It is strange that Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Hakim narrated it in his book Al-Mustadrak on the authority of Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm on the authority of Muhammad bin Sinan Al-Qazzaz on the authority of Abu Ali Ubaid God bin Abdul Majeed Al-Hanafi on the authority of Ibrahim bin Nafi' on his authority, and he said: It is authentic according to the conditions of the two sheikhs, and they did not include it. This is what he said. Al-Bukhari narrated it, as you see, from the hadith of Ibrahim bin Nafi', and it seems that there is an abbreviation in it, as he did not mention the matter of slaughtering. He said: It came in the Sahih that the horns of the ram were hanging from the Kaaba, and it came that Ibrahim, peace be upon him, used to visit his family in Mecca quickly on Al-Buraq, then he would return to his family in the Holy Land. And God knows best. Rather, it contains places that are attributed to

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, which Ibn Abbas explicitly stated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated from the Commander of the Faithful, Ali ibn Abi Talib, in this context that which contradicts some of this, as Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Bashir and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, they said: Muammil told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha ibn Mudrib, on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, he said: When Abraham was ordered to build the House, Ismail and Hajar went out with him. He said: When he arrived in Mecca, he saw above his head in the place of the House something like a cloud in it like a head, so he spoke to it and said: O Abraham, build in my shadow, or he said: according to my measure, and do not increase or decrease. So when he built, he went out and left Ismail and Hajar behind, so Hajar said: O Abraham, to whom do you entrust us? He said: To God. She said: Go, for He will not let us down. He said: So Ishmael became very thirsty. Hagar went up to Safa and looked, but saw nothing. She came to Marwa and saw nothing. Then she returned to Safa and looked, but saw nothing. She did that seven times, and said: O Ishmael, die where I will not see you. She came to him while he was prostrating his foot from thirst. Gabriel called her and said: Who are you? She said: I am Hagar, the mother of Abraham's son. He said: To whom has He entrusted you both? She said: We entrust you both to God. He said: And you both to Kaf. He said: So the boy probed the ground with his finger, and Zamzam gushed forth and began to hold back the water. He said: Leave it, for it is a quencher. In this context, it is clear that he built the House before he left her. It may be possible that it was preserved that he first put a fence and a stone around it, not that he built it to the top, until Ishmael grew up, so they built it together, as God the Most High said.

Then Ibn Jarir said: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Khalid bin Arara: That a man went to Ali, may God be pleased with him, and said: Will you not tell me about the House, is it the first House built on the earth? He said: No, but it is the first House built in the pool, the Station of Abraham, and whoever enters it is safe, and if you wish I will tell you how it was built: God revealed to Abraham to build a House for me on the earth, and Abraham was fed up with that, so God sent the Sakina, which is a strong wind with two heads, and one of them followed the other until it reached Mecca and rolled over the site of the House like the folding of a veil, and He ordered Abraham to build where the Sakina would settle, so Abraham built and the stone remained, so the boy went looking for something, so Abraham said: Find me a stone as I command you, he said: The boy went looking for a stone for him, so he brought it to him and found that he had installed the Black Stone in its place, he said: O my father, who brought you this stone? He said: It was brought to me by someone who did not rely on your construction. Gabriel, peace be upon him, brought it from heaven and completed it.

Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Bishr ibn Asim, on the authority of Saeed ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Ka'b al-Ahbar, who said: The House was a scum on the water forty years before God created the earth, and from it the earth was spread out. Saeed said: Ali ibn Abi Talib told us: Abraham came from the land of Armenia, and with him was the serenity guiding him to take up residence in the House as a spider takes up residence in a house. He said: Then it revealed stones that only thirty men could carry a stone, so I said: O Abu Muhammad, God says: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House He said: That was later. Al-Suddi said: God Almighty commanded Abraham and Ishmael to build the House, Build My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate. So Abraham set out until he came to Mecca. He and Ishmael stood up and took up their pickaxes, not knowing where the House was. Then God sent a wind called the Khajuj wind, which had two wings and a head in the form of a snake. It revealed to them around the Kaaba the foundation of the first House. They followed it with pickaxes, digging until they laid the foundation. That is when God Almighty says: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, “And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House.” When they had built the foundations and reached the place of the corner, Abraham said to Ishmael: My son, find me a beautiful stone that I may place here. He said: O my father, I am lazy and ignorant. He said: I will do that. So he set out to find a stone for him, and he brought him a stone, but he was not satisfied with it. So he said: Bring me a stone better than this. So he set out to find a stone for him, and Gabriel brought him the Black Stone from India. It was white, a white ruby like a thujamah. Adam had brought it down from Paradise, but it had turned black from the sins of the people. Then Ishmael brought him a stone and found it at the corner. He said: O my father, who brought you this? He said: He brought it from someone who is more active than you, so they built and they were calling upon the words that Abraham tested his Lord with, so he said: “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.” In this context, there is evidence that the foundations of the House were built before Abraham, and Abraham was only guided to it and given it a place to live. Some have gone to this, as Imam Abdul Razzaq said: Muammal told us on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House. He said, the foundations that were the foundations of the House before that. Abdul Razzaq also said: Hisham bin Hassan told us on the authority of Suwar, the son-in-law of Ata', on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah, who said: When God sent Adam down from Paradise, his feet were on the ground and his head was in the sky, hearing the speech of the people of the sky and their supplications, and he was comforted by them. So the angels were afraid until they complained to God in their supplications and prayers, so God Almighty lowered him to the ground. When he lost what he used to hear from them, he became lonely, until he complained about that to God in his supplications and prayers, so he turned towards Mecca and the place of his feet was a village, and his steps a desert, until he reached Mecca, and God sent down a ruby from the rubies of Paradise, and it was in the place of the House now, and he kept circling it until God sent down the flood, and that ruby was lifted up, until God sent Abraham, peace be upon him, and he built it, that is the saying of God Almighty: And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us on the authority of Ata', he said: Adam said: I do not hear the voices of the angels, so he said: Because of your sin, but descend to the earth and build me a house, then surround it as you saw the angels surrounding my house that is in the heaven. And the people claim that he built it from five mountains: from Hira', Mount Zayta, Mount Sinai, and al-Judi, and its suburb was from Hira', so this was the building of Adam until Abraham, peace be upon him, built it later, and this is correct up to Ata', but in some of it there is something strange, and God knows best.

Abdul Razzaq also said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatada, who said: God placed the House with Adam when God sent Adam down to Earth, and his descent was in the land of India, and his head was in the sky and his feet were on the earth, so the angels feared him, then it decreased to sixty cubits, and Adam was saddened when he lost the voices of the angels and their glorification, so he complained about that to God Almighty, so God said: O Adam, I have sent down a House for you to circumambulate as one circumambulates around My Throne, and to pray at it as one prays at My Throne, so Adam went to it, and he went out and stretched out his steps for him, so between every two steps there was a wilderness, and that wilderness did not cease after that, so Adam came to the House and circumambulated it, and after him from the prophets.

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Humayd told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Hafs ibn Humayd, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: God placed the House on the four pillars of water before the creation of the world by two thousand years, then the earth was rolled out from under the House. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Abdullah ibn Abi Nujayh told me, on the authority of Mujahid and other scholars: When God designated the location of the House for Abraham, he went out to it from Syria, and Ishmael and his mother Hagar went out with him, and Ishmael was a small child who was being breastfed. And they were carried, as he told me, on Buraq, and Gabriel was with him, guiding him to the location of the House and the landmarks of the Sanctuary. Gabriel went out with him, and he would not pass by a village without saying: Is this where you were commanded, O Gabriel? Gabriel would say: Go with him, until he brought him to Mecca, which at that time was Udhah, Salim and Samar, and in it were people called the Amalekites outside Mecca and its environs. And the House at that time was a red, muddy hill, so Abraham said to Gabriel: Was I commanded to place them here? He said: Yes, so he took them to the place of the Black Stone and settled them there, and he ordered Hajar, the mother of Ismail, to build a hut there, and he said: Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House until His saying: that they may be grateful. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Hisham ibn Hassan informed us, Hamid informed me, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: God created the location of this House two thousand years before He created anything, and its pillars are in the seventh earth. And Laith ibn Abi Salim said the same on the authority of Mujahid: The foundations are in the seventh earth. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father informed us, Amr ibn Rafi' informed us, Abd al-Wahhab ibn Muawiyah informed us, on the authority of Abd al-Mu'min ibn Khalid, on the authority of Aliya ibn Ahmar: Dhul-Qarnayn came to Mecca and found Abraham and Ismail building the foundations of the House from five mountains. So he said: What do you have to do with my land? He said: We are two commanded servants, we were commanded to build this Kaaba. He said: Bring the proof of what you claim. Five rams stood up and said: We bear witness that Abraham and Ishmael were two servants who were commanded to build this Kaaba. He said: I am satisfied and I submit, then he left. Al-Azraqi mentioned in the History of Mecca that Dhul-Qarnayn circumambulated the House with Abraham, peace be upon him, and this indicates that he was an advanced man in his time, and God knows best.

Al-Bukhari may God have mercy on him said: The Almighty's saying: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House (Al-Qawa'id: 33). The foundations: its foundation, the singular of which is Qawa'id, and the singular of Qawa'id among women is Qawa'id. Ismail told us: Malik told me on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Salim bin Abdullah, that Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abi Bakr told Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Did you not see that when your people built the House, they limited themselves to the foundations of Abraham? I said: O Messenger of God, will you not return it to the foundations of Abraham? He said: Had it not been for the recent disbelief of your people. Abdullah bin Umar said: If Aisha heard this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), I do not see the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) leaving out touching the two corners next to the Black Stone, except that the House was not completed on the foundations of Abraham (peace be upon him). It was narrated in Hajj on the authority of Al-Qa'nabi, and in the Hadiths of the Prophets on the authority of Abdullah bin Yusuf and Muslim, on the authority of Yahya bin Yahya, and from the hadith of Ibn Wahb and Al-Nasa'i on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Al-Qasim, all on the authority of Malik with it. Muslim also narrated it on the authority of Nafi' who said: I heard Abdullah bin Abi Bakr bin Abi Quhafah, narrating to Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Aisha, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Had it not been that your people had recently converted from ignorance - or he said: from disbelief - I would have spent the treasure of the Ka'ba in the way of God, and I would have made its door in the ground and included the Black Stone in it." Al-Bukhari said: Ubaydullah bin

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

Musa informed us on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Aswad, who said: Ibn Al-Zubayr said to me: Aisha used to tell you many secret hadiths, so what did she tell you about the Ka'ba? He said: I said: She told me: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “O Aisha, were it not that your people had recently converted to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and made two doors for it: one for people to enter through and one for them to exit through.” So Ibn al-Zubayr did so. Al-Bukhari is the only one to narrate it, and he narrated it like this in the Book of Knowledge of his Sahih. Muslim said in his Sahih: Yahya ibn Yahya told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: “Were it not that your people had recently converted to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and made it on the foundation of Abraham, for when the Quraysh built the House, they shortened it, and they would have made a successor for it.” He said: Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah and Abu Kurayb told us, they said: Ibn Numayr told us, on the authority of Hisham, with this chain of transmission, and Muslim is the only one to narrate it. He said: Muhammad ibn Hatim told me, Ibn Mahdi told me, Salim ibn Hayyan told us, on the authority of Sa'id, meaning Ibn Mina'. He said: I heard Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr say: My aunt, meaning Aisha, may God be pleased with her, told me that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “O Aisha, if your people were not recent converts to polytheism, I would have demolished the Kaaba and leveled it with the ground, and I would have made an eastern door and a western door for it, and I would have added six cubits of stone to it, for the Quraysh had shortened it when they built the Kaaba.” This is also unique to him.

He was transferred with them in the stones when he was thirty-five years old. May God's prayers and peace be upon him forever until the Day of Judgment. Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Yasar said in the biography: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, reached thirty-five years of age, the Quraysh gathered to build the Kaaba, and they intended to do so in order to roof it and were afraid to demolish it, but it was only rubble above the height of a person, so they wanted to raise it and roof it. This was because a group of people had stolen the treasure of the Kaaba, which was in a well inside the Kaaba. The one who found the treasure was Duwaik, a client of Banu Malih bin Amr from Khuza'ah, so the Quraysh cut off his hand, and people claim that those who stole it placed it with Duwaik. The sea had thrown a ship to Jeddah belonging to a Roman merchant, and it was shattered, so they took its wood and prepared it to roof it. There was a Coptic carpenter in Mecca, so he prepared for them some of what would repair it. There was a snake that came out of the well of the Kaaba into which it threw what was given to it every day, and it would hang itself on the wall of the Kaaba, and it was one of the things they feared, because no one would approach it except that it would shake, scrape, and open its mouth. They feared her. One day, while she was standing on the wall of the Kaaba as she used to do, God sent a bird to her and snatched her away. The Quraysh said: We hope that God is pleased with what we want. We have a gentle worker and wood, and God has spared us from the snake. When they decided to demolish and rebuild it, Abu Wahb ibn Amr ibn Aidh ibn Abd ibn Imran ibn Makhzum stood up and took a stone from the Kaaba, which jumped out of his hand until it returned to its place. He said: O people of the Quraysh, do not include in its construction anything from your earnings except what is good. Do not include in it the dowry of a prostitute, nor a sale based on usury, nor the oppression of any of the people. Ibn Ishaq said: People attribute these words to Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira ibn Abdullah ibn Amr ibn Makhzum. He said: Then the Quraysh divided the Kaaba, so the section of the door went to the Banu Abd Manaf and Zuhrah, and the area between the Black Corner and the Yemeni Corner went to the Banu Makhzum and tribes of the Quraysh. They joined them, and the back of the Kaaba belonged to Banu Jumah and Sahm, and the split in the stone belonged to Banu Abd al-Dar ibn Qusayy, Banu Asad ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Qusayy, and Banu Adi ibn Kaab ibn Luayy, which is al-Hutaym. Then the people feared its demolition and were afraid of it, so al-Walid ibn al-Mughira said, I will start with you in demolishing it. So he took the pickaxe and stood over it saying, “O God, do not be afraid. O God, we only want good.” Then he demolished from the side of the two corners, and the people waited that night and said, “We will wait. If it is hit, we will not demolish anything of it, and we will return it as it was. If nothing is hit, then God is pleased with what we have done.” So al-Walid went to work that night, and he demolished and the people demolished with him, until when the demolition reached the foundation, the foundation of Abraham, peace be upon him, they came upon green stones like spears, some of which were attached to others. He said, Someone who narrates the hadith told me that a man from Quraysh who was demolishing it inserted a lever between two of its stones in order to remove one of them as well. When the stone moved, all of Mecca revolted, and they stopped that foundation.

Ibn Ishaq said: Then the tribes of Quraysh gathered stones to build it, each tribe gathered separately, then they built it until the building reached the place of the corner, meaning the Black Stone, then they disputed about it, each tribe wanted to raise it to its place without the other, until they discussed and disagreed and prepared for battle, so Banu Abd al-Dar brought a bowl filled with blood, then they and Banu Adi bin Kaab bin Luay agreed to die, and they put their hands in that blood in that bowl and they called it the blood lick, so Quraysh remained like that for four or five nights, then they gathered in the mosque and consulted and divided equally, so some of the narrators claimed that Abu Umayyah bin al-Mughira bin Abdullah bin Amr bin Makhzum, who was at that time the oldest of all Quraysh, said: O people of Quraysh, make between you in what you disagree about the first one to enter through the door of this mosque to judge between you in it, so they did, and the first to enter was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and when they saw him they said: This is the trustworthy one, we are satisfied, this is Muhammad. When he reached them and they told him the report, he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Bring me a garment. So it was brought to him, and he took the corner, meaning the Black Stone, and placed it in it with his hand. Then he said: Let each tribe take a corner of the garment and then lift it all together. So they did until they reached its place, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, placed it with his hand, then he built on it. The Quraysh used to call the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before the revelation came down, the Trustworthy One. So when they finished building and built it as they wanted, Al-Zubayr ibn Abdul Muttalib said, regarding the matter of the snake for which the Quraysh feared the construction of the Kaaba:

I was surprised when the eagle aimed at the snake while it was in a state of agitation.

It used to have a kesheesh and sometimes it used to have a thawb.

If we set out to establish, the building will be feared and you will be afraid

But when we feared the punishment, a punishment came pouring forth from it.

Then she took her to herself and left us with a building without a veil.

So we gathered to build our foundations and soil.

Tomorrow we will raise the foundation from it and there will be no clothes on our faults

The king honored the Banu Luay with it, so his origins are not lost to them.

And Banu Adi gathered there, and once they were led by Kalb.

So the king gave us honor for that, and he seeks reward from God.

Ibn Ishaq said: The Kaaba was eighteen cubits high during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it was covered with Coptic, then it was covered with brocade, and the first to cover it with brocade was Al-Hajjaj bin Yusuf. I said It remained as the Quraysh built it until it was burned at the beginning of the emirate of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr after the year sixty and at the end of the reign of Yazid bin Muawiyah, when they besieged Ibn Al-Zubayr. Then Ibn Al-Zubayr demolished it to the ground and built it on the foundations of Abraham, peace be upon him, and inserted the stone into it, and made for it an eastern door and a western door attached to the ground as he heard that from his aunt Aisha, the mother of the believers, from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. It remained like that during the period of his emirate until Al-Hajjaj killed him, and he returned it to what it was by the order of Abdul Malik bin Marwan to do so, as Muslim bin Al-Hajjaj said in his Sahih: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, Ibn Abi Zaidah told us, Ibn Abi Sulayman told us on the authority of Ata', who said: When the House was burned during the time of Yazid bin Muawiyah when the people of Ash-Sham invaded it, and what happened happened, Ibn Al-Zubayr left it. Al-Zubayr, until the people arrived at the season, wanted to form a party among them or seek their protection against the people of Ash-Sham. When the people left, he said: O people, advise me regarding the Kaaba, should I demolish it and then rebuild it, or repair what is damaged in it? Ibn Abbas said: I have a different opinion about it. I think that you should repair what is damaged in it, and leave a house that the people were safe upon, and stones that the people were safe upon, and that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent upon. Ibn Al-Zubayr said: If one of them had his house burned down, he would not be satisfied until he renovated it, so how about the house of your Lord, the Almighty and Majestic? I seek counsel from my Lord for three days, then I am determined to do my thing. When three days had passed, he decided to demolish it, but the people avoided it lest something from the sky descend upon the first person to ascend it. Then a man climbed it and threw stones from it. When the people did not see anything happen to it, they followed one another and demolished it until they reached the ground. Ibn al-Zubayr made pillars to cover them with curtains until its construction rose. Ibn al-Zubayr said: I heard Aisha, may God be pleased with her, say that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Were it not that the people had recently converted from disbelief, and that I did not have the means to build it, I would have added five cubits of stone to it, and made a door for people to enter through, and a door for them to exit through." He said: I find what I can spend, and I am not afraid of people. He said: So he added five cubits of stone to it until he showed it a foundation. The people looked at it, so he built the structure on it. The length of the Kaaba was eighteen cubits, but when he added to it, he shortened it, so he added ten cubits at the beginning and made two doors for it: one for entering through, and one for exiting through. And the other comes out of it. When Ibn al-Zubayr was killed, al-Hajjaj wrote to Abd al-Malik asking him to permit him to do so and informing him that Ibn al-Zubayr had put the building on a foundation that the just people of Mecca had seen. Abd al-Malik wrote to him: We are not against Ibn al-Zubayr's taint in anything. As for what he added to its height, he approved it, and as for what he added of stones, he returned it to its building, and closed the door that he opened, so he demolished it and returned it to its building. Al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Hanad, on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Za'idah, on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn al-Zubayr, on the authority of Aisha, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He did not mention the story, and the Sunnah was an approval of what Abd God ibn al-Zubayr, may God be pleased with them both, had done, because he was the one whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved. However, he feared that some people's hearts would reject it because of their newness to Islam and their recent history of disbelief. However, this Sunnah was hidden from Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan, and for this reason, when it was confirmed on the authority of Aisha, she narrated it on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saying: We wished that we had left it. And he did not take over, as Muslim said: Muhammad bin Hatim told me, Muhammad bin Bakr told us, Ibn Jurayj told us: I heard Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair and Al-Walid bin Ata' narrating on the authority of Al-Harith bin Abdullah bin Abi Rabi'ah, Abdullah bin Ubaid said: Al-Harith bin Abdullah delegated to Abdul Malik bin Marwan during his caliphate, and Abdul Malik said: I do not think that Abu Habib, meaning Ibn Al-Zubayr, heard from Aisha what he claimed they heard left of it. Al-Harith said: Yes, I heard it from her. He said: I heard her say what? He said: She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “Your people have shortened the construction of the House, and were it not for the recent conversion to polytheism, I would have restored what they had left of it. If your people decide to rebuild it after me, then come and I will show you what they heard left of it.” So I saw it was close to seven cubits. This is the hadith of Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair, and Al-Walid bin Ata' added to it: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And I would have made two doors for it placed in the ground: one to the east and one to the west. Do you know why your people raised its door? She said: No. He said: To strengthen it so that no one would enter it except those they wanted. So when a man wanted to enter it, they would call him until he climbed up, until when he was about to enter, they would push him and he would fall. Abdul Malik said: So I said to Al-Harith: Did you hear her say that? He said: Yes. He said: So he poked it for a while with his stick, then he said: I wish I had left it and not carried it. Muslim said: Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Jabalah told us, Abu Asim H told us, and Abd ibn Hamid told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, both of them on the authority of Ibn Jurayj with this chain of transmission like the hadith of Abu Bakr. He said: Muhammad ibn Hatim told us, Abdullah ibn Bakr al-Sahmi told us, Hatim ibn Abi Saghira told us on the authority of Abu Qaz'ah: While Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan was circumambulating the House, he said: May God kill Ibn al-Zubayr, for he lies about the Mother of the Believers. He said: I heard her say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Aisha, were it not for the recent disbelief of your people, I would have demolished the Kaaba so that I could add more stones to it, for your people have fallen short in building it. Al-Harith ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Rabi'ah said: Do not say this, O Commander of the Faithful, for I heard the Mother of the Believers say this. He said: If I had heard it before I demolished it, I would have left it as Ibn al-Zubayr had built it. This hadith is as if it is definitely attributed to Aisha, because it has been narrated from her through multiple authentic chains of transmission on the authority of al-Aswad ibn Yazid, al-Harith ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Rabi'ah, Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Bakr, and Urwah ibn al-Zubayr. This indicates that what Ibn al-Zubayr did was correct, and if it had been left, it would have been good.

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

But after the matter returned to this state, some scholars were reluctant to change its state, as was mentioned about the Commander of the Faithful, Harun al-Rashid, or his father, al-Mahdi, that he asked Imam Malik about demolishing the Kaaba and returning it to what Ibn al-Zubayr had done. Malik said to him: O Commander of the Faithful, do not make the Kaaba of God a playground for kings. No one wants to demolish it except that he demolishes it. Al-Rashid left that. It was narrated by Iyad and al-Nawawi. And it will remain like this - and God knows best - until the end of time until it is destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatain from Abyssinia, as was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The Kaaba will be destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatain from Abyssinia. They both reported it. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, It is as if I see a black man with a hump, tearing it out stone by stone. Narrated by al-Bukhari. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said in his Musnad: Ahmad ibn Abd al-Malik al-Haranin informed us. Muhammad ibn Salamah informed us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahidin on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-As, may God be pleased with them both, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: “The Kaaba will be destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatain from Abyssinia, who will strip it of its ornaments and will strip it of its covering. It is as if I see...” To him, Asli' Afid'a, who strikes it with his shovel and pickaxe - Fad'a: a deviation between the foot and the shin bone - and this, and God knows best, will only happen after the emergence of Gog and Magog, as it came in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: They will perform Hajj to the House and Umrah after the emergence of Gog and Magog.

And the Almighty's saying, narrating the supplication of Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, “Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful.” Ibn Jarir said: By that they mean, And make us submissive to Your command, submissive to Your obedience, and we do not associate anyone with You in obedience, nor in worship other than You. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ismail told us on the authority of Raja' ibn Hibban al-Hasani al-Qurashi, Maqal ibn Ubayd God told us on the authority of Abd al-Karim, And make us Muslims [in submission] to You, he said: sincere to You, And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You, he said: sincere. He also said: Ali ibn al-Husayn told us, al-Muqaddami told us, Sa'id ibn Amir told us on the authority of Salam ibn Abi Mut'i' regarding this verse, And make us Muslims, he said: They were Muslims, but they asked him to be steadfast. Ikrimah said, Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You. God said, I have done so. “And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You.” God said, I have done so.

As-Suddi said, And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. They both mean the Arabs. Ibn Jarir said, "The correct interpretation is that it includes the Arabs and others, because from the descendants of Abraham are the Children of Israel, and God the Most High said, "And among the people of Moses is a nation guiding with the truth and doing justice thereby." I say, As-Suddi does not deny what Ibn Jarir said, because singling them out for that does not negate others, and the context is the Arabs, and that is why He said after it, Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from themselves who will recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and purify them. What is meant by this is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sent among them as God Almighty said: It is He who has sent among the unlettered a Messenger from among themselves. However, this does not negate his message to the red and the black, as God Almighty said: Say, 'O mankind, indeed I am the Messenger of God to you all,' and other conclusive evidence. This supplication was made by Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, as God Almighty informed us about His pious and believing servants in His saying: And those who say, 'Our Lord, grant us from among our wives and offspring comfort to our eyes and make us an example for the righteous.' This amount is desired by the Sharia, because part of the perfection of loving the worship of God Almighty is to love that there be from his offspring someone who worships God alone, with no partner. And for this reason, when God the Almighty said to Abraham, peace be upon him, Indeed, I will make you a leader for mankind, He said, And of my descendants. He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, which is His saying, And keep me and my children away from worshipping idols. It has been proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, that he said, "When the son of Adam dies, his deeds come to an end except for three: ongoing charity, beneficial knowledge, or a righteous child who prays for him." And show us our rituals, Ibn Jarir said on the authority of Ata', And show us our rituals, he brought them out for us so that we may learn them. Mujahid said, Show us our rituals, meaning our slaughterhouses. Something similar was also narrated on the authority of Ata' and Qatadah. Saeed bin Mansour said: Itab bin Bashir told us on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Ibrahim said, Show us our rituals. Gabriel showed him to him and brought him to the House. He said, Raise the foundations. So he raised the foundations and completed the building. Then he took him by the hand and led him out and went with him to Safa. He said, This is one of the symbols of God. Then he went with him to Marwah. He said, This is one of the symbols of God. Then he went with him towards Mina. When he reached Aqaba, Satan was standing by the tree. He said, Say 'Allahu Akbar' and throw it. So he said, Allahu Akbar and threw it. Then Satan went and stood at the middle Jamarat. When Gabriel and Ibrahim passed by him, he said to him, Say 'Allahu Akbar' and throw it. So he said, Allahu Akbar and threw it. Then the evil Satan went away. The evil one wanted to include something in the Hajj, but he could not. So he took Ibrahim by the hand until he came to the Sacred Monument. He said, This is the Sacred Monument. So Ibrahim took Ibrahim by the hand and brought him to Arafat. He said, Do you understand what I showed you? He said it three times. He said, Yes. Abu Majlaz and Qatadah narrated something similar to this. Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi said: Hammad ibn Salamah told us on the authority of Abu al-Asim al-Ghanawi, on the authority of Abu al-Tufayl, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ibrahim was shown the commands of the rituals, Satan appeared to him at the Mas'a, so Ibrahim raced him, then Gabriel took him until he came to Mina. He said: This is the place where people stop. When he reached Jamrat al-Aqaba, Satan appeared to him, so he threw seven pebbles at him until he went away. Then he brought him to Jamrat al-Qawwa, and Satan appeared to him, so he threw seven pebbles at him until he went away. He brought him all together and said: This is al-Mash'ar. Then he brought him to Arafat, and he said: This is Arafat. Gabriel said to him: Do you recognize it?

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 127- And when it is raised is a narration of a past situation, evoking its amazing image. The foundations: the basis, said Abu Ubaidah and Al-Farra. Al-Kisa'i said: they are the walls. What is meant by raising them is raising what is built above them, not raising them in themselves, for they did not rise, but since they were connected to the building raised above them, they became as if they were raised by its height, just as it is said the building rose, and it is not said the tops of the building rose or its bottoms. His statement: Our Lord, accept from us is in the place of the state with the estimation of the saying: meaning saying, Our Lord. Abi and Ibn Mas'ud read: And when Abraham raised the foundations of the House and Ishmael and they said: Our Lord, accept from us.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

127. The Almighty said: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House. The narrators said: God Almighty created the location of the House two thousand years before the earth, and it was a white foam on the water, so the earth spread out from beneath it. When God sent Adam, peace be upon him, down to the earth, he felt lonely, so he complained to God Almighty, so God sent down the Frequented House from its rubies from the rubies of Paradise, with two doors of green emerald, an eastern door and a western door, and he placed it on the location of the House and said: O Adam, I am sending down to you a House that you may circumambulate as one circumambulates around My Throne, and you may pray at it as one prays at My Throne. And the Stone was sent down, and it was white, but it turned black from the touch of menstruation in the pre-Islamic period. So Adam headed from the land of India to Mecca on foot, and God appointed an angel to guide him to the House, so he performed the Hajj and performed the rituals. When he finished, the angels met him and said: Your Hajj is good, O Adam, for we performed the Hajj to this House two thousand years before you. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: Adam performed the Hajj forty times from India to Mecca on foot, and it remained like that until the days of The Flood, so God Almighty raised him to the fourth heaven, and seventy thousand angels enter it every day, and they do not return to it. And He sent Gabriel, peace be upon him, until he hid the Black Stone in Mount Abu Qubais to protect it from drowning, so the location of the House was empty until the time of Abraham. Then God Almighty ordered Abraham, after Ishmael and Isaac were born to him, to build a House in which he would be remembered, so he asked God Almighty to show him its location, so God sent the Sakina to guide him to the location of the House, and it is a strong wind with two heads like a snake, so He ordered Abraham to build where the Sakina would settle, so Abraham followed it until they came to Mecca, and the Sakina moved over the location of the House like a scroll. This is what Ali and Al-Hasan said.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:127

And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], “Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.”

Ibn Abbas said: God Almighty sent a cloud the size of the Kaaba, and it began to move and Abraham walked in its shade until it reached Mecca and stopped at the location of the House, and Abraham was called from it to build in its shade, neither increasing nor decreasing. It was said: God sent Gabriel to guide him to the location of the House, as God Almighty said: And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House, so Abraham and Ishmael built the House, and Abraham was building it and Ishmael was handing him the stone. This is what God Almighty said: And when Abraham and Ishmael raised the foundations of the House, meaning he founded it, and the singular is base.

Al-Kisa'i said: The walls of the House. Ibn Abbas said: The House was built from five mountains: Mount Sinai, Mount Zeit, and Lebanon, which is a mountain in the Levant, and Al-Judi, which is a mountain in the Arabian Peninsula. They built its foundations from Hira, which is a mountain in Mecca. When Abraham reached the location of the Black Stone, he said to Ishmael: Bring me a beautiful stone that will be a sign for the people. So he brought him a stone and said: Bring me something better than this. So Ishmael went looking for it. Abu Qubays shouted: O Abraham, you have a trust with me, so take it. So he took the Black Stone and put it in its place. It was said: God Almighty built a house in the sky, which is the Frequented House, and it is called Ad-Dirah, and He ordered the angels to build the Kaaba on earth opposite it according to its size and likeness. It was said: The first to build the Kaaba was Adam, and he disappeared during the time of the Flood, then God revealed it to Abraham so that he could build it.

His saying: Our Lord, accept from us contains an implication, meaning that they say: Our Lord, accept from us our construction. Indeed, You are the Hearer of our supplication, the Knower of our intentions.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

127- And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House is a narration of a past situation, and foundations is the plural of base, which is the foundation, a predominant characteristic of sitting, meaning stability, and perhaps it is a metaphor for the opposite of standing, and from it God made you sit, and raising it the building on it, as it transfers it from a low state to a high state, and it is possible that it is intended to mean the foundations of the building, as every foundation is a base that is placed on it and its construction raises it. It was said that what is intended is to raise its status and show its honor by glorifying it, and calling people to an argument. In the ambiguity of the foundations and their clarification, there is magnification of its status. And Ishmael was reaching for the stones, but since he had an input into the building, it was conjoined with it. It was said: They build on two sides, or alternately. Our Lord, accept from us means they say, Our Lord, accept from us, and it was read with it and the sentence is a state of them. Indeed, You are the Hearer of our supplication, The Knower of our intentions.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:128

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Our Lord, and make us Muslims submissive to You and make from our descendants our children a nation a group submissive to You and from is for partiality, and it was brought to precede His statement My covenant does not include the wrongdoers and show us teach us our rites the laws of our worship or our pilgrimage (and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful) They asked Him for repentance despite their infallibility out of humility and teaching their descendants.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty meant by His saying: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, and remember when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House.

The word bases is the plural of base. One of the bases of a house is called base, and one of the bases of women and their old women is called qaid. The feminine ha is dropped because it is the subject of the saying I sat down from menstruation, and there is no share for the male in it, just as one says a pure and menstruating woman, because there is no share for the male in that. If it meant sitting, which is the opposite of standing, then it would be said base, and it would not be permissible in that case to drop the feminine ha. The bases of the house are its foundation.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the foundations that Abraham and Ishmael raised from the House. Did they innovate that, or were they foundations that existed before them?

Some people said: These are the foundations of a house that Adam, the father of mankind, had built by God's command to him. Then its place was destroyed and its traces were erased after him, until God gave it to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he built it.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Jurayj told us, on the authority of Ata', he said: Adam said: O Lord, I do not hear the voices of the angels! He said: Because of your sin, but descend to the earth, and build me a house, then surround it as you saw the angels surrounding my house in the heaven. People claim that he built it from five mountains: Hira, Turzita, Tursina, Mount Lebanon, and Judi, and its suburb was from Hira. So this was the building of Adam, until Abraham built it later.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, he said: The foundations that were the foundations of the House before that.

Others said: Rather, they are the foundations of a house that God had sent down for Adam from heaven to earth, to circumambulate around it as he used to circumambulate his throne in heaven. Then he raised it up to heaven during the days of the flood, and Abraham raised the foundations of that house. Those who said that mentioned: Muhammad ibn Bashir told me, he said: Abdul Wahhab told us, he said: Ayoub told us, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr, he said: When God sent Adam down from heaven, he said: I will descend with you or establish with you a house that is circumambulated around as one circumambulates around My throne, and one is purified at it as one is purified at My throne. So when the time of the flood came, it was raised, and the prophets used to make pilgrimage to it, and they did not know its location, until God gave it to Abraham, and informed him of its location, so he built it from five mountains: Hira, Thabir, Lebanon, Mount Tur, and Mount Al-Khamr.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ismail bin Aliyah told us, he said, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, he said: When Adam was sent down, then he mentioned something similar.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, Abdul-Razzaq narrated, Hisham bin Hassan narrated, on the authority of Suwar, the son-in-law of Ata', on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah, who said: When God sent Adam down from Paradise, his feet were on the ground and his head was in the sky, hearing the speech of the people of the sky and their supplications, and he felt comfortable with them. The angels feared him, and complained to God about their supplications and prayers, so He lowered him to the ground. When he lost what he used to hear from them, he felt lonely, and complained about that to God about it in his supplications and prayers. So he headed towards Mecca, and the place where his feet were was a village, and his steps were a desert, until he reached Mecca. Then God sent down a ruby from the rubies of Paradise, and it was on the site of the House now. He continued to circle it until God sent the flood, and that ruby was lifted up, until God sent Abraham, who built it. This is what God said: And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House (al-Hajj 22:26).

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abdul-Razzaq told us, he said: Umar told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: God placed the House with Adam, when God sent Adam down to Earth, and his place of descent was in the land of India. His head was in the sky and his feet were on the ground, so the angels feared him, but it decreased to sixty cubits. Adam was saddened when he lost the voices of the angels and their glorification, so he complained about that to God, the Most High, and God said: O Adam, I have sent down to you a House that you may circumambulate as one circumambulates around My Throne, and you may pray at it as one prays at My Throne. So Adam set out for it. He went out, and He stretched out his steps for him, so that between every two steps there was a wilderness. And those wildernesses did not cease after that. Then Adam came to the House and circumambulated it, and so did the prophets after him.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Abaan: The House was lowered by one ruby or one dazzle, until when God drowned the people of Noah, He raised it up, and its foundation remained, so God gave it to Abraham, and he built it after that.

Others said: Rather, the location of the House was a red hill like a dome. This is because when God wanted to create the earth, the water rose to a red or white foam, and that was in the location of the Sacred House. Then He spread out the earth from beneath it, and it remained like that until God settled Abraham in it, so he built it on its foundation. They said: Its foundation rests on four pillars in the seventh earth.

Mention of those who said that: Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Jarir ibn Hazim said, Hamid ibn Qays told me, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: The location of the House was on the water, before God created the heavens and the earth, like white butter, and the earth was spread out from beneath it.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Jurayj told us, he said: Ata and Amr bin Dinar said: God sent winds that struck the water, and it revealed in the place of the House a gullet like a dome, and this House is part of it. That is why it is the mother of villages. Ibn Jurayj said, Ata said: Then He staked it to the mountains so that it would not be overturned by a flood, and the first mountain was Abu Qais.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Hafs ibn Hamid, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The House was placed on the pillars of water, on four pillars, two thousand years before the creation of the world, then the earth was rolled out from under the House.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Yaqoub told us, on the authority of Harun bin Antara, on the authority of Ata bin Abi Rabah, he said: They found in Mecca a stone on which was written: I am God, the owner of Mecca. I built it on the day I created the sun and the moon, and I surrounded it with seven pure angels.

Ibn Humayd narrated, Salamah narrated, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, who narrated, Abdullah bin Abi Nujayh narrated, on the authority of Mujahid and other scholars: When God designated the location of the House for Abraham, he went out to it from Syria, and went out with him with Ishmael and his mother Hagar, and Ishmael was a small child who was being breastfed. And they rode on Buraq, as he narrated to me, and Gabriel was with him, guiding him to the location of the House and the landmarks of the sanctuary. So he went out and Gabriel went out with him, and he said: He did not pass by a village without saying: Is this where you were commanded, O Gabriel? Gabriel would say: Go on! Until he brought him to Mecca, which at that time was a land of peace and travel, and in it were people called the Amalekites outside Mecca and its environs, and the House at that time was a red hill covered with mud. So Abraham said to Gabriel: Was I commanded to place them here? He said: Yes. So he took them to the place of the Black Stone and settled them there, and he ordered Hagar, the mother of Ishmael, to build a hut there, and he said: Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House until His saying: Perhaps they will be grateful (Ibrahim 14:37).

Ibn Humayd said: Salamah said, Ibn Ishaq said: They claim, and God knows best, that an angel came to Hagar, the mother of Ishmael, when Abraham brought them down to Mecca, before Abraham and Ishmael raised the foundations of the House. He pointed to the House for her, which was a red, muddy hill, and said to her: This is the first House placed on the earth, and it is the ancient House of God. Know that Abraham and Ishmael are the ones raising it for the people.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told me, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Hisham bin Hassan told us, he said, Hamid told me, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: God created the location of this House two thousand years before He created anything on the earth, and its pillars are in the seventh earth.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Uyaynah told us, he said: Bishr bin Asim told me, on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab, he said: Ka'b told us: The House was a scum on the water forty years before God created the earth, and from it the earth was spread out. Sa'id said: And he told us on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib: Abraham came from Armenia with the Ark of the Covenant guiding him to settle in the House, just as a spider settles in its home. He said: So it was lifted from stones that thirty men could or could not bear. He said: I said: O Abu Muhammad, God says: And when Abraham raised the foundations of the House, he said: That was after.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that God, the Most High, mentioned that he and his son Ishmael raised the foundations of the Sacred House. It is possible that these were the foundations of a house that he had sent down with Adam, so he made it the place of the Sacred House in Mecca. It is possible that these were the dome that Ata' mentioned, which God created from the foam of water. It is possible that its ruby or pearl was sent down from the sky. It is possible that Adam built it and then it collapsed, until its foundations were raised by Abraham and Ishmael. We do not know which of these was which, because the truth of this cannot be understood except through a report from God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, through widespread transmission. There is no report of this that can be used as evidence, so we must submit to it. Nor is it, since there is no report of it, according to what we have described, which indicates it through inference and analogies, so it is used as an example, and its knowledge is derived from independent reasoning. So there is no statement in this regard that is more correct than what we have said. And God knows best.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Our Lord, accept from us.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by that: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, and Ishmael, they said, Our Lord, accept from us. He mentioned that this is also the case in the reading of Ibn Mas'ud. This is the opinion of a group of the people of interpretation.

Mention of those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: They were building and they were calling, the words with which Abraham was tested by his Lord, he said: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a nation Muslims [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance."

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibn Kathir told me, he said, Saeed bin Jubair told us, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, he said: They were raising the foundations of the House and saying: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing," he said: And Ishmael was carrying the stones on his neck, and the old man was building.

The interpretation of the verse according to this statement: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, saying: Our Lord, accept from us.

Others said: Rather, the one who said that was Ishmael. So the interpretation of the verse according to this statement is: And when Abraham raised the foundations of the House, and when he said, Our Lord, accept from us, then Ishmael becomes raised by the sentence that follows it. And he says then, is a predicate for him and not Abraham.

Then the people of interpretation differed about who raised the foundations, after their consensus that Abraham was among those who raised them.

Some of them said: Abraham and Ishmael raised it together.

Who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And We charged Abraham and Ishmael, saying, 'Purify My House for those who go around it.' He said: So Abraham set out until he came to Mecca, and he and Ishmael stood up and took pickaxes, not knowing where the House was. Then God sent a wind called the wind of Al-Khaju, which had two wings and a head in the form of a snake, and it swept away for them what was around the Kaaba from the foundation of the first House, and they followed it with pickaxes, digging until they laid the foundation. That is when He says: And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House (al-Hajj 22:26). So when they had built the foundations and reached the place of the corner, Abraham said to Ishmael: O my son, find me a beautiful stone that I may place here. He said: O my father, I am lazy and tired. He said: Bring me that. So he set out and looked for a stone, and he brought him a stone but he was not satisfied, so he said: Bring me a stone better than this. So he went to look for a stone for him, and Gabriel brought him the Black Stone from India. It was white, a white force like a cloud. Adam had brought it down from Paradise and it had turned black from the sins of the people. Then Ishmael brought him a stone and found it near the corner. He said: O my father, who brought you this? He said: Who is more energetic than you? So they built it.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Umar ibn Abdullah ibn Urwah, on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair al-Laythi, he said: It reached me that Abraham and Ishmael were the ones who raised the foundations of the House.

Others said: Rather, Abraham raised the foundations of the House, and Ishmael was handing him the stones.

Who said that: Ahmad bin Thabit al-Razi told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub and Kathir bin Kathir bin al-Muttalib bin Abi Wada'ah, one of them adding more than the other, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ibrahim came, and Ismail was sharpening arrows near Zamzam, and when he saw him, he went to him, and they did as a father does to his son and a son does to his father, then he said:

O Ishmael, God has commanded me to do something. He said: Do what your Lord has commanded you. He said: Will you help me? He said: And I will help you. He said: God has commanded me to build a house here! And he pointed to the Kaaba, and the Kaaba was elevated above what was around it. He said: At that time they raised the foundations of the house. He said: So Ishmael began to bring stones, and Abraham was building, until when the building was elevated, he brought this stone and placed it for him, and he stood on it while he was building, and Ishmael was handing him the stones and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing, until they had gone around the House.

Ibn Sinan al-Qazzaz narrated, Ubaydullah ibn Abdul Majeed Abu Ali al-Hanafi narrated, Ibrahim ibn Nafi' narrated, I heard Kathir bin Kathir narrating, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: He - meaning Ibrahim - came and found Ismail fixing arrows from behind Zamzam. Ibrahim said: O Ismail, God, your Lord, has commanded me to build Him a House. Ismail said to him: Obey your Lord in what He has commanded you. Ibrahim said to him: He has commanded you to help me with it. He said: Then I will do it. He said: So he stood with him, and Ibrahim began to build it, and

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Accepter of repentance, the Most Merciful.

Ismail handed him the stones, and they were saying: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." When the building was raised and the old man was too weak to lift the stones, he stood on a stone, and it was the Station of Ibrahim, and he began to hand it to them, and they were saying: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing."

Others said: Rather, the one who raised the foundations of the House was Abraham alone, and Ishmael was a young child at that time.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad ibn Bashar and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, they said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Hariitha ibn Mudrib, on the authority of Ali, he said: When Abraham was ordered to build the House, Ismail and Hagar went out with him. He said: When he arrived in Mecca, he saw above his head in the place of the House something like a cloud, in it like a head, so he spoke to it and said: O Abraham, build in my shadow or according to my size, do not increase or decrease. So when he built, he went out, and Ismail and Hagar went out, and Hagar said: O Abraham, to whom do you entrust us? He said: To God. She said: Go, for He will not let us down. He said: So Ismail became very thirsty. He said: So Hagar climbed up Safa and looked, but did not see anything. Then she came to Marwa and looked, but did not see anything. Then she returned to Safa and looked, but did not see anything. Until she did that seven times. Then she said: O Ismail, die where I do not see you. She came to him while he was prostrating his foot from thirst. Gabriel called her and said: Who are you? She said: I am Hagar, the mother of Abraham's son. He said: To whom have you been entrusted? She said: We entrust you both to God. He said: And you both are entrusted to Kaf! The boy probed the ground with his finger, and Zamzam gushed forth and began to hold back the water. He said: Leave it, for it is a quencher.

Hannad bin Al-Sarri narrated, Abu Al-Ahwas narrated, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Khalid bin Arara: A man stood up to Ali and said: Will you not tell me about the House? Was it the first House established on Earth? He said: No, but it is the first House in which blessing was established, the Station of Abraham, and whoever enters it will be safe. If you wish, I will tell you how it was built. God revealed to Abraham, Build Me a House on Earth. Abraham was fed up with that, so God sent the Sakina, a strong wind with two heads. One of them followed the other until it reached Mecca, and it folded over the site of the House like a veil folds. Abraham was commanded to build where the Sakina would settle. So Abraham built, and one stone remained. The boy went looking for something, but Abraham said: No! Bring me a stone as He commanded you. The boy went looking for a stone, and when he came to it, he found that the Black Stone had been installed in its place. He said: O my father, who brought you this stone? He said: It was brought to me by someone who did not rely on your construction. Gabriel brought it from heaven. So he completed it.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Samak, he said: I heard Khalid ibn Ar'ara narrating, on the authority of Ali, something similar.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Dawud told us, he said, Shu'bah, Hammad bin Salamah, and Abu Al-Ahwas told us, all of them, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Khalid bin Arara, on the authority of Ali, something similar.

Abu Ja'far said: Whoever says: Abraham and Ishmael raised the foundations, or: Abraham raised them and Ishmael was handing him the stones, then the correct interpretation of what he says is that the pronoun in the statement refers to Abraham and Ishmael. The statement then would be: And when Abraham and Ishmael raised the foundations of the House, saying, Our Lord, accept from us. It would have been possible, according to this interpretation, for the pronoun in the statement to refer specifically to Ishmael and not to Abraham, and to Abraham specifically and not to Ishmael, were it not for what most of the people of interpretation believe, that the pronoun in the statement refers to Abraham and Ishmael together.

As for the interpretation narrated on the authority of Ali: that Abraham was the one who raised the foundations without Ishmael, then it is not permissible for the implied statement at that time to be for anyone other than Ishmael in particular.

The correct statement in our view is that the implied statement refers to Abraham and Ishmael, and that the foundations of the House were raised by Abraham and Ishmael together. That is because if Abraham and Ishmael were the ones who built and raised it, then that is what we said. And if Abraham was the only one who built it, and Ishmael was the one who handed it to him, then they also raised it, because raising it was done by them: one of them built it, and the other carried the stones to it, and helped put the stones in their places. The Arabs do not refrain from attributing the building to the one who caused the building and his help.

We said what we said about that because all the people of interpretation agreed that Ishmael was meant by the report that God informed about him and his father, that they were saying it, and that was their saying: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." It is known that Ishmael would not have said that unless he was either a mature man, or a young man who understood the places of harm from benefit, and was bound by the obligations and rulings of God. And if he was in the case of his father building what God had commanded him to build and raising the foundations of the House of God in this way, then it is known that he did not neglect his father's assistance: either in building, or in transporting the stones. Whichever of these was from him, it entered into the meaning of raising the foundations of the House, and it was proven that the implied statement is report about him and his father Abraham, peace be upon them.

The interpretation of the words: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, they said: Our Lord, accept from us our work, our obedience to You, and our worship of You, in our fulfillment of Your command which You commanded us to do, in building Your House which You commanded us to build. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.

In the narration of God the Most High that they raised the foundations of the House while saying: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing, there is clear evidence that their building was not a dwelling place in which they would live, nor a house in which they would descend. Rather, it is evidence that they built it and raised its foundations for whoever wanted to worship God, seeking to draw closer to God by doing so. Therefore, they said: Our Lord, accept from us. If they had built it as a dwelling place for themselves, their saying: Accept from us would not have had any clear meaning. Because if that were the case, they would have been asking God to accept from them something that would not bring them closer to Him. And their place is not to ask God to accept something that would not bring them closer to Him.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of His statement: Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing is that You are the All-Hearing, our supplication and our request to You to accept what we asked You to accept from us, of obeying You in building Your House that You commanded us to build. The All-Knowing is what is in the depths of our souls of submission to You in obedience, and the destination to that in which there is contentment and love for You, and what we show and conceal of our deeds, as Al-Qasim told me, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj told me, Abu Kathir told me, he said, Sa'id ibn Jubayr told us, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: Accept from us, indeed You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing, he says: Accept from us, indeed You are the Hearer of supplication.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Our Lord, and make us Muslims to You meaning make us, and Muslims is the second object, they asked for steadfastness and permanence. Islam in this context: faith and deeds together, and from it the Almighty said: Indeed, the religion in the sight of God is Islam so in this is evidence for those who said: faith and Islam are one thing, and they supported this with the Almighty's saying in another verse: So We brought out whoever was therein of the believers * And We found therein not but one house of Muslims. Ibn Abbas and A'waf Al-A'rabi read Muslims in the plural.

God the Almighty said: And from our descendants, a nation submissive to You meaning, from our descendants, so make. It is said: No prophet called except for himself and his nation except Abraham, for he called with his call for himself and his nation and for this nation. And the word from in His statement: and from our descendants is for partiality, because God the Almighty had informed him that among them were wrongdoers. Al-Tabari narrated that he meant by His statement: from our descendants the Arabs specifically. Al-Suhayli said: And their descendants are the Arabs, because they are the sons of Nabt bin Ismail, or the sons of Tayman bin Ismail. And it is said: Qaydar bin Nabt bin Ismail. As for the Adnanites, they are from Nabt, and as for the Qahtanites, they are from Qaydar bin Nabt bin Ismail, or Tayman according to one of the two opinions. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is weak, because his call appeared among the Arabs and among those who believed from among others. The nation: the group here, and it becomes one if it is followed in goodness, and from it is the saying of God Almighty: Indeed, Abraham was a nation obedient to God, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said about Zaid bin Amr bin Nufayl:

He will send a nation alone because he did not associate anyone else with him in his religion, and God knows best. The word nation may also be used for a meaning other than this, such as the Almighty's statement: Indeed, we found our fathers upon a nation. That is, upon a religion and creed. Such as the Almighty's statement: Indeed, this nation of yours is one nation. It may also mean time and age, such as the Almighty's statement: And remember after a nation. That is, after a time and age: This nation of Zayd, that is, Zayd's mother. The word nation also means stature, it is said: So-and-so has a good nation, that is, good stature. He said:

And Muawiyah is the most generous of the handsomest of the nations

It was said: The nation is the wound that reaches the mother of the brain. It is said: A man who is led in prayer and a leader.

The Almighty said: And show us our rites. Show us is from seeing with the eyes, so it takes two objects. It was also said: from seeing with the heart, and the speaker must take the verb from it to take three objects. Ibn Atiyyah said: It is separated by the fact that there is a transitive verb with a hamza from seeing with the heart to two objects like the non-transitive verb. Hatayit bin Ya'far, the brother of Al-Aswad bin Ya'far, said:

Show me a horse that died of humiliation, because I see what you see, or an immortal miser.

Umar ibn Abdul Aziz, Qatada, Ibn Kathir, Ibn Muhaisin, Al-Suddi, Ruh from Yaqub, Rawis and Al-Soussi read: Arna with a sukoon on the ra in the Qur'an, and Abu Hatim chose this. Abu Amr read it with a stolen kasra on the ra, and the rest read it with a kasra, and Abu Ubaid chose this. Its original form is Arna with a hamza, so whoever reads it with a sukoon says: The hamza is gone and its vowel is gone and the ra remains silent as it is, and he provided evidence for this with the saying

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Accepter of repentance, the Most Merciful.

of the poet:

Show us Abdullah's water jug so we can fill it with Zamzam water, for the people are thirsty.

And whoever breaks it, he transfers the movement of the deleted hamza to the ra', and Abu Amr asked for lightness. And on the authority of Shuja' bin Abi Nasr, who was a trustworthy and truthful man, that he saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a dream, and he mentioned to him some of the letters of Abu Amr, but he did not respond to him except for two letters: this, and the other, what we abrogate from a verse or forget, with a hamza.

The Almighty said: Our rites. It is said that the root of the word ritual in the language is washing. It is said: He washed his garment if he washed it. In Islamic law, it is a name for worship. It is said: A man is a devout worshipper.

Scholars differed about what is meant by the rituals here. Some said: The rituals of Hajj and its landmarks, as stated by Qatada and Al-Suddi. Mujahid, Ata' and Ibn Jurayj said: The rituals are the slaughterhouses, meaning the places of slaughter. It was also said: All the places of worship. Everything that is used as an act of worship to God Almighty is called a ritual or a ritual. The ritualist is like the worshipper. An-Nāṣik said: It is said naṣik yansuk, so it should have been said mansak based on this, except that there is no ma'af in the speech of the Arabs. On the authority of Zuhair bin Muhammad, he said: When Abraham, peace be upon him, finished building the Sacred House, he said: O Lord, I have finished, so show us our rituals. So God Almighty sent Gabriel to him, so he performed Hajj with him. Then when he returned from Arafat and the Day of Sacrifice came, Satan appeared to him and said to him: Pebble it. So he pebbled it with seven pebbles, then the next day, then the third day. Then he ascended Thabir and said: O servants of God, answer his call. So his call was heard from among the seas by those who had in their hearts an atom's weight of faith, so he said: Here I am, O God, here I am. He said: And there remained on the face of the earth seven Muslims or more, had it not been for that, the earth and all who were on it would have been destroyed. And the first to answer him were the people of Yemen. On the authority of Abu Majlaz, he said: When Ibrahim finished performing Tawaf around the House, Gabriel, peace be upon him, came to him and showed him the circumambulation of the House - he said: I think he said: Safa and Marwa - then they went to Aqaba and Satan appeared to them, so Gabriel took seven pebbles and gave Ibrahim seven pebbles, so he threw and said Allahu Akbar, and said to Ibrahim: Throw and say Allahu Akbar, so they threw and said Allahu Akbar with each throw until the devil disappeared. Then they went to the middle Jamrah, and Satan appeared to them, so Gabriel took seven pebbles and gave Ibrahim seven pebbles, and said: Throw and say Allahu Akbar, so they threw and said Allahu Akbar with each throw until the devil disappeared. Then they came to the furthest Jamrah and Satan appeared to them, Gabriel took seven pebbles and gave Ibrahim seven pebbles and said: Throw and say Allahu Akbar, so they threw with each throw until the devil disappeared. Then he brought him a group and said: This is where the people gather for prayers. Then he brought him to Arafat and said: Do you know? Yes, and that is why it was called Arafat. It was narrated that he said to him: Do you know, do you know, do you know? That is, Mina and the plural is this, so he said: Yes, so that place was called Arafat. On the authority of Khasif bin Abd al-Rahman that Mujahid told him: When Abraham, peace be upon him, said: And show us our rites, meaning Safa and Marwa, and they are among the rites of God according to the text of the Qur'an, then Gabriel took him out, and when he passed by Jamrat al-Aqaba, Satan was on it, so Gabriel said to him: Say Allahu Akbar and throw it, so Satan rose to the middle one, so Gabriel said: Say Allahu Akbar and throw it, then at the farthest Jamrat that is. Then he took him to al-Mash'ar al-Haram, then he brought him to Arafat and said to him: Did you know what I showed you? He said: Yes, so it was called Arafat for that, according to what was said, he said: So he announced the Hajj to the people, he said: How should I say it? He said: Say: O people, respond to your Lord, three times, so he did, and they said: Here I am, O God, here I am. He said: Whoever responds on that day is a pilgrim. In another narration: When he called, he turned and called in every direction, and people responded from every east and west, and the mountains lowered themselves even after his voice. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: When Abraham, the friend of the Most Merciful, peace be upon him, finished building the Sacred House, Gabriel, peace be upon him, came to him and said to him: Go around it seven times. So he and Ishmael, peace be upon them, went around it seven times, touching all the corners in each circumambulation. When they completed seven, they prayed two rak'ahs behind the station. He said: Gabriel stood up and showed him all the rituals: Safa, Marwah, Mina, and Muzdalifah. He said: When he entered Mina and descended from Aqaba, Satan appeared to him..., and he mentioned something similar to what was mentioned above. Ibn Ishaq said: It has reached me that Adam, peace be upon him, used to touch all the corners before Abraham, peace be upon him. He said: Isaac and Sarah performed Hajj from Syria, and Abraham, peace be upon him, used to perform Hajj every year on Buraq, and after that, the prophets and nations performed Hajj. Muhammad bin Sabit narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

"The Prophet was one of the prophets who, when his nation perished, would go to Mecca and worship there, he and those who believed with him, until they died. Noah, Hud, and Salih died there, and their graves are between Zamzam and Al-Hijr." Ibn Wahb mentioned that Shu'ayb died in Mecca, he and those who believed with him, and their graves are in the west of Mecca, between Dar Al-Nadwa and Bani Sahm. Ibn Abbas said: In the Sacred Mosque there are two graves, and there is no other, the grave of Ismail and the grave of Shu'ayb, peace be upon them. The grave of Ismail is in Al-Hijr, and the grave of Shu'ayb is opposite the Black Stone. Abdullah bin Damrah Al-Saluli said: Between the corner and the station and Zamzam are the graves of ninety-nine prophets who came as pilgrims and were buried there, may the prayers of God be upon them all.

The Almighty said: And forgive us. There is a difference of opinion regarding the meaning of the words of Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, And forgive us, even though they were infallible prophets. A group said: They sought steadfastness and permanence, not that they had committed a sin.

I said: This is good, and what is better than that is that when they knew the rituals and built the House, they wanted to explain to the people and let them know that that situation and those places are the place for absolving oneself of sins and seeking repentance. It was said that the meaning is: And repent to the oppressors among us. The discussion of the infallibility of the prophets, peace be upon them, has already passed in the story of Adam, peace be upon him, and the meaning of His statement, Indeed, You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful, has been presented, so there is no need to repeat it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

And the Almighty said: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day.' Imam Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us: 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of Abu al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Indeed, Abraham made the House of God sacred and made it secure, and I have made Medina sacred, and what is between its two lava plains, so its game is not to be hunted and its trees are not to be cut." And thus it was narrated by al-Nasa'i on the authority of Muhammad ibn Bashir, on the authority of Bandar, and Muslim narrated it on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah and 'Amr ibn al-Naqid, both of them on the authority of Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri. Ibn Jarir also said: Abu Kurayb and Abu al-Sa'ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, and Abu Kurayb told us, 'Abd al-Rahim al-Razi told us, they all said: We heard Ash'ath on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: "Ibrahim was the servant and friend of God, and I am the servant and messenger of God. Ibrahim made Mecca sacred, and I made Medina sacred, and what is between its two lava plains: its wood and its game. No weapon is to be carried in it for fighting, and no tree is to be cut down except for camel fodder." This chain of transmission is strange and is not found in any of the six books. The origin of the hadith is in Sahih Muslim from another chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Hurayrah may God be pleased with him, who said: When the people saw the first fruits, they would bring them to the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him). When the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) took them, he would say: "O God, bless us in our fruits, and bless us in our city, and bless us in our sa', and bless us in our mudd. O God, Ibrahim is Your servant and friend and Your Prophet, and I am Your servant and Your Prophet. He called upon You for Mecca, and I call upon You for Medina with the same as he called upon You for Mecca, and the same with it." Then he would call his youngest child and give him that fruit. In another version: Blessing with blessing. Then he would give him the youngest of the children who were present with him - the wording of Muslim. Then Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Qutaybah ibn Sa'id told us, Bakr ibn Mudar told us, on the authority of Ibn al-Haad, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Muhammad, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn 'Uthman, on the authority of Rafi' ibn Khadijan, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ibrahim made Mecca sacred, and I make what is between its two lava plains sacred. Muslim alone transmitted it, so he narrated it on the authority of Qutaybah on the authority of Bakr ibn Mudar, and his wording is the same. In the two Sahihs, "On the authority of Anas ibn Malik, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Abu Talhah: Find me a young boy from among your boys to serve me. So Abu Talhah took me out with him, and I used to serve the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, whenever he stopped. And he said in the hadith: Then he came forward until Uhud appeared to him, and he said: This is a mountain that loves us and we love it. So when he looked out over Medina, he said: O God, I make what is between its two mountains sacred just as Ibrahim made Mecca sacred. O God, bless them in their mudd and their sa'." And in a wording of theirs: "O God, bless them in their measure, and bless them in their Al-Bukhari added, meaning the people of Medina. They also narrated from Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O God, make Medina twice as blessed as you made Mecca." And from Abdullah bin Zaid bin Asim, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Abraham made Mecca sacred and supplicated for it, and I made Medina sacred as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made supplication for it in its mudd and sa' like what Abraham made supplication for Mecca." Narrated by Al-Bukhari and this is his wording. And from Muslim and his wording is that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Abraham made Mecca sacred and supplicated for its people, and I made Medina sacred as Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I made supplication for it in its sa' and mudd like what Abraham made supplication for the people of Mecca." And from Abu Sa'id, may God be pleased with him, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: "O God, Abraham made Mecca sacred and made it sacred, and I made Medina sacred between its two valleys, that no blood should be shed in it, no weapons should be carried in it for fighting, and no tree should be cut down in it except for fodder. O God, bless us in Our city, O God, bless our Saa' for us, O God, bless our Mud for us, O God, make with the blessing two blessings." The hadith, narrated by Muslim, and the hadiths about the prohibition of the city are many, but we have only mentioned those related to the prohibition of Abraham, peace be upon him, of Mecca, because of what is in that of the noble verse. And those who believed that the prohibition of Mecca was only on the tongue of Abraham the Friend held fast to it, and it was said: It has been prohibited since it was created with the earth, and this is more apparent and stronger, and God knows best.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:128

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Accepter of repentance, the Most Merciful.

There are other hadiths that indicate that God the Almighty made Mecca sacred before He created the heavens and the earth, as stated in the two Sahihis on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said on the day of the conquest of Mecca: "God made this city sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Fighting in it was not permitted for anyone before me, and it was not permitted for me except for an hour of the day, so it is sacred by the sanctity of God until the Day of Resurrection. Its thorns should not be cut, its game should not be frightened, its lost property should not be picked up except by one who knows it, and its solitude should not be found." Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, except for the idhkhair, for it is for their udders and for their houses. He said: Except the idhkhair. This is the wording of Muslim, and they have something similar from Abu Hurairah. Then Al-Bukhari said after that: Abaan ibn Salih said, on the authority of Al-Hasan ibn Muslim, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say something similar. This that Al-Bukhari suspended was narrated by Imam Abu Abdullah ibn Majah on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Numayr, on the authority of Yunus ibn Bakir, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Abaan ibn Salih, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muslim ibn Yanaq, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, delivering a sermon in the year of the conquest, and he said: "O people, God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, so it is sacred until the Day of Resurrection. Its trees shall not be cut, its game shall not be driven away, and its lost property shall not be taken except by one who announces it." Al-Abbas said: Except for the idhkhair, for it is for houses and graves. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Except for the idhkhair. And on the authority of Abu Shuraih al-Adawi, that he said to Amr ibn Sa'id while he was sending out the missions to Mecca: "Give me permission, O prince, to tell you a statement that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made the next day on the day of the conquest. My ears heard it, my heart retained it, and my eyes saw it when he spoke it. He praised God and extolled Him, then said: "Mecca has been made sacred by God and not by the people. It is not permissible for a person who believes in God and the Last Day to shed blood in it, or to cut down a tree in it, for one of the It was said to Abu Shuraih: What did Amr say to you? He said: I know that better than you, Abu Shuraih. The Sacred Sanctuary does not protect a sinner, a fugitive from blood, or a fugitive from ruin. Narrated by al-Bukhari and Muslim, and this is its wording.

If this is known, then there is no contradiction between these hadiths indicating that God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and the hadiths indicating that Abraham, peace be upon him, made it sacred, because Abraham conveyed from God His ruling concerning it and His prohibition of it, and that it had always been a sacred land before Abraham, peace be upon him, built it. Just as the Messenger of God, peace be upon him, was written with God as the Seal of the Prophets, and Adam was still kneaded in his clay, and despite this Abraham, peace be upon him, said, "Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from among themselves" [al-Masjid an-Nabawi], and God answered his supplication with what He had previously known and decreed. That is why it is stated in the hadith that they said, O Messenger of God, tell us about the beginning of your affair. He said, "The supplication of my father Abraham, peace be upon him, and the good report of Jesus, son of Mary, and my mother saw as if a light came out of her that illuminated the palaces of Ash-Sham." That is, tell us about the beginning of the appearance of your affair, as will come soon, God willing.

As for the issue of preferring Mecca over Medina, as is the opinion of the majority, or Medina over Mecca, as is the opinion of Malik and his followers, it will be mentioned in another place with its evidence, God willing, and He is trustworthy. And the Almighty said, reporting from Abraham, that he said: My Lord, make this a secure city, meaning from fear, meaning that its people will not be terrified. And God did that by law and decree, as in His Almighty's saying: And whoever enters it shall be safe, and His saying: Do they not see that We have made a secure sanctuary, while people are being snatched all around them? and other verses. And the hadiths have come before regarding the prohibition of fighting in it. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Jabir: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: It is not permissible for anyone to carry weapons in Mecca. And he said in this Surah: My Lord, make this a secure city. That is, make this spot a secure city. This was appropriate because it was before the construction of the Kaaba. God the Almighty said in Surah Ibrahim: And when Abraham said, 'My Lord, make this city secure.' This was appropriate there because, by God, it is as if the supplication occurred a second time after the construction of the House and the settlement of its people in it, and after the birth of Isaac, who was thirteen years younger than Ishmael. For this reason, he said at the end of the supplication: "Praise be to God, who has given me, in my old age, Ishmael and Isaac. Indeed, my Lord is the Hearer of supplication." And God the Almighty said: And provide his family with fruits - whoever of them believes in God and the Last Day. He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination.

Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah on the authority of Ubayy ibn Ka'b: "He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination." He said: This is the saying of God the Almighty. This is the saying of Mujahid and 'Ikrimah, and it is what Ibn Jarir, may God have mercy on him, corrected it. He said: Others read: "He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little; then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination." They made that part of the supplication of Abraham, as Abu Ja'far narrated on the authority of al-Rabi' on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah. He said: Ibn 'Abbas used to say that, the saying of Abraham asking his Lord: Whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little." Abu Ja'far said on the authority of Layth ibn Abi Salim on the authority of Mujahid: And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little. He said: And whoever disbelieves - I will provide for him for a little. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: When Abraham was removed from the call to the one whom God refused to give him authority, he was cut off from God and His love and separated from those who disobeyed his command, even if they were from his descendants, when he knew that there would be among them a wrongdoer whose covenant would not reach him, with God's information to him about that, God said: And whoever disbelieves - then I will provide for the righteous and the wicked, and I will provide for him for a little." Hatim ibn Ismail said on the authority of Hamid al-Kharraz on the authority of 'Ammar al-Dahni on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas regarding the words of God Almighty: My Lord, make this a secure city and provide its people with good things. The fruits of those who believe in God and the Last Day." Ibn Abbas said: "Ibrahim used to restrict them to the believers, but not to the people. So God revealed: And whoever disbelieves, I will provide for them as I provide for the believers. Shall I create a creation for whom I do not provide? I will give them enjoyment for a little; then I will force them to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is that destination." Then Ibn Abbas recited: "To each We provide, these and those, from the gift of your Lord. And the gift of your Lord is not forbidden." Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. It was narrated from 'Ikrimah and Mujahid, something similar to that as well. This is like the statement of God the Most High: "Indeed, those who invent falsehood against God will not succeed. Enjoyment in this world, then to Us is their return. Then We will make them taste the severe punishment for what they used to disbelieve." And the statement of God the Most High: "And whoever disbelieves, let not his disbelief grieve you. To Us is their return, and We will inform them of what they did. Indeed, God is Knowing of that within the breasts. We will give them enjoyment for a little; then We will force them to a severe punishment." And His statement: "And had it not been that mankind would have become one community, We would have made for those who disbelieve in the Most Merciful roofs of silver for their houses and stairways upon which they ascend. And for their houses, doors and couches upon which they will ascend." They recline * and adornments. And indeed, all that is for the enjoyment of the life of this world and the Hereafter, with your Lord is for the righteous. And His statement: Then I will force him to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. That is, then I will force him after his enjoyment in this world and We will spread over him from its shade to the punishment of the Fire, and wretched is the destination. Its meaning is that God Almighty will look at them and give them respite, then He will seize them with the grip of the Mighty, the Powerful, as in His statement, the Most High: And how many a town was I granted respite while it was unjust? Then I seized it, and to Me is the destination. And in the two Sahih: "No one is more patient with the harm he hears than God. Indeed, they attribute to Him a son, while He provides for them and heals them." And in the Sahih also: Indeed, God grants respite to the wrongdoer until, when He seizes him, He does not let him escape. Then he recited the statement of the Most High: "And thus is the seizure of your Lord when He seizes the towns while they are unjust. Indeed, His seizure is painful and severe." And some of them recited: He said, 'And whoever disbelieves - I will grant him enjoyment for a little.' The verse, making it part of the supplication of Abraham, and it is an anomalous reading that contradicts the seven reciters, and the structure of the context rejects its meaning, and God knows best, for the pronoun in He said: It refers to God Almighty in the reading of the majority, and the context requires it. According to this anomalous reading, the pronoun in said refers to Abraham, and this is contrary to the order of speech, and God Almighty is the All-Knowing.

As for the Almighty's saying: "And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful.'" The foundations are the plural of qa'idah, which is the pillar and foundation. The Almighty says: And mention, O Muhammad, to your people, Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, building the House and raising its foundations, and they were saying, "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." Al-Qurtubi and others narrated on the authority of Abi and Ibn Mas'ud that they were reciting, "And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing.'" I said This is indicated by their saying after it, Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. The verse, so they were doing a good deed, and they were asking God Almighty to accept from them, as Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Muhammad ibn Yazid ibn Khunais al-Makki on the authority of Wahib ibn al-Ward that he recited, "And when Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, were raising their foundations, [saying], 'Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Accepter of repentance, the Most Merciful.

Knowing.” The foundations of the House and Ishmael, our Lord accept from us.” Then he cries and says: O Khalil al-Rahman, the pillars of the House of the Most Merciful are being raised and you are afraid that it will not be accepted from you. This is as God the Most High narrated about the state of the sincere believers in His statement: And those who give what they give meaning they give what they give of charity, expenditures and offerings while their hearts are fearful meaning afraid that it will not be accepted from them, as came in the authentic hadith on the authority of Aisha on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as will come in its place. Some of the commentators said: The one who was raising the foundations was Ibrahim and the supplicant was Ishmael, and the correct view is that they were both raising and saying as will be explained. Al-Bukhari narrated here a hadith which we will quote and then follow it with related narrations. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub Al-Sakhtiyani and Kathir bin Kathir bin Abdul Muttalib bin Abi Wada'ah - one of them adds more than the other - on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The first time women used lanyards was before the mother of Ismail, who used lanyards to erase her traces on Sarah. Then Ibrahim brought her and her son Ismail while she was breastfeeding him, until he placed them near the House, near a tree above Zamzam at the top of the mosque, and there was no one in Mecca at that time, nor was there any water. So he placed them there and placed near them a bag of dates and a water skin with water. Then Ibrahim turned and went away, and Ismail's mother followed him and said: O Ibrahim, where are you going and leaving us in this valley with no one to accompany us? And nothing? She said that to him repeatedly, but he did not pay attention to her. She said: Has God commanded you to do this? He said: Yes. She said: Then He will not let us down. Then she returned. So Abraham set out until he was at the pass where they could not see him, facing the House. Then he supplicated with these supplications and raised his hands, saying, Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House, until he reached they give thanks. And the mother of Ismail began to suckle Ismail and drink from that water, until what was in the water skin was used up, she became thirsty and her son became thirsty, and she began to look at him writhing—or he said: floundering—so she set out, hating to look at him, and she found Safa to be the nearest mountain on earth to her, so she stood on it and then faced the valley to see if she could see anyone, but she did not see anyone. So she descended from Safa until she reached the valley, raised the edge of her armor and ran as a person struggles until she passed the valley, then she came to Marwa and stood on it and looked to see if she could see anyone, but she did not see anyone. She did that seven times. Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, That is why people ran between them. When she approached Marwa, she heard a voice and said, Hush. She wanted herself - then she listened and heard also, so she said: I have heard if you have help, so behold, the king is at the place of Zamzam, so he searched with his heel, or he said: with his wing, until the water appeared, so she began to surround it and say with her hand like this, and she began to scoop from the water in her water skin and it was bubbling after she scooped, Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “May God have mercy on the mother of Ismail, if she had left Zamzam - or he said: if she had not scooped from the water - Zamzam would have been a flowing spring.” He said: So she drank and breastfed her son, so the king said to her: Do not fear loss, for here is a house for God that this boy and his father will build, and God does not neglect His people, and the house was high above the ground like a hill, and the floods would come to it and take from its right and left, and it was like that until a group of Jurhum or a family of Jurhum passed by them coming from the road of Kada, so they stopped at the bottom of Mecca, and they saw a circling bird, so they said: This bird is circling On water, as we knew this valley and there was no water in it, so they sent one or two men running, and if they were at water, they returned and he informed them of the water, so they came. He said: And the mother of Ismail was at the water, so they said: Do you give us permission to stay with you? She said: Yes, but you have no right to our water. They said: Yes. Ibn Abbas said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ishmael's mother found that and she loved company. So they dismounted and sent for their people, so they dismounted with them, until there were some households there from them, and the boy grew up and learned Arabic from them, and they liked him and were pleased with him when he grew up. When he reached puberty, they married him to a woman from them, and Ishmael's mother died. Abraham came after Ishmael had married to look at his estate, but he did not find Ishmael. He asked his wife about him, and she said: He went out seeking us. Then he asked her about their living and their condition, and she said: We are human beings, we are in hardship and difficulty. So she complained to him, and he said: When your husband comes, greet him and tell him to change the threshold of his door. When Ishmael came, it seemed as if he had sensed something, so he said: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, an old man of such and such came to us and asked us about you, so I told him. He asked me how we lived, so I told him that we were in hardship and difficulty. He said: Did he advise you about anything? She said: Yes, he ordered me to greet you and say: Change the threshold of your door. He said: That is my father and he ordered me to leave you, so go back to your family. He divorced her and married another woman from them. Ibrahim stayed away from them as long as God willed, then he came to them later and did not find him. He went to his wife and asked her about him. She said: He went out seeking us. He said: How are you? He asked her about their livelihood and their condition. She said: We are well and comfortable, and praised God the Almighty. He said: What is your food? She said: Meat. He said: What is your drink? She said: Water. He said: O God, bless them in the meat and water. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "And they did not have grain at that time. If they had, he would have prayed for it for them." He said: So no one would be alone with them except in Mecca without agreeing to it. He said: So when your husband comes, greet him with my greetings and tell him to fix the threshold of his door. When Ismail came, he said: Has anyone come to you? She said: Yes, a well-mannered old man came to us, and she praised him. He asked me about you, so I told him. He asked me how we lived. I told him that I was fine. He said: Did he advise you about anything? She said: Yes, and he sends you his greetings and orders you to strengthen the threshold of your door. He said: That is my father and you are the threshold. He ordered me to hold you back. Then he stayed away from them as God willed. Then he came after that and Ishmael was sharpening his arrows under a tree near Zamzam. When he saw him, he went to him, and they did as a father does with his son and a son does with his father. Then he said: O Ishmael, God has commanded me to do something. He said: Do what your Lord has commanded you. He said: Will you help me? He said: And I will help you. He said: God has commanded me to build a house here, and he pointed to a high hill above what was around it. He said: Then they raised the foundations of the house, and Ismail began to bring stones and Abraham built, until when the building was high, he brought this stone and placed it for him, and he stood on it while he was building and Ismail was handing him the stones, and they were saying: Our Lord, accept from us, for You are the Hearing, the Knowing. And Abd bin Hamid narrated it from Abd al-Razzaq in full, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from Abu Abdullah bin Hammad al-Tabarani, and Ibn Jarir from Ahmad bin Thabit al-Razi, both of them from Abd al-Razzaq in short.

Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Ismail bin Ali told us, Bishr bin Musa told us, Ahmad bin Muhammad al-Azraqi told us, Muslim bin Khalid al-Zanji told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik bin Jurayj, on the authority of Kathir bin Kathir, who said: I, Uthman bin Abi Sulayman, and Abdullah bin Abdul Rahman bin Abi Husayn were with some people with Saeed bin Jubair at the top of the mosque at night, and Saeed bin Jubair said: Ask me before you do not see me, so they asked him about the station, and he began to tell them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned the hadith in full.

Then Al-Bukhari said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abu Amir Abdul Malik bin Amr told us, Ibrahim bin Nafi' told us, on the authority of Kathir bin Kathir, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When what happened between Abraham and his family happened, he went out with Ishmael and Ishmael's mother, and with them was a water skin. Ishmael's mother began to drink from the skin, and her milk flowed over her child, until they reached Mecca. He placed them under a tree, then Abraham returned to his family, and Ishmael's mother followed him until they reached Kada'. She called out to him from behind him: O Abraham, to whom are you leaving us? He said: To God. He said: So she returned and began to drink from the water skin and her milk flowed to her child, until when the water ran out she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she climbed Safa and looked to see if she could sense anyone, but she did not sense anyone. When she reached the valley she ran until she reached Marwa and did that for seven laps until she completed seven. Then she said: If I went and looked what the child did. So she went and looked and saw that he was still in his condition as if he was gasping for death. Her soul could not be satisfied, so she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she went and climbed Safa and looked and looked to see if she could sense anyone, but she did not sense anyone. When she reached the valley she ran until she reached Marwa and did that for seven laps until she completed seven. Then she said: If I went and looked what the child did. So she went and looked and saw that he was still in his condition as if he was gasping for death. Her soul could not be satisfied, so she said: If I went and looked, perhaps I might sense someone. So she went and climbed Safa, and looked and looked, but she did not see anyone until she had completed seven days. Then she said: If only you had gone and looked, what would have happened? Then she saw a voice and said: Help, if there is any good with you. Then it was Gabriel, peace be upon him. He said: So he said with his heel: Like this, and he touched his heel on the ground, and water gushed forth. Umm Ismail was astonished, and she began to dig. He said: Abu al-Qasim, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If you had left it, the water would have appeared. He said: So she began to drink from the water and her milk flowed to her child. He said: Some people from Jurhum passed by the valley, and they saw a bird as if they were unaware of that, and they said: Birds do not exist except on water. So they sent their messenger, and he looked and it was in the water. He came to them and informed them, so they came to her and said: O mother of Ismail, do you give us permission to be with you and live with you? Then her son reached puberty and married one of their women. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he said to his family: I am going to see my estate. He came and greeted them. He said: Where is Ishmael? His wife said: He went hunting. He said: Tell him when he comes: Change the threshold of your door. When she told him, he said: You are the one, go to your family. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, peace be upon him, and he said: I am going to see my estate. He came and said: Where is Ishmael? His wife said: He went hunting. She said: Why don't you come down and eat and drink? He said: What is your food and what is your drink? She said: Our food is meat, and our drink is water. He said: O God, bless them in their food and drink. He said: Abu al-Qasim, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Blessing through the supplication of Abraham. He said: Then it occurred to Abraham, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said to his family: I am going to leave my estate. So he came and met Ismail from behind Zamzam, fixing some arrows for him. He said: O Ismail, your Lord, the Almighty, has commanded me to build a house for him. He said: Obey your Lord, the Almighty. He said: He has commanded me to help you with it. He said: Then I will do it - or something like that - He said: So he stood up and Abraham began to build and Ismail handed him the stones, and they said: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. He said: Until the building rose and the old man was too weak to carry the stones, so he stood on the stone of the station and began to hand it the stones and they said: Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing. This is how it was narrated from these two sources in the Book of the Prophets.

It is strange that Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Hakim narrated it in his book Al-Mustadrak on the authority of Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm on the authority of Muhammad bin Sinan Al-Qazzaz on the authority of Abu Ali Ubaid God bin Abdul Majeed Al-Hanafi on the authority of Ibrahim bin Nafi' on his authority, and he said: It is authentic according to the conditions of the two sheikhs, and they did not include it. This is what he said. Al-Bukhari narrated it, as you see, from the hadith of Ibrahim bin Nafi', and it seems that there is an abbreviation in it, as he did not mention the matter of slaughtering. He said: It came in the Sahih that the horns of the ram were hanging from the Kaaba, and it came that Ibrahim, peace be upon him, used to visit his family in Mecca quickly on Al-Buraq, then he would return to his family in the Holy Land. And God knows best. Rather, it contains places that are attributed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, which Ibn Abbas explicitly stated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated from the Commander of the Faithful, Ali ibn Abi Talib, in this context that which contradicts some of this, as Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Bashar and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, they said: Muammil told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha ibn Mudrib, on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, he said: When Abraham was ordered to build the House, Ismail and Hajar went out with him. He said: When he arrived in Mecca, he saw above his head in the place of the House something like a cloud in it like a head, so he spoke to it and said: O Abraham, build in my shadow, or he said: according to my measure, and do not increase or decrease. So when he built, he went out and left Ismail and Hajar behind, so Hajar said: O Abraham, to whom do you entrust us? He said: To God. She said: Go, for He will not let us down. He said: So Ishmael became very thirsty. Hagar went up to Safa and looked, but saw nothing. She came to Marwa and saw nothing. Then she returned to Safa and looked, but saw nothing. She did that seven times, and said: O Ishmael, die where I will not see you. She came to him while he was prostrating his foot from thirst. Gabriel called her and said: Who are you? She said: I am Hagar, the mother of Abraham's son. He said: To whom has He entrusted you both? She said:

We entrust you both to God. He said: And you both to Kaf. He said: So the boy probed the ground with his finger, and Zamzam gushed forth and began to hold back the water. He said: Leave it, for it is a quencher. In this context, it is clear that he built the House before he left her. It may be possible that it was preserved that he first put a fence and a stone around it, not that he built it to the top, until Ishmael grew up, so they built it together, as God the Most High said.

Then Ibn Jarir said: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Khalid bin Arara: That a man went to Ali, may God be pleased with him, and said: Will you not tell me about the House, is it the first House built on the earth? He said: No, but it is the first House built in the pool, the Station of Abraham, and whoever enters it is safe, and if you wish I will tell you how it was built: God revealed to Abraham to build a House for me on the earth, and Abraham was fed up with that, so God sent the Sakina, which is a strong wind with two heads, and one of them followed the other until it reached Mecca and rolled over the site of the House like the folding of a veil, and He ordered Abraham to build where the Sakina would settle, so Abraham built and the stone remained, so the boy went looking for something, so Abraham said: Find me a stone as I command you, he said: The boy went looking for a stone for him, so he brought it to him and found that he had installed the Black Stone in its place, he said: O my father, who brought you this stone? He said: It was brought to me by someone who did not rely on your construction. Gabriel, peace be upon him, brought it from heaven and completed it.

Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Bishr ibn Asim, on the authority of Saeed ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Ka'b al-Ahbar, who said: The House was a scum on the water forty years before God created the earth, and from it the earth was spread out. Saeed said: Ali ibn Abi Talib told us: Abraham came from the land of Armenia, and with him was the serenity guiding him to take up residence in the House as a spider takes up residence in a house. He said: Then it revealed stones that only thirty men could carry a stone, so I said: O Abu Muhammad, God says: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House He said: That was later. Al-Suddi said: God Almighty commanded Abraham and Ishmael to build the House, Build My House for those who go around it, and those who stay there, and those who bow and prostrate. So Abraham set out until he came to Mecca. He and Ishmael stood up and took up their pickaxes, not knowing where the House was. Then God sent a wind called the Khajuj wind, which had two wings and a head in the form of a snake. It revealed to them around the Kaaba the foundation of the first House. They followed it with pickaxes, digging until they laid the foundation. That is when God Almighty says: And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House, "And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House." When they had built the foundations and reached the place of the corner, Abraham said to Ishmael: My son, find me a beautiful stone that I may place here. He said: O my father, I am lazy and ignorant. He said: I will do that. So he set out to find a stone for him, and he brought him a stone, but he was not satisfied with it. So he said: Bring me a stone better than this. So he set out to find a stone for him, and Gabriel brought him the Black Stone from India. It was white, a white ruby like a thujamah. Adam had brought it down from Paradise, but it had turned black from the sins of the people. Then Ishmael brought him a stone and found it at the corner. He said: O my father, who brought you this? He said: He brought it from someone who is more active than you, so they built and they were calling upon the words that Abraham tested his Lord with, so he said: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the Hearing, the Knowing." In this context, there is evidence that the foundations of the House were built before Abraham, and Abraham was only guided to it and given it a place to live. Some have gone to this, as Imam Abdul Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when Abraham was raising the foundations of the House. He said, the foundations that were the foundations of the House before that. Abdul Razzaq also said: Hisham bin Hassan told us on the authority of Suwar, the son-in-law of Ata', on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah, who said: When God sent Adam down from Paradise, his feet were on the ground and his head was in the sky, hearing the speech of the people of the sky and their supplications, and he was comforted by them. So the angels were afraid until they complained to God in their supplications and prayers, so God Almighty lowered him to the ground. When he lost what he used to hear from them, he became lonely, until he complained about that to God in his supplications and prayers, so he turned towards Mecca and the place of his feet was a village, and his steps a desert, until he reached Mecca, and God sent down a ruby from the rubies of Paradise, and it was in the place of the House now, and he kept circling it until God sent down the flood, and that ruby was lifted up, until God sent Abraham, peace be upon him, and he built it, that is the saying of God Almighty: And when We designated for Abraham the site of the House. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us on the authority of Ata', he said: Adam said: I do not hear the voices of the angels, so he said: Because of your sin, but descend to the earth and build me a house, then surround it as you saw the angels surrounding my house that is in the heaven. And the people claim that he built it from five mountains: from Hira', Mount Zayta, Mount Sinai, and al-Judi, and its suburb was from Hira', so this was the building of Adam until Abraham, peace be upon him, built it later, and this is correct up to Ata', but in some of it there is something strange, and God knows best.

Abdul Razzaq also said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatada, who said: God placed the House with Adam when God sent Adam down to Earth, and his descent was in the land of India, and his head was in the sky and his feet were on the earth, so the angels feared him, then it decreased to sixty cubits, and Adam was saddened when he lost the voices of the angels and their glorification, so he complained about that to God Almighty, so God said: O Adam, I have sent down a House for you to circumambulate as one circumambulates around My Throne, and to pray at it as one prays at My Throne, so Adam went to it, and he went out and stretched out his steps for him, so between every two steps there was a wilderness, and that wilderness did not cease after that, so Adam came to the House and circumambulated it, and after him from the prophets.

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Humayd told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Hafs ibn Humayd, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: God placed the House on the four pillars of water before the creation of the world by two thousand years, then the earth was rolled out from under the House. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: Abdullah ibn Abi Nujayh told me, on the authority of Mujahid and other scholars: When God designated the location of the House for Abraham, he went out to it from Syria, and Ishmael and his mother Hagar went out with him, and Ishmael was a small child who was being breastfed. And they were carried, as he told me, on Buraq, and Gabriel was with him, guiding him to the location of the House and the landmarks of the Sanctuary. Gabriel went out with him, and he would not pass by a village without saying: Is this where you were commanded, O Gabriel? Gabriel would say: Go with him, until he brought him to Mecca, which at that time was Udhayl, Salim and Samar, and in it were people called the Amalekites outside Mecca and its environs. And the House at that time was a red, muddy hill, so Abraham said to Gabriel: Was I commanded to place them here? He said: Yes, so he took them to the place of the Black Stone and settled them there, and he ordered Hajar, the mother of Ismail, to build a hut there, and he said: Our Lord, I have settled some of my descendants in an uncultivated valley near Your sacred House until His saying: that they may be grateful. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Hisham bin Hassan informed us, Hamid informed me, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: God created the location of this House two thousand years before He created anything, and its pillars are in the seventh earth. And Laith ibn Abi Salim said the same on the authority of Mujahid: The foundations are in the seventh earth. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father informed us, Amr ibn Rafi' informed us, Abd al-Wahhab ibn Muawiyah informed us, on the authority of Abd al-Mu'min ibn Khalid, on the authority of Aliya ibn Ahmar: Dhul-Qarnayn came to Mecca and found Abraham and Ismail building the foundations of the House from five mountains. So he said: What do you have to do with my land? He said: We are two commanded servants, we were commanded to build this Kaaba. He said: Bring the proof of what you claim. Five rams stood up and said: We bear witness that Abraham and Ishmael were two servants who were commanded to build this Kaaba. He said: I am satisfied and I submit, then he left. Al-Azraqi mentioned in the History of Mecca that Dhul-Qarnayn circumambulated the House with Abraham, peace be upon him, and this indicates that he was an advanced man in his time, and God knows best.

Al-Bukhari may God have mercy on him said: The Almighty's saying: And when Abraham and Ishmael were raising the foundations of the House (Al-Qawa'id:

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful.

33). The foundations: its foundation, the singular of which is Qawa'id, and the singular of Qawa'id among women is Qawa'id. Ismail told us: Malik told me on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Salim bin Abdullah, that Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abi Bakr told Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Did you not see that when your people built the House, they limited themselves to the foundations of Abraham? I said: O Messenger of God, will you not return it to the foundations of Abraham? He said: Had it not been for the recent disbelief of your people. Abdullah bin Umar said: If Aisha heard this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), I do not see the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) leaving out touching the two corners next to the Black Stone, except that the House was not completed on the foundations of Abraham (peace be upon him). It was narrated in Hajj on the authority of Al-Qa'nabi, and in the Hadiths of the Prophets on the authority of Abdullah bin Yusuf and Muslim, on the authority of Yahya bin Yahya, and from the hadith of Ibn Wahb and Al-Nasa'i on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Al-Qasim, all on the authority of Malik with it. Muslim also narrated it on the authority of Nafi' who said: I heard Abdullah bin Abi Bakr bin Abi Quhafah, narrating to Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Aisha, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Had it not been that your people had recently converted from ignorance - or he said: from disbelief - I would have spent the treasure of the Ka'ba in the way of God, and I would have made its door in the ground and included the Black Stone in it." Al-Bukhari said: Ubaydullah bin Musa informed us on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Aswad, who said: Ibn Al-Zubayr said to me: Aisha used to tell you many secret hadiths, so what did she tell you about the Ka'ba? He said: I said: She told me: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O Aisha, were it not that your people had recently converted to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and made two doors for it: one for people to enter through and one for them to exit through." So Ibn al-Zubayr did so. Al-Bukhari is the only one to narrate it, and he narrated it like this in the Book of Knowledge of his Sahih. Muslim said in his Sahih: Yahya bin Yahya told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: "Were it not that your people had recently converted to disbelief, I would have demolished the Kaaba and made it on the foundation of Abraham, for when the Quraysh built the House, they shortened it, and they would have made a successor for it." He said: Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah and Abu Kurayb told us, they said: Ibn Numayr told us, on the authority of Hisham, with this chain of transmission, and Muslim is the only one to narrate it.

He said: Muhammad ibn Hatim told me, Ibn Mahdi told me, Salim ibn Hayyan told us, on the authority of Sa'id, meaning Ibn Mina'. He said: I heard Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr say: My aunt, meaning Aisha, may God be pleased with her, told me that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O Aisha, if your people were not recent converts to polytheism, I would have demolished the Kaaba and leveled it with the ground, and I would have made an eastern door and a western door for it, and I would have added six cubits of stone to it, for the Quraysh had shortened it when they built the Kaaba." This is also unique to him.

He was transferred with them in the stones when he was thirty-five years old. May God's prayers and peace be upon him forever until the Day of Judgment. Muhammad bin Ishaq bin Yasar said in the biography: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, reached thirty-five years of age, the Quraysh gathered to build the Kaaba, and they intended to do so in order to roof it and were afraid to demolish it, but it was only rubble above the height of a person, so they wanted to raise it and roof it. This was because a group of people had stolen the treasure of the Kaaba, which was in a well inside the Kaaba. The one who found the treasure was Duwaik, a client of Banu Malih bin Amr from Khuza'ah, so the Quraysh cut off his hand, and people claim that those who stole it placed it with Duwaik. The sea had thrown a ship to Jeddah belonging to a Roman merchant, and it was shattered, so they took its wood and prepared it to roof it. There was a Coptic carpenter in Mecca, so he prepared for them some of what would repair it. There was a snake that came out of the well of the Kaaba into which it threw what was given to it every day, and it would hang itself on the wall of the Kaaba, and it was one of the things they feared, because no one would approach it except that it would shake, scrape, and open its mouth. They feared her. One day, while she was standing on the wall of the Kaaba as she used to do, God sent a bird to her and snatched her away. The Quraysh said: We hope that God is pleased with what we want. We have a gentle worker and wood, and God has spared us from the snake. When they decided to demolish and rebuild it, Abu Wahb ibn Amr ibn Aidh ibn Abd ibn Imran ibn Makhzum stood up and took a stone from the Kaaba, which jumped out of his hand until it returned to its place. He said: O people of the Quraysh, do not include in its construction anything from your earnings except what is good. Do not include in it the dowry of a prostitute, nor a sale based on usury, nor the oppression of any of the people. Ibn Ishaq said: People attribute these words to Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira ibn Abdullah ibn Amr ibn Makhzum. He said: Then the Quraysh divided the Kaaba, so the section of the door went to the Banu Abd Manaf and Zuhrah, and the area between the Black Corner and the Yemeni Corner went to the Banu Makhzum and tribes of the Quraysh. They joined them, and the back of the Kaaba belonged to Banu Jumah and Sahm, and the split in the stone belonged to Banu Abd al-Dar ibn Qusayy, Banu Asad ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Qusayy, and Banu Adi ibn Kaab ibn Luayy, which is al-Hutaym.

Then the people feared its demolition and were afraid of it, so al-Walid ibn al-Mughira said, I will start with you in demolishing it. So he took the pickaxe and stood over it saying, "O God, do not be afraid. O God, we only want good." Then he demolished from the side of the two corners, and the people waited that night and said, "We will wait. If it is hit, we will not demolish anything of it, and we will return it as it was. If nothing is hit, then God is pleased with what we have done." So al-Walid went to work that night, and he demolished and the people demolished with him, until when the demolition reached the foundation, the foundation of Abraham, peace be upon him, they came upon green stones like spears, some of which were attached to others. He said, Someone who narrates the hadith told me that a man from Quraysh who was demolishing it inserted a lever between two of its stones in order to remove one of them as well. When the stone moved, all of Mecca revolted, and they stopped that foundation.

Ibn Ishaq said: Then the tribes of Quraysh gathered stones to build it, each tribe gathered separately, then they built it until the building reached the place of the corner, meaning the Black Stone, then they disputed about it, each tribe wanted to raise it to its place without the other, until they discussed and disagreed and prepared for battle, so Banu Abd al-Dar brought a bowl filled with blood, then they and Banu Adi bin Kaab bin Luay agreed to die, and they put their hands in that blood in that bowl and they called it the blood lick, so Quraysh remained like that for four or five nights, then they gathered in the mosque and consulted and divided equally, so some of the narrators claimed that Abu Umayyah bin al-Mughira bin Abdullah bin Amr bin Makhzum, who was at that time the oldest of all Quraysh, said: O people of Quraysh, make between you in what you disagree about the first one to enter through the door of this mosque to judge between you in it, so they did, and the first to enter was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and when they saw him they said: This is the trustworthy one, we are satisfied, this is Muhammad. When he reached them and they told him the report, he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Bring me a garment. So it was brought to him, and he took the corner, meaning the Black Stone, and placed it in it with his hand. Then he said: Let each tribe take a corner of the garment and then lift it all together. So they did until they reached its place, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, placed it with his hand, then he built on it. The Quraysh used to call the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before the revelation came down, the Trustworthy One. So when they finished building and built it as they wanted, Al-Zubayr ibn Abdul Muttalib said, regarding the matter of the snake for which the Quraysh feared the construction of the Kaaba:

I was surprised when the eagle aimed at the snake while it was in a state of agitation.

It used to have a kesheesh and sometimes it used to have a thawb.

If we set out to establish, the building will be feared and you will be afraid

But when we feared the punishment, a punishment came pouring forth from it.

Then she took her to herself and left us with a building without a veil.

So we gathered to build our foundations and soil.

Tomorrow we will raise the foundation from it and there will be no clothes on our faults

The king honored the Banu Luay with it, so his origins are not lost to them.

And Banu Adi gathered there, and once they were led by Kalb.

So the king gave us honor for that, and he seeks reward from God.

Ibn Ishaq said: The Kaaba was eighteen cubits high during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it was covered with Coptic, then it was covered with brocade, and the first to cover it with brocade was Al-Hajjaj bin Yusuf. I said It remained as the Quraysh built it until it was burned at the beginning of the emirate of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr after the year sixty and at the end of the reign of Yazid bin Muawiyah, when they besieged Ibn Al-Zubayr. Then Ibn Al-Zubayr demolished it to the ground and built it on the foundations of Abraham, peace be upon him, and inserted the stone into it, and made for it an eastern door and a western door attached to the ground as he heard that from his aunt Aisha, the mother of the believers, from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. It remained like that during the period of his emirate until Al-Hajjaj killed him, and he returned it to what it was by the order of Abdul Malik bin Marwan to do so, as Muslim bin Al-Hajjaj said in his Sahih: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, Ibn Abi Zaidah told us, Ibn Abi Sulayman told us on the authority of Ata', who said: When the House was burned during the time of Yazid bin Muawiyah when the people of Ash-Sham invaded it, and what happened happened, Ibn Al-Zubayr left it. Al-Zubayr, until the people arrived at the season, wanted to form a party among them or seek their protection against the people of Ash-Sham. When the people left, he said: O people, advise me regarding the Kaaba, should I demolish it and then rebuild it, or repair what is damaged in it? Ibn Abbas said: I have a different opinion about it. I think that you should repair what is damaged in it, and leave a house that the people were safe upon, and stones that the people were safe upon, and that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent upon. Ibn Al-Zubayr said: If one of them had his house burned down, he would not be satisfied until he renovated it, so how about the house of your Lord, the Almighty and Majestic? I seek counsel from my Lord for three days, then I am determined to do my thing. When three days had passed, he decided to demolish it, but the people avoided it lest something from the sky descend upon the first person to ascend it. Then a man climbed it and threw stones from it. When the people did not see anything happen to it, they followed one another and demolished it until they reached the ground. Ibn al-Zubayr made pillars to cover them with curtains until its construction rose. Ibn al-Zubayr said: I heard Aisha, may God be pleased with her, say that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Were it not that the people had recently converted from disbelief, and that I did not have the means to build it, I would have added five cubits of stone to it, and made a door for people to enter through, and a door for them to exit through." He said: I find what I can spend, and I am not afraid of people. He said: So he added five cubits of stone to it until he showed it a foundation. The people looked at it, so he built the structure on it. The length of the Kaaba was eighteen cubits, but when he added to it, he shortened it, so he added ten cubits at the beginning and made two doors for it: one for entering through, and one for exiting through. And the other comes out of it. When Ibn al-Zubayr was killed, al-Hajjaj wrote to Abd al-Malik asking him to permit him to do so and informing him that Ibn al-Zubayr had put the building on a foundation that the just people of Mecca had seen. Abd al-Malik wrote to him: We are not against Ibn al-Zubayr's taint in anything. As for what he added to its height, he approved it, and as for what he added of stones, he returned it to its building, and closed the door that he opened, so he demolished it and returned it to its building. Al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Hanad, on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Za'idah, on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn al-Zubayr, on the authority of Aisha, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He did not mention the story, and the Sunnah was an approval of what Abd God ibn al-Zubayr, may God be pleased with them both, had done, because he was the one whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved. However, he feared that some people's hearts would reject it because of their newness to Islam and their recent history of disbelief. However, this Sunnah was hidden from Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan, and for this reason, when it was confirmed on the authority of Aisha, she narrated it on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saying: We wished that we had left it. And he did not take over, as Muslim said: Muhammad bin Hatim told me, Muhammad bin Bakr told us, Ibn Jurayj told us: I heard Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair and Al-Walid bin Ata' narrating on the authority of Al-Harith bin Abdullah bin Abi Rabi'ah, Abdullah bin Ubaid said: Al-Harith bin Abdullah delegated to Abdul Malik bin Marwan during his caliphate, and Abdul Malik said: I do not think that Abu Habib, meaning Ibn Al-Zubayr, heard from Aisha what he claimed he heard from her, Al-Harith said: Yes, I heard it from her. He said: I heard her say what? He said: She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Your people have shortened the construction of the House, and were it not for the recent conversion to polytheism, I would have restored what they had left of it. If your people decide to rebuild it after me, then come and I will show you what they have left of it." So I saw it was close to seven cubits. This is the hadith of Abdullah bin Ubaid bin Umair, and Al-Walid bin Ata' added to it: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And I would have made two doors for it placed in the ground: one to the east and one to the west. Do you know why your people raised its door? She said: No. He said: To strengthen it so that no one would enter it except those they wanted. So when a man wanted to enter it, they would call him until he climbed up, until when he was about to enter, they would push him and he would fall. Abdul Malik said: So I said to Al-Harith: Did you hear her say that? He said: Yes. He said: So he poked it for a while with his stick, then he said: I wish I had left it and not carried it. Muslim said: Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Jabalah told us, Abu Asim H told us, and Abd ibn Hamid told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, both of them on the authority of Ibn Jurayj with this chain of transmission like the hadith of Abu Bakr. He said: Muhammad ibn Hatim told us, Abdullah ibn Bakr al-Sahmi told us, Hatim ibn Abi Saghira told us on the authority of Abu Qaz'ah: While Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan was circumambulating the House, he said: May God kill Ibn al-Zubayr, for he lies about the Mother of the Believers. He said: I heard her say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Aisha, were it not for the recent disbelief of your people, I would have demolished the Kaaba so that I could add more stones to it, for your people have fallen short in building it. Al-Harith ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Rabi'ah said: Do not say this, O Commander of the Faithful, for I heard the Mother of the Believers say this. He said: If I had heard it before I demolished it, I would have left it as Ibn al-Zubayr had built it. This hadith is as if it is definitely attributed to Aisha, because it has been narrated from her through multiple authentic chains of transmission on the authority of al-Aswad ibn Yazid, al-Harith ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Rabi'ah, Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Bakr, and Urwah ibn al-Zubayr. This indicates that what Ibn al-Zubayr did was correct, and if it had been left, it would have been good.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:128

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Accepter of repentance, the Most Merciful.

But after the matter returned to this state, some scholars were reluctant to change its state, as was mentioned about the Commander of the Faithful, Harun al-Rashid, or his father, al-Mahdi, that he asked Imam Malik about demolishing the Kaaba and returning it to what Ibn al-Zubayr had done. Malik said to him: O Commander of the Faithful, do not make the Kaaba of God a playground for kings. No one wants to demolish it except that he demolishes it. Al-Rashid left that. It was narrated by Iyad and al-Nawawi. And it will remain like this - and God knows best - until the end of time until it is destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatain from Abyssinia, as was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The Kaaba will be destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatain from Abyssinia. They both reported it. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, It is as if I see a black man with a hump, tearing it out stone by stone. Narrated by al-Bukhari. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said in his Musnad: Ahmad ibn Abd al-Malik al-Haranin informed us. Muhammad ibn Salamah informed us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahidin on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-As, may God be pleased with them both, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "The Kaaba will be destroyed by Dhu al-Sawiqatayn from Abyssinia, who will strip it of its ornaments and will strip it of its covering. It is as if I see..." To him, Asli' Afid'a, who strikes it with his shovel and pickaxe - Fad'a: a deviation between the foot and the shin bone - and this, and God knows best, will only happen after the emergence of Gog and Magog, as it came in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: They will perform Hajj to the House and Umrah after the emergence of Gog and Magog.

And the Almighty's saying, narrating the supplication of Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, "Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful." Ibn Jarir said: By that they mean, And make us submissive to Your command, submissive to Your obedience, and we do not associate anyone with You in obedience, nor in worship other than You. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ismail told us on the authority of Raja' ibn Hibban al-Hasani al-Qurashi, Maqal ibn Ubayd God told us on the authority of Abd al-Karim, And make us Muslims [in submission] to You, he said: sincere to You, And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You, he said: sincere. He also said: Ali ibn al-Husayn told us, al-Muqaddami told us, Sa'id ibn Amir told us on the authority of Salam ibn Abi Mut'i regarding this verse, And make us Muslims, he said: They were Muslims, but they asked him to be steadfast. Ikrimah said, Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You. God said, I have done so. "And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You." God said, I have done so. As-Suddi said, And from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. They both mean the Arabs. Ibn Jarir said, "The correct interpretation is that it includes the Arabs and others, because from the descendants of Abraham are the Children of Israel, and God the Most High said, "And among the people of Moses is a nation guiding with the truth and doing justice thereby." I say, As-Suddi does not deny what Ibn Jarir said, because singling them out for that does not negate others, and the context is the Arabs, and that is why He said after it, Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from themselves who will recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and purify them. What is meant by this is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sent among them as God Almighty said: It is He who has sent among the unlettered a Messenger from among themselves. However, this does not negate his message to the red and the black, as God Almighty said: Say, 'O mankind, indeed I am the Messenger of God to you all,' and other conclusive evidence. This supplication was made by Abraham and Ishmael, peace be upon them, as God Almighty informed us about His pious and believing servants in His saying: And those who say, 'Our Lord, grant us from among our wives and offspring comfort to our eyes and make us an example for the righteous.' This amount is desired by the Sharia, because part of the perfection of loving the worship of God Almighty is to love that there be from his offspring someone who worships God alone, with no partner. And for this reason, when God the Almighty said to Abraham, peace be upon him, Indeed, I will make you a leader for mankind, He said, And of my descendants. He said, My covenant does not include the wrongdoers, which is His saying, And keep me and my children away from worshipping idols. It has been proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, that he said, "When the son of Adam dies, his deeds come to an end except for three: ongoing charity, beneficial knowledge, or a righteous child who prays for him." And show us our rituals, Ibn Jarir said on the authority of Ata', And show us our rituals, he brought them out for us so that we may learn them. Mujahid said, Show us our rituals, meaning our slaughterhouses. Something similar was also narrated on the authority of Ata' and Qatadah. Saeed bin Mansour said: Itab bin Bashir told us on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Ibrahim said, Show us our rituals. Gabriel showed him to him and brought him to the House. He said, Raise the foundations. So he raised the foundations and completed the building. Then he took him by the hand and led him out and went with him to Safa. He said, This is one of the symbols of God. Then he went with him to Marwah. He said, This is one of the symbols of God. Then he went with him towards Mina. When he reached Aqaba, Satan was standing by the tree. He said, Say 'Allahu Akbar' and throw it. So he said, Allahu Akbar and threw it. Then Satan went and stood at the middle Jamarat. When Gabriel and Ibrahim passed by him, he said to him, Say 'Allahu Akbar' and throw it. So he said, Allahu Akbar and threw it. Then the evil Satan went away. The evil one wanted to include something in the Hajj, but he could not. So he took Ibrahim by the hand until he came to the Sacred Monument. He said, This is the Sacred Monument. So Ibrahim took Ibrahim by the hand and brought him to Arafat. He said, Do you understand what I showed you? He said it three times. He said, Yes. Abu Majlaz and Qatadah narrated something similar to this. Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi said: Hammad ibn Salamah told us on the authority of Abu al-Asim al-Ghanawi, on the authority of Abu al-Tufayl, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ibrahim was shown the commands of the rituals, Satan appeared to him at the Mas'a, so Ibrahim raced him, then Gabriel took him until he came to Mina. He said: This is the place where people stop. When he reached Jamrat al-Aqaba, Satan appeared to him, so he threw seven pebbles at him until he went away. Then he brought him to Jamrat al-Qawwa, and Satan appeared to him, so he threw seven pebbles at him until he went away. He brought him all together and said: This is al-Mash'ar. Then he brought him to Arafat, and he said: This is Arafat. Gabriel said to him: Do you recognize it?

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 128- And make us Muslims to You

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful.

meaning make us steadfast upon it or increase us from it - It was said: What is meant by Islam here is the sum of faith and deeds. And His saying: And from our descendants meaning make from our descendants, and from is for partiality or clarification. Ibn Jarir said: He meant by descendants the Arabs in particular, and so did Al-Sahli. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is weak because his call appeared among the Arabs and others who believed in him. And the nation: the group in this place, and it may be applied to one person, and from it is His saying the Most High: Indeed, Abraham was a nation obedient to God and it is applied to religion, and from it is Indeed, we found our fathers upon a religion and it is applied to time, and from it is: And remember after a nation. And His saying: And show us our rites is from visual vision. Omar bin Abdul Aziz, Qatadah, Ibn Kathir, Ibn Muhaisin and others read show us with a silent ra, and from it is the saying of the poet:

Show us Abdullah's water jug so that he can fill it with Zamzam water, for the people are thirsty.

Rituals is the plural of nasak, and its root in the language is washing. It is said: he washed his garment, meaning he washed it. In Islamic law, it is a name for worship, and what is meant here are the rituals of Hajj. It was also said: the places of slaughter, and it was also said: all the places of worship. And his statement: And accept our repentance, it was said: what is meant by their request for repentance is steadfastness, because they are infallible and have no sin. It was also said: what is meant is accept the repentance of the oppressors among us.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ata' who said: And We commanded Abraham meaning We ordered him. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Purify My House he said: From idols. He also narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Sa'id ibn Jubayr something similar, and they added doubt, false speech and impurity. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Qatadah. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: If he is standing, then he is one of those who circumambulate, and if he is sitting, then he is one of those who are praying, then he is one of those who bow and prostrate. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab that he was asked about those who sleep in the mosque, and he said: They are those who are praying. It has been proven that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Abraham made Mecca sacred, and I have made Medina sacred, and that which is between its two lava plains, so its game should not be hunted nor its trees cut. Narrated by Ahmad, Muslim, al-Nasa'i and others on the authority of Jabir. This meaning has been narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, through a group of the Companions, including Rafi' ibn Khadij according to Muslim and others, Abu Qatada according to Ahmad, Anas according to the two Sheikhs, Abu Hurairah according to Muslim, Ali ibn Abi Talib according to al-Tabarani in al-Awsat, Usamah ibn Zayd according to Ahmad and al-Bukhari, and Aisha according to al-Bukhari. It has been proven that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God made Mecca sacred on the day He created the heavens and the earth, and it will remain sacred until the Day of Resurrection. Narrated by al-Bukhari in a mu'allaq form, and by Ibn Majah from the hadith of Safiyyah bint Shaybah. Narrated by al-Bukhari and others from the hadith of Ibn Abbas. Narrated by al-Bukhari and others from the hadith of Ibn Abbas. Narrated by al-Bukhari and the Sunan scholars from the hadith of Abu Hurairah. There are other hadiths on this topic other than what we have mentioned, and there is no contradiction between these hadiths, because when Ibrahim, peace be upon him, informed the people that God had made it sacred and that it had always been a safe sanctuary, it was attributed to him that he made it sacred: that is, he made God's ruling on it clear to the people. Ibn 'Atiyyah and Ibn Kathir agreed with this group. Ibn Jarir said: It was forbidden and God did not command creation to worship Him with that until Ibrahim asked Him, so He forbade it and they worshipped Him with that. End quote. Both combinations are good. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Muslim al-Ta'ifi who said: It reached me that when Ibrahim called for the sanctuary and said: And provide its people with fruits, God moved al-Ta'ifi from Palestine. Ibn Abi Hatim and al-Azraqi narrated something similar on the authority of al-Zuhri. Al-Azraqi also narrated something similar on the authority of some of the sons of Nafi' ibn Jubayr ibn Mut'im. Al-Azraqi narrated something similar on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Munkadir. He also narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi who said: Ibrahim called for the believers and left the disbelievers and did not call for anything for them. God said: And whoever disbelieves, then grant him enjoyment (al-Baqarah 2:17). Sufyan ibn Uyaynah narrated something similar on the authority of Mujahid. Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Tabarani and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Whoever among them believes in God, he said: It is as if Abraham reserved it for the believers and not the people, so God revealed: And whoever disbelieves, also, "I will provide for them as I provide for the believers. Shall I create a creation for whom I will not provide? I will grant them enjoyment for a little while, then I will force them to the punishment of the Fire." Then Ibn Abbas recited: No! We provide for these and those, the verse. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah who said: Ubayy ibn Ka'b said regarding his statement: And whoever disbelieves, that this is from the statement of the Lord. Ibn Abbas said: This is from the statement of Abraham asking his Lord that whoever disbelieves, I will grant him enjoyment for a little while. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The foundations are the pillars of the House. Ahmad, Abd ibn Humayd, Al-Bukhari, Ibn Jarir and others narrated a long story on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, the last of which was about the building of the House. He said: At that time, Ibrahim raised the foundations of the House, and Ismail brought stones while Ibrahim built. When the building was high, he brought this stone and placed it for him. He stood on it while he was building, and Ismail handed him the stones, and they were saying: "Our Lord, accept from us. Indeed, You are the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing." Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when Ibrahim raised the foundations, he said: The foundations that were the foundations of the House before that. The commentators have often narrated the sayings of the predecessors in their interpretation of this verse about how the House was built, what stones were made of earth, in what time it was known, who performed Hajj, and what evidence was mentioned in it indicating its virtue or the virtue of some of it, such as the Black Stone. In Al-Durr Al-Manthur there is that which is not found elsewhere, so refer to it. There is some of that in Ibn Kathir's interpretation, but since what they mentioned is not related to the interpretation, we did not mention it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Salam bin Abi Mutee' regarding this verse, Our Lord, and make us Muslims to You, he said: They were Muslims, but they asked him to be steadfast. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abdul Karim, he said: Sincere. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement, And of our descendants, he said: They mean the Arabs. Saeed bin Mansour and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Abraham said, My Lord, show us our rites, so Gabriel came to him and brought him to the House and said: Raise the foundations, so he raised the foundations and completed the building, then he took him by the hand and led him out and went with him towards Mina, and when he was at Al-Aqaba, there was Satan standing by the tree, so he said: Say Allahu Akbar and throw at him, so he said Allahu Akbar and threw at him, then Satan went until he came to the middle Jamarat and Abraham did to him as he had done with the first, then likewise with the third Jamarat, then Gabriel took Abraham by the hand until he came to Al-Mash'ar Al-Haram and said: This is Al-Mash'ar Al-Haram, then he went until he came to Arafat, he said: Have you recognized what I have shown you? He said it three times. He said: Yes. He said: Then announce the Hajj to the people. He said: How do I announce it? He said: Say: O people, answer your Lord three times. The servant answered: Here I am, God, here I am. So whoever answers Ibrahim on that day from among the creation is a pilgrim. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab on the authority of Ali who said: When Ibrahim finished building the House, he said: I have done so, O Lord, so show us our rituals: He made them clear to us and taught them. So God sent Gabriel and he performed the Hajj with him. There are many narrations on this topic from the early generations of the Companions and those who came after them which include that Gabriel showed Ibrahim the rituals, and in most of them the devil came to him as mentioned above from Mujahid. Ibn Khuzaymah, al-Tabarani, al-Hakim who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi in al-Shu'ab narrated something similar to that from Ibn Abbas. Ahmad, Ibn Abi Hatim and al-Bayhaqi also narrated on his authority.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

128. Our Lord, make us Muslims [in submission] to You monotheists, obedient, sincere, and submissive to You.

And of our descendants meaning our children is a nation a group and the nation is the followers of the prophets submitting to you subject to you.

And show us means we knew and recognized. Ibn Kathir read it with a sukoon on the ra', Abu Amr read it with a short vowel, and the rest read it with a kasra. Ibn Amir and Abu Bakr agreed with the sukoon in Ha Mim as-Sajdah. Its original form is ar'ina, but the hamza was deleted in order to make it lighter, and its vowel was transferred to the ra'. Whoever read it with a sukoon said: The hamza was gone, so its vowel was gone. Our rites means the laws of our religion and the rituals of our Hajj.

It was said: The places of our pilgrimage. Mujahid said: Our slaughterhouses and the ritual is the sacrifice. It was said: Our places of worship. The origin of the ritual is worship, and the ascetic is the worshipper. So God Almighty answered their prayer and sent Gabriel and showed them the rituals on the Day of Arafah. When he reached Arafah, he said: Do you understand, O Ibrahim? He said: Yes. So he named the time Arafah and the place Arafah.

And have mercy on us forgive us for You are the Forgiving, the Most Merciful.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

128- Our Lord, and make us Muslims to You sincerely to You, from islam who submitted, or submissive who surrendered from aslama who submitted and obeyed, and what is meant is to seek an increase in sincerity and submission, or to remain steadfast in it. It was read Muslims who were Muslims so that what is meant is themselves and Hajar. Or that the dual is one of the levels of the plural. And from our descendants, a nation devoted to You meaning, make some of our descendants. The descendants were singled out for supplication because they are more deserving of compassion, and because if they are righteous, the followers will be righteous through them. Some of them were singled out because they knew that there was darkness in their descendants, and they knew that divine wisdom does not require agreement on sincerity and total devotion to God Almighty, because that is what confuses livelihood. Therefore, it was said: If it were not for fools, the world would have been ruined. It was also said: He meant by the nation the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. It is possible that from is for clarification, as in the Almighty's statement: God has promised those among you who believe He placed it before the clarifying one, and separated the conjunction from the conjoined one, as in the Almighty's statement: He created seven heavens and of the earth the like thereof. "And show us" is from ra'a meaning to see or know, and therefore it did not go beyond two objects. Our rites are our acts of worship in the Hajj, or our slaughterhouses. The ritual is originally the ultimate in worship and it became common in the Hajj because of the difficulty and distance from custom in it. Ibn Kathir and Al-Wasosi read on the authority of Abu Amr and Yaqub, Arna, by analogy with faj in faj a thigh in a thigh, and this is unfair because the kasra is transferred from the dropped hamza, which is evidence of it. Al-Duri read on the authority of Abu Amr, with a shortened form, Wa ta'ab 'alayna, as a request for repentance for their offspring, or for what they had neglected inadvertently. Perhaps they said it to demean themselves and guide their offspring, Indeed, You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful, for whoever repents.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:128

Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful.

Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from themselves who will recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and purify them. Indeed, it is You who is the Exalted in Might, the Wise.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Our Lord, and send among them meaning the people of the House a Messenger from among themselves from among themselves, and God answered his prayer with Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace who will recite to them Your verses the Qur'an and teach them the Book the Qur'an and wisdom meaning what is in it of rulings and purify them cleanse them from polytheism Indeed, it is You who is the Exalted in Might the Prevailing the Wise in His creation.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is also report from God Almighty about Abraham and Ishmael: that they were raising the foundations of the House and they were saying: Our Lord, and make us Muslims to You, meaning by that: And make us submissive to Your command, subject to Your obedience, not associating with You anyone in obedience other than You, nor in worship other than You.

We have previously demonstrated that the meaning of Islam is submission to God through obedience.

As for his saying: And from our descendants a nation devoted to You, they specifically mentioned some of their descendants, because God Almighty had informed Abraham, His friend, peace and blessings be upon him, before this question of his, that some of his descendants would not fulfill His covenant due to their injustice and immorality. So they specifically mentioned some of their descendants with the call.

It was said that they meant the Arabs.

Mention of those who said that: Musa bin Harun told us, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And from our descendants is a nation submissive to You, meaning the Arabs.

Abu Ja'far said: This is a statement that the apparent meaning of the Book indicates the opposite of. Because its apparent meaning indicates that they called upon God to make from their descendants people of His obedience and guardianship, and those who responded to His command. And among the descendants of Abraham were Arabs and non-Arabs, and those who responded to the command of God and submitted to Him in obedience, from both groups. So there is no basis for the statement of those who said: Abraham meant by his call a group of his descendants specifically and not others, except for the control that no one is incapable of.

As for the nation in this context, it means a group of people, from God's statement: And among the people of Moses was a nation guiding with the truth (al-A'raf 7:159).

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And show us our rites.

Abu Jaafar said: There is a difference in the reading of this. Some of them read it: And show us our rites, meaning seeing them with the eye, i.e. show them to our eyes so that we can see them. This is the reading of most of the people of Hijaz and Kufa.

Some of those who interpreted it in this way made the ra of arana silent, but pronounced it with a kasra.

The author of this article and the reader of this reading differed in the interpretation of his saying: Our rituals.

Some of them said: They are the rituals and landmarks of Hajj.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: And show us our rites, so God showed them their rites: circumambulating the House, running between Safa and Marwa, leaving Arafat, leaving Jam'a, and stoning the Jamarat, until God completed the religion or: His religion.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And show us our rites, he said: Show us our rites and our Hajj.

Musa told us, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, who said: When Abraham and Ishmael finished building the House, God commanded him to call out, saying: And proclaim to mankind the Hajj (al-Hajj 22:27). So he called out between the two wooden pillars of Mecca: O people! Indeed, God commands you to perform Hajj to His House. He said: It was ingrained in the heart of every believer, and everyone who heard him, whether mountain, tree, or animal, responded to him: Here I am, here I am. So they responded to him with the Talbiyah: Here I am, O God, here I am, and whoever came to him came to him. Then God commanded him to go out to Arafat, and described it to him, so he went out. When he reached the tree at Al-Aqaba, Satan met him, and threw seven pebbles at him, glorifying God with each pebble. He flew and landed on the second Jamrah as well, but it stopped him, so he threw it and glorified God, and it flew and landed on the third Jamrah, so he threw it and glorified God. When he saw that he could not bear it, and Ibrahim did not know where to go, he set out until he came to Dhul-Majaz. When he looked at it and did not recognize it, he passed on, and for that reason it was called Dhul-Majaz. Then he set out until he reached Arafat, and when he looked at it, he recognized the description. He said: I have recognized it! So it was called Arafat. Ibrahim stood at Arafat until evening came and he approached a group, and it was called

Al-Muzdalifah, then he stopped at Jam'ah. Then he went on until he came to the devil where he had met him the first time, and he threw seven pebbles at him seven times. Then he stayed in Mina until he had finished the Hajj and his command. That is what he said: And show us our rites.

Others who read this reading said that the rituals are the slaughterhouses. So the interpretation of this verse, according to the one who said that, was: And show us how we can sacrifice our women to You, O our Lord, so that we may slaughter them for You.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata': And show us our rituals, he said: our slaughter.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', he said: Our slaughterhouses.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ata' said: I heard Ubayd ibn Umair say: And show us our rituals, he said: Show us our altars.

Others read: And show us our rites with a sukoon on the ra and claimed that the meaning of that is: And taught us, and guided us to it, not that its meaning is: Show us it with our eyes. They claimed that this is similar to the saying of Hatayit bin Ya'far, the brother of Al-Aswad bin Ya'far:

Show me a horse that died of emaciation, for I see what you see, or an immortal miser.

He meant by his saying: Show me, guide me to it and let me know its location, and he did not mean seeing it with the eye.

This is a reading narrated by some of the predecessors.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ata' said: Show us our rituals, bring them out to us, we will teach them.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Jurayj told us, he said: Ibn al-Musayyab said: Ali bin Abi Talib said: When Abraham finished building the House, he said: I have done it, O Lord, so show us our rituals and make them clear to us, so we will learn them. So God sent Gabriel, and he performed the Hajj with him.

Abu Ja'far said: The statement is the same. Whoever breaks the ra makes the ya in the saying of the speaker drop, and leaves the ra broken as it was before the jazm. Whoever sukun the ra in aana thinks that the i'rab of the letter is in the ra, so he sukun it in the jazm, as they did in lam yakun and lam yakun.

Whether it is from the vision of the eye or the vision of the heart. There is no meaning to the difference between the vision of the eye in this regard and the vision of the heart.

As for the rituals, they are the plural of mansak, which is the place where one performs rituals for God, and draws near to Him through righteous deeds that please Him: either by slaughtering an animal for Him, or by praying, circumambulating, or walking, and other righteous deeds. That is why the places of Hajj are called its rituals, because they are signs and marks that people are accustomed to and frequent.

The origin of the word mansik in Arabic is: the usual place that a man is accustomed to and familiar with. It is said: So-and-so has a mansik, if he has a place that he frequents for good or evil. That is why the rituals are called manasik, because they are customary and people frequent them for Hajj and Umrah, and for deeds that draw closer to God.

It has been said that the meaning of asceticism is: worshipping God. And that the ascetic is called an ascetic because of the worship of his Lord.

Those who said this article interpreted His statement: And show us our rites, as "and teach us Your worship. How should we worship You? Where should we worship You? And what pleases You about us, so that we may do it?"

This statement, even if it is a doctrine that the speech allows, the most prevalent meaning of the rituals is what we described before, that they are the rituals of Hajj whose meaning we mentioned.

This statement was made by Abraham and Ishmael as a question from them to their Lord for themselves. Rather, it was a question from them to their Lord for themselves and their Muslim descendants. So when they included their Muslim descendants to themselves, they became as if they were informing about themselves with that. And we said that this is so because the supplication from them for the Muslims from their descendants came before in the beginning of the verse, and came after it in the other verse. As for what is in the beginning of the verse, it is their saying: Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. Then they included themselves and the Muslim nation from their descendants, in their question to their Lord to show them their rites, so they said: And show us our rites. As for what is in the verse after it: Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from themselves, they made the question specifically for their descendants.

It was mentioned that in Ibn Masoud's reading: And show them their rituals, meaning by that, And show our Muslim descendants their rituals.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And accept our repentance, for You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful.

Abu Ja'far said: As for repentance, its origin is returning from something disliked to something beloved. The servant's repentance to his Lord is his return from what God dislikes from him, by regretting it, ceasing it, and resolving not to return to it. The Lord's repentance to His servant is His return to him by forgiving him for his crime, and pardoning him for the punishment of his sin, as forgiveness for him and a favor from Him to him.

If someone asks us: Did they have sins that made them need to ask their Lord for repentance?

It was said: There is no one more pious than God's creation who has not done work between him and his Lord that requires him to repent and turn to Him. It is possible that what they said was specific to the situation they were in, of raising the foundations of the House. Because that was the place where God would most likely answer their supplication, and so that they would make what they did a tradition to be followed after them, and people would take that spot after them as a place of absolution from sins to God. It is possible that they meant by their saying: And have mercy on us, and have mercy on the oppressors among our children and our descendants whose oppression and polytheism You have informed us of, so that they may turn to Your obedience. So the apparent meaning of the speech is that the supplication is for themselves, but what is meant by it is their descendants. Just as one says: So-and-so honored me in my children and family, and so-and-so was dutiful to me, if his son was dutiful to him.

As for his saying: Indeed, You are the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful, what he means by it is: Indeed, You are the One who returns to Your servants with favor, and is generous to them with pardon and forgiveness, the Most Merciful to them, the One who rescues whomever You will among them with Your mercy from their destruction, the One who saves whomever You want to save among them with Your compassion from Your wrath.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from among themselves meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. In the reading of Abi, And send at the end of them a Messenger from among them. And 'Khalid bin Ma'dan narrated: A group of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O Messenger of God, tell us about yourself, he said: Yes, I am the supplication of my father Abraham and the good report of Jesus." And a Messenger means a messenger, and it is a fa'ul from the message. Ibn al-Anbari said: It seems that its origin is from their saying: a she-camel that is a messenger and a messenger, if it is easy to walk and goes ahead of the

she-camels. And the neglected group that is sent is called rusul, and its plural is arsil. And it is said: The people came arsil, meaning some of them follow each other, and from this the word rasul is used for the camel, because it is sent from the udder.

God the Almighty said: And teaches them the Book and wisdom. The Book means the Qur'an. Wisdom means knowledge of religion, understanding of interpretation, and understanding which is a characteristic and light from God the Almighty. Malik said this, and Ibn Wahb narrated it from him. Ibn Zayd said this, and Qatadah said: Wisdom is the Sunnah and the explanation of the laws. It was also said: Judgment and decree in particular, but the meaning is close. Teaching was attributed to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) in that he gives the matters that he looks into, and teaches the way to look into them through what God sends to him from His revelation. And purifies them means cleanses them from the harm of polytheism, according to Ibn Jurayj and others. Zakat means purification, and this has been mentioned previously. It was also said that the verses are the recitation of the apparent meaning of the words. The Book means the meanings of the words. Wisdom means judgment, and this is what God intended by the address, whether absolute or restricted, explanatory or ambiguous, general or specific, and this is the meaning of what was mentioned previously, and God the Almighty knows best. The Mighty means the inaccessible, which cannot be reached or overcome. Ibn Kaysan said: Its meaning is the one who is not incapable of anything, and its evidence is: And nothing in the heavens or on the earth could make God incapable of anything. Al-Kisa'i: The Almighty, the Victorious, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: And He made me powerful in speech. And in the proverb: Whoever is powerful, is spoiled. That is, whoever is powerful, is robbed. And it was said: The Almighty is the one who has no equal, and its explanation is: There is nothing like Him. We have further explained this meaning in His name Al-Aziz in the book Al-Asna fi Sharh Asma God Al-Husna. The meaning of Al-Hakim was mentioned previously, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, informing about the completion of Abraham's call to the people of the sanctuary that God would send among them a Messenger from among them, that is, from the descendants of Abraham. This answered call was in accordance with God's previous decree in appointing Muhammad, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, as a Messenger to the illiterate people to them and to all the non-Arabs among mankind and jinn, as Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi informed us on the authority of Muawiyah ibn Salih, on the authority of Saeed ibn Suwaid al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abd al-A'la ibn Hilal al-Sulami, on the authority of al-Arbadh ibn Sariyah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said: "Indeed, I am with God the Seal of the Prophets, and Adam was still kneaded in his clay. I will inform you of the beginning of that, the call of my father Abraham, and the glad tidings of Jesus about me, and the vision that my mother saw, and so do the mothers of the prophets see." And Ibn Wahb, al-Layth, and his scribe Abdullah ibn Salih narrated it on the authority of Muawiyah ibn Salih, and Abu Bakr ibn Abi Maryam followed him on the authority of Saeed ibn Suwaid with it. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu al-Nadr informed us, al-Faraj informed us, Luqman ibn Aamer said: I heard Abu Umamah say: I said, O Messenger of God: What was the beginning of your affair? He said: "The supplication of my father Abraham, and the good report of Jesus about me. And my mother saw that a light came out of her that illuminated the palaces of Ash-Sham." What is meant is that the first person to be mentioned and made famous among the people was Abraham, peace be upon him, and his mention among the people continued to be mentioned, famous, and widespread until the Seal of the Prophets of the Children of Israel revealed his name by lineage, and he is Jesus, son of Mary, peace be upon him, when he stood up among the Children of Israel as a preacher and said: I am the Messenger of God to you, confirming what came before me of the Torah and giving good tidings of a Messenger to come after me whose name is Ahmad. That is why he said in this hadith: The supplication of my father Abraham and the good tidings of Jesus, son of Mary. And his saying: And my mother saw that a light came out of her that illuminated the palaces of Ash-Sham, it was said that it was a dream she saw when she dreamt of him, and she told it to her people, so it spread among them and became famous, and that was a prelude and the specialization of Ash-Sham for the appearance of his light, indicating the stability of his religion and prophethood in the lands of Ash-Sham, and for this reason Ash-Sham will be at the end of time a stronghold for Islam and its people, and in it Jesus, son of Mary, will descend when he descends in Damascus with its eastern white minaret, and for this reason it came in the two Sahih: A group of my nation will continue to prevail upon the truth, and they will not be harmed by those who let them down or those who oppose them until the command of God comes and they are like that. And in Sahih Al-Bukhari: And they are in Ash-Sham. Abu Ja'far Al-Razi said on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah regarding his saying: Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from among themselves, meaning the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so it was said to him: Your request has been answered, and it will happen at the end of time, and this is what Al-Suddi and Qatadah said, and the Almighty's saying: And He will teach them the Book, meaning the Qur'an, and wisdom, meaning the Sunnah, as Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Muqatil bin Hayyan said. Abu Malik and others, and it was said: Understanding is in religion and there is no contradiction, And purifies them Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas meaning obedience to God and Muhammad bin Ishaq said And teaches them the Book and wisdom he said good so they do it and evil so they avoid it, and informs them of God's pleasure with them if they obey Him so that they may increase their obedience to Him and avoid what angers Him of disobedience to Him, and His saying Indeed, You are the Exalted in Might, the Wise meaning the Exalted who is not incapable of anything, and He is able to do all things, the Wise in His actions and words, so He places things in their proper places due to His knowledge, wisdom and justice.

Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from themselves who will recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and purify them. Indeed, it is You who is the Exalted in Might, the Wise.

The pronoun in his saying: 129- And send among them refers to the Muslim nation mentioned previously. My father read: And send among their last ones. It is possible that the pronoun refers to the offspring. God answered this call to Abraham, peace be upon him, so He sent among his offspring a messenger from among themselves who is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. He has informed about Himself that Abraham's call, as will be explained in the interpretation of that, God willing, and what He meant was this call. And the messenger is the one who is sent. Ibn al-Anbari said: It is likely that its origin is a she-camel that is a messenger and a messenger if it is easy to walk and goes ahead of the she-camels. It is said: The people came in groups: meaning some of them follow each other, and what is meant by the book is the Qur'an. What is meant by wisdom is knowledge of the religion and understanding of the interpretation and understanding of the Shari'ah. And his saying: He purifies them means He cleanses them from polytheism and all other sins. It was said: What is meant by the verses is the apparent meaning of the words, the book is their meanings, and wisdom is the ruling, which is what God intended by the address, and the Almighty is the one for whom nothing is incapable, said Ibn Kaysan. Al-Kisa'i said: The Almighty is the predominant.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

129. Our Lord, and send among them meaning among the Muslim nation from the descendants of Abraham and Ishmael, and it was said: from the people of Mecca a Messenger from among them meaning a Messenger, by which he meant Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Sayyid Abu al-Qasim Ali bin Musa al-Musawi told us, Abu Bakr Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Abbas al-Balkhi told us, Imam Abu Sulayman Hamad bin Muhammad bin Ibrahim al-Khattabi told us, Muhammad bin al-Makki told us, Ishaq bin Ibrahim told us, my nephew Ibn Wahb told us, my uncle told us, Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Salih, on the authority of Saeed bin Suwayd, on the authority of Abdul-'Ala bin Hilal al-Salami, on the authority of al-Arbadh bin Sariyah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "I am written with God as the Seal of the Prophets, and Adam was still kneaded in his clay, and I will inform you of the beginning of my affair. I am the supplication of Abraham, the good report of Jesus, and the vision of my mother which she saw when she gave birth to me, and a light came out of her that illuminated the palaces of Syria for her."

And he meant by this call of Abraham that he called for a messenger to be sent to the children of Ishmael from among them. Ibn Abbas said: All the prophets were from the children of Israel except ten: Noah, Hud, Salih, Shuaib, Lot, Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and Muhammad, may God's prayers and peace be upon them all.

He recites to them Your verses Your Book, meaning the Qur'an. A verse from the Qur'an is a continuous statement until it ends. It has been said that it is a group of letters. It is said that the people went out with their verse, meaning with their group. And He teaches them the Book meaning the Qur'an. And wisdom Mujahid said: Understanding the Qur'an. Muqatil said: The sermons of the Qur'an and what is in it of rulings. Ibn Qutaybiyyah said: It is knowledge and action, and a man is not wise until he combines them. It has been said: It is the Sunnah. It has been said: It is rulings and judgment. It has been said: Wisdom is jurisprudence.

Abu Bakr bin Duraïd said: Every word that admonishes you, calls you to do something noble, or forbids you from doing something ugly is wisdom.

And purifies them means He cleanses them from polytheism and sins. It was said: He takes the zakat from their wealth. Ibn Kaysan said: He will testify for them on the Day of Resurrection with justice if they testify for the prophets that they conveyed the message of purification, which is the correction.

Indeed, You are the Exalted in Might, the Wise. Ibn Abbas said: The Exalted is the One like whom there is no other. Al-Kalbi said: The Avenger is explained by the Almighty's saying: And God is Exalted in Might, the Possessor of Retribution 4-Al Imran. It was said: The Invincible One whom hands cannot reach and nothing can reach. It was said: The Strong, and might is power. God Almighty said: So We strengthened with a third 14-Yasin, meaning We strengthened. It was said: The Victorious. God Almighty said, informing us: And He strengthened me in the speech 23-Sad, meaning He defeated me. It is said in the proverb: Whoever is powerful, he will be robbed meaning whoever is powerful, he will be robbed.

teaches them the Book" the Qur'an. "And wisdom" what perfects their souls of knowledge and rulings. "And purifies them" from polytheism and sins. "Indeed, it is You who is the Exalted in Might" who cannot be defeated or overcome in what He wills. "The Wise" is the One who rules for it.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

129- Our Lord, and send among them among the Muslim nation a messenger from among themselves and none was sent from their descendants except Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he is the one to whom their supplication was answered as he said, may God bless him and grant him peace, I am the supplication of Abraham, the good report of Jesus, and the vision of my mother. "He recites to them Your verses" he reads to them and conveys to them what is revealed to him of the evidence of monotheism and prophethood. Surat al-Baqarah 2:130

And who would abandon the religion of Abraham except one who makes a fool of himself? And We had certainly chosen him in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous.

And whoever that is, does not averses from the religion of Abraham and abandons it except he who makes a fool of himself who is ignorant that it was created by God and must be worshipped, or who belittles it and treats it with contempt. And We have certainly chosen him we have selected him in this world with the message and friendship and indeed, in the Hereafter he will be among the righteous who will have the highest ranks.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham, the verse. Ibn Uyaynah said: It was narrated that Abdullah bin Salam called the two sons of his brother, Salamah and Muhajir, to Islam and said to them: You know that God Almighty said in the Torah: I am sending from the descendants of Ishmael a prophet whose name will be Ahmad. Whoever believes in him has been guided and is rightly guided, and whoever does not believe in him is cursed. So Salamah and Abu Muhajir converted to Islam, and the verse was revealed about him.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is the supplication of Abraham and Ishmael specifically for our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it is the supplication that our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: I am the supplication of my father Abraham, and the good report of Jesus. Ibn Hamid told us that, he said, Salamah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Thawr ibn Yazid, on the authority of Khalid ibn Ma'dan al-Kila'i: "A group of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Messenger of God, tell us about yourself. He said: Yes, I am the supplication of my father Abraham, and the good report of Jesus, may God bless them and grant them peace."

Imran bin Bakkar Al-Kila'i told me, he said, Abu Al-Yaman told us, he said, Abu Kurayb told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Maryam, on the authority of Saeed bin Suwaid, on the authority of Al-Arbadh bin Sariyah Al-Sulami, he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "I am with God in the Mother of the Book, the Seal of the Prophets, while Adam was still kneading in his clay. I will inform you of the interpretation of that: I am the supplication of my father Abraham, the glad tidings of Jesus to his people, and the vision of my mother."

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Mu'awiyah told me - and Ubayd bin Adam bin Abi Iyas al-Asqalani told me, he said, my father told me, he said, al-Layth bin Sa'd told us, on the authority of Mu'awiyah bin Salih, they both said, on the authority of Sa'id bin Suwaid, on the authority of Abdullah bin Hilal al-Salami, on the authority of Arabadh bin Sariyah al-Salami, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Suwaid, on the authority of Abd al-A'la bin Hilal al-Salami, on the authority of Arabadh bin Sariyah: that he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say, and he mentioned something similar.

And what we said about that was said by a group of people of interpretation.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from among themselves, so God did that, so He sent among them a Messenger from among themselves, whose face and lineage they knew, who would take them out of darkness into the light, and guide them to the path of the Almighty, the Praiseworthy.

Musa told us, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Our Lord, and send among them a messenger from among themselves, he is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from among themselves, who is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. So it was said to him: That has been answered, and it is at the end of time.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: He recites to them Your verses: He recites to them Your Book that You reveal to him.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And He teaches them the Book and wisdom.

Abu Jaafar said: What is meant by the book is the Qur'an.

I have previously explained why the Qur'an is called a book, and what its interpretation is. This is the opinion of a group of interpreters.

Mention of who said that: Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And He teaches them the Book, the Qur'an.

Then the people of interpretation differed about the meaning of the wisdom that God mentioned in this place.

Some of them said: It is the Sunnah.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And wisdom, meaning the Sunnah.

Some of them said: Wisdom is knowledge of religion and understanding of it.

Mention of who said that: Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said: I said to Malik: What is wisdom? He said: Knowledge of religion, understanding of religion, and following it.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And wisdom, he said: Wisdom is the religion that they do not know except through him, may God bless him and grant him peace, he teaches it to them. He said: And why wisdom, the mind in religion? And he recited: And whoever is given wisdom has certainly been given much good (al-Baqarah 2:269), and He said about Jesus: And He will teach him the Book and wisdom and the Torah and the Gospel (Al-Imran: 48), he said: And Ibn Zayd recited: And recite to them the report of the one to whom We gave Our signs, but he slipped out of them (al-A'raf 7:175), he said: He did not benefit from the signs, since there was no wisdom with them. He said: Or wisdom, something that God places in the heart, enlightening it with it.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in our view about wisdom is that it is the knowledge of the rulings of God, the knowledge of which cannot be attained except through the explanation of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and knowledge of it, and what is indicated by it from its counterparts. In my view, it is taken from the word hukm which means the distinction between right and wrong, like jalsa and sit from qusulu and qudu sitting. It is said from it: So-and-so is wise in his wisdom, meaning that he is clear in his accuracy in his words and actions.

If this is the case, then the interpretation of the verse is: Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from among themselves who will recite to them Your verses, and teach them Your Book that You send down to them, and the details of Your judgment and the rulings that You teach him.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And purifies them.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously demonstrated that the meaning of purification is cleansing, and that the meaning of zakat is growth and increase.

The meaning of his saying: And purifies them in this place: And purifies them from associating partners with God and worshipping idols, and increases them and multiplies them through obedience to God, as: Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me, he said: Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said: Muawiyah bin Saleh told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: He recites to them Your verses and teaches them the Book, he said: He means by purification, obedience to God and sincerity.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, Ibn Jurayj said, regarding his statement: And purifies them, he said: He purifies them from polytheism and delivers them from it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, it is You who is the Exalted in Might, the Wise.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: O Lord, You are the Mighty and the Strong, Whom nothing He wills is impossible, so do with us and our offspring what we have asked and requested of You. And the Wise in Whose management there is no fault or error, so give us what will benefit us and our offspring, and will not diminish You or Your treasures.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And who would turn away from the religion of Abraham except he who makes a fool of himself? "Min is an interrogative in the nominative case as a subject, and yirghib is the relative clause of min". "Except he who makes a fool of himself" is in the predicate. It is a rebuke and a reproach in which the meaning of negation is found, i.e. and what is desired, said Al-Nahas. The meaning is: he renounces it and distances himself from it, i.e. from the religion, which is the religion and the law. "Except he who makes a fool of himself" Qatadah said: They are the Jews and Christians, they turned away from the religion of Abraham and adopted Judaism and Christianity as an innovation that is not from God Almighty. Al-Zajjaj said: "Safa" means ignorance, i.e. he was ignorant of his own affairs and did not think about them. Abu Ubaidah said: The meaning is he destroyed himself. Tha'lab and Al-Mubarrad narrated that safa with a kasra on the fa' is transitive like safa with a fatha on the fa' and a shaddah on it. It was narrated from Abu Al-Khattab and Yunus that it is a language. Al-Akhfash said: He acted foolishly towards himself meaning he did something foolish to make him foolish. It is also narrated from him that it is a language meaning foolishness, as narrated by Al-Mahdawi, and the first was mentioned by Al-Marudi. As for foolishness with a damma on the fa, it is intransitive, as Al-Mubarrad and Tha'lab said. Al-Kisa'i narrated from Al-Akhfash that the meaning is ignorance of himself, so the fi was deleted and it was made accusative. Al-Akhfash said: The same applies to the marriage contract, meaning on the marriage contract. This follows the doctrine of Sibawayh in what he narrated of their saying: So-and-so struck the back and the stomach, meaning in the back and the stomach. Al-Farra': It is a distinction. Ibn Bahr said: Its meaning is ignorance of himself and what is in it of indications and signs indicating that it has a Creator like whom nothing is, so he knows through it the oneness of God and His power.

I said: This is the meaning of Al-Zajjaj's statement: "He thinks about himself, of two hands with which he strikes, two feet on which he walks, an eye with which he sees, an ear with which he hears, a tongue with which he speaks, molars that grow for him when he no longer needs to be breastfed and needs food to grind food with, a stomach prepared for cooking food, a liver to which the cream ascends, veins and passages through which it reaches the extremities, and intestines into which the weight of the food settles and protrudes from the lower part of the body. This is evidence that he has a Creator who is capable, all-knowing, and wise. This is the meaning of the Most High's statement: 'And in yourselves, then will you not see?' Al-Khattabi, may God have mercy on him, pointed to this. More clarification will come in Surat Adh-Dhariyat, God willing."

And who would abandon the religion of Abraham except one who makes a fool of himself? And We had certainly chosen him in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous.

This verse was used as evidence by those who said: The law of Abraham is our law except for what was abrogated from it. This is like his saying: The religion of your father Abraham, "I follow the religion of Abraham." And its explanation will come.

The Almighty said: And We had chosen him in this world meaning, We chose him for the message and made him pure from impurities. The root of istafinahu is istafinahu, the ta was replaced with a ta to match the sad in emphasis. The word is derived from al-safwah, and its meaning is to choose the purest.

God the Almighty said: And indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous. The righteous in the Hereafter is the one who wins. Then it was said: How is it permissible to present in the Hereafter while it is included in the relative clause? An-Nahhas said: The answer is that the meaning is not he will be among the righteous in the Hereafter, so the relative clause would have been presented. The Arab scholars have several opinions on this: One of them is that the meaning is and he will be righteous in the Hereafter, then it was deleted. It was said: in the Hereafter is related to a deleted source, meaning his righteousness in the Hereafter. The third opinion is that the righteous does not mean those who are righteous, but it is a name that stands on its own, just as one says man and boy.

I said: A fourth statement is that the meaning is that he is among the righteous in the work of the Hereafter, so the speech is about the deletion of an adjective. Al-Husayn ibn al-Fadl said: There is an inversion in the speech, its meaning is that We have chosen him, and he is the world and the Hereafter, and he is among the righteous. Hajjaj ibn Hajjaj narrated - and he is Hajjaj al-Aswad, and he is also Hajjaj al-Ahwal, known as Saq al-Asal - he said: I heard Muawiyah ibn Qurra say: O God, the righteous are You who have made them righteous and provided for them if they act in obedience to You and You are pleased with them. O God, as You have made them righteous, make us righteous, and as You have provided for them if they act in obedience to You and You are pleased with them, provide for us to act in obedience to You, and be pleased with us.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says in response to the infidels regarding what they innovated and invented of associating partners with God, which is contrary to the religion of Abraham, the friend of God, the leader of the monotheists, for he exclusively monotheized his Lord, the Almighty, and did not call upon anyone other than Him nor did he associate partners with Him for the blink of an eye, and he disavowed every deity other than Him, differing in that from the rest of his people until he disavowed his father, saying, "O my people, indeed I am disassociated from what you associate with Him. Indeed, I have turned my face toward He who created the heavens and the earth, inclining toward truth, and I am not of those who associate others with God." And the Almighty says, And when Abraham said to his father and his people, 'Indeed, I am disassociated from what you worship, except for He who created me, for He will guide me.' And the Almighty says, "And Abraham's seeking of forgiveness for his father was only because of a promise he had made to him. But when it became clear to him that he was an enemy of God, he disassociated himself from him. Indeed, Abraham was kind and forbearing." And the Almighty says, "Indeed, Abraham was a nation obedient to God, inclining toward truth, and he was not of those who associate others with God. Grateful for His favors. He chose him." And guided him to a straight path. And We gave him good in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous." For this and similar reasons, the Most High said: And who would turn away from the religion of Abraham from his way and method, so he would oppose it and turn away from it except one who makes a fool of himself? That is, he wronged himself with his foolishness and bad management by abandoning the truth for misguidance, as he opposed the path of the one chosen in this world for guidance and right direction from his young age until God took him as a friend, and in the Hereafter he will be among the righteous and happy ones. So whoever abandons this way, his path, and his religion, and follows the path of misguidance and error, what foolishness is greater than this? Or what injustice is greater than this? As God Almighty said: Indeed, associating others with God is a great wrong. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Qatadah said: This verse was revealed about the Jews. They created a path that was not from God, and they contradicted the religion of Abraham in what they created. The truth of this statement is attested by God Almighty's statement: "Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim [submitting to God]. And he was not of the polytheists. Indeed, the people most worthy of Abraham are those who followed him and this Prophet and those who believe. And God is the ally of the believers."

And the Almighty's saying: When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' he said, 'I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds.' That is, God commanded him to be sincere, surrender, and obey, so he responded to that in terms of law and destiny. And His saying: And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, and so did Jacob. That is, he enjoined this religion, which is submission to God, or the pronoun refers to the word, which is His saying: I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds. Because of their keenness on it and their love for it, they preserved it until death, and enjoined it upon their sons after them, as in the Almighty's saying: And He made it a word remaining among his descendants. Some of the predecessors read and Jacob in the accusative case, in apposition to his sons, as if Abraham enjoined upon his sons and his grandson Jacob, son of Isaac, and he was present at that. Al-Qushayri claimed, as Al-Qurtubi narrated from him, that Jacob was only born after the death of Abraham, and something like this needs sound evidence. It appears, and God knows best, that Isaac gave birth to Jacob during the lifetime of Abraham and Sarah, because the good report came to them in His saying: So We gave her good tidings of Isaac, and after Isaac, Jacob. And it was read in the accusative case. Jacob here is on the removal of the preposition, so if Jacob had not existed during their lifetime, there would not have been much benefit in mentioning him among the descendants of Isaac. Also, God Almighty said in Surat al-Ankabut 29: And We gave him Isaac and Jacob and placed among his descendants prophethood and the Book 22:13, and He said in another verse: And We gave him Isaac and Jacob as an additional gift 22:13. This indicates that he existed during his lifetime. Also, he was the builder of the Holy House, as stated in the previous books, and it was proven in the two Sahihis from the hadith of Abu Dharr: I said: O Messenger of God, which mosque was established first? He said: The Sacred Mosque. I said: Then which? He said: The Holy House. I said: How much time is between them? He said: Forty years, the hadith, so Ibn Hibban claimed that between Solomon, who he believed was the builder of the Holy House - and he only renovated it after its destruction and decorated it - and Abraham, there were forty years, and this is something that Ibn Hibban denied, because the period between them exceeds thousands of years, and God knows best. Also, Jacob's will to his sons will be mentioned soon, and this indicates that he is here among those who recommend. And his saying, O my sons, God has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims, meaning, do good in your life, and adhere to this so that God may grant you death upon it, because a person usually dies as he was, and is resurrected as he died, and God the Generous has made it His custom that whoever intends good, He will guide him to it and make it easy for him, and whoever intends righteousness, He will remain upon it. This does not contradict what came in the authentic hadith: "A man may do the deeds of the people of Paradise until there is only a span or an arm's length between him and it, then what is written will overtake him and he will do the deeds of the people of Hell and enter it. A man may do the deeds of the people of Hell until there is only a span or an arm's length between him and it, then what is written will overtake him and he will do the deeds of the people of Paradise and enter it." Because it came in some narrations of this hadith that he will do the deeds of the people of Paradise as it appears to people and the deeds of the people of Hell as it appears to people. And God the Most High said: "But as for him who gives and fears God * And believes in the best * We will ease him toward ease * But as for him who withholds and considers himself free of need * And denies the best * We will ease him toward difficulty."

Fath al-Qadir

130- And whoever desires is in the nominative case as a subject, and the question is for denial. And his saying: Except he who fools himself is in the predicate, and it was said: It is a substitute for the subject of yaghriba, and the estimate: And no one desires from the religion of Abraham except he who fools himself. Al-Zajaj said: Foolishness means ignorance: that is, he was ignorant of his own affairs and did not think about them. Abu Ubaidah said: The meaning is he destroyed himself. Tha'lab and Al-Mubarrad narrated that foolishness with a kasra on the fa' is transitive like safaha with a fatha on the shaddah on the fa'. Al-Akhfash said: Foolishness of himself means he did with it such foolishness that he became foolish, and it was said: That his self is erected by removing the preposition, and it was said: It is a distinction, and these two are very weak, and as for foolishness with a damma on the fa', it is not transitive, Al-Mubarrad and Tha'lab said. And selection: choice, that is, we chose him in this world and made him among the righteous in the hereafter, so how can a desirer desire to turn away from his religion? His saying: When he said to him may be related to his saying: We chose him, meaning we selected him at the time we ordered him to convert to Islam. It may also be related to something omitted, which is remember. It was said in Al-Kashshaf: It is as if it was said: Remember that time so that it may be known that he is the chosen, righteous one who does not turn away from the religion of his like.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

130. The Almighty said: And whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham This is because Abdullah bin Salam called his two nephews, Salamah and Muhajir, to Islam and said to them: You know that God Almighty said in the Torah: I am sending from the descendants of Ishmael a prophet whose name will be Ahmad. Whoever believes in him has been guided, and whoever does not believe is cursed. So Salamah converted to Islam and Muhajir refused to convert to Islam, so God Almighty revealed: Whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham meaning he abandons his religion and his law. It is said that he desires something if he wants it, and he turns away from it if he abandons it.

His saying whoever is an interrogative word meaning rebuke and reproach, meaning: whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham "except he who makes a fool of himself." Ibn Abbas said: whoever loses himself. Al-Kalbi said: whoever goes astray from himself. Abu Ubaidah said: whoever destroys himself. Ibn Kaysan and Al-Zajaj said: its meaning is ignorance of himself. Foolishness means ignorance and weakness of opinion. Every fool is ignorant, because whoever worships other than God has made himself ignorant, because he does not know that God created him. It was said: Whoever knows himself knows his Lord. In al-Naba 78: "God the Most High revealed to David, 'Know yourself and know Me.' He said: 'O Lord, how do I know myself? And how do I know You?' So God the Most High revealed, 'Know yourself by weakness, helplessness and annihilation, and know Me by strength, power and permanence.'"

And who would abandon the religion of Abraham except one who makes a fool of himself? And We had certainly chosen him in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous.

Al-Akhfash said: Its meaning is that he was foolish in himself, and according to this statement, his soul is in the accusative case by removing the letter of description. Al-Farra' said: It is in the accusative case for explanation, and the original was that he was foolish in himself, but when he added the verb to its owner, the explanatory soul came out to make the location of the foolishness known, just as it is said: I was fed up with him, meaning I was fed up with him.

And We chose him in this world and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous meaning with the prophets in Paradise. Al-Husayn ibn al-Fadl said: There is an advancement and delay in it, meaning We chose him in this world and the Hereafter, and indeed, he will be among the righteous.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

130-And whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham is a rejection and denial that anyone would turn away from his clear and brilliant religion, meaning that no one would turn away from his religion. Except he who belittles himself except he who despises himself, humiliates himself, and belittles himself. Al-Mubarrad and Tha'lab said that belittling with the kasra is transitive and with the damma is intransitive, and what is stated in the hadith supports this: Pride is to belittle the truth and to look down on people. It was said: Its origin is belittling himself in the nominative case, then it was made accusative as a distinction, such as his opinion was deceived and his head ached, and the saying of Al-Nabigha Al-Dhubyani:

And we take after him the tail of a life that has a back that has no hump

Or foolishness in himself, so it is accusative by removing the preposition. And the exception is in the place of the nominative on the chosen instead of the pronoun in yaghriba because it is in the meaning of negation, And We have chosen him in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous. An argument and explanation for that, for whoever was the best of the servants in this world, and was witnessed to for his uprightness and righteousness on the Day of Resurrection, he was deserving of being followed, and no one would turn away from him except a fool, or a foolish person who humiliated himself through ignorance and turning away from looking.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:131

When his Lord said to him, Submit, he said, I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And remember when his Lord said to him, *Submit Submit to God and be sincere in your religion to Him He said, I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His saying: And whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham, which of the people would be indifferent to the religion of Abraham and abandon it out of a desire for something else?

God meant by this the Jews and Christians, because they chose what they chose of Judaism and Christianity over Islam. Because the religion of Abraham is the true Islam, as God the Almighty said: Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim (Al Imran 3:67). God the Almighty said to them: And who would abandon the true Islam of Abraham except one who makes a fool of himself? As Bishr ibn Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And who would abandon the religion of Abraham except one who makes a fool of himself? The Jews and Christians abandoned their religion, and adopted Judaism and Christianity as an innovation not from God, and they abandoned the religion of Abraham, meaning Islam - true Islam? Likewise, God sent His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the religion of Abraham.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And who would turn away from the religion of Abraham except one who makes a fool of himself? He said: The Jews and Christians turned away from the religion of Abraham, and innovated Judaism and Christianity, which are not from God, and they abandoned the religion of Abraham: Islam.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Except for he who makes a fool of himself.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: Except for he who makes a fool of himself, except for he who makes a fool of himself. We have previously explained that the meaning of foolishness is ignorance.

The meaning of the statement is: And none turns away from the pure religion of Abraham except a fool who is ignorant of the place of his own good fortune in what benefits him and harms him in his afterlife, as Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Except for he who makes a fool of himself, he said: Except for he who misses his good fortune.

The soul is placed in the accusative case in the sense of the interpreter. This is because foolishness originally refers to the soul, but when it was transferred to whoever, the soul was placed in the accusative case in the sense of interpreting. Just as one says: He is the most spacious of you in a house, so the house is included in the statement on the basis that the spaciousness is in it, not in the man. Likewise, the soul was included because foolishness refers to the soul, not to whoever. Therefore, it is not permissible to say: Your brother was foolish. Rather, it is permissible to explain it with the soul, and it is added to a definite noun, because it is in the interpretation of an indefinite noun.

Some Basra grammarians said: His saying: He made himself foolish is considered foolish if the verb is intransitive, but he made it transitive to himself and his opinion and similar things that are in meaning like foolishness, if it is not transitive. As for ghabna and khassara they may be transitive to something else, it is said: ghabna khamsin and khassara khamsin.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And We chose him in this world.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement, And We chose him in this world, that We chose Abraham. The ha in His statement, We chose him, is from the mention of Abraham.

Al-Istifā' is derived from al-ṣafwā, and likewise istashfina iftālāna is derived from it. Its ta' was made a ta' because its point of articulation is close to the point of articulation of the sad.

What he means by his saying: We chose him is: We selected him and chose him for ease, and we will make him an imam in this world for those who come after him.

This is report from God, the Most High, that whoever opposes Abraham in what He has prescribed for those who come after him, is opposing God, and informing His creation that whoever opposes what Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, brought, is opposing Abraham. This is because God, the Most High, informed that He chose him for his friendship, and made him an imam for the people, and informed that his religion was the pure, Muslim faith. In this, the clearest statement from God, the Most High, that whoever opposes him is an enemy of God, for opposing the imam whom God appointed for His servants.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: And indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous, that Abraham will be among the righteous in the Hereafter.

The righteous among the sons of Adam is the one who fulfills the rights of God upon him.

When his Lord said to him, "Submit," he said, "I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds."

So the Almighty informed us about Abraham, His friend, that he is his confidant in this world, and his friend in the hereafter, and that he will come to the places of his faithful friends.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty said: When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' he said, 'I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds.'

The factor in when is his saying: meaning, We chose him when his Lord said to him, Submit. This saying was from God when He tested him with the planets, the moon, and the sun. Ibn Kaysan and Al-Kalbi said: meaning, Purify your religion for God through monotheism. It was also said: Submit and be humble. Ibn Abbas said: He only said that to him when he left the flock, as will be mentioned in Al-An'am. Islam here is in its most perfect form. Islam in the speech of the Arabs: submission and obedience to the one who submits. Not every submission is faith, and not every faith is Islam, because whoever believes in God has submitted and obeyed God. Not everyone who submits believes in God, because he may speak in fear of the sword, and that is not faith, contrary to the Qadarites and the Khawarij, who said: Islam is faith, so every believer is a Muslim, and every Muslim is a believer, based on His saying: Indeed, the religion in the sight of God is Islam. This indicates that Islam is the religion, and that whoever is not a Muslim is not a believer. Our evidence is the saying of God the Almighty: The desert Arabs say, 'We believe.' Say, 'You have not believed, but say, 'We have submitted,' (al-Baqarah 2:170). So God the Almighty informed us that not everyone who submits to Islam is a believer, indicating that not every Muslim is a believer. And the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said to Sa'd ibn Waqqas when he said to him, Give to so-and-so, for he is a believer. The Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said, Or a Muslim. The hadith was narrated by Muslim, indicating that faith is not Islam, for faith is inward and Islam is outward, and this is clear. Faith may be used to mean Islam and Islam, and what is meant by it is faith, because one of them is necessary for the other and emanates from it, like Islam, which is the fruit of faith and an indication of its correctness, so inform him. And God is the Grantor of success.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says in response to the infidels regarding what they innovated and invented of associating partners with God, which is contrary to the religion of Abraham, the friend of God, the leader of the monotheists, for he exclusively monotheized his Lord, the Almighty, and did not call upon anyone other than Him nor did he associate partners with Him for the blink of an eye, and he disavowed every deity other than Him, differing in that from the rest of his people until he disavowed his father, saying, "O my people, indeed I am disassociated from what you associate with Him. Indeed, I have turned my face toward He who created the heavens and the earth, inclining toward truth, and I am not of those who associate others with God." And the Almighty says, And when Abraham said to his father and his people, 'Indeed, I am disassociated from what you worship, except for He who created me, for He will guide me.' And the Almighty says, "And Abraham's seeking of forgiveness for his father was only because of a promise he had made to him. But when it became clear to him that he was an enemy of God, he disassociated himself from him. Indeed, Abraham was kind and forbearing." And the Almighty says, "Indeed, Abraham was a nation obedient to God, inclining toward truth, and he was not of those who associate others with God. Grateful for His favors. He chose him." And guided him to a straight path. And We gave him good in this world, and indeed, in the Hereafter, he will be among the righteous." For this and similar reasons, the Most High said: "And who would turn away from the religion of Abraham from his way and method, so he would oppose it and turn away from it except one who makes a fool of himself"? That is, he wronged himself with his foolishness and bad management by abandoning the truth for misguidance, as he opposed the path of the one chosen in this world for guidance and right direction from his young age until God took him as a friend, and in the Hereafter he will be among the righteous and happy ones. So whoever abandons this way, his path, and his religion, and follows the path of misguidance and error, what foolishness is greater than this? Or what injustice is greater than this? As God Almighty said: Indeed, associating others with God is a great wrong. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Qatadah said: This verse was revealed about the Jews. They created a path that was not from God, and they contradicted the religion of Abraham in what they created. The truth of this statement is attested by God Almighty's statement: "Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim [submitting to God]. And he was not of the polytheists. Indeed, the people most worthy of Abraham are those who followed him and this Prophet and those who believe. And God is the ally of the believers."

And the Almighty's saying: When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' he said, 'I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds.' That is, God commanded him to be sincere, surrender, and obey, so he responded to that in terms of law and destiny. And His saying: And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, and so did Jacob. That is, he enjoined this religion, which is submission to God, or the pronoun refers to the word, which is His saying: I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds. Because of their keenness on it and their love for it, they preserved it until death, and enjoined it upon their sons after them, as in the Almighty's saying: And He made it a word remaining among his descendants. Some of the predecessors read and Jacob in the accusative case, in apposition to his sons, as if Abraham enjoined upon his sons and his grandson Jacob, son of Isaac, and he was present at that. Al-Qushayri claimed, as Al-Qurtubi narrated from him, that Jacob was only born after the death of Abraham, and something like this needs sound evidence. It appears, and God knows best, that Isaac gave birth to Jacob during the lifetime of Abraham and Sarah, because the good report came to them in His saying: So We gave her good tidings of Isaac, and after Isaac, Jacob. And it was read in the accusative case. Jacob here is on the removal of the preposition, so if Jacob had not existed during their lifetime, there would not have been much benefit in mentioning him among the descendants of Isaac. Also, God Almighty said in Surat al-Ankabut 29: And We gave him Isaac and Jacob and placed among his descendants prophethood and the Book 22: 13, and He said in another verse: And We gave him Isaac and Jacob as an additional gift 22: 13. This indicates that he existed during his lifetime. Also, he was the builder of the Holy House, as stated in the previous books, and it was proven in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Abu Dharr: I said: O Messenger of God, which mosque was established first? He said: The Sacred Mosque. I said: Then which? He said: The Holy House. I said: How much time is between them? He said: Forty years, the hadith, so Ibn Hibban claimed that between Solomon, who he believed was the builder of the Holy House - and he only renovated it after its destruction and decorated it - and Abraham, there were forty years, and this is something that Ibn Hibban denied, because the period between them exceeds thousands of years, and God knows best. Also, Jacob's will to his sons will be mentioned soon, and this indicates that he is here among those who recommend. And his saying, O my sons, God has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims, meaning, do good in your life, and adhere to this so that God may grant you death upon it, because a person usually dies as he was, and is resurrected as he died, and God the Generous has made it His custom that whoever intends good, He will guide him to it and make it easy for him, and whoever intends righteousness, He will remain upon it. This does not contradict what came in the authentic hadith: "A man may do the deeds of the people of Paradise until there is only a span or an arm's length between him and it, then what is written will overtake him and he will do the deeds of the people of Hell and enter it. A man may do the deeds of the people of Hell until there is only a span or an arm's length between him and it, then what is written will overtake him and he will do the deeds of the people of Paradise and enter it." Because it came in some narrations of this hadith that he will do the deeds of the people of Paradise as it appears to people and the deeds of the people of Hell as it appears to people. And God the Most High said: "But as for him who gives and fears God * And believes in the best * We will ease him toward ease * But as for him who withholds and considers himself free of need * And denies the best * We will ease him toward difficulty."

Fath al-Qadir

131- "When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' he said, 'I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds.'"

Tafsir al-Baghawi

131. When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' meaning, Stay steadfast in Islam and remain steadfast in it because he was a Muslim.

Ibn Abbas said: He said to him when he left the group. Al-Kalbi said: Make your religion and worship sincere to God. Ata' said: Submit to God Almighty and entrust your affairs to Him.

He said, I have submitted to the Lord of the Worlds, meaning I have been entrusted. Ibn Abbas said: This was confirmed since he did not seek help from any of the angels when he was thrown into the fire.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

131- "When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' he said, 'I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds.' is an adverb for We chose him, or an explanation for it, or it is accusative with the omission of remember." It is as if it was said: Remember that time so that you may know that he is the chosen, righteous one who deserves leadership and advancement, and that he attained what he attained by taking the initiative to submit and to be sincere in his secret when his Lord called him and brought to his mind the signs leading to the knowledge that calls to Islam. It was narrated that it was revealed when Abdullah bin Salam called his two nephews, Salamah and Muhajir, to Islam, and Salamah and Abu Muhajir became Muslims.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:132

And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons and so did Jacob, [saying], "O my sons, indeed Allah has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims."

Surat al-Baqarah 2:132

And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons and so did Jacob, [saying], O my sons, indeed God has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And Abraham enjoined and in another reading he enjoined it with the religion to his sons and Jacob his sons. He said: O my sons, indeed God has chosen for you the religion the religion of Islam so do not die except as Muslims he forbade abandoning Islam and commanded steadfastness upon it until death came upon us.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His statement: When his Lord said to him, 'Submit,' that his Lord said to him: Be sincere in your worship of Me, and submit to Me in obedience. We have previously demonstrated the meaning of Islam in the speech of the Arabs, so there is no need to repeat it.

As for the meaning of his saying: He said, 'I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds,' he means, may He be exalted, that Abraham said, responding to his Lord: I have submitted in obedience and devoted my worship to the Owner of all creation and its Manager, and no one else.

If someone says: You know that idh is a time, but what is it used to time? And what is it related to?

It was said: It is a connection to his saying: And We had chosen him in this world. The interpretation of the statement: And We had chosen him in this world, when his Lord said to him: Submit, he said: I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds. The meaning of the statement is: And We had chosen him in this world when We said to him: Submit, he said: I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds. So the name of God was made apparent in his saying: "When his Lord said to him: Submit," as a report about an absent person, and it had been mentioned before as a report about himself, as Khafaf bin Nudbah said:

I say to him, the spear framing his back: Think lightly, I am that one.

If someone asks us: Did God call Abraham to Islam?

He was told: Yes, he invited him to it.

If he said: In what condition did he call him to it?

It was said that when he said: "O my people, indeed I am innocent of what you associate with God. Indeed, I have turned my face toward He who created the heavens and the earth, inclining toward truth, and I am not of those who associate others with God." (al-An'am 6:78-79), that was the time when his Lord said to him: Submit, after He tested him with the planets, the moon, and the sun.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons and so did Jacob, [saying], 'O my sons, indeed God has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims.'

God the Almighty said: And Abraham enjoined it meaning the religion. It was said: with the word which is his saying: I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds and this is more correct because it is the closest mentioned, meaning say we have submitted. And wasā and awsā are two dialects of the Quraysh and others with the same meaning, like karāmna and akramna, and it was recited with them. In the Mushaf of Abdullah it is wasā and in the Mushaf of Uthman it is wasā and it is the reading of the people of Medina and Ash-Sham. The rest of them are wasā and it has the meaning of abundance. And Abraham raised with his action, and Jacob is conjoined with it. It was said: it is a disconnected and renewed sentence, and the meaning is: And Jacob enjoined and said, O my sons, indeed God has chosen for you the religion, so Abraham enjoined his sons, then Jacob enjoined his sons after him.

And the sons of Abraham were Ishmael, and his mother was Hagar the Copt, and he was his eldest son, Abraham moved him to Mecca while he was an infant. It was said: He was two years old, and it was said: He was fourteen years old, and the first is more correct, as will be explained in Surat Ibrahim, God willing. He was born fourteen years before his brother Isaac, and he died when he was one hundred and thirty-seven years old. It was said: One hundred and thirty. And he was eighty-nine years old when his father Abraham, peace be upon them, died, and he was the sacrificed one according to one opinion. And Isaac was Sarah's slave girl, and he was the sacrificed one according to another opinion, and this is more correct, as will be explained in Surat As-Saffat, God willing. Among his descendants are the Romans, the Greeks, the Armenians, and those who are like them, and the Children of Israel. Isaac lived one hundred and eighty years, and died in the Holy Land and was buried next to his father Abraham, the friend of God, peace be upon them. Then when Sarah died, Abraham married Qantour, the daughter of Yaqtan the Canaanite, and she bore him Midian, Madain, Nahshan, Zimran, Nashiq, and Shuyukh. Then he died, peace be upon him. There were about two thousand six hundred years between his death and the birth of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Jews reduce that by about four hundred years. The sons of Jacob will be mentioned in Surat Yusuf, God willing. Amr bin Fa'id Al-Aswari and Ismail bin Abdullah Al-Makki read: And Jacob in the accusative case in apposition to his daughter, so Jacob would be included among those who made a will. Al-Qushayri said: "And Jacob was read in the accusative case in apposition to his sons, and this is far-fetched, because Jacob was not among the sons of Abraham when he made a will to them, and it is not reported that Jacob met his grandfather Abraham, but rather he was born after the death of Abraham, and that Jacob also made a will to his sons as Abraham did. The naming of the sons of Jacob will come, God willing."

Al-Kalbi said: When Jacob entered Egypt, he saw them worshipping idols, fires, and cows. He gathered his children and feared for them and said: What will you worship after me?

It is said that he was called Jacob because he and Esau were twins, and he came out of his mother's womb following the heel of his brother Esau. There is a problem with that, because this is an Arabic derivation, and Jacob is a foreign name, even though it agrees with the Arabic name for it, like the male partridge. He lived, peace be upon him, for one hundred and forty-seven years and died in Egypt. He ordered that he be carried to the Holy Land and buried near his father Isaac, so Joseph carried him and buried him near him.

The Almighty's saying: O my son means that O my son, and this is also the reading of Abi, Ibn Masoud and Ad-Dahhak. Al-Farra' said: "I omitted 'an' because the recommendation is like the statement, and every statement that refers to the statement can be entered into by 'an' and its omission can be permitted. He said: The grammarians' saying that he only meant 'an' so it was omitted is nothing. An-Nahhas: 'O my son' is a vocative with an added letter, and this 'ya' of the self cannot be opened here except because if it were quiescent, two quiescent letters would meet, and the same is in "bi-mushrikhi". Indeed, God broke 'an' because 'awsā' and 'qāl' are one. It was said: on the implication of the statement. Istafa means chose. The rajaz poet said:

O son of kings, you have inherited the kingdoms of succession from God, which He has given you.

He chose her for you and she chose you for him

The religion is yours meaning Islam, and the alif and lam in religion are for the covenant, because they had known it. Do not die except as Muslims is a clear brevity. The meaning is: adhere to Islam and continue upon it and do not leave it until you die. So he used a concise expression that includes the intended meaning, and includes an admonition and a reminder of death, because a person realizes that he will die and does not know when, so if he is ordered to do something that death will not come to him except while he is upon it, then the address has been directed from the time of the order, constantly and constantly. And there is no prohibition of do not die in the place of a jussive with a prohibition, emphasized with the heavy nun, and the waw was deleted due to the meeting of two quiescent letters. Except as you are Muslims is a subject and predicate in the place of a state, meaning having good thoughts about your Lord, and it was said sincere, and it was said entrusted, and it was said believers.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says in response to the infidels regarding what they innovated and invented of associating partners with God, which is contrary to the religion of Abraham, the friend of God, the leader of the monotheists, for he exclusively monotheized his Lord, the Almighty, and did not call upon anyone other than Him nor did he associate partners with Him for the blink of an eye, and he disavowed every deity other than Him, differing in that from the rest of his people until he disavowed his father, saying, "O my people, indeed I am disassociated from what you associate with Him. enjoined this religion, which is submission to God, or the pronoun refers to the word, which is His saying: I have submitted to the Lord of the worlds. Because of their keenness on it and their love for it, they preserved it until death, and enjoined it upon their sons after them, as in the Almighty's saying: And He made it a word remaining among his descendants. Some of the predecessors read and Jacob in the accusative case, in apposition to his sons, as if Abraham enjoined upon his sons and his grandson Jacob, son of Isaac, and he was present at that. Fath al-Qadir

The pronoun in his saying: 132- "And he recommended it" refers to the religion or to the word: i.e. I have submitted to the Lord of the Worlds.

Al-Qurtubi said: This is more correct because it is the closest mentioned: i.e. say we have submitted. End. The first is more likely because what is required of those after him is to follow his religion, not just to speak the word of Islam. Therefore, recommending that is more appropriate for Abraham and more appropriate for them. And he recommended and he recommended means the same thing, and they were read with both of them. In the Mushaf of Uthman, it is "and he recommended" which is the reading of the people of Ash-Sham and Madinah. In the Mushaf of Abdullah bin Masoud, it is "and he recommended" which is the reading of the rest. "And Jacob" is conjoined with Abraham: i.e. and Jacob recommended his sons as Abraham recommended his sons. Omar bin Fayed Al-Aswari and Ismail bin Abdullah Al-Makki read Jacob in the accusative case, so he is included among those whom Abraham recommended. Al-Qushayri said: This is far-fetched because Jacob did not meet his grandfather Abraham, but was born after his death. And his saying: "O my son" is by estimation that. Abi, Ibn Masoud and Al-Dahhak read it with confirmation. Al-Farra' said: An was omitted because the recommendation is like a statement, and every statement that goes back to a statement can be entered into by An and can be omitted. It was said: It is on the assumption of the statement: meaning saying: O my son. This was narrated from the Basrans. His statement: He has chosen for you the religion means He has selected it for you, and what is meant is His religion which no one would turn away from except the foolish, and it is the religion that Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, came with. His statement: So do not die except as Muslims is a clear brevity. What is meant is adhere to Islam and do not leave it until you die.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding his statement: And whoever turns away from the religion of Abraham, he said: The Jews and Christians turned away from his religion, and adopted Judaism and Christianity as an innovation that is not from God. They abandoned the religion of Abraham, Islam. Thus, God sent His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the religion of Abraham. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Qatadah similarly. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Malik regarding his statement: And We have chosen him, he said: We selected him. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, he said: He enjoined them to Islam, and Jacob enjoined the same upon his sons. Al-Tha'labi narrated on the authority of Fudayl bin 'Iyad regarding his statement: So do not die except as Muslims, meaning having good thoughts about your Lord.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

132. And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons and Jacob. The people of Medina and Ash-Sham read: (And he enjoined it) with an alif, and this is how it is in their copies of the Qur'an. The rest read: (And he enjoined it) with a shaddah, and they are two dialects like anzala and nazala, meaning Abraham enjoined it upon his sons and Jacob enjoined it upon his sons. Al-Kalbi and Muqatil said: He means by the word of sincerity there is no god but God. Abu Ubaidah said: If you wish, you can return the metaphor to the religion because he mentioned the religion of Abraham, and if you wish, you can return it to the will: that is, Abraham enjoined it upon his eight sons, Ishmael and his mother Hagar the Copt, Isaac and his mother Sarah, and six whose mother was Qantura bint Yaqtan the Canaanite, whom Abraham married after the death of Sarah and Jacob. He was called that because he and Esau were twins, so Esau came out first from his mother's womb and Jacob came out after him, taking his heel. Ibn Abbas said: It was said: Jacob was called that because of the large number of his offspring, meaning: And Jacob also enjoined it upon his twelve sons, O my sons, meaning that O Sons, God has chosen has chosen for you the religion meaning the religion of Islam so do not die except as Muslims believing, and it was said: sincere, and it was said: delegated. The prohibition in the apparent speech was about death, but in reality they were prohibited from abandoning Islam. Persist in Islam so that death will not befall you except as Muslims. And on the authority of Al-Fudayl bin 'Iyad, may God have mercy on him, he said: Except as Muslims meaning having good thoughts about your Lord.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Abu Muhammad Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shuraih told us, Abu Al-Qasim Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz Al-Baghawi told us, Ali bin Al-Jaad told us, Abu Jaafar Al-Razi told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sufyan, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say three days before his death: Let none of you die except while he has good thoughts about God Almighty.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

132- "And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons" The recommendation is to do something to someone else that is good and pious, and its root is connection. It is said: he enjoined it upon him, and he separated it, as if the testator connects an action to the action of the one being recommended, and the pronoun in it refers to the religion, or to his saying I have submitted according to the interpretation of the word, or the sentence. Nafi and Ibn Amir read and he enjoined, and the first is more eloquent. "And Jacob" is in apposition to Abraham, meaning and he also enjoined it upon his sons. It was read in the accusative case as one of those whom Abraham enjoined, "O my son." According to the Basrans' omission of the saying, it is related to the Kufians because it is a type of it and its counterpart is:

Two men from Duba told us that they saw a naked man.

In the broken form, the sons of Abraham were four: Ishmael, Isaac, Midian, and Midan. It was said: eight. It was said: fourteen. And the sons of Jacob were twelve: Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Shesukhor, Paul, Taphtoni, Don, Kodah, Osher, Benjamin, and Joseph. Indeed, God has chosen for you the religion The religion of Islam, which is the best of religions, as God Almighty says: So do not die except as Muslims. Its appearance is the prohibition of dying in a state contrary to Islam, and what is meant is the prohibition of being in a state contrary to that when they die, and the command to remain steadfast in Islam, like your saying: Do not pray except while you are humble, changing the phrase to indicate that their death, not in Islam, is a death in which there is no good, and that it is His right that it not befall them, and similar to it in the command is: Die and you are a martyr. It was narrated that the Jews said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: Do you not know that Jacob advised his sons to follow Judaism on the day he died, so this was revealed.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:133

Or were you witnesses when death approached Jacob, when he said to his sons, "What will you worship after me?" They said, "We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac - one God, and we are Muslims [in submission] to Him."

Surat al-Baqarah 2:133

Or were you witnesses when death approached Jacob, when he said to his sons, What will you worship after me? They said, We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac - one God, and we are Muslims [in submission] to Him.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when the Jews said to the Prophet, Do you not know that when Jacob died, he enjoined Judaism upon his sons? The following was revealed: Or were you witnesses? "When death approached Jacob, when he said to his sons, 'What will you worship after me?'" after my death. "They said, 'We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac.' Counting Ishmael among the fathers is an emphasis, and because the uncle is in the position of the father, One God, instead of your God. And we are Muslims [in submission] to Him. Umm" means a hamza of denial, meaning you were not present at his time of death, so how can you attribute to him what is not befitting of him?

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His statement: And He enjoined it, and He enjoined this word. He meant by the word His statement: I have submitted to the Lord of the Worlds, which is the Islam that His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded us to follow, which is the sincerity of worship and monotheism for God, and the submission of the heart and limbs to Him.

His saying: And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, means that he entrusted them with it and ordered them to do it.

As for his saying: And Jacob, he means: And Jacob also commanded this to his sons, as: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said: Yazid ibn Zari' told us, he said: Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: And Abraham commanded this to his sons, and Jacob, he says: And Jacob commanded this to his sons after Abraham.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, he enjoined them to Islam, and Jacob enjoined the same. Abu Ja'far said: Some of them said that his statement, And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, is a contradictory predicate. And his statement, and Jacob, is a subject predicate. For he said, And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, that they should say: We have submitted to the Lord of the Worlds. Jacob enjoined his sons: O my sons, indeed God has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims.

There is no meaning to what those who said that said. Because what Jacob recommended to his sons is similar to what Abraham recommended to his sons: urging them to obey God, submit to Him, and submit to Him.

If someone says: If the matter is as you described, that its meaning is: And Abraham commanded his sons and Jacob: O my sons, then why is that omitted from the speech?

It was said: Because the will is a statement, it was taken according to its meaning. That is because if it had come in the form of a statement, the an would not have been appropriate with it. Rather, it would have been said: And Abraham said to his sons and Jacob: O my sons. So since the will was a statement, it was taken according to its meaning without its wording, so the an that would have been appropriate with it was omitted, as God Almighty said: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females" (An-Nisa': 11), and as the poet said:

I will show you, in what I show myself, a longing for Najd

I miss Sindh

So I deleted the an, since expressing the meaning with the tongue was a statement, so I carried it on its meaning without its wording.

Some Arabists have said that the an was omitted from his statement, And Abraham enjoined it upon his sons, and so did Jacob, because the calling was sufficient, meaning the calling was his statement, O my sons. He claimed that his reason for that was that it is the custom of the Arabs to be satisfied with the tools instead of an, like their saying, I called, did you get up? and I called, where is Zayd? because. He said: And perhaps they included it with the tools, so they said, I called, did you get up?

A group of readers read: And Abraham recommended it, meaning: a covenant.

As for the one who reads wasaa with emphasis, he means by that he entrusted them with a covenant after a covenant, and he entrusted them with one will after another.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: O my sons, indeed God has chosen for you this religion.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: God has chosen for you this religion, that God has chosen for you this religion which He has entrusted to you, and has chosen it for you.

The definite article was included in the religion because those of their children and grandchildren who were addressed with this had known it through their will to them and their covenant with them regarding it. Then they said to them after they had known it to them: God has chosen for you this religion in which He has entrusted you, so fear God lest you die except while you are upon it.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: So do not die except as Muslims.

Abu Jaafar said: If someone were to say to us: Is death and life the property of the children of Adam, so that one of them is forbidden to die except in one state rather than another?

It was said to him: The meaning of that is not what you thought. Rather, the meaning of: Do not die except as Muslims, is: Do not leave this religion, which is Islam, during your lives. This is because no one knows when his death will come to him, so they said to them: Do not die except as Muslims, because you do not know when your deaths will come to you, whether by night or by day, so do not leave Islam, lest your deaths come to you while you are not following the religion that your Lord has chosen for you, and you die while your Lord is angry with you, and you perish.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: "Or were you witnesses?" Shahada is the predicate of kana, and it was not declined because it contains the feminine alif, and it was added to feminize the group just as the ha' is added. The address is to the Jews and Christians who attribute to Abraham what he did not command his sons, and that they are Jewish and Christian, so God rejected their statement and their lie, and said to them by way of rebuke: Did you have Jacob as witnesses and you knew what he commanded, so you claim based on knowledge? That is: You did not witness, rather you are fabricating. And or means rather, that is, rather your ancestors Jacob witnessed. The factor in the first idh is the meaning of testimony, and the second idh is a substitute for the first. And shahidaa is the plural of shahid, meaning present. The meaning of "Jacob was present at death" is its preliminaries and causes, otherwise if death had been present he would not have been able to say anything. He referred to the object of worship as what and did not say who because he wanted to test them. If he had said who his aim would have been to see who among them would be guided. Rather, he wanted to test them, so he said what. Also, the commonly known objects of worship other than God are inanimate objects such as idols, fire, the sun, and stones. So he asked about what they worshipped from these. The meaning of after me is after my death. It was narrated that when Jacob was given the choice as the prophets were given the choice, he chose death and said: Give me time so that I may advise my children and family. So he gathered them and said this to them, and they were guided and said: We will worship your God. So they showed him their steadfastness in religion and their knowledge of God Almighty.

God the Almighty said: They said, 'We worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac.' "Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac" is in the accusative case as a substitute, and it was not declined because it is foreign. Al-Kisa'i said: If you wish, you can decline Isaac and make him from the word crushing, and decline Jacob and make him from the word bird. God called each of the paternal uncles and grandfathers a father, and began by mentioning the grandfather, then Ishmael the paternal uncle because he is older than Isaac. Ilaha is a substitute for Ilahak as a substitute for the indefinite noun from the definite noun, and it was repeated for the benefit of the description of oneness. It was said: Ilaha is a state. Ibn Atiyyah said: It is a good statement, because the purpose is to prove the state of oneness. Al-Hasan, Yahya ibn Ya'mar, Al-Jahdary, and Abu Raja' Al-Attardi read Ila Abika and there are two interpretations for it:

One of them: That they were individuals and he wanted Abraham alone, and he hated to make Ishmael a father because he was an uncle. An-Nahhas said: This is not necessary, because the Arabs call the uncle a father.

Second: According to Sibawayh's doctrine, Abiyk is the plural of Salamah. Sibawayh narrated Ab, Aboon, and Abeyan, as the poet said:

We said, "Submit, for we are your brothers."

Another said:

When our voices became clear, we cried and offered our fathers.

The Almighty's saying, And we are Muslims to Him, is a subject and predicate, and it is possible that it is in the position of a state, and the agent is we worship.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, arguing against the polytheists among the Arabs, the sons of Ishmael, and against the infidels among the children of Israel - he is Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham, peace be upon them - that when death approached Jacob, he advised his sons to worship God alone, with no partner for Him, so he said to them, "What will you worship after me? They said, We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac." This is from the perspective of emphasis, because Ishmael was his uncle. Nahhas said: The Arabs call the uncle a father, as Al-Qurtubi transmitted. This noble verse was used as evidence by those who made the grandfather a father and excluded the brothers with him, as is the saying of Al-Siddiq, narrated by Al-Bukhari from him through Ibn Abbas and Ibn Al-Zubayr, then Al-Bukhari said: And there is no disagreement about it, and Aisha, the mother of the believers, went to it, and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Tawus, and Ata' said it, and it is the doctrine of Abu Hanifa and more than one of the predecessors and successors, and Malik, Al-Shafi'i, and Ahmad said in the well-known view from him that he shares with the brothers, and this was narrated from Omar, Othman, Ali, Ibn Masoud, Zaid bin Thabit, and a group of The predecessors and successors, and the two companions of Abu Hanifa, Judge Abu Yusuf and Muhammad ibn al-Hasan, chose it, and there is another place for its confirmation, and his saying one God means we unify Him in divinity and do not associate anything with Him, and we are Muslims to Him meaning obedient and submissive, as God Almighty said: And to Him submits whoever is in the heavens and the earth, willingly or by compulsion, and to Him they will be returned. Islam is the religion of all the prophets, even if their laws were diverse and their methods differed, as God Almighty said: And We did not send before you any messenger except that We revealed to him, 'There is no god except Me, so worship Me.' And there are many verses and hadiths on this, including his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace, We, the group of prophets, are children of one religion. And God Almighty said: That is a nation that has passed away, meaning it has passed away, It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you have earned, meaning that the predecessors who passed away from your fathers from the prophets and righteous people, your affiliation with them will not benefit you if you do not do good that benefits you, because For them is their deeds that they did, and for you is your deeds. And you will not be asked about what they used to do. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' and Qatadah said: That is a nation that has passed on, meaning Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the tribes. That is why it is stated in the hadith: Whoever is slowed down by his deeds will not be hastened by his lineage.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 133- "Or were you witnesses? This am" is said to be the disconnected one, and it is said to be the connected one, and in the hamza there is a denial that is useful for rebuke and reprimand, and the address is to the Jews and Christians who attribute to Abraham and his sons that they are Judaists and Christians, so God rejected that and said to them: Did you witness Jacob and you knew what he commanded his sons to do, so you claim that out of knowledge, or did you not witness? Rather, you are inventing. And the witnesses are the plural of witness, and it was not declined because it contains the feminine alif that is for the feminine of the group, and the factor in the first "idh is the meaning of testimony, and the second idh is a substitute for the first, and what is meant by the presence of death is the presence of its preliminaries, and it came with what is not min" in His saying: "what you worship" because the worshipped things other than God are mostly inanimate like idols, fire, the sun, and the planets. And the meaning of "after me" is after my death. And his saying: Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac is an explanatory apposition to his saying: your fathers. And Ishmael, even though he was Jacob's uncle, because the Arabs call an uncle a father. And his saying: a god is a substitute for your god, even though it is indefinite, that is permissible, especially after specifying it with the attribute, which is his saying:

one, because the desired substitution with this attribute has been achieved. And it was said: that god is accusative for specification, and it was said: that it is a state. Ibn Atiyah said: and it is a good saying, because the purpose is to prove the state of oneness. And Al-Hasan, Yahya bin Ya'mar, and Abu Raja' Al-Attardi read and the god of your father, and it was said: he meant Abraham alone. And his saying: and Ishmael is an apposition to your father, and so is Isaac, even though he is his father in reality and Abraham is his grandfather, but Abraham has more specificity. And it was said: that his saying: your father is a plural, as was narrated from Sibawayh that abin is a plural of soundness, and likewise abon, and from it the saying of the poet:

When our voices became clear, we cried and we built our house with our father.

His saying: And we are Muslims to Him is a circumstantial clause: meaning we worship Him while we are Muslims to Him. Al-Zamakhshari allowed it to be an interjection to what he believes in the permissibility of interjectional clauses occurring at the end of a speech.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

133. Or were you witnesses? meaning, were you witnesses? He means that you were not witnesses in attendance. When death approached Jacob meaning when Jacob was close to death. It was said that it was revealed about the Jews when they said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, Do you not know that when Jacob died, he advised his sons to follow Judaism? So according to this statement, the address is to the Jews. Al-Kalbi said: When Jacob entered Egypt, he saw them worshipping idols and fires, so he gathered his sons and feared for them, so God Almighty said, When he said to his sons, 'What will you worship after me?' Ata' said that God Almighty did not take a prophet until he gave him the choice between life and death. So when Jacob was given the choice, he said, Give me time until I ask my sons and advise them. So God did that to him, so he gathered his sons and his grandson's sons, and said to them, My time has come, so what will you worship after me? They said, We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac. Ishmael was their uncle, and the Arabs call an uncle a father just as an aunt is called a mother. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, A man's paternal uncle is like his father. And he said about his uncle, Al-Abbas: Return. Ali Abi, for I fear that Quraysh will do to him what Thaqif did to Ura bin Masoud." And that is because they killed him.

One God is an object of the verb your God in the accusative case, and it has been said that we know Him as one God, and we are Muslims to Him.

133- "Or were you witnesses when death approached Jacob? The word am" is disconnected and the meaning of the hamza in it is denial, meaning you were not present when death approached Jacob and he said to his sons what he said, so why did you not call Judaism against him? Or it is connected and omitted, meaning were you absent or were you witnesses. It was said: The address is to the believers and the meaning is you did not witness that, but you only learned about it through revelation. "Hadr" was read with a kasra.

When he said to his sons instead of when he was present. "What will you worship after me?" meaning: something you will worship. He meant by this to confirm them in monotheism and Islam, and to take their covenant to remain steadfast in them. He will not be asked about anything unless it is known. If it is known, it is specific to the rational ones if asked about their specification. If asked about their description, it is said: Is Zaid a scholar or a doctor? "They said: We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac." It is agreed upon that He exists, is divine, and that His worship is obligatory. Ishmael was counted among his fathers, giving precedence to the father and grandfather, or because he is like a father, based on his saying, peace and blessings be upon him: A man's paternal uncle is like his father. Like "He said, peace and blessings be upon him, about Al-Abbas, may God be pleased with him: This is the remainder of my fathers." And it was read as the God of your father, as it is plural with the waw and the nun, as he said:

When our voices became clear, we cried and offered our fathers

Or singular and Ibrahim alone is an apposition.

One God instead of God of your fathers, as in the Almighty's saying: By the forelock, a lying forelock. Its benefit is to state monotheism and to negate the illusion arising from repeating the complement due to the difficulty of connecting it to the genitive and emphasizing it, or the accusative case for specificity. And we are Muslims to Him is a state of the subject of we worship Him, or its object, or both of them, and it is possible that it is an objection.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:134

That is a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you earn. And you will not be asked about what they used to do.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:134

That is a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you earn. And you will not be asked about what they used to do.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

That is the subject, and the reference is to Abraham, Jacob, and their sons. It is made feminine because its predicate is feminine. A nation that has passed on has gone before. Its reward is what it earned of work, meaning its reward is a resumption. And for you the address is to the Jews. You will have what you earned, and you will not be asked about what they used to do just as they will not be asked about your work. The sentence confirms what came before it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His statement: Or were you witnesses, were you? But He asked with or since it was a question that resumed a statement that preceded it, as it was said: "Alif, Lam, Meem. The revelation of the Book, about which there is no doubt, is from the Lord of the worlds. Or do they say, 'He invented it'?" (al-Sajdah 32:1-3). And the Arabs do the same in every question that they begin after a statement that preceded it, they ask with or.

Martyrs is the plural of martyr, just as partners is the plural of partner, and opponents is the plural of opponent.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the statement is: Were you, O group of Jews and Christians, who disbelieved in Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, and denied his prophethood, the presence of Jacob and his witnessing when death approached him? That is, you were not present at that, so do not call falsehoods upon My prophets and messengers, and attribute to them Judaism and Christianity, for I sent My two friends Abraham and his sons Isaac and Ishmael and their descendants with the true, Muslim faith, and with that they commanded their children, and with that they enjoined upon their children after them. So if you were present with them and heard from them, you would know that they were not upon the religions and sects that you attributed to them after them.

These verses were revealed as a refutation from God Almighty to the Jews and Christians in their claim regarding Abraham and his son Jacob: that they were of their religion. So He said to them in this verse: Or were you witnesses when death approached Jacob? So you learned what he said to his son and what his son said to him? Then He informed them of what he said to them and what they said to him. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: Or were you witnesses, meaning the People of the Book.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: What will you worship after me? They said: We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael and Isaac - one God, and we are Muslims [in submission] to Him.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: When he said to his sons, when Jacob said to his sons.

This idh is repeated as a replacement for the first idh, meaning: Or were you witnesses of Jacob, when Jacob said to his sons when he was about to die?

What he means by his saying: What will you worship after me? What will you worship, after me? That is, after my death? They said: We will worship your God, meaning that his sons said to him: We will worship your God whom you worship, and the God of your fathers Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac, one God, meaning: We will devote our worship to Him, and we will make His Lordship one, so we will not associate anything with Him, and we will not take any lord besides Him.

What he means by his saying: And we are Muslims to Him, is that we are subject to Him in servitude and obedience.

His saying: And we are Muslims to Him may mean a state, as if they said: We worship your God, submitting to Him through our obedience and worship of Him. It may also be a new statement, in which case it means: We worship your God after you, and we are Muslims to Him now and in every state.

The best of these two interpretations is that it means a state, and that it means: We worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac, submitting to His worship.

It was said: Ishmael was mentioned before Isaac because Ishmael was older than Isaac.

Mention of those who said that: Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: They said, 'We worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac,' he said: It is said that he began with Ishmael, because he is older. And some of the earlier scholars read: And the God of your father Abraham, thinking that Ishmael, since he was Jacob's uncle, was not...

It is possible that he was among those who translated from the fathers, and included among them. This is also from his reader, his lack of knowledge of the flow of Arabic speech. The Arabs do not refrain from making paternal uncles mean fathers, and maternal uncles mean mothers. Therefore, Ishmael was included among those who translated from the fathers. And Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac, translation from the fathers, are in the position of a genitive, but they made it accusative because they do not have a genitive.

The correct reading for us in this regard is: And the God of your fathers, because the readers unanimously agree on the correctness of this, and the deviation of those readers who disagreed with him and read otherwise.

The accusative case of his saying: a god is in the state of his saying: your god.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: That is a nation that has passed away. That is the subject, and nation is the predicate. Has passed away is an adjective for nation, and if you wish, it is the predicate of the subject, and nation can be a substitute for that. For it is what it has earned. What is in the nominative case as a subject or as an adjective according to the Kufians. And for you is what you have earned is similar to it, meaning good and evil. In this is evidence that deeds and earnings are attributed to the servant, and if God Almighty has enabled him to do that, if it is good then it is by His grace and if it is evil then it is by His justice. This is the doctrine of the people of the Sunnah, and there are many verses in the Qur'an with this meaning. So the servant acquires his actions, in the sense that he was created with an ability that is comparable to the action, by which he realizes the difference between the movement of choice and the movement of trembling, for example, and that is the ability to fulfill the basis of obligation. The Jabriyah said that the servant does not acquire, and that he is like a plant that is moved by the winds. The Qadarites and Mu'tazilites said the opposite of these two statements, and that the servant creates his actions.

God Almighty says: And you will not be asked about what they used to do. That is, no one will be held accountable for another's sin, like God Almighty says: And no bearer of burdens will bear the burden of another. That is, no bearer of burdens will bear the burden of another, and it will come.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, arguing against the polytheists among the Arabs, the sons of Ishmael, and against the infidels among the children of Israel - he is Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham, peace be upon them - that when death approached Jacob, he advised his sons to worship God alone, with no partner for Him, so he said to them, What will you worship after me? They said, We will worship your God and the God of your fathers, Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac. This is from the perspective of emphasis, because Ishmael was his uncle. Nahhas said: The Arabs call the uncle a father, as Al-Qurtubi transmitted. This noble verse was used as evidence by those who made the grandfather a father and excluded the brothers with him, as is the saying of Al-Siddiq, narrated by Al-Bukhari from him through Ibn Abbas and Ibn Al-Zubayr, then Al-Bukhari said: And there is no disagreement about it, and Aisha, the mother of the believers, went to it, and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Tawus, and Ata' said it, and it is the doctrine of Abu Hanifa and more than one of the predecessors and successors, and Malik, Al-Shafi'i, and Ahmad said in the well-known view from him that he shares with the brothers, and this was narrated from Omar, Othman, Ali, Ibn Masoud, Zaid bin Thabit, and a group of The predecessors and successors, and the two companions of Abu Hanifa, Judge Abu Yusuf and Muhammad ibn al-Hasan, chose it, and there is another place for its confirmation, and his saying one God means we unify Him in divinity and do not associate anything with Him, and we are Muslims to Him meaning obedient and submissive, as God Almighty said: And to Him submits whoever is in the heavens and the earth, willingly or by compulsion, and to Him they will be returned. Islam is the religion of all the prophets, even if their laws were diverse and their methods differed, as God Almighty said: And We did not send before you any messenger except that We revealed to him, 'There is no god except Me, so worship Me.' And there are many verses and hadiths on this, including his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace, We, the group of prophets, are children of one religion. And God Almighty said: That is a nation that has passed away, meaning it has passed away, It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you have earned, meaning that the predecessors who passed away from your fathers from the prophets and righteous people, your affiliation with them will not benefit you if you do not do good that benefits you, because For them is their deeds that they did, and for you is your deeds. And you will not be asked about what they used to do. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' and Qatadah said: That is a nation that has passed on, meaning Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and the tribes. That is why it is stated in the hadith: Whoever is slowed down by his deeds will not be hastened by his lineage.

And the reference in his saying: 134- That is to Abraham and his sons and Jacob and between him and a nation is a substitute for it and its predicate has passed away or a nation is its predicate, and has passed away is an attribute of a nation, and his saying: For it is what it earned and for you is what you earned and you will not be asked about what they used to do is a statement of the state of that nation and the state of those addressed that each of the two groups has his own earnings, the earnings of others will not benefit him and nothing will reach him from him and the sin of others will not harm him, and in it is the response to those who rely on the work of their predecessors and comfort themselves with false hopes, and from it is what was mentioned in the hadith: Whoever is slowed down by his work will not be hastened by his lineage and what is meant is: that you do not benefit from their good deeds and you are not held accountable for their bad deeds and you are not asked about their deeds just as they are not asked about your deeds, and similar to it is and no bearer of burdens will bear the

134. That is a nation that has passed away a group that has passed away "that has passed away" that has what it earned of work and for you what you have earned, and you will not be asked about what they used to do meaning: each one will be asked about his work, not about the work of others.

134- That is a nation that has passed on meaning Abraham, Jacob and their sons. The nation originally meant the group and was called thus because groups follow it. For it is what it has earned, and for you is what you have earned each one will be rewarded for his work, and the meaning is that your affiliation with them does not necessitate that you benefit from their work, but rather you benefit by agreeing with them and following them, as the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: People do not come to me with their deeds and you come to me with your lineages "And you will not be asked about what they used to do" meaning you will not be held accountable for their bad deeds just as you are not rewarded for their good deeds.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And they said, "Be Jews", the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Ibn Suriya said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "There is no guidance except what we are upon, so follow us, O Muhammad, and you will be guided." And the Christians said the same, so God revealed about them: And they said, "Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided."

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty means by His saying: That is a nation that has passed on, Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and their children.

He says to the Jews and Christians: O group of Jews and Christians, leave the mention of Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Muslims from their children without their being worthy of it, and do not attribute to them the disbelief of Judaism and Christianity, by attributing it to them, for they are a nation. And by the nation in this place he means: the group and the generation of people that has passed away: it has gone its way.

The one who has died and gone is called departed, because he has left the world and is isolated from the familiarity with his family and companions in his world.

Its origin is from their saying: The man was alone, when he was in a place where he had no one to keep him company, and he was isolated from people. So it was used for someone who dies, in that way.

Then the Almighty said to the Jews and Christians: As for those of My prophets and messengers whom you attribute your misguidance and disbelief to, which you are upon, they have earned nothing.

The ha and the alif in his saying: for her refer, if you wish, to that, and if you wish, to the nation.

What he means by his saying: For her is what she has earned, is whatever good she has done. And for you, O Jews and Christians, is the same for what you have done. And you, who have given them the religions you have given them, will not be held accountable, so that you will be asked about what Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and their children did. They earned good and evil, because every soul has earned what it has earned and will bear what it has earned. So leave their making up and making up their religions, for making up your claims will not benefit you with God. Rather, what will benefit you with Him is what you have done in the past of your good deeds, if you have done them and sent them forward.

God Almighty says: And they say, 'Be Jews or Christians [so] you will be guided.' Say, 'Rather, [we follow] the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists.'

God the Almighty said: And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians [so] you will be guided.' Every group called to what they were upon, so God the Almighty responded to them by saying: Rather, a religion. That is, say, O Muhammad: Rather, we follow a religion. This is why the word religion was attributed to. It was said that the meaning is, Rather, we are guided by the religion of Abraham. So when the preposition was deleted, it became accusative. Al-A'raj and Ibn Abi Ubaidah read: Rather, a religion in the nominative case, and the meaning is, Rather, guidance is a religion, or our religion is the religion of Abraham. And Hanif is inclined away from the hated religions to the truth, the religion of Abraham. And it is in the accusative case as a state, as Al-Zajaj said. That is, rather, we follow the religion of Abraham in this case. Ali bin Sulayman said: It is accusative on I mean, and the state is incorrect. It is not permissible for a young Hind man to come to me in a hurry. And Abraham was called Hanif because he leaned toward the religion of God, which is Islam. And hanif means inclination, and from it a man is Hanifa, and a man is a hanaf, and he is the one whose feet lean each one of them toward the other with its toes. Umm Al-Ahnaf said:

By God, if it weren't for Hanf's foot, there wouldn't be anyone like him among your young men.

The poet said:

If the evening shade turns, his banner is pure, and in the morning he is victorious.

Which chameleon faces the Qiblah in the evening, and the East in the morning, and it is the Qiblah of the Christians. Some people said: Hanif is uprightness, so the religion of Abraham was called Hanif because of its uprightness. And the crooked-footed person was called Hanif, in optimism for uprightness, just as someone who has been bitten is called safe, and someone who has been destroyed is called a desert, according to most of them.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, Saeed bin Jubair or Ikrimah told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Abdullah

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:135

And they said, "Be Jews or Christians [so] you will be guided." Say, "Rather, [we follow] the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth. And he was not of the polytheists."

bin Suriya the one-eyed said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: There is no guidance except what we are upon, so follow us, O Muhammad, and you will be guided. The Christians said the same, so God Almighty revealed: And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided.' And His statement: Say, 'Rather, the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth.' That is, we do not want what you have called us to of Judaism and Christianity, but we follow the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth, meaning upright. Muhammad bin Ka'b al-Qurazi and Isa bin Jariyah said this, and Khasif said on the authority of Mujahid, sincerely. Ali bin Abi Talhah narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, pilgrim. This was also narrated on the authority of al-Hasan, al-Dahhak, Atiyah, and al-Suddi. Abu al-Aaliyah said: The one who is inclining toward truth is the one who faces the House in his prayer, and he sees that his pilgrimage is upon him if he is able to do so. Mujahid and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: Hanif means a follower. Abu Qilabah said: Hanif is the one who believes in all the messengers from the first to the last of them. Qatada said: Hanifism is the testimony that there is no god but God, which includes prohibiting mothers, daughters, maternal aunts, paternal aunts, and what God Almighty has prohibited, as well as circumcision.

Fath al-Qadir

When the Jews and Christians claimed that guidance is in their hands and that goodness is limited to them, God responded to them by saying: 135- "Rather, the religion of Abraham" meaning, say, O Muhammad, this statement, and the accusative of millah is an implied verb: meaning we follow, and it was said that the estimate is: we will be the religion of Abraham: meaning the people of his religion, and it was said: Rather, we are guided by the religion of Abraham, so when the preposition was deleted, it became accusative. Al-A'raj and Ibn Abi Ubla read millah in the nominative case: meaning, rather, the guidance is the religion of Abraham. And the Hanif is the one who inclines away from false religions to the religion of truth, and in the original language it is: the one whose feet incline each one to its sister. Al-Zajaj said: It is accusative in the state: meaning, we follow the religion of Abraham while he is a Hanif. Ali bin Sulayman said: It is accusative with the estimate of I mean and the state is wrong as it is not permissible. A young boy from Hind came to me in a hurry. He said in Al-Kashshaf: It is a state of the complement, like your saying: I saw Hind's face standing. Some people said: Hanif means uprightness, so the religion of Abraham was called Hanif because of its uprightness, and the one with crooked legs was called Hanif out of optimism for uprightness, just as someone who has been bitten is called safe, and someone who has been destroyed is called a wilderness. Those who said that Hanif in the language means crooked, not straight, provided evidence for this by the poet's saying:

If the shadow turns in the evening, you will see him as a monotheist, and in the morning he will become a Christian.

That is, the chameleon faces the Qiblah in the evening, and faces the East in the morning, which is the Qiblah of the Christians. Hence the poet's saying:

By God, if it were not for the defect in his foot, there would not be anyone like him among your men.

His saying: And he was not among the polytheists is an allusion to the Jews for saying: Ezra is the son of God and to the Christians for saying: The Messiah is the son of God. That is, Abraham was not in this state that you are in of polytheism with God, so how can you claim that he was Jewish or Christian?

Tafsir al-Baghawi

135. God the Almighty said: And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided.' Ibn Abbas said: It was revealed about the leaders of the Jews of Medina, Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, Malik ibn al-Sayyif, Wahb ibn Yahudah, and Abu Yasir ibn Akhtab, and about the Christians of Najran, al-Sayyid and al-Aqib and their companions. This is because they disputed with the Muslims about religion, each group claiming that it was more deserving of God's religion. The Jews said: Our Prophet Moses is the best of the prophets, and our book the Torah is the best of the books, and our religion is the best of the religions, and they disbelieved in Jesus, peace be upon him, and the Gospel, and in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Qur'an. The Christians said: Our Prophet is the best of the prophets, and our book the Gospel is the best of the books, and our religion is the best of the religions, and they disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Qur'an. Each of the two groups said to the believers: Be on our religion, for there is no religion other than that. So God the Almighty said: Say, O Muhammad, Rather, the religion of Abraham, "Rather, we follow the religion of Abraham." Al-Kisa'i said: It is an accusative of enticement, as if he is saying: Follow the religion of Abraham. It was said that its meaning is: Rather, we will be on The religion of Abraham, so he deleted upon and it became accusative hanifan in the accusative case according to the grammarians of Basra, and according to the grammarians of Kufa it was accusative in the cut-off case. He meant rather the religion of Abraham the Hanif, so when the alif and lam were dropped, it did not follow the definite indefinite noun and was cut off from it, so it was accusative.

Mujahed said: Hanafiyyah is following Abraham in what he brought of the Sharia by which he became an imam for the people. Ibn Abbas said: Hanafi is the one who inclines completely towards the religion of Islam, and its origin is from Hanaf, which is a tilt and crookedness in the foot. Saeed bin Jubair said: Hanafi is the circumcised pilgrim.

Ad-Dahhak said: If he is with a Muslim Hanif, then he is a pilgrim, and if he is not with a Muslim, then he is a Muslim. Qatada said: Hanifism is circumcision, prohibiting mothers, daughters, sisters, paternal aunts, and performing rituals.

And he was not among the polytheists. Then He taught the believers the path of faith, and He, the Most High, said:

Tafsir al-Baidawi

135- "And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians.' The absent pronoun refers to the People of the Book, and the or" is for variation, and the meaning is that their statement is one of these two statements. The Jews said, "Be Jews. And the Christians said, Be Christians. You will be guided." The answer to the command. "Say, 'Rather, the religion of Abraham.'" That is, rather, it will be the religion of Abraham, meaning the people of his religion, or rather, we will follow the religion of Abraham. It was read in the nominative case, meaning his religion is our religion, or the opposite, or we are his religion, meaning we are the people of his religion. "Hanif" inclining from falsehood to the truth. A state of the noun or the noun, as in the Almighty's saying: "And We will remove whatever is in their breasts of resentment, [so] they will be brothers. And he was not of the polytheists." An allusion to the People of the Book and others, for they claim to follow him while they are polytheists.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His statement: And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided,' that the Jews said to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his believing companions: Be Jews and you will be guided? And the Christians said to them: Be Christians and you will be guided.

By her saying: You will be guided, she means: you will find the path of truth, as Abu Kurayb told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, and Ibn Humayd told us, Salamah told us all, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, who said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zayd bin Thabit, told me, who said: Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Abdullah bin Suriya al-Awar said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: There is no guidance except what we are upon! So follow us, O Muhammad, and you will be guided! And the Christians said the same. So God, the Almighty, revealed about them: And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians [so] you will be guided.' Say, 'Rather, [we follow] the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists.'

Abu Jaafar said: God provided His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the most eloquent, concise, and complete argument, and taught it to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

He said: O Muhammad, say to those who say to you from the Jews and Christians and to your companions:

Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided: Rather, come, let us follow the religion of Abraham, which we all agree to bear witness to as the religion of God which He chose, selected, and commanded. For his religion was the pure, Muslim faith, and let us abandon all other religions in which we differ, some of us denying them and some of us affirming them. For despite their differences, there is no way for us to unite upon them, just as we have the way to unite upon the religion of Abraham.

There are three aspects to the accusative case of his statement: Rather, the religion of Abraham. The first is that the meaning of his statement: And they said, 'Be Jews or Christians,' is directed to the meaning: And they said, 'Follow Judaism and Christianity.' Because when they said, Be Jews or Christians, they left Judaism and Christianity, then the word religion is connected to that meaning. So the meaning of the statement then is: Say, O Muhammad, we do not follow Judaism and Christianity, nor do we take them as a religion, rather we follow the religion of Abraham, the upright one. Then the second word follow is deleted, and the word religion is connected to the inflection of Judaism and Christianity.

The other: that it is made accusative by an implied verb meaning we follow.

The third: that what was meant was: Rather, we will be the people of the religion of Abraham, or the people of the religion of Abraham. Then the people and companions were omitted, and the religion was established in their place, since it conveyed the meaning of the speech, as the poet said:

I thought my camel's embrace was an embrace! But it is not an embrace, except for you and others.

Meaning: the sound of an embrace, so the word religion is then in the accusative case, in apposition to the Jews and Christians.

It may be permissible for it to be in the accusative case as an encouragement to follow the religion of Abraham.

Some readers read it with the nominative case. The interpretation of it, according to the reading of those who read it with the nominative case, is: Rather, guidance is the religion of Abraham.

Say in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Say, 'Rather, the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists.'

Abu Jaafar said: The religion is the faith.

As for the Hanif, he is the upright in everything. It has been said that the man who has one foot in front of the other is called Hanif, in reference to his safety, just as it is said of a perishable country, meaning the attainment of salvation and safety from it, and just as it is said of a healthy person who has been bitten, as an optimism for his safety from destruction, and the like.

So the meaning of the statement is: Say, O Muhammad, but we follow the religion of Abraham, straight.

Then, the Hanif is a state of Ibrahim.

As for the people of interpretation, they differed in the interpretation of that. Some of them said: The Hanif is the pilgrim. It was said: The religion of Abraham was called the Hanif Islam because he was the first Imam who required the worshippers who were in his time, and those who came after him until the Day of Resurrection to follow him in the rituals of Hajj, and to imitate him in it. They said: So whoever performs Hajj to the House and performs the rituals of Abraham according to his religion, he is a Hanif, a Muslim according to the religion of Abraham.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us, he said, al-Qasim bin al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Katheer Abu Sahl, he said: I asked al-Hasan about the Hanafi school, he said: The pilgrimage to the House.

Muhammad bin Ubadah al-Asadi told me, he said, Ubayd God bin Musa told us, he said, Fadil told us, on the authority of Atiyah, regarding his statement: Hanif, he said: Hanif is the pilgrim.

Al-Husayn bin Ali Al-Sada'i told me, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Al-Fudayl, on the authority of Atiyah, similarly.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam bin Salm told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: The Hanif is the pilgrim.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told me, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Ibn al-Taymi told us, on the authority of Katheer bin Ziyad, he said, I asked al-Hasan about the Hanafi school, he said: It is the pilgrimage to this House.

Ibn al-Taymi said: Juwaybir told me, on the authority of al-Dahhak ibn Muzahim, something similar.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Ibn Mahdi told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Mujahid: Hanifa, he said: Hajjaj.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Hanif, he said: A pilgrim.

It was narrated on the authority of Wakee', on the authority of Fadil bin Ghazwan, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Qasim, who said: The people of Mudhrijun al-Kaaba in the pre-Islamic era were called Hanifa, then God Almighty revealed: Hanifa for God, not associating anything with Him (al-Hajj 22:31).

Others said: Al-Hanafi is the follower, as we described before, from the saying of those who said: Its meaning is: righteousness.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Hanifa, he said: followers.

Others said: The religion of Abraham was called the Hanafi religion because he was the first imam to institute circumcision for the servants, and those who came after him followed him in it. They said: So whoever is circumcised in the manner of Abraham's circumcision is on the same Islam as Abraham was, so he is a Hanafi according to the religion of Abraham.

Others said: Rather, it is the religion of Abraham, the upright one. Rather, it is the religion of Abraham, the sincere one. The upright one according to what they say: is the one whose religion is sincere to God alone.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, he said, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And follow the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth, he said: sincerely.

Others said: Rather, it is the Hanafi school of thought, Islam. So whoever follows Abraham in his religion and adheres to it, he is a Hanafi.

Abu Jaafar said: Hanafi, in my opinion, is adherence to the religion of Abraham and following his creed. This is because if Hanafiyah were the pilgrimage to the House, then those who performed Hajj in the pre-Islamic era from among the polytheists would have to have been Hanafi. God denied that this was Hanafi by saying: But he was a Muslim inclining toward truth, and he was not of the polytheists. (Al Imran 3:67)

The same applies to circumcision. If the Hanafi faith was circumcision, then the Jews would have to be Hanafi. God excluded them from that by saying: Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim (Al Imran 3:67).

It is therefore true that the Hanafi school is not circumcision alone, nor the Hajj alone, but rather it is what we have described: adherence to the religion of Abraham, following him in it, and imitating him in it.

If someone says: Were not those who came before Abraham, peace be upon him, from the prophets and their followers, steadfast in what they were commanded to do in obeying God, as steadfast as Abraham and his followers?

It was said: Yes.

If he says: How can the Hanafi school be attributed to Abraham and his followers in his religion in particular, and not to all the other prophets before him and their followers?

It was said: Every prophet before Abraham was a Hanif who followed the obedience of God, but God Almighty did not make any of them an imam for those of His servants who came after him until the Day of Resurrection, as He did with Abraham. He made him an imam in what he taught of the rituals of Hajj and circumcision, and other Islamic laws, as an act of

Say, "We believe in God and what was revealed to us and what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes, and what was given to Moses and Jesus and what was given to the prophets from their Lord. We make no distinction between any of them, and we are Muslims [in submission] to Him."

worship to be followed forever until the Day of Resurrection. He made what He established of that a distinguishing mark between the believers of His servants and their infidels, and the obedient among them to God and the disobedient. So the Hanif among the people was called Hanif because of his following of his religion and his steadfastness in his guidance and method, and the one who went astray from his religion was called by all the names of religions, so it was said: Jewish, Christian, Zoroastrian, and other types of religions.

As for his saying: And he was not of the polytheists, he says: He was not of those who worshipped idols and statues, nor was he of the Jews or Christians, but rather he was a monotheist Muslim.

The Almighty said: Say, 'We believe in God.' Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The People of the Book used to read the Torah in Hebrew and explain it in Arabic to the people of Islam. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not believe the People of the Scripture, nor disbelieve them, but say, 'We believe in God and in what was revealed to us,' (al-Anfal 2:10). Muhammad ibn Sirin said: If it is said to you, Are you a believer? then say, We believe in God and in what was revealed to us, and in what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, and Isaac (al-Anfal 2:10). Most of the early Muslims disliked a man saying, I am a true believer. This will be explained in Al-Anfal, God willing. Some of the early Muslims were asked about a man who was asked, Do you believe in so-and-so the Prophet? So he called him by a name he did not know. If he said, Yes, then perhaps he was not a prophet, as he had testified to the prophethood of someone other than a prophet. If he said, No, then perhaps he was a prophet, as he had denied a prophet. So what should he do? He said, He should say, 'If he is a prophet, then I believe in him.' The address in this verse is to this nation, teach them faith. Ibn Abbas said, "A group of Jews came to the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, and asked him about the prophets he should believe in, so the verse was revealed." When Jesus was mentioned, they said: We do not believe in Jesus or anyone who believes in him.

God the Almighty said: And what was revealed to us and what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes. The plural of Abraham is Abraham, and Ishmael is Sma'il, as Al-Khalil and Sibawayh said, and the Kufians said so, and they narrated Brahimah and Sma'ala, and they narrated Brahīm and Sma'il. Muhammad bin Yazid said: This is a mistake, because this is not the place for the hamza to be added, but I say: Abarah and Asma', and it is permissible to Abariyah and Asma'. Ahmad bin Yahya permitted Barah, as it is said in the diminutive Bariḥ. The plural of Ishaq is Asa'iḳ, and the Kufians narrated Asa'aqah and Asa'aq, and likewise Ya'qub and Ya'aqib, and Ya'qub and Ya'aqub. An-Nahhas said: As for Israel, we do not know of anyone who permits the deletion of the hamza from the beginning of it, but rather it is said Asareel, and the Kufians narrated Asarlah and Asarl. The rule in all of this is to pluralize Muslim and say: Ibrahimoon, Ishaqoon, and Ya'quboon, and Muslim is not used.

The tribes: the descendants of Jacob, peace be upon him, and they are twelve sons, each of whom had a nation of people, and each one of them is a tribe. The tribe in the Children of Israel is like the tribe in the children of Ishmael. They were called the tribes from the tribe, which means succession, so they are a group that follows one another. It was said: Its origin is from the tribe with a fat-ha, which means trees, meaning they are in large numbers like trees, the singular is a tribe. Abu Ishaq al-Zajaj said: This is explained to you by what Muhammad ibn Ja'far al-Anbari told us, he said Abu Nujayd al-Daqqaq told us, he said al-Aswad told us from the Children of Israel except ten: Noah, Shu'ayb, Hud, Salih, Lot, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Ishmael, and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. No one had two names except Asa and Jacob. The tribe: the group and the tribe that go back to one origin. The hair of the tribe and the tribe is not curly. We do not differentiate between any of them. Al-Farra' said: That is, we do not believe in some of them and disbelieve in others, as the Jews and Christians did.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty guided His believing servants to believe in what was revealed to them through His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in detail, and what was revealed to the previous prophets in general. He specified some of the messengers, and mentioned the rest of the prophets in general, and that they should not differentiate between any of them, but rather believe in all of them, and not be like those about whom God said, "And they want to make distinction between God and His messengers and say, 'We believe in some and disbelieve in others,' and they want to adopt a way in between. Those are the disbelievers, truly." Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad bin Bashār told us, Uthman bin Amrah told us, Ali bin Mubarak told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Katheer, on the authority of Abu Salamah bin Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The People of the Book used to read the Torah in Hebrew and explain it in Arabic for the people of Islam, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Do not believe the People of the Book and do not disbelieve them, and say, 'We believe in God and what God has revealed.' Muslim, Abu Dawud and Al-Nasa'i narrated from the hadith of Uthman bin Hakim on the authority of Saeed bin Yasar on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray the two rak'ahs before dawn most often with the verse We believe in God and what has been revealed to us and the other with We believe in God and bear witness that we are Muslims. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' and Qatadah said: The tribes are the sons of Jacob, twelve men, each of whom gave birth to a nation of people, so they were called the tribes. Al-Khalil bin Ahmad and others said: The tribes of the Children of Israel are like the tribes of the Children of Ishmael. Al-Zamakhshari said in Al-Kashshaf: The tribes are the tribes of the Children of Israel. This requires that what is meant by the tribes here are the peoples of the Children of Israel and what God sent down of revelation to the prophets who were present among them, as Moses said to them, Remember the favor of God upon you when He made prophets among you and made you kings verse, and God Almighty said, And We divided them into twelve tribes. Al-Qurtubi said: They were called the tribes from the word sabt, which means succession, so they are a group. It was said that its origin is from sabt, with a fat-ha, which means trees, meaning in abundance, like a single tree, a tribe. Al-Zajaj said: Its origin is shown to you by what Muhammad bin Ja'far Al-Anbari told us, Abu Nujayd Al-Daqqaq told us, Al-Aswad bin Aamer told us, Israel told us on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: All the prophets are from the Children of Israel except ten: Noah, Hud, Salih, Shu'ayb, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. And Ishmael and Muhammad, peace be upon them. Al-Qurtubi said: The grandson is the group and tribe that go back to one origin. Qatada said: God commanded the believers to believe in Him and to believe in all His books and His messengers. Sulayman ibn Habib said: We were only commanded to believe in the Torah and the Gospel, and not to act upon what is in them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Muhammad ibn Mus'ab al-Suri informed us, Mu'ammil informed us, Ubayd God ibn Abi Hamid informed us on the authority of Abu al-Malih, on the authority of Mu'qil ibn Yasar, who said: The Messenger of God, peace be upon him, said: Believe in the Torah, the Psalms, and the Gospel, and let the Qur'an suffice you.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 136- "Say: We believe in God" is addressed to the Muslims and an order for them to say this statement, and it was said: It is addressed to the infidels to say the same so that they will be on the truth, and the first is more apparent. And the tribes: the sons of Jacob and they are twelve sons, and each one of them has a group of sons, and the tribe in the Children of Israel is like the tribe in the Arabs, and they were named the tribes from the tribe which is succession, so they are a group in succession, and it was said: Its origin is from the tribe with the movement which is the tree: meaning they are in the majority like the tree, and it was said: the tribes are the grandchildren of Jacob: meaning the sons of his sons not his sons, because the majority was only in them and not the sons of Jacob in himself, so they are individuals not tribes. And His saying: We do not differentiate between any of them Al-Farra' said: Its meaning is that we do not believe in some of them and disbelieve in some of them as the Jews and Christians did. He said in Al-Kashshaf: And one in the meaning of the group, and therefore it is correct to enter between it.

136. "Say, 'We believe in God and what has been revealed to us' meaning the Qur'an, 'and what was revealed to Abraham' meaning ten scrolls, 'and Ishmael and Isaac and Jacob and the Tribes' meaning the sons of Jacob, who are twelve tribes, each of them a tribe, they were called that because a group was born to each one of them, and the tribe of a man is his grandson, and from this it was said that Al-Hassan and Al-Hussein, may God be pleased with them, were the two grandsons of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the tribes of the Children of Israel are like the tribes of the Arabs from the children of Ishmael and the peoples from the Persians, and there were prophets among the tribes, and for this reason He said: and what was revealed to them, and it was said that they are the sons of Jacob from his loins, they all became prophets, 'and what was given to Moses' meaning the Torah, 'and Jesus' meaning the Gospel, 'and what was given' was given to the prophets from their Lord, 'we make no distinction between any of them' meaning we believe in all of them, we do not make any distinction between any of them, so we believe in some and disbelieve in others as the Jews and Christians did, 'and we are Muslims to Him.'"

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Muhammad bin Bashar, I told Uthman bin Umar, I told Ali bin Al-Mubarak, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Katheer, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The People of the Book used to read the Torah in Hebrew and explain it in Arabic for the people of Islam. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do not believe the People of the Book and do not disbelieve them, and say, 'We believe in God,' verse.

136- Say, 'We believe in God.' The address is to the believers, as God Almighty says: If they believe in the same as you believe. "And what was revealed to us" the Qur'an, it was mentioned first because it was the first in relation to us, or a reason for believing in something else. "And what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes" the scrolls, and even though they were revealed to Abraham, since they were worshippers of its details and included under its rulings, it was also revealed to them, just as the Qur'an was revealed to us. The tribes are the plural of tribe, which is the grandchild, meaning the grandchildren of Jacob, or his sons and their offspring, for they are the grandchildren of Abraham and Isaac. "And what was given to Moses and Jesus" the Torah and the Gospel, their mention is singular by a more eloquent ruling because their matter in relation to Moses and Jesus is different from what came before, and the dispute occurred in them. "And what was given to the prophets" all of those mentioned among them and those not mentioned. "From their Lord" revealed to them from their Lord. We make no distinction between any of them, such as the Jews, so we believe in some and disbelieve in others. One is in the context of general negation, so it is permissible to add between to it. And we are to Him, meaning to God. Submitting, obedient and sincere.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

If they believe meaning the Jews and Christians in the like like, and the ba is redundant (of what you believe in, then they are guided. But if they turn away) from believing in it then they are only in dissension disagreement with you then God will suffice you against them O Muhammad, their dissension and He is the Hearing of their words the Knowing of their conditions, and He sufficed them by killing Qurayza, exiling Nadir, and imposing the jizyah on them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by that: Say, O believers, to these Jews and Christians who said to you: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided, "We believe," that is, we believe in God.

We have previously demonstrated that the meaning of faith is belief, which makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

And what was revealed to us, also means: We believe in the Book that God revealed to our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. So he added the address of revelation to them, since they were his followers, and were commanded and forbidden by it. So even if it was a revelation to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the sense of revelation to them, because of the meanings that were described for them in it.

What he means by his saying: and what was revealed to Abraham, is that we also believe and have faith in what was revealed to Abraham and Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes, and they are the prophets from the descendants of Jacob.

And His statement: And what was given to Moses and Jesus, means: We also believe in the Torah that God gave to Moses, and in the Gospel that God gave to Jesus, and the books that were given to all the prophets, and we acknowledge and believe that all of that is truth and guidance and light from God, and that all of His prophets whom God mentioned were on the truth and guidance, confirming one another, on one path in calling to the Oneness of God and working in obedience to Him, We make no distinction between any of them, meaning: We do not believe in some prophets and disbelieve in others, and we disavow some and support others, just as the Jews disavowed Jesus and Muhammad, peace be upon them, and acknowledged other prophets, and just as the Christians disavowed Muhammad, peace be upon him, and acknowledged other prophets. Rather, we bear witness for all of them that they were messengers of God and His prophets, sent with the truth and guidance. As for His statement: And we are Muslims to Him, He, the Most High, means: We are submissive to Him in obedience, acquiescing in servitude to Him.

He mentioned that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said that to the Jews, so they disbelieved in Jesus and in those who believed in him, as Abu Kurayb told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit told me, Saeed bin Jubair told me, or Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: "A group of Jews came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, among them Abu Yasir bin Akhtab, Rafi' bin Abi Rafi', Azar, Khalid, Zaid, Azar bin Abi Azar, and Ash'i", and they asked him about the messengers who believed in him, so he said: I believe in God and what was revealed to us and what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes, and what was given to Moses and Jesus and what was given to the prophets from their Lord. We make no distinction between any of them, and we are Muslims to Him. So when he mentioned Jesus, they denied his prophethood and said: We do not believe in Jesus, and we do not believe in those who believe in him." Then God revealed about them: Say, 'O People of the Scripture, do you blame us for anything except that we believe in God and in what was revealed to us and what was revealed before, and that most of you are wicked?' (al-Ma'idah 5:9).

Ibn Humayd narrated, Salamah narrated, Muhammad ibn Ishaq narrated, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad narrated, on the authority of Ikrimah, or Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came and mentioned something similar, except that he said: Nafi' ibn Abi Nafi' instead of Rafi' ibn Abi Rafi'. Qatada said: This verse was revealed as a command from God, the Most High, to the believers to believe in all of His messengers, as Bishr ibn Mu'adh narrated, Yazid narrated, Sa'id narrated, on the authority of Qatada: Say, 'We believe in God and in what was revealed to us and what was revealed to Abraham,' until His saying: And we are Muslims [in submission] to Him. God commanded the believers to believe in and confirm all of His prophets and messengers, and not to differentiate between any of them.

As for the tribes that he mentioned, they are twelve men from the descendants of Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham. Each man of them gave birth to a nation of people, so they were called tribes, as: Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: The tribes are Joseph and his brothers, the sons of Jacob. He gave birth to twelve men, so each man of them gave birth to a nation of people, so they were called: tribes.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for the tribes, they are the sons of Jacob: Joseph, Benjamin, Reuben, Judah, Simeon, Levi, Dan, and Kohath.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', he said: The tribes are

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:137

So if they believe in the same as you believe, then they are rightly guided. But if they turn away, then they are only in dissension. So Allah will suffice you against them, and He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

Joseph and his brothers, the sons of Jacob, twelve men, and each man of them gave birth to a nation of people, so they were called: the tribes.

Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told me: Jacob, son of Isaac, who is Israel, married his maternal uncle's daughter, Leah, daughter of Layan, son of Tubal, son of Elias, and she bore him Reuben, son of Jacob, who was his eldest son, and Simeon, son of Jacob, and Levi, son of Jacob, and Judah, son of Jacob, and Rialon, son of Jacob, and Ishgar, son of Jacob, and Dinah, daughter of Jacob. Then Leah, daughter of Layan, died. Then Jacob had a son, Rachel, daughter of Lian, son of Tubil, son of Elias, after his sister. She bore him Joseph, son of Jacob, and Benjamin, which is called Asad in Arabic. He had four sons from two of his concubines: one of them was named Zilpah and the other Bilhah: Dan, son of Jacob, Naphtali, son of Jacob, Gad, son of Jacob, and Asherab, son of Jacob. The sons of Jacob were twelve men. God spread out from them twelve tribes, and none can count their number nor know their lineage except God. God Almighty says: And We divided them into twelve tribes, nations (al-A'raf 7:160).

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "If they believe in the same as you believe, then they are rightly guided. But if they turn away, then they are only in dissension. So God will suffice you against them. And He is the Hearing, the Knowing."

The Almighty says: If they believe in the same as you believe in, they have been guided. The address is to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his nation. If they believe like your belief, and are truthful like your belief, they have been guided. Thus, the similarity occurred between the two beliefs. It was said that the ba is an additional letter for emphasis. Ibn Abbas used to read, as narrated by al-Tabari: If they believe in that which you believe in, they have been guided. This is the meaning of the reading, even if it differs from the Qur'an. Mithl is an additional letter as it is in His statement: There is nothing like Him, meaning there is nothing like Him. The poet said:

So become like eaten straw

And the rest of it was narrated that Shu'bah narrated to us on the authority of Abu Hamza on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Do not say: If they believe in the same as you believe in, then God has no equal, but say: In that in which you believe. Ali bin Nasr Al-Jahdhami followed him on the authority of Shu'bah, and Al-Bayhaqi mentioned it. The meaning is: If they believe in your Prophet and in general the Prophets and do not differentiate between them as you have not differentiated, then they are guided, but if they refuse except to differentiate, then they are the ones who have turned away from the religion and are dissidents.

Then God will suffice you against them. It was narrated on the authority of a group of the people of insight who said: It is possible that the Kaf in his statement: There is nothing like Him is redundant. He said: What was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his prohibition of general recitation is something he went to for the sake of exaggeration in denying likeness to God Almighty. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is from Ibn Abbas in terms of interpretation, meaning that it is thus, so let it be interpreted. It was also said: The Baa' means on, and the meaning is: If they believe in the same as your belief. It was said: It is like its door, meaning like the house. Its evidence is his saying: And say, 'I believe in what God has revealed of the Book.' And his saying: And say, 'We believe in that which was revealed to us and revealed to you.'

The Almighty said: But if they turn away meaning from faith they are only in dissension. Zayd ibn Aslam said: Dissension is dispute. It was also said: Dissension is argument, opposition, and hostility. Its origin is from shaq which means side, so it is as if each of the two groups is in a different side than the other. The poet said:

How long will you kill scholars by force and explode with discord and hypocrisy?

Another said:

Otherwise, know that you and I are rebels as long as we remain in discord.

It was said: Discord is taken from the verb to make difficult, so it is as if each of the two groups is keen on what is difficult for the other.

His saying: God will suffice you against them means God will suffice His Messenger against his enemy. This was a promise from God to His Prophet, peace be upon him, that He will suffice him against those who opposed him and those who opposed him from the guardians by guiding him from the believers, so He fulfilled the promise to him, and that was in killing Banu Qaynuqa and Banu Qurayza and expelling Banu Nadir. The kaf, ha and mim are in the accusative case as objects. It is permissible in other than the Qur'an to say: God will suffice you against them. This letter God will suffice you against them is the one upon which the blood of Uthman fell when he was killed by the Prophet, peace be upon him, informing him of that. The All-Hearing is for the words of every speaker, The All-Knowing is what He carries out in His servants and conducts upon them. It was narrated that Abu Dulamah entered upon al-Mansur wearing a long skullcap, a coat of mail with written between its shoulders God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing, and a sword hung from his waist. Al-Mansur had ordered the soldiers to wear this uniform, so he said to him: How are you, Abu Dulamah? He said: Be glad, O Commander of the Faithful! He said: How is that? He said: What do you think of a man whose face is in the middle, his sword is in his anus, and who has thrown the Book of God behind his back! Al-Mansur laughed at him and ordered that that outfit to be changed immediately.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: If they believe, meaning the unbelievers from the People of the Book and others, in the same way that you have believed, O believers, in believing in all the Books of God and His Messengers and they do not differentiate between any of them, then they have been guided, meaning they have attained the truth and have been guided to it. But if they turn away, meaning from the truth to falsehood after the proof has been established against them, "then they are only in dissension. So God will suffice you against them," meaning He will grant you victory over them and make you triumph over them. And He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus bin Abdul A'la read to me, Ibn Wahb told us, Ziyad bin Yunus told us, Nafi' bin Abi Na'im told us, he said: He sent to one of the caliphs the copy of the Qur'an of Uthman bin Affan to fix it, Ziyad said: So I said to him: People say that his copy of the Qur'an was in his lap when he was killed and blood fell on God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing. Nafi' said: My eyes saw the blood on this verse, and it has been presented. And his saying the dye of God, Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: the religion of God, and this is also narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Abu Al-Aliyah, Ikrimah, Ibrahim, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, Abdullah bin Kathir, Atiyah Al-Awfi, Ar-Rabi' bin Anas, and As-Suddi, and something similar to that. And the accusative of the dye of God is either for incitement like his saying the nature of God, meaning adhere to that, and some of them said: instead of his saying the religion of Ibrahim. And Sibawayh said: It is a confirmed source that is accusative for his saying We believe in God, like his saying the promise of God, and it was mentioned in a hadith narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated from Ash'ath ibn Ishaq from Sa'id ibn Jubayr from Ibn Abbas that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The Children of Israel said: O Messenger of God, does your Lord dye? He said: Fear God. Then his Lord called out to him: O Moses, they asked you: Does your Lord dye? Say: Yes, I dye colors: red, white, and black, and all colors are from my dye." And God revealed to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The dye of God, and who is better than God at dyeing? This is how it appears in the narration of Ibn Mardawayh, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, and in the narration of Ibn Abi Hatim it is with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, and this is more likely if its chain of transmission is sound, and God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 137- If they believe in the same as you believe in, this address is also to the Muslims: meaning, if the People of the Book and others believe in the same as you believe in all of the books of God and His messengers and do not differentiate between any of them, then they have been guided. And based on this, like is redundant, like His saying: There is nothing like Him, and the poet's saying:

So become like eaten straw

It was said: The similarity occurred between the two faiths: that is, if they believed in the same faith as you. And he said in Al-Kashshaf: It is from the category of rebuke because the religion of truth is one and has no equal, and it is the religion of Islam. He said: That is, if they obtained another religion like your religion, equal to it in soundness and correctness, then they have been guided. And it was said: The ba' is an additional emphasis, and it was said: It is for assistance. And the origin of the word shaqq is from shaqq which means side, as if each of the two groups is on a side other than the side that the other is on. And it was said: It is taken from the verb what is difficult and hard, so each of the two groups is keen to do what is difficult for the other, and it is correct to carry the verse to each of the two meanings, and likewise the saying of the poet:

Otherwise, know that you and I are rebels as long as we remain in discord.

And the other said:

How long will you accept scholars by force and boast of discord and hypocrisy?

His saying: God will suffice you against them is a promise from God Almighty to His Prophet that He will suffice him against those who oppose him and contradict him from among the followers, and He fulfilled His promise to him with what He sent down of His might upon Qurayza, Nadir, and Banu Qaynuqa.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

137- The Almighty's saying: If they believe in the like of what you believe in, meaning in what you believe in, and this is how Ibn Abbas used to read it. The like is a connection like the Almighty's saying: There is nothing like Him, meaning He is not like anything. It was said: Its meaning is if they believe in all that you believe in, meaning they come with faith like your faith and monotheism like your monotheism. It was said: Its meaning is if they believe in the like of what you believe in, and the ba' is redundant like the Almighty's saying: And shake toward you the trunk of the palm tree, 25- Maryam. Abu Muadh the grammarian said: Its meaning is if they believe in your book as you believe in their book, "then they have been guided. But if they turn away, then they are only in dissension," meaning in disagreement and dispute. This was said by Ibn Abbas and Ata'. It is said: Shaqq Mishaqan if he disagrees as if each one is taking a side other than the side of his companion. God Almighty said: Let not my dissension lead you astray 89- Hud, meaning My disagreement, and it was said: in enmity, its evidence: the Almighty's saying: That is because they opposed God 13- Al-Anfal meaning they opposed God, so God will suffice you against them O Muhammad, meaning He will suffice you against the evil of the Jews and Christians, and it is sufficient to expel Banu Nadir, kill

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:137

So if they believe in the same as you believe, then they are rightly guided. But if they turn away, then they are only in dissension. So Allah will suffice you against them, and He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

Banu Qurayzah, and impose the jizya on the Jews and Christians, and He is the Hearer of their words, the Knower of their conditions.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

137-If they believe in the same as you believe in, then they have been guided is a form of incapacitation and rebuke, like the Almighty's saying: Then produce a surah like it, since there is no like what the Muslims believe in, and no religion is like the religion of Islam. It was said: The ba' is for the instrument without the transitive, and the meaning is if you seek faith in a way that guides to the truth like your way, since the unity of purpose does not reject multiple ways, or it is added for emphasis like the Almighty's saying: The recompense for an evil is the like thereof. The meaning is: "If they believe in God with a belief like your belief in Him, or the example is inserted as in His statement: "And a witness from among the Children of Israel testifies to the like of it" meaning to it, and the one who recites what you believe in testifies to it. But if they turn away, then they are in dissension meaning if they turn away from the belief, or from what you say to them, then they are only in dissension of the truth, which is opposition and opposition, for each one of the dissenters is in a different sect from the other. Then God will suffice you against them as consolation and reassurance for the believers, and a promise to them of preservation and victory over those who oppose them. And He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing either from the completion of the promise, meaning that He hears what you say and knows your sincerity, and He will inevitably reward you, or a threat to those who turn away, meaning that He hears what they express and knows what they conceal, and He will punish them for it.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:138

The dye of God, and who is better than God at dyeing? And we are His worshippers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

The dye of God is a confirmed source of our faith and its installation by an implied verb, meaning God dyed us and what is meant by it is His religion which He created people upon because its effect appears on its owner like dye on a garment And who meaning no one is better than God in dyeing a distinction and we are His worshippers the Jews said to the Muslims: We are the people of the first book and our qibla is older and the prophets were not from the Arabs and if Muhammad was a prophet he would have been from us so it was revealed:

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What God Almighty meant by His statement: If they believe in the same as you believe in, is that if the Jews and Christians believe in God and what was revealed to you, and what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes, and what was given to Moses and Jesus, and what was given to the prophets from their Lord, and they acknowledge that, just as you, O believers, have believed in and acknowledged, then they have been guided and have adhered to the path of truth, and have been guided, and they are then from you and you are from them, by their entering your religion through their acknowledgment of that.

So, the Almighty indicated with this verse that He did not accept any action from anyone except by believing in these meanings that He enumerated before it, as: Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: If they believe in the like of what you believe in, then they are guided, and something similar to this. He said: God, the Almighty, informed us that faith is the firmest handhold, and that He does not accept any action without it, and Paradise is not forbidden except to those who abandon it. And a reading was narrated from Ibn Abbas in that regard, but the copies of the Qur'an of the Muslims came with a different reading, and the readers of the Qur'an agreed to abandon it. That is what: Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Hamza, he said, Ibn Abbas said: Do not say, If they believe in the like of what you believe in, then they are guided, for there is no like unto God. But say, If they believe in that which you believe in, then they are guided, or he said: If they believe in that which you believe in.

So it is as if Ibn Abbas in this narration, if it is authentic, is directing the interpretation of the reading of the one who reads: If they believe in the like of what you believe in, that is, if they believe in the like of God, and in the like of what was revealed to Abraham and Ishmael. And that, if it is directed in this way, is undoubtedly polytheism with God Almighty. Because there is no like to God, may He be mentioned, so we believe in Him or disbelieve in Him. But the interpretation of that is not in the meaning to which its interpretation was directed. Rather, its meaning is what we have described, which is: If they believe in the same way as you believe in what you believe in from all that we have enumerated for you of the books of God and His prophets, then they have been guided. So the comparison only occurred between the two beliefs and acknowledgments, which are the faith of these and the faith of those. Like the saying of the speaker: Amr passed by your brother as I passed by him, meaning by that: Amr passed by your brother as I passed by him. And the comparison only entered as a comparison between the two passings, not between Amr and the speaker. Likewise, his saying: If they believe in the like of what you believe in, the comparison only occurred between the two faiths, not between the believer in it.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And if they turn away, then they are in dissension.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His statement: And if they turn away, and if those who said to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, Be Jews or Christians, turned away, and did not believe as you do, O believers in God, and in what the prophets brought and the messengers were sent with, and they differentiated between God's messengers and between God and His messengers, so they believed in some and disbelieved in others, then know, O believers, that they are only in disobedience, separation, and war against God, His Messenger, and you, as Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah: Then they are only in dissension, meaning: in separation.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': They are only in discord, meaning separation.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: But if they turn away, then they are only in discord, he said: Discord is separation and fighting. If someone discords, then he has fought, and if he fights, then he has discorded, and they are one and the same in the speech of the Arabs. And he recited: And whoever contradicts the Messenger (An-Nisa': 115).

Abu Ja'far said: The origin of the word shaqāq in our view, and God knows best, is taken from the saying of a speaker: This matter was difficult for him, meaning that it distressed and hurt him. Then it was said: So-and-so caused distress to so-and-so, meaning that each of them suffered from the other what distressed and hurt him, and his grievance weighed him down. From this is the saying of God Almighty: And if you fear a breach between the two (An-Nisa': 35), meaning: separation between them.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Then God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing.

The dye of Allah, and who is better than Allah at dyeing? And we are His worshippers.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: God will suffice you against them, that God will suffice you, O Muhammad, against those who said to you and your companions: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided, from the Jews and Christians, if they turn away from believing in God as your companions did, and in what was revealed to you, and what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, and all the other prophets besides them, and they separate between God and His messengers, either by killing with the sword, or by expelling you from your protection, and other punishments. Then God is the Hearer of what they say to you with their tongues and what they reveal to you with their mouths, of ignorance and calling to disbelief and deviant religions, and the Knower of what they conceal for you and your believing companions in themselves of envy and hatred.

So God did that to them quickly, and fulfilled His promise. He was sufficient for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, by giving him power over them, until he killed some of them, exiled some of them, and humiliated and disgraced some of them with tribute and humiliation.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: The dye of God, and who is better than God at dyeing? And we are His worshippers.

There are two issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: The dye of God. Al-Akhfash and others said: The religion of God, and it is a substitute for millet. Al-Kisa'i said: It is in the accusative case, assuming they followed. Or it is an inducement, meaning they adhered. If it was read in the nominative case, it would be permissible, meaning it is the dye of God. Shaiban narrated on the authority of Qatada, who said: The Jews dye their children as Jews, and the Christians dye their children as Christians, and the dye of God is Islam. Al-Zajjaj said: What indicates this is that dye is a substitute for millet. Mujahid said: Meaning the nature of God upon which He created people. Abu Ishaq Al-Zajjaj said: Mujahid's statement goes back to Islam, because the nature is the beginning of creation, and the beginning of what they were created upon is Islam. It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Al-Hasan, Abu Al-Aliyah, and Qatada: The dye is the religion. The origin of that is that the Christians used to dye their children in water, which is what they call baptism, and they used to say: This is a purification for them. Ibn Abbas said: It is that when a child was born to the Christians and seven days passed, they would dip him in their water called baptismal water, and they would dye him with it to purify the place of circumcision, because circumcision is purification. So when they did that, they would say: Now he has truly become a Christian. So God Almighty responded to them by saying: The dye of God, meaning the dye of God is the best dye, which is

Islam. So religion was called dye as a metaphor and a figure of speech, because its actions and mark appear on the religious person, just as the trace of dye appears on a garment. And some of the poets of the kings of Hamdan said:

Every people have a dye, and Hamdan's dye is the best dye.

We dyed our children on that, so be generous with dyeing us in dyeing

It was said: The dye is the bathing for those who want to enter Islam, instead of Christian baptism, as mentioned by Al-Mawardi.

I said: According to this interpretation, washing the infidel is an obligatory act of worship, and this is the issue:

Second: Because the meaning of the dye of God is the washing of God, that is, wash yourselves when you become Muslim with the washing that God has made obligatory upon you. And with this meaning came the second Sunnah in Qais bin Asim and Thamamah bin Aththal when they became Muslim. Abu Hatim Al-Basti narrated in his Sahih Musnad "On the authority of Abu Hurairah on his authority: That Thamamah Al-Hanafi was taken prisoner and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by him one day and he became Muslim, so he sent him to the garden of Abu Talha and ordered him to wash himself, so he washed himself and prayed two rak'ahs, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Your companion's Islam is good." And he also came out.

On the authority of Qais bin Asim that he converted to Islam, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered him to wash himself with water and lotus leaves. Al-Nasa'i mentioned it and Abu Muhammad Abdul Haqq authenticated it. It was said that drawing close to God Almighty is called dyeing, as narrated by Ibn Faris in Al-Mujmal. Al-Jawhari said: The dye of God is His religion. It was said that dyeing is circumcision. Abraham was circumcised, so the dye was used for circumcision because of their dyeing the boys in water, as Al-Farra' said. And we are His worshippers is a subject and predicate.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: If they believe, meaning the unbelievers from the People of the Book and others, in the same way that you have believed, O believers, in believing in all the Books of God and His Messengers and they do not differentiate between any of them, then they have been guided, meaning they have attained the truth and have been guided to it. But if they turn away, meaning from the truth to falsehood after the proof has been established against them, "then they are only in dissension. So God will suffice you against them," meaning He will grant you victory over them and make you triumph over them. And He is the Hearing, the Knowing.

Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus bin Abdul A'la read to me, Ibn Wahb told us, Ziyad bin Yunus told us, Nafi' bin Abi Na'im told us, he said: He sent to one of the caliphs the copy of the Qur'an of Uthman bin Affan to fix it, Ziyad said: So I said to him: People say that his copy of the Qur'an was in his lap when he was killed and blood fell on God will suffice you against them, and He is the All-Hearing, the All-Knowing. Nafi' said: My eyes saw the blood on this verse, and it has been presented. And his saying the dye of God, Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: the religion of God, and this is also narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Abu Al-Aliyah, Ikrimah, Ibrahim, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, Abdullah bin Kathir, Atiyah Al-Awfi, Ar-Rabi' bin Anas, and As-Suddi, and something similar to that. And the accusative of the dye of God is either for incitement like his saying the nature of God, meaning adhere to that, and some of them said: instead of his saying the religion of Ibrahim. And Sibawayh said: It is a confirmed source that is accusative for his saying We believe in God, like his saying the promise of God, and it was mentioned in a hadith narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated from Ash'ath ibn Ishaq from Sa'id ibn Jubayr from Ibn Abbas that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The Children of Israel said: O Messenger of God, does your Lord dye? He said: Fear God. Then his Lord called out to him: O Moses, they asked you: Does your Lord dye? Say: Yes, I dye colors: red, white, and black, and all colors are from my dye." And God revealed to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The dye of God, and who is better than God at dyeing? This is how it appears in the narration of Ibn Mardawayh, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, and in the narration of Ibn Abi Hatim it is with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, and this is more likely if its chain of transmission is sound, and God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 138- The dye of God Al-Akhfash and others said: meaning the religion of God. He said: It is in the accusative case as a substitute for religion, as Al-Farra' said. And he said in Al-Kashaf: It is a confirmed source in the accusative case for his saying: We believe in God just as -God's promise- was in the accusative case for what preceded it, and it is a verb from sabagh like jalsah from jals, and it is the state in which dyeing occurs, and the meaning is the purification of God because faith is the purification of souls, and this is what Sibawayh said: meaning it is a confirmed source. And the commentators mentioned that the origin of that is that the Christians used to dye their children in water, which is what they call baptism, and they made that a purification for them, so if they did that they said now he has become a true Christian, so God responded to them by saying: The dye of God meaning Islam, and he called it dye as a metaphor, and from it is the saying of some of the poets of Hamdan:

Every people have a different color and Hamdan is the best color.

We dyed our children on that, so He honored us by dyeing us in dyeing

It was said: The dye is the bathing for those who want to enter Islam instead of Christian baptism, as mentioned by Al-Mawardi. Al-Jawhari said: The dye of God is His religion, and this supports what was mentioned above by Al-Farra. It was also said: The dye is circumcision.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

138- The Almighty's saying: The dye of God: Ibn Abbas said in the narration of Al-Kalbi, Qatada and Al-Hasan: The religion of God, and He called it a dye because the effect of religion appears on the religious person just as the effect of dye appears on the garment, and it was said because the religious person adheres to it and does not leave it, just as dye adheres to the garment, and Mujahid said: The nature of God, and it is close to the first, and it was said: The Sunnah of God, and it was said: He meant by it circumcision because it dyes its owner with blood, Ibn Abbas said: It is that when a child is born to one of the Christians and seven days pass, they immerse him in their yellow water called the baptismal water and dye him with it to purify him with that water in place of circumcision, and when they do that to him they say: Now he has become a true Christian, so God informed that his religion is Islam, not what the Christians do, and it is an accusative of enticement meaning adhere to the religion of God, Al-Akhfash said it is a substitute for His saying the religion of Abraham And who is better than God in dyeing in religion, and it was said: in purification, And we are His worshippers obedient.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

138- The dye of God meaning God dyed us with His dye, which is the nature of God Almighty upon which He created people, for it is the adornment of man just as the dye is the adornment of the dyed, or God guided us with His guidance and guided us with His proof, or He purified our hearts with faith with His purification, and He called it a dye because the dye appeared on the dyed, and it entered their hearts as dye enters a garment, or for similarity, for the Christians used to dip their children in yellow water which they called baptism and they said: It is a purification for them and by it their Christianity is confirmed, and it was put in the accusative case as a source confirming His saying We believe, and it was said as an enticement, and it was said as a substitute for the religion of Abraham, peace be upon him.

And who is better than God at dyeing? There is no dye like His dyeing. And we are His worshippers. This is an allusion to them, meaning we do not associate anything with Him as you associate anything with Him. It is in apposition to We believe, and that requires His saying the dye of God to enter into the object of say. And for those who make it an incitement or a substitute, they should imply say in apposition to adhere, or follow

The dye of Allah, and who is better than Allah at dyeing? And we are His worshippers.

the religion of Abraham. And say we believe is in apposition to follow, so that there is no need for disjointed structure or poor arrangement.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:139

Say: Do you argue with us about God while He is our Lord and your Lord? And to us are our deeds, and to you are your deeds, and we are sincere to Him?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Say to them Do you argue with us dispute with us about God that He chose a prophet from among the Arabs and He is our Lord and your Lord so He has the right to choose whomever He wills and to Us are our deeds we will be rewarded for them and to You are your deeds you will be rewarded for them so it is not far-fetched that there is in our deeds what we deserve honor for and we are sincere to Him religion and work without you so we are more deserving of being chosen and the hamza is for denial and the three sentences are states

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty means by the dye the dye of Islam. This is because when the Christians wanted to convert their children to Christianity, they put them in their water, claiming that this was a sanctification for them, similar to the ritual bath for Muslims, and that it was a dye for them in Christianity.

God Almighty said when they said to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his believing companions: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided. Say to them, O Muhammad: O Jews and Christians, rather follow the religion of Abraham, the dye of God which is the best dye, for it is the pure, Muslim faith, and abandon polytheism with God and straying from the path of His guidance.

The dye is placed in the accusative case by reading it in the accusative case, in response to the religion. Likewise, the dye is raised by raising the religion, in response to it.

It may be permissible to raise it in a way other than this. That is on the beginning, meaning: it is the dye of God.

It may be permissible to use it in a way other than responding to the religion, but according to his saying: Say, 'We believe in God' to his saying and we are Muslims to Him, "the dye of God," meaning: we believe in this faith, so faith then is the dye of God.

And a group of interpreters said the same thing as we said about the interpretation of dye.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: The dye of God, and who is better than God at dyeing? The Jews dye their children as Jews, and the Christians dye their children as Christians, and the dye of God is Islam. So there is no dye better than Islam, nor purer, and it is the religion of God with which He sent Noah and the prophets after him.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Ata' said: The dye of God, the Jews dyed their children, they went against the natural disposition.

The interpreters differed in their interpretation of his saying: The dye of God. Some of them said: The religion of God.

Mention of those who said that: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, regarding his statement: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God, And who is better than God at dyeing, and who is better than God at religion.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similarly.

Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Fadil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Atiyah, regarding his statement: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God.

Musa bin Harun told us, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: The dye of God, and who is better than God at dyeing? He said: The religion of God, and who is better than God at religion.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding God's statement: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God.

Ibn Al-Barqi told me, he said, Amr bin Abi Salamah told us, he said, I asked Ibn Zayd about the statement of God: The dye of God, and he mentioned something similar.

Others said: The dye of God, the nature of God.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: The dye of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:139

Say: Do you argue with us about Allah while He is our Lord and your Lord? And to us are our deeds, and to you are your deeds, and we are sincere to Him?

God, he said: The nature of God upon which He created people.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Harb told us, he said, Ibn Lahī'ah told us, on the authority of Ja'far bin Rabi'ah, on the authority of Mujahid: And who is better than God at dyeing? He said: The dye is the natural disposition.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: The dye of God means Islam, the nature of God upon which He created people. Ibn Jurayj said: Abdullah bin Kathir said to me: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God, and who is better than God in religion? He said: It is the nature of God.

Whoever said this statement, directed the dye to the nature, so its meaning is: Rather, we follow the nature of God and His religion upon which He created His creation, and that is the upright religion. From the saying of God Almighty: Creator of the heavens and the earth (al-An'am 6:14). Meaning the Creator of the heavens and the earth.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And we are His worshippers.

Abu Ja'far said: The words of God, the Most High: And we are His worshippers, are a command from God, the Most High, to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to say to the Jews and Christians, who said to him and to those of his companions who followed him: Be Jews or Christians. So He said to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: Say: Rather, we follow the religion of Abraham, the upright one, the dye of God, and we are His worshippers. Meaning: the religion of those who submit to God, who are submissive to Him, in following the religion of Abraham, and in our belief in Him in that, not being arrogant in following His command, and acknowledging the message of His Messengers, as the Jews and Christians were arrogant, so they disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, out of arrogance, transgression, and envy.

God Almighty said: "Say: Do you argue with us about God while He is our Lord and your Lord? For us are our deeds, and for you are your deeds, and we are sincere to Him."

Al-Hasan said: The argument was that they said: We are closer to God than you, because we are the sons of God and His beloved. It was also said: Because of the precedence of our fathers and our books, and because we did not worship idols. So the meaning of the verse is: Say to them, O Muhammad, that is, say to these Jews and Christians who claimed that they are the sons of God and His beloved and claimed that they are closer to God than you because of the precedence of their fathers and their books: Do you argue with us?

That is, do you seek from us the proof for your claim and the Lord and the challenge, and everyone is rewarded according to his deeds, so what effect does the precedence of the religion have? The meaning of in God means in His religion and closeness to Him and favor for Him. The reading of the group is: Do you argue with us? It is permissible to combine two similar letters of the same type with vowels, because the second is like a separate letter. Ibn Muhaisin read atahajawuna with assimilation because of the combination of similar letters. Al-Nahhas said: This is permissible except that it is contrary to the majority. It is permissible to say atahajawuna by deleting the second nun, as Nafi' read fa bima tabashrun What do you give good tidings of?

God the Almighty said: And We are sincere to Him meaning sincere in worship, and it contains the meaning of rebuke, meaning that you have not been sincere, so how do you claim what We are from you? Sincerity in reality is purifying the action from the observation of creation, "The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: God the Almighty says: I am the best partner, so whoever associates a partner with Me, he is for My partner. O people, make your deeds sincere for God the Almighty, for God the Almighty does not accept anything except that which is sincere for Him. And do not say: This is for God and for the womb, for they are for the womb and God has nothing of them. And do not say: This is for God and for your faces, for they are for your faces and God the Almighty has nothing of them." Narrated by Ad-Dahhak bin Qais Al-Fihri, who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: ... and he mentioned it. Ad-Darqutni included it. Ruwaym said: Sincerity in action is that its doer does not want any compensation for it in the two abodes or a share from the two angels. Al-Junayd said: "Sincerity is a secret between the servant and God. No angel knows it to write it down, no devil to corrupt it, and no desire to make it sway." Abu al-Qasim al-Qushayri and others reported that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I asked Gabriel about sincerity, what it is. He said: I asked the Lord of Glory about sincerity, what it is. He said: It is a secret of my secrets that I have entrusted to the heart of the one of my servants whom I love."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, guiding His Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, to avoid arguing with the polytheists: "Say: Do you argue with us about God?" That is, do you debate with us about the oneness of God, sincerity to Him, obedience, following His commands, and abandoning His prohibitions? And He is our Lord and your Lord The One who controls us and you, deserving of sincerity of divinity to Him alone, with no partner for Him. And for Us are our deeds, and for You are your deeds That is, we are innocent of you and what you worship, and you are innocent of us, as He said in the other verse: "And if they deny you, then say: To Me is my work, and to You is your work. You are innocent of what I do, and I am innocent of what you do." And God the Almighty said: "But if they argue with you, then say: I have submitted myself to God, and so have those who follow me." To the end of the verse. And God the Almighty said, informing about Abraham: "And his people argued with him. He said: Do you argue with me about God?" To the end of the verse. And God the Almighty said: Have you not seen the one who argued with Abraham about his Lord? The verse. And He said in this noble verse: And for Us are our deeds, and for You are your deeds, and We are for Him. We are sincere meaning we are innocent of you as you are innocent of us, and we are sincere to Him, meaning in worship and turning to Him. Then God Almighty denied their claim that Abraham and those who were mentioned after him of the prophets and the tribes were of their religion, either Judaism or Christianity, so He said: "Say: Are you more knowledgeable or is God?" meaning rather God knows best. He informed us that they were neither Jews nor Christians, as God Almighty said: "Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim [submitting to God]. And he was not of the polytheists" and the verse that follows it. And His statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: They used to read in the Book of God that came to them that the religion is Islam and that Muhammad is the Messenger of God and that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob and the tribes were innocent of Judaism and Christianity, so they bore witness to that for God, and they acknowledged it for themselves for God, so they concealed God's testimony to them regarding that. His statement: And God is not unaware of what you do is a severe threat and warning, meaning that His knowledge encompasses your knowledge and He will reward you for it. Then the Almighty said: That is a nation that has passed on, meaning that it has gone. Its is what it earned, and yours is what you have earned, meaning their is their deeds, and yours is yours. And you will not be asked about what they used to do. Your affiliation with them without following them will not benefit you. Do not be deceived by merely being related to them until you are obedient like them to the commands of God and follow His messengers who were sent as bearers of good tidings and warners. For whoever disbelieves in one prophet has disbelieved in all the messengers, especially the master of the prophets and the seal of the messengers and the messenger of the Lord of the worlds to all of mankind and jinn who are accountable. May the prayers and peace of God be upon him and upon all of God's prophets, all of them.

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 139- "Say: Do you argue with us about God?" That is, do you argue with us about God: that is, about His religion, closeness to Him, and favor with Him? This is like their saying: We are the sons of God and His beloved. Ibn Muhaisin read Do you argue with us with assimilation due to the meeting of the two similar letters. And His statement: And He is our Lord and your Lord That is, we and you share in His Lordship over us and our servitude to Him, so how do you claim that you are more deserving of Him than we are and argue with us about that? And His statement: For us are our deeds and for you are your deeds That is, for us are deeds and for you are deeds, so you are not more deserving of God than us. This is like His statement, the Most High: "Then say: To me is my work, and to you is your work. You are innocent of what I do, and I am innocent of what you do." His statement: And we are sincere to Him means that we are the people of sincerity in worship, unlike you, and this is the standard by which differentiation takes place and the characteristic by which the one who possesses it is more deserving of God Almighty than anyone else. So how do you claim for yourselves what we are more deserving of and more worthy of than you? In it is a rebuke to them and an end to what they have come with in terms of argument and debate.

139- Say O Muhammad to the Jews and Christians Do you argue with us about God? meaning about the religion of God? Argumentation means disputing about God to show the proof, because they said that the prophets were from us and of our religion, and our religion is the most correct, so we are more deserving of God than you. So God Almighty said: Say, Do you argue with us about God? "And He is our Lord and your Lord" meaning we and you are equal in God, for He is our Lord and your Lord. "And for us are our deeds, and for you are your deeds meaning each one will receive the reward for his deeds, so how do you claim that you are more deserving of God? And we are sincere to Him" while you are polytheists.

Saeed bin Jubair said: Sincerity is for the servant to sincerely dedicate his religion and his work to God, not associating partners with Him in his religion, and not showing off with his work. Al-Fudayl said: Abandoning work for the sake of people is showing off, and working for the sake of people is polytheism, and sincerity is for God to save you from both.

139- "Say: Do you argue with us? About God?" About His affair and His choosing a prophet from among the Arabs rather than you? It was narrated that the People of the Book said: All the prophets are from us. If I were a prophet, you would be from us. So the verse was revealed: "And He is our Lord and your Lord." He has no special status over any people. He bestows His mercy upon whomever He wills of His servants. "And for us are our deeds, and for you are your deeds." It is not far-fetched that He honors us with our deeds, as if He obligated them to adhere to every doctrine they adopt, in order to silence and rebuke them. For the honor of prophethood is either a favor from God to whomever He wills, and everyone is equal in it, or it is the bestowal of a right upon those who are prepared for it by persevering in obedience and adorning themselves with sincerity. Just as you have deeds that God may consider in giving them, we also have deeds. "And we are sincere to Him," monotheists, singling Him out with faith and obedience rather than you.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:140

Or do you say that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes were Jews or Christians? Say, Are you more knowing, or is God? And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? And God is not unaware of what you do.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Or rather do you say with the taa and the yaa that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes were Jews or Christians? Say to them Do you know better or does God meaning God knows best, and Abraham disavowed it by saying {Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian} and those mentioned with him were subordinate to him And who is more unjust than he who conceals conceals from the people a testimony he has that is from God meaning no one is more unjust than him and they are the Jews who concealed God's testimony in the Torah to Abraham regarding the monotheism And God is not unaware of what you do a threat to them

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: "Say: Do you argue with us about God?" Say, O Muhammad, to the community of Jews and Christians, who said to you and your companions: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided. They claimed that their religion is better than your religion, and their book is better than your book, because it was before your book, and they claimed that for that reason they are more deserving of God than you: Do you argue with us about God, while He is our Lord and your Lord? In His hand are good things, and to Him is reward and punishment, and recompense for good and bad deeds, so you claim that you are more deserving of God than we are, because your Prophet was before our Prophet, and your book was before our book, and your Lord and our Lord are one, and that each group of us has what he has done and acquired of good and bad deeds, and he is rewarded for the best of them, so he is rewarded or punished, not for lineage and precedence of religion and book.

What he means by his saying: "Say: Do you argue with us?" Say: Do you quarrel with us and argue with us? As Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said: Abu Asim told us, he said: Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: "Say: Do you argue with us about God?" Say: Do you quarrel with us?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: Say, 'Do you argue with us?' Do you quarrel with us?

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Do you argue with us? Do you debate with us?

As for his saying: And we are sincere to Him, it means: And we are sincere to God in worship and obedience, we do not associate anything with Him, and we do not worship anyone other than Him, just as the idolaters worshipped idols with Him, and the owners of the calf worshipped the calf with Him.

This is from God, the Most High, as a rebuke to the Jews and an argument for the people of faith, in His saying, the Most High, to the believers from the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: Say, O believers, to the Jews and Christians who said to you: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided: Do you argue with us about God? He means by His saying: about God, about the religion of God that He has commanded us to adhere to, and our Lord and your Lord are one, just and do not wrong, and He only rewards the servants for what they have earned. And you claim that you are closer to God than we are, because your religion, your Book, and your Prophet have been ancient, and we are sincere in worshipping Him, and we have not associated anything with Him, but you have associated others in your worship of Him, so some of you worshipped the calf, and some of you worshipped the Messiah, so how can you be better than us and closer to God than us?

The Almighty said: Or do you say meaning they said, and Hamza, Al-Kisa'i and Asim read in the narration of Hafs you say with a ta, and it is a good reading, because the speech is consistent, as if the meaning is: Do you argue with us about God or do you say that the prophets were of your religion? So it is the connected umm, and according to the reading of those who read it with a disconnected ya, so it would be two statements and umm would mean rather. Hud is the predicate of kana and the predicate of in in the sentence. And it is permissible in places other than the Qur'an to raise Hud as the predicate of in, and kana would be cancelled, as mentioned by Al-Nahhas.

God Almighty says: "Say: Are you more knowing or is God?" This is a confirmation and rebuke of their claim that they were Jews or Christians. God responded to them by saying that He knows them better than you do, meaning that they were neither Jews nor Christians.

God the Almighty said: And who is more unjust? The wording is a question, and the meaning is: No one is more unjust. than he who conceals testimony meaning their knowledge that the prophets were Muslims. It was said: what they concealed of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was said by Qatada, and the first is more similar to the context of the verse. And God is not unaware of what you do is a warning and notification that He did not leave their affair in vain and that He will reward them for their deeds. The unaware is the one who does not pay attention to matters out of negligence on his part. It is taken from the word ghafl which means a land that is known but has no trace of cultivation. A ghafl camel

Or do you say that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes were Jews or Christians? Say, "Are you more knowing, or is Allah?" And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from Allah? And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

means that it has no mark. A ghafl man means that he has not experienced matters. Al-Kisa'i said: A ghafl land that has not rained. Ghaflat al-al-shay' I neglected something means I neglected it while remembering you.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, guiding His Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, to avoid arguing with the polytheists: "Say: Do you argue with us about God?" That is, do you debate with us about the oneness of God, sincerity to Him, obedience, following His commands, and abandoning His prohibitions? And He is our Lord and your Lord The One who controls us and you, deserving of sincerity of divinity to Him alone, with no partner for Him. And for Us are our deeds, and for You are your deeds That is, we are innocent of you and what you worship, and you are innocent of us, as He said in the other verse: "And if they deny you, then say: To Me is my work, and to You is your work. You are innocent of what I do, and I am innocent of what you do." And God the Almighty said: "But if they argue with you, then say: I have submitted myself to God, and so have those who follow me." To the end of the verse. And God the Almighty said, informing about Abraham: "And his people argued with him. He said: Do you argue with me about God?" To the end of the verse. And God the Almighty said: Have you not seen the one who argued with Abraham about his Lord? The verse. And He said in this noble verse: And for Us are our deeds, and for You are your deeds, and We are for Him. We are sincere meaning we are innocent of you as you are innocent of us, and we are sincere to Him, meaning in worship and turning to Him. Then God Almighty denied their claim that Abraham and those who were mentioned after him of the prophets and the tribes were of their religion, either Judaism or Christianity, so He said: "Say: Are you more knowledgeable or is God?" meaning rather God knows best. He informed us that they were neither Jews nor Christians, as God Almighty said: "Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim [submitting to God]. And he was not of the polytheists" and the verse that follows it. And His statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: They used to read in the Book of God that came to them that the religion is Islam and that Muhammad is the Messenger of God and that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob and the tribes were innocent of Judaism and Christianity, so they bore witness to that for God, and they acknowledged it for themselves for God, so they concealed God's testimony to them regarding that. His statement: And God is not unaware of what you do is a severe threat and warning, meaning that His knowledge encompasses your knowledge and He will reward you for it. Then the Almighty said: That is a nation that has passed on, meaning that it has gone. Its is what it earned, and yours is what you have earned, meaning their is their deeds, and yours is yours. And you will not be asked about what they used to do. Your affiliation with them without following them will not benefit you. Do not be deceived by merely being related to them until you are obedient like them to the commands of God and follow His messengers who were sent as bearers of good tidings and warners. For whoever disbelieves in one prophet has disbelieved in all the messengers, especially the master of the prophets and the seal of the messengers and the messenger of the Lord of the worlds to all of mankind and jinn who are accountable. May the prayers and peace of God be upon him and upon all of God's prophets, all of them.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 140- Or do they say? Hamzah, Al-Kisa'i, and Asim read in the narration of Hafs you say with the upper ta', and according to this reading, the am here is equivalent to the hamzah in his saying: Do you argue with us? meaning, do you argue with us about God, or do you say that these prophets are of your religion? And according to the reading with the lower ya', it is a disconnected am: meaning, rather, they say. And his saying: Say, Are you more knowledgeable or God? In it is a rebuke and rebuke: meaning, God informed us that they were neither Jews nor Christians, and you claim that they were Jews or Christians, so are you more knowledgeable or God, glory be to Him. His statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? It is possible that what he means by that is to criticize the People of the Book because they know that these prophets were neither Jews nor Christians, but rather they were of the Islamic faith, so they wronged themselves by concealing this testimony, and even by claiming something that contradicts it, and this is a greater sin than someone who merely conceals it, for no one is more unjust than him. It is possible that what is meant is that if the Muslims concealed this testimony, no one would be more unjust than them, and what is meant by that is to insinuate the People of the Book. It was said that what is meant here is what they concealed of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. In His statement: And God is not unaware of what you do, there is a severe threat and a warning that cannot be added, and a notification that God, the Exalted, will not leave them alone in punishment for this ugly injustice and terrible sin.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

140- The Almighty's saying: Or do you say? meaning: Do you say, an interrogative phrase and its meaning is rebuke. Ibn Amir, Hamza, Al-Kisa'i and Hafs read with the letter ta' because of the Almighty's saying: "Say:

Do you argue with us about God?" and after that He said: "Say: Are you more knowledgeable or is God?" and the others read with the letter ya' meaning the Jews and Christians say: "Indeed, Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob and the tribes were Jews or Christians. Say: "O Muhammad, are you more knowledgeable" about their religion or is God? and God the Almighty has informed us that Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but rather he was a monotheist, a Muslim. And who is more unjust than he who conceals conceals a testimony he has from God which is their knowledge that Abraham and his sons were Muslims and that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the truth and a messenger whom God testified to in their books. And God is not unaware of what you do.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

140- Or do you say that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes were Jews or Christians? The am is disconnected and the hamza is for denial. According to Ibn Amir, Hamza, Al-Kisa'i, and Hafz with the ta, it is possible that it is equivalent to the hamza in Do you argue with us, meaning which of the two matters do you argue with, or claim Judaism or Christianity against the prophets. Say, Are you more knowing or is God? The two matters were denied from Abraham by saying: Abraham was neither a Jew nor a Christian and it was argued against by saying: And the Torah and the Gospel were not revealed until after him. And those who are conjoined with him are his followers in religion according to agreement. And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? meaning God to Abraham about monotheism and innocence from Judaism and Christianity, and the meaning is that no one is more unjust than the People of the Book, because they concealed this testimony. Or from us if we concealed this testimony, and in it is an allusion to their concealing God's testimony for Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, regarding his prophethood in their books and elsewhere, and from is for beginning as in the Almighty's saying: Disavowal from God and His Messenger. "And God is not unaware of what you do" is a warning to them, and it was read with the letter ya.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:141

Something similar has been presented.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: There are two interpretations of the reading of this. One of them is: Or do you say with the letter ta'. Whoever reads it like this, its interpretation is: Say, O Muhammad, to those who say to you from the Jews and Christians: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided: Do you argue with us about God, or do you say that Abraham? So that is conjoined with his saying: Do you argue with us about God? The other interpretation is: Or do they say with the letter ya'. Whoever reads it like this interprets his saying: Or do they say that he invented it? 32:3, and as it is said: It is camels or sheep. And he made it a renewed question because of the arrival of a renewed predicate, as it is said: Do you stand or does your brother stand? So his saying: Or does your brother stand becomes a renewed predicate for a sentence that is not from the first, and a starting question. If it was a sequence of the first question, it would have been report about the first, so it would have been said: Are you standing or sitting?

Some Arabists have claimed that if this is read in this way with the letter ya, then if what comes after am is a complete sentence, then it is an appositive to the first question. Because the meaning of the statement is: It was said: Which of these two matters will happen? This or that?

Abu Ja'far said: The correct reading in our view is: Or do you say with a ta' without a ya', in apposition to His statement: Say, do you argue with us? meaning: Which of these two matters do you do? Do you argue with us about the religion of God, claiming that you are more deserving than us and more guided than us in path, and that our affair and your affair are as we have described, as we have explained previously? Or do you claim that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and those whom God has named, were Jews or Christians following your religion, so that people can be justified in your slander and lies? Because Judaism and Christianity came after those whom God named from among His prophets. It is not permissible to read that with a ya', because it is an anomaly from the reading of the reciters.

This verse is also a protest from God, the Most High, to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, against the Jews and Christians, whose stories God mentioned. God says to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: Say, O Muhammad, to these Jews and Christians: Do you argue with us about God, and claim that your religion is better than our religion, and that you are on guidance and we are on misguidance, with a proof from God, the Most High, so you call us to your religion? Then produce your proof for that so that we may follow you in it. Or do you say: Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes were Jews or Christians following your religion? Then produce proof for what you claim, so that we may believe you, for God has made them leaders to be followed.

Then the Almighty said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Say to them, O Muhammad, if they claim that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes were Jews or Christians: Are you more knowledgeable about them and what religions they followed, or is God?

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God?

Abu Ja'far said: It means: If the Jews and Christians, who said to you and your companions, Be Jews or Christians, claim, O Muhammad, that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes were Jews or Christians, then who is more unjust than them? He says: And who is more unjust than them? And they concealed a testimony they had from God that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes were Muslims, so they concealed that and attributed to them Judaism and Christianity. The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that: Muhammad ibn 'Amr told me, he said, Abu 'Asim told us, he said, 'Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God, he said: In the statement of the Jews to Abraham, Ishmael, and those mentioned with them, that they were Jews or Christians. So God says: Do not conceal from Me a testimony if you have it about them. And He knows that they are liars.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God, in what the Jews said to Abraham and Ishmael and those mentioned with them: that they were Jews or Christians. So God said to them: Do not conceal from Me the testimony concerning them, if you have it concerning them. And God knew that they were liars.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Ishaq told me, on the authority of Abu Al-Ashhab, on the authority of Al-Hasan that he recited this verse: Or do you say that Abraham and Ishmael until His saying: "Say: Are you more knowing or is God? And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God?"

Al-Hasan said: By God, the people had a testimony from God that His prophets were innocent of Judaism and Christianity, just as the people had a testimony from God that your wealth and blood are forbidden among you, so how did they make them permissible?

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? The People of the Book concealed Islam, even though they knew that it was the religion of God, and they found it written in their Torah and Gospel: they were neither Jews nor Christians, and Judaism and Christianity came after them by a time.

Rather, God Almighty meant by this that if the Jews and Christians claimed that Abraham and those named with him in this verse were Jews or Christians, it would become clear to the polytheists who are their supporters that they were lying and that they were falsely claiming against God's prophets, because Judaism and Christianity occurred after them. And if they denied that Judaism and Christianity were theirs, it would be said to them: Then come to the religion they were upon, for we and you both acknowledge that they were upon the truth, and we differ in what contradicted the religion they were upon.

Others said: Rather, what God Almighty meant by His saying: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God, is the Jews in their concealment of the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood, and they know that and find it in their books.

Mention of those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Or do you say that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes were Jews or Christians? Those are the People of the Book who concealed Islam while they knew that it was the religion of God, and they adopted Judaism and Christianity, and they concealed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, while they knew that he was the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. They find him written with them in the Torah and the Gospel.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God? He said: The testimony, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is written down with them, and it is what they concealed.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similar to the hadith of Bishr bin Mu'adh, on the authority of Yazid.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God, he said: They are Jews, they ask about the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and about his description in the Book of God that they have, so they conceal the description.

Abu Ja'far said: We chose the statement we made in interpreting that because the words of God Almighty: And who is more unjust than he who conceals a testimony he has from God, come after the story of those whom God named from among His prophets, and before His story for them. So it is more appropriate for what is between that to be from their stories rather than others.

If someone says: What testimony do the Jews and Christians have from God regarding Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes?

It was said: The testimony they have from God regarding their matter is what God revealed to them in the Torah and the Gospel, and He commanded them in them to follow their Sunnah and their religion, and that they were monotheists and Muslims. It is the testimony they have from God that they concealed, when the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called them to Islam, and they said to him: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian (al-Baqarah 2:111).

), and they said to him and his companions: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided. So God revealed these verses about them, in their denial, their concealment of the truth, and their false and fabricated slander against God's prophets.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And God is not unaware of what you do.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by that: And say to these Jews and Christians, who argue with you, O Muhammad: And God is not unaware of what you do, of your concealing the truth in what He obligated you to explain to the people in His Book regarding the matter of Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes in the matter of Islam, and that they were Muslims, and that the Muslim Hanifiyah is the religion of God that all creation must adhere to, excluding Judaism, Christianity, and other religions. And He is not afraid of punishing you for your actions, but He is testing you so that He may reward you with the reward that you are worthy of in this world and the hereafter. So He rewarded them immediately in this world by killing some of them and expelling them from their homeland and home, and He will reward them in the hereafter with a humiliating punishment.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

He repeated it because it included the meaning of threat and intimidation, meaning that if those prophets were rewarded for their leadership and virtue, then you are more deserving of it, so emphasis was required, and that is why he repeated it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Fath al-Qadir

And He repeated His Almighty saying: 141- That was a nation that has passed on until the end of the verse, to include the meaning of threat and intimidation, which is what is intended in this context.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah regarding his statement: Or were you witnesses? meaning the People of the Book. He also narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: Or were you witnesses? He said: He says that neither the Jews nor the Christians nor any of the people witnessed Jacob when he took a covenant from his sons when death approached him that they would not worship except God, and they acknowledged that and he testified against them that they had acknowledged their worship and that they were Muslims. He narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to say: The grandfather is a father and he recited the verse. He also narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah regarding the verse that he said: The paternal uncle was called a father. He also narrated something similar on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Abdullah bin Suriya Al-A'war said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: There is no guidance except what we are upon, so follow us, O Muhammad, and you will be guided. The Christians said the same, so God revealed about them: And they said, 'Be Jews' 10:10. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement: Hanif that he said: Following. They also narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Hanif he said: A pilgrim. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b who said: The upright Hanif. He also narrated on the authority of Khasif who said: The sincere Hanif. He also narrated on the authority of Abu Qilabah who said: The Hanif is the one who believes in all the Messengers from the first of them to the last of them. Ahmad narrated on the authority of Abu Umamah who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: I was sent with the easy Hanif. Ahmad also narrated, and Bukhari in Al-Adab Al-Mufrad and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: "It was said: O Messenger of God, which religion is most beloved to God? He said: The easy Hanif." Al-Hakim narrated in his history and Ibn Asakir from the hadith of As'ad bin Abdullah bin Malik Al-Khuza'i with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) likewise. Ahmad, Muslim, Abu Dawud and Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to recite in the two rak'ahs of Fajr in the first of them the entire verse in Surat Al-Baqarah "Say: We believe in God" and in the second We believe in God and bear witness that we are Muslims. Al-Bukhari narrated from Abu Hurairah who said: The People of the Book used to read the Torah in Hebrew and explain it to the Muslims in Arabic. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Do not believe the People of the Book nor disbelieve them, but say: We believe in God" (al-An'am 2:17). Ibn Jarir narrated from Ibn Abbas who said: The tribes, the sons of Jacob, were twelve men, each of whom gave birth to a nation of people. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar from Al-Suddi, and Ibn Kathir narrated it in his Tafsir from Abu Al-Aliyah, Al-Rabi' and Qatadah. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Asma' wa Al-Sifat from Ibn Abbas who said: Do not say: If they believe in what you believe in, then there is none like God, but say: If they believe in what you believe in. Ibn Abi Dawud narrated in Al-Masahif and Al-Khatib in his History from Abu Jamrah who said: Ibn Abbas used to recite: If they believe in what you believe in. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu Al-Aliyah regarding His statement: Then they are in dissension, he said: separation. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: The dye of God, he said: The religion of God. Abd ibn Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: The nature of God upon which He created mankind. Ibn Mardawayh and Ad-Dhiya' in Al-Mukhtara narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "The Children of Israel said: O Moses, does your Lord dye? He said: Fear God. His Lord called out to him: O Moses, they asked you, does your Lord dye? Say: Yes, I dye colors, red, white, black, and all colors are in my dye." And God revealed to His Prophet: The dye of God, and who is better than God in dyeing? Ibn Abi Hatim and Abu Al-Shaykh narrated it in Al-Azmah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, with no chain of transmission ending with him. Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatada who said: The Jews dye their children as Jews, and the Christians dye their children as Christians, and the dye of God is Islam, and there is no dye better than the dye of Islam, nor is it purer. It is the religion of God with which He sent Noah and the prophets who came after him. Ibn Al-Najjar narrated in Tarikh Baghdad on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: The dye of God he said: Whiteness. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Do you argue with us? he said: Do you quarrel with us. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority: He said: Do you argue with us? Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: And who is more unjust than he who conceals testimony the verse, he said: Those are the People of the Book who concealed Islam while knowing that it is the religion of God, and adopted Judaism and Christianity, and concealed Muhammad while knowing that he is the Messenger of God. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid something similar. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Khasan something similar. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada and Al-Rabi' regarding his statement: That is a nation that has passed on, he said: He means Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes.

141. "That is a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you earn. And you will not be asked about what they used to do." He repeated it for emphasis.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

141- "That is a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you earn. And you will not be asked about what they used to do." This is a repetition of the exaggeration in warning and deterrence against what has become ingrained in human nature of boasting about one's fathers and relying on them. It was said: The address is to them in what came before, and in this verse there is a warning for us against following their example. It was also said: What is meant by the nation in the first is the prophets, and in the second is the ancestors of the Jews and Christians.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

The fools the ignorant among the people the Jews and the polytheists (will say: What has turned them) what is it that has turned the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the believers from their qiblah which they used to face facing it in prayer, which is the Holy House in Jerusalem, and the use of the letter seen indicating facing is from informing about the unseen (Say: To God belong the east and the west) meaning all directions, so he commands facing in whichever direction he wishes, with no objection to him He guides whom He wills His guidance to a straight path way of the religion of Islam meaning and you are among them. This is indicated by:

The Almighty said: The foolish among the people will say: The verses Ibn Ishaq said: Ismail bin Abi Khalid told me on the authority of Abu Ishaq on the authority of Al-Baraa' who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray towards the Holy House and would often look at the sky to see the command of God. Then God revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven. We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face towards Al-Masjid Al-Haram. A man from among the Muslims said: We wish we knew the knowledge of those who died among us before we were turned towards the qiblah, and how about our prayer towards the Holy House. Then God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. And the foolish among the people said: What has turned them away from the qiblah which they used to face? Then God revealed: The foolish among the people will say: To the end of the verse. There are chains of transmission similar to it. In the two Sahihs on the authority of Al-Baraa: Men died facing the qiblah before the qiblah was turned and were killed, so we did not know what to say about them. Then God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi with his chains of transmission that he said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned towards the Kaaba after his prayer towards the Holy House, the polytheists of Mecca said: Muhammad is confused about his religion, so he turned his qiblah towards you, and he knew that you were more guided than him in the path, and that he was about to enter your religion. So God revealed the verse: So that the people will have no argument against you.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: That is a nation, Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes, as: Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatada, that God Almighty said: That is a nation that has passed on, meaning: Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abdullah bin Abi Jaafar told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', similarly.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously explained that the nation is the group.

The meaning of the verse is: Say, O Muhammad, to those who dispute with you about God from among the Jews and Christians, if they conceal what they have of testimony regarding the matter of Abraham and those We named with him, and that they were Muslims, and they claim that they were Jews or Christians, then they lie: Indeed, Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes are a nation that has passed away - that is, they have gone on their way and turned to their Lord, and have passed away with their deeds and hopes, they have with God what they earned of good in the days of their lives, and they are against what they have acquired of evil, nothing will benefit them except their good deeds, and nothing will harm them except their bad deeds. So know this, O Jews and Christians, for if these are the ones in whom you boast, and you claim that through them you hope to be saved from the punishment of your Lord, with your evil deeds and great sins, nothing will benefit them with God except what they have presented of good deeds, and nothing will harm them except what they have presented of bad deeds, then you are more deserving that nothing will benefit you with God except what you have presented of good deeds, and nothing will harm you except what they have presented of bad deeds. So beware of yourselves, and hasten to leave them with repentance and turning to God for what you are upon of disbelief, misguidance, and slander against God and His prophets and messengers, and abandon relying on the virtues of your fathers and grandfathers, for you will have what you have earned, and you will be liable for what you have acquired, and you will not be asked about the deeds that Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the tribes did, because every soul that comes before God on the Day of Resurrection will only be asked about what it has earned and what it has sent forward, not what others sent forward.

Part one is done

And the second part will follow, God willing.

The first: The statement on the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: The foolish among the people will say

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "The foolish among the people will say, 'What has turned them away from the qiblah which they used to face?' Say, 'To God belong the east and the west. He guides whom He wills to a straight path.'"

There is one issue:

First: The Almighty's saying: The foolish among the people will say. God the Almighty knows that they will say about the believers' conversion from Ash-Sham to the Kaaba: What has turned them away? And will say means said. He made the future tense the place of the past, indicating the continuity of that and that they will continue with that saying. He specified by His saying: of the people because foolishness can be in inanimate objects and animals. What is meant by fools is all those who say what has turned them away. Fools are a plural, the singular of which is safiyah, which means light-minded, from their saying: a lightly woven garment, as mentioned earlier. Women are safiyah. Al-Mu'arraj said: The fool is the liar who deliberately goes against what he knows. Qatrab: the unjust and ignorant. What is meant by fools here are the Jews in Madinah, as Mujahid said. As-Suddi: the hypocrites. Az-Zajaj: the infidels of Quraysh, when they denied the conversion of the Qiblah, they said: Muhammad longs for his birth and will soon return to your religion. The Jews said: His matter has become confusing and bewildered for him. The hypocrites said: What turned them away from their Qiblah? And they mocked the Muslims. And turning them away means turning them away and diverting them.

Second: The imams narrated, and the wording is Malik's, on the authority of Ibn Omar, who said:

While the people were praying Fajr in Quba, someone came to them and said: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) has received a Qur'an tonight, and he has been commanded to face the Kaaba, so they faced it. Their faces were towards Ash-Sham, so they turned towards the Kaaba. Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Al-Bara' that the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months, and he liked that his qiblah should be towards the Kaaba. The first prayer he prayed was the 'Asr prayer, and some people prayed with him. A man who had prayed with the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) came out and passed by the people of the mosque while they were bowing and said: I bear witness by God that I prayed with the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) towards Makkah. So they turned as they were towards the Kaaba. The ones who died facing the qiblah before it was changed to face the Kaaba were men who were killed, and we did not know what to say about them. Then God the Almighty revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. In this narration, it is the 'Asr prayer, and in the narration of Malik, it is the Fajr prayer. It was said: This was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the mosque of Bani Salamah while he was praying the noon prayer after two rak'ahs of it, so he turned during the prayer, and that mosque was called the Mosque of the Two Qiblas. Abu al-Faraj mentioned that Ibad ibn Nahik was with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in this prayer. Abu Omar mentioned in al-Tamhid on the authority of Nuwaylah bint Aslam, who was one of those who pledged allegiance, she said:

We were praying the noon prayer when Abbad bin Bishr bin Qayzi came and said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, has faced the qiblah - or he said: the Sacred House - so the men moved to the women's places, and the women moved to the men's places. It was said: The verse was revealed in a prayer other than that, and this is most likely. The first prayer towards the Kaaba was the afternoon prayer, and God knows best. It was narrated:

"The first person to pray facing the Kaaba when the qibla was changed from Jerusalem was Abu Saeed bin Al-Mu'alla. He was passing by the mosque and heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressing the people about changing the qibla from the pulpit while he was reciting this verse: 'We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven' until he finished the verse. So I said to my companion: 'Come, let us pray two rak'ahs before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, descends so that we will be the first to pray.' So we hid ourselves behind a camel and prayed them. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, descended and led the people in the noon prayer that day." Abu Omar said: Abu Saeed bin Al-Mu'alla has no other hadith than this one, and the hadith: 'I used to pray' is about the virtue of Al-Fatihah, narrated by Al-Bukhari, and it has been mentioned previously.

Third: There is a difference of opinion regarding the time of the change of the Qiblah after his arrival in Medina. It was said: It was changed after a year, ten months or seventeen.

A month, as in Bukhari. And it was also narrated by Al-Daraqutni on the authority of Al-Baraa, who said:

We prayed with the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) for sixteen months after his arrival in Medina, facing Jerusalem. Then God knew the inclination of His Prophet, so He revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven Al-Masjid an-Nabawi. In this narration, there is no doubt sixteen months. Malik narrated from Yahya ibn Sa'id from Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab that the turning was two months before the Battle of Badr. Ibrahim ibn Ishaq said: That was in Rajab of the year two. Abu Hatim al-Busti said: The Muslims prayed facing Jerusalem for seventeen months and three consecutive days, because his arrival in Medina was on Monday, twelve nights before the end of the month of Rabi' al-Awwal, and God the Almighty commanded him to face the Ka'bah on Tuesday, the fifteenth of Sha'ban.

Fourth: The scholars also differed on how he faced Jerusalem, with three opinions: Al-Hasan said: It was from his opinion and effort, and Ikrimah and Abu

The foolish among the people will say, "What has turned them away from the Qiblah which they used to face?" Say, "To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path."

Al-Aaliyah said it. The second: He was given a choice between it and the Kaaba, so he chose Jerusalem hoping for the Jews to believe and win them over, said Al-Tabari. Al-Zajaj said: As a test for the polytheists because they were accustomed to the Kaaba. The third - which is what the majority say: Ibn Abbas and others - is that he was obliged to face it by the command of God Almighty and His revelation without a doubt, then God abrogated that and commanded him to face the Kaaba in his prayer, and they provided evidence for that with the words of God Almighty: And We did not make the qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn on his heels Al-Akhbar 2:13.

Fifth: They also differed when the prayer was first imposed on him in Mecca, was it towards Jerusalem or towards Mecca? There are two opinions. A group said: towards Jerusalem and in Medina for seventeen months, then God directed him to the Kaaba, as Ibn Abbas said. Others said: The first thing that was imposed on him was towards the Kaaba, and he continued to pray towards it throughout his stay in Mecca in the same way as the prayer of Abraham and Ishmael was. Then when he came to Medina, he prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months, according to the difference of opinion, then God directed him to the Kaaba. Abu Omar said: This is the more correct of the two opinions in my opinion. Another said: That is because when the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) came to Medina, he wanted to renew his faith with the Jews, so he faced their Qiblah so that this would be more conducive to them. But when their stubbornness became clear and he despaired of them, he wanted to move towards the Kaaba, so he looked at the sky. His love for the Kaaba was because it was the Qiblah of Abraham, according to Ibn Abbas. It was said: Because it was more conducive to the Arabs' conversion to Islam, and it was said: To oppose the Jews, according to Mujahid. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah Al-Riyahi that he said: It was the mosque of Salih, peace be upon him, and his qiblah was towards the Kaaba. He said: Moses, peace be upon him, used to pray towards the rock towards the Kaaba, and it is the qiblah of all the prophets, may God's prayers be upon them all.

Sixth: In this verse there is clear evidence that in the rulings of God Almighty and His Book there is abrogating and abrogated, and the nation agreed upon this except for those who deviated, as mentioned above. And the scholars agreed that the qiblah was the first to be abrogated twice, according to one of the two opinions mentioned in the issue before.

Seventh: It also indicates the permissibility of abrogating the Sunnah by the Qur'an, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem, and there is no Qur'an about that, so the ruling was only from the perspective of the Sunnah, then that was abrogated by the Qur'an.

Based on this, I was on it means you are on it.

Eighth: It contains evidence of the permissibility of certainty based on a single report, as facing Jerusalem was a certainty in their Sharia. Then, when the people of Quba came to them and informed them that the qiblah had been changed to the Sacred Mosque, they accepted his words and turned towards the Kaaba, so they abandoned the continuous report based on a single report, which was presumed.

Scholars differed about its permissibility rationally and its occurrence. Abu Hatim said: The preferred opinion is that it is permissible rationally even if the Shari'ah is required to do so, and that it occurred during the time of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) based on the story of Quba' and the fact that he (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to send individual governors to the regions and they would convey all the abrogating and abrogated narrations. However, this is forbidden after his death (peace and blessings of God be upon him), based on the consensus of the Companions that the Qur'an and the known mutawatir narrations cannot be lifted by a single narration, so no one from the early Muslims or later Muslims would permit it. Those who forbade this argued that it leads to the impossible, which is lifting the certain by the conjectural. As for the story of the people of Quba' and the governors of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), it is based on indications that provide knowledge, either through transmission and verification, or through possibility and estimation. The completion of this is a question and answer in the principles of jurisprudence.

Ninth: This is evidence that whoever was not informed of the abrogating act is bound by the first ruling, contrary to those who said: The first ruling is lifted by the existence of the abrogating act, not by knowledge of it. The first is more correct, because the people of Quba continued to pray toward Jerusalem until the one who came and informed them of the abrogating act, so they turned toward the Kaaba. So if the abrogating act occurs in existence, it is inevitably lifted, but on the condition of knowledge of it, because the abrogating act is a statement, and it is not a statement regarding someone who was not informed of it. The benefit of this difference is in acts of worship performed after abrogation and before the statement, whether they are repeated or not. Accordingly, the issue of the agent in his actions after the dismissal of his principal or his death and before his knowledge of that is based on two opinions. The same applies to the one who is in debt, and the ruler if the one he appointed dies or is dismissed. The correct view is that what each of these did is carried out and his ruling is not returned. Judge Iyad said: The school did not differ regarding the rulings of someone who freed a slave without knowing of his emancipation, that they are the rulings of a free man between him and the people, but between him and God the Most High, they are permissible. They did not differ about the freed woman, that she does not repeat what she prayed after her freedom and before she knew about it without covering, but they differed about the one who is affected by a reason that changes the ruling of his worship while he is in it, by analogy to the issue of Quba. So whoever prays in one state and then his state changes before he completes his prayer, he completes it and does not interrupt it, and what he has done is sufficient for him. And likewise, like the one who prays naked and then finds a garment during the prayer, or begins his prayer while healthy and then becomes sick, or while sick and recovers, or while sitting and then is able to stand, or a slave woman who is freed while she is in prayer, she takes her veil and builds.

I said: And as for someone who entered into prayer with tayammum and water came upon him, it does not interrupt his prayer, as Malik and al-Shafi'i - may God have mercy on them - and others say. And it was said: It interrupts his prayer, and this is the opinion of Abu Hanifa - may God Almighty have mercy on him - and it will come.

Tenth: It contains evidence for the acceptance of a single report, which is agreed upon by the predecessors and is known by continuous transmission from the habit of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in directing his governors and messengers individually to the horizons, to teach the people their religion and convey to them the Sunnah of their Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, of commands and prohibitions.

Eleventh: It contains evidence that the Qur'an was revealed to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, little by little and in one situation after another, according to the need for it, until God completed His religion, as He said: This day I have perfected for you your religion.

The Almighty's saying: "Say: To God belong the East and the West." He established an argument, meaning that He owns the East and the West and what is between them, so He has the right to command turning in any direction He wishes, and this has been mentioned previously.

The Almighty's saying: He guides whom He wills is a reference to God Almighty's guidance of this nation to the Qiblah of Abraham, and God Almighty knows best. The path is the road. The straight path is that which has no crookedness, and this has been mentioned previously.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

It was said: What is meant by the fools here are the polytheists of the Arabs, as Al-Zajaj said. It was also said: The Jewish rabbis, as Mujahid said. It was also said: The hypocrites, as Al-Suddi said. The verse is general in all of these, and God knows best. Al-Bukhari said: Abu Naim told us, he heard Zuhair from Abu Ishaq, from Al-Bara' may God be pleased with him: That the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months, and he liked that his qiblah be towards the House, and that he prayed the first prayer he prayed was the afternoon prayer, and some people prayed with him, and a man who was praying with him came out and passed by the people of the mosque while they were bowing, and he said: I bear witness by God that I prayed with the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) towards Mecca, so they turned as they were towards the House, and those who died facing the qiblah before it was changed towards the House were men who were killed and we did not know what to say about them, so God revealed: "And God would not let your faith go to waste. Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful." Al-Bukhari alone transmitted it from this source, and Muslim narrated it from another source, and Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Ismail bin Abi Khalid told me from Abu Ishaq, from Al-Bara', who said: The Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) used to pray towards Jerusalem, and he would often look at the sky awaiting God's command, so God revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven, so We will surely turn you to it. A Muslim man said: We wish we knew the knowledge of those who died among us before we turned toward the qiblah, and how about our prayers toward the Holy House. So God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. And the foolish people, who are the People of the Book, said: What has turned them away from the qiblah they used to face? So God revealed: The foolish people will say to the end of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Al-Hasan bin Atiyah told us, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Baraa', who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had prayed toward the Holy House for sixteen months, and he loved to face toward the Kaaba, so God revealed: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, and We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque." He said: So he faced toward the Kaaba, and the foolish people, who are the Jews, said: What has turned them away from the qiblah they used to face? So God revealed: "Say: To God belongs the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." And Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) when he migrated to Medina, God ordered him to face Jerusalem, so the Jews rejoiced, so the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) faced it for about a month and a half. The Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) loved the direction of Abraham's qiblah, so he used to supplicate to God and look at the sky, so God the Almighty revealed: Then turn your faces toward it, meaning toward it. The Jews were suspicious of that and said: Why did He turn them away from the qiblah they were facing? So God revealed: "Say: To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." Many hadiths have been narrated on this subject, and the gist of the matter is that the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) was ordered to face the rock of Jerusalem, so he was in Mecca praying between the two corners, so the Kaaba would be in front of him while he was facing the rock of Jerusalem. When he migrated to Medina, it was impossible to combine them, so God ordered him to face Jerusalem, Ibn Abbas and the majority said, then these differed, was the order to do so by the Qur'an or by something else according to two opinions? Al-Qurtubi narrated in his interpretation on the authority of Ikrimah, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri: That the direction towards Jerusalem was by his own efforts, peace be upon him. What is meant is that the direction towards Jerusalem after his arrival, peace be upon him, in Medina, and the matter continued like that for several months, and he used to pray and implore a lot that he would be directed towards the Kaaba, which is the qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him. So that was answered and he was ordered to turn towards the ancient house. So the Messenger of God, peace be upon him, addressed the people and informed them of that. The first prayer he prayed towards it was the afternoon prayer, as mentioned in the two Sahihs, the narration of Al-Bara'. And it was mentioned by Al-Nasa'i from the narration of Abu Saeed bin Al-Mu'alla that it was the noon prayer, and he said: I and my companion were the first to pray towards the Kaaba. More than one of the interpreters and others mentioned that the change of the qiblah was revealed to the Messenger of God after he had prayed two rak'ahs of the noon prayer, and that was in the mosque of Bani Salamah, so it was called the mosque of the two qiblahs. And in the hadith of Nuwaylah bint Muslim: That the report of that came to them while they were praying the noon prayer, she said: So the men changed to the place of the women and the women changed to the place of the men. This was mentioned by Sheikh Abu Omar bin Abdul Barr Al-Namri. As for the people of Quba', but the report did not reach them until the dawn prayer of the second day, as it came in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn 'Umar may God be pleased with them both, that he said: While the people were in Quba' praying the dawn prayer, someone came to them and said: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) received a Qur'an tonight and he was commanded to face the Ka'bah, so they faced it. Their faces were towards Ash-Sham, so they turned towards the Ka'bah. This is evidence that the abrogating ruling is not binding until after it is known, even if it was revealed and communicated beforehand, because they were not commanded to repeat the 'Asr, Maghrib and 'Isha' prayers, and God knows best. When this happened, some of the hypocrites, doubters and infidels among the Jews became suspicious, deviated from the right path, and became confused and doubtful, and they said: What has turned them away from the qiblah which they were facing? That is, they said: Why do these people sometimes face this and sometimes face that? So God revealed their answer in His saying: "Say: To God belong the East and the West," meaning the rule, the management and the entire command belong to Him. So wherever you turn, there is the face of God. And Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the East or the West, but righteousness is of him who believes in God, meaning the whole affair is in obeying God's commands. Wherever He directs us, we turn. Obedience is in obeying His command, even if we turn in different directions every day. We are His slaves and at His disposal, and His servants, wherever He directs us, we turn. And He, the Most High, has great care for His slave and Messenger Muhammad, may the prayers and peace of God be upon him and his nation, as He guided them to the Qiblah of Abraham, the Friend of the Most Merciful, and made their turning to the Kaaba, built in His name alone, with no partner for Him, the most honorable of the houses of God on earth, as it is the building of Abraham, the Friend of the Most Merciful, peace be upon him. For this reason He said: "Say: To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path."

Imam Ahmad narrated on the authority of Ali bin Asim, on the authority of Husayn bin Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Amr bin Qais, on the authority of Muhammad bin al-Ash'ath, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, meaning regarding the People of the Book: "They do not envy us for anything as much as they envy us for Friday, to which God has guided us and from which they have gone astray, and for the Qiblah, to which God has guided us and from which they have gone astray, and for our saying behind the imam: 'Amen.'"

And the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. The Almighty says: We only turned you to the Qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, and chose it for you to make you the best of the nations so that you will be witnesses over the nations on the Day of Resurrection, because everyone acknowledges your virtue. The middle here means the best, and the best, as it is said: Quraysh is the middle of the Arabs in lineage and home, meaning the best of them, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was the middle among his people, meaning the most honorable of them in lineage, and from this is the middle prayer which is the best of the prayers, which is the afternoon prayer, as proven in the Sahihs and other books. And when God made this nation the middle, He distinguished it with the most perfect laws, the most correct methods, and the clearest doctrines, as the Almighty said: "He has chosen you and has not placed upon you in religion any difficulty - the religion of your father Abraham. He named you Muslims before and in this, that the Messenger may be a witness over you and you may be witnesses over the people." And Imam Ahmad said: Waki' narrated to us from Al-A'mash from Abu Salih from Abu Sa'id, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Noah will be called on the Day of Resurrection. The Resurrection, and it will be said to him: Did you deliver the message? He will say: Yes. His people will be called and it will be said to them: Did he deliver it to you? They will say: No warner came to us, and no one came to us. It will be said to Nuh 71: Who will bear witness for you? He will say: Muhammad and his nation. He said: This is what God said: {And thus We have made you a just community}. He said: The middle way is justice. So you will be called and you will bear witness for him that you delivered the message, then I will bear witness against you. Narrated by Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah through various chains of transmission on the authority of Al-A'mash. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu Mu'awiyah told us, Al-A'mash told us on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The Prophet will come on the Day of Resurrection with two men or more than that. His people will be called and it will be said: Did this man deliver the message to you? They will say: No. It will be said to him: Did you deliver the message to your people? He will say: Yes. It will be said: Who will bear witness for you? He will say: Muhammad and his nation. Muhammad and his nation will be called and it will be said to them: Did this man deliver the message to his people? They will say: Yes. It will be said: What is your knowledge? They will say: Our Prophet came to us and informed us that the Messengers have conveyed the message." This is what the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community, meaning: just, that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you. Ahmad also said: Abu Mu'awiyah told us, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the Almighty's statement: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: just. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Abd Al-Wahid bin Ziyad from Abu Malik Al-Ashja'i from Al-Mughirah bin Utaybah bin Nabas, a scribe for us told me from Jabir bin Abdullah from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "My nation and I will be on a hill on the Day of Resurrection, overlooking the creation. There is no one among the people who does not wish that he was one of us, and there is no prophet who his people denied except that we bear witness that he has conveyed the message of his Lord, may He be glorified and exalted." Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak and Ibn Mardawayh also, and the wording is his, from the hadith of Mus'ab bin Thabit from Muhammad bin Ka'b Al-Qurazi from Jabir bin Abd God said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) attended a funeral in Banu Maslamah and I was next to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Some of them said: By God, O Messenger of God, what a good man he was! He was chaste and a Muslim and... They spoke well of him. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: You are as you say. The man said: God knows what is hidden, but as for what we saw from him, that is it. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: It is due, it is due. Then he attended a funeral in Banu Haritha and I was next to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Some of them said: O Messenger of God, what a bad man he was if he spoke harshly. They spoke ill of him. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to some of them: You are as you say. The man said: God knows what is hidden, but as for what we saw from him, that is it. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: It is due. Mus'ab ibn Thabit said: Then Muhammad ibn Ka'b said to us: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) spoke the truth. Then he recited: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. Then Al-Hakim said: This is a sound chain of transmission, although they did not include it. Imam Ahmad said: Yunus ibn Muhammad told us: Dawud ibn Abi Al-Furat told us, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Buraydah, on the authority of Abu Al-Aswad, that he said: I came to Madinah and found it a disease had broken out there, and they were dying a terrible death. So I sat with Umar ibn Al-Khattab, and a funeral passed by him, and he praised its owner, so he said: It is due, it is due. Then another passed by and he spoke ill of it, so Umar said: It is due. Abu Al-Aswad said: It is not due, O Commander of the Faithful. He said: I said as the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Any Muslim for whom four people testify to his goodness, God will admit him to Paradise. We said: And three? He said: And three? We said: And two? He said: And two. Then we did not ask him about one. And this is how Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Dawud ibn Abi Al-Furat. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad ibn Uthman ibn Yahya told us, Abu Qilabah al-Raqashi told us, Abu al-Walid told us, Nafi' ibn Umar told us, Umayyah ibn Safwan told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Zuhair al-Thaqafi, on the authority of his father, who said: "I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say about prophecy: 'You will soon know the best of you from the worst of you.' They said: 'How, O Messenger of God?' He said: 'With good praise and bad praise. You are God's witnesses on earth.'" It was narrated by Ibn Majah on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah on the authority of Yazid ibn Harun, and Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Yazid ibn Harun, Abd al-Malik ibn Umar, and Shuraih on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar, on his authority.

And the Almighty said: "And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it is difficult except for those whom God has guided." God the Almighty says: We only prescribed for you, O Muhammad, to face first toward the Holy House, then We turned you away from it to the Kaaba, so that the state of those who follow you and obey you and face with you wherever you face would be made clear, from those who turn back on their heels, that is, apostatize from their religion, even though this act, which is turning the face from the Holy House to the Kaaba, is great in the souls except for those whose hearts God has guided and who are certain of the truth of the Messenger, and that everything he brought is the truth in which there is no doubt, and that God does what He wills and decrees what He wills, so He has the right to charge His servants with whatever He wills and abrogate whatever He wills, and He has complete wisdom and conclusive proof in all of that, unlike those in whose hearts is disease, for whenever a matter occurs, it causes them doubt, just as those who believe become certain and believe, as God the

The foolish among the people will say, "What has turned them away from the Qiblah which they used to face?" Say, "To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path."

Almighty said: "And when a surah is revealed, some of them say, 'Which of you has this increased in faith?' But as for those who believe, And it increased their faith, and they rejoiced. And as for those in whose hearts is disease, it increased their uncleanness upon their uncleanness." And God Almighty said: And We send down of the Qur'an that which is healing and mercy for the believers, but it does not increase the wrongdoers except in loss. For this reason, those who remained steadfast in believing in the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and following him in that and heading where God commanded them without doubt or suspicion were among the leaders of the Companions. Some of them went to the extent that the first of the Muhajireen and Ansar were those who prayed towards the two Qiblahs. Al-Bukhari said in his interpretation of this verse: Musaddad told us, Yahya told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abdullah bin Dinar, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: While the people were praying the dawn prayer in the Quba Mosque, a man came and said: The Qur'an has been revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he has been commanded to face the Kaaba, so face it. So they headed towards the Kaaba. Muslim narrated it from another source on the authority of Ibn Umar, and Al-Tirmidhi narrated it from the hadith of Sufyan Al-Thawri, and he has that they were bowing and then turned towards the Kaaba while they were bowing. Muslim also narrated it from the hadith of Hammad bin Salamah on the authority of Thabit on the authority of Anas, similarly. This indicates the perfection of their obedience to God and His Messenger and their submission to the commands of God Almighty, may God be pleased with them all.

And his saying: And God would not let your faith be lost meaning that your prayers towards the Holy House before that would not have been lost in the reward of God. And in the Sahih from the hadith of Abu Ishaq al-Sabi' on the authority of al-Baraa' he said: A group of people died who used to pray towards the Holy House, so the people said: What is their situation in that? Then God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas and authenticated it. Ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas. And God would never let your faith go to waste, meaning in the first Qiblah and your belief in your Prophet and following him to the other Qiblah, meaning that He would give you the reward for both. Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: And God would never let your faith go to waste, meaning that God would never let Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, go to waste with him wherever he went. Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful. In the Sahih, it is reported that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw a woman from the captives who had been separated from her child. Whenever she found a child from the captives, she would take him and hold him to her chest while she was going around to watch her child. When she found him, she hugged him to her and breastfed him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do you think that this woman would throw her child into the fire when she is able not to throw him? They said: No, O Messenger of God. He said: By God, God is more merciful to His servants than a mother is to her child.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 142- He will say This is report from God the Almighty to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to the believers that the foolish Jews and hypocrites will say this statement when the Qiblah is changed from the Holy House to the Kaaba. It was said that He will say means he said, and the past was expressed in the future tense to indicate its continuity and persistence. It was said that the report of this report was before the change to the Kaaba, and that the benefit of that is that if report of something bad happens before it happens, it is a way of belittling its shock, alleviating its terror, and breaking its spirit. Fools is the plural of fool, which is the liar who relies on falsehood and contradicts what is known, as some linguists said. It was said in Al-Kashshaf: They are light-hearted, and the same is in Al-Qamoos. We have already mentioned in the interpretation of His statement: Except for he who makes a fool of himself what should be referred to, and the meaning of: What turned them away is what turned them away from the qiblah which they were facing which is Jerusalem. So God responded to them by saying: "Say: To God belongs the east and the west" so He has the right to command facing in any direction He wishes. And in His statement: He guides whom He wills there is an indication that turning the qiblah to Mecca is a guidance for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and for the people of his religion to the straight path.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

142. The Almighty said: The fools will say the ignorant among the people, what has turned them turned them away from the qiblah which they used to face meaning Jerusalem. The qiblah is a verb from the verb to face and was revealed about the Jews and the polytheists of Mecca who criticized the change of the qiblah from Jerusalem to Mecca. They said to the polytheists of Mecca: Muhammad's matter has been in doubt and he longs for his birthplace and has headed toward your country and is returning to your religion. Then God Almighty said: "Say: To God belong the east and the west" He owns and the creation is His slaves.

He guides whom He wills to a straight path.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

142- The foolish among the people will say whose dreams have become dim, and who have taken them lightly by imitation and turning away from looking. He means by this those who deny the change of the Qiblah from among the hypocrites, Jews and polytheists. The benefit of presenting the report with it is to settle the soul, prepare the answer and show the miracle. What has turned them away what has diverted them. From their Qiblah which they were facing meaning the Holy House, and the Qiblah is originally the state in which a person faces, so it became a custom for the place towards which one turns for prayer. Say, 'To God belongs the East and the West' no place is specific to Him over another place with an intrinsic characteristic that prevents another from establishing His position, but rather the point is in the impression of His command and not the specificity of the place. He guides whom He wills to a straight path which is what wisdom approves, and what interest requires from turning towards the Holy House at one time, and the Kaaba at another.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: The fools among the people will say Abu Ja'far said: What He means by His saying, may His praise be glorified: The fools will say, is that the ignorant among the people will say, and they are the Jews and the hypocrites. And God, the Almighty, called them fools because they belittled the truth. So the rabbis of the Jews ignored it, and their ignorant and stupid people among them were too arrogant to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, since he was from the Arabs and not from the Children of Israel, and the hypocrites were confused and became dull.

And what we said about the fools - that they are the Jews and the hypocrites - the people of interpretation said. Mention of those who said: They are the Jews: Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God, the Almighty and Majestic: "The fools among the people will say: What has turned them away from their Qiblah?" He said: The Jews will say it, when they meet the Holy House. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly, I was told by Ahmad bin Yunus, on the authority of Zuhair, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Bara': The fools among the people will say, he said: The Jews. Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Bara': The fools among the people will say, he said: The Jews. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Bara' regarding His statement: The fools among the people will say, he said: The People of the Book. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The Jews. Others said: The fools are the hypocrites. Mention of those who said that: Musa told us, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: The verse The fools among the people will say was revealed about the hypocrites. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: What has turned them away from their Qiblah which they used to face? Abu Ja'far said: He means by His words, may He be glorified: What has turned them away: what turned them away from their Qiblah? It is from the saying of the one who says: So-and-so turned his back to me if he turned his face away from him and turned his back to him, so likewise His saying: What has turned them away? what turned their faces? As for His saying: from their Qiblah, the Qiblah of everything is what faces its face. Rather, it is an action of the one who is in a state of humiliation and sitting, from the saying of the one who says: I faced so-and-so, if I became facing him, facing him, so he is my Qiblah and I am his Qiblah, if each one of them faces the face of the other. Abu Ja'far: So the interpretation of the statement - if that is its meaning - is: The foolish people will say to you, O believers in God and His Messenger, - if you turn your faces away from the qiblah of the Jews which was your qiblah before I commanded you to turn your faces away from it towards the Sacred Mosque -: What is it that turned the faces of these people, turning them away from the place they used to face with their faces in their prayers? So God, the Most High, informed His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, what the Jews and hypocrites would say when his qiblah and the qiblah of his companions were turned away from the Levant to the Sacred Mosque, and He informed him what his response to them should be, so He said to him: If they say that to you, O Muhammad, then say to them: "To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." The reason for that was that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem for a period of time, the amount of which we will mention later, God willing, then God, the Most High, wanted to turn the qiblah of His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, towards the Sacred Mosque. So He informed him of what the Jews would say when he turned his face away and the face of His companions divided it, and what should be his response to them from the answer. Mention the period during which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions prayed towards Jerusalem, and what was the reason for his prayer towards it? And what prompted the Jews and hypocrites to say what they said when God changed the qiblah of the believers from Jerusalem to the Kaaba? The people of knowledge differed regarding the period during which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem after the migration. Some of them said what: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us - and Ibn Humayd told us, he said, Salamah told us - they both said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad told me, he said, Saeed bin Jubair told me, or Ikrimah - Muhammad was uncertain - from Ibn Abbas, he said: When the qiblah was changed from Ash-Sham to the Kaaba - and it was changed in Rajab, at the beginning of seventeen months from the arrival of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to Medina - the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Rifa'ah bin Qais, Qardam bin Amr, Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, and Nafi' bin Abi Nafi'. This is what Ibn Humayd said, and Abu Kurayb said: And Rafi' bin Abi Rafi' and Al-Hajjaj bin Amr - an ally of Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf - and Al-Rabi' bin Al-Rabi' bin Abi Al-Haqiq, and Kinanah bin Abi Al-Haqiq, and they said: O Muhammad, what has turned you away from the Qiblah which you were facing, while you claim that you are on the religion and faith of Abraham? Return to the Qiblah which you were facing, and we will follow you and believe you! They only want to tempt him away from his religion. So God revealed about them: "The foolish among the people will say: 'What has turned them away from the Qiblah which they used to face?'" until His saying: Except that We may test who follows the Messenger from who turns on his heels. Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Abu Bakr bin Ayyash narrated to us, Al-Bara' said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards the Holy House for seventeen months, and he desired to be turned towards the Ka'bah. He said: While we were praying one day, someone passed by us and said: Do you not know that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, has turned towards the Ka'bah? He said: We have prayed two Raka'ahs towards here, and we have prayed two Raka'ahs towards here." - Abu Krayb: It was said to him: Is Abu Ishaq in it? He remained silent. Ibn Wakee' told us, he said: Yahya bin Adam told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Ayyash, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Bara', he said: "We prayed seventeen months after the arrival of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to Medina towards the Holy House." Muhammad bin Bashir told us, Yahya told us, on the authority of Sufyan, who said, Abu Ishaq told us, on the authority of al-Bara' ibn 'Azib, who said: "I prayed with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, towards Jerusalem for sixteen months, or seventeen months" - Sufyan was uncertain - then he turned us towards the Ka'bah. Al-Muthanna told me, who said, al-Nufaili told us, who said, Zuhair told us, who said, Abu Ishaq told us, on the authority of al-Bara': "When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, first came to Medina, he stayed with his grandfathers - or his maternal uncles - from the Ansar, and that he prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen months, and he liked that his qiblah should be towards the House, and that he prayed the 'Asr prayer with some people, and a man from among those who prayed with him came out, and passed by the people of the mosque while they were bowing, and said: I bear witness that I prayed with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, towards Mecca. So they turned as they were towards the House. He liked to turn towards the House, and the Jews liked that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem, and so did the People of the Book, but when he turned his face towards the House, they disapproved of that." He told me. Imran bin Musa said, Abdul Warith told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Ibn Al-Musayyab, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem after he had arrived in Medina for sixteen months, then he turned towards the Kaaba two months before Badr." Others said: Amr bin Ali told us, Abu Asim told us, Uthman bin Saad Al-Katib told us, Anas bin Malik told us: "The Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem for nine or ten months." While he was standing praying the noon prayer in Medina, and he had prayed two rak'ahs towards Jerusalem, he turned his face towards the Kaaba, so the fools said: What turned them away from the qiblah that they were facing? Others said: Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Dawud told us, Al-Mas'udi told us, on the authority of Amr bin Murrah, on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Muadh bin Jabal: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, arrived in Medina and prayed towards Jerusalem for thirteen months. Ahmad bin Al-Muqaddam Al-Ajli told us, Al-Mu'tamar bin Sulayman told us, I heard my father He said, Qatada narrated to us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: The Ansar prayed the first Qiblah, three Hajj pilgrimages before the arrival of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed the first Qiblah after his arrival in Medina sixteen months, or as he said. And both hadiths are narrated by Qatada on the authority of

And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it was a great sin except for those whom Allah has guided. And Allah would not let a person perish. Your faith that God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

Saeed. He mentioned the reason why the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem, before it was imposed on him to face the Kaaba. The scholars differed on that. Some of them said: That was by the choice of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Those who said that mentioned: Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said, Yahya bin Wadheeh Abu Tamila narrated to us, he said, Al-Hussein bin Waqid narrated to us, on the authority of Ikrimah - and on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah - and Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: The first thing that was abrogated from the Qur'an was the Qiblah. That is because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was facing the rock of Jerusalem, which was the Qiblah of the Jews. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for seventeen months so that they would believe in him and follow him, and he called the illiterate Arabs to that. So God Almighty said: And to God belongs the East. And the Maghreb, so wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing." Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi' regarding His statement: The foolish among the people will say, 'What has turned them away from their Qiblah which they used to face?' They mean Jerusalem. Al-Rabi' said, Abu Al-'Aliyah said: The Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was given the choice to turn his face wherever he wished, so he chose Jerusalem in order to unite the People of the Book, so his Qiblah was for sixteen months, and during that time he was turning his face to the sky, then God turned him to the Sacred House. Others said: Rather, the action of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions was by God's command upon them. Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Salih told us, he said, Mu'awiyah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, he said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina, and the majority of its people were Jews, God commanded him to face Jerusalem. The Jews rejoiced, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for a few months, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was He loved the direction of the Qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, and he used to supplicate and look at the sky. Then God, the Almighty, revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven (al-Baqarah 2:144). The Jews doubted that and said: What has turned them away from the Qiblah which they used to face? So God, the Almighty, revealed: "Say: To God belongs the East and the West." Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed the first thing he prayed toward the Kaaba, then he turned toward the Holy House. The Ansar had prayed toward the Holy House before his arrival for three pilgrimages, and he prayed after his arrival for sixteen months, then God, the Almighty, made him turn toward the Kaaba. Mention the reason for which he said: What has turned them away from the Qiblah which they used to face? The people of interpretation differed about that. Two sayings were narrated from Ibn Abbas about it. One of them is what: Ibn Hamid told us, Salamah told us, Ibn Ishaq told us, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me, on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas said: Some Jews said that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they said to him: Return to the Qiblah you were facing, so we will follow you and believe you! They wanted to tempt him away from his religion. The other statement is: What I mentioned from the hadith of Ali bin Abi Talha about him that came before. Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: The foolish among the people will say, 'What has turned them away from the Qiblah they were facing?' He said: The Ansar prayed towards Jerusalem for two years before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina, and the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed after his arrival in Medina as an emigrant, towards Jerusalem for sixteen months, then God directed him after that towards the Kaaba, the Sacred House. Some people said about that: What has turned them away from the Qiblah they were facing? The man longed for his birth! So God Almighty said: "Say, 'To God belongs the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path.'" It was said: The one who said this statement was the hypocrites. They only said that to mock Islam. Who said that: Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned towards the Sacred Mosque, the people differed about it and were divided into groups. The hypocrites said: Why were they on the Qiblah for a time, then they abandoned it and turned towards another? So God revealed about al-Munafiqun 63: The foolish among the people will say the entire verse. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Almighty: "Say: To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Almighty means: Say, O Muhammad - to those who said to you and your companions: What turned you away from your Qiblah from Jerusalem, which you were facing, to facing towards the Sacred Mosque? -: To God belongs the Kingdom of the East and the West, meaning by that: The Kingdom of what is between the two poles of the rising sun and the two poles of its setting, and what is between them of the world, He guides whom He wills of His creation, directing him and granting him success to the straight path, which is the straight path - and by that he means: to the Qiblah of Abraham whom He made an Imam for the people - and He disappoints whom He wills of them, leading them astray from the path of truth. And what God the Almighty meant by His words: He guides whom He wills to a straight path is: Say, O Muhammad: Indeed, God guided us by facing towards the Sacred Mosque as the Qiblah of Abraham, and He led you astray - O Jews. The hypocrites and the group of polytheists - so let us down from what He guided us to.

It has four issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And thus We have made you a just community. The meaning is: Just as the Kaaba is in the middle of the earth, so We have made you a just community, meaning We have made you below the prophets and above the nations. The middle is justice, and the origin of this is that the most honorable of things is the middle. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed bin Al-Khudri.

On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the Almighty's saying: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: Just. He said: This is a good, authentic hadith. And in the revelation: Their most just said, meaning the most just and best of them. And Zuhair said:

They are the middle ground that people are satisfied with their judgment if one of the nights descends upon most of them.

You are the middle of the neighborhood, know the small matter or one of the big ones

Another said:

Do not go into matters excessively. Do not ask too much if you ask.

Be moderate among all people

The middle of the valley: the best place in it and the most grass and water. And since the middle is far from extremism and negligence, it is praiseworthy. That is, this nation did not go to extremes like the Christians did with regard to their prophets, nor did they fall short like the Jews with regard to their prophets. In the hadith:

The best of things are those that are in the middle. And in it, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him: You should follow the middle path, for to it descends the high and to it ascends the low. So-and-so is from the middle of his people, and he is the middle of his people, and the middle of his people, meaning from their best and most noble. He was in the middle, but not from the middle that is between two things in anything. The middle with a sukoon on the seen is the adverb, you say: I prayed in the middle of the people. And I sat in the middle of the house with a sukoon because it is a noun. Al-Jawhari said: And every place where there is reconciliation between the two is in the middle, and if there is no reconciliation between the two, then it is in the middle with a sukoon, and sometimes it is in the middle but that is not correct.

Second: The Almighty's saying: So that you may be is in the accusative case with the letter kay, meaning that you may be. Witnesses is the predicate of kan. "On the people" meaning on the Day of Resurrection for the prophets over their nations, as was proven in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Noah, peace be upon him, will be called on the Day of Resurrection and will say, 'At Your service and at Your pleasure, O Lord.' He will say, 'Did you convey the message?' He will say, 'Yes.' It will be said to his nation, 'Did you convey the message?' They will say, 'No warner came to us.' He will say, 'Who will bear witness for you?' They will say, 'Muhammad and his nation.' They will bear witness that he conveyed the message and the Messenger will be a witness over you." This is what the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. Ibn Mubarak mentioned this hadith in length with its meaning, and in it: "Then those nations will say, 'How can someone who did not live to see us bear witness against us?' The Lord, glory be to Him, will say to them, 'How can you bear witness against someone you did not live to see?' They will say, 'Our Lord, You sent to us a Messenger and sent down to us Your covenant and Your Book and related to us that they had conveyed the message, so we bore witness to what You entrusted us with.' The Lord will say, 'They have spoken the truth.'" This is what the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community - and the middle is justice - that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. Witnesses over the people, and the Messenger will be a witness over you." Ibn An'am said: It has reached me that on that day the nation of Muhammad, peace be upon him, will bear witness, except for those who have compassion for their brothers in their hearts. A group said: The meaning of the verse is that some of you will bear witness over others after death, as was proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Anas:

"On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said when a funeral passed by him and he spoke well of it, he said: It is due, due, due. Then another passed by him and he spoke ill of it, he said: It is due, due, due. Umar said: May my father and mother be sacrificed for you! A funeral passed by and he spoke well of it, so I said: It is due, due, due. Then another funeral passed by and he spoke ill of it, so I said: It is due, due, due. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever you speak well of, Paradise is due for him, and whoever you speak ill of, Hell is due for him. You are God's witnesses on earth. You are God's witnesses on earth. You are God's witnesses on earth." Narrated by al-Bukhari with the same meaning. In some of its chains of transmission other than in the two Sahihs, he recited: So that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you. Abaan and Laith narrated on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab on the authority of Ubadah ibn al-Samit who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it was a great sin except for those whom Allah has guided. And Allah would not let a person perish. Your faith that God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

“My nation has been given three things that were not given to anyone except the prophets: Whenever God sent a prophet, He would say to him, ‘Call upon Me and I will respond to you,’ and He would say to this nation, ‘Call upon Me and I will respond to you.’ Whenever God sent a prophet, He would say to him, ‘He has not placed any difficulty upon you in religion,’ and He would say to this nation, ‘He has not placed any difficulty upon you in religion.’ When God sent a prophet, He would make him a witness over his people and He would make this nation witnesses over the people.” Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Hakim Abu Abdullah, in Nawadir Al-Usul.

Third: Our scholars said: Our Lord, Blessed and Exalted be He, informed us in His Book of what He bestowed upon us of His favor upon us in the name of justice and His taking on the burden of witnessing over all of His creation. He made us first in place even though we were last in time, as He, peace be upon him, said:

We are the last, the first. This is evidence that only the just will testify, and the word of another will not be implemented against another unless he is just. The explanation of justice and its ruling will come at the end of the surah, God willing.

Fourth: It is evidence of the validity of consensus and the obligation to rule by it, because if they were just, they would testify against the people. Every era is a witness against those who came after it, so the words of the Companions are evidence and a witness against the Successors, and the words of the Successors are against those who came after them. Since the nation was made witnesses, then it is obligatory to accept their words. There is no meaning to the statement of those who said: It is intended for the entire nation, because then there is no consensus on it until the Day of Judgment. This is explained in the books of Usul al-Fiqh.

The Almighty says: And the Messenger will be a witness over you. It was said: It means with your deeds on the Day of Resurrection. It was also said: Upon you means for you, meaning he will testify to your faith. It was also said: It means he will testify to you that he conveyed the message to you.

The Almighty said: And We did not make the qiblah which you used to face. It was said that what is meant by qiblah here is the first qiblah, because He said: I used to face it. It was also said: the second, so the kaf is redundant, meaning you are facing it now, as mentioned above, and as He said: You are the best nation produced for mankind, meaning you, according to some of them, and it will come.

God the Almighty said: Except that We may know who follows the Messenger. Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, said: The meaning of except that We may know is to see. The Arabs place knowledge in place of seeing, and seeing in place of knowledge, as in the Almighty’s saying: Have you not seen how your Lord dealt with you? meaning Have you not known? It was also said: The meaning is except that you may know that We know, for the hypocrites were in doubt about God’s knowledge of things before they came to be. It was also said: The meaning is to distinguish the people of certainty from the people of doubt, as narrated by Ibn Fawrak, and mentioned by al-Tabari on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It was also said: The meaning is except that the Prophet and his followers may know, and God the Almighty informed us of that about Himself, just as it is said: The prince did such-and-such, but his followers did it. Al-Mahdawi mentioned it and it is good. It was also said: Its meaning is to know Muhammad, so He attributed His knowledge to Himself, the Almighty, as a specification and distinction, just as He referred to Himself, the Almighty, in His saying:

O son of Adam, I was sick and you did not visit me. The first is more apparent, and that its meaning is the knowledge of witnessing that necessitates recompense, and He, glory be to Him, is the Knower of the unseen and the seen. He knows what will be before it is. Conditions differ based on information, but His knowledge does not differ, rather it relates to everything with a single relation.

And thus everything that is mentioned in the Book of this meaning from the Almighty’s saying: And that God may make evident those who believe and take from among you witnesses, “And We will surely test you until We make evident those who strive hard among you and the patient,” and the like. The verse is an answer to the Quraysh in their saying: What has turned them away from their Qiblah which they used to face? The Quraysh were accustomed to the Kaaba, so God the Almighty wanted to test them with something other than what they were accustomed to, to show who follows the Messenger and who does not. Al-Zuhri read except to know, so who is in the nominative case according to this reading, because it is the name of what its agent is not named. And according to the reading of the group, it is in the accusative case as the object. Follows the Messenger means in what he was commanded to face the Kaaba. Of those who turn back on their heels means of those who turn away from their religion, because when the Qiblah was changed, some Muslims turned away and some became hypocrites. That is why He said: And if it is a great sin, meaning changing it, as Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Qatadah said. The meaning in Arabic is: And if the change is.

The Almighty said: And if it were a great burden. Al-Far’i said that in and lam have the same meaning as ma and illa, while the Basrans say: it is the heavy in that has been lightened. Al-Akbfash said: meaning, even if the qiblah, the turning, or the turning away were a great burden. Except for those whom God has guided, meaning He has created guidance, which is faith, in their hearts, as God the Almighty said: Those are the ones in whose hearts He has inscribed faith.

God the Almighty said: And God would never let your faith go to waste. The scholars agreed that it was revealed about someone who died while praying towards Jerusalem, as was proven in Bukhari from the hadith of Al-Bara' bin Azib, as mentioned above. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: When the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) turned towards the Kaaba, they said: O Messenger of God, what about our brothers who died while praying towards Jerusalem? So God the Almighty revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste, the verse. He said: This is a good and authentic hadith. So he called prayer faith because it includes intention, words, and deeds. Malik said: I am reminded by this verse of the Murji'ah's statement: Prayer is not part of faith.

Muhammad ibn Ishaq said: And God would not let your faith go to waste meaning facing the Qiblah and believing in your Prophet. This is what most Muslims and scholars of the principles of jurisprudence agree with. Ibn Wahb, Ibn al-Qasim, Ibn Abd al-Hakam, and Ashab narrated on the authority of Malik: And God would not let your faith go to waste. He said: Your prayers.

God the Almighty said: Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful. Kindness is more intense than mercy. Abu Amr ibn al-Ala' said: Kindness is more intense than mercy, and the meaning is close. We have already discussed its language, poetry, and meanings in the Most High Book in Explaining the Beautiful Names of God, so let us look there. The Kufians and Abu Amr read Ra'uf with the weight of fa', which is the language of Banu Asad, and from it is the saying of al-Walid ibn Uqbah:

And the worst of seekers, so do not be like him fighting his uncle, the compassionate and merciful.

Al-Nasa'i narrated that the language of Banu Asad is ra'af on the pattern of fa'al. Abu Ja'far ibn al-Qa'qa' read ra'uf with a heavy fa'al without a hamza, and likewise he made easy every hamza in the Book of God Almighty, whether it is silent or moving.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

It was said: What is meant by the fools here are the polytheists of the Arabs, as Al-Zajaj said. It was also said: The Jewish rabbis, as Mujahid said. It was also said: The hypocrites, as Al-Suddi said. The verse is general in all of these, and God knows best. Al-Bukhari said: Abu Naim told us, he heard Zuhair from Abu Ishaq, from Al-Bara' may God be pleased with him: That the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months, and he liked that his qiblah be towards the House, and that he prayed the first prayer he prayed was the afternoon prayer, and some people prayed with him, and a man who was praying with him came out and passed by the people of the mosque while they were bowing, and he said: I bear witness by God that I prayed with the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) towards Mecca, so they turned as they were towards the House, and those who died facing the qiblah before it was changed towards the House were men who were killed and we did not know what to say about them, so God revealed: "And God would not let your faith go to waste. Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful." Al-Bukhari alone transmitted it from this source, and Muslim narrated it from another source, and Muhammad bin Ishaq said: Ismail bin Abi Khalid told me from Abu Ishaq, from Al-Bara', who said: The Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) used to pray towards Jerusalem, and he would often look at the sky awaiting God's command, so God revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven, so We will surely turn you to it. A Muslim man said: We wish we knew the knowledge of those who died among us before we turned toward the qiblah, and how about our prayers toward the Holy House. So God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. And the foolish people, who are the People of the Book, said: What has turned them away from the qiblah they used to face? So God revealed: The foolish people will say to the end of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Al-Hasan bin Atiyah told us, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Baraa', who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had prayed toward the Holy House for sixteen months, and he loved to face toward the Kaaba, so God revealed: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, and We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque." He said: So he faced toward the Kaaba, and the foolish people, who are the Jews, said: What has turned them away from the qiblah they used to face? So God revealed: "Say: To God belongs the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." And Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) when he migrated to Medina, God ordered him to face Jerusalem, so the Jews rejoiced, so the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) faced it for about a month and a half. The Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) loved the direction of Abraham's qiblah, so he used to supplicate to God and look at the sky, so God the Almighty revealed: Then turn your faces toward it, meaning toward it. The Jews were suspicious of that and said: Why did He turn them away from the qiblah they were facing? So God revealed: "Say: To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." Many hadiths have been narrated on this subject, and the gist of the matter is that the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) was ordered to face the rock of Jerusalem, so he was in Mecca praying between the two corners, so the Kaaba would be in front of him while he was facing the rock of Jerusalem. When he migrated to Medina, it was impossible to combine them, so God ordered him to face Jerusalem, Ibn Abbas and the majority said, then these differed, was the order to do so by the Qur'an or by something else

And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it was a great sin except for those whom Allah has guided. And Allah would not let a person perish. Your faith that God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

according to two opinions? Al-Qurtubi narrated in his interpretation on the authority of Ikrimah, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri: That the direction towards Jerusalem was by his own efforts, peace be upon him. What is meant is that the direction towards Jerusalem after his arrival, peace be upon him, in Medina, and the matter continued like that for several months, and he used to pray and implore a lot that he would be directed towards the Kaaba, which is the qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him. So that was answered and he was ordered to turn towards the ancient house. So the Messenger of God, peace be upon him, addressed the people and informed them of that. The first prayer he prayed towards it was the afternoon prayer, as mentioned in the two Sahihs, the narration of Al-Bara'. And it was mentioned by Al-Nasa'i from the narration of Abu Saeed bin Al-Mu'alla that it was the noon prayer, and he said: I and my companion were the first to pray towards the Kaaba. More than one of the interpreters and others mentioned that the change of the qiblah was revealed to the Messenger of God after he had prayed two rak'ahs of the noon prayer, and that was in the mosque of Bani Salamah, so it was called the mosque of the two qiblahs. And in the hadith of Nuwaylah bint Muslim: That the report of that came to them while they were praying the noon prayer, she said: So the men changed to the place of the women and the women changed to the place of the men. This was mentioned by Sheikh Abu Omar bin Abdul Barr Al-Namri. As for the people of Quba', but the report did not reach them until the dawn prayer of the second day, as it came in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn 'Umar may God be pleased with them both, that he said: While the people were in Quba' praying the dawn prayer, someone came to them and said: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) received a Qur'an tonight and he was commanded to face the Ka'bah, so they faced it. Their faces were towards Ash-Sham, so they turned towards the Ka'bah. This is evidence that the abrogating ruling is not binding until after it is known, even if it was revealed and communicated beforehand, because they were not commanded to repeat the 'Asr, Maghrib and 'Isha' prayers, and God knows best. When this happened, some of the hypocrites, doubters and infidels among the Jews became suspicious, deviated from the right path, and became confused and doubtful, and they said: What has turned them away from the qiblah which they were facing? That is, they said: Why do these people sometimes face this and sometimes face that? So God revealed their answer in His saying: "Say: To God belong the East and the West," meaning the rule, the management and the entire command belong to Him. So wherever you turn, there is the face of God. And Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the East or the West, but righteousness is of him who believes in God, meaning the whole affair is in obeying God's commands. Wherever He directs us, we turn. Obedience is in obeying His command, even if we turn in different directions every day. We are His slaves and at His disposal, and His servants, wherever He directs us, we turn. And He, the Most High, has great care for His slave and Messenger Muhammad, may the prayers and peace of God be upon him and his nation, as He guided them to the Qiblah of Abraham, the Friend of the Most Merciful, and made their turning to the Kaaba, built in His name alone, with no partner for Him, the most honorable of the houses of God on earth, as it is the building of Abraham, the Friend of the Most Merciful, peace be upon him. For this reason He said: "Say: To God belong the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path."

Imam Ahmad narrated on the authority of Ali bin Asim, on the authority of Husayn bin Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Amr bin Qais, on the authority of Muhammad bin al-Ash'ath, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, meaning regarding the People of the Book: "They do not envy us for anything as much as they envy us for Friday, to which God has guided us and from which they have gone astray, and for the Qiblah, to which God has guided us and from which they have gone astray, and for our saying behind the imam: 'Amen.'"

And the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. The Almighty says: We only turned you to the Qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, and chose it for you to make you the best of the nations so that you will be witnesses over the nations on the Day of Resurrection, because everyone acknowledges your virtue. The middle here means the best, and the best, as it is said: Quraysh is the middle of the Arabs in lineage and home, meaning the best of them, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was the middle among his people, meaning the most honorable of them in lineage, and from this is the middle prayer which is the best of the prayers, which is the afternoon prayer, as proven in the Sahihs and other books. And when God made this nation the middle, He distinguished it with the most perfect laws, the most correct methods, and the clearest doctrines, as the Almighty said: "He has chosen you and has not placed upon you in religion any difficulty - the religion of your father Abraham. He named you Muslims before and in this, that the Messenger may be a witness over you and you may be witnesses over the people." And Imam Ahmad said: Waki' narrated to us from Al-A'mash from Abu Salih from Abu Sa'id, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Noah will be called on the Day of Resurrection. The Resurrection, and it will be said to him: Did you deliver the message? He will say: Yes. His people will be called and it will be said to them: Did he deliver it to you? They will say: No warner came to us, and no one came to us. It will be said to Nuh

71: Who will bear witness for you? He will say: Muhammad and his nation. He said: This is what God said: {And thus We have made you a just community}. He said: The middle way is justice. So you will be called and you will bear witness for him that you delivered the message, then I will bear witness against you. Narrated by Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah through various chains of transmission on the authority of Al-A'mash. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu Mu'awiyah told us, Al-A'mash told us on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The Prophet will come on the Day of Resurrection with two men or more than that. His people will be called and it will be said: Did this man deliver the message to you? They will say: No. It will be said to him: Did you deliver the message to your people? He will say: Yes. It will be said: Who will bear witness for you? He will say: Muhammad and his nation. Muhammad and his nation will be called and it will be said to them: Did this man deliver the message to his people? They will say: Yes. It will be said: What is your knowledge? They will say: Our Prophet came to us and informed us that the Messengers have conveyed the message." This is what the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community, meaning: just, that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you. Ahmad also said: Abu Mu'awiyah told us, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the Almighty's statement: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: just. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Abd Al-Wahid bin Ziyad from Abu Malik Al-Ashja'i from Al-Mughirah bin Utaybah bin Nabas, a scribe for us told me from Jabir bin Abdullah from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "My nation and I will be on a hill on the Day of Resurrection, overlooking the creation. There is no one among the people who does not wish that he was one of us, and there is no prophet who his people denied except that we bear witness that he has conveyed the message of his Lord, may He be glorified and exalted." Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak and Ibn Mardawayh also, and the wording is his, from the hadith of Mus'ab bin Thabit from Muhammad bin Ka'b Al-Qurazi from Jabir bin Abd God said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) attended a funeral in Banu Maslamah and I was next to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Some of them said: By God, O Messenger of God, what a good man he was! He was chaste and a Muslim and... They spoke well of him. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: You are as you say. The man said: God knows what is hidden, but as for what we saw from him, that is it. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: It is due, it is due. Then he attended a funeral in Banu Haritha and I was next to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Some of them said: O Messenger of God, what a bad man he was if he spoke harshly. They spoke ill of him. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to some of them: You are as you say.

The man said: God knows what is hidden, but as for what we saw from him, that is it. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: It is due. Mus'ab ibn Thabit said: Then Muhammad ibn Ka'b said to us: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) spoke the truth. Then he recited: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. Then Al-Hakim said: This is a sound chain of transmission, although they did not include it. Imam Ahmad said: Yunus ibn Muhammad told us: Dawud ibn Abi Al-Furat told us, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Buraydah, on the authority of Abu Al-Aswad, that he said: I came to Madinah and found it a disease had broken out there, and they were dying a terrible death. So I sat with Umar ibn Al-Khattab, and a funeral passed by him, and he praised its owner, so he said: It is due, it is due. Then another passed by and he spoke ill of it, so Umar said: It is due. Abu Al-Aswad said: It is not due, O Commander of the Faithful. He said: I said as the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Any Muslim for whom four people testify to his goodness, God will admit him to Paradise. We said: And three? He said: And three? We said: And two? He said: And two. Then we did not ask him about one. And this is how Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Dawud ibn Abi Al-Furat. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad ibn Uthman ibn Yahya told us, Abu Qilabah al-Raqashi told us, Abu al-Walid told us, Nafi' ibn Umar told us, Umayyah ibn Safwan told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Zuhair al-Thaqafi, on the authority of his father, who said: "I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say about prophecy: 'You will soon know the best of you from the worst of you.' They said: 'How, O Messenger of God?' He said: 'With good praise and bad praise. You are God's witnesses on earth.'" It was narrated by Ibn Majah on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah on the authority of Yazid ibn Harun, and Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Yazid ibn Harun, Abd al-Malik ibn Umar, and Shuraih on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar, on his authority.

And the Almighty said: "And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it is difficult except for those whom God has guided." God the Almighty says: We only prescribed for you, O Muhammad, to face first toward the Holy House, then We turned you away from it to the Kaaba, so that the state of those who follow you and obey you and face with you wherever you face would be made clear, from those who turn back on their heels, that is, apostatize from their religion, even though this act, which is turning the face from the Holy House to the Kaaba, is great in the souls except for those whose hearts God has guided and who are certain of the truth of the Messenger, and that everything he brought is the truth in which there is no doubt, and that God does what He wills and decrees what He wills, so He has the right to charge His servants with whatever He wills and abrogate whatever He wills, and He has complete wisdom and conclusive proof in all of that, unlike those in whose hearts is disease, for whenever a matter

And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it was a great sin except for those whom Allah has guided. And Allah would not let a person perish. Your faith that God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

occurs, it causes them doubt, just as those who believe become certain and believe, as God the Almighty said: "And when a surah is revealed, some of them say, 'Which of you has this increased in faith?' But as for those who believe, And it increased their faith, and they rejoiced. And as for those in whose hearts is disease, it increased their uncleanness upon their uncleanness." And God Almighty said: And We send down of the Qur'an that which is healing and mercy for the believers, but it does not increase the wrongdoers except in loss. For this reason, those who remained steadfast in believing in the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and following him in that and heading where God commanded them without doubt or suspicion were among the leaders of the Companions. Some of them went to the extent that the first of the Muhajireen and Ansar were those who prayed towards the two Qiblahs. Al-Bukhari said in his interpretation of this verse: Musaddad told us, Yahya told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abdullah bin Dinar, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: While the people were praying the dawn prayer in the Quba Mosque, a man came and said: The Qur'an has been revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he has been commanded to face the Kaaba, so face it. So they headed towards the Kaaba. Muslim narrated it from another source on the authority of Ibn Umar, and Al-Tirmidhi narrated it from the hadith of Sufyan Al-Thawri, and he has that they were bowing and then turned towards the Kaaba while they were bowing. Muslim also narrated it from the hadith of Hammad bin Salamah on the authority of Thabit on the authority of Anas, similarly. This indicates the perfection of their obedience to God and His Messenger and their submission to the commands of God Almighty, may God be pleased with them all.

And his saying: And God would not let your faith be lost meaning that your prayers towards the Holy House before that would not have been lost in the reward of God. And in the Sahih from the hadith of Abu Ishaq al-Sabi'i on the authority of al-Baraa' he said: A group of people died who used to pray towards the Holy House, so the people said: What is their situation in that? Then God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas and authenticated it. Ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas. And God would never let your faith go to waste, meaning in the first Qiblah and your belief in your Prophet and following him to the other Qiblah, meaning that He would give you the reward for both. Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: And God would never let your faith go to waste, meaning that God would never let Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, go to waste with him wherever he went. Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful. In the Sahih, it is reported that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw a woman from the captives who had been separated from her child. Whenever she found a child from the captives, she would take him and hold him to her chest while she was going around to watch her child. When she found him, she hugged him to her and breastfed him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do you think that this woman would throw her child into the fire when she is able not to throw him? They said: No, O Messenger of God. He said: By God, God is more merciful to His servants than a mother is to her child.

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 143- And thus We have made you meaning, like that making, We have made you. It was said that its meaning is: And just as the Kaaba is in the middle of the earth, so We have made you a middle nation. And the middle is the choice or the just, and the verse is open to both meanings, and among what is open to them is the saying of Zuhair:

They are the middle ground, and people are satisfied with their judgment if one of the nights descends upon most of them.

And the same is said by another:

You are the middle of the neighborhood, know the small matter or one of the big ones

It has been proven that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, interpreted the middle here as justice, as will come, so it is necessary to refer to that, including the words of the rajaz poet:

Don't go overboard with things.

Don't ask if you ask too much

Be moderate among all people

Since the middle ground is free from exaggeration and shortcoming, it is praiseworthy: that is, this nation did not go to extremes like the Christians did with regard to Jesus, nor did they fall short like the Jews with regard to their prophets. It is said that so-and-so is the middle and central of his al-Nas 114: that is, their best. And His statement: So that you may be witnesses over mankind means on the Day of Resurrection you will bear witness for the prophets over their nations that they conveyed to them what God commanded them to convey to them, and the Messenger will be a witness over his nation that they did what he commanded them to convey to them. And similar to it is His statement, the Most High: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? It was said that His statement, over you means for you: that is, he bears witness to their faith. And it was said that its meaning is: he bears witness over you for conveying the message to you. It was said in Al-Kashshaf: Since the witness is like the watcher and the one who dominates over the one who is witnessed to, the word of superiority was brought, and from it is His statement, the Most High: And God is Witness over all things. "You were the watcher over them, and You are Witness over all things." End quote. A group said: The meaning of the verse is that some of you will bear witness against others after death. It was also said: What is meant is that you will be witnesses over people in this world in matters that are not valid except with the testimony of just people. And what will come from the hadith that explains the meaning of the verse, God willing, is that the word upon was delayed in the testimony of the nation over people, and it was presented in the testimony of the Messenger over them, because the purpose, as the author of Al-Kashshaf said in the first, is to prove their testimony over the nations, and in the second, to specify them with the Messenger being a witness over them. And his statement: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing It was said: What is meant by this qiblah is Jerusalem: that is, We did not make it except to know who follows and who turns away. This is supported by his statement: You were facing it if the revelation of this verse was after the qiblah was changed to the Kaaba. It was also said: What is meant is the Kaaba: that is, We did not make the qiblah which you are facing now after it was toward Jerusalem except for that purpose, and you were means the state. It was also said: What is meant by this is the qiblah which he was facing before facing Jerusalem, because he used to face the Kaaba in Mecca, then when he migrated he headed toward Jerusalem to win over the Jews, then he was changed to the Kaaba. And his saying: Except that We may know. It was said that what is meant by knowledge here is seeing. And it was said that what is meant is except that you may know that we know that the hypocrites were in doubt. And it was said: So that the Prophet may know. And it was said: What is meant is so that we may know that it is present and occurring. And thus what was mentioned with the explanation of the knowledge of God, the Most High, must be interpreted with something like this, like his saying: And that God may know those who believe and take from among you witnesses. And his saying: And if it were a great sin means that it was nothing but a great sin, as al-Farra' said regarding an and inna that they have the same meaning as ma and illa. The Basrans said: It is the heavy one that was lightened, and the pronoun in kana refers to what is indicated by His statement: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing of changing, turning away, making, or apostasy. Al-Akhfash mentioned the meaning of that, and there is nothing to prevent the pronoun from referring to the mentioned qiblah: that is, even if the qiblah described as being yours was difficult except for those whom God guided to faith, so their hearts expanded to believe you, and their minds accepted what you brought. This exception is empty because what preceded it is in the strength of negation: that is, because it is not light or easy except for those whom God guided. And His statement: God would not let your faith go to waste, Al-Qurtubi said: The scholars agreed that it was revealed about the one who died while praying towards the Holy House, then he said: So He called prayer faith because it comes together in intention, word, and action. And it was said: What is meant is the steadfastness of the believers in faith when the qiblah is changed, and their lack of doubt as others doubted. And the first must be said, and the destination is due to what will come from his interpretation of the verse by the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) in that regard. And the Compassionate is the one who is very compassionate, and it is more severe than mercy. Abu Amr ibn al-Ala' said: Compassion is greater than mercy, and the meanings are similar. Abu Ja'far ibn Yazid ibn al-Qa'qa' read rauf without a hamza, and it is the language of Banu Asad, and from it is the saying of al-Walid ibn Utbah:

The worst of the victors, so do not be like him, he is fighting his uncle, the Most Merciful, the Compassionate.

Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Al-Baraa' that "the first time the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) came to Madinah, he came to his maternal uncles from the Ansar, and that he prayed towards the Holy House for sixteen or seventeen months, and he liked that his qiblah be towards the House, and the first prayer he prayed was the afternoon prayer, and some people prayed with him. Then a man who had prayed with him came out and passed by the people of the mosque while they were bowing and said: I bear witness by God that I prayed with the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) towards the Ka'bah, so they turned as they were towards the House. The Jews were amazed that he prayed towards the Holy House, and the People of the Book, but when he turned his face towards the House, they disapproved of that. The ones who died facing the qiblah before it was changed towards the House were men, and they were killed, so we did not know what to say about them, so God revealed: 'And God would never let your faith go to waste. God is Most Kind and Merciful to mankind.' " And there are other chains of transmission and similar wordings. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The first thing abrogated in the Qur'an was the qiblah. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abu Dawud in his Naskh, and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray in Mecca facing Jerusalem with the Kaaba in front of him. After he moved to Medina for sixteen months, God turned him towards the Kaaba." There are many hadiths on this topic with the same content as mentioned above. Likewise, hadiths were narrated about the time when facing the Qiblah was revealed, and about how the worshippers should turn when they heard about it, and they were praying, so we will not go on mentioning them at length. Saeed bin Mansour, Ahmad, Al-Nasa'i, Al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, Al-Hakim who authenticated it, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Hibban, Al-Isma'ili in his Sahih, and Al-Hakim who authenticated it, narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding his statement, And thus We have made you a just community, he said: Just. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar. Ibn

And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it was a great sin except for those whom Allah has guided. And Allah would not let a person perish. Your faith that God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas something similar. Ahmad, Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Nasa'i and others narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id that he said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Noah will be called on the Day of Resurrection and it will be said to him: Did you convey the message? He will say: Yes. His people will be called and it will be said to them: Did he convey the message to you? They will say: No warner came to us, and no one came to us. Noah will be asked: Who will bear witness for you? He will say: Muhammad and his nation." This is what God said: And thus We have made you a just community. He said: The middle way is justice. So you will be called and you will bear witness for him that you conveyed the message, and I will bear witness against you. Sa'id ibn Mansur, Ahmad, Al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah narrated something similar on the authority of Abu Sa'id. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Jabir that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "My nation and I will be on a hill overlooking the creation on the Day of Resurrection. There will be no one among the people who will not wish that he were one of us, and there will be no prophet who was denied by his people but that we will bear witness that he conveyed the message of his Lord." Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed in his statement: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people that the messengers had conveyed and the Messenger will be a witness over you of what you did. Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Anas who said: "They passed by a funeral procession and it was praised well, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is due, due, due. They passed by a funeral procession and it was praised badly, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is due, due, due. Umar asked him and he said: Whoever you praise well, Paradise is due for him, and whoever you praise badly, Hell is due for him. You are the witnesses of God on earth, you are the witnesses of God on earth, you are the witnesses of God on earth." Al-Hakim Al-Tirmidhi added: "Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited: "And thus We have made you a just community" the verse." There are hadiths on this topic, some of them on the authority of Jabir with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, according to Ibn Al-Mundhir and Al-Hakim, who authenticated it, and some on the authority of Umar with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, according to Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i. And from it on the authority of Abu Zuhair Al-Thaqafi, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, as narrated by Ahmad, Ibn Majah, Al-Tabarani, Al-Daraqutni in Al-Ifrad, Al-Hakim in Al-Mustadrak, and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Sunan, and from it on the authority of Abu Hurairah, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, as narrated by Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim, and from Salamah bin Al-Akwa', with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, as narrated by Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir, and Al-Tabarani. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ata', regarding the words of God the Almighty: And We did not make the qiblah which you used to face he said: meaning Jerusalem except that We might test he said: We would test them to know who would submit to His command. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his words: except that We might test he said: to distinguish the people of certainty from the people of doubt and indeed it is a great sin meaning turning it against the people of polytheism and doubt. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: It reached me that some people who had accepted Islam returned and said: Once here and once there. Ahmad, Abd bin Hamid, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Hibban, Al-Tabarani and Al-Hakim narrated - and authenticated it - on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: "When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned towards the Qiblah, they said: 'O Messenger of God, what about those who died while praying towards Jerusalem?' So God revealed: 'And God would never let your faith go to waste.'" The hadith of Al-Bara' was mentioned above. There are many hadiths on this topic, as well as reports from the early Muslims.

143. And thus We have made you a just community was revealed about the leaders of the Jews. They said to Muadh ibn Jabal: Muhammad did not make you face our qiblah except out of envy, and our qiblah is the qiblah of the prophets. Muhammad knows that we are just among the people. Muadh said: We are on the truth and justice. So God Almighty revealed: And thus meaning and thus. It was said: The kaf is for comparison, meaning just as We chose Abraham and his descendants and selected them. And thus We have made you a just community is a response to His statement: And We had chosen him in this world 130-Al-Baqarah, meaning just and good. God Almighty said: The most just of them said 28-Al-Qalam, meaning the best and most just of them. The best of things are the middle ones. Al-Kalbi said: It means people of a religion that is moderate between extremism and negligence because they are both reprehensible in religion.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, I told Abu Ma'shar Ibrahim bin Muhammad bin Al-Hussein Al-Warraaq, I told Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Zakariya bin Yahya, I told Abu Al-Salt, I told Hammad bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Nadra, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, may God be pleased with him, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood among us one day after the afternoon prayer and did not leave anything until the Day of Resurrection except that he mentioned it in that place of his, until when the sun was over the tops of the palm trees and the edges of the walls, he said: 'As for what has passed of this world, nothing remains except what remains of this day of yours. Beware, this nation will die after seventy nations, which are the last of them, the best of them, and the most honorable of them to God Almighty.'"

God the Almighty says: So that you may be witnesses over the people on the Day of Resurrection that the Messengers have conveyed the message to them. Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata' what is the meaning of God the Almighty's saying: So that you may be witnesses over the people? He said: The nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, are witnesses over whoever abandons the truth from among the people, all of them. And the Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be a witness over you justifying and purifying you. This is because God the Almighty will gather the first and the last on one plain, then He will say to the disbelievers of the past nations: Did there not come to you a warner? Al-Mulk 8 They will deny and say: No bearer of good tidings or warner has come to us. God the Almighty will ask the prophets, peace be upon them, about that and they will say: They lied, we conveyed it to them. So He will ask them for evidence - and He is more knowledgeable about them - to establish the argument. Then the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be brought and they will testify for them that they have conveyed the message. The past nations will say: How did they know? They only came after us? He will ask this nation and they will say, You sent to us a Messenger and revealed to him a Book in which you informed us of the message of the Messengers and you are truthful in what you have informed us. Then Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be brought and asked about the state of his nation and he will purify them and bear witness to their truthfulness. Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi informed us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi informed us, Muhammad bin Yusuf informed us, Muhammad bin Ismail informed us, Ishaq bin Mansour informed us, Abu Usamah informed us, Al-A'mash informed us, Abu Salih informed us, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Noah will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and it will be said to him, 'Did you convey the message?' He will say, 'Yes, O Lord.' He will ask his nation, 'Did I convey the message to you?' They will say, 'No warner came to us.' It will be said, 'Who are your witnesses?' He will say, 'Muhammad and his nation.' The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, will say, 'You will be brought and you will bear witness.' Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, will recite, 'And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you.'"

The Almighty said: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing meaning changing it, meaning the Holy House in Jerusalem, so it is a case of deleting the complement, and it is possible that the second object of making is deleted, on the assumption that And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing was abrogated, and it was said that its meaning is the one you are facing, which is the Kaaba, like the Almighty's saying: You are the best nation meaning you.

Except that We may know who follows the Messenger. If it is said, what is the meaning of His statement:

Except that We may know? He is All-Knowing of all things before it is related to what exists, its meaning is to know the knowledge that the one who works on it deserves reward and punishment. It is said: Except that We may know, meaning: to see and distinguish who follows the Messenger in the qiblah from who turns on his heels and apostatizes. In the hadith, when the qiblah was changed, a group of Muslims apostatized to Judaism, and they said: Muhammad has returned to the religion of his fathers. The people of meaning said: Its meaning is except that We may know who follows the Messenger from who turns on his heels, as if it had previously been known to him that changing the qiblah was a reason for the guidance of some people and the misguidance of others. The future tense may also come with the meaning of the past, as God Almighty said: Then why did you kill the prophets of God? 91-Al-Baqarah, meaning why did you kill them? And if it was meaning it had been, meaning the turning to the Kaaba. It is said: the metaphor refers back to the qiblah, and it is said: to the Kaaba. Al-Zajaj said: And if the change was great, heavy and severe, Except for those whom God has guided, meaning God has guided them. Sibawayh said: And if it was)) An affirmation that resembles an oath, and that is why the letter lam was included in its answer, And God would not let your faith go to waste. This is because Huyayy ibn Akhtab and his Jewish companions said to the Muslims: Tell us about your prayers toward the Holy House in Jerusalem. If they are guidance, then you have turned away from them, and if they are misguidance, then you have drawn closer to God through them, and whoever among you dies upon them has died upon misguidance. So the Muslims said: Guidance is what God has commanded, and misguidance is what God has forbidden.

They said: What is your testimony about those among you who died facing our Qiblah? Before the Qiblah was changed, As'ad ibn Zararah from Banu Najjar and Al-Bara' ibn Ma'rur from Banu Salamah had died. They were leaders and other men. Their clans went to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, God has turned you to the Qiblah of Abraham, so what about our brothers who died while praying towards the Holy House? Then God Almighty revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste meaning your prayers towards the Holy House. Indeed, God is to mankind Kind and Merciful. The people of Hijaz, Ibn 'Amir and Hafs read Ra'uf with a full vowel on the weight of Fa'ul because most of the names of God Almighty are on the weight of Fa'ul and Fa'il, and Ash-Shakur and Al-Raheem and Al-Kareem and others. Abu Ja'far softens the hamza, and the others read it with a short vowel on the weight of Fa'l. Jarir said:

You see that Muslims have a right over you as an act of the Most Compassionate, Most Merciful.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:143

And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And indeed, it was a great sin except for those whom Allah has guided. And Allah would not let a person perish. Your faith that God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

Compassion is the most severe mercy.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

143- And also refers to the concept of the previous verse, that is, just as We made you guided to the straight path, or made your qiblah the best qiblah. We made you a middle nation that is, the best, or just, purified by knowledge and action. It is originally a name for a place where the area is equal from the sides, then it was borrowed for the praiseworthy qualities because they fall between the two extremes of excess and deficiency, such as generosity between extravagance and miserliness, and courage between rashness and cowardice, then it was applied to the one who is described by them, equal in it the singular and the plural, and the masculine and feminine like all the names that are described by it, and it was used as evidence that consensus is an argument, because if what they agreed upon was false, then their justice would be undermined by it. So that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you is a reason for making, meaning that you may know by contemplating what He has set up for you of arguments, and what He has sent down to you from the Book, that He, the Most High, has not been stingy with anyone nor has He wronged anyone, but rather He has made clear the ways and sent the messengers, so they conveyed and advised. But those who disbelieved were driven by misery to follow desires, and to turn away from the signs, so you bear witness to that over your contemporaries and those before you, or after you. It was narrated that "on the Day of Resurrection, the nations will deny the message of the prophets, so God will demand from them proof of the message - and He knows them best - to establish the argument against the deniers. Then the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be brought and testify, and the nations will say: How did you know? They will say: We know that from the information of God Almighty in His Book, which speaks through the tongue of His truthful Prophet. Then Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be brought and asked about the state of his nation, and he will testify to their justice." And this testimony, even though it is for them, but since the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, was like a watchful observer over his nation, it was preceded by Ali, and the connection was presented to indicate their exclusivity, so the Messenger will be a witness against them. And We did not make the qiblah which you used to face meaning the direction you used to face, which is the Kaaba, for he, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray toward it in Mecca, then when he migrated, he was ordered to pray toward the rock in order to win over the Jews. Or the rock, according to the saying of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both: "His qiblah in Mecca was Jerusalem, except that he made the Kaaba between him and it. So what is reported about it is the first abrogating qiblah, and the second abrogated qiblah. The meaning is that the origin of your command is to face the Kaaba, and we did not make Jerusalem your qiblah."

Except that We may test the people thereby and know who follows you in praying towards it from who turns back on his heels. "Except that We may test the people thereby and know who follows you in praying towards it from who turns back from your religion in devotion to the Qiblah of his fathers." Or So that We may know now who follows the Messenger from who does not follow him, and there was no obstacle that would disappear with its disappearance. According to the first, its meaning is: We did not return you to what you were upon except to know who is steadfast in Islam from who turns back on his heels due to his anxiety and weakness of faith. If it is said: How can His knowledge be the ultimate in generalities while He has always been All-Knowing? I say: This and similar things are in consideration of the current connection which is the basis of the reward, and the meaning is so that Our knowledge is connected to it existing. It was said: So that His Messenger and the believers may know, but He attributed it to Himself because they are His special ones, or to distinguish the firm from the unstable, like the Most High's saying: So that God may distinguish the wicked from the good. So He placed knowledge in the place of the distinction caused by it, and the reading of to know in the passive form bears witness to it, and knowledge either means knowledge, or is suspended from what is in from the meaning of interrogation, or its second object is from those who turn away, meaning so that We may know who follows the Messenger, distinguished from those who turn away.

And if it were a great sin "if is the lightened form of the heavy sin, and the lam" is the separator. The Kufians said that it is the negative and the "lam" means except. The pronoun is for what is indicated by the Almighty's saying: "And We did not make the qiblah which you used to face" of making, or apostasy, or turning, or transferring, or the qiblah. "Lakbira was read with the nominative case, so kan" would be redundant. "Except for those whom God has guided" to the wisdom of the rulings, who are steadfast in faith and following. "And God would not let your faith go to waste" meaning your steadfastness in faith. It was said: Your faith in the abrogated qiblah, or your prayers towards it, because it was narrated: "When he, peace be upon him, turned towards the Kaaba, they said: How about those who died, O Messenger of God, before the transfer from our brothers? So the verse Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful was revealed. He does not waste their rewards nor does he abandon their righteousness. Perhaps he presented al-Ra'uf which is more eloquent in preserving the separators. The two imams, Ibn 'Amir, and Hafs read al-Ra'uf with a long vowel, and the rest with a short vowel.

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:144

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

We may verify see the turning of your face toward the sky looking forward to the revelation and eager for the command to face the Kaaba, and he would have liked that because it was the qiblah of Abraham and because it is more conducive to the conversion of the Arabs to Islam So We will surely turn you We will turn you to a qiblah that pleases you that you love So turn your face face in prayer toward (the Sacred Mosque) meaning the Kaaba And wherever you are addressing the nation Turn your faces in prayer (toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that) meaning turning to the Kaaba is the truth established from their Lord because of what is in their books of the description of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he turns to it And God is not unaware of what you do with the taa', O believers, of obeying His command, and with the yaa', meaning the Jews, of denying the command of the qiblah

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And thus We have made you a middle nation. Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And thus We have made you a middle nation, is that just as We have guided you, O believers in Muhammad, peace be upon him, and in what he brought to you from God, so We have singled you out with success for the Qiblah of Abraham and his religion, and We have preferred you with that over those other than you from the people of religions, so We have singled you out and preferred you over others from the people of religions, by making you a middle nation. We have explained that the nation is the generation of people and the class of them and others. As for the middle, in the speech of the Arabs, it is the best. It is said: So-and-so is of average lineage among his people, meaning of average lineage, if they mean by that his lineage is high, and he is average among his people, and middle, just as it is said: a sheep with dry milk and dry milk, and just as God Almighty said: So strike for them a dry path in the sea (Ta-Ha: 77), and Zuhair ibn Abi Salma said about the middle:

They are the middle ground, and people are satisfied with their judgment if one of the nights descends upon most of them.

Abu Ja'far said: I see that the middle in this place is the middle that means: the part that is between the two sides, like the middle of the house, the middle is heavy, and it is not permissible to lighten it in its sin. I see that God Almighty described them as being middle, because of their moderation in religion, so they are not people of extremism in it, the extremism of the Christians who extremism in monasticism, and what they said about Jesus what they said about him - nor are they people of shortcomings in it, the shortcomings of the Jews who changed the book of God, and killed their prophets, and lied about their Lord, and disbelieved in him, but they are people of moderation and balance in it. So God described them with that, because the most beloved of matters to God is the middle. As for the interpretation, it came that the middle is justice. And that is the meaning of the best, because the best of people are their just ones. Mention of those who said: the middle is justice. Salim bin Junadah and Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told us, they said, Hafs bin Ghiyath told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Sa'id, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in his saying: And thus We have made you a middle nation, he said: Just. Mujahid bin Musa and Muhammad bin Bashar narrated to us, they said, Ja'far bin Awn narrated to us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sa'id, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, similarly. Muhammad bin Bashar narrated to us, he said, Mu'ammil narrated to us, he said, Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: Just. Ali bin Isa narrated to me, he said, Sa'id bin Sulayman narrated to us, on the authority of Hafs bin Ghiyath, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding his statement: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: Just. Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said, Ibn Yaman narrated to us, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Ja'far, on the authority of Sa'id: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: Just. Muhammad bin Amr narrated to me, he said, Abu Asim narrated to us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid regarding the statement of God Almighty: And thus We have made you a just community, he said: Just. Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: A middle nation, he said: Just. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: A middle nation, he said: Just. Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on al-Rabi', regarding his statement: A middle nation, he said: Just. Muhammad bin Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: And thus We have made you a middle nation, he said: We made you a just nation. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwayd bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Rashid bin Sa'd, he said, Ibn An'am al-Ma'afari told us, On the authority of Habban ibn Abi Jabalah, who traces it back to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: And thus We have made you a just nation, he said: The middle is justice. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', Mujahid and Abdullah ibn Kathir: A just nation, they said: Just. Mujahid said: Just. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And thus We have made you a just nation, he said: They are in the middle between the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the nations. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Almighty: That you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you, Abu Ja'far said: The word witnesses is the plural of witness. So the meaning of that is: And thus We have made you a just nation, so that you may be witnesses for My prophets and messengers over their nations by the declaration that they have conveyed what I was commanded to convey of My messages to their nations, and My Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be a witness over you, by your belief in him and in what he brought to you from Me, as: He told me Abu al-Sa'ib said, Hafs narrated to us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sa'id, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Noah, peace be upon him, will be called on the Day of Resurrection and it will be said to him: 'Did you convey what you were sent with?' He will say: 'Yes.' His people will be asked: 'Did you convey it?' They will say: 'No warner came to us!' He will be asked: 'Who knows that?' He will say: 'Muhammad and his nation.'" This is what He said: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you. Mujahid ibn Musa narrated to us, he said, Ja'far ibn Awn narrated to us, he said, al-A'mash narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Sa'id, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a similar manner - except that he added to it: They will be called and testify that he has conveyed. Muhammad ibn Bashir narrated to us, he said, Mu'ammil narrated to us, he said, Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Sa'id: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people - that the Messengers have conveyed - and the Messenger will be a witness over you, of what you have done, or You did. Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said, Ibn Fadil narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Malik Al-Ashja'i, on the authority of Al-Mughirah bin Utaybah bin Al-Nahhas: That one of their scribes narrated to them on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'My nation and I will be on a hill on the Day of Resurrection, overlooking all creation. There is no nation but that he would wish to be from it, O nation, and there is no prophet who was denied by his people but that we will be his witnesses on the Day of Resurrection that he delivered the messages of his Lord and advised them.' He said: 'And the Messenger will be a witness over you.' Issam bin Rawad bin Al-Jarrah Al-Asqalani narrated to me, he said, my father narrated to us, he said, Al-Awza'i narrated to us, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Katheer, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi Al-Fadl, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, he said: I went out with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to a funeral, and when he prayed over the dead, the people said: 'What a good man!' The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'It is due.' Then I went out with him to another funeral, and when they prayed over the dead, the people said: 'What a bad man!' The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'It is due.' So Abi bin Ka'b said: O Messenger of God, what do you say, It is obligatory? He said: The saying of God, the Almighty: So that you may be witnesses over the people. Ali bin Sahl al-Ramli told me, he said, al-Walid bin Muslim told us, he said, Abu Amr told me, on the authority of Yahya, he said, Abdullah bin Abi al-Fadl al-Madini told me, he said, Abu Hurairah told me: A funeral procession was brought to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the people said: What a good man! Then he mentioned something similar to the hadith of Issam on the authority of his father. Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Zaid bin Habbab told us, he said, Ikrimah bin Ammar Qar told us, Iyas bin Salamah bin al-Akwa' told me on the authority of his father, he said: We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a funeral procession passed by him, and he praised it with good praise, so he said: It is obligatory. Another funeral procession passed by him, and he praised it less than that, so he said: It is obligatory! They said: O Messenger of God, what is it obligatory? He said: The angels are God's witnesses in heaven, and you are God's witnesses on earth, so whatever you bear witness to is obligatory. Then he recited: And say, 'Work, and God will see your work.' And His Messenger and the believers" (al-Tawbah 9:105). Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: So that you may be witnesses over the people, you may be witnesses for Muhammad, peace be upon him, over the nations, the Jews, the Christians, and the Magians. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, he said: "The Prophet, peace be upon him, will come on the Day of Resurrection to his group, and no one will be with him, so the nation of Muhammad, peace be upon him, will testify for him that he has conveyed the message to them." Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of his father, that he heard Ubayd ibn Umair similarly. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said,

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibn Abi Nujayh told me, on the authority of his father, he said: The Prophet, peace be upon him, will come on the Day of Resurrection to his group, and no one will be with him, so the nation of Muhammad, peace be upon him, will testify for him that he has conveyed the message to them.” God’s Messenger (may peace be upon him) said on the Day of Resurrection, and he mentioned something similar, but Ubayd ibn Umair did not mention something similar. Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, So that you may be witnesses over the people, meaning that their messengers had conveyed the message of their Lord to their people, and the Messenger will be a witness over you, that he had conveyed the messages of his Lord to his nation. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam: The people of Noah will say on the Day of al-Qiyamah 75: Noah did not convey to us! So Noah, peace be upon him, will be called and asked: Did you convey to them? He will say: Yes. It will be said: Who are your witnesses? He will say: Ahmad, peace be upon him, and his nation. So you will be called and asked, and you will say: Yes, he conveyed to them. So the people of Noah, peace be upon him, will say: How can you bear witness against us when you have not yet met us? They will say: The Prophet of God, peace be upon him, came and informed us that he had conveyed to you, and it was revealed to him that he had conveyed to you, so we believed him. He said: So Noah, peace be upon him, will be believed. And they belie them. He said: So that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: So that you may be witnesses over the people, so that this nation may be witnesses over the people that the Messengers have conveyed to them, and the Messenger may be a witness over this nation that he has conveyed what he was sent with. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam: The nations will say on the Day of al-Qiyamah 75: By God, this affliction almost became all of the prophets! When they see what God has given them. Al-Muthanna told us, he said: Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said: Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Rashdin bin Saad, he said: Ibn An’am al-Ma’afari told me, on the authority of Hubban bin Abi Jabalah, with a chain of transmission back to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: “When God gathers His servants on the Day of Resurrection, the first to be called will be Israfil, and his Lord will say to him: What did you do during My covenant? Did you convey My covenant? He will say: Yes, my Lord, I have.” Gabriel, peace be upon them, was brought to him. Gabriel is called and it is said to him: Did Israfil convey to you my covenant? He says: Yes, my Lord, he conveyed it to me. Israfil is left alone, and Gabriel is asked: Did you convey my covenant? He says: Yes, I conveyed it to the messengers. The messengers are called and it is said to them: Did Gabriel convey to you my covenant? They say: Yes, our Lord. Gabriel is left alone, and it is said to the messengers: What did you do with my covenant? They say: We conveyed it to our nations. The nations are called and it is said: Did the messengers convey to you my covenant? Some of them are liars and some are believers. The messengers say: We have witnesses against them who testify that we conveyed it along with your testimony. He says: Who will testify for you? They say: The nation of Muhammad. The nation of Muhammad, peace be upon him, is called and he says: Do you bear witness that these messengers of Mine conveyed my covenant to those to whom they were sent? They say: Yes, our Lord, we bear witness that they conveyed it. Those nations say: How can those who did not And the Lord, Blessed and Exalted be He, will say to them: How do you bear witness against those you have not attained? They will say: Our Lord, You sent to us a Messenger, and sent down to us Your covenant and Your Book, and You told us that they had reached the age of maturity, so we bore witness to what You entrusted to us. The Lord will say: They have spoken the truth. This is what He said: And thus We have made you a just community - and the middle way is justice - that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you. Ibn An’am said: It has reached me that on that day the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, will bear witness, except for he who has compassion in his heart for his brother. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding His statement: that you may be witnesses over the people, meaning by that: those who were steadfast on guidance, so they are the ones who will be witnesses over the people on the Day of Resurrection, for their denial of the Messengers of God and their disbelief in the signs of God. I was told by Ammar, he said, Ibn Abi Ja’far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi’, regarding His statement: that you may be witnesses over the people, He says: “So that you may be witnesses over the nations who passed away before you, regarding what their messengers brought to them, and regarding what they denied them. So they will say on the Day of Resurrection and be amazed: There was a nation that was not in our time, so they believed in what our messengers brought, and we denied what they brought! So they were amazed to the utmost. His statement: “And the Messenger will be a witness over you,” means: regarding their belief in him, and in what was revealed to him. Muhammad ibn Sa’d told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas: So that you may be witnesses over the people, meaning: that they bore witness over the generations regarding what God Almighty named for them. Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata': What is his statement: So that you may be witnesses over the people? He said: The nation of Muhammad, they witnessed over those who abandoned the truth when faith and guidance came to them, from those who were before us. Abdullah bin Katheer said it. He said: Ata' said: Witnesses over those who abandoned the truth from those who abandoned it from all the people, this came to the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in their book, And the Messenger will be a witness over you, that they believed in the truth when it came to them, and they believed in it. Yunus narrated to me, he said, Ibn Wahb informed us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: So that you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you, "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, 'A witness over his nation, and they are witnesses over the nations.'" They are one of the witnesses of whom God Almighty said: And on the Day when the witnesses will stand (Ghafir 40:51), the four: the angels who count our deeds, for us and against us, and he recited His statement: And every soul will come with it a driver and a witness. (He said: 21) And he said: This is the Day of Resurrection. He said: And the prophets are witnesses over their nations. He said: And the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, are witnesses over nations. He said: And the stages 7 are the bodies and the skins. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn on his heels. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His words: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing, and We did not make your turning away from the qiblah which you were facing, O Muhammad, so We turned you away from it, except to make evident who would follow you from who would not follow you from who would turn on his heels. And the qiblah which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was facing, which God meant by His words: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing, is the qiblah which you were facing before He turned you to the Ka'bah, as: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing, meaning: the House of Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Hussein narrated to us, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I said to Ata': And what made the qiblah that you used to face? He said: The qiblah is Jerusalem.

Abu Ja'far said: The reason for not mentioning the turning away from it was to be satisfied with the indication of what has been mentioned of the speech on its meaning, like all the other similar things that we have mentioned before. We only said: That is its meaning, because the trial of God and the companions of His Messenger in the direction of the qiblah was only - according to what the reports have agreed upon - when the change was made from the Holy House to the Ka'bah, until - according to what has been mentioned - some men who had converted to Islam and followed the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, became disgusted, and many of the hypocrites - because of that - showed their hypocrisy, and said: What is wrong with Muhammad that he turns us once here and once there! And the Muslims said about those of their Muslim brothers who had passed while they were praying towards the Holy House: Our deeds and their deeds are null and void! The polytheists said: "Muhammad, peace be upon him, was confused about his religion! So that was a trial for the people and a test for the believers." That is why God, the Most High, said: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels, meaning: We did not make your turning away from the qiblah which you were facing and your transfer to another, as God, the Most High, said: And We did not make the vision which We showed you except as a trial for the people (Al-Isra': 60) meaning: We did not make your report about the vision which We showed you. That is because if he had not informed the people of what he had been shown, there would have been no trial for anyone in it. Likewise, the first qiblah which was towards Jerusalem, if he had not been turned away from it towards the Kaaba, there would have been no trial or trial for anyone in it. Mentioning the narrations that were narrated in that meaning what we said: Bishr ibn Mu'adh narrated to us, he said, Yazid narrated to us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatadah, he said: The qiblah was a trial and a test. The Ansar prayed towards Jerusalem for two years before the arrival of the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. "After his arrival in Medina as an immigrant, the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem for seventeen months. Then God directed him towards the Kaaba, the Sacred House." Some people said about that: Why did He turn them away from the Qiblah they were facing? The man longed for his birth! God the Almighty said: "Say: To God belongs the East and the West. He guides whom He wills to a straight path." Some people said - when the Qiblah was turned towards the Sacred House - What about our deeds that we used to do towards our first Qiblah? So God the Almighty revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. God may test His servants with whatever He wills of His command, one command after another, to know who will obey Him and who will disobey Him, and all of that is acceptable, since in that there is faith in Him, sincerity to Him, and submission to His judgment. Musa told me, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, who said: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray towards Jerusalem, but the Kaaba overturned it. When he turned towards the Sacred Mosque, people differed about it and were divided into groups. The hypocrites said: Why were they on the qiblah for a time, then they abandoned it and turned towards another one? The Muslims said: If only we knew about our brothers who died while praying towards Jerusalem! Did God accept it from us and from them, or not? The Jews said: Muhammad longed for the country of his father and his birthplace, and if he had remained on our qiblah, we would have hoped that he would be the companion we are waiting for! The polytheists of Mecca said: Muhammad was confused about his religion, so he turned his qiblah towards you, and he knew that you were better guided than him, and he is about to enter your religion! So God, the

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

Most High, revealed about al-Munafiqun 63: 'The foolish among the people will say: What has turned them away from their qiblah which they used to face?' until His saying: 'And it is indeed difficult except for those whom God has guided.' And He revealed about the others the verses: After that, Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I said to Ata': "Except that We may know who follows the Messenger from who turns back on his heels." Ata' said: He tests them, to know who submits to His command. Ibn Jurayj said: It has reached me that some people who converted to Islam returned and said: Once here and once there! Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: Did God not know who would follow the Messenger and who would turn on his heels, except after the follower had followed and the one who turned on his heels had turned on his heels, until he said: We did not do what we did of changing the qiblah except to know who would follow the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and who would turn on his heels? It would be said: God, the Most High, is the One who knows all things before they come into being, and His statement: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing except that We might know who would follow the Messenger from who would turn on his heels, is not a report [from] that He did not know that except after its existence. If he were to say: What is the meaning of that? It would be said to him: As for its meaning with us, it is: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing except that We might know who would follow the Messenger and who would turn on his heels. So God, the Most High, said: Except that We might know, and its meaning is to know My Messenger and My friends. Since the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and his followers were from his party, and it was the custom of the Arabs to attribute to the leader what the followers of the leader did, and what was done to them to him, such as their saying: Umar ibn al-Khattab conquered the lands of Iraq and collected its tax, but his companions did that, for a reason that he had in that, and like what was narrated in its equivalent from the Prophet (peace be upon him) that he said: "God, the Most High, says: I fell ill and My servant did not visit Me, and I asked him for a loan and he did not lend Me, and he reviled Me, and it was not appropriate for him to revile Me." Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Khalid narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ja'far, on the authority of al-'Ala' ibn 'Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, he said: "The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) said: God said: I asked My servant for a loan and he did not lend Me, and he reviled Me, and it was not appropriate for him to revile Me! He says: Woe to him! And I am time, I am time." Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said: Salamah narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of al-'Ala' ibn 'Abd al-Rahman,

On the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

So the Almighty added borrowing and visiting to Himself, and that was done by someone else, since that was narrated from the Arabs by hearing: I am hungry in something other than my stomach, and naked in something other than my back, meaning: the hunger of his family and children and the nakedness of their backs. So is His saying: Except that We may know, meaning: My friends and my party may know. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saih told me, on the authority of Ali Abu Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And We did not make the qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. Ibn Abbas said: To distinguish the people of certainty from the people of polytheism and doubt. Some of them said: That was only said because the Arabs put knowledge in place of seeing, and seeing in place of knowledge, as the Almighty said: Have you not seen how your Lord dealt with the companions of the elephant? (al-Fil 105:1), so he claimed the meaning of Have you not seen is, Have you not known? He claimed that the meaning of his saying: Except that we may know, is: Except that we may see who follows the Messenger. He claimed that the words of the speaker: I saw, I knew, and I witnessed are letters that follow one another, so that some of them are placed in place of others, as Jarir ibn Atiyah said:

As if you did not witness Al-Qeet, Al-Hajeb, and Amr bin Amr when he called, O Darem!

Meaning: As if you did not know Al-Qayt, because between the death of Al-Qayt and Hajeb and the time of Jarir, there is a period of time that is not hidden. That is because those he mentioned died in the pre-Islamic era, and Jarir was a short time after the advent of Islam. Abu Ja'far said: This is a far-fetched interpretation. Because seeing, even if it is used in place of knowledge, because it is impossible for someone to see something, seeing it does not necessitate that he has seen it, if he is of sound nature. So it is permissible, from the aspect that he established seeing, to add to it his establishment of it as knowledge, and it is correct to indicate by mentioning seeing the meaning of knowledge for that reason. So that is not, even though it is [permissible] in seeing - for what we have described - permissible in knowledge, so mentioning the report about knowledge indicates seeing. Because a person may know many things that he has not seen and does not see, and it is impossible for him to see something except that he knows it, as we have previously explained [about it]. Although it is not found in any of the speech of the Arabs that it is said: I knew such-and-such, meaning I saw it. Rather, it is permissible to direct the meanings of what is in the Book of God that He revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, of speech, to what was

Existing like it in the speech of the Arabs, without what was not present in their speech. So what is present in their speech is I saw meaning: I knew, and not present in their speech is I knew meaning: I saw, so it is permissible to direct except to know to the meaning: except to see. Others said: Except to know was only said because the hypocrites, the Jews, and the disbelievers in God denied that God Almighty knows something before it happens. And they said - when it was said to them: Some of the people of the Qiblah

They will turn back on their heels, if the Qiblah of Muhammad (peace be upon him) is changed to the Kaaba: That will not happen! Or they said: That is false! So when God did that, and changed the Qiblah, and those who disbelieved because of that disbelieved, God, the Most High, said: I did not do it except so that we may know what others knew - you polytheists who deny My knowledge of what will happen of things before it comes into being - that I am All-Knowing of what will happen of what has not yet come into being. So it is as if the meaning of those who say this statement in interpreting His statement: Except that we may know is: Except that we may make clear to you that We know who follows the Messenger and who turns back on his heels. And even if this has a way of being, it is far from the concept. And others said: It was only said: Except that we may know, and He is All-Knowing before it comes into being and in every case, in a way.

Being gentle with His servants and attracting them to His obedience, as He, the Most High, said: "Say: 'Who provides for you from the heavens and the earth?' Say: 'God.' And indeed, either we or you are upon right guidance or in manifest error." (Saba': 24), and He knew that He was upon right guidance and that they were upon manifest error. However, He was gentle with them in His address, for He did not say: We are upon right guidance and you are upon manifest error. Similarly, His statement: Except that we may know, means to them: Except that you may know, since you were ignorant of it before it came into being. So He attributed knowledge to Himself, as a gentleness in His address to them. We have already explained the statement that is more deserving of the truth in that regard. As for His statement: Whoever follows the Messenger, it means: the one who follows Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in what God commands him to do, so he is directed towards the direction towards which Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is directed. As for his statement: of those who turn back on their heels, it means: of those who turn back from their religion, and become hypocrites, or disbelievers, or oppose Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in that, of those who appear to follow him, as Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about his statement: And We did not make the Qiblah which you used to face except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels, he said: of those who, when doubt enters them, turn back from God and turn back as a disbeliever on their heels. The root of the word apostate on their heels is: the one who turns back on his heels, returning with his back on the path

he had taken, turning away from it. So it was said for everyone who turns back from a matter he was doing, whether it was religion or good. And from that is His statement: So they turned back upon their footsteps, retracing (al-Kahf 18:64), meaning: they returned to the path they had taken. The apostate is called an apostate because he has turned back from his religion and the faith he was following. It is also said that he turned back on his heels because he turned back on his heels to the direction he was in at the beginning of his journey before returning from it. This is made an example for every person who abandons a matter and takes up another, if he turns away from what he was doing, to what he was abandoning and takes it. So it is said: So-and-so turned back on his heels, and turned back on his heels. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: And indeed it is a great sin except for those whom God has guided. Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed about what God Almighty described as being a great sin except for those whom God has guided. Some of them said: What He Almighty meant by the great sin was turning away from the Holy House towards the Sacred Mosque and the conversion. And the feminine form of great sin is used to feminize turning away.

Those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that God said: And indeed it is a great sin except for those whom God has guided, meaning: changing it. Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa bin Maimun told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God, the Almighty: And indeed it is a great sin except for those whom God has guided, he said: What they were commanded to do of changing to the Kaaba from the Holy House. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: And indeed it is a great sin except for those whom God has guided, he said: It is a great sin when the Qiblah was changed to the Sacred Mosque, so it was a great sin except for those whom God has guided. Others said: Rather, the major one is the exact qiblah that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to face from Jerusalem before the conversion. Those who said that were mentioned: I was told by Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Abdullah ibn Abi Jaafar told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah: And indeed it is a great sin, meaning the qiblah of Jerusalem, except for those whom God has guided. Some of them said: Rather, the major one is the prayer that they used to perform facing the first qiblah. Those who said that were mentioned:

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And if it is indeed difficult except for those whom God has guided, he said: Your prayer until God guides you to the qiblah. Yunus told me this another time, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said: And if it is indeed difficult, he said: Your prayer here - meaning: towards the Holy House in Jerusalem for sixteen months - and your turning

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

here. Some grammarians of Basra said: The great sin was made feminine because of the feminization of the qiblah, and God, the Most High, meant it because of His saying, And if it is indeed difficult. Some grammarians of Kufa said: Rather, the great sin was made feminine because of the feminization of turning away and detouring. So the interpretation of the statement is according to what the speakers of this statement interpreted: And We did not make Our turning you away from the qiblah which you were facing and Our turning you away from it, except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn back on his heels. And if Our turning you away from it and Our turning you away is indeed difficult except for those whom God has guided. This interpretation is the most correct of the interpretations in my opinion. Because the people were only troubled by the Prophet's (peace and blessings of God be upon him) turning his face from the first Qiblah to the other, not the Qiblah itself or the prayer. Because the first Qiblah and the prayer had been and were not troublesome to them. Unless the feminine of the word major is directed to the Qiblah, and he says: Mentioning the Qiblah is sufficient instead of mentioning the turning and the change, because the speech indicates the meaning of that, as we have described to you in its counterparts. So that would be a correct interpretation and an understandable doctrine. The meaning of his statement: major is great, as Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And indeed it is great except for those whom God has guided, he said: Great in the hearts of the people, in what Satan introduces to the son of Adam, he said: Why did they pray in this direction for sixteen months and then deviate! So that was great in the hearts of those who do not know or reason and the hypocrites, so they said: What is this religion? As for those who believed, God, the Most High, established that in their hearts. And he recited the statement of God: And indeed it is difficult except for those whom God has guided, he said: Your prayer until He guides you to the Qiblah. Abu Ja'far said: As for His statement: Except for those whom God has guided, he means by it: And if our turning you away from the Qiblah which you were facing is difficult except for the one whom God, the Most High, has guided, so He has guided him to believe in you and to have faith in that, and to follow you in it, and in what God, the Most High, has revealed to you, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Mu'awiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: And indeed it is difficult except for those whom God has guided, he says: Except for the humbly submissive, meaning: those who believe in what God, the Most High, has revealed.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And God would never let your faith go to waste. Abu Ja'far said: It was said that by faith, in this place, he meant prayer. He mentioned the narrations that were narrated about that, and he mentioned the statement of those who said it: Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Waki' and Ubaydullah told us - and Sufyan bin Waki' told us, he said, Ubaydullah bin Musa told us - all of them, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, he said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was directed towards the Ka'bah, they said: What about those of our brothers who died before that, while they were praying towards the Holy House? So God, may His praise be exalted, revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. Isma'il bin Musa told me, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Baraa, regarding the statement of God, may He be exalted: And God would never let your faith go to waste, he said: Your prayers towards the Holy House.

Ahmad ibn Ishaq al-Ahwazi narrated to us, he said: Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri narrated to us, he said: Sharik narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of al-Baraa, something similar. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said: Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Nufayl al-Harrani narrated to us, he said: Zuhair narrated to us, he said: Abu Ishaq narrated to us, on the authority of al-Baraa, he said: Before the qiblah was changed to the Kaaba, some men died and were killed, and we did not know what to say about them. Then God, the Most High, revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. Bishr ibn Muadh al-Aqdi narrated to us, he said: Yazid ibn Zurai' narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: When the qiblah was changed to the Sacred House, some people said: What about the deeds that we used to do in our qiblah? Then God, the Most High, revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste.

Musa bin Harun told me, Amr bin Hammad told me, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, who said: "When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned toward the Sacred Mosque, the Muslims said: 'If only we knew about our brothers who died while praying toward the Holy House! Did God accept it from us and from them or not?' So God, the Most High, revealed about them: 'And God would never let your faith go to waste.' He said: Your prayer toward the Holy House. He says: That is obedience and this is obedience. I was told by Ammar bin Al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on Al-Rabi' who said: When the Qiblah was turned toward the Sacred House, some people said: 'What about the deeds that we used to do toward our first Qiblah?' So God, the Most High, revealed: 'And God would never let your faith go to waste.'" Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, he said, Ibn Jurayj narrated to me, Dawud ibn Abi Asim narrated to me, he said: "When the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was directed to the Kaaba, the Muslims said: Our companions who used to pray towards Jerusalem have perished, so this verse was revealed: 'And God would not let your faith go to waste.'" Muhammad ibn Sa'd narrated to us, he said, my father narrated to me, he said, my uncle narrated to me, he said, my father narrated to me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And God would not let your faith go to waste, he said: Your prayers that you prayed before the Qiblah was established. So the believers feared that those of them who prayed would not have their prayers accepted. Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la narrated to me, he said, Ibn Wahb narrated to us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And God would not let your faith go to waste, your prayers. Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Fazari narrated to us, he said, Al-Mu'ammil narrated to us, he said, Sufyan narrated to us, Yahya ibn Sa'id narrated to us, on the authority of Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, regarding this verse: And God would not let your faith go to waste, he said. Your prayers towards Jerusalem.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously demonstrated that faith is belief. And belief may be by word alone, by action alone, or by both.

The meaning of his saying: And God would not let your faith go to waste - according to what the narration suggests that it is prayer - is: And God would not let your belief in His Messenger, peace be upon him, go to waste, through your prayer that you prayed towards the Holy House on his command, because that was from you belief in My Messenger, following My command, and obedience from you to Me.

He said: And his loss of it, may His praise be glorified - if he were to lose it - is to leave his companions and workers alone for it, so it is lost and becomes void, like the case of a man losing his money, and that is his destruction of it in something for which there is no compensation in the immediate or the deferred. So God, the Most High, informed that He would not invalidate the work of a worker who did a work for Him and it was an act of obedience to Him, so He would not make him repeat it, even if that obligation was abrogated after the worker did it according to what He charged him with of his work. So if someone were to say: How did God, the Most High, say: And God would never let your faith go to waste, and attribute faith to the living who were addressed, while the people who were addressed were only concerned about their brothers who had died while praying towards the Holy House, and this verse was revealed about that matter of theirs? It was said: Even though the people were concerned about that, they were also concerned about the loss of the reward for their prayers that they had prayed towards the Holy House before the conversion to the Kaaba, and they thought that their work had been invalidated and lost, so God, the Most High, revealed this verse at that time, and directed the address to the living and included the dead among them? Because it is the custom of the Arabs - when the addressee and the absent person come together in the report - to make the addressee prevail and the absent person enter into the address, so they say to a man whom they addressed in the manner of reporting about him and another absent person who is not present: We did to you both and we did to you both, in the manner of addressing them both while they are present, and they do not consider it permissible to say: We did to them both, while they are addressing one of them, so they return the addressee to the count of the absent person 7.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful.

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by His Most High's statement: Indeed, God is to the people Kind and Merciful is that God is merciful to all of His servants. Mercy is the highest meaning of mercy, and it is general for all of creation in this world, and for some of them in the hereafter.

As for the Most Merciful: He is the One with mercy for the believers in this world and the Hereafter, as we have explained previously. What He, the Most High, meant by that is that God, the Almighty, is too merciful to waste their obedience with which they obeyed Him and not reward them for it, and too compassionate to them to hold them accountable for abandoning what He did not impose upon them - that is: Do not grieve over your dead who died while praying towards the Holy House - for I will reward them - for their obedience to Me with the prayers that they performed in this way - because I am too merciful to them to waste for them a deed that they did for Me. And do not grieve over them, for I will not hold them accountable for abandoning the prayer towards the Kaaba, because I did not impose that upon them, and I am too compassionate to My creation to punish them for abandoning what I did not command them to do.

There are different forms of the word Ra'uf. One of them is Ra'uf on the pattern of fa'ala, as Al-Walid bin Uqba said:

The worst of the seekers - do not call him - the killer of his uncle, the Compassionate, the Merciful.

This is the general reading of the readers of Kufa. The other is Ra'uf, on the pattern of Fa'ul, which is the general reading of the readers of Medina, and Ra'if, which is the language of Ghatafan, on the pattern of Fa'l, like Hadhar. And Ra'fa'ala, on the pattern of Fa'l, with the Jazm of the 'ayn, which is the language of Banu Asad. The reading is according to one of the first two faces.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, and We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And God is not unaware of what they do."

Scholars said: This verse was revealed before the words of God the Almighty: The foolish among the people will say. The meaning of turn your face is to turn your face to the sky, as stated by At-Tabari. Az-Zajaj said: Turn your eyes to look at the sky, and the meanings are similar. He mentioned the sky

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

specifically because it is specifically mentioned to glorify what is attributed to it and returns from it, such as rain, mercy, and revelation. The meaning of be pleased with it is to love it. As-Suddi said: When he prayed towards Jerusalem, he would raise his head to the sky, waiting for what he was commanded to do. He loved to pray towards the Kaaba, so God the Almighty revealed: Indeed, We have seen the turning of your face towards the heaven. Abu Ishaq narrated on the authority of Al-Bara' who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved to face towards the Kaaba, so God the Almighty revealed: Indeed, We have seen the turning of your face towards the heaven. This meaning and the statement about it have already been presented, and praise be to God.

The Almighty's saying: Then turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque. There are five issues in this:

First: The Almighty's saying: Then turn is a command. Turn your face toward meaning toward the Sacred Mosque, meaning the Kaaba, and there is no disagreement about this. It was said: Facing the entire House, on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Ibn Omar said: Facing the gutter of the Kaaba, as Ibn Atiyya said. The gutter is the qibla of Medina and the people of Ash-Sham, and there is the qibla of the people of Andalusia.

I said: Ibn Jurayj narrated on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The House is the qiblah for the people of the mosque, and the mosque is the qiblah for the people of the sanctuary, and the sanctuary is the qiblah for the people of the earth in its east and west from my nation.

Second: The Almighty's saying: half of the Sacred Mosque. The part has several meanings: it can be the side or direction, as in this verse, and it is a circumstance of place, as you say: facing it, his direction. The circumstance is in the accusative case because it is a superfluous noun in the position of the direct object, and also because the verb occurs in it. Dawud ibn Abi Hind said: In the letter of Ibn Masoud, Turn your face towards the Sacred Mosque. The poet said:

I say to Umm Zinba': Set the chests of Al-Eisa towards Banu Tamim.

Another said:

And a terror has enveloped you from one side of your mouth, and it is an injustice that will completely overwhelm you.

Another said:

Except for the one who conveys Amr as a messenger, and the message is of no avail to half of Amr.

Halving something: half of it, and from it the hadith:

Purity is half of faith. It is one of the opposites. It is said: Shatar ila kada if he approached it, and Shatar 'an kada if he distanced himself from it and turned away from it. As for the clever man, it is because he has embarked on a path other than straightness, and he is the one who has exhausted his family with wickedness. He has been clever in both of them. Some of them were asked about the clever man, and he said: He is the one who has embarked on distancing himself from what God has forbidden.

Third: There is no disagreement among the scholars that the Kaaba is a Qiblah in every horizon, and they agreed that whoever sees it and witnesses it is obligated to face it, and that if he neglects to face it while he sees it and knows its direction, then his prayer is not valid, and he must repeat every prayer he has prayed, as mentioned by Abu Omar. They agreed that whoever is absent from it must face its direction, its side, and its direction, and if it is hidden from him, then he must infer that with everything he can from the stars, winds, mountains, and other things that can be used to infer its direction. And whoever sits in the Sacred Mosque, let his face be toward the Kaaba and look at it with faith and hope, because looking at the Kaaba is an act of worship, as stated by Ata' and Mujahid.

Fourth: They differed as to whether the obligation of the absent person is to face the eye or the direction. Some of them said the first. Ibn al-Arabi said: It is weak, because it is an obligation for something that cannot be reached. Some of them said the direction, and this is correct for three reasons: The first: It is the possible thing to which the obligation is connected. The second: It is what is commanded in the Qur'an, as God Almighty said: "So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are" meaning on the earth, east or west, turn your faces toward it.

Third: The scholars used as evidence the long row, which is known for certain to be several times the width of the house.

Fifth: This verse is a clear proof for what Malik and those who agreed with him said, that the ruling for the worshipper is that he should look in front of him, not at the place of his prostration. Al-Thawri, Abu Hanifa, Al-Shafi'i and Al-Hasan ibn Hayy said: It is preferable for him to look at the place of his prostration. Sharik Al-Qadi said: He should look at the place of prostration when standing, at the place of his feet when bowing, at the place of his nose when prostrating, and at his lap when sitting. Ibn Al-Arabi said: He should only look in front of him, because if he bends his head, some of the standing that is required of him will be lost in the head, which is the most honorable of the limbs. If he raises his head and forces himself to look at the ground, then that is a great hardship and difficulty, and there is no difficulty that has been placed upon us in religion. However, that is better for whoever is able to do it.

The Almighty said: And indeed, those who were given the Scripture meaning the Jews and Christians know that it is the truth from their Lord meaning changing the qiblah from Jerusalem. If it is said: How do they know that when it is not part of their religion nor in their Scripture? Two answers have been given: The first is that when they knew from their Scripture that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was a prophet, they knew that he only spoke the truth and commanded only it. The second is that they knew from their religion that abrogation was permissible, even though some of them denied it, so they became knowledgeable about the permissibility of changing the qiblah.

The Almighty said: And God is not unaware of what they do. Its meaning was mentioned earlier. Ibn Amir, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read ya ta'malun with a ta', addressing the People of the Book or the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. In both cases, it is a notification that God Almighty does not neglect the deeds of His servants nor is He unaware of them, and it includes a threat. The rest read it with a ya' from below.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The first thing that was abrogated from the Qur'an was the qiblah, and that was when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina and most of its people were Jews, so God commanded him to face Jerusalem. The Jews were happy, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for a few months, and he loved the qiblah of Abraham, so he would call to God and look at the sky, so God revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven until His saying: So turn your faces toward it. The Jews were suspicious of that and said: "What has turned them away from the qiblah which they were facing? Say: To God belongs the East and the West." And He said: So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God. And God the Most High said: And We did not make the qiblah which you were facing except that We might make evident who would follow the Messenger from who would turn on his heels. And Ibn Mardawayh narrated from the hadith of Al-Qasim Al-Umari on the authority of his uncle Ubaidullah bin Umar on the authority of Dawud bin Al-Hussain on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, finished his prayer facing Jerusalem, he would raise his head toward the sky, so God revealed: "So We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram," toward the Kaaba, toward the gutter, which Gabriel, peace be upon him, led in prayer. Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak from the hadith of Shu'bah, on the authority of Ya'la ibn Ata', on the authority of Yahya ibn Qamtah, who said: I saw Abdullah ibn Amr sitting in al-Masjid al-Haram facing the gutter, and he recited this verse: So We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased, he said toward the gutter of the Kaaba. Then he said: Its chain of transmission is authentic, but they did not narrate it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Arafah, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Ya'la ibn Ata', on his authority. And so said another, and it is one of the two sayings of Al-Shafi'i may God be pleased with him, that the purpose is to hit the Kaaba itself, and the other saying, and the majority are of the opinion, is that what is meant is facing it, as Al-Hakim narrated from the hadith of Muhammad bin Ishaq from Umair bin Ziyad Al-Kindi from Ali bin Abi Talib may God be pleased with him, Turn your face towards the Sacred Mosque. He said, The direction is before it. Then he said: Its chain of transmission is authentic, and they did not include it. This is the saying of Abu Al-Aliyah, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Qatadah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas and others. And as mentioned previously in the other hadith, Whatever is between the east and the west is the qiblah. Al-Qurtubi said: Ibn Jurayj narrated from Ata' from Ibn Abbas may God be pleased with them both that the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: "The House is the qiblah for the people of the mosque, and the mosque is the qiblah for the people of the sanctuary, and the sanctuary is the qiblah for the people of the earth in its east and west from my nation." Abu Na'im Al-Fadl bin Dukayn said: Zuhair narrated to us from Abu Ishaq from Al-Baraa' that the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) prayed towards the Holy House for sixteen months, or seventeen months, and he liked his qiblah towards the House? He prayed the afternoon prayer and some people prayed with him. A man who was praying with him came out and passed by the people of the mosque while they were bowing and said: I bear witness to God that I prayed with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before Mecca. So they turned around as they were before the House.

And Abd al-Razzaq said: Israel told us on the authority of Abu Ishaq on the authority of al-Bara' who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina, he prayed towards Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved to turn towards the Kaaba, so the verse Indeed We have seen the turning of your face, toward the heaven was revealed, so he turned towards the Kaaba. And al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id ibn al-Mu'alla who said: We used to go to the mosque during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and we would pray in it. One day we passed by and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sitting on the pulpit, so I said: Something has happened, so I sat down, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse: Indeed We have seen the turning of your face, toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased until he finished the verse, so I said to my companion: Come, let us bow two rak'ahs before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, descends, so that we will be the first to pray, so we hid ourselves and prayed it. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came down and prayed the noon

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

prayer for the people that day. Ibn Mardawayh also narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar: The first prayer that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed towards the Kaaba was the noon prayer, and it is the middle prayer. It is well-known that the first prayer that he prayed towards the Kaaba was the afternoon prayer, and for this reason the report from the people of Quba was delayed until the dawn prayer. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Ibn Mardawayh said: Sulayman Ibn Ahmad told us, Al-Husayn Ibn Ishaq Al-Tastari told us, Raja Ibn Muhammad Al-Saqti told us, Ishaq Ibn Idris told us, Ibrahim Ibn Ja'far told us, my father told me on the authority of his grandmother, Umm Abi Nuwaylah Bint Muslim, who said: We prayed the noon or afternoon prayer in the mosque of Bani Haritha, so we faced the mosque of Ilya and prayed two rak'ahs. Then someone came to tell us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had faced the Sacred House, so the women moved in the place of the men and the men in the place of the women, so we prayed the two remaining prostrations while facing the Sacred House. Then a man from Bani Haritha told me that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Those are men who believe in the unseen. Ibn Mardawayh also said: Muhammad Ibn Ali Ibn Dahim narrated to us Ahmad bin Hazim narrated to us Malik bin Ismail Al-Nahdi narrated to us Qais narrated to us from Ziyad bin Alama from Ammarah bin Aws who said: While we were praying towards the Holy House and we were bowing, a caller called out at the door: The Qiblah has been changed to the Kaaba. He said: I bear witness that our Imam has deviated, so he and the men and boys turned while they were bowing towards the Kaaba. And His saying: And wherever you are, turn your faces towards it is an order from God the Almighty to face the Kaaba from all directions of the earth, east, west, north and south. Nothing is excluded from this except the voluntary prayer while travelling, for he prays it wherever his back and heart are directed towards the Kaaba. And likewise in the case of sword fighting, he prays in any case. And likewise, whoever is ignorant of the direction of the Qiblah prays according to his own effort even if he is mistaken in the matter itself, because God the Almighty does not burden a soul beyond its capacity.

Question The Malikis have used this verse as evidence that the worshipper should look in front of him and not at the place of his prostration, as was stated by al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Abu Hanifa. The Malikis said, with his saying: Turn your face towards the Sacred Mosque, if he looked at the place of his prostration, he would need to do so by bowing, which is contrary to the perfection of standing. Some of them said: The worshipper should look at his chest while standing. Sharik al-Qadi said: While standing, he should look at the place of his prostration, as the majority of the group said, because it is more effective in submission and more emphatic in humility, and the hadith has been reported about it. As for while bowing,

And His statement: And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord, meaning, the Jews who denied your reception and your turning away from the Holy House, know that God Almighty will direct you to it with what is in their books from their prophets of the description and attribute of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his nation, and what God Almighty has singled him out with and honored him with of the great, complete Sharia, but the People of the Scripture conceal that among themselves out of envy, disbelief, and stubbornness, and for this reason God Almighty threatens them with His statement: And God is not unaware of what they do.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 144- We have certainly seen the turning of your face. Al-Qurtubi said in his interpretation: The scholars said: This verse was revealed before His saying: The fools will say. The meaning of has certainly is to increase the vision, as the author of Al-Kashshaf said, and the meaning of turn your face is to turn your face to the sky, as Qatrub said. Al-Zajjaj said: You turn your eyes in looking at the sky, and the meaning is close. His saying: Then We will surely turn you is either from the word wilayah: meaning We will give you that. Or from the word tawali: meaning We will make you turn towards its direction, and this is more appropriate for His saying: Then turn your face towards Al-Masjid Al-Haram. What is meant by the direction here is the side and the direction, and it is in the accusative case as a circumstantial case, and from it the poet said:

I say to Umm Zinba': Set the camels' chests towards Banu Tamim.

And from it also the saying of another:

Is there anyone who can convey the message of Omar as a messenger? But a message is of no avail to half of Omar.

Half may mean half, such as Ablution is half of faith, and such as the saying of Antarah:

I am a man from the best of Abs, I have a strong position in my side and I protect the rest with the sword

He said that because his father was from the leaders of Abs and his mother was a slave woman, and it is used to mean some in general. There is no dispute that what is meant by the part of the mosque here is the Kaaba. Al-Qurtubi narrated the consensus that facing the Kaaba is obligatory for the one who sees it, and that the one who does not see it faces the side, and he provides evidence for that with whatever evidence he can provide, and the pronoun in his saying: that it is the truth refers to what the speech indicates of turning to the direction of the Kaaba, and the knowledge of the People of the Book of that is either because it was conveyed to them from their prophets or they found in the revealed books of God that this prophet faces the Kaaba, or because they knew from their books or their prophets that there would be abrogation in this Shariah, so that would require them to enter Islam and follow the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. His saying: And God is not unaware of what they do has already been explained. Ibn Amir, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read ya ta'malunu with the upper tha' to address the People of the Book or the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the rest read it with the lower ya'.

144. The Almighty said: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven. This verse, although it was later in recitation, is earlier in meaning, as it is the beginning of the story, and the matter of the qiblah was the first of the matters of the Sharia to be abrogated. That is because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions were in Mecca facing the Kaaba. When he migrated to Medina, God ordered him to pray toward the rock of the Holy House in order to be closer to the Jews' belief in him if he prayed toward their qiblah, with what they found of his description in the Torah. So he prayed sixteen or seventeen months after the migration toward the Holy House. He loved to face the Kaaba because it was the qiblah of his father Abraham, peace be upon him. Mujahid said: He loved that for the sake of the Jews because they were saying that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, differs from us in our religion and follows our qiblah. So he said to Gabriel, peace be upon him: I wish that God would turn me toward the Kaaba because it is the qiblah of my father Abraham, peace be upon him. Gabriel said: I am only a servant like you and you are honored by your Lord, so ask your Lord, for you are in a high place with God Almighty. [So he returned] Gabriel, peace be upon him, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, kept looking at the sky, hoping that Gabriel would send down what he liked regarding the matter of the qiblah, so God Almighty sent down

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased, that is, one you love and desire. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, that is, toward it, and he meant the Kaaba and the sacred sanctuary. And wherever you are, on land or sea, east or west, turn your faces toward it, when praying.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Naimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Ishaq bin Nasr told us, Ibn Jurayj told us, on the authority of Ata', who said, I heard Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, say: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered the House, he supplicated in all its corners and did not pray until he left it. When he left, he bowed two rak'ahs facing the Kaaba and said, This is the qiblah.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Amr bin Khalid told us, Zuhair told us, Abu Ishaq told us, on the authority of Al-Baraa', that the first time the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina, he stayed with his grandfathers or he said his maternal uncles from the Ansar, and that he prayed facing Jerusalem for sixteen or seventeen months, and he liked that his qiblah be facing the House, and that he prayed the first Asr prayer and some people prayed with him, and a man from those who prayed with him came out and passed by the people of the Quba Mosque while they were bowing, and he said: I bear witness by God that I prayed with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, facing Mecca, so they turned as they were facing the House, and the Jews were amazed that he prayed facing Jerusalem because it was the qiblah of the People of the Book, but when he turned his face towards the House, they disapproved of that, and Al-Baraa' said in this hadith of his: that he died facing the qiblah before some men changed and were killed, so we did not know what to say about them, so God Almighty revealed And God would never let your faith go to waste.

The change of the Qiblah occurred in Rajab, two months after the sun had passed its zenith, before the Battle of Badr. Mujahid and others said: This verse was revealed while the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was in the mosque of Banu Salamah, and he had prayed with his companions two rak'ahs of the noon prayer. He turned during the prayer and faced the gutter, and the men changed places for the women, and the women changed places for the men. So that mosque was called the Mosque of the Two Qiblahs. It was said: The change occurred outside the prayer, between the two prayers, and the report reached the people of Quba during the dawn prayer.

Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us, Abu Ali Zahir ibn Ahmad al-Faqih al-Sarakhsi told us, Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi al-Samari told us, Abu Mus'ab Ahmad ibn Abi Bakr al-Zuhri told us, on the authority of Malik ibn Anas, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Dinar, that Abdullah ibn Umar said: While the people were in Quba performing the dawn prayer, someone came to them and said to them: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, has had the Qur'an revealed to him tonight, and he has been commanded to face the Ka'bah, so face it. Their faces were towards Syria, so they turned towards the Ka'bah.

When the Qiblah was changed, the Jews said: O Muhammad, is it something you invent of your own accord? Sometimes you pray towards Jerusalem and sometimes towards the Kaaba. If you had remained steadfast in our Qiblah, we would have hoped that you would be the companion we are waiting for? Then God revealed: And those who were given the Scripture

We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what they do.

know that it meaning the matter of the Kaaba is the truth from their Lord. Then He threatened them by saying: And God is not unaware of what you do. Abu Ja'far, Ibn 'Amir and Al-Kisa'i read it with the letter ta'. Ibn 'Abbas said: He means that you, O group of believers, seek My pleasure, and I am not unaware of your reward and recompense. The rest read it with the letter ya', meaning I am not unaware of what the Jews do, so I will recompense them in this world and the Hereafter.

transformation or direction. And God is not unaware of what you do. A promise and a threat to both groups. Ibn Amir, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read it with the letter ya.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

144- We may see perhaps we may see turning your face toward the sky turning your face toward the sky in anticipation of revelation, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would be terrified and expect his Lord to turn him toward the Kaaba, because it was the qiblah of his father Abraham, and the oldest of the two qiblahs and the most conducive to the Arabs' faith, and to oppose the Jews, and that indicates the perfection of his manners as he waited and did not ask We will surely turn you to a qiblah so that we may enable you to face it from your saying: I have turned it to such and such, if you make it its governor, or We will make you face its direction that pleases it you love it and long for it, for religious purposes that agree with the will and wisdom of God. Turn your face turn your face. Toward the Sacred Mosque similarly. It was said: The original meaning of shatr is for what is separated from something if it is separated, and dar shatruf means separate from the dar, then it was used for its side, even if it is not separated like the rain, and the forbidden is forbidden, meaning it is forbidden to fight in it, or it is forbidden for the oppressors to attack it, and the mosque was mentioned without the Kaaba because the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was in Medina, and the distant one was sufficient for him to take into account the direction, because facing it was difficult for him due to the stinginess of the near one. It was narrated: "He (peace and blessings of God be upon him) came to Medina, and prayed towards the Holy House for sixteen months, then he turned towards the Kaaba in Rajab after noon, two months before the Battle of Badr." "He prayed with his companions in the mosque of Bani Salamah two rak'ahs of noon, so he turned in prayer and faced the gutter, and the men and women exchanged their rows, so the mosque was called the mosque of the two Qiblahs." And wherever you are, turn your faces towards it. The Messenger was specifically addressed to glorify him and fulfill his desire, then he generalized it explicitly to clarify the generality of the ruling and to confirm the matter of the Qiblah and to make the nation follow. And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. That he, may God bless him and grant him peace, prays towards the two Qiblahs, and the pronoun indicates

Surat al-Baqarah 2:145

And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign, they would not follow your qiblah, nor will you be a follower of their qiblah, nor will some of them be a follower of the qiblah of others. And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, then indeed you would be among the wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And if the oath I am you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign of your truthfulness in the matter of the qiblah they would not follow that is, they would not follow your qiblah out of stubbornness nor would you follow their qiblah cutting off his hope for their conversion to Islam and their hope for his return to it nor would some of them follow the qiblah of others that is, the Jews the qiblah of the Christians and vice versa and if you were to follow their desires to which they call you after what has come to you of knowledge the revelation then you would then if you follow them as an obligation be among the wrongdoers

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram."

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God the Almighty means: We have certainly seen, O Muhammad, the turning of your face towards the heaven. By turning, he means the transformation and movement. By his saying: in the heaven, he means towards the heaven and before it. And this was said to him, may God bless him and grant him peace, according to what we have received, because before changing his qiblah from Jerusalem to the Ka'bah, he would raise his eyes to the heavens, waiting for God the Almighty to command him to turn towards the Ka'bah, as Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, 'Abd Al-Razzaq told us, he said, Mu'ammara told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven, he said: "He, may God bless him and grant him peace, would turn his face towards the heaven, loving that God the Almighty would turn him towards the Ka'bah, until God turned him towards it."

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Sa'eed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, "So the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray toward the Holy House, longing and desiring the qiblah toward the Sacred House, so God, may His praise be glorified, turned him toward the qiblah that he longed for and desired."

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told me, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, he said: Your gaze toward the heaven. "And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would turn his face in prayer while praying toward Jerusalem, and he used to desire the qiblah of the Sacred House, so God made him turn to the qiblah that he used to desire."

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi

He said: "People used to pray towards Jerusalem, but when the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) arrived in Medina eighteen months after his migration, whenever he prayed, he would raise his head to the sky to see what he was commanded to do. He used to pray towards Jerusalem, but the Kaaba abrogated it. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to love to pray towards the Kaaba, so God, the Most High, revealed: 'We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven' verse." Then there was a difference of opinion as to the reason why the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) preferred the direction of the Kaaba. Some of them said: He disliked the direction of the direction of Jerusalem because the Jews said: He follows our direction of the ... So he would call upon God, the Most High, and ask for the direction of the qiblah, so the verse was revealed: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram." - and the Jews' saying: He will oppose us and follow our qiblah! - was stopped in the noon prayer, so the men were made to replace the women, and the women were made to replace the men. Yunus told me, saying, "Ibn Wahb told us, saying, I heard him - meaning Ibn Zayd - say: God, the Most High, said to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: 'So wherever you turn, there is the Face of God' (al-Baqarah 2:115). He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: These are Jewish people facing one of the Houses of God - the Holy House - if we were to face it. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for sixteen months, and it reached him that the Jews were saying: By God, Muhammad and his companions did not know where their qiblah was until we guided them! The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, disliked that, and raised his face to the sky, and God, the Most High, said: 'We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. So turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram' [al-Masjid al-Haram], the verse." Others said: He liked that because it was the qiblah of his father, Abraham, peace be upon him. It was mentioned that he said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina, and most of its people were Jews, God Almighty commanded him to face

And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign, they would not follow your qiblah, nor will you be a follower of their qiblah, nor will some of them be a follower of the qiblah of others. And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, then indeed you would be among the wrongdoers.

Jerusalem. The Jews rejoiced, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, faced it for sixteen months. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved the direction of Abraham's qiblah. He used to supplicate and look at the sky, so God Almighty revealed: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven" (al-Masjid an-Nisa' 3:10). As for His statement: We will surely turn you to a qiblah that will please you, it means: We will turn you away from Jerusalem to a qiblah that will please you: that you desire and love. As for His statement: Turn your face, it means: turn your face and turn it around.

And his saying: half of the Sacred Mosque, he means by half, the grammar, the intention and the reception, as Al-Hudhali said:

It is difficult for her to see, and her eyes are full of grief.

He means by his saying: half of it, something like it, and as Ibn Ahmar said:

She runs with us towards the end, and she is knotted, and the knot has become tight from sending her to the ages.

And similar to what we have said about that, the people of interpretation said. Mention of those who said that: Sufyan ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah: Half of the Sacred Mosque, meaning: facing it. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah ibn Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali ibn Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Half of the Sacred Mosque, similar to it. Muhammad ibn Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Then turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque, similar to it. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, Mujahid, similarly. Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid bin Zari' narrated, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada: Then turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, meaning: towards al-Masjid al-Haram. Al-Husayn bin Yahya narrated, on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Then turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, he said: towards al-Masjid al-Haram. Al-Muthanna narrated, on the authority of Ishaq, on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': Then turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, meaning: towards it. Al-Qasim narrated, on the authority of al-Husayn, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he said: towards it, something like that.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Baraa: Then turn your faces towards it, he said: Before it. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: Its side, its direction, its side. He said: Its sides are its two sides. Then they differed regarding the place towards which God commanded His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to turn his face in the Sacred Mosque. Some of them said: The qiblah towards which the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned, and God meant it in His saying: We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased, facing the spout of the Kaaba. Those who said that mentioned: Abdullah bin Abi Ziyad told me, he said, Uthman told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', on the authority of Yahya bin Qumta, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr: We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased, facing the spout of the Kaaba. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Hisham told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', on the authority of Yahya bin Qamta, he said: I saw Abdullah bin Amr sitting in the Sacred Mosque facing the gutter, and he recited this verse: Then We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. He said: This qiblah, this is the qiblah. Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Husayn told us, he said: Hisham told us - with his chain of transmission on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, something similar - except that he said: He faced the gutter and said: This is the qiblah that God said to His Prophet: Then We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased. Others said: Rather, the entire House is a qiblah, and the qiblah of the House is the door. Those who said that: Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ata' ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The entire House is a qiblah, and this is the qiblah of the House - meaning the one in which the door is. Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in my opinion is what God, the Most High, said: Then turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, so the one who turns his face toward al-Masjid al-Haram is the one who has the correct qiblah. And it is upon the one who directs his intention toward it in his heart that he is facing it, just as it is upon the one who follows an imam, he is only obligated to follow him, even if his body is not in line with his body, and even if he is at the edge of the row and the imam is at another edge, on his right or his left, after being behind him following him, praying toward the direction that the imam is praying toward. And so is the ruling on the qiblah, even if every worshipper and his body is not in line with it, but he is facing it. If he is to her right or to her left, facing her, then he is facing her, after what is between him and her or close, from her right or to her left, after he is not turning his back to her or deviating from her with his body and face, as: Ahmad bin Ishaq al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Umairah bin Ziyad al-Kindi, on the authority of Ali: Then turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque, he said: Its side, its front. Abu Ja'far said: The qiblah of the House is its door, as: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim and al-Fadl bin al-Sabah told me, they said, Hisham told us, he said, 'Abd al-Malik told us, on the authority of 'Ata', he said, "Usamah bin Zaid said: I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he left the House, he turned his face toward the door, and he said: This is the qiblah, this is the qiblah." Ibn Humayd and Sufyan ibn Wakee' narrated, on the authority of Jarir, on the authority of Abdul Malik ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata', who said: Usamah ibn Zayd narrated to me: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out of the House and prayed two rak'ahs facing the Ka'bah, and said: This is the qiblah, twice." Abu Kurayb narrated, on the authority of Abdul Rahim ibn Sulayman, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Usamah ibn Zayd, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar. Saeed ibn Yahya al-Umawi narrated, on the authority of my father, who said: Ibn Jurayj narrated, who said: I said to Ata': I heard Ibn Abbas say: You were only commanded to perform tawaf and were not commanded to enter it. He said: He did not forbid entering it, but I heard him say: Usamah ibn Zayd informed me that when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered the House, he supplicated in all its corners, and did not pray until he came out. When he came out, he bowed two rak'ahs facing the qiblah and said: This is the qiblah. Abu Jaafar said: So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed us that the House is the qiblah, and that the qiblah of the House is its door.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God Almighty means: So wherever you are on the earth, O believers, turn your faces in your prayers toward the Sacred Mosque and toward it.

The letter ha in both parts refers to the Sacred Mosque. So, God Almighty made it obligatory for the believers, through this verse, to face the Sacred Mosque in their prayers, wherever they are on the land of God Almighty.

The letter fa was inserted in his statement: Then turn back as an answer to the condition. This is because his statement: Wherever you are is a condition and its meaning is: wherever you are, turn your faces towards it.

Abu Ja'far said: By His statement, may He be glorified, And those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord, He means the Jewish rabbis and Christian scholars. It has been said that He meant the Jews in particular. Those who said that: Musa ibn Harun told us, 'Amr ibn Hammad told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, And those who were given the Scripture, that was revealed about the Jews. And His statement, That they may know that it is the truth from their Lord, means these rabbis and scholars from the People of the Book, who know that facing the mosque is the truth that God Almighty imposed on Abraham and his descendants and all the servants after him. And by His statement, From their Lord, He meant that it is the duty incumbent upon the servants of God Almighty, and it is the truth from their Lord, which He imposed upon them. Abu Ja'far said: By this, the Blessed and Exalted means: And God is not unaware of what you do, O believers, in following His command, and adhering to His obedience in what He has imposed upon you of His obligations, and your belief in Him in your prayers toward the Holy House, and then your prayers after that toward the Sacred Mosque, nor is He heedless of it, but He, may His praise be glorified, counts it for you and stores it up for you with Him, until He rewards you for it with the best reward, and gives you the best recompense for it.

The Almighty said: And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign, they would not follow your qiblah because they disbelieved and the truth had become clear to them, and the signs, i.e. the marks, would not benefit them. The plural of qiblah in broken form is qabl. In taslim: qiblat. It is permissible to replace the kasra with a fatha, so you say qiblat. It is permissible to delete the kasra and make the ba sukun, so you say qiblat. And la'an is answered with the answer to law, and it is its opposite in that la'an requires the past and occurrence in its answer, and la'an requires the future. Al-Farra' and Al-Akhfash said: It is answered with the answer to law because the meaning is: And if you came. And likewise, law is answered with the answer to la'an, so you say: If you did well, I would do well to you. And similar to it is the Almighty's saying: And if We sent a wind and they saw it yellow, they would remain meaning, if We sent a wind. Sibawayh disagreed with them and said: The meaning of la'an is different from the meaning of law, so neither of them applies to the hereafter. The meaning is: And if you bring to those who were given the Scripture every sign and they do not follow your qiblah. Sibawayh said: The meaning of And if We sent a wind and they saw it yellow, they would surely go astray is they would surely go astray.

The Almighty's statement: And you will not follow their Qiblah is a statement and includes a command, meaning do not incline towards any of that. Then the Almighty informed us that the Jews do not follow the Qiblah of the Christians, nor do the Christians follow the Qiblah of the Jews, according to al-Suddi and Ibn Zayd. This is information about their differences, their mutual hatred, and their misguidance. Some people said: The meaning is that none of those who follow you from among those who have submitted to Islam will follow the Qiblah of one who has not submitted to Islam, nor will one who has not submitted to Islam follow the Qiblah of one who has submitted to Islam. The first is more apparent, and God Almighty knows best.

God the Almighty says: {And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, indeed, you would then be among the wrongdoers.} The address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is his nation, from among those who may follow their desires and thus become wrongdoers by following them. It is not permissible for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to do something that would make him a wrongdoer. It is based on the will of his nation due to the infallibility of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and we are certain that this would not be from him. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was addressed to magnify the matter and because it was revealed to him. Desires is the plural of desire, and this has been mentioned previously, and so has of knowledge as well, so there is no point in repeating it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells about the disbelief of the Jews, their stubbornness, and their opposition to what they know about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that if he had established against them every proof of the truth of what he brought to them, they would not have followed him and abandoned their desires, as the Almighty said: Indeed, those upon whom the word of your Lord has come into effect will not believe, even if every sign came to them until they see the painful punishment. That is why He said here, And even if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign, they would not follow your Qiblah. And His saying, And you will not follow their Qiblah, is a report of the intensity of the Messenger's following of what God the Almighty commanded him to do, and that just as they adhere to their opinions and desires, he also adheres to God's command, obedience to Him, and following what pleases Him, and that he does not follow their desires in all his circumstances, nor does he face Jerusalem because it is the Qiblah of the Jews, but rather that is by the command of God the Almighty. Then the Almighty warned against opposing the truth that the scholar knows to his desires, for the scholar's proof is more correct than anyone else's, and that is why He said, addressing the Messenger, and what is meant by that is the nation And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, then indeed you would be among the wrongdoers.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 145- And if you came This lam is an introduction to the oath, and the meaning is: By God, if you came. And his saying: They would not follow is the answer to the estimated oath. Al-Akhfash and Al-Farraa said: I answer if with the answer to if because the meaning is: And if you came, and similar to it is the saying of the Most High: And if We sent a wind and they saw it yellow, they would remain astray meaning, even if We sent, and they only said it this way because if is the opposite of if, and that is because the first requires in its answer the past and the occurrence, and if requires in its answer the future.

Sibawayh said: The meaning of if differs from the meaning of if, so one does not enter into the other, so the meaning is: And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign, they would not follow your direction. Sibawayh said: The meaning of and if We sent a wind and they saw it yellow is that they would remain astray. End. This verse contains great exaggeration and includes consolation for the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and to cheer him up, because these people are not affected by every verse, and they do not return to the truth even if it brings them every proof, let alone one proof. This is because they did not abandon following the truth because of a proof they had or because of a doubt that came to them, until they weighed what they had with what the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) brought and abandoned their misguidance when the truth became clear. Rather, their abandonment of the truth was rebellion and stubbornness, knowing that they were not on anything, and whoever is like this will never benefit from the proof. And His statement: And you will not follow their Qiblah This information could mean a prohibition from God the Almighty to His Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): that is, do not follow their Qiblah, O Muhammad. It could also be, on its surface, to repel the desires of the People of the Book and to cut off what they hope for from his (peace and blessings of God be upon him) return to the Qiblah he was on. His statement: And some of them do not follow the qiblah of others is information that the Jews and Christians, despite their eagerness to pledge allegiance to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, because of what they have, differ in their religion, even in this specific ruling that God Almighty related to His Messenger, for some of them do not follow others in facing their qiblah. It says in Al-Kashshaf: That is because the Jews face Jerusalem and the Christians face the rising of the sun. End quote. And His saying: And if you were to follow their desires to the end of the verse, contains a great threat and a powerful warning that makes the skin shudder and the heart tremble. If the inclination towards the desires of those who oppose this pure Shari'ah and the noble religion of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who is the master of the children of Adam, necessitates that he be, God forbid, among the oppressors, then what do you think of others from his nation? God has protected this Islamic sect, after the establishment of the age of Islam and the elevation of its beacon, from inclining towards any of the desires of the People of the Book. Nothing remains except a satanic plot and a tyrannical means, which is the inclination of some of those who bear God's proofs towards the desires of some groups of innovators, because of what they hope for of immediate ruin from their hands or prestige with them if they have power among the people, or if they are among those with influence. This inclination is not without that inclination, rather following the desires of the innovators is similar to following the desires of the People of the Book, just as water is similar to water, an egg is similar to an egg, and a date is similar to a date. The corruption of following the desires of the innovators may be more severe than these. The religion is one of the evils of following the whims of the people of religions, for the innovators belong to Islam, and they show to the people that they support those who follow the best of it, but they are the opposite of that and the opposite of what is there, so they continue to transfer whoever inclines to their whims from one innovation to another and push him from one abomination to another, until they strip him of the religion and expel him from it, while he thinks that he is from it in the core, and that the path he is on is the straight path. This is if he is among the deficient, and among the ignorant, and if he is among the people of knowledge and understanding who distinguish between truth and falsehood, then in his following their whims he is one of those whom God has shaded with knowledge and sealed his heart, and he has become a curse upon the servants of God and a calamity that God has poured upon the deficient, because they believe that in his knowledge and understanding he only inclines to the truth, and only follows what is correct, so they go astray because of his misguidance, so his sin and the sin of those who follow him will be upon him until the Day of Resurrection. We ask God for kindness, safety, and guidance.

145. The Almighty said: And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture meaning the Jews and Christians, they would say: Bring us a sign for what you say, so God Almighty said: And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture "every sign" a miracle they would not follow your qiblah meaning the Kaaba nor will you follow their qiblah, nor will some of them follow the qiblah of others because the Jews face Jerusalem, which is the West, and the Christians face the East, and the qiblah of the Muslims is the Kaaba.

Abu Uthman bin Ismail Al-Dhabi told us, Abu Muhammad Abdul-Jabbar bin Muhammad Al-Jarrah told us, Abu Al-Abbas Muhammad bin Ahmad Al-Mahboubi told us, Abu Isa Muhammad bin Isa Al-Tirmidhi told us, Al-Hasan bin Bakr Al-Marwazi told us, Al-Mualla bin Mansour told us, Abdullah bin Jaafar Al-Makhzami told us, on the authority of Uthman Al-Akhnasi, on the authority of Saeed Al-Maqburi, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: The qiblah is between the east and the west.

He meant by it the right of the people of the East, and he meant by the East: the east of winter on the shortest day of the year, and by the West: the west of summer on the longest day of the year, so whoever puts the west of summer at this time on his right and the east of winter on his left, his face would be towards the qiblah. And if you were to follow their desires: what they meant was the address to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant by it is the nation, after what has come to you of knowledge of the truth about the qiblah, then you would be among the wrongdoers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

145- And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign proof and argument that the Kaaba is a qiblah, and the lam is used to introduce an oath, they would not follow your qiblah is an answer to the implied oath, and the oath and its answer are the answer to the condition, and the meaning is they did not abandon your qiblah for a doubt that you remove with an argument, but they only opposed you out of stubbornness and obstinacy. And you are not a follower of their qiblah to cut off their desires, for they said: If you remained on our qiblah, we would hope that you would be our companion whom we are waiting for, to deceive him and hope that he would return, and their qiblahs, although multiple, are united in falsehood and opposition to the truth. And some of them are not a follower of the qiblah of others for the Jews face the rock, and the Christians face the rising of the sun. It is not expected that they will agree with you, just as it is not expected that they will agree with you, because each party is stubborn in what it is doing. And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, hypothetically and estimatingly, meaning: And if you were to follow them, for example, after the truth has become clear to you and revelation has come to you, then you would be among the wrongdoers. He emphasized his threat and exaggerated it in seven ways: First: Bringing the lam that introduces the oath. Second: The implied oath. Third: The letter of confirmation, which is that. Fourth: Its composition of a verbal sentence and a nominal sentence. Fifth: Bringing the lam in the report. Sixth: He made him one of the wrongdoers, and did not say that you are a wrongdoer because being included with them would give the impression of the occurrence of types of injustice. Seventh: The restriction to the coming of knowledge, in order to magnify the known truth, and to encourage people to follow it and warn against following desires, and to find it horrifying that sins are committed by prophets.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:146

Those to whom We gave the Scripture recognize him as they recognize their own sons. But indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:146

Those to whom We gave the Scripture recognize him as they recognize their own sons. But indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those to whom We gave the Scripture know him meaning Muhammad as they know their own sons by his description in their books. Ibn Salam said: I knew him when I saw him as I know my own son, and my knowledge of Muhammad is more intense. But indeed, a party of them conceal the truth his description while they know this is what you are upon.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And if you brought to those who were given the Scripture every sign, they would not follow your qiblah, nor would you follow their qiblah, nor would some of them follow the qiblah of others. Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Blessed is His name, means: And if you brought, O Muhammad, to the Jews and Christians every proof and argument - which is the verse - that the truth is what you brought them, of imposing the change from the qiblah of the Holy House in prayer to the qiblah of the Sacred Mosque, they would not believe in it, nor would they follow - despite the proof being established against them - your qiblah to which you changed, which is facing the direction of the Sacred Mosque. Abu Ja'far said: And the answer to if was given in the past tense of the verb, and its rule is the answer in the future, likening it to if, so it was answered in the same way that if is answered, due to the similarity of their meanings, and the explanation of what is similar to that has already passed. And the answer to if was given in the answer of oaths. The Arabs do not do this except in the recompense specifically, because the recompense is similar to the oath: each of them is not completed at the beginning except by its end, and is not completed alone, and is not valid except by what is confirmed by it after it. So when he began with the oath and it was introduced into the recompense, the first lam became like an oath, and the second like an answer to it, as it was said: By your life you will stand up, since the lam was repeated in the word by your life, until it became like one of its letters, so it was answered with what oaths are answered with, since the lam replaces oaths in oaths, without the other letters, except for the one that is most deserving of it, the oaths. So it indicates oaths, and works like answers, and the rest of the answers to oaths do not indicate oaths for us. So the lam in the answer to oaths was likened to oaths, for what we have described, so it was answered with its answers. The meaning of the statement - since the matter was as we have described - was: If you brought to those who were given the Book every sign, they would not follow your qiblah. As for his statement: And you are not a follower of their qiblah, he says: And you have no way, O Muhammad, to follow their qiblah. This is because the Jews face Jerusalem in their prayers, and the Christians face the east, so how can you have a way to follow their qiblah, despite their different faces? He says: So stick to your qiblah that you were ordered to face, and leave what the Jews and Christians say and call you to about their qiblah and facing it. As for his statement: And some of them are not followers of the qiblah of others, he means by his statement: And the Jews are not followers of the qiblah of the Christians.

Nor are the Christians following the qiblah of the Jews, so they face it, as: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And some of them do not follow the qiblah of others, meaning: The Jews do not follow the qiblah of the Christians, nor do the Christians follow the qiblah of the Jews. He said: This verse was revealed because when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned towards the Kaaba, the Jews said: Muhammad longs for the land of his father and his birth, and if he had remained on our qiblah, we would have hoped that he would be the one we are waiting for! So God, the Almighty, revealed about them: And those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord until His saying: They conceal the truth while they know. Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said in His saying: And some of them do not follow the qiblah of others, something similar. Rather, God, the Most High, meant by that: that the Jews and Christians do not come together on one qiblah, while each one establishes

A party of them on their religion. So the Almighty said to His Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him: O Muhammad, do not let yourself feel that you are pleasing these Jews and Christians, for that is something that cannot be achieved. Because with their different religions, there is no way for you to please every party of them. Because if you follow the qiblah of the Jews, you will anger the Christians, and if you follow the qiblah of the Christians, you will anger the Jews. So leave what cannot be achieved, and call them to what they have a way to, which is to unite on your pure, Muslim religion, and your qiblah is the qiblah of Abraham and the prophets after him. The statement in the interpretation of the words of the Almighty: And if you were to follow their desires after what has come to you of knowledge, indeed, you would be among the wrongdoers. Abu Ja'far said: What He means by His words, the Almighty: And if you were to follow their desires, is that if you sought, O Muhammad, the pleasure of these Jews and Christians, who said to you and your companions: Be Jews or Christians and you will be guided, then you followed their qiblah - meaning: you returned to their qiblah. What he means by his saying: After what has come to you of knowledge, after what has come to you of knowledge, by informing you that they are persisting in falsehood, and in their stubbornness towards the truth, and their knowledge that the qiblah towards which I have directed you is the qiblah which was imposed upon your father Abraham, peace be upon him, and all his descendants after him from the messengers - facing towards it, then you will be among the wrongdoers, meaning: If you do that, then you will be among My servants who are wrongdoers themselves, who disobey My command, and abandon My obedience, and one of them, and among them.

God Almighty says: "Those to whom We gave the Scripture know him as they know their own sons. But indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know."

God the Almighty said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know him as they know their own sons. "Those" is in the nominative case as the subject and the predicate is they know him. It is also correct for it to be in the accusative case as an attribute of the wrongdoers, and they know is in the circumstantial case, meaning they know his prophethood and the truth of his message. The pronoun refers to Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, as stated by Mujahid, Qatada, and others. It was said: They know that changing the Qiblah from Jerusalem to the Kaaba is true, as stated by Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jurayj, Ar-Rabi', and Qatada as well. He mentioned sons specifically in the knowledge, not souls, even though they are more closely related, because a period of time passes by a person in which he does not know himself, and no time passes by in which he does not know his son. It was narrated that Umar said to Abdullah ibn Salam: Do you know Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, as you know your son? He said: Yes, and more. God sent His trustworthy one in His heaven to His trustworthy one on His earth with his description, so I recognized him, but I do not know what happened to my son from his mother.

The Almighty said: And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as stated by Mujahid, Qatada, and Khasif. It was also said: facing the Kaaba, as we mentioned earlier.

The Almighty's saying: And they knew is clear in the validity of disbelief out of stubbornness, and similar to it is: And they denied it, although their souls were convinced thereof. And His saying: But when there came to them that which they recognized, they disbelieved in it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty tells us that the scholars of the People of the Book know the truth of what the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) brought to them as one of them knows his own son, and the Arabs used to give an example of the truth of something with this, as stated in the hadith: "The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to a man with a young son of yours, 'Is this your son?' He said, 'Yes, O Messenger of God, I bear witness to that.' He said, 'As for him, he will not harm you nor will he harm him.'" Al-Qurtubi said: It is narrated on the authority of Umar that he said to Abdullah bin Salam, 'Do you know Muhammad as you know your son?' He said, 'Yes and more. The trustworthy one descended from the heavens to the trustworthy one on earth with his description, so I recognized him, and I do not know what happened to his mother.' I said It may be that what is meant is, 'They recognize him as they recognize their own sons,' from among the sons of all people. No one would doubt or hesitate to recognize his son if he saw him from among the sons of all people. Then the Almighty informed us that despite this scientific verification and mastery, they conceal the truth, meaning they conceal from people what is in their books about the description of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, while they know. Then the Almighty confirmed His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the believers and informed them that what the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought is the truth in which there is no doubt or suspicion, so He said: The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among the doubters.

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 146- Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it. It was said: The pronoun refers to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: that is, they know his prophethood. This was narrated from Mujahid, Qatadah, and a group of scholars. It was also said: They know the change of the qibla from Jerusalem to the Kaaba by the method we mentioned earlier, and a group of commentators said the same, and the author of Al-Kashshaf preferred the first. In my opinion, the other is preferred, as indicated by the context for which these verses were cited. And His statement: So that they may conceal the truth is, according to the people of the first opinion, the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and according to the people of the second opinion, facing the Kaaba.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

146. The Almighty said: Those to whom We have given the Scripture meaning the believers of the People of the Scripture, Abdullah bin Salam and his companions recognize him meaning they know Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as they know their own sons among the boys. Omar bin Al-Khattab said to Abdullah bin Salam that God has revealed to His Prophet Those to whom We have given the Scripture know him as they know their own sons. How is this knowledge? Abdullah said: O Omar, I recognized him when I saw him as I recognized my own son, and my recognition of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is stronger than my recognition of my own son. Omar said: How is that? He said: I bear witness that he is the Messenger of

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:146

Those to whom We gave the Scripture recognize him as they recognize their own sons. But indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know.

God, truly from God Almighty, and God has described him in our Book, and I do not know what women do. Omar said: May God guide you, O Ibn Salam, for you have spoken the truth. And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth meaning the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the matter of the Kaaba while they know. Then he said: 146- Those to whom We gave the Scripture meaning their scholars know him the pronoun refers to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, even though it was not mentioned previously because the speech indicates it. It was said that it refers to knowledge, or the Qur'an, or transformation as they know their sons testifies to the first: that is, they know him by his descriptions as they know their sons, they do not confuse them with others. On the authority of Omar, may God be pleased with him, that he asked Abdullah bin Salam, may God be pleased with him, about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: I know him better than I know my son. He said: Why? He said: Because I do not doubt that Muhammad is a prophet. As for my son, perhaps his mother has betrayed him. And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know is a specification for those who are obstinate and an exception for those who believe.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

Surat al-Baqarah 2:147

The truth is from your Lord, so never be among the doubters.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among those who doubt it, that is, of this type, for it is more eloquent than do not doubt.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Those to whom We gave the Scripture know him as they know their own sons.

Abu Ja'far said: What God Almighty means by His statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons. He says: These Jewish rabbis and Christian scholars know that the Sacred House is their Qiblah and the Qiblah of Abraham and the Qiblah of the prophets before you, just as they know their own sons, as Bishr bin Mu'adh told us: He said: Yazid bin Zurai' told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons, he says: They know that the Sacred House is the Qiblah.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abdullah bin Abi Jaafar told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding the statement of God, the Almighty: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons, meaning: the qiblah. I was told by Ammar bin Al-Hasan, he said, Ibn Abi Jaafar told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding his statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons, they knew that the qiblah of the Sacred House was their qiblah that they were commanded to follow, just as they knew their own sons. Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons, meaning by that: the Kaaba, the Sacred House. Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Those to whom We gave the Scripture know it as they know their own sons, they knew that the Kaaba is the qiblah of the prophets, just as they knew their own sons. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture recognize him as they recognize their own sons, he said: The Jews recognize that it is the qiblah, Mecca. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said regarding His statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture recognize him as they recognize their own sons, he said: The qiblah and the House. The statement on the interpretation of the statement of God Almighty: And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty says: And indeed, a party of those who were given the Scripture - and they are the Jews and Christians. And Mujahid used to say: They are the People of the Scripture.

Muhammad ibn Amr - meaning al-Bahili - told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, that is. Al-Qasim told us, he said, al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, similarly. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, similarly. Abu Ja'far said: And His statement, that they may conceal the truth, - and that truth is the qiblah - towards which God, the Almighty, directed His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace - means: So turn your face towards the Sacred Mosque, towards which the prophets before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to face, but the Jews and Christians concealed it, so some of them turned east, and some towards Jerusalem, and they rejected what God commanded them to do, and they concealed the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, even though they found it written with them in the Torah and the Gospel. God the Almighty informed His Prophet Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his nation about their betrayal of God the Blessed and Exalted, and their betrayal of His servants, and their concealment of that, and He informed that they were doing what they were doing knowing that the truth was not Him, and that what was required of them by God the Most High was the opposite of Him, so He said: that they conceal the truth while they know, that they were not allowed to conceal it, so they deliberately disobeyed God the Blessed and Exalted, as: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know, so they concealed Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: that they conceal the truth while they know, he said: they concealed Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him), although they found it written with them in the Torah and the Gospel. Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq bin Al-Hajjaj told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah: And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know, meaning the qiblah.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: The truth is from your Lord means facing the Kaaba, not what the Jews told you about their qiblah. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he read the truth in the accusative case with they know meaning they know the truth. It is correct to put it in the accusative case with the assumption that the truth is binding. And the nominative case is in the beginning or with the implied subject, and the estimation is it is the truth, or with the implied verb, meaning the truth has come to you. An-Nahhas said: As for what is in Al-Anbiya' the truth is they are turning away we do not know of anyone who read it except in the accusative case, and the difference between them is that what is in Surat Al-Baqarah is the beginning of a verse, and what is in Al-Anbiya' is not like that.

The Almighty said: So do not be among the doubters meaning among the doubters. The address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is his nation. It is said: So-and-so had doubts about something if he was faced with certainty at one time and doubt at another, so he repelled one of them with the other. And from this comes the word murā' because each one of them doubts the statement of the other. And doubting something means doubting it, and so is arguing. Al-Tabari recited as evidence that the doubters are the doubters the saying of Al-A'sha:

The fastest way to run is to see the mirage

Ibn Atiyah said: He made a mistake in this, because Abu Ubaidah and others said: Those who doubt the verse are those who pass the horses with their feet, humming to make them run, as if they were milking the running from them, and there is no meaning of doubt in the verse, as al-Tabari said.

I said: The meaning of doubt is present, because it is possible that the horse is being tested by its owner to see if it is running as he is used to, lest something happen to it, or this may be when he first buys it, so he makes it run to see how much it runs. Al-Jawhari said: And you exhort the horse if you extract what it has of running with a whip or something else. The noun is mariyah with a kasrah, and it may be with a damma. And you exorcise the she-camel with a damma: if you wipe its udder to make it produce milk. And you exorcise her if her milk flows, and the noun is mariyah with a kasrah, and the damma is a mistake. And mariyah is doubt, and it may be with a damma, and both are recited with it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty tells us that the scholars of the People of the Book know the truth of what the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) brought to them as one of them knows his own son, and the Arabs used to give an example of the truth of something with this, as stated in the hadith: "The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to a man with a young son of yours, 'Is this your son?' He said, 'Yes, O Messenger of God, I bear witness to that.' He said, 'As for him, he will not harm you nor will he harm him.'" Al-Qurtubi said: It is narrated on the authority of Umar that he said to Abdullah bin Salam, 'Do you know Muhammad as you know your son?' He said, 'Yes and more. The trustworthy one descended from the heavens to the trustworthy one on earth with his description, so I recognized him, and I do not know what happened to his mother.' I said It may be that what is meant is, 'They recognize him as they recognize their own sons,' from among the sons of all people. No one would doubt or hesitate to recognize his son if he saw him from among the sons of all people. Then the Almighty informed us that despite this scientific verification and mastery, they conceal the truth, meaning they conceal from people what is in their books about the description of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, while they know. Then the Almighty confirmed His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the believers and informed them that what the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought is the truth in which there is no doubt or suspicion, so He said: The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among the doubters.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 147- The truth is from your Lord may mean the first truth, and it may mean the type of truth as the predicate of a deleted subject or a subject and its predicate is his saying: from your Lord, meaning the truth is that which is from your Lord and not from anyone else. Ali bin Abi Talib read the truth in the accusative case as a substitute for the first or in the accusative case for enticement, meaning adhere to the truth. And his saying: So do not be among those who doubt is addressed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and doubt is suspicion. God Almighty forbade him from doubting whether it is the truth from his Lord, or whether they concealed the truth despite their knowledge. According to the first, it is an exposition of the nation: meaning that no one from his nation should be among those who doubt, because he, may God bless him and grant him peace, does not doubt that it is the truth from God Almighty.

Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Al-Bara' who said: We prayed with the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) towards Jerusalem for eighteen months, and the qiblah was changed to the Kaaba two months after he entered Medina. When the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) prayed towards Jerusalem, he would often turn his face towards the sky. God knew in the heart of His Prophet that he loved the Kaaba, so Gabriel ascended and the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) would follow him with his eyes as he ascended between heaven and earth, watching what he would bring him. Then God revealed: We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven (al-Baqarah 2:14). The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: O Gabriel, how are we in our prayer towards Jerusalem? Then God revealed: And God would never let your faith go to waste. At-Tabarani narrated it from the hadith of Muadh in an abbreviated form, but he said: seventeen months. Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, At-Tabarani in al-Kabir, and Al-Hakim narrated it and authenticated it on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr regarding the words of God the Almighty: Then We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased (al-Baqarah 2:14), he said: The qiblah of Abraham was towards the gutter. And Abd ibn Humayd, Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Baraa' concerning his statement: Then turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram, he said: In front of it. And Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim who authenticated it, and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ali something similar. And Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: In front of it something similar. And Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Mujahid something similar. And Ibn Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah who said: In front of Al-Masjid Al-Haram means facing it. And Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The entire House is a qiblah and the qiblah of the House is the door. And Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on his authority that it was transmitted with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet who said: The House is a qiblah for the people of the mosque and the mosque is a qiblah for the people of the Haram and the Haram is a qiblah for the people of the earth in its east and west from my nation. And Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi concerning his statement: And those who were given the Scripture, he said: This was revealed concerning the Jews. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: That they may know that it is the truth, he said: He means the Qiblah. Abu Dawud narrated in his Naskh and Ibn Jarir on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah something similar. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement: And some of them do not follow the Qiblah of others, he said: The Jews do not follow the Qiblah of the Christians, nor do the Christians follow the Qiblah of the Jews. Abd Al-Razzaq, Abd Ibn Humayd, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement: Those to whom We gave the Scripture, he said: The Jews and the Christians recognize him, he said: They recognize the Messenger of God in their book as they recognize their own sons. Abd Ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority regarding his statement: recognize him, meaning they know that the Sacred House is the Qiblah. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Al-Rabi'. Abd Ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement: And indeed, a party of them conceal the truth while they know, he said: They conceal Muhammad even though they find him written with them in the Torah and the Gospel. Abu Dawud included in his Naskh and Ibn Jarir on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah who said: God said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among those who doubt. He said: Do not be in doubt, O Muhammad, that the Kaaba is your qiblah, and it was the qiblah of the prophets before you.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

147. The truth is from your Lord meaning this truth is the predicate of an implied subject. It was said that it was raised by implying a verb, meaning the truth has come to you from your Lord. So do not be among the doubters the doubters.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

147- The truth is from your Lord is a new statement, and the truth is either a subject whose predicate is from your Lord and the lam is for the covenant, and the reference is to what the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, is upon, or the truth that they conceal, or for the genus. The meaning is that the truth is what has been proven to be from God Almighty, like what you are upon, not what has not been proven, like what the People of the Book are upon, or its predicate is a deleted subject, meaning it is the truth. And from your Lord is a state, or a predicate after a predicate. It was read in the accusative as a substitute for the first, or the object of they know "so do not be among the doubters" who doubt that it is from your Lord, or in their concealment of the truth while knowing it, and what is not meant by it is a prohibition of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, from doubting it, because it is not expected from him and is not intentional or chosen, but rather either the realization of the matter and that it is such that no observer doubts it, or a command to the nation to acquire knowledge that removes doubt in the most eloquent way.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:148

And for each is a direction toward which he turns, so race to [do] good deeds. Wherever you may be, Allah will bring you all together. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.

And for each is a direction toward which he turns, so race to [do] good deeds. Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together. Indeed, God is over all things competent.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And for each of the nations is a direction a qibla towards which he turns his face in his prayer, and in the reading its master so race to do good deeds hasten to do acts of obedience and have them accepted wherever you may be, God will bring you all together if He gathers you on the Day of Resurrection and rewards you for your deeds Indeed, God is over all things competent

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among the doubters.

The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among the doubters. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means: Know, O Muhammad, that the truth is what your Lord has taught you and has given you from Him, not what the Jews and Christians say to you. This is report from God Almighty to His Prophet, peace be upon him, that the qiblah towards which he was directed is the true qiblah which Abraham, the friend of the Most Merciful, and the prophets of God Almighty followed after him. God Almighty says to him: So act according to the truth which has come to you from your Lord, O Muhammad, and do not be among the doubters. He means by His words: So do not be among the doubters, that is: Do not be among those who doubt that the qiblah towards which I have directed you is the qiblah of Abraham, my friend, peace be upon him, and the qiblah of the prophets other than him, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told me, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi'

He said: God Almighty said to His Prophet, peace be upon him: The truth is from your Lord, so do not be among the doubters, meaning: Do not be in doubt, for it is your Qiblah and the Qiblah of the prophets before you. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: So do not be among the doubters, he said: Among the doubters, he said: Do not doubt that. Abu Ja'far said: The doubter is a verbal noun, from the word marayah, and marayah means doubt, and from it is the saying of

It makes the markets of the passers-by run, if the mirage sways

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: Was the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, doubting that the truth was from his Lord, or that the qiblah towards which God directed him was the truth from God, the Most High, to the extent that he was forbidden from doubting that, and it was said to him: So do not be among those who doubt? It would be said: This is one of the statements that the Arabs use as a command or a prohibition to the one being addressed, but what is meant by it is someone else, as God, the Most High, said: O Prophet, fear God and do not obey the disbelievers and the hypocrites (al-Ahzab 33:1). He said: "And follow what is revealed to you from your Lord. Indeed, God is ever, with what you do, Acquainted" (al-Ahzab 33:2). So the statement was used as a command to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a prohibition to him, and what is meant by it are his believing companions. We have already explained something similar to that before, so there is no need to repeat it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has four issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And for each is a direction. The weight of the word direction is fa'la from the word confrontation. Direction, direction, and face have the same meaning, and what is meant is the qiblah, meaning that they do not follow your qiblah and you do not follow their qiblah. And for each there is a direction either by right or by desire.

The second: The Almighty's saying: He is its Master refers back to the word all not to its meaning, because if it had been in the meaning, He would have said: They turn their faces to it, so the ha' and the alif are the first object and the second object is omitted, meaning He turns his face and himself to it. The meaning is: And for every follower of a religion there is a qiblah, the follower of the qiblah turns his face to it, according to the word all, and this is the saying of al-Rabi', Ata' and Ibn Abbas. And Ali bin Sulayman said: Its Master means its one who turns to it. Ibn Abbas and Ibn Amir read its Master without naming its agent. The pronoun in this reading refers to one, meaning that for every one of the people there is a qiblah, the one is its Master, meaning he is turned to it, as al-Zajaj said. It is possible that in the reading of the group it is the pronoun of the name of God, the Almighty, even if it is not mentioned, since it is known that God, the Almighty, is the agent of that, and the meaning is: For every follower of a religion there is a qiblah, God turns it to him. At-Tabari narrated that some people read: And for every follower of a religion there is a qiblah, by adding all to direction. Ibn Atiyah said: Al-Tabari made a mistake in it, and it is directed, meaning, so race to do good deeds in every direction and do not contradict them, and do not object in what you are commanded between this and that, meaning, you are only required to obey in all of them. He presented his statement, and for every direction before the command in his statement, so race to do good deeds to emphasize the direction, just as the object is presented. Abu Amr Al-Dani mentioned this reading from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both. The way was left in wayhah to differentiate between several weights, because wayhah is a circumstance, and those are verbal nouns. Abu Ali said: Some people went to the fact that it is a verbal noun that deviated from the analogy, so it was left. Some people went to the fact that it is a noun and not a verbal noun. Other than Abu Ali said: If you want the verbal noun, you say wayhah, and wayhah may be said in the circumstance.

Second: The Almighty's statement: So race to do good deeds meaning to do good deeds. The letter was omitted, meaning hasten to do what God the Almighty has commanded you of facing the Sacred House, even though it includes the urging to hasten and rush to all acts of obedience in general, so what is meant is what was mentioned about facing due to the context of the verse. The intended meaning is to hasten to pray at the beginning of its time, and God the Almighty knows best. An-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with him that the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: "The example of one who migrates to prayer is like the example of one who offers a camel, then the one who follows him is like the one who offers a cow, then the one who follows him is like the one who offers a ram, then the one who follows him is like the one who offers a chicken, then the one who follows him is like the one who offers an egg." Ad-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with him who said: "The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: One of you prays the prayer at its time and has left from the first time what is better for him than his family and his wealth." Malik narrated it on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed. Al-Darqutni also narrated on the authority of Ibn Omar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The best of deeds is prayer at the beginning of its time. And in the hadith of Ibn Masoud:

The first of its time with the omission of in. It was also narrated on the authority of Ibrahim bin Abdul Malik on the authority of Abu Mahdhura on the authority of his father on the authority of his grandfather who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The beginning of the time is the pleasure of God, the middle of the time is the mercy of God, and the end of the time is the forgiveness of God. Ibn al-Arabi added: Abu Bakr said: The pleasure of God is more beloved to us than His forgiveness, for His pleasure is with the good-doers and His forgiveness is with the negligent. This is the choice of al-Shafi'i. Abu Hanifa said: The end of the time is better, because it is the time of obligation. As for Malik, he made the final statement. As for the dawn and sunset prayers, the beginning of the time is better for them. As for the dawn prayer, it is because of the hadith of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said:

"If the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would pray the dawn prayer, the women would leave wrapped in their cloaks, and they would not be recognized because of the darkness" - in one narration - wrapped up. As for the sunset prayer, it is according to the hadith of Salamah ibn al-Akwa':

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to pray Maghrib when the sun had set and was hidden by the veil." Both of them were narrated by Muslim. As for the Isha prayer, delaying it is better for those who are able to do so. Ibn Umar narrated: We waited one night for the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to pray the last Isha prayer. He came out to us when a third of the night had passed or after that. We do not know whether he was occupied with his family or something else. When he came out, he said: You are waiting for a prayer that no other religion awaits. Were it not that it would be too much for my Ummah, I would have led them in prayer at this hour." And in Bukhari, on the authority of Anas, he said:

"The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) delayed the 'Isha' prayer until midnight, then he prayed..." and mentioned the hadeeth. Abu Barzah said: The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) preferred to delay it. As for the noon prayer, it comes to people by surprise, so it is recommended to delay it a little so that they can prepare and gather. Abu al-Faraj said: Malik said: The beginning of the time is better for every prayer except for the noon prayer in intense heat. Ibn Abi Uways said: Malik disliked praying the noon prayer at noon, but after that, and he said that is the prayer of the Khawarij. In Saheeh al-Bukhari and Saheeh al-Tirmidhi, "On the authority of Abu Dharr al-Ghifari, who said: We were with the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) on a journey, and the muezzin wanted to call the noon prayer, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Cool down. Then he wanted to call the adhan, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Cool down until we saw the shade of the hills, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Intense heat is from the breath of Hell, so when the heat becomes intense, cool down with prayer." In Saheeh Muslim, on the authority of Anas, the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said:

He used to pray Dhuhr when the sun had passed its zenith. What unites the two hadiths is what Anas narrated, that he should cool down the prayer, and if it was cold, he should hasten it. Abu 'Eisa al-Tirmidhi said: Some scholars preferred to delay Dhuhr prayer in intense heat, and this is the opinion of Ibn al-Mubarak, Ahmad and Ishaq. Ash-Shafi'i said: Cooling down the Dhuhr prayer is only if there is a mosque whose people are affected by it from a distance. As for the one who prays alone and the one who prays in the mosque of his people, what I prefer for him is not to delay the prayer in intense heat. Abu 'Eisa said: The meaning of those who went to delay Dhuhr in intense heat is more appropriate and more similar to the followers. As for what Ash-Shafi'i may God have mercy on him went to, that the concession is for the one who is affected by it from the servant and for the hardship on the people, then in the hadith of Abu Dharr may God be pleased with him there is what indicates the opposite of what Ash-Shafi'i said. Abu Dharr said: We were with the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) on a journey, and Bilal called the Dhuhr prayer, so the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: O Bilal, cool down, then cool down. If the matter was as Al-Shafi'i believed, then delaying the prayer at that time would have had no meaning, because they had gathered while traveling and they did not need to come back from far away. As for the afternoon prayer, bringing it forward is better. There is no disagreement in our school of thought that delaying the prayer in the hope of praying in congregation is better than praying it forward, because the virtue of praying in congregation is known, but the virtue of the beginning of the time is unknown, and attaining what is known is better, as Ibn Al-Arabi said.

And for each is a direction toward which he turns, so race to [do] good deeds. Wherever you may be, Allah will bring you all together. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Wherever you may be is a condition, and its answer is: God will bring you all together, meaning on the Day of Resurrection. Then He described Himself, the Almighty, as having the power over all things, in order to fit the description with what was mentioned about the return after death and decay.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And to each is a direction towards which he turns, meaning by that the people of religions, he says that each tribe has a qiblah that they are pleased with, and the direction of God is where the believers turn. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: The Jew has a direction towards which he turns, and the Christian has a direction towards which he turns, and He has guided you, O nation, to the qiblah which is the qiblah. It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ata', Ad-Dahhak, Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas and As-Suddi something similar to this. Mujahid said in the other narration, and Al-Hasan ordered every people to pray towards the Kaaba. Ibn Abbas, Abu Ja'far Al-Baqir and Ibn Amir read: And for each is a direction towards which he turns. This verse is similar to the words of God Almighty: "To each of you We prescribed a law and a method. Had God willed, He would have made you one community, but that He might test you in what He has given you. So race to [do] good. To God is your return all together." And He said here: "Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together. Indeed, God is over all things competent." That is, He is able to gather you from the earth, even if your bodies and bodies are scattered.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 148- And for each with the deletion of the complement due to the indication of the tanween on it: meaning for each people of a religion there is a direction, and the direction is a verb from the face and its meaning is direction and face, and what is meant is the qiblah: meaning that they do not follow your qiblah and you do not follow their qiblah. And for each either rightly or wrongly, and the pronoun in his statement:

He turns it refers to the word each. The ha' in his statement: Turning it is the first object, and the second object is deleted: meaning turning its face. The meaning is: that for each follower of a religion there is a qiblah of the follower of the qiblah turning his face to it, or for each of you, O nation of Muhammad, there is a qiblah towards which he prays from the east or west or south or north if the address is to the Muslims - and it is possible that the pronoun refers to God, the Most High, even if He is not mentioned, since it is known that God is the doer of that, and the meaning is: that for each follower of a religion there is a qiblah of God turning it to him. Al-Tabari narrated that some people read wa lakul wajha with the addition of wa lakul for each direction, and Abu Amr al-Dani attributed this reading to Ibn Abbas. He said in al-Kashaf: The meaning is: And every direction is God's direction, so the lam was added to precede the object, like you saying to Zayd, I hit and to Zayd's father hit him. End. Ibn Abbas and Ibn Amir read: his master for what the agent was not named. Al-Zajjaj said: The pronoun, according to this innocence, refers to one: that is, for each one of the people, the direction of the One is its master: that is, he is directed towards it. And His statement: So race to good deeds means to good deeds, by deletion and connection: that is, hasten to what God has commanded you of facing the Sacred House, as the context indicates, even though its apparent meaning is a command to race to everything that is true to be good, as the generality derived from the definition of good deeds indicates. What is meant by racing to face is racing to prayer at the beginning of its time. The meaning of his saying: Wherever you may be, God will bring you is that wherever you may be, God will bring you for recompense on the Day of Resurrection, or He will gather you all together, and He will make your prayers in different directions as if they were in one direction.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

148. The Almighty said: And for every direction meaning for the people of every religion there is a qiblah, and direction is the name of the one who is directed towards it. He is its master meaning he faces it and approaches it. It is said: I turned towards him and I turned away from him if you turned towards him, and I turned away from him if you turned away from him. Mujahid said: He is its master, and Al-Akhfash said: It is a metaphor for God Almighty, meaning God is the master of the nations towards their qiblah. Ibn Amir read: its master meaning: the one who faces is turned towards it. So race to do good deeds meaning to do good deeds, meaning: hasten to do acts of obedience, and what is meant is hastening to accept. Wherever you may be you and the People of the Book. God will bring you all together on the Day of Resurrection and reward you for your deeds. Indeed, God is over all things competent.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

148- And for every direction and for every nation a direction, or for every group of Muslims a direction and side of the Kaaba, and the tanween is a substitute for the addition He is its master one of the two objects is omitted, meaning He is its master, or God Almighty is its master. And it was read: And for every direction with the addition, and the meaning is that every direction God is its master, and the lam is added for emphasis to compensate for the weakness of the agent. Ibn Amir read: its master meaning he is the master of that direction, meaning he has taken charge of it. So race to do good deeds such as facing the qiblah and other things that will bring happiness in both worlds, or the virtuous directions, which are those parallel to the Kaaba. Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together meaning: in whatever place you may be, whether in agreement or disagreement, where parts are united or separated, God will gather you to the place of assembly for recompense. Or wherever you may be in the depths of the earth or the tops of mountains, He will take your souls. Or wherever you may be in the opposite directions, God will bring you all together and make your prayers as if they are in one direction. Indeed, God is over all things competent so He is able to cause death, give life, and bring together.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:149

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:149

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And wherever you go out for a journey (turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do) with the ta' and the ya'. A similar example was presented, and it was repeated to clarify the equality of the ruling on travel and other things.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And for each is a direction toward which he turns. Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by the Almighty's saying: And for each, is for each of the people of a religion, so He omitted, the people of the religion, and was satisfied with the indication of the speech to it, as: Muhammad ibn 'Amr told me, he said, Abu 'Asim told us, he said, 'Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn

Abu Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: And for each is a direction, he said: For each follower of a religion. Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada: And for each is a direction toward which he turns, so the Jew has a direction toward which he turns, and the Christian has a direction toward which he turns, and God Almighty has guided you, O nation, to the qiblah which is the qiblah.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, I said to Ata', regarding his statement: And for each is a direction towards which he turns, he said: For every people of a religion, the Jews and the Christians, Ibn Jurayj said, Mujahid said: For every follower of a religion. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: And for each is a direction towards which he turns, he said: For the Jews there is a qiblah, and for the Christians there is a qiblah, and for you there is a qiblah, meaning the Muslims.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And for each is a direction towards which he turns, meaning the people of religions. He says: for each qiblah they are pleased with, and the face of God, the Blessed and Exalted, is where the believers turn. This is because God, the Most High, said: "So wherever you turn, there is the face of God. Indeed, God is All-Encompassing and Knowing." (al-Baqarah 2:115). Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And for each is a direction towards which he turns, meaning: for each people a qiblah that they have turned. So the interpretation of the people of this statement in this verse: and for each people of a religion a qiblah that he faces, and turns his face towards it. Others said what: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And for each is a direction towards which he turns, he said: It is their prayers towards the Holy House, and their prayers towards the Kaaba. The interpretation of the speaker of this article: And to every direction toward which your Lord turns, O Muhammad, is a direction of prayer, God Almighty is its master for His servants.

As for the direction, it is a source like sitting and walking, from the direction and its interpretation is: directed, he directs his face towards it in his prayer, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Facade means qibla.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada:

And for every direction, he said: A direction. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: His direction, a qiblah. Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, he said, I said to Mansur: And for every direction he turns, he said: We recite it, and for each We have made a qiblah that pleases them. As for his saying: He turns it, it means he turns his face toward it and faces it, as:

Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: He is her master, he said: He is facing her. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. The meaning of turning away here is approaching, as someone says to someone else: He turned to me, meaning: He came to me. The turning away that is used is turning away from something. Then it is said: He turned to something, meaning: He came to it, turning away from me. Likewise, it is said: I turned away from it, if you turned away from it. Then it is said: I turned to it, meaning I approached it, turning away from someone else. The verb—I mean turning away—in His statement: He is her master refers to all of them. And it is that which is with its master, it is the whole, and it was used alone for the wording of the whole. So the meaning of the statement then is: And for every people of a religion there is a direction, and all of them turn their faces towards it. It has been narrated from Ibn Abbas and others that they read it: He is its master, meaning that he is directed towards it. And the whole then would not have a named agent, and if its agent had been named, the statement would have been: And for every person of a religion there is a direction, God is his master towards it, meaning: He directs him towards it. It has been mentioned from some of them that he read it: And for every direction without the tanween and the addition, and that is a mistake, and it is not permissible to read it like that. Because that - if it is read like that - the report is not complete and it is a statement without meaning. And that is not permissible to be from God, may He be glorified. And the correct reading in our view in that is: And for every direction he is its master, meaning: And for every direction and qiblah.

That is all, his face is turned towards it. For the consensus of the proof of the reciters on reading it thus, and correcting it, and the deviation of those who disagreed with that to something else, and what came with the transmission abundantly is proof, and what was isolated from those who were allowed to forget and make a mistake, it is not permissible to object to the proof with it. The statement in the interpretation of the saying of the Most High: So race in good deeds Abu Ja'far said: The Most High meant by His saying: So race in good deeds, so they hastened and hastened, from racing, which is

Initiative and haste, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: So hasten to do good deeds, meaning: So hasten to do good deeds. What he means by his statement: So hasten to do good deeds, is: I have made clear to you, O believers, the truth, and guided you to the Qiblah from which the Jews, Christians, and all the people of other religions have turned away, so hasten to do good deeds, in gratitude to your Lord, and provision yourself in this world for your Hereafter, for I have made clear to you the ways of salvation, so you have no excuse for being negligent, and protect your Qiblah, and do not lose it as the nations before you lost it, lest you go astray as they went astray, like the one who: Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: So hasten to do good deeds, meaning: Do not be overcome by your Qiblah. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: So race one another in good deeds, he said: righteous deeds. The statement on the interpretation of the statement of God Almighty: "Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together. Indeed, God is over all things competent." Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of His statement: Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together, is in any place or spot in which you perish, God will bring you all together on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, God is over all things competent, as: I was told by 'Ammar ibn al-Hasan, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah: Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together, meaning: wherever you may be, God will bring you all together on the Day of Resurrection. Musa told us, he said, 'Amr ibn Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together, meaning: on the Day of Resurrection.

Abu Ja'far said: God, the Almighty, singled out the believers with this verse for their obedience to Him and provisioning themselves in this world for the Hereafter. He, the Most High, said to them: "So hasten, O believers, to act in obedience to your Lord and adhere to what He has guided you to, such as the Qiblah of Abraham, His friend, and the laws of His religion. Indeed, God, the Most High, will bring you and those who opposed your Qiblah, your religion, and your laws together on the Day of Resurrection, from wherever you are on earth, until He gives the good-doer among you his reward for his goodness, and the evil-doer his punishment for his evil, or He favors and pardons. As for His statement: "Indeed, God is over all things competent," He, the Most High, means: God, the Most High, is capable of gathering you - after your death - from your graves to Him, from wherever you were and your graves were, and of anything else that He wills. So hasten to bring your souls forth with righteous deeds before your death, for the Day of Resurrection and Gathering."

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a third command from God Almighty to face the Sacred Mosque from all parts of the earth. They differed about the wisdom of this repetition three times. It was said that it is an emphasis because it is the first abrogation that occurred in Islam, as stated by Ibn Abbas and others. It was said that it is rather revealed according to circumstances. The first command is for those who are watching the Kaaba, the second is for those who are in Mecca and are absent from it, and the third is for those who are in the rest of the countries. This is how Fakhr al-Din al-Razi explained it. Al-Qurtubi said: The first is for those who are in Mecca, the second is for those who are in the rest of the cities, and the third is for those who have traveled. Al-Qurtubi preferred this answer, and it was said: He only mentioned it because it is related to what came before or after it in the context. He said: First, We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased to His saying, "And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And God is not unaware of what they do." So he mentioned in this context his response to his request and his command to the qiblah that he wanted to face and was pleased with. And he said in the second command, "And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do." So he mentioned that it is the truth from God and his ascension to the first station, since it was in accordance with the pleasure of the Messenger,

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:149

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And Allah is not unaware of what you do.

may God bless him and grant him peace, so he clarified that it is also the truth from God, who loves it and is pleased with it. And he mentioned in the third command the wisdom of cutting off the argument of the dissenters from the Jews who were making excuses by facing the Messenger toward their qiblah, and they knew from what was in their books that he would be turned toward the qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, until The Kaaba, and likewise the polytheists of the Arabs lost their argument when the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, was turned away from the qiblah of the Jews to the qiblah of Abraham, which is more honorable. They used to venerate the Kaaba and were amazed by the Messenger facing it. Other answers were given about the wisdom of repetition, and Al-Razi and others have elaborated on them, and God knows best. His statement, So that the people will have no argument against you, means the People of the Book, for they know that it is a characteristic of this nation to face the Kaaba, so if they lose that characteristic of it, they may use it as an argument against the Muslims, and so that they will not use it as an argument based on the Muslims' agreement with them in facing Jerusalem. This is more evident. Abu Al-Aaliyah said, So that the people will have no argument against you, meaning the People of the Book when they said: Muhammad was turned toward the Kaaba. They said: The man longed for his father's house and the religion of his people. Their argument against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was his turning to the Sacred House, that they said, he will return to our religion as he returned to our Qiblah. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to this was narrated from Mujahid, Ata', Ad-Dahhak, Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas, Qatadah and As-Suddi. These people said about His statement, Except those who did wrong among them, meaning the polytheists of Quraysh. Some of them presented the argument of the oppressors, which is refuted, that they said: This man claims that he is on the religion of Abraham, but he did not turn back from it. The answer is that God Almighty chose for him to face Jerusalem, first because of His wisdom in that, so he obeyed his Lord Almighty in that, then he turned him to the qiblah of Abraham, which is the Kaaba, so he complied with God's command in that as well. He, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, is obedient to God in all his circumstances, he does not deviate from God's command for the blink of an eye, and his nation follows him. His saying, So do not fear them, but fear Me, means do not fear the likeness of the obstinate oppressors and single out fear for Me, for He is the One Who deserves to be feared. His saying, And that I may complete My favor upon you, is in apposition to so that people will have no argument against you, meaning, I may complete My favor upon you in what I have prescribed for you of facing the Kaaba, so that the Sharia may be completed for you from all its aspects. And that you may be guided, meaning to what the nations have gone astray from, We have guided you to it and made you special with it. For this reason, this nation is the most honorable and best of nations.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 149- And from wherever you came out He repeated this, glory be to Him, to emphasize the command to face the Kaaba, and to pay attention to it, because the location of the transformation was of interest to their souls. It was said: The reason for the repetition is that abrogation is from the places of temptation and the places of doubt, so if they hear it again and again they become steadfast and what is in their hearts is dispelled. It was said: He repeated this ruling because of the multiplicity of its reasons, for He, glory be to Him, mentioned three reasons for the transformation: the first is seeking His pleasure, the second is the divine custom that He assigns every person of a religion and the one who calls to a direction that he is independent of, and the third is to repel the arguments of the opponents, so He paired each reason with its effect. It was said that He meant by the first: Turn your face toward the Kaaba when you pray facing it. Then He said: And wherever you are, O Muslims, in all the mosques in Madinah and elsewhere, turn your faces toward it. Then He said: And from wherever you came out meaning the obligation of facing in travel, so this was a command to face the Kaaba in all places. From all corners of the earth.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

149. The Almighty said: "And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do." Abu Amir read it with a ya' and the rest with a ta'.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

149- And from wherever you set out and from wherever you set out for travel turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque when you pray and indeed and and indeed this matter is the truth from your Lord, and God is not unaware of what you do Abu Amr read it with the letter ya and the rest with the letter ta". 7

Surat al-Baqarah 2:150

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it so that people will have no argument against you, except those who commit injustice among them. So do not fear them, but fear Me, and I will complete My favor upon you, and perhaps you will be guided.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it) He repeated it for emphasis so that the people the Jews or the polytheists may have no argument against you that is, an argument about turning to something other than it, so that their argument with you will be negated by the Jews' saying that he denies our religion and follows our qiblah, and the polytheists' saying that he claims the religion of Abraham and opposes his qiblah except those who are unjust among them by stubbornness, for they say that he did not turn to it except out of inclination toward the religion of his fathers, and the exception is connected and the meaning is: No one will have a word against you except the word of these people so fear them fear their argument about turning to it and fear Me by obeying My command and that I may complete in apposition to so that there will be My favor upon you by guiding you to the landmarks of your religion and that you may be guided to the truth.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

"And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do." The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do." Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His saying: And from wherever you go out, and from whatever place you go out to Whatever direction you face, turn your face, O Muhammad - he says: turn your face. We have already shown that turning in this direction towards the Sacred Mosque means: turning the face towards it. We have already explained the meaning of turning in the direction. As for His statement: And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord, He, the Most High, means by it: And indeed, turning in its direction is for the truth about which there is no doubt from your Lord, so preserve it and obey God in your turning towards it. As for his statement: And God is not unaware of what you do, he is saying: Indeed, God, the Most High, is not oblivious to your deeds, nor is He unaware of them, but He is counting them for you, so that He may reward you for them on the Day of Resurrection. The statement in the interpretation of the statement of God, the Most High,

"And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it." Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by the statement of God, the Most High, And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, is from whatever place or spot you set out from, O Muhammad, so turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram, which is its direction. What is meant by his statement, And wherever you are, turn your faces, is wherever you are, O believers, on God's earth, so turn your faces in your prayer toward Him, before Him, and intending Him.

"So that mankind will have no argument against you, except for those who do wrong among them. So do not fear them, but fear Me." Abu Ja'far said: A group of interpreters said: God the Almighty meant by people in His statement: So that mankind will have no argument against you, the People of the Book. Those who said that were mentioned: Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: So that mankind will have no argument against you, meaning the People of the Book. They said - when the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was directed towards the Ka'bah, the Sacred House - that the man longed for his father's house and the religion of his people. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: So that mankind will have no argument against you, meaning the People of the Book. They said - when the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was directed towards the Ka'bah - that the man longed for his father's house and the religion of his people! If someone were to say: What argument did the People of the Book have regarding the prayer of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions towards the Holy House, towards the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions? It was said: We have previously mentioned what was narrated about that. It was said: They used to say: Muhammad and his companions did not know where their qiblah was until we guided them! And their saying: Muhammad differs from us in our religion and follows our qiblah! This is the argument that they used to argue with the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions, in a way that they would argue with them and deceive the ignorant and stupid polytheists. We have previously explained that the meaning of the people arguing with him, which God the Most High mentioned in His Book, is only arguments and debates. So God, the Most High, cut off that from their argument and settled it, by changing the qiblah of His Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and the believers in him from the qiblah of the Jews to the qiblah of His friend Abraham (peace be upon him). This is the meaning of God's statement, the Most High: So that mankind will have no argument against you, meaning: the people who used to argue with them with what I have described. As for His statement: Except those who did wrong among them, they are the polytheists of the Quraysh, according to what the interpreters have interpreted. Those who said that were mentioned:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:150

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it so that people will have no argument against you, except those who commit injustice among them. So do not fear them, but fear Me, and I will complete My favor upon you, and perhaps you will be guided.

Muhammad ibn Amr told me, Abu Asim told us, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Except those who have wronged among them, the people of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Musa ibn Harun told me, Amr ibn Hammad told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, who said: They are the polytheists of Mecca. Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada: Except those who have wronged among them, meaning the polytheists of Quraysh. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya told us, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, Mu'mar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His statement: Except those who have wronged among them, he said: They are the polytheists of the Arabs. Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, Yazid ibn Zurai' told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Except those who have wronged among them, and those who have wronged are the polytheists of Quraysh. Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Ata' said: They are the polytheists of Quraysh. Ibn Jurayj said: Abdullah bin Kathir informed me that he heard Mujahid say the same as Ata'.

If someone were to say: What argument did the polytheists of Quraysh have against the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions, in their facing the Kaaba in their prayers? Is it permissible for the polytheists to have an argument against the believers - in what God commanded them to do or forbade them from doing? It is said: The meaning of that is contrary to what you imagined and went to. Rather, the argument in this case is the dispute and debate. The meaning of the statement is: So that no one among the people will have an argument against you and a false claim, other than the polytheists of Quraysh, for they have an unjust claim against you and an unjust dispute, by saying to you: Muhammad has returned to our Qiblah, and he will return to our religion. That is from their saying and their false hopes, and it is the argument that Quraysh had against the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions. For that reason, God the Most High excluded those who did wrong from Quraysh from all other people, as He denied that any of them had an argument regarding their Qiblah towards which He directed them. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that. Who said that: Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God, the Most High: So that mankind will have no argument against you, except for those who are unjust among them, the people of Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him. Mujahid said: He says: Their argument is their statement: We have returned to our Qiblah! Al-Muthanna told me, he said,

Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly, except that he said: We have returned to our Qiblah! Al-Hasan ibn Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His statement: So that mankind will have no argument against you, except for those who are unjust among them, they said: They are the polytheists of the Arabs, they said when the Qiblah was turned towards the Kaaba: We have returned to your Qiblah, and soon we will return to your religion! God, the Most High, said: So fear them not, but fear Me. Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Except those who have wronged among them, and those who have wronged: the polytheists of Quraysh. He says: They will argue with you about that, so their argument against the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was his turning toward the Sacred House - they said: He will return to our religion as he returned to our Qiblah! So God, the Most High, revealed about all of that. Al-Muthanna narrated, he said: Ishaq narrated, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, similarly. Musa bin Harun narrated, he said: 'Amr bin Hammad narrated, he said: Asbat narrated, on the authority of Al-Suddi, among other things, on the authority of Abu Malik and on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas - and on the authority of Murrah Al-Hamadani, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, and on some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: When the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned toward the Ka'bah, after his prayer toward the Holy House, the polytheists of Mecca said: Muhammad is confused about his religion! So he turned his qiblah towards you, and he knew that you were more guided than him, and that he was about to enter your religion! So God, the Most High, revealed about them: "So that mankind will have no argument against you, except those who are unjust among them. So fear them not, but fear Me." Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Hussein narrated to me, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, I said to Ata': His statement: So that mankind will have no argument against you, except those who are unjust among them, he said: Quraysh said, when he returned to the Kaaba and ordered it: He could not do without us! He has turned towards our qiblah! So it is their argument, and they are those who are unjust. Ibn Jurayj said: Abdullah bin Kathir informed me that he heard Mujahid say something similar to what Ata' said, so Mujahid said: Their argument is their statement: You have returned to our qiblah! The interpretation of the people of interpretation whose interpretation we have mentioned has made clear the correctness of what we have said in its interpretation, and that it is an exception in the sense of the known exception, in which what was negated from what came before it was established in them after the letter of exception. Just as the saying of the one who said: None of the people walked except your brother, is an affirmation of the brother from the walk that is denied of every other person. Likewise, his saying: So that the people will have no argument against you, except those who are unjust among them, is a denial that anyone would have a dispute or argument before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, or a false claim against him and his companions, because of their facing the Kaaba in their prayers, except those who wronged themselves from Quraysh, for they have a dispute and a false claim against them by saying: You only turned toward us and toward our Qiblah because we were more guided than you in the way, and that you were, by facing the Holy House in Jerusalem, in error and falsehood. Since that is the meaning of the verse by consensus of the argument of the people of interpretation, then the saying of the one who claimed that the meaning of his saying: Except those of them who are unjust is: nor those of them who are unjust, and that except means and. Because if that was its meaning, the first negation of all people - that they would have an argument against the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) and his companions in turning their faces towards the Kaaba - would have made clear the intended meaning, and there would have been nothing in mentioning his saying after that: Except those who wronged among them, except for the confusion that is too high to be added to or described with. This is with the meaning of the speech being excluded - if it is directed except to the meaning of the waw, and the meaning of the conjunction - from the speech of the Arabs. That is because except is not found in any of their speech in the meaning of the waw, except with a previous exception that it may have preceded. Like the saying of the speaker: The people marched except for Amr except your brother, meaning: except for Amr and your brother, so except then would be a conveyer of what the waw conveys, because the second except is connected to the first except. It is also combined with illa and waw and it is said: The people walked except for 'Amr and your brother, so one of them is deleted and the other takes its place, so it is said: The people walked except for 'Amr and your brother - or Except for 'Amr except your brother, for what we described before. Since that is the case, it is not permissible for a claimant from among the people to claim that illa in this place means waw which comes with the meaning of conjunction. The corruption of the statement of the one who claims that the meaning of that is: Except for those among them who are unjust, for they have no argument, so do not fear them. Like the statement of the speaker in speech: All people are grateful to you except the unjust one who transgresses against you, for his aggression and his failure to praise are not to be taken into account, due to the enmity. Likewise, the unjust one has no argument, and he was called unjust, due to the consensus of the people of interpretation on the error of what he claimed of interpretation in that regard. It is sufficient evidence of the error of his statement that they agreed to reject it. It is apparent from the length of the statement of those who claimed that those who did wrong here are people from the Arabs who were Jews and Christians, so they used to argue with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. As for the rest of the Arabs, they had no argument, and the argument of those who argued was broken. Because you say to those whose argument you want to break: You have an argument against me, but it is broken, and you argue without an argument, and your argument is weak. And the meaning of except those who did wrong among them was directed to the meaning: except those who did wrong among them, from the People of the Book, for they have a weak argument against you. This is the statement of those who said: except in this place means be. And the statement of those who claimed that it began with the meaning: except those who did wrong among them, so do not fear them is weak. Because the interpretation of the people of interpretation came in that that it was from God the Almighty, report about those who were unjust among them: that they argue against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions with what we have mentioned, and he did not intend in that to report the description of their argument as weak or strong - even if it was weak because it is invalid - but rather he intended in it to prove for those who were unjust, what was negated from those before the letter of exception from the description. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, he said, Qatada said: A Jew argued with Abu al-'Aliyah and said: Moses, peace be upon him, used to pray toward the rock of the Holy House. Abu al-'Aliyah said: He used to pray at the rock toward the Sacred House. He said: He said: So between me and you is the mosque of Salih, for he carved it out of the mountain. Abu al-'Aliyah said: I prayed in it and turned it toward the Sacred House. Qatada said: Abu Al-'Aaliyah told me that he passed by the Mosque of Dhul-Qarnayn, and his Qiblah was towards the Kaaba. As for his saying: So do not fear them, but fear Me, it means: Do not fear those whose situation I have described to you, the oppressors, in their arguments, their arguments, and their saying what they say: that Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, has returned to our Qiblah, and will return to our religion! Or that they may be able to harm you in your religion, or turn you away from the truth to which God Almighty has guided you. Rather, fear Me, so fear My punishment, for disobeying My command if you disobey it. And that is from God Almighty, presented to His believing servants, by urging them to adhere to their Qiblah and pray towards it, and by forbidding them to face anything other than it. God Almighty says: And fear Me, O believers, in abandoning My obedience in what I have commanded you to do, of praying towards the Sacred Mosque. It has been narrated from Al-Suddi regarding that as follows:

Abu Ja'far said: By His words, may His praise be glorified, And to complete My favor upon you, he means, from wherever you come from the country and the earth, and to whatever spot you head, turn your face toward the Sacred Mosque, and wherever you are, O Muhammad and the believers, turn your faces toward it in your prayers, and take it as your qiblah, so that no one among the people - except the polytheists of Quraysh - will have an argument, and by that - by My guiding you to the qiblah of My friend Abraham, peace be upon him, whom I made an imam for the

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it so that people will have no argument against you, except those who commit injustice among them. So do not fear them, but fear Me, and I will complete My favor upon you, and perhaps you will be guided.

people - I will complete My favor upon you, and complete through it the laws of your pure, Muslim religion that I commanded Noah, Abraham, Moses, Jesus, and all the other prophets besides them. This is His blessing that He, the Most High, informed us that He will complete upon His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and upon the believers among his companions. And His statement, and that you may be guided, means: so that you may be guided to the correct direction of prayer. And perhaps is in apposition to His statement, and that I may complete My favor upon you, and and that I may complete My favor upon you is in apposition to His statement, lest it be.

The Almighty said: And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. It was said: This is an emphasis on the command to face the Kaaba and pay attention to it, because the location of the turning was very difficult for them, so He emphasised the command so that people would see the attention paid to it, so it would be easier for them and their souls would be at peace with it. It was said: By the first, He meant: Turn your face toward the Kaaba, meaning see it when you pray facing it. Then He said: And wherever you are, O Muslims, in all the mosques in Madinah and elsewhere, turn your faces toward it.

Then he said: And from wherever you go out, meaning the obligation to face the Kaaba when traveling. This was an order to face the Kaaba in all places on the Earth's sides.

I said: This statement is better than the first because it interprets each verse to have a benefit. Ad-Darqutni narrated: "On the authority of Anas ibn Malik, who said: Whenever the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was on a journey and wanted to pray on his mount, he would face the qiblah and say takbir, then pray in whatever direction he was facing." Abu Dawud also narrated it, and this is what Ash-Shafi'i, Ahmad, and Abu Thawr said. Malik held that he was not required to face the qiblah, based on the hadith of Ibn 'Umar, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would pray while facing from Mecca to Medina on his mount." He said: "And in this was revealed: 'So wherever you turn, there is the face of God,' which has already been mentioned."

I said: There is no contradiction between the two hadiths, because this is a case of absolute and qualified, so the statement of Al-Shafi'i is more appropriate, and the hadith of Anas in this regard is an authentic hadith. It is narrated that Ja'far ibn Muhammad was asked: What is the meaning of repeating stories in the Qur'an? He said: God knows that not all people memorize the Qur'an, so if the story were not repeated, it would be possible for some people to have it and others not to have it, so it was repeated so that it would be for those who memorized some of it.

God the Almighty said: So that mankind will have no argument against you, except for those among them who are unjust. Mujahid said: They are the polytheists of the Arabs. Their argument was their saying: We have returned to our Qiblah. This was answered by His saying: "Say: To God belongs the East and the West." It was said: The meaning of So that mankind will have no argument against you is so that they will not say to you: You were ordered to face the Kaaba, but you do not see it. So when God the Almighty said: And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it, this was removed. Abu Ubaidah said: Except here has the meaning of and, meaning and those who are unjust. So it is an exception with the meaning of and, and from it is the saying of the poet:

The city is not a house other than the house of the Caliph, other than the house of Marwan

As if he said: Except the house of the Caliph and the house of Marwan, and the same was said in the words of God Almighty: Except those who believe and do righteous deeds, for they will have a reward uninterrupted meaning those who believe. Al-Zajaj invalidated this statement and said: This is a mistake according to the skilled grammarians, and it invalidates the meanings, and except and what follows it do not need to be mentioned. The statement according to them is that this is an exception not from the first, meaning but those who are unjust among them, then they argue. Abu Ishaq Al-Zajaj said: That is, God made you aware of the matter of arguing in the direction of the qiblah in His words: And each one has a direction towards which he turns "so that the people will have no argument against you" except for the one who is unjust by arguing in what has been made clear to him, as you say: You have no argument against me except injustice or except that you oppress me, meaning you have no argument at all, but you oppress me, so it was called an argument because the one arguing with it called it an argument even if it is invalid. Qatib said: It is possible that the meaning is so that the people will have no argument against you except against those who are unjust, so those is a substitute for the kaf and the mim in upon you. A group said: Except those is a connected exception, the meaning of which was narrated from Ibn Abbas and others, and it was chosen by Al-Tabari who said: God denied that anyone has an argument against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions in facing the Kaaba. The meaning is: No one has an argument against you except a refuting argument. As they said: He did not turn to them, and Muhammad was confused in his religion, and he did not turn towards our Qiblah except that we were more guided than him, and other statements that were not issued except by a pagan worshipper, a Jew, or a hypocrite. Argument means argumentation, which is quarreling and disputing. God called it an argument and ruled that it was corrupt because it was from oppression. Ibn Atiyyah said: It was said that the exception is disconnected, and this is on the basis that what is meant by the people are the Jews, then He excepted the infidels of the Arabs, as if He said: But those who did wrong will argue with you, and His saying: from them rejects this interpretation. The meaning is but those who did wrong, meaning the infidels of Quraysh in their saying: Muhammad has returned to our Qiblah and will return to our entire religion. This includes everyone who spoke about the incident other than the Jews. Ibn Abbas, Zayd ibn Ali, and Ibn Zayd read ala alladhi zulam with a fatha on the hamza and a light lam, meaning to open the speech, so alladhi zulam is the subject, or with the meaning of enticement, so alladhi is the subject of an implied verb.

The Almighty says: So do not fear them, meaning people, but fear Me. Fear is originally a sense of reassurance in the heart that prompts one to be cautious. And fear is the terror of the heart that makes the limbs fearful, and because the limbs are fearful of it, it is called fear. The meaning of the verse is to belittle everyone other than God Almighty, and to command us to abandon their command and to heed the command of God Almighty.

The Almighty's saying: And that I may complete My favor upon you is in apposition to so that it may not be, meaning and that I may complete, as Al-Akhfash said. It was also said: It is in the nominative case as the subject and the predicate is implied, the meaning: And that I may complete My favor upon you, I will make you know my qiblah," as Al-Zajaj said. The completion of the favor is guidance to the qiblah, and it was also said: entering Paradise. Saeed bin Jubair said: And the favor of God is not completed upon a servant until He admits him to Paradise. And and perhaps you will be guided was mentioned above.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a third command from God Almighty to face the Sacred Mosque from all parts of the earth. They differed about the wisdom of this repetition three times. It was said that it is an emphasis because it is the first abrogation that occurred in Islam, as stated by Ibn Abbas and others. It was said that it is rather revealed according to circumstances. The first command is for those who are watching the Kaaba, the second is for those who are in Mecca and are absent from it, and the third is for those who are in the rest of the countries. This is how Fakhr al-Din al-Razi explained it. Al-Qurtubi said: The first is for those who are in Mecca, the second is for those who are in the rest of the cities, and the third is for those who have traveled. Al-Qurtubi preferred this answer, and it was said: He only mentioned it because it is related to what came before or after it in the context. He said: First, We have certainly seen the turning of your face toward the heaven, so We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased to His saying, "And indeed, those who were given the Scripture know that it is the truth from their Lord. And God is not unaware of what they do." So he mentioned in this context his response to his request and his command to the qiblah that he wanted to face and was pleased with. And he said in the second command, "And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And indeed, it is the truth from your Lord. And God is not unaware of what you do." So he mentioned that it is the truth from God and his ascension to the first station, since it was in accordance with the pleasure of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he clarified that it is also the truth from God, who loves it and is pleased with it. And he mentioned in the third command the wisdom of cutting off the argument of the dissenters from the Jews who were making excuses by facing the Messenger toward their qiblah, and they knew from what was in their books that he would be turned toward the qiblah of Abraham, peace be upon him, until The Kaaba, and likewise the polytheists of the Arabs lost their argument when the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, was turned away from the qiblah of the Jews to the qiblah of Abraham, which is more honorable. They used to venerate the Kaaba and were amazed by the Messenger facing it. Other answers were given about the wisdom of repetition, and Al-Razi and others have elaborated on them, and God knows best. His statement, So that the people will have no argument against you, means the People of the Book, for they know that it is a characteristic of this nation to face the Kaaba, so if they lose that characteristic of it, they may use it as an argument against the Muslims, and so that they will not use it as an argument based on the Muslims' agreement with them in facing Jerusalem. This is more evident. Abu Al-Aaliyah said, So that the people will have no argument against you, meaning the People of the Book when they said: Muhammad was turned toward the Kaaba. They said: The man longed for his father's house and the religion of his people. Their argument against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was his turning to the Sacred House, that they said, he will return to our religion as he returned to our Qiblah. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to this was narrated from Mujahid, Ata', Ad-Dahhak, Ar-Rabi' ibn Anas, Qatadah and As-Suddi. These people said about His statement, Except those who did wrong among them, meaning the polytheists of Quraysh. Some of them presented the argument of the oppressors, which is refuted, that they said: This man claims that he is on the religion of Abraham, but he did not turn back from it. The answer is that God Almighty chose for him to face Jerusalem, first because of His wisdom in that, so he obeyed His Lord Almighty in that, then he turned him to the qiblah of Abraham, which is the Kaaba, so he complied with God's command in that as well. He, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, is obedient to God in all his circumstances, he does not deviate from God's command for the blink of an eye, and his nation follows him. His saying, So do not fear them, but fear Me, means do not fear the likeness of the obstinate oppressors and single out fear for Me, for He is the One Who deserves to be feared. His saying, And that I may complete My favor upon you, is in apposition to so that people will have no argument against you, meaning, I may complete My favor upon you in what I have prescribed for you of facing the Kaaba, so that the Sharia may be completed for you from all its aspects. And that you may be guided, meaning to what the nations have gone astray from, We have guided

And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward Al-Masjid Al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it so that people will have no argument against you, except those who commit injustice among them. So do not fear them, but fear Me, and I will complete My favor upon you, and perhaps you will be guided.

you to it and made you special with it. For this reason, this nation is the most honorable and best of nations.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 150- "So that people will have no argument against you." It was said that its meaning is: So that the Jews will have no argument against you except for the obstinate ones among them, for those who say: He did not abandon our Qiblah towards the Kaaba except out of inclination towards the religion of his people. So based on this, what is meant by those who did wrong are the obstinate ones among the People of the Book. It was said that they are the polytheists of the Arabs, and their argument is their saying: I have returned to our Qiblah. It was said that its meaning is: So that people will have no argument against you, so that they will not say to you: You were ordered to face the Kaaba and you do not see it. Abu Ubaidah said: "In illa ha" here has the meaning of waw: that is, and those who did wrong is an exception with the meaning of waw, and from it is the saying of the poet:

There is no house in the city except for one, the house of the Caliph, and that is Marwan.

As if he said: Except the house of the Caliph and the house of Marwan. Al-Zajaj invalidated this statement and said: It is an isolated exception: that is, but those who were unjust among them, they are hidden. Its meaning is: Except for those who were unjust by arguing in what has been made clear to them, as you say: You have no argument against me except that you wrong me: that is, you have no argument against me at all, but you wrong me. He called his injustice an argument because the one arguing with it called it an argument even if it was invalid. Qatirib said: It is possible that the meaning is: So that the people will have no argument against you except those who were unjust, so those are a substitute for the kaf and the mim in upon you. Ibn Jarir al-Tabari preferred that the exception is connected, and he said: God denied that anyone had an argument against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions in facing the Kaaba, and the meaning is: No one has an argument against you except the invalid argument, as they said: What made them leaders? And they said: Muhammad was confused about his religion, and he did not face our qibla except that I took from him. And other than that of the statements that were only issued by an idol worshipper, a Jew, or a hypocrite. He said: The argument means the argumentation which is the dispute and the argument, and the Almighty called it an argument and ruled that it was corrupt since it was from an oppressor. Ibn Atiyyah preferred that the exception is disconnected as Al-Zajaj said: Al-Qurtubi said: This is on the basis that what is meant by the people are the Jews, then he excluded the Arab infidels as if he said: But those who were unjust in their saying Muhammad has returned to our Qiblah and will return to our entire religion. And his saying: "So do not fear them" means the al-Nas 114: that is, do not fear their attacks, for they are invalid and false and will not harm you. And his saying: "And that I may complete My favor upon you is conjoined with lest it be" that is, and that I may complete, said Al-Akhfash. And it was said: It is disconnected from what came before it in the place of raising by the beginning, and the predicate is implied, and the meaning: And that I may complete My favor upon you, I will make you know my Qiblah, said Al-Zajaj. And it was said: It is conjoined with an implied reason as if it was said: And fear Me so that I may guide you and complete My favor upon you. And the completion of the favor is guidance to the Qiblah, and it was said: entering Paradise.

150. "And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it." It was repeated to emphasize the abrogation. "So that people will have no argument against you, except for those who do wrong. They differed in the interpretation of this verse and the meaning of His saying except." Some of them said: Its meaning is that the qiblah was turned toward the Kaaba. "So that people will have no argument against you, if you face something other than it, they will say, You have no qiblah, except for those who do wrong," and they are the Quraysh and the Jews. As for the Quraysh, they say that Muhammad returned to the Kaaba because he knew that it was the truth and that it was the qiblah of his fathers, so he will return to our religion. As for the Jews, they say that he did not turn away from the Holy House despite his knowledge that it was the truth, except that he acted according to his opinion. A group said, "So that people will have no argument against you," meaning the Jews. Their argument, by way of arguing with the believers in their prayers toward the Holy House, was that they used to say, "Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions did not know where their qiblah was until We guided them."

And His saying, Except those who have wronged, and they are the polytheists of Mecca, and their argument is that they said - when their qiblah was turned to the Kaaba - that Muhammad has become confused about his religion and will return to our religion as he returned to our qiblah, and this is the meaning of the saying of Mujahid, Ata', and Qatadah, and according to these two interpretations the exception is correct, and His saying, Except those who have wronged, means that no one has an argument against you except the polytheists of Quraysh, for they argue with you and dispute with you with falsehood and injustice, and arguing with falsehood is called a pilgrimage as God Almighty said, Their argument is invalid with their Lord 16-Ash-Shura. The position of those is in the accusative case as if he said except those who have wronged, as Al-Kisa'i said, and Al-Farra' said it is in the accusative case due to the exception.

The Almighty's saying: From them means from the people. It was said that this is an exception separate from the first statement, meaning that those who have wronged argue with you in falsehood, as God Almighty said: They have no knowledge of it except the following of assumption 157-An-Nisa', meaning that they follow assumptions, so it is like a man saying: You have no right with me unless you wrong.

Abu Waraq said, So that the people meaning the Jews will have no argument against you. This is because they knew that the Kaaba was the qiblah of Abraham and they found in the Torah that Muhammad would be turned towards it, so God Almighty turned him towards it so that they would have no argument and say: The prophet we find in our book will be turned towards it and you did not turn towards it. So when he turned towards it, their argument was gone, except for those who did wrong, meaning except that they would be unjust and conceal what they knew of the truth.

Abu Ubaidah said: His saying, except for those who have wronged, is not an exception, but except is in the place of the conjunction and, meaning: And those who have wronged also have no argument, as the poet said:

Every brother who leaves his brother, by your father's life, except Al-Farqadhan

Its meaning is that the two stars also separate, so the meaning of the verse is, "So turn towards the Kaaba, 'lest the people' meaning the Jews 'have an argument against you' and say, 'Why did you abandon the Kaaba, which was the qiblah of Abraham, while you were following his religion?' Nor those who did wrong, who were the polytheists of Mecca, saying, 'Why did Muhammad abandon the qiblah of his grandfather and turn from it to the qiblah of the Jews?' 'Do not fear them' in turning towards the Kaaba and in their showing off to you in argument, for I am your guardian, I will make you prevail over them with argument and victory. 'And fear Me, and that I may complete My favor upon you' is in apposition to His statement, 'lest the people have an argument against you' and so that I may complete My favor upon you by guiding you to the qiblah of Abraham, so that the pure religion may be completed for you.' Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, said, 'The completion of favor is death as a Muslim.'

Saeed bin Jubair said: No blessing is complete for a Muslim unless God admits him into Paradise. "And perhaps you will be guided." So that you may be guided from misguidance. Perhaps and perhaps are obligatory from God.

150-"And from wherever you go out, turn your face toward al-Masjid al-Haram. And wherever you are, turn your faces toward it." This ruling was repeated due to its multiple reasons, for God Almighty mentioned three reasons for the change. The first is to glorify the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, by seeking his pleasure, and the divine custom that the people of every religion and the one who calls to a religion should turn toward it and be distinguished by it. And to refute the arguments of the opponents, as we will explain. And He linked each reason with its effect, just as the meaning is linked with each one of its evidences, approximately, although the qiblah has a role. Abrogation is one of the places of temptation and doubt, so it is more appropriate to emphasize its matter and repeat it again and again. "So that the people will have no argument against you is a reason for His saying then turn," and the meaning is that turning from the rock to the Kaaba refutes the Jews' argument that the one described in the Torah's qiblah is the Kaaba, and that Muhammad denies our religion and follows us in our qiblah. And the polytheists that he claims the religion of Abraham and opposes his Qiblah, except those who are unjust among them, an exception from the people, meaning so that no one among the people will have an argument except the obstinate ones among them, as they say, he did not turn to the Kaaba except out of inclination to the religion of his people and love for his country, or it changed his mind and he returned to the Qiblah of his fathers and is about to return to their religion. And he called this an argument like the saying of the Most High: Their argument is invalid with their Lord, because they present it in its context. And it was said that the argument means the argument. And it was said that the exception is to exaggerate in denying the argument completely like his saying:

There is no fault in them, except that their swords have nicks from the clashing of the battalions.

Knowing that the oppressor has no argument, and it was read: Except those who are unjust among them. As a resumption with the letter of warning. Do not fear them. Do not fear them, for their attacks will not harm you. And fear Me. Do not disobey what I have commanded you. And that I may complete My favor upon you and that you may be guided. The reason for an omitted word is that I have commanded you to complete My favor upon you and that I desire your guidance, or it is in apposition to an implied reason such as: And fear Me so that I may protect you from them and complete My favor upon you, or so that it will not be. In the hadith, The completion of the favor is entering Paradise. And on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, the completion of the favor is death as a Muslim.

Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, reciting to you Our verses and purifying you and teaching you the Book and wisdom and teaching you that which you did not know.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:151

Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, reciting to you Our verses and purifying you and teaching you the Book and wisdom and teaching you that which you did not know.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

As We have sent related to completed meaning completion like its completion by sending among you a Messenger from among you Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace who recites to you Our verses the Qur'an and purifies you purifies you from polytheism and teaches you the Book the Qur'an and wisdom what is in it of rulings and teaches you that which you did not know

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you who recites to you Our verses and purifies you and teaches you the Book and wisdom and teaches you that which you did not know. Abu Ja'far said: He means by His saying, may His praise be glorified: Just as We have sent among you a Messenger, and to complete My favor upon you by explaining the laws of your pure religion, and to guide you to the religion of My friend Abraham, peace be upon him, so I will make for you his supplication with which he supplicated to Me and his question which he asked of Me, saying: "Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You. And show us our rites and accept our repentance. Indeed, You are the Acceptor of repentance, the Most Merciful." (al-Baqarah 2:128), just as I made for you his supplication with which he supplicated to Me and his question which he asked of Me, saying: "Our Lord, and send among them a Messenger from among themselves who will recite to them Your verses and teach them the Book and wisdom and purify them. Indeed, You are the Exalted in Might, the Wise." (al-Baqarah 2:129), So I sent from among you My Messenger whom Abraham, My friend, and his son Ishmael, asked Me to send from their descendants. So as - since that is the meaning of the speech - is a connection to the statement of God Almighty: And to complete My favor upon you. His statement: as We sent among you a Messenger from among you is not connected to His statement: Remember Me, I will remember you. Some people have said that the meaning of that is: Remember Me as We sent among you a Messenger from among you to remember you. They claimed that this is from the introduction which means delay, so they drowned the removal, and were far from the truth, and interpreted the speech in a meaning other than its known meaning, and altered its understood aspect. That is because the current speech on the tongues of the Arabs, and the understanding in their speech among themselves - if some of them say to others: As I have been good to you, O so-and-so, be good to me - is that they do not stipulate conditions for the other, because the kaf in as is a condition, meaning: Do as I have done. In the coming of the answer to remember me after it, which is his saying: I remind you, the clearest evidence that his saying: as We sent is related to the verb that preceded it, and that his saying: Remember me, I will remind you is the predicate of a subject separated from the first, and that it is - from the reason for his saying: as We sent among you - separate. Some grammarians have claimed that his saying: So remember me - if he makes his saying: as We sent among you an answer

To him, with his saying: I remind you - similar to the reward that is answered with two answers, like the saying of the speaker: If so-and-so comes to you, then come to him and satisfy him, so his saying: Come to him and satisfy him becomes two answers to his saying: If he comes to you, and like his saying: If you come to me, I will treat you well and honor you. And this saying, even if it is a doctrine of doctrines, is not the easiest and most eloquent in the speech of the Arabs. And what is more deserving of the Book of God, the Almighty, to be directed to from the languages, is the most eloquent and most well-known of the speech of the Arabs, without the most abhorrent and ignorant of their language. This, with its face being far from the concept in interpretation. Mention of those who said: His saying: As We sent, is the answer to his saying: So remember Me. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, he heard Ibn Abi Nujayh say about the saying of God, the Almighty: As We sent among you a Messenger from among you, as you did, so remember Me. Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. And His statement: As We have sent among you a Messenger from among yourselves, He means the Arabs by that. He, the Most High, said to them: O Arabs, adhere to My obedience, and face the qiblah toward which I have commanded you to face, so that the Jews' argument against you will be cut off, so that they will have no argument against you, and so that I may complete My favor upon you, and you will be guided, just as I began with My favor upon you, so I sent among you a Messenger from among you. And that Messenger whom He sent to them from among them: Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding His statement: As We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. As for His statement: He recites to you Our verses, it means the verses of the Qur'an, and by His statement: And purifies you, it purifies you from the filth of sins, and teaches you the Book, which is the Criterion, it means: He teaches them its rulings. And by wisdom, it means the Sunnah and understanding of the religion. We have explained all of that before with its evidence. As for His statement: And teaches you what you did not know, it means: And teaches you from the report of the prophets - and the stories of the past nations, and the report of what is new and will happen from the matters that the Arabs did not know, so they learned them from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. So He, may His praise be glorified, informed them that they will only attain all of that through His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace. The statement in the interpretation of the words of the Almighty: So remember Me, I will remember you. Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Almighty means: So remember Me, O believers, by your obedience to Me in what I command you and what I forbid you from, I will remember you with My mercy to you and My forgiveness for you, as: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ibn Lahî'ah, on the authority of 'Ata' ibn Dinar, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: Remember Me, I will remember you, he said: Remember Me with My obedience, I will remember you with My forgiveness. Some of them interpreted that as being from remembrance with praise and commendation. Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding His words: "So remember Me, I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not deny Me," that God remembers those who remember Him, increases those who are grateful to Him, and punishes those who are ungrateful. Musa told me, he said, 'Amr told me, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: Remember Me, I will remember you, he said: There is no servant who remembers God except that God remembers him. No believer mentions Him without mentioning Him with mercy, and no disbeliever mentions Him without mentioning Him with torment.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: As We have sent The Kaf is in the accusative case as an attribute of a deleted source, meaning: And I will complete My favor upon you as We have sent, as Al-Farra' said. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is the best of the sayings, meaning: And I will complete My favor upon you in explaining the Sunnah of Abraham, peace be upon him, as We have sent. It was said: The meaning is: And perhaps you will be guided as We have sent. It was said: It is in the accusative case as a state, and the meaning is: And I will complete My favor upon you in this state. The simile is based on the fact that the favor in the Qiblah is like the favor in the message, and that the remembrance commanded is as great as the favor. It was said: The meaning of the speech is to advance and delay, meaning, remember Me as We have sent. It was narrated from Ali, may God be pleased with him, and Al-Zajjaj chose it. Meaning, just as We sent among you a Messenger whom you know to be truthful, remember Me by monotheism and belief in Him. Stopping at you will be guided according to this statement is permissible.

I said: This is the choice of the wise Tirmidhi in his book, meaning, just as I have done this to you from the blessings that I have enumerated for you, so remember Me with gratitude, and I will remember you with more, because in your remembering that is gratitude to Me, and I have promised you more for your gratitude, and that is His saying: If you are grateful, I will surely increase you, so the kaf in His saying as here, and in Al-Anfal as your Lord brought you forth and at the end of Al-Hijr as We sent down upon the dividers is related to what comes after it, as will be explained.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty reminds His believing servants of the blessings He bestowed upon them by sending the Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to them, reciting to them the clear verses of God, and purifying them, that is, cleansing them from the vices of morals, the filth of souls, and the actions of the Age of Ignorance, and bringing them out of darkness into the light and teaching them the Book, which is the Qur'an, and wisdom, which is the Sunnah, and teaching them what they did not know before. In the Age of Ignorance, they were ignorant people who used to be fools with their pure minds. Then, by the blessing of his message and the good fortune of his embassy, they moved to the state of saints and the qualities of scholars. They became the people with the deepest knowledge, the most pious of hearts, the least pretentious, and the most truthful in speech. God the Almighty said: God has conferred a great favor upon the believers when He sent among them a Messenger from among themselves, reciting to them His verses and purifying them 1:13. He also condemned those who did not appreciate the value of this blessing, saying: Have you not considered those who exchanged the favor of God for disbelief and settled their people in the home of ruin? 1:13. Ibn Abbas said: By the favor of God, he meant Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. For this reason, God urged the believers to acknowledge this favor and to respond to it by remembering and thanking Him. He said: "So remember Me, and I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not deny Me." 1:13. Mujahid said, in His statement: Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, he means: Just as you did, so remember Me. Abdullah bin Wahb said: On the authority of Hisham bin Sa'd, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, that Moses, peace be upon him, said: O Lord, how can I thank You? His Lord said to him: "Remember Me and do not forget Me. If you remember Me, you have thanked Me, and if you forget Me, you have denied Me." Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Suddi and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: God remembers whoever remembers Him, increases his gratitude and punishes whoever disbelieves in Him. Some of the Salaf said about the words of God the Most High: Fear God as He should be feared: It means that He is obeyed and not disobeyed, remembered and not forgotten, and thanked and not denied. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us,

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:151

Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, reciting to you Our verses and purifying you and teaching you the Book and wisdom and teaching you that which you did not know.

Yazid bin Harun told us, Ammarah Al-Saydalani told us, Makhul Al-Azdi told us: I said to Ibn Umar: Do you think that the murderer, the drinker of alcohol, the thief and the adulterer remember God, and God the Most High said: Then remember Me, I will remember you? He said: If God remembers this one, God will remember him with His curse until he is silent. Al-Hasan Al-Basri said about the words: Then remember Me, I will remember you: He said: Remember Me in what I have enjoined upon you, and I will remember you in what I have enjoined upon you upon Myself. Saeed bin Jubair said: Remember Me with My obedience, and I will remember you with My forgiveness, and in another narration, with My mercy. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his saying: Remember Me, and I will remember you, he said: God's remembrance of you is greater than your remembrance of Him. And in the authentic hadith: "God Almighty says: Whoever remembers Me to himself, I will remember him to Myself, and whoever remembers Me in an assembly, I will remember him in an assembly better than it." Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God, the Almighty, said: O son of Adam, if you remember Me in yourself, I will remember you in Myself. If you remember Me in an assembly, I will remember you in an assembly of angels - or he said, in an assembly better than it - and if you come a handspan closer to Me, I will come a cubit closer to you, and if you come a cubit closer to Me, I will come a fathom closer to you, and if you come to Me walking, I will come to you running." Its chain of transmission is authentic. Al-Bukhari included it on the authority of Qatada, and according to him Qatada said: God is closer in mercy, and His statement: And be grateful to Me and do not be ungrateful is an order from God, the Almighty, to thank Him and promised more good for thanking Him, saying: "And when your Lord proclaimed: If you are grateful, I will surely increase you [in favor]; but if you deny, indeed, My punishment is severe." Imam Ahmad said: Ruh told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of al-Fudayl ibn Fadala - a man from Qays - Abu Raja' told us. Al-Attardi said: Imran bin Husayn came out to us wearing a silk cloak that we had never seen him wearing before or after that. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever God bestows a blessing upon, God loves to see the effect of His blessing on His creation. And Ruh said once: On His servant.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 151- As We sent The kaf is in the accusative case as an attribute of a deleted source. The meaning is: And I will complete My favor upon you as I sent, as Al-Farra' said, and Ibn Atiyyah preferred it. It was said: The kaf is in the accusative case as a state, and the meaning is: And I will complete My favor upon you in this state, and the comparison is based on the fact that the favor in the Qiblah is like the favor in the message. It was said that the meaning of the speech is in the presentation and delay: So remember Me as We sent, as Al-Zajaj said.

151. The Almighty's saying: As We sent among you This kaf is for comparison and needs something to refer to. Some of them said: It refers to what came before it, meaning: And to complete My favor upon you, just as We sent a messenger. Muhammad bin Jarir said: Abraham, peace be upon him, made two supplications - one of them - he said: Our Lord, and make us Muslims [in submission] to You and from our descendants a Muslim nation [in submission] to You 128-Al-Baqarah. So God sent the messenger, who is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and promised to answer the second supplication by making from his descendants a Muslim nation, just as I answered his supplication by guiding you to His religion and making you Muslims and completing My favor upon you by explaining the laws of the pure religion. Mujahid, Ata' and Al-Kalbi said: It is related to what comes after it, which is His saying: So remember Me, I will remember you. Its meaning is: Just as We sent among you a messenger from among you, so remember Me. This verse is addressed to the people of Mecca and the Arabs, meaning: Just as We sent among you, O Arabs.

A Messenger from among you meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, who recites to you Our verses meaning the Qur'an, and purifies you and teaches you the Book and wisdom it was said: wisdom is the Sunnah, and it was said: the sermons of the Qur'an, and teaches you that which you did not know of the rulings and laws of Islam.

151- As We have sent among you a Messenger from among you is connected to what came before it, meaning, "And to complete My favor upon you in the matter of the Qiblah, or in the Hereafter as I completed it by sending a Messenger from among you, or in what comes after it as I reminded you of sending, so remember Me. "He recites to you Our verses and purifies you" He carries you to what makes you pure, He presented it in consideration of the intention and delayed it in the call of Abraham, peace be upon him, in consideration of the action "And teaches you the Book and wisdom and teaches you that which you did not know" by thought and contemplation, since there is no way to know it except through revelation, and the action was repeated to indicate that it is another type.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:152

So remember Me; I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not deny Me.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:152

So remember Me; I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not deny Me.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Remember Me with prayer, glorification, and the like. I will remember you. It was said that its meaning is that I will reward you. In the hadith about God, Whoever remembers Me in himself, I will remember him in Myself, and whoever remembers Me in an assembly, I will remember him in an assembly better than his assembly. And be grateful to Me for My blessings through obedience and do not be ungrateful through disobedience.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And be grateful to Me and do not be ungrateful. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by that: Be grateful to Me, O believers, for what I have bestowed upon you of Islam and guidance to the religion that I have prescribed for My prophets and chosen ones, and do not be ungrateful, meaning: Do not deny My kindness to you, lest I deprive you of My favor that I have bestowed upon you, but be grateful to Me for it, and I will increase you and complete My favor upon you, and guide you to what I have guided to whomever I am pleased of among My servants, for I have promised My creation that whoever is grateful to Me, I will increase him, and whoever is ungrateful to Me, I will deprive him and take away from him what I have given him. The Arabs say: I advised you, and I thanked you, and they hardly say: I advised you, and they may say: I thanked you and advised you, from that is the saying of the poet:

They have combined my misery and blessings with you. Why don't you thank the people when you don't fight?

Al-Nabigha said in his advice to you:

I advised Banu Awf, but they did not accept my messenger and my methods did not succeed with them.

We have shown that the meaning of gratitude is to praise a man for his praiseworthy actions, and that the meaning of ingratitude is to cover something, in the past, so there is no need to repeat it here.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "So remember Me; I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not be ungrateful."

And Ruh said once: On His servant.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 152- So remember Me, I will remember you is a command and its answer, and it contains the meaning of recompense. Saeed bin Jubair said: The meaning of the verse is remember Me with obedience, I will remember you with reward and forgiveness. Al-Qurtubi narrated it from him in his interpretation, and Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated it from him. A similar narration has been narrated with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, as will come. And His saying: And be grateful to Me Al-Farra' said: He thanked you and I thanked you. Gratitude is knowing and speaking about kindness, and its root in the language is purity. We have already discussed it. And His saying: And do not be ungrateful is a prohibition, and therefore the group's nun was deleted, and this one found in the verb is the speaker's nun, and the ya' was deleted because it is the beginning of a verse, and its inclusion is good in places other than the Qur'an. And kufr here is covering up a blessing, not denying it, and we have already discussed it.

Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And for each is a direction toward which he turns, he said: He means by that the people of religions, he said: For every qiblah they are pleased with. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said in the interpretation of this verse: Pray toward Jerusalem once, and toward the Kaaba another time. Abu Dawud narrated in his Naskh on the authority of Qatada something similar. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: Then race to do good deeds, he said: Do not be overcome in your qiblah. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Zayd regarding his statement: Then race to do good deeds, he said: The righteous deeds. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah regarding his statement: Then race to do good deeds, he said: So hasten in doing good deeds. Wherever you may be, God will bring you all together, he said: On the Day of Resurrection. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ibn Masoud and some of the Companions who said: When the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) turned towards the Kaaba after praying towards Jerusalem, the polytheists of Mecca said: Muhammad is confused about his religion, so he turned towards you as his qiblah and he knew that you were more guided than him and that he was about to enter your religion. So God revealed: "So that mankind will have no argument against you, except for those who do wrong among them. So fear them not, but fear Me." Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: So that mankind will have no argument against you, he said: He meant the People of the Book when the Prophet of God turned towards the Kaaba. They said: The man yearned for his father's house and the religion of his people. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: Their argument was their saying that he loved our qiblah. Abu Dawud narrated in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir on the authority of Qatadah and Mujahid on his statement: Except those who have wronged among them, he said: Those who have wronged among them are the polytheists of Quraysh that they will argue with you about that, and they argued with the Prophet of God about his turning to the Sacred House and they said: He will return to our religion as he returned to our Qiblah, so God revealed about all of that: "O you who have believed, seek help through patience and prayer. Indeed, God is with the patient." Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah on his statement: Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid on his statement: Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you, he said: As you did, remember Me. Abu Al-Shaykh and Al-Daylami narrated on the authority of Juwaybir on the authority of Ad-Dahhak on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Remember Me, I will remember you, meaning: Remember Me, O people of worship, by obeying Me and I will remember you with My forgiveness. Al-Daylami and Ibn Asakir narrated a similar hadith with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the authority of Abu Hind al-Dari, who added: "Whoever remembers Me while being obedient, it is My right to remember him with My forgiveness. Whoever remembers Me while being disobedient, it is My right to remember him with hatred."

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:152

So remember Me; I will remember you. And be grateful to Me and do not deny Me.

Abd ibn Hamid narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: God says: My remembrance of you is better than your remembrance of Me. Many hadiths have been narrated about the virtue of remembering God in general and the virtue of gratitude.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

152. So remember Me, and I will remember you. Ibn Abbas said: Remember Me with My obedience, and I will remember you with My forgiveness. Saeed bin Jubair said: Remember Me in times of comfort and ease, and I will remember you in times of hardship and affliction. Its explanation is: Had he not been among those who glorify God, he would have remained inside its belly until the Day of Resurrection. 144-As-Saffat.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Umar bin Hafis told us, Al-A'mash told us, he said, I heard Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, he said, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God Almighty says: "I am as My servant thinks of Me, and I am with him when he remembers Me. If he remembers Me to himself, I remember him to Myself. If he remembers Me in an assembly, I remember him in an assembly better than his. If he draws near to Me a handspace, I draw near to him an arm's length. If he draws near to Me an arm's length, I draw near to him a fathom's length. And whoever comes to Me walking, I come to him running."

Imam Abu Ali al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Qadi told us, and Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Tawbah al-Kashmihani told us: Abu al-Abbas Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Siraj al-Tahhan told us, Abu Ahmad Muhammad ibn Quraysh ibn Sulayman told us, Abu Abd al-Malik al-Dimashqi told us, Sulayman ibn Abd al-Rahman told us, Mundhir ibn Ziyad told us, on the authority of Sakhr ibn Juwayriyah, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Anas, who said: I heard this hadith from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as many as my fingers are ten, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God Almighty says: O son of Adam, if you remember Me in yourself, I will remember you in Myself, and if you remember Me in an assembly, I will remember you in an assembly better than them, and if you come one hand's length from Me, I will come one cubit's length from you, and if you come one cubit's length from Me, I will come one fathom's length from you, and if you walk to Me, I will run to you, and if you run to Me, I will hasten to you, and if you ask Me, I will give you, and if you do not ask Me, I will become angry with you."

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Al-Sam'ani told us, Abu Jaafar Al-Rayyani told us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh told us, Yahya bin Abdullah told us, Al-Awza'i told us, Ismail bin Ubaid God told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Darda', on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God Almighty says: I am with My servant as long as he remembers Me and his lips move with Me.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shureih told us, Abu Al-Qasim Al-Baghawi told us, Ali bin Al-Jaad told us, Ismail bin Ayyash told us, Amr bin Qais Al-Sakuni told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Busr, who said: A Bedouin came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, which deeds are best? He said: That you depart from this world while your tongue is moist with the remembrance of God Almighty.

God Almighty says: And be grateful to Me and do not be ungrateful. This means, be grateful to Me through obedience and do not be ungrateful to Me through disobedience. For whoever obeys God has thanked Him, and whoever disobeys Him has been ungrateful to Him.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

152- Remember Me with obedience. I will remember you with reward. And be grateful to Me for what I have bestowed upon you. And do not be ungrateful by denying blessings and disobeying the command.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:153

O you who have believed, seek help through patience and prayer. Indeed, God is with the patient.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, seek help for the Hereafter through patience in obedience and affliction and prayer He mentioned it specifically because of its repetition and importance Indeed, God is with the patient with help.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "O you who believe, seek help through patience and prayer. Indeed, God is with the patient." Abu Ja'far said: This verse is an exhortation from God, the Most High, to obey Him and to endure its unpleasantness for the body and wealth. He said: O you who believe, seek help through patience and prayer to carry out My obedience, and to perform My obligations in abrogating My rulings, and to turn away from what I abrogate from them to what I create for you from My obligations, and to which I transfer you from My rulings, and to submit to My command in what I command you to do when I impose its ruling on you, and to turn away from it after I have turned you away from it - even if that befalls you with something unpleasant from the words of your enemies from the disbelievers by their false accusation against you, or hardship on your bodies in carrying it out, or a decrease in your wealth - and to strive against your enemies and fight them in My way, with patience from you towards Me in the unpleasantness of that and its difficulty for you, and to endure its suffering. And its burden, then by frightening you in what befalls you of the horrific matters to pray to Me. For by being patient in the face of hardships you attain My pleasure, and by praying to Me you attain your requests from Me, and you attain your needs from Me, for I am with those who are patient in performing My obligations and abandoning their sins, I support them, I watch over them, and I protect them, until they attain what they sought and hoped for from Me. And I have explained the meaning of patience and prayer previously, so we disliked repeating it, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, regarding His statement: And seek help through patience and prayer, he says: Seek help through patience and prayer in pleasing God, and know that they are from obeying God. It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, seek help through patience and prayer, know that they are an aid to obeying God. As for his statement: Indeed, God is with the patient, its interpretation is: God is his supporter and helper and is pleased with his actions, like the saying of the speaker: Do so-and-so, and I am with you, meaning: I am your supporter and helper in doing that.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: So remember Me, and I will remember you is a command and its answer, and it contains the meaning of recompense, which is why it is in the subjunctive mood. The origin of remembrance is to be alert with the heart to what is being remembered and to be awake to it. Remembrance with the tongue is called remembrance because it indicates remembrance of the heart. However, since remembrance is often used to refer to verbal speech, it has come to be the one that comes first to understanding.

The meaning of the verse: Remember Me with obedience, and I will remember you with reward and forgiveness. Said Saeed bin Jubair. He also said: Remembrance is obedience to God, so whoever does not obey Him does not remember Him, even if he glorifies and praises God a lot and recites the Qur'an. It was narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

"Whoever obeys God has remembered God, even if his prayers, fasts, and good deeds are few. Whoever disobeys God has forgotten God, even if his prayers, fasts, and good deeds are many." Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Khuwaiz Mandad mentioned this in his Ahkam al-Quran. Abu Uthman al-Nahdi said: I know the time in which God will remember us. He was asked: How do you know it? He said: "God Almighty says: 'Remember Me, and I will remember you.'" Al-Suddi said: "There is no servant who remembers God except that God Almighty remembers him. No believer remembers him except that God remembers him with His mercy, and no disbeliever remembers him except that God remembers him with torment." Abu Uthman was asked: We remember God but do not find sweetness in our hearts? He said: Thank God Almighty for beautifying a limb of yours with His obedience. Dhu al-Nun al-Misri, may God have mercy on him, said: Whoever remembers God Almighty in a true manner, will forget everything else in the face of his remembrance, and God will preserve everything for him, and will be a substitute for everything. Muadh ibn Jabal, may God be pleased with him, said: No action done by the son of Adam is more effective in saving him from the punishment of God than the remembrance of God. There are many hadiths on the virtue of remembrance and its reward, narrated by the imams. Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Abdullah ibn Busr:

"An Arab said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: The laws of Islam have become too many for me, so tell me something of them that I can hold on to. He said: Keep your tongue moist with the remembrance of God Almighty." It was narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

O you who have believed, seek help through patience and prayer. Indeed, Allah is with the patient.

God the Almighty says, 'I am with My servant when he remembers Me and his lips move with Me.' This chapter will be further explained when God the Almighty says, O you who have believed, remember God with much remembrance, and that what is meant is remembrance of the heart, which must be maintained in all situations.

God the Almighty said: And be grateful to Me and do not be ungrateful. Al-Farra' said: It is said: I thanked you and I thanked you and I advised you. The first is the eloquent. Gratitude is knowing and speaking about kindness, and its root in the language is appearance, and it has been mentioned before. So the servant's gratitude to God the Almighty is His praise of him by mentioning His kindness to him, and the Truth, glory be to Him, is His gratitude to the servant by His praise of him by his obedience to Him, except that the servant's gratitude is uttered by the tongue and acknowledged in the heart by the Lord's favor along with acts of obedience.

The Almighty's saying: And do not disbelieve is a prohibition, and therefore the group's nun was deleted from it. This is the speaker's nun and the ya was deleted because it is the beginning of a verse, and it is better to prove it in places other than the Qur'an, meaning do not disbelieve in My blessings and favors. So disbelief here is concealing the blessing, not denying it. We have already discussed disbelief in language, and we have also discussed the meaning of seeking help through patience and prayer, so there is no point in repeating it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

When the Almighty proceeded from explaining the command to be grateful, He proceeded to explain patience, guidance, and seeking help through patience and prayer. The servant is either in a blessing, so he is grateful for it, or in a calamity, so he is patient with it, as stated in the hadith: "It is amazing for the believer that God does not decree for him a decree except that it is good for him: if he is granted ease, so he is grateful, it is good for him, and if he is afflicted with hardship, so he is patient, it is good for him." The Almighty explained that the best means of assistance to bear calamities are patience and prayer, as stated previously in His statement: And seek help through patience and prayer, and indeed, it is difficult except for the humbly submissive. In the hadith, when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was distressed by something, he would pray. Patience is of two types: patience in abstaining from forbidden things and sins, and patience in performing acts of obedience and devotion. The second type is more rewarding because it is the intended meaning. As for the third patience, which is patience in the face of calamities and misfortunes, this is also obligatory, like seeking forgiveness for faults, as Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam said: Patience is of two types: patience for God with what He loves, even if it is difficult for the souls and bodies, and patience for God from what He hates, even if desires incline towards it.

Whoever is like this is among the patient ones upon whom peace will be granted, God willing. Ali ibn al-Husayn Zayn al-Abidin said: When God gathers the first and the last, a caller will call out, Where are the patient ones so that they may enter Paradise before the reckoning? He said: Then a group of people will stand up and the angels will meet them and say: Where are you going, O children of Adam? They will say: To Paradise. They will say: Before the reckoning? They will say: Yes. They will say: Who are you? They said: We are the patient ones. They said: What was your patience? They said: We were patient in obeying God and we were patient in avoiding disobeying God until God took us. They said: You are as you said, enter Paradise, for what is the best reward for the workers I said: And evidence for this is the saying of God Almighty: Only the patient will be given their reward without account. Saeed bin Jubair said: Patience is the servant's acknowledgment to God of what he has done to him, and his seeking reward from God, hoping for His reward. And a man may be impatient while he is patient, and nothing is seen from him except patience.

God the Almighty says: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive. God the Almighty informs us that the martyrs are alive and provided for in their intermediate state, as it came in Sahih Muslim: The souls of the martyrs are in the crops of green birds that roam in Paradise wherever they wish, then they take refuge in lamps suspended beneath the Throne. Then your Lord looked at them and said: What do you seek? They said: O our Lord, what do we seek, when You have given us what You have not given to any of Your creation? Then He returned to them with something similar. When they saw that they would not be left without being asked, they said: We want You to return us to the worldly home so that we may fight in Your cause until we are killed in Your cause once again - because of what they see of the reward of martyrdom - then the Lord, may He be glorified and exalted, says: I have written that they will not return to it.

In the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad on the authority of Imam al-Shafi'i on the authority of Imam Malik on the authority of al-Zuhri on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Ka'b ibn Malik on the authority of his father, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The soul of the believer is a bird hanging from the trees of Paradise until God returns it to its body on the Day of Resurrection. This indicates that it also includes all believers, even though the martyrs have been specifically mentioned in the Qur'an as an honor, a sign of respect, and a sign of glorification.

Fath al-Qadir

When He, the Almighty, finished guiding His servants to remember Him and thank Him, He followed that by guiding them to seek help through patience and prayer. Whoever combines remembering God and thanking Him, and seeks help through patience and prayer to carry out what God has commanded, and to repel the trials that befall him, has been guided to the right path and guided to goodness. This companionship that God made clear in His saying: 153- Indeed, God is with the patient contains the greatest encouragement for His servants, the Almighty, to adhere to patience in the face of the calamities that befall them. Whoever has God with him does not fear the terrors, even if they are mountains.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

153. God Almighty says: "O you who have believed, seek help through patience and prayer. Indeed, God is with the patient." With help and victory.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

153- O you who have believed, seek help through patience from sins and self-interests, and prayer which is the mother of all acts of worship and the ascension of the believers, and the communion with the Lord of the Worlds. Indeed, God is with the patient with victory and the answering of supplications.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:154

And do not say about those who are killed in the way of Allah, "They are dead." Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:154

And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God, They are dead. Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God that they are (dead. Rather, they are alive, their souls are in the crops of green birds that roam in Paradise wherever they wish, according to a hadith about that but you do not perceive you know what they are in.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And do not say to those who are killed, The verse. Ibn Mandah narrated in the Companions, on the authority of al-Suddi al-Saghir, on the authority of al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Tamim ibn al-Hammam was killed at Badr, and in it and in other cases it was revealed: And do not say to those who are killed in the way of God, They are dead. The verse. Abu Naim said: They agreed that it was Umair ibn al-Hammam, and that al-Suddi corrupted it.

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means: O you who believe, seek help through patience in obeying Me in the struggle against your enemy, abandoning your sins, and performing all of My obligations upon you. And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God, 'He is dead.' For the dead among My creation are those from whom I have taken their life and deprived them of their senses, so they do not enjoy pleasure or attain bliss. For those of you and all of My creation who are killed in My way are alive with Me, in life and bliss, and a pleasant life, and a year's provision, rejoicing in what I have given them of My bounty, and what I have bestowed upon them of My honor, as Muhammad ibn `Amr told me, he said, Abu `Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His saying: Rather, they are alive with their Lord, they are provided with the fruits of Paradise, and they find its fragrance, and they are not... In it. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not, we used to be told that the souls of the martyrs recognize each other in white birds eating from the fruits of Paradise, and that their dwellings are the Lote Tree of the Limit, and that the one who fights in the way of God has three good qualities: whoever is killed in the way of God among them becomes alive and provided for, whoever is victorious, God will give him a great reward, and whoever dies, God will provide him with a good provision. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, 'Abd al-Razzaq narrated, Muammar narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not, he said: The souls of the martyrs are in the form of white birds. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, in the form of green birds flying in Paradise wherever they wished from it, eating from wherever they wished.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Uthman ibn Ghiyath told us, he said, I heard `Ikrimah say about His statement, And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not, he said: The souls of the martyrs are in green birds in Paradise. Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: What is in His statement, And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, of the specificity of the report about the one killed in the way of God, which does not include anyone else? It has been known that the reports from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) are consistent, and that he described the state of the believers and the unbelievers after their death. He informed about the believers that doors to Paradise will be opened for them from their graves, from which they will smell its fragrance, and they will hasten the coming of the Hour, so that they may return to their dwellings there, and they will be reunited with their families and children there. And about the unbelievers, that doors to Hell will be opened for them from their graves, and they will look at it, and they will be afflicted with its stench and its evils, and those who will oppress them will be empowered over them until the coming of the Hour, and they will ask God to delay the coming of the Hour, fearing the fate that God has prepared for them therein, along with similar reports. If the reports from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) are consistent, then what is the special privilege of the one who is killed in the way of God, which is not shared by all other human beings except him, while all the unbelievers and believers except him are alive in the intermediate realm, while the unbelievers are tormented therein with a difficult life, and as for the believers, they will enjoy the spirit, basil, and the breeze of Paradise? It was said: What God has distinguished the martyrs with in this regard, and what He has informed the believers with from His report about them, the Most High, is His informing them that they will be provided with the foods and drinks of Paradise in their intermediate state before their resurrection, and that they will enjoy what all of humanity will enjoy when they enter it after the resurrection, from the delicious foods that God has not fed anyone but them in their intermediate state before their resurrection. So that is the virtue with which He has distinguished them and distinguished them from others, and the benefit that He has informed the believers with from the report about them, so the Most High said to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "And never think that those who are killed in the way of God are dead. Rather, they are alive with their Lord, receiving provision, rejoicing in what God has given them of His bounty" (Al Imran 3:169-170). And the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came in a similar manner to what we said. Abu Kurayb narrated that Abdur-Raheem bin Sulayman and Abdah bin Sulayman narrated from Muhammad bin Ishaq from Al-Harith bin Fadil from Mahmud bin Labid from Ibn Abbas who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'The martyrs are on Barq, a river at the gate of Paradise, in a green dome - Abdah said: in a green garden - their provision comes out to them from Paradise morning and evening.'" Abu Kurayb narrated that Jabir bin Nuh narrated from Al-Ifriqi from Ibn Bashir Al-Sulami - or Abu Bashir, Abu Ja'far was not sure - who said: The souls of the martyrs are in white domes from the domes of Paradise, in each dome are two wives, their provision on every day the sun rises is a bull and a fish. As for the bull, in it is the taste of every fruit in Paradise, and as for the fish, in it is the taste of every drink in Paradise. Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say: The report of what you mentioned, that God, the Most High, mentioned that He informed the believers with His report about the martyrs from the blessing that He has singled them out with in the intermediate realm, is not found in His statement: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive. Rather, it contains the report about their state, are they dead or alive? It was said: What is meant by mentioning the report about their lives is the report that they are exempt from the blessing, but God, the Most High, mentioned that when He had informed His servants about what He had singled out the martyrs with in His statement: "And never think that those who are killed in the way of God are dead. Rather, they are alive with their Lord, receiving provision." (Al-Imran: 169), and they knew their state from His report of that, then what was meant by God, the Most High, mentioned in His statement: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, is that He forbade His creation from saying about the martyrs that they are dead, leaving out repeating what He had explained to them of their story.

As for his statement: But you do not perceive, he means: But you do not see them and know that they are alive. You only know that by my informing you of them. And his statement: dead is raised by an implied pronoun for the names of those who are killed in the way of God, and the meaning of that is: And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God that they are dead. And the accusative is not permissible for the dead, because the statement does not apply to them. And likewise his statement: Rather, they are alive, is raised, meaning: they are alive.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

This is like what God Almighty said in the other verse: "And never think that those who are killed in the way of God are dead. Rather, they are alive with their Lord, receiving provision." There comes the discussion of martyrs and their rulings, God Almighty willing.

If God the Almighty revives them after death to provide for them - as follows - then it is permissible for Him to revive the infidels to torment them, and this would be evidence of the torment of the grave. The martyrs are alive as God the Almighty said, and this does not mean that they will be revived, because if that were the case, there would be no difference between the martyrs and others, since everyone will be revived. This is indicated by the Almighty's saying: But you do not perceive, and the believers perceive that they will be revived. The word dead was raised with an implied subject, and so is rather alive, meaning they are dead and they are alive. It is not correct to apply the word said to it because there is no connection between it and it, just as it is correct in your saying: I said a word and an argument.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

When the Almighty proceeded from explaining the command to be grateful, He proceeded to explain patience, guidance, and seeking help through patience and prayer. The servant is either in a blessing, so he is grateful for it, or in a calamity, so he is patient with it, as stated in the hadith: "It is amazing for the believer that God does not decree for him a decree except that it is good for him: if he is granted ease, so he is grateful, it is good for him, and if he is afflicted with hardship, so he is patient, it is good for him." The Almighty explained that the best means of assistance to bear calamities are patience and prayer, as stated previously in His statement: And seek help through patience and prayer, and indeed, it is difficult except for the humbly submissive. In the hadith, when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was distressed by something, he would pray. Surat Al-Baqarah 2:154

And do not say about those who are killed in the way of Allah, "They are dead." Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not.

Where are you going, O children of Adam? They will say: To Paradise. They will say: Before the reckoning? They will say: Yes. They will say: Who are you? They said: We are the patient ones. They said: What was your patience? They said: We were patient in obeying God and we were patient in avoiding disobeying God until God took us. They said: You are as you said, enter Paradise, for what is the best reward for the workers I said: And evidence for this is the saying of God Almighty: Only the patient will be given their reward without account. Saeed bin Jubair said: Patience is the servant's acknowledgment to God of what he has done to him, and his seeking reward from God, hoping for His reward. And a man may be impatient while he is patient, and nothing is seen from him except patience.

God the Almighty says: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive. God the Almighty informs us that the martyrs are alive and provided for in their intermediate state, as it came in Sahih Muslim: The souls of the martyrs are in the crops of green birds that roam in Paradise wherever they wish, then they take refuge in lamps suspended beneath the Throne. Then your Lord looked at them and said: What do you seek? They said: O our Lord, what do we seek, when You have given us what You have not given to any of Your creation? In the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad on the authority of Imam al-Shafi'i on the authority of Imam Malik on the authority of al-Zuhri on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Ka'b ibn Malik on the authority of his father, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The soul of the believer is a bird hanging from the trees of Paradise until God returns it to its body on the Day of Resurrection. This indicates that it also includes all believers, even though the martyrs have been specifically mentioned in the Qur'an as an honor, a sign of respect, and a sign of glorification.

154- And do not say about those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not. Dead and alive are raised as two predicates for two omitted words: that is, do not say about those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' Rather, they are alive, but you do not perceive this life when you see their bodies after their souls have been taken away, because you judge them to be dead in appearance according to what your knowledge reaches, which is in relation to God's knowledge as a bird takes seawater in its beak. But in reality, they are not like that, but rather they are alive in the intermediate realm. And in the verse there is evidence of the proof of the torment of the grave, and no attention should be paid to the disagreement of those who disagreed with that, as it has been transmitted in many authentic hadiths and the verses of the Qur'an have indicated it, and an example of this verse is the saying of God the Most High: "And do not think that those who are killed in the way of God are dead. Rather, they are alive with their Lord, receiving provision."

Tafsir al-Baghawi

154. And do not say of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' This was revealed about the Muslims killed at Badr, who were fourteen men, six from the Muhajireen and eight from the Ansar. People used to say of those who were killed in the way of God, So-and-so has died and the pleasures and delights of this world have gone away from him. So God, the Most High, revealed: And do not say of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead.' "Rather, they are alive, but you perceive [it] not." As He said about the martyrs of UHud 11: "And never think that those who are killed in the way of God are dead. Rather, they are alive with their Lord, receiving provision." 169-Al Imran. Al Hassan said that the martyrs are alive with God, the Most High. Their provisions are presented to their souls, and spirit and joy reach them, just as the fire is presented to the souls of the people of Pharaoh morning and evening, and pain reaches them.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

154- "And do not say of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead,'" meaning they are dead. "Rather, they are alive. But you perceive not," what is their state? This is a warning that their life is not in the body nor of the same kind as what animals sense, but rather it is something that cannot be perceived by reason, but rather by revelation. And from Al-Hasan (Indeed, the martyrs are alive with their Lord. Their provisions are presented to their souls, and the spirit and joy reach them, just as the fire is presented to the souls of the people of Pharaoh, morning and evening, and pain and suffering reach them.) The verse was revealed about the martyrs of Badr, and they were fourteen. It indicates that the souls are substances that exist in themselves, different from what is sensed in the body, and they remain perceptible after death. The majority of the Companions and Followers agreed on this, and the verses and Sunnahs spoke of it. And on this, the martyrs were singled out for their special closeness to God the Most High, and for increased joy and dignity.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:155

And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth and lives and fruits, but give good tidings to the patient.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And We will surely test you with something of fear of the enemy and hunger drought and a loss of wealth through destruction and lives through killing, death, and diseases and fruits through plagues, that is, We will test you and see whether you will be patient or not and give good tidings to the patient in the face of affliction with Paradise.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth and lives and fruits, but give good tidings to the patient. Abu Ja'far said: This is a notification from God, the Most High, mentioned by the followers of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, that He will test them and examine them with hardships of matters, to know who follows the Messenger and who turns back on his heels, just as He tested them and examined them by changing the Qiblah from the Holy House to the Ka'bah, and just as He tested His chosen ones before them. And He promised them that in another verse, saying to them: "Or do you think that you will enter Paradise while such [things] have not yet come to you as came to those who passed on before you? They were afflicted with poverty and hardship and were shaken until the Messenger and those who believed with him said, "When is the help of God? Unquestionably, the help of God is near. (al-Baqarah 2:214) Ibn 'Abbas and others used to say something similar to what we said about that. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger, and something similar to this, he said: God informed the believers that this world is a place of trial, and that He will test them in it, and He commanded them to be patient, and He gave them good tidings, saying: And give good tidings to the patient, then He informed them that He did this with His prophets and chosen ones, so that their souls would be at ease, so He said: They were touched by poverty and hardship, and they were shaken (al-Baqarah 2:214). The meaning of His statement: And We will surely test you, is that We will surely test you. We have already explained that the meaning of trial is testing, in what has passed before. And His statement: With something of fear, meaning fear of the enemy, and with hunger - which is drought - He says: We will surely test you with something of fear that will befall you from your enemy, and with a year that will befall you in which famine and hardship will befall you, and your demands will be difficult, so your wealth will be diminished? And wars that will take place between you and your enemies from the disbelievers, so your numbers will be diminished? And the death of your children and offspring, and droughts that occur and reduce your fruits. All of that is a test from Me for you, and a trial from Me for you, so that those of you who are truthful in their faith may be distinguished from those of you who are liars in it, and those of you who have insight into their religion may be distinguished from those of you who are hypocrites, doubters, and skeptics. All of that is an address from Him to the followers of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and his companions, as: Harun ibn Idris al-Kufi al-Asamm told me, he said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Muhammad al-Maharibi told us, on the authority of Abd al-Malik, on the authority of Ata', regarding His statement: And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger, he said: They are the companions of Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Rather, the Most High said: with something of fear and did not say: with things, because of the different types of what He informed His servants with which He would test them. So since that was different - and of indicates that each type of it contains something, then the meaning of that is: And We will surely test you with something of fear, and with something of hunger, and with something of a decrease in wealth - He was satisfied with indicating the mention of the thing at the beginning, from repeating it with each type of it.

So the Almighty did all of that to them, and tested them with various kinds of trials, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth and lives and fruits, he said: That has happened, and something worse than that will happen. God said at that time: And give good tidings to the patient, who, when disaster strikes them, say, "Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return. Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. And it is those who are the [rightly] guided." Then the Almighty said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: O Muhammad, give good tidings to those who are patient in the face of My testing them with what I test them with, and who guard themselves from going ahead of what I forbid them from, and who hold themselves to performing what I have charged them with of My obligations, despite My testing them with what I test them with, who say when disaster strikes them, Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return. So God Almighty commanded him to give good report regarding the hardships He was testing them with, to those who were patient, whose characteristics God had described.

The origin of the word tabsheer is when a man tells another man report, whether it pleases him or not, that no one else has told him before.

And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth and lives and fruits, but give good tidings to the patient.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And We will surely test you This waw is open according to Sibawayh due to the meeting of two quiescent letters. Another said: When it is added to the heavy noon, the verb is built on the level of fifteen. The affliction can be good or bad. Its root is the trial, as mentioned above. The meaning is that We will surely test you to teach the one who strives and is patient the knowledge of its meanings so that the reward will befall him, as mentioned above. It was said: They were only tested with this as a sign for those who come after them, so that they will know that they were only patient with this when the truth was made clear to them. It was also said: He informed them of this so that they would be certain that it would befall them, so that they would prepare themselves for it and be further from impatience. In it is the hastening of the reward of God Almighty for the resolve and preparing the soul.

God the Almighty says: With something is a singular word but its meaning is plural. Ad-Dahhak read with things in the plural, while the majority read it in the singular form, meaning with something of this and something of that, so he was satisfied with the first for brevity. From fear meaning fear of the enemy and panic in battle, as Ibn Abbas said. Ash-Shafi'i said: It is the fear of God the Almighty. And hunger means famine due to drought and famine, according to Ibn Abbas. Ash-Shafi'i said: It is hunger in the month of Ramadan. And a decrease in wealth due to being busy fighting the infidels. It was said: The devastating calamities. Ash-Shafi'i said: With the obligatory zakat. And souls Ibn Abbas said: With killing and death in jihad. Ash-Shafi'i said: He means diseases. And fruits Ash-Shafi'i said: What is meant is the death of children, and a man's child is the fruit of his heart, as came in the hadith, as will come. Ibn Abbas said: What is meant is the scarcity of plants and the cessation of blessings.

The Almighty says: And give good tidings to the patient, meaning the reward for patience. Patience originally means confinement, and its reward is not specified, as has been mentioned before. However, this can only be achieved by being patient at the first shock, as Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Anas on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

Patience is only at the first shock. Muslim narrated it in a more complete manner, meaning that the patience that is difficult for the soul and for which the reward is great is only when a calamity strikes and its heat is felt, for it indicates the strength of the heart and its steadfastness in the position of patience. However, when the heat of the calamity cools down, everyone is patient at that time. Therefore, it was said: Every wise person must adhere to what a fool must do at the time of a calamity after three days. Sahl ibn Abdullah al-Tustari said: When God the Almighty said: And give good tidings to the patient, patience became a livelihood. Patience is of two types: patience from disobeying God, for this is a mujahid, and patience in obeying God, for this is a worshipper. So if he is patient from disobeying God and patient in obeying God, God will grant him contentment with His decree. The sign of patience is the heart's tranquility with what befalls the soul of disliked and beloved things. Al-Hawaas said: Patience is steadfastness in adhering to the rulings of the Book and the Sunnah. Ruwaym said: Patience is abandoning complaint. Dhu al-Nun al-Misri said: Patience is seeking help from God the Almighty. Professor Abu Ali said: The limit of patience is not to object to the decree. As for showing the affliction in a way other than complaining, it does not contradict patience. God Almighty said in the story of Job: Indeed, We found him patient, an excellent servant, along with what was reported about him that he said: Harm has touched me.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty told us that He tests His servants, that is, He examines and tests them, as He the Almighty said: And We will surely test you until We make evident those among you who strive [for the cause of God] and the patient, and We will make evident your report. Sometimes with ease and sometimes with hardship such as fear and hunger, as He the Almighty said: So God made them taste the garment of hunger and fear. The hungry and the fearful both show that, and that is why He said the garment of hunger and fear. And He said here: with a little fear and hunger, that is, with a little of that, and a loss of wealth, that is, the loss of some of it, and lives, such as the death of friends, relatives, and loved ones, and fruits, that is, the gardens and farms do not yield as they usually do. Some of the Salaf said: Some of the palm trees would only bear fruit once. All of this and the like are ways by which God tests His servants. Whoever is patient, He will reward him, and whoever despairs, He will punish him. That is why God the Almighty said: And give good tidings to the patient. Some commentators have related that what is meant by fear here is the fear of God, and by hunger, fasting in Ramadan, and by loss of wealth, zakat, and by souls, diseases, and by fruits, children. There is a view on this, and God knows best. Then God the Almighty explained who are the patient ones He thanked, saying: Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.' That is, they consoled themselves with this saying for what befell them and knew that they belong to God and that He disposes of His servants as He wills, and they knew that not an atom's weight will be lost with Him on the Day of Resurrection. That caused them to acknowledge that they are His servants and that they will return to Him in the Hereafter. That is why God the Almighty informed them of what He gave them for that, saying: On them are blessings from their Lord and mercy. That is, praise from God for them. Saeed bin Jubair said: That is, security from punishment. And those are the ones who are guided. The Commander of the Faithful, Omar bin Al-Khattab, said: What excellent just men and what excellent bonus. Upon them are blessings from their Lord and mercy. These are the two just men. And those are the ones who are guided. This bonus is what is placed between the two just men and it is an increase in the burden. Likewise, these men were given their reward and were given an increase as well.

There are many hadiths that have been narrated about the reward for seeking God's help, which is to say, Inna lillahi wa inna ilayhi raji'un We belong to God and to Him we shall return when faced with calamities.

Among them is what Imam Ahmad narrated, where he said: Yunus ibn Muhammad narrated to us, Laith, meaning Ibn Sa'd, narrated to us, from Yazid ibn Abdullah ibn Usamah ibn al-Haad, from Amr ibn Abi Amr, from al-Muttalib, from Umm Salamah, who said: Abu Salamah came to me one day from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, a statement that made me happy. He said: "No Muslim is afflicted with a calamity and seeks God's help upon his calamity and then says, 'O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it with something better,' except that that will be done to him." Umm Salamah said: So I memorized that from him, and when Abu Salamah died, I sought God's help and said, 'O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it with something better.' Then I came to my senses and said, 'How can I find someone better than Abu Salamah?' When my waiting period was over, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked permission to see me while I was tanning a hide for myself. I washed my hands of the qaz and gave him permission. I placed for him a leather cushion stuffed with palm fibers, and he sat on it and proposed to me. When he finished speaking, I said: O Messenger of God, it is not that I do not desire you, but I am a woman who is extremely jealous and I fear that you will see something in me that will punish me. I am a woman who has reached old age and I have children. He said: As for what you mentioned about jealousy, God Almighty will remove it from you. As for what you mentioned about old age, the same thing that happened to me happened to you. As for what you mentioned about children, your children are my children. She said: She surrendered to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married her. Umm Salamah then said: God replaced Abu Salamah with someone better than him: the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. In Sahih Muslim, she said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There is no servant who is afflicted with a calamity and says: 'To God we belong and to Him we shall return.' O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it for me with something better than it, except that God will reward him for his calamity and replace it for him with something better than it." She said: When Abu Salamah died, I said: As the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded me, and God replaced him with someone better than him: the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Imam Ahmad said: Yazid and Ibad bin Ibad told us: Hisham bin Abi Hisham told us: Ibad bin Ziyad told us, on the authority of his mother, on the authority of Fatimah bint al-Husayn, on the authority of her father, al-Husayn bin Ali, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "There is no Muslim man or woman who is afflicted with a calamity and remembers it, even if it happened a long time ago - and Ibad said it happened a long time ago - and says 'I seek refuge in God from God,' but God renews it for him and gives him a reward like the reward of the day he was afflicted." Ibn Majah narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah on the authority of Wakee' on the authority of Hisham bin Ziyad on the authority of his mother on the authority of Fatimah bint al-Husayn on the authority of her father. Ismail bin Aliyah and Yazid bin Harun narrated it on the authority of Hisham bin Ziyad on the authority of his father thus on the authority of Fatimah on the authority of her father. Imam Ahmad said: I heard Yahya bin Ishaq al-Silhini, I heard Hammad bin Salamah on the authority of Abu Sinan, who said: I buried a son of mine and while I was in the grave, Abu Talhah - meaning al-Khawlani - took me by the hand and took me out and said to me: Shall I not give you good report? I said: Yes. He said: Ad-Dahhak bin Abd al-Rahman bin Awzab told me on the authority of Abu Musa who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God said: O Angel of Death, have you taken the son of My servant? Have you taken the joy of his eyes and the fruit of his heart? He said: Yes. He said: What did he say? He said: He praised You and sought refuge in You. He said: Build a house for him in Paradise and name it the House of Praise."

Then he narrated it on the authority of Ali bin Ishaq on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak and mentioned it. And thus Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Suwaid bin Nasr on the authority of Ibn Al-Mubarak on his authority, and he said: It is good and strange. Abu Sinan's name is Isa bin Sinan.

Fath al-Qadir

The origin of the affliction is the trial, and the meaning of Nabloonkum is: We test you to test you, will you be patient with the decree or not? The indefiniteness of something is to diminish: meaning with a small amount of these matters. Ad-Dahhak read it with things. What is meant by fear: what happens to someone who fears harm from an enemy or someone else. And by hunger: the famine that occurs due to drought and famine. And by the decrease in wealth: what happens to it due to disasters and what God has directed in it from zakat and the like. And by the decrease in souls: death and killing in jihad. And by the decrease in fruits: what befalls it from calamities, and it is from the conjunction of the specific to the general because wealth includes fruits and other things. It was said: what is meant by the decrease in fruits: the death of children. And His statement: 155- And give good tidings to the patient is a command to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, or to everyone who is able to give good tidings. The meaning of good tidings has already been mentioned. And patience is originally confinement, and He described them as those who seek refuge in the face of calamity, because that is submission and contentment.

And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth and lives and fruits, but give good tidings to the patient.

155. The Almighty's saying: And We will surely test you meaning, and We will surely test you, O nation of Muhammad. The lam is for the answer to the oath, meaning, And God will test you. The test is from God to reveal the obedient from the disobedient, not to know something that he did not know. With something of fear. Ibn Abbas said, meaning fear of the enemy. And hunger means drought. And a decrease in wealth through loss and destruction. And lives means killing and death. It was said, And gray hair. "And fruits" means disasters in fruits. It was narrated from Al-Shafi'i that he said, "Fear is the fear of God Almighty, and hunger is fasting Ramadan, and a decrease in wealth is paying zakat and charity, and lives are diseases, and fruits are the death of children because a man's child is the fruit of his heart."

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Muhammad bin Muhammad bin Sam'an told us, Abu Ja'far Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Abdul Jabbar Al-Rayyani told us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh told us, Al-Hasan bin Musa told us, Hammad bin Salamah told us, on the authority of Abu Sinan, who said: I buried my son Sinan, and Abu Talha Al-Khawlani was on the edge of the grave. When I wanted to go out, he took me by the hand and pulled me out and said: Shall I not give you good report? Ad-Dahhak bin Azrab told me, on the authority of Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "When the child of a servant dies, God the Almighty says to His angels: 'Have you taken the soul of My servant's child?' They say: 'Yes.' He says: 'Have you taken the fruit of his heart?' They say: 'Yes.' So what did My servant say?' They say: 'He sought refuge in God and praised You.' He says: 'Build for him a house in Paradise and name it the House of Praise.'"

And give good tidings to the patient in the face of calamities and misfortunes, then he described them and said:

155- And We will surely test you and We will surely afflict you with the affliction of those who test your conditions, will you be patient in the face of affliction and submit to the decree? with something of fear and hunger meaning with a little of that, and He only made it small in relation to what He protected them from in order to make it easier for them, and to show them that His mercy will not leave them, or in relation to what will befall their opponents in the Hereafter, and He only informed them of it before it happened so that they would prepare themselves for it. And a loss of wealth and lives and fruits is a conjunction of something, or fear, and from Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, fear is the fear of God, and hunger is the fasting of Ramadan, and the loss is from wealth, charity and zakat, and from lives: diseases, and from fruits, the death of children. On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, "When a servant's child dies, God Almighty says to the angels: 'Have you taken the soul of My servant's child?' They say: 'Yes.' God Almighty says: 'Have you taken the fruit of his heart?' They say: 'Yes.' God Almighty says: 'What did My servant say?' They say: 'He praised You and sought refuge in You.' God Almighty says: 'Build for My servant a house in Paradise, a house of praise.' And give good tidings to the patient."

Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

They are those who, when a calamity befalls them, say, Indeed we belong to God a king and servants, who does with us what He wills and indeed to Him we will return in the Hereafter, so He will reward us. And in the hadith, Whoever seeks refuge in God when a calamity befalls him, God will reward him for it and replace it with something better. And in it, the lamp of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was extinguished, so he sought refuge in God, and Aisha said, This is only a lamp. He said, Everything that a believer does wrong is a calamity. Narrated by Abu Dawud in his Marasil.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.'

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means: Give good tidings, O Muhammad, to the patient ones who know that all the blessings they have are from Me, so they acknowledge My servitude, and believe in My Oneness as Lord, and believe in the Resurrection and returning to Me, so they submit to My judgment, and hope for My reward, and fear My punishment, and say - when I test them with some of My trials, and afflict them with what I promised them that I would afflict them with of fear, hunger, and loss of wealth, lives, and fruits, and other afflictions with which I test them -: We are the servants of our Lord and our object of worship, and we are His slaves, and to Him we shall return after our death, in submission to My judgment and contentment with My rulings.

Imam Ahmad said: I heard Yahya bin Ishaq al-Silhini, I heard Hammad bin Salamah on the authority of Abu Sinan, who said: I buried a son of mine and while I was in the grave, Abu Talhah - meaning al-Khawlani - took me by the hand and took me out and said to me: Shall I not give you good report? I said: Yes. He said: Ad-Dahhak bin Abd al-Rahman bin Awzab told me on the authority of Abu Musa who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God said: O Angel of Death, have you taken the son of My servant? Have you taken the joy of his eyes and the fruit of his heart? He said: Yes. He said: What did he say? He said: He praised You and sought refuge in

You. He said: Build a house for him in Paradise and name it the House of Praise."

Then he narrated it on the authority of Ali bin Ishaq on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak and mentioned it. And thus Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Suwaid bin Nasr on the authority of Ibn Al-Mubarak on his authority, and he said: It is good and strange. Abu Sinan's name is Isa bin Sinan.

Fath al-Qadir

And the calamity is one of the calamities: it is the disaster that harms a person, no matter how small. And His saying: 156- Indeed we belong to God and to Him we shall return is a statement that these words are a refuge for the afflicted and a protection for those who are tested, for they combine the acknowledgment of servitude to God and the recognition of resurrection and revival.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

156. Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, as servants and a king, and indeed to Him we will return.' In the Hereafter.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Muhammad bin Muhammad bin Sam'an told us, Abu Ja'far Al-Rayyani told us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh told us, Muhadhir bin Al-Mura' told us, Sa'd bin Sa'id told us, on the authority of Umar bin Katheer bin Aflah, the freed slave of Umm Salamah told us, on the authority of Umm Salamah, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that she said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There is no calamity that befalls a servant and he says, 'To God we belong and to Him we shall return. O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it with something better,' except that God will reward him for his calamity and replace it with something better." Umm Salamah said: When Abu Salamah died, God resolved to do so, so I said, 'O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it with something better.' So God replaced the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, for me.

Saeed bin Jubair said: No one has been given in a calamity what this nation has been given, meaning the request to seek God's forgiveness. If anyone had been given it, it would have been given to Jacob, peace be upon him. Do you not hear the words of God Almighty in the story of Joseph, peace be upon him: Oh, my grief over Joseph 84-Yusuf?

156- Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.' The address is to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, or to whomever brings him good report. The word calamity includes any harm that befalls a person, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Everything that harms a believer is a calamity for him. Patience is not by saying return to God with the tongue, but rather by it and in the heart, by imagining what he was created for, and that he will return to his Lord, and remembering God's blessings upon him so that he sees that what remains for him is many times what he was restored to, so it becomes easy for him, and he submits to it, and the one who is given good report is omitted and indicated.

Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. And it is those who are the [rightly] guided.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:157

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

On them are blessings forgiveness from their Lord and mercy grace and it is those who are the [rightly] guided to the truth.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "Those are they upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. And it is those who are the [rightly] guided." Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: Those, these are the patient ones, whom He described and described, upon them, meaning: for them, prayers, meaning: forgiveness. And the prayers of God upon His servants, His forgiveness of His servants, like that which "It was narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: O God, bless the family of Abi Awfa." Meaning: Forgive them. We have explained the prayer and its origin in other places. And His saying: and mercy, means: and for them with forgiveness, by which He pardoned their sins and covered them, mercy from God and compassion. Then the Almighty informed - along with what He mentioned that He gives them for their patience in His trials, in submission to His judgment, forgiveness and mercy - that they are the ones who are guided, who follow the path of truth, who say what pleases Him, and who do what they deserve from God in abundance of reward. We have explained the meaning of guidance previously, for it means being guided to what is right. A group of the people of interpretation said the same meaning as what we said about that. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: "Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.' Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. And it is those who are the [rightly] guided," he said: God informed that if the believer submits the matter to God, and returns and seeks refuge in God when afflicted, three qualities of good are written for him: blessings from God, mercy, and fulfilling the path of guidance. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever seeks God's forgiveness when afflicted, God will compensate for his affliction, make his end good, and grant him a righteous successor with whom He will be pleased. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy, he said: Blessings and mercy are upon those who were patient and sought God's forgiveness. Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan al-'Asfari, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, he said:

No one has been given what this nation has been given: Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.' Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. If it had been given to anyone, it would have been given to Jacob, peace be upon him. Have you not heard his saying, Oh, my grief over Joseph (Yusuf 12:84).

It has six issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: A calamity. A calamity is everything that harms or befalls a believer. It is said: He was afflicted with an injury, "a calamity," and a calamity. A calamity is the singular of calamities. Al-Masuba with a damma on the sad is like al-Masiba. The Arabs agreed on the hamza of al-Masa'ib, and its root is waw, as if they likened the root to the extra, and it is pluralized as al-Masawib, which is the root. A calamity is al-Isaba, as the poet said:

Aslam, your affliction is a man who gave peace as a greeting of injustice.

The arrow hit the paper, it hits a loss, a language for it hit him. al-Qari'ah 101: the disaster that befalls a person, even if it is small, and it is used to mean evil. Ikrimah narrated:

"The lamp of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out one night, and he said: 'To God we belong and to Him we shall return.' It was said: 'Is this a calamity, O Messenger of God?' He said: 'Yes, everything that harms a believer is a calamity.'"

I said: This meaning is confirmed in Sahih. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed and Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with them both, that they heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

No fatigue, nor illness, nor sorrow befalls a believer, not even a worry that worries him, but that some of his sins are expiated thereby.

Second: Ibn Majah included in his Sunan: Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah told us: Waki' bin Al-Jarrah told us: Hisham bin Ziyad told us: His mother told us: Fatima bint Al-Hussein told us: Her father told us: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Whoever is afflicted with a calamity and remembers his calamity and says 'I seek refuge in God from evil', even if the calamity has passed, God will write for him a reward equal to that of the day he was afflicted."

Third: One of the greatest calamities is the calamity in religion. Abu Omar mentioned on the authority of Al-Faryabi that he said: Fatar bin Khalifa told us that Ata bin Abi Rabah told us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If any of you is afflicted with a calamity, let him remember my affliction, for it is among the greatest of calamities. It was narrated by Al-Samarqandi Abu Muhammad in his Musnad. Abu Na'im told us: Fitr told us..., and he mentioned something similar. He also attributed something similar to it on the authority of Makhul, without a chain of transmission. Abu Umar said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke the truth, because his affliction is greater than any affliction that will befall a Muslim after him until the Day of Resurrection. Revelation was cut off and prophethood died. The first appearance of evil was the apostasy of the Arabs and other things, and it was the first cessation of goodness and the first decrease in it. Abu Sa'id said: We did not remove the dust from the grave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, until our hearts rejected it. Abu Al-Atahiya did a good job in composing the meaning of this hadith, where he says:

Be patient for every calamity and be patient, and know that a person is not immortal.

Or do you not see that the calamities are many and that death is on the horizon for the servants?

Who among those you see has not been afflicted with a calamity? This is a path in which you are not alone.

If you mention Muhammad and his affliction, then mention your affliction with the Prophet Muhammad.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: "They said: 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.'" God the Almighty made these words a refuge for those afflicted with calamities, and a protection for those who are tested, because they contain blessed meanings. His saying: Indeed we belong to God is monotheism and an acknowledgment of servitude and dominion. His saying: And indeed to Him we will return is an acknowledgment of our own destruction and resurrection from our graves, and the certainty that the return of all matters to Him as they are to Him. Saeed bin Jubair, may God have mercy on him, said: These words were not given to any prophet before our Prophet, and if Jacob had known them, he would not have said: Oh, my grief over Joseph.

Fifth: Abu Sinan said: I buried my son Sinan, and Abu Talha Al-Khawlani was on the edge of the grave. When I wanted to go out, he took my hand and encouraged me and said: Shall I not give you good report, O Abu Sinan? Ad-Dahhak told me on the authority of Abu Musa that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"If the slave's child dies, God says to His angels, 'Have you taken the soul of My slave's child?' They say, 'Yes.' He says, 'Have you taken the fruit of his heart?' They say, 'Yes.' He says, 'Then what did My slave say?' They say, 'He praised You and sought refuge in You.' God says, 'Build a house for My slave in Paradise and name it the House of Praise.'" Muslim narrated on the authority of Umm Salamah, who said, "I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

"There is no Muslim who is afflicted with a calamity and says what God the Almighty has commanded him: 'Indeed we belong to God and indeed to Him we shall return. O God, reward me for my affliction and compensate me with something better than it,' except that God will compensate him with something better than it." This is a reminder of the words of God the Almighty: And give good tidings to the patient, either by compensation, as God compensated the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) for Umm Salamah, for he married her when her husband Abu Salamah died. Or by a great reward, as in the hadith of Abu Musa. It may be by both.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: Upon them are blessings from their Lord and mercy. These are blessings from God the Almighty to the patient and those who seek His return. God's blessings upon His servant: His pardon, mercy, blessing, and honoring him in this world and the hereafter. Al-Zajaj said: The blessings from God the Almighty are forgiveness and good praise. From this, the prayers upon the dead are only praising him and supplicating for him. He repeated mercy when the wording differs, to emphasize and satisfy the meaning, as He said: Of the clear proofs and guidance, and His saying: Or do they think that We do not hear their secrets and their private conversations? And the poet said:

Pray for Yahya and his followers, a generous Lord and an obeyed intercessor.

It was said: By mercy he meant relieving distress and fulfilling need. In Bukhari, Omar may God be pleased with him said: What a good just person and what a good bonus! "Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.' Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. And it is those who are the [rightly] guided." What he meant by just people is prayer and mercy, and by bonus is guidance. It was said: To deserving reward and generous recompense, and it was said: To making calamities easier and relieving grief.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty told us that He tests His servants, that is, He examines and tests them, as He the Almighty said: And We will surely test you until We make evident those among you who strive [for the cause of God] and the patient, and We will make evident your report. Sometimes with ease and sometimes with hardship such as fear and hunger, as He the Almighty said: So God made them taste the garment of hunger and fear. The hungry and the fearful both show that, and that is why He said the garment of hunger and fear. And He said here: with a little fear and hunger, that is, with a little of that, and a loss of wealth, that is, the loss of some of it, and lives, such as the death of friends, relatives, and loved ones, and fruits, that is, the gardens and farms do not yield as they usually do. Some of the Salaf said: Some of the palm trees would only bear fruit once. All of this and the like are ways by which God tests His servants. Whoever is patient, He will reward him, and whoever despairs, He will punish him. That is why God the Almighty said: And give good tidings to the patient. Some commentators have related that what is meant by fear here is the fear of God, and by hunger, fasting in Ramadan, and by loss of wealth, zakat, and by souls, diseases, and by fruits, children. There is a view on this, and God knows best. Then God the Almighty explained who are the patient ones He thanked, saying: Those who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed we belong to God, and indeed to Him we will return.' That is, they consoled themselves with this saying for what befell them and knew that they belong to God and that He disposes of His servants as He wills, and they knew that not an atom's weight will be lost with Him on the Day of Resurrection. That caused them to acknowledge that they are His servants and that they will return to Him in the Hereafter. That is why God the Almighty informed them of what He gave them for that, saying: On them are blessings from their Lord and mercy. That is, praise from God for them. Saeed bin Jubair said: That is, security from punishment. And those are the ones who are guided. The Commander of the Faithful, Omar bin Al-Khattab, said: What excellent just men and what excellent bonus. Upon them are blessings from their Lord and mercy. These are the two just men. And those are the ones who are guided. This bonus is what is placed between the two just men and it is an increase in the burden. Likewise, these men were given their reward and were given an increase as well.

There are many hadiths that have been narrated about the reward for seeking God's help, which is to say, Inna lillahi wa inna ilayhi raji'un We belong to God and to Him we shall return when faced with calamities. Among them is what Imam Ahmad narrated, where he said: Yunus ibn Muhammad narrated to us, Laith, meaning Ibn Sa'd, narrated to us, from Yazid ibn Abdullah ibn Usamah ibn al-Haad, from Amr ibn Abi Amr, from al-Muttalib, from Umm Salamah, who said: Abu Salamah came to me one day from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, a statement that made me happy. He said: "No Muslim is afflicted with a calamity and seeks God's help upon his calamity and then says, 'O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it with something better,' except that that will be done to him." Umm Salamah said: So I memorized that from him, and when Abu Salamah died, I sought God's help and said, 'O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it with something better.' Then I came to my senses and said, 'How can I find someone better than Abu Salamah?' When my waiting period was over, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked permission to see me while I was tanning a hide for myself. I washed my hands of the qaz and gave him permission. I placed for him a leather cushion stuffed with palm fibers, and he sat on it and proposed to me. When he finished speaking, I said: O Messenger of God, it is not that I do not desire you, but I am a woman who is extremely jealous and I fear that you will see something in me that will punish me. I am a woman who has reached old age and I have children. He said: As for what you mentioned about jealousy, God Almighty will remove it from you. As for what you mentioned about old age, the same thing that happened to me happened to you. As for what you mentioned about children, your children are my children. She said: She surrendered to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married her. Umm Salamah then said: God replaced Abu Salamah with someone better than him: the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. In Sahih Muslim, she said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There is no servant who is afflicted with a calamity and says: 'To God we belong and to Him we shall return.' O God, reward me for my calamity and replace it for me with something better than it, except that God will reward him for his calamity and replace it for him with something better than it." She said: When Abu Salamah died, I said: As the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded me, and God replaced him with someone better than him: the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Imam Ahmad said: Yazid and Ibad bin Ibad told us: Hisham bin Abi Hisham told us: Ibad bin Ziyad told us, on the authority of his mother, on the authority of Fatimah bint al-Husayn, on the authority of her father, al-Husayn bin Ali, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "There is no Muslim man or woman who is afflicted with a calamity and remembers it, even if it happened a long time ago - and Ibad said it happened a long time ago - and says 'I seek refuge in God from God,' but God renews it for him and gives him a reward like the reward of the day he was afflicted." Ibn Majah narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah on the authority of Wakee' on the authority of Hisham bin Ziyad on the authority of his mother on the authority of Fatimah bint al-Husayn on the authority of her father. Ismail bin Aliyah and Yazid bin Harun narrated it on the authority of Hisham bin Ziyad on the authority of his father thus on the authority of Fatimah on the authority of her father. Imam Ahmad said: I heard Yahya bin Ishaq al-Silhini, I heard Hammad bin Salamah on the authority of Abu Sinan, who said: I buried a son of mine and while I was in the grave, Abu Talhah - meaning al-Khawlani - took me by the hand and took me out and said to me: Shall I not give you good report? I said: Yes. He said: Ad-Dahhak bin Abd al-Rahman bin Awzab told me on the authority of Abu Musa who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God said: O Angel of Death, have you taken the son of My servant? Have you taken the joy of his eyes and the fruit of his heart? He said: Yes. He said: What did he say? He said: He praised You and sought refuge in

Then he narrated it on the authority of Ali bin Ishaq on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak and mentioned it. And thus Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Suwaid bin Nasr on the authority of Ibn Al-Mubarak on his authority, and he said: It is good and strange. Abu Sinan's name is Isa bin Sinan.

Fath al-Qadir

The meaning of prayers here is forgiveness and good praise, as stated by Al-Zajaj. Based on this, mercy was mentioned for the purpose of emphasis. He said in Al-Kashshaf: Prayer is mercy and compassion, so it was placed in place of compassion, and it was combined with mercy, as in His saying: compassion and mercy, Most Kind, Most Merciful. The meaning is: upon them is compassion after compassion and mercy after mercy. It was said: what is meant by mercy is: relieving distress and fulfilling need. 157- The meaning of the guided ones has already been mentioned, and they were described as such here because they did what would lead to the right path of seeking refuge in God and submitting.

Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Dala'il on the authority of Ibrahim bin Abdul-Rahman bin Awf who said: Abdul-Rahman bin Awf fainted during his illness and they thought that he had passed away, so they got up from him and covered him with a cloth. Umm Kulthum bint Uqbah, his wife, went out to the mosque to seek help as she had been commanded to do of patience and prayer. They remained in a coma for an hour while he was in a coma, then he regained consciousness. Ibn Mandah narrated in Al-Ma'rifah on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Tamim bin Al-Hammam was killed at Badr, and about him and others the verse was revealed: And say not of those who are killed in the way of God, 'They are dead' 10:1. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair who said: In the way of God in obedience to God in fighting the polytheists. There are hadiths that the souls of the martyrs are in the bodies of green birds that eat from the fruits of Paradise. Some of them are narrated on the authority of Ka'b bin Malik with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, as narrated by Ahmad, Al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, Al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah. It was narrated that the souls of the martyrs are in the form of white birds, as narrated by Abd al-Razzaq on the authority of Qatada, who said: It has reached us, and he mentioned that. Abd ibn Hamid and Ibn Jarir also narrated it on his authority in a similar manner. It was narrated that they are in the form of green birds, as narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab al-Iman on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah. It was narrated by Ibn Abi Shaybah in al-Ba'th wa al-Nushur on the authority of Ka'b. It was narrated by Hanad ibn Yasra on the authority of Hudhayl. It was narrated by Abd al-Razzaq in al-Musannaf on the authority of Abdullah ibn Ka'b ibn Malik, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Abd ibn Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ata' regarding his statement: And We will surely test you with something of fear and hunger, he said: They are the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Tabarani and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab al-Iman narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And We will surely test you 1:13, he said: God informed the believers that this world is a place of trial and that He will test them in it, and He commanded them to be patient and gave them good report, saying: And give good report to the patient. And He informed that if the believer submits to the command of God and returns and seeks refuge in God when a calamity befalls him, God will write for him three good qualities: prayers from God, mercy, and an easing of the path of guidance. The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: Whoever seeks refuge in God when a calamity befalls him, God will compensate for his calamity, make his end good, and provide him with a righteous successor whom He will be pleased with. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Raja bin Haywah regarding his statement: And a decrease in fruits, he said: A time will come upon the people when the palm tree will bear nothing but dates. Al-Tabarani and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "My nation has been given something that no other nation has been given, which is to say when a calamity befalls them: 'To God we belong and to Him we shall return.'" Many hadiths have been narrated about the virtue of seeking God's help when a calamity befalls them.

157. Those are the people of this description upon them are prayers from their Lord and mercy prayers, meaning mercy, for prayer from God is mercy, and mercy is mentioned by God as an emphasis, and all prayers, meaning: mercy after mercy and those are the ones who are guided to the return, and it was said to the truth and correctness, and it was said to Paradise and reward. Omar, may God be pleased with him, said: What good justice and what good bonus, so the justice is prayer and mercy, and the bonus is guidance.

There are reports about the reward of those who are afflicted and the reward of those who are patient, including what Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us, Abu Ali Zahir ibn Ahmad al-Sarakhsi told us, Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi told us, Abu Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Muhammad ibn God ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Sa'sa'ah, that he said: I heard Abu al-Habbab Sa'id ibn Yasar say: I heard Abu Hurayrah say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever God intends good for, He afflicts him with it.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Abdul Malik bin Amr told us, Zuhair bin Muhammad told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Amr bin Halhalah, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: No fatigue, nor disease, nor anxiety, nor grief, nor harm, nor distress befalls a Muslim, even if it were the prick he receives from a thorn, but that God expiates some of his sins because of it.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Al-Sam'ani told us, Abu Ja'far Al-Rayyani told us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh told us, Muhammad bin Ubaid told us, Muhammad bin Amr told us, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: A woman who had a blemish came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, pray to God to heal me. He said: If you wish, I will pray to God to heal you, and if you wish, be patient and there will be no reckoning upon you. She said: Rather, I will be patient and there will be no reckoning upon me.

Imam Abu Ali al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Qadi told us, Abu Saeed Khalaf ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Nizar told us, Abu Mansur al-Abbas ibn al-Fadl al-Nadhri told us, Ahmad ibn Najdah told us, Yahya ibn Abd al-Hamid al-Hammani told us, Hammad ibn Zayd told us, on the authority of Asim, who is Ibn Abi al-Najud, on the authority of Mus'ab ibn Sa'd, on the authority of Sa'd, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about the people who are most severely tested. He said: The prophets, and the most similar, then the most similar. God tests a man according to his religion, for the earth and his wealth are from sin."

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Al-Sam'ani told us, Abu Ja'far Al-Rayyani told us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh told us, Abdullah bin Saleh told us: Al-Layth told me, Yazid bin Abi Habib told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Sinan, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "The greatest reward with God is with the greatest trial. If God loves a people, He tests them. Whoever is satisfied will have satisfaction, and whoever is displeased will have displeasure."

Abu Hamid Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi told us, Abu Bakr Ahmad ibn al-Hasan al-Hairi told us, Hajib ibn Ahmad al-Tusi told us, Muhammad ibn Yahya told us, Yazid ibn Harun told us, Muhammad ibn Amr told us, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The believing man and woman will continue to be afflicted in their person, their wealth, and their children until they meet God with no sin upon them.

Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Salihi told us, Abu Al-Hasan Ali bin Muhammad Abdullah bin Bishran told us, Abu Ali Ismail bin Muhammad Al-Saffar told us, Ahmad bin Mansour Al-Ramadi told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ibn Al-Musayyab, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The example of the believer is like that of a crop; the wind continues to blow it, and the believer continues to be afflicted with calamity. The example of the hypocrite is like that of a cedar tree; it does not shake until it is harvested."

Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Salihi told us, Abu Al-Hussein bin Bishran told us, Ismail bin Muhammad Al-Saffar told us, Ahmad bin Mansour Al-Ramadi told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Aizar bin Harith, on the authority of Omar bin Saad bin Abi Waqqas, on the authority of his father, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "It is amazing for the believer that if good befalls him, he praises God and is grateful, and if a calamity befalls him, he praises God and is patient. The believer is rewarded for everything he does, even for the morsel of food that he raises to his wife's mouth."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

157-Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. Prayer is originally a supplication, and from God the Most High is purification and forgiveness. It is pluralized to indicate its abundance and variety. What is meant by mercy is kindness and goodness. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Whoever seeks refuge in God from a calamity, God will compensate for his calamity, make his end good, and grant him a righteous successor whom He wills. "And those are the ones who are guided" to the truth and right path, as they seek refuge in God and submit to the decree of God the Most High.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:158

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, God is appreciative and Knowing.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are two mountains in Mecca are among the symbols of God the signs of His religion, the plural of Sha'irah so whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah that is, undertakes Hajj or 'Umrah, and their origin is intention and visitation there is no blame upon him sin upon him for walking between them in which the ta' in the origin is assimilated into the ta' by walking between them by running between them seven times. It was revealed because the Muslims disliked that because the people of ignorance used to walk between them and they had two idols that they would touch. And from Ibn Abbas that running is not obligatory because it indicates that the sin is removed from the choice. Al-Shafi'i and others said that it is a pillar, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, explained his obligation by saying: Indeed, God has prescribed running for you narrated by Al-Bayhaqi and others. He said: Begin with what God began with meaning As-Safa. Narrated by Muslim And whoever volunteers and in a reading with a dot and a shaddah on the ta', in the jussive mood, and in it is the assimilation of the ta' in it {voluntarily} good meaning with good, meaning he does what is not obligatory upon him of circumambulation and other things then indeed God is Appreciative for his work with reward for it Knowing of it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah, the verse. The two sheikhs and others narrated on the authority of Urwah on the authority of Aisha who said: I said: Have you seen the statement of God: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever performs Hajj or Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them? I do not see anything wrong with anyone not walking between them. Aisha said: What a bad thing you have said, O son of my sister. If it were as I interpreted it, then there would be no blame upon him for not walking between them. However, it was only revealed because the Ansar, before they converted to Islam, used to enter ihram for the tyrant Manat, and some of its people were reluctant to walk between As-Safa and Al-Marwah. So they asked the Messenger of God about that and said: O Messenger of God, we used to be reluctant to walk between As-Safa and Al-Marwah during the pre-Islamic era. So God revealed: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God until His saying: Then there is no blame upon him for walking between them.

Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Asim bin Sulayman, who said: I asked Anas about Safa and Marwa. He said: We used to think that they were from the pre-Islamic era, but when Islam came, we refrained from them. Then God revealed: Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God.

Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: In the pre-Islamic era, the devils used to circle around at night between Safa and Marwa, and there were idols between them. When Islam came, the Muslims said: O Messenger of God, we do not circle between Safa and Marwa, because it is something we used to do in the pre-Islamic era. Then God revealed this verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement on the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. Abu Ja'far said: As-Safa is the plural of safa, which is a smooth rock, and from it is the saying of Al-Tirmaah:

The One with the strength and the length has forbidden my hoof to ever dry up. My qualities

They said that Safa is one, and that the dual of Safwan is Safwan, and the plural of Asfaa is Safiyya and Safiyya, and they cited as evidence for that the words of the rajaz poet:

As if his back is like the places of birds on a fine rock

They said: It is similar to a stick and sticks [and sticks, and sticks], and a mill and a millstone [and a millstone], and millstones. As for the marwah, it is a small pebble, the small of which is marwat, and the large of which is marw, like a date and dates and dates. Al-A'sha Maymun bin Qais said:

And you see a light fading on the ground, but when it encounters a wound, it becomes broken.

He means by Marw: small rocks, and from that is the saying of Abu Dhu'ayb al-Hudhali:

As if I am a mirror for events, as clear as the East, knocking every day

It is said: Al-Mashqar. And God Almighty meant by His saying: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah, in this place the two mountains called by these two names that are in His sanctuary, not the rest of As-Safa and Al-Marwah. Therefore, He included the definite article in them, so that His servants would know that He meant by that the two mountains known by these two names, not the rest of As-Safa and Al-Marw. As for His saying: Of the symbols of God, He means: Of the landmarks of God that He Almighty made for His servants as a landmark and a place of worship where they worship Him, either by supplication, or by remembrance, or by performing the work that He has imposed on them at them. And from this is the saying of Al-Kumait:

We kill them generation after generation. You see them as ritual sacrifices through which people draw near.

Mujahid used to say about the rituals what: Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God, he said: From the report that I told you about. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. So it seems that Mujahid saw that the rituals are the plural of ritual, from God's notification to His servants of the matter of As-Safa and Al-Marwah, and what is upon them in circumambulating them. So its meaning is: informing them of that. And that is an interpretation from the concept that is far-fetched. Rather, God, the Most High, informed His believing servants by His saying: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God, that walking between them is among the rituals of Hajj that He prescribed for them, and He commanded His friend Abraham, peace be upon him, to do it, when he asked him to show him the rituals of Hajj. And even though its meaning is the meaning of the report, it is intended to be a command. Because God the Almighty commanded His Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, to follow the religion of Abraham, peace be upon him, and said to him: Then We revealed to you, [O Muhammad], 'Follow the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth' (al-Nahl 16:123) and made Abraham an imam for those who came after him. So since it is true that circumambulating and walking between Safa and Marwah are among the rites of God and the rituals of Hajj, it is known that Abraham, peace and blessings be upon him, practiced it and established it for those who came after him, and he commanded our Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, and his nation to follow it, so they must act accordingly, as the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, explained. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Almighty: So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah Abu Ja'far said: God the Almighty means by His words: So whoever makes Hajj to the House, the one who comes to it returning to it after starting. Likewise, everyone who frequently differs about something is in need of it, and from this is the saying of the poet:

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of Allah. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, Allah is appreciative and Knowing.

I witness many people from Awf who resort to cursing the saffron-colored Al-Zubayr.

He means by his saying: They perform Hajj, they frequently visit it because of its leadership and leadership. The pilgrim is called a pilgrim because he comes to the House before the declaration, then returns to it for the Tawaf of the Day of Sacrifice after the declaration, then leaves it for Mina, then returns to it for the Tawaf of the chest. So because of his repeated return to it time and time again, he is called a pilgrim. As for the one performing 'umrah, he is called a Mu'tamir because if he circumambulates it, he leaves it after visiting it. And what the Almighty means by his saying: or perform 'umrah, is or perform 'umrah to the House, and by 'umrah he means visiting. So everyone who intends something is a Mu'tamir for it, and from this is the saying of al-'Ajaj:

Ibn Ma'marhin called the meaning of l'tmar a distant destination from far away and he endured, meaning by his saying: when he performed the Umrah, when he intended it and his mother. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Almighty: There is no blame upon him for walking between them Abu Ja'far said: God the Almighty means by his saying: There is no blame upon him for walking between them, he says: there is no blame upon him and no sin in walking between them. If someone says: What is the point of this statement, and you have told us that his saying: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God, even if its appearance is the appearance of the report, it is in the meaning of the command to walk between them? How can it be a command to walk between them, and then it is said: there is no blame upon the one who performed Hajj or Umrah in walking between them? Rather, the blame is removed from the one who did what is upon him by his coming, which is blame and hardship? And the command to walk between them, and the permission to walk between them, is not permissible to combine them in one situation? It was said: This is contrary to what you have gone to. The meaning of this according to some people is: "When the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) performed the 'Umrah of al-Qadī', some people who used to circumambulate them in the pre-Islamic era because of two idols they had on them out of their reverence for them feared them." They said: How can we circumambulate them, when we know that the reverence of idols and everything that is worshipped other than God is polytheism? So our circumambulation of these two stones is more difficult, because circumambulating them in the pre-Islamic era was only for the two idols they had on them, and God has brought Islam today, and there is no way to reverse anything with God in the sense of worshipping Him! So God, the Most High, revealed concerning this matter of theirs: Indeed, al-Safa and al-Marwah are among the symbols of God, meaning: circumambulating them, so He left out mentioning circumambulating them, and was satisfied with mentioning them instead of Him. And since it was known to those addressed by it that its meaning is: from the landmarks of God, which He made a sign for His servants to worship Him at them by circumambulating between them, and to remember Him on them and at them with what is worthy of remembrance for Him, So whoever performs Hajj to the House or Umrah should not fear circumambulating them, because of what the people of ignorance used to circumambulate them because of the two idols they had, for the polytheists used to circumambulate them out of disbelief, and you circumambulate them out of faith, and belief in My Messenger, and obedience to My command, so there is no blame upon you for circumambulating them. And sin is a sin, as: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: There is no blame upon him for circumambulating them, he said: There is no sin upon him, but he has a reward. And the narration from the predecessors from the Companions and the Followers is similar to what we said in that. Mention of the narrations that were narrated about that:

Muhammad bin Abdul Malik bin Abi Al-Shawarib told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said,

Dawud, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: That there was an idol on Al-Safa in the pre-Islamic era called Isaf, and an idol on Al-Marwah called Na'ilah. When the people of the pre-Islamic era circumambulated the House, they would touch the two idols. When Islam came and the idols were destroyed, the Muslims said: Al-Safa and Al-Marwah were only circumambulated because of the two idols, and circumambulating them is not one of the rituals! He said: Then God revealed: They are among the rituals, So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Abd al-Wahhab told us, Dawud told us, on the authority of Aamir, who said: There was an idol on al-Safa called Isaf, and an idol on al-Marwah called Na'ilah. Then he mentioned something similar to the hadith of Ibn Abi al-Shawarib - and added to it, he said: He mentioned al-Safa because of the idol that was on it, and he made al-Marwah feminine because the idol that was on it was feminine. 1. Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said: Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, and he mentioned something similar to the hadith of Ibn Abi al-Shawarib, on the authority of Yazid, and added to it - he said: So God made it a voluntary act of goodness. Ya'qub told me, he said: Ibn Abi Za'idah told us, he said: Asim al-Ahwal told me, he said: I said to Anas ibn Malik: Did you dislike circumambulating between al-Safa and al-Marwah until this verse was revealed? He said: Yes, we disliked circumambulating between them because they were among the rituals of the Age of Ignorance, until this verse was revealed: Indeed, al-Safa and al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. Ali bin Sahl al-Ramli told me, Muammil bin Ismail told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Asim, who said: I asked Anas about Safa and Marwa, and he said: They were among the rituals of the Jahiliyyah, but when Islam came, they stopped visiting them, so this verse was revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Abdul-Warith bin Abdul-Samad bin Abdul-Warith told me, Al-Hussein al-Mu'allim told me, Shaiban Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Jabir al-Ja'fi, on the authority of Amr bin Habshi, who said: I said to Ibn Umar: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God, so whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them. He said: Go to Ibn Abbas and ask him, for he is the most knowledgeable of those who remain about what was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. So I went to him and asked him, and he said: They had idols with them, but when they entered ihram, they stopped walking between them, until this verse was revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God, so whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement:

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God, that is because some people were reluctant to circumambulate between As-Safa and Al-Marwah, so God informed us that they are among His symbols, and circumambulating between them is more beloved to Him, so the Sunnah was to circumambulate between them. Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: "Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for circumambulating them," he said: Abu Malik claimed, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That in the pre-Islamic era there were devils who played music at night between As-Safa and Al-Marwah, and there were gods between them. When Islam came and appeared, the Muslims said: O Messenger of God, we do not circumambulate between As-Safa and Al-Marwah, because it is polytheism that we used to do in the pre-Islamic era! So God revealed: There is no blame upon him for circumambulating them. Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God, he said: The Ansar said: Running between these two stones is a matter of the Age of Ignorance! So God, the Most High, revealed: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, something similar.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: There is no blame upon him if he walks between them, he said: The people of ignorance had placed an idol on each of them which they venerated, and when the Muslims converted to Islam, they disliked walking between Safa and Marwah because of the two idols, so God the Most High said: "Indeed, Safa and Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them," and he recited: And whoever honors the symbols of God - indeed, it is from the piety of hearts (al-Hajj 22:32) and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made it a Sunnah to walk between them. Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Asim, he said, I said to Anas: Safa and Marwah,

Did you hate to walk around them with the idols that you were forbidden to walk around? He said: Yes, until the verse was revealed: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said: Jarir narrated to us, he said: Asim narrated to us, he said: I heard Anas bin Malik say: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah were among the symbols of Quraysh in the pre-Islamic era, but when Islam came, we abandoned them. Others said: Rather, God revealed this verse, because of a people who in the pre-Islamic era did not walk between them, but when Islam came, they feared walking between them as they feared it in the pre-Islamic era. Those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of Allah. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, Allah is appreciative and Knowing.

God the verse, so there was a tribe from Tihamah in the pre-Islamic era who did not walk between them, so God informed them that As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. It was the Sunnah of Abraham and Ishmael to walk around between them.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: There were some people from Tihamah who did not circumambulate between Safa and Marwa, so God revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Al-Muthanna told me, Abdullah bin Salih told us, Al-Layth told me, Aqil told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, Urwah bin Az-Zubayr told me, I asked Aisha and said to her: What do you think of the statement of God: "Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them"? And I said to Aisha: By God, there is no blame upon anyone for not walking between Safa and Marwa! Aisha said: What a bad thing you have said, O son of my sister! If this verse had been as I interpreted it, it would have been: There is no blame on him if he does not circumambulate them. However, it was revealed about the Ansar: Before they converted to Islam, they used to perform the ritual of Ihram for Manat, the tyrant that they worshipped in Al-Mushallal. Some of its people were reluctant to circumambulate between Safa and Marwa. So when they asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about that - and they said: O Messenger of God, we were reluctant to circumambulate between Safa and Marwa - God Almighty revealed: "Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for circumambulating them." Aisha said: Then the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) established the practice of circumambulating between them, so no one should neglect circumambulating between them. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Muammar narrated to us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, she said: There were men from the Ansar who used to perform the ritual prayer for Manat in the pre-Islamic era - and Manat was an idol between Mecca and Medina - they said: O Prophet of God, we did not circumambulate between Safa and Marwah out of reverence for Manat, so is there any blame upon us if we circumambulated between them? Then God the Most High revealed: "Indeed, Safa and Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them." Urwah said: I said to Aisha: I do not care if I do not circumambulate between Safa and Marwah! God said: There is no blame upon him. She said: O son of my sister, do you not see that he says: Indeed, Safa and Marwah are among the symbols of God! Al-Zuhri said: I mentioned that to Abu Bakr bin Abdul Rahman bin Al-Harith bin Hisham and he said: This is knowledge! Abu Bakr said: I heard some scholars say: When God revealed the circumambulation of the House but did not reveal the circumambulation between Safa and Marwa, it was said to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): We used to circumambulate between Safa and Marwa in the pre-Islamic era, and God mentioned the circumambulation of the House but did not mention the circumambulation between Safa and Marwa, so is there any blame on us if we do not circumambulate them? So God revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God the entire verse. Abu Bakr said: I hear that this verse was revealed regarding both groups, those who circumambulated and those who did not. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abdul Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: There were some people from Tihamah who did not circumambulate between Safa and Marwa, so God revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that God, the Most High, has made circumambulating between Safa and Marwah one of the rites of God, just as He has made circumambulating the House one of His rites. As for His statement: There is no blame upon him for circumambulating them, it is permissible that it was said to both groups, some of whom feared circumambulating them because of the two idols mentioned by Al-Sha'bi, and some of them because of what they hated about circumambulating them in the pre-Islamic era, according to what was narrated from Aisha. Whichever of the two matters it was, there is no indication in God's statement: There is no blame upon him for circumambulating them, the verse, that He meant by it to remove hardship from the one who circumambulated them, most obviously because circumambulating them was not permissible because God had prohibited it, then He made circumambulating them a concession, due to the consensus of all that God, the Most High, did not prohibit it at any time, then He permitted it by His statement: There is no blame upon him for circumambulating them. Rather, There are several differences of opinion among scholars on this matter: Some of them are of the view that the one who abandons the Tawaf between them abandons some of the rituals of his Hajj, and nothing of it is sufficient for him except to make up for it in particular, just as the one who abandons the Tawaf - which is the Tawaf of Ifadah - is not sufficient for him except to make up for it in particular. They said: They are two Tawafs: God has commanded one of them to be around the House, and the other between Safa and Marwa.

Some of them saw that the one who neglects to circumambulate them is compensated for by a ransom, and they saw that the ruling on circumambulating them is the ruling on throwing some of the pebbles, standing at the sacred site, circumambulating the chest, and the like, which the one who neglects them is compensated for by a ransom, and he is not obligated to return to perform it in the same way. Others saw that circumambulating them is voluntary, and if its owner does it, he is doing good, but if someone neglects it, he is not obligated.

By leaving something. It was mentioned that those who said that walking between Safa and Marwa is obligatory, and that no ransom is sufficient for it, and whoever leaves it must return: Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said, Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, she said: By my life, he who does not walk between Safa and Marwa has not performed Hajj, because God said: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Yunus narrated to me, he said, Ibn Wahb narrated to us, he said, Malik bin Anas said: Whoever forgets to walk between Safa and Marwa until he is far from Makkah, let him go back and walk, and if he has had intercourse with women, then he must perform Umrah and offer a sacrifice. Al-Shafi'i used to say: Whoever leaves walking between Safa and Marwa until he returns to his country, must return to Makkah and circumambulate between them, and nothing else is sufficient for him. Qatada narrated this to us on his authority. It was mentioned that those who said: A blood sacrifice is sufficient for it, and he does not have to return to make it up. Al-Thawri said: Ali bin Sahl narrated to me, on the authority of Zaid bin Abi Al-Zarqa, on his authority, and Abu Hanifa, Abu Yusuf, and Muhammad: If the one who left the circumambulation between them returns to make up for it, then that is good, but if he does not return, then he must offer a blood sacrifice. He mentioned those who said: The circumambulation between them is voluntary, and there is nothing on the one who left it, and whoever used to recite: There is no blame upon him if he does not circumambulate them.

Muhammad ibn Bashir narrated, Abu Asim narrated, Ibn Jurayj narrated, Ata' said: If a pilgrim performs the Ifadah after throwing the pebbles at the Jamrat al-Aqabah, and circumambulates the House without performing the Sa'i, and has intercourse with her - meaning his wife - then there is nothing wrong with him, neither Hajj nor 'Umrah, because of the statement of God in the Mushaf of Ibn Mas'ud: So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, there is no blame upon him for not walking between them. So I went back to him after that and said: He has abandoned the Sunnah of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: Do you not hear him say: So whoever volunteers good, and he refused to impose anything on him? Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim narrated, Hisham narrated, 'Abd al-Malik informed us, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas that he used to recite: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God the verse So there is no blame upon him for not walking between them. Ali bin Sahl told me, Muammil told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Asim, who said: I heard Anas say: Circumambulating between them is voluntary. Al-Muthanna told me, Hajjaj told us, Hammad told us, Asim al-Ahwal told us, Anas ibn Malik said: They are voluntary. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, Abu Asim told us, Isa told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, something similar. Al-Muthanna told me, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: "Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them." He said: So there is no blame on one who does not walk between them. Al-Muthanna told us, Hajjaj told us, Ahmad told us, on the authority of Isa ibn Qays, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Abdullah ibn Az-Zubayr, who said: They are voluntary. Ibn Humayd narrated that Jarir narrated that Asim said: I said to Anas ibn Malik: Is walking between Safa and Marwa voluntary? He said: It is voluntary. The correct statement in our view is that circumambulating them is an obligatory duty, and that whoever leaves it out must return to make it up, whether he forgot or did so intentionally. Because nothing else will suffice, as there are many reports from the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) that he performed Hajj with the people, and that one of the rituals of their Hajj that he taught them was circumambulating them. The narration from him about that is: Yusuf ibn Sulayman narrated to me, Hatim ibn Ismail narrated to us, Ja'far ibn Muhammad narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir, who said: "When the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) approached Safa during his Hajj, he said: 'Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God.' Begin with what God began with mentioning. So he began with Safa and ascended it." Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said, Mahmoud bin Maimun Abu Al-Hasan narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Ayyash, on the authority of Ibn Ata', on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. So he came to Safa and began with them, and stood on them, then he came to Marwa and stood on them, and performed Tawaf and Sa'i. So since it is correct, by consensus of all of the nation, that circumambulating them is based on the teaching of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his nation in their rituals, and his actions in his Hajj and Umrah, and his explanation, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his nation was the summary of what God has stated in His Book, and imposed in His revelation, and commanded of what his knowledge could not attain except through his explanation, and his nation must act upon it, as we have explained in our book, The Book of Explanation of the Fundamentals of Rulings, if the nation differed about its obligation, then there was a difference in circumambulating between them: is it obligatory or not obligatory, it is clear that it is obligatory to make it obligatory for whoever has performed Hajj or Umrah, for what we have described. And likewise the obligation of returning to make up for it. Circumambulating between Safa and Marwa - since there was a difference of opinion regarding what is upon the one who left it, with all of them agreeing that it is something that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did and taught his nation in their Hajj and Umrah, as he taught them the rituals of their Hajj - just as he circumambulated the House and taught his nation in their Hajj and Umrah, as he taught them the rituals of their Hajj and Umrah - and all of them agreed that circumambulating the House does not require a ransom or compensation, and the one who left it does not require anything except returning to make it up, then similar to it is circumambulating between Safa and Marwa, and neither ransom nor compensation is acceptable for it, and the one who left it does not require anything except returning to make it up, since they were both two circumambulations: one of the House, and the other of Safa and Marwa. And whoever differentiates between their rulings, the statement is reversed against him, then he is asked for proof of the difference between them. If he is excused by the reading of the one who recites: There is no blame upon him if he does not circumambulate them both, it is said: This is contrary to what is in the copies of the Qur'an of the Muslims, and it is not permissible for anyone to add to their copies of the Qur'an what is not in them. It is the same whether a reciter recites it like this, or a reciter recites: Then let them complete their untidiness and fulfill their vows and perform Tawaf around the Ancient House (al-Hajj 22:29) There is no blame upon them if they do not circumambulate it. If one of the two additions that are not in the Qur'an is permissible, then the other is its equivalent, otherwise the one who permits one of them - while forbidding the other - is controlling, and no one is incapable of controlling.

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of Allah. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, Allah is appreciative and Knowing.

It has been narrated that Aisha denied this reading and that it was revealed according to it.

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Malik ibn Anas told me, "On the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, he said: I said to Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I was young at that time: What do you think of the statement of God Almighty: 'Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them,'? We do not see anything wrong with anyone not walking between them! Aisha said: No! If it were as you say, it would be: 'There is no blame upon him for not walking between them.' This verse was revealed about the Ansar. They used to enter ihram for Manat - and Manat was near Qudayd - and they were reluctant to walk between As-Safa and Al-Marwah. When Islam came, they asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about that, and God revealed: 'Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them.'"
Abu Ja'far said: It may be possible that the reading of the one who reads: There is no blame upon him if he does not go around them is that the la that is with an is a connection in the speech, since it was preceded by a denial in the speech before it, which is His saying: There is no blame upon him, so it is similar to the saying of God Almighty: "He said: What prevented you from prostrating when I commanded you?" (Al-A'raf: 12) meaning what prevented you from prostrating, and as the poet said:

The Messenger of God would not have been pleased with their actions, nor were the two righteous men, Abu Bakr and Umar.

If the script of the Mushaf had been like this, there would have been no argument for the protester in it, given the possibility of the statement we have described. Since we have shown that this is something that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, taught his nation in their rituals, as we have mentioned, and because analogy indicates its correctness, how is it that it is contrary to the scripts of the Mushafs of the Muslims, and if a reader were to read it today, he would deserve punishment, for adding to the Book of God, the Almighty, what is not from it? The statement in the interpretation of the words of God, the Almighty? And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, God is appreciative and Knowing.
Abu Ja'far said: The reciters differed in the recitation of this, so most of the reciters of Medina and Basra recited it: And whoever volunteers good in the form of the past tense with the ta' and the fatha on the 'ayn. Most of the reciters of Kufa recited it: And whoever volunteers good - the ya' and the jazm of the 'ayn and the shaddah on the ta', meaning: and whoever volunteers. He mentioned that in the reading of Abdullah: And whoever volunteers, so the readers of Kufa read that, as we have described, considering what we mentioned from the reading of Abdullah - except for Asim, as he agreed with the Medinans - so they stressed the taa' in order to assimilate the taa' into the taa'. Both readings are known to be correct, and their meanings are in agreement and not different - because the past tense of the verb with the letters of reward has the meaning of the future. So whichever reading a reader reads that with, he is correct. [And the correct view in this regard is that] the meaning of this is: And whoever volunteers to perform Hajj and Umrah after completing his obligatory Hajj, then God will be grateful to him for his volunteering to Him with what he volunteered to do of that seeking His pleasure, so He will reward him for it, knowing what he intended and wanted with his volunteering with what he volunteered. And we said that the correct meaning of His statement: So whoever volunteers good is what we have described, without the statement of those who claimed that it is meant by it: So whoever volunteers to perform Sa'i and Tawaf between Safa and Marwah, because the one who performs Sa'i between them is not volunteering to perform Sa'i between them, except in a voluntary Hajj or a voluntary Umrah, for what we have described before. And since that is the case, it is known that what he meant by volunteering with what is volunteering with what he does in it of Hajj or Umrah. As for those who claimed that circumambulating them is voluntary and not obligatory, the correct interpretation of that is according to their statement: Whoever volunteers to circumambulate them, then God is grateful - because the pilgrim and the performer of Umrah, according to their statement, can circumambulate them if he wishes, and leave the circumambulation. So the meaning of the statement according to their interpretation is: Whoever volunteers to circumambulate Safa and Marwah, then God is grateful for his volunteering that - He knows what the one who circumambulates them intended and intended as well, as Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And whoever volunteers good, then God is grateful and Knowing. He said: Whoever volunteers good, then it is better for him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, volunteered, so it was from the Sunnah. Others said: The meaning of that is: Whoever volunteers good and performs Umrah. Those who said that mentioned:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, God is appreciative and Knowing, whoever volunteers good and performs Umrah - then indeed, God is appreciative and Knowing. He said: So Hajj is an obligation, and Umrah is voluntary. Umrah is not obligatory upon any of the people.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains nine issues:

First: Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Asim bin Sulayman, who said:

I asked Anas bin Malik about Safa and Marwa, and he said: We used to think that they were from the pre-Islamic era, but when Islam came, we refrained from doing them. Then God the Almighty revealed: "Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them." Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Awrah who said:

I said to Aisha: No one has ever seen anything wrong with not circumambulating between Safa and Marwa, and I do not care if I do not circumambulate between them. She said: What a bad thing you have said, O my nephew! The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) circumambulated and so did the Muslims, but the people of Manat, the tyrant in Al-Mushallal, did not circumambulate between Safa and Marwa. Then God revealed: So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them. If it were as you say, it would have been: There is no blame upon him for walking between them. Al-Zuhri said: I mentioned that to Abu Bakr bin 'Abd al-Rahman bin al-Harith bin Hisham, and he was pleased with it and said: This is knowledge. I have heard men of knowledge say: Only those Arabs who did not walk between Safa and Marwa used to say that our circumambulation between these two stones was a matter of the Age of Ignorance. Others from the Ansar said: We were only commanded to circumambulate the House, but we were not commanded to do so between Safa and Marwa. Then God Almighty revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Abu Bakr bin Abd al-Rahman said: I think it was revealed about these and those. He said: This is a good and authentic hadith. Al-Bukhari narrated it with the same meaning, and in it after his saying: Then God revealed: Indeed, As-Safa and

Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God: Aisha said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had prescribed circumambulation between them, so no one should neglect circumambulating between them. Then she informed Abu Bakr bin Abd Al-Rahman, who said: This is knowledge that I had not heard, and I heard men of knowledge mention that the people - except those whom Aisha mentioned - who used to enter ihram for Manat, used to all circumambulate between As-Safa and Al-Marwah. Then when God mentioned circumambulating the House and did not mention As-Safa and Al-Marwah in the Qur'an, they said: O Messenger of God, we used to circumambulate between As-Safa and Al-Marwah, but God revealed circumambulation of the House and did not mention As-Safa. Is there any blame on us if we circumambulate between As-Safa and Al-Marwah? Then God, the Almighty, revealed: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God 10:13. Abu Bakr said: Listen to this verse, it was revealed about both groups: about those who used to deviate from performing Tawaf between Safa and Marwa in the pre-Islamic era, and those who used to perform Tawaf between them and then hesitated to perform Tawaf between them in Islam, because God Almighty commanded Tawaf around the House, and did not mention Safa until He mentioned that after Tawaf around the House. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Asim bin Sulayman al-Ahwal, who said:

Anas bin Malik asked about Safa and Marwa. He said: They were among the symbols of the Jahiliyyah. When Islam came, we refrained from performing them. Then God the Almighty revealed: "Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them." He said: This is a good and authentic hadith. It was also narrated by Al-Bukhari. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: During the Jahiliyyah, there were devils who would play music all night between Safa and Marwa. There were gods between them. When Islam appeared, the Muslims said: O Messenger of God, we should not walk between Safa and Marwa, for they are polytheism. Then this verse was revealed. Al-Sha'bi said: During the Jahiliyyah, there was an idol on Safa called Isaf and on Marwa an idol called Na'ilah. They would touch them when they walked around. The Muslims refrained from walking around them because of this, so this verse was revealed.

Second: The root of Safa in the language is smooth stone, and here it is a well-known mountain in Mecca, and so is Marwa, which is why they were mentioned with the definite article. Safa was mentioned because Adam, the Chosen One, peace and blessings be upon him, stood on it and was named after it, and Eve stood on Marwa and was named after a woman, so it was made feminine for that reason, and God knows best. Al-Sha'bi said: There was an idol on Safa called Isaf and on Al-Mura an idol called Na'ila, and this is in the masculine and feminine, and the masculine was brought forward, and this is good, because the aforementioned hadiths indicate this meaning. And the dislike of circumambulating between them was only for this reason, until God removed the hardship in that. The People of the Book claimed that they committed adultery in the Kaaba, so God transformed them into

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of Allah. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, Allah is appreciative and Knowing.

two stones and placed them on Safa and Marwa to take a lesson from them, and when the period was long, they were worshipped instead of God, and God knows best. Safa short is the plural of safa, which means smooth stones. It was said: Al-Safa is a singular noun and its plural is Safi with a damma on the sad and Asfa' like Arja'. The rajaz poet said:

As if his back is like the places of birds on a fine rock

It was said: The conditions of safa are whiteness and hardness, and its derivation is from safa yasefu, meaning pure from dirt and clay. And marwah singular marw are the small stones that have bricks in them. It was said that it is hardness. The correct view is that marw is the hard and soft stones that crack and its edge becomes thin, and in this it is said: marw is more common and it is said about the cross. The poet said:

He turned to the ground, withered, and when he came across a rock, he yielded.

Abu Dhu'ayb said:

As if I am a Marwa, a clear, shining star, knocking every day for the events.

It has been said: They are black stones. It has also been said: They are shiny white stones in which there is fire.

Third: The Almighty's saying: Of the symbols of God meaning of His landmarks and places of worship. It is the plural of sha'irah. The symbols are the acts of worship that God Almighty has made known, meaning He has made them signs for the people, such as standing, running, and slaughtering. The symbol is the mark. It is said: I made the sacrificial animal known meaning I made it known by sticking an iron rod in its hump, from your saying: I made known, meaning I made it known. Al-Kumait said:

We kill them generation by generation, you see them as ritual sacrifices through which people draw near.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: So whoever makes Hajj to the House means intending. The root of Hajj is intention. The poet said:

I witness from Aouf many pilgrims who curse the saffron-colored Al-Zubayrkan.

Insult: a common word. Abu Ubaidah said: Insult with a kasra is the one who curses a lot. Also, the one who curses you is called sabk. The poet said:

Do not curse me, for I am not the one who curses. If I curse a noble man, I will curse him.

The veil is also cursed, as is the turban. Al-Mukhbal Al-Saadi said:

They curse the saffron zabraqa

And the word curse also means rope in the language of Hudhayl. Abu Dhu'ayb said:

He hung down on it between a thread and a barren string like a palm branch, and its crows stumbled over it.

As-subub: ropes. As-sab: a thin piece of linen. As-sabibah is its rope, and the plural is as-subub and as-saba'ib, as Al-Jawhari said. The doctor examined the wound if he probed it with a skewer. The poet said:

A woman performs Hajj in the depths of her body

Al-Lajf: the sinking. The well became hollow: its bottom sank. Then this name was used specifically for the intention to go to the Sacred House for specific actions.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: Or perform Umrah, meaning visit. Umrah means visiting. The poet said:

Ibn Mu'ammal was exalted when he set out on a faraway expedition and was patient.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: There is no blame upon him meaning there is no sin. Its origin is from januwah which means inclination, and from it comes the word jawaneh for limbs due to their crookedness. Aisha's interpretation of this verse has been presented. Ibn al-Arabi said: The truth of the statement is that the statement of the speaker: There is no blame upon you if you do, is the permissibility of the action. And his statement: There is no blame upon you if you do not do, is the permissibility of leaving the action. So when he heard the weakness of the statement of God the Almighty: There is no blame upon him if he goes around them both, he said: This is evidence that leaving the circumambulation is permissible. Then he saw the Shari'ah applied to the effect that there is no permission to leave the circumambulation, so he sought to reconcile these two contradictions. Aisha said to him: His saying: There is no blame upon him if he circumambulates them is not evidence of abandoning the circumambulation. Rather, it would have been evidence of abandoning it. If there was no blame upon him if he circumambulated them, then this wording would not have come to permit abandoning the circumambulation, nor is there evidence for it. Rather, it came to indicate the permissibility of circumambulation for those who were embarrassed by it in the pre-Islamic era, or for those who circumambulated it in the pre-Islamic era intending to worship the idols that were in it. So God Almighty informed them that circumambulation is not forbidden if the circumambulator does not intend a false intention.

If it is said: Ata' narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he recited: There is no blame upon him if he does not circumambulate them both, and this is the recitation of Ibn Mas'ud. It is thought that it is also in the Mushaf of Abu Bakr, and something similar is narrated on the authority of Anas. The answer is that this is contrary to what is in the Mushaf, and what has been established in the Mushaf should not be abandoned for a recitation whose authenticity is not known or not. Ata' often transmitted it on the authority of Ibn Abbas without hearing it. It has been said that the narration in this on the authority of Anas is not accurate, or that it is an additional la for emphasis, as he said:

I do not blame the whites for not laughing when they saw the ugly, disheveled one.

Seventh: Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Jabir:

"When the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) arrived in Mecca, he circumambulated the House seven times and recited: 'And take, [O Muhammad], the standing place of Abraham as a place of prayer.' He prayed behind the standing place, then he came to the Black Stone and touched it, then he said: 'We begin with that with which God began.' So he began with Safa and recited: 'Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God.' He said: This is a good and authentic hadith, and the scholars act upon this, that he begins with Safa before Marwa. If he begins with Marwa before Safa, it is not permissible for him, and he begins with Safa."

Eighth: The scholars differed regarding the obligation of walking between Safa and Marwa. Al-Shafi'i and Ibn Hanbal said: It is a pillar, and this is the well-known view of the Maliki school of thought, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

Strive, for God has prescribed striving for you.

Narrated by Al-Daraqutni. Written means obligated, as God Almighty says: Fasting has been prescribed for you, and as the Prophet, peace be upon him, says:

Five prayers have been prescribed by God for His servants.

Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Umm Walad Lashaiba, who said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, walking between Safa and Marwa and he said: 'One should not cross the valley except by running.'" So whoever omits it or a part of it, forgetfully or intentionally, should return from his country or from where he mentioned to Mecca, and perform Tawaf and Sa'i, because Sa'i can only be performed in conjunction with Tawaf.

According to Malik, it is the same whether that is during Hajj or Umrah, even if it is not obligatory during Umrah. If he has intercourse with women, he must perform Umrah and offer a sacrifice, according to Malik, along with completing his rituals. Al-Shafi'i said: He must offer a sacrifice, and there is no meaning to Umrah if he returns, performs Tawaf and Sa'i. Abu Hanifah and his companions, al-Thawri and al-Sha'bi said: It is not obligatory. If one of the pilgrim omits it until he returns to his country, he must make up for it with blood money, because it is a Sunnah of Hajj. This is the opinion of Malik in al-'Utbiyyah. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ibn Al-Zubayr, Anas bin Malik and Ibn Sirin that he volunteered, based on the words of God the Almighty: And whoever volunteers good. Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read yatawa 'in the subjunctive mood, and likewise So whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. The rest read yatawa 'in the past tense, which is what the believer does of his own accord. So whoever does something from the voluntary acts, God will thank him. And the evil of God for the servant is his reward for obedience. What is correct is what Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, went to for what we mentioned, and his saying, peace be upon him:

Take from me your rituals, so it became a statement of the entirety of the Hajj. It must be obligatory, like his statement of the number of rak'ahs and what was like that if it was not agreed that it was a Sunnah or voluntary. Talib said: Ibn Abbas saw some people circumambulating between Safa and Marwa, so he said: This is what your mother, the mother of Ismail, taught you.

I said: This is confirmed in Sahih Al-Bukhari, as will be explained in Surat Ibrahim.

Ninth: It is not permissible for anyone to circumambulate the House or between Safa and Marwa while riding, except for one who has an excuse. If he circumambulates with an excuse, he must offer a sacrifice. If he circumambulates without an excuse, he must repeat it if he was in the presence of the House. If he was absent from it, he must offer a sacrifice. We only said that because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, circumambulated himself and said:

Learn your rituals from me, but we only allowed that as an excuse.

Because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, circumambulated on his camel and touched the corner with his stick.

He said to Aisha when she said to him, I am sick, so he said, Perform the Tawaf behind the people while you are riding. Our companions differentiated between performing the Tawaf on a camel or on the back of a person. If he performs the Tawaf on the back of a person, it is not valid, because in that case he is not performing the Tawaf, but rather the one carrying him. If he performs the Tawaf on a camel, he is the one performing the Tawaf. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said, "This is a differentiation of choice. As for the sufficiency, it is valid. Do you not see that if he faints and is carried while being carried, or stands at Arafat while being carried, it is valid for him?"

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Imam Ahmad said: Sulayman bin Dawud al-Hashimi narrated to us, Ibraaheem bin Saad narrated to us, from al-Zuhri, from Urwah, from Aisha, he said: I said, What do you think of the statement of God the Most High: "Indeed, as-Safa and al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them"? I said: By God, there is no blame upon anyone for not walking between them. Aisha said, What a bad thing you have said, my nephew! If it had been as I interpreted it, there would have been no blame upon him for not walking between them. However, it was revealed because the Ansar, before they converted to Islam, used to perform the ritual of Ihram at the tyrant Manat, which they used to worship near al-Mushallal. Some of its people were reluctant to walk between as-Safa and al-Marwah. So they asked the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) about that and they said: O Messenger of God, we were reluctant to walk between as-Safa and al-Marwah during the pre-Islamic era.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:158

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of Allah. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, Allah is appreciative and Knowing.

Then God the Almighty revealed: "Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them." Aisha said: Then the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) made it an ordinance to walk between them, so no one should neglect walking between them. They both included it in the two Sahihs. In a narration on the authority of Al-Zuhri, he said: So I narrated this hadith to Abu Bakr bin Abd Al-Rahman bin Al-Harith bin Hisham. He said: This is not what I had heard of, and I heard men of knowledge say: The people - except for those whom Aisha mentioned - used to say: Our walking between these two stones is from the practice of the Age of Ignorance. Others from the Ansar said: We were only commanded to walk around the House, and we were not commanded to walk between As-Safa and Al-Marwah. Then God the Almighty revealed: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. Abu Bakr bin Abd Al-Rahman said: Perhaps it was revealed about these and those. Al-Bukhari narrated it from the hadith of Malik on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha in a similar manner. Then Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Asim bin Sulayman, who said: I asked Anas about Safa and Marwa. He said: We used to think that they were from the pre-Islamic era, but when Islam came, we refrained from them, so God Almighty revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Al-Qurtubi mentioned in his interpretation on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The devils used to separate Safa and Marwa all night long, and there were gods between them. When Islam came, they asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about circumambulating between them, so this verse was revealed. Al-Sha'bi said: Isaf and Na'ilah were on Al-Safa and Na'ilah was on Al-Marwah, and they used to touch them. After Islam, they were embarrassed to circumambulate between them, so this verse was revealed. I said Muhammad ibn Ishaq mentioned in the Book of the Biography that Isaf and Na'ilah were two human beings, so they committed adultery inside the Ka'bah and turned into two stones, so the Quraysh set them up facing the Ka'bah for people to learn from. When their time had passed, they were enslaved, then moved to Al-Safa and Al-Marwah, and they were set up there, so whoever circumambulated Al-Safa and Al-Marwah would touch them. For this reason, Abu Talib said in his famous poem:

Where the Ash'aris dismount their camels at the place where the torrents of Isaf and Na'il meet.

In Sahih Muslim, from the long hadith of Jabir, it says that when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, finished his circumambulation of the House, he returned to the corner and touched it, then he exited from the door of Safa while saying, Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. Then he said, I begin with what God began with.

In the narration of al-Nasa'i, Begin with what God began with. Imam Ahmad said: Shuraih told us, Abdullah bin al-Mu'ammil told us, on the authority of Ata bin Abi Rabah, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah, on the authority of Habibah bint Abi Tajra'ah, who said: I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, circumambulating between Safa and Marwa, and the people were in front of him, and he was behind them, and he was walking, until I could see his knees from the intensity of his walking, and his garment was spinning around him, and he was saying, Strive, for God has prescribed walking for you. Then Imam Ahmad narrated it from Abd al-Razzaq: Muammar told us, on the authority of Wasil, the freed slave of Abu Uyaynah, on the authority of Musa bin Ubaydah, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaibah, that a woman told her that she heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, between Safa and Marwa saying, Sa'i has been prescribed for you, so strive. This hadith was used as evidence for the school of thought of those who... He believes that walking between Safa and Marwa is a pillar of Hajj, as is the doctrine of Al-Shafi'i and those who agreed with him, and a narration from Ahmad, which is the well-known opinion from Malik. It was said that it is obligatory and not a pillar, so if he leaves it intentionally or unintentionally, he must make up for it with blood money, and this is a narration from Ahmad and a group says the same. It was said rather it is recommended, and Abu Hanifa, Al-Thawri, Al-Sha'bi and Ibn Sirin went to it, and it was narrated from Anas, Ibn Umar and Ibn Abbas, and it was reported from Malik in Al-Utbiyyah. Al-Qurtubi said: They used as evidence the words of God Almighty: And whoever volunteers good and the first opinion is more likely because he, peace be upon him, circumambulated between them and said: So that you may learn from me your rituals. So everything he did in that pilgrimage is obligatory and must be done in Hajj, except what is excluded by evidence, and God knows best. His words, peace be upon him, Strive, for God has prescribed striving for you have been presented, for God Almighty has made clear that circumambulating between Safa and Marwa is one of the rituals of God, that is, what God Almighty prescribed for Abraham in the rituals of Hajj. It was presented in the hadith of Ibn Abbas that the origin of that is taken from Hajar's circumambulation and her going back and forth between Safa and Marwa in search of water for her son when their water ran out and their provisions when he left them. Abraham, peace be upon him, was there, and no one was with them. When she feared for her son there, and they ran out of what they had, she stood up seeking help from God, the Almighty, and she kept going back and forth in this honorable spot between Safa and Marwa, humbled, fearful, anxious, compelled, and needy before God, the Almighty, until God removed her distress, comforted her loneliness, relieved her hardship, and caused Zamzam to spring forth for her, whose water is food that nourishes, and a cure for illness. The one who strives between them should be mindful of his poverty, humiliation, and need of God, in guiding his heart, improving his condition, and forgiving his sins. He should seek refuge in God, the Almighty, to relieve his shortcomings and faults, and to guide him to the straight path, and to make him steadfast on it until his death, and to transform him from his state of sins and transgressions to a state of perfection, forgiveness, rectitude, and uprightness, as He did with Hajar, peace be upon her.

And his saying, And whoever volunteers good, it was said that he increased his circumambulation between them according to what is obligatory, an eighth and a ninth, and so on. And it was said that he circumambulates between them in a voluntary Hajj or a voluntary Umrah. And it was said that what is meant is a voluntary good in all acts of worship. This was narrated by Al-Razi, and the third was attributed to Al-Hasan Al-Basri, and God knows best. And his saying, Then God is Appreciative and Knowing, meaning that He rewards for little with much, and is Knowing of the extent of the reward, so He does not withhold reward from anyone. "He does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward."

Fath al-Qadir

Origin 158- Al-Safa in the language: smooth stone, and here it is a name for a well-known mountain in Mecca, and likewise Al-Marwah is a name for a well-known mountain in Mecca, and its origin in the language: one of the marwa, and they are the small stones that are soft. And it was said: those that are hard, and it was said: it includes everyone. Abu Dhu'ayb said:

As if I am a Marwa, a clear, shining star, knocking every day for the events.

It was said: They are the shiny white stones. It was also said: They are the black stones. The rituals are the plural of ritual, which is the sign: that is, one of the signs of His rituals. What is meant by it are the places of worship that God has made known to the people regarding the standing, the running, and the slaughtering. From this is the notifying of the sacrificial animal: that is, informing it by sticking an iron rod into its hump. From this is the saying of Al-Kumait:

We kill them generation by generation. You see them as ritual sacrifices through which people draw near.

Hajj in the language means: intending to visit the House, and from this comes the poet's saying:

I witness many obstacles from Awf who resort to cursing the saffron-colored Al-Zubayr.

And the curse: the turban. In Islamic law: performing the Hajj rituals that God the Almighty has prescribed. Umrah in the language: the visit. In Islamic law: performing the known ritual in the fixed manner. The wing is originally from the word januh, which means inclination, and from it the wings due to their crookedness. And his saying: to circumambulate its origin is to circumambulate and it was assimilated. And it was read: that he circumambulates, and raising the wing indicates that it is not obligatory, and Abu Hanifa and his companions and al-Thawri said the same. Al-Zamakhshari narrated in Al-Kashshaf on the authority of Abu Hanifa that he says: It is obligatory and not a pillar, and there is a blood sacrifice for the one who abandons it. Ibn Abbas, Ibn al-Zubayr, Anas bin Malik and Ibn Sirin have said that it is not obligatory. What strengthens the evidence of this verse for the non-existence is the Almighty's statement at the end of the verse: And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, God is appreciative and Knowing. The majority of scholars are of the view that the Sa'i is obligatory and a ritual among the rituals, and they provided evidence for this with what the two sheikhs and others narrated on the authority of Aisha that Urwah said to her: Have you seen the statement of God: "Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them." So I do not see any blame upon anyone for not walking between them? Aisha said: What a bad thing you have said, my nephew! If it had been as I interpreted it, then there would have been no blame on him for not circumambulating them. However, it was revealed because the Ansar, before they converted to Islam, used to perform the ritual of pilgrimage to the tyrant Manat, which they used to worship. Some of those who worshipped it were reluctant to circumambulate Safa and Marwa in the pre-Islamic era, so God revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God (al-Baqarah 2:14). Aisha said: Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, explained circumambulating them, so no one should neglect circumambulating them. Muslim and others narrated on her authority that she said: By my life, God does not complete the Hajj of one who does not walk between Safa and Marwa, nor his Umrah, because God said: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God. At-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked and he said: God has prescribed for you the act of walking, so walk. Ahmad included in his chain of transmission, as did Ash-Shafi'i, Ibn Sa'd, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Qani' and Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Habeeba bint Abi Tajra'a, who said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, performing Tawaf between As-Safa and Al-Marwah, and the people were in front of him, and he was running behind them until I could see his knees from the intensity of his running, his garment circling around him and he was saying: Run, for God, the Almighty, has prescribed running for you." It is in Musnad Ahmad on the authority of his Sheikh Abdullah bin Al-Mu'ammil on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah on the authority of Safiyya bint Shaibah on her authority. He narrated it on another authority on the authority of Abd Al-Razzaq. Mu'ammal informed us on the authority of Wasil, the freed slave of Abu Uyaynah, on the authority of Musa bin Ubaydah on the authority of Safiyya bint Shaibah, that a woman informed her and she mentioned it. This is supported by the hadith: Learn your rituals from me.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:158

Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of Allah. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs Umrah - there is no blame upon him for walking between them. And whoever volunteers good - then indeed, Allah is appreciative and Knowing.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

158. The Almighty said: Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. As-Safa is the plural of safa, which is hard, smooth rocks. It is said: safa and safa, like: pebble and pebbles and seed and seed, and Al-Marwah is the soft stone, and its plural is marwat, and the plural of many is marw, like date and dates and dates. Rather, God meant by them the two mountains known in Mecca at the ends of the Mas'a, and that is why He included the definite article in them. The symbols of God are the signs of His religion. Its origin is from the word ish'ar which means to inform, and its singular is sha'ir. Everything that is a sign for an offering by which one draws near to God, the Most High, such as prayer, supplication, and sacrifice, is a sha'ir. So, the circumambulation, the standing place, and the slaughtering are all symbols of God, and so are the sacred places. What is meant by the symbols here are the rituals that God made symbols of His obedience, and Safa and Marwah are among them, so that they are both circumambulated. Whoever performs Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, Hajj in the language means the intention, and 'Umrah means the visit. In the prescribed Hajj and 'Umrah, there is intention and visitation. There is no blame upon him, meaning there is no sin upon him. Its origin is from janah, meaning he deviated from the intention. To circumambulate them, meaning to circle them. Its origin is yatawuf, and the ta was assimilated into the ta.

The reason for the revelation of this verse is that there were two idols on Safa and Marwa, Asaf and Na'ila, and Asaf was on Safa and Na'ila was on Marwa. The people of the Age of Ignorance used to walk between Safa and Marwa in reverence for the two idols and touch them. When Islam came and the idols were destroyed, the Muslims were reluctant to walk between Safa and Marwa because of the two idols, so God permitted it and informed them that it was one of the symbols of God.

Scholars differed regarding the ruling of this verse and the obligation of walking between Safa and Marwa during Hajj and Umrah. A group held that it is obligatory, which is the opinion of Ibn Amir, Jabir, and Aisha. This is what Al-Hasan said, and this is what Malik and Al-Shafi'i said. A group held that it is voluntary, which is the opinion of Ibn Abbas, and this is what Ibn Sirin and Mujahid said, and this is what Sufyan Ath-Thawri and the People of Opinion held. Ath-Thawri and the People of Opinion said that whoever leaves it must pay a blood sacrifice.

Those who made it obligatory provided evidence for it with what Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Kisa'i Al-Khatib told us: Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us: Abu Al-Abbas Muhammad bin Ya'qub Al-Asamm told us: Al-Rabi' told us: Sulayman told us: Al-Shafi'i told us: Abdullah bin Mu'ammal Al-A'dhi told us: Amr bin Abdul Rahman bin Muhaisin told us: Ata' bin Abi Rabah told us: Safiyya bint Shaibah told me: Bint Abi Tajra'ah - her name was Habeeba, one of the women of Banu Abd Al-Dar - she said: I entered with some women from Quraysh into the house of the family of Abi Husayn, looking at the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as he was walking between Al-Safa and Al-Marwah. I saw him walking, and his belt was spinning from the intensity of his walking, to the point that I thought I could see his knees. I heard him say: Walk, for God has prescribed walking for you.

Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Hishan ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, who said: I said to Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: What do you think of the statement of God Almighty: "Indeed, as-Safa and al-Marwah are among the symbols of God. So whoever makes Hajj to the House or performs 'Umrah, there is no blame upon him for walking between them." I do not see anything wrong with anyone not walking between them. Aisha said: No, if it were as you say, it would be: There is no blame upon him for walking between them. This verse was revealed about the Ansar, who used to enter ihram for Manat, and Manat was next to Qudayd, so God Almighty revealed: Indeed, as-Safa and al-Marwah are among the symbols of God.

Asim said: I said to Anas bin Malik: Did you dislike walking between Safa and Marwa? He said: Yes, because it was one of the rituals of the pre-Islamic era until God Almighty revealed: Indeed, Safa and Marwa are among the symbols of God.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Muhammad, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah, that he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he left the mosque and was heading towards al-Safa, say: We begin with that with which God began. So he began with al-Safa. He said: When he stood on al-Safa, he would say: There is no god but God alone, with no partner, His is the dominion and His is the praise, and He is over all things omnipotent. He would do that three times and supplicate, and he would do the same on al-Marwah. When he descended from al-Safa, he would walk until his feet reached the bottom of the valley, then he would run until he came out of it.

Mujahed said: - may God have mercy on him - Moses, peace be upon him, performed Hajj on a red camel, wearing two Qatwani cloaks. He circumambulated the House, then ascended Safa and supplicated, then descended to perform the sa'i while reciting the Talbiyah, saying, Here I am, O God, here I am. God Almighty said, Here I am, My servant, and I am with you. So Moses, peace be upon him, fell down in prostration.

God the Almighty said: And whoever volunteers good Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read it with a ya' and a shaddah on the ta' and a jazm on the 'ayn, and so did the second one. And whoever volunteers good - it is better for him, and that you fast 184-Al-Baqarah meaning volunteers. Ya'qub agreed with the first one, and the rest read it with a ta' and a fathah on the 'ayn in the past tense. Mujahid said: Its meaning is whoever volunteers to circumambulate Safa and Marwah. Muqatil and Al-Kalbi said: And whoever volunteers means increases the circumambulation after what is obligatory. It was said: whoever volunteers to perform Hajj and Umrah after performing the Hajj that is obligatory upon him. Al-Hasan and others said: He meant all the other deeds, meaning doing what is not obligatory upon him, such as zakat, prayer, circumambulation, and other types of acts of worship. Then God is Appreciative is a metaphor for His servant for his work, Knowing of his intention. And gratitude from God the Almighty is that He gives His servant more than he deserves. He thanks for the little and gives a lot.

158- Indeed, As-Safa and Al-Marwah are two mountains in Mecca. Among the symbols of God are signs of His rituals, the plural of sha'irah which is a mark. So whoever performs Hajj or 'Umrah Hajj linguistically means intention, and 'Umrah means visiting. So they are predominant in the Shari'ah for intending the House and visiting it in the two specific ways. There is no blame upon him for walking between them Isaf was on As-Safa and Na'ilah was on Marwah, and the people of the Jahiliyyah used to touch them when they walked. When Islam came and the idols were broken, the Muslims were embarrassed to walk between them, so this was revealed. There is consensus that it is prescribed in Hajj and 'Umrah, but the difference of opinion is over its obligation. Ahmad reported that it is a Sunnah, and Anas and Ibn 'Abbas may God be pleased with them reported it, based on his saying: There is no blame upon him, as it is understood from it that he has a choice, which is weak, because denying blame indicates permissibility that is included in the meaning of obligation, so it does not negate it. Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him, said that it is obligatory and must be compensated for by blood. Malik and Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on them, said that it is a pillar based on the words of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: Strive, for God has prescribed striving for you. "And whoever volunteers good" means he performs an act of obedience, whether it is obligatory or voluntary, or does more than what God has prescribed for him of Hajj or Umrah, or Tawaf, or volunteers to do Sa'i if we say that it is a Sunnah. Good is in the accusative case because it is an attribute of a deleted source, or by deleting the preposition and connecting the verb to it, or by making the verb transitive because it includes the meaning of came or did. Hamza, Al-Kisa'i, and Ya'qub read it, and its original form is yatadhu', so it was assimilated like yatawuf. For God is Appreciative, Knowing rewards for obedience that is not hidden from Him.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:159

Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by Allah and cursed by those who curse.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:159

Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by God and cursed by those who curse.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed about the Jews: Indeed, those who conceal from the people what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance such as the verse of stoning and the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture the Torah those are cursed by God He distances them from His mercy and cursed by the cursers the angels and the believers or everything by calling upon them to be cursed.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Indeed, those who conceal the verse, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Muadh bin Jabal, Saad bin Muadh, and Kharijah bin Zaid asked a group of Jewish rabbis about some of what was in the Torah, but they concealed it from them and refused to tell them, so God revealed about them: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs, are the Jewish scholars and rabbis, and the Christian scholars, because they concealed the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the people, and they left his followers, even though they found it written in their Torah and Gospel. And the clear proofs that God sent down: what He explained of the matter of the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his mission, and his description, in the two books in which God, the Most High, said that their people would find his description. And the Most High means by guidance what He made clear to them of His command in the books that He sent down to His prophets. So the Most High said: "Those who conceal from the people what We sent down in their books of the clarification of the command of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood, and the correctness and truth of the religion with which I sent him, and do not inform them of it, nor do they announce it after I have made it clear to the people and explained it to them, in the book that I sent down to their prophets, 'Those are cursed by God and cursed by those who curse, except for those who repent'" verse. Abu Kurayb narrated to us, saying: Yunus ibn Bakir narrated to us - and Ibn Humayd narrated to us, saying: Salamah narrated to us - they both said: Muhammad ibn Ishaq narrated to us, saying: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, the freed slave of Zayd ibn Thabit narrated to me, Sa'id ibn Jubayr narrated to me, or 'Ikrimah narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, saying: Mu'adh ibn Jabal, the brother of Banu Salamah, and Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, the brother of Banu 'Abd al-Ashhal, and Kharijah ibn Zayd, the brother of Banu al-Harith ibn al-Khazraj, asked a group of Jewish rabbis - Abu Kurayb said: about what was in the Torah, and Ibn Humayd said: about some of what was in the Torah - and they concealed it from them and refused to tell them about it, so God Almighty revealed about them: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by God and cursed by those who curse. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God, Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance, he said: They are the People of the Book. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding the statement of God, Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance, he said: They concealed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, even though they found it written down with them, so they concealed it out of envy and malice. Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said, Yazid narrated to us, he said, Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture, those are the People of the Scripture. They concealed Islam, which is the religion of God, and they concealed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, although they found him written with them in the Torah and the Gospel. Musa narrated to me, he said, Amr narrated to us, he said, Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture, they claimed that a Jewish man had a friend from the Ansar called Tha'laba bin Ghanima. He said to him: Do you find Muhammad with you? He said: No! He said: Muhammad: Clear proofs. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: After We made it clear to the people in the Book. [Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His words: After We made it clear to the people], some people, because knowledge of the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description and his mission was only with the People of the Book and not others, and God Almighty meant them by His words: For the people in the Book, meaning: the Torah and the Gospel. And although this verse was revealed for a specific group of people, it is intended for everyone who conceals knowledge that God Almighty has commanded to be made clear to the people. This is similar to the report that "It was narrated from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Whoever is asked about knowledge that he knows and conceals it, will be bridled on the Day of Resurrection with a bridle of fire." And Abu Hurairah used to say what: Nasr bin Ali al-Jahdhami told us, he said, Hatim bin Wardan told us, he said, Ayoub al-Sakhtiyani told us, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, he said: If it were not for a verse from the Book of God, I would not have told you! And he recited: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear for the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by God and cursed by those who curse. Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Abdul-Hakam told me, he said, Abu Zur'ah Wahb God ibn Rashid told us, on the authority of Yunus, he said, Ibn Shihab said, Ibn al-Musayyab said: Abu Hurairah said: If it were not for two verses that God sent down in His Book, I would not have narrated anything: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs to the end of the verse, and the other verse: And when God took a covenant from those who were given the Scripture to make it clear to the people to the end of the verse (Al Imran 3:178). The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Those are the ones cursed by God and cursed by those who curse. Abu Ja'far said: What the Almighty means by His saying: Those are the ones cursed by God is those who conceal what God revealed about Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, his description and the matter of his religion, that it is the truth - after God had made it clear to them in their books - He curses them for concealing it and not explaining it to the people. And the curse is the action, from God cursed him, meaning He banished him, removed him, and crushed him. The root of the curse is expulsion, as Al-Shamakh bin Dirar said, and he mentioned Ma' and responded to him:

The quail was terrified by him and I denied him the status of a wolf like a cursed man

Meaning: the position of the chased wolf. The cursed is an adjective for the wolf, but what he meant is: the position of the chased, cursed wolf like a man. So the meaning of the verse is: God distances them from Him and from His mercy, and their Lord asks the cursers to curse them, because the curse of the children of Adam and the rest of God's creation is that they say: O God, curse him, since the meaning of the curse is what we described of exclusion and banishment.

We said that the curse of the cursers is what we described: their asking their Lord to curse them, and their saying: May God curse him or upon him be the curse of God, because: Muhammad bin Khalid bin Khidash and Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, they said, Ismail bin Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Those are the ones whom God curses and the ones who curse curse them, the animals, he said: When the yearning becomes old, the animals say: This is because of the sinners of the children of Adam, may God curse the sinners of the children of Adam! Then the people of interpretation differed about whom God Almighty meant by the ones who curse. Some of them said: He meant by that the beasts of the earth and its vermin.

Those who said that: Muhammad bin Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: The beasts of the earth curse them, and whatever God wills of beetles and scorpions, they say: We withhold rain because of their sins. Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abdul Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid: Those are the ones whom God curses and those who curse curse them, he said: The beasts of the earth, scorpions and beetles, they say: We withheld rain because of the sins of the children of Adam. Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid: And those who curse curse them, he said: The vermin and beasts of the earth curse them, they say: We withheld rain because of the sins of the children of Adam. Mushrif bin Abaan al-Hattab al-Baghdadi told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding His statement: Those are the ones whom God curses and those who curse curse them, he said: Everything curses them, even beetles and scorpions, they say: We withheld rain because of the sins of the children of Adam. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the cursers curse them, he said: The cursers are the animals. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His statement, And the cursers curse them, the animals curse the sinners of the children of Adam when God withheld rain from them because of the sins of the children of Adam, so the animals come out and curse them. Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Muslim ibn Khalid told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His statement, Those are the ones cursed by God and cursed by the cursers, the animals are camels, cows, and sheep, so the sinners of the children of Adam are cursed when the land becomes barren. If someone were to say: What is the reason for those who interpreted His statement: And the cursers curse them, to the point that the cursers are beetles, scorpions, and similar creatures of the earth, and you know that when they pluralize what is of the type of beasts and other than the sons of Adam, they pluralize it without the ya' and the noon and without the waw and the noon, and they pluralize it with the ta' and what contradicts what we mentioned, so they say: the cursers and the like? It is said: Even if the matter is like that, then it is the custom of the Arabs when they describe something from the beasts or other than them - whose plural is ruled to be - the ta' and without the form of the plural of the males of the sons of Adam - with what is from the description of humans, they pluralize it with the plural of their males, as the Most High said: And they said to their skins, 'Why did you bear witness against us?' (Fussilat 41:21), so He brought out their address on the example of the address of the sons of Adam, since it spoke to them and they spoke to it, and as He said: O ants, enter your dwellings (al-Naml 27:18) and as He said: And the sun and the moon, I saw them prostrating to me (Yusuf 12:4). Others said: God the Most High meant by His saying: And cursed by those who curse, the angels and the believers. Those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said: Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said: Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada: And cursed by those who curse, he said: He says: The cursers are from the angels of God and the believers. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His saying: And cursed by those who curse, the angels. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Ishaq told us, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi' bin Ansaq, he said: The cursers, are from the angels of God and the believers. Others said: He means - the cursers, everyone except the children of Adam and the jinn. Who said that: Musa told me, Amr told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And the cursers curse them, he said: Al-Bara' bin Azib said: When the disbeliever is placed in his grave, a beast comes to him as if its eyes were two pots of copper, with an iron pole with it, and it strikes him with a blow that covers his shoulders, and he cries out, and no one hears his voice except that he curses him, and nothing remains except that he hears his voice, except for the two heavy things, the jinn and mankind. Al-Muthanna told us, Ishaq told us, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding His statement: Those are the ones whom God curses and the cursers curse, he said: When the disbeliever is placed in his grave, he is struck with a hammer, and he cries out a cry, and everything hears his voice except for the two heavy things, the jinn and mankind, and nothing hears his cry except that he curses him.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in our view is the saying of the one who said: The cursers are the angels and the believers. Because God, the Most High, has described the disbelievers as having a curse that comes upon them from God, the angels, and all of mankind. God, the Most High, has said: Indeed, those who disbelieve and die while they are disbelievers - upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of mankind, all together. Likewise, the curse that God, the Most High, has informed us will befall the other group: those who conceal what God has sent down of clear proofs and guidance after He has made it clear to mankind. It is the curse of God, and the curse of those whose curse He has informed us will befall those who disbelieved and died while they were disbelievers, and they are the cursers, because both groups are disbelievers. As for the saying of the one who said that the cursers are beetles, scorpions, and similar creeping things and insects on the earth, then it is a saying whose true nature cannot be understood except by a report from God that this is from their actions, upon which proof is established. There is no report of this from the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so it is permissible to say that it is so. Since this is so, the correct statement regarding what they said is that the evidence from the apparent meaning of the Book of God is present, contrary to the statement of the people of interpretation, which is what we have described. If it is permissible for the beasts and all of God's creation to curse those who conceal what God has revealed in His Book about the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood, after they have learned about it, and to curse all the oppressors with them, then it is not permissible to conclusively testify that God meant by those who curse the beasts, the vermin, and the creeping things of the earth, except with a conclusive report of an excuse. There is no report of this, and the apparent meaning of the Book of God that we have mentioned indicates the opposite.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by God and cursed by those who curse.

It has seven issues:

First: God the Almighty informed us that whoever conceals the clear proofs and guidance that He has revealed is cursed. They differed about who is meant by that. It was said: The Jewish rabbis and Christian monks who concealed the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The Jews concealed the matter of stoning. It was also said: What is meant is everyone who conceals the truth. It is general for everyone who conceals knowledge of the religion of God that needs to be spread. This is explained in the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Whoever is asked about knowledge that he knows and conceals it, God will bridle him on the Day of Resurrection with a bridle of fire. Narrated by Abu Hurairah and Amr ibn al-'As, narrated by Ibn Majah. It is contradicted by the words of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud: If you tell people something that their minds cannot comprehend, it will be a trial for some of them. And he, peace be upon him, said:

"Tell people what they understand. Do you like that God and His Messenger be called liars?" This applies to some sciences, such as theology, or what not all common people understand equally. The ruling of the scholar is that he should tell what he understands, and he should treat each person according to his status. And God knows best.

Second: This is the verse that Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with him meant when he said: Had it not been for a verse in the Book of God, the Most High, I would not have narrated to you a hadith. And with it, the scholars have proven the obligation of conveying true knowledge and explaining knowledge in general, without taking payment for it, since one does not deserve payment for what he must do, just as one does not deserve payment for Islam. We have already discussed this.

The meaning of the verse is: If a scholar intends to conceal knowledge, he has disobeyed, and if he does not intend to, he is not obligated to convey it if he knows that it is with someone else. As for the one who is asked, he is obligated to convey it, based on this verse and the hadith. As for it being impermissible to teach a disbeliever the Qur'an and knowledge until he becomes Muslim, likewise it is impermissible to teach an innovator argumentation and pilgrimage so that he may argue with the people of truth, nor to teach an opponent an argument against his opponent that will cut off his wealth, nor to teach the ruler an interpretation that will lead to the misdeeds of the subjects, nor to spread concessions among the foolish so that they may make that a path to committing forbidden acts, abandoning obligatory duties, and the like. It is narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

Do not withhold wisdom from its people, lest you wrong them, and do not give it to those who are not worthy of it, lest you wrong them. It was narrated that he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not hang pearls around the necks of pigs, meaning to teach jurisprudence to those who are not qualified for it. Sahnun said: The hadith of Abu Hurairah and Amr ibn al-Aas only came about testimony. Ibn al-Arabi said: The correct view is the opposite, because in the hadith.

Whoever is asked about knowledge and he did not say about testimony, and remains on the apparent until something comes to him that changes it, and God knows best.

Third: The Almighty's statement: Of the clear proofs and guidance includes what is explicitly stated and what is inferred, because the name guidance includes everyone. It is evidence of the obligation to act on the statement of one person, because clear proofs are not obligatory on him unless his statement is accepted. He said: Except for those who repent, reform, and declare [the truth], so he ruled that clear proofs are established by their statement.

If it is said: It is possible that each one of them was forbidden from concealment and commanded to clarify so that the informants would increase and the report would be transmitted by them. We say: This is wrong, because they were not forbidden from concealment except when they were among those who were permitted to collude in it, and among those among them who were permitted to collude in concealment, their report would not be a reason for knowledge, and God Almighty knows best.

Fourth: When he said: Of the clear proofs and guidance, he indicated that what was other than that is permissible to conceal, especially if there was fear with that, because that is more emphatic in concealing. Abu Hurairah left that when he was afraid, so he said:

I memorized two vessels from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. As for one of them, I spread it, and as for the other, if I spread it, this throat would be cut. Narrated by Al-Bukhari. Abu Abdullah said: The throat is the passageway for food. Our scholars said: What Abu Hurairah did not spread, and he feared for himself in it temptation or killing, is only related to the matter of temptations and the text on the names of the apostates and hypocrites, and the like of this that is not related to clear proofs and guidance. And God knows best.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: After We made it clear. The metaphor in We made it clear refers to what was revealed of clear proofs and guidance. The Book is a generic noun, so what is meant is all the revealed books.

Sixth: The Almighty said: And the cursers curse them. Qatada and Ar-Rabi' said: What is meant by the cursers are the angels and the believers. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is clear and in accordance with the meaning of the statement. Mujahid and Ikrimah said: They are the insects and animals who are afflicted with drought because of the sins of the evil scholars who conceal [the truth], so let them curse them. Az-Zajaj said: The correct statement is that of the one who said: The cursers are the angels and the believers. As for that being for the beasts of the earth, its reality cannot be ascertained except by a text or a related report, and we did not find anything from those two.

I said: A report has been reported about this, narrated by Al-Bara' bin Azib, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said regarding the words of God Almighty: God curses them and those who curse curse them, he said: The beasts of the earth. It was narrated by Ibn Majah on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Sabah, who told us on the authority of Ammar bin Muhammad, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Abu Al-Munhal, on the authority of Zadan, on the authority of Al-Bara', with a good chain of transmission.

If it is said: How can those who do not have reason be grouped together as those who have reason? It is said: Because the action of those who have reason is attributed to them, as He said: I saw them prostrating to me and did not say prostrating to me, and He said: Why did you bear witness against us? and He said: And you see them looking at you, and there are many similar examples, and they will come, God willing. Al-Bara' bin Azib and Ibn Abbas said: The cursers are all creatures except the two heavy things: the jinn and mankind, and that is because "the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: When the disbeliever is struck in his grave and cries out, everyone hears him except the two heavy things, and every listener curses him". Ibn Mas'ud and Al-Suddi said: It is the man who curses his companion, so the curse rises to the sky then descends and does not find the one about whom it was said worthy of it, so it returns to the one who spoke it and does not find him worthy, so it goes off and falls on the Jews who concealed what God Almighty revealed, so this is His statement: And the cursers curse them, so whoever among them dies, the curse is lifted from him and remains on whoever of the Jews remains.

Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by Allah and cursed by those who curse.

hearts after what God Almighty made clear to His servants from His books that He sent down to His Messengers. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: It was revealed about the People of the Book, they concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, then He informed that everything curses them for their actions, so just as the scholar is sought forgiveness for by everything, even the fish in the water, and the bird in the air, these are unlike the scholars, so God curses them and those who curse curse them. It was reported in the hadith with chains of transmission that strengthen each other on the authority of Abu Hurairah and others that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever is asked about knowledge and conceals it, will be bridled on the Day of Resurrection with a bridle of fire. What is in the Sahih on the authority of Abu Hurairah is that he said: If it were not for a verse in the Book of God, I would not have told anyone anything Indeed, those who conceal what We sent down of clear proofs and guidance the verse, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Arfa narrated to us, Ammar bin Muhammad narrated to us, on the authority of Laith bin Abi Salim, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Zadhan Abi Amr, on the authority of Al-Bara bin Azib, who said: We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, at a funeral, and he said: "The unbeliever will be struck between his eyes, and every creature will hear it except the two heavy beasts, and every creature that hears his voice will curse him. This is what God Almighty said: 'Those are the ones whom God curses and those who curse them' meaning the creatures of the earth." Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Sabah, on the authority of Aamer bin Muhammad, and Ata bin Abi Rabah said: Every creature, the jinn, and mankind. Mujahid said: When the earth becomes barren, the animals will say: This is because of the sinners of the sons of Adam. God cursed the sinners of the sons of Adam. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, and Qatadah said: 'And those who curse them' meaning the angels and the believers curse them. It was mentioned in the hadith that everything seeks forgiveness for the scholar, even the whales in the sea. It was mentioned in this verse that the one who conceals knowledge will be cursed by God, the angels, and the people. They all, and the cursers as well, are all eloquent and foreign, either in the language of speech or the situation, that if he had a mind and on the Day of Resurrection, and God knows best. Then God the Most High excluded from these those who repented to Him, saying: Except for those who repent, amend, and make clear meaning, they returned from what they were doing, amended their actions, and made clear to the people what they were concealing. For them I will turn in forgiveness, and I am the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful. This indicates that the one who calls to disbelief or innovation, if he repents to God, God will turn in forgiveness for him. It has been reported that previous nations did not accept repentance from such people among them, but this is from the law of the Prophet of Repentance and the Prophet of Mercy, may the blessings and peace of God be upon him. Then God the Most High informed about those who disbelieved in Him and their condition continued until their death, that "upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of mankind, all together. They will abide therein" meaning in the curse that accompanies them until the Day of Resurrection, then the companionship, so they are in the fire of Hell, in which the punishment will not be lightened for them meaning it will not decrease from what they are in nor will they be reprieved meaning it will not change for them for a single hour or cease, rather it is continuous and permanent, so we seek refuge in God from that. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Qatadah said that the unbeliever will be brought to the stand on the Day of Resurrection and God will curse him, then the angels will curse him, then all of the people will curse him.

Chapter There is no disagreement about the permissibility of cursing the infidels. Omar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, and the imams who came after him, cursed the infidels in the Qunut and other prayers. As for the specific infidel, a group of scholars have said that he should not be cursed because we do not know how God will seal him. Some of them used as evidence the verse, Indeed, those who disbelieve and die while they are disbelievers - upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of the people, all together. Another group said: Rather, it is permissible to curse the specific infidel. The jurist Abu Bakr ibn al-Arabi al-Maliki chose this view, but he used as evidence a hadith that is weak. Others used as evidence the words of the Prophet, peace be upon him, in the story of the one who was brought drunk and he was flogged. A man, may God curse him, said: How often he is brought. The Messenger of God, peace be upon him, said: Do not curse him, for he loves God and His Messenger. This indicates that whoever does not love God and His Messenger is cursed, and God knows best.

His saying: 159- Indeed, those who conceal to the end of the verse, in it is the report that the one who conceals that is cursed - and they differed about who is meant by that? It was said: The Jewish rabbis and Christian monks who concealed the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. It was said: Everyone who concealed the truth and failed to explain what God made it obligatory to explain, and this is the most correct because the consideration is based on the generality of the wording and not on the specificity of the reason as established in the principles. So assuming that the reason for revelation was what the Jews and Christians did in concealing, this does not contradict this verse including everyone who concealed the truth. And in this verse there is a severe threat that cannot be estimated, for whoever God curses and whoever among His servants is cursed by Him has reached a level of misery and loss that cannot be reached or understood. In his saying: Of the clear proofs and guidance is evidence that it is permissible to conceal other than that, as Abu Hurairah said: "I memorized two vessels from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: As for one of them, I spread it, and as for the other, if I spread it, this throat would be cut." Narrated by Al-Bukhari. The pronoun in his saying: After We made it clear refers to what We revealed. The Book is a generic noun, and its definition indicates that it includes all books. It was said that what is meant by it is the Torah. Cursing is banishment and expulsion. What is meant by his saying: Those who curse are the angels and the believers, as stated by Al-Zajaj and others, and Ibn Atiyyah preferred it. It was said: Everyone from whom cursing is possible, so this includes the jinn. It was said: They are insects and animals.

159. The Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who conceal what We have sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear to the people in the Scripture was revealed about the Jewish scholars who concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, the verse of stoning, and other rulings that were in the Torah. Those are cursed by God. The root of cursing is expulsion and distance. And cursed by those who curse means they ask God to curse them and say: O God, curse them. They differed about those who curse. Ibn Abbas said: All creatures except the jinn and humans. Qatada said: They are the angels. Ata' said: The jinn and humans. Al-Hasan said: All servants of God. Ibn Mas'ud said: No two Muslims curse each other except that the curse returns to the Jews and Christians who concealed the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his description. Mujahid said: The cursers are the animals that curse the disobedient children of Adam when the rain is severe and the rain is withheld, and they say: This is from the evil of the sins of the children of Adam. Then he made an exception.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

159- Those who conceal such as the Jewish rabbis. What We have sent down of clear proofs such as the verses bearing witness to the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. And guidance and what guides to the obligation to follow it and believe in it. After We have made it clear to the people We have summarized it. In the Book in the Torah. Those are cursed by God and cursed by those who curse meaning those who are able to curse them from the angels and the two heavy burdens.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "Except for those who repent, amend, and declare. Those, I will turn to them in forgiveness, and I am the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful." Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by that: that God and the cursers curse those who conceal from people what they know of

The matter of the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his description and attributes in the Book that God revealed and made clear to the people, except for those who repent from concealing it from them? And review repentance by believing in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and acknowledging him and his prophethood and believing in what he brought from God, and explaining what God revealed in His books that He sent down to His prophets, of the command to follow him? And improve his condition by drawing closer to God through righteous deeds that please Him? And between the one who knew the revelation of God that He sent down to His prophets and entrusted them with in His books and did not conceal it, and revealed it and did not hide it, those, meaning: those who did what I described from them, are those whom I accept their repentance, so I make them among the people of returning to My obedience and repentance to My pleasure. Then He, the Most High, said: And I am the Forgiving, the Most Merciful. He says: I am the One who returns the hearts of My servants that have turned away from Me to Me, and I return them after their turning away from My obedience to seeking My love, and I am the Merciful to those who turn to Me after their turning to Me. I cover them with My pardon, and I overlook the greatness of what they committed between Me and them, by virtue of My mercy towards them. If someone says: How can someone who repents be repented to? What is the meaning of His statement: Except for those who repent, amend, and declare [the truth], for those I will turn to? Can someone who repents not be repented to, or someone who is turned to be repentant not be repentant? It is said: This is something that neither of them can be without the other, so it is the same whether it is said: Except for those who have been turned to and repented - or it is said: Except for those who repent, for I will turn to them. We have already explained the meaning of this statement in what came before, in a similar context in our book, so we disliked repeating it in this place. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that. Those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement:

Except those who repent, amend and declare, he said: They amended what was between them and God, and declared what came to them from God, and did not conceal it or deny it. Those, I will accept their repentance, and I am the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement:

Except those who repent, amend and declare, he said: They declared what was in God's Book for the believers, and what they asked them about regarding the matter of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And all of this is about the Jews. Abu Ja'far said: Some of them have claimed that the meaning of His statement: And declare, is: And declare repentance by sincere action. And the evidence of the apparent meaning of the Book and the revelation is to the contrary. Because the people were only rebuked before this verse for concealing what God the Most High had revealed and made clear in His Book, regarding Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his religion. Then God the Most High excepted from them those who would clarify the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his religion, and repent for their denial and concealment, so He excluded them from the number of those whom God and those who curse curse, and the rebuke was not for their failure to clarify their repentance with sincerity of action. And those whom God excepted from those who conceal what God had revealed of clear proofs and guidance after He had made it clear to the people in the Book were Abdullah bin Salam and his family from the People of the Book, who converted to Islam and their Islam was good, and they followed the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

God Almighty says: "Except for those who repent, reform, and declare [the truth]. Those - I will turn to them in forgiveness, and I am the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful."

God the Almighty said: Except those who repent. God the Almighty excluded the repentant, righteous in their deeds and words, and those who turn back to their repentance. According to our scholars, it is not sufficient for a person to say: I have repented, until he shows in the second instance that he is different from the first. If he was an apostate, he returned to Islam, manifesting its laws. If he was one of the people of sin, righteous deeds appeared from him, and he avoided the people of corruption and the conditions he was in. If he was one of the people of idols, he avoided them and mixed with the people of Islam, and thus the opposite of what he was in appears. The explanation of repentance and its rulings will come in the chapter on women, God willing. Some scholars said about His statement: and they made clear that is, by breaking the wine and pouring it out. It was said: and they made clear means what is in the Torah about the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the obligation to follow him. The generality is more appropriate for what we have explained, that is, they made clear the opposite of what they were in, and God the Almighty knows best. Then those, I will turn to them in forgiveness, and I am the Forgiving, the Merciful. This has been presented, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a severe warning to those who conceal what the Messengers brought of clear evidence of the correct objectives, and the guidance that benefits the hearts after what God Almighty made clear to His servants from His books that He sent down to His Messengers. Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement on the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who disbelieved and died while they were disbelievers - upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of mankind, all together. Abu Ja'far said: What God, the Exalted, meant by His saying: Indeed, those who disbelieved is those who denied the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and belied him - from the Jews, Christians, and all the people of the religions, and the polytheists who worship idols - and died while they were disbelievers, meaning: and they died while they were denying that and belying Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, upon them is the curse of God and of the angels, meaning: so those who disbelieved and died while they were disbelievers, upon them is the curse of God, meaning: God distanced them and crushed them from His mercy, and of the angels, meaning: and the angels and mankind cursed them, all together. And the curse of the angels and mankind upon them is their saying: upon them is the curse of God. We have already explained the meaning of the curse in what came before, so there is no need to repeat it. If someone were to say: How can the curse of all people be upon the one who dies as a disbeliever in Muhammad (peace be upon him) from among the various nations, most of whom do not believe in him or acknowledge him? It is said: The meaning of that is contrary to what he has gone to. The people of interpretation have differed in their interpretation of that. Some of them said: God meant by His saying: and all people, the people of faith in Him and His Messenger in particular, without the rest of humanity. Those who said that were mentioned: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said: Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said: Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His saying: and all people, he means - all al-Nas 114:the believers. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Ishaq told us, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah: and all people, he means by all al-Nas 114:the believers. Others said: Rather, that will be on the Day of Resurrection, when the disbeliever will be made to stand before the witnesses and all the people will curse him. Mention of those who said that: I was told by Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah: The disbeliever will be brought to a halt on the Day of Resurrection, and God will curse him, then the angels will curse him, then all the people will curse him. Others said: Rather, that is the saying of the one who says, whoever he may be: God curses the oppressor, and that includes every disbeliever, because he is one of the oppressors. Mention of those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, who said: Amr bin Hammad told us, who said: Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi.

His saying: Upon them is the curse of God, the angels, and all of mankind, for two believers and unbelievers do not curse each other, and one of them says: God cursed the oppressor, except that the curse is incumbent upon the unbeliever, because he is an oppressor, so everyone among creation curses him. Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in our view is the saying of the one who said: God meant by that all people, meaning that He cursed them by their saying: God cursed the oppressor - or the oppressors. For every one of the sons of Adam is not prevented from saying that, whoever he is, and whatever his religion, so every unbeliever is included in His curse, whoever he is. And that is in the meaning of what Abu al-'Aliyah said. Because God the Most High informed about those who witness them on the Day of Resurrection that they will curse them, saying: "And who is more unjust than he who invents a lie against God? Those will be brought before their Lord, and the witnesses will say, 'These are the ones who lied against their Lord.' Unquestionably, the curse of God will be upon the wrongdoers." (Hud 11:18) As for what Qatada said, that he meant some people, the apparent meaning of the revelation is contrary to it, and there is no proof of its reality from report or consideration. If it was thought that what was meant by it were the believers, because the disbelievers do not curse themselves or their allies, then God the Most High informed that they will curse them in the Hereafter. It is known that they curse the oppressors, and every disbeliever is included in the oppression, due to his oppression of himself, his denial of the blessing of his Lord, and his disobedience to His command.

God Almighty says: Indeed, those who disbelieve and die while they are disbelievers - upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of mankind, all together.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a severe warning to those who conceal what the Messengers brought of clear evidence of the correct objectives, and the guidance that benefits the hearts after what God Almighty made clear to His servants from His books that He sent down to His Messengers. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: It was revealed about the People of the Book, they concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, then He informed that everything curses them for their actions, so just as the scholar is sought forgiveness for by everything, even the fish in the water, and the bird in the air, these are unlike the scholars, so God curses them and those who curse curse them. It was reported in the hadith with chains of transmission that strengthen each other on the authority of Abu Hurairah and others that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever is asked about knowledge and conceals it, will be bridled on the Day of Resurrection with a bridle of fire. What is in the Sahih on the authority of Abu Hurairah is that he said: If it were not for a verse in the Book of God, I would not have told anyone anything Indeed, those who conceal what We sent down of clear proofs and guidance the verse, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Arfa narrated to us, Ammar bin Muhammad narrated to us, on the authority of Laith bin Abi Salim, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Zadhan Abi Amr, on the authority of Al-Bara bin Azib, who said: We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, at a funeral, and he said: "The unbeliever will be struck between his eyes, and every creature will hear it except the two heavy beasts, and every creature that hears his voice will curse him. This is what God Almighty said: 'Those are the ones whom God curses and those who curse them' meaning the creatures of the earth." Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Sabah, on the authority of Aamer bin Muhammad, and Ata bin Abi Rabah said: Every creature, the jinn, and mankind. Mujahid said: When the earth becomes barren, the animals will say: This is because of the sinners of the sons of Adam. God cursed the sinners of the sons of Adam. Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, and Qatadah said: 'And those who curse them' meaning the angels and the believers curse them. It was mentioned in the hadith that everything seeks forgiveness for the scholar, even the whales in the sea. It was mentioned in this verse that the one who conceals knowledge will be cursed by God, the angels, and the people. They all, and the cursers as well, are all eloquent and foreign, either in the language of speech or the situation, that if he had a mind and on the Day of Resurrection, and God knows best. Then God the Most High excluded from these those who repented to Him, saying: Except for those who repent, amend, and make clear meaning, they returned from what they were doing, amended their actions, and made clear to the people what they were concealing. For them I will turn in forgiveness, and I am the Acceptor of Repentance, the Most Merciful. This indicates that the one who calls to disbelief or innovation, if he repents to God, God will turn in forgiveness for him. It has been reported that previous nations did not accept repentance from such people among them, but this is from the law of the Prophet of Repentance and the Prophet of Mercy, may the blessings and peace of God be upon him. Then God the Most High informed about those who disbelieved in Him and their condition continued until their death, that "upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of mankind, all together. They will abide therein" meaning in the curse that accompanies them until the Day of Resurrection, then the companionship, so they are in the fire of Hell, in which the punishment will not be lightened for them meaning it will not decrease from what they are in nor will they be reprieved meaning it will not change for them for a single hour or cease, rather it is continuous and permanent, so we seek refuge in God from that. Abu Al-Aaliyah and Qatada said that the unbeliever will be brought to the stand on the Day of Resurrection and God will curse him, then the angels will curse him, then all of the people will curse him.

Chapter There is no disagreement about the permissibility of cursing the infidels. Omar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, and the imams who came after him, cursed the infidels in the Qunut and other prayers. As for the specific infidel, a group of scholars have said that he should not be cursed because we do not know how God will seal him. Some of them used as evidence the verse, Indeed, those who disbelieve and die while they are disbelievers - upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of the people, all together. Another group said: Rather, it is permissible to curse the specific infidel. The jurist Abu Bakr ibn al-Arabi al-Maliki chose this view, but he used as evidence a hadith that is weak. Others used as evidence the words of the Prophet, peace be upon him, in the story of the one who was brought drunk and he was flogged. A man, may God curse him, said: How often he is brought. The Messenger of God, peace be upon him, said: Do not curse him, for he loves God and His Messenger. This indicates that whoever does not love God and His Messenger is cursed, and God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 161- And they died while they were disbelievers. This sentence is a circumstantial one, and it has been used as evidence that it is not permissible to curse a specific disbeliever, because his condition at the time of death is not known. This does not contradict what has been proven from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that he cursed a group of disbelievers specifically, because he knows through revelation what we do not know. It has been said that it is permissible to curse him based on the apparent state of affairs, just as it is permissible to fight him. His statement: Those are the ones upon whom is the curse of God etc., has been used as evidence that it is permissible to curse disbelievers in general. Al-Qurtubi said: There is no disagreement about that. He said: Cursing a disbeliever is not a way of deterring him from disbelief, rather it is a punishment for disbelief and showing the ugliness of his disbelief, whether the disbeliever was sane or insane. Some of the early Muslims said: There is no benefit in cursing those who have gone mad or died among them, neither as a punishment nor as a deterrent. He said: What is indicated by this statement is that the verse indicates that God, the angels and people are informing us of their curse, not as a command to do so. Ibn al-Arabi said: Cursing a specific sinner is not permissible by consensus, because it was narrated: "A person who had been drinking alcohol repeatedly was brought to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), and some of those present said: 'May God curse him, how much he drinks.' The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: 'Do not help the devil against your brother.'" The hadeeth is in Saheeh al-Bukhari and Muslim. As for his statement: and all of the people, it was said: This is on the Day of Resurrection. As for in this world, it is among the people, the Muslim and the disbeliever, and those who know about sins and their sins and those who do not know. So cursing him cannot be done by all of the people. It was said: In this world, and what is meant is that most of the people curse him, or everyone among them who knows about his sins.

161. Indeed, those who disbelieved and died while they were disbelievers - upon them is the curse of God and of the angels meaning the curse of the angels and of all mankind. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: This is on the Day of Resurrection. The disbeliever will be brought to a halt and God will curse him, then the angels will curse him, then the people will curse him. If it is said, then he said and all mankind, and the one who is cursed is one of the people, so how can he curse himself? It is said that he will curse himself on the Day of Resurrection. God the Most High said: And you will curse one another 25-Al-Ankabut. It is said that they will curse the wrongdoers and the disbelievers, and whoever curses the wrongdoers and the disbelievers while he is one of them has cursed himself.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

161- Indeed, those who disbelieved and died while they were disbelievers meaning, and those who did not repent from the concealers until they died, upon them is the curse of God and the angels and the people all together The curse from God has been established upon them, and whoever among His creation takes His curse into account. It was said, the first cursed them while they were alive, and this cursed them while they were dead. And it was read, and the angels and the people all together in apposition to the place of the name of God because it is the subject in meaning, like your saying, I liked the beating of Zaid and Amr, or the subject of an implied verb like and the angels curse them.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:162

Surat al-Baqarah 2:162

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement on the interpretation of the words of God Almighty: They will abide therein, their punishment will not be lightened, nor will they be reprieved. Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: What is the reason for the accusative of they will abide therein? It would be said: It is accusative as a state of the ha' and mim in upon them. That is because the meaning of His words: Upon them is the curse of God, those are cursed by God, the angels, and all of mankind, abiding therein. That is why whoever reads it like that reads it: Upon them is the curse of God, the angels, and all of mankind, as a directive to the meaning that I have described. That is because it was permissible in Arabic, so it is not permissible to read it, because it is contrary to the copies of the Muslims' Qur'an, and what the Muslims came with in terms of reading is widespread among them. It is not permissible to object to an anomalous statement, as its proof has been established by extensive transmission. As for the ha' and the alif in his statement: in it, they refer to the curse, and what is meant by the statement is: what the disbeliever has come to through the curse from God, His angels, and the people. And what he has come to through it is the fire of Hell. And he spoke about the curse, and what is meant by it is what the disbeliever has become, as we have explained from similar examples in what has passed before, as: I was told by Ammar, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah, abiding therein eternally, he says: abiding in Hell, in the curse. As for his statement: The punishment will not be lightened for them, it is report from God Almighty about the continuity of the punishment forever, without a time limit or lightening, as God Almighty said: "And those who disbelieve will have the fire of Hell. It will not be decreed for them to die, nor will its punishment be lightened for them" (Fatir 35:36), and as He said: Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins (An-Nisa': 56). As for his statement: nor will they be reprieved, it means: nor will they be reprieved with an excuse to apologize, as:

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah: nor will they be reprieved, meaning: they will not be reprieved so that they can make an excuse, like His statement: This is a Day on which they will not speak, nor will they be permitted to make an excuse (al-Mursalat 77:35-36).

There are three issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And they are disbelievers. The waw is the waw of state. Ibn al-Arabi said: Many of my sheikhs told me that it is not permissible to curse a specific disbeliever, because his state upon death is not known. And God the Almighty stipulated in this verse in the release of the curse: death upon disbelief. As for what was narrated from the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, that he cursed specific people from the disbelievers, that was only because he knew their end. Ibn al-Arabi said: What is correct in my opinion is that it is permissible to curse him based on his apparent state and the permissibility of killing and fighting him. And "it was narrated from the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, that he said: O God, Amr ibn al-Aas satirized me and he knew that I am not a poet, so curse him and satirize him as many times as he satirized me." So he cursed him, even though faith, religion, and Islam were his end. He concluded by saying: The number of times he satirized me, and he did not add anything to show justice and fairness. He added satire to God Almighty in the chapter on retribution without beginning with the description of that, as deceit, mockery, and trickery are added to it. Glory be to Him and He is far above what the wrongdoers say, far above.

I said: As for cursing the infidels as a whole without specifying them, there is no disagreement about that, because Malik narrated on the authority of Dawud ibn al-Husayn that he heard al-A'raj say: I never knew people except that they cursed the infidels in Ramadan. Our scholars said: It is the same whether they had a covenant with them or not, and it is not obligatory, but it is permissible for whoever does it, because of their denial of the truth and their enmity towards the religion and its people. Likewise, everyone who migrates with sins such as drinking alcohol and taking usury, and whoever among women imitates men and whoever among men imitates women, and other things that have been mentioned in the hadiths, he is cursed.

Second: Cursing an unbeliever is not a way to deter him from unbelief, but rather it is a punishment for unbelief and a demonstration of the ugliness of his unbelief, whether the unbeliever is dead or insane. Some of the early Muslims said: There is no benefit in cursing one of them who has gone mad or died, neither as a punishment nor as a deterrent, because he will not be affected by it.

The meaning of the verse in this sense is that people will curse him on the Day of Resurrection so that he will be affected by that and be harmed and his heart will be pained, and that will be a punishment for his disbelief, as God the Almighty said: Then on the Day of Resurrection some of you will disbelieve in others and curse others. This statement is indicated by the fact that the verse indicates the report from God the Almighty about cursing them, not the command. Ibn al-Arabi mentioned that cursing a specific sinner is not permissible by consensus, because "it was narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that a drunkard was brought to him repeatedly, and some of those who were present said: May God curse him, how often he is brought to him! The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do not be the help of Satan against your brother." So he gave him the sanctity of brotherhood, and this necessitates compassion, and this is an authentic hadith.

I said: It was narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim. Some scholars have mentioned a difference of opinion regarding cursing a specific sinner. He said: The Prophet (peace be upon him) said: Do not be the helper of Satan against your brother regarding Nu'ayman after the prescribed punishment was carried out on him. Whoever has the prescribed punishment carried out on him should not be cursed, and whoever has not been prescribed, his curse is valid, whether he was named or specified or not, because the Prophet (peace be upon him) only curses whoever is required to be cursed as long as he is in that state that requires cursing. If he repents from it, desists, and the prescribed punishment purifies him, then no curse is directed at him. This is explained by his (peace be upon him) saying:

If one of your female slaves commits adultery, let him flog her with the prescribed punishment and not rebuke her. This hadith, despite its authenticity, indicates that rebuke and cursing should only be done before the prescribed punishment is carried out and before repentance. And God Almighty knows best.

Ibn al-Arabi said: As for cursing the sinner absolutely, it is permissible by consensus, because it was narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

May God curse the thief who steals an egg and has his hand cut off.

Third: The Almighty's statement: Upon them is the curse of God and of the angels and of all mankind, meaning that they will be removed from His mercy. The root of curse is expulsion and banishment, as mentioned above. So the curse from the servants is expulsion, and from God is punishment. Al-Hasan al-Basri read al-Ankiyyah wa al-Nasun in the nominative case. Its interpretation is: Those, their reward is that God curses them, the angels curse them, and all mankind curses them, just as you say: I hated that Zaid, Amr, and Khalid stood up, because the meaning is: I hated that Zaid stood up. Al-Hasan's reading is contrary to the copies of the Qur'an.

If it is said: Not all people curse them because their people do not declare them, three answers have been given to this, the first of which is that the curse from most people is called the curse of people, giving precedence to the rule of the majority over the least. The second: Al-Suddi said: Everyone curses the oppressor, and if the disbeliever curses the oppressor, then he has cursed himself. The third: Abu Al-Aaliyah said: What is meant by it is on the Day of Resurrection, their people will curse them along with all people, as God the Almighty said: Then on the Day of Resurrection some of you will disbelieve in others and curse one another. Then God the Almighty said: They will abide therein meaning in the curse, that is, in its punishment. It was said: Their abiding in the curse is that it is perpetual upon them, nor will they be reprieved meaning they will not be delayed from the punishment for any time. And they will abide is in the accusative case as a state of the ha' and the mim in upon them, and the factor in it is the circumstance of His saying: upon them because it has the meaning of the curse being established.

Abu Al-Aaliyah said: They will not be given respite, so they will apologize, as God Almighty said: And they will not be permitted to make excuses 36-Al-Mursalat.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

162- They will abide therein meaning in the curse, or in the fire. The omission of it before mentioning it is to magnify its importance and to intimidate it, or to suffice with the indication of the curse upon it. The punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be reprieved meaning they will not be given respite, or they will not wait to apologize, or they will not be looked at with mercy.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:163

And your God is one God. There is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when they said, Describe your Lord to us, it was revealed: And your God, the One who deserves to be worshipped by you, is one God, who has no equal in His essence or in His attributes. There is no god but Him, He is the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful. And they asked for a sign for that, so it was revealed:

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the words of the Almighty: And your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful. Abu Ja'far said: We have previously explained the meaning of divinity, and that it is the worship of creation. So the meaning of His words: And your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful: The One who deserves obedience from you, O people, and requires worship from you, is one deity and one Lord, so do not worship other than Him, and do not associate anyone with Him, for the one you associate with Him in your worship of Him is a creation of your God, like you, and your God is one God, He has no likeness or peer. And there is disagreement regarding the meaning of His Oneness, may He be exalted. Some of them said: The meaning of the Oneness of God is the meaning of negating similarities and likenesses from Him, as it is said: So-and-so is one of the people - and he is one of his people, meaning by that that he has no likeness among the people, nor does he have a likeness or peer among his people. Likewise, the meaning of the statement God is One is that God has no equal or peer. They claimed that what indicated to them the correctness of their interpretation was that the statement of the speaker One can be understood to mean four things. One of them is that it is one of a kind, like a single human being. The second is that it is not separated, like a part that is not divided. The third is that it means likeness and agreement, like the statement of the speaker: These two things are one, meaning that they are similar, so that they became like one thing due to their similarity in meanings. The fourth is that it means negating the likeness and similarity from Him. They said: Since the three meanings of the meanings of One are negated from Him, the fourth meaning that we described is correct. Others said: The meaning of His Oneness, may He be exalted, is the meaning of His being alone from things, and the things being alone from Him. They said: He is only alone because He is not included in anything, nor is anything included in Him. They said: There is no validity in the statement of the speaker: One from all things except that. The proponents of this statement denied the four meanings stated by the others. As for His saying: There is no god but He, it is report from Him, the Most High, that there is no Lord of the worlds other than Him, and that He does not require the servants to worship anyone other than Him, and that everything other than Him is His creation, and it is obligatory upon all of them to obey Him and submit to His command, and to abandon the worship of anything other than Him of rivals and gods, and to abandon idols and statues. Because all of that is His creation, and upon all of them is the judgment of Him with His Oneness and Divinity, and divinity is not appropriate except for Him, since whatever blessings they have in this world are from Him, unlike what they worship of idols and associate with Him of association? And whatever blessings they will attain in the Hereafter are from Him, and that what they associate with Him of association does not harm or benefit in the immediate or the deferred, neither in this world nor in the Hereafter. This is a warning from God, the Most High, to the polytheists regarding their misguidance, and a call from Him for them to return from their disbelief and turn from their polytheism. Then the Almighty made them aware of His mention in the verse that follows it, the place where the wise among them would prove the truth of what He alerted them to regarding His Oneness and His clear arguments that cut off their excuse. So the Almighty said: O polytheists, if you are ignorant or doubt the truth of what I have informed you of al-Naba 78: that your God is one God, without what you claim as His divinity of rivals and idols, then ponder My arguments and think about them, for among My arguments is the creation of the heavens and the earth, and the alternation of night and day, and the ships that sail in the sea with what benefits people, and what I sent down from the sky of water by which I revived the earth after its death, and what I spread in it of every creature, and the clouds that I have subjected between the sky and the earth. If what you worship of idols, gods, rivals, and all that you associate with Him, if it all comes together and appears or some of it is isolated without others, is able to create the like of something of My creation that I have named for you, then you have an excuse for your worship of what you worship besides Me. Otherwise, you have no excuse for taking a god other than Me, and there is no god for you and for what you worship other than Me. So let those with understanding ponder the brevity of God's argument against all the people of disbelief in Him and the atheists in His Oneness, in this verse and the one after it, with the most concise speech, the most eloquent argument, and the most subtle meaning that will lead them to know the excellence of God's wisdom and His explanation.

There are two issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And your God is one God. When the Almighty warned against concealing the truth, He made clear that the first thing that must be revealed and cannot be concealed is the matter of monotheism. He connected that with mentioning the proof and teaching the way of contemplation, which is thinking about the wonders of creation, so that one may know that it must have a doer who is not like anything. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The infidels of Quraysh said: O Muhammad, describe to us your Lord. So God Almighty revealed Surat Al-Ikhlâs and this verse. The polytheists had three hundred and sixty idols, so God made clear that He is One.

Second: The Almighty's saying: There is no god but He is negation and affirmation. The first is disbelief and the last is faith, and its meaning is there is no god but God. It was narrated on the authority of Al-Shibli, may God have mercy on him, that he used to say: God, and not say: There is no god. So he was asked about that and he said: I fear that I will start with a word of denial and not reach a word of acknowledgment.

I said: This is one of their subtle sciences, which has no reality. God, the Most High, mentioned this meaning in His Book, denying and affirming it, and repeated it, and promised a great reward to the one who says it on the tongue of His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. It was reported by Al-Muwatta', Al-Bukhari, Muslim, and others. And he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever's last words are 'There is no god but God' will enter Paradise. Narrated by Muslim. What is meant is the heart, not the tongue. If he said 'There is no god' and died with his belief and conscience being Oneness and the attributes that are due to Him, then he would be among the people of Paradise according to the consensus of the people of Sunnah. We have already discussed the meaning of His name, 'The One', 'There is no god but Him', and 'The Most Gracious, the Most Merciful' in the Most Sublime Book, in the explanation of the beautiful names of God. Praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty informs us about His uniqueness in divinity, that He has no partner or equal, rather He is God, the One, the Unique, the Self-Sufficient, there is no god but Him, and that He is the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful. The explanation of these two names has been presented at the beginning of Al-Fatihah, and in the hadith on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab on the authority of Asma bint Yazid bin Al-Sakn on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, "The greatest name of God is in these two verses: 'And your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful' and 'Alif, Lam, Meem. God - there is no god but He, the Ever-Living, the Self-Sustaining.'" Then he mentioned the evidence of His uniqueness in divinity by creating the heavens and the earth and what is in them and what is between them of the creatures that He created and originated, indicating His oneness, so He said:

Fath al-Qadir

The interpretation of 163- The Most Gracious, the Most Merciful has been presented. His statement: And your God is one God contains guidance to monotheism and severing ties of polytheism, and an indication that the first thing that must be made clear and that it is forbidden to conceal is the matter of monotheism.

Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Muadh bin Jabal, the brother of Banu Salamah, Saad bin Muadh, the brother of Banu Al-Ashhal, and Kharijah bin Zaid, the brother of Banu Al-Harith bin Al-Khazraj, asked a group of Jewish rabbis about some of what was in the Torah, but they concealed it from them and refused to tell them. So God revealed about them: Indeed, those who conceal what We have revealed (al-Baqarah 2:17). It was narrated on the authority of a group of the Salaf that the verse was revealed about the People of the Book because they concealed the prophethood of our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Majah, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Bara' bin Aziz that he said: "We were in a funeral procession with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: 'The unbeliever will be struck between his eyes and every beast of the two heavy burdens will hear him, and every beast that hears his voice will curse him. This is what God, the Most High, said: "And the cursers will curse them" (al-Baqarah 2:17) meaning the beasts of the earth. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Ata' that he said: The jinn, mankind and every beast. Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Abu Nu'aym in al-Hilyah, and al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab al-Iman narrated in their interpretation of the verse: "The beasts of the earth, scorpions, and beetles say: 'We were prevented from rain because of their sins,' so they curse them." Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Ikrimah. Abd ibn Humayd narrated from Abu Ja'far who said: Everything curses them, even the beetle. Many hadiths have been narrated about the prohibition of concealing knowledge and the threat to the one who does so. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated from Qatadah regarding the statement of God, Except those who repent and amend, he said: They amended what was between them and God, and made clear what came to them from God and did not conceal it or deny it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Sa'id ibn Jubayr regarding the statement of God, I will forgive them, meaning I will pardon them. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu al-'Aliyah who said: The disbeliever will be brought to the Day of Resurrection and God will curse him, then the angels will curse him, then all the people will curse him. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada who said: He means by all people the believers. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding His statement: They will abide therein forever meaning: They will abide in Hell in the curse. He said regarding His statement: Nor will they be reprieved meaning: Will they not be reprieved so that they can apologize. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: Nor will they be reprieved he said: They will not be delayed. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, Al-Darimi, Al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, and Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Asma bint

Yazid bin Al-Sakn from the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) that he said: "The greatest name of God is in these two verses: 'And your God is one God; there is no god except Him, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful' and 'Alif, Lam, Meem. God - there is no god except Him, the Ever-Living, the Sustainer of [all] existence.'" Al-Daylami narrated on the authority of Anas that the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: "There is nothing more difficult for the rebellious jinn than these verses in Surat al-Baqarah 2: 'And your God is one God' and the two verses."

163. The Almighty said: "And your God is one God. There is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful." The reason for the revelation of this verse is that the infidels of Quraysh said, O Muhammad, describe to us your Lord and His lineage. So God Almighty revealed this verse and Surat Al-Ikhlās and the One who has no peer and no partner.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Al-Sam'ani told us, Abu Ja'far Al-Rayyani told us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh told us, Bakr bin Ibrahim and Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Ubaidullah bin Abi Ziyad, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, on the authority of Asma bint Yazid, that she said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "In these two verses is the greatest name of God: 'Your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful' and 'God; there is no god but He, the Ever-Living, the Self-Sustaining.'"

Abu Al-Dhaha said: When this verse was revealed, the polytheists said: Muhammad says that your God is one God, so let him bring us a sign if he is truthful.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

163- And your God is one God is a general address, meaning the one among you who deserves to be worshipped is one, with no partner who can be worshipped or called a god. There is no god but He is a confirmation of oneness, and a way to remove the notion that there is a god in existence but who does not deserve to be worshipped. The Most Gracious, the Most Merciful is like an argument against it, because since He is the Master of all blessings, their origins and branches, and everything else is either a blessing or a benefactor, no one else deserves to be worshipped except Him. These are two other pieces of report for His saying your God, or for an omitted subject. It was said that when the polytheists heard it, they were amazed and said: If you are truthful, then bring us a sign by which we will know your truthfulness. So it was revealed.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:164

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people and what Allah sends down from the sky of water and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness and disperses therein every kind of moving creature and the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who They understand

Surat al-Baqarah 2:164

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people and what God sends down from the sky of water and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness and disperses therein every kind of moving creature and the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who They understand

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and what is in them of wonders and the alternation of the night and the day with their coming and going, increase and decrease and the ships the ships that sail upon the sea and do not settle, being heavy with that which benefits people of trade and transportation and what God sends down from the sky of water rain and revives thereby the earth with vegetation after its lifelessness its dryness and disperses separates and spreads thereby therein every kind of moving creature because they grow due to the fertility that comes from it and the directing of the winds their turning south and north, hot and cold and the clouds the clouds controlled subdued by the command of God the Most High, moving to wherever God wills between the heaven and the earth without any connection are signs indicating His Oneness the Most High for a people who reason who reflect.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty's saying: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, the verse. Saeed bin Mansour narrated in his Sunan, Al-Faryabi in his Tafsir, and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab Al-Iman on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, who said: When the verse And your God is one God, there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful was revealed, the polytheists were amazed and said: One God, if he is truthful, then let him bring us a sign. So God revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, up to His saying, For a people who reason. I said: This is problematic, but it has a witness.

Ibn Abi Hatim and Abu Al-Sheikh narrated in the Book of Al-Azmah on the authority of Ata' who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, descended in Medina and said: And your God is one God, there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful. The infidels of Quraysh in Mecca said: How can one God be sufficient for people? So God revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth until His saying: For a people who understand. And Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated through a good, connected chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Quraysh said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Pray to God to make for us As-Safa gold by which we may gain strength against our enemy. So God revealed to him: I will give them, but if they disbelieve after that, I will punish them with a punishment such as I have not punished anyone in the worlds. So he said: My Lord, leave me and my people so that I may call upon them day by day. So God revealed this verse: "Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day. And how do they ask You for As-Safa while they see signs that are greater?"

The statement on the meaning for which God revealed to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, His saying: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day the verse. Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed on the reason for which God, the Most High, revealed this verse to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Some of them said: He revealed it to him as an argument for him against the polytheists who worshipped idols. That is because when God, the Most High, revealed to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, "And your God is one God. There is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful," he recited that to his companions, and the polytheists who worshipped idols heard it. The polytheists said: What is the argument and proof that this is so, while we deny it, and we claim that we have many gods? So God revealed at that time: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, as an argument for His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, against those who said what we mentioned about them. Mention of those who said that:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', he said: The verse was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Medina: And your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful. The infidels of Quraysh in Mecca said: How can one God be enough for the people? So God, the Most High, revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day, until His saying: are signs for a people who reason. By this you know that He is one God, and that He is the God of all things, and the Creator of all things. Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because the polytheists asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, for a sign, so God revealed this verse, teaching them that in the creation of the heavens and the earth and all that was mentioned, they have a clear sign of the Oneness of God, and that He has no partner in His kingdom, for whoever understands and ponders that with correct understanding. Those who said that: Sufyan ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Ad-Dahha, he said: When the verse, And your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful was revealed, the polytheists said: If this is how it is, then let him bring us a sign! So God, the Most High, revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day 10:1. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq ibn Al-Hajjaj told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, he said, Saeed ibn Masruq told me, on the authority of Abu Ad-Dahha, he said: When the verse, And your God is one God; there is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful was revealed, the polytheists said: If this is how it is, then let him bring us a sign! So God, the Most High, revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day 10:1. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq bin Al-Hajjaj told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, he said, Sa'id bin Masruq told me, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, he said: When this verse was revealed, the polytheists were amazed and said: You say that your God is one God! Then bring us a sign, if you are of the truthful! So God revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day (al-Baqarah 2:17). Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Al-Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of 'Ata' bin Abi Rabah that the polytheists said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Show us a sign! So this verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth (al-Baqarah 2:17). Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Ya'qub Al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Ja'far, on the authority of Sa'id, he said, the Quraysh asked the Jews and said: Tell us about the signs that Moses brought to you! So they told them about the staff and his white hand for the onlookers. They asked the Christians about the signs that Jesus had brought them. They told them that he healed the blind and the lepers and brought the dead back to life by God's permission. Then the Quraysh said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Ask God to turn Safa into gold for us, so that we may increase our certainty and gain strength against our enemy. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked his Lord, and He revealed to him: I will give them, so turn Safa into gold for them, but if they lie, I will punish them with a punishment that I have not punished anyone in the worlds with. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Leave me and my people, so that I may call them day by day. Then God revealed to him: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth - the verse: Indeed in that is a sign for them, if they only want me to make for them Safa gold. So God created the heavens and the earth and the alternation of night and day, which is greater than that I make for them Safa gold, so that they may increase in certainty.

Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of night and day - the polytheists said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Change Safa into gold for us, if you are truthful that it is from it! God said: Indeed in these signs are signs for a people who understand. And He said: People before you asked for signs, then they became disbelievers because of them. Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in that is that God, the Most High, reminded His servants - to the evidence of His Oneness and His uniqueness in divinity, without all other things - with this verse. It is possible that it was revealed in what Ata' said, and it is possible that it was in what Saeed bin Jubair and Abu Ad-Dhaha said, and we do not have any report that the statement of one of the two groups is correct, which would cut off the excuse, so it is permissible for one of the two groups to rule that the statement of one of the two groups is correct over the other. Whichever of the two statements is correct, the meaning of the verse is what I said. Statement on the interpretation of the words of God the Most High: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth Abu Ja'far said: God the Most High means by His words: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, that is, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and their origination. The meaning of God's creation of things is His origination and bringing them into existence after they did not exist. We have previously indicated the meaning for which it was said: the earth, and it was not gathered as the heavens were gathered, so that makes it unnecessary to repeat it. If someone were to say to us: Do the heavens and the earth have a creation other than themselves, then it is said: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth? It is said: There is a difference of opinion on that. Some people said: They have a creation other than themselves. They based their argument on this verse and on what is in Surat al-Kahf 18: I did not make them witness the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor the creation of themselves (al-Kahf 18:1). They said: God did not create anything except that God wanted it. They said: So things were by the will of God, and the will created them. Others said: The creation of a thing is an attribute of it, not it, nor is it other than it. They said: If it were other than it, it would be necessary for it to be described like it. They said: If it were possible for its creation to be other than it, and for it to be described, it would be necessary for it to have an attribute that is its creation. If that were necessary, there would be no end to that. They said: So it is known from that that it is an attribute of the thing. They said: So the creation of the heavens and the earth is an attribute of them, as we have described. They also based their argument on the Book of God - that the thing has a creation that is not it - in the same way that the first ones based their argument. Others said: The creation of the heavens and the earth, and the creation of every creature, is that thing itself, not something else. So the meaning of His statement: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth is: Indeed, in the heavens and the earth.

Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: And the alternation of the night and the day, the succession of night and day upon you, O people. The difference in this place is the causative, from each one

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people and what Allah sends down from the sky of water and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness and disperses therein every kind of moving creature and the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who They understand succeeding the other, as the Almighty said: And it is He who has made the night and the day in succession for whoever desires to remember or desires to be grateful. (al-Furqan 25:62). Meaning: that each one of them succeeds the other, if the night goes, the day comes after it, and if the day goes, the night comes after it. From that it was said: So-and-so succeeded so-and-so in his family with evil, and from that is the saying of Zuhair:

The spring and the Aram walk behind it, and its young ones rise from every perch.

As for night, it is the plural of night, similar to date, which is the plural of date. It may also be pluralized as nights, and they add to the plural what was not in the singular. Their addition of the ya in that is similar to their addition of it in four-letter, eight-letter, and disliked letters. As for day, the Arabs hardly use it in the plural, because it is like light. It has been heard in its plural as river.

The poet said:

If it weren't for Tharidan, we would have perished from hunger. Tharid at night and Tharid by the river.

If it was said in a small group that it is rivers, it would be an analogy.

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means: In the ships that sail through the sea. The ship is the ships, its singular and plural are the same word, and it is masculine and feminine, as the Almighty said in His masculine in another verse: And a sign for them is that We carried their offspring in the laden ship. (Ya-Sin 36:41) So He mentioned it. And He said in this verse: And the ships that sail through the sea, and it is a ship because when it sails, it is running, so the description is added to it that which is its. As for His saying: With that which benefits people, its meaning is: It benefits people in the sea. The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And what God has sent down from the sky of water, and revived thereby the earth after its lifelessness. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: And what God has sent down from the sky of water, and in what God has sent down

From the sky from water, which is the rain that God sends down from the sky.

And His saying: And He revived thereby the earth after its death, and reviving it is its cultivation and the production of its vegetation. The ha in bih refers to the water, and the ha and the alif in His saying: after its death refer to the earth. And the death of the earth is its devastation, and the disappearance of its cultivation, and the cessation of its vegetation, which is sustenance for the servants and provisions for the people. The statement in the interpretation of the saying of the Most High: And dispersed therein of every kind of creature, Abu Ja'far said: The Most High meant by His saying: And dispersed therein of every kind of creature, and that among what He dispersed in the earth is a creature. And the meaning of His saying: And dispersed therein, and the difference in it, from the saying of the one who says: The prince dispersed his troops, meaning:

Differences. The ha and the alif in his saying: in it, refer back to the earth. And the beast, the agent, from the saying of the speaker: The beast crawled crawling, so it is a beast. And the beast, is the name for every living thing that is not a bird with wings, for its crawling on the earth. Statement on the interpretation of the saying of God Almighty: And the changing of the winds Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by his saying: And the changing of the winds, and in his changing of the winds, so he omitted the mention of the agent and added the verb to the object, as you say: I like your honoring your brother, meaning: your honoring your brother. God's changing of it, is that He sends it once as a fertile woman, and once He makes it barren, and He sends it as a torment that destroys everything by the command of its Lord, as:

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And the changing of the winds and the clouds controlled, he said: God, our Lord, is able to do that. If He wills, He makes it a mercy that fertilizes the clouds and spreads it before His mercy, and if He wills, He makes it a torment, a barren wind that does not fertilize. It is only a torment upon the one upon whom it is sent. Some Arabists claimed that the meaning of his statement: And the changing of the winds is that they come sometimes south and north, coming and going. Then he said: That is their changing. This description with which he described the winds is a description of their changing, not a description of their changing, because their changing is God's changing of them, and their changing is the difference in their blowing. It may be possible that the meaning of his statement: And the changing of the winds is God's changing of the blowing of the wind with its different winds. The statement in the interpretation of the statement of God Almighty: And the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who understand. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by his statement: And the clouds controlled, and in clouds, the plural of cloud. This is indicated by the statement of the Most High: And He creates the heavy clouds (13:12). He made the subject singular and mentioned it, just as they said: This is a date and this is a large collection of dates, this is a palm tree and this is a palm tree. The clouds are called clouds, God willing, because some of them drag and pull others, like the saying of the speaker: So-and-so passed by dragging his tail, meaning: he dragged it. As for the meaning of

His statement: for signs, then they are signs and indications that the Creator of that, His hand and its Originator, is one God. for a people who understand, for those who understand the places of the arguments and understand from God His evidence of His Oneness. So, the Most High informed His servants that the evidence and arguments were only established for those with reason and discernment, and not for others among creation, since they are the ones who are specifically given commands and prohibitions, and are charged with obedience and worship, and they are the ones who will be rewarded and punished. If someone were to say: How can He use His statement, Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day 7:13, as evidence against the unbelievers regarding the Oneness of God? And you know that some types of unbelievers deny that the heavens and the earth and everything else mentioned in this verse were created?

It was said: The denial of those who denied that does not prevent everything that God Almighty mentioned in this verse from being evidence of his Creator and Maker, and that he has a Manager who is not like [anything], and a Maker who has no equal. And even if that is the case, God only argued with that people who acknowledged that God is their Creator, but they associated in His worship the worship of idols and statues. So God Almighty argued with them and said - when they denied His statement: And your God is one God, and claimed that He had partners among the gods - [Indeed, your God is He who created the heavens and caused the sun and the moon to run in them for you with your provisions, constantly continuing in their course. This is the meaning of the alternation of night and day in the sun and moon. This is the meaning of His statement: And the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people. And He sent down to you rain from the sky, thereby making your sides fertile after their drought, and making them fertile after their destruction, and refreshing you with it after your despair. This is the meaning of His statement: And what God sends down from the sky of water, thereby reviving the earth after its lifelessness. And He subjected to you the livestock in which there are foods and meals for you, and among them are camels and mounts, and among them are furniture and clothing. This is the meaning of His statement: And He dispersed therein of every kind of moving creature. And He sent to you the winds to fertilize your trees for your fruits and your food and your provisions, and He made the clouds move for you whose rain is your life and the life of your livestock and your cattle. This is the meaning of His statement: And the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the sky and the earth. So He informed them that their God is God who bestowed these blessings upon them, and He singled them out for them. Then he said: Is there among your partners someone who does any of that, so that you associate him with Me in your worship, and make him a rival and equal to Me? If there is none among your partners who does any of that, then in the blessings that I have enumerated for you, and the hands that I have singled out for you, there are proofs for you, if you understand, of the positions of truth and falsehood, injustice and fairness. That is because I am unique to you in my benevolence towards you, unlike anyone else, and you make rivals to Me in your worship of Me. This is the meaning of the verse. And those who are mentioned in this verse and who are used as evidence against it, are the people whose description has been described, not the Mu'attilah and the Dahriyah, although in the smallest of what God has enumerated in this verse, of the conclusive arguments, convincing to all of mankind, we have left out explaining it, disliking to prolong the book by mentioning it.

It has four issues:

First: Ata' said: When the verse And your God is one God was revealed, the infidels of Quraysh said: How can one God be enough for the people! So the verse Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth was revealed. Sufyan narrated it on the authority of his father on the authority of Abu Ad-Dahha who said: When the verse And your God is one God was revealed, they said: Is there any proof for that? So God the Most High revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth It was as if they were seeking a sign, so He showed them the proof of monotheism, and that this world and wondrous construction must have a Creator and a Maker. He gathered the heavens together because they are different kinds, each heaven being of a different kind than the other. And He made the earth unified because it is all dust, and God the Most High knows best.

The sign of the heavens: their elevation without pillars beneath them or connections above them, this indicates power and a breach of custom. If a prophet had come and challenged a mountain to stand in the air without a connection, it would have been a miracle. Then what is in them of the sun, the moon, the moving stars, and the shining planets, rising and setting, bright and obliterated, is a second sign.

The sign of the earth: its seas, rivers, minerals, trees, plains and rugged areas.

The second: The Almighty's saying: And the alternation of the night and the day. It was said: Their alternation is in the approach of one and the retreat of the other from where he does not know. It was also said: Their alternation is in the descriptions of light and darkness, length and shortness. Night is the plural of night, like tiger and date and palm tree and bee. It is also pluralized as nights and nights with the same meaning, and it is one of the exceptions to the standard of plurals, like similarity and similarity and need and needs and remembrance and memories, and it is as if nights in the standard is the plural of night. And they used that in poetry. He said:

Every day and every night

Another said:

Every day has its own special nights, until every person who sees it says,

Oh, what a miserable camel he is!

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:164

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people and what Allah sends down from the sky of water and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness and disperses therein every kind of moving creature and the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who They understand

Ibn Faris said in Al-Mujmal: It is said that some birds are called Laila, but I do not know it. The word day is the plural of river and rivers. Ahmad bin Yahya Tha'lab said: River is the plural of river, which is the plural of day. It was said that day is a singular noun that is not pluralized because it means a source, like light, which applies to both little and much. The first, the poet said:

If it weren't for Tharidan, we would have perished from hunger. Tharid at night and Tharid by the river.

Ibn Faris said: The day is well-known, and the plural is river and rivers. It is said that the day is pluralized as river. Day is the light between sunrise and sunset. A man of the river is a person of the day. It is said that the day is the chick of the bustard. Al-Nadr ibn Shumayl said: The beginning of the day is sunrise, and what comes before that is not counted from the day. Tha'lab said: The beginning of the day among the Arabs is sunrise, and he cited as evidence the statement of Umayyah ibn Abi al-Salt.

And the sun rises every last night red, its color turning rosy

And he recited the words of Adi bin Zaid:

And He made the sun a place of refuge, between which there is no concealment, and between the day and the night He has separated them.

Al-Kisa'i recited:

If the sun rises during the day, it is a sign of my greetings to you, so greet me.

Al-Zajjaj said in the Book of Meteors: The beginning of the day is the peak of the sun. Ibn al-Anbari divided time into three parts: a part he made pure night, which is from sunset to sunrise. A part he made pure day, which is from sunrise to sunset. A part he made shared between day and night, which is between sunrise and sunset, due to the remnants of the darkness of the night and the exchange of light of the day.

I said: The correct view is that the day is from sunrise to sunset, as narrated by Ibn Faris in Al-Mujmal, and is indicated by what is proven in Sahih Muslim, "On the authority of Adi bin Hatim, who said: When the verse was revealed: 'Until the white thread of dawn becomes distinct to you from the black thread,' Adi said to him: O Messenger of God, I put two ropes under my pillow: a white rope and a black rope, by which I can tell night from day. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Your pillow is wide, for it is only the blackness of the night and the whiteness of the day." This hadith dictates that the day is from sunrise to sunset, and this is what is required by jurisprudence in oaths, and rulings are connected to it. So whoever swears not to speak to someone during the day and then speaks to him before sunrise, he has broken his oath, but according to the first view, he does not break his oath. The statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is the decisive factor in that and the ruling. As for the apparent meaning of the curse and its being taken from the Sunnah, it is from the time of dawn when the time of day is wide, as he said:

I held her in my hand and opened her rupture, and what was behind her could be seen.

Hudhayfah has reported evidence for this statement, as reported by Al-Nasa'i. It will come in the verses on fasting, God willing.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And the ships that sail through the sea. The word al-Falak means ships. Its singular and plural are the same, and it is masculine and feminine. The vowels in the singular are not the same as in the plural, but it is as if He built the plural with another construction, as indicated by the dual in their saying: Falakana. The singular al-Falak is masculine. The Almighty said: In the laden ship, so He made it masculine. He said: And the ships that sail through the sea, so He made it feminine. It is possible for it to be singular or plural. He said: Until, when you were in the ship and they sailed with them with a good wind, so He made it plural. It is as if He is taking it, if it is singular, to the boat, so it is masculine, and to the ship, so it is feminine. It was said: The singular is al-Falak, like asad and asad, and khashab and khashab, and its origin is from dawwar, and from it: falak al-samaa on which the stars revolve. The young woman's breast is round, and from it is falaka, the spindle. The ship was called al-Falak because it revolves in the water with the easiest rotation. The meaning of the verse in the ark is that God subjected it so that it would float on the surface of the water and stop on it despite its weight. The first person to make it was Noah, peace be upon him, as God Almighty has informed us. Gabriel said to him: Make it on the crown of a bird. So Noah, peace be upon him, made it as an inheritance in the worlds, as Gabriel showed him: The ark is an inverted bird, and the water at its bottom is like the air at its top, as Ibn al-Arabi said.

Fourth: This verse and others like it are evidence of the permissibility of sailing in general, whether for trade or worship, such as Hajj and Jihad. From the Sunnah is the hadith of Abu Hurairah, who said:

A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, we ride the sea and carry with us a little water. Hadith.

The hadith of Anas bin Malik in the story of Umm Haram, both of them were narrated by the Imams: Malik and others. The hadith of Anas was narrated by a group from him from Ishaq bin Abdullah bin Abi Talhah from Anas, and it was narrated by Bishr bin Omar from Malik from Ishaq from Anas from Umm Haram, and he included it in the Musnad of Umm

Haram, not from the Musnad of Anas. This is how Bandar Muhammad bin Bashir narrated it from him, so it is clear evidence for riding the sea in jihad for men and women, and if riding it for jihad is permissible, then riding it for the obligatory Hajj is more appropriate and obligatory. It was narrated from Omar bin Al-Khattab and Omar bin Abdul Aziz, may God be pleased with them, that it is forbidden to ride it. The Qur'an and Sunnah refute this statement, and if riding it was disliked or not permissible, the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, would have forbidden it to those who said to him: We ride the sea. This verse and others like it are clear on the purpose and to it is the resort. What was narrated from the two Omars in this regard may be interpreted as meaning that it is carried on caution and refraining from deceiving the soul in seeking the world and acquiring more of it, but not in performing the obligatory duties. What indicates the permissibility of riding it in terms of meaning is that God Almighty made the sea in the middle of the earth and made creation in the two sides, and divided the benefits between the two sides so that they cannot be brought except by splitting the sea for it, so God made its path easy with His help, said Ibn al-Arabi. Abu Omar said: Malik disliked for women to ride by sea for Hajj, and it is for jihad, so he disliked it. The Qur'an and Sunnah refute his statement, except that some of our companions from Basra said: Malik disliked it because the ships in Hijaz are small, and women are not able to cover themselves when relieving themselves in them due to their narrowness and the crowding of people in them, and the road from Madinah to Mecca by land is possible, so Malik disliked it. As for large ships like the ships of the people of Basra, there is nothing wrong with that. He said: The basic principle is that Hajj is for every free adult who can find a way to it, whether they are women or men, if the majority of the way is safe, and it does not specify a sea over a land route.

I said: The Book, the Sunnah and the meaning indicate that riding it is permissible for both purposes: worship and trade. This is the proof and the example. However, people differ in their circumstances when it comes to riding the sea. There may be a rider who finds it easy and not difficult, and another who finds it difficult and weak, like the one who is overloaded with food, or the one who is unable to perform the obligatory prayer and other obligatory duties with it. The first one is permitted to do so, and the second one is forbidden and prevented from doing so. There is no disagreement among the scholars regarding riding the sea, and it is:

Fifth: If the sea is rough, it is not permissible for anyone to ride it under any circumstances, during the time of its roughness, nor at a time when safety is most likely. Rather, it is permissible for them to ride it at a time when safety is most likely. Those who ride it at a time of safety and are saved have no one to stop them, and those who perish in it are stopped.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: That which benefits people meaning that which benefits them from trade and other interests that improve their conditions. And by sailing the sea, profits are earned, and the one who carries the goods to it also benefits. Some of those who have criticized the religion have said: God Almighty says in your book: We have neglected nothing in the Book. So where is the mention of spices that improve food, such as salt, pepper, and other things? So it was said to him regarding His saying: That which benefits people.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: And what God sends down from the sky of water, meaning by this the rains that revive the world and produce plants and provisions, and He made it stored and used for benefit at a time other than its time of descent, as the Almighty said: And We settled it in the earth.

Eighth: The Almighty's saying: And He has scattered therein every kind of moving creature, meaning He has scattered and dispersed it. From this comes the word like scattered moths. A moving creature gathers animals for it. Some people have mentioned birds, but this is rejected. God Almighty said: And there is no creature on earth but that upon God is its provision, for the bird crawls on its feet in some cases. Al-A'sha said:

The crawling of the sand cat in every watering place

Alqamah bin Abdah said:

Its thunderbolts make their birds crawl

Ninth: The Almighty's saying: And the changing of the winds. Its changing: sending them barren and fertilizing, and rain and victory and destruction, and hot and cold, and gentle and stormy. It was said: Its changing: sending them south and north, and wasps and downpours, and calamities, and they come between the blows of two winds. It was said: Its changing: that the large ships come according to what they can carry, and the small ones as well, and what harms them is diverted from them, and no consideration is given to the size of the castles or their smallness, because if the wind came as one body, it would hit the castles and sink them. The winds are the plural of wind, and it was named thus because it usually brings the soul. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

"The wind is from the spirit of God. It brings mercy and it brings torment. So when you see it, do not curse it. Ask God for its good and seek refuge in God from its evil." It was also included by Ibn Majah in his Sunan. Abu Bakr Ibn Abi Shaybah told us. Yahya Ibn Saeed told us, on the authority of Al-Awza'i, on the authority of Al-Zuhri. Thabit Al-Zarqi told us, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Do not curse the wind, for it is from the spirit of God and brings mercy and torment. Rather, ask God for its good and seek refuge in God from its evil." It was narrated that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not curse the wind, for it is from the breath of the Most Gracious. The meaning is that God Almighty has made it a means of relief, relaxation, relaxation, and addition through action. The meaning is that God Almighty has made it thus. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said:

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people and what Allah sends down from the sky of water and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness and disperses therein every kind of moving creature and the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who They understand

I was aided by the north wind and destroyed by the south wind. This is the meaning of what came in the hadith that God, the Most High, relieved his Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the wind on the day of the Confederates, as God, the Most High, said: So We sent against them a wind and soldiers you did not see. It is said that God relieved someone of a worldly distress, meaning He relieved him. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him:

Whoever relieves a Muslim of a worldly distress, God will relieve him of a distress on the Day of Resurrection. That is, He will relieve him. The poet said:

As if the morning breeze is a wind that, when it blows on a worried heart, reveals its worries.

Ibn al-A'rabi said: The breeze is the first blowing of the wind. The root of wind is ruh, and for this reason the plural of paucity is called arwah, and it is not said ariyyah, because it is one of the words with the letter waw. Rather, it is said riyyah because of the abundance and the desire to make the letter ya consistent with it. In the Mushaf of Hafsa and the derivation of arwah.

Tenth: The Almighty's saying: And the direction of the winds. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read al-rih in the singular, and so it is in Al-A'raf, Al-Kahf, Ibrahim, An-Naml, Ar-Rum, Fatir, Ash-Shura, and Al-Jathiyah. There is no disagreement between them on that. Ibn Kathir agreed with them in Al-A'raf, An-Naml, Ar-Rum, Fatir, and Ash-Shura. Hamzah isolated al-rihah wa as-sahab. Ibn Kathir isolated and He is the One Who sent the winds in Al-Furqan. The rest read it in the plural in all of them except for Ibrahim and Ash-Shura. Only Nafi' read them in the plural, and the seven did not differ on anything other than these places. What we mentioned in Ar-Rum is the second God who sends the winds. There is no disagreement between them on the winds are good tidings. Abu Ja'far Yazid ibn Al-Qa'qa' used to pluralize the winds if they had an alif and lam in them throughout the Qur'an, except for tahwu bih al-rih and ar-rih al-aqim. If it did not have an alif and lam, he would singularize it. Whoever used the singular of al-rih did so because it is a generic noun that indicates little or much. And whoever combined it, it is because of the different directions from which the winds blow. And whoever combined it with mercy and made it singular with torment, he did so based on the majority in the Qur'an, such as: the winds are good tidings and the barren wind. So it came in the Qur'an combined with mercy and singular with torment, except in Yunus, in His statement: And they sailed with them with a good wind. And it was narrated:

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say when the wind blew: 'O God, make it a wind and do not make it a wind.'" This is because the wind of torment is strong and its parts are joined together as if it were a single body, while the wind of mercy is gentle and intermittent, and therefore it is a wind. It was singled out with the ark in Yunus, because the wind that moves the ships is only one continuous wind, then it was described as pleasant, so the similarity between it and the wind of torment was removed.

Eleventh: The scholars said that the wind moves the air, and it may be strong or weak. If the air movement appears from the direction of the qiblah going in the direction of the qiblah, that wind is called the saba. If the air movement appears from behind the qiblah and is going in the direction of the qiblah, that wind is called the dabur. If the air movement appears to be to the right of the qiblah going to its left, it is called the south wind. If the air movement appears to be to the left of the qiblah going to its right, it is called the north wind. Each of these winds has a nature, so its benefit is according to its nature. The saba wind is hot and dry, the dabur wind is cold and humid, the south wind is hot and humid, and the north wind is cold and dry. The differences in their natures are like the differences in the natures of the seasons of the year. God Almighty has set four seasons for time, which are based on the change in the conditions of the air. He made spring, which is the first of the seasons, hot and humid, and arranged the generations in it, so the waters descend in it, the earth produces its flowers and its plants appear, and people begin to plant trees and many crops, and animals reproduce in it and milk increases. When spring ends, it is followed by summer, which is similar to spring in one of its natures, which is heat, and different from it in the other, which is humidity, because the air in summer is hot and dry, so the fruits ripen and the grains planted in spring dry up. When summer ends, it is followed by autumn, which is similar to summer in one of its two natures, which is dryness, and different from it in the other, which is heat, because the air in autumn is hot and dry, so the fruits reach their peak of ripeness and dry up and become stored, so the fruits are picked, the grapes are harvested and the trees are emptied of their harvest. When autumn ends, winter follows it, which is compatible with autumn in one of its two natures, which is coldness, and different from it in the other, which is dryness, because the air in winter is cold and mixed, so rain and snow increase and the ground is smoothed like a resting body, so it does not move unless God Almighty restores to it the heat of spring. When it combines with moisture, then there will be growth and development, by the permission of God Almighty. Many winds may blow other than what we have mentioned, except that the principles are these four. So every wind that blows between two winds, its ruling is the ruling of the wind that blows closest to its place and is called the Nakba.

Twelfth: The Almighty said: And the clouds controlled between the sky and the earth. The clouds are called clouds because they drift in the air. I dragged my tails a cloud. So-and-so dragged on so-and-so a person dared to do so. Drag a person who is severely eating and drinking is called musakhar the one who is subdued, and tasakhar subjugated means sending him from one place to another. It was said: Taakhar subjugated means his being fixed between the sky and the earth without pillars or connections, but the first is more apparent. It may be with water or torment. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: While a man was in a desert, he heard a voice in a cloud saying, Water the garden of so-and-so. The cloud moved away and its water spread out in a lava field. Then one of those clouds absorbed all of that water. He followed the water and saw a man standing in his garden, moving the water with his shovel. He said to him, O servant of God, what is your name? He said, So-and-so, for the name he heard in the cloud. He said, O servant of God, why did you ask me about my name? He said, "I heard a voice in the cloud whose water is this saying, 'Water the garden of so-and-so, for your name. So what do you do with it?' He said, 'Since you have said this, I look at what comes out of it and give a third of it in charity, and I and my family eat a third, and I return a third of it.'" In another narration: And I give a third of it to the poor, the beggars, and the wayfarer. In the revelation: And God is He who sends the winds, and they stir up the clouds, and We drive them to a dead land. And He said, Until, when they carry heavy clouds, We drive them to a dead land. This is often mentioned in the revelation. Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Aisha.

"Whenever the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) saw a cloud approaching from a certain horizon, he would leave whatever he was doing, even if he was praying, until he faced it and said: 'O God, we seek refuge in You from the evil of that which You have sent.' If it rained, he would say: 'O God, make it beneficial rain,' two or three times. If God removed it and it did not rain, he would praise God for that." Muslim narrated it with the same meaning on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), who said:

"When it was a windy and cloudy day, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would show it on his face and he would come and go. When it rained, he would be pleased with it and it would go away from him. Aisha said: So I asked him and he said: I feared that it would be a punishment that would be inflicted on my nation." "And he would say when he saw rain: 'Mercy.'" In another narration, he said:

Perhaps, O Aisha, it is as the people of Aad said: But when they saw it as a cloud approaching their valleys, they said, 'This is a cloud bringing us rain.' These hadiths and verses indicate the correctness of the first statement and that its being subjected does not mean its being fixed, and God knows best. For fixity indicates the absence of movement. If what is meant by fixity is that it is in the air, not in the sky or on the earth, then that is correct, because He said, And yet it is subjected and carried, and that is greater in power, like the bird in the air. God Almighty said: Have they not seen the birds controlled in the atmosphere of the sky? None holds them up except God. And He said: Have they not seen the birds above them, spreading out their wings and folding them in? None holds them up except the Most Gracious.

Thirteenth: Ka'b al-Ahbar said: The clouds are a sieve for rain. Were it not for the clouds when water descends from the sky, they would spoil whatever land it falls upon. Narrated by Ibn Abbas. Al-Khatib Abu Bakr Ahmad ibn Ali mentioned it on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Abdullah ibn Khabib al-Juhani, who said: I saw Ibn Abbas passing by on a mule while I was in Bani Salamah. Tabi' ibn Aunt Ka'b passed by him and greeted Ibn Abbas. Ibn Abbas asked him: Have you heard Ka'b al-Ahbar say anything about the clouds? He said: Yes. He said: The clouds are a sieve for rain. Were it not for the clouds when water descends from the sky, they would spoil whatever land it falls upon. He said: Did you hear Ka'b say about the earth that it grows one plant each year and another the next year? He said: Yes, I heard him say: The seed descends from the sky. Ibn Abbas said: I heard that from Ka'b.

Fourteenth: The Almighty's saying: Signs meaning indications that indicate His Oneness and Power. Therefore, He mentioned these matters after His saying: And your God is one God to indicate with them the truth of the report of what He mentioned before it about His Oneness, glory be to Him, and to mention His mercy and compassion for His creation. It was narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

Woe to he who reads this verse and does not reflect on it or consider it.

If it is said: Why did you deny that they created themselves? It is said to him: This is impossible, because if they created themselves, they would have created them while they existed or they were nonexistent. If they created them while they were nonexistent, then this would be impossible, because creation can only come from a living, knowledgeable, capable, and willing being, and what does not exist cannot be described as such. If they exist, then their existence suffices from creating themselves. Also, if what they said were permissible, then it would be permissible for the building itself to come into existence, and likewise carpentry and weaving, and this is impossible, and what leads to the impossible is impossible. Then God the Most High did not limit His Oneness to mere report, but rather He linked that with contemplation and consideration in verses of the Qur'an, so He said to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Say: 'Look at what is in the heavens and the earth.'" The address is to the disbelievers, because God the Most High said: And signs and warners do not avail a people who do not believe. And He said: Have they not considered the dominion of the heavens and the earth? By the dominion, He means the signs. He said: And in yourselves, do you not see? He says: Have they not looked at this with thought and deliberation, so that they can deduce from its being the place of accidents and changes that they are created, and that the Creator cannot do without a Maker to create it, and that Maker is Wise, All-Knowing, All-Powerful, Willing, All-Hearing, All-Seeing, and All-Speaking, because if He did not have these attributes, man would be more perfect than him, and that is impossible. And God Almighty said: And We have certainly created man from an extract of clay, meaning Adam, peace be upon him, Then We made him, meaning We made his offspring and descendants, a sperm-drop in a secure lodging, until the words: You will be resurrected. So if man thinks about this warning with what He has given him of reason in himself, he will see it managing and disposing of various conditions. He was a sperm, then a clot, then a lump of flesh, then flesh and bones. He knows that he did not transfer himself from a state of deficiency to a state of perfection, because he is not able to create for himself in the best state, which is the perfection of his mind and the attainment of his prime, a limb from the limbs, nor can he add a limb to his limbs. This indicates to him that in his state of deficiency and the time of his weakness, he is unable to do that. He may see himself as a young man, then an adult, then an old man, and he did not transfer himself from a state of youth and strength to a state of old age and decrepitude, nor did he choose it for himself, nor is it within his power to remove the state of gray hair and regain the strength of youth. He knows from this that he is not the one who did those actions himself, and that he has a Maker who made him and a Transmitter who transferred him from one state to another. Were it not for that, his states would not have changed without a Transmitter or Manager. Some of the wise men said: Everything in the greater world has a counterpart in the smaller world, which is the human body. Therefore, God the Almighty said: Indeed, We created man in the best stature. And He said: And in yourselves, then will you not see? The senses of man are more noble than the shining planets, and hearing and sight are like the sun and moon in perceiving what is perceived by them. His limbs, when they wear out, turn into dust of the same kind as the earth, and in it is sweat and all the moistures of the body, and in it is the spirit and soul, and in it is the yellow bile. His veins are like the rivers in the earth, and his liver is like the eyes from which the rivers are drawn, because the veins are drawn from the liver. His bladder is like the sea, because what is in the vessels of the body flows into it as the rivers flow into the sea. His bones are like the mountains, which are the pegs of the earth. His limbs are like trees, so just as every tree has leaves or fruits, so too every limb has an action or effect. Hair on the body is like plants and grass on the earth. Then man narrates with his tongue every sound of an animal, and imitates with his limbs the action of every animal, so he is the small world with the great world, created and brought into existence by one Maker, there is no god but Him.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth - that in its height, its softness, its vastness, its planets, its fixed stars, and the rotation of its orbit - and this earth in its density, its lowness, its mountains, its seas, its deserts, its valleys, its civilization, and what it contains of benefits, and the alternation of night and day. This comes and then goes and is succeeded by another and follows it, not being delayed for a moment, as God Almighty said: "It is not for the sun to overtake the moon, nor does the night outstrip the day. Each, in an orbit, floats." Sometimes this lengthens and that shortens, and sometimes this takes from that and then they borrow, as God Almighty said: He merges the night into the day and merges the day into the night, meaning He increases this in this and this in this, and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people, meaning in harnessing the sea by carrying ships from one side to the other for the livelihood of people and benefiting from what the people of that region have, and this was transferred to these and what God sends down from the sky of water and revives the earth with it after its death, as God Almighty said: "And a sign for them is the dead earth. We have given it life and produced from it grain from which they eat. And We placed therein gardens of palm trees and grapevines and caused springs to gush forth therein, that they may eat of its fruit and that which their hands have made. Will they not then be grateful? Glory be to Him who created in pairs all things that the earth grows and from themselves and from that which they do not know." And He has dispersed therein of every kind. Beast meaning, with its different shapes, colors, benefits, smallness and largeness, and He knows all of that and provides for it, nothing of that is hidden from Him, as the Most High said: "And there is no creature on earth but that upon God is its provision, and He knows its place of dwelling and its place of storage. All is in a clear register." And the disposition of the winds meaning, sometimes it brings mercy, sometimes it brings torment, sometimes it comes as a herald of good tidings before the clouds, sometimes it drives them, sometimes it gathers them, sometimes it scatters them, sometimes it directs them, then sometimes it comes from the south, which is the Levant, sometimes it comes from the direction of Yemen, sometimes it is a south wind, which is the eastern wind that strikes the face of the Kaaba, and sometimes it is a west wind that penetrates from the direction of the back of the Kaaba. People have written many books on winds, rain and weather conditions, regarding their languages and rulings. Explaining this would take too long here, and God knows best. And the clouds controlled between the sky and the earth means that they move between the sky and the earth, controlled to whatever lands and places God wills, as God Almighty directs them: Are signs for a people who understand meaning that in these things there are clear indications of the Oneness of God Almighty, as God Almighty said: "Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding * Who remember God while standing, sitting, and lying on their sides and reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, [saying], 'Our Lord, You did not create this in vain. Glory be to You! Protect us from the punishment of the Fire.'" Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Abu Saeed Al-Dashtaki told us, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ash'ath bin Ishaq, on the authority of Ja'far bin Abi Al-Mughira, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Muhammad, we want you to call upon your Lord to make Safa into gold for us, so that we can buy horses and weapons with it, and we will believe in you and fight with you. He said: Trust me that if I call upon my Lord and He makes Safa into gold for you, you will believe in me. So they trusted him, so he called upon his Lord, and Gabriel came to him and said: Your Lord has given them Safa into gold on the condition that if they do not believe in you, He will punish them with a punishment that He has not punished anyone in the worlds. Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No, my Lord, but leave me and my people, so that I may call upon them day by day. So God revealed this verse: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the [great] ships which sail through the sea with that which benefits people Al-An'am 2:17. It was narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim from another chain of transmission on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira, and he added at the end of it: How do they ask you about al-Safa while they see signs greater than al-Safa? Ibn Abi Hatim also said: My father told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of 'Ata', who said: "And your God is one God. There is no god but He, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful" was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Medina. Then the infidels of Quraysh in Mecca said: How can one God be sufficient for the people? Then God the Almighty revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the [great] ships which sail through the sea with that which benefits people to His saying: are signs for a people who reason. By this they know that He is one God, and that He is the God of all things, and the Creator of all things. And Wakee' ibn al-Jarrah said: Sufyan told us on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu al-Dahha, he said: When And your God is one God to the end of the verse was revealed, the polytheists said: If it is like this, then let him bring us a sign. So God the Almighty revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day to His saying: are signs for a people who reason. Narrated by Adam ibn Abi Iyas on the authority of Abu Ja'far, who is al-Razi, on the authority of Sa'eed ibn Masruq, the father of Sufyan, on the authority of Abu al-Dahha, with it.

When God, the Almighty, mentioned monotheism in

His saying: And your God is one God, He followed that with the evidence indicating it, which is these matters that are among the greatest creations of the Wise Maker, with every rational person knowing that it is not possible for any of the gods that the disbelievers have established to refuse any of them, or to be able to do them or some of them, and they are the creation of the heavens, the creation of the earth, the alternation of night and day, the running of the ships in the sea, the sending down of rain from the sky, the revival of the earth by it, the spreading of animals from it because of it, and the control of the winds. Whoever looks deeply and applies his mind to one of them will be amazed by it, and his mind will be unable to imagine its reality. He is obliged to believe that its Creator is God, the Almighty. He only gathered the heavens together because they are different kinds, each heaven being of a different kind from the other, and He unified the earth because it is all of one kind, which is dust. What is meant by the alternation of night and day is their alternation with one coming and the other going away, one being illuminated and the other being dark. Day: the period between sunrise and sunset. Al-Nadr ibn Shumayl said: The beginning of the day is sunrise, and what comes before that is not counted as part of the day. Tha'lab said the same, and he cited as evidence the words of Umayyah ibn Abi al-Salt:

And the sun rises every last night red, its color turning rosy

And so said Al-Zajaj. Ibn Al-Anbari divided time into three parts: One part he made pure night, which is from sunset to dawn. One part he made pure day, which is from sunrise to sunset. And one part he made common between day and night, which is between sunrise and sunset due to the remnants of the darkness of the night and the beginnings of the light of day. This is according to the terminology of the people of language. As for the Shari'ah, the discussion of this is well-known. The ark: ships, and its singular and plural are expressed in one word, which is this, and it is masculine and feminine. God the Almighty said: In the laden ark, 164- And the arks that sail in the sea, and He said: Until, when you are in the ark and they sail with them, and it was said: its singular is a falak with a fat-ha, like asad and asad. His saying: that which benefits people may be a relative pronoun, meaning that which benefits them, or a verbal noun, meaning that which benefits them. What is meant by what He sent down from the sky is the rain by which the world lives and plants and provisions come out. And spreading means spreading. It appears that his saying spread is conjoined with his saying so He revived because they are two matters faced by the sending down of rain. He said in Al-Kashshaf: The apparent meaning is its conjoining with sent down. What is meant by the winds' direction is sending them barren, fertile, abundant, victorious, destructive, hot, cold, soft and stormy. It was said that their direction is sending them south, north, west, pouring and calamity, which comes between the blowing winds. It was said that their direction is that the large ships come according to what they can carry, and the small ones do the same. There is nothing to prevent the direction from being applied to all of what was mentioned. The cloud is called a cloud because it withdraws in the air. I dragged my tails with a drag and someone dragged

Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day and the ships that sail through the sea with that which benefits people and what Allah sends down from the sky of water and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness and disperses therein every kind of moving creature and the directing of the winds and the clouds controlled between the heaven and the earth are signs for a people who They understand someone on someone: he dared. And the one who is subdued: the one who is tamed, and to subjugate him: to send him from one place to another, and it was said that his subjugation: is his being fixed between the sky and the earth without pillars or connections. The first is more apparent. And the verses are evidence of His Oneness, glory be to Him, for whoever looks with his sight and thinks with his mind.

Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Quraysh said to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): Ask God to turn Safa into gold for us so that we may gain strength against our enemy. God revealed to him: I will give them, so I will turn Safa into gold for them, but if they disbelieve after that, I will punish them with a punishment such as I have not punished anyone in the worlds. He said: My Lord, leave me and my people alone so that I may call them day by day. So God revealed this verse. Abd ibn Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr: Wakee', Al-Firyabi, Adam ibn Abi Iyas, Saeed ibn Mansur, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Abu Al-Shaykh in Al-Azmah, and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab Al-Iman narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Duha who said: When the verse And your god is one God was revealed, the polytheists were amazed and said: Muhammad says And your god is one God. So let him bring us a sign if he is truthful. So God revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth 10:13. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Abu al-Shaykh narrated something similar on the authority of Ata. Abu al-Shaykh narrated in al-Azmah on the authority of Sulayman who said: The night is entrusted to an angel called Sharaheel. When the time of night comes, he takes a black bead and hangs it from the direction of the west. When the sun looks at it, it sets faster than the blink of an eye. The sun has been ordered not to set until it sees the bead. When it sets, night comes and the bead remains hanging until another angel called Haraheel comes with a white bead and hangs it from the direction of the rising sun. When Sharaheel sees it, he extends his bead to it, and the sun sees the white bead and rises. It has been ordered not to rise until it sees it. When it rises, day comes. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Malik regarding his statement: and the ark, he said: the ship. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi who said: Bath means creation. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding his statement: And the direction of the winds, he said: If He wills, He makes them a mercy that fertilizes the clouds, and a good tidings before His mercy. And if He wills, He makes them a torment, a barren wind that does not fertilize. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ubayy bin Ka'b who said: Everything in the Qur'an about winds is a mercy, and everything in the Qur'an about winds is a torment. Many hadiths have been narrated about the prohibition of cursing the wind and describing it that have no connection to the verse.

164. Then God Almighty revealed, Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, mentioning the heavens in the plural and the earth in the singular because each heaven is not of one type but of another type, and all the earths are of one type, which is the dust. So the sign in the heavens is their thickness and height without pillars or connection and what you see in them of the sun, moon, and stars, and the sign in the earth is its extension, spread, and vastness and what you see in it of trees, rivers, mountains, seas, gems, and plants.

The Almighty said: And the alternation of the night and the day meaning their succession in coming and going, one succeeds the other. If one of them goes, the other comes after it, meaning after it. Similar to this is the Almighty's saying: And it is He who has made the night and the day in succession Al-Furqan 62. Ata' said: He meant their alternation in light and darkness, increase and decrease. Night is the plural of night, and nights is the plural of plural. Day is the plural of river, and night is mentioned before day because it is older than it. God Almighty said: "And a sign for them is the night. We strip thereof the day" 37-Yasin.

And the ships that sail on the sea means ships, whether singular or plural. If it is intended by the plural, it is feminine, but in the singular, God Almighty said: Concerning the singular and masculine, When he fled to the laden ship 140-As-Saffat. And He said regarding the plural and feminine, Until, when you were in the ship and it sailed with them with a good wind 22-Yunus.

And the ships that sail upon the sea The verse about ships is their being harnessed and their sailing on the surface of the water, and they are stable and do not settle under the water with that which benefits people meaning riding them and carrying loads on them in trade, earnings, and various types of demands and what God sends down from the sky of water meaning rain. It was said: He meant by the sky the clouds, God creates in the clouds and then descends from the clouds. It was also said that He meant by it the well-known sky, God Almighty creates water in the sky and then descends from the sky to the clouds and then from the clouds it descends to the earth and He revives thereby meaning the water the earth after its death meaning after its dryness and barrenness and He dispersed therein meaning He scattered therein of every living creature and the changing of the winds.

Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read Al-Rih without an Alif, and the rest read it with an Alif. Every Reeh in the Qur'an that does not have an Alif or a Lam differed in its plural and singular form, except in Al-Dhariyat "The barren wind" 41-Al-Dhariyat. They agreed to make it singular. And in the first letter of Surat Al-Rum The winds are good tidings 456-Al-Rum. They agreed to make it plural. Abu Ja'far read the rest of it in the plural form, and the reciters differed in it. Al-Rih is masculine and feminine, and its inflection is that it is used to refer to the south, the north, acceptance, the wasp, and the disasters.

It was said: Its conjugation is that sometimes it is soft and sometimes it is stormy and sometimes it is hot and sometimes it is cold. Ibn Abbas said: The greatest soldiers of God are the wind and water. The wind is called wind because it relaxes the souls. Shureih the judge said: No wind blows except to heal a sick person who is healthy. The good report is in three winds: the east, the north, and the south. As for the wasp, it is the barren wind, in which there is no good report. It was said that there are eight winds: four for mercy and four for torment. As for the ones for mercy, they are the good tidings, the spreaders, the scatterers, and the sent ones. As for the ones for torment, they are the barren and the screaming on land and the stormy and the breaking ones at sea. And the subjugated clouds meaning the submissive clouds are called clouds because they withdraw, i.e. move quickly as if they are dragged, i.e. pulled, between the sky and the earth as signs for a people who understand so that they know that these things have a Creator and Maker. Wahb ibn Munabbih said: Three from which it is not known where they come: thunder, lightning, and clouds.

164- Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth The heavens and the individuals of the earth are plural, because they are separate layers in themselves, different in reality, unlike the two earths. And the alternation of night and day is their succession, as in the Almighty's saying: He made the night and the day in succession. "And the ships which sail through the sea with that which benefits people meaning that which benefits them, or with that which benefits them, and the intention is to provide evidence from the sea and its conditions, and to specify the mention of the ship" because it is the reason for delving into it and learning about its wonders, and for this reason it is presented before mentioning rain and clouds, because their origin is the sea in most cases, and the feminization of "the ship" because it means a ship. It was read with two dammahs according to the original, or the plural, and the dammah of the plural is not the dammah of the singular according to the investigators. "And what God has sent down from the sky of water" from the first for the beginning, and the second for clarification. And the sky includes the ship and the clouds and the direction of the height. And He revived thereby the earth after its death with plants and dispersed therein every kind of creature is in apposition to sent down, as if he used as evidence the descent of rain and the formation of plants by it and the dispersion of animals in the earth, or revived, because the creatures grow through fertility and live through life. Dispersion means spreading and dispersing. And the disposition of the winds in their auras and conditions. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read it in the singular. And the clouds controlled between the sky and the earth do not descend or disperse, although nature requires one of them until the command of God Almighty comes. It was said: The clouds controlled by their turning in the atmosphere by the will of God Almighty, and its derivation is from the clouds because some of them drag others. Signs for a people who reason who ponder them and look at them with the eyes of their minds. And it was reported from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, Woe to the one who reads this verse and is distracted by it meaning he did not ponder it.

Know that the evidence of these verses for the existence of God and His Oneness is from many aspects that would take a long time to explain in detail. The general statement is that they are: possible matters, each of which exists in a specific way from possible aspects and different ways. For example, it is possible that the heavens, or some of them like the earth, do not move, and that they move in the opposite direction of their movements, and that the region becomes a circle passing through the poles, and that it does not have a peak or a nadir at all. In this way, due to its simplicity and the equality of its parts, it must have a powerful and wise director who creates it according to what His wisdom calls for and His will requires, transcending the opposition of others, since if there was a god with Him who is able to do what the other is able to do. If their wills agree, then if the action is theirs, then it is necessary for two influencers to come together on one effect. If it is for one of them, then it is necessary to give preference to the doer without a preference and to exclude the other, which is contrary to His divinity. If they differ, then it is necessary to contradict and chase each other, as indicated by His Almighty saying: If there were within them gods besides God, they both would have been ruined. The verse draws attention to the honor of the science of theology and its people, and urges research and consideration into it.

And among mankind are those who take for themselves other than Allah equals to Him, loving them as they love Allah. But those who believe are stronger in love for Allah. And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to Allah and that Allah is severe in punishment.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:165

And among mankind are those who take for themselves other than God equals to Him, loving them as they love God. But those who believe are stronger in love for God. And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And among mankind are those who take for themselves other than God that is, other than Him rivals idols who love them with glorification and submission as they love God that is, as they love Him but those who believe are stronger in love for God than their love for rivals because they do not deviate from Him in any way, and the disbelievers deviate in severity towards God. And if you could but see O Muhammad, you could see those who did wrong by taking rivals when they see in the active and passive form they see the punishment you would see a great matter. And when means if that that is because the power ability and dominance is entirely God's a state and that God is severe in punishment and in the reading {sees} the subject is the pronoun of the listener, and it was said that those who did wrong, so it means knows and that and what follows it filled the place of the two objects and the answer to if is omitted and the meaning is if they knew in this world the severity of God's punishment and that the power belongs to God alone at the time they witness Him, which is on the Day of Resurrection, they would not have taken rivals besides Him.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "And among mankind are those who take other than God as equals to Him, they love them as they love God. But those who believe are stronger in love for God." Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by that: That among mankind are those who take other than God as equals to Him. We have previously explained that the equal is justice, with the evidence that indicates that, so we disliked repeating it. And that those who take these equals to God, love their equals as the believers love God. Then He informed them that the believers love God stronger than those who take these equals to their equals. The people of interpretation differed about the equals that the people took, and what they were. Some of them said: They are their gods that they used to worship instead of God. Mention of those who said that: Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah: His saying: "And among mankind are those who take other than God as equals to Him, they love them as they love God. But those who believe are stronger in love for God," than the disbelievers for His idols. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the words of God Almighty: They love them as they love God, boasting and comparing the truth with rivals, And those who believe are stronger in love for God, than the disbelievers for their idols.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. I was told by Ammar, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding his words: And of mankind are some who take other than God as equals to Him, loving them as they love God, he said: They are the gods that are worshipped other than God, he said: They love their idols as they love God, And those who believe are stronger in love for God, meaning: than the disbelievers for their idols. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His words: And of mankind are some who take other than God as equals to Him, loving them as they love God, he said: These are the polytheists. Their rivals: their gods whom they worshipped along with God, they love them as those who believe love God, and those who believe love God more intensely than they love their gods. Others said: Rather, the rivals in this context are their masters whom they obeyed in disobeying God, the Most High. Those who said that mentioned: Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And among mankind are those who take for themselves rivals besides God, they love them as they love God, he said: The rivals among men, they obey them as they obey God, if they command them they obey them and disobey God. If someone says: How was it said: as they love God? Does God love rivals? Did those who took rivals love God, so it is said: They love them as they love God?

It was said: The meaning of that is contrary to what you have gone to, and it is rather similar to the saying of the speaker: I sold my slave as you sold your slave, meaning: I sold him as your slave was sold, and as you sold your slave, and I took my right from him as you took your right, meaning you took your right, so the metaphor of the name of the addressee is deleted from the second, and it is sufficient to use his metaphor for the slave and the right as the poet said:

You are not a Muslim as long as you are alive, according to Zaid, by surrendering the prince

He means by that: as he greets the prince. So the meaning of the statement is: And among the people are those who, O believers, take for themselves rivals besides God, whom they love as they love God.

Abu Ja'far said: The readings differed in the reading of that. The majority of the people of Medina and Ash-Sham read it: And if those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment. With the opening of an and an both of them - meaning: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who disbelieved and wronged themselves, when they see the punishment of God and witness it, that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment. Then there are two views regarding the accusative of an and an in this reading: One of them is to open it with the omitted part of the statement that is required in it, so the interpretation of the statement then would be: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment of God, they would acknowledge - and the meaning of see is to see - that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment. And the answer then - if you open an in this way - is abandoned, and the indication of the statement is sufficient for it, and the meaning is what I described. This is one of the two aspects of opening that, according to the reading of those who read law tarab with the ta'. The other aspect in opening: that its meaning is: And if you could see, O Muhammad, when those who do wrong see the punishment of God, because all power belongs to God, and God is severe in punishment, you would know the extent of God's punishment. Then the lam is deleted and it is opened with that meaning, because the speech indicates it, and others from the early reciters read that: (And if you could but see those who do wrong when they see the punishment. Indeed, all power belongs to God, and indeed, God is severe in punishment). Meaning: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who do wrong when they witness the punishment of God, you would know the state they will end up in. Then the Most High informed us with a new piece of report about His power and authority, after completing the first piece of report, so He said: Indeed, all power belongs to God in this world and the hereafter, without anyone else of rivals and gods, and indeed, God is severe in punishment for whoever associates partners with Him, claims partners with Him, and makes a rival for Him.

Another reading of the one who broke the word in in tarā with a tā may be possible. It means: "And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment, they would say: 'Indeed, all power belongs to God, and indeed, God is severe in punishment.' Then you delete the statement and suffice with what is said. Others read it as: "And if those who did wrong could see" with a ya "when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God, and that God is severe in punishment" with a fathah on the alif of an and an, meaning: "And if those who did wrong could see the punishment of God that is prepared for them in Hell, they would know when they see it and witness it that all power belongs to God, and that God is severe in punishment, when they see the punishment." So the first n is in the accusative case because it is connected to the answer to the deleted law, and the answer is left out, and the second is conjoined with the first. This is the general reading of the readers of Kufa, Basra and Mecca. Some grammarians of Basra have claimed that the interpretation of the reading of those who read: And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment with the ya in yaara and the opening of the two alifs in an and an: and if they know, because they did not know the extent of the punishment that they would witness. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew, so if he said: and if only you see, then he is addressing the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And if he broke the in as a beginning, if he said: and if only he sees, it is permissible, because if only he sees, if only he knows. And if only it is in a meaning that does not require anything with it. You say to a man: By God, if only he knew, and if only you knew.

As the poet said:

If your medicine is pampering, then it was in the past and the bygone years

This has no answer except in the meaning, and the poet said:

And be fortunate in what we live, and do not let nonsense lead you into horrors

So he concealed: Live. He said: Some of them read: And if you see, and he opened that to see. But that is not the case, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew, but...

He wanted to teach people that, as God the Almighty said: Or do they say, 'He has invented it'? (al-Sajdah 32:2) to inform people of their ignorance, and as He said: Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? (al-Baqarah 2:107). Abu Ja'far said: Some people denied that an was an agent in his statement: And if he could see. They said: Those who did wrong knew when they saw the punishment that all power belongs to God, so there is no basis for those who interpreted that: And if he could see that all power belongs to God. They said: And if he could see that all power belongs to God was an agent in an, which means knowledge, because the first knowledge came before. Some grammarians of Kufa said: Whoever put the power in the accusative case and that God is severe in punishment, from those who read And if he could see with the letter ya, put it in the accusative case by applying the vision to it, and making the vision fall upon it. As for those who put it in the accusative case from those who read And if he could see with the letter ta, they put it in the accusative case on the interpretation: because all power belongs to God, and because God is severe in punishment. He said: And whoever breaks them from those who read with the ta, then he breaks them with the report. And others of them said: He opened that in the reading of whoever read: And if those who wronged could see with the ya, by working with ya'ra and the answer to the speech then is left out, just as the answer to: And if a Qur'an by which mountains were moved or the earth was split apart (al-Ra'd 13:31) was left out, because the meaning of Paradise and Hell is repeated and well-known. They said: It is permissible to break the inn, in the reading of those who read with the ya and to make the ru'yah on the idh in the meaning, and they allowed the accusative of the inn on the reading of those who read that - the ta, for the meaning of the intention of another action, and that the interpretation of the statement is: And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment [they see], that all power belongs to God. They claimed that breaking the inn face, if it is read, and if only you see - the ta' is for resumption, because his saying: And if only you see has been applied to those who did wrong. Abu Ja'far said: The correct reading according to us in that is: And if only those who did wrong could see - with the ta' from tarā when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment meaning: I would have seen that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment. So his saying: I would have seen the second, is deleted and the indication of his saying: And if only those who did wrong could see does not need to mention it, since it was an answer to if. And the statement, even if it is addressed to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace - is intended by it other than him. Because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, undoubtedly knew that all power belongs to God, and that God is severe in punishment. This would be similar to his statement: Do you not know that to God belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earth? (al-Baqarah 2:107), and we have explained this in its place. We chose this over the reading of the letter ya because when the people saw the punishment, they would be certain that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment. So there is no reason to say: If they saw that all power belongs to God - then. Because it is only said: If you saw for someone who has not seen, but as for someone who has seen it, there is no point in saying to him: And you saw. The meaning of his saying: When they see the punishment, is when they witness the punishment, as I was told by Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his saying: And if those who have wronged could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment, meaning: if they witnessed the punishment. And what the Most High meant by his saying: And if those who have wronged could see, is: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who wronged themselves and took for themselves rivals besides Me whom they love as you love Me, when they witness My punishment on the Day of Resurrection which I have prepared for them, you would know that all power is Mine, not the rivals and gods, and that the rivals and gods will not avail them at all there, nor will they ward off from them the punishment that I have inflicted upon them, and you would be certain that I am severe in My punishment for whoever disbelieves in Me and claims with Me a god other than Me.

And among mankind are those who take for themselves other than Allah equals to Him, loving them as they love Allah. But those who believe are stronger in love for Allah. And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to Allah and that Allah is severe in punishment.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

When God Almighty informed in the verse before what indicated His Oneness, His Power, and the Greatness of His Authority, He informed that with these verses that overpower those with reason, there are those who take rivals with Him, and the singular of which is rival, and it has been mentioned before. What is meant are the idols and statues that they worshipped as worship of God, despite their weakness, as Mujahid said.

God the Almighty said: They love them as they love God meaning they love their idols in falsehood as the believers love God in truth. This was stated by Al-Mubarrad. Al-Zajaj said its meaning. That is, despite the weakness of the idols, they love them as the believers love God despite His power. Ibn Abbas and Al-Suddi said: What is meant by peers are the leaders who are followed, they obey them in disobeying God. The pronoun in they love them came in this way according to the original, and according to the first, the pronoun of someone who has reason came in a way other than the original. Ibn Kaysan and Al-Zajaj also said: The meaning of they love them as they love God is they equate the idols with God the Almighty in love. Abu Ishaq said: This is the correct statement, and the evidence for its correctness is: And those who believe are stronger in love for God. Abu Raja' read they love them with a fat-ha on the ya'. This is also what was mentioned in the Qur'an, and it is a language. It is said: I loved the man, so he is beloved. Al-Farra' said: Abu Turab recited to me:

I love Sudan for its love, even the black dogs love it

The word min in his statement man yakhadahu is in the nominative case as a subject, and yakhadahu is in the verbal form. It is permissible in other than the Qur'an to say yakhadahu in the meaning, and yahbubhum in the meaning, and yahbubhum in the verbal form. It is in the accusative case as a state of the pronoun in yakhadahu meaning lovers. If you wish, it is an adjective for the peers, meaning beloved. The kaf in kahab is an adjective for a deleted source, meaning they love them with a love like the love of God. And those who believe are stronger in love for God meaning stronger than the love of the idolaters for their idols and the followers for their followers. It was said that He said And those who believe are stronger in love for God because God, the Most High, loved them first, then they loved Him. And whoever his beloved testifies to his love, his love is more complete. God, the Most High, said: He loves them and they love Him. The statement of the believers' love for God, the Most High, and His love for them will come in Surah Al Imran, God willing.

God the Almighty said: And if those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment. The people of Medina and Ash-Sham read it with a ta', and the people of Mecca, Kufa, and Abu Amr read it with a ya', and this is the choice of Abu Ubaid. There is a problem and an omission in this verse, so Abu Ubaid said: The meaning is: If those who did wrong in this world saw the punishment of the

Hereafter, they would know when they see it that all power belongs to God. And see on this is from seeing with the eyes. An-Nahhas said in his book Ma'ani al-Quran: This is the statement that the people of interpretation are upon. And he said in his book l'rab al-Quran: It was narrated on the authority of Muhammad bin Yazid that he said: This interpretation that Abu Ubaid came up with is far-fetched, and his expression in it is not good, because he estimates: And if those who did wrong could see the punishment, so it is as if he makes it doubtful and God the Almighty has made it obligatory, but the estimate, which is the statement of Al-Akhfash, is: And if those who did wrong could see that all power belongs to God. And see means to know, meaning if they knew the reality of God's power and the severity of His punishment, so see is used to indicate that all power belongs to God, and it replaces the two objects. And those who are the subject of sees, and the answer to if is omitted, meaning that they may realize the harm of their taking gods, as the Almighty said: And if you could but see when they are made to stand before their Lord, "And if you could but see when they are made to stand before the Fire," and there is no answer to if. Al-Zuhri and Qatada said: The omission is more severe for the threat, and it is similar to the saying of the one who says: If you could see so-and-so and the whips seizing him! And whoever reads with the ta', then the meaning is: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment and are terrified by it and think it is too great for them, they would realize that power belongs to God. So the answer is omitted in this manner of meaning and it is the factor in that and another meaning is: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment and are terrified by it, you would know that power belongs to God entirely. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew that, but he was addressed and what was meant was his nation, for among them are those who need to strengthen their knowledge by seeing something like this. And it is possible that the meaning is: Say, O Muhammad, to the wrongdoer: This. It was said: An is in the position of an accusative object for the sake of which, meaning because all power belongs to God. Sibawayh recited:

Forgive the generous person's shortcomings and turn away from the slander of the ignoble person out of generosity.

That is, to save it, and the meaning is: And if you could but, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment, because power belongs to God, you would know the extent of their punishment and you would not have considered what happened to them great. And the particle if was included in what preceded in establishing these future events to approximate the matter and correct its occurrence. Ibn Amir alone read yarowu with a damma on the ya', and the rest read it with a fatha on it. Al-Hasan, Ya'qub, Shaibah, Salam, and Abu Ja'far read inna al-quwwa and inna lahu with a kasra on the hamza in both of them, as a resumption or as an estimate of the statement, that is, and if you could but see those who did wrong when they see the punishment, they would say, Indeed, power belongs to God. And the power is established by the text of this verse, contrary to the statement of the Mu'tazila in their denial of the meanings of the eternal attributes, God is exalted above what they say.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty mentions the state of those who associate partners with Him in this world and their fate in the Hereafter, as they have made equals for Him, i.e., likes and counterparts, worshipping them along with Him and loving them as they love Him, and He is God, there is no god but Him, and He has no opposite, no equal, and no partner with Him. In the two Sahihs, "On the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, he said: I said: O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? He said: To make an equal for God while He created you." And His statement: And those who believe are stronger in love for God and because of their love for God and their complete knowledge of Him and their reverence and monotheism for Him, they do not associate anything with Him, but rather they worship Him alone, and put their trust in Him, and resort to Him in all their affairs. Then the Almighty threatened the polytheists who wronged themselves with that, saying: And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God.

Some of them said: The meaning of the speech is that if they saw the punishment, they would know then that all power belongs to God, meaning that the rule belongs to Him alone, with no partner, and that all things are under His control, dominion and authority.

And that God is severe in punishment, as He said: So on that Day no one will punish with His punishment, nor will anyone be bound with His bond. He says: If they knew what they would see there and what would befall them of the terrible, reprehensible, and terrible matter due to their polytheism and disbelief, they would stop what they were in of misguidance. Then He informed about their disbelief in their idols and the disavowal of those who were followed, saying: When those who followed disavowed those who followed.

The angels who they claimed to worship in the worldly abode disavowed them, so the angels said: "We disavow ourselves before You. They did not worship us." And they said: "Glory be to You! You are our protector instead of them. Rather, they used to worship the jinn, most of them with them." Believers, and the jinn also disavow them and renounce their worship of them, as God Almighty said: "And who is more astray than he who calls upon those besides God who will not respond to him until the Day of Resurrection, while they, of their call, are unaware? And when the people are gathered together, they will be enemies to them and will be disbelievers in their worship." God Almighty also said: "And they have taken besides God deities that they may be a source of honor for them. No! They will disbelieve in their worship and will be opponents to them." Abraham said to his al-Nas 114: "You have only taken idols besides God out of affection among yourselves in worldly life. Then on the Day of Resurrection, some of you will disbelieve in others and curse each other, and your refuge will be the Fire, and you will have no helpers." God Almighty also said: "And if you could but see when the wrongdoers are made to stand before their Lord, some of them returning their words to others. Those who were oppressed will say to those who were arrogant, 'If it were not for you, we would have been believers.' Those who were oppressed will say to those who were oppressed, 'Did we avert you from guidance after it had come to you? Rather, you were criminals.' And those who were oppressed will say to those who were arrogant, 'Rather, it was [your] plotting by night and by day when you ordered us to We disbelieve in God and attribute to Him equals, and they concealed their regret when they saw the punishment. And We placed shackles on the necks of those who disbelieved. Are they recompensed except for what they used to do? And God the Almighty said: And Satan said, when the matter was decided, "Indeed, God promised you the promise of truth, and I promised you, but I failed you. And I had no authority over you except that I invited you and you responded to me. So do not blame me, but blame yourselves. I cannot be your savior, nor can you be my savior. Indeed, I have disbelieved in what you associated before. Indeed, for the wrongdoers is a painful punishment." And His statement: And they saw the punishment, and their means were cut off, meaning they witnessed the punishment of God, and their means and means of salvation were cut off, and they did not find any way out or escape from the Fire. Ata' said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And their ties were cut off. Al-Mawadda said, and Mujahid said the same in the narration of Ibn Abi Nujayh. His statement: "And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance, we could disown them as they disowned us.' " That is, if only we could return to the worldly home so that we could disown these people and their worship, so we would not pay attention to them, but rather we would unify God Almighty with that. For this reason, He said: Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets for them. That is, they will go away and vanish, as God Almighty said: And We will present to them whatever deeds they did and make them as scattered dust. And God Almighty said: The example of those who disbelieve in their Lord is that their deeds are like ashes, which the wind blows violently on a stormy day. And God Almighty said: And those who disbelieve - their deeds are like a mirage in a lowland which a thirsty person thinks is water. And God Almighty said: And they will never emerge from the Fire.

Fath al-Qadir

When He, the Almighty, finished proving His Oneness, He informed us that along with this clear and useful proof of His great authority, His great power and His uniqueness in creation, He found among the people those who would take with Him, the Almighty, a rival to worship from among the idols. The explanation of rivals has been presented, although these infidels did not limit themselves to merely worshipping rivals, but rather loved them with a great love and went to extremes in that, until their love for these idols and the like became firmly rooted in their hearts like the believers' love for God, the Almighty. So the source in His statement: 165- like the love of God is added to the object, and the subject is omitted, which is the believers. It is possible that what is meant by like their love for God is: idol worshippers, as Ibn Kaysan and Al-Zajaj said. It is possible that this source is from the passive voice: meaning as God loves. The first is more appropriate because of his saying: And those who believe are stronger in love for God, for it is a correction of what the simile indicates of equality: that is, the love of the believers for God is stronger than the love of the disbelievers for rivals, because the believers single out God, the Most High, in worship and supplication, and the disbelievers do not single out their idols for that, rather they associate God with them, and they acknowledge that they only worship their idols to bring them closer to God. This can be made: I mean his saying: And those who believe are stronger in love for God, as evidence for the second, because the believers were stronger in love for God, the love of the disbelievers for rivals was not like the love of the believers for God. It was said: What is meant by rivals here are the leaders: that is, they obey them in disobeying God. This pronoun is strengthened in their saying: They love them, for it is for those who understand. It is also strengthened by his saying, the Most High, after that: When those who followed disavowed themselves 1:13. His saying: And if those who did wrong could see is the reading of the people of Mecca, Kufa, and Abu Amr with the lower ya', and this is the choice of Abu Ubaid. The people of Medina and the people of Ash-Sham read it with the superiority, and the meaning according to the first reading: If those who did wrong in this world could see the punishment of the Hereafter, they would know when they see it that all power belongs to God. Abu Ubaid said. An-Nahhas said: This is the statement that the people of interpretation hold. End quote. Based on this, the vision is the visual one, not the heart. It was narrated from Muhammad bin Yazid Al-Mubarrad that he said: This interpretation that Abu Ubaid came up with is far-fetched, and his expression is not good, because he estimates: If those who did wrong could see the punishment, so it is as if he makes it doubtful. God has made it obligatory, but the estimate, which is better, is: If those who did wrong could see that all power belongs to God. And seeing means knowing: that is, if they knew the reality of God's power and the severity of His punishment. He said: The answer to if is omitted: that is, so that they may realize the harm of their taking gods, as was omitted in His statement: And if you could but see when they are made to stand before their Lord. And whoever reads with the superiority, the estimate is: If you could see, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment and are terrified by it, you would know that all power belongs to God. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, knew this, but he was addressed with this address, and what was meant by it was his nation. It was said: that is in the position of an accusative object for which: meaning because power belongs to God, as the poet said:

Forgive the generous person's shortcomings and turn away from the slander of the ignoble person out of generosity.

That is, to save it, and the meaning is: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who did wrong when they see the punishment, because power belongs to God, you would know the extent of their punishment. And when was included, and it is for what has passed in proving these future events, to approximate the matter and to correct its occurrence. Ibn Amir read when they see with a damma on the ya', and the rest with a fatha on it. Al-Hasan, Ya'qub, and Abu Ja'far read that the power and that God with a kasra on the hamza in both of them as a resumption, and as an estimate of the saying.

165. The Almighty said: And among mankind are those who take for themselves rivals to God meaning idols that they worship They love them as they love God meaning they love their gods as the believers love God. Al-Zajaj said: They love the idols as they love God because they associate them with God, thus making God equal to their idols in love. And those who believe are stronger in love for God meaning they are more steadfast and more persistent in their love for Him because they do not choose anything other than Him over God. And when the polytheists take an idol and then see something better than it, they reject the first and choose the second. Qatada said: The disbeliever turns away from his deity at a time of calamity and turns to God Almighty as God Almighty informed us about them when He said: And when they embark on a ship, they supplicate God, sincere to Him in religion 65-Al-Ankabut. And the believer does not turn away from God in prosperity and adversity, hardship and ease.

Saeed bin Jubair said: On the Day of Resurrection, God the Almighty will command those who burned themselves in this world for seeing idols to enter Hell with their idols, but they will not enter because they know that the torment of Hell is eternal. Then He will say to the believers while they are in the hands of the infidels: If you are My beloved ones, then enter Hell. So they will rush into it, and a caller will call from beneath the Throne: And those who believe are stronger in love for God. It was said that He said: And those who believe are stronger in love for God because God the Almighty loved them first, then they loved Him. And whoever the worshipped one testifies to his love, his love will be more complete. God the Almighty said: He loves them and they love Him 54-Al-Ma'idah.

God the Almighty says: And if those who do wrong could see Nafi', Ibn 'Amir and Ya'qub read law tara with a ta', while the others read it with a ya'. The answer to law here is omitted, and there are many similar examples in the Qur'an, such as God the Almighty's saying: And if a Qur'an by which mountains could be moved or by which they could be split apart (al-Ra'd 13:31). Meaning: This would have been the Qur'an. So whoever reads it with a ta' means: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who wrong themselves, from the severity of the punishment, you would have seen a tremendous thing. It was said that its meaning is: Say, O Muhammad: O wrongdoer, if you could see those who wronged or associated partners with God in the severity of the punishment, you would have seen a terrible thing. And whoever reads it with a ya' means: And if those who wronged could see themselves when they see the punishment, or if they saw the severity of God's punishment and chastisement when they see the punishment, they would have known the harm of disbelief and that what they have taken of idols will not benefit them.

The Almighty said: When they see Ibn Amir read it with a damma on the ya' and the rest read it with a fatha on it the punishment that all power belongs to God and that God is severe in punishment meaning that all power belongs to God. Its meaning is that they saw means they saw and were certain that all power belongs to God.

Abu Ja'far and Ya'qub read Inna al-Quwwa and Inna God with a kasra on the alif as a new sentence, and the speech is complete when he says When they see the punishment with the answer implied.

165- And among mankind are those who take for themselves rivals to God of idols. It was said that they were the leaders whom they obeyed, based on the Almighty's statement: When those who were followed disassociated themselves from those they followed Perhaps what is meant is more general than both of them, which is what distracts him from God. They love them they glorify them and obey them as the love of God as glorifying Him and inclining to obey Him, meaning they treat Him and them equally in love and obedience. Love is the inclination of the heart from love, it was borrowed for the grain of the heart, then love was derived from it because it affected it and became rooted in it. The love of the servant for God the Almighty is the desire to obey Him and to take care to obtain what pleases Him, and the love of God for the servant is the desire to honor him and use him in obedience, and to protect him from sins. And those who believe are stronger in love for God because their love for God Almighty does not cease, unlike the love of rivals, which is for corrupt, imaginary purposes that disappear at the slightest cause. Therefore, they would turn away from their gods to God Almighty during times of hardship, and they would worship the idol for a time, then reject it for something else.

And if only those who did wrong could see And if only these wrongdoers knew about taking rivals to God when they see the punishment when they witness it on the Day of Resurrection. And the future was made to follow the course of the past because it will be realized, as God Almighty said: And the companions of Paradise will call out.

All power belongs to God is the object of sees, and the answer to if is omitted. That is, if they knew that all power belongs to God, when they saw the punishment,

And among mankind are those who take for themselves other than Allah equals to Him, loving them as they love Allah. But those who believe are stronger in love for Allah. And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to Allah and that Allah is severe in punishment.

they would regret it intensely. It was said that it is the object of the answer and the two objects are omitted, and the meaning is: And if those who did wrong saw that their rivals do not benefit, they would know that all power belongs to God, and no one else benefits or harms. Ibn Amir, Nafi' and Ya'qub read: And if you saw as an address to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that is, if you saw that, you would see a great matter. Ibn Amir: When they see is in the passive form, and Ya'qub: /fwith the kasra, and so is and that God is severe in punishment as a new sentence, or the statement is omitted.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:166

When those who were followed disassociate themselves from those who followed, and they see the punishment, and all ties between them are severed.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

When instead of the before it those who were followed disavowed that is, the leaders from those who followed that is, they denied their misguidance and and they had seen the punishment and the causes the connections that were between them in this world of kinship and affection were severed) in apposition to disavowed them from them

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: When those who were followed disown those who followed and they see the punishment. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: When those who were followed disown those who followed and they see the punishment, those who were followed disown those who followed them. Then the people of interpretation differed about those whom God, the Most High, meant by His saying: When those who were followed disassociate themselves from those who followed, some of them said what: Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid bin Zari' narrated to us, he said: Sa'id narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His saying: When those who were followed disassociate themselves from those who followed, and they are the tyrants, leaders, and chiefs in polytheism, from those who followed, and they are the weak followers, and they see the punishment. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said: Ishaq narrated to us, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada: When those who were followed disassociate themselves from those who followed, he said: The leaders will disassociate themselves from the followers on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Qasim narrated to me, he said: Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said: Hajjaj narrated to me, he said: Ibn Jurayj said: I said to Ata': When those who were followed disassociate themselves from those who followed, he said: Their leaders, chiefs, and masters will disassociate themselves from those who followed them. Others said: It was narrated to me by Musa bin Harun, who said: Amr bin Hammad narrated to us, who said: Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: When those who were followed disassociated themselves from those who followed. As for those who were followed, they are the devils who disassociated themselves from mankind. Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in my opinion regarding this is that God, the Most High, mentioned that those who are followed in associating partners with God will disassociate themselves from their followers when they witness the punishment of God. He did not specify some of them over others, but rather He included all of them. So included in this is every one who is followed in disbelief in God and misguidance, who will disassociate himself from his followers who used to follow him in misguidance in this world, when they witness the punishment of God in the Hereafter. As for the indication of the verse regarding whom it refers to by His statement: When those who followed disassociate themselves from those they followed, it only indicates knowledge that the rivals whom they took besides God, as described by the Most High in His statement: And among mankind are those who take rivals besides God, are those who disassociate themselves from their followers. Since the verse indicates this, the interpretation that al-Suddi interpreted in His statement: And among mankind are those who take rivals besides God, is correct, that the rivals in this place are only meant to be the rivals of men who obey them in what they command them to do, and disobey God in their obedience to them, just as the believers obey God and disobey others. The interpretation of the statement of the one who said: When those who followed disassociate themselves from those they followed, that they are the devils who disassociated themselves from their human allies is corrupted, because this verse is in the context of reporting on those who take rivals. The statement in the interpretation of the saying of God the Almighty: And their ties of kinship are severed. Abu Ja'far said: By that God the Almighty means: that God is severe in punishment, when those who followed disown themselves, and their ties of kinship are severed. Then the people of interpretation differed in the meaning of ties of kinship. Some of them said what: Yahya bin Talhah Al-Yarbou'i narrated to me, he said, Fadil bin Ayyad narrated to us - and Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said, Jarir narrated to us - on the authority of Ubaid Al-Maktab, on the authority of Mujahid: And their ties of kinship are severed, he said: the connection that was between them in this world. Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Habib bin Al-Shaheed narrated to us, he said, Yahya bin Yaman narrated to us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ubaid Al-Maktab, on the authority of Mujahid: And their ties of kinship are severed, he said: their connection in this world. Muhammad bin Bashir narrated to us, he said, Abd Al-Rahman narrated to us, and Ahmad bin Ishaq Al-Ahwazi narrated to us, he said, Abu Ahmad narrated to us - both of them said, Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Ubaid Al-Maktab, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Muhammad ibn Amr told me: Abu Asim told us: Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And their ties of kinship were severed, he said: affection. Al-Muthanna told us: Abu Hudhayfah told us: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Al-Qasim told me: Al-Husayn told me: Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: There was a connection between them through affection in this world. Muhammad ibn Amr told me: Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa: Qays ibn Sa'd told me, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of God, the Most High: And their ties of kinship were severed, he said: affection. Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid bin Zari' narrated, Sa'id narrated, on the authority of Qatada: And their ties will be severed means the ties of remorse on the Day of Resurrection, and the ties of connection that were between them in this world, through which they would connect and love each other, but which will become enmity between them on the Day of Resurrection. Then on the Day of Resurrection, some of you will disbelieve in others, curse each other, and disavow each other. God the Almighty said: Friends, that Day, will be enemies to each other, except for the righteous (al-Zukhruf 43:67). So every friendship will become enmity towards its people except for the friendship of the righteous. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, Abd al-Razzaq narrated, Muammar narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: And their ties will be severed means the ties that were between them in this world. I narrated on the authority of Ammar bin al-Hasan, who narrated on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada: And their ties will be severed means remorse. Some of them said: Rather, the meaning of ties is the positions that they had among the people of this world. Who said that: Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And their causes were cut off, he said: their homes were cut off. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Saad told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far al-Razi, on the authority of al-Rabi' bin Anas: And their causes were cut off, he said: the homes are the homes. Others said: The causes are the wombs. Who said that: Al-Qasim told us, he said, al-Hasan told us, he said, al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said, and Ibn Abbas said: And their causes were cut off, he said: the wombs. Others said: The causes are the deeds that they used to do in this world. Those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for and their causes were cut off, it means actions. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: and their causes were cut off, he said: The causes of their actions. The people of piety were given the causes of their actions as a document, so they take them and are saved, and the others were given the causes of their evil actions, so they were cut off and they went to the Fire. Abu Ja'far said: The causes are the thing that is attached to it. He said: The cause is the rope. Causes is the plural of cause, and it is everything that a man uses to reach his request and need. The rope is called a cause, because it is used to cause the need that cannot be reached except by attaching to it. The road is called a cause, because riding it leads to something that cannot be reached except by cutting it. Marriage is a cause, because it is a cause for sanctity. The means is a cause, to reach the need by it, and likewise everything that is used to attain the requests is a cause for attaining it. If that is the case, then the correct interpretation of His statement: And their ties are cut off is to say: God Almighty informed that those who wronged themselves - from the people of disbelief who died while they were disbelievers - disavow - when they witness the punishment of God - the follower from the follower, and their ties are cut off. God Almighty informed in His Book that some of them curse each other, and He informed about Satan that he says to his friends: "I am not your savior, nor are you my savior. Indeed, I have disbelieved in what you associated before" (Ibrahim 14:22). God Almighty informed that on that day, friends will be enemies to each other, except for the righteous, and that the disbelievers will not support each other on that day, so God Almighty said: "Stop them, for they will be questioned. What is the matter with you that you do not support one another?" (Saffat: 24-25), and that a man among them will not benefit from his relative or a kin, even if his relative is a friend of God, so God Almighty said in that regard: And Abraham's seeking forgiveness for his father was only because of a promise he had made. And he promised him, but when it became clear to him that he was an enemy of God, he disavowed him" (al-Tawbah 9:114) And the Most High informed us that their deeds would become regrets for them. All of these meanings are causes that lead to demands in this world, so God cut off their benefits in the Hereafter from the disbelievers in Him, because they were contrary to His obedience and satisfaction, so they are cut off from their people. Neither did their intercourse with one another benefit them when they came to their Lord, nor did their worship of their rivals, nor did their obedience to their devils? Nor did their wombs defend them and help them from God's vengeance against them, nor did their deeds avail them, rather they became regrets for them. So all of the causes of the disbelievers are cut off. There is no more eloquent meaning - in interpreting His statement: And their causes were cut off - than the description of God [that], and that is what we explained of [cutting off], all of their causes and not some of them, according to what we said about that. And whoever claims that what is meant by that is a specific cause, he was asked about the explanation of his claim from an undisputed origin, and he was opposed by the statement of his opponent in it. He will not say anything about any of these things without being obligated to do the same in the other.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: When those who followed disavowed themselves meaning the masters and leaders disavowed those who followed them in disbelief, according to Qatada, Ata' and Ar-Rabi'. Qatada also said and As-Suddi: They are the misguiding devils who disavowed mankind. It was said: It is general for every followed person. And they saw the punishment meaning the followers and the followed. It was said: With their certainty of it when they saw it in this world. It was said: When they are presented and questioned in the Hereafter.

I said: Both are possible. They will see at death what humiliation they will become, and in the afterlife they will taste painful torment and punishment.

The Almighty said: And their ties were severed meaning the connections that they used to have in this world, such as kinship and other things, according to Mujahid and others. The singular is reason and connection. The root of reason is a rope that is tied to something and pulls it. Then everything that pulls something is made a cause. Al-Suddi and Ibn Zayd said: The causes are their actions. The cause is the direction, and from this is the saying of Zuhair:

Whoever fears the causes of death will be overtaken by it, even if he seeks the causes of heaven with a ladder.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty mentions the state of those who associate partners with Him in this world and their fate in the Hereafter, as they have made equals for Him, i.e., likes and counterparts, worshipping them along with Him and loving them as they love Him, and He is God, there is no god but Him, and He has no opposite, no equal, and no partner with Him. In the two Sahihs, "On the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, he said: I said: O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? He said: To make an equal for God while He created you." And His statement: And those who believe are stronger in love for God and because of their love for God and their complete knowledge of Him and their reverence and monotheism for Him, they do not associate anything with Him, but rather they worship Him alone, and put their trust in Him, and resort to Him in all their affairs. Then the Almighty threatened the polytheists who wronged themselves with that, saying: And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God. Some of them said: The meaning of the speech is that if they saw the punishment, they would know then that all power belongs to God, meaning that the rule belongs to Him alone, with no partner, and that all things are under His control, dominion and authority. And that God is severe in punishment, as He said: So on that Day no one will punish with His punishment, nor will anyone be bound with His bond. He says: If they knew what they would see there and what would befall them of the terrible, reprehensible, and terrible matter due to their polytheism and disbelief, they would stop what they were in of misguidance. Then He informed about their disbelief in their idols and the disavowal of those who were followed, saying: When those who followed disavowed those who followed. The angels who they claimed to worship in the worldly abode disavowed them, so the angels said: "We disavow ourselves before You. They did not worship us." And they said: "Glory be to You! You are our protector instead of them. Rather, they used to worship the jinn, most of them with them." Believers, and the jinn also disavow them and renounce their worship of them, as God Almighty said: "And who is more astray than he who calls upon those besides God who will not respond to him until the Day of Resurrection, while they, of their call, are unaware? And when the people are gathered together, they will be enemies to them and will be disbelievers in their worship." God Almighty also said: "And they have taken besides God deities that they may be a source of honor for them. No! They will disbelieve in their worship and will be opponents to them." Abraham said to his al-Nas 114: "You have only taken idols besides God out of affection among yourselves in worldly life. Then on the Day of Resurrection, some of you will disbelieve in others and curse each other, and your refuge will be the Fire, and you will have no helpers." God Almighty also said: "And if you could but see when the wrongdoers are made to stand before their Lord, some of them returning their words to others. Those who were oppressed will say to those who were arrogant, 'If it were not for you, we would have been believers.' Those who were oppressed will say to those who were oppressed, 'Did we avert you from guidance after it had come to you? Rather, you were criminals.' And those who were oppressed will say to those who were arrogant, 'Rather, it was [your] plotting by night and by day when you ordered us to We disbelieve in God and attribute to Him equals, and they concealed their regret when they saw the punishment. And We placed shackles on the necks of those who disbelieved. Are they recompensed except for what they used to do? And God the Almighty said: And Satan said, when the matter was decided, "Indeed, God promised you the promise of truth, and I promised you, but I failed you. And I had no authority over you except that I invited you and you responded to me. So do not blame me, but blame yourselves. I cannot be your savior, nor can you be my savior. Indeed, I have disbelieved in what you associated before. Indeed, for the wrongdoers is a painful punishment." And His statement: And they saw the punishment, and their means were cut off, meaning they witnessed the punishment of God, and their means and means of salvation were cut off, and they did not find any way out or escape from the Fire. Ata' said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And their ties were cut off. Al-Mawadda said, and Mujahid said the same in the narration of Ibn Abi Nujayh. His statement: "And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance, we could disown them as they disowned us.' " That is, if only we could return to the worldly home so that we could disown these people and their worship, so we would not pay attention to them, but rather we would unify God Almighty with that. For this reason, He said: Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets for them. That is, they will go away and vanish, as God Almighty said: And We will present to them whatever deeds they did and make them as scattered dust. And God Almighty said: The example of those who disbelieve in their Lord is that their deeds are like ashes, which the wind blows violently on a stormy day. And God Almighty said: And those who disbelieve - their deeds are like a mirage in a lowland which a thirsty person thinks is water. And God Almighty said: And they will never emerge from the Fire.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 166- When those who followed disavowed themselves instead of his statement: When they see the punishment and its meaning is: that the masters and leaders disavowed those who followed them in disbelief. And his statement: And they saw the punishment is in the accusative case as a state: meaning the followers and the followed. It was said: when witnessing in this world, and it was said: when being presented and questioned in the Hereafter. And it can be said for both of them as there is no objection to that. His statement: And their causes were cut off is the plural of cause, and its origin in the language is: the rope with which something is tied and pulled, then everything that pulled something was made a cause, and what is meant by it is: the connection by which they used to communicate in this world from kinship and other things, and it was said: it is deeds.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:166

When those who were followed disassociate themselves from those who followed, and they see the punishment, and all ties between them are severed.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

166. When those who followed disown those who followed them and they see the punishment This is on the Day of Resurrection when God will gather the leaders and followers and they will disown one another. This is the opinion of most of the commentators. Al-Suddi said: They are the devils disowning mankind. And the ties that were between them in this world, such as kinship and friendship, will be severed from them, and their friendship will turn into enmity. Ibn Jurayj said: The wombs, as God Almighty said: There will be no kinship between them that Day 101-Al-Mu'minun. Al-Suddi said: He means the deeds that they used to do in this world, as God Almighty said: And We will turn to whatever deeds they did and make them as dust scattered 23-Al-Furqan.

The root of the cause is what leads to something, such as a means, kinship, or affection. From this, a rope is called a cause and a road is called a cause.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

166- When those who followed disavowed those who followed instead of when they see, meaning when the led disavowed the followers. It was read the opposite way, meaning the followers disavowed the leaders. And they saw the punishment meaning seeing it, and the waw is for the state, and it has been implied. It was said, it is in apposition to disavowed. And the causes were cut off from them may be in apposition to disavowed, or they saw, and the waw is for the state, and the first is more apparent. The causes: the connection that was between them from the followers and the agreement on the religion, and the purposes calling for that. The origin of the cause: the rope by which one climbs the tree. It was read and was cut off in the passive form.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:167

And those who followed said, If only we could have another turn so we could disown them as they disowned us. Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets upon them, and they will not emerge from the Fire.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And those who followed said, If only we had another chance to return to this world (so we could disown them that is, those who were followed as they disowned us today. If only is for wishing, and we disown is its answer thus that is, just as He showed them the severity of His punishment and some of them disowned others God will show them their deeds the bad ones as regrets a state of remorse over them, and they will not emerge from the Fire after entering it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance, we would disown them as they disowned us.' Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by the Almighty's saying: And those who followed said, is that the followers of men - whom they had taken as rivals besides God, obeying them in disobeying God, and disobeying their Lord in obeying them, when they see the punishment of God in the Hereafter - said: If only we had another chance. What is meant by the chance is the return to the world, from the saying of the speaker: I have returned to the people a second time, and the chance is a single time, and that is if he attacks them, returning to them after turning away from them, as Al-Akhtal said:

They turned to Fazara as if they were a tribe of men, and then they went to a place of refuge.

And as: Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said, Yazid narrated to us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada: And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance, we could disown them as they disowned us,' meaning: We could return to the world. Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said, Ishaq narrated to us, he said, Ibn Abi Jaafar narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance, we could disown them as they disowned us.' He said: The followers said: If only we had another chance to the world, we could disown them as they disowned us. And his saying: Then we could disown them is in the accusative case, because it is a response to the wish with the letter fa. Because the people wished to return to the world to disavow those who obeyed them in disobeying God, just as their leaders who were followed in the world in disbelief in God disavowed them, when they saw the great punishment that befell them from God, and they said: Oh, if only we could return to the world so we could disavow them, and Oh, if only we could return and not deny the signs of our Lord and be among the believers (al-An'am 6:27). The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Most High: Thus does God show them their deeds as regrets for them. Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of his words: Thus does God show them their deeds, is that just as he showed them the punishment that he mentioned in his words: and they saw the punishment, which they denied in the world, so he also shows them their evil deeds for which they deserved punishment from God as regrets for them, meaning: remorse. And regrets are the plural of regret. And likewise every noun whose singular is fa'ala with the first letter open

The second letter is silent, so if it is pluralized as fa'alaat, such as shahwa and tamara, it is plural shahwat and tamarat, with the second letter of its letters being heavy. But if it is an adjective, then you leave the second letter silent, such as hakama, the plural of which is hakamaat, and 'abla, the plural of which is 'ablaat. And sometimes the second letter is silent in nouns, as the poet said:

The vicissitudes of time and its states guide us to the right path

So the soul rests from its sighs

The second is from the sighs, which is a noun. It was said: Regret is the most severe remorse. If someone were to say to us: How can they see their deeds as regrets for them, while the regretful person only regrets abandoning good deeds and missing them? You know that the disbelievers did not have deeds that they would regret abandoning more of, so God shows them a little of them! Rather, all their deeds were sins against God, and there is no regret for them in that, but the regret is in what they did not do of obedience to God? It was said: The people of interpretation differ in interpreting that, so we will mention what they said about that, then we will inform about what is more deserving of its interpretation, God willing. Some of them said: The meaning of that is: Thus God shows them their deeds that He imposed upon them in this world, but they wasted them and did not do them, until He made it obligatory for them - what God had prepared for them, if they had done them in their lives, of dwellings and blessings - to change them through their obedience to their Lord. So what they missed of the reward - which God had prepared for them with Him if they had obeyed Him in this world, when they saw it when they entered the Fire or before that - became a sorrow, regret and sorrow for them.

Those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Thus does God show them their deeds as regrets for them, he claimed that Paradise will be raised up for them and they will look at it and at their homes in it, if they had obeyed God, and it will be said to them: Those are your dwellings, if you had obeyed God! Then it will be divided among the believers, and they will inherit them. That is when they will regret. Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd Al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Salamah bin Kuhail, he said, Abu Al-Zura' told us, on the authority of Abdullah - in a story he mentioned - he said: There is no soul but that it looks at a house in Paradise and a house in Hell, and that is the Day of Regret. He said: The people of Hell will see those in Paradise, and it will be said to them: If only you had worked! So regret will overtake them. He said: The people of Paradise will see the house in Hell, and it will be said: If only God had not bestowed His favor upon you! If someone were to say: How can deeds that they did not do be attributed to them according to this interpretation? It was said: Just as a man is shown his work and it is said to him before he does it: This is your work. Meaning: This is what you should do. And just as it is said to a man who is preparing his lunch before he eats it: This is your lunch today. Meaning: This is what you will eat for lunch today. So too is His statement: Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets for them, meaning: Thus will God show them their deeds that they were obligated to do in this world as regrets for them. Others said: Thus will God show them their evil deeds as regrets for them. Why did they do them? Why did they not do other deeds that would please God? Those who said that were mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets for them, so their evil deeds will become regrets for them on the Day of Resurrection. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Their deeds as regrets for them, he said: Are not their evil deeds for which God has caused them to enter the Fire? So He made it a regret for them. He said: And He made the deeds of the people of Paradise for them, and he recited the statement of God: For what you put forth in the past days (al-Haqqah 69:24). Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate of the two interpretations of the verse is the interpretation of the one who said: The meaning of His statement: Thus does God show them their deeds as regrets for them, is: Thus does God show the disbelievers their evil deeds as regrets for them. Why did they do them? Why did they not do something else? So they regretted what they had neglected of their evil deeds, when they saw their recompense from God and its punishment, because God informed that He shows them their deeds as regret for them. So what is more appropriate for the interpretation of the verse is what the apparent meaning indicates, not what the hidden meaning implies, which has no indication that it is what is meant by it. And what Al-Suddi said about that, even if it is a doctrine that the verse implies, it is a far-fetched opinion. And there is no trace - that it is as mentioned - that can be accepted as evidence, and there is no indication in the apparent meaning of the verse that it is what is meant by it. Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Almighty means: And these disbelievers whom you described - even if they regretted after witnessing what they witnessed of God's punishment, and their regret for their previous evil deeds became intense, and they wished for the world to return to it so that they could repent and disavow their misguiders and masters whom they obeyed in disobeying God in it - will not come out of the fire that God cast them into by their disbelief in Him in the world, nor will their regret in it save them from God's punishment at that time, but they will remain in it forever. And in this verse is evidence of God's denial of those who claim that God's punishment of the people of Hell from among the disbelievers will end, and that it will come to an end, and after that it will pass away. Because God, the Almighty, mentioned about these people whose description He described in this verse, then concluded the report about them by saying that they will not come out of the fire, without making an exception from Him for a time rather than another. This is endless.

And those who followed said, "If only we could have another turn so we could disown them as they disowned us." Thus will Allah show them their deeds as regrets upon them, and they will not emerge from the Fire.

The Almighty said: And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance' The an is in the nominative case, meaning if it were proven that we would return, then we would disown them is the answer to the wish. The against is the return and reversion to a state that had been, meaning the followers said: If only we were returned to the world so that we could do good and disown them as they disowned us meaning disown as so the kaf is in the accusative case as an attribute of a deleted source. It is permissible for it to be accusative as a state, its confirmation being disowning, and disowning is separation.

God the Almighty said: Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets for them. The Kaf is in the nominative case, meaning that is the matter. That is, just as God showed them the punishment, so will God show them their deeds. God will show them was said to be from seeing with the eyes, so it is transitive with two objects: the first is the Ha and the Meem in show them. The second is their deeds, and regrets is a state. It is possible that it is from seeing with the heart, so regrets is the third object. Their deeds. Al-Rabi' said: meaning the corrupt deeds that they committed, which made Hell obligatory for them. Ibn Mas'ud and Al-Suddi said: the righteous deeds that they abandoned, which made them miss out on Paradise. Hadiths were narrated on this statement. Al-Suddi said: Paradise will be raised up for them, so they will look at it and at their homes in it, if they had obeyed God the Almighty. Then it will be divided among the believers, and that is when they will regret it. These deeds were attributed to them because they were commanded to do them, but the corrupt deeds were attributed to them because they did them. Regret is one of the regrets, like a date and dates, a plate and eyelids, and desire and desires. This is if it is a noun, then its description is quiescent, like you say: huge and huge, and obscene and oblate. Regret is the highest degree of remorse for something lost. Regret is yearning, it is said: I regretted it in the kasra ahsr regret and regret. It is derived from the thing hasir that has been cut off and its strength has gone, like a camel when it becomes tired. It was said: it is derived from hasir if it is uncovered, and from it hasir in war: the one who has no armor with him. And retreat:

The Almighty's saying: And they will not come out of the Fire is evidence of the infidels' eternity in it and that they will not come out of it. This is the saying of the majority of the people of the Sunnah, regarding this verse, and the Almighty's saying: And they will not enter Paradise until a camel passes through the eye of a needle. And it will come.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty mentions the state of those who associate partners with Him in this world and their fate in the Hereafter, as they have made equals for Him, i.e., likes and counterparts, worshipping them along with Him and loving them as they love Him, and He is God, there is no god but Him, and He has no opposite, no equal, and no partner with Him. In the two Sahihs, "On the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, he said: I said: O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? He said: To make an equal for God while He created you." And His statement: And those who believe are stronger in love for God and because of their love for God and their complete knowledge of Him and their reverence and monotheism for Him, they do not associate anything with Him, but rather they worship Him alone, and put their trust in Him, and resort to Him in all their affairs. Then the Almighty threatened the polytheists who wronged themselves with that, saying: And if only those who did wrong could see when they see the punishment that all power belongs to God. Some of them said: The meaning of the speech is that if they saw the punishment, they would know then that all power belongs to God, meaning that the rule belongs to Him alone, with no partner, and that all things are under His control, dominion and authority. And that God is severe in punishment, as He said: So on that Day no one will punish with His punishment, nor will anyone be bound with His bond. He says: If they knew what they would see there and what would befall them of the terrible, reprehensible, and terrible matter due to their polytheism and disbelief, they would stop what they were in of misguidance. Then He informed about their disbelief in their idols and the disavowal of those who were followed, saying: When those who followed disavowed those who followed. The angels who they claimed to worship in the worldly abode disavowed them, so the angels said: "We disavow ourselves before You. They did not worship us." And they said: "Glory be to You! You are our protector instead of them. Rather, they used to worship the jinn, most of them with them." Believers, and the jinn also disavow them and renounce their worship of them, as God Almighty said: "And who is more astray than he who calls upon those besides God who will not respond to him until the Day of Resurrection, while they, of their call, are unaware? And when the people are gathered together, they will be enemies to them and will be disbelievers in their worship." God Almighty also said: "And they have taken besides God deities that they may be a source of honor for them. No! They will disbelieve in their worship and will be opponents to them." Abraham said to his al-Nas 114: "You have only taken idols besides God out of affection among yourselves in worldly life. Then on the Day of Resurrection, some of you will disbelieve in others and curse each other, and your refuge will be the Fire, and you will have no helpers." God Almighty also said: "And if you could but see when the wrongdoers are made to stand before their Lord, some of them returning their words to others. Those who were oppressed will say to those who were arrogant, 'If it were not for you, we would have been believers.' Those who were oppressed will say to those who were oppressed, 'Did we avert you from guidance after it had come to you? Rather, you were criminals.' And those who were oppressed will say to those who were arrogant, 'Rather, it was [your] plotting by night and by day when you ordered us to We disbelieve in God and attribute to Him equals, and they concealed their regret when they saw the punishment. And We placed shackles on the necks of those who disbelieved. Are they recompensed except for what they used to do? And God the Almighty said: And Satan said, when the matter was decided, "Indeed, God promised you the promise of truth, and I promised you, but I failed you. And I had no authority over you except that I invited you and you responded to me. So do not blame me, but blame yourselves. I cannot be your savior, nor can you be my savior. Indeed, I have disbelieved in what you associated before. Indeed, for the wrongdoers is a painful punishment." And His statement: And they saw the punishment, and their means were cut off, meaning they witnessed the punishment of God, and their means and means of salvation were cut off, and they did not find any way out or escape from the Fire. Ata' said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And their ties were cut off. Al-Mawadda said, and Mujahid said the same in the narration of Ibn Abi Nujayh. His statement: "And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance, we could disown them as they disowned us.' " That is, if only we could return to the worldly home so that we could disown these people and their worship, so we would not pay attention to them, but rather we would unify God Almighty with that. For this reason, He said: Thus will God show them their deeds as regrets for them. That is, they will go away and vanish, as God Almighty said: And We will present to them whatever deeds they did and make them as scattered dust. And God Almighty said: The example of those who disbelieve in their Lord is that their deeds are like ashes, which the wind blows violently on a stormy day. And God Almighty said: And those who disbelieve - their deeds are like a mirage in a lowland which a thirsty person thinks is water. And God Almighty said: And they will never emerge from the Fire.

Fath al-Qadir

And the ball: the return and the return to a state that had been, and if here it is in the meaning of a wish as if it was said: If only we had a chance, and that is why the fa was in the answer. The meaning is: The followers said: If only we were returned to the world so that we could do good deeds and disown them as they disowned us. And the kaf in his saying: 167- As they disowned us is in the accusative case as an attribute of a deleted source, and it was said: In the accusative case as a state, but I do not see it as correct. And his saying: Thus does God show them is in the nominative case: meaning the matter is thus: meaning as God showed them the punishment, He shows them their deeds, and if this vision is visual, then his saying: regrets is in the accusative case as a state, and if it is the tribe, then it is the third object, and the meaning is: That God shows them their corrupt deeds and they are regrets for them, or He shows them the righteous deeds that He made obligatory upon them and they abandoned them and that is regret for them. His saying: And they will not come out of the Fire is evidence of the eternal existence of the infidels in the Fire. The apparent meaning of this construction indicates exclusivity, and Al-Zamakhshari made it for emphasis for a purpose of his that goes back to the school of thought, and research into this would take a long time.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:167

And those who followed said, "If only we could have another turn so we could disown them as they disowned us." Thus will Allah show them their deeds as regrets upon them, and they will not emerge from the Fire.

Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement: And of mankind are those who take for themselves rivals to God, he said: To show off and harm the truth with rivals. And those who believe are stronger in love for God, he said: than the disbelievers for their gods. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Zaid regarding this verse, he said: These polytheists, their rivals are their gods whom they worshipped along with God, they love them as those who believe love God. And those who believe are stronger in love for God, than their love for their gods. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding the verse, he said: The rivals among men obey them as they obey God. If they command them, they obey them and disobey God. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Ikrimah something similar to what Ibn Zaid said. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Az-Zubairi regarding his statement: And if those who did wrong could see, he said: And if you could see, O Muhammad, those who wronged themselves and took for themselves rivals besides Me whom they love as you love Me when they witness My punishment on the Day of Resurrection which I have prepared for them, you would know that all power is Mine, not rivals, and the gods will not avail them at all there nor will they ward off from them the punishment that I have inflicted upon them, and I have made them certain that My punishment is severe for whoever disbelieves in Me and claims with Me a god other than Me. Abd bin Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement: When those who followed disassociate themselves, he said: They are the tyrants, leaders and chiefs in polytheism. From those who followed, he said: They are the devils who disassociated themselves from mankind. Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And ties have been severed for them, he said: Love. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: They are the dwelling places. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on his authority that he said: They are the wombs. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Abu Nu'aym in Al-Hilya narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: It is the bonds that were between them in this world and the love. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Abu Salih who said: It is the deeds. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ar-Rabi' who said: It is the dwellings. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement: If only we had another chance he said: A return to this world. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah regarding his statement: Regrets he said: Their evil deeds will become a regret for them on the Day of Resurrection. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding his statement: And they will never get out of the Fire he said: Those are its people who are its people. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Thabit bin Ma'bad who said: The people of the Fire continued to hope to get out of it until the verse And they will never get out of the Fire was revealed.

167. And those who followed meaning the followers said, 'If only we had another chance' meaning a return to the world we could disown them meaning those who were followed as they disowned us today thus meaning as He showed them the punishment, thus God will show them and it was said as some of them disown each other, God will show them their deeds as regrets remorse upon them the plural of regret. It was said that God will show them what evil deeds they committed so they regret what they did, and it was said that He will show them what good deeds they left behind so they regretted wasting them. Ibn Kaysan said: They associated idols with God hoping that it would bring them closer to God, the Almighty and Majestic, but when they were punished for what they were hoping for as a reward, they regretted and repented. Al-Suddi said: Paradise will be raised up for them, and they will look at it and at their homes in it if they had obeyed God. It will be said to them, Those are your dwellings if you had obeyed God. Then it will be divided among the believers, and that is when they will regret and be sorry. And they will not come out of the Fire.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

167- And those who followed said, 'If only we had another chance to return, we could disown them as they disowned us.' "If" is for wishing, and therefore it was answered with the letter fa, meaning, if only we had another chance to return to the world, we could disown them. "Likewise" is like those terrible opinions. "God will show them their deeds as regrets for them. Regrets, and they are the third object of see" if it is from the vision of the heart, otherwise it is a condition. "And they will not come out of the Fire. Its original form is and they will not come out," so it was changed to this expression, to exaggerate the eternity and despair of salvation and returning to the world.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:168

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed about those who forbade the free-range animals and the like: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful a state and good an emphatic description, meaning enjoyable and do not follow the footsteps of Satan's] paths meaning his adornment for indeed, he is to you a clear enemy between enmity

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good and do not follow the footsteps of Satan. Indeed, he is to you a clear enemy." Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by that: O mankind, eat from the foods that I have made lawful for you through the tongue of My Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. I have made it good for you - from what you forbid yourselves of the bahā'ir, the sawa'ib, the wasa'il, and the like of that which I have not forbidden to you - but not from the foods and edibles that I have forbidden to you and made impure of dead animals, blood, pork, and that which has been sacrificed to someone other than Me. And leave the footsteps of Satan - who will destroy you, bring you to the depths of ruin, and forbid you from your property - so do not follow them or act upon them. Indeed, he - meaning by his saying: he Satan, and the ha in his saying: he refers to Satan - is to you, O people, a clear enemy, meaning: he has made his enmity clear to you, by his refusal to prostrate to your father, and his deceit of him until he expelled him from Paradise, and made him slip into sin, and he ate from the tree. The Almighty says: "O people, do not seek his advice, even though he has made his enmity clear to you. Leave what he commands you to do, and adhere to my obedience in what I have commanded you to do and forbidden you from, which I have made lawful for you and forbidden for you, except for what you have forbidden for yourselves, which you have made lawful, in obedience to Satan and following his command." The meaning of his statement: lawful is absolute ⁷. It is a source from the saying of the speaker: This thing has become lawful for you, meaning it has become absolutely for you, so it is lawful for you as lawful and permissible. And from the speech of the Arabs: It is permissible for you, meaning: absolute. As for his statement: good, he means by it: pure, not impure or forbidden. As for the steps, it is the plural of step, and the step is the distance between the two feet of the walker. And the step with the opening of the kha is the single action from the saying of the speaker: I took one step. The step may be a plural of a mistake, and the step may be a plural of steps and a mistake. The meaning of the prohibition of following his steps is the prohibition of his path and his effect in what he called for, which is contrary to the obedience of God Almighty. The people of interpretation differed in the meaning of the steps. Some of them said: The steps of Satan: his work. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: The steps of Satan, he said: his work. Some of them said: The steps of Satan, his sins. Those who said: Muhammad bin Amr told me, Abu Asim told us, Issa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, in his saying: The steps of Satan, he said: his sin. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: his sins. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to us, he said: Abdul-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Muammar narrated to us, from Qatada, regarding his statement: And do not follow the footsteps of Satan, he said: His sins. Yahya bin Abi Talib narrated to me, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Juwaybir narrated to us, from Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: The footsteps of Satan, he said: The sins of Satan that he commands. Others said: The footsteps of Satan, is obeying him. Those who said that: Musa bin Harun narrated to me, he said: Amr narrated to us, he said: Asbat narrated to us, from As-Suddi: And do not follow the footsteps of Satan, he said: Obeying him. Others said: The footsteps of Satan, are vows to commit sins. Those who said that: Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said: Jarir narrated to us, from Sulayman, from Abu Majlaz, regarding his statement: And do not follow the footsteps of Satan, he said: They are vows to commit sins. Abu Ja'far said: These statements that we have mentioned from those we have mentioned about the interpretation of his statement: The footsteps of Satan, are close in meaning to each other. Because each of them said something about that, he indicated the prohibition of following Satan in his traces and actions. However, the true interpretation of the word is what I have explained, that it is - after what is between his feet, then it is used in all of his traces and ways, as I have explained.

It has four issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: O mankind verse. It was said that it was revealed about Thaqeef, Khuza'ah, and Banu Mudlij regarding the livestock they forbade themselves, and the wording is general. Here, good means permissible, so it is an emphasis on the difference in wording. This is what Malik said about good. Al-Shafi'i said: Good means pleasant, so it is a variation, and therefore it is forbidden to eat dirty animals. This will be explained in Al-An'am and Al-A'raf, God willing.

Second: The Almighty's saying: Lawful and good. "Lawful" is a state, and it was said that it is a passive participle. And the lawful was called lawful because the prohibition was dissolved from it. Sahl ibn Abdullah said: Salvation is in three things: eating lawful things, performing the obligatory duties, and following the example of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Abu Abdullah al-Saji, whose name is Saeed ibn Yazid, said: Five characteristics complete knowledge, and they are: knowing God Almighty, knowing the truth, sincerity in action for God, acting according to the Sunnah, and eating lawful things. If one of them is missing, the action is not lifted. Sahl said: Eating lawful things is not valid except with knowledge, and money is not lawful until it is free from six characteristics: usury, unlawful things, ill-gotten gains - and this is a general name - embezzlement, what is disliked, and suspicion.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And do not follow is a prohibition in the footsteps of Satan. "Khatwat" is the plural of Khatwat and Khatwat means the same thing. Al-Farra' said: Khatwat is the plural of Khatwat with a fat-ha. Khatwat with a damma is what is between the feet. Al-Jawhari said: The plural of "Khatwat" is Khatwat and Khatwat and Khatwat and the plural of Khatwat with a fat-ha is Khatwat like Rukwat and Rukwat. Imru' al-Qais said:

She has leaps like the leaps of gazelles, a heart full of mistakes and a valley of rain.

Abu Samal Al-Adawi and Ubaid ibn Umair read Khatawat with a fatha on the kha and ta. It was narrated on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, Qatadah, Al-A'raj, Amr bin Maymun and Al-A'mash Khatawat with a damma on the kha and ta and a hamza on the waw. Al-Akhfash said: They went with this reading to the effect that it is the plural of sin, from khata', not from khatwa. The meaning according to the reading of the majority is: Do not follow the traces of Satan and his work, and whatever the Shari'ah did not refer to is attributed to Satan. Ibn Abbas said: The steps of Satan are his works. Mujahid: His sins. Al-Suddi: His obedience. Abu Majlaz: They are vows to commit sins.

I said: The correct wording is general in all innovations and sins except the Sunnahs and laws. The discussion of Satan has been presented in full.

Fourth: The Almighty's statement: Indeed, Satan is to you a clear enemy. God the Almighty informed us that Satan is an enemy, and His report is true and honest. So, it is the duty of the wise person to take heed of this enemy who has made his enmity clear since the time of Adam, and has devoted himself and his life to corrupting the affairs of the children of Adam. God the Almighty has commanded us to beware of him, as He, the Most High, said: "And do not follow the footsteps of Satan. Indeed, he is to you a clear enemy. He only orders you to evil and immorality, and to say about God that which you do not know." And He said: Satan threatens you with poverty and orders you to immorality. And He said: Satan wants to lead them far astray. And He said: "Satan only wants to cause between you animosity and hatred through intoxicants and gambling and to avert you from the remembrance of God and from prayer. So will you not desist?" And He said: "Indeed, Satan is an enemy to you, so take him as an enemy. He only invites his party to be among the companions of the Blaze." This is the ultimate warning, and there are many examples of it in the Qur'an. Abdullah bin Omar said: Satan is chained in the lowest earth, and if he moves, then every evil on earth between two or more is due to his movement. Al-Tirmidhi narrated from the hadith of Abu Malik Al-Ash'ari, in which it says:

"And I command you to remember God, for the example of that is like that of a man who is pursued by the enemy quickly until he reaches a strong fortress and protects himself from them. Likewise, the servant does not protect himself from Satan except by remembering God." The hadith. And he said about it: A good, authentic, strange hadith.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

When the Almighty made clear that there is no god but Him, and that He is the Independent Creator, He began to make clear that He is the Provider for all of His creation. He mentioned in one place: gratitude that He permitted them to eat from what is on the earth in a state of being lawful from God and good, meaning pleasant in itself and not harmful to the body or the mind. He forbade them from following the footsteps of Satan, which are his ways and paths in what he led his followers astray in, such as prohibiting the Baha'ir, the Sa'ib, the Wasa'il, and the like, which he had made attractive to them in their ignorance, as in the hadith of 'Iyad ibn Himar in Sahih Muslim on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, "God Almighty says: All wealth that I have granted to My servants is lawful for them - and in it - and if I created My servants as monotheists, then the devils came to them and led them astray from their religion, and forbade them what I had made lawful for them." And Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr ibn Mardawayh said: Sulayman ibn Ahmad told us, Muhammad ibn 'Isa ibn Shaybah Al-Masri told us, Al-Husayn ibn 'Abd Ar-Rahman Al-Ihtiyazi, Abu Abdullah Al-Jawzjani, a companion of Ibrahim bin Adham, told us, Ibn Jurayj told us, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: This verse was recited to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good. Then Saad bin Abi Waqqas stood up and said: O Messenger of God, ask God to make me one whose supplication is answered. He said: O Saad, make your food pure, and your supplication will be answered. By the One in Whose Hand is the soul of Muhammad, a man may throw a forbidden morsel into his stomach, and it will not be accepted from him for forty days. And any servant whose flesh grows from ill-gotten gains and usury, the Fire is more deserving of him.

And His saying: "Indeed, Satan is an enemy to you, so take him as an enemy. He only invites his party to be among the companions of the Blaze." And the Most High said: Will you then take him and his descendants as allies instead of Me, while they are an enemy to you? An evil exchange for the wrongdoers. Qatadah and

O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good and do not follow the footsteps of Satan. Indeed, he is to you a clear enemy.

As-Suddi said about His saying: And do not follow the footsteps of Satan: Every disobedience to God is from the footsteps of Satan. Ikrimah said: They are the temptations of Satan. Mujahid said: His steps or he said his mistakes. Abu Majlaz said: They are vows in disobedience. Al-Sha'bi said: A man vowed to slaughter his son, so Masruq gave him a fatwa to slaughter a ram, and he said: This is from the footsteps of Satan. Abu Ad-Duha said on the authority of Masruq that Abdullah ibn Mas'ud was brought milk and salt, and he began to eat, so a man from the people withdrew, so Ibn Mas'ud said: Give it to your companion. He said: I do not want it. He said: Are you fasting? He said: No. He said: What is the matter with you? He said: I have forbidden myself to eat udder milk ever. Ibn Mas'ud said: This is from the footsteps of Satan, so eat and atone for your oath. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. He also said: My father told us, Hassan bin Abdullah Al-Masry told us, on the authority of Sulayman Al-Taymi, on the authority of Abu Rafi', who said: I was angry one day with my wife, and she said: One day she is Jewish and one day she is Christian, and every slave of hers is free if you do not divorce your wife. So I went to Abdullah bin Umar, who said: This is from the footsteps of Satan. Zaynab bint Umm Salamah said the same, and she was the most knowledgeable woman in Madinah at that time. I went to Asim and Ibn Umar, and they said the same thing. Abd bin Hamid said: Abu Na'im told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Abd Al-Karim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Whatever is an oath or vow made in anger is from the footsteps of Satan, and its atonement is the atonement for an oath. His statement: He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about God that which you do not know. That is, your enemy, Satan, only commands you to do evil deeds, the most serious of which is immorality, such as adultery and the like, and more serious than that is saying about God without knowledge. This includes every unbeliever and every innovator as well.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 168- O people It was said: It was revealed about Thaqeef, Khuza'ah and Banu Mudlij regarding the livestock they forbade themselves. Al-Qurtubi narrated it in his interpretation, but the consideration is the generality of the wording and not the specificity of the reason. And his saying: Halal is an object or a state, and the lawful was called lawful because the knot of prohibition was dissolved from it. And the good here is the pleasant as Al-Shafi'i and others said. Malik and others said: It is the lawful, so it is an emphasis on his saying: Halal. And the min in his saying: from what is on earth is for the partiality to definite that on earth there is what is forbidden Khatawat is the plural of Khatwa with the fatha and damma, and it is with the fatha for the time, and with the damma for what is between the feet. The reciters read Khatu'at with the fatha of the kha, and Abu Samak read with the fatha of the kha and the ta, and Ali, Qatadah, Al-A'raj, Amr bin Maymun and Al-A'mash read Khatu'at with the damma of the kha and the ta and the hamza on the waw. Al-Akhfash said: They went with this reading to the fact that it is the plural of khatiyah from khatu, not from khatu. Al-Jawhari said: The khatwa with the fathah means one time, and the plural is khatat and khatat. The meaning according to the reading of the majority is: Do not follow the traces of Satan and his work, and everything that is not mentioned in the Shari'ah is attributed to Satan. It was said: It is vows and sins, and it is better to generalize and not to specify an individual or type. His statement: Indeed, he is to you a clear enemy means apparent enmity, and similar to it is the statement of the Most High: Indeed, he is a clear, misleading enemy and His statement: Indeed, Satan is an enemy to you, so take him as an enemy.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

168. The Almighty's saying: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good. It was revealed about Thaqeef, Khuza'ah, Amir ibn Sa'sa'ah, and Banu Mudlij regarding what they forbade themselves of tillage, livestock, baheerah, sa'ibah, wasilah, and ham. The lawful is what the Shari'ah has made lawful and good. It was said: what is palatable and enjoyable. The Muslim finds the lawful good and rejects the unlawful. It was said: the good is the pure. And do not follow the footsteps of Satan. Abu Ja'far, Ibn Amir, Al-Kisa'i, Hafs, and Ya'qub read it with a damma on the ta', and the rest read it with a sukoon. The footsteps of Satan are his traces and slips. It was said: they are the vows in sins. Abu Ubaidah said: they are the minor sins. Al-Zajaj said: His methods Indeed, he is to you a clear enemy indicate enmity, and it was said: the manifestation of enmity. He showed his enmity by refusing to prostrate to Adam and his deception of him until he expelled him from Paradise.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

168- O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful. This was revealed about a people who forbade themselves fine foods and clothing. Halal is the object of eat, or an adjective of a deleted source, or a state of what is on the earth. Min is for partiality, since everything on the earth is eaten good, which is deemed good by the law or by upright desire. Since halal indicates the first. And do not follow the footsteps of Satan, do not follow his example in following desires, forbidding what is lawful and permitting what is unlawful. Nafi', Abu Amr, Hamza, Al-Bazzi, and Abu Bakr read it with a sukoon on the ta, where it occurred. They are two dialects for the plural of khatwa, which is what is between the feet of the sinner. It was read with two dammahs and a hamza, making the dammah of the ta' as if it were on it, and with two fathahs, as it is the plural of khatwa, which is the time of khatwa. Indeed, he is a clear enemy to you. The enmity is apparent to those with insight, even if he appears to be loyal to the one who misleads him. That is why he called him a guardian in the Almighty's saying: Their allies are the false gods.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:169

He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about Allah that which you do not know.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:169

He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about God that which you do not know.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

He only orders you to do evil sin and immorality that which is ugly according to Islamic law and that you say about God what you do not know such as forbidding what He has not forbidden and other things.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Almighty: He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about God that which you do not know. Abu Ja'far said: God the Almighty means by His words: He only commands you, the devil, to do evil and immorality and to say about God that which you do not know. Evil is sin, like harm, from the saying of the speaker: This matter displeases you, it displeases you badly, which is what displeases the doer. As for immorality, it is a source like prosperity and adversity, and it is everything that is disgraceful to mention and ugly to hear. It was said: The evil that God mentioned is the sins of God. If that is the case, then God called it evil because it displeases its doer with the evil of its consequences for him with God. It was said: Immorality is adultery. If that is the case, then it is only called [thus] because of the ugliness of its hearing and the abhorrentness of what its doer is mentioned with. Mention of those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: He only orders you to do evil and immorality. As for evil, it is disobedience, and as for immorality, it is adultery. As for His statement: And that you say about God what you do not know, it is what they used to forbid of the bahīr, sā'ib, wasīl, and hawāmī, and they claim that God forbade that. So God, the Exalted, said to them: God has not ordained any bahīr, nor sā'ib, nor wasīl, nor hawām, but those who disbelieve invent lies about God, and most of them do not reason. (al-Ma'idah 5:103) So God, the Exalted, informed them in this verse that their saying: God has forbidden this! From the lies that Satan commands them to tell, and that He has made it permissible for them and made it good, and has not forbidden them to eat it, but they say about God what they do not know the truth of, out of obedience to Satan, and following in his footsteps, and following in the footsteps of their misguided ancestors and ignorant fathers, who were ignorant of God and what He revealed to His Messenger, and were astray from the truth and His path, and extravagant on their part, as God revealed in His Book to His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, when He, the Most High, said: And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' they say, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing.'

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about God what you do not know.

God the Almighty said: He only orders you to do evil and indecency. Evil is called evil because it makes its doer miserable with bad consequences. It is the source of sa'ahu which means it saddens him. Sa'atahu means it makes him sad, so he is sad. God the Almighty said: The faces of those who disbelieve will be made ugly. The poet said:

If this life has made me sad, life has always made me happy.

The matter is the same for me in both cases, for one, thanks and for the other, patience

Obscenity is originally an ugly sight, as he said:

Good as the gazelle's, not obscene

Then the word was used in ugly meanings. The Sharia is what makes good and bad, so everything that the Sharia forbids is indecency. Muqatil said: Everything in the Qur'an that mentions indecency is adultery, except for His statement: Satan threatens you with poverty and orders you to indecency, which is the prohibition of zakat.

I said: Based on this, it was said: Evil is that for which there is no limit, and obscenity is that for which there is a limit. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and others, and God Almighty knows best.

The Almighty said: And that you say about God what you do not know. Al-Tabari said: He means what they forbade of the bahīrah and the sā'ibah and the like of what they made lawful. And that you say is in the accusative case in apposition to the Almighty's saying: with evil and indecency.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

When the Almighty made clear that there is no god but Him, and that He is the Independent Creator, He began to make clear that He is the Provider for all of His creation. He mentioned in one place: gratitude that He permitted them to eat from what is on the earth in a state of being lawful from God and good, meaning pleasant in itself and not harmful to the body or the mind. He forbade them from following the footsteps of Satan, which are his ways and paths in what he led his followers astray in, such as prohibiting the Baha'ir, the Sa'ib, the Wasa'il, and the like, which he had made attractive to them in their ignorance, as in the hadith of 'Iyad ibn Himar in Sahih Muslim on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, "God Almighty says: All wealth that I have granted to My servants is lawful for them - and in it - and if I created My servants as monotheists, then the devils came to them and led them astray from their religion, and forbade them what I had made lawful for them." And Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr ibn Mardawayh said: Sulayman ibn Ahmad told us, Muhammad ibn 'Isa ibn Shaybah Al-Masri told us, Al-Husayn ibn 'Abd Ar-Rahman Al-Ihtiyazi, Abu Abdullah Al-Jawzjani, a companion of Ibrahim bin Adham, told us, Ibn Jurayj told us, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: This verse was recited to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good. Then Saad bin Abi Waqqas stood up and said: O Messenger of God, ask God to make me one whose supplication is answered. He said: O Saad, make your food pure, and your supplication will be answered. By the One in Whose Hand is the soul of Muhammad, a man may throw a forbidden morsel into his stomach, and it will not be accepted from him for forty days. And any servant whose flesh grows from ill-gotten gains and usury, the Fire is more deserving of him.

And His saying: "Indeed, Satan is an enemy to you, so take him as an enemy. He only invites his party to be among the companions of the Blaze." And the Most High said: Will you then take him and his descendants as allies instead of Me, while they are an enemy to you? An evil exchange for the wrongdoers. Qatadah and As-Suddi said about His saying: And do not follow the footsteps of Satan: Every disobedience to God is from the footsteps of Satan. Ikrimah said: They are the temptations of Satan. Mujahid said: His steps or he said his mistakes. Abu Majlaz said: They are vows in disobedience. Al-Sha'bi said: A man vowed to slaughter his son, so Masruq gave him a fatwa to slaughter a ram, and he said: This is from the footsteps of Satan. Abu Ad-Duha said on the authority of Masruq that Abdullah ibn Mas'ud was brought milk and salt, and he began to eat, so a man from the people withdrew, so Ibn Mas'ud said: Give it to your companion. He said: I do not want it. He said: Are you fasting? He said: No. He said: What is the matter with you? He said: I have forbidden myself to eat udder milk ever. Ibn Mas'ud said: This is from the footsteps of Satan, so eat and atone for your oath. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. He also said: My father told us, Hassan bin Abdullah Al-Masry told us, on the authority of Sulayman Al-Taymi, on the authority of Abu Rafi', who said: I was angry one day with my wife, and she said: One day she is Jewish and one day she is Christian, and every slave of hers is free if you do not divorce your wife. So I went to Abdullah bin Umar, who said: This is from the footsteps of Satan. Zaynab bint Umm Salamah said the same, and she was the most knowledgeable woman in Madinah at that time. I went to Asim and Ibn Umar, and they said the same thing. Abd bin Hamid said: Abu Na'im told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Abd Al-Karim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Whatever is an oath or vow made in anger is from the footsteps of Satan, and its atonement is the atonement for an oath. His statement: He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about God that which you do not know. That is, your enemy, Satan, only commands you to do evil deeds, the most serious of which is immorality, such as adultery and the like, and more serious than that is saying about God without knowledge. This includes every unbeliever and every innovator as well.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 169- With evil Evil is called evil because it makes its owner bad with the bad outcome, and it is the source of sa'ahu which means it makes him sad. And obscenity is originally bad sight, and from it the poet said:

Good as the good of the womb is not obscene

Then it was used in ugly meanings. It was said: evil: ugly, and obscenity: exceeding the limit in ugliness. It was said: evil: what has no limit, and obscenity: what has a limit. It was said: obscenity: adultery. It was said: everything that the Shariah forbade is obscenity. And His statement: And that you say about God what you do not know Ibn Jarir al-Tabari said: He means what they forbade from the bahīrah and the sā'ibah and the like of them which they made a law. It was said: It is their saying this is permissible and this is forbidden without knowledge. And it appears that it is true for everything that was mentioned in the Shariah without knowledge. And in this verse is evidence that everything that has no text or apparent meaning from the objects found on earth is originally permissible until evidence is presented that requires its prohibition. And the clearest evidence of that from this verse is the statement of God the Most High: It is He who created for you whatever is on the earth.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

169. And it is clear that it is transitive and intransitive, then he mentioned his enmity and said: He only orders you to do evil meaning to sin. The root of evil is that which makes its doer sad, and it is the source of sa'a yusu'u su'u and ma'sa'ah, meaning it saddened him, and sawatuhu fasa'a means I saddened him, so he was sad. And indecency is the sins and what is ugly in speech and action, and it is a source like sira' and sira'. Bazan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Indecency is the sin for which a punishment is required, and evil is the sin for which there is no punishment. Al-Suddi said: It is adultery, and it was said that it is miserliness. That you say about God what you do not know of forbidding crops and livestock.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

169- He only orders you to do evil and immorality is a statement of his enmity and the necessity of avoiding following him. The command was used metaphorically to adorn him and send them to evil, belittling their opinion and degrading their status. Evil and immorality are what the mind rejects and the Shari'ah finds ugly. The conjunction is due to the difference between the two descriptions, as evil is due to the mind being concerned about it, and immorality is due to its being found ugly. It was said: evil includes all ugly things, and immorality is what exceeds the limit in ugliness among the major sins. It was said: the first is what has no limit, and the second is what has been legislated for.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:169

He only commands you to do evil and immorality and to say about Allah that which you do not know.

And that you say about God what you do not know such as taking rivals, making forbidden things permissible, and forbidding good things. It is evidence of the prohibition of following conjecture completely. As for the mujtahid following what he leads to based on conjecture based on a Shari'ah-based evidence, its obligation is definite, and conjecture is in a way as we explained in the books of Usul.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:170

And when it is said to them, "Follow what Allah has revealed," they say, "Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing." Even though their fathers did not understand anything, nor were they guided?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when it is said to them meaning the disbelievers Follow what God has revealed of monotheism and the permissibility of good things they say No rather we will follow what we found we found our fathers doing of worshipping idols and forbidding the sa'i and the lakes. God the Almighty said: A They follow them even though their fathers did not understand anything of the matter of religion nor were they guided to the truth and the hamza is for denial

God Almighty said: And when it is said to them, Follow the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed or Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called the Jews to...

Islam and encouraged them to do so and warned them of God's punishment and vengeance. Rafi' bin Huraymila and Malik bin Auf said: Rather, O Muhammad, we will follow what we found our sons doing, for they were more knowledgeable and better than us. So God revealed about that: "And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' the verse:

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' they say, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing.' Even though their fathers did not understand anything and were not guided." Abu Ja'far said: There are two aspects of interpretation in this verse.

One of them: That the ha' and the mim in His statement: And when it is said to them refer to whom in His statement: And among mankind are those who take others besides God as equals, so the meaning of the statement is: And among mankind are those who take others besides God as equals. And when it is said to them: Follow what God has revealed, they say: Rather, we follow what we found our fathers doing. The other: That the ha' and the mim in His statement: And when it is said to them are from the mention of the people who are in His statement: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good, so that is a shift from addressing to reporting on the absent, as in the statement of God the Most High: Until, when you were in the ships and they sailed with them with a good wind (Yunus 10:22). Abu Ja'far said: What is more correct to me and more appropriate for the interpretation of the verse is that the ha' and the mim in His statement to them are from the mention of the people, and that is a shift from addressing to reporting on the absent. Because that follows His statement: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth. So it is more appropriate for it to be report about them than it is report about those who were informed that among them were those who take rivals to God, with what is between them of verses, and the interruption of their stories with a new story other than it, and that it was revealed about a group of Jews who said that, when they were called to Islam, as: Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah ibn al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called the Jews of the People of the Book to Islam and encouraged them to do so, and warned them of God's punishment and vengeance, so Rafi' ibn Kharijah and Malik ibn Awf said to him: Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing, for they were more knowledgeable and better than us, so God revealed about that from their statement: "And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' they say, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing.' Even if their fathers did not understand anything and were not guided." Abu Kuraib told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit, told me, Saeed bin Jubair, or Ikrimah, told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly - except that he said: Abu Rafi bin Kharijah and Malik bin Auf said to him. As for the interpretation of his statement: Follow what God has revealed, it is: Do what God has revealed in His Book to His Messenger, so make lawful what He has made lawful and forbid what He has made unlawful, and make him an imam for you whom you follow, and a leader whose rulings you follow. And his statement: We found our fathers doing it, means: we found, as the poet said:

I found him not repenting or remembering God except a little.

Meaning: I found it, and as: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: They said, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing,' meaning: what we found our fathers doing. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, similarly. Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of the verse is: And when it is said to these disbelievers: Eat of what God has made lawful for you, and abandon the steps and path of Satan, and act according to what God has revealed to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in His Book, they will be too arrogant to submit to the truth and will say: Rather, we will follow our fathers and follow what we found them doing, of making lawful what they used to make lawful and prohibiting what they used to prohibit. God, the Most High, said: Or if their fathers - meaning: the fathers of these disbelievers who continued in their disbelief in God the Almighty - did not understand anything of God's religion and His obligations, His commands and prohibitions, so that they would follow the path they took and their actions would be followed - nor were they guided to the right path, so that others would be guided by them and those who seek the religion and want the truth and what is right would follow them? God, the Most High, says to these disbelievers: How... O people, do you follow what you found your fathers doing in order to abandon what God commands you?

Surat al-Baqarah 2:170

And when it is said to them, "Follow what Allah has revealed," they say, "Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing." Even though their fathers did not understand anything, nor were they guided?

Your Lord is with you, and your fathers do not understand anything about God's command, nor are they right, nor do they realize the right path? The follower only follows the one who has knowledge of the thing used for it in himself. As for the ignorant, no one follows him - in what he is ignorant of - except the one who has no mind or discernment.

It contains seven issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And when it is said to them meaning the Arab infidels. Ibn Abbas: It was revealed about the Jews. Al-Tabari: The pronoun in them refers to the people from the Almighty's saying: O mankind, eat. And Qay: It refers to who in the Almighty's saying: And among mankind are those who take others besides God the verse. And His saying: Follow what God has revealed meaning by accepting and acting. "They said: Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing." We found: we found. And the poet said:

I found him not repenting or remembering God except a little.

The second: The Almighty's saying: Or if their fathers had been... The alif is for interrogation, and the waw is opened because it is a waw of conjunction, conjoining one sentence of speech to another, because the ultimate corruption in commitment is for them to say: We will follow our fathers even if they did not understand, so they decided on this commitment of theirs, since it was the state of their fathers.

Question: Our scholars said: The strength of the words of this verse invalidates imitation, and its counterpart is: And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' they say, 'Sufficient for us is that upon which we found our fathers' 1:10. This verse and the one before it are connected to what preceded them, and that is that God, the Exalted, informed us of the ignorance of the Arabs in what they controlled with their foolish opinions in the Bahira, Sa'ibah, and Wasila, so they argued that it was a matter they found their fathers doing and followed them in that, and they abandoned what God revealed to His Messenger and commanded in His religion, so the pronoun in them refers back to them in both verses.

Third: Some people have relied on this verse to condemn imitation, because God Almighty condemned the infidels for following their fathers in falsehood and imitating them in disbelief and disobedience. This is correct in falsehood, but imitation in truth is a fundamental principle of the religion and a protection from the protection of Muslims to which the ignorant who is unable to comprehend the insight resorts.

Scholars differed about its permissibility in matters of principles, as follows. As for its permissibility in matters of branches, it is correct.

Fourth: The reality of imitation according to scholars is accepting a statement without proof. Based on this, whoever accepts the statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, without looking into his miracle is an imitator, but whoever looks into it is not an imitator. It was said: It is believing in the validity of a fatwa of someone who does not know the validity of his statement. In the language, it is taken from the necklace of perfume, as the Arabs say: I tied the camel if you put a rope around its neck to lead it, so it is as if the imitator leaves his entire affair to whoever leads him wherever he wants. And their poet said likewise:

And they entrusted you with your command, may God reward you, and may your soul be steadfast in the matter of war, and may you be fully aware of it.

Fifth: Imitation is not a path to knowledge nor a means of reaching it, neither in the fundamentals nor in the branches. This is the opinion of the majority of rational people and scholars, contrary to what is said about the ignorant literalists and the Tha'labiyyah that it is a path to knowing the truth, and that this is what is obligatory, and that contemplation and research are forbidden, and that arguing against them in the books of fundamentals.

Sixth: It is obligatory for the layman who is not busy deriving rulings from their origins due to his lack of qualification in matters of his religion that he does not know and needs to do so, to seek out the most knowledgeable of his time and country and ask him about his case and then comply with his fatwa, based on the statement of God the Almighty: So ask the people of knowledge if you do not know. He is required to strive to search for the most knowledgeable of his time until the majority of people agree on it. It is also obligatory for the scholar to imitate a scholar like him in a case in which the evidence and reasoning are unclear to him, and he wants to renew his thinking and reasoning until he finds what is required, but time is short for that, and he fears that the act of worship will be missed, or that the ruling will be lost, whether that other mujtahid is a companion or someone else. This is what Judge Abu Bakr and a group of scholars agreed with.

Seventh: Ibn Atiyyah said: The nation has agreed to invalidate imitation in matters of belief. Others have mentioned a difference of opinion on this, such as Judge Abu Bakr ibn al-Arabi and Abu Amr Uthman ibn Isa ibn Darbas al-Shafi'i. Ibn Darbas said in his book Al-Intisar: Some people said that imitation is permissible in matters of monotheism, and this is a mistake, because God the Almighty said: Indeed, we found our fathers upon a religion. So he condemned them for imitating their fathers and not following the Messengers, like the people of whims did in imitating their elders and not following Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in his religion. And because it is obligatory upon every accountable person to learn the matter of monotheism and to be certain of it, and this can only be achieved through the Book and the Sunnah, as we explained in the verse on monotheism, and God guides whom He wills.

Ibn Darbas said: The people of deviation have often said that those who adhere to the Book and the Sunnah are imitators. This is a mistake on their part, rather it is more appropriate for them and more befitting for their schools of thought, since they accepted the words of their masters and elders in matters in which they contradicted the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger and the consensus of the Companions, may God be pleased with them. Thus, they were included among those whom God condemned in His saying: Our Lord, indeed we obeyed our masters and our elders until His saying: greatly, and His saying: Indeed, we found our fathers upon a religion, and we are following in their footsteps. Then He said to His Prophet: He said, 'Even if I brought you better guidance than that which you found your fathers upon,' they said, 'Indeed, we, in that with which you have been sent, are disbelievers.' Then He said to His Prophet, peace be upon him: Then We took vengeance on them At-Tirmidhi. Thus, God, the Almighty, made clear that guidance is in what His Messengers, peace be upon them, brought. The saying of the people of the Sunnah in their beliefs: We found our imams, our fathers, and the people following the Book and the Sunnah and the consensus of the righteous predecessors of the nation, is not from their saying: We found our fathers and we obeyed our masters and elders in a way, because these attributed that to the revelation and to following the Messenger, and those attributed their slander to the people of falsehoods, and thus they increased in misguidance. Do you not see that God, the Exalted, praised Joseph, peace be upon him, in the Qur'an where He said: "Indeed, I have left the religion of a people who do not believe in God and are, in the Hereafter, disbelievers." * And I have followed the religion of my fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. It was not for us to associate anything with God. That was from the favor of God upon us and upon mankind." So since his fathers, peace be upon them, were prophets who followed the revelation, which is the pure religion that God was pleased with, his following his fathers was one of the attributes of praise. What they came up with did not mention symptoms and their connection to substances and their transformation into them, which indicates that there is no guidance in them and no right path in their creators.

Ibn Al-Hisar said: The use of these terms appeared in the time of Al-Ma'mun after the two hundredth year, when the books of the ancients were translated and their differences appeared in them regarding the eternity and occurrence of the world, and their differences regarding the essence and its stability, and the accident and its nature. So the innovators and those in whose hearts there was deviation hastened to preserve those terms, and they intended by them to alienate the people of the Sunnah, and to introduce doubts among the weak among the people of the religion. So the matter remained like this until innovation appeared, and the innovators became sects, and the matter became confused for the sultan, until the prince said that the Qur'an was created, and forced people to do so, and struck Ahmad ibn Hanbal for that.

Then men from the Sunnis, such as Sheikh Abu al-Hasan al-Ash'ari, Abdullah ibn Kulab, Ibn Mujahid, al-Muhasibi and their likes, were appointed. They engaged with the innovators in their terminology, then they fought them and killed them with their weapons. And those Muslims who came of age from this nation held fast to the Book and the Sunnah, turning away from the doubts of the atheists. They did not consider the essence and the accident. That was the way the predecessors were.

I said: Whoever now looks into the terminology of the theologians when he argues with that for the religion, his status is close to that of the prophets. As for those extremist theologians who criticize the path of those believers who took the narration, and urge the study of the books of theology, and that the truth is not known except from their side with those terminologies, then they have become blameworthy for their rejection of the path of the predecessors from the past imams, and God knows best. As for the dispute and argument with evidence and proof, that is clear in the Qur'an, and its explanation will come, God willing.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: And when it is said to these disbelieving polytheists: Follow what God has revealed to His Messenger, and abandon what you are doing of misguidance and ignorance, they say in response to that: Rather, we follow what we found our fathers doing, i.e., the worship of idols and rivals. God the Almighty says, denouncing them: Or even if their fathers i.e., those whom they follow and imitate did not understand anything nor were they guided i.e., they had no understanding or guidance. Ibn Ishaq narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That it was revealed about a group of Jews whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called to Islam, and they said: Rather, we follow what we found our fathers doing, so God revealed this verse, then He gave them an example. God the Almighty said: For those who do not believe in the Hereafter is an evil example. He said: And the example of those who disbelieve meaning in what they are in of error, misguidance and ignorance is like that of straying animals that do not understand what is said to them. Rather, when their shepherd calls to them, that is, calls them to what guides them, they do not understand what he says or comprehend it, but only hear his voice. This is what was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata', Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Ata' Al-Khurasani and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, something similar to this. It was said: This is an example given to them in their supplication to idols that do not hear, see or comprehend anything. Ibn Jarir chose this, but the first is more appropriate, because idols do not hear, comprehend or see anything, and they do not have the power to strike or have life in them. His statement, Deaf, dumb and blind means deaf to hearing the truth, dumb and unable to utter it, blind to seeing its path and course. So they do not reason meaning they do not know anything and do not understand it.

And when it is said to them, "Follow what Allah has revealed," they say, "Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing." Even though their fathers did not understand anything, nor were they guided?

Fath al-Qadir

The pronoun in His statement: 170- And when it is said to them refers to the people, because the infidels are among them and they are the ones meant here, and it was said: the infidels of the Arabs in particular, and we found means we found, and the alif in His statement: Or if their fathers had been is for interrogation, and the waw is opened because it is the waw of conjunction. In this verse there is blame for the imitators and the call for their blatant ignorance and corrupt belief that cannot be estimated, and similar to this verse is the statement of God Almighty: And when it is said to them, Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger, they say, Sufficient for us is that upon which we found our fathers" (Al-Quran 2:170). In that is evidence of the ugliness of imitation and the prohibition of it, and research into that would take a long time. I have devoted an independent book to it and called it [Al-Qawl Al-Mufid: On the Ruling of Imitation] and I have discussed it in detail in [Adab Al-Talab and Muntaha Al-Arab].

Tafsir al-Baghawi

170. "And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' It is said that this is a new story and that the ha and mim in them" are a metaphor for something not mentioned. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called the Jews to Islam, so Rafi' bin Kharijah and Malik bin Awf said: They said: Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing, meaning what we found our fathers doing, for they were better and more knowledgeable than us, so God revealed this verse. It was said that the verse is connected to what came before it and was revealed about the polytheists of the Arabs and the infidels of Quraysh, and the ha and mim refer to His statement: "And among mankind are those who take for themselves rivals besides God" 165-Al-Baqarah. "They said, 'Rather, we will follow what we found,' meaning what we found in our fathers of worshipping idols. It was said that its meaning is: And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed' in making permissible what they had forbidden themselves of crops, livestock, bahīrah, and sā'ibah. The ha and the meem refer to people in the Almighty's saying: O people, eat. "They said: Rather, we will follow." Al-Kisa'i read: Rather, we will follow by assimilating the lam into the nun. Likewise, the lam of hal and bal is assimilated into the ta, tha, zay, seen, sad, ta, and dha. Hamza agreed with the ta, tha, and seen. What we found "upon our fathers" of prohibition and permission.

God Almighty said: Or if their fathers meaning how do they follow their fathers and their fathers did not understand anything and the waw in awlu is the waw of conjunction, and it is called the waw of astonishment, and the interrogative alif was added to it for rebuke, and the meaning is do they follow their fathers even though they were ignorant and did not understand anything, its wording is general but its meaning is specific. That is, they did not understand anything of the matters of religion because they understood the matters of this world and were not guided then God gave an example and said, may He be glorified:

170-And when it is said to them, Follow what God has revealed," the pronoun refers to the people, and the address is changed from them to call out their misguidance, as if he turned to the rational people and said to them: Look at these fools, what do they answer? "They say, Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing, what we found them doing. It was revealed about the polytheists who were ordered to follow the Qur'an and all the other proofs and verses that God revealed, but they turned to imitation. It was said about a group of Jews whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called to Islam, but they said: Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing because they were better than us and more knowledgeable. Based on this, what God revealed includes the Torah because it also calls to Islam. Or even if their fathers did not understand anything and were not guided, the waw is for the state, or the conjunction. The hamza is for response and amazement. The answer to if is omitted, meaning if their fathers were ignorant and did not think about the matter of religion, nor were they guided to the truth, they would have followed them. This is evidence of the prohibition of imitation for those who are able to consider and exert effort. As for following others in religion if it is known by some evidence that they are correct, such as the prophets and those who exert effort in rulings, then in reality it is not imitation but rather following what God has revealed.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:171

And the example of those who disbelieve is like that of one who calls to that which hears nothing except calls and cries - deaf, dumb, and blind - so they do not understand.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And the example of those who disbelieved and of those who call them to guidance is like the example of one who calls makes a sound with what he hears only a call and a cry that is, a sound and does not understand its meaning, that is, in hearing the sermon and not contemplating it, like the animals that hear the voice of their shepherd but do not understand it, they are deaf, dumb, and blind, so they do not understand the sermon

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And the example of those who disbelieve is like the example of one who shouts to that which hears nothing but calls and cries. Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in the meaning of that. Some of them said: The meaning of that is: The example of the disbeliever - in his lack of understanding of what is recited to him from God in His Book, and his poor acceptance of what is called to of the Oneness of God and admonished with - is like the animal that hears the sound when it is called to, but does not understand what is said to it. Mention of those who said that: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, he said, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of 'Ikrimah, in his saying: And the example of those who disbelieve is like the example of one who shouts to that which hears nothing but calls and cries, he said: Like a camel or a donkey, you call it and it hears the sound but does not understand what you say. Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Zari' told me, he said, Yusuf ibn Khalid al-Samti told us, he said, Nafi' ibn Malik told us, on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Like one who cries to that which hears not, he said: It is like the example of a sheep and the like. Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father,

On the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: And the parable of those who disbelieve is that of one who shouts to that which hears nothing except calls and cries. Like the camel, donkey, or sheep. If you say to some of them: Eat, they do not know what you are saying, but they hear your voice. And likewise the disbeliever. If you command him to do good or forbid him from evil or admonish him, he does not understand what you are saying, but he hears your voice. Al-Qasim told me, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibn Abbas said: Like the beast, it is called and it hears but does not understand what is said to it. Likewise the disbeliever, he hears the sound but does not understand. Sufyan ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid: Like the one who calls out to that which hears not, he said: The disbeliever is like an animal, he hears the sound but does not understand. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Like the one who calls out, an example that God gave for the disbeliever, he hears what is said to him but does not understand, like the animal that hears the bleating but does not understand. Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding his statement: And the example of those who disbelieve is like the example of one who calls out to that which hears nothing but calls and cries, he said: The example of the disbeliever is like the example of a camel or a sheep, he hears the sound but does not understand and does not know what is meant by it. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Like one who calls out to that which hears nothing but calls and cries, he said: It is a simile that God has given for the disbeliever. He says: The example of this disbeliever is like that of this animal that hears a sound but does not know what is being said to it. Likewise, the disbeliever does not benefit from what is being said to him. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, he said: He is like the disbeliever, he hears a sound but does not understand what is being said to him. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said: I asked 'Ata' and then I said to him: It is said: It does not understand - meaning the animal - except that it hears the call of the caller when he calls out to it, so they are like that, they do not understand even though they hear. So he said: Likewise. He said: And Mujahid said: The one who calls out is the shepherd to that which does not hear of the animals. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Like the one who cries out the shepherd to what does not hear of the animals. Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Like the one who cries out to what does not hear except a call and a cry, he does not understand what is said to him, unless he is called and then comes, or he is called and then goes. As for the one who cries out, he is the shepherd of sheep, just as the shepherd cries out to what does not hear what is said to him, unless he is called or summoned. Likewise, Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, calls to one who hears nothing but the murmur of speech. God says: Deaf, dumb, blind (Al-Baqarah 2:18). Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of those who say this statement - in their interpretation of what they interpreted, according to what I have related from them - is: The example of the admonition of those who disbelieve and their admonisher is like the caw of the caller to his sheep and his bleating to them. So the proverb was attributed to those who disbelieved, and the mention of the sermon and the preacher was left out, because the speech indicates that. Just as it is said: If you meet someone, then respect him as you respect a sultan, meaning: as you respect a sultan, and as the poet said:

And the example of those who disbelieve is like that of one who calls to that which hears nothing except calls and cries - deaf, dumb, and blind - so they do not understand.

You are not a Muslim as long as you are alive, according to Zaid, by surrendering the prince

It is meant by it: as one greets the prince. It may be possible that the meaning - according to this interpretation that these people have interpreted - is: And the example of those who disbelieve in their lack of understanding of God and His Messenger is like the example of the animal that is called by it, who does not understand the commands and prohibitions except by the sound. That is because if it was said to it: Eat, bring water, it would not know what is being said to it except by the sound that it hears from the one who says it. So likewise the disbeliever, his example in his lack of understanding of what he is commanded and forbidden from - due to his poor contemplation of it and his lack of consideration and thought about it - is like this one that is called by it in what he is commanded and forbidden from. So the meaning is for the one that is called by it, and the speech is outside of the one who calls, as the Nabigha of Banu Dhubyan said:

I was afraid, so much so that my fear was no greater than that of a sane ibex in the rain.

Meaning: Until the fear of the ibex does not exceed my fear, and as the other said:

It was an obligation to say what you say, just as adultery was an obligation to be stoned.

Meaning: Just as stoning was the obligation for adultery, so stoning was made the obligation for adultery, because the meaning of the words is clear to the listener, and as the other said:

A lamp is a source of pride for the noble, and the eye is adorned with it when it is exposed.

Meaning: It is adorned with the eye, so He made it the eye adorned with it. And there are more similar examples of this in the speech of the Arabs than can be counted, from what the Arabs direct from the report of what they are reporting to what accompanies it, for the meaning of that to be clear to its listener, so they say: Show the basin to the she-camel, and the she-camel is only shown to the basin, and similar to that from their speech. And others said: The meaning of that is: And the example of those who disbelieve in their call to their gods and idols that do not hear or understand, is like the example of one who cries to what does not hear except a call and a cry, and that echo whose voice is heard but the caller does not understand anything from it. So the interpretation of the speech according to the saying of those who say that: And the example of those who disbelieve and their gods - in their call to them while they do not understand or reason - is like the example of the caller to what the caller hears only a call and a cry, meaning: The caller hears nothing from him except his call. Mention of those who said that: Yunus told me, he said,

Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And the example of those who disbelieve is like the example of one who calls to that which hears nothing but calls and cries, he said: The man who calls in the depths of the mountains and a voice answers him in them that returns to him and is called the echo. So the example of the gods of these people to them is like the example of one who answers him with this voice, it does not benefit him, he hears nothing but calls and cries. He said: The Arabs call that the echo. And the verse may bear another interpretation based on this interpretation. It is that its meaning is: And the example of those who disbelieve in their calling to their gods who do not understand their call, is like the example of one who calls to his sheep from a place where his sheep do not hear his voice, so they do not benefit from his cries at all, except that he is in trouble from his calls and cries. So likewise the disbeliever in his calling to his gods, he is in trouble from his calling to them and calling to them, and nothing benefits him.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of the verse in my opinion is the first interpretation that Ibn 'Abbas and those who agreed with him said. It means that the meaning of the verse is: The parable of the preaching of the disbeliever and his preacher is like the parable of the one who calls out to his sheep and his bleating, for he hears his bleating but does not understand his words, as we have explained before. As for the reason for the permissibility of omitting preaching and sufficing with the parable from it, we have explained it in His statement: Their example is like the example of one who kindled a fire (al-Baqarah 2:17) and in other similar verses, sufficient to repeat it. We have chosen this interpretation because this verse was revealed about the Jews, and God the Most High meant them by it, and the Jews were not people of idols that they worshipped, nor people of statues that they venerated and hoped for benefit from them or to ward off harm from them. And there is no reason - since that is the case - for the interpretation of those who interpreted it to mean: The example of those who disbelieved in their calling out to the gods and supplicating to them. If someone says: What is your evidence that this verse refers to the Jews? It is said: Our evidence for that is the verses that precede and follow it, for they are the ones meant by it. So what is between them is that

It is more appropriate and more deserving of being report about them than report about others, until the evidence becomes clear that the report is diverted from them to others. This, with what we mentioned from the report from those we mentioned that it was revealed about them, and the narration that we narrated from Ibn Abbas that the verse before this verse was revealed about them. And with what we said that this verse is meant for the Jews, Ata' used to say - Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, from Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ata' said to me regarding this verse: They are the Jews about whom God revealed: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price until His saying: How patient they are toward the Fire (al-Baqarah 2:174-175). As for his saying: cries out, it is the sound of sheep, cawing, and cawing, and from it is the saying of Al-Akhtal:

So moan with your sheep, Jarir, for your soul has been lost in the wilderness.

Meaning: A voice with it. The statement in the interpretation of His statement: Deaf, dumb, and blind, so they do not understand. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: Deaf, dumb, and blind, these infidels who are like someone who cries out to something that hears nothing but a call and a cry. Deaf to the truth, so they do not hear. Dumb means: mute to what is said, the truth and correctness, and the acknowledgment of what God has commanded them to acknowledge, and the clarification of what God Almighty has commanded them to clarify of the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, so they do not speak it or say it, nor clarify it to the people. Blind to guidance and the path of truth, so they do not see it, as Bishr ibn Mu'adh told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah, His statement: Deaf, dumb, and blind means: deaf to the truth, so they do not hear it, nor benefit from it, nor understand it. Blind to the truth and guidance, so they do not see it. Dumb to the truth, so they do not speak it. Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, Deaf, dumb, and blind, meaning: about the truth. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, Ibn Abbas: Deaf, dumb, and blind, meaning: they do not hear the guidance, nor do they see it, nor do they understand it. As for the nominative in his statement, Deaf, dumb, and blind, it came to him before the beginning and the resumption, as indicated by his statement, So they do not understand, as is said in speech: he is deaf and does not hear, and he is dumb and does not speak.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God the Almighty likened the preacher and caller of the infidels, who is Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, to a shepherd who calls out to the sheep and camels, but they hear nothing but his call and cry, and do not understand what he says. This is how Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, As-Suddi, Az-Zajaj, Al-Farraa and Sibawayh explained it, and this is the ultimate in brevity. Sibawayh said: They did not liken it to the one calling out, but rather to the one being called out to. The meaning is: And your example, O Muhammad, and the example of those who disbelieved is like the one calling out and the one being called out to, from among the animals that do not understand. So the word was omitted to indicate the meaning.

Ibn Zayd said: The meaning is that the example of those who disbelieved in their supplication to inanimate deities is like that of a caller in the dead of night who is answered by an echo. He calls out to something that cannot be heard, and what answers him is that which has no truth or benefit. Qatib said: The meaning is that the example of those who disbelieved in their supplication to something that cannot be understood, meaning the idols, is like that of a shepherd who calls to his sheep and does not know where they are. Al-Tabari said: What is meant is that the example of the disbelievers in their supplication to their deities is like that of someone who calls to something far away and is not heard because of the distance. So the caller has nothing of that except the call that tires him and exhausts him. In these three interpretations, the disbelievers are likened to the caller who calls, and the deaf to the one who is being called. Calling is driving the sheep and shouting at them. It is said: The shepherd called to his sheep, calling, and shouting, and shouting at them. Al-Akhtal said:

Go to your sheep, Jarir, for you have only lost your way in the wilderness.

Al-Qatabi said: Jarir was not a shepherd, but he meant that the Banu Kulayb were mocked for herding sheep, and Jarir was one of them, so he was as ignorant as them. The Arabs use the example of a shepherd in terms of ignorance and say: More ignorant than a shepherd. Al-Qatabi said: Whoever adopted this meaning of the verse was following a school of thought, but none of the scholars adopted it as far as we know.

The call is for those far away, and the supplication is for those near. That is why the call to prayer is called a call for those far away. The letter nun may be included in the call, but the original is the kasra. Then the Almighty likened the disbelievers to being deaf, dumb, and blind. This was mentioned at the beginning of the surah.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: And when it is said to these disbelieving polytheists: Follow what God has revealed to His Messenger, and abandon what you are doing of misguidance and ignorance, they say in response to that: Rather, we follow what we found our fathers doing, i.e., the worship of idols and rivals. God the Almighty says, denouncing them: Or even if their fathers i.e., those whom they follow and imitate did not understand anything nor were they guided i.e., they had no understanding or guidance. Ibn Ishaq narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That it was revealed about a group of Jews whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called to Islam, and they said: Rather, we follow what we found our fathers doing, so God revealed this verse, then He gave them an example. God the Almighty said: For those who do not believe in the Hereafter is an evil example. He said: And the example of those who disbelieve meaning in what they are in of error, misguidance and ignorance is like that of straying animals that do not understand what is said to them. Rather, when their shepherd calls to them, that is, calls them to what guides them, they do not understand what he says or comprehend it, but only hear his voice. This is what was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-A'aliyah, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata', Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Ata' Al-Khurasani and Al-Rabi' bin

And the example of those who disbelieve is like that of one who calls to that which hears nothing except calls and cries - deaf, dumb, and blind - so they do not understand.

Anas, something similar to this. It was said: This is an example given to them in their supplication to idols that do not hear, see or comprehend anything. Ibn Jarir chose this, but the first is more appropriate, because idols do not hear, comprehend or see anything, and they do not have the power to strike or have life in them. His statement, Deaf, dumb and blind means deaf to hearing the truth, dumb and unable to utter it, blind to seeing its path and course. So they do not reason meaning they do not know anything and do not understand it.

Fath al-Qadir

And His statement: 171- And the example of those who disbelieve is like that of one who calls out to the heavens and the earth in it is a comparison of the preacher of the disbelievers and their caller, who is Muhammad, peace be upon him, to a shepherd who calls out to the sheep or camels, but he hears nothing but a call and a cry and does not understand what he is saying. This was explained by Al-Zajjaj, Al-Farraa, and Sibawayh, and a group of the Salaf said the same. Sibawayh said: They did not liken him to the one who calls out to the one who is being called out to, and the meaning is: Your example, O Muhammad, and the example of those who disbelieve, is like the one who calls out to the one who is being called out to, from the animals that do not understand, so it was deleted because the meaning indicates it. Qatirib said: The meaning is the example of those who disbelieved in their calling to what is not understood, meaning idols, is like the example of a shepherd who calls out to his sheep and he does not know where they are, and Ibn Jarir Al-Tabari said the same. Ibn Zayd said: The meaning is: The example of those who disbelieved in their supplication to inanimate deities is like that of a caller in the dead of night who is answered by an echo. He calls out to something that cannot be heard, and it answers him with something that has no truth in it. And bleating is driving sheep and shouting at them. It is said: The shepherd bleated to his sheep, bleating and bleating, meaning he shouted at them and drove them away. The Arabs use the example of a shepherd of sheep as an example of ignorance and say: More ignorant than a shepherd of sheep. His saying: deaf and what follows are predicates of an omitted subject: meaning they are deaf, dumb and blind. The explanation of that has been presented above.

Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: "This verse was recited to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), meaning: 'O mankind, eat from whatever is on earth that is lawful and good.' Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas stood up and said: 'O Messenger of God, pray to God to make my supplication answered.' He said: 'O Sa'd, make your food pure and your supplication will be answered. By the One in Whose Hand is the soul of Muhammad, a man may put a morsel of unlawful food into his stomach and it will not be accepted from him for forty days. As for any servant whose flesh grows from unlawful earnings and usury, the Fire is more deserving of him.' " Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority regarding his statement: And do not follow the footsteps of Satan, he said: His deeds. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: Whatever contradicts the Qur'an is from the footsteps of Satan. Abd bin Hamid ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid that he said: His footsteps. They also narrated on the authority of Ikrimah who said: They are the temptations of Satan. Abu al-Shaykh narrated on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr who said: They are the adornments of Satan. Ibn Abi Hatim and Abu al-Shaykh narrated on the authority of Qatadah who said: Every disobedience to God is from the footsteps of Satan. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Any oath or vow made in anger is from the footsteps of Satan, and its expiation is the expiation of an oath. Abd al-Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani and al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Ibn Masoud that a sheep and salt were brought to him and he started eating, so a man from the people withdrew, so Ibn Masoud said: Give it to your companion, so he said: I do not want to, so he said: Are you fasting? He said: No. He said: What is the matter with you? He said: I have forbidden myself to eat sheep, so Ibn Masoud said: This is from the footsteps of Satan, so eat and expiate for your oath. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Uthman bin Ghiyath who said: I asked Jabir bin Zaid about a man who vowed to put a gold ring in his nose, so he said: This is from the footsteps of Satan and he will continue to disobey God, so let him expiate for his oath. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of al-Hasan that he considered the oath of someone who swore to perform Hajj crawling to be from the footsteps of Satan. And Abd bin Hamid and Abu Al-Sheikh narrated on the authority of Abu Majlaz who said: They are vows to commit sins. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement: He only orders you to do evil he said: sin and immorality he said: adultery. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called the Jews to Islam and encouraged them to do so, and warned them of the punishment and vengeance of God. Then Rafi bin Kharijah and Malik bin Awf said to him: Rather, we will follow, O Muhammad, what we found our fathers doing, for they were more knowledgeable and better than us. So God revealed regarding that: And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' they say, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing.' Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Rabi' and Qatadah regarding his statement: We found they said: We found. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And the parable of those who disbelieve the verse, he said: It is like the parable of the cow, the donkey, and the sheep. If you say something to some of them, they do not understand what you are saying, but they hear your voice. Likewise, if you command a disbeliever to do good or forbid him from evil, or admonish him, he does not understand what you are saying, but he hears your voice. Something similar to that was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, narrated by Abd ibn Humayd, and on the authority of Ikrimah, narrated by Wakee'. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Ata' said to me regarding this verse: They are the Jews about whom God revealed: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book until His statement: How patient they are toward the Fire.

171. And the parable of those who disbelieve is that of one who cries to that which hears not. Crying and crowing are the voice of a shepherd to his sheep, meaning like you, O Muhammad. And the parable of the disbelievers in their preaching and calling to God Almighty is like the shepherd who cries to his sheep. It was said that the parable of the preacher and caller to the disbelievers with them is like the shepherd who cries to his sheep, and they hear nothing except a call a voice and a call. So he added the parable to those who disbelieved because the speech indicates it, as in the Almighty's saying, And ask the town 82-Yusuf, meaning that just as the animals hear the voice of the shepherd but do not understand or comprehend what is said to them, so too the disbeliever does not benefit from your preaching, he only hears your voice. It was said: Its meaning is: And the example of those who disbelieved in their lack of intelligence and understanding of God and His Messenger is like the example of the animals that are bleating, which do not understand the commands and prohibitions except the sound, so the meaning is for the one who is bleating and the speech is outside of the one who is bleating, and it is widespread in the speech of the Arabs. They do that and they turn the speech upside down to clarify the meaning for them. They say, So-and-so fears you as a lion fears, meaning as a lion fears him. And God the Almighty said, Verily, its keys would burden a band of men 76-Al-Qasas, and only a band of men would be burdened by the keys. And it was said that its meaning is like the example of those who disbelieved in calling upon idols that do not understand or reason, like the one who bleats to sheep, so he does not benefit from his bleating at all, except that he is in trouble from the call and the call. Likewise, the disbeliever does not get from calling upon the gods and worshipping them except trouble and affliction, as God the Almighty said, If you call upon them, they do not hear your call, and if they heard, they would not respond to you 14-Fatir.

It was said that the meaning of the verse is: "And the parable of those who disbelieve in calling upon idols is like the parable of one who calls out in the depths of the mountains and hears a voice called 'the echo' from which he understands nothing." So the meaning of the verse is like the parable of one who spends on something from which the caller hears nothing but a call and a cry. Deaf is what the Arabs say about someone who hears but does not understand: As if he is deaf. "Mute" about goodness, they do not say it. Blind about guidance, they do not see it. So they do not understand.

171- And the example of those who disbelieve is like the example of one who cries to something that hears nothing but a call and a cry with the omission of an added noun, meaning: And the example of the caller of those who disbelieve is like the example of one who cries, or the example of those who disbelieve is like the example of the animals that cries. The meaning is that the disbelievers, because they are preoccupied with imitation, do not pay attention to what is recited to them, nor do they ponder what is decided with them, so they are in that like the animals that are cawed at, so they hear the sound but do not know its significance, and sense the call but do not understand its meaning. It was said that it is a representation of them in following their fathers according to their apparent state, ignorant of its reality, like the animals that hear the sound but do not understand what is beneath it. Or their representation in their calling to the idols, like the cawer in his caw, which is the sounding of the animals, and this suffices for the implication, but it is not supported by his saying nothing but a call and a cry, because the idols do not hear, unless it is made from the category of compound representation.

Deaf, dumb and blind is a noun of blame. They do not understand means actually, due to the lack of vision.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:172

O you who have believed, eat from the good things which We have provided for you and be grateful to Allah if it is Him that you worship.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:172

O you who have believed, eat from the good things which We have provided for you and be grateful to God if it is Him that you worship.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, eat from the good things lawful which We have provided for you and be grateful to God for what He has made lawful for you (if it is Him you worship).

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: O you who have believed, eat from the good things which We have provided for you and be grateful to God if it is Him that you worship. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: O you who have believed, O you who have believed in God and His Messenger and acknowledged servitude to God and submitted to Him in obedience, as: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding His saying: O you who have believed, he says: They have believed. Eat from the good things which We have provided for you, meaning: feed from the lawful provision which We have made lawful for you, so it became good for you by My making it lawful for you, from what you used to forbid, and I did not forbid it for you, of foods and drinks. And be grateful to God, he says: and praise God as He is worthy of from you, for the blessings which He has provided you and made good for you. If you worship Him, He says: If you are obedient to His command, listening and obeying, then eat what He has made lawful and permissible for you to eat, and leave the steps of Satan in forbidding it. We have already mentioned some of the foods that they used to forbid in their ignorance, and it is what He urged them to eat and forbade them from believing in its prohibition, since their forbidding it in ignorance was an act of obedience to Satan, and following the disbelievers among them from God from their fathers and ancestors. Then the Almighty explained to them what He forbade them, and explained it in detail for them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: O you who have believed, eat from the good things which We have provided for you and be grateful to God if it is Him that you worship.

This is an emphasis on the first matter, and the believers were mentioned specifically here as a preference. What is meant by eating is benefiting from all aspects. It was said: It is the usual food. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O people, God is good and does not accept anything but good. God commanded the believers with what He commanded the messengers, saying: 'O messengers, eat from the good foods and work righteousness. Indeed, I, of what you do, am Knowing.' And He said: 'O you who have believed, eat from the good things We have provided for you.' Then he mentioned the man who travels a long way, disheveled and dusty, stretching his hands to the sky, 'O Lord, O Lord,' while his food is unlawful, his drink is unlawful, his clothing is unlawful, and he has been nourished with unlawful things. So how can that be answered?" And be grateful to God if it is Him that you worship. The meaning of gratitude has been presented, so there is no point in repeating it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, commanding His believing servants to eat from the good things that God the Almighty has provided for them, and to thank Him for that if they are His servants. Eating from what is lawful is a reason for supplication and worship to be accepted, just as eating from what is unlawful prevents supplication and worship from being accepted. As stated in the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad: Abu al-Nadr told us, al-Fudayl ibn Marzuq told us, on the authority of Adi ibn Thabit, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O people, God is good and does not accept anything but that which is good. God has commanded the believers with what He commanded the Messengers, saying: 'O Messengers, eat from the good things and do righteousness. Indeed, I, of what you do, am Knowing.' And He said: 'O you who have believed, eat from the good things that We have provided for you.' Then he mentioned a man who travels a long way, disheveled and covered in dust, stretching his hands to the sky: 'O Lord, O Lord,' while his food is unlawful, his drink is unlawful, his clothing is unlawful, and he has been nourished with what is unlawful. So how can that be answered?" Muslim narrated it in his Sahih and at-Tirmidhi narrated it from the hadith of Fadil ibn Marzuq. When God the Almighty bestowed His provision upon them and guided them to eat from His goodness, He mentioned that He did not forbid them from that except for dead animals, which are those that die a natural death without being slaughtered, whether they were strangled, beaten to death, fallen, gored, or attacked by a wild animal. The majority of scholars have singled out dead animals from the sea for the words of God the Almighty: Lawful to you is game from the sea and its food as will come, God willing. The hadith of ambergris in Sahih, Musnad, Muwatta' and Sunan states that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said about the sea: Its water is pure and its dead animals are lawful. Ash-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ibn

Majah and Ad-Darqutni narrated the hadith of Ibn Umar with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace be upon him): "Two dead animals are lawful for us: the blood of fish and locusts, the liver and the spleen." This will be confirmed, God willing, in Surat Al-Ma'idah.

Question The milk of a dead animal and its eggs attached to it are impure according to Al-Shafi'i and others, because they are part of it. Malik said in a narration: It is pure except that it becomes impure by proximity, and likewise the rennet of a dead animal is disputed, and what is well-known among them is that it is impure. They brought up against themselves the companions eating the cheese of the Magians, so Al-Qurtubi said in the interpretation here that a small amount of it mixes with milk, and a small amount of impurity is excused if it mixes with a lot of liquid. Ibn Majah narrated from the hadith of Saif bin Harun from Sulayman Al-Tamimi, from Abu Uthman Al-Nahdi, from Salman, may God be pleased with him: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about ghee, cheese, and fur, and he said: What is permissible is what God has permitted in His Book, and what is forbidden is what God has forbidden in His Book, and what He was silent about is what He has excused. Likewise, the meat of the pig was forbidden to them, whether it was slaughtered or died a natural death, and its fat is included in the ruling on its meat, either by predominance or because the meat includes that or by analogy according to an opinion. Likewise, what was dedicated to other than God was forbidden to them, which is what was slaughtered in a name other than His, the Most High, such as idols, rivals, arrows, and the like, for which the people of ignorance used to slaughter. Al-Qurtubi reported on the authority of Ibn Atiyah that he narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri that he was asked about a woman who held a wedding for her entertainment and slaughtered a camel in it, so he said: It is not to be eaten because it was slaughtered for an idol. Al-Qurtubi reported on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, that she was asked about what the non-Arabs slaughter for their festivals and then give as gifts to the Muslims, so she said: Whatever is slaughtered for that day, do not eat from it, and eat from their trees. Then God Almighty permitted eating that in case of necessity and need for it when other foods are not available, so He said: But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], meaning without transgression or aggression, which is exceeding the limit, there is no sin upon him, meaning in eating that, Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful. Mujahid said: Whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], cutting off the way or separating from the leaders, or going out in disobedience to God, then he has a concession, but whoever goes out seeking [it] or transgressing [it] or in disobedience to God, then he has no concession even if he is forced to do so. This was also narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr. Saeed said in a narration from him and Muqatil bin Hayyan: Not transgressing means not considering it permissible. Al-Suddi said: Not transgressing means seeking his desire in it. Adam bin Abi Iyas said: Damrah told us on the authority of Uthman bin Ata', who is Al-Khurasani, on the authority of his father, regarding his statement not transgressing he said: He does not roast the dead animal to desire it, nor cook it, nor eat anything except the clot, and he carries with him what reaches him the permissible, then when it reaches him he throws it away, and this is his statement nor transgressing and he says he does not transgress with it the permissible. And from Ibn Abbas: He does not get his fill of it, and Al-Suddi interpreted it as transgression. And from Ibn Abbas not transgressing nor transgressing he said not transgressing in the dead animal and he does not transgress in eating it. And Qatada said: So whoever is forced, not transgressing nor transgressing, he said: Not transgressing in the dead animal means in eating it that he transgresses the permissible to the forbidden while he finds an alternative to it. Al-Qurtubi narrated from Mujahid regarding his statement: But whoever is forced, meaning he is forced to do that without his choice.

Question If a person in need finds a dead animal and someone else's food in a way that does not cause any harm or injury, then it is not permissible for him to eat the dead animal, but rather he may eat someone else's food without disagreement - this is what he said - then he said: And if he eats it, in this case, is he liable or not? There are two sayings in it, which are two narrations from Malik, then he brought from Sunan Ibn Majah from the hadith of Shu'bah from Abu Iyas Ja'far ibn Abi Wahshiyyah: I heard 'Ibad ibn Shurahbil al-Ghubri say: A famine struck us in a year, so I came to Madinah, and I came to a garden, so I took an ear of wheat, rubbed it, and ate it, and put some of it in my cloak. Then the owner of the garden came and hit me and took my garment, so I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him, so he said to the man, I did not feed him when he was hungry or working, nor did I teach him when he was ignorant. So he ordered him to return his garment to him, so he ordered him to have a wasq of food or half a wasq, a sound, strong, good chain of transmission with many corroborating evidences: including the hadith of 'Amr ibn Shu'ayb from his father, from his grandfather: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about hanging fruit, so he said, Whoever takes some of it from someone in need with his mouth, not making a storehouse, then there is nothing upon him, the hadith, and Muqatil bin Hayyan said about his statement, "There is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful": Regarding what he ate out of necessity, and we have been informed, and God knows best, that it is not more than three mouthfuls. Saeed bin Jubair said: Forgiving for what he ate of what is forbidden, Merciful for making what is forbidden permissible for him out of necessity. Waki' said: Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Whoever is forced and does not eat or drink and then dies, will enter Hell. This requires that eating carrion by someone forced is an obligation, not a concession. Abu Al-Hasan Al-Tabari, known as Al-Kaya Al-Harasi, a companion of Al-Ghazali in his work, said: This is what is correct according to us, like breaking the fast for the sick and the like.

O you who have believed, eat from the good things which We have provided for you and be grateful to Allah if it is Him that you worship.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 172- Eat from the good things with which We have provided you. This is an emphasis on the first command: I mean His statement: O mankind, eat from whatever is on the earth [that is] lawful and good. He only singled out the believers here because they are the best kind of people. It was said: What is meant by eating is benefit, and it was said: What is meant by it is regular eating, and this is the apparent meaning. His statement: And be grateful to God. It was previously mentioned that it is said to thank Him and to thank Him is transitive by itself and by the preposition. And His statement: If it is Him that you worship, meaning that you single Him out for worship, as is indicated by the precedence of the object.

what is connected to an action is the command to be grateful for its completion, and it is nonexistent when it is not. And from the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, "God the Most High says, 'Indeed, I and mankind and the jinn are in a momentous matter. I create and others worship Me, and I provide and others thank Me.'"

172. The Almighty said: O you who have believed, eat from the good things from the lawful things that We have provided for you.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malihi told us, Abu Muhammad Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shuraih told us, Abu Al-Qasim Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz Al-Baghawi told us, Ali bin Jaad told us, Fadil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O people, God is good and does not accept anything but good. God commanded the believers with what He commanded the messengers, saying: 'O messengers, eat from the good foods and work righteousness' Al-Mu'minun 23:51, and He said: 'O you who have believed, eat from the good things We have provided for you' Al-Mu'minun 23:51. Then he mentioned a man who has traveled a long way, disheveled and covered in dust, stretching his hands to the sky, 'O Lord, O Lord', while his food is unlawful, his drink is unlawful, his clothing is unlawful, and he has been nourished with unlawful things. So how can his supplication be answered?"

And be grateful to God for His blessings if it is Him that you worship. Then He explained the prohibitions.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

172- O you who have believed, eat from the good things which We have provided for you. Since He has made the command broad for all people and permitted them what is on earth, evil of what was forbidden to them, He commanded the believers among them to seek out the good things which they have been provided with and to fulfill their rights, so He said: And be grateful to God for what He has provided you with and made lawful for you. If it is Him that you worship. If it is true that you single Him out for worship and acknowledge that He is the Master of blessings, then His worship is not complete except with gratitude. So

Surat al-Baqarah 2:173

He has only forbidden to you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than God. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limit], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

He has only forbidden you dead animals meaning eating them, since the discussion is about them, and so is what comes after them, which is what is not mentioned in the Shari'ah. The Sunnah included with them what is clear from living things, and fish and locusts were singled out and blood meaning poured out as in livestock and the flesh of swine He singled out meat because it is most of what is intended and other things are subordinate to it and that which is dedicated to other than God meaning slaughtered in the name of someone other than Him. And the call to prayer is raising the voice, and they used to raise it when slaughtering for their gods but whoever is forced meaning necessity forces him to eat something of what was mentioned, so he eats it not desiring going against the Muslims nor transgressing against them by cutting off the road (there is no sin upon him) for eating it Indeed, God is Forgiving to His friends and Merciful to the people of His obedience, as He has made it easy for them to do so. And the transgressor and the transgressor are excluded, and they include every sinner who travels, such as the runaway and the tax collector, so it is not permissible for them to eat anything of that unless they repent, and Al-Shafi'i agrees with this.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: He has only forbidden you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than God. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by that: Do not forbid yourselves what I have not forbidden you, O believers in God and His Messenger, of the bahā'ir and the sawa'ib and the like. Rather, eat that, for I have only forbidden you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than Me.

The meaning of his saying: He has only forbidden you dead animals, is that he has only forbidden you dead animals.

And it is only one letter, and that is why dead and blood are in the accusative case, and it is not permissible for dead if you make dead only one letter, except in the accusative case. If dead were two letters, and were separated from in, then dead and what follows it would be in the nominative case. The interpretation of the statement then would be: What God has forbidden you from dead foods, blood, and pork, nothing else. It has been mentioned from some of the reciters that he read it in this way, according to this interpretation. I do not permit reading it - even though it has an understandable aspect in interpretation and Arabic - because the argument of the reciters has agreed to the contrary. So it is not permissible for anyone to object to what they have transmitted unanimously. If it was read in haram with a damma on the ha from haram, then dead would have two aspects of the nominative case. One of them is that the subject is not named, but rather one letter. The other is that in and ma are in the meaning of two letters, and haram is from the connection of ma, and dead is the predicate of alladhi in the nominative case as the predicate. And I am not, even though there is a reason for that, permitting reading it, for what I mentioned. As for the dead woman, the readings differ in its reading. Some of them read it with a light pronunciation, and its meaning is emphasis, but he lightens it as those who say: He is easy and soft, the easy and soft, lighten it, as the poet said:

Not everyone who dies and finds rest is dead, but the dead are the dead of the living.

So he combined the two languages in one verse, with one meaning. Some of them read it with emphasis, and they carried it to the original, and they said: It is Mayyut Fay'al from death. But when the silent Ya and the moving Waw came together, and the Ya with its silence is forward, the Waw was changed to a Ya and stressed, so they became a stressed Ya, as they did in Sayyid and Jawyd. They said: And whoever lightens it, he only sought lightness. And reading it according to its original, which is its origin, is more appropriate. Abu Ja'far said: The correct thing to say about that in my opinion is that lightening and stressing the Ya of Mayyitah are two languages known in reading and in the speech of the Arabs, so whichever one that reader reads is correct. Because there is no difference in their meanings. As for his saying: And what is dedicated to other than God, he means by it: And what is slaughtered for gods and idols, is called by a name other than His, or he intended by it other than His idols. It was said: And what they have dedicated to other than God because when they wanted to slaughter what they had offered to their gods, they would mention the name of the gods to whom they had offered it, and they would raise their voices in that, and this was how they proceeded from their affair, until it was said to every slaughterer, whether he mentioned the name or not, whether he mentioned the name out loud or not: Mahal. Their raising their voices in that is the ihram that God the Most High mentioned when He said: And what they have dedicated to other than God. And from that, the one who recites the talbiyah in Hajj or Umrah is called mahal, because he raises his voice in the talbiyah. And from that is the ihram of the child, if he cries out when he falls from his mother's womb, the ihram of rain, which is the sound of it falling to the ground, as Amr ibn Qumay'ah said:

The injustice of the valleys is like the pouring of the rivers, and the clear semen is far from the quarry.

The people of interpretation differed on this. Some of them said: What he means by his saying: And what is dedicated to other than God is what is slaughtered for other than God. Those who said this were: Bishr ibn Muadh told us, he said: Yazid told us, he said: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And what is dedicated to other than God is what is slaughtered for other than God. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And what has been dedicated to other than God, he said: what has been slaughtered for other than God, without mentioning the name of God over it. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And what has been dedicated to other than God, what has been slaughtered for other than God. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said, Ibn Abbas said regarding his statement: And what has been dedicated to other than God, he said: what has been dedicated to tyrants. Sufyan bin Wakee' told us, he said, Abu Khalid Al-Ahmar told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, he said: And what has been dedicated to other than God, he said: what has been dedicated to tyrants. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And what has been dedicated to other than God, meaning: what has been dedicated to tyrants at all. Meaning: What is slaughtered for other than God by the disbelievers, other than the Jews and Christians. Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Ata', regarding the statement of God: And what is dedicated to other than God, he said: It is what is slaughtered for other than God. Others said: The meaning of that is: What is mentioned over it other than the name of God. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And what is dedicated to other than God, he said: What is mentioned over it other than the name of God. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said - and I asked him about the statement of God: And what is dedicated to other than God, he said: What is slaughtered for their gods, the idols that they worship and name them with their names. He said: They say: In the name of so-and-so, just as you say: In the name of God. He said: So that is His statement: And what is dedicated to other than God. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Haywah told us, on the authority of Uqbah ibn Muslim al-Tujibi and Qays ibn Rafi' al-Ashja'i that they said: What is slaughtered for the festival of the churches is lawful for us, and what is given as bread or meat for them is only the food of the People of the Book. Haywah said, I said: What do you think of the statement of God: And that which is dedicated to other than God? He said: That is only for the Magians, the idolaters, and the polytheists. The statement on the interpretation of the statement of God the Most High: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], there is no sin upon him. Abu Ja'far said: God the Most High meant by His statement: But whoever is forced, whoever is forced by necessity due to famine to eat what has been forbidden to you of dead animals, blood, pork, and what has been dedicated to other than God - and it is in the manner we have described - there is no sin upon him for eating it if he eats it. His statement: But whoever is forced is derived from necessity. And without transgressing [it] is in the accusative case as a state of whoever, so it is as if it was said: whoever is forced, neither desiring nor transgressing [it], and eats it.

He has only forbidden to you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than Allah. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limit], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

It is permissible for him. It has been said that the meaning of his statement, But if one is forced, is that if someone is forced to eat it and eats it, then there is no sin on him. Those who said that are mentioned: Ahmad ibn Ishaq al-Ahwazi told us, he said, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Salim al-Aftas, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement, But if one is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], he said: The man is taken by the enemy and they call him to disobey God. As for his statement, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], then the people of interpretation differ in their interpretation of it.

Some of them said: What he means by his saying: not a transgressor, is not one who rebels against the leaders with his sword, rebelling against them without injustice, nor transgressing against them with war and aggression, thus corrupting their path. Those who said that mentioned: Abu Kurayb told us, he said: Ibn Idris told us, he said: I heard Layth, from Mujahid: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither transgressing nor aggressing, he said: not cutting off the path, nor separating from the group, nor going out in disobedience to God, then he has a concession. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said: Shibl told us, from Ibn Abi Nujayh, from Mujahid: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither transgressing nor aggressing, he said: not cutting off the path, nor separating from the leaders, nor going out in disobedience to God, then he has a concession. And whoever goes out transgressing or aggressing in disobedience to God, then he has no concession even if he is forced to do so. Hannad bin Al-Sarri narrated to us, he said, Sharik narrated to us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed: Neither a transgressor nor aggressor, he said: He is the one who cuts off the road, so he is not permitted to eat carrion if he is hungry, and to drink wine if he is thirsty. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr narrated to us, he said: Ibn Al-Mubarak narrated to us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Salim - meaning Al-Aftas - on the authority of Saeed regarding his statement: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring nor transgressing, he said: The ordinary transgressor who cuts off the road, so he has no permission or honor. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said, Al-Hammani narrated to us, he said, Sharik narrated to us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed regarding his statement: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring nor transgressing, he said: If he goes out in one of the ways of God and is forced to drink wine, he drinks, and if he is forced to eat carrion, he eats. And if he goes out to cut off the road, he has no permission. Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Hussein narrated to us, he said, Hafs bin Ghiyath narrated to me, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Neither a transgressor, on the authority of the imams, nor aggressor, he said: The highwayman. Hannad told us, he said, Ibn Abi Zaydah told us, on the authority of Warqa', on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], he said: not a highwayman, nor one who leaves the leaders, nor one who goes out in disobedience to God, then he is permitted. Hannad told us, he said, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Mujahid, But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], he said: not desiring [it] against the leaders, nor transgressing against the wayfarer. Others said in interpreting his statement, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it]: not desiring to eat what is forbidden, nor transgressing what is permitted to him from it. He mentioned who said that:

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid bin Zari' narrated, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring nor transgressing, he said: Neither desiring nor transgressing, meaning that he does not transgress in his eating, nor transgressing: that he transgresses what is lawful into what is unlawful, and he finds an alternative. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, he said: Abd al-Razzaq informed us, he said: Muammar informed us, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding his statement: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring nor transgressing, he said: Neither desiring nor transgressing in eating it, and he has no need of it. Al-Muthanna narrated, he said: Ishaq narrated, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of someone who heard al-Hasan say that. Al-Qasim narrated, he said: Al-Husayn narrated, he said: Abu Tamila narrated, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Mujahid and Ikrimah, regarding his statement: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring nor transgressing, "Neither desiring," he seeks it, nor transgressing: transgresses what he can hold back. Narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, he said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], meaning: without seeking what is forbidden and transgressing it. Don't you see that He says: But whoever seeks beyond that, then those are the transgressors. (al-Mu'minun 23:7- al-Ma'arij: 31). Yunus narrated to me, he said: Ibn Wahb informed us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], he said: That he eats that out of desiring [it] and transgressing from what is lawful to what is unlawful, and by abandoning what is lawful while he has it, and transgresses by eating this unlawful. This is transgression. He denies that they are different, and he says: This and that are one!

Others said that the interpretation of this is: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring to eat out of desire nor exceeding what he can do without. Those who said this were: Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr bin Hammad told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: But whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring to eat out of desire nor exceeding what he can do without. As for desiring, he means desiring to eat out of desire. As for the one who eats normally, he transgresses from eating it - because there is something else that God has permitted for him - and that is because God, the Most High, did not give anyone permission to kill himself under any circumstances." And since that is the case, there is no doubt that the one who rebels against the Imam and the highway robber, even if they have done what God has forbidden them to do - this one rebelling against someone he has designated, and this one striving to spread corruption on earth - then it is not permissible for them to do what God has forbidden them to do - what God had forbidden them to do before they did what they did - of killing themselves, [and returning them to what God has forbidden them to do after they have done what they have done, even if what they were permitted to do before that was forbidden to them, and even if we do not see returning them to what God has forbidden them to do as a prohibition, then it is not permissible for them to do what was forbidden to them before that]. If this is the case, then it is obligatory for highwaymen and rebels against just leaders to return to the obedience of God, and to return to what God has obligated them to return to, and to repent from the disobedience of God - not to kill themselves through starvation, so that they will increase their sin with a sin, and oppose the command of God. As for the one who directed the interpretation of this to the fact that he did not transgress in his eating out of lust, so he ate that out of lust, not to repel a necessity from which death is feared - which has entered into what God has forbidden him - then it is in the meaning of what we said in its interpretation, even though there is a difference in its wording. As for the direction of the interpretation of His statement: nor transgress, nor eat from it a full portion, but what he holds back for himself, then that is some of the meanings of transgression in eating it. And God did not specify a meaning from the meanings of transgression in eating it, so it is said that He meant some of its meanings. So since that is the case, then what is correct in what we said is: that it is transgression in all of its forbidden meanings. As for the interpretation of His statement: There is no sin upon him, he says: Whoever eats that in the manner that we have described, there is no responsibility upon him for eating that in the same way and there is no blame. The statement on the interpretation of the statement of God Almighty: Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by His statement, the Most High: Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful, is Indeed, God is Forgiving, if you obey

He has only forbidden to you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than Allah. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limit], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

God in your Islam, and avoid eating what He has forbidden you, and stop following Satan in what you used to forbid in your ignorance - in obedience to Satan and following in his footsteps - of what I have not forbidden you, because of what you have done in your past, in your disbelief and before your Islam, in that of error, sin, and disobedience, so He pardoned you and left your punishment for it, Merciful to you if you obey Him.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "He has only forbidden you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than God. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limits], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful."

It contains thirty-four issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: He has only forbidden you dead animals. The word only is used for restriction, and includes negation and affirmation, so it confirms what the speech includes and negates what is other than it. Here, the prohibition is restricted, especially since it came after the permission in the Almighty's saying: O you who believe, eat from the good things which We have provided for you. So it indicates permissibility in general. Then He followed it by mentioning the forbidden with the word only which restricts, so this necessitated the inclusion of the two parts, so there is no forbidden thing outside this verse, and it is Medinan. And it was confirmed by the other verse which was narrated to have been revealed in Arafat: "Say, 'I do not find in what has been revealed to me anything forbidden to one who eats it.' " to the end of it, so the explanation was completed first and last, as Ibn al-Arabi said. And we will discuss that in Al-An'am, God willing.

The second: the dead is in the accusative case with haram and ma is a comprehensive word. It is permissible to make it mean who, separate in writing, and raise the dead, blood, and pork flesh as the predicate of in, which is the reading of Ibn Abi Ubla. In haram there is a pronoun referring back to who, and similar to it is the saying of God the Almighty: They only made a magician's trick. Abu Ja'far read haram with a damma on the ha' and a kasra on the ra' and raised the nouns after it, either as a subject whose agent is not named, or as a predicate of in. Abu Ja'far ibn al-Qa'qa' also read the dead with a shaddah. At-Tabari said: A group of linguists said: The shaddah and the lightening in mayt and mayt are two dialects. Abu Hatim and others said: What has died is said in it, and what has not died yet is not said in it with a lightening, its evidence is the saying of God the Almighty: Indeed, you will die and indeed, they will die. The poet said:

Not everyone who dies and finds rest is dead, but the dead are the dead of the living.

No one read with a light pronunciation of ma lam yamta except what Al-Bazzi narrated on the authority of Ibn Kathir: And he is not dead. The well-known reading from him is the heavy pronunciation. As for the poet's saying:

If a Tamim man dies and you want him to live, bring provisions.

There is nothing more eloquent in satire than that he meant the dead person in reality, and some people have said that he meant someone who is close to death, and the first is more famous.

Third: Dead: That which has lost its soul without being slaughtered, and that which is not edible, its slaughter is like its death, such as wild animals and others, as will be explained here and in the livestock, God willing.

Fourth: This verse is general, but it was made specific by the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

"Two dead animals have been made lawful for us: fish and locusts, and the blood of the liver and spleen." Narrated by Al-Daraqutni. Likewise, the hadith of Jabir about ambergris specifies the generality of the Qur'an with the authenticity of its chain of transmission. Narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim, along with the words of God Almighty: Lawful for you is game from the sea, as will be explained there, God willing.

Most scholars permit eating all sea creatures, alive or dead. This is the Maliki school of thought. He hesitated to answer about the capybara and said: You say a pig! Ibn al-Qasim said: I avoid it and do not see it as forbidden.

Fifth: People have differed about specifying the Book of God Almighty with the Sunnah, and despite their differences in that, they have agreed that it is not permissible to specify it with a weak hadith, as Ibn al-Arabi said. Evidence for specifying this verse may also be found in what is in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Abdullah bin Abi Awfa, who said:

We fought with the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) in seven battles, just as we ate locusts with him. It appears that it is permissible to eat it, whether it dies by treatment or by natural death. This is what Ibn Nafi', Ibn Abd al-Hakam and most scholars said, and it is the view of al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa and others. Malik and the majority of his companions forbade eating it if it dies by natural death, because it is land game. Don't you see that it is sufficient for a person in ihram to kill it, so it is similar to a gazelle? Ashhab said: If it dies from a severed leg or wing, it is not eaten, because it is a condition in which it may live and reproduce. The ruling on locusts will be further explained in Al-A'raf when it is mentioned, God willing.

Sixth: The scholars differed as to whether it is permissible to benefit from a dead animal or from any impurity. They differed from Malik on this as well. He said once: It is permissible to benefit from it, because "the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, passed by a blessed sheep and said: Why did you not take its hide?" And he said once: Its entirety is forbidden, so it is not permissible to benefit from any of it, or any of the impurities in any way, so it is permissible to water crops or animals with impure water, or feed animals impurities, or feed dead animals to dogs and wild beasts. Even if they eat them, they are not prevented. The basis for this statement is the apparent meaning of the statement of God the Almighty: Forbidden to you are dead animals and blood, and He did not specify one aspect from another. It is not permissible to say: This address is general, because generality is that which is not understood from its apparent meaning. The Arabs understood the meaning of the statement of God the Almighty: Forbidden to you are dead animals, and also the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not benefit from anything that is dead. In the hadith of Abdullah bin Ukaim.

Do not benefit from the skin or sinews of a dead animal. This is the last thing he wrote a month before his death. This report and discussion of it will come in An-Nahl, God willing.

Seventh: As for a female camel, or a cow or a sheep, if it is slaughtered, and there is a dead fetus in its belly, it is permissible to eat it without slaughtering it in itself, unless it comes out alive, in which case it is slaughtered, and it has the same ruling as itself. This is because if the fetus comes out of it after slaughtering dead, it is treated like one of its organs. What makes this clear is that if he sells a sheep and excludes what is in its belly, it is not permissible, just as if he excludes a part of it, and what is in its belly is part of it like the rest of its organs. Likewise, if he frees it without signing the initial freeing of what is in its belly, even if it is separate from it, it does not follow it in the sale or freeing. Jabir, may God be pleased with him, narrated:

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a cow or a sheep being slaughtered, or a she-camel being slaughtered, and there being a dead fetus in its belly. He said: If you wish, eat it, because its slaughter is the slaughter of its mother." Abu Dawud narrated it with its meaning from the hadith of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, and it is an explicit text that is not to be accepted. Further explanation of this will come in Surat Al-Ma'idah, God willing.

Eighth: There is a difference of opinion regarding the narration of Malik regarding the skin of a dead animal, whether it is purified by tanning or not. It was narrated from him that it is not purified, and this is the apparent opinion of the school of thought. It was narrated from him that it is purified, based on his saying, peace be upon him:

Any hide that is tanned is pure. The reason for his statement that it is not pure is that it is a part of a dead animal that if it were taken from it while it was alive it would be impure, so the tanner must not purify it by analogy with meat. The reports about purity are understood to mean that the tanner removes dirt from the hide so that it can be used for dry things and for sitting on it. It is also permissible to use it in water by giving it to drink, because water is originally pure unless its description changes, as will come from its ruling in Surat al-Furqan 25: Purity in the language refers to removing dirt, just as it refers to legal purity, and God knows best.

Ninth: As for the hair and wool of a dead animal, it is pure, based on what was narrated on the authority of Umm Salamah, may God be pleased with her, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

There is nothing wrong with touching a dead animal if it has been tanned, or its wool and hair if it has been washed. Because it was pure for him when it was taken from it while it was alive, it must be so after death. However, since the meat was impure when it was alive, it is so after death, so the wool must be the opposite when it is dead, just as it was the opposite when it was alive, based on the opposite evidence. This does not necessarily mean milk or eggs from a dead chicken, because milk is pure after death according to us, and so is the egg. However, they were taken from an impure container, so they became impure because of their proximity to the container, not because they became impure because of their death. Further clarification of this issue and the one before it, and the scholars' differences of opinion on them, will come in Surat An-Nahl, God willing.

Tenth: As for that into which a mouse has fallen, it has two states: A state in which if the mouse is brought out alive, it is pure. And if it dies in it, it has two states: A state in which it is liquid, in which case all of it becomes impure. And a state in which it is solid, in which case it makes impure whatever is next to it, so it is thrown away along with whatever is around it, and what remains is used while it is pure, based on what was narrated:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a mouse that fell into ghee and died. He, peace be upon him, said: If it is solid, throw it and what is around it away, and if it is liquid, pour it out." The scholars differed about whether it is washed. It was said: It is not purified by washing, because it is an impure liquid, so it is similar to blood, wine, urine, and other impurities. Ibn al-Qasim said: It is purified by washing, because it is a body that has become impure due to being in contact with impurities, so it is similar to clothing. This does not apply to blood, because it is impure in and of itself, nor to wine and urine, because washing consumes them and is not possible for them."

Eleventh: If we rule that it is pure by washing, it returns to its original state in terms of purity and all other aspects of benefit, but it should not be sold until it is made clear, because that is a defect in people's minds that their souls reject. Some of them believe that it is forbidden and that it is unclean, so it is not permissible to sell it until the defect is made clear, like all other defective things. As for before washing, it is not permissible to sell it under any circumstances, because impurities, in their view, are not permissible to sell, and because it is an impure liquid, so it is similar to wine. And because "the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about the price of wine, so he said: God cursed the Jews. Fat was forbidden to them, so they rendered it, sold it, and ate its price.” And when God forbids something, He forbids its price. This liquid is forbidden because of its impurity, so its price must be forbidden by the apparent ruling.

He has only forbidden to you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than Allah. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limit], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Twelfth: There is a difference of opinion if an animal, bird or other falls into the pot and dies. Ibn Wahb narrated on the authority of Malik that he said: What is in the pot may not be eaten, as it has become impure due to the dead animal mixing with it. Ibn al-Qasim narrated on his authority that he said: The meat should be washed and the broth poured out. Ibn Abbas was asked about this issue and he said: The meat should be washed and eaten. None of his companions disagreed with him regarding the broth, as mentioned by Ibn Khuwayz Mandad.

Thirteenth: As for the rennet of a dead animal and the milk of a dead animal, Al-Shafi'i said: This is impure due to the generality of the Almighty's statement: Forbidden to you are dead animals. Abu Hanifa said that they are pure, and he did not make the place of creation have any effect on the impurity of what is adjacent to it from what was created in it. He said: Therefore, meat is eaten with the veins in it, while it is certain that blood is adjacent to its interior without purification or washing by consensus. Malik said something similar to what Abu Hanifa said, that this does not become impure due to death, but it becomes impure due to being adjacent to an impure vessel, which is something that cannot be washed. Likewise, an egg comes out of a chicken after its death, because the egg is soft and is considered a liquid before it comes out, and it only solidifies and hardens in the air.

Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: If it is said: Your statement leads to a contradiction to the consensus, because the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and the Muslims after him used to eat cheese that was brought to them from the land of the Persians, and it is known that the slaughtered animals of the Persians, who are Magians, were dead, and they did not consider it frozen with the rennet of a dead animal or a slaughtered animal. It was said to him: The amount of rennet that falls into the curdled milk is small, and a small amount of impurity is excused if it is mixed with a large amount of liquid. This is an answer to one of the two narrations. According to the other narration, this was only in the beginning of Islam, and no one can say that the Companions ate cheese brought from the land of the Persians, rather, cheese is not part of the food of the Arabs. When the Muslims spread throughout the land of the Persians through conquests, the slaughtered animals became theirs, so how do we know that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and the Companions ate cheese, let alone it being brought from the land and made from the rennet of their slaughtered animals?

Abu Omar said: There is nothing wrong with eating the food of idolaters, Magians, and all the infidels who do not have a book, as long as it is not from their slaughtering and does not require slaughtering, except for cheese, which does not contain rennet from a dead animal. In Sunan Ibn Majah, cheese and ghee: Ismail bin Musa al-Suddi told us, Saif bin Harun told us, on the authority of Sulayman al-Taymi, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, on the authority of Salman al-Farsi, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about ghee, cheese, and fur. He said: What is permissible is what God has permitted in His Book, and what is forbidden is what God has forbidden in His Book, and whatever He is silent about is something He has pardoned.

Fourteenth: The Almighty said: and blood. The scholars agreed that blood is forbidden and impure and is not to be eaten or benefited from. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: As for blood, it is forbidden as long as it is not a widespread disease, and what is a widespread disease is excused. What is a widespread disease is blood in the flesh and its veins, and a small amount of it in the body and clothing in which one prays. We only said that because God the Almighty said: He has forbidden you dead animals and blood, and He said in another place: Say, 'I do not find in what has been revealed to me anything forbidden to one who would eat it unless it be dead animals or blood poured forth.' So spilled blood is forbidden. Aisha may God be pleased with her narrated: “We used to cook a pot during the time of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and the yellowish color of blood would rise to the top of it, so we would eat it and not disapprove of it,” because avoiding this is a burden and hardship, and burden and hardship in religion are invalid. This is a principle in the Sharia, that whenever the nation is in difficulty in performing the act of worship and it becomes difficult for it, the act of worship is dropped from it. Do you not see that the one in need eats carrion, and the sick person breaks the fast and performs dry ablution in such cases?

I said: God the Almighty mentioned blood here in an absolute sense, and restricted it to livestock by saying poured out. The scholars here have unanimously interpreted the absolute to mean the restricted. So blood here means spilled, because whatever is mixed with meat is not forbidden by consensus, and the same is the case with the liver and spleen, which are agreed upon. There is a difference of opinion regarding the blood of the whale that has been released. It was narrated from Al-Qabisi that it is pure, and its purity necessitates that it is not forbidden. This is the choice of Ibn Al-Arabi, who said: Because if the blood of fish was impure, its slaughter would have been permissible.

I said: This is the doctrine of Abu Hanifa regarding whale blood. I heard some Hanafis say: The evidence that it is pure is that when it dries it turns white, unlike other bloods which turn black. This is their point in their argument against the Shafi'is.

Fifteenth: The Almighty's saying: And the flesh of swine. God Almighty specifically mentioned the flesh of the pig to indicate the prohibition of its meat, whether it was slaughtered or not, and to include fat and other cartilage and other things there.

Sixteenth: The Ummah has unanimously agreed that pork fat is forbidden. Malik and his companions have provided evidence that whoever swears not to eat fat and eats meat has not broken his oath by eating meat. If he swears not to eat meat and eats fat, he has broken his oath, because meat and fat are called meat, so fat is included in the name of meat, but meat is not included in the name of fat. God has forbidden pork, so mentioning its meat instead of its fat, because it is included under the name of meat. God has forbidden fat to the Children of Israel by saying: We have forbidden them their fat, so the prohibition of meat did not apply to them and it was not included under the name of fat. For this reason, Malik distinguished between the one who swears by fat and the one who swears by meat, unless the one who swears has the intention of meat but not fat, in which case he does not break his oath. And God knows best. He does not break his oath according to the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr and the people of opinion, if he swears not to eat meat and eats fat. Ahmad said: If he swears not to eat meat and eats fat, there is nothing wrong with it, unless he intended to avoid fat.

Seventeenth: There is no disagreement that all pigs are forbidden, except for hair, which is permissible to use for sewing. It has been narrated:

"A man asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about sewing with pig hair, and he said: There is nothing wrong with that." This was mentioned by Ibn Khuwazid Mandad, who said: Because sewing was done during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and was present and apparent after him, we do not know that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, disapproved of it, nor did any of the imams after him. And what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, permitted is like an innovation in the Shari'ah.

Eighteenth: There is no disagreement about the prohibition of wild pigs, as we mentioned, but there is disagreement about aquatic pigs. Malik refused to answer anything about it, and said: You say pigs! It has been mentioned before, and its explanation will come in Al-Ma'idah, God willing.

Nineteenth: Most linguists have said that the word pig is a quadrilateral word. Ibn Sidah narrated from some of them that it is derived from khazra al-'ayn to look in the eye, because it is like that, and the word is trilateral. In Al-Sahah: A man takhazar means to narrow his eyelid to sharpen his gaze. Khazra means to narrow and make the eye small. A man is akharaz a narrow eye. It is said that it is when a person looks from the back of it. The plural of pig is khazayr. "Khazayr" is also a well-known disease, which is hard sores that occur on the neck.

Al-Muwaffiyah twentieth: The Almighty's saying: And that which is dedicated to other than God meaning that a name other than God's was mentioned over it, and it is the sacrifice of the Zoroastrian, the pagan, and the one who denies anything. The pagan slaughters for an idol, the Zoroastrian for fire, and the one who denies anything does not believe in anything, so he slaughters for himself. There is no disagreement among the scholars that what the Zoroastrian slaughters for his fire and the pagan for his idol is not eaten, and their slaughter is not eaten according to Malik, Al-Shafi'i, and others, even if they did not slaughter for his fire and idol. Ibn Al-Musayyab and Abu Thawr permitted it if it was slaughtered for a Muslim by his order. This will be further explained, God willing, in Surah Al-Ma'idah. Ihlil means raising the voice. It is said: He declared something, meaning he raised his voice. Ibn Ahmar said, describing a desert:

Its riders arrive at Al-Farqad as a pilgrim arrives for Umrah

Al-Nabigha said:

Or a pearl shell, its diver is delighted, whenever he sees it he bows down and prostrates himself

And from it is the boy's ihram and his ihram, which is his cry at birth. Ibn Abbas and others said: What is meant is what was slaughtered for idols and statues, not what the name of the Messiah was mentioned over, as will be explained in Surat Al-Ma'idah, God willing. The Arabs used to cry out in the name of the intended sacrifice, and this was prevalent in their usage until it was used to express the intention that is forbidden. Do you not see that Ali bin Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, took into consideration the intention in the camels that Ghalib Abu Al-Farazdaq slaughtered and said: They are among those that were dedicated to other than God, so the people left them. Ibn Atiyyah said: I saw in the report of Al-Hasan bin Abi Al-Hasan that he was asked about a luxurious woman who made a wedding for her toys and slaughtered a camel, so Al-Hasan said: It is not permissible to eat it because it was slaughtered for an idol.

I said: And from this meaning is what we narrated on the authority of Yahya bin Yahya al-Tamimi, a Muslim sheikh, who said: Jarir told us on the authority of Qabus, who said:

My father sent a woman to Aisha may God be pleased with her and ordered her to convey his greetings to her and to ask her which prayer the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) liked the most and which he would perform regularly. She said: He used to pray four rak'ahs before noon, standing for a long time and bowing and prostrating well. As for what he never neglected, whether healthy or sick or present, two rak'ahs before the dawn prayer. At that time, a woman from among the people said: O Commander of the Faithful, we have some Persian relatives who always have a festival and they give us gifts from it. Can we eat some of it? She said: As for what was slaughtered for that day, do not eat it, but eat from their trees.

Twenty-first: The Almighty's saying: So whoever is forced It was read with a damma on the noon for the sake of conformity and with a kasra, which is the original because of the meeting of two quiescent letters, and it contains an implication, meaning whoever is forced to do one of these forbidden things, meaning he is in need of it, so it is an ifta'ala from necessity. Ibn Muhaisin read So whoever is forced with the assimilation of the dad into the ta'. Abu al-Samal read So whoever is forced with a kasra on the ta'. Its original form is Idtarara but when it was assimilated, the vowel of the ra' was transferred to the ta'.

He has only forbidden to you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than Allah. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limit], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Twenty-second: Compulsion is either due to coercion from an oppressor or hunger in a state of famine. What the majority of jurists and scholars agree on regarding the meaning of the verse is that it is due to poverty and hunger, which is hunger for that, and this is correct. It was said: Its meaning is that he was forced and overwhelmed to eat these forbidden things. Mujahid said: He means he was forced to do it, like a man who is captured by the enemy and forced to eat pork and other acts of disobedience to God Almighty, except that compulsion permits that, and so on.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, commanding His believing servants to eat from the good things that God the Almighty has provided for them, and to thank Him for that if they are His servants. Eating from what is lawful is a reason for supplication and worship to be accepted, just as eating from what is unlawful prevents supplication and worship from being accepted. As stated in the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad: Abu al-Nadr told us, al-Fudayl ibn Marzuq told us, on the authority of Adi ibn Thabit, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O people, God is good and does not accept anything but that which is good. God has commanded the believers with what He commanded the Messengers, saying: 'O Messengers, eat from the good things and do righteousness. Indeed, I, of what you do, am Knowing.' And He said: 'O you who have believed, eat from the good things that We have provided for you.' Then he mentioned a man who travels a long way, disheveled and covered in dust, stretching his hands to the sky: 'O Lord, O Lord,' while his food is unlawful, his drink is unlawful, his clothing is unlawful, and he has been nourished with what is unlawful. So how can that be answered?" Muslim narrated it in his Sahih and at-Tirmidhi narrated it from the hadith of Fadil ibn Marzuq. When God the Almighty bestowed His provision upon them and guided them to eat from His goodness, He mentioned that He did not forbid them from that except for dead animals, which are those that die a natural death without being slaughtered, whether they were strangled, beaten to death, fallen, gored, or attacked by a wild animal. The majority of scholars have singled out dead animals from the sea for the words of God the Almighty: Lawful to you is game from the sea and its food as will come, God willing. The hadith of ambergris in Sahih, Musnad, Muwatta' and Sunan states that the Prophet (peace be upon him) said about the sea: Its water is pure and its dead animals are lawful. Ash-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ibn Majah and Ad-Darqutni narrated the hadith of Ibn Umar with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace be upon him): "Two dead animals are lawful for us: the blood of fish and locusts, the liver and the spleen." This will be confirmed, God willing, in Surat Al-Ma'idah.

Question The milk of a dead animal and its eggs attached to it are impure according to Al-Shafi'i and others, because they are part of it. Malik said in a narration: It is pure except that it becomes impure by proximity, and likewise the rennet of a dead animal is disputed, and what is well-known among them is that it is impure. They brought up against themselves the companions eating the cheese of the Magians, so Al-Qurtubi said in the interpretation here that a small amount of it mixes with milk, and a small amount of impurity is excused if it mixes with a lot of liquid. Ibn Majah narrated from the hadith of Saif bin Harun from Sulayman Al-Tamimi, from Abu Uthman Al-Nahdi, from Salman, may God be pleased with him: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about ghee, cheese, and fur, and he said: What is permissible is what God has permitted in His Book, and what is forbidden is what God has forbidden in His Book, and what He is silent about is what He has excused. Likewise, the meat of the pig was forbidden to them, whether it was slaughtered or died a natural death, and its fat is included in the ruling on its meat, either by predominance or because the meat includes that or by analogy according to an opinion. Likewise, what was dedicated to other than God was forbidden to them, which is what was slaughtered in a name other than His, the Most High, such as idols, rivals, arrows, and the like, for which the people of ignorance used to slaughter. Al-Qurtubi reported on the authority of Ibn Atiyah that he narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri that he was asked about a woman who held a wedding for her entertainment and slaughtered a camel in it, so he said: It is not to be eaten because it was slaughtered for an idol. Al-Qurtubi reported on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, that she was asked about what the non-Arabs slaughter for their festivals and then give as gifts to the Muslims, so she said: Whatever is slaughtered for that day, do not eat from it, and eat from their trees. Then God Almighty permitted eating that in case of necessity and need for it when other foods are not available, so He said: But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], meaning without transgression or aggression, which is exceeding the limit, there is no sin upon him, meaning in eating that. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful. Mujahid said: Whoever is forced by necessity, neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [it], cutting off the way or separating from the leaders, or going out in disobedience to God, then he has a concession, but whoever goes out seeking [it] or transgressing [it] or in disobedience to God, then he has no concession even if he is forced to do so. This was also narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr. Saeed said in a narration from him and Muqatil bin Hayyan: Not transgressing means not considering it permissible. Al-Suddi said: Not transgressing means seeking his desire in it. Adam bin Abi Iyas said: Damrah told us on the authority of Uthman bin Ata', who is Al-Khurasani, on the authority of his father, regarding his statement not transgressing he said: He does not roast the dead animal to desire it, nor cook it, nor eat anything except the clot, and he carries with him what reaches him the permissible, then when it reaches him he throws it away, and this is his statement nor transgressing and he says he does not transgress with it the permissible. And from Ibn Abbas: He does not get his fill of it, and Al-Suddi interpreted it as transgression. And from Ibn Abbas not transgressing nor transgressing he said not transgressing in the dead animal and he does not transgress in eating it. And Qatada said: So whoever is forced, not transgressing nor transgressing, he said: Not transgressing in the dead animal means in eating it that he transgresses the permissible to the forbidden while he finds an alternative to it. Al-Qurtubi narrated from Mujahid regarding his statement: But whoever is forced, meaning he is forced to do that without his choice.

Question If a person in need finds a dead animal and someone else's food in a way that does not cause any harm or injury, then it is not permissible for him to eat the dead animal, but rather he may eat someone else's food without disagreement - this is what he said - then he said: And if he eats it, in this case, is he liable or not? There are two sayings in it, which are two narrations from Malik, then he brought from Sunan Ibn Majah from the hadith of Shu'bah from Abu Iyas Ja'far ibn Abi Wahshiyyah: I heard 'Ibad ibn Shurahbil al-Ghubri say: A famine struck us in a year, so I came to Madinah, and I came to a garden, so I took an ear of wheat, rubbed it, and ate it, and put some of it in my cloak. Then the owner of the garden came and hit me and took my garment, so I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him, so he said to the man, I did not feed him when he was hungry or working, nor did I teach him when he was ignorant. So he ordered him to return his garment to him, so he ordered him to have a wasq of food or half a wasq, a sound, strong, good chain of transmission with many corroborating evidences: including the hadith of 'Amr ibn Shu'ayb from his father, from his grandfather: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about hanging fruit, so he said, Whoever takes some of it from someone in need with his mouth, not making a storehouse, then there is nothing upon him, the hadith, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan said about his statement, "There is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful": Regarding what he ate out of necessity, and we have been informed, and God knows best, that it is not more than three mouthfuls. Saeed bin Jubair said: Forgiving for what he ate of what is forbidden, Merciful for making what is forbidden permissible for him out of necessity. Waki' said: Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Whoever is forced and does not eat or drink and then dies, will enter Hell. This requires that eating carrion by someone forced is an obligation, not a concession. Abu Al-Hasan Al-Tabari, known as Al-Kaya Al-Harasi, a companion of Al-Ghazali in his work, said: This is what is correct according to us, like breaking the fast for the sick and the like.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 173- He has only forbidden you dead animals. Abu Ja'far read haram in the passive form, and innama is a word used for limitation, confirming what the speech includes and negating what is other than it. Here, I have limited the prohibition to the matters mentioned after it. His saying: dead animals. Ibn Ubla read it in the nominative case, and the reason for that is that it makes what is in innama a separate relative pronoun in writing, and dead animals and what follows it the predicate of the relative pronoun, and everyone reads it in the accusative case. Abu Ja'far ibn al-Qa'qa' read dead animals with a shaddah on the ya, and linguists have mentioned that it is permissible to make both the light and heavy dead animals. Dead animals are those from which the soul has departed without slaughter. This generality has been made specific by a hadith such as Lawful for us are two dead animals and two types of blood. It was narrated by Ahmad, Ibn Majah, Ad-Daraqutni, Al-Hakim and Ibn Mardawayh on the authority of Ibn Umar, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), and similar to the hadeeth of Jabir about ambergris, which is proven in the Two Saheehs with the statement of God, the Most High: Lawful to you is game from the sea. What is meant by dead animals here is dead animals from the land, not from the sea. Most scholars have permitted eating all sea animals, alive or dead. Some scholars have said that what is forbidden from sea animals is similar to what is forbidden on land. Ibn Habeeb hesitated regarding the capybara. Ibn Al-Qasim said: I avoid it and do not see it as forbidden. His statement: and blood The scholars have agreed that blood is forbidden. In another verse: or blood poured forth, so the general meaning is interpreted according to the specific, because what is mixed with meat is not forbidden. Al-Qurtubi said: By consensus. Aisha narrated that she used to cook meat and the yellowish color would appear on the pot from the blood, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) would eat that and not disapprove of it. His saying: and the flesh of swine The apparent meaning of this verse and the other verse, I mean the saying of God Almighty: "Say: I find not in what has been revealed to me anything forbidden to one who would eat it, unless it be a dead animal or blood poured forth or the flesh of swine" is that what is forbidden is only the meat. The nation has unanimously agreed on the prohibition of its fat, as Al-Qurtubi narrated in his interpretation. A group of scholars have mentioned that the meat includes fat. Al-Qurtubi also narrated the consensus that the whole of the pig is forbidden except for hair, as it is permissible to sew it. His saying: and that which is dedicated to other than God Ihlal means raising the voice. It is said that he dedicated something to something: meaning he raised his voice. The poet said, describing a desert:

Its riders arrive at Al-Farqad, just as a pilgrim arrives for Umrah.

Al-Nabigha said:

Or a pearl shell, its diver is delighted, whenever he sees it he bows down and prostrates himself

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:173

He has only forbidden to you dead animals, blood, the flesh of swine, and that which has been dedicated to other than Allah. But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limit], there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

And from it is the infant's ihlāl and istihlāhu: which is his cry at birth. What is meant here is: what is mentioned in the name of other than God, such as al-Lat and al-'Uzza if the slaughterer is a pagan, and fire if the slaughterer is a Zoroastrian. There is no disagreement in the prohibition of this and similar things, and similar to it is what is done by those who believe in the dead by slaughtering on their graves, because it is something that is dedicated to other than God, and there is no difference between it and slaughtering for an idol. His statement, But whoever is forced was read with a damma on the noon for the sake of following and with a kasra on the basis of the meeting of two quiescent letters, and in it is an implication: that is, whoever is forced to do any of these forbidden things. Ibn Muhaysin read with the assimilation of the dad into the ta'. Abu al-Sammak read with a kasra on the ta'. What is meant by whoever made him is hunger and poverty leading him to be forced to eat dead meat. His statement, not desiring is an accusative in the state. It was said that what is meant by the aggressor is the one who eats more than he needs, and the ordinary is the one who eats these forbidden things while he finds an alternative to them. It was also said that he is not an aggressor against the Muslims and transgresses against them, so the aggressor and the ordinary include highway robbers, those who rebel against the ruler, those who sever family ties, and the like. It was also said that what is meant is not one who transgresses against another in need, nor one who transgresses to satisfy the hunger of one who is in need.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: Eat from the good things with which We have provided you, he said: From the lawful. Ibn Saad narrated on the authority of Umar bin Al-Aziz that what is meant by the verse is: good earnings, not good food. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: that it is lawful sustenance. Ahmad, Muslim, At-Tirmidhi, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God is good and does not accept anything but that which is good. God commanded the believers with what He commanded the Messengers, saying: 'O Messengers, eat from the good things and work righteousness. Indeed, I, of what you do, am Knowing.' And He said: 'O you who have believed, eat from the good things with which We have provided you.' Then he mentioned a man who has traveled a long way, disheveled and covered in dust, stretching his hands to the sky, saying: O Lord, O Lord, while his food is unlawful, his drink is unlawful, his clothing is unlawful, and he has been nourished with unlawful things. So how can his supplication be answered?" Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And what he slaughtered, he said: Slaughtered. Ibn Jarir narrated from him that he said: What is dedicated to the tyrants. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Mujahid that he said: What is slaughtered other than God. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu Al-Aaliyah that he said: What is mentioned in the name of other than God. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Neither transgressing nor exceeding the limits he said: Whoever eats something of this while he is compelled, there is no blame on him, but whoever eats it while he is not compelled has transgressed and transgressed. Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from him regarding his statement: Neither transgressing nor exceeding the limits he said: Regarding dead meat. Neither exceeding the limits he said: Regarding eating. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hameed, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Mujahid regarding his statement: Neither transgressing nor exceeding the limits he said: Not transgressing against the Muslims nor exceeding the limits against them. So whoever goes out to sever family ties or block the way or spread corruption on earth or separates from the community and the imams, or goes out in disobedience to God and is compelled to eat dead meat, it is not permissible for him. Ibn Abi Hatim and Abu Al-Shaykh narrated from Saeed bin Jubayr that he said: The one who cuts off the road. His statement: There is no sin upon him means in eating it. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful to whoever eats from what is forbidden, He is Merciful to him because He made what is forbidden permissible for him out of necessity. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Qatada: But whoever is forced [by necessity], neither desiring [it] nor transgressing [its limits] not desiring in his eating, nor transgressing beyond what is permissible to what is forbidden, and he finds a way out and alternative.

173. He said: He has only forbidden you dead animals. Abu Ja'far read dead animals in the entire Qur'an with emphasis, while the rest stress some of them. Dead animals are everything that is not slaughtered properly, and and blood he meant by flowing blood, as indicated by the Almighty's saying: or blood poured forth 145-Al-An'am. The Shari'ah exempted fish and locusts from dead animals, and the liver and spleen from blood, so it permitted them.

Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al Khalal told us, Abu Al Abbas Al Asem told us, Al Rabi bin Sulaiman told us, Al Shafi'i told us, Abdul Rahman bin Zaid bin Aslam told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Two dead animals and two types of blood have been made lawful for us: fish and locusts, and the two types of blood, I think he said: the liver and the spleen." And the flesh of pigs he meant all its parts, so he referred to it as meat because it is most of it. And that which is dedicated to other than God meaning that which is slaughtered to idols and tyrants. The origin of ihlil is raising the voice. When they slaughtered to their gods, they would raise their voices in remembrance of them, and this became part of their practice until it was said to every slaughterer, even if he did not say the name of God out loud, Mahal. Al Rabi bin Anas and others said: And that which is dedicated to other than God he said that which the name of other than God is mentioned over it.

Whoever is forced with a kasra on the noon and its sisters, Asim and Hamza read it, and Abu Amr agreed except for the lam and the waw like Say, call upon God or call upon the Most Gracious 110-Al-Isra and Yaquub except for the waw, and Ibn Amir agreed with the tanween, and the rest all with the dammah, so whoever is forced said: because the jazm moves to the kasra, and whoever is forced, then the dammah of the beginning of the verb moves its movement to what precedes it, and Abu Ja'far with a kasra on the taa and its meaning is whoever is forced to eat a dead animal, meaning he is in need and forced to do so. Ghair is accusative in the state, and it was said on the exception, and if you see ghair is suitable in its place la, then it is a state, and if illa is suitable in its place, then it is an exception. Bagh and no 'Ad The origin of bugh is the intention of corruption, it is said that the wound bugh is a crime if it seeks corruption, and the origin of aggression is injustice and exceeding the limit, it is said that he oppressed him with injustice and oppression, and they differed in the meaning of his saying Ghair bagh and no 'Ad, so some of them said Ghair bagh means: outside On the Sultan, nor Aad: A transgressor who has gone on a journey, such as going out to rob the road or to spread corruption on the earth. This is the opinion of Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Saeed bin Jubair. They said that it is not permissible for a transgressor who has gone on a journey to eat dead meat if he is forced to do so, nor for a traveler to take advantage of the concession until he repents. Ash-Shafi'i may God have mercy on him said the same: because allowing it is helping him in his corruption. A group of scholars said that transgression and aggression are related to eating, and they differed in its details. Al-Hasan and Qatada said, Non-transgressor does not eat it without being forced to. Non-transgressor means he does not transgress to his fill. It was said, Non-transgressor means he does not seek it while he finds something else. Non-transgressor means he does not transgress what is set for him, so he does not eat until he is full, but he eats from it a sufficient amount of food to sustain his life. Muqatil bin Hayyan said, Non-transgressor means he considers it permissible. Non-transgressor means he takes provisions from it. It was said, Not transgressing, meaning not exceeding the amount that was permitted to him, nor exceeding the limits, meaning not falling short in what was permitted to him and abandoning it. Masruq said: Whoever is forced to eat dead meat, blood, or pork and does not eat or drink until he dies will enter Hell.

Scholars differed on the amount of dead meat that a person in need may eat. Some of them said that it should be enough to satisfy his hunger. This is the opinion of Abu Hanifa may God be pleased with him and one of the two opinions of Al-Shafi'i may God be pleased with him. The other opinion is that it is permissible to eat until one is full, and this is what Malik may God have mercy on him said. Sahl ibn Abdullah said, Not a transgressor who separates from the community, nor a transgressor who innovates and opposes the Sunnah, and the innovator is not permitted to consume what is forbidden in a case of necessity, there is no sin upon him meaning there is no blame on him for eating it, Indeed, God is Forgiving to those who eat in a state of necessity, Merciful as He permitted His servants to do so.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

173- He has only forbidden you dead animals to eat or benefit from them. It is that which died without being slaughtered. The hadith included with it what is clearly alive. Fish and locusts were excluded by custom or by the exception of the Shari'a. The prohibition added to the object indicates by custom the prohibition of dealing with it absolutely except for what is specified by evidence, such as dealing with tanned animals. Blood and the flesh of swine The meat was mentioned specifically because it is the most eaten of the animal and the rest of its parts are like those attached to it. And that which is dedicated to other than God meaning raising the voice when slaughtering it for an idol. The origin of the ihram is seeing the crescent moon, it is said: the crescent moon and I declared it. However, since it is customary to raise the voice with takbir when it is seen, it was called ihram, then it was said to raise the voice even if it is for someone other than him. But whoever is forced by necessity, without desiring anything by monopolizing another forced person. Asim, Abu Amr and Hamzah read with a kasra on the letter nun z. nor did he return to satiate hunger or thirst. It was said: not a transgressor against the ruler. Nor did he return to robbing the road. Based on this, it is not permissible for the sinner to travel, and this is the apparent view of the Shafi'i school of thought and the statement of Ahmad, may God have mercy on them both. There is no sin upon him in consuming it. Indeed, God is Forgiving for what he did. Merciful by permitting it. If it is said: It only indicates restricting the ruling to what was mentioned, and how many prohibitions were not mentioned. I say: What is meant is restricting the prohibition to what was mentioned of what they deemed permissible, not absolutely, or restricting its prohibition to a state of choice, as if it was said: These things were only forbidden to you unless you were compelled to do them.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:174

Indeed, those who conceal what Allah has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price - those eat nothing into their bellies except the Fire. And Allah will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they will have a painful punishment.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:174

Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price - those eat nothing into their bellies except the Fire. And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they will have a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book which contains the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they are the Jews and exchange it for a small price of this world, which they take in exchange from their lowest people, so they do not reveal it for fear of missing out on it they eat nothing into their bellies except the Fire because it is their destination and God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection in anger with them nor will He purify them He will cleanse them from the filth of sins and they will have a painful punishment painful, which is the Fire.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Indeed, those who conceal the verse Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah in his saying: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and that in Al Imran 3: Indeed, those who exchange the covenant of God, both of them were revealed about the Jews. Al Tha'labi narrated on the authority of Al Kalbi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: This verse was revealed about the leaders of the Jews and their scholars. They used to receive gifts and favors from their lower class, and they hoped that the prophet sent would be from among them. But when Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent from among others, they feared that their livelihood would be lost and their leadership would be removed, so they took the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and changed it, then they brought it out to them and said: This is the description of the prophet who will emerge at the end of time, it does not resemble the description of this prophet. So God revealed: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book, the Jewish rabbis who concealed from the people the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood, although they found it written in their Torah, as bribes that they had given for that, as: Bishr bin Mu'adh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His saying: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book, the entire verse, are the People of the Book, they concealed what God revealed to them and made clear to them of the truth and guidance, of the mission of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his command. Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price, he said: They are the People of the Book, they concealed what God revealed to them of the truth, Islam, and the status of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book, these are the Jews, they concealed the name of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said: Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said: Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, his statement: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book, and the statement in Al-Imran: Indeed, those who exchange the covenant of God and their oaths for a small price (Al-Imran: 77) were both revealed about the Jews. As for the interpretation of his statement: and exchange it for a small price, it means: they buy with it. The ha in with it is from the mention of concealment. So its meaning is: they purchased with their concealment what they concealed from the people about the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the matter of his prophethood for a small price. That is because what they were giving—in spite of their distortion of the Book of God and their interpretation of it in a way other than its intended meaning, and their concealment of the truth in that—A small amount of worldly goods, as: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And they exchange it for a small price, he said: They concealed the name of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and took a small taste for it, so it is a small price. And I have previously explained the nature of their purchase of that, so there is no need to repeat it here. The statement in the interpretation of the words of God the Most High: "Those eat nothing into their bellies except the Fire. And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they will have a painful punishment." Abu Ja'far said: God the Most High means by His words: Those, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book concerning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, by giving them the basest bribes, so they distort the verses of God and change their meanings. They eat nothing into their bellies - by eating what they ate of the bribes and the reward for that, and what they took as wages for it, but the Fire - meaning: except what will lead them to the Fire and burn them in it, as God the Most High said: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will burn in a Blaze (An-Nisa': 1), meaning: They eat nothing into their bellies except what will lead them to the Fire by eating it, so He is independent of that. By mentioning to their listeners the meaning of the speech, about mentioning what brings them in or enters them. And in a manner similar to what we said about that, a group of the people of interpretation said. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abdullah bin Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Those eat nothing in their bellies except the Fire, meaning what they took as a reward for it. So if someone says: So can the eating be in something other than the stomach, so it is said: what they eat in their bellies? It was said: The Arabs would say: I was hungry in a place other than my stomach, and I was full in a place other than my stomach. It was said: In their stomachs for that reason, just as it is said: So-and-so did this to himself. We have explained that in a place other than this, previously. As for His statement: And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, He says: He will not speak to them with what they love and desire. As for what displeases them and what they hate, He will speak to them, because God, the Most High, has informed us that He will say to them - if they say, Our Lord, take us out of it, but if we return, then we will be wrongdoers - Be gone into it, disgraced, and do not speak to me (al-Mu'minun 23:107, 108). As for His statement: nor will He purify them, He means: nor will He cleanse them from the filth of their sins and disbelief, and for them is a painful punishment, meaning: painful.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book meaning the Jewish scholars, concealed what God revealed in the Torah about the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the authenticity of his message. The meaning of revealed is made manifest, as God the Almighty said: And whoever says, I will send down the like of what God has revealed" meaning I will make manifest. It was said: It is in its category of revelation, meaning what His angels sent down to His messengers. "And they exchange it meaning the concealed thing for a small price" meaning taking a bribe. He called it "little" because its duration was short and its consequences were bad. It was said: Because what they used to take as bribes was little.

I said: Even though this verse is in the report, it includes those Muslims who conceal the truth by choice because of worldly gain, and this meaning has been presented.

God the Almighty says: In their bellies. Mentioning bellies is an indication and confirmation of the reality of eating, as it may be used metaphorically in the example of someone eating something from the earth and the like. Mentioning bellies also draws attention to their greed and that they sold their afterlife for their share of food that has no value. The meaning of except the Fire is that it is forbidden and God will punish them for it with the Fire. So what they ate of bribes was called Fire because it leads them to the Fire, as most of the commentators said. It was said: That is, He punishes them for their concealment by eating the Fire in Hell in reality. So He informed about the outcome in the state, as God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies. That is, the outcome leads to that, and from this is their saying:

They were born for death and built for destruction

He said :

Death is what the mother gives birth to

last :

Our role is to build the ruins of time

It is found in the Qur'an and poetry a lot.

God the Almighty says: And God will not speak to them means He is angry with them and does not accept their pleasure. It is said: So-and-so does not speak to so-and-so if he is angry with him. At-Tabari said: The meaning of and God will not speak to them is what they like. In the Qur'an: Be gone therein, and do not speak to them. It was said: The meaning is He will not send angels to greet them. And He will not purify them means He will not correct their evil deeds and cleanse them. Al-Zajaj said: He will not praise them well nor call them pure. Painful means painful, and this has been mentioned before. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"There are three whom God will not speak to on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, nor will He look at them, and they will have a painful punishment: an old adulterer, a lying king, and an arrogant beggar." These people were singled out for the painful punishment and severe penalty because of the sheer stubbornness and contempt that drove them to commit those sins, as no need drove them to do so, nor did a necessity call them to it as one who was not like them would. The meaning of will not look at them is that He will not have mercy on them or be kind to them. This will come in Al Imran, God willing.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: "Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book" meaning the Jews who concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the books that they had in their hands, which testified to his message and prophethood. They concealed that so that their leadership and what they used to take from the Arabs of gifts and presents due to their veneration of them would not be lost. They feared - may God curse them - that if they revealed that, people would follow him and abandon them. So they concealed that in order to preserve what they had obtained from that, which was a small amount. So they sold themselves for that and exchanged guidance, following the truth, believing the Messenger, and believing in what came from God for that small amount. So they failed and lost in this world and the hereafter. As for this world, God showed His servants the truthfulness of His Messenger by what He established and placed with him of clear signs and decisive evidence. So those who feared to follow him believed him, and they became his helper in fighting them, and they incurred wrath upon wrath, and God condemned them in His book is in more than one place, including this noble verse: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price, which is the worldly life, those eat nothing into their bellies except fire, meaning that they only eat what they eat in exchange for concealing the truth, a fire that will burn in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection, as God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will be burned in a Blaze. And in the authentic hadith on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said, He who eats or drinks from vessels of gold or silver is only swallowing fire from Hell into his belly.

And His statement: And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and for them is a painful punishment. This is because the Most High is angry with them, because they concealed what was known, and thus they deserved anger, so He will not look at them nor purify them, that is, He will not praise them or commend them, but He will punish them with a painful punishment. Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh mentioned here the hadith of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: "There are three whom God will not speak to, nor look at, nor purify, and for them is a painful punishment: an old adulterer, a lying king, and an arrogant beggar." Then the Most High said, informing about them: Those are the ones who have purchased error in place of guidance. That is, they exchanged guidance, which is the dissemination of what is in their books of the description of the Messenger and the mention of his mission and the good report of him from the books of the prophets and following him and believing in him. They replaced that and exchanged it for error, which is denying him and disbelieving in him and concealing his attributes in their books. And the torment. "With forgiveness" means they compensated for forgiveness with punishment, which is what they undertook from its mentioned causes. And the Almighty's saying: How patient they are with the Fire informs us that they are in a severe, great, and terrifying punishment. Whoever sees them in it will be amazed at their patience with that despite the severity of the punishment, torment, and shackles they are in, God forbid. And it was said that the meaning of His saying: How patient they are with the Fire is how persistent they are in committing sins that will lead them to the Fire. And the Almighty's saying: That is because God has sent down the Book in truth means that they only deserved this severe punishment because God Almighty sent down His Books to His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to the prophets before him to establish the truth and invalidate falsehood. And these people took God's verses as a mockery, for their Book commanded them to show and spread knowledge, but they opposed it and denied it. And this final Messenger calls them to God Almighty and commands them to do good and forbids them from evil, but they deny him, oppose him, reject him, and conceal his description. So they mocked the revealed verses of God. On His messengers, for this reason they deserved punishment and torment, and for this reason He said, "That is because God has sent down the Book in truth. And indeed, those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension."

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 174- "Indeed, those who conceal" It was said: What is meant by this verse are the Jewish scholars, because they concealed what God revealed in the Torah about the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. And purchasing here: replacement, and its investigation has been presented, and he called it little because its duration was cut off and its consequences were bad, and this reason, although it was purely considered in the generality of the wording, includes everyone who concealed what God legislated, and took bribes for it, and mentioning heroism is an indication and confirmation that this eating is real, since it may be used metaphorically in something like someone eating something on the ground and the like. And he said in Al-Kashshaf: The meaning of "in their bellies" He said: He says: So-and-so ate in his stomach, and he ate in some of his stomach. End. His statement: except the Fire means that He will punish them with the Fire, so He called what they ate Fire because it will lead them to it, this is what most of the commentators said. It was said that they will be punished for their concealment by eating the Fire in Hell in reality. Similar to this is His statement, the Most High: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming into their bellies fire. His statement, and God will not speak to them is a metaphor for the descent of God's wrath upon them and His displeasure with them. It is said: So-and-so does not speak to so-and-so if he is angry with him. Ibn Jarir al-Tabari said: The meaning is that He will not speak to them for what they love, not for what they hate. Like His statement, the Most High: Be gone therein, and do not speak to them. His statement, He will not purify them means that He will not speak well of them. Al-Zajaj said: It was said that its meaning is that He will not rectify their evil deeds and purify them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

174. God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book ((It was revealed about the leaders of the Jews and their scholars who used to receive gifts and food from their lowest class, and they hoped that the Prophet sent would be from among them. But when Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sent from someone other than them, they feared that their food would be lost and their leadership would be removed, so they took the description of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and changed it, then brought it out to them. But when the low class looked at the changed description, they found it to be contrary to the description of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and exchange it meaning the concealed for a small price meaning a small exchange meaning the food they receive from their lowest class they eat nothing into their bellies except the Fire meaning except what leads them to the Fire, which is bribery, what is forbidden, and the price of debt. So when that led them to the Fire, it was as if they ate the Fire. It was said that its meaning is that it becomes a Fire in Their bellies. And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection. That is, He will not speak to them with mercy or what pleases them. Rather, He will speak to them with rebuke. It was said: He meant by this that He will be angry with them, as it is said: So-and-so does not speak to so-and-so if he is angry with him. And He will not purify them. That is, He will not cleanse them from the filth of sins. And for them is a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

174- "Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price" a lowly exchange. "Those eat nothing into their bellies except the Fire" either in the present case, because they ate what is associated with the Fire because it is a punishment for it, so it is as if he ate the Fire, as in His saying:

I would eat blood if I did not smite you with a distant rival, the destination of the earring is good, the spreader

It means blood money. Or in the final destination, meaning they will eat nothing on the Day of Resurrection but fire. The meaning of in their bellies is: filling their bellies. It is said: he ate in his stomach and he ate in some of his stomach, as in the saying:

Eat together and you will be forgiven

And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection refers to His anger, and hints at their being deprived of the honor and closeness to God when they meet Him. Nor will He purify them does not praise them. And for them is a painful punishment painful.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:175

Those are the ones who have purchased error at the price of guidance and punishment at the price of forgiveness. So how patient they are for the Fire!

Surat al-Baqarah 2:175

Those are the ones who have purchased error at the price of guidance and punishment at the price of forgiveness. So how patient they are for the Fire!

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance they took it instead in this world and punishment in exchange for forgiveness prepared for them in the Hereafter if they had not concealed it so how patient they are with the Fire meaning how intense their patience is, and this is amazement to the believers from committing their obligations without caring, otherwise what patience do they have?

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance and punishment in exchange for forgiveness. Abu Ja'far said: The Almighty means by His saying: Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance, those who took error, and abandoned guidance, and took what would necessitate for them the punishment of God on the Day of Resurrection, and abandoned what would necessitate for them His forgiveness and pleasure. So He dispensed with mentioning the punishment and forgiveness, instead of mentioning the reason that necessitates them, so that the listeners of that would understand its meaning and what is intended by it. We have explained similar examples of that previously. Likewise, we have explained the reason for they have purchased error in exchange for guidance with the differences of those who differed, and the evidence that bears witness to what we have chosen from the statement, in what has passed before, so we disliked repeating it. The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: How patient they are with the Fire!

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that. Some of them said that its meaning is: How daring they are to do the work that brings them closer to the Fire.

Who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: How patient they are with the Fire, he says: How bold they are to do the work that brings them closer to the Fire. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement, How patient they are with the Fire, he says: How bold they are with it. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Bishr, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement, How patient they are with the Fire, he said:

By God, they have no patience with it, but how bold they are with the Fire. Ahmad bin Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, he said, Misa'ar told us - and Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Bakir told us, he said, Misa'ar told us - on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Mujahid, or Saeed bin Jubayr, or some of his companions, How patient they are with the Fire, how bold they are. Narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: How patient they are with the Fire, he said: How bold and patient they are with the Fire. Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: How much they do the deeds of the people of the Fire. Mention of those who said this: Muhammad ibn 'Amr narrated to me, who said: Abu 'Asim narrated to us, who said: 'Isa narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: How patient they are with the Fire, he said: How much they do with falsehood. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, who said: Abu Hudhayfah narrated to us, who said: Shibl narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. And they differed in the interpretation of what is in his statement: How patient they are with the Fire. Some of them said: It is in the sense of a question, and it is as if he said: What made them patient? What made them patient? Mention of those who said this: Musa ibn Harun narrated to me, who said: 'Amr narrated to us, who said: Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of al-Suddi: How much they are patient with the Fire, this is in the form of a question. He said: What made them patient with the Fire? Abbas bin Muhammad told me, Hajjaj al-Awar told us, Ibn Jurayj told us, Ata' told me: What made them patient with the Fire? Q: What made them patient with the Fire, when they abandoned the truth and followed falsehood? Abu Kurayb told us, Abu Bakr bin Ayyash was asked: What made them patient with the Fire? He said: This is a question. If it was from patience, he would have said: What made them patient, in the nominative case. He said: It is said to a man: What made you patient? What did this to you? Yunus told me, Ibn Wahb told us, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: What made them patient with the Fire? He said: This is a question. He says: What made them patient with the Fire that it made them bold enough to do this? Others said: It is an expression of amazement. Meaning: How bold they are with the Fire by doing the deeds of the people of the Fire! Mention of those who said that:

Sufyan ibn Wakee' narrated, he said: My father narrated, on the authority of Ibn Uyaynah, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: How patient they are with the Fire! He said: How much they do the deeds of the people of the Fire! This is the saying of al-Hasan and Qatadah, and we have mentioned it before. So whoever says: It is astonishment - he directed the interpretation of the statement to: Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance and punishment in exchange for forgiveness. How much more audacious they are - by doing what they did - in what will necessitate the Fire for them! As God the Almighty said: How ungrateful is man! (Abasa 80:17), expressing astonishment at his disbelief in the One who created him and proportioned his creation. As for those who interpreted it as a question, its meaning is: These are the ones who purchased misguidance with guidance and torment with forgiveness. How patient they are with the Fire - and no one has patience with the Fire - that they exchanged it for God's forgiveness and took something else from it? Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate of these sayings to interpret the verse is the saying of those who said: How bold they are with the Fire, meaning: How bold they are with the torment of the Fire and how they do the deeds of its people. This is because it is heard from the Arabs: How patient so-and-so is with God, meaning: How bold so-and-so is with God! God amazes His creation by revealing the report about the people who conceal what God the Blessed and Exalted has revealed about the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood, and their purchase of a small price from the ill-gotten gains and bribes that they gave by concealing that - expressing astonishment at their precedence in that. Knowing that this would cause them to incur God's wrath and painful punishment. The meaning of this is: How bold they are to face the torment of the Fire! However, mentioning the Fire was sufficient, instead of mentioning its torment, just as it is said: How similar your generosity is to Hatim's, meaning: How similar your generosity is to Hatim's generosity, and how similar your bravery is to Antarah's.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance and punishment in exchange for forgiveness. How patient they are in the Fire."

The Almighty says: Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance and punishment in exchange for forgiveness. This has been discussed previously. Since punishment is subordinate to error and forgiveness is subordinate to the guidance that they have rejected, this is included in the permissibility of the purchase.

God the Almighty said: How patient they are with the Fire! The opinion of the majority - including Al-Hasan and Mujahid - is that what means astonishment, and it is attributed to the creatures, as if he said: Be amazed at their patience with the Fire and their stay in it. In the revelation: How ungrateful is man! and He hears them and sees them. Abu Ali began with this meaning: Al-Hasan, Qatada, Ibn Jubayr and Al-Rabi' said: By God, they have no patience with it, but how bold they are with the Fire! This is a well-known Yemeni dialect. Al-Farra' said: Al-Kisa'i told me: The judge of Yemen told me that two opponents brought their case before him, and one of them was required to swear an oath, so he swore, and his companion said to him: How patient you are with God? That is, how bold you are with it. The meaning is: How courageous they are with the Fire when they do work that leads to it. Al-Zajaj narrated that the meaning is: How long they remain in the Fire, from their saying: How patient so-and-so is with imprisonment! That is, how long he remains in it. It was said: The meaning is: How little their anxiety about the Fire, so little anxiety was made patience. Al-Kisa'i and Qatib said: What made them persist in doing the deeds of the people of Hell? It was also said: What is an interrogative meaning a rebuke, as stated by Ibn Abbas, Al-Suddi, Ata', and Abu Ubaidah Muammar ibn Al-Muthanna. Its meaning is: What made them endure the deeds of the people of Hell?! It was also said: This is to belittle them and make light of their matter.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book meaning the Jews who concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the books that they had in their hands, which testified to his message and prophethood. They concealed that so that their leadership and what they used to take from the Arabs of gifts and presents due to their veneration of them would not be lost. They feared - may God curse them - that if they revealed that, people would follow him and abandon them. So they concealed that in order to preserve what they had obtained from that, which was a small amount. So they sold themselves for that and exchanged guidance, following the truth, believing the Messenger, and believing in what came from God for that small amount. So they failed and lost in this world and the hereafter. As for this world, God showed His servants the truthfulness of His Messenger by what He established and placed with him of clear signs and decisive evidence. So those who feared to follow him believed him, and they became his helper in fighting them, and they incurred wrath upon wrath, and God condemned them in His book in more than one place, including this noble verse: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price, which is the worldly life, those eat nothing into their bellies except fire, meaning that they only eat what they eat in exchange for concealing the truth, a fire that will burn in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection, as God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will be burned in a Blaze. And in the authentic hadith on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said, He who eats or drinks from vessels of gold or silver is only swallowing fire from Hell into his belly.

And His statement: And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and for them is a painful punishment. This is because the Most High is angry with them, because they concealed what was known, and thus they deserved anger, so He will not look at them nor purify them, that is, He will not praise them or commend them, but He will punish them with a painful punishment. Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh mentioned here the hadith of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: "There are three whom God will not speak to, nor look at, nor

Those are the ones who have purchased error at the price of guidance and punishment at the price of forgiveness. So how patient they are for the Fire!

purify, and for them is a painful punishment: an old adulterer, a lying king, and an arrogant beggar.” Then the Most High said, informing about them: Those are the ones who have purchased error in place of guidance. That is, they exchanged guidance, which is the dissemination of what is in their books of the description of the Messenger and the mention of his mission and the good report of him from the books of the prophets and following him and believing in him. They replaced that and exchanged it for error, which is denying him and disbelieving in him and concealing his attributes in their books. And the torment. “With forgiveness” means they compensated for forgiveness with punishment, which is what they undertook from its mentioned causes. And the Almighty’s saying: How patient they are with the Fire informs us that they are in a severe, great, and terrifying punishment. Whoever sees them in it will be amazed at their patience with that despite the severity of the punishment, torment, and shackles they are in, God forbid. And it was said that the meaning of His saying: How patient they are with the Fire is how persistent they are in committing sins that will lead them to the Fire. And the Almighty’s saying: That is because God has sent down the Book in truth means that they only deserved this severe punishment because God Almighty sent down His Books to His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to the prophets before him to establish the truth and invalidate falsehood. And these people took God’s verses as a mockery, for their Book commanded them to show and spread knowledge, but they opposed it and denied it. And this final Messenger calls them to God Almighty and commands them to do good and forbids them from evil, but they deny him, oppose him, reject him, and conceal his description. So they mocked the revealed verses of God. On His messengers, for this reason they deserved punishment and torment, and for this reason He said, “That is because God has sent down the Book in truth. And indeed, those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension.”

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 175- They purchased error in exchange for guidance its meaning has already been explained. And his saying: How patient they are with the Fire the majority, including Al-Hasan and Mujahid, said that its meaning is astonishment. What is meant is the astonishment of the creatures at the state of those who directly dealt with the causes of the torment of the Fire, as if by this dealing with the causes they were patient with the punishment in the Fire of Hell. Al-Zajaj narrated that the meaning is: What kept them in the Fire, from their saying: How patient so-and-so is with imprisonment: meaning what kept him in it. And it was said that the meaning is: How little their anxiety about the Fire is, so he made little anxiety patience. Al-Kisa’i and Qutrub said: Meaning how persistent they are in the work of the people of the Fire. And it was said: What is an interrogative, and its meaning is a rebuke: meaning what made them patient with the work of the Fire. This was said by Ibn Abbas, Al-Suddi, Ata’ and Abu Ubaidah.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

175. "Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance and punishment in exchange for forgiveness. So how patient they are in the Fire!" Ata' and As-Suddi said: It is what a question, the meaning of which is what made them patient in the Fire and what makes them patient in the Fire that they abandoned the truth and followed falsehood. Al-Hasan and Qatada said: By God, they have no patience for it, but how bold they are in doing the work that brings them closer to the Fire. Al-Kisa'i said: So how patient they are in doing the work of the people of the Fire, meaning how persistent they are in it.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

175- Those are the ones who have purchased error in exchange for guidance in this world. And punishment in exchange for forgiveness in the Hereafter, by concealing the truth for worldly purposes and purposes. How patient they are in the Fire. He is amazed at their state in being confused by the requirements of the Fire without caring. And what is complete and raised by the beginning, and its specification is like the specification of their saying.

Evil is this fang

Or interrogative and what follows it is the predicate, or relative and what follows it is a connection and the predicate is omitted.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:176

That is because God has sent down the Book with the truth. And indeed, those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

That which was mentioned about those who were eaten by the Fire and what follows it because because God sent down the Book with the truth is related to sent down, so they differed about it as they believed in some of it and disbelieved in some of it by concealing it and indeed those who differed about the Book by that and they are the Jews and it was said the polytheists in the Qur'an as some of them said poetry and some of them magic and some of them divination are in dissension disagreement far from the truth

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: "That is because God has sent down the Book with the truth. And indeed, those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension." Abu Ja'far said: As for his saying: That is because God has sent down the Book with the truth, then there is a difference of opinion regarding the meaning of that. Some of them said: The meaning of that is their action that they are doing - of their audacity in the punishment of the Fire, in their disobedience to the command of God, and their concealment from the people what God revealed in His Book, and His command to explain to them about Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the matter of His religion - because God, the Blessed and Exalted, sent down the Book with the truth, and His sending down the Book with the truth is His report about them in His saying to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: "Indeed, those who disbelieve - it is all the same to them whether you warn them or do not warn them - they will not believe. God has set a seal upon their hearts and upon their hearing, and over their vision is a veil, and for them is a great punishment." (al-Baqarah 2:6-7), so they - despite what God has informed about them that they will not believe - will do nothing but buy misguidance with guidance and punishment with forgiveness. Others said: The meaning of that is known to them, that God sent down the Book with the truth, because we have informed us in the Book that that is for them, and the Book is the truth. It is as if the people who said this interpretation of the verse, according to them, were: That torment - which God Almighty said, How patient they are with it - is known to be for them. Because God has informed in places in His revelation that the Fire is for the disbelievers, and His revelation is true, so the report about that according to them is implied. Others said: The meaning of that is that God described the people of the Fire, and said: How patient they are with the Fire, then He said: This torment is because of their disbelief.

And this here, according to them, is what can be replaced by that, as if he said: We did that because God revealed the Book with the truth and they disbelieved in it. He said: So that - if that is its meaning - would be accusative, and it would be nominative with the preposition with. Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of the verse in my opinion is that God Almighty indicated by His saying: that to all that is contained in His saying: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book, to His saying: That is because God has sent down the Book in truth, from His report about the actions of the Jewish rabbis, and His mention of what God Almighty has prepared for them as punishment for that, so He said: This is what these Jewish rabbis did, by concealing from the people what they concealed of the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his prophethood despite their knowledge of it, seeking from them a lowly worldly display - and by their disobedience to My command and obedience, and that - from My not purifying them and sanctifying them and speaking to them, and My preparing for them the painful punishment - is that I sent down My Book in truth, so they disbelieved in it and differed about it. So in that there are two aspects of parsing: nominative and accusative. The nominative is with the preposition ba, and the accusative means:

I did that because I sent down My Book with the truth, but they disbelieved in it and differed about it. He left out mentioning that they disbelieved in it and differed about it, as a sufficiency of the evidence of what was mentioned of the speech about it.

As for his statement: And indeed, those who differ over the Scripture are in extreme dissension, meaning by that the Jews and Christians, they differed over the Book of God, so the Jews disbelieved in what God related in it of the stories of Jesus, son of Mary, and his mother. And the Christians believed in some of that, and disbelieved in some of it, and they all disbelieved in what God revealed in it of the command to believe in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. So he said to his Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: Indeed, those who differed over what was revealed to you, O Muhammad, are in dispute and departure from the truth, far from guidance and correctness, as God, the Most High, said: So if they believe in the same as you believe, they have been guided, but if they turn away, then they are only in dissension (Al-Baqarah 2:137). Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And indeed, those who differ over the Scripture are in extreme dissension, meaning: They are the Jews and Christians. He said: They are in extreme enmity. And I have explained the meaning of dissension previously.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: That is because God has sent down the Book in truth, and indeed those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension.

God the Almighty said: That That is in the nominative case, and it is an indication of the ruling, as if he said:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:176

That is because God has sent down the Book with the truth. And indeed, those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension.

That ruling is with the Fire. Al-Zajjaj said: Its meaning is that matter, or that order, or that punishment for them. Al-Akhfash said: The predicate of that is implied, meaning that is known to them. It was said: Its position is accusative, meaning we did that to them. Because God sent down the Book meaning the Qur'an in this place with the truth meaning with honesty. It was said: with proof. And those who differed over the Book meaning the Torah, so the Christians claimed that it contained the description of Jesus, and the Jews denied his description. It was said: They differed from their fathers and predecessors in adhering to it. It was said: They differed from what was in the Torah about the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and differed over it. It was said: What is meant is the Qur'an, and those who differed are the infidels of Quraysh, some of them say: It is magic, and some of them say: Legends of the ancients, and some of them: It is fabricated, and so on. The meaning of discord has been discussed previously, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book meaning the Jews who concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the books that they had in their hands, which testified to his message and prophethood. They concealed that so that their leadership and what they used to take from the Arabs of gifts and presents due to their veneration of them would not be lost. So they concealed that in order to preserve what they had obtained from that, which was a small amount. So they sold themselves for that and exchanged guidance, following the truth, believing the Messenger, and believing in what came from God for that small amount. So they failed and lost in this world and the hereafter. As for this world, God showed His servants the truthfulness of His Messenger by what He established and placed with him of clear signs and decisive evidence. So those who feared to follow him believed him, and they became his helper in fighting them, and they incurred wrath upon wrath, and God condemned them in His book is in more than one place, including this noble verse: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed of the Book and exchange it for a small price, which is the worldly life, those eat nothing into their bellies except fire, meaning that they only eat what they eat in exchange for concealing the truth, a fire that will burn in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection, as God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will be burned in a Blaze. And in the authentic hadith on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said, He who eats or drinks from vessels of gold or silver is only swallowing fire from Hell into his belly.

And His statement: And God will not speak to them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and for them is a painful punishment. This is because the Most High is angry with them, because they concealed what was known, and thus they deserved anger, so He will not look at them nor purify them, that is, He will not praise them or commend them, but He will punish them with a painful punishment. Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh mentioned here the hadith of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: "There are three whom God will not speak to, nor look at, nor purify, and for them is a painful punishment: an old adulterer, a lying king, and an arrogant beggar." Then the Most High said, informing about them: Those are the ones who have purchased error in place of guidance. That is, they exchanged guidance, which is the dissemination of what is in their books of the description of the Messenger and the mention of his mission and the good report of him from the books of the prophets and following him and believing in him. They replaced that and exchanged it for error, which is denying him and disbelieving in him and concealing his attributes in their books. And the torment. "With forgiveness" means they compensated for forgiveness with punishment, which is what they undertook from its mentioned causes. And the Almighty's saying: How patient they are with the Fire informs us that they are in a severe, great, and terrifying punishment. Whoever sees them in it will be amazed at their patience with that despite the severity of the punishment, torment, and shackles they are in, God forbid. And it was said that the meaning of His saying: How patient they are with the Fire is how persistent they are in committing sins that will lead them to the Fire. And the Almighty's saying: That is because God has sent down the Book in truth means that they only deserved this severe punishment because God Almighty sent down His Books to His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to the prophets before him to establish the truth and invalidate falsehood. And these people took God's verses as a mockery, for their Book commanded them to show and spread knowledge, but they opposed it and denied it. And this final Messenger calls them to God Almighty and commands them to do good and forbids them from evil, but they deny him, oppose him, reject him, and conceal his description. So they mocked the revealed verses of God. On His messengers, for this reason they deserved punishment and torment, and for this reason He said, "That is because God has sent down the Book in truth. And indeed, those who differ over the Book are in extreme dissension."

176- That is because God has sent down the Book with the truth. The reference with the demonstrative pronoun to the command: that is, that command, which is the punishment. This was said by Al-Zajjaj. Al-Akhfash said: The predicate of the demonstrative pronoun is omitted, and the meaning is: that is known.

What is meant by the Book here is the Qur'an with the truth, that is, with honesty, and it was said: with proof. And His statement: And those who differed over the Book It was said: What is meant by the Book here is the Torah, so the Christians claimed that it contains the description of Jesus, and the Jews denied them, and it was said: They contradicted what was in the Torah about the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they differed over it, and it was said: What is meant by the Qur'an, and those who differed are the infidels of Quraysh, some of them say: it is magic, and some of them say: it is legends of the ancients, and some of them say otherwise. In discord, that is, disagreement far from the truth, and the meaning of discord has been presented.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding his statement: Indeed, those who conceal what God has revealed he said: It was revealed about the Jews. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi who said: They concealed the name of Muhammad (peace be upon him) and took it out of a little greed. Ibn Jarir also narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah something similar. Al-Tha'labi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas with two weak chains of narration that it was revealed about the Jews. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding his statement: Those are the ones who have purchased error at the price of guidance he said: They chose error over guidance and torment over forgiveness. How patient they are for the Fire he said: How bold they are to commit the deeds of the Fire. Sa'id bin Mansour, Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement: How patient they are for the Fire he said: How knowledgeable they are about the deeds of the people of the Fire. Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on his statement: How patient they are for the Fire he said: By God, they have no patience for it, but he says: How bold they are for the Fire. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Qatada. Ibn Jarir also narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding the verse, he said: This is in the form of a question, he says: What made them endure the Fire? And His statement: And indeed, those who differ over the Scripture he said: They are the Jews and Christians are in extreme dissension he said: In extreme enmity.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

176. That is because God sent down the Book with the truth means that punishment is because God sent down the Book with the truth, but they denied it and disbelieved in it. Then that would be in the nominative case. Some of them said that its accusative case means that we did that to them because God, meaning because God sent down the Book with the truth, but they differed about it. It was said that its meaning is that, meaning their action that they do of disbelief, difference, and insolence towards God, because God sent down the Book with the truth, and that is the saying of God Almighty: "Indeed, those who disbelieve - it is all the same to them whether you warn them or do not warn them - they will not believe. God has set a seal upon their hearts" 7-Al-Baqarah. And indeed, those who differed about the Book - believing in some and disbelieving in others - are in extreme dissension - meaning in extreme disagreement and misguidance.

176- That is because God sent down the Book with the truth meaning that this punishment is because God sent down the Book with the truth and they rejected it by denying it or concealing it. And those who differed over the Book the lam in it is either for the genus, and their difference is their belief in some of God's books and their disbelief in others. Or it is for the covenant, and the reference is either to the Torah, and they differed in the sense that they deviated from the straight path in interpreting it, or they deviated from what God sent down in its place, meaning they distorted what is in it. Or it is to the Qur'an and their difference in it, their saying magic, and saying, and speech taught to a human being, and legends of the ancients. are in a far schism are in a far disagreement from the truth.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:177

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:177

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in God and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces in prayer towards the east or the west revealed in response to the Jews and Christians when they claimed that but righteousness meaning the righteous person and it was read with the opening of the ba' meaning the righteous is he who believes in God and the Last Day and the angels and the Book meaning the Books and the prophets and gives wealth with his love for it to relatives relatives and orphans and the needy and the traveler the traveler and those who ask the seekers and for the freeing of slaves those who are freed and the captives and establishes prayer and gives zakah the obligatory and what preceded it in the voluntary and those who fulfill their covenant when they have made a covenant with God or the people and the patient accusative for praise in poverty severe poverty and hardship sickness and at the time of battle at the time of severe fighting in the way of God those described by what was mentioned are those who are true in their faith or claim of righteousness and those are the righteous of God

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: It is not righteousness, the verse K said: Abd al-Razzaq informed us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada, who said: The Jews used to pray towards the west and the Christians towards the east, so it was revealed: It is not righteousness that you turn your faces towards the east and the west. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah, and Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatada, who said: It was mentioned to us that a man asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about righteousness, so God revealed this verse: It is not righteousness that you turn your faces towards the east. So he called the man and recited it to him. It was before the obligatory duties, if he testified that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, then he died upon that, then he was hoped for and desired for good, so God revealed: It is not righteousness that you turn your faces towards the east and the west. The Jews turned towards the west and the Christians towards the east.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his statement. Some of them said: The meaning of this is: Righteousness is not prayer alone, but righteousness is the characteristics that I will explain to you. Muhammad bin Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, meaning: prayer. He says:

Righteousness is not that you pray and do not work, so this has been the case since the move from Mecca to Medina, and the obligatory duties were revealed, and the limits were set. So God commanded the obligatory duties and working according to them. Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh,

On the authority of Mujahid: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is that which is established in the heart of obedience to God. Al-Qasim told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Al-Qasim told me, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: This verse was revealed in Madinah: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, meaning prayer. He said: Righteousness is not that you pray and do nothing else. Ibn Jurayj said: And Mujahid said:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, meaning prostration, but righteousness is that which is established in the heart of obedience to God. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Abu Tamilah told us, on the authority of Ubayd ibn Sulayman, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak ibn Muzahim, that he said about it, he said: Righteousness is not that you pray and do nothing else. This was when he moved from Mecca to Medina, so God revealed the obligatory duties and set the boundaries in Medina, and ordered the obligatory duties to be followed. Others said: God meant by this the Jews and Christians. The Jews pray facing west, and the Christians pray facing east, so God revealed this verse about them, informing them that righteousness is not the work they do, but it is what we explained in this verse. Those who said this: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: The Jews used to pray facing west and the Christians used to pray facing east, so this verse was revealed: It is not righteousness that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: It is not righteousness that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in God and the Last Day. It was mentioned to us that a man asked the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about righteousness, so God revealed this verse. It was mentioned to us that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called the man and recited it to him. Before the obligatory duties, if a man testified that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger and then died upon that, he would be hoped for and desired for good. So God revealed:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. The Jews turned toward the west, and the Christians toward the east. But righteousness is [in] one who believes in God and the Last Day.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas, he said: The Jews used to pray toward the west, and the Christians toward the east, so this verse was revealed:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these two interpretations of the verse is the one that Qatada and Qatada bin Anas said: That by His statement: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, he meant the Jews and the Christians. Because the verses before it proceeded to rebuke and blame them, and to tell about them and the painful torment that was prepared for them. This is in the context of what preceded it, since the matter was thus, Righteousness is not, O Jews and Christians, that some of you turn your faces toward the east and some toward the west, but righteousness is he who believes in God and the Last Day and the angels and the Book the verse. If a woman were to say, How can it be said, 'But righteousness is he who believes in God,' and you know that righteousness is a verb and whoever is a noun, so how can the verb be the human being? It would be said: The meaning of that is not what you imagined, but rather its meaning is: but righteousness is he who believes in God and the Last Day, so whoever was put in place of the verb, sufficing with its indication and the indication of its connection which is an attribute of it, from the deleted verb, as the Arabs do, so they put the nouns in place of their verbs by which they are famous, so you say: generosity is Hatim, and bravery is Antarah, but indeed generosity is Hatim and bravery is Antarah, and its meaning is generosity is the generosity of Hatim, so you dispense with mentioning Hatim since he was known for generosity from repeating mention of generosity after what you have mentioned, so you place it in place of his generosity, because the speech indicates what you have deleted, dispensing with

What you mentioned about what you did not mention. As it was said, And ask the town in which we were (Yusuf 12:82), and the meaning is: the people of the town, and as the poet said, and he is the one with the cooking rag:

I thought my camel's embrace was an embrace! What is it? Who else can embrace you?

He means: with the sound of a hug, or the sound of a hug, as one says: I thought my crying was your brother, meaning to him: I thought my crying was your brother's crying. It may be possible that the meaning of the statement is: But the righteous is he who believes in God, so righteousness is a source placed in place of the noun. Abu Ja'far said: God the Almighty means by His statement: And gives wealth, in spite of love for it, to relatives, orphans, the needy, the traveler, those who ask, and for the freeing of slaves. He gave his wealth while he loved it, was stingy with it, and was miserly with it, as Abu Kurayb and Abu al-Sa'ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, he heard Layth, on the authority of Zubayd, on the authority of Murrah ibn Shurahil al-Bukayli, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud: And gives wealth, in spite of love for it, meaning: he gives it while he is healthy and stingy, hoping to live and fearing poverty. Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, he said: Abd al-Rahman told us - and al-Hasan ibn Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us - they both said, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Zubayd al-Yami, on the authority of Murrah, on the authority of Abdullah: And gives wealth, in spite of love for it, he said: And you are healthy, hoping to live and fearing poverty. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Zubayd al-Yami, on the authority of Abdullah, that he said regarding this verse: And he gives away wealth, despite his love for it, he said: And you are greedy and stingy, hoping for wealth, and fearing poverty.

Ahmad bin Na'mah Al-Masry narrated, Abu Saleh narrated, Al-Layth narrated, Ibrahim bin A'yan narrated, on the authority of Shu'bah bin Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Zubayd Al-Yami, on the authority of Murrah Al-Hamadani, who said: Abdullah bin Mas'ud said regarding the statement of God: And gives his wealth, in spite of love for it, to his relatives, he said: Eager and stingy, hoping for wealth and fearing poverty. Abu Kurayb and Ya'qub bin Ibrahim narrated, they said: Hisham narrated, he said: Ismail bin Salim narrated, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, I heard him being asked: Does a man have any right on his wealth other than zakat? He said: Yes! And he recited this verse: "And gives his wealth, in spite of love for it, to his relatives, orphans, the needy, the traveler, those who ask [for help], and to free slaves. And he establishes prayer and gives zakat." Abu Kurayb narrated, he said: Suwaid bin Amr Al-Kalbi narrated, he said: Hammad bin Salamah narrated, he said: Abu Hamza narrated, he said: I said to Al-Sha'bi: If a man purifies his wealth, does his wealth become good for him? Then he recited this verse: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west to and give away wealth, though you love it to the end of it. Then he said: Fatima bint Qais told me that she said: O Messenger of God, I have seventy mithqals of gold. So he said: Give it to your relatives. Abu Kurayb told us, he said: Yahya bin Adam told us, on the authority of Sharik, he said: Abu Hamza told us - as far as I know - on the authority of Aamer, on the authority of Fatima bint Qais that she heard him say: There is a right in wealth other than zakat. Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, he said: Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

Abu Hayyan, he said: Muzahim bin

Zafar said, I was sitting with Ata' when a Bedouin came to him and said to him: I have camels, do I have a right over them after the zakat? He said: Yes! He said: What? He said: The loan of the bucket, the stallion's mount, and milking. Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he mentioned it on the authority of Marra Al-Hamadani in: And he gives away wealth, despite his love for it, he said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: You give it to him while you are healthy and stingy, you prolong hope, and you fear poverty. He also mentioned on the authority of Al-Suddi that this is something obligatory regarding wealth, and it is the right of the owner of the wealth to do it, other than what he owes of zakat.

Al-Rabi' told us, on the authority of Sulayman, who said: Asad told us, Suwaid bin Abdullah told us, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of Amer, on the authority of Fatima bint Qays, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: There is a right in wealth other than zakat, and he recited this verse: There is no righteousness to the end of the verse.

Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said, Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Zubayd al-Yami, on the authority of Murrah ibn Sharahil, on the authority of Abdullah, regarding his statement: And he gives wealth, despite his love for it, he said: That a man gives it while he is healthy and stingy with it, hoping to live and fearing poverty. Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the verse is: And he gives wealth - although he loves it, is keen to collect it, and is stingy with it - to his relatives, so he maintains ties of kinship with it. I only said that he meant by his statement: relatives, the relatives of the one who gives the money despite his love for it, because of the report narrated from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding his command to Fatima bint Qays. And his statement, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he was asked: Which charity is best? He said: The effort of the poor for the sake of the greedy relative. As for orphans and the needy, we have explained their meanings previously. As for the wayfarer, he is the one who passes by a man. Then the scholars differed regarding his description. Some of them said: He is the guest in that regard. Those who said that mentioned:

Bishr ibn Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada: And the wayfarer he said, he is the guest. He said: It was mentioned to us that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: Whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him speak good or remain silent. He said: And he used to say: The right of hospitality is three nights, and everything he hosts after that is charity. Some of them said: He is the traveler who passes by you. Those who mentioned that mentioned: Sufyan ibn Wakee' narrated, he said, my father narrated, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Abu Ja'far: And the wayfarer he said: The one who passes by from one land to another. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said, Ishaq narrated to us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid and Qatada regarding His statement: And the wayfarer he said: The one who passes by you is a traveler. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said, Suwaid ibn Nasr narrated to us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak informed us, on the authority of the one who mentioned it, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid and Qatada, similarly. The traveler is called Ibn al-Sabil because he is always on the road - and the road is the path - so he is called Ibn al-Ma'a because he is always on it during his journey, just as a water bird is called Ibn al-Ma'a because he is always on it, and a man who has been through the ages is called Ibn al-Days, Nights, and Times. From this is the saying of Dhu al-Rummah:

It was mentioned arbitrarily, and the Pleiades were like a shaved head of water

As for his saying: and those who ask, he means by it: those who seek food and demand it, such as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, on the authority of Hisayn, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding His statement: and those who ask, he said: the one who asks you. As for His statement: and for the slaves, he means by that: and for the release of slaves from slavery ⁷, and they are the freed slaves who strive to release their slaves from slavery by fulfilling their contracts upon which they parted from their masters. The statement on the interpretation of the statement of God Almighty: and establish prayer and give zakat and those who fulfill their covenant when they have made a covenant, Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His statement: and establish prayer that he continued to work on it within its limits. And by His statement: and give zakat, he gave it according to what God had imposed on him. If someone says: Is there a right in wealth that must be given obligatorily other than zakat? It was said: The people of interpretation differed on this: Some of them said: It contains rights that are obligatory other than zakat, and they based their statement on this verse, and they said: When God the Blessed and Exalted said: And gives wealth, in spite of love for it, to the near of kin, and those whom God named with them, then He said after that: And establishes prayer and gives zakat, we know that the wealth - which He described the believers with that they give to their near of kin and those whom He named with them - is not the zakat that He mentioned that they give. Because if that were one wealth, there would be no clear meaning to repeating it. They said: Since it is not permissible for God the Exalted to say something that has no meaning, we know that the ruling on the first wealth is not zakat, and that the zakat that He mentioned after is not it. They said: And after that, the interpretation of the people of interpretation has shown the correctness of what we said about that.

- Others said: Rather, the first wealth is zakat, but God described giving to the believers from those who gave it to Him, at the beginning of the verse. So He informed His servants - by His description of what He described of their affair - the places where they must put their zakat, then He guided them by His saying after that: and give zakat, that the wealth that the people gave to Him is the zakat that was imposed on them, since the people of its shares were those whom He informed at the beginning of the verse that the people gave their wealth to. As for His saying: and those who fulfill their covenant when they made a covenant, then He, the Most High, means: and those who do not break the covenant of God after the covenant, but rather fulfill it and complete it according to what they covenanted with those they made a covenant with Him, as: I was told by Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah ibn Anas, regarding His saying: and those who fulfill their covenant when they made a covenant, he said: So whoever gives a covenant of God and then breaks it, then God will take revenge on him. Whoever pledges his allegiance to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and then betrays it, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, will be his opponent on the Day of Resurrection.

I have explained the covenant previously, so that there is no need to repeat it here. The statement in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And the patient in poverty and hardship. Abu Ja'far said: We have already explained the interpretation of patience previously. The meaning of the statement is: And those who prevent themselves - in poverty and hardship and at the time of battle - from what God dislikes for them, and who restrain themselves from what He has commanded them to do of obeying Him. Then the people of interpretation said in the meaning of poverty and hardship what: Al-Husayn bin 'Amr bin Muhammad Al-'Anqazi told me, he said, my father told me - and Musa told me, he said, 'Amr bin Hammad told us - they both said, Asbat told us on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Murrah Al-Hamadani, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud that he said: As for poverty, it is poverty, and as for hardship, it is sickness. Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us - and Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us - they both said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Marra, on the authority of Abdullah, regarding His statement: And those who are patient in poverty and hardship, he said: poverty is hunger, and hardship is sickness. Ahmad ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Ahmad told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Marra, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: poverty is need, and hardship is sickness. Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: We used to say that poverty is misery and poverty, and hardship is illness. And the Prophet Job, peace be upon him, said: Indeed, adversity has touched me, and You are the Most Merciful of the merciful. (Al-Anbiya': 83) Narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding His statement: And those who are patient in poverty and hardship, he said: Misery means want and poverty, and hardship is in the soul, from pain or illness that afflicts him in his body. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya narrated to us, who said: Abd al-Razzaq informed us, who said: Mu'ammam informed us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Poverty and hardship, he said: Misery means destitution, and hardship is the time in the body. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, who said: Abu Nu'aym narrated to us, who said: Ubayd narrated to us, on the authority of al-Dahhak, who said: Poverty and hardship, is illness. Al-Qasim narrated to us, who said: al-Husayn narrated to us, who said: Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And those who are patient in poverty and hardship, he said: Misery means destitution and poverty, and hardship is illness and pain.

Ahmad ibn Ishaq told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Ubayd ibn al-Tufayl told us: I heard al-Dahhak ibn Muzahim say about this verse: And those who are patient in poverty and hardship. As for poverty, it is poverty, and hardship is illness. Abu Ja'far said: As for the Arab scholars, they differed about that. Some of them said: al-Basa' and al-Dhra' is a verbal noun that came in the form fa'ala' without af'al because it is a noun, just as af'al came in the form fa'ala', such as Ahmad. And they said af'al in the adjective, but it did not come in the form fa'ala', so they said: You are more afraid of that, and they did not say wajal. Some of them said: It is a noun for the verb. For al-Basa' is misery, and al-Dhra' is distress. It is a noun that can be used for a feminine, if you wish, or for a masculine, as Zuhair said:

Then she will produce for you unlucky boys, all of them like the red ones of Ad. Then she will suckle and be weaned.

Meaning: So it will produce for you ill-omened boys. Some of them said: If that were a noun that could be declined into masculine and feminine, it would be permissible to use af'al for the indefinite, but it is a noun that takes the place of a verbal noun. The evidence for that is his statement: If you seek their support, you will find them not far away, without using af'al. He said: It was a noun for a verbal noun, because if it is mentioned, it is known that it is intended for a verbal noun. Another said: If that were a verbal noun and it was feminine, it would not be masculine, and if it was masculine, it would not be feminine. Because

Whoever is named after Af'al is not declined to 'ala, and whoever is named after 'ala is not declined to Af'al, because every noun that remains in its form is not declined to another, but they are two languages. So if it is in the masculine, it is in a more ominous matter, and if it is al-basa' and al-darra', it is: the trait is al-basa' and the trait is al-darra'. And if it is not based on al-darra', al-adhar, nor on al-ash'am, al-shama' because the masculinity was not intended from its femininity, nor the femininity from its masculinity, as they said a beautiful woman, and they did not say: a beautiful man, and they said: a beardless man, and they did not say: a woman with a cloak. So if it is said: the trait is al-darra' and the matter is al-ash'am, it indicates the source, and does not need to be a name, even though the source is sufficient. This is a statement that contradicts the interpretation of those scholars whose interpretation we mentioned in the interpretation of al-basa' and al-darra', even though it is correct according to the Arabic school. This is because the people of interpretation interpreted al-basa' to mean: misery, and al-darra' to mean: harm to the body. This interpretation of theirs is based on the fact that they directed al-basa' and al-darra' to the names of actions, not the attributes and descriptions of the names. So what is more appropriate for al-basa' and al-darra' according to the people of interpretation is that al-basa' and al-darra' are the names of actions, so al-basa' is a name for misery, and al-darra' is a name for harm. As for the patient ones, it is in the accusative case, and it is from the description of man in the manner of praise. Because it is the custom of the Arabs - if the description of one is prolonged - to interrupt with praise and blame in the accusative sometimes, and in the nominative sometimes, as the poet said:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

To the venerable king, the son of the hero, and the lion of the battalion in the crowded place

This is the opinion when things get dark with the same clang and the same bridle

So, the word battalion and this opinion are in the accusative case for praise, and the noun before them is in the genitive case because it is an attribute of one, and from this is the saying of the other:

I wish that the stars would be humble towards all of them, good and bad.

The rains of the world are in every place, and the lions of the Sharia protect every den.

Some of them claimed that his statement, and those who are patient in poverty, is an accusative in apposition to those who ask, as if the meaning of the statement was: And he gave wealth, in spite of his love for it, to relatives, orphans, the needy, the traveler, those who ask, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship. The apparent meaning of the Book of God indicates the error of this statement. That is because and those who are patient in poverty and hardship are the people of the time in terms of their bodies, and the people of scarcity in terms of money. The description of the people who give money—whoever has that characteristic—has already been mentioned in His statement, and the needy, the traveler, and those who ask. The people of need and poverty are the people of poverty and hardship, because whoever is not among the people of poverty and has hardship, is not among those who can accept charity. Rather, it can be accepted if he combines his hardship with hardship, and if he combines it with hardship, he is among the people of poverty who have entered into the group of the needy who were mentioned before His statement, and those who are patient in poverty. If that is the case, then the patient ones in hardship is made accusative by saying and give wealth, out of love for Him, the speech is a repetition without any meaningful benefit. It is as if it was said: and give wealth, out of love for Him, to relatives, orphans, and the needy. And God is too exalted to have that be in addressing His servants. But the meaning of that is: but righteous is he who believes in God and the Last Day, and those who fulfill their covenant when they make it, and those who are patient in hardship and distress. And those who fulfill is in the nominative case, because it is an attribute of whoever, and whoever is in the nominative case, so it is declined according to its declension. And those who are patient is in the accusative case - even though it is an attribute of it - in the manner of praise that we described before. Abu Ja'far said: God the Most High meant by His saying: and at the time of battle, and those who are patient at the time of battle, which is the time of intense fighting in war, as: Al-Husayn ibn 'Amr ibn Muhammad Al-'Anqazi told me, he said, my father told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Marra, on the authority of 'Abdullah, regarding God's statement: and at the time of battle, he said: at the time of fighting. Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Marra, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And at the time of battle means fighting. Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: And at the time of battle means at the sites of fighting. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And at the time of battle means fighting. I was told by Ammar bin Al-Hasan, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, And at the time of battle means when meeting the enemy. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Nu'aym told us, he said, Ubaydah told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: And at the time of battle means fighting. Ahmad ibn Ishaq narrated to us, Abu Ahmad narrated to us, Ubayd ibn al-Tufayl Abu Saydan narrated to us, I heard Adh-Dahhak ibn Muzahim say about His statement, And at the time of battle, he said: Fighting. Abu Ja'far said: What the Almighty means by His statement, Those are the ones who have been truthful, is those who believe in God and the Last Day, and He described them with the description that He described them with in this verse. He says: So whoever does these things, they are the ones who have been truthful to God in their faith, and have fulfilled their words with their actions, not the one who turns his face toward the sunrise and the sunset while disobeying God in His command, and breaking His covenant and pact, and concealing from people what God has commanded him to be explained, and lying about His messengers. As for His statement, And those are the righteous, it means: And those are the ones who feared God's punishment, so they avoided disobeying Him, and were wary of His promise, so they did not violate His limits. And they feared Him, so they performed His obligations. And similar to what we said about His statement, Those are the ones who have been truthful, Qatada ibn Anas used to say. It was narrated on the authority of Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': Those are the ones who were truthful. He said: They spoke the words of faith, and its reality was action. They were truthful to God. He said: Al-Hasan used to say: These are the words of faith, and its reality is action. If there is no action with the words, then there is nothing.

It contains eight issues:

First: The Almighty's statement: Righteousness is not. There is a difference of opinion about what is meant by this address. Qatada said: It was mentioned to us that a man asked the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about righteousness, so God revealed this verse. He said: Before the obligatory duties, if a man testified that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, and then died upon that, Paradise was obligatory for him, so God revealed this verse. Al-Rabi' and Qatada also said: The address is to the Jews and Christians because they differed in direction and orientation. The Jews are towards the west before Jerusalem, and the Christians are towards the east, where the sun rises. They spoke about changing the direction of prayer and each group preferred its orientation, so it was said to them: Righteousness is not what you are in, but righteousness is the one who believes in God.

Second: Hamzah and Hafs read al-barr in the accusative case, because laysa is one of the sisters of kana kan, after which two definite nouns come, so you make whichever one you want the noun or predicate. When al-barr came after laysa, he made it the accusative case, and made an tawala the noun. The verbal noun kan is more definite because it cannot be indefinite, and al-barr can be indefinite, but the verb is stronger in definiteness. The rest read al-barr in the nominative case, as the noun of laysa, and its predicate is an tawala, meaning: Al-barr is not your turning your faces away, and according to the first, Al-barr is not your turning your faces away, as in His statement, Their only argument was that they said, "Then the worst was the outcome of those who did evil, because they denied," So their outcome was that they were both in the Fire, and what is similar to it. What strengthens the nominative reading is that the second is accompanied by the preposition ba, unanimously in His statement, And it is not righteousness that you enter houses from their backs, and nothing is permissible in it except the nominative case, so applying the first to the second is more definite than contradicting it. And it is also in the Mushaf of Abi with the letter Baa. Al-Birr is not that you turn away, and it is also in the Mushaf of Ibn Masoud, and most of the reciters agree with it, and both readings are good.

Third: The Almighty's saying: But righteousness is of him who believes in God. Righteousness here is a comprehensive name for goodness, and the meaning is: But righteousness is of him who believes, so the complement was omitted, like the Almighty's saying: And ask the town, "And they made the calf drink into their hearts," as Al-Farra', Qatrub, and Al-Zajjaj said. And the poet said:

It is only an advance and a retreat

That is, she has a good appetite and is well-mannered. Al-Nabigha said:

How do you communicate with someone who has become like Abu Marhab?

That is, like his intercession with Abi Marhab, so he deleted it. It was said: The meaning is, but of righteousness, like the Almighty's saying: They are of degrees with God meaning of degrees. That is because when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina and the obligatory duties were imposed and the Qiblah was turned towards the Kaaba and the boundaries were defined, God revealed this verse and said: Not all righteousness is that you pray and do not do other than that, but righteousness - meaning righteousness - is he who believes in God, to the end of it, as Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ad-Dahhak, Ata', and Sufyano Az-Zajjaj also said. It is possible for righteousness to mean righteous and righteousness, and the agent may be called in the sense of the source, as it is said: a just man, and fasting and breaking the fast. In the revelation: If your water were to become sunken meaning sunken, and this is the choice of Abu Ubaidah. Al-Mubarrad said: If I were one of those who read the Qur'an, I would have read but of righteousness with the opening of the ba'.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and the patient. It was said: The patient is in apposition to who because who is in the plural and nominative case, as if he said: But righteous are the believers and those who fulfill, as Al-Farra' and Al-Akhfash said. And the patient is in the accusative case for praise, or by implying a verb. The Arabs put the accusative case for praise and blame as if they want to isolate the praised and blamed, and they do not follow it with the beginning of the speech, and put it in the accusative case. As for the praise, his saying: And those who establish prayer. Al-Kisa'i recited:

Every nation obeyed the command of their guide except Namir, who obeyed the command of her seducer.

The departing ones, and they have not yet departed, and those who say, Whose house shall we abandon?

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:177

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

Abu Ubaidah recited:

They do not distance my people who are the poison of the enemy and the scourge of the islands

Those who enter every arena and are good at the knots of the blue

Another said:

We are the sons of Dhuba, the owners of the camels

So it is used for praise. As for blame, it is the Almighty's saying: Cursed wherever they are found verse. And Urwah ibn al-Ward said:

They gave me wine to drink, then they surrounded me with the enemies of God, with lies and sin.

This is acceptable in the adjectives, there is no objection to it in terms of grammar, it is found in the speech of the Arabs as we have explained. Some of those who were arbitrary in their speech said: This is a mistake of the writers when they wrote the Imam's Mushaf. He said: The evidence for that is what was narrated from Uthman that he looked in the Mushaf and said: I see a mistake in it and the Arabs will correct it with their tongues. And he said the same in Surat An-Nisa and those who establish prayer, and in Surat al-Ma'idah 5: and the Sabians. The answer is what we mentioned. It was said: Al-Muwaffieen is raised as the subject and the predicate is omitted, its meaning is they are the Muwaffieen. Al-Kisa'i said: And the patient ones are in apposition to the relatives as if he said: And He gave to the patient ones. Al-Nahhas said: This statement is a mistake and a clear error, because if you put the patient ones in the accusative and coordinate it with the relatives, it enters into the connection of man and if you raise the patient ones as if it is coordinated with man, then you coordinate it with man before the connection is complete, and you separate the connection and the relative with the conjoined. Al-Kisa'i said: In the reading of Abdullah: Al-Muwaffieen and the patient ones. Al-Nahhas said: They can be arranged according to kinship or praise. Al-Farraa said: In Abdullah's reading in An-Nisaa': And those who establish prayer and give zakat. Ya'qub and Al-A'mash read Al-Muwaffoon and Al-Sabirun in the nominative case in both of them. Al-Jahdary read Bi'uhudhum. It has been said: Indeed, and Al-Muwaffoon are in apposition to the pronoun in "Aman, but Abu Ali denied it and said: The meaning is not according to it, since what is meant is not that righteousness is the righteousness of the one who believes in God, he and Al-Muwaffoon, meaning we both believed. Just as you say: The brave is the one who is oldest, he and Amr. Rather, what comes after his saying whoever believes is an enumeration of the actions of the one who believes and their descriptions.

Fifth: Our scholars said: This is a great verse from the mothers of rulings, because it includes sixteen principles: belief in God and His names and attributes - and we have mentioned them in the Most Sublime Book - and the Resurrection and Gathering and the Balance and the Bridge and the Pool and intercession and Paradise and Hell - and we have mentioned them in the Book of Remembrance - and the angels and the revealed books and that they are a truth from God - as mentioned above - and the prophets and spending money on what is required of what is obligatory and recommended and maintaining kinship and not severing ties with them and looking after the orphan and not neglecting him and the poor as well, and taking care of the wayfarer - it was said the one who is stranded with him, and it was said: the guest - and begging and freeing slaves. This will be explained in the verse on charity, and maintaining prayer and paying zakat and fulfilling covenants and patience in hardships. Each of these principles requires a book. We have mentioned most of them above, and the rest of them will be explained including them in their places, God willing.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether an orphan should be given voluntary charity as soon as he becomes an orphan, as a form of kinship, even if he is rich, or whether he should not be given charity until he becomes poor. There are two opinions of scholars. This is on the condition that the money is given other than the obligatory zakat, as we will explain above.

Sixth: The Almighty's statement: And he gives his wealth, in spite of his love for it. It was used as evidence by those who said that there is a right in wealth other than zakat, and that it is the perfection of righteousness. It was said that what is meant is the obligatory zakat, and the first is more correct, because of what was reported by Al-Daraqutni: "On the authority of Fatima bint Qays, she said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

There is a right in wealth other than zakat. Then he recited this verse: "Righteousness is not that you turn your faces" to the end of the verse. Ibn Majah included it in his Sunan and al-Tirmidhi included it in his Jami' and said: This hadith has a weak chain of transmission. Abu Hamza Maymun al-A'war is considered weak. Bayan and Ismail ibn Salim narrated this hadith on the authority of al-Sha'bi, and it is more authentic.

I said: Even though there is some criticism of the hadith, its authenticity is indicated by the meaning of the verse itself, where God the Almighty says: And establishes prayer and gives zakat. Zakat is mentioned along with prayer, and this is evidence that what is meant by His saying: And gives wealth, in spite of love for it, is not the obligatory zakat, because that would have been a repetition, and God knows best. The scholars agreed that if a need befalls the Muslims after paying zakat, then the money must be spent on it. Malik, may God have mercy on him, said: People must ransom their prisoners, even if that takes up all their money. This is also a consensus, and it strengthens what we have chosen, and God is the Grantor of success.

Seventh: The Almighty's statement: For His love. The pronoun in For His love has been disputed as to whether it refers back. Some say: It refers back to the giver of the money, and the object, which is the money, has been omitted. It is permissible to put relatives in the accusative case with love, so the meaning would be for the love of the giver of relatives. It has also been said: It refers back to the money, so the source would be added to the object. Ibn Atiyyah said: His statement for His love comes as a powerful objection during the statement.

I said: Its counterpart is the statement of the Truth: And they give food, in spite of their love for it, to the poor, for it combines the two meanings, the objection and the addition of the source to the object, i.e., in spite of the love of the food. And from the objection is the statement of the Truth: And whoever does righteous deeds, whether male or female, while he is a believer - those are the ones who have attained the goal. This is called completion, and it is a type of eloquence, and it is also called caution and precaution, so it was completed by His statement: in spite of their love for it and His statement: and he is a believer, and from it is the statement of Zuhair:

Whoever meets an old man with all his faults one day will find generosity and kindness in him

Imru Al-Qais said:

On the structure, he gives you before asking him any of the ways of running, other than Kz and Wan

His saying: With his faults and before his question is a good completion, and from it is the saying of Antarah:

Praise me for what you know, for it is easy to disobey me if I am not wronged.

His saying, If I am not wronged, is a good completion. Tarafa said:

May the spring rain water your home, not spoiling it, and may it always flow.

Al-Rabi' bin Daba' Al-Fazari said:

I am finished, but my work and my speech will not be finished, and every person except his speech will perish.

His saying: It does not spoil it, otherwise his hadiths are a completion and precaution. Abu Hafan said:

Death has consumed our souls without being unjust, and generosity has consumed our wealth without being blameworthy.

His saying not unjust and not absent is a completion and precaution, and it is found frequently in poetry. It was said: It refers to giving, because the verb indicates its source, and it is like the saying of God Almighty: And let not those who are stingy with what God has given them of His bounty think that it is good for them meaning stinginess is good for them, so if people are afflicted with need or poverty, then giving money is beloved to them. It was said: It refers to the name of God Almighty in His saying: Whoever believes in God. The intended meaning is that a person gives charity in these ways while he is healthy and stingy, fearing poverty and feeling secure about survival.

Eighth: The Almighty's saying: And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it meaning between themselves and God Almighty and between themselves and the people. And those who are patient in poverty and hardship Poverty: hardship and poverty. And hardship: sickness and time, as Ibn Masoud said. And he, peace be upon him, said:

God the Almighty says: "Any of My servants whom I afflict with a trial in his bed and he does not complain to Me, I will replace his flesh with better flesh and his blood with better blood. If I take him, then he is in My mercy, and if I heal him, I will heal him even though he has not sinned." It was said: O Messenger of God, what flesh is better than his flesh? He said: Flesh, he has not sinned. It was said: What blood is better than his blood? He said: Blood, he has not sinned.

Adversity and hardship are two nouns that are based on their verbs, and they do not have a verb, because they are nouns and not descriptions. And at the time of battle means at the time of war.

The Almighty said: Those are the ones who were truthful, and those are the righteous. He described them as being truthful and pious in their affairs and fulfilling them, and that they were serious about religion, and this is the ultimate praise. Truthfulness is the opposite of lying. It is said: They were truthful to them in fighting. A friend is one who adheres to truthfulness. In the hadith:

"Be truthful, for truthfulness leads to righteousness, and righteousness leads to Paradise. A man continues to be truthful and seeks to be truthful until he is recorded with God as truthful."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This verse contains great sentences, general principles, and a straight belief, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ubaid bin Hisham Al-Halabi told us, Ubaid God bin Amr told us, on the authority of Amer bin Shafi, on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Abu Dharr: that he asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: What is faith? So he recited to him, Righteousness is not that you turn your faces to the end of the verse. He said: Then he asked him again, so he recited it to him, then he asked him and he said: If you do a good deed, your heart loves it, and if you do a bad deed, your heart hates it. This is disconnected, because Mujahid did not meet Abu Dharr, as he died long ago. Al-Mas'udi said: Al-Qasim bin Abdul Rahman told us, he said: A man came to Abu Dharr and said: What is faith? So he recited to him this verse: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces away until he finished it. The man said: I did not ask you about righteousness. Abu Dharr said: A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he pointed with his hand: When a believer does a good deed, it pleases him and he hopes for its reward, and when he learns of a bad deed, it saddens him and he fears its punishment. Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. This is also disconnected, and God knows best.

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

As for the discussion of the interpretation of this verse, when God Almighty first ordered the believers to face Jerusalem and then turned them to the Kaaba, this was difficult for a group of the People of the Book and some Muslims, so God Almighty revealed a statement of His wisdom in that, which is that what is meant is only obedience to God Almighty, compliance with His commands, and facing wherever He directs and following what He has legislated, for this is righteousness, piety and complete faith. There is no righteousness or obedience in the necessity of facing towards the east or west if it is not by the command of God and His law, and for this reason He said:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces towards the east or the west, but righteousness is of him who believes in God and the Last Day 10:13, as He said about sacrifices and gifts: Neither their meat nor their blood reaches God, but what reaches Him is piety from you. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding this verse: Righteousness is not that you pray and do not work, for this was when he moved from Mecca to Medina and the obligatory duties and punishments were revealed, so God ordered the obligatory duties and working with them, and something similar was narrated from Ad-Dahhak and Muqatil, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: The Jews used to face towards the west, and the Christians used to face towards the west. Accept before the east, then God the Almighty said: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. He says: This is the speech of faith and its reality is action. It was narrated from Al-Hasan and Al-Rabi' bin Anas something similar. Mujahid said: But righteousness is what is established in the hearts of obedience to God the Almighty. Ad-Dahhak said: But righteousness and piety are that you perform the obligatory duties in their proper manner. Al-Thawri said: But righteousness is from one who believes in God the verse. He said:

These are all types of righteousness, and he spoke the truth, may God have mercy on him, for whoever is described by this verse has entered into the bonds of Islam in its entirety, and has taken hold of all the gatherings of goodness, which is belief in God and that there is no god but Him, and has believed in the existence of the angels who are messengers between God and His messengers. And the Book is a generic name that includes the books sent down from heaven to the prophets, until it was sealed with the most honorable of them, which is the Qur'an, which dominates the books that came before it, to which all goodness ended, and it included all happiness in this world and the hereafter, and with it abrogated all other books that came before it, and he believed in all the prophets of God from the first of them to the last of them, Muhammad, may the prayers and peace of God be upon him and them all, and his saying: And he gives money out of love for it means he gives it while he loves it and desires it. This was stated by Ibn Mas'ud, Sa'id ibn Jubayr and others from the early Muslims and later Muslims, as was proven in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Abu Hurayrah, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The best charity is that you give it while you are healthy and miserly, hoping to become rich and fearing poverty. Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak from the hadith of Shu'bah and Ath-Thawri from Mansur, from Zubayd, from Marra, from Ibn Mas'ud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And he gives money out of love for it means that you give it while you are healthy and miserly, hoping to become rich and fearing poverty. Then he said: It is authentic according to the conditions of the two sheikhs, but they did not include it. I said It was narrated by Wakee' from Al-A'mash and Sufyan from Zubayd, from Marra, from Ibn Mas'ud, with a chain of transmission ending with him, and this is more authentic, and God knows best. God Almighty said: "And they feed food, in spite of their love for it, to the poor, the orphan, and the captive. We feed you only for the sake of God. We desire from you neither reward nor thanks." And God Almighty said: You will never attain righteousness until you spend from that which you love. And his saying: And they give preference over themselves, even though they are in need is another pattern that is higher than this, which is that they give preference to what they are forced to, and these people give and feed what they love. And his saying: Those of kinship are the man's relatives and they are the most deserving of being given charity as established in the hadith: "Charity given to the poor is charity, and to a relative is two things: charity and maintaining kinship ties, so they are the most deserving of you, your kindness and your giving." And God Almighty has commanded kindness to them in more than one place in His Noble Book. And orphans are those who have no earner, and their fathers died while they were weak and young before reaching puberty and the ability to earn a living. And Abd al-Razzaq said: Ma'mar informed us on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of al-Dahhak, on the authority of al-Nazzal ibn Sabra, on the authority of Ali, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: There is no orphanhood after puberty. "And the needy" are those who do not find what is sufficient for them in their food, clothing and housing, so they are given what will satisfy their need and their poverty. And in the two Sahihs on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: "The poor person is not the one who travels around and is satisfied with one or two dates and one or two mouthfuls of food, but the poor person is the one who does not find enough money to make him independent and is not noticed so that charity is given to him." The wayfarer is the traveler who has exhausted his means and is given what will take him to his country, and likewise the one who wants to travel in obedience and is given what is sufficient for him on his way and his return, and this includes the guest, as Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The wayfarer is the guest who stays with the Muslims, and this is what Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubayr, Abu Ja'far al-Baqir, al-Hasan, Qatadah, al-Dahhak, al-Zuhri, al-Rabi' bin Anas and Muqatil bin Hayyan said. And the beggars are those who come forward to ask for something and are given from the zakat and charity, as Imam Ahmad said: Waki' and Abd al-Rahman told us: Sufyan told us on the authority of Mus'ab bin Muhammad, on the authority of Ya'la bin Abi Yahya, on the authority of Fatimah bint al-Husayn, on the authority of her father - Abd al-Rahman Husayn bin Ali said: He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The beggar has a right, even if he comes on a horse. Narrated by Abu Dawud. And in the slaves, meaning those who are freed from slavery and cannot find anything to pay for their slavery. We will discuss many of these categories in the verse on charity in Bara'ah, God willing. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Yahya ibn Abd al-Hamid told us, Sharik told us on the authority of Abu Hamza on the authority of al-Sha'bi, Fatima bint Qays told me that she asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: Is there a right on wealth other than zakat? She said: So he recited to me, And he gives away his wealth, for the love of it. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Adam bin Iyas and Yahya bin Abdul Hamid, both of them from Sharik from Abu Hamza from Al-Sha'bi from Fatima bint Qais, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, There is a right in wealth other than zakat. Then he recited, "Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in God and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives away his wealth, for the love of it, to relatives, orphans, the needy, the traveler, those who ask, and to free slaves." Ibn Majah and Al-Tirmidhi narrated it, and Abu Hamza Maymun Al-A'war was declared weak. It was narrated by Sayyar and Ismail bin Salim from Al-Sha'bi. His saying, And he establishes prayer and gives zakat, means he completes the actions of prayer at their appointed times, bowing, prostrating, being calm and humble in the lawful and acceptable manner. His saying, And he gives zakat, may mean that what is meant by it is the purification of the soul and its deliverance from base and vile morals. Such as His statement: He has succeeded who purifies it, and he has failed who corrupts it. And the statement of Moses to Pharaoh: Would you like to be purified? And I will guide you to your Lord so that you may fear Him. And the statement of the Most High: And woe to the polytheists who do not give zakat. It is possible that what is meant is the zakat of money, as Saeed bin Jubayr and Muqatil bin

Hayyan said, and what is mentioned of giving to these mentioned directions and categories is only voluntary giving, righteousness, and kinship. For this reason, it was mentioned in the hadith from Fatima bint Qais that there is a right in money other than zakat, and God knows best.

And his saying: And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made a covenant, is like his saying: Those who fulfill the covenant of God and do not break the contract. The opposite of this characteristic is hypocrisy, as is authenticated in the hadith: "The signs of a hypocrite are three: when he speaks, he lies, when he promises, he breaks his promise, and when he is entrusted, he betrays." And in another hadith: And when he speaks, he lies, when he promises, he betrays, and when he disputes, he is immoral. And his saying: And those who are patient in poverty and hardship and at the time of battle, meaning in the case of poverty, which is poverty, and in the case of sickness and ailments, which is hardship, and at the time of battle, meaning in the case of fighting and meeting enemies. This was said by Ibn Mas'ud, Ibn 'Abbas, Abu 'Aliyah, Marra al-Hamdani, Mujahid, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, al-Hasan, Qatadah, al-Rabi' ibn Anas, al-Suddi, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, Abu Malik, al-Dahhak, and others. Rather, the accusative of the patient is to praise and urge patience in these circumstances due to its severity and difficulty, and God knows best, and He is the One sought for help and upon whom reliance is placed. And his saying: Those are the ones who have been truthful, meaning these are those who Those who were truthful in their faith were described by these qualities, because they achieved faith in the heart through words and actions. These are the ones who were truthful, and those are the righteous, because they avoided the forbidden things and performed acts of obedience.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 177- Righteousness Hamzah and Hafs read it in the accusative case as the predicate of not and the subject that you turn away and the rest read it in the nominative case as the subject. It was said: This verse was revealed to respond to the Jews and Christians, when they spoke a lot about the matter of the Qiblah when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned to the Kaaba. It was said: The reason for its revelation was that a questioner asked the Messenger of God, and this will come at the end of the discussion, God willing. And His saying: Before the East and the West It was said: The Almighty referred by mentioning the East to the Qiblah of the Christians because they face the rising of the sun, and He referred by mentioning the West to the Qiblah of the Jews because they face the Holy House, which was in the direction of the West at that time. And His saying: But righteousness is a comprehensive name for good, and its predicate is omitted, meaning: righteousness of he who believes. Al-Farra', Qatrub and Al-Zajaj said: It was said that the estimation is: But the righteous is he who believes. The reason for this estimation is: fleeing from informing with the name of the eye about the name of the meaning. It is permissible for righteousness to mean righteous, and the source is often used for the active participle. From this in the revelation: If your water becomes sunken meaning sunken, and this is the choice of Abu Ubaidah. What is meant by the book here is the genus or the Qur'an, and the pronoun in his statement: for His love refers to the money. It was said: It refers to the giving indicated by his statement: and he gave the money. It was said: It refers to God, the Exalted: that is, for the love of God. The meaning according to the first is: He gave the money while he loved it and was stingy with it. From this is His statement, the Exalted: You will not attain righteousness until you spend from that which you love. The meaning according to the second is: He loves giving money and his soul is pleased with it. The meaning according to the third is: He gave to the one included in the verse in the love of God, the Exalted, not for another purpose. It is like his statement: And they feed the poor in spite of their love for Him. And similar to it is the statement of Zuhair:

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

The generous man, despite his faults, is a pyramid.

And relatives are given priority because giving them money is charity and maintaining ties of kinship if they are poor. Thus, poor orphans are more deserving of charity than the poor who are not orphans, because of their inability to earn. And the needy: the one who resides in what is in people's hands because he cannot find anything. And the wayfarer is the stranded traveler and he was made a wayfarer because he stays with him. And his saying: and for freeing slaves means in helping the slaves whose owners have written to them. And it was said: what is meant is buying slaves and freeing them. And it was said: what is meant is freeing captives. And his saying: and give zakat is evidence that the previous giving is voluntary charity, not obligatory charity. And his saying: and those who fulfill it was said: it is conjoined with those who believe, as if it was said: but righteousness is the believers and those who fulfill. Al-Farra and Al-Akhfash said it. It was said: It is raised as a subject, and the predicate is omitted. It was said: It is for a deleted subject: i.e. they are the ones who fulfill. It was said: It is conjoined with the pronoun in believed. Abu Ali denied it and said: The meaning is not on it. His saying: and the patient is accusative as a compliment like the saying of God Almighty: and those who establish prayer. And from it is what Abu Ubaidah recited:

They do not distance my people who are the poison of enmity and the scourge of the islands

Those who fight in every battle and are good in every way

Al-Kisa'i said: It is connected to the relatives as if he said: And give to the patient ones. An-Nahhas said: It is a mistake. Al-Kisa'i said: It is the reading of Abdullah: And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made a covenant and the patient ones. An-Nahhas said: According to this reading, they would be connected to the relatives or to praise. Ya'qub and Al-A'mash read And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made a covenant and the patient ones with the nominative in both of them. Al-Basa' means hardship and poverty. Al-Dira' means sickness and time. And in the time of battle It was said that what is meant is the time of war, and Al-Basa' and Al-Dira' are two nouns built on Fa'alaa and do not have a verb because they are nouns and not descriptions. And his saying: They were truthful describes them as truthful and pious in their affairs and fulfilling them and that they were serious. It was said that what is meant is that they were truthful to them in battle, but the first is more appropriate.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Abu Dharr that he asked the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) about faith, so he recited: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces until he finished it, then he asked him again and he recited it, then he asked him and he recited it. He said: If you do a good deed, your heart will love it, and if you do a bad deed, your heart will hate it. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Al-Qasim ibn Abd Al-Rahman, who said: A man came to Abu Dharr and said: What is faith? So he recited this verse to him, then he mentioned to him something similar to the previous hadith. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding this verse, he said: He says: Righteousness is not that you pray and you do not teach, this was when he moved from Mecca to Medina and the obligatory duties were revealed. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: This verse was revealed in Medina, it says: Righteousness is not that you pray, but righteousness is that which is established in the heart of obedience to God. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatadah, who said: It was mentioned to us that a man asked the Prophet (peace be upon him) about righteousness, so God revealed: Righteousness is not... And Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada who said: The Jews used to pray before sunset and the Christians before the east, so righteousness is not the verse was revealed. And Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah. And Abd al-Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani, al-Hakim who authenticated it, Ibn Mardawayh, and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud regarding his statement: and gives wealth, in spite of love for it, he said: He gives while he is healthy and stingy, hoping for a living and fearing poverty. And he narrated something similar on his authority from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him). And al-Bayhaqi narrated in al-Shu'ab on the authority of al-Muttalib, "It was said: O Messenger of God, he does not give wealth out of love for it, for we all love it. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: You give it when you give it, and your soul speaks to you of long life and poverty." And Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr regarding his statement: and gives wealth, in spite of love for it, meaning out of love for money. And he also narrated on his authority regarding his statement: those of kin, meaning his relatives. It was reported that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Charity given to a poor person is charity, and to a relative it is two things: charity and upholding the ties of kinship." Narrated by Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, al-Nasa'i, Ibn Majah, al-Hakim and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan from the hadeeth of Salman ibn 'Aamir al-Dhabi. In the two Sahih and others, from the hadeeth of Zaynab, the wife of Ibn Mas'ood, "that she asked the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) if spending on her husband and orphans in her care would suffice as charity on her behalf?" He said: "You will have two rewards: the reward of charity and the reward of kinship." At-Tabarani, al-Hakim who authenticated it and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated from Umm Kulthum bint 'Uqbah that she heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say: The best charity is given to a relative who is estranged. Ahmad, al-Darimi and at-Tabarani narrated something similar from the hadeeth of Hakim ibn Hizam from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Ibn 'Abbas that he said: The wayfarer is the guest who stays with the Muslims. Ibn Jarir narrated from Mujahid that he said: He is the one who passes by you while he is travelling. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding his statement: And those who ask, he said: The one who asks you. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr regarding his statement: And for the freeing of slaves, he said: It means freeing slaves. He also narrated on his authority regarding his statement: And establishes prayer, meaning and completes the prescribed prayer, And gives zakat, meaning the obligatory zakat. At-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Adi, Ad-Daraqutni, and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Fatimah bint Qais who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is a right in wealth other than zakat, then he recited: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces, the verse. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aliyah regarding his statement: And those who fulfill their covenant, he said: Whoever gives a covenant to God and then breaks it, God will take revenge on him, and whoever gives the protection of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and then betrays it, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is his opponent. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr regarding his statement: And those who fulfill their covenant when they make a covenant, meaning between themselves and the people. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Abu al-Shaykh and al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud regarding the verse, he said: Al-Basa' means poverty, Al-Dara' means sickness, and The time of battle means during fighting. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Qatadah. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr regarding the statement: Those are the ones who have been truthful, he said: They did what God mentioned in this verse. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Rabi' regarding the statement: Those are the ones who have been truthful, he said: They spoke the words of faith, so the reality of their actions was that they were truthful to God. Al-Hasan used to say: These are the words of faith and their reality is actions, so if there is no action along with the words, then there is nothing.

177. The Almighty said: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. Hamza and Hafs read ... The rest read it: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the west. So whoever raised it made righteousness the subject of righteousness, and its predicate is His saying: That you turn away, meaning: Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. And whoever lowered it made that you turn away in the nominative case as the subject of that you turn away, meaning: That you turn your faces toward the west is not all righteousness, like His Almighty saying: Their argument was only that they said, 'Bring to us.' 25-Al-Jathiya.

Righteousness is every good deed that leads its doer to Paradise. They differed as to who is addressed by this verse. Some people said: It means the Jews and Christians, because the Jews used to pray facing Jerusalem before sunset, and the Christians used to pray facing the east. Each group of them claimed that righteousness lies in that. So God the Most High informed us that righteousness is not their religion or their deeds, but rather what He explained in this verse. Qatada and Muqatil ibn Hayyan are of this opinion. Others said: It means the believers, because a man, at the beginning of Islam before the revelation of the obligatory duties, if he recited the two testimonies of faith and prayed facing the direction it was, then died in that state, Paradise was obligatory for him.

When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated and the obligatory duties were revealed and determined and the direction of prayer was changed to the Kaaba, God revealed this verse and said: Righteousness is not meaning that all of it is that you pray towards the east and the west and do not act otherwise. But righteousness is what is mentioned in this verse. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ata' and Ad-Dahhak said this. But righteousness Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read but with a light nun and al-barr in the nominative case. The rest read it with a stressed nun and al-barr in the accusative case.

The Almighty's saying: Whoever believes in God made min a noun and it is a predicate for righteousness which is a verb and it is not said righteousness Zayd and they differed about its meaning. It was said that because min is in the place of the source, he made it a predicate for righteousness as if he said, But righteousness is faith in God. The Arabs make the

Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west, but righteousness is [in] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets and gives wealth, in spite of love for Him, to relatives and orphans and the needy and the wayfarer and those who ask and for the freeing of slaves and establishes prayer and gives zakah And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made it, and those who are patient in poverty and hardship and during battle - those are the ones who have been true, and those are the righteous.

noun a predicate for the verb and Al-Farra' recited:

By your life, it is not for young men to grow beards, but for young men to grow fresh skin.

So he made the growth of the beard a predicate for the young man, and it was said that its meaning was implied, but righteousness is the righteousness of he who believes in God, so mentioning the first was sufficient for the second, like their saying, Al-Joud Hatim, meaning, Al-Joud Hatim, and it was said that its meaning is, but the righteous is he who believes in God, like the Most High's saying, They are of degrees with God 163-Al Imran, meaning, of degrees, and it was said that its meaning is, but the righteous is he who believes in God, like the Most High's saying, And the outcome is for righteousness 132-Taha, meaning for the righteous, and what is meant by righteousness here is faith and piety.

And the Last Day and the angels all of them and the Book meaning the revealed books and the prophets all together and he gave the money he gave the money for his love they differed regarding this metaphor. Most of the people of interpretation said: it refers to the money, meaning he gave the money while he was healthy and loved the money. Ibn Masoud said: that you give it to him while you are healthy and stingy, hoping for wealth and fearing poverty.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Musa bin Ismail told us, Abdul Wahid told us, Ammarah bin Al-Qaqa' told us, Abu Zur'ah told us, Abu Hurairah told us: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, which charity has the greatest reward? He said: "To give charity while you are healthy and miserly, fearing poverty and hoping for wealth, and not delaying until it reaches your throat and you say to so-and-so such-and-such and to so-and-so such-and-such, when so-and-so already had it."

It was said that it refers to God Almighty, meaning to the love of God Almighty.

Relatives are relatives.

Abu Uthman Saeed bin Ismail Al-Dhabi told us, Abu Muhammad Abdul-Jabbar bin Muhammad Al-Jarrahi told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Mahboubi told us, Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi told us, Qutaybah told us, Sufyan bin Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Asim Al-Ahwal, on the authority of Hafsa bint Sirin, on the authority of Al-Rubaab, on the authority of her uncle Salman bin Amir, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Charity given to a poor person is charity, and charity given to a relative is two things: charity and maintaining ties of kinship."

The Almighty said: And orphans, and the needy, and the wayfarer. Mujahid said: It means the traveler who is cut off from his family and passes by you. The traveler is called the wayfarer because he stays on the road. It was also said: It is the guest who stays with the man. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him honor his guest. "And those who ask" means those who seek.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Musab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of Abu Bujayd al-Ansari, who are Abd al-Rahman ibn Bujayd, on the authority of his grandmother, who is Umm Bujayd, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Return the beggar even with a burnt hoof. And in another narration, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If you cannot find anything except a burnt hoof, then give it to him. The Almighty's statement, and for the slaves, means those who are freed from slavery. This was said by most of the commentators. It was said: freeing a slave and freeing a slave. It was said: ransoming captives. And establishes prayer and pays zakat, and gives zakat. And those who fulfill their covenant, between themselves and God, the Almighty, and between themselves and the people. When they make a covenant, meaning when they promise, they fulfill it. When they swear and vow, they fulfill it. When they make a covenant, they fulfill it. When they speak, they are truthful. When they are entrusted, they fulfill it. They differed in raising the statement, and those who fulfill it, it was said that it is an appositive to the report, meaning, But the righteous are the believers. And those who fulfill their covenant. It was said that its meaning is: And they are the ones who fulfill, as if he counted categories and then said: They are the ones who fulfill so-and-so. It was said that it was raised as the subject and the predicate, meaning they are the ones who fulfill, then he said, And the patient ones. There are four aspects to its accusative case:

Abu Ubaidah said: It is in the accusative case because of the length of the speech. It is the custom of the Arabs to change the i'rab if the speech and the sequence are long. An example of this is in Surat An-Nisa': And those who establish prayer (Surat al-Ma'idah 5:162) And the Sabians and the Christians. It was said that its meaning is I mean the patient ones. It was said that it is in the accusative case because of the saying of the relatives, meaning and I will give to the patient ones.

Al-Khalil said: It is in the accusative case for praise, and the Arabs in the accusative case for praise and blame [as if they want to separate the praised and blamed, so they do not follow it with the beginning of the speech and in the accusative case, so the praise is like the Almighty's saying: And those who establish prayer] 162-An-Nisa.

And the blame is like the Almighty's saying: Cursed wherever they are found 61-Al-Ahzab.

God Almighty says: In poverty meaning hardship and poverty, and distress meaning sickness and time, and during battle meaning fighting and war.

Al-Mutahhar bin Ali bin Abdullah Al-Farsi told us, Abu Dharr Muhammad bin Ibrahim Al-Salihani told us, Abu Muhammad Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Jaafar bin Habban told us, Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Baghawi told us, Ali bin Al-Jaad told us, Zuhair told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha bin Mudrib, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, who said: When the battle became fierce and the people met, we sought protection behind the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. No one was closer to the enemy than him, meaning when the war became intense. Those are the ones who were truthful in their faith, and those are the righteous.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

177- Righteousness is not that you turn your faces toward the east or the west. "Righteousness" is every act that is good, and the address is to the People of the Book, for they have frequently discussed the matter of the Qiblah when it was changed, and each group claimed that righteousness is turning toward its Qiblah, so God Almighty responded to them and said, Righteousness is not what you are upon, for it has been abrogated, but righteousness is what God has made clear and the believers follow. And it was said that it is general for them and the Muslims, meaning righteousness is not limited to the matter of the Qiblah, or is not the great righteousness that it is good for you to be oblivious to its matter other than its matter, and Hamzah and Hafs read "righteousness in the accusative case but righteousness is he who believes in God and the Last Day and the angels and the Book and the prophets" meaning but the righteousness that should be concerned with is the righteousness of he who believes in God, or but the righteous is he who believes, and this is supported by the reading of the one who read but the righteous. The first is more appropriate and better. What is meant by the Book is the genus, or the Qur'an. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read "but with a lightened vowel and raised righteousness. And give wealth out of love for it" meaning out of love for money. When he was asked which charity is best, he said, "That you give it while you are healthy and stingy, hoping to live and fearing poverty." It was said that the pronoun refers to God, or to the source. The preposition and noun are in the place of the state. "Relatives and orphans" means those among them who are in need, and it was not restricted to avoid confusion. He mentioned relatives first because giving to them is better, as he said, peace and blessings be upon him, "Your charity given to a poor person is charity, and to your relatives it is two things: charity and maintaining ties of kinship. The needy is the plural of the needy", which is the one who has been made inhabited by friendship, and its root is permanent stillness, like the drunkard is the one who is always drunk. "The wayfarer" is the traveler, so called because he stays on the road, just as the highwayman is called the son of the road. It was said that the guest is the one who is fed up with the way. "And the beggars" are those who are forced by need to beg, and he, peace and blessings be upon him, said, "The beggar has a right, even if he comes on his horse. And in the necks" and in freeing them with the help of those who have been freed, or releasing captives, or buying slaves to free them. "And establishes the prayer" the obligatory prayer. "And gives the zakat" it is possible that what is meant by it and his saying: "And gives the wealth" is the obligatory zakat, but the purpose of the first is to explain its expenditures, and of the second is to perform it and encourage it. It is possible that what is meant by the first is voluntary charity or rights that were in the wealth other than zakat. In the hadith: "Zakat has abrogated all charity. And those who fulfill their covenant when they have made a covenant is in apposition to whoever believes. And those who are patient in poverty and hardship" is in the accusative case for praise and is not in apposition because patience is superior to all other deeds. Al-Azhari said: poverty in wealth is like poverty, and hardship in the soul is like sickness. "And at the time of battle" the time of fighting the enemy. "Those are the ones who are truthful" in religion and following the truth and seeking righteousness. "And those are the righteous" from disbelief and all other vices. The verse, as you can see, is a collection of all human words, indicating them explicitly or implicitly. They are, in their multiplicity and complexity, limited to three things: sound belief, good treatment, and self-discipline. The first is indicated by His saying: Whoever believes in God to and the prophets. The second is indicated by His saying: And gives wealth to and for the freeing of slaves. The third is indicated by His saying:

And establishes prayer to the end. Therefore, the one who performs it is described as truthful in view of his faith and belief in piety, considering his interaction with people and dealings with the Truth. And this is what he referred to in his saying, peace be upon him, Whoever acts according to this verse has completed his faith.

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

Surat al-Baqarah 2:178

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, retaliation has been prescribed for you as an obligation for those killed in description and action the free is killed for a free and is not killed for a slave and the slave for the slave and the female for the female and the Sunnah has made clear that the male is killed for it and that similarity in religion is considered so a Muslim is not killed even if he is a slave for an infidel even if he is free then whoever pardons of the two killers of the blood of his brother who was killed anything by leaving retaliation from him, and the indefiniteness of something indicates that retaliation is dropped by pardoning some of it and some of the heirs, and in mentioning his brother there is a connection calling for pardon and an indication that killing does not sever brotherhood in faith, and from is a conditional or relative subject and the predicate then follow meaning that the one who pardons must follow the killer in a good manner by demanding blood money from him without violence, and arranging following after pardon indicates that one of them is obligatory and it is one of the two opinions of Al-Shafi'i and the second is obligatory retaliation and blood money as a substitute for it, so if he pardons and does not name it then there is nothing and it is preferred and on the killer to pay The blood money to him meaning the pardoner who is the heir with kindness without delay or impurity that the mentioned ruling of the permissibility of retaliation and pardoning him for the blood money is a mitigation facilitation from your Lord upon you and a mercy for you since He made that easy and did not make one of them obligatory as He made retaliation obligatory upon the Jews and blood money upon the Christians but whoever transgresses wrongs the killer by killing him after that meaning the pardon will have a painful punishment painful in the Hereafter by fire or in this world by killing

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is retaliation, verse K. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said that two tribes of Arabs fought each other in the pre-Islamic era.

A little while before Islam, there was killing and wounding among them, until they killed slaves and women, and they did not take revenge on each other until they converted to Islam. One of the two tribes would outnumber the other in numbers and money, so they swore that they would not be satisfied until a free man among them was killed for a slave, and a man among them for a woman. So it was revealed among them: A free man for a free man, a slave for a slave, and a female for a female.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder, that it is obligatory upon you. If someone says: Is it obligatory upon the guardian of the murdered person to retribution for the murder of his guardian? It is said: No, but it is permissible for him to do so, and to pardon, and to take blood money. If someone says: How did He say: Retaliation is prescribed for you? It is said: The meaning of that is contrary to what you have gone to, and rather its meaning is: "O you who have believed, retribution is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female," meaning: If a free man kills a free man, then the blood of the murderer is equal to the blood of the murdered person, and retribution is from him and not from others among the people, so do not go beyond killing to others who did not kill, for it is forbidden for you to kill someone other than the murderer for your murdered person.

The obligation that God imposed on us in retaliation is what I described of leaving the transgression of retaliation from killing the killer for his victim to someone else, not that retaliation was imposed on us as an obligation like the obligation of prayer and fasting, so that we would not have the right to abandon it. If that were an obligation that we are not permitted to abandon, then His statement, But if he is pardoned by his brother, there is nothing, would not have had an understood meaning. Because there is no pardon after retaliation, so it is said, But if he is pardoned by his brother, there is nothing. It has been said that the meaning of retaliation in this verse is to set off the blood money of some of the dead with the blood money of others. That is because the verse

They revealed it about two parties that fought during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and some of them killed each other. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered that reconciliation be made between them by dropping the blood money of the women of one party to the blood money of the women of the other party, and the blood money of their men to the blood money of their men, and the blood money of their slaves to the blood money of their slaves, in retaliation. So that is, to them, the meaning of retaliation in this verse.

If someone says: God Almighty said: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." So why do we have the right to take revenge for the free except from the free, and for the female except from the female? It is said: Rather, we have the right to take revenge for the free from the slave, and for the female from the male, based on the statement of God Almighty: And whoever is killed unjustly - We have given his heir authority (Al-Isra': 33) and based on the widespread transmission from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The blood of Muslims is equal. If he says: So if that is the case, what is the interpretation of this verse? It is said: The people of interpretation differed on that. Some of them said: This verse was revealed about a people who, if a man among them killed a slave of another people, would not be satisfied with the blood of their killer because he was a slave, until they killed his master in return. And if a woman from outside them killed a man, they would not be satisfied with the blood of their companion in return for the woman who killed him, until they killed a man from the woman's relatives and clan. Then God revealed this verse, informing them that what He had ordained for them in terms of retaliation was that they should kill for a man the male killer and not another man, and for a female the female killer and not another man, and for a male slave the male killer and not another free man. So He forbade them from seeking the killer's help from another man in retaliation. Those who said that were mentioned: Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu al-Walid told us - and al-Muthanna told me, he said, al-Hajjaj told us. They said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, regarding His statement: A free man for a free man, a slave for a slave, and a female for a female, he said: It was revealed about two tribes of Arabs who fought in blind combat, and they said: We will kill for our slave so-and-so, son of so-and-so, and for so-and-so, so-and-so, son of so-and-so. So God revealed: A free man for a free man, a slave for a slave, and a female for a female. Bishr told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female," he said: The people of the Age of Ignorance were unjust and obeyed Satan. So if a tribe had a number of people and were strong, and a slave of another people killed a slave of theirs, they would say: We will not kill anyone but a free man in return! Out of pride, because of their superiority over others in their eyes. And if a woman of theirs was killed, and the woman of another people killed her, they would say: We will not kill anyone but a man in return! So God revealed this verse informing them that a slave is for a slave and a female is for a female, so He forbade them from unjust treatment. Then God the Almighty revealed His remembrance in Surat Al-Ma'idah after that, saying: "And We ordained for them therein: a life for a life, an eye for an eye, a nose for a nose, an ear for an ear, a tooth for a tooth, and for wounds there is retaliation" (al-Ma'idah 5:45).

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder, he said: For those before us, there was no blood money, it was only killing, or pardoning his family. So this verse was revealed about a people who were more numerous than others, so if a large number of slaves were killed from a tribe, they would say: We will not kill anyone but a free man in return for it. And if a woman was killed among them, they would say: We will not kill anyone but a man in return for it. So God revealed: A free man for a free man, a slave for a slave, a female for a female. Muhammad bin Abd Al-A'la told me, he said, Al-Mu'tamir told us, he said, I heard Dawud, on the authority of Amer, regarding this.

The verse: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." He said: This is only in cases of blind fighting, if one of these is a slave and the other is a slave, they are equal. Likewise in cases of two women, and likewise in cases of two free men. This is its meaning, God willing. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: The statement of God Almighty: The free for the free includes a man for a woman, and a woman for a man. Ata' said: There is no preference between them. Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about two groups between whom there was fighting during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a group of men and women were killed from each group, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered that reconciliation be made between them, by making the blood money of the women from each group retaliation for the blood money of the women from the other group, and the blood money of the men for the men, and the blood money of the slaves for the slaves. This is the meaning of his statement: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder. He who said that: Musa bin Harun told us: Amr bin Hammad told us: Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, who said: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." He said: The people of two Arab tribes fought, one of them a Muslim and the other a covenanted one, in some of the matters that occur between the Arabs, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, reconciled between them and they had killed the free, the slaves, and the women - on the condition that the free man pay the blood money of the free man, the slave pay the blood money of the slave, and the female pay the blood money of the female, so some of them paid retribution from each other. Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, Abdullah bin al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, who said: There was fighting between two tribes of the Ansar, one of them had the upper hand over the other, so it was as if they were seeking the advantage. Then the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) came to reconcile between them, and this verse was revealed: The free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female. So the Prophet (peace

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful and blessings of God be upon him) made the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female. Al-Muthanna told us, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Abu Bishr, who said: I heard al-Sha'bi say about this verse: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder. He said: It was revealed about a blind fight. Shu'bah said: It was as if it was about a peace treaty. He said: They agreed on this. Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, who said: I heard al-Sha'bi say about this verse: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." He said: It was revealed regarding the fight against a blind man. He said: It was during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Others said: Rather, it is a command from God, the Most High, to set off the blood money of a free man against the blood money of a slave, the blood money of a male against the blood money of a female, in the case of premeditated murder - if retribution is taken for the murdered person from the murderer - and to take back the excess and increase between the blood money of the murdered person and the blood money taken from him. He who said that: I was told by Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: "O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution for those killed: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." He said: He told us on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib that he used to say: Any free man who kills a slave is liable for retaliation. If the masters of the slave wish to kill the free man, they should kill him and retaliate against them for the price of the slave from the blood money of the free man, and they should pay the masters of the free man the rest of his blood money. If a slave kills a free man, he is liable for retaliation.

If the guardians of the free man wish, they may kill the slave and exact retribution for the price of the slave, and take the rest of the free man's blood money. If they wish, they may take the entire blood money and spare the slave. Any free man who kills a woman is liable for retaliation. If the woman's guardians wish, they may kill him and pay half the blood money to the guardians of the free man. If a woman kills a free man, she is liable for retaliation. If the guardians of the free man wish, they may kill her and take half the blood money. If they wish, they may take the entire blood money and spare her. If they wish, they may pardon her. Muhammad ibn Bashir narrated to us, saying: Hisham ibn Abd al-Malik narrated to us, saying: Hammad ibn Salamah narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of al-Hasan: Ali said about a man who killed his wife, he said: If they wish, they can kill him and pay half the blood money. Muhammad ibn Bashir narrated to us, saying: Yahya narrated to us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Awf, on the authority of al-Hasan, saying: A man is not to be killed for a woman until they are given half the blood money. Ibn Hamid narrated to us, saying: Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, he said about a man who killed his wife intentionally, so they brought him to Ali, and he said: If you wish, kill him, and return the excess of the man's blood money to the woman's. Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed in the same situation when it was revealed, and the people did not kill a man for a woman, but they used to kill a man for a man, and a woman for a woman, until God made the ruling of all of them equal by saying: And We ordained for them therein that a life is for a life (al-Ma'idah 5:45), so He made all of them equal to one another in retaliation. Those who said that: Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And a female for a female, that is because they did not kill a man for a woman, but they killed a man for a man and a woman for a woman, so God Almighty revealed: A life for a life (al-Ma'idah 5:45) and made the free men and women equal in retaliation, in deliberate murder, in a life and what is less than a life. And he made the slaves equal in deliberate murder, in a life and what is less than a life, their men and women.

Abu Ja'far said: Since there was a difference in the difference that you described, in what this verse was revealed about, then it is obligatory for us to use it, in what it indicates of the ruling, with the decisive report that is an excuse. And the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, has been transmitted in a general manner: that the life of a free man is retaliation for the life of a free woman. So since that is the case, and the nation differed in reversing the difference between the blood money of the man and the woman - according to what we have explained from the statement of Ali and others - then it was clear that the statement of those who said retaliation in that and reversing the difference between the two blood moneys is corrupt, with the consensus of all the people of Islam: that it is forbidden for a man to destroy a limb of his body in exchange for compensation that he takes for its destruction, so leave all of it, and that it is forbidden for someone else to know that a part of it was destroyed - like what was forbidden from that - in exchange for compensation that he gives for it. So it is obligatory that the life of a free man be retaliation for the life of a free woman. Since this is the case, it is clear that the statement of God the Almighty: A free man for a free man, a slave for a slave, and a female for a female does not mean that a slave is not to be killed for a free man, nor that a female is to be killed for a male, nor a male for a female. Since this is the case, it is clear that the verse is intended to mean one of the other two meanings.

Either our statement: that retaliation does not extend beyond the killer and the offender, so the male is to be taken for the female and the free man is taken for the slave. Or the other statement: that the verse was revealed regarding specific people in particular, and the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was ordered to make the blood money of their dead retaliation, some for others, as al-Suddi and those we mentioned said. And all have agreed - there is no disagreement among them - that litigation in rights is not obligatory, and they have agreed that God did not issue a ruling in this regard and then abrogated it. Since this is the case, and His statement, Retaliation is prescribed for you indicates that it is obligatory, it is known that the statement is contrary to what the speaker of this statement said. Because what was obligatory for those with rights to do, they have no choice in it. And everyone agrees that those with rights have the choice in their set-off of their rights from one another. So since the corruption of this view that we mentioned has become clear, then the correct statement in that regard is what we said. If someone says: Since you mentioned that the meaning of his statement: Retaliation is prescribed for you means: Retaliation is imposed on you - the meaning of the statement of the speaker: He wrote is not known except for the meaning: He wrote that, so he drew a line and a book, so what is your proof that the meaning of his statement: He wrote is obligatory? It is said: That is found in the speech of the Arabs, and is widespread in their poetry, and from it is the saying of the poet:

Killing and fighting are against us, and chaste women should drag their tails.

And the saying of the genius of Bani Ja'dah:

My cousin, the Book of God has expelled me from you. Did God prevent what they did?

This is more in their poetry and speech than can be counted. However, even if it means: an obligation, I think it is taken from the book which is a drawing and writing. This is because God, the Most High, has written everything that He has imposed on His servants and what they are to do in the Preserved Tablet. God, the Most High, said in the Qur'an: Rather, it is a glorious Qur'an, in a Preserved Tablet (al-Buruj 85:1-2: 22), and He said: Indeed, it is a noble Qur'an, in a Book well-guarded (al-Waqi'ah 56:77-78). It has thus become clear that everything that He has imposed on us is written in the Preserved Tablet. So the meaning of His statement - since that is the case - Retaliation is prescribed for you is that retribution for the murdered is prescribed for you in the Preserved Tablet, that you do not kill anyone other than the murderer for the murdered person. As for retaliation, it is from the saying of the speaker: I have repaid so-and-so my right before him from his right before me, as retribution and set-off. So killing the killer for the one he killed is retaliation, because it is the object of the action like what was done to the one he killed, even if one of the two actions was aggression and the other was right. So even though they differ in this respect, they agree that each one did to his companion the same as his companion did to him. And the action of the guardian of the first slain person, if he killed the killer of his guardian, was made retaliation, because it was because of his killing that he deserved to kill the one who killed him, so it is as if the guardian of the slain person is the one who took charge of killing his killer, so he took retaliation from him. As for the slain, it is the plural of slain, just as the slain is the plural of slain, and the wounded is the plural of wounded. The active participle is only pluralized as fa'il if it is an attribute of the described, in the sense of time and harm that prevents its owner from leaving his place and place of death, like the slain in their battles, the slain in their places, the wounded, and the like. So the interpretation of the statement then: Retaliation for the slain is imposed upon you, O believers: that the free man take retaliation for the free man.

And the slave for the slave, and the female for the female.. Then he left out the mention of retaliation, being satisfied with the indication of his saying: Retaliation is prescribed for you, on him. Abu Ja'far said:

The commentators differed in their interpretation of this. Some of them said: Its interpretation is: If someone is left to be killed unjustly, from what is due to him, his brother will have to pay retaliation - which is the thing that God said: But if someone is pardoned by his brother - then the one who pardons follows the killer with what is due to him before him from the blood money, and the one who is pardoned pays it to him with kindness. Those who said this were mentioned: Abu Kurayb and Ahmad ibn Hammad al-Dawlabi told us, they said: Sufyan ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, so pardoning means accepting the blood money in the case of premeditated murder, and following with kindness means asking for this with kindness and paying this with kindness. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Hajjaj bin Al-Munhal told us, he said, Hammad bin Salamah told us, he said, Amr bin Dinar told us, on the authority of Jabir bin Zaid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said regarding His statement: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there is a reasonable pursuit and payment to him with goodness, he said: It is the deliberate killing, and his family is satisfied with the blood money, and a reasonable pursuit: the one who demands it is ordered by the one seeking it, and payment to him with goodness from the one sought. Muhammad bin Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq told us, he said, my father told us - and Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us - they both said, Ibn Al-Mubarak informed us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Muslim, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The one who accepts the blood money, that is a pardon from him and a reasonable pursuit, and he pays to him what was pardoned by his brother with goodness. Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: But if any one is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a follow-up within reasonable limits and payment to him with goodness, which is the blood money: that the one who is asked should do a good job of asking, and payment to him with goodness: which is that the one who is asked should do a good job of paying.

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

Muhammad Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: But if any one is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a follow-up within reasonable limits and payment to him with goodness, and the pardon is the one who pardons the blood money and takes the blood money. Sufyan told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: But if any one is pardoned by his brother, he said: the blood money. Ibn Wakee' narrated, he said, my father narrated, on the authority of Yazid, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Al-Hasan, And pay it to him with kindness, he said: This seeker must ask with kindness, and this sought must pay it with kindness. Al-Muthanna narrated, he said, Abu Hudhayfah narrated, he said, Shibl narrated, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there is a follow-up in kindness, and pardoning is the one who pardons the blood money and takes the blood money. Muhammad ibn Al-Muthanna narrated, he said, Abu Al-Walid narrated, he said, Hammad narrated, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, regarding his statement: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there is a follow-up in kindness and a payment to him with kindness, he said: It is deliberate, and his family is satisfied with the blood money. Al-Muthanna narrated, he said, Al-Hajjaj narrated, he said, Hammad narrated, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, similarly. Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a follow-up in accordance with what is acceptable and payment to him with goodness, meaning someone who killed intentionally and was pardoned, and the blood money was accepted from him. He says: Then a follow-up in accordance with what is acceptable, so he ordered the follow-up to be followed in accordance with what is acceptable, and he ordered the payment to be made with goodness, and the intentional killing should be repaid in retaliation, without blood money, unless they are satisfied with blood money. If they are satisfied with blood money, then a hundred female offspring are required. If they say: We will not be satisfied except with such and such, then that is theirs. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, he said: Abd al-Razzaq informed us, he said: Muammar informed us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Then a follow-up in accordance with what is acceptable and payment to him with goodness, he said: The one who asked for it should be followed in accordance with what is acceptable, and the one who asked should be paid with goodness. It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a reasonable follow-up and payment to him with kindness, he said: So if someone is killed intentionally and is pardoned, and the blood money is taken from him, he said: then there should be a reasonable follow-up, he ordered the person who takes the blood money to follow up with kindness, and he ordered the one who pays it to pay it with kindness. Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, I said to Ata': His statement: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a follow-up within reasonable limits and payment to him with goodness, he said: That is if he takes the blood money, then he is pardoned. Al-Hasan narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza informed me, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: If he accepts the blood money, then he has pardoned retaliation, so that is his statement: But if someone is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a follow-up within reasonable limits and payment to him with goodness, Ibn Jurayj said: Al-A'raj informed me, on the authority of Mujahid, something similar to that, and he added to it: - If he accepts the blood money, then he must follow up within reasonable limits, and the one who was pardoned must pay with goodness. Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said, Muslim bin Ibrahim narrated to us, he said, Abu Uqayl narrated to us, he said, Al-Hasan said: Taking the blood money is a good pardon.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And pay it to him with kindness, he said: You, the one who is pardoned. Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, his statement: But if any one is pardoned by his brother, then there should be a follow-up in kindness and payment to him with kindness, which is the blood money, that the one who asks for it should do good, and payment to him with kindness: is that the one who is asked should do good. Others said that the meaning of his statement: But if any one is pardoned, is that he has a surplus, and he has a remainder. They said: The meaning of his statement: Something from his brother is: something from the blood money of his brother, or from the compensation for his wound, so the killer or the injurer should follow up from him what remained of that before him - with kindness, and payment - from the killer or the injurer - to him what remained of that before him with kindness. This is the statement of those who claimed that the verse was revealed - I mean his statement: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is retaliation for those killed - regarding those who fought during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered that they should reconcile, so that the blood money of some of them would be paid to others, and some of them would be given more than what they had left before the others. And I think that those who said this statement directed the interpretation of forgiveness - in this place - to: the abundance of the statement of God the Most High: until they pardon (al-A'raf 7:95). So the meaning of the statement according to them is: whoever has more than what he has before his brother the killer. Mention of those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: So whoever has been pardoned by his brother in any way, meaning: he has something left of his brother's blood money or of the compensation for his wound, then let him follow up with kindness, and let the other party pay him in kindness. And what is required in the interpretation of the statement that we narrated from Ali and Al-Hasan - in his statement: Retaliation is prescribed for you is that it means: settling the blood money of a male soul from the blood money of a female soul, and of a slave from a free man, and returning the excess of what is between their blood moneys - is that the meaning of his statement: So whoever has been pardoned by his brother in any way, is: whoever Abu Ja'far said: The most correct statement in my opinion is in his statement: But if his brother pardons him something: So if he pardons him - from the obligation, his brother has to pay him retaliation - for something of the obligation, on blood money that he takes from him, so he should follow up with what is acceptable - from the one who pardons the blood, who is satisfied with the blood money from the blood of his guardian - and he should pay to him - from the killer - that with kindness. Because we have explained from the reasons in what came before: that the meaning of the statement of God Almighty: Retaliation is prescribed for you, is only retribution from the souls of the killer who kills or wounds or injures intentionally. Likewise, forgiveness is also for that. As for the meaning of his statement: Then follow up with what is acceptable, it means: follow up on what God has made obligatory for him from the right before the killer of his guardian, without adding to it what he is not entitled to - in the teeth of the obligatory duties or other than that - or charging him Unless God has made it obligatory for him, as: Bishr bin Muadh told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: It has reached us from the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Whoever increases or adds a camel - meaning in the camels of blood money and its obligations - then it is from the matter of the Jahiliyyah. As for the other's kindness in performing, it is performing what he is obligated to perform for the guardian of the slain person, according to what God has made obligatory for him and made obligatory for him, without depriving him of a right he has before him because of that, or requiring him to collect and demand it. If someone were to say to us: How was it said: Then follow up with kindness and perform it with kindness, and not say then follow up with kindness and perform it with kindness, as He said: So when you meet those who disbelieve, strike the necks (Muhammad 47:4)? It is said: If the revelation had come in the accusative case, and it had been: then follow up with kindness and perform it with kindness - it would have been permissible in Arabic and correct, in the form of a command, as it is said: strike, strike, and if you meet someone, then with reverence. And to glorify, but it came in the nominative case, which is more eloquent in the speech of the Arabs than its accusative case. And likewise in everything that was similar to it, which is a general obligation - for the one who has done it, and for the one who has not done it if he did it - not as a recommendation or an exhortation. And its nominative case is in the meaning: So whoever has been pardoned by his brother for something, then the command in it is: following in a good manner and paying him back with kindness, or the judgment and ruling in it is: following in a good manner. And some of the Arab scholars have said: The nominative case is in the meaning: So whoever has been pardoned by his brother for something, then he must follow in a good manner. And this is a school of thought, and the first that we have said is the face of the speech. And likewise everything that was similar to that in the Qur'an, then its nominative case is in the face that we have said. And that is like His saying: And whoever among you kills him intentionally - the penalty is an equivalent of what he killed from livestock (al-Ma'idah 5:95) and His saying: Then keep him in kindness or release him with kindness (al-Baqarah 2:229). As for His saying: Then strike the necks, then the correct thing in it is the accusative case, and that is the face of the speech? Because it is on The face of the urging of God Almighty to His servants to kill when meeting the enemy, as it is said: If you meet the enemy, then glorify God and praise Him, as an urging to glorify God, not as an obligation and obligation. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: That, this is what I have ruled and prescribed for you, of permitting you - O nation - to pardon the retaliation of the killer of your slain, in exchange for blood money that you take and you own it, as you own all your wealth that I had withheld from the previous nations before you, as a relief from your Lord, meaning: a relief from Me for you from what I had made heavy for others, by forbidding it to them, and a mercy, from Me to you, as Abu Kurayb and Ahmad ibn Hammad al-Dawlabi told us, they said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Retaliation was prescribed for the Children of Israel, but blood money was not prescribed for them, so God said in this verse: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder, a free man for a free man, to His saying, But if any of his brother pardons him, so pardon is to accept. Blood money for premeditated murder, That is a relief from your Lord. He says: He has relieved you of what was upon those before you: to ask for this with kindness, and to pay this with kindness. Muhammad ibn Ali ibn al-Hasan ibn Shaqiq told us, he said, my father told us, he said, Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Muslim, on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Those before you used to kill the killer for the one killed, and blood money was not accepted from them, so God revealed: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in cases of murder, the free for the free to the end of the verse, That is a relief from your Lord, he says: He has relieved you, and blood money was not accepted upon those before you, so the one who accepts blood money, that is forgiveness from Him. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, al-Hajjaj ibn al-Munhal told us, he said, Hammad ibn Salamah told us, he said, Amr ibn Dinar told us, on the authority of Jabir ibn Zayd, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That is a relief from your Lord and a mercy, from what was upon the Children of Israel, meaning: the prohibition of blood money upon them. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Children of Israel had retaliation for murder, and there was no blood money between them for a life or an injury, and that is the saying of God: "And We ordained for them therein: a life for a life, and an eye for an eye" (al-Ma'idah 5:45). And God made it easier for the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and accepted from them blood money for a life and for an injury, and that is the saying of God Almighty: That is a relief from your Lord between you. Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said, Yazid narrated to us, he said, Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: That is a relief from your Lord and a mercy, and it is only a mercy with which God had mercy on this nation, He fed them blood money and made it permissible for them, and it was not permissible for anyone before them. So the people of the Torah were only retaliation or forgiveness, and there was no blood money between them, and the people of the Gospel were only forgiveness, and they were commanded to do so. So God made for this nation retaliation and forgiveness and blood money if they wished, He made it permissible for them, and it was not for any nation before them. I narrated from Ammar bin Al-Hasan, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, similarly, except that he said: There is nothing between them. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder, he said: For those before us, there was no blood money, it was only killing, or pardoning his family. So this verse was revealed about a people who were more numerous than others. Al-Qasim told us, he said: Al-Husayn told us, he said: Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: Amr bin Dinar told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Retaliation was prescribed for the Children of Israel, and it was made lighter for this nation - and Amr bin Dinar recited: That is a lightening from your Lord and a mercy. As for the statement of those who said: Retaliation in this verse means: Retaliation of blood money from one another, according to what al-Suddi said, then its interpretation should be: This is what I did to you, O believers - of retribution of blood money for those killed, some of you for the blood money of others, and leaving the obligation of retribution on the rest of you for the one killed whom he killed and took. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty meant by His saying: But whoever transgresses after that, whoever exceeds what God has made for him after taking the blood money, transgressing and unjustly to what He has not made for him, such as killing the killer of his guardian and shedding his blood, then for his action and transgression to what I have forbidden him, there is a painful punishment. I have explained the meaning of transgression previously in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that. Mention of those who said that: Muhammad ibn `Amr told me, he said, Abu `Asim told us, he said, `Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid: But whoever transgresses after that and kills, for him is a painful punishment. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid: But whoever transgresses, after taking the blood money, for him is a painful punishment. Bishr ibn Muadh said, Yazid bin Zari' narrated to us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But whoever transgresses after that, for him is a painful punishment, meaning: whoever transgresses after receiving the blood money and kills, for him is a painful punishment. He said: It was mentioned to us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: I do not pardon a man who killed after receiving the blood money. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, he said, Muammar narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But whoever transgresses after that, he said: It is killing after receiving the blood money. He said: Whoever kills after receiving the blood money, then he must be killed, and the blood money will not be accepted from him. I was told by Ammar bin al-Hasan, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But whoever transgresses after that, for him is a painful punishment, meaning: whoever transgresses after receiving the blood money, then he is a painful punishment. Sufyan bin Waki' narrated to us, he said, my father narrated to me, on the authority of Yazid bin Ibrahim, on the authority of al-Hasan, he said: If a man killed someone in the pre-Islamic era, he would flee to his people. Then his people come and make peace on his behalf with blood money. He said: The fugitive comes out and he feels safe. He said: He is killed and then the blood money is thrown at him, and that is aggression. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, he said: Abu Aqil told us, he said: I heard Al-Hasan regarding this verse: But if a man is pardoned by his brother, he said: The killer is if he is sought and is not able to, and he takes the blood money from his relatives, then he feels safe, so he is taken and killed. Al-Hasan said: He did not eat aggression. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Muslim told us, he said: Al-Qasim told us, he said: Harun bin Sulayman told us, he said: I said to Ikrimah: Who kills after taking the blood money? He said: Then he is killed! Haven't you heard God say: But whoever transgresses after that will have a painful punishment? Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: But whoever transgresses after that, after he takes the blood money, and kills, will have a painful punishment. Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said: My father told me, he said: My uncle told me. He said, my father told me on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: But whoever transgresses after that, meaning: whoever transgresses after taking the blood money, then for him is a painful punishment. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: But whoever transgresses after that, then for him is a painful punishment, he said: He took the blood money, then killed after taking the blood money the killer of his victim, then for him is a painful punishment. And they differed regarding the meaning of the painful punishment that God made for whoever transgresses after taking the blood money, the killer of his guardian passed by. Some of them said: That punishment is killing the one who killed him after taking the blood money from him, and his pardon of the retaliation from him for the blood of his guardian. Mention of those who said that: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim al-Dawraqi told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of al-Dahhak regarding his statement: But whoever transgresses after that will have a painful punishment, he said: He will be killed, and it is the painful punishment, he said: the painful punishment. Ya'qub told me, he said, Hisham told me, he said, Abu Ishaq told us, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr that he said that. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, he said, al-Qasim told us, he said, Harun bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of Ikrimah: But whoever transgresses after that will have a painful punishment, he said: killing. Some of them said: That punishment is a punishment with which the ruler punishes him according to the extent of his punishment. Mention of those who said that: al-Qasim bin al-Hasan told me, he said, al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj told me, Ismail bin Umayya told me, on the authority of al-Layth - except that he did not He attributed it to him, and said: Trustworthy -: that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, made it obligatory by oath or otherwise that a man who forgave blood money and took blood money, then transgressed and killed, not be pardoned. Ibn Jurayj said, and Abdul Aziz bin Omar bin Abdul Aziz informed me, he said: In a book of Omar from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: And the transgression that God mentioned: That a man takes blood money or takes retaliation or the ruler judges between the wounds, then some of them transgress after he has fully taken his right. So whoever does that has transgressed, and the ruling in it is up to the ruler with what he sees as punishment. He said: And if he pardoned him, no one seeking the truth has the right to [pardon], because this is from the matter in which God revealed His saying: But if you disagree about anything, refer it to God and the Messenger (An-Nisa': 59). Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said, Abdul Wahid bin Ziyad narrated to us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Al-Hasan: Concerning a man who killed and blood money was taken from him, then his guardian killed the killer for it. Al-Hasan said: The blood money that he took is taken from him, and he is not killed for it. Abu Ja'far said: And the first of the two interpretations is: By His saying: But whoever transgresses after that, for him is a painful punishment, the interpretation of the one who said: "So whoever transgresses after taking the blood money and kills the killer of his guardian, for him is a painful punishment in this world, which is killing. Because God Almighty has given every guardian of a murdered person unjustly authority over the killer of his guardian, as He Almighty said: "And whoever is killed unjustly - We have given his heir authority, but let him not exceed limits in taking life" (Al-Isra': 33). Since that is the case, and all the people of knowledge are in agreement that whoever kills the killer of his guardian after he has pardoned him and taken from him the blood money for his murdered person, that by killing him he has committed an injustice in killing him - it is clear that the one who killed him unjustly should not be given authority over him in retaliation, pardon, and taking the blood money, whichever he wants. Since that is the case, it is known that that is his punishment. Because whoever has his punishment carried out on him in this world, that is his punishment for his sin, and it will not be followed in the Hereafter, according to what has been proven in the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. As for what Ibn Gregory: That the ruling of the one who kills the killer of his guardian after he has pardoned him, and he takes the blood money of the guardian of the murdered person to the Imam and not to the guardians of the murdered person, is a statement contrary to what is indicated by the apparent meaning of the Book of God, and upon which the scholars of the nation have agreed. That is because God has given the guardian of every unjustly murdered the authority and not to anyone else, without specifying one murdered person over another. So whether that person was murdered and the guardian of the one who killed him or someone else. And whoever specifies something from that is asked for proof of it from the origin or the equivalent, and the statement is reversed to him in it, then he will not say a statement in any of that except that he is obligated in the other like it. Then in the consensus of the argument contrary to what he said in that, it is sufficient to cite other evidence for its corruption.

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

It contains seventeen issues:

First: Al-Bukhari, Al-Nasa'i and Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Retaliation was practiced among the Children of Israel, but blood money was not practiced among them. So God said to this nation: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if a remission is made by his brother, then he should accept the blood money in the case of premeditated murder. "Then follow up in kindness and pay it back with goodness." He should follow up in kindness and pay back with goodness. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. What was prescribed for those who came before you. But whoever transgresses after that will have a painful

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful punishment. Killing after accepting the blood money. This is the wording of Al-Bukhari: Al-Humaidi narrated to us, Sufyan narrated to us, Amr narrated to us, he said: I heard Mujahid say: I heard Ibn Abbas say: Al-Sha'bi said about the words of God, the Most High: The free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. He said: It was revealed about two tribes of Arabs who fought and said: We will kill for our slave, so-and-so, son of so-and-so, and for our female slave, so-and-so, daughter of so-and-so. And something similar was narrated by Qatada.

Second: The Almighty's saying: Retaliation is prescribed for you. The meaning of prescribed is imposed and established. From this is the saying of Omar bin Abi Rabi'ah:

Killing and fighting are written on us and on the prostitutes who drag their tails

It has been said: Here, the book is a report of what was written in the Preserved Tablet and what was previously decreed. Retribution is taken from Qass al-Athar which means following it, and from it comes al-Qass because he follows traces and report. And cutting poetry is following its trace, so it is as if the killer took a path of murder and traced its traces in it and walked in his path in that, and from it comes So they returned upon their traces, tracing. And it has been said: Qass is cutting, it is said: I cut what was between them. And from it comes al-Qisas, because he wounds him like his wound or kills him with it, it is said: The judge cut so-and-so from so-and-so and he refused it, so he took revenge on him, meaning he exacted retribution from him.

Third: The image of retaliation is that the killer is required, if the guardian wants to kill, to submit to God's command and obey His lawful retaliation, and that the guardian is required to stand by the killer of his guardian and refrain from transgressing against anyone else, just as the Arabs used to transgress and kill someone other than the killer, and this is the meaning of his saying, peace be upon him:

"The most rebellious people to God on the Day of Resurrection will be three: a man who kills someone other than his killer, a man who kills in the Sacred Sanctuary, and a man who takes the spoils of the Age of Ignorance." Al-Sha'bi, Qatada, and others said: The people of the Age of Ignorance were unjust and obeyed Satan. If a tribe was powerful and strong and one of their slaves was killed, another group of slaves would kill him. They would say: We will not kill anyone but a free man for him. If one of their women was killed, they would say: We will not kill anyone but a man for him. If one of their lowly people was killed, they would say: We will not kill anyone but a noble man for him. They would say: Killing is more protective of killing with the letter waw and the letter qaf. It is also narrated as abqa with the letter ba and the letter qaf, and it is also narrated as anfa with the letter nun and the letter fa. So God forbade them from rebellion, saying: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave" al-Baqarah 2:17. He also said: And there is life for you in retaliation. There is a great difference between the two statements in terms of eloquence and clarity.

Fourth: There is no disagreement that retaliation for murder can only be carried out by those in authority. It is obligatory upon them to undertake retaliation and the implementation of the prescribed punishments and other things, because God Almighty addressed all believers with retaliation, and it is not possible for all believers to come together to carry out retaliation, so they appointed the ruler in their place in carrying out retaliation and other prescribed punishments. Retaliation is not obligatory, but what is obligatory is that retaliation and other prescribed punishments not go beyond aggression. However, if consent is given without retaliation, such as blood money or forgiveness, then that is permissible, as will be explained.

If it is said: The meaning of the Almighty's statement: It is prescribed for you is an obligation and a necessity, so how can retaliation not be obligatory? It is said to him: Its meaning is if you want, then know that retaliation is the goal in the case of quarreling. The slain is the plural of slain, a feminine noun for the feminine of the group, and it is something that people are forced to do, so it came in this structure like wounded, weak, foolish, fallen, drowned, and the like.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: The free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female verse. There is a difference of opinion regarding its interpretation. A group said that the verse was built on the ruling of the species if it kills its own species, so it clarified the ruling of the free man if he kills a free man, the slave if he kills a slave, and the female if she kills a female, and it did not address either of the two species if it kills the other. So the verse is decisive and contains ambiguity, which is clarified by the Almighty's saying: And We ordained for them therein that a life is for a life verse, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, clarified it when he killed a Jew for a woman, as Mujahid said, and Abu Ubaid mentioned it on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It was also narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that it was abrogated by the verse of Al-Ma'idah, and this is the opinion of the people of Iraq.

Sixth: The Kufians and Al-Thawri said: A free man is killed for a slave, and a Muslim for a dhimmi. They argued with the words of God Almighty: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is retaliation for those murdered 1:100, so it is general. And His words: And We prescribed for them therein a life for a life 1:100, they said: The dhimmi and the Muslim are equal in the sanctity that is sufficient for retaliation, which is the sanctity of blood that is established forever. The dhimmi's blood is sanctified forever, and so is the Muslim, and both of them have become people of the abode of Islam. What confirms this is that the Muslim's hand is cut off for stealing the property of the dhimmi, and this indicates that the property of the dhimmi is equal to the property of the Muslim, so it indicates its equality with his blood, since property is only forbidden by the sanctity of its owner. Abu Hanifa and his companions, Al-Thawri and Ibn Abi Laila agreed that a free man is killed for a slave just as a slave is killed for it, and this is the saying of Dawud, and it was narrated from Ali and Ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with them, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Qatada, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i and Al-Hakam bin Uyyaynah said the same. The majority of scholars do not kill a free man for a slave, due to the diversity and division in the verse. Abu Thawr said: Since they all agreed that there is no retaliation between slaves and free people in matters other than souls, souls were more deserving of that, and whoever among them differentiated between them has contradicted himself. Also, the consensus regarding the one who kills a slave by mistake is that he is only liable for the value, so just as he is not like a free man in the case of accident, he is not like him in the case of deliberate killing. Also, the slave is a commodity among commodities that is bought and sold, and the free man disposes of him as he wishes, so there is no equality between him and the free man and no resistance.

I said that this consensus is correct, and as for his saying first: And since they all agreed - until his saying - then it contradicted, because Ibn Abi Laila and Dawud said that retaliation is permissible between free people and slaves in the soul and in all the limbs, and Dawud provided evidence with his saying, peace be upon him:

The blood of Muslims is equal, so he did not differentiate between a free man and a slave. This will be explained in the chapter on women, God willing.

Seventh: The majority also agree that a Muslim should not be killed for killing an infidel, based on the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

A Muslim shall not be killed for killing an infidel.

Narrated by Al-Bukhari on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib. What they narrated from the hadith of Rabi'ah is not authentic:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, killed a Muslim on the day of Khaybar for an unbeliever," because it is disconnected.

From the hadith of Ibn al-Baylamani, who is weak, on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet. Al-Daraqutni said: It was not supported by anyone except Ibrahim ibn Yahya, whose hadith is rejected. The correct version is on the authority of Rabi'ah, on the authority of Ibn al-Baylamani, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn al-Baylamani is weak in hadith and cannot be used as evidence if the hadith is connected, so how about if it is transmitted by a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace?

I said: There is nothing authentic in this chapter except the hadith of Al-Bukhari, and it specifies the generality of the Almighty's statement: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder Al-Bukhari 1979, and the generality of His statement: A life for a life.

Eighth: It was narrated on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib and Al-Hassan bin Abi Al-Hassan Al-Basri that the verse was revealed explaining the ruling on the two mentioned, to indicate the difference between them and a free man killing a slave or a slave killing a free man, or a male killing a female or a female killing a male. They said: If a man kills a woman, if her guardians want, they kill their companion and pay his guardians half of the blood money, and if they want, they spare him and take the blood money of the woman from him. If a woman kills a man, if his guardians want to kill her, they kill her and take half of the blood money, otherwise they take the blood money of their companion and spare her. This was narrated by Al-Sha'bi on the authority of Ali, but it is not authentic, because Al-Sha'bi did not meet Ali. Al-Hakam narrated on the authority of Ali and Abdullah, who said: If a man kills a woman intentionally, he is to be killed in retaliation for her. This contradicts the narration of Al-Sha'bi on the authority of Ali. Scholars have agreed that if a one-eyed or paralyzed person kills a healthy man, his guardian is not allowed to kill the one-eyed man and take half of the blood money from him, because he killed a man with two eyes while he was one-eyed, and killed a man with two hands while he was paralyzed. This indicates that a soul is equal to a soul, and a child is equal to an adult in this regard.

And it is said to the one who says this: If the man is not equal to the woman and does not fall under the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

The blood of Muslims is equal. So why did she kill a man with it when it is not equal to him and then take half the blood money? The scholars have agreed that blood money cannot be combined with retaliation, and that if blood money is accepted, blood is forbidden and retaliation is lifted. So your statement is not based on a principle or analogy. This was said by Abu Omar, may God be pleased with him. If a free man kills a slave, if the master of the slave wants to kill him and give the free man's blood money except for the value of the slave, and if he wants to, he can take the slave's value. This was mentioned from Ali and Al-Hasan, and it was also denied from them.

Ninth: The scholars agreed on killing a man for a woman and a woman for a man, and the majority do not see any return. A group sees following with the surplus of blood money. Malik, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, Al-Thawri, and Abu Thawr said: And likewise the retaliation between them for what is less than a life. Hammad bin Abi Sulayman and Abu Hanifa said: There is no retaliation between them for what is less than a life for a life, but it is in a life for a life, and they are refuted by attributing what is less than a life to a life in a more appropriate and preferable way, based on what was mentioned above.

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

Tenth: Ibn al-Arabi said: Ignorance has reached the point where they said: A free man is killed for his own slave. They narrated in a hadith on the authority of al-Hasan on the authority of Samurah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever kills his slave, we will kill him. This is a weak hadith. Our evidence is the Almighty's saying: And whoever is killed unjustly - We have given his heir authority, but let him not exceed limits in [the matter of] taking life. The heir here is the master, so how can he be given authority over himself? Everyone has agreed that if the master kills his slave by mistake, his value is not taken from him for the public treasury. Amr ibn Shu'aib narrated on the authority of his father on the authority of his grandfather:

"A man intentionally killed his slave, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, flogged him, banished him for a year, and erased his share from the Muslims and did not retaliate for him."

If it is said: If a man kills his wife, why do you not say: Marriage is established as a doubt in order to ward off retaliation from the husband, since marriage is a type of slavery, and Al-Layth ibn Sa'd stated that? We say: Marriage is concluded for her on him, as evidenced by the fact that he does not marry her sister or four others besides her, and she demands from him the right to intercourse as he demands from her, but he has the advantage of guardianship over her that God has given him over her because of what he spent from his money, that is, because of what is required of him in terms of dowry and maintenance, so if he created a doubt, he would give her an inheritance on both sides.

I said: This hadith, which Ibn al-Arabi weakened, is authentic. It was narrated by al-Nasa'i and Abu Dawud, and the completion of its text is:

Whoever mutilates his limbs, We will mutilate him, and whoever castrates him, We will castrate him.

Al-Bukhari said on the authority of Ali ibn al-Madani: The hearing of al-Hasan ibn Samurah is authentic, and he accepted this hadith. Al-Bukhari said: I also agree with him, for if the hadith were not authentic, these two imams would not have agreed with it, and they are enough for you! A free man is killed for killing his own slave. Al-Nakha'i and al-Thawri said in one of his two opinions: It has been said that al-Hasan did not hear from Samurah anything except the hadith of the 'aqeeqah, and God knows best. They differed regarding retaliation between slaves in matters less than a soul. This is the opinion of Umar ibn Abd al-Aziz, Salim ibn Abdullah, al-Zuhri, Qaran, Malik, al-Shafi'i, and Abu Thawr. Al-Sha'bi, al-Nakha'i, al-Thawri, and Abu Hanifa said: There is no retaliation between them except for a soul. Ibn al-Mundhir said: The first is more authentic.

Eleventh: Al-Darqutni and Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Suraqah bin Malik, who said: I was present with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when the father was being punished for his son, but the son was not being punished for his father. Abu Isa said: This is a hadith that we do not know of as a hadith of Suraqah except from this source, and its chain of transmission is not authentic. It was narrated by Ismail bin Ayyash on the authority of Al-Muthanna bin Al-Sabah, and Al-Muthanna is considered weak in hadith. This hadith was narrated by Abu Khalid Al-Ahmar on the authority of Al-Hajjaj on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib on the authority of his father on the authority of his grandfather on the authority of Umar on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. This hadith was narrated on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib as a mursal, and this hadith is confused. The scholars act upon this, that if a father kills his son, he is not to be killed for it, and if he slanders him, he is not to be punished. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: The scholars differed regarding a man who kills his son intentionally. A group said: There is no retaliation against him, but he is to pay blood money. This is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, and the people of opinion. It was also narrated on the authority of Ata' and Mujahid. Malik, Ibn Nafi' and Ibn Abd al-Hakam said: He is to be killed for it. Ibn al-Mundhir said: This is what we say based on the apparent meaning of the Book and the Sunnah. As for the apparent meaning of the Book, it is the Almighty's saying: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave," and what is proven from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace:

The blood of the believers is equal. We do not know of any authentic hadith that would exclude the father from the verse. We have narrated unconfirmed hadiths about it. Al-Kaya al-Tabari narrated on the authority of Uthman al-Batti that a father is killed for his son, due to the generalities in retaliation. The same was narrated on the authority of Malik, and perhaps they do not accept individual hadiths in contrast to the generalities of the Qur'an.

I said: There is no disagreement in the Maliki school that if a man kills his son intentionally, such as by lying him down and slaughtering him or by beating him, for which he has no excuse and no doubt about claiming error, then he is to be killed for it according to one opinion. But if he threw a weapon at him out of discipline or anger and killed him, then there are two opinions in the school: he is to be killed for it, and he is not to be killed for it and the blood money is increased, and this is what the majority of scholars said. And a stranger is to be killed for something like this. Ibn al-Arabi: I heard our Sheikh Fakhr al-Islam al-Shashi say in al-Nazar: A father is not to be killed for his son, because the father was the reason for his existence, so how can he be the reason for his nonexistence? This is invalidated by the fact that if he committed adultery with his daughter, then he is to be stoned, and he was the reason for her existence and she is the reason for his nonexistence. Then what is the jurisprudence under this, and why is he not the reason for his nonexistence if he disobeyed God in that? And they have transmitted from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

A father is not to be killed for his son is a false hadith. Their argument is that Umar may God be pleased with him ruled that blood money should be paid heavily for the murderer of his son, and none of the companions objected to him. The rest of the jurists may God be pleased with them took the issue as recorded and said: A father is not to be killed for his son. Malik took it as a detailed ruling and said: If he struck him with the sword, and this is a possible case of intent to kill or not, and his fear of fatherhood is a suspicion that is established as evidence of the lack of intent to kill, then the blood money is dropped. If he lays him down, he removes the cover from his intent, so it is connected to its origin. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Malik, al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Ishaq used to say: If a son kills his father, he is to be killed for it.

Twelfth: Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal used this verse as evidence for his statement: Do not kill a group for one person. He said: Because God Almighty stipulated equality and there is no equality between a group and an individual. God Almighty said: "And We ordained for them therein: A life for a life, an eye for an eye." The answer is that what is meant by retaliation in the verse is killing whoever kills, whoever he may be, in response to the Arabs who wanted to kill for whoever killed someone who did not kill, and kill in return for one person a hundred, out of pride and to show off their prestige and power. So God Almighty commanded justice and equality, by killing whoever killed, and...

Omar, may God be pleased with him, killed seven people in Sana'a and said: If the people of Sana'a conspired against him, I would have killed them all. Ali, may God be pleased with him, killed the Kharijites in the name of Abdullah bin Khabab, so he stopped fighting them until they spoke. When they slaughtered Abdullah bin Khabab as a sheep is slaughtered, and Ali was informed of that, he said: God is Great! Call them to bring out to us the killer of Abdullah bin Khabab. They said: We all killed him, three times. Ali said to his companions: Take the people and they will be killed. It was not long before Ali and his companions killed them. Al-Daraqutni included the two hadiths in his Sunan. And in Al-Tirmidhi on the authority of Abu Saeed and Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said:

If the people of the heavens and the earth were to share in the blood of a believer, God would throw them all into the Fire. He said about it: A strange hadith. Also, if the group knew that if they killed one person, they would not be killed, the enemies would cooperate in killing their enemies by sharing in killing them, and they would achieve the hope of revenge. Observing this rule is more appropriate than observing words, and God knows best. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Al-Zuhri, Habib ibn Abi Thabit, and Ibn Sirin said: Two people should not be killed for one person. We narrated that from Muadh ibn Jabal, Ibn al-Zubayr, and Abdullah. Ibn al-Mundhir said: This is more correct, and there is no argument with those who permit killing a group for one person. What we have mentioned has been proven from Ibn al-Zubayr.

Thirteenth: The Imams narrated on the authority of Abu Shuraih Al-Kaabi, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Behold, you, the people of Khuza'a, have killed this man from Hudhayl, and I am his blood money. So whoever has another man killed after what I have said, his family has two choices: either take the blood money or kill him." The wording of Abu Dawud. Al-Tirmidhi said: A good and authentic hadith. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Shuraih Al-Khuza'i that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If someone is killed, he has the right to kill, pardon, or take blood money. Some scholars have adopted this view, and it is the opinion of Ahmad and Ishaq.

Fourteenth: The scholars differed about taking blood money from a premeditated murderer. A group said: The guardian of the murdered person has the choice: if he wishes, he may exact retribution, or he may take blood money, even if the murderer does not agree. This is narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Ata', and Al-Hasan. It was narrated by Ashab on the authority of Malik, and Al-Layth, Al-Awza'i, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, and Abu Thawr said the same. Their evidence is the hadith of Abu Shuraih and what is similar to it, and it is a text in a matter of disagreement. Also, from the point of view of consideration, he was only obligated to pay blood money without his consent, because it was obligatory upon him to revive himself, and God Almighty said: And do not kill yourselves. And his saying, But if his brother pardons him anything, meaning he leaves him his blood money, in one of the interpretations, and he is satisfied with the blood money, then the blood money should be followed according to what is acceptable, meaning the one who has the blood money should follow according to what is acceptable in demanding the blood money, and the killer should pay it to him with kindness, meaning without procrastination or delaying it from the time, That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy, meaning that those who came before us, God did not impose anything on them except a life for a life, so God favored this nation with blood money if the guardian of the blood money is satisfied with it, as will be explained. Others said: The guardian of the murdered person has nothing but retaliation, and he does not take blood money unless the killer is satisfied. This was narrated by Ibn al-Qasim from Malik, and this is the well-known view from him, and al-Thawri and the Kufians said the same. They cited as evidence the hadith of Anas:

In the story of Al-Rabi' when the woman's front tooth was broken, the Imams narrated that they said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled with retaliation and said: Retaliation is the Book of God, retaliation is the Book of God, and did not give the victim the choice between retaliation

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful and blood money, it was proven that what is required by the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger in the case of premeditated murder is retaliation, and the first is more correct, according to the hadith of Abu Shuraih mentioned above. Al-Rabi' narrated on the authority of Al-Shafi'i, who said: Abu Hanifa bin Samak bin Al-Fadl Al-Shihabi told me, who said: Ibn Abi Tha'lab told me on the authority of Al-Maqburi on the authority of Abin Shuraih Al-Ka'bi that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in the year of the conquest:

"Whoever has someone killed has the better of two options: if he likes, he may take blood money, and if he likes, he may take retaliation." Abu Hanifa said: "I said to Ibn Abi Tha'lab: 'Will you take it, O Abu Al-Harith?' He hit my chest and shouted at me a lot and insulted me and said: 'I am telling you about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and you say: 'You take it!' Yes, I will take it, and that is obligatory upon me and upon whoever hears it. God, the Exalted, the Majestic, chose Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from among the people and guided them through him and by his hand, and chose for them what He chose for him and through his tongue, so it is upon the people to follow him, willingly or unwillingly. There is no way out for a Muslim from that.' He said: 'And he did not keep quiet about me until I wished that he would keep quiet.'"

Fifteenth: The Almighty's saying: But if a brother pardons him anything, then there should be a reasonable follow-up and payment to him with good treatment. Scholars differed in the interpretation of whoever pardons into five interpretations:

One of them: That the killer is meant by it, and pardon includes pardoning, which is the blood guardian, and the brother is the murdered person, and something is the blood that is pardoned and returns to taking the blood money. This is the saying of Ibn Abbas, Qatada, Mujahid, and a group of scholars. Pardon in this saying is according to its chapter, which is leaving. The meaning is: If the murderer is pardoned by the guardian of the murdered person for the blood of his murdered person and drops the retaliation, then he takes the blood money and is followed up with what is good, and the murderer pays him with kindness.

The second: It is the statement of Malik that whoever is meant by it is the guardian and pardoned is made easy, not in the same way as pardoning, and the brother is meant by the killer, and something is the blood money, meaning that if the guardian is inclined to pardon retaliation over taking the blood money, then the killer has the choice between giving it or surrendering himself, sometimes it is made easy and sometimes it is not made easy. And other than Malik says: If the guardians are satisfied with the blood money, then the killer has no choice, rather it is obligatory upon him. This statement was narrated from

Malik, and many of his companions preferred it. Abu Hanifa said: The meaning of pardoned is giving, and pardon in the language is giving, and for this reason God the Almighty said: Take what is easy, meaning what is easy. Abu Al-Aswad Al-Du'ali said:

Forgive me, and you will continue to love me

He, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The beginning of time is the pleasure of God, and its end is the forgiveness of God. That is, God bears witness over His servants. It is as if He said: Whoever is offered something from the blood money, let him accept it. And let him follow it with kindness. Some people said: And let the killer be paid to him with kindness. So God the Almighty urged him to take the money if that is easy on the part of the killer, and He informed that it is a relief and mercy from Him, as He said after mentioning retaliation in Surat al-Ma'idah 5: But whoever gives it in charity, it is an expiation for him. So He urged the mercy of forgiveness and charity, and likewise He urged in what was mentioned in this verse to accept the blood money if the offender offered it by giving the blood money, then He ordered the guardian to follow and ordered the offender to pay it with kindness.

Some people said: These words refer to the specific people about whom the entire verse was revealed and who paid the blood money to each other as a set-off. The meaning of the verse is: Whoever from the two groups has something of that blood money left over from the other, and 'afi' means 'surplus'.

Sufyan bin Hussein bin Shuwa narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, who said:

There was fighting between two tribes of Arabs, and some of them were killed. One of the tribes said: We will not be satisfied until a man is killed for a woman and a man for a woman. So they went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Killing is the same. So they agreed on blood money, and one tribe was preferred over the other. This is what he said: He wrote until he said: But if someone pardons something from his brother, meaning if someone has a preference over his brother, then let him repay it according to what is acceptable. Al-Sha'bi informed about the reason for the revelation of the verse, and Sufyan mentioned pardon here as preference, and this is a meaning that the wording allows.

Fifth interpretation: It is the statement of Ali, may God be pleased with him, and Al-Hassan regarding the difference between the blood money of a man and a woman, a free man and a slave, meaning whoever has that difference should follow what is known, and pardon in this place also means a difference.

Sixteenth: This verse is an exhortation from God the Almighty to demand good from the claimant, and to pay well from the payer. Is that obligatory or recommended? The nominative reading indicates obligation, because the meaning is that he must follow what is good. An-Nahas said: So whoever is pardoned is a condition and the answer is then he must follow, which is nominative by beginning, and the meaning is that he must follow what is good. It is permissible in other than the Qur'an to say then he must follow and perform by making them two sources. Ibn Atiyah said: Ibrahim bin Abi Ubla read it in the accusative. The nominative is a way for obligations, like the Almighty's saying: then keep [them] in an acceptable manner. As for what is recommended, it comes in the accusative, like His saying: then strike the necks.

Seventeenth: The Almighty's saying: This is a concession from your Lord and a mercy, because the people of the Torah were allowed to kill and nothing else, and the people of the Gospel were allowed to pardon and were not allowed retaliation or blood money, so God Almighty made this a concession for this nation, so whoever wanted to kill, whoever wanted to take blood money, and whoever wanted to pardon.

The Almighty's statement, But whoever transgresses after that is a condition and its answer, meaning, if he kills after taking the blood money and the blood money has been paid, the killer of his guardian will have a painful punishment. Al-Hasan said: If a man in the pre-Islamic era killed someone, he would flee to his people. Then his people would come and make peace with the blood money, and the guardian of the one killed would say, I accept the blood money, until the killer feels safe and leaves, then he would kill him and then throw the blood money to them.

Scholars differed about someone who was killed after receiving the blood money. A group of scholars, including Malik and al-Shafi'i, said: He is like someone who was killed in the first place. If the guardian wishes, he may kill him, or if he wishes, he may pardon him, but his punishment will be in the Hereafter. Qatada, Ikrimah, al-Suddi, and others said: His punishment is to be killed for good, and the ruler does not allow the guardian to pardon. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

I do not pardon the one who killed after taking the blood money. Al-Hasan said: His punishment is that he only pays the blood money and his sin remains until the punishment of the Hereafter. Omar bin Abdul Aziz said: His matter is up to the Imam to do with him as he sees fit. In Sunan Al-Darqutni, on the authority of Abu Shuraih Al-Khuzai, he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

"Whoever is afflicted with blood or is insane - insane means limping - has the choice between one of three things. If he wants the fourth, then seize his hand and either take retribution, pardon, or take blood money. If he accepts any of that and then transgresses after that, then he will be in Hell, abiding therein forever."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: Justice in retaliation is prescribed for you, O believers. Your free man for your free man, your male for your male, and your female for your female. Do not transgress and transgress as those before you transgressed and changed the ruling of God concerning them. The reason for that was Qurayzah and Nadir. Banu Nadir had raided Qurayzah in the pre-Islamic era and subdued them. So if a Nadhri killed a Qurazi, he was not killed for it, but ransomed with one hundred wasqs of dates. And if a Qurazi killed a Nadhri, he was killed. And if they ransomed him, they ransomed him with two hundred wasqs of dates, double the blood money of Qurayzah. So God commanded justice in retaliation, and not to follow the path of the corrupt and distorters who contradict God's rulings concerning them out of disbelief and transgression. God Almighty said: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free man for the free man, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." And he mentioned in the reason for its revelation what Imam Abu Muhammad bin Abi Hatim narrated: Abu Zur'ah told us, he told us Yahya bin Abdullah bin Bakir narrated to me Abdullah bin Lahi'ah narrated to me Ata bin Dinar narrated to me from Saeed bin Jubair regarding the statement of God the Almighty: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution for those killed, meaning if it was intentional, a free man for a free man. This is because two tribes of Arabs fought in the pre-Islamic period shortly before Islam, and there was killing and wounding between them until they killed slaves and women. None of them took revenge from the other until they converted to Islam. One of the two tribes would attack the other in terms of number and wealth, so they swore that they would not be satisfied until a slave from among us killed a free man from among them, and a woman from among us killed a man from among them. So, The free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female was revealed about them, abrogated by a life for a life. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement: And the female for the female, is that they did not kill a man for a woman, but they killed a man for a man and a woman for a woman. So God revealed: A life for a life, an eye for an eye, and He made the free men and women equal in retribution for intentional killing, in a life and less than a life. He made Slaves are equal among themselves in terms of intent in the soul and in what is less than the soul, their men and women, and it was also narrated on the authority of Abu Malik that it was abrogated by his saying, a soul for a soul.

Question Abu Hanifa held that a free man is killed for a slave, due to the generality of the verse of Al-Ma'idah. Al-Thawri, Ibn Abi Laila, and Dawud held this view, and it was narrated on the authority of Ali, Ibn Mas'ud, Sa'id ibn Al-Musayyab, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Qatadah, and Al-Hakam. Al-Bukhari, Ali ibn Al-Madini, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, and Al-Thawri said in a narration on his authority: The master is killed for his slave, due to the generality of the hadith of Al-Hasan on the authority of Samurah: Whoever kills his slave, we will kill him, and whoever mutilates his slave, we will mutilate him, and whoever castrates him, we will castrate him. The

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful majority disagreed with them and said: A free man is not killed for a slave, because a slave is a commodity, and if he is killed by mistake, no blood money is due for him, but rather his value is due for him, and because he is not to be killed for his limb, so it is more appropriate for a soul. The majority held that a Muslim is not to be killed for a disbeliever, due to what was proven in Al-Bukhari on the authority of Ali, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A Muslim is not to be killed for a disbeliever. There is no authentic hadith or interpretation that contradicts this. As for Abu Hanifa, he held that he is to be killed for him, due to the generality of the verse of Al-Ma'idah.

Question Al-Hasan and Ata' said: A man is not killed for killing a woman because of this verse. The majority disagreed with them because of the verse of Al-Ma'idah and because of the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him: The blood of Muslims is equal. Al-Layth said: If a man kills his wife, he is not killed for her in particular.

Question The doctrine of the four imams and the majority is that a group is killed for one person. Omar said about a boy who was killed by seven people, and he killed them. He said: If the people of Sana'a conspired against him, I would have killed them. No one among the companions was known to have opposed him in his time. This is like consensus. A narration was reported from Imam Ahmad: A group is not killed for one person, and no one is killed for a soul except one soul. Ibn al-Mundhir reported it from Muadh, Ibn al-Zubayr, Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan, al-Zuhri, Ibn Sirin, and Habib ibn Abi Thabit. Then Ibn al-Mundhir said: This is more correct, and there is no argument for those who permit killing a group. What we mentioned has been proven from Ibn al-Zubayr. If the companions differ, then the way to do it is to look into it. His saying: But if someone is pardoned by his brother for anything, then there should be a just follow-up and payment to him with kindness. Pardon means accepting the blood money in the case of premeditated murder. This was also reported from Abu al-Aaliyah, Abu al-Sha'tha', Mujahid, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, Ata', al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. Ad-Dahhak said from Ibn Abbas: But if someone is pardoned by his brother for anything, meaning: "So ... He left him something from his brother, meaning taking the blood money after the blood money was due, and that is forgiveness. "Then follow up with what is acceptable," he says: So the claimant must follow up with what is acceptable if he accepts the blood money, and pay it to him with kindness, meaning from the killer without harm or against you, meaning defense. Al-Hakim narrated from the hadith of Sufyan on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And pay the claim with kindness. And this is what Saeed bin Jubair, Abu al-Sha'tha' Jabir bin Zaid, al-Hasan, Qatadah, Ata' al-Khurasani, al-Rabi' bin Anas, al-Suddi, and Muqatil bin Hayyan said.

Question Malik, may God have mercy on him, said in the narration of Ibn al-Qasim from him, which is the well-known opinion, and Abu Hanifa and his companions, and al-Shafi'i and Ahmad in one of his two opinions: The blood money guardian does not have the right to pardon the blood money except with the consent of the killer. The rest said: He has the right to pardon it even if he does not consent.

Question A group of the Salaf went to the fact that women do not have a pardon, including Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Al-Zuhri, Ibn Shubramah, Al-Layth, and Al-Awza'i, and the rest disagreed with them. His statement: That is a concession from your Lord and a mercy, God Almighty says: The taking of blood money for premeditated murder was only prescribed for you as a concession from God upon you and a mercy to you from what was inevitable for the nations before you of killing or pardon, as Saeed bin Mansour said: Sufyan told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, Mujahid told me on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Retaliation was prescribed for the Children of Israel for murder, but pardon was not prescribed for them, so God said to this nation: "Retaliation is prescribed for you for murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But whoever pardons something from his brother," so pardon is to accept the blood money for premeditated murder. It was narrated by more than one person on the authority of Amr, and Ibn Hibban included it in his Sahih on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, and a group narrated it on the authority of Mujahid on the authority of Ibn Abbas in a similar manner, and Qatadah said: That is a concession from your Lord, may God have mercy on this nation and feed them blood money, and it was not permissible for anyone before them, so the people of The Torah is nothing but retaliation and forgiveness, and there is no blood money between them. The people of the Gospel were only forgiveness, which they were commanded to do, and it was made for this nation retaliation, forgiveness, and blood money. And thus it was narrated from Saeed bin Jubair, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, something similar to this. And His statement, But whoever transgresses after that, for him is a painful punishment. God Almighty says: Whoever kills after taking or accepting the blood money, for him is a painful and severe punishment from God. And thus it was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Al-Suddi and Muqatil bin Hayyan that he is the one who is killed after taking the blood money, as Muhammad bin Ishaq said from Al-Harith bin Fadil, from Sufyan bin Abi Al-Awja', from Abu Shuraih Al-Khuza'i, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever is afflicted by murder or madness, he has a choice of one of three things: either he takes retaliation, or he pardons, or he takes the blood money. If he wants the fourth, then seize him, and whoever transgresses after that, for him is the fire of Hell, abiding therein." Narrated by Ahmad. And Saeed bin Abi Arouba said from Qatadah from Al-Hasan from Samurah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I do not pardon a man who was killed after taking the blood money, meaning I do not accept the blood money from him, rather I kill him.

And His statement, And there is life for you in retaliation, God Almighty says: And in the law of retaliation for you, which is killing the killer, there is great wisdom, which is the preservation and protection of lives, because if the killer knows that he will be killed, he refrains from doing so, so there is life for souls. And in the previous books: Killing is the most effective way to prevent killing, so this phrase came in the Qur'an more eloquent, expressive and concise: And there is life for you in retaliation, Abu Al-Aaliyah said: God made retaliation life, so how many a man wants to kill but is prevented for fear of being killed. And likewise it was narrated from Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubayr, Abu Malik, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Al-Rabi bin Anas and Muqatil bin Hayyan: O you of understanding, that you may become righteous, meaning: O you of intellects, understanding and forbearance, that you may be deterred and abandon the prohibitions and sins of God, and righteousness is a comprehensive name for doing good deeds and abandoning evil deeds.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 178- Written means imposed and established, and from it is the saying of Omar bin Abi Raba:

Killing and fighting are written on us and on the prostitutes who drag their tails

This is a notification from God the Almighty to His servants that He has prescribed this for them. It was said that wrote here refers to what the pen wrote in the Preserved Tablet. Retribution originally means cutting the trace: i.e. following it. From this comes the word qass because he follows traces, and cutting hair is following its traces. So it is as if the killer takes a path of murder, tracing his traces in it. From this comes the saying of God the Almighty: So they returned upon their traces, tracing them back. It was said that retaliation is derived from qass which means cutting. It is said that I cut what is between them: i.e. I cut it off. This verse was used as evidence by those who say that a free man is not killed for a slave, and they are the majority. Abu Hanifa and his companions, al-Thawri, Ibn Abi Layla, and Dawud held that he is killed for it. Al-Qurtubi said: This was narrated from Ali and Ibn Masoud. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Qatadah and Al-Hakam bin Utaybah said the same. They used as evidence the words of God the Almighty: And We ordained for them therein a life for a life. The first scholars responded to this evidence by saying that the words of God the Almighty: The free for the free, and the slave for the slave explain the words of God the Almighty: A life for a life. They also said that His words: And We ordained for them therein indicate that this is a narration of what God legislated for the Children of Israel in the Torah. Among the things that the others used as evidence is the words of the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him): The blood of Muslims is equal. The response to this is that it is general and the verse is clear. However, it is said that the words of God the Almighty: The free for the free, and the slave for the slave only indicate in their explicit meaning that the free is killed for the free, and the slave is killed for the slave. There is nothing in it that indicates that the free is not killed for the slave except by considering the implication. Whoever takes such an implication must say it here, and whoever does not take such an implication is not obligated to say it here. The discussion of this is detailed in the science of Usul. This verse was used as evidence by those who say that a Muslim is killed for a disbeliever, and they are the Kufians and Thawri, because a free man includes a disbeliever as he includes a Muslim, and likewise a slave and a female include a disbeliever as they include a Muslim. They also used as evidence the words of God the Almighty: A life for a life, because a life applies to a disbelieving soul as it applies to a Muslim soul. The majority of scholars are of the view that a Muslim is not killed for a disbeliever, and they used as evidence what was reported in the Sunnah from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that a Muslim is not killed for a disbeliever, and this explains what is intended in the two verses, and discussing this would take a long time. This verse was used as evidence by those who say that a male is not killed for a female, and they decided to prove that with something similar to what was mentioned previously, unless the woman's guardians hand over the excess blood money to the man's blood money. Malik, al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, al-Thawri, and Abu Thawr said the same. The majority of scholars are of the view that a man is killed for a woman and there is no increase, and this is the truth. We have discussed this in detail in the explanation of al-Muntaqa, so please refer to it. His statement: But if a man is pardoned by his brother here refers to the killer. The intended meaning of the murdered brother or guardian, and the thing is the blood, and the meaning is: if the killer or the offender is pardoned by the victim or the guardian for blood that he took from him on the condition that he takes from him something from the blood money or land, then the victim should follow the guardian of the one who owes the blood money in what he takes from him from that, following in a good manner, and the offender should pay what he is obligated to of the blood money or compensation to the victim, or to the guardian, performing it with kindness. It was said: what is meant by the expression of the guardian and the brother is the killer, and the thing is the blood money, and the meaning is that if the guardian tends to pardon the retaliation in exchange for the blood money, then the killer has the choice between giving it or surrendering himself for retaliation, as narrated from Malik that the choice is established for the killer in that, and those other than him went to that he does not have the choice, but if the guardians are satisfied with the blood money, then there is no good for the killer, but he must hand it over. It was said: the meaning of pardoned is given: that is, whoever is given something from the blood money, then he should accept and follow in a good manner. It was said: what is meant by that is whoever from the two groups has something of the blood money over the other, then he is pardoned.

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

Meaning: favor, and in all cases, the indefiniteness of something is for the sake of belittling, so it includes pardoning a small amount of blood money, and pardon issued by one of the heirs. His saying: Then follow is raised by an omitted verb, meaning let there be following from it, or as a predicate of a deleted subject: meaning the matter is following, and likewise his saying: And pay him with kindness and his saying: That is a mitigation is a reference to pardon and blood money: meaning that God has prescribed for this nation pardon without compensation or compensation, and He did not make things difficult for them as He made things difficult for the Jews, for He made retaliation obligatory for them, and no pardon, and as He made things difficult for the Christians, for He made pardon and no blood money obligatory for them. His saying: But whoever transgresses after that means after the mitigation, such as taking the blood money then killing the killer, or pardoning then retaliating. The scholars differed regarding the one who kills the killer after taking the blood money. A group of them, including Malik and Al-Shafi'i, said: He is like the one who killed initially, if the guardian wishes he kills him and if he wishes he pardons him. Qatada, Ikrimah, Al-Suddi and others said: His punishment is to be killed absolutely, and the ruler or guardian will not be able to pardon him. Omar bin Abdul Aziz said: His matter is up to the Imam to do with him as he sees fit.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

178. The Almighty said: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is retaliation. Al-Sha'bi, Al-Kalbi, and Qatada said: This verse was revealed about two tribes of Arabs who fought in the pre-Islamic period shortly before Islam, and there were deaths and injuries between them that none of them took from the other until Islam came. Muqatil bin Hayyan said: It was between Banu Qurayzah and Banu Nadir, and Saeed bin Jubayr said: It was between Aws and Khazraj, and they all said that one of the two tribes had more power and honor than the other, and they used to marry their women without dowries, so they swore: We will kill for the slave of us the free man of them, and for the woman of us the man of them, and for the man of us the two men of them, and they made their injuries double the injuries of those, so they brought their matter to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so God Almighty revealed this verse and ordered equality, so they agreed and converted to Islam.

His saying, Retaliation is prescribed for you, meaning that retribution is imposed on you for those killed. Retaliation is equality and similarity in injuries and blood money. Its origin is from qass al-tashir which means to follow the trace, so the one to whom it is done follows what was done to him and does the same.

Then he explained the similarity and said: A free man for a free man, a slave for a slave, and a female for a female. The general ruling is that if the blood money is equal in the case of free Muslims or slaves among Muslims, or free people among those with whom a treaty has been signed or slaves among them, then the male is killed if he kills with the male and the female, and the female is killed if she kills with the female and the male. A believer is not killed for an unbeliever, nor a free man for a slave, nor a father for a child, nor a Muslim for a dhimmi. A dhimmi is killed for a Muslim, a slave for a free man, and a child for a parent. This is the opinion of most of the scholars from among the Companions and those who came after them.

Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us, Al-Rabi bin Sulaiman told us, Al-Shafi'i told us, Sufyan bin Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abu Juhayfah, who said: "I asked Ali, may God be pleased with him, 'Do you have anything from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, other than the Qur'an?' He said, 'No, by Him who created the seed and created the soul, unless God gives a servant understanding of the Qur'an and what is in this document.' I said, 'What is in this document?' He said, 'The mind, the release of the captive, and a believer should not be killed for the sake of an unbeliever.'"

It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The prescribed punishments are not carried out in mosques, and a child is not to be killed for his father. Al-Sha'bi, Al-Nakha'i, and the people of opinion held that a Muslim is to be killed for a dhimmi, and that a free man is to be killed for a slave. The hadith is an argument for those who do not require retaliation for a Muslim for killing a dhimmi, and that a group is to be killed for one person.

((It was narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab that Omar bin Al-Khattab killed seven or five people because of a man they killed by treachery, and he said, If the people of Sana'a conspired against him, he would have killed them all.)) Retaliation applies to limbs as it applies to souls, except in one case, which is that a healthy, normal person is killed by a chronically ill person. As for limbs, if a paralyzed or missing hand is cut off with a finger, a healthy, complete hand is not cut off with it. The proponents of the opinion held that retribution for limbs only applies between two free men or women, and it does not apply between a male and a female, nor between slaves, nor between a free man and a slave. According to others, a limb in retribution is analogous to a soul.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Abdullah bin Munir told us that he heard Abdullah bin Bakr Al-Sahmi tell us, Hamid told us, "On the authority of Anas bin Al-Nadr, that Al-Rabi', his aunt, broke the front tooth of a slave girl, so they asked her for forgiveness, but they refused. So they offered compensation, but they refused. Then they came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, but they refused except for retaliation. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered retaliation. Anas bin Al-Nadr said: O Messenger of God, will Al-Rabi's front tooth be broken? No, by Him who sent you with the truth, her front tooth will not be broken. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Anas, the Book of God is retaliation. So the people were satisfied and forgave him. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There are among God's servants those who, if they swear by God, He will fulfill their oath."

The Almighty said: But if his brother pardons him anything, meaning he leaves him and forgives him what is required of him, which is retaliation for premeditated murder, and is satisfied with the blood money. This is the opinion of most of the commentators. They said: Pardon is that the blood money is accepted for premeditated murder. His statement from his brother means from the blood of his brother, and by the brother he meant the one who was killed. The two metaphors in his statement to him and from his brother refer to who, which is the murderer. His statement something is evidence that if some of the guardians pardon, the retaliation is dropped because some of the blood money has been nullified.

God the Almighty said: Then follow up with kindness meaning that the one seeking the blood money must follow up with kindness and not demand more than his right. And pay it to him with goodness meaning that the one who is required to pay the blood money must do so with kindness without delay. He ordered each of them to do good in what he has and what he owes. The view of most scholars from the Companions and Followers is that if the blood money guardian forgives retaliation for blood money, then he may take the blood money even if the killer does not agree to it. Some people said: He is not entitled to blood money except with the killer's consent, and this is the view of Al-Hasan, Al-Nakha'i and the people of opinion. The evidence for the first view is what Abdul-Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib told us. Abdul-Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us. Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us. Al-Rabi' told us. Al-Shafi'i told us. Muhammad bin Ismail bin Abi Fadeek told us on the authority of Abu Dhi'b on the authority of Saeed bin Abi Saeed Al-Maqburi on the authority of Abu Shuraih Al-Ka'bi that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Then you, O Khuza'ah, have killed this slain man from Hudhayl, and by God, I am his blood money. So whoever kills another man after him, his family has two choices: if they like, they may kill him, and if they like, they may take the blood money."

The Almighty says: That is a concession from your Lord and a mercy. That is, what you mentioned about pardoning retaliation and taking blood money is a concession and mercy from your Lord. This is because retaliation for a soul and wounds was obligatory in the Torah for the Jews, and they were not allowed to take blood money. In the law of the Christians, blood money was required, and they were not allowed to take retaliation. So God Almighty gave this nation the choice between retaliation and pardoning the blood money, as a concession and mercy from Him.

But whoever transgresses after that and kills the offender after the pardon and acceptance of the blood money will have a painful punishment which is that he will be killed in retaliation. Ibn Jurayj said: He must be killed so that he will not accept the pardon. And in the verse there is evidence that the killer does not become an unbeliever by killing, because God Almighty addressed him after the killing with the address of faith and said: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is retaliation and He said at the end of the verse: But if any of his brother pardons him and he meant by that the brotherhood of faith, so He did not sever the brotherhood between them by killing.

178- "O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution for those murdered: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." In the pre-Islamic era, there was a blood feud between two tribes of the Arabs, and one of them had a long history with the other, so they swore, We will kill the free among you for the slave for the female. When Islam came, they went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, for judgment, and it was revealed, and he ordered them to take revenge. It does not indicate that a free man should not be killed for a slave, nor a male for a female, just as it does not indicate the opposite, because the concept, where the purpose of the specification did not appear, was to specify the ruling, and we have explained what the purpose was. Rather, Malik and Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with them, forbade killing a free man for a slave, whether he was his slave or someone else's slave, because of what was narrated from Ali, may God be pleased with him: A man killed his slave, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, flogged him and banished him for a year and did not retaliate for him. It was narrated that he said: It is from the Sunnah that a Muslim should not be killed for a person with a covenant, nor a free man for a slave. And because Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them, did not kill a free man for a slave among the companions without any objection. And by analogy to the parties, and whoever accepts its evidence, then he has no claim to abrogation by the saying of God the Almighty: A life for a life because it is a narration of what is in the Torah, so it does not abrogate what is in the Qur'an. The Hanafis used it as evidence that the requirement of premeditated murder is retaliation alone, and this is weak because what is obligatory based on choice is true of it as being obligatory and written, and therefore it was said that choosing between what is obligatory and something else is not abrogation of its obligation. And it was read wrote in the active form and retaliation in the accusative, and so is every verb that came in the Qur'an. So whoever is pardoned by his brother anything meaning any of the pardon, because pardon is obligatory. Its benefit is to indicate that some of the pardon is like complete pardon in dropping the retaliation. And it was said that pardon means left, and something is the object, and this is weak because it was not proven that pardoning something means leaving it, but rather he pardoned it. And the word forgave is transitive to the offender and to the sin. God the Almighty said, God has forgiven you and said, God has forgiven what is past. So if it is transitive to the sin, it is transitive to the offender with the letter lam and it is understood from the verse as if it was said: So whoever has been forgiven for his crime on behalf of his brother, meaning the blood money avenger. And he mentioned him with the expression of brotherhood established between them in terms of nationality and Islam to show compassion and kindness to him. Then follow up with kindness and pay it to him with goodness. That is, let there be following, or the matter is following. What is meant by it is the command of the forgiver to ask for the blood money with kindness and not be violent, and the forgiven to pay it with kindness: that is, not to delay or reduce. And in it is evidence that blood money is one of the requirements of intention, otherwise the command to pay it would not have been made conditional on absolute forgiveness. Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, has two opinions on the issue. That meaning the ruling mentioned in forgiveness and blood money. A mitigation from your Lord and a mercy because of what is in it of facilitation and benefit. It was said that retaliation was prescribed for the Jews alone, and forgiveness was prescribed for the Christians in general. This nation was given the choice between them and the blood money to make things easier for them and to determine the ruling according to their ranks. But whoever transgresses after that meaning kills after the pardon and taking the blood money, will have a painful punishment in the Hereafter. It was said that in this world he will inevitably be killed, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him, I will not pardon anyone who kills after taking the blood money.

O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution in the case of those murdered - the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But if any remission is made by his brother, there should be a just pursuit and payment to him with good conduct. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy. But whoever transgresses after that will have a severe punishment. Painful

And there is life for you in retaliation, O people of understanding, that you may become righteous.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And there is life for you in retaliation meaning great permanence O you who possess understanding those with intellects, because if the murderer knows that he will be killed, he will be deterred and revive himself, and whoever he wants to kill, it is prescribed that you may fear killing out of fear of retaliation.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: And there is life for you in retaliation, O you who possess understanding, and for you, O you who possess understanding, in what has been imposed upon you and made obligatory for some of you over others, of retaliation for lives, wounds and head wounds, what prevented some of you from killing others, and some of you from stopping others, so you were kept alive by that, so there was life for you in My judgment between you by that. The people of interpretation differed about the meaning of that. Some of them said something similar to what we have said about it. Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin 'Amr told me, he said, Abu 'Asim told us, he said, 'Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His saying: And there is life for you in retaliation, O you who possess understanding, he said: A punishment, the end of it.

Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Ibn Abi Zaydah told us, on the authority of Warqa', on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, he said: A punishment, it is more like this. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada: And there is life for you in retaliation, God made this retaliation a life, a punishment, and a lesson for the foolish and ignorant among the people. How many a man has contemplated a disaster, but had it not been for the fear of retaliation, he would have committed it, but God prevented some from others by retaliation? God has never commanded anything except that it is a matter of goodness in this world and the hereafter, and God has never forbidden anything except that it is a matter of corruption in this world and religion, and God knows best what is good for His creation. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, on the authority of Abdul-Razzaq, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, O you of understanding, he said: God has made life in retaliation, if the wrongdoer and transgressor remembers it, he refrains from killing. I was told by Ammar bin Al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Jaafar narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, the verse, he says: God has made this retaliation a life and a lesson for you. How many a man has been struck by a calamity, but the fear of retaliation prevented him from falling into it! Indeed, God has protected some of His servants from others by means of retaliation. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, he said: A punishment that is more severe. Ibn Jurayj said: Life, protection.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, he said: Life, remainder. If this one fears that he will be killed because of me, he should refrain from me, perhaps he is an enemy of mine who wants to kill me, so he remembers that he will be killed in retaliation, and he fears that he will be killed because of me, so he refrains from retaliation that he feared he would be killed, otherwise he would kill this one. I was told by Ya'la ibn Ubayd, he said, Ismail told us, on the authority of Abu Salih, about His statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, he said: Permanence. Others said: The meaning of that is: And there is permanence for you in retaliation from the killer, because no one is killed for the one killed except his killer according to the judgment of God. And in the pre-Islamic era, they used to kill for the female, the male, and for the free slave. Mention of those who said that: Musa ibn Harun told me, he said, Amr ibn Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And there is life for you in retaliation, he said: Permanence, no one is killed except the killer for his crime. As for the interpretation of His statement: O you of understanding, it is: O you of intellects. Al-Albab is the plural of Al-Lub, and Al-Lub is the mind. God Almighty specifically addressed people of reason, because they are the ones who understand God's commands and prohibitions, and ponder His signs and proofs, unlike others. Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of His statement, Perhaps you will fear God, is that you will fear retaliation, so you will refrain from killing, as Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement, Perhaps you will fear God, he said: Perhaps you will fear killing him, so you will be killed because of him.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: And there is life for you in retaliation, O people of understanding, that you may become righteous.

There are four issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And there is life for you in retaliation. This is eloquent and concise speech, as mentioned above. Its meaning is: Do not kill one another. It was narrated by Sufyan on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of Abu Malik. The meaning is that when retaliation is carried out and the ruling is fulfilled, whoever wants to kill another will be deterred, fearing that retaliation will be taken from him, and thus they will both live. When the Arabs killed another man, their tribes would become enraged and fight each other, and this would lead to the killing of a large number. When God legislated retaliation, everyone was content with it and stopped fighting, and in that there was life for them.

Second: The imams of fatwa agreed that it is not permissible for anyone to take revenge on someone for his right without the authority, and people do not have the right to take revenge on each other. Rather, that is for the authority or whoever the authority has appointed for that purpose. For this reason, God made the authority so that people can restrain one another.

Third: The scholars agreed that the ruler must take revenge on himself if he transgresses against one of his subjects, since he is one of them, and he only has the privilege of looking after them, like the guardian and the agent, and that does not prevent retaliation, and there is no difference between them and the common people in the rulings of God Almighty, because He, the Most High, said: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder. It was proven from Abu Bakr al-Siddiq, may God be pleased with him, that he said to a man who complained to him that a worker had cut off his hand: If you are truthful, I will take revenge on him for you. Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said: While the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was distributing something, a man leaned over him, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stabbed him with a palm branch that he had with him, so the man cried out, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Come and take revenge. He said: Rather, I have pardoned, O Messenger of God. Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi narrated on the authority of Abu Firas, who said:

Omar bin Al-Khattab may God be pleased with him gave a sermon and said: Whoever is wronged by his ruler, let him report it to me so that I may take revenge on him. Amr bin Al-Aas stood up and said: O Commander of the Faithful, if one of us disciplines one of his subjects, will you take revenge on him? He said: How can I not take revenge on him when I saw the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) take revenge on himself?! Abu Dawud Al-Sijistani narrated that he said: Omar bin Al-Khattab gave a sermon to us and said: I did not send my workers to beat your bodies or take your money, so whoever does that to him, let him report it to me so that I may take revenge on him. He mentioned the hadith with both its chains of transmission.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Perhaps you will become righteous. Its meaning has been presented above. What is meant is that you will become righteous by being killed and thus be safe from retaliation. Then this will be a call for various types of righteousness in other matters, for God rewards obedience for obedience. Abu al-Jawza' Aws ibn

Abdullah al-Rab'i read: And for you in the stories is life. An-Nahhas said: Abu al-Jawza's reading is anomalous. Another said: It is possible that it is a source like retaliation. It was said: By the stories he meant the Qur'an, meaning that for you in the Book of God in which retaliation was prescribed is life, meaning salvation.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: Justice in retaliation is prescribed for you, O believers. Your free man for your free man, your male for your male, and your female for your female. Do not transgress and transgress as those before you transgressed and changed the ruling of God concerning them. The reason for that was Qurayzah and Nadir. Banu Nadir had raided Qurayzah in the pre-Islamic era and subdued them. So if a Nadhri killed a Qurazi, he was not killed for it, but ransomed with one hundred wasqs of dates. And if a Qurazi killed a Nadhri, he was killed. And if they ransomed him, they ransomed him with two hundred wasqs of dates, double the blood money of Qurayzah. So God commanded justice in retaliation, and not to follow the path of the corrupt and distorters who contradict God's rulings concerning them out of disbelief and transgression. God Almighty said: "Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder: the free man for the free man, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female." And he mentioned in the reason for its revelation what Imam Abu Muhammad bin Abi Hatim narrated: Abu Zur'ah told us, he told us Yahya bin Abdullah bin Bakir narrated to me Abdullah bin Lahi'ah narrated to me Ata bin Dinar narrated to me from Saeed bin Jubair regarding the statement of God the Almighty: O you who have believed, prescribed for you is legal retribution for those killed, meaning if it was intentional, a free man for a free man. This is because two tribes of Arabs fought in the pre-Islamic period shortly before Islam, and there was killing and wounding between them until they killed slaves and women. None of them took revenge from the other until they converted to Islam. One of the two tribes would attack the other in terms of number and wealth, so they swore that they would not be satisfied until a slave from among us killed a free man from among them, and a woman from among us killed a man from among them. So, The free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female was revealed about them, abrogated by a life for a life. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement: And the female for the female, is that they did not kill a man for a woman, but they killed a man for a man and a woman for a woman. So God revealed: A life for a life, an eye for an eye, and He made the free men and women equal in retribution for intentional killing, in a life and less than a life. He made Slaves are equal among themselves in terms of intent in the soul and in what is less than the soul, their men and women, and it was also narrated on the authority of Abu Malik that it was abrogated by his saying, a soul for a soul.

Question Abu Hanifa held that a free man is killed for a slave, due to the generality of the verse of Al-Ma'idah. Al-Thawri, Ibn Abi Laila, and Dawud held this view, and it was narrated on the authority of Ali, Ibn Mas'ud, Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, Qatadah, and Al-Hakam. Al-Bukhari, Ali ibn al-Madini, Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, and Al-Thawri said in a narration on his authority: The master is killed for his slave, due to the generality of the hadith of Al-Hasan on the authority of Samurah: Whoever kills his slave, we will kill him, and whoever mutilates his slave, we will mutilate him, and whoever castrates him, we will castrate him. The majority disagreed with them and said: A free man is not killed for a slave, because a slave is a commodity, and if he is killed by mistake, no blood money is due for him, but rather his value is due for him, and because he is not to be killed for his limb, so it is more appropriate for a soul. The majority held that a Muslim is not to be killed for a disbeliever, due to what was proven in Al-Bukhari on the authority of Ali, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A Muslim is not to be killed for a disbeliever. There is no authentic hadith or interpretation that contradicts this. As for Abu Hanifa, he held that he is to be killed for him, due to the generality of the verse of Al-Ma'idah.

Question Al-Hasan and Ata' said: A man is not killed for killing a woman because of this verse. The majority disagreed with them because of the verse of Al-Ma'idah and because of the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him: The blood of Muslims is equal. Al-Layth said: If a man kills his wife, he is not killed for her in particular.

Question The doctrine of the four imams and the majority is that a group is killed for one person. Omar said about a boy who was killed by seven people, and he killed them. He said: If the people of Sana'a conspired against him, I would have killed them. No one among the companions was known to have opposed him in his time. This is like consensus. A narration was reported from Imam Ahmad: A group is not killed for one person, and no one is killed for a soul except one soul. Ibn al-Mundhir reported it from Muadh, Ibn al-Zubayr, Abd al-Malik ibn Marwan, al-Zuhri, Ibn Sirin, and Habib ibn Abi Thabit. Then Ibn al-Mundhir said: This is more correct, and there is no argument for those who permit killing a group. What we mentioned has been proven from Ibn al-Zubayr. If the companions differ, then the way to do it is to look into it. His saying: But if someone is pardoned by his brother for anything, then there should be a just follow-up and payment to him with kindness. Pardon means accepting the blood money in the case of premeditated murder. This was also reported from Abu al-Aaliyah, Abu al-Sha'tha', Mujahid, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, Ata', al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. Ad-Dahhak said from Ibn Abbas: But if someone is pardoned by his brother for anything, meaning: "So ... He left him something from his brother, meaning taking the blood money after the blood money was due, and that is forgiveness. "Then follow up with what is acceptable," he says: So the claimant must follow up with what is acceptable if he accepts the blood money, and pay it to him with kindness, meaning from the killer without harm or against you, meaning defense. Al-Hakim narrated from the hadith of Sufyan on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And pay the claim with kindness. And this is what Saeed bin Jubair, Abu al-Sha'tha' Jabir bin Zaid, al-Hasan, Qatadah, Ata' al-Khurasani, al-Rabi' bin Anas, al-Suddi, and Muqatil bin Hayyan said.

Question Malik, may God have mercy on him, said in the narration of Ibn al-Qasim from him, which is the well-known opinion, and Abu Hanifa and his companions, and al-Shafi'i and Ahmad in one of his two opinions: The blood money guardian does not have the right to pardon the blood money except with the consent of the killer. The rest said: He has the right to pardon it even if he does not consent.

Question A group of the Salaf went to the fact that women do not have a pardon, including Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Al-Zuhri, Ibn Shubramah, Al-Layth, and Al-Awza'i, and the rest disagreed with them. His statement: That is a concession from your Lord and a mercy, God Almighty says: The taking of blood money for premeditated murder was only prescribed for you as a concession from God upon you and a mercy to you from what was inevitable for the nations before you of killing or pardon, as Saeed bin Mansour said: Sufyan told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, Mujahid told me on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Retaliation was prescribed for the Children of Israel for murder, but pardon was not prescribed for them, so God said to this nation: "Retaliation is prescribed for you for murder: the free for the free, the slave for the slave, the female for the female. But whoever pardons something from his brother," so pardon is to accept the blood money for premeditated murder. It was narrated by more than one person on the authority of Amr, and Ibn Hibban included it in his Sahih on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, and a group narrated it on the authority of Mujahid on the authority of Ibn Abbas in a similar manner, and Qatadah said: That is a concession from your Lord, may God have mercy on this nation and feed them blood money, and it was not permissible for anyone before them, so the people of The Torah is nothing but retaliation and forgiveness, and there is no blood money between them. The people of the Gospel were only forgiveness, which they were commanded to do, and it was made for this nation retaliation, forgiveness, and blood money. And thus it was narrated from Saeed bin Jubair, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas, something similar to this. And His statement, But whoever transgresses after that, for him is a painful punishment. God Almighty says: Whoever kills after taking or accepting the blood money, for him is a painful and severe punishment from God. And thus it was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Al-Suddi and Muqatil bin Hayyan that he is the one who is killed after taking the blood money, as Muhammad bin Ishaq said from Al-Harith bin Fadil, from Sufyan bin Abi Al-Awja', from Abu Shuraih Al-Khuza'i, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever is afflicted by murder or madness, he has a choice of one of three things: either he takes retaliation, or he pardons, or he takes the blood money. If he wants the fourth, then seize him, and whoever transgresses after that, for him is the fire of Hell, abiding therein." Narrated by Ahmad. And Saeed bin Abi Arouba said from Qatadah from

And there is life for you in retaliation, O people of understanding, that you may become righteous.

Al-Hasan from Samurah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I do not pardon a man who was killed after taking the blood money, meaning I do not accept the blood money from him, rather I kill him.

And His statement, And there is life for you in retaliation, God Almighty says: And in the law of retaliation for you, which is killing the killer, there is great wisdom, which is the preservation and protection of lives, because if the killer knows that he will be killed, he refrains from doing so, so there is life for souls. And in the previous books: Killing is the most effective way to prevent killing, so this phrase came in the Qur'an more eloquent, expressive and concise: And there is life for you in retaliation, Abu Al-Aaliyah said: God made retaliation life, so how many a man wants to kill but is prevented for fear of being killed. And likewise it was narrated from Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubayr, Abu Malik, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Al-Rabi bin Anas and Muqatil bin Hayyan: O you of understanding, that you may become righteous, meaning: O you of intellects, understanding and forbearance, that you may be deterred and abandon the prohibitions and sins of God, and righteousness is a comprehensive name for doing good deeds and abandoning evil deeds.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying: 179- And in retaliation there is life for you meaning, in this ruling that God has legislated for you, there is life for you, because if a man knows that he will be killed in retaliation if he kills another, he will refrain from killing and will be deterred from rushing to it and falling into it, so that it is like life for human souls. This is a type of eloquence that is eloquent and a high type of rhetoric, because He made retaliation, which is death, a life in consideration of what it leads to in terms of people being deterred from killing each other, preserving their souls and sustaining their lives, and He made this address directed to those with understanding, because they are the ones who consider the consequences and avoid what causes long-term harm. As for the one who is afflicted with foolishness, rashness and frivolity, he does not consider his consequences when his anger is boiling and his rashness is boiling, nor does he think about a future matter, as one of their young men said:

I will wash away my shame with the sword, bringing upon me the judgment of God that it was to bring.

Then, the Almighty explained this ruling that He legislated for His servants by saying: That you may become righteous, meaning that you may avoid killing by preserving retaliation, and that will be a reason for righteousness. Abu al-Juza' read: And for you in retaliation is life. It was said that by stories he meant the Qur'an: meaning for you in the Book of God in which retaliation was legislated is life, meaning salvation. It was also said that he meant the life of hearts. It was also said that it is a source meaning retaliation, and all of them are weak, and reading it with it is objectionable.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin

Jubair who said: Two tribes of Arabs fought in the pre-Islamic era shortly before Islam, and there was killing and wounding between them until they killed slaves and women, and they did not take anything from each other until they converted to Islam. One of the two tribes was attacking the other in terms of numbers and money, so they swore that they would not be satisfied until a free man among them was killed for a slave, and a man among them was killed for a woman. Then this verse was revealed. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Al-Sha'bi. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: They did not kill a man for a woman, but they killed a man for a man and a woman for a woman. Then God revealed a life for a life and made the free men and women equal in retaliation for intentional killings and for less than a life, and made the slaves equal in intentional killings and less than a life, their men and women. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Abu Malik who said: There was a fight between two tribes of the Ansar, one of which had the upper hand over the other, and it was as if they were seeking a favor. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to reconcile between them, and this verse was revealed: The free for the free, the slave for the slave, and the female for the female. Ibn Abbas said: Then it was abrogated by 'a life for a life.' Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, al-Hakim, who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: But whoever is pardoned he said: He is the one whose family is satisfied with the pardon. Then follow up with kindness he ordered the one seeking it. And pay it back to him with goodness on the part of the one who is seeking it. He said: He pays back the one sought with goodness. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy from what was upon the Children of Israel. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on his authority from another chain of transmission. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Children of Israel used to practice retaliation, but they did not practice blood money. So God said to this nation: Retaliation is prescribed for you in cases of murder until His saying: But if a man pardons his brother for anything, pardon means accepting blood money for premeditated murder. "Then follow up with kindness and pay him back with good treatment. That is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy," from what was prescribed for those who came before you. But whoever transgresses after that, it was said: after accepting blood money, will have a painful punishment. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada, who said: The people of the Torah only practiced retaliation or pardon, with no compensation between them. The people of the Gospel only practiced pardon, which they were commanded to do. God made for this nation killing, pardon, and blood money if they wished. He made it permissible for them, and it was not for any nation before them. Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Abu Shuraih al-Khuza'i that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever is afflicted by murder or madness, he has the choice of one of three things: either to take retribution, or to pardon, or to accept blood money. If he wants the fourth, then seize him. Whoever commits aggression after that will be in the fire of Hell, abiding therein forever." Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatadah that if someone kills after taking blood money, he will be severely punished. He said: He must be killed and no blood money will be accepted from him. He said: It was mentioned to us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I will not pardon a man who kills after taking blood money. Samuyah narrated in his Fawa'id on the authority of Samurah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, and he mentioned something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Ikrimah that he said: He is to be killed. Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding His statement: And there is life for you in retaliation, he said: God has made retaliation a life, a punishment, and a lesson. If the unjust aggressor remembers it, he will refrain from killing. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Zayd regarding his statement: Perhaps you will fear God he said: Perhaps you will fear killing him and then be killed for it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair regarding his statement: O you of understanding he said: Whoever has a mind will remember retaliation and the fear of retaliation will prevent him from killing. Perhaps you will fear God he said: So that you will avoid bloodshed for fear of retaliation.

179. The Almighty said: And there is life for you in retaliation meaning survival, because if the one who intends to kill knows that he will be killed if he kills, he refrains from killing, so his survival and the survival of the one who intended to kill him will be. It was said in the proverb: (Killing reduces killing) and it was said in the proverb: (Killing prevents killing), and it was said that the meaning of life is his safety from retaliation in the Hereafter, because if retaliation is taken from him, he will live in the Hereafter, and if retaliation is not taken from him in this world, retaliation will be taken from him in the Hereafter. O you of understanding, that you may become righteous meaning that you may refrain from killing for fear of retaliation.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

179- And there is life for you in retaliation is a statement of the utmost eloquence and rhetoric in that it makes one thing the place of its opposite, and defines retaliation and denies life, to indicate that in this type of ruling there is a great kind of life, because knowledge of it deters the killer from killing, so it is the reason for the life of two souls. And because they used to kill someone other than the killer, and the group for one, so strife would arise between them. So if retaliation is taken from the killer, the rest would be safe, so that would be the reason for their life. According to the first, there is an implication in it, and according to the second, there is a specification. It was said: What is meant by it is the afterlife, because if the killer is retaliated against in this world, he will not be held accountable for it in the afterlife. And there is life for you in retaliation may be two pieces of report for life, and one of them may be report and the other a connection to it, or a state of the pronoun hidden in it. And it was read in the stories, meaning in what was told to you of the ruling on killing, life, or in the Qur'an, life for the hearts. O you of understanding those with perfect minds. He called them to contemplate the wisdom of retribution in preserving lives and protecting souls. Perhaps you will become righteous in preserving retribution, ruling by it, and submitting to it, or in refraining from retribution and refraining from killing.

It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest in favor of parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is a duty upon the righteous.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:180

It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest in favor of parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is a duty upon the righteous.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

It is written an obligation upon you, when death approaches any of you that is, its causes if he leaves behind wealth money the will is raised by it is written and is related to if it is circumstantial and indicates its answer if it is conditional and the answer to if that is, then let him bequeath to parents and relatives according to what is reasonable with justice, not exceeding a third and not giving preference to the rich a right a source confirming the content of the sentence before it upon those who fear God God. This was abrogated by the verse on inheritance and the hadith: There is no will for an heir narrated by al-Tirmidhi

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by the words of God Almighty: It is prescribed for you, He has made it obligatory for you, O believers, to make a will, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth - and wealth means money - for parents and relatives who do not inherit from him, according to what is acceptable: which is what God has permitted and authorized in a will that does not exceed a third, and the testator did not intentionally wrong his heirs, a duty upon the righteous: He means by that: He has made this obligatory upon you and made it an obligatory right upon whoever fears God and obeys Him to act upon it. If someone says: Is it obligatory for a man with wealth to make a will for his parents and relatives who do not inherit from him? It is said: Yes. If he says: If he is negligent in that and does not make a will for them, will he be neglecting an obligation that he will be embarrassed by neglecting? It is said: Yes. If he says: What is the evidence for that? It is said: The statement of God the Most High: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, that he make a bequest to parents and relatives, so know that He has prescribed it for us and made it obligatory, just as He said: Fasting is prescribed for you (al-Baqarah 2:183). There is no disagreement among all that the one who abandons fasting while he is able to do so has neglected an obligation imposed on him by God. Likewise, by abandoning a bequest to his parents and relatives, even though he has something to bequeath to them, he has neglected an obligation imposed on him by God the Most High. If he says: You know that a group of scholars said: The bequest to parents and relatives is abrogated by the verse of inheritance? It is said to him: And a group other than them disagreed with them and said: It is decisive and not abrogated. If there is a dispute among scholars about the abrogation of this, we cannot rule that it is abrogated except with an argument that must be accepted, since it is not impossible for the ruling of this verse and the ruling of the verse of inheritance to be combined in one case with validity, without the ruling of one of them contradicting the ruling of the other - and the abrogating and the abrogated are the two meanings whose rulings cannot be combined with validity in one case, because one of them negates the other. And what we have said about this was said by a group of the earlier and later scholars. Mention of those who said this: Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, that he used to say: Whoever

He died without making a will to his relatives, so he ended his work with disobedience. Salim bin Junadah told me, he said, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim, on the authority of Masruq: that he was present with a man who made a will for things that were not appropriate, so Masruq said to him: God has divided among you and divided well, and whoever prefers his opinion over the opinion of God, He will lead him astray. Make a will for your relatives who will not inherit from you, then leave the money as God divided it. Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Abu Tamila Yahya bin Wadh told us, he said, Ubaid told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak

He said: It is not permissible to make a will to an heir, and no one may bequeath except to a relative. If he bequeaths to someone other than a relative, has he committed a sin? Unless he is not a relative, then he may bequeath to the poor Muslims. Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said: Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Mughirah, he said: I am amazed at Abu Al-Aliyah, a woman from Banu Riyah freed him, and he bequeathed his money to Banu Hashim! Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said: Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: He had no [owners], nor any honor. Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim narrated to me, he said: Ibn Ulayyah narrated to us, he said: Ayoub narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad, he said: Abdullah ibn Muammar said about the will: Whoever names it, we will make it where he names it. And whoever says: Where God commands, we will make it for his relatives.

Muhammad ibn Abd al-A'la al-San'ani told me, he said, al-Mu'tamir told us, he said, Imran ibn Hudayr told us, he said: I said to Abu Majlaz: Is a will obligatory for every Muslim? He said: On the one who leaves behind wealth. Suwar ibn Abdullah told us, he said, Abd al-Malik ibn al-Sabah told us, he said, Imran ibn Hudayr told us, he said: I said to Lahiqa ibn Hamid: Is a will a right for every Muslim? He said: It is a right for the one who leaves behind wealth. The people of interpretation differed regarding the ruling of this verse. Some of them said: God did not abrogate any of its rulings, but it is a verse whose apparent meaning is general for every father, mother, and relative, and what is meant by it in the ruling is some of them and not all of them, and that is those who do not inherit from the deceased and not those who inherit. This is the opinion of the one whose opinion I mentioned, and the opinion of another group besides them. Mention of those who did not mention their statement in that: Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Jabir bin Zaid: Concerning a man who made a will to someone other than his relatives and he has relatives who are in need, he said: Two-thirds of the third should be returned to them, and one-third of the third to the one to whom he made the will. Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Muadh told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, Jabir bin Zaid, and Abdul Malik bin Ya'la that they said - Concerning a man who makes a will to someone other than his relatives and he has relatives who do not inherit from him, he said: They used to give two-thirds of the third to the relatives, and one-third of the third to the one to whom he made the will. Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hamid told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan that he used to say: If a man makes a will to someone other than his relatives with one-third of it, then they get one-third of the third, and two-thirds of the third goes to his relatives. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated, he said: Muammar narrated, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, he said: Whoever makes a will for a people and names them, and leaves his relatives in need, it will be taken away from them and returned to his relatives. Others said: Rather, it is a verse that was obligatory and acted upon for a while, then God abrogated it with the verse on inheritance, the will for the parents of the testator and his relatives who inherit from him, and He confirmed the obligation of the will for those among them who do not inherit from him. Those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh narrated, he said: Yazid bin Zari' narrated, he said: Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves goods, that he make a bequest to the parents and the closest relatives, so the will was made for the parents and the closest relatives, then that was abrogated after that, and a fixed share was made for them, so the will became for the relatives who do not inherit, and a known share was made for the parents, and a will for an heir is not permissible. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Muammar narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, he said: The parents abrogated it, and the near relatives left those who do not inherit. Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said: Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said: Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, he said: It abrogated those who inherit, but it did not abrogate the near relatives who do not inherit. Yahya bin Nasr narrated to us, he said: Yahya bin Hassan narrated to us, he said: Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, he said: The bequest before inheritance was for parents and near relatives, but when inheritance was revealed, the inheritance abrogated those who inherit, and what remained was those who do not inherit. Whoever makes a will to his relatives, his will is not valid. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ismail Al-Makki, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to the parents and the closest relatives, he said: He abrogated the parents and confirmed the closest relatives who are forbidden and do not inherit. Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Mubarak ibn Fadala, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding this verse: The bequest is for parents and near relatives, he said: For parents is abrogated, and the bequest is for relatives even if they are rich. Al-Muthanna told me, Abdullah ibn Salih told us, Muawiyah ibn Salih told me, on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If he leaves wealth, the bequest is for parents and near relatives, so he did not inherit with the parents, even if they were older, except for a bequest if it was for the near relatives. Then God revealed after this: "And for his parents, to each one of them is a sixth of what he left, if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third" (An-Nisa': 11), so God Almighty explained the inheritance of parents, and approved the bequest of the near relatives in a third of the deceased's wealth. Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, so he abrogated the bequest to parents and near relatives who do not inherit. I was told by Ammar, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest to parents and near relatives according to what is acceptable, he said: This was before Surat An-Nisa was revealed, but when the verse of inheritance was revealed, the matter of parents was abrogated, so they were included among those who inherit, and the bequest became for those who are in need of a share who do not inherit. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj bin Al-Minhal told us, he said, Hammad bin Salamah told us, he said, he told us

Ata bin Abi Maymouna said: I asked Muslim bin Yasar and Al-Ala bin Ziyad about the statement of God Almighty: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and relatives. They said: Concerning kinship. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj told us, he said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Iyas bin Muawiyah, he said: Concerning

Kinship. Others said: Rather, God abrogated all of that and imposed the obligatory duties and inheritance, so no will is obligatory for anyone over anyone, near or far. Mention of those who said that: Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives 3: 13, he said: So God abrogated all of that and imposed the obligatory duties. Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Ibn

It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest in favor of parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is a duty upon the righteous.

Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That he stood up and addressed the people here. He recited to them Surat Al-Baqarah to explain it to them, and he came to this verse: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives 3:13. He said: This was abrogated. Muhammad ibn Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, the obligatory duties for parents and near relatives abrogated the bequest. Muhammad ibn Bashir told me, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Jahdam, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Badr, he said, I heard Ibn Umar say about his statement: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, he said: The verse of inheritance abrogated it. Ibn Bashir said: Abd al-Rahman said: So I asked Jahdam about it but he did not remember it. Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Yahya ibn Wadh told us, he said, al-Husayn ibn Waqid told us, on the authority of Yazid al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and al-Hasan al-Basri, they said: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, and the bequest was like that until the verse of inheritance abrogated it. Ahmad ibn al-Muqaddam told me, al-Mu'tamir told us, I heard my father say, Qatada claimed, on the authority of Shuraih, regarding this verse: If he leaves wealth, a bequest is made to parents and near relatives, he said: A man would bequeath all of his wealth, until the verse of inheritance was revealed. Ahmad ibn al-Muqaddam told us, al-Mu'tamir told us, I heard my father say, Qatada claimed: The verses of inheritance in Surat al-Nisa were abrogated by the verse in Surat al-Baqarah regarding the bequest.

Muhammad ibn Amr told me: Abu Asim told us: Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: If he leaves wealth, the bequest is for the parents and the near relatives, he said: The inheritance was for the child, and the bequest was for the parents and the near relatives, and it has been abrogated. Al-Muthanna told me: Abu Hudhayfah told us: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: The inheritance was for the child, and the bequest was for the parents and the near relatives. It was abrogated, abrogated by a verse in Surat al-Nisa 4: God instructs you concerning your children (al-Nisa 4:11). Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of As-Suddi: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, that he make a bequest to parents and near relatives. As for parents and near relatives, on the day this verse was revealed, people did not have a known inheritance, rather a man would make a bequest to his parents and his family, and it would be divided among them, until it was abrogated [An-Nisa], so He said: God instructs you concerning your children (al-Nisa 4:11). Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ayyub told us, on the authority of Nafi': Ibn Umar did not make a bequest, and he said: As for my wealth,

God knows best what I used to do with it in life, and as for my four-quarters, I do not like my children to share it with anyone. Muhammad ibn Khalaf al-Asqalani told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Yusuf told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Naseer ibn Tha'luq, he said, Urwah - meaning ibn Thabit - said to Rabi' ibn Khathim: Bequeath your Qur'an to me. He said: So he looked at his father and said: And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the Book of God (al-Anfal 8:75). Ali ibn Sahl told us, he said, Yazid told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: We mentioned to him that Zayd and Talhah were strict in making wills, so he said: They should not have done that. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, died without making a will, and Abu Bakr made a will. Whichever of these you do is good. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Ath-Thawri told us, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: Talhah and Zayd were mentioned in his presence, so he mentioned something similar. As for the good that if someone leaves something behind, he must make a will for his parents and relatives who do not inherit, it is wealth, as in:

Al-Muthanna bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, on the authority of Muawiyah bin Saleh, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If he leaves behind wealth, meaning money. Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: If he leaves behind wealth, meaning wealth. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: If he leaves behind wealth, he used to say: Good in the entire Qur'an is wealth, For the love of good is intense (al-Adiyat 100:8) Good is wealth, Indeed, I love the love of good more than the remembrance of my Lord (Sad: 32), wealth, Then write a contract with them if you know any good in them (al-Nur 24:33), wealth, and If he leaves behind wealth is a bequest, meaning money. Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: If he leaves behind wealth is a bequest, meaning: Money.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: If he leaves behind good, a bequest. As for good, it means money. I was told by Ammar bin Al-Hasan, he said, Ibn Abi Jaafar told us, on the authority of his father, on Al-Rabi': If he leaves behind good, he said: If he leaves behind money. Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If he leaves behind good, he said: The good is money. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Yahya, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: If he leaves behind good, a bequest, he said: Money. Do you not see that he says: Shu'aib said to his al-Nas 114: Indeed, I see you in goodness (Hud 11:84), meaning wealth. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Amr al-Yafi'i told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata ibn Abi Rabah, he recited: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, Ata said: The wealth in what he sees is money. Then they differed about the amount of money that if a man leaves behind him, he is among those who are subject to the ruling of this verse. Some of them said: It is a thousand dirhams. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj ibn al-Minhal told us, he said, Hammam ibn Yahya told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding this verse: If he leaves wealth, a bequest, he said: The wealth is a thousand or more. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj told us, he said, Hammad told us, he said, Hisham ibn Urwah told us, on the authority of Urwah: Ali ibn Abi Talib entered upon his cousin to visit him, and he said: I want to make a will. Ali said: Do not make a will, for you did not leave anything good to make a will. He said: He left between seven hundred and nine hundred. Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Uthman bin Al-Hakam Al-Hizami and Ibn Abi Al-Zinad told me, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib: That he entered upon a sick man and mentioned to him the will, so he said: Do not make a will, God only said: If he leaves behind good, and you did not leave behind good. Ibn Abi Al-Zinad said about him: So leave your wealth to your sons. Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abdul Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur bin Safiyya,

On the authority of Abdullah bin Uyaynah - or: Utbah, I am not sure -: A man wanted to make a will, and he had many children, and he left four hundred dinars. Aisha said: I do not see any merit in that. Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to us, he said: Abdul-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Muammar narrated to us, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, he said: A slave of theirs came to me when he was dying, and he had seven hundred dirhams, or six hundred dirhams, so he said: Should I not make a will? He said: No! God said: If he leaves behind wealth, and you do not have much wealth. Some of them said: It is between five hundred and one thousand dirhams. Those who said that: Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated to us, he said: Abdul-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Muammar narrated to us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abaan bin Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, regarding His statement: If he leaves behind wealth, he said: One thousand dirhams to five hundred. Some of them said: A will is obligatory for a little or a lot of wealth.

Who said that: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, he said: God made the will a right, whether it is little or much. Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in interpreting His statement: It is prescribed for you when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, that he makes a bequest, is what Al-Zuhri said. Because good comes to him whether little or much wealth, and God did not set a limit for that, nor did He specify anything from it, so it is permissible to transfer the apparent to the hidden. So whoever is at death's door and has wealth, whether it is little or much, it is obligatory for him to bequeath from it to those who do not inherit from him from his fathers and mothers and relatives who do not inherit from him, in a reasonable manner, as God, the Most High, said and commanded.

It contains twenty-one issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: It is prescribed for you This is the verse of the will, and there is no mention of the will in the Qur'an except in this verse, and in An-Nisa': after making a will and in al-Ma'idah 5: at the time of the will. The one in Al-Baqarah is the most complete and perfect of them and was revealed before the revelation of the obligatory duties and inheritances, as will be explained. In the speech, the conjunction and is assumed, meaning and it is prescribed for you, and when the speech became long, the conjunction and was dropped. And similar to it in some sayings: None shall pray it except the most wretched * Who denied and turned away meaning who, so it was dropped. And it was said: When it was mentioned that the heir of the blood has the right to exact retribution, this is the one who is on the verge of being exacted from and he is the cause of death, so it is as if death has come to him, so this is the time of the will, so the verse is connected to what precedes it and connected to it, and therefore the conjunction and was dropped. And the meaning of was prescribed is imposed and established, as mentioned above. And the presence of death: its causes, and when the cause is present, the Arabs are with it from the effect, their poet said:

O rider, mixing your mount, ask the Banu Asad, what is this sound?

And tell them to hasten to make an excuse and seek a word that will acquit you, for I am death.

Antara said:

Death is at my disposal if I reach my fingertips to the Hindu gods.

Jarir said in his satire of Al-Farazdaq:

I am the death you spoke about, so no one can escape me

Second: If it is said: Why did he say wrote and not I wrote, and the will is feminine? It is said to him: That is because he meant by the will bequest. And it is said: Because there was a separator in between, so the separator was like a replacement for the feminine taa. The Arabs say: A woman attended the judge today. And Sibawayh narrated: A woman stood up. But that is good only when the barrier is long.

Third: The Almighty's saying: If he leaves behind any good, if he stipulated, and in his answer to Abu al-Hasan al-Akhfash there are two opinions. Al-Akhfash said: The meaning is the will, then the fa was deleted, as the poet said:

It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest in favor of parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is a duty upon the righteous.

Whoever does good deeds, God will reward them, and evil is recompensed for evil in the sight of God.

The other answer: The past tense may have its answer before it after it, so the estimate would be the will for the parents and relatives if he left something good. If the fa is estimated, then the will is raised by the beginning, and if the fa is not estimated, it is permissible to raise it by the beginning, and to raise it on what its doer is not named, i.e. the will was written upon you. It is not correct according to the majority of grammarians for the will to work in if because it is in the rule of the relative clause for the source which is the will and it has been presented, so it is not permissible for it to work in it as if it was presented. It is permissible for the agent in if to be: wrote and the meaning is: God's obligation is directed to you and the requirement of His book is present, so the direction of the obligation is expressed by written to connect to this meaning that it is written in eternity. It is permissible for the agent in if to be the will to be estimated and indicate the will, meaning: the will was written upon you if.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Good. Good here means money without dispute, and they differed about its amount. Some said: A lot of money. It was narrated from Ali, Aisha, and Ibn Abbas. They said that seven hundred dinars are little. Qatadah from Al-Hasan: Good is a thousand dinars and above. Al-Sha'bi: Between five hundred dinars and a thousand. A will is anything that is ordered to be done and entrusted during life and after death. Custom has specified it to what is entrusted to be done and implemented after death. The plural is wills, like the plural of qadā'. The waḍī can be the testator and the one to whom it is entrusted. Its origin is from wasāṭī, lightened. The plant is tawāsā tawāsā if it is connected. And a wasīyah land: connected to plants. I bequeathed something to him and I bequeathed it to him if I made him your guardian. The noun is wasāyah and wasāyah with kasrah and fathah. I also entrusted him with a recommendation with the same meaning, and the noun is wasāṭah. The people entrusted each other. In the hadith:

Treat women well, for they are prisoners in your care.

To bequeath something to someone means to connect it to them.

Fifth: The scholars differed regarding the obligation of a will on someone who left behind wealth, after their consensus that it is obligatory on someone who left behind deposits and owes debts. Most scholars are of the opinion that a will is not obligatory on someone who does not have any of that, which is the opinion of Malik, Al-Shafi'i and Al-Thawri, whether the testator is wealthy or poor. A group said: A will is obligatory according to the apparent meaning of the Qur'an: This was stated by Al-Zuhri and Abu Majlaz, whether the wealth is little or much. Abu Thawr said: A will is not obligatory except on a man who owes a debt or has money for some people, so it is obligatory for him to write his will and inform them of what he owes. As for someone who has no debt or deposit, it is not obligatory on him unless he wishes. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: This is good, because God has imposed the return of trusts to their owners, and whoever has no right or trust from him is not obligated to make a will. The first scholars cited as evidence what the imams narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

It is not right for a Muslim who has something he wants to make a will to spend two nights without having his will written down with him. In another narration, to spend three nights. In this regard, Abdullah ibn Umar said: "Not a night has passed since I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say that, without having my will with him." Those who do not make it obligatory have argued that if it were obligatory, he would not have made it up to the will of the testator, and that would be obligatory in any case. Then, if we assume that it appears to be obligatory, then the statement that it is obligatory rejects it. This is in the case of someone who has rights over people and fears that they will lose them, as Abu Thawr said. Likewise, if he has rights over people and fears that they will be lost to the heirs, then he must make a will, and there is no disagreement about that.

If it is said: God Almighty said: It is prescribed for you and prescribed means imposed, so it indicates the obligation of making a will. It is said to them: The answer to this has already been given in the verse before, and the meaning is: If you want to make a will, and God knows best. Al-Nakha'i said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died without making a will, and Abu Bakr made a will, so if he made a will, it is good, but if he did not make a will, then nothing is required of him.

Sixth: God the Almighty did not specify in His Book the amount of money that should be bequeathed, but He said: If he leaves behind a bequest of wealth, and wealth is money, as in His saying: And whatever you spend of good, and For indeed, for the love of good. The scholars differed regarding the amount of that. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Bakr al-Siddiq, may God be pleased with him, that he bequeathed a fifth. Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: From the spoils of the Muslims, a fifth. Muammar said on the authority of Qatadah: Umar bequeathed a quarter. Al-Bukhari mentioned it on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he said: For me to bequeath a fifth is more beloved to me than to bequeath a quarter, and for me to bequeath a quarter is more beloved to me than to bequeath a third.

A group of people chose for those who have little wealth and have heirs to leave a will. This was narrated on the authority of Ali, Ibn Abbas, and Aisha, may God be pleased with them all. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Ibn Abi Malekah on the authority of Aisha that a man said to her: I want to make a will. She said: How much is your wealth? He said: Three thousand. She said: How many are your dependents? He said: Four. She said: God Almighty says: If he leaves behind something good, and this is a small amount, so leave it for your dependents, for that is better for you.

Seventh: The majority of scholars have held that it is not permissible for anyone to bequeath more than a third, except for Abu Hanifa and his companions, for they said: If the testator does not leave any heirs, it is permissible for him to bequeath all of his wealth. They said: Limiting the bequest to a third was only in order to leave his heirs rich, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

It is better for you to leave your heirs rich than to leave them poor, begging from people. The hadith was narrated by the Imams. Whoever has no heirs is not one of those concerned with the hadith. This statement was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and Abu Ubaidah and Masruq said the same. Ishaq and Malik agreed with it in one of their two opinions, and it was narrated on the authority of Ali. The reason for the disagreement with what we have mentioned is the disagreement over the treasury: is it an heir or a guardian of what is put in it? There are two opinions.

Eighth: The scholars agreed that if a person dies and has heirs, he is not entitled to bequeath all of his money. It was narrated on the authority of Amr ibn al-Aas, may God be pleased with him, that when death approached him, he said to his son Abdullah: I wanted to make a will. He said to him: Make a will and your money is in my money. So he called a scribe and dictated. Abdullah said: I said to him: I see that you have already taken my money and your money. If I called my brothers, you would be permitted to do so.

Ninth: They agreed that a person can change his will and return to whatever he wishes from it, except that they differed on that regarding the mudabbar. Malik, may God have mercy on him, said: The matter agreed upon among us is that if the testator makes a will in his health or illness in which there is the emancipation of a slave or something else, then he can change it as he wishes and do whatever he wishes with it until he dies. If he likes to discard that will and drop it, he can do so, except for the mudabbar. If he manages a slave, then he has no way to change what he has planned, and that is because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

It is not right for a Muslim who has something to bequeath to spend two nights without having his will written down with him. Abu al-Faraj al-Maliki said that the mudabbar is like the manumitted slave for a month, because it is a term that will inevitably come. They agreed that he cannot go back on an oath by manumission or manumission for a term, and so is the mudabbar, and Abu Hanifa said the same. Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Ishaq said: It is a will, because they agreed that it is for a third like all other wills. And in their permitting intercourse with the mudabbar, there is what is missing from their analogy of the mudabbar to manumission for a term, and it has been proven:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sold a slave girl," and Aisha sold a slave girl who had been set free and then sold her. This is the opinion of a group of the Tabi'in. A group said: A man may change whatever he wants from his will except for manumission. This is what Al-Sha'bi, Ibn Sirin, Ibn Shubramah, and Al-Nakha'i said, and it is the opinion of Sufyan Al-Thawri.

Tenth: They differed about a man who says to his slave: You are free after my death, and he wanted to make a will, then he has the right to return it according to Malik. If he says: So-and-so is a mudabbar after my death, then he does not have the right to return it. If he wanted to manage it with his first statement, then he does not have the right to return it according to most of Malik's companions. As for al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, and Abu Thawr, then all of this is a will according to them, because it is in the third, and everything that is in the third is a will, except that al-Shafi'i said: There is no return in the mudabbar except by removing him from his ownership by selling or gifting him. And his saying: I have returned it is not a return, and if the mudabbar does not leave his ownership until he dies, then he is freed by his death. And he said in al-Qadeem: There is a return in the mudabbar as one returns in a will. Al-Muzani chose it based on their consensus on returning in the case of someone who bequeathed his freedom. Abu Thawr said: If he says I have returned in the case of the mudabbar, then the management is void, and if he dies, he is not freed. Ibn Al-Qasim and Ashab differed about the one who said: My slave is free after my death, and he did not mean a will or management. Ibn Al-Qasim said: It is a will. Ashab said: He is a manager even if he did not mean a will.

Eleventh: The scholars differed regarding this verse, whether it was abrogated or decisive. It was said: It is decisive. Its apparent meaning is general, but its meaning is specific to the parents who do not inherit, such as the disbelievers and slaves, and to the relatives who are not heirs. This was said by Ad-Dahhak, Tawus, and Al-Hasan, and it was chosen by Al-Tabari. Al-Zuhri said that the will is obligatory in matters of little or much. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: All the scholars from whom we have preserved agreed that the will for the parents who do not inherit and the relatives who do not inherit is permissible. Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, and Qatadah said: The verse is general, and the ruling was established by it for a period of time, and everyone who inherits was abrogated by the verse of inheritance. It was said: The verse of inheritance was not abrogated independently, but by another addition, which is the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

God has given to every person with a right his right, so there is no bequest for an heir. Narrated by Abu Umamah, and At-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith. The verse was abrogated by the established Sunnah, not by inheritance, according to the correct opinion of the scholars. If it were not for this hadith, it would have been possible to reconcile the two verses by taking the money from the deceased by a will, or by inheritance if he did not make a will, or what remains after the will, but this hadith and consensus prevented that. Even though Ash-Shafi'i and Abu Al-Faraj prevented the abrogation of the Qur'an by the Sunnah, the correct opinion is that it is permissible, based on the fact that all of it is the ruling of God, the Most High, and from Him, even if the names differ. This meaning has been mentioned above. Although this report has reached us as a single

It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest in favor of parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is a duty upon the righteous.

narration, it has been joined by the consensus of the Muslims that it is not permissible to make a bequest for an heir. It has become clear that the obligation of making a bequest for the closest heirs has been abrogated by the Sunnah, and it is the basis of those who agree. And God knows best.

Ibn Abbas and Al-Hasan said: The will to the parents was abrogated by obligation in Surat An-Nisa and was confirmed for the closest relatives who do not inherit. This is the view of Al-Shafi'i, most of the Malikis and a group of scholars. In Al-Bukhari, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The money was for the child and the will was for the parents, so he abrogated that as he wished, so he made for the male the share of two females, and he made for the two repentant children each one of them a sixth, and he made for the woman an eighth and a quarter, and for the husband a half and a quarter.

Ibn Omar, Ibn Abbas and Ibn Zayd said: The entire verse was abrogated, and the will remained as a recommendation. Something similar to this is the statement of Malik, may God have mercy on him, and it was mentioned by Al-Nahhas on the authority of Al-Sha'bi and Al-Nakha'i. Al-Rabi' bin Khathim said: There is no will. Urwah bin Thabit said: I said to Rabi' bin Khathim: Bequeath me your copy of the Qur'an. He looked at his son and read: And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the Book of God. Something similar to this is what Ibn Omar, may God be pleased with him, did.

Twelfth: The Almighty said: And the nearest relatives. The nearest is the plural of nearest. Some people said that the will to the nearest relatives is more appropriate than to the strangers, because of the explicit text of God regarding them, so Ad-Dahhak said: If he wills to someone other than his relatives, then his work has ended with disobedience. It was narrated from Ibn Omar that he willed to the mothers of his children, each one of his relatives with four thousand. It was narrated that Aisha willed to a female slave of hers the furniture of the house. It was narrated from Salim bin Abdullah something similar. Al-Hasan said: If he wills to someone other than his relatives, the will is returned to the nearest relatives, but if it is for a stranger, then it is with them, and it is not permissible for others if they are left alone. When Abu Al-Aaliyah died, people said: How strange! A woman from Riyah freed him and he willed his money to the Prophet of Hashim. Al-Sha'bi said: He had no right to that nor any honor. Tawus said: If he wills to someone other than his relatives, the will is returned to his relatives and his action is nullified. Jabir bin Zaid said the same, and something similar was narrated from Al-Hasan as well, and Ishaq bin Rahawayh said the same. Malik, Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa and their companions, Al-Awza'i and Ahmad ibn Hanbal said: Whoever makes a will to someone other than his relatives and leaves his relatives in need, then what a bad thing he has done! His action is permissible and valid for everyone to whom he made a will, whether rich or poor, near or far, Muslim or infidel. This is the meaning of what was narrated from Ibn Umar and Aisha, and it is the statement of Ibn Umar and Ibn Abbas.

I said: The first statement is better. As for Abu Al-Aaliyah, may God be pleased with him, perhaps he considered that the Banu Hashim were more deserving than his emancipator, because he had Ibn Abbas as his guardian, taught him, and included him among the ranks of scholars in this world and the next. Although this fatherhood was spiritual, it was the real one, and the ultimate goal of his emancipator was to include him among the free in this world, so the reward of her emancipation was sufficient for her, and God knows best.

Thirteenth: The majority of scholars have said that a sick person is to be placed under guardianship over his wealth, and the scholars of the apparent meaning have deviated and said: He is not to be placed under guardianship, and it is like the correct view. The hadith and its meaning are rebutted. "Saad said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, visited me during the Farewell Pilgrimage when I was suffering from an illness from which I almost died, so I said: O Messenger of God, what you see has afflicted me with the illness I have, and I have wealth and no one inherits from me except one daughter. Should I give two-thirds of my wealth in charity? He said: No. I said: Should I give half of it in charity? He said: No, a third, and a third is a lot. If you leave your heirs rich, it is better than leaving them poor, begging from people." The hadith.

The people of the apparent meaning also forbade a will of more than a third, even if the heirs approved it. All of them approved it if the heirs approved it, and this is correct, because the sick person was only prevented from bequeathing more than a third due to the right of the heir. So if the heirs waive their right, it is permissible and valid, and it is like a gift from them. Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

A will is not permissible for an heir unless the heirs wish it. It was narrated on the authority of Amr bin Kharijah who said:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

There is no will for an heir unless the heirs approve.

Fourteenth: They differed regarding the revocation of those who permit the will to the heir during the life of the testator after his death. A group said: It is permissible for them and they do not have the right to revoke it. This is the opinion of Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, Tawus, Al-Hasan, Ibn Sirin, Ibn Abi Laila, Al-Zuhri, Rabia, and Al-Awza'i. A group said: They have the right to revoke it if they like. This is the opinion of Ibn Mas'ud, Shuraih, Al-Hakam, Tawus, Al-Thawri, Al-Hasan ibn Salih, Abu Hanifa, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, and Abu Thawr, and it was chosen by Ibn Al-Mundhir. Malik made a distinction and said: If they gave permission when he was healthy, then they have the right to revoke it. If they gave permission to him when he was sick when he was prevented from his money, then that is permissible for them. This is the opinion of Ishaq. The people of the first opinion argued that the prevention only occurred for the sake of the heirs, so if they permitted it, it is permissible. They agreed that if he bequeathed more than a third of his estate to a stranger, it is permissible with their permission, and so it is here. The second opinion argued that they had permitted something that they did not own at that time, and that the money is only owned after his death. The heir who asked permission may die before him and not be an heir, and someone else may inherit it. So he permitted someone who had no right to it, and nothing is required of him. Malik argued by saying: If a man is healthy, he is more entitled to all of his money and can do with it as he pleases. So if they permitted him when he was healthy, they have left something that was not due to them. And if they permitted him when he was sick, they have seen what was due to them from the right, so they do not have the right to go back on it if he has already implemented it because it has passed.

Fifteenth: If the patient does not carry out that, then the heir has the right to revoke it because he did not fulfill it, as stated by Al-Abhari. Ibn Al-Mundhir mentioned on the authority of Ishaq bin Rahawayh that the statement of Malik on this issue is more similar to the Sunnah than others. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: The statement of Malik, Al-Thawri, the Kufians, Al-Shafi'i, and Abu Thawr is more correct, that if they permit that after his death, then it is binding on them.

Sixteenth: They differed about a man who bequeaths money to some of his heirs, and says in his will: If the heirs approve it, it is his, and if they do not approve it, it is for the sake of God, but they did not approve it. Malik said: If the heirs do not approve it, it returns to them. According to the statement of Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa, and Muammar, the companion of Abd Al-Razzaq, it goes on in the way of God.

Seventeenth: There is no disagreement regarding the will of an adult who is sane and not under guardianship. There is disagreement regarding others. Malik said: The matter agreed upon among us is that the wills of the weak in mind, the foolish, and the afflicted who sometimes regains consciousness are permissible if they have enough reason to know what they are bequeathing. The same applies to a young boy if he understands what he has bequeathed and does not say anything reprehensible, then his will is valid and binding. Abu Hanifa and his companions said: The will of a young boy is not permissible. Al-Muzani said: This is based on the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, and I did not find anything Al-Shafi'i mentioned or stated explicitly about that. His companions differed on two opinions: one of them is like Malik's opinion, and the second is like Abu Hanifa's opinion. Their argument is that his divorce or emancipation is not permissible, and he is not subject to retaliation for a crime or to the prescribed punishment for slander, so he is not like an adult who is under guardianship, so his will is the same. Abu Omar said: They agreed that the will of an adult who is under guardianship is permissible. It is known that if a boy of sound mind makes a will, his situation is the same as that of one who is wronged in his money. The reason for being forbidden is the squandering and destruction of money, and that reason is removed by death. He is more like one who is forbidden in his money than a madman who is not of sound mind. Therefore, his will must be permissible, in accordance with the matter that came in it from Omar, may God be pleased with him. Malik said: It is the matter agreed upon among them in Madinah, and success is from God. Muhammad ibn Shuraih said: Whoever makes a will, young or old, and he gets it right, God has decreed it through his tongue. There is no repelling the truth.

Eighteenth: The Almighty's saying: with what is right means with justice, with no laxity or excess in it, and that this is entrusted to the deceased's effort and the testator's consideration, then God Almighty took charge of determining that through the tongue of His Prophet, peace be upon him, so he, peace be upon him, said:

A third, and a third is a lot. The scholars have already stated this. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

God has given you a third of your wealth as charity when you die, as an addition to your good deeds, so that He may make it a form of zakat for you. Narrated by Ad-Daraqutni on the authority of Abu Umamah on the authority of Muadh ibn Jabal on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Hasan said: It is not permissible to make a will except for a third, and Al-Bukhari agreed with him and used as evidence the words of God the Almighty: And judge between them by what God has revealed. The ruling of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that a third is a lot is the ruling by what God has revealed. So whoever exceeds the limit set by the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and exceeds a third has committed what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prohibited, and by doing so he is a sinner if he is knowledgeable in the ruling of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ash-Shafi'i said: His statement, A third is a lot, means that it is not a little.

Nineteenth: The Almighty's saying: Truly means established with the establishment of consideration and fortification, not the establishment of obligation and necessity, as evidenced by His saying: upon the righteous. This indicates that it is recommended, because if it were an obligation, it would be upon all Muslims. So when God singled out those who are righteous, that is, who fear negligence, it indicates that it is not obligatory except in what is expected to be lost if he dies, so it is obligatory for him to rush to write it down and bequeath it, because if he is silent about it, it would be a waste of it and negligence on his part. This meaning has already been presented. And truly is in the accusative case as a confirmed source, and it is permissible in other than the Qur'an to say truth in the meaning of that truth.

Al-Muwaffiyah 20: The scholars said: The initiative to write a will is not taken from this verse, but rather from the hadith of Ibn Umar. Its benefit is: to exaggerate in increasing the security and for it to be written and witnessed, and it is the will that is agreed upon to be acted upon. So if just men bear witness and perform that testimony verbally, it is to be acted upon even if it is not written in writing. So if he writes it with his own hand and does not bear witness, then there is no difference in the statement of Malik that it is not to be acted upon except in what it contains of an acknowledgment of a right for someone who is not accused of it, in which case he is obligated to implement it.

It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest in favor of parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is a duty upon the righteous.

Twenty-first: Al-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Anas bin Malik, who said: They used to write at the top of their wills: This is what so-and-so, son of so-and-so, has willed: He bears witness that there is no god but God alone, without partner, and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, and that the Hour is coming, there is no doubt about it, and that God will resurrect those in the graves. And he will command those of his family he left behind to fear God as He should be feared, and to reconcile their differences, and to obey God and His Messenger if they are believers. And he commanded them with what Abraham commanded his sons, and so did Jacob: O my sons, God has chosen for you this religion, so do not die except as Muslims.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse included the command to make a will for parents and relatives, and this was obligatory according to the most correct of the two opinions before the revelation of the verse of inheritance. When the verse of inheritance was revealed, this was abrogated, and the inheritances that were determined became an obligation from God that those who deserved it would take without a will and did not bear the favor of the testator. For this reason, it was stated in the hadith in the Sunan and elsewhere on the authority of Amr ibn Kharijah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, giving a sermon and he said: God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no will for an heir. Imam Ahmad said: Ismail ibn Ibrahim ibn Aliyah told us on the authority of Yunus ibn Ubayd on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: Ibn Abbas sat and recited Surat Al-Baqarah until he came to this verse: If he leaves wealth, a bequest to parents and relatives. He said: This verse was abrogated. Saeed bin Mansur narrated it likewise, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Yunus, and Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak, and he said: It is authentic according to their conditions. Ali ibn Abu Talha on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, The bequest is for parents and near relatives, said: No one inherits with the parents except for the bequest for the near relatives, so God revealed the verse of inheritance, so He explained the inheritance of the parents and approved the bequest of the near relatives in one-third of the deceased's wealth. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj bin Muhammad told us, Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata' told us on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, The bequest is for parents and near relatives: This verse abrogated it: For men is a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, and for women is a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, whether it be little or much - an obligatory share. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said, and it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, Abu Musa, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Hasan, Mujahid, Ata', Saeed bin Jubayr, Muhammad bin Sirin, Ikrimah, Zaid bin Aslam, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Qatadah, Al-Suddi, Muqatil bin Hayyan, Tawus, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Shuraih, Al-Dahhak and Al-Zuhri: that this verse is abrogated, abrogated by The verse of inheritance and the wonder of Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Omar Al-Razi, may God have mercy on him, how he narrated in his great interpretation on the authority of Abu Muslim Al-Isfahani that this verse is not abrogated, but rather it is explained by the verse of inheritance, and its meaning is that what God has commanded of inheritance from parents and relatives has been prescribed for you from His saying, God commands you concerning your children. He said: And this is the saying of most of the interpreters and respected jurists. He said: And among them are those who said: It is abrogated in those who inherit, but it is established in those who do not inherit, and this is the doctrine of Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, Masruq, Tawus, Al-Dahhak, Muslim bin Yasar, and Al-Ala bin Ziyad. I said And this is also what Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Rabi bin Anas, Qatadah and Muqatil bin Hayyan said. However, according to the opinion of these people, this is not called abrogation in our later terminology, because the verse of inheritance only lifted the ruling of some individuals indicated by the generality of the verse of will, because the closest relatives are more general than those who inherit and do not inherit, so the ruling of those who inherit was lifted according to what was specified for them, and the other remained as indicated by the first verse. This is only possible according to the opinion of some of them: that the will at the beginning of Islam was only recommended until it was abrogated. As for those who say: that it was obligatory, which is apparent from the context of the verse, then it must be abrogated by the verse of inheritance, as most of the commentators and respected jurists said, because the obligation of the will for the parents and the closest inheritors is abrogated by consensus, rather it is forbidden according to the previous hadith: Indeed, God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no will for an heir. So the verse of inheritance is an independent ruling and an obligation from God for the people of the obligatory shares and the agnates, by which the ruling of these is lifted. In general, the relatives who do not have an inheritance are recommended to bequeath to them from a third, based on the verse of the will and its comprehensiveness, and because it was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is not right for a Muslim who has something to bequeath to spend two nights without having his will written with him. Ibn Umar said: Not a night has passed since I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say that without me having my will with me. The verses and hadiths commanding kindness to relatives and treating them well are very numerous. Abd bin Hamid said in his Musnad: "Abdullah told us on the authority of Mubarak bin Hassan, on the authority of Nafi', who said: Abdullah said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God Almighty says: O son of Adam, two things, neither of which is yours: I made for you a share in your wealth when I took you by the throat to purify you and make you pure with it, and the prayers of My servants upon you after your term has passed." His statement, If he leaves behind good, means wealth, was said by Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ata', Sa'id bin Jubayr, Abu al-A'liyyah, Atiyah al-Awfi, al-Dahhak, al-Suddi, and al-Rabi'. Ibn Anas, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, Qatadah and others. Then some of them said: The will is permissible whether the money is little or much, like inheritance. And some of them said: He only makes a will if he leaves behind a large amount of money. Then they differed about its amount. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Maqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, who said: It was said to Ali, may God be pleased with him: A man from Quraysh died and left behind three hundred or four hundred dinars and did not make a will. He said: It is nothing. God only said: If he leaves behind good. He also said: Harun ibn Ishaq al-Hamadani told us, Abduh, meaning Ibn Sulayman, told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father: Ali entered upon a man from his people to visit him, so he said to him: Should I make a will? Ali said to him: God said, If he leaves behind any good, a bequest. He only left behind a small amount, so leave it for your father. Al-Hakim said: Aban told me on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, If he leaves behind any good. Ibn Abbas said: He who does not leave behind sixty dinars has not left behind any good. Al-Hakim said: Tawus said: He who does not leave behind eighty dinars has not left behind any good. Qatada said: It was said: A thousand or more. And his saying with kindness means with gentleness and kindness, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashir told us, Surur bin Al-Mughira told me on the authority of Ibad bin Mansour on the authority of Al-Hasan, his saying: It is prescribed for you when death approaches one of you, he said: Yes, a will is a right upon every Muslim to make a will when death approaches him with kindness and not evil. What is meant by kindness is that he makes a will for his relatives that does not oppress his heirs, without extravagance or stinginess, as is proven in the two Sahihs: "Saad said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and no one inherits from me except my daughter, so should I bequeath two-thirds of my wealth? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: Then a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. If you leave your heirs rich, it is better than leaving them poor, supporting people." And in Sahih Al-Bukhari, Ibn Abbas said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. And Imam Ahmad narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed, the client of Banu Hashim, on the authority of Ziyad bin Utbah bin Hanzala, heard Hanzala bin Judhaym bin Hanifa: His grandfather Hanifa bequeathed one hundred camels to an orphan in his care. This was difficult for his sons, so they went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Hanifa said: I bequeathed one hundred camels to an orphan of mine, which we used to call a mount. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No, no, no, the charity is five, otherwise ten, otherwise fifteen, otherwise twenty, otherwise twenty-five, otherwise thirty, otherwise thirty-five, and if it is more, then forty. And he mentioned the hadith in full.

And His statement, "But whoever changes it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who change it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing." God the Almighty says: So whoever changes the will and distorts it, changing its ruling and adding to it or subtracting from it, and this includes concealing it by way of priority, then his sin is only upon those who change it. Ibn Abbas and others said: The reward of the deceased has fallen upon God, and the sin is attached to those who changed it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing. That is, He has seen what the deceased has bequeathed and He is aware of that and what the legatees have changed. And God the Almighty says, But whoever fears from a testator injustice or sin, Ibn Abbas, Abu al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and al-Suddi said: Injustice is an error, and this includes all types of error, such as adding an heir by way of intermediary or means, such as if he bequeathed the sale of a certain thing out of favoritism or bequeathed to his daughter's son to increase it or something similar from the means, either by mistake and not intentionally but by his nature and the strength of his compassion without insight, or intentionally. A sinner in that, so the guardian in this case, should correct the issue and amend the will in the legal manner, and change what the deceased bequeathed to what is closest to him and most similar to the matters in order to combine the intention of the testator and the legal path, and this correction and reconciliation is not a change in anything, and for this reason he linked this and explained it to the prohibition of that, so that it is known that this is not a way of that, and God knows best, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Abbas bin Al-Waleed bin Muzaid narrated to us, my father told me on the authority of Al-Awza'i, Al-Zuhri said: Urwah narrated to me on the authority of Aisha on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: What is returned from the charity of the transgressor during his life is what is returned from the will of the transgressor upon his death. And thus Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Al-Abbas bin Al-Waleed with it, Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Waleed bin Muzaid made a mistake in it, and this statement is only from Urwah, and Al-Waleed bin Muslim narrated it on the authority of Al-Awza'i, so he did not go beyond Urwah with it, and Ibn Mardawayh also said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim narrated to us, Ibrahim bin Yusuf narrated to us, Hisham bin Ammar, narrated to us Omar bin Al-Mughira, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Insolence in making a will is one of the major sins. This is also questionable in its being attributed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The best that has been reported in this regard is what Abd Al-Razzaq said: Muammar Ash'ath bin Abdullah narrated to us, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man may do the deeds of good people for seventy years, then when he makes a will, he is unfair in his will, and his deeds are concluded with evil and he enters Hell. A man may do evil deeds for seventy years, then he is just in his will, and his deeds are concluded with good deeds and he enters Paradise." Abu Hurairah said: Read if you wish: These are the limits set by God, so do not transgress them 10:13.

Fath al-Qadir

The meaning of 180- wrote may have been presented soon, and the presence of death: the presence of its causes and the appearance of its signs, and from this is the saying of Antarah:

Death is at my disposal if I reach my fingertips with the Hindu

Jarir said:

I am the death you spoke about, so no one can escape me

The verb attributed to the will, which is wrote, was not made feminine because of the separation between them. It was said: because it means a will. It has been reported that it is permissible to attribute something that is not feminine to a feminine without separation. Sibawayh reported: A woman stood up, which is contrary to what the imams of Arabic agreed upon. God Almighty stipulated what He wrote of the will that the testator leave something good. There was a difference of opinion about the answer to this condition: What is it? Two opinions were reported from Al-Akhfash:

One of them is that the estimate is: If he left something good, then the will, then the fa was deleted as the poet said:

Whoever does good deeds, God will reward them, and evil is recompensed for evil in the sight of God.

The second: Its answer was estimated before it: i.e. writing a will for the parents and relatives if he left something good. The scholars differed about the amount of the good. It was said: what is more than seven hundred dinars, and it was said: one thousand dinars, and it was said: what is more than five hundred dinars. The will in origin: is an order to do something and a covenant with it in life and after death, and here: is an order to do something after death. The scholars agreed on the obligation of a will for someone who is in debt or has a deposit or the like. As for someone who is not like that, most of them went to the view that it is not obligatory for him, whether he is poor or rich, and a group said: it is obligatory. And God the Almighty did not clarify here the amount that he wrote the will for the parents and relatives, so it was said: one-fifth, and it was said: one-quarter, and it was said: one-third. The scholars differed about this verse, is it decisive or abrogated? A group went to the view that it is decisive, they said: And even if it is general, its meaning is specific. What is meant by it from the parents is those who do not inherit, such as the disbelieving parents and those who are slaves, and from the relatives are those who are not heirs. Ibn al-Mundhir said: All the scholars from whom we have preserved have agreed that a will for the parents who do not inherit and the relatives who do not inherit is permissible. Many scholars said: It was abrogated by the verse of inheritance, along with the saying of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): There is no will for an heir. This is a hadeeth that some scholars have authenticated, and it has been narrated from other sources. Some scholars said: It abrogated the obligation and negated the recommendation, and it was narrated from al-Sha'bi, al-Nakha'i and Malik. His saying: with what is right means justice, with no excess or excess. God has permitted the deceased to have a third, without anything in excess. His saying: rightly is a source that means confirmation and obligation.

180. The Almighty's saying: It is prescribed for you meaning it is obligatory upon you when death approaches any of you meaning the causes of death and its effects of illnesses and diseases if he leaves wealth meaning money, similar to the Almighty's saying: And whatever you spend of good 272-Al-Baqarah the bequest to parents and relatives The bequest was an obligation at the beginning of Islam for parents and relatives for whoever died and had wealth, then it was abrogated by the verse on inheritance. Abu Ali al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Qadi told us, Abu Tahir Muhammad ibn Muhammad ibn Mahmash al-Ziyadi told us, Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn Umar ibn Hafs al-Tajir told us, Muhammad ibn Ahmad al-Waleed told us, al-Haytham ibn Jameel told us, Hammad ibn Salamah told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Ghanma', on the authority of Amr ibn Kharijah, who said: "I was holding the reins of the Prophet's camel, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: 'God has given every person with a right his right, and there is no bequest for an heir.'" A group of people went to the view that its obligation was abrogated in the case of relatives who inherit, and its obligation remained in the case of those who do not inherit from among the parents and relatives, and this is the view of Ibn Abbas, Tawus, Qatada, and al-Hasan. Tawus said: Whoever makes a bequest to people whom he names as his relatives who are in need, it will be taken away from them and returned to his relatives. The majority went to the view that the obligation was abrogated in the case of all, and it is obligatory in the case of those who do not inherit.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Tahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn 'Umar, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is not the right of a Muslim who has something to bequeath to spend two nights without his will being written down at his head.

The Almighty's saying: in a reasonable manner means that he should bequeath what is reasonable and not exceed one-third, and he should not bequeath to the rich and leave out the poor. Ibn Masoud said: The bequest is for the most needy, then the most needy.

Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi told us, Abu Bakr Ahmad ibn al-Hasan al-Hayri told us, Abu Ja'far Muhammad ibn Ali ibn Rahim al-Shaibani told us, Ahmad ibn Hazim ibn Abi Gharzah told us, Ubayd God ibn Musa and Abu Na'im told us, on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Ibrahim, on the authority of 'Amir ibn Sa'id, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Malik, who said: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to visit me, so I said: O Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, should I bequeath all of my wealth? He said: No. I said: Half? He said: No. I said: A third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. It is better for you to leave your heirs rich than to leave them poor, begging from people with their bare hands."

On the authority of Ibn Malikah, a man said to Aisha, may God be pleased with her: I want to make a will. She said: How much is your wealth? He said: Three thousand. She said: How many are your dependents? He said: Four. She said: God only said: If he leaves behind goods, and this is a small thing, so leave for your dependents.

Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: "I would rather bequeath a fifth than a quarter, and I would rather bequeath a quarter than a third. Whoever bequeaths a third, then he has not left anything behind." Al-Hasan al-Basri, may God be pleased with him, said: He bequeaths a sixth, a fifth, or a quarter. Al-Sha'bi said: They only bequeathed a fifth or a quarter.

The Almighty's saying: Truly is in the accusative case as a source, and it was said that it is in the accusative case as a direct object, meaning that He made the will a right upon the righteous the believers.

180- It is prescribed for you, when death approaches one of you meaning its causes are present and its signs appear. If he leaves behind wealth meaning money. It was said a lot of money, because it was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that a slave of his wanted to make a will and he had seven hundred dirhams, but he prevented him and said: God, the Most High, said, If he leaves behind wealth and wealth is a lot of money. And on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, that a man wanted to make a will, so she asked him how much money he had, and he said, Three thousand. She said, How many are your dependents? He said,

Four. She said, God, the Most High, said, If he leaves behind wealth and that this is a small thing, so leave it for your dependents. "The will is for parents and relatives is raised by wrote, and the masculine of its action is for separation, or on the interpretation that he wills, or the will, and that is why the referent was mentioned in His statement, So whoever changes it. The agent in if is the meaning of wrote", not the will, because it precedes it. It was said that it is a subject and its predicate is for the parents, and the sentence is the answer to the condition by implying the fa, like his saying:

Whoever does good deeds, God will reward them, and evil is recompensed for evil in the sight of God.

It was replied that if it is true, it is one of the necessities of poetry. This ruling was in the beginning of Islam, but it was abrogated by the verse on inheritance and by the saying of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): "Indeed, God has given the one who has a right his right. Beware, there is no bequest for an heir." There is a view on this, because the verse on inheritance does not contradict it, but rather confirms it in that it indicates the priority of the bequest in general, and the hadith is from the individual narrators, and the acceptance of the ummah of it does not make it equal to the mutawatir. Perhaps he who interpreted the bequest as what God has commanded of the inheritance of parents and relatives has reserved it by saying: God commands you. Or as the bequest of the dying person to them to provide what God has commanded them to do in a reasonable manner with justice, so that he does not give preference to the rich, nor does he exceed a third. A right upon the righteous is a confirmed source, meaning that is a right.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:181

So whoever changes it after he has heard it, then the sin is only upon those who change it. Indeed, Allah is Hearing and Knowing.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:181

So whoever changes it after he has heard it, then the sin is only upon those who change it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

So whoever changes it meaning the will from a witness or a testator after he has heard it knowing it then his sin meaning the changed will is only upon those who change it in it the apparent is used in place of the implicit Indeed, God is Hearing of the statement of the testator Knowing of the action of the testator, so it is a punishment for him.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by that: Whoever changes what the testator has bequeathed - of his bequest to his parents or relatives who do not inherit from him - after he has heard the bequest, then the sin of the change is upon the one who changes his bequest. If someone were to ask us: And what is the reason for the return of the ha' in His statement: So whoever changes it? It would be said: It is upon something omitted from the statement that is indicated by the apparent meaning. That is the matter of the deceased, and his bequest to the one to whom he bequeathed, what he bequeathed, to the one to whom he bequeathed. The meaning of the statement is: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest to parents and relatives according to what is acceptable - a duty upon the righteous. So make bequests to them, and whoever changes what you bequeathed to them after he has heard you bequeathing to them, then the sin of what he did is upon him and not you. We said that the ha' in His statement: So whoever changes it refers to something omitted from the statement that is indicated by the apparent meaning, because His statement: It is prescribed for you when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, that he make a bequest is from the statement of God, and that the replacement of what is replaced is only for the testator's will. As for God's command to make a will, neither he nor anyone else is able to give it, so it is possible that the ha' in His statement: So whoever changes it refers to the bequest. As for the ha' in His statement: After he heard it, it refers to the first ha' in His statement: So whoever changes it.

As for the ha' in his statement: Then his sin is only, it is a possible substitute, as if he said: The sin of what was substituted from that is only upon those who substitute it. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that. Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said,

Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Then whoever substitutes it after he has heard it, he said: The will. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: But whoever alters it after he has heard it, then the sin is upon those who alter it, and the reward of the testator falls upon God and he is absolved of his sin. If he had made a will to cause harm, then his will is not permissible, as God said: Not to cause harm (An-Nisa': 12) - Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: But whoever alters it after he has heard it, he said: Whoever alters the will after he has heard it, then the sin of what he altered is upon him. Musa bin Harun narrated to us, he said: Amr bin Hammad narrated to us, he said: Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: But whoever alters it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who alter it. So whoever alters the will that he had left behind, and it was in an acceptable manner, then its sin is only upon those who altered it. Indeed, he has wronged. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said: Hajjaj bin Al-Minhal narrated to us, he said: Hammad narrated to us, on the authority of Qatadah, that Ata bin Abi Rabah said regarding the statement of God: But whoever alters it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who alter it, he said: It should be as he said. Sufyan bin Wakee' narrated to us, he said: My father narrated to us, on the authority of Yazid bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Al-Hasan: But whoever alters it after he has heard it, he said: Whoever alters a will after he has heard it. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Yazid bin Ibrahim told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding this verse: But whoever changes it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who changed it, he said: This is about the will, whoever changes it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who changed it. Ibn Bashir and Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, they said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ata', Salim bin Abdullah and Sulayman bin Yasar said: The will is carried out for the one to whom it was bequeathed - Ibn Al-Muthanna's hadith ends here, and Ibn Bashir added to his hadith - Qatada said: Abdullah bin Muammar said: I would like it if he bequeathed it to his relatives, but I would not like it to be taken away from the one to whom he bequeathed it. Qatada said: And I would like it for the one to whom he bequeathed it, God the Almighty said: But whoever alters it after he has heard it, then the sin is only upon those who alter it. Abu Ja'far said: By that God the Almighty meant: Indeed, God is Hearing - of your will that I commanded you to bequeath to your fathers and relatives when you bequeath it, are you just in it according to what I have permitted you to do in terms of doing that in a good manner, or are you being unjust and deviating from the truth and acting unjustly? - Knowing of what your hearts conceal of inclination towards the truth, and enmity, or injustice and oppression.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "But whoever changes it after he has heard it, then the sin is only upon those who have changed it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing."

There are four issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: So whoever changes it is a condition, and its answer is Then the sin is only upon those who change it and what is a collective noun for in about the action. And his sin is raised by the beginning, upon those who change it is the place of the predicate. The pronoun in badalahu refers to the will, because the will is in the meaning of the will, and likewise the pronoun in hears it, and it is like His saying: So whoever receives an admonition from his Lord meaning admonition, and His saying: And when he attends the division meaning the money, as evidenced by His saying from it. And similar to it is the saying of the poet:

What is this sound?

Any shout. Imru Al-Qais said:

A dream come true for a girl like a crazy person

The swollen, leafy one, which is the softest, went to the rod and left the word kharoobah. And his hearing may have been from the executor himself, and it may have been from someone who could prove it to him, and that is two just men. And the pronoun in his sin refers to the change, meaning the sin of the change is on the one who was changed, not on the dead person, because the testator was exempted from blame by the will and it was directed at the heir or guardian. And it was said: If this testator changed and left the will or did not perform it as prescribed for him in the law, then the sin is upon him.

Second: This verse is evidence that if a deceased person bequeaths a debt, it will be removed from his responsibility and the guardian will obtain what he is required to pay. He will be rewarded for paying it, but he will bear the burden of delaying it. Judge Abu Bakr Ibn al-Arabi said: This is only valid if the deceased did not neglect to pay it. However, if he was able to pay it and left it and then bequeathed it, then the guardian's neglect of it will not remove it from his responsibility.

Third: There is no disagreement that if he bequeaths something that is not permissible, such as bequeathing wine, pork, or something sinful, then it is permissible to change it but it is not permissible to carry it out, just as it is not permissible to carry out what exceeds a third, as Abu Omar said.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is All-Hearing, All-Knowing. These are two attributes of God Almighty that do not conceal anything about the injustice of those who recommend and the change of those who transgress.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse included the command to make a will for parents and relatives, and this was obligatory according to the most correct of the two opinions before the revelation of the verse of inheritance. When the verse of inheritance was revealed, this was abrogated, and the inheritances that were determined became an obligation from God that those who deserved it would take without a will and did not bear the favor of the testator. For this reason, it was stated in the hadith in the Sunan and elsewhere on the authority of Amr ibn Kharijah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, giving a sermon and he said: God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no will for an heir. Imam Ahmad said: Ismail ibn Ibrahim ibn Aliyah told us on the authority of Yunus ibn Ubayd on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: Ibn Abbas sat and recited Surat Al-Baqarah until he came to this verse: If he leaves wealth, a bequest to parents and relatives. He said: This verse was abrogated. Saeed ibn Mansur narrated it likewise, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Yunus, and Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak, and he said: It is authentic according to their conditions. Ali ibn Abu Talha on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, The bequest is for parents and near relatives, said: No one inherits with the parents except for the bequest for the near relatives, so God revealed the verse of inheritance, so He explained the inheritance of the parents and approved the bequest of the near relatives in one-third of the deceased's wealth. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj bin Muhammad told us, Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata' told us on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, The bequest is for parents and near relatives: This verse abrogated it: For men is a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, and for women is a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, whether it be little or much - an obligatory share. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said, and it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, Abu Musa, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Hasan, Mujahid, Ata', Saeed bin Jubayr, Muhammad bin Sirin, Ikrimah, Zaid bin Aslam, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Qatadah, Al-Suddi, Muqatil bin Hayyan, Tawus, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Shuraih, Al-Dahhak and Al-Zuhri: that this verse is abrogated, abrogated by The verse of inheritance and the wonder of Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Omar Al-Razi, may God have mercy on him, how he narrated in his great interpretation on the authority of Abu Muslim Al-Isfahani that this verse is not abrogated, but rather it is explained by the verse of inheritance, and its meaning is that what God has commanded of inheritance from parents and relatives has been prescribed for you from His saying, God commands you concerning your children. He said: And this is the saying of most of the interpreters and respected jurists. He said: And among them are those who said: It is abrogated in those who inherit, but it is established in those who do not inherit, and this is the doctrine of Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, Masruq, Tawus, Al-Dahhak, Muslim bin Yasar, and Al-Ala bin Ziyad. I said And this is also what Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Qatadah and

Muqatil bin Hayyan said. However, according to the opinion of these people, this is not called abrogation in our later terminology, because the verse of inheritance only lifted the ruling of some individuals indicated by the generality of the verse of will, because the closest relatives are more general than those who inherit and do not inherit, so the ruling of those who inherit was lifted according to what was specified for them, and the other remained as indicated by the first verse. This is only possible according to the opinion of some of them: that the will at the beginning of Islam was only recommended until it was abrogated. As for those who say: that it was obligatory, which is apparent from the context of the verse, then it must be abrogated by the verse of inheritance, as most of the commentators and respected jurists said, because the obligation of the will for the parents and the closest inheritors is abrogated by consensus, rather it is forbidden according to the previous hadith: Indeed, God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no will for an heir. So the verse of inheritance is an independent ruling and an obligation from God for the people of the obligatory shares and the agnates, by which the ruling of these is lifted. In general, the relatives who do not have an inheritance are recommended to bequeath to them from a third, based on the verse of the will and its comprehensiveness, and because it was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is not right for a Muslim who has something to bequeath to spend two nights without having his will written with him. Ibn Umar said: Not a night has passed since I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say that without me having my will with me. The verses and hadiths commanding kindness to relatives and treating them well are very numerous. Abd bin Hamid said in his Musnad: "Abdullah told us on the authority of Mubarak bin Hassan, on the authority of Nafi', who said: Abdullah said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God Almighty says: O son of Adam, two things, neither of which is yours: I made for you a share in your wealth when I took you by the throat to purify you and make you pure with it, and the prayers of My servants upon you after your term has passed." His statement, If he leaves behind good, means wealth, was said by Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ata', Sa'id bin Jubayr, Abu al-A'liyyah, Atiyah al-Awfi, al-Dahhak, al-Suddi, and al-Rabi'. Ibn Anas, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, Qatadah and others. Then some of them said: The will is permissible whether the money is little or much, like inheritance. And some of them said: He only makes a will if he leaves behind a large amount of money. Then they differed about its amount. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Maqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, who said: It was said to Ali, may God be pleased with him: A man from Quraysh died and left behind three hundred or four hundred dinars and did not make a will. He said: It is nothing. God only said: If he leaves behind good. He also said: Harun ibn Ishaq al-Hamadani told us, Abduh, meaning Ibn Sulayman, told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father: Ali entered upon a man from his people to visit him, so he said to him: Should I make a will? Ali said to him: God said, If he leaves behind any good, a bequest. He only left behind a small amount, so leave it for your father. Al-Hakim said: Aban told me on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, If he leaves behind any good. Ibn Abbas said: He who does not leave behind sixty dinars has not left behind any good. Al-Hakim said: Tawus said: He who does not leave behind eighty dinars has not left behind any good. Qatada said: It was said: A thousand or more. And his saying with kindness means with gentleness and kindness, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashir told us, Surur bin Al-Mughira told me on the authority of Ibad bin Mansour on the authority of Al-Hasan, his saying: It is prescribed for you when death approaches one of you, he said: Yes, a will is a right upon every Muslim to make a will when death approaches him with kindness and not evil. What is meant by kindness is that he makes a will for his relatives that does not oppress his heirs, without extravagance or stinginess, as is proven in the two Sahihs: "Saad said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and no one inherits from me except my daughter, so should I bequeath two-thirds of my wealth? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: Then a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. If you leave your heirs rich, it is better than leaving them poor, supporting people." And in Sahih Al-Bukhari, Ibn Abbas said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. And Imam Ahmad narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed, the client of Banu Hashim, on the authority of Ziyad bin Utbah bin Hanzala, heard Hanzala bin Judhaym bin Hanifa: His grandfather Hanifa bequeathed one hundred camels to an orphan in his care. This was difficult for his sons, so they went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Hanifa said: I bequeathed one hundred camels to an orphan of mine, which we used to call a mount. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No, no, no, the charity is five, otherwise ten, otherwise fifteen, otherwise twenty, otherwise twenty-five, otherwise thirty, otherwise thirty-five, and if it is more, then forty. And he mentioned the hadith in full.

And His statement, "But whoever changes it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who change it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing." God the Almighty says: So whoever changes the will and distorts it, changing its ruling and adding to it or subtracting from it, and this includes concealing it by way of priority, then his sin is only upon those who change it. Ibn Abbas and others said: The reward of the deceased has fallen upon God, and the sin is attached to those who changed it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing. That is, He has seen what the deceased has bequeathed and He is aware of that and what the legatees have changed. And God the Almighty says, But whoever fears from a testator injustice or sin, Ibn Abbas, Abu al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and al-Suddi said: Injustice is an error, and this includes all types of error, such as adding an heir by way of intermediary or means, such as if he bequeathed the sale of a certain thing out of favoritism or bequeathed to his daughter's son to increase it or something similar from the means, either by mistake and not intentionally but by his nature and the strength of his compassion without insight, or intentionally. A sinner in that, so the guardian in this case, should correct the issue and amend the will in the legal manner, and change what the deceased bequeathed to what is closest to him and most similar to the matters in order to combine the intention of the testator and the legal path, and this correction and reconciliation is not a change in anything, and for this reason he linked this and explained it to the prohibition of that, so that it is known that this is not a way of that, and God knows best, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Abbas bin Al-Waleed bin Muzaid narrated to us, my father told me on the authority of Al-Awza'i, Al-Zuhri said: Urwah narrated to me on the authority of Aisha on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: What is returned from the charity of the transgressor during his life is what is returned from the will of the transgressor upon his death. And thus Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Al-Abbas bin Al-Waleed with it, Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Waleed bin Muzaid made a mistake in it, and this statement is only from Urwah, and Al-Waleed bin Muslim narrated it on the authority of Al-Awza'i, so he did not go beyond Urwah with it, and Ibn Mardawayh also said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim narrated to us, Ibrahim bin Yusuf narrated to us, Hisham bin Ammar, narrated to us Omar bin Al-Mughira, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Insolence in making a will is one of the major sins. This is also questionable in its being attributed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The best that has been reported in this regard is what Abd Al-Razzaq said: Muammar Ash'ath bin Abdullah narrated to us, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man may do the deeds of good people for seventy years, then when he makes a will, he is unfair in his will, and his deeds are concluded with evil and he enters Hell. A man may do evil deeds for seventy years, then he is just in his will, and his deeds are concluded with good deeds and he enters Paradise." Abu Hurairah said: Read if you wish: These are the limits set by God, so do not transgress them 10:13.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 181- So whoever changes it this pronoun refers to the bequest understood from the will, and likewise the pronoun in his statement: he heard it and the change is the alteration, and the pronoun in his statement: then his sin refers to the alteration understood from his statement: he changed it and this is a warning to whoever changes the bequest that is in accordance with the truth in which there is no injustice or harm, and that he will bear the sin, and the testator is not responsible for that, for he has been freed from what he was responsible for by bequeathing it.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

181. The Almighty's statement: So whoever changes it meaning changes the will in the guardians or the guardians or the witnesses after he has heard it meaning after he has heard the statement of the testator, and for this reason the metaphor was mentioned even though the will is feminine, and it was said that the metaphor refers back to the will like the Almighty's statement: But whoever receives an admonition from his Lord 275-Al-Baqarah referring the metaphor back to the admonition Then the sin is only upon those who change it and the dead person is innocent of it Indeed, God is Hearing of what the testator has bequeathed Knowing of the change that was changed, or Hearing of his will and Knowing of his intention.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

181- But whoever changes it another of the guardians and witnesses. After he has heard it meaning it has reached him and he has verified it, then the sin is upon those who change it so the sin of the changed will or the change is only upon those who change it because they are the ones who have deviated and violated the law. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing is a warning to the one who changes it unjustly.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:182

But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and brings about a settlement between them, there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:182

But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and brings about a settlement between them, there is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

But whoever fears from the testator light and heavy inclination deviation from the truth by mistake or sin by intentionally doing so by increasing the third or singling out a rich person, for example and brings about reconciliation between them between the testator and the one to whom the testator was given by commanding justice there is no sin upon him in that indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of this verse. Some of them said: Its interpretation is: If someone is present with a sick person who is making a will when he is on the verge of death, and he fears that he may make a mistake in his will and do something that is not his, or that he may deliberately commit injustice in it and order something that he is not entitled to order, then there is no blame on the one who is present with him and hears that from him to reconcile between him and his heirs, by ordering him to be just in his will, and to forbid them from preventing him from what God has permitted and made permissible for him. Mention of those who said that: Muhammad ibn 'Amr told me, he said, Abu 'Asim told us, he said, 'Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Najeh,

On the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: "But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and makes peace between them, there is no sin upon him," he said: This is when a man is about to die, so if he commits an act of excess, they order him to be just, and if he falls short, they say: Do such-and-such, give such-and-such to such-and-such. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said: Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator, he said: This is when a man is about to die, so if he is on the verge of injustice, they order him to be just, and if he falls short of what is right, they say: Do such-and-such, give such-and-such to such-and-such. Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Whoever fears - from the guardians of a dead person, or the ruler of the Muslims - injustice on the part of a testator.

In his will that the deceased left behind, he reconciled between his heirs and the legatees with what he left behind, so he restored the will to justice and truth, so there is no blame or sin. Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, Abu Salih, the scribe of Al-Layth, told us, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: But whoever fears from a testator injustice - meaning: sin - he says: If the deceased makes a mistake in his will or deviates in it, then there is no blame on the guardians if they restore his mistake to what is correct.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But if a testator fears injustice or wrongdoing, he said: It is the man who makes a will and is unjust in his will, so the guardian returns it to truth and justice. Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: But if a testator fears injustice or wrongdoing, Qatada used to say: Whoever makes a will, and the guardian of the deceased or one of the leaders of the Muslims returns it to the Book of God and to justice, then that is for him. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Saad and Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator, so if someone makes an unjust will, and the executor returns it to the right path after his death, then there is no sin upon him. Abd al-Rahman said in his hadith: "And make peace between them," meaning: the executor returns it to the right path after his death, then there is no sin upon him. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Qubaysah told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibrahim: "But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator, then make peace between them," he said: bring him back to the right path. Ahmad ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Masruq, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: I asked him about a man who bequeathed more than a third. He said: Return it. Then he recited: But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator. Amr bin Ali narrated, Khalid bin Zaid, the author of Al-Lulu, narrated, Abu Jaafar Al-Razi narrated, on the authority of Qatada bin Anas: But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and reconciles between them, there is no sin upon him, meaning: The executor returns him to his right after his death, so there is no sin upon the executor. Some of them said: Rather, the meaning of this is: If someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator in giving some of his heirs at the time of his death without giving others, there is no sin upon the one who reconciles between them, meaning: between the heirs. Those who said this: Al-Qasim narrated, Al-Hussein narrated, Hajjaj narrated, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I said to Ata', regarding his statement: But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator, he said: A man commits injustice or wrongdoing at his death, so he gives to his heirs some of them without giving others, God says: There is no sin upon the one who reconciles between them. So I said to Ata': Does he have the right to give to his heirs at the time of his death? It is only a will, and there is no will for an heir? He said: That is in what is divided among them. Others said: The meaning of that is: If a testator fears injustice or sin in his will to someone who does not inherit from him, in a way that benefits those who inherit from him, and he reconciles between his heirs, then there is no sin upon him. Those who said that: Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said, Ibn Tawus told me, on the authority of his father that he used to say: His injustice and sin is for a man to bequeath to his son's sons so that the money is for their father, and a woman to bequeath to her daughter's husband so that the money is for her daughter? And the one who has a large inheritor but little money, so he bequeaths a third of his entire money, and the legatee or the prince reconciles between them. I said: During his life or after his death? He said: We did not hear anyone say this except after his death, and he was admonished at that time. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told me: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, regarding his statement: "But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and makes peace between them," he said: It is the man who makes a will for his daughter's son. Others said: Rather the meaning of this is: If someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator for his fathers and relatives, and makes peace between the fathers and relatives, then there is no sin upon him.

Mention of those who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: "But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and makes peace between them, there is no sin upon him." As for wrongdoing, he is making a mistake in his will. As for sin, he is deliberately doing injustice in his will. This is greater for his reward than not executing it, but making peace between them according to what he sees as right, decreasing some and increasing others. He said: This verse was revealed regarding the parents and the closest relatives. Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: "But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and makes peace between them, there is no sin upon him," he said: Injustice is when he treats some of them unfairly in the will, and sin is when he has sinned with regard to his parents, "and makes peace between them," the one to whom the will is made is between the parents and the closest relatives - the son and the sons are the closest relatives - so there is no sin upon him. Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of the verse is that whoever fears from the testator a deviation or sin - which is that he will incline towards something other than what is right by mistake on his part, or intentionally commits a sin in his will, by bequeathing to his parents and relatives who do not inherit from him more than what he is permitted to bequeath to them from his money, and other than what God has permitted him to do of what exceeds a third or a full third, and there is little money, and there is a lot of heirs - then there is no harm in whoever is present to reconcile between those to whom the will is being bequeathed, and between the heirs of the deceased, and between the deceased, by ordering the deceased to do what is right and informing him of what God has permitted him to do in his will and what God has permitted him to do in his will regarding his money, and forbidding him to exceed in his will what is right about which God Almighty said in His Book: It is prescribed for you, O Muhammad, to do what is right. If death approaches one of you, if he leaves wealth, he should make a bequest to his parents and relatives according to what is acceptable. This is the reconciliation that God the Most High said: "Then make peace between them, for there is no sin upon him." Likewise, for someone who has a surplus and abundant wealth and few heirs, and he wants to limit his bequest to his parents and relatives to one-third, he should make peace between himself and his heirs and his parents and relatives to whom he wants to make a bequest, by ordering the sick person to increase his bequest to them, and to make it what God has permitted of one-third. This is also from making peace between them according to what is acceptable. We have chosen this statement because God the Most High said: But if someone fears from a testator injustice or sin, meaning: if someone fears from a testator that he will commit injustice or sin. Fear of injustice and sin from the testator only occurs before the injustice and sin occur. However, after it occurs from him, there is no reason to fear that he will commit injustice or sin. Rather, this is the case of someone who has committed injustice or sin. If that was the meaning, it would have been said: "Whoever is proven to have committed a wrongdoing or a sin - or is certain or aware of it - and not: whoever fears wrongdoing from him." If what we have said is unclear to some people, then they say: What is the point of reconciliation in that case, and reconciliation is only between those who differ in something? It is said: "Even if that is one of the meanings of reconciliation, reconciliation is reconciliation between the two parties, in what was feared to happen between them, in a way that ensures that there will be no difference." Because reconciliation is the action that brings about reconciliation between the two parties, whether that action brings about reconciliation between them - before the difference occurs or after it occurs. If someone says: "How is it that it was said: 'So he made peace between them', and neither the heirs nor the differing parties, or the feared ones, were mentioned?" It is said: Rather, those whom God, the Most High, commanded to be bequeathed were mentioned, and they are the parents of the testator and his relatives, and those who...

They were commanded to make a will in His statement: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest to parents and relatives, according to what is acceptable. Then the Most High said: But whoever fears from the testator - to whom you commanded him to make a will - "injustice or sin, and make peace between them" - and between whom you commanded him to make a will - there is no sin upon him. And making peace between him and them is making peace between them and the heirs of the testator. Abu Ja'far said: His statement: But whoever fears from the testator has been read with a lightened sad and a sukoon on the waw - and with a fatha on the waw and a shaddah on the sad. Whoever reads that with a lightened sad and a sukoon on the waw, has read it in the language of someone who says: I bequeathed such-and-such to so-and-so. Whoever reads with a fatha on the waw and a shaddah on the sad, has read it in the language of someone who says: I bequeathed such-and-such to so-and-so. And whoever reads with a fatha on the waw and a shaddah on the sad, has read it in the language of someone who says: I bequeathed such-and-such to so-and-so. These are two well-known dialects of the Arabs: Wasitaka and Awsitaka. As for injustice, it is injustice and deviation from the truth in the speech of the Arabs, and from it is the saying of the poet:

They are our masters, even if they are unfair to us. We are indeed afraid of meeting them.

It is said: A man was unfair to his friend, if he leaned against him and was unjust to him - unfairness. So the meaning of the statement is whoever fears that the testator will be unfair to him in the matter of the will, and deviate from the right path in it, and deviate from the intention or sin by doing that deliberately with knowledge of the error of what he will do from that, so he reconciles between them, then there is no sin upon him. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about the meaning of unfairness and sin. Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: But whoever fears from a testator unfairness, he means by unfairness: error. Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Jabir bin Nuh told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Ata': But whoever fears from a testator unfairness, he said: Deviation. Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata', similarly. Amr bin Ali told us, he said, Khalid bin Al-Harith and Yazid bin Harun told us, they said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata', similarly.

Yaqub told me, Hisham told us, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, who said: Janf is a mistake, and sin is deliberate. Ahmad ibn Ishaq Al-Ahwazi told us, who said: Abu Ahmad Az-Zubayri told us, who said: Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Ata', similarly. Musa told me, who said: Amr told us, who said: Asbat told us, on the authority of As-Suddi: So whoever fears from a testator injustice or sin. As for janf, it is a mistake in his will, and as for sin, it is deliberate, he intentionally wrongs his will. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: But if a testator fears injustice or sin, he said: By mistake or intentionally. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Sa'd and Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Qatada: But if a testator fears injustice or sin, he said: Injustice is by mistake, and sin is intentional. Amr ibn Ali told us, he said, Khalid ibn Yazid, the companion of Al-Lulu', he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Qatada ibn Anas, similarly. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Qubaysah told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibrahim: But if a testator fears injustice or sin, he said: Injustice is by mistake, and sin is intentional. Ahmad ibn Ishaq narrated to us, Abu Ahmad narrated to us, Fadil ibn Marzuq narrated to us, on the authority of Atiyah: But whoever fears from a testator deviation, he said: a mistake, or sin, intentionally. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said: Ishaq narrated to us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Uyaynah, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father: But whoever fears from a testator deviation, he said: a deviation. Yunus narrated to me, he said: Ibn Wahb narrated to us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Deviation is injustice, and sin is his inclination of one towards another. And all of it comes to one, just as it can be pardoning and forgiving and forgiving and merciful. Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said: Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said: Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: Ibn Abbas said: deviation is a mistake, and sin is intentional. I was told by Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj, he said: Al-Fadl ibn Khalid narrated to us, he said: Ubayd ibn Sulayman narrated to us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, he said: deviation is a mistake, and sin is intentional. As for his saying: Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful, it means: God is Forgiving of the testator, regarding what his soul has thought of of injustice and sin, if he has left it to sin and be unjust in his will, and has overlooked for him what his soul has thought of of injustice, since that did not happen and he did not neglect to hold him accountable for it, Merciful in reconciling between the testator and whoever wanted to wrong him for someone else, or sin for him in it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "But if anyone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and brings about a settlement between them, there is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful."

There are six issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: So whoever fears from a condition, and fear means feared. It was said: knew. The original is fear, the waw was changed to an alif because it is moving and what precedes it is moving. The people of Kufa incline fear to indicate the kasra of fa'ala. From muwas with emphasis, the reading of Abu Bakr from Asim, Hamza and al-Kisa'i, and the rest lightened it, and lightening is clearer, because most grammarians say muwas for multiplication. It may be permissible for it to be like karama and akram. Janfan from janafa yajnaf if he is unfair, and the noun from it is jinnaf and janaf, from an-Nahhas. It was said: janf is inclination. Al-A'ash said:

My camel turned away from the stone of Yamamah, and I did not seek anyone from its people except you.

In Al-Sahah: Al-Janf means inclination. And it is said that Janfah with a kasra means to lean, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: But whoever fears from a testator deviation The poet said:

They are our masters, even if they are unfair to us. We are indeed afraid of meeting them.

Abu Ubaidah said: The mawla here is in the place of the mawālī, meaning the paternal cousins, as in the Almighty's saying: Then He brings you forth as a child. And Labid said:

I am a man who has prevented the descendants of Amir from oppressing me, and my enemies have wronged me.

Abu Ubaidah said: "Likewise, the jinni' with a hamza is also the one who leans. It is said: a man is ajnaf, meaning he came with the junuf. Just as it is said: alaam, meaning he came with something he is blamed for. And akhs, meaning he came with a base thing. And tajanaf lithman, meaning he leaned. And a man is ajnaf, meaning he has a bent back. And janfa on fa'la with a damma on the fa' and a fatha on the 'ayn: is the name of a place, on the authority of Ibn al-Sikkit. It was narrated on the authority of Ali that he read haifa with a ha' and a ya', meaning oppression. Mujahid said: "So whoever fears" means whoever fears that the testator will be ajnaf and cut off the inheritance of a group and intentionally harm them, or come to them without intention, and that is the junf without sin, but if he does it intentionally, then it is the junf in sin. So the meaning is whoever is admonished about that and it is returned from him, so he reconciles with that what is between him and his heirs and between the heirs themselves, then there is no sin upon him. Indeed, God is Forgiving of the testator if he is admonished and he refrains from what he intended of harm. Ibn Abbas, Qatada, Al-Rabi' and others said: The meaning of the verse is: "Whoever fears, knows, sees, and his knowledge comes to him after the death of the testator that the testator has been unjust and deliberately harmed some of his heirs, and he corrects the confusion and discord that occurred between the heirs, "there is no sin upon him," meaning that the sin of the previously mentioned change will not befall him. Even if there is some change in his action, it is a change for the sake of benefit. The change in which there is sin is only a change of desire.

Second: The address in His saying: But whoever fears is to all Muslims. It was said to them: If you fear that a testator will deviate in his will and go away from the truth and fall into sin and he does not spend it in a reasonable manner, such as by bequeathing the money to his daughter's husband or to his daughter's son so that the money goes to his daughter, or to his son's son with the intention that the money goes to his son, or he bequeathed to someone distant and left out the one who is close, then hasten to strive to reconcile between them. If reconciliation occurs, the sin is dropped from the one who reconciled. Reconciliation is a communal obligation, so if one of them does it, it is dropped from the rest, but if they do not do it, then everyone is sinful.

Third: This verse is evidence of ruling based on suspicion, because if corruption is suspected, then it is necessary to strive for reform. If corruption is confirmed, then it is not a reconciliation, but rather a ruling to repel, nullify and put an end to corruption.

The Almighty's saying: "Then make peace between them" is in apposition to feared, and the metaphor refers to the heirs. They were not mentioned because the meaning was known, and the answer to the condition is that there is no sin upon him.

Fourth: There is no disagreement that charity when alive and healthy is better than charity when dead, based on the statement of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, when he was asked: Which charity is best? He said: If you give charity when you are healthy and stingy. The hadith was narrated by the people of Sahih. Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri that the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, said:

It is better for a person to give charity of one dirham during his life than to give charity of one hundred at his death. Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu al-Darda' that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The example of the one who spends or gives charity at the time of his death is like the example of the one who gives gifts after he is full.

Fifth: If someone does not cause harm in his will, it is an expiation for what he left behind of his zakat. Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Muawiyah bin Qurrah on the authority of his father who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever is on the verge of death and makes a will, and his will is in accordance with the Book of God, it will be an expiation for what he left behind of zakat. If there is harm in the will, which is:

Sixth: Al-Darqutni also narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

Harming in a will is a major sin. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

A man or woman may work in obedience to God for sixty years, then death comes to them and they are harmed in their will, so Hell is obligatory for them.

Al-Nasa'i included a translation of the prayer for one who deviates in his will: Ali ibn Hajar informed us, Hisham informed us, on the authority of Mansur, who is Ibn Zadan, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Amrat ibn Husayn, may God be pleased with him:

"A man freed six of his slaves when he died, and he had no other wealth. report of that reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he became angry and said: 'I was thinking of not praying over him.' Then he called his slaves and divided them into three parts. Then he cast lots among them, so he freed two and enslaved four." Muslim narrated it with the same meaning, except that he said at the end: And he said to him a harsh word, instead of saying: I was thinking of not praying over him.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse included the command to make a will for parents and relatives, and this was obligatory according to the most correct of the two opinions before the revelation of the verse of inheritance. When the verse of inheritance was revealed, this was abrogated, and the inheritances that were determined became an obligation from God that those who deserved it would take without a will and did not bear the favor of the testator. For this reason, it was stated in the hadith in the Sunan and elsewhere on the authority of Amr ibn Kharijah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, giving a sermon and he said: God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no will for an heir. Imam Ahmad said: Ismail ibn Ibrahim ibn Aliyah told us on the authority of Yunus ibn Ubayd on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: Ibn Abbas sat and recited Surat Al-Baqarah until he came to this verse: If he leaves wealth, a bequest to parents and relatives. He said: This verse was abrogated. Saeed ibn Mansur narrated it likewise, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Yunus, and Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak, and he said: It is authentic according to their conditions. Ali ibn Abu Talha on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, The bequest is for parents and near relatives, said: No one inherits with the parents except for the bequest for the near relatives, so God revealed the verse of inheritance, so He explained the inheritance of the parents and approved the bequest of the near relatives in one-third of the deceased's wealth. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj bin Muhammad told us, Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata' told us on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement, The bequest is for parents and near relatives: This verse abrogated it: For men is a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, and for women is a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, whether it be little or much - an obligatory share. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said, and it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, Abu Musa, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Hasan, Mujahid, Ata', Saeed bin Jubayr, Muhammad bin Sirin, Ikrimah, Zaid bin Aslam, Al-Rabi' bin Anas, Qatadah, Al-Suddi, Muqatil bin Hayyan, Tawus, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Shuraih, Al-Dahhak and Al-Zuhri: that this verse is abrogated, abrogated by The verse of inheritance and the wonder of Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Omar Al-Razi, may God have mercy on him, how he narrated in his great interpretation on the authority of Abu Muslim Al-Isfahani that this verse is not abrogated, but rather it is explained by the verse of inheritance, and its meaning is that what God has commanded of inheritance from parents and relatives has been prescribed for you from His saying, God commands you concerning your children. He said: And this is the saying of most of the interpreters and respected jurists. He said: And among them are those who said: It is abrogated in those who inherit, but it is established in those who do not inherit, and this is the doctrine of Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, Masruq, Tawus, Al-Dahhak, Muslim bin Yasar, and Al-Ala bin Ziyad. I said And this is also what Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Rabi bin Anas, Qatadah and Muqatil bin Hayyan said. However, according to the opinion of these people, this is not called abrogation in our later terminology, because the verse of inheritance only lifted the ruling of some individuals indicated by the generality of the verse of will, because the closest relatives are more general than those who inherit and do not inherit, so the ruling of those who inherit was lifted according to what was specified for them, and the other remained as indicated by the first verse. This is only possible according to the opinion of some of them: that the will at the beginning of Islam was only recommended until it was abrogated. As for those who say: that it was obligatory, which is apparent from the context of the verse, then it must be abrogated by the verse of inheritance, as most of the commentators and respected jurists said, because the obligation of the will for the parents and the closest inheritors is abrogated by consensus, rather it is forbidden according to the previous hadith: Indeed, God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no will for an heir. So the verse of inheritance is an independent ruling and an obligation from God for the people of the obligatory shares and the agnates, by which the ruling of these is lifted. In general, the relatives who do not have an inheritance are recommended to bequeath to them from a third, based on the verse of the will and its comprehensiveness, and because it was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is not right for a Muslim who has something to bequeath to spend two nights without having his will written with him. Ibn Umar said: Not a night has passed since I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say that without me having my will with me. The verses and hadiths commanding kindness to relatives and treating them well are very numerous. Abd bin Hamid said in his Musnad: "Abdullah told us on the authority of Mubarak bin Hassan, on the authority of Nafi', who said: Abdullah said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God Almighty says: O son of Adam, two things, neither of which is yours: I made for you a share in your wealth when I took you by the throat to purify you and make you pure with it, and the prayers of My servants upon you after your term has passed." His statement, If he leaves behind good, means wealth, was said by Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ata', Sa'id bin Jubayr, Abu al-A'liyyah, Atiyah al-Awfi, al-Dahhak, al-Suddi, and al-Rabi'. Ibn Anas, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, Qatadah and others. Then some of them said: The will is permissible whether the money is little or much, like inheritance. And some of them said: He only makes a will if he leaves behind a large amount of money. Then they differed about its amount. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Maqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, who said: It was said to Ali, may God be pleased with him: A man from Quraysh died and left behind three hundred or four hundred dinars and did not make a will. He said: It is nothing. God only said: If he leaves behind good. He also said: Harun ibn Ishaq al-Hamadani told us, Abduh, meaning Ibn Sulayman, told us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father: Ali entered upon a man from his people to visit him, so he said to him: Should I make a will? Ali said to him: God said, If he leaves behind any good, a bequest. He only left behind a small amount, so leave it for your father. Al-Hakim said: Aban told me on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, If he leaves behind any good. Ibn Abbas said: He who does not leave behind sixty dinars has not left behind any good. Al-Hakim said: Tawus said: He who does not leave behind eighty dinars has not left behind any good. Qatada said: It was said: A thousand or more. And his saying with kindness means with gentleness and kindness, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Ahmad told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin Bashir told us, Surur bin Al-Mughira told me on the authority of Ibad bin Mansour on the authority of Al-Hasan, his saying: It is prescribed for you when death approaches one of you, he said: Yes, a will is a right upon every Muslim to make a will when death approaches him with kindness and not evil. What is meant by kindness is that he makes a will for his relatives that does not oppress his heirs, without extravagance or stinginess, as is proven in the two Sahih's: "Saad said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and no one inherits from me except my daughter, so should I bequeath two-thirds of my wealth? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: Then a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. If you leave your heirs rich, it is better than leaving them poor, supporting people." And in Sahih Al-Bukhari, Ibn Abbas said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. And Imam Ahmad narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed, the client of Banu Hashim, on the authority of Ziyad bin Utbah bin Hanzala, heard Hanzala bin Judhaym bin Hanifa: His grandfather Hanifa bequeathed one hundred camels to an orphan in his care. This was difficult for his sons, so they went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Hanifa said: I bequeathed one hundred camels to an orphan of mine, which we used to call a mount. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No, no, no, the charity is five, otherwise ten, otherwise fifteen, otherwise twenty, otherwise twenty-five, otherwise thirty, otherwise thirty-five, and if it is more, then forty. And he mentioned the hadith in full.

And His statement, "But whoever changes it after he has heard it, then his sin is only upon those who change it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing." God the Almighty says: So whoever changes the will and distorts it, changing its ruling and adding to it or subtracting from it, and this includes concealing it by way of priority, then his sin is only upon those who change it. Ibn Abbas and others said: The reward of the deceased has fallen upon God, and the sin is attached to those who changed it. Indeed, God is Hearing and Knowing. That is, He has seen what the deceased has bequeathed and He is aware of that and what the legatees have changed. And God the Almighty says, But whoever fears from a testator injustice or sin, Ibn Abbas, Abu al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and al-Suddi said: Injustice is an error, and this includes all types of error, such as adding an heir by way of intermediary or means, such as if he bequeathed the sale of a certain thing out of favoritism or bequeathed to his daughter's son to increase it or something similar from the means, either by mistake and not intentionally but by his nature and the strength of his compassion without insight, or intentionally. A sinner in that, so the guardian in this case, should correct the issue and amend the will in the legal manner, and change what the deceased bequeathed to what is closest to him and most similar to the matters in order to combine the intention of the testator and the legal path, and this correction and reconciliation is not a change in anything, and for this reason he linked this and explained it to the prohibition of that, so that it is known that this is not a way of that, and God knows best, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Abbas bin Al-Waleed bin Muzaid narrated to us, my father told me on the authority of Al-Awza'i, Al-Zuhri said: Urwah narrated to me on the authority of Aisha on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: What is returned from the charity of the transgressor during his life is what is returned from the will of the transgressor upon his death. And thus Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Al-Abbas bin Al-Waleed with it, Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Waleed bin Muzaid made a mistake in it, and this statement is only from Urwah, and Al-Waleed bin Muslim narrated it on the authority of Al-Awza'i, so he did not go beyond Urwah with it, and Ibn Mardawayh also said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim narrated to us, Ibrahim bin Yusuf narrated to us, Hisham bin Ammar, narrated to us Omar bin Al-Mughira, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Insolence in making a will is one of the major sins. This is also questionable in its being attributed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The best that has been reported in this regard is what Abd Al-Razzaq said: Muammar Ash'ath bin Abdullah narrated to us, on the authority of Shahr bin Hawshab, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man may do the deeds of good people for seventy years, then when he makes a will, he is unfair in his will, and his deeds are concluded with evil and he enters Hell. A man may do evil deeds for seventy years, then he is just in his will, and his deeds are concluded with good deeds and he enters Paradise." Abu Hurairah said: Read if you wish: These are the limits set by God, so do not transgress them 10:13.

Fath al-Qadir

Al-Qurtubi said: There is no disagreement that if he bequeaths something that is not permissible, such as bequeathing wine, pork, or something sinful, then it is permissible to change it, but it is not permissible to carry it out, just as it is not permissible to carry out what exceeds a third. Abu Omar said this. End quote. And janf means going beyond, from janfa yajnaf: if he goes beyond, said Al-Nahhas. It was said that janf means inclination, and from this is the saying of Al-A'sha:

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:182

But if someone fears injustice or wrongdoing on the part of a testator and brings about a settlement between them, there is no sin upon him. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Turn away from the stone of Yamamah, O young man, and I did not seek anyone from its people except you.

He said in Al-Sahah: Al-Janf means inclination, and likewise in Al-Kashshaf. And Labid said:

I am a man who has prevented the descendants of Amer from oppressing me, and my enemies have wronged me.

And his saying: 182- "So make peace between them" meaning, he made peace with what happened between the heirs of discord and disorder because of the will by nullifying what is harmful and contradictory to what God has legislated, and establishing what is right, such as a will for a good deed to a non-heir. The pronoun in his saying: between them refers to the heirs, even if they were not mentioned before, because it is known that they are the ones intended from the context. And it was said: it refers to those to whom the will was made, and they are the parents and relatives.

Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: If he leaves behind wealth, he said: Money. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Mujahid. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Whoever does not leave behind sixty dinars has not left behind wealth. Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Urwah that Ali bin Abi Talib entered upon a freed slave of theirs who was dying and he had seven hundred or six hundred dirhams and said: Should I not make a will? He said: No. Rather, God said: If he leaves behind wealth, and you do not have much wealth, so leave your wealth for your heirs. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Aisha that a man said to her: I want to make a will. She said: How much is your wealth? He said: Three thousand. She said: How many dependents do you have? He said: Four. She said: God said: If he leaves behind wealth, and this is something small, so leave it for your dependents, for that is better. Abdul Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: If the deceased leaves seven hundred dirhams, then he should not make a will. Abdul Razzaq and Abdul bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Al-Zuhri who said: God has made the will a right, whether it is small or large. Abdul Razzaq and Abdul bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Qatadah who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said and mentioned a hadith in it: Look at your relatives who are in need and do not inherit, and bequeath to them from your wealth according to what is reasonable. They also narrated on the authority of Tawus who said: Whoever makes a will to a group of people and names them and leaves his relatives in need, it will be taken from them and returned to his relatives. Saeed bin Mansour, Ahmad, Abdul bin Hamid, Abu Dawud in Al-Nasikh, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Al-Hakim - who authenticated it - and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Muhammad bin Bashir on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: This verse was abrogated. Abu Dawud narrated something similar from him in his Sunan and Al-Bayhaqi. Ibn Jarir narrated from him that he said: In the verse, it abrogated who inherits, but it did not abrogate the relatives who do not inherit. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated from Ibn Umar that he said: This verse was abrogated by the verse of inheritance. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God, But whoever changes it the verse, he said: The reward of the testator is with God and he is absolved from his sin. He said regarding the statement of God, injustice (i.e. sin), and reconcile between them (i.e., if the deceased makes a mistake in his will or deviates from it, then there is no blame on the guardians if they return his mistake to the right path. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar from Saeed ibn Jubayr, but he interpreted injustice as inclination. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: Biasal or sin, he said: By mistake or intentionally. Saeed bin Mansour and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on his authority that he said: Bias in a will and causing harm in it are among the major sins.

182. God the Almighty said: So whoever fears meaning knows, like His saying: But if you fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits set by God (229-Al-Baqarah) meaning you know from a testator Hamzah, Al-Kisa'i, Abu Bakr and Ya'qub read with a fat-ha on the waw and a shaddah on the sad, like His saying: What He enjoined upon Noah 13-Ash-Shura And We enjoined upon man 8-Al-Ankabut and the others read with a sukun on the waw and a light sad, like His saying: God instructs you concerning your children 11-An-Nisa After a bequest he may have bequeathed or debt 12-An-Nisa Janf meaning injustice and deviation from the truth, and janf is inclination or sin meaning oppression, As-Suddi, Ikrimah and Ar-Rabi' said: Jaanf is a mistake and sin is intentional So reconcile between them, there is no sin upon him and they differed in the meaning of the verse, Mujahid said: Its meaning is that if a man attends a sick person while he is making a testament and he sees him inclining either by negligence or extravagance, or by lying down. The will is not in its proper place, so there is no blame on the one who is present to order him to be just and forbid him from injustice, so he should look at the testator and the heirs. Others said: What he meant by it is that if the deceased made a mistake in his will or was unjust intentionally, then there is no blame on his guardian or his trustee or the one in charge of the affairs of the Muslims to reconcile after his death between his heirs and those to whom the will was made, and to return the will to justice and truth, so there is no sin on him, meaning: there is no blame on him. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful. Tawus said: It is a kind of injustice, which is that he should bequeath to his grandsons, meaning his son, and to his daughter's son, and to his daughter's husband, meaning his daughter.

Al-Kalbi said: The guardians and trustees would carry out the will of the deceased after the revelation of the words of God Almighty: But whoever changes it after he has heard it verse, even if all the money was used up and nothing remained. Then it was abrogated by the words of God Almighty: But if anyone fears from a testator deviation verse. Ibn Zayd said: So the testator was unable to bequeath to the parents and relatives as God Almighty commanded, and the testator was unable to reform, so God Almighty took that away from them and imposed the obligatory duties.

It was narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: A man or woman may work in obedience to God for sixty years, then death comes to them and they are harmed in their will, so Hell is obligatory for them. Then Abu Hurairah recited: after any bequest he may have made or debt to His saying without causing harm.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

182- So whoever fears a testator i.e. expects and knows, from their saying I fear that the sky will send. Hamzah, Al-Kisa'i, Ya'qub and Abu Bakr read a testator with emphasis. Janfan meaning a mistake in the will. Or sin deliberately committing injustice. So reconcile between them between those to whom the testator directed by making them follow the path of the Shari'ah. There is no sin upon him in this change, because it is a false change to the truth, unlike the first. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful is a promise to the reformer, and the mention of forgiveness is in agreement with the mention of sin and the action is of the same type as what is sinful.

Surat Al-Baqarah 2:183

O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:183

O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, decreed upon you is an obligation as it was decreed upon those before you of the nations that you may become righteous of sins, for it breaks the desire that is its beginning.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: O you who have believed, O you who have believed in God and His Messenger and have believed in them and acknowledged them.

What he means by his saying: Fasting has been prescribed for you is that fasting has been made obligatory for you. Fasting is a noun, from the saying of the speaker: I kept silent about such and such - meaning: I refrained from it - I fast from it, fasting and fasting. The meaning of fasting is to refrain from what God has commanded us to refrain from. From this it is said: The horse kept silent, if it stopped walking, and from this is the saying of the Nabigha of Banu Dhubyān:

Fasting horses, and non-fasting horses under the dust, and others chewing on the bridles

And from this is the saying of God Almighty: Indeed, I have vowed to the Most Merciful a fast (Maryam 19:26) meaning: silence from speech. And His saying: as it was decreed upon those before you, meaning that it was imposed upon you like what was imposed upon those after you.

Before you. Abu Ja'far said: Then the people of interpretation differed about those whom God meant by His saying: As it was prescribed for those before you, and about the meaning in which the likeness occurred between the obligation of our fasting and the fasting of those before us. Some of them said: Those whom God informed us about the fasting that He imposed upon us, that it is like what was upon them, are the Christians. They said: The likeness for which He likened one to the other, is their agreement in the time and amount that is obligatory for us today as an obligation. Those who said that mentioned: I was told by Yahya bin Ziyad, from Muhammad bin Abaan Al-Qurashi, from Abu Umayya Al-Tanafisi, from Al-Sha'bi that he said: If I fasted the entire year, I would break my fast on the day in which there is doubt, so it is said: From Sha'ban, and it is said: From Ramadan. That is because the month of Ramadan was imposed upon the Christians as it was imposed upon us, so they turned it into a season. That is because they sometimes fasted it in the summer, counting thirty days. Then a generation came after them and they took confidence in themselves, so they fasted before the thirty days and after it a day. Then the other continued to follow the Sunnah of the century before him until it became fifty. That is his saying:

Fasting is prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you. Others said: Rather, the comparison is only because their fasting was from the last evening prayer to the last evening prayer. That was the obligation of God, the Most High, upon the believers when He first imposed fasting upon them. Those who said this statement agreed with those who said the first statement: That those whom God, the Most High, meant by His saying: as it was prescribed for those before you, are the Christians. Those who said that mentioned: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was prescribed for those before you. As for those before us: they are the Christians, Ramadan was prescribed for them, and it was prescribed for them not to eat or drink after sleeping, and not to marry women during the month of Ramadan. So the fasting of Ramadan became difficult for the Christians, and it began to be imposed on them in the winter and summer. When they saw that, they gathered and made a fast in the season between winter and summer, and they said: We will add twenty days to atone for what we have done! So they made their fast fifty. The Muslims continued to do that, as the Christians did, until what happened with Abu Qais bin Sarmah and Umar bin Al-Khattab happened, and God made it permissible for them to eat, drink, and have sexual intercourse until dawn. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatada: Fasting has been prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you, he said: Fasting was prescribed for them from dusk to dusk. Others said: Those whom God, the Most High, meant by His saying: As it was prescribed for those before you, are the People of the Book. Those who said that were mentioned: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was prescribed for those before you, the People of the Book. Some of them said: Rather, it was for all people. Those who said that mentioned: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: Fasting has been prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you, he said: The month of Ramadan has been prescribed for people, as it was prescribed for those before them. He said: And God prescribed for people before Ramadan the fasting of three days of every month. Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was prescribed for those before you, Ramadan, God prescribed it for those who came before them. Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements is the statement of those who said: The meaning of the verse: O you who have believed, fasting has been prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you from the People of the Book, for a specified number of days, which is the entire month of Ramadan. Because after Abraham, peace be upon him, he was commanded to follow Abraham, because God Almighty had made him an imam for the people, and God Almighty has informed us that his religion was the pure Islam, so He commanded our Prophet, peace be upon him, with the same as He commanded the prophets before him. As for the likening, it was only in time. That is because those who came before us were only required to fast the month of Ramadan, just as it was imposed on us. As for the interpretation of His statement, that you may become righteous, he means by it: so that you may avoid eating food, drinking alcohol, and having intercourse with women during it. He says: Fasting and abstaining from what you would break your fast by not abstaining from, have been imposed upon you, so that you may avoid what breaks your fast during the time of your fast. And a group of the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that: Those who said that mentioned: Musa told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for His statement, that you may become righteous, he says: so that you may avoid eating, drinking, and women just as they avoided - meaning: like the Christians before you avoided.

It has six issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting. When He mentioned what was decreed upon those who are accountable regarding retaliation and wills, He also mentioned that He decreed upon them fasting and made it obligatory upon them and made it obligatory upon them, and there is no disagreement about that. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"Islam is built on five pillars: the testimony that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is the Messenger of God, establishing prayer, paying zakat, fasting Ramadan, and Hajj." Narrated by Ibn Umar. Its meaning in the language is: abstaining from moving from one state to another. Silence is called fasting because it is abstaining from speech. God the Almighty said, informing about Maryam 19: Indeed, I have vowed to the Most Merciful a fast, meaning silence from speech. Fasting is the stagnation of the wind, which is its abstention from blowing. The animal fasted on its hump: it stood and stood still and did not feed. The day fasted: it was moderate. The sun's fast is when it is at its zenith in the middle of the day. From this is the saying of Al-Nabigha:

Fasting horses, non-fasting horses in the dust, and horses chewing on bridles

Any horse that is stable and unable to run or move, as

he said:

As if the chandelier was suspended in its place

That is, it is fixed in its place and does not move. And his saying:

And the fasting girls are greedy

It means that it does not rotate.

Imru Al-Qais said:

So leave it and ask the worries away from you with a strong, humble heart when the day is fasting and deserted.

That is, the sun slowed down in moving and setting, so it became like a handicap due to its slowness.

Another said:

Even if the day fasted and became moderate and the sun began to salivate, then it descended

Another said:

Yellow-cheeked ostrich, which only eats sleep when fasting

Any list. And poetry in this sense is abundant.

Fasting in Islamic law means abstaining from things that break the fast, with the intention to do so, from sunrise to sunset. Its completion and perfection is achieved by avoiding prohibitions and not falling into forbidden things, as the Prophet, peace be upon him, said:

Whoever does not give up false speech and acting upon it, God has no need for him to give up his food and drink.

Second: The virtue of fasting is great, and its reward is immense. Many authentic and good hadiths have been reported about this, which the imams mentioned in their Musnads, and some of them will come. It is sufficient for you now, from them, regarding the virtue of fasting, that God has singled it out with an attribute to Him, as it was proven in the hadith from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, informing about his Lord:

"God, the Blessed and Exalted, says: 'Every deed of the son of Adam is for him except fasting, for it is for Me and I will reward for it.'" The hadith. He specifically mentioned fasting as being for Him, even though all acts of worship are for Him. The two matters distinguish fasting from all other acts of worship.

One of them: Fasting prevents the pleasures and desires of the soul in a way that other acts of worship do not prevent.

Second: Fasting is a secret between the servant and his Lord, and is only revealed to Him. Therefore, it is specific to Him. Other acts of worship are apparent, and may be done out of affectation and hypocrisy. Therefore, it is more specific to fasting than other acts. Others have been said.

Third: The Almighty's saying: As it was written Al-Kafi is in the accusative case as an adjective, meaning a book as, or fasting as. Or as a state of fasting, meaning fasting was written upon you similar to what was written upon those before you. Some grammarians said: Kaf is in the nominative case as an adjective for fasting, since its definition is not purely specific, due to the ambiguity in it as explained by the Shari'ah. Therefore, it is permissible to describe it with as, since it is only used to describe indefinite nouns, so it is like fasting was written upon you. This statement has been weakened. Ma is in the genitive case, and its connection is: It was written upon those before you. The pronoun in Kabe refers back to ma. The people of interpretation differed regarding the place of the simile, which is:

Fourth: Al-Sha'bi, Qatada and others said: The comparison goes back to the time of fasting and the amount of fasting. God Almighty prescribed the fast of Ramadan for the people of Moses and Jesus, but they changed it. Their rabbis increased it by ten days. Then one of their rabbis fell ill and vowed that if God healed him, he would increase their fast by ten days, so he did. So the Christians fasted for fifty days. It was difficult for them in the heat, so they moved it to spring. Al-Nahas chose this statement and said: It is more similar to what is in the verse. And in it is a hadith that indicates its authenticity, which he attributed to Daghfal bin Hanzalah, "On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: The Christians were required to fast for a month, then one of them fell ill, so they said: If God heals him, we will increase it by ten. Then there was another who ate meat and his mouth hurt, so they said: If God heals him, we will increase it by seven. Then there was another king, so they said: Let us wish for these seven days and make our fast in spring. He said: So it became fifty." Mujahid said: God Almighty prescribed the fasting of the month of Ramadan for every nation. It was said: They took the document and fasted before the thirty days and after it one day, century after century, until their fasting reached fifty days. It was difficult for them in the heat, so they moved it to the solar season. Al-Naqqash said: There is a hadith on this from Daghfal bin Hanzala, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, and Al-Suddi.

I said: And for this reason - and God knows best - it is disliked now to fast the Day of Doubt and the six days of Shawwal following the Day of Breaking the Fast, connected to it. Al-Sha'bi said: If I fasted the whole year, I would break my fast on the Day of Doubt. This is because the Christians were required to fast the month of Ramadan as it was required of us, so they changed it to the solar season because it coincided with the summer, so they counted thirty days. Then a generation came after them and they took the document for themselves and fasted before the thirty days and a day after it. Then the other generation continued to follow the example of those who came before them until they reached fifty days. This is what God the Almighty said: As it was prescribed for those before you. It was said: The likening refers to the origin of its obligation upon those who came before, not to the time and manner. It was said: The likening is to the nature of the fast that was upon them, which prevented them from eating, drinking and sexual intercourse. So when the time to break the fast came, the one who slept would not do these things. And this was also the case with the Christians at first and at the beginning of Islam, then God abrogated it by saying: Lawful to you on the night of the fast is the approach to your wives as will be explained, as stated by Al-Suddi, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Rabi'. Muadh ibn Jabal and Ata' said: The likening is to fasting, not to the description or the number, even though the two fasts differ in terms of increase and decrease. The meaning is: Fasting has been prescribed for you i.e. at the beginning of Islam, three days of every month and the day of Ashura, as it was prescribed for those before you and they are the Jews - according to Ibn Abbas - three days and Ashura. Then this was abrogated in this nation by the month of Ramadan. Muadh ibn Jabal said: This was abrogated by for a specified number of days then the days were abrogated by Ramadan.

Fifth: Perhaps you will become righteous. Perhaps it is hoped that this is true for them, as mentioned above. And be righteous it was said that its meaning here is that you will become weak, because when eating decreased, desire weakened, and whenever desire weakens, sins decrease. This is a good metaphorical meaning. It was also said: So that you will become righteous from sins. It was also said that it is general, because fasting, as the Prophet (peace be upon him) said:

Fasting is a shield and a means of piety, because it kills desires.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says, addressing the believers in this verse, and commanding them to fast, which is to abstain from food, drink, and sexual intercourse, with a pure intention for the sake of God, the Almighty, because it purifies and cleanses the souls from bad mixtures and bad morals. He mentioned that just as He made it obligatory for them, He made it obligatory for those who came before them, so they have an example in it, and these should strive to perform this obligation more fully than those did, as God, the Almighty, said: "To each of you We prescribed a law and a method. Had God willed, He would have made you one community, but to test you in what He has given you, so race to [do] good." The verse, and for this reason He said here, O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous. Because fasting purifies the body and narrows the paths of Satan, and for this reason it is proven in the two Sahihs, O group of young people, whoever among you is able to marry, let him marry, and whoever is not able, then let him fast, for it is a restraint for him. Then He explained the amount of fasting and that it is not every day. So that it would not be difficult for the souls to become weak in carrying it and performing it, but rather in a numbered number of days. This was the case at the beginning of Islam, they would fast three days of every month, then this was abrogated by fasting the month of Ramadan as will be explained. It has been narrated that fasting was at first as it was the case with the nations before us, three days of every month, on the authority of Muadh, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Ata', Qatadah, and Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim, and he added: This continued to be prescribed from the time of Noah until God abrogated it by fasting the month of Ramadan. Abbad bin Mansour said on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous * For a numbered number of days. He said: Yes, by God, fasting was decreed upon every nation that has passed, just as it was decreed upon us, for a full month and a numbered number of days, a known number. Something similar was narrated on the authority of As-Suddi. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Muqri, who said: Saeed ibn Abi Ayoub told me, Abdullah ibn al-Walid told me, on the authority of Abu al-Rabi', a man from the people of Medina, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fasting Ramadan was prescribed by God for the nations before you, in a long hadith from which he summarized that. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas on the authority of someone who told him on the authority of Ibn 'Umar who said: Fasting is prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you was revealed. It was prescribed for them that if one of them prays the 'Isha prayer and sleeps, food, drink and women are forbidden to him until the same time. Ibn Abi al-'Aliyah, 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila, Mujahid, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, al-Rabi' ibn Anas, 'Ata' al-Khurasani said something similar to that. 'Ata' al-Khurasani said on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: As it was prescribed for those before you meaning the People of the Book. A similar narration was narrated on the authority of al-Sha'bi, al-Suddi and 'Ata' al-Khurasani. Then he explained the ruling on fasting as it was at the beginning of Islam, saying: But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. That is, the sick and the traveler do not fast while they are ill or on a journey, because of the hardship that is upon them, rather they break their fast and make it up later on from other days. As for the healthy resident who is able to fast, he has the choice between fasting and feeding. If he wishes, he fasts, and if he wishes, he breaks his fast and feeds a poor person for each day. If he feeds, More than one poor person for each day is better, and if he fasts, it is better than feeding others. This was said by Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Tawus, Muqatil bin Hayyan and others from the Salaf. That is why God Almighty said: "And upon those who can do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew."

Imam Ahmad said: Abu al-Nadr told us, al-Mas'udi told us, Amr ibn Murrah told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Jabal, may God be pleased with him, who said: Prayer was changed in three ways, and fasting was changed in three ways. As for the ways of prayer, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina and he prayed for seventeen months towards the Holy House. Then God Almighty revealed to him: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven. So We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased." So God directed him towards Mecca for this year. He said: They would gather for prayer and call each other to prayer, until they became weak or almost weak. Then a man from the Ansar called Abdullah ibn Zayd ibn Abd Rabbih came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I saw in a dream, and if I said that I was not asleep, I would be telling the truth. While I was between sleeping and awake, I saw a person wearing two green garments, and he faced the qiblah and said: God is Great, God is Great, I bear witness that there is no god but God. Muthanna - until he finished the call to prayer, then he waited an hour and then said the same as he had said except that he added to it: The prayer has begun twice. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Teach it to Bilal, so let him call to prayer with it. Bilal was the first to call to prayer with it. He said: And Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, came and said: O Messenger of God, he circumambulated me as he circumambulated him, except that he preceded me. So these are two situations. He said: And they used to come to prayer and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, preceded them with some of it, so a man would point to a man, so how much did he pray? He said: One or two, so he prays them, then he joins the people in their prayer. He said: Then Muadh came and said: I never find him in a state except that I am in it, then I completed what I had preceded. He said: So he came and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had preceded him in some of it. He said: So he stayed with him. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had finished, he stood up and completed it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Muadh has prescribed for you, so do it like this. These are three states. As for the states of fasting, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina and began to fast three days of every month and fasted Ashura. Then God imposed fasting on him, and God Almighty revealed: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you to His saying: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom of feeding a poor person. So whoever wanted to fast, he fasted, and whoever wanted to feed a poor person, and that was sufficient for him. Then God Almighty revealed the other verse: The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an to His saying: So whoever witnesses the month among you, let him fast it. So God established Fasting is permissible for a healthy resident, and it is permissible for the sick and the traveler, and feeding is established for the elderly who are unable to fast. These are two cases. He said: They used to eat, drink, and come to women as long as they did not sleep. When they slept, they refrained. Then a man from the Ansar called Sarmah worked while fasting until evening. Then he came to his family and prayed the Isha prayer, then slept. He did not eat or drink until morning, so he became fasting. The Messenger of God saw him and he had exerted himself greatly, so he said: Why do I see you exerting yourself greatly? He said: O Messenger of God, I did some work yesterday and came when I came, so I threw myself down and slept, and became fasting. He said: Omar had had intercourse with women after he had slept, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so God, the Almighty, revealed: "Lawful to you on the night of the fast is the approach to your wives. They are your garments and you are their garments. God knows that you were deceiving yourselves, so He has turned to you in forgiveness and pardoned you. So now have intercourse with them and seek what God has ordained for you. And eat and drink until the white thread of dawn becomes distinct to you from the black thread, then complete the fast until the night." Abu Dawud included it in his Sunan, and al-Hakim in his Mustadrak from the hadith of al-Mas'udi with it. Al-Bukhari and Muslim included it from the hadith of al-Zuhri from Urwah from Aisha that she said: Ashura used to be fasted, but when the obligation of Ramadan was revealed, whoever wanted to fast could fast and whoever wanted to break the fast could break the fast. Al-Bukhari narrated something similar from Ibn Umar and Ibn Mas'ud.

And the Almighty's saying: And upon those who are hard to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, as Mu'adh, may God be pleased with him, said: In the beginning, whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break his fast could break his fast and feed a poor person for each day. And thus, Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Salamah bin Al-Akwa' that he said when the verse And upon those who are hard to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person was revealed: whoever wanted to break his fast could pay the ransom until the verse after it was revealed and abrogated it. And it was also narrated on the authority of Ubaydullah on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: It is abrogated. And Al-Suddi said on the authority of Marra on the authority of Abdullah, he said when this verse was revealed: And upon those who are hard to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: It says And upon those who are hard to fast, meaning they take on the burden of it. Abdullah said: So whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break his fast could feed a poor person. But whoever does it voluntarily, he said: feed another poor person, "it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you," and they were like that until it was abrogated by So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. And Al-Bukhari also said: Ishaq told us, Ruh narrated to us, Zakariya bin Ishaq narrated to us, Amr bin Dinar narrated to us from Ata': He heard Ibn Abbas recite: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person. Ibn Abbas said: It is not abrogated. It is the old man and the old woman who are able to fast, so they feed a poor person for each day. And more than one person narrated similarly from Saeed bin Jubair from Ibn Abbas. Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah said: Abd al-Raheem bin

Sulayman narrated to us from Ash'ath bin Suwar, from Ikrimah from Ibn Abbas, he said: This verse And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person was revealed about the old man who is not able to fast, then it became weak and he was permitted to feed a poor person for each day. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad narrated to us, al-Husayn bin Bahram al-Makhzumi narrated to us, Wahb bin Baqiyah narrated to us, Khalid bin Abdullah narrated to us from Ibn Abi Laila, he said: I entered upon Ata' in Ramadan while he was eating, so he said: Ibn Abbas said: This verse was revealed And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person. The ransom of feeding a poor person." So whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break the fast could break the fast and feed a poor person. Then the first was abrogated for the elderly person who had passed away. If he wanted to feed a poor person for each day, he could break the fast. So the bottom line is that abrogation is established for the healthy resident person by requiring him to fast, as He said, So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. As for the elderly person who has passed away and is unable to fast, he may break the fast and does not have to make it up, because he does not have a condition that he can reach in which he can make it up. But is it obligatory for him, if he breaks the fast, to feed a poor person for each day if he has a grandmother? There are two opinions of scholars: One of them is that he is not obligated to feed because he is too weak to do so due to his age, so he is not obligated to pay a ransom like a child, because God does not burden a soul beyond its capacity, and this is one of the two opinions of Al-Shafi'i. The second, which is correct and is the opinion of most scholars, is that he is obligated to pay a ransom for each day, as Ibn Abbas and others of the Salaf interpreted it according to the reading of those who read and upon those who are able to do it meaning they are able to do it, as Ibn Mas'ud and others said. This is the choice of Al-Bukhari, for he said: As for the old man if he is not able to fast, Anas fed a poor person for each day after he grew old, a year or two after he had grown old, bread and meat, and he broke his fast. This which Al-Bukhari suspended was attributed to Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la Al-Mawsili in his Musnad, and he said: Abdullah bin Mu'adh told us, my father told us, Imran told us on the authority of Ayoub bin Abi Tamima, who said: Anas was too weak to fast, so he made a bowl of tharid, and invited thirty poor people and fed them. It was narrated by Abd bin Hamid on the authority of Ruh bin Ubadah, on the authority of Imran, who is Ibn Hadhir, on the authority of Ayoub, on his authority. Abd also narrated it from the hadith of six of the companions of Anas on the authority of Anas with the same meaning. Among the things that are included in this meaning are the pregnant woman and the breastfeeding woman if they fear for themselves or their children. There is much disagreement among the scholars concerning them. Some of them said: They break the fast, pay the ransom, and make up the fast. It was said: They pay the ransom only and do not make up the fast. It was said: They must make up the fast without ransom. It was said: They break the fast and do not pay the ransom or make up the fast. We have explained this issue in detail in the book on fasting that we devoted to it. Praise and thanks be to God.

Fath al-Qadir

The meaning of 183- wrote has been presented, and there is no disagreement among all Muslims that fasting Ramadan is an obligation imposed by God the Almighty upon this nation. The root of fasting in the language is: abstinence and refraining from moving from one state to another. Silence is called fasting because it is abstaining from speech, and from this is I have vowed to the Most Merciful a fast meaning abstaining from speech, and from this is the saying of Al-Nabigha:

Fasting horses, non-fasting horses in the dust, and horses chewing on bridles

Any horse that is restrained from running and moving. In Islamic law, it means abstaining from things that break the fast, with the intention of doing so, from sunrise to sunset. His statement, as it was written, means fasting as it was written, with the kaf in the accusative case as a description, or fasting was written upon you, resembling what was written, with the kaf in the accusative case as a state. Some grammarians said that the kaf is in the nominative case as a description of fasting, but this is weak because fasting is defined by the lam, and the hidden pronoun in his statement, as it was written, refers back to what. The commentators differed about the reason for the comparison, what it is. It was said: It is the amount of fasting and its time, because God prescribed the fasting of Ramadan for the Jews and Christians, but they changed it. It was said: It is the obligation, because God obligated fasting for the nations. It was said: It is the description, i.e. refraining from eating and drinking and the like at a time. According to the first, its meaning is: God prescribed the fasting of Ramadan for this nation as He prescribed it for those before them. According to the second, God obligated fasting for this nation as He obligated it for those before them. According to the third, God Almighty obligated this nation to abstain from things that break the fast as He obligated it for those before them. And the Almighty's saying:

Perhaps you will become righteous is by maintaining it. It was said: You will become righteous from sins because of this worship, because it breaks desire and weakens the motives for sins, as mentioned in the hadith that it is a shield and that it came.

183. The Almighty said: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting meaning it is obligatory and made obligatory. Fasting and fasting in the language means abstaining. It is said: he fasted the day when it was moderate and stood at noon, because when the sun reaches the middle of the sky it stops and stops moving for a while. From this, the Almighty said: Then say, 'Indeed, I have vowed to the Most Merciful a fast' 26-Maryam, meaning silence because it is abstaining from speech. In the Sharia, fasting is abstaining from eating, drinking, and sexual intercourse with the intention at a specific time as it was prescribed for those before you of the prophets and nations. They differed about this comparison. Saeed Ibn Jubayr said: The fasting of those before us was from dusk until the next night as it was at the beginning of Islam.

A group of scholars said: He meant that fasting Ramadan was obligatory for Christians as it was imposed on us, and it might occur in extreme heat or extreme cold, and it was difficult for them on their travels and harmed their livelihoods, so their scholars and leaders agreed to make their fasting in a season of the year between winter and summer, so they made it in the spring and added ten days to it as expiation for what they had done, so it became forty, then their king complained of a mouth so he made a promise to God that if he recovered from his pain he would increase their fasting. A week, then he recovered, so he added a week to it, then that king died and another king took over and said: Complete it as fifty days. Mujahid said: They were afflicted with two deaths, so they said: Increase your fasting, so they added ten before and ten after. Al-Sha'bi said: If you fasted the entire year, you would break your fast on the day in doubt, so it is said from Sha'ban and it is said from Ramadan. This is because the month of Ramadan was imposed on the Christians, so they fasted the thirty days before and the day after, then the other century continued to follow the tradition of the century before it until they reached fifty days. This is what the Almighty said: As it was prescribed for those before you that you may become righteous. He meant by fasting, because fasting is a connection to righteousness because it involves subduing the self and breaking desires. It was said: That you may beware of desires from eating, drinking and sexual intercourse. For a fixed number of days. It was said: At the beginning of Islam, fasting three days of every month was obligatory, and fasting on the day of Ashura, so they fasted like that from spring to the month of Ramadan for seventeen months, then it was abrogated by fasting Ramadan. Ibn Abbas said: The first thing that was abrogated after the migration was the command The kiss and fasting. It is said: The fast of the month of Ramadan was revealed a month and a few days before Badr. Muhammad bin Ishaq said: The Battle of Badr took place on Friday, seventeen nights before the end of the month of Ramadan, at the beginning of eighteen months after the Hijra.

Abu al-Hasan al-Shirazi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Musab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwa, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, that she said: "The day of Ashura was a day that the Quraysh used to fast during the pre-Islamic era. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina, he fasted it and ordered the people to fast it. When Ramadan was made obligatory, it was the obligatory fast, and the day of Ashura was left. So whoever wishes may fast it, and whoever wishes may leave it."

O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

183- O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you meaning the prophets and nations since Adam, peace be upon him, and it confirms the ruling and encourages action and makes the soul happy. Fasting in the language means abstaining from what the soul is inclined to, and in the Shari'ah: abstaining from things that break the fast during the day, as they are most of what the soul desires. That you may guard against sins, as fasting breaks the desire that is its beginning, as the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said, So let him fast, for fasting is a shield for him or failure to perform it due to its originality and precedence.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:184

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Days is an accusative of fasting or they fast for a specified period numbered i.e. few or fixed in a known number, which is Ramadan as will come, and He shortened it to make it easier for those who are obligated So whoever among you when he witnesses it is ill or on a journey i.e. a traveler traveling on a shortened journey and fasting exhausts him in both cases, so he breaks his fast then the number he must fast the number of days he broke of other days he fasts them in his place he fasts them in his place And for those who cannot it due to old age or an illness from which there is no hope of recovery a ransom which is the feeding of a poor person i.e. the amount he eats in his day, which is a mudd of the country's main food for each day, and in a reading with the addition of a ransom, which is for clarification, and it was said that it is not specified, and they were given the choice in the early days of Islam between fasting and the ransom, then it was abrogated by specifying the fasting with His saying whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, Ibn Abbas said: Except for the pregnant and breastfeeding woman if they break their fast for fear for the child, then it remains without abrogation in their case So whoever volunteers good by increasing the amount mentioned in the ransom it is that is, volunteering (it is better for him. And that you fast) is the subject and its predicate it is better for you than breaking the fast and the ransom if you should know that it is better for you, then do it.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: And for those who are able to do it, the ransom is feeding a poor person. So break your fast and feed a poor person for each day. Ibn Saad included in his book, Tabaqat, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: This verse was revealed regarding my client Qais bin Al-Sa'ib.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: He means that God Almighty has prescribed for you, O you who believe, fasting for a specified number of days. And the word days is in the accusative case with an implied verb, as if it were said: Fasting has been prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you, that you fast for a specified number of days, as one says: I liked the strike, Zayd.

And His statement: As it was decreed upon those before you of fasting, as if it was said: It was decreed upon you that which is like what was decreed upon those before you: that you fast a numbered number of days. Then the people of interpretation differed as to what God, the Exalted, meant by His statement: a numbered number of days. Some of them said: The numbered number of days are fasting three days of every month. He said: And that was what was decreed upon the people of fasting before the month of Ramadan was decreed upon them. Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', he said: They were required to fast three days of every month, and He did not name the month a number of days. He said: And this was the fasting of the people before, then God, the Exalted, decreed upon the people the month of Ramadan. Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous, and it was three days of every month, then that was abrogated by what was revealed about fasting Ramadan. So this is the first fast, from the darkness. Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Abd God bin Utbah told us, on the authority of Amr bin Murrah, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Abi Laila, on the authority of Muadh bin Jabal: That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina and fasted the day of Ashura and three days of every month, then God, the Almighty, revealed the obligation of the month of Ramadan, so God revealed: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you, until he reached And upon those who can do it - a ransom - is the feeding of a poor person. Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: God Almighty had prescribed for the people, before Ramadan was revealed, fasting three days of every month. Others said: Rather, the three days that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to fast before Ramadan was made obligatory, were voluntary.

Their fasting. God Almighty meant by His saying: Fasting is prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you "for a specified number of days," the days of the month of Ramadan, not the days that were fasted before the obligation of fasting the month of Ramadan became obligatory.

Mention of those who said that: Muhammad bin al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Murrah, he said, our companions told us: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them, he ordered them to fast three days of every month as a voluntary fast, not as an obligation. He said: Then the fasting of Ramadan was revealed. Abu Musa said: His statement: 'Amr ibn Murrah said: Our companions told us, meaning Ibn Abi Laila, as if Ibn Abi Laila was the one who said: Our companions told us. Ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Dawud told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, he heard 'Amr ibn Murrah say, for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

I heard Ibn Abi Laila, and he mentioned something similar. Abu Ja'far said: We have already mentioned the statement of those who said: What is meant by His statement, Fasting is prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you, is the month of Ramadan. And what is more correct in my opinion is the statement of those who said: What God, the Most High, meant by His statement, a specified number of days, is the days of the month of Ramadan. This is because there is no report that can provide evidence that a fast was made obligatory upon the people of Islam other than the fast of the month of Ramadan, and then it was abrogated by the fast of the month of Ramadan. And God, the Most High, has made clear in the context of the verse that the fast that He, the Most High, has made obligatory upon us is the fast of the month of Ramadan and not any other times, by making clear the days that He informed us that He has prescribed fasting upon us by His statement, the month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed. Whoever claims that a fast was obligatory upon Muslims other than the fast of the month of Ramadan, which they are unanimously agreed upon as obligatory - and then that was abrogated - should be asked for proof of that from a report that would establish an argument, since that would not be known except from a report that would cut off the excuse. Since the matter in that is as we have described for what we have explained, the interpretation of the verse is: "Fasting is prescribed for you, O believers, as it was prescribed for those before you that you may become righteous. For a specified number of days, which is the month of Ramadan." It is also possible that its meaning is: Fasting is prescribed for you, meaning the month of Ramadan. As for the specified days, they are those whose amounts and hours are counted. Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, But whoever among you is ill, is whoever among you is ill, who is required to fast, or is healthy and not ill and is on a journey, then an equal number of other days, meaning: then he must fast the number of days that he broke his fast during his illness or travel, from other days, meaning: from other days other than the days of his illness or travel. The subject in His statement, then an equal number of other days, is similar to the subject in His statement, then follow up with what is acceptable (al-Baqarah 2:178). This has already been explained there, so there is no need to repeat it.

As for his statement: And upon those who are able to do it, a ransom of feeding a poor person, the reading of all Muslims is: And upon those who are able to do it, and this is the line of their Qur'ans. This is the reading that no one among the people of Islam is permitted to differ from, as they have all transmitted the correctness of that century after century. Ibn Abbas used to read it, according to what was narrated from him: And upon those who are able to do it. Then the readers of that differed about the meaning of And upon those who are able to do it. Some of them said: This was when fasting was first made obligatory, and whoever among the residents was able to fast it if he wished, and if he wished, he could break it and ransom himself, so he fed a poor person for each day he broke his fast, until that was abrogated. Those who said that were mentioned: Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Yunus ibn Bakir narrated to us, he said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Abd God ibn Utbah narrated to us, on the authority of Amr ibn Murrah, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Muadh ibn Jabal, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina and fasted the day of Ashura and three days of every month. Then God, the Almighty, made the month of Ramadan obligatory, so God revealed: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting until it reached And upon those who can do it [with difficulty] is a ransom [of feeding a poor person], so whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break his fast could feed a poor person. Then God, the Almighty, made fasting obligatory for the healthy resident, and confirmed feeding the elderly who were unable to fast, so God, the Almighty, revealed: "So whoever witnesses the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey" until the end of the verse. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Amr ibn Murrah, he said, our companions told us that when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them, he ordered them to fast three days of every month voluntarily, not for sickness. He said: Then the fasting of Ramadan was revealed. He said: And they were people who were not accustomed to fasting. He said: And fasting was difficult for them. He said: Whoever did not fast fed a poor person, then this verse was revealed: "And whoever is present among you in the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days." So the concession was for the sick and the traveler, and we were ordered to fast. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna said: Amr said: Our companions told us, meaning Ibn Abi Laila. It is as if Ibn Abi Laila was the one who said: Our companions told us. Ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said: Abu Dawud told us, he said: Shu'bah told us, he said: I heard Amr ibn Murrah say: I heard Ibn Abi Laila, and he mentioned something similar. Ibn Hamid told us, he said: Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Alqamah, regarding His statement: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom of feeding a poor person, he said: Whoever wanted to fast, he fasted, and whoever wanted to break his fast and fed half a sa' of a poor person, then it was abrogated by: The month of Ramadan up to His statement: And whoever is present among you in the month, he shall fast it. He told us. Ibn Humayd said, Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, in a similar manner - and he added to it, he said: This verse abrogated it, and the first verse became for the old man who is unable to fast, he gives charity to a poor person for every day half a Saa. Ibn Humayd narrated to us, he said, Yahya bin Wadh Abu Tamilah narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, his saying: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom of feeding a poor person, so whoever among them wanted to fast, he fasted, and whoever among them wanted to ransom himself by feeding a poor person, he ransomed himself and his fast was complete. Then he said: And whoever is present among you [in the month], let him fast it, then he made an exception from that and said: And whoever is ill or on a journey, then an equal number of other days. Abu Hisham Al-Rifai narrated to us, he said, Ibn Idris narrated to us, he said, I asked Al-A'mash about his saying: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom of feeding a poor person, so he narrated to us on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Alqamah, he said: It abrogated: And whoever among you is present in the month, let him fast it. Omar bin Al-Muthanna narrated, Abdul-Wahhab narrated, Abdullah narrated, Nafi', Ibn Omar said: This verse - meaning: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, feeding a poor person - was abrogated by the one after it: "So whoever is present among you in the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number from other days." Abu Kurayb narrated, Ibn Idris narrated, I heard Al-A'mash, from Ibrahim, from Alqamah, regarding His statement: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, feeding a poor person, he said: It was abrogated by: So whoever is present among you in the month shall fast it. Al-Walid bin Shuja' Abu Hammam narrated, Ali bin Masahr narrated, from Asim, from Al-Sha'bi, he said: This verse was revealed: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, feeding a poor person. A man would break his fast and give food in charity to a poor person for each day, then this verse was revealed: "So whoever is present among you in the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number from other days." So the concession was only revealed for the sick and the traveler.

Hannad ibn al-Sarri narrated to us, saying, Ali ibn Masahir narrated to us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, who said: This verse was revealed for all al-Nas 114: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom of feeding a poor person. A man would break his fast and give his food in charity to a poor person, then this verse was revealed: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. He said: So the concession was only revealed for the sick and the traveler. Hannad narrated to us, saying, Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, who said: I entered upon Ata' while he was eating in the month of Ramadan, and he said: I am an old man, and fasting has been revealed, so whoever wanted to fast, fasted, and whoever wanted to break his fast, and fed a poor person, until this verse was revealed: And whoever is present among you in the month, let him fast it, and whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. So fasting became obligatory for everyone, except for a sick person or a traveler or an old man like me, who ransoms himself. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Yunus told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, he said: God said: O you who believe, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you. Ibn Shihab said: God decreed fasting upon us, so whoever wished could ransom himself from among those who were able to fast, whether healthy or sick or traveling, and he was not required to do anything else. Then when God made fasting obligatory for those who witnessed the month, whoever was healthy and able to do so, He waived the ransom from him, and whoever was traveling or sick, then a number of other days. He said: And the ransom that was accepted before that remained for the elderly who were unable to fast, and the one who was afflicted with thirst or an illness that prevented him from fasting. Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: God made the ransom for the first fast the feeding of a poor person, so whoever wished, whether a traveler or a resident, to feed a poor person and break his fast, that was a concession for him. Then God revealed about the last fast, Then a number of other days, and God did not mention about the last fast the ransom of a poor rabble, so the ransom was abrogated, and about the last fast, God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship, was confirmed, which is breaking the fast while traveling, and He made it a number of other days. Ahmad bin Abdul Rahman bin Wahb told me, he said, my uncle Abdullah bin Wahb told me, he said, Amr bin Al-Harith told me, Bakir bin Abdullah said, on the authority of Yazid, the client of Salamah bin Al-Akwa', on the authority of Salamah bin Al-Akwa' that he said, "We were in the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, whoever wanted to fast, he fasted, and whoever wanted to break the fast, he ransomed himself by feeding a poor person, until the following was revealed: "So whoever among you witnesses the month, he shall fast it." Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Asim al-Ahwal, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, regarding His statement: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: It was for all people. Then when And whoever among you witnesses the month shall fast it, was revealed, they were commanded to fast and make up for it, so He said: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Hannad told us, he said: Ali ibn Musahhir told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding His statement: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: It was abrogated by the verse that follows it: And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew. Hannad told us, he said: Waki' told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sulayman, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaydah, And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: It was abrogated by the verse that follows it: And whoever among you witnesses the month shall fast it.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: Al-Fadl bin Khalid narrated to us, who said: Ubayd bin Sulayman narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Fasting is prescribed for you - the verse - fasting is obligatory from the evening until the same time the next day. So when a man prays the evening prayer, food and sexual intercourse are forbidden to him until the same time the next day. Then the other fast was revealed by permitting food and sexual intercourse all night long, which is His saying: And eat and drink until the white thread of the night becomes distinct to you from the black thread until His saying: Then complete the fast until the night (al-Baqarah 2:187). He also permitted sexual intercourse, saying: Lawful to you on the night of the fast is the approach to your wives (al-Baqarah 2:187). In the first fast there was a ransom, so whoever, whether a traveler or a resident, wanted to feed a poor person and break his fast, he could do so. God Almighty did not mention the ransom in the second fast, and said: Then an equal number of other days, so this second fast abrogated the ransom. Others said: Rather, His saying: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person, was a special ruling for the old man and the old woman who were able to fast. They were permitted to ransom their fast by feeding a poor person and breaking their fast. Then that was abrogated by His saying: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, so they were required to fast like the young man, unless they were unable to. Fasting, so the ruling that was for them before the abrogation is established for them now as it is. Those who said that: Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Azra, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The old man and the old woman who were able to fast, were permitted to break their fast if they wished and to feed a poor person for each day. Then that was abrogated after that: "And whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days." And it was established for the old man and the old woman, if they were not able to fast, and for the pregnant and nursing woman if they fear. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And for those who are able to do it, he said: The old man and the old woman. Then he mentioned a hadith similar to Bishr's, on the authority of Yazid. Muhammad ibn Bashir narrated, Muadh ibn Hisham narrated, my father narrated, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: The old man and the old woman had the permission to break their fast and feed others, based on the statement of God: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person. He said: So they had the permission, then it was abrogated by this verse: And whoever among you witnesses the month shall fast it, so the permission was abrogated for the old man and the old woman if they were able to fast, and the pregnant and breastfeeding woman remained to break their fast and feed others. Al-Muthanna narrated, Hajjaj ibn al-Munhal narrated, Hammam ibn Yahya narrated, I heard Qatada say about the statement of God: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: There was permission in it for the old man and the old woman who were able to fast to feed a poor person for each day and break their fast, then that was abrogated by the verse that came after it, so He said: The month of Ramadan until His statement: Then an equal number of other days, so this verse abrogated it. The scholars saw and hoped that the concession would be established for the elderly man and the elderly woman who were unable to fast, to break their fast and feed a poor person for each day, and for the pregnant woman if she feared for what was in her womb, and for the nursing woman if she feared for her child. I was told by Ammar ibn al-Hasan, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, so the elderly man and the elderly woman were able to fast Ramadan, so God permitted them to break their fast if they wanted to, and they were required to pay the ransom for each day they broke their fast, feeding a poor person. Then God revealed after that: The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, until His statement: Then an equal number of other days.

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

Others who read it said: And upon those who are able to do it, that was not abrogated, nor anything of it, and it is a ruling that has been established since this verse was revealed until the Day of Judgment. They said: The interpretation of that is: And upon those who are able to do it - in their youth and youth, and in their health and strength - if they become sick and old and are unable to fast due to old age, is the ransom of feeding a poor person, not that the people were given permission to break their fast - while they were able to fast - if they ransomed themselves. He mentioned who said that: Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom of feeding a poor person. He said: As for those who are able to do it, a man who was able to do it and had fasted before that, then he is afflicted with pain or thirst or a long illness, or a breastfeeding woman who is unable to fast, then those are required to feed a poor person for each day. If he feeds a poor person, it is better for him, and whoever is required to fast and fasts, it is better for him. Hannad told us, he said, Abdah told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Abi Arooba, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Azra, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: If a pregnant woman fears for herself, and a breastfeeding woman fears for her child in Ramadan, he said: They break their fast and feed a poor person for each day, and they do not make up their fast. Hannad told us, he said, Abda told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: that he saw his mother-in-law who was pregnant or breastfeeding, and he said: You are like someone who cannot bear it. You must feed a poor person for each day, and you do not have to make up for it. Hannad told us, he said, Abda told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Ali bin Thabit, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, like what Ibn Abbas said about the pregnant or breastfeeding woman.

Bishr ibn Muadh narrated to us, saying, Yazid narrated to us, saying, Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, saying: It was mentioned to us that Ibn Abbas said, to his pregnant or nursing mother: You are like those who cannot do it. You must pay a ransom and you do not have to fast. This is if she fears for herself. Muhammad ibn Saad narrated to me, saying, my father narrated to me, saying, my uncle narrated to me, saying, my father narrated to me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And for those who can do it, a ransom of feeding a poor person, he is an old man who was able to fast the month of Ramadan when he was young, then he grew old and was unable to fast, so he should give charity to one poor person for each day he broke his fast, when he broke his fast and when he ate suhoor. Hannad narrated to us, saying, Abdah narrated to us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, something similar - except that he did not say: when they break their fast and when they eat suhoor. Hannad narrated to us, saying, Hatim Bani Ismail narrated to us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Harmalah, on the authority of Saeed bin al-Musayyab, that he said about the statement of God, the Most High: The ransom is the feeding of a poor person, he said: It refers to the old man who used to fast but became old and unable to do so, and the pregnant woman who is not required to fast, so each one of them must feed a poor person: a mudd of wheat for each day until Ramadan ends. Others read it as: And for those who can afford it, a ransom is the feeding of a poor person, and they said: It refers to the old man and the old woman who have become too old to fast, so they are required to fast but are not able to do so, so they may break their fast and feed a poor person for each day they broke their fast. They said: The ruling of the verse has been established since it was revealed, it has not been abrogated, and they rejected the statement of those who said that it was abrogated. He who said that: Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, Ibn Jurayj told us, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to recite it: They are entrusted with it. Hannad told us, he said, Ali ibn Mashair told us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to recite: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person. He said: So he used to say: It is valid for people today. Hannad told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to recite it: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person. He said: So he used to say: It is valid for people today. Hannad told us, he said, Qubaysah told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to recite it: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person. He said: So he used to say: It is valid for people today. Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, that he said about this verse: And for those who can bear it, - and this is how he used to recite it -: It is not abrogated. The old man was ordered to break his fast and feed a poor person for each day. Ibn Bashir narrated to us, he said:

Muhammad ibn Ja'far narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, that he recited: And for those who can bear it. Hanad Taqal narrated to us, Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Imran ibn Hudayr, on the authority of Ikrimah, he said: And for those who can bear it fast it, but those who can bear it are unable to do it. Al-Hasan ibn Yahya narrated to us, he said: 'Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Ibn Jurayj narrated to us, he said: Muhammad ibn 'Abbad ibn Ja'far narrated to me, on the authority of Abu 'Amr, the freed slave of 'Aishah, that 'Aishah used to recite: They can bear it. Al-Hasan narrated to us, he said: 'Abd al-Razzaq narrated to us, he said: Ibn Jurayj narrated to us, on the authority of 'Ata', that he used to recite it: They can bear it. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid also used to recite it like this. Hamid ibn Mas'adah narrated to us, he said: Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal narrated to us, he said: Khalid narrated to us, on the authority of Ikrimah: And for those who can bear it. Ibn 'Abbas said: He is the old man. Ismail bin Musa Al-Suddi narrated to us, he said, Sharik narrated to us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And upon those who can afford it he said: they take on the burden of it, they make it their business. Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said, Ibn Idris narrated to us, on the authority of Muslim Al-Mala'i, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And upon those who can do it, a ransom is the feeding of a poor person, he said: the old man who cannot afford it, so he breaks his fast and feeds a poor person every day. Muhammad bin Amr narrated to me, he said, Abu Asim narrated to us, he said, Isa narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid and Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of God: And upon those who can afford it, he said: they make it their business, a ransom is the feeding of one poor person. He said: This is an abrogated verse, and no concession is given except for the old man who cannot afford it, or the sick person who knows that he will not recover. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who can afford it means they are obliged to do so. The ransom is feeding one poor person. This was not permitted except for the old man who cannot afford to fast, or the sick person who he knows will not recover. This is from Mujahid. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to say: It is not abrogated. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of God, the Most High: And upon those who can do it with difficulty is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: Whoever is not able to fast except with difficulty, then he may break his fast and feed a poor person every day, and the pregnant woman, the nursing mother, the very old man, and the one who has a permanent illness. Hannad told us, he said, Ubaidah told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

God, the Most High: And upon those who can do it with difficulty is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: He is the very old man, and the person who used to fast in his youth, but when he grew old he was unable to fast before he died, so he feeds a poor person every day. Hannad said: Ubaidah said: It was said to Mansur: Who feeds every day half a sa'? He said: Yes. Hannad told us, he said, Marwan bin Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Uthman bin Al-Aswad, he said: I asked Mujahid about a woman of mine whose ninth day coincided with the month of Ramadan, and it coincided with intense heat, so he ordered me to break my fast and feed a poor person. He said: Mujahid said: This concession is also for the traveler and the sick, for God says: And upon those who can do it with difficulty, is a ransom of feeding a poor person. Hannad narrated to us, he said: Abu Mu'awiyah narrated to us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The pregnant woman, the nursing woman, and the very old man who is unable to fast, break their fast in Ramadan, and feed a poor person for each day. Then he recited: And upon those who can do it with difficulty, is a ransom of feeding a poor person. Ali ibn Sa'id al-Kindi narrated to us, he said: Hafs narrated to us, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of al-Harith, on the authority of Ali, regarding His statement: And upon those who can do it with difficulty, is a ransom of feeding a poor person, he said: The very old man who is unable to fast, breaks his fast by feeding a poor person for each day. Al-Muthanna Qaq narrated to me, al-Hajjaj narrated to us, he said: Hammad narrated to us, on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: And upon those who can do it with difficulty, is a ransom of feeding a poor person, he said: They are those who undertake it but are not able to do it, the old man and the very old woman. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj told us, he said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Harith, on the authority of Ali, he said: It is the old man and the old woman.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Imran bin Hudayr, on the authority of Ikrimah that he used to recite it: And upon those who are able to do it, so they broke their fast. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of someone who told him, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: It is confirmed for the elderly, the breastfeeding woman, and the pregnant woman, and upon those who are able to fast. Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: I said to Ata': What does his statement: And upon those who are able to do it mean? He said: We have been informed that if an elderly person is not able to fast, he must ransom himself from each day by giving a poor person. I said: The elderly person who is not able to fast, or the one who is only able to do it with great effort? He said: Rather, the elderly person who is not able to do it with great effort or with anything. As for the one who is able to do it with great effort, then let him fast, and he has no excuse for not doing it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Abdullah bin Abi Yazid told me: And upon those who can afford it, the verse, as if he meant the old man. Ibn Jurayj said: And Ibn Tawus told me, on the authority of his father, that he used to say: It was revealed about the old man who is unable to fast Ramadan, so he must redeem himself from each day by feeding a poor person. I said to him: How much is his food? He said: I do not know, except that he said: One day's food. Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Yahya, on the authority of al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: A ransom of feeding a poor person, he said: The old man who is unable to fast, breaks his fast and feeds a poor person every day. Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate of these statements in the interpretation of the verse is the statement of the one who said: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person, abrogated by the statement of God Almighty: So whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it. Because the ha' in his statement: And upon those who are able to fast, is from the mention of fasting and its meaning is: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person. If this is the case, and all Muslims are unanimously agreed that whoever is able to fast the month of Ramadan from healthy men who are not travelers, it is not permissible for him to break his fast and redeem himself from it by feeding a poor person, it is known that the verse has been abrogated. This is in addition to what supports this statement from the reports that we mentioned earlier from Muadh ibn Jabal, Ibn Umar, and Salamah ibn al-Akwa': that they were - after the revelation of this verse during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace - in the fast of the month of Ramadan, they had the choice between fasting it and dropping the ransom from them, and breaking the fast and redeeming themselves from breaking it by feeding a poor person for each day? And they used to do that until the verse was revealed: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, so they were obligated to fast it, and the choice and ransom were nullified. If someone were to say: How can you claim a consensus among the people of Islam - that whoever is able to fast and has the condition you described, then it is not permissible for him to do anything but fast - when you know the statement of those who said: If a pregnant woman or a breastfeeding woman fears for her children, they may break their fast, even if they are able to fast with their bodies, with the report that was narrated about that from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which: Hannad bin Al-Sarri told us, he said, Qubaysah told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, "On the authority of Anas, he said: I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was eating lunch, and he said:

Come, I will tell you, God has relieved the traveler, the pregnant woman, and the breastfeeding woman of fasting and half of the prayer"? It was said: We did not claim a consensus regarding the pregnant woman or the breastfeeding woman, but rather we claimed it regarding the men whose condition we described. As for the pregnant and breastfeeding women, we know that they are not meant by His statement: And upon those who are able to do it, and men are not meant by it, because if they were meant by that without other men, it would have been said: And upon those who are able to do it, a ransom of feeding a poor person, because that is the speech of the Arabs, when the speech is isolated to report about them without men. So when it was said: And upon those who are able to do it, it was known that what was meant by it was men without women, or men and women. So when it was confirmed by the consensus of all - that whoever among the healthy resident men is able to fast the month of Ramadan, then he is not permitted to break the fast and pay ransom, then men were excluded from being meant by the verse, and it was known that women were not meant by it for what we described: that the report about women when the speech is isolated to report about them is: And upon those who are able to do it, and the revelation is otherwise. As for the report narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, if it is authentic, then its meaning is that fasting has been lifted from the pregnant and breastfeeding woman as long as they are unable to do so, until they are able to do so and then make it up, just as fasting has been lifted from the traveler on his journey until he stays and makes it up - not that they were ordered to pay the ransom and break the fast without making it up being obligatory. If the Prophet's statement, may God bless him and grant him peace, God has lifted the fast from the traveler, the breastfeeding woman, and the pregnant woman, was an indication that he, may God bless him and grant him peace, meant that God Almighty lifted it from them by saying: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom of feeding a poor person, then it would be obligatory for the traveler if he breaks his fast on his journey to make it up, and he is not obligated to do anything except pay the ransom for breaking it, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, combined his ruling with the ruling of the pregnant and breastfeeding woman. This statement, if anyone says it, is contrary to the apparent meaning of the Book of God, and to what all the people of Islam have agreed upon. Some of the Arabists from Basra have claimed that the meaning of his statement, And upon those who are able to do so, is and upon those who are able to eat. This is because the interpretation of the scholars is different. As for the reading of those who read it: And upon those who can afford it, then the reading of the copies of the Muslims' Qur'an is different, and it is not permissible for any of the Muslims to object with their opinion to what the Muslims have transmitted by inheritance from their Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, a transmission that is apparent and decisive for the excuse. Because what the proof of the religion has brought is the truth that there is no doubt that it is from God. And what has been proven and established as proof that it is from God cannot be objected to with opinions, assumptions, and strange sayings. As for the meaning of the ransom, it is: the reward, from your saying: I ransomed this with this, meaning I rewarded him with it, and gave him a substitute for it. The meaning of the statement: And upon those who are able to fast is the reward of feeding a poor person, for every day that he breaks his fast from the days of his fast that were prescribed for him. As for his saying: The ransom of feeding a poor person, then the readings differ in their reading. Some read by adding the ransom to the food, and lowering the food - and this is the reading of most of the readers of Medina - meaning: And upon those who are able to fast should ransom it with the food of a poor person. When he made the ransom a substitute for the ransom, it was added to the food, as it is said: I owed you a fine of a dirham, meaning: I owed you a fine of a dirham. Others read it with the tanween of the ransom, and the raising of the food, meaning: clarifying in the food the meaning of the ransom required of the one who broke his obligatory fast, as it is said: I owed you a fine, a dirham, so clarify with the dirham the meaning of the fine, what is it? And what is its limit? This is the reading of the greatest of the readers of Iraq. Abu Ja'far said: The first of the two readings is the correct reading of the one who read the ransom of food by adding the ransom to the food, because the ransom is a noun for the action, and it is not the food with which the fast is ransomed. This is because the ransom is a source of the saying of the speaker: I ransom the fast of this day with the food of a poor person, I ransom him a ransom, as

It is said: I sat, and I walked. The ransom is an action, and the food is something else. Since that is the case, it is clear that the most correct of the two readings is adding the ransom to the food, and the error of the one who said: If he left adding the ransom to the food, it is more correct in meaning, because the food in his view is the ransom. So it is said to the one who says that: We know that the ransom requires ransomed, ransomed by, and ransom. If the food is the ransom and the fasting is what is ransomed by, then where is the verb of the ransom which is ransom? This statement is clearly wrong and not problematic. As for the food, it is added to the poor. And the readers differ in reading that. Some of them read it with the singular form of the poor, meaning: And upon those who are able to do so is a ransom of the food of one poor person for each day that they break their fast, as Muhammad bin Yazid al-Rafa'i told me, he said, Hussain al-Ja'fi told us, on the authority of Abu Amr that he read: ransom - nominative case with a tanween - food - nominative case without a tanween - poor, and he said: For each day a poor person. And on that the readers of the people of Iraq were great. And others read it with the plural of the poor, the ransom of the food of the poor, meaning: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom of the food of the poor for the month, if they break their fast for the whole month, as Abu Hisham Muhammad bin Yazid al-Rifai told us, on the authority of Ya'qub, on the authority of Bashar, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of al-Hasan: The food of the poor, for the whole month. Abu Ja'far said: And the reading that I like the most in that is the reading of the one who read: The food of a poor person on the singular, meaning: And upon those who are able to do it for every day they break their fast is a

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

ransom of the food of a poor person. Because in clarifying the ruling on the one who breaks his fast for one day, reaching to knowing the ruling on the one who breaks his fast for the whole month - and not in clarifying the ruling on the one who breaks his fast for the whole month, reaching to clarifying the ruling on the one who breaks his fast for one day, or days that are less than the days of the whole month - and that each one translates for the whole, and the whole does not translate for the whole. Therefore we chose to read that with the singular. And the people of knowledge differed regarding the amount of food that they used to feed in that if they broke their fast. Some of them said: The obligatory food for the poor person to break their fast for one day was half a sa' of wheat. Some of them said: The obligatory food for the poor person to break their fast for the day was a mudd of wheat or from their other foods. Some of them said: That was half a sa' of wheat, or a sa' of dates or raisins. Some of them said: That is what the person who broke his fast ate on the day he broke his fast. Some of them said: That was the pre-dawn and evening meals, and it would be the fast of the poor person. We have mentioned some of these opinions previously, so we disliked mentioning them again. Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that. Some of them said what: Muhammad ibn Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid and Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas: But whoever volunteers good, and he added the food of another poor person, "it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you." Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly. Hannad told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement: But whoever volunteers good, he said: whoever feeds a poor person a sa'. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father: But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him, he said: feeding poor people for each day, it is better for him. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Hanzala, on the authority of Tawus: But whoever volunteers good, he said: feeding a poor person. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Hanzala, on the authority of Tawus, something similar.

Muhammad ibn Bashar narrated, Abdurrahman narrated, Sufyan narrated, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Tawus: So whoever volunteers good, he said: Feeding a poor person. Al-Muthanna narrated, he said: Hajjaj narrated, he said: Hammad narrated, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Tawus, similarly. Abu Kurayb narrated, he said: Amr ibn Harun narrated, he said: Ibn Jurayj narrated, on the authority of Ata' that he recited: So whoever volunteers good, with a light ta', he said: Adding more than one poor person. Musa ibn Harun narrated, he said: Amr narrated, he said: Asbat narrated, on the authority of Al-Suddi: So whoever volunteers good, it is better for him, so if he feeds two poor people, it is better for him. Al-Qasim narrated, he said: Al-Husayn narrated, he said: Hajjaj narrated, he said: Ibn Jurayj narrated, Ibn Tawus informed me, on the authority of his father: So whoever volunteers good, it is better for him, he said: Whoever feeds another poor person. Others said: The meaning of this is, whoever volunteers good and fasts the day of ransom. Those who said this mentioned:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Yunus told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab: So whoever volunteers good, it is better for him, meaning that whoever fasts with the ransom, it is better for him. Others said: The meaning of that is: So whoever volunteers good, and gives the poor more than his food. Mention of those who said that: Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said, Mujahid said:

So whoever volunteers good, and adds more food, it is better for him. Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that God, the Most High, made it general in His statement: So whoever volunteers good, and did not specify some meanings of good over others. For combining fasting with ransom is a voluntary act of good, and adding a poor person to the reward of ransom is a voluntary act of good. It is possible that God, the Most High, meant by His statement: So whoever volunteers good, that is, these meanings that the one who is redeemed from his fasting volunteers, so it is better for him. Because all of that is a voluntary act of good and voluntary acts of virtue. Abu Ja'far said: God, the Most High, meant by His statement: And that you fast, what has been prescribed for you of the month of Ramadan, it is better for you than breaking it and redeeming it, as Musa ibn Harun told me, 'Amr ibn Hammad told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And that you fast is better for you, and whoever undertakes to fast and fasts, it is better for him. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Yunus told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab: And that you fast is better for you, meaning: fasting is better for you than the ransom. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And that you fast is better for you... 1. As for his statement: If you only knew, it means: If you only knew which of the two matters is better for you, O you who believe, of breaking the fast and ransoming, or fasting as God has commanded you.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: A numbered number of days. Days is the second object of wrote, as Al-Farra' said. It was said: It is an accusative of circumstance for wrote, meaning fasting was prescribed for you in days. The numbered days are the month of Ramadan, and this indicates the opposite of what was narrated from Muadh, and God knows best.

The Almighty said: But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. There are sixteen issues in this.

First: The Almighty's saying: sick. There are two cases for a sick person: One of them is that he is not able to fast under any circumstances, so he must break his fast as an obligation. Second: That he is able to fast with harm and hardship, so it is recommended for him to break his fast, and no one fasts except the ignorant. Ibn Sirin said: When a person finds himself in a condition that deserves the name of sickness, then it is permissible for him to break his fast, by analogy with the traveler, perhaps because of travel, even if there is no necessity for breaking his fast. Tarif ibn Tamam al-Attardi said: I entered upon Muhammad ibn Sirin in Ramadan while he was eating, and when he finished he said: This finger of mine hurts. The majority of scholars said: If he has an illness that is causing him pain and harm, or he fears its continuation or increase, then it is permissible for him to break his fast. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is the doctrine of the most skilled followers of Malik, and they debate it. As for the wording of Malik, it is an illness that is difficult for a person and causes him great suffering. Ibn Khuwayz Mandad said: There are different narrations from Malik regarding the illness that permits breaking the fast. He said once: It is the fear of being ruined by fasting. He said once: Severe illness, its increase, and great hardship. This is his correct school of thought and is what is apparent, because he did not specify one illness from another, so it is permissible in every illness, except what the evidence specifies, such as headache, fever, and a minor illness for which there is no burden in fasting. Al-Hasan said: If he is unable to pray standing due to illness, he breaks his fast. Al-Nakha'i said: A group said: He does not break his fast due to illness except for the one who is compelled by the necessity of the illness itself to break his fast, and whenever he tolerates the necessity with it, he does not break his fast. This is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him.

I said: The statement of Ibn Sirin is the most just thing in this regard, God willing. Al-Bukhari said: I fell ill in Nishapur with a minor illness, and that was in the month of Ramadan. Ishaq ibn Rahawayh visited me with a group of his companions and said to me: Have you broken your fast, O Abu Abdullah? I said: Yes, because I feared that I would be too weak to accept the concession. I said: Abdun narrated to us on the authority of Ibn al-Mubarak on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: I said to Ata': Whoever sees that he is sick should break his fast? He said: From whatever illness, as God Almighty said: And whoever among you is ill [al-Bukhari] Al-Bukhari said: This hadith was not narrated by Ishaq. Abu Hanifa said: If a man fears for himself while he is fasting that if he does not break his fast, his eye will become more severe or his fever will become more severe, then he should break his fast.

Second: The Almighty's saying: Or on a journey.

Scholars differed about the journey in which breaking the fast and shortening the prayer is permissible, after their consensus on the journey of obedience such as Hajj and Jihad. Connected to these two is the journey to maintain kinship ties and to seek a necessary livelihood. As for travelling for trade and permissible purposes, there is a difference of opinion regarding its prohibition and permission, and the opinion regarding its permissibility is stronger. As for the journey of a sinner, there is a difference of opinion regarding its permissibility and prohibition, and the opinion regarding its prohibition is stronger, as stated by Ibn Atiyyah. The distance of breaking the fast according to Malik is where the prayer is shortened. Scholars differed about its amount. Malik said: A day and a night, then he changed his mind and said: Forty-eight miles. Ibn Khuwayz Mandad said: This is the apparent meaning of his school of thought. He said once: Forty-two miles, and he said once: Thirty-six miles, and he said once: A day and a night's journey, and it was narrated from him two days, and this is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i. He once distinguished between land and sea, saying that at sea it is a day and a night's journey, and on land it is forty-eight miles, and in a way it is thirty miles, and in a way other than that it is three miles. Ibn Amr, Ibn Abbas, and Al-Thawri said: The breaking of the fast is for a journey of three days, as narrated by Ibn Atiyyah.

Third: The scholars agreed that the traveler in Ramadan is not permitted to spend the night breaking his fast, because the traveler is not a traveler by intention, unlike the resident, but rather he is a traveler by work and getting up, and the resident does not need work, because if he intends to stay, he is a resident at the time, because residence does not need work, so they differ. There is also no disagreement among them regarding the one who hopes to travel, that he is not permitted to break his fast before he leaves, and if he breaks his fast, Ibn Habib said: If he has prepared for his travel and has taken the means of movement, then nothing is upon him. This was narrated from Asbagh and Ibn Al-Majishun, but if an obstacle prevents him from traveling, then he must pay expiation, and it is sufficient for him to be saved if he travels. Isa narrated from Ibn Al-Qasim that he only has to make up a day, because he interpreted his breaking of the fast. Ashhab said: He does not have to pay expiation whether he travels or not. Sahnun said: He has to pay expiation whether he travels or not, and he is like a woman who says: My period will come tomorrow, so she breaks her fast for that reason. Then he returned to the words of Abdul Malik and Asbagh and said: It is not like a woman, because a man may menstruate while traveling if he wants, but a woman does not menstruate.

I said: The statement of Ibn Al-Qasim and Ashab in denying the expiation is good, because it is not permissible for him to do it, and the conscience is innocent, so nothing is proven in it except with certainty, and there is no certainty with disagreement, then it is required by the saying of God the Almighty: or on a journey. Abu Omar said: This is the most correct of their statements in this matter, because he did not violate the sanctity of fasting with the intention of doing so, but rather he interpreted it, and if eating with the intention of traveling would require expiation from him, because before he left, his departure would have absolved him of it, so reflect on that and you will find it to be so, God willing. Al-Darqutni narrated: Abu Bakr Al-Naysaburi told us, Ismail bin Ishaq bin Sahl told us in Egypt, he said: Ibn Abi Maryam told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Zaid bin Aslam told me, he said: Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir told me, on the authority of Muhammad bin Kaab, that he said: I came to Anas bin Malik in Ramadan while he wanted to travel, and his mount had been saddled and he had put on his travel clothes and the sun was about to set, so he called for food and ate from it then he got on. So I said to him: Is it a Sunnah? He said: Yes. It was also narrated from Anas that he said: Abu Musa said to me: Did I not tell you that when you go out, you go out fasting, and when you enter, you enter fasting, so when you go out, go out breaking your fast, and when you enter, go in breaking your fast? Al-Hasan al-Basri said: He may break his fast if he wishes in his house on the day he wants to go out. Ahmad said: He may break his fast when he leaves the houses. Ishaq said: No, but when he places his foot in his saddle. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ahmad's statement is correct, because they say to someone who wakes up healthy and then becomes ill: He breaks his fast for the rest of the day. Likewise, if he wakes up in the city and then sets out to travel, he may also break his fast. A group said: He does not break his fast that day even if he gets up for his journey. This is what al-Zuhri, Makhul, Yahya al-Ansari, Malik, al-Awza'i, al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr and the people of opinion said. They differed about whether he does so, and all of them said that he should make up for it and not offer expiation. Malik said: Because travel is an urgent excuse, so it is like an illness that befalls him. It was narrated from some of the companions of Malik that he should make up the fast and offer expiation. This is the opinion of Ibn Kinanah and Al-Makhzoumi. Al-Baji narrated it from Al-Shafi'i, and Ibn Al-Arabi chose it and said it. He said: Because travel is an excuse that arose after the obligation of worship, and it is different from sickness and menstruation, because sickness permits him to break the fast, and menstruation prohibits her from fasting, and travel does not permit him to do so, so expiation is required of him for violating its sanctity. Abu Omar said: This is nothing, because God, the Exalted, has permitted him to break the fast in the Book and the Sunnah. As for their saying that he should not break the fast, this is only recommended for what he has stipulated. If he takes advantage of God's dispensation, then he must make it up. As for expiation, there is no basis for it, and whoever requires it has required something that God and His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not require. It was narrated from Ibn Omar on this issue: He may break the fast if he wishes on that day if he sets out on a journey. This is the opinion of Al-Sha'bi, Ahmad and Ishaq.

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

I said: Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, has addressed this issue in the chapter on the one who breaks his fast while traveling so that people can see him, and he cited the hadith: "On the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, left Medina for Mecca and fasted until he reached Usfan, then he called for water and raised it to his hands so that people could see him, and he broke his fast until he reached Mecca, that was in Ramadan." Muslim also narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he said in it: Then he called for a vessel containing a drink and drank it during the day so that people could see him, then he broke his fast until he entered Mecca. This is a text in the chapter, so what contradicts it is dropped, and God is the Grantor of success. It also contains an argument against those who say: Fasting is not valid while traveling. It was narrated on the authority of Umar, Ibn Abbas, Abu Hurairah, and Ibn Umar. Ibn Umar said: Whoever fasts while traveling must make up for it while at home. And on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf: The one who fasts while traveling is like the one who breaks his fast while at home. Some of the people of the apparent meaning said this, and they argued with the words of God, the Most High: Then an equal number of other days, as will be explained, and with what Ka'b ibn Asim narrated, who said: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

It is not righteousness to fast while traveling. This also provides evidence against those who say: Whoever intends to fast while traveling may break his fast even if he has no excuse. This is the view of Mutarrif, and it is one of the two opinions of al-Shafi'i, and a group of the people of hadith agree with him. Malik used to require him to make up the fast and offer expiation because he had a choice between fasting and breaking the fast. When he chose to fast and stay home, it was obligatory for him, but he was not allowed to break the fast. If he broke the fast intentionally without an excuse, he must make up the fast and offer expiation. It has been narrated from him that he does not have to offer expiation, and this is the view of most of his companions except for Abd al-Malik, who said: "If he breaks his fast by having sexual intercourse, he has disbelieved, because he does not have the strength to travel and has no excuse, because the traveler is only permitted to break his fast so that he may have the strength to travel." The rest of the jurists in Iraq and Hijaz said: He does not have to offer expiation, including al-Thawri, al-Awza'i, al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifah, and the rest of the jurists of Kufa. This was stated by Abu 'Umar.

Fourth: The scholars differed about what is better, breaking the fast or fasting while traveling. Malik and al-Shafi'i said in some of what was narrated from them: Fasting is better for those who are able to do it. Most of Malik's school of thought is that there is a choice, as does al-Shafi'i's school of thought. Al-Shafi'i and those who followed him said: He has a choice, and he did not specify. So did Ibn Ulayyah, based on the hadith of Anas who said:

"We traveled with the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) during Ramadan, and the fasting person did not criticize the one who broke the fast, nor did the one who broke the fast criticize the fasting person." Narrated by Malik, al-Bukhari and Muslim. It was narrated on the authority of Uthman ibn Abi al-'As al-Thaqafi and Anas ibn Malik, the two companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), that they said: Fasting while traveling is better for whoever is able to do so. This is the opinion of Abu Hanifa and his companions. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Umar and Ibn 'Abbas: A concession is better. This was also said by Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, al-Sha'bi, 'Umar ibn 'Abd al-'Aziz, Mujahid, Qatadah, al-Awza'i, Ahmad and Ishaq. All of these said that breaking the fast is better, because God the Almighty says interpretation of the meaning: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship.

Fifth: The Almighty's statement: then a number of days is omitted in the statement, meaning whoever among you is sick or traveling and breaks his fast, let him make it up. The majority of scholars are of the opinion that if the people of a country fast twenty-nine days and there is a sick man in the country who did not recover, then he must make up for twenty-nine days. Some people, including Al-Hasan bin Salih bin Hayy, said: He should make up for a month without considering the number of days. Al-Kaya Al-Tabari said: This is far-fetched, because the Almighty said: then a number of other days and did not say then a month of other days. His statement: then a number requires completing the number of days in which he broke his fast, and there is no doubt that if he broke his fast for some of Ramadan, then he must make up for the number of days he broke his fast after it, and likewise the ruling on breaking his fast as a whole must be based on its number.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: So a number. "So a number" is raised as a predicate of the subject, its meaning is So the ruling or So the duty is a number, and it is correct for him to fast a number. Al-Kisa'i said: So a number is permissible, meaning let him fast a number of days. It was also said: The meaning is fasting a number, so the complement was deleted and the number was established in its place. The number is a verb from count, and it means what is counted, like grinding in the sense of what is ground. You say: I hear a noise but I do not see any grinding. And from this is the woman's number. From other days "Akhira" was not declined according to Sibawayh, because it is modified from the alif and lam, because the way of a verb in this category is to come with the alif and lam, like al-kabr and al-fadl. Al-Kisa'i said: It is modified from akhir, as you say: hamra' and hamra', and that is why it was not declined. It was also said: It was prevented from being declined because it is on the weight of a plural and it is an attribute of ayam, and akhir was not brought so that it would not be confused as an attribute of the number. It was also said: Akhira is the plural of akhir as if it were ayam, then it became more numerous, so it was said: Ayyam Akhira. It was said: The description of days is feminine, so it was described by another.

Seventh: People differed on the necessity of performing it consecutively, with two opinions mentioned by Al-Daraqutni in his Sunan. He narrated on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said:

It was revealed on several consecutive days, then it was dropped consecutively. He said: This is a sound chain of transmission. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever owes a fast from Ramadan, let him complete it and not break it. In its chain of transmission is Abd al-Rahman ibn Ibrahim, who is weak in hadith. And he narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding making up Ramadan: Fast it however you wish. And Ibn Umar said: Fast it as you broke it. And he narrated on the authority of Abu Ubaidah ibn al-Jarrah, Ibn Abbas, Abu Hurayrah, Muadh ibn Jabal, and Amr ibn al-Aas. And "On the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Munkadir, he said: It reached me that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about breaking up the fast of Ramadan, so he said: That is up to you. Tell me, if one of you had a debt and paid off a dirham or two, would he not have paid it off? God is more deserving of pardoning and forgiveness." Its chain of transmission is good, except that it is mursal and cannot be proven as connected. In the Muwatta' of Malik, on the authority of Nafi' that Abdullah ibn Umar used to say: Whoever breaks it off consecutively due to illness or travel should fast Ramadan consecutively. Al-Baji said in al-Muntaqa: It is possible that he meant to inform about the obligation, and it is possible that he meant to inform about the desirability, and the majority of jurists are of the view that it is desirability. If he does it separately, it is sufficient for him, and Malik and Al-Shafi'i said the same. The evidence for the correctness of this is the statement of God the Almighty: Then a number of other days, and He did not specify separate days from consecutive days. If he does it separately, then he has fasted a number of other days, so it is obligatory for him to do it. Ibn Al-Arabi said: Consecutive days are only obligatory in the month because it is specific, and there is no specification in making up, so separating them is permissible.

Eighth: When God Almighty said: Then a number of other days, this indicates the obligation to make up for it without specifying a time, because the wording is general in its meaning and does not refer to some of them over others. In the two Sahihs, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, she said:

I have to fast from Ramadan, but I cannot make it up except in Shaban, because I am busy with the Messenger of God, or with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. In another narration: "Because of the position of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." This is the text and further clarification of the verse. This refutes Dawud's statement that he must make it up on the second of Shawwal. Whoever does not fast it and then dies is sinful in his eyes. Based on this, if he is obligated to free a slave and finds a slave being sold for a price, he does not have the right to go beyond that and buy another, because the obligation upon him is to free the first slave he finds, so no other will suffice. If he has a slave, it is not permissible for him to buy

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

another, and if the one he has dies, the manumission is not invalidated, just as it is invalidated in the case of someone who vows to free a specific slave and she dies, his vow is invalidated, and this invalidates his statement. Some of the scholars of the principles of jurisprudence said: If he dies after the passing of the eighth day of Shawwal, he does not disobey the condition of intention. The correct view is that he is not sinful or negligent, and this is the view of the majority. However, it is recommended for him to hasten to make up for it so that death does not overtake him and the obligation remains upon him.

Ninth: If someone had to make up days of Ramadan and the number of days passed after breaking the fast, during which he could have fasted, but he delayed it, then something happened to prevent him from making it up until another Ramadan, then he is not required to feed, because he did not break his fast when he did what was permissible for him to delay. This is the opinion of the Malikis of Baghdad, and they see it as the opinion of Ibn al-Qasim in al-Mudawwana.

Tenth: If he delays making up for it until after Sha'ban, which is the last period in which he can make up for Ramadan, is he required to make up for it or not? Malik, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, and Ishaq said: Yes. Abu Hanifa, Al-Hasan, Al-Nakha'i, and Dawud said: No.

I said: Al-Bukhari went to this for his statement, and he mentions on the authority of Abu Hurairah, without a chain of transmission, and Ibn Abbas that he feeds, and God did not mention feeding, rather He said: Then a number of other days.

I said: It was narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah with a chain of transmission regarding someone who neglected to make up for Ramadan until another Ramadan came upon him. He said: This one should fast with the people, and he should fast the one he neglected, and he should feed a poor person for each day. Ad-Daraqutni narrated it and said: Its chain of transmission is sound. It was narrated on his authority with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

"A man broke his fast in Ramadan due to illness, then recovered and did not fast until another Ramadan came. He said: He should fast the month he caught up with, then fast the month in which he broke his fast, and feed a poor person for each day." Its chain of transmission includes Ibn Nafi' and Ibn Wajih, both of whom are weak.

Eleventh: If his illness persists and he does not recover until the next Ramadan comes, then Al-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that he should feed a poor person a mudd of wheat for each day, then he does not have to make it up. It was also narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah who said: If he does not recover between two Ramadans, he should fast for this and feed for the second, and he does not have to make it up. If he recovers but does not fast until the next Ramadan comes, he should fast for this and feed for the last, and when he breaks his fast, he should make it up. The chain of transmission is sound. Our scholars said: The statements of the Companions that contradict analogy may be used as evidence. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that a man came to him and said: You were sick for two Ramadans? Ibn Abbas said to him: Did your illness continue, or did you recover between them? He said: Rather, you recovered. He said: Fast two Ramadans and feed sixty poor people. This is in exchange for his statement: If his illness persists, he does not have to make it up. This is similar to their doctrine regarding the pregnant and breastfeeding woman, that they should feed and do not have to make it up, as will come.

Twelfth: Those who are obligated to feed differed regarding the amount that must be fed. Abu Hurairah, Al-Qasim bin Muhammad, Malik, and Al-Shafi'i said: He should feed a mudd for each day. Al-Thawri said: He should feed half a sa' for each day.

Thirteenth: They differed about what is obligatory for someone who broke his fast or had intercourse while making up for Ramadan. Malik said: Whoever breaks his fast one day while making up for Ramadan by mistake, he does not have to do anything except make it up. It is recommended for him to continue with it due to the difference of opinion and then make it up. If he broke his fast intentionally, he has sinned and he does not have to do anything except make up for that day. He should not continue with it, because there is no point in refraining from what the fasting person refrains from here, since he is not fasting according to the majority of scholars because he broke his fast intentionally. As for expiation, there is no disagreement among Malik and his companions that it is not obligatory for that, and this is the opinion of the majority of scholars. Malik said: Whoever breaks his fast one day while making up for Ramadan by having intercourse with his wife or otherwise does not have to make expiation, but he has to make up for that day. Qatada said: Whoever has intercourse while making up for Ramadan has to make up for it and make up for it. Ibn al-Qasim narrated on the authority of Malik that whoever breaks his fast while making up for a missed Ramadan fast must make up for two days. Ibn al-Qasim used to issue a fatwa on this, then he changed his mind and said: If he breaks his fast intentionally while making up for a missed fast, he must fast for two days instead, like someone who spoils a Hajj by visiting his wife, and performs Hajj the following year and spoils his Hajj by visiting his wife again, he must make up for two Hajjs. Abu Omar said: Ibn Wahb and Abd al-Malik disagreed with him regarding Hajj, and analogy is not necessary based on a principle that is disputed. The correct view in my opinion - and God knows best - is that he only has to make up for one day in both cases, because it is one day that he spoiled twice.

I said: This is required by the Almighty's saying: Then a number of other days. So whenever he brings a full day in place of what he broke in making up for Ramadan, then he has fulfilled what is required of him, and nothing else is required of him, and God knows best.

Fourteenth: The majority of scholars agree that if someone breaks his fast in Ramadan due to an illness and dies from that illness, or travels and dies during his journey, then nothing is due on him. Tawus and Qatada said about a sick person who dies before he recovers: Food should be fed on his behalf.

Fifteenth: They differed concerning someone who died and had not made up for Ramadan fasts. Malik, Ash-Shafi'i and Ath-Thawri said: No one should fast. Ahmad, Ishaq, Abu Thawr, Al-Layth, Abu Ubaid and the apparent scholars said: Fasting should be done on his behalf, except that they specified it as a vow. The same was narrated from Ash-Shafi'i. Ahmad and Ishaq said concerning making up Ramadan: Feeding should be done on his behalf. Those who said that fasting is permissible provided evidence with what Muslim narrated on the authority of Aisha that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever dies and owes fasting, his guardian should fast on his behalf. However, this is general in fasting, and is specified by what Muslim also narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said:

"A woman came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, my mother has died and she had to fast as a vow - and in another narration, fast for a month - should I fast on her behalf? He said: Tell me, if your mother had a debt and you paid it off, would that be fulfilled on her behalf? She said: Yes. He said: Then fast on behalf of your mother." Malik and those who agreed with him cited as evidence the words of God, the Most High: And no bearer of burdens shall bear the burden of another and His words: And that man shall have nothing but what he strives for and His words: And no soul earns except against itself and what al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

No one should pray on behalf of anyone else, and no one should fast on behalf of anyone else, but a mudd of wheat should be fed on his behalf every day.

I said: This hadith is general, so it is possible that what is meant by his saying: No one should fast on behalf of another is the fast of Ramadan. As for fasting a vow, it is permissible, based on the hadith of Ibn Abbas and others. It also came in Sahih Muslim from a hadith of Buraydah similar to the hadith of Ibn Abbas, and in some of its chains of transmission:

Fasting for two months, should I fast on her behalf? He said: Fast on her behalf. She said: She has never performed Hajj, should I perform Hajj on her behalf? He said: Perform Hajj on her behalf. Her saying: Two months is unlikely to be Ramadan, and God knows best. The strongest evidence for Malik is that it was the practice of the people of Medina, and it is supported by clear analogy, which is that it is a physical act of worship in which money has no role, so it should not be done on behalf of someone upon whom it is obligatory, like prayer. This is not nullified by Hajj, because money has a role in it.

Sixteenth: This verse was used as evidence by those who said that fasting is not valid while traveling and that one must make up for it. God Almighty says: But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. That is, he must make up for it. There is no omission or implication in the speech. And with his saying, may the peace and blessings of God be upon him:

It is not righteousness to fast while traveling. He said: Whatever is not righteousness is sinful. This indicates that fasting Ramadan while traveling is not permissible. The majority say: There is something omitted in it, so break your fast, as mentioned above. This is correct, based on the hadith of Anas, who said:

"We traveled with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, during Ramadan, and the fasting person did not criticize the one who broke his fast, nor did the one who broke his fast criticize the fasting person." Narrated by Malik on the authority of Humayd al-Tawil on the authority of Anas. Muslim narrated it on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said:

We went on a military expedition with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sixteen days before the end of Ramadan. Some of us fasted and some of us broke our fast. The fasting person did not criticize the one who broke his fast, nor did the one who broke his fast criticize the fasting person.

God Almighty says: "And for those who can do it [with hardship] is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew." There are five issues in this:

The first: The Almighty's saying: And upon those who are able to bear it. The majority read it with a kasra on the ta' and a sukoon on the ya'. Its original form is yatuquhu, the kasra was transferred to the ta' and the waw was changed to a ya' because of the kasra of what preceded it. Hamid read it according to the original form without any defect, and the analogy is defect. The well-known reading of Ibn Abbas is yatuquhu with a fatha on the ta' and a shaddah on the waw, meaning they burden him. Mujahid narrated yatuquhu with a ya' after the ta' in the form yakilunu, which is invalid and impossible, because the verb is taken from tawq, so the waw is obligatory and there is no role for the ya' in this example. Abu Bakr al-Anbari said: Ahmad bin Yahya al-Nahwi recited to us for Abu Dhu'ayb:

It was said that it is more than you can bear. It is a printing press. Whoever visits it will not be harmed by it.

So he showed the waw in the word tawq, and it is correct that the one who puts the ya in its place differs from the correct. Ibn al-Anbari narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, yatuqunuhu with the fatha on the ya and the shaddah on the ta, and the ya with the fatha on it means yatuqunuhu, it is said: taaq, ataataaq, and atiq with the same meaning. And on the authority for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

of Ibn Abbas also, Aisha, Tawus, and Amr ibn Dinar, yatuqunuhu with the fatha on the ya and the shaddah on the ta, open, and it is correct in the language, because the original is yatuqunuhu, so the ta was made quiescent and assimilated into the ta, so it became a shaddah on the ta, and it is not from the Qur'an, contrary to those who confirmed it as a Qur'an, but it is a reading based on interpretation. The people of Madinah and Ash-Sham read fidya food with an addition, masakin as a plural. Ibn Abbas read ta'am miskin in the singular, as mentioned by al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, and al-Nasa'i on the authority of Ata' on his authority. It is a good reading, because it clarifies the ruling on the day, and Abu Ubaid chose it, and it is the reading of Abu Amr, Hamza, and al-Kisa'i. Abu Ubaid said: So it was made clear that each day there is one person to feed, so one person translates from all, but not all translate from one person. And the plural of the poor is not known how many of them there are in a day except from another verse. And the plural reading in poor is derived from the fact that those who are able to do it are a plural and each one of them is required to have a poor person, so the word is plural, as God Almighty said: And those who accuse chaste women but do not produce four witnesses - flog them with eighty lashes meaning flog each one of them with eighty lashes, so the eighty are not scattered among all of them, rather each one has eighty, Abu Ali said its meaning. And An-Nahhas chose the plural reading, and he said: What Abu Ubaid chose is rejected, because this is only known by indication, and it is known that the meaning of And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom to feed poor people is that for each day there is a poor person, so this reading was chosen to refer plural to plural. Al-Nahhas said: Abu Ubaid chose to read it as a food ransom. He said: Because the food is the ransom, and it is not permissible for food to be an adjective because it is a substance, but it is permissible as a substitute. It is clearer than that to read it as a food ransom with the addition, because a vague ransom applies to food and other things, so it becomes like your saying: This is a silk garment.

Second: The scholars differed about the meaning of the verse. Some said: It is abrogated. Al-Bukhari narrated: Ibn Numayr said: Al-A'mash told us: Amr ibn Murrah told us: Ibn Abi Laila told us: The companions of Muhammad (peace be upon him) told us: Ramadan was revealed and it was difficult for them. So whoever fed a poor person every day, those who were able to fast, left fasting. They were given permission to do so, but it was abrogated by and that you fast is better for you. According to this, the majority read they are able to do it, because the obligation of fasting is as follows: Whoever wants to fast, let him fast, and whoever wants to feed a poor person, let him feed. Ibn Abbas said: This verse was revealed as a permission for the elderly and the infirm in particular if they broke their fast while they were able to fast. Then it was abrogated by His statement: And whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. So the permission was removed except for those who were unable to do so. Al-Farra' said: The pronoun in they are able to fast may refer to fasting, meaning that those who are able to fast should feed when they break their fast. Then it was abrogated by His statement: and that you fast. It is permissible to refer to the ransom, i.e., and for those who are able to ransom, a ransom. As for the reading of yatuqunuhu, it means they are burdened with the hardship that will follow them, such as the sick and the pregnant, for they are able to do it but with hardship that will follow them in themselves, so if they fast, it will suffice them and if they ransom themselves, then they may do so. Ibn Abbas - if the chain of transmission from him is sound - interpreted yatuqunuhu as yatuqunuhu and yatuqulunuhu, so some of the narrators included it in the Qur'an. Abu Dawud narrated from Ibn Abbas, and for those who are able to do it, he said: It was proven for the pregnant and breastfeeding woman. And it was narrated from him, And for those who are able to do it, a ransom of feeding a poor person, he said: It was a concession for the elderly who are able to fast to break their fast and feed a poor person for each day, and the pregnant and breastfeeding woman, if they fear for their children, they break their fast and feed. Al-Daraqutni also narrated from him, he said: It was concession for the elderly man to break his fast and feed a poor person for each day, and he does not have to make it up. This is a sound chain of transmission. It was also narrated from him that he said: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of food that has not been abrogated, namely the elderly man and the elderly woman who are unable to fast, so they feed a poor person for each day. This is authentic. It was also narrated from him that he said to his mother, whether she was pregnant or breastfeeding: You are among those who are not able to fast, you must make up for it but you do not have to make it up. This is an authentic chain of transmission. In another narration: He had a mother of his who was breastfeeding - without a doubt - and she became exhausted, so he ordered her to break her fast and not make it up. This is authentic.

I said: It has been proven with authentic chains of transmission on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the verse is not abrogated and that it is decisive for those mentioned. The first statement is also correct, except that it is possible that abrogation there means specification, as the ancients often used the term abrogation in this sense, and God knows best. Al-Hasan al-Basri, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, al-Dahhak, al-Nakha'i, al-Zuhri, Rabi'ah, al-Awza'i and the people of opinion said: The pregnant and breastfeeding woman break the fast and do not have to feed the poor, just as the sick person breaks the fast and makes up for it. Abu Ubaid and Abu Thawr said the same. Abu Ubaid narrated that on the authority of Abu Thawr, and Ibn al-Mundhir chose it. It is the statement of Malik regarding the pregnant woman who breaks the fast, but as for the breastfeeding woman, if she breaks the fast, she must make it up and feed the poor. Al-Shafi'i and Ahmad said: They break the fast, feed the poor and make it up. They agreed that the elderly and old women who cannot fast or can do so with great difficulty should break the fast. They differed about what they are required to do. Rabia and Malik said: They are not required to do anything. However, Malik said: If they fed a poor person for each day, that would be more pleasing to me. Anas, Ibn Abbas, Qays ibn al-Sa'ib and Abu Hurayrah said: They are required to pay the ransom. This is the opinion of al-Shafi'i, the People of Opinion, Ahmad and Ishaq, following the opinion of the Companions may God be pleased with them all, and the words of God the Almighty: But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - the same number of days should be made up from other days (al-Anbiya' 1:10). Then He said: And upon those who can afford it is a ransom of feeding a poor person (al-Anbiya' 1:10). These people are neither ill nor travelling, so the ransom is required of them. The evidence for Malik's opinion is that this person breaks the fast due to an excuse that exists in him, which is old age and decrepitude, so he is not required to feed the poor like the traveller and the sick person. This was narrated from al-Thawri and Makhul, and Ibn al-Mundhir chose it.

Third: Those who made the ransom obligatory differed regarding its amount. Malik said: A mudd of the Prophet's mudd for each day he broke his fast, and Al-Shafi'i said the same. Abu Hanifa said: The expiation for each day is a sa' of dates or half a sa' of wheat. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Half a sa' of wheat, as mentioned by Al-Daraqutni. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that he said: Whoever is overtaken by old age and is unable to fast, must pay a mudd of wheat for each day. It was narrated on the authority of Anas bin Malik that he was too weak to fast for a year, so he made a bowl of food, then called for thirty poor people and fed them.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. Ibn Shihab said: Whoever intends to feed along with fasting. Mujahid said: Whoever feeds more than a mudd. Ibn Abbas: Whoever volunteers good, he said: Another poor person, it is better for him. Al-Daraqutni mentioned it and said: A sound and proven chain of transmission. The second good is an adjective of preference, as is the third and the first good. Isa bin Omar, Yahya bin Watthab, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read yataw'u khairan with a shaddah and the 'ayn was jazm to mean yutaw'u, the rest read tataw'u with a ta' and a light ta' and a fathah on the 'ayn for the past tense.

Fifth: The Almighty said: And that you fast is better for you. That is, fasting is better for you. And this is how my father read it, that is, than breaking the fast with the ransom, and this was before the abrogation. And it was said: And that you fast while traveling and sick, but not while it is difficult, and God knows best. In short, it requires urging fasting, that is, so know that and fast.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says, addressing the believers in this verse, and commanding them to fast, which is to abstain from food, drink, and sexual intercourse, with a pure intention for the sake of God, the Almighty, because it purifies and cleanses the souls from bad mixtures and bad morals. He mentioned that just as He made it obligatory for them, He made it obligatory for those who came before them, so they have an example in it, and these should strive to perform this obligation more fully than those did, as God, the Almighty, said: "To each of you We prescribed a law and a method. Had God willed, He would have made you one community, but to test you in what He has given you, so race to [do] good." The verse, and for this reason He said here, O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous. Because fasting purifies the body and narrows the paths of Satan, and for this reason it is proven in the two Sahihs, O group of young people, whoever among you is able to marry, let him marry, and whoever is not able, then let him fast, for it is a restraint for him. Then He explained the amount of fasting and that it is not every day. So that it would not be difficult for the souls to become weak in carrying it and performing it, but rather in a numbered number of days. This was the case at the beginning of Islam, they would fast three days of every month, then this was abrogated by fasting the month of Ramadan as will be explained. It has been narrated that fasting was at first as it was the case with the nations before us, three days of every month, on the authority of Muadh, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Ata', Qatadah, and Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim, and he added: This continued to be prescribed from the time of Noah until God abrogated it by fasting the month of Ramadan. Abbad bin Mansour said on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you that you may become righteous * For a numbered number of days. He said: Yes, by God, fasting was decreed upon every nation that has passed, just as it was decreed upon us, for a full month and a numbered number of days, a known number. Something similar was narrated on the authority of As-Suddi. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Muqri, who said: Saeed ibn Abi Ayoub told me, Abdullah ibn al-Walid told me, on the authority of Abu al-Rabi', a man from the people of Medina, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fasting Ramadan was prescribed by God for the nations before you, in a long hadith from which he summarized that. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas on the authority of someone who told him on the authority of Ibn 'Umar who said: Fasting is prescribed for you as it was prescribed for those before you was revealed. It was prescribed for them that if one of them prays the 'Isha prayer and sleeps, food, drink and women are forbidden to him until the same time. Ibn Abi al-'Aliyah, 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila, Mujahid, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, al-Rabi' ibn Anas, 'Ata' al-Khurasani said something similar to that. 'Ata' al-Khurasani said on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas: As it was prescribed for those before you meaning the People of the Book. A similar narration was narrated on the authority of al-Sha'bi, al-Suddi and 'Ata' al-Khurasani. Then he explained the ruling on fasting as it was at the beginning of Islam, saying: But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. That is, the sick and the traveler do not fast while they are ill or on a journey, because of the hardship that is upon them, rather they break their fast and make it up later on from other days. As for the healthy resident who is able to fast, he has the choice between fasting and feeding. If he wishes, he fasts, and if he wishes, he breaks his fast and feeds a poor person for each day. If he feeds, More than one poor person for each day is better, and if he fasts, it is better than feeding others. This was said by Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Tawus, Muqatil bin Hayyan and others from the Salaf. That is why God Almighty said: "And upon those who can do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew."

for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

Imam Ahmad said: Abu al-Nadr told us, al-Mas'udi told us, Amr ibn Murrah told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Jabal, may God be pleased with him, who said: Prayer was changed in three ways, and fasting was changed in three ways. As for the ways of prayer, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina and he prayed for seventeen months towards the Holy House. Then God Almighty revealed to him: "We have certainly seen the turning of your face towards the heaven. So We will surely turn you to a qiblah with which you will be pleased." So God directed him towards Mecca for this year. He said: They would gather for prayer and call each other to prayer, until they became weak or almost weak. Then a man from the Ansar called Abdullah ibn Zayd ibn Abd Rabbih came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I saw in a dream, and if I said that I was not asleep, I would be telling the truth. While I was between sleeping and awake, I saw a person wearing two green garments, and he faced the qiblah and said: God is Great, God is Great, I bear witness that there is no god but God. Muthanna - until he finished the call to prayer, then he waited an hour and then said the same as he had said except that he added to it: The prayer has begun twice. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Teach it to Bilal, so let him call to prayer with it. Bilal was the first to call to prayer with it. He said: And Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, came and said: O Messenger of God, he circumambulated me as he circumambulated him, except that he preceded me. So these are two situations. He said: And they used to come to prayer and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, preceded them with some of it, so a man would point to a man, so how much did he pray? He said: One or two, so he prays them, then he joins the people in their prayer. He said: Then Muadh came and said: I never find him in a state except that I am in it, then I completed what I had preceded. He said: So he came and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had preceded him in some of it. He said: So he stayed with him. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had finished, he stood up and completed it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Muadh has prescribed for you, so do it like this. These are three states. As for the states of fasting, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina and began to fast three days of every month and fasted Ashura. Then God imposed fasting on him, and God Almighty revealed: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting as it was decreed upon those before you to His saying: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom of feeding a poor person. So whoever wanted to fast, he fasted, and whoever wanted to feed a poor person, and that was sufficient for him. Then God Almighty revealed the other verse: The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an to His saying: So whoever witnesses the month among you, let him fast it. So God established Fasting is permissible for a healthy resident, and it is permissible for the sick and the traveler, and feeding is established for the elderly who are unable to fast. These are two cases. He said: They used to eat, drink, and come to women as long as they did not sleep. When they slept, they refrained. Then a man from the Ansar called Sarmah worked while fasting until evening. Then he came to his family and prayed the Isha prayer, then slept. He did not eat or drink until morning, so he became fasting. The Messenger of God saw him and he had exerted himself greatly, so he said: Why do I see you exerting yourself greatly? He said: O Messenger of God, I did some work yesterday and came when I came, so I threw myself down and slept, and became fasting. He said: Omar had had intercourse with women after he had slept, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so God, the Almighty, revealed: "Lawful to you on the night of the fast is the approach to your wives. They are your garments and you are their garments. God knows that you were deceiving yourselves, so He has turned to you in forgiveness and pardoned you. So now have intercourse with them and seek what God has ordained for you. And eat and drink until the white thread of dawn becomes distinct to you from the black thread, then complete the fast until the night." Abu Dawud included it in his Sunan, and al-Hakim in his Mustadrak from the hadith of al-Mas'udi with it. Al-Bukhari and Muslim included it from the hadith of al-Zuhri from Urwah from Aisha that she said: Ashura used to be fasted, but when the obligation of Ramadan was revealed, whoever wanted to fast could fast and whoever wanted to break the fast could break the fast. Al-Bukhari narrated something similar from Ibn Umar and Ibn Mas'ud.

And the Almighty's saying: And upon those who are hard to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, as Mu'adh, may God be pleased with him, said: In the beginning, whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break his fast could break his fast and feed a poor person for each day. And thus, Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Salamah bin Al-Akwa' that he said when the verse And upon those who are hard to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person was revealed: whoever wanted to break his fast could pay the ransom until the verse after it was revealed and abrogated it. And it was also narrated on the authority of Ubaydullah on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: It is abrogated. And Al-Suddi said on the authority of Marra on the authority of Abdullah, he said when this verse was revealed: And upon those who are hard to fast is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person, he said: It says And upon those who are hard to fast, meaning they take on the burden of it. Abdullah said: So whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break his fast could feed a poor person. But whoever does it voluntarily, he said: feed another poor person, "it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you," and they were like that until it was abrogated by So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. And Al-Bukhari also said: Ishaq told us, Ruh narrated to us, Zakariya bin Ishaq narrated to us, Amr bin Dinar narrated to us from Ata': He heard Ibn Abbas recite: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person. Ibn Abbas said: It is not abrogated. It is the old man and the old woman who are able to fast, so they feed a poor person for each day. And more than one person narrated similarly from Saeed bin Jubair from Ibn Abbas. Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah said: Abd al-Raheem bin Sulayman narrated to us from Ash'ath bin Suwar, from Ikrimah from Ibn Abbas, he said: This verse And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person was revealed about the old man who is not able to fast, then it became weak and he was permitted to feed a poor person for each day. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad narrated to us, al-Husayn bin Bahram al-Makhzumi narrated to us, Wahb bin Baqiyah narrated to us, Khalid bin Abdullah narrated to us from Ibn Abi Laila, he said: I entered upon Ata' in Ramadan while he was eating, so he said: Ibn Abbas said: This verse was revealed And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person. The ransom of feeding a poor person." So whoever wanted to fast could fast, and whoever wanted to break the fast could break the fast and feed a poor person. Then the first was abrogated for the elderly person who had passed away. If he wanted to feed a poor person for each day, he could break the fast. So the bottom line is that abrogation is established for the healthy resident person by requiring him to fast, as He said, So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. As for the elderly person who has passed away and is unable to fast, he may break the fast and does not have to make it up, because he does not have a condition that he can reach in which he can make it up. But is it obligatory for him, if he breaks the fast, to feed a poor person for each day if he has a grandmother? There are two opinions of scholars: One of them is that he is not obligated to feed because he is too weak to do so due to his age, so he is not obligated to pay a ransom like a child, because God does not burden a soul beyond its capacity, and this is one of the two opinions of Al-Shafi'i. The second, which is correct and is the opinion of most scholars, is that he is obligated to pay a ransom for each day, as Ibn Abbas and others of the Salaf interpreted it according to the reading of those who read and upon those who are able to do it meaning they are able to do it, as Ibn Mas'ud and others said. This is the choice of Al-Bukhari, for he said: As for the old man if he is not able to fast, Anas fed a poor person for each day after he grew old, a year or two after he had grown old, bread and meat, and he broke his fast. This which Al-Bukhari suspended was attributed to Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la Al-Mawsili in his Musnad, and he said: Abdullah bin Mu'adh told us, my father told us, Imran told us on the authority of Ayoub bin Abi Tamima, who said: Anas was too weak to fast, so he made a bowl of tharid, and invited thirty poor people and fed them. It was narrated by Abd bin Hamid on the authority of Ruh bin Ubadah, on the authority of Imran, who is Ibn Hadhir, on the authority of Ayoub, on his authority. Abd also narrated it from the hadith of six of the companions of Anas on the authority of Anas with the same meaning. Among the things that are included in this meaning are the pregnant woman and the breastfeeding woman if they fear for themselves or their children. There is much disagreement among the scholars concerning them. Some of them said: They break the fast, pay the ransom, and make up the fast. It was said: They pay the ransom only and do not make up the fast. It was said: They must make up the fast without ransom. It was said: They break the fast and do not pay the ransom or make up the fast. We have explained this issue in detail in the book on fasting that we devoted to it. Praise and thanks be to God.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying: 184- Days is in the accusative case as a second object of his saying: It was written Al-Farra' said: It was said: It is in the accusative case as a circumstance: meaning fasting was written for you in days. And his saying: Counted means specified in a known number, and it is possible that in this plural because it is from the plurals of fewness there is an indication of the shortening of the days. And his saying: So whoever among you is ill it was said that the sick person has two cases: If he is unable to fast, then breaking the fast is obligatory, and if he is able to do so with harm and hardship, then it is a dispensation, and this is what the majority said. And his saying: On a journey the scholars differed regarding the journey that permits breaking the fast, so it was said: The distance of shortening the prayer, and the disagreement over its amount is well-known, and this is what the majority said, and others said: In amounts for which there is no evidence. The truth is that what is true of travel is what is permissible for breaking the fast, and likewise what is true of illness is what is permissible for breaking the fast. There was consensus on breaking the fast during a journey of obedience. They differed about permissible journeys, and the truth is that the license is established in it, and they also differed about the journey of disobedience. And his saying: then a number means he has a number, or the ruling is a number, or the duty is a number, and the number is its action from the number, and it means the counted. And his saying: from other days Sibawayh said: It was not declined because it was modified from the other, because the way of this chapter is to bring the definite article. Al-Kisa'i said: It is modified from the other, and it was said: It is the plural of another, and there is nothing in the verse that indicates the obligation of succession in making up. His saying: and upon those who are able to do it The majority read with a kasra on the ta' and a sukoon on the ya', and its original is for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

yatuquhu, the kasra was transferred to the ta', and the waw was changed to a ya' because of the kasra of what preceded it. Hamid read according to the original without defect. Ibn Abbas read with a fatha on the ta' with a lightened letter and a shaddah on the waw: meaning they impose on him. Ibn al-Anbari narrated from Ibn Abbas yatuquhu with a fatha on the ya' and a shaddah on the ta' and the ya' with both open, meaning they are able to do it. It was narrated on the authority of Aisha, Ibn Abbas, Amr bin Dinar and Tawus that they read yatqiqunuhu with a fatha on the ya and a shaddah on the ta with a fatha. The people of Medina and Ash-Sham read fidya ta'am with an addition. They also read masakeen and Ibn Abbas read ta'am miskeen which is the reading of Abu Amr, Asim, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i. The scholars differed regarding this verse, is it decisive or abrogated? It was said that it was abrogated, but it was a concession when fasting was first made obligatory because it was difficult for them, so whoever fed a poor person every day would stop fasting even though he was able to do so, then that was abrogated, and this is the opinion of the majority. It was narrated on the authority of some scholars that it was not abrogated, and that it was a concession for the elderly and the old especially if they were not able to fast except with difficulty, and this is consistent with the reading of shaddah: that is, they force them as mentioned above. The abrogator of this verse according to the majority is the saying of God the Almighty: And whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it. They differed regarding the amount of the ransom, and it was said: Each day one sa' of other than wheat, and half a sa' of it, and it was said: only one mudd. And his saying: And whoever volunteers good - it is better for him. Ibn Shihab said: Its meaning is that he intended feeding along with fasting. Mujahid said: Its meaning is whoever feeds more than the mudd, and it was said: whoever feeds the poor another musk. Isa bin Amr, Yahya bin Watthab, Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read yataw'u with a shaddah and the verb is jussive with the meaning of yatawudhu, and the rest read it with a light ta' as a past tense verb. And his saying: And that you fast is better for you means: that fasting is better for them than breaking the fast with a ransom, and this was before the abrogation, and it was said that its meaning is: and that you fast while traveling and sick, but not while it is difficult.

Ahmad, Abu Dawud, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Hibban, al-Hakim who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Muadh ibn Jabal, who said: Prayer was permitted in three cases, and fasting was permitted in three cases. He mentioned the cases of prayer, then said: As for the cases of fasting, the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) came to Madinah, and he began to fast three days of every month, and he fasted on Ashura. Then God, the Exalted, imposed fasting on him and revealed to him: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting until His saying: And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom, the feeding of a poor person. So whoever wanted to fast, he fasted, and whoever wanted to feed a poor person, that was sufficient for him. Then God revealed the other verse: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. So God confirmed its fasting for the sound resident, and permitted it for the sick and the traveler, and confirmed feeding the elderly who are unable to fast. Then he mentioned the rest of the hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His saying: As it was decreed upon those before you, he said: He meant the People of the Book. Al-Bukhari narrated in his history and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Daghfal bin Hanzalah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The Christians were required to fast the month of Ramadan. Their king fell ill and they said: 'If God heals him, we will add ten more.' Then there was another who ate meat and his mouth hurt. He said: 'If God heals him, we will add seven more.' Then there was another king who said: 'We will not leave anything of these three days. We will complete them and make our fast in the spring.' So he did so and it became fifty days." Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement: Perhaps you will become righteous, he said: You will be righteous from food, drink and women as they were righteous. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas something similar to what was previously mentioned on the authority of Muadh. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fasting Ramadan was prescribed by God for the nations before you. Al-Bukhari and Muslim narrated on the authority of Aisha, who said: Ashura used to be a fast, but when Ramadan was revealed, whoever wanted to fast could and whoever wanted to break the fast could. Abd bin Hamid narrated that Ibn Abbas said: The Almighty's saying: And upon those who are able to fast has been abrogated. Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar to that from him, and he added that what abrogated it is the Almighty's saying: And whoever among you witnesses the month [al-Naskh]. Abu Dawud narrated something similar to that from him. Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Abu Dawud, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and others also narrated something similar from him. Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated from the hadith of Salamah bin Al-Akwa' who said: When this verse was revealed: And upon those who are able to fast is a ransom of feeding a poor person, whoever wanted to fast could, and whoever wanted to break the fast and ransom could, until this verse was revealed after it and abrogated it: And whoever among you witnesses the month. Al-Bukhari narrated from Ibn Abi Laila who said: The companions of Muhammad told us, and he mentioned something similar. Ibn Jarir narrated from Ali bin Abi Talib regarding his saying: And upon those who are able to fast he said: The old man who is unable to fast should break the fast and feed a poor person in place of each day. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ad-Daraqutni and Al-Bayhaqi narrated that Anas ibn Malik was too weak to fast for a year before his death, so he made a bowl of tharid and invited thirty poor people and fed them. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn

Jarir and Ad-Daraqutni narrated who authenticated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said to his pregnant or nursing mother: You are like those who cannot fast. You must eat, but you do not have to make up for it. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ad-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that one of his daughters sent him a message asking him about fasting Ramadan while she was pregnant. He said: Break your fast and feed a poor person every day. Something similar to this was narrated on the authority of a group of the Tabi'un. Abd ibn Humayd narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding the statement of God, But whoever does good voluntarily, he said: Feed two poor people. Abd ibn Humayd narrated on the authority of Tawus regarding the statement of God, But whoever does good voluntarily, he said: Feed the poor people. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Shihab regarding the statement of God, And that you fast is better for you, meaning that fasting is better for you than blood money. There are many hadiths about the virtue of fasting.

184. It was said that what is meant by his saying a numbered number of days is the month of Ramadan, and it was not abrogated. The word days was put in the accusative case as a circumstance, meaning in a numbered number of days. It was also said: as an explanation. It was also said: on is the predicate of what its agent was not named. So whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number meaning he breaks his fast - then an equal number from other days meaning he must do an equal number, and the number and the number are one. from other days meaning other than the days of his illness and travel. Other is in the accusative case, but it is not declined, and that is why it was put in the accusative case.

God the Almighty said: And for those who are able to fast. The scholars differed in the interpretation of this verse and its ruling. Most of them said that the verse was abrogated, which is the opinion of Ibn Umar, Salamah ibn al-Akwa' and others. This is because at the beginning of Islam, they were given the choice between fasting and breaking the fast and making a ransom. God the Almighty gave them the choice so that it would not be difficult for them because they were not accustomed to fasting. Then the choice was abrogated and the obligation was revealed in the words of God the Almighty: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. Qatada said: This is specific to the elderly man who is able to fast, but it is difficult for him. He was given permission to break the fast and make a ransom, then it was abrogated. Al-Hasan said: This is for the sick person who has what is called a sickness and he is able to fast. He has the choice between fasting and breaking the fast and making a ransom. Then it was abrogated by the words of God the Almighty: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it.

And the license was established for those who are not able to fast, and a group of people went to the view that the verse is decisive and not abrogated, and its meaning is: And for those who were able to do it in their youth and were unable to do it after they grew old, then they must pay a ransom instead of fasting. Ibn Abbas read: And for those who are able to do it with a damma on the ya' and a fatha on the ta' and a light ta' and a fatha on the waw and a shaddah, meaning they are required to fast, and its interpretation is for the elderly man and the elderly woman who are not able to fast, and the sick person whose illness is not expected to go away, so they are required to fast but are not able to do it, so they may break their fast and feed a poor person for each day, and this is the view of Saeed bin Jubair, and he made the verse decisive.

The Almighty said: The ransom of feeding a poor person. The people of Medina and Ash-Sham read it as an addition, and likewise in al-Ma'idah 5: The expiation of food. He added the ransom to the food, even though it was one due to the difference in the two words, like the Almighty's saying: And the grain of the harvest 9-Qaf and their saying: the mosque of the congregation and Rabi' al-Awwal. The others read: ransom and expiation with a definite article, food is raised and the people of Medina and Ash-Sham read it in the plural, and the others are on the singular, so whoever pluralized it put the noon in the accusative and whoever limited it lowered the noon and its noon, and the ransom: the reward, and it is obligatory to feed a poor person for each day a mudd of food according to the mudd of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, which is a pound and a third of the country's main food, this is the saying of the jurists of Hijaz, and some jurists of Iraq said: He owes each poor person half a sa' for each day he breaks his fast, and some of them said: Half a sa' of wheat or a sa' of something else, and some jurists said what the person who broke his fast ate on the day he broke his fast, and Ibn Abbas said: He gives each poor person his dinner and his suhoor.

So whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. That is, he gives more than one poor person, so he feeds two poor people or more in place of each day. This was said by Mujahid, Ata', and Tawus. It was also said: Whoever gives more than the amount required of him, and gives a sa' and owes a mudd, it is better for him.

And that you fast is better for you. So whoever went to the abrogation said that its meaning is that fasting is better for him than the ransom. It was said: This is for the elderly man if he takes on the task of fasting, even if it is difficult for him, he is informed that he should break his fast and ransom, if you only knew. And know that there is no permission for a responsible believer to break his fast in Ramadan except for three: One of them must make up for it and pay expiation, the second must make up for it but not pay expiation, and the third must pay expiation but not make up for it. As for the one who must make up for it and pay expiation, it is the pregnant woman and the breastfeeding woman if they fear for their children, then they break their fast and make it up, and they must pay expiation in addition to making it up. This is the opinion of Ibn Umar and Ibn Abbas, and Mujahid said this and Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said this. Some people said that there is no ransom for them, and this is what Al-Hasan, Ata', Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Al-Zuhri said, and Al-Awza'i, Al-Thawri, and the people of opinion said this. As for the one who must make up for a specified number of days. But whoever among you is ill or on a journey, the same number of other days. And upon those who are able to do it is a ransom - the feeding of a poor person. But whoever volunteers good, it is better for him. And that you fast is better for you, if you only knew.

for it but not pay expiation, it is the sick person, the traveler, the menstruating woman, and the woman in childbirth.

As for the one who must pay expiation without making up the fast, he is the elderly man and the sick person whose illness is not expected to go away. Then God Almighty explained the days of fasting.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

184- A few days are timed with a known number, or few. A little money is counted as a number and a lot is a trivial amount. Its accusative is not with fasting because of the separation between them, but with the implication of fast because fasting indicates it, and what is meant by it is Ramadan or what was obligatory to fast before it was obligatory and was abrogated by it, which is Ashura or three days of every month, or as it was written on the circumstance, or that it is a second object for was prescribed for you on the spaciousness. It was said that its meaning is your fasting is like their fasting in the number of days, because it was narrated: Ramadan was prescribed for the Christians, and it occurred in extreme cold or heat, so they changed it to spring and added twenty expiations to it to change it. It was said that they added that for a death that befell them. So whoever among you is ill with an illness that harms or makes fasting difficult. Or on a journey or a traveler, and in it is an allusion to the fact that whoever travels during the day does not break his fast. Then a number of other days means he must fast the number of days of illness, or of travel from other days if he breaks the fast. The condition, the complement, and the complement to it were omitted because they are known. It was read in the accusative case, meaning let him fast a number, and this is by way of concession. It was said that it is obligatory, and this is the view of the Zahiris, and Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with him said the same. And upon those who are able to do it means upon those who are able to fast if they break the fast. The ransom is the feeding of a poor person means half a sa' of wheat or a sa' of other than it according to the jurists of Iraq, and a mudd according to the jurists of Hijaz. They were initially given concession for that when they were ordered to fast, but it was difficult for them because they were not accustomed to it, then it was abrogated. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read according to the narration of Ibn Dhakwan by adding the ransom to the food and pluralizing the poor. Ibn Amir read, according to the narration of Hisham, masakeen without adding the ransom to the food, and the rest without adding it and unifying masakeen. It was read yatuwaqunhu meaning they burden him and they imitate him in the roads, meaning the energy or necklace, and yatuwaqunhu meaning they burden him, or they imitate him and they imitate him with assimilation, and yatuwaqunhu and yatuwaqunhu on the basis that their origin is yatuwaqunhu from fa'il and taf'il meaning they imitate him and they imitate him, and according to these readings, a second meaning is possible, which is the permission for those who are tired and exhausted by fasting - and they are the elderly and the old - to break the fast and pay the ransom, so it is fixed and the famous reading was interpreted by it, meaning they fast it to the best of their ability and capacity. So whoever volunteers good so he added to the ransom. It is so the volunteering or the good. "It is better for him and that you fast" you who are able, or those who are able and you have exerted your energy. Or those who are permitted to break the fast so that the sick and the traveler fall under it. It is better for you than the ransom or volunteering good or both of them and from delaying it to make up for it. If you knew what virtue there is in fasting and the release of conscience, and its answer is omitted and indicated by what preceded it, i.e. you chose it. And it was said that its meaning is if you are people of knowledge and contemplation, you would know that fasting is better for you than that.

Surat al-Baqarah 2:185

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify God. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those days the month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was sent down from the Preserved Tablet to the lowest heaven on the Night of Decree, from it is guidance a state that guides from misguidance for mankind and clear proofs clear verses of guidance of what guides to the truth of the rulings and of the Criterion of what distinguishes between truth and falsehood so whoever witnesses is present among you the month, let him fast it, and whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days something similar has come before and has been repeated so that it is not thought that it was abrogated by generalizing whoever witnesses God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and therefore He permitted you to break the fast in sickness and travel and because that is also in the sense of a reason for the command to fast, it is connected to it and that you may complete with the lightening and emphasis the number meaning the number of fasts of Ramadan and that you may glorify God upon completing it for that He has guided you He guided you to the landmarks of His religion and perhaps you will be grateful to God for that

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The word month, as it is said, comes from fame. It is said: So-and-so drew his sword - if

He took it out of its sheath and used it to attack anyone he wanted to strike. He brandished it for a month. And so it is with the 9th month of the month, when its crescent moon appears, and we brandish it when we enter the month.

As for Ramadan, some of the people who know the Arabic language claimed that it was named thus because of the intense heat that used to occur in it, until the camels would be scorched, as is said for the month in which Dhul-Hijjah is performed, and in which Rabi' al-Awwal and Rabi' al-Akhir are the two months. As for Mujahid, he disliked saying Ramadan, and said: Perhaps it is one of the names of God. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Nu'aym told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mujahid: that he disliked saying Ramadan, and said: Perhaps it is one of the names of God, but we say as God said: The month of Ramadan. I have previously explained that month is in the nominative case based on His statement: a numbered number of days, which are the month of Ramadan. It is possible that it is in the nominative case meaning: That is the month of Ramadan, and meaning: The month of Ramadan has been prescribed for you. Some of the reciters have read it month of Ramadan in the accusative case, meaning: Fasting has been prescribed for you to fast the month of Ramadan. Some of them have read it in the accusative case meaning: Fasting the month of Ramadan is better for you, if you only knew. It is also permissible to put it in the accusative case as a command to fast it, as if it were said: The month of Ramadan, so fast it. It is also permissible to put it in the accusative case as a time, as if it were said: Fasting was prescribed for you in the month of Ramadan. As for his statement: in which the Qur'an was sent down, it is mentioned that it was sent down on the Night of Decree from the Preserved Tablet to the lowest heaven, on the Night of Decree in the month of Ramadan. Then it was sent down to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as God wanted it to be sent down to him, as Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Abu Bakr ibn Ayyash told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Hassan ibn Abi Al-Ashras, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The Qur'an was sent down all at once from the remembrance on the night of the twenty-fourth of Ramadan, and it was placed in the House of Honour. Abu Kurayb said: Abu Bakr told us, and Al-Suddi said the same. Isa ibn Uthman told me, he said, Yahya ibn Isa told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Hassan, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, he said: The Qur'an was sent down all at once on the Night of Decree in the month of Ramadan, and it was placed in the lowest heaven.

Ahmad ibn Mansur narrated that Abdullah ibn Raja' narrated that Imran al-Qattan narrated that Qatada narrated that Abu al-Malih narrated that Wathilah narrated that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "The scrolls of Abraham were revealed on the first night of the month of Ramadan, the Torah was revealed on the sixth of Ramadan, the Gospel was revealed on the thirteenth of the previous month, and the Qur'an was revealed on the twenty-fourth of Ramadan." Musa narrated that Amr narrated that Asbat narrated that al-Suddi said: The month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed. As for in which the Qur'an was revealed, Ibn Abbas said: The month of Ramadan, and the blessed night is the Night of Decree, for the Night of Decree is the blessed night, and it is in Ramadan. The Qur'an was revealed all at once from the Scriptures to Bayt al-Ma'mur, which is the location of the stars in the lowest heaven where the Qur'an was revealed. Then it was revealed to Muhammad (peace and blessings of God be upon him) after that in commands and prohibitions and in wars, messengers after messengers. Ibn al-Muthanna narrated that Abdul-Wahhab narrated that Dawud narrated that Ikrimah narrated that Ibn Abbas narrated that

He said: God sent down the Qur'an to the lowest heaven on the Night of Decree. When God wanted to reveal something from it, He revealed it. This is what He said: Indeed, We sent it down during the Night of Decree (al-Qadr 97:1).

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Ibn Al-Muthanna said: Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned something similar - and he added to it: So it was twenty years from the beginning and the end of it.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The entire Qur'an was sent down all at once on the Night of Decree in Ramadan, to the lowest heaven. So whenever God wanted to bring about something on earth, He would send it down from there, until He had gathered it. Ya'qub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Husayn told us, on the authority of Hakim ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The Qur'an was sent down on the Night of Decree from the highest heaven to the highest heaven all at once, then it was distributed throughout the years after that. He said: Ibn Abbas recited this verse: So I swear by the positions of the stars (al-Waqi'ah 56:75), he said: It was sent down in parts. Ya'qub told us, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: It has reached us that the Qur'an was sent down all at once to the lowest heaven. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid ibn Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, Ibn Jurayj recited it in

His saying: The month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed. He said: Ibn Abbas said: The Qur'an was revealed all at once to Gabriel on the Night of Decree, and nothing would be revealed from it except by command. Ibn Jurayj said: Everything that was revealed from the Qur'an that was revealed from the Qur'an that year was revealed on the Night of Decree. So that was revealed from the seventh heaven to Gabriel in the lowest heaven, and Gabriel would not reveal anything of that to Muhammad except what his Lord had commanded him to do. And similar to that is: Indeed, We sent it down during the Night of Decree (al-Qadr 97:1), and Indeed, We sent it down during a blessed night (al-Dukhan 44:3). Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ubaydullah bin Musa told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of al-Suddi, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi al-Mujalid, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, a man said to him: Indeed, doubt has entered my heart regarding His statement: The month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed, and His statement: Indeed, We sent it down during a blessed night (al-Dukhan 44:3), and His statement: Indeed, We sent it down during the Night of Decree (al-Qadr 97:1), and God revealed it in Shawwal, Dhu al-Qi'dah, and other times! He said: It was only revealed in Ramadan on the Night of Decree and a blessed night all at once, then He sent down messengers according to the positions of the stars during the months and days. As for His statement: A guidance for mankind, it means guidance for the people to the path of truth and the right way. As for his saying: and clear proofs, he means: and clear proofs of guidance - meaning: of the explanation indicating the limits of God and His obligations and what is permissible and forbidden. And his saying: and the Criterion means: and the separation between truth and falsehood, as:

Musa bin Harun told me, he said: Amr bin Hammad told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for and clear proofs of guidance and criterion, they are clear proofs of what is lawful and what is unlawful.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed about the meaning of witnessing the month. Some of them said: It is the residence of the resident in his home. They said: So whoever enters the month of Ramadan while he is residing in his home, he must fast the entire month, whether he is absent after that and travels, or he stays and does not leave. Those who said that: Muhammad bin Hamid and Muhammad bin 'Isa al-Damaghani told us, they said: Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of al-Hasan bin Yahya, on the authority of al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his statement: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, he said: It is its crescent in the home. He means: If it appears while he is residing. Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, he said: Hisham told us, he said: Husayn told us, on the authority of someone who told him, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas that he said about his statement: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it: So if he witnesses it while he is residing, he must fast, whether he resides or travels. And if he witnesses it while he is traveling, then if he wishes he may fast, and if he wishes he may break his fast. Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Muhammad, on the authority of Ubaydah - regarding a man who witnesses Ramadan and then travels - he said: If you witness its beginning, then fast its end. Do you not see that He says: And whoever witnesses the month among you, let him fast it? Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Hisham al-Qardoosi, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, he said, I asked Ubaydah: About a man who witnesses Ramadan while he is a resident? He said: Whoever fasts the beginning of the month, let him fast the end of it. Do you not see that He says: And whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it? Musa told me, he said: Amr told us, he said: Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for And whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, then whoever Ramadan enters upon him while he is residing among his family, let him fast it, and if he leaves during it, let him fast it, for it entered upon him while he is residing among his family. Al-Muthanna told me, he said: Hajjaj told us, he said: Hammad told us, he said: Qatada told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaydah

Al-Salmani, on the authority of Ali - according to what Hammad thinks - he said: Whoever witnesses Ramadan while he is residing and has not left, then fasting is obligatory upon him, because God says: And whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. Hannad ibn Al-Sari told us, he said: Abd Al-Rahman told us, on the authority of Ismail ibn Muslim, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, he said: I asked Ubaydah Al-Salmani about the statement of God: And whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, he said: Whoever is residing, let him fast it, and whoever witnesses it and then travels during it, let him fast it. Hannad narrated, he said: Waki' narrated, on the authority of Ibn 'Awn, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of 'Ubaidah, he said: Whoever witnesses the beginning of Ramadan, let him fast the end of it. Hannad narrated, he said: 'Abdah narrated, on the authority of Sa'id ibn 'Arubah, on the authority of Qatadah, that 'Ali used to say: If Ramadan comes to him while he is a resident and then he travels, then he must fast. Hannad narrated, he said: 'Abd al-Rahim narrated, on the authority of 'Ubaidah al-Dhabi, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: He used to say: If Ramadan comes to you, do not travel during it. If you fast one or two days during it and then travel, do not break your fast, fast it. Ibn al-Muthanna narrated, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far narrated, he said: Shu'bah narrated, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Murrah, on the authority of Abu al-Bukhtari, he said: We were with 'Ubaidah and he recited this verse: And whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it. He said: Whoever fasts part of it in a city, let him fast the rest of it when he leaves. He said: Ibn 'Abbas used to say: If he wishes, he may fast, and if he wishes, he may break his fast. Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us - and Yaqoub bin Ibrahim told me, he said,

Ibn Ulayyah - they both said, Ayoub narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Yazid, on the authority of Umm Dhara, she said: I came to Aisha in Ramadan, she said: Where did you come from? I said: From my brother Hunayn. She said: What is the matter with him? She said: I bid him farewell, he wants to leave. She said: Give him my greetings and tell him to stand, if Ramadan caught up with me while I was on the way, I would stand for him. Hannad narrated to us, he said: Ishaq bin Isa narrated to us, on the authority of Aflah, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman, he said: Ibrahim bin Talhah came to Aisha to greet her, she said: Where do you want to go? He said: I wanted to perform Umrah. She said: So I sat until the month came upon you, then I went out in it! He said: My burden has gone out! She said: Sit, until you break your fast, then go out - meaning the month of Ramadan. Others said: The meaning of this is: Whoever witnesses the month, let him fast what he witnessed of it. Those who said this mentioned: Hannad bin al-Sarri narrated to us, he said: Sharik narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq: Abu Maysarah went out in Ramadan, until he reached al-Qantara, he called for water and drank. Hannad narrated to us, he said: Jarir narrated to us, on the authority of Mughirah, he said: Abu Maysarah went out on a journey in Ramadan, and he passed by the Euphrates while he was fasting, so he took a handful of it and drank it and broke his fast. Hannad narrated to us, he said: Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Marthad: that Abu Maysarah traveled in Ramadan, and he broke his fast at the gate of the bridge - this is what Hannad said, on the authority of Marthad, but it is Abu Marthad. Muhammad ibn 'Amara al-Asadi narrated to me, he said: 'Ubaydullah ibn Musa narrated to us, he said: Israel informed us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Marthad: that he went out with Abu Maysarah in Ramadan, and when he reached the bridge, he broke his fast.

Hannad and Abu Hisham narrated to us, saying: Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Mas'udi, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Sa'd, on the authority of his father, who said: I was with Ali in his estate, three days from Medina, and we set out towards Medina in the month of Ramadan, and Ali was riding and I was walking. He said: So he fasted - Hannad said: And I broke my fast - Abu Hisham said: And he ordered me to break my fast. Hannad narrated to us, saying: Abd Al-Rahim narrated to us, on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Utbah, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Sa'd, on the authority of his father, who said: I was with Ali bin Abi Talib when he came from his land, so he fasted, and he ordered me to break my fast, so he entered Medina at night, and he was riding and I was walking. Hannad narrated to us, saying: Waki' narrated to us - and Ibn Bashir narrated to us, saying: Ibn Mahdi narrated to us - they both said: Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Isa bin Abi 'Azzah, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: That he traveled in the month of Ramadan and broke his fast at the gate of the bridge. Ibn Bashir narrated to us, saying: Abd Al-Rahman narrated to us, saying: Sufyan said to me: I prefer that you complete it. Ibn Al-Muthanna said, Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, who said: I asked Al-Hakam and Hammad, and I wanted to travel in Ramadan, so they said to me: Go out. Hammad said, Ibrahim said: But when it is the ten days, I prefer that he stay.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Al-Walid told us, Hammad told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, who said: If someone is caught fasting while he is residing in Ramadan and then travels, they said: If he wants, he may break his fast. Others said: Whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it, meaning: whoever witnesses it while sane, an adult, and accountable, let him fast it. Among those who said this was Abu Hanifa and his companions. They used to say: Whoever enters the month of Ramadan while he is healthy, sane, and an adult, then he must fast it. If he becomes insane after entering it while he is in the condition we have described, then he recovers after it has ended, he must make up for the days of the month during which he was insane, because he was one of those who witnessed it, and he is one of those who has an obligation. They said: And likewise if the month of Ramadan enters upon him while he is insane, except that he is one of those who, if he were of sound mind, would have to fast it, so the month will not end until he becomes healthy and recovers, or he recovers before the end of the month by a day or more, then he must make up for the fast of the entire month, except for the day that he fasted after he recovered, because he is one of those who witnessed the month. They said: And if the month of Ramadan enters upon him while he is insane, and he does not recover until the entire month has ended, then he recovers, he is not obligated to make up for any of it, because he was not one of those who witnessed it and was accountable for its fast. Abu Ja'far said: This is an interpretation that has no meaning. Because if insanity exempts someone who is obligated to fast because he lost his mind for the entire month, then this should be the case for everyone who lost his mind for the entire month of fasting. Everyone has agreed that whoever lost his mind for the entire month of fasting due to fainting or paralysis, and then regained consciousness after the month had passed, must make up the entire month. No one has disagreed with this and it is permissible to object to it against the Ummah. Since this is a consensus, then it is necessary that everyone who lost his mind for the entire month of fasting should be the case for someone who was unconscious. Since this is the case, it is known that the interpretation of the verse is different from the one interpreted by those who said this statement: that he who witnesses the month or part of it is obligated to fast it. If this is invalid, then the interpretation of the interpreter who claimed that its meaning is: Whoever witnesses its beginning while residing and present must fast all of it, is invalid and corrupt, because the reports from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, are consistent: He left Medina in the year of the conquest in the month of Ramadan after fasting some of it, and he broke his fast and ordered his companions to break their fast. Hannad told us, he said, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, traveled in Ramadan from Medina to Mecca, until when he came to Usfan, he stopped there, and called for a vessel and placed it on his hand so that the people could see it. Then he drank it." Ibn Hamid and Sufyan ibn Wakee' told us, they said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Tawus, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Hannad told us, Ubaydah told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Tawus, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, similarly. Hannad and Abu Kurayb told us, they said, Yunus ibn Bakir told us. He said, Ibn Ishaq told us, he said, Al-Zuhri told me, on the authority of Ubaidullah bin Abdullah bin Utbah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, set out on his journey in the year of the conquest, ten days before Ramadan had passed. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, fasted and the people fasted with him, until he reached Al-Kadeed - between Usfan and Amja - he broke his fast." Hannad and Abu Kurayb told us, they said, Abdah told us, on the authority of

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Muhammad bin Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ubaidullah bin Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said, "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, set out ten - or twentieth - days before Ramadan had passed in the year of the conquest, and he fasted until he reached Al-Kadeed and broke his fast." Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Salim bin Nuh told us, he said, Umar bin Amir told us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu Nadrah, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, he said: "We set out with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, eighteen days before Ramadan had passed. Some of us were fasting and some of us were not fasting. The one who broke his fast did not criticize the one who fasted, nor the one who fasted criticized the one who broke his fast." So since these two are corrupt, these two are corrupt. The two interpretations, based on what we have shown of their corruption - so it is clear that the correct interpretation is the third, which is the statement of the one who said: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, all that he witnessed of it while staying, and whoever was sick or on a journey, then a number from other days. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by that: And whoever was sick or on a journey during the month and broke his fast, then he must fast the number of days that he broke his fast, from other days other than the days of the month of Ramadan. Then the people of knowledge differed regarding the illness with which God permitted breaking the fast, and obligated with it a number from other days. Some of them said: It is the illness with which its owner is unable to stand for his prayer. Mention of those who said that: Mu'adh bin Shu'bah al-Basri told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim and Isma'il bin Muslim, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: If the sick person is unable to pray standing, he should break his fast. Yaqub told me, he said: Hisham told us, on the authority of Mughirah - or Ubaydah - on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding the sick person who is unable to pray standing, he should break his fast. Meaning: in Ramadan. Hannad told us, he said: Hafs bin Ghiyath told us, on the authority of Ismail, he said: I asked Al-Hasan: When should the fasting person break his fast? He said: If fasting makes him unable to perform the obligatory prayers as commanded. Some of them said: It is every illness in which the most common reason for its sufferer being ordered to fast is an increase in his illness that cannot be tolerated. This is the opinion of Muhammad bin Idris Al-Shafi'i, Al-Rabi' told us about it. Others said: It is eating, an illness called a disease. Those who said that: Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said: Al-Hasan bin Khalid Al-Rabi'i told us, he said: Tarif bin Shihab Al-Attardi told us: That he entered upon Muhammad bin Sirin in Ramadan while he was eating, and he did not ask him. When he finished, he said:

This finger of mine hurts. Abu Jaafar said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that the illness for which God the Most High permitted breaking the fast in the month of Ramadan is that which the fasting person struggled with to an unbearable degree. So whoever is like that, then he may break the fast and make up a number of other days. This is because if that matter reaches that point, if he was not permitted to break the fast, then he has been restrained from hardship and prevented from ease. This is different from what God informed us that He intended for His creation in His saying: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. As for the one who is not struggling with fasting, then it is in the sense of the healthy person who is able to fast, so he must perform its obligation. As for His saying: Then a number of other days, its meaning is: a numbered number of days other than these days. As for the last, it is another plural like their plural of the greatest for old age and the nearest for nearness. So if someone says: Is not the last one of the descriptions of the days? It was said: Yes. If he said: Is not one of the days a day and it is masculine? It was said: Yes. If he said: How can one of the other be another and it is an attribute of the day, and there is no other? It was said: One of the days, even if it is described by one of the other, is another, because days in the plural become feminine, so its attributes and descriptions become like the attributes of the feminine, as it is said: The days passed, plural, and it is not said: All of them, nor: the days of others. If someone says to us: God Almighty said: But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days, and what that means to you is: He must have an equal number of other days, as you have described previously. If that is its interpretation, then what do you say about someone who was ill or on a journey and fasted the month, and he is one of those who is allowed to break the fast? Does that suffice him by fasting a number of other days, or does that not suffice him, and the obligation of fasting a number of other days is fixed upon him in its form, even if he fasted the entire month? Is it permissible for someone who is sick or traveling to fast the month of Ramadan, or is it forbidden for him, and is it not permissible for him to fast, and is it obligatory for him to break the fast during it, until this one is able to stay and that one is cured? It was said: The scholars have differed on all of that, and we will mention their differences on that, and we will inform the first of them with the correct one, God willing. Some of them said: Breaking the fast during illness is an obligatory decree from God, and it is not a concession. Those who said that mentioned:

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us - and Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us - all of them, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Jabir bin Zaid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Breaking the fast while traveling is a duty.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, he said, Wahb ibn Jarir told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Ya'la, on the authority of Yusuf ibn al-Hakam, he said: I asked Ibn Umar - or he was asked - about fasting while traveling, so he said: Tell me, if you gave charity to a man and he returned it to you, would you not get angry? For it is a charity from God that He gave to you. Nasr ibn Abd al-Rahman al-Azdi told us, he said, al-Maharibi told us, on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn Humayd, he said, Abu Ja'far said: My father did not fast while traveling, and he forbade it. Ibn Humayd told us, he said, Yahya ibn Wadh told us, he said, Ubayd told us, on the authority of al-Dahhak: that he disliked fasting while traveling. The people of this opinion said: Whoever fasts while traveling must make it up when he stays.

Mention of those who said that: Nasr bin Ali al-Jahdhami told us, he said, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, he said, Rabia bin Kalthoum told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of a man: That Umar ordered the one who fasted while traveling to repeat it. Muhammad bin al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of a man from Banu Tamim, on the authority of his father, he said: Umar ordered a man who fasted while traveling to repeat his fast.

Ibn Hamid al-Himsi told me, he said, Ali ibn Ma'bad told us, on the authority of Ubaidullah ibn Amr, on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of al-Muharrir ibn Abi Hurairah, he said: I was with my father on a journey in Ramadan, and I was fasting and he was breaking his fast. My father said to me: If you stay, you will make up for it. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Sulayman ibn Dawud told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Asim, the freed slave of Quraibah, he said: I heard Urwah ordering a man who had fasted while traveling to make up for it. Ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul Samad told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Asim, the freed slave of Quraibah: A man fasted while traveling, and Urwah ordered him to make up for it. Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Ibn Subaih told us, he said, Rabia ibn Kulthum told us, on the authority of his father Kulthum: Some people came to Umar ibn al-Khattab and they had fasted Ramadan while traveling, so he said to them: By God, it is as if you were fasting! They said: By God, O Commander of the Faithful, we have fasted! He said: So you were able to do it? They said: Yes. He said: Then make it up, then make it up. The reason for those who said this statement is that God, the Most High, has imposed, by His saying: And whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it, the fasting of the month of Ramadan on whoever witnesses it as a resident and not a traveler, and He has made it obligatory for whoever is sick or traveling to fast a number of days other than the days of the month of Ramadan, by His saying: And whoever is sick or on a journey, then a number of other days. They said: Just as it is not permissible for a resident to break the fast of the days of the month of Ramadan and fast a number of other days in their place—because what God has imposed upon him by witnessing the month is fasting the month and not other days—likewise it is not permissible for a traveler who does not witness it as a resident to fast it. Because what God has imposed upon him is a number of other days. They also based their argument on the hadith as follows: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Saeed al-Wasiti narrated to us, saying: Yaqoub ibn Muhammad al-Zuhri narrated to us, saying: Abdullah ibn Musa narrated to us, on the authority of Usamah ibn Zaid, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf, saying: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'The one who fasts while traveling is like the one who breaks his fast while at home.'" Muhammad ibn Ubaydullah ibn Saeed narrated to me, saying: Yazid ibn Ayyad narrated to us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, saying: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'The one who fasts while traveling is like the one who breaks his fast while at home.'" Others said: The permissibility of breaking the fast while traveling is a concession from God, the Most High, which He granted to His servants, and fasting is obligatory, so whoever fasts an obligation is harmful, and whoever breaks his fast, then he breaks his fast by God's concession. They said: If he fasts while traveling, then he does not have to make it up if he stays. Those who said that: Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Ayoub told us, he said, Urwah and Salim told us: They were with Omar bin Abdul Aziz when he was the governor of Medina, and they discussed fasting while traveling. Salim said: His cousin did not fast while traveling. Urwah said: Aisha used to fast. Salim said: I only took it from Ibn Omar. Urwah said: I only took it from Aisha. Until their voices rose. Omar bin Abdul Aziz said: O God, forgive! If it is easy, then fast, and if it is difficult, then break your fast. Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, he said, a man told me: Fasting while traveling was mentioned in the presence of Omar bin Abdul Aziz, then he mentioned something similar to the hadith of Ibn Bashir. Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq - and Abu Kurayb told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, Ibn Ishaq told us, on the authority of Az-Zuhri, on the authority of Salim ibn Abdullah, he said: Umar ibn Al-Khattab went out on one of his journeys during the remaining nights of Ramadan, and he said: The month has begun to shine - Abu Kurayb said in his hadith: or: nine, and Yaqub was not sure - so why don't we fast! So he fasted and the people fasted with him. Then he came back once, until he was at Ar-Rawha', the new moon of the month of Ramadan, and he said: God has decreed the journey, why don't we fast and not spoil our month! So he fasted and the people fasted with him. Ibn Humayd told us, he said, Al-Hakam ibn Bashir told us, he said, my father told me - and Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, he said, Ubaydullah told us, he said, Bashir ibn Salman told us - on the authority of Khaithama, he said: I asked Anas ibn Malik about fasting while traveling, he said: I ordered my slave to fast but he refused. I said: Where is this verse: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days? He said: It was revealed while at that time we were travelling hungry and stopping not full, but today we are travelling full and stopping full.

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Hannad narrated to us, he said: Waki' narrated to us, on the authority of Bashir ibn Salman, on the authority of Khaithamah, on the authority of Anas, similarly. Hannad and Abu al-Sa'ib narrated to us, they said: Abu Mu'awiyah narrated to us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Anas: that he was asked about fasting while traveling, so he said: Whoever breaks his fast, it is by permission of God, and whoever fasts, fasting is better. Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Abu Usamah narrated to us, on the authority of Ash'ath ibn 'Abd al-Malik, on the authority of Muhammad ibn 'Uthman ibn Abi al-'As, he said: Breaking the fast while traveling is a permission, and fasting is better. Al-Muthanna narrated to me, he said: 'Abd al-Samad narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, he said: Abu al-Fayd narrated to us, he said: 'Ali was our emir in Syria, and he forbade us from fasting while traveling. So I asked Abu Qursafah - a man from the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from Banu Laith. Abd al-Samad said: I heard a man from his people say: It is Wathilah ibn al-Asqa' - he said: If I fasted while traveling, I would not make it up. Hannad told us, he said: Waki' told us, on the authority of Bastam ibn Muslim, on the authority of Ata', he said: If you fast, it is sufficient for you, and if you break your fast, it is a concession. Hannad told us, he said: Waki' told us, on the authority of Kahams, he said: I asked Salim ibn Abdullah about fasting while traveling. He said: If you fast, it is sufficient for you, and if you break your fast, it is a concession. Hannad told us, he said: Abd al-Rahim told us, on the authority of Talhah ibn Amr, on the authority of Ata', he said: Whoever fasts, his harm is due, and whoever breaks his fast, it is a concession that he takes. Hannad told us, he said: Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, he said: Breaking the fast while traveling is a concession, and fasting is better. Hannad told us, he said: Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Ata', he said: It is teaching. And it is not by determination - meaning the saying of God: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days, if he wishes he may fast and if he wishes he may not fast. Hannad narrated to us, he said: Abu Usamah narrated to us, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Al-Hasan: Concerning a man who travels in Ramadan, he said: If he wishes he may fast and if he wishes he may break the fast. Hamid bin Mas'adah narrated to us, he said: Sufyan bin Habib narrated to us, he said: Al-A'wam bin Hawshab narrated to us, he said: I said to Mujahid: Fasting while traveling? He said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to fast and break the fast. He said: I said: Which of them is more beloved to you? He said: It is only a concession, and fasting Ramadan is more beloved to me." Ibn Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said: Muhammad bin Ja'far narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, Ibrahim and Mujahid, that they said: Fasting while traveling, if he wishes he may fast and if he wishes he may break the fast, and fasting is more beloved to them. Ibn Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said: Muhammad Ibn Ja'far narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, he said: Mujahid said about fasting while traveling - meaning fasting Ramadan -: By God, there is nothing from them except lawful, fasting and breaking the fast, and God did not intend by breaking the fast except to make things easy for His servants. Ibn Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said: Muhammad Ibn Ja'far narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Ash'ath Ibn Salim, he said: I accompanied my father, Al-Aswad Ibn Yazid, Amr Ibn Maymun, and Abu Wa'il to Mecca, and they used to fast Ramadan and other times while traveling. Ali Ibn Hasan Al-Azdi narrated to us, he said: Mu'afi Ibn Imran narrated to us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Sa'id Ibn Jubayr: Breaking the fast while traveling is a concession, and fasting is better. Muhammad Ibn Abdullah Ibn Sa'id Al-Wasiti narrated to me, he said: Ya'qub Al-Zuhri narrated to us, he said: Salih Ibn Muhammad Ibn Salih narrated to us, on the authority of his father, he said: I said to Al-Qasim Ibn Muhammad: We travel in the winter during Ramadan, and if I fast during it, it is easier for me than to make it up in the heat! He said: God said: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. Whatever is easier for you, do it. Abu Ja'far said: This statement is more correct in our view, because everyone agrees that if a sick person fasts the month of Ramadan - he is one of those who is permitted to break the fast due to his illness - his fasting is sufficient for him, and he does not have to make it up if he recovers from his illness after a number of other days. Thus, it is known that the ruling on the traveler is the same as his ruling on not having to make it up if he fasts during his travel. Because what is prescribed for the traveler as breaking the fast and ordered him to make up a number of other days is like what is prescribed for the sick person and ordered him to make it up. Then, the meaning of the verse is sufficient and does not require the testimony of a witness to the correctness of that from anything else. And that is the saying of God, the Most High: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. There is no hardship greater than for someone who fasts during his travel to be required to fast several days from other days, and he has taken the trouble to perform his obligation in the most difficult of two situations until he has completed it and performed it. If a foolish person thinks that what he fasted was not his obligatory obligation, then in the saying of God, the Most High: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting "the month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed," there is what indicates that the month that is prescribed for fasting for every believer is the month of Ramadan, whether he is traveling or staying, because God, the Most High, mentioned that to the believers in His saying: O you who have believed, decreed upon you is fasting "the month of Ramadan." And His saying: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days means: And whoever is ill or on a journey and breaks his fast with God's permission, then he must fast several other days in place of the days that he broke his fast during his travel or illness. Then in the convergence of the reports from the Messenger of God, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, in his saying - when he was asked about fasting in Travel: If you wish, fast, and if you wish, break your fast. This is sufficient evidence for the validity of what we have said about it, based on something else. Hannad narrated to us, he said, Abd al-Raheem, Waki' and Abdah narrated to us, on the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: Hamza asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about fasting while traveling - and he used to fast continuously - so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If you wish, then fast, and if you wish, then break your fast. Abu Kurayb and Ubayd ibn Ismail al-Habbari narrated to us, they said, Ibn Idris narrated to us, he said, Hisham ibn Urwah narrated to us, on the authority of his father, that Hamza asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he mentioned something similar. Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Abd al-Hakam narrated to me, he said, Abu Zur'ah Wahb God ibn Rashid narrated to us, he said, Haywah ibn Shuraih narrated to us, he said, Abu al-Aswad narrated to us: that he heard Urwah ibn al-Zubayr narrating on the authority of Abu Marawah, on the authority of Hamza al-Aslami, the companion of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: O Messenger of God, I fast continuously, so should I fast while traveling? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is only a concession from God to His servants, so whoever does it, it is good and beautiful, and whoever... He left it, so there is no blame on him. Hamza used to fast all the time, fasting while traveling and at home. Urwah ibn al-Zubayr used to fast all the time, fasting while traveling and at home, and even if he was sick he would not break his fast. Abu Marawah used to fast all the time, fasting while traveling and at home." In this, along with similar reports that would take too long to include in the book, is evidence indicating the correctness of what is. We said: That breaking the fast is a concession, not a firm decision, and the clear statement on the correctness of what we said in the interpretation of his statement: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Abu Ja'far said: If someone says: The reports of what I said, even if they are consistent, are also consistent with his statement: It is not righteousness to fast while travelling? It is said: That is if the fasting is in a situation like the one reported from the Messenger of God, that he said in that to the one who said to him. Al-Husayn bin Yazid Al-Sabi'i narrated to us, he said: Ibn Idris narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad bin 'Abd Al-Rahman, on the authority of Muhammad bin 'Amr bin Al-Hasan, on the authority of Jabir: "That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw a man on his journey who had been shaded, and a group of people were around him, so he said: Who is this? They said: He is fasting. He said: It is not righteousness to fast while travelling." Abu Ja'far said: I fear that this Sheikh made a mistake, and between Ibn Idris and Muhammad bin 'Abd Al-Rahman, Shu'bah. Ibn Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said: Muhammad bin Ja'far narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad bin 'Abd Al-Rahman bin Sa'd bin Zararah. Al-Ansari, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Amr ibn al-Hasan ibn Ali, on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw a man around whom people had gathered and who had been shaded. They said: 'This man is fasting!' The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'It is not righteousness for you to fast while traveling.'" So whoever fasts to the extent that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him, then his fasting is not righteousness. This is because God, the Most High, has forbidden anyone to expose himself to that which will lead to his destruction, although there is a way to his salvation. Righteousness is only sought through the deeds that God has encouraged and urged, not through those deeds that He has forbidden.

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

As for the reports that were narrated from him, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The one who fasts while traveling is like the one who breaks his fast while at home, it may be possible that it was said to someone who had reached the level of fasting that he was given shade for, if that was said. It is not permissible to attribute that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because the reports that came about that from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, have weak chains of transmission, and it is not permissible to use them as evidence in religion. If someone were to say: How can he conjoin the sick person, which is a noun, with his saying: or on a journey, and on is an adjective, not a noun? It is said: It is permissible to coordinate on with the sick person, because it is in the meaning of a verb. And the interpretation of that is: or a traveler, as God Almighty said: He called us to his side or sitting or standing (Yunus 10:12), so He connected the sitting and the standing to the lam in to his side, because its meaning is the action, as if He said: He called us lying down or sitting or standing. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by that: God wants you, O believers - by giving you permission in the case of your illness and travel to break the fast, and to make up a number of other days from the days that you broke the fast after your stay and after you recover from your illness - to make it easy for you and make it easy for you, because He knows how difficult that is for you in these circumstances, and He does not want hardship for you, meaning: He does not want hardship and difficulty for you, so He orders you to fast the month in these circumstances, while He knows how difficult that is for you and how heavy its burden would be for you if He were to make you fast, as Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Mu'awiyah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: God wants you Ease and does not want hardship for you, he said: Ease is breaking the fast while traveling, and hardship is fasting while traveling. Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of

Abu Hamza, he said: I asked Ibn Abbas about fasting while traveling, and he said: Ease and hardship. Take the ease of God. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Shibl, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: God intends for you ease - he said: it means breaking the fast while traveling, and making a number of other days - and does not intend for you hardship. Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatadah, regarding His statement: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship, so intend for yourselves what God intends for you. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ibn Uwaynah, on the authority of Abdul Karim Al-Jazari, on the authority of Tawus, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: There is no hardship on the one who fasts or on the one who breaks the fast - meaning while traveling in Ramadan - God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. I was told by Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, he said, Al-Fudayl bin Khalid told us, he said, Ubayd bin Sulayman told us, he said, I heard Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim regarding His statement: God intends for you ease - breaking the fast while traveling. And He does not intend for you hardship, fasting while traveling. Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: And that you may complete the number, the number of days you broke your fast, which obligates you to make up for a number of days after you recover from your illness or stay in your travel, as: Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding His saying: And that you may complete the number, he said: The number of days the sick and the traveler broke their fast. Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding His saying: And that you may complete the number, he said: Completing the number is to fast what one broke of Ramadan while traveling or sick until he completes it, and if he completes it, he has completed the number. If someone says: What is upon him - with this waw in His saying: And that you may complete the number - is it conjoined? It was said: The scholars of Arabic differed regarding that. Some of them said: It is conjoined to what preceded it, as if it was said: And He intends for you to complete the number and to glorify God. Some said: Kufa grammarians: This lam in his statement and that you may complete is a lam of ki, if it had been thrown in it would have been correct. He said: The Arabs include it in their speech with an implied verb after it, and it is not a condition for the verb that precedes it and it has the waw, don't you see that you say: I came to you so that you may do good to me, and you do not say: I came to you and that you may do good to me, so when you say it you mean: and that you may do good, I came to you. He said: This is found in the Qur'an a lot, including His statement: And that the hearts of those who do not believe in the Hereafter may listen to it (Al-An'am: 113), and His statement: And thus did We show Abraham the kingdom of the heavens and the earth that he might be among the certain (Al-An'am: 75). If it did not have the waw, it would have been a condition for your statement: We showed him the kingdom of the heavens and the earth that he might be. So if the waw is in it, then it has an implied verb after it, and to be among the certain means We showed him. Abu Ja'far said: This statement is more correct in Arabic. Because his saying: And that you may complete the waiting period, there is no lam before it in the sense of the lam in his saying: And that you may complete the waiting period, so his saying: And that you may complete the waiting period is connected to it - and the entry of the waw with it indicates that it is a condition for the verb after it, since if the waw had been deleted, it would have been a condition for the verb before it.

Abu Ja'far said: He, the Most High, means: And to glorify God by mentioning to Him what He has bestowed upon you, of the guidance that He has let down.

Others from the people of the religions who were prescribed to fast the month of Ramadan as it was prescribed for you, but they went astray from it because God led them astray, and He humbled you with His honor, so He guided you to it, and enabled you to perform what God prescribed for you of fasting, and to thank Him for that by worshipping Him. And the remembrance that God urged them to glorify Him with is the Takbir on the Day of Eid al-Fitr, according to what a group of the people of interpretation interpreted. Mention of those who said that: Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Dawud bin Qais,

He said: I heard Zaid bin Aslam say: And glorify God for having guided you. He said: When he sees the crescent moon, then glorify God from the time he sees the crescent moon until the imam leaves, on the road and in the mosque, except that when the imam is present, he stops, and does not glorify God except with his glorification. Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he heard Sufyan say: And glorify God for having guided you. He said: It has reached us that it is the glorification on the day of Eid al-Fitr. Yunus told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zaid said: Ibn Abbas used to say: It is obligatory upon the Muslims when they see the crescent moon of Shawwal to glorify God until they finish their Eid, because God the Most High says: And that you may complete the number and glorify God for having guided you. Ibn Zayd said: When they go to the prayer place, they should say Allahu Akbar. When they sit, they should say Allahu Akbar. When the imam comes, they should be silent. When the imam says Allahu Akbar, they should say Allahu Akbar. They should not say Allahu Akbar when the imam comes except after his takbir. When he finishes and the prayer is over, the Eid is over. Yunus said: Ibn Wahb said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd said: The congregation, according to us, is to go to the prayer place with Allahu Akbar. Abu Ja'far said: By that, God the Almighty meant: And to thank God for what He has bestowed upon you of guidance and success, and for making things easy for you, if He wills. Perhaps in this context it means so that, and that is why He abstained from it with His statement: And that you may complete the number and glorify God for having guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "The month of Ramadan is that in which the Qur'an was revealed, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [that] you may complete the number and glorify God for having guided you; and perhaps you will be grateful."

It contains twenty-one issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: The month of Ramadan. Historians said: The first to fast Ramadan was Noah, peace be upon him, when he got out of the ship. Mujahid's statement was mentioned earlier: God prescribed Ramadan for every nation, and it is known that Noah had nations, and God knows best. The word month is derived from publicizing because it is well-known and it is not difficult for anyone who wants to know it. From this it is said: I drew the sword if you unsheathed it. Ramadan is taken from the word ramadh the fasting person who burns his stomach from intense thirst. Ramada extended means intense heat, and from this the hadith:

The prayer of the repentant when the camels are scorched. Narrated by Muslim. The scorching of the camels is when the sand burns and they are blessed due to its intense heat. Ramadan - according to what they mentioned - coincides with the intense heat, so it is taken from the scorching sun. Al-Jawhari said: The month of Ramadan is pluralized as Ramadanat and irmadaa. It is said that when they transferred the names of the months from the ancient language, they named them according to the times in which they fell, so this month coincided with the days of the scorching sun, so it was called that. It was also said: It was called Ramadan because it scorches sins, that is, it burns them with good deeds, from irmad, which means burning, and from this, his foot was scorched from the sand, meaning it was burned. And the sand scorched me, meaning it burned me, and from this it was said: The matter scorched me. It was also said: Because the hearts take from it the heat of admonition and contemplation of the matter of the Hereafter, just as sand and stones take from the heat of the sun. And scorching means hot stones. It was said: It is from رَمَضَ - an-Nasl, which means to grind it between two stones to make it thin. From this comes the word رَمَضٌ and رَمَضٌ - according to Ibn al-Sikkit - and the month was named after it because they used to grind their weapons in Ramadan to fight with them in Shawwal before the sacred months began. Al-Mawardi narrated that its name in the pre-Islamic era was Natiq, and he recited for al-Mufaddal:

In Natiq, the knights of Khatham fled in the heat of battle.

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

The word month is in the nominative case, as per the group's reading, as a subject, and the predicate is in which the Qur'an was revealed. Or it is in the nominative case with an implied subject, meaning: the month of Ramadan is obligatory upon you, or among what is prescribed for you is the month of Ramadan. It is permissible for month to be a subject, and in which the Qur'an was revealed is an adjective, and the predicate is so whoever witnesses the month. The month is mentioned again for emphasis, as in the Almighty's saying: "The Inevitable. What is the Inevitable?" It is permissible for the meaning of reward to enter into it, because the month of Ramadan, even if it is a definite noun, is not a specific definite noun because it is common throughout the future, as Abu Ali said: It was narrated from Mujahid and Shahr bin Hawshab that Shahr was in the accusative case, and Harun al-A'war narrated it from Abu Amr, and its meaning is: stick to the month of Ramadan or fast. And in which the Qur'an was revealed is an adjective for it, and it is not permissible for it to be in the accusative case with fast, so as not to separate the relative clause from the relative pronoun with the predicate of that and it is better for you. Al-Rumani: It is permissible to put it in the accusative case as a substitute for his saying numbered days.

Second: There is a difference of opinion as to whether it is said Ramadan without adding it to the month. Mujahid disliked that and said: It is said as God Almighty said. And in the hadith:

Do not say Ramadan, but attribute it as God attributed it in the Qur'an, saying the month of Ramadan. He used to say: I have heard that it is one of the names of God. He disliked that the word be combined for this meaning. He used to cite as evidence what was narrated: Ramadan is one of the names of God the Most High, and this is not correct, as it is from the hadith of Abu Ma'shar Najih, who is weak. What is correct is that it is permissible to use Ramadan without adding it, as is proven in the Sahih and other books. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

When Ramadan comes, the gates of mercy are opened, the gates of Hell are closed, and the devils are chained up. In Sahih Al-Basti, it is narrated on his authority that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

When Ramadan comes, the gates of mercy are opened for him, the gates of Hell are closed, and the devils are chained. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Shihab on the authority of Anas ibn Abi Anas that his father told him that he heard Abu Hurairah say..., and he mentioned it. Al-Basti said: This Anas ibn Abi Anas is the father of Malik ibn Anas, and the name of Abu Anas is Malik ibn Abi Amir, one of the trustworthy people of Madinah, and he is Malik ibn Abi Amir ibn

Amr ibn al-Harith ibn Uthman ibn Khathil ibn Amr from Dhi Asbah, one of the chiefs of Yemen. Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ramadan has come to you, a blessed month, in which God the Almighty has made fasting obligatory upon you. In it the gates of heaven are opened, the gates of Hell are closed, and the rebellious devils are chained for God. In it is a night better than a thousand months. Whoever is deprived of its goodness is indeed deprived." Abu Hatim al-Basti also narrated it and said: His saying: the rebellious devils is a qualification of his saying: the devils are chained and chained. Al-Sana'i also narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to a woman from the Ansar: 'When Ramadan comes, perform Umrah, for an Umrah in it is equal to a Hajj.'" Al-Nasa'i also narrated on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

"God the Almighty has imposed the fasting of Ramadan upon you and has made it a Sunnah for you to stand in prayer during it. Whoever fasts and stands in prayer during it out of faith and in the hope of reward will emerge from his sins as on the day his mother bore him." There are many reports on this, all of which omit the month. Perhaps the Arabs omitted the mention of the month from Ramadan.

The poet said:

A slave girl in her loose white armor from the sister of the Banu Ibadh

Last Ramadan, she interrupted the conversation by nodding.

The virtue of Ramadan is great, and its reward is immense. This is indicated by the meaning of the derivation of it being a burner of sins, and the hadiths we have written.

Third: God imposed fasting during Ramadan, that is, the duration of its crescent moon, and the month was named after it, as stated in the hadith:

If the month is hidden from you meaning the crescent, it will come, and the poet said:

Brothers from Najd, trustworthy and famous as a nail clipping

Until it is completed in its roundness in four more than ten

And He has imposed upon us, when the crescent moon is cloudy, the completion of the number of Sha'ban as thirty days, and the completion of the number of Ramadan as thirty days, so that we may enter into worship with certainty and depart from it with certainty. He said in His Book, And We have sent down to you the message that you may make clear to the people what was sent down to them. And the Imams of the proof have narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

"Fast when it is seen and break your fast when it is sighted. If it is cloudy, complete the number." In another narration, If the month is cloudy, count thirty. Mutraf ibn Abdullah ibn Ash-Shakheer, one of the senior Tabi'een, and Ibn Qutaybah, one of the linguists, said: One relies on calculations when it is cloudy by estimating the mansions and considering their calculations in fasting Ramadan, so that if it is clear, it will be seen, based on the saying of the Prophet (peace be upon him): If it is cloudy, estimate it, meaning infer it from mansions, and estimate the completion of the month by calculating it. The majority said: The meaning of estimate it is to complete the amount, as explained by the hadith of Abu Hurayrah: Then complete the number. Al-Dawudi mentioned that it was said about the meaning of his saying estimate it: meaning estimate the mansions. We do not know of anyone who said this except some of the companions of Al-Shafi'i that the saying of astrologers is considered in this, and consensus is an argument against them. Ibn Nafi' narrated on the authority of Malik that the imam does not fast upon sighting the crescent moon nor break his fast upon sighting it, but rather fasts and breaks his fast based on calculations: he is not to be imitated or followed. Ibn al-Arabi said: Some of our companions made a mistake and narrated on the authority of al-Shafi'i that he said: He relies on calculations, and it is a stumbling block, not a fault.

Fourth: Malik and Al-Shafi'i differed as to whether the crescent of Ramadan is proven by the testimony of one or two witnesses. Malik said: The testimony of one witness is not accepted because it is testimony on a crescent, so less than two witnesses are not accepted in it. Its origin is testimony on the crescent of Shawwal and Dhul-Hijjah. Al-Shafi'i and Abu Hanifa said: One witness is accepted, based on what Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar who said: The people saw the crescent, so I informed the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) that I saw it, so he fasted and ordered the people to fast. Al-Darqutni narrated it and said: Marwan bin Muhammad is the only one who narrated it on the authority of Ibn Wahb, and he is trustworthy. Al-Darqutni narrated: A man testified before Ali bin Abi Talib that he had seen the crescent of Ramadan, so he fasted. I think he said: And he ordered the people to fast, and he said: I would rather fast one day of Sha'ban than break my fast one day of Ramadan. Al-Shafi'i said: If the people did not see the crescent of Ramadan and a just man saw it, I saw that I should accept it for the sake of the hadith and precaution. Al-Shafi'i said: After that: It is not permissible for Ramadan to be witnessed except by two witnesses. Al-Shafi'i said: Some of our companions said: I do not accept it except with two witnesses, and this is the analogy for everything that is absent.

Fifth: They differed regarding the one who saw the crescent of Ramadan alone or the crescent of Shawwal. Al-Rabi' narrated from Al-Shafi'i: Whoever sees the crescent of Ramadan alone should fast, and whoever sees the crescent of Shawwal alone should break his fast, and he should be careful about that. Ibn Wahb narrated from Malik regarding the one who sees the crescent of Ramadan alone that he should fast, because he should not break his fast while he knows that that day is from the month of Ramadan. And whoever sees the crescent of Shawwal alone should not break his fast, because people are accused of breaking their fast if someone among them is not trustworthy, then they say when it appears to them: We have seen the crescent. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: Al-Layth bin Sa'd and Ahmad bin Hanbal said this. Ata' and Ishaq said: He should neither fast nor break his fast. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: He should fast and break his fast.

Sixth: They differed if he reported the sighting of a country, so it is either close or far. If it is close, then the ruling is the same, and if it is far, then the people of each country have their own sighting. This was narrated from Ikrimah, Al-Qasim, and Salim, and it was narrated from Ibn Abbas, and Ishaq said the same, and Al-Bukhari referred to it when he classified the sighting of the people of each country. Others said: If it is proven among the people that the people of a country have seen it, then they must make up for what they broke their fast. This is what Al-Layth bin Saad and Al-Shafi'i said. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: I do not know of any other statement than the statement of Al-Muzani and Al-Kufi.

I said: Al-Kaya al-Tabari mentioned in his book Ahkam al-Qur'an: The companions of Abu Hanifa agreed that if the people of a country fast thirty days due to the sighting, and the people of another country fast twenty-nine days, then those who fasted twenty-nine days must make up for one day. The companions of al-Shafi'i do not see that, since the sightings in the countries may differ. The argument of the companions of Abu Hanifa is the Almighty's saying: And that you may complete the number. It is proven by the sighting of the people of a country that the number is thirty, so it is obligatory for these people to complete it. And their opposition is supported by the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Fast when you see it and break your fast when you see it, the hadith. This requires taking into account the custom of each people in their country. Abu Omar narrated the consensus that the sighting is not taken into account in countries further away, such as Andalusia from Khurasan. He said: Each country has its own sighting, except for what is like Greater Egypt and the countries of the Muslims whose regions are close together. Muslim narrated on the authority of Kurayb that Umm al-Fadl bint al-Harith sent him to Muawiyah in Syria. He said:

So I went to Ash-Sham and completed my need, and Ramadan began for me while I was in Ash-Sham. I saw the crescent moon on Friday night. Then I went to Madinah at the end of the month and Abdullah ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, asked me, then he mentioned the crescent moon and said: When did you see the crescent moon? I said: We saw it on Friday night. He said: Did you see it? I said: Yes, and the people saw it and fasted, and Muawiyah fasted. He said: But we saw it on Saturday night, so we will not stop fasting until we complete thirty or we see it. I said:

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Is it sufficient for us to see Muawiyah and fast? He said: No, this is what the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) commanded us to do. Our scholars said that the statement of Ibn Abbas, this is what the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) commanded us to do, is a clear statement that this should be reported to the Prophet (peace be upon him) and by his command. It is evidence that if the countries are far apart, such as the distance between Syria and Hijaz, then it is obligatory for the people of each country to act upon its sighting without the sighting of any other country, even if this is proven by the Grand Imam, as long as the people are not forced to do so. If this is forced, then it is not permissible to disobey him. Al-Kaya al-Tabari said: His statement, this is what the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) commanded us to do, may be interpreted as the statement of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him): Fast upon its sighting and break your fast upon its sighting. Ibn al-Arabi said: There is disagreement regarding the interpretation of this statement of Ibn Abbas. It was said: It was rejected because it is a single report. It was also said: It was rejected because the countries differ in their risings, and this is correct, because Kurayb did not testify, but rather he reported a ruling that was proven by testimony, and there is no disagreement regarding the established ruling that a single report is sufficient. Its equivalent is if it is proven that the people of Aghmat saw the crescent on Friday night and the people of Seville saw it on Saturday night, then the people of each country will have their own sighting, because Suhayl is seen from Aghmat and not from Seville, and this indicates a difference in the risings.

I said: As for the doctrine of Malik, may God have mercy on him, in this issue, Ibn Wahb and Ibn Al-Qasim narrated from him in Al-Majmu'ah that if the people of Basra see the crescent of Ramadan and then it reaches the people of Kufa, Medina and Yemen, then they must fast or make up for it if they missed it. Judge Abu Ishaq narrated from Ibn Al-Majshun that if it is proven in Basra by a common and widespread matter that does not require testimony or verification, then it is necessary for others from the people of the country to make up for it. But if it is only proven before their ruler by the testimony of two witnesses, then it is not necessary for anyone from the country except those who are subject to the ruling of that ruler from those under his jurisdiction, or it is proven before the Commander of the Faithful, then it is necessary for the Muslim community to make up for it. He said: This is the opinion of Malik.

Seventh: The majority of people read Shahr in the nominative case as a predicate of an implied subject, meaning that is a month, or that which is obligatory upon you to fast is the month of Ramadan, or the fasting or the days. It was said: It was raised as a direct object whose agent was not named with Kutub meaning upon you is the month of Ramadan.

Ramadan is not declined because the nun in it is redundant. It is permissible for it to be raised as a subject, and its predicate is in which the Qur'an was revealed. It was said: Its predicate is whoever witnessed, and which was revealed is an adjective for it. It was said: It was raised as a substitute for fasting. So whoever said: The fasting in His statement Fasting is prescribed upon you is three days and Ashura, said here as a subject. And whoever said: The fasting there is Ramadan, said here as a subject or as a substitute for fasting, meaning the month of Ramadan was prescribed upon you. Mujahid and Shahr ibn Hawshab read Shahr in the accusative case. Al-Kisa'i said: The meaning is that fasting is prescribed upon you, and that you fast the month of Ramadan. Al-Farra' said: That is, fasting is prescribed upon you, meaning that you fast the month of Ramadan. Al-Nahas said: It is not permissible to make the month of Ramadan the object of fast, because it enters into the relative clause and then separates between the relative clause and the relative pronoun. Likewise, if you make it the object of fasting, but it is permissible to make it the object of enticement, meaning, adhere to the month of Ramadan, and fast the month of Ramadan. This is also far-fetched because the month was not mentioned before, so it would be enticing.

I said: His statement, Fasting has been prescribed for you, indicates the month, so it is permissible to use iyra', which is the choice of Abu Ubaid. Al-Akhfash said: It is in the accusative case as an adverb. It was reported from Al-Hasan and Abu Amr that the ra' was assimilated into the ra', and this is not permissible lest two quiescent letters come together. It is permissible to change the vowel of the ra' to the ha', so that the ha' is made a damma and then assimilated, which is the opinion of the Kufians.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty praises the month of fasting from among all the other months by choosing it from among them to send down the Great Qur'an, and as He singled it out for that, the hadith has been reported that it is the month in which the divine books were sent down to the prophets. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal, may God have mercy on him, said: Abu Saeed, the client of Banu Hashim, told us, Imran Abu al-Awam told us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu al-Malih, on the authority of Wathilah, meaning Ibn al-Asqa': that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The scrolls of Abraham were sent down on the first night of Ramadan, and the Torah was sent down on the sixth of Ramadan, and the Gospel was sent down on the thirteenth of Ramadan, and God sent down the Qur'an on the twenty-fourth of Ramadan." It has been narrated from the hadith of Jabir ibn Abdullah, in which it says: The Psalms were sent down on the twelfth of Ramadan, and the Gospel on the eighteenth, and the rest is as mentioned above. It was narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. As for the scrolls, the Torah, the Psalms, and the Gospel, each of them was sent down to the prophet to whom it was sent down all at once, and as for the Qur'an, it was sent down all at once to the house of The glory of the lowest heaven, and that was in the month of Ramadan on the Night of Decree, as God Almighty said: Indeed, We sent it down on the Night of Decree and He said: Indeed, We sent it down on a blessed night then it was sent down after it in parts according to the events to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, this is how it was narrated from other sources on the authority of Ibn Abbas, as Israel said on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Al-Mujalid, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: that he asked Atiyah bin Al-Aswad and he said: Doubt entered my heart, the statement of God Almighty: The month of Ramadan in which was sent down the Qur'an and His statement: Indeed, We sent it down on the Night of Decree and it was sent down in Shawwal, and in Dhu Al-Qa'dah, and in Dhu Al-Hijjah, and in Muharram and Safar and the month of Rabi', so Ibn Abbas said: It was sent down in Ramadan on the Night of Decree and on a blessed night all at once, then it was sent down according to the positions of the stars in measured recitation in the months and days, narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh and this is its wording, and in the narration of Saeed bin Jubair on the authority of Ibn Abbas he said, the Qur'an was sent down in the middle of the month of Ramadan until The lowest heaven, then it was placed in the House of Honor, then it was revealed to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in twenty years to answer the people's words. In the narration of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The Qur'an was revealed in the month of Ramadan on the Night of Decree, to this lowest heaven all at once, and God would make His Prophet do whatever He willed, and the polytheists would not come with an example to argue with except that God would bring them an answer, and that is His saying: "And those who disbelieve say, 'Why was the Qur'an not sent down to him all at once?' Thus that We may strengthen thereby your heart. And We have recited it distinctly. And they do not bring you an example except that We bring you the truth and the best explanation." And His saying: A guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and the criterion. This is praise for the Qur'an that God revealed as guidance for the hearts of the servants of those who believed in it, believed in it, and followed it. And clear proofs meaning clear and evident evidence and arguments for those who understood and contemplated them, indicating the correctness of what it brought of guidance that contradicts misguidance, and right guidance that contradicts error, and distinguishes between truth and falsehood, and lawful and unlawful. It was narrated from some of the predecessors: that he hated that It is said except for the month of Ramadan, and it is not said Ramadan. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad bin Bakkar bin Al-Rayyan told us, Abu Ma'shar told us on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b Al-Qurazi and Sa'id is Al-Maqburi on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: Do not say Ramadan, for Ramadan is one of the names of God the Most High, but say the month of Ramadan. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It has been narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Muhammad bin Ka'b something similar to that, and Ibn Abbas and Zaid bin Thabit permitted it. I said Abu Ma'shar is Najih bin Abd Al-Rahman Al-Madani, the Imam of the battles and biographies, but there is weakness in it, and his son Muhammad narrated it on his authority and made it attributed to Abu Hurairah, and Al-Hafiz Ibn 'Adi denounced it, and he is worthy of denial, for it is abandoned, and he made a mistake in attributing this hadith to the Prophet. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, defended this in his book and said: Chapter: It is said Ramadan, and he cited hadiths on that, including: Whoever fasts Ramadan out of faith and in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven, and the like, and his saying: So whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it. This is an obligation imposed on whoever witnesses it. The beginning of the month, i.e. he was residing in the country when the month of Ramadan began, and he was physically healthy, he must fast without fail. This verse abrogated the previous permission for whoever was healthy and resident to break the fast and pay the ransom by feeding a poor person for each day, as was explained above. When fasting was made obligatory, he repeated the permission for the sick and the traveler to break the fast on the condition of making up for it. He said, And whoever is sick or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Its meaning is: And whoever has a sickness in his body that makes fasting difficult or harmful for him, or is on a journey, i.e. in a state of travel, then he may break the fast. So if he breaks the fast, he must make up for the days he broke the fast during the journey. For this reason, He said, God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. i.e. He only permitted you to break the fast in a state of illness and travel, even though it is obligatory for the healthy resident, as an ease for you and a mercy to you.

Here are some issues related to this verse one of them is that a group of the Salaf went to the point that whoever was residing at the beginning of the month and then traveled during it, he is not allowed to break the fast due to the excuse of travel in this case because of His saying: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. Rather, breaking the fast is permitted for a traveler who began the month while he was traveling. This statement is strange. Abu Muhammad Ibn Hazm transmitted it in his book Al-Muhalla from a group of the Companions and Followers, and what he transmitted from them is questionable, and God knows best, for it has been proven from the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he went out in the month of Ramadan for the conquest campaign, so he traveled until he reached Al-Kadeed, then he broke the fast, and he ordered the people to break the fast. This was transmitted by the two authors of the Sahih. Second Others from the Companions and Followers went to the obligation of breaking the fast while traveling based on his saying, Then a number from other days. The correct opinion of the majority is that the matter in that is optional and not mandatory,

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

because they used to go out with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the month of Ramadan. He said: Some of us were fasting and some of us were not fasting. The fasting person did not criticize the one who was not fasting, nor the one who was not fasting criticize the one who was fasting. If breaking the fast was what was obligatory, he would have denounced their fasting. Rather, what was proven from the actions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was that he was fasting in such a situation, based on what was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Abu al-Darda', who said: We went out with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the month of Ramadan in intense heat, to the point that one of us would put his hand on his head from the intensity of the heat, and none of us was fasting except the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Abdullah ibn Rawahah. Third A group, including al-Shafi'i, said: Fasting while traveling is better than breaking the fast based on the actions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as mentioned above. A group said: Rather, breaking the fast is better, taking advantage of the concession, and because it was proven that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about fasting while traveling, and he said: Whoever breaks the fast, it is good, and whoever fasts, there is no blame upon him. And he said in another hadith: You should follow the concession that God has granted you. And a group said: They are the same, based on the hadith of Aisha that Hamza bin Amr Al-Aslami said: O Messenger of God, I fast a lot, should I fast while traveling? He said: If you wish, then fast, and if you wish, then break the fast. And it is in the two Sahihs. And it was said: If fasting is difficult, then breaking the fast is better, based on the hadith of Jabir: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw a man who had been shaded, so he said: What is this? They said: He is fasting. So he said: It is not righteousness to fast while traveling." Bukhari and Muslim. But if he turns away from the Sunnah and sees that breaking the fast is disliked, then he must break the fast, and fasting is forbidden for him. In this case, based on what came in the Musnad of Imam Ahmad and others, based on the authority of Ibn Umar, Jabir, and others: Whoever does not accept the concession of God will have a sin like the mountains of Arafah. Fourth Is the judgement required to be consecutive or is it permissible to separate it? There are two opinions: One of them is that it must be consecutive because the judgement is similar to the performance. The second It is not obligatory to fast consecutively, rather if he wishes he may separate it, or if he wishes he may continue it. This is the opinion of the majority of the early and later generations, and the evidence has been proven on this basis because consecutive fasting is only obligatory in the month due to the necessity of performing it in the month. As for after the end of Ramadan, what is meant is fasting a number of days that he did not break his fast. For this reason, God the Almighty said: Then a number of other days. Then God the Almighty said: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. Imam Ahmad said: Abu Salamah Al-Khuza'i told us, Ibn Hilal told us, on the authority of Humayd ibn Hilal Al-Adawi, on the authority of Abu Qatada, on the authority of the Bedouin who heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The best of your religion is the easiest, the best of your religion is the easiest. Ahmad also said: Yazid ibn Harun told us, Asim ibn Hilal told us, Amir ibn Urwah Al-Faqimi told us, Abu Urwah told me, he said: We were waiting for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he came out with his head dripping from ablution or washing, so he prayed. When he finished the prayer, the people began to ask him: Is there any difficulty for us in such-and-such? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The religion of God is in ease - he said it three times - and Imam Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh narrated it in his interpretation of this verse from the hadith of Muslim bin Ibrahim on the authority of Asim bin Hilal with it. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, Abu At-Tayyah told us, I heard Anas bin Malik say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Make things easy and do not make them difficult, and be calm and do not repel. They included it in the two Sahihs. In the two Sahihs also, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Mu'adh and Abu Musa when he sent them to Yemen: Give good tidings and do not repel, and make things easy and do not make them difficult, and cooperate and do not differ. In the Sunan and Musnads, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I was sent with the easy-going Hanafi school. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Mardawayh said in his interpretation: Abdullah bin Ishaq bin Ibrahim told us, Yahya bin Abi Talib told us, Abdul-Wahhab bin Ata' told us, Abu Mas'ud Al-Hariri told us on the authority of Abdullah bin Shaiq, on the authority of Muhjan bin Al-Adra': "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And he saw a man praying and he saw him for a while, so he said, "Do you think he is praying sincerely?" I said, O Messenger of God, this is the one who prays the most in Madinah. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Do not hear him, lest you destroy him. He said, God intends ease for this nation and does not intend hardship for them. The meaning of his statement, God intends ease for you and does not intend hardship for you, and that you may complete the number is that He only permitted you to break the fast due to illness, travel, and similar excuses because He intends ease for you, and He only commanded you to make it up so that you may complete the number of your month. His statement, And glorify God for having guided you, means that you remember God when you finish your worship, as He said, So when you have completed your rites, remember God as you remember your fathers or with a greater remembrance. And he said, "So when you have completed the prayer, disperse within the land and seek from the bounty of God. And remember God often that you may succeed." And he said, "And glorify the praises of your Lord before the rising of the sun and before its setting. And during part of the night glorify Him and at the ends of prostration." That is why the Sunnah came with the desirability of glorifying and praising Him. And the Takbir after the obligatory prayers. Ibn Abbas said: We did not know that the prayer of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had ended except by the Takbir. For this reason, many scholars took the legitimacy of the Takbir on Eid al-Fitr from this verse: And that you may complete the number and glorify God for having guided you. Even Dawud ibn Ali al-Isfahani al-Zahiri went to the extent of its obligation on Eid al-Fitr due to the apparent command in his statement: And that you may glorify God for having guided you. In contrast to this is the school of Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him, that it is not permissible to say the Takbir on Eid al-Fitr, and the rest are of the opinion that it is desirable, with differences in the details of some branches among them. And his statement: And perhaps you will be grateful means if you do what God has commanded you of obeying Him by performing His obligations, leaving His prohibitions, and observing His limits, then perhaps you will be among those who are grateful for that.

185- Ramadan is taken from the word ramad which means the fasting person ramadh, meaning that his stomach is burned from intense thirst, and ramdaa is extended: intense heat. From this comes the authentic hadith in Sahih The prayer of the penitents is when the camels are ramadh, meaning the scorching heat burns their stomachs. Al-Jawhari said: The month of Ramadan is pluralized as Ramadanat and armadaa. It is said that when they transferred the names of the months from the ancient language, they named them according to the times in which they occurred, and this month coincided with the days of heat, so it was named thus. It was also said that it was named Ramadan because it ramadhs sins, meaning it burns them with good deeds. Al-Mawardi said: Its name in pre-Islamic times was Natiq, and Al-Mufaddal recited:

In Nataq, the knights of Khatham fled to the battlefield.

And they called it that because he used to criticize them for his severity on them, and Shahr is raised in the reading of the group as a subject whose predicate is in which the Qur'an was revealed or as a predicate for a deleted subject: meaning, fasting the month of Ramadan is obligatory upon you, and it is permissible to be a substitute for the fasting mentioned in the Almighty's saying: Fasting is prescribed for you. Mujahid and Shahr bin Hawshab read Shahr in the accusative case, and Harun al-A'war narrated it from Abu Amr and it is in the accusative case with the estimation of adhere to or fast. Al-Kisa'i and al-Farra' said: It is in the accusative case with the estimation of the verb fasting was prescribed for you and al-Nahhas denied that and said: It is in the accusative case for enticement. Al-Akhfash said: It is in the accusative case as an adverb, and the inflection is prevented because of the extra alif and nun. His saying: in which the Qur'an was revealed It was said: It was revealed from the Preserved Tablet to the lowest heaven, then Gabriel would bring it down star by star. It was said: Its beginning was revealed in it, and it was said: The Qur'an was revealed concerning it, and this verse is more general than the Almighty's saying: Indeed, We sent it down during the Night of Decree. And His saying: Indeed, We sent it down during a blessed night means the Night of Decree. The Qur'an is the name for the speech of God Almighty, and it means that which is recited, just as a drink is called a drink, and that which is written is called a book. It was said that it is the source of the verb qara'a to read, and from it the poet said:

They sacrificed Ashmat, the title of prostration, with which he spends the night glorifying and reciting the Qur'an.

Any reading, and from this is the saying of God the Almighty: And the Qur'an of dawn meaning the recitation of dawn. And His saying: A guidance for mankind is in the accusative case as a state: meaning a guide for them. And His saying: And clear proofs of guidance is from the conjunction of the specific with the general to show the honor of the conjoined by singling it out for mention, because the Qur'an includes its clear and ambiguous verses, and clear proofs are specific to the clear verses. And the Criterion: is that which distinguishes between truth and falsehood: meaning a separation. His saying: So whoever among you witnesses the month meaning he is present and not traveling but rather he is residing, and the month is in the accusative case as a circumstance, and it is not correct for it to be a direct object. A group of the Salaf and Khalaf said: Whoever the month of Ramadan comes to him while he is a resident and not traveling, he is obligated to fast it, whether he travels after that or stays, based on this verse. The majority said: If he travels, he breaks his fast, because the meaning of the verse is: If he attends the month from its beginning to its end, not if he attends part of it and travels, then he is not obligated to fast except what he attends, and this is the truth, and the authentic evidence from the Sunnah indicates this. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to go out during Ramadan and break his fast. His statement, But whoever among you is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days has already been explained. His statement, God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship indicates that this is one of the purposes of the Lord, the Most High, and what is intended in all matters of religion. Similar to this is His statement, the Most High: And He has not placed upon you in religion any difficulty al-Baqarah 2:17. It has been proven that the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to guide people to ease and forbid people from making things difficult, as in his statement, the Most High: Make things easy and do not make them difficult, and give good tidings and do not repel people al-Sahih. Ease is the ease in which there is no difficulty. His statement, And that you may complete the number appears to be connected to His statement, God

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

intends for you ease, meaning He intends ease for you, and He intends for you to complete the number and glorify Him. It has been said that it is related to something omitted, the meaning of which is: He has given you this concession so that you may complete the number, and He has prescribed fasting for those who witness the month so that you may complete the number. The Basrans went with the first. They said: The estimation is that you complete the waiting period. Similar to it is the saying of Katheer bin Sakhr:

I want to forget her name, but she appears to me at night in every way.

The Kufians went to the second, and it was said: The waw is inserted, and it was said: This lam is the lam of command, and the waw is to connect the sentence that comes after it to the sentence that comes before it. He said in Al-Kashshaf: His saying: That you may complete the number is the reason for the command to observe the number, And that you may glorify is the reason for what is known about how to make up for and get out of the obligation of breaking the fast, And that you may be grateful is the reason for permission and facilitation, and what is meant by glorification here is the saying of the speaker God is greater. The majority said: Its meaning is the urging of glorification at the end of Ramadan. There was a disagreement about its time, so it was narrated from some of the predecessors that they used to glorify God on the night of breaking the fast, and it was said: When they saw the crescent of Shawwal, they would glorify God until the end of the sermon, and it was said: Until the imam comes out, and it was said: It is the glorification on the day of breaking the fast. Malik said: It is from the time he leaves his house until the imam comes out, and Al-Shafi'i said the same. Abu Hanifa said: He glorifies God on Eid al-Adha and does not glorify God on Eid al-Fitr. His saying: And that you may be grateful has already been explained.

Abu Hatim, Abu Sheikh, Ibn Adi and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, with both chains of transmission traceable to the Prophet and those traceable to the Companions, that he said: Do not say Ramadan, for Ramadan is one of the names of God, but say the month of Ramadan. It has been authenticated that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever fasts Ramadan out of faith and in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven. It has also been authenticated that he said: Whoever stands in prayer during Ramadan out of faith and in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven. It has been authenticated that he said: "Two months of celebration that will never diminish: Ramadan and Dhul-Hijjah." He said: When Ramadan begins, the gates of Paradise are opened. All of this is in Sahih. It has been authenticated in many other hadiths that he used to say Ramadan without mentioning the month. Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Asbahani narrated in Al-Targheeb on the authority of Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It was called Ramadan because Ramadan burns away sins. They also narrated a similar hadith on the authority of Aisha, with a similar chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Ibn Asakir narrated a similar hadith on the authority of Ibn Umar in his history. Many hadiths have been narrated about the virtues of Ramadan. Ahmad, Ibn Jarir, Muhammad ibn Nasr, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani and al-Bayhaqi in al-Shu'ab narrated on the authority of Wathilah ibn al-Asqa' that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The verse of Abraham was revealed on the first night of Ramadan, and the Psalms were revealed on the eighteenth of Ramadan, and God revealed the Qur'an on the twenty-fourth of Ramadan. Abu Ya'la and Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar on the authority of Jabir, but he said: And the Psalms were revealed on the twelfth, and he added: And the Torah was revealed on the sixth of Ramadan, and the Gospel was revealed on the eighteenth of Ramadan. Muhammad ibn Nasr narrated something similar to what Jabir said, except that she mentioned the revelation of the Qur'an. Ibn Jarir, Muhammad ibn Nasr, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani, Ibn Mardawayh and al-Bayhaqi narrated in al-Asma' wa'l-Sifat on the authority of Muqsim who said: 'Atiyyah ibn al-Aswad asked Ibn 'Abbas and said: 'Doubt has entered my heart concerning the statement of God, The month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed.' And his saying: Indeed, We sent it down during the Night of Decree and his saying: Indeed, We sent it down during a blessed night. Ibn Abbas said: It was sent down on the Night of Decree and in Ramadan and on a blessed night all at once, then after that it was sent down according to the positions of the stars as messengers during the months and days. Muhammad bin Nasr, Al-Tabarani, Ibn Mardawayh, Al-Hakim who authenticated it, Al-Bayhaqi and Al-Dhiya' in Al-Mukhtara narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Qur'an was sent down all at once on the twenty-fourth of Ramadan, then it was placed in the House of Honour in the lowest heaven, then Gabriel began to send it down to the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) in measured recitation. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: The Night of Decree is the blessed night and it is in Ramadan that the Qur'an was sent down all at once from the remembrance to the Frequentated House. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding his saying: A guidance for mankind, he said: They are guided by it, And clear proofs of guidance, he said: In it is the lawful and the unlawful and the prescribed punishments. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his saying: So whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it, he said: It is destroying the home. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ali who said: Whoever witnesses Ramadan while he is a resident and then travels, he is obligated to fast because God says: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. Saeed bin Mansour narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Umar. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: God intends for you ease, he said: Ease means breaking the fast while traveling, and hardship means fasting while traveling. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Rabi' regarding His statement: And complete the number, he said: The number of days for the month of Ramadan. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak that he said: The number of days for which a sick person breaks his fast while traveling. It was authentically reported on the authority of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) that he said: Fast when you see it and break your fast when you see it, and if it is hidden from you, then complete the number of thirty days. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: It is obligatory upon those who are fasting when they see the month of Shawwal to glorify God until they finish their Eid, because God says: And complete the number and glorify God for having guided you. Saeed bin Mansour and Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud that he used to say: God is Great, God is Great, there is no god but God, God is Great, God is Great, and to God be praise. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he used to say: God is Great, God is Great, God is Great, God is Great, and to God be praise and glory, God is Great for what He has guided us to.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

185. He said: The month of Ramadan is a patch on the meaning of it is the month of Ramadan. Al-Kisa'i said: The month of Ramadan was prescribed for you and the month was called a month because of its fame. As for Ramadan, Mujahid said: It is one of the names of God Almighty. It is said the month of Ramadan as it is said the month of God. The correct thing is that it is a name for the month and it was named after the hot stones, and they used to fast it in the intense heat, so the stones would be heated in the heat.

The Almighty says: In which the Qur'an was revealed. The Qur'an was called the Qur'an because it includes surahs, verses, and letters, and includes stories, commands, prohibitions, promises, and threats.

The root of the word qur' is gathering and the hamza may be deleted from it, so it is said, Qarīṭ al-ma' fi al-hawḍ if you gathered it. Ibn Kathir read: Qur'ān with the opening of the ra' without a hamza, and this is how al-Shafi'i read it and said that it is not from qira'a but rather it is the name of this book like the Torah and the Gospel. It was narrated on the authority of Muqsim on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he was asked about the words of God Almighty: The month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed and His words: Indeed, We sent it down during the Night of Decree 1-al-Qadr, and His words: Indeed, We sent it down during a blessed night 3-ad-Dukhan, and it was revealed in all the months. God Almighty said: And a Qur'an which We have divided 106-al-Isrā', so he said that the Qur'an was revealed all at once from the Preserved Tablet on the Night of Decree in the month of Ramadan to the House of Glory in the lowest heaven, then Gabriel, peace be upon him, brought it down to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in stars over twenty-three years, so that is what God Almighty said: So I swear by the positions of the stars 75-al-Waqi'ah. Dawud ibn Abi Hind said: I said to al-Sha'bi: The month of Ramadan in which the Qur'an was revealed was it not revealed? In the other months? He said: Yes, but Gabriel used to oppose Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Ramadan what was revealed to him, so God would rule as He wished, confirm what He wished, and cause him to forget what He wished.

It was narrated on the authority of Abu Dharr on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The scrolls of Abraham, peace be upon him, were revealed on the last three nights of Ramadan, and it is narrated on the first night of Ramadan. The Torah of Moses, peace be upon him, was revealed on the last six nights of Ramadan. The Gospel was revealed to Jesus, peace be upon him, on the last thirteen nights of Ramadan. The Psalms of David were revealed on the eighteenth of Ramadan. The Criterion was revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the twenty-fourth of Ramadan, six days after that."

The Almighty says: Guidance for mankind from misguidance. Guidance is in the accusative case because the Qur'an is definite and guidance is indefinite. And clear proofs of guidance meaning clear indications of what is permissible and what is forbidden, the limits and rulings. And the Criterion meaning the difference between truth and falsehood.

God the Almighty said: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. That is, whoever was residing in the city and the month came upon him. The scholars differed regarding whoever the month came upon while he was residing and then traveled. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he said: It is not permissible for him to break the fast. Ubaidah al-Salmāni said the same, based on God the Almighty's saying: So whoever among you witnesses the month, let him fast it. That is, the entire month. Most of the Companions and jurists held that if someone sets out on a journey in the month of Ramadan, it is permissible for him to break the fast. The meaning of the verse is: So whoever among you witnesses the entire month, let him fast it, that is, the entire month. And whoever among you does not witness the entire month, let him fast what he witnesses of it. The evidence for this is what Abu al-Hasan al-Sarkhasi informed us. Zahir ibn Ahmad informed us. Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi informed us. Abu Mus'ab informed us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Ubaidullah ibn Utbah ibn Mas'ud, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out to Mecca in the year of the conquest in Ramadan and fasted until he reached al-Kadeed, then he broke the fast and the people broke the fast with him. They used to take the most recent of the commands of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

God the Almighty said: And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. He permitted breaking the fast due to the excuse of illness and travel, and He repeated this statement so that it is known that this ruling is established in the abrogating texts as it is established in the abrogated texts. They differed regarding the illness that permits breaking the fast. The people of the apparent meaning went to that what is called illness permits breaking the fast, and this is the saying of Ibn Sirin. Tarif bin Tamam Al-Attardi said: I entered upon Muhammad bin Sirin in Ramadan, and he was eating, and he said: This finger of mine hurts. Al-Hasan and Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i said: It is an illness in which it is permissible to pray while sitting. The majority went to that it is an illness in which there is fear of an increase in fasting due to an unbearable cause. In short, if fasting exhausts him, he breaks the fast, but if it does not exhaust him, then he is like a healthy person. As for travelling, breaking the fast is permissible and fasting is permissible according to most scholars, except for what was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Abu Hurairah, Urwah ibn al-Zubayr and Ali ibn al-Husayn, who said that fasting is not permissible while travelling, and whoever fasts must make up for it. They cited as evidence the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: It is not righteousness to fast while travelling. This is according to others regarding someone who is exhausted by fasting, so it is better for him to break the fast. The evidence for this is what Abd al-Wahid ibn Ahmad al-Malhi told us, Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Nu'aymi told us, Muhammad ibn Yusuf told us, Muhammad ibn Ismail told us, Adam told us, Shu'bah told us, Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman al-Ansari told us, he said: I heard Muhammad ibn Amr ibn al-Hasan ibn Ali, on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was on a journey and saw a crowd and a man who had been shaded, so he said: What is this? They said: He is fasting. He said: It is not righteousness to fast while travelling."

The evidence for the permissibility of fasting is what Professor Abu al-Qasim Abd al-Karim ibn Hawazin al-Qushayri told us. Abu Naim al-Isfarayini told us. Abu Awana told us. Abu Umayya told us. Abdullah al-Qawariri told us. Hammad ibn Zayd told us. Al-Jariri told us on the authority of Abu Nadrah on the authority of Abu Saeed, who said: "We used to travel with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, during Ramadan. Some of us were fasting and some of us were not fasting. The fasting person did not criticize the one who was not fasting, nor did the one who was not fasting criticize the one who was fasting."

They differed about which of the two matters is better. A group said: Breaking the fast while traveling is better than fasting. This was narrated from Ibn Umar, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab and Al-Sha'bi agreed with him. Some people said that fasting is better. This was narrated from Mu'adh bin Jabal and Anas, and Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i and Saeed bin Jubair said the same. A group said: The better of the two matters is the one that is easier for him, because God the Almighty says: God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship. This is the opinion of Mujahid, Qatadah, and Umar bin Abdul Aziz. Whoever fasts while staying in the morning and then travels during the day, it is not permissible for him to break his fast that day according to most scholars. A group said: He may break his fast, which is the opinion of Al-Sha'bi, and Ahmad said the same. As for the traveler, if he fasts while in the morning, it is permissible for him to break his fast by consensus. The evidence for this is what Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib reported: Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal reported to us. Abu Al-Habas Al-Asamm reported to us. Al-Rabi' reported to us. Al-Shafi'i reported to us. Abdul Aziz bin Muhammad reported to us from Ja'far bin Muhammad from his father from Jabir, "That the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) went out to Mecca in the year of the conquest in..." Ramadan, so he fasted until he reached Kara' al-Ghamim, and the people fasted with him. It was said to him, O Messenger of God, fasting has become difficult for the people, so he called for a cup of water after the afternoon prayer and drank while the people were watching, and some of them broke their fast.

People fasted, and some of them were told that some people fasted, so he said, Those are the disobedient ones.

They differed about the journey that permits breaking the fast. Some people said: It is a day's journey. A group said: It is a two-day journey, which is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him. A group said: It is a three-day journey, which is the opinion of Sufyan Al-Thawri and the People of Opinion.

God the Almighty says: God intends for you ease by permitting breaking the fast when sick or traveling. And He does not intend for you hardship. Abu Ja'far read: hardship and easier and the like with a damma on the seen, while others read it with a sukoon. Al-Sha'bi said: No man is given the choice between two matters and chooses the easier of the two except that it is more beloved to God the Almighty. "And that you may complete the number" Abu Bakr read it with a shaddah on the meem, while others read it with a sukoon, which is the choice based on God the Almighty's saying: This day I have perfected for you your religion 5:3 The law in God the Almighty's saying: And that you may complete the number is a waw of sequence, and the lam is a lam of ki, meaning: And He intends for you to complete the number, meaning that you may complete the number of days of the month by making up for what you broke during your sickness or travel. Ata' said: And that you may complete the number means the number of days of the month.

Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us, Al-Rabi' told us, Al-Shafi'i told us, Malik told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Dinar, on the authority of Ibn Umar, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The month is twenty-nine days, so do not fast until you see the crescent, and do not break your fast until you see it. If it is hidden from you, then complete the number as thirty."

Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi told us, Abu Bakr Ahmad ibn al-Husayn al-Hiri told us, Hajib ibn Ahmad al-Tusi told us, Muhammad ibn Yahya told us, Yazid ibn Harun told us, Muhammad ibn Amr told us, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Do not anticipate the month by fasting a day or two, unless that coincides with a fast that one of you used to fast. Fast when you see it and break your fast when you see it. If it is obscured from you, then count thirty days and then break your fast."

And to glorify God and to magnify God for what He has guided you to He has guided you to what He has approved of, which is fasting the month of Ramadan, and He has singled you out for it, over all other people of religions.

Ibn Abbas said: It is the takbirs of the night of Eid al-Fitr. It was narrated on the authority of al-Shafi'i, Ibn al-Musayyab, Urwah, and Abu Salamah that they used to say takbir aloud on the night of Eid al-Fitr, and he likened the night of sacrifice to it, except for those who were pilgrims, so he mentioned the talbiyah.

And perhaps you will be grateful to God for His blessings. There are reports about the virtue of the month of Ramadan and the reward of those who fast.

Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Al-Hasani Al-Marwazi told us, Abu Al-Abbas Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Siraj Al-Tahhan told us, Abu Ahmad bin Quraish bin Sulayman told us, Ali bin Abdul Aziz Al-Makki told us, Abu Al-Qasim bin Salam told us, Ismail bin Jaafar told me, on the authority of Abu Sahi Nafi bin Malik, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: When Ramadan comes, the devils are chained, the gates of Paradise are opened, and the gates of Hell are closed.

Abu Uthman Saeed bin Ismail Al-Dhabi told us, Abu Muhammad Abdul-Jabbar bin Muhammad bin Al-Jarrah told us, Abu Al-Abbas Muhammad bin Ahmad Al-Mahboubi told us, Abu Isa Muhammad bin Isa Al-Tirmidhi told us, Abu Kurayb Muhammad bin Al-Ala told us, Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "When the first night of Ramadan comes, the devils and rebellious jinn are chained, and the gates of Hell are closed, and not one of its gates is opened. And the gates of Paradise are opened, and not one of its gates is closed. And a caller calls out: 'O seeker of good, come forward, and O seeker of evil, hold back. And God has those who are freed from the Hellfire. And that is every night.'" Abu Bakr Ahmad bin Abi Nasr bin Ahmad Al-Kufani Al-Herawi told us, on the authority of Abu Muhammad Abdul-Rahman bin Umar bin Muhammad Al-Tujibi Al-Misri, known as Ibn Al-Nahhas, who was asked: Did Abu Saeed Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Ziyad Al-Anzi Al-Basri, known as Ibn Al-A'rabi, in Mecca, tell you? Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah Al-Za'farani told us, Sufyan bin Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, Abu Salamah bin Abd Al-Rahman told us, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever fasts Ramadan out of faith and in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven. Whoever stands in prayer during Ramadan out of faith and in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven."

And in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven. And whoever stands in prayer on the Night of Decree out of faith and in the hope of reward, his previous sins will be forgiven." Imam Abu Ali al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Qadi informed us, Abu Sa'id Khalaf ibn 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Nizar informed us, al-Husayn ibn Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Asad al-Saffar informed us, Abu Ja'far Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Ishaq al-'Anzi informed us, Ali ibn Hajar ibn Iyas al-Sa'di informed us, Yusuf ibn Ziyad informed us, on the authority of Ali ibn Zayd ibn Jud'an, on the authority of Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Salman, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us on the last day of Sha'ban and said: "O people, a great month has come upon you - and in another narration, it has come upon you with a ta' - it has come upon you: it has shone, a great month, a blessed month, a month in which there is a night better than a thousand months, a month in which God has made fasting obligatory, and standing in prayer during its nights voluntary. Whoever draws near during it with one of the good qualities is as if he had performed an obligatory act in any other month, and whoever performs an obligatory act in it is as if he had performed seventy obligatory acts in any other month. It is the month of patience." The reward for patience is Paradise, and the month of consolation - that is, contribution - and a month in which provision is increased. Whoever fasts during both of its two days will have his sins forgiven and his neck freed from the Fire, and he will have a reward like his without anything being reduced from his reward. They said, O Messenger of God, not all of us can find what to break the fast with. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God gives this reward to whoever breaks the fast of a fasting person with a sip of milk or a date or a drink of water. Whoever satiates a fasting person, God, the Almighty, will give him a drink from my pool after which he will not thirst until he enters Paradise. Whoever makes things easy for his slave during it, God will forgive him and free him from the Fire until he enters Paradise. It is a month whose beginning is mercy, whose middle is forgiveness, and whose end is freedom from the Fire. So increase your four qualities in it, two qualities with which you will please your Lord, and two qualities with which you cannot do without. As for the two qualities with which you will please your Lord, they are testifying that there is no god but God and asking for His forgiveness. As for the two qualities with which you cannot do without, they are asking. God grants you Paradise, and you seek refuge in Him from the Fire."

The month of Ramadan in which was revealed the Qur'an, a guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion. So whoever sights the month shall fast it. And whoever is ill or on a journey - then an equal number of other days. Allah intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship and [He intends] for you to complete the number and to glorify Allah. To that which He has guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful.

Imam Abu Ali al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Qadi told us, Abu Tahir Muhammad ibn Mahmash al-Ziyadi told us, Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn Umar ibn Hafs al-Tajir told us, Ibrahim ibn Abdullah ibn Umar ibn Bakir al-Kufi told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Every deed of the sons of Adam is multiplied for him, a good deed, ten times its like, up to seven hundred times. God Almighty said, except for fasting, for it is for Me and I will reward for it. The fasting person leaves his food, drink and desire for My sake. The fasting person has two joys, a joy when he breaks his fast and a joy when he meets his Lord. And the bad breath in his mouth is better to God than the scent of musk. Fasting is a shield, fasting is a shield."

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmed Al-Malhi told us, Ahmed bin Abdullah Al-Naimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Saeed bin Abi Maryam told us, Muhammad bin Mutraf told us, Abu Hazim told me, on the authority of Sahl bin Saad, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: In Paradise there are eight gates, one of which is called Ar-Rayyan, and none will enter it except those who fast.

Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Tobah told us, Abu Tahir ibn Ahmad ibn al-Harith told us, Muhammad ibn Yaqub al-Kisa'i told us, Abdullah ibn Mahmud told us, Ibrahim ibn Abdullah al-Khalal told us, Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Rashid ibn Sa'd, on the authority of Yahya ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Habli, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr, may God be pleased with them both, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Fasting and the Qur'an intercede for the servant. Fasting says: 'O Lord, I prevented him from food, drink, and desires during the day, so intercede for him.' And the Qur'an says: 'O Lord, I prevented him from sleeping at night, so intercede for him.' So they intercede."

185- The month of Ramadan is a subject whose predicate is what follows it, or a predicate of a deleted subject, the meaning of which is that is the month of Ramadan, or a substitute for fasting by deleting the complement, i.e. fasting is prescribed for you, the fasting of the month of Ramadan. It was read in the accusative case with the omission of fast, or as an object, and that you fast and there is weakness in it, or a substitute for a numbered day. The month: from fame, and Ramadan: the source of ramadh if it burns, so the month was added to it and made a proper noun and prevented from being declined for being a proper noun and the alif and the nun, just as da'iyah in ibn da'iyah was prevented as a proper noun for the crow for being a proper noun and feminine, and his saying, peace and blessings be upon him, Whoever fasts Ramadan is based on the deletion of the complement to avoid confusion, and they called it that either because they are burning in it from the heat of hunger and thirst, or because sins are burning in it, or because it falls during the days of the heat of Ramadan when they transferred the names of the months from the ancient language. In which the Qur'an was revealed means that its revelation began in it, and that was the Night of Decree, or it was revealed in it all at once to the lowest heaven and then it was revealed in stages to the earth, or the Qur'an was revealed concerning it, which is His statement: Fasting is prescribed for you. And on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, "The scrolls of Abraham, peace be upon him, were revealed on the first night of Ramadan, and the Torah was revealed on the sixth, and the Gospel on the thirteenth, and the Qur'an on the twenty-fourth." And the relative clause is the predicate of the subject or its description, and the predicate is whoever witnesses, and the fa is for describing the subject with what includes the meaning of the condition. And in it is an indication that the revelation in it is the reason for it being specific to the obligation of fasting. A guidance for mankind and clear proofs of guidance and criterion are two states of the Qur'an, that it was revealed while it is guidance for mankind, a miracle and clear verses that guide to the truth and differentiate between it and falsehood with what it contains of wisdom and rulings. So whoever witnesses the month, let him fast it. So whoever is present in the month and is not traveling, let him fast it. The original is So whoever witnesses it, let him fast it. For you, the apparent is placed in place of the first implied for emphasis, and the accusative is in the circumstance, and the preposition is omitted, and the second pronoun is in the accusative for expansion. It was said: So whoever witnesses the crescent of the month, let him fast it, as a direct object, like your saying: I witnessed the Friday prayer, meaning its prayer. So And whoever is ill or on a journey, then an equal number of other days is specific to it, because the traveler and the ill are among those who witness the month. Perhaps the repetition is for that reason, or so that it is not thought that it was abrogated, as is its context. God intends for you ease and does not intend for you hardship meaning He wants to make it easy for you and not make it difficult. For that reason He permitted breaking the fast when traveling and sick. And that you may complete the number and glorify God for having guided you, and perhaps you will be grateful. Give reasons for an omitted verb indicated by what came before, that is, and explain the whole of what was mentioned about the command of the witness to fast the month and the permission to make up for it and to observe the number of days he broke his fast in, and the permission to complete the number to the end is by way of wrapping up, for His saying and that you may complete the number is the reason for the command to observe the number, and that you may glorify God is the reason for the command to make up for it and explaining how it is done, and perhaps you will be grateful is the reason for the permission and facilitation. Or the verbs are each for its action, or conjoined with an implied reason such as to make it easy for you, or to know what you know and to complete the number, and it is permissible to conjoin with ease, that is, He wants you to complete it, like His saying, They want to extinguish the light of God. The meaning of glorification is to magnify God by praising and thanking Him, and for this reason it is transitive with ala. It was said that it is the Takbir of the Day of Eid al-Fitr, and it was said that it is the Takbir at the beginning of the month of Ramadan and what the source and the report may contain, meaning that which He guided you to. And from Asim, according to the narration of Abu Bakr, And that you may complete it with emphasis.
