Jacob took from his sons. If I tell you something and you understand it, you will follow me in Islam. They said: That is yours. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Ask me whatever you wish. They said: Tell us about four characteristics that we will ask you about. Tell us, what food did Israel forbid himself before the Torah was revealed? Tell us about the woman's water and the man's water? How is the male and female from it? Tell us about this illiterate prophet in a dream and who is his guardian from the angels? The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: You have the covenant of God. If I tell you, you will follow me, so give him whatever he wants of a covenant and a pact. He said: I ask you by the One who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that Israel fell seriously ill and his illness lasted a long time, so he made a vow that if God cured him of his illness he would deprive himself of the food and drink he loved the most, and the food he loved the most was camel meat. Abu Ja'far said: As I relate, and the drink he loved the most was camel milk? They said: By God, yes. The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) said: I call God to witness over you and I ask you by God, there is no god but Him, who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that the man's semen is thick and white, and the woman's semen is yellow and thin, so whichever of them rises above will have the child and resemblance, by God's permission? So if the man's semen rises above the woman's semen, the child will be a boy, by God's permission, and if the woman's semen rises above the man's semen, the child will be a girl, by God's permission? They said: By God, yes. He said: By God, I bear witness. He said: I ask you by the One who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that the eyes of this unlettered prophet sleep but his heart does not? They said: Yes, by God. He said: O God, bear witness. They said: Now you are speaking to us from your guardian from among the angels. Then we will either follow you or leave you. He said: My guardian is Gabriel, and God never sent a prophet except that he was his guardian. They said: Then we will leave you. If your guardian were other than him from among the angels, we would follow you and believe you. He said: What prevents you from believing him? They said: He is our enemy. Then God the Almighty revealed: "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, it has brought the Qur'an down to your heart by God's permission" until His saying: As if they did not know. Then they incurred wrath upon wrath.

Ibn Hamid narrated to us, Salamah narrated to us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq narrated to me, Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi al-Husayn, meaning al-Makki, narrated to me, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab al-Ash'ari: "A group of Jews came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Muhammad, tell us about four things that we ask you about, and if you do so, we will follow you and believe you and have faith in you. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: You have the covenant and pledge of God upon you regarding that. If I tell you about that, will you believe me? They said: Yes. He said: Ask whatever you wish. They said: Tell us how the child resembles his mother, and the sperm is from the man? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I ask you by God and by His days among the Children of Israel, do you know that the sperm of the man is white and thick, and the sperm of the woman is yellow and thin, so whichever of them is higher than the other will resemble it? They said: Yes. They said: Then tell us how you sleep? He said: I ask you by God and by His days among the Children of Israel, do you know that the eyes of this unlettered Prophet sleep but he does not sleep. His heart? They said: Yes, by God. He said: O God, bear witness. They said: Tell us what food did Israel forbid himself before the Torah was revealed? He said: Do you know that the food and drink he loved most were camel milk and meat, and that he complained of a complaint and God cured him of it, so he forbade the food and drink he loved most out of gratitude to God, so he forbade himself camel meat and milk? They said: Yes, by God. They said: Tell us about the spirit. He said: I ask you by God and by His days with the Children of Israel, do you know that it is Gabriel, and he is the one who comes to me? They said: Yes, but he is an enemy, and he is an angel who only brings hardship and bloodshed, and were it not for that we would have followed you. God revealed about them: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought the Qur'an down to your heart" until His saying: As if they do not know.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza narrated to me: "The Jews asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Who is the companion to whom the revelation comes down? He said: Gabriel. They said: He is our enemy, and he only comes with war, hardship, and fighting." Then the verse was revealed: Who is an enemy to Gabriel? Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: The Jews said: O Muhammad, Gabriel only comes down with hardship and war. They said: He is our enemy. Then the verse was revealed: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?

Others said: Rather, the reason for their saying that was due to a debate that took place between Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, and them, regarding the matter of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Those who said that mentioned:

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna narrated to me, saying: Rib'i ibn Ulayyah narrated to us, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, who said: 'Umar came down to al-Rawha' and saw men rushing towards stones to pray to them. He said: Who are these? They said: They claim that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed here. He disliked that and said: What? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was overtaken by prayer in a valley, so he prayed, then he departed and left him. Then he began to talk to them, saying: I used to witness the Jews during their school day and I was amazed at the Torah and how it confirmed the Criterion, and at the Criterion and how it confirmed the Torah. While I was with them one day, they said: O Ibn al-Khattab, none of your companions is more beloved to us than you. I said: Why is that? They said: You visit us and come to us. I said: I come to you and I am amazed at the Criterion and how it confirmed the Torah, and at the Torah and how it confirmed the Criterion.' He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by and they said: O Ibn al-Khattab, that is your companion, so join him. He said: Then I said to them: I ask you by God, there is no god but Him, and by what He has entrusted to you of His right and what He has entrusted to you of His Book, do you know that he is the Messenger of God? He said: They were silent. He said: Their most knowledgeable and prominent person said: He has become too much for you, so answer him. They said: You are our most knowledgeable and our master, so answer him. He said: Since you have asked us about him, we know that he is the Messenger of God. He said: I said: Woe to you, if you perish? They said: We are not perished. He said: I said: How is that, when you know that he is the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and you do not follow him or believe him? They said: We have an enemy from the angels and peace from the angels, and our enemy from the angels has been paired with him. He said: I said: Who is your enemy? And who is your peace? They said: Our enemy is Gabriel, and we are peaceable with Michael. He said: I said: Why did you make an enemy of Gabriel? And why did you make peace with Michael? They said: Gabriel is the angel of harshness, severity, hardship, severity, torment, and the like, and Michael is the angel of compassion, mercy, alleviation, and the like. I said: What is their status with their Lord? They said: One of them is on His right and the other is on His left. I said: By God, besides Whom there is no god, they and the One between them are enemies to those who are enemies to them, and at peace to those who are at peace with them. It is not appropriate for Gabriel to be at peace with the enemy of Michael, nor for Michael to be at peace with the enemy of Gabriel. I then got up and followed the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, and I caught up with him as he was leaving a gathering place for the Banu so-and-so. He said to me: O Ibn al-Khattab, shall I not recite to you the verses that have been revealed? So he recited to me: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart, by God's permission, confirming what was before it" until he recited the verses. I said: My father and mother be sacrificed for you, O Messenger of God, by the One Who sent you with the truth. I have come wanting to tell you the report, but I hear the Kind, the All-Knowing, has preceded me to you with the report.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:97

Say, "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of Allah, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said, Umar said: I was a man who used to visit the Jews on the day of their school, then he mentioned something similar to the hadith of Rubai.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid bin Zari' narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, who said: It was mentioned to us that one day Umar bin Al-Khattab went to the Jews, and when they saw him, they welcomed him. Umar said to them: By God, I have not come for your love or desire, but I have come to hear from you. So he asked them and they asked him, and they said: Who is the companion of your companion? He said to them: Gabriel. They said: That is our enemy from the people of heaven, he reveals our secret to Muhammad, and when he comes, he brings war and oppression, but the companion of our companion is Michael, and when he comes, he brings fertility and peace. Umar said to them: Do you recognize Gabriel and do not recognize Muhammad? Then Umar left them and went towards the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to tell him their story, and he found that this verse had been revealed to him: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought the Qur'an down upon your heart by God's permission."

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: It reached us that Umar ibn al-Khattab turned to the Jews one day, and he mentioned something similar.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, he said: The Jews said: Gabriel is our enemy, because he descends with hardship, war, and famine, and Michael descends with ease, health, and fertility, so Gabriel is our enemy. So God Almighty said: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Say, 'Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down to your heart by God's permission, confirming what was before it.' He said: Umar bin Al-Khattab had land in the upper part of Medina, and he used to visit it. His passage was on the road to the schools of the Jews, and whenever he entered upon them, he heard them. And one day he entered upon them and they said: O Umar, there is no one among the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, more beloved to us than you. They pass by us and harm us, and you pass by us and do not harm us, and we have hope in you. So Umar said to them: Which oath among you is the greatest? They said: The Most Gracious Who sent down the Torah to Moses at Mount Sinai. So Umar said to them: I ask you by the Most Gracious Who sent down the Torah to Moses at Mount Sinai, do you find Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, with you? They remained silent. He said: Speak, what is the matter with you? By God, I did not ask you while I was in doubt about anything in my religion. They looked at each other, and one of them stood up and said: Tell the man, either you tell him or I will tell him.

They said: Yes, we find it written with us, but his companion from the angels who brings him the revelation is Gabriel, and Gabriel is our enemy, and he is the owner of every punishment, fighting, or sinking. If his guardian were Michael, then we would have believed in him, for Michael is the owner of every mercy and every rain. So Omar said to them: I ask you by the Most Merciful, who sent down the Torah to Moses on Mount Sinai, where is Gabriel's place in relation to God? They said: Gabriel is on his right, and Michael is on his left. Omar said: Then I bear witness that the one who is an enemy to the one on his right is an enemy to the one on his left? And the one who is an enemy to the one on his left is an enemy to the one on his right, and whoever is an enemy to both of them is an enemy of God. Then Omar returned to inform the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but he found that Gabriel had preceded him with the revelation, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, called him and read it to him. Omar said: By Him who sent you with the truth, I have come to you and I only want to inform you.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq bin Al-Hajjaj Al-Razi told us, he said, Abdul-Rahman bin Mughra Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Mujalid, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: Umar went to the Jews and said: I ask you by the One Who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you find Muhammad in your book? They said, Yes. He said: What prevents you from following him? They said, God did not send a messenger except that he had a guardian from the angels, and Gabriel is the one who takes care of Muhammad, and he is our enemy from the angels, and Michael is our peace, so if he was the one who came to him, we would follow him. He said: I ask you by the One Who sent down the Torah to Moses, what is their status with the Lord of the Worlds? They said, Gabriel is on his right, and Michael is on his other side. He said: I bear witness to what they say except by God's permission, and it is not for Michael to be an enemy of Gabriel's peace, and it is not for Gabriel to be at peace with the enemy of Michael. While he was with them, the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by, and they said: This is your companion, O son of Al-Khattab. So he went to him and came to him and it was revealed to him: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - then indeed he has brought it down to your heart by permission of God, until His saying: For indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, Hisham told us, Husayn bin Abd al-Rahman told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Layla, regarding his statement: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, he said: The Jews said to the Muslims: If Michael was the one who descends upon you, we would have followed you, for he descends with mercy and rain, but Gabriel descends with torment and vengeance, and he is an enemy to us. He said: So this verse was revealed: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata', something similar to that.

Abu Ja'far said: As for the interpretation of the verse, I mean His statement: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for indeed, he has brought it down to your heart by permission of God," it is that God says to His Prophet: Say, O Muhammad, to the Jewish community of the Children of Israel, who claimed that Gabriel is an enemy to them, because he is the bearer of tyranny, torment, and punishments, not the bearer of revelation, revelation, and mercy. So they refused to follow you, denied your prophethood, and rejected what you brought them of My signs and clear proofs of My judgment, because Gabriel is your guardian and the bearer of My revelation to you, and they claimed that he is an enemy to them: Whoever among the people is an enemy to Gabriel, and denies that he is the bearer of God's revelation to His prophets, and the bearer of His mercy, then I am his guardian and friend, and I acknowledge that he is the bearer of revelation to His prophets and messengers, and that he is the one who brings down God's revelation to my heart from my Lord, by permission of my Lord for that, and he binds it to my heart, and strengthens my heart, as:

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed narrated to us, he said, Bishr bin Ammarah narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: "Say: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?" He said: That is because the Jews said when they asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, about many things and he informed them as they had them: Except Gabriel. For Gabriel was, according to the Jews, a bearer of torment and force, and they did not have a bearer of revelation, meaning: a revelation from God to His messengers nor a bearer of mercy. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed them about what they asked him about: that Gabriel is the bearer of God's revelation, the bearer of His vengeance, and the bearer of His mercy. They said: He is not a bearer of revelation nor mercy, he is an enemy to us. So God Almighty revealed, to refute them: Say, O Muhammad: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, for he has brought it down upon your heart, meaning that Gabriel brought it down, saying: The Qur'an was brought down by the command of God, strengthening your heart and binding it to your heart, meaning: by Our revelation that Gabriel brought down to you from God. And that is what is done with the messengers. And the prophets before you.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: Say, 'Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought it down upon your heart by permission of God.' He says: He brought down the Book upon your heart by permission of God.

And he narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': For He revealed it to your heart, meaning: Gabriel revealed the Book to your heart.

Abu Ja'far said: Rather, God, the Most High, said: For He has sent it down upon your heart, meaning the heart of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. He ordered Muhammad at the beginning of the verse to inform the Jews of that about himself, and He did not say: For He sent it down upon my heart. If it had been said: On my heart, it would have been correct to say, because it is the custom of the Arabs, when they order a man to narrate what was said to him about himself, to use the verb of the one commanded once as a metaphor for the one reporting about himself, since the one reporting about himself? And once as a metaphor for his name, like a metaphor for the name of the one being addressed, because he is being addressed by it. So you say in a similar way: Tell the people that good is abundant with me, so the metaphor of the name of the one reporting about himself comes out, because he is being commanded to narrate that about himself. And tell the people that good is abundant with you, so the metaphor of his name comes out like a metaphor for the name of the one being addressed, because even though he was commanded to say that, he is being addressed and commanded to narrate what was said to him. Likewise, do not say to the people that I am standing and do not say to them that you are standing, and the ya of / comes out as the name of the one being commanded to say that, as we have described. This includes the words of God Almighty: Say to those who disbelieve, 'You will be overcome.' (Al Imran 3:12) with the letters ya and ta.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:97

Say, "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of Allah, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

As for Gabriel, the Arabs have different pronunciations of it. As for the people of Hijaz, they say: Gabriel, and Michael without a hamza, with a kasra on the jim and the ra' of Gabriel and with a light pronunciation. And the reading in this way is generally the reading of the people of Medina and Basra.

As for Tamim, Qais and some of Najd, they say: Gabriel and Michael, like Gabriel and Michael, with the opening of the jim and the ra, and a hamza, and the addition of a ya after the hamza. The majority of the people of Kufa read this way, as Jarir ibn Atiyya said:

They worshipped the cross, lied about Muhammad, about Gabriel, and about Michael.

It was mentioned about Al-Hasan Al-Basri and Abdullah bin Katheer that they used to recite: Gabriel with the opening of the jim and leaving out the hamza.

Abu Jaafar said: It is an invalid reading, because Fa'il does not exist in the speech of the Arabs.

Some of them chose this and claimed that it is a foreign name, just as it is said: Samwil, and he recited about that:

So that if you weighed all of Lakhm, it would not weigh a single feather of Samwila's.

As for Banu Asad, they say: Jibreen with a noon. It has been reported that some Arabs add an alif to Gabriel and say: Jibraeel and Mikeael.

It was narrated on the authority of Yahya bin Ya'mar that he used to read: Gabriel, with the opening of the jim, the hamza, leaving the elongation, and doubling the lam.

As for Jabr and Mick, they are two names, one of which means: slave, and the other means: servants.

As for El, he is God Almighty, as Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Jaber bin Nuh Al-Hammani told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair said, Ibn Abbas said: Gabriel and Michael, like you say: Abdullah.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Al-Hussein bin Waqid told us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Gabriel is Abdullah, and Michael is the servant of God. And every name of God is God.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Raja', on the authority of Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas: That Israel, Michael, Gabriel, and Israfil are like your saying: Abdullah.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Harith, who said: El, God, in Hebrew.

Al-Husayn bin Yazid Al-Dahhak told us, he said, Ishaq bin Mansour told us, he said, Qais told us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Ikrimah, he said: Gabriel's name is Abdullah, and Michael's name is Ubaydullah. El: God.

Al-Husayn ibn Amr ibn Muhammad al-Anqazi told me, he said: Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, he said: Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Ata', on the authority of Ali ibn Husayn, he said: Gabriel's name is Abdullah, Michael's name is Ubaydullah, and Israfil's name is Abd al-Rahman. And every temple of Il is Abdullah.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Qubaysah bin Uqbah told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muhammad al-Madani, Al-Muthanna said: Qubaysah said: I think it was Muhammad bin Ishaq, on the authority of Muhammad bin Amr bin Ata', on the authority of Ali bin Hussein, who said: What do you consider Gabriel to be among your names? He said: Gabriel is Abdullah, and Michael is Ubaydullah. And every name that contains El is a place of worship for God.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Ata', on the authority of Ali ibn Husayn, he said: He said to me: Do you know what your name is for Gabriel? I said: No. He said: Abdullah. He said: Do you know what your name is for Michael? I said: No. He said: Ubaydullah. Israel was given a name similar to that, but I forgot it, except that he said to me: You see, every name that goes back to El is a place of worship for him.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement: Gabriel said: Gabriel is a servant of God, and Mika said: A servant of God.

Abu Jaafar said: This is the interpretation of those who read Gabriel with the fat-ha, the hamza, and the extension. And it is, God willing, the meaning of those who read it with the kasra and left out the hamza.

As for the interpretation of those who read it with a hamza, leaving the elongation, and emphasizing the lam, then he intended by his saying that thus, to add Jabr and Mika to the name of God by which He is called in the Arabic language, not in Syriac and Hebrew. This is because the word il in the Arabic language is God, as He said: They observe not towards a believer any pact or covenant (al-Tawbah 9:10). A group of scholars said: The word il is God. And from this is the saying of Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq may God be pleased with him to the delegation of Banu Hanifa, when he asked them about what Musaylimah was saying, so they told him and he said to them: Woe to you, where did he take you? By God, this speech did not come from il or barr. He means from il: from God. And Yaquub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Sulayman Al-Taymi, on the authority of Abu Majlaz, regarding His saying: They observe not towards a believer any pact or covenant, he said: The saying of Gabriel, Michael, and Israfil.

As if he is saying: When he adds Jabr, Mika, and Isra to El, he says: Abdullah. They do not observe in a believer except, as if he is saying they do not observe God Almighty.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Confirming what was before it.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: Confirming what came before it, the Qur'an. He placed confirming in the accusative case because of the separation from the ha' in His statement: He sent it down upon your heart.

The meaning of the words is: Gabriel revealed the Qur'an to your heart, O Muhammad, confirming what came before the Qur'an.

Meaning by this: confirming what came before it of the books of God, which were revealed to His messengers who came before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. And his confirmation of them is the agreement of their meanings with their meanings in the command to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought from God, and they confirm it, as Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, he said, Bishr bin Amara told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Confirming what came before it, he says what came before it of the books that God revealed, and the verses, and the messengers whom God sent with the verses, such as Moses, Noah, Hud, Shuaib, Salih, and similar messengers, may God bless them.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Confirming what was before it, of the Torah and the Gospel.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said:

Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', similarly.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And guidance and good tidings for the believers.

Abu Ja'far said: By His statement, may He be glorified, and guidance, He means evidence and proof. And God, may He be glorified, called it guidance because the believer is guided by it. And his being guided by it means that he takes it as a guide to follow, and a leader to obey its commands and prohibitions, its lawful and unlawful. And the guide of everything is what goes before it. And from that, the forelocks of horses are called: their guides, which is what goes before them. And likewise the neck is called: the guide, because it goes before the rest of the body.

As for the good report, it is the glad tidings. God Almighty informed His believing servants that the Qur'an is good report from Him, because He informed them of what He has prepared for them of honor with Him in His Paradise, and what His reward they will attain in their afterlife. This is the good report that God gave to the believers in His Book.

Because good report of the speech of the Arabs is: informing a man of something he did not know about, which pleases him of the report, before he hears it from someone else, or learns it from someone else. And it has been narrated in this regard from Qatada, a statement close in meaning to what we have said:

Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Guidance and good tidings for the believers, because when a believer hears the Qur'an, he will memorize it and understand it, benefit from it and be reassured by it, and believe in the promise of God that He promised in it, and he will be certain of that.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: Say, 'Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down to your heart by permission of God, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers.'

The reason for its revelation is that the Jews said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: There is no prophet among the prophets except that an angel from the angels comes to him from his Lord with the message and revelation, so who is your companion so that we may follow you? He said: Gabriel. They said: That is the one who descends with war and fighting, that is our enemy! If you had said: Michael who descends with rain and mercy, we would have followed you. So God revealed the verse until His saying: for the disbelievers. Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi. And the Almighty's statement: For He has sent it down upon your heart The pronoun in for has two possible meanings. The first is that God sent Gabriel down upon your heart. The second is that Gabriel sent down the Qur'an to your heart. And the heart was specifically mentioned because it is the seat of reason, knowledge, and the reception of knowledge. The verse indicates the honor of Gabriel, peace be upon him, and condemns its enmity. And the Almighty's statement: By God's permission means by His will and knowledge. Confirming what was before it means the Torah. Guidance and good tidings for the believers Its meaning has been presented, and praise be to God.

Say, "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of Allah, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir al-Tabari, may God have mercy on him, said: All scholars of interpretation agreed that this verse was revealed in response to the Jews of the Children of Israel, when they claimed that Gabriel was their enemy and that Michael was their guardian. Then they differed about the reason for which they said that. Some of them said: The reason for their saying that was because of a debate that took place between them and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the matter of his prophethood mentioning who said that. Abu Kurayb told us, Yunus ibn Bakir told us, on the authority of 'Abd al-Hamid ibn Bahram, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: A group of Jews attended the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they said: O Abu al-Qasim, tell us about characteristics that we ask you about that only a prophet would know. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask about whatever you wish, but give me God's protection and what Jacob took from his sons, that if I tell you about something and you recognize it, you will follow me in Islam. They said: That is for you. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask about whatever you wish. They said: Tell us about four things that we will ask you about. Tell us which food Israel prohibited for himself before the Torah was revealed? And tell us about the woman's water and the man's water, and how the male and female are formed from it? And tell us about this unlettered prophet in the Torah, and who is his guardian from the angels? The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: You have a covenant from God that if I inform you, you will all follow me. So they gave him whatever covenant and pact God willed. He said: I ask you by the One who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that Israel Jacob fell seriously ill and his illness lasted a long time? He made a vow to God that if God cured him of his illness, he would forbid him the food and drink he loved the most. The food he loved the most was camel meat, and the drink he loved the most was camel milk. They said: O God, yes. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O God, bear witness against them. I ask you by God, there is no god but Him, who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that the man's semen is thick and white, and the woman's semen is thin and yellow, so whichever of them rises above will have a child and will resemble him, by God's permission? If the man's semen rises above the woman's semen, the child will be a boy, by God's permission. If the woman's semen rises above the man's semen, the child will be a girl, by God's permission. They said: O God, yes. He said: O God, bear witness. I ask you by God, who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that the eyes of this illiterate prophet sleep but his heart does not? They said: Yes, by God. He said: O God, bear witness. They said: You now, so tell us who is your guardian from the angels, then we will have intercourse with you or leave you. He said: My guardian is Gabriel, and God never sent a prophet except that he is his guardian. They said: Then we will leave you, and if your guardian were other than him from the angels, we would follow you and believe you. He said: What prevents you from believing him? They said: He is our enemy. So God the Almighty revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart by God's permission, confirming what was before it" to His saying: If they only knew. Then they incurred wrath upon wrath." Imam Ahmad narrated it in his Musnad on the authority of Abu al-Nadr Hashim ibn al-Qasim and Abd al-Rahman ibn Hamid in his Tafsir on the authority of Ahmad ibn Yunus, both of them on the authority of Abd al-Hamid ibn Bahram, and Ahmad also narrated it on the authority of al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Marwazi on the authority of Abd al-Hamid in a similar manner. Muhammad ibn Ishaq ibn Yasar narrated it, Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Husayn told us, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, and he mentioned it as a mursal and added to it: "They said: Then tell us about the spirit." He said: I ask you by God and by His days with the Children of Israel, do you know that he is Gabriel and he is the one who comes to me? They said: O God, yes, but he is an enemy to us, and he is an angel who only comes with hardship and bloodshed. If it were not for that, we would have followed you. So God the Almighty revealed about them: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel" to His saying: They do not know. And he said: Imam Ahmad: Abu Ahmad told us, Abdullah bin Al-Waleed Al-Ajli told us, on the authority of Bakir bin Shihab, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Jews came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Abu Al-Qasim, tell us about five things, for if you inform us of them, we will know that you are a prophet and we will follow you. So he took from them what Israel took from his sons, when he said: God is the witness over what we say. He said: Bring them. They said: So tell us about the sign of a prophet? He said: His eyes sleep but his heart does not sleep. They said: Tell us how a woman is made feminine? And how a man is made masculine? He said: The two waters meet, so if the man's water rises above the woman's water, she becomes masculine, and if the woman's water rises above the man's water, she becomes feminine. They said: Tell us what Israel forbade himself? He said: He used to suffer from sciatica, and he did not find anything that suited him except the milk of such-and-such. Ahmad said: Some of them said: He meant camels, so he forbade their meat. They said: You have spoken the truth. They said: Tell us, what is this thunder? He said: An angel from the angels of God Almighty, who is assigned to the clouds, with his hands or in his hands is a whip of fire with which he drives the clouds where God Almighty commands him. They said: What is this voice that we hear? He said: His voice. They said: You have spoken the truth. They said: There is only one thing left, and it is the one that we will follow if you tell us about it, that there is no prophet but that he has an angel who brings him report, so tell us who your companion is? He said: Gabriel, peace be upon him. They said: Gabriel is the one who descends with war, fighting and torment. He is our enemy. If you had said Michael, who descends with mercy, rain and plants, he would have been. So God Almighty revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought it down upon your heart by permission of God" to the end of the verse. Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Abdullah bin Al-Waleed with it. Al-Tirmidhi said: Hasan Gharib. Sunayd said in his interpretation on the authority of Hajjaj bin Muhammad on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza informed me that the Jews asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about his companion who descends with revelation. He said: Gabriel. They said: He is our enemy and does not come except with war, hardship and fighting. So the verse was revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel" 2:10. Ibn Jarir said: Mujahid said: The Jews said: O Muhammad, Gabriel only descends with hardship, war and fighting. He is our enemy. So the verse was revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel" 2:10. Al-Bukhari said: God Almighty's statement: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel 2:10. Ikrimah said: Gabriel, Mika and Israfil are slaves. Il: God, Abdullah bin Munir told us, Abdullah bin Bakr heard, Humaid told us, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, he said: Abdullah bin Salam heard of the arrival of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was in a land collecting dung, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I am going to ask you about three things that only a prophet knows: What is the first sign of the Hour, what is the first food of the people of Paradise, and what will draw a father to his father or to his mother? He said: Gabriel told me this just now. He said: Gabriel? He said: Yes. He said: That is the enemy of the Jews from the angels, so he recited this verse: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart. "As for the first sign of the Hour, it is a fire that will gather people from the east to the west. As for the first food that the people of Paradise will eat, it is the extra liver of a fish. If a man's semen precedes a woman's semen, the child will be conceived, and if a woman's semen precedes a woman, she will be conceived." He said: I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God. O Messenger of God, the Jews are a people of slanderers, and if they know that I have become Muslim before you ask them, they will slander me. So the Jews came and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: What kind of man is Abdullah bin Salam among you? They said: The best of us and the son of the best of us, our master and the son of our master. He said:

What if he becomes Muslim? They said: May God protect him from that. So Abdullah came out and said: I bear witness that there is no god but God, and I bear witness that Muhammad is the Messenger of God. They said: He is our evil and the son of our evil, and they attacked him. He said: This is what I feared, O Messenger of God. Al-Bukhari alone narrated it from this source, and they narrated it from another source from Anas in a similar manner. In Sahih Muslim, from Thawban, the freed slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it is close to this context, as will come in its place, God willing. Al-Bukhari's narration, as mentioned above, from Ikrimah is the well-known one that El is God. Sufyan al-Thawri narrated it from Khasif, from Ikrimah, and Abd ibn Humayd narrated it from Ibrahim ibn al-Hakam, from his father, from Ikrimah, and Ibn Jarir narrated it from al-Husayn ibn Yazid al-Tahan, from Ishaq ibn Mansur, from Qays ibn Asim, from Ikrimah, that he said: Gabriel's name is Abdullah, and Michael's name is Abdullah. El is God. Yazid al-Nahwi narrated it from Ikrimah, from Ibn Abbas, in the same manner. More than one of the Salaf said the same, as will come soon. Some people say: El is an expression for Abd, and the other word is the name of God, because the word El does not change in all of them. Fawzan is Abdullah Abd al-Rahman Abd al-Malik. Abdul Quddus Abdul Salam Abdul Kafi Abdul Jalil, so Abdul is present in all of this, and the names added to it differ, as well as Gabriel, Michael, Azrael, Israfil, and the like, and in the speech of non-Arabs they put the added to it before the added, and God knows best.

Then Ibn Jarir said, and others said: Rather, the reason for their saying that was because of a debate that took place between them and Umar ibn al-Khattab regarding the matter of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace mention those who said that. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, Rib'i ibn Ulayyah told me, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, who said: Umar went down to al-Rawha' and saw men rushing to stones to pray to them, so he said: What is wrong with these people? They said: They claim that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed here. He said: He disliked that and said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was overtaken by prayer in a valley and prayed there, then he departed and left it, then he began to tell them, and he said: I used to witness the Jews during their schools and I was amazed at how the Torah confirmed the Qur'an and how the Qur'an confirmed the Torah. While I was with them one day, they said: O Ibn al-Khattab, none of your companions are more beloved to us than you. I said: Why is that? They said: Because you visit us and come to us. I said: I come to you and I am amazed at the Qur'an and how it confirms the Torah, and at the Torah and how it confirms the Qur'an. They said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by and they said: O Ibn Al-Khattab, that is your companion, so join him. I said to them: At that time, I ask you by God, there is no god but Him, and by what He has entrusted to you of His right, and by what He has entrusted to you of His Book, do you know that he is the Messenger of God? They said: So they were silent. Then their scholar and elder said to him: He has been harsh with you, so answer him. They said: Then you are our scholar and elder, so answer him. He said: If you ask us what you ask us, then we know that he is the Messenger of God. I said: Woe to you, then you are doomed. They said: We are not doomed. I said: How is that when you know that he is the Messenger of God and you do not follow him or believe him? They said: We have an enemy from the angels and a peace from the angels, and he has linked his prophethood to our enemy from the angels. I said: Who is your enemy and your peace? They said: Our enemy is Gabriel, and our peace is Michael. They said: Gabriel is the angel of harshness, roughness, poverty, severity, torment, and the like, and Michael is the angel of mercy, compassion, leniency, and the like. He said: I said: What is their status with their Lord, the Almighty and Majestic? They said: One of them is on his right and the other is on his left. He said: I said: By Him besides Whom there is no god, they and the one between them are enemies to those who are enemies to them, and peace to those who are peaceable to them. It is not appropriate for Gabriel to be peaceable to the enemy of Michael, and it is not appropriate for Michael to be peaceable to the enemy of Gabriel. He said: Then I got up and followed the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I caught up with him as he was coming out of a window of the Banu so-and-so. He said: O Ibn al-Khattab, shall I not recite to you verses that were revealed before? So he recited to me: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down to your heart by permission of God - until he recited the verses. He said: I said: My father and mother are your ransom, O Messenger of God, by Him who sent you with the truth, I have come wanting to inform you and I hear the Gracious, the All-Knowing, who has preceded me to you with the report. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed al-Ashja told us, Abu Usama told us on the authority of Mujalid, Aamer told us, he said: Umar ibn al-Khattab went to the Jews and said: I ask you by Him who revealed the Torah to Moses, do you find Muhammad in your books? They said: Yes. He said: What prevents you from following him? He said: God did not send a messenger except that He made for him a guardian from the angels. Gabriel is the guardian of Muhammad and he is the one who comes to him, and he is our enemy from the angels. And Michael, we have submitted. If Michael was the one who came to him, we would have submitted. He said: Then I ask you by God who sent down the Torah to Moses, what is their status with God Almighty? They said: Gabriel is on his right, and Michael is on his left. Omar said: I bear witness that they do not descend except by the permission of God. Michael would not make peace with the enemy of Gabriel, and Gabriel would not make peace with the enemy of Michael. While he was with them, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by. They said: This is your companion, O Ibn Al-Khattab. Omar went to him and God, the Almighty, had revealed: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers. These two chains of transmission indicate that Al-Sha'bi narrated it from Omar, but there is a break between him and Omar, as he did not live in his time. And God knows best. Ibn Jubayr said: Bashir told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah, who said: It was mentioned to us that Omar bin Al-Khattab went to the Jews one day. When he returned and they welcomed him, Omar said to them: By God, I did not come to you out of love for you or desire for you, but I came to hear from you. So he asked them and they asked him, and they said: Who is the companion of your companion? He said to them: Gabriel. They said: That is our enemy from the people of heaven who reveals our secret to Muhammad, and when he comes he brings war and strife, but the companion of our companion is Michael, and when he comes he brings fertility and peace. So Omar said to them: Do you recognize Gabriel, and you deny Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace? Then Omar left them and went towards the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to tell him their story, and he found that this verse had been revealed to him: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought the Qur'an down upon your heart by God's permission" (al-An'am 2:10).

Say, "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of Allah, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

Then he said: Al-Muthanna told me, Adam told us, Abu Ja'far told us, Qatada told us, he said: It reached us that 'Umar came to the Jews one day and mentioned something similar, and this is in the interpretation of Adam and it is also disconnected, and likewise Asbat narrated it from Al-Suddi from 'Umar something similar or similar, and it is also disconnected. And Ibn Ibn Hatim said: Muhammad Ibn 'Ammar told us, 'Abd Al-Rahman told us, meaning Al-Dashtaki told us, Abu Ja'far told us from Hisayn Ibn 'Abd Al-Rahman, from 'Abd Al-Rahman, who is 'Abd Al-Rahman Ibn Abi Laila: That a Jew met 'Umar Ibn Al-Khattab and said: Gabriel, whom your companion mentions, is an enemy to us, so 'Umar said: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael, then indeed God is an enemy to the disbelievers. He said: So it was revealed on the tongue of 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, and 'Abd Ibn Hamid narrated it from Abu Al-Nadr Hashim Ibn Al-Qasim, from Abu Ja'far, who is Al-Razi, and Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub Ibn Ibrahim told me, Hisham told me, Husayn Ibn 'Abd Al-Rahman told us, from Ibn Abi Laila regarding his statement: God the Almighty said: Who is an enemy to Gabriel? He said: The Jews said to the Muslims: If Michael was the one who descends upon you, we would follow you, for he descends with mercy and rain, but Gabriel descends with torment and vengeance, so he is an enemy to us. He said: So this verse was revealed. Ya'qub told us, Hisham told us, Abdul Malik told us on the authority of Ata' something similar. Abdul Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatadah regarding His statement: "Say: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?" He said: The Jews said: Gabriel is an enemy to us, because he descends with hardship and famine, and Michael descends with ease, health and fertility, so Gabriel is an enemy to us. So God the Almighty said: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?

As for the interpretation of the verse, the Almighty said: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel," then he brought it down to your heart by the permission of God, meaning whoever is hostile to Gabriel, let him know that he is the trustworthy spirit who brought down the wise remembrance to your heart from God by His permission for him to do so. He is a messenger from the messengers of God, an angel. Whoever is hostile to a messenger has been hostile to all the messengers, just as whoever believes in a messenger is obligated to believe in all the messengers, and just as whoever disbelieves in a messenger is obligated to disbelieve in all the messengers, as God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who disbelieve in God and His messengers and wish to differentiate between God and His messengers and say, 'We believe in some and disbelieve in others,' 2:100. So He ruled that they are true disbelievers if they believe in some of the messengers and disbelieve in others. Likewise, whoever is hostile to Gabriel is an enemy of God, because Gabriel does not bring down the command of his own accord, but rather he comes down by the command of his Lord, as He said: And We do not descend except by the command of your Lord, 2:100. And God the Almighty said: "And indeed, it is a revelation from the Lord of the worlds. * The Trustworthy Spirit has brought it down * Upon your heart that you may be among the warners." Al-Bukhari narrated in It is authentically reported on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever shows enmity to a friend of Mine has declared war on Me. For this reason, God became angry with Gabriel for whoever showed enmity to him, and God the Almighty said: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart by God's permission, confirming what was before it meaning of the previous books: And guidance and good tidings for the believers meaning guidance for their hearts and good tidings for them of Paradise, and that is only for the believers, as God the Almighty said: Say, 'It is, for those who believe, a guide and a cure' 3:17. And God the Almighty said: And We send down from the Qur'an that which is a healing and a mercy for the believers 3:17. Then God the Almighty said: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers 3:17. God the Almighty says: Whoever is an enemy to Me and My angels and My messengers, and His messengers include His messengers from the angels and from the humans, as God the Almighty said: God chooses from the angels messengers and from the people. "Gabriel and Michael" This is a case of connecting the specific to the general, as they were included among the angels in the generality of the messengers, then they were specifically mentioned because the context is in support of Gabriel, who is the ambassador between God and His prophets, and Michael was paired with him in the wording, because the Jews claimed that Gabriel was their enemy, and Michael was their friend, so God Almighty informed them that whoever is hostile to one of them has been hostile to the other and hostile to God as well, and because he also descends to the prophets of God sometimes, as he was paired with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, at the beginning, but Gabriel is more and it is his job, and Michael is entrusted with plants and rain, this one with guidance and this one with provision, just as Israfil is entrusted with blowing the trumpet for the resurrection on the Day of Resurrection, and for this reason it came in the Sahih that "when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, got up at night he would say: O God, Lord of Gabriel, Michael, and Israfil, Creator of the heavens and the earth, Knower of the unseen and the seen, You judge between Your servants in that in which they differ, guide me to the truth in that in which they differ by Your permission, for You guide whomever You will." To the straight path." Al-Bukhari has already narrated, and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah and others that he said, Jabr, Mika, and Israfil are slaves, and Il is God. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Raja', on the authority of Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: His saying Gabriel was like his saying Abdullah and Abd al-Rahman. It was said that Jabr is a slave, and Il is God. Muhammad bin Ishaq said on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ali bin al-Husayn, who said: Do you know what Gabriel's name is among your names? We said: No. He said: His name is Abdullah, and every name that goes back to Il is to God, the Almighty and Majestic. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, and Yahya bin Ya'mar. Then he said: My father told me, Ahmad bin Abi Al-Hawari told us, Abdul Aziz bin Umair told me: The name Gabriel among the angels is the servant of God. He said: So I told it to Abu Sulayman Al-Darani, and he was shaken and said: This hadith is dearer to me than anything in a notebook that was in his hands. And Gabriel and Michael have dialects and readings that are mentioned in the books of language and readings, and we did not prolong this book of ours by listing that unless the understanding of the meaning revolves around it, or the judgment in that goes back to it, and in God is trust and He is the one sought for help. And the Almighty's saying: Then God is an enemy to the disbelievers in it is the placement of the explicit in place of the implicit where He did not say: then he is an enemy, but rather He said: Then God is an enemy to the disbelievers as the poet said:

I do not see death preceded by anything that made death bitter to the rich and the poor

The other said:

If only the crow would caw constantly tomorrow, it would be a crow with severed jugular veins.

God has only revealed this name here to establish and make clear this meaning, and to inform them that whoever is hostile to a friend of God has been hostile to God, and whoever is hostile to God, then God is his enemy, and whoever is his enemy has lost this world and the hereafter, as the hadith has mentioned:

Whoever is hostile to a friend of Mine, then I have declared war on him. And in another hadith: I will take revenge for My friends as a lion takes revenge for war. And in the authentic hadith: Whoever I am an opponent of, I will be his opponent.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:97

Say, "Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - it is he who has brought it down upon your heart by permission of Allah, confirming what was before it and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

Fath al-Qadir

This verse has been unanimously agreed upon by the commentators that it was revealed about the Jews. Ibn Jarir al-Tabari said: All the commentators agreed that this verse was revealed in response to the Jews when they claimed that Gabriel was their enemy and that Michael was their guardian. Then they differed as to the reason for their saying that. Some of them said: The reason for that was because of a debate that took place between them and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the matter of his prophethood. Then he mentioned narrations about that which will come at the end of the discussion, God willing. The pronoun in His statement: 97- "For it" has two possible meanings: The first is that it refers to God and the pronoun in His statement: "He sent it down" refers to Gabriel: meaning that God, the Exalted, sent Gabriel down to your heart, and there is weakness in that as is indicated by His statement: "Confirming what was before it. The second is that it refers to Gabriel, and the pronoun in He sent it down" refers to the Qur'an: meaning that Gabriel sent down the Qur'an to your heart, and the heart was specifically mentioned because it is the seat of reason and knowledge. And his saying: By the permission of God means by His knowledge, will, facilitation and ease, and what is before Him is the Torah as mentioned above or all the revealed books. This is evidence of the honor of Gabriel and the high status of his position, and that there is no reason for the Jews to be hostile to him since he did what was mentioned about the revelation of the Book to your heart, or God's revelation of it to your heart. This is the connection between the condition and the answer, meaning whoever is hostile to Gabriel among them, there is no reason for his hostility to him, since he did nothing but what necessitates love without enmity, or whoever is hostile to him, the reason for his hostility is that he did what they dislike of the revelation, and that is not a sin of his even if they exonerated him, for this hatred of him from them for this reason is injustice and aggression, because this book that he revealed is a confirmation of their book and guidance and good tidings for the believers.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

97. The Almighty said: "Say: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?" Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: A rabbi from the rabbis of the Jews called Abdullah bin Suriya said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Which angel descended from the heaven? He said Gabriel. He said: That is our enemy from the angels, and if it were Michael, we would have believed in you. Gabriel descends with torment, fighting, and severity, and he has been hostile to us repeatedly, and one of the most difficult things for us was that God Almighty revealed to our Prophet that Jerusalem would be destroyed at the hands of a man called Bukhtanasr, and he informed us of the time at which it would be destroyed. When that time came, we sent a man from the strong men of the Children of Israel to seek him out and kill him. He set out until he met him in Babylon as a poor boy, and he seized him to kill him, but Gabriel pushed him away. Bukhtanasr grew strong and powerful, and he invaded us and destroyed Jerusalem. That is why we consider him an enemy. Then God Almighty revealed this verse.

Muqatil said: The Jews said: Gabriel is our enemy because he was ordered to make the prophethood in us, but he made it in someone other than us. Qatada, Ikrimah and Al-Suddi said: Omar bin Al-Khattab had land at the top of Medina and its passageway was through the schools of the Jews. Whenever he came to his land, he would go to them and listen to them speech. They said to him: There is no companion of Muhammad more beloved to us than you. They pass by us and harm us, but you do not harm us, and we have hope in you. Omar said: By God, I do not come to you because I love you, nor do I ask you because I doubt my religion. I only come to you to increase my insight into the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to see its traces in your book [which you conceal]. They said: Who is the companion of Muhammad who comes to him from the angels? He said: Gabriel. They said: That is our enemy who informs Muhammad of our secrets, and he is the one who brings every torment, subsidence, famine and hardship. And when Michael comes, he brings fertility and spoils. Omar said to them: Do you recognize Gabriel and deny Muhammad? They said: Yes. He said: Then tell me about the status of Gabriel and Michael with God Almighty? They said: Gabriel is on His right and Michael is on His left. Omar said: Then I bear witness that whoever is an enemy of Gabriel is an enemy of Michael, and whoever is an enemy of Michael is of Gabriel, and whoever is an enemy of Gabriel is an enemy of him. Then Omar returned to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and found that Gabriel had preceded him in the revelation. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) recited this verse and said: (Your Lord has agreed with you, O Omar.) Omar said: After that, I saw myself harder than a stone in the religion of God.

God Almighty said: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - he has brought it down - meaning the Qur'an, referring to something not mentioned - upon your heart, O Muhammad, by God's permission, by God's command, confirming and agreeing with what was before it, with what came before it of the Scriptures, and as guidance and good tidings for the believers."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

97-"Say: Who is an enemy to Gabriel? It was revealed about Abdullah bin Suriya. He asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about whom the revelation comes down to? He said: Gabriel. He said: That is our enemy, he has been our enemy many times, and the most severe of that was when it was revealed to our Prophet that Jerusalem would be destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar, so we sent someone to kill him. He saw him in Babylon and Gabriel pushed him away. He said: If your Lord has commanded him to destroy you, then he should not give you power over him. Otherwise, why would you kill him?" It was said: "Omar, may God be pleased with him, entered the Jewish schools one day and asked them about Gabriel. They said: He is our enemy who reveals our secrets to Muhammad and he is the one who brings down all the suffering and torment, and Michael is the one who brings fertility and peace. He said: What is their status with God? They said: Gabriel is on his right and Michael is on his left and there is enmity between them. He said: If they are as you say, then they are not enemies, and you are more disbelieving than donkeys. Whoever is an enemy to one of them is an enemy of God. Then Omar returned and found that Gabriel had preceded him with the revelation, so he, peace and blessings be upon him, said: Your Lord has agreed with you, O Omar." There are eight languages for Gabriel, four of which are recited in: the well-known Gabriel like Salsabil, the recitation of Hamza and Al-Kisa'i, and Gabriel with a kasra on the ra' and deleting the hamza, the recitation of Ibn Kathir, and Gabriel like Jahmush, the recitation of Asim, according to the narration of Abu Bakr, and Gabriel like Qandeel, the recitation of the rest. And four in the anomalies: Gabriel as Gabriel, and Gabriel and Jibreel and it was prevented from being declined due to foreignness, and the definite article, and its profession is Abdullah. For He has revealed it the first prominent one is for Gabriel, and the second is for the Qur'an, and its omission is not mentioned indicating the magnificence of its status as if due to its specificity and extreme fame it did not need to be mentioned previously. Upon your heart for it is the first to receive revelation, and the place of understanding and memorization, and its right was upon my heart but it came as a narration of the speech of God Almighty as if he said: Say what I have spoken By the permission of God by His command, or His facilitation is a state of its subject He revealed it. Confirming what was before it and guidance and good tidings for the believers are conditions of its object, and it appears that the answer to the condition is for He revealed it, and the meaning is that whoever among them is hostile to Gabriel has cast off his bond of fairness, or has disbelieved in what he has of the Book by being hostile to him for his revelation to you, because it is the revelation of a Book confirming the previous Books, so the answer was omitted and its cause was established in its place, or whoever is hostile to him, the reason for his hostility is that he revealed it to you. And it was said that it was omitted, such as: So let him die of rage, or he is an enemy to me and I am an enemy to him, as he said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:98

Whoever is an enemy to Allah and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, Allah is an enemy to the disbelievers.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:98

Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel with a kasra or fatha on the jim without a hamza and with a ya' or without it and Mikael in apposition to the angels from the apposition of the specific to the general and in the reading of Mikael with a hamza and a ya' and in another without a ya' then indeed God is an enemy to the disbelievers He placed it in a position for them as a statement of their condition

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God, the Most High, about who is an enemy of God, who is an enemy of Him and an enemy of all His angels and messengers? And it is an announcement from Him that whoever is an enemy of Gabriel has been an enemy of him and an enemy of Michael, and an enemy of all His angels and messengers. Because those whom God has named in this verse are the friends of God and the people of His obedience, and whoever is an enemy of a friend of God has been an enemy of God and has fought against Him, and whoever is an enemy of God has been an enemy of all the people of His obedience and guardianship. Because the enemy of God is an enemy of His friends, and the enemy of the friends of God is an enemy of Him. So He said to the Jews who said: Gabriel is our enemy from the angels, and Michael is our friend from them: Whoever is an enemy of God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers, because the enemy of Gabriel is the enemy of every friend of God. So He, the Most High, informed them that whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, is an enemy to all of His angels, messengers, and Michael whom He mentioned. Likewise, the enemy of some of God's messengers is an enemy to God and to every friend of His. And: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Yahya bin Wadheeh told us, he said, Ubaidullah, meaning Al-Ataki, told us, on the authority of a man from Quraysh who said: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked the Jews and said: I ask you by your book that you read, do you find in it that Jesus, son of Mary, gave glad tidings that a messenger named Ahmad would come to you? They said: O God, we found you in our book, but we hated you because you consider money and bloodshed permissible." So God revealed: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels 1:17.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Husayn ibn 'Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Layla, who said: A Jew met 'Umar and said to him: Gabriel, whom your companion mentions,

He is our enemy. Omar said to him: Whoever is an enemy of God, His angels, His messengers, Gabriel and Michael, then God is an enemy to the disbelievers. He said: So it was revealed on the tongue of Omar.

This report indicates that God revealed this verse as a rebuke to the Jews for their disbelief in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and as an announcement to them that whoever is an enemy of Muhammad, God is his enemy, and that the enemy of Muhammad from among all people is among those who disbelieve in God and deny His signs.

If someone says: Are not Gabriel and Michael among the angels?

It was said: Yes.

If he says: What is the meaning of repeating their names, when they were mentioned in the verse among the names of the angels?

It was said: The meaning of mentioning them by their names is that when the Jews said: Gabriel is our enemy and Michael is our friend, and they claimed that they disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, because Gabriel was the companion of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, God informed them that whoever is an enemy to Gabriel, then God is an enemy to him, and that he is one of the disbelievers. So He mentioned him by his name and Michael by his name, so that no one among them would say: God only said: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers, and we are not enemies to God and His angels and His messengers. Because angels is a general name that can be specific, and Gabriel and Michael are not included in it. Likewise His statement: and His messengers, so you, O Muhammad, are not included in them. So God Almighty mentioned the names of those whom they claimed were His enemies specifically, to cut off their deception of the weak among them, and to resolve their camouflage of their affairs for the hypocrites. As for the mention of the name of God in His statement: Indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers, and its repetition in it, while the beginning of the report began with mentioning Him, saying: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels, so that it would not be confused if it was mentioned as a metaphor, and it was said: then he is an enemy to the disbelievers, to the listener, who is meant by the ha' in then is it God, or the messengers of God, may His praise be exalted, or Gabriel, or Michael? Because if it came as a metaphor for what I described, then the meaning of that would be confused for the one who did not stop at the meaning of that, because the speech could be what I described. Some of the Arabists directed that to something like the saying of the poet:

If only the crow would always caw tomorrow, the crow would have severed the jugular veins

And that it is the manifestation of the name that was meant by the metaphor. The matter in that is different from what he said. That is because if the second raven was meant by the metaphor, it would not have been confused for anyone who understands the speech of the Arabs that it is a metaphor for the name of the first raven, since there was nothing before it that the speech could be directed to except the metaphor of the name of the first raven. And before his saying: Then God is an enemy to the disbelievers are names. If the name of God, may He be exalted, came as a metaphor, it would not have been known who was intended by the metaphor of the name, except by the evidence of a proof. Therefore, their two matters differed.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: Whoever is an enemy to God is a condition, and its answer is Indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers. This is a threat and a condemnation of the enemies of Gabriel, peace be upon him, and a declaration that the enmity of some necessitates God's enmity towards them. The servant's enmity towards God is disobeying Him and avoiding His obedience, and the enmity towards His friends, and God's enmity towards the servant is to punish him and show the effect of enmity upon him.

If it is said: Why did God single out Gabriel and Michael for mention even though He mentioned the angels in general? It is said: He singled them out for mention to honor them, as He said: In them are fruits, palm trees, and pomegranates. It is said: They were singled out because the Jews mentioned them, and the verse was revealed because of them, so mentioning them was obligatory so that the Jews would not say: We did not oppose God and all of His angels. So God, the Most High, mentioned them specifically to invalidate what they interpreted as specificity. Linguists have different meanings for Gabriel and Michael, peace be upon them. As for the one about Gabriel, there are ten:

The first: Gabriel, which is the language of the people of Hijaz. Hassan bin Thabit said:

Gabriel is the Messenger of God among us

The second: Gabriel with an open jim and this is the reading of Al-Hasan and Ibn Kathir. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Kathir that he said: I saw the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a dream and he was reading: Gabriel and Michael, and I will never stop reading them like this.

The third: Gabriel with a ya' after the hamza, like Gabriel, as the people of Kufa read and chanted:

We witnessed that no battalion was presented to us throughout the ages except that Gabriel was in front of it.

It is the language of Tamim and Qais.

Fourth: Gabriel on the same weight as Gabriel is shortened, and this is the reading of Abu Bakr on the authority of Asim.

The fifth is similar, and it is the reading of Yahya bin Ya'mar, except that he stressed the lam.

Sixth: Gabriel with an alif after the ra' then a hamza, and this is how Ikrimah read it.

Sixth: The same, except that after the hamza there is a ya.

The eighth is Gabriel with two Ya's without a hamza, and this is how Al-A'mash and Yahya bin Ya'mar also read it.

Ninth: Jibra'een with an open jim with a broken hamza followed by a ya and a noon.

Tenth: Jibreen with a kasra on the jim and a sukoon on the yaa with a noon without a hamza, and it is the language of Banu Asad. Al-Tabari said: It was not recited with it. Al-Nahhas said - and mentioned the recitation of Ibn Kathir - Fa'leel is not known in the speech of the Arabs, and it has Fa'leel, such as Dahliz, Qatmeer, and Bartil. It is not denied that there is in the speech of the non-Arabs what has no equivalent in the speech of the Arabs, and it is not denied that it changes frequently, as they said: Ibrahim, Ibraheem, Ibraheem, and Ibrahim. Someone else said: Jibreel is a foreign name that the Arabs Arabized, so these languages have it and that is why it is not declined.

I said: It was mentioned at the beginning of the book that the correct wording of these words is Arabic, revealed by Gabriel in clear Arabic. An-Nahhas said: The plural of Gabriel is broken into Jabaril.

As for the languages in Michael Fest:

The first: Mika'il, Nafi's reading. Mika'il with a ya' after the hamza is Hamza's reading. Mika'il, the language of the people of Hijaz, and it is the reading of Abu Amr and Hafis on the authority of Asim. The three versions were narrated on the authority of Ibn Kathir. Ka'b ibn Malik said:

And on the day of Badr, we met you, and Michael and Gabriel were our support for victory.

Another said:

They worshipped the cross, lied about Muhammad, about Gabriel, and about Michael.

Fourth: Michael, like Michael. This is the reading of Ibn Muhaisin.

Fifth: Michael with two yaas, which is the reading of Al-A'mash, but it differs from him.

Sixth: Michael, which is said Isra'il with an open hamza, and it is a foreign name, so it is not declined. Ibn Abbas mentioned that Jabr, Mika, and Isra'f are all in foreign languages meaning: slave and owned. And El: is the name of God Almighty, and from it is the saying of Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq, may God be pleased with him, when he heard the rhyme of Musaylimah: This is speech that did not come from El. And in the revelation They do not observe towards a believer any pact or covenant in one of the two interpretations, and it will come. Al-Mawardi said: Gabriel and Michael are two names, one of them is Abdullah and the other is Ubaid God, because El is God Almighty, and Jabr is Abd and Mika is Ubaid, so it is as if Gabriel is Abdullah and Michael is Ubaid God. This is the saying of Ibn Abbas, and there is no one who disagrees with him among the commentators.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:98

Whoever is an enemy to Allah and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, Allah is an enemy to the disbelievers.

I said: Some commentators added: And Israfil is the servant of the Most Gracious. An-Nahhas said: Whoever interprets the hadith as Jabr, the servant of God, must say: This is Gabriel, and I saw Gabriel, and I passed by Gabriel, and this is not said, so the meaning of the hadith must be that it is named with this. Another said: If it were as they said, it would have been declined, so leaving the decline indicates that it is a single, singular noun, not an adjective. Abdul Ghani Al-Hafiz narrated from the hadith of Aflat bin Khalifa - who is Falit Al-Amiri, who is Abu Hassan - on the authority of Jasra bint Dajajah on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

O God, Lord of Gabriel, Michael and Israfil, I seek refuge in You from the heat of the Fire and the torment of the grave.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir al-Tabari, may God have mercy on him, said: All scholars of interpretation agreed that this verse was revealed in response to the Jews of the Children of Israel, when they claimed that Gabriel was their enemy and that Michael was their guardian. Then they differed about the reason for which they said that. Some of them said: The reason for their saying that was because of a debate that took place between them and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the matter of his prophethood mentioning who said that. Abu Kurayb told us, Yunus ibn Bakir told us, on the authority of 'Abd al-Hamid ibn Bahram, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: A group of Jews attended the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they said: O Abu al-Qasim, tell us about characteristics that we ask you about that only a prophet would know. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask about whatever you wish, but give me God's protection and what Jacob took from his sons, that if I tell you about something and you recognize it, you will follow me in Islam. They said: That is for you. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask about whatever you wish. They said: Tell us about four things that we will ask you about. Tell us which food Israel prohibited for himself before the Torah was revealed? And tell us about the woman's water and the man's water, and how the male and female are formed from it? And tell us about this unlettered prophet in the Torah, and who is his guardian from the angels? The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: You have a covenant from God that if I inform you, you will all follow me. So they gave him whatever covenant and pact God willed. He said: I ask you by the One who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that Israel Jacob fell seriously ill and his illness lasted a long time? He made a vow to God that if God cured him of his illness, he would forbid him the food and drink he loved the most. The food he loved the most was camel meat, and the drink he loved the most was camel milk. They said: O God, yes. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O God, bear witness against them. I ask you by God, there is no god but Him, who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that the man's semen is thick and white, and the woman's semen is thin and yellow, so whichever of them rises above will have a child and will resemble him, by God's permission? If the man's semen rises above the woman's semen, the child will be a boy, by God's permission. If the woman's semen rises above the man's semen, the child will be a girl, by God's permission. They said: O God, yes. He said: O God, bear witness. I ask you by God, who sent down the Torah to Moses, do you know that the eyes of this illiterate prophet sleep but his heart does not? They said: Yes, by God. He said: O God, bear witness. They said: You now, so tell us who is your guardian from the angels, then we will have intercourse with you or leave you. He said: My guardian is Gabriel, and God never sent a prophet except that he is his guardian. They said: Then we will leave you, and if your guardian were other than him from the angels, we would follow you and believe you. He said: What prevents you from believing him? They said: He is our enemy. So God the Almighty revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart by God's permission, confirming what was before it" to His saying: If they only knew. Then they incurred wrath upon wrath." Imam Ahmad narrated it in his Musnad on the authority of Abu al-Nadr Hashim ibn al-Qasim and Abd al-Rahman ibn Hamid in his Tafsir on the authority of Ahmad ibn Yunus, both of them on the authority of Abd al-Hamid ibn Bahram, and Ahmad also narrated it on the authority of al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Marwazi on the authority of Abd al-Hamid in a similar manner. Muhammad ibn Ishaq ibn Yasar narrated it, Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Husayn told us, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, and he mentioned it as a mursal and added to it: "They said: Then tell us about the spirit." He said: I ask you by God and by His days with the Children of Israel, do you know that he is Gabriel and he is the one who comes to me? They said: O God, yes, but he is an enemy to us, and he is an angel who only comes with hardship and bloodshed. If it were not for that, we would have followed you. So God the Almighty revealed about them: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel" to His saying: They do not know. And he said: Imam Ahmad: Abu Ahmad told us, Abdullah bin Al-Waleed Al-Ajli told us, on the authority of Bakir bin Shihab, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Jews came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Abu Al-Qasim, tell us about five things, for if you inform us of them, we will know that you are a prophet and we will follow you. So he took from them what Israel took from his sons, when he said: God is the witness over what we say. He said: Bring them. They said: So tell us about the sign of a prophet? He said: His eyes sleep but his heart does not sleep. They said: Tell us how a woman is made feminine? And how a man is made masculine? He said: The two waters meet, so if the man's water rises above the woman's water, she becomes masculine, and if the woman's water rises above the man's water, she becomes feminine. They said: Tell us what Israel forbade himself? He said: He used to suffer from sciatica, and he did not find anything that suited him except the milk of such-and-such. Ahmad said: Some of them said: He meant camels, so he forbade their meat. They said: You have spoken the truth. They said: Tell us, what is this thunder? He said: An angel from the angels of God Almighty, who is assigned to the clouds, with his hands or in his hands is a whip of fire with which he drives the clouds where God Almighty commands him. They said: What is this voice that we hear? He said: His voice. They said: You have spoken the truth. They said: There is only one thing left, and it is the one that we will follow if you tell us about it, that there is no prophet but that he has an angel who brings him report, so tell us who your companion is? He said: Gabriel, peace be upon him. They said: Gabriel is the one who descends with war, fighting and torment. He is our enemy. If you had said Michael, who descends with mercy, rain and plants, he would have been. So God Almighty revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought it down upon your heart by permission of God" to the end of the verse. Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Abdullah bin Al-Waleed with it. Al-Tirmidhi said: Hasan Gharib. Sunayd said in his interpretation on the authority of Hajjaj bin Muhammad on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza informed me that the Jews asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about his companion who descends with revelation. He said: Gabriel. They said: He is our enemy and does not come except with war, hardship and fighting. So the verse was revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel" 2:10. Ibn Jarir said: Mujahid said: The Jews said: O Muhammad, Gabriel only descends with hardship, war and fighting. He is our enemy. So the verse was revealed: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel" 2:10. Al-Bukhari said: God Almighty's statement: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel 2:10. Ikrimah said: Gabriel, Mika and Israfil are slaves. Il: God, Abdullah bin Munir told us, Abdullah bin Bakr heard, Humaid told us, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, he said: Abdullah bin Salam heard of the arrival of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was in a land collecting dung, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I am going to ask you about three things that only a prophet knows: What is the first sign of the Hour, what is the first food of the people of Paradise, and what will draw a father to his father or to his mother? He said: Gabriel told me this just now. He said: Gabriel? He said: Yes. He said: That is the enemy of the Jews from the angels, so he recited this verse: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart. "As for the first sign of the Hour, it is a fire that will gather people from the east to the west. As for the first food that the people of Paradise will eat, it is the extra liver of a fish. If a man's semen precedes a woman's semen, the child will be conceived, and if a woman's semen precedes a woman, she will be conceived." He said: I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God. O Messenger of God, the Jews are a people of slanderers, and if they know that I have become Muslim before you ask them, they will slander me. So the Jews came and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: What kind of man is Abdullah bin Salam among you? They said: The best of us and the son of the best of us, our master and the son of our master. He said: What if he becomes Muslim? They said: May God protect him from that. So Abdullah came out and said: I bear witness that there is no god but God, and I bear witness that Muhammad is the Messenger of God. They said: He is our evil and the son of our evil, and they attacked him. He said: This is what I feared, O Messenger of God. Al-Bukhari alone narrated it from this source, and they narrated it from another source from Anas in a similar manner. In Sahih Muslim, from Thawban, the freed slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it is close to this context, as will come in its place, God willing. Al-Bukhari's narration, as mentioned above, from Ikrimah is the well-known one that El is God. Sufyan al-Thawri narrated it from Khasif, from Ikrimah, and Abd ibn Humayd narrated it from Ibrahim ibn al-Hakam, from his father, from Ikrimah, and Ibn Jarir narrated it from al-Husayn ibn Yazid al-Tahan, from Ishaq ibn Mansur, from Qays ibn Asim, from Ikrimah, that he said: Gabriel's name is Abdullah, and Michael's name is Abdullah. El is God. Yazid al-Nahwi narrated it from Ikrimah, from Ibn Abbas, in the same manner. More than one of the Salaf said the same, as will come soon. Some people say: El is an expression for Abd, and the other word is the name of God, because the word El does not change in all of them. Fawzan is Abdullah Abd al-Rahman Abd al-Malik. Abdul Quddus Abdul Salam Abdul Kafi Abdul Jalil, so Abdul is present in all of this, and the names added to it differ, as well as Gabriel, Michael, Azrael, Israfil, and the like, and in the speech of non-Arabs they put the added to it before the added, and God knows best.

Then Ibn Jarir said, and others said: Rather, the reason for their saying that was because of a debate that took place between them and Umar ibn al-Khattab regarding the matter of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace mention those who said that. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, Rib'i ibn Ulayyah told me, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, who said: Umar went down to al-Rawha' and saw men rushing to stones to pray to them, so he said: What is wrong with these people? They said: They claim that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed here. He said: He disliked that and said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was overtaken by prayer in a valley and prayed there, then he departed and left it, then he began to tell them, and he said: I used to witness the Jews during their schools and I was amazed at how the Torah confirmed the Qur'an and how the Qur'an confirmed the Torah. While I was with them one day, they said: O Ibn al-Khattab, none of your companions are more beloved to us than you. I said: Why is that? They said: Because you visit us and come to us. I said: I come to you and I am amazed at the Qur'an and how it confirms the Torah, and at the Torah and how it confirms the Qur'an. They said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by and they said: O Ibn Al-Khattab, that is your companion, so join him. I said to them: At that time, I ask you by God, there is no god but Him, and by what He has entrusted to you of His right, and by what He has entrusted to you of His Book, do you know that he is the Messenger of God? They said: So they were silent. Then their scholar and elder said to him: He has been harsh with you, so answer him. They said: Then you are our scholar and elder, so answer him. He said: If you ask us what you ask us, then we know that he is the Messenger of God. I said: Woe to you, then you are doomed. They said: We are not doomed. I said: How is that when you know that he is the Messenger of God and you do not follow him or believe him? They said: We have an enemy from the angels and a peace from the angels, and he has linked his prophethood to our enemy from the angels. I said: Who is your enemy and your peace? They said: Our enemy is Gabriel, and our peace is Michael. They said: Gabriel is the angel of harshness, roughness, poverty, severity, torment, and the like, and Michael is the angel of mercy, compassion, leniency, and the like. He said: I said: What is their status with their Lord, the Almighty and Majestic? They said: One of them is on his right and the other is on his left. He said: I said: By Him besides Whom there is no god, they and the one between them are enemies to those who are enemies to them, and peace to those who are peaceable to them. It is not appropriate for Gabriel to be peaceable to the enemy of Michael, and it is not appropriate for Michael to be peaceable to the enemy of Gabriel. He said: Then I got up and followed the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I caught up with him as he was coming out of a window of the Banu so-and-so. He said: O Ibn al-Khattab, shall I not recite to you verses that were revealed before? So he recited to me: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down to your heart by permission of God - until he recited the verses. He said: I said: My father and mother are your ransom, O Messenger of God, by Him who sent you with the truth, I have come wanting to inform you and I hear the Gracious, the All-Knowing, who has preceded me to you with the report. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed al-Ashja told us, Abu Usama told us on the authority of Mujalid, Aamer told us, he said: Umar ibn al-Khattab went to the Jews and said: I ask you by Him who revealed the Torah to Moses, do you find Muhammad in your books? They said: Yes. He said: What prevents you from following him? He said: God did not send a messenger except that He made for him a guardian from the angels. Gabriel is the guardian of Muhammad and he is the one who comes to him, and he is our enemy from the angels. And Michael, we have submitted. If Michael was the one who came to him, we would have submitted. He said: Then I ask you by God who sent down the Torah to Moses, what is their status with God Almighty? They said: Gabriel is on his right, and Michael is on his left. Omar said: I bear witness that they do not descend except by the permission of God. Michael would not make peace with the enemy of Gabriel, and Gabriel would not make peace with the enemy of Michael. While he was with them, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by. They said: This is your companion, O Ibn Al-Khattab. Omar went to him and God, the Almighty, had revealed: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers. These two chains of transmission indicate that Al-Sha'bi narrated it from Omar, but there is a break between him and Omar, as he did not live in his time. And God knows best. Ibn Jubayr said: Bashir told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah, who said: It was mentioned to us that Omar bin al-Khattab went to the Jews one day. When he returned and they welcomed him, Omar said to them: By God, I did not come to you out of love for you or desire for you, but I came to hear from you. So he asked them and they asked him, and they said: Who is the companion of your companion? He said to them: Gabriel. They said: That is our enemy from the people of heaven who reveals our secret to Muhammad, and when he comes he brings war and strife, but the companion of our companion is Michael, and when he comes he brings fertility and peace. So Omar said to them: Do you recognize Gabriel, and you deny Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace? Then Omar left them and went towards the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to tell him their story, and he found that this verse had been revealed to him: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - for he has brought the Qur'an down upon your heart by God's permission" (al-An'am 2:10).

Whoever is an enemy to Allah and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, Allah is an enemy to the disbelievers.

Then he said: Al-Muthanna told me, Adam told us, Abu Ja'far told us, Qatada told us, he said: It reached us that 'Umar came to the Jews one day and mentioned something similar, and this is in the interpretation of Adam and it is also disconnected, and likewise Asbat narrated it from Al-Suddi from 'Umar something similar or similar, and it is also disconnected. And Ibn Ibn Hatim said: Muhammad Ibn 'Ammar told us, 'Abd Al-Rahman told us, meaning Al-Dashtaki told us, Abu Ja'far told us from Hisayn Ibn 'Abd Al-Rahman, from 'Abd Al-Rahman, who is 'Abd Al-Rahman Ibn Abi Laila: That a Jew met 'Umar Ibn Al-Khattab and said: Gabriel, whom your companion mentions, is an enemy to us, so 'Umar said: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael, then indeed God is an enemy to the disbelievers. He said: So it was revealed on the tongue of 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, and 'Abd Ibn Hamid narrated it from Abu Al-Nadr Hashim Ibn Al-Qasim, from Abu Ja'far, who is Al-Razi, and Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub Ibn Ibrahim told me, Hisham told me, Husayn Ibn 'Abd Al-Rahman told us, from Ibn Abi Laila regarding his statement: God the Almighty said: Who is an enemy to Gabriel? He said: The Jews said to the Muslims: If Michael was the one who descends upon you, we would follow you, for he descends with mercy and rain, but Gabriel descends with torment and vengeance, so he is an enemy to us. He said: So this verse was revealed. Yaqub told us, Hisham told us, Abdul Malik told us on the authority of Ata' something similar. Abdul Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatadah regarding His statement: "Say: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?" He said: The Jews said: Gabriel is an enemy to us, because he descends with hardship and famine, and Michael descends with ease, health and fertility, so Gabriel is an enemy to us. So God the Almighty said: Who is an enemy to Gabriel?

As for the interpretation of the verse, the Almighty said: "Say: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel," then he brought it down to your heart by the permission of God, meaning whoever is hostile to Gabriel, let him know that he is the trustworthy spirit who brought down the wise remembrance to your heart from God by His permission for him to do so. He is a messenger from the messengers of God, an angel. Whoever is hostile to a messenger has been hostile to all the messengers, just as whoever believes in a messenger is obligated to believe in all the messengers, and just as whoever disbelieves in a messenger is obligated to disbelieve in all the messengers, as God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who disbelieve in God and His messengers and wish to differentiate between God and His messengers and say, 'We believe in some and disbelieve in others,' 2:100. So He ruled that they are true disbelievers if they believe in some of the messengers and disbelieve in others. Likewise, whoever is hostile to Gabriel is an enemy of God, because Gabriel does not bring down the command of his own accord, but rather he comes down by the command of his Lord, as He said: And We do not descend except by the command of your Lord, 2:100. And God the Almighty said: "And indeed, it is a revelation from the Lord of the worlds. * The Trustworthy Spirit has brought it down * Upon your heart that you may be among the warners." Al-Bukhari narrated in It is authentically reported on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever shows enmity to a friend of Mine has declared war on Me. For this reason, God became angry with Gabriel for whoever showed enmity to him, and God the Almighty said: Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart by God's permission, confirming what was before it meaning of the previous books: And guidance and good tidings for the believers meaning guidance for their hearts and good tidings for them of Paradise, and that is only for the believers, as God the Almighty said: Say, 'It is, for those who believe, a guide and a cure' 3:17. And God the Almighty said: And We send down from the Qur'an that which is a healing and a mercy for the believers 3:17. Then God the Almighty said: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers 3:17. God the Almighty says: Whoever is an enemy to Me and My angels and My messengers, and His messengers include His messengers from the angels and from the humans, as God the Almighty said: God chooses from the angels messengers and from the people. "Gabriel and Michael" This is a case of connecting the specific to the general, as they were included among the angels in the generality of the messengers, then they were specifically mentioned because the context is in support of Gabriel, who is the ambassador between God and His prophets, and Michael was paired with him in the wording, because the Jews claimed that Gabriel was their enemy, and Michael was their friend, so God Almighty informed them that whoever is hostile to one of them has been hostile to the other and hostile to God as well, and because he also descends to the prophets of God sometimes, as he was paired with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, at the beginning, but Gabriel is more and it is his job, and Michael is entrusted with plants and rain, this one with guidance and this one with provision, just as Israfil is entrusted with blowing the trumpet for the resurrection on the Day of Resurrection, and for this reason it came in the Sahih that "when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, got up at night he would say: O God, Lord of Gabriel, Michael, and Israfil, Creator of the heavens and the earth, Knower of the unseen and the seen, You judge between Your servants in that in which they differ, guide me to the truth in that in which they differ by Your permission, for You guide whomever You will." To the straight path." Al-Bukhari has already narrated, and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah and others that he said, Jabr, Mika, and Israfil are slaves, and Il is God. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Raja', on the authority of Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: His saying Gabriel was like his saying Abdullah and Abd al-Rahman. It was said that Jabr is a slave, and Il is God. Muhammad bin Ishaq said on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ali bin al-Husayn, who said: Do you know what Gabriel's name is among your names? We said: No. He said: His name is Abdullah, and every name that goes back to Il is to God, the Almighty and Majestic. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, and Yahya bin Ya'mar. Then he said: My father told me, Ahmad bin Abi Al-Hawari told us, Abdul Aziz bin Umair told me: The name Gabriel among the angels is the servant of God. He said: So I told it to Abu Sulayman Al-Darani, and he was shaken and said: This hadith is dearer to me than anything in a notebook that was in his hands. And Gabriel and Michael have dialects and readings that are mentioned in the books of language and readings, and we did not prolong this book of ours by listing that unless the understanding of the meaning revolves around it, or the judgment in that goes back to it, and in God is trust and He is the one sought for help. And the Almighty's saying: Then God is an enemy to the disbelievers in it is the placement of the explicit in place of the implicit where He did not say: then he is an enemy, but rather He said: Then God is an enemy to the disbelievers as the poet said:

I do not see death preceded by anything that made death bitter to the rich and the poor

The other said:

If only the crow would caw constantly tomorrow, it would be a crow with severed jugular veins.

Whoever is an enemy to Allah and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, Allah is an enemy to the disbelievers.

God has only revealed this name here to establish and make clear this meaning, and to inform them that whoever is hostile to a friend of God has been hostile to God, and whoever is hostile to God, then God is his enemy, and whoever is his enemy has lost this world and the hereafter, as the hadith has mentioned:

Whoever is hostile to a friend of Mine, then I have declared war on him. And in another hadith: I will take revenge for My friends as a lion takes revenge for war. And in the authentic hadith: Whoever I am an opponent of, I will be his opponent.

Fath al-Qadir

Then the Almighty followed this speech with a sentence that includes a condition and a penalty that includes censure for whoever is hostile to Gabriel for that reason and a severe threat to him, so He said: 98- Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers. Enmity from the servant is the issuance of sins from him towards God and hatred for His friends, and enmity from God towards the servant is punishing him for his sin and not overlooking it or forgiving him - and Gabriel and Michael were mentioned specifically after mentioning the angels in order to honor them and indicate their excellence, and that even though they are from the angels, they have become, in consideration of what they have of excellence, in the position of another genus more honorable than the genus of angels, reducing the descriptive difference to the level of intrinsic difference as mentioned by the author of Al-Kashshaf and established by the scholars of rhetoric. And Gabriel has ten languages mentioned by Ibn Jarir Al-Tabari and others, and we have already indicated that. And in Michael there are six languages, and they are two foreign names, and the Arabs, when they pronounce it in a foreign language, are lenient with it. Al-Zamakhshari narrated on the authority of Ibn Jinni that he said: The Arabs, when they pronounce it in a foreign language, mix it up. And his saying: for the disbelievers is from placing the apparent in place of the implicit: meaning that God is an enemy to them, with the intention of indicating that this enmity necessitates the disbelief of whoever it occurs from. Ahmad, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani, Abu Nu'aym and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: "A group of Jews attended the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: 'O Abu al-Qasim, tell us about characteristics that we ask you about and that only a prophet knows.' He said: 'Ask me whatever you wish.' So they asked him and he answered them. Then they said: 'Tell us who is your guardian among the angels, so that we may either have intercourse with you or leave you.' He said: 'My guardian is Gabriel, and God never sent a prophet except that he is his guardian.' They said: 'Then we will leave you. If your guardian were other than him among the angels, we would follow you and believe you.' He said: 'What prevents you from believing him?' They said: 'This is our enemy.' At that point God revealed the verse." Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated something similar in al-Musannaf, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of al-Sha'bi on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab in a story that happened to him with them, and its chain of transmission is sound, but al-Sha'bi did not meet Umar. It was narrated by Ikrimah, Qatadah, al-Suddi and Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Layla on the authority of Umar. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, Abd ibn Humayd, al-Bukhari, al-Nasa'i and others narrated on the authority of Anas that he said: "Abdullah ibn Salam heard of the arrival of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was in a land collecting dung beetles. He came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: 'I am going to ask you about three things that only a prophet knows: What is the first sign of the Hour? What is the first food of the people of Paradise? What makes a child gravitate towards his father or mother?' He said: 'Gabriel told me about them just now.' Gabriel said: 'Yes.' He said: 'That is the enemy of the Jews from among the angels.' Then he recited this verse: 'Whoever is an enemy to Gabriel - indeed, he has brought it down upon your heart.' He said: 'As for the first sign of the Hour, it is a fire that will come out from the east and will gather people to the west. As for the first thing that the people of Paradise will eat, it is the extra liver of a fish. As for what makes a child gravitate towards his father or mother, if the man's semen precedes the woman's semen, the child will be drawn to him. If the woman's semen precedes the man's semen, the child will be drawn to her.' He said: 'I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God.'" Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: For He has brought it down upon your heart by permission of God, meaning: Gabriel brought down the Qur'an by the command of God, strengthening your heart and binding it to your heart. Confirming what was before it, meaning what came before it of the books that He revealed, the verses, and the messengers that God sent. Al-Suyuti mentioned in this place in his interpretation, Al-Durr Al-Manthur, many hadiths about Gabriel and Michael, but they are not related to interpretation so we should mention them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

98. The Almighty's saying: Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael He singled them out for mention from among the angels even though they are included in His saying and His angels as a distinction and specification, like His Almighty's saying: In them are fruits and date palms and pomegranates 68-Ar-Rahman. He singled out the date palms and pomegranates for mention even though they are included in the mention of fruits, and the waw in them means: or, meaning whoever is an enemy to one of these then he is an enemy to all, because the one who disbelieves in one is a disbeliever in all Then God is an enemy to the disbelievers Ikrimah said: Gabriel, Michael, and Israfil are the servants in Syriac, and Wail is God Almighty, and their meanings are the servant of God and the servant of the Most Merciful. Ibn Kathir read Gabriel with a fat-ha on the jim without a hamza, with the weight of Fa'il. Hassan said:

Gabriel is the Messenger of God among us, and the Holy Spirit has no equal.

Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read it with a hamza and zalat al-ishba' with the weight of Salsabil, and Abu Bakr read it with ikhtilas, and the others read it with a kasra on the jim without a hamza, and N and Mika'il, Abu Amr, Ya'qub and Hafs read Mika'il without a hamza. Jarir said:

They worshipped the cross, lied about Muhammad, Gabriel, and Michael.

Another said:

And on the day of Badr, we met you, and Gabriel and Michael were our support for victory.

Nafi' read: with a hamza and abbreviation, with the weight of mifa'al, and the others read: with a hamza and saturation, with the weight of mika'il, and Ibn Suriya said: You did not bring us anything that we know, so God Almighty revealed:

Tafsir al-Baidawi

98- Whoever is an enemy to God and His angels and His messengers and Gabriel and Michael - then indeed, God is an enemy to the disbelievers. By enmity to God, he meant opposition out of stubbornness, or enmity to those close to His worship. The speech began with mentioning them to magnify their status, as in the Almighty's saying: And God and His Messenger are more deserving that they should please Him. He mentioned the two angels separately because of their excellence, as if they were of a different kind, and to draw attention to the fact that enmity to one and to all is the same in disbelief and incurring enmity from God, the Almighty, and that whoever is an enemy to one of them is as if he is an enemy to all of them, since the obligation for their enmity and love in reality is one, and because the argument was between them. He put the apparent in place of the implicit to indicate that God, the Almighty, was an enemy to them because of their disbelief, and that enmity to the angels and messengers is disbelief. Nafi' read Mika'il as Mika'il, and Abu 'Amr, Ya'qub, and 'Asim, according to the narration of Hafs, read it as Mika'il as Mi'ad, and the rest read it as Mika'il with a hamza and a ya' after it. Mika'il was read as Mika'il, Mika'il as Mika'il, and Mika'il.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:99

And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:99

And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And We have certainly sent down to you O Muhammad clear verses meaning clear in state, a response to Ibn Suriya's statement to the Prophet, You have not brought us anything. And none disbelieve in them except the wicked they disbelieved in them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And We have certainly sent down to you the two verses. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Ibn Suriya said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, you have not brought us anything that we know of, and God has not sent down to you a clear verse. So God revealed regarding that: And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, the verse. And Malik bin Al-Saif said when the Messenger of God was sent and mentioned what he took from them of the covenant and what he entrusted to them regarding Muhammad, and by God he did not entrust us with Muhammad nor did he take a covenant from us, so God Almighty revealed: Or whenever they made a covenant, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What God, the Most High, meant by His statement: And We have sent down to you verses is that We have sent down to you, O Muhammad, clear signs indicating your prophethood. And those verses are what the Book of God, which He sent down to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, contained of the hidden knowledge of the Jews and the hidden secrets of their report and the report of their forefathers from the Children of Israel, and the report of what their books contained that no one knew except their rabbis and scholars and what their first and last ones distorted and changed of their rulings that were in the Torah. So God revealed them in His Book that He sent down to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. So in that of His command were clear verses for he who is fair to himself and is not led to his destruction by envy and transgression. Since it is in the nature of every person with a sound nature to believe in someone who brings the clear signs that have been described as what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought, without learning it from a human being, nor taking anything of it from a human being. And similar to what we have said about that, the report was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, he said, Bishr bin Amara told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And We have certainly sent down to you clear signs. He said: So you recite it to them, and inform them of it morning and evening and in between, and you are illiterate in their view, having not read a book, and you inform them of what is in their hands in its entirety. God says: In that is a lesson and a statement for them, and against them is an argument if they only knew.

Ibn Humayd told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told us, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, the client of Zayd ibn Thabit, told me, on the authority of Ikrimah, the client of Ibn Abbas, and on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: "Ibn Suriya al-Futuni said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, you have not brought us anything that we recognize, and God has not sent down to you a clear sign that we can follow you with. So God Almighty sent down: 'And We have certainly sent down to you clear signs, and none disbelieve in them except the wicked.'"

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit, told me, he said, Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ibn Suriya said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he mentioned something similar.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And none disbelieve in it except the wicked.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, None disbelieve in it except the wicked, is that none rejects it. We have already demonstrated in the past part of this book that the meaning of disbelief is denial, so there is no need to repeat it here. We have also explained the meaning of wickedness, which is to depart from one thing to another.

The interpretation of the verse: And We have sent down to you, in what We have revealed to you of the Book, clear signs that make clear to the scholars and rabbis of the Children of Israel who deny your prophethood and reject your message that you are a messenger to them and a prophet sent. And none of them denies those signs, which indicate your truthfulness and prophethood, which I have sent down to you in My Book and denies them, except he among them who has abandoned his religion, who has abandoned My obligations in the Book which he believes in. As for he among them who adheres to his religion and follows the rulings of His Book, then he believes in what I have sent down to you of My signs. And they are those who believed in God and believed in His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from among the Jews of the Children of Israel.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: This is an answer to Ibn Suriya when he said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, you have not brought us anything that we recognize, and what clear sign has been revealed to you that we may follow you with? So God revealed this verse, as mentioned by Al-Tabari.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Indeed, We have sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient. * Or whenever they make a covenant, a party of them casts it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe. * And when there came to them a messenger from God confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture cast the Scripture of God behind their backs as if they did not know. * And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said about the words of God the Almighty: And We have sent down to you clear verses the verse, meaning, We have sent down to you, O Muhammad, clear signs, indicating your prophethood, and those verses are what the Book of God contains of the hidden knowledge of the Jews, and the hidden secrets of their report and the report of their forefathers from the Children of Israel, and the report of what their books contained that only their rabbis and scholars knew, and what their forefathers and later ones distorted and changed of their rulings that It was in the Torah, so God revealed in His Book that He sent down to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and in that were clear signs for those who were fair to themselves and did not let envy and oppression lead to their destruction, since it was in the nature of every person with a sound nature to believe whoever came with the clear signs that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came with, without learning it from a human being, nor taking anything from a human being, as Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And We have sent down to you clear signs, meaning: So you recite it to them and inform them of it morning and evening and in between, and you are illiterate in their eyes, you have not read a book, and you inform them of what is in their hands in its face, God Almighty says in that a lesson and clarification, and upon them is an argument if they only knew. Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ibn Suriya Al-Qatwini said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, you have not brought us anything that we know, and God has not sent down to you a clear sign. And we follow you, so God revealed in that regard from His saying: And We have certainly sent down to you clear signs, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient. Malik bin Al-Saif said when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent: And he reminded them of the covenant that was taken from them and what was entrusted to them regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and by God, He did not entrust us regarding Muhammad, nor did He take a covenant from us, so God, the Most High, revealed: Or every time they make a covenant, a party of them casts it aside? Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: In His saying: But most of them do not believe, he said: Yes, there is no covenant on earth that they make except that they break it and cast it aside, they make a covenant today and break it tomorrow. Al-Suddi said: They do not believe in what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought. Qatada said: A party of them cast it aside, meaning a party of them broke it. Ibn Jarir said: The origin of Nabdh is throwing and casting, and from it the founding is called Manbudh, and from it Nabidh is called, which is dates and raisins if they are thrown into water. Abu Al-Aswad Al-Du'ali said: I looked at its label and threw it away as you throw away a worn-out sandal. From your sandals I said: The people were blamed by God for their abandonment of the covenants that God had given them to adhere to and fulfill their rights, and for this reason He followed that with the denial of the Messenger sent to them and to all people, whose description, description and report are in their books, and in which they were commanded to follow him, support him and aid him, as God Almighty said: Those who follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet, whom they find written in what they have of the Torah and the Gospel 10:13, and He said here: And when there came to them a Messenger from God confirming what was with them 10:13, meaning a group of them threw the Book of God that was in their hands, which contained the good report of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, behind their backs, meaning they abandoned it as if they did not know what was in it, and they turned to learning magic and following it, and for this reason they wanted to plot against the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they bewitched him with a comb, a tong and the dried skin of a male palm tree under a ra'ufah in the well of Arwan, and the one who took charge of that among them was a man called Labid bin Al-A'sam, may God curse him and make him ugly, so God informed His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, of that And he delivered him and cured him of it and saved him, as was proven in detail in the two Sahihs on the authority of Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, as will be explained. Al-Suddi said, And when there came to them a Messenger from God confirming what was with them, he said: When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them, they opposed him with the Torah, so they argued with him about it, and the Torah and the Qur'an agreed, so they rejected the Torah and took the book of Asif, and the magic of Harut and Marut, so it did not agree with the Qur'an. This is what He said, As if they did not know. Qatada said regarding His statement, As if they did not know, he said: The people knew, but they rejected their knowledge and concealed it and denied it. Al-Awfi said in his interpretation on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God Almighty, And they followed what the devils recited, the verse, and when the kingdom of Solomon was gone, groups of the jinn and humans apostatized and followed desires. When God restored Solomon's kingdom to Solomon, and the people stood upon the religion as it was, and Solomon appeared upon their books, he buried them under his throne, and Solomon, peace be upon him, died, and that happened, so the humans and jinn appeared upon the books after the death of Solomon and they said: This is a book from God that was sent down to Solomon, but he hid it from us, so they took it and made it a religion, so God revealed: And when there came to them a messenger from God confirming what was with them (1:100) and they followed the desires that the devils recited, which are musical instruments and games and everything that distracts from the remembrance of God. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja told us, Abu Usamah told us on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Minhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Asaf was Solomon's scribe, and he knew the Greatest Name, and he used to write everything by Solomon's command and bury it under his throne, so when Solomon died, the devils brought him out, and they wrote between every two lines magic and blasphemy, and they said: This is what Solomon used to do. He said: So the ignorant people disbelieved in him and cursed him, and the scholars of the people stopped, so the ignorant people continued to curse him until God revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved" (1:100) and Ibn Jarir said: Abu Al-Sa'ib Salim bin Junadah told me Al-Suwa'i narrated to us, Abu Mu'awiyah, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Solomon, peace be upon him, wanted to go to the toilet or have intercourse with any of his wives, he would give his ring to the locust, which was a woman. When God wanted to test Solomon, peace be upon him, with what He tested him with, He gave the locust his ring one day. Then Satan came in the form of Solomon and said: Give me my ring. So he took it and wore it. When he wore it, the devils, jinn, and humans obeyed him. He said: So Solomon came to her and said to her: Give me my ring. She said: You lied, you are not Solomon. He said: So Solomon realized that it was a trial with which he was tested. He said: So the devils went out and wrote books in those days that contained magic and blasphemy. They buried them under Solomon's throne, then they took them out and read them to the people and said: Solomon used to overcome the people with these books. He said: So the people disavowed Solomon and disbelieved in him until God sent Muhammad, peace be upon him, and revealed to him: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. Then Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid narrated to us, Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Husayn ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Imran, who is the son of al-Harith, who said: While we were with Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, a man came and said to him: Where did you come from? He said: From Iraq. He said: From which country? He said: From Kufa. He said: What is the report? He said: I left them talking that Ali is coming to them, so he was frightened, then he said: What are you saying, may your father be cursed? If we knew, we would not have married his women or divided his inheritance. As for me, I will tell you about that. The devils used to eavesdrop from the sky, and one of them would come with a word of truth that he had heard. If he was tested and believed it, he would lie with it seventy lies. He said: So the hearts of the people would absorb it. He said: So God informed Solomon, peace be upon him, of it, so he buried it under his throne. When Solomon, peace be upon him, died, the devil of the road stood up and said: Shall I guide you to his forbidden treasure, the like of which is unmatched? Under the throne. So they took him out, and he said: This is magic. The nations copied it until the remnants of it were what the people of Iraq were talking about. Then God, the Almighty, revealed: "And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." The verse. Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak on the authority of Abu Zakariya al-Anbari, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Salam, on the authority of Ishaq ibn Ibrahim, on the authority of Jarir, on his authority. Al-Suddi said about the words of God Almighty: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon, meaning during the reign of Solomon. He said: The devils would ascend to the heavens and sit in places to listen, and they would listen to the words of the angels about what would happen on earth of death, the unseen, or any matter. They would go to the priests and inform them, and the priests would tell the people and they would find it as they said. When the priests trusted them, they lied to them and inserted something else into it, adding seventy words to each word. The people wrote down that hadith in books, and it spread among the Children of Israel that the jinn knew the unseen. So Solomon sent among the people, and he collected those books and put them in a chest, then buried them under his throne. No devil could come near the throne without being burned. He said: I do not hear anyone mentioning that the devils know the unseen without being struck. When Solomon died, and the scholars who knew about Solomon were gone, and after that there was a successor, Satan appeared in the form of a human being and then came to a group of the Children of Israel and said to them: Shall I guide you to a treasure that you will never eat? They said: Yes. He said: Dig under the throne. So he went with them and showed them the place and stood near it. They said to him: Come closer. He said: No, but I am here in your hands. If you do not find it, kill me. So they dug and found those books. When they took them out, Satan said: Solomon only controlled humans, devils and birds with this magic. Then he flew away and spread among the people that Solomon was a magician. The Children of Israel took those books. When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came, they argued with him about them. That is when God Almighty says: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: The Jews asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, about matters from the Torah for a time, and they would not ask him about anything except that God Almighty revealed what they asked him about, so he argued with them. When they saw that They said: He knows better than we do what God has revealed to us. They asked him about magic and argued with him about it, so God the Almighty revealed: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic." The devils took a book and wrote in it magic and divination and whatever God willed of that, and buried it under the seat of Solomon's council. He, peace be upon him, did not know the unseen. When Solomon left this world, they extracted that magic and deceived the people and said: This is knowledge that Solomon concealed and envied the people for. The Prophet, peace be upon him, informed them of this hadith, so they returned from him and God had refuted their argument. Mujahid said about the Almighty's statement: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, that the devils listened to the revelation, but whenever they heard a word they added two hundred like it. So Solomon, peace be upon him, sent for what they had written of that, and when Solomon died, the devils found it and taught it to the people, which was magic. Saeed bin Jubair said: Solomon used to track down what magic was in the hands of the devils and take it from them and bury it under his seat in his treasury house, but the devils could not. To reach him, so he approached the people and they said to them, Do you know what knowledge Solomon used to subjugate the devils, winds, and other things? They said: Yes. They said: It is in his treasury and under his chair. He consulted people about it and they extracted it and worked with it. The people of Hijaz said: Solomon knew about this and this is magic. So God Almighty revealed to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, the innocence of Solomon, peace be upon him, and God Almighty said: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Yasar said: When the devils learned of the death of Solomon, son of David, peace be upon him, the devils deliberately wrote down the types of magic. Whoever wants to achieve such-and-such should do such-and-such. When they classified the types of magic, they put it in a book and sealed it with a seal engraved with the seal of Solomon and wrote on its title: This is what Asaf bin Barkhiya the Truthful wrote to King Solomon, son of David, from the treasures of the treasures of knowledge. Then they buried it under his chair and the remnants of the Children of Israel extracted it after that until they innovated what they innovated. When they found it, they said: By God, Solomon's reign was only this. So they spread magic among the people and they learned it and taught it. There is no one who has it more than the Jews, may God curse them. So when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned in what was revealed to him: From God, Solomon, son of David, and He promised him among those He counted among the messengers. The Jews in Medina said: Do you not marvel at Muhammad, who claims that the son of David was a prophet, when by God he was nothing but a magician? And God revealed in that regard their saying: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." The verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told us: Hussain told us: Al-Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, who said: When Solomon's kingdom was taken away, the devils used to write down magic during Solomon's absence. They wrote: Whoever wants to do such and such should face the sun and say such and such, and whoever wants to do such and such should turn his back to the sun and say such and such. So they wrote it down and made its title: This is what Asaf bin Barkhiya wrote to King Solomon, son of David, peace be upon them, from the treasures of the treasures of knowledge. Then he buried it under his throne. When Solomon, peace be upon him, died, Satan, may God curse him, stood up and gave a sermon and said: O people, Solomon was not a prophet, but a magician, so seek out his magic in his belongings and houses. Then He showed them the place where he was buried, and they said: By God, Solomon was a magician, this is his magic, this is how we worship him and this is how we are subdued. The believers said: Rather, he was a believing prophet. When God sent the Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned David and Solomon, the Jews said: Look at Muhammad mixing truth with falsehood, mentioning Solomon with the prophets, he was only a magician who rode the wind. Then God Almighty revealed: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. And Solomon did not disbelieve." Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Abdul A'la al-San'ani told us, al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, he said: I heard Imran bin Hudayr from Abu Majlaz who said: Solomon, peace be upon him, took a covenant from every animal, and if a man was afflicted and asked about that covenant, he was released. So the people increased the rhyme and magic, and they said: This is what Solomon, son of David, peace be upon them, did. Then God Almighty said: And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Issam bin Rawad told us, Adam told us, al-Mas'udi told us, on the authority of Ziyad, the client of Ibn Mus'ab, on the authority of al-Hasan, "And they followed What the devils recite" He said: A third of poetry, a third of magic, and a third of divination. He said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashir Al-Wasiti told us, Surur bin Al-Mughira told me, on the authority of Ibad bin Mansour, on the authority of Al-Hasan: "And they followed what the devils recite during the reign of Solomon" and the Jews followed it during his reign, and magic was on earth before that and had not ceased to exist in it, but it was only followed during the reign of Solomon. This is a summary of the sayings of the Imams of the Salaf in this regard, and the summary of the story and the combination of its parts and that there is no contradiction between the contexts is not hidden from the intelligent and understanding, and God is the guide. And the Almighty said: "And they followed what the devils recite during the reign of Solomon" meaning and the Jews who were given the Book followed after their turning away from the Book of

And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient.

And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient.

God that was in their hands, and their opposition to the Messenger of God Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, what the devils recite, meaning what the devils narrate and tell and speak during the reign of Solomon, and he made it transitive with "ala because it included recite and lie". Ibn Jarir said "ala here means in", meaning they recite during the reign of Solomon, and he transmitted it from Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Isaac I said and the inclusion is better and more appropriate, and God knows best. And the saying of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, may God have mercy on him, and the magic was before the time of Solomon, son of David - is correct without a doubt, because the magicians were in the time of Moses, peace be upon him, and Solomon, son of David, after him, as God Almighty said, "Have you not seen the assembly of the Children of Israel after Moses?" The verse, then he mentioned the story after it and in it, And David killed Goliath, and God gave him the kingdom and wisdom. And the people of Salih, who were before Abraham, peace be upon him, said to their prophet Salih, You are only one of those bewitched, meaning those bewitched according to the well-known, and God Almighty said, And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, and they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve, and they learned from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife." People differed in this regard, so some of them went to the fact that what is negative, I mean that which is in His statement, and what was revealed to the two angels, Al-Qurtubi said: what is negative and is connected to His statement, "and Solomon did not disbelieve, then he said, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels, and that is because the Jews were claiming That Gabriel and Michael came down with it, so God denied them and made His saying Harut and Marut instead of the devils. He said: This is correct either because the plural is used for the two as in the Almighty's saying: If he has brothers, or because they have followers or are mentioned among them for their rebellion, the meaning of the speech is that they teach people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut. Then he said: This is the most appropriate and correct way to interpret the verse and no attention should be paid to anything else. Ibn Jarir narrated with his chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas in his saying and what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon the verse, he says God did not reveal magic. And with his chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas in his saying and what was revealed to the two angels he said: God did not reveal magic to them. Ibn Jarir said: So the interpretation of the verse according to this is and they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon of magic, and Solomon did not disbelieve nor did God reveal magic to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so His saying in Babylon, Harut and Marut is from the delayed meaning of the advanced. He said: If someone were to say to us: How did this come to mind? It was said that the reason for presenting it is to say, And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, of magic, and Solomon did not disbelieve, and God did not send down magic to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so it is meant by the two angels Gabriel and Michael, peace be upon them, because the Jewish magicians, as I mentioned, claimed that God sent down magic through the tongues of Gabriel and Michael to Solomon, son of David, so God denied them in that. He informed His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that Gabriel and Michael did not send down magic, and he acquitted Solomon, peace be upon him, of what they attributed to them of magic, and he informed them that magic is the work of the devils and that they teach it to people in Babylon, and that those who teach them that are two men: one of them is named Harut, and the other is named Marut, so Harut and Marut, according to this interpretation, are a translation from the people and a response to them. This is its wording verbatim, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: I was told by Ubaydullah bin Musa, Fadil bin Marzuq told us, on the authority of Atiyah, And what was sent down to the two angels, he said: God did not send down magic to Gabriel and Michael, he said: Ibn Abi Hatim: Al-Fadl ibn Shadhan informed us, Muhammad ibn Isa informed us, Ya'la, meaning Ibn Asad informed us, Bakr, meaning Ibn Mus'ab informed us, Al-Hasan ibn Abi Ja'far informed us: that 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abza used to recite it: And what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. Abu al-'Aliyah said: Magic was not revealed to them, meaning: knowledge of faith and disbelief, so magic is from disbelief, so they forbid it most strongly. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Then Ibn Jarir began to refute this statement, and that what means which, and he spoke at length about that and claimed that Harut and Marut were two angels whom God sent down to earth and permitted them to teach magic as a test and examination for His servants after He made clear to His servants that it is something that is forbidden on the tongues of the Messengers. He claimed that Harut and Marut were obedient in teaching that, because they complied with what they were commanded to do. This is something that he followed, and stranger than that is the statement of those who claimed that Harut and Marut were two tribes of the jinn, as Ibn Hazm claimed. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: On the authority of Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim that he used to read it and what was sent down to the two angels and he said: They are two giants from the people of Babylon. The proponents of this opinion explained that sending down means creation, not inspiration, as in the words of God Almighty: and what was sent down to the two angels as God Almighty said: And He sent down for you eight pairs of livestock "and We sent down iron, wherein is great strength" and He sends down for you provision from the sky and in the hadith: God has not sent down a disease except that He has sent down a cure for it and as it is said: God sent down good and evil. Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ibn Abza and Al-Hasan Al-Basri that they read and what was sent down to the two angels with a kasra on the lam. Ibn Abza said: They are David and Solomon. Al-Qurtubi said:

According to this, what is also a negative. Others stopped at his words they teach people magic and what is a negative. Ibn Jarir said: Yunus told me, Ibn Wahb told us, Al-Layth told us on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Muhammad and a man asked him about the words of God Almighty: they teach people magic and what was sent down to the two angels In Babylon, Harut and Marut." He said: The two men teach people what was revealed to them and teach people what was not revealed to them. Al-Qasim said: I do not care which of them it was. Then he narrated on the authority of Yunus on the authority of Anas bin Ayyad on the authority of some of his companions that Al-Qasim said in this story: I do not care which of them it was, I believed in it. Many of the predecessors believed that they were two angels from heaven, and that they were sent down to earth, and what happened to them happened. A hadith was narrated on this subject by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad, may God have mercy on him, as we will mention, God willing. Based on this, the combination between this and what was reported of the evidence for the infallibility of the angels is that God had previously known about these two, so it is a specification for them, so there is no contradiction then, as was previously mentioned in His knowledge of the matter of Iblis, and in His statement that he was one of the angels, based on the Almighty's statement: And when We said to the angels, 'Prostrate to Adam,' and they prostrated, except for Iblis, he refused. And other verses indicating this, even though the matter of Harut and Marut is as mentioned. Less severe than what happened from Satan, may God curse him. Al-Qurtubi narrated it on the authority of Ali, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Ibn Omar, Kaab al-Ahbar, al-Suddi, and al-Kalbi.

was revealed about Ibn Suriya when he said to his Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, "You have not brought us anything that we recognize, and no verse has been sent down to you for us to follow you."

Fath al-Qadir

The pronoun in His statement: 99- "To you" refers to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: meaning, We sent down clear signs indicating your prophethood. And His statement: "Except the wicked" has been explained previously, and it appears that what is meant is the wicked race, and it is possible that what is meant is the Jews because the speech is with them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

99. And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses clear and detailed about what is permissible and what is forbidden, the limits and the rulings and none disbelieve in them except the wicked those who go against the command of God Almighty.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

99- "And We have certainly sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient." That is, the rebellious disbelievers. When defiant is used in a type of sin, it indicates its enormity, as if it is exceeding its limit. It

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:100

Or is it that every time they make a covenant, a party of them throws it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:100

Or is it that every time they make a covenant, a party of them throws it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Or whenever they made a covenant with God a covenant to believe in the Prophet if he came out, or the Prophet that they would not help the polytheists against him a group of them threw it away discarded it by violating it, the answer to whenever and it is the subject of the rhetorical question rather for the transition most of them do not believe

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: The Arab scholars differed regarding the ruling on the waw in his statement: Or whenever they make a covenant. Some of the Basran grammarians said: It is a waw that is used with interrogative letters, and it is like the fa' in his statement: So is it that every time there came to you a messenger with what your souls did not desire, you were arrogant? (al-Baqarah 2:87). He said: They are both redundant in this sense, and it is like the fa' in his statement: By God, you will do such and such, and like your saying to a man: Will you not stand up? If you wish, you can make the fa' and the waw here a conjunction.

Some Kufi grammarians said: It is a conjunction with a question mark added to it.

The correct opinion in this regard, in my opinion, is that it is a conjunction waw, to which the interrogative alif was inserted, as if God Almighty said: "And when We took your covenant and raised the mount above you, [saying], 'Take what We have given you with strength and listen.' They said, 'We hear and disobey.' And whenever they made a covenant, a party of them threw it away." Then He inserted the interrogative alif on and every time, and said: They said, 'We hear and disobey.' Or, whenever they made a covenant, a party of them threw it away.

We have previously explained that it is not permissible for there to be a letter in the Book of God that has no meaning, so that makes it unnecessary to repeat the explanation of the corruption of the statement of the one who claimed that the waw and fa' in His saying: or whenever and afkalma are redundant and have no meaning.

As for the covenant, it is the pledge that the Children of Israel gave to their Lord to act according to what is in the Torah time after time, then some of them broke it time after time. So He, the Most High, rebuked them for what they did in that, and He reproached their children for it, because they followed their path in some of what He, the Most High, had taken from them to believe in from the command of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, of the covenant and pledge, so they disbelieved and denied what is in the Torah of His description and attributes. So God, the Most High, said: Did every time the Jews from the Children of Israel made a covenant with their Lord and strengthened it with a covenant, a party of them threw it away, abandoned it and broke it? Like:

Abu Kurayb told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Ibn Ishaq told us, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zayd bin Thabit, told me, Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Malik bin Al-Saif said when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent, and he mentioned the covenant that he took from them, and what God enjoined upon them concerning him: By God, He did not enjoin upon us concerning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and He did not take a covenant from us for him. So God, may His praise be exalted, revealed: Or is it that every time they make a covenant, a party of them casts it aside? In fact, most of them do not believe.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, the client of the family of Zayd ibn Thabit, told me, on the authority of Ikrimah, the client of Ibn Abbas, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, the same.

Abu Jaafar said: As for nabdh, its origin in the speech of the Arabs is throwing, and therefore the found thing is called manboth, because it is thrown away and discarded. And from this wine is called nabidh, because it is raisins or dates that are thrown into a container, then treated with water. Its origin is maf'ul, changed to fa'il, I mean that wine is originally manboth, then changed to fa'il, so it was said nabidh, just as it was said: a dyed hand, and a greased beard, meaning: dyed and greased. It is said from this: I rejected it, I rejected it nabadh, just as Abu al-Aswad al-Du'ali said:

I looked at his address, then discarded it as you would discard a worn-out sandal from yours.

The meaning of His Most High's saying: A group of them cast it aside, is that a group of them rejected it, abandoned it, rejected it, and refuted it, as:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: A group of them rejected it meaning: A group of them broke it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: A party of them cast it aside, he said: There was no covenant on earth that they would make a covenant but that they broke it, and they make a covenant today and break it tomorrow. He said: And in Abdullah's reading: A party of them broke it.

The letter ha' in his saying: nadhahu is from the mention of the covenant. So its meaning is: Every time they made a covenant, a group of them abandoned that covenant.

The team: the group, it has no singular form, like the army and the group, which have no singular form.

The ha and the mim in his saying: A group of them are from the mention of the Jews from the Children of Israel.

As for His saying: But most of them do not believe, He, the Most High, means: Rather, most of these people, whenever they make a covenant with God and firmly confirm it, a group of them breaks it and do not believe.

There are two interpretations for this: One of them is that the statement indicates an increase and multiplication in the number of those who deny and break God's covenant, over the number of the group. Then the statement would mean: Did every time the Jews from the Children of Israel made a covenant with their Lord, a group of them broke that covenant? Not that a group of them broke that, but the one who broke that and disbelieved in God, most of them, not a few of them. This is one of its interpretations.

The other aspect: That its meaning is: Did every time the Jews made a covenant with their Lord, a group of them rejected that covenant? Not that a group of them rejected that covenant and broke it, based on their belief that this is not permissible for them, but most of them do not believe in God and His messengers, nor in His promise and threat. We have previously demonstrated in this book of ours the meaning of faith, and that it is belief.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Or every time they make a covenant, He throws it away. The waw is the waw of conjunction, and the alif of interrogation is added to it just as it is added to the fa' in his saying: Then did you judge the time of ignorance?, Can you then make the deaf hear?, Do you then take him and his descendants? And on then like his saying: Athman if he occurs. This is the saying of Sibawayh. Al-Akbfash said: The waw is redundant. Al-Kisa'i's school of thought is that it is or, the waw was moved from it for ease. Some people read it or, with the waw silent, so it comes with the meaning of but, as the speaker says: I will strike you, and the respondent says: Or is God sufficient? Ibn Atiyyah said: All of this is forced, and the correct saying of Sibawayh. Every time it is accusative as an adverb, and the meaning in the verse is Malik bin al-Saif, and it is said about him Ibn al-Dayf, he had said: By God, we did not take a covenant from our book to believe in Muhammad nor a pact, so the verse was revealed. It was said that the Jews made a covenant that if Muhammad came out, they would believe in him and be with him against the polytheists of the Arabs. But when he was sent, they disbelieved in him. Ata' said: These are the covenants that were between the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Jews, but they broke them, as did the Qurayza and Nadir. The evidence for this is the statement of God Almighty: Those among them with whom you made a covenant, but they break their covenant every time, and they do not fear God.

The Almighty said: A party of them cast it aside. Casting away means throwing away and discarding, and from this comes wine and the castaway. Abu Al-Aswad said:

And tell me from whom you sent it, but you took my book to an exhibition in your north.

I looked at his address and threw it away as I would throw away a worn-out sandal from yours.

last :

Those whom you commanded to be just have rejected your Book and made lawful what is forbidden.

This is a proverb used for someone who is too busy with something to do anything about it. The Arabs say: Put this behind your back, behind you, and under your foot, meaning leave it and turn away from it. God Almighty said: And you have taken it behind you as a back. Al-Farra' recited:

Tamim bin Zaid: Do not let my need be in the back, lest I become tired of answering it.

But most of them is the beginning. They do not believe is a future verb in the position of the predicate.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Indeed, We have sent down to you clear verses, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient. * Or whenever they make a covenant, a party of them casts it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe. * And when there came to them a messenger from God confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture cast the Scripture of God behind their backs as if they did not know. * And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said about the words of God the Almighty: And We have sent down to you clear verses the verse, meaning, We have sent down to you, O Muhammad, clear signs, indicating your prophethood, and those verses are what the Book of God contains of the hidden knowledge of the Jews, and the hidden secrets of their report and the report of their forefathers from the Children of Israel, and the report of what their books contained that only their rabbis and scholars knew, and what their forefathers and later ones distorted and changed of their rulings that it was in the Torah, so God revealed in His Book that He sent down to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and in that were clear signs for those who were fair to themselves and did not let envy and oppression lead to their destruction, since it was in the nature of every person with a sound nature to believe whoever came with the clear signs that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came with, without learning it from a human being, nor taking anything from a human being, as Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And We have sent down to you clear signs, meaning: So you recite it to them and inform them of it morning and evening and in between, and you are illiterate in their eyes, you have not read a book, and you inform them of what is in their hands in its face, God Almighty says in that a lesson and clarification, and upon them is an argument if they only knew. Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ibn Suriya Al-Qatwini said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, you have not brought us anything that we know, and God has not sent down to you a clear sign. And we follow you, so God revealed in that regard from His saying: And We have certainly sent down to you clear signs, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient. Malik bin Al-Saif said when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent: And he reminded them of the covenant that was taken from them and what was entrusted to them regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and by God, He did not entrust us regarding Muhammad, nor did He take a covenant from us, so God, the Most High, revealed: Or every time they make a covenant, a party of them casts it aside? Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: In His saying: But most of them do not believe, he said: Yes, there is no covenant on earth that they make except that they break it and cast it aside, they make a covenant today and break it tomorrow. Al-Suddi said: They do not believe in what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought. Qatada said: A party of them cast it aside, meaning a party of them broke it. Ibn Jarir said: The origin of Nabdh is throwing and casting, and from it the foundling is called Manbudh, and from it Nabidh is called, which is dates and raisins if they are thrown into water. Abu Al-Aswad Al-Du'ali said: I looked at its label and threw it away as you throw away a worn-out sandal. From your sandals I said: The people were blamed by God for their abandonment of the covenants that God had given them to adhere to and fulfill their rights, and for this reason He followed that with the denial of the Messenger sent to them and to all people, whose description, description and report are in their books, and in which they were commanded to follow him, support him and aid him, as God Almighty said: Those who follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet, whom they find written in what they have of the Torah and the Gospel 10:13, and He said here: And when there came to them a Messenger from God confirming what was with them 10:13, meaning a group of them threw the Book of God that was in their hands, which contained the good report of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, behind their backs, meaning they abandoned it as if they did not know what was in it, and they turned to learning magic and following it, and for this reason they wanted to plot against the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they bewitched him with a comb, a tong and the dried skin of a male palm tree under a ra'ufah in the well of Arwan, and the one who took charge of that among them was a man called Labid bin Al-A'sam, may God curse him and make him ugly, so God informed His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, of that And he delivered him and cured him of it and saved him, as was proven in detail in the two Sahihs on the authority of Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, as will be explained. Al-Suddi said, And when there came to them a Messenger from God confirming what was with them, he said: When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them, they opposed him with the Torah, so they argued with him about it, and the Torah and the Qur'an agreed, so they rejected the Torah and took the book of Asif, and the magic of Harut and Marut, so it did not agree with the Qur'an. This is what He said, As if they did not know. Qatada said regarding His statement, As if they did not know, he said: The people knew, but they rejected their knowledge and concealed it and denied it. Al-Awfi said in his interpretation on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God Almighty, And they followed what the devils recited, the verse, and when the kingdom of Solomon was gone, groups of the jinn and humans apostatized and followed desires. When God restored Solomon's kingdom to Solomon, and the people stood upon the religion as it was, and Solomon appeared upon their books, he buried them under his throne, and Solomon, peace be upon him, died, and that happened, so the humans and jinn appeared upon the books after the death of Solomon and they said: This is a book from God that was sent down to Solomon, but he hid it from us, so they took it and made it a religion, so God revealed: And when there came to them a messenger from God confirming what was with them (1:100) and they followed the desires that the devils recited, which are musical instruments and games and everything that distracts from the remembrance of God. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja told us, Abu Usamah told us on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Minhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Asaf was Solomon's scribe, and he knew the Greatest Name, and he used to write everything by Solomon's command and bury it under his throne, so when Solomon died, the devils brought him out, and they wrote between every two lines magic and blasphemy, and they said: This is what Solomon used to do. He said: So the ignorant people disbelieved in him and cursed him, and the scholars of the people stopped, so the ignorant people continued to curse him until God revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved" (1:100) and Ibn Jarir said: Abu Al-Sa'ib Salim bin Junadah told me Al-Suwa'i narrated to us, Abu Mu'awiyah, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Solomon, peace be upon him, wanted to go to the toilet or have intercourse with any of his wives, he would give his ring to the locust, which was a woman. When God wanted to test Solomon, peace be upon him, with what He tested him with, He gave the locust his ring one day. Then Satan came in the form of

Or is it that every time they make a covenant, a party of them throws it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe.

Solomon and said: Give me my ring. So he took it and wore it. When he wore it, the devils, jinn, and humans obeyed him. He said: So Solomon came to her and said to her: Give me my ring. She said: You lied, you are not Solomon. He said: So Solomon realized that it was a trial with which he was tested. He said: So the devils went out and wrote books in those days that contained magic and blasphemy. They buried them under Solomon's throne, then they took them out and read them to the people and said: Solomon used to overcome the people with these books. He said: So the people disavowed Solomon and disbelieved in him until God sent Muhammad, peace be upon him, and revealed to him: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. Then Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid narrated to us, Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Husayn ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Imran, who is the son of al-Harith, who said: While we were with Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, a man came and said to him: Where did you come from? He said: From Iraq. He said: From which country? He said: From Kufa. He said: What is the report? He said: I left them talking that Ali is coming to them, so he was frightened, then he said: What are you saying, may your father be cursed? If we knew, we would not have married his women or divided his inheritance. As for me, I will tell you about that. The devils used to eavesdrop from the sky, and one of them would come with a word of truth that he had heard. If he was tested and believed it, he would lie with it seventy lies. He said: So the hearts of the people would absorb it. He said: So God informed Solomon, peace be upon him, of it, so he buried it under his throne. When Solomon, peace be upon him, died, the devil of the road stood up and said: Shall I guide you to his forbidden treasure, the like of which is unmatched? Under the throne. So they took him out, and he said: This is magic. The nations copied it until the remnants of it were what the people of Iraq were talking about. Then God, the Almighty, revealed: "And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." The verse. Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak on the authority of Abu Zakariya al-Anbari, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Salam, on the authority of Ishaq ibn Ibrahim, on the authority of Jarir, on his authority. Al-Suddi said about the words of God Almighty: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon, meaning during the reign of Solomon. He said: The devils would ascend to the heavens and sit in places to listen, and they would listen to the words of the angels about what would happen on earth of death, the unseen, or any matter. They would go to the priests and inform them, and the priests would tell the people and they would find it as they said. When the priests trusted them, they lied to them and inserted something else into it, adding seventy words to each word. The people wrote down that hadith in books, and it spread among the Children of Israel that the jinn knew the unseen. So Solomon sent among the people, and he collected those books and put them in a chest, then buried them under his throne. No devil could come near the throne without being burned. He said: I do not hear anyone mentioning that the devils know the unseen without being struck. When Solomon died, and the scholars who knew about Solomon were gone, and after that there was a successor, Satan appeared in the form of a human being and then came to a group of the Children of Israel and said to them: Shall I guide you to a treasure that you will never eat? They said: Yes. He said: Dig under the throne. So he went with them and showed them the place and stood near it. They said to him: Come closer. He said: No, but I am here in your hands. If you do not find it, kill me. So they dug and found those books. When they took them out, Satan said: Solomon only controlled humans, devils and birds with this magic. Then he flew away and spread among the people that Solomon was a magician. The Children of Israel took those books. When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came, they argued with him about them. That is when God Almighty says: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: The Jews asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, about matters from the Torah for a time, and they would not ask him about anything except that God Almighty revealed what they asked him about, so he argued with them. When they saw that They said: He knows better than we do what God has revealed to us. They asked him about magic and argued with him about it, so God the Almighty revealed: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic." The devils took a book and wrote in it magic and divination and whatever God willed of that, and buried it under the seat of Solomon's council. He, peace be upon him, did not know the unseen. When Solomon left this world, they extracted that magic and deceived the people and said: This is knowledge that Solomon concealed and envied the people for. The Prophet, peace be upon him, informed them of this hadith, so they returned from him and God had refuted their argument. Mujahid said about the Almighty's statement: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, that the devils listened to the revelation, but whenever they heard a word they added two hundred like it. So Solomon, peace be upon him, sent for what they had written of that, and when Solomon died, the devils found it and taught it to the people, which was magic. Saeed bin Jubair said: Solomon used to track down what magic was in the hands of the devils and take it from them and bury it under his seat in his treasury house, but the devils could not. To reach him, so he approached the people and they said to them, Do you know what knowledge Solomon used to subjugate the devils, winds, and other things? They said: Yes. They said: It is in his treasury and under his chair. He consulted people about it and they extracted it and worked with it. The people of Hijaz said: Solomon knew about this and this is magic. So God Almighty revealed to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, the innocence of Solomon, peace be upon him, and God Almighty said: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Yasar said: When the devils learned of the death of Solomon, son of David, peace be upon him, the devils deliberately wrote down the types of magic. Whoever wants to achieve such-and-such should do such-and-such. When they classified the types of magic, they put it in a book and sealed it with a seal engraved with the seal of Solomon and wrote on its title: This is what Asaf bin Barkhiya the Truthful wrote to King Solomon, son of David, from the treasures of the treasures of knowledge. Then they buried it under his chair and the remnants of the Children of Israel extracted it after that until they innovated what they innovated. When they found it, they said: By God, Solomon's reign was only this. So they spread magic among the people and they learned it and taught it. There is no one who has it more than the Jews, may God curse them. So when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned in what was revealed to him: From God, Solomon, son of David, and He promised him among those He counted among the messengers. The Jews in Medina said: Do you not marvel at Muhammad, who claims that the son of David was a prophet, when by God he was nothing but a magician? And God revealed in that regard their saying: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." The verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told us: Hussain told us: Al-Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, who said: When Solomon's kingdom was taken away, the devils used to write down magic during Solomon's absence. They wrote: Whoever wants to do such and such should face the sun and say such and such, and whoever wants to do such and such should turn his back to the sun and say such and such. So they wrote it down and made its title: This is what Asaf bin Barkhiya wrote to King Solomon, son of David, peace be upon them, from the treasures of the treasures of knowledge. Then he buried it under his throne. When Solomon, peace be upon him, died, Satan, may God curse him, stood up and gave a sermon and said: O people, Solomon was not a prophet, but a magician, so seek out his magic in his belongings and houses. Then He showed them the place where he was buried, and they said: By God, Solomon was a magician, this is his magic, this is how we worship him and this is how we are subdued. The believers said: Rather, he was a believing prophet. When God sent the Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned David and Solomon, the Jews said: Look at Muhammad mixing truth with falsehood, mentioning Solomon with the prophets, he was only a magician who rode the wind. Then God Almighty revealed: "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. And Solomon did not disbelieve." Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Abdul A'la al-San'ani told us, al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, he said: I heard Imran bin Hudayr from Abu Majlaz who said: Solomon, peace be upon him, took a covenant from every animal, and if a man was afflicted and asked about that covenant, he was released. So the people increased the rhyme and magic, and they said: This is what Solomon, son of David, peace be upon them, did. Then God Almighty said: And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Issam bin Rawad told us, Adam told us, al-Mas'udi told us, on the authority of Ziyad, the client of Ibn Mus'ab, on the authority of al-Hasan, "And they followed What the devils recite" He said: A third of poetry, a third of magic, and a third of divination. He said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashar Al-Wasiti told us, Surur bin Al-Mughira told me, on the authority of Ibad bin Mansour, on the authority of Al-Hasan: "And they followed what the devils recite during the reign of Solomon" and the Jews followed it during his reign, and magic was on earth before that and had not ceased to exist in it, but it was only followed during the reign of Solomon. This is a summary of the sayings of the Imams of the Salaf in this regard, and the summary of the story and the combination of its parts and that there is no contradiction between the contexts is not hidden from the intelligent and understanding, and God is the guide. And the Almighty said: "And they followed what the devils recite during the reign of Solomon" meaning and the Jews who were given the Book followed after their turning away from the Book of God that was in their hands, and their opposition to the Messenger of God Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, what the devils recite, meaning what the devils narrate and tell and speak during the reign of Solomon, and he made it transitive with "ala because it included recite and lie". Ibn Jarir said "ala here means in", meaning they recite during the reign of Solomon, and he transmitted it from Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Isaac I said and the inclusion is better and more appropriate, and God knows best. And the saying of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, may God have mercy on him, and the magic was before the time of Solomon, son of David - is correct without a doubt, because the magicians were in the time of Moses, peace be upon him, and Solomon, son of David, after him, as God Almighty said, "Have you not seen the assembly of the Children of Israel after Moses?" The verse, then he mentioned the story after it and in it, And David killed Goliath, and God gave him the kingdom and wisdom. And the people of Salih, who were before Abraham, peace be upon him, said to their prophet Salih, You are only one of those bewitched, meaning those bewitched according to the well-known, and God Almighty said, And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, and they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve, and they learned from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife." People differed in this regard, so some of them went to the fact that what is negative, I mean that which is in His statement, and what was revealed to the two angels, Al-Qurtubi said: what is negative and is connected to His statement, "and Solomon did not disbelieve, then he said, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels, and that is because the Jews were claiming That Gabriel and Michael came down with it, so God denied them and made His saying Harut and Marut instead of the devils. He said: This is correct either because the plural is used for the two as in the Almighty's saying: If he has brothers, or because they have followers or are mentioned among them for their rebellion, the meaning of the speech is that they teach people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut. Then he said: This is the most appropriate and correct way to interpret the verse and no attention should be paid to anything else. Ibn Jarir narrated with his chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas in his saying and what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon the verse, he says God did not reveal magic. And with his chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas in his saying and what was revealed to the two angels he said: God did not reveal magic to them. Ibn Jarir said: So the interpretation of the verse according to this is and they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon of magic, and Solomon did not disbelieve nor did God reveal magic to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so His saying in Babylon, Harut and Marut is from the delayed meaning of the advanced. He said: If someone were to say to us: How did this come to mind? It was said that the reason for presenting it is to say, And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, of magic, and Solomon did not disbelieve, and God did not send down magic to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so it is meant by the two angels Gabriel and Michael, peace be upon them, because the Jewish magicians, as I mentioned, claimed that God sent down magic through the tongues of Gabriel and Michael to Solomon, son of David, so God denied them in that. He informed His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that Gabriel and Michael did not send down magic, and he acquitted Solomon, peace be upon him, of what they attributed to them of magic, and he informed them that magic is the work of the devils and that they teach it to people in Babylon, and that those who teach them that are two men: one of them is named Harut, and the other is named Marut, so Harut and Marut, according to this interpretation, are a translation from the people and a response to them. This is its wording verbatim, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: I was told by Ubaydullah bin Musa, Fadil bin Marzuq told us, on the authority of Atiyah, And what was sent down to the two angels, he said: God did not send down magic to Gabriel and Michael, he said: Ibn Abi Hatim: Al-Fadl ibn Shadhan informed us, Muhammad ibn Isa informed us, Ya'la, meaning Ibn Asad informed us, Bakr, meaning Ibn Mus'ab informed us, Al-Hasan ibn Abi Ja'far informed us: that 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abza used to recite it: And what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. Abu al-'Aliyah said: Magic was not revealed to them, meaning: knowledge of faith and disbelief, so magic is from disbelief, so they forbid it most strongly. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Then Ibn Jarir began to refute this statement, and that what means which, and he spoke at length about that and claimed that Harut and Marut were two angels whom God sent down to earth and permitted them to teach magic as a test and examination for His servants after He made clear to His servants that it is something that is forbidden on the tongues of the Messengers. He claimed that Harut and Marut were obedient in teaching that, because they complied with what they were commanded to do. This is something that he followed, and stranger than that is the statement of those who claimed that Harut and Marut were two tribes of the jinn, as Ibn Hazm claimed. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: On the authority of Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim that he used to read it and what was sent down to the two angels and he said: They are two giants from the people of Babylon. The proponents of this opinion explained that sending down means creation, not inspiration, as in the words of God Almighty: and what was sent down to the two angels as God Almighty said: And He sent down for you eight pairs of livestock "and We sent down iron, wherein is great strength" and He sends down for you provision from the sky and in the hadith: God has not sent down a disease except that He has sent down a cure for it and as it is said: God sent down good and evil. Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ibn Abza and Al-Hasan Al-Basri that they read and what was sent down to the two angels with a kasra on the lam. Ibn Abza said: They are David and Solomon. Al-Qurtubi said: According to this, what is also a negative. Others stopped at his words they teach people magic and what is a negative. Ibn Jarir said: Yunus told me, Ibn Wahb told us, Al-Layth told us on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Muhammad and a man asked him about the words of God Almighty: they teach people magic and what was sent down to the two angels In Babylon, Harut and Marut." He said: The two men teach people what was revealed to them and teach people what was not revealed to them. Al-Qasim said: I do not care which of them it was. Then he narrated on the authority of Yunus on the authority of Anas bin Ayyad on the authority of some of his companions that Al-Qasim said in this story: I do not care which of them it was, I believed in it. Many of the predecessors believed that they were two angels from heaven, and that they were sent down to earth, and what happened to them happened. A hadith was narrated on this subject by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad, may God have mercy on him, as we will mention, God willing. Based on this, the combination between this and what was reported of the evidence for the infallibility of the angels is that God had previously known about these two, so it is a specification for them, so there is no contradiction then, as was previously mentioned in His knowledge of the matter of Iblis, and in His statement that he was one of the angels, based on the Almighty's statement: And when We said to the angels, 'Prostrate to Adam,' and they prostrated, except for Iblis, he refused. And other verses indicating this, even though the matter of Harut and Marut is as mentioned. Less severe than what happened from Satan, may God curse him. Al-Qurtubi narrated it on the authority of Ali, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Ibn Omar, Kaab al-Ahbar, al-Suddi, and al-Kalbi.

Or is it that every time they make a covenant, a party of them throws it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe.

Fath al-Qadir

And the waw in his saying: 100- "or whenever" is for conjunction, the question hamza entered it as it enters the fa, and from that is the saying of the Almighty: "Is it the judgment of ignorance they seek? Do you then make the deaf hear? Do you then take him and his descendants?" and as it enters the then, and from that is the saying of the Almighty: "Athman when it occurs" and this is the saying of Sibawayh. Al-Akhfash said: The waw is redundant. Al-Kisa'i said: It is or the waw was moved for ease. Ibn Atiyah said: All of this is forced, and the correct saying of Sibawayh and the conjoined to it is deleted, and the estimate is they disbelieved in the clear verses and whenever they made a covenant. His saying: "A group rejected" Ibn Jarir said: The origin of nabdh is throwing and casting, and from that the foundling is called manbuth, and from that wine is called dates and raisins when they are thrown into water, Abu Al-Aswad said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:100

Or is it that every time they make a covenant, a party of them throws it aside? Rather, most of them do not believe.

who did not throw it away openly are believers in it secretly.

I looked at his address and threw it away like you would throw away a worn-out sandal from your sandals.

Another said:

Those whom you commanded to be just have rejected your Book and made lawful what is forbidden.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

100. The Almighty's saying, Or whenever the conjunction waw was preceded by the interrogative alif they made a covenant meaning the Jews made a covenant that if Muhammad came out, they would be faithful to him, but when he came out, they disbelieved in him.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, reminded them of what God had taken from them of the covenant and enjoined upon them concerning Muhammad that they should believe in him, Malik bin Al-Saif said: By God, He did not enjoin upon us concerning Muhammad a covenant. So God Almighty revealed this verse, which is indicated by the reading of Abu Raja Al-Attardi: or whenever they were promised, so he made them the objects. Ata' said: They are the covenants that were between the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Jews, that they should not assist the polytheists in fighting him, but they broke them as Banu Qurayzah and Banu Nadir did. Its evidence is the statement of God Almighty: Those of them with whom you made a covenant, then they break their covenant 56-Al-Anfal. A group "groups" of them of the Jews "rejected it" and abandoned it. Rather, most of them do not believe.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

100- "Or whenever they made a covenant" The hamza is for denial, and the waw is for connecting to something omitted, the meaning of which is they disbelieved in the verses and whenever they made a covenant, and it was read with the waw silent on the basis that the meaning is except for those who were wicked, "Or whenever they made a covenant", and it was read they made a covenant and they made a covenant. "A group of them threw it away broke it, and the origin of the word nabdh is to throw it away, but it is more common in what is forgotten, and a group only said it because some of them did not break it, But most of them do not believe" is a response to what is imagined that the group are the minority, or that those

Surat al-Baqarah 2:101

And when there came to them a Messenger from God, confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of God behind their backs as if they did not know.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when there came to them a Messenger from God Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of God that is, the Torah behind their backs that is, they did not act upon what was in it of belief in the Messenger and others as if they did not know what was in it of him being a true prophet or that it was the Book of God.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His saying: And when there came to them, the rabbis and scholars of the Jews from the Children of Israel, a Messenger, meaning by Messenger: Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as:

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: And when a messenger came to them, he said: When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them.

As for his saying: Confirming what is with them, he means by it that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, confirms the Torah and the Torah confirms him, in that he is a prophet of God sent to His creation.

As for the interpretation of His statement: And when there came to them a Messenger from God, confirming what was with them, it refers to what was with the Jews, which is the Torah. So God, the Most High, informed us that when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to the Jews from God confirming what was in their hands of the Torah, that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is a Prophet of God, a group threw themselves aside, meaning by that: they denied and rejected him after they had acknowledged him, out of envy and malice towards him. And His statement: of those who were given the Scripture, is the scholars of the Jews to whom God gave knowledge of the Torah and what was in it. And by His statement: the Book of God, He means the Torah.

His saying: behind their backs, means they put it behind their backs. This is a proverb, it is said to every person who rejects something that was on his mind: So-and-so has put this matter behind him, and put it behind his back, meaning by it: he turned away from it, turned away, and departed, like:

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And when there came to them a Messenger from God, confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of God behind their backs. He said: When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them, they opposed him with the Torah and argued with him about it, so the Torah and the Qur'an agreed, so they threw away the Torah and took the Book of Asif and the magic of Harut and Marut. This is what God says: As if they did not know.

The meaning of His statement: As if they do not know, is as if these Jewish scholars who rejected the Book of God and broke the covenant of God by not acting upon what they had pledged to God to act upon did not know what was in the Torah of the command to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believe in him. This is from God, may He be glorified, informing us about them that they denied the truth with their knowledge and awareness of it, and that they were stubborn about God's command and disobeyed it with their knowledge that it was obligatory upon them, as:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: A party of those who were given the Scripture threw away, meaning: A party of those who were given the Scripture the Book of God behind their backs, as if they did not know: meaning that the people knew, but they corrupted their knowledge, denied, disbelieved, and concealed it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying, And when there came to them a Messenger from God, confirming what was with them, is an attribute of the Messenger, and it is permissible to use it in the accusative case as a state. A group threw away is the answer to when. "Of those who were given the Scripture, the Book of God is in the accusative case with throw away," and what is meant is the Torah, because their disbelief in the Prophet, peace be upon him, and their denial of him is a throwing away of it. Al-Suddi said: They threw away the Torah and took the Book of Asif, and the magic of Harut and Marut. It was said: It is permissible to mean the Qur'an. Al-Sha'bi said: It is in their hands and they read it, but they threw away acting upon it. Sufyan ibn 'Uyaynah said: They wrapped it in silk and brocade, and adorned it with gold and silver, and they did not make permissible what it made permissible nor forbid what it made forbidden, so that is throwing away. Its explanation has been presented in full. "As if they do not know" is a simile for those who do not know, since they acted like the ignorant, so it comes from the wording that they disbelieved knowingly.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And the Almighty said: "And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.'" Abu Ja'far al-Razi said, on the authority of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:101

And when there came to them a Messenger from Allah, confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of Allah behind their backs as if they did not know.

al-Rabi` ibn Anas, on the authority of Qays ibn `Ibad, on the authority of Ibn `Abbas, who said: So when the one who came to them wanted to practice magic, they forbade him with the strongest prohibition and said to him: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. This is because they knew good and evil, disbelief and faith, so they knew that magic is from disbelief. He said: So if he refused them, they ordered him to go to such and such a place, and when he came to him, he saw Satan and taught him, and when he learned him, a light came out of him, and he looked at him shining in the sky and said: Oh, what a pity! Oh, what did he do? And on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, he said in the interpretation of this verse: Yes, the two angels sent down magic to teach people the affliction with which God wanted to test people, so He took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Qatada said: He took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, meaning a trial with which we have been afflicted, so do not disbelieve. As-Suddi said: If a person came to them wanting to practice magic, they would admonish him and say to him: Do not disbelieve, we are only a trial. If he refused, they would say to him: Go to these ashes and urinate on them. When he urinates on them, a light comes out of it and shines until it enters the sky, and that is faith. Something black like smoke comes and enters his ears, and everything, and that is the wrath of God. If he tells them about that, they would teach him magic. This is the statement of God the Most High: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' (al-Baqarah 2:170) Sunayd said on the authority of Hajjaj on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding this verse: None would dare to practice magic except a disbeliever. As for the trial, it is the test and choice, and from it is the saying of the poet:

He tempted people in their religion and left Ibn Affan in a state of evil for a long time.

And also the saying of the Almighty, informing about Moses, peace be upon him, where he said: It is only your trial, meaning your trial, your test, and your examination, with which You misguide whom You will and guide whom You will. Some of them have used this verse as evidence for the disbelief of those who learn magic, and they have cited as evidence for it the hadith narrated by Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar, who told us, Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Hammam, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: "Whoever goes to a soothsayer or magician and believes what he says, has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace." This is a sound chain of transmission and it has other corroborating evidence. And the saying of the Almighty: And they learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife, meaning that people learn from Harut and Marut the science of magic and what they do with it in what they do of reprehensible actions, by which they cause separation between spouses, despite the mixing and harmony between them, and this is from the doing of the devils, as Muslim narrated in his Sahih from the hadith of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sufyan, on the authority of Talhah bin Nafi', on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The devil places his throne on the water and then sends out his armies among the people. The one closest to him in status is the one who causes the greatest temptation. One of them comes and says: 'I kept on with so-and-so until I left him saying such-and-such.' Iblis says: 'No, by God, I did nothing!' And one of them comes and says: 'I did not leave him until I separated him from his family.' He acknowledges it, brings him close, embraces him and says: 'Yes, you are.'" The reason for separation between spouses through magic is what a man or woman imagines of the other in terms of bad appearance, character, or something similar, or a contract, or hatred, or something similar to the reasons that necessitate separation. 'Man' refers to a man and its feminine form is 'woman.' Both of them are dual, but they are not plural, and God knows best.

And the Almighty's saying: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. Sufyan al-Thawri said: Except by the decree of God. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Except by God's leaving him alone with what He willed. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. He said: Yes, whoever God wills, He gives them power over him, and whoever God does not will, He does not give them power over him, and they cannot do anything to anyone except by permission of God, as God the Almighty said. And in a narration from Al-Hasan, he said: This magic does not harm anyone except the one who engages in it. And the Almighty's saying: And they learn that which harms them and does not benefit them means that it harms them in their religion and has no benefit that matches its harm. And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter means that the Jews who exchanged magic for following the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew that whoever did what they did, that he will have no share in the Hereafter. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Al-Suddi said: No share. And Abd Al-Razzaq said from Muammar from Qatadah: He will have no share in the Hereafter with God. And Abd Al-Razzaq said, and Al-Hasan said: He has no religion. And Saad said from Qatadah: He will have no share in the Hereafter He said: And the People of the Book knew in what God entrusted them with that the magician will have no share in the Hereafter. And the Almighty's saying: "And evil is that for which they sold themselves, if they only knew. And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better, if they only knew." The Almighty says: And evil is the substitute that they exchanged for magic in place of faith. And following the Messenger, if they had knowledge of what they were admonished with, And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better for them. That is, if they had believed in God and His Messengers and feared the forbidden things, God's reward for that would have been better for them than what they sought for themselves and were satisfied with, as God the Almighty said, "And those who were given knowledge said, 'Woe to you! The reward from God is better for him who believes and does righteousness. And none is granted it except the patient.'"

And the saying of And if they had believed and feared God was used as evidence by those who considered the magician to be an infidel, as is narrated by Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal and a group of the Salaf. It was said: Rather, he is not an infidel, but his punishment is to behead him, as narrated by Al-Shafi'i and Ahmad ibn Hanbal. They said: Sufyan, who is Ibn Uyaynah, told us on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar that he heard Bajalah ibn Abdah say: Umar ibn Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, wrote: Kill every male and female magician. He said: So we killed three female magicians. Al-Bukhari also included it in his Sahih. And thus it was authenticated that Hafsa, the Mother of the Believers, was bewitched by a slave girl of hers, so she ordered that she be killed. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said: It was authenticated on the authority of three of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding killing the magician. Al-Tirmidhi narrated from the hadith of Ismail bin Muslim from Al-Hasan from Jundub Al-Azdi that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The punishment for a magician is to strike him with a sword. Then he said: We do not know it as being attributed to the Prophet except from this source, and Ismail bin Muslim is considered weak in hadith, and the correct version is from Al-Hasan from Jundub as a mursal. I said: Al-Tabarani narrated it from another source from Al-Hasan from Jundub as a mursal. And God knows best. It has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission that Al-Walid bin Uqbah had a magician playing in front of him. He would strike a man's head and then shout at him, and his head would be returned to him. The people said: Glory be to God, He brings the dead back to life. A righteous man from the Muhajireen saw him, so the next day he came with his sword wrapped around him and went to play that game. The man drew his sword and struck the magician's neck, and said: If he is telling the truth, then let him revive himself. Then he recited the verse of God, Do you then practice magic while you are seeing? Al-Walid became angry because he did not ask his permission to do so, so he imprisoned him and then released him. And God knows best. Imam Abu Bakr Al-Khalal said: Abdullah bin Ahmad bin Hanbal told us, my father told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, Abu Ishaq told me on the authority of Haritha, who said: There was a man playing with one of the princes, then a soldier came with his sword drawn and killed him. He said: I think he was a magician. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, attributed the story of Umar and Hafsa to magic that constitutes polytheism, and God knows best.

Chapter Abu Abdullah al-Razi narrated in his interpretation of the Mu'tazila that they denied the existence of magic. He said: And perhaps they disbelieved whoever believed in its existence. He said: As for the Sunnis, they allowed that the magician could fly in the air and turn a human into a donkey, and a donkey into a human, except that they said: God creates things when the magician says those incantations and specific words. As for the one who has an effect on that being the heavens and the stars, then no, contrary to the philosophers, astrologers, and Sabians. Then he provided evidence for the occurrence of magic and that it is by the creation of God Almighty by His Almighty saying: And they do not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. And from the report that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched, and that magic worked on him and the story of that woman with Aisha, may God be pleased with her, and what that woman mentioned about her coming to Babylon and learning magic. He said: And from what is mentioned in this chapter of many stories, then he said after this.

The fifth issue is that knowledge of magic is not ugly or forbidden - the scholars agreed on this because knowledge in itself is noble, and also because of the generality of the Almighty's saying: "Say: Are those who know equal to those who do not know?" And because if magic were not known, it would not be possible to differentiate between it and a miracle, and knowledge that a miracle is a miracle is obligatory, and whatever the obligation depends on is obligatory. This requires that acquiring knowledge of magic be obligatory, and whatever is obligatory, how can it be forbidden and ugly? This is his wording on this issue, and this statement is questionable from several aspects, one of which is his saying: Knowledge of magic is not ugly rationally, so his opponents from the Mu'tazila forbid this, even if he meant that it is not ugly religiously, so in this noble verse there is an ugliness to learning magic, and in the Sahih: Whoever goes to a fortune teller or a soothsayer has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, and in the Sunan: Whoever ties a knot and blows into it has practiced magic, and his saying: and there is no prohibition, the scholars have agreed on that, how could it not be prohibited with what we have mentioned from the verse and the hadith and the agreement of the scholars requires that the imams of the scholars or most of them have stated this issue, and where are their texts on that? Then, its inclusion in the science of magic in the generality of the Almighty's saying: "Say: Are those who know equal to those who do not know?" There is a consideration in this, because this verse only indicates the praise of those who know Islamic knowledge. And why did I say that this is from it? Then, it is an advancement to the obligation of learning it, because knowledge of the miracle cannot be obtained except through it. It is weak, rather corrupt, because the greatest miracle of our Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the Great Qur'an, which falsehood cannot approach from before it or from behind it, a revelation from the Wise, the Praiseworthy. Then, the knowledge that it is a miracle does not depend on the knowledge of magic at all. Then, it is known by necessity that the Companions, the Followers, the Imams of the Muslims and their common folk knew the miracle and differentiated between it and other things, and they did not know magic, nor did they know it, nor did they teach it. And God knows best.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:101

And when there came to them a Messenger from Allah, confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of Allah behind their backs as if they did not know.

Then Abu Abdullah al-Razi mentioned that there are eight types of magic: The first is the magic of the liars and the Kasdaniyyin, who used to worship the seven wandering planets, which are the moving ones, and they believed that they governed the world and that they bring good and evil. They are the ones to whom God sent Abraham, peace be upon him, to invalidate their statement and reject their doctrine. He investigated it thoroughly in The Book of the Hidden Secret, in Addressing the Sun and the Stars attributed to him, as mentioned by Judge Ibn Khalikan and others. It is said that he repented from it, and it is said that he wrote it in order to show virtue, not as a matter of belief. This is what is thought of him, except that he mentioned in it their method in addressing each of these seven planets and the manner in which they do, what they wear, and what they adhere to.

He said: And the second type is the magic of those with delusions and strong souls. Then he provided evidence that delusion has an effect in that a person can walk on a bridge placed on the ground, but he cannot walk on it if it is extended over a river or something similar. He said: And just as the doctors agreed to forbid the frightened from looking at red things, and the possessed from looking at things that are very shiny or rotating, and that is only because souls were created obedient to delusions. He said: The wise have agreed that the evil eye is true - and he can prove that with what is proven in the Sahih that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The evil eye is true, and if there were anything that could overtake destiny, it would be the evil eye. He said: So if you know this, then we say that the soul that does these actions may be very strong, so it does not need to resort to tools and instruments in these actions, and it may be weak, so it needs to resort to these tools. The truth of this is that if the soul is elevated above the body and strongly attracted to the world of the heavens, it becomes as if it is a spirit from the heavenly spirits, so it is strong in influencing the materials of this world. If it is weak and strongly attached to this physical self, then at that time it has no influence at all except in this body. Then he advised to treat this disease by reducing food, cutting off from people and showing off. I said: What he is referring to is dealing with the state, and it is of two types: sometimes it is a correct, legitimate state, in which one deals with what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, have commanded, and one leaves what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, have forbidden. These states are gifts from God the Almighty and miracles for the righteous of this nation, and this is not called magic in the Sharia. Sometimes the situation is corrupt and its owner does not comply with what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded, and does not act in that way. This is the situation of the wretched who oppose the Sharia, and God giving them these situations does not indicate His love for them. Likewise, the Antichrist has supernatural powers that are indicated by many hadiths, even though he is condemned in the Sharia, may God curse him, and likewise those who resemble him from those who oppose the Muhammadan Sharia, upon its owner the best prayers and peace. Explaining this would take a long time and this is not the place for it.

He said: The third type of magic is seeking help from earthly spirits, who are the jinn, contrary to the philosophers and the Mu'tazila, who are divided into two groups: believers and infidels, who are the devils. He said: The communication of the speaking souls with them is easier than their communication with the heavenly spirits, because of the relevance and closeness between them. Then the masters of the craft and the masters of experience have witnessed that communication with these earthly spirits results in a few easy works of incantation, smoke, and abstraction. This type is called incantations and the work of subjugation.

He said: The fourth type of magic is imagination, taking the eyes, and magic. It is based on the fact that sight may err and be occupied with a specific thing and not with something else. Do you not see the skilled magician showing off the work of something that astounds the minds of those who look at it and takes their eyes to it until, when they are exhausted by the preoccupation with that thing by talking and the like, he does something else very quickly. Then something else appears to them other than what they expected, and they are very amazed by it. If he were silent and did not speak in a way that would divert the thoughts to the opposite of what he wants to teach, and the souls and imaginations were not moved to other than what he wants to bring out, the observers would be aware of everything he does. He said And whenever the conditions are beneficial to good sight, some type of defect is more severe, the work is better, such as if the magician sits in a very bright or dark place, so the seeing power does not stop at its conditions in this case.

I said Some commentators said: The magic of the magicians before Pharaoh was only a form of sorcery, and for this reason the Almighty said: So when they cast, they bewitched the eyes of the people and struck terror into them and produced a great magic. And the Almighty said: It appeared to him from their magic that it was moving. They said: And it was not moving in reality, and God knows best.

The fifth type of magic: The amazing works that appear from the assembly of machines based on geometric proportions, such as a knight on a horse with a trumpet in his hand, every hour of the day he strikes the trumpet without anyone touching him - and from them are the images that the Romans and Indians depicted so that the observer cannot distinguish between them and a human being until they depict them laughing and crying, until he said:

These faces are from the subtle matters of imagination. He said: And the magic of Pharaoh's magicians was of this type I said meaning what some of the commentators said: They took those ropes and sticks and filled them with mercury so that they began to twist because of what was in them of that mercury, so it seemed to the observer that they were moving of their own free will. Al-Razi said: And from this category is the assembly of a watch box, and the science of dragging weights with light machines falls under this category. He said: And this in reality should not be considered magic because it has known and certain causes that whoever looks at them can do. I said And of this kind are the tricks of the Christians upon their common people with what they show them of lights, such as the case of the garbage of the church that they have in the city of Jerusalem, and the trick they use of secretly bringing fire into the church and lighting that lamp with a clever craft that is popular with the common people among them. As for the elite, they acknowledge that, but they interpret that they are uniting their companions in their religion, so they see that as permissible for them. And there is a doubt about them for the ignorant fools among the worshippers of the Karamiyyah who see the permissibility of fabricating hadiths in encouragement and intimidation, so they are included in the number of those about whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever lies about me intentionally, let him take his seat in the Fire. And his saying: Talk about me and do not lie about me, for whoever lies about me will enter the Fire. Then he mentioned here a story about some monks, which is that he heard the voice of a bird with a sad voice and weak movement, so when the birds heard it, they took pity on it and went and threw olive fruits into its nest to eat them. So this monk proceeded to make a bird in his shape and reached the point of making it hollow, so when the wind entered it, a sound like the sound of a bird was heard from it, and he secluded himself in a monastery that he built and claimed that it was on the grave of one of their righteous people, and he hung that bird in a place in it, so when it was the time of the olives, he opened a door on its side so that the wind would enter inside this image, and every bird in its shape would also hear its sound, so the birds would come and carry a lot of olives, and you would not see it among the Christians. Except for that olive in this monastery, and they do not know what caused it, so he tempted them with that and made them think that this was one of the miracles of the owner of this grave, upon them be the continuous curses of God until the Day of Resurrection.

(Al-Razi said: The sixth type of magic) is seeking help from the properties of medicines, meaning in this case foods and ointments. He said: Know that there is no way to deny the properties, because the effect of magnets is observable. I said Many of those who claim poverty and trick ignorant people with these properties fall into this category, claiming that they are conditions for him, such as mixing with fire and holding snakes, and other such impossibilities.

He said: The seventh type of magic is the attachment of the heart, which is that the magician claims that he knows the Greatest Name and that the jinn obey him and submit to him in most matters. If it happens that the listener is weak-minded and has little discernment, he believes that it is true and his heart is attached to it and a kind of terror and fear occurs in his soul. If fear occurs, the sensitive powers weaken, and then the magician is able to do whatever he wants. I said This type is called al-tanbalaḥ and it is only popular among the weak-minded among the sons of Adam. In the science of physiognomy there is guidance in knowing the mind from its deficiency. If the one who is being al-tanbalaḥ is skilled in the science of physiognomy, he knows who among the people will submit to him and who will not.

He said: The eighth type of magic is seeking to gossip and bring people closer together in light and pleasant ways, and this is common among people. I said Gossip is of two types: sometimes it is for the purpose of causing discord among people and dividing the hearts of the believers, then this is forbidden and agreed upon. But if it is for the purpose of reforming among people and uniting the Muslims' word, as stated in the hadith, He is not a liar who divulges good, or it is for the purpose of discouraging and dividing the masses of the infidels, then this is a required matter, as stated in the hadith, War is deception, and as Nu'aym ibn Mas'ud did in dividing the word of the Confederates and Banu Qurayzah: he came to these people and spread to them some words about these people, and he conveyed from these people to those people something else, then he made a distinction between that and the souls became estranged and separated. Only the one with penetrating insight can do such a thing, and God is the One sought for help.

Then Al-Razi said: This is the summary of the discussion on the types of magic and the explanation of its types and kinds. I said Many of these mentioned types were included in the art of magic because of the subtlety of their perceptions, because magic in the language is an expression for what is subtle and hidden because of it, and for this reason it came in the hadith: Indeed, some eloquence is magic. And it was called suhoor because it occurs hidden at the end of the night, and magic is the lung, which is the place of food and it was called that because of its concealment and the subtlety of its passages to the parts of the body and its wrinkles, as Abu Jahl said on the day of Badr to Utbah: His magic swelled, meaning his lung swelled from fear. And Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died between my throat and my chest, and God Almighty said: They bewitched the eyes of the people, meaning they concealed their knowledge from them, and God knows best.

Abu Abdullah Al-Qurtubi said: We believe that magic is true and has a reality, and God creates with it what He wills, contrary to the Mu'tazila and Abu Ishaq Al-Isfarayni of the Shafi'is, who said: It is deception and imagination. He said: And from magic is that which is done by sleight of hand, like sorcery, and the sorcerer is the mailman due to his lightness of movement. Ibn Faris said: This word is not from the speech of the Bedouins. Al-Qurtubi said: And from it is that which is spoken by memorizing incantations of the names of God Almighty, and it may be from the covenants of the devils and it may be medicines and smokes and other than that. He said: And his saying, peace be upon him: Indeed, some eloquence is magic may be praise as a group says, and it may be a censure of eloquence. He said: This is more correct. He said: Because it corrects falsehood until the listener thinks that it is true, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: Perhaps some of you will be more eloquent in his argument than others, so I will rule in his favor. The hadith.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:101

And when there came to them a Messenger from Allah, confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of Allah behind their backs as if they did not know.

Chapter The minister Abu al-Muzaffar Yahya ibn Muhammad ibn Hubayrah, may God have mercy on him, mentioned in his book Al-Ishraf ala Madhahib al-Ashraf a chapter on magic and said: They agreed that magic has a reality except for Abu Hanifa, who said: It has no reality according to him. They differed about the one who learns magic and uses it. Abu Hanifa, Malik and Ahmad said that he is a disbeliever because of that. Among the companions of Abu Hanifa, there are those who said that if he learns it to guard against it or avoid it, then he is not a disbeliever, and the one who learns it believing that it is permissible or that it benefits him is a disbeliever. Likewise, the one who believes that the devils do whatever he wants for him is a disbeliever. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said: If he learns magic, we say to him, Describe your magic to us. If he describes what necessitates disbelief, such as what the people of Babylon believed about drawing closer to the seven planets and that they do what is sought from them, then he is a disbeliever. If it does not necessitate disbelief, then if he believes that it is permissible, then he is a disbeliever. Ibn Hubayrah said: Is he killed simply because of his doing and using it? Malik and Ahmad said: Yes. Ash-Shafi'i and Abu Hanifa said: No. If someone kills a person with his magic, then he is to be killed according to Malik, Ash-Shafi'i and Ahmad. Abu Hanifa said: He is to be killed unless he repeats it or admits to it with regard to a specific person. If he kills, then he is to be killed as a prescribed punishment according to them, except Ash-Shafi'i who said: He is to be killed in this case as retaliation. He said: If the magician repents, is his repentance accepted? Malik, Abu Hanifa and Ahmad said in the well-known opinion from them: It is not to be accepted. Ash-Shafi'i and Ahmad said in the other narration: It is to be accepted. As for the magician of the People of the Book, according to Abu Hanifa, he is to be killed just as a Muslim magician is to be killed. Malik, Ahmad and Ash-Shafi'i said: He is not to be killed, meaning because of the story of Labid ibn Al-A'sam. They differed concerning the Muslim female magician. According to Abu Hanifa, she is not to be killed, but she is to be imprisoned. The three said that her ruling is the same as that of a man, and God knows best. Abu Bakr Al-Khalal said: Abu Bakr Al-Marwazi told us: Umar ibn Harun read to Abu Abdullah - meaning Ahmad ibn Hanbal - that Yunus told us on the authority of Al-Zuhri: He said: The Muslim sorcerer is killed, but the polytheist sorcerer is not killed, because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched by a Jewish woman, but he did not kill her. Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Malik, may God have mercy on him, that he said about the dhimmi, he is killed if he kills his sorcery. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad narrated two narrations on the authority of Malik about the dhimmi who is bewitched: One of them is that he is asked to repent, and if he converts to Islam, otherwise he is killed. The second is that he is killed even if he converts to Islam. As for the Muslim sorcerer, if his sorcery includes disbelief, he is considered a disbeliever according to the four imams and others, based on the words of God the Almighty: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' But Malik said: If he is found out, his repentance is not accepted, because he is like a heretic. If he repents before he is found out and comes to us repentant, we accept him. If he kills, his sorcery is killed. Al-Shafi'i said: If he says, I did not intend to kill, then he is mistaken and blood money is due on him.

Question And does the magician ask for a solution for his magic? Saeed bin Al-Musayyab permitted it, as narrated by Al-Bukhari, and Amer Al-Shaabi said: There is nothing wrong with spreading it, and Al-Hasan Al-Basri disliked it. And in the Sahih, on the authority of Aisha, she said: O Messenger of God, why didn't you spread it? He said: As for God, He has healed me, and I feared that I would open evil upon the people. And Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Wahn: He said: Seven leaves of Sidr are taken and crushed between two stones, then they are mixed with water and the Throne Verse is recited over them and the bewitched person drinks three sips of it, then he washes with the rest of it, for what is with him will go away. And it is good for the man who takes it from his wife. I said The most beneficial thing to use to remove magic is what God revealed to His Messenger to remove it, and they are the two Mu'awwidhat, and in the hadith: The one seeking refuge has not sought refuge with anything like them. And likewise the recitation of the Throne Verse, for it repels the devils.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 101- Behind their backs meaning behind their backs, and it is a proverb used for someone who takes something lightly and does not act upon it. The Arabs say: Put this behind your back, behind your ear, and under your foot: meaning leave it and turn away from it. And from this is what Al-Farra' recited:

Tamim bin Zaid: Do not let my need be in the back, lest I be unable to answer it.

And his saying: The Book of God meaning the Torah because when they disbelieved in the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and in what was revealed to him after God took from them in the Torah and belief in him and confirmation of him and following him and explained to them his description, that was from them a rejection of the Torah and a breach of it and a rejection of what is in it. And it is possible that what is meant by the Book here is the Qur'an: that is, when the Messenger of God came to them from God confirming what they had of the Torah, they rejected the Book of God that this Messenger brought, and this is more evident than the first aspect. And his saying: As if they did not know is a likening of them to someone who does not know anything even though they know with certainty from the Torah what is required of them of belief in this Prophet, but since they did not know with knowledge but rather acted like someone who does not know who threw the Book of God behind their backs, they were in the position of someone who does not know.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

101. "And when there came to them a Messenger from God meaning Muhammad confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of God behind their backs" meaning the Torah, and it was said: the Torah, and it was said: the Qur'an "as if they did not know." Al-Sha'bi said: They used to read the Torah but did not know about it, and Sufyan ibn Uyaynah said: They wrapped it in silk and brocade and adorned it with gold and silver but did not act upon it, so that is their throwing it away.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

101- "And when there came to them a Messenger from God confirming what was with them" such as Jesus and Muhammad, peace be upon them. "A party of those who were given the Scripture cast away the Book of God" meaning the Torah, because their disbelief in the Messenger confirming it was disbelief in it in what confirms it, and cast away what is in it of the obligation to believe in the Messengers supported by the signs. And it was said that what was with the Messenger, peace be upon him, was the Qur'an.

"Behind their backs" is an example of their turning away from it completely, turning away from what is thrown behind their backs for not paying attention to it.

"As if they do not know" that it is the Book of God, meaning that their knowledge of it is solid, but they ignore it out of stubbornness. Know that God the Almighty indicated in the two verses that the generation of the Jews is divided into four groups: a group that believed in the Torah and fulfilled its rights like the believers of the People of the Book, and they are the minority indicated by His statement: "But most of them do not believe." A group that openly rejected its covenants and transgressed its limits out of rebellion and immorality, and they are the ones meant by His statement: "A party of them cast it aside." A group that did not openly reject it, but they cast it aside out of ignorance of it, and they are the majority. A group that held fast to it outwardly and cast it aside secretly, knowing the situation, out of transgression and stubbornness, and they are the ones who ignored it.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And they followed in apposition to the rejection of what the devils recited that is, what they recited during the reign of Solomon of magic, and they buried it under his throne when his kingdom was taken away, or they were eavesdropping and adding lies to it and presenting it to the priests to write it down, and this spread and it became known that the jinn knew the unseen, so Solomon gathered the books and buried them, and when he died the devils guided the people to them, so they extracted them and found magic in them, and they said, Your kingdom is only this, so learn it, so they rejected the books of their prophets. God the Almighty said, exonerating Solomon and responding to the Jews in their saying, Look at Muhammad, Solomon is mentioned among the prophets, and he was nothing but a magician. And Solomon did not disbelieve meaning he did not practice magic because he disbelieved but with emphasis and with emphasis the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic the sentence is a state of the pronoun disbelieved and teaching them what was revealed to the two angels meaning they inspired him with magic, and it was read with a kasra on the lam, who were in Babylon a country in the blackness of Iraq Harut and Marut a substitute or an explanatory apposition for the two angels, Ibn Abbas said: They are two magicians who taught magic, and it was said that they were two angels who were sent down to teach it as a test from God for the people and they did not teach anyone an extra unto them until they said to him as advice we are only a trial a trial from God to the people to test them by teaching them, so whoever learns it is a disbeliever and whoever abandons it is a believer so do not disbelieve in learning it, for if they insist on learning, they taught it and they learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife by making each one hate the other. And they that is, the magicians cannot harm anyone with it with magic except by permission of God by His will and they learn that which harms them in the Hereafter and does not benefit them which is magic and they have certainly a lam of oath known that is, the Jews to whoever a lam of beginning attached to what preceded it and min is a relative pronoun has no share in the Hereafter a portion in Paradise and evil is that for which a thing they have sold they have exchanged their souls that is, the buyers: that is, their share in the Hereafter if they learn it, since it has made Hell obligatory for them if they only knew the reality of what they will end up with of torment, what they have learned.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: And follow what the devils recite, the verse. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, who said: The Jews said: Look at Muhammad, he mixes truth with falsehood, he mentions Solomon with the prophets. Was he not a magician who rode the wind? Then God Almighty revealed: And follow what the devils recite, the verse.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah that the Jews asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, for a period of time about matters from the Torah. They did not ask him about anything except that God revealed to him what they asked about.

And when they saw that, they said, This one knows better than we do what was revealed to us. And they asked him about magic and argued with him about it, so God revealed, And they followed what the devils recited.

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying:

"And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and that which was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. But these two angels did not teach anyone until they had said, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' And they learned from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife. But they could not harm thereby anyone except by permission of God. And they learned that which harmed them and did not benefit them. And they certainly knew that whoever purchased it would have no share in the Hereafter. And evil was that for which they sold themselves, if they only knew."

What is meant by His statement: And they followed what the devils recited is the group of Jewish rabbis and scholars whom God, the Most High, described as having thrown His Book that He revealed to Moses behind their backs, ignoring it and disbelieving in what they knew, as if they did not know. So He informed us about them that they rejected His Book that they knew was revealed from Him to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they broke His covenant that He took from them to act according to what was in it, and they preferred the magic that the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, son of David, so they followed it, and that is the loss and clear misguidance.

The people of interpretation differed about those meant by His statement: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. Some of them said: God meant by that the Jews who were among the emigrants of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, because they disputed with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the Torah, and they found that the Torah was in agreement with the Qur'an, commanding them to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to believe in him in the same way that the Qur'an commands, so they disputed on the basis of the books that the people had written down from the priests during the time of Solomon. Those who said that mentioned:

Musa bin Harun told me: Amr told us: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon during the time of Solomon. He said: The devils would ascend to the heavens and sit in places to listen, listening to the words of the angels regarding what would happen on earth of death, rain, or any matter. They would go to the priests and inform them, and the priests would tell the people and they would find it as they said. Then, when the priests felt secure from them, they would lie to them and add something else to it, adding seventy words to each word. So the people wrote down that hadith in books, and it spread among the Children of Israel that the jinn know the unseen. So Solomon sent to the people, and he collected those books and put them in a chest, then buried them under his throne, and none of the devils could come near the throne without being burned. He said: I will not hear anyone mention that the devils know the unseen without my beheading him. When Solomon died, and the scholars who knew about Solomon left, and after that there were successors, Satan appeared in the form of a human being, then he came to a group of the Children of Israel, and said: Shall I guide you to a treasure that you will never eat? They said: Yes. He said: Dig under the throne, and he went with them and showed them the place. He stood aside, and they said to him: Come closer. He said: No, but I am here in your hands, and if you do not find it, kill me. So they dug and found those books, and when they took them out, Satan said: Solomon only controlled humans, devils, and birds with this magic. Then he flew away and left. It was spread among the people that Solomon was a magician, and the Children of Israel took those books. When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them, they argued with him about them, and that is when he says: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.

Narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Narrated to us on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding His statement: {And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon}, they said: The Jews asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, for a time about matters from the Torah, and they would not ask him about anything except that God would reveal to him what they had asked him about, so he would argue with them. When they saw that, they said: He knows better than we do what has been revealed to us. And they asked him about magic and argued with him about it, so God, the Almighty, revealed: {And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.} And the devils took a book and wrote in it magic and divination and whatever God willed of that, and buried it under the council of Solomon, and Solomon did not know the unseen. So when Solomon departed this world, they extracted that magic and deceived the people with it and said: This is knowledge that Solomon concealed and envied the people for it. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed them of this hadith. So they returned from him, saddened and God had refuted their argument.

Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon, he said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them confirming what was with them, a group of those who were given the Scripture rejected the verse. He said: They followed magic, and they are the People of the Scripture. So he recited until he reached: But the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.

Others said: Rather, God meant by that the Jews who were during the time of Solomon. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Hussein told us, he said: Hajjaj told me, he said: Ibn Jurayj said: The devils recited magic to the Jews during the reign of Solomon, so the Jews followed it during his reign, meaning they followed magic during the reign of Solomon.

Ibn Humayd told us: Salamah told us: Ibn Ishaq told me: When the devils learned of the death of Solomon, son of David, peace be upon him, they wrote down the types of magic: Whoever wants to achieve such and such, let him do such and such. When they had created the types of magic, they put it in a book, then sealed it with a seal engraved with the seal of Solomon, and wrote at its head: This is what Asaf bin Barkhiya the Truthful wrote to King Solomon, son of David, from the treasures of knowledge. Then they buried it under his throne, and the remnants of the Children of Israel extracted it later when they innovated what they innovated. When they found it, they said: Solomon, son of David, was nothing but this. So they spread magic among the people and learned it and taught it, and there was no one more skilled than the Jews. When the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) mentioned Solomon, son of David, among those whom God revealed to him, and promised him among those whom He had counted among the messengers, the Jews of Medina said: "Are you not amazed that Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him) claims that Solomon, son of David, was a prophet, when by God he was nothing but a magician?" So God revealed concerning that their statement about Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him): "And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved." He said: When Solomon's kingdom was gone, groups of jinn and humans apostatized and followed their desires. When God restored Solomon's kingdom to him, the people continued on the religion as they were. Solomon took possession of their books and buried them under his throne. Solomon died shortly after that, and the jinn and humans took possession of the books after Solomon's death and said: This is a book from God that was revealed to Solomon, which he hid from us. So they took it and made it a religion, so God revealed: And when there came to them a Messenger from God confirming what was with them, a party of those who were given the Scripture threw the Book of God behind their backs as if they did not know and followed what the devils recited - which is musical instruments and games and everything that turns away from the remembrance of God.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

The correct interpretation of His statement: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon is that this is a rebuke from God to the Jewish rabbis who met the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and denied his prophethood even though they knew that he was a Messenger sent by God, and a rebuke from Him to them for refusing to reveal it and abandoning acting upon it while it was in their hands and they knew it and recognized that it was the Book of God, and for following, and following the example of their predecessors and ancestors, what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. We have already explained the reason for the permissibility of attributing the actions of their ancestors to them previously, so there is no need to repeat it here.

We have chosen this interpretation because what was followed was what the devils recited during the time of Solomon and after him until God sent His Prophet with the truth, and the matter of magic continued among the Jews. There is no indication in the verse that God Almighty intended by His saying: And they followed some of them without others, since it was permissible and eloquent in the speech of the Arabs to add what we described of the following of the ancestors of those reported about in His saying: And they followed what the devils recited to their successors after them. And there was no transmitted trace of that specifically from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, nor any evidence indicating it, so what was required from the statement in that regard was to say: Every follower of what the devils recited during the time of Solomon from the Jews is included in the meaning of the verse, in the manner that we have stated.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: What the devils recite. The Almighty means by His saying: What the devils recite: what they recite. So the interpretation of the statement is: And they followed what the devils recite.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the interpretation of his statement: recite. Some of them said: What he means by his statement: recite is to speak, narrate, talk about, and inform, like a man reciting the Qur'an, which is his reading. Those who said this interpretation based their interpretation on the fact that the devils are the ones who taught people magic and narrated it to them. Those who said this were mentioned:

Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me: Abu Hudhayfah told us: Shabl told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon, he said: The devils used to listen to the revelation, and whenever they heard a word they would add two hundred like it, so Solomon sent for what they had written of that and he collected it. When Solomon died, the devils found it and taught it to the people, and it was magic.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said: Yazid told us, he said: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon of divination and magic. And it was mentioned to us, and God knows best, that the devils had invented a book in which there was magic and a great matter, then they spread it among the people and taught it to them.

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Hussein told us, he said: Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: Ata' said: His statement: And they followed what the devils recited, he said: We see it as what they narrated.

Salim bin Junada Al-Suwai'i told me: Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The devils went out during the days in which Solomon was tested, and they wrote books in which there was magic and blasphemy, then they buried them under Solomon's throne, then they took them out and read them to the people.

Others said: The meaning of his saying: What you recite is what you follow, narrate, and act upon. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Hasan bin Amr Al-Anqazi told us: My father told me, on the authority of Asbat, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Tatlaw means: Follow.

Nasr bin Abdul Rahman Al-Azdi told me: Yahya bin Ibrahim told us, on the authority of Sufyan Al-Thawri, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Abu Razin, the same.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct thing to say about this is that God, the Almighty, informed us about those about whom He informed us that they followed what the devils recited during the time of Solomon, by following what the devils recited. And the saying of the speaker: He recites such-and-such in the speech of the Arabs has two meanings: One of them is following, as you say: I recited so-and-so if you walk behind him and follow his traces, as God, the Most High, said: There every soul will be recompensed for what it put forth, meaning by that it follows. And the other is reading and studying, as you say: So-and-so recites the Qur'an, meaning that he reads it and studies it, as Hassan ibn Thabit said:

A prophet who sees what people around him do not see, and recites the Book of God in every scene.

God Almighty did not tell us what the meaning of the recitation was. The recitation of the devils who recited what they recited of magic during the time of Solomon was a report that cuts off the excuse. It may be possible that the devils followed that by studying, narrating, and acting, so they followed it by acting, and studying it by narrating, so the Jews followed its method in that and acted upon it and narrated it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: during the reign of Solomon.

He means by His statement, may His praise be exalted: During the reign of Solomon, during the reign of Solomon. This is because the Arabs put in in the place of on and on in the place of in. From this is the statement of God, may His praise be exalted: And I will crucify you on the trunks of palm trees. He means by this: on the trunks of palm trees. And as He said: I did such and such during the reign of such and such and during the reign of such and such have the same meaning. And based on what we have said of that, Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Ishaq said in its interpretation.

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Hussein told us, he said: Hajjaj told me, he said: Ibn Jurayj said: On the kingdom of Solomon, he says: In the kingdom of Solomon.

Ibn Hamid told us: Salamah told us: Ibn Ishaq said regarding his statement: during the reign of Solomon meaning during the reign of Solomon.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.

If someone were to say to us: What is this statement of His saying: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, and there is no good with us? It was said that someone attributed disbelief to Solomon, but rather he only mentioned following those of the Jews who followed what the devils recited. So what is the point of denying disbelief from Solomon after the report about following those whom the devils followed in practicing magic and narrating it from the Jews? It was said: The point of that is that those to whom God, the Most High, attributed following what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon of magic and disbelief from the Jews, attributed what God, the Most High, attributed to the devils of that to Solomon, son of David, and they claimed that that was from his knowledge and narration, and that he only enslaved those whom he enslaved from mankind, jinn, devils, and all of God's creation by magic. Thus, they made their practice of what God had forbidden them of magic good in the eyes of those who were ignorant of God's commands and prohibitions, and in the eyes of those who had no knowledge of what God had revealed in the Torah regarding that, and they disavowed Solomon by attributing that to Solomon, although he was a prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from them a human being, and they denied that he was a messenger of God, and they said: Rather, he was a magician. So God acquitted Solomon, son of David, of magic and disbelief in the eyes of those among them who attributed magic and disbelief to him for reasons they claimed against him, some of which we have mentioned, and we will mention the rest of what we have attended to mention of them. And the most liars were the others who practiced magic, adorning their work to the ignorant people by saying that Solomon used to practice it. So God denied that Solomon, peace be upon him, was a magician or a disbeliever, and informed them that they only followed in their work of magic what the devils recited during the time of Solomon, not what Solomon had commanded them of obeying God and following what He commanded them in His Book that He revealed to Moses, may God bless him and grant him peace. Mentioning the evidence for the correctness of what we have said from the report and traces:

Ibn Hamid narrated: Yaqub al-Qummi narrated on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr who said: Solomon used to track down the magic that was in the hands of the devils, and he would take it and bury it under his throne in his treasury. The devils were unable to reach it, so they approached the humans and said to them: Do you want the knowledge that Solomon used to subjugate the devils, winds, and other things? They said: Yes. They said: It is in his treasury and under his throne. The humans provoked him and extracted it and acted upon it. The people of Hijaz said: Solomon used to do this and this is magic. Then God, the Most High, revealed on the tongue of His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, the innocence of Solomon, saying: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon... [The verse], so God revealed the innocence of Solomon on the tongue of His Prophet, may God bless them both.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Abu Al-Sa'ib Al-Suwa'i narrated: Abu Mu'awiyah narrated to us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: What happened to Solomon, son of David, was because of some people from the family of a woman called Jaradah, who was one of his most honorable wives. Solomon wanted the people of Jaradah to be right and he would judge in their favor, but he was punished because he did not like them at all. Solomon, son of David, whenever he wanted to go to the toilet or have intercourse with any of his wives, he would give the locust his ring. So when God wanted to test Solomon with what He tested him with, He gave the locust his ring one day. Then Satan came in the form of Solomon and said to it: Give me my ring. So he took it and put it on, and when he put it on, the devils, jinn, and humans obeyed him. Solomon came to it and said: Give me my ring. It said: You lie, you are not Solomon. Solomon realized that it was a test with which he was tested. He said: The devils went out and wrote books in those days that contained magic and blasphemy, then they buried them under the throne of Solomon. Then they took them out and read them to the people and said: Solomon used to overcome the people with these books. He said: So the people disavowed Solomon and disbelieved in him, until God sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God, may He be glorified and exalted, revealed: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, meaning what the devils wrote of magic and blasphemy. Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, so God, may He be glorified and exalted, revealed and excused him.

Muhammad ibn Abd al-A'la al-San'ani told me: Al-Mu'tamir ibn Sulayman told us: I heard Imran ibn Hudayr, on the authority of Abu Majlaz, who said: Solomon took a covenant from every animal, and if a man was afflicted and asked about that covenant, he would be released. Then the people saw the rhyming prose and magic and said: This is what Solomon used to do. Then God, the Most High, said: And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.

Abu Hamid narrated: Jarir narrated on the authority of Husayn ibn Abd al-Rahman on the authority of Imran ibn al-Harith, who said: While we were with Ibn Abbas, a man came to him. Ibn Abbas said to him: Where have you come from? He said: From Iraq. He said:

From which country? He said: From Kufa. He said: What is the report? He said: I left them saying that Ali is coming to them. He was startled and said: What are you saying? May your father be cursed. If we knew, we would not have married his women or divided his inheritance. As for me, I will tell you about that, that the devils used to eavesdrop from the sky, and one of them would come with a word of truth that he had heard. When he spoke the truth, he would lie with it seventy lies. He said: The hearts of the people would drink it up. So God informed Solomon of it, so he buried it under his throne. When Solomon, son of David, died, a devil stood on the road and said: Shall I not guide you to his forbidden treasure, the like of which is unparalleled? Under the throne. They took him out and said: This is magic. The nations copied it, and even the remnants of it are what the people of Iraq talk about. Then God revealed Solomon's excuse: "And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. And it was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic."

Bishr bin Muadh narrated: Yazid narrated: Saeed narrated: Qatada said: It was mentioned to us, and God knows best, that the devils invented a book in which there was magic and a great matter, then they spread it among the people and taught it to them. When Solomon, the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, heard of that, he tracked down those books, brought them, and buried them under his throne, not wanting people to learn them. When God took His Prophet Solomon, the devils deliberately extracted them from the place where they were and taught them to the people. They informed them that this was knowledge that Solomon had concealed and kept to himself. So God excused His Prophet Solomon and cleared him of that, saying, It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: The devils wrote books containing magic and polytheism, then they buried those books under the throne of Solomon. When Solomon died, the people extracted those books and said: This is knowledge that Solomon concealed. Then God, the Almighty, the Majestic, said: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. And it was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Hajjaj told us, Al-Hussein told us, he said: On the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. He said: The devils were listening to the revelation from the heaven, and whenever they heard a word they added something similar to it. And Solomon took what they had written of that and buried it under his throne, and when he died the devils found it and taught it to the people.

Al-Qasim narrated: Al-Husayn narrated: Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, who said: When Solomon's kingdom was taken away, the devils were writing down magic during Solomon's absence. They wrote: Whoever wants to do such and such should face the sun and say such and such, and whoever wants to do such and such should turn his back to the sun and say such and such. So I wrote it down and made its title: This is what Asaf ibn Barkhiya wrote to King Solomon, son of David, from the treasures of knowledge. Then I buried it under his throne. When Solomon died, Satan stood up and gave a sermon and said: O people, Solomon was not a prophet, but a magician. Search for his magic in his belongings and houses. Then he showed them the place where he was buried, and they said: By God, Solomon was a magician. This is his magic. This is what we worshipped, and this is what we were subdued by. The believers said: Rather, he was a believing prophet. When God sent the Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, he began to mention the prophets until he mentioned David and Solomon. The Jews said: Look at Muhammad, he mixes truth with falsehood, he mentions Solomon with the prophets, but he was only a magician who rode the wind. So God revealed Solomon's excuse: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon.

Ibn Humayd told us: Salamah told us: Ibn Ishaq told me: Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic. This is because, as I have heard, when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned Solomon, son of David, among the messengers, some of the Jewish rabbis said: Are you not amazed at Muhammad claiming that the son of David was a prophet? By God, he was nothing but a magician. So God revealed regarding that from their saying: Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, meaning by following magic and practicing it and what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut.

Abu Ja'far said: If the matter in that is as we have described and the interpretation of his saying: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon - and Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved - what we have mentioned, then it becomes clear that there is something omitted in the speech that was omitted, and what was mentioned of it was sufficient, and that the meaning of the speech is: And they followed what the devils recited of magic during the reign of Solomon, so you attribute it to Solomon - and Solomon did not disbelieve, so he practices magic, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic.

Qatada interpreted his statement: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, as we said.

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. He said: It was not based on his advice, nor was it based on his approval, but rather it was something that the devils did without him.

We have previously demonstrated the difference of opinion among those who differ on the meaning of tatalawa, and the explanation of those who pointed to tatalawa meaning talat, since what preceded it was a past-tense report, which is his statement: And they followed, and the explanation of those who directed that to the opposite of that. We have explained in it and its counterpart the correct statement, so that makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this place. As for the meaning of his statement: What you recite, it means what you recite, which is magic.

Ibn Hamid told us: Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon, meaning magic.

Abu Ja'far said: Perhaps someone might say: Or was magic only during the days of Solomon? It was said to him: Yes, it was before that, and God has informed us about the magicians of Pharaoh what He has informed us about them, and they were before Solomon, and He informed us about the people of Noah that they said to Noah that he was a magician. He said: So how did He inform us about the Jews that they followed what the devils recited during the time of Solomon? It was said: Because they attributed that to Solomon, as we have already explained, so God, the Most High, wanted to exonerate Solomon from what they attributed to him and what they had found either in his treasures or under his throne, according to what the traces that we have mentioned have brought about that. So He limited the report to what the Jews followed in what the devils recited during the days of Solomon and not others for that reason, even though the devils had followed magic and disbelief before that.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut.

Scholars differed in the interpretation of what is in His statement: And what was revealed to the two angels. Some of them said: Its meaning is denial, and it means did not. Those who said that mentioned:

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said: My father told me, he said: My uncle told me, he said: My father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, he says: God did not reveal magic.

Ibn Hamid told us: Hakam told me on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas: And what was revealed to the two angels? He said: God did not reveal magic to them.

The interpretation of the verse according to this meaning that we mentioned from Ibn Abbas and Al-Rabi' from their interpretation of the meaning of his saying: And what was revealed to the two angels to:

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

And it was not revealed to the two angels, and they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon of magic, and Solomon did not disbelieve nor did God send down magic to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so then his saying: in Babylon, Harut and Marut is from the postponement which means the presentation.

If someone were to say to us: How is this presented? It would be said: The way to present it is to say: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon and what was revealed to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut. So what is meant by the two angels is Gabriel and Michael, because the Jewish magicians, as mentioned, claimed that God revealed magic through Gabriel and Michael to Solomon, son of David. So God denied them with that and informed His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that Gabriel and Michael never revealed magic, and He acquitted Solomon of what they attributed to him of magic, so He informed them that magic is the work of the devils, and that they teach people in Babylon, and that those who teach them that are two men, one of whom is named Harut and the other is named Marut, so Harut and Marut, according to this interpretation, are a translation for the people and a refutation of them.

Others said: Rather, the interpretation of what is in His statement: And what was revealed to the two angels. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated: Abd al-Razzaq narrated: Muammar said: Qatada and al-Zuhri said on the authority of Abdullah: And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, they were two angels from the angels, and they were sent down to judge between the people. That is because the angels mocked the judgments of the sons of Adam. He said: A woman brought them to judge, and they were afraid of her, then they went to ascend, but they were prevented from that and were given the choice between the punishment of this world and the punishment of the Hereafter, and they chose the punishment of this world. Muammar said: Qatada said: So they taught people magic, and they were made to take a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.

Musa told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: As for his saying: And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, this is another magic that they also disputed with him about. He says: They disputed with him about what was revealed to the two angels, and the speech of the angels among themselves, if it is taught to mankind and he does and acts upon it, it is magic.

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: They teach people magic and that which was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut. Magic is of two types: magic taught by the devils, and magic taught by Harut and Marut.

Al-Muthanna told me: Abdullah bin Saleh told us: Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. He said: The separation between a man and his wife.

Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said: But the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels. So he recited until he reached: So do not disbelieve. He said: The devils and the two angels teach people magic.

Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of the verse, according to the interpretation of this statement that we mentioned from the one we mentioned from him: The Jews followed what the devils followed in the kingdom of Solomon, which was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut. They are two angels from the angels of God. We will mention what was narrated from the report about them, God willing.

They said: If someone were to say to us: Is it permissible for God to send down magic, or is it permissible for His angels to teach it to people? We would say to him: God, the Almighty, has sent down all good and evil. And He made all of that clear to His servants, so He revealed it to His messengers and commanded them to teach His creation and inform them of what is permissible for them and what is forbidden to them, such as adultery, theft, and all the other sins that He made known to them and forbade them from committing them. Magic is one of those sins that He informed them of and forbade them from committing.

They said: There is no sin in knowing magic, just as there is no sin in knowing how to make wine, carve idols, tambourines, and playthings. Rather, the sin is in doing it and making it.

They said: Likewise, there is no sin in knowing magic, but the sin is in acting upon it and harming someone who it is not permissible to harm.

They said: There is no sin in God sending it down to the two angels, nor in the two angels teaching it to the people from among His scholars, if their teaching it to the people from among His scholars was with God's permission for them to teach it after they inform him that it is a trial and forbid him from magic and practicing it and disbelief. Rather, the sin is upon the one who learns it from them and practices it, since God, the Most High, mentioned, forbade him from learning it and practicing it.

They said: If God had permitted the children of Adam to learn that, there would have been no difficulty in learning it, just as they would not have been difficult to learn it, since their knowledge of it was from God's revelation to them.

Others said: The meaning of what is the meaning of which, and it is in apposition to the first what, except that the first has the meaning of magic and the latter has the meaning of separating a man from his wife.

The interpretation of the verse according to this statement is: And they followed the magic that the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, and the separation between a man and his wife that was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut. Mention of those who said that:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, while they knew by what they separated between a man and his wife, and that is the saying of God, the Most High: And it was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. And he used to say: As for magic, only the devils teach it, and as for what the two angels teach, it is separation between a man and his wife, as God, the Most High, said.

Others said: It is possible for ma to mean who, and it is possible for ma to mean did not. Mention those who said that.

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me: Ibn Wahb told us: Al-Layth ibn Sa'd told me, on the authority of Yahya ibn Sa'id, on the authority of al-Qasim ibn Muhammad, and a man asked him about the statement of God: They teach people magic and that which was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. The man said: Are they teaching people what was revealed to them, or are they teaching people what was not revealed to them? Al-Qasim said: I do not care which of the two it is.

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me: Bishr bin Ayyad told us, on the authority of some of his companions, that Al-Qasim bin Muhammad was asked about the statement of God Almighty: And what was revealed to the two angels. He was asked: Was it revealed or not? He said: I do not care which of the two it was, except that I believe in it.

The correct statement in this regard, in my opinion, is the statement of the one who refers to what is in His statement: And what was revealed to the two angels to mean what is less than the meaning of what is in the sense of denial. I have chosen this because if what is directed to the sense of denial, it negates the two angels from having been revealed to them. The two names that come after them, I mean Harut and Marut, are not without being a substitute for them and a translation of them, or a substitute for the people in His statement: They teach people magic and a translation of them. If they are made a substitute for the two angels and a translation of them, then the meaning of His statement: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve' is invalidated. They learn from them that by which they separate a man from his wife, because if they do not know what separates a man from his wife, then what can someone learn from them who separates a man from his wife?

And then, what is in His statement: And what was revealed to the two angels, if it is in the meaning of denial in apposition to His statement: And Solomon did not disbelieve, then God, the Most High, denied with His statement: And Solomon did not disbelieve, from Solomon that magic was from his work, or from his knowledge or teaching. If what was denied from the two angels of that is similar to what was denied from Solomon, and Harut and Marut are the two angels, then from whom did he learn what separates a man from his wife? And from whom is the report that he informed about with His statement: And they do not teach anyone until they say, We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve? The error of this statement is clear and obvious. And if His statement Harut and Marut is a translation of from the people who are in His statement: But the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic, then it is necessary that the devils are the ones who taught Harut and Marut magic, and the magicians only learned magic from Harut and Marut from the devils teaching them. If that is the case, then Harut and Marut will not be without one of two things in the opinion of the one who said this statement: Either they were two angels, and if they were two angels in his view, then he has made it obligatory for them to disbelieve in God and to disobey Him by attributing to them that they learn magic from the devils and teach it to people, and their insistence on that and their persistence in it is greater than what was mentioned about them that they committed the disobedience for which they deserved punishment, and in the report of God the Almighty about them that they do not teach anyone what they learn from them until they say: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve, which makes it unnecessary to elaborate on the error of this statement. Or they were two men from the children of Adam, and if that is the case, then it is necessary that with their destruction magic and knowledge of it and practice have been removed from the children of Adam, because if knowledge of that was taken from them and learned from them, then it is necessary that with their destruction and non-existence there is no way to reach the meaning that could not be reached except through them, and in the existence of magic in every time and place there is the clearest evidence of the corruption of this statement. The one who says this may claim that they are two men from the children of Adam, who have not been absent from the earth since it was created, and will not be absent since magic was found among people. He claims something whose length is not hidden.

If these aspects that we have shown to be corrupt are corrupted, then it is clear that the meaning of what in

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

His statement: and what was revealed to the two angels is in the sense of who, and that Harut and Marut are translated by them from the two angels, and therefore the endings of their names were opened, because they are in the position of a genitive in response to the two angels, but since they were not in the accusative case, the endings of their names were opened.

If a fool is confused by what we have said, and says: How is it permissible for the angels of God to teach people how to separate a man from his wife? Or how is it permissible for God, the Blessed and Exalted, to send that down to the angels? It will be said to him: God, the Most High, has informed His servants of all that He has commanded them to do and all that He has forbidden them from doing, then He commanded them and forbade them after they had learned from Him what they are commanded to do and forbidden from doing. If the matter were otherwise, then the command and prohibition would not have had an understood meaning, for magic is something that He has forbidden His servants from the children of Adam from, so it is not strange that the Most High taught it to the two angels whom He named in His revelation and made them a trial for His servants from the children of Adam, as He informed us about them, that they say to whoever learns that from them: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve, in order to test His servants whom He has forbidden from separating a man from his wife and from magic, so the believer is purified by his abandoning learning from them, and the disbeliever is disgraced by learning magic and disbelief from them, and the two angels are obedient to God in their teaching of those who know that, since they were taught by God's permission to those who know that. A group of God's saints were worshipped instead of God, but that did not harm them, since it was not because they had commanded them to do so. Rather, some of them worshipped, but the one worshipped forbade them from doing so. Likewise, the two angels were not harmed by the magic of the magician who learned that from them after they forbade him from it and admonished him by saying: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve, since they had carried out what they were commanded to do by saying that. Likewise:

Muhammad bin Bashar told us: Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Awf, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, to his statement: So do not disbelieve, he took that upon them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains twenty-four issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. This is a statement from God the Almighty about the group who rejected the Book that they also followed magic, and they are the Jews. Al-Suddi said: The Jews opposed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the Torah, and the Torah and the Qur'an agreed, so they rejected the Torah and took the Book of Asif and the magic of Harut and Marut. Muhammad bin Ishaq said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned Solomon among the messengers, some of their rabbis said: Muhammad claims that the son of David was a prophet! By God, he was nothing but a magician, so God the Almighty revealed: And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved. That is, they conveyed to the children of Adam that what Solomon did of riding the sea and subjugating the birds and devils was magic. Al-Kalbi said: The devils wrote magic and magic spells on the tongue of Asaf, the scribe of Solomon, and buried him under his prayer rug so that God would take away his kingdom without Solomon noticing. When Solomon died, they took him out and said to the al-Nas 114: This is your kingdom, so learn it. As for the scholars of the Children of Israel, they said: God forbid that this is the knowledge of Solomon! As for the lowly ones, they said: This is the knowledge of Solomon, and they accepted his teaching and rejected the books of their prophets until God sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then God Almighty revealed to His Prophet the excuse of Solomon and they declared his innocence of what he was accused of, so He said: And they followed what the devils recited. Ata' said: Recite is read from recitation. Ibn Abbas said: Recite is follow, as you say: The people came following one another. Al-Tabari said: They followed and went astray.

I said: Because whoever follows something and makes it his priority has preferred it over something else. The meaning of taltala means talaqat, so it means to proceed. The poet said:

If you pass by his grave, bury the camels in the ground, with every limb swimming.

And sprinkle the sides of his grave with her blood, for he may be a brother of blood and sacrifices.

Meaning: It was. And it was the object of the verb they followed, meaning they followed what the devils said about Solomon and his recitation. It was said: What is negated, and it is nothing, neither in the system of speech nor in its correctness, as Ibn al-Arabi said. On the kingdom of Solomon meaning on his law and prophethood. Al-Zajaj said: The meaning is during the reign of Solomon. It was said: The meaning is in the kingdom of Solomon, meaning in his stories, descriptions and report. Al-Farra' said: On and in are suitable in such a place. He said: On and not yet because of the Almighty's saying: And We did not send before you any messenger or prophet except that when he recited, Satan cast into his recitation. That is, in his recitation. The meaning of the devil and its derivation have been mentioned previously, so there is no point in repeating it. And the devils here are said to be the devils of the jinn, and this is what is understood from this name. It was said: What is meant are the devils of mankind who rebel in misguidance, like the saying of Jarir:

Days they call me the devil because of my flirting, and they used to love me when I was a devil

The second: The Almighty's saying: And Solomon did not disbelieve is an exoneration from God for Solomon, and it was not mentioned in the verse that anyone attributed disbelief to him, but the Jews attributed it to magic, but since magic is disbelief, it became like someone who attributed it to disbelief, then He said: But the devils disbelieved so He established their disbelief by teaching magic. And they know is in the accusative case as a state, and it is permissible for it to be in the nominative case as a second predicate. The Kufians except for Asim read but the devils with a lightened but and raising the nun of the devils, and that is in al-Anfal 8: But God threw and Ibn Amir agreed with them. The rest read it with emphasis and in the accusative. But is a word that has two meanings: negating the past predicate and affirming the future predicate, and it is built from three words: La, Ka, In. La is a negation, and Kaf is an address, and In is an affirmation and confirmation, so the hamza was removed due to heaviness, and it is heavy and light, so if it is heavy, it is in the accusative case like the heavy in, and if it is light, it is raised with it as it is raised with the light in.

Third: Magic. It was said: Magic is originally deception through tricks and illusions. It is when the magician does things and meanings, and the bewitched person imagines that they are different from what they are, like someone who sees a mirage from afar and imagines that it is water, and like the passenger of a ship moving quickly and imagines that what he sees of trees and mountains is moving with him. It was said that it is derived from the verb sahartu al-sabi, meaning to deceive a boy, and likewise if you make him sick. And sihr is similar to it. Labid said:

If you ask us what we are, then we are birds from this enchanted people

last :

He showed us two places for an unseen matter and we were enchanted by food and drink.

Friendly birds and flies, bolder than a pack of wolves.

God the Almighty says: You are only one of those bewitched. It is said: the bewitched is the one who was created with magic, and it is said: one of the deceivers, meaning one who eats food and drinks. It is said: its origin is concealment, because magic is done in secret. And its origin is diversion, it is said: what bewitched you from such-and-such, meaning what diverted you from it, so magic is diverted from its direction. And it is said: its origin is attraction, and whoever bewitches you has bewitched you. And it is said: in His Almighty saying: Rather, we are a people bewitched, meaning he bewitched us, so he made us slip by imagination from our knowledge. Al-Jawhari said: Magic is taking, and everything that has a subtle and delicate take is magic, and he bewitched him, bewitches him with magic. And the magician is the scholar, and his magic also means he deceived him, and we have mentioned it. Ibn Masoud said: We used to call magic in the pre-Islamic era the bite... and the bite among the Arabs: the intensity of slander and the camouflage of lies. The poet said:

I seek refuge in my Lord from the slanderers who bite the biting one.

Fourth: There is a difference of opinion as to whether it is real or not. Al-Ghaznawi al-Hanafi mentioned in his book, 'Uyun al-Ma'ani: According to the Mu'tazila, magic is deception that has no basis, and according to al-Shafi'i, it is whispers and diseases. He said: According to us, its origin is a talisman based on the influence of the characteristics of the planets, like the influence of the sun on the mercury of Pharaoh's staff, or the glorification of the devils to make easy for him what was difficult.

I said: And we believe that it is true and has a reality, and God creates with it what He wills, as will come. Then there is magic that is done by sleight of hand like sorcery. And the sorcerer is the messenger because of the lightness of his gait. Ibn Faris said in Al-Mujmal: Magic is not from the speech of the Bedouins, and it is sleight of hand and taking like sorcery, and from it there is what is memorized speech, and incantations from the names of God Almighty. And it may be from the covenants of the devils, and it may be medicines and smokes and other than that.

Fifth: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called eloquence in speech and the tongue in it magic, and he said:

Indeed, some eloquence is magic. Narrated by Malik and others. This is because it supports falsehood until the listener thinks it is true. Based on this, his statement, peace be upon him: Indeed, some eloquence is magic was made to criticize eloquence and fluency, as he likened them to magic. It was also said that it was made to praise eloquence and prefer eloquence. This was stated by a group of scholars. The first is more correct, and the evidence for it is his statement, peace be upon him:

Perhaps some of you will be more eloquent in his argument than others, and his saying:

The most hated of you to me are the chatterboxes and the arrogant. Chattering means talking a lot and repeating it. It is said: A man chattered, so he is a chatterbox and a babbler. The same applies to the one who is arrogant. Ibn Duraid said: So-and-so is arrogant in his speech if he elaborates and is pedantic. He said:

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Its origin is fahaq, which means to be full, as if he filled his mouth with it.

I said: And with this meaning that we mentioned, Amer Al-Sha'bi, the narrator of the hadith, and Sa'sa'ah bin Suhan interpreted it and said: As for his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace: Indeed, some eloquence is magic, a man may be in the right but he is more eloquent in his arguments than the one who is in the right, so he bewitches the people with his eloquence and takes away the truth while he is in the right. Scholars only praise eloquence and the tongue as long as it does not go to the extent of prolixity and verbosity, and portraying falsehood as truth. This is clear, and praise be to God.

Sixth: There is magic that constitutes disbelief on the part of the one who does it, such as what they claim of changing people's forms, and making them appear as animals, and traveling a distance of a month in one night, and flying in the air. So whoever does this to make people think that he is right, then that is disbelief on his part, as stated by Abu Nasr Abd al-Raheem al-Qushayri. Abu Amr said: Whoever claims that the magician can change an animal from one form to another, and makes a person into a donkey or something similar, and is able to move bodies and destroy them and change them, then this person sees the killing of the magician because he is a disbeliever in the prophets, and he claims the same as their signs and miracles, and with this the knowledge of the truth of prophethood is not possible, since the like of it can be obtained through trickery. As for whoever claims that magic is deception, trickery, camouflage and imagination, then it is not obligatory on the basis of his principle to kill the magician, unless he kills someone by his action, in which case he is killed by it.

Seventh: The Sunnis believed that magic is proven and has a reality. The majority of the Mu'tazila and Abu Ishaq al-Istrabadi, one of the followers of al-Shafi'i, believed that magic has no reality, but rather it is a deception, illusion, and illusion of something being other than what it is, and that it is a type of sleight of hand and sorcery, as God the Almighty said: It appeared to him from their magic that it was moving. He did not say that it was moving in reality, but rather He said that it was made to appear to him. He also said: They bewitched the eyes of the people. There is no proof in this, because we do not deny that illusion and other things are part of magic, but behind that there are proven matters that reason allows and that have been heard, such as what came in this verse about mentioning magic and teaching it, and if it had no reality it would not have been possible to teach it, nor did God the Almighty inform that they taught it to the people, which indicates that it has a reality. God the Almighty said in the story of Pharaoh's magicians: And they produced a great magic. Surat Al-Falaq, with the agreement of the commentators that the reason for its revelation was the magic of Labid bin Al-A'sam, which is what Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said:

A Jew from the Jews of Banu Zuraiq, called Labid bin Al-A'sam, cast a spell on the Messenger of God (peace be upon him).

The hadith states: "When the spell was cast, the Prophet (peace be upon him) said: 'God has healed me.'" Healing is achieved by removing the illness and eliminating the disease, which indicates that it has a right and a reality, and it is certain that it exists and occurs through the information of God the Most High and His Messenger. According to this, the people of authority and contract who are the ones who make the consensus are responsible for it, and no attention should be paid to their agreement with the dregs of the Mu'tazilah and their opposition to the people of truth. Magic was widespread and well-known in the past, and people talked about it, and none of the Companions or the Followers denied its origin. Sufyan narrated on the authority of Abu Al-A'war on the authority of Armah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Magic was taught in a village in Egypt called Al-Farma, so whoever denies it is an unbeliever, a liar to God and His Messenger, and a denier of what he saw and saw with his own eyes.

Eighth: Our scholars said: It is not denied that the magician can cause a breach of the norm that is beyond the capacity of humans, such as illness, separation, disappearance, and deformation of a limb, and other things that have been proven to be impossible for people to be capable of. They said: It is not far-fetched in magic that the magician's body becomes so thin that it can enter into niches and holes, and stand erect like a reed, and run on a thin thread, and fly in the air, and walk on water, and ride a dog, and other things. Despite this, magic does not cause this, nor is it a reason for its occurrence, nor a generative cause, and the magician is not independent of it. Rather, God, the Most High, creates these things and brings them about when magic occurs, just as He creates satiety when eating, and satisfaction when drinking water. Sufyan narrated on the authority of Ammar al-Dahni that a magician was with al-Walid ibn Uqbah who walked on a rope, and entered the donkey's anus and exited from its mouth, so Jundub grabbed his sword and killed him - this is Jundub ibn Ka'b al-Azdi, and it is said al-Bajali - and he is the one about whom the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

There will be in my nation a man called Jundub who will strike with the sword and distinguish between truth and falsehood. They used to think of him as Jundub, the killer of the magician. Ali ibn al-Madini said: Haritha ibn Mudrib narrated from him.

Ninth: Muslims have agreed that there is magic that God does, such as sending down locusts, lice, and frogs, splitting the sea, turning the staff upside down, bringing the dead back to life, making dumb people speak, and similar great miracles of the Messengers, peace be upon them. This and similar things must be determined that God does not happen or do it when the magician wants it. Judge Abu Bakr ibn al-Tayyib said: We only forbade it by consensus, and if it were not for that, we would have permitted it.

Tenth: Regarding the difference between magic and miracles, our scholars said: Magic is performed by the magician and others, and there may be a group who know it and can perform it at the same time. And God cannot allow anyone to perform a miracle like it or to oppose it. Then the magician did not claim prophethood, so what comes from him is distinct from the miracle, because the condition of a miracle is the coupling of the claim of prophethood and the challenge with it, as mentioned in the introduction to the book.

Eleventh: The jurists differed regarding the ruling on a Muslim or non-Muslim magician. Malik held that if a Muslim practices magic on himself with words that constitute blasphemy, he should be killed and not given a chance to repent, nor should his repentance be accepted, because it is something he does secretly, like a heretic or an adulterer, and because God Almighty called magic blasphemy by saying:

And they did not teach it to anyone until they had said, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' This is the opinion of Ahmad ibn Hanbal, Abu Thawr, Ishaq, al-Shafi'i, and Abu Hanifa. Killing a sorcerer was narrated on the authority of Umar, Uthman, Ibn Umar, Hafsah, Abu Musa, Qais ibn Sa'd, and on the authority of seven of the Tabi'un. It was narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

The punishment for a sorcerer is to strike him with the sword. Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi, but it is not strong.

Ismail bin Muslim is the only one who narrated it, and they consider it weak. It was narrated by Ibn Uyaynah from Ismail bin Muslim from Al-Hasan, as a mursal. Some of them attributed it to Al-Hasan from Jundub. Ibn al-Mundhir said: We have narrated from Aisha that she sold a sorceress who had bewitched her and put her price towards freeing slaves. Ibn al-Mundhir said: If a man admits that he had bewitched her with words that constitute kufr, he must be killed if he does not repent. Likewise, if evidence is established against him and the evidence describes words that constitute kufr. If the words that he said he had bewitched with are not kufr, it is not permissible to kill him. If he caused the bewitched person to commit a crime that necessitates retaliation, then retaliation is taken from him if he did that intentionally. But if it is something for which there is no retaliation, then blood money is due for that. Ibn al-Mundhir said: If the companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) differed on an issue, it is obligatory to follow the one who is most similar to the Book and the Sunnah. It may be possible that the magic that ordered the one among them to kill the magician was magic that constituted disbelief, and that would be in accordance with the Sunnah of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). It is possible that Aisha may God be pleased with her ordered the sale of a witch whose magic was not disbelief. If someone uses as evidence the hadith of Jundub from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): The punishment for the magician is to strike him with the sword, if it were authentic, it would be possible that he ordered the killing of the magician whose magic constituted disbelief, and that would be in accordance with the reports that came from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that he said:

A person's blood is not permissible to be shed except in one of three cases.

I said: This is correct, and the blood of Muslims is forbidden and cannot be made permissible except with certainty, and there is no certainty with disagreement, and God knows best. Some scholars said: If the people of the craft say that magic is not done except with disbelief and arrogance, or glorifying Satan, then magic if it indicates disbelief is based on this estimation, and God knows best. It was narrated from Al-Shafi'i: The magician is not killed unless he kills with his magic and says I intentionally killed, and if he says I did not intentionally, he is not killed, and the blood money is paid for it like accidental killing, and if he harms him, he is disciplined according to the extent of the harm. Ibn Al-Arabi said: This is false for two reasons, the first of which is that he did not know magic, and its reality is that it is composed speech by which someone other than God is glorified, and destinies and beings are attributed to Him. The second is that God, the Exalted, has stated clearly in His Book that he disbelieved, saying: And Solomon did not disbelieve by saying magic, but the devils disbelieved in it and in teaching it. And Harut and Marut say: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve and this is an emphasis on the statement.

Malik's companions argued that his repentance is not accepted, because magic is hidden and its doer does not show it, so his repentance is not known, like the zindiq. Rather, repentance is called upon only for the one who shows disbelief and apostasy. Malik said: If the magician or zindiq comes repentant before testifying against them, their repentance is accepted. The evidence for that is the statement of God the Almighty: But their faith did not benefit them when they saw Our punishment. This indicates that their faith did benefit them before the punishment descended, and so it is with these two.

Twelfth: As for the sorcerer of the dhimmi, it was said that he should be killed. Malik said: He should not be killed unless he kills by his sorcery and he is liable for what he has committed, and he should be killed if he does something that he did not promise. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: As for if he is a dhimmi, the narrations from Malik differ. He said once: He should be given a chance to repent and his repentance is Islam. He said once: He should be killed even if he converts to Islam. As for the combatant, he should not be killed if he repents. Malik said the same about the dhimmi who curses the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: He should be given a chance to repent and his repentance is Islam. He said once: He should be killed and he should not be given a chance to repent like the Muslim. Malik also said about the dhimmi if he practices sorcery: He should be punished, unless he killed by his sorcery or caused an accident, in which case it should be taken from him according to his share. Another said: He should be killed because he has broken the covenant. The sorcerer does not inherit from his heirs, because he is an unbeliever, unless his sorcery is not called unbelief. Malik said about a woman who marries a husband for herself or for someone else: She should be punished but not killed.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Thirteenth: They differed as to whether the magician should ask the one who is bewitched to remove the magic. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab permitted it according to what Al-Bukhari mentioned, and Al-Muzani leaned towards it, but Al-Hasan Al-Basri disliked it. Al-Sha'bi said: There is nothing wrong with the leaflet. Ibn Battal said: In the book of Wahb bin Munabbih: To take seven leaves of green Sidr, crush them between two stones, then throw them in water and recite Ayat Al-Kursi over it, then take three sips of it and wash yourself, for everything that is in him will go away, God willing. It is good for a man if he is prevented from his family.

Fourteenth: Most of the Mu'tazila denied the devils and the jinn, and their denial indicates their lack of concern and the weakness of their religion. There is nothing impossible in proving them rationally, and the texts of the Book and the Sunnah indicate their proof. It is the right of the wise man who holds fast to the rope of God to prove what reason has decided to be right, and the Shari'ah has stated its proof. God Almighty said: But the devils disbelieved and He said: And among the devils are those who dive for him and other verses, and Surat al-Jinn dictates this, and he, peace be upon him, said:

The devil runs through the son of Adam as blood runs through him. Many people have denied this report, and have transformed two souls into one body. The mind does not deny their behavior among humans if their bodies are thin and simple, as some people say, rather most of them. If they were dense, this would also be true of them, just as it is true that food and drink enter the empty space of the body. Likewise, worms may be in the sons of Adam while they are alive.

Fifteenth: The Almighty's saying: And what was revealed to the two angels is what is negated, and the waw is for conjunction with His saying: And Solomon did not disbelieve because the Jews said: God sent

Gabriel and Michael with magic, so God denied that. And in the speech there is an inversion, the meaning is: And Solomon did not disbelieve, and what was revealed to the two angels, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so Harut and Marut are substitutes for the devils in His saying: But the devils disbelieved. This is the first interpretation that the verse is based on, and the most correct of what has been said about it, and no attention should be paid to anything else, for magic is from the extraction of devils due to the delicacy of their essence, and the subtlety of their understanding, and what most of the people practice it is women, especially during their menstruation, God Almighty said: And from the evil of those who blow on knots. And the poet said:

I seek refuge in my Lord from the slanderers....

Sixteenth: If someone says: How can two be a substitute for a group, when the substitute is only on the same level as the one being replaced? The answer is from three aspects. The first: That two may be called a group, as God Almighty said: But if he has brothers, then to his mother is a sixth. And nothing prevents her from a third to a sixth except two brothers or more, as will be explained in the chapter on women. The second: That since they were the head in education, He specified them without following them, as God Almighty said: Over it are nineteen. The third: They were only mentioned specifically from among them because of their rebellion, as God Almighty said: In them are fruits and palm trees and pomegranates and His statement: And Gabriel and Michael. This is common in the Qur'an and in the speech of the Arabs. Some general people may be mentioned either for their honor or for their virtue, such as the Almighty's saying: Indeed, the people most worthy of Abraham are those who followed him and this Prophet and His saying: And Gabriel and Michael, or for their goodness, such as His saying: Fruits, date palms, and pomegranates, or for their majority, such as the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

The earth has been made for me a place of prostration and its soil is pure, or because of his rebellion and insolence as in this verse, and God knows best. It has been said that ma is conjoined with magic and it is the object, so according to this, ma has the meaning of who, and magic is sent down to the two angels as a trial for the people and a test, and God has the right to test His servants as He wills, as He tested Talut with the river, and for this reason the two angels say: We are only a trial, meaning a test from God, we inform you that the work of the magician is disbelief, so if you obey us, you will be saved, and if you disobey us, you will perish. It has been narrated from Ali, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Ibn Omar, Kaab al-Ahbar, al-Suddi, and al-Kalbi, meaning that when corruption increased among the children of Adam, peace be upon him - and that was during the time of Idris, peace be upon him - the angels taunted them, so God, the Most High, said: If you were in their place and I had instilled in you what I had instilled in them, you would have done the same deeds as they did, so they said: Glory be to You! We should not have done that. He said: So choose two angels from among your best, and they chose Harut and Marut. He sent them down to earth and rode lust in them. Not a month had passed before they were tempted by a woman whose name in Nabataean was Bidakht, in Persian Nahil, and in Arabic, Zahra. They argued with them and tried to seduce her, but she refused unless they entered her religion, drank wine, and killed the soul that God had forbidden. They agreed to it and drank wine and had intercourse with her. A man saw them and they killed him. She asked them about the name by which they would ascend to heaven, so they taught it to her and she spoke it, so she ascended and was transformed into a planet.

Salim said on the authority of his father on the authority of Abdullah: Kaab al-Habr told me that they did not complete their day until they did what God had forbidden them. And in another hadith: So they were given the choice between the torment of this world and the torment of the Hereafter, and they chose the torment of this world. So they are being tormented in Babylon in a region of the earth. It was said: Babylon of Iraq. And it was said: Babylon of Nahavand. Ibn Omar, according to what is narrated on the authority of Ata, whenever he saw Al-Zahra and Suhayl, he would curse and insult them, saying: Suhayl was a tax collector in Yemen who used to oppress people, and Al-Zahra was the companion of Harut and Marut.

We said: All of this is weak and far from Ibn Omar and others. None of it is authentic, as it is a statement that is rejected by the fundamentals regarding the angels who are the trustees of God over His revelation and His ambassadors to His messengers: They do not disobey God in what He commands them and do what they are commanded. "Rather, they are honored servants. They do not precede Him in speech and they act by His command." They glorify God night and day, never slackening. As for the mind, it does not deny that the angels commit sins and that they go against what they were commanded to do, and that desires are created in them, as everything is imaginary in the power of God, the Most High. This is the fear of the prophets and the virtuous and knowledgeable saints, but the occurrence of this possibility can only be perceived by hearing and it is not authentic. What indicates its invalidity is that God, the Most High, created the stars and planets when He created the sky, as in the report:

When the heaven was created, seven planets were created in it: Saturn, Jupiter, Bahram, Mercury, Venus, the sun, and the moon. This is the meaning of the statement of God Almighty: And each floats in an orbit. Thus it is proven that Venus and Canopus existed before the creation of Adam. Then the statement of the angels: It was not fitting for us is shameful: they are not able to tempt us. This is blasphemy, from which we seek refuge with God, and from attributing it to the honorable angels, may God's prayers be upon them all.

We have declared them to be pure, and they are pure, from everything that the commentators have mentioned and transmitted. Glory be to your Lord, the Lord of Majesty, from what they describe.

Seventeenth: Ibn Abbas, Ibn Abi Zayd, Ad-Dahhak, and Al-Hasan read the two kings with a kasra on the lam. Ibn Abi Zayd said: They are David and Solomon. So ma according to this statement is also a negative, and Ibn Al-Arabi weakened this statement. Al-Hasan said: They are two kings in Babylon, so ma according to this statement is a non-negative object.

Eighteenth: The Almighty's saying: in Babylon. Babylon is not declined due to being feminine, definite, or foreign. It is a region of the earth. It was said: Iraq and its neighbors. Ibn Masoud said to the people of Kufa: You are between Al-Hirah and Babylon. Qatada said: It is from Nasibin to Ras Al-Ain. Some people said it is in the Maghreb. Ibn Atiyya said: This is weak. Some people said: It is Mount Nahavand. And God Almighty knows best.

There is a difference of opinion about its name, Babel. It was said that it was named thus because the languages were confused there when the palace of Nimrod fell. It was also said that it was named thus because when God Almighty wanted to create discord among the languages of the children of Adam, He sent a wind that gathered them from the horizons to Babel. God confused their languages with it, then that wind dispersed them in the lands and caused confusion. The best of it is what was narrated by Dawud ibn Abi Hind on the authority of Alba' ibn Ahmar on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas: When Noah, peace be upon him, descended to the bottom of Mount Judi, he built a village and named it Thamanin. One day, their languages were confused in eighty languages, one of which was the Arabic language, and they could not understand each other.

Nineteenth: Abdullah bin Busr Al-Mazini narrated that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Beware of this world, for by Him in Whose hand is my soul, it is more enchanting than Harut and Marut. Our scholars said: This world is more enchanting than them because it enchants with its deceptions, and conceals its temptations from you, so it calls you to be keen on it and compete in it, and to gather for it and withhold it, until it separates you from obeying God the Most High, and separates you from seeing the truth and observing it. This world is more enchanting than them, for it takes your heart away from God, and from fulfilling His rights, and from His promise and threat. The enchantment of this world is loving it and enjoying its desires, and making you desire its false wishes until it takes hold of your heart. For this reason, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Loving you is something that blinds and deafens.

Al-Muwaffiyah twentieth: The Almighty said: Harut and Marut Harut is not declined, because it is a foreign proper noun, and so is Marut, and the plural of Hawarit and Mawarit, like Tawagheet, and it is said: Hawaratah and Hawar, and Mawaratah and Mawaar, and the same is true of Goliath and Talut, so know. And it was mentioned before, are they two angels or other than them? There is disagreement. Al-Zajjaj said: It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he said: That is, by the One who sent down to the two angels, and that the two angels teach the people a warning against magic, not a call to it. Al-Zajjaj said: This is the opinion held by most linguists and theorists, and its meaning is that they teach the people the prohibition, so they say to them: Do not do such-and-such, and do not use such-and-such to separate a man from his wife. And what was sent down to them is the prohibition, as if it were a statement to the al-Nas 114: Do not do such-and-such, so they know in the sense of they know, as He said: And We have certainly honored the children of Adam, meaning We have honored.

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Twenty-first: The Almighty's saying: And they do not know anyone Min is an additional word for emphasis, and the meaning is: And they do not know anyone. Until they say Until they say is in the accusative case with until, and that is why the letter nun was deleted from it. The language of Hudhayl and Thaqif is with the unvoiced ayn. The pronoun in they know refers to Harut and Marut, and there are two opinions regarding they know, one of them is that it is in its category from education. The second is that it is from information and not from education, so they know means they know. And in the speech of the Arabs it has come to mean I know, as mentioned by Ibn al-A'rabi and Ibn al-Anbari. Ka'b ibn Malik said:

The Messenger of God learned that you will catch up with me and that a threat from you is like taking me by the hand.

Al-Qatami said:

Learn that after error comes guidance and that error will be dispelled.

Zuhair said:

Learn, by God, this is a division, and be able to use your arm and see where you slip away.

Another said:

Know that there is no bird except upon a bird of prey, which is death.

We are only a trial. When he informed of their trial, the world was more magical than them when it concealed its trial. So do not disbelieve. One group said that it teaches magic, and another group said that it uses it. Al-Mahdawi said that it was mockery, because they were saying this to someone whose misguidance we had confirmed.

Twenty-second: The Almighty's statement: And they learn from them. Sibawayh said: The meaning is that they learn. Something similar to him said: Be, and it is. It was said that it is connected to the position of what they know, because his statement: And what they know, even if the negative ma enters into it, then its dammah indicates the affirmation of teaching. Al-Farra' said: It is returned to his statement: They teach people magic, so they learn, and it is, so they learn is connected to his statement: We are only a trial, so they come and learn. Al-Suddi said: They used to say to whoever came to them: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. If he refused to return, they would say to him: Go to these ashes and urinate in them. When he urinates in them, a light comes out of it shining to the sky, which is faith, then black smoke comes out of it and enters his ears, which is disbelief. So when he tells them what he saw of that, they teach him what they use to separate a man from his wife. A group of scholars said that the magician is not capable of doing more than what God has told us about causing division, because God mentioned that in the context of censuring magic and the purpose of teaching it. If he had been capable of doing more than that, he would have mentioned it. A group said: That is most likely, and it cannot be denied that magic has an effect on hearts, through love and hatred and by casting evils until the magician separates a man from his wife, and comes between a man and his heart, by causing pain and great illness. All of that is perceived through observation, and denying it is stubbornness. This has been mentioned before, and praise be to God.

Twenty-third: The Almighty's statement: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by God's permission. What they are refers to is the magicians. It was also said to the Jews, and it was also said to the devils. Harming anyone thereby means by magic. Of anyone means anyone, and of is redundant. Except by God's permission means by His will and decree, not by His command, because the Almighty does not command indecency and decree it upon creation. Al-Zajjaj said: Except by God's permission means by God's knowledge. Al-Nahas said: Abu Ishaq's statement Except by God's permission means by God's knowledge is a mistake, because knowledge is only said to be permissible, and I have given permission. But since He did not prevent what was between them and Him and they continued to do it, it was as if He permitted it metaphorically.

Twenty-fourth: The Almighty's statement: And they learn what harms them. He means in the Hereafter, even if they take it for a little while in this world. It was said: It harms them in this world, because the harm of magic and separation returns to the magician in this world if he stumbles upon it, because he is disciplined and warned, and the evil of magic befalls him. The rest of the verses are clear because their meanings have been presented. The lam in and certainly knew is a lam of emphasis. For whoever purchased it is a lam of an oath, and it is also for emphasis. The position of man is raised by the beginning, because what comes before the lam does not work on what comes after it. Man means who. Al-Farra' said: It is for recompense. Al-Zajaj said: This is not a position of condition, and man means who, as you say: I have learned, for whoever comes to you who has no intellect. Man khalaq is redundant, and the meaning is that he has no khalaq in the Hereafter, and it is not added to the obligatory, this is the saying of the Basrans. The Kufians said: It is redundant in obligatory words, and they provided evidence for it with the words of God Almighty: He will forgive you some of your sins. And al-Khalaq means share, Mujahid said. Al-Zajaj said: And it is also the case with the linguists, except that it is hardly used except for a share of good. He was asked about the words of God Almighty: And they certainly knew that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter, so he informed that they knew, then he said: And evil is that for which they sold themselves, if they only knew, so he informed that they did not know. So the answer, which is the saying of Qatrub and Al-Akhfash, is that those who know are the devils, and those who sold themselves are the humans who do not know. Al-Zajaj said: Ali bin Sulayman said: I think it is better to say and they certainly knew for the two angels, because they are more deserving of knowing. He said: They knew, as it is said: The two Zayds stood up. Al-Zajaj said: Those who knew were the Jewish scholars, but it was said: If they had known, meaning they entered into the position of someone who is told: You are not a scholar, because they abandoned working with their work and sought guidance from those who practiced magic.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And the Almighty said: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' Abu Ja'far al-Razi said, on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas, on the authority of Qays ibn 'Ibad, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: So when the one who came to them wanted to practice magic, they forbade him with the strongest prohibition and said to him: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. This is because they knew good and evil, disbelief and faith, so they knew that magic is from disbelief. He said: So if he refused them, they ordered him to go to such and such a place, and when he came to him, he saw Satan and taught him, and when he learned him, a light came out of him, and he looked at him shining in the sky and said: Oh, what a pity! Oh, what did he do? And on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, he said in the interpretation of this verse: Yes, the two angels sent down magic to teach people the affliction with which God wanted to test people, so He took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Qatada said: He took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, meaning a trial with which we have been afflicted, so do not disbelieve. As-Suddi said: If a person came to them wanting to practice magic, they would admonish him and say to him: Do not disbelieve, we are only a trial. If he refused, they would say to him: Go to these ashes and urinate on them. When he urinates on them, a light comes out of it and shines until it enters the sky, and that is faith. Something black like smoke comes and enters his ears, and everything, and that is the wrath of God. If he tells them about that, they would teach him magic. This is the statement of God the Most High: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' (al-Baqarah 2:170) Sunayd said on the authority of Hajjaj on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding this verse: None would dare to practice magic except a disbeliever. As for the trial, it is the test and choice, and from it is the saying of the poet:

He tempted people in their religion and left Ibn Affan in a state of evil for a long time.

And also the saying of the Almighty, informing about Moses, peace be upon him, where he said: It is only your trial, meaning your trial, your test, and your examination, with which You misguide whom You will and guide whom You will. Some of them have used this verse as evidence for the disbelief of those who learn magic, and they have cited as evidence for it the hadith narrated by Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar, who told us, Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Hammam, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: "Whoever goes to a soothsayer or magician and believes what he says, has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace." This is a sound chain of transmission and it has other corroborating evidence. And the saying of the Almighty: And they learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife, meaning that people learn from Harut and Marut the science of magic and what they do with it in what they do of reprehensible actions, by which they cause separation between spouses, despite the mixing and harmony between them, and this is from the doing of the devils, as Muslim narrated in his Sahih from the hadith of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sufyan, on the authority of Talhah bin Nafi', on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The devil places his throne on the water and then sends out his armies among the people. The one closest to him in status is the one who causes the greatest temptation. One of them comes and says: 'I kept on with so-and-so until I left him saying such-and-such.' Iblis says: 'No, by God, I did nothing!'" And one of them comes and says: 'I did not leave him until I separated him from his family.' He acknowledges it, brings him close, embraces him and says: 'Yes, you are.'" The reason for separation between spouses through magic is what a man or woman imagines of the other in terms of bad appearance, character, or something similar, or a contract, or hatred, or something similar to the reasons that necessitate separation. 'Man' refers to a man and its feminine form is 'woman.' Both of them are dual, but they are not plural, and God knows best.

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

And the Almighty's saying: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. Sufyan al-Thawri said: Except by the decree of God.

Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Except by God's leaving him alone with what He willed. Al-Hasan al-Basri said:

And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. He said: Yes, whoever God wills, He gives them power over him, and whoever God does not will, He does not give them power over him, and they cannot do anything to anyone except by permission of God, as God the Almighty said. And in a narration from Al-Hasan, he said: This magic does not harm anyone except the one who engages in it. And the Almighty's saying: And they learn that which harms them and does not benefit them means that it harms them in their religion and has no benefit that matches its harm. And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter means that the Jews who exchanged magic for following the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew that whoever did what they did, that he will have no share in the Hereafter. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Al-Suddi said: No share. And Abd Al-Razzaq said from Muammar from Qatadah: He will have no share in the Hereafter with God. And Abd Al-Razzaq said, and Al-Hasan said: He has no religion. And Saad said from Qatadah: He will have no share in the Hereafter He said: And the People of the Book knew in what God entrusted them with that the magician will have no share in the Hereafter. And the Almighty's saying: "And evil is that for which they sold themselves, if they only knew. And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better, if they only knew." The Almighty says: And evil is the substitute that they exchanged for magic in place of faith. And following the Messenger, if they had knowledge of what they were admonished with, And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better for them. That is, if they had believed in God and His Messengers and feared the forbidden things, God's reward for that would have been better for them than what they sought for themselves and were satisfied with, as God the Almighty said, "And those who were given knowledge said, 'Woe to you! The reward from God is better for him who believes and does righteousness. And none is granted it except the patient.'"

And the saying of And if they had believed and feared God was used as evidence by those who considered the magician to be an infidel, as is narrated by Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal and a group of the Salaf. It was said: Rather, he is not an infidel, but his punishment is to behead him, as narrated by Al-Shafi'i and Ahmad ibn Hanbal. They said: Sufyan, who is Ibn Uyaynah, told us on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar that he heard Bajalah ibn Abdah say: Umar ibn Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, wrote: Kill every male and female magician. He said: So we killed three female magicians. Al-Bukhari also included it in his Sahih. And thus it was authenticated that Hafsa, the Mother of the Believers, was bewitched by a slave girl of hers, so she ordered that she be killed. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said: It was authenticated on the authority of three of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding killing the magician. Al-Tirmidhi narrated from the hadith of Ismail bin Muslim from Al-Hasan from Jundub Al-Azdi that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The punishment for a magician is to strike him with a sword. Then he said: We do not know it as being attributed to the Prophet except from this source, and Ismail bin Muslim is considered weak in hadith, and the correct version is from Al-Hasan from Jundub as a mursal. I said: Al-Tabarani narrated it from another source from Al-Hasan from Jundub as a mursal. And God knows best. It has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission that Al-Walid bin Uqbah had a magician playing in front of him. He would strike a man's head and then shout at him, and his head would be returned to him. The people said: Glory be to God, He brings the dead back to life. A righteous man from the Muhajireen saw him, so the next day he came with his sword wrapped around him and went to play that game. The man drew his sword and struck the magician's neck, and said: If he is telling the truth, then let him revive himself. Then he recited the verse of God, Do you then practice magic while you are seeing? Al-Walid became angry because he did not ask his permission to do so, so he imprisoned him and then released him. And God knows best. Imam Abu Bakr Al-Khalal said: Abdullah bin Ahmad bin Hanbal told us, my father told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, Abu Ishaq told me on the authority of Haritha, who said: There was a man playing with one of the princes, then a soldier came with his sword drawn and killed him. He said: I think he was a magician. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, attributed the story of Umar and Hafsa to magic that constitutes polytheism, and God knows best.

Chapter Abu Abdullah al-Razi narrated in his interpretation of the Mu'tazila that they denied the existence of magic. He said: And perhaps they disbelieved whoever believed in its existence. He said: As for the Sunnis, they allowed that the magician could fly in the air and turn a human into a donkey, and a donkey into a human, except that they said: God creates things when the magician says those incantations and specific words. As for the one who has an effect on that being the heavens and the stars, then no, contrary to the philosophers, astrologers, and Sabians. Then he provided evidence for the occurrence of magic and that it is by the creation of God Almighty by His Almighty saying: And they do not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. And from the report that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched, and that magic worked on him and the story of that woman with Aisha, may God be pleased with her, and what that woman mentioned about her coming to Babylon and learning magic. He said: And from what is mentioned in this chapter of many stories, then he said after this.

The fifth issue is that knowledge of magic is not ugly or forbidden - the scholars agreed on this because knowledge in itself is noble, and also because of the generality of the Almighty's saying: "Say: Are those who know equal to those who do not know?" And because if magic were not known, it would not be possible to differentiate between it and a miracle, and knowledge that a miracle is a miracle is obligatory, and whatever the obligation depends on is obligatory. This requires that acquiring knowledge of magic be obligatory, and whatever is obligatory, how can it be forbidden and ugly? This is his wording on this issue, and this statement is questionable from several aspects, one of which is his saying: Knowledge of magic is not ugly rationally, so his opponents from the Mu'tazila forbid this, even if he meant that it is not ugly religiously, so in this noble verse there is an ugliness to learning magic, and in the Sahih: Whoever goes to a fortune teller or a soothsayer has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, and in the Sunan: Whoever ties a knot and blows into it has practiced magic, and his saying: and there is no prohibition, the scholars have agreed on that, how could it not be prohibited with what we have mentioned from the verse and the hadith and the agreement of the scholars requires that the imams of the scholars or most of them have stated this issue, and where are their texts on that? Then, its inclusion in the science of magic in the generality of the Almighty's saying: "Say: Are those who know equal to those who do not know?" There is a consideration in this, because this verse only indicates the praise of those who know Islamic knowledge. And why did I say that this is from it? Then, it is an advancement to the obligation of learning it, because knowledge of the miracle cannot be obtained except through it. It is weak, rather corrupt, because the greatest miracle of our Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the Great Qur'an, which falsehood cannot approach from before it or from behind it, a revelation from the Wise, the Praiseworthy. Then, the knowledge that it is a miracle does not depend on the knowledge of magic at all. Then, it is known by necessity that the Companions, the Followers, the Imams of the Muslims and their common folk knew the miracle and differentiated between it and other things, and they did not know magic, nor did they know it, nor did they teach it. And God knows best.

Then Abu Abdullah al-Razi mentioned that there are eight types of magic: The first is the magic of the liars and the Kasdaniyyin, who used to worship the seven wandering planets, which are the moving ones, and they believed that they governed the world and that they bring good and evil. They are the ones to whom God sent Abraham, peace be upon him, to invalidate their statement and reject their doctrine. He investigated it thoroughly in The Book of the Hidden Secret, in Addressing the Sun and the Stars attributed to him, as mentioned by Judge Ibn Khalikan and others. It is said that he repented from it, and it is said that he wrote it in order to show virtue, not as a matter of belief. This is what is thought of him, except that he mentioned in it their method in addressing each of these seven planets and the manner in which they do, what they wear, and what they adhere to.

He said: And the second type is the magic of those with delusions and strong souls. Then he provided evidence that delusion has an effect in that a person can walk on a bridge placed on the ground, but he cannot walk on it if it is extended over a river or something similar. He said: And just as the doctors agreed to forbid the frightened from looking at red things, and the possessed from looking at things that are very shiny or rotating, and that is only because souls were created obedient to delusions. He said: The wise have agreed that the evil eye is true - and he can prove that with what is proven in the Sahih that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The evil eye is true, and if there were anything that could overtake destiny, it would be the evil eye. He said: So if you know this, then we say that the soul that does these actions may be very strong, so it does not need to resort to tools and instruments in these actions, and it may be weak, so it needs to resort to these tools. The truth of this is that if the soul is elevated above the body and strongly attracted to the world of the heavens, it becomes as if it is a spirit from the heavenly spirits, so it is strong in influencing the materials of this world. If it is weak and strongly attached to this physical self, then at that time it has no influence at all except in this body. Then he advised to treat this disease by reducing food, cutting off from people and showing off. I said: What he is referring to is dealing with the state, and it is of two types: sometimes it is a correct, legitimate state, in which one deals with what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, have commanded, and one leaves what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, have forbidden. These states are gifts from God the Almighty and miracles for the righteous of this nation, and this is not called magic in the Sharia. Sometimes the situation is corrupt and its owner does not comply with what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded, and does not act in that way. This is the situation of the wretched who oppose the Sharia, and God giving them these situations does not indicate His love for them. Likewise, the Antichrist has supernatural powers that are indicated by many hadiths, even though he is condemned in the Sharia, may God curse him, and likewise those who resemble him from those who oppose the Muhammadan Sharia, upon its owner the best prayers and peace. Explaining this would take a long time and this is not the place for it.

He said: The third type of magic is seeking help from earthly spirits, who are the jinn, contrary to the philosophers and the Mu'tazila, who are divided into two groups: believers and infidels, who are the devils. He said: The communication of the speaking souls with them is easier than their communication with the heavenly spirits, because of the relevance and closeness between them. Then the masters of the craft and the masters of experience have witnessed that communication with these earthly spirits results in a few easy works of incantation, smoke, and abstraction. This type is called incantations and the work of subjugation.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

He said: The fourth type of magic is imagination, taking the eyes, and magic. It is based on the fact that sight may err and be occupied with a specific thing and not with something else. Do you not see the skilled magician showing off the work of something that astounds the minds of those who look at it and takes their eyes to it until, when they are exhausted by the preoccupation with that thing by talking and the like, he does something else very quickly. Then something else appears to them other than what they expected, and they are very amazed by it. If he were silent and did not speak in a way that would divert the thoughts to the opposite of what he wants to teach, and the souls and imaginations were not moved to other than what he wants to bring out, the observers would be aware of everything he does. He said And whenever the conditions are beneficial to good sight, some type of defect is more severe, the work is better, such as if the magician sits in a very bright or dark place, so the seeing power does not stop at its conditions in this case.

I said Some commentators said: The magic of the magicians before Pharaoh was only a form of sorcery, and for this reason the Almighty said: So when they cast, they bewitched the eyes of the people and struck terror into them and produced a great magic. And the Almighty said: It appeared to him from their magic that it was moving. They said: And it was not moving in reality, and God knows best.

The fifth type of magic: The amazing works that appear from the assembly of machines based on geometric proportions, such as a knight on a horse with a trumpet in his hand, every hour of the day he strikes the trumpet without anyone touching him - and from them are the images that the Romans and Indians depicted so that the observer cannot distinguish between them and a human being until they depict them laughing and crying, until he said: These faces are from the subtle matters of imagination. He said: And the magic of Pharaoh's magicians was of this type I said meaning what some of the commentators said: They took those ropes and sticks and filled them with mercury so that they began to twist because of what was in them of that mercury, so it seemed to the observer that they were moving of their own free will. Al-Razi said: And from this category is the assembly of a watch box, and the science of dragging weights with light machines falls under this category. He said: And this in reality should not be considered magic because it has known and certain causes that whoever looks at them can do. I said And of this kind are the tricks of the Christians upon their common people with what they show them of lights, such as the case of the garbage of the church that they have in the city of Jerusalem, and the trick they use of secretly bringing fire into the church and lighting that lamp with a clever craft that is popular with the common people among them. As for the elite, they acknowledge that, but they interpret that they are uniting their companions in their religion, so they see that as permissible for them. And there is a doubt about them for the ignorant fools among the worshippers of the Karamiyyah who see the permissibility of fabricating hadiths in encouragement and intimidation, so they are included in the number of those about whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever lies about me intentionally, let him take his seat in the Fire. And his saying: Talk about me and do not lie about me, for whoever lies about me will enter the Fire. Then he mentioned here a story about some monks, which is that he heard the voice of a bird with a sad voice and weak movement, so when the birds heard it, they took pity on it and went and threw olive fruits into its nest to eat them. So this monk proceeded to make a bird in his shape and reached the point of making it hollow, so when the wind entered it, a sound like the sound of a bird was heard from it, and he secluded himself in a monastery that he built and claimed that it was on the grave of one of their righteous people, and he hung that bird in a place in it, so when it was the time of the olives, he opened a door on its side so that the wind would enter inside this image, and every bird in its shape would also hear its sound, so the birds would come and carry a lot of olives, and you would not see it among the Christians. Except for that olive in this monastery, and they do not know what caused it, so he tempted them with that and made them think that this was one of the miracles of the owner of this grave, upon them be the continuous curses of God until the Day of Resurrection.

(Al-Razi said: The sixth type of magic) is seeking help from the properties of medicines, meaning in this case foods and ointments. He said: Know that there is no way to deny the properties, because the effect of magnets is observable. I said Many of those who claim poverty and trick ignorant people with these properties fall into this category, claiming that they are conditions for him, such as mixing with fire and holding snakes, and other such impossibilities.

He said: The seventh type of magic is the attachment of the heart, which is that the magician claims that he knows the Greatest Name and that the jinn obey him and submit to him in most matters. If it happens that the listener is weak-minded and has little discernment, he believes that it is true and his heart is attached to it and a kind of terror and fear occurs in his soul. If fear occurs, the sensitive powers weaken, and then the magician is able to do whatever he wants. I said This type is called al-tanbalaḥ and it is only popular among the weak-minded among the sons of Adam. In the science of physiognomy there is guidance in knowing the mind from its deficiency. If the one who is being al-tanbalaḥ is skilled in the science of physiognomy, he knows who among the people will submit to him and who will not.

He said: The eighth type of magic is seeking to gossip and bring people closer together in light and pleasant ways, and this is common among people. I said Gossip is of two types: sometimes it is for the purpose of causing discord among people and dividing the hearts of the believers, then this is forbidden and agreed upon. But if it is for the purpose of reforming among people and uniting the Muslims' word, as stated in the hadith, He is not a liar who divulges good, or it is for the purpose of discouraging and dividing the masses of the infidels, then this is a required matter, as stated in the hadith, War is deception, and as Nu'aym ibn Mas'ud did in dividing the word of the Confederates and Banu Qurayyah: he came to these people and spread to them some words about these people, and he conveyed from these people to those people something else, then he made a distinction between that and the souls became estranged and separated. Only the one with penetrating insight can do such a thing, and God is the One sought for help.

Then Al-Razi said: This is the summary of the discussion on the types of magic and the explanation of its types and kinds. I said Many of these mentioned types were included in the art of magic because of the subtlety of their perceptions, because magic in the language is an expression for what is subtle and hidden because of it, and for this reason it came in the hadith: Indeed, some eloquence is magic. And it was called suhūr because it occurs hidden at the end of the night, and magic is the lung, which is the place of food and it was called that because of its concealment and the subtlety of its passages to the parts of the body and its wrinkles, as Abu Jahl said on the day of Badr to Utbah: His magic swelled, meaning his lung swelled from fear. And Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died between my throat and my chest, and God Almighty said: They bewitched the eyes of the people, meaning they concealed their knowledge from them, and God knows best.

Abu Abdullah Al-Qurtubi said: We believe that magic is true and has a reality, and God creates with it what He wills, contrary to the Mu'tazila and Abu Ishaq Al-Isfarayni of the Shafi'i, who said: It is deception and imagination. He said: And from magic is that which is done by sleight of hand, like sorcery, and the sorcerer is the mailman due to his lightness of movement. Ibn Faris said: This word is not from the speech of the Bedouins. Al-Qurtubi said: And from it is that which is spoken by memorizing incantations of the names of God Almighty, and it may be from the covenants of the devils and it may be medicines and smokes and other than that. He said: And his saying, peace be upon him: Indeed, some eloquence is magic may be praise as a group says, and it may be a censure of eloquence. He said: This is more correct. He said: Because it corrects falsehood until the listener thinks that it is true, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: Perhaps some of you will be more eloquent in his argument than others, so I will rule in his favor. The hadith.

Chapter The minister Abu al-Muzaffar Yahya ibn Muhammad ibn Hubayrah, may God have mercy on him, mentioned in his book Al-Ishraf ala Madhahib al-Ashraf a chapter on magic and said: They agreed that magic has a reality except for Abu Hanifa, who said: It has no reality according to him. They differed about the one who learns magic and uses it. Abu Hanifa, Malik and Ahmad said that he is a disbeliever because of that. Among the companions of Abu Hanifa, there are those who said that if he learns it to guard against it or avoid it, then he is not a disbeliever, and the one who learns it believing that it is permissible or that it benefits him is a disbeliever. Likewise, the one who believes that the devils do whatever he wants for him is a disbeliever. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said: If he learns magic, we say to him, Describe your magic to us. If he describes what necessitates disbelief, such as what the people of Babylon believed about drawing closer to the seven planets and that they do what is sought from them, then he is a disbeliever. If it does not necessitate disbelief, then if he believes that it is permissible, then he is a disbeliever. Ibn Hubayrah said: Is he killed simply because of his doing and using it? Malik and Ahmad said: Yes. Ash-Shafi'i and Abu Hanifa said: No. If someone kills a person with his magic, then he is to be killed according to Malik, Ash-Shafi'i and Ahmad. Abu Hanifa said: He is to be killed unless he repeats it or admits to it with regard to a specific person. If he kills, then he is to be killed as a prescribed punishment according to them, except Ash-Shafi'i who said: He is to be killed in this case as retaliation. He said: If the magician repents, is his repentance accepted? Malik, Abu Hanifa and Ahmad said in the well-known opinion from them: It is not to be accepted. Ash-Shafi'i and Ahmad said in the other narration: It is to be accepted. As for the magician of the People of the Book, according to Abu Hanifa, he is to be killed just as a Muslim magician is to be killed. Malik, Ahmad and Ash-Shafi'i said: He is not to be killed, meaning because of the story of Labid ibn Al-A'sam. They differed concerning the Muslim female magician. According to Abu Hanifa, she is not to be killed, but she is to be imprisoned. The three said that her ruling is the same as that of a man, and God knows best. Abu Bakr Al-Khalaf said: Abu Bakr Al-Marwazi told us: Umar ibn Harun read to Abu Abdullah - meaning Ahmad ibn Hanbal - that Yunus told us on the authority of Al-Zuhri: He said: The Muslim sorcerer is killed, but the polytheist sorcerer is not killed, because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched by a Jewish woman, but he did not kill her. Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Malik, may God have mercy on him, that he said about the dhimmi, he is killed if he kills his sorcery. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad narrated two narrations on the authority of Malik about the dhimmi who is bewitched: One of them is that he is asked to repent, and if he converts to Islam, otherwise he is killed. The second is that he is killed even if he converts to Islam. As for the Muslim sorcerer, if his sorcery includes disbelief, he is considered a disbeliever according to the four imams and others, based on the words of God the Almighty: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' But Malik said: If he is found out, his repentance is not accepted, because he is like a heretic. If he repents before he is found out and comes to us repentant, we accept him. If he kills, his sorcery is killed. Al-Shafi'i said: If he says, I did not intend to kill, then he is mistaken and blood money is due on him.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Question And does the magician ask for a solution for his magic? Saeed bin Al-Musayyab permitted it, as narrated by Al-Bukhari, and Amer Al-Shaabi said: There is nothing wrong with spreading it, and Al-Hasan Al-Basri disliked it. And in the Sahih, on the authority of Aisha, she said: O Messenger of God, why didn't you spread it? He said: As for God, He has healed me, and I feared that I would open evil upon the people. And Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Wahb: He said: Seven leaves of Sidr are taken and crushed between two stones, then they are mixed with water and the Throne Verse is recited over them and the bewitched person drinks three sips of it, then he washes with the rest of it, for what is with him will go away. And it is good for the man who takes it from his wife. I said The most beneficial thing to use to remove magic is what God revealed to His Messenger to remove it, and they are the two Mu'awwidhat, and in the hadith: The one seeking refuge has not sought refuge with anything like them. And likewise the recitation of the Throne Verse, for it repels the devils.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 102- And they followed what the devils recited is connected to his saying: they cast aside, meaning they cast aside the Book of God and followed what the devils recited of magic and the like. At-Tabari said: they followed means they did. The meaning of recite is you say it and you read it and during the reign of Solomon is during the reign of Solomon, as Al-Zajaj said. It was said: the meaning in the reign of Solomon: meaning in his stories, descriptions and report. Al-Farra' said: And in is suitable in this place, but the first is more apparent. They thought that this was the knowledge of Solomon and that he would permit it and say it, so God rejected that and said: And Solomon did not disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved. It was not mentioned before that anyone attributed Solomon to disbelief, but when the Jews attributed magic to him, they became like someone who attributed disbelief to him because magic requires that, and for this reason God, the Most High, confirmed the disbelief of the devils and said: But the devils disbelieved meaning in their teaching. His saying: They teach people magic is in the accusative case as a state, and it is permissible for it to be in the nominative case as a predicate after a predicate. Ibn Amir and the Kufians except Asim read but the devils with a lightened but and the raising of the devils, and the rest with a heavy and accusative. Magic is what the magician does of tricks and illusions that cause the bewitched to get corrupt thoughts similar to what happens to someone who sees a mirage and thinks it is water, and what the rider of a ship or an animal thinks that the mountains are moving. It is derived from the word sahart al-sabi if you deceived the boy. It was said: its origin is concealment, because the magician does it secretly. It was said: its origin is spending because magic is diverted from its direction. It was said: its origin is attracting because whoever bewitches you has attracted you. Al-Jawhari said: Magic is taking, and everything that is subtle and delicate is magic. He bewitched him, bewitches him with magic, and the magician is the scholar, and he bewitched him also means he deceived him. There is a difference of opinion as to whether it has a reality or not. The Mu'tazila and Abu Hanifa went to the view that it is [deception] that has no origin or reality. Others went to the fact that it has an influential reality. It has been authenticated that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched by Labid bin Al-A'sam the Jew, until he imagined that something was happening to him when it was not, then God Almighty healed him. The discussion of that is long. And His statement: And what was revealed to the two angels means that they teach people what was revealed to the two angels, so it is conjoined with magic. It was said: It is conjoined with His statement: What the devils recite, meaning and they followed what God revealed to the two angels. It was said: What is in His statement: And what was revealed to the two angels is negative, and the waw is a conjunction with His statement: And Solomon did not disbelieve. There is an inversion of the statement, and the estimate is: And Solomon did not disbelieve, nor did he disbelieve, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, Harut and Marut, so Harut and Marut are substitutes for the devils in His statement: But the devils disbelieved. Ibn Jarir mentioned this and said: If someone were to say to us: How did this come to be presented? It was said: The reason for presenting it is to say: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon. Solomon did not disbelieve, nor did God send down to the two angels. Rather, the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic in Babylon, and Harut and Marut. So it is protected by the two angels Gabriel and Michael, because the Jewish magicians, as mentioned, claimed that God sent down magic through the tongues of Gabriel and Michael to Solomon, son of David. So God denied them in that and informed His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that Gabriel and Michael did not send down magic, and He acquitted Solomon of what they attributed to him of magic, and He informed them that magic is the work of the devils, and that they teach people that in Babylon, and that those who teach them that are two men, one of them is Harut and the other is Marut. So Harut and Marut, according to this interpretation, are a translation from the people and a response to them. End quote. Al-Qurtubi said in his interpretation after he narrated the meaning of this statement and preferred that Harut and Marut were a substitute for the devils, what he said: This is the most appropriate meaning of the verse and the most correct thing that has been said about it, and no attention should be paid to anything else, for magic is from the extraction of devils due to the delicacy of their essence and the sharpness of their understanding, and most of what is practiced by humans is women, especially during their menstruation. God said: And from the evil of those who blow on knots. Then he said: If it is said, how can two be a substitute for a group, and the substitute is only on the same level as the substituted? Then he answered that by saying that two may be called a group, or that they were specifically mentioned without others due to their rebellion, and this is supported by the fact that Ibn Abbas, Ad-Dahhak, and Al-Hasan read the two angels with a kasra on the lam, and perhaps the reason for being certain of this interpretation, despite its remoteness and the apparent difficulty of it, is to exonerate God, the Most High, from sending magic to His earth as a trial for His servants through the tongues of His angels. I believe that there is no reason for this arbitrariness that contradicts what is apparent, for God Almighty can test His servants as He wills, just as He tested Talut with the River. For this reason, the two angels say: We are only a trial. Ibn Jarir said: Many of the predecessors believed that they were two angels from the heavens, and that they were sent down to the earth and what happened to them happened. Babylon is said to be Iraq, and it is said to be Nahavand, and it is said to be Nasibin, and it is said to be Morocco. Harut and Marut are two foreign names that are not declined. And his saying: And they do not teach anyone until they say Al-Zajaj said: Teaching is a warning against magic, not teaching an invitation to it. He said: This is what most people of language and thought agree on, and its meaning is: that they teach as a prohibition, so they say to them: Do not do such and such. And from in his saying: from anyone is redundant for emphasis. And it has been said: that his saying: they teach is from informing, not from teaching. And in the speech of the Arabs it has come to mean teach, as Ibn al-Anbari and Ibn al-A'rabi narrated, and it is common in their poetry, like the saying of Ka'b ibn Malik:

The Messenger of God learned that you will catch up with me and that a threat from you is like taking me by the hand.

Al-Qatami said:

Learn that after error comes guidance and that error will be dispelled.

His statement: We are only a trial is to be taken literally. That is, we are only a trial and test from God for His servants. It was said that it was a mockery of them because they only say this to someone whose misguidance they have realized. In their statement: So do not disbelieve is the most eloquent and greatest warning: that this is a sin that makes the one who does it a disbeliever, so do not disbelieve. It is evidence that learning magic is disbelief. Its apparent meaning is that there is no difference between the one who believes and the one who does not believe, and between the one who learns it to be a magician and the one who learns it to be able to repel it. His statement: So they learn contains a pronoun that refers to his statement: From anyone. Sibawayh said: The meaning is that they learn. He said: And similar to it is Be and it is. It was said: It is conjoined with the position of what they know, because even though it is negated, it includes the affirmative. Al-Farra' said: It is a response to his statement: They teach people magic, meaning they teach people so they learn. His statement: That by which they cause separation between a man and his wife, in attributing separation to magicians and making magic a cause for that, is evidence that magic has an effect on hearts through love and hate, unity and separation, closeness and distance. A group of scholars have said that the magician is not capable of doing more than what God has informed us about in terms of separation, because God mentioned that in the context of censuring magic and explaining what is the goal of teaching it. If he was capable of doing more than that, He would have mentioned it. Another group said: That was stated in a most likely manner, and that the magician is capable of doing other than what is stated explicitly. It was said: Magic has no effect in itself at all, because God the Almighty said: And they can harm no one thereby except by God's permission. The truth is that there is no contradiction between his statement: And they learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife, and his statement: And they can harm no one thereby except by God's permission. What is understood from all of that is that magic has an effect in itself, but it does not cause harm except to those whom God has permitted it to affect. The scholars have agreed that it has an effect on itself and is a proven fact, and no one disagreed with that except the Mu'tazila and Abu Hanifa, as mentioned above. His statement, And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them clearly states that magic does not benefit its practitioner and does not bring him any benefit, but rather it is pure harm and sheer loss. The lam in his statement, And indeed is the answer to an omitted oath, and in his statement, For whoever bought it is for emphasis, and from is a relative pronoun and is in the nominative case as a subject, and the predicate is his statement, He will have no share in the Hereafter. Al-Farra' said: It is a conditional particle for recompense. Al-Zajaj said: This is not a conditional particle, and he preferred that it is a relative pronoun as we mentioned. What is meant by buying here is substitution, i.e. whoever substitutes what the devils recite in the Book of God. And the share is the portion according to the linguists, as Al-Zajjaj said. What is meant by his statement, For which they sold themselves is that they sold them. He affirmed knowledge for them in His statement: And they certainly knew, and denied it for them in His statement: If they only knew. They differed in interpreting that. Qutrub and Al-Akbfash said: What is meant by His statement: And they certainly knew are the devils, and what is meant by His statement: If they only knew are mankind. Al-Zajjaj said: The first refers to the two angels, even though it is in the plural form, so it is like their saying: The two Zayds stood up. The second refers to the scholars of the Jews, and He only said: If they only knew because they abandoned acting on their knowledge.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

102. The Almighty said: And they followed meaning the Jews what the devils recited meaning: they did not recite. The Arabs put the future in place of the past, and the past in place of the future. It was said: what you were reciting, meaning reading. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: following and acting upon it. Ata' said: speaking and speaking of it during the reign of Solomon meaning: his reign and his covenant.

The story of the verse: The devils wrote magic and magic spells on the tongue of Asaf bin Barkhiya. This is what Asaf bin Barkhiya taught King Solomon. Then they buried it under his prayer mat until God took away the kingdom from him and Solomon did not notice. When he died, they extracted it and said to the al-Nas 114: Solomon made them king through it, so learn it. As for the scholars and righteous people of the Children of Israel, they said: God forbid that this be from God's knowledge. As for the lowly ones, they said: This is Solomon's knowledge. They turned to learning it and rejected the books of their prophets. Solomon was blamed for it. This was their state and their actions until God sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and revealed to him the innocence of Solomon. This is what Al-Kalbi said.

Al-Suddi said: The devils would ascend to heaven and hear the words of the angels about what would happen on earth of death and other things. They would come to the priests and mix in what they heard seventy lies in every word and tell them about it. [So he wrote that down.] It spread among the Children of Israel that the jinn knew the unseen. So Solomon sent among the people and collected those books and put them in a box and buried it under his throne and said: I will not hear anyone say that the devil knows the unseen except that I will strike his neck. So when Solomon died and the scholars who knew about Solomon and his burying of the books had gone, and he left behind those who came after them, the devil appeared in the form of a human and came to a group of the Children of Israel and said: Shall I guide you to a treasure that you will never eat? They said: Yes. So he went with them and showed them the place under his throne. They dug and he stood in a corner and they said to him: Come closer. He said: I will not be present. If you do not find it, kill me. This is because none of the devils would come near the throne except that he would be burned. So they dug and took out those books. The devil, may God curse him, said: Solomon used to control the jinn, humans, devils and birds with this, then he flew away. The devil was away from them, and it became widespread among the people that Solomon was a magician, and they took those books and used them, so that is why magic is mostly found among the Jews. When Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, came, God Almighty acquitted Solomon of that, and revealed in Solomon's excuse: And Solomon did not disbelieve in magic. It was said: Solomon was not a disbeliever in magic and did not practice it. But the devils disbelieved. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, Al-Kisa'i, and Hamzah read, but with a light nun and and the devils in the nominative case. The others read but with a stressed nun and and the devils in the accusative case. Likewise, but God killed them 17-Al-Anfal but God threw 17-Al-Anfal. The meaning of but is to negate the past report and affirm the future.

They teach people. It was said: The meaning of magic is knowledge and skill in something. God Almighty said: And they said, 'O magician, call upon your Lord for us' 49-Az-Zukhruf, meaning the scholar. The correct view is that magic is a form of deception and imagination. Magic is a reality according to the Sunnis, and most nations agree with it. However, acting upon it is disbelief. It was narrated from Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, that he said: Magic makes people imagine, sickens, and may kill. He even made retaliation obligatory for those who kill with it. It is the work of Satan. The magician receives it from him by teaching it to him. When he receives it from him, he uses it for something else. It was said: It affects the heart of people, making a human being look like a donkey, or making a donkey look like a dog. The most correct view is that it is imagination. God Almighty said: It appears to him from their magic that they are moving fast. 66-Taha. However, it affects bodies with diseases, death, and madness. Speech has an effect on dispositions and souls. A person may hear something he dislikes, so he becomes angry and furious, and he may become feverish because of it. Some people have died because of speech they heard, so it is like accidents and illnesses that affect bodies.

The Almighty said, And what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, meaning, they act upon what was revealed to the two angels [i.e., inspiration and knowledge, so revelation means inspiration and teaching. It was said: And they followed what was revealed to the two angels]. Ibn Abbas and Al-Hasan read the two angels with a kasra on the lam, and Ibn Abbas said: They are two magicians who were in Babylon, and Al-Hasan said: They are two strangers because the angels do not know magic.

Babylon is Babylon of Iraq. It was named Babylon because the tongues were confused there when the tower of Nimrod fell, i.e. they were scattered. Ibn Masoud said: Babylon is the land of Kufa, and it was said Mount Damavand. The reading known to the two angels is with the fatha. If it is said: How is it permissible to teach magic from angels? It is said: It has two interpretations: One of them is that they do not intend to teach, but they describe magic and mention its invalidity and command its avoidance, and teaching means informing, so the wretched one abandons their advice and learns magic from their craft.

The second interpretation: which is the most correct: that God Almighty tested people with the two angels at that time. Whoever is wretched learns magic from them [and takes it from them and practices it] and disbelieves in it, and whoever is fortunate leaves it and remains in faith, and the two teachers are increased in torment by teaching, so in it is a trial for the teacher [and the learner], and God can test His servants with whatever He wills, for He has the command and the judgment.

The Almighty said, Harut and Marut are two Syriac names and they are in the accusative case according to the interpretation of the two angels, except that they were in the accusative case because of their foreignness and their being known. Their story, according to Ibn Abbas and the commentators, was that the angels saw what was ascending to the heavens of the evil deeds of the sons of Adam in the time of Idris, peace be upon him, so they rebuked them and said: These are the ones whom you made a successor on earth and chose them, so they disobey you. So God Almighty said: If I had sent you down to the earth and imposed on you what you imposed on them, you would have imposed what they imposed. So they said: Glory be to you, it was not appropriate for us to disobey you. God Almighty said to them: So choose two angels from among the best of you whom I will send down to the earth. So they chose Harut and Marut, and they were among the most righteous and devout of the angels. Al-Kalbi said: God Almighty said to them: Choose three, so they chose Uzza, who is Harut, and Uzzaya, who is Marut - he changed their names because they committed the sin - and Uzail. So God imposed lust in them and sent them down to the earth and commanded them to judge between people with justice and forbade them from Polytheism, unjust killing, adultery, and drinking alcohol. As for Uzail, when lust entered his heart, he faced his Lord and asked Him to raise him to the heavens. He raised him to the heavens, and He released him. He prostrated for forty years without raising his head, and after that he continued to lower his head out of shame before God Almighty.

As for the other two: they remained steadfast in that and used to judge between the people during the day. When evening came, they would mention the greatest name of God and ascend to the heavens. Qatada said: Not even a month had passed before they were tempted. They all said that one day, Venus, who was one of the most beautiful women, argued with them. Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, said: She was from Persia and was a queen in her country. When they saw her, she captured their hearts, so they tried to seduce her, but she refused and left. Then she returned the second day, and they did the same thing, but she refused and said: No, unless you worship what I worship, pray to this idol, kill a soul, and drink wine. They said: There is no way to do these things, for God Almighty has forbidden us from them. So she left, then she returned the third day, and with her was a cup of wine, and in their hearts was the inclination towards her, so they tried to seduce her, so she presented to them what she had said the day before, and they said: Praying to other than God is a great sin, and killing a soul is a great sin, and the lesser of the three is drinking wine. So they drank the wine, became intoxicated, and fell upon the woman, and committed adultery. When they finished, a man saw them, so they killed him. Al-Rabi' ibn Anas said: They prostrated to the idol, so God transformed Venus into a star. Some of them said: A woman, one of the most beautiful people, came to them, arguing with her husband, so one of them said to the other: Has something fallen into your heart? Like what fell into my soul from the love of this? He said: Yes. He said: Would you like to rule for her against her husband according to what you say? His companion said to him: Do you not know what punishment and torment is with God? His companion said to him: Do you not know what forgiveness and mercy is with God? They asked her herself, and she said: No, unless you kill him. One of them said: Do you not know what punishment and torment is with God? His companion said: Do you not know what forgiveness and mercy is with God? They killed him. Then they asked her herself, and she said: No, I have an idol that I worship. If you pray to it with me, I will. One of them said to his companion the same as the first saying, and his companion said the same, so they prayed with her to it, and she was transformed into a meteor.

Ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, and Al-Kalbi and Al-Suddi said: She said to them when they asked her about herself: You will not reach me until you tell me what you are ascending to heaven with. They said: In the name of God the Greatest. She said: You will not reach me until you teach me it. One of them said to his companion: Teach it. He said: I fear God, Lord of the worlds. The other said: Then where is the mercy of God Almighty? They taught her that, so she spoke, and she ascended to the sky, so God transformed her into a planet. Some of them believed that it was Venus itself, while others denied this and said: Venus is one of the seven planets that God swore by, saying, So I swear by the receding stars, the moving stars, the sweeping stars 15-At-Takwir. The one who tempted Harut and Marut was a woman who was called Venus for her beauty, but when she refused, God transformed her into a meteor. They said: When evening came, Harut and Marut intended to ascend to the sky, but their wings did not obey them, so they knew what had befallen them of wrath, so they went to Idris, the Prophet, peace be upon him, and informed him of their situation and asked him to intercede for them with God Almighty. They said to him: We have seen you ascend to worship as much as all the people of the earth ascend, so intercede for us with your Lord. Idris, peace be upon him, did that, so God gave them the choice between the torment of this world and the torment of the Hereafter, so they chose the torment of this world, since they knew that it would end, so they were being tormented in Babylon.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:102

And they followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but it was the devils who disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. And they did not teach anyone until they had said, "We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve." And they learned from them that by which they caused separation between a man and his wife, but they could not harm anyone thereby. No one except by permission of Allah. And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them. And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And wretched is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew.

They differed about the manner of their punishment. Abdullah bin Masoud said: They will be suspended by their hair until the Day of Resurrection. Ata bin Abi Rabah said: Their heads will be directed under their wings. Qatada said: Shackled from their feet to the roots of their thighs. Mujahid said: They will be placed in a well filled with fire. Omar bin Saad said: Upside down and beaten with iron whips.

It was narrated that a man went to Harut and Marut to learn magic, but he found them hanging by their feet, their eyes blue, their skin black, and there were only four fingers between their tongues and the water, and they were being tortured with thirst. When he saw that, he was terrified by their location, so he said: There is no god but God. When they heard his words, they said to him: Who are you? He said: A man from the people. They said: Which nation are you from? He said: From the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. They said: He is the Prophet of the Hour, and the end of our torment has drawn near.

The Almighty said: And they do not teach anyone meaning anyone, and from is a connection to until they advise him first and say, 'We are only a trial' a test and trial so do not disbelieve meaning do not learn magic and practice it and thus disbelieve. The root of the word fitna is testing and examination, from their saying: I melted gold and silver if you melted them in fire, to distinguish the good from the bad. The word fitna is singular, and there are two of them, because fitna is a source, and sources are not dualized or pluralized. It was said that they say We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve seven times.

Ata and Al-Suddi said: If he insists on learning, they say to him: Go to these ashes and approach them, and a bright light will emerge from them in the sky, and that is the light of knowledge, and something black like smoke will descend until it enters his ears, and that is the wrath of God Almighty. Mujahid said: No one can reach Harut and Marut, and a devil will differ between them on every issue, and they will learn from them that by which they will separate a man from his wife, which is that each one will be taken from his companion, and each one will be hated by his companion. God Almighty said: And they, it was said: the magicians, and it was said: the devils, can harm anyone with it, meaning with magic, except by God's permission, meaning with His knowledge and creation, so the magician bewitches and God is.

Sufyan al-Thawri said: Its meaning is except by His decree, power and will. And they learn what harms them means that magic harms them "and does not benefit them. And they have certainly known" meaning the Jews that whoever buys it meaning they choose magic has no share in the Hereafter meaning in Paradise and evil is that for which they have sold they sold their souls their share, since they chose magic and disbelief over religion and truth if they only knew. If it is said: Did He not say and they certainly knew for whoever buys it then what is the meaning of His Most High's saying if they only knew after He informed us that they knew? It was said: By His saying and they certainly knew He meant the devils and His saying if they only knew He meant the Jews. It was said: Both of them refer to the Jews, meaning: But when they did not act upon what they knew, it was as if they did not know.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

102- And they followed what the devils recited is in apposition to rejecting, meaning they rejected the Book of God and followed the books of magic that the devils from the jinn or mankind read or follow, or both. During the reign of Solomon meaning his era, and it is recited as a story of a past situation. It was said: They used to eavesdrop and add lies to what they heard, and they would tell them to the priests who would write them down and teach the people. This became widespread during the reign of Solomon, peace be upon him, until it was said: The jinn know the unseen, and that Solomon's kingdom was completed with this knowledge, and that the jinn, mankind, and the wind were subject to him by it. And Solomon did not disbelieve is a denial of those who claimed that, and magic was expressed as disbelief to indicate that it was disbelief, and that whoever was a prophet was protected from it. But the devils disbelieved by using it, and Ibn Amir, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read but with a light /, and the devils was raised. They teach people magic as a means of seduction and misguidance. The sentence is a state of the pronoun. What is meant by magic is that which is obtained by drawing closer to Satan, which a person cannot do independently. This is only established by someone who is compatible with him in terms of spark and evil soul. For compatibility is a condition for solidarity and cooperation, and by this the magician is distinguished from the prophet and the saint. As for what is astonishing, as the masters of tricks do with the help of tools and medicines, or what the sleight-of-hand shows, then it is not blameworthy. Calling it magic is an act of metaphor, or because of the subtlety in it, because in the original its cause is hidden. And what was revealed to the two angels is in apposition to magic, and what is meant by them is one, and the apposition is for the difference in consideration, or what is meant by it is a stronger type than it, or for what you recite. They are two angels who were sent down to teach magic as a test from God to the people, and to distinguish it from a miracle. And what was narrated that they were two human beings, and lust was mixed in them, so they exposed themselves to a woman called: Zahra, so she led them to sins and polytheism, then she ascended to the sky with what she learned from them, so it is narrated from the Jews and perhaps it is from the symbols of the ancients and its solution is not hidden from those with insight. And it was said: Two men were called angels in consideration of their righteousness, and this is supported by the reading of the two angels with the kasra. And it was said: What was sent down is a negation conjoined with what Solomon disbelieved in, denying the Jews in this story. In Babylon is an adverb, or a state of the two angels, or the pronoun in was sent down and it is well known that it is a city in the blackness of Kufa. Harut and Marut is an explanatory apposition for the two angels, and their inflection was prevented due to the action and foreignness, and if they were from hert and mart with the meaning of the kasra, they would have been inflected. And whoever made ma a negation replaced them with devils instead of some, and what is between them is an objection and it was read with the nominative on them Harut and Marut. And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' So its meaning according to the first is that they do not teach anyone until they advise him and tell him, We are only a test from God. So whoever learns from us and acts upon it is a disbeliever, and whoever learns from us and avoids acting upon it is steadfast in faith, so do not disbelieve by believing in its permissibility and acting upon it. This is evidence that learning magic and what is not permissible to follow is not forbidden, but rather the prohibition is on following it and acting upon it. According to the second, they do not teach anyone until they say, We are only a trial, so do not be like us. "And they learn from them" is the pronoun for what it indicates from someone. That by which they separate between a man and his wife meaning from magic that which is the cause of their separation. And they do not harm thereby anyone except by God's permission because it and other causes are not effective in and of themselves, but by His command and making. Bidari was read as an addition to someone, and the preposition was made part of it and the separation was by the circumstance. And they learn what harms them because they intend it to be an action, or because knowledge often leads to action and does not benefit them since merely knowing it is not intended nor beneficial in both worlds. And in it, it is more appropriate to avoid it. And they certainly knew meaning the Jews. For whoever bought it meaning he exchanged what the devils recited for the Book of God Almighty. And it is more apparent that the lam is the lam of initiation, and they knew about the action for him there is no share in the Hereafter. "And evil is that for which they sold themselves" it is possible to mean both meanings based on what was mentioned. "If they had known" they thought about it, or they knew its ugliness specifically, or the right to what follows it of punishment, and what is established for them first on the oath of affirmation is the instinctive mind or general knowledge that the action is ugly, or the punishment is arranged without verification. And it was said, its meaning is if they were to act according to their knowledge, for whoever does not act according to what he knows is like someone who did not know.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared God, a reward from God would have been better, if they only knew.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And if they that is, the Jews had believed in the Prophet and the Qur'an and feared God's punishment by abandoning His sins such as magic, and the answer to if is omitted: that is, they would have been rewarded. It is indicated by a reward a reward, and it is a subject and the lam in it is for swearing from God is better its predicate is what they sold themselves for if they had known that it was better, they would not have preferred it over it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

He mentioned some of the report that describes the two angels, and whoever said that Harut and Marut are the two angels that God Almighty mentioned in His saying: in Babylon:

Muhammad bin Bashir narrated: Muadh bin Hisham narrated: My father narrated to me, on the authority of Qatada, who narrated: Abu Shu'bah Al-Adawi narrated to us during the funeral of Yunus bin Jubayr Abu Ghulab, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: God opened the heavens for His angels to look at the deeds of the children of Adam. When they saw them committing sins, they said: O Lord, these are the children of Adam whom You created with Your hand, and to whom Your angels prostrated, and whom You taught the names of all things, committing sins. He said: If you were in their place, you would have done the same deeds as they did. They said: Glory be to You, it was not fitting for us. He said: So they were commanded to choose who would descend to the earth. He said: So they chose Aaron and Marut, and they descended to the earth, and everything in it was made lawful for them except that they should not associate anything with God, nor steal, nor commit adultery, nor drink alcohol, nor kill a soul which God has forbidden, except by right. He said: They did not continue until a woman who had been given half of her beauty appeared to them, and her name was Baidhakht. When they saw her, they wanted to commit adultery with her, but she said: No, unless you associate partners with God, drink wine, kill a soul, and prostrate to this idol. They said: We would never associate anything with God. One of them said to the other: Go back to her. She said: No, unless you drink wine. So they drank until they became drunk, and a beggar entered upon them, and they killed him. When they fell into evil, God opened the heavens for His angels, and they said: Glory be to You, I knew better.

He said: Then God revealed to Solomon, son of David, to give them the choice between the punishment of this world and the punishment of the Hereafter, and they chose the punishment of this world. So they were chained from their heels to their necks with things like the necks of camels, and they were taken to Babylon.

Al-Muthanna told me: Al-Hajjaj bin Al-Munhal told us: Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Uthman Al-Nahdi, on the authority of Ibn Masoud and Ibn Abbas, that they said: When the children of Adam increased in number and disobeyed, the angels, the earth, the heavens, and the mountains prayed against them: Our Lord, would You not destroy them? So God revealed to the angels: If I were to send down lust and Satan from your hearts and you were to descend, you would do so as well. He said: So they told themselves that if they were tested, they would hold fast. So God revealed to them to choose two angels from among the best of you. So they chose Harut and Marut, and they descended to the earth, and Venus was sent down to them in the form of a woman from the people of Persia, and the people of Persia called her Bidakht. He said: So they committed a sin, and the angels used to ask forgiveness for those who believed. Our Lord, You have encompassed all things in mercy and knowledge, so forgive those who have repented. When they committed the sin, they asked forgiveness for those on earth. Behold, God is the Forgiving, the Merciful. So he gave them the choice between the punishment of this world and the punishment of the Hereafter, and they chose the punishment of this world.

Al-Muthanna told me: Al-Hajjaj told me: Hammad told us, on the authority of Khalid Al-Hadha', on the authority of Amr bin Saeed, who said: I heard Ali say: Al-Zahra was a beautiful woman from Persia. She argued before the two angels, Harut and Marut, and they tried to seduce her, but she refused unless they taught her speech that if she spoke it, she would ascend to the heavens. So they taught her, and she spoke, and it ascended to the heavens and was transformed into a planet.

Muhammad ibn Bashir and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us: Muammil ibn Ismail told us, and al-Hasan ibn Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us all, on the authority of al-Thawri, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Uqbah, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of Ka'b, who said: The angels mentioned the deeds of the children of Adam and the sins they commit, so they were told: Choose two of you. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya said in his hadith: Choose two angels, so they chose Harut and Marut. So it was said to them: I send messengers to the children of Adam, and there is no messenger between me and you. Come down and do not associate anything with me, do not commit adultery, and do not drink wine. Ka'b said: By God, they did not spend the evening of the day on which they were sent down to earth until they had completed everything they were forbidden from. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya said in his hadith: They did not complete the day on which they were sent down until they did what God had forbidden them.

Al-Muthanna told me: Mu'alla ibn Asad told us: Abdul Aziz ibn al-Mukhtar told us, on the authority of Musa ibn Uqbah: Salim told me that he heard Abdullah narrating on the authority of Ka'b al-Ahbar that he had been told that the angels disapproved of the deeds of the children of Adam and the sins they commit on earth. So God said to them: If you were in their place, you would commit the sins they commit. So choose two angels from among you, and they chose Harut and Marut. So God said to them: I am sending My messengers to the people, and there is no messenger between Me and you. Descend to the earth, and do not associate anything with Me, and do not commit adultery. So Ka'b said: By the One in Whose Hand is Ka'b's soul, they did not complete the day in which they descended until they committed what God had forbidden them.

Musa bin Harun told me: Amr told us: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: It was from the matter of Harut and Marut that they criticized the people of the earth for their judgments. It was said to them: I have given the son of Adam ten desires, and with them they disobey Me. Harut and Marut said: Our Lord, if You had given us those desires and then descended, we would have ruled with justice. So He said to them: Go down, for I have given you those ten desires, so judge between the people. So they descended to Babylon Danbawand, and they judged until evening came, and when morning came, they went down. They remained like that until a woman came to them who was disputing with her husband. They were amazed by her beauty. Her name in Arabic was Al-Zahra, in Nabataean it was Bidakht, and in Persian it was Anahid. One of them said to his companion: I like her. The other said: I wanted to tell you about her, but I felt shy before you. The other said: Would you like me to tell her about herself? He said: Yes, but how can we deal with the punishment of God? The other said: We hope for the mercy of God. So when she came to quarrel with her husband, they mentioned herself to her, and she said: No, not until you both judge in my favor against my husband. So they judged in her favor against her husband. Then she made an appointment with them to go to a ruined place, so they went to it for that purpose. When he wanted to have intercourse with her, she said: I will not do that until you tell me with what words you ascend to the heavens? And with what words you descend from it? So they told her, and she spoke and ascended. But God made her forget what she was descending with, so she remained where she was, and God made her a star, and whenever Abdullah ibn Umar saw her, he cursed her and said: This is the one who tempted Harut and Marut. So when night came, they wanted to ascend, but they could not, so they knew their destruction, so they were given the choice between the punishment of this world and the Hereafter, so they chose the punishment of this world over the punishment of the Hereafter. So they became attached to Bal and began to speak to the people with their speech, which was magic.

Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me: Ishaq told us: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', who said: When people after Adam fell into what they fell into of sins and disbelief in God, the angels in heaven said: O Lord of this world, I only created them to worship and obey You, but they committed disbelief, killing unlawfully, consuming unlawful wealth, stealing, committing adultery, and drinking alcohol. So they began to invoke curses upon themselves and did not excuse themselves. So it was said to them: They are in the unseen, but they did not excuse them. So it was said to them: Choose from among you two angels whom I will command with My command and forbid them from disobeying Me. So they chose Harut and Marut, and they were sent down to Earth, and He placed in them the desires of the children of Adam, and they were commanded to worship God and not associate anything with Him, and they were forbidden from killing unlawfully, consuming unlawful wealth, stealing, committing adultery, and drinking alcohol. So they remained on earth for a period of time, judging between people with justice. That was during the time of Idris. At that time there was a woman whose beauty among all people was like the beauty of Venus among all the stars. She came to them and they submitted to her in speech and wanted her for herself. She refused unless they followed her command and religion. They asked her about the religion she was following, so she brought out an idol for them and said: This is more worshipped. They said: We have no need to worship this. So they went and were patient as God willed. Then they came to her and submitted to her in speech and wanted her for herself. She said: No, unless you follow what I follow. They said: We have no need to worship this. When she saw that they refused to worship the idol, she said to them: Choose one of three options: Either you worship the idol, or kill a person, or drink wine. They said: None of these are appropriate, and the least of the three is drinking wine. So he gave them wine to drink, and when the wine had taken hold of them, they fell into it. A man passed by them while they were in that state, and they feared that he would disclose them, so they killed him. When their intoxication had gone away, they realized the sin they had committed and wanted to ascend to the heavens, but they could not. So, they were prevented from doing so, and the veil was removed between them and the people of the heavens. Then the angels looked at the sin they had committed and were amazed to the utmost, and they knew that whoever is in the dark is less stunned. So after that, they began to ask forgiveness for those on the earth. When they had committed the sin they had committed, it was said to them: Choose the punishment of this world or the punishment of the Hereafter. They said: As for the punishment of this world, it will be interrupted, but as for the punishment of the Hereafter, it will never be interrupted. So they chose the punishment of this world, and they were put in Babylon, where they are being punished.

Al-Qasim narrated: Al-Husayn narrated: Faraj bin Fadala narrated: Muawiyah bin Salih narrated: Nafi' said: I traveled with Ibn Umar, and when it was the end of the night, he said: O Nafi', look, the red star has risen. He said it two or three times. Then I said: It has risen. He said: No welcome and no hello. I said: Glory be to God, a star that is submissive, listening and obedient? He said: I only told you what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: The angels said: O Lord, how patient are you with the children of Adam in their sins and wrongdoings? He said: I tested them and spared you. They said: If we were in their place, we would not disobey you. He said: Then choose two angels from among you. He said: They did not fail to choose, so they chose Harut and Marut.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

Al-Muthanna told me: Abu Hudhayfah told us: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: As for the matter of Harut and Marut, the angels were amazed at the injustice of the children of Adam, even though the messengers, books, and clear proofs had come to them. So their Lord said to them: Choose from among you two angels whom He has sent down to judge on earth between the children of Adam. So they chose Harut and Marut. Then He said to them when He sent them down: You are amazed at the children of Adam and their injustice and disobedience. The messengers and books only come to them from behind, behind, and there is no messenger between me and you. So do such and such. And he called upon such and such, and he commanded them to do something and forbade them. Then they descended upon that, and no one is more obedient to God than them. So they judged and were just. They judged during the day between the children of Adam, and when evening came, they ascended and were with the angels. And they descended in the morning and judged and were just. Until Venus descended upon them in the most beautiful form of a woman arguing, so they passed judgment against her. When she arose, each of them found it in himself, so one of them said to the other: Did you find what I found? He said: Yes. So they sent to her: Come to us and we will cancel it for you. When she returned, they said to her and decided for her: Come to us. So she came to them, and they uncovered their private parts for her. Their desire was in themselves, and they were not like the sons of Adam in their desire for women and their pleasure. When they reached that and found it permissible and were tempted, the flower flew and returned to where it was. When evening came, they ascended and were alone, and no permission was given to them, and their wings did not carry them. So they sought help from a man from the sons of Adam, and they came to him and said: Call upon your Lord for us. He said: How can the people of the earth intercede for the people of the heaven? They said: We heard your Lord mention you with good in the heaven. So He promised them a day and a tomorrow and He will supplicate for them. So he supplicated for them and his request was answered, and he was given the choice between the punishment of this world and the punishment of the Hereafter. Then one of them looked at the other and they said: We know that the types of punishment of God in the Hereafter are such and such in eternity and with the world seven times the same. So he ordered that they be brought down to Babylon, and there their punishment would be. He claimed that they were suspended in iron, folded up and flapping their wings.

Abu Ja'far said: It was narrated that some of the reciters used to recite: And what was revealed to the two angels, meaning two men from among the children of Adam. We have demonstrated the error of this recitation by way of evidence. As for the transmission, the consensus of the evidence on the error of this recitation by the Companions, the Followers, and the reciters of the regions is that this is sufficient as evidence of its error. As for his saying Babylon, it is the name of a village or a place on earth. The people of interpretation differed about it. Some of them said: It is Babylon, Danbawand.

Musa told me that. He said: Amr told us. He said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi.

Some of them said: Rather, it is Babylon, Iraq. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Hussein told us, he said: Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Al-Zinad, on the authority of Hisham Ibn Urwa, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, in a story she mentioned about a woman who came to Medina, and she mentioned that she had been in Iraq in Babylon, so Harut and Marut came with her and she learned magic from them.

There is a difference of opinion about the meaning of magic. Some of them said: It is tricks, deceptions and illusions that the magician does, until the bewitched person imagines that something is different from what it is, like someone who sees a mirage from afar, and imagines that it is water, and sees something from afar and believes it is different from what it really is. And like the passenger of a ship moving quickly, it seems to him that what he sees of trees and mountains is moving with him. They said: So is the bewitched person, that is his description, he thinks after what he has achieved from the magic of the magician that what he sees or does is different from what it really is. Like the one who:

Ahmad bin Al-Walid and Sufyan bin Wakee' told me: Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched, he would imagine that he was doing something when he was not.

Ibn Wakee' told us: Ibn Numayr told us, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, who said: A Jew from the Jews of Banu Zuraiq, called Labid ibn al-A'sam, bewitched the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, until the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, imagined that he was doing something when he was not.

Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Yunus told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, he said: Urwah bin al-Zubayr and Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab used to narrate: The Jews of Banu Zuraiq tied a magic knot for the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they put it in the well of Hazm until the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, lost his sight, and God showed him what they had done. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent for the well of Hazm where the knot was and pulled it out, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: The Jews of Banu Zuraiq have bewitched me.

The author of this article denied that the magician could, by his magic, change something from its true nature, or make something of God's creation subservient to something similar to what the rest of the children of Adam are able to do, or create any of the bodies other than the deceptions and illusions imagined for the eyes of the observers contrary to their true natures that we have described. They said: If it were within the power of the magicians to create bodies and change the true natures of objects from their true forms, there would be no separation between truth and falsehood, and it would be possible that all the perceptible things were among those that the magicians bewitched and changed their true natures. They said: And in the description of God, the Almighty and Majestic, of the magicians of Pharaoh in His saying: Then their ropes and their staffs appeared to him, because of their magic, to be crawling. And in the report of Aisha from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that when he was bewitched, it seemed to him that he was doing something when he was not doing it, the clearest evidence of the length of the claim of the claimants: that the magician creates the true natures of things by his magic, and makes subservient what is impossible for other children of Adam to make subservient, such as the dead, the inanimate, and the animals, and the correctness of what we have said.

Others said: The magician may be able, through his magic, to turn a human into a donkey, or to enchant a human and a donkey and create objects and bodies. They based this on the following:

Al-Rabi' bin Sulayman narrated to us: Ibn Wahb narrated to us: Ibn Abi Al-Zinad narrated to us: Hisham bin Urwah narrated to me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that she said: A woman from the people of Dumat Al-Jandal came to me seeking the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, after his recent death, asking him about something she had entered into regarding magic but had not practiced it. Aisha said to Urwah: O son of my sister, I saw her crying when she did not find the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to heal her. She was crying until I felt sorry for her, and she said: I fear that I have perished. I had a husband who left me. An old woman came to me and I complained to her about that, and she said: If you do what I command you, I will make him come to you. When night came, she brought me two black dogs, and I rode one of them and she rode the other. It was as if nothing had happened until we stopped in Babylon, and there were two men hanging by their legs. They said: What brought you? I said: Do you learn magic? They said: We are a trial, so do not disbelieve and go back. I refused and said: No. They said: Go to that oven and urinate in it. I went and was frightened but did not do it. I returned to them and they said: Did you do it? I said: Yes. They said: Did you see anything? I said: I did not see anything. They said: You did not do it. Go back to your country and do not disbelieve. I refused. They said: Go to that oven and urinate in it. I went and shuddered and became afraid. Then I returned to them and said: I have done it. They said: What did you see? I said: I did not see anything. They said: You lied, you did not do it. Go back to your country and do not disbelieve, for you are at the pinnacle of your affairs. I refused. They said: Go to that oven and urinate in it. I went to it and urinated in it. I saw a horseman wearing an iron mask who came out of me until he went into the sky and disappeared from me until I could not see him. I came to them and said: I have done it. They said: What did you see? I said: A masked knight came out from me and went into the sky until I could not see him. They said: You have spoken the truth. That is your faith that has come out of you. Go. I said to the woman: By God, I do not know anything, and they did not say anything to me. She said: Yes, you will not want anything but it will come true. Take this wheat and sow it, so I sowed. I said: Look up, so I looked up. I said: Plow it, so I plowed it. Then I said: Rub it, so I rubbed it. Then I said: Dry it, so it dried. Then I said: Grind it, so I ground it. Then I said: Bake it, so I baked. When I saw that I did not want anything but it came true, I was disappointed and regretted it, by God, O Mother of the Believers. By God, I have never done anything and I will never do it.

The people of this article said what we have described and relied on what we have mentioned, and they said: If the magician had not been able to do what he claimed he was able to do, he would not have been able to separate a man from his wife. They said: And God Almighty has informed us about them that they learn from the two angels what they can use to separate a man from his wife. And if that were not true and was based on imagination and calculation, it would not be a true separation. And God Almighty has informed us about them that they separate in a true manner. And others said: Rather, magic is taking by the evil eye.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.'

The interpretation of that is: And the two angels do not teach anyone of the people that it was revealed to them of separation between a man and his wife until they say to him: We are only a trial and a trial for the children of Adam, so do not disbelieve in your Lord. Like:

Musa told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: If a man came to them - meaning Harut and Marut - wanting to practice magic, they would admonish him and say to him: Do not disbelieve, we are only a trial. If he refused, they would say to him: Go to these ashes and urinate on them. So when he urinated on them, a light would come out of him that would shine until it entered the sky, and that is faith. And it was said that it was something black like smoke until it entered his ears and everything from it, and for that reason God became angry. So if he informed them of that, they would teach him magic. So that is the saying of God:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

And they do not teach anyone until they say, We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve 10:13.

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada and Al-Hasan: Until they say, We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. He said: He made a covenant with them that they would not teach anyone until they said, We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Muammar told us: Qatada said: They were teaching people magic, so he took an oath from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Hussein told us, he said: Abu Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muammar, he said: Other than Qatada said: He took a pledge from them that they would not inform anyone until they went to him and said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.

Ibn Bashar told us: Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Aouf, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: He took it from them that they should say that.

Al-Qasim told us: Al-Husayn told us: Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: They took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. No one would dare to practice magic except a disbeliever. As for the trial in this context, its meaning is testing and trial, as the poet said.

He tempted people in their religion and left Ibn Affan with a long history of evil.

And from it is his saying: He tested the gold in the fire: if he tested it to know its quality from its badness, he tested it with a test and tests. Like:

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: We are only a trial, meaning a calamity.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife.

Abu Ja'far said: His statement, may His praise be exalted: And they learn from them is a predicate of the two angels who learn from what was revealed to them, and it is not an answer to His statement: And they do not teach from anyone. Rather, it is a new predicate, and for this reason it was raised, so it was said: And they learn.

The meaning of the statement is: They do not teach anyone until they say: We are only a trial. So they refuse to accept that from them and learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife.

It has been said: His saying: And they learn is report about the Jews, connected to his saying: "But the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and what was revealed to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, and they learned from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife." They made that from the deferred, which means bringing forward.

What we have said is more like an interpretation of the verse because attaching that to what follows it from the speech is what has a correct interpretation and is more appropriate than attaching it to what has been prevented from it from an interjection of the speech. The ha, mim, and alif in His statement: from them are from the mention of the two angels. The meaning of that is: So people learn from the two angels by which they separate between a man and his wife. And what is with yafreoon means who. It was said that the meaning of that is: the magic by which they separate, and it was said: it is a meaning other than magic. We have already mentioned their differences in that before. As for man, it means a man from the names of the sons of Adam, and the female of it is woman, it is singular and dual, and the three of them are not pluralized in its form. It is said from it: this is a righteous man, and these two are righteous men, and it is not said: these are men of truth, but it is said: these are men of truth, and people of truth. Likewise, woman is singular and dual, but it is not pluralized in its form. It is said: this is a woman and these two are women, and it is not said: these are women, but these are women.

As for the husband, the people of Hijaz say to a man's wife: she is his wife, just like the male husband. This includes the statement of God Almighty: Keep your wife to yourself. Tamim and many of Qais and the people of Najd say: she is his wife, as the poet said:

And the one who walks, provoking my wife, Kmarsh, to the lion of the market, will take her

If someone says: How does a magician separate a man from his wife? It is said: We have previously demonstrated that the meaning of magic is to make something appear to a man to be different from what it is in reality and in its true form, sufficiently for those who are guided to understand it. If that is correct, based on what we have cited as evidence, then his separation between a man and his wife is his making each of them appear, through his magic, to be different from what he is in reality of beauty and handsomeness, until he finds him ugly and turns away and ignores him, until the husband causes separation between his wife. Thus, the magician separates them by causing the cause that caused the separation between them. We have demonstrated in more than one place in this book that the Arabs attribute a thing to its cause in order to cause it, even if he did not directly do what was caused by the cause, which makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this place. So too is the magician's separation between a man and his wife through his magic. A number of the people of interpretation have said something similar to what we have said about that. Those who said that mentioned:

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid bin Zari' told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: They learn from them what will separate a man from his wife, and separating them means that each one of them will be taken away from the other, and each one of them will be hated by the other.

As for those who refused that the two angels teach people how to separate a man from his wife, they directed the interpretation of His statement: They learn from them to They learn instead of what they taught them what they can use to separate a man from his wife, like the saying of the speaker: If only we had such and such instead of such and such, meaning such and such. As the poet said:

I collected the good things, medicine, a box and a purse for the descendants of the oppressed

And from all the morals of the noble is gossip

And in pursuit of the next door neighbor with the son

He means by his saying: I have gathered from the good things, instead of the good things of this world, these bad morals and vile actions. And from it is the saying of another:

Your qualities are too hard to soften, and you inherited disobedience from your noble ancestors.

It means that you inherited the place of your noble ancestors as disobedience from your parents.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they do not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God.

He means by His Most High's saying: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. And those who learned from the two angels, Harut and Marut, that by which they separate between a man and his wife, can not harm anyone by what they learned from them of the meaning by which they separate between a man and his wife, except for one for whom God has decreed that it will harm him. As for the one from whom God has warded off its harm and protected him from the evil of magic, blowing, and incantations, then it will not harm him nor will it cause him harm.

There are several meanings of permission in the speech of the Arabs: one of them is the command without the meaning of obligation, and it is not permissible for it to be from his saying: And they will not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God, because God, the Most High, has forbidden the separation between a man and his wife without magic, so how about it in the form of magic on the tongue of the nation. Another of them is the release between the one who is given permission and the one who is released between him and him. Another of them is knowledge of something, from it it is said: I have given permission for this matter, if I know about it, I gave permission for it with permission, and from it is the saying of Al-Hutay'ah:

Oh Hind, if you renew your connection, then inform me of the end.

Meaning, then inform me. And from this is the saying of the Most High: Then they were warned of a war from God. This is the meaning of the verse, as if the Most High said: And they will not harm anyone with what they learned from the two angels except with the knowledge of God. He means with what God had previously known would harm him. Like:

Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me: Suwaid bin Nasr told us: Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sufyan, regarding his statement: And they do not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God, he said: By the decree of God.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they learn what harms them and does not benefit them.

By this, He, the Most High, means: And they learn, that is, the people who learn from the two angels, what was revealed to them of the meaning by which they separate a man from his wife, they learn from them magic that harms them in their religion and does not benefit them in their afterlife. As for the immediate life in this world, they used to earn a living by it and obtain a livelihood from it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter.

Meaning by His Most High's saying: And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. The group who, when there came to them a Messenger from God, confirming what was with them, threw the Book of God behind their backs as if they did not know, and followed what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. So He, Most High, said: Those of the Jews of the Children of Israel who threw My Book behind their backs, ignoring it, have abandoned working according to what is in it, from following you, O Muhammad, and following what you have brought, after I sent down to you My Book confirming what was with them, and after you sent to them acknowledging what was with them and what was in their hands, preferring over it following the magic that the devils recited during the time of Solomon, and which was sent down to the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut. Whoever buys magic in exchange for My Book that I sent down to My Messenger and prefers it over it, will have no share in the Hereafter. Like:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said: Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And they knew that whoever bought it would have no share in the Hereafter. He said: The People of the Book knew that in God's covenant with them, that the magician would have no share with God on the Day of Resurrection.

Musa told us, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And they knew that whoever bought it would have no share in the Hereafter, meaning the Jews. He said: The Jews knew that whoever learned it or chose it would have no share in the Hereafter.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter for whoever buys that by which a man separates from his wife.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said: And they knew that whoever bought it would have no share in the Hereafter. He said: The Jews knew that in the Book of God in the Torah it says that whoever bought magic and abandoned the religion of God would have no share in the Hereafter, so the Fire would be his abode and refuge.

As for his saying: For whoever bought it, then min is in the nominative case, and his saying: And they knew is not an agent in it, because his saying: They knew means an oath, so it was in the nominative case, because the speech means: By God, whoever bought magic, he will have no share in the Hereafter. And because his saying: They knew means an oath, it was confirmed with the lam of the oath, so it was said: For whoever bought it, just as it is said: I swear to whoever stood is better than whoever sat, and just as it is said: I knew that Amr is better than your father. As for min, it is a particle of recompense. It was said bought it and not buy it, because the lam of the oath entered into min. And it is the custom of the Arabs, when they introduce the lam of the oath into the particle of recompense, that they do not pronounce the verb with it except with a verb without yaf'ul except rarely, out of dislike that they introduce something new into the recompense and it is in the jussive mood, as God Almighty said: If they are expelled, they will not be expelled with them. And it is permissible to show his verb after it as yaf'ul in the jussive mood, as the poet said:

Even if your houses are too narrow for you, my Lord knows that my house is spacious.

The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his statement: He will have no share in the Hereafter. Some of them said: The share in this place means the portion. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me, he said: Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: He has no share in the Hereafter, he says: no portion.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: He has no share in the Hereafter.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Ishaq told me, he said: Waki' told us, Sufyan said: We heard in: And he has no share in the Hereafter that he has no share in the Hereafter.

Some of them said: The Creator here is the argument. Those who said that were mentioned:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And he has no share in the Hereafter. He said: He has no argument in the Hereafter.

Others said: The Creator is the religion. Those who said that were mentioned:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Muammar told us: Al-Hasan said: He has no share in the afterlife. He said: He has no religion.

Others said: The Creator here is the Sustainer. Those who said that mentioned:

Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Hussein told us, he said: Hajjaj told me, he said: Ibn Jurayj said: Ibn Abbas said: He has no share in the Hereafter. He said: Sustainability.

The most correct of these sayings is the saying of the one who said: The meaning of al-Khalaq in this context is share, because that is its meaning in the speech of the Arabs. From this is the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: God will support this religion with people who have no share or portion in Islam and religion. From this is the saying of Umayyah ibn Abi al-Salt:

They call for woe therein. They have no morals except garments of tar and shackles.

He means by this: They have no share or portion except garments and shackles.

Likewise, His statement: He will have no share in the Hereafter means that he will have no share of Paradise in the Hereafter, because he had no faith, religion, or righteous deeds for which he would be rewarded in Paradise, so that he would have a share or portion of Paradise. Rather, the Most High said: He will have no share in the Hereafter, describing him as having no share in the Hereafter, and He meant by that that he will have no share of recompense, reward, or Paradise, except for his share of the Fire. For His condemnation of their actions, for which He denied that they would have a share in the Hereafter, indicated His intention of good, and that He only meant by that that they would have no share in it of the good, but as for the evils, they would have a share in it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And evil is that for which they sold themselves, if they only knew.

Abu Jaafar, may God have mercy on him, said: We have previously demonstrated that the meaning of they sold is they sold. So the meaning of the statement is: How evil is what he sold himself for by learning magic, if he had known the evil consequences of it. Like:

Musa told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And evil is that for which they sold their souls. He said: Evil is that for which they sold their souls.

If someone were to say to us: How could He, the Most High, say: And evil is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew, and He said before: And they certainly knew that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter, so how could they know that whoever learns magic will have no share, while they are ignorant of the evil that they have sold themselves for magic? It would be said: The meaning of that is not as you imagined, that they are described as ignorant of what they are described as knowing, but that is from the deferred which means to advance, and the meaning of the speech is: And they do not harm anyone with it except by God's permission, and they learn what harms them and does not benefit them, and evil is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew, and they certainly knew that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. His saying: How evil is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew is a censure from God, the Most High, of the actions of the two angels who taught separation between a man and his wife. It is report from Him, the Most High, about them that how evil is that for which they sold themselves, by accepting magic instead of their religion, by which their souls are saved from destruction, out of their ignorance of the evil consequences of their actions and the loss of their transaction, since that could have been learned from them by someone who does not know God, nor does he know what He has permitted and forbidden, His commands and prohibitions. Then He returns to the group about whom God informed that they threw His Book behind their backs as if they did not know: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon, and what was revealed to the two angels. He informed about them that they knew that whoever bought magic would have no share in the Hereafter, and he described them as committing sins against God knowingly, and disbelieving in God and His messengers, and preferring to follow the devils and act according to what they have created of magic over acting according to His Book, revelation, and sending down, out of their stubbornness and aggression against His messengers, and their transgression of His limits, knowing that whoever does that will have punishment and torment from God. So that is the interpretation of His statement.

Some claimants have said that his statement, And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter, refers to the devils, and that his statement, If they only knew, refers to the people. This is a contradictory statement by all the interpreters, because they agree that his statement, And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter, refers to the Jews, not the devils. Moreover, it is contrary to what is indicated by the revelation, because the verses before his statement, And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter, and after his statement, If they only knew, came from God condemning the Jews and rebuking them for their misguidance, and condemning them for throwing the revelation of God and the verses of His Book behind their backs, despite their knowledge of the error of their actions. So his statement, And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter, is one of those reports about them.

Some of them said: Those whom God, the Most High, described with His saying: And evil is that for which they have sold themselves, if they only knew, and He denied them knowledge, are those whom God described with His saying: And they certainly know that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter. And He, the Most High, denied them knowledge with His saying: If they only knew, after describing them that they had known with His saying: And they certainly knew, because they did not act upon what they knew. And only the knowledgeable person is the one who acts upon his knowledge. As for if his action contradicts his knowledge, then he is among the meanings of the ignorant. He said: And it may be said to the doer of an action contrary to what he should have done, even if he is knowledgeable about his action: If I had known, I would have fallen short, as Ka'b ibn Zuhayr al-Muzani said, describing a wolf and a crow that followed him to get some of his food and provisions:

If they were present, I would say, If you knew about this, you would know that I am a widow.

So he informed that he said to them: If you knew it, so he denied them knowledge. Then he asked them and said: Did you not know? They said: So is his saying: And they certainly knew for whoever bought it, and: If they only knew. This is an interpretation, even if it has an explanation and a face, because it is contrary to the apparent meaning understood by the speech itself. I mean by his saying: And they certainly knew, and his saying: If they only knew. It is only an extraction. And the interpretation of the Qur'an according to the apparent meaning of the speech without the hidden and inner meaning of it, until an indication comes from the face that must be accepted with a meaning contrary to its apparent evidence that is commonly known among the people of the language in whose language the Qur'an was revealed, is more appropriate.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better, if they only knew.

God the Almighty said: And if only they had believed and feared God meaning, they had feared magic. For a reward The reward is the recompense, and it is the answer to And if only they had believed among some people. Al-Akhfash Saeed said: There is no answer for 'law' here in wording, but in meaning, and the meaning is that they would have been rewarded. The position of an in His statement: And if only they had believed is in the nominative case, meaning if their belief had occurred, because law is only followed by a verb, whether explicit or implicit, because it is like the letters of condition, since it must have an answer, and a verb must follow it. Muhammad bin Yazid said: And it was not permissible to use 'law because the way of all letters of reward is to change the past tense to a future meaning, so since this was in law, it was not permissible to reward with it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And the Almighty said: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' Abu Ja'far al-Razi said, on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas, on the authority of Qays ibn 'Ibad, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: So when the one who came to them wanted to practice magic, they forbade him with the strongest prohibition and said to him: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. This is because they knew good and evil, disbelief and faith, so they knew that magic is from disbelief. He said: So if he refused them, they ordered him to go to such and such a place, and when he came to him, he saw Satan and taught him, and when he learned him, a light came out of him, and he looked at him shining in the sky and said: Oh, what a pity! Oh, what did he do? And on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, he said in the interpretation of this verse: Yes, the two angels sent down magic to teach people the affliction with which God wanted to test people, so He took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Qatada said: He took a covenant from them that they would not teach anyone until they said: We are only a trial, meaning a trial with which we have been afflicted, so do not disbelieve. As-Suddi said: If a person came to them wanting to practice magic, they would admonish him and say to him: Do not disbelieve, we are only a trial. If he refused, they would say to him: Go to these ashes and urinate on them. When he urinates on them, a light comes out of it and shines until it enters the sky, and that is faith. Something black like smoke comes and enters his ears, and everything, and that is the wrath of God. If he tells them about that, they would teach him magic. This is the statement of God the Most High: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' (al-Baqarah 2:170) Sunayd said on the authority of Hajjaj on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding this verse: None would dare to practice magic except a disbeliever. As for the trial, it is the test and choice, and from it is the saying of the poet:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

He tempted people in their religion and left Ibn Affan in a state of evil for a long time.

And also the saying of the Almighty, informing about Moses, peace be upon him, where he said: It is only your trial, meaning your trial, your test, and your examination, with which You misguide whom You will and guide whom You will. Some of them have used this verse as evidence for the disbelief of those who learn magic, and they have cited as evidence for it the hadith narrated by Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar, who told us, Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Hammam, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: "Whoever goes to a soothsayer or magician and believes what he says, has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace." This is a sound chain of transmission and it has other corroborating evidence. And the saying of the Almighty: And they learn from them that by which they cause separation between a man and his wife, meaning that people learn from Harut and Marut the science of magic and what they do with it in what they do of reprehensible actions, by which they cause separation between spouses, despite the mixing and harmony between them, and this is from the doing of the devils, as Muslim narrated in his Sahih from the hadith of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sufyan, on the authority of Talhah bin Nafi', on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The devil places his throne on the water and then sends out his armies among the people. The one closest to him in status is the one who causes the greatest temptation. One of them comes and says: 'I kept on with so-and-so until I left him saying such-and-such.' Iblis says: 'No, by God, I did nothing!'" And one of them comes and says: 'I did not leave him until I separated him from his family.' He acknowledges it, brings him close, embraces him and says: 'Yes, you are.'" The reason for separation between spouses through magic is what a man or woman imagines of the other in terms of bad appearance, character, or something similar, or a contract, or hatred, or something similar to the reasons that necessitate separation. 'Man' refers to a man and its feminine form is 'woman.' Both of them are dual, but they are not plural, and God knows best.

And the Almighty's saying: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. Sufyan al-Thawri said: Except by the decree of God. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Except by God's leaving him alone with what He willed. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: And they can not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. He said: Yes, whoever God wills, He gives them power over him, and whoever God does not will, He does not give them power over him, and they cannot do anything to anyone except by permission of God, as God the Almighty said. And in a narration from Al-Hasan, he said: This magic does not harm anyone except the one who engages in it. And the Almighty's saying: And they learn that which harms them and does not benefit them means that it harms them in their religion and has no benefit that matches its harm. And they have certainly known that whoever buys it will have no share in the Hereafter means that the Jews who exchanged magic for following the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew that whoever did what they did, that he will have no share in the Hereafter. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Al-Suddi said: No share. And Abd Al-Razzaq said from Muammar from Qatadah: He will have no share in the Hereafter with God. And Abd Al-Razzaq said, and Al-Hasan said: He has no religion. And Saad said from Qatadah: He will have no share in the Hereafter He said: And the People of the Book knew in what God entrusted them with that the magician will have no share in the Hereafter. And the Almighty's saying: "And evil is that for which they sold themselves, if they only knew. And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better, if they only knew." The Almighty says: And evil is the substitute that they exchanged for magic in place of faith. And following the Messenger, if they had knowledge of what they were admonished with, And if they had believed and feared God, the reward from God would have been better for them. That is, if they had believed in God and His Messengers and feared the forbidden things, God's reward for that would have been better for them than what they sought for themselves and were satisfied with, as God the Almighty said, "And those who were given knowledge said, 'Woe to you! The reward from God is better for him who believes and does righteousness. And none is granted it except the patient.'"

And the saying of And if they had believed and feared God was used as evidence by those who considered the magician to be an infidel, as is narrated by Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal and a group of the Salaf. It was said: Rather, he is not an infidel, but his punishment is to behead him, as narrated by Al-Shafi'i and Ahmad ibn Hanbal. They said: Sufyan, who is Ibn Uyaynah, told us on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar that he heard Bajalah ibn Abdah say: Umar ibn Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, wrote: Kill every male and female magician. He said: So we killed three female magicians. Al-Bukhari also included it in his Sahih. And thus it was authenticated that Hafsa, the Mother of the Believers, was bewitched by a slave girl of hers, so she ordered that she be killed. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said: It was authenticated on the authority of three of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding killing the magician. Al-Tirmidhi narrated from the hadith of Ismail bin Muslim from Al-Hasan from Jundub Al-Azdi that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The punishment for a magician is to strike him with a sword. Then he said: We do not know it as being attributed to the Prophet except from this source, and Ismail bin Muslim is considered weak in hadith, and the correct version is from Al-Hasan from Jundub as a mursal. I said: Al-Tabarani narrated it from another source from Al-Hasan from Jundub as a mursal. And God knows best. It has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission that Al-Walid bin Uqbah had a magician playing in front of him. He would strike a man's head and then shout at him, and his head would be returned to him. The people said: Glory be to God, He brings the dead back to life. A righteous man from the Muhajireen saw him, so the next day he came with his sword wrapped around him and went to play that game. The man drew his sword and struck the magician's neck, and said: If he is telling the truth, then let him revive himself. Then he recited the verse of God, Do you then practice magic while you are seeing? Al-Walid became angry because he did not ask his permission to do so, so he imprisoned him and then released him. And God knows best. Imam Abu Bakr Al-Khalal said: Abdullah bin Ahmad bin Hanbal told us, my father told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, Abu Ishaq told me on the authority of Haritha, who said: There was a man playing with one of the princes, then a soldier came with his sword drawn and killed him. He said: I think he was a magician. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, attributed the story of Umar and Hafsa to magic that constitutes polytheism, and God knows best.

Chapter Abu Abdullah al-Razi narrated in his interpretation of the Mu'tazila that they denied the existence of magic. He said: And perhaps they disbelieved whoever believed in its existence. He said: As for the Sunnis, they allowed that the magician could fly in the air and turn a human into a donkey, and a donkey into a human, except that they said: God creates things when the magician says those incantations and specific words. As for the one who has an effect on that being the heavens and the stars, then no, contrary to the philosophers, astrologers, and Sabians. Then he provided evidence for the occurrence of magic and that it is by the creation of God Almighty by His Almighty saying: And they do not harm anyone thereby except by permission of God. And from the report that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched, and that magic worked on him and the story of that woman with Aisha, may God be pleased with her, and what that woman mentioned about her coming to Babylon and learning magic. He said: And from what is mentioned in this chapter of many stories, then he said after this.

The fifth issue is that knowledge of magic is not ugly or forbidden - the scholars agreed on this because knowledge in itself is noble, and also because of the generality of the Almighty's saying: "Say: Are those who know equal to those who do not know?" And because if magic were not known, it would not be possible to differentiate between it and a miracle, and knowledge that a miracle is a miracle is obligatory, and whatever the obligation depends on is obligatory. This requires that acquiring knowledge of magic be obligatory, and whatever is obligatory, how can it be forbidden and ugly? This is his wording on this issue, and this statement is questionable from several aspects, one of which is his saying: Knowledge of magic is not ugly rationally, so his opponents from the Mu'tazila forbid this, even if he meant that it is not ugly religiously, so in this noble verse there is an ugliness to learning magic, and in the Sahih: Whoever goes to a fortune teller or a soothsayer has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad, and in the Sunan: Whoever ties a knot and blows into it has practiced magic, and his saying: and there is no prohibition, the scholars have agreed on that, how could it not be prohibited with what we have mentioned from the verse and the hadith and the agreement of the scholars requires that the imams of the scholars or most of them have stated this issue, and where are their texts on that? Then, its inclusion in the science of magic in the generality of the Almighty's saying: "Say: Are those who know equal to those who do not know?" There is a consideration in this, because this verse only indicates the praise of those who know Islamic knowledge. And why did I say that this is from it? Then, it is an advancement to the obligation of learning it, because knowledge of the miracle cannot be obtained except through it. It is weak, rather corrupt, because the greatest miracle of our Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the Great Qur'an, which falsehood cannot approach from before it or from behind it, a revelation from the Wise, the Praiseworthy. Then, the knowledge that it is a miracle does not depend on the knowledge of magic at all. Then, it is known by necessity that the Companions, the Followers, the Imams of the Muslims and their common folk knew the miracle and differentiated between it and other things, and they did not know magic, nor did they know it, nor did they teach it. And God knows best.

Then Abu Abdullah al-Razi mentioned that there are eight types of magic: The first is the magic of the liars and the Kasdaniyyin, who used to worship the seven wandering planets, which are the moving ones, and they believed that they governed the world and that they bring good and evil. They are the ones to whom God sent Abraham, peace be upon him, to invalidate their statement and reject their doctrine. He investigated it thoroughly in The Book of the Hidden Secret, in Addressing the Sun and the Stars attributed to him, as mentioned by Judge Ibn Khalikan and others. It is said that he repented from it, and it is said that he wrote it in order to show virtue, not as a matter of belief. This is what is thought of him, except that he mentioned in it their method in addressing each of these seven planets and the manner in which they do, what they wear, and what they adhere to.

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

He said: And the second type is the magic of those with delusions and strong souls. Then he provided evidence that delusion has an effect in that a person can walk on a bridge placed on the ground, but he cannot walk on it if it is extended over a river or something similar. He said: And just as the doctors agreed to forbid the frightened from looking at red things, and the possessed from looking at things that are very shiny or rotating, and that is only because souls were created obedient to delusions. He said: The wise have agreed that the evil eye is true - and he can prove that with what is proven in the Sahih that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The evil eye is true, and if there were anything that could overtake destiny, it would be the evil eye. He said: So if you know this, then we say that the soul that does these actions may be very strong, so it does not need to resort to tools and instruments in these actions, and it may be weak, so it needs to resort to these tools. The truth of this is that if the soul is elevated above the body and strongly attracted to the world of the heavens, it becomes as if it is a spirit from the heavenly spirits, so it is strong in influencing the materials of this world. If it is weak and strongly attached to this physical self, then at that time it has no influence at all except in this body. Then he advised to treat this disease by reducing food, cutting off from people and showing off. I said: What he is referring to is dealing with the state, and it is of two types: sometimes it is a correct, legitimate state, in which one deals with what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, have commanded, and one leaves what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, have forbidden. These states are gifts from God the Almighty and miracles for the righteous of this nation, and this is not called magic in the Sharia. Sometimes the situation is corrupt and its owner does not comply with what God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded, and does not act in that way. This is the situation of the wretched who oppose the Sharia, and God giving them these situations does not indicate His love for them. Likewise, the Antichrist has supernatural powers that are indicated by many hadiths, even though he is condemned in the Sharia, may God curse him, and likewise those who resemble him from those who oppose the Muhammadan Sharia, upon its owner the best prayers and peace. Explaining this would take a long time and this is not the place for it.

He said: The third type of magic is seeking help from earthly spirits, who are the jinn, contrary to the philosophers and the Mu'tazila, who are divided into two groups: believers and infidels, who are the devils. He said: The communication of the speaking souls with them is easier than their communication with the heavenly spirits, because of the relevance and closeness between them. Then the masters of the craft and the masters of experience have witnessed that communication with these earthly spirits results in a few easy works of incantation, smoke, and abstraction. This type is called incantations and the work of subjugation.

He said: The fourth type of magic is imagination, taking the eyes, and magic. It is based on the fact that sight may err and be occupied with a specific thing and not with something else. Do you not see the skilled magician showing off the work of something that astounds the minds of those who look at it and takes their eyes to it until, when they are exhausted by the preoccupation with that thing by talking and the like, he does something else very quickly. Then something else appears to them other than what they expected, and they are very amazed by it. If he were silent and did not speak in a way that would divert the thoughts to the opposite of what he wants to teach, and the souls and imaginations were not moved to other than what he wants to bring out, the observers would be aware of everything he does. He said And whenever the conditions are beneficial to good sight, some type of defect is more severe, the work is better, such as if the magician sits in a very bright or dark place, so the seeing power does not stop at its conditions in this case.

I said Some commentators said: The magic of the magicians before Pharaoh was only a form of sorcery, and for this reason the Almighty said: So when they cast, they bewitched the eyes of the people and struck terror into them and produced a great magic. And the Almighty said: It appeared to him from their magic that it was moving. They said: And it was not moving in reality, and God knows best.

The fifth type of magic: The amazing works that appear from the assembly of machines based on geometric proportions, such as a knight on a horse with a trumpet in his hand, every hour of the day he strikes the trumpet without anyone touching him - and from them are the images that the Romans and Indians depicted so that the observer cannot distinguish between them and a human being until they depict them laughing and crying, until he said: These faces are from the subtle matters of imagination. He said: And the magic of Pharaoh's magicians was of this type I said meaning what some of the commentators said: They took those ropes and sticks and filled them with mercury so that they began to twist because of what was in them of that mercury, so it seemed to the observer that they were moving of their own free will. Al-Razi said: And from this category is the assembly of a watch box, and the science of dragging weights with light machines falls under this category. He said: And this in reality should not be considered magic because it has known and certain causes that whoever looks at them can do. I said And of this kind are the tricks of the Christians upon their common people with what they show them of lights, such as the case of the garbage of the church that they have in the city of Jerusalem, and the trick they use of secretly bringing fire into the church and lighting that lamp with a clever craft that is popular with the common people among them. As for the elite, they acknowledge that, but they interpret that they are uniting their companions in their religion, so they see that as permissible for them. And there is a doubt about them for the ignorant fools among the worshippers of the Karamiyyah who see the permissibility of fabricating hadiths in encouragement and intimidation, so they are included in the number of those about whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever lies about me intentionally, let him take his seat in the Fire. And his saying: Talk about me and do not lie about me, for whoever lies about me will enter the Fire. Then he mentioned here a story about some monks, which is that he heard the voice of a bird with a sad voice and weak movement, so when the birds heard it, they took pity on it and went and threw olive fruits into its nest to eat them. So this monk proceeded to make a bird in his shape and reached the point of making it hollow, so when the wind entered it, a sound like the sound of a bird was heard from it, and he secluded himself in a monastery that he built and claimed that it was on the grave of one of their righteous people, and he hung that bird in a place in it, so when it was the time of the olives, he opened a door on its side so that the wind would enter inside this image, and every bird in its shape would also hear its sound, so the birds would come and carry a lot of olives, and you would not see it among the Christians. Except for that olive in this monastery, and they do not know what caused it, so he tempted them with that and made them think that this was one of the miracles of the owner of this grave, upon them be the continuous curses of God until the Day of Resurrection.

(Al-Razi said: The sixth type of magic) is seeking help from the properties of medicines, meaning in this case foods and ointments. He said: Know that there is no way to deny the properties, because the effect of magnets is observable. I said Many of those who claim poverty and trick ignorant people with these properties fall into this category, claiming that they are conditions for him, such as mixing with fire and holding snakes, and other such impossibilities.

He said: The seventh type of magic is the attachment of the heart, which is that the magician claims that he knows the Greatest Name and that the jinn obey him and submit to him in most matters. If it happens that the listener is weak-minded and has little discernment, he believes that it is true and his heart is attached to it and a kind of terror and fear occurs in his soul. If fear occurs, the sensitive powers weaken, and then the magician is able to do whatever he wants. I said This type is called al-tanbalaḥ and it is only popular among the weak-minded among the sons of Adam. In the science of physiognomy there is guidance in knowing the mind from its deficiency. If the one who is being al-tanbalaḥ is skilled in the science of physiognomy, he knows who among the people will submit to him and who will not.

He said: The eighth type of magic is seeking to gossip and bring people closer together in light and pleasant ways, and this is common among people. I said Gossip is of two types: sometimes it is for the purpose of causing discord among people and dividing the hearts of the believers, then this is forbidden and agreed upon. But if it is for the purpose of reforming among people and uniting the Muslims' word, as stated in the hadith, He is not a liar who divulges good, or it is for the purpose of discouraging and dividing the masses of the infidels, then this is a required matter, as stated in the hadith, War is deception, and as Nu'aym ibn Mas'ud did in dividing the word of the Confederates and Banu Qurayzah: he came to these people and spread to them some words about these people, and he conveyed from these people to those people something else, then he made a distinction between that and the souls became estranged and separated. Only the one with penetrating insight can do such a thing, and God is the One sought for help.

Then Al-Razi said: This is the summary of the discussion on the types of magic and the explanation of its types and kinds. I said Many of these mentioned types were included in the art of magic because of the subtlety of their perceptions, because magic in the language is an expression for what is subtle and hidden because of it, and for this reason it came in the hadith: Indeed, some eloquence is magic. And it was called suhur because it occurs hidden at the end of the night, and magic is the lung, which is the place of food and it was called that because of its concealment and the subtlety of its passages to the parts of the body and its wrinkles, as Abu Jahl said on the day of Badr to Utbah: His magic swelled, meaning his lung swelled from fear. And Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died between my throat and my chest, and God Almighty said: They bewitched the eyes of the people, meaning they concealed their knowledge from them, and God knows best.

Abu Abdullah Al-Qurtubi said: We believe that magic is true and has a reality, and God creates with it what He wills, contrary to the Mu'tazila and Abu Ishaq Al-Isfarayni of the Shafi'is, who said: It is deception and imagination. He said: And from magic is that which is done by sleight of hand, like sorcery, and the sorcerer is the mailman due to his lightness of movement. Ibn Faris said: This word is not from the speech of the Bedouins. Al-Qurtubi said: And from it is that which is spoken by memorizing incantations of the names of God Almighty, and it may be from the covenants of the devils and it may be medicines and smokes and other than that. He said: And his saying, peace be upon him: Indeed, some eloquence is magic may be praise as a group says, and it may be a censure of eloquence. He said: This is more correct. He said: Because it corrects falsehood until the listener thinks that it is true, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: Perhaps some of you will be more eloquent in his argument than others, so I will rule in his favor. The hadith.

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

Chapter The minister Abu al-Muzaffar Yahya ibn Muhammad ibn Hubayrah, may God have mercy on him, mentioned in his book Al-Ishraf ala Madhahib al-Ashraf a chapter on magic and said: They agreed that magic has a reality except for Abu Hanifa, who said: It has no reality according to him. They differed about the one who learns magic and uses it. Abu Hanifa, Malik and Ahmad said that he is a disbeliever because of that. Among the companions of Abu Hanifa, there are those who said that if he learns it to guard against it or avoid it, then he is not a disbeliever, and the one who learns it believing that it is permissible or that it benefits him is a disbeliever. Likewise, the one who believes that the devils do whatever he wants for him is a disbeliever. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said: If he learns magic, we say to him, Describe your magic to us. If he describes what necessitates disbelief, such as what the people of Babylon believed about drawing closer to the seven planets and that they do what is sought from them, then he is a disbeliever. If it does not necessitate disbelief, then if he believes that it is permissible, then he is a disbeliever. Ibn Hubayrah said: Is he killed simply because of his doing and using it? Malik and Ahmad said: Yes. Ash-Shafi'i and Abu Hanifa said: No. If someone kills a person with his magic, then he is to be killed according to Malik, Ash-Shafi'i and Ahmad. Abu Hanifa said: He is to be killed unless he repeats it or admits to it with regard to a specific person. If he kills, then he is to be killed as a prescribed punishment according to them, except Ash-Shafi'i who said: He is to be killed in this case as retaliation. He said: If the magician repents, is his repentance accepted? Malik, Abu Hanifa and Ahmad said in the well-known opinion from them: It is not to be accepted. Ash-Shafi'i and Ahmad said in the other narration: It is to be accepted. As for the magician of the People of the Book, according to Abu Hanifa, he is to be killed just as a Muslim magician is to be killed. Malik, Ahmad and Ash-Shafi'i said: He is not to be killed, meaning because of the story of Labid ibn Al-A'sam. They differed concerning the Muslim female magician. According to Abu Hanifa, she is not to be killed, but she is to be imprisoned. The three said that her ruling is the same as that of a man, and God knows best. Abu Bakr Al-Khalal said: Abu Bakr Al-Marwazi told us: Umar ibn Harun read to Abu Abdullah - meaning Ahmad ibn Hanbal - that Yunus told us on the authority of Al-Zuhri: He said: The Muslim sorcerer is killed, but the polytheist sorcerer is not killed, because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was bewitched by a Jewish woman, but he did not kill her. Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Malik, may God have mercy on him, that he said about the dhimmi, he is killed if he kills his sorcery. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandat narrated two narrations on the authority of Malik about the dhimmi who is bewitched: One of them is that he is asked to repent, and if he converts to Islam, otherwise he is killed. The second is that he is killed even if he converts to Islam. As for the Muslim sorcerer, if his sorcery includes disbelief, he is considered a disbeliever according to the four imams and others, based on the words of God the Almighty: And they do not teach anyone until they say, 'We are only a trial, so do not disbelieve.' But Malik said: If he is found out, his repentance is not accepted, because he is like a heretic. If he repents before he is found out and comes to us repentant, we accept him. If he kills, his sorcery is killed. Al-Shafi'i said: If he says, I did not intend to kill, then he is mistaken and blood money is due on him.

Question And does the magician ask for a solution for his magic? Saeed bin Al-Musayyab permitted it, as narrated by Al-Bukhari, and Amer Al-Shaabi said: There is nothing wrong with spreading it, and Al-Hasan Al-Basri disliked it. And in the Sahih, on the authority of Aisha, she said: O Messenger of God, why didn't you spread it? He said: As for God, He has healed me, and I feared that I would open evil upon the people. And Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Wahb: He said: Seven leaves of Sidr are taken and crushed between two stones, then they are mixed with water and the Throne Verse is recited over them and the bewitched person drinks three sips of it, then he washes with the rest of it, for what is with him will go away. And it is good for the man who takes it from his wife. I said The most beneficial thing to use to remove magic is what God revealed to His Messenger to remove it, and they are the two Mu'awwidhat, and in the hadith: The one seeking refuge has not sought refuge with anything like them. And likewise the recitation of the Throne Verse, for it repels the devils.

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 103- And if they had believed meaning in the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought of the Qur'an, and feared what they fell into of magic and disbelief, and the lam in His statement: for a reward is the answer to if, and the reward is the recompense. Al-Akhfash said: The answer is omitted and the meaning is: And if they had believed and feared God, they would have been rewarded, so it was omitted because His statement: for a reward indicates it, and His statement: If they had known is either to indicate that they had no knowledge, or to lower their knowledge with the lack of action to the level of nothingness.

Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "Ibn Suriya said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: 'O Muhammad, you have not brought us anything that is known, and God has not sent down to you a clear sign.' So God Almighty revealed regarding that: 'And We have certainly sent down to you clear signs, and none disbelieve in them except the defiantly disobedient.'" Malik ibn al-Sayf said when he sent the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he reminded them of the covenant that he had taken from them and what he had entrusted to them regarding Muhammad: 'By God, he did not entrust us with anything regarding Muhammad nor did he take anything from us.' So God revealed: 'Or whenever they made a covenant'. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority regarding his statement: 'clear signs', he said: So you recite it to them and inform them of it morning and evening and in between, and you are illiterate in their eyes and have not read the Book, and you inform them of what is in their hands in its entirety, so in that there is a lesson for them and an argument against them 'if they only knew.'” Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: 'He rejected it', he said: He broke it. He also narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi in his saying: Confirming what is with them, he said: When Muhammad came to them, they opposed him with the Torah, and the Torah and the Qur'an agreed, so they rejected the Torah and took the Book of Asif and the magic of Harut and Marut, as if they did not know what was in the Torah of the command to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believe in him. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Hakim narrated with a chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The devils used to eavesdrop from the sky, so if one of them heard a word of truth, he would tell a thousand lies with it, so the hearts of the people would absorb it and they would take it as records, so God informed Solomon, son of David, of that, so he took it and buried it under the throne, and when Solomon died, a devil stood up on the road and said: Shall I not guide you to the treasure of Solomon, which no one has like his forbidden treasure? They said: Yes, so they took it out and it turned out to be magic, so the nations copied it. And God revealed the excuse of Solomon for what they said about magic, so He said: And they followed what the devils recited during the reign of Solomon 10: 13. Al-Nasa'i and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: Asaf was the scribe of Solomon, and he knew the Greatest Name. He used to write down everything by Solomon's command and bury it under his throne. When Solomon died, the devils brought him out and wrote between every two lines something like magic and blasphemy. They said: This is what Solomon did, the devils brought him out. They wrote between every two lines something like magic and blasphemy. They said: This is what Solomon used to do. The ignorant people declared him an unbeliever and cursed him. Their scholars stood up, and their ignorant people continued to curse him until God revealed to Muhammad, And they followed what the devils recited. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: When Solomon wanted to go to the toilet or do something of his business, he would give his ring to the locust, which was his wife. When God wanted to test Solomon with what He tested him with, he gave the locust his ring one day. Then Satan came in the form of Solomon and said to it: Give me my ring. So he took it and put it on. When he put it on, the devils, jinn and humans obeyed him. Then Solomon came and said: Give me my ring. It said: You lie, you are not Solomon. So he knew that it was a test with which he was tested. So the devils went and wrote books in those days that contained magic and blasphemy. Then they buried them under Solomon's throne. Then they took them out and read them to the people and said: It was Solomon who was overpowering the people with these books. So the people disavowed Solomon and disbelieved in him until God sent Muhammad and revealed to him: It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority regarding His statement: And they did not recite, he said: What they followed. He also narrated on the authority of Ata' regarding His statement: And they did not recite, he said: We see that they did not speak. He also narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding his statement: during the reign of Solomon he said: during the reign of Solomon. He also narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement: And what was revealed to the two angels he said: This is another magic that they disputed with him about, because if the speech of the angels among themselves is taught to mankind and they do and act upon it, it is magic. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And what was revealed to the two angels he said: God did not reveal magic. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ali who said: They are two angels from the angels of heaven. Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar from another chain of transmission on his authority with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Al-Bukhari narrated in his history and Ibn Al-Mundhir on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And what was revealed to the two angels meaning Gabriel and Michael in Babylon, Harut and Marut teaching people magic. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman Ibn Al-Bazi that he used to recite it: And what was revealed to the two angels David and Solomon. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak who said: They are two giants from the people of Babylon. Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Shu'ab Al-Iman from the hadith of Ibn Umar who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The angels looked down upon the world and saw the children of Adam disobeying, so they said: O Lord, how ignorant these are! How little these people know of Your greatness. God said: If you were in their places, you would disobey Me. They said: How can this be when we glorify You and sanctify You? He said: So they chose two angels from among you, and they chose Harut and Marut. Then they were sent down to the earth and the desires of the children of Adam were in them, and a woman appeared to them, but they did not disobey until they committed the sin. God said: Choose the torment of this world or the torment of the Hereafter. One of them looked at the other and said: What do you say? He said: I say that the torment of this world will end and the torment of the Hereafter will not end. So they chose the torment of this world, and they are the ones whom God mentioned in His Book: "And what was sent down to the two angels" verse. Al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Ibn Umar that he used to say: The red rose after a while, and when he saw it, he said: No welcome. Then he said: Two angels from the angels, Harut and Marut, asked God to bring them down to earth, so they were brought down to earth and they used to judge between people. When evening came, they spoke words and ascended with them to heaven. A woman from the most beautiful of women was appointed for them, and desire was cast upon them, so they delayed it and it was cast into their souls. They did not stop doing that until I promised them an appointment. Then she came to them for the appointment and said: Teach me the word with which you ascend. So they taught her the word and she spoke it, so he ascended to heaven and she was transformed and became as you see. When evening came, they spoke the word and did not ascend. So he sent to them: If you wish, then the torment of the Hereafter, and if you wish, then the torment of this world until the Hour comes, so that you may meet God. If He wills, He will punish you, and if He wills, He will have mercy on you. Then one of them looked at the other and said: Rather, we choose the torment of this world a thousand thousand times. So they are tormented until The Day of Resurrection. This story has been narrated from Ibn Umar with different wordings, and in some of them it is stated that Ibn Umar narrated it from Kaab al-Ahbar, as narrated by Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi in al-Sha'b on the authority of al-Thawri on the authority of Musa ibn Uqbah on the authority of Salim on the authority of Ibn Umar on the authority of Kaab, who said: The angels mentioned the deeds of the children of Adam and the sins they commit, and it was said: If you were in your place, you would have committed the same as they commit, so choose two of you, and they chose Harut and Marut. He said to them: I send messengers to the children of Adam, and there is no messenger between Me and you. Come down and do not associate anything with Me, and do not commit adultery, and do not drink wine. Kaab said: By God, they did not spend the evening of the day on which they were sent down until they had done everything they were forbidden to do. Ibn Kathir said: This is more authentic, meaning than the two chains of transmission he mentioned before it. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Abu Al-Shaykh in Al-Azmah, and Al-Hakim narrated with a chain of transmission that is authentic on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, who said: This flower is called Al-Zahra by the Arabs, and Anahid by the Persians. He mentioned something similar to the previous narration on the authority of Ibn Umar in Al-Hakim. Ibn Kathir said: The men of this chain of transmission are trustworthy and it is very strange. Abd bin Hamid and Al-Hakim narrated with a chain of transmission that is authentic on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Al-Zahra was a woman. Abd al-Razzaq and Abd bin Hamid narrated on his authority: The woman with whom the two angels were tempted was transformed, so she is this red constellation: meaning Al-Zahra. Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim narrated with a chain of transmission that is authentic, and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Shu'ab narrated with a chain of transmission that is authentic on the authority of Ibn Masoud and Ibn Abbas, who said: Al-Zahra was sent down to them in the form of a woman and they committed the sin. In this regard, long stories and various narrations have been narrated, which Al-Suyuti has included in Al-Durr Al-Manthur. Ibn Kathir mentioned some of them in his interpretation, then said: The story of Harut and Marut has been narrated by a group of the Successors, such as Mujahid, Al-Suddi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Qatadah, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Zuhri, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and others. It has been narrated by many of the commentators, both early and later. The gist of it is that its details refer to the stories of the Children of Israel, as there is no authentic hadith in it with a continuous chain of transmission to the Truthful, Trusted, Infallible One who does not speak from his own desires. The apparent context of the Qur'an is to summarize the story without elaboration or length. We believe in what is mentioned in the Qur'an as God Almighty intended, and God knows best the truth of the matter. Al-Qurtubi said: After narrating some of that: We said that all of this is weak and far from Ibn Umar and others, and none of it is authentic, as it is a statement that is rejected by the principles regarding the angels who are the trustees of God over His revelation and His ambassadors to His messengers, they do not disobey God in what He commands them and they do what they are commanded, then he mentioned what means: that the mind allows that to happen from them, but the occurrence of this permissible thing is not known except by hearing and it is not authentic. And I say that this is just a rejection. The Noble Book has been mentioned in this place as you see, and there is no reason to take it out of its apparent meaning with these efforts, and what he mentioned that the principles reject that, then assuming the existence of these principles, they are specific to what happened in this story and there is no reason to prevent specification, and Iblis had the great status and became the most evil of creation and the most disbelieving of the worlds. Ibn Jarir narrated from Qatadah regarding his statement: We are only a trial, he said: A calamity. Al-Bazzar narrated with a sound chain of transmission and Al-Hakim and authenticated it from Ibn Masoud who said: Whoever goes to a soothsayer or magician and believes what he says has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad. Al-Bazzar narrated on the authority of Imran bin Husain who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Whoever practices omens or has omens practiced for him, or practices divination or has divination practiced for him, or practices magic or has magic practiced for him, or ties a knot, or goes to a soothsayer and believes what he says has disbelieved in what was revealed to Muhammad." Abd al-Razzaq narrated on the authority of Safwan bin Salim who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Whoever learns a little or a lot of magic, his last covenant with God will be that of his. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: From a creation, he said: A foundation. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: From a creation, from a share. Ibn Jarir narrated likewise on the authority of Mujahid. Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Hasan: He will have no share in the Hereafter, he said: He has no religion. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of al-Suddi regarding his statement: And evil is that for which they exchange, he said: They sold. Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement: For a reward, he said: A reward.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:103

And if only they had believed and feared Allah, a reward from Allah would have been better, if they only knew.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

103. And if they had believed in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Qur'an, and feared Judaism and magic, the reward from God would have been better for them, if they only knew.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

103- And if they had believed in the Messenger and the Book. And feared God by abandoning sins, such as rejecting the Book of God and following magic. A reward from God would be better is the answer to if, and its original form is they would have been rewarded with a reward from God better than what they sold themselves for. The verb was deleted and the rest was composed as a nominal sentence to indicate the permanence of the reward and the certainty of its goodness. The preferred word was deleted out of respect for the preferred one so that it would not be attributed to him, and the reward was indefinite because the meaning of something of the reward is better. It was said: if is for wishing, and for a reward is a subject statement. For a reward was read as consultation, and the reward is a reward and a reward because the doer of good will be rewarded if they only knew that the reward from God is better than what they are in, and they knew but their ignorance was due to their abandonment of contemplation or acting on knowledge.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:104

O you who have believed, do not say, "Ra'ina," but say, "Unzurna," and listen. And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:104

O you who have believed, do not say, Ra'ina, but say, Unzurna, and listen. And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, do not say to the Prophet Ra'ina a command from the word mar'a and they used to say that to him, and in the language of the Jews it is an insult from rashness, so they interpreted it as such and addressed the Prophet with it, so the believers were forbidden from it and say instead of it Anzurna meaning look at us and listen to what you are commanded to hear with acceptance and for the disbelievers is a painful punishment painful which is the Fire.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: O you who have believed, do not say, Ra'ina, but say, Unzurna, and listen. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of al-Suddi that two Jewish men, Malik ibn al-Sayf and Rafa'ah ibn Zayd, when they met the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said while speaking to him, Ra'ina, listen to us and hear us. The Muslims thought that this was the thing that the People of the Book used to glorify their prophets, so they said that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God Almighty revealed: O you who have believed, do not say, Ra'ina, but say, Unzurna and listen.

Abu Naim narrated in Al-Dala'il, on the authority of Al-Suddi Al-Sagheer, on the authority of Al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: We were alarmed by the ugly insults in the language of the Jews. When they heard his companions saying it, they made it public to him. They used to say that and laugh among themselves, so it was revealed. Sa'd bin Mu'adh heard it from them and said to the Jews: O enemies of God, if I hear it from a man among you after this meeting, I will strike his neck.

K and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, who said: A man used to say: Listen to me with your hearing, so the verse was revealed. K and he narrated on the authority of Atiyyah, who said: Some of the Jews used to say: Listen to us with your hearing, until some of the Muslims said it, so God disliked that for them, so the verse was revealed. K and he narrated on the authority of Qatada, who said: They used to say: Listen to us with your hearing, so the Jews used to come and say the same thing, so the verse was revealed.

And he narrated on the authority of Ata' who said: It was the language of the Ansar in the pre-Islamic era, so it was revealed.

And he narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, who said: When the Arabs spoke to each other, one of them would say to his companion: Listen to me, so they were forbidden from doing that.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What God, the Most High, means by His statement, And if they had believed and feared God, was if those who learn from the two angels what would separate a man from his wife, had believed, so they believed in God and His Messenger and what He brought them from their Lord, and feared their Lord, so they feared Him and feared His punishment, so they obeyed Him by performing His obligations and avoiding His disobedience, then God's reward for them and His recompense for their belief and fear of Him would have been better for them than magic and what they acquired through it, if they only knew, that God's reward for that is better for them than magic and what they acquired through it. And He only negated knowledge from them by His statement, if they only knew, that they would be knowledgeable about the extent of God's reward and the extent of His recompense for obeying Him.

In Arabic, reward is a noun derived from the saying: I established you with reward, reward, and reward. The origin of this is from: Thaba ilaika al-shay' meaning: it came back. Then it is said: I established it to you: meaning, I returned it to you and returned it. So the meaning of: A man's rewarding a man for a gift or something else is to return it to him in exchange for it, and to return it to him in exchange for it. Then he made every compensation other than his work or gift or a favor that was given to him by him: a reward for him. And from this is the reward of God the Almighty for His servants for their deeds, meaning: He gives them compensation and recompense for it, so that it returns to them in exchange for the work that they did for Him.

Some Basran grammarians have claimed that his statement, And if they had believed and feared God, a reward from God would have been better, is one of the things that suffices to indicate the meaning of the speech without mentioning its answer. And that its meaning is: And if they had believed and feared God, they would have been rewarded, but he dispensed with indicating the report about the reward in his statement: they would have been rewarded.

Some of the grammarians of Basra denied this, and believed that the answer to his statement, And if only they had believed and feared God, was for a reward, and that if it was only answered with a reward, even though it was reported with the past tense of the verb, because their meanings are similar to the meaning of if only, in that they are two rewards, since they are two answers to faith. So he introduced the answer to each of them to the other, so if only was answered with the answer to if only, and if only with the answer to if only, for that reason, even though their answers differed. So it was the rule and the portion of if only that it was answered with the past tense of the verb, and it was the rule and the portion of if only that it was answered with the future tense of the verb, because of what we have described of their similarity. So he interpreted the meaning of his statement, And if only they had believed and feared God, as: And if they had believed and feared God, then a reward from God is better.

And what we said about the interpretation of the reward, the people of interpretation said. Mention of those who said that: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: For a reward from God, he said: A reward from God.

Yunus told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And if they had believed and feared God, they would have received a reward from God. As for the reward, it is the recompense.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And if they had believed and feared God, a reward from God would have been better, meaning: a reward from God.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: "O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' but say, 'Unzurna,' and listen. And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment."

There are five issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina' 1:136 mentions another thing from the ignorance of the Jews, and the intended meaning is to forbid Muslims from such a thing. The true meaning of ra'ina in the language is ra'ina and linda'ika, because the reciprocal verb is from two verbs, so it is from ra'aka God, meaning protect us and we will protect you, and ra'abana and linda'abaka. It is also possible that it is from ra'ana sama'ka, meaning free your hearing of our words. There is ambiguity in addressing them in this way, so He ordered the believers to choose the best of words and the most delicate of meanings. Ibn Abbas said that the Muslims used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ra'ana. On the side of request and desire - from consideration - that is, he turned to us, and this was in the language of the Jews an insult, that is, listen, do not hear, so they seized it and said: We used to insult him secretly, but now we insult him openly, so they would address the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with it and laugh among themselves, so Saad bin Muadh heard it and he knew their language, so he said to the Jews: May the curse of God be upon you! If I hear one of you say it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, I will strike his neck, so they said: Do you not say it? So the verse was revealed. And they were forbidden from it, so that the Jews would follow its example in wording and intend the corrupt meaning in it.

Second: In this verse there are two proofs: One of them is to avoid words that are likely to imply the opposite or to belittle. From this comes the understanding of slander by insinuation, and this requires the punishment according to us, contrary to Abu Hanifa, Al-Shafi'i and their companions when they said: Insinuation is likely to imply slander and other things, and the punishment is what is dropped by doubt. And an explanation of this will come in An-Noor, God willing.

The second evidence: Adherence to blocking and protecting the means, which is the doctrine of Malik and his companions and Ahmad ibn Hanbal in a narration from him. This principle is indicated by the Qur'an and Sunnah. The means is something that is not forbidden in itself, but one fears that committing it will lead to falling into something forbidden. As for the Book, this verse, and the reason for adhering to it is that the Jews used to say that and it was an insult in their language, so when God knew that from them, He forbade them from using that word, because it is a pretext for insulting, and the Almighty's saying: And do not insult those they invoke other than God, lest they insult God in enmity without knowledge, so He forbade insulting their gods for fear of responding to them with the same, and the Almighty's saying: And ask them about the city that was by the sea, the verse, so the Blessed and Exalted forbade them from hunting on the Sabbath, so the whales would come to them on the Sabbath by law, that is, openly, so they blocked them on the Sabbath and took them on Sunday, and the dam was a pretext for hunting, so God transformed them into monkeys and pigs, and God mentioned that to us in the meaning of warning against that, and the Almighty's saying to Adam and Eve: And do not approach this tree, and it has been mentioned before. As for the women, there are many authentic and correct hadiths, including the hadith of Aisha may God be pleased with her: "Umm Habibah and Umm Salamah may God be pleased with them mentioned a church they saw in Abyssinia with pictures on it, so they mentioned that to the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), and the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: 'When a righteous man dies among them, they build a mosque over his grave and make those pictures in it. They are the worst of creation in the sight of God.'" Narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim. Our scholars said: Their forefathers did that so that they would be comforted by seeing those pictures and remember their righteous deeds, so they would strive as they did and worship God the Almighty at their graves. So they did that for ages, then after them came successors who were ignorant of their purposes, and Satan whispered to them that your fathers and grandfathers used to worship this picture, so they worshipped it. The Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) warned against such a thing, and he strongly denounced and threatened whoever did that, and he blocked the means that lead to that, saying:

God's wrath was intense against a people who took the graves of their prophets and righteous people as places of worship. He said: O God, do not make my grave an idol to be worshipped. Muslim narrated on the authority of Al-Nu'man bin Bashir who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

"What is lawful is clear and what is unlawful is clear, and between the two of them are matters that are ambiguous. So whoever avoids doubtful matters clears himself in regard to his religion and his honor. And whoever falls into doubtful matters falls into what is unlawful, just as a shepherd who pastures his flock around a sanctuary is likely to fall into it." The hadith. So he was prevented from embarking on doubtful matters for fear of falling into what is unlawful, and this is to block the means. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:104

O you who have believed, do not say, "Ra'ina," but say, "Unzurna," and listen. And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment.

A servant will not attain the status of being among the righteous until he abandons that which is permissible out of fear of that which is permissible. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Among the major sins is for a man to insult his parents. They said: O Messenger of God, does a man insult his parents? He said: Yes. He insults a man's father, so he insults his father, and he insults his mother, so he insults his mother." So he made exposing oneself to insulting one's parents to insulting one's fathers. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"If you engage in 'inah transactions, take the tails of cows, are content with agriculture, and abandon jihad, God will send upon you a humiliation that will not be removed from you until you return to your religion." Abu Ubaid al-Harawi said that 'inah is when a man sells a commodity to another man for a known price for a specified period, then buys it back from him for less than the price he sold it for. He said: If he buys a commodity from another man in the presence of the one seeking 'inah for a known price and takes possession of it, then sells it to the one seeking 'inah for a price higher than what he bought it for a specified period, then the buyer sells it to the first seller for cash for less than the price, then this is also 'inah, and it is easier than the first, and it is permissible according to some of them. It is called 'inah because the cash is given to the owner of the 'inah, because the 'inah is the present money, and the buyer only buys it to sell it for a present cash that reaches him immediately. Ibn Wahb narrated on the authority of Malik that the mother of a slave of Zayd ibn al-Arqam mentioned to Aisha may God be pleased with her that she had sold a slave to Zayd for eight hundred dirhams in cash, then he bought him back from him for six hundred in cash. Aisha said: "What a bad purchase, what a bad purchase! Tell Zayd that he has nullified his jihad with the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) if he does not repent." Such a thing cannot be said based on opinion, because the nullification of deeds can only be known through revelation, so it is proven that it was traced back to the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace). Umar ibn al-Khattab may God be pleased with him said: Leave usury and suspicion. Ibn Abbas may God be pleased with him forbade dirhams in their house with a fence between them.

I said: This is the evidence we have for blocking the means, and upon it the Malikis based their book on terms and other issues in sales and other matters. The Shafi'is do not have a book on terms, because for them that is different, independent contracts. They said: The origin of things is based on appearances, not on conjectures. The Malikis made the commodity so that it can be used to obtain dirhams with more than it, and this is usury itself, so be aware of it.

Third: The Almighty's saying, Do not say 'ra'ana' is a prohibition that implies a ban, as mentioned above. Al-Hasan read 'ra'ana' with a tanween. He said: meaning, a desertion of speech, and it is a source and its accusative is 'saw', meaning, do not say rashness. Zur ibn Hubaish and Al-A'mash read 'ra'una'. It is said when we come down from a mountain: 'ra'ana', and the mountain is 'ar'ana'. An army is 'ar'ana', meaning scattered. And so is a man 'ar'ana', meaning scattered in his arguments and not united in his mind, according to An-Nahhas. Ibn Faris said: A man is 'ar'ana', meaning reckless. And a woman is 'ar'ana'. Basra was called 'ra'ana' because it resembles the 'ra'ana' of a mountain. Ibn Duraid said that, and he recited for Al-Farazdaq:

If it weren't for Ibn Utbah Amr and my hope for him, the reckless Basra would not have been my homeland.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: And say, 'Look at us.' They were commanded to address him, may God bless him and grant him peace, with reverence, and the meaning is, Turn to us and look at us. So the transitive letter was omitted, as He said:

The appearance of beauty and goodness is seen as the arak gazelle sees the deer

That is, to the arak tree. Mujahid said: The meaning is that we understood and he explained it to us. It was also said: The meaning is that we waited and he took his time with us. He said:

If you give me an hour, it will benefit me with Umm Jundub.

It appears that it calls for the eye to look at the situation, coupled with contemplation of the situation. This is the meaning of ra'ina, so the word was changed to refer to the believers, and the Jews' attachment was removed. Al-A'mash and others read unzurna with a severing of the alif and a kasra on the dhaal, meaning delay us and give us time until we understand from you and receive from you. The poet said:

Aba Hind, do not rush us and wait for us to tell the truth

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: And listen to what He, the Majestic and Exalted, has forbidden and commanded, He has urged listening, which includes obedience. And know that whoever disobeys His command and disbelieves will face a painful punishment.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Most High forbade His believing servants from imitating the disbelievers in their position and actions, because the Jews used to suffer from speech that contained ambiguity because of what they intended to disparage, may God's curses be upon them. So if they wanted to say, Listen to us, they would say, Ra'ina, and they would show off with recklessness, as God the Most High said: "Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages and say, 'We hear and disobey,' and 'Hear,' but we do not hear, and 'Ra'ina,' a twisting of their tongues and an attack on the religion. Had they said, 'We hear and we obey,' and 'Hear, and unzurna,' it would have been better for them and more upright. But God has cursed them for their disbelief, so they do not believe except a few." Likewise, the hadiths came with reports about them that when they greeted, they would only say, Death be upon you, and death is death. For this reason, we were commanded to respond to them with, And upon you, and our response to them is only answered, but their response to us is not answered. The point is that God the Most High forbade the believers from imitating the disbelievers in word and action, as He said, "O you who have believed, do not imitate the disbelievers." Imam Ahmad said: Abu al-Nadr told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Thabit told us, Hassan ibn Atiyah told us, on the authority of Abu Munib al-Jarshi, on the authority of Ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I was sent before the Hour with the sword so that God alone would be worshipped, with no partner for Him, and my provision was made under the shade of my spear, and humiliation and disgrace were made for whoever disobeys my command, and whoever imitates a people is one of them." Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Uthman ibn Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Abu Shaybah, on the authority of Abu al-Nadhir Hashim, who told us on the authority of Ibn al-Qasim, Whoever imitates a people is one of them. This indicates: a strong prohibition, threat and warning against imitating the disbelievers in their words, actions, clothing, festivals, worship and other matters of theirs that were not prescribed for us and we do not approve of them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Naim bin Hammad told us, Abdullah bin Mubarak told us, Misa'ar told us, on the authority of Ma'n and Awn, or one of them, that a man came to Abdullah bin Mas'ud and said, Give me a testament. He said, When you hear God say, 'O you who believe,' then listen to it, for it is either good that He commands or evil that He forbids. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Khaithamah, he said, What do you read in the Qur'an, 'O you who believe,' for in the Torah it says, 'O you poor people.' Muhammad bin Ishaq said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ra'ana, meaning listen to us. Ad-Dahhak said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, O you who believe, do not say ra'ana, he said, "They used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, 'Listen to us,' for ra'ana is like saying 'ata'ana.'" Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, Abu Malik, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Atiyah Al-Awfi and Qatadah, something similar to that. Mujahid said: Do not say 'ra'ana' do not say something different. In another narration, do not say 'listen to us and we will listen to you'. Ata' said: Do not say 'ra'ana', it was a dialect used by the Ansar, so God forbade it. Al-Hasan said:

Do not say 'ra'ana' he said 'ra'an' is a mocking statement. God forbade them from mocking the words of Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and what he called them to of Islam. It was also narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, that he said something similar. Abu Sakhr said: Do not say 'ra'ana', but say 'unzuma' he said: Whenever the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) turned away, someone from the believers who had a need would call out to him and he would say: 'Listen to us'. God greatly glorified His Messenger (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that that should be said to him. Al-Suddi said: There was a Jewish man from Banu Qaynuqa' called Rifa'ah ibn Zayd who used to come to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and whenever he met him he would speak to him and say: Give me your ear and listen without being submissive. The Muslims used to think that the prophets used to exaggerate in this way, so some of them used to say: Listen without being submissive and without being submissive. It is like the one in Surat An-Nisa'. So God instructed the believers not to say ra'ana. And Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam said something similar to this. Ibn Jarir said: The correct thing to say about this to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is similar to what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, ra'ana. Because it is a word that God Almighty disliked for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to say, similar to what was mentioned about the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Do not say 'karam' to grapes, but say 'habala', and do not say 'abdi' but say 'fatay', and the like. And the Almighty's saying: Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. With this, the Almighty clarifies the intensity of the enmity of the disbelievers among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists, whom God Almighty warned against imitating the believers, in order to sever the affection between them. And the Almighty drew attention to the blessings He bestowed upon the believers of the complete and perfect law that He legislated for their Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as the Almighty says: And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 104- "Ra'ana" means watch over us and preserve us. The form of the verb "mufa'ala indicates the meaning of ra'ana", watch over us and we will watch you, and preserve us and we will preserve you, and watch over us and we will watch over you. It is possible that it is from "ara'ana sama'ak" meaning, free it for our speech. The reason for the prohibition of that is that this word was an insult in the language of the Jews. It was said that in their language it means "listen not you heard", and it was said: something else. So when they heard the Muslims saying to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, "ra'ana" asking him to take care of them, they seized the opportunity. They were saying the same to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, showing that they wanted the Arabic meaning, but implicitly meaning that they intended the insult, which is the meaning of this word in their language. In that is evidence that words that are likely to lead to insult and belittlement should be avoided, even if the speaker does not intend that meaning that is useful for cursing, in order to block the pretext, prevent the means, and cut off the source of corruption and its approach. Then God commanded them to They address the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a way that does not allow for deficiency or insinuation, so he said: And say, 'Look at us,' meaning, come to us and look at us. This is a case of deletion and connection, as the poet said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:104

O you who have believed, do not say, "Ra'ina," but say, "Unzurna," and listen. And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment.

The phenomena of beauty and goodness are seen as the arak gazelles are seen.

That is, to the arak tree. It was said: Its meaning is, Wait for us and be patient with us. From this comes the poet's saying:

If you give me an hour, it will benefit me with Umm Jundub.

Al-A'mash read: Anzurni with the hamza cut off and the dhad broken, meaning give us time and give us respite until we understand from you. From this is the poet's saying:

Abu Hind, do not rush us and wait for us to tell you for sure.

Al-Hasan read: "Ra'ina" with the tanween, and he said: "Ra'in" is a mocking statement. And after this prohibition and command, He ordered them with another command, which is His saying: "And listen", meaning listen to what you have been ordered and forbidden to do, and its meaning is: Obey God in not addressing the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with that wording and address him with what you have been ordered to do, and it is possible that its meaning is: Listen to what the Messenger addresses you with from the Sharia until you obtain what you want without asking for consideration, then He threatened the Jews with His saying: "And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment" and it is possible that it is a comprehensive threat for all types of disbelievers. Ibn Jarir said: The correct statement in our view on that is that God forbade the believers from saying to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Ra'ina" because it is a word that God hates for them to say to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, similar to what was mentioned about the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "Do not say to the grapes the vineyard, but say the rope, and do not say my servant, but say my boy" and the like.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

104. The Almighty said: "O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina' This is because the Muslims used to say, Ra'ina, O Messenger of God, from the word mara'a, meaning, give us your attention, meaning, devote your hearing to our words. It is said, ar'a'a ila al-shay', ra'ahu, and ra'ahu, meaning, listen to it and listen to it. This word shay'an was ugly in the language of the Jews, and it was said that its meaning to them was, listen, not hear."

It was said: It is from rashness, if they wanted to make a person foolish, they would say to him: Ra'ina, meaning, you fool. So when the Jews heard this word from the Muslims, they said among themselves: We used to insult Muhammad secretly, but now we announce it. So they would come to him and say: Ra'ina, O Muhammad, and they would laugh among themselves. Sa'd ibn Mu'adh heard it and understood it, and he knew their language, so he said to the Jews: If I hear one of you say it to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, I will strike off his head. They said: Do you not say it? So God Almighty revealed: Do not say, 'Ra'ina' so that the Jews would not find a way to insult the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. And say, 'Unzurna' meaning, look at us. It was also said: Wait for us and be patient with us. It is said: I looked at so-and-so and I waited for him. From this is the saying of God Almighty: Wait for us so that we may take from your light 13-Al-Hadid. Mujahid said: Its meaning is: We understood it. "And listen" to what you are commanded to do and obey. And for the disbelievers meaning the Jews is a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

104- "O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina' but say, 'Unzurna'." Shepherding is the preservation of others for their own benefit. The Muslims used to say to the Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him, "Ra'ina, meaning, watch over us" and take our time with what he taught us until we understand it. The Jews heard it, so they assumed it and addressed him with it, intending to attribute it to rashness, or to insult him with the Hebrew word they used to curse him with, which is "Ra'ina. The believers were forbidden from it and were ordered to do something that would convey that benefit and would not accept confusion, which is Unzurna meaning look at us. Or Anzarna from Nazar" if he waited for him. "Unzurna was read from Inzaar meaning, Give us time so that we may preserve. Ra'una was read in the plural form for respect, and Ra'ina with the tanween means a word with rashness in relation to Ra'na which is impetuosity, because it resembles their saying Ra'ina" and causes insults. And listen and listen well so that you do not need to seek consideration, or listen with acceptance, not like the Jews, or listen to what you have been commanded to do seriously so that you do not return to what you have been forbidden from.

And for the disbelievers is a painful punishment, meaning those who took the Messenger, peace and blessings be upon him, lightly and insulted him.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:105

Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:105

Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like from the Arabs in apposition to the People of the Scripture, and min is for clarification that any good should be sent down to you redundant revelation (from your Lord) out of envy of you and God chooses for His mercy His prophethood whoever He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: O you who believe, do not say, 'Ra'ina.'

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his statement: Do not say 'Ra'ina'. Some of them said: Its interpretation is: Do not say something contrary to what was said. He mentioned those who said that:

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', regarding his statement: Do not say, 'Ra'ina,' he said: Do not say something contrary.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Do not say 'ra'ina', do not say something contrary.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Others said: Its interpretation is: Give us your ear. That is, listen to us and we will listen to you. Mention of the one who said that: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, he said, Ibn Ishaq told me, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas. His saying: Give us your ear, that is, give us your ear.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' do not say, Listen to us and we will hear from you.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us, who said: I heard Al-Dahhak say regarding His statement: Pamper us, that a man from the polytheists would say: Pamper me with your hearing.

Then the people of interpretation differed about the reason why God forbade the believers from saying: Ra'ina.

Some of them said: It is a word that the Jews used to say in mockery and insult, so God Almighty forbade the believers from saying that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He mentioned those who said that:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' a statement that the Jews used to say in mockery, so God warned the believers not to say as they said.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, on the authority of Fadil bin Marzuq, on the authority of Atiyah: Do not say 'ra'ina', he said: Some of the Jews used to say: 'Ra'ina, listen to us!' until some of the Muslims said it. So God disliked what the Jews said for them, so He said: O you who have believed, do not say 'ra'ina', as the Jews and Christians said.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammal told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Do not say 'Ra'ina' but say 'Unzuma', he said: They used to say: Ra'ina, listen to you! So the Jews would come and say the same thing mockingly, so God said: Do not say 'Ra'ina' but say 'Unzuma'.

Al-Munjab narrated: Bishr bin Ammarah narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Do not say 'ra'ina', he said: They used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: 'ra'ina, listen to me!' But 'ra'ina' is like saying 'aatana'.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' but say, 'Unzuma,' he said: Ra'ina is the statement that the people said, they said: We hear and disobey, and hear but are not heard, and ra'ina is a twisting of their tongues and an attack on the religion (An-Nisa': 46), he said: He said: This is the ra'in and the ra'in means the one who makes a mistake. So he said to the believers: Do not say 'mistake,' as the people said, and say, 'Unzurna,' and listen. He said: They were looking at the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and speaking to him, and he was listening to them, and they were asking him questions and he was answering them.

Others said: Rather, it is a word that the Ansar used to say in the pre-Islamic era, but God forbade them in Islam from saying it to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Those who said that were mentioned: Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, Hisham told me, Abd al-Razzaq told us, on the authority of Ata', regarding his statement: Do not say 'ra'ina', he said: It was a dialect among the Ansar in the pre-Islamic era, so this verse was revealed: Do not say 'ra'ina', but say 'unzurna' to the end of the verse.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Hisham told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Ata', who said: Do not say 'ra'ina', he said: It was a dialect among the Ansar.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik, on the authority of Ata', similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, regarding his statement: Do not say, 'Ra'ina', he said: When the polytheists of the Arabs spoke to each other, one of them would say to his companion, Listen to me, and they were forbidden from doing so.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said: Ra'ina, is the saying of the mocker. So he forbade them from mocking the saying of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Some of them said: Rather, that was the speech of a specific Jew, called Rifa'ah bin Zaid. He was speaking...

The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said it as an insult to him, and the Muslims took it from him, so God forbade the believers from saying it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Mention of those who said that:

Musa told me, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina', but say, 'Unzurna', There was a Jewish man from a tribe of Jews called Banu Qaynuqa' whose name was Rifa'ah ibn Zayd ibn As-Sa'ib. Abu Ja'far said: This is a mistake. Rather, he is Ibn Al-Tabut, not Ibn As-Sa'ib. He used to come to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and whenever he met him and spoke to him, he would say, Give me your ear, and Listen, but do not be deceived. The Muslims used to think that the prophets used to show off with this, so some of them used to say, Listen, but do not be deceived, like you would say, Listen, but do not be deceived. This is what is in Surat An-Nisa': "Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages and say, 'We hear and disobey,' and 'Listen, but do not be deceived,' and they twist their tongues and attack the religion." (An-Nisa': 46). He means by his statement that he meant attacking the religion. Then he went to the believers and said, Do not say, 'Ra'ina'.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement about God Almighty's prohibition of the believers from saying to His Prophet, Ra'ina, is to say that it is a word that God hates for them to say to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, similar to what was reported about the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, saying:

Do not call the grapes the vineyard, but call them the grapevine.

Do not say: My servant, but say: My boy.

And what is similar to that, of the two words that are used with one meaning in the speech of the Arabs, so the dislike or prohibition comes by using one of them, and choosing the other over it in conversations.

If someone were to say to us: We have already learned the meaning of the Prophet's, may God bless him and grant him peace, prohibition of grapes from being called vineyards, and of a slave from being called slaves. So what is the meaning of his saying, Pay attention to us, then, for the sake of which God, may His praise be glorified, prohibited the believers from saying it, until He commanded them to prefer His saying, Observe us?

It was said: What is in this is similar to what is in the saying of the speaker: The generosity is for the grapes, and the slave is for the slave. That is because the saying of the speaker: My slave is for all the servants of God, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, disliked that some of the servants of God be attributed with the meaning of servitude to other than God, and he ordered that this be attributed to other than Him, in a meaning other than that attributed to God the Almighty, so it is said: My boy. And likewise the reason for his prohibition of saying in the grapes: generosity, for fear of imagining that it is described as generosity, even if it is quiescent, because the Arabs may quiescent some vowels if they follow one type. So he disliked that grapes be described with this. So likewise God the Almighty forbade the believers from saying: Ra'ina, because the saying of the speaker: Ra'ina could possibly mean protect us and we will protect you, and watch us and we will watch you. From what the Arabs say to one another: May God protect you, meaning may God preserve and protect you. It is also possible that it means: Give us your attention, from their saying: I gave my attention to my hearing, or I gave him attention to my hearing, meaning: I freed it up to listen to his speech, as Al-A'sha Maymun ibn Qays said:

He takes heed of the words of the leaders of men if they show him firmness, or whatever he wishes he innovates.

He means by his saying: He is watching over it, listening to it with his ears, devoting himself to it.

God, the Most High, had commanded the believers to revere and magnify His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to the point that He, the Most

Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

High, forbade them, among other things, from raising their voices above his voice, and from speaking to him loudly as they speak to one another, fearing that their deeds would be in vain. So He warned them against saying to him anything that was rude, and He commanded them to choose the best words and the most delicate meanings to address him. This included their saying, Ra'ana, because it could possibly mean: Ra'ana, we will ra'aka, since the reciprocal verb can only be formed by two people, as one says, 'Ata'ana, "Hadithana," and Jalasana, meaning: Do to us, and we will do to you, and the meaning is: Ra'ana, your ear, so that we understand you and you understand us. God Almighty forbade the companions of Muhammad to say that in this way, and to single out his question by waiting for them and giving them time, so that they would understand from him, with reverence and respect from them, and not to ask him what they asked him of that in a manner of rudeness and sternness from them towards him, nor with rudeness and harshness, imitating the Jews in their address to the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, by saying to him: Listen, but do not listen, and take care of us.

What we have said about this is proven by his statement, Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. Thus, he indicated that what he rebuked them for was something that pleased the Jews and polytheists.

As for the interpretation that was reported from Mujahid regarding his saying: ra'ana that it means: contrary, which is not understood in the speech of the Arabs. Because ra'ayt in the speech of the Arabs is only in one of two ways: One of them means fa'ilat, from ra'iya which means neck and protection. And the other means emptying the hearing, meaning: I gave him my hearing. As for ra'ayt in the meaning of khalfat, there is no clear meaning for it in the speech of the Arabs. Unless he read that with the tanween, then directed it to the meaning of rashness, ignorance and error, in the manner that Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd led in that, so that even if it was contrary to the reading of the reciters, it would have a clear meaning at that time.

As for the other statement that was narrated from Atiyyah and from those who narrated it: that his saying: Ra'ina was a word of the Jews meaning cursing and mocking, and the believers used it, taking it from them, then that is not permissible in the description of the believers: that they take from the speech of the polytheists a word whose meaning they do not know, then use it among themselves and in addressing their Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. But it is permissible for that to be from what was narrated from Qatada, that it was a correct word understood from the speech of the Arabs, and it matched a word from the speech of the Jews in a language other than Arabic, which is cursing for the Jews, and it is for the Arabs: Ra'ini your hearing and empty it so that you understand from me. So God, the Most High, knew the meaning of the Jews in what they said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that its meaning from them was different from its meaning in the speech of the Arabs, so God, the Most High, forbade the believers from saying it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, lest someone whose meaning in that was different from the meaning of the believers would dare to address the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with it. This is an interpretation that has not been reported to be like that, from the aspect that establishes the proof. Since this is the case, what is more appropriate for the interpretation of the verse is what we have described, since that is the apparent meaning understood by the verse and nothing else.

It was narrated that Al-Hasan Al-Basri used to recite it: Do not say something that alarms us, with the tanween, meaning: Do not say something that alarms us, from rashness, which is foolishness and ignorance.

This is a reading that contradicts the reading of the Muslims. It is not permissible for anyone to read it because it is anomalous and deviates from the reading of the predecessors and the later ones, and it contradicts what the proof of the Muslims has brought.

And whoever adds the nun to ra'ana, adds the nun to it by saying: Do not say, because then it is an agent in it. And whoever does not add the nun to it, then he has left out its nun because it is a reported command. Because the people are as if they are saying to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Ra'ana, meaning asking him: Either he listens to them, or he watches over them and monitors them - as I have explained previously. So it was said to them: Do not say in your question to him Ra'ana. So the indication of the meaning of the command in ra'ana then is the dropping of the ya' that was in yara'aihi and the indication of it, I mean the dropped ya', is the kasra of the 'ayn in ra'ana.

It has been mentioned that Ibn Masoud's reading: Do not say 'Pay attention to us' means narrating a matter that is appropriate for a group to pay attention to. If this reading is correct, then it is possible that the people were forbidden from using this among themselves when addressing one another, whether they were addressing the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, or someone else. We do not know that to be correct from the perspective from which reports are authentic.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And say, 'Respite us.'

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: And say, 'Look at us,' is that you, O believers, say to your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Look at us and observe us, so that we may understand and discern what you say to us and teach us, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And say, 'Look at us,' we understood, explain to us, O Muhammad.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And say, 'Look at us,' we understood, explain to us, O Muhammad.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

It is said that he looked at the man and looked at him, meaning he waited for him and watched him. From this comes the saying of Al-Hutay'ah:

I saw you at the dinner of the five, and my possessions were prolonged and I forgot about them.

And from this is the saying of God Almighty: On the Day when the hypocrites, men and women, will say to those who believe, 'Wait for us that we may borrow some of your light' (al-Hadid 57:13), meaning: Wait for us.

It has been read: Anzurna and Anzuruna with the alif cut off in both places. So whoever reads it like that means: Delay us, as God the Most High said: He said, 'My Lord, then respite me until the Day they are resurrected' (Sad: 79), meaning, Delay me. There is no reason to read it like that in this place. Because the companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) were only commanded to draw near to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), to listen to him, to address him gently, and to lower their wing, not to delay him, nor to ask him to delay them. So, if that is the case in the reading, then the correct reading is the one who connected the alif in his saying: Anzurna and did not cut it off, meaning: we waited.

It has been said that the meaning of Anzarna with the alif cut off is: Give us time. It was narrated that some Arabs heard it saying: Give me time to talk to you. The one who heard that from one of them mentioned that he checked its meaning, so he told him that he meant: Give me time. If that is correct from them, then Anzarna and Anzarna with the alif cut off and connected are close in meaning. However, even if that is the case, the reading that I do not approve of other than it is the reading of those who read Wait for us, with the alif connected, meaning: Wait for us, because the evidence unanimously approves of it, and they reject other readings.

The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: And listen, and for the disbelievers is a painful punishment.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And listen, is that you listen to what is said to you and recited to you from the Book of your Lord, and understand it and comprehend it, as:

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And listen, listen to what is said to you.

So the meaning of the verse is: O you who believe! Do not say to your Prophet: Pay attention to us and listen to us, so that we may understand you and you may understand from us what we say. Rather, say: Wait for us and watch until we understand from you what we have learned and you make it clear to us. And listen to what he says to you, then understand it, memorize it, and understand it. Then He, the Most High, informed them of the painful punishment in the Hereafter for those who denied His signs from them and others, disobeyed His commands and prohibitions, and denied His Messenger, saying: And for those who disbelieve in Me and in My Messenger is a painful punishment. He means by His saying: painful, "painful." We have already mentioned the evidence for that previously, and the effects thereof.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty."

God the Almighty said: He does not desire meaning he does not wish, and it has been mentioned before. Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture, nor the polytheists is in apposition to People. It is permissible to say: nor the polytheists, in apposition to those, as An-Nahhas said. That He should send down upon you any good is redundant, good is the name of what its agent is not named. And that is in the accusative case, meaning that He should send down. And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, said: He chooses for His mercy meaning with His prophethood, He chose for it Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Some people said: Mercy is the Qur'an. It was said: Mercy in this verse is general for all its types that God has bestowed upon His servants in the past and present. It is said: He has mercy, has compassion, if he is tender. Womb, mercy, and mercy are one and the same, as Ibn Faris said. And God's mercy to His servants is His favor upon them and His forgiveness for them. And God is the possessor of great bounty means possessor.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Most High forbade His believing servants from imitating the disbelievers in their position and actions, because the Jews used to suffer from speech that contained ambiguity because of what they intended to disparage, may God's curses be upon them. So if they wanted to say, Listen to us, they would say, Ra'ina, and they would show off with recklessness, as God the Most High said: "Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages and say, 'We hear and disobey,' and 'Hear,' but we do not hear, and 'Ra'ina,' a twisting of their tongues and an attack on the religion. Had they said, 'We hear and we obey,' and 'Hear, and unzurna,' it would have been better for them and more upright. But God has cursed them for their disbelief, so they do not believe except a few." Likewise, the hadiths came with reports about them that when they greeted, they would only say, Death be upon you, and death is death. For this reason, we were commanded to respond to them with, And upon you, and our response to them is only answered, but their response to us is not answered. The point is that God the Most High forbade the believers from imitating the disbelievers in word and action, as He said, "O you who have believed, do not imitate Ahmad said: Abu al-Nadr told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Thabit told us, Hassan ibn Atiyah told us, on the authority of Abu Munib al-Jarshi, on the authority of Ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I was sent before the Hour with the sword so that God alone would be worshipped, with no partner for Him, and my provision was made under the shade of my spear, and humiliation and disgrace were made for whoever disobeys my command, and whoever imitates a people is one of them." Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Uthman ibn Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Abu Shaybah, on the authority of Abu al-Nadhir Hashim, who told us on the authority of Ibn al-Qasim, Whoever imitates a people is one of them. This indicates: a strong prohibition, threat and warning against imitating the disbelievers in their words, actions, clothing, festivals, worship and other matters of theirs that were not prescribed for us and we do not approve of them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Naim bin Hammad told us, Abdullah bin Mubarak told us, Misa'ar told us, on the authority of Ma'n and Awn, or one of them, that a man came to Abdullah bin Mas'ud and said, Give me a testament. He said, When you hear God say, 'O you who believe,' then listen to it, for it is either good that He commands or evil that He forbids. Al-A'mash said, on the authority of Khaithamah, he said, What do you read in the Qur'an, 'O you who believe,' for in the Torah it says, 'O you poor people.' Muhammad bin Ishaq said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ra'ana, meaning listen to us. Ad-Dahhak said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, O you who believe, do not say ra'ana, he said, "They used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, 'Listen to us,' for ra'ana is like saying 'ata'ana.'" Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, Abu Malik, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Atiyah Al-Awfi and Qatadah, something similar to that. Mujahid said: Do not say 'ra'ana' do not say something different. In another narration, do not say 'listen to us and we will listen to you'. Ata' said: Do not say 'ra'ana', it was a dialect used by the Ansar, so God forbade it. Al-Hasan said: Do not say 'ra'ana' he said 'ra'an' is a mocking statement. God forbade them from mocking the words of Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and what he called them to of Islam. It was also narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, that he said something similar. Abu Sakhr said: Do not say 'ra'ana', but say 'unzuma' he said: Whenever the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) turned away, someone from the believers who had a need would call out to him and he would say: 'Listen to us'. God greatly glorified His Messenger (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that that should be said to him. Al-Suddi said: There was a Jewish man from Banu Qaynuqa' called Rifa'ah ibn Zayd who used to come to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and whenever he met him he would speak to him and say: Give me your ear and listen without being submissive. The Muslims used to think that the prophets used to exaggerate in this way, so some of them used to say: Listen without being submissive and without being submissive. It is like the one in Surat An-Nisa'. So God instructed the believers not to say ra'ana. And Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam said something similar to this. Ibn Jarir said: The correct thing to say about this to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is similar to what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, ra'ana. Because it is a word that God Almighty disliked for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to say, similar to what was mentioned about the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Do not say 'karam' to grapes, but say 'habala', and do not say 'abdi' but say 'fatay', and the like. And the Almighty's saying: Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. With this, the Almighty clarifies the intensity of the enmity of the disbelievers among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists, whom God Almighty warned against imitating the believers, in order to sever the affection between them. And the Almighty drew attention to the blessings He bestowed upon the believers of the complete and perfect law that He legislated for their Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as the Almighty says: And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

Those who disbelieve among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord. And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 105- "The disbelievers among the People of the Scripture do not wish" the verse, in it is a statement of the intensity of the disbelievers' enmity towards the Muslims, as they do not wish for good to be sent down upon them from God, the Most High, then God, the Most High, responded to that by saying: "And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills" the verse. And His saying: "To send down is in the accusative case as a direct object, and min" in His saying: "of good is redundant, as stated by An-Nahhas, and in Al-Kashshaf it is stated that min" in His saying: "of the People of the Scripture" is explanatory, and in His saying: "of good" is redundant to include good, and in His saying: "from your Lord" is to begin the goal, and it has been said that good is revelation, and other things have been said, and it appears that they do not wish for any good to be sent down upon the Muslims, as it is not specific to a specific type, as is indicated by the occurrence of this idea in the context of negation and the confirmation of generality by the addition of "min" to it, even if some types of good are greater than others, this does not necessitate specialization. Mercy, it was said, is the Qur'an, and it was said: prophecy, and it was said: the type of mercy without specifying it, as is indicated by the addition to His Almighty pronoun: And God is the possessor of great bounty, meaning the possessor of great bounty, so how can you not wish that He would single out for His mercy whomever He wills of His servants?

Saeed bin Mansour narrated in his Sunan, Ahmad in Az-Zuhd, Ibn Abi Hatim, Abu Nu'aym in Al-Hilya, and Al-Bayhaqi in Ash-Shu'ab on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud that a man came to him and said: Give me a testament. He said: When you hear God say: O you who believe, then listen to it, for it is either good that He commands or evil that He forbids. Abu Nu'aym narrated in Ad-Dala'il on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Ra'ina in the language of the Jews means ugly cursing. The Jews used to say that to the Messenger of God in secret, but when they heard his companions saying that, they made it public. They used to say that and laugh among themselves, so God revealed the verse. Abu Nu'aym narrated in Ad-Dala'il on his authority that the believers said after this verse: Whoever you hear saying it, strike his neck. So the Jews stopped after that. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi who said: There were two Jewish men, Malik bin Al-Saif and Rifa'ah bin Zaid, whenever they met the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, they would say to him while they were speaking to him: Listen to us and listen to someone who is not being listened to. The Muslims thought that this was something that the People of the Book used to do to glorify their prophets, so they said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Then God revealed the verse. Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Sakhr who said: Whenever the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned away, whoever among the believers had an argument would call out to him and say: Listen to us. God glorified His Messenger so much that this should be said to him, and He commanded them to say: Give us time, so that they would honor and respect the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Abu Nu'aym narrated on the authority of Qatadah that the Jews used to say this in mockery, so God disliked for the believers to say as they said. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: Mercy is the Qur'an and Islam.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

105. The Almighty said: The disbelievers among the People of the Scripture do not wish This is because when the Muslims said to their Jewish allies: Believe in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, they said: What you are calling us to is not better than what we are in, and we would have liked it if it were better. So God revealed, as a refutation of them, The disbelievers among the People of the Scripture do not wish meaning what the disbelievers among the People of the Scripture, meaning the Jews, nor the polytheists love and wish, that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord meaning good and prophethood, and from is a connection between and God chooses for His mercy with His prophethood whoever He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty and bounty is initially kindness without a cause.

It was said: What is meant by mercy is Islam and guidance. It was also said: The meaning of the verse is that God Almighty sent the prophets from the descendants of Isaac, but when He sent the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the descendants of Ishmael, this did not bring about the love and affection of the Jews, so the verse was revealed. As for the polytheists, their affection was not brought about because he came to mislead them and criticize their gods.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

105- "The disbelievers among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists do not wish" was revealed to refute a group of Jews who showed affection for the believers, and claimed that they wished them well. Affection is the love of something while wishing for it, and therefore it is used in both cases. "Min" is for clarification, as in the Almighty's saying: "It was not for those who disbelieved among the People of the Scripture and the polytheists that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord is the object of yud, and the first min" is added for comprehensiveness, and the second is for the beginning, and good was explained as revelation. The meaning is that they envy you for it and do not wish for any of it to be sent down to you, and as for knowledge and harm, and perhaps what is meant by it is what is general in that. "And God singles out for His mercy whom He wills" He invites him to inform him and teaches him wisdom and supports him, nothing is required of Him, and no one has a right over Him. "And God is the possessor of great bounty" indicating that prophethood is from bounty, and that the deprivation of some of His servants is not His bounty, but rather due to His will and what is known in them of His wisdom.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:106

We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten except that We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Do you not know that Allah has power over all things?

Surat al-Baqarah 2:106

We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten except that We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Do you not know that God has power over all things?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when the infidels desired abrogation and said that Muhammad commands his companions today to do something and forbids them tomorrow, it was revealed: What conditional We abrogate of a verse its ruling was revealed: either with its wording or not. And in a reading with a damma on the nun from ansakh: meaning We command you or Gabriel to abrogate it or We forget it We delay it and do not reveal its ruling and remove its recitation or delay it in the Preserved Tablet. And in a reading without a hamza in forgetfulness {We forget it}: meaning We abrogate it, meaning We erase it from your heart. And the answer to the condition We bring something better than it more beneficial for the servants in ease or abundance of reward or like it in assignment and recompense Did you not know that God is over all things competent and from this comes abrogation and substitution, and the question is for confirmation

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: We do not abrogate the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Sometimes revelation would come down to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, at night and he would forget it.

During the day, God revealed what we abrogate.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: What he means by his saying he does not like is what he likes, meaning: many of the People of the Book do not like. It is said: So-and-so likes so-and-so, he likes him with love, affection, and affection.

As for the polytheists, they are in the accusative case in apposition to the People of the Book.

The meaning of the words: Those who disbelieve among the People of the Book and the polytheists do not like that any good should be sent down to you from your Lord.

As for that in his statement: that he descends, it is in the accusative case because of his statement: would like. We have already demonstrated the way in which from enters into his statement: from good and similar statements that begin with denial, in what has passed, so that makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this place.

The interpretation of the statement is: The disbelievers among the People of the Book and the polytheists among the idol worshippers do not like that any of the good that was with God should be sent down to you. So the polytheists and disbelievers among the People of the Book wish that God would not send down to you the Criterion and what He revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, of His wisdom and verses. Rather, the Jews and their followers among the polytheists liked that out of envy and malice towards the believers.

This verse clearly indicates that God Almighty forbade the believers from relying on their enemies from the People of the Book and the polytheists, listening to what they say, or accepting anything they bring to them as advice from them, by informing them, may He be glorified, of what the People of the Book and the polytheists harbor towards them of resentment and envy, even if they express with their tongues the opposite of what they harbor.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And God chooses for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty.

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by His statement, may He be glorified: And God singles out for His mercy whom He wills is: God singles out whom He wills for His prophethood and message, so He sends him to whomever He wills of His creation, and bestows faith upon whomever He loves and guides him to it. And His singling them out for it is His singling them out for it, without any of His creation. And God made His message to whomever He sent to of His creation, and His guidance of whomever He guided of His servants, a mercy from Him to him, so that He may lead him to His pleasure and love and win him Paradise through it, and deserving His praise through it. And all of that is a mercy from God to him.

As for his saying: And God is the possessor of great bounty, it is report from God, may He be glorified, that every good that His servants attain in their religion and their worldly life is from Him, from His beginning and as a favor from Him to them, without them deserving it of Him.

In His statement: And God singles out for His mercy whom He wills, and God is the possessor of great bounty, God Almighty is referring to the People of the Book: that what He gave to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the believers in him of guidance is a favor from Him, and that His blessings cannot be attained by wishful thinking, but rather they are gifts from Him that He singles out for whomever He wills of His creation.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are five issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten. "Nusooḥa" is in apposition to Naskh, and the ya was deleted for the sake of jussive. Whoever reads Nansaaha deleted the damma from the hamza for the sake of jussive, and its meaning will come. Na'at is the answer to the condition, and this is a great verse in rulings. The reason for it is that when the Jews envied the Muslims for facing the Kaaba and attacked Islam for that, and said: Muhammad commands his companions to do something and then forbids them from it, this Qur'an was only from his side, and for this reason some of it contradicts itself, so God revealed: And when We substitute a verse in place of another verse. And He revealed: Whatever verse We abrogate.

Second: Knowing this chapter is certain and its benefit is great. Scholars cannot do without knowing it, and only the ignorant and the rich deny it, because of the new rulings that result from it, and knowing what is permissible from what is forbidden. Abu Al-Bukhari narrated that Ali, may God be pleased with him, entered the mosque and saw a man frightening the people, so he said: What is this? They said: A man who reminds people. He said: He is not a man who reminds people! Rather, he says: I am so-and-so, son of so-and-so, so recognize me. So he sent for him and said: Do you know the abrogating and the abrogated?! He said: No. He said: Then leave our mosque and do not mention it in it. In another narration: Do you know the abrogating and the abrogated? He said: No. He said: You are ruined and you cause others to be ruined! And the same was narrated from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both.

Third: Abrogation in the speech of the Arabs has two aspects:

One of them: Transfer, such as transferring one book from another. Based on this, the entire Qur'an is abrogated, I mean from the Preserved Tablet and its revelation to the House of Honor in the lowest heaven. This has nothing to do with this verse, and from it is the saying of God Almighty: Indeed, We were transcribing what you used to do, meaning We commanded its abrogation and confirmation.

Second: Nullification and removal, which is what is meant here, and it is divided in the language into two types:

One of them: invalidating something, removing it, and establishing another in its place. From this, the sun abrogates the shadow if it removes it and replaces it. This is the meaning of the Almighty's saying: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth one better than it. And in Sahih Muslim.

There was never a prophecy that did not transmute, that is, change from one state to another, meaning the matter of the nation. Ibn Faris said: Abrogation is the abrogation of the Book, and abrogation is when you remove a matter that was previously acted upon and then abrogate it with other hadiths, like a verse that is revealed with a matter then is replaced by another. And everything that succeeds something has abrogated it. It is said: the sun abrogated the shadow, and gray hair abrogated the youth. And the transmigration of heirs: when heirs die after heirs and the original inheritance remains and has not been divided, and likewise the transmigration of times and centuries.

The second: removing something without another taking its place, like their saying the wind abrogated the trace. From this meaning is the saying of God Almighty: Then God abrogates what Satan casts, meaning He removes it so that it is not recited nor is it recorded in the Qur'an in its place. Abu Ubaid claimed that this second abrogation was when a surah was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it was removed so that it was not recited or written.

I said: And from it is what was narrated on the authority of Abi bin Kaab and Aisha, may God be pleased with them, that Surat Al-Ahzab was equal to Surat Al-Baqarah in length, as will be explained there, God willing. And what indicates this is what Abu Bakr Al-Anbari mentioned: My father told us, Nasr bin Dawud told us, Abu Ubaid told us, Abdullah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Al-Layth, on the authority of Yunus and Uqayl, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, who said: Abu Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif told me in the assembly of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab:

"A man got up at night to recite a surah from the Qur'an, but he was not able to do anything of it. Another got up but he was not able to do anything of it. Another got up but he was not able to do anything of it. So they went to the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace). One of them said: 'I got up last night, O Messenger of God, to recite a surah from the Qur'an, but I was not able to do anything of it.' So the other got up and said: 'And by God, I am the same, O Messenger of God.' So the other got up and said: 'And by God, I am the same, O Messenger of God.' So the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) said: 'It is one of the things that God abrogated last night.'" In one of the narrations: Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab heard what Abu Umamah was saying and did not deny it.

Fourth: Groups of later converts to Islam denied its permissibility, and they are proven by the consensus of the previous predecessors that it is included in the Sharia. Groups of Jews also denied it, and they are proven by what is stated in their Torah, claiming that God Almighty said to Noah, peace be upon him, when he left the ship: I have made every animal food for you and your descendants, and I have released it to you like the plants of grass, except for blood, do not eat it. Then He forbade Moses and the Children of Israel many animals, and because Adam, peace be upon him, married his brother to his sister, and God forbade that to Moses, peace be upon him, and others, and because Abraham, the friend of God, was ordered to slaughter his son and then said to him: Do not slaughter him, and because Moses ordered the Children of Israel to kill those among them who worshipped the calf, then he ordered them to lift the sword from them, and because his prophethood was not worshipped before his mission, then it was worshipped after that, and so on. This is not a matter of beginning, but rather it is transferring the servants from one form of worship to another, and from one rule to another, for a kind of interest, to demonstrate His wisdom and the perfection of His kingdom. There is no disagreement among rational people that the laws of the prophets were intended for the religious and worldly interests of creation, but beginning would have been necessary if He did not know the nature of things. As for the one who knows that, his speech changes according to the changing interests, like the doctor who takes into account the conditions of the sick, so he takes that into account in his successor by His will and desire. There is no god but Him, so His speech changes, but His knowledge and will do not change, for that is impossible with regard to God Almighty.

We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten except that We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Do you not know that Allah has power over all things?

The Jews considered abrogation and badā' to be one and the same thing, and therefore they did not permit it and went astray. An-Nahhas said: The difference between abrogation and badā' is that abrogation is the conversion of worship from one thing to another that was permissible and then becomes forbidden, or was forbidden and then becomes permissible. As for badā', it is abandoning what you intended, like saying: Go to so-and-so today, then you say: Do not go to him, and it appears to you that you have changed your mind about the first statement. This is something that applies to humans due to their shortcomings. Similarly, if you said: Plant such-and-such this year, then you said: Do not do it, then that is badā'.

Fifth: Know that the abrogator in reality is God Almighty. The legal discourse is called the abrogator metaphorically, since abrogation occurs through it, just as it may be called metaphorically, and the thing in which it is abrogated, so it is said: The fast of Ramadan abrogates the fast of Ashura. So the abrogated is the removed, and the thing from which it is abrogated is the one who performs the removed worship, and he is the one who is charged.

Sixth: The expressions of our Imams differed regarding the definition of abrogation. What the experts among the people of Sunnah agree upon is that it is the removal of what has been established of the Shari'ah ruling by a delayed speech. This is how Judge Abdul Wahhab and Judge Abu Bakr defined it. They added: If it were not for that, the previous one would have been established. They preserved the linguistic meaning of abrogation, as it means lifting and removing, and to guard against the rational ruling. They mentioned the speech to include all aspects of evidence from the text, the apparent meaning, the implied meaning, and other things, and to exclude analogy and consensus, as abrogation cannot be imagined in them or by them. They restricted it to delayed speech, because if it were connected to it, it would be a clarification of the purpose of the ruling, not abrogating, or the end of the speech would lift its beginning, like your saying, Stand up, do not stand up.

Seventh: The abrogated, according to our Sunni scholars, is the established ruling itself, not its like, as the Mu'tazila say, which is the discourse indicating that the like of the established ruling in the future based on the previous text will be removed. What led them to this is their doctrine that commands are intended, and that good is a psychological attribute of good, and that God's will is good, and our scholars have nullified this in their books.

Eighth: Our scholars differed on whether abrogation is included in the report. The majority are of the opinion that abrogation is only limited to commands and prohibitions, and abrogation is not included in the report because it is impossible to lie about God Almighty. It was said: If the report occludes a legal ruling, it is permissible to abrogate it, like the Almighty's statement: And from the fruits of the palm trees and grapevines you take intoxicant. And there will come the statement about it, God Almighty willing.

Ninth: Specialization from generality gives the impression that it is abrogation, but it is not, because the specialization was never included in the generality. If it were proven that the generality included something - something - and then that thing was excluded from the generality, then it would be abrogation, not specialization. The predecessors called specialization abrogation by extension and metaphor.

Tenth: Know that there may be reports in the Shariah that appear to be general and comprehensive, but are restricted in another place, and that generality is removed, such as the statement of God the Almighty: "And when My servants ask you concerning Me - indeed I am near. I respond to the invocation of the supplicant when he calls upon Me." This ruling appears to be a report about answering every supplicant in every situation, but what restricts it has been mentioned in another place, such as His statement: He removes that to which you call, if He wills. One who does not have insight may think that this is a case of abrogation in reports, but it is not so. Rather, it is a case of generality and restriction. This issue will be further explained in its proper place, God willing.

Eleventh: Our scholars, may God have mercy on them, said: It is permissible to abrogate the heavier to the lighter, such as abrogate the proof of ten by the proof of two. And it is permissible to abrogate the lighter to the heavier, such as abrogate the Day of Ashura and the days counted in Ramadan, as will be explained in the verse on fasting. And the like is abrogates with its like in heaviness and lightness, such as the Qiblah. And the thing is abrogates without a substitute, such as the secret charity. And the Qur'an is abrogates with the Qur'an, and the Sunnah with the expression, and this expression means the definitive, continuous report. And the report of one person is abrogates with the report of one person.

The most skilled imams are of the opinion that the Qur'an is abrogated by the Sunnah, and this is found in his, peace be upon him, saying:

There is no will for an heir. This is the apparent meaning of Malik's issues. Al-Shafi'i and Abu al-Faraj al-Maliki rejected this, but the first is more correct, based on the evidence that all of them are the rulings of God Almighty and from Him, even if the names differ. Also, flogging is not prescribed for the punishment of adultery for a married woman who is stoned, and there is no excuse for this except the Sunnah and the actions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this is clear.

The experts also agree that the Sunnah is abrogated by the Qur'an, and this is found in the case of the Qiblah, as praying towards the Levant was not in the Book of God Almighty. And in His Almighty's saying: So do not return them to the disbelievers, their return was only due to the peace treaty between the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Quraysh.

The experts allow the abrogation of the Qur'an by a single report rationally, but they differed as to whether it occurred legally. Abu al-Ma'ali and others held that it occurred in the incident of the Quba Mosque, as will be explained, but some people rejected that. It is not valid to abrogate a text by analogy, since one of the conditions of analogy is that it does not contradict a text.

All of this was during the time of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him). However, after his death and the establishment of the Shariah, the Ummah agreed that there is no abrogation. This is why consensus does not abrogate nor is it abrogated by it, since it was established after the cessation of revelation. So if we find consensus that contradicts a text, we know that the consensus was based on an abrogating text that we do not know of, and that that contradictory text should not be acted upon, and that its implication was abrogated and remained a Sunnah that is read and narrated, like the verse of the number of Sunnahs in the Qur'an that is recited. So ponder this, for it is valuable, and it is from the category of abrogating the ruling without the recitation, and the same applies to the secret charity. Recitation may be abrogated without the ruling, such as the verse of stoning. Recitation and ruling may be abrogated together, and from this is the saying of As-Siddiq may God be pleased with him: We used to recite: Do not turn away from your fathers, for it is disbelief, and there are many like it.

The expert opinion is that whoever is not informed of the abrogating verse must abide by the first ruling, as will be explained in changing the direction of prayer.

The experts are of the opinion that it is permissible to abrogate the ruling before it is done, and this is found in the story of the slaughtered animal, and in the imposition of fifty before it is done by five, as will be explained in Al-Isra and As-Saffat, God willing.

Twelfth: There are ways to know the abrogator, including: that there is something in the wording that indicates it, such as his saying, peace be upon him:

"I forbade you from visiting graves, so visit them. I forbade you from drinking except in leather containers, so drink from any vessel, but do not drink intoxicants." And the like. Among them is that the narrator mentions the date, such as saying: I heard in the year of the Trench, and the abrogated had been known before that. Or he says: The ruling of such-and-such was abrogated by such-and-such. Among them is that the nation agrees on the ruling that it was abrogated and that its abrogator came before. This topic is explained in detail in the principles of jurisprudence. We have pointed out what is in it for those who limit themselves to it, and God is the Grantor of success in guidance.

Thirteenth: The majority of scholars read ma naksah with a fatha on the nun from nasakh, which is the apparent word used to mean: We do not remove the ruling of a verse and keep its recitation, as mentioned above. It is possible that the meaning is: We do not remove the ruling of a verse and its recitation, as we mentioned. Ibn Amir read naksah with a damma on the nun, from ankhat al-kitab, meaning I found it abrogated. Abu Hatim said: This is a mistake. Al-Farisi Abu Ali said: It is not a language, because it is not said nasha and ankha in one meaning, unless the meaning is what we find abrogated, as you say: Ahmadtu al-rajul wa abkhaluhu, meaning you found him praiseworthy and stingy. Abu Ali said: And we do not find it abrogated except by "naksah", so the two readings agree in meaning even if they differ in wording. It was said: We do not abrogate what we make a copy for you, it is said: I copied the book if you wrote it, and Antaskhatu ghayri if you made a copy for him. Al-Makki said: It is not permissible for the hamza to be transitive, because the meaning changes, and the meaning becomes: We do not abrogate you of a verse, O Muhammad, and His abrogate it is His sending it down to him, so the meaning becomes: We do not send down to you of a verse or cause you to forget it, We bring one better than it or similar to it, so the meaning is that for every verse that was sent down, He brought one better than it, so the entire Qur'an becomes abrogated, and this is not possible, because only a small part of the Qur'an was abrogated. So since it is impossible for af'al and fa'ala to have the meaning of 'did not hear', and it is impossible for the hamza to be transitive because the meaning is corrupted, nothing remains possible except for it to be from the category of ahmadtuhu and abkhaluhu if you find him praiseworthy or stingy.

Fourteenth: The Almighty's saying: Or We cause it to be forgotten. Abu Amr and Ibn Kathir read it with the opening of the noon, the seen, and the hamza. This is how Umar, Ibn Abbas, Ata', Mujahid, Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Ubayd ibn Umair, Al-Nakha'i, and Ibn Muhaisin read it, from the word delay, meaning that We delay the abrogation of its wording, meaning that We leave it at the end of the Mother of the Book so that it does not happen. This is the saying of Ata'. Others than Ata' said: The meaning of or We cause it to be forgotten is that We delay its abrogation to a known time, from their saying: I delayed this matter, meaning that I postponed it. This is similar to their saying: I sold it for a while, meaning that I delayed it. Ibn Faris said: They say: May God delay your lifespan, and May God delay your lifespan. People have also been delayed and distanced, and I caused them to be delayed, meaning that I delayed them. So the meaning is that We delay its revelation or its abrogation, as we mentioned. It was also said: We remove it from them so that it is not read or remembered. The rest read it with a damma on the noon, from the word nansiyān which means to leave, meaning we leave it and do not change it or abrogate it. This was said by Ibn Abbas and al-Suddi. From this is the saying of God Almighty: They forgot God, so He forgot them, meaning they abandoned His worship, so He left them in torment. Abu Ubaid and Abu Hatim chose this reading. Abu Ubaid said: I heard Abu Nu'aym al-Qari' say: I read to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a dream according to the reading of Abu Amr, and he did not criticize me except for two letters. He said: I read to him arna, so he said: arna, so Abu Ubaid said: And do you think the other letter is or we forget it, so he said: or we forget it. Al-Azhari narrated nansiyā, "we order to leave it." It is said: I forgot the thing, meaning I ordered it to be left, and nasituhu means I left it. The poet said:

We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten except that We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Do you not know that Allah has power over all things?

I have an obstacle to overcome, I will not forget it nor will it be forgotten

Nor do I command you to abandon it. Al-Zajaj said: The reading with the damma on the noon does not carry the meaning of abandonment. It is not said: Ansi meaning left. What Ali bin Abi Talha narrated from Ibn Abbas, Or we forget it, he said: We leave it, we do not change it, is not correct. Perhaps Ibn Abbas said: We leave it, but he did not make it precise. What most linguists and scholars agree on is that the meaning of Or we forget it is We barked at you for abandoning it, from Nasa if you leave it, then you punish him. Abu Ali and others said: This is correct, because it means We make you abandon it. It was said: From al-Nisyan in its original form, which is the absence of remembrance, meaning Or we forget it, O Muhammad, so do not remember it. It was transmitted with the hamza, so the verb takes two objects, which are the Prophet and the ha', but the name of the Prophet is deleted.

Fifteenth: The Almighty's statement: And brought something better than it. The word better here is an adjective of preference, and the meaning is more beneficial to you, O people, in the immediate future if the abrogating verse is lighter, and in the future if it is heavier, and similar to it if it is equal. Malik said: A decisive abrogated verse. It was said: What is meant by better is not preference, because the speech of God is not differentiated, but rather it is like His statement: Whoever brings a good deed will have something better than it, meaning he will have something better than it, meaning benefit and reward, not the good that means something better. The first statement is indicated by His statement: or something similar to it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ibn Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas may God be pleased with them both: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We change from a verse. Ibn Jurayj said on the authority of Mujahid: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We erase from a verse. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We confirm its writing and change its ruling. It was narrated on the authority of the companions of Abdullah ibn Masoud may God be pleased with them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Abu al-Aliyah and Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi. Ad-Dahhak said: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We abrogate. Ata' said: As for what We abrogate, it means what We leave out of the Qur'an. Ibn Abi

Hatim said: It means what We leave out, so it was not revealed to Muhammad (may God bless him and grant him peace). Al-Suddi said: Whatever verse We abrogate means to seize it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: He means to seize it and remove it, such as his statement: The old man and the old woman, if they commit adultery, stone them both to death, and his statement: If the son of Adam had two valleys full of gold, he would seek a third for them. Ibn Jarir said: Whatever verse We abrogate means what we transfer from the ruling of a verse to another, so we change it and alter it, and that is by turning the permissible into the forbidden, and the forbidden into the permissible, and the permissible into the prohibited, and that does not happen except in the case of commands and prohibitions, prohibitions, generalizations, preventions, and permissibility. As for the report, there is no abrogating or abrogated in it, and the origin of abrogation is the abrogation of the Book, which is its transfer from one copy to another, so likewise the meaning of abrogating a ruling to another is only its transfer and the transfer of its expression to another, and it does not matter whether its ruling or its writing is abrogated, since both of its states are abrogated. As for the scholars of Usul al-Fiqh, their expressions differed regarding the definition of abrogation, and the matter is close, because the meaning of legal abrogation is known to scholars, and some of them noted that the ruling is lifted by a later legal proof. This includes the abrogation of a lighter verse by a heavier verse and vice versa, and abrogation not to its replacement. As for the details of the rulings on abrogation and mentioning its types and conditions, they are explained in detail in Usul al-Fiqh. At-Tabarani said: Abu Sunbul Ubayd God ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Waqid told us, my father told us, al-Abbas ibn al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Arqam, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, who said: Two men recited a surah that the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) had taught them, and they used to recite it. One night they stood up to pray, but they could not find a letter of it. In the morning they went to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and mentioned that to him. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: It is among what was abrogated and forgotten, so they were distracted from it. Al-Zuhri used to recite it: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, with a damma on the light nun. Sulayman ibn al-Arqam is weak. Abu Bakr bin Al-Anbari narrated on the authority of his father, on the authority of Nasr bin Dawud, on the authority of Abu Ubaidullah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Saleh, on the authority of Al-Layth, on the authority of Yunus and Uqayl, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, a similar hadith with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Qurtubi mentioned it. God Almighty said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, it was read in two ways: We cause it to be forgotten and We cause it to be delayed. As for the one who reads it with the opening of the noon and the hamza after the seen, its meaning is that we delay it. Ali bin Abi Talhah said: on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause it to be forgotten, meaning whatever verse We change or leave, we do not change it. Mujahid said on the authority of the companions of Ibn Masoud: Or We cause it to be forgotten, meaning we confirm its writing and change its ruling. Abd bin Umair, Mujahid and Ata' said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, meaning we delay it and postpone it. Atiyah Al-Awfi said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, We delay it and do not abrogate it. Al-Suddi said: It is also the same, and so is Al-Rabi' bin Anas. Ad-Dahhak said: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, meaning the abrogating and the abrogated. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, We delay it with us. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ubaydullah bin Ismail Al-Baghdadi told us, Khalaf told us, Al-Khaffaf told us, on the authority of Ismail, meaning Ibn Aslam, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, delivered a sermon to us and said: God Almighty says: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, meaning We delay it. As for the reading of or cause it to be forgotten, Abd Al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Qatadah regarding His statement: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, he said: God Almighty would make His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, forget whatever He wills, and abrogate whatever He wills.

Ibn Jarir said: Suwad bin Abdullah told us, Khalid bin Al-Harith told us, Aouf told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan that he said: Regarding His statement: or We cause it to be forgotten, he said: Your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited to us a Qur'an and then forgot it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ibn Nufayl told us, Muhammad bin Al-Zubayr Al-Harrani told us, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, meaning Al-Jazari, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Among the things that were sent down to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was the revelation at night and he would forget it during the day, so God Almighty revealed: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Ja'far bin Nufayl told me, he is not Al-Hajjaj bin Artah, he is a sheikh of ours from Al-Jazari. Ubaid bin Umair said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, we remove it from you. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah, he said: I heard Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas recite: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. From a verse or We make you forget it." He said: I said to him, Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab recites or We make you forget it. He said: Sa'd said: The Qur'an was not revealed to al-Musayyab or to the family of al-Musayyab. He said: God Almighty said: We will make you recite, and you will not forget. "And remember your Lord when you forget." And Abd al-Razzaq narrated it likewise from Hisham, and al-Hakim included it in his Mustadrak, from the hadith of Abu Hatim al-Razi, from Adam, from Shu'bah, from Ya'la ibn Ata', with it, and he said: It meets the conditions of the two sheikhs, and they did not include it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: And he narrated from Muhammad ibn Ka'b, Qatadah, and Ikrimah something similar to what Sa'id said. Imam Ahmad said: Yahya told us, Sufyan al-Thawri told us: on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Umar said: Ali is the best of us in jurisprudence and my father is the best of us in knowledge, and we leave out some of what my father said, because my father said: I will not leave out anything I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God says: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Al-Bukhari said: Yahya told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Habib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Umar said: Ali is the best of us in jurisprudence and my father is the best of us in knowledge, and we leave out some of what my father said, because my father said: I will not leave out anything I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God said: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, and His statement: We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it, means in the ruling with respect to the interests of those charged with the duties, as Ali bin Abi Talhah said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: We bring forth [one] better than it, and he says: It is better for you in benefit and more lenient for you. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Whatever verse We abrogate so that we do not act upon it or cause it to be forgotten, meaning that we postpone it until we bring it or something similar to it. Al-Suddi said: We bring something better than it or similar to it, meaning: We bring something better than what we abrogated or something similar to what we left. Qatadah said: He brought something better than it or similar to it. He said: A verse that contains alleviation, a concession, a command, and a prohibition. His statement: Do you not know that God has power over all things? Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? And that you have not besides God any protector or helper? He guides His servants, the Most High, with this, to the fact that He is the One who disposes of His creation as He wills. He has the power to create and command, and He is the One who disposes. Just as He created them as He wills, and makes happy whomever He wills, and makes miserable whomever He wills, and makes healthy whomever He wills and sick whomever He wills, and guides whomever He wills, and disappoints whomever He wills, so He rules over His servants as He wills. He makes lawful what He wills, and forbids what He wills, and permits what He wills, and prohibits what He wills. He is the One who rules as He wills. There is no objector to His ruling, and He is not questioned about what He does, while they are questioned. He tests His servants and their obedience to His messengers by abrogating it. He commands something because of the benefit in it that He knows, then He forbids it because of what He knows. So obedience, all obedience, is in complying with His command and following His messengers in belief. What they told, and compliance with what they were commanded, and leaving what they were warned against. In this position, a great response and eloquent clarification of the disbelief of the Jews and the falsification of their doubts, may God curse them, in claiming the impossibility of abrogation, either rationally, as some of them claimed out of ignorance and disbelief, or by transmission, as others of them fabricated and lied. Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him, said: The interpretation of the verse: Did you not know, O Muhammad, that I have the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and their authority, without anyone else? I rule in them and in what is in them as I will, and I command in them and in what is in them as I will, and I forbid what I will, and I abrogate, change and alter, from My rulings that I rule over My servants, as I will when I will, and I confirm in them what I will. Then he said: And this report, even if it was an address from God Almighty to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the form of report, about His greatness, then it is from Him, may His praise be glorified, a denial of the Jews, who denied the abrogation of the rulings of the Torah and denied the prophethood of Jesus and Muhammad, peace be upon them, for coming with what they came with from God. God, by changing what God changed of the ruling of the Torah, so God informed them that He has the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and their authority, and that creation is the people of His kingdom, and His obedience and they must hear and obey His command and prohibition, and that He has the right to command them as He wishes and prohibit them from what He wishes, and to abrogate what He wishes, and to approve what He wishes, and to establish what He wishes of His approval, command and prohibition. I said What makes the Jews research the issue of abrogation is disbelief and stubbornness, for there is nothing in reason that indicates the impossibility of abrogation in the rulings of God Almighty, because He rules as He wishes, just as He does what He wants, even though this has occurred in His previous books and past laws, just as He permitted Adam to marry his daughters to his sons, then He forbade that, and just as He permitted Noah, after he left the ship, to eat all animals, then He abrogated the permissibility of some of them, and the marriage of two sisters was permissible for Israel and his sons, and this was forbidden in the law of the Torah and after it, and He ordered Abraham, peace be upon him, to slaughter his son, then He abrogated it before the act, and He ordered the majority of the Children of Israel to kill whoever worshipped Him. The calf was removed from them, then killing was lifted so that killing would not eradicate them, and many things that would take too long to mention, and they admit that and turn away from it. What is answered about these evidences with verbal answers does not divert the indication to the meaning, since it is the intended purpose, and as in their books it is famous from the good report of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the command to follow him, it indicates the obligation to follow him, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that no action is accepted except according to his law, and whether it is said that the previous laws are directed to his mission, may God bless him and grant him peace, this is not called abrogation because of his saying: Then complete the fast until night, and it is said: It is absolute, and that the law of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, abrogated it, so in any case the obligation to follow him is determined, because he came with a book and it is the last book to be covenanted by God Almighty, so in this position God Almighty explained the permissibility of abrogation, in response to the Jews, upon them be the curse of God, where God Almighty said: Do you not know that God has power over all things? * Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? The verse, so just as He has the dominion without dispute, so too does He have the power to rule as He wills, Is not His the creation and the command? And it was read in Surat Al Imran, which was revealed at the beginning of it as an address to the People of the Book, that abrogation occurred in the words of God Almighty: All food was lawful to the Children of Israel except what Israel made unlawful to himself the verse, as will be explained. All Muslims agree on the permissibility of abrogation in the rulings of God Almighty, because of the great wisdom in that, and all of them said that it occurred. Abu Muslim Al-Asbahani, the interpreter, said: Nothing of that occurred in the Qur'an, and his statement is weak, rejected, and despicable. He was arbitrary in his answers to what occurred of abrogation, including the issue of the waiting period of four months and ten after the year, he did not answer that with acceptable speech, and the issue of changing the Qiblah to the Kaaba from the Holy House, he did not answer anything, and including that is the abrogation of a Muslim's patience with ten infidels to patience with two, and including that is the abrogation of the obligation of charity before speaking to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and other things, and God knows best.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:106

We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten except that We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Do you not know that Allah has power over all things?

Fath al-Qadir

Abrogation in the speech of the Arabs has two aspects: One is transfer, such as transferring one book from another, and based on this the entire Qur'an is abrogated: I mean from the Preserved Tablet, so this meaning has no place in this verse, and from it Indeed, We were transcribing what you used to do meaning We would order its abrogation. The second aspect is nullification and removal, which is what is meant here. This second aspect is divided into two sections according to the linguists: One is nullifying something and its disappearance and establishing another in its place, and from it the sun abrogated the shadow if it removed it and took its place, and this is the meaning of His statement: 106- We do not abrogate a verse and in Sahih Muslim There was never a prophecy except that it was abrogated meaning it changed from one state to another. The second is removing something without another taking its place, as they say: the wind abrogated the trace, and from this meaning God abrogates what Satan casts meaning He removes it. It was narrated from Abu Ubaid that this used to happen during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so a surah would be revealed to him and then it would be removed and not recited or written. And from it is what was narrated on the authority of Abu and Aisha that the secret of the parties was equal to Surat Al-Baqarah in length. Ibn Faris said: Abrogation is the abrogation of the Book, and abrogation is that you remove a matter that was previously acted upon and then abrogate it with another event, like a verse that is revealed with a matter then abrogates with another, and everything that comes after something has abrogated it. It is said: the sun abrogated the shadow, and gray hair abrogated youth, and the case of transmigration of heirs is that heirs die after heirs, and the origin of inheritance remains, and so is the transmigration of times and centuries. Ibn Jarir said: What we abrogate is what we transfer from the ruling of a verse to another, so we change and alter it, that is, we transform the permissible into the forbidden, the forbidden into the permissible, the permissible into the prohibited, and this only occurs in the case of commands, prohibitions, prohibitions, generalizations, preventions, and permissibility. As for the reports, there is no abrogating or abrogated in them. The origin of abrogation is the abrogation of the Book, which is its transfer from one copy to another. Likewise, the meaning of abrogating a ruling to another is only its transfer to another, regardless of whether its ruling or its script is abrogated, since both of its states are abrogated. The scholars of Usul have made the discussion of abrogation part of the objectives of this art, so we will not prolong its mention, but we will refer whoever wants to seek healing to it. The people of Islam have agreed on its establishment, past and present, and no one has disagreed with that except those whose disagreement is not taken into account and whose words are not given attention. It is well known that the Jews, may God exalt them, denied it, and they are proven by what is in the Torah, that God said to Noah, peace be upon him, when he came out of the ship: I have made every animal food for you and your descendants, and I have released it to you like the plants of grass, except for blood, so do not eat it. Then He forbade Moses and the Children of Israel many animals. It is established in the Torah that Adam used to marry his brother to his sister, and God forbade that to Moses, peace be upon him, and others. It is established in it that Abraham, peace be upon him, was ordered to slaughter his son, then God said to him: Do not slaughter him, and that Moses ordered the Children of Israel to kill those among them who worshipped the calf, then He ordered them to lift the sword from them, and there is much like this in the Torah that is in their hands. And His statement: or We cause it to be forgotten Abu Amr and Ibn Kathir read it with the opening of the noon, the seen, and the hamza, and it is the same reading of Omar, Ibn Abbas, Ata, Mujahid, Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Ubayd ibn Umair, Al-Nakha'i, and Ibn Muhaysin. The meaning of this reading is that we postpone it from abrogation, from their saying: I postponed this matter if I delayed it. Ibn Faris said: They say: May God delay your term and May God delay your term. People have been delayed and distanced, and I delayed them means that I delayed them. It was said: Its meaning is that we delay the abrogation of its wording: that is, we leave it in the Mother of the Book so that it does not exist. It was also said: We remove it from you so that it is not read or remembered. The rest read: We forget it with a damma on the nun from al-nisyan which means to leave: that is, we leave it so we do not change it or abrogate it. From this is the saying of God the Almighty: They forgot God, so He forgot them meaning: they abandoned His worship, so He left them in the torment. Abu Ubaid and Abu Hatim chose this reading. Al-Azhari narrated that its meaning is that we order it to be left. It is said: I made him forget the thing: that is, I ordered him to leave it, and I forgot it means I left it. From this is the saying of the poet:

I have an obstacle to overcome, I will not forget it nor will it be forgotten

Nor do I command to abandon it. Al-Zajaj said: The reading with the damma on the letter noon does not carry the meaning of abandonment. It is not said: Ansa means left. He said: What Ali bin Abi Talha narrated from Ibn Abbas: Or we forget it means we leave it and do not change it, so it is not correct. What most linguists and scholars agree on is that the meaning of Or we forget it is we barked at you to abandon it from nasa if you leave it and then it is transitive. The meaning of: We brought something better than it or similar to it is we brought what is more beneficial to people than it in this life and the hereafter, or in one of them, or what is similar to it without any increase. This refers to the application of reasoning regarding the abrogated and the abrogating, for the abrogating may be lighter and thus be more beneficial to them in this life, or it may be heavier and its reward is greater and thus be more beneficial to them in the hereafter, or they may be equal and thus similarity is achieved.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

106. The Almighty said, We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten. This is because the polytheists said: Muhammad does not command his companions to do something and then forbid them from it and command them to do something contrary to what he says except on his own initiative. He says [today a statement and returns from it tomorrow as God has informed. <<And when We substitute a verse for another - and God knows best] what He sends down, they say, You are only an inventor.>101- An-Nahl. And He sent down, We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, so He explained the wisdom behind abrogation with this verse.

Abrogation in the language has two meanings: One of them means conversion and transfer, and from it is the abrogation of the book, which is to transfer from one book to another. So in this way, the entire Qur'an is abrogated because it was copied from the Preserved Tablet.

The second: It means lifting. It is said: The sun abrogated the shadow, meaning it took it away and nullified it. Based on this, some of the Qur'an is abrogating and some of it is abrogated, which is what is meant by the verse. This has several aspects, one of which is: that the line is confirmed and the ruling is abrogated, such as the verse of the will to relatives. The verse of the waiting period for death by one year, the verse of alleviation in fighting, the verse of the one who is tested, and the like. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said about the Almighty's saying, We do not abrogate a verse, what we confirm its writing and change its ruling, such as the verse of stoning. Among them is that its recitation is lifted from the Qur'an and from the hearts, as narrated on the authority of Abu Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif: that a group of the Companions, may God be pleased with them, stood up one night to recite a surah, but they did not mention from it anything except In the name of God, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful. So they went to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and informed him, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, That is a surah whose recitation and rulings were lifted. It was said: Surat Al-Ahzab was like Surat Al-Baqarah, so most of it was lifted in recitation and ruling. Then, among the rulings that were abrogated, some were lifted and another was established in its place, just as the direction of prayer was abrogated from Jerusalem to the Kaaba, and the will for relatives was abrogated by inheritance, and the waiting period for death was abrogated from one year to four months and ten, and the patience of one for ten in fighting was abrogated by the patience of two, and among them is what is lifted and nothing else is established. His position is like the examination of women. Abrogation only applies to commands and prohibitions, not to report.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:106

We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten except that We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Do you not know that Allah has power over all things?

As for the meaning of the verse, His saying, Whatever verse We abrogate, the general reading is with a fatha on the noon and a kasra on the seen from abrogation, meaning: We remove it. Ibn Amir read it with a damma on the noon and a kasra on the seen from abrogation, and it has two aspects:

One of them: to make it like the abrogated.

The second: that we make it a copy for him [it is said: I copied the book, meaning I wrote it, and someone else copied it if you made it a copy for him] or we forget it meaning we forget it in your heart.

Ibn Abbas may God be pleased with him said: We leave it and do not abrogate it. God the Almighty said: They forgot God, so He forgot them 67- At-Tawbah, meaning they abandoned Him, so He abandoned them. It was also said: We forget it means: We order it to be abandoned. It is said: You forgot something if you ordered it to be abandoned. So the first abrogation is the lifting of the ruling and the establishment of something else in its place. Forgetting is an abrogator without establishing something else in its place. Ibn Kathir and Abu Amr read or we postpone it with a fat-ha on the first nun and a hamza on the seen, meaning we delay it and do not change it. It is said: We postponed God's lifespan and God postponed his lifespan. There are two sayings that have the same meaning: One of them: We lift its recitation and delay its ruling, as He did in the verse of stoning. Based on this, the first abrogation means lifting the recitation and ruling. The second saying: Saeed bin Al-Musayyab and Ata' said: As for what was abrogated from a verse, it is what was revealed from the Qur'an, we made it from the copy, or we postpone it, meaning we delay it and leave it in the Preserved Tablet and it does not come down.

We have brought something better than it meaning something that is more beneficial for you, easier for you, and greater for your reward, not that one verse is better than another, because the speech of God is one and all of it is good. Or similar to it in benefit and reward. So whatever was abrogated to something easier is easier to do, and whatever was abrogated to something more difficult is greater in reward. Do you not know that God has power over all things? From abrogation and substitution, its wording is a question, but its meaning is a statement, meaning: you know.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

106-Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten was revealed when the polytheists or Jews said: Do you not see that Muhammad orders his companions to do something then forbids them from it and orders the opposite. Abrogation in the language is: removing the image from something and establishing it in something else, like the shadow abrogating the sun and transfer, and from it reincarnation. Then it was used for each of them like your saying: the wind abrogated the trace, and abrogated the book. Abrogation of the verse is a statement of the end of worship by reading it, or the ruling derived from it, or both. And its being forgotten is its removal from the hearts, and what is a conditional imperative for us to abrogate, erected by it as a direct object. Ibn Amir read what we abrogate from ansakh, meaning we order you or Gabriel to abrogate it, or we find it abrogated, and Ibn Kathir and Abu Amr nansa'uha meaning we delay it from an-nasu'. It was read nansaha meaning we make someone forget it, and nansaha meaning you, and tansaha in the passive form, and nansukaha with the two objects implied na't bi-khair minha or mathulha meaning what is better for the servants in benefit and reward, or similar to it in reward. Abu Amr read it by changing the hamza to an alif. did you not know that God is over all things competent? He is able to abrogate and bring something similar to the abrogated, or something better than it. The verse indicates the permissibility of abrogation and delaying revelation, as the origin is that an and what it includes are limited to possible matters. This is because the rulings were legislated and the verses were revealed for the benefit of the servants and to perfect their souls as a favor and mercy from God. This differs according to the eras and people, such as the causes of livelihood, as what is beneficial in one era may be harmful in another era. Those who forbade abrogation without a substitute or with a heavier substitute argued that the abrogation of the Book and the Sunnah is what is brought in place of it, and the Sunnah is not like that, and all of them are weak, as it is possible that the absence of a ruling or something heavier is better. Abrogation may be known by other means, and the Sunnah is something that God Almighty brought, and what is meant by good and similar is not what is like that in the wording. The Mu'tazila are on the occurrence of the Qur'an, as change and variation are among its requirements. I answer: They are among the accidents of matters related to the meaning that exists in the eternal self.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:107

Do you not know that to Allah belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not besides Allah any protector or helper?

Surat al-Baqarah 2:107

Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not besides God any protector or helper?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth He does what He wills and that you have not besides God other than Him any redundant protector to protect you or helper to prevent His punishment if it comes to you, and it was revealed when the people of Mecca asked him to expand it and make Safa gold

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What God, the Most High, means by His statement, Whatever verse We abrogate is what We transfer from the ruling of a verse to another, so we change it and alter it. That is by turning the permissible into the forbidden, and the forbidden into the permissible, and the permissible into the prohibited, and the prohibited into the permissible. This only occurs in commands and prohibitions, prohibitions and generalizations, and prevention and permissibility. As for the report, there is no abrogating or abrogated in it.

The origin of abrogation is from the copy of the book, which is its transfer from one copy to another. Likewise, the meaning of abrogating a ruling to another is its transformation and transfer of its expression to another. If that is the meaning of abrogating a verse, then it is the same if its ruling is abrogated and its obligation is changed and replaced, and the obligation of the servants is transferred from the necessary, then it is theirs whether its writing is confirmed and then abandoned, or its trace is erased and then overlooked and forgotten, because in both cases it is abrogated, and the new ruling, which was replaced by the first ruling, and the obligation of the servants was transferred to it, is the abrogator. It is said of it: God abrogated such-and-such a verse, He abrogates it by abrogation, and abrogation is the name. And similar to what we said about that, Al-Hasan Al-Basri used to say: Suwar bin Abdullah Al-Anbari told us, he said, Khalid bin Al-Harith told us, he said, Aouf told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan that he said about His statement: {Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring one better than it}, he said: Your Prophet recited the Qur'an, then he forgot it and it was nothing, and there is some of the Qur'an that has been abrogated and you are reciting it.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed regarding his statement: What We abrogate. Some of them said: Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr bin Hammad told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: What We abrogate of a verse, as for its abrogation, it means its seizure.

Others said: Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said: Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: We do not abrogate a verse, meaning: We do not change a verse.

Others said: Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of the companions of Abdullah bin Masoud, that they said: Whatever verse we abrogate, we confirm its script and change its ruling.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Whatever verse We abrogate, we confirm its script and change its ruling. I narrated it on the authority of the companions of Ibn Mas'ud.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Bakr bin Shawdhab told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of the companions of Ibn Masoud: Whatever verse We abrogate We confirm its script and change its ruling.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: or we forget it.

Abu Jaafar said: The readings differed in his saying that. The people of Medina and Kufa read it: or we make it forgotten. And the reading of those who read that has two aspects of interpretation.

One of them is that its interpretation is: What verse do We abrogate, O Muhammad, and change its ruling or cause it to be forgotten. It has been mentioned that it is in the Mushaf of Abdullah: What verse do We forget or abrogate, We bring forth something like it. So that is the interpretation of: forgetfulness. And this is the interpretation that a group of the people of interpretation said. Those who said that mentioned:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it, he would abrogate one verse with the next, and the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would recite the verse or more than that, then it would be forgotten and removed.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, he said: God Almighty would make His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, forget whatever He willed, and abrogate whatever He willed.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Ubayd ibn

Umar used to say: We will make it disappear, we will remove it from you.

Suwar bin Abdullah told us, Khalid bin Al-Harith told us, Aouf told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, that he said: Concerning his statement: or we make it forgotten, he said: Your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited the Qur'an and then forgot it.

Saad bin Abi Waqqas also interpreted the verse, except that he would recite it: or you forget it in the sense of addressing the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as if he meant: or you forget it, O Muhammad. Mention of the narrations on that: Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said: Hisham told us, he said: Ya'la bin Ata' told us, on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah, he said: I heard Saad bin Abi Waqqas say: We do not abrogate a verse or you forget it, I said to him: But Sa'id bin Al-Musayyab recites it: or you forget it, he said: So Saad said: The Qur'an was not revealed to Al-Musayyab or to the family of Al-Musayyab! God said: We will recite to you, and you will not forget (Al-A'la: 6) And remember your Lord when you forget (al-Kahf 18:24)

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Hisham told us, he said: Ya'la bin Ata' told us, he said: Al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah bin Qanif al-Thaqafi told us, he said: I heard Ibn Abi Waqqas mention something similar.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna and Adam al-Asqalani both narrated on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Ya'la ibn Ata', who said: I heard al-Qasim ibn Rabi'ah al-Thaqafi say: I said to Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas: I heard Ibn al-Musayyab reciting: We do not abrogate a verse or you cause it to be forgotten. Sa'd said: "God did not reveal the Qur'an to al-Musayyab or to his son! It is: "We do not abrogate a verse or you cause it to be forgotten," O Muhammad. Then he recited: We will make you recite, and you will not forget and Remember your Lord when you forget.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, he said: We cause it to be forgotten we remove it. And God, the Blessed and Exalted, had revealed matters from the Qur'an and then removed them.

The other aspect of it is that it means abandonment from the statement of God, the Most High: They forgot God, so He forgot them (al-Tawbah 9:67), meaning: they abandoned God, so He abandoned them. So the interpretation of the verse then according to this interpretation is: We do not abrogate a verse, changing its ruling or replacing its obligation, We bring one better than the one We abrogated or similar to it. And according to this interpretation, a group of the people of interpretation interpreted it. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: or We cause it to be forgotten, he said: or We abandon it and do not change it.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, his saying: or we forget it, we leave it and do not abrogate it.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, he said: the abrogating and the abrogated.

Abu Ja'far said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd used to say about that what: Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about his statement: We make it forgotten, we erase it.

Others read it as: or we forget it with a fat-ha on the noon and a hamza after the seen, meaning: we delay it, from your saying: I postponed this matter, I postponed it, nasa' and nisa'an, if you delay it. It is from their saying: I sold it for nisa', meaning by delaying it. And from that is the saying of Tarafa bin al-Abd:

By your life, death does not make a young man forget you, like a long, slack-jawed man who has been bent over by the hand.

He means by his saying: I will postpone, I will delay.

Among those who read this were a group of the Companions and Followers, and a group of Kufi and Basri reciters read it, and a group of interpreters interpreted it in this way. Those who said this were: Abu Kurayb and Yaqub bin Ibrahim told us, they said: Hisham told us, he said: Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata', regarding his statement: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, he said: We delay it.

Muhammad bin Amr told us, Abu Asim told us, Isa told us, I heard Ibn Abi Nujayh say about God's statement: Or We postpone it, he said: We postpone it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: or We postpone it, we postpone it and delay it.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, Fadil told us, on the authority of Atiyah: or We postpone it, he said: We delay it and do not abrogate it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Abdullah bin Katheer told me, on the authority of Ubaid Al-Azdi, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umar: or We postpone it, means delaying it and postponing it.

This is what Al-Qasim told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Katheer, on the authority of Ubaid Al-Azdi, but it is on the authority of Ali Al-Azdi.

Ahmad bin Yusuf told me, he said, Al-Qasim bin Salam told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Abdullah bin Katheer, on the authority of Ali Al-Azdi, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umar that he read it: We will delay it.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of whoever reads it thus is: We do not change a verse that We have revealed to you, O Muhammad, by nullifying its ruling and confirming its line, or delaying it and postponing it and confirming it and not changing it or nullifying its ruling, but We bring one better than it or similar to it.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:107

Do you not know that to Allah belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not besides Allah any protector or helper?

Some of them read it as: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten. The interpretation of this reading is similar to the interpretation of the reading of the one who read: or cause it to be forgotten, except that the meaning of or cause it to be forgotten is you, O Muhammad.

Some of them read: What we abrogate of a verse, with a damma on the nun and a kasra on the seen, meaning: We do not abrogate you, O Muhammad, from a verse that I abrogate, so I abrogate you. This is a reading error according to us, because it departs from what the proof has brought from the reading by widespread transmission. Likewise the reading of those who read tansaha or tansaha, because it is an anomaly and departs from the reading that the proof has brought from the readers of the ummah.

The first reading of the verse in His statement: or we forget it is correct, from the reading or we forget it meaning: we leave it. Because God, the Most High, informed His Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, that no matter how much he changed a ruling or altered it, or did not change it or alter it, He will bring him something better than it or similar to it. So what is more appropriate for the verse, since that is its meaning, is that when he presented the report about what he will do if he changed and altered the ruling of a verse, he should follow that with the report about what he will do since he did not change or alter that. So the report that should come after His statement: Whatever verse We abrogate is His statement: or we leave its abrogation, since that is the well-known and common speech of the people. Although that, if it is read in the same way with the meaning I described, it includes the meaning of forgetting which means leaving, and the meaning of women which means delaying. Since everything that is abandoned is delayed in the state in which it is abandoned.

Some people have rejected the reading of the one who recites: or you forget it, if he means forgetfulness, and they said: It is not permissible that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forgot something from the Qur'an that was not abrogated, unless he forgot something from it and then remembered it. They said: And then, if he had forgotten something from it, it would not have been permissible for all of his companions who recited it and memorized it to forget it. They said: In the statement of God, may He be glorified and exalted: And if We willed, We could surely take away that which We have revealed to you (Al-Isra': 86), there is what indicates that God, may He be glorified and exalted, did not cause His Prophet to forget anything of the knowledge that He had given him.

Abu Ja'far said: This statement is attested to by the falsity and corruption of the unanimous reports from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, similar to what we have said: Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, he said: Yazid ibn

Zari' told us, he said: Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: Anas ibn Malik told us: Those seventy of the Ansar who were killed at Bir Ma'una, we read to them and among them a letter: Convey from us to our people that we met our Lord and He was pleased with us and pleased us. Then that was lifted.

What we mentioned about Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari is that they used to recite: If the son of Adam had two valleys full of wealth, he would desire a third. Nothing fills the belly of the son of Adam except dust. And God accepts the repentance of whoever repents. Then he was raised.

And there are similar stories that would take too long to list in a book.

It is not impossible in the nature of a person with a sound mind, nor on the basis of a hadith, that God would cause His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to forget some of what He had revealed to him. So since that is not impossible from either of these two aspects, it is not permissible for someone to say: That is not permissible.

As for His statement: And if We willed, We could surely take away that which We have revealed to you (Al-Isra': 86), He, the Most High, did not inform us that He would not take away any of it, but rather He informed us that if He willed, He could take away all of it. So He did not take it away, praise be to God, but rather He only took away what they had no need for of it. That is because whatever was abrogated from it, the servants have no need for it. And God, the Most High, said: We will cause you to recite, and you will not forget, except what God wills (al-A'la 87:6-7), so He informed us that He would make His Prophet forget whatever He willed of it. So what was taken away from it is what God excluded.

As for us, we chose what we chose from the interpretation to seek the consistency of the speech in a system of meaning, not to deny that God Almighty had caused His Prophet to forget some of what was abrogated from His revelation and sending down to him.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: She brought something better than it or similar to it.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in their interpretation of his statement: She brought something better than it or similar to it. Some of them said what: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Salih told us, he said, Mu'awiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: She brought something better than it or similar to it, he said: better for you in terms of benefit, and easier for you.

Others said: Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to me, he said: Abd al-Razzaq informed us, he said: Muammar informed us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: We have brought one better than it or similar to it, he said: A verse in which there is relief, in which there is mercy, in which there is a command, in which there is a prohibition. Others said: We have brought one better than the one we abrogated, or better than the one we left out and did not abrogate it. Those who said that mentioned: Musa narrated to me, he said: Amr narrated to us, he said: Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of al-Suddi: We have brought one better than it, he said: We have brought one better than the one we abrogated, or similar to it, or similar to the one we left out.

The ha' and the alif in his statement: from it refer to this article on the verse in his statement: whatever verse We abrogate. The ha' and the alif in his statement: or its like, refer to the ha' and the alif in his statement: or We cause it to be forgotten.

Others said: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Ubayd ibn Umair used to say: We will remove it from you, we will bring something like it or better than it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Or We forget it, we remove it, we bring something better than it or similar to it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Bakr ibn Shawdhab told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of the companions of Ibn Masoud, similarly.

The correct statement regarding the meaning of that according to us is: We do not change the ruling of a verse and alter it, or we leave its alteration and leave it as it is, we hope for something better for you than the ruling of the verse whose ruling We abrogated and changed, either in the immediate future, because it is easier for you, because it was imposed as an obligation upon you, so its burden was removed from you, such as what was imposed on the believers regarding the obligation of standing at night, then that was abrogated and removed from them, so that was better for them in the immediate future, because the burden of that and the burden of carrying it was removed from them, or in the afterlife, because of the great reward, because of the difficulty of carrying it and the weight of its burden on the body, such as what was imposed on them of fasting a certain number of days in the year, so it was abrogated and in its place it was imposed on them to fast a full month every year. So the obligation of fasting a full month every year was heavier on the body than fasting a certain number of days. However, even if that is the case, the reward for it is more abundant and the recompense is greater, because of the greater difficulty it brings to those charged with it than fasting a certain number of days. Even though this is more difficult for the body, it is better than the first in the hereafter due to the superiority of its reward and the greatness of its recompense, which is not like that of fasting the specified number of days. This is the meaning of His statement: It has brought something better than it. Because it is either better than it in the hereafter due to its lightness for the one who is obligated to do it, or in the hereafter due to the greatness of its reward and the abundance of its recompense.

Or it could be similar in terms of the hardship on the body and the equal reward for it, like God the Most High abrogated the obligation of prayer towards the Holy House, to its obligation towards the Sacred Mosque. So facing towards the Holy House, even if facing towards the mosque is different, the cost of facing towards whichever one faces the same is the same. Because the burden of facing towards the Holy House is the same as the burden of facing towards the Kaaba, the same as the burden of facing towards the Kaaba, the same. So that is the meaning of the example in which God the Most High said: or its like.

What He, the Most High, meant by His statement, Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten is what We abrogate or cause to be forgotten of the ruling of a verse. However, since the meaning of the verse was understood by those addressed by it, it was sufficient to indicate that the verse refers to its ruling. This is similar to all the other similar examples we have mentioned in the past in this book of ours, such as His statement, And they have made the calf to be drunk into their hearts (al-Baqarah 2:193), meaning the love of the calf, and the like.

The interpretation of the verse is: We do not change the ruling of a verse by substituting it, or leave it and do not change it. We bring for you, O believers, a better ruling than it, or one similar to its ruling in lightness and heaviness, reward and recompense.

If someone says: We have already learned that the calf does not enter hearts, and that it is not confusing for anyone who hears His statement: And they made the calf enter their hearts, that it means: And they made the love of the calf enter their hearts. So what is the evidence that His statement: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth one better than it is similar to that?

It was said: What indicates that this is the case is his statement: He brought something better than it or similar to it. It is not permissible for one thing in the Qur'an to be better than another, because all of it is the speech of God, and it is not permissible to say about the attributes of God, may He be exalted, that some of them are better than others, and some of them are better than others.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Do you not know that God has power over all things?

Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of God, the Most High, by His statement, 'Do you not know that God has power over all things?' Did you not know, O Muhammad, that I am able to compensate you for what I have abrogated of My rulings and what I have changed of My obligations that I had imposed upon you, with whatever I will of what is better for you and My believing servants with you, and more beneficial to you and them, either in the immediate world or in the hereafter, or by replacing it for you and them with something like it in benefit to them, in the immediate world and in the hereafter, and similar in lightness for you and them? So know, O Muhammad, that I am capable of that and of all things. The meaning of His statement, Powerful in this context is: Strong. It is said from it: I have power over such and such, if I am strong over it. I am able to do it and I am able to do it with power and qidran and qadaranah, and Banu Murrah from Ghatafan say: I was able to do it with a kasra on the dal.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:107

Do you not know that to Allah belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not besides Allah any protector or helper?

As for the estimation from the saying of the speaker: I estimated the thing, it is said from it that he estimated it, I estimated it, a quantum and a quantum.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not besides God any protector or helper?

God the Almighty said: Have you not known? The verb is jussive with lam, and the interrogative letters do not change the function of the agent. An is opened because it is in the accusative case. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, meaning the creation and invention, the dominion and authority, and the enforcement of the command and will.

Dominion is raised by the subject, and the predicate is His, and the sentence is the predicate of An. The address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is his nation, because He said: And you have not besides God any protector or helper. It was said that the meaning is: Say to them, O Muhammad, do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and you have not besides God any protector or helper? From wali the matter of so-and-so, meaning I carried it out, and from this comes the crown prince, meaning the one who is responsible for what is entrusted to him of the affairs of the Muslims. The meaning of besides God is other than God and after God, as Umayyah ibn Abi al-Salt said.

O soul, you have no protector but God, and no one can endure the events of time.

The group reads nor helper in the accusative case, in apposition to guardian. It is also permissible to say nor helper in the nominative case, in apposition to place, because the meaning is that you have no protector or helper other than God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ibn Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas may God be pleased with them both: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We change from a verse. Ibn Jurayj said on the authority of Mujahid: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We erase from a verse. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We confirm its writing and change its ruling. It was narrated on the authority of the companions of Abdullah ibn Masoud may God be pleased with them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Abu al-Aliyah and Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi.

Ad-Dahhak said: Whatever verse We abrogate means what We abrogate. Ata' said: As for what We abrogate, it means what We leave out of the Qur'an. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It means what We leave out, so it was not revealed to Muhammad (may God bless him and grant him peace). Al-Suddi said: Whatever verse We abrogate means to seize it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: He means to seize it and remove it, such as his statement: The old man and the old woman, if they commit adultery, stone them both to death, and his statement: If the son of Adam had two valleys full of gold, he would seek a third for them. Ibn Jarir said: Whatever verse We abrogate means what we transfer from the ruling of a verse to another, so we change it and alter it, and that is by turning the permissible into the forbidden, and the forbidden into the permissible, and the permissible into the prohibited, and that does not happen except in the case of commands and prohibitions, prohibitions, generalizations, preventions, and permissibility. As for the report, there is no abrogating or abrogated in it, and the origin of abrogation is the abrogation of the Book, which is its transfer from one copy to another, so likewise the meaning of abrogating a ruling to another is only its transfer and the transfer of its expression to another, and it does not matter whether its ruling or its writing is abrogated, since both of its states are abrogated. As for the scholars of Usul al-Fiqh, their expressions differed regarding the definition of abrogation, and the matter is close, because the meaning of legal abrogation is known to scholars, and some of them noted that the ruling is lifted by a later legal proof. This includes the abrogation of a lighter verse by a heavier verse and vice versa, and abrogation not to its replacement. As for the details of the rulings on abrogation and mentioning its types and conditions, they are explained in detail in Usul al-Fiqh.

At-Tabarani said: Abu Sunbul Ubayd God ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Waqid told us, my father told us, al-Abbas ibn al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Arqam, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, who said: Two men recited a surah that the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) had taught them, and they used to recite it. One night they stood up to pray, but they could not find a letter of it. In the morning they went to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and mentioned that to him. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: It is among what was abrogated and forgotten, so they were distracted from it. Al-Zuhri used to recite it: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, with a damma on the light nun. Sulayman ibn al-Arqam is weak. Abu Bakr bin Al-Anbari narrated on the authority of his father, on the authority of Nasr bin Dawud, on the authority of Abu Ubaidullah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Saleh, on the authority of Al-Layth, on the authority of Yunus and Uqayl, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, a similar hadith with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Qurtubi mentioned it. God Almighty said: Or

We cause it to be forgotten, it was read in two ways: We cause it to be forgotten and We cause it to be delayed. As for the one who reads it with the opening of the noon and the hamza after the seen, its meaning is that we delay it. Ali bin Abi Talhah said: on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause it to be forgotten, meaning whatever verse We change or leave, we do not change it. Mujahid said on the authority of the companions of Ibn Masoud: Or We cause it to be forgotten, meaning we confirm its writing and change its ruling. Abd bin Umair, Mujahid and Ata' said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, meaning we delay it and postpone it. Atiyah Al-Awfi said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, We delay it and do not abrogate it. Al-Suddi said: It is also the same, and so is Al-Rabi' bin Anas. Ad-Dahhak said: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, meaning the abrogating and the abrogated. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, We delay it with us. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ubaydullah bin Ismail Al-Baghdadi told us, Khalaf told us, Al-Khaffaf told us, on the authority of Ismail, meaning Ibn Aslam, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, delivered a sermon to us and said: God Almighty says: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, meaning We delay it. As for the reading of or cause it to be forgotten, Abd Al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Qatadah regarding His statement: We do not abrogate a verse or cause it to be forgotten, he said: God Almighty would make His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, forget whatever He wills, and abrogate whatever He wills.

Ibn Jarir said: Suwad bin Abdullah told us, Khalid bin Al-Harith told us, Aouf told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan that he said: Regarding His statement: or We cause it to be forgotten, he said: Your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited to us a Qur'an and then forgot it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ibn Nufayl told us, Muhammad bin Al-Zubayr Al-Harrani told us, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, meaning Al-Jazari, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Among the things that were sent down to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was the revelation at night and he would forget it during the day, so God Almighty revealed: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Ja'far bin Nufayl told me, he is not Al-Hajjaj bin Artah, he is a sheikh of ours from Al-Jazari. Ubaid bin Umair said: Or We cause it to be forgotten, we remove it from you. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah, he said: I heard Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas recite: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. From a verse or We make you forget it." He said: I said to him, Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab recites or We make you forget it. He said: Sa'd said: The Qur'an was not revealed to al-Musayyab or to the family of al-Musayyab. He said: God Almighty said: We will make you recite, and you will not forget. "And remember your Lord when you forget." And Abd al-Razzaq narrated it likewise from Hisham, and al-Hakim included it in his Mustadrak, from the hadith of Abu Hatim al-Razi, from Adam, from Shu'bah, from Ya'la ibn Ata', with it, and he said: It meets the conditions of the two sheikhs, and they did not include it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: And he narrated from Muhammad ibn Ka'b, Qatadah, and Ikrimah something similar to what Sa'id said. Imam Ahmad said: Yahya told us, Sufyan al-Thawri told us: on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Umar said: Ali is the best of us in jurisprudence and my father is the best of us in knowledge, and we leave out some of what my father said, because my father said: I will not leave out anything I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God says: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it. Al-Bukhari said: Yahya told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Habib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Umar said: Ali is the best of us in jurisprudence and my father is the best of us in knowledge, and we leave out some of what my father said, because my father said: I will not leave out anything I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God said: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, and His statement: We bring forth [one] better than it or similar to it, means in the ruling with respect to the interests of those charged with the duties, as Ali bin Abi Talhah said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: We bring forth [one] better than it, and he says: It is better for you in benefit and more lenient for you. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Whatever verse We abrogate so that we do not act upon it or cause it to be forgotten, meaning that we postpone it until we bring it or something similar to it. Al-Suddi said: We bring something better than it or similar to it, meaning: We bring something better than what we abrogated or something similar to what we left. Qatada said: He brought something better than it or similar to it. He said: A verse that contains alleviation, a concession, a command, and a prohibition. His statement: Do you not know that God has power over all things? Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? And that you have not besides God any protector or helper? He guides His servants, the Most High, with this, to the fact that He is the One who disposes of His creation as He wills. He has the power to create and command, and He is the One who disposes. Just as He created them as He wills, and makes happy whomever He wills, and makes miserable whomever He wills, and makes healthy whomever He wills and sick whomever He wills, and guides whomever He wills, and disappoints whomever He wills, so He rules over His servants as He wills. He makes lawful what He wills, and forbids what He wills, and permits what He wills, and prohibits what He wills. He is the One who rules as He wills. There is no objector to His ruling, and He is not questioned about what He does, while they are questioned. He tests His servants and their obedience to His messengers by abrogating it. He commands something because of the benefit in it that He knows, then He forbids it because of what He knows. So obedience, all obedience, is in complying with His command and following His messengers in belief. What they told, and compliance with what they were commanded, and leaving what they were warned against. In this position, a great response and eloquent clarification of the disbelief of the Jews and the falsification of their doubts, may God curse them, in claiming the impossibility of abrogation, either rationally, as some of them claimed out of ignorance and disbelief, or by transmission, as others of them fabricated and lied. Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him, said: The interpretation of the verse: Did you not know, O Muhammad, that I have the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and their authority, without anyone else? I rule in them and in what is in them as I will, and I command in them and in what is in them as I will, and I forbid what I will, and I abrogate, change and alter, from My rulings that I rule over My servants, as I will when I will, and I confirm in them what I will. Then he said: And this report, even if it was an address from God Almighty to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the form of report, about His greatness, then it is from Him, may His praise be glorified, a denial of the Jews, who denied the abrogation of the rulings of the Torah and denied the prophethood of Jesus and Muhammad, peace be upon them, for coming with what they came with from God. God, by changing what God changed of the ruling of the Torah, so God informed them that He has the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and their authority, and that creation is the people of His kingdom, and His obedience and they must hear and obey His command and prohibition, and that He has the right to command them as He wishes and prohibit them from what He wishes, and to abrogate what He wishes, and to approve what He wishes, and to establish what He wishes of His approval, command and prohibition. I said What makes the Jews research the issue of abrogation is disbelief and stubbornness, for there is nothing in reason that indicates the impossibility of abrogation in the rulings of God Almighty, because He rules as He wishes, just as He does what He wants, even though this has occurred in His previous books and past laws, just as He permitted Adam to marry his daughters to his sons, then He forbade that, and just as He permitted Noah, after he left the ship, to eat all animals, then He abrogated the permissibility of some of them, and the marriage of two sisters was permissible for Israel and his sons, and this was forbidden in the law of the Torah and after it, and He ordered Abraham, peace be upon him, to slaughter his son, then He abrogated it before the act, and He ordered the majority of the Children of Israel to kill whoever worshipped Him. The calf was removed from them, then killing was lifted so that killing would not eradicate them, and many things that would take too long to mention, and they admit that and turn away from it. What is answered about these evidences with verbal answers does not divert the indication to the meaning, since it is the intended purpose, and as in their books it is famous from the good report of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the command to follow him, it indicates the obligation to follow him, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that no action is accepted except according to his law, and whether it is said that the previous laws are directed to his mission, may God bless him and grant him peace, this is not called abrogation because of his saying: Then complete the fast until night, and it is said: It is absolute, and that the law of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, abrogated it, so in any case the obligation to follow him is determined, because he came with a book and it is the last book to be covenanted by God Almighty, so in this position God Almighty explained the permissibility of abrogation, in response to the Jews, upon them be the curse of God, where God Almighty said: Do you not know that God has power over all things? * Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? The verse, so just as He has the dominion without dispute, so too does He have the power to rule as He wills, Is not His the creation and the command? And it was read in Surat Al Imran, which was revealed at the beginning of it as an address to the People of the Book, that abrogation occurred in the words of God Almighty: All food was lawful to the Children of Israel except what Israel made unlawful to himself the verse, as will be explained. All Muslims agree on the permissibility of abrogation in the rulings of God Almighty, because of the great wisdom in that, and all of them said that it occurred. Abu Muslim Al-Asbahani, the interpreter, said: Nothing of that occurred in the Qur'an, and his statement is weak, rejected, and despicable. He was arbitrary in his answers to what occurred of abrogation, including the issue of the waiting period of four months and ten after the year, he did not answer that with acceptable speech, and the issue of changing the Qiblah to the Kaaba from the Holy House, he did not answer anything, and including that is the abrogation of a Muslim's patience with ten infidels to patience with two, and including that is the abrogation of the obligation of charity before speaking to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and other things, and God knows best.

Do you not know that to Allah belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not besides Allah any protector or helper?

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 107- Do you not know that God has power over all things? indicates that abrogation is within His capabilities, and that denying it is a denial of the divine power. Likewise, His statement: Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? That is, He has control over the heavens and the earth by creating and inventing and by influencing all of His creations. He is most knowledgeable about the interests of His servants and what is beneficial to them from His rulings that He has made them worship Him with and has made lawful for them. This may differ according to the circumstances, crises, and people, and this is the doing of those who have no guardian. This may differ according to the circumstances, times, and people, and this is the doing of those who have no guardian other than Him and no supporter other than Him. So they must receive it with acceptance, compliance, reverence, and veneration.

Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim in Al-Kuna, Ibn Adi and Ibn Asakir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The revelation would come down to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, at night and he would forget it during the day. So God revealed:

Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, We bring [one] better than it or similar to it. In its chain of transmission is Al-Hajjaj Al-Jazari, who can be consulted. Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar who said: "Two men from the Ansar recited a surah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had taught them, and they used to recite it. One night they stood up to recite it and prayed, but they could not find a letter of it. So they went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the morning, and he said: It is one of those things that were abrogated or forgotten, so forget about it." In its chain of transmission is Sulayman ibn Al-Arqaam, who is weak. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Asma' wa Al-Sifat narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Whatever verse We abrogate or cause to be forgotten, he said: What We change or leave, we do not change, We bring [one] better than it or similar to it, he said: It is better for you in terms of benefit and easier for you. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: We cause it to be forgotten means we delay it. Abu Dawud narrated in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Asma' wa'l-Sifat on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud regarding his statement: Whatever verse We abrogate, he said: We confirm its script and change its ruling. Or cause it to be forgotten, he said: We delay it. Abd bin Hamid and Abu Dawud in his Naskh and Ibn Jarir on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: And bring forth one better than it or similar to it, he says: It contains leniency, it contains a concession, it contains a command, it contains a prohibition. Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn al-Anbari in al-Masahif, and Abu Dharr al-Harawi in his Fada'il narrated on the authority of Abu Umamah ibn Sahl ibn Hunayf: "A man had a surah with him, so he got up at night and recited it but was not able to do it. Another got up and recited it but was not able to do it. Another got up and was not able to do it. They came in the morning and came to the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and gathered with him and informed him, so he said: It was abrogated last night." Something similar was narrated on his authority from another chain of transmission. It has been proven in Bukhari and others on the authority of Anas that God revealed about those who were killed in the Well of Ma'unah Inform our people that we have met our Lord, and He is pleased with us and He is pleased with us then it was abrogated. It has also been proven in Muslim and others on the authority of Abu Musa who said: We used to recite a surah that was similar in length and severity to Bara'ah, but I forgot it, except that I memorized from it If the son of Adam had two valleys full of wealth, he would seek a third valley, and nothing would fill his belly except dust. We used to recite a surah that was similar to one of the tasbihs, the beginning of which was: Glorify God, whatever is in the heavens, but we forgot it, except that I memorized from it: O you who believe, why do you say what you do not do? So it would be written as a testimony around your necks and you would be asked about it on the Day of Resurrection. Something similar to this has been narrated through a group of the Companions, including the verse of stoning as narrated by Abd al-Razzaq, Ahmad, and Ibn Hibban on the authority of Umar.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

107. "Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth, and that you have not, O group of disbelievers, besides God, any protector or helper, other than God ...

Tafsir al-Baidawi

107- Do you not know? The address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is him and his nation, because He said: And what is [the matter] with you? He only singled it out because He is the most knowledgeable of them and the source of their knowledge. That to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth. He does what He wills and rules as He wills, and it is like evidence for His saying: Indeed, God is over all things competent. Or for the permissibility of abrogation, and that is why He left out the conjunction. And you have not besides God any protector or helper. Rather, He is the One who owns your affairs and directs them in a way that is good for you. The difference between the protector and the helper is that the protector may be too weak to help, and the helper may be a stranger to the one being helped, so there is a generality between them in one respect.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:108

Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the soundness of the way.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:108

Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the soundness of the way.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Or rather do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked that is, his people asked him before by saying: Show us God openly and other than that And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief that is, takes it instead by abandoning consideration of the clear signs and suggesting others has certainly strayed from the right path has strayed from the right path and the right path is originally the middle way.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: Or do you want the verse K Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Rafi' bin Huraymila and Wahb bin Zaid said to the Messenger of God: O Muhammad, bring us a book that you send down to us from the sky so that we can read it, or cause rivers to flow for us so that we may follow you and believe you. So God revealed in that: Or do you want to ask your Messenger to the straight path?

Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Abu Yasser ibn Akhtab were among the Jews who were most envious of the Arabs because God had chosen them for His Messenger. They were striving to turn people away from Islam as much as they could, so God revealed about them the verse: Many of the People of the Book love you.

K and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: The Quraysh asked Muhammad to make Safa gold for them, so he said: Yes, and it is for you like the table for the Children of Israel if you disbelieve. So they refused and returned, so God revealed: Or do you want the verse?

And he narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi, who said: The Arabs asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to bring them God so that they could see Him openly, so this verse was revealed:

K and he narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah who said: A man said: O Messenger of God, if our expiations were like the expiations of the Children of Israel, then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: What God has given you is better than what the Children of Israel, when one of them committed a sin, would find it written on his door and its expiation. If he expiated it, it would be a disgrace for him in this world, and if he did not expiate it, it would be a disgrace for him in the Hereafter. And God has given you better than that. God Almighty said: And whoever does wrong or wrongs himself - the verse: And the five prayers and Friday to Friday are expiations for what is between them. So God revealed: Or do you want to ask your Messenger the verse?

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: Did the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, not know that God is capable of everything, and that He owns the heavens and the earth, until that was said to him?

It was said: Yes! Some of them used to say: This is from God, the Most High, as report that Muhammad knew that, but he made the speech and made it a statement, as the Arabs do in addressing one another. One of them would say to his companion: Did I not honor you? Did I not do you a favor? Meaning: informing him that he honored him and did him a favor, meaning: Did I not honor you? Did I not do you a favor? Meaning: I knew that.

Abu Ja'far said: This has no basis in our view. That is because the words of God, the Most High: Have you not known? only mean: Have you not known? It is a letter of denial with a letter of interrogation added to it, and letters of interrogation are only used in speech either in the sense of affirmation or in the sense of negation. As for the sense of affirmation, that is not known in the speech of the Arabs, especially when they are added to letters of denial. However, in my opinion, even though the address appears to be to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, it is only meant for his companions to whom God, the Most High, said: Do not say 'Ra'ina' but say 'Unzuma' and listen. What indicates that this is the case is the words of God, the Most High: And you have not besides God any protector or helper. Al-Baqarah 2:107, so He returned to address them at the end of the verse, and He began the beginning of it by addressing the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with His words: Did you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? Al-Baqarah 2:107. Because what is meant by that are those of his companions whose affair I described. This is a common and eloquent expression among the Arabs: that the speaker utters his speech as an address to some people while intending someone else, and as an address to one person while intending a group other than him, or a group and the addressee is one of them, and as an address to a group, while the intended one is one of them. From this is the statement of God, the Most High: O Prophet, fear God and do not obey the disbelievers and the hypocrites. Then He said: "And follow what is revealed to you from your Lord. Indeed, God is ever, with what you do, Acquainted." (al-Ahzab 33:1-2) So he returned to addressing the group, and the statement began by addressing the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Similar to this is the statement of Al-Kumait bin Zaid in praising the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace:

To the shining lamp Ahmed, neither desire nor fear equals me

From him to someone else, even if people raised their eyes and watched

It was said: You went too far! Rather, you intended, even if the speakers rebuked me or slandered me.

By preferring your tongue, even if you are noisy and stubborn

You are the pure, refined, refined one in relation, for the text of your people is relation.

So he directed his words to address the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he meant his family, so he used a metaphor for describing and praising them by mentioning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and for the Umayyads, as the harsh speakers. Because it is known that no one is described as harshly praising and preferring the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, nor as making much noise and obstinacy in going on at length about his virtue.

As Jamil bin Muammar said:

Behold, my neighbors are leaving this evening, called by the motives of passion and desire.

He said: Behold, my neighbors are here tonight. So he began the story about a group of his neighbors, then he said: I am going, because his intention in beginning what he began his speech with was to tell about one of them without their group, and as Jamil also said in his other statement:

My two friends, in all your lives, have you ever seen a dead person cry for love of his killer before me?

He means his killer, because he is only describing a woman, so he used the man's name to refer to her, even though he meant her.

Likewise, His statement: Do you not know that God has power over all things? Do you not know that God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? Even though the apparent meaning of the statement is to address the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, it is intended to mean his companions. This is clear from the evidence of His statement: "And you have not besides God any protector or helper. Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before?" (Al-Isra': 86), the three verses that follow indicate that this is the case.

As for his saying: To Him belongs the kingdom of the heavens and the earth, and he did not say: the kingdom of the heavens, then he meant by that the kingdom of the sultan and the kingdom without the king. And when the Arabs wanted to report on the kingdom that is the kingdom of the sultan, they said: God ruled the creation with a kingdom. And if they wanted to report on the kingdom, they said: So-and-so ruled this thing, so he owns it with a kingdom, a kingdom, and a king.

The interpretation of the verse is: Did you not know, O Muhammad, that I have the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and their authority, and no one else does? I rule in them and in what is in them as I will, and I command in them and in what is in them as I will, and I forbid what I will, and I abrogate, change, and alter from My rulings by which I rule over My servants what I will when I will, and I confirm from them what I will?

Although this report is from God Almighty, addressing His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the form of report about his greatness, it is from Him.

Glory be to Him, He is the One Who refuted the Jews who denied the abrogation of the rulings of the Torah, rejected the prophethood of Jesus, and denied Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, because they brought what they brought from God by changing what God changed of the rulings of the Torah. So God informed them that He has the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and their authority, for the creation is the people of His kingdom and obedience to Him, and they must listen to Him and obey His commands and prohibitions, and that He has the right to command them as He wills, and to forbid them from what He wills, and to abrogate what He wills, and to confirm what He wills, and to cause to be forgotten what He wills of His rulings, commands, and prohibitions. Then he said to his Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to the believers with him: Obey my command, and come to my obedience in what I abrogate, and in what I leave and do not abrogate, of my rulings, my limits, and my duties, and do not be frightened by the opposition of one who opposes you in my command, my prohibition, my abrogating and abrogated verses, for there is no one who can take charge of your affairs except me, and there is no one who can support you except me, and I am the one who is alone in your guardianship, and defending you, and the one who is alone in supporting you with my glory, authority, and power over whoever opposes you and opposes you, and sets up a war of enmity between him and you, until I raise your argument, and make it against them and for you.

The word wali means a verbal noun from the saying of the speaker: I took charge of the matter of so-and-so, if I became his guardian, then I am his guardian, he is his guardian and his guardian. And from that it was said: So-and-so is the crown prince of the Muslims, meaning: the one who takes charge of what is entrusted to him of the matter of the Muslims.

As for the supporter, it is a verbal noun derived from the word Nasir which means I supported you, I support you. So I am your supporter and your helper. It means the supporter and the strengthener.

As for the meaning of his saying: other than God, it means other than God, and after God. From this is the saying of Umayyah ibn Abi al-Salt:

O soul, you have no protector but God, and nothing remains in the events of time.

He means: You have no one but God, and after God, who can protect you from harm?

The meaning of the statement is: O believers, after God, you have no one to take care of your affairs, nor a supporter to support you and strengthen you, or to aid you against your enemies.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Or do you want? This is the disconnected umm which means rather, meaning rather you want, and the meaning of the speech is rebuke. That you ask is in the accusative case with want, as was asked the kaf is in the accusative case as an attribute of a source, meaning a question as. And Moses is in the nominative case as its agent was not named. From before: their asking him to show them God openly, and they asked Muhammad to bring God and the angels before them. From Ibn Abbas and Mujahid: they asked that Al-Safa be made into gold for them. Al-Hasan read as was flown, and this is according to the language of those who said: I asked, I ask, and it is permissible for it to be instead of the hamza a silent ya in a way that is not standard, so the seen before it was broken. Al-Nahhas said: The alternative of the hamza is far, and the middle of everything is: the middle. Abu Ubaidah Ma'mar ibn Al-Muthanna said this, and from it is his saying: in the middle of Hell. Isa bin Omar narrated: I kept writing until my limbs were exhausted, and he recited the words of Hassan mourning the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the soundness of the way.

Woe to the companions of the Prophet and his family after sunset in the midst of the atheists

It was said: The path is the right path, according to Al-Farra', meaning he went astray from the right path and its direction, meaning the path of obedience to God Almighty. And according to Ibn Abbas also: The reason for the revelation of this verse is that Rafi' bin Khuzaymah and Wahb bin Zaid said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Bring us a book from the heaven that we may read, and cause rivers to flow for us so that we may follow you.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

In this noble verse, God the Almighty forbade the believers from asking the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) too much about things before they happen, as God the Almighty said: "O you who have believed, do not ask about things which, if they are made known to you, will distress you. But if you ask about them when the Qur'an is being revealed, they will be made clear to you." That is, if you ask about their details after they are revealed, they will be made clear to you. Do not ask about something before it happens, for it may be forbidden because of that question. For this reason, it is stated in Sahih: The greatest sin of the Muslims is the one who asks about something that is not forbidden, but it is forbidden because of his question. When the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was asked about a man who finds a man with his wife, if he speaks, he speaks about a serious matter, and if he remains silent, he remains silent about something similar, so the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) disliked the questions and criticized them. Then God revealed the ruling of cursing. For this reason, it is established in the two Sahih, from the hadith of Al-Mughirah ibn Shu'bah: "The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) forbade idle talk, wasting money, and asking too many questions." In Sahih Muslim, it is said: "Leave me as I have left you, for those who came before you were destroyed because of their excessive questioning and disagreement with their prophets. So if I command you to do something, do as much of it as you can, and if I forbid you from something, avoid it." This was only said after he informed them, "That God had prescribed Hajj for them, and a man said every year: O Messenger of God? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was silent about him for three days, then he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No, and if I had said yes, it would have been obligatory, and if it had been obligatory, you would not have been able to do it. Then he said: Leave me as I have left you." This is why Anas bin Malik said: We were forbidden to ask the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about anything, so we liked it when a man from the desert came and asked him and we were listening. Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la al-Mawsili said in his Musnad: Abu Kurayb told us, Ishaq bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of Abu Sinan, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of al-Bara' bin Azib, who said: If a year would come upon me, I would want to ask the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about something, but I would be afraid of it, and we would wish for the Bedouins. Al-Bazzar said: Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Fadl told us, on the authority of Ata ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: I have never seen a people better than the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. They only asked him about twelve issues, all of which are in the Qur'an: They ask you about wine and gambling, "They ask you about the sacred month," and They ask you about orphans, meaning this and similar matters.

And the Almighty's saying: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? And no, rather you want, or it is in its place in the question, and it is a denial, and it includes the believers and the disbelievers, for he, peace be upon him, is the Messenger of God to everyone, as the Almighty said: "The People of the Scripture ask you to bring down to them a book from the heaven. But they asked Moses something greater than that, and they said, 'Show us God openly.' So the thunderbolt seized them because of their wrongdoing." Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Rafi' ibn Huraymila and Wahb ibn Zayd said: O Muhammad, bring us a book that you bring down to us from the heaven so that we may read it, and cause rivers to gush forth for us so that we may follow you and believe you. So God revealed from their saying: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the right path.

Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah regarding the words of God Almighty: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? He said: A man said: O Messenger of God, if our expiation were like the expiations of the Children of Israel, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O God, we do not seek it - three times - what God has given you is better than what He has given the Children of Israel. When one of the Children of Israel committed a sin, he would find it written on his door and its expiation. If he expiated it, it would be a disgrace for him in this world, and if he did not expiate it, it would be a disgrace for him in the Hereafter. So what God has given you is better than what He gave the Children of Israel." He said: And whoever does evil or wrongs himself but then seeks forgiveness from God, he will find God Forgiving and Merciful. He said: The five daily prayers and from one Friday to the next are expiation for what is between them. He said: "Whoever intends to do an evil but does not do it, it is not recorded against him, but if he does it, one evil is recorded for him, and whoever intends to do a good deed but does not do it, one good deed is recorded for him, and if he does it, ten times the like thereof is recorded for him. And none perishes with God except one who is perishing." So God revealed: "Or Do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? Mujahid said: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? That God should show them openly. He said: The Quraysh asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to make Safa gold for them. He said: Yes, and it is for you like the table for the Children of Israel. But they refused and went back. Al-Suddi and Qatadah said something similar to this, and God knows best. What is meant is that God condemned whoever asked the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, about something in a way that was obstinate and suggestive, as the Children of Israel asked Moses, peace be upon him, out of obstinacy, denial, and stubbornness. God Almighty said: "And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief," meaning whoever buys faith for disbelief, has certainly strayed from the right path, meaning he has strayed from the straight path into ignorance and misguidance. This is the case of those who turned away from believing in the prophets, following them and submitting to them, to opposing them and denying them, and suggesting to them questions that they do not need in a manner of obstinacy and disbelief, as God Almighty said: Have you not seen those who exchanged the favor of God for disbelief and settled their people in the home of destruction? Hell, they will burn in it, and wretched is the settlement. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Hardship is exchanged for ease.

Fath al-Qadir

108- Umm is the disconnected particle that means rather, meaning rather you want, and in this there is rebuke and reprimand, and the kaf in his saying: as he was asked is in the accusative case as an attribute of a deleted source: meaning a question that is similar to what Moses was asked before when they asked him to show them God openly, and they asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to come to God and the angels face to face. And his saying: Equally is the middle of everything, Abu Ubaidah said, and from it is the saying of God Almighty: In the midst of Hell and from it is the saying of Hassan mourning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Woe to the companions of the Prophet and his family after sunset in the midst of the atheists

Al-Farra' said: "Al-Sawa' is the intention: meaning he went astray from the intended path and his reputation: meaning the path of obedience to God."

Tafsir al-Baghawi

108. His statement: Or do you want to ask your Messenger? was revealed about the Jews when they said: O Muhammad, bring us a book from heaven in its entirety, just as Moses brought the Torah. So God Almighty said: Or do you want? meaning do you want? The mim is a connection. It was also said: Rather, you want to ask your Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, just as Moses was asked before. His people asked him: Show us God openly. It was also said: They asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they said: We will not believe you until you bring God and the angels face to face, just as Moses was asked by his people and they said: Show us God openly. In it is a prohibition on them from asking ugly questions after the evidence and proofs had appeared. And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief replaces faith with disbelief has certainly strayed from the right path he erred in the middle of the road. It was also said: He intended the right path.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

108-Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? Or is it equivalent to the hamza in did you not know? meaning: Did you not know that He is the Owner of all affairs, capable of all things, He commands and forbids as He wills, or do you know and suggest the question as the Jews suggested to Moses, peace be upon him? Or is it disconnected and what is meant is that he advises them to trust in Him and leave the suggestion to Him. It was said: It was revealed about the People of the Book when they asked that God send down a book from the sky to them. And it was said: About the polytheists when they said, We will not believe in your ascension until you bring down to us a book that we can read. "And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the right path." And whoever abandons trust in the clear verses and doubts them and suggests other than them, has strayed from the straight path until he fell into disbelief after faith. The meaning of the verse is: Do not suggest, lest you go astray from the middle of the path, and misguidance leads you far from the goal and exchanging faith for disbelief. It was read as yabadal from abdal.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:109

Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy from themselves [i.e., after the truth has become clear to them]. So pardon and overlook until Allah delivers His decision. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:109

Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy from themselves [i.e., after the truth has become clear to them]. So pardon and overlook until God delivers His decision. Indeed, God is over all things competent.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And many of the People of the Scripture wish that a source they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy an object for which there is from themselves that is, their evil selves led them to it after the truth has become clear to them in the Torah concerning the Prophet. So pardon them, that is, leave them and overlook turn away and do not punish them until God brings about His command concerning them of fighting. Indeed, God is over all things competent.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed about the reason for which this verse was revealed. Some of them said: Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Yunus ibn Bakir narrated to me, and Ibn Humayd narrated to us, he said: Salamah ibn al-Fadl narrated to us, they said: Ibn Ishaq narrated to us, he said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, the freed slave of Zayd ibn Thabit narrated to me, he said: Sa'id ibn Jubayr or 'Ikrimah narrated to me from Ibn 'Abbas: Rafi' ibn Huraymila and Wahb ibn Zayd said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: Bring us a book that you send down to us from the heaven so that we may read it, and cause rivers to gush forth for us, so that we may follow you and believe you! So God revealed regarding that from their statement: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? the verse.

Others said: Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? Moses was asking, and it was said to him: Show us God openly.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before, to show them God openly. So the Arabs asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to bring them God so that they could see Him openly.

Others said: Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before, that God should show them openly. So the Quraysh asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that God should make Safa into gold for them, he said: Yes! And it is for you like the table of the Children of Israel if you disbelieve! So they refused and went back.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: The Quraysh asked Muhammad to turn Safa into gold for them, and he said: Yes! It is for you like the table for the Children of Israel if you disbelieve! But they refused and went back, so God revealed: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? That is, to show them God openly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Others said: Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said: Ishaq narrated to us, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, he said: "A man said: O Messenger of God, if our expiations were the expiations of the Children of Israel! The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O God, we do not seek them! What God has given you is better than what He has given the Children of Israel. When one of the Children of Israel committed a sin, he would find it written on his door and its expiation. If he expiated it, it would be a disgrace for him in this world, and if he did not expiate it, it would be a disgrace for him in the Hereafter. God has given you better than what He gave the Children of Israel. He said: "And whoever does evil or wrongs himself but then seeks forgiveness from God will find God Forgiving and Merciful" (An-Nisa': 110). He said: And he said: The five daily prayers, and from Friday to Friday, are expiations for what is between them."

He said: "Whoever intends to do a good deed but does not do it, a good deed will be recorded for him. If he does it, ten times as much will be recorded for him. And none is lost to God except one who is lost."

Then God revealed: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before?

The Arab scholars differed on the meaning of umm in his statement: Or do you want? Some of the Basrans said: It means interrogation. The interpretation of the statement is: Do you want to ask your Messenger?

Others of them said: It has the meaning of a future interrogative that is disconnected from the speech, as if you are inclining it to its beginning, like the Arabs saying: Are they camels, O people, or sheep? And such and such happened, or is it my own intuition? He said: His saying: Or do you want is not based on doubt, but he said it to make their actions ugly. And he cited as evidence for his saying that the following verse by Al-Akhtal:

Did your eyes lie to you? Or did you see a shadow through the darkness of the night?

Some of the grammarians of Kufa said: If you wish, you can make his statement: Or do you want? an interrogative on a statement that preceded it, as God the Most High said: "Alif, Lam, Meem. The revelation of the Book, there is no doubt about it, from the Lord of the worlds. Or do they say, "He has invented it"?" (al-Sajdah 32:1-3). So Am came without an interrogative before it, so that was, in his view, evidence that it is an interrogative beginning on a statement that preceded it. The author of this statement said: Am in meaning is a response to the interrogative in two ways: One of them is to separate the meaning of any, and the other is that it is used to ask questions, so it is in the manner of sequence, and what is intended by it is the beginning, except that it is an beginning connected to a statement. So if you start a statement that has no words before it, then ask questions, there is no need for the letter alif or hal.

He said: If you wish, you can say in his statement: Or do you want? There is a question before it, so respond to it. It is in his statement: Do you not know that God has power over all things? (al-Baqarah 2:106).

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, in my opinion, based on what the narrations that we have mentioned from the people of interpretation have brought, is that it is a question of beginning, meaning: Do you want, O people, to ask your Messenger? It is permissible for the people to ask with am, even though one of the conditions of am is that it be a sequence in the question to precede what precedes it from speech, because it is a question of beginning if it is preceded by a previous speech. And it was not heard from the Arabs to ask with it and not preceded by speech. Similar to it is the statement of the Most High: "The revelation of the Book about which there is no doubt is from the Lord of the worlds. Or do they say, 'He has invented it'?" (al-Sajdah 32:1-3).

Umm may mean rather, if it is preceded by a question that does not fit any. So they say: Do you have a right over us, or are you a man known for injustice? The poet said:

By God, I don't know! Is it Aslami who has become arrogant, or is it sleep, or is it all my beloved?

Meaning: Rather, all of my beloved ones are mine.

Some of them used to say, denying the statement of those who claimed that the word am in His statement, Or do you want? is a future interrogative that is disconnected from the speech, and that it inclines them to its beginning: The first is a predicate, and the second is an interrogative, and the interrogative does not occur in the predicate, and the predicate does not occur in the interrogative, but doubt overcame him, according to his claim, after the predicate had passed, so he asked. Abu Ja'far said: If the meaning of am is what we have described, then the interpretation of the statement is: Do you want, O people, to ask your Messenger for things similar to what the people of Moses asked before you, so you become disbelievers if you deny him in your question what it is not permissible in God's wisdom to give you, or that you perish if it is permissible in His wisdom to give you, so He gave it to you, then you disbelieved after that, just as the nations before you perished who asked their prophets for what they could not ask of them, and when they were given it, they disbelieved, so they were hastened with punishments for their disbelief, after God gave them what they asked for.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And whoever exchanges disbelief for faith.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: And whoever exchanges, and whoever exchanges disbelief, and the Sunnah of disbelief is denying God and His signs, with faith, meaning believing in God and His signs and acknowledging Him.

It has been said: What is meant by disbelief in this place is hardship, and by faith is ease. I do not know the hardship in the meanings of disbelief, nor ease in the meaning of faith, unless the one who said that meant by his interpretation of disbelief in the meaning of hardship in this place, and by his interpretation of faith in the meaning of ease: what God has prepared for the disbelievers in the Hereafter of hardships, and what God has prepared for the people of faith in it of bliss, so that would be a face, even if it is far from the concept understood by the apparent address. Mention of those who said that:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah: And whoever exchanges disbelief for faith, he says: He exchanges hardship for ease.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hasan told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Jaafar, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, similarly.

And in His statement: And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the right path, there is clear evidence for what we have said: that these verses of His statement: O you who have believed, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' are an address from God, the Most High, to the believers among the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a rebuke from Him to them for a matter that had happened in the past, which the Jews were pleased with, and which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, disliked for them, so God disliked it for them, so He rebuked them for that, and informed them that the Jews are people of deceit, envy, and aggression, and that they wish them harm and seek to cause them calamities, and He forbade them from seeking their advice, and He informed them that whoever among them apostatizes from his religion and exchanges his faith for disbelief has strayed from the right path.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: He has strayed from the right path.

Abu Ja'far said: As for his saying: He has gone astray, he means by it: he has gone and deviated. The root of straying from something is to depart from it and deviate, then it is used for something that is lost, and something that is not paid attention to, like their saying about a lazy man who has no mention or notableness:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:109

Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy from themselves [i.e., after the truth has become clear to them]. So pardon and overlook until Allah delivers His decision. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.

He has gone astray, son of lost, and said, son of said. And like the saying of Al-Akhtal, about something that has perished:

I was the speck in a murky, foaming wave, the one who brought it threw it as a gift of misguidance.

Meaning: He perished and went away.

What God Almighty meant by His saying: He has strayed from the right path, is that he has gone astray from the right path and deviated from it.

As for the interpretation of his saying: The straight path, he means by straight the intention and the method. The root of straight is the middle. It was reported on the authority of Isa bin Omar the grammarian that he said: I continued writing until my straight path was cut off, meaning: my middle path. Hassan bin Thabit said:

Woe to the supporters of the Prophet and his descendants after sunset in the midst of the atheists

It means in the middle. The Arabs say: He is in the middle of the path, meaning at the level of the path. And the level of the ground, according to them, is its level.

As for the path, it is the paved road, changed from paved to path.

The interpretation of the statement is: Whoever replaces faith in God and His Messenger with disbelief, and turns away from his religion, has deviated from the path and its clear and established middle way.

This statement appears to be a report about the removal of the one who exchanges faith for disbelief from the path, and what is meant by it is the report about him that he abandoned the religion of God which He has chosen for His servants, and made it a path for them to shed to His pleasure, and a way to take to His love and to win His gardens. So He, the Most High, made the path which if one takes His path and walks on it, and adheres to its middle and passes through it, he will be saved and achieve his need, and attain what he seeks for His religion to which He called His servants, for example, for them to attain, by adhering to it and following it, their desires in their afterlife, like the one who attains the necessary path of the path, by adhering to it, his desire for salvation from it, and reaching the place he headed to and intended. And He made the example of the one who deviates from his religion, who is unjust in following what He called him to of worship, in his failure to attain what he hoped to attain through his work in the Hereafter and attain through it in his afterlife, and his departure from what he hoped for of the reward of his work, and his distance from it from his Lord, like the example of the one who deviates from the path and the intention of the way, who does not increase in his wrath in the direction he took, except that he increases in distance from the place of his need, and from the place he headed to and wanted further away.

This path that God has informed us about, that whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has gone astray, is the straight path, which He has commanded us to ask for guidance to, saying: Guide us to the straight path, the path of those upon whom You have bestowed favor (al-Fatihah 1:6-7).

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy from themselves [out of] themselves [after the truth has become clear to them]. There are two issues in this:

The first: wish means to wish, and it was mentioned before. Disbelievers is the second object of they return you. "From yourselves" is said to be related to wish. It is also said to be related to envy, so the pause is at his saying: disbelievers. And envy is the object for it, meaning they wished that out of envy, or a source that what preceded it indicated the action. The meaning of from themselves is from their own accord, without finding it in a book or being commanded to do so. The word envy gives this, meaning from their own selves, as confirmation and obligation, as God Almighty said: They say with their mouths, "And no bird flies with its wings". The verse is about the Jews.

Second: Envy is of two types: blameworthy and praiseworthy. The blameworthy type is to wish for the removal of God's blessing from your Muslim brother, regardless of whether you wish for it to return to you or not. This is the type that God the Most High has condemned in His Book when He says, Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? It is only blameworthy because it belittles the Truth, glory be to Him, and that He bestowed a blessing on someone who does not deserve it. As for the praiseworthy type, it is what came in the authentic hadith from his saying, peace be upon him:

"There is no envy except in two cases: a man to whom God has given the Qur'an and he recites it during the night and during the day, and a man to whom God has given wealth and he spends it during the night and during the day." This envy means envy. Al-Bukhari also titled it the chapter on envy in knowledge and wisdom. Its true meaning is: that you wish to have what your Muslim brother has of goodness and blessings and that his goodness not be taken away from him. It may be permissible to call this competition, as in the saying of God the Almighty: And for this let the competitors compete. "After the truth has become clear to them" meaning after the truth has become clear to them, which is Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, and the Qur'an that he brought.

The Almighty's saying: So pardon and overlook contains two issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: So pardon. The original is afūwū. The damma was deleted because of its heaviness, then the waw was deleted because of the meeting of two quiescent letters. Pardon means leaving the blame for a sin. Forgiveness means removing its effect from the soul. You pardoned someone if you turned away from his sin. You turned away from him if you turned away from him and left him. From this is the Almighty's saying: Should We then turn away from you the Reminder?

Second: This verse was abrogated by the statement, Fight those who do not believe until the statement, submissive, on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It was said that what abrogated it was Kill the polytheists. Abu Ubaidah said: Every verse in which fighting is not mentioned is Meccan and abrogated by fighting. Ibn Atiyyah said: His ruling that this verse is Meccan is weak, because the Jews' opposition only occurred in Medina.

I said: It is correct. Al-Bukhari and Muslim narrated on the authority of Usamah ibn Zayd: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, rode on a donkey wearing a Fadak cloak, and Usamah was behind him, visiting Sa'd ibn 'Ubadah in Banu al-Harith ibn al-Khazraj before the Battle of Badr. They traveled until they passed by a gathering in which 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul was present - and that was before 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy had converted to Islam - and in the gathering there was a mixture of Muslims, idolaters, and Jews, and among the Muslims was 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah. When the dust of the animal covered the gathering, 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah covered his nose with his cloak and said: Do not dust us! The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, greeted them, then he stood up and got off, and called them to God the Most High and recited the Qur'an to them. 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul said to him: O man, I do not like what you say if it is true! Do not bother us with it in our gatherings. Go back to your man, and whoever comes, tell him. 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah said: Yes, O Messenger of God, and cover us in our gatherings, for we like that. The polytheists, Muslims and Jews were so angry that they almost quarreled. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, kept calming them down until they calmed down. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mounted his mount and rode until he entered upon Sa'd ibn 'Ubadah. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Sa'd, did you not hear what Abu Hubab said - meaning 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy - he said such and such. He said: "O Messenger of God, may my father and mother be sacrificed for you! Forgive him and pardon him, for by He who sent down the Book to you, God has brought the truth that He sent down to you. The people of this lake agreed to crown him and tie him with a headband. When God returned that with the truth that He gave you, he was pleased with that. That is what you saw happening. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pardoned him."

The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions would pardon the polytheists and the People of the Book as God the Almighty commanded them, and they would be patient in the face of harm. God the Almighty said: And you will surely hear much abuse from those who were given the Scripture before you and from those who associate others with God. And He said: Many of the People of the Scripture wish that they would be pardoned. So the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) interpreted his pardon of them as God had commanded him to do until He gave him permission to deal with them. When the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) fought the Battle of Badr, God killed the leaders of the infidels and the chiefs of Quraysh who He had killed, and the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions returned victorious and triumphant, with captives from the leaders of the infidels and the chiefs of Quraysh. Abdullah bin Ubayy bin Salul and the polytheists and idol worshippers who were with him said: This is a matter that has been decided, so they pledged allegiance to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) to Islam, and they became Muslims.

The Almighty said: Until God brings about His command meaning Banu Qurayzah and the expulsion of Banu Nadir. "Indeed, God is over all things competent. And establish prayer and give zakah" has been presented. And praise be to God Almighty.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty warns His believing servants against following the path of the infidels from the People of the Book, and He informs them of their enmity towards them inwardly and outwardly, and what they contain of envy towards the believers, despite their knowledge of their virtue and the virtue of their Prophet, and He commands His believing servants to forgive, pardon and endure, until the command of God comes of victory and conquest, and He commands them to establish prayer and pay zakat, and He urges them to do so and encourages them to do so, as Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Abu Yasir ibn Akhtab were among the Jews who were most envious of the Arabs, since God had singled them out for His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they were striving to turn people away from Islam as much as they could, so God revealed about them, Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back 1:13. And Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of al-Zuhri, in his saying, the Most High: And many of the People of the Scripture wish that they could turn you back, he said: He is Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Shu'ayb told us on the authority of al-Zuhri, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abdullah ibn Ka'b ibn Malik told me, on the authority of his father, that Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf the Jew was a poet, and he used to satirize the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And regarding him, God revealed: And many of the People of the Scripture wish that they could turn you back, to His saying: So pardon and overlook. And

Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy from themselves [i.e., after the truth has become clear to them]. So pardon and overlook until Allah delivers His decision. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.

al-Dahhak said: On the authority of Ibn Abbas, that an illiterate Messenger would inform them of what was in their hands of books, messengers, and verses, then he would believe in all of that just as they believed in it, but they denied it out of disbelief, envy, and malice. And likewise God the Most High said: Disbelievers, out of envy from themselves after the truth had become clear to them, meaning after the truth had become clear to them, they were not ignorant of anything of it, but envy led them to deny, so He reproached them, rebuked them, and blamed them most severely, and He prescribed for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And for the believers, what they are upon of belief, faith and acknowledgment of what God has revealed to them, and what was revealed before them, with His honor and abundant reward and His assistance to them. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said, From themselves from themselves, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said, After the truth has become clear to them, after it became clear that Muhammad is the Messenger of God, they find him written with them in the Torah and the Gospel, so they disbelieved in him out of envy and malice, since he was from someone other than them, and so said Qatada and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, and His statement, So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command, is like His statement, the Most High, And you will surely hear from those who were given the Scripture before you and from those who associate others with God, much abuse 1:13. Ali bin Abi Talha said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command, that was abrogated by His statement, Then kill the polytheists wherever you find them, and His statement, Fight those who do not believe in God or in the Last Day, until His statement, while they are subdued, so this abrogated His pardon of the polytheists, and so said Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Qatadah and Al-Suddi said that it was abrogated by the verse of the sword. This is also indicated by the words of God the Almighty: until God brings about His command. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us: Abu Al-Yaman told us: Shu'aib told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri: Urwah bin Al-Zubayr told me that Usamah bin Zaid told him: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and his companions used to forgive the polytheists and the People of the Book, as God commanded them, and they used to be patient in the face of harm. God the Almighty said: "So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command. Indeed, God is over all things competent." The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) used to interpret forgiveness as what God commanded him to do, until God permitted killing them, and God killed those of the leaders of Quraysh who He killed. The chain of transmission of this hadith is sound, but I have not seen it in any of the six books, but it has a basis in the two Sahihs on the authority of Usamah bin Zaid. And the Almighty's saying: And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves - you will find it with God, urges them to occupy themselves with what benefits them and will be rewarded for it on the Day of Resurrection, such as establishing prayer and giving zakat, so that God will grant them victory in this worldly life and on the Day when the witnesses will stand, The Day when the wrongdoers' excuses will not benefit them, and they will have the curse, and they will have the worst home, and for this reason the Almighty said: Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do, meaning that the Almighty does not neglect the work of a worker, nor does it go to waste with Him, whether it is good or evil, for He will reward every worker for his work. Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: In the words of God Almighty: Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do, this is report from God to those believers whom He addressed with these verses, that whatever good or evil they do, secretly or openly, He is Seeing of it and nothing is hidden from Him, so He rewards them for good with good, and for evil with the same. And this statement, even though it was presented in the form of report, contains a promise and a threat, a command and a warning, and that is because He informed the people that He is Seeing of all their deeds, so that they may find in His obedience since that is stored up for them with Him, until He rewards them for it, as God Almighty said: And whatever good you send forth for yourselves, you will find it with God, and so that they may beware of disobeying Him. He said: As for His words Seeing, then it is Seeing, diverted to Seeing, just as He diverted Creator to Innovator, and Painful to Painful, and God knows best. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Ibn Bakir told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told me, on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, on the authority of Abu al-Khair, on the authority of Uqbah ibn Amir, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was reciting this verse: All-Hearing, All-Seeing, saying: All-Seeing of all things.

Fath al-Qadir

And the Almighty's saying: 109- And many of the People of the Scripture wish informs the Muslims of the Jews' eagerness to tempt them and turn them away from Islam and cast doubt on their religion. And His saying: If only they could turn you back is in the accusative case as the object of the mentioned verb. And His saying: From themselves may be related to His saying wish meaning they wished that from themselves, and it may be related to His saying: Out of envy meaning envy arising from themselves, and it is the reason for His saying: wish. Pardon: is to leave off being held accountable for a sin. And forgiveness: is to remove its effect from the soul. I forgave someone: if I turned away from his sin, and I turned away from him: if I turned away from him, and in it is encouragement to do that and guidance towards it - and that was abrogated by the command to fight, said Abu Ubaidah. His saying: Until God brings about His command is the ultimate command of God Almighty regarding forgiveness and pardon: that is, do that until the command comes to you from God Almighty regarding their matter, as He chooses and desires, and as He has decreed in His previous work, which is to kill whoever of them was killed, to exile whoever was killed for my sake, to impose the jizya on whoever was imposed it, and to convert whoever converted to Islam.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

109. The Almighty said: Many of the People of the Scripture wish The verse was revealed about a group of Jews who said to Hudhayfah ibn al-Yaman and Ammar ibn Yasir after the Battle of Uhud 11: If you were on the truth, you would not have been defeated. So return to our religion, for we are more guided than you. Ammar said to them: How can we break a covenant with you? They said: Severe. He said: Severe. He said: I have vowed not to disbelieve in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as long as I live. The Jews said: As for this one, he has converted to Islam. Hudhayfah said: As for me, I am satisfied with God as my Lord, Muhammad as my Prophet, Islam as my religion, the Qur'an as my Imam, the Kaaba as my Qiblah, and the believers as my brothers. Then they came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and informed him of that. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: You have both achieved goodness and succeeded. Then God Almighty revealed: And many of the People of the Scripture wish meaning many of the People of the Scripture among the Jews wished and wanted that they could turn you back O company of believers to disbelievers after you have believed, out of envy accusative of the source, meaning they envy you out of envy from themselves meaning from their own volition and God did not command them to do that, after the truth has become clear to them in the Torah that the words of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, were true and his religion was true. So pardon so leave and overlook and overlook. Pardon means erasure, and overlooking means turning away. This was before the verse of fighting until God brings about His command with His punishment: killing and capturing the children of Israel. Qurayzah, and the expulsion and banishment of Banu Nadir, as Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said. Qatada said: It is his command to fight them in his saying: Fight those who do not believe in God or in the Last Day until his saying: and they will be humbled 29-Tawbah. Ibn Kaysan said: With his knowledge and judgment on them, he judged some of them to Islam and some of them to be killed, taken captive and paid the jizyah. Indeed, God is over all things competent.

their desires, not because of religiousness and inclination towards the truth. Or out of envy, meaning extreme envy emanating from the origin of their souls after the truth has become clear to them through the miracles and attributes mentioned in the Torah. So pardon and overlook pardon is leaving the punishment of the sinner, and pardon is leaving the reproach of him until God brings about His command which is permission to fight them and impose the jizyah on them, or to kill Banu Qurayzah and expel Banu Nadir. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, that it was abrogated by the verse of the sword, and there is a consideration in it because the command is not absolute, Indeed, God is over all things competent, so He is able to take revenge on them.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

109- And many of the People of the Scripture wish meaning their rabbis that they would turn you back, for if replaces in in meaning but not in wording: after you have believed, as disbelievers apostates, and it is a state of the pronoun of the addressees out of envy the reason for wish. From themselves may be related to wish, meaning they wished that from themselves and

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:110

And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves - you will find it with Allah. Indeed, Allah is Seeing of what you do.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:110

And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves - you will find it with God. Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves obedience such as kinship and charity you will find it meaning its reward (with God. Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do) so He will reward you for it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This statement is made clear by the words of God, the Most High, that His address in all these verses, from His saying: O you who believe, do not say, 'Ra'ina' and even if He diverted the speech in Himself to addressing the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is only an address from Him to the believers among his companions, and a rebuke from Him to them, and a prohibition against seeking the advice of the Jews and their counterparts from the people of polytheism and accepting their opinions in any of the matters of their religion, and evidence that they used, or some of them used, in their address and questioning of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, harshness, and what he was not allowed to use with him, following the example of the Jews in that or some of them. So their Lord said to them, forbidding them from using that: Do not say to your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as the Jews say to him: Ra'ina! Rather, say: Look at us and listen, for harming the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is disbelief in me and denial of my right that is due to me upon you to honor and respect him. And for those who disbelieve in me is a painful punishment. The Jews and the polytheists do not wish that any good should descend upon you from your Lord, but many of them wish that they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, out of envy from themselves for you and for your Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, after the truth has become clear to them regarding Muhammad and that he is a Prophet to them and to all of My creation.

It has been said that God Almighty meant Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf when He said: Many of the People of the Scripture wish that they would have been saved.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, regarding his statement: And many of the People of the Book wished, he is Ka'b bin al-Ashraf.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said,

Abu Sufyan Al-Maamari told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Al-Zuhri and Qatadah: Many of the People of the Book wished, he said: Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf.

Some of them said: Ibn Humayd told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told us, and Abu Kurayb told us, Yunus ibn Bakir told us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told us, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, the client of Zayd ibn Thabit told me, Saeed ibn Jubayr told me, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Huyay ibn Akhtab and Abu Yasir ibn Akhtab were among the Jews who were most envious of the Arabs, since God had singled them out for His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace. They were striving to turn people away from Islam as much as they could, so God revealed about them: Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back Al-Bukhari and Muslim.

Abu Ja'far said: The statement of the one who said, And many of the People of the Scripture wish refers to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, does not have a clear meaning. This is because Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf is one person, and God, the Most High, has informed us that many of them wish that they could turn the believers back to disbelief after their belief. One person is not called many, in the sense of being numerous in number, unless the one who said that meant by the manner of the abundance with which God described the one with whom He described him in this verse, abundance in honor and high status among his people and clan, as it is said: So-and-so is numerous among the people, meaning abundance in status and rank. If he meant that, then he made a mistake, because God, the Most High, has described them with the description of a group, saying, If they could turn you back to disbelief out of envy after you have believed, so that is evidence that he meant abundance in number. Or he may have thought that it is a statement that is taken as a report about a group, and what is meant by the report about him is one person, similar to what we said earlier in the verse of Jamil, in which case that would also be a mistake. This is because if the speech has that meaning, then there must be an indication in it that indicates that this is its meaning, and there is no indication in his saying: And many of the People of the Book wish that what is meant by it is one person rather than a large group, so it is permissible to divert the interpretation of the verse to that, and to refer its apparent evidence to something other than what is most common in usage.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Out of envy from themselves.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may He be glorified, means by His saying, out of envy from themselves, is that many of the People of the Book wish for the believers what God, may He be glorified, informed us about them wishing for them, of apostasy from their faith to disbelief, out of envy and malice towards them.

Envy is not an adjective for the disbelievers, but rather a verbal noun that comes outside the meaning of the speech whose wording differs from the verbal noun, like when someone says to another: I wished for you what I wished of evil out of envy on my part for you. Envy is a verbal noun from the meaning of his saying: I wished for evil. Because in his saying: I wished that for you, there is a meaning: I envied you for that. So, envy is in the verbal noun, because in his saying: Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back to disbelief after you have believed, there is a meaning: The People of the Scripture envied you for what God gave you of success, and bestowed upon you of guidance for His religion and belief in His Messenger, and He made you special with it by making His Messenger to you a man from among you, kind and merciful to you, and He did not make him one of them so that you would be followers of them. So his saying: out of envy is a verbal noun from that meaning.

As for his saying: from themselves, he means by that: from their own selves, just as someone says: I have such and such with you, meaning: I have before you, and just as: I was told by Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas, his saying: from their own selves, he said: from their own selves.

God Almighty informed the believers about them that they wished that for the believers, from themselves, informing them that they were not commanded to do that in their book, and that they do what they do of that with knowledge of God's prohibition of it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: After the truth has become clear to them.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: After the truth has become clear to them, is after it became clear to these many of the People of the Book who wish to turn you back as disbelievers after your belief in the truth regarding the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought from his Lord, and the religion to which he called, so that it became clear to them that this is the truth about which they have no doubt, as Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: After the truth has become clear to them, after it became clear to them that Muhammad is the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Islam is the religion of God.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: After the truth became clear to them, he says: It became clear to them that Muhammad is the Messenger of God, and they find it written with them in the Torah and the Gospel.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', similarly, and he added to it: So they disbelieved in him out of envy and malice, since he was not from them.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: After the truth became clear to them, he said: The truth is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so it became clear to them that he is the Messenger.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: After the truth became clear to them, he said: It became clear to them that he was the Messenger of God.

Abu Ja'far said: His statement indicates that the disbelief of those whose story he related in this verse in God and His Messenger was out of stubbornness, and with their knowledge and awareness that they were lying about God, as Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Uthman bin Sa'id told us, he said, Bishr bin 'Amara told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: After the truth has become clear to them, God Almighty says: After the truth has become clear to them, they were not ignorant of anything of it, but envy led them to deny. So God reproached them, blamed them, and rebuked them with the most severe reproach.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command.

Abu Ja'far said: By His saying, So pardon, He, the Most High, meant that you should overlook their wrongdoing and mistakes in their opinion that they suggested to you regarding your religion, intending to turn you away from it and trying to make you apostatize after your faith, and what they said to your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Hear, but do not listen, and beware of their tongues and their attack on the religion (An-Nisa': 46). And overlook their ignorance in that until God brings His command, and He will bring about for you from His command what He wills regarding you, and He will decide regarding them what He wills. So He, the Most High, judged regarding them and brought His command, and He said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to the believers in Him: "Fight those who do not believe in God and in the Last Day and who do not consider unlawful what God and His Messenger have forbidden and who do not adopt the religion of truth from among those who were given the Scripture until they pay the jizyah with willing submission" (al-Tawbah 9:29). So God, the Most High, abrogated the pardon and forgiveness of them by imposing fighting them on the believers, until their word becomes one with the word of the believers, or they pay the jizyah with their own hands, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement: "So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command. Indeed, God is over all things competent," and this was abrogated by his statement: Then kill the polytheists wherever you find them (al-Tawbah 9:5).

Bishr ibn Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command? So God brought about His command and said: Fight those who do not believe in God or in the Last Day (al-Tawbah 9:29), until he reached while they are humbled (al-Tawbah 9:29), meaning: humbled and as a punishment for them. So this verse abrogated what came before it: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:110

And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves - you will find it with Allah. Indeed, Allah is Seeing of what you do.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding His statement: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His decision, he said: Pardon the People of the Book until God brings about a decision. Then God brought about a decision after that, and said: Fight those who do not believe in God or in the Last Day until while they are subdued (al-Tawbah 9:29).

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command, he said: It was abrogated by: Kill the polytheists wherever you find them (al-Tawbah 9:5).

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command. He said: This is abrogated, abrogated by: Fight those who do not believe in God or in the Last Day until His saying, while they are subdued (al-Tawbah 9:29).

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is over all things competent.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously demonstrated the meaning of Al-Qadir, which is the Strong.

The meaning of the verse here is: God is able to do whatever He wills with regard to those whose situation I have described to you from the People of the Book and others. If He wills, He will take revenge on them for their stubbornness towards their Lord, and if He wills, He will guide them to what God has guided you to of faith. Nothing He wills is difficult for Him, and nothing He wills to carry out is difficult for Him, because He has the creation and the command.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: And whatever good you send forward for yourselves, you will find it with God. It was stated in the hadith:

When a servant dies, the people say, 'What did he leave behind?' and the angels say, 'What did he send forward?' Al-Bukhari and Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abdullah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Which of you loves the wealth of his heir more than his own wealth? They said: O Messenger of God, there is none of us but loves his wealth more than the wealth of his heir. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There is none of you but loves the wealth of his heir more than his own wealth. Your wealth is what you have sent forward, and the wealth of your heir is what you have delayed." The wording of al-Nasa'i. The wording of al-Bukhari: Abdullah said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Which of you loves the wealth of his heirs more than his own wealth? They said: O Messenger of God, there is none among us who does not love his wealth more. He said: His wealth is what he has sent forward, and the wealth of his heirs is what he has left behind. Then Umar ibn al-Khattab may God be pleased with him passed by Baqi' al-Gharqad and said: "Peace be upon you, people of the graves. What report do we have? Your women have married, your houses have been inhabited, and your wealth has been divided." A voice answered him: O Ibn al-Khattab, what report do we have? What we sent forward we have found, what we spent we have gained, and what we left behind we have lost. The speaker spoke well:

Do good deeds before your death and work, for there is no way to immortality.

Another said:

May you have a repentance that is hoped for before death and before tongues are silenced.

Another said:

I gave birth to you when your mother gave birth to you crying and the people around you laughed with joy

So work for a day when, when they weep over your death, you will be laughing and happy.

Another said:

Be the first to do good and take the initiative, for what you know is behind you.

And do good, for every person will do good for what he has done.

Better than all of this is what Abu Al-Atahiya said:

Be happy with your money in your life, but there will remain behind you a reformer or a corruptor

If it is left to a corrupt person, it will not remain, and the brother of righteousness, even a little, will increase.

If you can, be your own heir, for death itself is a guide.

God is All-Seeing of what you do.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty warns His believing servants against following the path of the infidels from the People of the Book, and He informs them of their enmity towards them inwardly and outwardly, and what they contain of envy towards the believers, despite their knowledge of their virtue and the virtue of their Prophet, and He commands His believing servants to forgive, pardon and endure, until the command of God comes of victory and conquest, and He commands them to establish prayer and pay zakat, and He urges them to do so and encourages them to do so, as Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Abu Yasir ibn Akhtab were among the Jews who were most envious of the Arabs, since God had singled them out for His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they were striving to turn people away from Islam as much as they could, so God revealed about them, Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back 1:13. And Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of al-Zuhri, in his saying, the Most High: And many of the People of the Scripture wish that they could turn you back, he said: He is Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Shu'ayb told us on the authority of al-Zuhri, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abdullah ibn Ka'b ibn Malik told me, on the authority of his father, that Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf the Jew was a poet, and he used to satirize the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And regarding him, God revealed: And many of the People of the Scripture wish that they could turn you back, to His saying: So pardon and overlook. And al-Dahhak said: On the authority of Ibn Abbas, that an illiterate Messenger would inform them of what was in their hands of books, messengers, and verses, then he would believe in all of that just as they believed in it, but they denied it out of disbelief, envy, and malice. And likewise God the Most High said: Disbelievers, out of envy from themselves after the truth had become clear to them, meaning after the truth had become clear to them, they were not ignorant of anything of it, but envy led them to deny, so He reproached them, rebuked them, and blamed them most severely, and He prescribed for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And for the believers, what they are upon of belief, faith and acknowledgment of what God has revealed to them, and what was revealed before them, with His honor and abundant reward and His assistance to them. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said, From themselves from themselves, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said, After the truth has become clear to them, after it became clear that Muhammad is the Messenger of God, they find him written with them in the Torah and the Gospel, so they disbelieved in him out of envy and malice, since he was from someone other than them, and so said Qatada and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, and His statement, So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command, is like His statement, the Most High, And you will surely hear from those who were given the Scripture before you and from those who associate others with God, much abuse 1:13. Ali bin Abi Talha said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command, that was abrogated by His statement, Then kill the polytheists wherever you find them, and His statement, Fight those who do not believe in God or in the Last Day, until His statement, while they are subdued, so this abrogated His pardon of the polytheists, and so said Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Qatadah and Al-Suddi said that it was abrogated by the verse of the sword. This is also indicated by the words of God the Almighty: until God brings about His command. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us: Abu Al-Yaman told us: Shu'aib told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri: Urwah bin Al-Zubayr told me that Usamah bin Zaid told him: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and his companions used to forgive the polytheists and the People of the Book, as God commanded them, and they used to be patient in the face of harm. God the Almighty said: "So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command. Indeed, God is over all things competent." The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) used to interpret forgiveness as what God commanded him to do, until God permitted killing them, and God killed those of the leaders of Quraysh who He killed. The chain of transmission of this hadith is sound, but I have not seen it in any of the six books, but it has a basis in the two Sahihis on the authority of Usamah bin Zaid. And the Almighty's saying: And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves - you will find it with God, urges them to occupy themselves with what benefits them and will be rewarded for it on the Day of Resurrection, such as establishing prayer and giving zakat, so that God will grant them victory in this worldly life and on the Day when the witnesses will stand, The Day when the wrongdoers' excuses will not benefit them, and they will have the curse, and they will have the worst home, and for this reason the Almighty said: Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do, meaning that the Almighty does not neglect the work of a worker, nor does it go to waste with Him, whether it is good or evil, for He will reward every worker for his work. Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: In the words of God Almighty: Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do, this is report from God to those believers whom He addressed with these verses, that whatever good or evil they do, secretly or openly, He is Seeing of it and nothing is hidden from Him, so He rewards them for good with good, and for evil with the same. And this statement, even though it was presented in the form of report, contains a promise and a threat, a command and a warning, and that is because He informed the people that He is Seeing of all their deeds, so that they may find in His obedience since that is stored up for them with Him, until He rewards them for it, as God Almighty said: And whatever good you send forth for yourselves, you will find it with God, and so that they may beware of disobeying Him. He said: As for His words Seeing, then it is Seeing, diverted to Seeing, just as He diverted Creator to Innovator, and Painful to Painful, and God knows best. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Ibn Bakir told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told me, on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, on the authority of Abu al-Khair, on the authority of Uqbah ibn Amir, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was reciting this verse: All-Hearing, All-Seeing, saying: All-Seeing of all things.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 110- And establish prayer is an urging from God Almighty to them to occupy themselves with what benefits them and brings them benefit, such as establishing prayer and paying zakat. And providing good for which they will be rewarded so that God may empower them and grant them victory over those who oppose them.

Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Rafi' ibn Huraymila

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:110

And establish prayer and give zakat, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves - you will find it with Allah. Indeed, Allah is Seeing of what you do.

and Wahb ibn Zayd said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, bring us a book that can be sent down to us from the sky so that we can read it, or cause rivers to gush forth for us so that we may follow you and believe you. So God revealed concerning that: Or do you want to ask your Messenger - to His saying - the right way. Huyayy ibn Akhtab was one of the Jews who was most envious of the Arabs because God and His Messenger had singled them out. They were striving to turn people away from Islam as much as they could, so God revealed concerning them: Many of the People of the Scripture wish al-Baqarah 2:17. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of al-Suddi that he said: The Arabs asked Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to bring them God so that they could see Him openly, so this verse was revealed. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah who said: A man said: If our expiation were the expiations of the Children of Israel, then the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "What God has given you is better. When one of the Children of Israel committed a sin, he would find it written on his door and its expiation. If he expiated it, he would have disgrace in this world, and if he did not expiate it, he would have disgrace in the Hereafter. God has given you better than that. He said: "And whoever does evil or wrongs himself" (al-Baqarah 2:17), and the five daily prayers, and Friday to Friday are expiations for what is between them." Then God revealed: Or do you want to ask your Messenger? (al-Baqarah 2:17). Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: The Quraysh asked Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him) to make Safa into gold for them, so he said: Yes, and it is for you like the table for the Children of Israel if you disbelieve. But they refused and returned, so God revealed: Or do you want to ask your Messenger as Moses was asked before? that he would show them God openly. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding his statement: And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief, he said: He exchanges hardship for ease. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement: He has certainly strayed from the right path, he said: He has deviated from the path. Abu Dawud, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi in al-Dala'il narrated on the authority of Ka'b ibn Malik who said: The Jews and polytheists of Medina used to harm the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions severely, so God commanded us to be patient with that and to forgive them. God revealed, Many of the People of the Scripture wish al-Bukhari and Muslim and in the two Sahih and others on the authority of Usamah ibn Zayd who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions used to forgive the polytheists and the People of the Scripture as God commanded them and they used to be patient with the harm. God the Most High said, And you will surely hear much abuse from those who were given the Scripture before you and from those who associate others with God. And He said, Many of the People of the Scripture wish they could turn you back al-Dala'il. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to interpret the forgiveness as God commanded him to do until God permitted killing them, and God killed those of the leaders of Quraysh who were killed because of it. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas regarding His statement, from themselves, he said: from themselves, "after the truth has become clear to them," meaning that Muhammad is the Messenger of God. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Qatada. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Dala'il narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: So pardon and overlook and his statement: And turn away from the polytheists something similar to this regarding pardoning the polytheists. He said: All of that was abrogated by his statement: Fight those who do not believe in God and the verse, and his statement: Then kill the polytheists wherever you find them. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi something similar. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair regarding his statement: And whatever good you put forward for yourselves meaning of good deeds in this world. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding his statement: You will find it with God he said: You will find its reward.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

110. And establish prayer and give zakah, and whatever good you put forward for yourselves, you will find it with God. It was said that what he meant by good is money, as in the Almighty's saying, If he leaves behind any good 180-Al-Baqarah, and what he meant by zakah and charity, you will find it with God, even the fruit and the morsel, like Uhud. Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

110- And establish prayer and give zakat is in apposition to so forgive as if he ordered them to be patient, disobedient, and seek refuge in God Almighty through worship and righteousness. And whatever good you put forward for yourselves such as prayer and charity. Prepare is read from prepare "you will find it with God" meaning its reward.

God is Seeing of what you do. No work is lost with Him. It was read with the letter ya and it is a warning.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:111

And they say, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. Those are their wishful thoughts. Say, Produce your proof, if you should be truthful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(And they say, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. The Jews of Medina and the Christians of Najran said that when they debated before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. That is, the Jews said, None will enter it except the Jews, and the Christians said, None will enter it except the Christians. (That) statement is their wishful thinking their vain desires. Say to them, Produce your proof your arguments for that if you should be truthful in it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: We have previously demonstrated the meaning of establishing prayer, and that it is performing it within its limits and obligations, and the interpretation of prayer and its origin, and the meaning of giving zakat, and that it is giving it willingly as it was imposed and obligatory, and the meaning of zakat and the differences of those who differ about it, and the evidence indicating the correctness of the statement that we have chosen in that, which makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this situation.

As for His statement: And whatever good you send forth for yourselves, you will find it with God, He, the Most High, means by that: Whatever righteous deeds you do during the days of your life, and send them forth before your death as a reserve for yourselves in your afterlife, you will find its reward with your Lord on the Day of Resurrection, and He will reward you for it.

Good is the work that pleases God. He said, You will find it, and the meaning is: You will find its reward, as I was told by Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', his saying, You will find it, means: You will find its reward with God.

Abu Jaafar said: Because the listeners of that do not need any clear evidence of the intended meaning, as Omar bin Luja said:

And the city swam, do not blame it for seeing the moon in their market during the day, but rather he meant: And the people of the city swam.

Rather, He, the Most High, commanded them in this place with what He commanded them to do, of establishing prayer, paying zakat, and offering good deeds for themselves, so that they would be purified thereby from the mistake they had made in seeking advice from the Jews, and those who had relied on them, and those who had been rude to them, in addressing the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, by saying: Pay attention to us, since establishing prayer was an expiation for sins, and paying zakat was a purification of souls and bodies from the filth of sins, and in offering good deeds was attaining the attainment of God's pleasure.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is Seeing of what you do.

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God, may He be glorified, to those believers whom He addressed with these verses, that whatever good or evil they do, secretly or openly, He is All-Seeing of it and nothing is hidden from Him, so He will reward them for good with good, and for evil with the same.

This statement, even though it was issued in the form of a report, contains a promise, a threat, a command, and a warning. That is because He informed the people that He is All-Seeing of all their deeds, so that they would find in His obedience, since that was stored up for them with Him until He rewarded them for it, as He said: And whatever good you send forth for yourselves, you will find it with God. And so that they would beware of disobeying Him, since He was aware of its rider, after He had sent it to him with the threat against it. And whatever our Lord, may He be glorified, has threatened against is forbidden, and whatever He has promised against is commanded.

As for his saying: All-Seeing, it is that All-Seeing was changed to All-Seeing, just as Creative was changed to Innovative and Painful was changed to Painful.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "And they say, 'None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew or a Christian.' Those are their wishful thoughts. Say, 'Produce your proof, if you should be truthful.'"

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty shows the deception of the Jews and Christians in what they are in, as each group of Jews and Christians claimed that no one will enter Paradise except those who follow their religion, as God informed us about them in Surat Al-Ma'idah, that they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved, so God the Almighty belied them by what He told them that He would punish them for their sins, and if they were as they claimed, the matter would not have been like that, and as mentioned before from their claim, that the fire will not touch them except for a few days, then they will move to Paradise, and God responded to them in that, and thus He said to them in this claim that they claimed without evidence, argument or proof, so He said: Those are their wishful thinking, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Wishful thinking that they wished from God without right, and so did Qatadah and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, then God the Almighty said: Say meaning O Muhammad, Bring your proof, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Al-Suddi and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: Your proof, and Qatadah said: Your proof for that: If you are truthful, meaning in what you claim, then He said God the Almighty said: Yes, whoever submits his face to God and is a doer of good, meaning whoever sincerely works for God alone, with no partner for Him, as God the Almighty said: But if they argue with you, say, 'I have submitted my face to God, and whoever follows me,' verse. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' said: Yes, whoever submits his face to God, meaning whoever is sincere to God. Saeed bin Jubair said: Yes, whoever submits, sincerely his face, meaning his religion, and is a doer of good, meaning he follows the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, in it. For an accepted deed, there are two conditions: one of them is that it be correct and sincerely for God alone, and the other is that it be correct and in accordance with the Shari'ah. So whenever it is sincere but not correct, it is not accepted. For this reason, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever does a deed that is not in accordance with our command, it is rejected. Narrated by Muslim from the hadith of Aisha from him, may God bless him and grant him peace. So the work of monks and those like them, even if it is assumed that they are sincere in it for God, it is not accepted from them, until it is in following the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, who was sent to them and to all people, and about them and their likes God the Almighty said: And We will present to them whatever deeds they have done and make them as scattered dust. And God the Almighty said: And those who disbelieve - their deeds are like a mirage in a lowland which a thirsty person thinks is water until, when he comes to it, he finds it is nothing. And God the Almighty said: Some faces that Day will be humbled, toiling and exhausted, burning in a blazing Fire, given to drink from a boiling spring. It was narrated on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Umar, may God be pleased with him, that he interpreted it in reference to monks, as will come. However, if the deed is in accordance with the Shari'ah, in its outward appearance, but its doer does not sincerely intend God, then it is also rejected by its doer, and this is the case of hypocrites and ostentatious people, as God the Almighty said: "Indeed, the hypocrites seek to deceive God, but it is He who will deceive them. And when they stand up for prayer, they stand lazily, showing off to the people and not remembering God except a little." And God the Almighty said: So woe to those who pray, who are heedless of their prayer, who are showing off, and withhold aid. For this reason God the Almighty said: "So whoever hopes for the meeting with his Lord - let him do righteous work and not associate in the worship of his Lord No one. And He said in this noble verse: "Yes, whoever submits his face to God while he is a doer of good." And His statement: "Then they will have their reward with their Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve." The Almighty guaranteed them for that the attainment of rewards, and He secured them from what they fear of the forbidden. So there is no fear upon them in what they will face, nor will they grieve over what has passed of what they will leave behind, as Saeed bin Jubair said, So there is no fear upon them meaning in the Hereafter, nor will they grieve meaning they will not grieve over death.

And they say, "None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian." Those are their wishful thoughts. Say, "Produce your proof, if you should be truthful."

And the Almighty said: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture, with which the Almighty showed their contradiction, hatred, enmity, and stubbornness, as Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When the Christians of Najran came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, the Jewish rabbis came to them and they disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Rafi' ibn Huraymila said: 'You are not upon anything,' and he disbelieved in Jesus and the Gospel. And a Christian man from Najran said to the Jews: 'You are not upon anything,' and he denied the prophethood of Moses and disbelieved in the Torah. So God revealed regarding their statement: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture, meaning that each one recites in his book a confirmation of the one who disbelieved in him, that the Jews disbelieved in Jesus while they had the Torah, in which was what God took from them on the tongue of Moses to confirm. In Jesus and in the Gospel what Jesus brought by confirming Moses, and what came from the Torah from God, and each one disbelieves in what is in the hand of his companion, and Mujahid said in his interpretation of this verse: The first Jews and Christians were on something, but they innovated and split up, "And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not on anything.' " He said: Yes, the first Jews were on something, but they innovated and split up, and from him is another narration like the saying of Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' bin Anas in his interpretation of this verse: "And the Jews said, 'The Christians are not on anything.' " And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not on anything.' " These are the People of the Book who were at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this statement requires that each of the two groups was truthful in what it accused the other group of, but the apparent context of the verse requires that they be blamed for what they said, despite their knowledge of the opposite, and for this reason God Almighty said: And they recite the Book, meaning while they know the law of the Torah and the Gospel, each of which was permissible at one time, but they contradicted each other out of stubbornness, disbelief, and in opposition to the corrupt, as mentioned previously from Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Qatadah in the first narration from him in its interpretation, and God knows best. His statement: Thus said those who do not know, like their statement, shows the ignorance of the Jews and Christians in what they said to each other, and this is from the category of allusion and indication. There is a difference of opinion as to who is meant by the statement of God the Almighty: Those who do not know. Al-Rabi' bin Anas and Qatadah said: Thus said those who do not know, and they said: And the Christians said like the Jews said and said. Ibn

Jurayj said: I said to Ata', who are these who do not know? He said that nations existed before the Jews and Christians and before the Torah and the Gospel. Al-Suddi also said, Those who do not know said, meaning the Arabs. They said that Muhammad is not on anything. Abu Jaafar bin Jarir chose that it is general and suitable for all, and there is no conclusive evidence to specify one of these statements. It is more appropriate to apply it to all, and God knows best. And the Almighty's saying, Then God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ, means that God Almighty will gather them on the Day of Resurrection and will separate them with His just judgment, in which He will not be unjust or oppressive, even the weight of an atom. This verse is like the Almighty's saying in Surat Al-Hajj, "Indeed, those who believed and those who were Jews or Sabeans or Christians or Magians or polytheists—God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, God is, over all things, Witness." And as God Almighty said, "Say, 'Our Lord will gather us together, then He will judge between us in truth. And He is the Opener, the Knowing.'"

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 111- Hud Al-Farra' said: It is possible that Hud means a Jew, or that it is the plural of Ha'id. Al-Akhfash said: The singular pronoun in kana is he in consideration of the word min, and the plural in his saying: Hud is in consideration of the meaning of min. It was said: There is an omission in this statement, and its original form is: And the Jews said: No one will enter Paradise except he who is Jewish, and the Christians said: No one will enter Paradise except he who is Christian. This is what many of the commentators said, and some of the predecessors preceded them in that. The apparent structure of the Qur'an is that this statement was made by the two sects of the Jews and Christians and that they are unique in this regard, and the reason for this statement is that there is an omission in the speech of what is known, that each sect of these two sects misleads the other and denies that they have anything of religion, let alone entering Paradise, as in this place, for God has narrated about the Jews that they said: The Christians are not on anything, and they said: The Christians are not on anything, and the Jews are not on anything. The interpretation of the wishes has been given above, and the reference in His saying that is to what preceded them from the wishes, the last of which is that none will enter Paradise except them. It was said: The reference is to this last wish, and the estimation is similar to that wish, their wishes, with the omission of the complement to match their wishes. His saying: Bring is originally Bring and the damma was omitted due to its heaviness, then the ya was omitted due to the meeting of two quiescent letters. It is said for the singular masculine Haat and for the feminine Haati, and it is a sound meaning bring. The proof is the evidence by which certainty is achieved. Ibn Jarir said: Seeking evidence here requires proving the theory and responding to those who deny it. And his saying: If you are truthful means in those abstract hopes and false claims.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

111 - His statement, And they said, 'None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew,' meaning a Jew. Al-Farra' said: The extra ya' was deleted and the verb was returned to the Jewishness. Al-Akhfash said: Hood is the plural of ha'id, like a'id and ud, and ha'il and hawl, or Christians, because the Jews said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew and there is no religion except the religion of Judaism. The Christians said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Christian and there is no religion except the religion of Christianity.

It was said: It was revealed about the delegation of Najran, who were Christians and gathered in the council of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the Jews, and some of them lied. God Almighty said: Those are their desires, meaning their false desires that they wished for from God without right. Say, O Muhammad, bring, its root is bring, "your proof," your argument for what you claim, if you are truthful.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

111- And they said is in apposition to and wished, and the pronoun refers to the People of the Book, the Jews and Christians. None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian is a conjunction between the statements of the two groups as in the Almighty's saying: And they said, Be Jews or Christians trusting in the understanding of the listener, and Hawd is the plural of Ha'idh like A'wadh and A'idh, and the singularity of the implied noun in Kan" and the plural of the predicate is due to the consideration of the word and meaning. "Those are their wishes" is a reference to the aforementioned wishes, which is that no good will descend upon the believers from their Lord, and that such wishes are their wishes, and the sentence is an interjection and the wish is a verbal noun from the verb "to wish like adhookah and ajubah". "Say, Bring your proof for your exclusivity to enter Paradise. If you are truthful in your claim, because every statement without evidence is not proven.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:112

Yes, whoever submits his face to Allah while he is a doer of good will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:112

Yes, whoever submits his face to God while he is a doer of good will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Yes others will enter Paradise whoever submits his face to God that is, submits to His command, and He singled out the face because it is the most honorable of the limbs, so others are more deserving and is a doer of good a monotheist he will have his reward with his Lord that is, the reward for his work is Paradise and there will be no fear concerning them, nor will they grieve in the Hereafter.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His saying: And they said, and the Jews and Christians said, He will not enter Paradise.

If someone were to say: How were the Jews and Christians combined in this report, given the difference in the statements of the two groups? The Jews prevent the Christians from having a share in the reward of God, and the Christians prevent the Jews from the same? It was said: The meaning of that is different from what you have gone to. Rather, what he meant by it is: And the Jews said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew? And the Christians said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Christian. But the meaning of the statement, since its meaning was understood by those addressed by it, the two groups were combined in the report about them, so it was said: "They said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian" the verse, meaning the Jews said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew, and the Christians said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Christian.

As for his saying: Whoever is Hud, there are two opinions about Hud 11: One of them is that it is the plural of Ha'id, as came 'Awt is the plural of 'A'it, and 'A'udhah is the plural of 'A'idh, and 'Hawl' is the plural of Ha'il, so it is a plural for the masculine and feminine with one word. And Ha'id is the repentant one who returns to the truth.

The other: that it be a source for everyone, as it is said a man who fasts, and people who fast, and a man who breaks his fast, and people who break their fast, and women who break their fast.

It has been said that his saying, Except for those who are Jews, is actually his saying, Except for those who are Jews, but he deleted the extra ya and reverted to the verb from Jewishness. It has also been said that in Abu's reading it is: Except for those who are Jews or Christians. We have previously explained the meaning of Christians, and why they were called that and pluralized in that way, so there is no need to repeat it.

As for his saying: Those are their wishful thinking, it is report from God Almighty about the saying of those who said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, that they are wishful thinking from them that they wish from God without right, argument, proof, or certain knowledge of the truth of what they claim, but rather through false supplications and the wishful thinking of false souls, as: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: Those are their wishful thinking, wishful thinking that they wish from God that is false.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Those are their desires. He said: Desires: they wished from God something that was not right.

Say in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Say, 'Produce your proof, if you should be truthful.'

Abu Ja'far said: This is a command from God, the Most High, to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to call those who said: None shall enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, to a just command between all sects: Muslims, Jews, and Christians, which is to establish proof for their claim that they claimed: that none shall enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. God says to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, say to those who claim that none shall enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, and none other than them from among the rest of humanity: Bring your proof, for what you claim about that, and we will accept your claim if you are right in your claim that none shall enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian.

And proof is the statement, argument, and evidence, as: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Bring your proof, bring your evidence.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Bring your proof bring your argument.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: "Say: Bring your proof," he said: Your argument.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Say, 'Bring forth your proof,' meaning your argument.

Abu Ja'far said: Although this statement appears to be the apparent supplication of those who say, None shall enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, to bring proof for their claim, it means that God has denied their claim and what they said, because they were never able to bring proof for their claim. His statement, Yes, whoever submits his face to God while he is a doer of good, makes clear that what we have mentioned of the statement means that God has denied the Jews and Christians in their claim and what God has said about them.

As for the interpretation of his saying: Say, 'Bring your proof,' it means: bring it and produce it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "Yes, whoever submits his face to God while being a doer of good will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve."

God the Almighty said: And they say, 'None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew or a Christian.' The meaning is: The Jews said, None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew. And the Christians said, None will enter Paradise except one who is a Christian. Al-Farra' permitted Hood to mean Jewish, with the redundant word removed, and it to be the plural of Ha'id. Al-Akhfash Sa'id said: Except for whoever was made kan singular in the form of man, then he said Hood, making it plural, because the meaning of man is plural. Those are their desires is also permissible, and this has been discussed previously. Praise be to God.

God the Almighty said: "Say: Bring your proof." The root of hatawa is hatiwa. The damma was dropped because it was heavy, then the ya was dropped because of the meeting of two quiescent letters. It is said for a singular masculine: hat, like ram, and for a feminine: hatti, like ramy. Proof is the evidence that establishes certainty. Its plural is baraheen, like qurban and qurbani, and sultan and sultans. Al-Tabari said: Seeking proof here requires establishing the view and responding to those who deny it. If you are truthful, meaning in your faith or in your saying that you will enter Paradise, meaning explain what you said with proof. Then God the Almighty said: Yes, in response to them and belying them, meaning it is not as you say. It was said: Yes, he who submits his face to God means he who submits is he who submits and submits. It was also said that he who does his work sincerely. The face was mentioned specifically because it is the most honorable thing that can be seen in a person, and because it is the seat of the senses, and in it glory and humiliation appear. The Arabs use the word face to describe the whole thing, and it is correct that the face in this verse is the intended meaning. And He is a doer of good is a sentence in the position of a state, and the pronoun in his face and for him is in the form of from and that is his reward and it is in upon them in the meaning, and likewise in they grieve and it has been mentioned before.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty shows the deception of the Jews and Christians in what they are in, as each group of Jews and Christians claimed that no one will enter Paradise except those who follow their religion, as God informed us about them in Surat Al-Ma'idah, that they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved, so God the Almighty belied them by what He told them that He would punish them for their sins, and if they were as they claimed, the matter would not have been like that, and as mentioned before from their claim, that the fire will not touch them except for a few days, then they will move to Paradise, and God responded to them in that, and thus He said to them in this claim that they claimed without evidence, argument or proof, so He said: Those are their wishful thinking, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Wishful thinking that they wished from God without right, and so did Qatadah and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, then God the Almighty said: Say meaning O Muhammad, Bring your proof, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Al-Suddi and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: Your proof, and Qatadah said: Your proof for that: If you are truthful, meaning in what you claim, then He said God the Almighty said: Yes, whoever submits his face to God and is a doer of good, meaning whoever sincerely works for God alone, with no partner for Him, as God the Almighty said: But if they argue with you, say, 'I have submitted my face to God, and whoever follows me,' verse. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' said: Yes, whoever submits his face to God, meaning whoever is sincere to God. Saeed bin Jubair said: Yes, whoever submits, sincerely his face, meaning his religion, and is a doer of good, meaning he follows the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, in it. For an accepted deed, there are two conditions: one of them is that it be correct and sincerely for God alone, and the other is that it be correct and in accordance with the Shari'ah. So whenever it is sincere but not correct, it is not accepted. For this reason, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever does a deed that is not in accordance with our command, it is rejected. Narrated by Muslim from the hadith of Aisha from him, may God bless him and grant him peace. So the work of monks and those like them, even if it is assumed that they are sincere in it for God, it is not accepted from them, until it is in following the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, who was sent to them and to all people, and about them and their likes God the Almighty said: And We will present to them whatever deeds they have done and make them as scattered dust. And God the Almighty said: And those who disbelieve - their deeds are like a mirage in a lowland which a thirsty person thinks is water until, when he comes to it, he finds it is nothing. And God the Almighty said: Some faces that Day will be humbled, toiling and exhausted, burning in a blazing Fire, given to drink from a boiling spring. It was narrated on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Umar, may God be pleased with him, that he interpreted it in reference to monks, as will come. However, if the deed is in accordance with the Shari'ah, in its outward appearance, but its doer does not sincerely intend God, then it is also rejected by its doer, and this is the case of hypocrites and ostentatious people, as God the Almighty said: "Indeed, the hypocrites seek to deceive God, but it is He who will deceive them. And when they stand up for prayer, they stand lazily, showing off to the people and not remembering God except a little." And God the Almighty said: So woe to those who pray, who are heedless of their prayer, who are showing off, and withhold aid. For this reason God the Almighty said: "So whoever hopes for the meeting with his Lord - let him do righteous work and not associate in the worship of his Lord No one. And He said in this noble verse: "Yes, whoever submits his face to God while he is a doer of good." And His statement: "Then they will have their reward with their Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve." The Almighty guaranteed them for that the attainment of rewards, and He secured them from what they fear of the forbidden. So there is no fear upon them in what they will face, nor will they grieve over what has passed of what they will leave behind, as Saeed bin Jubair said, So there is no fear upon them meaning in the Hereafter, nor will they grieve meaning they will not grieve over death.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:112

Yes, whoever submits his face to Allah while he is a doer of good will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve.

And the Almighty said: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture, with which the Almighty showed their contradiction, hatred, enmity, and stubbornness, as Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When the Christians of Najran came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, the Jewish rabbis came to them and they disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Rafi' ibn Huraymila said: 'You are not upon anything,' and he disbelieved in Jesus and the Gospel. And a Christian man from Najran said to the Jews: 'You are not upon anything,' and he denied the prophethood of Moses and disbelieved in the Torah. So God revealed regarding their statement: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture, meaning that each one recites in his book a confirmation of the one who disbelieved in him, that the Jews disbelieved in Jesus while they had the Torah, in which was what God took from them on the tongue of Moses to confirm. In Jesus and in the Gospel what Jesus brought by confirming Moses, and what came from the Torah from God, and each one disbelieves in what is in the hand of his companion, and Mujahid said in his interpretation of this verse: The first Jews and Christians were on something, but they innovated and split up, "And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not on anything.' " He said: Yes, the first Jews were on something, but they innovated and split up, and from him is another narration like the saying of Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' bin Anas in his interpretation of this verse: "And the Jews said, 'The Christians are not on anything.' And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not on anything.' " These are the People of the Book who were at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this statement requires that each of the two groups was truthful in what it accused the other group of, but the apparent context of the verse requires that they be blamed for what they said, despite their knowledge of the opposite, and for this reason God Almighty said: And they recite the Book, meaning while they know the law of the Torah and the Gospel, each of which was permissible at one time, but they contradicted each other out of stubbornness, disbelief, and in opposition to the corrupt, as mentioned previously from Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Qatadah in the first narration from him in its interpretation, and God knows best. His statement: Thus said those who do not know, like their statement, shows the ignorance of the Jews and Christians in what they said to each other, and this is from the category of allusion and indication. There is a difference of opinion as to who is meant by the statement of God the Almighty: Those who do not know. Al-Rabi' bin Anas and Qatadah said: Thus said those who do not know, and they said: And the Christians said like the Jews said and said. Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata', who are these who do not know? He said that nations existed before the Jews and Christians and before the Torah and the Gospel. Al-Suddi also said, Those who do not know said, meaning the Arabs. They said that Muhammad is not on anything. Abu Jaafar bin Jarir chose that it is general and suitable for all, and there is no conclusive evidence to specify one of these statements. It is more appropriate to apply it to all, and God knows best. And the Almighty's saying, Then God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ, means that God Almighty will gather them on the Day of Resurrection and will separate them with His just judgment, in which He will not be unjust or oppressive, even the weight of an atom. This verse is like the Almighty's saying in Surat Al-Hajj, "Indeed, those who believed and those who were Jews or Sabeans or Christians or Magians or polytheists—God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, God is, over all things, Witness." And as God Almighty said, "Say, 'Our Lord will gather us together, then He will judge between us in truth. And He is the Opener, the Knowing.'"

Fath al-Qadir

Then he responded to them and said: 112- Yes, whoever submits and this is an affirmation of what they denied about others entering Paradise: that is, it is not as they say, but whoever submits to God will enter it. The meaning of submitting is surrendering, and it was said: sincere. The face was mentioned specifically because it is the most honorable thing that can be seen of a person and because it is the location of the apparent senses, and in it honor and humiliation appear. It was said: The Arabs describe the face as a whole, and that the meaning here is the face and other things. It was said: What is meant by the face here is the purpose: that is, whoever sincerely intends it. His saying: And he is a doer of good is in the accusative case as a state, and the pronoun in his saying: His face is and for him in consideration of the word from, and in his saying: upon them in consideration of its meaning. And his saying: from if it is the relative, then it is the subject of an omitted verb, that is, yes, whoever submits will enter it. His saying: For him is connected to whoever converts to Islam, even if it is a conditional clause. His saying: For him is the reward, and the combination of the condition and the reward is a response to the People of the Book and a nullification of that claim.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

112- Then he said in response to them, Yes, whoever submits his face meaning that the matter is not as they said, rather the ruling is for Islam, and only he who submits his face to God will enter Paradise, meaning that he sincerely devoted his religion to God. It was said: sincerely devoted his worship to God. It was said: humbled himself and was humble to God. The origin of Islam is submission and humility, and the face was singled out because if he is generous with his face in prostration, he will not be stingy with the rest of his limbs and he is a doer of good in his work. It was said: a believer. It was said: sincere. "Then he will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

112- Bala is proof of what they denied about others entering Paradise Whoever submits his face to God sincerely devotes himself to Him, or his intention, and its origin is the limb and is a doer of good in his work then he will have his reward which was promised to him for his work with his Lord fixed from his Lord, it will not be lost or diminished, and the sentence is the answer to man if it is conditional and its predicate if it is relative. The fa in it is because it includes the meaning of the condition, so the response is by saying: Bala alone, and it is good to stop on it. It is permissible for man aslam to be the subject of an implied verb like Bala whoever submits will enter it and there will be no fear upon them, nor will they grieve in the Hereafter.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:113

And the Jews say, "The Christians are not upon anything," and the Christians say, "The Jews are not upon anything," while they recite the Scripture. Thus say those who do not know, like their statement. So Allah will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:113

And the Jews say, The Christians are not upon anything, and the Christians say, The Jews are not upon anything, while they recite the Scripture. Thus say those who do not know, like their statement. So God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And the Jews said, The Christians are not upon anything that is to be taken seriously and they disbelieved in Jesus And the Christians said, The Jews are not upon anything that is to be taken seriously and they disbelieved in Moses And they that is, the two groups recite the Scripture that was revealed to them, and in the Scripture of the Jews is the belief in Jesus, and in the Scripture of the Christians is the belief in Moses, and the sentence is a condition Likewise as these said Those who do not know said that is, the polytheists from among the Arabs and others Like their saying an explanation of the meaning of that: that is, they said to every person of religion that they are not upon anything So God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ of the matter of religion, so He will admit the one who is right to Paradise and the one who is wrong to Hell.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And the Jews said, the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When the Christians of Najran came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace,

The rabbis of the Jews came to them and they disputed. Rafi' ibn Khuzaymah said, You are on nothing, and he disbelieved in Jesus and the Gospel. Then a man from Najran said to the Jews, You are on nothing, and he denied the prophethood of Moses and disbelieved in the Torah. So God revealed about that, and the Jews said, The Christians are on nothing, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: Yes, whoever submits, is that it is not as those who claim: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, but rather whoever submits his face to God and is a doer of good, he is the one who will enter it and enjoy it, as: Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, he said: He informed them that whoever enters Paradise is the one who submits his face to God, the verse.

We have explained the meaning of bala previously.

As for his saying: Whoever submits his face to God, what he means by submitting his face is humility to His obedience and submission to His command. The root of Islam is submission, because it is from I submit to His command, which is obedience to His command. And the Muslim is called a Muslim because of the submission of his limbs to the obedience of his Lord, as Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Yes, whoever submits his face to God, he says: He is sincere to God.

As Zaid bin Amr bin Nufail said:

I surrender my face to the one to whom the rain clouds surrender, carrying pure sweet water.

He means by that: I surrendered to the obedience of the one to whom the clouds surrendered to their obedience and submitted to him.

God, the Most High, singled out the one who He spoke about with His saying: Yes, he who submits his face to God, by submitting his face to Him without the rest of his limbs, because the most honorable of the limbs and organs of the son of Adam is his face, and it is the greatest of them in sanctity and right over him. So if he submits to something his face, which is the most honorable part of his body to him, then the rest of his body is more likely to be more submissive to it. Therefore, the Arabs mention in their logic the report about the thing and add it to his face, and by that they mean the thing itself and its identity, like the saying of Al-A'sha:

I interpret the judgment according to its face, not my judgment based on unjust whims

He means by his saying: on its face, on what it is in terms of its health and correctness, as Dhu al-Rummah said:

So I complied with my concern, and the face of Basil was cleared of the matter, leaving no trace of its disappearance.

He means: And the puzzle was revealed from the matter, so it became clear, and what is similar to that, since the beauty and ugliness of everything was in its face, and in describing the face of a thing with what it describes, there was clarification of the essence of the thing and its self. So likewise the meaning of His statement, may He be glorified: Yes, whoever submits his face to God, only means: Yes, whoever submits his body to God, so his body submits to Him in obedience, and he is a good person in his submission to Him with his body, then he has his reward with his Lord. So He was satisfied with mentioning the face instead of mentioning his body, because the speech indicates the meaning intended by mentioning the face.

As for his saying: And he is a doer of good, he means by that: in a state of his doing good. The interpretation of the statement is: Yes, whoever sincerely devotes his obedience to God and his worship of Him, doing good in that action.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then he will have his reward with his Lord, and no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: Then he will have his reward with his Lord, is that the Muslim who submits to God and does good will have his reward and recompense for his Islam and obedience to his Lord with God in the Hereafter.

What he means by his saying: And there is no fear for them is that the Muslims will face God while they are doing good, sincere in religion to Him in the Hereafter from His punishment and the torment of His Hellfire, and from what they have done of their deeds.

What he means by his saying: nor will they grieve, is that they will not grieve over what they left behind in this world, nor will they be prevented from the bliss that God has prepared for the people of His obedience.

Rather, He, the Most High, said: And there is no fear for them, nor shall they grieve, and He had said before: Then he will have his reward with his Lord, because the of in His statement: Yes, whoever submits his face to God is in one wording and the meaning of all, so the singularity in His statement: Then he will have his reward is for the wording, and the plural in His statement: And there is no fear for them is for the meaning.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: "And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' while they recite the Scripture. Thus say those who do not know the same as they say. So God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ."

It means that each group of them claimed that the other was not doing anything, and that he was more deserving of God's mercy than him.

And they recite the Book means the Torah and the Gospel, and the sentence is in the position of a circumstantial. What is meant by those who do not know according to the majority is the Arab disbelievers, because they do not have a book. Ata' said: What is meant are nations that existed before the Jews and Christians. Al-Rabi' bin Anas: The meaning is that the Jews said the same before the Christians. Ibn Abbas.

The people of Najran came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Jewish rabbis came to them. They disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and each group of them said to the other: You have nothing, so the verse was revealed.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty shows the deception of the Jews and Christians in what they are in, as each group of Jews and Christians claimed that no one will enter Paradise except those who follow their religion, as God informed us about them in Surat Al-Ma'idah, that they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved, so God the Almighty belied them by what He told them that He would punish them for their sins, and if they were as they claimed, the matter would not have been like that, and as mentioned before from their claim, that the fire will not touch them except for a few days, then they will move to Paradise, and God responded to them in that, and thus He said to them in this claim that they claimed without evidence, argument or proof, so He said: Those are their wishful thinking, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Wishful thinking that they wished from God without right, and so did Qatadah and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, then God the Almighty said: Say meaning O Muhammad, Bring your proof, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Al-Suddi and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: Your proof, and Qatadah said: Your proof for that: If you are truthful, meaning in what you claim, then He said God the Almighty said: Yes, whoever submits his face to God and is a doer of good, meaning whoever sincerely works for God alone, with no partner for Him, as God the Almighty said: But if they argue with you, say, 'I have submitted my face to God, and whoever follows me,' verse. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' said: Yes, whoever submits his face to God, meaning whoever is sincere to God. Saeed bin Jubair said: Yes, whoever submits, sincerely his face, meaning his religion, and is a doer of good, meaning he follows the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, in it. For an accepted deed, there are two conditions: one of them is that it be correct and sincerely for God alone, and the other is that it be correct and in accordance with the Shari'ah. So whenever it is sincere but not correct, it is not accepted. For this reason, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever does a deed that is not in accordance with our command, it is rejected. Narrated by Muslim from the hadith of Aisha from him, may God bless him and grant him peace. So the work of monks and those like them, even if it is assumed that they are sincere in it for God, it is not accepted from them, until it is in following the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, who was sent to them and to all people, and about them and their likes God the Almighty said: And We will present to them whatever deeds they have done and make them as scattered dust. And God the Almighty said: And those who disbelieve - their deeds are like a mirage in a lowland which a thirsty person thinks is water until, when he comes to it, he finds it is nothing. And God the Almighty said: Some faces that Day will be humbled, toiling and exhausted, burning in a blazing Fire, given to drink from a boiling spring. It was narrated on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Umar, may God be pleased with him, that he interpreted it in reference to monks, as will come. However, if the deed is in accordance with the Shari'ah, in its outward appearance, but its doer does not sincerely intend God, then it is also rejected by its doer, and this is the case of hypocrites and ostentatious people, as God the Almighty said: "Indeed, the hypocrites seek to deceive God, but it is He who will deceive them. And when they stand up for prayer, they stand lazily, showing off to the people and not remembering God except a little." And God the Almighty said: So woe to those who pray, who are heedless of their prayer, who are showing off, and withhold aid. For this reason God the Almighty said: "So whoever hopes for the meeting with his Lord - let him do righteous work and not associate in the worship of his Lord No one. And He said in this noble verse: "Yes, whoever submits his face to God while he is a doer of good." And His statement: "Then they will have their reward with their Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve." The Almighty guaranteed them for that the attainment of rewards, and He secured them from what they fear of the forbidden. So there is no fear upon them in what they will face, nor will they grieve over what has passed of what they will leave behind, as Saeed bin Jubair said, So there is no fear upon them meaning in the Hereafter, nor will they grieve meaning they will not grieve over death.

And the Jews say, "The Christians are not upon anything," and the Christians say, "The Jews are not upon anything," while they recite the Scripture. Thus say those who do not know, like their statement. So Allah will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ.

And the Almighty said: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture, with which the Almighty showed their contradiction, hatred, enmity, and stubbornness, as Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When the Christians of Najran came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, the Jewish rabbis came to them and they disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Rafi' ibn Huraymila said: 'You are not upon anything,' and he disbelieved in Jesus and the Gospel. And a Christian man from Najran said to the Jews: 'You are not upon anything,' and he denied the prophethood of Moses and disbelieved in the Torah. So God revealed regarding their statement: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture, meaning that each one recites in his book a confirmation of the one who disbelieved in him, that the Jews disbelieved in Jesus while they had the Torah, in which was what God took from them on the tongue of Moses to confirm. In Jesus and in the Gospel what Jesus brought by confirming Moses, and what came from the Torah from God, and each one disbelieves in what is in the hand of his companion, and Mujahid said in his interpretation of this verse: The first Jews and Christians were on something, but they innovated and split up, "And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not on anything.' " He said: Yes, the first Jews were on something, but they innovated and split up, and from him is another narration like the saying of

Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi' bin Anas in his interpretation of this verse: "And the Jews said, 'The Christians are not on anything.' And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not on anything.' " These are the People of the Book who were at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this statement requires that each of the two groups was truthful in what it accused the other group of, but the apparent context of the verse requires that they be blamed for what they said, despite their knowledge of the opposite, and for this reason God Almighty said: And they recite the Book, meaning while they know the law of the Torah and the Gospel, each of which was permissible at one time, but they contradicted each other out of stubbornness, disbelief, and in opposition to the corrupt, as mentioned previously from Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Qatadah in the first narration from him in its interpretation, and God knows best. His statement: Thus said those who do not know, like their statement, shows the ignorance of the Jews and Christians in what they said to each other, and this is from the category of allusion and indication. There is a difference of opinion as to who is meant by the statement of God the Almighty: Those who do not know. Al-Rabi' bin Anas and Qatadah said: Thus said those who do not know, and they said: And the Christians said like the Jews said and said. Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata', who are these who do not know? He said that nations existed before the Jews and Christians and before the Torah and the Gospel. Al-Suddi also said, Those who do not know said, meaning the Arabs. They said that Muhammad is not on anything. Abu Jaafar bin Jarir chose that it is general and suitable for all, and there is no conclusive evidence to specify one of these statements. It is more appropriate to apply it to all, and God knows best. And the Almighty's saying, Then God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ, means that God Almighty will gather them on the Day of Resurrection and will separate them with His just judgment, in which He will not be unjust or oppressive, even the weight of an atom. This verse is like the Almighty's saying in Surat Al-Hajj, "Indeed, those who believed and those who were Jews or Sabaeans or Christians or Magians or polytheists—God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, God is, over all things, Witness." And as God Almighty said, "Say, 'Our Lord will gather us together, then He will judge between us in truth. And He is the Opener, the Knowing.'"

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 113- And the Jews said and what follows it, that each group denies goodness from the other, and this includes affirming it for itself, in defiance of the mercy of God, the Most High. He said in Al-Kashaf: The thing is that which is correct and taken into account. He said: This is a great exaggeration because the impossible and the non-existent are called things, and if the name of things is denied to it, then it has been exaggerated in leaving it to what is not after it, and thus their saying less than nothing. And his saying: And they recite the Book means the Torah and the Gospel, and the sentence is a circumstantial, and it was said: What is meant is the type of Book, and in this is the greatest rebuke and the most severe rebuke, because falling into false claims and speaking about what there is no proof for is, even if it is ugly in general, but from the people of knowledge and study of the Books of God, it is even more ugly, more heinous in crime, and more serious in sin. And His statement: Thus said those who do not know, what is meant by them are the Arab infidels who have no book and who said something similar to what the Jews said, following their example because they are ignorant and are not able to do anything other than imitate those whom they believe are people of knowledge. It was said: What is meant by them is a group of Jews and Christians who are those who do not have knowledge. Then the Almighty informed us that He is the One who will settle this dispute in which there is disagreement when we refer to Him, so He will punish those who deserve to be punished and save those who deserve to be saved.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding his statement: And they say, 'None shall enter Paradise' 1:13, he said: The Jews said: None shall enter Paradise except the Jewish, and the Christians said: None shall enter Paradise except the Christian. These are their wishful thinking, he said: Wishful thinking that they wish for from God without right. Say, 'Produce your proof,' he said: Your argument, if you are truthful, in what you say, that it is as you say. Yes, whoever submits his face to God, he said: is sincere to God. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement: Say, 'Produce your proof,' he said: Your argument. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair regarding his statement: Yes, whoever submits his face, he said: is sincere in his religion. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: When the Christian delegation from Najran came to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), the Jewish rabbis came to them and they argued before the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Rafi' ibn Huraymila said: You are on nothing and disbelieved in Jesus and the Gospel. A man from Najran said to him: You are on nothing and denied the prophethood of Moses and disbelieved in the Torah. God revealed concerning that: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not on anything.' And the Christians say, 'The Jews are not on anything.' And they recite the Scripture. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: I said to Ata': Who are these who do not believe? He said: They are nations that existed before the Jews and Christians. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi who said: They are the Arabs who said: Muhammad is not on anything.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

113- And His statement, And the Jews said, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' was revealed about the Jews of Medina and the Christians of Najran. That is because when the delegation of the people of Najran came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, the rabbis of the Jews came to them: They debated until their voices rose. The Jews said to them, 'You are not upon anything of the religion,' and they disbelieved in Jesus and the Gospel. The Christians said to them, 'You are not upon anything of the religion,' and they disbelieved in Moses and the Torah. So God Almighty revealed, And the Christians said, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' and they recite the Scripture. Both groups recite the Scripture. It was said that its meaning is that there is no such difference in their books, so their recitation of the Scripture and their opposition to what is in it indicates that they are upon falsehood. Thus said those who do not know, meaning: their fathers who have passed away. Like their statement, Mujahid said: meaning: the common Christians. Muqatil said: meaning: the polytheists of the Arabs. Likewise they said about their Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions: that they are not upon anything of the religion.

Ata' said: There were nations before the Jews and Christians, such as the people of Noah, Hud, Salih, Lot, and Shuaib, peace be upon them. They said to their prophet: He is not on anything. So God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection, He will decide between the truth and falsehood in what they used to differ of religion.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

113- And the Jews said, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians said, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' meaning, upon a matter that is valid and reliable. It was revealed when Najran came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Jewish rabbis came to them and they debated and discussed that. And they recite the Scripture The waw is for the state, and the Scripture is for the genus, meaning: they said that while they were people of knowledge and the Scripture. Likewise like that those who do not know said like their saying like the idol worshippers and the deniers. He rebuked them for their stubbornness and imitating the ignorant. If it is said: Why did he rebuke them when they were truthful, for both religions after abrogation are nothing? I said: They did not mean that, but rather each group intended by it to invalidate the religion of the other from its origin, and to disbelieve in his prophet and his book, even though what was not abrogated from them is true and must be accepted and acted upon. So God will judge separate between them "between the two groups" on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they differed by allocating to each group what is appropriate for it of punishment. And it was said that His judgment between them is that he will call them liars and put them in the Fire.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:114

And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of Allah from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction? It is not for those to enter them except in fear. For them in this world is disgrace, and in the Hereafter they will have a great punishment.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:114

And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction? It is not for those to enter them except in fear. For them in this world is disgrace, and in the Hereafter they will have a great punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And who is more unjust meaning no one is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them through prayer and glorification and strives toward their destruction through demolition or disabling, it was revealed as report about the Romans who destroyed the Holy House or about the polytheists when they prevented the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the House in the year of Al-Hudaybiyyah Those are not to enter it except in fear report with the meaning of a command, meaning frighten them with jihad so that no one enters it safely. For them in this world is disgrace humiliation through killing, captivity and the jizya and for them in the Hereafter is a great punishment which is the Fire.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God? The verse Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the aforementioned path that the Quraysh prevented the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from praying at the Kaaba in the Sacred Mosque, so God revealed: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God? The verse

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Zaid who said: It was revealed about the polytheists when they prevented the Messenger of God from Mecca on the day of Al-Hudaybiyyah.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: It was mentioned that this verse was revealed about a group of people of the two books, who disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and some of them said to each other. Mention of those who said that: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, and Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, they both said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit told me, he said, Saeed bin Jubayr, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: When the Christians of Najran came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, Jewish rabbis came to them, and they disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Rafi' bin Huraymila said: You are on nothing! And he disbelieved in Jesus, son of Mary, and in the Gospel. A man from the people of Najran, from the Christians, said: You are on nothing! He denied the prophethood of Moses and disbelieved in the Torah, so God Almighty revealed about that from their saying: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' until His saying: in that over which they differ. It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his saying: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' he said: These are the People of the Book who were at the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Abu Ja'far said: As for the interpretation of the verse, it is: The Jews said: The Christians are not right in their religion, and the Christians said: The Jews are not right in their religion! God only informed about them by their saying that to the believers, informing them of each group of them neglecting the ruling of the Book, which they clearly acknowledge as correct and that it is from God, and their denial of what God revealed in it of its obligations. Because the Gospel, which the Christians believe in its correctness and truth, confirms what is in the Torah of the prophethood of Moses, peace be upon him, and what God imposed on the Children of Israel in it of obligations, and the Torah, which the Jews believe in its correctness and truth, confirms the prophethood of Jesus, peace be upon him, and what he brought from God of rulings and obligations.

Then each group of them said to the other group what God had informed us about them in His statement: And the Jews say, 'The Christians are not upon anything,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews are not upon anything,' while each of the two groups recited his book that testified to his lie in what he had said. So God, the Most High, informed us that each group of them said what it said of that, knowing that they were falsifying what they said? And they did what they did of their disbelief in what they disbelieved in, knowing that they were heretics in it.

If someone were to say to us: Were the Jews and Christians after God sent His Messenger on something, so that the group that said that to the other group would be invalidating what they said about that?

It was said: We have narrated the report that we mentioned from Ibn Abbas before, that the denial of each group of them was only a denial of the prophethood of the prophet who they claim to believe in and what the other group brought, not to prevent the other group from being on something of their religion at the time when God sent our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because of their denial of the prophethood of our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. How can the meaning of that be that each group of them denied that the other group was on something after the sending of our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when both groups were denying the prophethood of our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, at the time when God revealed this verse? But the meaning of that is: And the Jews said: The Christians have not been on anything of their religion since they adopted their religion! And the Christians said: The Jews have not been on anything since they adopted their religion! This is the meaning of the report that we narrated from Ibn Abbas earlier, so God denied both groups in what they said, as: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And the Jews said, 'The Christians have nothing,' he said: Yes! The first Christians were on something, but they innovated and split up, and the Christians said, 'The Jews have nothing,' but the people innovated and split up.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And the Jews said, 'The Christians have nothing,' and the Christians said, 'The Jews have nothing,' he said, Mujahid said: The first Jews and Christians were on something.

As for his statement: And they recite the Book, he means by it the Book of God, the Torah and the Gospel, and they are witnesses to the two groups of Jews and Christians in disbelief, and their opposition to the command of God that He commanded them with in it, as: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, and Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah bin Al-Fadl told us, they both said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit, he said, Saad bin Jubayr told me, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: "And they recite the Book. Thus say those who do not know the same as they say," meaning each one recites in his book the confirmation of what he disbelieved in, meaning the Jews disbelieve in Jesus, and they have the Torah in it, which contains what God took from them of the covenant on the tongue of Moses to believe in Jesus, peace be upon him, and in the Gospel, from what Jesus brought, the confirmation of Moses and what he brought of the Torah from God, and each one disbelieves in what is in the hand of his companion.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Thus said those who do not know, the same as their statement.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed about those whom God meant by His statement: Thus said those who do not know. Some of them said what: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Those who do not know said the same as they said, he said: And the Christians said the same as the Jews before them.

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Those who do not know said the same as they said, he said: The Christians said the same as the Jews before them.

Others said: Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us,

Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata': Who are these people who do not know? He said: Nations that existed before the Jews and Christians, and before the Torah and the Gospel.

Some of them said: He meant by that the polytheists of the Arabs, because they were not people of the Book, so they were accused of ignorance, and knowledge was denied them because of that. Those who said that mentioned: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Thus said those who do not know the same as they said, meaning the Arabs, they said: Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is not upon anything.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that God, the Blessed and Exalted, informed us about a people whom He described as ignorant, and denied them knowledge of what the Jews and Christians knew. They said in their ignorance, similar to what the Jews and Christians said to each other, which He informed us about what they said in His statement: And the Jews say, 'The Christians have nothing,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews have nothing.' It is possible that they were the polytheists among the Arabs, and it is possible that they were a nation that existed before the Jews and Christians. No nation is more deserving of being said to be the one meant by that than another, since there is no indication in the verse of which of which, nor is there any report of that from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, whose proof has been established by the transmission of a just person, nor by the widespread transmission.

God Almighty intended by His statement: Thus said those who do not know, like their statement, to inform the believers that the Jews and Christians have come with false speech, fabricated lies about God, and denied the prophethood of the prophets and messengers, and they are People of the Book who know that they are lying in what they say, and by their denial of what they deny of their religion they are outside and fabricating against God like what was said by the people of ignorance of God, His Books, and His Messengers, to whom God did not send a messenger nor reveal a book.

This verse indicates that whoever commits a sin against God knowing that God has forbidden it, his affliction in his religion is greater than the affliction of someone who commits it out of ignorance. This is because God Almighty greatly rebuked the Jews and Christians for what He rebuked them with in what He told them about them in His statement: And the Jews say, 'The Christians have nothing,' and the Christians say, 'The Jews have nothing,' because they are People of the Book. They said what they said knowing that they were lying.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then God will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning that over which they used to differ.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: So God will judge and separate between these disputants, some of whom will say to others: You have nothing of your religion on the Day when creation rises before their Lord from their graves. Then the truthful among them will be distinguished from the false, by rewarding the truthful with what He promised the people of His obedience for their righteous deeds, and punishing the false among them with what He threatened the people of disbelief with for their disbelief in Him, in what they differed about in their religions and sects in this world.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:114

And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of Allah from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction? It is not for those to enter them except in fear. For them in this world is disgrace, and in the Hereafter they will have a great punishment.

As for the resurrection, it is a source of the saying of the speaker: I stood up and stood up, just as it is said: I visited so-and-so and protected this matter.

What he meant by the Resurrection is the rising of creation from their graves to their Lord. So the meaning of the Day of Resurrection is the day when creation rises from their graves for their gathering.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains seven issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein? "From" is raised as a subject, and more unjust is its predicate, and the meaning is no one is more unjust. And that is in the accusative case as a substitute for masajid, and it is possible that the estimation is: dislike that it be mentioned, then it is deleted. And it is possible that the estimation is: from that it be mentioned therein, and the letter of genitive case is deleted with that due to the length of the speech. And what is meant by masajid here is the Holy House and its niches. And it is said that it is the Kaaba, and it is plural because it is the qibla of the mosques or for glorification. And it is said that what is meant is all the mosques, and the singular is masjid with a kasra on the j, and some Arabs say masjid with a fatha on it. Al-Farra' said: Everything that is based on the pattern of fa'il yaf'al, such as dakhala yakhul, the fa'il of it is with fat-ha, whether it is a noun or a verbal noun, and there is no difference in it, such as dakhala yakhul madhaklan, and this is its madhak, except for letters of the nouns that they required to break the 'ayn, such as: al-masjid, al-matla', al-maghreb, al-mashq, al-maqtas, al-mafraq, al-mafraq, al-majzar, al-maskan, al-marfaq from rafq yarfaq, al-manbt and al-mansik from nisak yansak, so they made the kasra a sign of the noun, and perhaps some Arabs opened it in the noun. Al-masjid with fat-ha: the forehead of a man where the scars of prostration affect him. And the seven Arabs, said al-Jawhari.

Second: People differed about the meaning of this verse and about whom it was revealed. The commentators mentioned that it was revealed about Bukht Nasr, because he destroyed the Holy House. Ibn Abbas and others said: It was revealed about the Christians, and the meaning is: How do you claim, O Christians, that you are from the people of Paradise! And you destroyed the Holy House and prevented the worshippers from praying in it. The meaning of the verse according to this: astonishment at what the Christians did to the Holy House despite their veneration of it, and they only did what they did out of enmity towards the Jews. Saeed narrated on the authority of Qatadah who said: Those are the enemies of God, the Christians, and their hatred of the Jews led them to help Bukht Nasr the Babylonian Zoroastrian in destroying the Holy House. It was narrated that this destruction continued until the time of Umar, may God be pleased with him. It was said: It was revealed about the polytheists when they prevented the worshippers and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and turned them away from the Sacred Mosque in the year of Al-Hudaybiyyah. It was said: What is meant by preventing someone from entering a mosque is until the Day of Resurrection, and this is correct, because the wording is general and was mentioned in the plural form, so specifying it to some mosques and some people is weak, and God knows best.

Third: The destruction of mosques may be real, such as the destruction of the Holy House by Nebuchadnezzar and the Christians, as it was mentioned that they invaded the Children of Israel with some of their kings - it was said: his name was Natus bin Espisanos the Roman, according to what Al-Ghaznawi mentioned - so they killed and took captive, burned the Torah, and threw filth into the Holy House and destroyed it.

It is a metaphor, like the polytheists preventing the Muslims when they prevented the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from entering the Sacred Mosque. In general, preventing the mosques from being used for prayer and displaying the symbols of Islam in them is destructive to them.

Fourth: Our scholars said: This is why we said that it is not permissible to prevent a woman from performing Hajj if it is necessary, whether she has a mahram or not. She is also not prevented from praying in the mosques unless she fears temptation. Likewise, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not prevent the female servants of God from the mosques of God. That is why we said: It is not permissible to demolish, sell, or disuse a mosque, even if the neighborhood is ruined. The construction of mosques is not prohibited unless they intend to cause discord and disagreement, such as building a mosque next to or near it, intending thereby to separate the people of the first mosque and cause ruin and division of opinion. The second mosque is demolished and its construction is prohibited. That is why we said: It is not permissible for there to be two mosques in a city, nor for one mosque to have two imams, nor for two congregations to pray in a mosque. All of this will be further explained in Surat Bara'ah, God willing. In An-Noor, there is a ruling on mosques and their construction, God willing. The verse also indicates the importance of prayer, and that since it is the best of deeds and the greatest in reward, preventing it is a greater sin.

Fifth: Every place where God can be worshipped and prostrated to is called a mosque. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The earth has been made for me a place of prostration and purification, narrated by the Imams. The nation is unanimously agreed that if a spot or area beyond it is designated for prayer by word, it is removed from the group of properties reserved for its owner and becomes common to all Muslims. So if a man builds a mosque in his house and reserves it for the people and keeps it for himself, it remains his property and does not go beyond the limits of being a mosque. But if he permits it to all people, its ruling is the same as that of all public mosques, and it is removed from the specificity of properties.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: Those are not to enter it except in fear. Those is the subject and what follows is its predicate. Fearing is a state, meaning if the Muslims take control of it and it comes under their authority, then the disbeliever will not be able to enter it. But if they enter it, it is out of fear that the Muslims will expel them and discipline them for entering it. And in this is evidence that the disbeliever is not allowed to enter the mosque under any circumstances, as will come in Bara'ah, God willing. And whoever attributed the verse to the Christians narrated that a period of time passed after Umar built the Holy House in Islam, and no Christian entered it except that he was severely beaten after it had been their place of worship. And whoever attributed it to the Quraysh said: Thus was the command of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, proclaimed:

No polytheist shall perform Hajj after this year, and no one shall circumambulate the House naked. It was said: It is good and its purpose is to command, i.e. fight them and eradicate them until none of them enters the Sacred Mosque except in fear, like his saying: And it is not for you to harm the Messenger of God, for it is a prohibition and the wording of the report was transmitted.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: For them in this world is disgrace. It was said that killing is for the combatant, and the jizya is for the dhimmi, according to Qatada. Al-Suddi: The disgrace for them in this world is the rise of the Mahdi, and the conquest of Amorium, Rumayyah, Constantinople, and other cities of theirs, according to what we mentioned in the Book of Remembrance. And whoever attributed it to the Quraysh attributed the disgrace to them in the conquest, and the punishment in the Hereafter for whoever among them died as a disbeliever.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The commentators differed about the meaning of those who prevented the mosques of God and sought to destroy them, with two opinions: One of them is what Al-Awfi narrated in his interpretation on the authority of Ibn Abbas, in his statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them? He said: They are the Christians. Mujahid said: They are the Christians who used to throw harmful things into the Holy House and prevent people from praying in it. Abd Al-Razzaq said: Muammar informed us on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: And sought to destroy it. He said: It is Bukhtanahr and his companions, who destroyed the Holy House, and the Christians helped him in that. Saeed said on the authority of Qatada: He said: Those are the enemies of God, the Christians, their hatred of the Jews led them to help the Babylonian Magian Bukhtanahr to destroy the Holy House. Al-Suddi said: They supported Bukhtanahr in destroying the Holy House, until he destroyed it and ordered that the corpses be thrown into it. The Romans only helped him in its destruction because the Children of Israel killed John the Baptist, and something similar was narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, the second opinion, what Ibn Jarir narrated: Yunus bin Abdul-A'la told me, Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein and strives toward their destruction? He said: These are the polytheists who prevented the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Al-Hudaybiyyah from entering Mecca, until he slaughtered his sacrificial animal at Dhu Tuwa, and he made peace with them and said to them: No one would prevent anyone from entering this House, and a man would meet the killer of his father or brother and not prevent him. They said: He who killed our fathers on the day of Badr should not enter upon us while we were Remaining, and in his saying: And strived for its destruction, he said when they cut off those who would populate it with his remembrance and come to it for Hajj and Umrah. Ibn Abi Hatim said, on the authority of Salamah, he said: Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that Quraysh prevented the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from praying at the Kaaba in the Sacred Mosque, so God revealed: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein? Then Ibn Jarir chose the first statement, and argued that Quraysh did not strive for the destruction of the Kaaba, but as for the Romans, they strived to destroy the Holy House. I said What appears, and God knows best, is the second statement as Ibn Zayd said. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that if the Christians prevented the Jews from praying in the Holy House, their religion would be more correct than the religion of the Jews, and they would be closer to them, and the mention of God from the Jews would not be accepted at that time, because they had been cursed before by the tongue of David and Jesus, son of Mary, because they disobeyed and transgressed. Also, when God Almighty directed blame at the Jews and Christians, He proceeded to blame the polytheists who expelled the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions from Mecca, and prevented them from praying in the Sacred Mosque. As for his reliance on the fact that the Quraysh did not strive to destroy the Kaaba, what destruction is greater than what they did? They expelled the Messenger of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:114

And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of Allah from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction? It is not for those to enter them except in fear. For them in this world is disgrace, and in the Hereafter they will have a great punishment.

God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) and his companions from it, and took control of it with their idols, rivals and polytheism, as God the Almighty said: "And what is the matter with them that God should not punish them while they hinder [people] from al-Masjid al-Haram, and they were not its guardians? Its guardians are only the righteous, but most of them do not know." And God the Almighty said: "It is not for the polytheists to maintain the mosques of God while they testify against themselves by disbelief. For those, their deeds have become worthless, and in the Fire they will abide eternally. The mosques of God shall be maintained only by those who believe in God and the Last Day and establish prayer and give zakah and do not fear except God. It is expected that those will be among the [rightly] guided." And God the Almighty said: "They are the ones who disbelieved and hindered you from al-Masjid al-Haram, and the offering was held back from reaching its destination. And were it not for believing men and believing women whom you did not know, lest you tread upon them and there should befall you from them a blemish without knowledge. So God may admit into His mercy whom He wills. Had they separated, We would have punished those who disbelieved among them with a painful punishment." And God the Almighty said: "The mosques of God shall be maintained only by those who believe in God and the Last Day and establish prayer and give zakah and do not fear except God. So it is expected that those will be among the [rightly] guided." He fears none but God. If someone like that is expelled from it and turned away from it, what destruction of it is greater than that? What is meant by its construction is not only its decoration and the erection of its image, but rather its construction is by the remembrance of God in it and the establishment of His law in it, and raising it from defilement and polytheism. And the Almighty's saying: It is not for them to enter it except in fear, this is a report that means a request, i.e. do not allow these people, if you are able to do so, to enter it, except under a truce and a tribute. For this reason, when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, conquered Mecca, he ordered that the following year, in the year nine, it be announced in the courtyards of Mina: "No polytheist shall perform Hajj after this year, nor shall he circumambulate the House naked. And whoever has a term, his term shall be until his term." This was only a confirmation and action of the Almighty's saying: O you who believe, indeed, the polytheists are unclean, so let them not approach the Sacred Mosque after this year of theirs. Some of them said: It is not appropriate for them to enter the mosques of God except in fear, in a state of awe and trembling from the believers, lest they should attack them, let alone seize them and prevent the believers from them. The meaning is that there was nothing but the right and the duty except that, were it not for the oppression of the infidels and others. It was said that this is good report from God to the Muslims, that He will make them victorious over the Sacred Mosque and over all the other mosques, and that He will humiliate the polytheists before them. So that none of them would enter the Sacred Mosque except in fear that he would be seized and punished or killed if he did not convert to Islam. And God fulfilled this promise, as mentioned before in preventing the polytheists from entering the Sacred Mosque, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded that there should not remain two religions in the Arabian Peninsula, and that the Jews and Christians should be expelled from it, and praise and thanks be to God. This is nothing but honoring the environs of the Sacred Mosque and purifying the spot in which God sent His Messenger to all people, as a bearer of good tidings and a warner, may God's prayers and peace be upon him. This is their disgrace in this world, because the reward is of the same kind as the deed. Just as they turned the believers away from the Sacred Mosque, they were turned away from it, and just as they were expelled from Mecca, they were expelled from it. And for them in the Hereafter is a great punishment for what they violated of the sanctity of the House, and their desecration of it by erecting idols around it, and calling upon other than God at it, and circumambulating it naked, and other actions of theirs that God and His Messenger hate. As for those who interpreted the Holy House, Ka'b al-Ahbar said: When the Christians gained control of the Holy House, they destroyed it. Then when God sent Muhammad, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, He revealed to him: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein and strives toward their ruin? It is not for them to enter them except in fear. The verse, so there is no Christian on earth who enters the Holy House except in fear. Al-Suddi said: There is no Roman on earth who enters it today. Except that he is afraid that his neck will be struck, or he has been frightened into paying the jizya, so he pays it. Qatada said: They do not enter the mosques except stealthily. I said This does not negate that it is included in the meaning of the generality of the verse, because when the Christians wronged the Holy House by desecrating the rock, towards which the Jews used to pray, they were punished by law and destiny with humiliation in it, except at times in time when the Holy House was filled with them. Likewise the Jews, when they also disobeyed God in it, more than the disobedience of the Christians, their punishment was greater, and God knows best. And these interpreted the disgrace in this world. The emergence of the Mahdi according to Al-Suddi, Ikrimah and Wa'il bin Dawud, and Qatada interpreted it as paying the jizyah with their own hands while they are humiliated, and the correct view is that disgrace in this world is more general than all of that, and the hadith was narrated with seeking refuge from the disgrace of this world and the torment of the Hereafter, as Imam Ahmad said: Al-Haytham bin Kharijah informed us, Muhammad bin Ayoub bin Maysarah bin Halbas informed us, I heard my father narrating on the authority of Bishr bin Art'ah, he said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to supplicate: O God, make our end good in all matters and save us from the disgrace of this world and the torment of the Hereafter. This is a good hadith, and it is not in any of the six books, and his companion, Bishr bin Arta'ah, has no other hadith other than it, and other than the hadith that hands are not cut off in conquest.

Fath al-Qadir

This question is the most eloquent indication that this injustice is infinite and that it is of a status that no other types of injustice should befall it: i.e. no one is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God. The interrogative noun is in the nominative case as a subject and more unjust is its predicate. And His statement: 114- that His name be mentioned therein It was said: It is a substitute for mosques - and it was said: It is a direct object with the estimation of the dislike of it being mentioned, and it was said: The estimation is from it being mentioned, then the preposition was deleted due to the length of the speech, and it was said: It is a second direct object for His statement: prevented and what is meant by preventing the mosques from mentioning the name of God is preventing those who come to them for prayer, recitation, remembrance and teaching it. What is meant by striving to destroy it is striving to demolish it and raise its structure. It is possible that what is meant by destruction is to prevent it from performing the acts of worship for which it was established, and so it is more general than his saying: that His name be mentioned therein, so it includes all that is forbidden from the matters for which mosques were built, such as learning and teaching knowledge, sitting for seclusion, and waiting for prayer. It is possible that what is more general than the two matters is meant by the generality of the metaphor, as was said in the saying of God Almighty: The mosques of God are only to be maintained and His saying: It is not for them to enter them except in fear, meaning: it is not appropriate for them to enter them except in a state of fear. In it is guidance for the servants of God Almighty that they should prevent the disbelievers from entering the mosques of God, without differentiating between one mosque and another, and between one disbeliever and another, as is indicated by the generality of the wording, and the specificity of the reason does not contradict it, and that they should put them in a state where if they wanted to enter, they would be in a state of fear and apprehension lest one of the Muslims should notice them and bring upon them what would necessitate humiliation and degradation. It does not include permission for us to enable them to do that in a state of Their fear, but rather it is a metaphor for preventing them from entering our mosques. And shame: it was said: it is imposing the jizya on them and humiliating them, and it was said, something else, and its explanation was presented above.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

114. His saying, And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being remembered? The verse was revealed about Titus bin Aspasbanus the Roman and his companions, because they invaded the Children of Israel and killed their children, burned the Torah, and destroyed the Holy House, throwing carcasses into it and slaughtering pigs in it, so it was in ruins until the Muslims rebuilt it during the days of Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him.

Qatada and Al-Suddi said: It was Bukhtanasr and his companions who invaded the Jews and destroyed the Holy House, and they were aided in that by the Christians, Titus the Roman and his companions from the Romans. Al-Suddi said: Because they killed John the Baptist John the Baptist, and Qatada said: Some of the Jews urged them to aid Bukhtanasr the Babylonian the Zoroastrian, so God revealed: And who is more unjust meaning more ungrateful and more obstinate than he who prevents the mosques of God meaning the Holy House and its sanctuaries from being mentioned therein and strives worked in its destruction? It is not for them to enter it except in fear. This is because the Holy House is a place of pilgrimage for the Christians and a place of their visitation. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: No Roman entered it, meaning the Holy House after its construction, except in fear / if he had known about it, he would have been killed. Qatada and Muqatil said: No Christian should enter the Holy House except in disguise, if he had been able to do so, he would have been punished. Al-Suddi said: They were frightened by the jizya. It was said: This is a report with the meaning of an order, that is, abort them by jihad until none of them enters it except fearing killing and captivity, that is, what is appropriate. For them in this world is disgrace, torment and humiliation. Qatada said: It is killing for the combatant and the jizya for the dhimmi. Muqatil and Al-Kalbi said that their three cities will be conquered: Constantinople, Rome, and Amorium. And for them in the Hereafter is a great punishment, which is the Fire. Ata and Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about the polytheists of Mecca, and what was meant by the mosques was the Sacred Mosque. They prevented the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions from performing Hajj and praying in it in the year of Al-Hudaybiyyah. If they were prevented from filling it with remembrance, then they sought to destroy it. For them it is not proper to enter it except in fear, meaning the people of Mecca. He said: I will open it for you so that you may enter it and you will be more deserving of it than them. So he opened it for them and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered a crier to call out: No polytheist shall perform Hajj after this year. This was their fear, and it is established in the Shari'ah that no polytheist will be able to enter the Sacred Sanctuary. For them in this world is disgrace. Humiliation, disgrace, killing, captivity and exile.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

114- And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God is general for everyone who destroys a mosque, or strives to disable a place designated for prayer. It was revealed about the Romans when they invaded Jerusalem and destroyed it and killed its people. Or about the polytheists when they prevented

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:114

And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of Allah from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction? It is not for those to enter them except in fear. For them in this world is disgrace, and in the Hereafter they will have a great punishment.

the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from entering the Sacred Mosque in the year of Al-Hudaybiyah that his name be mentioned in it is the second object of prevented and sought to destroy it by demolition, or disabling those meaning the preventers it was not for them to enter it except in fear it was not appropriate for them to enter it except with fear and humility, let alone dare to destroy it, or it was not right for them to enter it except in fear of the believers that they would attack them, let alone prevent them from it, or it was not for them in the knowledge and judgment of God, so it is a promise to the believers of victory and the liberation of the mosques from them and He fulfilled His promise. It was said: Its meaning is the prohibition of allowing them to enter the mosque, and the imams differed about it. Abu Hanifa permitted it and Malik forbade it, and Al-Shafi'i distinguished between the Sacred Mosque and others. For them in this world is disgrace killing and captivity, or that by imposing the jizya. And for them in the Hereafter is a great punishment because of their disbelief and injustice.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:115

And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed when the Jews challenged the abrogation of the qiblah or the voluntary prayer on the mount while traveling, wherever it was facing. And to God belong the east and the west, meaning the entire earth because they are its two sides. So wherever you turn, your faces in prayer by His command, there there is the face of God, His qiblah that He is pleased with. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing, His grace encompasses all things, Knowing, of the management of His creation.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: To God belong the East and the West. Muslim, Al-Tirmidhi, and Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray voluntarily on his mount, wherever it was facing. He came from Mecca to Medina. Then Ibn Umar recited: To God belong the East and the West. He said: This is why this verse was revealed.

Al-Hakim narrated on his authority that he said: "It was revealed: 'So wherever you turn, there is the face of God that you pray wherever your mount takes you' in voluntary prayer." He said: "It is authentic according to the conditions of Muslim. This is the most authentic of what was reported in the verse in terms of chain of transmission, and a group of people relied on it, but it does not contain an explicit mention of the reason. Rather, he said: It was revealed in such-and-such, and what was in it was mentioned previously. The reason for its revelation was explicitly reported."

Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha on the authority of Ibn Abbas that when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina, God ordered him to face Jerusalem, so the Jews rejoiced, so he faced it for about ten months. He loved the direction of Abraham's qiblah, and he used to supplicate to God and look at the sky. Then God revealed: Turn your faces toward Him. The Jews doubted that, and said: What has turned them away from the qiblah which they used to face? Then God revealed: "Say: To God belong the East and the West." And He said: So wherever you turn, there is the face of God. Its chain of transmission

Strong and the meaning also helps him, so let him rely on it

There are other weak narrations regarding this verse. Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, and Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Ash'ath Al-Samman on the authority of Asim bin Abdullah on the authority of Abdullah bin Amir bin Rabi'ah on the authority of his father, who said: We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a journey on a dark night, and we did not know where the qiblah was, so each of us prayed in his own quarter. When morning came, we mentioned that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and so the verse was revealed: Wherever you turn, there is the face of God. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is strange, and Ash'ath considers the hadith weak.

Al-Darqutni and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Al-Arzami on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Jabir, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent out a military expedition in which I was a member, and darkness fell upon us, so we did not know the direction of the qiblah. A group of us said: We know the dome is here towards the north, so they prayed and drew lines. Some of us said: The qiblah is here towards the south, so they prayed and drew lines. When morning came and the sun rose, those lines were not facing the qiblah. When we returned from our journey, we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he remained silent. Then God revealed: To God belongs the East and the West.

K and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Al-Kalbi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent out a detachment and they were caught in a state of confusion and they could not find their way to the qiblah, so they prayed. Then it became clear to them after the sun had risen that they had prayed in a direction other than the qiblah. So when they came to the Messenger of God, they told him, and God revealed this verse: To God belongs the East and the West.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A brother of yours has died, meaning the Negus, so pray over him. They said: We will pray over a man who is not a Muslim. Then the verse was revealed: And among the People of the Book is he who believes in God. They said: He did not pray toward the qiblah. Then God revealed: And to God belong the East and the West. The verse is very strange and is either mursal or mu'dal.

K and Ibn Jarir also narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: When the verse Call upon Me, I will respond to you was revealed, they said: Where to? So it was revealed: Wherever you turn, there is the face of God.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously demonstrated that the interpretation of injustice is to put something in the wrong place. And the interpretation of His statement: And who is more unjust, is: Who is more transgressive and bold against God and disobeys His command than a man who prevents God from being worshipped in the mosques of God?

Masajid is the plural of Masjid, which is any place where God is worshipped. We have previously explained the meaning of prostration. The meaning of Masjid is the place where one prostrates to God, just as the place where one sits is called a Majlis, and the place where one descends is called a Manzil, then it is pluralized as Manazil and Majlis, similar to Masjid and Masajid. It has been reported by some Arabs that Masajid is the singular of Masajid, but that is like a mistake on the part of the one who said it.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:115

And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing.

As for his saying: That His name be mentioned therein, there are two interpretations of this. One of them is that its meaning is: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from having His name mentioned therein? Then that would be in the accusative case, according to the saying of some of the Arab scholars regarding the absence of the preposition and the attachment of the verb to it.

The other aspect: that its meaning is: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the name of God from being mentioned in His mosques? So in that case the an would be in the accusative case, repeating the location of the mosques and responding to it.

As for his saying: And he sought to destroy it, its meaning is: Who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from having His name mentioned therein, and he who seeks to destroy the mosques of God? So sought is in apposition to prevented.

If someone says: Who is meant by his saying: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being remembered in them and strives toward their destruction?? And which mosques are they?

It was said: The people of interpretation differed on this. Some of them said: Those who prevented the mosques of God from mentioning His name are the Christians, and the mosque is the Holy House. Mention of those who said this: Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from mentioning His name therein? They are the Christians.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction? The Christians, they used to throw harmful things into the Holy House and prevent people from praying in it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Others said: It is Bukhtanasr and his army and those Christians who helped them, and the mosque is the mosque of Jerusalem.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein, His name, the verse, those are the enemies of God, the Christians: their hatred of the Jews led them to help the Babylonian Bukhtanasr the Zoroastrian to destroy the Holy House.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being remembered in them and strives toward their destruction? He said: It is Bukhtanadr and his companions, he destroyed the Holy House, and the Christians helped him in that.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being remembered and strives toward their destruction? He said: The Romans, they had supported Nebuchadnezzar in destroying the Holy House until he destroyed it, and ordered that corpses be thrown into it. The Romans only helped him in its destruction because the Children of Israel had killed John, son of Zechariah.

Others said: Rather, God the Almighty meant in this verse the polytheists of Quraysh, as they prevented the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) from entering the Sacred Mosque. Those who said that were mentioned: Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them and strives toward their ruin? He said: These are the polytheists, when they prevented the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) on the day of Hudaybiyyah from entering Mecca, until he slaughtered his sacrificial animal at Dhu Tuwa and made a truce with them, and said to them: No one was to be prevented from entering this House, and a man would meet the killer of his father or brother in it and nothing would stop him! And they said: Let not the one who killed our fathers on the day of Badr enter upon us while there is still one among us!

In his saying: And he sought to destroy it, he said: When they cut off those who would build it with his remembrance, and come to it for Hajj and Umrah.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the interpretations that I mentioned regarding the interpretation of the verse is the statement of those who said: God Almighty meant by His statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them? the Christians. That is because they are the ones who sought to destroy the Holy House, and helped Nebuchadnezzar in that, and prevented the believers of the Children of Israel from praying in it after Nebuchadnezzar left them for his country.

The evidence for the correctness of what we have said in this regard is the establishment of the argument that there is no statement regarding the meaning of this verse except one of the three statements that we have mentioned, and that there is no mosque that God the Almighty meant by His saying: and strove toward its destruction except one of the two mosques: either the mosque of Jerusalem or the Sacred Mosque. Since this is the case, and it is known that the polytheists of Quraysh never strove toward the destruction of the Sacred Mosque, because they had prevented the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and his companions from praying in it at some times, it is correct and proven that those whom God the Almighty described as striving toward the destruction of His mosques are not those whom God described as building them. Since the polytheists of Quraysh built the Sacred Mosque in the pre-Islamic era, and their pride was in building it, even though some of their actions in it were not in a way that God would be pleased with from them.

Another is that the verse before His statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them? proceeded with the report about the Jews and Christians and the condemnation of their actions, and the verse after it alerted to the condemnation of the Christians and the report about their fabrication of their Lord, and there was no mention of the Quraysh or the polytheists of the Arabs, nor of the Sacred Mosque before it, so the report is directed by the statement of God Almighty: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them? to them and to the Sacred Mosque.

Since this is the case, then what is more deserving of the verse is that its interpretation should be directed to it, which is what was similar to the story of the verse before it and the verse after it, since its report was similar and similar to their report, unless there is an argument that must be accepted to the contrary, even if their stories agree and are confused.

If someone thinks that what we have said about this is not so, since the Muslims were never obligated to pray in the Holy Mosque, and were prevented from praying in it, then they resort to interpreting his statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein? to mean the mosque of Jerusalem, then he is mistaken in what he thinks about that. That is because God, the Most High, only mentioned the injustice of those who prevented those whose obligation was to pray in Jerusalem from the believers of the Children of Israel, and He intended them by the report about them with injustice and striving to destroy the mosque. And if he indicated by the generality of his statement: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein? that everyone who prevents someone praying in a mosque of God, whether his prayer in it is obligatory or voluntary, and everyone who strives to destroy it, then he is among the transgressors and oppressors.

The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: It is not for them to enter it except in fear.

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God Almighty about those who prevented the mosques of God from mentioning His name in them, that He has forbidden them to enter the mosques that they sought to destroy, and prevented the believing servants of God from mentioning God Almighty in them, as long as they were at war, except out of fear and dread of punishment for entering them, like the one who: Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: It was not for them to enter them except in fear, and they are like that today, there is no Christian in Jerusalem except that he was beaten severely, and the punishment was more severe than that.

Al-Hasan told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, God Almighty said: It is not for them to enter it except in fear, and they are the Christians, so they do not enter the mosque except as thieves, and if they are able to do so, they will be punished.

Musa told us, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: It is not for them to enter it except in fear, so there is no Roman on earth who enters it today except in fear that his neck will be struck, or he has been frightened by paying the jizya, so he pays it.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: It is not for them to enter it except in fear, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called out: 'No polytheist shall perform Hajj after this year, and no one shall circumambulate the House naked.'" He said: So the polytheists began to say: O God, we were prevented from descending!

Rather, it was said: It is not for them to enter it except in fear, so it was brought out in the form of a report on all of them, and it is a report on whoever prevents the mosques of God from having His name mentioned therein, because who is in the meaning of all of them, if its wording is the same.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: For them in this world is disgrace, and for them in the Hereafter is a great punishment.

Abu Ja'far said: As for the words of God Almighty: For them, it means: those about whom He informed that they prevented the mosques of God from mentioning His name in them. As for His words: For them in this world is disgrace, it means by disgrace: shame, evil, and humiliation, either killing and captivity, or humiliation and degradation by paying the jizyah, as Al-Hasan told us, he said, 'Abd Al-Razzaq told us, he said, Mu'ammarr told us, on the authority of Qatada: For them in this world is disgrace, he said: They pay the jizyah willingly while they are humiliated.

Musa told us, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: For them in this world is disgrace. As for their disgrace in this world, when the Mahdi rises and Constantinople is conquered, he will kill them. That is disgrace. As for the great torment, it is the torment of Hell, which will not be lightened for its people, nor will they be killed therein so that they die. The interpretation of the verse is: For them in this world is humiliation, disgrace, killing, and captivity for preventing the mosques of God from being mentioned in them and striving to destroy them. And for them, for their disobedience and disbelief in their Lord and striving to spread corruption on earth, is the torment of Hell, which is the great torment.

And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has five issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: To God belong the East and the West. The East is the place of sunrise and the West is the place of sunset, meaning that they are His and everything between them of directions and creatures through creation and invention, as mentioned above. He singled them out for mention and addition to Him as an honor, like: the House of God, and the she-camel of God, and because the reason for the verse required that, as will come.

The second: The Almighty's saying: So wherever you turn is a condition, and therefore the letter nun was deleted, and ayn is the operator, and ma is redundant, and the answer is then there is the face of God. Al-Hasan read tawlawu with the opening of the ta and the lam, and the original is tattawlawu. And thumma is in the accusative case as an adverb, and its meaning is distance, except that it is built on the opening and is not declined because it is ambiguous, it is like there for distance, but if you mean closeness, you say here.

Third: The scholars differed regarding the meaning of Wherever you turn in five statements: Abdullah bin Aamer bin Rabi'ah said: It was revealed regarding someone who prays in a direction other than the qiblah on a dark night. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on his authority on the authority of his father, who said:

"We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a journey on a dark night, and we did not know where the qiblah was, so each of us prayed separately. When morning came, we mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this verse was revealed: 'So wherever you turn, there is the face of God.'"

Abu Eisa said: This hadith has a weak chain of transmission. We do not know it except from the hadith of Ash'ath al-Samman, and Ash'ath ibn Sa'id Abu al-Rabi' is considered weak in hadith. Most scholars have held this view. They said: If someone prays in the clouds, not facing the qiblah, then it becomes clear to him later that he prayed not facing the qiblah, then his prayer is valid. This is what Sufyan, Ibn al-Mubarak, Ahmad and Ishaq say.

I said: This is the opinion of Abu Hanifa and Malik, except that Malik said: It is recommended for him to repeat it in time, and it is not obligatory for him, because he has performed his obligation as he was commanded, and the completion is made up in time, based on the Sunnah of the one who prayed alone and then caught up with that prayer in its time in a group, that he repeats it with them, and he does not repeat it in time as recommended except for the one who turned his back to the qiblah or to the east or west, very diligently, and as for the one who turned to the right or to the left a little, diligently, he does not have to repeat it in time or otherwise. Al-Mughira and Al-Shafi'i said: It does not suffice for him, because the qiblah is a condition of the prayer. What Malik said is more correct, because the direction of the qiblah permits necessity to leave it in combat, and the concession also permits it in the case of travel. Ibn 'Umar said: It was revealed about the traveler who performs voluntary prayers wherever his mount faces. Muslim narrated it from him, he said:

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray while he was coming from Mecca to Medina on his mount, wherever he was facing." He said: And in this regard, 'Wherever you turn, there is the Face of God' was revealed. There is no disagreement among scholars regarding the permissibility of performing voluntary prayers on a mount, based on this hadith and similar hadiths. It is not permissible for anyone to intentionally abandon the qiblah in any way, except in cases of extreme fear, as will come.

Malik's opinion differed regarding a sick person praying on his camel. Once he said: He should not pray an obligatory prayer on the back of a camel, even if his illness is severe. Sahnun said: If he does so, he should repeat it. Al-Baji narrated it. And another time he said: If he is one of those who does not pray on the ground except by gestures, then he should pray on the camel after it is stopped for him and he faces the qiblah. They agreed that it is not permissible for a healthy person to pray an obligatory prayer except on the ground, except in cases of extreme fear in particular, as will be explained.

The jurists differed regarding the traveler on a journey in which the prayer is not shortened. Malik and his companions and al-Thawri said: He does not perform voluntary prayers on a mount except on a journey in which the prayer is shortened. They said: Because the journeys in which it was narrated that the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) performed voluntary prayers were those in which the prayer is shortened. Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifah and their companions, al-Hasan ibn Hayy, al-Layth ibn Sa'd and Dawud ibn Ali said: It is permissible to perform voluntary prayers on a mount outside the city in any journey, regardless of whether the prayer is shortened or not, because the narrations do not specify one journey from another, so it is permissible in any journey, unless a particular journey is specified for something that must be submitted to. Abu Yusuf said: He prays in the city on the mount by gesturing, based on the hadith of Yahya ibn Sa'id on the authority of Anas ibn Malik that he prayed on a donkey in the alleys of Madinah, gesturing by gesturing. Al-Tabari said: It is permissible for every rider or pedestrian, whether present or traveling, to perform voluntary prayers on his mount or on his feet by gesturing. It was narrated from some of the companions of Al-Shafi'i that their school of thought was that it is permissible to offer voluntary prayers on an animal while at home and while traveling. Al-Athram said: Ahmad ibn Hanbal was asked about praying on an animal while at home, so he said: As for traveling, I have heard it, but I have not heard it while at home. Ibn Al-Qasim said:

Whoever offers voluntary prayers on his mount, he offers voluntary prayers while sitting, standing cross-legged, bowing, placing his hands on his knees, then raising his head. Qatada said: It was revealed about Al-Najashi, and it is as if:

When he died, the Prophet (peace be upon him) called the Muslims to pray for him outside of Medina. They said, How can we pray for a man who died while he was praying towards a direction other than ours? The Negus, the king of Abyssinia, whose name was Ashamah, which is Atiyah in Arabic, used to pray towards Jerusalem until he died. The direction of prayer was changed to the Kaaba, so the verse was revealed, and it was about him: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God. This was an excuse for the Negus. The Prophet (peace be upon him) led his companions in prayer in the ninth year of the Hijra. This was used as evidence by those who permitted praying for the dead, namely Al-Shafi'i. Ibn Al-Arabi said: "One of the strangest issues regarding praying for the dead is what Al-Shafi'i said: 'Pray for the dead is offered in absentia.' I was in Baghdad in the assembly of Imam Fakhr Al-Islam, and a man from Khurasan would enter and say to him, 'How is so-and-so?' He would say, 'He has died.' He would say, 'To God we belong and to Him we shall return!' Then he would say to us, 'Stand up, so that I may lead you in prayer.' So he would stand up and pray for him with us. This was after a period of six months, and between him and his country there were a year and months."

The basis for this, according to them, is the Prophet's (peace be upon him) prayer for the Negus. Our scholars may God have mercy on them said: The Prophet (peace be upon him) is specifically mentioned in this for three reasons:

One of them: The earth was spread out for him to the south and north until he saw the coffin of the Negus, just as it was spread out for him to the north and south until he saw the Al-Aqsa Mosque. The opponent said: What is the benefit in seeing it? The benefit is in attaining its blessing.

Second: The Negus did not have a faithful guardian there to pray over him. The opponent said: This is normally impossible! A king with a religion that has no followers, and interpreting it as impossible is impossible.

Third: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, only intended by praying over the Negus to bring mercy upon him and to reconcile the rest of the kings after him if they saw that he was being cared for, alive and dead. The opponent said: The blessing of the supplication of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and others reaches the dead by consensus. Ibn al-Arabi said: What I have regarding the Prophet's, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayer over the Negus is that he knew that the Negus and those who believed with him did not have any trace of the Sunnah of praying over the dead, so he knew that they would bury him without praying, so he hastened to pray over him.

I said: The first interpretation is better, because if he saw him, he would not have prayed for someone who was absent, but rather he would have prayed for someone who was seen and present, and the absent is that which is not seen. And God Almighty knows best.

The fourth statement: Ibn Zayd said: The Jews approved of the Prophet's prayer, may God bless him and grant him peace, facing Jerusalem, and they said: He was only guided by us. So when he turned to the Kaaba, the Jews said: What turned them away from their qiblah that they were facing? So this verse was revealed: And to God belongs the East and the West. The basis of the system according to this statement is that when the Jews denied the matter of the qiblah, God Almighty explained that He has the right to command His servants to worship as He wishes. If He wishes, He commands them to face Jerusalem, and if He wishes, He commands them to face the Kaaba, they do so. There is no proof against Him, and He is not questioned about what He does, but they are questioned.

The fifth statement: That the verse was abrogated by the statement: And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it, as mentioned by Ibn Abbas. So it seems that it was permissible at the beginning for a person to pray however he wished, then that was abrogated. Qatada said: The abrogating statement is the statement of God Almighty: So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, meaning toward it. This was narrated by Abu Isa al-Tirmidhi.

Sixth statement: It was narrated from Mujahid and Ad-Dahhak that it is decisive, meaning: Wherever you are in the East or West, there is the Face of God which He has commanded us to face, which is the Kaaba. Also from Mujahid and Ibn Jubayr, when the verse Call upon Me; I will respond to you was revealed, they said: To where? So it was revealed: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. And from Ibn Umar and An-Nakha'i: Wherever you turn in your travels and your departures, there is the Face of God. It was said: It is connected to the verse of God the Almighty: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned therein? The verse, so the meaning is that the lands of God, O believers, are sufficient for you, so do not let the destruction of those who destroyed mosques prevent you from turning your faces towards the Qiblah of God wherever you are in His land. It was said: It was revealed when the Prophet, peace and blessings of God be upon him, was prevented from entering the House in the year of Al-Hudaybiyyah, and the Muslims were distressed by that. So these are ten statements.

Whoever considers it abrogated, there is no objection to him on the grounds that it is report, because it is possible for the meaning of a command. It is possible that the meaning of Wherever you turn, there is the face of God is: Turn your faces toward the face of God. This is the verse that Saeed bin Jubair, may God have mercy on him, recited when he ordered Al-Hajjaj to slaughter him on the ground.

Fourth: People differed in the interpretation of the face attributed to God the Most High in the Qur'an and Sunnah. The experts said: This refers to existence, and the expression of the face is a metaphor for speech, if the face is the most visible and most important of the limbs in the witness. Ibn Furak said: The description of a thing may be mentioned and what is meant by it is the described by extension, as when someone says: I saw the knowledge of so-and-so today, and I looked at his knowledge, what he means by that is I saw the scholar and I looked at the scholar. Likewise if the face is mentioned here and what is meant is the one who has the face, meaning faces. Based on this, the statement of God the Most High: We feed you only for the sake of God is interpreted because what is meant by it is God who has the face. Likewise, His statement: Except seeking the Face of his Lord, the Most High means the one who has the face. Ibn Abbas said: The face is an expression of Him, the Most High, as He said: And the Face of your Lord, Owner of Majesty and Honor, will remain. Some of the imams said: This is an attribute established by hearing in addition to what the minds require of the attributes of the Eternal, the Most High. Ibn Atiyyah said: Abu al-Ma'ali weakened this statement, and it is also weak, and what is meant is His existence. It was said: What is meant by the face here is the direction towards which we face, that is, the qiblah. It was also said: The face is the intention, as the poet said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:115

And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing.

I ask God for forgiveness for a sin that I cannot count.
Lord of the servants, to Him belongs the face and the work.

It was said: The meaning is that there is the pleasure and reward of God, as He said: We feed you only for the sake of God, meaning for His pleasure and the goodness of His reward. From this is the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Whoever builds a mosque seeking thereby the Face of God, God will build for him the like of it in Paradise.

And His statement: "On the Day of Resurrection, sealed scrolls will be brought and placed before God the Most High. He will say to His angels, 'Throw this down and accept this.' The angels will say, 'By Your glory, O our Lord, we have seen nothing but good.' And He knows best. He will say, 'This was done for other than My sake, and I do not accept any deed except that which was done purely for My sake.'" This was narrated by Ad-Daraqutni. It was said that what is meant is, 'Then there is God,' and 'Facing' is a connection, and it is like His statement, 'And He is with you.'" This was said by Al-Kalbi and Al-Qutbi, and something similar is the statement of the Mu'tazilah.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing. That is, He is generous to His servants in their religion, and He does not burden them with what is beyond their capacity. It was said: Vast means that His knowledge encompasses everything, as He said: His knowledge encompasses all things. Al-Farra' said: Vast is the Generous One whose giving encompasses all things, as evidenced by the Almighty's saying: And My mercy encompasses all things. It was also said: Vast in forgiveness, meaning no sin is too great for Him. It was also said: He is generous to His servants and independent of their deeds. It is said: So-and-so is generous to what is asked, meaning he is not stingy.

God the Almighty said: Let the one with an abundance spend from his abundance, meaning let the rich spend from what God has given him. We have already mentioned this in the Most Sublime Book, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And this, and God knows best, is a consolation for the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, who were expelled from Mecca and left their mosque and place of prayer. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray in Mecca facing Jerusalem with the Kaaba in front of him. When he arrived in Medina, he was directed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months, then God turned him to the Kaaba later. This is why God Almighty says: "To God belong the east and the west. So wherever you turn, there is the face of God." Abu Ubaid al-Qasim ibn Salam said in the Book of Abrogation and Abrogated: Hajjaj ibn Muhammad told us, Ibn Jurayj and Uthman ibn Ata' told us, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The first thing that was abrogated for us from the Qur'an, according to what was mentioned to us, and God knows best, was the matter of the qibla. God Almighty said: "To God belong the east and the west. So wherever you turn, there is the face of God." So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced him and prayed facing Jerusalem and left the Ancient House, then he turned him to his Ancient House and abrogated it. He said:

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque, and wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The first thing that was abrogated from the Qur'an was the qiblah, and that was when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina, and its people were Jews, God commanded him to face Jerusalem, so the Jews rejoiced, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for a few months, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved the qiblah of Abraham, and he used to supplicate and look at the sky, so God revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven until His saying: So turn your faces toward it. The Jews were suspicious of that, and said: What turned them away from the qiblah that they were facing? So God revealed: "Say: To God belongs the East and the West," and He said: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Ikrimah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. He said: The qiblah of God is wherever you turn, east or west. Mujahid said: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Wherever you are, you have a qiblah that you face. The Kaaba, and Ibn Abi Hatim said after narrating the previous trace from Ibn Abbas in abrogating the qiblah from Ata from him, and it was narrated from Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Hasan, Ata Al-Khurasani, Ikrimah, Qatadah, Al-Suddi and Zaid bin

Aslam something similar to that, and Jarir said and others said: Rather, God revealed this verse before He imposed facing the Kaaba, and He only revealed it to teach His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions that they may face their faces in prayer wherever they wish from the directions of the east and the west, because they do not face in any direction or direction except that He, the Most High, is in that direction and direction, because the Easts and the Wests belong to Him, and no place is devoid of Him, as He, the Most High, said: And neither nearer than that nor more, but He is with them wherever they are. They said: Then that was abrogated by the obligation that was imposed on them to face the Sacred Mosque, thus he said. And in His statement that no place is devoid of Him, if He meant His knowledge, the Most High, then it is correct, for His knowledge encompasses all information, but as for His Essence, the Most High, it is not confined to any of His creation, God is far above that, far above that. Ibn Jarir said, and others said: Rather, this verse was revealed to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as permission from God to pray voluntarily, wherever he faces, east or west, while traveling, and in times of combat and intense fear. Abu Kurayb told us, Ibn Idris told us, Abdul Malik - he is Ibn Abi Sulayman - told us, on the authority of Saeed Ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Umar, that he used to pray wherever his mount faced him, and he mentioned that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to do that and interpreted this verse as So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. It was narrated by Muslim, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Ibn Mardawayh, through various chains of transmission on the authority of Abdul Malik Ibn Abi Sulayman, and its origin is in the two Sahihs, on the authority of Ibn Umar and Amir Ibn Rabi'ah, without mentioning the verse. In Sahih Al-Bukhari, on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar, that when he was asked about the prayer of fear, he would describe it, then he would say: If the fear is more severe than that, pray while standing on your feet, or while riding, facing the qiblah or not facing it. Nafi' said: I do not think that Ibn Umar mentioned that except on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Question Al-Shafi'i did not differentiate, according to the well-known opinion, between travelling a distance and travelling by contagion. According to all of them, it is permissible to voluntarily perform it on a mount, which is the opinion of Abu Hanifa, contrary to Malik and his group. Abu Yusuf and Abu Sa'id al-Istakhri chose voluntary prayer on an animal in the city. Abu Yusuf narrated it on the authority of Anas ibn Malik, may God be pleased with him, and Abu Ja'far al-Tabari chose it, even for the pedestrian. Ibn Jarir said and others said: Rather, the verse was revealed about a people who were blind to the direction of the Qiblah, so they did not know which side it was, so they prayed in different directions. God Almighty said: To Me belong the Easts and the Wests, so wherever you turn your faces, there is My Face and it is your Qiblah. He informs you thereby that your prayer is valid. Muhammad ibn Ishaq al-Ahwazi told us, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, Abu al-Rabi' al-Samman told us, on the authority of Asim ibn Ubayd God, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amir ibn Rabi'ah, on the authority of his father, who said: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a dark, black night, and we stopped at a place, and a man began to take stones and make a place of prayer in which to pray. When morning came, we found that we had prayed in a direction other than the qiblah, so we said, O Messenger of God, we have prayed this night in a direction other than the qiblah, so God the Most High revealed: To God belong the east and the west, so wherever you turn, there is the face of God al-Baqarah 2:17. Then he narrated it on the authority of Sufyan ibn Wakee', on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu al-Rabi' al-Samman, in a similar manner. It was narrated by Al-Tirmidhi on the authority of Mahmud bin Ghailan on the authority of Wakee' and Ibn Majah on the authority of Yahya bin Hakim on the authority of Abu Dawud on the authority of Abu Al-Rabi' Al-Samman. It was narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah on the authority of Saeed bin Sulaiman on the authority of Abu Al-Rabi' Al-Samman, whose name is Ash'ath bin Saeed Al-Basri, and he is weak in hadith. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good hadith, but its chain of transmission is not that strong, and we do not know it except from the hadith of Al-Ash'ath Al-Samman, and Ash'ath is weak in hadith. I say: His sheikh, Asim, is also weak. Al-Bukhari said: He is a rejected hadith narrator. Ibn Ma'een said: He is weak and cannot be relied upon. Ibn Hibban said: He is abandoned, and God knows best.

And he narrated from another path, from Jabir, so Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said in the interpretation of this verse: Ismail bin Ali bin Ismail told us, Al-Hasan bin Ali bin Shabib told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah bin Al-Hasan told me, he said: I found in my father's book, Abdul Malik Al-Azrami told us, from Ata', from Jabir, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent out a detachment, and I was in it, and darkness befell us, so we did not know the qiblah, so a group of us said: We know the qiblah, it is here towards the north, so they prayed and drew lines, and when they woke up and the sun rose, those lines became not towards the qiblah, so when we returned from our journey, we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he remained silent, and God Almighty revealed: And to God belong the east and the west, so wherever you turn, there is the face of God. Then he narrated it from the hadith of Muhammad bin Ubaidullah Al-Azrami from Ata' from Jabir with it, and Al-Daraqutni said: It was read to Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz and I was listening. Dawud bin Amr told us, Muhammad bin Yazid Al-Wasiti told us, from Muhammad bin Salim, from Ata', from Jabir, he said: We were with the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) on a journey and a cloud hit us, so we were confused and disagreed about the direction of the qiblah, so each man of us prayed separately and one of us would draw a line in front of him so that we would know where we were. We mentioned that to the Prophet (may God's peace and blessings be upon him), but he did not order us to repeat it, and he said: Your prayer is sufficient. Then Ad-Daraqutni said: This is what he said on the authority of Muhammad ibn Salim, and another said on the authority of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:115

And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing.

Muhammad ibn Ubaydullah Al-Azrami on the authority of Ata', and they are both weak. Ibn Mardawayh also narrated it on the authority of Al-Kalbi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) sent out a detachment and they were caught in a fog and they could not find their way to the qiblah, so they prayed in a direction other than the qiblah. Then it became clear to them after the sun had risen that they had prayed in a direction other than the qiblah. When they came to the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him), they told him, so God revealed regarding this verse: To God belong the east and the west, so wherever you turn, there is the face of God. These chains of transmission are weak, and perhaps some of them support each other. As for repeating the prayer for someone who realizes his mistake, there are two opinions of the scholars, and this is Evidence of non-judgment, and God knows best.

Ibn Jarir said: And others said: Rather, this verse was revealed because of the Negus, as Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, Hisham ibn Muadh told us, my father told me on the authority of Qatada that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A brother of yours has died, so pray over him. They said: Should we pray over a man who is not a Muslim? He said: So the verse was revealed: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. Qatada said: They said that he did not pray toward the Qiblah, so God revealed: And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. This is strange, and God knows best. It has been said that he used to pray toward Jerusalem before the scribe conveyed it to the Kaaba, as Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Qatada. Al-Qurtubi mentioned that when he died, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed over him, and that was taken from those who went to pray over the absent. He said: This is specific to our companions from three aspects - one of them - that when he, peace be upon him, saw him when he prayed over him, the earth was folded up for him. The second is that since he had no one to pray over him, he prayed over him, and Ibn al-Arabi chose this. Al-Qurtubi said: It is unlikely that there would be a Muslim king who had no one from his people who followed his religion. Ibn al-Arabi answered this by saying that perhaps they did not have the legitimacy of praying over the dead. This is a good answer. The third is that he, peace and blessings be upon him, only prayed over him so that this would be like a way of bringing the rest of the kings together, and God knows best.

Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh narrated in his interpretation of this verse from the hadith of Abu Ma'shar from Muhammad bin 'Amr bin 'Alqamah from Abu Salamah from Abu Hurairah who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whatever is between the east and the west is the qiblah for the people of Madinah, the people of Ash-Sham, and the people of Iraq. And it has relevance here. Al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah narrated it from the hadith of Abu Ma'shar, whose name is Najih bin 'Abd al-Rahman al-Suddi al-Madani, with it: Whatever is between the east and the west is the qiblah. And Al-Tirmidhi said: It was narrated from other sources from Abu Hurairah, and some of the people of knowledge spoke about Abu Ma'shar because of his memory. Then Al-Tirmidhi said: Al-Hasan bin Bakr al-Marwazi told me, Al-Mu'alla bin Mansur told us, Abdullah bin Ja'far al-Mukhrami told us, from 'Uthman bin Muhammad bin Al-Akhns from Abu Sa'id al-Maqburi from Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Whatever is between the east and the west is the qiblah. Then Al-Tirmidhi said: This is authentic. And it was narrated from Al-Bukhari that he said: This is stronger and more authentic than the hadith of Abu Ma'shar. Al-Tirmidhi said: And It was narrated on the authority of more than one of the Companions, Whatever is between the East and the West is the Qiblah, including Omar ibn al-Khattab, Ali, and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them all. Ibn Umar said: If you place the west on your right and the east on your left, then what is between them is a qibla, if you face the qibla. Then Ibn Mardawayh said: Ali bin Ahmad bin Abd al-Rahman told us, Yaqub bin Yusuf, a client of Banu Hashim, told us, Shu'ayb bin Ayyub told us, Ibn Numayr told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Umar, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: What is between the east and the west is a qibla. Ad-Daraqutni and al-Bayhaqi narrated it. The famous one said on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of Umar, may God be pleased with them both, his statement. Ibn Jarir said: It is possible that wherever you turn your faces in your supplication to Me, there is My face, and I will answer your supplication, as al-Qasim told us, al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said, Mujahid said: When the verse Call upon Me, I will answer you was revealed, they said: To where, so the verse So wherever you turn, there is the face of God was revealed. Ibn Jarir said: The meaning of His statement Indeed, God is All-Encompassing, All-Knowing is that He encompasses all of His creation with sufficiency, generosity, and favor. As for His statement All-Knowing, it means: He is All-Knowing of their deeds. Nothing of them escapes Him, and nothing is hidden from His knowledge. Rather, He is All-Knowing of them all.

Fath al-Qadir

And the East: is the place of sunrise. And the West: is the place of sunset, meaning they are the kingdom of God and what is between them of directions and creatures, so it includes the whole earth. His statement: 115- So wherever you turn meaning whatever direction you face, there is the Face of God: meaning the place that He is pleased for you to face, and that occurs when the direction of the Qiblah that we were commanded to face is unclear, as He, the Most High, said: "So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it." It was said in al-Kashshaf: The meaning is that if you are prevented from praying in al-Masjid al-Haram: meaning in Jerusalem, then the earth has been made a mosque for you, so pray in any spot you wish from its spots, and do the turning there, because turning is possible in every place, its places are not specific to one mosque over another mosque or to one place over another. End. This specification has no basis, because the wording is broader than it. If what is meant by it is to explain the reason, then there is no problem. And His statement: Indeed, God is All-Encompassing, All-Knowing is a guide to the breadth of His mercy. And that He is generous to His servants in their religion and does not burden them with what is beyond their capacity. It was said: Vast in the sense that His knowledge encompasses everything, as He said: His knowledge encompasses everything. Al-Farra' said: The Vast is the Generous One whose giving encompasses everything.

Ibn Ishaq and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Quraysh prevented the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from praying at the Kaaba in the Sacred Mosque, so God revealed: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God? Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that they are the Christians. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Mujahid. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi that they are the Romans who supported Nebuchadnezzar in destroying the Holy House. Concerning His statement: It is not for them to enter it except in fear, he said: There is no Roman on earth who enters it today except in fear that his neck will be struck, and he was frightened by paying the jizyah, so he pays it. Concerning His statement: For them is disgrace in this world, he said: As for their disgrace in this world, when the Mahdi rises and Constantinople is conquered, he will kill them, and that is the disgrace. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah that they are the Romans. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam that he said: They are the polytheists when they prevented the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the House on the day of Hudaibiyyah. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Abu Salih who said: The polytheists are not to enter the mosque except in fear. Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement: For them in this world is disgrace, he said: They pay the jizyah willingly while they are humiliated. Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Hakim who authenticated it and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The first thing that was abrogated from the Qur'an, as we have been told - and God knows best - was the matter of the qiblah. God the Most High said: To God belong the east and the west (al-Baqarah 2:14). So the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) faced and prayed towards Jerusalem and left the Ancient House. Then God turned him towards the Ancient House and abrogated it, saying: And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Muslim, al-Tirmidhi, al-Nasa'i and others narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Umar that he said: The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to pray voluntarily on his mount, wherever it faced. Then Ibn 'Umar recited this verse: Wherever you turn, there is the Face of God and said: This is why this verse was revealed. Ibn Jarir, al-Daraqutni and al-Hakim narrated something similar on his authority, and he authenticated it. It is proven in Saheeh al-Bukhari from the hadeeth of Jabir from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that he used to pray on his mount facing the east. When he wanted to pray the obligatory prayer, he would dismount, face the qiblah and pray. A similar hadeeth was narrated on the authority of Anas, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him). It was narrated by Ibn Abi Shaybah and Abu Dawud. Abd bin Hamid, Al-Tirmidhi who declared it weak, Ibn Majah, Ibn Jarir and others narrated on the authority of Amir bin Rabi'ah who said: We were with the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) on a dark, black night. We stopped at a place and a man began to take stones and make a place of prayer and pray in it. When morning came, we found that we had prayed in a direction other than the qiblah. We said: O Messenger of God, we have prayed this night in a direction other than the qiblah. Then God revealed the verse, To God belong the east and the west. He said: Your prayer has passed. Ad-Daraqutni, Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Jabir with a similar chain of transmission, except that he mentioned that they drew lines. Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar with a weak chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Abbas with a similar chain of transmission. Saeed bin Mansour and Ibn al-Mundhir also narrated something similar on the authority of Ata' with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him), but it is mural. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then there is the face of God meaning: The qiblah of God wherever you face, east or west. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, and Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah on the authority of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) who said: Whatever is between the east and the west is the qiblah. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Al-Daraqutni, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Al-Bayhaqi narrated something similar on the authority of Umar.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

115. The Almighty said: To God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: A group of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went on a journey before the qiblah was changed to the Kaaba. Fog struck them and the time for prayer came, so they sought the qiblah and prayed. When the fog cleared, it became clear to them that they had not been right and that they had been mistaken in their seeking. When they returned, they asked the Messenger of God about that, and this verse was revealed.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:115

And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing.

Abdullah bin Omar, may God be pleased with them both, said: It was revealed about the traveler who prays voluntary prayers wherever his mount takes him.

Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad al-Faqih al-Sarakhsi, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Dinar, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them both, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray on his mount while traveling, wherever it was facing."

Ikrimah said: It was revealed about changing the Qiblah. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: When the Qiblah was changed to the Kaaba, the Jews taunted the believers and said: They do not have a known Qiblah, so sometimes they face this way and sometimes that way. So God revealed this verse. Mujahid and Al-Hasan said: When it was revealed: And your Lord says, 'Call upon Me; I will respond to you' 60-Ghafir, they said: Where should we call upon Him? So God revealed: And to God belong the East and the West as a kingdom and a creation. So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God meaning wherever you turn your faces, there, meaning: there is the mercy of God. Al-Kalbi said: Then there is God, He knows and sees, and the face is a connection like the saying of God: Everything will perish except His Face 88-Al-Qasas, meaning except Him. Al-Hasan, Mujahid, Qatada, and Muqatil ibn Hibban said: Then there is the Qiblah of God, and the face, the direction, and the direction are the Qiblah. It was said: the pleasure of God Almighty.

God is Vast, meaning He is Rich and gives generously. Al-Farra' said: The Vast is the Generous One whose giving encompasses everything. Al-Kalbi said: Vast in forgiveness and Knowing of their intentions wherever they pray and supplicate.

with him, that it was revealed regarding the prayer of the traveler on a mount: And it was said: Regarding a people who were blind to the Qiblah, so they prayed in different directions, then when morning came they realized their mistake. Based on this, if the mujtahid makes a mistake and then the mistake becomes clear to him, he is not obligated to make up for it. It was said that it is a prelude to the abrogation of the Qiblah and the exoneration of the worshipped from being in the space of its direction.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

115- And to God belong the East and the West meaning by them the two sides of the earth, meaning that the whole earth belongs to Him, and no place is exclusive to Him. If you are prevented from praying in the Sacred Mosque or Al-Aqsa Mosque, then the earth has been made a place of prostration for you. So wherever you turn in any place you turn towards the Qiblah there is the Face of God meaning His direction which He has commanded, for the possibility of turning is not exclusive to a mosque or a place. Or there is His Essence: meaning He is All-Knowing of what is done therein. Indeed, God is Vast by His encompassing of things. Or by His mercy He wants to expand upon His servants. Knowing of their interests and their actions in all places. And from Ibn Umar, may God be pleased

Surat al-Baqarah 2:116

And they say, God has taken a son. Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. All are devoutly obedient to Him.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And they said with and without the waw, the Jews and Christians and whoever claims that the angels are daughters of God God has taken a son God Almighty said Glory be to Him absolving Him from that Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth ownership, creation, and servants, and ownership contradicts birth, and He used the word with to give precedence to that which is not rational All are obedient to Him each obedient to what is wanted from him, and in it is the predominance of the rational.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By His statement, To God belong the East and the West, God Almighty means that they belong to God and that He controls them, just as it is said: This house belongs to so-and-so. He means by that: that it belongs to him, as a possession. So His statement, To God belong the East and the West, means that they belong to Him, as a possession and as a creation.

The east is the place where the sun rises, and it is the place where it rises, just as the place where it rises is called matla', with a kasra on the lam, and as we explained in the meaning of mosques earlier.

If someone says: Or did God have only one east and one west, so that it was said: To God belong the east and the west?

It was said: The meaning of that is not what you have gone to. Rather, the meaning of that is: To God belongs the East from which the sun rises every day, and the West in which it sets every day. So its interpretation, since that was its meaning, is: To God belongs what is between the two parts of the East and what is between the two parts of the West, since the sun rises every day from a place in it and does not return to its rising from it until the following year, and likewise its setting every day.

If he said: Even if the interpretation of that is what you mentioned, then God owns everything below Him? Creation is His creation!

It was said: Yes!

If he says: How did he specify the Easts and the Wests with the report that they belong to him in this place, and not to all other things besides them?

It was said: The people of interpretation differed about the reason why God singled out the mention of that with what He singled it out with in this place. We will explain who is more deserving of the interpretation of the verse, after mentioning their statements on that. Some of them said: God, the Most High, singled out that with the report, because the Jews used to direct their faces towards Jerusalem in their prayers, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to do that for a period, then they turned towards the Kaaba. The Jews were surprised by that action of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they said: What turned them away from the qiblah that they were facing? God, the Most High, said to them: The Easts and the Wests are all Mine. I turn the faces of My servants as I will therein, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Those who said that were mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The first thing that was abrogated from the Qur'an was the qiblah. That is because when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina, and most of its people were Jews, God, the Most High, commanded him to face Jerusalem. The Jews were happy. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for about a month. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved the direction of the qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, so he would supplicate and look at the sky. Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven until His saying: So turn your faces toward it (al-Baqarah 2:144). The Jews were suspicious of that and said: What has turned them away from the qiblah which they used to face? (al-Baqarah 2:142). Then God, the Almighty, revealed: "Say: To God belong the east and the west," and He said: Wherever you turn, there is the face of God (al-Baqarah 2:142).

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, something similar.

Others said: Rather, God revealed this verse before He imposed on His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and on the believers in him, to face the direction of the Sacred Mosque. Rather, He revealed it to him to teach His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions that they may face their faces in prayer wherever they wish, in the directions of the East and the West, because they do not face in any direction or direction except that He, may His praise be glorified, is in that direction or direction, because He owns the East and the West, and that no place is devoid of Him, as He, may He be glorified and exalted, said: And not nearer than that or more but that He is with them wherever they are (al-Mujadilah 58:7). They said: Then that was abrogated by the obligation that was imposed on them, to face the direction of the Sacred Mosque. Mention of those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: The words of God Almighty: And to God belong the east and the west, so wherever you turn, there is the face of God, then that was abrogated after that, and God said: And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram (al-Baqarah 2:149, 150).

Al-Hasan told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammal told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: So wherever you turn, there is the face of God, he said: It is the qibla, then the qibla was replaced by the Sacred Mosque.

And they say, "God has taken a son." Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. All are devoutly obedient to Him.

Al-Muthanna told me, Al-Hajjaj bin Al-Minhal told us, Hammam told us, Yahya told us, I heard Qatada regarding the statement of God: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God, he said: They used to pray towards Jerusalem, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was in Mecca before the migration. After the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated, he prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen months, then he turned after that towards the Kaaba, the Sacred House. Then God abrogated it in another verse: We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased to And wherever you are, turn your faces towards it Al-Baqarah 2:144. He said: So this verse abrogated what came before it regarding the matter of the qiblah.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard him, meaning Zaid, say: The Almighty said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is all-Encompassing and Knowing." He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: These are Jewish people facing one of the Houses of God. If only we could face it! So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for sixteen months, and it reached him that the Jews were saying: By God, Muhammad and his companions did not know where their qiblah was until we guided them! The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, disliked that, and he raised his face to the sky, and God, may He be exalted, said: We have certainly seen the turning of your face, toward the heaven (al-Baqarah 2:144).

Others said: This verse was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as permission from God Almighty for him to pray voluntary prayers wherever he faces, east or west, while traveling, in combat, in times of intense fear and when fighting in obligatory prayers. And He informed him that wherever he faces, he is there, by His saying: To God belong the east and the west, so wherever you turn, there is the face of God. Those who said that: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Umar: that he used to pray wherever his mount faced him, and he mentioned that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to do that, and he interpreted this verse: Wherever you turn, there is the face of God.

Abu Al-Sa'ib told me, he said, Ibn Fadil told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik bin Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Umar that he said: This verse, Wherever you turn, there is the face of God, was revealed so that you may pray voluntarily wherever your mount takes you during a journey. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, returned from Mecca, he would pray voluntarily on his mount, nodding his head toward Medina.

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about a people who were blind to the direction of the Qiblah and did not know which side it was, so they lined up in different directions. Then God the Almighty said to them: Mine are the Easts and the Wests, so wherever you turn your faces, there is My Face, and it is your Qiblah, teaching them that their prayers are valid.

Those who said this: Ahmad told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Abu al-Rabi' al-Samman told us, on the authority of Asim ibn Ubaydullah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amir ibn Rabi'ah, on the authority of his father, who said: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a dark, black night, and we stopped at a place. A man began to take stones and build a place of prayer in which to pray. When morning came, we found that we had prayed facing a direction other than the Qiblah. We said: O Messenger of God, we have prayed this night facing a direction other than the Qiblah! Then God the Almighty revealed: "And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing."

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj told me, he said, Hammad told us, he said, I said to Al-Nakha'i: I woke up, or he said: I was awakened, Al-Tabari was not sure, and there were clouds in the sky, so I prayed facing the qiblah. He said: Your prayer is valid. God Almighty says: So wherever you turn, there is the face of God.

Sufyan ibn Wakee' narrated to us, he said: My father narrated to us, on the authority of Ash'ath al-Samman, on the authority of Asim ibn Ubayd God, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amir ibn Rabi'ah, on the authority of his father, he said: We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a dark night on a journey, and we did not know where the qiblah was, so we lined up, and each one of us lined up on his own side, then we came in the morning and mentioned it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so God Almighty revealed: So wherever you turn, there is the face of God.

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about the Negus, because the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, disputed about his affair, because he died before praying towards the Qiblah, so God the Almighty said: The Easts and the Wests are all Mine, so whoever turns his face towards any of them, intending Me and seeking My obedience thereby, will find Me there. Meaning by this that even though the Negus did not pray towards the Qiblah, he did turn his face towards some of the directions of the Easts and the Wests, seeking thereby the pleasure of God the Almighty in his prayer. Mention of those who said this: Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Hisham bin Muadh told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Your brother the Negus has died, so pray over him. They said: Should we pray over a man who is not a Muslim? He said: Then the verse was revealed: 'And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God.” (Al Imran 3:199). Qatada said: They said: He did not pray towards the Qiblah! Then God Almighty revealed: “To God belong the East and the West. So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God.”

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard is that God, the Most High, mentioned specifically the report about the East and the West in this verse, that they are His possession, even though there is nothing that does not belong to Him, as a notification from Him to His believing servants that He owns them and the creation between them, and that all of them, since He owns them, must obey Him in what He commands and forbids them, and in what He imposes upon them of obligations, and to turn in the direction to which they are directed, since it is the rule of slaves to obey their Master. So He excluded the report about the East and the West, and what is meant by it is: the creation between them, in the manner that I have explained, from the sufficiency of the report about the reason for the thing, from mentioning it and the report about it, as it was said: And they made the calf drink into their hearts (al-Baqarah 2:93), and the like.

The meaning of the verse is: To God belongs the kingdom of creation between the East and the West. He makes them worship Him as He wills, and He rules over them as He wills. They must obey Him. So turn your faces, O believers, toward My face, for wherever you turn your faces, there is My face.

As for the statement about this verse, is it abrogating or abrogated, or is it neither abrogating nor abrogated? The correct statement is that it came as a general statement, but the intended meaning is specific. This is because His statement, So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God is possible: wherever you turn while traveling, during your voluntary prayers, and during your combat.

Your enemy is in your voluntary and obligatory prayers, for there is the face of God, as Ibn Omar and Al-Nakha'i said, and those who said that from those we mentioned earlier.

It is possible: So wherever you turn on the earth of God, you are there, then there is the Qiblah of God to which you direct your faces, because it is possible for you to turn towards the Kaaba from it, as Abu Kurayb said, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Abu Sinan, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, and An-Nadr ibn Arabi, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God, he said: The Qiblah of God, so wherever you are, east or west, face it.

Al-Qasim narrated, Al-Husayn narrated, Hajjaj narrated, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Ibrahim informed me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Bakr, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Wherever you are, there is a qiblah to which you face. He said: The Kaaba. It is possible: So wherever you turn your faces in your supplication, there is My face, I will answer your supplication, as Al-Qasim narrated, Al-Husayn narrated, Hajjaj narrated, Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: When the verse Call upon Me, I will respond to you (Ghafir 40:65) was revealed, they said: To where? So the verse So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God was revealed.

Since the Almighty's saying: So wherever you turn, there is the face of God, is open to the aspects we mentioned, no one can claim that it is abrogating or abrogated, except with an argument that must be accepted.

Because abrogation can only occur with abrogated things, and no proof has been established that must be accepted that his statement: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God means: So wherever you turn your faces in your prayer, there is your Qiblah? Nor that it was revealed after the prayer of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and his companions towards Jerusalem, as a command from God the Almighty to them to face the Kaaba, so it is permissible to say: It is the abrogator of the prayer towards Jerusalem, since there were some scholars from the companions of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and the imams of the followers who denied that it was revealed in that meaning, and there is no confirmed report from the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) that it was revealed in that regard, and the difference of opinion about it existed as described.

Nor, since it did not abrogate what we described, did its proof stand that it was abrogated, since it was possible for what we described: that it came in a general way, and its meaning is: in one situation rather than another if what was meant by it was the direction in prayer and in every situation, if what was meant by it was supplication and other meanings that we mentioned.

We have demonstrated in our book, The Book of Explanation of the Principles of Rulings, that there is no abrogating verse in the Qur'an and the reports of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, except that which negates an established ruling and obliges the servants to impose it, and does not have the apparent or hidden meaning of anything other than that. But if it has the meaning of something other than that, such as being in the sense of exception, or specificity and generality, or ambiguous, or explanatory, then the abrogating and abrogated are separate, so there is no need to repeat it in this place, and there is no abrogated except that which is negated, whose ruling and obligation have already been established.

Neither of these two meanings is correct for his statement: So wherever you turn, there is the face of God, with an argument that must be accepted, so it is said about it: it is abrogating or abrogated.

As for his saying: Wherever, its meaning is: wherever.

As for his saying: Turn away, what is more appropriate for its interpretation is: you turn toward it and towards it, as someone says: I turned my face toward it and I turned it toward it, meaning I faced it and confronted it. We only said that this is more appropriate for the interpretation of the verse, because of the consensus of the proof that this is its interpretation, and the anomaly of those who interpreted it to mean: you turn away from it and turn your backs on it, so what you are turning toward is the Face of God, meaning the Qiblah

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:116

And they say, "God has taken a son." Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. All are devoutly obedient to Him.

of God.

As for his saying: then, it means: there.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the interpretation of his statement: Then there is the Face of God. Some of them said: The interpretation of that is: Then there is the Qiblah of God, meaning by that His Face to which He directed them. Those who said that mentioned: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Al-Nadr bin Arabi, on the authority of Mujahid: Then there is the Face of God, he said: The Qiblah of God.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibrahim told me, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Wherever you are, you have a qiblah that you face.

Others said: The meaning of God Almighty's saying: Then there is the face of God, is that there is God, Blessed and Exalted be He.

Others said: The meaning of his saying: Then there is the face of God, is that then you will attain, by turning to Him, the pleasure of God, who has the noble face.

Others said: He meant by the face the one with the face. And those who said this statement said: The face of God is an attribute of Him.

If someone says: What is this verse compared to the one before it?

It was said: It has a continuation. Rather, the meaning of that is: Who is more unjust than the Christians who prevented the servants of God from mentioning His name in His mosques, and sought to destroy them? And to God belong the East and the West, so wherever you turn your faces, remember Him, for His face is there. His bounty, His land, and His country encompass you, and He knows what you do. And let not the destruction of those who destroyed the mosque of Jerusalem, and the prevention of those who prevented the remembrance of God in it, prevent you from remembering God wherever you are in the land of God, seeking thereby His face.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and All-Knowing.

Abu Jaafar said: By His saying, Vast, He means that He is sufficient for all of His creation with sufficiency, favor, generosity, and management.

As for his saying: All-Knowing, it means that He is All-Knowing of their actions. Nothing of them is hidden from Him, nor is it hidden from His knowledge. Rather, He is All-Knowing of all of them.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And they say, 'God has taken a son.' Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, And they said, 'God has taken a son,' is those who prevented the mosques of God from mentioning His name in them. They said is connected to His statement, And he strove toward its destruction.

The interpretation of the verse: And who is more unjust than he who prevents the mosques of God from being mentioned in them and strives toward their destruction and says, God has taken a son, and they are the Christians who claimed that Jesus was the son of God. So God, the Most High, said, denying what they said of that and negating what they attributed and added to it with their lies and slander: Glory be to Him, meaning by it: sanctification and absolution from having a son, and being exalted and elevated above that. We have previously demonstrated the meaning of the speaker's saying, Glory be to God, in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this place.

Then He, the Most High, informed us that He owns and creates what is in the heavens and the earth. The meaning of that is: How can the Messiah be a son of God, when it is not impossible that he is either in some of these places, either in the heavens or on the earth, and God owns what is in them? And if the Messiah were a son, as you claim, he would not be like the rest of what is in the heavens and the earth of His creation and His servants, in the manifestation of the signs of creation in him.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "And they say, 'God has taken a son.' Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. All are devoutly obedient to Him."

There are five issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And they say, 'God has taken a son.' This is a report about the Christians in their saying that the Messiah is the son of God. It was also said about the Jews in their saying that Ghazir is the son of God. It was also said about the infidel Arabs in their saying that the angels are daughters of God. Similar reports have come from the ignorant infidels about Mary and the prophets.

The second: His saying: Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs the verse. Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God Almighty said: The son of Adam denied Me, although he had no right to do so, and he insulted Me, although he had no right to do so. As for his denying Me, it is his claiming that I am not able to restore him as he was, and as for his insulting Me, it is his saying that I have a son. So glory be to Me that I should take a wife or a son."

Third: Subhan is in the accusative case as a verbal noun, and its meaning is exoneration, sanctification, and avoidance, from their saying: God took a son. Rather, He is God, the Most High, One in His Essence, One in His Attributes. He did not give birth, so He would need a companion. How could He have a son when He has no companion and He created all things?

He did not give birth, so He would be preceded. He is exalted and glorified above what the wrongdoers and deniers say, far above! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. What is raised by the subject and the predicate in the genitive, meaning that all of that is His by creation and invention. And the one who says that He took a son is included in the heavens and the earth. It was previously mentioned that the meaning of Subhan God is: God's innocence from evil.

Fourth: The son can only be of the same kind as the father. How can the Truth, glory be to Him, take a son from among His creatures when nothing resembles Him? He said: There is none in the heavens and earth but comes to the Most Merciful as a servant. Just as He said here: Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. Sonship requires genus and occurrence, and eternity requires oneness and permanence. He, glory be to Him, is the Eternal, the One, the Unique, the Self-Sufficient, who neither begets nor was begotten, and there is none comparable to Him. Moreover, sonship contradicts slavery and servitude—as will be explained in Surah Maryam, God willing—so how can a son be a servant! This is impossible, and what leads to the impossible is impossible.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: All are obedient to Him is a subject and predicate, and the meaning is for them, then the ha' and the mim were deleted. Obedient means obedient and submissive, so all creatures are obedient to God, meaning they submit and obey. And the obedience of inanimate objects is in the manifestation of creation over them and in them. So obedience is obedience, and silence is from it the saying of Zaid bin Arqam: We used to talk during prayer, a man would talk to his companion next to him until the verse: And stand before God, obedient, was revealed, so we were commanded to be silent and forbidden from speaking. And silence is prayer, the poet said:

Obedient to God, reciting His Book and deliberately separating himself from people

Al-Suddi and others said regarding his statement: Everyone is devoutly obedient to Him, meaning on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Hasan said: Everyone who stands by the testimony that he is a servant. And the root of qunut in the language is standing, and from it comes the hadith:

The best prayer is the one that is prolonged in qunut, said Al-Zajjaj. So people are obedient, meaning they perform servitude, either by acknowledging it or by doing otherwise. So the effect of creation is clear to them. It was said: Its origin is obedience, and from that is the saying of God Almighty: and the obedient men and women. This will be further explained in His saying, God Almighty: And stand before God, obedient.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse and the one that follows it contain a response to the Christians, upon them be the curses of God, and also those like them from the Jews and the polytheists of the Arabs who made the angels daughters of God, so God belied all of them in their claim and their saying that God has a son, so God the Most High said: Glory be to Him meaning He is exalted, sanctified and far above that, Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth meaning the matter is not as they fabricated, rather His is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and whoever is in them, and He is the One who controls them, and He is their Creator, Provider, Destiner, Subject, Guide, and Disposer of them as He wills, and all are His slaves and His property, so how could He have a son from them when a son is only born from two proportional things, and He, the Blessed and Exalted, has no peer or partner in His greatness and pride, nor does He have a companion, so how could He have a son? As God the Almighty said: "Originator of the heavens and the earth. How could He have a son when He has no wife and He created all things? And He is Knowing of all things?" And God the Almighty said: "And they say, 'The Most Gracious has taken a son.' You have certainly done a thing monstrous. The heavens almost burst from it and the earth splits open and the mountains collapse in devastation. That they attribute to the Most Gracious a son. And it is not befitting for the Most Gracious that He should take a son. Indeed, everyone in the heavens and the earth will come to the Most Gracious as a servant. He has enumerated them and counted them precisely. And all of them will come to Him on the Day of Resurrection alone." And God the Almighty said: "Say, 'He is God, the One. God, the Self-Sufficient. He neither begets nor is born. And there is none comparable to Him.'" So God the Almighty has established in these noble verses that He is the Great Master who has no peer or likeness and that all things besides Him were created and nurtured for Him, so how could He have a son from them? And for this reason Al-Bukhari said in his interpretation of this verse from al-Baqarah 2: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Shuaib told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi Al-Hussein, Nafi bin Jubair - he is Ibn Mut'am - told us, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "God Almighty said: The son of Adam denied Me, and he had no right to do so, and he insulted Me, and he had no right to do so. As for his denying Me, he claims that I am not able to restore him as he was, and as for his insulting Me, it is his saying that I have a son, so glory be to Me that I should take a wife or a son." Al-Bukhari transmitted it only from this source. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad bin Kamil told us, Muhammad bin Ismail Al-Tirmidhi told us, Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Muhammad Al-Farawi told us, Malik told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Zinad, on the authority of Al-A'raj, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "And God Almighty says: The son of Adam denied Me, and he had no right to do so, and he insulted Me, and he had no right to do so. As for his denying Me, it is his saying: He will not restore me as I began. And the first creation is not easier for Me than its restoration." As for his cursing me, he said: "God has taken a son. I am God, the One, the Self-Sufficient. He neither begets nor is begotten, and there is none comparable to Him." In the two Sahihs, it is narrated on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "No one is more patient with the harm he hears than God. They attribute to Him a son, and He provides for them and cures them." And his saying: All are obedient to Him. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja' informed us, Asbat informed us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Atiyyah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Obserious means praying. Ikrimah and Abu Malik said: All are obedient to Him acknowledging servitude to Him. Saeed bin Jubayr said: All are obedient to Him, meaning sincerity. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: He says: All are obedient to Him, meaning standing on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Suddi said: All are obedient to Him, meaning obedient on the Day of Resurrection. Khasif said on the authority of Mujahid: All are obedient to Him, he said: obedient. He said: Be a human being and it was. He said: Be a donkey and it was. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: All have obedient and devout ones. He said: The obedience of the disbeliever is in the prostration of his shadow, even though he is reluctant. This statement from Mujahid, which is the choice of Ibn Jarir, brings together all the statements, which is that devoutness, obedience, and submission to God is a lawful and predestined act, as God Almighty said: And to God prostrates whoever is in the heavens and the earth, willingly or by compulsion, and so do their shadows in the mornings and the evenings. A hadith has been reported in which there is an explanation of devoutness in the Qur'an, what is meant by it, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yusuf Ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Amr Ibn al-Harith told me that Diraaj Abu al-Samh told him on the authority of Abu al-Haytham, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Every letter of the Qur'an in which devoutness is mentioned is obedience. Imam Ahmad also narrated it on the authority of Hasan Ibn Musa on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah on the authority of Diraaj with his chain of transmission similar to it, but in this chain of transmission there is a weakness that cannot be relied upon, and the attribution of this hadith to the Prophet is objectionable, and it may be the words of a companion or someone less than him, and God knows best.

And they say, "God has taken a son." Glory be to Him! Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. All are devoutly obedient to Him.

And the Almighty's saying: Originator of the heavens and the earth means: Their Creator without a previous example. Mujahid and As-Suddi said: This is what the language requires, and from this the newly introduced thing is called an innovation, as it came in Sahih Muslim: "For every newly introduced thing is an innovation, and innovation is of two types: Sometimes it is a religious innovation, like his saying: "For every newly introduced thing is an innovation and every innovation is misguidance," and sometimes it is a linguistic innovation, like the saying of the Commander of the Faithful, Umar ibn Al-Khattab, about his gathering them for the Tarawih prayer and their continuation: What an excellent innovation this is! Ibn Jarir said: Originator of the heavens and the earth is their Creator, and it is a verb that is changed to a verb, just as the painful is changed to the painful, and the hearer is changed to the hearer. The meaning of the creator is the originator and the originator, that which no one precedes him in creating and innovating like it. He said: Therefore the innovator in religion is called an innovator because he innovates in it what no one else has preceded him in, and likewise every innovator in word or deed, in which no one preceded him, the Arabs call him an innovator. This includes the words of A'sha bin Tha'laba in praise of Hudha bin Ali al-Hanafi:

He claims to say the words of the masters of men if they show him firmness or whatever he wants he innovates

That is, He creates what He wills. Ibn Jarir said: The meaning of the words, Glory be to God, is that He has a son, and He is the Owner of what is in the heavens and the earth, and all of them bear witness to Him by indicating His Oneness, and acknowledge His obedience, and He is their Creator, Maker, and Originator, without a root or example that they follow. This is an announcement from God to His servants that among those who bear witness to this is the Messiah, to whom they attributed his sonship to God, and an announcement from Him to them that the One who created the heavens and the earth without a root and without an example is the One who created the Messiah, Jesus, without a father by His power. This is good speech and a correct expression from Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him. And the Almighty's saying: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is. With this, the Almighty clarifies the perfection of His power and the greatness of His authority, and that when He decrees a matter and wants it to be, He only says to it, 'Be,' that is, once, and it is, that is, it exists, according to what He willed, as the Almighty said: His command, when He intends a thing, is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. And the Almighty said: Our command to a thing when We intend it is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. And the Almighty said: And Our command is but one, like the twinkling of an eye. And the poet said:

If he wants something, he just says to it, Be, and it is.

He also pointed out that Jesus was created with the word Be, and he was, as God commanded him. God Almighty said: "The likeness of Jesus before God is as that of Adam. He created him from dust, then said to him, 'Be,' and he was."

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 116- And they said they are the Jews and Christians - and it was said the Jews: that is they said: Ezra is the son of God and it was said the Christians: that is they said: The Messiah is the son of God and it was said: they are the infidel Arabs: that is they said: the angels are daughters of God. And His saying: Glory be to Him has been explained previously, and what is meant here is God Almighty's disavowal of what they attributed to Him of taking a son. And His saying: Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth is a response to those who say that He took a son: that is, rather, He is the owner of whatever is in the heavens and the earth, and these speakers are included under His kingdom, and the son is of their kind and not of His kind, and the son is only of the kind of the father. And the obedient: the submissive: that is, everyone in the heavens and the earth is obedient to Him, submissive to His greatness, humbled before His majesty, and the qunut in the original language means standing. Al-Zajjaj said: "The creation is obedient, meaning they stand in worship, either by acknowledgment or by the opposite, so the effect of the creation is clear to them. It was said: Its origin is obedience, and from it is "and the obedient men and women." It was also said: stillness, and from it is His statement: And stand before God, obedient. For this reason Zaid bin Arqam said: We used to talk during prayer until And stand before God, obedient, was revealed, so we were commanded to be silent and forbidden from speaking. It was said: Qunut is prayer, and from it is the saying of the poet:

Obedient to God, reciting His Books and deliberately separating himself from people

The first is that Qunut is a word that has many meanings. It has been said that there are thirteen meanings, and they are clear. Some scholars have organized them, as I explained in my explanation of Al-Muntaqa.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

116. The Almighty said: And they said, 'God has taken a son.' Ibn Amir read They said, 'God has taken a son.' Without the waw, and the others read it with the waw. [And they said, 'God has taken a son.'] It was revealed about the Jews of Medina when they said, Ezra is the son of God, and about the Christians of Najran when they said, The Messiah is the son of God, and about the polytheists of Arabia when they said, The angels are the daughters of God. Glory be to Him. He is glorified and exalted.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Abu Al-Yaman, that Shu'ayb narrated from Abdul Rahman bin Abi Hassan, from Nafi' bin Jubayr, from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "God Almighty said: The son of Adam denied Me, and he had no right to do so, and he insulted Me, and he had no right to do so. As for his denying Me, he claimed that I am not able to restore him as he was, and as for his insulting Me, it is his saying that I have a son. Glory be to Me that I should take a wife or a son."

God the Almighty said: Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth as servants and kings. All are obedient to Him. Mujahid, Ata' and As-Suddi said: Obedient. Ikrimah and Muqatil said: Acknowledging their servitude to Him. Ibn Kaysan said: Standing in the testimony. The origin of Qunut is standing. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best prayer is prolonged Qunut. They differed regarding the ruling of the verse. A group held that the ruling of the verse is specific. Muqatil said: It refers to Ezra, the Messiah and the angels. Ibn

Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: It refers to the people of His obedience, not to the rest of the people. A group held that the ruling of the verse is general for all creation because al/ requires encompassing the thing so that nothing is excluded from it. Then they took two paths regarding the infidels: Mujahid said: Their shadows prostrate to God against their will. God the Almighty said: And their shadows in the mornings and the evenings 13:15. As-Suddi said: This is the Day of Resurrection, and its proof is: And faces will be humbled before the Ever-Living, the Self-Sustaining. 111-Taha It was said obedient submissive and obedient to what they were created for.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

116- And they said, 'God has taken a son.' It was revealed when the Jews said, Ezra is the son of God, and the Christians said, The Messiah is the son of God, and the polytheists of the Arabs said, The angels are the daughters of God. Its conjunction with the Jews said, or a prohibition, or the meaning of the Almighty's saying, And who is more unjust? Ibn Amir read without the waw, Glory be to Him, to absolve Him of that, as it requires likening, need, and the speed of annihilation. Do you not see that the celestial bodies - despite their possibility and annihilation - since they were permanent as long as the world existed, did not take what would be for them like a son, taking animals and daughters, by choice or by nature. Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth. This is a response to what they said, and evidence of its corruption. The meaning is that He, the Most High, is the Creator of whatever is in the heavens and the earth, which includes the angels, Ezra, and the Messiah. All are obedient to Him. Submissive, they do not refrain from His will and creation. Everything that has this characteristic is not similar to its necessary component in itself, so it does not have a son, because it is the right of a son to be similar to his father. Rather, He came with what is not for those who have knowledge. He said obedient in order to emphasize those who have knowledge, belittling their status. The nunation of every is a substitute for the added to it, meaning everything in them. It is possible that it is intended for everyone whom they made a son to Him, obedient and committed to servitude, so it is an obligation after establishing the proof. The verse indicates the corruption of what they said in three ways, and the jurists used it as evidence that whoever owns his son is freed from him, because the Most High denied the son by affirming ownership, and that requires their contradiction.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:117

Originator of the heavens and the earth. And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, "Be," and it is.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:117

Originator of the heavens and the earth. And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, Be, and it is.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Originator of the heavens and the earth Their Creator, not in the same way as before And when He decrees He intends a matter that is, to bring it into existence He only says to it, Be, and it is that is, so it is. And in a reading with the accusative as an answer to the command

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that. Some of them said: The meaning of that is: obedient.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: All are obedient to Him, obedient.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: All are obedient to Him, he said: Obedient. He said: The obedience of the disbeliever in the prostration of his shadow.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly except that he added: with the prostration of his shadow while he was unwilling.

Musa told us, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: All are obedient to Him, meaning: All are obedient to Him on the Day of Resurrection.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Yahya bin Saeed told me, on the authority of someone who mentioned it, on the authority of Ikrimah: All are obedient to Him, he said: obedience.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Munjab bin Al-Harith, who said: It was narrated to us by Bishr bin Amara, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Qantun means obedient.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Everyone is obedient to Him. Those who said this were: Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Al-Hussein bin Waqid told us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah: Everyone is obedient to Him, everyone is obedient to Him.

Others said: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: All are obedient to Him, he said: All are standing for Him on the Day of Resurrection.

In Arabic, there are several forms of supplication. One of them is obedience, another is standing, and the third is refraining from speaking or abstaining from it.

The first meaning of qunut in His statement: All are obedient to Him, is obedience and acknowledgment of servitude to God, the Almighty, as witnessed by their bodies, with what is in them of traces of creation and evidence of the Oneness of God, the Almighty, and that God, the Most High, is their Creator and Maker. This is because God, the Most High, has proven those who claim that God has a son to be liars, by His statement: Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth, in dominion and creation. Then He informed about everything in the heavens and the earth that it is acknowledged by its evidence of its Lord and Creator, and that God, the Most High, is its Creator and Maker. Even if some of them deny this, their tongues submit to Him in obedience, by their testimony to Him with the traces of creation in them in this regard, and that the Messiah is one of them. So how can God have a son when this is His description? Some of those whose knowledge is insufficient to direct the speech in its direction have claimed that His statement: All are obedient to Him, is specific to the people of obedience and is not general. It is not permissible to claim a specificity in a verse that appears to be general, except with an argument that must be accepted, as we have explained in our book, The Book of Explanation of the Principles of Rulings.

This is report from God Almighty that the Messiah, whom the Christians claimed was the son of God, is their liar, as are the heavens and the earth and everything in them, either verbally or by implication. That is because God Almighty informed about all of them, about their obedience to him, and their acknowledgment of their servitude to him, following His statement: And they said, 'God has taken a son,' so this indicates the truth of what we said.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has six issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: Originator of the heavens is a superlative form of fa'il, and it is raised as a predicate of an omitted subject, and the active participle is mubdi', like seer from mubsi'r. You innovated something without an example, so God Almighty is the Originator of the heavens and the earth, meaning their Creator, Inventor, Maker, and Inventor without limit or example. And whoever innovates something that no one has ever done before is called an innovator, and from this are the people of innovations. Innovation is called innovation because its speaker innovated it without the action or statement of an imam, and in Bukhari: And what an excellent innovation this is, meaning the standing in Ramadan.

Second: Every innovation that comes from a created being must have a basis in the Shari'ah or not. If it has a basis, it falls under the generality of what God has commanded and urged His Messenger to do, so it is praiseworthy. If its example does not exist, such as a type of generosity, liberality, or doing good, then his action is a praiseworthy action, even if the doer has not done it before. This is supported by the statement of 'Umar may God be pleased with him: "This is a good innovation, because it is a good action and falls within the scope of praise. Even though the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) performed it, he left it and did not maintain it or gather the people to do it." So 'Umar's may God be pleased with him maintaining it, gathering the people to do it, and urging them to do it is an innovation, but it is a praiseworthy and commendable innovation. If it is contrary to what God and His Messenger have commanded, then it is blameworthy and denounced. Al-Khattabi and others said the same.

I said: This is the meaning of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in his sermon:

The worst of matters are their innovations, and every innovation is misguidance. He means what does not agree with the Book or the Sunnah, or the actions of the Companions, may God be pleased with them. He explained this by saying:

"Whoever establishes a good practice in Islam will have the reward for it and the reward of those who act upon it after him, without that detracting from their reward in the slightest. And whoever establishes a bad practice in Islam will bear its burden and the burden of those who act upon it after him, without that detracting from their burden in the slightest." This is an indication of what has been innovated, good or bad, and it is the basis of this topic. And with God is protection and success, there is no god but Him.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is. That is, when He wants to perfect and complete it - as previously mentioned in His knowledge - He says to it, Be. Ibn Arafah said: The decree of something is its perfection, its implementation, and its completion. The judge is called this because when he rules, he has completed what is between the two opponents. Al-Azhari said: The word qada in the language has several meanings, referring to the cessation and completion of something. Abu Dhu'ayb said:

And upon them are two chains of narration, which David ruled or the making of the chains of narration.

Al-Shamakh said about Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him:

I did things and then left with calamities in my sleeves that have not yet been solved

Our scholars said: The word qada is a common word that means creation. God the Almighty said: So He completed them as seven heavens in two days meaning He created them. It can also mean informing,

God the Almighty said: And We decreed to the Children of Israel in the Book meaning He informed us. It can also mean ordering, as in His saying: And your Lord has decreed that you not worship except Him. It can also mean imposing and enforcing rulings, and from this the ruler is called a judge. It can also mean fulfilling the right, as in His saying: So when Moses had fulfilled the term Qadi. It can also mean will, as in His saying: So when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is meaning when He wants to create something. Ibn Atiyyah said: The meaning of qada is that He has decreed, and it can also mean He has passed, and both meanings are applicable in this verse according to the doctrine of the Sunnis: He has decreed in eternity and passed it. According to the doctrine of the Mu'tazila, He passed it upon creation and bringing into existence.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: A matter. The matter is one of matters, and it is not a source of the verb to command. Our scholars said: The matter in the Qur'an is used in fourteen ways.

First: Religion. God Almighty said: Until the truth came and the command of God became apparent, meaning the religion of God, Islam.

The second: The statement, including the Almighty's saying: So when Our command comes, meaning Our statement, and His saying: And they disputed their affair among themselves, meaning their statement.

Third: Punishment, including the Almighty's saying: When the matter has been decided, meaning when the punishment of the people of Hell has become obligatory.

Fourth: Jesus, peace be upon him. God Almighty said: When He decrees a matter, meaning Jesus, and he knew that he would be without a father.

Fifth: The killing at Badr. God Almighty said: So when the command of God comes meaning the killing at Badr. And God Almighty said: That God may accomplish a matter which was to be done meaning the killing of the infidels of Mecca.

Sixth: The conquest of Mecca. God Almighty said: Then wait until God brings about His command, meaning the conquest of Mecca.

Seventh: The killing of Qurayzah and the expulsion of Banu Nadir. God Almighty said: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command.

Eighth: The Resurrection. God Almighty said: The command of God has come.

Ninth: Judgment. God Almighty said: He directs the affair. Meaning judgment.

Tenth: Revelation. God Almighty said: He directs the affair from the heaven to the earth.

He says: Revelation descends from heaven to earth, and his saying: The command descends between them means revelation.

Eleventh: The matter of creation. God Almighty said: Unquestionably, to God do all matters return, meaning the matters of creation.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:117

Originator of the heavens and the earth. And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, "Be," and it is.

Twelfth: Victory. God Almighty said: They say, 'Do we have any part in the matter?' They mean victory. Say, 'Indeed, the whole matter belongs to God.' Meaning victory.

Thirteenth: Sin. God Almighty said: So she tasted the evil consequences of her deed, meaning the punishment for her sin.

Fourteenth: The affair and the action. God Almighty said: And Pharaoh's command was not right, meaning his action and affair. And He said: So let those beware who dissent from his command, meaning his action.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: Be. It was said: The kaf is from His being, and the nun is from His light, and it is what is meant by His saying, peace be upon him:

I seek refuge in the perfect words of God from the evil of what He has created. It is also narrated: In the perfect word of God in the singular. So the plural is because this word is in all matters, so if He says to every matter, Be, and to every thing, Be, then they are words. Evidence for this is what was narrated on the authority of Abu Dharr on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in what is narrated on the authority of God Almighty:

My gift is speech and my punishment is speech.

Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi in a long hadith. The word in the singular also means words, but when the single word is dispersed in matters at times, it becomes words and their reference is to one word. It is called complete because the minimum speech according to the linguists is three letters: a letter that begins, a letter that fills the word, and a letter that is left blank. If it is two letters, then it is considered defective, like kid, "dam," and mouth. It is only defective for a reason. From the human beings, it is among the defective because it is two letters, and because it is a word pronounced with tools. From our Lord, Blessed and Exalted be He, it is complete because it is without tools. He is Exalted above resembling created beings.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: So it is was read with the nun raised as a resumption. Sibawayh said: So it is or then it is. Another said: It is conjoined with 'says', so according to the first, it is "being after the command, even if it is non-existent, then it is like something that exists, since it is known to Him, as will be explained. According to the second, it is being with the command, and Al-Tabari chose it and said: His command to the thing with but does not precede existence nor does it come after it, so the thing is not commanded to exist except that it exists with the command, nor does it exist except that it is commanded to exist, as will be explained. He said: "And similar to it is the people rising from their graves, it does not precede the supplication of God nor come after it, as He said: "Then when He calls you with a single call from the earth, at once you will emerge." Ibn Atiyyah weakened this statement and said: It is a mistake in terms of meaning, because it requires that the statement is with creation and existence.

The summary of the belief in this verse is: God

Almighty has always been commanding non-existent things on condition of their existence, capable even though the capabilities are delayed, and knowledgeable even though the information is delayed. So everything in the verse that requires the future is according to the commands, since the new things come after they did not exist. And everything that is attributed to God Almighty of power and knowledge is eternal and has always existed. And the meaning required by the phrase Be is eternal and self-existent.

Abu al-Hasan al-Mawardi said: If it is said: In what state does He say to it, Be, and it is? In a state of nonexistence, or in a state of existence? If it is in a state of nonexistence, it is impossible for Him to command anyone except one who is commanded, just as it is impossible for a command to be from anyone except one who commands. And if it is in a state of existence, then that is a state in which it is not permissible for Him to command existence and occurrence, because He is an existing and occurring entity. Three answers have been given to this question:

One of them: It is report from God Almighty about the influence of His commands on His existing creation, just as He commanded the Children of Israel to be despised apes, and this is not applicable to the creation of non-existent things.

Second: God Almighty knows what is before it came into being. So the things that did not exist and existed were, by His knowledge before they came into being, similar to those that exist. So it is permissible for Him to say to them: Be, and to command them to emerge from a state of nonexistence into a state of existence, because all of them are conceived by Him and because He knows them in a state of nonexistence.

Third: That this is general report from God Almighty about everything that He creates and brings into being if He wills to create and establish it, it will be and exist without there being a statement that He says, but rather it is a decree that He wills, so He expressed it with a statement even though it is not a statement, like the saying of Abu al-Najm:

The belly button said the truth

There is no statement there, but he meant that the back has joined the stomach, as Amr bin Juma Al-Dawsi said:

So I became like an eagle whose young ones fly away. When it wants to fly, it says to it, Qu'a.

As the other said:

His wings said to his legs, Go on, and save your flesh from being torn apart.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse and the one that follows it contain a response to the Christians, upon them be the curses of God, and also those like them from the Jews and the polytheists of the Arabs who made the angels daughters of God, so God belied all of them in their claim and their saying that God has a son, so God the Most High said: Glory be to Him meaning He is exalted, sanctified and far above that, Rather, to Him belongs whatever is in the heavens and the earth meaning the matter is not as they fabricated, rather His is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth and whoever is in them, and He is the One who controls them, and He is their Creator, Provider, Destiner, Subject, Guide, and Disposer of them as He wills, and all are His slaves and His property, so how could He have a son from them when a son is only born from two proportional things, and He, the Blessed and Exalted, has no peer or partner in His greatness and pride, nor does He have a companion, so how could He have a son? As God the Almighty said: "Originator of the heavens and the earth. How could He have a son when He has no wife and He created all things? And He is Knowing of all things?" And God the Almighty said: "And they say, 'The Most Gracious has taken a son.' You have certainly done a thing monstrous. The heavens almost burst from it and the earth splits open and the mountains collapse in devastation. That they attribute to the Most Gracious a son. And it is not befitting for the Most Gracious that He should take a son. Indeed, everyone in the heavens and the earth will come to the Most Gracious as a servant. He has enumerated them and counted them precisely. And all of them will come to Him on the Day of Resurrection alone." And God the Almighty said: "Say, 'He is God, the One. God, the Self-Sufficient. He neither begets nor is born. And there is none comparable to Him.'" So God the Almighty has established in these noble verses that He is the Great Master who has no peer or likeness and that all things besides Him were created and nurtured for Him, so how could He have a son from them? And for this reason Al-Bukhari said in his interpretation of this verse from al-Baqarah 2: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Shuaib told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi Al-Hussein, Nafi bin Jubair - he is Ibn Mut'am - told us, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "God Almighty said: The son of Adam denied Me, and he had no right to do so, and he insulted Me, and he had no right to do so. As for his denying Me, he claims that I am not able to restore him as he was, and as for his insulting Me, it is his saying that I have a son, so glory be to Me that I should take a wife or a son." Al-Bukhari transmitted it only from this source. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad bin Kamil told us, Muhammad bin Ismail Al-Tirmidhi told us, Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Muhammad Al-Farawi told us, Malik told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Zinad, on the authority of Al-A'raj, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "And God Almighty says: The son of Adam denied Me, and he had no right to do so, and he insulted Me, and he had no right to do so. As for his denying Me, it is his saying: He will not restore me as I began. And the first creation is not easier for Me than its restoration." As for his cursing me, he said: "God has taken a son. I am God, the One, the Self-Sufficient. He neither begets nor is begotten, and there is none comparable to Him." In the two Sahihs, it is narrated on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "No one is more patient with the harm he hears than God. They attribute to Him a son, and He provides for them and cures them." And his saying: All are obedient to Him. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja' informed us, Asbat informed us, on the authority of Mufraf, on the authority of Atiyyah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Obserious means praying. Ikrimah and Abu Malik said: All are obedient to Him acknowledging servitude to Him. Saeed bin Jubayr said: All are obedient to Him, meaning sincerity. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: He says: All are obedient to Him, meaning standing on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Suddi said: All are obedient to Him, meaning obedient on the Day of Resurrection. Khasif said on the authority of Mujahid: All are obedient to Him, he said: obedient. He said: Be a human being and it was. He said: Be a donkey and it was. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: All have obedient and devout ones. He said: The obedience of the disbeliever is in the prostration of his shadow, even though he is reluctant. This statement from Mujahid, which is the choice of Ibn Jarir, brings together all the statements, which is that devoutness, obedience, and submission to God is a lawful and predestined act, as God Almighty said: And to God prostrates whoever is in the heavens and the earth, willingly or by compulsion, and so do their shadows in the mornings and the evenings. A hadith has been reported in which there is an explanation of devoutness in the Qur'an, what is meant by it, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yusuf Ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Amr Ibn al-Harith told me that Diraaj Abu al-Samh told him on the authority of Abu al-Haytham, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Every letter of the Qur'an in which devoutness is mentioned is obedience. Imam Ahmad also narrated it on the authority of Hasan Ibn Musa on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah on the authority of Diraaj with his chain of transmission similar to it, but in this chain of transmission there is a weakness that cannot be relied upon, and the attribution of this hadith to the Prophet is objectionable, and it may be the words of a companion or someone less than him, and God knows best.

And the Almighty's saying: Originator of the heavens and the earth means: Their Creator without a previous example. Mujahid and As-Suddi said: This is what the language requires, and from this the newly introduced thing is called an innovation, as it came in Sahih Muslim: "For every newly introduced thing is an innovation, and innovation is of two types: Sometimes it is a religious innovation, like his saying: "For every newly introduced thing is an innovation and every innovation is misguidance," and sometimes it is a linguistic innovation, like the saying of the Commander of the Faithful, Umar ibn Al-Khattab, about his gathering them for the Tarawih prayer and their continuation: What an excellent innovation this is! Ibn Jarir said: Originator of the heavens and the earth is their Creator, and it is a verb that is changed to a verb, just as the painful is changed to the painful, and the hearer is changed to the hearer. The meaning of the creator is the originator and the originator, that which no one precedes him in creating and innovating like it. He said: Therefore the innovator in religion is called an innovator because he innovates in it what no one else has preceded him in, and likewise every innovator in word or deed, in which no one preceded him, the Arabs call him an innovator. This includes the words of A'sha bin Tha'labah in praise of Hudha bin Ali al-Hanafi:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:117

Originator of the heavens and the earth. And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, "Be," and it is.

He claims to say the words of the masters of men if they show him firmness or whatever he wants he innovates

That is, He creates what He wills. Ibn Jarir said: The meaning of the words, Glory be to God, is that He has a son, and He is the Owner of what is in the heavens and the earth, and all of them bear witness to Him by indicating His Oneness, and acknowledge His obedience, and He is their Creator, Maker, and Originator, without a root or example that they follow. This is an announcement from God to His servants that among those who bear witness to this is the Messiah, to whom they attributed his sonship to God, and an announcement from Him to them that the One who created the heavens and the earth without a root and without an example is the One who created the Messiah, Jesus, without a father by His power. This is good speech and a correct expression from Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him. And the Almighty's saying: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is. With this, the Almighty clarifies the perfection of His power and the greatness of His authority, and that when He decrees a matter and wants it to be, He only says to it, 'Be,' that is, once, and it is, that is, it exists, according to what He willed, as the Almighty said: His command, when He intends a thing, is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. And the Almighty said: Our command to a thing when We intend it is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. And the Almighty said: And Our command is but one, like the twinkling of an eye. And the poet said:

If he wants something, he just says to it, Be, and it is.

He also pointed out that Jesus was created with the word Be, and he was, as God commanded him. God Almighty said: "The likeness of Jesus before God is as that of Adam. He created him from dust, then said to him, 'Be,' and he was."

Fath al-Qadir

And Badi': Fa'il for exaggeration and it is the predicate of a subject, omitted: that is, He is the Creator of His heavens and earth. He created something: He created it without an example, and whoever creates something that has not been done before is called a creator. And His statement: 117- And when He decrees a matter means He perfects it and perfects it. Al-Azhari said: In the language, Qada has many aspects that refer to the cessation of something and its completion. It was said: It is shared between meanings. It is said: Qada means created, and from it: So He decreed them as seven heavens and in the sense of He informed, and from it: And We decreed to the Children of Israel in the Book and in the sense of command, and from it: And your Lord decreed that you worship none but Him and in the sense of He obliged, and from it: The judge decreed upon him, and in the sense of He fulfilled it, and from it:

So when Moses fulfilled the term and in the sense of He intended, and from it: So when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, Be, and it is. And the matter is one of the matters. It has been mentioned in the Qur'an in fourteen meanings: The first is religion, including: until the truth came and the command of God appeared. The second is the meaning of speech, including: So when Our command comes. The third is punishment, including: When the matter is decided. The fourth is Jesus, including: So when He decides a matter. That is, Jesus, peace be upon him, came into existence. The fifth is killing, including: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command. The sixth is the conquest of Mecca, including: Then wait until God brings about His command. The seventh is the killing of Banu Qurayzah and the expulsion of Nadir, including: So pardon and overlook until God brings about His command. The eighth is the Resurrection, including: The command of God came. The ninth is judgment, including: He manages the matter. The tenth is revelation, including: The command descends between them. The eleventh is the command of creation, including: Unquestionably, to God do all matters return. The twelfth is victory, including: Do we have any part in the matter? The thirteenth: sin, and from it: So she tasted the evil consequences of her deed. The fourteenth: affair, and from it: And Pharaoh's command was not right. This is how some of the commentators have mentioned these meanings with principles from this, and there is not much benefit in that, and its application to different matters is because the name of command is true for them. And His saying: Then He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is. The apparent meaning in this is the true meaning, and that He, the Most High, says this wording, and there is nothing in that to prevent it, nor did anything come that necessitates its interpretation. And from it is His saying, the Most High: His command, when He intends a thing, is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. And He, the Most High, said: Our command to a thing when We intend it is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is. And He said: And Our command is only one, like the twinkling of an eye. And from it is the saying of the poet:

If God wants something, He just says to it, Be, and it is.

It has been said: This is a metaphor, and that it is not a statement, but rather a judgment that he makes, so he expressed it with a statement, and from this is the statement of the poet, who is Omar bin Hammah Al-Daws:

So I became like an eagle whose young ones fly away when they want to fly. It is said that they have fallen.

Another said:

His wings said to his legs, Go ahead and escape, for your judgment is to tear them apart.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

117. The Almighty's saying: Originator of the heavens and the earth meaning He is their Creator and Originator without a previous example. And when He decrees a matter meaning He measures it, and it was said: He perfects it and measures it [and perfects it, and the root of the word qada is to finish, and from it it is said about someone who dies: it was decreed for him because he was finished with the world, and from it is the decree and decree of God] because He finished with it in terms of estimation and management.

He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is. Ibn 'Amir read Be,' and it is with the accusative of the letter "nun in all places except in Al-'Imran: "Be,' and it is. The truth is from your Lord." And in Surat al-An'am 6: Be,' and it is, His saying, the truth. He only put it in the accusative because the answer to the command with the letter fa is accusative. [Al-Kisa'i agreed with him in An-Nahl and Ya-Seen], and the others read it in the nominative with the meaning so it is. If it is said, how did he say so he only says to it, 'Be,' and it is when the nonexistent is not addressed? Ibn Al-Anbari said: Its meaning is that he only says to it, i.e. for the sake of its creation. So based on this, the meaning of the address is lost. It was said: Even though it is nonexistent, since its existence was determined and it will inevitably be, it was like the existent, so the address is correct.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

117-The Originator of the heavens and the earth is their Creator, and His counterpart is the All-Hearing in His saying:

The security of Rayhana, the All-Hearing Suppliant, keeps me awake and my companions awake

Or the Creator of His heavens and His earth, from the innovations of the Creator, and it is a fourth argument. Its statement is that the father is the element of the son who is affected by the separation of his matter from him, and God, glory be to Him, is the Creator of all things, the absolute doer, free from being affected, so He cannot be a father. And creativity: is the invention of something not from something all at once, and it is more appropriate for this subject than the making which is: the composition of images not by the element, and the formation which is by change and in time mostly. And the word Badi' was read in the genitive case as a substitute for the pronoun in lahu. And the word Badi' is in the accusative case as a praise.

And when He decrees a matter means He wills something. The root of decree is the completion of something in power, as in the Almighty's saying: And your Lord has decreed, or in action, as in the Almighty's saying: So He ordained them as seven heavens. It is used to refer to the divine will's attachment to the existence of something in that He necessitates it. Then He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is. From the perfect kāna meaning to create, so it occurs. What is meant by it is not the reality of a command or compliance, but rather the representation of the occurrence of what His will is attached to without delay by obeying the one commanded without stopping. It contains the meaning of innovation, and an allusion to a fifth argument, which is that taking a child is something that occurs in stages and a delay, and His action is independent of that. Ibn 'Amir read ḥaykūn with a fathah on the nūn. Know that the reason for this misguidance is that the masters of the previous religions used to call God Almighty the Father, considering Him to be the first cause, until they said that the Father is the lesser Lord, and God Almighty is the greater Lord. Then the ignorant among them thought that what was meant by it was the meaning of birth, so they believed that by imitation, and therefore the one who said it was an unbeliever and he was forbidden from it absolutely, to cut off the source of corruption.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:118

And those who do not know say, "Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?" Thus said those before them the like of their statement. Their hearts are alike. We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:118

And those who do not know say, Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us? Thus said those before them the like of their statement. Their hearts are alike. We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And those who do not know i.e. the disbelievers of Mecca said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace Why does God not speak to us that you are His Messenger or a sign come to us from what we have suggested to confirm your truthfulness Thus as these people said those before them from the disbelievers of the past nations said to their prophets like their saying of obstinacy and seeking signs their hearts are alike in disbelief and obstinacy, in it is consolation for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace We have certainly made clear the signs for a people who are certain who know that they are signs and believe, so suggesting a sign with it is obstinacy.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said and those who do not know said the verse. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said that Rafi' bin Khuzaymah said to the Messenger of God, If you are a messenger from God as you say, then say to God and He will speak to us so that we may hear His speech. So God revealed about that, And those who do not know said the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty means by His saying: Originator of the heavens and the earth, their Creator.

Rather, it is a verb inflected to fa'il, just as al-mâlim was inflected to aleem and al-musmâ' to sami'. The meaning of al-mubdi' is the one who creates and innovates something that no one has ever created or innovated before him. That is why the innovator in religion is called an innovator, because he innovates something that no one else has ever done before him. Likewise, every innovator who does an action or a statement that no one else has ever done before him, the Arabs call him an innovator. An example of this is the saying of al-A'sha, the blind man of Banu Tha'labah, in praise of Hawdhah ibn Ali al-Hanafi:

He takes heed of the words of the leaders of men if they show him firmness, or whatever he wishes he innovates.

That is, He does whatever He wills. This is evident in the saying of Ru'bah ibn al-'Ajaj:

O you who are the most treacherous, the most obedient, the most obedient to God!

It is not right to be creative

Meaning: to say something about religion that was not in it.

The meaning of the words: Glory be to God! How can He have a son when He is the Owner of what is in the heavens and the earth? All of them bear witness to Him by indicating His Oneness and acknowledge His obedience, while He is their Creator, Maker, and Originator, without any origin or example for them to follow?

This is an announcement from God, the Most High, to His servants that among those who testify to this is the Messiah, whom they attribute to God, the Most High, as his son. It is also an announcement from Him to them that the One who created the heavens and the earth without an origin and without an example is the One who created the Messiah without a father by His power. A group of the people of interpretation said something similar to what we have said about this. Those who said this mentioned:

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': The Originator of the heavens and the earth, meaning: He originated their creation, and no one shared with Him in their creation.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: The Originator of the heavens and the earth, meaning: He originated them, created them, and nothing was created before them to be imitated.

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty means by His saying: And when He decrees a matter, and when He decides a matter and makes it certain.

The root of every judgment is: to rule and to finish it. From this, the ruler among the people is called the judge between them, because he separates the judgment between the opponents, and concludes the ruling between them, and finishes it with it. From this, the dead person is called: it has been decided, meaning: he has finished with the world and separated from it. From this, it is said: I am amazed by so-and-so, meaning: it is not cut off. From this, it is said: the day has passed, if it has ended. From this, the saying of God, the Almighty: And your Lord has decreed that you not worship except Him (Al-Isra': 23), meaning: He decided the judgment in it between His servants, by His command to them to do so. Likewise, His saying: And We decreed to the Children of Israel in the Scripture (Al-Isra': 41), meaning We informed them of this and told them about it, so We finished it for them. From this, the saying of Abu Dhu'ayb:

And they are narrated on them, David ruled them or the making of the heavy-duty swords followed.

It is narrated:

They exchanged two narratives.

What he means by his saying: He judged them, he ruled them. And from this is the saying of the other in praise of Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him.

I did things and then left with troubles in my sleeves that never came to an end.

It is narrated: Buwajj.

As for his saying: He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, he means by that: And if He decrees a matter and makes it certain, He only says to that matter, Be, and that matter is as God commanded it to be and willed it.

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: What is the meaning of His statement: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is? In what state does He say to the matter that He decrees, Be? Is it in a state of non-existence, and that is a state in which His command is not permissible, since it is impossible for Him to command except the one commanded, so if the one commanded is not present, the command is impossible? And just as it is impossible for a command to be commanded without a commander, so it is impossible for a commander to command except to the one commanded. Or does He say that to him in a state of his existence? And that is a state in which it is not permissible for Him to command it to occur, because it is a new and existing thing. And it is not said to an existing thing, Be, except without the meaning of commanding it to occur?

It was said: The interpreters have disputed the meaning of that. We will inform you of what they said about it, and the reasons that each group of them relied on for what he said about that:

Some of them said: This is report from God, may He be glorified, about His inevitable command in the form of a decree for whomever He decrees a decree upon from among His existing creation, that if He commands him with a command, His decree will be carried out and His command will go through. Similar to His command of the Children of Israel to be despised apes, while they were present at the time when He commanded them to do that, and He made His decree inevitable upon them with what He decreed concerning them. And like the one whom the earth swallowed up with his home, and what is similar to that of His command and decree concerning whoever was present from among His creation, at the time when His inevitable command was upon him.

Those who said this statement directed his statement: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, to the specific rather than the general.

Others said: Rather, the verse is general in its appearance, so no one has the right to refer it to an inner meaning without an argument that must be accepted. He said: God knows everything that exists before it exists. Since that is the case, the things that did not exist while they existed, due to His knowledge of them before they existed, are similar to those that exist. So it is permissible for Him to say to them: Be, and to command them to emerge from a state of nonexistence into a state of existence, due to the conception of all of them to Him, and His knowledge of them in a state of nonexistence.

Others said: Rather, the verse, even if its apparent meaning is general, its interpretation is specific. Because the command is not permissible except for one who is commanded, as I described before. They said: Since that is the case, the interpretation of the verse is: And when He decrees a matter: such as bringing a dead person back to life, or killing a living person, and the like, then He only says to a living person: Be dead, or to a dead person: Be alive, and other similar commands.

Others said: Rather, this is from God Almighty, report about everything that He creates and brings into being, that if He decrees it, creates it, and brings it into being, it will be and exist. There is no statement there, according to those who say this, except the existence of the created and the occurrence of what is decreed. They said: Rather, the statement of God Almighty: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, is similar to the statement of

The speaker: So-and-so nodded his head, or gestured with his hand, if he moved his head, or gestured with his hand, and did not say anything, and as Abu al-Najm said:

And the sides said to the belly, Go ahead, and it overflowed like a furious phoenix.

There is no saying there, because he meant that the back has joined the stomach, as Amr bin Hammah Al-Dawsi said:

So I became like an eagle whose chicks fly away. When it tries to fly, it is said: Qa'.

There is no saying there, but its meaning is: If he tries to fly, he will fall, and as the other said:

The basin was filled and he said: Take it easy, my belly is full.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings about His statement: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, is to say: It is general in everything that God decrees and creates. Because the apparent meaning of that is apparent generality, and it is not permissible to refer the apparent to the hidden in interpretation without proof, as we have explained in our book, Kitab al-Bayan 'an Usul al-Ahkam. Since that is the case, then God's command to something, when He wills to create it into existence by His saying, Be, in the state of His will for it to be created, does not precede the existence of that which He wills to create and create, nor does His command to be and exist, nor does it come after it. So it is not permissible for a thing to be commanded to exist and willed as such, except that it exists, nor for it to exist, except that it is commanded to exist and willed as such.

Similar to His statement: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, is His statement: "And among His signs is that the heaven and the earth stand by His command. Then, when He calls you with a single call from the earth, at once you will emerge" (al-Rum 30:25). The emergence of the people from their graves does not precede God's call

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:118

And those who do not know say, "Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?" Thus said those before them the like of their statement. Their hearts are alike. We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain.

nor does it lag behind it.

And he asks who claims that his statement, And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, is specific to interpretation, based on the argument that commanding a non-existent is not permissible from the call of the people of the graves, before they emerge from their graves, or after that, or is it specific to creation? He will not say anything about that except that the same will be required in the end.

And he asks those who claimed that the meaning of His Most High's saying: He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, is similar to the saying of the speaker: So-and-so said with his head or his hand, if he moved it and gestured, and similar to the saying of the poet:

She says, if I ward off her wrath: Is this his religion and my religion forever?

And what is similar to that: They did not hit the mark in the language, nor did they follow the Book of God and what the evidence indicated to be correct. So it is said to those who say that: God, the Most High, mentioned Himself, informed us that when He decrees a matter, He says to it: Be. Do you deny that He would say that? If they deny it, they have denied the Qur'an and left the religion.

And if they said: Rather, we acknowledge it, but we claim that this is similar to the saying of the one who said: The wall said, so it leaned, and there is no saying there, but rather it is a report about the leaning of the wall.

They were told: Do you permit someone who reports that the wall is leaning to say: The only thing the wall says when it wants to lean is to say this and it leans?

If they allow that, they have departed from the well-known speech of the Arabs, and contradicted their logic and what is known in their language.

And if they say: That is not permissible.

It was said to them: God Almighty informed them about Himself that His saying to a thing when He wants it is to say to it: Be, and it is. So He informed His servants of His saying by which the thing is, and He described and confirmed it. And that, according to you, is not permissible in the expression of something that has no speech or explanation, such as the saying of the one who says: The wall said, and it leaned. So how did they not know by that the difference between the meaning of God's saying: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, and the saying of the one who says: The wall said, and it leaned? There is a place other than this to explain the corruption of this statement, in which we will come to the statement sufficiently, God willing.

If the matter in His Most High's saying: And when He decrees a matter, He only says to it, 'Be,' and it is, is what we have described, that the state of His commanding something to exist is the state of the existence of the thing commanded to exist, then He has made clear that what is more deserving of His saying, and it is, is the nominative case in apposition to His saying, He says. Because the state of saying and existence is one. It is similar to the saying of the speaker: So-and-so repented and was guided, and so-and-so was guided and repented, because no one repents except while he is guided, and no one is guided except while he is repentant. Likewise, it is not possible for God to command something to exist except while it exists, and no thing exists except when He commands it to exist.

Therefore, whoever permitted the accusative case of faykun from the reading Our word to a thing when We intend it is only that We say to it, "Be, and it is" (al-Nahl 16:40), in the meaning we described, meaning: that We say, and it is.

As for the one who raised that, he saw that the report was completed when he said: If We wanted it, We would say to it, 'Be.' Since it was known that if God decreed His judgment on something, what was decreed would exist. Then He began by saying: And it is, as the Most High said: That We may make clear to you and cause to remain in the wombs what We will (al-Hajj 22:5), and as Ibn Ahmar said:

He treats a barren woman who has become exhausted by him, so that he can impregnate her and produce young camels.

He wants: So he produces it as a dialogue.

So the meaning of the verse is: And they say, God has taken a son. Glory be to Him, that He should have a son. Rather, He is the Owner of the heavens and the earth and everything in them. All of that is an acknowledgement of His servitude by indicating His Oneness. How can He have a son when He is the One who created the heavens and the earth without an origin, just as He created the Messiah without a father by His power and authority, for whom nothing He wills is impossible. Rather, He only says to it when He decrees it and wants to create it: Be, and it exists as He wanted and willed. So was the creation and establishment of the Messiah, when He wanted to create him without a father.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And those who do not know said Ibn Abbas said: They are the Jews. Mujahid: The Christians, and Al-Tabari preferred it, because they are the ones mentioned in the verse first. Al-Rabi', Al-Suddi and Qatada said: The polytheists of the Arabs. And lawla means why not as an incitement, as Al-Ashhab bin Ramila said:

You consider the hamstring of the camel to be your greatest glory, Bani Dhutri, if it were not for the masked Al-Kami.

This is not lawla which prevents something due to the existence of something else. The difference between them according to linguists is that lawla means incitement and is only followed by a verb, whether explicit or implied, while lawla for impossibility is followed by the beginning, and it is customary to delete the predicate. The meaning of the speech is "why does God not speak to us about the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so that we know that he is a prophet and we believe in him, or he brings us a sign that is a sign of his prophethood." The sign is the indication and mark, and it has been mentioned before. Those before them are the Jews and Christians according to the one who made those who do not know the Jews and Christians, or the Jews according to the one who made those who do not know the Christians. Their hearts are alike It was said: in the difficulty and suggestion and abandonment of faith. Al-Farra' said: Their hearts are alike in their agreement on disbelief. We have made clear the verses for a people who are certain previously mentioned.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed bin Jubair on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Rafi bin Huraymila said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, if you are a messenger from God as you say, then say to God and He will speak to us so that we may hear His speech. So God revealed in that regard from His saying: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?' Mujahid said: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?' The Christians said that it is the choice of Ibn Jarir. He said: Because the context is about them, and there is consideration in that. Al-Qurtubi narrated: Why does God not speak to us? That is, He addresses us with your prophethood, O Muhammad. I said: This is the apparent meaning of the context, and God knows best. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi bin Anas, Qatadah, and Al-Suddi said in their interpretation of this verse: This is the saying of the Arab infidels: Likewise said those before them like their saying, he said: They are the Jews and Christians, and this saying is supported by Those who say this are the polytheists of the Arabs. God the Almighty says: "And when a sign comes to them, they say, 'We will not believe until we are given the like of that which was given to the messengers of God. God knows best with whom to place His message. Those who commit crimes will be struck by humiliation before God and a severe punishment for what they used to plot.'" The verse. God the Almighty says: And they say, 'We will not believe in you until you cause a spring to gush forth for us from the earth.' to His saying: Say, 'Glory be to my Lord! Am I anything but a human messenger?' The verse. God the Almighty says: And those who do not expect to meet Us say, 'Why are angels not sent down to us or why do we not see our Lord?' The verse. God the Almighty says: Rather, each one of them wants to be given spread-out pages. And other verses indicating the disbelief of the polytheists of the Arabs, their arrogance, their stubbornness, and their asking for what they have no need for. It is only disbelief and stubbornness, as those who came before them from the nations of the People of the Book and others said, as God the Almighty says: "The People of the Scripture ask you to bring down to them a book from the heaven - and they asked Moses even greater than that. They said, 'Show us God plainly.'" The verse. God the Almighty says: And when you said, 'O Moses, we will not believe you until we see God plainly,' and the Almighty's saying: Their hearts were alike, meaning the hearts of the polytheists of the Arabs were alike the hearts of those who came before them in disbelief, stubbornness, and insolence, as the Almighty said: Thus, no messenger came to those before them except that they said, 'A magician or a madman.' They enjoined upon one another to do so. And the Almighty's saying: We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain, meaning that We have made clear the evidence of the truthfulness of the messengers, in a way that does not require another question or additional information for those who are certain, believe, follow the messengers, and understand what they brought from God Almighty. As for those whose hearts and hearing God has sealed, and whose sight He has placed a veil over, God said about them: Indeed, those upon whom the word of your Lord has come into effect will not believe, even if every sign came to them, until they see the painful punishment.

Fath al-Qadir

What is meant by His statement: 118- And those who do not know said is the Jews, and it was said: the Christians, and Ibn Jarir preferred it because they are the ones mentioned in the verse, and it was said: the polytheists of the Arabs, and if only is a particle of incitement: that is, why does not God speak to us about the prophethood of Muhammad so that we know that he is a prophet or bring us that as a sign of his prophethood. What is meant by His statement: those before them said is said: they are the Jews and Christians according to the opinion of those who made those who do not know the infidels of the Arabs, or the previous nations according to the opinion of those who made those who do not know the Jews and Christians, or the Jews according to the opinion of those who made those who do not know the Christians: they resembled that is in their obstinacy and suggestion, and Al-Farra' said: they resembled in their agreement on disbelief. We have made clear the verses for a people who are certain. That is, they acknowledge the truth, are fair in their speech, and submit to the commands of God Almighty because they believe in Him, believe in His verses, and follow what He has prescribed for them.

Al-Bukhari narrated from the hadith of Ibn Abbas from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God Almighty said: "The son of Adam has lied to Me and reviled Me. As for his lying to Me, he claims that I am not able to restore him to the way he was. As for his reviling Me, it is his saying: 'I have a son, so glory be to Me that I should take a wife or a son.'" He also narrated something similar from the hadith of Abu Hurayrah, and there are hadiths on this topic. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Glory be to God, he said: God is free from evil. Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, and al-Bayhaqi narrated in al-Asma' wa'l-Sifat from Musa ibn Talhah from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he was asked about glorifying God, that a person should say: Glory be to God. He said: God is free from evil. Al-Hakim narrated it and Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Bayhaqi authenticated it on the authority of Talha bin Yahya bin Talha on the authority of his father on the authority of his grandfather Talha bin Ubaidullah who said: I asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the interpretation of Subhan God, and he said: It is the purification of God from all evil. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on his authority through another chain of transmission with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet. Ahmad, Abd bin Hamid, Abu Ya'la, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Hibban, Al-Tabarani in Al-Awsat, Abu Nu'aym in Al-Hilyah, and Al-Dhiya' in Al-Mukhtara narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Every letter in the Qur'an in which qunut is mentioned is obedience. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the statement: All are devoutly obedient to Him, he said: Obedient. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah regarding the statement: Originator of the heavens and the earth, he said: He originated their creation and no one shared with Him in their creation. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Rafi' ibn Huraymila said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, if you are a messenger from God as you say, then say to God, Let Him speak to us so that we may hear His words. So God revealed concerning that: And those who do not know say, the verse. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah that they are the infidel Arabs. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: They are the Christians and those before them the Jews.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:118

And those who do not know say, "Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?" Thus said those before them the like of their statement. Their hearts are alike. We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain.

one another in disbelief, cruelty, and seeking the impossible We have certainly made clear the verses for a people who are certain.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

118- "And those who do not know said," meaning the ignorant polytheists, or the ignorant ones from the People of the Book. "Why does God not speak to us? Why does God not speak to us as He speaks to the angels, or reveal to us that you are His Messenger? Or a sign come to us?" An argument for your truthfulness. The first is arrogance, and the second is denial, because the signs of God that were given to them were disdain and stubbornness. "Likewise said those before them, from the past nations, like their saying, So they said, 'Show us God plainly.' Can your Lord send down to us a table spread with food from the heaven? Their hearts are alike," the hearts of these and those before them in blindness and stubbornness. It was read with a shaddah on the shin. "We have certainly made clear the verses for a people who are certain," meaning who seek certainty, or are certain of the truths, without doubt or stubbornness. It indicates that they did not say this because of the ambiguity in the verses or to seek more certainty, but rather they said it out of arrogance and stubbornness.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

118. The Almighty said: And those who do not know said Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The Jews, and Mujahid said: The Christians, and Qatada said: The polytheists of the Arabs If only "why does God not speak to us" clearly that you are His Messenger. And everything in the Qur'an (if only) has the meaning of why, except one, which is His saying: "If only he was among those who glorify God 143-Saffat meaning if only there were or a sign comes to us" is an indication and sign of your truthfulness in your claim to prophethood.

God Almighty said: Thus said those before them meaning the disbelievers of the past nations like their saying, their hearts are alike meaning they resemble

Surat al-Baqarah 2:119

Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, and you will not be asked about the companions of Hellfire.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, We have sent you O Muhammad with the truth with guidance as a bearer of good tidings for whoever responds to it of Paradise and a warner for whoever does not respond to it of Hellfire and you will not be asked about the companions of Hellfire Hellfire, meaning the disbelievers, what is wrong with them that they did not believe? You are only responsible for conveying the message. And in a reading with a sukoon, you ask as a prohibition.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Indeed, We have sent you, the verse. Abd al-Razzaq said: Al-Thawri informed us on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b al-Qurazi who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I wish I knew what happened to my parents. Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire. He did not mention it until God took him. It was transmitted by a mursal. Ibn Jarir transmitted on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: Dawud bin Abi Asim informed me that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said one day: Where are my parents? It was also transmitted by a mursal.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed about who God meant by His saying: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us?' Some of them said: He meant the Christians by that. He mentioned those who said that:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?' He said: The Christians say it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly, and he added to it: And those who do not know said, meaning the Christians.

Others said: Rather, God meant by that the Jews who were in the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Those who said that mentioned:

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, and Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah bin Al-Fadl told us, they both said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, he said, Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Rafi bin Huraymila said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: If you are a messenger from God as you say, then say to God Almighty, so let Him speak to us so that we may hear His speech! So God Almighty revealed regarding that from His saying: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?' the entire verse.

Others said: Rather, he meant the polytheists of the Arabs. Those who said that mentioned:

Bishr bin Muadh told us: He said, Yazid bin Zari' told us: He said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us or a sign come to us?' They are the infidel Arabs.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us?' He said: They are the infidel Arabs.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us?' As for those who do not know, they are the Arabs.

The most correct and true of these statements is the statement of the one who said: God Almighty meant by His statement: And those who do not know said the Christians, and not others. Because this is in the context of God's information about them, and their fabrication of Him, and their claim that He has a son, so He, the Most High, said, informing about them in what He informed about them of their misguidance: that along with their fabrication of lies against God by saying: God has taken a son, they wished falsehoods from God, so they said out of ignorance of God and their status with Him, while they are polytheists with God: Why does God not speak to us as He speaks to His messengers and prophets, or why does a sign not come to us as it came to them? And it is not appropriate for God to speak except to His friends, and He does not give a miraculous sign in response to the claim of a claimant except to the one who is right in his claim and calls to God and His Oneness. As for the one who is lying in his claim and calls to slander against Him, and claims sons and daughters for Him, then it is not permissible for God, the Most High, to speak to him, or to give him a miraculous sign that would support his lie and slander against Him.

As for the one who claims that God meant by His saying, And those who do not know said, the Arabs, he is saying something for which there is no evidence of its truth, nor is there any proof of its reality in the apparent meaning of the Book. If the statement comes to that, then its error is clearly evident, because he has claimed something for which there is no evidence of its truth. And such a claim would not be difficult for anyone.

As for the meaning of his saying: Why does God not speak to us? it means: Why does God not speak to us, as Al-Ashab bin Ramila said:

You consider the sterility of the camel to be your greatest glory, Bani Dhutri, if it were not for the masked camel.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:119

Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, and you will not be asked about the companions of Hellfire.

Meaning: Why don't you consider the convincing quantity as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Why does God not speak to us? He said: Why does God not speak to us?

Abu Ja'far said: As for the verse, the meaning of the verse has been established previously, that it is a sign. God only informed us about them that they said: Why does not a sign come to us regarding what we want and ask for, as it came to the prophets and messengers? So the Almighty said: Thus said those before them, similar to their saying.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed as to who God meant by His saying: Thus said those before them, like their saying. Some of them said about that as follows:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Thus said those before them, like their saying, meaning the Jews.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Those before them said, meaning the Jews.

Others said: They are the Jews and Christians, because those who do not know are the Arabs.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zurai' told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, who said: Those before them, meaning the Jews, Christians, and others.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: They said: He means the Arabs, as the Jews and Christians said before them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Thus said those before them, like their saying, meaning the Jews and Christians.

Abu Ja'far said: We have shown that those whom God, the Most High, meant by His statement, And those who do not know say, 'Why does God not speak to us?' are the Christians, and those who said the same thing are the Jews: They asked Moses, peace be upon him, to show them their Lord openly, and to let them hear the words of their Lord, as we have explained previously in this book of ours. They asked for signs that they could not ask for, out of their arrogance towards their Lord. Likewise, the Christians wished from their Lord, out of their arrogance towards Him, that He would let them hear His words and show them the signs that they wanted. So God, the Most High, informed us about them that they said something similar to what the Jews said, and they wished from their Lord something similar to their wishes, and that what they said about that is similar to what the Jews said, because their hearts are similar in their misguidance and disbelief in God. So even though their doctrines differ in their lies about God and their fabrications about Him, their hearts are similar in their disbelief in their Lord and their slander against Him, and their arrogance towards the Prophets of God and His Messengers, peace be upon them. In a similar vein to what we said about that, Mujahid said:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Their hearts are alike, the hearts of the Christians and the Jews.

Another said: The meaning of this is: The hearts of the Arab infidels, Jews, Christians, and others are similar. Those who said this were mentioned:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Their hearts are alike, meaning the Arabs, Jews, Christians, and others.

Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Their hearts are alike, meaning the Arabs, Jews, Christians, and others.

Abu Ja'far said: It is not permissible to use heavy ta's in his statement, they resembled each other. This is because the ta' at the beginning is extra and was inserted in his statement, tafa'ala. If it were made heavy, it would become two ta's. It is not permissible to insert two extra ta's as a sign for one meaning. This is only permissible in the future tense, because the meaning of their insertion is different, because one of them is used as a sign for the future tense, and the other is one of them in tafa'ala. Then one of them is assimilated into the other and becomes heavy, so it is said, After today, our hearts resembled each other.

The meaning of the verse is: The Christians, who were ignorant of God and His greatness, said: Why does not God, our Lord, speak to us as He spoke to His prophets and messengers, or will there not come to us a sign from God by which we may know the truth of what we are upon and what we ask and desire? God Almighty said: Just as these ignorant Christians said and wished of their Lord, the Jews before them said, so they asked their Lord to show them God Himself openly and to give them a sign, and they referred to Him and His messengers for judgment, and wished for wishes. So the hearts of the Jews and Christians were confused in their rebellion against God, their lack of knowledge of His greatness, and their audacity towards His prophets and messengers, just as the words they said were confused.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain.

Abu Jaafar said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: We have made clear the signs for a people who are certain, is that We have made clear the signs that...

For this reason God became angry with the Jews, and made them into apes and pigs, and prepared for them a humiliating punishment in their place of return, and for this reason God disgraced the Christians in this world, and prepared for them disgrace and painful punishment in the Hereafter? And for this reason He made the inhabitants of Paradise, who submitted their faces to God and were good-doers, in this Surah and others. So know the reasons for which each group of them deserved what God did to them, and God singled out for this the people who are certain, because they are the people of verification in matters, and seek to know the truth of things with certainty and truth. So God, the Most High, informed that He made clear to those who had this characteristic what He made clear of that, so that their doubts would be removed and the truth of the matter would be known, since this was report from God, the Most High, and the report of God is the report that its listener cannot be excused for doubting it. And other report may bear what it bears of the reasons that occur in it, such as forgetfulness, error, and lying, and that is denied in the report of God, the Most High.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings. "Bishara" is in the accusative case as a state, and nadhira is in apposition to it, and their meanings have already been presented. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire. Muqatil said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If God had sent down His punishment on the Jews, they would have believed, so God revealed: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire, raising the word tas'al, which is the reading of the majority, and it is in the place of a state in apposition to a bringer of good tidings and a warner. The meaning is: We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, not questioned. Sa'id al-Akhfash said: And do not ask with the opening of the ta' and the damma of the lam, and it is in the place of a state in apposition to a bringer of good tidings and a warner. The meaning is: We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, not questioning about them, because God's knowledge of their disbelief after warning them makes it unnecessary for Him to ask about them. This is the meaning of not questioned. The meaning of not questioned is that he who disbelieves after being given good tidings and warning will not be held accountable for their disbelief. Ibn Abbas and Muhammad ibn Ka'b said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said one day: 'I wish I knew what happened to my parents.'" So this verse was revealed, and this is according to the reading of those who read and do not ask in the subjunctive mood, which is a reading that is a negation alone, and there are two views on it:

One of them: He forbade asking about those who disobeyed and disbelieved among the living, because their condition may change and they may move from disbelief to faith, and from disobedience to obedience.

The second: and it is more apparent, that he forbade asking about someone who died in his disbelief and sin, to magnify his situation and to make his status more severe. This is like saying: Do not ask about so-and-so, meaning he has reached beyond what you think. Ibn Mas'ud read: And you will not ask. And my father read: And you will not ask. And their meaning is in agreement with the reading of the majority, denying that he will be asked about them. It was said: He only asked about which of his parents had died, so this was revealed. We mentioned in the Book of Remembrance that God the Most High revived his father and mother and they believed in him, and we mentioned his saying, peace be upon him, to the man:

Your father and my father are in Hell. We have explained that, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Salih told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Fazari told us, on the authority of Shaiban al-Nahwi, Qatadah told me, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "It was revealed to me: 'Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner.' He said: 'A bringer of good tidings of Paradise and a warner of the Fire.' And His saying: 'And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire.' Most of them read it as 'And do not ask' with a damma on the ta', as a report. In the reading of Abi ibn Ka'b, and 'And do not ask', and in the reading of Ibn Mas'ud, 'And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire.' Ibn Jarir transmitted it, meaning: We do not ask you about the disbelief of those who disbelieve in you, like His saying: 'You are only responsible for conveying the message, and upon Us is the reckoning.' And like His saying, the Most High: 'So remind, for you are only a reminder. You are not a controller over them.' The verse, and like His saying, the Most High: 'We know best what they say, and you are not a compeller over them. So remind with the Qur'an whoever fears My threat.' And similar verses. Others read: 'And do not ask' "About the companions of Hellfire" with the opening of the ta' for prohibition, meaning: do not ask about their condition, as Abd al-Razzaq said: Al-Thawri told us on the authority of Musa ibn Ubaydah on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I wonder what happened to my parents. I wonder what happened to my parents. I wonder what happened to my parents?" Then the verse was revealed: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire. He did not mention them until God Almighty took him. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Abu Kurayb on the authority of Wakee' on the authority of Musa ibn Ubaydah, and they spoke about it on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b in a similar manner. Al-Qurtubi narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Muhammad ibn Ka'b. Al-Qurtubi said: This is like saying do not ask about so-and-so, meaning: he has reached beyond what you think. We mentioned in al-Tadhkirah that God revived his parents so that we believed in him, and we responded to his saying: My father and your father are in Hellfire. I said: The hadith narrated during the lifetime of his parents, peace be upon them, is not in any of the six books or others, and its chain of transmission is weak, and God knows best.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:119

Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, and you will not be asked about the companions of Hellfire.

Then Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told me, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Dawud ibn Abi Asim told me on his authority, "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said one day: Where are my parents? Then this verse was revealed: 'Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire.'" This is a mursal like the one before it, and Ibn Jarir rejected this statement narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b and others in that regard, because it is impossible for the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, to doubt the matter of his parents, and he chose the first reading. What he followed here is questionable, because it is possible that this was during his seeking forgiveness for his parents, before he knew about their matter, so when he knew that, he disavowed them and informed them that they were among the people of Hellfire, as this is proven in the Sahih. There are many similar and analogous narrations to this, but what Ibn Jarir mentioned is not necessary, and God knows best.

Imam Ahmad said: Musa bin Dawud told us, Faliḥ bin Sulaiman told us, on the authority of Hilal bin Ali, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, who said: I met Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-Aas, and I said: Tell me about the description of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the Torah. He said: Yes, by God, he is described in the Torah as he is described in the Qur'an. O Prophet, indeed We have sent you as a witness, a bringer of good tidings, a warner, and a protection for the unlettered. And you are My servant and Messenger. I have named you Al-Mutawakkil. He is neither rude nor harsh nor loud in the markets. He does not repel evil with evil, but pardons and forgives. He will not take him until He establishes through him the crooked religion, by which they say, There is no god but God. He opens through him blind eyes, deaf ears, and sealed hearts. Al-Bukhari is the only one who narrated it. He narrated it in Al-Buyu' on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sinan on the authority of Faliḥ on his authority. His follower, Abdul Aziz ibn Abi Salamah, said on the authority of Hilal: And Saeed ibn Hilal said on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Abdullah ibn Salam. And he narrated it in the interpretation on the authority of Abdullah on the authority of Abdul Aziz ibn Abi Salamah, on the authority of Hilal on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn Al-Aas on his authority, and he mentioned something similar. So this Abdullah is Ibn Salih, as he stated clearly in the Book of Etiquette. And Ibn Masoud Al-Dimashqi claimed that he is Abdullah ibn Raja'. And Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr ibn Mardawayh narrated it in the interpretation of this verse from Al-Baqarah, on the authority of Ahmad ibn Al-Hasan ibn Ayoub on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Al-Bara', on the authority of Al-Mu'afa ibn Sulayman on the authority of Faliḥ on his authority, and he added: Ata' said: Then I met Ka'b Al-Ahbar and asked him, and they did not differ on a single word except that Ka'b said in his interpretation: Blind eyes, deaf ears, and insincere hearts.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 119- A bearer of good tidings and a warner may be in the accusative case as a state, or it may be an object for it: meaning We sent you for the purpose of giving good tidings and warning. And his statement: And do not ask was read by the majority in the nominative case in the passive voice: meaning in the case of you not being asked, and it was read in the nominative case in the active voice. Al-Akhfash said: And it is in the place of the state in apposition to a bearer of good tidings and a warner meaning in the case of you not asking about them, because God's knowledge of their disbelief after warning them makes it unnecessary for Him to ask about them, and Nafi' read: And do not ask in the accusative case: meaning do not ask about these people or do not ask about those of them who died in their disbelief and disobedience, magnifying their situation and making their status more severe: meaning that this is a terrible matter and a hideous incident, which the speaker would be too great to say or the listener would be too great to hear.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

119. Indeed, We have sent you with the truth meaning with the truth, as He said, And they ask you, is it true? 53- Yunus, meaning truthful. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: Its proof is the Qur'an, Rather, they denied the truth when it came to them 5-Q. Ibn Kaysan said: Its proof is Islam and its laws, its proof is the Almighty's saying, And say, The truth has come 81- Al-Isra'. Muqatil said: Its meaning is that We did not send you in vain, but rather We sent you with the truth, as He said, And We did not create the heavens and the earth and all that is between them except with truth 85- Al-Hijr.

The Almighty said, Bringing good tidings meaning, bringing good tidings to My friends and those who obey Me of the noble reward, and a warner meaning, warning and frightening My enemies and those who disobey Me of the painful punishment. Nafi' and Ya'qub read and do not ask as a prohibition. Ata' said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both: That is because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said one day: I wish I knew what my parents did, so this verse was revealed. It was said that it means, Do not ask about the evil of so-and-so, for it is beyond what you think, and it is not a prohibition. The others read and do not ask in the nominative case as a negation, meaning, You are not responsible for them, as God Almighty said, You are only responsible for conveying the message, and upon Us is the reckoning 20-Al Imran, about the companions of Hellfire, and Hellfire is the most part of the fire.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

119- Indeed, We have sent you with the truth embodied and supported by it. As a bringer of good tidings and a warner So do not worry about them if they persist and are stubborn. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire Why did they not believe after you delivered the message. Nafi' and Ya'qub read: Do not ask, as a prohibition to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, from asking about the condition of his parents. Or as a glorification of the punishment of the disbelievers, as if it is so terrible that he is unable to tell about it, or the listener cannot be patient to hear report of it, so he is forbidden from asking. Hellfire: the blazing fire.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:120

And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. Say, "Indeed, the guidance of Allah - that is the [only] guidance." And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you would not have against Allah any protector or helper.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:120

And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. Say, Indeed, the guidance of God - that is the [only] guidance. And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you would not have against God any protector or helper.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And never will the Jews or the Christians approve of you until you follow their religion their religion Say, Indeed, the guidance of God meaning Islam (is the guidance and everything else is misguidance And if the lam of an oath you follow their desires to which they call you as an obligation after what has come to you of knowledge the revelation from God you will have from God no protector to protect you nor helper to prevent you from Him.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And you will never be pleased with the verse. Al-Tha'labi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The Jews of Medina and the Christians of Najran were hoping that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would pray towards their qiblah. When God changed the qiblah towards the Kaaba, this was difficult for them and they despaired that he would agree with them on their religion. So God revealed: And the Jews and the Christians will never be pleased with you, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of His Most High's saying: Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner. Indeed, We have sent you, O Muhammad, with Islam, which I will not accept from any other religion, and it is the truth, bringing good tidings to whoever follows you and obeys you, and accepts from you what you called him to of the truth, of victory in this world, and attainment of reward in the Hereafter, and eternal bliss in it, and warning whoever disobeys you and opposes you, and rejects what you called him to of the truth, of disgrace in this world, humiliation in it, and humiliating punishment in the Hereafter.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire.

Abu Ja'far said: The majority of reciters read: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire, with the damma on the ta' of tas'al and the raising of the lam from it, as a statement. Meaning: O Muhammad, indeed We have sent you with the truth as a bearer of good tidings and a warner, so you have conveyed what you were sent with, and your duty is only to convey and warn, and you are not responsible for whoever disbelieves in what you have brought him of the truth, and is among the people of Hellfire.

Some of the people of Medina read it as: And do not ask in the subjunctive mood. It means prohibition, with the taa' of tasa'al open and the lam in the subjunctive mood. The meaning of this according to their reading is: We have sent you with the truth as a bearer of good tidings and a warner so that you may convey what you were sent with, not to ask about the people of Hellfire, so do not ask about their condition. Those who read this reading interpreted it as:

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I wish I knew what happened to my parents, so this verse was revealed: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Musa bin Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b al-Qurazi, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I wonder what happened to my parents? I wonder what happened to my parents? I wonder what happened to my parents? three times, then this verse was revealed: "Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire," but he did not mention them until God took him.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said, Dawud bin Abi Asim told me: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said one day: I wonder where my parents are? Then this verse was revealed: "Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire."

Abu Ja'far said: The correct reading in my opinion is that of those who read it with the nominative case, as a report. Because God, the Most High, narrated the stories of some people from among the Jews and Christians, and mentioned their misguidance and disbelief in God and their audacity towards His prophets. Then He said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Indeed, We have sent you, O Muhammad, with the truth as a bringer of good tidings to those who believed in you and followed you, those whose report I have narrated to you and those whose report I have not narrated to you, and a warner to those who disbelieved in your Lord and opposed you. So convey My message, so you are not responsible for the actions of those who disbelieved in you after you conveyed My message to them, nor are you responsible for what they did after that. And there was no mention of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking his Lord about the companions of Hellfire, so his saying, And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire has a face that can be directed to it. Rather, the meaning of the speech is directed to what its apparent meaning indicates, until a clear indication comes that establishes the proof, that what is meant by it is other than what its apparent meaning indicates, in which case it is accepted by the proof established by that. There is no report that can provide evidence that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade asking about the people of Hell in this verse, nor is there any indication that this is the case in the apparent meaning of the revelation. The interpretation of this report must be based on what was mentioned before this verse, and on those mentioned after it from the Jews, Christians, and other unbelievers, without forbidding asking about them.

If someone thinks that the report narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b is correct, then the impossibility of the Messenger, peace be upon him, doubting that the polytheists are among the people of Hell, and that his parents were among them, is what negates the truth of what Muhammad ibn Ka'b said, if the report on his authority is correct. Although the report begins after his saying: Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner with the letter waw with his saying: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire, and leaving it out connects that to its beginning with the letter fa, and that Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, so do not ask about the companions of Hellfire is the clearest indication that the report with his saying: And do not ask, is more appropriate than a prohibition, and raising it is more appropriate than certainty.

It was mentioned that in Abi's reading it is: And you do not ask, and in Ibn Masoud's reading it is: And you will not ask, and both of these readings testify to the nominative and the predicate in it, without the prohibition.

Some of the grammarians of Basra used to direct his statement: And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire to the present, as if he thought that its meaning was: Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, not to be asked about the companions of Hellfire. This is if the ta' is closed, and he reads it in the sense of a report item. He would allow it to be read: And do not ask with the ta' open and the lam closed as a report item, meaning: Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, not to be asked about the companions of Hellfire. We have explained what is correct in our view in this regard.

These two statements that I mentioned from Al-Basri regarding that are refuted by what was narrated from Ibn Masoud and Abi regarding the reading, because their inclusion of what they included of that from what and lan indicates the interruption of the speech from its beginning, and the beginning of his saying: And do not ask. And if it was a beginning, it would not be a state.

As for the people of Hell, "Hell" is the fire itself when its fuel is ignited. From this is the saying of Umayyah ibn Abi al-Salt:

If Hell is kindled and then turns, turn away from its sparks, Hell.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. There are two issues in this:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. The meaning is: Their aim, O Muhammad, is not to believe in the signs they suggest, but if you bring them everything they ask for, they will not be pleased with you. Rather, what will please them is to abandon your Islam and follow them. It is said: Radi yirdi riddan wa riddan wa ridwanan wa ridwanan wa ridaat, and it is from the words with waw. It is also said in the dual: ridwan, and Al-Kisa'i reported: ridyan. It was reported that ridha is extended, and it is as if it is the source of radi yirdi radhaat wa ridaat. And tataba' is accusative with an, but it does not appear with hatta, as Al-Khalil said. This is because hatta is a prepositional phrase for a noun, like his saying: until the break of dawn. And what works on a noun does not work on a verb at all, and what prepositional phrases a noun does not presume anything. An-Nahhas said: tataba' is accusative with hatta, and hatta is a substitute for an. And the religion: is the name for what God has legislated for His servants in His books and on the tongues of His messengers. So the religion and the law were the same, but as for religion, he differentiated between it and the religion and the law, because the religion and the law are what God called His servants to do, and religion is what the servants did based on His command.

Second: A group of scholars, including Abu Hanifa, Al-Shafi'i, Dawud, and Ahmad ibn Hanbal, held fast to this verse, arguing that all disbelief is one religion, based on the Almighty's saying: their religion, thus unifying the religion, and the Almighty's saying: To you be your religion, and to me mine, and the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

People of two religions do not inherit from each other, meaning Islam and disbelief, as evidenced by his saying, peace be upon him:

A Muslim does not inherit from an infidel. Malik and Ahmad, in the other narration, said that infidelity is a religion, so a Jew does not inherit from a Christian, nor do they inherit from a Zoroastrian, taking the apparent meaning of his, peace be upon him, saying:

People of two religions do not inherit from each other. As for the Almighty's statement: their religion, what is meant by it is the majority, even though it is unified in wording, as evidenced by its addition to the pronoun of majority, as you say: I took from the scholars of the people of Medina, for example, their knowledge, and I heard their hadith, meaning their knowledge and their hadiths.

God Almighty says: "Say: 'Indeed, the guidance of God is the [only] guidance.'" The meaning is that what you are upon, O Muhammad, of the true guidance of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:120

And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. Say, "Indeed, the guidance of Allah - that is the [only] guidance." And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you would not have against Allah any protector or helper.

God that He places in the heart of whomever He wills is the true guidance, not what these people claim.

God the Almighty said: And if you were to follow their desires. Desires is the plural of hawwa, just as you say jamal and ajmal. Since they are different, they are pluralized. If it had been applied to the individuals of the religion, He would have said their desires. There are two aspects to this address: One of them is that it is for the Messenger, because the address is directed to him. The second is that it is for the Messenger, and what is meant by it is his nation. According to the first, there is a lesson in it for his nation, since their status is lower than his. The reason for the verse is that they were asking for peace and a truce, and they promised the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, Islam. So God informed him that they would not be pleased with him until he followed their religion, and He commanded him to fight them.

God the Almighty says: From knowledge. Ahmad ibn Hanbal was asked about someone who says: The Qur'an is created. He said: He is an infidel. It was said: Why do you consider him an infidel? He said: Because of verses from the Book of God the Almighty: And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, and the Qur'an is from God's knowledge. So whoever claims that it is created has committed infidelity.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ibn Jarir said: What is meant by His Most High's saying: And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion is that neither the Jews nor the Christians, O Muhammad, will ever be pleased with you, so leave seeking what pleases them and agrees with them, and turn to seeking the pleasure of God in calling them to the truth with which God sent you. And His Most High's saying: Say, 'Indeed, the guidance of God is the [only] guidance' means: Say, O Muhammad, that the guidance of God with which He sent me is the [only] guidance, meaning it is the straight, correct, complete, comprehensive religion. Qatada said regarding His saying: Say, 'Indeed, the guidance of God is the [only] guidance, that is, ... a dispute that God taught to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, with which they dispute with the people of misguidance. Qatada said: It has reached us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: A group of my nation will continue to fight for the truth, victorious, and those who oppose them will not harm them until the command of God comes. I said: This hadith is narrated in Sahih on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr. And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you would have from God neither protector nor helper. This is a severe threat and warning to the nation against following the ways of the Jews and Christians after what they have learned from the Qur'an and Sunnah. We seek refuge with God from that, for the address is to the Messenger and the command is for his nation. Many jurists have used as evidence his statement, until you follow their religion, where he singled out religion to mean that all disbelief is one religion, like the statement of God the Almighty: To you be your religion, and to me mine. Based on this, Muslims and disbelievers do not inherit from each other, and each one of them inherits from his companion, whether he is from the people of his religion or not, because they are all one religion. This is the view of al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifah, and Ahmad in one narration from him. He said in another narration, like the statement of Malik, that people of two different religions do not inherit from each other, as came in the hadith, and God knows best. And his saying: Those to whom We have given the Scripture recite it with its true recitation. Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Qatadah: They are the Jews and Christians, and this is the saying of Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam, and Ibn Jarir chose it. Sa'id said on the authority of Qatadah: They are the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ibrahim ibn Musa and Abdullah ibn Imran al-Isfahani told us, he said: Yahya ibn Yaman told us, Usamah ibn Zayd told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab: They recite it with its true recitation. He said: When he comes to mentioning Paradise, he asks God for Paradise, and when he comes to mentioning Hell, he seeks refuge in God from Hell. Abu al-'Aliyah said: Ibn Mas'ud said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the true recitation of it is to make lawful what it makes lawful and to make unlawful what it makes unlawful, and to recite it as God revealed it, and not to distort the words from their places, and not to interpret anything of it other than its interpretation. And Abd al-Razzaq narrated it likewise, on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Qatadah and Mansur ibn al-Mu'tamir on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding this verse, said: They make lawful what He makes lawful and forbid what He forbids, and they do not distort it from its proper places. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to that was narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: They act according to its clear verses and believe in its ambiguous verses, and they leave what is unclear to them to its All-Knower. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah informed us, Ibrahim ibn Musa informed us, Ibn Abi Za'idah informed us, Dawud ibn Abi Hind informed us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, he said: They follow it with its true following. Then he recited: And the moon when it follows it, meaning: follows it. He said: Something similar to that was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Ata', Mujahid, Abu Razin, and Ibrahim al-Nakha'i. Sufyan al-Thawri said: Zubayd told us on the authority of Marra on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed. Al-Qurtubi said: Nasr ibn 'Isa narrated on the authority of Malik on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn 'Umar on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed. Then he said in its chain of transmission more than one of the unknowns, as mentioned by al-Khatib, except that its meaning is correct. Abu Musa al-Ash'ari said: Whoever follows the Qur'an will descend with it to the gardens of Paradise. On the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab: They are those who, when they pass by a verse of mercy, ask for it from God, and when they pass by a verse of torment, seek refuge from it. He said: This meaning has been narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that when he passed by a verse of mercy, he would ask, and when he passed by a verse of torment, he would seek refuge. His statement: Those believe in it is report about those to whom We gave the Scripture, they recite it with its true recitation. That is: whoever among the people of the books revealed to the previous prophets established his book with its true establishment, believed in what I sent you with, O Muhammad, as God the Almighty said: And if they had established the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to them from their Lord, they would have consumed from above them and from beneath their feet. The verse: Say, O People of the Scripture, you are not upon anything until you establish the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to you from your Lord. That is: If you establish it with the true establishment and believe in it with the true belief and believe what is in it of the report of the mission of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description and attributes, and the command to follow him, support him, and assist him, that will lead you to the truth and to follow good in this world and the hereafter, as God the Almighty said: And if they had established the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to them from their Lord, they would have consumed from above them and from beneath their feet. The verse: Say, O People of the Scripture, you are not upon anything until you establish the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to you from your Lord. That is: If you establish it with the true establishment and believe in it with the true belief and believe what is in it of the report about the mission of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description and attributes, and the command to follow him, support him, and assist him, that will lead you to the truth and to follow good in this world and the hereafter, as God the Almighty said: Those who follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet, whom they find written in what they have of the Torah and the Gospel 10:13. God the Almighty also said: "Say, 'Believe in him or do not believe.' Indeed, those who were given knowledge before him - when it is recited to them, they fall upon their faces in prostration. And they say, 'Glory be to our Lord! The promise of our Lord has surely been fulfilled.'" That is, if what we were promised regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is to be fulfilled, God the Almighty also said: "Those to whom We gave the Scripture before it - they believe in it. Indeed, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed, we were Muslims before it." Those will be given their reward twice for what they were patient and avert evil with good, and spend from what We have provided them." God the Almighty also said: "And say to those who were given the Scripture and to the unlettered ones, 'Have you submitted?' For if they submit, then they are rightly guided. But if they turn away, upon you is only the conveyance. And God is Seeing of His servants." For this reason God the Almighty said: And whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers. God the Almighty also said: And whoever disbelieves in it from the parties - the Fire is his promised destination. In Sahih: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, no one from this nation, Jew or Christian, hears of me and does not believe in me but that he will enter Hell.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 120- And the Jews will never be pleased with you the verse: meaning their aim and the extent of their satisfaction is not what they suggest to you of signs and what they present of obstinacy, for if you came to them with everything they suggest and answered them about every obstinacy, they would not be pleased with you. Then he informed him that they would not be pleased with him until he entered their religion and followed their way. And the way is: the name of what God has legislated for His servants in His books on the tongues of His prophets and thus the law, then He responded to them, the Most High, and ordered him to say to them: Indeed, the guidance of God is the true guidance, not what you are upon of the abrogated law and distorted books. Then He followed that with a severe threat to the Messenger of God if he followed their desires and tried to please them and exhausted himself in seeking what agrees with them, and it is possible that it was an exposition to his nation and a warning to them not to fall into any of that, or enter into the desires of the people of religions and seek the pleasure of the people of innovations. This verse contains a severe warning that makes hearts tremble and souls crack, which requires the people of knowledge who carry the proofs of God, the Most High, and who are responsible for explaining His laws to leave the anointing of the people who follow evil doctrines, who abandon working according to the Book and the Sunnah, and prefer mere opinion over them. For most of these people, even if they appear to be accepting and show leniency in their morals, are not satisfied with anything except following their innovations, entering into their traps, and falling into their deceptions. If the scholar does that after God has taught him knowledge that benefits him, that God's guidance is what is in His Book and the Sunnah of His Messenger, not what they are upon of those innovations that are pure misguidance, clear ignorance, a collapsing opinion, and imitation on the brink of a collapsing precipice, then he will have no guardian or supporter from God, and whoever is like that will inevitably be let down and will perish without a doubt or suspicion.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:120

And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. Say, "Indeed, the guidance of Allah - that is the [only] guidance." And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you would not have against Allah any protector or helper.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

120. God the Almighty said: "And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion. Say: 'Indeed, the guidance of God is the [only] guidance.'" This is because they were asking the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, for a truce and hoping that if he gave them time, they would follow him. So God the Almighty revealed this verse, the meaning of which is that if you make a truce with them, they will not be pleased with it. They only ask for it as an excuse and will not be pleased with you unless you follow their religion. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: This is about the qiblah. The Jews of Medina and the Christians of Najran were hoping that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would pray toward their qiblah. When God changed the qiblah toward the Kaaba, they despaired of him agreeing with them on their religion. So God the Almighty revealed: And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you except with Judaism, nor will the Christians except with Christianity. The religion is the way, and if you follow their desires, it was said that the address was to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what was meant by it was the nation, like His saying: If you associate others with God, your work will surely become worthless Az-Zumar 65. After what has come to you of knowledge is the clarification that the religion of God is Islam. The Qiblah is the Qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, which is the Kaaba. You have against God neither protector nor helper.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

120- And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion is an exaggeration in making the Messenger (peace be upon him) despair of their Islam, for if they were not pleased with him until he followed their religion, how would they follow his religion? Perhaps they said something like that, so God spoke about them, and that is why He said: Say as an instruction for the answer. Indeed, the guidance of God is the guidance meaning the guidance of God, which is Islam, is the guidance to the truth, not what you call for. And if you were to follow their desires their false opinions. The religion is what God has prescribed for His servants through the tongues of His prophets, from the word I dictated the book if you dictated it, and desire is an opinion that follows fame after what has come to you of knowledge meaning the revelation, or the religion whose authenticity is known. You will have from God neither a protector nor a helper who will ward off His punishment from you, and this is the answer to if.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:121

Those to whom We have given the Scripture recite it with its true recital. Those are the ones who believe in it. And whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those to whom We have given the Scripture subject recite it with its true recitation meaning they read it as it was revealed, and the sentence is a state and haqq is an accusative of the source and the predicate those believe in it was revealed about a group who came from Abyssinia and converted to Islam and whoever disbelieves in it meaning the Scripture that was given to them by distorting it then those are the losers because they are destined for eternal Hellfire upon them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by His statement, may His praise be exalted: And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion, is that neither the Jews, O Muhammad, nor the Christians will ever be pleased with you, so leave seeking what pleases them and agrees with them, and turn to seeking the pleasure of God by calling them to the truth with which God sent you, for what you are calling them to is the path to their coming together with you in harmony and the upright religion. There is no way for you to please them by following their religion, because Judaism is the opposite of Christianity, and Christianity is the opposite of Judaism, and Christianity and Judaism cannot come together in one person in one situation. The Jews and Christians cannot come together in being pleased with you, unless you are a Jew and a Christian, and that will never happen from you, because you are one person, and two opposing religions will never come together in you in one situation. And if there is no way for them to come together in you at one time, then there is no way for you to please both groups. If you do not have a way to do that, then adhere to the guidance of God, which is the path to harmony for all creation.

As for the religion, it is the religion, and its plural is religions.

Then He, the Most High, said to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: Say, O Muhammad, to these Christians and Jews who said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian: Indeed, the guidance of God is the guidance. Meaning: God's statement is the convincing statement and the decisive judgment between us. So come to the Book of God and His statement in which He explained to His servants that in which they differed, which is the Torah, which you all acknowledge is from God, in which it becomes clear to you who among us is right and who is wrong, which of us is the people of Paradise and which of us is the people of Hell, which of us is right and which of us is wrong.

God commanded His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to call them to God's guidance and His explanation, because it contains a denial of what the Jews and Christians said: that no one will enter Paradise except those who are Jews or Christians, and a clarification of the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that the one who denies him is among the people of Hell, not the one who believes in him.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement, And if you were to follow, O Muhammad, the desires of these Jews and Christians in what pleases them about you of Judaism and Christianity, and you turned from that to pleasing them, and in it you agreed with their love after what came to you of knowledge of their misguidance and disbelief in their Lord, and after what I related to you from their report of this Surah, you will have from God no protector, meaning by that: O Muhammad, you will have no protector to look after your affairs, nor a guardian to carry them out, nor a helper, who will support you from God and repel from you what befalls you of His punishment, and prevent you from that, if your Lord decrees that for you. We have already explained the meaning of the protector and the helper previously.

It has been said that God Almighty revealed this verse to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, because the Jews and Christians called him to their religions, and each party of them said: The guidance is what we are upon, not what other religions are upon. So God admonished him to do that, and taught him the decisive argument between them regarding what each party of them claimed.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "Those to whom We have given the Scripture recite it with its true recitation. Those believe in it. But whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ibn Jarir said: What is meant by His Most High's saying: And never will the Jews or the Christians be pleased with you until you follow their religion is that neither the Jews nor the Christians, O Muhammad, will ever be pleased with you, so leave seeking what pleases them and agrees with them, and turn to seeking the pleasure of God in calling them to the truth with which God sent you. And His Most High's saying: Say, 'Indeed, the guidance of God is the [only] guidance' means: Say, O Muhammad, that the guidance of God with which He sent me is the [only] guidance, meaning it is the straight, correct, complete, comprehensive religion. Qatada said regarding His saying: Say, 'Indeed, the guidance of God is the [only] guidance, that is, ... a dispute that God taught to

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:121

Those to whom We have given the Scripture recite it with its true recital. Those are the ones who believe in it. And whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers.

Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, with which they dispute with the people of misguidance. Qatadah said: It has reached us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: A group of my nation will continue to fight for the truth, victorious, and those who oppose them will not harm them until the command of God comes. I said: This hadith is narrated in Sahih on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr. And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you would have from God neither protector nor helper. This is a severe threat and warning to the nation against following the ways of the Jews and Christians after what they have learned from the Qur'an and Sunnah. We seek refuge with God from that, for the address is to the Messenger and the command is for his nation. Many jurists have used as evidence his statement, until you follow their religion, where he singled out religion to mean that all disbelief is one religion, like the statement of God the Almighty: To you be your religion, and to me mine. Based on this, Muslims and disbelievers do not inherit from each other, and each one of them inherits from his companion, whether he is from the people of his religion or not, because they are all one religion. This is the view of al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifah, and Ahmad in one narration from him. He said in another narration, like the statement of Malik, that people of two different religions do not inherit from each other, as came in the hadith, and God knows best. And his saying: Those to whom We have given the Scripture recite it with its true recitation. Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Qatadah: They are the Jews and Christians, and this is the saying of Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam, and Ibn Jarir chose it. Sa'id said on the authority of Qatadah: They are the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ibrahim ibn Musa and Abdullah ibn Imran al-Isfahani told us, he said: Yahya ibn Yaman told us, Usamah ibn Zayd told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab: They recite it with its true recitation. He said: When he comes to mentioning Paradise, he asks God for Paradise, and when he comes to mentioning Hell, he seeks refuge in God from Hell. Abu al-'Aliyah said: Ibn Mas'ud said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the true recitation of it is to make lawful what it makes lawful and to make unlawful what it makes unlawful, and to recite it as God revealed it, and not to distort the words from their places, and not to interpret anything of it other than its interpretation. And Abd al-Razzaq narrated it likewise, on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Qatadah and Mansur ibn al-Mu'tamir on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding this verse, said: They make lawful what He makes lawful and forbid what He forbids, and they do not distort it from its proper places. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to that was narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: They act according to its clear verses and believe in its ambiguous verses, and they leave what is unclear to them to its All-Knower. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah informed us, Ibrahim ibn Musa informed us, Ibn Abi Za'idah informed us, Dawud ibn Abi Hind informed us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, he said: They follow it with its true following. Then he recited: And the moon when it follows it, meaning: follows it. He said: Something similar to that was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Ata', Mujahid, Abu Razin, and Ibrahim al-Nakha'i. Sufyan al-Thawri said: Zubayd told us on the authority of Marra on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed. Al-Qurtubi said: Nasr ibn 'Isa narrated on the authority of Malik on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn 'Umar on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed. Then he said in its chain of transmission more than one of the unknowns, as mentioned by al-Khatib, except that its meaning is correct. Abu Musa al-Ash'ari said: Whoever follows the Qur'an will descend with it to the gardens of Paradise. On the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab: They are those who, when they pass by a verse of mercy, ask for it from God, and when they pass by a verse of torment, seek refuge from it. He said: This meaning has been narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that when he passed by a verse of mercy, he would ask, and when he passed by a verse of torment, he would seek refuge. His statement: Those believe in it is report about those to whom We gave the Scripture, they recite it with its true recitation. That is: whoever among the people of the books revealed to the previous prophets established his book with its true establishment, believed in what I sent you with, O Muhammad, as God the Almighty said: And if they had established the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to them from their Lord, they would have consumed from above them and from beneath their feet. The verse: Say, O People of the Scripture, you are not upon anything until you establish the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to you from your Lord. That is: If you establish it with the true establishment and believe in it with the true belief and believe what is in it of the report of the mission of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description and attributes, and the command to follow him, support him, and assist him, that will lead you to the truth and to follow good in this world and the hereafter, as God the Almighty said: And if they had established the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to them from their Lord, they would have consumed from above them and from beneath their feet. The verse: Say, O People of the Scripture, you are not upon anything until you establish the Torah and the Gospel and what was revealed to you from your Lord. That is: If you establish it with the true establishment and believe in it with the true belief and believe what is in it of the report about the mission of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description and attributes, and the command to follow him, support him, and assist him, that will lead you to the truth and to follow good in this world and the hereafter, as God the Almighty said: Those who follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet, whom they find written in what they have of the Torah and the Gospel 10:13. God the Almighty also said: "Say, 'Believe in him or do not believe.'" Indeed, those who were given knowledge before him - when it is recited to them, they fall upon their faces in prostration. And they say, 'Glory be to our Lord! The promise of our Lord has surely been fulfilled.'" That is, if what we were promised regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is to be fulfilled, God the Almighty also said: "Those to whom We gave the Scripture before it - they believe in it. Indeed, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed, we were Muslims before it." Those will be given their reward twice for what they were patient and avert evil with good, and spend from what We have provided them." God the Almighty also said: "And say to those who were given the Scripture and to the unlettered ones, 'Have you submitted?' For if they submit, then they are rightly guided. But if they turn away, upon you is only the conveyance. And God is Seeing of His servants." For this reason God the Almighty said: And whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers. God the Almighty also said: And whoever disbelieves in it from the parties - the Fire is his promised destination. In Sahih: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, no one from this nation, Jew or Christian, hears of me and does not believe in me but that he will enter Hell.

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 121- Those to whom We gave the Scripture It was said: They are the Muslims and the Scripture is the Qur'an, and it was said: Those who submitted from the People of the Scripture, and what is meant by His statement: They recite it is that they know what is in it, so they make lawful what is lawful and forbid what is forbidden, so whoever recites it recites it if he follows it, and from this is His statement, the Most High: And the moon when it recites it meaning follows it, as it was said, and it is possible that it is from recitation: meaning they read it as it should be read, they do not distort it or change it. And His statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture is a subject and its predicate is They recite it or the predicate is His statement: Those with what comes after it.

Abdul Razzaq, Abdul bin Humaid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Muhammad bin Kaab Al-Qurazi who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I wish I knew what happened to my parents. Then the verse was revealed: "Indeed, We have sent you with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner. And do not ask about the companions of Hellfire." He did not mention it until God took him. Al-Suyuti said: This is a mural with a weak chain of transmission. Then he narrated it on the authority of Ibn Jarir on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Asim, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: It is a weak chain of transmission that cannot be used as evidence, nor can it be used as evidence with the previous one. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Malik who said: Hellfire is the great part of Hellfire. Al-Tha'labi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Jews of Medina and the Christians of Najran preferred that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, pray towards their Qiblah, but when God changed the Qiblah towards the Ka'bah, this was difficult for them and they despaired of him agreeing with them in their religion. Then God revealed: And never will the Jews or the Christians approve of you Al-Madinah 10:13. Abdul Razzaq narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture, he said: They are the Jews and Christians. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, he said: They make lawful what it makes lawful and forbid what it forbids and they do not distort it from its proper places. They also narrated on his authority that he said: They follow it with its true recitation, then they recited: And the moon when it follows it, meaning: It follows it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab that he said regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, if he is reminded of Paradise, he asks God for Paradise, and if he passes by mentioning Hell, he seeks refuge in God from Hell. Al-Khatib narrated in his book al-Rawaat with a chain of transmission that includes unknown narrators on the authority of Ibn Umar on the authority of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, he said: They follow it with its true recitation. Al-Qurtubi said the same in his interpretation that there are unknown narrators in its chain of transmission, but he said: But its meaning is correct. Abdul Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated through various chains of transmission on the authority of Ibn Masoud in his interpretation of this verse, similar to what was previously narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas in his statement: They make lawful what is lawful to Him until the end. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, who said: They speak it as it was revealed and do not conceal it. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding this verse, who said: They are the companions of Muhammad. Then he narrated something similar to that on the authority of Umar bin Al-Khattab. Wakee' and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, who said: They know its clear verses, believe in its ambiguous verses, and leave whatever is unclear to its Knower.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

121. Those to whom We gave the Scripture. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: It was revealed about the people of the ship who came with Ja'far ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, and they were forty men, thirty-two from Abyssinia and eight from the monks of Ash-Sham, including Bahira. Ad-Dahhak said: They are those who believed from the Jews, Abdullah ibn Salam, Sa'iyya ibn Amr, Tamam ibn Yahudah, Asad and Asid ibn Ka'b, Ibn Yamin, and Abdullah ibn Suriya. Qatada and Ikrimah said: They are the companions of Muhammad, may

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:121

Those to whom We have given the Scripture recite it with its true recital. Those are the ones who believe in it. And whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers.

God bless him and grant him peace. It was said: They are the believers in general. They recite it with its true recitation. Al-Kalbi said: They describe it in their books with its true description for whoever asks them from the people, and the ha refers to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The others said: It refers to the Book. They differed about its meaning. Ibn Mas'ud, may God be pleased with him, said: They recite it as it was revealed and do not distort it, and they make lawful what it makes lawful and forbid what it forbids. Al-Hasan said: They act according to its clear verses, believe in its ambiguous verses, and entrust the knowledge of what is unclear to them to its Knower. Mujahid said: They follow it with its true meaning. Follow him.

He said, Those are the ones who believe in it, and those who disbelieve in it - it is those who are the losers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

121- Those to whom We gave the Scripture meaning the believers of the People of the Scripture recite it with its true recitation by observing the wording without distortion and contemplating its meaning and acting in accordance with it, and it is an implied state and the predicate is what follows it, or a predicate on the basis that what is meant by the relative pronoun are the believers of the People of the Scripture those believe in it with their Scripture without the distorters. And whoever disbelieves in it with distortion and disbelief in what confirms it then those are the losers since they purchased disbelief with faith.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:122

O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I have bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds. An example of it has been presented.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed regarding those whom God, the Most High, meant when He said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture. Some of them said: They are the believers in the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and in what he brought, from among his companions. He mentioned those who said that:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zurai' told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture, these are the companions of the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, they believed in the Book of God and confirmed it.

Others said: Rather, God meant by that the scholars of the Children of Israel, who believed in God and believed in His messengers, so they acknowledged the ruling of the Torah. So they acted according to what God commanded in it regarding following Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believing in him, and confirming what he brought from God. Those who said that mentioned:

Yunus told me: Ibn Wahb told us: Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: "Those to whom We gave the Scripture recite it with its true recitation - those believe in it. But whoever disbelieves in it - those are the losers," he said: Whoever disbelieved in the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from among the Jews, then those are the losers.

Abu Ja'far said: This statement is more correct than the statement made by Qatada. Because the verses before it proceeded with the accounts of the People of the Book, and the substitution of those who substituting the Book of God, and their interpretation of it in a way other than its interpretation, and their false claims against God, and the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, were not mentioned in the verse before it, so his statement, Those to whom We gave the Scripture, is directed to the report about them, and there is no mention of them after it in the verse that follows it, so that is directed to it being a report that begins with the stories of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and after the stories of others have ended, and there is no evidence that this is report about them that must be accepted.

Since that is the case, then what is more appropriate to the meaning of the verse is that it is directed to the fact that it is report about those whose stories God, the Most High, narrated in the verse before it and the verse after it, and they are the people of the two books, the Torah and the Gospel. Since that is the case, then the interpretation of the verse is: Those to whom We gave the Book which you have known, O Muhammad, which is the Torah, and they read it and followed what is in it, and they believed in you and had faith in what you brought from Me, those recite it with its true recitation.

The definite article was included in al-Kitab because it is a definite noun. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions knew which book he meant.

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: They recite it with its true recitation. Some of them said: The meaning of that is: They follow it with its true following. Those who said that mentioned:

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ibn Abi Uday and Abd al-A'la told me, and Amr ibn Ali told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us all, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: They recite it as it should be recited, they follow it as it should be followed.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdul-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Amr bin Ali told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Dawud bin Abi Hind told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Al-Husayn bin Amr Al-Anqazi told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Asbat, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of God Almighty: They recite it with its true recitation, he said, they make lawful what it makes lawful and forbid what it forbids, and they do not distort it.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said, Abu Malik said: Ibn Abbas said in: They recite it as it should be recited, and he mentioned something similar except that he said: And they do not distort it from its places.

Amr bin Ali told us, Al-Mu'ammil told us, Sufyan told us, Yazid told us, on the authority of Marra, on the authority of Abdullah, regarding the statement of God Almighty: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah, who said: Abdullah ibn Mas'ud said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the right way to recite it is to make lawful what it makes lawful and to make unlawful what it makes unlawful, to recite it as God revealed it, not to distort the words from their places, and not to interpret anything of it other than its interpretation.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:122

O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I have bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Mansur bin al-Mu'tamir, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, regarding his statement: recite it as it should be recited, that is, he makes lawful what it makes lawful and forbids what it forbids, and does not distort it from its proper places.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, Ibad bin Al-Awam told us, on the authority of the one who mentioned it, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: They recite it as it should be recited, they follow it as it should be followed.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Ibad bin Al-Awam told us, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Ata', similarly.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Abu Razin, regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed.

Amr bin Ali told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, and Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told me, he said, Sufyan told us, and Nasr bin Abdul Rahman Al-Azdi told me, he said, Yahya bin Ibrahim told us, on the authority of Sufyan, they all said, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Abu Razin, similarly.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Mujahid: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: Acting upon it.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Qais bin Saad: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed. Have you not seen His statement: And the moon when it follows it (Ash-Shams: 2), meaning the sun when the moon follows it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik bin Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata' and Qais bin Sa'd, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, he said: They act upon it with its true action.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik, on the authority of Qais bin Saad, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: They follow him as he should be followed.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: They recite it as it should be recited, they act upon it as it should be acted upon.

Amr bin Ali told us, Muammil bin Ismail told us, Hammad bin Zaid told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed.

Amr told me, he said, Abu Qutaybah told us, he said, Al-Hasan bin Abi Jaafar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Mujahid: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed.

Amr told us, Yahya Al-Qattan told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Ata', regarding his statement: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed, they act upon it as it should be acted upon.

Sufyan bin Wakee' told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Al-Mubarak, on the authority of Al-Hasan: They recite it as it should be recited. He said: They act according to its clear verses and believe in its ambiguous verses. They refer whatever is unclear to its Knower.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They make lawful what it should be and forbid what it should be forbidden, and they act in accordance with what is in it. It was mentioned to us that Ibn Mas'ud used to say: The right way to recite it is to make lawful what it should be and forbid what it should be forbidden, and to read it as God the Almighty revealed it, and not to distort it from its proper places.

Amr told us, Abu Dawud told us, Al-Hakam bin Atiyah told us, I heard Qatada say: They recite it as it should be recited, he said: They follow it as it should be followed. He said: Following it: They make lawful what it makes lawful and forbid what it forbids, and they read it as it was revealed.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement: They recite it with its true recitation, he said: They follow it with its true following. Have you not heard God Almighty say: And the moon when it follows it (Ash-Shams: 2), he said: When it follows it.

Others said: They recite it as it should be recited, they read it as it should be read.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct interpretation of this is that it means: they follow him as he should be followed, from the saying of the one who says: I have not ceased to follow his trace, if he follows his trace, because the proof from the people of interpretation has agreed that this is its interpretation.

And since that is its interpretation, then the meaning of the statement is: Those to whom We gave the Book, O Muhammad, from the people of the Torah who believed in you and in what you brought them of the truth from Me, follow My Book that I revealed to My Messenger Moses, peace be upon him, so they believe in it and acknowledge what is in it of your description and description, and that you are My Messenger, and My obedience is obligatory upon them in believing in you and believing in what I brought them from Me, and they act according to what I have made lawful for them, and they avoid what I have forbidden them in it, and they do not distort it from its places, nor do they change it or alter it as I revealed it to them with an interpretation or otherwise.

As for his saying: The right to recite it, it is an exaggeration of the description of their following the Book and their commitment to working with it, just as it is said: So-and-so is a truly learned scholar, and just as it is said: So-and-so is a virtuous person, every virtuous person.

The Arabists differed about adding haqq to a definite noun. Some grammarians of Kufa said that it is not permissible to add it to a definite noun, because it means any, and it has the same meaning as saying: the best man is so-and-so. "Afa" cannot be added to a definite noun, because it is partial, and a partial noun cannot be definite. So they referred to saying: I passed by the man, the right of the man, and I passed by the man, the grandfather of the man, just as they referred to saying: I passed by the man, meaning the man. They permitted that for the whole man, the particular man, and the man himself. They said: We only permitted that because these letters were originally for emphasis, but when they became madduh, they left madduh as they originally were for definiteness.

They claimed that his saying: recite it as it should be recited is permissible to add it to recitation, and it is added to a definite noun, because the Arabs consider the letter ha when it refers to an indefinite noun with an indefinite noun. So they say: I passed by a man whose mother is unique, and a unique fabric, and the master of his people. They said: So too is his saying: its correct recitation is permissible to add haqq to recitation, and it is added to the letter ha because the Arabs consider the letter ha in similar words to be among the indefinite nouns. They said: If that were the correct recitation, then it would have been permissible to say: I passed by the man as he should be.

According to this statement, the interpretation of the statement is: Those to whom We gave the Scripture recite it with the right recitation.

Some Basra grammarians said: It is permissible to add haqq to indefinite nouns with indefinite nouns, and to definite nouns with definite nouns. This is similar to the saying of the speaker: I passed by the man, the man's slave, and by a man, the man's slave.

The interpretation of the verse according to these people is: Those to whom We gave the Book recite it as it should be recited.

The first statement is more correct in our view, because the meaning of his saying: the right of its recitation is recitation, meaning praising the recitation that you recited and preferring it. And it is not permissible to add it to one definite noun according to all of them. Likewise, it is not permissible to add it to one definite noun. Rather, it is added in the right of its recitation to what has the ha' in it, for the reason that was described and explained previously.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Those believe in it.

Abu Ja'far said: What God Almighty means by His statement, those, are those about whom He has informed us that they recite what He has given them of the Book with its true recitation. As for His statement, they believe in it, He means: they believe in it. The ha in His statement, by it, refers back to the ha in its recitation, and they are both from the mention of the Book about which God said, those to whom We have given the Book.

God Almighty informed us that the believer in the Torah is the one who follows what is permissible and forbidden in it, and acts according to what is in it of the obligations of God that He imposed on its people, and that its people who are its people are those who have this description, not those who distort it, change its interpretation, alter its laws, and abandon what God imposed on them in it.

The Almighty described the followers of the Torah as He described them, and praised them as He praised them, because following it is following Muhammad, the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believing in him, because the Torah commands its people to do that, and informs them about God, may He be exalted, of his prophethood, and the obligation of obeying him upon all of God's creation from among the children of Adam, and that denying Muhammad is denying it. So the Almighty informed that the followers of the Torah are those who believe in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they are those who act according to what is in it, as:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Those are the ones who believe in him, he said: whoever believed in the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the Children of Israel and in the Torah, and the one who disbelieves in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the one who disbelieves in it and is the loser, as God Almighty said: And whoever disbelieves in him - then it is those who are the losers.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And whoever disbelieves in it - it is those who are the losers.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement, And whoever disbelieves in it, is whoever disbelieves in the Book which He informed that whoever is given it from the believers will recite it as it should be recited. What He, the Most High, meant by His statement, disbelieves, is denying what is in it of the obligations of God and the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his confirmation, and changing it and distorting its interpretation. Those are the ones who have lost their knowledge and their deeds, so they have deprived themselves of their portions of God's mercy, and have exchanged it for God's wrath and anger. Ibn Zayd said about His statement, with what:

Yunus told me that he said, Ibn Wahb told us that Ibn

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:122

O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I have bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds.

Zayd said: And whoever disbelieves in it - then it is those who are the losers. He said: Whoever disbelieves in the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from among the Jews, then it is those who are the losers.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

A similar verse was mentioned at the beginning of the Surah and was repeated here to emphasize and urge people to follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet, whose description, name, command, and nation they find in their books. He warned them against concealing this and concealing what He bestowed upon them, and He commanded them to remember the blessings of God upon them, both worldly and religious, and not to envy their Arab cousins for what God had provided them with by sending the final Messenger from among them, and not to let that lead them to envy him for opposing him, denying him, and deviating from agreeing with him. May God's prayers and peace be upon him forever until the Day of Judgment.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 122- O Children of Israel to His statement: Nor will they be aided. Something similar to this has been mentioned previously at the beginning of the surah, and its interpretation has already been presented. The reason for the repetition is the urging to follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet. Ibn Kathir mentioned its meaning in his interpretation. Al-Baq'a'i said in his interpretation: Since the time has gone on in thoroughly reminding them of the blessings, then in explaining their faults and exposing their veils, and concluding that with intimidation for wasting their religion through their actions, conditions and words, he repeated what he began their story with, reminding them of the blessings, and warning against the coming of punishments on the Day when the nations will be gathered, and regret will last for whoever slips, so that he may know that this is the gist of the story, and the purpose in itself is to urge them to seize the opportunity. End. And I say: This is nothing, for if the reason for the repetition was what he mentioned about the length of the period and that he returned to what he began their story with, then it would have been more appropriate to repeat it, and what is more deserving of repeating the mention is the saying of the Most High: O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I have bestowed upon you and fulfill My covenant, and I will fulfill your covenant, and fear Me. For this verse, despite being the first speech with them and the address to them in this surah, is also more deserving of being repeated and reiterated because of what it contains of the command to remember the favors and fulfill the covenant and fear God the Most High. And with this you know the correctness of what we presented to you when explaining the law of God the Most High in addressing the Children of Israel in this surah, so refer to it. Then Al-Baq'a'i narrated after his previous speech on the authority of Al-Hawali that he said: The Most High repeated it to show the purpose of the coherence of the end of the speech with its beginning, and to take this clarification and instruction as a basis for what can be mentioned similarly in the rest of the Qur'an, so that when the speech reaches the end of its conclusion, the heart must notice that end in itself and recite it so that in its recitation it will be a collection of the two sides of praise, and in its understanding. It is a collection of the meanings of both sides of the meaning. And I say: If this were the reason for the repetition, it would have been more appropriate for us not to have made it known to you. As for his saying: And let this be taken as a basis for what is mentioned of repetition in the rest of the Qur'an, it is known that the occurrence of this matter in the minds and its establishment in the understandings is not limited to the repetition of a specific verse that opens this purpose with it, so the point in repeating these two verses in particular is not complete, and to God belongs the perfect wisdom that the minds cannot reach nor the intellects comprehend, so there is nothing in the assignment of these arbitrary occasions except what we made known to you there, so remember.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

122. O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

122- O Children of Israel, remember My favor which I bestowed upon you and that I preferred you over the worlds.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:123

And fear a Day when no soul will suffice for another soul at all, nor will compensation be accepted from it, nor will intercession benefit it, nor will they be aided.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And fear fear a Day when no soul will avail another soul at all, nor will compensation be accepted from it as ransom nor will intercession benefit it, nor will they be aided they will be prevented from the punishment of God.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This verse is a sermon from God Almighty to the Jews who were among the immigrants of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a reminder from Him to them of His previous favors to them in His treatment of their forefathers, seeking His compassion for them in His religion and belief in His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: O Children of Israel, remember My favors to you, and My favors to you, and My rescuing you from the hands of your enemy Pharaoh and his people, and My sending down upon you manna and quails in your wanderings, and My empowering you in the lands after you had been humiliated and My choosing messengers from among you, and My giving you preference over the scholars among whom you were, during the days when you were in My obedience by following My Messenger to you, and believing in him and believing what he brought you from Me, and abandoning persistence in misguidance and error.

We have previously mentioned the blessings that God bestowed upon the Children of Israel, and the meanings that He, the Most High, mentioned of His favors to them, and the world over which they were favored in the past with narrations and evidence, so we disliked lengthening the book by repeating it, since the meaning in that place and there was the same.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture. Qatada said: They are the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Scripture according to this interpretation is the Qur'an. Ibn Zayd said: They are those who converted to Islam from the Children of Israel. The Scripture according to this interpretation is the Torah, and the verse is yes. And those who are raised by the beginning, We gave them its connection, recite it is the predicate of the beginning, and if you wish, the predicate is those believe in it.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the meaning of recite it as it should be recited. It was said: They follow it as it should be followed, by following the commands and prohibitions, making lawful what it makes lawful and making unlawful what it makes unlawful, and acting in accordance with what it includes. This was said by Ikrimah. Ikrimah said: Have you not heard the statement of God the Most High: And the moon when it follows it, meaning follows it, and this is the meaning of the statement of Ibn Abbas and Ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with them. The poet said:

I made my bucket fill me

Nasr bin Issa narrated on the authority of Malik on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Omar on the authority of:

The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said in the words of God the Almighty: They recite it with its true recitation: They follow it with its true following. Its chain of transmission includes more than one unknown narrator, as mentioned by Al-Khatib Abu Bakr Ahmad, but its meaning is correct. Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari said: Whoever follows the Qur'an will descend with him to the gardens of Paradise. And on the authority of Umar ibn Al-Khattab may God be pleased with him: They are those who, when they pass by a verse of mercy, ask God for it, and when they pass by a verse of torment, seek refuge from it. This meaning has been narrated: "On the authority of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): When he passed by a verse of mercy, he would ask, and when he passed by a verse of torment, he would seek refuge." Al-Hasan said: They are those who act according to its clear verses, believe in its ambiguous verses, and leave whatever is unclear to its scholar. And it was said: They recite it with its true recitation.

I said: There is some distance in this, unless the meaning is that they recite its words and understand its meanings, for by understanding the meanings, the one who is guided is followed.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

A similar verse was mentioned at the beginning of the Surah and was repeated here to emphasize and urge people to follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet, whose description, name, command, and nation they find in their books. He warned them against concealing this and concealing what He bestowed upon them, and He commanded them to remember the blessings of God upon them, both worldly and religious, and not to envy their Arab cousins for what God had provided them with by sending the final Messenger from among them, and not to let that lead them to envy him for opposing him, denying him, and deviating from agreeing with him. May God's prayers and peace be upon him forever until the Day of Judgment.

Fath al-Qadir

123- And fear a Day when no soul will suffice for another soul at all, nor will intercession be accepted from it, nor will compensation be taken from it, nor will

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:123

And fear a Day when no soul will suffice for another soul at all, nor will compensation be accepted from it, nor will intercession benefit it, nor will they be aided.

they be aided.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

123. And fear a Day when no soul will suffice for another soul at all, nor will compensation be accepted from it, nor will intercession benefit it, nor will they be aided.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

123- And fear a Day when no soul will suffice for another soul at all, nor will compensation be accepted from it, nor will intercession benefit it, nor will they be aided. When he began their story with the command to remember blessings, fulfill their rights, beware of wasting them, and fear the Hour and its terrors, he repeated that and concluded his speech with them with it, exaggerating the advice and indicating that this was the gist of the matter and the intended meaning of the story.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people. He said, And of my descendants? He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And mention when Abraham was tested by his Lord (with words) with commands and prohibitions that He charged him with. It was said that they were the rituals of Hajj, and it was said that they were rinsing the mouth, inhaling water from the nose, using the siwak, trimming the moustache, parting the hair, clipping the nails, plucking the armpit hair, shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, and using the toilet and he completed them he performed them completely. He said the Most High to him Indeed, I will make you an imam for the people a role model in religion. (He said: And of my descendants) my children, make imams. (He said: My covenant) of the imamate does not include the wrongdoers) the disbelievers among them. This indicates that it includes other than the wrongdoer.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This verse is a warning from God, the Most High, to those to whom He has previously admonished, as He admonished them in the verse before it. God says to them: And fear, O company of Children of Israel, those who alter My Book and My revelation, who distort its interpretation from its meaning, who deny My Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, the punishment of a Day when no soul will pay for another soul in the least, nor will any benefit be given to it, lest you perish in your state of disbelief in Me and your denial of My Messenger, and die in that state. For it is a Day when no ransom will be accepted from a soul for what is required of it, nor will any intercessor intercede for what is due to it of its right, nor will any helper from God aid it when He takes vengeance on it for its disobedience to Him.

The explanation of all the meanings of this verse has already been given in its counterpart, so there is no need to repeat it here.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains twenty issues:

First: When the Kaaba and the Qiblah were mentioned, this was connected to the mention of Abraham, peace be upon him, and that he was the one who built the House. So it was the right of the Jews - who are descendants of Abraham - not to be averse to his religion. And the trial is the test and examination, and its meaning is something distant. And the interpretation of Abraham in Syriac, according to what Al-Mawardi mentioned, and in Arabic, according to what Ibn Atiyah mentioned, is: a merciful father. Al-Suhayli said: And often there is agreement between Syriac and Arabic, or something close to it in pronunciation. Don't you see that the interpretation of Abraham is a merciful father, for his mercy towards children, and for that reason he and his wife Sarah were made guardians of the children of the believers who die young until the Day of Resurrection.

I said: What indicates this is what Al-Bukhari included in the long hadith of the vision on the authority of Samurah, in which it says:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw Abraham, peace be upon him, in the Rawdah, surrounded by the children of the people." We have mentioned this in the Book of Remembrance, and praise be to God.

This Abraham is the son of Tarikh bin Nakhur, according to some historians. In the revelation: And when Abraham said to his father Azar, and also in Sahih al-Bukhari, and there is no contradiction in that, as will come in Al-An'am, God willing. He had four sons: Ishmael, Isaac, Midian, and Mada'in, as mentioned by Al-Suhayli. It was presented before the subject for emphasis, since the fact that the Lord, Blessed and Exalted be He, is the tester is known, and the fact that the object pronoun in Arabic is connected to the subject necessitates the object being presented, so the speech was built on this emphasis, so be aware of it. The common people read Abraham in the accusative, and his Lord in the nominative, as we mentioned. It was narrated on the authority of Jabir bin Zaid that he read it the opposite, and he claimed that Ibn Abbas read it likewise. The meaning is that Abraham called upon his Lord and asked, and there is some distance in it, because of the preposition with in His statement with words.

The second: The Almighty's saying: with words. Words is the plural of word, and its realization goes back to the speech of the Almighty, but He expressed it in terms of the functions that Abraham, peace be upon him, was charged with. And since it was charged with speech, it was called by it, just as Jesus was called a word, because it was issued from a word, which is Be. And finding something by its introduction is one of the two divisions of metaphor, as Ibn al-Arabi said.

Third: The scholars differed regarding what is meant by the words, with some sayings: One of them is the laws of Islam, which are thirty shares, ten of them in Surat Bara'ah: The repentant worshippers to the end, and ten in al-Ahzab 33: Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women to the end, and ten in al-Mu'minin 23: The believers have succeeded to His saying: They maintain their prayers and His saying in A questioner asked "Except those who pray" to His saying: And those who maintain their prayers. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: God did not test anyone with them and he fulfilled them all except Ibrahim, peace be upon him. He was tested with Islam and completed it, so God wrote for him the declaration of innocence, so He said: And Ibrahim who fulfilled. Some of them said: With the command and prohibition, and some of them said: With the slaughter of his son, and some of them said: With the fulfillment of the message, and the meaning is close. Mujahid said: It is the saying of God the Almighty: I am testing you with a matter, He said: Will you make me an imam for the people? He said: Yes. He said: And from my descendants? He said: My covenant will not include the wrongdoers. He said: Will you make the House a place of return for the people? He said: Yes. He said: And security? He said: Yes. He said: And show us our rites and accept our repentance? He said: Yes. He said: And provide its people with fruits? He said: Yes. According to this statement, it is God who completed. More authentic than this is what Abd al-Razzaq mentioned on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Ibn Tawus on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with commands, and he fulfilled them. He said: God tested him with purification, five for the head and five for the body: trimming the moustache, rinsing the mouth, sniffing water in the nose, using the siwak, and parting the hair. And for the body: trimming the nails, shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, plucking the armpit hair, and washing the place of defecation and urination with water. According to this statement, it is Abraham who completed, and it is the apparent meaning of the Qur'an. Matar narrated on the authority of Abu al-Jild that they are also ten, except that he made the place of parting the washing of the knuckles, and the place of istinja' the removal of the pubic hair. Qatada said: They are the rituals of Hajj specifically. Al-Hasan: They are the six characteristics: the planet, the moon, the sun, fire, migration, and circumcision. Abu Ishaq Al-Zajjaj said: These statements are not contradictory, because all of this was something that Abraham, peace be upon him, was tested with.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, "Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people." He said, "And of my descendants?" He said, "My covenant does not include the wrongdoers."

I said: In Al-Muwatta' and others, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, he heard Saeed bin Al-Musayyab say:

Abraham, peace be upon him, was the first to be circumcised, the first to host a guest, the first to shave, the first to cut his nails, the first to trim his moustache, and the first to grow grey hair. When he saw the grey hair, he said: What is this? He said: Dignity. He said: O Lord, increase my dignity. Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Ibrahim on the authority of his father who said: The first to preach on the pulpit was Abraham, the friend of God. Another said: The first to cook tharid, the first to strike with the sword, the first to use a miswak, the first to clean oneself with water, and the first to wear trousers. Muadh bin Jabal narrated that the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: If a pulpit is used, then my father Abraham used it. If a staff is used, then my father Abraham used it.

I said: These are rulings that must be explained, understood, and discussed. The first of these is circumcision and what has been said about it, which is the issue:

Fourth: The scholars agreed that Abraham, peace be upon him, was the first to be circumcised. There is disagreement about the age at which he was circumcised. In Al-Muwatta', it is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, with a chain of transmission ending with him: He was one hundred and twenty years old, and he lived eighty years after that. Something like this cannot be an opinion. Al-Awza'i narrated it with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, on the authority of Yahya ibn Sa'id ibn Al-Musayyab, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Abraham, peace be upon him, was circumcised when he was one hundred and twenty years old, and he lived eighty years after that." This was mentioned by Abu Omar. It was narrated with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, other than the narration of Yahya, from various sources:

He was circumcised when he reached the age of eighty, and he was circumcised with an axe. This is in Sahih Muslim and others. Eighty years old. This is what is preserved in the hadith of Ibn Ajlan and the hadith of Al-A'raj on the authority of Abu Hurayrah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ikrimah said: Ibrahim was circumcised when he was eighty years old. He said: No one circumambulated the House after that according to the religion of Ibrahim except one who was circumcised. This is what Ikrimah said, and Al-Musayyab bin Rafi' said, as Al-Marwazi mentioned. Al-Qudum is narrated with a shaddah and a khafdah. Abu Al-Zinad said: Al-Qudum with a shaddah: a place.

Fifth: The scholars differed regarding circumcision. The majority of them are of the confirmed Sunnahs and the fitrah of Islam, which men cannot neglect. A group said: It is obligatory, based on the words of God the Almighty: To follow the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth. Qatadah said: It is circumcision, and some of the Malikis tended towards this, and it is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i. Ibn Surayj provided evidence for its obligation by consensus on the prohibition of looking at the private parts, and he said: If circumcision were not obligatory, it would not have been permissible for a circumcised person to look at them. The response to this is that such a thing is permissible for the benefit of the body, such as the doctor's examination, and medicine is not obligatory by consensus, as will be explained in An-Nahl, God willing. Some of our companions provided evidence for this by what Al-Hajjaj bin Artah narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Malih on the authority of his father on the authority of Shaddad bin Aws that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Circumcision is a Sunnah for men and an honor for women. Al-Hajjaj is not one of those who can be cited as evidence.

I said: The highest proof in this regard is the hadith of Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

"There are five things that are part of the fitrah: circumcision"... the hadith, and it will come. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Ibn Atiyyah that a woman used to circumcise women in Madinah, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to her: Do not go to extremes, for that is more sinful for the woman and more pleasing to the husband. Abu Dawud said: This hadith is weak and its narration is unknown. In a narration mentioned by Razin: And do not go to extremes, for that brightens the face and is more pleasing to the man.

Sixth: If the boy is born circumcised, then the cost of circumcision has been spared. Al-Maymuni said: Ahmad said to me: There is a man here who had a circumcised boy born to him, and he was very sad about that, so I said to him: If God has spared you the cost, then what is your sadness about this?

Seventh: Abu al-Faraj al-Jawzi said: I was told by Ka'b al-Ahbar who said: Thirteen prophets were created circumcised: Adam, Seth, Idris, Noah, Sam, Lot, Joseph, Moses, Shu'ayb, Solomon, John, Jesus, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Muhammad ibn Habib al-Hashemi said: They are fourteen: Adam, Seth, Noah, Hud, Salih, Lot, Shu'ayb, Joseph, Moses, Solomon, Zachariah, Jesus, Hanzala ibn Safwan the prophet of the companions of the message, and Muhammad, may God bless him and them all.

I said: The narrations differed regarding the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Abu Naim Al-Hafiz mentioned it in the book Al-Hilya with his chain of transmission.

That the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was born circumcised. Abu Omar narrated in Al-Tamhid: Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Ahmad told us, Muhammad bin Isa told us, Yahya bin Ayoub bin Badi Al-Alaaf told us, Muhammad bin Abi Al-Sarri Al-Asqalani told us, Al-Walid bin Muslim told us, on the authority of Shuaib, on the authority of Ata Al-Khurasani, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas:

That Abdul Muttalib circumcised the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on his seventh day, and held a banquet for him and named him Muhammad. Abu Omar said: This is a strange, chained hadith. Yahya bin Ayoub said: I sought this hadith but did not find it with any of the people of hadith who...

I found it only with Ibn Abi Al-Sarri. Abu Omar said: It has been said that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was born circumcised.

Eighth: They differed as to when a boy should be circumcised. It was confirmed in the reports from a group of scholars that they said: Abraham circumcised Ishmael at the age of thirteen. And he circumcised his son Isaac at seven days. It was narrated from Fatima that she used to circumcise her son on the seventh day, but Malik denied that and said that it was the practice of the Jews. Ibn Wahb mentioned it from him. Al-Layth ibn Saad said: A boy should be circumcised between the ages of seven and ten. Ibn Wahb narrated something similar from Malik. Ahmad said: I did not hear anything about that. In Al-Bukhari, from Saeed ibn Hubair, he said: Ibn Abbas was asked: Who were you when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died? He said: I was circumcised on that day. He said: They did not circumcise a man until he reached puberty or was close to puberty.

Scholars recommended that an old man who converts to Islam be circumcised. Ata' used to say: His conversion to Islam is not complete until he is circumcised, even if he reaches the age of eighty. It was narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan that he permitted an old man who converts to Islam not to be circumcised, and he saw no harm in that, nor in his testimony, his slaughter, his Hajj, or his prayer. Ibn Abd Al-Barr said: The majority of scholars agree on this. The hadith of Buraydah regarding the Hajj of the uncircumcised is not proven. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Jabir ibn Zayd, and Ikrimah: The slaughter of the uncircumcised is not permissible and his testimony is not acceptable.

Ninth: His saying: And the first to use a sharp blade. Sharpening means using iron to shave the pubic hair. Umm Salamah narrated:

"When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, applied ointment, he would wipe his pubic hair with his hand." Ibn Abbas narrated:

"A man anointed himself with the hand of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, until he reached his pubic area. Then he said to him: 'Get away from me.' Then he anointed himself with his hand." Anas narrated:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not use an oven, and if his pubic hair grew too much, he would shave it." Ibn Khuwaiz Mandat said: This indicates that most of what he did was shave, and he used an oven only rarely, so that it is correct to reconcile the two hadiths.

Tenth: In trimming the nails. Trimming the nails means cutting them, and clippings are what is removed from them. Malik said: I prefer for women to trim their nails and shave their pubic hair as is the case for men. Al-Harith bin Maskeen and Sahnoon mentioned it on the authority of Ibn al-Qasim. Al-Tirmidhi al-Hakim mentioned in his Nawader al-Usul the twenty-ninth principle: Umar bin Abi Umar told us, Ibrahim bin al-Ala' al-Zubaidi told us on the authority of Umar bin Bilal al-Fazari, who said: I heard Abdullah bin Bishr al-Mazini say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Cut your nails, bury your clippings, clean your knuckles, brush your teeth, and do not bring in a dirty, dirty place. Then he spoke about it and did well. Al-Tirmidhi said: As for cutting the nails, it is because it scratches, scratches, and causes harm, and it collects dirt. So a person may become ritually impure and water does not reach the skin because of the dirt, so he is still ritually impure. And whoever becomes ritually impure and the area of a needle's length on his body remains unwashed after washing, he is ritually impure and remains ritually impure until the washing covers his entire body. That is why he encouraged them to cut their nails. Athfar is the plural of athfur and athfar is the plural of nail. In the hadith of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) when he forgot during his prayer, he said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, "Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people." He said, "And of my descendants?" He said, "My covenant does not include the wrongdoers."

"Why should I not be deceived while one of you has a nail between his fingertip and his fingernail, and one of you asks me about the heavens while there is ritual impurity and uncleanness in his nails?" This hadith was mentioned by Abu al-Hasan Ali ibn Muhammad al-Tabari al-Mar'uf al-Kiya in his Ahkam al-Quran, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Faraj Abu Wasil, who said: I came to Abu Ayyub, may God be pleased with him, and shook hands with him. He saw that my nails were long, so he said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking him about the heavens, so he said:

One of you comes asking about the report of the sky, and his nails are like the nails of birds, and dirt and dung collect in them.

As for his saying:

Bury your clippings. The body of the believer is sacred. Whatever falls from it and is removed from it, its preservation of sanctity remains. It is his right to bury it, just as if it died, it would be buried. If some of it dies, its sanctity is also maintained by burying it, so that it does not disperse or fall into the fire or into dirty garbage dumps. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded that his blood be buried where he was cupped so that dogs would not search for it. My father, may God have mercy on him, told us that Musa bin Ismail told us that Al-Hunayd bin Al-Qasim bin Abdul-Rahman bin Ma'iz told us that he heard Aamer bin Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr say that his father told him that he came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was being cupped. When he finished, he said: O Abdullah, go with this blood and pour it out where no one can see you. When he left the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he took the blood and drank it. When he returned, he said: O Abdullah, what did you do with it? He said: I put it in the most hidden place, thinking it was hidden from the people. He said: Perhaps you drank it? He said: Yes. He said: Why did you drink the blood? Woe to the people from you and woe to you from the people. My father told me that Malik bin Sulayman Al-Harawi told us that Dawud bin Abdul-Rahman told us on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha, who said:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to order the burial of seven things from a person: hair, nails, blood, menstruation, teeth, foreskin, and placenta.

As for his saying:

Cleanse your knuckles. The knuckles are the wrinkles of the joints, and they are the place where the dirt singular knuckle meets, and it is the back of the node of each joint. The back of the node is called a knuckle, and what is between the two nodes is called a rajbah, and its plural is rawajib, and that is what is next to its back, and it is the shin of the finger. So every finger has two knuckles and three rajabs except for the thumb, which has a knuckle and two rajabs. So it is commanded to clean it so that it does not become dirty and the crime remains in it, and the dirt comes between the water and the skin.

As for his saying:

Clean your gums. The gum is one, and the gums are a group. It is the flesh above the teeth and below them, and it is their place of growth. The 'umur is the small amount of flesh between the teeth, and its singular is 'umr. So he ordered to clean it so that no food would remain in it, and the flavor would change and the smell would be unpleasant, and the two angels would be harmed, because it is the path of the Qur'an, and the seat of the two angels is at his canine tooth. It was narrated in the hadith in the words of God the Almighty: Not a word does he utter except that there is a watcher by him ready to record it. He said: At his canine tooth. Muhammad bin Ali Al-Shaqiqi told us that he heard my father mention that on the authority of Sufyan bin 'Uyaynah, and what he said was correct, because the utterance is the work of the lips, he utters the words from his tongue to the feces. And his saying at his means at him, and al-ladda and 'and in their common language have the same meaning, and so is their saying ladun, so the nun is redundant. So it is as if the verse is informing that the watcher is ready to record the harsh words, which is the canine tooth.

As for his saying, clean the teeth, which is the siwak, it is taken from the word san, meaning clean the teeth.

And he said:

Do not enter upon me a person who has a bad smell. The word qahla has been preserved for me. I heard al-Jarud mentioning on the authority of al-Nadr who said: "The one who has a bad smell in his teeth has turned yellow until they smell bad from the inside. I do not know the word 'qahla.'" And bakhr means the one whose skin has a bad smell. It is said: a bad smelling man, and bad smelling men." al-Jarud told us, he said: Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Abu Ali, on the authority of Abu Ja'far ibn Tamam ibn al-'Abbas, on the authority of his father, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Why do you come to my house with a cold?

Eleventh: In trimming the moustache. It is to take from it until the edge of the lip appears, which is the frame, and not to cut it so that it represents himself, Malik said. Ibn Abd al-Hakam mentioned from him that he said: I think that whoever shaves his moustache should be disciplined. Ashhab mentioned from him that he said about shaving the moustache: This is an innovation, and I think that whoever does it should be severely hurt. Ibn Khuwayz Mandad said that Malik said: I think that whoever shaves it should be severely hurt, as if he sees it as representing himself, and likewise with plucking the hair, and trimming it is better in his view than shaving it. And likewise:

It was narrated that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had a tuft of hair, and his companions were either full-haired or short-haired, and he shaved and they shaved for the ritual. It was narrated:

The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to trim his nails and moustache before going out to the Friday prayer. At-Tahawi said: We did not find anything explicitly narrated from Al-Shafi'i about this. His companions whom we saw, Al-Muzani and Ar-Rabi', used to shave their moustaches, and this indicates that they took that from Al-Shafi'i may God have mercy on him. He said: As for Abu Hanifa, Zufar, Abu Yusuf and Muhammad, their school of thought regarding hair on the head and moustache was that shaving is better than cutting it. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad mentioned on the authority of Al-Shafi'i that his school of thought regarding shaving the moustache is the same as that of Abu Hanifa. Abu Bakr Al-Athram said: I saw Ahmad ibn Hanbal trimming his moustache severely, and I heard him being asked about the Sunnah regarding trimming the moustache, and he said: Shave it as the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said:

Trim the moustache. Abu Omar said: There are only two roots for this matter: One of them is: Trim, which is a word with open interpretation. The second is: Trim the moustache, which is an explanatory word, and the explanatory word rules out the general, which is the practice of the people of Medina, and it is the most appropriate thing to say in this matter. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to trim his moustache and say: Abraham, the friend of the Most Merciful, used to do that. He said: A good and strange hadith. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

"The fitrah is five things: circumcision, shaving the pubic hair, trimming the moustache, clipping the nails, and plucking the armpit hairs." And in it, on the authority of Ibn Umar, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Differ from the polytheists. Trim the moustache and grow the beard." The non-Arabs trim their beards and grow their moustaches together, which is the opposite of beauty and cleanliness. Razin reported on the authority of Nafi' that Ibn Umar used to trim his moustache until he could see the skin, and he would take these two, meaning the area between the moustache and the beard. In Al-Bukhari: Ibn Umar used to take from the length of his beard what was longer than a fistful if he went for Hajj or performed Umrah. At-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-Aas:

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to take from the width and length of his beard." He said: This is a strange hadith.

Twelfth: As for the armpit, it is recommended to pluck it, just as it is recommended to shave the pubic hair. If it is reversed, it is permissible to achieve cleanliness. The first is more appropriate, because it is the usual and available option.

Thirteenth: Parting the hair: Separating it in the parting. In his description, may God bless him and grant him peace: If his hair is parted, he parted it. It is said: I parted the hair, I parted it in parts. He says: If the hair of his head is parted, he parted it in the parting. If it is not parted, he left it loose. Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas:

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to let his hair hang down, while the polytheists used to part their hair. He used to like to follow the People of the Book in matters in which he was not commanded to do anything. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, parted his hair after that." Narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim on the authority of Anas. Al-Qadi Iyad said: Letting the hair hang down means letting it hang down, and what is meant here by scholars is letting it hang over the forehead and making it like a story. Parting the hair is a Sunnah, because it is what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, preferred. It has been narrated that when Umar ibn Abdul Aziz returned from Friday prayers, he would station guards at the door of the mosque who would cut the forelock of anyone who did not part his hair. It has been said that parting was from the Sunnah of Abraham, peace be upon him, and God knows best.

Fourteenth: As for gray hair, it is light and it is disliked to pluck it. In Al-Nasa'i and Abu Dawud, on the authority of Amr bin Shu'aib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Do not pluck out grey hair. No Muslim who grows a grey hair in Islam will have a light on the Day of Resurrection, and God will write down a good deed for him and erase a sin from him."

I said: Just as it is disliked to pluck it, it is also disliked to change it to black. As for changing it to something other than black, that is permissible, because of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said regarding Abu Quhafah - when he was brought with his beard as white as an ostrich's:

Change this with something and avoid blackness. And he who said it well said:

Its top becomes black and its bottom becomes white, and there is no good in the top if the bottom becomes corrupt.

Another said:

O you who dyes your gray hair with henna to cover it, ask the King to cover it from the fire.

Fifteenth: As for Tharid, it is the best and most blessed of all foods. It is the food of the Arabs, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, testified to its superiority over all other foods, saying:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, "Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people." He said, "And of my descendants?" He said, "My covenant does not include the wrongdoers."

The superiority of Aisha over other women is like the superiority of tharid over all other foods. In Sahih Al-Bustī, it is narrated on the authority of Asma bint Abi Bakr that: When she made tharid, she would cover it with something until it had gone away and she would say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: It is greater in blessing.

Sixteenth: I said: This has a meaning similar to what Abd al-Razzaq mentioned on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and what Saeed ibn al-Musayyab said.

And others. Mention of rinsing the mouth, inhaling water in the nose, and the siwak will be made in Surat An-Nisa', and the ruling on istinja' will be made in Bara'ah, and the ruling on hospitality will be made in Hud, God willing. Muslim narrated on the authority of Anas, who said:

A time has been set for us to trim the moustache, cut the nails, pluck the armpit hair, and shave the pubic hair. We should not leave it for more than forty nights. Our scholars said: This is a specification of the maximum period, and it is preferable to check that from Friday to Friday. This hadith is narrated by Ja'far ibn Sulayman. Al-Uqayli said: There is a problem with his hadith. Abu Omar said about it: It is not an argument, due to his poor memory and many mistakes. This hadith is not strong in terms of transmission, but some people have said it, and most of them are of the opinion that there is no specific time for that. And God is the Grantor of success.

Seventeenth: The Almighty's saying: Indeed, I will make you an Imam for the people. Imam means role model, and from it comes the word Imam for the thread of construction, and Imam for the road, because one leads in it for paths, i.e. one intends. So the meaning is: We have made you an Imam for the people, so that they may follow you in these qualities, and the righteous may take you as an example. So God Almighty made him an Imam for the people of His obedience, and for that reason the nations agreed to claim that he was a Hanif - and God knows best.

Eighteenth: The Almighty's saying: And from my descendants is a supplication to God the Almighty, meaning: O my descendants, O Lord, make. It was said: This is from him in the form of a question about them, meaning: And from my descendants, O Lord, what will it be? So God the Almighty informed him that among them was a disobedient person who did not deserve the imamate. Ibn Abbas said: Abraham, peace be upon him, asked to make an imam from his descendants, so God informed him that among his descendants was someone who would disobey, so He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.

Nineteenth: The Almighty's saying: And of my descendants. The root of dharīyah is a verbal noun from dhar, because God Almighty brought forth creation from the loins of Adam, peace be upon him, like dharī when He made them witness against themselves. It was said: It is taken from dharā' God li-khalaq yadhrū'uhum dharī'a He created them, and from it is dharīyah, which is the offspring of the two heavy things, except that the Arabs dropped the hamzah, and the plural is dharāri. Zayd ibn Thabit read dharīyah with a kasrah on the dhal and dharīyah with a fathah on the dhal. Ibn Jinni Abu al-Fath Uthman said: The root of this letter can have four meanings: The first is dharā', the second is dhar, the third is dharū, and the fourth is dharā. As for the hamzah, it is from dharā' God al-khalaq, and as for dhar, it is from the word dhar and its meaning, and that is because of what was mentioned in the hadith:

That creation was like an atom. As for the waw and the yaa, they are from the word dharuwat al-hubb and dharituhu, both of which are said together, and that is the saying of God the Almighty: Then it became chaff, scattered by the winds. This is for its softness and lightness, and that is also the case of the atom.

Al-Jawhari said: The wind scattered the dust and other things, scattering them and scattering them, dhawran and dhariya, meaning it blew them away. And from that is their saying: dharā al-nas al-hanita, and arzayt al-shay if you throw it, like you throw the grain for the crop. And he stabbed it and scattered it on the back of his animal, meaning he threw it. Al-Khalil said: We called it dhariya because God the Almighty scattered it on the earth as the zar scatters the seed. It was said: The root of dhariya is dharurah, but when doubling became frequent, one of the raa's was replaced with a yaa, so it became dharuwiyah, then the waw was assimilated into the yaa, so it became dhariya. What is meant by offspring here is the children in particular, and it may also refer to both fathers and sons, as in the Almighty's saying: And a sign for them is that We bore their offspring, meaning their fathers.

Al-Muwaffiyah twentieth: The Almighty's saying: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. There is a difference of opinion regarding what is meant by the covenant. Abu Salih narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that it is prophethood. As-Suddi and Mujahid said: Imamate. Qatadah: Faith. Ata': Mercy. Ad-Dahhak: The religion of God the Almighty. It was said: His covenant is His command: and the covenant is used to mean the command. God the Almighty said: Indeed, God has made a covenant with us, meaning He has commanded us. And He said: Did I not make a covenant with you, O children of Adam, that means did I not present to you the command to do so? If the covenant of God is His commands, then His saying: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers means that it is not permissible for them to be in the position of those who accept God's commands and do not abide by them, as will be explained later, God willing. Muammar narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding the Almighty's saying: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: God's covenant in the Hereafter does not include the wrongdoers. As for in this world, the wrongdoer has reached it, believed in it, ate, lived, and seen. Al-Zajjaj said: This is a good statement, meaning, the oppressors will not attain their hopes, meaning, I will not make them feel safe from My punishment. Saeed bin Jubair said: The oppressor here is the polytheist. Ibn Masoud and Talha bin Musarraf read My covenant is not attained by the oppressors with the oppressors in the nominative case. The rest read it with the accusative case. Hamzah, Hafs, and Ibn Muhaisin made the ya' in My covenant silent, while the rest opened it.

Twenty-first: A group of scholars used this verse as evidence that the one who is to be judged must be one of the people of justice, benevolence, and virtue, with the ability to do so. This is what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered them not to dispute authority with its people, based on what was previously said about it. As for the people of immorality, injustice, and oppression, they are not worthy of it, because God Almighty said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. For this reason, Ibn al-Zubayr and al-Hasan ibn Ali, may God be pleased with them, rebelled. The best of the people of Iraq and their scholars rebelled against al-Hajjaj, and the people of Medina expelled the Umayyads and rose up against them, and this led to the Harrah that Muslim ibn Uqbah inflicted on them.

Twenty-second: Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: Everyone who is unjust is not a prophet, nor a caliph, nor a ruler, nor a mufti, nor an imam of prayer, and what he narrates from the owner of the Shariah is not accepted from him, nor is his testimony accepted regarding rulings, except that he is not dismissed for his immorality until the people of authority and contract dismiss him. And what preceded from his rulings is in accordance with what is correct and is past and not invalidated. Malik stated this explicitly regarding the Khawarij and rebels that their rulings are not invalidated if they hit upon an aspect of ijtihad, and did not violate the consensus, or contradict the texts. We only said that because of the consensus of the Companions, and that is because the Khawarij came out in their days and it was not reported that the imams followed their rulings, nor did they invalidate any of them, nor did they re-take the zakat or establish the punishments that they had taken and established, so this indicates that if they hit upon an aspect of ijtihad, their rulings were not to be interfered with.

Twenty-third: Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: As for taking provisions from oppressive leaders, there are three cases for that: If everything in their hands was taken according to the Shariah, then it is permissible to take it, and the Companions and Followers took it from the hands of Al-Hajjaj and others. If it was mixed, lawful and unjust, as is the case in the hands of the rulers today, then piety is to leave it, and it is permissible for Al-Hajjaj to take it, and he is like a thief who has stolen money in his hand, and good, lawful money that a man has entrusted him with, and the thief comes to give it in charity to a person, so it is permissible for charity to be taken from him. It is permissible for the thief to give some of what he stole in charity, if it is not something known to be stolen. Likewise, if he sells or buys, the contract is valid and binding - although piety is to refrain from it - and that is because money is not forbidden in and of itself, but rather it is forbidden because of its sources. If what is in their hands is clearly unjust, then it is not permissible for it to be taken from their hands. Even if the money in their hands was usurped, but its owner and claimant are not known, it is as if it was found in the hands of thieves and highwaymen. It is placed in the treasury and its claimant is awaited according to the amount of effort. If it is not known, the imam spends it on the interests of the Muslims.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, pointing out the honor of His friend Abraham, peace be upon him, and that God Almighty made him an imam for the people to follow in monotheism when he carried out what God Almighty charged him with of commands and prohibitions. For this reason, He said: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain words meaning: And remember, O Muhammad, to these polytheists and the People of the Book who claim the religion of Abraham but are not upon it, but rather what he is upon is straight, you and those with you are believers, remind them of God's test of Abraham, meaning: His testing of him with what He charged him with of commands and prohibitions so he fulfilled them meaning: He fulfilled all of them as God Almighty said: And Abraham who fulfilled meaning: and in all that was prescribed for him, he acted upon it, may God's prayers be upon him. God Almighty said: "Indeed, Abraham was a nation obedient to God, inclining toward truth, and he was not of those who associate others with Him. * Grateful for His favors. He chose him and guided him to a straight path. * And We gave him good in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous. * Then We revealed to you, [O Muhammad], to follow the religion of Abraham." And God the Almighty said: "Say: 'Indeed, my Lord has guided me to a straight path, a right religion, the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists. '" And God the Almighty said: "Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was inclining toward truth, a Muslim [submitting to God], and he was not of the polytheists. Indeed, the people most deserving of Abraham are those who followed him and this Prophet and those who believe. And God is the ally of the believers." And God the Almighty said: with words meaning: with laws, commands, and prohibitions. Words are used to mean predestined words, such as God the Almighty's statement about Mary, peace be upon her: And she believed in the words of her Lord and His scriptures and was among the devout. And they are used to mean legal words, such as God the Almighty's statement: And the word of your Lord was fulfilled in truth and justice. That is, His legal words, and they are either a statement of truth, or a request for justice if they were a command or a prohibition. And from that is this noble verse: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, and he fulfilled them, meaning: he carried them out. He said: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, meaning: a reward for what he did, as he carried out. By giving orders and leaving prohibitions, God made him a role model for people, and an imam to be followed and emulated.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the specific words with which God tested Abraham, peace be upon him. Narrations were narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Abd al-Razzaq said, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada, that Ibn Abbas said: God tested him with rituals. Abu Ishaq al-Subai'i narrated it likewise on the authority of al-Tamimi on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Abdul Razzaq also said, Muammar told us on the authority of Ibn Tawus on the authority of his father on the authority of Ibn Abbas, 'And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words,' he said: He tested him with purity, five for the head and five for the body. On the head, trimming the moustache, rinsing the mouth, inhaling water from the nose, using the siwak, and parting the hair. On the body, trimming the nails, shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, plucking the armpit hair, and washing traces of feces and urine with water. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to this was narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Mujahid, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Nakha'i, Abu Salih, and Abu Al-Jild. I say: Close to this is what was established in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Ten are from the fitrah: trimming the moustache, letting the beard grow, using the siwak, inhaling water from the nose, trimming the nails, washing the knuckles, plucking the armpit hair, shaving the pubic hair, and using water to clean the hair. I forgot the tenth, unless it was rinsing the mouth." Waki' said: The reduction of water means istinja'. In the two Sahihs, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: "The fitrah is five: circumcision, shaving the pubic hair, trimming the moustache, clipping the nails, and plucking the armpit hair." And its wording is from Muslim. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told me, on the authority of Ibn Hubayrah, on the authority of Hanash ibn Abdullah al-San'ani, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he used to say in his interpretation of this verse: And when his Lord tried Abraham with commands, and he fulfilled them, he said: Ten are six for humans and four for the sacred places. As for those for humans, they are shaving the pubic hair, plucking the armpit hair, and circumcision. Ibn Hubayrah used to say: These three are one, as well as trimming the nails, trimming the moustache, using the siwak, and washing on Friday. And the four that are for the sacred places: Tawaf, running between Safa and Marwah, stoning the Jamarat, and Ifadah. Dawud bin Abi Hind said on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: No one was tested with this religion and fulfilled it completely except Abraham. God Almighty said: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them. I said to him: What are the commands that God tested Abraham with and he fulfilled them? He said: Islam is thirty arrows, ten of which are verses in Bara'ah: The repentant, the worshippers to the end of the verse, and ten verses at the beginning of Surah: The believers have succeeded, and A questioner asked about a punishment to come, and ten verses in al-Ahzab 33: Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women to the end of the verse. So he completed them all, so Bara'ah was written for him. God said: And Abraham who fulfilled This is how Al-Hakim, Abu Ja'far Ibn Jarir, and Abu Muhammad Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it with their chains of transmission to Dawud Ibn Abi Hind. This is the wording of Ibn Abi Hatim. Muhammad Ibn Ishaq said on the authority of Muhammad Ibn Abi Muhammad on the authority of Sa'id or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The words with which God tested Abraham and he completed them: Separation from his people for the sake of God when he was commanded to leave them, and his argument with Nimrod for the sake of God when he made him stand up to the danger of the matter in which he disagreed, and his patience in being thrown into the fire to burn him for the sake of God despite the horror of that from their matter, and the emigration after that from his homeland and country for the sake of God when he was commanded to leave. About them and what he was commanded to do of hospitality and patience with it with himself and his money, and what he was afflicted with of slaughtering his son when he was commanded to slaughter him, and when he went through with that from God and made him sincere in the affliction, God said to him: Submit, he said I submit to the Lord of the worlds despite what had happened of disagreement and separation from the people. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja informed us, Ismail bin Aliyah informed us, on the authority of Abu Raja, on the authority of Al-Hasan, meaning Al-Basri, And when his Lord tested Abraham with commands, and he fulfilled them, he said: He tested him with a star, so He was pleased with him, and He tested him with the moon, so He was pleased with him, and He tested him with the sun, so He was pleased with him, and He tested him with the migration, so He was pleased with him, and He tested him with circumcision, so He was pleased with him, and He tested him with his son, so He was pleased with him. Ibn Jarir said: Bishr bin Muadh informed us, Yazid bin Zari' informed us, Saeed informed us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: Al-Hasan used to say: By God, He tested him with a matter, so he was patient with it. He tested him with the star, the sun, and the moon, so he did well in that and knew that his Lord is eternal and will not cease, so he turned his face toward He who created the heavens and the earth, inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists. Then He tested him with the migration, so he left his country and his people until he reached Ash-Sham, migrating to God, then He tested him with the fire before the migration, so he was patient. And he tested him with the slaughter of his son and circumcision, so he was patient with that. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Ma'mar informed us from someone who heard al-Hasan say in his saying: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: God tested him with the slaughter of his son and with the fire and with the planet and the sun and the moon. And Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir informed us, Salm ibn Qutaybah informed us, Abu Hilal informed us from al-Hasan: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: He tested him with the planet and the sun and the moon, so he found him patient. And al-'Awfi said in his interpretation from Ibn 'Abbas: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, so he fulfilled them, among them: He said, 'Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people,' and among them: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, and among them are the verses concerning the ritual and the station that was made for Abraham and the provision that was provided to the inhabitants of the House, and Muhammad was sent in their religion. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: al-Hasan ibn Muhammad ibn al-Sabah informed us, Shababah informed us from Warqa' from Ibn Abi Najih on the authority of Mujahid, in the words of God Almighty: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, God said to Abraham: I am testing you with a matter, so what is it? He said: Will you make me a leader for the people? He said: Yes. He said: And from my descendants? He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. He said: Will you make the House a place of return for the people? He said: Yes. He said: And security? He said: Yes. He said: And make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You? He said: Yes. He said: And provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God? He said: Yes, Ibn Nujayh said: I heard it from Ikrimah, so I presented it to Mujahid and he did not deny it. This is how Ibn Jarir narrated it from other sources on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh on the authority of Mujahid. Sufyan al-Thawri said on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh on the authority of Mujahid, And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, he said: He was tested with the verses that came after it, Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people. He said: And of my descendants? He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain commands, he said: The words, Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and His statement, And when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety, and His statement, And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer, and His statement, And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael, the verse, and His statement, And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House and Ishmael, the verse, he said: So all of that is from the words with which Abraham was tested. Al-Suddi said: The words With which his Lord tested Abraham: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You." Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from among themselves. Al-Qurtubi said: In Al-Muwatta' and others, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed that he heard Saeed bin Al-Musayyab say: Abraham, peace be upon him, was the first to be circumcised, the first to host guests, the first to clip his nails, the first to trim his moustache, and the first to grow gray. When he saw the gray hair, he said: What is this? He said: Dignity. He said: O Lord, increase my dignity. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim on the authority of his father who said: The first person to preach from the pulpit was Ibrahim, peace be upon him. Someone else said: The first person to shed the mail, the first to strike with the sword, the first to use a miswak, the first to clean oneself with water, and the first to wear trousers. It was narrated on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Jabal who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If I take a pulpit, my father Ibrahim took it, and if I take a staff, my father Ibrahim took it. I said: This is a hadith that is not proven, and God knows best. Then Al-Qurtubi began to speak about the legal rulings related to these things.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, "Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people." He said, "And of my descendants?" He said, "My covenant does not include the wrongdoers."

Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said, in sum Maryam 19: It is possible that what is meant by the words is all of what was mentioned, and it is possible that it is some of that, and it is not permissible to be certain that any of them is specifically meant except by a hadith or consensus. He said: There is no authentic report on that, transmitted by one person or transmitted by a group, which must be accepted. He said: However, two reports have been narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with a similar meaning. One of them is what Abu Kurayb narrated to us. Shadin bin Sa'd narrated to us. Zaban bin Fa'id narrated to me on the authority of Sahl bin Mu'adh bin Anas, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: "Shall I not tell you why God called Abraham His friend, the one who fulfilled? Because he used to say every morning and every evening: 'Glory be to God when you reach the evening and when you reach the morning. To Him be praise in the heavens and the earth and in the evening and when you reach the noonday.'" He said: The other is what Abu Kurayb narrated to us. Al-Hasan narrated to us on the authority of 'Atiyyah. Isra'il narrated to us on the authority of Ja'far bin al-Zubayr on the authority of al-Qasim on the authority of Abu Umamah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And Abraham who fulfilled. He said: Do you know what he fulfilled? They said: God and His Messenger know best. He said: And in the work of his day, four rak'ahs during the day. Adam narrated it in his interpretation on the authority of Hammad bin Salamah and 'Abd bin Hamid on the authority of Yunus bin Muhammad on the authority of Hammad bin Salamah on the authority of Ja'far ibn al-Zubayr narrated it, then Ibn Jarir began to weaken these two hadiths, and it is as he said: It is not permissible to narrate them except by clarifying their weakness, and their weakness is from many aspects, because each of the two chains of transmission includes more than one weak narrator, along with what is in the text of the hadith that indicates its weakness, and God knows best. Then Ibn Jarir said: If someone were to say: What Mujahid, Abu Salih, and al-Rabi' ibn Anas said is more correct than what others said, it would be a school of thought, because his statement: Indeed, I will make you an imam for the people and his statement: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, saying, 'Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf' and the rest of the verses that are similar to that are like the statement of the words that God mentioned that He tested Abraham with, I say: What he said firstly, that the words include all that was mentioned, is stronger than what he permitted from the statement of Mujahid and those who said the like of it, because the context indicates something other than what they said, and God knows best.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, "Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people." He said, "And of my descendants?" He said, "My covenant does not include the wrongdoers."

And his saying: And of my descendants, he said: My covenant shall not include the wrongdoers. When God made Abraham an Imam, he asked God that the Imams after him be from his descendants, and He responded to that and informed him that there would be wrongdoers from his descendants and that God's covenant would not include them and they would not be Imams, so they would not be followed. The evidence that his request was responded to is the saying of God the Almighty in Surat al-Ankabut 29:And We made among his descendants prophethood and the Book. So every prophet that God sent, and every book that God revealed after Abraham, was in his descendants, may God's prayers and peace be upon him. As for the saying of God the Almighty: He said, 'My covenant shall not include the wrongdoers,' they differed on that. Khasif said on the authority of Mujahid regarding His saying: He said, 'My covenant shall not include the wrongdoers,' he said: There will be wrongdoers among your descendants. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: He said, 'My covenant shall not include the wrongdoers,' he said: I will not have an unjust Imam. In another narration: I will not make an unjust Imam to be followed. Sufyan said on the authority of Mansur on the authority of Mujahid regarding the words of God the Almighty: "He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers," he said: There will be no unjust leader to be followed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Malik bin Ismail told us, Sharik told us on the authority of Mansur on the authority of Mujahid regarding his words: And of my descendants, he said: As for whoever among them is righteous, I will make him an imam to be followed, but as for whoever is unjust, no, not even a blessing. Saeed bin Jubair said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, what is meant by it is the polytheist, there will be no unjust imam, he says there will be no polytheist imam. Ibn Jurayj said on the authority of Ata', he said: Indeed, I will make you an imam for the people, he said: And of my descendants, so he refused to make an unjust imam from his descendants. I said to Ata', what was his covenant? He said his command, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Amr bin Thawr Al-Qaysari informed us in what he wrote to me, Al-Faryabi informed us, Ismail informed us, Samak bin Harb informed us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: God said to Abraham, I will make you an imam for the people. He said, And from my descendants? He refused to do so, then He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, He said, "And from my descendants?" He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. He informs him that there will be among his descendants a wrongdoer who will not be entitled to his covenant and he should not be given any of his command, even if he is from the descendants of his friend, and a doer of good in whom his call will be carried out and what he wanted from his request will be achieved. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, meaning: There is no covenant for a wrongdoer upon you in his wrongdoing that you obey him in it. Ibn Jarir said, Ishaq told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abdullah told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Muslim al-Awar, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, meaning, there is no covenant for the wrongdoers, and if you make a covenant with him, he will break it. Something similar was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ata', and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. Al-Thawri said on the authority of Harun ibn Antara, on the authority of his father, who said, There is no covenant for the wrongdoer. Abd al-Razzaq said, Muammar told us on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said, "The covenant of God in the Hereafter does not include the wrongdoers. As for this world, the wrongdoer has reached it, so he believed in it, ate, and lived." Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, Ata', and Ikrimah said the same. Al-Rabi' ibn Anas said, The covenant of God that He has made with His servants is His religion, meaning, His religion does not include the wrongdoers. Do you not see that He said, And We blessed him and Isaac, and among their descendants are those who do good and those who are clearly wrongdoers to themselves. He says, Not all of your descendants, O Ibrahim, are on the truth. This was also narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, Ata', and Muqatil bin Hayyan. Juwaybir said on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, No enemy of Mine who disobeys Me will attain My obedience, and I do not grant it to anyone except a friend who obeys Me. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abdul Rahman bin Muhammad bin Hamid told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah bin Saeed Al-Asadi told us, Salim bin Saeed Al-Damaghani told us, Wake' told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Saad bin Ubaidah, on the authority of Abu Abdul Rahman Al-Sulami, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: My covenant does not include the oppressors, meaning there is no obedience except in what is right. Al-Suddi said: My covenant does not include the oppressors, meaning my covenant is my prophethood. These are the statements of the commentators of the Salaf regarding this verse, as transmitted by Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim, may God Almighty have mercy on them. Ibn Jarir chose that this verse, although it is clear in the report that God's covenant of leadership does not include an oppressor, contains information from God to Abraham, peace be upon him, that there will be among your descendants those who are oppressors to themselves, as mentioned previously by Mujahid and others. And God knows best. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad Al-Maliki said: The oppressor is not fit to be a caliph, a ruler, a mufti, a witness, or a narrator.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 124- And when He tested Testing: the examination and choice: that is, He tested him with what He commanded him to do, and Ibrahim means in Syriac a merciful father, as Al-Mawardi said. Ibn Atiyah said: And its meaning in Arabic is that. Al-Suhayli said: And agreement often occurs between Syriac and Arabic. The author of Al-Kashshaf mentioned here a question about the pronoun referring back to Ibrahim, even though his rank is later, and he answered it by saying that it had come forward verbally so it referred back to him, and the matter in this is clearer than to be occupied with mentioning it, or for questions to be asked in such a case or for the face of the paper to be blackened by explaining it. His saying: With words the scholars differed in identifying them. It was said: They are the laws of Islam, and it was said: The slaughter of his son, and it was said: The performance of the message, and it was said: They are the characteristics of the fitrah, and it was said: They are His saying: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and it was said: With purity as will be explained. Al-Zajjaj said: These statements are not contradictory, because all of this was what Abraham was tested with. The apparent structure of the Qur'an is that the words are His saying: "He said: I will make you" and what follows it, and that is an explanation of the words, and some of the predecessors will come with what agrees with that, and others with what contradicts it. Based on this, His saying: "He said: I will make you" is a new statement as if it were what he said to him. Ibn Jarir said, in summary, that it is possible that the words mean all of that, and it is possible that it is some of that, and it is not possible to be certain that any of them is specifically meant except by a hadith or consensus, and there is no authentic report on that by a single narration or a group narration that must be accepted. Then he said: If someone were to say: What Mujahid, Abu Salih, and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas said is more correct: meaning that the words are His saying: Indeed, I will make you an imam for the people and His saying: And We enjoined upon Abraham and what follows. Ibn Kathir preferred that they include all of what was mentioned, and the clarification of what is true will come after citing what was reported from the righteous predecessors. And His saying: So he completed them means he performed them in the most perfect manner, and complied in the most perfect manner. The imam is that which is followed, and from this the path is called an imam and the building is called an imam, because it is followed by that: meaning the traveler is guided by it, and since the imam is the role model for the people because they follow him and are guided by his guidance, this word was applied to him. His saying: And from my descendants may be a supplication from Abraham, meaning: And make from my descendants leaders. It may be that this was from Abraham with the intention of asking, even if it was not in its form: Meaning: And from my descendants, what will be, O Lord? So he informed him that among them are disobedient and unjust, and that they are not fit for that and will not carry it out and the covenant of God, the Most High, will not reach them. The descendants are taken from the atom, because God brought forth the creation from the back of Adam when he made them witness against themselves like the atom. It was said: It is taken from God scattered the creation, He scatters them when He created them. And in the Noble Book: So it became chaff, scattered by the winds. It was said in As-Sahih: The wind scattered the clouds and other things, scattering them and scattering them, scattering and scattering: meaning it blew them away. Al-Khalil said: They were called descendants because God, the Most High, scattered them on the earth as a sower scatters the seed. There is a difference of opinion regarding the meaning of the covenant. Some say it is the Imamate, others say it is the Prophethood, others say it is the covenant of God, and others say it is security from the punishment of the Hereafter. Al-Zajjaj preferred it, but the first is more apparent as indicated by the context. A group of scholars have used this verse as evidence that the Imam must be just and act according to the Shariah as stated, because if he deviates from that, he is an oppressor. It is possible to look at what the name of the covenant applies to and what the addition indicates of generality, so that it includes all of that based on the generality of the wording without looking at the reason or the context. It is used as evidence for the condition of being free from the description of oppression in everyone who is related to religious matters. Ibn Jarir chose that this verse, although it is clear in the report that the covenant of God for the Imamate will not be attained by an oppressor, contains information from God to Abraham the Friend that there will be among his descendants those who are oppressors to themselves. End quote. It is clear from you that his words are useless. It is better to say: This report is in the meaning of a command to His servants not to entrust the affairs of the Shariah to an oppressor. We only said: It is in the meaning of a command because His report, the Most High, cannot be broken. And we know that his era of leadership and other things has been overtaken by many oppressors.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

124. The Almighty said: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them. Ibn Amir read Abraham with an alif in most places, and it is a foreign name, and therefore it is not in the genitive case. He is Ibrahim bin Tarakh bin Nakhur, and he was born in Susa in the land of Ahwaz, and it was said Babylon, and it was said: Kufi, and it was said: [Lashkar], and it was said Harran, and his father moved him to the land of Babylon, the land of Nimrod bin Canaan, and the meaning of the test is the test, examination, and command, and God tests the servants not to know their conditions with the test, because He knows them, but to know the servants' conditions so that they know each other.

They differed about the words that God tested Abraham, peace be upon him, with. Ikrimah and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them, said: They are thirty words that He called the laws of Islam, and no one was tested with them and performed them all except Abraham, so he wrote for him the innocence. God Almighty said: And Abraham who fulfilled 37-An-Najm. Ten in the innocence those who repent and worship to the end, and ten in the confederates Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women, and ten in Surat Al-Mu'minun in His statement: The believers have succeeded the verses, and His statement except those who pray in the questioner asked.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:124

And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said, "Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people." He said, "And of my descendants?" He said, "My covenant does not include the wrongdoers."

Tawus said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both: God tested him with ten things, which are: The fitrah is five for the head: trimming the moustache, rinsing the mouth, inhaling water into the nose, using the siwak, and parting the hair, and five for the body: trimming the nails, plucking the armpit hair, shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, and cleaning oneself with water.

And in the hadith: ((That Abraham, peace be upon him, was the first to trim the moustache, the first to be circumcised, the first to clip the nails, and the first to see gray hair. When he saw it, he said: O Lord, what is this? He [Samah] said: Dignity. He said: O Lord, increase my dignity.)) Mujahid said: They are the verses that come after it in the words of God Almighty: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people 124-Al-Baqarah to the end of the story. Al-Rabi' and Qatada said: The rituals of Hajj. Al-Hasan said: God tested him with seven things: with the planets, the moon, and the sun, so he looked well at them and knew that his Lord is eternal and will not disappear, and with the fire, so he was patient with it, and with the migration and with the sacrifice of his son and with circumcision, so he was patient with it. Saeed bin Jubair said: It is the saying of Abraham and Ishmael when they were raising the Kaaba: Our Lord, accept from us 127-Al-Baqarah the verse, so they raised it with Glory be to God, and praise be to God, and there is no god but God [and God is Great]. Yaman bin Rabab said: They are the arguments of his people. God Almighty said: And an argument His people to the Almighty's saying - And that was Our argument which We gave to Abraham 83-Al-An'am. It was said that it is His saying: He who created me and He guides me 78-Ash-Shu'ara' to the end of the verses.

He completed them. Qatada said: He performed them. Ad-Dahhak said: He performed them. And he said: [Nu'man] acted upon them.

God the Almighty said: "He said: 'I will make you a leader for mankind' to be followed in goodness." He said: Abraham "And from my descendants" meaning from my children also, so make from them leaders to be followed in goodness." He said: God the Almighty "My covenant does not reach" does not affect the wrongdoers. Hamzah and Hafs read it with a sukoon on the ya' and the rest read it with a fatha, meaning whoever among them is a wrongdoer, it does not affect him. Ata' bin Abi Rabah said: My covenant is My mercy. Al-Suddi said: My prophethood. It was said: It is the imamate. Mujahid said: It is not permissible for an oppressor to be obeyed in his oppression. The meaning of the verse is: What I have entrusted to you of prophethood and imamate will not be attained by whoever among your children is a wrongdoer. It was said: By the covenant he meant security from the Fire, and by the wrongdoer is the polytheist, as God the Almighty said: Those who believe and do not mix their belief with wrongdoing, those will have security. 82-Al-An'am.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

124- And when his Lord tested Abraham with words

He charged him with His commands and intentions, and the test in origin is the assignment of a difficult matter of affliction, but since it necessitates testing for those who are ignorant of the consequences, it was thought that they were synonymous, and the pronoun refers to Abraham, and it is good because it comes first in wording even if it comes after in rank, because the condition is one of the two precedences, and words may be applied to meanings, so they were interpreted as the thirty praiseworthy qualities mentioned in the Almighty's saying: The repentant, the worshippers and the Almighty's saying: Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women to the end of the verse, and His saying: The believers have succeeded to His saying: Those are the inheritors as they were interpreted in His saying: Then Adam received from his Lord words and the ten that are from His Sunnahs, and the rituals of Hajj, and the planets, and the two moons, and circumcision, and the slaughter of a child, and the fire, and the migration. However, the Almighty treated him with them as one who is tested by them and by what is included in the verses that follow them. And Abraham, his Lord, was read as if he called upon his Lord with words such as, Show me how You give life to the dead. "Make this a secure city," to see if He would answer him. Ibn Amir read Abraham with an alif for all of what is in this surah. So he completed them, so he performed them completely and fulfilled them as they should be, because the Almighty said, And Abraham, who fulfilled. In the last reading, the pronoun refers to his Lord, meaning He gave him everything he called upon. He said, 'Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people.' This is a resumption if it is implied, as it is as if it was said: So what did his Lord say when he completed them, so he was answered with that? Or an explanation of his saying, He was tested, so the words are what he mentioned about the Imamate, purifying the House, raising its foundations, and Islam. If you put it in the accusative case, it is said that the whole is a sentence conjoined to what preceded it, or a maker from ja'ala which has two objects, and the Imam is the name of the one who is followed and his Imamate is general and eternal, since no prophet was sent after him except that he was from his descendants who were commanded to follow him. He said, And from my descendants is conjoined with the kaf, meaning and some of my descendants, as you say, And Zayd, in response to I will honor you". The descendants are the offspring of a man, so it is verbal or verbal, and its second ra was changed to a ya as in "I have been given". From the dhar, meaning to separate, or verbal or verbal, and its hamza was changed from the dhartha, meaning to create. And my descendants were read with the kasra, and this is a language. "He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers" is an answer to his request, and a warning that there may be oppressors from his descendants, and that they will not attain the Imamate because it is a trust from God Almighty and a covenant, and the oppressor is not entitled to it, and only the righteous and pious among them attain it. It is evidence of the infallibility of the prophets from major sins before the mission, and that the immoral person is not fit for leadership. It was read as the oppressors and the meaning is the same, since whatever has befallen you, you have attained.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

Surat al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when We made the House the Kaaba a resort for mankind a place of return to which they return from every side and a place of security a place of security for them from injustice and raids occurring elsewhere, a man would meet his father's killer in it and not provoke him And take O people from the standing place of Abraham it is the stone on which he stood when building the House a place of prayer a place of prayer by praying behind it the two rak'ahs of circumambulation, and in a reading with the opening of the kha' it is the report And We charged Abraham and Ishmael We commanded them to that is, to purify My House from idols for those who perform Tawaf and those who stay there residing in it and those who bow and prostrate the plural of bowing and prostrating are the worshippers

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Omar, who said: I agreed with my Lord in three matters. I said: O Messenger of God, if you take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer. So the verse: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer was revealed. And I said: O Messenger of God, your women are visited by the righteous and the wicked, so why don't you command them to cover themselves? So the verse of the veil was revealed. And the wives of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gathered around him in jealousy, so I said to them: Perhaps his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in exchange wives better than you. So the verse was revealed. It has many chains of transmission, including what Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Jabir, who said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, performed the circumambulation, Omar said to him: This is the station of our father Abraham. He said: Yes. He said: Should we not take it as a place of prayer? So God revealed: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer.

Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Amr bin Maymun on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab

He passed by the Station of Abraham and said, O

Messenger of God, shall we not stand in the place of the friend of our Lord? He said, Yes. He said, Should we not take it? It was not long before the verse was revealed, And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer. The apparent meaning of this and what preceded it is that the verse was revealed during the Farewell Pilgrimage.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be glorified, meant by His saying: And when He tested, and when He put to the test.

It is said: I tested so-and-so, I tested him with a test. And from this is the saying of God Almighty: And test the orphans (An-Nisa': 6), meaning: test them.

God Almighty's test of Abraham was a test of the duties He imposed on him and the commands He commanded him to do. These are the words He revealed to him and charged him to act upon, as a test and trial from Him.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the description of the words with which God tested Abraham, His Prophet and Friend, may God's prayers be upon him.

Some of them said: They are the laws of Islam, and they are thirty shares.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Abd al-A'la told us, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, he said: Ibn Abbas said: No one was tested with this religion and established it except Abraham. God tested him with certain commands, and he fulfilled them. He said: So God wrote for him the declaration of innocence and said: And Abraham who fulfilled (al-Najm 53:37). He said: Ten of them are in Al-Ahzab, ten of them are in Al-Bara'ah, and ten of them are in Al-Mu'minin. And a questioner asked and said: This Islam is thirty arrows.

Ishaq bin Shaheen told us, Khalid Al-Tahan told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: No one was tested with this religion and carried out all of it except Abraham. He was tested with Islam and completed it, so God wrote for him innocence and said: And Abraham who fulfilled (al-Najm 53:37). He mentioned ten in innocence 112, and said: Those who repent, those who worship, those who praise to the end of the verse, and ten in Al-Ahzab 35: Indeed, the Muslim men and women, and ten in Surat Al-Mu'minun 7-9 to His saying: And those who maintain their prayers, and ten in Sa'il Sa'il 221-34: And those who maintain their prayers.

Abdullah bin Ahmed bin Shabwaih told us, Ali bin Al-Hassan told us, Kharijah bin Musab told us, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Islam is thirty arrows, and no one was tested with this religion and established it except Abraham. God said: And Abraham who fulfilled, so God wrote for him a release from the Fire.

Others said: They are ten characteristics of the Sunnah of Islam.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, he said: God tested him with purification, five for the head and five for the body. For the head: trimming the moustache, rinsing the mouth, inhaling water from the nose, using the siwak, and parting the hair. And for the body: trimming the nails, shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, plucking the armpit hair, and washing away traces of feces and urine with water.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of al-Hakam ibn Aban, on the authority of al-Qasim ibn Abi Bazza, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly, and he did not mention the effect of urine.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, Sulayman told us, Abu Hilal told us, Qatada told us regarding His statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, he said: He tested him with circumcision, shaving the pubic hair, washing the front and back passages, using the siwak, trimming the moustache, clipping the nails, and plucking the armpit hair. Abu Hilal said: And I forgot one characteristic.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Matar, on the authority of Abu al-Jild, who said: Abraham was tested with ten things, which are Sunnah for humans: sniffing water in the nose, trimming the moustache, using the siwak, plucking the armpit hair, cutting the nails, washing the knuckles, circumcision, shaving the pubic hair, and washing the anus and vulva.

Some of them said: Rather, the words with which he was afflicted were ten, some of them in purifying the body, and some of them in the rituals of Hajj.

Mention of who said that:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Harb told us, he said, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Ibn Hubayrah, on the authority of Hanash, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with commands, and he fulfilled them, he said: Six for humans, and four for the sacred places. Those for humans: shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, plucking the armpit hair, clipping the nails, trimming the moustache, and bathing on Friday. And four for the sacred places: Tawaf, running between Safa and Marwa, stoning the Jamarat, and Ifadah.

Others said: Rather, it is: I will make you an imam for the people, in the rituals of Hajj.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Salih, regarding his statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, among them: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and the verses of ritual worship.

Abu Al-Sa'ib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Salih, the freed slave of Umm Hani', regarding his statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: Among them was Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and among them were the verses of ritual worship: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House (al-Baqarah 2:127-128).

Muhammad ibn Amr told us, Abu Asim told us, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the words of God: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, God said to Abraham: I am testing you with a matter, so what is it? He said: Make me a leader for the people. He said: Yes. He said: And of my descendants. He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. He said: Make the House for the people. He said: Yes. He said: And security. He said: Yes. He said: And make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. He said: Yes. He said: And show us our rites and accept our repentance. He said: Yes. He said: And make this city [one] of security. He said: Yes. He said: And provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes. He said: Yes.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, he told him about it on the authority of Ikrimah, so I showed it to Mujahid and he did not reject it.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, something similar. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid and Ikrimah agreed on this statement together.

Sufyan told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, he said: He was tested with the verses that came after it: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people. He said: And of my descendants? He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi`, regarding His statement: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, the words: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and His statement: And when We made the House a place of assembly for the people, and His statement: And take, [O Muhammad], the standing place of Abraham as a place of prayer, and His statement: And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael, and His statement: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, and the verse. He said: All of these are among the words with which Abraham was tested.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn `Abbas, regarding his statement: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain commands, and he fulfilled them. Among them was: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people. Among them was: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House. Among them were the verses concerning the ritual and the station that was made for Abraham, and the provision that was provided to the inhabitants of the House, and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in their descendants, peace be upon them.

Others said: Rather, this is a specific ritual of Hajj.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Salim bin Qutaybah told us, he said, Umar bin Nabhan told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: The rituals of Hajj.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: Ibn Abbas used to say regarding His statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: The rituals.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said, Ibn Abbas said: He tested him with the rituals.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar bin Al-Hassan, who said: Ibn Abi Jaafar narrated to us, on the authority of his father, who said: It was reported to us on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The words with which Abraham was tested were the rituals.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Tamimi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: The rituals of Hajj.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Tamimi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, he said: Among them were the rituals of Hajj. Others said: They are matters, among them circumcision.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Salim bin Qutaybah told us, on the authority of Yunus bin Abi Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: Among them was circumcision.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Yunus bin Abi Ishaq told us, I heard Al-Sha'bi say, and he mentioned something similar.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad told us,

Yunus bin Abi Ishaq said, I heard Al-Sha'bi and Abu Ishaq asked him about the statement of God: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, he said: Among them was circumcision, O Abu Ishaq.

Others said: Rather, those are the six characteristics: the planet, the moon, the sun, the fire, the migration, and circumcision, with which he was afflicted and he was patient with them.

Who said that?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Abu Raja', he said: I said to Al-Hasan: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them. He tested him with a star, and He was pleased with him. He tested him with the moon, and He was pleased with him. He tested him with the sun, and He was pleased with him. He tested him with fire, and He was pleased with him. He tested him with emigration, and He tested him with circumcision.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid bin Zari' narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: Al-Hasan used to say: Yes, by God, He tested him with a matter and he was patient with it: He tested him with the planets, the sun and the moon, and he did well in that, and he knew that his Lord is eternal and does not cease, so he turned his face toward He who created the heavens and the earth, inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists. Then He tested him with the migration, so he left his country and his people until he reached the Levant, migrating to God. Then He tested him with the fire before the migration, so he was patient with that, so God tested him with the slaughter of his son and circumcision, so he was patient with that.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of someone who heard Al-Hasan say regarding His statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: God tested him with the slaughter of his son, with fire, with the star, the sun, and the moon.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Salim bin Qutaybah told us, he said, Abu Hilal told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain words, he said: He tested him with the stars, the sun, and the moon, and He found him patient.

Others said:

Musa bin Harun narrated to us, he said: Amr bin Hammad narrated to us, he said: Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: The words with which Abraham was tested by his Lord: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Accepting of repentance, the Merciful. Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from themselves" (al-Baqarah 2:127-129).

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that God, the Almighty, informed His servants that He tested His friend Abraham with words that He revealed to him, and ordered him to act upon them, and he fulfilled them, as God, the Most High, informed us that he did. It is possible that those words are all of what we mentioned in the interpretation of the words, and it is possible that they are some of it. Because Abraham, may God's prayers be upon him, was tested in what has reached us with all of that, so he acted upon it, and carried out in it the obedience of God and His command that was obligatory upon him in it. Since that is the case, it is not permissible for anyone to say: God meant by the words with which He tested Abraham something specific of that and not something else, nor did He mean all of that, except with an argument that must be accepted: from a report from the Messenger, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, or a consensus of the argument. There is no authentic report in any of that from the Messenger through a single narration, nor from a group whose narration must be accepted.

However, two reports were narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with a similar meaning to that. If they were proven, or one of them, then the interpretation of that would be correct. One of them is what:

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, saying: Rashdin bin Saad narrated to us, saying: Zaban bin Fa'id narrated to me, on the authority of Sahl bin Mu'adh bin Anas, on the authority of his father, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: Shall I not tell you why God called Abraham, His friend, the one who fulfilled? (al-Najm 53:37) Because he used to say every morning and every evening: So glory be to God when you reach the evening and when you reach the morning (al-Rum 30:17-18) until he concluded the verse.

The other one is:

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Al-Hasan bin Atiyah told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Ja'far bin

Al-Zubayr, on the authority of Al-Qasim, on the authority of Abu Umamah, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'And Abraham who fulfilled' (al-Najm 53:37). He said: Do you know what he fulfilled? They said: God and His Messenger know best. He said: And in the work of his day, four rak'ahs during the day."

Abu Ja'far said: If the report of Sahl ibn Mu'adh from his father was authentic in its chain of transmission, it would be clear that the words with which Abraham was tested and he performed them were his saying every morning and evening: "So glory be to God when you reach the evening and when you rise in the morning. To Him is praise in the heavens and the earth and in the evening and when you reach the noon" Ar-Rum 30:17-18, or if the report of Abu Umamah was transmitted by a trustworthy person, it would be known that the words with which Abraham was inspired and he was tested and he performed them were: to pray four rak'ahs every day. However, there is doubt in the chains of transmission of both reports.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement about the meaning of the words that God informed us that He tested Abraham with is what we explained earlier. If someone were to say about that: What Mujahid, Abu Salih, and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas said is more correct than what others said, that would be a doctrine. Because His statement: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and His statement: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, saying, 'Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf,' and all the other verses that are similar to that, are like an explanation of the words that God mentioned that He tested Abraham with.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then complete them.

Abu Ja'far said: What God Almighty means by His statement, and he completed them, is that Abraham completed the words. His completion of them means his perfecting them by doing for God what He has obligated him to do in them, which is the fulfillment of which God Almighty said: And Abraham who fulfilled (al-Najm 53:37), meaning he fulfilled what was entrusted to him, with the words, with what He commanded him to do of His obligations and his trials in them, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then complete them, meaning, perform them.

Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Then complete them, meaning he acted upon them and completed them.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': So he completed them, meaning he acted upon them and completed them.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: He said, 'Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people.'

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: Indeed, I will make you an imam for the people, is that God said: O Abraham, I will make you an imam for the people, to be followed and emulated, just as:

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': I will make you an imam for the people, so that they may follow him and emulate him.

It is said: I led the people in prayer, so I lead them in prayer, if I am their imam.

Rather, God Almighty meant by His saying to Abraham: I will make you a leader for the people, that I will make you a leader for those who come after you from among the people of faith in Me and My messengers, you will precede them, they will follow your guidance, and they will follow your example that you act upon, by My command to you and My revelation to you.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "He said: And of my descendants."

Abu Ja'far said: By that, He, the Most High, meant: When God raised his status and honored him, He informed him of what He would do with him, by making him an imam in good deeds for those in his time, and for those who came after him from his descendants and all other people besides them, who would be guided by his guidance and imitate his actions and morals: O Lord, and from my descendants, make imams to be imitated, like the one You made me an imam to be followed and imitated. A question that Abraham asked his Lord, as:

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', who said: Ibrahim said: And from my descendants, meaning: So make from my descendants someone who will be followed and emulated.

Some people have claimed that Abraham's statement, And of my descendants, was a request from his Lord to his descendants that they adhere to his covenant and religion, as He said, And keep me and my sons away from worshipping idols (Ibrahim 14:35). So God, the Most High, informed us that among his descendants would be the oppressors who opposed him in his religion, by saying, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.

The apparent meaning of the revelation indicates something other than what the author of this article said. Because the statement of Abraham, peace be upon him: And from my descendants, follows the statement of God Almighty: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people. It is known that what Abraham asked for his descendants, if it were not what his Lord had informed him that He had given him, would have been clear. But since the issue was one of those mentioned previously, He was satisfied with the mention that had already been mentioned, by repeating it and repeating it, so He said: And from my descendants, meaning: And from my descendants, so make like that with which You made me, of leadership for the people.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: He said, 'My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.'

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God, the Most High, that the oppressor will not be an imam whom the people of goodness will follow. It is from God, the Most High, an answer to what is imagined in his question to him: that he will make imams like him from his descendants. So he informed that he will do that, except for those among them who are oppressors, for he will not have the same fate, nor will he make them in the place of his friends with him, by honoring them with the imamate. Because the imamate is only for his friends and the people of his obedience, not his enemies and the disbelievers in him.

The people of interpretation differed regarding the covenant that God Almighty forbade the oppressors from attaining.

Some of them said: That covenant is the prophecy.

Who said that?

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: He said, 'My covenant does not include the wrongdoers,' meaning: My covenant, my prophethood.

The meaning of the one who said this statement in the interpretation of the verse is: the people of injustice and polytheism will not attain prophethood.

Others said: The meaning of the covenant is the covenant of the Imamate.

The interpretation of the verse is based on their saying: I will not make anyone from your descendants who is an oppressor, an imam for My servants to be followed.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: He said, 'My covenant does not include the oppressors.' He said: There will not be an oppressive imam.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: God said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: There will not be an unjust imam.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: He said, 'My covenant does not include the wrongdoers,' he said: There will not be an unjust imam to be followed.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Mashraf bin Aban Al-Hattāb narrated to us, he said: Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Sufyān, on the authority of Khusayf, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: I will not make an unjust imam to be followed.

Muhammad bin Ubaid Al-Maharbi told us, he said, Muslim bin Khalid Al-Zanji told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: I will not make an unjust imam to be followed.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers: He said: There will not be an unjust leader. Ibn Jurayj said: As for Ata', he said: "I will make you an imam for the people. He said: And from my descendants," so he refused to make an unjust leader from his descendants. I said to Ata': What is his covenant? He said: His command.

Others said: The meaning of this is that you have no covenant with an oppressor to obey him in his oppression.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, meaning: There is no covenant for a wrongdoer against you in his wrongdoing, that you obey him in it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abd God told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Muslim al-Awar, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: He said, 'My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.' He said: The wrongdoers do not have a covenant, and if you make a covenant, then break it.

Al-Qasim told me, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Harun bin Antara, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: There is no covenant for an oppressor.

Others said: The meaning of covenant in this context is: safety.

The interpretation of the statement is based on the meaning of their saying: God said: My enemies and the unjust will not attain the desires of My servants. That is: I will not make them feel safe from My punishment in the Hereafter.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: He said, 'My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.' That is with God on the Day of Resurrection. No wrongdoer will be included in His covenant. As for in this world, they have attained God's covenant, so they inherited the Muslims by it, fought them, and married them by it. But when the Day of Resurrection came, God limited His covenant and His honor to His friends.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: The covenant of God in the Hereafter does not include the wrongdoers, but as for this world, the wrongdoer has attained it, eaten by it, and lived.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim: He said, 'My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.' He said: The covenant of God in the Hereafter does not include the wrongdoers. As for this world, the wrongdoer has reached it and believed in it, and he ate, saw, and lived.

Others said: Rather, the covenant that God mentioned in this place is: God's religion.

Who said that?

Narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ar-Rabi', who said: God said to Abraham: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. He said: So the covenant of God that He has made with His servants is His religion. He says: His religion does not include the wrongdoers. Do you not see that He said: And We blessed him and Isaac, and among their descendants are those who do good and those who are clearly wronging themselves. (al-Saffat 37:113), He says: Not all of your descendants, O Abraham, are on the truth.

Yahya bin Ja'far told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: My covenant does not include an enemy of Mine who disobeys Me, and I do not grant it except to a friend of Mine who obeys Me.

Abu Ja'far said: Although this statement appears to be a report that the covenant of God, which is prophethood and leadership for the people of goodness, meaning following his example in this world, and the covenant by fulfilling which he who fulfills it in this world will be saved in the Hereafter from among them who was unjust, transgressing, and transgressing in his intention to follow the path of truth, it is an announcement from God Almighty to Abraham that among his descendants will be those who associate partners with Him, transgress the path, and wrong themselves and His servants, like the one who: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Habib bin Al-Shaheed told me, he said, 'Atab bin Bashir told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: There will be wrongdoers among your descendants. As for the accusative case of the

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

wrongdoers, it is because the covenant is that which does not include the wrongdoers.

He mentioned that in Ibn Masoud's reading: The wrongdoers will not attain My covenant, meaning: the wrongdoers are those who will not attain God's covenant.

The nominative case is permissible for the oppressors and the accusative case, and likewise for the covenant, because whatever a person has attained, that person has attained, as it is said: I have attained the good of so-and-so, and I have attained his good. The action is sometimes directed to the good, and sometimes to itself. We have explained the meaning of oppression previously, so we disliked repeating it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: And when We made the House a place of return for the people and a place of safety. There are two issues in this:

The first: The Almighty's saying: We made means we made it, because it takes two objects, and this has been mentioned previously.

The house means the Kaaba. Mathaba means a place of return. It is said: thaba yathub mathaban wa mathabah wa thawwaban wa thawban. Mathaba is a source of description and it means the place to which one is rewarded, i.e. one returns to it. Waraqa ibn Nawfal said about the Kaaba:

A place where all the tribes' annihilations are held, to which the weak and oppressed flock.

Al-A'mash read Muthabat as a plural. It is possible that it is from thawaab, meaning they will be rewarded there. Mujahid said: No one will satisfy his desire from it. The poet said:

Make the house a place of rest for them, not a place where they spend their time.

The original is mathubah, the vowel of the waw was changed to the tha', so the waw was changed to an alif, following the command thaba yathub, and it was in the accusative case as the second object, and the ha' was added for emphasis from yathub, meaning to return, because rarely does someone leave the house without realizing that he has not had his fill of it, so it is like nasabah and 'alama, as Al-Akhfash said. Another said: It is the ha' of the feminization of the first letter and is not for emphasis.

If it is said: Not everyone who comes to him returns to him, it is said: It is not specific to those who come to him, but rather the meaning is that he is not devoid of the whole, and he does not lack a person who intends to come to him, and God Almighty knows best.

Second: The Almighty's statement: And We have made you safe. Abu Hanifa and a group of jurists from the regions used it as evidence to refrain from carrying out the prescribed punishment in the Sacred Sanctuary on the married person or the thief if he takes refuge in it. They supported that with the statement of the Almighty: And whoever enters it is safe. It is as if He said: Safe are those who enter the House. The correct view is to carry out the prescribed punishments in the Sacred Sanctuary, and that this is one of the abrogated texts, because it is agreed that one should not be killed in the House, and one should be killed outside the House. The only difference of opinion is whether one should be killed in the Sacred Sanctuary or not. The name of the House does not apply to the Sacred Sanctuary in reality. They agreed that if one is killed in the Sacred Sanctuary, he should be killed in it, and if he commits a prescribed punishment in it, and if he fights in it, he should be fought and killed on the spot. Abu Hanifa said: Whoever takes refuge in the Haram should not be killed in it, nor should he be prosecuted, and he should continue to be oppressed until he dies or leaves. We kill him with the sword, and he kills him with hunger and rejection. What killing is more severe than this? And in his saying, We believe, there is an emphasis on the command to face the Kaaba, meaning that there is no such virtue in the Holy House, and people do not need it. Whoever seeks refuge in the Sacred Sanctuary is safe from being raided. This will be explained in Al-Ma'idah, God willing.

The Almighty's saying: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. There are three issues in this:

The first: The Almighty's saying, And they took. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read it with a fatha on the kha' as a report about those who took it from the followers of Abraham, and it is conjoined to We made, meaning We made the House a place of return and they took it as a place of prayer. It was said that it is conjoined with the estimation of when, as if he said: And when We made the House a place of return and when they took, so according to the first the statement is one sentence, and according to the second two sentences. The majority of the reciters read and they took with a kasra on the kha' as a command, they separated it from the first and made it conjoined one sentence to another. Al-Mahdawi said: It is possible that it is conjoined with Remember My favor, as if he said that to the Jews, or with the meaning of when We made the House, because its meaning is remember when We made. Or with the meaning of his saying: a place of return, because its meaning is reward.

Second: Ibn Omar narrated that he said:

Omar said: I agreed with my Lord on three matters: on the station of Abraham, on the veil, and on the prisoners of Badr. Narrated by Muslim and others. Narrated by Al-Bukhari on the authority of Anas, who said: Omar said:

I agreed with God in three things, or my Lord agreed with me in three things... The hadith, and Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi included it in his Musnad, and he said: Hammad bin Salamah told us, Ali bin Zaid told us, on the authority of Anas bin Malik.

He said: Omar said: I agreed with my Lord in four matters. I said: O Messenger of God, what if you prayed behind the Maqam? Then this verse was revealed: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. I said: O Messenger of God, what if you imposed a veil on your wives so that the righteous and the wicked would enter upon them? Then God revealed: And when you ask them for something, ask them from behind a partition. And this verse was revealed: And We have certainly created man from an extract of clay. When it was revealed, I said: Blessed be God, the best of creators. Then this verse was revealed: So blessed be God, the best of creators. I entered upon the wives of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Either you stop or God will replace him with wives better than you. Then this verse was revealed: Perhaps his Lord, if he divorces you.

I said: There is no mention of prisoners in this narration, so Omar's agreement is on five.

Third: The Almighty's saying: From the place of standing. The place of standing in the language: the place of the feet. An-Nahas said: The place of standing from the verb qama yaqoom, is a verbal noun and a name for the place. And the place of standing from the verb iqama, as for the saying of Zuhair:

They have beautiful faces and clubs that are filled with words and deeds.

Its meaning is: Among them are people of stations. There are different opinions about specifying the station, the most correct of which is that it is the stone that people know today, where they pray the two rak'ahs of the Tawaf of Arrival. This is the opinion of Jabir ibn Abdullah, Ibn Abbas, Qatada, and others. In Sahih Muslim, from the long hadith of Jabir:

"When the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) saw the House, he touched the corner, jogged three times and walked four times, then he advanced to the Station of Abraham and recited: 'And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer.' So he prayed two rak'ahs in which he recited 'Say: He is God, the One' and 'Say: O you disbelievers.'" This indicates that the two rak'ahs of circumambulation and other prayers for the people of Mecca are better, and it indicates from one perspective that circumambulation for strangers is better, as will come. In Bukhari, it is the stone on which Abraham climbed when he was too weak to lift the stones that Ishmael used to bring him to build the House, and his feet sank into it. Anas said: I saw the traces of his fingers, his heel, and the soles of his feet on the Station, except that the people wiped them with their hands, as narrated by Al-Qushayri. Al-Suddi said: The Station is the stone that the wife of Ishmael placed under the feet of Abraham, peace be upon him, when she washed his head. Also from Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, and Ata': The entire Hajj. On the authority of Ata': Arafat, Muzdalifah, and the Jamarat. Al-Sha'bi said: Al-Nakha'i: The entire Sanctuary is the Station of Abraham. Mujahid said the same.

I said: The correct opinion in this case is the first statement, according to what is proven in Sahih. Abu Naim narrated from the hadith of Muhammad ibn Suqah on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Munkadir on the authority of Jabir, who said:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, looked at a man between the corner and the station, or the door and the station, and he was supplicating and saying: O God, forgive so-and-so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: What is this? He said: A man entrusted me to supplicate for him in this station, so he said: Go back, for your companion has been forgiven." Abu Nu'aym said: Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Ibrahim al-Qadi told us, he said: Muhammad ibn 'Asim ibn Yahya al-Katib told us, he said: 'Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Qasim al-Qattan al-Kufi told us, he said: Al-Harith ibn 'Imran al-Ja'fari told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Suqah, and he mentioned it. Abu Nu'aym said: This is how 'Abd al-Rahman narrated it on the authority of al-Harith on the authority of Muhammad on the authority of Jabir, and it is only known from the hadith of al-Harith on the authority of Muhammad on the authority of 'Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas. The meaning of musalla is a place where supplication is made, said by Mujahid. It was also said: a place of prayer where one prays, said by Qatadah. It was also said: a qiblah where the imam stands, said al-Hasan.

God Almighty says: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, saying, 'Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate.' There are six issues in this:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And Our covenant It was said that it means Our command. It was also said that it means We revealed. That you purify "that" is in the accusative case, assuming that the preposition is deleted. Sibawayh said that it has the meaning of any which is explanatory, so it has no place in parsing. The Kufians said that it can be in the meaning of saying. And purify, it was said that it means: from idols, according to Mujahid and Al-Zuhri. Ubayd ibn Umair and Saeed ibn Jubayr said: from plagues and doubt. It was also said: from the infidels. Al-Suddi said that he built it and founded it on purity and the intention of purity, so it comes like his saying: He founded it on piety. Yaman said: He created it and created it. My house He added the house to himself as an addition of honor and respect, which is the addition of a creature to a Creator, and a slave to a Master. Al-Hasan, Ibn Abi Ishaq, the people of Medina, Hisham and Hafs read: My house with the opening of the ya', and the others with the closing of the ya'.

Second: The Almighty's statement: For those who circumambulate it apparently means those who circumambulate it, and this is the statement of Ata'. Saeed bin Jubair said: Its meaning is for strangers who have come to Mecca, and there is some distance in that. And those who stay: those who are residents from my country and a stranger, according to Ata'. Likewise His statement: For those who

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

circumambulate it. In the language, staying means adherence and turning towards something, as the poet said:

The Nabataeans are playing the Fenjga

Mujahid said: The ones who stay in seclusion are those who are nearby. Ibn Abbas said: The ones who pray. It was also said: Those who sit without performing tawaf. The meaning is close. And bowing and prostrating means those who pray at the Kaaba. He specifically mentioned bowing and prostration because they are the closest states of the one praying to God Almighty. The meaning of bowing and prostration in language has already been mentioned. Praise be to God.

Third: When God the Almighty said: Purify My House, the meaning includes all of His houses, so their ruling is His ruling in purification and cleanliness. He only mentioned the Kaaba specifically because there was no other, or because it is His greatest sanctuary, and the first is more apparent, and God knows best. And in the revelation: In houses which God has permitted to be raised, and there comes the ruling on mosques, God willing. It was narrated on the authority of Omar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, that he heard a man's voice in the mosque and said: What is this! Do you know where you are!? And Hudhayfah said that the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said:

"God has revealed to me, 'O brother of the warners, O brother of the messengers, warn your people not to enter any of my houses except with sound hearts, truthful tongues, pure hands, and clean private parts, and not to enter any of my houses as long as someone has wronged them, for I curse him as long as he stands before me until he returns that wrong to its people, and I become his hearing with which he hears and his sight with which he sees, and he will be among my friends and chosen ones, and he will be my neighbor with the prophets, the truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous."

Fourth: Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa, Al-Thawri and a group of the Salaf used this verse as evidence for the permissibility of performing obligatory and voluntary prayers inside the house. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said: If someone prays inside it, facing one of its walls, his prayer is valid. If he prays towards the door and the door is open, his prayer is invalid. The same applies to someone who prays on its roof, because he is not facing any of it. Malik said: He should not pray obligatory or voluntary prayers in it, but he may pray voluntary prayers in it. However, if he prays obligatory prayers in it, he must repeat them during the prescribed time. Asbagh said: He must repeat them forever.

I said: It is correct, because Muslim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Usama bin Zaid told me:

"When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered the House, he supplicated in all its corners and did not pray in it until he left it. When he left, he bowed two rak'ahs facing the Kaaba and said: This is the qiblah." This is a text. If it is said: Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said:

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered the house with Usama bin Zaid, Bilal, and Uthman bin Talha al-Hajabi, and they closed the door behind them. When they opened it, I was the first to enter. I met Bilal and asked him: Did the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pray in it? He said: Yes, between the two right-hand pillars." Narrated by Muslim, in which he said: He placed two pillars on his left, one on his right, and three pillars behind him. At that time, the house had six pillars. We said: This may mean that he prayed in the sense of supplicated, as Usama said, or it may mean that he prayed the customary prayer. If both are possible, then the evidence for it is invalid.

If it is said: Ibn al-Mundhir and others narrated on the authority of Usamah, who said:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw pictures in the Kaaba, so I brought water in a bucket to beat those pictures with." Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi narrated it. He said: Ibn Abi Dhi'b narrated to us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Mihran, who said: Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, narrated to us, on the authority of Usamah ibn Zayd, who said: "I entered upon the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the Kaaba, and he saw pictures. He said: So he called for a bucket of water, so I brought it to him, and he began to wipe them away and said: 'May God curse a people who depict what they do not create.'" It is possible that while Usamah was still searching for water, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw Bilal, who Usamah did not see. So he who affirmed was more deserving than he who denied. Usamah himself said: So the people accepted Bilal's statement and abandoned my statement. Mujahid narrated on the authority of Abdullah ibn Safwan, who said: I said to Umar ibn al-Khattab: What did the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, do when he entered the Kaaba? He said: He prayed two rak'ahs.

We said: This applies to voluntary prayers, and we do not know of any disagreement among scholars regarding the validity of voluntary prayers in the Kaaba. As for obligatory prayers, no, because God Almighty specified the direction in His statement: So turn your faces toward it, as will be explained later, and the statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he went out:

This Qiblah is the same as God Almighty has specified it. If the assumption was valid within it, he would not have said: This Qiblah. Thus, it is correct to reconcile the hadiths, and this is better than omitting some of them, so there is no contradiction, and praise be to God.

Fifth: They also differed regarding praying on its roof. Al-Shafi'i said what we mentioned. Malik said: Whoever prays on the roof of the Kaaba must repeat the prayer in its proper time. It was narrated from some of Malik's companions: He must repeat it forever. Abu Hanifa said: Whoever prays on the roof of the Kaaba does not have to do anything.

Sixth: They also differed as to which is better, praying at the House or circumambulating it? Malik said: Circumambulating is better for the people of the cities, and praying is better for the people of Mecca. It was reported from Ibn Abbas, Ata', and Mujahid. The majority are of the opinion that praying is better. In the hadith:

If it were not for the men who are humble, the elders who bow, and the children who are breastfed and graze their beauty, we would have poured out punishment upon you abundantly. Abu Bakr Ahmad bin Ali bin Thabit al-Khatib mentioned in the book Al-Sabiq wa Al-Lahiq on the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If there were not among you men who are humble and whose beauty is pleasing, and children who are breastfed, punishment would have been poured out upon the sinners in infancy. He did not mention elders who bowed. In the hadith of Abu Dharr:

Prayer is the best thing, so do it often or infrequently. Narrated by Al-Ajurri. There are many hadiths about the virtue of prayer and prostration that bear witness to the opinion of the majority, and God Almighty knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], the standing place of Abraham as a place of prayer.

Al-Awfi said: On the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the Almighty's statement: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, meaning: They do not satisfy their desire in it, they come to it and then return to their families and then return to it. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: A place of return for mankind, meaning they return. Both were narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abdullah bin Raja' told us, Israel told us, on the authority of Muslim, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the words of God Almighty: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, he said: They return to it and then go back. He said: It was narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah and Saeed bin Jubayr, in one narration, and Ata', Mujahid, Al-Hasan, Atiyah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, and Al-Dahhak, something similar to that. Ibn Jarir said: Abdul Karim bin Abi Umair told me, Al-Walid bin Muslim told me, he said: Abu Amr, meaning Al-Awza'i, said: Abdah bin Abi Lubabah told me regarding the words of God Almighty: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, he said: No one turns away from it, and he thinks that he has had his fill of it. Yunus told me, on the authority of Ibn Wahb, he said: Ibn Zayd said: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, he said: They return to it from all countries and come to it. How beautiful is what the poet said in this meaning, Al-Qurtubi included it:

Make the house a place of rest for them, not a place where they can spend their time.

Saeed ibn Jubayr said in the other narration, and Ikrimah, Qatadah and Ata' al-Khurasani said, A place of assembly for the people, meaning a gathering place, and security. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: meaning security for the people. Abu Jaafar al-Razi said, on the authority of Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas, on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah: And when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of security, meaning security from the enemy and that weapons should be placed in it. In the pre-Islamic period, people would be snatched from around them while they were safe and not being abused. It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ata', As-Suddi, Qatadah and Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas, who said: Whoever enters it is safe.

The meaning of what these imams interpreted this verse with is that God Almighty mentions the honor of the House and what He has described it with in law and destiny, from it being a place of assembly for people, meaning He has made it a place that souls yearn for and yearn for, and they do not satisfy their desire from it even if they visit it every year in response from God Almighty to the supplication of His friend Abraham, peace be upon him, in His saying: So make the hearts of the people yearn toward them, until He said: Our Lord, and accept the supplication. And God Almighty describes it as having made it safe for whoever enters it to be safe, and if he had done what he did and then entered it, he would have been safe. And Abd al-Rahman bin Zaid bin Aslam said: A man would meet the killer of his father or brother in it, and he would not be exposed to him, as described in Surat al-Ma'idah in His saying: God has made the Kaaba, the Sacred House, a means of support for people, meaning He would ward off evil from them because of their glorification of it, as Ibn Abbas said: If people did not perform Hajj to this House, God would have collapsed the sky on the earth. And this honor is only due to the honor of its builder first, who is the friend of the Most Merciful, as God Almighty said: And when We appointed for Abraham a place The House that you do not associate anything with Me. And God Almighty said: "Indeed, the first House [of worship] established for mankind was that at Bakkah - blessed and a guidance for the worlds. In it are clear signs - the Station of Abraham. And whoever enters it shall be safe." In this noble verse, He pointed out the Station of Abraham and commanded us to pray near it. He said: And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer. The commentators differed about what is meant by the Station. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Amr ibn Shaiba al-Numairi told us, Abu Khalaf told us, meaning Abdullah ibn Isa, Dawud ibn Abi Hind told us, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer. He said: The Station of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

Abraham is the entire Sanctuary. A similar narration was narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Ata', and he also said: Al-Hasan ibn Muhammad ibn al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I asked Ata' about And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer. He said: I heard Ibn Abbas say: As for the Station of Abraham mentioned here, it is this Station of Abraham which is in the mosque. Then he said: The Station of Abraham is considered much like the Station of Abraham of the entire Hajj. Then Ata' explained it to me and said: The definition and two prayers at Arafat, and al-Mash'ar, and Mina, and the stoning of the Jamarat, and the Tawaf between al-Safa and al-Marwah. I said: Did Ibn Abbas explain it? He said: No. But he said the Station of Abraham is the entire Hajj. I said: Did you hear that for all of this? He said: Yes, I heard it from him. Sufyan al-Thawri said on the authority of Abdullah bin Muslim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. He said: The stone is the station of Abraham, the Prophet of God, whom God made a mercy. He used to stand on it and hand Ismail the stones to him. If he had washed his head, as they say, his feet would have been torn apart. Al-Suddi said: The station is the stone that Ismail's wife placed under the feet of Abraham until she washed his head. Al-Qurtubi narrated it and declared it weak, but others preferred it. Al-Razi narrated it in his interpretation on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Qatadah, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Abdul-Wahhab bin Ata' told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ja'far bin Muhammad, on the authority of his father, he heard Jabir narrating about the pilgrimage of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, performed the circumambulation, Umar said to him: Is this the station of our father? He said: Yes. He said: Should we not take it as a place of prayer? Then God the Almighty revealed, And take, [O Muhammad], the standing place of Abraham as a place of prayer. Uthman ibn Abi Shaybah said: Abu Usamah told us, on the authority of Zakariya, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Abu Maysarah, who said: Umar said: I said: O Messenger of God, is this the standing place of our Lord's friend? He said: Yes. He said: Should we not take it as a place of prayer? Then, And take, [O Muhammad], the standing place of Abraham as a place of prayer was revealed. Ibn Mardawayh said: Du'laj ibn Ahmad told us, Ghailan ibn Abd al-Samad told us, Masruq ibn al-Marzban told us, Zakariya ibn Abi Zaydah told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Amr ibn Maymun, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab, that he passed by the standing place of Abraham and said: O Messenger of God, should we not stand at the standing place of our Lord's friend? He said: Yes. He said: Should we not take it as a place of prayer? It was not long before the verse And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer was revealed. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ali ibn

Ahmad ibn Muhammad al-Qazwini told us, Ali ibn al-Husayn told us, al-Junayd told us, Hisham ibn Khalid told us, al-Walid told us, on the authority of Malik ibn Anas, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Muhammad, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood at the station of Abraham on the day of the conquest of Mecca, Umar said to him: O Messenger of God, is this the station of Abraham about which God said: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer. He said: Yes. Al-Walid said: I said to Malik: Is this how he told you and they took? He said: Yes, this is how it appears in this narration, and it is strange. Al-Nasa'i narrated from the hadith of Al-Walid ibn Muslim something similar to it. Al-Bukhari said: Chapter on his statement, And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, a place of rest where they will return and where they will be rewarded. Musaddad told us, Yahya told us, on the authority of Humayd, on the authority of Anas ibn Malik, who said: Umar ibn Al-Khattab said: I agreed with my Lord on three things, or my Lord agreed with me on three things. I said: O Messenger of God, if you took the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, then And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer was revealed. I said: O Messenger of God, the righteous and the wicked enter upon you, so why don't you command the mothers of the believers to wear the hijab? Then God revealed the verse of the hijab. He said: I was informed that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) had reprimanded some of his wives, so I went to them and said: Either you stop or God will replace you with better wives than you, until one of his wives came and said: O Umar, is there not in the Messenger of God what he can admonish his wives for you to admonish them? So God revealed: Perhaps his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in exchange wives better than you, Muslims (al-Baqarah 2:17). Ibn Abi Maryam said: Yahya ibn Ayoub informed us, Hamid told me, he said: I heard Anas from Umar may God be pleased with them both, this is how Al-Bukhari narrated it here, and he suspended the second chain of transmission from his sheikh Saeed ibn Al-Hakam, known as Ibn Abi Maryam Al-Masry, and Al-Bukhari was the only one who narrated from him from among the authors of the six books, and the rest narrated from him through an intermediary, and his purpose in suspending this chain of transmission was to show the connection of the chain of transmission of the hadith, and he did not support it because there is something wrong with Abu Ayoub Al-Ghafiqi, as Imam Ahmad said about him: he has a poor memory, and God knows best. Imam Ahmad said: Hisham told us, Humayd told us, on the authority of Anas, who said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: I agreed with my Lord, the Almighty, in three matters. I said: O Messenger of God, why don't you take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer? Then the verse And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer was revealed. I said: O Messenger of God, the righteous and the wicked enter upon your women, so why don't you order them to cover themselves? Then the verse of hijab was revealed. The wives of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gathered around him in jealousy, so I said to them: Perhaps his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in exchange wives better than you. Then the verse was revealed in the same way. Then Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Yahya and Ibn Abi Uday, both of them on the authority of Humayd, on the authority of Anas, on the authority of Umar, that he said: I agreed with my Lord in three matters, or my Lord agreed with me in three matters, and he mentioned it. Al-Bukhari narrated it on the authority of Umar, Ibn Awn, Al-Tirmidhi on the authority of Ahmad ibn Mani', Al-Nasa'i on the authority of Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim Al-Dawraqi, and Ibn Majah on the authority of Muhammad ibn Al-Sabah, all of them on the authority of Hisham ibn Bashir. It was also narrated by Al-Tirmidhi on the authority of Abd bin Hamid, on the authority of Hajjaj bin Munhal, on the authority of Hammad bin Salamah and Al-Nasa'i, on the authority of Hannad, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Za'idah, both of them on the authority of Hamid, who is the son of Tirwayh Al-Tawil, on his authority. Al-Tirmidhi said: Hasan Sahih. It was narrated by Imam Ali bin Al-Madini on the authority of Zaid bin Zari', on the authority of Hamid, on his authority, and he said: This is from the authentic hadith, and he is from Basra. It was narrated by Imam Muslim bin Hajjaj in his Sahih with another chain of transmission and different wording, and he said: Uqbah bin Makram told us, Saeed bin Amir told us, on the authority of Juwayriyah bin Asma', on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: I agreed with my Lord in three matters: regarding the veil, regarding the prisoners of Badr, and regarding the Station of Abraham. Abu Hatim al-Razi said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Ansari told us, Hamid al-Tawil told us on the authority of Anas ibn Malik, who said: Umar ibn al-Khattab said: My Lord agreed with me on three matters, or I agreed with my Lord on three matters. I said, O Messenger of God, if you took the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, then the verse And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer was revealed. I said, O Messenger of God, if women were veiled, then the verse of veiling was revealed. The third: When Abdullah ibn Ubayy died, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to pray over him. I said, O Messenger of God, will you pray over this infidel hypocrite? He said: Leave me alone, O Ibn Al-Khattab! Then the verse was revealed: And never pray over any of them who dies, nor stand at his grave. This chain of transmission is also sound, and there is no contradiction between this and that, rather both are sound and the implication of the number, if it is contradicted by an explicit statement, is given precedence over it. And God knows best. Ibn Jurayj said: Ja'far informed me, on the authority of Muhammad, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, walked three times and walked four until he finished, he went to the Station of Abraham and prayed two rak'ahs behind it, then he recited: And take, [O Muhammad], from the Station of Abraham a place of prayer. Ibn Jarir said: Yusuf ibn Salman informed us, Hatim ibn Ismail informed us, Ja'far ibn Muhammad informed us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, touched the corner, walked three times and walked four, then he went to the Station of Abraham and recited: And take, [O Muhammad], from the Station of Abraham a place of prayer. He placed the Station between him and the House, and prayed two rak'ahs. This is part of the long hadith that Muslim narrated in his Sahih from the hadith of Hatim ibn Ismail, and Al-Bukhari narrated with his chain of transmission. On the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, he said: I heard Ibn Umar say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came and circumambulated the House seven times and prayed two rak'ahs behind the Maqam. All of this indicates that what is meant by the Maqam is the stone on which Abraham, peace be upon him, stood to build the Kaaba. When the wall rose, Ismail, peace be upon him, brought it to him so that he could stand on it and hand him the stones, which he would place in his hand to raise the wall. Whenever he completed one side, he would move to the other side and circumambulate the Kaaba, standing on it. Whenever he finished a wall, he would move it to the side next to it, and so on until the walls of the Kaaba were completed, as will be explained in the story of Abraham and Ismail in building the House, narrated by Ibn Abbas in Bukhari. The traces of his feet were visible in it, and this remained well-known and was known to the Arabs in their pre-Islamic period. For this reason, Abu Talib said in his famous poem, Lamiyah:

And Abraham's footsteps in the rock were wet on his bare feet, without sandals.

The Muslims realized this in it, as Abdullah bin Wahb said: Yunus bin Yazid told me on the authority of Ibn Shihab: Anas bin Malik told them, he said: I saw the station with his fingers, peace be upon him, and the soles of his feet, except that it was removed by the people wiping it with their hands. Ibn Jarir said: Bishr bin Muadh told us Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us on the authority of Qatada, And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, they were only commanded to pray at it and they were not commanded to wipe it. This nation has taken on a burden that the nations before it did not take on. It has been mentioned to us that someone saw the trace of his heel and fingers on it, and this nation continued to wipe it off until it was worn away and erased. I said This station was attached to the wall of the Kaaba in ancient times, and its location is known today, next to the door, next to the Black Stone, to the right of the one entering the door, in the separate spot there. When Abraham, peace be upon him, finished building the House, he placed it next to the wall of the Kaaba, or he finished building there and left it there. For this reason, and God knows best, he ordered prayer there upon finishing circumambulation. It was appropriate for it to be next to the Station of Abraham, where the construction of the Kaaba ended. It was only the Commander of the Faithful, Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, who was one of the guided imams and rightly-guided caliphs whom we were ordered to follow, who moved it away from the wall of the Kaaba. He is one of the two men about whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Follow the example of those who come

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

after me, Abu Bakr and Umar. He is the one upon whose death the Qur'an was revealed in prayer next to him. For this reason, none of his companions, may God be pleased with them all, denied that. Abd al-Razzaq said on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: He told me: Ata and others of our companions said: The first thing that was transmitted was by Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him. Abd al-Razzaq also said on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Hamid al-Araj, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: The first to move the Maqam to its current location was Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Ahmad ibn Ali ibn al-Husayn al-Bayhaqi said: Abu al-Husayn ibn al-Fadhl al-Qattan told us, Judge Abu Bakr Ahmad ibn Kamil told us, Abu Ismail Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Salami told us, Abu Thabit told us, al-Darawardi told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her: That the Maqam was attached to the House during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and during the time of Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, then Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, moved it. This is a sound chain of transmission with what was mentioned above. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ibn Abi Umar al-Adani told us, he said: Sufyan said, meaning Ibn Uyaynah, who was the imam of the Meccans in his time: The Maqam was in the courtyard of the House during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, then Umar moved it to its place after the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And after his saying, And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer, he said: The flood swept it away after Umar moved it from this location, so Umar returned it to it. Sufyan said: I do not know how much was between it and the Kaaba before it was moved. Sufyan said: I do not know whether it was attached to it or not. These narrations support what we have mentioned, and God knows best. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Ibn Umar, who is Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Hakeem, told us, Muhammad bin Abdul Wahhab bin Abi Tamam, told us, Adam, who is Ibn Abi Iyas, told us in his interpretation, Sharik told us on the authority of Ibrahim bin Al-Muhajir on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Umar bin Al-Khattab said: O Messenger of God, if we prayed behind the station, then God revealed, And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer, so the station was near the House, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, moved it to this location. Mujahid said: Umar used to have an opinion and the Qur'an would be revealed according to it. This is a mursal from Mujahid, and it contradicts what was mentioned previously from the narration of Abd al-Razzaq from Muammar, from Hamid al-A'raj, from Mujahid: that the first one to postpone the Maqam to its current location was Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him. This is more authentic than the chain of transmission of Ibn Mardawayh, with the support of what was mentioned previously, and God knows best.

And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate.

Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: His statement, And We enjoined Abraham and Ishmael, meaning: God commanded them to purify it from harm and impurity, and that nothing of that should touch it. Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata': What is His covenant? He said: His command. Abd Al-Rahman bin Zaid bin Aslam said, And We enjoined Abraham, meaning: We commanded him to do so. He said: It appears that this letter is transitive with to because it means we preceded and inspired. Saeed bin Jubair said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf and those who stay there, he said: from idols. Mujahid and Saeed bin Jubair said, Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf, meaning that that is from idols, obscenities, false speech, and filth. Ibn Abi Hatim said, and it was narrated on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair, Abu al-Aaliyah, Saeed ibn Jubayr, Mujahid, Ata' and Qatadah, Purify My House meaning, There is no god but God from polytheism. As for the Almighty's statement, For those who circumambulate, circumambulating the House is well-known. It was narrated on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr that he said in the Almighty's statement, For those who circumambulate, meaning whoever comes to it from a foreign land, and those who stay there, those who reside there. And thus it was narrated on the authority of Qatadah and al-Rabi' ibn Anas, that they interpreted those who stay there as its people who reside there, as Saeed ibn Jubayr said. Yahya al-Qattan said on the authority of Abdul-Malik, he is Ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata' regarding his statement, and those who stay there, he said: Whoever visits him from the cities and stays with him and says to us, while we are neighbors, you are among those who stay there. And Waki' said on the authority of Abu Bakr al-Hudhali, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: If he is sitting, then he is among those who stay there. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Musa ibn Ismail told us, Hammad ibn Salamah told us, Thabit told us, he said: We said On the authority of Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair: I see myself as speaking to the Emir to prevent those who sleep in the Sacred Mosque, for they become ritually impure and urinate. He said: Do not do that, for Ibn Umar was asked about them and he said: They are those who are staying in seclusion. And Abd bin Hamid narrated it on the authority of Sulayman bin Harb on the authority of Hammad bin Salamah on his authority. I said It has been proven in Sahih that the correct view is that Ibn Umar used to sleep in the mosque of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and he was single. As for the words of God the Almighty: And bowing and prostration, Wakee' said on the authority of Abu Bakr al-Hudhali, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And bowing and prostration, he said: If he is praying, then it is from bowing and prostration, and Ata' and Qatadah said the same. Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him, said: The meaning of the verse is, And We commanded Abraham and Ishmael to purify My House for those who perform Tawaf. The purification that We commanded in the House is to purify it from idols and the worship of idols in it and from polytheism. Then he raised a question and said: If it is said: Was there anything of that which He commanded to purify before Abraham built the House near it? He answered in two ways: One of them that He commanded them to purify it from what was worshipped there at the time of the people of Noah of idols and statues, so that this would be a tradition for those after them, since God Almighty had made Abraham an imam to be followed, as Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd said, Purify My House. He said: From the idols that they worship, which the polytheists used to venerate. I said This answer is based on the fact that idols were worshipped there before Abraham, peace be upon him, and proving this requires evidence from the infallible Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The second answer He ordered them to be sincere in building it for God alone, with no partner for Him, so they should build it purified from polytheism and doubt, as He, the Most High, said: Is he who lays his foundation on piety to God and His pleasure better, or he who lays his foundation on the brink of a crumbling precipice? He said: Likewise, His statement: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, 'Purify My House' means build it purified from polytheism and doubt, as As-Suddi said: Purify My House build My House for those who circumambulate it. The summary of this answer is that God, the Most High, ordered Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, to build the Kaaba in His name alone, with no partner for Him, for those who circumambulate it, those who stay near it, and those who pray to it from bowing and prostrating, as God, the Most High, said: "And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House, [saying], 'Do not associate anything with Me and purify My House for those who circumambulate it and those who stand [in prayer] and those who bow and prostrate'" 3:10.

The jurists differed as to which is better, praying at the House or circumambulating it? Malik, may God have mercy on him, said: Circumambulating it is better for the people of the cities. The majority said: Prayer is absolutely better, and the direction of each of them is mentioned in the Book of Rulings, and what is meant by that is the response to the polytheists who used to associate partners with God at His House, which was founded on worshipping Him alone, with no partner for Him, and then despite that they turned away His believing people from it, as God Almighty said: "Indeed, those who disbelieve and avert [people] from the way of God and from the Sacred Mosque, which We have made for mankind, equal for the one who stays therein and the visitor. And whoever intends to do wrong therein - We will make him taste a painful punishment." Then He mentioned that the House was only founded for those who worship God alone, with no partner for Him, either by circumambulation or prayer, so He mentioned in Surat Al-Hajj its three parts: its standing, bowing, and prostration, and He did not mention those who stay there because it was mentioned equal for the one who stays therein and the visitor. In this noble verse, He mentioned those who circumambulate and those who stay, and He was satisfied with mentioning bowing and prostration instead of standing, because He has known that there is no bowing or prostration except after standing. And in that also is a response to those who do not perform Hajj from the People of the Book, the Jews and Christians, because they believe in the virtue of Abraham the Friend and Ishmael, and they know that he built this House for circumambulation during Hajj. And Umrah and other things, and for seclusion and prayer near it, and they do not do any of that, so how can they be following the example of Khalil when they do not do what God has prescribed for him? Moses, son of Imran, and other prophets, peace and blessings be upon them, performed Hajj to the House, as the infallible one who does not speak from his own desires informed us: It is only a revelation revealed.

The meaning of the statement is: And We charged Abraham meaning We preceded with Our revelation to Abraham and Ishmael to purify My House for those who perform Tawaf and those who stay there and those who bow and prostrate meaning purify it from polytheism and doubt, and build it purely for God, a fortress for those who perform Tawaf and those who stay there and those who bow and prostrate. Purifying the mosques is taken from this noble verse, and from the Almighty's saying: "In houses which God has permitted to be raised and that His name be mentioned therein. He is glorified therein in the mornings and the evenings." And from the Sunnah from many hadiths about the command to purify and perfume them and other things about protecting them from harm and impurities and the like. That is why he, peace be upon him, said: The mosques were built for what they were built for. I have collected a separate section on this, praise and thanks be to God. People have differed about the first one to build the Kaaba. Some have said: The angels before Adam. This was narrated on the authority of Abu Ja'far al-Baqir Muhammad ibn 'Ali ibn al-Husayn. Al-Qurtubi mentioned it and narrated its wording, but it is strange. Others have said: Adam, peace be upon him. 'Abd al-Razzaq narrated it on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of 'Ata', Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, and others: That Adam built it from five mountains: Hira', Mount Sinai, Mount Zeitan, Mount Lebanon, and al-Judi. This is also strange. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, Ka'b al-Ahbar, Qatadah, and Wahb ibn Munabbih: That the first one to build it was Seth, peace be upon him. Most of those who mention this take it from the books of the People of the Book, which are not to be believed, denied, or relied upon on their own. However, if a hadith is authentic about that, then it is on the head and the eye.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 125- And when We made the House is the Sacred Kaaba, it was used as a star was used as a place of refuge, and a place of refuge is a source of the verb thaba which means to return, meaning a place of refuge for the pilgrims to return to after they have dispersed from it. From this is the saying of Waraqa ibn Nawfal about the Kaaba:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

A place where all tribes flock to, where the withered beasts flock to.

Al-A'mash read Muthabat and it was said that Muthaba comes from Thawaab meaning they will be rewarded there. Mujahid said: What is meant is that they will not get their fill of it. The poet said:

Make the house a place of rest for them, not a place of rest for them to spend their time in.

Al-Akhfash said: The letter ha was added because of the large number of people who return to it, so it is like a sign and a genealogist. Others said: It is for the feminine and not for exaggeration. His statement: And we were safe is a place name: meaning a place of safety. A group of scholars have used this as evidence that the punishment is not carried out on whoever seeks refuge in it, and this is supported by the statement of God the Almighty: And whoever enters it shall be safe. It was said: This was abrogated. His statement: And take from the station of Abraham a place of prayer. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read with the opening of the kha' as a past tense verb: meaning We made the House a place of return for the people and a place of safety and they took it as a place of prayer. The rest read it in the imperative form in apposition to remember mentioned at the beginning of the verses, or to remember which is understood as an agent in His statement: And when. It is permissible for it to be in the sense of say: meaning, And we said, 'Take.' The place in the language is the place of standing. An-Nahhas said: It is from qama yaqūm, it is a source and a name for the place, and the place of qama is from aqama, and this is not from the statement of the poet:

They have beautiful positions, faces, and clubs that are filled with words and deeds.

Because it means people of stations. There are different opinions about specifying the station, the most correct of which is that it is the stone that people know and pray the two rak'ahs of circumambulation at it. It was also said that the station is the entire Hajj. This was narrated from Ata' and Mujahid. It was also said that it is Arafat and Muzdalifah. This was also narrated from Ata'. Al-Sha'bi said: The entire Haram is the station of Abraham. This was narrated from Mujahid.

Abdul Razzaq, Abdul bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim who authenticated it and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God, And when his Lord tested Abraham, he said: God tested him with purification: five for the head and five for the body. For the head: trimming the moustache, rinsing the mouth, inhaling water from the nose, using the siwak, and parting the hair. And for the body: trimming the nails, shaving the pubic hair, circumcision, plucking the armpit hair, and washing the place of defecation and urination with water. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated something similar from him. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim, Ibn Mardawayh and Ibn Asakir narrated on his authority that he said: No one was tested with this religion and performed it completely except Abraham. He recited this verse and it was said to him: What are the words? He said: The arrows of Islam are thirty arrows: ten in Bara'ah, The repentant, the worshippers to the end of the verse, ten at the beginning of Surah Qad Aflah, A questioner asked, "And those who believe in the Day of Judgment," the verses, and ten in Surah Al-Ahzab, Indeed, the Muslims to the end of the verse, So he completed them, all of them, so he wrote for him Bara'ah. God Almighty said: And Abraham who fulfilled. Abd Al-Razzaq, Abd Bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Al-Hakim narrated from him that he said: Among them are the rituals of Hajj. Ibn Jarir narrated from him that he said: The words Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, "And when Abraham raises the foundations," and the verses are about the rituals, the station that was made for Abraham, the provision that the inhabitants of the House were provided with, and the sending of Muhammad among their descendants. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Jarir narrated from Mujahid regarding his statement: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain words, he said: He was tested with the verses that follow them. They also narrated from Al-Sha'bi something similar. Ibn Israq and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The words with which Abraham was tested and he fulfilled them: Separation from his people for the sake of God when he was commanded to leave them, and his argument with Nimrod for the sake of God when he made him stand up to the danger of the matter in which he disagreed with them, and his patience in their throwing him into the fire to burn him for the sake of God, and the migration after that from his homeland and country when he was commanded to leave them, and what he was commanded to do of hospitality and patience with it, and what he was tested with of slaughtering his son, so when all of that had passed, God said to him, His Lord has submitted, and he said, I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds. Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: He tested him with the star and He was pleased with him, and He tested him with his son and He was pleased with him. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, and he fulfilled them, he said: He performed them. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ata' who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Among the fitrah of Abraham is the siwak. I said: This, even if its chain of transmission to Ata' is sound, is mural and cannot be used as evidence. It is not permissible to rely on such a thing in interpreting the words of God, the Most High. Likewise, it is not permissible to rely on such as what Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: Among the fitrah of Abraham is washing the penis and the knuckles, and such as what Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated in his Musannaf on his authority who said: "Six are from the fitrah of Abraham: trimming the moustache, the siwak, parting, trimming the nails, istinja', and shaving the pubic hair." He said: Three for the head - and three for the body. It has been proven from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) in Sahih and other sources through a group of the Companions that these ten are permissible for this ummah. It has not been authentically reported from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that they were the words with which Abraham was tested. The best that has been narrated from him is what was narrated by Al-Tirmidhi who classed it as hasan on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to trim or remove from his moustache. He said: The friend of the Most Merciful, Abraham, used to do it. It is not hidden from you that the action of Al-Khalil to him does not necessitate that it is one of the words with which he was afflicted. If nothing is authentic from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, nor has it come to us through a path that establishes proof specifying those words, then all that remains for us is to say: They are what God, the Most High, mentioned in His Book in His saying: He said, 'I will make you' to the end of the verses. This would be an explanation of the words or silence and referring knowledge of that to God, the Most High. As for what was narrated from Ibn Abbas and similar companions after them in specifying them, they are firstly the sayings of companions that do not establish proof, let alone the sayings of those after them. Assuming that there is no room for ijthad in that, and that it has the ruling of elevation, then they differed in specifying them in a way that prevents acting on some of what was narrated from them without the other part. Rather, the narrations differed from one of them, as we mentioned before from Ibn Abbas. So how is it permissible to act on that? And with this you know the weakness of the saying of the one who said: It is resorted to the general and it is said: Those words are all that we mentioned here, because this necessitates interpreting the speech of God as weak and contradictory and that which does not establish proof. And Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "He said: Verily, I will make you a leader for mankind" to be followed in your religion, guidance and Sunnah. "He said: And of my descendants" an imam for other than my descendants. "He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers" that their religion, guidance and Sunnah are to be followed. Al-Faryabi and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: God said to Abraham: Verily, I will make you a leader for mankind. He said: And of my descendants" but he refused to do so, then He said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. Abd al-Razzaq, Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada that he said: This is with God on the Day of Resurrection, His covenant does not include the wrongdoers. As for in this world, they had attained His covenant and inherited from the Muslims through it, fought them and married them. But when the Day of Resurrection came, God limited His covenant and His honor to His friends. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid in the interpretation of the verse that he said: I will not make an unjust leader to be followed. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, saying: It informs him that if there is a tyrant among his descendants, his covenant will not be fulfilled and he should not entrust him with any of his affairs. Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on his authority that he said: There is no covenant with you for a tyrant in disobedience to God. Wakee' ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ali on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding his statement: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, he said: There is no obedience except in what is good, with its chain of transmission with Ibn Mardawayh as follows: He said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Muhammad ibn Hamid narrated to us, Ahmad ibn Abdullah ibn Sa'd al-Asadi narrated to us, Salim ibn Sa'id al-Damaghani narrated to us, Wakee' narrated to us on the authority of al-A'mash on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ubaydah on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Sulami on the authority of Ali on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he mentioned it. Abd ibn Hamid narrated on the authority of Imran ibn Husayn that he heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: There is no obedience to any created being in disobedience to God. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said in his interpretation of the verse: "There is no covenant for the oppressor. Even if you make a covenant with him, then break it." Ibn Kathir said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ata', Muqatil and Ibn Hibban. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: A place of return for the people and a place of security. He said: They will return to it and then return. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: They will not satisfy their desire for it. They will come to it and then return to their families and then return to it. Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and al-Bayhaqi narrated something similar on the authority of Mujahid. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And a place of security. He said: Security for the people. Al-Bukhari and others narrated from the hadith of Anas on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab who said: I agreed with my Lord in three matters and my Lord agreed with me in three matters. I said: O Messenger of God, why don't you take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer? Then the verse was revealed: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. I also said: O Messenger of God, both the righteous and the wicked enter upon your women, so why don't you order them to cover themselves? Then the verse of hijab was revealed. The wives of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gathered around him in jealousy, so I said to them: Perhaps his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in exchange wives better than you. Then the verse was revealed likewise. Muslim and others narrated it in an abbreviated form from the hadith of Ibn Umar on his authority. Muslim and others narrated from the hadith of Jabir that "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, walked three times and walked four, until he finished, he went to the Station of Abraham and prayed two rak'ahs behind it, then he recited: 'And take, [O Muhammad], the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer.' " There are many hadiths about the Station of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

Abraham, peace be upon him, which are complete in the Ummah and elsewhere. The authentic hadiths indicate that the Station of Abraham is the stone that Abraham used to stand on to build the Kaaba when the wall rose. Ishmael brought it to him so that he could stand on it, as in Bukhari from the hadith of Ibn Abbas. It was the stone that was attached to the wall of the Kaaba. The first to transmit it was 'Umar ibn al-Khattab, as narrated by 'Abd al-Razzaq, al-Bayhaqi with a sound chain of transmission, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Ibn Mardawayh through different chains of transmission. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Jabir describing the Hajj of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, performed the Tawaf, 'Umar said to him: Is this the Station of Abraham? He said: Yes. Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar.

His saying: Our covenant means here: We ordered and made obligatory. His saying: That they purified is in the accusative case, removing the preposition: that is, that they purified, as the Kufians said. Sibawayh said: It is with the estimation of that they purified, meaning that they purified, so it has no place in grammar. What is meant by purification, it was said: from idols, and it was said: from plagues and doubts, and it was said: from the infidels, and it was said: from impurities and the circumambulation of the ritually impure and the menstruating woman and every unclean thing. It appears that it is not specific to any of these types, and that everything that is true of the name purification, it includes it either comprehensively or alternatively. The addition in his saying: My house is for honor and respect. Al-Hasan, Ibn Abi Ishaq, the people of Medina, Hisham and Hafs read My house with the opening of the yaa, and the others read it with the closing of it. And the one who circumambulates is the one who circumambulates, and it was said: the stranger who visits Mecca. Al-Aakif: the resident. The root of Ma'kof in the language is: adherence and turning towards something. It was said: it is the neighbor without the resident from its people. What is meant by his saying: Bows and prostrations is the praying ones. He mentioned these two pillars specifically because they are the most honorable pillars of prayer.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

125. God Almighty said, And when We made the House meaning the Kaaba a place of assembly for mankind a place of reference for them. Mujahid and Saeed bin Jubair said: They come to it from every side and perform Hajj. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them, said: A refuge and a shelter. Qatada and Ikrimah said: A gathering place. And a place of safety meaning a place of safety in which they are safe from the harm of the polytheists, for they did not attack the people of Mecca and say: They are the people of God and attack those around it, as God Almighty said: Have they not seen that We have made a secure sanctuary while people are being snatched away all around them? 67-Al-Ankabut.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Ali bin Abdullah, I told Jarir, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Tawus, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said on the day of the conquest of Mecca: "This country was made sacred by God on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Its thorns are not to be cut, its game is not to be frightened, its lost property is not to be picked up except by one who recognizes it, and its seclusion is not to be visited." Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, except for the idhkhir, for it is for their culinary purposes and for their homes. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Except for the idhkhir.

The Almighty said: And they took Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read it with a fatha on the kha' as a statement, and the rest read it with a kasra on the kha' as a command, from the station of Abraham a place of prayer. Ibn Yaman said: The entire mosque is the station of Abraham, and Ibrahim al-Nakha'i said: The entire sanctuary is the station of Abraham, and it was said: He meant by the station of Abraham all the sites of Hajj, such as 'Arafah, Muzdalifah, and all the other sites.

The correct view is that the Station of Abraham is the stone in the mosque towards which the imams pray. It is the stone on which Abraham, peace be upon him, stood when building the House. It was said that the traces of his toes were visible on it, but they were erased from the frequent wiping with the hands. Qatada, Muqatil, and al-Suddi said: They were commanded to pray at the Station of Abraham, but they were not commanded to wipe it or kiss it.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Musaddad, on the authority of Yahya bin Hamid, on the authority of Anas, who said: Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, said: ((I agreed with God in three things - or my Lord agreed with me in three things - I said, O Messenger of God, why don't you take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer? So God Almighty revealed: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. And I said, O Messenger of God, the righteous and the wicked enter upon you, so why don't you order the mothers of the believers to wear the hijab? So God Almighty revealed the verse of the hijab. He said, and I was informed of the Prophet's rebuke of some of his wives, so I went to them and said to them:

If you stop, or God will replace him with better wives than you, so God Almighty revealed: Perhaps his Lord, if he divorces you, will give him in exchange wives better than you (5- At-Tahrim).

Muhammad bin Ismail also narrated it on the authority of Amr bin Auf, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Hamid, on the authority of Anas, may God be pleased with him, who said: Omar, may God be pleased with him, said: I agreed with my Lord in three things. I said, O Messenger of God, if only I had taken the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. Then the verse was revealed: And take, [O Muhammad], the station of Abraham as a place of prayer.

As for the beginning of the story of the station, Saeed bin Jubair narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When Abraham, peace be upon him, brought Ishmael and Hagar and placed them in Mecca, and some time passed, and the Jurhumites settled there and Ishmael married a woman from them and Hagar died, Abraham asked Sarah's permission to visit Hagar, and she gave him permission and stipulated that he not leave, so Abraham went to Mecca and Hagar had died, so he went to Ishmael's house and said to his wife: Where is your companion? She said: He went hunting, and Ishmael, peace be upon him, used to go out of the sanctuary to hunt, so Abraham said to her: Do you have any hospitality? She said: I do not have any hospitality, and he asked her about their livelihood? She said: We are in hardship and difficulty, so she complained to him and he said to her: When your husband comes, greet him and tell him to change the threshold of his door, so Abraham went and Ishmael came and found the scent of his father, so he said [to his wife: Has anyone come to you? She said: An old man came to me with such and such description, as if she was making light of his matter. He said] What did he say to you? She said: He said: Give my greetings to your husband and tell him to change the threshold of his door. My father said that, and he has ordered me to leave you and go back to your family. So he divorced her and married another of them. Abraham stayed as long as God willed him to stay. Then he asked Sarah's permission to visit Ishmael, and she gave him permission but stipulated that he should not come down. Abraham, peace be upon him, came until he reached Ishmael's door and said to his wife: Where is your companion? She said: He went hunting and will come back now, God willing. Come down, may God have mercy on you. He said: Do you have any hospitality? She said: Yes. So she came with milk and meat. He asked her about their livelihood? She said: We are well and comfortable. So he invoked blessings upon them. If she had brought that day bread of wheat or barley and dates, it would have been the land of God with the most wheat, barley or dates. She said to him: Come down so I can wash your head. But he did not come down. So she brought him the station and placed it on his right side. He put his foot on it and washed the right side of his head. Then she moved to his left side and washed the left side of his head, and the traces of his feet remained on it. Then he said to her: When your husband comes, greet him and tell him that the threshold of your door has been straightened. When Ishmael came, he smelled the scent of his father and said to his wife: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, an old man with the most handsome face and the best scent. He said to me such and such and I said to him such and such. She washed his head and this is the place where his feet were. He said: That was Abraham, the prophet, my father, and you are the threshold. He ordered me to hold you.

It was narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair / on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: Then he stayed away from them for as long as God willed, then he came after that and Ishmael was sharpening arrows under a palm tree near Zamzam. When he saw him, he went to him and they did as a father does to his son and a son does to his father. Then he said: O Ishmael, God Almighty has commanded me to do something that will help me with it? He said: I will help you. He said: God has commanded me to build a house here. At that point, they raised the foundations of the house, and Ishmael began to bring stones and Abraham built until the building was high. He brought this stone and placed it for him, and Abraham stood on the stone of the station while he was building and Ishmael was handing him the stones and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing. And in the hadith: (The Corner and the Station are two rubies from the rubies of Paradise, and had the hands of the polytheists not touched them, they would have illuminated what is between the east and the west.)

God the Almighty said: And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael meaning We commanded them and inspired them. It was said: He was named Ishmael because Abraham used to call upon God to grant him a son and he would say: Hear, O El, and El is God. So when he was granted a son, God named him with it. Purify My House meaning the Kaaba, He added it to him specifically and preferably, meaning build it on purity and monotheism. Saeed bin Jubayr and Ata' said: Purify it from idols, doubts, and false speech. It was said: By its steam and its creation. The people of Medina and Hafs read My House with a fat-ha on the ya' here and in Surat Al-Hajj. Hafs added in Surat Nuh: For those who circumambulate those who circle around it, and those who stay there those who reside nearby, and and those who bow the plural of bowing, and prostration the plural of prostrating, and they are the worshippers. Al-Kalbi and Muqatil said: Those who circumambulate are the strangers, and those who stay there are the people of Mecca. Ata', Mujahid, and Ikrimah said: Circumambulation is better for strangers, and prayer is better for the people of Mecca.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

125- And when We made the House meaning the Kaaba, it was prevalent over it like the star over the Pleiades. A place of return for people a place of return to which the prominent visitors or their likes return, or a place of reward where they are rewarded for performing Hajj and Umrah. It was read: Mathabat, meaning because it is the place of return for everyone. And security and a place of security where its people are not exposed, as God Almighty said: A secure sanctuary. And people are snatched from around them,

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:125

And remember when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety. And take, [O Muhammad], from the standing place of Abraham a place of prayer. And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, [saying], "Purify My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate."

or a place of security from the torment of the Hereafter, since Hajj nullifies what came before it, first the offender who takes refuge in it is held accountable until he leaves, and this is the school of Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him. And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer with the intention of saying, or in apposition to the understood as an agent for when, or an objection in apposition to an implied meaning, repent to it and take, on the basis that the address is to the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it is a recommended matter, and the Station of Abraham is the stone on which is the trace of his foot, or the place where the stone was when he stood on it and called the people to Hajj, or the building of the House was raised and it is its location today. It was narrated that "peace and blessings of God be upon him took the hand of Omar, may God be pleased with him, and said: This is the Station of Abraham, so Omar said: Should we not take it as a place of prayer, so he said: I was not commanded to do that, and the sun did not set until it descended." It was said that what was meant by it was the command to perform the two rak'ahs of the circumambulation, because Jabir narrated that, peace and blessings of God be upon him, When he finished his circumambulation, he went to the Station of Abraham and prayed two rak'ahs behind it and he recited And take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, has two opinions regarding their obligation. It was said: The Station of Abraham is the entire Sanctuary. It was said that the Hajj stations and their being a place of prayer are to be supplicated in and draw closer to God the Almighty. Nafi and Ibn Amir read and take in the past tense in apposition to we made, meaning: and the people took his designated station, meaning the Kaaba, as a qiblah to which they pray. And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael We commanded them. Purify My House It is possible that an is an explanatory particle to include the covenant with the meaning of the statement, meaning purify it from idols and impurities and what is not appropriate for it, or purify it. For those who circumambulate around it. And those who stay there residing near it, or those who stay in it. And bowing and prostrating meaning those who pray, the plural of bowing and prostrating.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day. He said, And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(And when Abraham said, My Lord, make this place a secure city, full of security. God answered his prayer and made it a sanctuary in which no human blood is shed, no one is wronged, no game is hunted, and no one is alone. And provide its people with fruits. He did this by moving Taif from Ash-Sham to it, and it was barren, with no crops or water. Whoever among them believes in God and the Last Day instead of his people, and He singled them out for supplication, in accordance with His statement, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers. He said, And provide (for whoever disbelieves, then I will grant him enjoyment) with emphasis and alleviation in this world with provision for a little for the duration of his life. Then I will force him with force in the Hereafter to the punishment of the Fire so that he will not find any escape from it. And wretched is the destination. The reference is

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: As for his statement: And when We made the House a place of return, it is connected with when to his statement: And when Abraham was tested by his Lord with certain words. And his statement: And when Abraham was tested is connected to his statement: O Children of Israel, remember My favor, and remember when Abraham was tested by his Lord, "and when We made the House a place of return."

The house that God made a place of assembly for people is the Sacred House.

As for the word mathaba, Arabs differ on its meaning and the reason for which it is feminine.

Some Basra grammarians said: The letter ha' was added to the word 'mathabah' because of the many who return to it, just as it is said: 'sayarah' for someone who does that a lot, and 'nasaba' for someone who does that a lot.

Some grammarians of Kufa said: Rather, the reward and the reward have the same meaning, similar to the place and the place of residence. The place was mentioned in the masculine form because he meant the place where one resides, and the place of residence was made feminine because it meant the spot. These people denied that the reward is like the caravan and the genealogy. They said: The letter ha was inserted in the caravan and the genealogy to liken Lahab to the preacher.

The reward is derived from the verb thaaba which means the people returned to the place, meaning they returned to it. So they return to it with reward, reward, and recompense.

The meaning of his statement: And when We made the House a place of return for the al-Nas 114: And when We made the House a place of return for the people and a place of refuge, they would come to it every year and return to it, and they would never be satisfied with it. And among the places of return is the statement of Waraqa ibn Nawfal in describing the sanctuary:

A place where all the tribes' leaders flock to.

Hence, it was said: His mind returned to him, if it returned to him after his estrangement from him.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And when We made the House a place of return for the people, he said: They do not satisfy their desire there.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, he said: They return to it, they do not satisfy their desire there.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And when We made the House a place of return for the people, he said: As for the place of return, it is that to which they return every year, and a person who comes to it once does not leave it without returning to it.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, he said: They do not satisfy their desire therein, they come to it, then return to their families, then return to it.

Abdul Karim bin Abi Umair told me, he said, Al-Walid bin Muslim told me, he said, Abu Amr said: Abda bin Abi Lubaba told me regarding his statement: And when We made the House a place of return for the people, he said: No one turns away from it while he thinks that he has had his fill of it.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata', regarding his statement: And when We made the House a place of return for the people, he said: They return to it from every place, and they never get their fill of it.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik, on the authority of Ata', similarly.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Muhammad bin Amara Al-Asadi told me, he said, Sahl bin Aamer told us, he said, Malik bin Mughol told us, on the authority of Atiyah, regarding his statement: And when We made the House a place of return for the people, he said: They do not satisfy their desire there.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu al-Hudhayl, he said, I heard Saeed bin Jubair say: And when We made the House a place of return for the people, he said: They perform Hajj and return.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Abu al-Hudhayl, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: A place of return for the people, he said: They perform Hajj and then perform Hajj, and they do not satisfy their desire for it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ibn Bakir told us, he said, Misa'ar told us, on the authority of Ghalib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: A place of return for the people, he said: They return to it.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And when We made the House a place of return for the people and a place of security, he said: a gathering place.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: A place of return for the people, he said: They return to it.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': A place of return for the people. He said: They return to it.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And when We made the House a place of return for mankind, he said: They return to it from all countries and come to it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And we believed.

Abu Jaafar said: Security is a noun derived from the saying of the speaker: Security is security.

God called it security because in the pre-Islamic era it was a refuge for those who sought refuge in it. If a man among them encountered the killer of his father or brother there, he would not insult him or attack him until he left it. It was as God, the Most High, said: Do they not see that We have made a secure sanctuary while people are being snatched away all around them? (al-Ankabut 29:67).

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: And we are safe, he said: Whoever is safe is safe. A man would meet the killer of his father and brother and not attack him.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for security, whoever enters it is safe.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And we have secured, he said: Its prohibition, there is no fear in it of anyone entering it.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And we were safe, meaning: safe from the enemy, so that weapons could be carried in it. And in the pre-Islamic era, people would be snatched from around them while they were safe and not being taken captive.

Al-Munjab narrated that Bishr told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And we have security, he said: Security for the people.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And we are safe, he said: Its prohibition, there is no fear in it of someone entering it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer.

Abu Jaafar said: The reading of this differed:

Some of them read it: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, with a kasra on the kha', as a command to take it as a place of prayer. This is the general reading of the Egyptians of Kufa and Basra, and the general reading of the people of Mecca and some of the people of Medina. Those who read it like this went to it, from the report that:

Abu Kuraib and Yaqub bin Ibrahim told us, Hisham told us, Hamid told us, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, who said, Umar bin Al-Khattab said: I said: O Messenger of God, why don't you take the station as a place of prayer? So God revealed: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, and Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, all of them, on the authority of Hamid, on the authority of Anas, on the authority of Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, the same.

Amr bin Ali told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Hamid told us, on the authority of Anas, who said: Omar bin Al-Khattab said: I said: O Messenger of God, and he mentioned something similar.

They said: God Almighty revealed this verse as a command to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to make the Station of Abraham a place of prayer. So it is not permissible to read it as a command in the form of a report.

Some Basra grammarians have claimed that his statement, And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, is based on his statement, O Children of Israel, remember My favor and Take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. So the command with this verse, and with taking the place of prayer from the station of Abraham, was according to what this speaker said to the Jews from the Children of Israel who were at the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as he told us on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas, as follows:

It was narrated to me on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, who said: Among the words with which Abraham was tested were His words: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. So He commanded them to take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, so they prayed behind the station.

The interpretation of the one who said this statement: And when his Lord tested Abraham with certain commands, and he fulfilled them, He said: Indeed, I will make you a leader for the people, and He said: Take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer.

Abu Ja'far said: The report that we mentioned on the authority of `Umar ibn al-Khattab, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before, indicates the opposite of what these people said, and that it is a command from God Almighty, mentioned by the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the believers in him, and all of the accountable creation.

Some of the people of Medina and Ash-Sham read it: And they took with the opening of the kha as a statement.

Then there was a difference of opinion about what he connected to it with his saying: And they took, when it was read like this, in the manner of the report.

Some of the grammarians of Basra said: Its interpretation, if read in this way, is: And when We made the House a place of assembly for the people and a place of safety, and when they took the station of Abraham as a place of prayer.

Some of the grammarians of Kufa said: Rather, it is connected to his saying: We made, so the meaning of the speech was based on his saying: And when We made the House a place of assembly for the people, and they took it as a place of prayer.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement and reading in this regard, according to us, is: And take with a kasra on the kha, on the interpretation of the command to take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, based on the established report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which we mentioned earlier, and that:

Amr bin Ali told us, he said, Yahya bin Saeed told us, he said, Jaafar bin Muhammad told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer.

Then the people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his saying: And take from the station of Abraham a place of prayer, and in the station of Abraham. Some of them said: The station of Abraham is the entire Hajj.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj told us, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: The Station of Abraham, he said, the entire Hajj is the Station of Abraham.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Sufyan bin Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, he said: the entire Hajj.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', he said: The entire Hajj is the Station of Abraham.

Others said: The Station of Abraham, Arafat, Muzdalifah and the Jamarat.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata bin Abi Rabah: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, he said: Because I have made him an imam, so his station is: Arafat, Muzdalifah, and the Jamarat.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, he said: His station: Jam'a, Arafat, and Mina. I do not know of him except that he mentioned Mecca.

Amr bin Ali told us, Abu Asim told us, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And take the standing place of Abraham as a place of prayer, he said: His standing place, Arafat.

Amr bin Ali told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Dawud told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, who said: This day I have perfected for you your religion (al-Ma'idah 5:3), the verse was revealed to him while he was standing at Arafat, the station of Abraham.

Amr told us, he said: Bishr bin al-Mufaddal told us, he said: Dawud told us, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, the same.

Others said: The Station of Abraham, the Sacred

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Sanctuary.

Who said that?

It was narrated on the authority of Hammad bin Zaid, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, he said: The entire sanctuary is the station of Abraham.

Others said: The Station of Abraham is the stone on which Abraham stood when his building was raised and he was too weak to lift the stones.

Who said that?

Ibn Sinan al-Qazzaz told us, he said, Ubayd God ibn Abd al-Majid al-Hanafi told us, he said, Ibrahim ibn Nafi' told us, he said, I heard Kathir ibn Kathir narrating, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ibrahim started building it, and Ismail was handing him the stones, and they were saying: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing" (al-Baqarah 2:127). Then when the building was raised and the old man was too weak to lift the stones, he stood on a stone, and it became the Station of Ibrahim.

Others said: Rather, the station of Abraham is his station which is in the Sacred Mosque.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, they were only commanded to pray at it, and they were not commanded to touch it. This nation has taken on the burden of something that the nations before it did not take on. Some of those who saw the mark of his heel and fingers on it mentioned to us, and this nation continued to touch it until it became worn out and disappeared.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer. So they pray behind the station.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer, meaning the prayer at his station during the Hajj. The station is the stone that the wife of Ismail had placed under Abraham's feet when she washed his head, so Abraham placed his foot on it while he was riding, so she washed one side, then she lifted it up from under it and his foot had sunk into the stone, so she placed it under the other side, so she washed it and his foot had also sunk into it, so God made it one of His symbols and said: And take, from the station of Abraham, a place of prayer.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements, in our view, is what was said by those who say that the Station of Abraham is the station known by this name, which is in the Sacred Mosque, based on what we narrated earlier on the authority of 'Umar ibn al-Khattab, and based on what Yusuf ibn Salman told us, saying: Hatim ibn Isma'il told us, saying: Ja'far ibn Muhammad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, touched the corner, and jogged three times, and walked four times, then he advanced to the Station of Abraham and recited: And take, [O Muhammad], from the Station of Abraham a place of prayer. So he placed the Station between him and the House, and prayed two rak'ahs. These two reports indicate that God, the Most High, meant by the Station of Abraham the place that God commanded us to take as a place of prayer, which is what He described.

Even if there were no report from the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) that supported the correct interpretation of what we have chosen, what we have said would have been obligatory. This is because the meaning of speech is to be taken according to its known apparent meaning, not its unknown hidden meaning, until something comes that indicates otherwise, which must be accepted. There is no doubt that what is known among the people as the Station of Abraham is the place of prayer about which God the Most High said: And take, [O Muhammad], the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer.

Abu Jaafar said: As for the Almighty's saying: a place of prayer, the people of interpretation differed regarding its meaning. Some of them said: It is what is claimed.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Sufyan bin Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And take the station of Abraham as a place of prayer, he said: The place of prayer of Abraham, is claimed.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Take a place of prayer where you can pray.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr ibn Muadh told me, he said, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: They were ordered to pray near him.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: It is the prayer in his presence.

Abu Ja'far said: It is as if those who said: The interpretation of the prayer here is the one who is called, directed the prayer to be a passive participle, from the saying of someone: I prayed in the sense of I called.

The people who said this article are the ones who said:

The Station of Abraham is the entire Hajj.

So its meaning in the interpretation of this verse was: And take Arafat, Muzdalifah, Al-Mash'ar, Al-Jamarat, and all the other places of Hajj that Abraham used to perform, as places of call to Me there, and follow Abraham, My friend, peace be upon him, in them, for I have made him an imam for those who come after him from among My friends and those who obey Me, who will follow his example and his traces, so follow his example.

As for the interpretation of those who say the other statement, it is: O people, take the Station of Abraham as a place of prayer where you pray, as an act of worship from you and as an honor to Abraham.

This statement is more correct, based on what we mentioned of the report on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab and Jabir bin Abdullah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, saying, 'Purify My House.'

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: And our covenant, and our command, as Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: I said to Ata': What is His covenant? He said, His command.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told me, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And We enjoined upon Abraham, he said: We commanded him.

The meaning of the verse is: And We commanded Abraham and Ishmael to purify My House for those who go around it. The purification that God commanded them to do in the House is to purify it from idols, the worship of idols in it, and from associating partners with God.

If someone says: What is the meaning of His statement: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, 'Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf'? Was there a house in the days of Abraham, before he built the House, that was purified from polytheism and idol worship in the sanctuary, so it is possible that they were commanding it to be purified?

It was said: There are two aspects of interpretation for this, and a group of people of interpretation have said each of the two aspects.

One of them: That its meaning is: And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael that they should build My House purified from polytheism and doubt, as God Almighty said: Is he who lays his foundation on piety toward God and His pleasure better or he who lays his foundation on the brink of a crumbling precipice? (al-Tawbah 9:109). Likewise, His statement: And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael that they should purify My House, meaning: Build My House purified from polytheism and doubt, as Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr bin Hammad told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And We enjoined upon Abraham and Ishmael that they should purify My House, he says: Build My House for those who perform Tawaf. This is one of its two meanings.

The other aspect of them: That they were an order to purify the place of the House before its construction, and the House after its construction, from what the polytheists used to place in it during the time of Noah and those before him of idols, so that this would be a tradition for those after them, since God, the Most High, had made Abraham an imam to be followed after him, as Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said in his statement: that they purify, he said: from the idols that they worship, which the polytheists used to venerate.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ubayd bin Umair: Purify My House for those who circumambulate it, he said: from idols and doubts.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair, the same.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told me, he said, Abu Ahmad told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: From polytheism.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Abu Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Mujahid: Purify My House for those who circumambulate it, he said: from idols.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf, he said: from polytheism and the worship of idols.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, similarly, and he added to it: and false speech.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: For those who circumambulate.

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of the circumambulators in this place.

Some of them said: They are strangers who come to the Sacred House from abroad.

Mention of those who said that: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Abu Bakr bin Ayyash told us, he said, Abu Hasin told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: For those who go around it, he said: Whoever comes to it from a foreign land.

Others said: Rather, the circumambulators are those who circumambulate it, whether they are strangers or from its people.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad ibn al-Ala' told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr al-Hudhali, on the authority of Ata': For those who circumambulate, he said: If he is circumambulating the House, then he is one of those who circumambulate.

The first of the two interpretations of the verse is what Ata' said. Because the one who circumambulates is the one who circumambulates something and not others. And the one who comes from a foreign land does not deserve the name of circumambulating the House, if he does not circumambulate it.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: and those who abide therein.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: and those who are devoted to it, those who reside in it. The one who is devoted to something is the one who resides in it, as Nabigha of Banu Dhubyen said:

They were devoted to their homes, and they were praising them. God threw them into those humble hands.

The person performing itikaf is called itikaf because of his stay in the place where he has confined himself to God Almighty.

Then the people of interpretation differed about who God meant by His saying: and those who are devoted to it.

Some of them said: He meant the one who sits in the Sacred House without performing Tawaf or prayer.

Mention of those who said that: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr al-Hudhali, on the authority of Ata', he said: If he is circumambulating the House, then he is among those who circumambulate, and if he is sitting, then he is among those who are staying there.

Some of them said: The Aakifun are the neighbors who are in retreat.

Mention of those who said that: Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Mujahid and Ikrimah: Purify My House for those who circumambulate and those who stay there, he said: those who stay nearby.

Some of them said: The people of the sacred land are the people of the sacred land.

Mention of those who said that: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Abu Bakr bin Ayyash told us, he said, Abu Hasin told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: and those who stay there, he said: the people of the city.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And those who are devoted, he said: Those who are devoted are his family.

Others said: Al-A'akifoona are the praying ones.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: Ibn Abbas said regarding his statement: Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf and those who stay there, he said:

Those who stay there are those who pray.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these interpretations is what `Ata' said, which is that the one who is staying in the House in this place is the one who resides in it, adjoining it without performing Tawaf or praying. Because the description of staying in the House is what we have described: residing in a place. And the one who is staying in a place may be staying in it while sitting, praying, circumambulating, standing, and in other conditions. So since the Almighty mentioned in His statement: Purify My House for those who perform Tawaf and those who stay there and those who bow and prostrate, the praying and those who circumambulate, it is known from this that the condition that God the Almighty meant of the one staying is not the condition of the one who prays and the one who circumambulates, and that what He meant of his conditions is staying in the House, by way of adjoining it, even if he is not praying, bowing, or prostrating in it.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And bowing is prostration.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement, and bowing, the group of people bowing to Him, each one of whom is bowing. Likewise, prostration is the group of people prostrating to Him, each one of whom is prostrating, just as it is said: a sitting man and sitting men, and a sitting man and sitting men, so likewise a prostrating man and prostrating men.

It was said: Rather, he meant by bowing and prostration the worshippers.

Mention of those who said that: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr al-Hudhali, on the authority of Ata': And bowing is prostration, he said: If he is praying, then it is from bowing is prostration.

Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And bowing and prostration, the people of prayer.

We have previously explained the meaning of bowing and prostration, so there is no need to repeat it here.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains three issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: A secure city meaning Mecca. So he prayed for his offspring and others to be safe and to live comfortably. It was narrated that when he prayed with this prayer, God Almighty ordered Gabriel to uproot Taif from the Levant and circumambulate it around the House for a week, so it was called Taif for that reason. Then he brought it down to Tihamah. At that time, Mecca and what was next to it was barren, with no water or vegetation, so

God blessed what was around it, such as Taif and others, and caused all kinds of fruits to grow in it, as will be explained in Surat Ibrahim, God willing.

Second: Scholars differed about Mecca as to whether it became a safe sanctuary through Abraham's question or whether it was like that before him, with two opinions:

One of them: It has always been a sanctuary from the tyrants who have power, and from eclipses and earthquakes, and all the other calamities that befall the country. He has placed in the rebellious souls such reverence and awe for it that its people have become distinguished by security from other people of the villages. And He, the Almighty, has placed in it one of the great signs of His Oneness in what has been seen of the matter of hunting in it, so that the dog and the prey come together in it and the dog does not agitate the prey nor flee from it, until when they leave the sanctuary the dog attacks it and returns to fleeing and running away.

Rather, Abraham asked that it be made safe from famine, drought, and raids, and that his family be provided with fruits, not as some people thought, that it was to prevent the shedding of blood on behalf of those who were obligated to be killed, for that is far from being what Abraham intended, peace be upon him, so that it can be said: He asked God to include in His law a prohibition on killing those who sought refuge in the sanctuary. This is very far-fetched.

Second: Mecca was permissible before the call of Abraham, peace be upon him, like all other countries, and with his call it became a safe sanctuary, just as Medina became safe with the prohibition of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, after it had been permissible.

The people of the first article cited the hadith of Ibn Abbas, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said on the day of the conquest of Mecca:

"This country was made sacred by God Almighty on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God Almighty until the Day of Resurrection. Fighting in it was not permitted for anyone before me, and it was only permitted for me for an hour of the day. It is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. No thorn is to be cut, its game is not to be scared away, and its lost property is not to be picked up except by one who recognizes it, and no one is to be alone in it." Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, except for the idhkar, for it is for their minions and for their houses. He said: Except for the idhkar. Similar to it is the hadith of Abu Shuraih, narrated by Muslim and others.

In Sahih Muslim also, on the authority of Abdullah bin Zaid bin Asim, "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Abraham made Mecca sacred and prayed for its people, and I have made Medina sacred just as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I have prayed for its saa' and mudd twice as much as Abraham prayed for the people of Mecca.'" Ibn Atiyyah said: There is no contradiction between the two hadiths, because the first is a report of God's prior knowledge and decree concerning it, and the sanctity being for the duration of Adam and the times of the country's inhabiting with faith. The second is a report of Abraham renewing its sanctity and showing that after the destruction. The first statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the second day of the conquest was a report of the great sanctity of Mecca for the believers by attributing the prohibition to God, the Most High, and he mentioned Abraham when he made Medina sacred as an example of himself. There is no doubt that the prohibition of Medina is also from God, the Most High, and from the enforcement of His decree and prior knowledge. Al-Tabari said: Mecca was sacred, but God did not command His creation to do so until Abraham asked Him to make it sacred.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And provide his family with fruits from whoever believes. The meaning of provision has already been presented. Fruits is the plural of fruit, and it has already been presented. Whoever believes is a substitute for whoever believes, a substitute for part for all. And belief is belief, and it has already been presented. "He said: And whoever disbelieves." Whoever in his saying whoever disbelieves is in the accusative case, and the meaning is: And provide for whoever disbelieves. It is permissible for it to be in the nominative case as a subject, and it is a condition, and the predicate is so enjoy him, and it is the answer.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether this statement is from God or from Abraham, peace be upon him. Abi bin Kaab, Ibn Ishaq and others said: It is from God, the Most High. They read Famatahu with a damma on the hamza, a fatha on the meem and a shaddah on the taa. Then I compelled him with a severing of the alif and a damma on the raa. This is the case with the seven reciters except Ibn Amir, who made the meem sukoon and the taa light. Abu Ishaq al-Zajaj narrated that in Abi's reading it is Fana'matuhu a little while then we compelled him with a noon. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and Qatadah said: This statement is from Abraham, peace be upon him. They read Famatahu with a fatha on the hamza and a sukoon on the meem, then I compelled him with a connected alif and a fatha on the raa. So it is as if Abraham, peace be upon him, prayed for the believers and against the disbelievers. Accordingly, the pronoun in said is for Abraham. It was repeated because of the length of the statement, or because it moved from praying for some people to praying against others. The subject in the word said in the group reading is the name of God Almighty, and Al-Nahhas chose it, and he made the reading with the opening of the hamza and the stillness of the meem and the connection of the alif anomalous. He said: The order of the speech and the interpretation together indicate something else. As for the order of the speech, God Almighty is reporting from Abraham, peace be upon him, that he said: My Lord, make this a secure city. Then He came with His saying, the Almighty: And provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day. He did not separate it with a word. Then He said after that: He said, and whoever disbelieves, this was an answer from God, and He did not say after that Abraham said. As for the interpretation, it was authenticated from Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Jubair, and

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Muhammad bin Kaab, and this is the wording of Ibn Abbas: Abraham, peace be upon him, prayed for whoever believed, not the people in particular, so God Almighty informed him that He provides for the disbelievers as He provides for the believers, and that He will give them enjoyment for a little while, then He will force them to the torment of the Fire. Abu Jaafar said: And God Almighty said: No, We provide for these and those from the gift of your Lord. And He, the Most High, said: And nations We will give enjoyment to. Abu Ishaq said: Abraham, peace be upon him, knew that there would be disbelievers among his descendants, so he singled out the believers, because God Almighty said: My covenant does not include the wrongdoers.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And the Almighty said: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day.' Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us: 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of Abu al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Indeed, Abraham made the House of God sacred and made it secure, and I have made Medina sacred, and what is between its two lava plains, so its game is not to be hunted and its trees are not to be cut." And thus it was narrated by al-Nasa'i on the authority of Muhammad ibn Bashir, on the authority of Bandar, and Muslim narrated it on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah and 'Amr ibn al-Naqid, both of them on the authority of Abu Ahmad al-Zubayr on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri. Ibn Jarir also said: Abu Kurayb and Abu al-Sa'ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, and Abu Kurayb told us, 'Abd al-Rahim al-Razi told us, they all said: We heard Ash'ath on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: "Ibrahim was the servant and friend of God, and I am the servant and messenger of God. Ibrahim made Mecca sacred, and I made Medina sacred, and what is between its two lava plains: its wood and its game. No weapon is to be carried in it for fighting, and no tree is to be cut down except for camel fodder." This chain of transmission is strange and is not found in any of the six books. The origin of the hadith is in Sahih Muslim from another chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Hurayrah may God be pleased with him, who said: When the people saw the first fruits, they would bring them to the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him). When the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) took them, he would say: "O God, bless us in our fruits, and bless us in our city, and bless us in our sa', and bless us in our mudd. O God, Ibrahim is Your servant and friend and Your Prophet, and I am Your servant and Your Prophet. He called upon You for Mecca, and I call upon You for Medina with the same as he called upon You for Mecca, and the same with it." Then he would call his youngest child and give him that fruit. In another version: Blessing with blessing. Then he would give him the youngest of the children who were present with him - the wording of Muslim. Then Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Qutaybah ibn Sa'id told us, Bakr ibn Mudar told us, on the authority of Ibn al-Haad, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Muhammad, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn 'Uthman, on the authority of Rafi' ibn Khadijan, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ibrahim made Mecca sacred, and I make what is between its two lava plains sacred. Muslim alone transmitted it, so he narrated it on the authority of Qutaybah on the authority of Bakr ibn Mudar, and his wording is the same. In the two Sahihs, "On the authority of Anas ibn Malik, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Abu Talhah: Find me a young boy from among your boys to serve me. So Abu Talhah took me out with him, and I used to serve the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, whenever he stopped. And he said in the hadith: Then he came forward until Uhud appeared to him, and he said: This is a mountain that loves us and we love it. So when he looked out over Medina, he said: O God, I make what is between its two mountains sacred just as Ibrahim made Mecca sacred. O God, bless them in their mudd and their sa'." And in a wording of theirs: "O God, bless them in their measure, and bless them in their Al-Bukhari added, meaning the people of Medina. They also narrated from Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O God, make Medina twice as blessed as you made Mecca." And from Abdullah bin Zaid bin Asim, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Abraham made Mecca sacred and supplicated for it, and I made Medina sacred as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made supplication for it in its mudd and sa' like what Abraham made supplication for Mecca." Narrated by Al-Bukhari and this is his wording. And from Muslim and his wording is that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Abraham made Mecca sacred and supplicated for its people, and I made Medina sacred as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made supplication for it in its sa' and mudd like what Abraham made supplication for the people of Mecca." And from Abu Sa'id, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: "O God, Abraham made Mecca sacred and made it sacred, and I made Medina sacred between its two valleys, that no blood should be shed in it, no weapons should be carried in it for fighting, and no tree should be cut down in it except for fodder. O God, bless us in Our city, O God, bless our Saa' for us, O God, bless our Mud for us, O God, make with the blessing two blessings." The hadith, narrated by Muslim, and the hadiths about the prohibition of the city are many, but we have only mentioned those related to the prohibition of Abraham, peace be upon him, of Mecca, because of what is in that of the noble verse. And those who believed that the prohibition of Mecca was only on the tongue of Abraham the Friend held fast to it, and it was said: It has been prohibited since it was created with the earth, and this is more apparent and stronger, and God knows best.

There are other hadiths that indicate that God the Almighty made Mecca sacred before He created the heavens and the earth, as stated in the two Sahihs on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said on the day of the conquest of Mecca: "God made this city sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Fighting in it was not permitted for anyone before me, and it was not permitted for me except for an hour of the day, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Its thorns should not be cut, its game should not be frightened, its lost property should not be picked up except by one who knows it, and its solitude should not be found." Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, except for the idhkhir, for it is for their udders and for their houses. He said: Except the idhkhir. This is the wording of Muslim, and they have something similar from Abu Hurairah. Then Al-Bukhari said after that: Abaan ibn Salih said, on the authority of Al-Hasan ibn Muslim, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say something similar. This that Al-Bukhari suspended was narrated by Imam Abu Abdullah ibn Majah on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Numayr, on the authority of Yunus ibn Bakir, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Abaan ibn Salih, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muslim ibn Yanaq, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, delivering a sermon in the year of the conquest, and he said: "O people, God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred until the Day of Resurrection. Its trees shall not be cut, its game shall not be driven away, and its lost property shall not be taken except by one who announces it." Al-Abbas said: Except for the idhkhir, for it is for houses and graves. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Except for the idhkhir. And on the authority of Abu Shuraih al-Adawi, that he said to Amr ibn Sa'id while he was sending out the missions to Mecca: "Give me permission, O prince, to tell you a statement that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made the next day on the day of the conquest. My ears heard it, my heart retained it, and my eyes saw it when he spoke it. He praised God and extolled Him, then said: "Mecca has been made sacred by God and not by the people. It is not permissible for a person who believes in God and the Last Day to shed blood in it, or to cut down a tree in it, for one of the it was said to Abu Shuraih: What did Amr say to you? He said: I know that better than you, Abu Shuraih. The Sacred Sanctuary does not protect a sinner, a fugitive from blood, or a fugitive from ruin. Narrated by al-Bukhari and Muslim, and this is its wording.

If this is known, then there is no contradiction between these hadiths indicating that God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and the hadiths indicating that Abraham, peace be upon him, made it sacred, because Abraham conveyed from God His ruling concerning it and His prohibition of it, and that it had always been a sacred land before Abraham, peace be upon him, built it. Just as the Messenger of God, peace be upon him, was written with God as the Seal of the Prophets, and Adam was still kneaded in his clay, and despite this Abraham, peace be upon him, said, "Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from among themselves" [al-Masjid an-Nabawi], and God answered his supplication with what He had previously known and decreed. That is why it is stated in the hadith that they said, O Messenger of God, tell us about the beginning of your affair. He said, "The supplication of my father Abraham, peace be upon him, and the good report of Jesus, son of Mary, and my mother saw as if a light came out of her that illuminated the palaces of Ash-Sham." That is, tell us about the beginning of the appearance of your affair, as will come soon, God willing.

As for the issue of preferring Mecca over Medina, as is the opinion of the majority, or Medina over Mecca, as is the opinion of Malik and his followers, it will be mentioned in another place with its evidence, God willing, and He is trustworthy. And the Almighty said, reporting from Abraham, that he said: My Lord, make this a secure city, meaning from fear, meaning that its people will not be terrified. And God did that by law and decree, as in His Almighty's saying: And whoever enters it shall be safe, and His saying: Do they not see that We have made a secure sanctuary, while people are being snatched all around them? and other verses. And the hadiths have come before regarding the prohibition of fighting in it. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Jabir: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: It is not permissible for anyone to carry weapons in Mecca. And he said in this Surah: My Lord, make this a secure city. That is, make this spot a secure city. This was appropriate because it was before the construction of the Kaaba. God the Almighty said in Surah Ibrahim: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this city secure.' This was appropriate there because, by God, it is as if the supplication occurred a second time after the construction of the House and the settlement of its people in it, and after the birth of Isaac, who was thirteen years younger than Ishmael. For this reason, he said at the end of the supplication: "Praise be to God, who has given me, in my old age, Ishmael and Isaac. Indeed, my Lord is the Hearer of supplication." And God the Almighty said: And provide his family with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day. He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah on the authority of Ubayy ibn Ka'b: "He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination." He said: This is the saying of God the Almighty. This is the saying of Mujahid and `Ikrimah, and it is what Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him, corrected it. He said: Others read: "He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination." They made that part of the supplication of Abraham, as Abu Ja'far narrated on the authority of al-Rabi' on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah. He said: Ibn `Abbas used to say that, the saying of Abraham asking his Lord: Whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little." Abu Ja'far said on the authority of Layth ibn Abi Salim on the authority of Mujahid: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little. He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will provide for him for a little. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: When Abraham was removed from the call to the one whom God refused to give him authority, he was cut off from God and His love and separated from those who disobeyed his command, even if they were from his descendants, when he knew that there would be among them a wrongdoer whose covenant would not reach him, with God's information to him about that, God said: And whoever disbelieves - then I will provide for the righteous and the wicked, and I will provide for him for a little." Hatim ibn Ismail said on the authority of Hamid al-Kharat on the authority of `Ammar al-Dahni on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn `Abbas regarding the words of God Almighty: My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with good things. The fruits of those who believe in God and the Last Day." Ibn Abbas said: "Ibrahim used to restrict them to the believers, but not to the people. So God revealed: And whoever disbelieves, I will provide for them as I provide for the believers. Shall I create a creation for whom I do not provide? I will give them enjoyment for a little; then I will force them to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is that destination." Then Ibn Abbas recited: "To each We provide, these and those, from the gift of your Lord. And the gift of your Lord is not forbidden." Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. It was narrated from Ikrimah and Mujahid, something similar to that as well. This is like the statement of God the Most High: "Indeed, those who invent falsehood against God will not succeed. Enjoyment in this world, then to Us is their return. Then We will make them taste the severe punishment for what they used to disbelieve." And the statement of God the Most High: "And whoever disbelieves, let not his disbelief grieve you. To Us is their return, and We will inform them of what they did. Indeed, God is Knowing of that within the breasts. We will give them enjoyment for a little; then We will force them to a severe punishment." And His statement: "And had it not been that mankind would have become one community, We would have made for those who disbelieve in the Most Merciful roofs of silver for their houses and stairways upon which they ascend. And for their houses, doors and couches upon which they will ascend." They recline * and adornments. And indeed, all that is for the enjoyment of the life of this world and the Hereafter, with your Lord is for the righteous. And His statement: Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. That is, then I will force him after his enjoyment in this world and We will spread over him from its shade to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. Its meaning is that God Almighty will look at them and give them respite, then He will seize them with the grip of the Mighty, the Powerful, as in His statement, the Most High: And how many a town was I granted respite while it was unjust? Then I seized it, and to Me is the destination. And in the two Sahih: "No one is more patient with the harm he hears than God. Indeed, they attribute to Him a son, while He provides for them and heals them." And in the Sahih also: Indeed, God grants respite to the wrongdoer until, when He seizes him, He does not let him escape. Then he recited the statement of the Most High: "And thus is the seizure of your Lord when He seizes the towns while they are unjust. Indeed, His seizure is painful and severe." And some of them recited: He said, 'And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little.' The verse, making it part of the supplication of Abraham, and it is an anomalous reading that contradicts the seven reciters, and the structure of the context rejects its meaning, and God knows best, for the pronoun in He said: It refers to God Almighty in the reading of the majority, and the context requires it. According to this anomalous reading, the pronoun in said refers to Abraham, and this is contrary to the order of speech, and God Almighty is the All-Knowing.

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

As for the Almighty's saying: "And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful.'" The foundations are the plural of qa'idah, which is the pillar and foundation. The Almighty says: And mention, O Muhammad, to your people, Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, building the House and raising its foundations, and they were saying, "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." Al-Qurtubi and others narrated on the authority of Abi and Ibn Mas'ud that they were reciting, "And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.'" I said This is indicated by their saying after it, Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. The verse, so they were doing a good deed, and they were asking God Almighty to accept from them, as Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Muhammad ibn Yazid ibn Khunais al-Makki on the authority of Wahib ibn al-Ward that he recited, "And when Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, were raising their foundations, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.'" The foundations of the House and Ishmael, our Lord accept from us." Then he cries and says: O Khalil al-Rahman, the pillars of the House of the Most Merciful are being raised and you are afraid that it will not be accepted from you. This is as God the Most High narrated about the state of the sincere believers in His statement: And those who give what they give meaning they give what they give of charity, expenditures and offerings while their hearts are fearful meaning afraid that it will not be accepted from them, as came in the authentic hadith on the authority of Aisha on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as will come in its place. Some of the commentators said: The one who was raising the foundations was Ibrahim and the supplicant was Ishmael, and the correct view is that they were both raising and saying as will be explained. Al-Bukhari narrated here a hadith which we will quote and then follow it with related narrations. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub Al-Sakhtiyani and Kathir bin Kathir bin Abdul Muttalib bin Abi Wada'ah - one of them adds more than the other - on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The first time women used lanyards was before the mother of Ismail, who used lanyards to erase her traces on Sarah. Then Ibrahim brought her and her son Ismail while she was breastfeeding him, until he placed them near the House, near a tree above Zamzam at the top of the mosque, and there was no one in Mecca at that time, nor was there any water. So he placed them there and placed near them a bag of dates and a water skin with water. Then Ibrahim turned and went away, and Ismail's mother followed him and said: O Ibrahim, where are you going and leaving us in this valley with no one to accompany us? And nothing? She said that to him repeatedly, but he did not pay attention to her. She said: Has God commanded you to do this? He said: Yes. She said: Then He will not let us down. Then she returned. So Abraham set out until he was at the pass where they could not see him, facing the House. Then he supplicated with these supplications and raised his hands, saying, Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House, until he reached they give thanks. And the mother of Ismail began to suckle Ismail and drink from that water, until what was in the water skin was used up, she became thirsty and her son became thirsty, and she began to look at him writhing—or he said: floundering—so she set out, hating to look at him, and she found Safa to be the nearest mountain on earth to her, so she stood on it and then faced the valley to see if she could see anyone, but she did not see anyone. So she descended from Safa until she reached the valley, raised the edge of her armor and ran as a person struggles until she passed the valley, then she came to Marwa and stood on it and looked to see if she could see anyone, but she did not see anyone. She did that seven times. Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, That is why people ran between them. When she approached

Marwa, she heard a voice and said, Hush. She wanted herself - then she listened and heard also, so she said: I have heard if you have help, so behold, the king is at the place of Zamzam, so he searched with his heel, or he said: with his wing, until the water appeared, so she began to surround it and say with her hand like this, and she began to scoop from the water in her water skin and it was bubbling after she scooped, Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "May God have mercy on the mother of Ismail, if she had left Zamzam - or he said: if she had not scooped from the water - Zamzam would have been a flowing spring." He said: So she drank and breastfed her son, so the king said to her: Do not fear loss, for here is a house for God that this boy and his father will build, and God does not neglect His people, and the house was high above the ground like a hill, and the floods would come to it and take from its right and left, and it was like that until a group of Jurhum or a family of Jurhum passed by them coming from the road of Kada, so they stopped at the bottom of Mecca, and they saw a circling bird, so they said: This bird is circling On water, as we knew this valley and there was no water in it, so they sent one or two men running, and if they were at water, they returned and he informed them of the water, so they came. He said: And the mother of Ismail was at the water, so they said: Do you give us permission to stay with you? She said: Yes, but you have no right to our water. They said: Yes. Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ishmael's mother found that and she loved company. So they dismounted and sent for their people, so they dismounted with them, until there were some households there from them, and the boy grew up and learned Arabic from them, and they liked him and were pleased with him when he grew up. When he reached puberty, they married him to a woman from them, and Ishmael's mother died. Abraham came after Ishmael had married to look at his estate, but he did not find Ishmael. He asked his wife about him, and she said: He went out seeking us. Then he asked her about their living and their condition, and she said: We are human beings, we are in hardship and difficulty. So she complained to him, and he said: When your husband comes, greet him and tell him to change the threshold of his door. When Ishmael came, it seemed as if he had sensed something, so he said: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, an old man of such and such came to us and asked us about you, so I told him. He asked me how we lived, so I told him that we were in hardship and difficulty. He said: Did he advise you about anything? She said: Yes, he ordered me to greet you and say: Change the threshold of your door. He said: That is my father and he ordered me to leave you, so go back to your family. He divorced her and married another woman from them. Ibrahim stayed away from them as long as God willed, then he came to them later and did not find him. He went to his wife and asked her about him. She said: He went out seeking us. He said: How are you? He asked her about their livelihood and their condition. She said: We are well and comfortable, and praised God the Almighty. He said: What is your food? She said: Meat. He said: What is your drink? She said: Water. He said: O God, bless them in the meat and water. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "And they did not have grain at that time. If they had, he would have prayed for it for them." He said: So no one would be alone with them except in Mecca without agreeing to it. He said: So when your husband comes, greet him with my greetings and tell him to fix the threshold of his door. When Ismail came, he said: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, a well-mannered old man came to us, and she praised him. He asked me about you, so I told him. He asked me how we lived. I told him that I was fine. He said: Did he advise you about anything? She said: Yes, and he sends you his greetings and orders you to strengthen the threshold of your door. He said: That is my father and you are the threshold. He ordered me to hold you back. Then he stayed away from them as God willed. Then he came after that and Ishmael was sharpening his arrows under a tree near Zamzam. When he saw him, he went to him, and they did as a father does with his son and a son does with his father. Then he said: O Ishmael, God has commanded me to do something. He said: Do what your Lord has commanded you. He said: Will you help me? He said: And I will help you. He said: God has commanded me to build a house here, and he pointed to a high hill above what was around it. He said: Then they raised the foundations of the house, and Ismail began to bring stones and Abraham built, until when the building was high, he brought this stone and placed it for him, and he stood on it while he was building and Ismail was handing him the stones, and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us, for You are the Hearing, the Knowing. He said: So they began to build until they circled around the house and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us, for You are the Hearing, the Knowing. And Abd bin Hamid narrated it from Abd al-Razzaq in full, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from Abu Abdullah bin Hammad al-Tabarani, and Ibn Jarir from Ahmad bin Thabit al-Razi, both of them from Abd al-Razzaq in short.

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Ismail bin Ali told us, Bishr bin Musa told us, Ahmad bin Muhammad al-Azraqi told us, Muslim bin Khalid al-Zanji told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik bin Jurayj, on the authority of Kathir bin Kathir, who said: I, Uthman bin Abi Sulayman, and Abdullah bin Abdul Rahman bin Abi Husayn were with some people with Saeed bin Jubair at the top of the mosque at night, and Saeed bin Jubair said: Ask me before you do not see me, so they asked him about the station, and he began to tell them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned the hadith in full.

Then Al-Bukhari said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abu Amir Abdul Malik bin Amr told us, Ibrahim bin Nafi' told us, on the authority of Kathir bin Kathir, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When what happened between Abraham and his family happened, he went out with Ishmael and Ishmael's mother, and with them was a water skin. Ishmael's mother began to drink from the skin, and her milk flowed over her child, until they reached Mecca.

He placed them under a tree, then Abraham returned to his family, and Ishmael's mother followed him until they reached Kada'. She called out to him from behind him: O Abraham, to whom are you leaving us? He said: To God. He said: So she returned and began to drink from the water skin and her milk flowed to her child, until when the water ran out she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she climbed Safa and looked to see if she could sense anyone, but she did not sense anyone. When she reached the valley she ran until she reached Marwa and did that for seven laps until she completed seven. Then she said: If I went and looked what the child did. So she went and looked and saw that he was still in his condition as if he was gasping for death. Her soul could not be satisfied, so she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she went and climbed Safa and looked and looked to see if she could sense anyone, but she did not sense anyone. When she reached the valley she ran until she reached Marwa and did that for seven laps until she completed seven. Then she said: If I went and looked what the child did. So she went and looked and saw that he was still in his condition as if he was gasping for death. Her soul could not be satisfied, so she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she went and climbed Safa, and looked and looked, but she did not see anyone until she had completed seven days. Then she said: If only you had gone and looked, what would have happened? Then she saw a voice and said: Help, if there is any good with you. Then it was Gabriel, peace be upon him. He said: So he said with his heel: Like this, and he touched his heel on the ground, and water gushed forth. Umm Ismail was astonished, and she began to dig. He said: Abu al-Qasim, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If you had left it, the water would have appeared. He said: So she began to drink from the water and her milk flowed to her child. He said: Some people from Jurhum passed by the valley, and they saw a bird as if they were unaware of that, and they said: Birds do not exist except on water. So they sent their messenger, and he looked and it was in the water. He came to them and informed them, so they came to her and said: O mother of Ismail, do you give us permission to be with you and live with you? Then her son reached puberty and married one of their women. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he said to his family: I am going to see my estate. He came and greeted them. He said: Where is Ishmael? His wife said: He went hunting. He said: Tell him when he comes: Change the threshold of your door. When she told him, he said: You are the one, go to your family. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he said: I am going to see my estate. He came and said: Where is Ishmael? His wife said: He went hunting. She said: Why don't you come down and eat and drink? He said: What is your food and what is your drink? She said: Our food is meat, and our drink is water. He said: O God, bless them in their food and drink. He said: Abu al-Qasim, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Blessing through the supplication of Abraham. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said to his family: I am going to leave my estate. So he came and met Ismail from behind Zamzam, fixing some arrows for him. He said: O Ismail, your Lord, the Almighty, has commanded me to build a house for him. He said: Obey your Lord, the Almighty. He said: He has commanded me to help you with it. He said: Then I will do it - or something like that - He said: So he stood up and Abraham began to build and Ismail handed him the stones, and they said: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. He said: Until the building rose and the old man was too weak to carry the stones, so he stood on the stone of the station and began to hand it the stones and they said: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. This is how it was narrated from these two sources in the Book of the Prophets.

It is strange that Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Hakim narrated it in his book Al-Mustadrak on the authority of Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm on the authority of Muhammad bin Sinan Al-Qazzaz on the authority of Abu Ali Ubaid God bin Abdul Majeed Al-Hanafi on the authority of Ibrahim bin Nafi' on his authority, and he said: It is authentic according to the conditions of the two sheikhs, and they did not include it. This is what he said. Al-Bukhari narrated it, as you see, from the hadith of Ibrahim bin Nafi', and it seems that there is an abbreviation in it, as he did not mention the matter of slaughtering. He said: It came in the Sahih that the horns of the ram were hanging from the Kaaba, and it came that Ibrahim, peace be upon him, used to visit his family in Mecca quickly on Al-Buraq, then he would return to his family in the Holy Land. And God knows best. Rather, it contains places that are attributed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, which Ibn Abbas explicitly stated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated from the Commander of the Faithful, Ali ibn Abi Talib, in this context that which contradicts some of this, as Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Bashir and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, they said: Muammil told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha ibn Mudrib, on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, he said: When Abraham was ordered to build the House, Ismail and Hajar went out with him. He said: When he arrived in Mecca, he saw above his head in the place of the House something like a cloud in it like a head, so he spoke to it and said: O Abraham, build in my shadow, or he said: according to my measure, and do not increase or decrease. So when he built, he went out and left Ismail and Hajar behind, so Hajar said: O Abraham, to whom do you entrust us? He said: To God. She said: Go, for He will not let us down. He said: So Ishmael became very thirsty. Hagar went up to Safa and looked, but saw nothing. She came to Marwa and saw nothing. Then she returned to Safa and looked, but saw nothing. She did that seven times, and said: O Ishmael, die where I will not see you. She came to him while he was prostrating his foot from thirst. Gabriel called her and said: Who are you? She said: I am Hagar, the mother of Abraham's son. He said: To whom has He entrusted you both? She said:

We entrust you both to God. He said: And you both to Kaf. He said: So the boy probed the ground with his finger, and Zamzam gushed forth and began to hold back the water. He said: Leave it, for it is a quencher. In this context, it is clear that he built the House before he left her. It may be possible that it was preserved that he first put a fence and a stone around it, not that he built it to the top, until Ishmael grew up, so they built it together, as God the Most High said.

Then Ibn Jarir said: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Khalid bin Arara: That a man went to Ali, may God be pleased with him, and said: Will you not tell me about the House, is it the first House built on the earth? He said: No, but it is the first House built in the pool, the Station of Abraham, and whoever enters it is safe, and if you wish I will tell you how it was built: God revealed to Abraham to build a House for me on the earth, and Abraham was fed up with that, so God sent the Sakina, which is a strong wind with two heads, and one of them followed the other until it reached Mecca and rolled over the site of the House like the folding of a veil, and He ordered Abraham to build where the Sakina would settle, so Abraham built and the stone remained, so the boy went looking for something, so Abraham said: Find me a stone as I command you, he said: The boy went looking for a stone for him, so he brought it to him and found that he had installed the Black Stone in its place, he said: O my father, who brought you this stone? He said: It was brought to me by someone who did not rely on your construction. Gabriel, peace be upon him, brought it from heaven and completed it.

Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Bishr ibn Asim, on the authority of Saeed ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Ka'b al-Ahbar, who said: The House was a scum on the water forty years before God created the earth, and from it the earth was spread out. Saeed said: Ali ibn Abi Talib told us: Abraham came from the land of Armenia, and with him was the serenity guiding him to take up residence in the House as a spider takes up residence in a house. He said: Then it revealed stones that only thirty men could carry a stone, so I said: O Abu Muhammad, God says: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House He said: That was later. Al-Suddi said: God Almighty commanded Abraham and Ishmael to build the House, Build My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate. So Abraham set out until he came to Mecca. He and Ishmael stood up and took up their pickaxes, not knowing where the House was. Then God sent a wind called the Khajuj wind, which had two wings and a head in the form of a snake. It revealed to them around the Kaaba the foundation of the first House. They followed it with pickaxes, digging until they laid the foundation. That is when God Almighty says: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, "And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House." When they had built the foundations and reached the place of the corner, Abraham said to Ishmael: My son, find me a beautiful stone that I may place here. He said: O my father, I am lazy and ignorant. He said: I will do that. So he set out to find a stone for him, and he brought him a stone, but he was not satisfied with it. So he said: Bring me a stone better than this. So he set out to find a stone for him, and Gabriel brought him the Black Stone from India. It was white, a white ruby like a thujamah. Adam had brought it down from Paradise, but it had turned black from the sins of the people. Then Ishmael brought him a stone and found it at the corner. He said: O my father, who brought you this? He said: He brought it from someone who is more active than you, so they built and they were calling upon the words that Abraham tested his Lord with, so he said: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." In this context, there is evidence that the foundations of the House were built before Abraham, and Abraham was only guided to it and given it a place to live. Some have gone to this, as Imam Abdul Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House. He said, the foundations that were the foundations of the House before that. Abdul Razzaq also said: Hisham bin Hassan told us on the authority of Suwar, the son-in-law of Ata', on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah, who said: When God sent Adam down from Paradise, his feet were on the ground and his head was in the sky, hearing the speech of the people of the sky and their supplications, and he was comforted by them. So the angels were afraid until they complained to God in their supplications and prayers, so God Almighty lowered him to the ground. When he lost what he used to hear from them, he became lonely, until he complained about that to God in his supplications and prayers, so he turned towards Mecca and the place of his feet was a village, and his steps a desert, until he reached Mecca, and God sent down a ruby from the rubies of Paradise, and it was in the place of the House now, and he kept circling it until God sent down the flood, and that ruby was lifted up, until God sent Abraham, peace be upon him, and he built it, that is the saying of God Almighty: And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us on the authority of Ata', he said: Adam said: I do not hear the voices of the angels, so he said: Because of your sin, but descend to the earth and build me a house, then surround it as you saw the angels surrounding my house that is in the heaven. And the people claim that he built it from five mountains: from Hira', Mount Zayta, Mount Sinai, and al-Judi, and its suburb was from Hira', so this was the building of Adam until Abraham, peace be upon him, built it later, and this is correct up to Ata', but in some of it there is something strange, and God knows best.

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Abdul Razzaq also said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatada, who said: God placed the House with Adam when God sent Adam down to Earth, and his descent was in the land of India, and his head was in the sky and his feet were on the earth, so the angels feared him, then it decreased to sixty cubits, and Adam was saddened when he lost the voices of the angels and their glorification, so he complained about that to God Almighty, so God said: O Adam, I have sent down a House for you to circumambulate as one circumambulates around My Throne, and to pray at it as one prays at My Throne, so Adam went to it, and he went out and stretched out his steps for him, so between every two steps there was a wilderness, and that wilderness did not cease after that, so Adam came to the House and circumambulated it, and after him from the prophets.

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Humayd told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Hafs ibn Humayd, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: God placed the House on the four pillars of water before the creation of the world by two thousand years, then the earth was rolled out from under the House. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Abdullah ibn Abi Nujayh told me, on the authority of Mujahid and other scholars: When God designated the location of the House for Abraham, he went out to it from Syria, and Ishmael and his mother Hagar went out with him, and Ishmael was a small child who was being breastfed. And they were carried, as he told me, on Buraq, and Gabriel was with him, guiding him to the location of the House and the landmarks of the Sanctuary. Gabriel went out with him, and he would not pass by a village without saying: Is this where you were commanded, O Gabriel? Gabriel would say: Go with him, until he brought him to Mecca, which at that time was Udhah, Salim and Samar, and in it were people called the Amalekites outside Mecca and its environs. And the House at that time was a red, muddy hill, so Abraham said to Gabriel: Was I commanded to place them here? He said: Yes, so he took them to the place of the Black Stone and settled them there, and he ordered Hajar, the mother of Ismail, to build a hut there, and he said: Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House until His saying: that they may be grateful. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Hisham ibn Hassan informed us, Hamid informed me, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: God created the location of this House two thousand years before He created anything, and its pillars are in the seventh earth. And Laith ibn Abi Salim said the same on the authority of Mujahid: The foundations are in the seventh earth. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father informed us, Amr ibn Rafi' informed us, Abd al-Wahhab ibn Muawiyah informed us, on the authority of Abd al-Mu'min ibn Khalid, on the authority of Aliya ibn Ahmar: Dhul-Qarnayn came to Mecca and found Abraham and Ismail building the foundations of the House from five mountains. So he said: What do you have to do with my land? He said: We are two commanded servants, we were commanded to build this Kaaba. He said: Bring the proof of what you claim. Five rams stood up and said: We bear witness that Abraham and Ishmael were two servants who were commanded to build this Kaaba. He said: I am satisfied and I submit, then he left. Al-Azraqi mentioned in the History of Mecca that Dhul-Qarnayn circumambulated the House with Abraham, peace be upon him, and this indicates that he was an advanced man in his time, and God knows best.

Al-Bukhari may God have mercy on him said: The Almighty's saying: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House (Al-Qawa'id: 33). The foundations: its foundation, the singular of which is Qawa'id, and the singular of Qawa'id among women is Qawa'id. Ismail told us: Malik told me on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Salim bin Abdullah, that Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abi Bakr told Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Did you not see that when your people built the House, they limited themselves to the foundations of Abraham? I said: O Messenger of God, will you not return it to the foundations of Abraham? He said: Had it not been for the recent disbelief of your people. Abdullah bin Umar said: If Aisha heard this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), I do not see the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) leaving out touching the two corners next to the Black Stone, except that the House was not completed on the foundations of Abraham (peace be upon him). It was narrated in Hajj on the authority of Al-Qa'nabi, and in the Hadiths of the Prophets on the authority of Abdullah bin Yusuf and Muslim, on the authority of Yahya bin Yahya, and from the hadith of Ibn Wahb and Al-Nasa'i on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Al-Qasim, all on the authority of Malik with it. Muslim also narrated it on the authority of Nafi' who said: I heard Abdullah bin Abi Bakr bin Abi Quhafah, narrating to Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Aisha, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Had it not been that your people had recently converted from ignorance - or he said: from disbelief - I would have spent the treasure of the Ka'ba in the way of God, and I would have made its door in the ground and included the Black Stone in it." Al-Bukhari said: Ubaydullah bin Musa informed us on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Aswad, who said: Ibn Al-Zubayr said to me: Aisha used to tell you many secret hadiths, so what did she tell you about the Ka'ba? He said: I said: She told me: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O Aisha, were it not that your people had recently converted to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and made two doors for it: one for people to enter through and one for them to exit through." So Ibn al-Zubayr did so. Al-Bukhari is the only one to narrate it, and he narrated it like this in the Book of Knowledge of his Sahih. Muslim said in his Sahih: Yahya bin Yahya told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: "Were it not that your people had recently converted to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and made it on the foundation of Abraham, for when the Quraysh built the House, they shortened it, and they would have made a successor for it." He said: Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah and Abu Kurayb told us, they said: Ibn Numayr told us, on the authority of Hisham, with this chain of transmission, and Muslim is the only one to narrate it. He said: Muhammad ibn Hatim told me, Ibn Mahdi told me, Salim ibn Hayyan told us, on the authority of Sa'id, meaning Ibn Mina'. He said: I heard Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr say: My aunt, meaning Aisha, may God be pleased with her, told me that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O Aisha, if your people were not recent converts to polytheism, I would have demolished the Kaaba and leveled it with the ground, and I would have made an eastern door and a western door for it, and I would have added six cubits of stone to it, for the Quraysh had shortened it when they built the Kaaba." This is also unique to him.

He was transferred with them in the stones when he was thirty-five years old. May God's prayers and peace be upon him forever until the Day of Judgment. Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Yasar said in the biography: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, reached thirty-five years of age, the Quraysh gathered to build the Kaaba, and they intended to do so in order to roof it and were afraid to demolish it, but it was only rubble above the height of a person, so they wanted to raise it and roof it. This was because a group of people had stolen the treasure of the Kaaba, which was in a well inside the Kaaba. The one who found the treasure was Duwaik, a client of Banu Malih bin Amr from Khuza'ah, so the Quraysh cut off his hand, and people claim that those who stole it placed it with Duwaik. The sea had thrown a ship to Jeddah belonging to a Roman merchant, and it was shattered, so they took its wood and prepared it to roof it. There was a Coptic carpenter in Mecca, so he prepared for them some of what would repair it. There was a snake that came out of the well of the Kaaba into which it threw what was given to it every day, and it would hang itself on the wall of the Kaaba, and it was one of the things they feared, because no one would approach it except that it would shake, scrape, and open its mouth. They feared her. One day, while she was standing on the wall of the Kaaba as she used to do, God sent a bird to her and snatched her away. The Quraysh said: We hope that God is pleased with what we want. We have a gentle worker and wood, and God has spared us from the snake. When they decided to demolish and rebuild it, Abu Wahb ibn Amr ibn Aaidh ibn Abd ibn Imran ibn Makhzum stood up and took a stone from the Kaaba, which jumped out of his hand until it returned to its place. He said: O people of the Quraysh, do not include in its construction anything from your earnings except what is good. Do not include in it the dowry of a prostitute, nor a sale based on usury, nor the oppression of any of the people. Ibn Ishaq said: People attribute these words to Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira ibn Abdullah ibn Amr ibn Makhzum. He said: Then the Quraysh divided the Kaaba, so the section of the door went to the Banu Abd Manaf and Zuhrah, and the area between the Black Corner and the Yemeni Corner went to the Banu Makhzum and tribes of the Quraysh. They joined them, and the back of the Kaaba belonged to Banu Jumah and Sahm, and the split in the stone belonged to Banu Abd al-Dar ibn Qusayy, Banu Asad ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Qusayy, and Banu Adi ibn Kaab ibn Luayy, which is al-Hutaym. Then the people feared its demolition and were afraid of it, so al-Walid ibn al-Mughira said, I will start with you in demolishing it. So he took the pickaxe and stood over it saying, "O God, do not be afraid. O God, we only want good." Then he demolished from the side of the two corners, and the people waited that night and said, "We will wait. If it is hit, we will not demolish anything of it, and we will return it as it was. If nothing is hit, then God is pleased with what we have done." So al-Walid went to work that night, and he demolished and the people demolished with him, until when the demolition reached the foundation, the foundation of Abraham, peace be upon him, they came upon green stones like spears, some of which were attached to others. He said, Someone who narrates the hadith told me that a man from Quraysh who was demolishing it inserted a lever between two of its stones in order to remove one of them as well. When the stone moved, all of Mecca revolted, and they stopped that foundation.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Ibn Ishaq said: Then the tribes of Quraysh gathered stones to build it, each tribe gathered separately, then they built it until the building reached the place of the corner, meaning the Black Stone, then they disputed about it, each tribe wanted to raise it to its place without the other, until they discussed and disagreed and prepared for battle, so Banu Abd al-Dar brought a bowl filled with blood, then they and Banu Adi bin Kaab bin Luay agreed to die, and they put their hands in that blood in that bowl and they called it the blood lick, so Quraysh remained like that for four or five nights, then they gathered in the mosque and consulted and divided equally, so some of the narrators claimed that Abu Umayyah bin al-Mughira bin Abdullah bin Amr bin Makhzum, who was at that time the oldest of all Quraysh, said: O people of Quraysh, make between you in what you disagree about the first one to enter through the door of this mosque to judge between you in it, so they did, and the first to enter was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and when they saw him they said: This is the trustworthy one, we are satisfied, this is Muhammad. When he reached them and they told him the report, he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Bring me a garment. So it was brought to him, and he took the corner, meaning the Black Stone, and placed it in it with his hand. Then he said: Let each tribe take a corner of the garment and then lift it all together. So they did until they reached its place, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, placed it with his hand, then he built on it. The Quraysh used to call the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before the revelation came down, the Trustworthy One. So when they finished building and built it as they wanted, Al-Zubayr ibn Abdul Muttalib said, regarding the matter of the snake for which the Quraysh feared the construction of the Kaaba:

I was surprised when the eagle aimed at the snake while it was in a state of agitation.

It used to have a kesheesh and sometimes it used to have a thawb.

If we set out to establish, the building will be feared and you will be afraid

But when we feared the punishment, a punishment came pouring forth from it.

Then she took her to herself and left us with a building without a veil.

So we gathered to build our foundations and soil.

Tomorrow we will raise the foundation from it and there will be no clothes on our faults

The king honored the Banu Luay with it, so his origins are not lost to them.

And Banu Adi gathered there, and once they were led by Kalb.

So the king gave us honor for that, and he seeks reward from God.

Ibn Ishaq said: The Kaaba was eighteen cubits high during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it was covered with Coptic, then it was covered with brocade, and the first to cover it with brocade was Al-Hajjaj bin Yusuf. I said It remained as the Quraysh built it until it was burned at the beginning of the emirate of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr after the year sixty and at the end of the reign of Yazid bin Muawiyah, when they besieged Ibn Al-Zubayr. Then Ibn Al-Zubayr demolished it to the ground and built it on the foundations of Abraham, peace be upon him, and inserted the stone into it, and made for it an eastern door and a western door attached to the ground as he heard that from his aunt Aisha, the mother of the believers, from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. It remained like that during the period of his emirate until Al-Hajjaj killed him, and he returned it to what it was by the order of Abdul Malik bin Marwan to do so, as Muslim bin Al-Hajjaj said in his Sahih: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, Ibn Abi Zaidah told us, Ibn Abi Sulayman told us on the authority of Ata', who said: When the House was burned during the time of Yazid bin Muawiyah when the people of Ash-Sham invaded it, and what happened happened, Ibn Al-Zubayr left it. Al-Zubayr, until the people arrived at the season, wanted to form a party among them or seek their protection against the people of Ash-Sham. When the people left, he said: O people, advise me regarding the Kaaba, should I demolish it and then rebuild it, or repair what is damaged in it? Ibn Abbas said: I have a different opinion about it. I think that you should repair what is damaged in it, and leave a house that the people were safe upon, and stones that the people were safe upon, and that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent upon. Ibn Al-Zubayr said: If one of them had his house burned down, he would not be satisfied until he renovated it, so how about the house of your Lord, the Almighty and Majestic? I seek counsel from my Lord for three days, then I am determined to do my thing. When three days had passed, he decided to demolish it, but the people avoided it lest something from the sky descend upon the first person to ascend it. Then a man climbed it and threw stones from it. When the people did not see anything happen to it, they followed one another and demolished it until they reached the ground. Ibn al-Zubayr made pillars to cover them with curtains until its construction rose. Ibn al-Zubayr said: I heard Aisha, may God be pleased with her, say that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Were it not that the people had recently converted from disbelief, and that I did not have the means to build it, I would have added five cubits of stone to it, and made a door for people to enter through, and a door for them to exit through." He said: I find what I can spend, and I am not afraid of people. He said: So he added five cubits of stone to it until he showed it a foundation. The people looked at it, so he built the structure on it. The length of the Kaaba was eighteen cubits, but when he added to it, he shortened it, so he added ten cubits at the beginning and made two doors for it: one for entering through, and one for exiting through. And the other comes out of it. When Ibn al-Zubayr was killed, al-Hajjaj wrote to Abd al-Malik asking him to permit him to do so and informing him that Ibn al-Zubayr had put the building on a foundation that the just people of Mecca had seen. Abd al-Malik wrote to him: We are not against Ibn al-Zubayr's taint in anything. As for what he added to its height, he approved it, and as for what he added of stones, he returned it to its building, and closed the door that he opened, so he demolished it and returned it to its building. Al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Hanad, on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Za'idah, on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn al-Zubayr, on the authority of Aisha, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He did not mention the story, and the Sunnah was an approval of what Abd God ibn al-Zubayr, may God be pleased with them both, had done, because he was the one whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved. However, he feared that some people's hearts would reject it because of their newness to Islam and their recent history of disbelief. However, this Sunnah was hidden from Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan, and for this reason, when it was confirmed on the authority of Aisha, she narrated it on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saying: We wished that we had left it. And he did not take over, as Muslim said: Muhammad bin Hatim told me, Muhammad bin Bakr told us, Ibn Jurayj told us: I heard Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair and Al-Walid bin Ata' narrating on the authority of Al-Harith bin Abdullah bin Abi Rabi'ah, Abdullah bin Ubaid said: Al-Harith bin Abdullah delegated to Abdul Malik bin Marwan during his caliphate, and Abdul Malik said: I do not think that Abu Habib, meaning Ibn Al-Zubayr, heard from Aisha what he claimed he heard from her, Al-Harith said: Yes, I heard it from her. He said: I heard her say what? He said: She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Your people have shortened the construction of the House, and were it not for the recent conversion to polytheism, I would have restored what they had left of it. If your people decide to rebuild it after me, then come and I will show you what they have left of it." So I saw it was close to seven cubits. This is the hadith of Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair, and Al-Walid bin Ata' added to it: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And I would have made two doors for it placed in the ground: one to the east and one to the west. Do you know why your people raised its door? She said: No. He said: To strengthen it so that no one would enter it except those they wanted. So when a man wanted to enter it, they would call him until he climbed up, until when he was about to enter, they would push him and he would fall. Abdul Malik said: So I said to Al-Harith: Did you hear her say that? He said: Yes. He said: So he poked it for a while with his stick, then he said: I wish I had left it and not carried it. Muslim said: Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Jabalah told us, Abu Asim H told us, and Abd ibn Hamid told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, both of them on the authority of Ibn Jurayj with this chain of transmission like the hadith of Abu Bakr. He said: Muhammad ibn Hatim told us, Abdullah ibn Bakr al-Sahmi told us, Hatim ibn Abi Saghira told us on the authority of Abu Qaz'ah: While Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan was circumambulating the House, he said: May God kill Ibn al-Zubayr, for he lies about the Mother of the Believers. He said: I heard her say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Aisha, were it not for the recent disbelief of your people, I would have demolished the Kaaba so that I could add more stones to it, for your people have fallen short in building it. Al-Harith ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Rabi'ah said: Do not say this, O Commander of the Faithful, for I heard the Mother of the Believers say this. He said: If I had heard it before I demolished it, I would have left it as Ibn al-Zubayr had built it. This hadith is as if it is definitely attributed to Aisha, because it has been narrated from her through multiple authentic chains of transmission on the authority of al-Aswad ibn Yazid, al-Harith ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Rabi'ah, Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Bakr, and Urwah ibn al-Zubayr. This indicates that what Ibn al-Zubayr did was correct, and if it had been left, it would have been good.

But after the matter returned to this state, some scholars were reluctant to change its state, as was mentioned about the Commander of the Faithful, Harun al-Rashid, or his father, al-Mahdi, that he asked Imam Malik about demolishing the Kaaba and returning it to what Ibn al-Zubayr had done. Malik said to him: O Commander of the Faithful, do not make the Kaaba of God a playground for kings. No one wants to demolish it except that he demolishes it. Al-Rashid left that. It was narrated by Iyad and al-Nawawi. And it will remain like this - and God knows best - until the end of time until it is destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatayn from Abyssinia, as was proven in the two Sahih on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The Kaaba will be destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatayn from Abyssinia. They both reported it. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, It is as if I see a black man with a hump, tearing it out stone by stone. Narrated by al-Bukhari. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said in his Musnad: Ahmad ibn Abd al-Malik

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

al-Haranin informed us. Muhammad ibn Salamah informed us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahidin on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-As, may God be pleased with them both, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "The Kaaba will be destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatain from Abyssinia, who will strip it of its ornaments and will strip it of its covering. It is as if I see..." To him, Asli' Afid'a, who strikes it with his shovel and pickaxe - Fad'a: a deviation between the foot and the shin bone - and this, and God knows best, will only happen after the emergence of Gog and Magog, as it came in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: They will perform Hajj to the House and Umrah after the emergence of Gog and Magog.

And the Almighty's saying, narrating the supplication of Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, "Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful." Ibn Jarir said: By that they mean, And make us submissive to Your command, submissive to Your obedience, and we do not associate anyone with You in obedience, nor in worship other than You. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ismail told us on the authority of Raja' ibn Hibban al-Hasani al-Qurashi, Maqal ibn Ubayd God told us on the authority of Abd al-Karim, And make us Muslims [in submission] to You, he said: sincere to You, And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You, he said: sincere. He also said: Ali ibn al-Husayn told us, al-Muqaddami told us, Sa'id ibn Amir told us on the authority of Salam ibn Abi Mut'i regarding this verse, And make us Muslims, he said: They were Muslims, but they asked him to be steadfast. Ikrimah said, Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You. God said, I have done so. "And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You." God said, I have done so. As-Suddi said, And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. They both mean the Arabs. Ibn Jarir said, "The correct interpretation is that it includes the Arabs and others, because from the descendants of Abraham are the Children of Israel, and God the Most High said, "And among the people of Moses is a nation guiding with the truth and doing justice thereby." I say, As-Suddi does not deny what Ibn Jarir said, because singling them out for that does not negate others, and the context is the Arabs, and that is why He said after it, Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from themselves who will recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and purify them. What is meant by this is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sent among them as God Almighty said: It is He who has sent among the unlettered a Messenger from among themselves. However, this does not negate his message to the red and the black, as God Almighty said: Say, 'O mankind, indeed I am the Messenger of God to you all,' and other conclusive evidence. This supplication was made by Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, as God Almighty informed us about His pious and believing servants in His saying: And those who say, 'Our Lord, grant us from among our wives and offspring comfort to our eyes and make us an example for the righteous.' This amount is desired by the Sharia, because part of the perfection of loving the worship of God Almighty is to love that there be from his offspring someone who worships God alone, with no partner. And for this reason, when God the Almighty said to Abraham, peace be upon him, Indeed, I will make you a leader for mankind, He said, And of my descendants. He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, which is His saying, And keep me and my children away from worshipping idols. It has been proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, that he said, "When the son of Adam dies, his deeds come to an end except for three: ongoing charity, beneficial knowledge, or a righteous child who prays for him." And show us our rituals, Ibn Jarir said on the authority of Ata', And show us our rituals, he brought them out for us so that we may learn them. Mujahid said, Show us our rituals, meaning our slaughterhouses. Something similar was also narrated on the authority of Ata' and Qatadah. Saeed bin Mansour said: Itab bin Bashir told us on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Ibrahim said, Show us our rituals. Gabriel showed him to him and brought him to the House. He said, Raise the foundations. So he raised the foundations and completed the building. Then he took him by the hand and led him out and went with him to Safa. He said, This is one of the symbols of God. Then he went with him to Marwah. He said, This is one of the symbols of God. Then he went with him towards Mina. When he reached Aqaba, Satan was standing by the tree. He said, Say 'Allahu Akbar' and throw it. So he said, Allahu Akbar and threw it. Then Satan went and stood at the middle Jamarat. When Gabriel and Ibrahim passed by him, he said to him, Say 'Allahu Akbar' and throw it. So he said, Allahu Akbar and threw it. Then the evil Satan went away. The evil one wanted to include something in the Hajj, but he could not. So he took Ibrahim by the hand until he came to the Sacred Monument. He said, This is the Sacred Monument. So Ibrahim took Ibrahim by the hand and brought him to Arafat. He said, Do you understand what I showed you? He said it three times. He said, Yes. Abu Majlaz and Qatadah narrated something similar to this. Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi said: Hammad ibn Salamah told us on the authority of Abu al-Asim al-Ghanawi, on the authority of Abu al-Tufayl, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ibrahim was shown the commands of the rituals, Satan appeared to him at the Mas'a, so Ibrahim raced him, then Gabriel took him until he came to Mina. He said: This is the place where people stop. When he reached Jamrat al-Aqaba, Satan appeared to him, so he threw seven pebbles at him until he went away. Then he brought him to Jamrat al-Qawwa, and Satan appeared to him, so he threw seven pebbles at him until he went away. He brought him all together and said: This is al-Mash'ar. Then he brought him to Arafat, and he said: This is Arafat. Gabriel said to him: Do you recognize it?

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 126- And when Abraham said The hadiths will come indicating that Abraham was the one who made Mecca sacred, and the hadiths indicating that God made it sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and combining these hadiths in this research. And His saying: A secure city means Mecca, and what is meant is: supplication for its people from his descendants and others, like His saying: A life of contentment meaning its owner is content. And His saying: Whoever believes is a substitute for the saying of his al-Nas 114: meaning provide for whoever believes from his family, not for whoever disbelieves. And His saying: And whoever disbelieves, it appears that this is from the words of God Almighty in response to Abraham, where he asked for provision for the believers and not others: that is, and I provide for whoever disbelieves, so I grant him enjoyment of provision for a little while, then I force him to the punishment of the Fire. And it is possible that it is an independent statement explaining the state of whoever disbelieves, and it is like informing about the state of the disbelievers with this conditional sentence: that is, whoever disbelieves, then I grant him enjoyment in this world with what he needs of provision, then I force him after this enjoyment to the punishment of the Fire. So God Almighty informed that the disbelievers will not attain any good except their enjoyment in this world, and they will have nothing after that except what is pure evil, which is the punishment of the Fire. As for the reading of those who read so I grant him enjoyment in the imperative form, and likewise His saying: then I force him in the imperative form, it is based on the fact that this is from the words of Abraham, and that when he finished praying for the believers, he prayed for the disbelievers to enjoy a little while, then he prayed against them that He force them to the punishment of the Fire. The meaning of forced him is that he forced him to do it until he was forced to do it and could not find a way out of it or a way out of it.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

126. God the Almighty said: "And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this' meaning Mecca, and it was said: the Sacred Sanctuary 'a secure city' meaning one where its people are safe, 'and provide its people with fruits'. He only prayed that because it was in a valley without crops. In the stories, it is mentioned that At-Ta'if was one of the cities of Ash-Sham in Jordan, so when Abraham, peace be upon him, prayed this prayer, God the Almighty ordered Gabriel, peace be upon him, to uproot it from its roots and circle it around the House seven times, then put it in the place where it is now, and from it most of the fruits of Mecca are. 'Whoever among them believes in God and the Last Day' is a prayer for the believers in particular. God the Almighty said: 'And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little' Ibn 'Amir read 'I will grant him enjoyment' lightly with a damma on the hamza, and the rest read it with emphasis, and their meaning is the same, 'a little' meaning I will also provide the disbeliever for a little until the end of his life. This is because God the Almighty promised provision for all of creation, both believers and disbelievers. He only restricted it to little because the enjoyment of this world is little. 'Then I will compel him' meaning I will force him in the Hereafter 'to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination' meaning the return to which he will go. Mujahid said: He found At the station there is a book in which it says: God is the owner of Mecca, which He created on the day He created the sun and the moon, and He made it sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and He surrounded it with seven upright angels, whose sustenance comes to them from three paths, and they are blessed in meat and water.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

126- "And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this' meaning the city, or the place. 'A secure city', as God Almighty says, 'In a life of contentment.' Or make its people secure, as you say: a sleeping night. 'And provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day.'" He substituted for whoever believes "his people" a substitute for some for specification. "He said, 'And whoever disbelieves' is in apposition to believed." The meaning is, provide whoever disbelieves. Abraham, peace be upon him, compared provision to leadership, so God Almighty pointed out that provision is a worldly mercy that includes the believer and the disbeliever, unlike leadership and advancement in religion. Or a subject that includes the meaning of condition, "So let him enjoy himself a little" is its predicate, and if disbelief is not a reason for enjoyment, it is a reason for reducing it, by making him confined to the fortunes of this world and not using it to attain reward, and for this reason, Then He will compel him to the punishment of the Fire is conjoined to it, meaning He will force him to it as one who is compelled by his disbelief and his loss of the blessings He has given him, and a little is accusative as a source, or an adverb. And it was read in the imperative form in both of them as being from the supplication of Abraham, and in said is his pronoun. Ibn Amir read So let him enjoy himself from amta'a. And it was read Fanata'u thumma natadruhu, and litarahu with a kasra on the hamza according to the language of those who break the letters of the present tense, and litarahu with the assimilation of the dad, which is weak because the letters Damma Shafar are assimilated into what is adjacent to them, but not vice versa.

"And what an evil destination" is the one specifically blamed, which is the torment.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:126

And when Abraham said, "My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in Allah and the Last Day." He said, "And whoever disbelieves - I will let him enjoy himself for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire - and wretched is the destination."

Surat al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing."

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And mention when Abraham was raising the foundations the foundations or the walls of the House building it, related to raising and Ishmael in apposition to Abraham, they said Our Lord, accept from us our construction Indeed, You are the Hearing of the statement the Knowing of the action.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His saying: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this a secure city,' and remember when Abraham said: My Lord, make this city a secure city.

Abu Ja'far said: By his saying, We have faith, he means that we are safe from the tyrants and others, that they would have power over him, and from the punishment of God that he would befall him as he befalls all other countries, from subsidence, collapse, drowning, and other than that from the wrath of God and its examples that befall all other countries besides him, as: Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Sa'id told us, from Qatada, he said: It was mentioned to us that the sanctuary is a sanctuary opposite the throne. And it was mentioned to us that the House descended with Adam when he descended. God said to him: Descend with you to My House, so that it may be circumambulated as My Throne is circumambulated. So Adam and those who came after him of the believers circumambulated around it, until the time of the flood came when God drowned the people of Noah, He raised it and purified it, and the punishment of the people of the earth did not befall it. So Abraham followed a trace of it, so he built it on an ancient foundation that had been before it.

If someone were to say to us: Was the sanctuary not safe until after Abraham asked his Lord for safety?

It was said to him: There is a difference of opinion about that. Some of them said: The sanctuary has always been safe from the punishment of God and the punishment of the tyrants of His creation, since the heavens and the earth were created. They based this on the following: Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Yunus bin Bakir narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ishaq, he said: Saeed bin Abi Saeed Al-Maqburi narrated to me, he said: "I heard Abu Shuraih Al-Khuza'i say: When Mecca was conquered, Khuza'ah killed a man from Hudhayl, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood up and gave a sermon and said: O people, God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. It is not permissible for a man who believes in God and the Last Day to shed blood there or cut down trees there. Beware, it is not permissible for anyone after me, and it was not permissible for me except at this moment, out of anger at its people. Beware, it has returned to the state it was yesterday. Beware, let the witness inform the absent. Whoever says: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was killed there! Say: God made it permissible for His Messenger but did not make it permissible for you."

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, saying: Abd al-Raheem ibn Sulayman narrated to us, and Ibn Humayd and Ibn Wakee' narrated to us, saying: Jarir narrated to us all, on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Ziyad, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said about Mecca when he conquered it: This is a sanctuary, God made it sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and created the sun and the moon, and placed these two pieces of wood. It was not permissible for anyone before me, and it will not be permissible for anyone after me. It was made permissible for me for an hour of the day." They said: So Mecca, since it was created, has been a sanctuary, safe from the punishment of God and the punishment of the tyrants. They said: The authentic narration from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which we mentioned, has informed us of the correctness of what we have said about that. They said: Abraham did not ask his Lord to protect him from His punishment and the punishment of the tyrants, but he asked Him to protect his people from drought and famine, and to provide its inhabitants with fruits, as his Lord informed him that he asked Him in His saying: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day.' They said: He only asked his Lord for that because he had settled his offspring in it, and it had neither crops nor milk. So he sought refuge with his Lord from destroying them there with hunger and thirst, so he asked Him to keep them safe from what He had warned them against.

They said: How is it possible that Abraham asked his Lord to make the sanctuary sacred and to protect him from His punishment and the punishment of the tyrants of His creation, when he said, when he settled there with his family and children: Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House (Ibrahim 14:37)? They said: If Abraham was the one who made the sanctuary sacred or asked his Lord to make it sacred, he would not have said: Near Your sacred House when he settled there, but he made it sacred before it and made it sacred after it.

Others said: The sanctuary was permissible before the call of Abraham, like all other lands. It only became forbidden by Abraham's forbidding it, just as the city of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was permissible before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade it. They said: The evidence for what we have said is what Ibn Bashar told us, he said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, he said: Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “Abraham made the House of God sacred and made it secure, and I have made Medina sacred, what is between its two lava plains. Its game is not to be hunted, and its trees are not to be cut.”

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

Abu Kurayb and Abu al-Sa’ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, and Abu Kurayb informed us, he said: Abd al-Rahim al-Razi told us, they both said: We heard Ash’ath, on the authority of Nafim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, he said: “The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: ‘Abraham was his servant and his friend, and I am his servant and his messenger. Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made Medina sacred, what is between its two lava plains, its trees and its game. No weapons may be carried in it for fighting, and no tree may be cut down from it except for camel fodder.’”

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Qutaybah bin Saeed told us, he said, Bakr bin Mudar told us, on the authority of Ibn al-Haad, on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr bin Othman, on the authority of Rafi bin Khadij, he said: “The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: ‘Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I make Medina sacred, what is between its two lava plains.’”

And similar report that would take too long to cover in a book.

They said: God Almighty has informed us in His Book that Abraham said: My Lord, make this a secure city, but He did not inform us that he asked to make it secure from some things but not others. So no one can claim that what he asked for was security from some things but not others, except with an argument that must be accepted. They said: As for the report of Abu Shuraih and Ibn Abbas, they are two reports that cannot be used as evidence, because of the reasons in their chains of transmission that must not be accepted because of them.

Abu Ja’far said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that God, the Most High, made Mecca a sanctuary when He created and established it, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed us that He made it sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, without Him forbidding it through the tongue of any of His prophets and messengers, but by preventing those who wanted to harm it, and by repelling from it the plagues and punishments and from its inhabitants what He has made permissible for others besides it and its inhabitants of punishments. This remained the case until God settled Abraham, His friend, in it, and settled his family, Hagar, and his son, Ishmael, in it. Then Abraham asked his Lord to impose the obligation of its prohibition on His servants through his tongue, so that it would be a tradition for those of His creation who would come after him, following his example in it, since God, the Most High, had taken him as a friend, and informed him that He would make him an imam for the people to follow. So his Lord answered his question, and obligated His servants to impose its prohibition through his tongue.

So Mecca became forbidden after God forbade it, without God imposing the obligation of abstaining from it on His servants, and forbidden by God’s repelling of it, without His forbidding it on the tongue of any of His messengers. He imposed its prohibition on His creation on the tongue of His friend Abraham, peace be upon him, and it became obligatory upon His servants to abstain from considering it permissible, and to consider its game and its animals permissible for it by His imposing the obligation of abstaining from that, by Abraham conveying God’s message to him for that to them.

Therefore, its prohibition was attributed to Abraham, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, God has made Mecca sacred. Because the imposition of its prohibition that God has obligated His servants to do as a form of worship to Him, not the prohibition that He had always done as an act of worship to protect and preserve it before that, was about Abraham asking his Lord to impose that on his tongue, or is it the one that the servants were obligated to impose and not others.

It has become clear from what we have said that the meaning of the two reports is correct, I mean the report of Abu Shuraih and Ibn Abbas on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the sun and the moon, and the report of Jabir, Abu Hurairah, Rafi’ ibn Khadij, and others: “The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, ‘O God, Abraham made Mecca sacred.’” And that neither of them negates the meaning of the other, as some ignorant people have thought.

It is not permissible in the report of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, for some of them to contradict others, if their authenticity is proven. The two report reports that were narrated in this regard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came in a clear and widespread manner that eliminates the excuse of whoever heard it.

As for the saying of Abraham, peace be upon him: Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House (Ibrahim 14:37), if he said it before God made it obligatory to prohibit it on His tongue to His creation, then he meant by that God’s prohibition of it, which He prohibited by His protection and guardianship of it, without His prohibition of it to His creation as an act of worship to them by that. And if he said that after God prohibited it on His tongue to His creation as an act of worship, then no one has any question against us regarding that.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty’s saying: And provide his family with fruits, whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day.

Abu Ja'far said: This was a request from Abraham to his Lord: To provide the believers of Mecca with fruits, but not the unbelievers. He specifically asked the believers to do so, but not the unbelievers, because God informed him when he asked him to make from his descendants leaders to be followed, that among them would be the unbeliever who would not fulfill his covenant, and the oppressor who would not attain his authority. So when he knew that among his descendants would be the oppressor and the unbeliever, he specifically asked his Lord to provide the inhabitants of Mecca with fruits, the believers among them but not the unbelievers. And God said to him: I have answered your prayer, and I will provide with the unbeliever along with the believers of this country, so let him enjoy it for a little while.

As for min in His statement: Whoever among them believes in God and the Last Day, it is in the accusative case for translation and clarification of the people, as God Almighty said: They ask you about fighting in the sacred month (al-Baqarah 2:217), meaning: They ask you about fighting in the sacred month, and as God Almighty said: And Hajj to the House is a duty owed to God by people who can afford the expenses (Al-Imran: 97), meaning: And Hajj to the House is owed to God by whoever can afford the expenses.

Abraham asked his Lord for what he asked for because he had settled in a valley with no crops, no water, and no people. So he asked that He provide his people with fruit and that He make people's hearts yearn for them. It was mentioned that when Abraham asked his Lord for that, God moved Taif from Palestine.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq bin Al-Hajjaj Qaq told us, Hisham told us, he said, I read to Muhammad bin Muslim: When Abraham prayed for the sanctuary: And provide its people with fruits, God moved Taif from Palestine.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little."

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed about who said this statement and how to read it. Some of them said: The one who said this statement is our Lord, may He be exalted. And its interpretation according to their saying is: He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little with My provision of fruits in this world, until his time comes to him. And the one who said this statement read it as: So I will grant him enjoyment for a little, with a shaddah on the ta' and a raised 'ayn.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', he said, Abu Al-'Aliyah told me, on the authority of Abi Ibn Ka'b, regarding his statement: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, he said, it is the statement of the Lord, may He be exalted.

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq said:

When Abraham said: My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day, and he turned away from the call to those whom God refused to give authority to, out of devotion to God and love, and separation from those who disobeyed his command, even if they were from his descendants, when he knew that there would be among them a wrongdoer who would not fulfill his covenant, by his report of that when he informed him, God said: And whoever disbelieves, then I provide for the righteous and the wicked, I will grant him enjoyment for a little.

Others said: Rather, Abraham, the friend of the Most Merciful, said that as a request from his Lord to provide the unbeliever with fruits in the Sacred Land, like that which He provides for the believer and to give him enjoyment of that for a little while, Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire with a light ta' and a jazm on the 'ayn, and a fathah on the ra' of I will force him, and he separated Then I will force him without cutting off its alif as a request from Abraham to his Lord for them and a request.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', he said, Abu Al-'Aliyah said: Ibn Abbas used to say: That is the saying of Abraham, asking his Lord that whoever disbelieves, then let him enjoy himself for a little.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of Layth, on the authority of Mujahid: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little, meaning: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him provision also, then I will force him to the torment of the Fire.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct reading and interpretation of this, according to us, is what Abi bin Ka'b said and his reading, because the proof is established by the widespread transmission, with knowledge of the correctness of that, and the anomaly of the reading that contradicts it. It is not permissible to object to someone who is permitted to make mistakes and forgetfulness in his transmission, against someone who is not permitted to do so in his transmission. Since that is the case, the interpretation of the verse is: God said: O Abraham, I have answered your prayer, and I have provided the believers of this city with fruits and their disbelievers with provision for them until they reach their appointed times, then their disbelievers were forced after that to the Fire.

As for his saying: Then I will grant him a little enjoyment, he means: I will make what I provide him from that during his life a provision that he will enjoy until the time of his death.

We said that this is the case because God Almighty said that to Abraham in response to his question about the provision of fruits for the believers of Mecca. It was known from this that the answer was only in what Abraham asked for and nothing else. Mujahid said what we said about that, and we have mentioned the narration about that from him.

Some of them said: Its interpretation is: So he gave him enjoyment by remaining in this world.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

Another said: So I will let him enjoy himself for a little while in his disbelief as long as he stays in Mecca, until I send Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to kill him if he continues in his disbelief, or to expel him from it. And even though this is an aspect that the speech allows, the apparent evidence of the speech is to the contrary, for what we have described.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, then I will push him to the punishment of the Fire and drive him to it, as God Almighty said: On the Day they are called to the Fire of Hell, he will be called (al-Tur 52:13).

The meaning of compulsion is coercion. It is said: I compelled someone to do this, if I forced him to do it and made him do it.

This is the meaning of his saying: Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, I will push him into it and drive him, dragging and pulling him on his face.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And an evil destination.

Abu Jaafar said: We have shown that the root of the word ba'isa is ba'isa from ba'usa with the second letter being quiescent, and the second letter being moved to the beginning, just as the word kabd is said for the liver, and the like.

The meaning of the words: And the destination is evil, the torment of the Fire, after the worldly pleasures that they enjoyed. As for destiny, it is a verbal noun derived from the saying of the speaker: I have become a good destination, and it is the place to which the disbeliever in God will go from the torment of the Fire.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: “And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], ‘Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.’”

The Almighty said: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House. The foundations: its foundation, according to Abu Ubaidah and Al-Farra'. Al-Kisa'i said: they are the walls. It is known that it is the foundation. In the hadith:

When the House was demolished, large stones were taken out of it. Ibn al-Zubayr said: “These are the foundations that Abraham, peace be upon him, raised.” It was said: The foundations had been destroyed, so God showed them to Abraham. Ibn Abbas: The House was built on pillars that he saw two thousand years before the creation of the world, and then they were pushed to the ground beneath it. The singular form of foundations is qa'idah. The singular form of qa'idah is for women, and the singular form is qa'id.

People differed about who built the Kaaba first and laid its foundations. Some said: The angels. It was narrated on the authority of Ja'far ibn Muhammad who said: My father was asked, while I was present, about the beginning of the creation of the Ka'bah. He said: When God the Almighty said: Indeed, I will place a successive authority on earth, the angels said: Will You place therein one who will cause corruption therein and shed blood, while we glorify You with praise and sanctify You? So He became angry with them, so they sought refuge behind His Throne and circled around it seven times seeking to please their Lord until God was pleased with them. He said to them: Build for Me a House on earth so that whoever among the children of Adam with whom I am angry may seek refuge in it and circle around it as you circled around My Throne, so that I may be pleased with him as I am pleased with you. So they built this House.

Abdul Razzaq mentioned on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', Ibn al-Musayyab, and others:

God the Almighty revealed to Adam: When I descend, build Me a house and surround it as you saw the angels surrounding My throne in the heavens. Ata' said: The people claimed that he built it from five mountains: Hira', Mount Sinai, Lebanon, Judi, and Tur Zita, and its suburb was from Hira'. Al-Khalil said: The suburb here is the circular foundation of the house made of rock, and from it what is around the city is called a suburb. Al-Mawardi narrated on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: When Adam was sent down from Paradise to Earth, He said to him: O Adam, go and build Me a house and circumambulate it, and remember Me when you see the angels doing around My Throne. So Adam began to step forward and the earth was folded up for him, and the desert was held back for him, and his foot did not land on anything on the earth except that it became populated until he reached the location of the Sacred House. And Gabriel, peace be upon him, struck the earth with his wings and revealed a firm foundation on the seventh lowest earth, and the angels threw rocks to him, and thirty men could not bear the rock from it, and he built it from five mountains as we mentioned. It has been narrated in some of the reports that a tent from the tents of Paradise was sent down to Adam, peace be upon him, and it was pitched in the location of the Kaaba so that he could live in it and circumambulate around it, and it remained until God, the Almighty, took Adam, then it was removed. This is from the path of Wahb ibn Munabbih. In another narration: A house was sent down with him, and the believers from his descendants would circle around it like this until the time of the drowning. Then God raised it up and it was in the sky, and it is called the Frequented House. This was narrated on the authority of Qatada, who narrated from Al-Halimi in his book Minhaaj ad-Din. He said: It is possible that the meaning of what Qatada said, that a house was sent down with Adam, is that the size of the Frequented

House was sent down with him in length, width and thickness. Then the tent, it may have been sent down and pitched in the place of the Kaaba, and when he was ordered to build it, he built it. It was around the Kaaba, a place of reassurance for the heart of Adam, may God bless him and grant him peace, as long as he lived, then it was raised up. So these narrations agree. This is the building of Adam, peace be upon him, then it was built by Abraham, peace be upon him. Ibn Jurayj said: Some people said: God, the Exalted, sent a head in it, and the head said: O Abraham, your Lord commands you to take the size of this cloud, so he looked at it and wrote its size, then the head said: I have done so, so it dug and emerged from a firm foundation in the ground. It was narrated on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, that when God Almighty commanded Abraham to build the House, he left Syria with his son Ishmael and his mother Hagar, and sent with him the serenity that had a tongue with which it spoke. Abraham would go with her in the morning when she went out, and her in the evening when she went back, until she reached Mecca. She said to Abraham: Build on my foundation. So he and Ishmael raised the House until they reached the place of the corner. He said to his son: O my son, find me a stone that I can make a sign for the people. So he brought him a stone, but he was not satisfied with it and said: I will find something else. So he went to look for it, and he came to him and he had brought the corner and placed it in its place. He said: O my father, who brought you this stone? He said: Who did not entrust me to you? Ibn Abbas: Abu Qubais shouted: O Ibrahim, O Khalil al-Rahman, you have a trust with you, so take it. And behold, it was a white stone of the ruby of Paradise, which Adam had brought down from Paradise. When Ibrahim and Ismail raised the foundations of the House, a square cloud with a head came and called out: Raise your heads on my square foundation. This was the building of Ibrahim, peace be upon him. It was narrated that when Ibrahim and Ismail finished building the House, God gave them horses as a reward for raising the foundations of the House. Al-Tirmidhi al-Hakim narrated: Omar ibn Abi Omar told us, Naim ibn Hammad told us, Abdul Wahhab ibn Hammam, the brother of Abdul Razzaq, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ibn Abi Malikah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The horses were wild animals like all other wild animals. When God permitted Ibrahim and Ismail to raise the foundations, God, Blessed be His Name, said: I am giving you a treasure which I have stored up for you. Then Ismail inspired me to go out to Ajyad and call for the treasure to come to you. So he went out to Ajyad - which was his homeland - and he did not know what the supplication or the treasure was, so God inspired him, and there was not a horse on the face of the earth in the land of the Arabs except that it came to him and he took hold of its forelocks and subdued it for him, so ride it and feed it, for it is auspicious, and it is the inheritance of your father Ishmael, for the horse was called Arab because Ishmael was commanded to supplicate and it came to him. And Abdul-Munem bin Idris narrated on the authority of Wahb bin Munabbih, who said: The first one to build the House with clay and stones was Seth, peace be upon him. As for the Quraysh's building of it, it is well-known, and the story of the snake in that regard is mentioned, and it was preventing them from demolishing it until the Quraysh gathered at the station and cried out to God Almighty and said: Our Lord, do you not fear? We wanted to honour and decorate your house, so if you are satisfied with that, otherwise do whatever you like. Then they heard a rustle from the sky - and the rustle is the rustling of the wings of a huge bird - and behold, it was a bird larger than an eagle, black in back, white in belly and legs. It sank its claws into the nape of the snake, then it took off with it, dragging its tail, larger than so-and-so, until it took off with it towards Ajyad. The Quraysh demolished it and began to rebuild it with stones from the valley, which the Quraysh carried on their necks. They raised it twenty cubits into the sky.

While the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was carrying stones from Ajyad, and he was wearing a cloak, the cloak became too small for him, so he tried to lift the cloak on his shoulder, and his private parts were visible because of the smallness of the cloak. Then it was called: O Muhammad, cover your private parts, and he was not seen naked after that. There were five years between the construction of the Kaaba and what was revealed to him, and between his exit and its construction there were fifteen years. It was mentioned by Abd al-Razzaq on the authority of Muammar on the authority of Abdullah ibn Uthman on the authority of Abu al-Tufayl. It was mentioned on the authority of Muammar on the authority of al-Zuhri:

When they had built it and reached the place of the corner, the Quraysh argued about the corner, which tribe would be the first to raise it? Until a dispute arose among them, and they said: Come, let us judge who will be the first to appear to us from this path, so they agreed on that, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, appeared to them as a young boy wearing a tiger's sash, so they judged him, and he ordered the corner to be placed in a garment, then he ordered the chief of each tribe to give him a corner of the garment, then he climbed up and they raised the corner to him, and he was the one who placed it, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Ibn Ishaq said: It was narrated that the Quraysh found a book in Syriac in the corner, but they did not know what it was until a Jewish man read it to them. It said: I am God, the possessor of Mecca. I created it on the day I created the heavens and the earth, and I formed the sun and the moon, and I surrounded it with seven upright angels who will not perish until their wood perishes. Blessed for their people in water and milk. And on the authority of Abu Ja'far Muhammad ibn 'Ali, he said: The door of the Ka'bah was on the ground during the time of the Amalekites, Jurhum, and Abraham, peace be upon him, until the Quraysh built it.

Muslim narrated on the authority of Aisha may God be pleased with her who said: I asked the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) about the wall: Is it part of the House? He said: Yes. I said: Why did they not put it in the House? He said: Your people were short on money. I said: Why is its door high? He said: Your people did that so that they could let in whomever they wanted and prevent whomever they wanted. Were it not that your people had recently converted to the Age of Ignorance and I feared that their hearts would disapprove, I would have considered putting the wall in the House and attaching its door to the ground. He narrated on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr may God be pleased with him who said: My aunt meaning Aisha (may God be pleased with her) told me that the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: O Aisha, were it not that your people had recently converted to polytheism, I would have demolished the Kaaba and attached it to the ground and made two doors for it, an eastern door and a western door, and I would have added six cubits of stone to it, for the Quraysh had limited it when they built the Kaaba. On the authority of Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, she said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: If it were not for the recent conversion of your people to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and built it on the foundations of Abraham. When the Quraysh built the Kaaba, they made it too short and added a door to it. In Al-Bukhari, Hisham bin Urwah said: He meant a door. In Al-Bukhari also: I would have made two doors to it, meaning two doors. This is the construction of the Quraysh.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

Then when the people of Ash-Sham invaded Abdullah ibn Az-Zubayr and the Kaaba was destroyed by their fire, Ibn Az-Zubayr demolished it and rebuilt it as Aisha had told him, and he added five cubits of stone to it, until a foundation appeared that people could see, so he built the structure on it. The length of the Kaaba was eighteen cubits, but when he added to it, he shortened it, so he increased its length by ten cubits, and he made two doors for it, one for entering and the other for exiting. This is in Sahih Muslim, and the wording of the hadith differs. Sufyan mentioned on the authority of Dawud ibn Shabur on the authority of Mujahid who said: When Ibn Az-Zubayr wanted to demolish the Kaaba and rebuild it, he said to the al-Nas 114: Demolish. He said: They refused to demolish and feared that the punishment would descend upon them. Mujahid said: So we went out to Mina and stayed there for three days awaiting the punishment. He said: Ibn Az-Zubayr climbed the wall of the Kaaba himself, and when they saw that nothing had happened to him, they dared to do so. He said: So they demolished it. When he built it, he made two doors for it: one for them to enter through, and one for them to exit through. He added six cubits to what was next to the stone, and he added nine cubits to its length. Muslim said in his hadith: When Ibn al-Zubayr was killed, al-Hajjaj wrote to Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan informing him of that, and telling him that Ibn al-Zubayr had placed the building on a foundation that the just people of Mecca had seen. Abd al-Malik wrote to him: We are not of Ibn al-Zubayr's taint in anything. As for what he added to its length, he confirmed it, and as for what he added to it of the stone, he returned it to its construction, and closed the door that he opened, so he demolished it and returned it to its construction. In another narration: Abd al-Malik said:

I did not think that Abu Khabib meaning Ibn al-Zubayr heard from Aisha what he claimed to have heard from her. Al-Harith ibn Abdullah said: Yes, I heard it from her. He said: I heard her say what? He said: She said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: “Your people have shortened the construction of the House, and were it not for the recent conversion to polytheism, I would have restored what they left of it. If your people decide after me to rebuild it, then come and I will show you what they left of it. I see it to be close to seven cubits.” In another narration: Abd al-Malik said: If I had heard it before I demolished it, I would have left it as Ibn al-Zubayr built it. This is what came about the construction of the Kaaba from the narrations.

It was narrated that Al-Rashid mentioned to Malik bin Anas that he wanted to demolish what Al-Hajjaj had built of the Kaaba, and to return it to the construction of Ibn Al-Zubayr, because of what came from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Ibn Al-Zubayr complied with it. Malik said to him: I implore you by God, O Commander of the Faithful, not to make this House a playground for kings, so that none of them would wish to do anything but demolish the House and rebuild it, so that its awe would be lost from the hearts of the people. Al-Waqidi mentioned: Muammar told us on the authority of Hammam bin Munabbih, who heard Abu Hurairah say:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade cursing As'ad al-Himyari, who was a Tubba', and he was the first to cover the Ka'bah, and he was the other Tubba'. Ibn Ishaq said: It was covered with Coptic cloth, then it was covered with cloaks, and the first to cover it with brocade was al-Hajjaj.

Scholars said: Nothing should be taken from the Kaaba's covering, as it was given to it as a gift, and nothing should be taken from it. It was narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair that he disliked taking any perfume from the Kaaba for healing purposes. Whenever he saw a servant taking a handful of it, he would not hesitate to hurt it. Ata' said: Whenever one of us wanted to seek healing, he would bring some perfume from himself, wipe the stone with it, and then take it.

The Almighty said: Our Lord, accept from us. The meaning is: And they say, Our Lord, but it was deleted. And it is also in the reading of Abu and Abdullah bin Masoud: And when Abraham and Ishmael raised the foundations of the House and they said, Our Lord, accept from us.

The interpretation of Ismail: Hear, O God, because El in Syriac means God, and it has been mentioned before. It was said: When Abraham called upon his Lord, he said: Hear, O El. When his Lord answered him and gave him a son, he named him after what he called upon. Al-Mawardi mentioned it.

The Almighty's saying: Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing. These are two of the names of God Almighty that we have mentioned in the Most Sublime Book explaining the Most Beautiful Names of God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And the Almighty said: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day.' Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us: 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of Abu al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Indeed, Abraham made the House of God sacred and made it secure, and I have made Medina sacred, and what is between its two lava plains, so its game is not to be hunted and its trees are not to be cut." And thus it was narrated by al-Nasa'i on the authority of Muhammad ibn Bashir, on the authority of Bandar, and Muslim narrated it on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah and 'Amr ibn al-Naqid, both of them on the authority of Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri. Ibn Jarir also said: Abu Kurayb and Abu al-Sa'ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, and Abu Kurayb told us, 'Abd al-Rahim al-Razi told us, they all said: We heard Ash'ath on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: "Ibrahim was the servant and friend of God, and I am the servant and messenger of God. Ibrahim made Mecca sacred, and I made Medina sacred, and what is between its two lava plains: its wood and its game. No weapon is to be carried in it for fighting, and no tree is to be cut down except for camel fodder." This chain of transmission is strange and is not found in any of the six books. The origin of the hadith is in Sahih Muslim from another chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Hurayrah may God be pleased with him, who said: When the people saw the first fruits, they would bring them to the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him). When the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) took them, he would say: "O God, bless us in our fruits, and bless us in our city, and bless us in our sa', and bless us in our mudd. O God, Ibrahim is Your servant and friend and Your Prophet, and I am Your servant and Your Prophet. He called upon You for Mecca, and I call upon You for Medina with the same as he called upon You for Mecca, and the same with it." Then he would call his youngest child and give him that fruit. In another version: Blessing with blessing. Then he would give him the youngest of the children who were present with him - the wording of Muslim. Then Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Qutaybah ibn Sa'id told us, Bakr ibn Mudar told us, on the authority of Ibn al-Haad, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Muhammad, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn 'Uthman, on the authority of Rafi' ibn Khadijan, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ibrahim made Mecca sacred, and I make what is between its two lava plains sacred. Muslim alone transmitted it, so he narrated it on the authority of Qutaybah on the authority of Bakr ibn Mudar, and his wording is the same. In the two Sahih, "On the authority of Anas ibn Malik, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Abu Talhah: Find me a young boy from among your boys to serve me. So Abu Talhah took me out with him, and I used to serve the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, whenever he stopped. And he said in the hadith: Then he came forward until Uhud appeared to him, and he said: This is a mountain that loves us and we love it. So when he looked out over Medina, he said: O God, I make what is between its two mountains sacred just as Ibrahim made Mecca sacred. O God, bless them in their mudd and their sa'." And in a wording of theirs: "O God, bless them in their measure, and bless them in their Al-Bukhari added, meaning the people of Medina. They also narrated from Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O God, make Medina twice as blessed as you made Mecca." And from Abdullah bin Zaid bin Asim, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Abraham made Mecca sacred and supplicated for it, and I made Medina sacred as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made supplication for it in its mudd and sa' like what Abraham made supplication for Mecca." Narrated by Al-Bukhari and this is his wording. And from Muslim and his wording is that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Abraham made Mecca sacred and supplicated for its people, and I made Medina sacred as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made supplication for it in its sa' and mudd like what Abraham made supplication for the people of Mecca." And from Abu Sa'id, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: "O God, Abraham made Mecca sacred and made it sacred, and I made Medina sacred between its two valleys, that no blood should be shed in it, no weapons should be carried in it for fighting, and no tree should be cut down in it except for fodder. O God, bless us in Our city, O God, bless our Saa' for us, O God, bless our Mud for us, O God, make with the blessing two blessings." The hadith, narrated by Muslim, and the hadiths about the prohibition of the city are many, but we have only mentioned those related to the prohibition of Abraham, peace be upon him, of Mecca, because of what is in that of the noble verse. And those who believed that the prohibition of Mecca was only on the tongue of Abraham the Friend held fast to it, and it was said: It has been prohibited since it was created with the earth, and this is more apparent and stronger, and God knows best.

There are other hadiths that indicate that God the Almighty made Mecca sacred before He created the heavens and the earth, as stated in the two Sahih on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said on the day of the conquest of Mecca: "God made this city sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Fighting in it was not permitted for anyone before me, and it was not permitted for me except for an hour of the day, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Its thorns should not be cut, its game should not be frightened, its lost property should not be picked up except by one who knows it, and its solitude should not be found."

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, except for the idhkhir, for it is for their udders and for their houses. He said: Except the idhkhir. This is the wording of Muslim, and they have something similar from Abu Hurairah. Then Al-Bukhari said after that: Abaan ibn Salih said, on the authority of Al-Hasan ibn Muslim, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say something similar. This that Al-Bukhari suspended was narrated by Imam Abu Abdullah ibn Majah on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Numayr, on the authority of Yunus ibn Bakir, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Abaan ibn Salih, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muslim ibn Yanaq, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, delivering a sermon in the year of the conquest, and he said: “O people, God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred until the Day of Resurrection. Its trees shall not be cut, its game shall not be driven away, and its lost property shall not be taken except by one who announces it.” Al-Abbas said: Except for the idhkhir, for it is for houses and graves. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Except for the idhkhir. And on the authority of Abu Shuraih al-Adawi, that he said to Amr ibn Sa'id while he was sending out the missions to Mecca: “Give me permission, O prince, to tell you a statement that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made the next day on the day of the conquest. My ears heard it, my heart retained it, and my eyes saw it when he spoke it. He praised God and extolled Him, then said: “Mecca has been made sacred by God and not by the people. It is not permissible for a person who believes in God and the Last Day to shed blood in it, or to cut down a tree in it, for one of the It was said to Abu Shuraih: What did Amr say to you? He said: I know that better than you, Abu Shuraih. The Sacred Sanctuary does not protect a sinner, a fugitive from blood, or a fugitive from ruin. Narrated by al-Bukhari and Muslim, and this is its wording.

If this is known, then there is no contradiction between these hadiths indicating that God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and the hadiths indicating that Abraham, peace be upon him, made it sacred, because Abraham conveyed from God His ruling concerning it and His prohibition of it, and that it had always been a sacred land before Abraham, peace be upon him, built it. Just as the Messenger of God, peace be upon him, was written with God as the Seal of the Prophets, and Adam was still kneaded in his clay, and despite this Abraham, peace be upon him, said, “Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from among themselves” [al-Masjid an-Nabawi], and God answered his supplication with what He had previously known and decreed. That is why it is stated in the hadith that they said, O Messenger of God, tell us about the beginning of your affair. He said, “The supplication of my father Abraham, peace be upon him, and the good report of Jesus, son of Mary, and my mother saw as if a light came out of her that illuminated the palaces of Ash-Sham.” That is, tell us about the beginning of the appearance of your affair, as will come soon, God willing.

As for the issue of preferring Mecca over Medina, as is the opinion of the majority, or Medina over Mecca, as is the opinion of Malik and his followers, it will be mentioned in another place with its evidence, God willing, and He is trustworthy. And the Almighty said, reporting from Abraham, that he said: My Lord, make this a secure city, meaning from fear, meaning that its people will not be terrified. And God did that by law and decree, as in His Almighty's saying: And whoever enters it shall be safe, and His saying: Do they not see that We have made a secure sanctuary, while people are being snatched all around them? and other verses. And the hadiths have come before regarding the prohibition of fighting in it. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Jabir: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: It is not permissible for anyone to carry weapons in Mecca. And he said in this Surah: My Lord, make this a secure city. That is, make this spot a secure city. This was appropriate because it was before the construction of the Kaaba. God the Almighty said in Surah Ibrahim: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this city secure.' This was appropriate there because, by God, it is as if the supplication occurred a second time after the construction of the House and the settlement of its people in it, and after the birth of Isaac, who was thirteen years younger than Ishmael. For this reason, he said at the end of the supplication: “Praise be to God, who has given me, in my old age, Ishmael and Isaac. Indeed, my Lord is the Hearer of supplication.” And God the Almighty said: And provide his family with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day. He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah on the authority of Ubayy ibn Ka'b: “He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination.” He said: This is the saying of God the Almighty. This is the saying of Mujahid and 'Ikrimah, and it is what Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him, corrected it. He said: Others read: “He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination.” They made that part of the supplication of Abraham, as Abu Ja'far narrated on the authority of al-Rabi' on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah. He said: Ibn 'Abbas used to say that, the saying of Abraham asking his Lord: Whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little.” Abu Ja'far said on the authority of Layth ibn Abi Salim on the authority of Mujahid: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little. He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will provide for him for a little. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: When Abraham was removed from the call to the one whom God refused to give him authority, he was cut off from God and His love and separated from those who disobeyed his command, even if they were from his descendants, when he knew that there would be among them a wrongdoer whose covenant would not reach him, with God's information to him about that, God said: And whoever disbelieves - then I will provide for the righteous and the wicked, and I will provide for him for a little." Hatim ibn Ismail said on the authority of Hamid al-Kharraz on the authority of 'Ammar al-Dahni on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas regarding the words of God Almighty: My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with good things. The fruits of those who believe in God and the Last Day." Ibn Abbas said: "Ibrahim used to restrict them to the believers, but not to the people. So God revealed: And whoever disbelieves, I will provide for them as I provide for the believers. Shall I create a creation for whom I do not provide? I will give them enjoyment for a little; then I will force them to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is that destination." Then Ibn Abbas recited: "To each We provide, these and those, from the gift of your Lord. And the gift of your Lord is not forbidden." Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. It was narrated from Ikrimah and Mujahid, something similar to that as well. This is like the statement of God the Most High: "Indeed, those who invent falsehood against God will not succeed. Enjoyment in this world, then to Us is their return. Then We will make them taste the severe punishment for what they used to disbelieve." And the statement of God the Most High: "And whoever disbelieves, let not his disbelief grieve you. To Us is their return, and We will inform them of what they did. Indeed, God is Knowing of that within the breasts. We will give them enjoyment for a little; then We will force them to a severe punishment." And His statement: "And had it not been that mankind would have become one community, We would have made for those who disbelieve in the Most Merciful roofs of silver for their houses and stairways upon which they ascend. And for their houses, doors and couches upon which they will ascend." They recline * and adornments. And indeed, all that is for the enjoyment of the life of this world and the Hereafter, with your Lord is for the righteous. And His statement: Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. That is, then I will force him after his enjoyment in this world and We will spread over him from its shade to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. Its meaning is that God Almighty will look at them and give them respite, then He will seize them with the grip of the Mighty, the Powerful, as in His statement, the Most High: And how many a town was I granted respite while it was unjust? Then I seized it, and to Me is the destination. And in the two Sahih: "No one is more patient with the harm he hears than God. Indeed, they attribute to Him a son, while He provides for them and heals them." And in the Sahih also: Indeed, God grants respite to the wrongdoer until, when He seizes him, He does not let him escape. Then he recited the statement of the Most High: "And thus is the seizure of your Lord when He seizes the towns while they are unjust. Indeed, His seizure is painful and severe." And some of them recited: He said, 'And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little.' The verse, making it part of the supplication of Abraham, and it is an anomalous reading that contradicts the seven reciters, and the structure of the context rejects its meaning, and God knows best, for the pronoun in He said: It refers to God Almighty in the reading of the majority, and the context requires it. According to this anomalous reading, the pronoun in said refers to Abraham, and this is contrary to the order of speech, and God Almighty is the All-Knowing.

As for the Almighty's saying: "And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful.'" The foundations are the plural of qa'idah, which is the pillar and foundation. The Almighty says: And mention, O Muhammad, to your people, Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, building the House and raising its foundations, and they were saying, "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." Al-Qurtubi and others narrated on the authority of Abi and Ibn Mas'ud that they were reciting, "And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.'" I said This is indicated by their saying after it, Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. The verse, so they were doing a good deed, and they were asking God Almighty to accept from them, as Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Muhammad ibn Yazid ibn Khunais al-Makki on the authority of Wahib ibn al-Ward that he recited, "And when Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, were raising their foundations, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.'" The foundations of the House and Ishmael, our Lord accept from us." Then he cries and says: O Khalil al-Rahman, the pillars of the House of the Most Merciful are being raised and you are afraid that it will not be accepted from you. This is as God the Most High narrated about the state of the sincere believers in His statement: And those who give what they give meaning they give what they give of charity, expenditures and offerings while their hearts are fearful meaning afraid that it will not be accepted from them, as came in the authentic hadith on the authority of Aisha on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as will come in its place. Some of the commentators said: The one who was raising the foundations was Ibrahim and the supplicant was Ishmael, and the correct view is that they were both raising and saying as will be explained. Al-Bukhari narrated here a hadith which we will quote and then follow it with related narrations. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub Al-Sakhtiyani and Kathir bin Kathir bin Abdul Muttalib bin Abi Wada'ah - one of them adds more than the other - on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The first time women used lanyards was before the mother of Ismail, who used lanyards to erase her traces on Sarah. Then Ibrahim brought her and her son Ismail while she was breastfeeding him, until he placed them near the House, near a tree above Zamzam at the top of the mosque, and there was no one in Mecca at that time, nor was there any water. So he placed them there and placed near them a bag of dates and a water skin with water. Then Ibrahim turned and went away, and Ismail's mother followed him and said: O Ibrahim, where are you going and leaving us in this valley with no one to accompany us? And nothing? She said that to him repeatedly, but he did not pay attention to her. She said: Has God commanded you to do this? He said: Yes. She said: Then He will not let us down. Then she returned. So Abraham set out until he was at the pass where they could not see him, facing the House. Then he supplicated with these supplications and raised his hands, saying, Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House, until he reached they give thanks. And the mother of Ismail began to suckle Ismail and drink from that water, until what was in the water skin was used up, she became thirsty and her son became thirsty, and she began to look at him writhing—or he said: floundering—so she set out, hating to look at him, and she found Safa to be the nearest mountain on earth to her, so she stood on it and then faced the valley to see if she could see anyone, but she did not see anyone. So she descended from Safa until she reached the valley, raised the edge of her armor and ran as a person struggles until she passed the valley, then she came to Marwa and stood on it and looked to see if she could see anyone, but she did not see anyone. She did that seven times. Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, That is why people ran between them. When she approached Marwa, she heard a voice and said, Hush. She wanted herself - then she listened and heard also, so she said: I have heard if you have help, so behold, the king is at the place of Zamzam, so he searched with his heel, or he said: with his wing, until the water appeared, so she began to surround it and say with her hand like this, and she began to scoop from the water in her water skin and it was bubbling after she scooped, Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "May God have mercy on the mother of Ismail, if she had left Zamzam - or he said: if she had not scooped from the water - Zamzam would have been a flowing spring." He said: So she drank and breastfed her son, so the king said to her: Do not fear loss, for here is a house for God that this boy and his father will build, and God does not neglect His people, and the house was high above the ground like a hill, and the floods would come to it and take from its right and left, and it was like that until a group of Jurhum or a family of Jurhum passed by them coming from the road of Kada, so they stopped at the bottom of Mecca, and they saw a circling bird, so they said: This bird is circling On water, as we knew this valley and there was no water in it, so they sent one or two men running, and if they were at water, they returned and he informed them of the water, so they came. He said: And the mother of Ismail was at the water, so they said: Do you give us permission to stay with you? She said: Yes, but you have no right to our water. They said: Yes.

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing."

Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ishmael's mother found that and she loved company. So they dismounted and sent for their people, so they dismounted with them, until there were some households there from them, and the boy grew up and learned Arabic from them, and they liked him and were pleased with him when he grew up. When he reached puberty, they married him to a woman from them, and Ishmael's mother died. Abraham came after Ishmael had married to look at his estate, but he did not find Ishmael. He asked his wife about him, and she said: He went out seeking us. Then he asked her about their living and their condition, and she said: We are human beings, we are in hardship and difficulty. So she complained to him, and he said: When your husband comes, greet him and tell him to change the threshold of his door. When Ishmael came, it seemed as if he had sensed something, so he said: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, an old man of such and such came to us and asked us about you, so I told him. He asked me how we lived, so I told him that we were in hardship and difficulty. He said: Did he advise you about anything? She said: Yes, he ordered me to greet you and say: Change the threshold of your door. He said: That is my father and he ordered me to leave you, so go back to your family. He divorced her and married another woman from them. Ibrahim stayed away from them as long as God willed, then he came to them later and did not find him. He went to his wife and asked her about him. She said: He went out seeking us. He said: How are you? He asked her about their livelihood and their condition. She said: We are well and comfortable, and praised God the Almighty. He said: What is your food? She said: Meat. He said: What is your drink? She said: Water. He said: O God, bless them in the meat and water. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "And they did not have grain at that time. If they had, he would have prayed for it for them." He said: So no one would be alone with them except in Mecca without agreeing to it. He said: So when your husband comes, greet him with my greetings and tell him to fix the threshold of his door. When Ismail came, he said: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, a well-mannered old man came to us, and she praised him. He asked me about you, so I told him. He asked me how we lived. I told him that I was fine. He said: Did he advise you about anything? She said: Yes, and he sends you his greetings and orders you to strengthen the threshold of your door. He said: That is my father and you are the threshold. He ordered me to hold you back. Then he stayed away from them as God willed. Then he came after that and Ishmael was sharpening his arrows under a tree near Zamzam. When he saw him, he went to him, and they did as a father does with his son and a son does with his father. Then he said: O Ishmael, God has commanded me to do something. He said: Do what your Lord has commanded you. He said: Will you help me? He said: And I will help you. He said: God has commanded me to build a house here, and he pointed to a high hill above what was around it. He said: Then they raised the foundations of the house, and Ismail began to bring stones and Abraham built, until when the building was high, he brought this stone and placed it for him, and he stood on it while he was building and Ismail was handing him the stones, and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us, for You are the Hearing, the Knowing. He said: So they began to build until they circled around the house and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us, for You are the Hearing, the Knowing. And Abd bin Hamid narrated it from Abd al-Razzaq in full, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from Abu Abdullah bin Hammad al-Tabarani, and Ibn Jarir from Ahmad bin Thabit al-Razi, both of them from Abd al-Razzaq in short.

Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Ismail bin Ali told us, Bishr bin Musa told us, Ahmad bin Muhammad al-Azraqi told us, Muslim bin Khalid al-Zanji told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik bin Jurayj, on the authority of Kathir bin Kathir, who said: I, Uthman bin Abi Sulayman, and Abdullah bin Abdul Rahman bin Abi Husayn were with some people with Saeed bin Jubair at the top of the mosque at night, and Saeed bin Jubair said: Ask me before you do not see me, so they asked him about the station, and he began to tell them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned the hadith in full.

Then Al-Bukhari said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abu Amir Abdul Malik bin Amr told us, Ibrahim bin Nafi' told us, on the authority of Kathir bin Kathir, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When what happened between Abraham and his family happened, he went out with Ishmael and Ishmael's mother, and with them was a water skin. Ishmael's mother began to drink from the skin, and her milk flowed over her child, until they reached Mecca. He placed them under a tree, then Abraham returned to his family, and Ishmael's mother followed him until they reached Kada'. She called out to him from behind him: O Abraham, to whom are you leaving us? He said: To God. He said: So she returned and began to drink from the water skin and her milk flowed to her child, until when the water ran out she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she climbed Safa and looked to see if she could sense anyone, but she did not sense anyone. When she reached the valley she ran until she reached Marwa and did that for seven laps until she completed seven. Then she said: If I went and looked what the child did. So she went and looked and saw that he was still in his condition as if he was gasping for death. Her soul could not be satisfied, so she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she went and climbed Safa and looked and looked to see if she could sense anyone, but she did not sense anyone. When she reached the valley she ran until she reached Marwa and did that for seven laps until she completed seven. Then she said: If I went and looked what the child did. So she went and looked and saw that he was still in his condition as if he was gasping for death. Her soul could not be satisfied, so she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she went and climbed Safa, and looked and looked, but she did not see anyone until she had completed seven days. Then she said: If only you had gone and looked, what would have happened? Then she saw a voice and said: Help, if there is any good with you. Then it was Gabriel, peace be upon him. He said: So he said with his heel: Like this, and he touched his heel on the ground, and water gushed forth. Umm Ismail was astonished, and she began to dig. He said: Abu al-Qasim, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If you had left it, the water would have appeared. He said: So she began to drink from the water and her milk flowed to her child. He said: Some people from Jurhum passed by the valley, and they saw a bird as if they were unaware of that, and they said: Birds do not exist except on water. So they sent their messenger, and he looked and it was in the water. He came to them and informed them, so they came to her and said: O mother of Ismail, do you give us permission to be with you and live with you? Then her son reached puberty and married one of their women. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he said to his family: I am going to see my estate. He came and greeted them. He said: Where is Ishmael? His wife said: He went hunting. He said: Tell him when he comes: Change the threshold of your door. When she told him, he said: You are the one, go to your family. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he said: I am going to see my estate. He came and said: Where is Ishmael? His wife said: He went hunting. She said: Why don't you come down and eat and drink? He said: What is your food and what is your drink? She said: Our food is meat, and our drink is water. He said: O God, bless them in their food and drink. He said: Abu al-Qasim, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Blessing through the supplication of Abraham. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said to his family: I am going to leave my estate. So he came and met Ismail from behind Zamzam, fixing some arrows for him. He said: O Ismail, your Lord, the Almighty, has commanded me to build a house for him. He said: Obey your Lord, the Almighty. He said: He has commanded me to help you with it. He said: Then I will do it - or something like that - He said: So he stood up and Abraham began to build and Ismail handed him the stones, and they said: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. He said: Until the building rose and the old man was too weak to carry the stones, so he stood on the stone of the station and began to hand it the stones and they said: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. This is how it was narrated from these two sources in the Book of the Prophets.

