

Tafsir Al-Qur'an

A Complete English Translation of Classical Qur'anic Commentaries

Tafsir al-Tabari, al-Baghawi, al-Qurtubi, al-Baidawi, Ibn Kathir, al-Jalalayn, al-Suyuti, Fath al-Qadir

Volume 6

Sūrat āl 'Im'rān 3:192 – Sūrat l-Nisāa 4:84

AL SADIQIN PRESS

License

This work is licensed under the GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), Version 1.3 or later. Permission is granted to copy, distribute, and modify this document under the terms of the GFDL, provided the following information is included in any derivative works:

```
Tafsir Al-Qur'an: A Complete English Translation of # Classical Qur'anic Commentaries (Version 0.1)
Copyright (C) 2025 Al Sadiqin Institute and Ben Abrahamson (abrahamson@alsadiqin.org)
License: GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), Version 1.3 or later
#
This tafsir provides an English translation of classical tafsir (commentaries)
on the Holy Qur'an, allowing easy searching, comparison between similar ahadith, # and immediate reference to the original Arabic text for those not fluent in Arabic.
#
TERMS OF USE:
#
- Permission is granted to copy, distribute, and modify this file under #   the terms of the GFDL, provided all modifications are clearly indicated #   and properly attributed to the original source (the Al Sadiqin Institute).
Any redistribution must include this license notice.
#
- This annotation can be integrated into websites or applications, provided #   its source (Al Sadiqin Institute) is clearly indicated, and a link to #   http://alsadiqin.org/tafsir is maintained, allowing users to track updates.
#
Please check updates at: http://alsadiqin.org/tafsir
```

Commercial use of this document is permitted provided that all copies, derivative works, or distributions clearly include this license notice and comply fully with the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License (GFDL), Version 1.3 or later.

Portions of this work have been translated using AI (machine-assisted translation) and post-edited for clarity and accuracy. While an ongoing effort has been made to ensure fidelity to the original text, minor variations, or mistakes may be found. Please send any corrections or suggestions to tafsir@alsadiqin.org to benefit future editions of this work.

Copyright © 2025 Al Sadiqin Institute and Ben Abrahamson.

ISBN: 9798316722433

For reprint permission or other information write to:

Al Sadiqin Press – books@alsadiqin.org – www.alsadiqin.org

Translator: Ben Abrahamson

Editor: Rebecca Abrahamson

Cover Designer: Husada Tsalitsa Mardiansyah

Layout and Interior Design: Al Sadiqin Press, the publishing division of Al Sadiqin Institute, Inc.

Introduction by the director of the al-Maehad al-Sadiqin (the Al-Sadiqin Institute).

In the name of Allah, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful.

Our research at Al Sadiqin necessitated a translation of the tafsir (commentaries) on the Holy Qur'an that allowed easy searching, comparison between similar ahadith and immediate reference to the original Arabic text for those not fluent in Arabic.

Al Sadiqin contributes to fulfilling this need by providing this publication.

The online form of this book makes for easy "copy and paste" of ahadith for use in research papers. In the printed form, it allows the reader who may not be fluent in Arabic to find references to the original Arabic text.

The Tafsir Al-Qur'an: A Complete English

Translation of Classical Qur'anic Commentaries Volume 6 presents a simple, but complete English translation of the major classical commentaries on the Qur'an, covering the last verses of Sūrat āl 'Im'rān, and the first verses of Sūrat l-Nisāa. These tafsir works are foundational to Islamic scholarship, each offering a distinct methodology and historical perspective:

- Tafsir al-Tabari (923 CE) – One of the earliest and most comprehensive tafsirs, authored by Imam al-Tabari. It is based on tafsir bi'l-ma'thur (interpretation through transmitted reports) and includes extensive narrations from the Prophet (pbuh), the Sahabah, and early scholars.
- Tafsir al-Baghawi (1122 CE) – Written by Imam al-Baghawi, this tafsir is known for its conciseness and reliance on authentic hadith and narrations. It is widely used in Sunni circles as a balanced and straightforward commentary.
- Tafsir al-Qurtubi (1273 CE) – Authored by Imam al-Qurtubi, this tafsir is famous for its focus on fiqh (Islamic jurisprudence) and legal interpretations, making it essential for scholars studying Qur'anic law.
- Tafsir al-Baidawi (1286 CE) – A concise and refined commentary by Imam al-Baidawi, often studied in traditional madrasahs. It is particularly valuable for its linguistic analysis and summarization of earlier tafsirs like al-Zamakhshari's.
- Tafsir Ibn Kathir (1372 CE) – One of the most widely read tafsirs today, written by Ibn Kathir, emphasizing tafsir bi'l-ma'thur and the use of hadith and narrations from the Sahabah.

- Tafsir al-Jalalayn (1505 CE) – A brief yet highly regarded tafsir written by Jalal al-Din al-Mahalli and completed by Jalal al-Din al-Suyuti. It is a widely studied introductory tafsir, particularly in traditional Islamic education.
- Tafsir al-Suyuti (1505 CE) – Compiled by Imam al-Suyuti, this tafsir is a rich source of tafsir bi'l-ma'thur (narrative-based exegesis), incorporating extensive hadith and historical reports.
- Fath al-Qadir (1834 CE) – Written by Imam al-Shawkani, this tafsir combines tafsir bi'l-ma'thur with rational analysis and legal insights, making it a comprehensive and independent work.

This book serves as an essential resource for students, researchers, and general readers seeking a comprehensive understanding of the Qur'an through classical scholarship. As part of a 34-volume complete translation, this work aims to make these monumental Islamic commentaries accessible to English readers for the first time.

Portions of this work have been translated using AI (machine-assisted translation) and post-edited for clarity and accuracy. While an ongoing effort has been made to ensure fidelity to the original text, minor variations, or mistakes may be found. Please send any corrections or suggestions to tafsir@alsadiqin.org to benefit future editions of this work. This book is version 0.1. The latest version of book can be downloaded at <http://alsadiqin.org/tafsir>.

This book is published at cost. I offer dua that this work, and all the publications of Al Sadiqin Press, may increase iman in the world.

Sincerely
Ben Abrahamson

Table of Contents

TafsirAl-Qur'an	i
Surat Al Imran 3:192	8
Surat Al Imran 3:193	14
Surat Al Imran 3:194	20
Surat Al Imran 3:195	27
Surat Al Imran 3:196	32
Surat Al Imran 3:197	34
Surat Al Imran 3:198	36
Surat Al Imran 3:199	39
Surat Al Imran 3:200	48
Surat al-Nisa 4:1	59
Surat al-Nisa 4:2	69
Surat al-Nisa 4:3	77
Surat al-Nisa 4:4	95
Surat al-Nisa 4:5	106
Surat al-Nisa 4:6	117
Surat al-Nisa 4:7	136
Surat al-Nisa 4:8	142
Surat al-Nisa 4:9	151
Surat al-Nisa 4:10	158
Surat al-Nisa 4:11	164
Surat al-Nisa 4:12	184
Surat al-Nisa 4:13	194
Surat al-Nisa 4:14	196
Surat al-Nisa 4:15	199
Surat al-Nisa 4:16	205
Surat al-Nisa 4:17	213
Surat al-Nisa 4:18	220
Surat al-Nisa 4:19	225
Surat al-Nisa 4:20	240
Surat al-Nisa 4:21	247
Surat al-Nisa 4:22	255
Surat al-Nisa 4:23	264
Surat al-Nisa 4:24	288
Surat al-Nisa 4:25	316
Surat al-Nisa 4:26	338
Surat al-Nisa 4:27	341
Surat al-Nisa 4:28	344
Surat al-Nisa 4:29	349
Surat al-Nisa 4:30	366
Surat al-Nisa 4:31	371
Surat al-Nisa 4:32	385
Surat al-Nisa 4:33	392
Surat al-Nisa 4:34	402
Surat al-Nisa 4:35	419
Surat al-Nisa 4:36	429
Surat al-Nisa 4:37	446

Surat al-Nisa 4:38	450
Surat al-Nisa 4:39	453
Surat al-Nisa 4:40	455
Surat al-Nisa 4:41	463
Surat al-Nisa 4:42	468
Surat al-Nisa 4:43	474
Surat al-Nisa 4:44	511
Surat al-Nisa 4:45	514
Surat al-Nisa 4:46	516
Surat al-Nisa 4:47	522
Surat al-Nisa 4:48	531
Surat al-Nisa 4:49	539
Surat al-Nisa 4:50	546
Surat al-Nisa 4:51	549
Surat al-Nisa 4:52	556
Surat al-Nisa 4:53	559
Surat al-Nisa 4:54	562
Surat al-Nisa 4:55	567
Surat al-Nisa 4:56	570
Surat al-Nisa 4:57	575
Surat al-Nisa 4:58	577
Surat al-Nisa 4:59	584
Surat al-Nisa 4:60	594
Surat al-Nisa 4:61	599
Surat al-Nisa 4:62	601
Surat al-Nisa 4:63	603
Surat al-Nisa 4:64	605
Surat al-Nisa 4:65	609
Surat al-Nisa 4:66	618
Surat al-Nisa 4:67	624
Surat al-Nisa 4:68	628
Surat al-Nisa 4:69	632
Surat al-Nisa 4:70	639
Surat al-Nisa 4:71	643
Surat al-Nisa 4:72	646
Surat al-Nisa 4:73	649
Surat al-Nisa 4:74	651
Surat al-Nisa 4:75	654
Surat al-Nisa 4:76	658
Surat al-Nisa 4:77	660
Surat al-Nisa 4:78	667
Surat al-Nisa 4:79	674
Surat al-Nisa 4:80	681
Surat al-Nisa 4:81	683
Surat al-Nisa 4:82	688
Surat al-Nisa 4:83	691
Surat al-Nisa 4:84	698

Surat Al Imran 3:192

Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, and for the wrongdoers there are no helpers.

Surat Al Imran 3:192

Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, and for the wrongdoers there are no helpers.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire to remain there forever You have disgraced him You have humiliated him and the wrongdoers the disbelievers, in it the apparent is placed in place of the implicit, indicating that the disgrace is specific to them of an extra supporters who prevent them from the punishment of God Almighty.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed on that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: Our Lord, whoever of your servants you admit to the Fire and make him abide therein forever, you have disgraced him. He said: And a believer whose destination is Paradise will not be disgraced, even if he is tortured in the Fire with some torture.

Who said that?

Abu Hafs Al-Jubayri and Muhammad bin Bashir told me, they said: Al-Mu'ammil told us, Abu Hilal told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Anas, regarding his statement: Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, he said: whoever You make immortal.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab: Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire, You have disgraced him. He said: It is specific to whoever does not come out of it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Al-Nu'man A'rim told us, he said, Hammad bin Zaid told us, he said, Qubaysah bin Marwan told us, on the authority of Al-Ash'ath Al-Sammali, he said, I said to Al-Hasan, O Abu Sa'id, do you think what you mention about intercession is true? He said, Yes, it is true. He said, I said, O Abu Sa'id, do you think about the statement of God the Most High: Our Lord, indeed whomever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him (5:37) He said, he said to me: By God, you cannot overpower me in anything, for the Fire has people who will not exit it, as God said. I said, O Abu Sa'id, about those who entered and then exited? He said: They committed sins in this world, so God seized them because of them, so He admitted them into them and then exited them, because of what He knows is in their hearts of faith and belief in Him.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: Whoever You admit to the Fire - I have disgraced him, he said: He is the one who will abide therein forever. Others said: The meaning of that is: Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire, whether he will abide therein forever or not, has been disgraced by the punishment.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Al-Harith bin Muslim told us, on the authority of Bahr, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, he said: Jabir bin Abdullah came to us during Umrah, so Ata' and I went to him and said: Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire, You have disgraced him. He said: What disgraced him was when I burned him with fire! And even less than that is disgraceful.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions, in my opinion, is the opinion of Jabir: Whoever enters the Fire has been disgraced by his entry into it, even if he is taken out of it. This is because disgrace is the exposure of the veil of the disgraced and his disgrace. And whoever his Lord punishes in the Hereafter for his sins, He has disgraced him by punishing him, and that is disgrace.

As for his saying: And the wrongdoers have no helpers, he says: And whoever disobeys God's command and disobeys Him has no helper from God to help him, to avert His punishment from him, or to save him from His torment.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Tenth: The Almighty's saying: Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him. That is, You have humiliated and insulted him. Al-Mufaddal said: That is, You have destroyed him. He recited:

God has put to shame his servants and those wearing monks' hats from the cross.

It was said: I disgraced him and banished him. It is said: God disgraced him: He banished him and hated him. The noun is humiliation. Ibn al-Sikkit said: He was disgraced, he was disgraced, if he fell into a calamity. The proponents of threats held fast to this verse and said: Whoever enters the Fire should not be a believer, because God Almighty said: Then I have disgraced him. God says: The Day when God will not disgrace the Prophet and those who believed with him (al-Tahrim 66:8). What they said is rejected, because of the evidence that whoever commits a major sin will not lose the name of faith, as mentioned above and will come. What is meant by His statement: Whoever enters the Fire is whoever remains in the Fire forever. Anas ibn Malik said this. Qatada said: Enter is the reverse of remain, and we do not say as the people of Harura said. Saeed ibn al-Musayyab said: The verse is specific to people who will not emerge from the Fire. For this reason, He said: And for the wrongdoers there are no helpers, meaning the disbelievers. The scholars of meanings said: Humiliation may mean shyness. It is said: He was disgraced, he was disgraced, if he was ashamed, so he is humiliated. Dhu al- Rama:

Shame overtook him when he walked around the side of the rope, mixed with anger.

The disgrace of the believers on that day will be their shame in entering the Fire before all the people of other religions until they emerge from it. The disgrace of the unbelievers will be their destruction in it without death, and the believers will die, so they will separate. This is what is established in Sahih al-Sunnah from the hadith of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, narrated by Muslim, and it has been presented and will come.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Tabarani said: Al-Husayn ibn Ishaq Al-Tastari told us, Yahya Al-Hamani told us, Yaqub Al-Qummi told us on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi Al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: How did Moses come to you? They said: His staff and his hand were white for the onlookers. They came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers, and revive the dead. So they came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Ask God to make Safa gold for us. So he asked his Lord, and this verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding. So let them ponder over it. This is problematic, because this verse was revealed in Medina, and their question that Safa be gold was in Mecca, and God knows best. The meaning of the verse is that God Almighty says: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth meaning this in its height and breadth, and this in its lowness, density and lowliness, and what they contain of great visible signs of planets, fixed stars, seas, mountains, deserts, trees, plants, crops, fruits, animals and minerals, and benefits of different colors, scents, tastes and properties, and the alternation of the night and the day meaning their succession and their interchange of length and shortness, so sometimes one becomes long and the other short, then they become equal, then one takes from the other, and what was short becomes long and short. Which was long. And all of that is the estimation of the Almighty, the All-Knowing, and for this reason the Almighty said, Signs for those of understanding, meaning the complete, intelligent minds that perceive things in their true and obvious aspects, and they are not like the deaf and dumb who do not understand, about whom God said, "And how many a sign is there in the heavens and the earth which they pass by while they are turning away from it. And most of them do not believe in God except while they associate others with Him." Then the Almighty described those of understanding, saying, Those who remember God standing, sitting, and [lying] on their sides. As it was proven in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Imran bin Husain: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, 'Pray standing, and if you cannot, then sitting, and if you cannot, then on your side,'" meaning they do not stop mentioning Him in all their states in their secrets, consciences, and tongues, and they reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, meaning they understand what is in them of wisdom indicating the greatness of the Creator, His power, knowledge, wisdom, choice, and mercy. Sheikh Abu Sulayman Al-Darani said: I leave my house and my eyes do not fall on anything except that I see that God has blessed me with it and I have a lesson in it. Narrated by Ibn Abi Al-Dunya in the book of trust and consideration and on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri that he said: Thinking for an hour is better than standing all night. Al-Fudayl said: Al-Hasan said: Thinking is a mirror that shows you your good and bad deeds. Sufyan bin Uyaynah said: Thinking is a light that enters your heart and perhaps he would quote this verse:

If a person has an idea, then there is a lesson in everything.

It was narrated that Jesus, peace be upon him, said: Blessed is he whose speech is remembrance, whose silence is contemplation, and whose gaze is a lesson. Luqman the Wise said: Prolonged solitude inspires thought, and prolonged thought is evidence of knocking on the door of Paradise. Wahb ibn Munabbih said: No man's thought is prolonged without understanding, and no man has ever understood without knowledge, and no man has ever known without acting. Omar ibn Abdul Aziz said: Speaking in remembrance of God Almighty is good, and contemplating the blessings of God is the best form of worship. Mughis al-Aswad said: Visit the graves every day and contemplate, and see the situation with your hearts, and look at who will lead the two groups to Paradise or Hell, and let your hearts and bodies feel the remembrance of Hell, its whips and its chambers. He would cry at that until he was raised up dead from among his companions, his mind gone. Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak said: A man passed by a monk at a cemetery and a garbage dump, so he called out to him and said: O monk, you have two treasures from the treasures of this world in which you will learn: the treasure of men, and the treasure of money. On the authority of Ibn Omar: Whenever he wanted to examine his heart, he would go to a ruined place, stand at its door and call out in a sad voice, saying: Where are your people? Then he would return to himself and say: Everything will perish except His Face. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Two moderate rak'ahs of contemplation are better than standing all night while the heart is heedless. Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: O son of Adam, eat a third of your stomach, drink a third of it, and leave the other third to breathe for contemplation. Some of the wise men said: Whoever looks at the world without admiration, the sight of his heart will be obscured to the extent of that heedlessness. Bishr bin Al-Harith Al-Hafi said: If people contemplated the greatness of God Almighty, they would not disobey Him. Al-Hasan said on the authority of Amir bin Abdul Qais, he said: I heard more than one, two, or three of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

Surat Al Imran 3:192

Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, and for the wrongdoers there are no helpers.

The light of faith or the radiance of faith is contemplation. It was narrated on the authority of Jesus, peace be upon him, that he said: O weak son of Adam, fear God wherever you are, and be a guest in this world, and make the mosques your home, and teach your eyes to weep, your body to be patient, and your heart to think, and do not worry about tomorrow's provision. And on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Omar bin Abdul Aziz, may God be pleased with him, that he cried one day among his companions, and he was asked about that, so he said: I thought about the world, its pleasures and desires, and I learned from it, and its desires are almost gone until its bitterness clouds them, and if there is no lesson in it for those who learn, then there are sermons in it for those who remember. And Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Al-Hussein bin Abdul Rahman recited to me:

The believer's walk is the believer's pleasure is the lesson

We thank God alone, we are all in danger

There is a man who is distracted and his life has passed and he does not feel it

There is a life that was beyond desire, full of flowers

In the murmur of the eyes and the shade of the trees

And joy from the plant and goodness from the fruit

His jealousy and his family's speed of time with jealousy

We thank God alone, for in this there is a lesson.

Indeed in this is a lesson for the wise if he takes heed.

God the Almighty has condemned those who do not consider His creations that indicate His Essence, Attributes, Law, Power and Signs, saying: And how many are the signs in the heavens and the earth which they pass by while they are turning away from them? And most of them do not believe in God except while they associate others with Him. And He praised His believing servants, Those who remember God while standing, sitting, and [lying] on their sides, and reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, saying: Our Lord, You did not create this in vain. That is, You did not create this creation in vain, but rather in truth, so that You may reward those who do evil for what they have done, and reward those who do good with goodness. Then He declared Him free from vainness and the creation of falsehood, saying: Glory be to You, that is, from creating anything in vain. Save us from the punishment of the Fire. That is, O He who created creation with truth and justice, O He who is free from deficiencies, faults and vainness. Save us from the punishment of the Fire by Your power and strength, and provide us with deeds that please You. And guide us to righteous deeds that will guide us to the Gardens of Bliss, and protect us from Your painful punishment. Then they said, Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him. That is, You have humiliated him and made his disgrace apparent to the people of the assembly. And for the wrongdoers there are no helpers. That is, on the Day of Resurrection, they will have no protector from You. Nor will they be able to escape from what You intended for them. Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, that is, a caller calling to faith, and he is the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace. Believe in your Lord, so we have believed. That is, he says, Believe in your Lord, so we have believed, that is, we responded to him and followed him, that is, with our faith and following of Your Prophet. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins, that is, cover them, and remove from us our misdeeds, between us and You, and cause us to die with the righteous, that is, join us with the righteous. Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, was said: its meaning is through faith in Your messengers, and it was said: its meaning is through the tongues of Your messengers. This is more evident - and Imam Ahmad said: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Ismail bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Amr bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abu Uqal, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Asqalan is one of the two brides. God will raise from it on the Day of Resurrection seventy thousand who will not be held accountable, and He will raise from it fifty thousand martyrs who will come to God, and in it are rows of martyrs with their heads severed in their hands, their veins gushing with blood, saying, 'Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise.' God will say, 'My servants have spoken the truth. Wash them in the River of the Egg.' So they will emerge from it pure and white. They will roam in Paradise wherever they wish." This hadith is considered one of the strange hadiths in the Musnad, and some consider it fabricated, and God knows best. And do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection meaning in front of all creation, Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise meaning the promise that Your messengers informed us about must come, which is the standing before You on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Al-Harith bin Surayj told us, Al-Mu'tabar told us, Al-Fadl bin Isa told us, Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir told us that Jabir bin Abdullah told him that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shame and disgrace will reach the son of Adam on the Day of Resurrection in his standing before God Almighty to the extent that a servant would wish to be ordered to the Fire. A strange hadith. It has been proven that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite these ten verses from the end of Al Imran when he got up at night to perform the night prayer. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, said: Saeed bin Abi Yahya told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Sharik bin Abdullah bin Abi Namir told me on the authority of Kurayb, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: "I spent the night with my aunt Maymunah, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, talked with his family for an hour, then he went to sleep. When the last third of the night had passed, he sat up and looked at the sky and said: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding' [the verses]. Then he got up, performed ablution, used the siwa', and prayed eleven rak'ahs. Then Bilal called the adhan and prayed two rak'ahs, then he went out and led the people in the dawn prayer." Muslim narrated it in this way on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Ishaq al-San'ani, on the authority of Ibn Abi Maryam. Then Al-Bukhari narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Mukhrama bin Sulayman, on the authority of Kurayb, that Ibn Abbas informed him that he spent the night with Maymunah, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and she was his aunt. He said: "I lay down on the width of the pillow, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his family lay down on its length. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, slept until it was midnight, or a little before or after it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, woke up from his sleep and began to wipe the sleep from his face with his hand. Then he recited the last ten verses of Surat Al Imran. Then he went to a hanging bag and performed ablution from it, and he performed his ablution well. Then he stood up to pray. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: So I got up and did as he did, then I went and stood beside him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, put his right hand on my head, and took hold of my right ear, twisting it. He prayed two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then he prayed the witr prayer. Then he lay down until..." The muezzin came to him, so he stood up and prayed two light rak'ahs, then he went out and prayed the dawn prayer." And the rest of the group narrated it in this way through various chains of transmission on the authority of Malik. Muslim also narrated it, and Abu Dawud narrated it through other chains of transmission on the authority of Mukhramah ibn Sulayman on his authority.

Another way for this hadith on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Ali told us, Abu Yahya bin Abi Masarra told us, Khallad bin Yahya told us, Yunus bin Abi Ishaq told us, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Ali bin Abdullah bin Abbas, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abbas, who said: Al-Abbas ordered me to spend the night with the family of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to preserve his prayers. He said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, led the people in the last 'Isha' prayer until there was no one left in the mosque except him. He stood up and passed by me and said: Who is this? 'Abdullah?' I said: Yes. He said: So who? I said: Al-Abbas ordered me to spend the night with you. He said: Then the truth, the truth. When he entered, he said: Did you spread out 'Abdullah? So a pillow of silk was brought. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, slept on it until I heard him snoring. Then he sat up on his bed. He said: He raised his head to the sky and said: Glory be to the King, the Holy, three times. Then he recited these verses from the end of Surat Al-Imran until he finished it." Muslim, Abu Dawud, and Al-Nasa'i also narrated a hadith on the authority of 'Ali ibn 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas on the authority of his father on the authority of his father on this matter as well.

Another way Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh from the hadith of Asim bin Bahdalah from some of his companions, from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, "That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out one night after the night had passed, and he looked at the sky and recited this verse: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding.' to the end of the surah, then he said: O God, place in my heart light, and in my hearing light, and in my sight light, and on my right light, and on my left light, and in front of me light, and behind me light, and above me light, and below me light, and make my light greater on the Day of Resurrection." This supplication is proven in some ways of the Sahih from the narration of Kurayb from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him. Then Ibn Mardawayh and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Ja'far bin Abi Al-Mughira from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: What signs did Moses bring to you? They said: His staff and his white hand are for the onlookers. And they came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus among you? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers and bring the dead back to life. So they came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Call upon your Lord to turn Safa into gold for us. So he called upon his Lord, the Mighty and Sublime, and the following verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding. He said: Let them ponder over them. This is the wording of Ibn Mardawayh. This hadeeth was mentioned earlier in the narration of al-Tabarani at the beginning of the verse. This necessitates that these verses were revealed in Makkah, but the well-known view is that they were revealed in Madinah. Its evidence is the other hadeeth. Ibn Mardawayh said: Isma'il ibn 'Ali ibn Isma'il told us, Ahmad ibn 'Ali al-Harrani told us, Shuja' ibn Ashras told us, Hashraj ibn Nabatah al-Waseeti Abu Makram told us on the authority of al-Kalbi, who is Abu Janab, on the authority of 'Ata' who said: I, Ibn 'Umar, and 'Ubaid ibn 'Umair went to 'Aa'ishah may God be pleased with her. We entered upon her and there was a veil between us and her. She said: O 'Ubaid, what prevents you from visiting us? He said: The poet said: Visit often and you will increase in love. Ibn Umar said: "Leave us and tell us about the most amazing thing you saw from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." She cried and said: "Everything about him was amazing. He came to me during my night until his skin touched my skin, then he said: 'Leave me to worship my Lord, the Almighty and Majestic.'" She said: "I said: By God, I love being close to you, and I love that you worship your Lord." So he went to the water skin and performed ablution, but did not pour much water. Then he stood up to pray and cried until his beard was wet, then he prostrated and cried until the ground was wet,

Surat Al Imran 3:192

Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, and for the wrongdoers there are no helpers.

then he lay on his side and cried until Bilal came to call him to the dawn prayer. She said: "He said: O Messenger of God, what makes you cry when God has forgiven you your sins, past and future?" He said: "Woe to you, Bilal! What prevents me from crying when it was revealed to me this night: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding.' " Then he said: Woe to the one who recites it and does not reflect on it. Abd ibn Humayd narrated it in his interpretation on the authority of Ja'far ibn 'Awn on the authority of Abu Janab Al-Kalbi narrated on the authority of Ata' who said: I, Abdullah bin Omar, and Ubaid bin Umair entered upon the Mother of the Believers Aisha, may God be pleased with her, while she was in her chamber. We greeted her and she said: Who are these? We said: This is Abdullah bin Omar and Ubaid bin Umair. She said: O Ubaid bin Umair, what prevents you from visiting us? He said: What did the first one say: Visit often and you will increase in love. She said: We love visiting you and having intercourse with you. Abdullah bin Omar said: Leave this idleness of yours, "Tell us about the most amazing thing you saw from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." She said: So she cried and then said: Everything about him was amazing. He came to me during my night until he entered my bed with me, until his skin stuck to my skin, then he said: O Aisha, give me permission to worship my Lord. She said: I love your closeness and I love your love. She said: So he went to a water skin in the house and poured water frequently, then he got up and recited the Qur'an, then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached his waist. She said: Then he sat and praised God and extolled Him, then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached his lap. She said: Then he leaned on his right side and put his hand under his cheek. She said: Then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached the ground. Bilal entered upon him and called him to the dawn prayer, then he said: The prayer, O Messenger of God. When Bilal saw him crying, he said: O Messenger of God, are you crying when God has forgiven you your past and future sins? He said: O Bilal, should I not be? A grateful servant? Why should I not cry when tonight the following verse was revealed to me: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding until His saying: Glory be to You! Save us from the punishment of the Fire. Then He said: Woe to the one who recites these verses and does not reflect upon them. This is how Abu Hatim Ibn Hibban narrated it in his Sahih on the authority of Imran Ibn Musa, on the authority of Uthman Ibn Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Yahya Ibn Zakariya, on the authority of Ibrahim Ibn Suwaid Al-Nakha'i, on the authority of Abdul Malik Ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ata', who said: I and Ubaid Ibn Umair entered upon Aisha and he mentioned something similar. This is how Abdullah Ibn Muhammad Ibn Abi Al-Dunya narrated it in the book Al-Tafkur wal-I'tibar on the authority of Shuja' Ibn Ashras. Then he said: Al-Hasan bin Abdul Aziz told me: I heard a chain of transmission on the authority of Sufyan, who is Al-Thawri, who traced it back to the Prophet, who said: Whoever recites the end of Al Imran and does not reflect on it, woe to him, counting ten on his fingers. Al-Hasan bin Abdul Aziz said: Ubayd bin Al-Sa'ib told me: It was said to Al-Awza'i: What is the limit of reflecting on them? He said: He recites them while understanding them. Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Qasim bin Hashim told me: Ali bin Ayyash told us: Abdul Rahman bin Sulayman told us: I asked Al-Awza'i about the minimum that a person who is attached to them can contemplate on them and what will save him from this woe? He lowered his head for a while, then said: He recites them while understanding them.

Another hadith contains something strange. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahman bin Bashir bin Numayr told us, Ishaq bin Ibrahim al-Basti told us H and Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Hisham bin Ammar told us, Sulayman bin Musa al-Zuhri told us, Muzahir bin Aslam al-Makhzumi told us, Saeed bin Abi Saeed al-Maqburi told us on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite ten verses from the end of Surat Al Imran every night." Muzahir bin Aslam is weak.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 192- Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him is a confirmation of what preceded from His supplication for protection from the Fire from Him, the Most High, and a clarification of the reason for which His servants called upon Him to protect them from the torment of the Fire, which is that whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, that is, You have humiliated and dishonored him. Al-Mufaddal said: The meaning of I have disgraced him is that I have destroyed him, and he recited:

May God disgrace the people of the cross, Unaizah, and those who wear the clothes of monks.

It was said that its meaning is: I disgraced him and distanced him. It is said that God disgraced him: He distanced him and hated him. The noun is humiliation. Ibn Al-Sikkit said: He was disgraced, humiliated, humiliated: if he fell into a calamity.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

192- Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, meaning: You have humiliated him, and it was said: You have destroyed him, and it was said: You have disgraced him, because God Almighty said: And do not disgrace My guests (Hud 11:78). If it is said: God Almighty said: The Day when God will not disgrace the Prophet and those who believed with him (al-Tahrim 66:8), and some of the people of faith will enter the Fire, and He said: Whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him, it was said: Anas and Qatadah said that its meaning is: Whoever remains eternally in the Fire -

You have disgraced him. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab said that this is specific to those who do not leave it, as Anas, may God be pleased with him, narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: God will admit a people to the Fire, then they will leave it. "And the wrongdoers will have no helpers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

192 Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him." The ultimate disgrace, and it is similar to their saying: Whoever reaches the pasture of As-Samman has reached it. What is meant by it is to terrify the one from whom refuge is sought, drawing attention to the intensity of their fear and their seeking protection from him. It also indicates that the spiritual torment is more terrible. "And the wrongdoers will have no helpers." He meant by them those who enter, and he placed the apparent in place of the implicit to indicate that their wrongdoing is a reason for their entering the Fire and the cessation of support for them in salvation from it. The denial of support does not necessarily entail the denial of intercession, because support is repelled by force.

Surat Al Imran 3:193

Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, "Believe in your Lord," so we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and remit from us our misdeeds and cause us to die with the righteous.

Surat Al Imran 3:193

Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, Believe in your Lord, so we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and remit from us our misdeeds and cause us to die with the righteous.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling calling people to faith that is, to Him, and he is Muhammad or the Qur'an that that is, believe in your Lord, so we have believed in him Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and cover cover our misdeeds do not expose them by punishing them and take us take our souls with in the group of the righteous the righteous prophets

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of the caller mentioned by God Almighty in this verse. Some of them said: The caller in this place is the Qur'an.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Qubaysah bin Uqbah told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Musa bin Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b: Indeed, we heard a caller calling to faith, he said: It is the Book, not all of them met the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Mansur bin Hakim told us, on the authority of Kharijah, on the authority of Musa bin Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ka'b Al-Qurazi, regarding His statement: Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, he said: Not all of the people heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but the caller was the Qur'an.

Others said: Rather, it is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, his saying: Indeed, we heard a caller calling to faith. He said that he was Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, he said: That is the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions on this matter is the opinion of Muhammad ibn Ka'b, which is that the caller is the Qur'an. Because many of those whom God has described with this attribute in these verses are not among those who saw the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, nor witnessed him and heard his call to God, the Blessed and Exalted, and his call. Rather, it is the Qur'an, and it is similar to what God, the Most High, said, informing us about the jinn when they heard the words of God recited to them, that they said: "Indeed, we have heard an amazing Qur'an. It guides to the right path." (al-Jinn 72:1-2) And something similar to that:

Bishr told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith until His statement: And let us die with the righteous, they heard a call from God and responded to it and responded well in it, and were patient with it. God will inform you about the believing human being, how he spoke, and about the believing jinn, how he spoke. As for the believing jinn, he said: Indeed, we have heard a wonderful Qur'an * It guides to the right course, so we have believed in it, and we will never associate with our Lord anyone (al-Jinn 72:1-2). As for the believing human being, he said: "Indeed, we have heard a caller calling to faith, 'Believe in your Lord,' so we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins," the verse.

It was said: We heard a caller calling to faith, meaning: calling to faith, as God Almighty said: Praise be to God who has guided us to this (al-A'raf 7:43), meaning: He has guided us to this, and as the rajaz poet said:

The decision inspired her, so she settled down and was tied to the firm pillars.

Meaning: He inspired her, and from this is His statement: Because your Lord inspired her (al-Zalzalah 99:15). It was said: It is possible that its meaning is: We heard a caller to faith, calling to believe in your Lord.

The interpretation of the verse is: "Our Lord, we have heard a caller calling to faith, saying: to believe in You, and acknowledge Your Oneness, and follow Your Messenger, and obey him in what He has commanded us to do and forbidden us from what he brought from You, "So we have believed, our Lord," meaning: so we have believed in that, O our Lord, so forgive us our sins, meaning: so cover our sins for us, and do not disgrace us with them on the Day of Resurrection in front of all witnesses, by punishing us for them, but expiate them for us, and the evils of our deeds, so erase them with Your grace and mercy toward us, and take us with the righteous, meaning by that: and take us to You when You take us to You, among the righteous, and gather us with them in their gathering place and with them. The righteous is the plural of righteous, and they are those who have been righteous to God Almighty by their obedience to Him and their service to Him, until they have pleased Him and He has been pleased with them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Eleventh: The Almighty's saying: Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. This was said by Ibn Mas'ud, Ibn Abbas, and most of the commentators. Qatada and Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi said: It is the Qur'an, and not all of them heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. The evidence for this statement is what God Almighty informed about the believing jinn when they said: Indeed, we have heard an amazing Qur'an * It guides to the right path. (al-Jinn 72:1-2) The first ones responded and said: Whoever hears the Qur'an is as if he has met the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. This is the correct meaning, and that "that they believed" is in a place with the deletion of the preposition, meaning that they believed. There is an advancement and delay in the speech, meaning that we heard a caller calling to faith, from Abu Ubaidah: It was said: The lam means to, meaning to faith, like His saying: Then they return to what they were forbidden from (al-Mujadilah: 8), and His saying: That your Lord inspired her. (al-Zalzalah 99:5), and His saying: Praise be to God who has guided us to this (al-A'raf 7:43), meaning to this, and there are many like it. It was said: It is a lam for the sake of faith, meaning for the sake of faith.

Twelfth: The Almighty's saying: Our Lord, forgive us our sins and cover us our misdeeds. This is an emphasis and exaggeration in the supplication, and the meaning of the two words is the same, for forgiveness and cover are concealment. And let us die with the righteous. That is, righteous with the prophets, that is, in their entirety, and one of them is righteous and righteous, and its origin is from breadth, so it is as if righteousness is broad in obedience to God and the mercy of God is broad for it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Tabarani said: Al-Husayn ibn Ishaq Al-Tastari told us, Yahya Al-Hamami told us, Yaqub Al-Qummi told us on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi Al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: How did Moses come to you? They said: His staff and his hand were white for the onlookers. They came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers, and revive the dead. So they came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Ask God to make Safa gold for us. So he asked his Lord, and this verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding. So let them ponder over it. This is problematic, because this verse was revealed in Medina, and their question that Safa be gold was in Mecca, and God knows best. The meaning of the verse is that God Almighty says: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth meaning this in its height and breadth, and this in its lowness, density and lowliness, and what they contain of great visible signs of planets, fixed stars, seas, mountains, deserts, trees, plants, crops, fruits, animals and minerals, and benefits of different colors, scents, tastes and properties, and the alternation of the night and the day meaning their succession and their interchange of length and shortness, so sometimes one becomes long and the other short, then they become equal, then one takes from the other, and what was short becomes long and short. Which was long. And all of that is the estimation of the Almighty, the All-Knowing, and for this reason the Almighty said, Signs for those of understanding, meaning the complete, intelligent minds that perceive things in their true and obvious aspects, and they are not like the deaf and dumb who do not understand, about whom God said, "And how many a sign is there in the heavens and the earth which they pass by while they are turning away from it. And most of them do not believe in God except while they associate others with Him." Then the Almighty described those of understanding, saying, Those who remember God standing, sitting, and [lying] on their sides. As it was proven in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Imran bin Husain: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, 'Pray standing, and if you cannot, then sitting, and if you cannot, then on your side,'" meaning they do not stop mentioning Him in all their states in their secrets, consciences, and tongues, and they reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, meaning they understand what is in them of wisdom indicating the greatness of the Creator, His power, knowledge, wisdom, choice, and mercy. Sheikh Abu Sulayman Al-Darani said: I leave my house and my eyes do not fall on anything except that I see that God has blessed me with it and I have a lesson in it. Narrated by Ibn Abi Al-Dunya in the book of trust and consideration and on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri that he said: Thinking for an hour is better than standing all night. Al-Fudayl said: Al-Hasan said: Thinking is a mirror that shows you your good and bad deeds. Sufyan bin Uyaynah said: Thinking is a light that enters your heart and perhaps he would quote this verse:

If a person has an idea, then there is a lesson in everything.

It was narrated that Jesus, peace be upon him, said: Blessed is he whose speech is remembrance, whose silence is contemplation, and whose gaze is a lesson. Luqman the Wise said: Prolonged solitude inspires thought, and prolonged thought is evidence of knocking on the door of Paradise. Wahb ibn Munabbih said: No man's thought is prolonged without understanding, and no man has ever understood without knowledge, and no man has ever known without acting. Omar ibn Abdul Aziz said: Speaking in remembrance of God Almighty is good, and contemplating the blessings of God is the best form of worship. Mughis al-Aswad said: Visit the graves every day and contemplate, and see the situation with your hearts, and look at who will lead the two groups to Paradise or Hell, and let your hearts and bodies feel the remembrance of Hell, its whips and its chambers. He would cry at that until he was raised up dead from among his companions, his mind gone. Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak said: A man passed by a monk at a cemetery and a garbage dump, so he called out to him and said: O monk, you have two treasures from the treasures of this world in which you will learn: the treasure of men, and the treasure of money. On the authority of Ibn Omar: Whenever he wanted to examine his heart, he would go to a ruined place, stand at its door and call out in a sad voice, saying: Where are your people? Then he would return to himself and say: Everything will perish except His Face. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Two moderate rak'ahs of contemplation are better than standing all night while the heart is heedless. Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: O son of Adam, eat a third of your stomach, drink a third of it, and leave the other third to breathe for contemplation. Some of the wise men said: Whoever looks at the world without admiration, the sight of his heart will be obscured to the extent of that heedlessness. Bishr bin Al-Harith Al-Hafi said: If people contemplated the greatness of God Almighty, they would not disobey Him. Al-Hasan said on the authority of Amir bin Abdul Qais, he said: I heard more than one, two, or three of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The light of faith or the radiance of faith is contemplation. It was narrated on the authority of Jesus, peace be upon him, that he said: O weak son of Adam, fear God wherever you are, and be a guest in this world, and make the mosques your home, and teach your eyes to weep, your body to be patient, and your heart to think, and do not worry about tomorrow's provision. And on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Omar bin Abdul Aziz, may God be pleased with him, that he cried one day among his companions, and he was asked about that, so he said: I thought about the world, its pleasures and desires, and I learned from it, and its desires are almost gone until its bitterness clouds them, and if there is no lesson in it for those who learn, then there are sermons in it for those who remember. And Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Al-Hussein bin Abdul Rahman recited to me:

Surat Al Imran 3:193

Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, "Believe in your Lord," so we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and remit from us our misdeeds and cause us to die with the righteous.

The believer's walk is the believer's pleasure is the lesson

We thank God alone, we are all in danger

There is a man who is distracted and his life has passed and he does not feel it

There is a life that was beyond desire, full of flowers

In the murmur of the eyes and the shade of the trees

And joy from the plant and goodness from the fruit

His jealousy and his family's speed of time with jealousy

We thank God alone, for in this there is a lesson.

Indeed in this is a lesson for the wise if he takes heed.

God the Almighty has condemned those who do not consider His creations that indicate His Essence, Attributes, Law, Power and Signs, saying: And how many are the signs in the heavens and the earth which they pass by while they are turning away from them? And most of them do not believe in God except while they associate others with Him. And He praised His believing servants, Those who remember God while standing, sitting, and [lying] on their sides, and reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, saying: Our Lord, You did not create this in vain. That is, You did not create this creation in vain, but rather in truth, so that You may reward those who do evil for what they have done, and reward those who do good with goodness. Then He declared Him free from vainness and the creation of falsehood, saying: Glory be to You, that is, from creating anything in vain. Save us from the punishment of the Fire. That is, O He who created creation with truth and justice, O He who is free from deficiencies, faults and vainness. Save us from the punishment of the Fire by Your power and strength, and provide us with deeds that please You. And guide us to righteous deeds that will guide us to the Gardens of Bliss, and protect us from Your painful punishment. Then they said, Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him. That is, You have humiliated him and made his disgrace apparent to the people of the assembly. And for the wrongdoers there are no helpers. That is, on the Day of Resurrection, they will have no protector from You. Nor will they be able to escape from what You intended for them. Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, that is, a caller calling to faith, and he is the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace. Believe in your Lord, so we have believed. That is, he says, Believe in your Lord, so we have believed, that is, we responded to him and followed him, that is, with our faith and following of Your Prophet. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins, that is, cover them, and remove from us our misdeeds, between us and You, and cause us to die with the righteous, that is, join us with the righteous. Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, it was said: its meaning is through faith in Your messengers, and it was said: its meaning is through the tongues of Your messengers. This is more evident - and Imam Ahmad said: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Ismail bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Amr bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abu Uqal, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Asqalan is one of the two brides. God will raise from it on the Day of Resurrection seventy thousand who will not be held accountable, and He will raise from it fifty thousand martyrs who will come to God, and in it are rows of martyrs with their heads severed in their hands, their veins gushing with blood, saying, 'Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise.' God will say, 'My servants have spoken the truth. Wash them in the River of the Egg.' So they will emerge from it pure and white. They will roam in Paradise wherever they wish." This hadith is considered one of the strange hadiths in the Musnad, and some consider it fabricated, and God knows best. And do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection meaning in front of all creation, Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise meaning the promise that Your messengers informed us about must come, which is the standing before You on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Al-Harith bin Surayj told us, Al-Mu'tabar told us, Al-Fadl bin Isa told us, Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir told us that Jabir bin Abdullah told him that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shame and disgrace will reach the son of Adam on the Day of Resurrection in his standing before God Almighty to the extent that a servant would wish to be ordered to the Fire. A strange hadith. It has been proven that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite these ten verses from the end of Al-Imran when he got up at night to perform the night prayer. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, said: Saeed bin Abi Maryam told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Sharik bin Abdullah bin Abi Namir told me on the authority of Kurayb, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: "I spent the night with my aunt Maymunah, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, talked with his family for an hour, then he went to sleep. When the last third of the night had passed, he sat up and looked at the sky and said: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding' [the verses]. Then he got up, performed ablution, used the siwa', and prayed eleven rak'ahs. Then Bilal called the adhan and prayed two rak'ahs, then he went out and led the people in the dawn prayer." Muslim narrated it in this way on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Ishaq al-San'ani, on the authority of Ibn Abi Maryam. Then Al-Bukhari narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Mukhrama bin Sulayman, on the authority of Kurayb, that Ibn Abbas informed him that he spent the night with Maymunah, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and she was his aunt. He said: "I lay down on the width of the pillow, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his family lay down on its length. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, slept until it was midnight, or a little before or after it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, woke up from his sleep and began to wipe the sleep from his face with his hand. Then he recited the last ten verses of Surat Al-Imran. Then he went to a hanging bag and performed ablution from it, and he performed his ablution well. Then he stood up to pray. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: So I got up and did as he did, then I went and stood beside him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, put his right hand on my head, and took hold of my right ear, twisting it. He prayed two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then he prayed the witr prayer. Then he lay down until..." The muezzin came to him, so he stood up and prayed two light rak'ahs, then he went out and prayed the dawn prayer." And the rest of the group narrated it in this way through various chains of transmission on the authority of Malik. Muslim also narrated it, and Abu Dawud narrated it through other chains of transmission on the authority of Mukhramah ibn Sulayman on his authority.

Another way for this hadith on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Ali told us, Abu Yahya bin Abi Masarra told us, Khallad bin Yahya told us, Yunus bin Abi Ishaq told us, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Ali bin Abdullah bin Abbas, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abbas, who said: Al-Abbas ordered me to spend the night with the family of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to preserve his prayers. He said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, led the people in the last 'Isha' prayer until there was no one left in the mosque except him. He stood up and passed by me and said: Who is this? 'Abdullah?' I said: Yes. He said: So who? I said: Al-Abbas ordered me to spend the night with you. He said: Then the truth, the truth. When he entered, he said: Did you spread out 'Abdullah? So a pillow of silk was brought. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, slept on it until I heard him snoring. Then he sat up on his bed. He said: He raised his head to the sky and said: Glory be to the King, the Holy, three times. Then he recited these verses from the end of Surat Al-Imran until he finished it." Muslim, Abu Dawud, and Al-Nasa'i also narrated a hadith on the authority of 'Ali ibn 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas on the authority of his father on the authority of his father on this matter as well.

Another way Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh from the hadith of Asim bin Bahdalah from some of his companions, from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, "That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out one night after the night had passed, and he looked at the sky and recited this verse: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding.' to the end of the surah, then he said: O God, place in my heart light, and in my hearing light, and in my sight light, and on my right light, and on my left light, and in front of me light, and behind me light, and above me light, and below me light, and make my light greater on the Day of Resurrection." This supplication is proven in some ways of the Sahih from the narration of Kurayb from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him. Then Ibn Mardawayh and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Ja'far bin Abi Al-Mughira from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: What signs did Moses bring to you? They said: His staff and his white hand are for the onlookers. And they came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus among you? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers and bring the dead back to life. So they came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Call upon your Lord to turn Safa into gold for us. So he called upon his Lord, the Mighty and Sublime, and the following verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding. He said: Let them ponder over them. This is the wording of Ibn Mardawayh. This hadeeth was mentioned earlier in the narration of al-Tabarani at the beginning of the verse. This necessitates that these verses were revealed in Makkah, but the well-known view is that they were revealed in Madinah. Its evidence is the other hadeeth. Ibn Mardawayh said: Isma'il ibn 'Ali ibn Isma'il told us, Ahmad ibn 'Ali al-Harrani told us, Shuja' ibn Ashras told us, Hashraj ibn Nabatah al-Waseeti Abu Makram told us on the authority of al-Kalbi, who is Abu Janab, on the authority of 'Ata' who said: I, Ibn 'Umar, and 'Ubaid ibn 'Umair went to 'Aa'ishah may God be pleased with her. We entered upon her and there was a veil between us and her. She said: O 'Ubaid, what prevents you from visiting us? He said: The poet said: Visit often and you will increase in love. Ibn Umar said: "Leave us and tell us about the most amazing thing you saw from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." She cried and said: "Everything about him was amazing. He came to me during my night until his skin touched my skin, then he said: 'Leave me to worship my Lord, the Almighty and Majestic.'" She said: "I said: By God, I love being close to you, and I love that you worship your Lord." So he went to the water skin and performed ablution, but did not pour much water. Then he stood up to pray and cried until his beard was wet, then he prostrated and cried until the ground was wet, then he lay on his side and cried until Bilal came to call him to the dawn prayer. She said: "He said: O Messenger of God, what makes you cry when God has forgiven you your sins, past and future?" He said: "Woe to you, Bilal! What prevents me from crying when it was revealed to me this night: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding.' " Then he said: Woe to the one who recites it and does not reflect on it. Abd ibn Humayd narrated it in his interpretation on the authority of Ja'far ibn 'Awn on the authority of Abu Janab Al-Kalbi narrated on the authority of 'Ata' who said: I, Abdullah bin Omar, and Ubaid bin Umair entered upon the Mother of the Believers Aisha, may God be pleased with her, while she was in her chamber. We greeted her and she said: Who are these? We said: This is Abdullah bin Omar and Ubaid bin Umair. She said: O Ubaid bin Umair, what prevents you from visiting us? He said: What did the first one say: Visit often and you will increase in love. She said: We love visiting you and having intercourse with you. Abdullah bin Omar said: Leave this idleness of yours, "Tell us about the most amazing thing you saw from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." She said: So she cried and then said: Everything about him was amazing. He came to me during my night until he entered my bed with me, until his skin stuck to my skin, then he said: O Aisha, give me permission to worship my Lord. She said: I love your closeness and I love your love. She said: So he went to a water skin in the house and poured water frequently, then he got up and recited the Qur'an, then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached his waist. She said: Then he sat and praised God and extolled Him, then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached his lap. She said: Then he leaned on his right side and put his hand under his cheek. She said: Then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached the ground. Bilal entered upon him and called him to the dawn prayer, then he said: The prayer, O Messenger of God. When Bilal saw him crying, he said: O Messenger of God, are you crying when God has forgiven you your past and future sins? He said: O Bilal, should I not be? A grateful servant? Why should I not cry when tonight the following verse was revealed to me: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding until His saying: Glory be to You! Save us from the punishment of the Fire. Then He said: Woe to the one who recites these verses and does not reflect upon them. This is how Abu Hatim Ibn Hibban narrated it in his Sahih on the authority of Imran Ibn Musa, on the authority of Uthman Ibn Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Yahya Ibn Zakariya, on the authority of Ibrahim Ibn Suwaid Al-Nakha'i, on the authority of Abdul Malik Ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of 'Ata', who said: I and Ubayd Ibn Umair entered upon Aisha and he mentioned something similar. This is how Abdullah Ibn Muhammad Ibn Abi Al-Dunya narrated it in the book Al-Tafkur wal-l'tibar on the authority of Shuja' Ibn Ashras. Then he said: Al-Hasan bin Abdul Aziz told me: I heard a chain of transmission on the authority of Sufyan, who is Al-Thawri, who traced it back to the Prophet, who said: Whoever recites the end of Al Imran and does not reflect on it, woe to him, counting ten on his fingers. Al-Hasan bin Abdul Aziz said: Ubayd bin Al-Sa'ib told me: It was said to Al-Awza'i: What is the limit of reflecting on them? He said: He recites them while understanding them. Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Qasim bin Hashim told me: Ali bin Ayyash told us: Abdul Rahman bin Sulayman told us: I asked Al-Awza'i about the minimum that a person who is attached to them can contemplate on them and what will save him from this woe? He lowered his head for a while, then said: He recites them while understanding them.

Surat Al Imran 3:193

Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, "Believe in your Lord," so we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and remit from us our misdeeds and cause us to die with the righteous.

Another hadith contains something strange. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahman bin Bashir bin Numayr told us, Ishaq bin Ibrahim al-Basti told us H and Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Hisham bin Ammar told us, Sulayman bin Musa al-Zuhri told us, Muzahir bin Aslam al-Makhzumi told us, Saeed bin Abi Saeed al-Maqburi told us on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite ten verses from the end of Surat Al Imran every night." Muzahir bin Aslam is weak.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 193- Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith. The caller according to most commentators is the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. It was said: It is the Qur'an. He attributed hearing to the caller even though what is heard is the call because he described the caller with what he hears, which is his saying: Calling to faith, that you believe. Abu Ali al-Farsi said: Indeed, he calls is the second object, and he mentioned calling even though it was understood from his saying calling for the purpose of emphasis and glorification of the matter of this one being called. The lam in his saying for faith means to, and it was said: Indeed, he calls is transitive with lam and to, it is said: he calls for such-and-such and he calls to such-and-such. It was said: The lam is for the reason: that is, for the sake of faith. His saying that you believe is either explanatory or a source, and its origin is that they believed, so the preposition was deleted. His saying, So we believed, meaning: We complied with what this caller commands of faith, so we believed. The repetition of the call in his saying, Our Lord, is to show supplication and submission. It was said that what is meant by sins here are major sins and by bad deeds are minor ones. It appears that neither word is specific to one of the two matters, and the other to the other, rather the meaning of sins and bad deeds is one, and the repetition is for emphasis and emphasis, just as the meaning of forgiveness and disbelief is covering. And the righteous is the plural of barr or berr, and its origin is from the word abrar, so it is as if the righteous is broad in his obedience to God and His mercy is broad for him. It was said that they are the prophets, and the meaning of the word is broader than that.

him. The righteous are the plural of barr or barr like arbab and ashab.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

193- Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller, meaning: Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as Ibn Masoud and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them, and most people said. Al-Qurazi said: It means the Qur'an, so not everyone meets the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, calling to faith, meaning to faith, "Believe in your Lord, so we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and remit from us our misdeeds and take us with the righteous," meaning: among the righteous.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

193 Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith. The verb was applied to the hearer and the heard was omitted because its description indicates it. There is exaggeration in it that is not in applying it to the hearer itself and in the indefiniteness of the caller and his release and then restricting it to magnify his status. What is meant by it is the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and it was said the Qur'an. The call and supplication and the like are transitive with ila and lam because they include the meaning of completion and specificity. That they believed in your Lord, so we believed. That is, that they believed and we complied. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins. Our major sins, for they are consequential. And remove from us our misdeeds. Our minor sins, for they are ugly, but they are expiated for the one who avoids major sins. And cause us to die with the righteous. We are distinguished by their company and counted in their group. It is a reminder that they love to meet God, and whoever loves to meet God, God loves to meet

Surat Al Imran 3:194

Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise.

Surat Al Imran 3:194

Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Our Lord, give us give us what You promised us (through) the tongues of Your messengers of mercy and grace, and their asking for that, even though His promise, the Most High, does not fail, is a request to make them among those who deserve it because they were not certain of their deserving it, and the repetition of Our Lord is an exaggeration in supplication (and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise) the promise of resurrection and reward.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say to us: What is the point of these people asking their Lord to give them what He promised them, when they know that God will fulfill His promise, and it is not permissible for Him to break an appointment?

It was said: The researchers differed on this.

Some of them said: This is a statement that came out of the context of the question, and its meaning is report. They said: The interpretation of the statement is: "Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, 'Believe in your Lord,' and we have believed. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins and remove from us our misdeeds and take us with the righteous," that You may give us what You promised us through Your messengers and not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. They said: This is not because they said: If You take us with the righteous, then fulfill for us what You promised us, because they have known that God does not break His promise, and that what He promised through His messengers is not given by supplication, but rather He favors us by initiating it and then fulfilling it.

Others said: Rather, this is a statement by one of its speakers in the sense of a question and a supplication for Him to make them among those to whom He has given what He promised them of honor through the tongues of His messengers, not that they had deserved a position of honor with God in themselves, then they asked Him to give them what He promised them after they knew that they deserved it in themselves, so that would be a question from them to their Lord not to break His promise. They said: If the people had only asked their Lord to give them what He promised the righteous, then they would have purified themselves and testified to themselves that they are among those who deserve God's honor and reward. They said: This is not a description of the virtuous believers.

Others said: Rather, they said this statement as a question and a desire from them to God that He would give them what He promised them of victory over their enemies from the people of disbelief, and triumph over them, and raise the word of truth over falsehood, so that He would make that for them. They said: It is impossible that the people, with God describing them with what He described them with, were not certain that God does not break His promise, so they would desire that from God, may He be glorified and praised, but they were promised victory, and He did not give them a time to hasten it for them, because in hastening it there is the joy of victory and comfort of the body.

Abu Ja'far said: What I think is the most correct of the sayings on this matter is that this description is the description of those who emigrated from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from their homeland and home, leaving the polytheists for God and His Messenger, and others from the followers of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who asked God to hasten their victory over the enemies of God and their enemies, so they said: Our Lord, give us what You promised us of Your victory over them soon, for You do not fail to fulfill Your promise, but we have no patience for Your patience and forbearance towards them, so hasten [for them] their disgrace, and for us victory over them.

The correctness of this is indicated by the last part of the other verse, which is His statement: "And their Lord responded to them, 'Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female. You are of one another. So those who emigrated or were expelled from their homes or were harmed in My cause or fought or were killed'" and the verses after it. This is not what those I have mentioned have said at all. This is because it does not exist in the speech of the Arabs to say: Do to us, O Lord, such and such, meaning: Do to us such and such. If that were permissible, then it would be permissible for a speaker to say to another: Come to me and speak to me, meaning: Come to me so that you may speak to me. This does not exist in speech, nor is its permissibility known.

Likewise, it is also not known in speech: Give us what you promised us, meaning: Make us among those to whom you gave that. And if everyone who was given something is a blessing, he has become similar to someone who was like him in the meaning that he was given. But that is not what is apparent from the meaning of the speech, because its meaning could be interpreted as such.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the statement, then: Our Lord, give us what You promised us through the tongues of Your messengers: that You will raise Your word, the word of truth, by supporting us against those who disbelieved in You, opposed You, and worshipped other than You, and hasten that for us, for we have known that You will not fail to fulfill Your promise, and will not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection, disgracing us for our past sins, but expiate them for us, and forgive us, and:

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, he said: God's promise to His messengers is fulfilled.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Thirteenth: The Almighty's saying: Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, meaning through the tongues of Your messengers, such as And ask the town (Yusuf 12:82). Al-A'mash and Al-Zuhri read your messengers with a light pronunciation, which is what was mentioned about the prophets and angels asking forgiveness for the believers, and the angels asking forgiveness for those on earth, and what was mentioned about Noah's supplication for the believers and the supplication of Abraham and the Prophet's asking forgiveness for his nation, and do not disgrace us, meaning do not punish us, do not destroy us, do not disgrace us, do not humiliate us, do not distance us, and do not hate us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise. If it is said: What is the reason for their saying, Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, and they know that He does not fail to fulfill His promise, then the answer is from three aspects:

First: God Almighty promised Paradise to those who believed, so they asked to be among those promised that without shame and punishment.

Second: They called upon this supplication as an act of worship and submission, and supplication is the essence of worship. This is like His saying: He said, 'My Lord, judge with justice' (Al-Anbiya': 122), even though He only judges with justice.

Third: They asked to be given what they were promised of victory over their enemy immediately, because it is a narration from the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so they asked him that to honor the religion, and God knows best. Anas bin Malik narrated that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever God Almighty promises a reward for a deed, He will fulfill it for him with mercy, and whoever He promises a punishment for a deed, He has the choice in it. The Arabs condemn breaking a promise and praise it in threatening, until one of them said:

My cousin does not fear my strength as long as I live, nor do I hide from fear of the threatening one.

Whenever I promise him or promise him, I will break my promise and fulfill my appointment.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Tabarani said: Al-Husayn ibn Ishaq Al-Tastari told us, Yahya Al-Hamami told us, Yaqub Al-Qummi told us on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi Al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: How did Moses come to you? They said: His staff and his hand were white for the onlookers. They came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers, and revive the dead. So they came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Ask God to make Safa gold for us. So he asked his Lord, and this verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding. So let them ponder over it. This is problematic, because this verse was revealed in Medina, and their question that Safa be gold was in Mecca, and God knows best. The meaning of the verse is that God Almighty says: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth meaning this in its height and breadth, and this in its lowness, density and lowliness, and what they contain of great visible signs of planets, fixed stars, seas, mountains, deserts, trees, plants, crops, fruits, animals and minerals, and benefits of different colors, scents, tastes and properties, and the alternation of the night and the day meaning their succession and their interchange of length and shortness, so sometimes one becomes long and the other short, then they become equal, then one takes from the other, and what was short becomes long and short. Which was long. And all of that is the estimation of the Almighty, the All-Knowing, and for this reason the Almighty said, Signs for those of understanding, meaning the complete, intelligent minds that perceive things in their true and obvious aspects, and they are not like the deaf and dumb who do not understand, about whom God said, "And how many a sign is there in the heavens and the earth which they pass by while they are turning away from it. And most of them do not believe in God except while they associate others with Him." Then the Almighty described those of understanding, saying, Those who remember God standing, sitting, and [lying] on their sides. As it was proven in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Imran bin Husain: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, 'Pray standing, and if you cannot, then sitting, and if you cannot, then on your side,'" meaning they do not stop mentioning Him in all their states in their secrets, consciences, and tongues, and they reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, meaning they understand what is in them of wisdom indicating the greatness of the Creator, His power, knowledge, wisdom, choice, and mercy. Sheikh Abu Sulayman Al-Darani said: I leave my house and my eyes do not fall on anything except that I see that God has blessed me with it and I have a lesson in it. Narrated by Ibn Abi Al-Dunya in the book of trust and consideration and on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri that he said: Thinking for an hour is better than standing all night. Al-Fudayl said: Al-Hasan said: Thinking is a mirror that shows you your good and bad deeds. Sufyan bin Uyaynah said: Thinking is a light that enters your heart and perhaps he would quote this verse:

Surat Al Imran 3:194

Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise.

If a person has an idea, then there is a lesson in everything.

It was narrated that Jesus, peace be upon him, said: Blessed is he whose speech is remembrance, whose silence is contemplation, and whose gaze is a lesson. Luqman the Wise said: Prolonged solitude inspires thought, and prolonged thought is evidence of knocking on the door of Paradise. Wahb ibn Munabbih said: No man's thought is prolonged without understanding, and no man has ever understood without knowledge, and no man has ever known without acting. Omar ibn Abdul Aziz said: Speaking in remembrance of God Almighty is good, and contemplating the blessings of God is the best form of worship. Mughis al-Aswad said: Visit the graves every day and contemplate, and see the situation with your hearts, and look at who will lead the two groups to Paradise or Hell, and let your hearts and bodies feel the remembrance of Hell, its whips and its chambers. He would cry at that until he was raised up dead from among his companions, his mind gone. Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak said: A man passed by a monk at a cemetery and a garbage dump, so he called out to him and said: O monk, you have two treasures from the treasures of this world in which you will learn: the treasure of men, and the treasure of money. On the authority of Ibn Omar: Whenever he wanted to examine his heart, he would go to a ruined place, stand at its door and call out in a sad voice, saying: Where are your people? Then he would return to himself and say: Everything will perish except His Face. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Two moderate rak'ahs of contemplation are better than standing all night while the heart is heedless. Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: O son of Adam, eat a third of your stomach, drink a third of it, and leave the other third to breathe for contemplation. Some of the wise men said: Whoever looks at the world without admiration, the sight of his heart will be obscured to the extent of that heedlessness. Bishr bin Al-Harith Al-Hafi said: If people contemplated the greatness of God Almighty, they would not disobey Him. Al-Hasan said on the authority of Amir bin Abdul Qais, he said: I heard more than one, two, or three of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The light of faith or the radiance of faith is contemplation. It was narrated on the authority of Jesus, peace be upon him, that he said: O weak son of Adam, fear God wherever you are, and be a guest in this world, and make the mosques your home, and teach your eyes to weep, your body to be patient, and your heart to think, and do not worry about tomorrow's provision. And on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Omar bin Abdul Aziz, may God be pleased with him, that he cried one day among his companions, and he was asked about that, so he said: I thought about the world, its pleasures and desires, and I learned from it, and its desires are almost gone until its bitterness clouds them, and if there is no lesson in it for those who learn, then there are sermons in it for those who remember. And Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Al-Hussein bin Abdul Rahman recited to me:

The believer's walk is the believer's pleasure is the lesson

We thank God alone, we are all in danger

There is a man who is distracted and his life has passed and he does not feel it

There is a life that was beyond desire, full of flowers

In the murmur of the eyes and the shade of the trees

And joy from the plant and goodness from the fruit

His jealousy and his family's speed of time with jealousy

We thank God alone, for in this there is a lesson.

Indeed in this is a lesson for the wise if he takes heed.

God the Almighty has condemned those who do not consider His creations that indicate His Essence, Attributes, Law, Power and Signs, saying: And how many are the signs in the heavens and the earth which they pass by while they are turning away from them? And most of them do not believe in God except while they associate others with Him. And He praised His believing servants, Those who remember God while standing, sitting, and [lying] on their sides, and reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth, saying: Our Lord, You did not create this in vain. That is, You did not create this creation in vain, but rather in truth, so that You may reward those who do evil for what they have done, and reward those who do good with goodness. Then He declared Him free from vainness and the creation of falsehood, saying: Glory be to You, that is, from creating anything in vain. Save us from the punishment of the Fire. That is, O He who created creation with truth and justice, O He who is free from deficiencies, faults and vainness. Save us from the punishment of the Fire by Your power and strength, and provide us with deeds that please You. And guide us to righteous deeds that will guide us to the Gardens of Bliss, and protect us from Your painful punishment. Then they said, Our Lord, whoever You admit to the Fire - You have disgraced him. That is, You have humiliated him and made his disgrace apparent to the people of the assembly. And for the wrongdoers there are no helpers. That is, on the Day of Resurrection, they will have no protector from You. Nor will they be able to escape from what You intended for them. Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller calling to faith, that is, a caller calling to faith, and he is the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace. Believe in your Lord, so we have believed. That is, he says, Believe in your Lord, so we have believed, that is, we responded to him and followed him, that is, with our faith and following of Your Prophet. Our Lord, so forgive us our sins, that is, cover them, and remove from us our misdeeds, between us and You, and cause us to die with the righteous, that is, join us with the righteous. Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, it was said: its meaning is through faith in Your messengers, and it was said: its meaning is through the tongues of Your messengers. This is more evident - and Imam Ahmad said: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Ismail bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Amr bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abu Uqal, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Asqalan is one of the two brides. God will raise from it on the Day of Resurrection seventy thousand who will not be held accountable, and He will raise from it fifty thousand martyrs who will come to God, and in it are rows of martyrs with their heads severed in their hands, their veins gushing with blood, saying, 'Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise.' God will say, 'My servants have spoken the truth. Wash them in the River of the Egg.' So they will emerge from it pure and white. They will roam in Paradise wherever they wish." This hadith is considered one of the strange hadiths in the Musnad, and some consider it fabricated, and God knows best. And do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection meaning in front of all creation, Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise meaning the promise that Your messengers informed us about must come, which is the standing before You on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Al-Harith bin Surayj told us, Al-Mu'tabar told us, Al-Fadl bin Isa told us, Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir told us that Jabir bin Abdullah told him that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shame and disgrace will reach the son of Adam on the Day of Resurrection in his standing before God Almighty to the extent that a servant would wish to be ordered to the Fire. A strange hadith. It has been proven that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite these ten verses from the end of Al Imran when he got up at night to perform the night prayer. Al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, said: Saeed bin Abi Maryam told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Sharik bin Abdullah bin Abi Namir told me on the authority of Kurayb, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: "I spent the night with my aunt Maymunah, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, talked with his family for an hour, then he went to sleep. When the last third of the night had passed, he sat up and looked at the sky and said: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding' [the verses]. Then he got up, performed ablution, used the siwa', and prayed eleven rak'ahs. Then Bilal called the adhan and prayed two rak'ahs, then he went out and led the people in the dawn prayer." Muslim narrated it in this way on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Ishaq al-San'ani, on the authority of Ibn Abi Maryam. Then Al-Bukhari narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Mukhrama bin Sulayman, on the authority of Kurayb, that Ibn Abbas informed him that he spent the night with Maymunah, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and she was his aunt. He said: "I lay down on the width of the pillow, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his family lay down on its length. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, slept until it was midnight, or a little before or after it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, woke up from his sleep and began to wipe the sleep from his face with his hand. Then he recited the last ten verses of Surat Al Imran. Then he went to a hanging bag and performed ablution from it, and he performed his ablution well. Then he stood up to pray. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: So I got up and did as he did, then I went and stood beside him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, put his right hand on my head, and took hold of my right ear, twisting it. He prayed two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then two rak'ahs, then he prayed the witr prayer. Then he lay down until..." The muezzin came to him, so he stood up and prayed two light rak'ahs, then he went out and prayed the dawn prayer." And the rest of the group narrated it in this way through various chains of transmission on the authority of Malik. Muslim also narrated it, and Abu Dawud narrated it through other chains of transmission on the authority of Mukhramah ibn Sulayman on his authority.

Another way for this hadith on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Ali told us, Abu Yahya bin Abi Masarra told us, Khallad bin Yahya told us, Yunus bin Abi Ishaq told us, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Ali bin Abdullah bin Abbas, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abbas, who said: Al-Abbas ordered me to spend the night with the family of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to preserve his prayers. He said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, led the people in the last 'Isha' prayer until there was no one left in the mosque except him. He stood up and passed by me and said: Who is this? 'Abdullah?' I said: Yes. He said: So who? I said: Al-Abbas ordered me to spend the night with you. He said: Then the truth, the truth. When he entered, he said: Did you spread out 'Abdullah? So a pillow of silk was brought. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, slept on it until I heard him snoring. Then he sat up on his bed. He said: He raised his head to the sky and said: Glory be to the King, the Holy, three times. Then he recited these verses from the end of Surat Al-Imran until he finished it." Muslim, Abu Dawud, and Al-Nasa'i also narrated a hadith on the authority of 'Ali ibn 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas on the authority of his father on the authority of his father on this matter as well.

Another way Narrated by Ibn Mardawayh from the hadith of Asim bin Bahdalah from some of his companions, from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, "That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out one night after the night had passed, and he looked at the sky and recited this verse: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding.' to the end of the surah, then he said: O God, place in my heart light, and in my hearing light, and in my sight light, and on my right light, and on my left light, and in front of me light, and behind me light, and above me light, and below me light, and make my light greater on the Day of Resurrection." This supplication is proven in some ways of the Sahih from the narration of Kurayb from

Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him. Then Ibn Mardawayh and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the hadith of Ja'far bin Abi Al-Mughira from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, who said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: What signs did Moses bring to you? They said: His staff and his white hand are for the onlookers. And they came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus among you? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers and bring the dead back to life. So they came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Call upon your Lord to turn Safa into gold for us. So he called upon his Lord, the Mighty and Sublime, and the following verse was revealed: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding. He said: Let them ponder over them. This is the wording of Ibn Mardawayh. This hadeeth was mentioned earlier in the narration of al-Tabarani at the beginning of the verse. This necessitates that these verses were revealed in Makkah, but the well-known view is that they were revealed in Madinah. Its evidence is the other hadeeth. Ibn Mardawayh said: Isma'il ibn 'Ali ibn Isma'il told us, Ahmad ibn 'Ali al-Harrani told us, Shuja' ibn Ashras told us, Hashraj ibn Nabatah al-Waseeti Abu Makram told us on the authority of al-Kalbi, who is Abu Janab, on the authority of 'Ata' who said: I, Ibn 'Umar, and 'Ubaid ibn 'Umair went to 'Aa'ishah may God be pleased with her. We entered upon her and there was a veil between us and her. She said: O 'Ubaid, what prevents you from visiting us? He said: The poet said: Visit often and you will increase in love. Ibn Umar said: "Leave us and tell us about the most amazing thing you saw from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." She cried and said: "Everything about him was amazing. He came to me during my night until his skin touched my skin, then he said: 'Leave me to worship my Lord, the Almighty and Majestic.'" She said: "I said: By God, I love being close to you, and I love that you worship your Lord." So he went to the water skin and performed ablution, but did not pour much water. Then he stood up to pray and cried until his beard was wet, then he prostrated and cried until the ground was wet, then he lay on his side and cried until Bilal came to call him to the dawn prayer. She said: "He said: O Messenger of God, what makes you cry when God has forgiven you your sins, past and future?" He said: "Woe to you, Bilal! What prevents me from crying when it was revealed to me this night: 'Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding.' " Then he said: Woe to the one who recites it and does not reflect on it. Abd ibn Humayd narrated it in his interpretation on the authority of Ja'far ibn 'Awn on the authority of Abu Janab Al-Kalbi narrated on the authority of 'Ata' who said: I, Abdullah bin Omar, and Ubaid bin Umair entered upon the Mother of the Believers Aisha, may God be pleased with her, while she was in her chamber. We greeted her and she said: Who are these? We said: This is Abdullah bin Omar and Ubaid bin Umair. She said: O Ubaid bin Umair, what prevents you from visiting us? He said: What did the first one say: Visit often and you will increase in love. She said: We love visiting you and having intercourse with you. Abdullah bin Omar said: Leave this idleness of yours, "Tell us about the most amazing thing you saw from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." She said: So she cried and then said: Everything about him was amazing. He came to me during my night until he entered my bed with me, until his skin stuck to my skin, then he said: O Aisha, give me permission to worship my Lord. She said: I love your closeness and I love your love. She said: So he went to a water skin in the house and poured water frequently, then he got up and recited the Qur'an, then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached his waist. She said: Then he sat and praised God and extolled Him, then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached his lap. She said: Then he leaned on his right side and put his hand under his cheek. She said: Then he cried until I saw that his tears had reached the ground. Bilal entered upon him and called him to the dawn prayer, then he said: The prayer, O Messenger of God. When Bilal saw him crying, he said: O Messenger of God, are you crying when God has forgiven you your past and future sins? He said: O Bilal, should I not be? A grateful servant? Why should I not cry when tonight the following verse was revealed to me: Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day are signs for those of understanding until His saying: Glory be to You! Save us from the punishment of the Fire. Then He said: Woe to the one who recites these verses and does not reflect upon them. This is how Abu Hatim Ibn Hibban narrated it in his Sahih on the authority of Imran Ibn Musa, on the authority of Uthman Ibn Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Yahya Ibn Zakariya, on the authority of Ibrahim Ibn Suwaid Al-Nakha'i, on the authority of Abdul Malik Ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of 'Ata', who said: I and Ubayd Ibn Umair entered upon Aisha and he mentioned something similar. This is how Abdullah Ibn Muhammad Ibn Abi Al-Dunya narrated it in the book Al-Tafkur wal-l'tibar on the authority of Shuja' Ibn Ashras. Then he said: Al-Hasan bin Abdul Aziz told me: I heard a chain of transmission on the authority of Sufyan, who is Al-Thawri, who traced it back to the Prophet, who said: Whoever recites the end of Al Imran and does not reflect on it, woe to him, counting ten on his fingers. Al-Hasan bin Abdul Aziz said: Ubayd bin Al-Sa'ib told me: It was said to Al-Awza'i: What is the limit of reflecting on them? He said: He recites them while understanding them. Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Qasim bin Hashim told me: Ali bin Ayyash told us: Abdul Rahman bin Sulayman told us: I asked Al-Awza'i about the minimum that a person who is attached to them can contemplate on them and what will save him from this woe? He lowered his head for a while, then said: He recites them while understanding them.

Another hadith contains something strange. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahman bin Bashir bin Numayr told us, Ishaq bin Ibrahim al-Basti told us H and Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Hisham bin Ammar told us, Sulayman bin Musa al-Zuhri told us, Muzahir bin Aslam al-Makhzumi told us, Saeed bin Abi Saeed al-Maqburi told us on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite ten verses from the end of Surat Al Imran every night." Muzahir bin Aslam is weak.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 194- Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers. This is another supplication, and the point of repeating the call is what came before, and what was promised on the tongues of the messengers is the reward that God promised to those who obey Him, so there is an omission in the speech, which is the wording of the tongues, like His saying, And ask the town. It was said: What was omitted is the confirmation: that is, what You promised us for believing in Your messengers. It was said: what You promised us was revealed to Your messengers, or attributed to Your messengers, and the first is more appropriate. And the issuance of this supplication from them while they knew that what God promised them through the tongues of His messengers would inevitably happen, either with the intention of hastening or to submit to the supplication because it is the core of worship. And in their saying, Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise, is evidence that they did not fear breaking the promise, and that what motivated them to supplicate was what we mentioned.

Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The Quraysh came to the Jews and said: What signs did Moses bring to you? They said: His staff and his hand are white to the onlookers. They came to the Christians and said: How was Jesus among you? They said: He used to heal the blind and the lepers and bring the dead back to life. So they came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Call upon your Lord to make al-Safa gold for us. So he called upon his Lord, and the verse Indeed, in the creation of the heavens and the earth was revealed. It is proven in the two Sahih and others on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: I spent the night with my aunt Maymuna and the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) slept until midnight or a little before or a little after. Then he woke up and began to wipe the sleep from his face with his hands, then he recited the last ten verses of Surat Al-Imran until he finished. Abdullah bin Ahmad narrated in Zawa'id al-Musnad, and al-Tabarani and al-Hakim in al-Kuna, and al-Baghawi in Mu'jam al-Sahaba on the authority of Safwan bin al-Mu'attal who said: I was with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a journey and he mentioned something similar. Ibn Abi Hatim and al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Juwaybir on the authority of al-Dahhak on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud regarding the statement of God, Those who remember God standing, sitting, and lying on their sides 2:133, he said: This is only in prayer. If he is unable to stand, then he should sit, and if he is unable to sit, then he should lie on his side. It was proven in al-Bukhari from the hadith of Imran bin Husayn who said: "I had hemorrhoids, so I asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about prayer. He said: Pray standing, and if you are unable to, then sitting, and if you are unable to, then on your side." It was also proven in it from him that he said: "I asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the prayer of a man while sitting, and he said: Whoever prays standing is better, and whoever prays sitting has half the reward of the one who stands, and whoever prays sleeping has half the reward of the one who sits." Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding the verse, saying: These are all your states, O son of Adam. Remember God while you are standing. If you are unable to do so, then remember Him while sitting. If you are unable to do so, then remember Him while you are on your side. This is ease and relief from God.

I say that this restriction that he mentioned about not being able to do so while generalizing the remembrance has no basis in the verse or anything else, because there is nothing in the Book or the Sunnah that indicates that it is not permissible to do remembrance while sitting except when one is not able to do remembrance while standing, and it is not permissible while sitting except when one is not able to do so. This restriction is only suitable for those who consider what is meant by remembrance here to be prayer, as previously mentioned from Ibn Masoud. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Hibban in his Sahih, and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Aisha, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Woe to he who recites this verse and does not reflect on it. Ibn Abi al-Dunya narrated in At-Tafakkur, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, narrated on the authority of Sufyan, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Whoever recites the last verse of Surat Al-Imran and does not reflect on it, woe to him. So he counted his fingers ten times. It was said to Al-Awza'i: What is the purpose of reflecting on them? He said: He should recite them while understanding them. There are hadiths and reports from the Salaf about the desirability of reflecting in general. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Anas regarding his statement, Whoever enters the Fire, I have disgraced him, he said: Whoever is immortal. Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Saeed ibn al-Musayyab regarding the verse, saying: This is a dispute with those who do not come out of it. Ibn Jarir and al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, who said: Jabir ibn Abdullah came to us during Umrah, so Ata and I went to him and said: And they will not come out of the Fire. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed me that they are the disbelievers. I said to Jabir: So his statement, Indeed, whoever you admit to the Fire, you have disgraced him, he said: And he did not disgrace him when I burned him with fire, and there is less disgrace than that. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding his statement, A caller calling to faith, he said: He is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Zayd. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi, who said: It is the Qur'an, not everyone who heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding his statement, Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, that they were fulfilling the promise of God through His messengers. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection, that they were fulfilling the promise of God through His messengers.

Surat Al Imran 3:194

Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise.

it requires. Indeed, You do not fail to fulfill Your promise by rewarding the believer and answering the caller. And from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both: The promise is the resurrection after death. And repeating Our Lord is to exaggerate the supplication and to indicate the independence of the demands and their high status. And in the narrations, from his party, a command was made, so he said five times, Our Lord, may God save him from what he fears.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

194- Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, that is, through the tongues of Your messengers, and do not disgrace us, do not punish us, do not destroy us, do not disgrace us, "on the Day of Resurrection. Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise."

If it is said: What is the meaning of their saying: Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers, when they know that God does not break His promise? It is said: Its wording is a supplication but its meaning is report, i.e., to give us what You promised us through Your messengers, meaning: So forgive us our sins and cover our misdeeds from us "and do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection" to give us what You promised us through Your messengers of grace and mercy. It is said: Its meaning is, Our Lord, make us among those who deserve Your reward and give them what You promised them through the tongues of Your messengers, because they were not certain that they deserved that honor, so they asked Him to make them worthy of it. It is said: They only asked Him to hasten what He promised them of victory over the enemies. They said: We know that You do not break Your promise, but we have no patience for Your patience, so hasten their disgrace and grant us victory over them.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

194 Our Lord, and give us what You promised us through Your messengers meaning what You promised us for believing in Your messengers of reward. When he showed his compliance with what he was commanded to do, he asked for what he was promised, not out of fear of breaking the promise, but out of fear that he would not be among those promised due to a bad outcome, or a shortcoming in compliance, or out of worship and submission. It is permissible to attach it to something omitted, meaning: what You promised us was sent down to Your messengers, or carried on them. It was said that its meaning is on the tongues of Your messengers. And do not disgrace us on the Day of Resurrection by protecting us from what

Surat Al Imran 3:195

So their Lord responded to them, "Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female. You are of one another. So those who emigrated, were expelled from their homes and were harmed in My cause, and fought and were killed - I will surely remove from them their misdeeds, and I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward." From God, and with God is the best reward.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

So their Lord answered them their prayer that I that is, that I do not waste the work of any worker among you, whether male or female, some of you being from others that is, males from females and vice versa, and the sentence confirms what came before it, that is, they are equal in reward for deeds and not wasting them, it was revealed when Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, I do not hear women mentioned in migration at all So those who emigrated from Mecca to Medina and were expelled from their homes and harmed in My cause My religion and fought the infidels and were killed with the lightening and emphasis, and in a reading it is presented I will surely remove from them their misdeeds I will cover them with forgiveness and I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward a source of meaning of I will remove from the word confirming it from God in it is a shift from speaking and God has with Him the best reward the recompense

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: So He answered them, the verse. Abd al-Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour, al-Tirmidhi, al-Hakim, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Umm Salamah that she said: O Messenger of God, I do not hear God mentioning women in the migration at all. So God revealed: So their Lord answered them: I will not waste the work of any worker among you, whether male or female, until the end of the verse.

The Almighty said: And among the People of the Book is he who believes in God. Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Anas that when the report of the death of the Negus came, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Pray for him. They said: O Messenger of God, should we pray for an Ethiopian slave? So God revealed: And among the People of the Book is he who believes in God. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Jabir, and in Al-Mustadrak on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr, he said: "It was revealed about the Negus: And among the People of the Book is he who believes in God."

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: He, the Most High, meant: So these supplicants answered - with what he described of their supplications that they supplicated with - their Lord: That I will not waste the work of any worker among you who does good, whether the worker is male or female.

It was mentioned that it was said to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: Why are men mentioned while women are not mentioned in the migration? So God Almighty revealed this verse about that.

Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, Muammil told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, are the men mentioned in the migration and we are not? Then this verse was revealed: Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female, the verse.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, he said: I heard a man from the descendants of Umm Salamah, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, I do not hear God mentioning women in the migration at all? So God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: And their Lord responded to them, 'Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female.'

Al-Rabi' bin Sulayman told us, Asad bin Musa told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of a man from the descendants of Umm Salamah, on the authority of Umm Salamah: She said: O Messenger of God, do I not hear God mentioning women in the migration at all? So God Almighty revealed: "And their Lord responded to them, 'Never will I allow to be lost the work of a worker among you, whether male or female. You are of one another.'"

It was said: He responded to them, meaning: He answered them, as the poet said:

Farewell supplication: O you who respond to the generosity, but no one responds to you at that time

Meaning: No one answered him at that time.

The word min was inserted in his statement: of a male or female as a translation and explanation of his statement: of you, meaning: I will not waste the work of any worker among you, of males and females. This min is not one that can be dropped and deleted from speech in denial, because it was inserted with a meaning without which speech is not valid.

Some Basra grammarians claimed that it was used in this position as it was used in their saying: There was a hadith. He said: "And 'min' here is better, because the prohibition was used in his saying: "I will not waste."

Some grammarians of Kufa denied this and said: Min is not used or excluded except in the place of denial. He said: His statement: I will not waste the work of any worker among you, did not reach denial, because you do not say: I will not beat a man's slave in the house or in the home, so you enter nor, because denial did not reach it, but amn is an explanatory word.

As for his saying: Some of you are from others, he means: Some of you - O believers who remember God standing, sitting, and lying on their sides - are from others, in support, faith, and religion. The rule of all of you regarding what I will do to you is like the rule of one of you, in that I will not waste the work of any male or female among you.

Surat Al Imran 3:195

So their Lord responded to them, "Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female. You are of one another. So those who emigrated, were expelled from their homes and were harmed in My cause, and fought and were killed - I will surely remove from them their misdeeds, and I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward." From God, and with God is the best reward.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And those who emigrated their people from the people of disbelief and their clan for the sake of God, to their brothers from the people of faith in God and belief in His Messenger, and were expelled from their homes, and they are the emigrants whom the polytheists of Quraysh expelled from their homes in Mecca, and were harmed in My cause, meaning: and were harmed in their obedience to their Lord, and their worship of Him, sincerely devoting their religion to Him, and that is the cause of God in which the polytheists from the people of Mecca harmed the believers in the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from its people, and fought, meaning: and fought in the cause of God, and were killed, in it, I will surely remove from them their misdeeds, meaning: I will erase them from them, and I will favor them with My pardon and mercy, and I will forgive them, and I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward, meaning: a reward for them for what they did and excelled in the cause of God and in His cause, from God, meaning: from God before them. And God has the best reward, meaning: God has the reward for all their deeds, and that is something that no describer can describe, because it is something that no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no human heart has conceived, such as:

Abdul Rahman bin Wahb narrated to us, he said: My uncle Abdullah bin Wahb narrated to us, he said: Amr bin Al-Harith narrated to me: Abu Ashana Al-Ma'afari narrated to him: He heard Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-'As say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The first group to enter Paradise will be the poor emigrants who are protected from hardships. If they are commanded, they listen and obey. If a man among them has a need from the ruler, it will not be fulfilled until he dies with it in his chest. And God will call Paradise on the Day of Resurrection, and it will come with its adornments and decorations. He will say: Where are My servants who fought in My cause and were killed, and were harmed in My cause, and struggled in My cause? Enter Paradise. So they will enter it without punishment or reckoning. The angels will come and prostrate and say: Our Lord, we glorify You night and day, and we sanctify You. Who are these whom You have preferred over us? The Lord, may His praise be glorified, will say: These are My servants who fought in My cause and were harmed in My cause. Then the angels will enter upon them from every gate: "Peace be upon you for what you patiently endured. And excellent is the final home." (Al-Ra'd: 24)

Abu Jaafar said: There are different readings of the verse: And they fought and were killed.

Some of them read it: And they killed and they killed with a light pronunciation, meaning: they killed whoever they killed of the polytheists.

Others read it as: And they fought and killed with emphasis on they killed, meaning: they fought the polytheists and the polytheists killed them, one after the other, and one killing after another.

The majority of the readers of Medina and some of the Kufians read it as: And they fought and killed with a light pronunciation, meaning: they fought the polytheists and killed.

The majority of the Kufians read it as: and they killed with a light pronunciation. and they fought, meaning: some of them were killed, and those who remained fought.

Abu Ja'far said: The reading that I do not find it permissible to count is one of these two readings, which is: Wa qatalu wa qatalu with a light pronunciation, or Wa qatalu with a light pronunciation and Wa qatalu, because it is the reading that was transmitted by inheritance, and anything other than them is irregular. And whichever of these two readings that I mentioned that I do not find it permissible to count, a reader recites, then he is correct in that reading, because the reading of each one of them is widespread in the recitation of Islam, with the agreement of their meanings.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Fourteenth: The Almighty said: Then their Lord responded to them meaning He answered them. Al-Hasan said: They kept saying, Our Lord, our Lord, and Ja'far al-Sadiq said: Whoever is afflicted by a matter and says five times, Our Lord, God will save him from what he fears and give him what he wants. It was said: How is that? He said: Read, if you wish, Those who remember God while standing, sitting, and lying on their sides, to His saying, Indeed, You do not fail in Your promise.

Fifteenth: The Almighty's saying: / meaning that I, and Isa bin Omar read / with a kasra on the hamza, meaning he said: I.

Al-Hakim Abu Abdullah narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Umm Salamah that she said: O Messenger of God, did I not hear God mention women in the migration with something? So God revealed: And their Lord responded to them, 'Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female.' At-Tirmidhi narrated it. The word min was used for emphasis because before it was a letter of negation. The Kufians said: It is for explanation and it is not permissible to delete it because it was used for a meaning that the speech is not suitable without. It is only deleted if it is to emphasize denial. Some of you are from others is a subject and predicate, meaning your religion is one. It was said: Some of you are from others in reward, rulings, victory and the like.

Ad-Dahhak said: Your men are like your women in obedience, and your women are like your men in obedience. Similar to this is the statement of God the Almighty: And the believing men and believing women are allies of one another (al-Tawbah 9:71). It is also said: So-and-so is from me, meaning he follows my school of thought and my character.

Sixteenth: The Almighty's saying: And those who emigrated is a subject and predicate, meaning they left their homelands and traveled to Medina, and were expelled from their homes in obedience to God Almighty, and fought meaning they fought My enemies, and were killed meaning in My way. Ibn Kathir and Ibn Amir read: and fought and were killed for emphasis, and Al-A'mash read and were killed and were killed because the waw does not indicate that the second comes after the first. It was said: In the speech there is an omission of qad, meaning they killed and they fought, and from it is the saying of the poet:

I became a child and became old

That is, he was overcome by arrogance. It was also said: that is, he fought those who remained of them. The Arabs say: We killed Banu Tamim, but only some of them were killed. Imru' al-Qais said:

If you kill us, we will kill you

Omar bin Abdul Aziz read: and they killed and they were killed lightly without an alif, I will surely cover up their misdeeds for them meaning I will cover them up for them in the Hereafter, so I will not rebuke them for them or punish them for them, a reward from God is a confirmed source according to the Basrans, because the meaning of and I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow is to reward them with a reward, Al-Kisa'i: it is in the accusative case for the cut, Al-Farra': on the interpretation, and God has with Him the best reward meaning the best recompense, which is what returns to the worker as a result of his work, from thaba yathub.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says: So their Lord answered them, meaning their Lord answered them, as the poet said:

Farewell supplication: O you who respond to the generosity, but no one responds to you at that time

Saeed bin Mansour said: Sufyan told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Salamah, a man from the family of Umm Salamah, who said: Umm Salamah said: "O Messenger of God, we do not hear God mentioning women in the migration at all. So God Almighty revealed: 'And their Lord responded to them, "Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female," to the end of the verse.' The Ansar said: She was the first woman to come to us. Al-Hakim narrated it in his

Mustadrak on the authority of Sufyan bin Uyaynah. Then he said: It is authentic according to the conditions of Al-Bukhari, and they did not include it. Ibn Abi Nujayh narrated on the authority of Mujahid on the authority of Umm Salamah who said: The last verse to be revealed was this verse: "So their Lord responded to them, 'Never will I allow to be lost the work of a worker among you, whether male or female. You are of one another,'" to the end of it. It was narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. The meaning of the verse is that when the believers with understanding asked what they asked of what was mentioned above, their Lord responded to them after that with the letter fa' of consequence, as God the Almighty said: "And when My servants ask you concerning Me - indeed I am near. I respond to the invocation of the supplicant when he calls upon Me. So let them respond to Me and believe in Me that they may be guided." And the Almighty's saying: Never will I allow to be lost the work of a worker among you, whether male or female, this is an explanation of the answer, meaning He said to them, responding to them, that He does not allow the work of a worker with Him to be lost, rather He will repay every worker according to his share of work, whether male or female. And His saying, Some of you are of one another, means that all of you are equal in My reward. So those who emigrated, meaning that they left the abode of polytheism and came to the abode of faith and departed. Beloved ones, brothers, friends and neighbors, and they were expelled from their homes meaning the polytheists harassed them with harm until they forced them to leave their midst. That is why He said, and they were harmed in My cause meaning their sin towards the people was that they believed in God alone, as God Almighty said: They expel the Messenger and you because you believe in God your Lord and God Almighty said: And they resented them only because they believed in God, the Almighty, the Praiseworthy and God Almighty said: And they fought and were killed and this is the highest station, to fight in the cause of God and have his horse hamstrung and his face covered with his blood and dust. It is proven in the two Sahihs that a man said: O Messenger of God, tell me if I am killed in the cause of God, patiently, seeking reward, facing the enemy and not retreating, will God forgive my sins? He said: Yes. Then he said: How did you say it? So he repeated what he had said to him, and he said: Yes, except for the debt. Gabriel told me that just now. That is why God Almighty said: I will surely remove from them their misdeeds and admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow. That is, rivers of various kinds of drinks will flow through them, such as milk, honey, wine, and non-stagnant water, and other things that no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no human heart has conceived. And His saying, a reward from God, He attributed it to Him and related it to Him to indicate that it is great, because the Great and Generous One gives nothing but abundantly, as the poet said:

If he tortures, it is out of love, and if he gives generously, he does not care.

And the Almighty said: And with God is the best reward meaning with Him is the best reward for whoever does good deeds. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was mentioned on the authority of Duhaime bin Ibrahim that Al-Walid bin Muslim said: Hariz bin Othman informed me that Shiddad bin Aws used to say: O people, do not accuse God in His judgment, for He does not wrong a believer. So if something that he likes is sent down to one of you, then let him praise God, and if something that he dislikes is sent down to him, then let him be patient and seek reward, for God has the best reward.

Surat Al Imran 3:195

So their Lord responded to them, "Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female. You are of one another. So those who emigrated, were expelled from their homes and were harmed in My cause, and fought and were killed - I will surely remove from them their misdeeds, and I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward." From God, and with God is the best reward.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 195- So He responded. Response means answer. It was said that answer is general, and response is specific to giving to the one asked. This verb is transitive by itself and by the preposition lam. It is said: He responded to him, and He responded to him. The fa is for conjunction. It was said that it is understood: that is, they called with these supplications, so He responded to them. It was said that it is based on His saying: and they reflect. Rather, the Almighty mentioned the response and what comes after it in the group of what they have of good descriptions because it is from Him, since whoever's supplication is answered, his status is raised. His saying that I do not waste the work of a worker among you means that I, and Isa bin Amr read with the kasra of the hamza based on the estimation of the saying, and my father read with the presence of the ba and it is for causality: that is, so their Lord responded to them because He does not waste the work of a worker among them. What is meant by waste is the omission of reward. His saying of male or female is explanatory and confirms what the indefinite noun in the context of negation requires of generality. His saying, Some of you are from others, meaning: Your men are like your women in obedience and your women are like your men in it. The sentence is parenthetical to explain that each of them is from the other in consideration of their branching out from one origin. His saying, And those who emigrated, the verse, this sentence includes a detail of what was summarized in His saying, I will not waste the work of a worker, meaning: Those who emigrated from their homelands to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and were expelled from their homes, in obedience to God Almighty, and fought, the enemies of God, and were killed, in the way of God. Ibn Kathir and Ibn Amir read and were killed for emphasis, and Al-A' mash, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read and were killed and were killed, which is like the saying of the poet:

I became a child and became old

Meaning: He was overcome by arrogance. The root of the absolute waw is the collection without order, as the majority said. What is meant here is: that they fought and some of them were killed, as Imru' al-Qais said:

If you kill us, we will kill you

Omar bin Abdul Aziz read: They were killed and They were killed. The meaning of his statement And they were harmed in My path is because of it. The path is the true religion. What is meant here is: the harm that befell them from the polytheists because of their belief in God and their actions according to what God has prescribed for His servants. His statement I will surely disbelieve is the answer to an omitted oath. His statement A reward from God is a confirmed source according to the Basrans, because the meaning of his statement I will surely admit them to gardens is I will surely reward them with a reward meaning a reward or recompense from God. Al-Kisa'i said: It is in the accusative case as a state. Al-Farra' said: According to the interpretation: And God has the best reward meaning the best recompense, which is what the worker gets as a reward for his work from the root word thaba, meaning returned.

Saeed bin Mansour, Abdul Razzaq, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Tabarani and Al-Hakim narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Umm Salamah who said: O Messenger of God, I do not hear God mentioning women in migration at all, so God revealed: So He answered them to the end of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ata' who said: There is no servant who says: O Lord, O Lord, O Lord three times except that God looks at him, so he mentioned it to Al-Hasan and said: Do you not read the Quran? Our Lord, indeed we have heard a caller to His saying: So their Lord answered them. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Umm Salamah who said: The last verse to be revealed was this verse: So their Lord answered them to the end. Many hadiths have been narrated about the virtue of migration.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

195- The Almighty said: "Their Lord responded to them, 'I will not waste', 'I will not nullify', 'the work of any worker among you', O believers, whether male or female.' Mujahid said: Umm Salamah said, 'O Messenger of God, I hear God mentioning men in migration but not women.' So God Almighty revealed this verse, 'Some of you are from others.' Al-Kalbi said: In religion, support, and loyalty. It was said: All of you are from Adam and Eve. Ad-Dahhak said: Your men are like your women and your women are like your men in obedience, as He said: 'And the believing men and believing women are allies of one another.'" (al-Tawbah 9:71)

And those who emigrated and were expelled from their homes and were harmed in My cause, meaning: in My obedience and religion, and they are the emigrants whom the polytheists expelled from Mecca, and fought and were killed, Ibn 'Amir and Ibn Kathir read they were killed, with emphasis. Al-Hasan said: It means that they were cut off in battle, and the others with emphasis. Most of the reciters read: and they fought and were killed, meaning that they fought the enemy and then were killed. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read and they fought and were killed, and it has two meanings. One of them means that whoever remained of them fought, and the meaning of his statement and they were killed is that some of them were killed. The Arabs say, We killed the sons of so-and-so, but they only killed some of them. The other meaning is and they were killed, and they fought. I will surely remove from them their misdeeds and admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, a reward from God, in the accusative case, Al-Kisa'i said. Al-Mubarrad said: It is a source, meaning: I will reward them with a reward, and God has with Him the best reward.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

195 So their Lord responded to them to their request, and He is the most specific of those who respond and it is transitive with itself and with the lam. I will not waste the work of a worker among you meaning that I will not waste. It is read with the kasra to mean saying. Whether male or female is a statement of the worker. Some of you are from others because the male is from the female and the female is from the male, or because they are from one origin, or because of the great connection and union, or because of the meeting and agreement in religion. It is an intervening clause that explains the partnership of women with men in what He promised to the workers. It was narrated that "Umm Salamah, may God be pleased with her, said: O Messenger of God, I hear God mentioning men in migration but not mentioning women, so it was revealed." Those who migrated etc., and a detailing of the workers' deeds and what was prepared for them of reward by way of praise and glorification, and the meaning is those who migrated from polytheism or homelands and tribes for the sake of religion. And were expelled from their homes and harmed in My cause because of their belief in God and for His sake and fought the infidels. And they were killed in jihad. Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read it the other way around because the waw does not require order, and the second is better. Or because what is meant is that when some of them were killed, the rest fought and were not weakened. Ibn Kathir and Ibn 'Amir stressed they were killed for emphasis. I will surely remove from them their misdeeds I will erase them. And I will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward from God meaning I will reward them for that with a reward from God as a favor from Him, so it is a confirmed source. And God has the best reward for acts of obedience, He is able to do it.

Surat Al Imran 3:196

Let not the free movement of those who disbelieve in the land deceive you.

Surat Al Imran 3:196

Let not the free movement of those who disbelieve in the land deceive you.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed when the Muslims said: The enemies of God are in what we see of goodness while we are in hardship: Do not be deceived by the change of those who disbelieve their behavior in the land through trade and earnings.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And do not be deceived O Muhammad, by the movement of those who disbelieve throughout the lands, meaning: their movement throughout the land and their striking therein, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Do not be deceived by the movement of those who disbelieve throughout the land, meaning: their striking throughout the land.

God the Almighty forbade His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from being deceived by their being beaten in the land and God's respite for them, despite their polytheism, their ingratitude for His blessings, and their worship of other than Him. This address was directed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but what was meant by it were others among his followers and companions, as we have previously explained regarding God's command. However, he was proclaiming God's command and calling to the truth.

Qatada said something similar to what we said about that.

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: Do not be deceived by the instability of those who disbelieve in the land, and by God they did not deceive the Prophet of God, nor did he entrust them with anything of God's command until God took him while he was doing that.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Seventeenth: The Almighty's saying: Let not the movement of those who disbelieve throughout the land deceive you. It was said that the address was to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what was meant was the nation. It was also said that it was for everyone, because the Muslims said: These disbelievers have trade, wealth, and unrest in the land, and we have perished from hunger. So this verse was revealed, meaning, let not their safety deceive you because of their movement throughout their travels. A little enjoyment, meaning their movement is a little enjoyment. Ya'qub read yughirnak with a silent nun, and he recited:

Don't be fooled by a quiet dinner that may bring about death at dawn

Similar to this verse is the saying of God Almighty: So let not their moving about in the lands deceive you (Ghafir 40:4). Enjoyment is that which is quickly benefited from. He called it little because it is fleeting, and everything that is fleeting, even if it is much, is little. In Sahih al-Tirmidhi, "On the authority of al-Mustawrid al-Fihri, he said: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The world in comparison to the Hereafter is like what one of you puts his finger in the sea, so let him see what he brings back with." It was said: It is brought back with the letter ya and the letter tar.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Do not look at the luxury, bliss and joy that these disbelievers enjoy, for soon all of this will be removed from them and they will become hostages to their evil deeds. We only extend to them what they are in as a lure, and all that they are in is a brief enjoyment, then their refuge is Hell, and an evil resting place it is. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: None disputes about the verses of God except those who disbelieve, so do not be deceived by their moving about in the lands. And the Almighty said: "Indeed, those who invent falsehood against God will not succeed. Enjoyment in this world, then to Us is their return, then We will make them taste the severe punishment for what they used to disbelieve." And the Almighty said: We give them enjoyment for a little while, then We will force them to a severe punishment. And the Almighty said: So give the disbelievers respite, give them respite a little while. That is, a little. And the Almighty said: "Is he to whom We have promised a good promise and he will meet it like he to whom We have given enjoyment of the life of this world, then on the Day of Resurrection he will be among those brought forth?" And thus when He mentioned the state of the disbelievers in The world and he mentioned that their destination is the Fire, then he said: "But those who feared their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as provision from God. And what is with God is better for the righteous." Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad ibn Nasr told us, Abu Tahir Sahl ibn Abdullah told us, Hisham ibn Ammar told us, Saeed ibn Yahya told us, Ubaydullah ibn al-Walid al-Wasafi told us, on the authority of Muharrib ibn Dithar, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: They were called the righteous because they were dutiful to their fathers and sons, just as your parents have a right over you, so your son has a right over you. This is how Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ahmad ibn Janab told us, Isa ibn Yunus told us, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Walid al-Wasafi, on the authority of Muharrir ibn Dithar, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: God only called them the righteous because they were dutiful to their fathers and sons, just as Your parents have a right over you, and your child has a right over you, and this is more likely, and God knows best. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, Hisham Al-Dastawai told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: The righteous are those who do not harm even the ants. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Khaithamah, on the authority of Al-Aswad, who said: Abdullah, meaning Ibn Mas'ud, said: There is no righteous or wicked soul for which death is better, if it is righteousness. God the Most High said: And what is with God is best for the righteous. And Abd Al-Razzaq narrated it likewise on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ath-Thawri, on his authority. And he recited: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin; and for them is a humiliating punishment." Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of Faraj ibn Fadala, on the authority of Luqman, on the authority of Abu al-Darda' that he used to say: There is no believer for whom death is not better, and there is no disbeliever for whom death is not better. And whoever does not believe me, then God says: And what is with God is best for the righteous. And He says: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin; and for them is a humiliating punishment."

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 196- Do not be deceived is addressed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The intention is to confirm him as he is, like the Almighty's statement, O you who believe, believe and it is addressed to everyone. This verse includes the ugliness of the state of the disbelievers after mentioning the good state of the believers. The meaning is: Do not be deceived by what they are in, of their moving around in the countries, traveling for trade, through which they expand their livelihood.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

196- The Almighty said: Let not the free movement of those who disbelieve throughout the land deceive you, it was revealed about the polytheists, because they were living in ease and comfort, trading and enjoying themselves, so some of the believers said: The enemies of God Almighty are in what we see of goodness, while we are in hardship? So God Almighty revealed this verse: Let not the free movement of those who disbelieve throughout the land deceive you, and their striking in the land and their disposition in the lands for trade and various types of earnings, so the address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but it is intended for someone else.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

196 Do not be deceived by the vicissitudes of those who disbelieve in the land. The address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is his nation, or to make him steadfast in what he was upon, as in His saying: So do not obey the deniers. Or to everyone, and the prohibition in meaning is for the addressee, and it was made for the vicissitudes to place the cause in the position of the effect for the sake of exaggeration, and the meaning is do not look at what the disbelievers have of ease and fortune, and do not be deceived by what you see of their ease in their earnings, their trade, and their farms. It was narrated that some of the believers saw the polytheists in ease and comfort, and they said: The enemies of God are in what we see of goodness, and we have perished from hunger and drought. This was revealed.

Surat Al Imran 3:197

A brief enjoyment, then their refuge is Hell, and wretched is the resting place.

Surat Al Imran 3:197

A brief enjoyment, then their refuge is Hell, and wretched is the resting place.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

It is a little enjoyment that they enjoy briefly in this world and then it will perish then their refuge is Hell, and wretched is the resting place the bed is

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

As for his saying: A brief enjoyment, he means: Their movement through the lands and their disposition in them, a pleasure that they enjoy for a short time until they reach their appointed times, then their deaths overtake them, Then their abode is Hell, after their death.

And the shelter: the destination to which they will go on the Day of Resurrection, and they will be in it.

What he means by his saying: And what a wretched resting place, is what a wretched bed and resting place is Hell.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty says: And what an evil resting place it is. That is, what an evil resting place they have prepared for themselves through their disbelief and what God has prepared for them in the Fire.

Eighteenth: In this verse and others like it, such as His statement: We only grant them respite for the best (Al Imran 3:178), "And I grant them respite. Indeed, My plan is firm" (Al A'raf: 183, Al Qalam: 45), Do they think that what We provide them with of wealth and children? (al-Mu'minun 23:55), We will gradually lead them on from where they do not know (Al A'raf: 182) (Al Qalam: 44), there is evidence that the disbelievers are not blessed in this world, because the true meaning of a blessing is freedom from the impurities of immediate and deferred harm, and the blessings of the disbelievers are tainted with pain and punishments. So it is like someone who offers someone else a sweet piece of honey that contains poison. Even if the one who eats it enjoys it, it cannot be said that he has been blessed, because in it is the destruction of his soul. A group of scholars have held this view, and it is the view of Sheikh Abu al-Hasan al-Ash'ari. A group of them, including the sword of the Sunnah and the tongue of the nation, Judge Abu Bakr, have held that God has blessed them in this world. They said: The root of blessing is from blessing with the opening of the letter nun. And it is the softness of life, and from it is the saying of the Most High: And a blessing in which they were rejoicing (al-Dukhan 44:27). It is said: fine flour, if it is thoroughly ground and well crushed, and this is the correct view, and the evidence for it is that God Almighty obligated the disbelievers to thank Him and all those who are accountable, so He said: So remember the favors of God (A'raf: 74), And be grateful to God (al-Baqarah 2:172). And gratitude is only for a blessing, and He said: And do good as God has done good to you (al-Qasas 28:77). This is addressed to Qarun, and He said: "And God sets forth an example: a city that was safe and secure" (al-Nahl 16:112). So He, the Most High, alerted them that He had bestowed upon them a worldly blessing, but they denied it, and He said: They recognize the favor of God, then they deny it (al-Nahl 16:83), and He said: O mankind, remember the favor of God upon you (Fatir 35:3). This is general for the disbelievers and others, but if someone offers someone else food that contains poison, then He has been kind to him in the moment, because He did not give him poison purely, but rather put it in the sweetness, so it is not unlikely that it will be said: He bestowed a blessing upon him. If this is proven, then blessings are of two types: blessings of benefit and blessings of repelling. The blessings of benefit are those that reach them of various kinds of pleasures, and the blessings of repelling are those that are diverted from them of various kinds of calamities. Based on this, He bestowed upon the infidels blessings of repelling, according to one statement, which is what was narrated from them of pains and illnesses. There is no disagreement among them that He did not bestow upon them a religious blessing, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Do not look at the luxury, bliss and joy that these disbelievers enjoy, for soon all of this will be removed from them and they will become hostages to their evil deeds. We only extend to them what they are in as a lure, and all that they are in is a brief enjoyment, then their refuge is Hell, and an evil resting place it is. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: None disputes about the verses of God except those who disbelieve, so do not be deceived by their moving about in the lands. And the Almighty said: "Indeed, those who invent falsehood against God will not succeed. Enjoyment in this world, then to Us is their return, then We will make them taste the severe punishment for what they used to disbelieve." And the Almighty said: We give them enjoyment for a little while, then We will force them to a severe punishment. And the Almighty said: So give the disbelievers respite, give them respite a little while. That is, a little. And the Almighty said: "Is he to whom We have promised a good promise and he will meet it like he to whom We have given enjoyment of the life of this world, then on the Day of Resurrection he will be among those brought forth?" And thus when He mentioned the state of the disbelievers in The world and he mentioned that their destination is the Fire, then he said: "But those who feared their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as provision from God. And what is with God is better for the righteous." Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad ibn Nasr told us, Abu Tahir Sahl ibn Abdullah told us, Hisham ibn Ammar told us, Saeed ibn Yahya told us, Ubaydullah ibn al-Walid al-Wasafi told us, on the authority of Muharrib ibn Dithar, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: They were called the righteous because they were dutiful to their fathers and sons, just as your parents have a right over you, so your son has a right over you. This is how Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ahmad ibn Janab told us, Isa ibn Yunus told us, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Walid al-Wasafi, on the authority of Muharrib ibn Dithar, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: God only called them the righteous because they were dutiful to their fathers and sons, just as Your parents have a right over you, and your child has a right over you, and this is more likely, and God knows best. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, Hisham Al-Dastawai told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: The righteous are those who do not harm even the ants. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Khaithamah, on the authority of Al-Aswad, who said: Abdullah, meaning Ibn Mas'ud, said: There is no righteous or wicked soul for which death is better, if it is righteousness. God the Most High said: And what is with God is best for the righteous. And Abd Al-Razzaq narrated it likewise on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ath-Thawri, on his authority. And he recited: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin; and for them is a humiliating punishment." Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of Faraj ibn Fadala, on the authority of Luqman, on the authority of Abu al-Darda' that he used to say: There is no believer for whom death is not better, and there is no disbeliever for whom death is not better. And whoever does not believe me, then God says: And what is with God is best for the righteous. And He says: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin; and for them is a humiliating punishment."

Fath al-Qadir

It is a little enjoyment that they enjoy in this world, then their destination is Hell. His statement 197- Enjoyment is the predicate of an omitted subject: meaning it is a little enjoyment that is not taken into account in comparison to the reward of God, the Most High. And their abode means: what they seek refuge in. Moving around in countries: the confusion in travels to places, and similar to it is His statement, the Most High, So do not let their moving around in countries deceive you. Enjoyment is that which is quickly benefited from, and He called it little because it is fleeting, and everything that is fleeting, even if it is much, is little. His statement, And evil is the destination is what they prepared for themselves in Hell with their disbelief, or what God prepared for them of the Fire, so what is specifically blamed is omitted: and it is this that is understood.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

197- A little enjoyment, meaning: it is a little enjoyment, and in a fleeting language and a passing pleasure, Then their abode, their destiny, is Hell, and an evil resting place, the bed.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

197 A brief enjoyment is the predicate of an omitted subject, meaning that this change is a brief enjoyment because of its short duration compared to what God has prepared for the believers. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: "The world in comparison to the Hereafter is like what one of you puts his finger in the sea. So let him see what he brings back." Then their refuge is Hell, and wretched is the resting place. Meaning, what they have prepared for themselves.

Surat Al Imran 3:198

But those who fear their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as provision from Allah. And what is with Allah is best for the righteous.

Surat Al Imran 3:198

But those who fear their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as provision from God. And what is with God is best for the righteous.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

But those who feared their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, abiding eternally therein meaning destined for eternity therein as a lodging which is what is prepared for the guest, and its accusative is in the state of gardens and the factor in it is the meaning of the circumstance from God, and what is with God of reward is better for the righteous than the enjoyment of this world.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: But those who feared their Lord, but those who feared God by obeying Him and following what pleases Him, by doing what He commanded them to do and avoiding what He forbade them from doing, for them are gardens, meaning: orchards, undemeath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally, meaning: remaining therein forever, as a revelation from God, meaning: a revelation from God to them therein, He brought them down therein.

And the word nuzul is used as an explanation of his statement: For them are gardens beneath which rivers flow, just as it is said: For you with God are gardens beneath which rivers flow as a reward, and just as it is said: It is charity for you: and it is a gift for you.

His saying: From God, means: From God, and from God's honor to them, and His gifts to them.

And His statement: And what is with God is better for the righteous, meaning: What is with God of life, honor, and a good end, is better for the righteous, than what those who disbelieve live in. For what they live in is fleeting and perishable, and it is a small and insignificant enjoyment. And what is with God of honor for the righteous—and they are the people of His obedience—is lasting, not perishing or disappearing.

Yunus told me: Ibn Wahb told us: I heard Ibn Zayd say about His statement: And what is with God is best for the righteous, he said: For those who obey God.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Khaithamah, on the authority of Al-Aswad, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: There is no soul, righteous or wicked, but that death is better for it. Then Abdullah recited: And what is with God is best for the righteous, and he recited this verse: And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves (Al Imran 3:178).

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of Faraj ibn Fadala, on the authority of Luqman, on the authority of Abu al-Darda', that he used to say: There is no believer for whom death is not better, and there is no disbeliever for whom death is not better. And whoever does not believe me, then God says: And what is with God is best for the righteous, and He says: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin." (Al Imran 3:178)

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Nineteenth: The Almighty's saying: But those who feared their Lord is a correction after a statement in which the meaning of negation was presented, because the meaning of what was presented is that they do not have great benefit in their movement in the lands, but the righteous have great benefit and permanent immortality, so the position of but is raised by the beginning, and Yazid bin Al-Qaqa' read but with a shaddah on the noon.

Al-Muwafiyah twentieth: The Almighty's saying: A descent from God "a descent" is like a reward according to the Basrans, and according to Al-Kisa'i it is a source. Al-Farra': it is an explanatory letter. Al-Hasan and Al-Nakha'i read a descent with a light zay due to the heaviness of two dammahs, and the rest made it heavy. A descent is what is prepared for the guest, and the guest is the guest. The poet said:

The guest of a people has the greatest rights, and the right of God is in the right of the guest

The plural is anzal, and the luck of a guest is a community, and the guest is also the rent, it is said, a lot of food from the guest and the guest.

Twenty-first: I said, and perhaps the inn, and God knows best, is what came in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Thawban, the freed slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the story of the rabbi who asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Where will the people be on the Day when the earth is changed to another earth and the heavens? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: They will be in darkness beyond the bridge. He said: Who will be the first people to cross? He said: The poor immigrants. The Jew said: What is their gift when they enter Paradise? He said: The extra liver of the Noon. He said: What is their food after that? He said: The bull of Paradise that used to eat from its edges will be slaughtered for them. He said: What is their drink after that? He said: From a spring in it called Salsabil. He mentioned the hadith. The linguists said: The gift is what a person is given as a gift of fruits, and the edge is his beauty and his kindness. This is consistent with what we mentioned in the inn, and God knows best. The extra liver is a piece of it like a finger. Al-Harawi said: A gift from God meaning a reward, and it was said that it is a provision. And what is with God is better for the righteous meaning than what the disbelievers are subjected to in this world, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Do not look at the luxury, bliss and joy that these disbelievers enjoy, for soon all of this will be removed from them and they will become hostages to their evil deeds. We only extend to them what they are in as a lure, and all that they are in is a brief enjoyment, then their refuge is Hell, and an evil resting place it is. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: None disputes about the verses of God except those who disbelieve, so do not be deceived by their moving about in the lands. And the Almighty said: "Indeed, those who invent falsehood against God will not succeed. Enjoyment in this world, then to Us is their return, then We will make them taste the severe punishment for what they used to disbelieve." And the Almighty said: We give them enjoyment for a little while, then We will force them to a severe punishment. And the Almighty said: So give the disbelievers respite, give them respite a little while. That is, a little. And the Almighty said: "Is he to whom We have promised a good promise and he will meet it like he to whom We have given enjoyment of the life of this world, then on the Day of Resurrection he will be among those brought forth?" And thus when He mentioned the state of the disbelievers in The world and he mentioned that their destination is the Fire, then he said: "But those who feared their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as provision from God. And what is with God is better for the righteous." Ibn Mardawayh said: Ahmad ibn Nasr told us, Abu Tahir Sahl ibn Abdullah told us, Hisham ibn Ammar told us, Saeed ibn Yahya told us, Ubaydullah ibn al-Walid al-Wasafi told us, on the authority of Muharrir ibn Dithar, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: They were called the righteous because they were dutiful to their fathers and sons, just as your parents have a right over you, so your son has a right over you. This is how Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ahmad ibn Janab told us, Isa ibn Yunus told us, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Walid al-Wasafi, on the authority of Muharrir ibn Dithar, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: God only called them the righteous because they were dutiful to their fathers and sons, just as Your parents have a right over you, and your child has a right over you, and this is more likely, and God knows best. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, Hisham Al-Dastawai told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: The righteous are those who do not harm even the ants. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Khaithamah, on the authority of Al-Aswad, who said: Abdullah, meaning Ibn Mas'ud, said: There is no righteous or wicked soul for which death is better, if it is righteousness. God the Most High said: And what is with God is best for the righteous. And Abd Al-Razzaq narrated it likewise on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ath-Thawri, on his authority. And he recited: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin; and for them is a humiliating punishment." Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of Faraj ibn Fadala, on the authority of Luqman, on the authority of Abu al-Darda' that he used to say: There is no believer for whom death is not better, and there is no disbeliever for whom death is not better. And whoever does not believe me, then God says: And what is with God is best for the righteous. And He says: "And let not those who disbelieve think that Our granting them respite is better for themselves. We only grant them respite that they may increase in sin; and for them is a humiliating punishment."

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 198- But those who feared their Lord is a correction of what came before it, because its meaning is the meaning of negation, as if he said: They will not have much benefit in their movement in the lands. But those who feared will have much benefit and eternal life. Yazid bin Al-Qa'qa' read but with a shaddah on the nun. His statement nuzlan is a confirmed source according to the Basrans as mentioned previously in thawaba and according to Al-Kisa'i and Al-Farra' like what they said in thawaba. The nuzlan is what is prepared for the guest, and the plural is anzal. Al-Harawi said nuzlan min 'id God meaning: a reward from God. And what is with God of what He has prepared for those who obey Him is better for the righteous than what the disbelievers obtain of profit in travels, for it is a small enjoyment that will soon disappear.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

198- But those who feared their Lord - for them are gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally as a provision, as a reward and recompense, from God, in the accusative case for interpretation, and it was said: He made that a provision, and what is with God is better for the righteous, of the enjoyment of this world.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah, I told Sulayman bin Bilal, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Ubayd bin Hanin, that he heard Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, say: Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, said: "I came and saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a drinking

Surat Al Imran 3:198

But those who fear their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as provision from Allah. And what is with Allah is best for the righteous.

place, and he was on a mat with nothing between him and it, and under his head was a pillow of leather stuffed with palm fibers, and at his feet were a dried palm frond, and at his head were hanging a camel. I saw the traces of the mat on his side, so I cried. He said: What makes you cry? I said: O Messenger of God, Khosrow and Caesar are in what they are in, and you are the Messenger of God? He said: Are you not satisfied that they have this world and we have the hereafter?"

Tafsir al-Baidawi

198 But those who feared their Lord will have gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide eternally, as a provision from God. The provision and provision are what is prepared for the one who is staying, of food, drink, and food. Abu al-Sha`r al-Dhabi said:

When the tyrant hosts us with his army, we make spears and sharp blades our refuge.

Its accusative case is in the state of gardens and the factor in it is the circumstance. It was said that it is a confirmed source and the meaning is that they brought it down as a dwelling. And what is with God because of its abundance and permanence is better for the righteous than what the wicked are thrown into because of its scarcity and the speed of its disappearance.

Surat Al Imran 3:199

And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price. Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God such as Abdullah bin Salam and his companions and the Negus and in what was revealed to you meaning the Qur'an and in what was revealed to them meaning the Torah and the Gospel being submissive a state of the pronoun of believe, the meaning of which is taken into account: humble to God, not exchanging the signs of God which they have in the Torah and the Gospel from the mission of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace for a small price of this world by concealing them out of fear for leadership as other Jews did those will have their reward the reward for their deeds with their Lord they will be given it twice as in the stories Indeed, God is swift in account He will hold creation to account in the amount of half a day of the days of this world.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed about who was meant by this verse.

Some of them said: He meant Ashama al-Najashi, and it was revealed about him.

Who said that?

Issam bin Rawad bin Al Jarrah told us, my father told us, Abu Bakr Al Hudhali told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed bin Al Musayyab, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Go out and pray over your brother.' So he prayed with us, and he said the four takbirs, and he said: 'This is the Negus, Ashama.' The hypocrites said: 'Look at this man praying over a Christian whom he has never seen!' So God revealed: 'And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God.'"

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Qatada: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Your brother, the Negus, has died, so pray over him. They said: Should a man who is not a Muslim be prayed over? He said: Then this verse was revealed: 'And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God.' Qatada said: They said: But he did not pray toward the qiblah! Then God revealed: 'And to God belong the east and the west, so wherever you turn, there is the face of God.' (al-Baqarah 2:115)."

Bishr told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, -on the authority of- Qatada, regarding his statement: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, he told us that this verse was revealed about the Negus and some of his companions who believed in the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and confirmed his faith. He said: And he told us that "the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sought forgiveness for the Negus and prayed over him when he heard of his death. He said to his companions: Pray over a brother of yours who died in a land other than yours! Some of the hypocrites said: Should he pray over a man who died who was not of his religion? So God revealed this verse: "And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and in what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price. Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account."

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, he said: It was revealed about the Negus and his companions who believed in the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the name of the Negus was Ashamah.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq said, and Ibn Uyaynah said: The name of the Negus in Arabic is: Atiyah.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed over the Negus, the hypocrites criticized that, so this verse was revealed: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God, to the end of the verse.

Others said: Rather, he meant Abdullah bin Salam and those with him.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: It was revealed - meaning this verse - about Abdullah bin Salam and those with him.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd told me regarding His statement: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, the entire verse, he said: These are Jews.

Others said: Rather, he meant by that the Muslims of the People of the Book.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And indeed,

Surat Al Imran 3:199

And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price. Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account.

among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and what was revealed to you, from the Jews and Christians, and they are the Muslims of the People of the Scripture.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements regarding the interpretation of the verse is what Mujahid said. That is because God Almighty included in His statement, And indeed, among the People of the Book, all the People of the Book. He did not specify among them the Christians without the Jews, nor the Jews without the Christians. Rather, He informed that among the People of the Book are those who believe in God. And both groups - I mean the Jews and the Christians - are among the People of the Book.

If someone says: What do you say about the report that was narrated on the authority of Jabir and others: that it was revealed about the Negus and his companions?

It was said: This is a report whose chain of transmission is questionable. If it were authentic and there is no doubt about it, then we would not have said that the meaning of the verse is different. This is because Jabir and those who said what he said only said: It was revealed about the Negus. A verse may be revealed about something, then it is general for everyone who is in the same situation. So even though the verse was revealed about the Negus, God Almighty made the ruling that He ruled for the Negus a ruling for all of His servants who are like the Negus in following the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believing in what he brought to them from God, after what they were upon before that of following God's command in what He commanded His servants in the two books, the Torah and the Gospel.

If that is the case, then the interpretation of the verse: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture, the Torah and the Gospel, is he who believes in God, and acknowledges His Oneness, and what has been revealed to you, O believers, says: and what has been revealed to you of His Book and His revelation through the tongue of His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what has been revealed to them, meaning: and what has been revealed to the People of the Scripture of the books, and that is the Torah, the Gospel, and the Psalms, humble to God, meaning: submissive to God in obedience, submissive to Him through it, as:

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd told me regarding his statement: humble before God, he said: The humble is the one who is submissive to God and fears Him.

The accusative of his saying: humbled to God is in the state of his saying: for those who believe in God, and it is a state of what is in believes, from the mention of whoever.

"They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price," meaning: They do not distort what was revealed to them in His books of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and change it, nor any other of His rulings and proofs in it, for a lowly worldly gain that they would give for that change, and seeking leadership over the ignorant. Rather, they submit to the truth, so they act according to what God has commanded them to do in what He has revealed to them in His books, and they refrain from what He has forbidden them from in them, and they prefer the command of God Almighty over their own desires.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may He be glorified, means by His saying, Those will have their reward, is those who believe in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them. They will have their reward with their Lord, meaning: they will have compensation for the deeds they did, and the reward for obeying their Lord in what they obeyed Him in. With their Lord, meaning: it is stored up for them with Him, until they go to Him on the Day of Resurrection, and He will pay them back for it. Indeed, God is swift in account. The swiftness of His account, may He be glorified and exalted, is that nothing of their deeds is hidden from Him before they do them and after they do them, so there is no need for Him to count the number of that, for there would be a delay in counting. Therefore, He said, Indeed, God is swift in account.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Twenty-second: The Almighty's saying: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God. Jabir bin Abdullah, Anas, Ibn Abbas, Qatada and Al-Hasan said: "It was revealed about the Negus, and that is because when he died, Gabriel, peace be upon him, announced his death to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to his companions: Stand up and pray over your brother the Negus. Some of them said to each other: He orders us to pray over a foreigner from the Abyssinians. So God, the Almighty, revealed: "And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God and what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them." Ad-Dahhak said: And what was revealed to you is the Qur'an, And what was revealed to them is the Torah and the Gospel, and in the revelation: Those will be given their reward twice (al-Qasas 28:54). In Sahih Muslim: Three will be given their reward twice. He mentioned a man from the People of the Scripture who believed in his Prophet, then he met the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believed in him, followed him and confirmed him, so he will have two rewards. He mentioned the hadith, and the prayer over him and For scholars, in the funeral prayer in absentia, there is no point in repeating it. Mujahid, Ibn Jurayj, and Ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about the believers of the People of the Book, and this is general, and the Negus was one of them, and his name was Ashamah, which in Arabic means gift, and submissive means humble, and it is accusative in the state of the pronoun in believes, and it was said: from the pronoun in to them or in to you and what is in the verse with me, and it has been mentioned previously.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about a group of the People of the Book that they believe in God with true faith, and believe in what was revealed to Muhammad along with what they believe in from the previous books, and that they are submissive to God, that is, obedient to Him, submissive and humble before Him, They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price, that is, they do not conceal what is in their hands of glad tidings about Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the mention of his description, attributes, mission, and the description of his nation. These are the best and elite of the People of the Book, whether they are Jews or Christians. The Almighty said in Surat al-Qasas 28: "Those to whom We gave the Scripture before it - they believe in it. And when it is recited to them, they say, 'We believe in it. Indeed, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed, we were Muslims before it.' Those will be given their reward twice for what they were patient." The verse, and the Almighty said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture - they recite it with its true recitation - those believe in it. The verse. God the Almighty said: And among the people of Moses was a community guiding with the truth and doing justice thereby. God the Almighty said: "They are not all alike. Among the People of the Scripture is a community standing, reciting the verses of God during the hours of the night, and they prostrate themselves." God the Almighty said: "Say, 'Believe in it or do not believe.' Indeed, those who were given knowledge before it, when it is recited to them, fall upon their faces in prostration. And they say, 'Glory be to our Lord! Indeed, the promise of our Lord has been fulfilled.' And they fall upon their faces weeping, and it increases them in humility." These characteristics are found in the Jews, but rarely, as was found in Abdullah bin Salam and his likes among the Jewish rabbis who believed, and they did not reach ten souls. As for the Christians, many of them are guided and submit to the truth, as God the Almighty said: "You will surely find the most intense of the people in animosity toward the believers to be the Jews and those who associate others with God. And you will find the nearest of them in affection to the believers to be those who say, 'We are Christians.'" To His saying, So God rewarded them for what they said with gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally. The verse, and likewise He said here, Those are the ones. "They will have their reward with their Lord," the verse. It has been proven in the hadith that when Ja'far ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, recited Surat Kaf Ha Ya Ain Sad in the presence of the Negus, the king of Abyssinia, and the patriarchs and priests were with him, he wept and they wept with him until their beards were dyed. It has been proven in the two Sahihis that when the Negus died, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, announced his death to his companions and said, A brother of yours in Abyssinia has died, so pray over him. So he went out to the desert, lined them up, and prayed over him. Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Ibn Mardawayh narrated from the hadith of Hammad Ibn Salamah from Thabit, from Anas Ibn Malik, who said: When the Negus died, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask forgiveness for your brother. Some people said: He orders us to ask forgiveness for a foreigner who died in the land of Abyssinia. So the verse was revealed: And among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. And Abd Ibn Hamid and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission from Hammad Ibn Salamah, from Thabit, from Al-Hasan, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from chains of transmission from Hamid, from Anas Ibn Malik, in a manner similar to what was mentioned above. Ibn Jarir also narrated it from the hadith of Abu Bakr Al-Hudhali from Qatadah, from Saeed Ibn Al-Musayyab, from Jabir, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said when the Negus died: Your brother Ashama has died. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out and prayed as he prays over the dead, and he said four takbirs over him." The hypocrites said: He prays over a foreigner who died in Abyssinia. So God revealed: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God 1:13. Abu Dawud said: Muhammad ibn Amr al-Razi told us, Salamah ibn al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, Yazid ibn Ruman told me, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said: When the Negus died, we used to say that a light could not be seen on his grave. Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak: Abu Al-Abbas Al-Siyari informed us in Marw, Abdullah bin Ali Al-Ghazal told us, Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq told us, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, Mus'ab bin Thabit told us on the authority of Aamer bin Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr on the authority of his father, who said: An enemy from their land descended upon the Negus, so the Muhajireen came to him and said: We would like to go out to them so that we can fight with you and you can see our courage and we can reward you for what you did to us. He said: No, the cure for the support of God the Almighty is better than the cure for the support of people. He said: And in it was revealed: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God 1:13. Then he said: This is a hadith with a sound chain of transmission, and they did not include it. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture means the Muslims of the People of the Scripture. Abbad bin Mansour said: I asked Al-Hasan Al-Basri about the words of God, And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God 1:13. He said: They are the People of the Scripture who were before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and followed him and knew Islam, so God Almighty gave them two rewards:

And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price. Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account.

for the faith they had before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and for the faith they followed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Both were narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. It was proven in the two Sahih's on the authority of Abu Musa, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Three will be given their reward twice.' He mentioned among them: 'A man from the People of the Book who believed in his Prophet and believed in me.'" And the words of God the Most High: They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price, meaning they do not conceal the knowledge they have in their hands as the despicable group among them did, but rather they give it away for free. For this reason, God the Most High said: "Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account." Mujahid said: Swift in account means swift in counting. This was narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and others. And the words of God the Most High: O you who have believed, be patient and steadfast and remain steadfast. Al-Hasan al-Basri, may God have mercy on him, said: They were commanded to be patient with their religion that God has chosen for them, which is Islam, and not to abandon it for ease or hardship, or hardship or ease, until they die as Muslims, and to be patient with the enemies who conceal their religion. This is what more than one of the scholars of the Salaf said. As for steadfastness, it is persistence in a place of worship and steadfastness. It was said: Waiting for the prayer after the prayer, said Ibn Abbas, Sahl ibn Hanif, Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi and others. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated here the hadith narrated by Muslim and al-Nasa'i from the hadith of Malik ibn Anas on the authority of al-Ala' ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Ya'qub, the freed slave of al-Harqa, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Shall I not tell you of something by which God erases sins and raises ranks? Performing ablution perfectly despite the difficulties, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, that is the ribat, that is the ribat, that is the ribat." Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Ahmad told us, Musa ibn Ishaq told us, Abu Juhayfah Ali ibn Yazid al-Kufi told us, Ibn Abi Karimah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yazid, on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman, who said: Abu Hurayrah came to me one day and said: Do you know, my nephew, about what this verse was revealed: O you who believe, be patient and steadfast and remain stationed. I said: No. He said: As for the fact that there was no conquest in the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in which they remained stationed, but it was revealed about a people who would build mosques and pray the prayers at their appointed times, then remember God in them, so it was revealed about them: Be patient, meaning with the five daily prayers, and be patient with yourselves and your desires, and remain stationed in your mosques, and fear God in what is upon you, that you may... You will succeed. And thus Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak on the authority of Saeed bin Mansour bin Al-Mubarak on the authority of Mus'ab bin Thabit, on the authority of Dawud bin Salih, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, in a similar manner. Ibn Jarir said: Abu Al-Sa'ib told me, Ibn Fadil told me on the authority of Abdullah bin Saeed Al-Maqburi, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Shurahbil, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to something that expiates sins and transgressions? Performing ablution perfectly even when it is difficult, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, for that is the ribat." Ibn Jarir also said: Musa bin Sahl Al-Ramli told me, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Muhammad bin Muhajir told us, Yahya bin Yazid told me on the authority of Zaid bin Abi Anisa, on the authority of Shurahbil, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to something with which God erases sins and expiates transgressions? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God. He said: Performing ablution properly in its proper places, taking frequent steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, that is the ribat. Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Ali told us, Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn al-Salam al-Bayruti told us, Muhammad ibn Ghalib al-Antaki told us, Uthman ibn Abd al-Rahman told us, al-Waze' ibn Nafi told us on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Abu Ayyub, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stopped us and said: Do you have something with which God erases sins and increases reward? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God, and what is it? He said: Performing ablution properly despite the difficulties, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the prayer after the prayer. He said: It is the saying of God the Most High: O you who believe! Be patient and endure and remain steadfast and fear God that you may be successful. So that is the guarding in the mosques. This is a very strange hadith from this aspect. Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak said on the authority of Mus'ab bin Thabit bin Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr, Dawud bin Salih told me: Abu Salamah bin Abdul Rahman said to me: O my nephew, do you know for what reason this verse was revealed: Be patient and endure and remain steadfast? He said: I said: No. He said: O my nephew, there was no raid in which guarding was done during the time of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), but it was waiting for the prayer after the prayer. Narrated by Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Mardawayh's narration of it has been presented, and that it is from the words of Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with him, and God knows best. It was said: What is meant by guarding here is guarding the raid in the throats of the enemy and protecting the borders of Islam and safeguarding them from the entry of the enemies into the lands of the Muslims. The reports have been reported. Encouraging this and mentioning the great reward for it, Al-Bukhari narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Sahl bin Sa'd Al-Sa'idi that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, A day of guarding the path of God is better than the world and everything in it.

Another hadith Muslim narrated on the authority of Salman al-Farsi, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "A day and a night of guarding the borders is better than fasting and praying for a month, and if he dies, his deeds that he used to do will continue to be attributed to him, his provision will continue to be granted to him, and he will be safe from the tribulations."

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us on the authority of Haywah bin Shuraih, Abu Hani' al-Khawlani told me that Amr bin Malik al-Junbi told him that he heard Fadala bin Ubaid say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Every dead person's deeds are sealed except for the one who died fighting in the way of God, for his deeds will increase until the Day of Resurrection and he will be safe from the trial of the grave. And this is how Abu Dawud and al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Abu Hani' al-Khawlani. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith, and Ibn Hibban also included it in his Sahih.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Yahya bin Ishaq, Hasan bin Musa and Abu Saeed told us: Ibn Lahi'ah told us, Mashrah bin Ha'an told us, I heard Uqbah bin Amir say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The deeds of every dead person are sealed except for the one who fights in the way of God, for his deeds continue until he is resurrected and he is safe from the trial. Al-Harith bin Muhammad bin Abi Usamah narrated in his Musnad on the authority of Al-Maqburi, who is Abdullah bin Yazid, with it until his saying until he is resurrected without mentioning the trial. When Ibn Lahi'ah explicitly states the hadith, then it is good, especially with the evidence that came before.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said in his Sunan: Yunus bin Abdul A'la told us, Abdullah bin Wahb told us, Al-Layth told me, on the authority of Zuhra bin Ma'bad, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever dies fighting in the way of God, his righteous deeds that he used to do will be rewarded, his provision will be given to him, he will be safe from trials, and God will raise him on the Day of Resurrection safe from terror."

Another way Imam Ahmad said: Musa told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Musa bin Wardan, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever dies as a defender of the religion will be protected from the trial of the grave, will be safe from the greatest terror, will be given provision from Paradise, and will be given the reward of a defender of the religion until the Day of Resurrection."

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Ishaq bin Isa told us, Ismail bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Amr bin Halhalah Al-Du'ali, on the authority of Ishaq bin Abdullah, on the authority of Umm Al-Darda', who traced the hadith back to the Prophet, saying: Whoever guards a place on the coasts of the Muslims for three days, it will suffice for him to guard a year.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Kahams told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit ibn `Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr told us, he said: `Uthman, may God be pleased with him, said while he was delivering a sermon on his pulpit: I am going to narrate to you a hadith that I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and nothing prevented me from narrating it to you except my concern for you. I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Guarding one night in the way of God is better than a thousand nights spent in prayer and fasting during the day. Ahmad also narrated it in this way on the authority of Ruh, on the authority of Kahams, on the authority of Mus'ab ibn Thabit, on the authority of `Uthman. Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Hisham ibn `Ammar, on the authority of `Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Mus'ab ibn Thabit, on the authority of `Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, he said: `Uthman ibn `Affan addressed the people and said: O people, I heard a hadith from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and nothing prevented me from narrating it to you except my concern for you and your companions. So let someone choose for himself or leave it. I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: And he, peace be upon him, said: Whoever spends a night in the way of God, it is as if he fasted and prayed a thousand nights.

Another chain of transmission On the authority of Uthman, may God be pleased with him. Al-Tirmidhi said: Al-Hasan bin Ali Al-Khalal told us, Hisham bin Abdul Malik told us, Al-Layth bin Saad told us, Abu Aqil Zuhrah bin Ma'bad told us on the authority of Abu Salih, the freed slave of Uthman bin Affan, who said: I heard Uthman while he was on the pulpit saying: I concealed from you a hadith that I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, out of fear that you would separate from me. Then it occurred to me to tell you about it: Let a person choose for himself what he wants. I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: A day of guarding the land in the way of God is better than a thousand days in any other dwelling. Then Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and strange hadith from this chain of transmission. Muhammad, meaning Al-Bukhari, said: Abu Salih, the freed slave of Uthman, his name is Burkan, and others mentioned that his name was Al-Harith, and God knows best. Imam Ahmad narrated it in this way from the hadith of Al-Layth bin Saad and Abdullah bin Lahi'ah, and he added an addition at the end of it, so he, meaning Uthman, said: So let a person guard the land however he wants. Have I conveyed the message? They said: Yes. He said: O God, bear witness.

Another hadith Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi said: Ibn Abi Omar told us, Sufyan told us, Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir

Surat Al Imran 3:199

And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price. Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account.

told us, he said: Salman Al-Farsi passed by Shurahbil bin Al-Simt, while he was stationed there and it was difficult for him and his companions, so he said: Shall I not tell you, O Ibn Al-Simt, of a hadith that I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace? He said: Yes, he said: "I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: A day of stationing in the way of God is better - or he said better - than fasting and praying for a month, and whoever dies in it will be protected from the trial of the grave, and his deeds will increase until the Day of Resurrection." Al-Tirmidhi is the only one to narrate it from this source, and he said: This is a good hadith, and in some versions there is an addition, but its chain of transmission is not continuous, and Ibn Al-Munkadir did not meet Salman. I said: It appears that Muhammad ibn al-Munkadir heard it from Shurahbil ibn al-Samat, and Muslim and al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Makhul and Abu Ubaidah ibn Uqbah, both of them from Shurahbil ibn al-Samat, who was a companion, from Salman al-Farsi from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "A day and a night of guarding the borders is better than fasting and praying for a month, and if he dies, his deeds that he used to do will continue to be attributed to him, his provision will continue to be granted to him, and he will be safe from the trial." The context of Muslim was previously mentioned separately.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said: Muhammad ibn Ismail ibn Samurah told us, Muhammad ibn Ya'la al-Salami told us, `Umar ibn Subayh told us, on the authority of `Abd al-Rahman ibn `Amr, on the authority of Makhul, on the authority of Ubayy ibn Ka'b, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "For one day of guarding the cause of God, behind the backs of the Muslims, seeking reward from God, in the month of Ramadan, is greater in reward than a hundred years of worship, fasting and standing in prayer. And guarding the cause of God, for one day, behind the backs of the Muslims, seeking reward from God, in a month other than Ramadan, is better with God and has a greater reward - I think he said - than a thousand years of worship, fasting and standing in prayer. If God, the Most High, returns him to his family safely, no sin will be recorded against him for a thousand years, but good deeds will be recorded for him, and the reward of guarding will continue to flow to him until the Day of Resurrection." This is a strange hadith, rather it is rejected from this aspect, and `Umar ibn Subayh is accused.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said: Isa bin Yunus al-Ramli told us, Muhammad bin Shuaib bin Shabur told us on the authority of Saeed bin Khalid bin Abi Tawil, I heard Anas bin Malik say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "Guarding one night in the way of God is better than a man fasting and praying with his family for a thousand years. A year is three hundred and sixty days, and a day is like a thousand years." This is also a strange hadith, and Abu Zur'ah and more than one of the imams declared this Saeed bin Khalid weak. Al-Uqayli said: His hadith is not to be followed. Ibn Hibban said: It is not permissible to use him as evidence. Al-Hakim said: He narrated fabricated hadiths on the authority of Anas.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said: Muhammad ibn al-Sabah told us, Abd al-Aziz ibn Muhammad told us, on the authority of Salih ibn Muhammad ibn Zaydah, on the authority of Umar ibn Abd al-Aziz, on the authority of Uqbah ibn Amir al-Juhani, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, May God have mercy on the guard of the guard. There is a break in the chain of transmission between Umar ibn Abd al-Aziz and Uqbah ibn Amir, for he did not meet him, and God knows best.

Another hadith Abu Dawud said: Abu Tobah told us, Muawiyah, meaning Ibn Salam, told us, on the authority of Zaid - meaning Ibn Salam - that he heard Abu Salam say: Al-Saluli told me that Sahl Ibn Al-Hanzaliyyah told him that they traveled with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Hunayn, and they traveled for a long time until it was evening. Then the time for prayer came with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a horseman came and said: O Messenger of God, I set out before you until I climbed such-and-such mountain, and suddenly I saw the Hawazin on their back, with their camels and their sheep, gathered at Hunayn. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, smiled and said: That is the spoils of the Muslims tomorrow, God willing. Then he said: Who will guard us tonight? Anas Ibn Abi Marthad said: I will, O Messenger of God. So he said: Then ride. So he rode his horse and came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Facing this valley until you are at the top, and we will not attack from your side tonight. When morning came, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out to his prayer place, and bowed two rak'ahs, then he said: Do you want to? Did you sense your knight? A man said: O Messenger of God, we did not sense him, so he started praying. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, kept turning to the valley while he was praying, until he finished his prayer, and he said: Be glad, for your knight has come to you. We kept looking through the trees in the valley, and he had come until he stopped at the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: I went until I was at the top of this valley where you ordered me, and when morning came I climbed both valleys, and I looked but did not see anyone, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Did you come down tonight? He said: No, except to pray or to attend to a need. He said to him: It has become obligatory, so there is no harm in not doing any work after that. An-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yahya ibn Muhammad ibn Katheer al-Harrani on the authority of Abu Tuba, who is al-Rabi' ibn Nafi', on his authority.

Another Hadith Imam Ahmad said: Zaid bin Al-Habbab told us, Abd Al-Rahman bin Shuraih told us, I heard Muhammad bin Shamir Al-Ra'ini say: I heard Abu Aamer Al-Tujibi, Imam Ahmad said: And someone other than Zaid Abu Ali Al-Junbi said: I heard Abu Rayhana say: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a military expedition, and one night we came to a hill, and we spent the night there, and we were struck by severe cold until I saw someone digging a hole in the ground, entering it and throwing a shield on him. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw that from the people, he called out: Who will guard us tonight so that I may supplicate for him with a supplication that will be of merit for him? A man from the Ansar said: I will, O Messenger of God. He said: Come closer. So he came closer. He said: Who are you? So the Ansari named himself for him, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, began with the supplication and he repeated it. Abu Rayhana said: When I heard what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, supplicated with, I said: I am another man. He said: Come closer. So I came closer. He said: Who are you? He said: I said: I am Abu Rayhana. He supplicated with a supplication that was less than what he supplicated for the Ansari, then he said: The Fire is forbidden to an eye that sheds tears - or wept - out of fear of God, and the Fire is forbidden to an eye that stays awake in the way of God. Al-Nasa'i narrated from him The Fire is forbidden to the end of it on the authority of Asma bin Al-Fadl on the authority of Zaid bin Al-Habbab on his authority, and on the authority of Al-Harith bin Maskeen on the authority of Ibn Wahb on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Shuraih on his authority, and he completed it and said in the two narrations on the authority of Abu Ali Al-Junbi.

Another hadith Al-Tirmidhi said: Nasr bin Ali Al-Jahdhami told us, Bishr bin Umar told us, Shuaib bin Raziq Abu Shaiba told us, on the authority of Ata' Al-Khurasani, on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "Two eyes will not be touched by the Fire: an eye that wept out of fear of God, and an eye that spent the night guarding in the way of God." Then he said: Hasan Gharib, we do not know it except from the hadith of Shuaib bin Raziq. He said: There are narrations on this topic on the authority of Uthman and Abu Rayhana. I said They have already been mentioned, and praise and thanks be to God.

Another hadith - Imam Ahmad said: Yahya bin Ghailan told us, Rashdin told us, on the authority of Zaban, on the authority of Sahl bin Muadh, on the authority of his father Muadh bin Anas, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever guards behind the Muslims voluntarily, not for a wage from a ruler, will not see the Fire with his own eyes except as a condition of fulfilling an oath, for God says: 'There is not one of you but will pass over it.'" Ahmad, may God have mercy on him, transmitted it alone.

Another Hadith - Al-Bukhari narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Cursed is the slave of the dinar, the slave of the dirham, and the slave of the fine garment. If he is given something, he is pleased, and if he is not given something, he is displeased. Cursed and ruined, and if he is tested, he does not recover. Blessed is the slave who holds the reins of his horse in the way of God, his head disheveled and his feet dusty. If he is in the guard, he is in the guard, and if he is in the rear guard, he is in the rear guard. If he asks permission, he is not given permission, and if he intercedes, his intercession is not accepted." This is the last of the Hadiths related to this matter that could be cited, and praise be to God for His abundant blessings, over the years and days. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Mutraf bin Abdullah Al-Madani told us, Malik told us on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, who said: Abu Ubaidah wrote to Umar bin Al-Khattab, mentioning to him the Roman armies and what he feared from them. Umar wrote to him: As for what follows, no matter how hardship befalls a believing slave, God will bring relief after it, and no hardship can overcome two easings. God the Most High says in His Book: O you who believe, be patient and endure and remain steadfast and fear God that you may be successful. And thus Al-Hafiz Ibn Asakir narrated in the biography of Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak on the authority of Muhammad bin Ibrahim bin Abi Sakina, who said: Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak dictated these verses to me in Tarsus, and I bid him farewell for the departure, and he recited them with me to Al-Fudayl bin Iyad in the year 170, and in another narration, in the year 177.

O worshipper of the Two Holy Mosques, if you saw us, you would know that you are playing in worship.

He who stains his cheeks with his tears, our throats will be stained with our blood.

Or he was tiring his horses in vain, so our horses get tired on the morning

The scent of fragrance is yours, and our fragrance is the glow of hooves and the sweetest dust.

And there came to us from the words of our Prophet a true and honest saying that does not lie.

The dust of God's horses in a man's nose is not the same as the smoke of a blazing fire.

This is the book of God speaking between us. The martyr is not dead and does not lie.

He said: So I met Al-Fudayl bin Iyad with his book in the Sacred Mosque, and when he read it, his eyes filled with tears and he said: Abu Abd Al-Rahman spoke the truth and advised me. Then he said: Are you one of those who write hadith? He said: I said: Yes, he said: Then write this hadith as a rent for you to carry the letter of Abu Abd al-Rahman to us and dictate to me al-Fudayl bin Iyad: Mansur ibn al-Mu'tamir narrated to us on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that a man said: O Messenger of God, teach me an action by which I may attain the reward of those who strive in the cause of God. He said: Can you pray without slackening, and fast without breaking your

Surat Al Imran 3:199

And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price. Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account.

fast? He said: O Messenger of God, I am too weak to be able to do that. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, if I were able to do that, I would not reach the level of those who strive in the cause of God. Or do you not know that the horse of a mujahid is not tall enough, and good deeds are written for him because of that? And the Almighty's statement: And fear God means in all your affairs and conditions, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Muadh when he sent him to Yemen: Fear God wherever you are, and follow up a bad deed with a good one, which will erase it, and treat people with good manners "so that you may succeed" meaning in this world and the hereafter. Ibn Jarir said: Yunus narrated to me, Ibn Wahb narrated to us, Abu Sakhr narrated to us. On the authority of Muhammad bin Kaab Al-Qurazi, that he used to say regarding the words of God Almighty, And fear God that you may be successful, and fear God in what is between me and you that you may be successful tomorrow when you meet me.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 199- "And indeed, among the People of the Book are those who believe in God." This sentence was brought to show that some of the People of the Book have a share of religion, and they are not like the rest of them in their scandals that God has narrated about them in what came before and what will come, for these some combine belief in God and in what God has revealed to our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what He revealed to their prophets while they are "humble before God, not exchanging" that is: they substitute "the verses of God for a small price" by distorting and changing as the rest of them do, but rather they narrate the books of God, the Most High, as they are. The reference in His statement "those to this righteous group of the People of the Book in terms of their being characterized by these praiseworthy qualities for them is their reward which God, the Most High, promised in His statement those will be given their reward twice" and the presentation of the report indicates that this reward is specific to them. His statement "with their Lord" is in the accusative case as a state.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

199- The Almighty said: "And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God" the verse. Ibn Abbas, Jabir, Anas, and Qatadah said: It was revealed about the Negus, the king of Abyssinia, whose name was Ashamah, which in Arabic is Atiyah. When he died, Gabriel, peace be upon him, announced his death to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day he died. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to his companions: Go out and pray for your brother who died in a land other than yours, the Negus. So he went to Al-Baqi' and was shown the land of Abyssinia. He saw the bed of the Negus and prayed over him and said four Takbirs and asked for forgiveness for him. The hypocrites said: Look at this man praying over an Abyssinian Christian foreigner whom he had never seen and who was not of his religion. So God, the Almighty, revealed this verse.

Ata' said: It was revealed about the people of Najran, forty men [from Banu Harith bin Ka'b], thirty-two from the land of Abyssinia and eight from the Romans, who were of the religion of Jesus, peace be upon him, so they believed in the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Jurayj said: It was revealed about Abdullah bin Salam and his companions.

Mujahid said: It was revealed about all the believers among the People of the Book: And indeed, among the People of the Book is he who believes in God, "and what has been revealed to you," meaning the Qur'an, and what has been revealed to them, meaning the Torah and the Gospel, humble before God, submissive and humble before God, not exchanging the verses of God for a small price, meaning: they do not distort their books nor conceal the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, for the sake of leadership and food, as other Jewish leaders did, "those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

199 "And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God." This was revealed about Abdullah bin Salam and his companions. It was also said about forty from Najran, thirty-two from Abyssinia, and eight from Rome who were Christians and converted to Islam. It was also said about the people of the Negus when Gabriel reported his death to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he went out and prayed over him. The hypocrites said, "Look at this man praying over a Christian foreigner whom he has never seen. The lam was added to the noun to separate it from in" by the adverb. "And what has been revealed to you from the Qur'an, and what has been revealed to them" from the People of the Book. Humbled before God is a state of the subject of believes and its plural is based on the meaning they do not exchange the verses of God for a small price as the distorting rabbis do. Those will have their reward with their Lord is what He has specifically assigned to them of reward and promised in His statement, the Most High: Those will be given their reward twice. "Indeed, God is swift in account" for His work with deeds and what it requires of recompense and His independence from contemplation and caution. What is meant is that the promised reward is swift in arrival, for the swiftness of the account calls for the swiftness of the recompense.

Surat Al Imran 3:200

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.

Surat Al Imran 3:200

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear God that you may be successful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, be patient in acts of obedience and calamities and from sins and be patient with the disbelievers so that they are not more patient than you and remain steadfast continue in jihad and fear God in all your circumstances that you may succeed win Paradise and be saved from the Fire.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of this.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: Be patient in your religion, be patient with the infidels, and be steadfast with them.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of al-Mubarak bin Fadala, on the authority of al-Hasan: that he heard him say about the statement of God: O you who have believed, be patient and steadfast and remain stationed, he said: He commanded them to be patient with their religion, and not to abandon it for hardship or ease or prosperity or hardship, and He commanded them to be patient with the infidels, and to remain stationed with the polytheists.

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, be patient and steadfast and remain vigilant, meaning: be patient in obeying God, be patient with the people of misguidance, and remain vigilant in the way of God, and fear God that you may be successful.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Be patient and steadfast and remain steadfast, he said: Be patient with the polytheists and remain steadfast in the way of God.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Be patient in obedience, be patient with the enemies of God, and stand firm in the path of God.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Be patient, endure, and remain steadfast, he said: Be patient with what you have been commanded to do, and endure the enemy and remain steadfast with them.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Be patient in your religion, be patient and endure my promise to you in your obedience to me, and be steadfast against your enemies.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Abu Sakhr told me, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi, that he used to say regarding this verse: Be patient, persevere, and remain steadfast. He said: Be patient with your religion, and remain steadfast in the promise that I made to you, and remain steadfast against My enemy and your enemy until he abandons his religion for your religion.

Others said: The meaning of this is, be patient in jihad, and be patient with your enemy and their allies.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ja'far bin 'Awn told us, he said, Hisham bin Sa'd told us, on the authority of Zayd bin Aslam, regarding his statement: Be patient, endure, and remain steadfast, he said: Be patient in jihad, endure your enemy, and remain steadfast against your enemy.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Mutraf bin Abdullah Al-Madani told us, he said, Malik bin Anas told us, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, he said: Abu Ubaidah bin Al-Jarrah wrote to Umar bin Al-Khattab, and mentioned to him the Romans and what he feared from them, so Umar wrote to him: As for what follows, no matter how hardship befalls a believing servant, God will make relief after it, because no hardship can overcome two easings, and God says in His Book: O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear God that you may be successful.

Others said, the meaning of and remain steadfast is: remain steadfast in the prayers, meaning: wait for them one after the other.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Mus'ab ibn Thabit ibn 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said, Dawud ibn Salih told me, Abu Salamah ibn 'Abd al-Rahman said to me: O my nephew, do you know for what reason this verse was revealed: Be patient and steadfast and remain stationed? I said: No! He said: O my nephew, there was no military campaign in which one remained stationed, but rather it was waiting for one prayer after another.

Abu Al-Sa'ib told me, he said, Ibn Fadil told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Saeed Al-Maqburi, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Shurahbil, "on the authority of Ali, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to that by which God expiates sins and faults? Performing ablution perfectly even when it is difficult, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, for that is the ribat."

Musa bin Sahl al-Ramli told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Muhammad bin Muhajir told us, Yahya bin Yazid told me, on the authority of Zaid bin Abi Anisa, on the authority of Shurahbil, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to that by which God erases sins and expiates faults? He said: We said: Yes, O Messenger of God! He said: Performing ablution perfectly in the proper places, taking frequent steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, for that is ribat.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Khalid bin Mukhallad told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-'Ala' bin 'Abd Al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to that by which God removes sins and raises ranks? They said: Yes, O Messenger of God! He said: Performing ablution perfectly when in difficulty, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next. That is ribat, that is ribat.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Ismail bin Jaafar told us, on the authority of Al-Ala bin Abd Al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate interpretation of the verse is the statement of those who said about it: O you who believe, O you who believe in God and His Messenger, be patient, in your religion and obedience to your Lord. This is because God did not specify any of the meanings of patience in religion and obedience, so it is permissible to exclude it from the apparent meaning of the revelation. Therefore, we have that what He meant by His statement: be patient is the command to be patient in all meanings of obedience to God in what He has commanded and forbidden, its difficult and severe, its easy and light.

And be patient means: be patient with your enemies among the polytheists.

We said that this is more correct, because what is known from the speech of the Arabs in the mutual action is that it is from two groups, or two or more, and it is not from one except rarely in a few letters. So since that is the case, then the believers were commanded to be patient with others from their enemies, until God gives them victory over them, and raises His word, and disgraces their enemies, and that their enemy is not more patient than them.

Likewise, his saying: And be vigilant, means: And be vigilant against your enemies and the enemies of your religion from the polytheists, in the way of God.

Abu Jaafar said: I think that the origin of the word ribat is to tie up horses for the enemy, just as their enemy tied up their horses for them. Then it was used for every resident in a border area who defends those behind him from their enemies who want to harm them, and protects from them those who are between them and him who want to harm them, whether he has horses that he has tied up, or he has a foot soldier who has no mount.

We said the meaning of and remain steadfast is stay steadfast against your enemies and the enemies of your religion, because that is the well-known meaning of stabāt. The speech is directed to the most common meaning known in people's usage, not the hidden meaning, until you come up with something contrary to that which necessitates diverting it to the hidden meaning, an argument that must be accepted from the Book, or a report from the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, or a consensus of the people of interpretation.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: And fear God, O believers, and beware of disobeying His command or going ahead of His prohibition, that you may succeed, meaning: that you may succeed and remain in eternal bliss, and succeed in your requests from Him, as:

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Abu Sakhr told me, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi: that he used to say regarding His statement: And fear God that you may be successful, and fear God in what is between me and you, that you may be successful tomorrow when you meet me.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Twenty-third: The Almighty said: O you who believe, be patient. The Almighty concluded the Surah with what this tenth verse included of the commandment that combined victory in this world over the enemies and winning the bliss of the Hereafter, so He urged patience in obedience and from desires, and from patience is confinement, and its explanation was presented in Al-Baqarah, and He ordered patience, so it was said: Its meaning is patience with the enemies, said Zaid bin Aslam, and Al-Hasan said: With the five prayers, and it was said: Continuing to oppose the soul from our desires, so it calls and it withdraws, and Ata and Al-Qurazi said: Be patient with the promise that you were promised, meaning do not despair and wait for relief, "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Waiting for relief with patience is worship," and Abu Omar, may God have mercy on him, chose this statement, and the first is the statement of the majority, and from it is the statement of Antarah:

I have never seen a living being who was as patient as we are, nor who struggled as we struggle.

His saying: Be patient like our patience, meaning be patient with the enemy in war and do not show cowardice or weakness. Muqawadah is confrontation and confrontation in war. Therefore, they differed in the meaning of his saying: And remain steadfast. The majority of the nation said: Bring your enemies to the horses, meaning tie them up as your enemies tie them up. From this is the saying of God Almighty: And from the tethering of horses (al-Anfal 8:60). In al-Muwatta', on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, he said: Abu Ubaidah ibn al-Jarrah wrote to Umar ibn al-Khattab, mentioning to him the groups of the Romans and what he feared from them. Umar wrote to him: As for what follows, no matter how hardship befalls a believing slave, God will make for him relief after it. No hardship will overcome two eases. God Almighty says in His Book: O you who have believed, be patient and steadfast and remain steadfast and fear God that you may be successful. Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman said: This verse is about waiting for the prayer after the prayer, and there was no conquest in which one should remain steadfast. Narrated by al-Hakim Abu Abdullah. In his Sahih, Abu Salamah cited as evidence the words of the Prophet, peace be upon him: "Shall I not guide you to something by which God erases sins and raises ranks? Performing ablution perfectly despite the difficulties, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next. That is ribat, three times." Narrated by Malik. Ibn Atiyyah said: The correct statement is that ribat is staying in the way of God. Its origin is from tying horses, then everyone who stays in one of the borders of Islam is called a murabit, whether he is a horseman or a foot soldier. The word is taken from ribat. The Prophet's words, peace be upon him, That is ribat, are only a comparison to ribat in the way of God, and ribat linguistically is the first. This is like his saying: The strong man is not the one who wrestles, and his saying: The poor man is not like this in circumambulation, and so on.

Surat Al Imran 3:200

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.

I said: His saying: And the linguistic bond is the first is not accepted, for Al-Khalil bin Ahmad, one of the imams of language and its trustworthy ones, said: The bond is to stick to the borders, and to be constant in prayer as well. It has been established that waiting for prayer is a linguistic bond in reality, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, And more than this is what Al-Shaibani said, that it is said: Connected water meaning permanent that does not drain, as narrated by Ibn Faris, and it requires the linguistic extension of the bond to something other than what we mentioned, for the bond among the Arabs is: the contract on something so that it does not dissolve, so it returns to what it was patient about, so it confines the heart to good intention and the body to doing obedience, and among the greatest and most important of them is the tying of horses in the way of God as stated in the revelation in His saying: And among the tying of horses (al-Anfal 8:60), as will come, and the tying of the soul to prayers as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, narrated by Abu Hurairah, Jabir, and Ali, and there is no perfume after the bride.

Twenty-fourth: The one who guards the path of God, according to the jurists, is the one who goes to a border to guard it for a period of time. This was said by Muhammad ibn al-Mawaz, who narrated it. As for the permanent inhabitants of the border with their families who live and earn there, even if they are protectors, they are not guards. This was said by Ibn Atiyyah. Ibn Khuwayzmandad said: There are two states for guarding the border: a state in which the border is safe and secure and it is permissible to live there with one's family and children. If it is not safe, it is permissible for him to guard it himself if he is one of the people of fighting, and one's family and children should not be transferred to it lest the enemy appear and take them captive and enslave them. And God knows best.

Twenty-fifth: There are many hadiths about the virtue of guarding the borders, including what Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Sahl bin Saad Al-Sa'idi, "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Guarding the borders for a day in the way of God is better in the sight of God than the world and everything in it."

In Sahih Muslim, "On the authority of Salman, he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: A day and a night of guarding the borders is better than fasting and praying for a month. If he dies, his deeds that he used to do will continue to be attributed to him, his provision will be granted to him, and he will be safe from the tribulation."

Abu Dawood narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Fadala bin Ubaid, "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Every dead person's deeds are sealed except for the one who guards the borders, for his deeds will grow until the Day of Resurrection and he will be safe from the trials of the grave.'" These two hadiths are evidence that guarding the borders is the best of deeds whose reward remains after death.

As it came in the hadith of Al-Ala' bin Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, "On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: When a person dies, his deeds come to an end except for three: ongoing charity, beneficial knowledge, or a righteous child who prays for him." This is an authentic hadith that was narrated by Muslim alone. The ongoing charity, beneficial knowledge, and righteous child who prays for his parents come to an end when the charity runs out, the knowledge goes away, and the child dies. The reward for ribat is multiplied until the Day of Resurrection, because there is no meaning to growth except multiplication. It is not dependent on abuse, so it comes to an end when it comes to an end. Rather, it is an ongoing favor from God Almighty until the Day of Resurrection. This is because all righteous deeds cannot be achieved except by being safe from the enemy and guarding against him by guarding the egg of religion and establishing the rituals of Islam. This work for which the reward continues is the righteous deeds that he used to do. It was narrated by Ibn Majah with a sound chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, "On the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: 'Whoever dies while defending the cause of God will be rewarded for the righteous deeds he used to do, will be provided with his provision, will be safe from trials, and God will raise him on the Day of Resurrection safe from terror.'" There is a second qualification in this hadith, which is death while defending the cause of God, and God knows best.

It was narrated on the authority of Uthman ibn Affan that he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Whoever guards a night in the way of God, it will be as if he fasted and prayed in it for a thousand nights. It was narrated on the authority of Ubayy ibn Ka'b that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Guarding a day in the way of God, behind the vulnerable parts of the Muslims, seeking reward from God, outside the month of Ramadan, is greater in reward than the worship of a hundred years of fasting and praying. Guarding a day in the way of God, behind the vulnerable parts of the Muslims, seeking reward from God, in the month of Ramadan is better with God and has a greater reward. I think he said: It is better than the worship of a thousand years of fasting and praying in it. If God returns him to his family safely, no sin will be recorded against him for a thousand years, but good deeds will be recorded for him, and the reward of guarding will continue to flow to him until the Day of Resurrection. This hadith indicates that guarding a day in the month of Ramadan will bring him an everlasting reward, even if he does not die as a guard. And God knows best.

On the authority of Anas bin Malik, he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "Guarding one night in the way of God is better than a man fasting and praying with his family for a thousand years. A year is three hundred and sixty days, and a day is like a thousand years."

I said: It was mentioned in waiting for the prayer after the prayer that it is a bond, so the one who waits for the prayers may obtain that virtue, God willing. Abu Naim Al-Hafiz narrated that Sulayman bin Ahmad told us that Ali bin Abdul Aziz told us that Hajjaj bin Al-Munhal told us and Abu Bakr bin Malik told us that Abdullah bin Ahmad bin Hanbal told us that my father told me that Al-Hasan bin Musa told us that Hammad bin Salamah told us on the authority of Thabit Al-Bunani on the authority of Abu Ayyub Al-Azdi on the authority of Nawf Al-Bakali on the authority of Abdullah bin Omar: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed Maghrib one night, so we prayed with him, and some of them followed and some of them returned. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came before the people returned for the Isha prayer, so he came and the people were present, raising his finger and he had folded it twenty-nine times, pointing with his index finger to the sky, so he lifted his garment from his knees and he was saying: Be glad, O Muslims, this is your Lord who has opened a door from the doors of heaven and is boasting about you to the angels, saying, O My angels, look at these My servants, they have fulfilled an obligation and they are waiting for another." Hammad bin Salamah narrated it on the authority of Ali bin Zaid on the authority of Mutraf bin Abdullah: that Nawf and Abdullah bin Omar met and Nawf narrated from the Torah and Abdullah bin Omar narrated this hadith on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: And fear God meaning you were not commanded to fight without fear of God that you may succeed so that you may have hope of success. It was said: Perhaps means so that, and success is survival. All of this has already been discussed in full in Surat Al-Baqarah, and praise be to God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about a group of the People of the Book that they believe in God with true faith, and believe in what was revealed to Muhammad along with what they believe in from the previous books, and that they are submissive to God, that is, obedient to Him, submissive and humble before Him, They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price, that is, they do not conceal what is in their hands of glad tidings about Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the mention of his description, attributes, mission, and the description of his nation. These are the best and elite of the People of the Book, whether they are Jews or Christians. The Almighty said in Surat al-Qasas 28: "Those to whom We gave the Scripture before it - they believe in it. And when it is recited to them, they say, 'We believe in it. Indeed, it is the truth from our Lord. Indeed, we were Muslims before it.' Those will be given their reward twice for what they were patient." The verse, and the Almighty said: Those to whom We gave the Scripture - they recite it with its true recitation - those believe in it. The verse. God the Almighty said: And among the people of Moses was a community guiding with the truth and doing justice thereby. God the Almighty said: "They are not all alike. Among the People of the Scripture is a community standing, reciting the verses of God during the hours of the night, and they prostrate themselves." God the Almighty said: "Say, 'Believe in it or do not believe.' Indeed, those who were given knowledge before it, when it is recited to them, fall upon their faces in prostration. And they say, 'Glory be to our Lord! Indeed, the promise of our Lord has been fulfilled.' And they fall upon their faces weeping, and it increases them in humility." These characteristics are found in the Jews, but rarely, as was found in Abdullah bin Salam and his likes among the Jewish rabbis who believed, and they did not reach ten souls. As for the Christians, many of them are guided and submit to the truth, as God the Almighty said: "You will surely find the most intense of the people in animosity toward the believers to be the Jews and those who associate others with God. And you will find the nearest of them in affection to the believers to be those who say, 'We are Christians.'" To His saying, So God rewarded them for what they said with gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally. The verse, and likewise He said here, Those are the ones. "They will have their reward with their Lord," the verse. It has been proven in the hadith that when Ja'far ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, recited Surat Kaf Ha Ya Ain Sad in the presence of the Negus, the king of Abyssinia, and the patriarchs and priests were with him, he wept and they wept with him until their beards were dyed. It has been proven in the two Sahihis that when the Negus died, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, announced his death to his companions and said, A brother of yours in Abyssinia has died, so pray over him. So he went out to the desert, lined them up, and prayed over him. Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Ibn Mardawayh narrated from the hadith of Hammad Ibn Salamah from Thabit, from Anas Ibn Malik, who said: When the Negus died, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask forgiveness for your brother. Some people said: He orders us to ask forgiveness for a foreigner who died in the land of Abyssinia. So the verse was revealed: And among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God. And Abd Ibn Hamid and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission from Hammad Ibn Salamah, from Thabit, from Al-Hasan, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from chains of transmission from Hamid, from Anas Ibn Malik, in a manner similar to what was mentioned above. Ibn Jarir also narrated it from the hadith of Abu Bakr Al-Hudhali from Qatadah, from Saeed Ibn Al-Musayyab, from Jabir, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said when the Negus died: Your brother Ashama has died. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out and prayed as he prays over the dead, and he said four takbirs over him." The hypocrites said: He prays over a foreigner who died in Abyssinia. So God revealed: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture is he who believes in God 1:13. Abu Dawud said: Muhammad ibn Amr al-Razi told us, Salamah ibn al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, Yazid ibn Ruman told me, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said: When the Negus died, we used to say that a light could not be seen on his grave. Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak: Abu Al-Abbas Al-Siyari informed us in Marw, Abdullah bin Ali Al-Ghazal told us, Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaqiq told us, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, Mus'ab bin Thabit told us on the authority of Aamer bin Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr on the authority of his father, who said: An enemy from their land descended upon the Negus, so the Muhajireen came to him and said: We would like to go out to them so that we can fight with you and you can see our courage and we can reward you for what you did to us. He said: No, the cure for the support of God the Almighty is better than the cure for the support of people. He said: And in it was revealed: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God and in what was revealed to you and what was revealed to them, humbly submissive to God 1:13. Then he said: This is a hadith with a sound chain of transmission, and they did not include it. Ibn Abi Nujayh said on the authority of Mujahid: And indeed, among the People of the Scripture means the Muslims of the People of the Scripture. Abbad bin Mansour said: I asked Al-Hasan Al-Basri about the words of God, And indeed, among the People of the Scripture are those who believe in God 1:13. He said: They are the People of the Scripture who were before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and followed him and knew Islam, so God Almighty gave them two rewards: for the faith they had before Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and for the faith they followed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Both were narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. It was proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Abu Musa, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Three will be given their reward twice.' He mentioned among them: 'A man from the People of the Book who believed in his Prophet and believed in me.'" And the words of God the Most High: They do not exchange the verses of God for a small price, meaning they do not conceal the knowledge they have in their hands as the despicable group among them did, but rather they give it away for free. For this reason, God the Most High said: "Those will have their reward with their Lord. Indeed, God is swift in account." Mujahid said: Swift in account means swift in counting. This was narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and others. And the words of God the Most High: O you who have believed, be patient and steadfast and remain steadfast. Al-Hasan al-Basri, may God have mercy on him, said: They were commanded to be patient with their religion that God has chosen for them, which is Islam, and not to abandon it for ease or hardship, or hardship or ease, until they die as Muslims, and to be patient with the enemies who conceal their religion. This is what more than one of the scholars of the Salaf said. As for steadfastness, it is persistence in a place of worship and steadfastness. It was said: Waiting for the prayer after the prayer, said Ibn Abbas, Sahl ibn Hanif, Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi and others. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated here the hadith narrated by Muslim and al-Nasa'i from the hadith of Malik ibn Anas on the authority of al-Ala' ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Ya'qub, the freed slave of al-Harqa, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Shall I not tell you of something by which God erases sins and raises ranks? Performing ablution perfectly despite the difficulties, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, that is the riba, that is the riba, that is the riba." Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Ahmad told us, Musa ibn Ishaq told us, Abu Juhayfah Ali ibn Yazid al-Kufi told us, Ibn Abi Karimah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yazid, on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman, who said: Abu Hurayrah came to me one day and said: Do you know, my nephew, about what this verse was revealed: O you who believe, be patient and steadfast and remain stationed. I said: No. He said: As for the fact that there was no conquest in the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in which they remained stationed, but it was revealed about a people who would build mosques and pray the prayers at their appointed times, then remember God in them, so it was revealed about them: Be patient, meaning with the five daily prayers, and be patient with yourselves and your desires, and remain stationed in your mosques, and fear God in what is upon you, that you may... You will succeed. And thus Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak on the authority of Saeed bin Mansour bin Al-Mubarak on the authority of Mus'ab bin Thabit, on the authority of Dawud bin Salih, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, in a similar manner. Ibn Jarir said: Abu Al-Sa'ib told me, Ibn Fadil told me on the authority of Abdullah bin Saeed Al-Maqburi, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Shurahbil, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to something that expiates sins and transgressions? Performing ablution perfectly even when it is difficult, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, for that is the ribat." Ibn Jarir also said: Musa bin Sahl Al-Ramlī told me, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Muhammad bin Muhajir told us, Yahya bin Yazid told me on the authority of Zaid bin Abi Anisa, on the authority of Shurahbil, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not guide you to something with which God erases sins and expiates transgressions? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God. He said: Performing ablution properly in its proper places, taking frequent steps to the mosques, and waiting for the next prayer after the next, that is the ribat. Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Ali told us, Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn al-Salam al-Bayruti told us, Muhammad ibn Ghalib al-Antaki told us, Uthman ibn Abd al-Rahman told us, al-Waze' ibn Nafi' told us on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Abu Ayyub, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stopped us and said: Do you have something with which God erases sins and increases reward? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God, and what is it? He said: Performing ablution properly despite the difficulties, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the prayer after the prayer. He said: It is the saying of God the Most High: O you who believe! Be patient and endure and remain steadfast and fear God that you may be successful. So that is the guarding in the mosques. This is a very strange hadith from this aspect. Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak said on the authority of Mus'ab bin Thabit bin Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr, Dawud bin Salih told me: Abu Salamah bin Abdul Rahman said to me: O my nephew, do you know for what reason this verse was revealed: Be patient and endure and remain steadfast? He said: I said: No. He said: O my nephew, there was no raid in which guarding was done during the time of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), but it was waiting for the prayer after the prayer. Narrated by Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Mardawayh's narration of it has been presented, and that it is from the words of Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with him, and God knows best. It was said: What is meant by guarding here is guarding the raid in the throats of the enemy and protecting the borders of Islam and safeguarding them from the entry of the enemies into the lands of the Muslims. The reports have been reported. Encouraging this and mentioning the great reward for it, Al-Bukhari narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Sahl bin Sa'd Al-Sa'idi that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, A day of guarding the path of God is better than the world and everything in it.

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.

Another hadith Muslim narrated on the authority of Salman al-Farsi, on the authority of the Messenger of

God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "A day and a night of guarding the borders is better than fasting and praying for a month, and if he dies, his deeds that he used to do will continue to be attributed to him, his provision will continue to be granted to him, and he will be safe from the tribulations."

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us on the authority of Haywah bin Shuraih, Abu Hani' al-Khawlani told me that Amr bin Malik al-Junbi told him that he heard Fadala bin Ubaid say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Every dead person's deeds are sealed except for the one who died fighting in the way of God, for his deeds will increase until the Day of Resurrection and he will be safe from the trial of the grave. And this is how Abu Dawud and al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Abu Hani' al-Khawlani. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith, and Ibn Hibban also included it in his Sahih.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Yahya bin Ishaq, Hasan bin Musa and Abu Saeed told us: Ibn Lahi'ah told us, Mashrah bin Ha'an told us, I heard Uqbah bin Amir say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The deeds of every dead person are sealed except for the one who fights in the way of God, for his deeds continue until he is resurrected and he is safe from the trial. Al-Harith bin Muhammad bin Abi Usamah narrated in his Musnad on the authority of Al-Maqburi, who is Abdullah bin Yazid, with it until his saying until he is resurrected without mentioning the trial. When Ibn Lahi'ah explicitly states the hadith, then it is good, especially with the evidence that came before.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said in his Sunan: Yunus bin Abdul A'la told us, Abdullah bin Wahb told us, Al-Layth told me, on the authority of Zuhra bin Ma'bad, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever dies fighting in the way of God, his righteous deeds that he used to do will be rewarded, his provision will be given to him, he will be safe from trials, and God will raise him on the Day of Resurrection safe from terror."

Another way Imam Ahmad said: Musa told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Musa bin Wardan, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever dies as a defender of the religion will be protected from the trial of the grave, will be safe from the greatest terror, will be given provision from Paradise, and will be given the reward of a defender of the religion until the Day of Resurrection."

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Ishaq bin Isa told us, Ismail bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Amr bin Halhalah Al-Du'ali, on the authority of Ishaq bin Abdullah, on the authority of Umm Al-Darda', who traced the hadith back to the Prophet, saying: Whoever guards a place on the coasts of the Muslims for three days, it will suffice for him to guard a year.

Surat Al Imran 3:200

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Kahams told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit ibn 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr told us, he said: 'Uthman, may God be pleased with him, said while he was delivering a sermon on his pulpit: I am going to narrate to you a hadith that I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and nothing prevented me from narrating it to you except my concern for you. I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Guarding one night in the way of God is better than a thousand nights spent in prayer and fasting during the day. Ahmad also narrated it in this way on the authority of Ruh, on the authority of Kahams, on the authority of Mus'ab ibn Thabit, on the authority of 'Uthman. Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Hisham ibn 'Ammar, on the authority of 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Mus'ab ibn Thabit, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, he said: 'Uthman ibn 'Affan addressed the people and said: O people, I heard a hadith from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and nothing prevented me from narrating it to you except my concern for you and your companions. So let someone choose for himself or leave it. I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: And he, peace be upon him, said: Whoever spends a night in the way of God, it is as if he fasted and prayed a thousand nights.

Another chain of transmission On the authority of Uthman, may God be pleased with him. Al-Tirmidhi said: Al-Hasan bin Ali Al-Khalal told us, Hisham bin Abdul Malik told us, Al-Layth bin Saad told us, Abu Aqil Suhrah bin Ma'bad told us on the authority of Abu Salih, the freed slave of Uthman bin Affan, who said: I heard Uthman while he was on the pulpit saying: I concealed from you a hadith that I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, out of fear that you would separate from me. Then it occurred to me to tell you about it: Let a person choose for himself what he wants. I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: A day of guarding the land in the way of God is better than a thousand days in any other dwelling. Then Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and strange hadith from this chain of transmission. Muhammad, meaning Al-Bukhari, said: Abu Salih, the freed slave of Uthman, his name is Burkan, and others mentioned that his name was Al-Harith, and God knows best. Imam Ahmad narrated it in this way from the hadith of Al-Layth bin Saad and Abdullah bin Lahi'ah, and he added an addition at the end of it, so he, meaning Uthman, said: So let a person guard the land however he wants. Have I conveyed the message? They said: Yes. He said: O God, bear witness.

Another hadith Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi said: Ibn Abi Omar told us, Sufyan told us, Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir told us, he said: Salman Al-Farsi passed by Shurahbil bin Al-Simt, while he was stationed there and it was difficult for him and his companions, so he said: Shall I not tell you, O Ibn Al-Simt, of a hadith that I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace? He said: Yes, he said: "I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: A day of stationing in the way of God is better - or he said better - than fasting and praying for a month, and whoever dies in it will be protected from the trial of the grave, and his deeds will increase until the Day of Resurrection." Al-Tirmidhi is the only one to narrate it from this source, and he said: This is a good hadith, and in some versions there is an addition, but its chain of transmission is not continuous, and Ibn Al-Munkadir did not meet Salman. I said: It appears that Muhammad ibn al-Munkadir heard it from Shurahbil ibn al-Samat, and Muslim and al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Makhul and Abu Ubaidah ibn Uqbah, both of them from Shurahbil ibn al-Samat, who was a companion, from Salman al-Farsi from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "A day and a night of guarding the borders is better than fasting and praying for a month, and if he dies, his deeds that he used to do will continue to be attributed to him, his provision will continue to be granted to him, and he will be safe from the trial." The context of Muslim was previously mentioned separately.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said: Muhammad ibn Ismail ibn Samurah told us, Muhammad ibn Ya'la al-Salami told us, 'Umar ibn Subayh told us, on the authority of 'Abd al-Rahman ibn 'Amr, on the authority of Makhul, on the authority of Ubayy ibn Ka'b, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "For one day of guarding the cause of God, behind the backs of the Muslims, seeking reward from God, in the month of Ramadan, is greater in reward than a hundred years of worship, fasting and standing in prayer. And guarding the cause of God, for one day, behind the backs of the Muslims, seeking reward from God, in a month other than Ramadan, is better with God and has a greater reward - I think he said - than a thousand years of worship, fasting and standing in prayer. If God, the Most High, returns him to his family safely, no sin will be recorded against him for a thousand years, but good deeds will be recorded for him, and the reward of guarding will continue to flow to him until the Day of Resurrection." This is a strange hadith, rather it is rejected from this aspect, and 'Umar ibn Subayh is accused.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said: Isa bin Yunus al-Ramli told us, Muhammad bin Shuaib bin Shabur told us on the authority of Saeed bin Khalid bin Abi Tawil, I heard Anas bin Malik say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "Guarding one night in the way of God is better than a man fasting and praying with his family for a thousand years. A year is three hundred and sixty days, and a day is like a thousand years." This is also a strange hadith, and Abu Zur'ah and more than one of the imams declared this Saeed bin Khalid weak. Al-Uqayli said: His hadith is not to be followed. Ibn Hibban said: It is not permissible to use him as evidence. Al-Hakim said: He narrated fabricated hadiths on the authority of Anas.

Another hadith Ibn Majah said: Muhammad ibn

al-Sabah told us, Abd al-Aziz ibn Muhammad told us, on the authority of Salih ibn Muhammad ibn Zaydah, on the authority of Umar ibn Abd al-Aziz, on the authority of Uqbah ibn Amir al-Juhani, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, May God have mercy on the guard of the guard. There is a break in the chain of transmission between Umar ibn Abd al-Aziz and Uqbah ibn Amir, for he did not meet him, and God knows best.

Another hadith Abu Dawud said: Abu Tobah told us, Muawiyah, meaning Ibn Salam, told us, on the authority of Zaid - meaning Ibn Salam - that he heard Abu Salam say: Al-Saluli told me that Sahl Ibn Al-Hanzaliyyah told him that they traveled with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Hunayn, and they traveled for a long time until it was evening. Then the time for prayer came with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a horseman came and said: O Messenger of God, I set out before you until I climbed such-and-such mountain, and suddenly I saw the Hawazin on their back, with their camels and their sheep, gathered at Hunayn. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, smiled and said: That is the spoils of the Muslims tomorrow, God willing. Then he said: Who will guard us tonight? Anas Ibn Abi Marthad said: I will, O Messenger of God. So he said: Then ride. So he rode his horse and came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Facing this valley until you are at the top, and we will not attack from your side tonight. When morning came, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out to his prayer place, and bowed two rak'ahs, then he said: Do you want to? Did you sense your knight? A man said: O Messenger of God, we did not sense him, so he started praying. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, kept turning to the valley while he was praying, until he finished his prayer, and he said: Be glad, for your knight has come to you. We kept looking through the trees in the valley, and he had come until he stopped at the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: I went until I was at the top of this valley where you ordered me, and when morning came I climbed both valleys, and I looked but did not see anyone, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Did you come down tonight? He said: No, except to pray or to attend to a need. He said to him: It has become obligatory, so there is no harm in not doing any work after that. An-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yahya ibn Muhammad ibn Katheer al-Harrani on the authority of Abu Tuba, who is al-Rabi' ibn Nafi', on his authority.

Another Hadith Imam Ahmad said: Zaid bin Al-Habbab told us, Abd Al-Rahman bin Shuraih told us, I heard Muhammad bin Shamir Al-Ra'ini say: I heard Abu Aamer Al-Tujibi, Imam Ahmad said: And someone other than Zaid Abu Ali Al-Junbi said: I heard Abu Rayhana say: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a military expedition, and one night we came to a hill, and we spent the night there, and we were struck by severe cold until I saw someone digging a hole in the ground, entering it and throwing a shield on him. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw that from the people, he called out: Who will guard us tonight so that I may supplicate for him with a supplication that will be of merit for him? A man from the Ansar said: I will, O Messenger of God. He said: Come closer. So he came closer. He said: Who are you? So the Ansari named himself for him, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, began with the supplication and he repeated it. Abu Rayhana said: When I heard what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, supplicated with, I said: I am another man. He said: Come closer. So I came closer. He said: Who are you? He said: I said: I am Abu Rayhana. He supplicated with a supplication that was less than what he supplicated for the Ansari, then he said: The Fire is forbidden to an eye that sheds tears - or wept - out of fear of God, and the Fire is forbidden to an eye that stays awake in the way of God. Al-Nasa'i narrated from him The Fire is forbidden to the end of it on the authority of Asma bin Al-Fadl on the authority of Zaid bin Al-Habbab on his authority, and on the authority of Al-Harith bin Maskeen on the authority of Ibn Wahb on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Shuraih on his authority, and he completed it and said in the two narrations on the authority of Abu Ali Al-Junbi.

Another hadith Al-Tirmidhi said: Nasr bin Ali Al-Jahdhami told us, Bishr bin Umar told us, Shuaib bin Raziq Abu Shaiba told us, on the authority of Ata' Al-Khurasani, on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "Two eyes will not be touched by the Fire: an eye that wept out of fear of God, and an eye that spent the night guarding in the way of God." Then he said: Hasan Gharib, we do not know it except from the hadith of Shuaib bin Raziq. He said: There are narrations on this topic on the authority of Uthman and Abu Rayhana. I said They have already been mentioned, and praise and thanks be to God.

Another hadith - Imam Ahmad said: Yahya bin Ghailan told us, Rashid bin Umar told us, on the authority of Zaban, on the authority of Sahl bin Muadh, on the authority of his father Muadh bin Anas, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever guards behind the Muslims voluntarily, not for a wage from a ruler, will not see the Fire with his own eyes except as a condition of fulfilling an oath, for God says: 'There is not one of you but will pass over it.'" Ahmad, may God have mercy on him, transmitted it alone.

Another Hadith - Al-Bukhari narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Cursed is the slave of the dinar, the slave of the dirham, and the slave of the fine garment. If he is given something, he is pleased, and if he is not given something, he is displeased. Cursed and ruined, and if he is tested, he does not recover. Blessed is the slave who holds the reins of his horse in the way of God, his head disheveled and his feet dusty. If he is in the guard, he is in the guard, and if he is in the rear guard, he is in the rear guard. If he asks permission, he is not given permission, and if he intercedes, his intercession is not accepted." This is the last of the Hadiths related to this matter that could be cited, and praise be to God for His abundant blessings, over the years and days. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Mutraf bin Abdullah Al-Madani told us, Malik told us on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, who said: Abu Ubaidah wrote to Umar bin Al-Khattab, mentioning to him the Roman armies and what he feared from them. Umar wrote to him: As for what follows, no matter how hardship befalls a believing slave, God will bring relief after it, and no hardship can overcome two easements. God the Most High says in His Book: O you who believe, be patient and endure and remain steadfast and fear God that you may be successful. And thus Al-Hafiz Ibn Asakir narrated in the biography of Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak on the authority of Muhammad bin Ibrahim bin Abi Sakina, who said: Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak dictated these verses to me in Tarsus, and I bid him farewell for the departure, and he recited them with me to Al-Fudayl bin Iyad in the year 170, and in another narration, in the year 177.

Surat Al Imran 3:200

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.

O worshipper of the Two Holy Mosques, if you saw us, you would know that you are playing in worship.

He who stains his cheeks with his tears, our throats will be stained with our blood.

Or he was tiring his horses in vain, so our horses get tired on the morning

The scent of fragrance is yours, and our fragrance is the glow of hooves and the sweetest dust.

And there came to us from the words of our Prophet a true and honest saying that does not lie.

The dust of God's horses in a man's nose is not the same as the smoke of a blazing fire.

This is the book of God speaking between us. The martyr is not dead and does not lie.

He said: So I met Al-Fudayl bin Iyad with his book in the Sacred Mosque, and when he read it, his eyes filled with tears and he said: Abu Abd Al-Rahman spoke the truth and advised me. Then he said: Are you one of those who write hadith? He said: I said: Yes, he said: Then write this hadith as a rent for you to carry the letter of Abu Abd al-Rahman to us and dictate to me al-Fudayl bin Iyad: Mansur ibn al-Mu'tamir narrated to us on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that a man said: O Messenger of God, teach me an action by which I may attain the reward of those who strive in the cause of God. He said: Can you pray without slackening, and fast without breaking your fast? He said: O Messenger of God, I am too weak to be able to do that. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, if I were able to do that, I would not reach the level of those who strive in the cause of God. Or do you not know that the horse of a mujahid is not tall enough, and good deeds are written for him because of that? And the Almighty's statement: And fear God means in all your affairs and conditions, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Muadh when he sent him to Yemen: Fear God wherever you are, and follow up a bad deed with a good one, which will erase it, and treat people with good manners "so that you may succeed" meaning in this world and the hereafter. Ibn Jarir said: Yunus narrated to me, Ibn Wahb narrated to us, Abu Sakhr narrated to us. On the authority of Muhammad bin Kaab Al-Qurazi, that he used to say regarding the words of God Almighty, And fear God that you may be successful, and fear God in what is between me and you that you may be successful tomorrow when you meet me.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 200- "O you who have believed, be patient" etc. This is the tenth verse of His saying, the Most High, "Indeed, in the creation of the heavens" He concluded this surah with it because of what it included of commandments that combined the good of this world and the hereafter, so He urged patience in acts of obedience and desires, and patience: restraint, and the investigation of its meaning has been presented. And patience is patience with enemies, the majority said: that is, overcome them in patience with the hardships of war, and patience was specifically mentioned after mentioning patience because it is more difficult and arduous than it. It was said: the meaning is be patient with the prayers, and it was said: be patient with your souls from their desires, and it was said: be patient with the promise that you were promised and do not despair, and the first saying is the Arabic meaning, and from it is the saying of Antarah:

I have never seen a living being who was as patient as we are, nor who struggled as we struggle.

Meaning: Be patient with the enemy in war. His statement, and remain stationed means: Stay at the borders, tying your horses there as your enemies tie them. This is the statement of the majority of commentators. Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman said: This verse is about waiting for the next prayer, and there was no conquest in the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in which one would stay stationed. We will mention those who were excluded from this. The linguistic term ribat is the first, and it does not contradict his calling something else ribat as will be mentioned. Ribat can be applied to the first meaning, and to waiting for the prayer. Al-Khalil said: Ribat is staying at the borders and being constant in prayer. This is what he said, and he is one of the imams of language. Ibn Faris narrated on the authority of al-Shaibani that he said: It is said: connected, permanent water that does not move, and this requires extending the term ribat to other than tying horses at the borders. His statement, And fear God so do not disobey what He has prescribed for you, that you may succeed means: you will be among those who win in everything they want, and they are the successful ones.

Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding his statement, Let not the night and day of those who disbelieve deceive you, the night and day and the blessings that come to them. Ikrimah said: Ibn Abbas said, And an evil resting place means an evil home. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement, Their night and day means their striking in the lands. Abd bin Hamid, Al-Bukhari in Al-Adab Al-Mufrad, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar regarding his statement, And what is with God is best for the righteous, he said: God called them righteous because they were righteous to their fathers and sons, just as your father has a right over you, so your son has a right over you. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on his authority with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The first is more authentic, as stated by Al-Suyuti. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Zayd, Better for the righteous for those who obey God. Al-Nasa'i, Al-Bazzar, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Anas that he said: When the Negus died, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Pray over him. They said: O Messenger of God, should we pray over an Ethiopian slave? Then God revealed, And indeed, among the People of the Scripture the verse. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Jabir, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, that the hypocrites said: Look at this man, meaning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, praying over a Christian foreigner. So it was revealed. Al-Hakim narrated, and authenticated it, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, that it was revealed about the Negus. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid, who said: They are the Muslims from the People of the Scripture, from the Jews and Christians. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of al-Hasan, who said: They are the People of the Scripture who were before Muhammad and those who followed Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn al-Mubarak, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, al-Hakim, who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi in al-Shu'ab narrated on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman what we have mentioned above. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on his authority on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: As for there being no conquest in which they were stationed during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but it was revealed about a people who would build mosques, perform the prayers at their appointed times, and then remember God in them. It has been proven in Sahih and other books that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Shall I not tell you of that by which God erases sins and raises ranks: performing ablution perfectly despite the difficulties, taking frequent steps to the mosques, and waiting for one prayer after another. That is ribat, that is ribat, that is ribat." Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi who said: Be patient in your religion and persevere. The promise that I have made to you, and guard against My enemy and your enemy. Other than this has been narrated from the commentaries of the Salaf about the secret of patience in one type of obedience and patience in another type, but that does not constitute proof. Rather, it is necessary to refer to the linguistic meaning, which we have already mentioned. Many hadiths have been narrated about the virtue of ribat, and in them it is stated that ribat is for the sake of God. This refutes what Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman said, for the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, urged ribat for the sake of God, which is jihad, so what is in the verse applies to him. It has been narrated from him, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he called guarding the Muslim army ribat. Al-Tabarani included in Al-Awsat with a good chain of transmission on the authority of Anas, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about the reward of the one guarding the Muslims, so he said: Whoever guards the Muslims for a night will have the reward of those behind him who fast and pray."

The virtue of these ten verses at the end of this Surah has been reported on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as narrated by Ibn As-Sunni, Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Asakir on the authority of Abu Hurayrah: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to recite ten verses from the end of Surah Al Imran every night." In its chain of transmission is Muzahir ibn Aslam, who is weak. It was mentioned earlier in the hadith of Ibn Abbas in the two Sahihs that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited these ten verses when he woke up. It was also mentioned in other than the two Sahihs on the authority of Safwan ibn al-Mu'attal on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ad-Darimi narrated on the authority of Uthman ibn Affan, who said: Whoever recites the end of Al Imran at night, he will be credited with having spent the whole night in prayer.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

200- The Almighty said: O you who have believed, be patient and steadfast and remain steadfast. Al-Hasan said: Be patient with your religion and do not abandon it for hardship or ease. Qatada said: Be patient in obeying God.

Ad-Dahhak and Muqatil bin Sulayman said: According to the command of God.

Muqatil bin Hayyan said: To perform the duties of God Almighty. Zaid bin Aslam said: To fight in jihad.

Al-Kalbi said: On the affliction, and they were patient meaning: the infidels, and they were stationed meaning: the polytheists. Abu Ubaidah said: That is, they persisted and were steadfast. "Rabt" means tightening. The origin of ribat is that these people tie their horses, and those people their horses. Then it was said: That is for every resident in a border area who defends those behind him, even if he does not have a mount.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Abdullah bin Munir, I heard Abu Al-Nadr, I told Abdul Rahman bin Abdullah bin Dinar, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Sahl bin Saad Al-Saidi, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Surat Al Imran 3:200

O you who have believed, be patient and endure and remain stationed and fear Allah that you may be successful.

"A day's guarding in the way of God is better than the world and everything in it, and the place of one of your whips in Paradise is better than the world and everything in it, and the soul that a servant takes in the way of God, or the morning, is better than the world and everything in it."

Abu al-Hasan Ali ibn Yusuf al-Juwayni told us, Abu Muhammad Muhammad ibn Ali ibn Muhammad ibn Sharik al-Shafi'i told us, Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Muslim Abu Bakr al-Jurabadhi told us, Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Shuraih told me, on the authority of Abd al-Karim ibn al-Harith, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah ibn Uqbah, on the authority of Shurahbil ibn al-Samat, on the authority of Salman al-Khair, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever guards the land for a day and a night in the way of God will have the reward of fasting a month of residence. Whoever dies guarding the land will have the same reward, and he will be provided with provision, and he will be safe from the tribulations."

Abu Salamah ibn Abd al-Rahman said: There was no conquest in the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in which one would be stationed, but rather it was waiting for the prayer after the prayer. The evidence for this interpretation is what Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Az-Zahir ibn Ahmad al-Faqih, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of al-'Ala' ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Shall I not tell you of that by which God erases sins and raises ranks? Performing ablution perfectly despite the difficulties, taking many steps to the mosques, and waiting for the prayer after the prayer. That is stationing, that is stationing."

And fear God that you may succeed. Some of the masters of the language said: Be patient in the face of blessings, be patient in the face of hardship and distress, and remain steadfast in the home of enemies, and fear the God of the earth and the heavens that you may succeed in the eternal home.

most hostile enemy in patience in opposing desires, and specifying it after the command to be patient in general because of its severity. "And guard" your bodies and horses in the borders, waiting for the invasion, and your souls in obedience as he said, peace and blessings be upon him, "From guarding is waiting for the prayer after the prayer." And from him, peace and blessings be upon him, "Whoever guards for a day and a night in the way of God, it is as if he fasted the month of Ramadan and stood in prayer, not breaking his fast or turning away from his prayer except for a need. And fear God that you may be successful." So fear Him by disavowing everything other than Him so that you may succeed to the utmost degree, or fear ugliness so that you may succeed by attaining the three stations: the station which is patience in the face of the reluctance of obedience, the affliction of the soul in rejecting customs, and the secret guarding the side of the truth to watch for the incoming events expressed by the Shari'ah, the method, and the truth. The Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said: "Whoever recites Surat Al Imran will be given for every verse of it safety on the bridge of Hell." And he, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said: "Whoever recites the Surah in which Al Imran is mentioned on Friday, God and His angels will pray for him and grant him peace until the sun sets." And God knows best.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

200 "O you who have believed, be patient" in the hardships of obedience and the hardships that befall you. "And be patient" and overcome the enemies of God with patience in the hardships of war and your

Surat al-Nisa 4:1

O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, God is ever, over you, an Observer.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O mankind meaning the people of Mecca fear your Lord meaning His punishment by obeying Him Who created you from one soul Adam and created from it its mate Eve with a long vowel from one of his left ribs and dispersed separated and spread from them from Adam and Eve many men and women many and fear God, about whom you ask one another in which the ta' in the original is assimilated into the seen, and in a reading with a lightened vowel by deleting it, meaning you ask one another by Him where some of you say to one another: I ask you by God and I implore you by God and fear the wombs lest you sever them, and in a reading with a jar in apposition to the pronoun in it and they used to implore one another by the womb Indeed, God is ever, over you, an Observer preserving your deeds and rewarding you for them, meaning He has always been characterized by that

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by the words of God Almighty: O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul, is: Beware, O people, of your Lord, lest you disobey Him in what He has commanded you and what He has forbidden you, lest He inflict upon you a punishment that you cannot bear.

Then the Most High described Himself as the One Who created all of mankind from one person, informing His servants of how the beginning of His creation was from one soul, and reminding them thereby that they are all the sons of one man and one mother, and that some of them are from others, and that the right of some of them over others is obligatory like the right of a brother over his brother, because they are united in lineage to one father and one mother, and that what is obligatory for them in caring for each other is the right of others, even if they meet in lineage to the father who unites them, like what is obligatory for them in that in the lower lineage, and thereby connecting some of them to others, so that they may be just and not wrong each other, and so that the strong one from himself may give the guest his right in a good manner according to what God has obligated him to do, so He said: Who created you from one soul, meaning: from Adam, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for He created you from one soul, it is from Adam, peace be upon him.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul, meaning Adam, peace be upon him.

Sufyan ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Mujahid: He created you from one soul, he said: Adam.

Similar to his saying: From one soul, meaning a man, is the poet's saying:

Your father is a caliph, another woman gave birth to him, and you are a caliph, that is perfection

He said: Another woman gave birth to him, meaning the man, so he made it feminine because of the word caliph. And God Almighty said: From one soul because the word soul is feminine, and the meaning is: from one man. If it had been said: from one soul, and the word was made masculine because of the meaning, it would have been correct.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, And created from it its mate, is that He created from the single soul its mate, meaning by mate, the second for it. And according to what the people of interpretation said, it is her wife Eve.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And He created from her her mate, he said: Eve, from the short part of Adam while he was sleeping, then he woke up and said: Atha - in Nabataean, woman.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And He created from her her mate, meaning Eve, she was created from Adam, from one of his ribs.

Musa bin Harun told me, he said, Amr bin Hammad told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: Adam was made to live in Paradise, and he walked around it like a wild animal, with no wife to comfort him. Then he slept and woke up, and there was a woman sitting at his head, whom God had created from his rib. He asked her, Who are you? She said, A woman. He said, Why were you created? She said, To comfort me.

Ibn Humayd told us, Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, who said: The Sunnah was cast upon Adam, peace be upon him - according to what we have heard from the People of the Book, the People of the Torah and other people of knowledge, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abbas and others - then he took a rib from his ribs, from his left side, and fixed its place, and Adam was asleep and did not wake up from his sleep, until God, the Blessed and Exalted, created from that rib his wife Eve, and made her a woman for him to find peace with her. When the Sunnah was removed from him, he woke up from his sleep and saw her beside him, so he said - according to what they claim, and God knows best -: My flesh and blood and my wife! So he found peace with her.

Surat al-Nisa 4:1

O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear Allah, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, Allah is ever, over you, an Observer.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And He created from her her mate, He made Eve from Adam.

As for his saying: And He spread from them many men and women, he means: And He spread from them, meaning from Adam and Eve, many men and women, and he saw them, as the Most High said: Like moths scattered (al-Qari'ah 101:4).

It is said: God spread the creation, and spread them.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, he said, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And He dispersed from them many men and women, and dispersed means created.

Abu Jaafar said: The reading of this differed.

The majority of the people of Medina and Basra read it as tasa'alun with emphasis, meaning: you ask each other. Then he assimilated one of the two ta's into the seen, making them both seen with emphasis.

Some of the Kufan readers read it as tas'alun with a light pronunciation, on the example of tafa'alun.

They are two well-known readings, and two eloquent languages - I mean the light and heavy pronunciation in His statement: You ask one another about it - and whichever one the reader reads, he is correct in it. Because the meaning of that, whichever way it is read, is not different.

As for its interpretation: And fear God, O people, who, when some of you ask others, asks by Him. So the questioner says to the one being asked: I ask you by God, and I adjure you by God, and I urge you by God, and so on. The Most High says: Just as you, O people, glorify your Lord with your tongues until you see that whoever gave you his covenant and you broke it, has done something great. So likewise glorify Him by obeying Him in what He has commanded you, and avoiding what He has forbidden you, and beware of His punishment for disobeying Him in what He has commanded you or forbidden you, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, he said, he says: Fear God, through whom you make a contract and pledge.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', And fear God, through whom you ask one another, meaning: Fear God, through whom you make contracts and pledges.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas, similarly.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibn Abbas said: You ask each other about it, he said: You sympathize with it.

As for his saying: and the wombs, the people of interpretation differed in its interpretation.

Some of them said: Its meaning is: And fear God, who, when you ask among yourselves, the questioner says to the one being asked: I ask you by Him and by kinship.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibrahim: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. He said: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. He said: The man asks by God and by the womb.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: It is like a man saying: I ask you by God, I ask you by the womb, meaning his saying: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. He said: He says: I ask you by God and by the womb.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim: It is like a man saying: I ask you by the womb.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. He said, he says: I ask you by God and by the womb.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Mansur - or Mughira - on the authority of Ibrahim regarding his statement: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, he said: It is the man saying: I ask you by God and the womb.

Al-Muthanna told me, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of al-Hasan, who said: It is the saying of a man: I ask you by God and the womb. Muhammad said: And on this interpretation is the saying of some of those who read His statement: and the wombs, in the accusative case, in apposition to the wombs, on the ha' in His statement: by it, as if he meant: And fear God, by whom you ask one another, and by the wombs, so he appositioned an apparent to a hidden, lowered word. And that is not eloquent in speech among the Arabs, because they do not coordinate an apparent to a hidden word in the accusative case, except in the necessity of poetry, and that is due to the narrowness of poetry. As for speech, there is nothing that compels the speaker to choose what is disliked in speech, and what is bad in grammar. And among what came in poetry in response to an apparent to a hidden word in the accusative case, is the saying of the poet:

We free our swords like masts, and what is between them and the heel is a ditch

So he connected the heel with the ha' and the alif in his saying: between them and it is implied.

Others said: The interpretation of that is: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and fear severing the ties of kinship.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, he said: Fear God, and fear the wombs, do not sever them.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: "And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, God is ever, over you, an Observer." He mentioned to us that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: Fear God, and beautify the wombs, for it is more lasting for you in this world and better for you in the Hereafter.

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of God: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, he said: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and fear God in the matter of the wombs, so maintain ties of kinship.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, he said: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and fear Him regarding the wombs.

Sufyan told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding the statement of God: That by which you ask one another and the wombs, he said: Beware of severing the wombs.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, he said: It is the man's saying: I ask you by God and the womb.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fear God and maintain family ties.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: That by which you ask one another and the wombs, he said: Beware of severing the wombs.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told me, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: That by which you ask one another and the wombs, he said, he says: Fear God in regard to the wombs and maintain ties with them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. He said, he says: And fear God in the matter of the wombs, so maintain ties with them.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Hammad - and Abu Ja'far al-Khazzaz told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of al-Dahhak: that Ibn Abbas used to recite: And the wombs, meaning: Fear God and do not sever them.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibn Abbas said: Fear the wombs.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', he said: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, lest you sever them.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and fear severing the ties of kinship, and he recited: And those who maintain what God has commanded to be maintained (al-Ra'd: 21).

Abu Ja'far said: According to this interpretation, those who read it in the accusative case read it with the meaning: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and fear the wombs lest you sever them, in apposition to the wombs, in its accusative case, in the name of God, may He be exalted.

He said: The reading that we do not permit a reader to read other than that is the accusative: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, meaning: And fear the wombs lest you sever them, because we have already explained that the Arabs do not connect an apparent noun to a hidden noun in the accusative case, except in poetic necessity, as I have described before.

Abu Jaafar said: By this, God Almighty means: God has always been watching over you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:1

O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear Allah, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, Allah is ever, over you, an Observer.

What he means by his saying: upon you is upon the people to whom God Almighty said: O mankind, fear your Lord. When the addressee and the absent person meet in the report, the Arabs make the speech address the addressee, so they say if you address one man or a group, she and others absent with them did an action, you did such and such, and you made such and such.

By his saying: A watcher, he means a guardian, one who keeps track of your deeds, who monitors your observance of the sanctity of your kinship ties and your maintaining ties with them, and your severing them and neglecting their sanctity, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Indeed, God is ever a Watcher over you, a Preserver.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard Ibn Zayd regarding his statement: Indeed, God is ever, over you, an Observer, over your deeds, He knows them and is aware of them.

And from it is the saying of Abu Dawud Al-Ayadi:

Like the seats of the guards for the strikers, their hands are like breasts.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It is Madani except for one verse that was revealed in Makkah in the year of the conquest concerning Uthman ibn Talhah the chamberlain, which is His statement: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due (al-Nisa 4:58), as will be explained below. Al-Naqqash said: It was said that it was revealed when the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) migrated from Makkah to Madinah. Some people have said that the statement of God, O mankind wherever it occurred is Makani. Alqamah and others said that it is invalid if the beginning of the surah is Makani, and whatever was revealed after the migration is Madani. Al-Nahhas said: This surah is Makani.

I said: The first is correct, for in Sahih al-Bukhari on the authority of Aisha that she said: Surat al-Nisa was not revealed except while I was with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, meaning he had consummated the marriage with her. There is no disagreement among the scholars that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had consummated the marriage with Aisha in Medina. Whoever studies its rulings will know that it is Medinan, there is no doubt about that. As for the one who said: His saying, O people, is Meccan wherever it occurs, then that is not correct, for al-Baqarah is Medinan and in it is His saying, O people, in two places, and this has been mentioned previously. And God knows best.

There are six issues.

The first: The Almighty's saying: O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you. The derivation of people and the meaning of piety, Lord, creation, spouse, and spreading has already passed in Al-Baqarah, so there is no point in repeating it. And in the verse there is a warning about the Creator. And he said: One on the feminine of the word soul. And the word soul is feminine even if it means a masculine. And it is permissible in speech from one soul, and this is on consideration of the meaning, since what is meant by the soul is Adam, said Mujahid and Qatadah. And it is the reading of Ibn Abi Ubla, one without the ha': And spread means it dispersed and spread on the earth, and from it and carpets scattered (al-Ghashiyah 88:16) and it has already passed in Al-Baqarah, and from them means Adam and Eve. Mujahid said: Eve was created from the shorts of Adam. And in the hadith:

Woman was created from a crooked rib. It was mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah. Many men. He limited their offspring to two types, so it was necessary that the hermaphrodite is not a type, but he has a reality that returns him to these two types, which is humanity, so he is attached to one of them, based on what was mentioned previously in Surat Al-Baqarah regarding the consideration of the deficiency and excess of organs.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. He repeated the fear as an emphasis to alert the souls of those commanded. Which is in the accusative case as an adjective. Wombs is conjoined, meaning fear God lest you disobey Him, and fear the wombs lest you sever them. The people of Medina read tas'alun by assimilating the ta' into the seen. The people of Kufa read it by deleting the ta' because two ta's came together, and by softening the seen because the meaning is known. It is like His saying: And do not cooperate in sin (al-Ma'idah 5:2) and tanza' (al-Qadr 97:4) and the like. Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Qatadah, Al-A'mash, and Hamzah read Al-Arham in the genitive case. The grammarians have spoken about this. As for the Basrans, their leaders said that it is a mistake and it is not permissible to recite it. As for the Kufians, they said: It is ugly, and they did not add anything to this nor did they mention the reason for its ugliness. Al-Nahhas said: As far as I know.

Sibawayh said: It is not conjoined to the hidden noun in the genitive case, because it is like the tanween, and the tanween is not conjoined to it. A group said: It is conjoined to the manki, because they were asking questions with it. The man says: I ask you by God and the womb. This is how Al-Hasan, Al-Nakha'i and Mujahid explained it, and it is the correct view in the matter as will come. Some people, including Al-Zajaj, weakened it, and said: It is ugly to conjoin the apparent noun to the hidden noun in the genitive case except by showing the preposition, like his saying: So We caused the earth to swallow him and his house (al-Qasas 28:81). And it is ugly to say: I passed by him and Zayd. Al-Zajaj said on the authority of Al-Mazini:

Because the conjoined and the conjoined to are partners, each one of them takes the place of the other, so just as it is not permissible to say: I passed by Zayduk, likewise it is not permissible to say: I passed by you and Zayd. As for Sibawayh, it is ugly in his view and is not permissible except in poetry, as he said:

Today you are about to insult and curse us, so go away, what is wrong with you and the days?

The conjunction of days with the kaf in bak without the ba' is necessary, as is the saying of another:

We hang our swords on masts, and what is between them and the heel is a place of refuge for the weak.

The heel is attached to the pronoun in Bayhanah because of necessity. Abu Ali said: This is a weakness in analogy. In the book At-Tadhkirah Al-Mahdiyya on the authority of Al-Farisi that Abu Al-Abbas Al-Mubarrad said: If I prayed behind an imam who recites And you are not my helpers (Ibrahim 14:22) and fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs, I would take my sandals and go. Al-Zajjaj said: Hamzah, with its weakness and ugliness in Arabic, is a great mistake in the fundamentals of the matter of religion, "because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not swear by your fathers. If swearing by other than God is not permissible, then how is it permissible by the womb? I saw Ismail bin Ishaq go to the view that swearing by other than God is a grave matter, and that it is specific to God Almighty. An-Nahhas said: And the saying of some of them and the wombs is a wrong division in meaning and grammar, because the hadith from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, indicates the accusative. And Shu'bah narrated on the authority of Awn bin Abi Hanifa, on the authority of Al-Mundhir bin Jarir, on the authority of his father, who said:

We were with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when some people from Mudar came, barefoot and naked. I saw the face of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he saw their poverty. Then he prayed the noon prayer and addressed the people, saying: O people, fear your Lord and the ties of kinship. Then he said: A man gave in charity a dinar, a man gave in charity a dirham, a man gave in charity a sa' of dates, and he mentioned the hadith. The meaning of this is that it is an accusative, because he urged them to maintain ties of kinship. Also, it is authentically reported from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Whoever swears, let him swear by God or remain silent. This refutes the statement of the one who said: The meaning is I ask you by God and by kinship. Abu Ishaq said: The meaning of "you ask of Him" means you seek your rights by Him, and there is no meaning to the genitive case with this either.

I said: This is what I have come across from the statement of the scholars of language regarding the prohibition of reading al-arham in the accusative case, and Ibn Atiyyah chose it. Imam Abu al-Nasr Abd al-Rahman ibn Abd al-Karim al-Qushayri rejected it and chose the conjunction, saying: Such a statement is rejected by the imams of religion, because the readings that the imams of the reciters recited were proven from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, by continuous transmission that is known to the people of the craft. If something is proven from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he recited, then whoever rejects that has rejected from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and deemed what he recited ugly. This is a forbidden position, and the imams of language and grammar should not be imitated in it, because Arabic is received from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and no one doubts his eloquence. As for what was mentioned from the hadith, there is consideration in it, "because peace be upon him said to Abu al-Ashra'.

And your father, even if you stab him in the side." Then the prohibition only came in swearing by other than God, and this is seeking intercession with others by right of kinship, so there is no prohibition in it. Al-Qushayri said: It has been said that this is an oath by kinship, meaning fear God and by right of kinship, as you say: Do such and such by right of your father. And it came in the revelation: By the star, and the Mount, and the fig, by your life, and this is an exaggeration.

I said: Do not bother about it, for it is not far-fetched that the wombs are of this type, so he swore by it just as he swore by his creations that indicate his oneness and power, emphasizing them until he linked them to himself. And God knows best. And God can swear by whatever He wills, and forbid whatever He wills, and permit whatever He wills, so it is not far-fetched that it is an oath. And the Arabs swear by the womb. And it is correct that the ba' was intended, so he omitted it, just as he omitted it in his saying:

Pessimists are not reformers of a tribe, nor do they caw except with the crow's cry.

Fajr, even if the letter Baa' is not preceded. Ibn Al-Dahan Abu Muhammad Saeed Ibn Mubarak said: The Kufi allows the apparent to be connected to the genitive, and does not prevent it. From this is his saying:

Abak APO Source of Red Jellah Jab Hashur

And from it

So go, what is wrong with you and the days?

And the other said:

And between it and the heel is a deep valley

And from it:

Enough for you and Al-Dahhak, the sword of Muhand

And the other said:

He sought the horizons of the sky, but found no ascent therein, nor a seat on earth.

And the other said:

What is in it and the matters of the destruction of what is protected from the matter of his absence occurred

And the other said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:1

O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear Allah, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, Allah is ever, over you, an Observer.

I ordered the battalion, I don't know if I was celebrating or not

Fa sawaha is in the genitive case with fi. Some of them interpreted the words of God Almighty: And We have made for you therein means of livelihood and for those for whom you are not providers (al-Hijr 15:20) as such, so it was conjoined with the kaf and the mim. Abdullah bin Yazid read and the wombs in the nominative case as the subject and the predicate is understood, meaning: and the wombs are worthy of being connected. It is possible that it is an enticement because some Arabs raise the enticed. Al-Farra' recited:

Some of them are Umair and his likes, and among them is Al-Saffah.

Worthy of meeting if the brother of help says weapon weapon

It has been said: Inna wa al-arham in the accusative case is in apposition to the place of bih, because its place is accusative. From this is his saying:

We are neither mountains nor iron

They used to say: I ask you by God and the womb. It is more apparent that it is in the accusative case with an implied verb as we mentioned.

Third: The religion agreed that maintaining family ties is obligatory and that severing them is forbidden. It was authentically reported that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

He said to Asmaa when she asked him, Should I maintain ties with my mother? Yes, maintain ties with your mother. So he ordered her to maintain ties with her even though she was a disbeliever. To confirm this, the merit was included in maintaining ties with the disbeliever, until the matter ended with Abu Hanifa and his companions, who said that relatives inherit if there is no agnatic relationship or a specified obligation, and they are freed by whoever buys them from among their relatives because of the sanctity of the womb. They supported that with what Abu Dawud narrated, "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever owns a mahram relative is free." This is the opinion of most scholars. It was narrated on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab may God be pleased with him and Abdullah ibn Masoud, and no one among the Companions is known to have disagreed with them. It is the opinion of al-Hasan al-Basri, Jabir ibn Zayd, Ata', al-Sha'bi, and al-Zuhri, and it was adopted by al-Thawri, Ahmad, and Ishaq. Our scholars have several opinions on this matter: The first is that it is specific to fathers and grandfathers. The second is the two wings, meaning brothers. The third is like the opinion of Abu Hanifa. Al-Shafi'i said: No one may be emancipated on his behalf except his children, fathers, and mothers, and his brothers, or any of his relatives and blood relatives may be emancipated on his behalf.

The first is the correct opinion based on the hadith we mentioned, and it was narrated by al-Tirmidhi and al-Nasa'i. The best of its chains of transmission is al-Nasa'i's narration of it. It was narrated on the authority of Damrah on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of Abdullah ibn Dinar on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said:

Whoever owns a mahram relative has freed a slave for his sake. This is an authentic hadith transmitted by a just person from a just person, and none of the imams have criticized it with a reason that would require abandoning it. However, al-Nasa'i said at the end of it: This is a strange hadith. Another said: It was transmitted by Damrah alone. This is the meaning of strange and odd in the terminology of the hadith scholars, and Damrah is a trustworthy just person, and the fact that a trustworthy person is alone in transmitting a hadith does not harm it. And God knows best.

Fourth: They differed on this matter regarding the mahrams through breastfeeding. Most scholars said that they are not included in the meaning of the hadith. Sharik al-Qadi said that they should be freed. The scholars of the apparent meaning and some of the theologians said that the father does not free the slave on behalf of his son if he owns him, and they provided evidence for this by saying, peace be upon him:

A son cannot repay his father unless he finds him a slave and buys him and frees him. They said: If the purchase is valid, then ownership is established, and the owner of the property has the right to dispose of it. This is ignorance on their part of the objectives of the Shari'ah, for God the Most High says: And to parents, do good (al-Baqarah 2:83). He has linked between His worship and doing good to parents in obligation, and it is not from doing good that his father remains in his possession and under his authority, so he must free him either for the sake of ownership, in accordance with the hadith, so he buys him and frees him, or for the sake of doing good, in accordance with the verse. The meaning of the hadith according to the majority is that when the son caused his father to be freed by buying him, the Shari'ah attributed the manumission to him as a result of his having done so. As for the scholars' disagreement about who is freed by ownership, the first view is based on what we have mentioned from the meaning of the Book and the Sunnah, and the second view is to include the forbidden close kinship with the father mentioned in the hadith, and there is no one closer to a man than his son, so it is attributed to the father, and the brother is close to him in that because he is related to paternity, for he says: I am the son of his father. As for the third view, it is related to the hadith of Damrah and We mentioned it and God knows best.

Fifth - The Almighty's saying: And the wombs. The womb is a name for all relatives, without any distinction between the mahram and the non-mahram. Abu Hanifa considers the mahram to be a prohibition on taking back a gift, and it is permissible to take back the gift in the case of paternal uncles even though the severing of ties exists and kinship is established, and therefore inheritance, guardianship, and other rulings are related to it. So considering the mahram as an addition to the text of the Book without any basis. They see this as abrogation, especially since it indicates the justification of severing ties, and they have permitted it in the case of paternal uncles, maternal uncles, and maternal aunts, and God knows best.

Sixth - The Almighty said: Indeed, God is ever, over you, an Observer meaning a Guardian, according to Ibn Abbas and Mujahid. Ibn Zayd: All-Knowing. It was also said: A Guardian, a Preserver. It was also said: meaning an agent. So the Guardian is one of the attributes of God Almighty, and the Guardian is the Preserver and the Awaiter. You say: A Guardian, I watch over a neck and a guard, if you wait. The Guardian is the high, overlooking place, where the Guardian stands. The Guardian is the third arrow of the seven that have shares. It is also said that the Guardian is a type of snake, so it is a common word. And God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says, commanding His creation to fear Him, which is to worship Him alone, with no partner for Him, and reminding them of His power with which He created them from a single soul, which is Adam, peace be upon him, and created from it its mate, which is Eve, peace be upon her, who was created from his left rib, from behind him while he was asleep. He woke up and saw her and she pleased him, so he felt comfortable with her and she felt comfortable with him. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad bin Muqatil told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of Abu Hilal, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Woman was created from man, so her desire was made for man, and man was created from the earth, so his desire was made for the earth, so keep your women. And in the authentic hadith: "Woman was created from a rib, and the most crooked part of the rib is its top. If you try to straighten it, you will break it, and if you enjoy her, you will enjoy her even though she is crooked." And His statement: And He dispersed from both of them many men and women means He dispersed from them, that is, from Adam and Eve, many men and women, and He spread them in the regions of the world with their different types, characteristics, colors and languages, then to Him after that is the return and gathering. Then the Almighty said: And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs meaning, fear God by obeying Him. Ibrahim, Mujahid and Al-Hasan said, Through whom you ask one another meaning as it is said: I ask you by God and by the womb. Ad-Dahhak said: And fear God, through whom you make a contract and a promise, and fear the wombs that you sever them, but be kind to them and maintain ties of kinship. This was said by Ibn Abbas, Ikrimah, Mujahid, Al-Hasan, Ad-Dahhak, Ar-Rabi' and others. Some of them read: and the wombs in the accusative case in apposition to the pronoun in by meaning, you ask one another by God and by the wombs, as Mujahid and others said. And His statement: Indeed, God is ever, over you, an Observer meaning, He is watching all your circumstances and actions, as He said: And God is, over all things, Witness. In the authentic hadith: Worship God as if you see Him, and if you do not see Him, then He sees you. This is guidance and an order to be aware of the Watcher. That is why God the Almighty mentioned that the origin of creation is from one father and one mother so that some of them may be kind to one another and compassionate towards their weak ones. It has been proven in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Jarir ibn Abdullah al-Bajali that when those men from Mudar came to the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and they were naked and poor, he stood up and addressed the people after the noon prayer and said in his sermon: O people, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul, until he concluded the verse. He said: O you who have believed, fear God and let every soul look to what it has put forth for tomorrow. Then he urged them to give charity, saying: A man gives charity from his dinar, from his dirham, from a sa' of wheat, from a sa' of dates. And he mentioned the rest of the hadith, and this is how Ahmad and the people of the Sunnah narrated it on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud in the sermon of need, in which he then recites three verses, one of which is: O mankind, fear your Lord.

Fath al-Qadir

It is all Medinan. Al-Qurtubi said: Except for one verse that was revealed in Mecca in the year of the conquest about Uthman bin Talha the chamberlain, which is the verse of God the Almighty: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due as will come, God willing. Al-Naqqash said: It was said: It was revealed when the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) migrated from Mecca to Medina. Based on what was mentioned previously by some scholars, that the verse of God the Almighty: O people wherever it occurs, is Meccan, it is necessary for this surah to be Meccan, and this is what Alqamah and others said. Al-Nahhas said: This verse is Meccan. Al-Qurtubi said: The first is correct, for in Sahih Al-Bukhari on the authority of Aisha that she said: Surat An-Nisa was not revealed except while I was with the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him). Meaning, he had consummated the marriage with her. There is no disagreement among the scholars that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) consummated the marriage with Aisha in Medina, and whoever studies its rulings will know that it is Medinan, there is no doubt about it. He said: As for the one who said: O people, it is Meccan wherever it occurred, it is not correct, because Surat Al-Baqarah is Medinan and it contains O people in two places. Ibn Al-Durai narrated in his Fadhail, and An-Nahhas in his Naskh, Ibn Mardawayh, and Al-Bayhaqi in Ad-Dala'il on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Surat An-Nisa was revealed in Medina. In its chain of transmission is Al-Awfi, who is weak. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Abdullah bin Az-Zubayr and Zaid bin Thabit, and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated it on the authority of Qatadah.

Regarding the merits of this Surah, Al-Hakim narrated

Surat al-Nisa 4:1

O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear Allah, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, Allah is ever, over you, an Observer.

in his Mustadrak on the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, who said: There are five verses in Surat An-Nisa that I would not be pleased to have the whole world and what is in it for them: Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom 4:10, If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden 4:10, Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him 4:10, And if they were to wrong themselves 4:10. Then he said: This is a sound chain of transmission if Abd al-Rahman bin Abdullah bin Masoud heard it from his father, and there is disagreement about that. Abd al-Razzaq narrated it on the authority of Muammar on the authority of a man on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: There are five verses from An-Nisa that I love more than the whole world: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden 4:10, And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it 4:10, Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him 4:10, Whoever does evil or wrongs himself 4:10, And those who believe in God and His Messengers and make no distinction between any of them 4:10. Ibn Jarir narrated it. Then it was narrated by way of Salih al-Mari on the authority of Qatada on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Eight verses were revealed in Surat An-Nisa that are better for this nation than what the sun rises and sets upon. He mentioned what Ibn Masoud mentioned, and added God wants to make clear to you the verse God wants to accept your repentance the verse God wants to lighten your burden the verse. Ahmad, Ibn Ad-Durais, Muhammad ibn Nasr, Al-Hakim who authenticated it and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Aisha that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Whoever takes the seven is a scholar. Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Ash-Shu'ab on the authority of Wathilah ibn Al-Asqa' who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: In place of the Torah, I was given the seven long ones and the hundreds, each surah reaching one hundred or more, and the Mathani is each surah below one hundred and above the Mufassal. Abu Ya'la, Ibn Khuzaymah, Ibn Hibban, Al-Hakim who authenticated it and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Shu'ab narrated on the authority of Anas who said: "One night the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) felt something. When morning came, it was said: 'O Messenger of God, the effects of the pain on you are clear.' He said: 'As for me, as you can see, praise be to God, I have recited the seven long verses.'" Ahmad narrated on the authority of Hudhayfah who said: "I stood with the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and he recited the seven long verses in seven rak'ahs." Abd al-Razzaq narrated on the authority of some of the Prophet's family that "the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) recited the seven long verses in one rak'ah." Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Ask me about Surat An-Nisa', for I recited the Qur'an when I was young. Al-Hakim said: It is authentic according to the criteria of Al-Bukhari and Muslim, but they did not narrate it. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated in Al-Musannaf on his authority that he said: Whoever recites Surat An-Nisa' will know what is hidden from what is not hidden, the knowledge of inheritance.

The people who are present when addressed are from the children of Adam, and those who will exist are included by external evidence, which is the consensus that they are charged with what those who exist are charged with, or the predominance of those who exist over those who do not exist, as males are predominated over females in His statement, Fear your Lord, because this is specific to the masculine plural. What is meant by one soul here is Adam. Ibn Abi Ubla read one without a ha in consideration of the meaning, so the feminine is in consideration of the wording, and the masculine is in consideration of the meaning. His statement 1- And created from it its mate It was said: It is conjoined with an implied meaning indicated by the speech: i.e. He created you from one soul, which He created first, and created from it its mate. It was said: to your creation, so the second verb is included with the first in the scope of the relative clause. The meaning is: And He created from that soul, which is the expression of Adam, its mate, which is Eve. The meaning of piety, Lord, mate, and dissemination has already been mentioned in Al-Baqarah, and the pronoun in His statement from it refers to Adam and Eve, which are expressed by the soul and mate. His saying much is a description confirming what the plural form indicates, as it is one of the plurals of abundance. It was said: It is an attribute of a deleted source: i.e. a lot of dissemination. His saying and women means many, and leaving it explicit is sufficient with the first description. His saying and fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs The people of Kufa read without the second taa', and its original is tatas'aa'alun to make it easier to combine two similar words. The people of Medina, Ibn Kathir, Abu Amr and Ibn Amir read with the assimilation of the taa' into the seen, and the meaning is: Some of you ask one another by God and the womb, as they used to combine them in asking and appealing, so they would say: I ask you by God and the womb, and I implore you by God and the womb. Al-Nakha'i, Qatadah, Al-A'mash and Hamzah read and the wombs in the genitive case. The rest read it in the accusative case.

The scholars of grammar differed in explaining the reading of the accusative. As for the Basrans, they said: It is a mistake and it is not permissible to read it. As for the Kufians, they said: It is an ugly reading. Sibawayh said in explaining this ugliness: The hidden accusative is like the tanween, and the tanween is not conjoined with it. Al-Zajaj and a group said that it is ugly to conjoin the apparent noun with the hidden in the accusative except by repeating the preposition, like the Almighty's saying: So We caused the earth to swallow him and his home. Sibawayh permitted that in poetic necessity, and he recited:

Today you are about to insult and praise us, so go away, what is wrong with you and the days?

And the same is said by another:

Our swords are hung on the masts, and what is between them and the heel is a hall of fanfare.

By referring the heel to the pronoun in between them. Abu Ali al-Farisi narrated that al-Mubarrad said: If I prayed behind an imam who recites And fear God, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs in the accusative case, I would take my shoes and go. Imam Abu Nasr al-Qushayri responded to what those who criticized the accusative case said, saying: Such talk is rejected by the imams of religion, because the recitations recited by the imams of the reciters have been proven from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, by continuous transmission. It is not hidden from you that the claim of continuous transmission is false, as is known to those who know the chains of transmission that narrated it. However, the evidence for its permissibility should be based on the occurrence of that in the poetry of the Arabs, as mentioned above, and as in the saying of some of them:

And enough for you and Al-Dahhak Saif Muhand

And the other said:

He sought the horizons of the sky, but found no ascent therein, nor a seat on earth.

And the other said:

What is wrong with it and the things that are ruined?

And the other said:

I went to the battalion, I don't know if I celebrated there or not

So he made it in the accusative case in apposition to the pronoun in in it, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: And We have made for you therein means of livelihood and for those for whom you are not providers. As for the reading of the half, its meaning is clear and evident because it is an apposition of the womb to the noble name: that is, fear God and fear the wombs and do not sever them, for they are among what God has commanded to be connected. And it was said: It is an apposition to the position of the preposition and noun in His saying by Him, like your saying, I passed by Zaid and Amr, that is, fear God through whom you ask one another and ask one another by the wombs. And the first is more appropriate. And Abdullah bin Yazid read and the wombs in the nominative case as the subject and the predicate is understood: that is, and the wombs, maintain them, or and the wombs are worthy of being connected. And it was said: The nominative case is for enticement for those who raise it, and from this is the saying of the poet:

Some of them are Umair and those like Umair, and some of them are Al-Saffah.

Worthy of meeting if brother says help weapon weapon

Wombs: a name for all relatives, without distinction between mahrams and non-mahrams. There is no disagreement on this among the scholars of Islamic law or the linguists. Abu Hanifa and some of the Zaidis specified the womb as mahrams in prohibiting taking back a gift, while agreeing that its meaning is more general. There is no basis for this specification. Al-Qurtubi said: The religion agreed that maintaining kinship ties is obligatory and that severing them is forbidden. End quote. Many authentic hadiths have been reported on this. The observer: the watcher, and it is an exaggerated form. It is said: I watched, I watched, I watched, I waited.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

1- The Almighty said: O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul, meaning: Adam, peace be upon him, and created from it its mate, meaning:

Eve, And He spread from them, spread and showed, many men and women, and fear God, through whom you ask one another, meaning: you ask one another, and the people of Kufa read with a light sin, deleting one of the two ta's, like the Almighty's saying: And do not cooperate, "and the wombs," the reading of the general public with the accusative, meaning: and fear the wombs lest you sever them, and Hamza read with the genitive, meaning: through Him and the wombs, as it is said: I asked you by God and the wombs, and the first reading is more eloquent because the Arabs hardly coordinate an apparent with a hidden except by repeating the genitive and saying: I passed by him and Zayd, except that it is permissible with its scarcity, Indeed, God is ever, over you, a Watcher, meaning: a Preserver.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

1 O mankind is an address to all the children of Adam. Fear your Lord, who created you from a single soul that is, Adam. And created from it its mate is in apposition to your creation, meaning He created you from a single person and created from it your mother Eve from one of his ribs, or something omitted, the estimate being from a single soul that He created and from it He created its mate, and it is a confirmation of their creation from a single soul. And He dispersed from both of them many men and women is an explanation of how they were born from them, and the meaning is, He dispersed from that soul and mate created from it many sons and daughters, and He was satisfied with describing men as being many instead of describing women as such, since wisdom requires that they be more, and He mentioned many in order to carry the plural and arrange the command to fear God based on this story because of what it contains of evidence of the overwhelming power that it is right to fear, and the dazzling blessing that requires obedience to its Master, or because what is meant by it is to prepare the command to fear God in what is connected to the rights of the people of his house and his kind, as indicated by the verses that follow it. The word Khaliq and Bath were read with the subject omitted, which is Khaliq and Bath. "And fear God, by whom you ask one another," meaning you ask one another, you say I ask you by God, and its original form is you ask one another, so the second tā' was assimilated into the sīn. Asim, Hamzah, and Al-Kisa'i read it without mentioning it. And the wombs in the accusative case, in apposition to the place of the prepositional phrase, like saying I passed by Zayd and Amr, or upon God, meaning fear God and fear the wombs, maintain ties with them and do not sever them. Hamzah read it in the genitive case, in apposition to the genitive pronoun, which is weak because it is like some part of the word. It was read in the nominative case, as a subject with the predicate omitted, which is and the wombs likewise, meaning that which is feared or asked about. God, the Most High, has pointed out when He linked the wombs with His noble name that their connection is in a place in Him. And it was narrated from him, peace and blessings be upon him, The womb is suspended from the throne, saying, 'Whoever maintains ties with me, God will maintain ties with him, and whoever severs ties with me, God will sever ties with him.' "Indeed, God is ever, over you, a watcher," preserving and knowing.

Surat al-Nisa 4:1

O mankind, fear your Lord, who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women. And fear Allah, through whom you ask one another, and the wombs. Indeed, Allah is ever, over you, an Observer.

Surat al-Nisa 4:2

And give the orphans their property, and do not exchange the bad for the good, and do not consume their property with your property. Indeed, that is a great sin.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed about an orphan who asked his guardian for his money, but he refused him: And give the orphans the young ones who have no father their money when they reach adulthood and do not exchange the bad the forbidden for the good the permissible, that is, take it in its place as you do when you take the good money of the orphan and replace it with the bad money of your own and do not consume their money joined to your money, for indeed that is, consuming it is a great sin a grave fault.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By this, the Almighty means the guardians of orphans. He says to them: And give, O group of guardians of orphans [orphans] their money when they reach puberty and maturity, and do not exchange the bad for the good, meaning: And do not exchange their money that is forbidden to you for your money that is lawful for you, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told us, Abu Asim told us, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the words of God Almighty: And do not exchange the bad for the good, he said: The lawful for the unlawful.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Sufyan told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And do not exchange the bad for the good, he said: The forbidden in place of the permissible.

Abu Jaafar said: Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the description of their changing the bad into the good, which they were forbidden from, and its meaning.

Some of them said: The guardians of the orphans used to take the good and the high of his money, and give the orphan the bad and the lowly in its place. That is their exchange, which God Almighty forbade them from.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim: And do not exchange the bad for the good, he said: Do not give falsehood and take the good.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Suddi, and on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, and Muammar on the authority of Al-Zuhri, they said: He gives to the thin and takes to the fat.

And on his authority, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, he said: Do not give to corrupt people, and take good people.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not exchange the bad for the good. One of them would take a fat sheep from the orphan's flock and replace it with a skinny sheep, and say: A sheep for a sheep! And he would take the good dirham and replace it with the fake one, and say: A dirham for a dirham!!

Others said: The meaning of this is: Do not rush for unlawful sustenance and eat it before what is decreed for you from the lawful comes to you.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And do not exchange the bad for the good, he said: Do not rush into unlawful sustenance before the lawful sustenance that has been decreed for you comes to you.

And on his authority, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Saleh, the same.

Others said: The meaning of that is like the one who:

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And do not exchange the good for the bad, he said: The people of ignorance did not give inheritance to women or to children, the eldest would take it, and he recited: And you desire to marry them, he said: If they do not have anything: And the weak among children (al-Nisa 4:127), they do not give them inheritance. He said: So his share of the inheritance is good, and what he took is bad.

Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate of these sayings in interpreting the verse is the saying of the one who said: The interpretation of that is: And do not exchange the wealth of your orphans - O guardians - that is forbidden to you and bad for you, so that you take its best, finest and finest, with the good and lawful for you from your wealth, [i.e. do not take] the bad and base in its place.

This is because exchanging one thing for another in the speech of the Arabs means taking one thing in place of another, giving it to the one from whom it was taken or making it in place of the one who took it.

If this is the meaning of exchange and substitution, then it is known that what Ibn Zayd said, that the meaning of this is that the eldest son of the deceased takes all the wealth of his deceased and his father, without the younger ones, to his wealth - is a statement that has no meaning. Because if the eldest of his sons takes all his wealth without the younger ones, then he does not replace anything of what he took, so what is the exchange that God, the Most High, said: And do not exchange the bad for the good, and the taking is not replaced with a substitute?

Surat al-Nisa 4:2

And give the orphans their property, and do not exchange the bad for the good, and do not consume their property with your property. Indeed, that is a great sin.

As for what Mujahid and Abu Salih said, that the meaning of this is: Do not hasten to obtain unlawful provisions before the arrival of lawful provisions, then even if they did not mean by that something similar to the statement narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, who said: A man is deprived of provisions because of the sin he commits, then its corruption is similar to the corruption of the statement of Ibn Zayd. Because whoever hastens to obtain unlawful provisions and eats them, then God gives him lawful provisions, so He has not replaced one thing with another. And if they meant by that that God, the Most High, forbade His servants from hastening to obtain unlawful provisions and eating them before the arrival of lawful provisions, so that their eating of that would be a reason for depriving them of good provisions, then that is a well-known aspect and a reasonable doctrine that can be interpreted. However, the most similar [of the two statements] in that regard to the interpretation of the verse is what we have said, because that is the most apparent of its meanings, because God, the Most High, mentioned that in the story of the orphans' wealth and its rulings, so it is more appropriate for that to be of the same type as the ruling of the beginning and end of the verse than for it to be of a different type.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: Do not mix their money - meaning the money of orphans - with your money, so that you eat it with your money, as:

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And do not consume their wealth along with your wealth, he said: Do not consume your wealth and their wealth, mixing them together and consuming them all together.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Mubarak, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: When this verse was revealed about the wealth of orphans, they were reluctant to mix with them, and the guardian of the orphan began to separate the wealth of the orphan from his own wealth, so they complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so God revealed: "And they ask you about orphans. Say, 'Improvement for them is best. But if you mix with them, they are your brothers'" (al-Baqarah 2:220). He said: So mix with them and fear God.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means [by His saying]: Indeed, it was a great sin, that your consuming the wealth of your orphans is a great sin.

The letter ha in his saying: it indicates the noun of the verb, I mean eating.

As for hawb, it is a sin. It is said from it: A man sinned, he sinned, he committed a sin, he sinned, he committed a sin. It is also said from it: A man sinned from such-and-such, if he felt guilty about it. From it is the saying of Umayyah ibn al-Askar al-Laythi:

And the immigrants will surround him tomorrow, they have made a mistake and favored him

Hence, it was said: We descended into a place of bad land, or into a place of bad land, if they descended into a bad place of it.

And the great and mighty.

This means: If you consume the money of orphans along with your own money, it is a great sin before God.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr and Amr bin Ali told me, they said: Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: a great sin, he said: a crime.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Indeed, it was a great sin, he said: a great crime.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: It was a sin. As for sin, it means a crime.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement, sin, he said: a sin.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: It was a great sin, meaning: a great injustice.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard Ibn Zayd say regarding His statement: Indeed, it was a great sin, he said: A great sin, and it is for the people of Islam.

Amr bin Ali told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, Qara bin Khalid told us, I heard Al-Hasan say: A great sin, he said: A great sin, by God.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has five issues:

The first is the Almighty's saying: And give the orphans their property. By orphans he meant those who were orphans, like the Almighty's saying: And the magicians fell down prostrating (al-A'raf 7:120). There is no magic with prostration, so it is not complete with puberty. "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was called: 'The orphan of Abu Talib,'" as a continuation of what was. And they gave means they gave. Giving and giving, and to so-and-so they gave, meaning a gift, Abu Zaid: they gave the man a gift, which is a bribe. And the orphan is the one who has not reached puberty, and it has been presented in full in Surat Al-Baqarah. This verse is addressed to the guardians and trustees. It was revealed - according to Muqatil and Al-Kalbi - about a man from Ghatafan who had a lot of money for his nephew who was an orphan. When the orphan reached puberty, he asked for the money but his uncle refused him, so it was revealed. The uncle said: We seek refuge in God from the great sin! And he returned the money. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever protects himself from the greed of his soul and returns with it like this, his home, meaning his paradise, will be made lawful. So when the young man received the money, he spent it in the way of God. So he, peace be upon him, said: The reward is established, but the sin remains. So it was said: How, O Messenger of God? So he said: The reward is established for the young man, but the sin remains for his father, because he was a polytheist.

Second: Giving orphans their money is done in two ways: One of them is providing food and clothing as long as the guardianship is in place, as this is not possible except for someone who does not deserve to take it completely and to dominate, such as the young and the foolish, such as the old. Second: Giving and handing over the money to him, and that is when he is tested and guided, and calling him a metaphor for the meaning: the one who was an orphan, and it is the continuation of the name, as in the saying of God the Almighty: And the magicians fell down prostrating meaning those who were magicians. And "the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was called: the orphan of Abu Talib" so if the guardian is certain of his maturity, it is forbidden for him to withhold his money from him and he is a disobedient person. Abu Hanifa said: If he reaches twenty-five years of age, he is given all of his money in any case, because he becomes a grandfather.

I said: Why did God not mention in this verse the perception of maturity and mention it in His saying: "And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them maturity, release their property to them." Abu Bakr al-Razi al-Hanafi said in Ahkam al-Qur'an: Since maturity was not restricted in one place and restricted in another, it is obligatory to use both. So I say: If he reaches twenty-five years of age and he is a fool and maturity is not perceived in him, the money must be given to him. If he is younger than that, it is not obligatory, in accordance with the two verses. Abu Hanifa said: When he reaches maturity, he becomes fit to be a grandfather. So if he becomes fit to be a grandfather, how is it correct to give him money under the pretext of being an orphan and in the name of an orphan?! Is that not extremely far-fetched? Ibn al-Arabi said: This is invalid and has no basis, especially according to his principle that sees that predetermined things are not proven by analogy but rather are taken from the text, and not in this issue. And what the scholars have said about the stone will come, God willing.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And do not exchange the bad for the good. That is, do not exchange the fat sheep from the orphan's money for the skinny one, nor the good dirham for the fake one. In the pre-Islamic period, due to their lack of religion, they did not hesitate to use the money of orphans. They would take the good and pure money from the orphans' money and exchange it for the bad money from their own money, and say: A name for a name and a head for a head. So God forbade them from doing that. This is the saying of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Zuhri, As-Suddi, and Ad-Dahhak, and it is the apparent meaning of the verse. It was said: The meaning is do not eat the money of orphans while it is forbidden and bad and leave the good money which is yours. Mujahid and Abu Salih Bazan said: Do not rush to eat the bad money from their money and leave waiting for the lawful provision from God.

Ibn Zayd said: The people of the pre-Islamic era did not give inheritance to women and children, and the eldest would take the inheritance. Ata': Do not profit from your orphan who is with you while he is still a young child. These two statements are outside the apparent meaning of the verse, because it is said: He exchanged something for something meaning he took its place. And from this comes the word badal.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: And do not consume their wealth with your wealth. Mujahid said: This verse prohibits mixing in spending, because the Arabs used to mix their spending with the spending of their orphans, so he prohibited that, then it was abrogated by His saying: But if you mix with them, then they are your brothers. (al-Baqarah 2:220) Ibn Furak said on the authority of Al-Hasan: People interpreted this verse as prohibiting mixing, so they avoided it on their own, so it was made easier for them in the verse of Al-Baqarah. A group of later scholars said: To means with, like the Almighty's saying: Who will be my helpers for the sake of God? (Al Imran 3:52), and Al-Qutbi recited:

They close the doors of the domes with atrophy to the stubbornness of the strong bonds

It is not good. The experts said that it is on its door and it includes addition, meaning do not add their money and include it with your money in eating. So they were forbidden to think of the money of orphans as their money and to take control of it by eating and benefiting from it.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: Indeed, it was a great sin. It means eating. It was a great sin, meaning a great transgression, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, and others. It is said: A man committed a sin, if he sinned. Its origin is to deter camels, so the sin was called a sin because it is deterred from and with it. It is said in supplication: O God, forgive my sin, meaning my transgression. And the need is also needed. And from it in supplication: To You I raise my sin, meaning my need. And the need is loneliness, and from it is "his saying, peace be upon him, to Abu Ayoub.

The divorce of Umm Ayoub is a lie. There are three

Surat al-Nisa 4:2

And give the orphans their property, and do not exchange the bad for the good, and do not consume their property with your property. Indeed, that is a great sin.

languages for it: "Huba" with a damma on the ha, which is the reading of the common people and the language of the people of the Hijaz. Al-Hasan read Huba with a fatha on the ha. Al-Akhfash said: It is the language of Tamim Muqatil, the language of the Abyssinians.

Al-Hawb is the source, as is al-Hayabah. Al-Hawb is the noun, and Abi bin Kaab read Haab as a source like al-Qal. It is permissible for it to be a noun like al-Zad. Al-Hawab with a hamza after the waw: the wide place, and al-Hawab is also water. It is said: God attached al-Hawbah to him, meaning poverty and need, and from this is his saying: He spent the night in a bad neighborhood, and the origin of the ya and the waw. So-and-so worshipped, meaning he threw away al-Hawb from himself, and al-Tahawb is also sadness. It is also a loud cry, like a warning, and so-and-so is in pain from such-and-such, and Tufail said:

So taste as we tasted on the day of the quarry, from the rage in our livers and the resentment.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God orders that the orphans' money be given to them when they reach puberty, in full and in sufficient quantity, and He forbids eating it and adding it to their money. That is why He said: And do not exchange the bad for the good. Sufyan al-Thawri said on the authority of Abu Salih: Do not hasten to take unlawful sustenance before the lawful sustenance that has been decreed for you comes to you. Saeed bin Jubair said: Do not exchange the unlawful wealth of the people for the lawful wealth of yours. He said: Do not squander your lawful wealth and eat their unlawful wealth. Saeed bin al-Musayyab and al-Zuhri said: Do not give to the lean and take the fat. Ibrahim al-Nakha'i and al-Dahhak said: Do not give to the fake and take the good. Al-Suddi said: One of them would take a fat sheep from the orphan's flock and replace it with a lean sheep and say: A sheep for a sheep, and he would take the good dirham and replace it with the fake and say: A dirham for a dirham. And His statement, And do not consume their wealth with your wealth, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubair, Muqatil bin Hayyan, As-Suddi and Sufyan bin Husayn said: That is, do not mix them and consume them all. And His statement, Indeed, it was a great sin, Ibn Abbas said: That is, a great and immense sin. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about His statement, a great sin, and he said, a great sin. However, in its chain of transmission is Muhammad bin Yusuf Al-Kadimi, who is weak. It was narrated thus on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Ibn Sirin, Qatadah, Muqatil bin Hayyan, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Malik, Zaid bin Aslam and Abu Sinan, like the statement of Ibn Abbas. And in the hadith narrated in Sunan Abi Dawud: Forgive us our sins and our mistakes. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Wasil, the freed slave of Abu Uyaynah, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that Abu Ayyub divorced his wife, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O Abu Ayyub, divorcing Umm Ayyub was a sin. Ibn Sirin said: Sin is wrong. Then Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdul-Baqi told us, Bishr ibn Musa told us, Hudha ibn Khalifa told us, Awf told us, on the authority of Anas, that Abu Ayyub wanted to divorce Umm Ayyub, so he asked the Prophet's permission, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Divorce of Umm Ayyub is a sin. So he kept her. Then Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak from the hadith of Ali ibn Asim, on the authority of Hamid Al-Tawil, I heard Anas ibn Malik also say: Abu Talhah wanted to divorce his wife Umm Sulaym, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Divorce of Umm Sulaym is a sin. So he stopped. The meaning is: Your consuming their wealth along with your wealth is a great sin and a grave mistake, so avoid it. And His statement: And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three, meaning, if there is an orphan girl under one of you and he fears that he will not be able to give her a dowry like hers, then let him turn to other women, for they are many and God has not made things difficult for him. Al-Bukhari said: Ibrahim bin Musa told us, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Hisham bin Urwah told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: That a man had an orphan girl and he married her, and she had a bunch of dates, and he used to keep her for him, but she did not have any share in his money, so And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly, was revealed concerning him. I think he said: She was his partner in that bunch of dates and in his money. Then Al-Bukhari said: Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah told us. Ibrahim bin Saad narrated to us on the authority of Salih bin Kaysan on the authority of Ibn Shihab who said: Urwah bin Az-Zubayr informed me that he asked Aisha about the statement of God the Almighty: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, she said: O son of my sister, this orphan girl is in the care of her guardian and shares his wealth with him, and he is pleased with her wealth and her beauty, so her guardian wants to marry her without being just in her dowry, so he gives her the same as someone else, so they were forbidden to marry them unless they were just with them and gave them the highest dowry possible, and they were commanded to marry whatever women they liked other than them. Urwah said: Aisha said: The people asked the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) for a legal opinion after this verse, so God revealed: And they ask you concerning women. Aisha said: God's statement in the other verse: And you desire to marry them is the desire of one of you for his orphan girl if she is of little wealth and beauty. So they were forbidden to marry the orphan women whose wealth and beauty they desired except in a just manner, because of their desire for them if they are of little wealth and beauty. And His statement: Two, three, four means marry as many women as you wish other than them, if one of you wishes two, or three, or four.

God the Almighty said: He has made the angels messengers with wings, two or three or four. That is, some of them have two wings, some of them have three, and some of them have four. He does not deny anything other than that in the angels because of the evidence for it, unlike limiting men to four. This verse, as Ibn Abbas and the majority of scholars said, is an example of gratitude and permission. If it were permissible to marry more than four, He would have mentioned it. Al-Shafi'i said: The Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which is clear from God, indicates that it is not permissible for anyone other than the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to marry more than four women. What Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said is agreed upon by the scholars, except for what was reported from a group of the Shi'a, that it is permissible to marry more than four up to nine. Some of them said: without limitation. Some of them may hold fast to the action of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in combining more than four to nine, as proven in the two Sahihs. As for eleven, as mentioned in some of the words of Al-Bukhari: Al-Bukhari suspended it, and we have narrated on the authority of Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married fifteen women, and consummated thirteen of them, and he had eleven wives, and he died with nine. This is, according to scholars, one of his characteristics, unlike any other in the nation, because of the hadiths that we will mention indicating the limitation to four. Let us mention the hadiths on this matter. Imam Ahmad said: Ismail and Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us: Mu'mar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri. Ibn Ja'far said in his hadith: Ibn Shihab told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, that Ghailan bin Salamah al-Thaqafi converted to Islam and had ten wives. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him, Choose four of them. When he was in the time of 'Umar, he divorced his wives and divided his wealth among his sons. report of that reached 'Umar, who said, "I think that the devil, in what he eavesdrops on, heard of your death and cast it into your mind. Perhaps you will not live long. By God, you will take back your wives and take back your wealth, or I will inherit them from you, and I will pass by your grave and stone you as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned." And thus it was narrated by Al-Shafi'i, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, Al-Darqutni, Al-Bayhaqi and others, through various chains of transmission on the authority of Ismail bin Aliyah, Ghundar, Yazid bin Zari', Sa'id bin Abi Arubah, Sufyan Al-Thawri, 'Isa bin Yunus, 'Abd Al-Rahman bin Muhammad Al-Maharbi, Al-Fadl bin Musa and others from the Hafiz, on the authority of Mu'ammarr with his chain of transmission similar to it until he said: Choose four of them. The rest of the hadith in the story of 'Umar is from the individuals of Ahmad, and it is a good addition, but it is weak because Al-Bukhari explained this hadith in what Al-Tirmidhi narrated from him, where he said after narrating it: I heard Al-Bukhari say: This hadith is not preserved. What is correct is what Shu'ayb and others narrated on the authority of Al-Zuhri. I was told on the authority of Muhammad bin Suwaid Al-Thaqafi that Ghailan bin Salamah - and he mentioned it. Al-Bukhari said: The hadith of Al-Zuhri is on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, that a man from Thaqeef divorced his wives, so 'Umar said to him: Either you take your wives back or I will stone your grave as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned. This explanation is questionable, and God knows best. Abd al-Razzaq narrated it from Muammarr from al-Zuhri as a mursal. Malik narrated it from al-Zuhri as a mursal in the same way. Abu Zur'ah said: It is more authentic. Al-Bayhaqi said: Aqil narrated it from al-Zuhri: It reached us from Uthman ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Suwayd. Abu Hatim said: This is a mistake, rather it is al-Zuhri, from Muhammad ibn Suwayd. It reached us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, - and he mentioned it. Al-Bayhaqi said: It was narrated by Yunus and Ibn Uyaynah from al-Zuhri from Muhammad ibn Abi Suwayd, and this is as al-Bukhari explained it. This chain of transmission that we presented from the Musnad of Imam Ahmad, its men are trustworthy according to the conditions of the two sheikhs. Then it was narrated via other than Muammarr's path, and even al-Zuhri. Al-Bayhaqi said: Abu Abdullah Al-Hafiz told us, Abu Ali Al-Hafiz told us, Abu Abdul Rahman Al-Nasa'i told us, Abu Burayd Amr bin Yazid Al-Jarmi told us, Saif bin Ubaid God told us, Sarar bin Mujshar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi' and Salim, on the authority of Ibn Umar, that Ghailan bin Salamah had ten wives, so he converted to Islam and they converted to Islam with him, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered him to choose four of them. This is how Al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan. Abu Ali bin Al-Sakn said: Sarar bin Mujshar is the only one who narrated it, and he is trustworthy. Ibn Ma'in also authenticated him. Abu Ali said: This is how Al-Sumaida' bin Wahib narrated it on the authority of Sarar. Al-Bayhaqi said: We narrated from the hadith of Qays bin Al-Harith or Al-Harith bin Qays, and Urwah bin Mas'ud Al-Thaqafi and Sufyan bin Umayyah, meaning the hadith of Ghailan bin Salamah. The evidence is that if it were permissible to combine more than four, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have permitted him to have the rest of them while the ten remained, and they had converted to Islam with him. So when he ordered him to keep four and separate from the rest, it indicates that it is not permissible to combine more than four under any circumstances. So if this is the case permanently, then it is more appropriate to start over, and God Almighty knows best what is correct. Another hadith on this subject Abu Dawud and Ibn Majah narrated in their Sunans on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Layla on the authority of Humaydah ibn al-Shamardal, and with Ibn Majah bint al-Shamardal, Abu Dawud narrated that some of them say al-Shamardal with the voiced dhal on the authority of Qays ibn al-Harith, and with Abu Dawud in the narration of al-Harith ibn Qays ibn Umayrah al-Asadi, he said: I converted to Islam and I had eight wives, so I mentioned it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Choose four of them. This chain of transmission is good, and this mere difference does not harm the like of it because of the corroborating evidence for the hadith. Another hadith on this subject Al-Shafi'i said in his Musnad: He told me who heard Ibn Abi Al-Zinad say: Abdul Majeed bin Suhayl bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Awf bin Al-Harith on the authority of Nawfal bin Mu'awiyah Al-Dayli, may God be pleased with him, who said: I converted to Islam and I had five wives. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Choose four of them, whichever you wish, and leave the others. So I went to the oldest of them, an old barren woman who had been with me for sixty years, and I divorced her. All of these are evidences of the authenticity of what was mentioned above from the hadith of Ghailan, as Al-Bayhaqi, may God have mercy on him, said. And His statement: But if you fear that you will not be able to be just, then [marry only] one or those your right hands possess, meaning if you fear that you will not be able to be just between women, as God Almighty said, And you will never be able to be just between wives, even if you should strive to do so, so whoever fears that, let him limit himself to one or to concubines, for it is not obligatory to divide it between them, but it is recommended. So whoever does that, it is good, and whoever does not, there is no blame. And His statement: That is more likely that you will not be poor, some of them said that it is more likely that you will not have many children, as Zaid bin Aslam, Sufyan bin Uyaynah, and Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on them, said. It is taken from God Almighty's statement: And if you fear poverty, meaning poverty, then God will enrich you from His bounty, if He wills. And the poet said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:2

And give the orphans their property, and do not exchange the bad for the good, and do not consume their property with your property. Indeed, that is a great sin.

The poor man does not know when he will become rich, and the rich man does not know when he will be dependent.

The Arabs say: A man is poor and provides for a family, but there is a problem with this interpretation here, because just as a large family is feared due to the number of free women, so too is a large family feared due to the number of concubines. The correct opinion is that of the majority: That is more likely that you will not be poor, meaning that you will not be unjust. It is said: He is unjust in judgment if he is fair, oppressive, and unjust. Abu Talib said in his famous poem:

With a just balance that does not fail a single grain of grain, and he has a witness from himself, not a supporter.

Hisham said on the authority of Abu Ishaq, who said: Uthman bin Affan wrote to the people of Kufa about something they rebuked him for: I am not a scale that cannot be relied upon. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim, Abu Hatim Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Hibban narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Abd al-Rahman Ibn Ibrahim Dahim, who said: Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb told us on the authority of 'Umar Ibn Muhammad Ibn Zayd on the authority of 'Abdullah Ibn 'Umar on the authority of Hisham Ibn 'Urwah, on the authority of his father on the authority of 'Aishah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: That is more likely that you will not be unjust. He said: Do not be unjust. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father said, this is an incorrect hadith, and the correct one is: on the authority of 'Aishah, it is suspended. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, 'Aishah, Mujahid, 'Ikrimah, al-Hasan, Abu Malik, Abu Razin, al-Nakha'i, al-Sha'bi, al-Dahhak, 'Ata' al-Khurasani, Qatadah, al-Suddi, and Muqatil Ibn Hayyan that they said: Do not be unjust. 'Ikrimah, may God have mercy on him, cited as evidence the verse of Abu Talib that we presented, but he did not recite it as it is narrated in the Seerah. Ibn Jarir narrated it and then recited it well and chose that. And the Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Ali bin Abi Talha said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The free gift is the dowry. Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha: A free gift is an obligation. Muqatil, Qatadah, and Ibn Jurayj said: A free gift means an obligation. Ibn Jurayj added: It is named. Ibn Zayd said: The word benevolence in the speech of the Arabs means: obligatory. He says: Do not marry her except for something obligatory for her. It is not appropriate for anyone after the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to marry a woman except for an obligatory dowry. It is not appropriate for the dowry to be named falsely without right. The meaning of their words is that the man must definitely pay the dowry to the woman, and he must be content with that, just as he prevents the gift and gives the benevolence with it, likewise he must give the woman her dowry with it, so if she is content with it after he names it or with something of it, then let him eat it lawfully and goodly. For this reason, he said: But if they give you up contentedly of it, then eat it with enjoyment and satisfaction. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-Suddi, on the authority of Yaqub ibn al-Mughira ibn Shu'bah, on the authority of Ali, who said: "If one of you complains of something, let him ask his wife for three dirhams or something like that, and let him buy honey with it, then let him take rainwater, and it will gather together, content and delicious, a blessed cure." Hisham said on the authority of Sayyar on the authority of Abu Salih who said: When a man married his daughter, he would take her dowry without hers, so God forbade them from that, and the verse was revealed: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Ahmasi told us, Waki' told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of Umair al-Khathami on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn al-Mughira al-Ta'ifi on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. They said: O Messenger of God, what are the ties between them? He said: What their families agree upon. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Hajjaj ibn Arta'ah on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn al-Mughira on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us and said: Marry the single women three times. A man stood up and said: O Messenger of God, what are the ties between them? He said: What their families agree upon. Ibn al-Baylamani is weak and there is also a break in the chain of transmission.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 2- And give the orphans their property is addressed to the guardians and trustees. Giving means giving. The orphan is the one who has no father. The Shari'ah has specified it for those who have not reached puberty. The explanation of its meaning has been presented in full in Surat Al-Baqarah. The name orphan is given to them when they are given their property, although they are not given it except after the name of orphanhood is removed by reaching puberty, metaphorically, considering what they were like. It is possible that what is meant by orphans is the real meaning, and by giving is what the guardians and trustees pay to them of expenses and clothing, not paying them all. This verse is restricted by the other verse, which is the Almighty's statement: But if you perceive in them sound judgment, then release to them their property, so the mere removal of the orphanhood by reaching puberty is not a justification for releasing their property to them until sound judgment is perceived in them. His saying, And do not exchange the bad for the good is a prohibition for them to do what the people of ignorance did with the money of orphans, for they would take the good from the money of orphans and replace it with the bad from their money and they did not see any harm in that. It was said that the meaning is: Do not eat the money of orphans while it is forbidden and bad and leave the good from your money. It was said that what is meant is: Do not rush to eat the bad from their money and leave waiting for the lawful provision from God. The first is more appropriate, for exchanging one thing for another in the language means taking its place and so is substituting it. From this is the saying of God the Almighty: And whoever exchanges faith for disbelief has certainly strayed from the soundness of the way Al-Baqarah 2:177 and His saying: Would you exchange that which is better for that which is worse? As for substitution, it may be used in this way as in His saying: And We exchanged for them their two gardens, two gardens Al-Baqarah 2:177 and another time the opposite as in your saying I exchanged the ring for the ring Al-Baqarah 2:177 if you melted it and made it a ring, as Al-Azhari stated. His saying, And do not consume their wealth with your wealth. A group of commentators said that what is prohibited in this verse is mixing, so the verb includes the meaning of adding: that is, do not consume their wealth added to your wealth. Then this was abrogated by the Almighty's saying, And if you mix with them, then they are your brothers. It was said that to means with like the Almighty's saying, Who are my helpers for God? The first is more appropriate. And al-Hawb means sin. It is said: A man committed a sin, and its origin is the warning to camels, so sin was called al-Hawb because it is warned against. And al-Hawb means need. And al-Hawb also means loneliness, and it has three languages: Damma on the ha, which is the reading of the majority. And Fat-ha, which is the reading of al-Hasan. Al-Akhfash said: It is the language of Tamim. And the third is al-Hab. Abi bin Ka'b read haab as a source like qala qalan. And al-Tahawb means sadness, and from it is the saying of Tufail:

So taste as we tasted, and let the anger and resentment in our hearts be removed.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

2- The Almighty said: And give the orphans their property. Muqatil al-Kalbi said: "It was revealed about a man from Ghatafan who had a lot of money for his orphan nephew. When the orphan reached puberty, he asked for the money, but his uncle refused him. They brought their case to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this verse was revealed. When the uncle heard it, he said: We obey God and we obey the Messenger. We seek refuge in God from the great sin. So he gave him his money. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever protects himself from the greed of his soul and obeys his Lord in this way, then his home, meaning: his paradise, will be lawful for him. When the young man took his money, he spent it in the way of God. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The reward is established, but the burden remains. They said: How does the burden remain? He said: The reward is established for the boy, but the burden remains for his father."

His saying, And give is addressed to the guardians and trustees, and orphans: the plural of orphan, and orphan: the name of a young person who has no father or grandfather, and the money is only given to them after reaching puberty, and he called them orphans here in the sense that they were orphans.

And do not exchange meaning: do not replace the bad with the good meaning: their money that is forbidden to you with the permissible money from yours. They differed about this exchange. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Nakha'i and Al-Suddi said: The guardians of the orphans used to take the good money from the orphan and replace it with the bad. Perhaps one of them would take a fat sheep from the orphan's money and replace it with a thin one, and take a good dirham and replace it with a fake one, and say: A dirham for a dirham. So they were forbidden from doing that.

It was said: The people of the Age of Ignorance did not inherit the elderly and children, and the eldest would take the inheritance, so his share of the inheritance was good, and what he took was bad. Mujahid said: Do not rush into unlawful sustenance before the lawful comes to you.

And do not consume their wealth with your wealth, meaning: with your wealth, as God Almighty says: Who are my helpers for God? meaning: with God, Indeed, it was a great sin. meaning: a great transgression.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

2 And give orphans their property meaning when they reach maturity. Orphans is the plural of orphan, which is the one whose father has died, from orphanhood, which means being alone. And from this comes the word orphan pearl, either because it is the plural of nouns like knight and companion, then it was changed and it was said orphans, or because it is the plural of yatimi like asri because it is from the category of afflictions. Then yatimi was pluralized as yatami like asri and asra, and the derivation requires that it applies to young and old, but custom specified it for those who have not reached maturity. Its occurrence in the verse is either for maturity according to the original or the expansion due to their recent age of childhood, urging that their property be given to them as soon as they reach maturity before this name is removed from them if maturity is felt in them, and for this reason he ordered that they be tested while they are young or not yet mature, and the ruling is restricted as if he said, and give them when they reach maturity. The first is supported by what was narrated: A man from Ghatafan had a lot of money for his orphaned nephew. When he reached the age of puberty, he asked him for the money, but he refused him, so this was revealed. When the uncle heard it, he said: We obey God and His Messenger. We seek refuge in God from the great sin. And do not exchange the bad for the good. Do not exchange the unlawful of their wealth for the lawful of your wealth, or the bad thing, which is reducing their wealth for the good thing, which is preserving it. It was said: Do not take the high of their wealth and give the lowly in its place, and this is an exchange, not a change. And do not consume their wealth with your wealth. Do not consume it added to your wealth, meaning do not spend them together or treat them equally. This is lawful and that is unlawful, and it is in what is more than his reward, according to the Almighty's saying: So let him eat in moderation. "He" the pronoun refers to eating.

Surat al-Nisa 4:2

And give the orphans their property, and do not exchange the bad for the good, and do not consume their property with your property. Indeed, that is a great sin.

It was a great sin a great crime. It was read as hawban and it is the source of haba "hawban and haba like qala qawlan wa qawal".

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

When it was revealed, they were reluctant to take care of orphans, and among them were those who had ten or eight wives, and he would not be just between them. So it was revealed: And if you fear that you will not deal justly deal justly with orphan girls, so you were reluctant to deal with them, and also feared that you would not deal justly between women if you married them, then marry marry those meaning those whom (are lawful for you of women, two or three or four), meaning two by two, three by three, and four by four, and do not exceed that. But if you fear that you will not deal justly with them in spending and dividing then one marry her or limit yourself to those whom your right hands possess of female slaves, since they do not have the same rights as wives. That meaning marrying four only or one or taking concubines is less closer to that you not be unjust be unjust.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: If you fear, O group of guardians of orphans, that you will not be just in their dowries, then be just in it, and give their dowries the dowries of their peers, then do not marry them, but marry others from the strange women whom God has made lawful for you and made good, from one to four. And if you fear that you will be unjust - if you marry more than one of the strange women - then do not be just, then marry one of them, or what your right hands possess.

Who said that?

Ibn Humayd narrated to us, he said: Ibn al-Mubarak narrated to us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha: And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice. She said: O son of my sister, she is an orphan girl who is in the care of her guardian, and he desires her wealth and beauty, and he wants to marry her for less than one year of her dowry, so they were forbidden to marry them unless they deal justly with them in completing the dowry, and they were commanded to marry other women.

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Yunus ibn Yazid told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, he said, Urwah ibn al-Zubayr told me: He asked Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the statement of God, the Most High: {And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you}. She said: O son of my sister, this orphan girl will be in the care of her guardian and share his wealth, and he will be pleased with her wealth and beauty. So her guardian wants to marry her without being just in her dowry, so he will give her the same as he gives others, so they were forbidden to marry them unless they were just with them and reached the highest level of their dowry, and they were commanded to marry such women as seem good to them other than them. Yunus ibn Yazid said, Rabi'ah said about the statement of God, {And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls}. He said: He means: Leave them, for four have been made lawful for you.

Al-Hasan bin Al-Junayd narrated to us and Saeed bin Maslama narrated to us, they said: Ismail bin Umayya narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Urwah, he said: I asked Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, and I said: O Mother of the Believers, what do you think of the words of God: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry those that please you of [other] women? She said: O son of my sister, she is the orphan girl who is in the care of her guardian, and he desires her beauty and wealth, and he wants to marry her for less than the dowry of her other wives, so they were forbidden from that: that they should marry them unless they deal justly and complete their dowry, then they were commanded to marry other women if they did not complete their dowry.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Yunus told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, he said, Urwah ibn Al-Zubayr told me: that he asked Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he mentioned something similar to the hadith of Yunus, on the authority of Ibn Wahb.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, like the hadith of Ibn Hamid, on the authority of Ibn al-Mubarak.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The verse was revealed - meaning His statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, the verse - about an orphan girl who is with a man, and she has wealth, so perhaps he marries her for her wealth and she does not please him, then he beats her and treats her badly, so he was admonished about that.

Abu Jaafar said: According to this interpretation, the answer to his statement: And if you fear that you will not be just, is his statement: Then marry.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: the prohibition of marrying more than four, in order to beware of the orphans' money being wasted by their guardians. This is because the Quraysh men would marry ten women, more or less, and if they became destitute, they would take the money of their orphan who was in their custody and spend it or marry with it. So they were forbidden from doing this, and it was said to them: If you fear that you will spend the money of your orphans, then do not be just in it, because of your need for it because of the expenses of your women, so do not exceed the number of women you marry to four. And if you also fear that you will not be just in their money, then limit yourself to one, or to what your right hands possess.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Samak, who said, I heard 'Ikrimah say about this verse: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, he said: A man from Quraysh would have wives and orphans, and his money would be lost, and he would lean on the money of the orphans. He said: Then this verse was revealed: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice.

Hannad bin Al-Sarri narrated: Abu Al-Ahwas narrated, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of 'Ikrimah, regarding his statement: "And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four. But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or those your right hands possess," he said: A man would marry four, five, six or ten, and a man would say: What prevents me from marrying as so-and-so married? So he would take his orphan's money and marry with it, so they were forbidden to marry more than four.

Sufyan bin Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Tawus, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Men were limited to four because of the money of orphans.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, that a man would marry with the orphan's money as God Almighty willed, but God forbade that.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is that the people were afraid that they would not be just with the orphans' money, and they were afraid that they would not be just with the women. So it was said to them: Just as you feared that you would not be just with the orphans, so fear that you would not be just with the women, and do not marry from them except from one to four, and do not exceed that. And if you fear that you will not be just with more than one, then do not marry except those with whom you do not fear that you will be unjust, from one or those whom your right hands possess.

Who said that?

Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, he said: The people were in their ignorance, unless they were commanded to do something or forbidden from doing it. He said: Then they mentioned orphans, and this verse was revealed: "And if you fear that you will not be just toward orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four. But if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess." He said: Just as you feared that you would not be just toward orphan girls, so too they feared that you would not be just toward women.

Muhammad bin Al-Husayn narrated to us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal narrated to us, Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, to your oaths, they were strict with the orphan girls, but not with the women. One of them would marry women and not be just toward them. So God Almighty said: Just as you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, so fear regarding the women, so marry one to four. But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or what your right hands possess.

Bishr bin Mu'adh narrated to us, he said: Yazid bin Zari' narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, until he reached nearer that you will not incur injustice, meaning: Just as you feared injustice with regard to the orphan girls and were concerned with that, so too fear it with regard to gathering women. In the Age of Ignorance, a man would marry ten or fewer, but God, the Most High, permitted four, then He made them four, His statement: "Two or three or four. But if you fear that you will not be just, then one," meaning: If you fear that you will not be just with four, then three, otherwise two, otherwise one. And if you fear that you will not be just with regard to one, then with regard to what your right hand possesses.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Mu'ammal told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry those that please you of [other] women, meaning: those that are lawful for you of women, two or three or four, so fear regarding women what you fear regarding orphan girls: that you will not be just toward them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj bin Al-Munhal told us, he said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: Islam came while people were in their state of ignorance, unless they were commanded to do something and followed it, or forbidden to do something and avoided it, until they asked about orphans, so God Almighty revealed: Then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four.

Al-Muthanna narrated, Abu Al-Nu'man A'rim narrated,

Hammad bin Zaid narrated, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: God, the Blessed and Exalted, sent Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, while the people were following the path of their ignorance, unless they were commanded to do something or forbidden from doing it. They used to ask him about orphans, so God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four. He said: Just as you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, fear that you will not be able to deal justly with women.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, he said: In the pre-Islamic era, they used to marry ten single women, and they used to respect the orphan, so they looked into the matter of the orphan in their religion, and they abandoned what they used to marry in the pre-Islamic era. So he said: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four, and he forbade them from what they used to marry in the pre-Islamic era.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh, who said: Ubayd ibn Sulayman narrated to us, who said: I heard Ad-Dahhak say about His statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry those that please you of [other] women, that in their Jahiliyyah they did not receive anything from the orphan's wealth, and they would marry ten women, and they would marry the women of their fathers. So they looked into their religion regarding women, so God admonished them regarding orphans and women, and He said regarding orphans: And do not exchange the good for the bad until Indeed, that is a great sin, and He admonished them regarding women, so He said: Then marry those that please you of [other] women and the verse, and He said: And do not marry those women your fathers married (An-Nisa': 22).

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, on the authority of Ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls to those whom your right hands possess, he said: If you fear injustice toward the orphan girls and that distresses you, then fear in the same way regarding gathering women. He said: A man used to marry ten in the pre-Islamic era or less, but God permitted four and made them four. He said: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one, and if you fear that you will not be just toward one, then toward those whom your right hands possess.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Just as you feared for the sake of orphans, so fear for the sake of women that you may commit adultery with them, but marry as many women as you like.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Amr told us, Abu Asim told us, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphans, he said: If you are reluctant to take over the guardianship of orphans and consume their wealth out of faith and belief, then likewise be reluctant to commit adultery and marry women in a good marriage, "two or three or four. But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or those your right hands possess."

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: If you fear that you will not be just towards the orphan girls over whom you are guardians, then do not marry them, but marry those of them that are lawful for you.

Who said that?

Sufyan bin Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, he said: It was revealed about an orphan girl who is with a man, he is her guardian and she has no guardian other than him, and no one can dispute with him over her, and he does not marry her for her money, so that he harms her and treats her badly.

Humayd ibn Mas'adah told us, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, Yunus told us, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding this verse: And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry those that please you, meaning: what is permissible for you from your orphaned female relatives, "two or three or four. But if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess."

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the opinions we have mentioned in this regard regarding the interpretation of the verse is the opinion of those who said: Its interpretation is: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, then fear also regarding the women, and do not marry any of them except those with whom you do not fear that you will wrong them, from one to four. But if you fear that you will wrong one of them also, then do not marry her, but you should marry those whom your right hands possess, for that is more likely that you will not wrong them.

Rather, we said that this is more appropriate for the interpretation of the verse, because God, the Most High, began the verse before it with the prohibition of eating the wealth of orphans unjustly and mixing it with other wealth. God, the Most High, said: "And give the orphans their wealth, and do not exchange the bad for the good, and do not consume their wealth with your own wealth. Indeed, that is a great sin." Then He informed them that if they fear God in that and are cautious about it, then what is obligatory upon them in fearing God and being cautious in the matter of women is the same as what is obligatory upon them in the matter of orphans. And He informed them how to rid themselves of injustice towards them, just as the Savior informed them of injustice regarding the wealth of orphans, saying: Marry, if you are safe from injustice towards yourselves regarding women, what I have permitted you and made lawful for you, two, three, or four. If you also fear injustice to yourselves in the matter of one woman, such that you will not be able to do her justice, then do not marry her, but take a slave woman, for you are more likely not to be unjust to them, because they are your property and your wealth, and you are not obligated to them as you are obligated to free women, so that will be closer to you being safe from sin and injustice.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

In the speech - since the meaning is what we have said - there is something left out that is not necessary to mention due to the evidence of what appears in the speech. That is because the meaning of the speech is: And if you fear that you will not be just in dealing with the orphans' wealth, then be just with it. Likewise, fear that you will not be just in dealing with the rights of women that God has made obligatory upon you, so do not marry any of them except those with whom you are safe from injustice, two, three, or four. And if you also fear that, then one. And if you fear that regarding one, then those whom your right hands possess. So mentioning His statement: Likewise, fear that you will not be just in dealing with the rights of women, was left out due to the evidence of what appears in the statement of God the Almighty: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or those whom your right hands possess.

If someone says, what is the answer to his statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphans?

It was said: His saying, Then marry whomever pleases you, but the meaning that indicates that what is meant by that is what we said is his saying, "But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or what your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you will not be unjust."

We have previously explained that the meaning of equity in the speech of the Arabs is justice and fairness, and that equity is injustice and unfairness, so there is no need to repeat it in this place.

As for orphans, it is the plural of male and female orphans in this context.

As for his saying: Then marry those women that please you, he means: Then marry those that are permissible for you from among them, without those that are forbidden to you from among them, such as:

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Malik, regarding his statement: Then marry such women as seem good to you, that is, what is permissible for you.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: Then marry such women as seem good to you, he said: what is permissible for you.

If someone says: How is it said: Marry whatever women please you, and not: Marry whoever pleases you? Rather, what is said for other than people.

It was said: The meaning of this is not the way you went, but rather its meaning is: Then marry a good marriage, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Then marry such women as seem good to you, so marry women in a good marriage.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

The meaning of his saying: what is good for you is the action, not the women's bodies and persons. That is why it is said what and not whom, just as one would say: Take from my slaves what you want, if you mean: Take from them what you want. If you meant: Take from them what you want, you would say: Take from my slaves whomever you want from them. Likewise his saying: or what your right hands possess, meaning: or what your right hands possess.

Rather, the meaning of his statement: Then marry such women as seem good to you, two, three, or four, is that each one of you should marry two, three, or four, as it was said: And those who accuse chaste women but do not produce four witnesses - flog them with eighty lashes (al-Nur 24:4).

As for his saying: two, three, and four, he did not perform them because they are modified from two, three, and four, just as Omar modified from Amer, and Zafar from Zafar, so he did not perform them. Likewise, ahad, thana, muwahhid, muthanna, muthallath, and murabba', all of these are not performed for the reason mentioned about the deviation from their faces. What indicates that this is the case, and that the male and female are equal in it, is what was said in this surah and Surah Fatir, [1]: two, three, and four refers to the wing, and the wing is male - and it is also not added to what three and three are added to, and the definite article does not enter it - so in that was evidence that it is a name for a number in the definite form, and if it were indefinite, the definite article would have entered it, and it would have been added as three and four are added. What clarifies that is the saying of Tamim bin Abi bin Muqbil:

You see the blue flags under his gum, singular and dual, his howls stunned them.

Individual, singular and dual, on the basis of the nouns, which are definite. The Arabs may make them indefinite and make them indefinite, as the poet said:

The boy who was obsessed with his memory, we killed him among the two and the one

Four of you and another fifth and he sat with the darkness in the spear of the temple

What shows that the words thana and ahad are not continuous is the poet's saying:

I killed you, praising and monotheizing you, and left once, like yesterday, the one who turned away.

And the poet said:

It is not your destiny to meet me one by one in a lawful month

It was not heard from the Arabs that what exceeds a quarter or a square is inverted from its direction. It was not heard from them that there is a fifth or a fifth, nor a seventh or a seventh, and likewise what is above a quarter except in a verse by Al-Kumait. It is narrated from him in the tenth, as-`ashar, which is his saying:

They did not wait for you until you threw ten traits at the men.

He wants: ten, ten. It is said: he did not hear anything else.

As for his saying: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one, the accusative of one means: If you fear that you will not be just, in what is required of you in terms of justice with regard to the more than one of the women you have with you through marriage, in what God has obligated upon you for them, then marry one of them.

If the reading had been in the nominative case, it would have been permissible, meaning: one is sufficient, or: one is sufficient, as God Almighty said: But if there are not two men, then a man and two women (al-Baqarah 2:282).

If someone were to say to us: You know that what is permissible for you from all free women is to marry four, so how is it said: Then marry such women as seem good to you, two, three, or four, when the number is nine?

It was said: The interpretation of that is: Then marry as many women as you like, either two if you are safe from injustice from yourselves in what is due to you for them - or three, if you do not fear that - or four, if you are safe from that in them.

The correctness of this is indicated by his statement: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one, because the meaning is: If you fear that you will not be just with regard to two, then marry one. Then he said: And if you fear that you will not be just with regard to one, then what your right hands possess.

If someone says: God's command and prohibition are obligatory and binding until evidence is established that this is for discipline, guidance and information. God Almighty said: Marry such women as seem good to you, and this is a command. Is there any evidence that it is a command that is not obligatory and binding?

It was said: Yes, and the evidence for that is his statement: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one. So it was known from this that his statement: Then marry such women as seem good to you, even if it was taken as a command, was in the sense of indicating the prohibition of marrying what the husband fears will be unjust in terms of the number of women, not in the sense of commanding marriage, for what is meant by it is: And if you fear that you will not be just with the orphans, and you feel embarrassed regarding them, then likewise feel embarrassed regarding women, so do not marry except those of them in which you are safe from injustice, what I have made lawful for you from one to four.

We have shown in other places that the Arabs use the wording of a command, and its meaning is a prohibition or a threat or warning, as God Almighty said: So whoever wills - let him believe; and whoever wills - let him disbelieve (al-Kahf 18:29), and as He said: So that they may disbelieve in what We have given them, then enjoy yourselves, and you will soon know (Al-Nahl: 55- al-Rum 30:34). So this was used as a command, and what is meant by it is a threat, warning, deterrence, and prohibition. Likewise, His statement: Then marry such women as seem good to you, means a prohibition: Do not marry except such women as seem good to you.

And in the same way that we said about the meaning of his saying: or what your right hands possess, the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or what your right hands possess, meaning: If you fear that you will not be just in one case, then what your right hand possesses.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Or what your right hands possess, the concubines.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': But if you fear that you will not be just, then one or what your right hands possess. If you fear that you will not be just in one case, then what your right hands possess.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, his statement: If you fear that you will not be just, he said: in sexual intercourse and love.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: And if you fear that you will not be just with two, or three, or four, and you marry one, or you fear that you will not be just with one, and you marry a slave girl whom your right hands possess, then it is closer meaning: closer, that you do not deviate, meaning: that you do not wrong or deviate.

It is said: The man is dependent, so he is dependent on dependence and dependence, if he is indebted and unjust. Jamnah: He is dependent on the shares of the obligatory shares, because if their shares increase, they will decrease.

As for need, it is said: The man is in need, and that is when he is in need, as the poet said:

The poor man does not know when he will become rich, and the rich man does not know when he will be dependent.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

Meaning: lacking.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Humayd ibn Mas'adah told us, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, Yunus told us, on the authority of al-Hasan: That is more likely to prevent you from being unjust. He said: Unjustness is the inclination towards women.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told me, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of al-Qasim ibn Abi Bazza, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: That is more likely that you will not deviate, he said: Do not deviate.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: That is more likely that you will not be deviant, meaning that you will not deviate.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Abu al-Nu'man Muhammad ibn al-Fadl told us, Hisham told us, Dawud ibn Abi Hind told us, on the authority of Ikrimah: That you do not deviate, he said: That you do not lean toward others. Then he said: Have you not heard the words of Abu Talib:

In the balance of the installment, its weight is not the family

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Hammad bin Zaid told us, on the authority of Al-Zubayr, on the authority of Harith, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding this verse: That you do not deviate, he said: That you do not incline. He said: And he recited a verse of poetry that he claimed Abu Talib said:

With a just balance that does not lose a grain of grain, and a true balancer whose weight is not weak.

Abu Jaafar said: This verse is narrated in a different narration:

With a scale of truth that does not defraud a grain of wheat, and has a witness from himself, not a supporter.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding his statement: that you do not deviate, he said: that you do not deviate.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq

Al-Kufi, he said: Uthman bin Affan, may God be pleased with him, wrote to the people of Kufa about something for which they rebuked him: I am not a scale that cannot be relied upon.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Othman bin Ali told us, he said, Ismail bin Abi Khalid told us, on the authority of Abu Malik, regarding his statement, It is more likely that you will not be deviant, he said: Do not lean.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: That is more likely that you will not be deviant, more likely that you will not deviate.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: that you do not deviate, he said: lean toward others.

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi': That is more likely that you will not be deviant, meaning: that you will not be deviant.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: That is more likely that you will not be deviant, meaning: that you will not be inclined.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: It is more likely that you will not be deviant, meaning: that you will not deviate.

Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That is more likely that you will not be deviant, he says: That is more likely that you will not deviate.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Husayn told us, on the authority of Abu Malik, regarding his statement: That is more likely that you will not be unjust, he said: that you will not be unjust.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn and Aarem Abu Al-Nu'man told us, they said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Hisin, on the authority of Abu Malik, similarly.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Mujahid: That is more likely that you will not be deviant, he said: lean toward it.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: That is more suitable for you not to be dependent, that is less for your expenses, one is less than two, three, or four, and your female slave is easier to spend on than a free woman, that you not be dependent, that is easier for you in terms of the family.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains fourteen issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And if you fear is a condition, and its response is then marry. That is, if you fear that you will not be just in their dowries and in spending on them, then marry those that please you meaning other than that. The imams narrated, and the wording is from Muslim, on the authority of Urwah ibn al-Zubayr on the authority of Aisha regarding the saying of God Almighty: And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry those that please you of [other] women, two or three or four. She said:

O my nephew, the orphan girl is in the care of her guardian, sharing his wealth. He is pleased with her wealth and beauty, so her guardian wants to marry her without being fair in her dowry, so he gives her the same as someone else would give her. So they were forbidden to marry them unless they were fair to them and gave them the highest dowry possible. They were ordered to marry whomever they liked of women other than them. He mentioned the hadith, and Ibn Khuwayz Mandad said: For this reason we said that it is permissible for the guardian to buy from the orphan's wealth for himself, and to sell from himself without favoritism.

The principal has the right to review what his agent has bought or sold for himself. The sultan has the right to review what the guardian does in this regard. As for the father, no one has the right to review him unless favoritism is apparent, in which case the sultan may object to him. This has been discussed in Surat Al-Baqarah. Ad-Dahhak, Al-Hasan and others said: The verse abrogates what was in the pre-Islamic era and in the beginning of Islam: that a man may marry as many free women as he wishes, so the verse limited them to four. Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jubayr and others said: The meaning is: If you fear that you will not be just with the orphans, then likewise fear with regard to women, because they were cautious with regard to orphans but not with regard to women. And you feared the opposites, for what is feared is known to happen, and it may be suspected. Therefore, the scholars differed in interpreting this fear. Abu Ubaidah said: You feared means you were certain. Others said: You feared means you suspected. Ibn Atiyah said: This is what the experts have chosen, and it is based on suspicion, not certainty. The estimate is that whoever is most likely to be negligent in being fair to the orphan girl should be equitable on her behalf. And taqassatu means be just. It is said: a man is aqsat if he is just.

And qist if he came and wronged his companion. God Almighty said: As for the unjust, they will be fuel for Hell (al-Jinn 72:15) meaning the unjust. And he, peace be upon him, said:

Those who are just in religion will be on pulpits of light on the Day of Resurrection. That is, the just. Ibn Waththab and Al-Nakha'i read Taqastu with the opening of the ta of qasta on the assumption of an increase, as if he said: And if you fear that you will be unjust.

Second: The Almighty's saying: Then marry such women as seem good to you. If it is said: How did what come to be for humans, when its origin is for things that do not have reason? There are five answers to this. The first is that man and what may alternate. God Almighty said: And the heaven and He who constructed it (Ash-Shams: 5), meaning He who constructed it. He also said: And among them are those who walk on their bellies, and among them are those who walk on two legs, and among them are those who walk on four (al-Nur 24:45). So man here refers to those who have reason, and they are women, because He said after that of women clarifying what is unclear. Ibn Abi Ubla read man ta'aba mentioning those who have reason. Second: The Basrans said: what is ta'aq refers to attributes as it occurs for things that do not have reason. It is said: what do you have? and it is said: gracious and generous. So the meaning is: then marry the good women, meaning the permissible, and what God has forbidden is not good. And in the revelation: And what is the Lord of the worlds? (al-Shu'ara 26:23) So Moses answered him according to what he asked, and the third will come - Some people have said that what is in this verse is circumstantial, meaning as long as you approve of marriage. Ibn Atiyyah said: There is weakness in this approach. Fourth answer - Al-Farra' said: What here is a source. An-Nahhas said: This is very far-fetched, it is not correct, so marry the good ones. Al-Jawhari said: The thing is good, it is good, good and pure. Alqamah said:

As if its fragrance is smelled in the nose

Fifth answer: What is meant here is the contract, i.e. marry a good marriage. The reading of Ibn Abi Ubla refutes these three opinions. Abu Amr ibn al-Ala' narrated that when the people of Mecca heard thunder, they would say: Glory be to Him whom the thunder glorifies. That is, Glory be to Him whom the thunder glorifies. Similar to this is their saying: Glory be to Him whom He has subjected you to us. That is, He who has subjected you. All those who are familiar with the sciences agree that the words of God the Almighty, And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, have no implication, as the Muslims have agreed that whoever does not fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls may marry more than one: two, three, or four, just like someone who fears. This indicates that the verse was revealed as an obligation for whoever fears that, and its ruling is more general than that.

Third: Abu Hanifa relied on this verse to permit the marriage of an orphan girl before puberty. He said: She is an orphan before puberty, and after puberty she is a divorced woman, not an orphan, based on the fact that if he had intended the adult woman, he would not have prohibited her from deducting the dowry of her peers, because she chooses that, so it is permissible by consensus. Malik, Al-Shafi'i and the majority of scholars held that this is not permissible until she reaches puberty and is consulted, based on the statement of God the Almighty: And they ask you concerning women (An-Nisa': 127). Women is a name given to adults as men are to males, and the name man does not include a child, so the name women and woman does not include a child.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

He said: In the orphan women (An-Nisa': 127) and what is meant by it there is the orphans here, as Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: The adult orphan girl is included in the verse, so she is not to be married except with her permission, and the young girl is not to be married because she does not have permission. So when she reaches puberty, it is permissible to marry her, but she is not to be married except with her permission, as Al-Daraqutni narrated from the hadith of Muhammad ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said:

My maternal uncle Qudamah ibn Maz'un married me to the daughter of his brother Uthman ibn Maz'un. Then Al-Mughirah ibn Shu'bah entered upon her mother and encouraged her with money and proposed to her. He brought her case to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Qudamah said: O Messenger of God, she is the daughter of my brother and I am the successor of her father and I have not neglected her. I have married her to someone whose virtue and kinship I know. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: She is an orphan and the orphan has more right to her affair. So she was taken away from me and married to Al-Mughirah ibn Shu'bah. Al-Daraqutni said: Muhammad ibn Ishaq did not hear it from Nafi', but he heard it from Umar ibn Husayn from him. Ibn Abi Dhi'b narrated it from Umar ibn Husayn ibn Nafi' from Abdullah ibn Umar: that he married the daughter of his maternal uncle Uthman ibn Maz'un. He said: Her mother went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: My daughter hates that. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered him to separate from her, so he separated from her. And he said: "And do not marry orphan girls until you consult them. If she remains silent, then it is her permission. So marry her after Abdullah, Al-Mughira bin Shu'ba." This refutes what Abu Hanifa says: that if she reaches puberty, she does not need a guardian, based on his principle that the guardian is not a condition for the validity of marriage, and he mentioned it in Al-Baqarah. So there is no meaning to their saying that this hadith is applied to those who have not reached puberty, because he said:

Except with her permission." For there would be no meaning to mentioning the orphan, and God knows best.

Fourth - In Aisha's interpretation of the verse about maintenance, what Malik said about the dowry of her peers, and the return is a god in what is corrupted from the dowry and the fraud occurred in its amount, because she said: with less than the year of her dowry, so the dowry of her peers must be known to every class of people according to their circumstances. Malik said: People have marriages that are known to them and they are known for them. That is, charity and equals. Malik was asked about a man who married his daughter to his poor nephew, and her mother objected, so he said: I see that she has a reason to speak to her about that, so he permitted her to speak to him until he made his opinion clear, which would invalidate the mother's objection to him. It was narrated: I do not see with the addition of the alif, and the first is more correct. It is permissible for a non-orphan to marry for less than the dowry of her peers because the verse was only issued about orphans. This is its meaning, and a non-orphan is different.

Fifth: If the orphan girl reaches puberty and the guardian has been fair in her dowry, it is permissible for him to marry her, and he is the one who marries and the one who is married, as Aisha explained. Abu Hanifa, Al-Awza'i, Al-Thawri, and Abu Thawr said the same, and from the Tabi'in, Al-Hasan and Rabi'ah said the same, and it is the saying of Al-Layth. Zafar and Al-Shafi'i said: It is not permissible for him to marry her except with the permission of the ruler, or her guardian who is more able to take care of her than him, or is similar to him in being able to take care of her. As for taking care of both parties to the contract himself, then he is the one who marries and is married, then no. They argued that guardianship is a condition of the contract, because of his saying, peace be upon him:

There is no marriage except with a guardian and two just witnesses. So, it is obligatory to have multiple witnesses, the one being married, and the witnesses. If two of them are the same, one of the two mentioned is dropped. There is a third opinion on the issue, which is that she should entrust her matter to a man to marry her to. This was narrated on the authority of Al-Mughira bin Shu'ba, and Ahmad said the same, as Ibn Al-Mundhir mentioned.

Sixth - The Almighty's saying: Whatever women are lawful for you means what is permissible for you, according to Al-Hasan, Ibn Jubayr and others. He was satisfied with mentioning those who are permissible to marry, because the forbidden women are many. Ibn Ishaq, Al-Jahdary and Hamza read taab with imala, and in the Mushaf of Abu Tayyib with a ya'. This is evidence of the imala from al-nisa and evidence that al-nisa is not used except for someone who has reached puberty. The singular of al-nisa is nisa'wa, and there is no singular for nisa'wa from its wording, but rather it is said imra'ah.

Seventh: The Almighty said: two by two and three by four and its position in grammar is accusative as a substitute for what and it is an indefinite noun that is not declined, because it is modified and an adjective, as Abu Ali said. Al-Tabari said: They are definite nouns, because the definite article does not enter them, and they are like Omar in the definition, as Al-Kufi said. Al-Zajjaj made a mistake in this statement. It was said: It is not declined because it is modified from its wording and meaning, so ahad is modified from one by one, and muthanna is modified from two by two, and thalatha is modified from three by three, and ribaa is modified from four by four. And in each one of them there are two languages: fa'al and mufa'al, it is said ahad and muwahhid and thana and muthanna and thalatha and muthallath and ribaa and murabba', and likewise to ma'shar and ashar, and Abu Ishaq al-Tha'labi narrated a third language: ahad and thulth and rib' like Omar and Zafar, and Al-Nakha'i read this verse likewise, and Al-Mahdawi narrated from Al-Nakha'i and Ibn Wathab three and a quarter without an alif in quarter, so it is shortened from ribaa' for the sake of humiliation as he said:

A flood came from God, rushing like a storm of the heavens.

Al-Tha'labi said: Nothing is added to this structure beyond the four except a verse from Al-Kumait:

They did not wait until you threw ten traits at the man.

Meaning, I stabbed ten. Ibn Al-Dahan said: Some of them stop at what is heard, which is from one to four, and the verse is not considered due to its anomaly. Abu Amr Ibn Al-Hajib said: It is said one, one, monotheist, two, two, three, triangle, four, and square. Is it said in what is beyond that to nine, or is it not said? There is a difference of opinion, the most correct of which is that it is not proven, and Al-Bukhari stated that in his Sahih.

The fact that it is modified from its meaning is that it is not used in a place where unmodified numbers are used. You say: Two and three came to me. And two and three are not permissible unless a plural precedes it, such as the people came to me ones, twos, threes, and fours without repetition. It is in the position of a state here and in the verse, and it is an adjective. An example of these numbers being an adjective is shown in the Almighty's saying: They have wings, twos, threes, and fours. (Fatir 35:1) It is an adjective for wings, and it is indefinite. Sa'idah ibn Ju'bah said:

But my people in Wadi Anisa are wolves who seek people out in pairs and in groups.

Al-Farra recited:

We killed four of you, one of them two and one of them one.

He described wolves, which are indefinite, with dual and singular forms, and the same is the case with Al-Farra', meaning we killed people with it. Therefore, these names are not declined in definite or indefinite forms. Al-Kisa'i and Al-Farra' permitted it to be declined in numbers as an indefinite noun. Al-Akhfash claimed that if it is named with it, it is declined in definite and indefinite forms, because justice has been removed from it.

Eighth - Know that this number, two, three, and four, does not indicate the permissibility of nine, as he said after understanding the Book and the Sunnah, and he ignored what the predecessors of this nation were upon, and he claimed that the waw is comprehensive, and he supported that by the fact that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, married nine, and combined them in his marriage, and what led to this ignorance, and he said this statement, the Rafidah and some of the people of the apparent meaning made two like two, and likewise three and four. Some of the people of the apparent meaning also went to something uglier than that, and they said that all of them are permissible between eighteen, holding on to the fact that justice in those formulas indicates repetition and the waw is for all, so he made two to mean two by two, and likewise three and four. All of this is ignorance of the language and the Sunnah, and contradiction of the consensus of the nation, since it was not heard from any of the Companions or the Followers that he combined in his marriage more than four. Malik reported in his Muwatta', and al-Nasa'i and al-Darqutni in their Sunans, "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Ghailan ibn Umayya al-Thaqafi, who had converted to Islam and had ten wives:

Choose four of them and leave the rest." In the book of Abu Dawood, "On the authority of Al-Harith bin Qais, he said:

I converted to Islam and I had eight wives, so I mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Choose four of them. Muqatil said: Qays ibn al-Harith had eight free wives, and when this verse was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered him to divorce four and keep four. This is what he said: Qays ibn al-Harith, but the correct view is that it was Harith ibn Qays al-Asadi, as Abu Dawud mentioned. Muhammad ibn al-Hasan also narrated in the Book of the Great Biography: that it was Harith ibn Qays, and he is known among the jurists. As for what was permitted of that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, it is from his special characteristics, as will be explained in al-Ahzaab. As for their saying: The waw is comprehensive, this has been said, but God Almighty addressed the Arabs in the most eloquent of languages. The Arabs do not abandon saying nine and say two, three, and four. Likewise, they find it ugly when someone says: Give so-and-so four, six, eight, and does not say eighteen. Rather, the waw in this case is a substitute, meaning marry three instead of two, and four instead of three, and for this reason it was connected with the conjunction waw and not with the conjunction or. If it had been connected with the conjunction or, it would have been permissible for the owner of the dual to not have three, nor for the owner of the three to have four. As for their saying: that dual requires two, and three requires three, and four requires four, then they are ruling with what the people of the language do not agree with you on, and it is ignorance on their part. Likewise, the ignorance of others, that dual requires two by two, and three by three, and four by four, and they did not know that two by two, and three by three, and four by four, is a limitation of the number. And dual, three, and four are the opposite, for in the modified number among the Arabs there is an increase in meaning that is not in the original, and that is that when they say: The horses came in pairs, they mean by that two by two, meaning they came in pairs. Al-Jawhari said: And so is the modified number. Another said: If you say, "A group of people came to me in twos, threes, singly, or ten," what you mean is that they came to you one by one, or two by two, or three by three, or ten by ten. This is not the original meaning, because if you say, A group of people came to me in threes, or A group of people in ten, then you have limited the number of the people by saying three and ten. So if you say, They came to me in fours and twos, then you have not limited their number. What you mean is that they came to you in fours or two by two. It does not matter whether their number was greater or less in this case, so limiting each formula to the least that it requires, in his opinion, is decisive.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

As for the difference of opinion among Muslim scholars regarding a man who marries a fifth wife while he has four, they are:

Ninth - Malik and Al-Shafi'i said: He is to be punished if he was knowledgeable. Abu Thawr said the same. Al-Zuhri said: He is to be stoned if he was knowledgeable, and if he was ignorant, the lesser of the two punishments is flogging. She is entitled to her dowry and they are to be separated and never come together. A group said: He is not to be punished for any of that. This is the opinion of Al-Nu'man. Ya'qub and Muhammad said: He is to be punished for the person who is in a state of ihram, but he is not to be punished for any other marriage.

Such as marrying a Zoroastrian woman or five in a single marriage, or a temporary marriage, or marrying without witnesses, or a slave woman whom he married without the permission of her master. Abu Thawr said: If he knows that this is not permissible for him, he must be punished for all of it except for marrying without witnesses. There is a third opinion, which was stated by Al-Nakha'i, regarding a man who deliberately marries a fifth wife before the waiting period of his fourth wife is over: he should be flogged one hundred times, but he should not be exiled. This is the fatwa of our scholars regarding the fifth wife, as Ibn Al-Mundhir mentioned, so how about what is above that?

Tenth - Al-Zubayr bin Bakkar mentioned that Ibrahim Al-Hizami told me on the authority of Muhammad bin Ma'n Al-Ghifari who said: A woman came to Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, and said: O Commander of the Faithful, my husband fasts during the day and prays at night, and I hate to complain about him, while he works in obedience to God Almighty. He said to her: Your husband is a good husband. She kept repeating the words to him and he kept repeating the answer to her. Ka'b Al-Asadi said to him: O Commander of the Faithful, this woman is complaining about her husband keeping her away from his bed. Omar said: As I understood her words, so judge between them. Ka'b said: Bring her husband to me. He brought him and said to him: Your wife complains about you. He said: Is it about food or drink? He said: No. The woman said:

O wise judge, his guidance has distracted my friend from my bed and made him pray.

His asceticism in my bed is his worship, so judge the judgement Kaab and do not hesitate

He does not sleep day or night, so I do not praise him for his women

Her husband said:

My asceticism in her bed and in the partridge is that I am a man who is amazed by what has been revealed

In the Surah, in the seven long Surahs, and in the Book of God, there is a great fear.

Kaab said:

She has a right over you, O man, and her share is in four for the one who is wise.

So give her that and leave the excuses

Then he said: God Almighty has made lawful for you two, three, or four women. You have three days and three nights in which to worship your Lord. Omar said: By God, I do not know which of your two actions is more amazing: your understanding of their matter or your judgment between them? Go, for I have appointed you as the judge of Basra. Abu Hudbah Ibrahim bin Hudbah narrated that Anas bin Malik said:

A woman came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, seeking forgiveness for her husband, and said: "I do not have what women have. My husband fasts all the time." He said: "You have one day and he has one day. One day is for worship and the woman has one day."

Eleventh - The Almighty said: {But if you fear that you will not be just, then one.} Ad-Dahhak and others said: In inclination, love, sexual intercourse, companionship, and division between four, three, or two wives, then one. So he forbade the increase that would lead to abandoning justice in division and good companionship. This is evidence of the obligation of that, and God knows best. It was read in the nominative case, meaning one is sufficient or sufficient. Al-Kisa'i said: One satisfies. It was read in the accusative case with an implied verb, meaning marry one.

Twelfth - The Almighty said: Or what your right hands possess meaning female slaves, and it is in apposition to then one meaning if he fears that he will not be just with regard to one, then with what his right hand possesses. And in this is evidence that the right hand has no right to intercourse or to share, because the meaning is But if you fear that you will not be just in sharing, then one or what your right hands possess so he made the right hand's possession all like one, and thus it negated that the female slaves have a right to intercourse or to share. However, the right hand's possession of justice is based on the obligation of good management and kindness to the slave. And the Almighty attributed the possession to the right hand since it is a praiseworthy attribute, and the right hand is specifically for good deeds because of its ability. Do you not see that it is the one that spends? As he, peace be upon him, said:

So that his left hand does not know what his right hand is spending. This is the pledge of allegiance, and the right hand is called the right hand because of it. It is the recipient of the banners of glory, as he said:

If a banner is raised for glory, Araba will receive it with her right hand.

Thirteenth - The Almighty said: That is more likely that you will not deviate from the truth and act unjustly.

That is, that is more likely that you will not deviate from the truth and act unjustly, according to Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and others. It is said: A man is unjust and deviates. And from this is their saying: An arrow deviates from the target, meaning it deviates from it. Ibn Omar said: It is deficient in measure and weight. The poet said:

They said, We have followed the Messenger of God, and they rejected the words of the Messenger and raised the scales.

They were unjust. Abu Talib said:

With a scale of truth that does not defraud a grain of wheat, and has a witness from himself, not a supporter.

He wants something that is not tilted. The other said:

Three souls and three flocks, time has become too hard for my family

Any neighbor, money, and support for men is supported if he becomes poor and becomes a burden. And from this is the saying of God Almighty: And if you fear poverty (al-Tawbah 9:28) and from this is the saying of the poet:

The poor man does not know when he will become rich, and the rich man does not know when he will be dependent.

He is a family and a people of family, and extreme poverty is need, and the thing overwhelmed me and made me dependent if it overwhelmed me and became heavy for me, and the matter became severe and aggravated. Al-Shafi'i said: Do not be dependent, do not increase your dependents. Al-Tha'labi said: No one else said this, but it is said: He increased his dependents if he increased his dependents. Ibn Al-Arabi claimed that A'ala has seven meanings and no eighth, A'ala means wealth, the second means increase, the third means neighbor, the fourth means poverty, and the fifth means heaviness. Ibn Duraid narrated it, Al-Khansa' said:

The clan is enough for it

The sixth is the one who provides for his family, and from this is his saying, peace be upon him:

And start with those you support. The seventh is 'Aal Ghalab, from which comes 'Ayla Sabra, meaning he overcame. It is also said: A man supported himself by having many dependents. As for 'Adl, meaning he had many dependents, it is not correct.

I said: As for what al-Tha'labi said, what others said, al-Daraqutni attributed in his Sunan on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, and it is the saying of Jabir ibn Zayd. These two are imams from the scholars of the Muslims and their imams who preceded al-Shafi'i in it. As for what Ibn al-Arabi mentioned about the restriction and the lack of authenticity, it is not authentic. We have mentioned: The matter became severe and intensified, as narrated by al-Jawhari. Al-Harawi said in Gharibah: Abu Bakr said: It is said that a man 'ala fi al-ard ya'il fiha, meaning he struck it. Al-Ahmar said: It is said that something 'alanee ya'ilni 'aylan wa mu'ayil if it bothers you. As for 'ala, meaning he increased his dependents, it was mentioned by al-Kisa'i, Abu 'Umar al-Duri, and Ibn al-A'rabi. Al-Kisa'i Abu al-Hasan Ali ibn Hamza said: The Arabs say 'ala ya'ul and 'a'ala ya'il, meaning he increased his dependents. Abu Hatim said: al-Shafi'i was more knowledgeable about the Arabic language than us, and perhaps it is a language. al-Tha'labi, the interpreter, said: Our teacher Abu al-Qasim ibn Habib said: I asked Abu 'Umar al-Duri about this, and he was an imam in the language, and he did not dispute it, so he said: It is the language of Himyar, and he recited:

Death takes every living thing, no doubt, even if it walks tall.

Meaning, even if his livestock and children are many. Abu Umair bin Al-Ala said: The faces of the Arabs have become so many that I feared that I might take a mistake from someone who makes a mistake. Talha bin Masraf read: Except they are dependents, and this is the argument of Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him. Ibn Atiyyah said: Al-Zajjaj and others criticized the interpretation of aal/from aal/by saying: God Almighty has permitted the multiplication of concubines, and in that there is the multiplication of children, so how can it be closer to not having many children? This criticism is incorrect, because concubines are property that can be disposed of by selling, and the children that are criticized are the free women who have due rights. Ibn Al-A'rabi narrated that the Arabs say: A man is aal if his children are many.

Fourteenth - This verse was related by those who permitted a slave to marry four women, because God the Almighty said: Then marry such women as seem good to you meaning two, three, or four, and He did not specify a slave over a free man. This is the opinion of Dawud and At-Tabari, and it is the well-known opinion of Malik and the basis of his doctrine is in his Muwatta'. Ibn Al-Qasim and Ashab also narrated from him. Ibn Al-Mawaz mentioned that Ibn Wahb narrated from Malik that a slave may not marry more than two women. He said: This is the opinion of Al-Layth. Abu Omar said: Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa and their companions, Al-Thawri, and Al-Layth bin Sa'd said: A slave may not marry more than two women, and Ahmad and Ishaq said the same. It was narrated from Omar bin Al-Khattab, Ali bin Abi Talib, and Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf that a slave may not marry more than two women, and I do not know of any disagreement among the Companions. This is the opinion of Al-Sha'bi, Ata', Ibn Sirin, Al-Hakam, Ibrahim, and Hammad. The evidence for this opinion is the correct analogy to his divorce alone. And whoever says that his punishment is half the punishment of a free man, and his divorce is two divorces and his ila'a is two months, and similar rulings, then it is not far-fetched to say: He contradicted himself in his statement that he may marry four women, and God knows best.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God orders that the orphans' money be given to them when they reach puberty, in full and in sufficient quantity, and He forbids eating it and adding it to their money. That is why He said: And do not exchange the bad for the good. Sufyan al-Thawri said on the authority of Abu Salih: Do not hasten to take unlawful sustenance before the lawful sustenance that has been decreed for you comes to you. Saeed bin Jubair said: Do not exchange the unlawful wealth of the people for the lawful wealth of yours. He said: Do not squander your lawful wealth and eat their unlawful wealth. Saeed bin al-Musayyab and al-Zuhri said: Do not give to the lean and take the fat. Ibrahim al-Nakha'i and al-Dahhak said: Do not give to the fake and take the good. Al-Suddi said: One of them would take a fat sheep from the orphan's flock and replace it with a lean sheep and say: A sheep for a sheep, and he would take the good dirham and replace it with the fake and say: A dirham for a dirham. And His statement, And do not consume their wealth with your wealth, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubair, Muqatil bin Hayyan, As-Suddi and Sufyan bin Husayn said: That is, do not mix them and consume them all. And His statement, Indeed, it was a great sin, Ibn Abbas said: That is, a great and immense sin. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about His statement, a great sin, and he said, a great sin. However, in its chain of transmission is Muhammad bin Yusuf al-Kadimi, who is weak. It was narrated thus on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Ibn Sirin, Qatadah, Muqatil bin Hayyan, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Malik, Zaid bin Aslam and Abu Sinan, like the statement of Ibn Abbas. And in the hadith narrated in Sunan Abi Dawud: Forgive us our sins and our mistakes. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Wasil, the freed slave of Abu Uyaynah, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that Abu Ayyub divorced his wife, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O Abu Ayyub, divorcing Umm Ayyub was a sin. Ibn Sirin said: Sin is wrong. Then Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdul-Baqi told us, Bishr ibn Musa told us, Hudha ibn Khalifa told us, Awf told us, on the authority of Anas, that Abu Ayyub wanted to divorce Umm Ayyub, so he asked the Prophet's permission, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Divorce of Umm Ayyub is a sin. So he kept her. Then Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak from the hadith of Ali ibn Asim, on the authority of Hamid Al-Tawil, I heard Anas ibn Malik also say: Abu Talhah wanted to divorce his wife Umm Sulaym, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Divorce of Umm Sulaym is a sin. So he stopped. The meaning is: Your consuming their wealth along with your wealth is a great sin and a grave mistake, so avoid it. And His statement: And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three, meaning, if there is an orphan girl under one of you and he fears that he will not be able to give her a dowry like hers, then let him turn to other women, for they are many and God has not made things difficult for him. Al-Bukhari said: Ibrahim bin Musa told us, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Hisham bin Urwah told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: That a man had an orphan girl and he married her, and she had a bunch of dates, and he used to keep her for him, but she did not have any share in his money, so And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly, was revealed concerning him. I think he said: She was his partner in that bunch of dates and in his money. Then Al-Bukhari said: Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah told us. Ibrahim bin Saad narrated to us on the authority of Salih bin Kaysan on the authority of Ibn Shihab who said: Urwah bin Az-Zubayr informed me that he asked Aisha about the statement of God the Almighty: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, she said: O son of my sister, this orphan girl is in the care of her guardian and shares his wealth with him, and he is pleased with her wealth and her beauty, so her guardian wants to marry her without being just in her dowry, so he gives her the same as someone else, so they were forbidden to marry them unless they were just with them and gave them the highest dowry possible, and they were commanded to marry whatever women they liked other than them. Urwah said: Aisha said: The people asked the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) for a legal opinion after this verse, so God revealed: And they ask you concerning women. Aisha said: God's statement in the other verse: And you desire to marry them is the desire of one of you for his orphan girl if she is of little wealth and beauty. So they were forbidden to marry the orphan women whose wealth and beauty they desired except in a just manner, because of their desire for them if they are of little wealth and beauty. And His statement: Two, three, four means marry as many women as you wish other than them, if one of you wishes two, or three, or four. God the Almighty said: He has made the angels messengers with wings, two or three or four. That is, some of them have two wings, some of them have three, and some of them have four. He does not deny anything other than that in the angels because of the evidence for it, unlike limiting men to four. This verse, as Ibn Abbas and the majority of scholars said, is an example of gratitude and permission. If it were permissible to marry more than four, He would have mentioned it. Al-Shafi'i said: The Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which is clear from God, indicates that it is not permissible for anyone other than the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to marry more than four women. What Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said is agreed upon by the scholars, except for what was reported from a group of the Shi'a, that it is permissible to marry more than four up to nine. Some of them said: without limitation. Some of them may hold fast to the action of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in combining more than four to nine, as proven in the two Sahihs. As for eleven, as mentioned in some of the words of Al-Bukhari: Al-Bukhari suspended it, and we have narrated on the authority of Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married fifteen women, and consummated thirteen of them, and he had eleven wives, and he died with nine. This is, according to scholars, one of his characteristics, unlike any other in the nation, because of the hadiths that we will mention indicating the limitation to four. Let us mention the hadiths on this matter. Imam Ahmad said: Ismail and Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us: Mu'ar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri. Ibn Ja'far said in his hadith: Ibn Shihab told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, that Ghailan ibn Salamah al-Thaqafi converted to Islam and had ten wives. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him, Choose four of them. When he was in the time of 'Umar, he divorced his wives and divided his wealth among his sons. report of that reached 'Umar, who said, "I think that the devil, in what he eavesdrops on, heard of your death and cast it into your mind. Perhaps you will not live long. By God, you will take back your wives and take back your wealth, or I will inherit them from you, and I will pass by your grave and stone you as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned." And thus it was narrated by Al-Shafi'i, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, Al-Darqutni, Al-Bayhaqi and others, through various chains of transmission on the authority of Ismail bin Aliyah, Ghundar, Yazid bin Zari', Sa'id bin Abi Arubah, Sufyan Al-Thawri, 'Isa bin Yunus, 'Abd Al-Rahman bin Muhammad Al-Maharbi, Al-Fadl bin Musa and others from the Hafiz, on the authority of Mu'ammir with his chain of transmission similar to it until he said: Choose four of them. The rest of the hadith in the story of 'Umar is from the individuals of Ahmad, and it is a good addition, but it is weak because Al-Bukhari explained this hadith in what Al-Tirmidhi narrated from him, where he said after narrating it: I heard Al-Bukhari say: This hadith is not preserved. What is correct is what Shu'ayb and others narrated on the authority of Al-Zuhri. I was told on the authority of Muhammad bin Suwaid Al-Thaqafi that Ghailan bin Salamah - and he mentioned it. Al-Bukhari said: The hadith of Al-Zuhri is on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, that a man from Thaqeef divorced his wives, so 'Umar said to him: Either you take your wives back or I will stone your grave as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned. This explanation is questionable, and God knows best. Abd al-Razzaq narrated it from Muammir from al-Zuhri as a mursal. Malik narrated it from al-Zuhri as a mursal in the same way. Abu Zur'ah said: It is more authentic. Al-Bayhaqi said: Aqil narrated it from al-Zuhri: It reached us from Uthman ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Suwayd. Abu Hatim said: This is a mistake, rather it is al-Zuhri, from Muhammad ibn Suwayd. It reached us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, - and he mentioned it. Al-Bayhaqi said: It was narrated by Yunus and Ibn Uyaynah from al-Zuhri from Muhammad ibn Abi Suwayd, and this is as al-Bukhari explained it. This chain of transmission that we presented from the Musnad of Imam Ahmad, its men are trustworthy according to the conditions of the two sheikhs. Then it was narrated via other than Muammir's path, and even al-Zuhri. Al-Bayhaqi said:

Abu Abdullah Al-Hafiz told us, Abu Ali Al-Hafiz told us, Abu Abdul Rahman Al-Nasa'i told us, Abu Burayd Amr bin Yazid Al-Jarmi told us, Saif bin Ubaid God told us, Sarar bin Mujshar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi' and Salim, on the authority of Ibn Umar, that Ghailan bin Salamah had ten wives, so he converted to Islam and they converted to Islam with him, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered him to choose four of them. This is how Al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan. Abu Ali bin Al-Sakn said: Sarar bin Mujshar is the only one who narrated it, and he is trustworthy. Ibn Ma'in also authenticated him. Abu Ali said: This is how Al-Sumaida' bin Wahib narrated it on the authority of Sarar. Al-Bayhaqi said: We narrated from the hadith of Qays bin Al-Harith or Al-Harith bin Qays, and Urwah bin Mas'ud Al-Thaqafi and Sufyan bin Umayyah, meaning the hadith of Ghailan bin Salamah. The evidence is that if it were permissible to combine more than four, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have permitted him to have the rest of them while the ten remained, and they had converted to Islam with him. So when he ordered him to keep four and separate from the rest, it indicates that it is not permissible to combine more than four under any circumstances. So if this is the case permanently, then it is more appropriate to start over, and God Almighty knows best what is correct. Another hadith on this subject Abu Dawud and Ibn Majah narrated in their Sunans on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Layla on the authority of Humaydah ibn al-Shamardal, and with Ibn Majah bint al-Shamardal, Abu Dawud narrated that some of them say al-Shamardal with the voiced dhal on the authority of Qays ibn al-Harith, and with Abu Dawud in the narration of al-Harith ibn Qays ibn Umayrah al-Asadi, he said: I converted to Islam and I had eight wives, so I mentioned it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Choose four of them. This chain of transmission is good, and this mere difference does not harm the like of it because of the corroborating evidence for the hadith. Another hadith on this subject Al-Shafi'i said in his Musnad: He told me who heard Ibn Abi Al-Zinad say: Abdul Majeed bin Suhayl bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Awf bin Al-Harith on the authority of Nawfal bin Mu'awiyah Al-Dayli, may God be pleased with him, who said: I converted to Islam and I had five wives. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Choose four of them, whichever you wish, and leave the others. So I went to the oldest of them, an old barren woman who had been with me for sixty years, and I divorced her. All of these are evidences of the authenticity of what was mentioned above from the hadith of Ghailan, as Al-Bayhaqi, may God have mercy on him, said. And His statement: But if you fear that you will not be able to be just, then [marry only] one or those your right hands possess, meaning if you fear that you will not be able to be just between women, as God Almighty said, And you will never be able to be just between wives, even if you should strive to do so, so whoever fears that, let him limit himself to one or to concubines, for it is not obligatory to divide it between them, but it is recommended. So whoever does that, it is good, and whoever does not, there is no blame. And His statement: That is more likely that you will not be poor,

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

some of them said that it is more likely that you will not have many children, as Zaid bin Aslam, Sufyan bin Uyaynah, and Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on them, said. It is taken from God Almighty's statement: And if you fear poverty, meaning poverty, then God will enrich you from His bounty, if He wills. And the poet said:

The poor man does not know when he will become rich, and the rich man does not know when he will be dependent.

The Arabs say: A man is poor and provides for a family, but there is a problem with this interpretation here, because just as a large family is feared due to the number of free women, so too is a large family feared due to the number of concubines. The correct opinion is that of the majority: That is more likely that you will not be poor, meaning that you will not be unjust. It is said: He is unjust in judgment if he is fair, oppressive, and unjust. Abu Talib said in his famous poem:

With a just balance that does not fail a single grain of grain, and he has a witness from himself, not a supporter.

Hisham said on the authority of Abu Ishaq, who said: Uthman bin Affan wrote to the people of Kufa about something they rebuked him for: I am not a scale that cannot be relied upon. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim, Abu Hatim Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Hibban narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Abd al-Rahman Ibn Ibrahim Dahim, who said: Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb told us on the authority of `Umar Ibn Muhammad Ibn Zayd on the authority of `Abdullah Ibn `Umar on the authority of Hisham Ibn `Urwah, on the authority of his father on the authority of `Aishah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: That is more likely that you will not be unjust. He said: Do not be unjust. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father said, this is an incorrect hadith, and the correct one is: on the authority of `Aishah, it is suspended. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Ibn `Abbas, `Aishah, Mujahid, `Ikrimah, al-Hasan, Abu Malik, Abu Razin, al-Nakha'i, al-Sha`bi, al-Dahhak, `Ata' al-Khurasani, Qatadah, al-Suddi, and Muqatil Ibn Hayyan that they said: Do not be unjust. `Ikrimah, may God have mercy on him, cited as evidence the verse of Abu Talib that we presented, but he did not recite it as it is narrated in the Seerah. Ibn Jarir narrated it and then recited it well and chose that. And the Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Ali bin Abi Talha said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The free gift is the dowry. Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha: A free gift is an obligation. Muqatil, Qatadah, and Ibn Jurayj said: A free gift means an obligation. Ibn Jurayj added: It is named. Ibn Zayd said: The word benevolence in the speech of the Arabs means: obligatory. He says: Do not marry her except for something obligatory for her. It is not appropriate for anyone after the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to marry a woman except for an obligatory dowry. It is not appropriate for the dowry to be named falsely without right. The meaning of their words is that the man must definitely pay the dowry to the woman, and he must be content with that, just as he prevents the gift and gives the benevolence with it, likewise he must give the woman her dowry with it, so if she is content with it after he names it or with something of it, then let him eat it lawfully and goodly. For this reason, he said: But if they give you up contentedly of it, then eat it with enjoyment and satisfaction. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-Suddi, on the authority of Yaqub ibn al-Mughira ibn Shu'bah, on the authority of Ali, who said: "If one of you complains of something, let him ask his wife for three dirhams or something like that, and let him buy honey with it, then let him take rainwater, and it will gather together, content and delicious, a blessed cure." Hisham said on the authority of Sayyar on the authority of Abu Salih who said: When a man married his daughter, he would take her dowry without hers, so God forbade them from that, and the verse was revealed: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Ahmasi told us, Waki' told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of Umair al-Khathami on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn al-Mughira al-Ta'ifi on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. They said: O Messenger of God, what are the ties between them? He said: What their families agree upon. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Hajjaj ibn Arta'ah on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn al-Mughira on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us and said: Marry the single women three times. A man stood up and said: O Messenger of God, what are the ties between them? He said: What their families agree upon. Ibn al-Baylamani is weak and there is also a break in the chain of transmission.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 3- And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry [other girls]. The reason for the connection between the penalty and the condition is that the man was taking care of the orphan girl because he was her guardian and wanted to marry her, but he was not being just with her in her dowry: that is, he was not being fair in it and giving her what he would give to other husbands, so God forbade them from marrying them unless they were just with them and gave them the highest dowry that was due to them, and they were commanded to marry them unless they were just with them and gave them the highest dowry that was due to them, and they were commanded to marry whatever women they liked other than them, so this is the reason for the revelation of the verse as will come, so it is a prohibition specific to this situation. A group of the Salaf said: This verse abrogates what was in the pre-Islamic era and in the beginning of Islam, that a man could marry as many free women as he wished. So this verse limited them to four. So the reason for the connection between the penalty and the condition is that if they feared that they would not be fair to the orphans, then they would also fear that they would not be fair to the women, because they were cautious about the orphans but not the women. And fear is from opposites, because what is feared may be known or it may be suspected. For this reason the imams differed about its meaning in the verse. Abu Ubaidah said: You feared means you were certain. Others said: You feared means you thought. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is what the experts chose and that it is based on suspicion, not certainty. The meaning is: Whoever is most likely to be negligent in being fair to the orphan girl, then let him leave her and marry someone else. Al-Nakha'i and Ibn Watthab read Taqastu with the opening of the ta' from qast: if you are unjust, so this reading is based on the assumption of adding /a, as if he said: and if you fear that you will be just. Al-Zajjaj narrated that qasat is used as qast, and it is known among linguists that qasat means justice, and qasat means unjust, and ma in his statement ma taaba is a relative pronoun, and he used ma in place of min because they may alternate and each one of them takes the place of the other as in his statement and the heaven and He who built it "and among them is he who walks on his bellies and among them is he who walks on two legs and among them is he who walks on four". The Basrans said: ma is used for attributes as it is used for inanimate objects, it is said ma indak, so it is said: elegant and generous, so the meaning is: then marry the good women: meaning the permissible, and what God has forbidden is not good. It was said: ma here is a maddah: meaning as long as you are pleased with marriage, and Ibn Atiyyah weakened it. Al-Farra' said: ma here is a source. Al-Nahas said: This is very far-fetched. Ibn Abi Ubla read: Then marry those that please you. The scholars have agreed that this condition mentioned in the verse has no meaning, and that it is permissible for someone who does not fear that he will be just with the orphans to marry more than one. The of women in his statement of women is either explanatory or partial, because what is meant is not orphans. His statement two, three, or four is in the accusative case as a substitute for what as Abu Ali al-Farisi said, and it was said as a state, and these words are not modified for justice and description as is explained in the science of grammar and etymology: Marry those women that please you, two by two, three by three, and four by four.

The verse has been used as evidence for the prohibition of anything more than four, and they have explained that it is addressed to the entire nation, and that every married person has the right to choose whatever he wants from this number, just as it is said to a group: Divide this money, which is a thousand dirhams, or this money in the badra, two dirhams by two, three by three, and four by four. This is accepted if the divided amount has been mentioned in its entirety or its location has been specified. However, if it is absolute, as is said: Divide the dirhams, and what is meant by it is what they have earned, then the meaning is not like this. The verse is from the other chapter, not the first. If someone says to a group of people who are dividing a large amount of money: Divide it into twos, threes, or fours, and they divide some of it among themselves two dirhams by two, and three by three, and some of it four by four, this is the Arabic meaning. It is known that if someone says, The people came to me in twos, and they are one hundred thousand, the meaning is that they came to him two by two, and so on in The people came three by four. The address to all is like the address to each individual, as in His saying, Kill the polytheists, "Establish prayer," Give zakat, and the like. So His saying, Then marry such women as seem good to you, two by two, three by three, and four by four, means that each individual among you should marry such women as seem good to him, two by two, three by three, and four by four. This is what the Arabic language requires. The verse indicates the opposite of what they used as evidence for it, and this is supported by His saying, the Most High, at the end of the verse: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one, for even if it is addressed to all, it is like the address to each individual. It is better to prove the prohibition of increasing more than four by the Sunnah, not by the Qur'an.

As for the argument of those who used the verse as evidence for the permissibility of marrying nine based on the comprehensive waw, it is as if he said: Marry the total of this mentioned number. This is ignorance of the Arabic meaning. If he had said: Marry two, three, and four, this statement would have had a point. However, with the use of the formula of justice, no. Rather, the Almighty used the comprehensive waw without or, because the choice indicates that only one of the mentioned numbers is permissible and not the other, and that is not what is intended by the Qur'anic system. Al-Nakha'i and Yahya ibn Watthab read a third and a quarter without an alif. His statement, But if you fear that you will not be just, then one then marry one as is indicated by His statement, Then marry what is good. It was said that the meaning is: then adhere to it or choose one. The first is more appropriate, and the meaning is: If you fear that you will not be just between wives in division and the like, then marry one. It prevents anyone who fears that from increasing more than one. It was read in the nominative case as the subject and the predicate is omitted. Al-Kisa'i said: That is, one is enough. It was said that the estimate is: one is enough. It is permissible for one to be, in the nominative reading, the predicate of a deleted subject: that is, one is enough. His statement, or what your right hands possess is conjoined with one: that is, then marry one or marry what your right hands possess of concubines, even if their number is large, as the relative pronoun indicates. What is meant is marrying them by way of ownership, not by way of marriage. This is evidence that female slaves have no right to a share, as is indicated by making it a sharer of one in security from injustice, and attributing ownership to the oath, because it is the direct receipt and delivery of money and all other matters that are usually attributed to a person. From this:

If a banner is raised for glory, Araba will receive it with her right hand.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

His saying, That is more likely that you will not be unjust. That is, that is more likely that you will not be unjust, from the root word 'ala the man leaned meaning that he deviated and was unjust. From this comes their saying, the arrow deviated from the target: it deviated from it, and the scale tilted if it tilted. From this comes:

They said, We have followed the Messenger of God, and they rejected the words of the Messenger and raised the scales.

And from it is the saying of Abu Talib:

With a scale of truth that does not defraud a grain of grain, and has a witness from himself, not a supporter.

And also from it:

We are three and three flocks, time has become too harsh on our children

Meaning: If you fear injustice between wives, then this which you have been commanded to do is closer to not being unjust. It is said: A man is poor and becomes dependent, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: And if you fear poverty, and from this is the saying of the poet:

The poor man does not know when he will become rich, and the rich man does not know when he will be dependent.

Al-Shafi'i said: "That you do not support" means that your children are not many. Al-Tha'labi said: No one else said this. Rather, it is said that he has many children. Ibn al-Arabi mentioned that 'aal has seven meanings: The first is wealth. The second is provision. The third is a neighbor. The fourth is poverty. The fifth is burden. The sixth is taking care of the children, and from this is the saying of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him): "And start with those you support." The seventh is to overcome, and from this is 'ayl sabri. He said: It is said that a man has many children. As for 'aal in the sense of having many children, it is not correct. The response to Al-Tha'labi's denial of what Al-Shafi'i said, as well as Ibn al-Arabi's denial of it, is that Zayd ibn Aslam and Jabir ibn Zayd preceded Al-Shafi'i in saying this, and they are two imams from the imams of the Muslims who do not interpret the Qur'an, they and Imam Al-Shafi'i, with what has no basis in Arabic. Al-Daraqutni reported this from them in his Sunan. Al-Qurtubi narrated it on the authority of Al-Kisa'i, Abu Omar Al-Duri and Ibn Al-A'rabi. Abu Hatim said: Al-Shafi'i was more knowledgeable about the Arabic language than us, and perhaps it is a language. Al-Tha'labi said: Our teacher Abu Al-Qasim Ibn Habib said: I asked Abu Omar Al-Duri about this, and he was an imam in the language, without dispute, and he said: It is the language of Himyar, and he recited:

Death takes every living thing without a doubt, even if it walks tall.

Meaning: Even if his livestock and children are many.

Talha bin Masraf read: that you should not worship. Ibn Atiyyah said: Al-Zajaj castigated the interpretation of high from children by saying that God Almighty has permitted many concubines, and in that is the multiplication of children, so how can it be closer to them not being many? This castigation is incorrect, because concubines are property that can be disposed of by selling, and children are free women with due rights. Ibn al-A'rabi narrated that the Arabs say: A man is high if his children are many, and that is sufficient.

The word Aa/ has been mentioned for meanings other than the seven mentioned by Ibn al-Arabi, including Aa/ meaning to become intense and severe, as narrated by al-Jawhari. A man is strong on the ground means to strike it, as narrated by al-Harawi. Aa/ means to make himself helpless, as narrated by al-Ahmar. These are three meanings other than the seven, and the fourth is Aa/ meaning to have many dependents, so the total meanings of Aa/ are eleven meanings.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

3-And the Almighty's saying: And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry those that please you of [other] women, two or three or four. The verse: They differed in their interpretation. Some of them said: Its meaning is that if you fear, O guardians of the orphans, that you will not be just toward them when you marry them, then marry others of the strangers, two or three or four.

It was narrated to us by Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi, on the authority of Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, on the authority of Muhammad bin Yusuf, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ismail, on the authority of Abu Al-Yaman, on the authority of Shu'ayb, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, who said: Urwah bin Al-Zubayr used to narrate that he asked Aisha, may God be pleased with her, And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice. She said: She is an orphan who is in the care of her guardian, and he desires her beauty and wealth and wants to marry her at a rate lower than the norm of her wives, so they were forbidden from marrying them unless they were able to deal justly with them in completing the dowry, and they were ordered to marry women other than them. Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: Then the people asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, for a fatwa, so God, the Most High, revealed: "And they ask you concerning women. Say, 'God gives you a fatwa concerning them.'" until His saying, And you desire to marry them. So God, the Most High, explained in this verse that if the orphan girl was beautiful or wealthy, they would desire to marry her and they would not include her in her norm of completing the dowry, and if She was undesirable because of her lack of money and beauty, so they left her and sought other women. He said: Just as they leave her when they want her, they have no right to marry her if they want her unless they give her the fullest dowry and give her her rights.

Al-Hasan said: There was a man from the people of Medina who had orphans among whom there was one whom he was permitted to marry, so he married her for her wealth, but she did not please him, out of dislike for a stranger to enter and share her wealth with him. Then he treated her badly and waited for her to die so that he could inherit her. God Almighty condemned that, and God revealed this verse.

Ikrimah said: A man from Quraysh would marry ten women or more, and if he became destitute of the means to provide for his wives, he would turn to the orphan in his care and spend on him. So it was said to them: Do not exceed four, so that you will not need to take the money of the orphans. This is the narration of Tawus on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both.

Some of them said: They were reluctant to deal with the orphans' money and were lenient with women, so they would marry whomever they wanted, and sometimes they were just and sometimes they were not just. So when God the Most High revealed about the orphans' money, And give the orphans their property, He revealed this verse, And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphans, meaning that just as you feared that you will not deal justly with the orphans, so too were they afraid that you will not deal justly with the women, so do not marry more than you can fulfill their rights, because women are like orphans in weakness. This is the saying of Saeed bin Jubayr, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, and As-Suddi. Then He permitted marrying four women, saying: "Then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four. But if you fear that you will not be just" with them, then one. Mujahid said: Its meaning is that if you are reluctant to take care of the orphans and their money out of faith, then likewise were reluctant to commit adultery, so marry lawful women in a good marriage. Then He explained to them a number, and they would marry whomever they wanted without Number, the Almighty said: Then marry such women as seem good to you meaning: whoever seems good, as the Almighty said: And the heaven and He who constructed it Ash-Shams 5, meaning: And who constructed it? "Pharaoh said: And what is the Lord of the worlds?" Ash-Shu'ara 23. The Arabs place and what in place of each other, as the Almighty said: And among them is he who walks on his bellies, and among them is he who walks on two legs An-Nur 45. And good means: It is permissible for you to marry two, three, or four women, in derivation from two, three, or four, and therefore they are not declined. And the waw means or, for choice, as the Almighty said: That you stand before God in pairs and singly Saba 46: Those with wings, two, three, or four Ghafir 1. This is a consensus that no one from the nation is permitted to have more than four wives, and the increase was from the characteristics of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and no one from the nation shared it with him. It was narrated that "Qais bin Al-Harith had eight wives, so when this verse was revealed, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I divorced four and kept four. I said to the woman who had not given birth, 'So-and-so, go away,' and to the woman who had given birth, 'So-and-so, come back.'" It was narrated that "Ghailan ibn Salamah al-Thaqafi converted to Islam and he had ten wives, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: "Keep four and leave the rest."

If a free man marries four free women, it is permissible. As for a slave, it is not permissible for him to marry more than two women according to most scholars. Abdul Wahhab bin Ahmad Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz Ahmad Al-Khalal told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us, Al-Rabi' told us, Al-Shafi'i told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abdul Rahman, the freed slave of Abu Talhah, on the authority of Sulayman bin Yasar, on the authority of Abdullah bin Utbah, on the authority of Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, that he said: A slave may marry two women and divorce them twice, and a female slave must observe the waiting period of two menstrual cycles. If she does not menstruate, then two months or a month and a half. Rabi'ah said: It is permissible for a slave to marry four women, just like a free man.

If you fear, or it was said: if you know, that you will not be just, between the four wives, then marry one, meaning: marry one. Abu Ja'far read one in the nominative case, or what your right hands possess, meaning concubines, who are not required to have the same rights as free women, nor are they entitled to a share, nor are their numbers restricted. The mention of oaths is an explanation, meaning: or what you possess. Some of the scholars of meaning said: or what your right hands possess, meaning: what your shares are enforced in, making it an oath of oath, not an oath of injury. That is closer, "that you do not deviate," meaning: do not be unjust or inclined. It is said: a family scale, meaning: unjust and inclined. This is the saying of most of the commentators. Mujahid said: that you do not go astray. Al-Farra' said: that you do not exceed what God has imposed upon you. The root of 'awl is to exceed, and from it is the 'awl of the obligatory duties. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said: that your children do not become many, and no one said that it is only said from the multitude of children: 'a'ala ya'il 'iyala, if his children become many. Abu Hatim said: Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, was more knowledgeable. In the language of the Arabs, it is perhaps a language. It is said that it is the language of Himyar. Talha bin Masraf read that you do not be dependent, and it is an argument for the statement of Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

3 "And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice." That is, if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls if you marry them, then marry women of your choice from others. If a man finds an orphan girl who is wealthy and beautiful, then he marries her out of concern for her, then he may have a number of them and not be able to fulfill their rights. Or if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls and you feel embarrassed about them, then also fear that you will not be just toward the women, then marry a number that you can fulfill their rights, because the one who feels embarrassed about sin should feel embarrassed about all sins, according to what was narrated: When the matter of orphans became so great, they felt embarrassed about taking care of orphans, but they did not feel embarrassed about fornication. So it was said to them, if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then fear fornication, then marry those who are lawful for you. Rather, they were referred to as what in order to treat them as non-rational beings due to their lack of reason. Similar to it is or what your right hands possess. It was also read be just with the opening of the ta' on the basis that la is an additional word, meaning if you fear that you will be unjust. Two, three, and four are modified from repeated numbers, which are: two by two, three by three, and four by four. They are not declined for justice and the attribute, as they are built as attributes, even though their origins were not built for them. It was said that it is due to the repetition of justice, as it is modified in consideration of the attribute and repetition, accusative as a state of the agent of taaba and its meaning is: permission for every married person who wants to combine to marry as many as he wants from the mentioned number, whether they agree on it or differ, like you saying: divide this lot two by two, and three by three. If it was singular, the meaning would be to allow combining between these numbers without distributing, and if it was mentioned with or, it would allow the difference in number. If you fear that you will not be just between these numbers as well. "One" So choose or marry one and leave the multitude. It was read in the nominative case as if it is a deleted subject or its predicate, meaning that one is sufficient for you, or the convincing one is. "Or what your right hands possess" except between one of the wives and the number of concubines due to the lightness of their provisions and the lack of obligation to divide them among them. "That" meaning reducing them or choosing one or taking a concubine. "Nearer that you do not incline" is closer than that you do not deviate. It is said that the scale is tilted if it tilts and the ruler is unfair if he is unjust, and the inheritance is tilted if it deviates from the limit of the named shares. It was interpreted as not having many children, as it is from the man who provides for his children, he provides for them if he is faithful to them, so he expressed the many children as the many believers by metaphor. This is supported by the reading "Do not incline" from the man who provides if his children are many, and perhaps what is meant by children is the husbands, even if it is meant children, because concubines are a cause of few children in addition to marriage, due to the permissibility of withdrawal in it, like marrying one in addition to marrying four.

Surat al-Nisa 4:3

And if you fear that you will not be just toward the orphan girls, then marry women of your choice, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then only one or those your right hands possess. That is more suitable that you may not incur injustice.

Surat al-Nisa 4:4

And give the women their bridal gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And give to women their dowries plural of dowry, their bridal gifts as a gift a verbal noun, a gift willingly but if they give up willingly to you any part of it a specification converted from the subject, meaning their souls are willing to give you any part of the dowry and they give it to you then eat it in enjoyment pleasantly and with good results a praiseworthy outcome, with no harm in it for you in the Hereafter. It was revealed in response to those who disliked that.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Salih that he said: When a man married his daughter, he would take her dowry without hers, so God forbade them from that and revealed: And give the women their dowries as a free gift.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: By that, God Almighty means: And give women their dowries as a mandatory gift and a binding obligation.

It is said: So-and-so bestowed such-and-such upon so-and-so, so he bestows upon him a gift and gifts, as in:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And give the women their dowries as a free gift, meaning: an obligation.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said: Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And give the women their dowries as a gift, meaning by the gift, the dowry.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: And give the women their dowries as a free gift, he said: A named obligation.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard Ibn Zayd say about His statement, And give the women their dowries as a free gift, he said: The free gift in the speech of the Arabs means the obligatory. He says: He does not marry her except for something obligatory for her, a dowry that he names for her as obligatory. And it is not appropriate for anyone to marry a woman, after the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, except for an obligatory dowry, and it is not appropriate for the dowry to be named falsely without right.

Others said: Rather, what he meant by his saying: And give the women their dowries as a free gift is the guardians of the women, because they used to take their dowries.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Sayyar, on the authority of Abu Salih, he said: When a man married his widow, he would take her dowry without her, so God Almighty forbade them from that, and the following was revealed: And give the women their dowries as a free gift.

Others said: Rather, it was from the guardians of women, that a man would give his sister to a man, on the condition that the other would give him his sister, on the condition that there would not be much dowry between them, so they were forbidden from that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of his father, he said: A Hadrami claimed that some people used to give this man his sister, and take the man's sister, and they did not take much of a dowry, so God Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the interpretations we have mentioned in this regard is the interpretation we have said. That is because God, the Blessed and Exalted, began mentioning this verse by addressing those who marry women, and forbade them from oppressing and being unjust to them, and showed them the way to escape from oppressing them. There is no indication in the verse that the address was diverted from them to others. Since that is the case, it is known that those to whom it was said, Then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four, are those to whom it was said, And give the women their dowries, and that its meaning is: And give the women you marry their dowries as a gift, because He said at the beginning of [the verse], Then marry such women as seem good to you, and He did not say, Then marry, so His statement, And give the women their dowries, is diverted to the fact that it is intended for the guardians of the women and not their husbands.

This is an order from God to the husbands of women who have been consummated with and whose dowry has been specified, to give them their dowries, except for those who have been divorced before consummation and for whom no dowry has been specified in the marriage contract.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: If your women give you, O men, something from their dowries, willingly so, then eat it with enjoyment and pleasure, as:

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Bishr bin Al-Mufaddal told us, he said, Amara told us, on the authority of Ikrimah: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, he said: the dowry.

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Harami bin Amara told me, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Amara, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Amara, regarding the statement of God

Surat al-Nisa 4:4

And give the women their bridal gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

Almighty: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, he said: Charity.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told me, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, he said: The spouses.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ubaidah, he said, Ibrahim said to me: I ate from the delicious and fragrant food! I said: What is that? He said: Your wife gave you from her dowry.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: A man entered upon Alqamah while he was eating from the food in front of him, from something that his wife had given him as part of her dowry or something else, so Alqamah said to him: Come closer and eat from the delicious and refreshing food.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and good health, meaning: If it is not harmful or deceiving, then it is good health and good health, as God Almighty said.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: But if they give up willingly to you any part of it, he said: the dowry, then eat it in enjoyment and good health.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard Ibn Zayd say regarding His statement: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, after you have made it obligatory for them and made it permissible for them, then eat it in enjoyment and good health.

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir told us, on the authority of his father, he said: A Hadrami claimed that some people were afraid that one of them would ask for a divorce regarding something that he had given to his wife, so God Almighty said: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and with good health.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: But if they give you up willingly anything of it, then eat it with enjoyment and right satisfaction. He said: Whatever you are willingly eating, without dislike or humiliation, God has made it permissible for you to eat it with enjoyment and right satisfaction.

Others said: Rather, this statement refers to the guardians of women, so it was said to them: If the souls of the women whose marriage is yours are content with their dowries, then eat it with enjoyment and pleasure.

Who said that?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Sayyar told us, on the authority of Abu Salih, regarding his statement: But if they, of their own good pleasure, give up to you anything thereof, he said: When a man married his daughter, he would take her dowry and say: So this verse was revealed about the guardians: But if they, of their own pleasure, give up to you anything thereof, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two interpretations is the one we have mentioned, that the verse is addressed to the spouses, because the opening of the verse begins with mentioning them, and His statement: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, is in the same context.

If someone were to say: How is it said: If they give up willingly to you anything of it, when you know that the meaning of the statement is: If they give up willingly to you anything? And how is it that the word soul is used alone, while the meaning is for all? That is because the Most High said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift.

It was said: As for transferring the action of the souls to the owners of the souls, this is widespread in the speech of the Arabs. Among their well-known sayings is: I was fed up with this matter an arm and a cubit, and I was satisfied with this matter an eye, and the meaning is: My arm was fed up with it, and my eye was satisfied with it, as the poet said:

If the muscular Tiyaz is in need, we say: Here you go, here you go! His arms are too tight for him.

He transferred the attribute of the arm to the Lord of the arm, then brought out the arm as an explanation of the location of the action.

Likewise, the soul was united in His statement: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, since the soul explains the location of the report.

As for the unification of the soul from the souls, because he only meant passion, and passion is a group, as the poet said:

It has corpses of sorrow, but its bones are white, and its skin is a cross.

As the other said:

In your creation there is greatness and we have been saddened

Some grammarians of Kufa said: It is permissible for the soul in this place to be plural or singular, If they willingly give you up something of it, and souls and I am fed up with it an arm and an arm and arms, because it is attributed to you and to the one you are informing about, so the singular was sufficient for the plural for that reason, and the illusion did not go to that it does not have the meaning of a plural, because before it there was a plural.

Abu Jaafar said: The correct statement in this regard, according to us, is that the soul is the place of the names that come in the singular form, conveying its meaning if mentioned in the singular form, and that it means the plural for all.

As for his saying: Bon appetit, it is taken from: I treated the camel with tar, if it was tried and treated with it, as the poet said:

He is a vulgar man whose virtues are apparent, and he places happiness in the places of the burrow.

So the meaning of his saying: Eat it with pleasure and satisfaction is: eat it as a healing medicine.

It is said: The food made me happy and satisfied, meaning it became a cure and a healing treatment for me. It made me happy and satisfied with the broken form, and it is rare. Those who say this saying say: He made me happy and satisfied, and those who say: He made me happy say: He made me happy and satisfied. So when they say it alone, they say: This food made me satisfied. It is said: He made the people happy if he treated them well. Some Arabs were heard saying: It was named Hani' to be happy, meaning: to provide for and suffice.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains ten issues:

First: The Almighty said: And give the women their dowries. Dowries are the plural of sadaqah. Al-Akhfash said: Banu Tamim say sadaqah, and the plural is sadaqat. If you wish, you can open it or leave it silent. Al-Mazini said: It is said that a woman's dowry is with a kasrah, but it is not said with a fathah. Yaqub and Ahmad bin Yahya narrated with a fathah from Al-Nahhas. The address in this verse is to the husbands, as said by Ibn Abbas, Qatadah, Ibn Zayd, and Ibn Jurayj. God Almighty commanded them to give dowries voluntarily as a gift from them to their husbands. It was said: The address is to the guardians, as said by Abu Salah. The guardian used to take the woman's dowry and not give her anything, so they were forbidden from that and ordered to give it to them. Al-Kalbi said in his narration: In the days of ignorance, if the guardian married her off, and she was with him for ten years, he would not give her much or little of her dowry, and if she was a stranger, he would carry her on a camel to her husband and would not give her anything other than that camel. Then this verse was revealed: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman said on the authority of his father: A Hadrami claimed that what was meant by the verse were the quarreling ones who married one woman to another, so they were ordered to set dowries. The first is more apparent, because the pronouns are one and the whole of them refer to the husbands, so they understood what was meant because he said: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls until his saying: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. This necessitates the harmony of the pronouns and that the first in them is the last.

Second: This verse indicates the obligation of the dowry for the woman, and this is agreed upon and there is no disagreement about it except what was narrated from some of the scholars of Iraq that if the master marries his slave to his female slave, then no dowry is obligatory, and it is nothing, because the Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. So He made it general and said: Then marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is reasonable. (An-Nisa': 25) The scholars also agreed that there is no limit to its large amount, and they differed about its small amount, as will be explained in His statement: And you have given one of them a great amount. (An-Nisa': 20) The majority read their dowries with a fat-ha on the sad and a damma on the dal, and Qatadah read their dowries with a damma on the sad and a sukoon on the dal. An-Nakha'i and Ibn Wathab read them with a damma on both of them, and the unification is their dowry.

Third: The Almighty's saying: A gift. The word an-nahlah and an-nahlah, with the nun pronounced with a kasrah or a damma, are two languages. Its origin is from giving, na-ha-t-fulan means I gave something to someone. So the dowry is a gift from God Almighty to the woman. It was said: a gift means with the consent of the husbands without dispute. Qatadah said: The meaning of a gift is an obligatory duty.

Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Zayd: A named obligation. Abu Ubaid said: The gift cannot be unless it is named and known. Al-Zajaj said: A gift of religion. The gift is religion and faith. It is said: This is his gift, meaning his religion. This is good with the address being to the guardians who used to take it in the pre-Islamic era, until some women said about their husbands:

He doesn't take sweets from our daughters.

She says: He does not do anything else. So God took it away from them and ordered it for the women. And a gift is in the accusative case as a state of the spouses by implying a verb from its wording, the meaning of which is they bestowed upon them a gift. And it was said: It is in the accusative case as an explanation. And it was said: It is a source on a non-source in the place of a state.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: But if they, of their own good pleasure, give up to you anything thereof, is addressed to husbands, and indicates in general that a woman's gift of her dowry to her husband, whether she is a virgin or previously married, is permissible. The majority of jurists said this. Malik forbade a virgin from giving her dowry to her husband and made that for the guardian, even though she still owned it. Al-Farra' claimed that it is addressed to guardians, because they used to take the dowry and not give the woman anything from it, so they were not permitted anything from it except what the woman was willing to give. The first statement is more correct, because the guardians were not mentioned before, and the pronoun in thereof refers to the dowry. This is what Ikrimah and others said. The reason for the verse, as mentioned, is that some people were embarrassed to have anything of what they gave to their wives returned to them, so but if they, of their own pleasure, give up to you was revealed.

Surat al-Nisa 4:4

And give the women their bridal gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

Fifth: The scholars agreed that if a woman who is in control of her own affairs gives her dowry to her husband, this is enforceable against her and she has no right to take it back, except that Shuraih saw that she has the right to take it back, and he provided evidence for this by saying: But if they give up willingly to you any part of it, and if she was seeking it, she would not be willing to give it to her. Ibn al-Arabi said: This is invalid, because she has given up willingly and he has eaten, so she has no right to speak, since what is meant is not the image of eating, but rather it is a metaphor for making it permissible and lawful, and this is clear.

Sixth: If she stipulated that he should not marry another woman during the marriage contract, and she reduced part of her dowry for that, then he married another woman, then she has nothing against him, according to the narration of Ibn al-Qasim, because she stipulated something that was not permissible to stipulate. Just as the people of Barirah stipulated that Aisha should free her and that the loyalty should be to her seller, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, validated the contract and nullified the stipulation. Likewise here it is permissible to drop part of the dowry from him and the marriage is invalidated. Ibn Abd al-Hakam said: If there remains of her dowry the equivalent of the dowry of her peers or more, she does not get anything back from him. But if she reduced part of her dowry and he married another woman, she gets back from him the full dowry of her peers, because he stipulated a condition for himself and took from him compensation that was due to her, so he must fulfill it, based on his saying, peace be upon him:

Believers are bound by their conditions.

Seventh: This verse is evidence that manumission is not a dowry, because it is not money, as the woman cannot give it as a gift nor the husband eat it. This is what Malik, Abu Hanifa, Zufar, Muhammad, and Al-Shafi'i said. Ahmad ibn Hanbal, Ishaq, and Ya'qub said: It is a dowry and she has no dowry other than manumission, according to the hadith of Safiyya - narrated by the Imams:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, freed her and made her freedom her dowry." It was narrated on the authority of Anas that he did so, and he is the narrator of the hadith of Safiyyah. The first scholars responded by saying: There is no proof in the hadith of Safiyyah, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was specifically permitted to marry without a dowry, and he wanted Zaynab, so she was forbidden to Zayd, so he entered upon her without a guardian or dowry, so it is not appropriate to use such evidence, and God knows best.

Eighth - The Almighty's saying: A soul. It was said: It is in the accusative case for clarification, and neither Sibawayh nor the Kufians permit that what was in the accusative case for clarification should precede it. Al-Mazini and Abu al-Abbas al-Mubarrad permitted that if the agent was a verb. And he recited:

And no soul finds comfort in separation

And in the revelation: They shall come forth with their eyes humbled (al-Qamar 54:7). Based on this, it is permissible to say fat that has been burst and face that has been made beautiful. And the companions of Sibawayh said: "A soul is in the accusative case with the implication of a verb, the meaning of which is 'I mean a soul', and it is not in the accusative case as a distinction. If this is the case, then there is no proof in it." And Al-Zajaj said: The narration:

And it was not my soul...

Everyone agreed that it is not permissible to present the distinguished if the worker is not acting, such as twenty dirhams.

Ninth - The Almighty's statement: Then eat it. What is meant is not the form of eating, but rather what is meant by it is permissibility in any way, which is what is meant by His statement in the verse that follows it: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly (An-Nisa': 10). What is meant is not the eating itself, but since eating is the most complete form of enjoying money, He expressed actions with eating. Similar to it is the statement of the Almighty: When the call is made for prayer on the day of Jumu'ah, then proceed to the remembrance of God and leave off business (al-Jumuah 62:9). It is known that the form of business is not intended, but rather what is meant is what distracts him from the remembrance of God, such as marriage and other things, but the mention of business is because it is the most important thing that distracts him from the remembrance of God.

Tenth - The Almighty's saying: Enjoyable and pleasant is in the accusative case as a state of the letter ha in kulhu. It was said: It is an adjective for a deleted source, meaning, enjoyable eating with good souls. The food and drink pleased him, and it was not enjoyable. He was certainly pleased, and the source is happiness. And everything that does not come with difficulty or hardship is enjoyable. And Hani is an active participle from hanu like dharif from zarf, and Hani is yuhanna so it is Hani on the basis of a verb like zman. And the food pleased me and marana on the basis of following, so if marana is not mentioned, you say: the food pleased me with the letter alif, meaning it was digested. Abu Ali said: This is as it came in the hadith:

Return, you who are rewarded and not sinful. So they changed the waw of the word rewarded to an alif, following the word rewarded. Abu al-Abbas said on the authority of Ibn al-A'rabi: It is said hani' and hanaani and marana and maranay and it is not said mar'ani. Al-Harawi narrated it. Al-Qushayri narrated that it is said hani'ani and mar'ani with the kasra, yuhanani and mar'ani, and it is rare. It was said: hani'an with no sin in it, and maru'an with no disease in it. Katheer said:

Happy visible, not a hidden disease, for the glory of those who turn away from us what is permissible

A man entered upon Alqamah while he was eating something that his wife had given him as a gift from her dowry. He said to him: Eat from the delicious and well-digested food. It was said: The delicious food is the good and palatable food that is not spoiled by anything, and the well-digested food is the one that has a praiseworthy outcome, is completely digested, does not harm or cause harm. He said: You will not be required to do anything in this world, nor will you be held accountable for it in the Hereafter. This is indicated by what Ibn Abbas narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he was asked about this verse: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then eat it, so he said:

If she gives her husband a gift willingly and not under duress, no authority will decree it against you, nor will God Almighty hold you accountable for it in the Hereafter." It was narrated on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, who said: If one of you complains of something, let him ask his wife for a dirham from her dowry, then buy honey with it and drink it with rainwater, and God Almighty will bring together for him pleasure, happiness, and blessed water. And God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God orders that the orphans' money be given to them when they reach puberty, in full and in sufficient quantity, and He forbids eating it and adding it to their money. That is why He said: And do not exchange the bad for the good. Sufyan al-Thawri said on the authority of Abu Salih: Do not hasten to take unlawful sustenance before the lawful sustenance that has been decreed for you comes to you. Saeed bin Jubair said: Do not exchange the unlawful wealth of the people for the lawful wealth of yours. He said: Do not squander your lawful wealth and eat their unlawful wealth. Saeed bin al-Musayyab and al-Zuhri said: Do not give to the lean and take the fat. Ibrahim al-Nakha'i and al-Dahhak said: Do not give to the fake and take the good. Al-Suddi said: One of them would take a fat sheep from the orphan's flock and replace it with a lean sheep and say: A sheep for a sheep, and he would take the good dirham and replace it with the fake and say: A dirham for a dirham. And His statement, And do not consume their wealth with your wealth, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubair, Muqatil bin Hayyan, As-Suddi and Sufyan bin Husayn said: That is, do not mix them and consume them all. And His statement, Indeed, it was a great sin, Ibn Abbas said: That is, a great and immense sin. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about His statement, a great sin, and he said, a great sin. However, in its chain of transmission is Muhammad bin Yusuf Al-Kadimi, who is weak. It was narrated thus on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Ibn Sirin, Qatadah, Muqatil bin Hayyan, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Malik, Zaid bin Aslam and Abu Sinan, like the statement of Ibn Abbas. And in the hadith narrated in Sunan Abi Dawud: Forgive us our sins and our mistakes. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Wasil, the freed slave of Abu Uyaynah, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that Abu Ayyub divorced his wife, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O Abu Ayyub, divorcing Umm Ayyub was a sin. Ibn Sirin said: Sin is wrong. Then Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdul-Baqi told us, Bishr ibn Musa told us, Hudha ibn Khalifa told us, Awf told us, on the authority of Anas, that Abu Ayyub wanted to divorce Umm Ayyub, so he asked the Prophet's permission, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Divorce of Umm Ayyub is a sin. So he kept her. Then Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak from the hadith of Ali ibn Asim, on the authority of Hamid Al-Tawil, I heard Anas ibn Malik also say: Abu Talhah wanted to divorce his wife Umm Sulaym, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Divorce of Umm Sulaym is a sin. So he stopped. The meaning is: Your consuming their wealth along with your wealth is a great sin and a grave mistake, so avoid it. And His statement: And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three, meaning, if there is an orphan girl under one of you and he fears that he will not be able to give her a dowry like hers, then let him turn to other women, for they are many and God has not made things difficult for him. Al-Bukhari said: Ibrahim bin Musa told us, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Hisham bin Urwah told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: That a man had an orphan girl and he married her, and she had a bunch of dates, and he used to keep her for him, but she did not have any share in his money, so And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly, was revealed concerning him. I think he said: She was his partner in that bunch of dates and in his money. Then Al-Bukhari said: Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah told us. Ibrahim bin Saad narrated to us on the authority of Salih bin Kaysan on the authority of Ibn Shihab who said: Urwah bin Az-Zubayr informed me that he asked Aisha about the statement of God the Almighty: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, she said: O son of my sister, this orphan girl is in the care of her guardian and shares his wealth with him, and he is pleased with her wealth and her beauty, so her guardian wants to marry her without being just in her dowry, so he gives her the same as someone else, so they were forbidden to marry them unless they were just with them and gave them the highest dowry possible, and they were commanded to marry whatever women they liked other than them. Urwah said: Aisha said: The people asked the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) for a legal opinion after this verse, so God revealed: And they ask you concerning women. Aisha said: God's statement in the other verse: And you desire to marry them is the desire of one of you for his orphan girl if she is of little wealth and beauty. So they were forbidden to marry the orphan women whose wealth and beauty they desired except in a just manner, because of their desire for them if they are of little wealth and beauty. And His statement: Two, three, four means marry as many women as you wish other than them, if one of you wishes two, or three, or four. God the Almighty said: He has made the angels messengers with wings, two or three or four. That is, some of them have two wings, some of them have three, and some of them have four. He does not deny anything other than that in the angels because of the evidence for it, unlike limiting men to four. This verse, as Ibn Abbas and the majority of scholars said, is an example of gratitude and permission. If it were permissible to marry more than four, He would have mentioned it. Al-Shafi'i said: The Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which is clear from God, indicates that it is not permissible for anyone other than the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to marry more than four women. What Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said is agreed upon by the scholars, except for what was reported from a group of the Shi'a, that it is permissible to marry more than four up to nine. Some of them said: without limitation. Some of them may hold fast to the action of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in combining more than four to nine, as proven in the two Sahihs. As for eleven, as mentioned in some of the words of Al-Bukhari: Al-Bukhari suspended it, and we have narrated on the authority of Anas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married fifteen women, and consummated thirteen of them, and he had eleven wives, and he died with nine. This is, according to scholars, one of his characteristics, unlike any other in the nation, because of the hadiths that we will mention indicating the limitation to four. Let us mention the hadiths on this matter. Imam Ahmad said: Ismail and Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us: Mu'ar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri. Ibn Ja'far said in his hadith: Ibn Shihab told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, that Ghailan ibn Salamah al-Thaqafi converted to Islam and had ten wives. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him, Choose four of them. When he was in the time of 'Umar, he divorced his wives and divided his wealth among his sons. report of that reached 'Umar, who said, "I think that the devil, in what he eavesdrops on, heard of your death and cast it into your mind. Perhaps you will not live long. By God, you will take back your wives and take back your wealth, or I will inherit them from you, and I will pass by your grave and stone you as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned." And thus it was narrated by Al-Shafi'i, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, Al-Darqutni, Al-Bayhaqi and others, through various chains of transmission on the authority of Ismail bin Aliyah, Ghundar, Yazid bin Zari', Sa'id bin Abi Arubah, Sufyan Al-Thawri, 'Isa bin Yunus, 'Abd Al-Rahman bin Muhammad Al-Maharbi, Al-Fadl bin Musa and others from the Hafiz, on the authority of Mu'ammarr with his chain of transmission similar to it until he said: Choose four of them. The rest of the hadith in the story of 'Umar is from the individuals of Ahmad, and it is a good addition, but it is weak because Al-Bukhari explained this hadith in what Al-Tirmidhi narrated from him, where he said after narrating it: I heard Al-Bukhari say: This hadith is not preserved. What is correct is what Shu'ayb and others narrated on the authority of Al-Zuhri. I was told on the authority of Muhammad bin Suwaid Al-Thaqafi that Ghailan bin Salamah - and he mentioned it. Al-Bukhari said: The hadith of Al-Zuhri is on the authority of Salim, on the authority of his father, that a man from Thaqeef divorced his wives, so 'Umar said to him: Either you take your wives back or I will stone your grave as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned. This explanation is questionable, and God knows best. Abd al-Razzaq narrated it from Muammar from al-Zuhri as a mursal. Malik narrated it from al-Zuhri as a mursal in the same way. Abu Zur'ah said: It is more authentic. Al-Bayhaqi said: Aqil narrated it from al-Zuhri: It reached us from Uthman ibn Muhammad ibn Abi Suwayd. Abu Hatim said: This is a mistake, rather it is al-Zuhri, from Muhammad ibn Suwayd. It reached us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, - and he mentioned it. Al-Bayhaqi said: It was narrated by Yunus and Ibn Uyaynah from al-Zuhri from Muhammad ibn Abi Suwayd, and this is as al-Bukhari explained it. This chain of transmission that we presented from the Musnad of Imam Ahmad, its men are trustworthy according to the conditions of the two sheikhs. Then it was narrated via other than Muammar's path, and even al-Zuhri. Al-Bayhaqi said: Abu Abdullah Al-Hafiz told us, Abu Ali Al-Hafiz told us, Abu Abdul Rahman Al-Nasa'i told us, Abu Burayd Amr bin Yazid Al-Jarmi told us, Saif bin Ubaid God told us, Sarar bin Mujshar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi' and Salim, on the authority of Ibn Umar, that Ghailan bin Salamah had ten wives, so he converted to Islam and they converted to Islam with him, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered him to choose four of them. This is how Al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan. Abu Ali bin Al-Sakn said: Sarar bin Mujshar is the only one who narrated it, and he is trustworthy. Ibn Ma'in also authenticated him. Abu Ali said: This is how Al-Sumaida' bin Wahib narrated it on the authority of Sarar. Al-Bayhaqi said: We narrated from the hadith of Qays bin Al-Harith or Al-Harith bin Qays, and Urwah bin Mas'ud Al-Thaqafi and Sufyan bin Umayyah, meaning the hadith of Ghailan bin Salamah. The evidence is that if it were permissible to combine more than four, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have permitted him to have the rest of them while the ten remained, and they had converted to Islam with him. So when he ordered him to keep four and separate from the rest, it indicates that it is not permissible to combine more than four under any circumstances. So if this is the case permanently, then it is more appropriate to start over, and God Almighty knows best what is correct. Another hadith on this subject Abu Dawud and Ibn Majah narrated in their Sunans on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Layla on the authority of Humaydah ibn al-Shamardal, and with Ibn Majah bint al-Shamardal, Abu Dawud narrated that some of them say al-Shamardal with the voiced dhal on the authority of Qays ibn al-Harith, and with Abu Dawud in the narration of al-Harith ibn Qays ibn Umayrah al-Asadi, he said: I converted to Islam and I had eight wives, so I mentioned it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Choose four of them. This chain of transmission is good, and this mere difference does not harm the like of it because of the corroborating evidence for the hadith. Another hadith on this subject Al-Shafi'i said in his Musnad: He told me who heard Ibn Abi Al-Zinad say: Abdul Majeed bin Suhayl bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Awf bin Al-Harith on the authority of Nawfal bin Mu'awiyah Al-Dayli, may God be pleased with him, who said: I converted to Islam and I had five wives. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Choose four of them, whichever you wish, and leave the others. So I went to the oldest of women, an old barren woman who had been with me for sixty years, and I divorced her. All of these are evidences of the authenticity of what was mentioned above from the hadith of Ghailan, as Al-Bayhaqi, may God have mercy on him, said. And His statement: But if you fear that you will not be able to be just, then [marry only] one or those your right hands possess, meaning if you fear that you will not be able to be just between women, as God Almighty said, And you will never be able to be just between wives, even if you should strive to do so, so whoever fears that, let him limit himself to one or to concubines, for it is not obligatory to divide it between them, but it is recommended. So whoever does that, it is good, and whoever does not, there is no blame. And His statement: That is more likely that you will not be poor, some of them said that it is more likely that you will not have many children, as Zaid bin Aslam, Sufyan bin Uyaynah, and Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on them, said. It is taken from God Almighty's statement: And if you fear poverty, meaning poverty, then God will enrich you from His bounty, if He wills. And the poet said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:4

And give the women their bridal gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

The poor man does not know when he will become rich, and the rich man does not know when he will be dependent.

The Arabs say: A man is poor and provides for a family, but there is a problem with this interpretation here, because just as a large family is feared due to the number of free women, so too is a large family feared due to the number of concubines. The correct opinion is that of the majority: That is more likely that you will not be poor, meaning that you will not be unjust. It is said: He is unjust in judgment if he is fair, oppressive, and unjust. Abu Talib said in his famous poem:

With a just balance that does not fail a single grain of grain, and he has a witness from himself, not a supporter.

Hisham said on the authority of Abu Ishaq, who said: Uthman bin Affan wrote to the people of Kufa about something they rebuked him for: I am not a scale that cannot be relied upon. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim, Abu Hatim Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Hibban narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Abd al-Rahman Ibn Ibrahim Dahim, who said: Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb told us on the authority of Umar Ibn Muhammad Ibn Zayd on the authority of Abdullah Ibn Umar on the authority of Hisham Ibn Urwah, on the authority of his father on the authority of Aishah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: That is more likely that you will not be unjust. He said: Do not be unjust. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father said, this is an incorrect hadith, and the correct one is: on the authority of Aishah, it is suspended. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Aishah, Mujahid, Ikrimah, al-Hasan, Abu Malik, Abu Razin, al-Nakha'i, al-Sha'bi, al-Dahhak, Ata' al-Khurasani, Qatadah, al-Suddi, and Muqatil Ibn Hayyan that they said: Do not be unjust. Ikrimah, may God have mercy on him, cited as evidence the verse of Abu Talib that we presented, but he did not recite it as it is narrated in the Seerah. Ibn Jarir narrated it and then recited it well and chose that. And the Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Ali bin Abi Talha said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: The free gift is the dowry. Muhammad bin Ishaq said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha: A free gift is an obligation. Muqatil, Qatadah, and Ibn Jurayj said: A free gift means an obligation. Ibn Jurayj added: It is named. Ibn Zayd said: The word benevolence in the speech of the Arabs means: obligatory. He says: Do not marry her except for something obligatory for her. It is not appropriate for anyone after the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to marry a woman except for an obligatory dowry. It is not appropriate for the dowry to be named falsely without right. The meaning of their words is that the man must definitely pay the dowry to the woman, and he must be content with that, just as he prevents the gift and gives the benevolence with it, likewise he must give the woman her dowry with it, so if she is content with it after he names it or with something of it, then let him eat it lawfully and goodly. For this reason, he said: But if they give you up contentedly of it, then eat it with enjoyment and satisfaction. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of al-Suddi, on the authority of Yaqub ibn al-Mughira ibn Shu'bah, on the authority of Ali, who said: "If one of you complains of something, let him ask his wife for three dirhams or something like that, and let him buy honey with it, then let him take rainwater, and it will gather together, content and delicious, a blessed cure." Hisham said on the authority of Sayyar on the authority of Abu Salih who said: When a man married his daughter, he would take her dowry without hers, so God forbade them from that, and the verse was revealed: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Ahmasi told us, Waki' told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of Umair al-Khathami on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn al-Mughira al-Ta'ifi on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. They said: O Messenger of God, what are the ties between them? He said: What their families agree upon. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Hajjaj ibn Arta'ah on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn al-Mughira on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us and said: Marry the single women three times. A man stood up and said: O Messenger of God, what are the ties between them? He said: What their families agree upon. Ibn al-Baylamani is weak and there is also a break in the chain of transmission.

Surat al-Nisa 4:4

And give the women their bridal gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 4- And give the women their dowries as a free gift The address is to the husbands, and it was said: to the guardians. And the dowries with the damma of the dal is the plural of sadaqaḥ like thamarah, Al-Akhfash said: And the Banu Tamim say sadaqaḥ and the plural is sadaqaṭ, and if you wish you can open it and if you wish you can sukun it. And the gift with the kasra of the noon and the damma is two languages, and its origin is the giving, I gave to someone, and based on this it is accusative as a source, because giving means giving, and it was said: the palm tree is religiousness, so the meaning of a gift is religiousness, said Al-Zajaj, and based on this it is accusative as a direct object. And Qatada said: the gift is the obligation, and based on this it is accusative as a state, and it was said: the gift is good-naturedness, Abu Ubaid said: And the gift does not come except from good-naturedness. The meaning of the verse, if addressed to husbands, is: Give the women whom you have married their dowries which you owe them, as a gift or a debt from you or an obligation from you or a good deed from yourselves. And its meaning, if addressed to guardians, is: Give the women of your relatives whose dowries you have received from their husbands those dowries. In the pre-Islamic period, the guardian would take the dowry of his relative and not give her anything. This was narrated from Abu Salih and Al-Kalbi. The first is more appropriate because the pronouns from the beginning of the context refer to the husbands. And in the verse there is evidence that the dowry is obligatory on husbands for women, and this is agreed upon as Al-Qurtubi said: The scholars agreed that there is no limit to its large amount, and they differed about its small amount. Qatadah read their dowries with a damma on the sad and a sukoon on the dal. An-Nakha'i and Ibn Wathab read them with a damma on both. The majority read it with a fatha on the sad and a damma on the dal. His statement, But if they give up willingly to you any part of it, then take it in enjoyment and with good health. The pronoun in it refers to the dowry, which is one of the charities, or to what is mentioned, which is the charities, or it is like a demonstrative pronoun, as if he said of that, and of is a distinguishing feature. The companions of Sibawayh said: It is accusative because of an implied verb, not a distinguishing feature: that is, I mean of soul. The first is more appropriate, and the majority said the same. The meaning is: If they, the women, give up willingly to you, O husbands or guardians, any part of the dowry, then take it in enjoyment and with good health. In his statement, with good health is evidence that what is considered in making that permissible from them to them is the willingness of the soul, not merely the words that emanate from them that do not confirm the willingness of the soul. So if something appears from her that indicates that she is not willing, then it is not permissible for the husband or guardian, even if she uttered a gift or a vow or something similar. What a strong indication this verse is that the words that women utter that convey ownership are not to be taken into consideration on their own, due to their lack of intelligence, weak perception, and quick deception and attraction to what is desired from them with the slightest encouragement or intimidation. And his saying enjoyable and pleasant are in the accusative case as two attributes of a deleted source: i.e. enjoyable and pleasant eating, or they are in place of the source, or as a state. It is said: Hanahu al-ta'am al-dhirab yahyinhū wa marrahu wa amarrahu from al-hani' and al-mar'a, and the verb hana' and marra' means: it came without difficulty or anger. It was said: it is the good that does not spoil it, and it was said: the praiseworthy outcome is the good digestion, and it was said: what there is no sin in it, and what is meant here is that it is permissible for them, pure of impurities, and eating was singled out because it is most of what is desired with money, even though all other benefits from it are permissible like eating.

Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, He created you from one soul, he said: Adam. And created from it its mate, he said: Eve was from Adam's short ribs. Abu al-Shaykh narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated that Eve was created from Adam's left back. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of al-Dahhak that he said: From the back rib, which is the lowest of the ribs. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And fear God, through whom you ask one another, he said: Commit to Him. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of al-Rabi' that he said: Contract and promise. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid that he said: He says, I ask you by God and the womb. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of al-Hasan. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Fear God, through whom you ask one another, and fear the wombs and maintain ties of kinship. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Indeed, God is ever, over you, a Watcher. He said: A Preserver. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: A man from Ghatafan had a lot of money that belonged to his nephew. When he reached the age of orphanhood, he asked for his money, but his uncle refused him. So he argued with him before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the following was revealed: And give the orphans their property, meaning the guardians. He said: Give the orphans their money. And do not exchange the bad for the good, meaning: Do not exchange the unlawful money of the people for the lawful money of yours. He said: Do not abandon your lawful money and consume their unlawful money. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab Al-Iman narrated on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Do not rush into unlawful provision before the lawful provision that was decreed for you comes to you. And do not consume their money with your money, he said: Mix it with your money and consume it all. Indeed, it is a sin. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Zayd regarding the verse, he said: The people of the Age of Ignorance did not give inheritance to women or to children. The eldest would take it, so his share of the inheritance was good, and the one who takes it is bad. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatadah, he said: With your money. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Hasan, he said: When this verse was revealed regarding the money of orphans, they were reluctant to mix with them, and the guardian of the orphan would separate the orphan's money from his own money, so they complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so God revealed: They ask you about orphans. Say: "Improvement for them is best. But if you mix with them, they are your brothers." He said: So mix with them. Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated that Urwah asked Aisha about the statement of God the Almighty: And if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with the orphan girls, she said: O son of my sister, this orphan girl is in the care of her guardian, she shares her wealth with him, and he is pleased with her wealth and her beauty, so her guardian wants to marry her without being fair in her dowry, so he gives her the same as he gives her to someone else, so they were forbidden to marry them unless they were fair to them and brought them to the highest age in terms of dowry, and they were commanded to marry whomever they liked from other women, and that the people consulted the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, after this verse, so God revealed: And they consult you concerning women, Aisha said: And God's statement in the other verse: And you desire to marry them, is the desire of one of you to marry his orphan girl when she is of little wealth and beauty, so they were forbidden to marry the wealth and beauty of the remaining women whom they desire except in fairness because of their desire. On their authority if they were of little wealth and beauty. Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Aisha: A man had an orphan girl and married her, and she had a bunch of dates, so he used to keep her for him and she did not have anything from him, so the verse was revealed: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, I think he said: She was his partner in that bunch of dates and in his wealth. This meaning has been narrated from many chains of narration. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, he said: A man used to marry with the orphan's wealth as much as God willed, but God forbade that. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: Men were limited to four women because of the orphans' wealth. Khas'eed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hameed, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Sa'eed bin Jubair regarding his statement: And if you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, he said: A man used to marry as much as he wanted, so he said: Just as you fear that you will not deal justly with the orphan girls, so they feared that you will not be just with them, so he limited them to four. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, he said: In the pre-Islamic era, they used to marry ten widowed women, and they used to respect the orphan, so they looked into the matter of orphans in their religion and abandoned what they used to marry in the pre-Islamic era. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority regarding the verse, he said: Just as you fear that you will not be just towards the orphans, fear that you will not be just towards the women if you gather them with you. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muhammad Ibn Abi Musa Al-Ash'ari, he said: If you fear adultery, then marry them, meaning: Just as you fear that you will not be just with the wealth of orphans, so fear for yourselves as long as you do not marry. Abd Ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar from Mujahid. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd Ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Malik, what is lawful for you, he said: what is lawful for you. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Al-Hasan and Saeed Ibn Jubayr. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated something similar on the authority of Aishah. Ash-Shafi'i, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, At-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, An-Nahhas in his Naskh, Ad-Darqutni and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that "Ghailan ibn Salamah Ath-Thaqafi converted to Islam and had ten wives. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to him: 'Choose from among them.'" In another version: Keep four of them and leave the rest. This hadith was narrated by these aforementioned people through various chains of transmission on the authority of Ismail ibn Ulayyah, Ghundar, Zayd ibn Zari', Sa'id ibn Abi 'Aruba, Sufyan Ath-Thawri, 'Isa ibn Yunus, 'Abdur-Rahman ibn Muhammad Al-Maharibi, Al-Fadl ibn Musa and others among the hadith masters on the authority of Mu'ammarr on the authority of Az-Zuhri on the authority of Salim on the authority of his father, and he mentioned it. Al-Bukhari gave a reason for this hadith, and At-Tirmidhi narrated on his authority that he said: This hadith is not preserved. The correct version is what was narrated on the authority of Shu'ayb and others on the authority of Al-Zuhri: I was told on the authority of Muhammad ibn Suwayd Al-Thaqafi that Ghailan ibn Salamah, and he mentioned it. As for the hadith of Al-Zuhri on the authority of his father: That a man from Thaqeef divorced his wives, so 'Umar said to him: I will stone your grave as the grave of Abu Righal was stoned. Mu'ammarr narrated it on the authority of Al-Zuhri in a mursal form, and Malik narrated it in the same way on the authority of Al-Zuhri in a mursal form. Abu Zur'ah said: And it is more correct. 'Aqeel narrated it on the authority of Al-Zuhri: It reached us on the authority of 'Uthman ibn Muhammad ibn Abu Suwayd. Abu Hatim said: This is a mistake, rather it is Al-Zuhri who reached us on the authority of 'Uthman ibn Abi Suwayd. Ahmad named it with the men of the Sahih and said: Isma'il and Muhammad ibn Ja'far narrated to us: They said: Mu'mar narrated to us on the authority of Al-Zuhri. Abu Ja'far said in his hadith: Ibn Shihab informed us on the authority of Salim on the authority of his father that Ghailan, and he mentioned it. It was narrated via other than the path of Mu'mar and Al-Zuhri, so Al-Bayhaqi included it on the authority of Ayoub on the authority of Nafi' and Salim on the authority of Ibn 'Umar that Ghailan, and he mentioned it. Abu Dawud and Ibn Majah narrated in their Sunan on the authority of Umair al-Asadi who said: I converted to Islam and I had eight wives. I mentioned this to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and he said: Choose four of them. Ibn Kathir said: Its chain of transmission is hasan. Ash-Shafi'i narrated in his Musnad on the authority of Nawfal ibn Mu'awiyah ad-Dailami who said: I converted to Islam and I had five wives. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Keep four and divorce the other. Ibn Majah and an-Nahhas narrated in his Naskh on the authority of Qays ibn al-Harith al-Asadi who said: I converted to Islam and I had eight wives. I came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and told him. He said: "Keep four and leave the others." Ibn Majah and An-Nahhas in his Naskh narrated on the authority of Qays ibn Al-Harith Al-Asadi who said: "I converted to Islam and I had eight wives. I came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) and informed him. He said: 'Choose four of them and leave the rest.' So I did." These are supporting evidence for the first hadith, as Al-Bayhaqi said. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Al-Hakam who said: The companions of the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) agreed that a slave may not have more than two women. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding the verse: If you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with four, then with three. Otherwise, with two. Otherwise, with one. If you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with one, then with those whom your right hand possesses." Ibn Jarir narrated a similar narration on the authority of Ar-Rabi'. He also narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: "But if you fear that you will not be able to deal justly with them," he said: with regard to sexual intercourse and love. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi: "Or what your right hands possess," he said: Concubines. Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Ibn Hibban narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Aisha, on the authority of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: "That is more likely that you will not be unjust," he said: that you will not be unjust. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father said: This hadith is wrong, and the correct one on the authority of Aisha is suspended. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shayba in Al-Musannaf, Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated through various chains of narration on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: "that you will not be unjust," he said: that you will not be unjust. Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, he said: that you will not be unjust, then he said: Have you not heard the saying of Abu Talib:

Surat al-Nisa 4:4

And give the women their bridal gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease.

With a just balance that does not lose a grain of wheat, and a true balancer whose weight is not weak.

Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid: He said: Do not lean. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Abu Razin, Abu Malik and Al-Dahhak something similar. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam regarding the verse: That is more likely to prevent many of those you support. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Sufyan ibn Uyaynah: He said: Do not become poor. Saeed ibn Mansur, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Salih: When a man married a female slave, he would take her dowry without hers, so God forbade them from that and the verse was revealed: And give the women their bridal-money as a gift. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: As a gift, he said: By the gift he meant the dowry. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Aisha: As a gift, she said: Obligatory. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And give the women their bridal-money as a gift, he said: A specified obligation. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada something similar. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, If they give up willingly to you, he said: It refers to the husbands. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, If they give up willingly to you anything of it, he said: Of the dowry. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ali on the authority of Ibn Abbas, If they give up willingly to you anything of it, he said: If it is without harm or deception, then it is pleasant and easy as God said.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

4- And give the women their dowries as a free gift.

Al-Kalbi and Mujahid said: This address is to the guardians, because if the woman's guardian married her off, if she was with them in the clan, he would not give her from her dowry, little or much. If her husband was a stranger, they would carry her to him on a camel and would not give her from her dowry other than that. So God forbade them from that and commanded them to give the right to its people.

Al-Hadrami said: The guardians of women would give this man his sister on condition that the other would give him his sister, and there was no dowry between them. They forbade that and ordered that the dowry be named in the contract. Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik ibn Nafi', on the authority of Abdullah ibn Umar, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade shighar.

Al-Shighar: is when a man marries his daughter on the condition that another man marries his daughter, and there is no dowry between them.

Others said: The address is to the husbands who were commanded to give their wives the dowry, and this is more correct because the address before was to the married couple, and the charities: the dowries, the singular of which is charities gift. Qatada said: an obligation, and Ibn Jurayj said: a named obligation, Abu Ubaidah said: and the gift can only be named and known, and Al-Kalbi said: a gift and a donation, and Abu Ubaidah said: willingly, and Al-Zajaj said: as a gift.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Naimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Abdullah bin Yusuf told us, Al-Layth told us, Yazid bin Abi Habib told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Khair, on the authority of Uqbah bin Amir, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The conditions that are most deserving of being fulfilled are those by which you make private parts lawful.

"If they give up willingly to you anything of it," meaning: If their souls are willing to give up anything of it, then they give it to you. So the action was transferred from the souls to their owners, so the soul was explained, and that is the definition of the soul, as God Almighty said: And he was straitened by them (Hud 11:77).

Al-Ankabut -33 And be refreshed Maryam 026 It was said: Its wording is one and its meaning is plural, So eat it with pleasure and enjoyment, palatable and good. It is said that hana in food is yanha with the opening of the nun in the past tense and the breaking of it in the rest. It was said: hani is the good and palatable that lacks nothing, and mari' is the praiseworthy outcome, complete digestion that does not harm. Abu Ja'far read hani'an mari'an with a shaddah on the ya in both of them without a hamza, and likewise bari, "bariyun," bariyyun, and kahiyyah, and the others use a hamza on it.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

4 And give the women their dowries their bridal gifts. It is read with the opening of the sad and the sukoon of the dal for the sake of alleviation, and with the damma of the sad and the sukoon of the dal, the plural of sadaqah like ghurfah, and with the damma of both of them for the sake of unification, which is the emphasis of sadaqah like darkness in darkness. Nahlah means a gift. It is said that a gift is such and such, a gift or a gift if he gives it to him willingly without expecting compensation. Whoever interprets it as an obligation or something similar looks at the meaning of the verse, not the subject of the word, and places it in the accusative case as a source because it is in the meaning of giving or a state of the waw, or the charities, meaning give them their dowries, gifted or gifted. It was said that the meaning is a gift from God and a favor from Him to them, so it is a state of the charities. It was said that religion comes from their saying that someone assumed such-and-such if he believed in it as an action for it, or a state of charity, meaning a religion from God Almighty that He legislated, and the address is to the husbands, and it was said to the guardians because they used to take the dowries of their female slaves. If they willingly give up to you anything of it for the dowry, based on the meaning or it is used as a demonstrative pronoun like the saying of Ru'bah:

It is as if there is vitiligo in the skin

When he was asked, he said: I meant as if that. It was said for giving, and a soul is a distinction to clarify the type and therefore it was made singular, and the meaning is if they gave you something from the dowry willingly, but the main thing was made good of the soul for exaggeration and he made it transitive with 'an to include the meaning of turning away and transgression, and he said from it a motive for them to reduce the gift So eat it with enjoyment and pleasure so take it and spend it lawfully without consequence. Enjoyment and pleasure are two attributes of the food enjoyment and pleasure if it is palatable without choking, they were established in place of their sources or the source was described by them or they were made a state of the pronoun. It was said that enjoyment is what a person enjoys, and pleasure is what its outcome is praiseworthy. It was narrated: that some people were sinful for one of them to accept from his wife something that was brought to her. So it was revealed.

Surat al-Nisa 4:5

And do not give the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Surat al-Nisa 4:5

And do not give the foolish your property which God has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And do not give O guardians to the foolish the wasteful men, women and children your wealth that is, their wealth that is in your hands which God has made a means of support for you the source of qama, meaning it supports your livelihood and the well-being of your children, so that they spend it in the wrong way. In the reading {qiyaman} the plural of qiyamah, what is used to value goods and provide for them therein feed them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of kindness count them a beautiful count by giving them their wealth if they are mature.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the fools to whom God Almighty forbade His servants from giving their money.

Some of them said: They are women and children.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Abd al-Karim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: Orphans and women.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: Do not give it to the young and the women.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Yazid ibn Zari' told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of al-Hasan, he said: The woman and the boy.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: Women and children, and women are the most foolish of fools.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: The foolish are your foolish son and your foolish wife. It was mentioned that "the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fear God with regard to the two weak ones, the orphan and the woman."

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Hamid told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman al-Ru'asi, on the authority of al-Suddi - he said: He traces it back to Abdullah - he said: Women and children.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not give your wealth to the foolish. As for the foolish, it refers to the child and the woman.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, meaning by that: a man's son and his wife, who is the most foolish of the fools.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: The foolish are the children, and women are the most foolish of the foolish, so they become lords over you.

Ahmad bin Hazim Al-Ghafari told us, Abu Naim told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Salamah bin Nabit, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, who said: Your children and your women.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Salamah, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, he said: Women and children.

Ahmad bin Hazim told us, Abu Naim told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hamid Al-Araj, on the authority of Mujahid: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: women and children.

Ahmad told us, Abu Naim told us, Ibn Abi Ghania told us, on the authority of Al-Hakam: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: women and children.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And do not give the foolish your wealth which God has made a means of support for you, God commanded that this wealth be stored and its storage be improved, and that it not be owned by the foolish woman or the foolish boy.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Malik, he said: Women and children.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: Your wife and children, and he said: The foolish ones are the children, and women are the most foolish of the foolish ones.

Others said: Rather, the fools are the boys in particular.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And do not give your property to the foolish, he said: They are the orphans.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed, he said: The fools are the orphans.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Yunus told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the weak, he said: Do not give the young ones your wealth.

Others said: Rather, he meant by that: the foolish ones among the man's children.

Who said that?

Saeed bin Yahya Al-Umawi told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Malik, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: Do not give your wealth to your foolish child, lest he spoil him, who is your support after God Almighty.

Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, meaning: Do not give authority to the foolish among your children. Ibn Abbas used to say: This was revealed about the foolish, and orphans have nothing to do with it.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Firas, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abu Burdah, on the authority of Abu Musa al-Ash'ari, that he said: Three people call upon God, but He does not answer them: a man who had a wife of bad character and did not divorce her, a man who gave his money to a fool, although God said: And do not give your wealth to fools, and a man who owed a man money and did not testify against him.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard Ibn Zayd: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, the verse, he said: Do not give the foolish among your children a head, nor a wall, nor anything of your money that is valuable to you.

Others said: Rather, the fools in this context refer to women in particular, and no one else.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of his father, he said: A Hadrami claimed that a man deliberately gave his money to his wife, and she used it unlawfully, so God Almighty said: And do not give your wealth to the foolish.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hamid, on the authority of Mujahid: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: women.

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Al-Thawri, on the authority of Hamid, on the authority of Qais, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: They are women.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: And do not give the foolish your property which God has made a means of support for you, he said: He forbade men from giving their money to women, even if they are foolish, whether they are wives, mothers, or daughters.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of al-Hasan, he said: The woman.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, who said: Women are among the most foolish of fools.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Abu Awana, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Muwarriq, he said: A woman passed by Abdullah ibn Umar who had a mark and a figure, so Ibn Umar said to her: And do not give the fools your wealth which God has made a means of support for you.

Abu Jaafar said: The correct interpretation of this, according to us, is that God Almighty was general in His statement: And do not give your wealth to fools, and He did not specify one fool over another. So it is not permissible for anyone to give his wealth to a fool, whether he is a young boy, an adult man, or a female.

The fool whose guardian is not allowed to give him his money is the one who deserves to be placed under guardianship due to his squandering of his money, his corruption, his mismanagement, and his mismanagement of it.

We said what we said, that what is meant by His statement: And do not give to the foolish is the one we described and not others, because God Almighty said in the verse that follows it: "And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them." So He commanded the guardians of the orphans to release their property to them if they reach the age of marriage and perceive in them sound judgment. Orphans may include both males and females, so He did not specify in the command to release their property to the males without the females, nor the females without the males.

Since this is the case, it is known that those whose guardians were ordered to pay their money to them, and Muslims were permitted to buy and deal with them, are not those whose guardians were ordered to withhold their money from them, and Muslims were prohibited from owing and dealing with them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:5

And do not give the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

If this is the case, then it is clear that the foolish ones to whom God forbade the believers from giving their money are the ones who deserve to be restricted and who are entitled to have their money taken over by them, and they are those whose description we described earlier, and that anyone other than that is not a fool, because restriction is not deserved by someone who has reached maturity and has attained maturity.

As for the statement of those who said: The fools are women in particular, then this is an interpretation of the language in a way that is not proper. This is because the Arabs hardly ever pluralize fa'il as fa'alaa except in the plural of males, or males and females. But if they want to pluralize females in particular with no males with them, they pluralize it as fa'a'il and fa'ilat, like gharibiyyah, which is the plural of gharib and gharibat, but as for gharib, it is the plural of gharib.

The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his saying: Your wealth which God has made a means of support for you, and provide for them from it and clothe them.

Some of them said: He meant by that: Do not give the foolish women and children - according to what we mentioned about the difference of opinion of those we mentioned before - O you who are of sound mind, your wealth that you own, so that you give them power over it so that they spoil it and waste it, but provide for them from it if you are obligated to spend on it, and clothe them, and speak to them kind words.

We have mentioned the narration of a group of those who said that, including: Abu Musa al-Ash'ari, Ibn Abbas, al-Hasan, Mujahid, Qatadah, and Hadrami. We will mention the saying of others whose saying was not mentioned before.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not give the foolish your property which God has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it, meaning: Do not give your wife and children your money, lest they be the ones who support you, and feed them from your money and clothe them.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "And do not give the foolish your wealth which God has made a means of support for you. But provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness." He said: Do not give authority to the foolish among your children over your wealth, and command him to provide for him from it and clothe him.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, he said: Do not give the fool anything of your wealth that is yours.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Do not give the fools their money, but it was attributed to the governors, because they are its guardians and managers.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, it is the wealth of the orphan that you have, he says: Do not give it to him, and spend it on him until he reaches maturity. And he only added to the guardians and said: your wealth, because they are its support and its managers.

Abu Ja'far said: His statement, And do not give your wealth to the foolish, may include the wealth of those who are forbidden to give it, and the wealth of the foolish. Because his statement, your wealth, does not specify some wealth and not others. And this does not prevent the Arabs from addressing a people directly, so that some of the speech is report about them and some is about the unseen. This is like saying, You, so-and-so, have eaten your wealth unjustly, so the individual is addressed in a collective manner, meaning, You and your companions or your people have eaten your wealth. Likewise, his statement, And do not give your wealth to the foolish, means: O people, do not give your foolish people your wealth, some of which is yours and some of which is theirs, so that they waste it.

Since this is the case, and God Almighty mentioned that He had prohibited giving all money to fools, and did not specify one thing over another, it was clear from that that the meaning of His statement: which God has made a means of support for you is that which God has made a means of support for you and for them, but the fools were included in the mention of those addressed by His statement: for you.

As for his saying: which God has made for you a means of support, then qiyam, qiyam, and qawam have the same meaning. The root of qiyam is qawam, except that the qaf before the waw was broken, so the waw was made a ya' because of the kasra of what preceded it, just as one says: samt siyaman, and salaat siyalan, and it is said from this: so-and-so is the qawam of his household and the qiyam of his household.

There are different readings of this.

Some of them read: Which God has appointed for you as a guardian, with a kasra on the qaf and a fatha on the ya', without an alif.

Others read: standing with an alif.

Muhammad said: The reading that we chose is qiyama with an alif, because it is the well-known reading in the readings of the Islamic countries, even though the other one is not wrong or corrupt. We chose what we chose from that because if the readings differ in wording but agree in meaning, then the one that pleases us is what is most apparent and well-known in the readings of the Islamic countries.

And similar to what we said in the interpretation of His statement: standing, the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Saeed bin Yahya Al-Umawi told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Malik: Your wealth that God has made a means of support for you, which is your support after God.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Your wealth which God has made a means of support for you, for wealth is the means of support for people, the foundation of their livelihood. He says: Be the one who is in charge of your family, and do not give your wife and children your wealth, lest they be the ones who are in charge of you.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And do not give to the foolish your property which God has made a means of support for you, God the Almighty says: Do not take your property and what God has given you and made for you a livelihood, and give it to your wife or children, then look at what is in their hands. Rather, keep your property and put it to good use, and be the one who spends on them in clothing them, providing for them, and providing for them. He said: His statement, maintaining, means: your support in your livelihood.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: Standing, he said: Standing in your life.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Bakr bin Shurud told us, on the authority of Mujahid: that he read: which God has made a means of support for you, with an alif, meaning: the means of your life.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Your wealth which God has made a means of support for you, he said: Do not give anything to the foolish among your children, it is a means of support for you from your wealth.

As for his statement: And provide for them therein and clothe them, the people of interpretation differed in its interpretation. As for those who said: God Almighty meant by His statement: And do not give the foolish your wealth, the wealth of the guardians of the foolish, not the wealth of the foolish, they said: The meaning of that is: And provide, O people, for your foolish women and children, from your wealth their food and what they need of their provisions and clothing.

We have mentioned some of those who said this previously, and we will mention those who did not mention it.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: They were commanded to provide for their fools - their wives, mothers, and daughters - from their money.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said: Hajjaj told me on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibn Abbas said, regarding his statement: And provide for them, he said, he means: spend on them.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And provide for them therein and clothe them, he said: Feed them from your wealth and clothe them.

As for those who said: What he meant by his statement: And do not give the foolish your wealth, is the wealth of the foolish, that their guardians should not give it to them, they said: The meaning of his statement: And provide for them therein and clothe them, is: Provide, O rulers, rulers of the wealth of the foolish, for your foolish ones from their wealth, their food and what they need of their provisions and clothing. And we have already mentioned that.

Abu Ja'far said: As for what we see as correct in his statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, of the interpretation, we have mentioned it, and we have demonstrated the correctness of what we said in that regard in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

The interpretation of His statement: And provide for them therein and clothe them is based on the interpretation we mentioned in His statement: And do not give your wealth to the foolish, and spend on your foolish children and women whom you are obligated to support from their food and clothing from your wealth, and do not give them power over your wealth so that they destroy it, and on your foolish ones among them, whose support you are not obligated to support, and others whose affairs you are in charge of, from their wealth in what they need of their provisions in their food, drink and clothing. Because that is what is obligatory from the ruling according to the statement of all the proofs, there is no disagreement among them in that, with the apparent meaning of the revelation indicating what we said in that.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: He considered them a beautiful number of righteousness and kinship.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And speak to them a kind word, he said: They were commanded to speak to them a kind word in righteousness and kinship, meaning women, and they are the fools in his view.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: And speak to them a kind word, he said: A number that you promise them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:5

And do not give the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Pray for them.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And speak to them a kind word, if he is not one of your children nor one of those on whom your wealth is obligated to spend, then speak to them a kind word, say to them: May God keep us and you safe, may God bless you.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements on this matter is what Ibn Jurayj said. That is, the meaning of his statement: And speak to them a good word, is: Say, O group of foolish rulers, a good word to the foolish: If you are righteous and guided, we will hand over your wealth to you and leave you alone with it, so fear God in yourselves and your wealth, and similar statements that encourage obedience to God and forbid disobedience to Him.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains ten issues:

First: When God the Almighty commanded that the money of orphans be given to them in His saying: And give orphans their property (An-Nisa': 2) and that charity be given to wives, it is clear that the money of a fool or a minor cannot be given to him. This indicates the validity of the guardian, trustee and guarantor for orphans. The scholars agreed that a will to a free, trustworthy and just Muslim is permissible. They differed regarding a will to a free woman. The majority of scholars said: A will to her is permissible. Ahmad argued that Umar may God be pleased with him made a will to Hafsa. It was narrated on the authority of Ata' ibn Abi Rabah that he said about a man who made a will to his wife: A woman cannot be a guardian, and if he does, she is transferred to a man from his people. They differed regarding a will to a slave. Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr, Muhammad and Ya'qub forbade it, while Malik, Al-Awza'i and Ibn Abd Al-Hakam permitted it. This is the opinion of Al-Nakha'i if he made a will to a slave. The discussion of this has already been completed in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Second: The Almighty's saying: The foolish ones. The meaning of foolishness in language has already been mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah. Scholars differed about who these fools are. Salim Al-Aftas narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: They are orphans. Do not give them your money. Al-Nahhas said: This is one of the best things said about the verse. Ismail bin Abi Khalid narrated on the authority of Abu Malik, who said: They are young children. Do not give them your money, lest they spoil it and you be left with nothing. Sufyan narrated on the authority of Hamid Al-Araj on the authority of Mujahid, who said: They are women. Al-Nahhas and others said: This statement is not correct. Rather, the Arabs say about women:

Sufaya or Sufayahat because it is most common in the plural of Fa'ila. It is also said: Do not give it to your owner for speculation, nor to an agent who is not good at trading. It was narrated on the authority of Omar that he said: Whoever does not understand jurisprudence should not trade in our market. This is what the Almighty said: And do not give your money to the foolish ones, meaning those who are ignorant of the rulings. It is also said: Do not give it to the infidels. This is why scholars disliked a Muslim appointing a non-Muslim to buy and sell, or giving him his money for speculation. Abu Musa al-Ash'ari may God be pleased with him said: The foolish here are all those who deserve to be placed under guardianship. This is comprehensive. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandat said: As for the guardianship of the foolish, the foolish has three conditions: a condition in which he is placed under guardianship due to his youth, a condition in which he is mentally unsound due to insanity or otherwise, and a condition in which he takes poor care of himself and his wealth. As for the unconscious person, Malik preferred not to place him under guardianship because of the speed with which his condition goes away. Guardianship is sometimes for a person and sometimes for others. As for the person placed under guardianship in his own right from those we mentioned, and the person placed under guardianship in the right of others is the slave, the debtor, the sick person in two-thirds, the bankrupt, the married woman in the right of the husband, and the virgin in her right. As for the minor and the insane, there is no disagreement about their being placed under guardianship. As for the adult, it is because he does not take good care of himself and his wealth, and there is no guarantee that he will waste his wealth in other ways, so he is similar to the boy, and there is disagreement about this that will come. There is no difference between his wealth being wasted in sins or in permissible and pious acts. Our companions differed about whether his wealth is wasted in acts of worship, some of them placed him under guardianship, and some of them did not place him under guardianship.

There is no disagreement about the slave. The debtor takes what is in his possession for his creditors, according to the consensus of the Companions. Umar did that with Asifa' Juhayna, as mentioned by Malik in Al-Muwatta'. As for the virgin, as long as she is in the chamber, she is forbidden, because she does not know how to look at herself. Until she marries and people enter to her and she goes out and her face is exposed, she will know the harms from the benefits. As for the one who has a husband, "because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

A woman whose husband has taken control of her property is not permitted to make a judgment on her property except for a third of it.

I said: As for the one who is ignorant of the rulings, even if he is not under guardianship for increasing his wealth and not managing it, the money is not given to him, due to his ignorance of corrupt and valid sales, what is permissible and what is forbidden. Likewise, the dhimmi is like him in his ignorance of sales and because of the fear of dealing with usury and other things. And God knows best. They differed about the reason for attributing the money to those addressed in this regard, which is for the foolish. It was said: He attributed it to them because it is in their hands and they are the ones who oversee it, so it was attributed to them in a broad sense, like the saying of God the Almighty: "So be safe upon yourselves" (al-Nur 24:61) and His saying: Then kill yourselves (al-Baqarah 2:54). It was said: He attributed it to them because it is of the same type as their money, for money is made to be shared among people and is transferred from hand to hand, and from one king to another, meaning it is theirs if they need it, like your money that protects your honor, safeguards you, and magnifies your status, and by it your affairs are based. A second saying was said by Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari, Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan and Qatadah: What is meant is the money of those addressed in reality. Ibn Abbas said: Do not give your wealth, which is the reason for your livelihood, to your wife and son and remain poor in relation to them and to what is in their hands. Rather, you should be the one who spends on them. According to this, the foolish ones are the women and children, the young children of a man and his wife. This is excluded with the statement of Mujahid and Abu Malik regarding the foolish ones.

Third: The verse indicates the permissibility of placing a guardian over a foolish person, based on the command of God Almighty to do so in His saying: And do not give your wealth to the foolish. And He said: But if the one upon whom the right is is a fool or weak. So He established guardianship over the foolish person, just as He established it over the weak. The meaning of the weak refers to the young, and the meaning of the foolish person refers to the adult who has reached puberty, because foolishness is a name of blame, and a person is not blamed for what he did not earn, and the pen is lifted from the one who is not an adult, so blame and hardship are negated from him, as Al-Khattabi said.

Fourth: The scholars differed regarding the actions of the fool before he was placed under guardianship. Malik and all his companions except Ibn al-Qasim said: The actions and commands of the fool are all permissible until the imam strikes his hand. This is the opinion of al-Shafi'i and Abu Yusuf. Ibn al-Qasim said: His actions are not permissible even if the imam does not strike him. Asbagh said: If he was clearly foolish, his actions are rejected, but if he was not clearly foolish, his actions are not rejected until the imam places him under guardianship. Sahnun relied on Malik's opinion when he said: If the actions of the fool were rejected before he was placed under guardianship, the ruler would not need to place anyone under guardianship. Ibn al-Qasim's evidence is what al-Bukhari narrated from the hadith of Jabir:

A man freed a slave who had no other property, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, returned him and he had not been placed under any guardianship before that.

Fifth: They differed regarding the guardianship of an adult. Malik and the majority of jurists said: He is to be placed under guardianship. Abu Hanifa said: A sane adult is not to be placed under guardianship unless he is corrupting his wealth. If that is the case, he is prevented from handing over the money to him until he reaches twenty-five years of age. If he reaches that age, he is to be handed over to him in any case, whether he is corrupting or not, because he will become pregnant at twelve years of age, then a child will be born to him at six months, and he will become a grandfather and a father. I am ashamed to place under guardianship someone who is fit to be a grandfather. It was said about him: During the period of being prevented from the money, if he reaches the age of corruption, his actions are valid in general, and he is only prevented from handing over the money as a precaution. All of this is weak in terms of its consideration and effect. Al-Daraqutni narrated: Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn al-Hasan al-Sawaaf told us, Hamid ibn Shu'ayb told us, Shuraih ibn Yunus told us, Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim - he is Abu Yusuf al-Qadi - told us, Hisham ibn Urwah told us, on the authority of his father, that Abdullah ibn Ja'far came to al-Zubayr and said: I have bought such and such a sale, and Ali wants to go to the Commander of the Faithful and ask him to place me under guardianship in it. Al-Zubayr said: I am your partner in the sale. Then Ali went to Uthman and said: Ibn Ja'far bought such and such a sale, so place him under guardianship. Al-Zubayr said: I am his partner in the sale. Uthman said: How can I place a man under guardianship in the sale of his partner in al-Zubayr? Ya'qub said: I take the guardianship and see it, and I place the guardianship and nullify the sale and purchase of the one under guardianship. If he buys or sells before the guardianship, I approve his sale. Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim said: Abu Hanifa does not place the guardianship or take the guardianship. Uthman's statement: How can I place a man under guardianship? This is evidence of the permissibility of placing an adult under guardianship. Abdullah ibn Ja'far was born in Abyssinia and he was the first child born in Islam there. He came with his father to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) in the year of Khaybar and heard from him and memorized from him. Khaybar was in the fifth year of the Hijra. This refutes Abu Hanifa's statement. His proof will come, God willing.

Sixth: The Almighty said: Which God has made for you a means of support meaning for your livelihood and the improvement of your religion. There are three languages for which: which and lat with a kasra on the ta and lat with a sukoon on it. There are also three languages for its dual: allat and allat with the deletion of the nun and allat with a shaddah on the nun. As for the plural, its languages will come in their place in this surah, God willing. And al-qiyam and al-qawam: that which establishes you with the same meaning. It is said: So-and-so, his family is called his family and the qawam of his house, and he is the one who establishes his affairs, meaning he fixes them. And when the qaf of qawam was broken, they replaced the waw with a ya, and the people of Medina read qayman without an alif. Al-Kisa'i and Al-Farra' said: qayman and qawam mean qiyman and it is in the accusative case according to them, meaning do not give the fools your money with which to improve your affairs so that they can stand up with it. Al-Akhfash said: The meaning is standing up with your affairs, and he believes that it is a plural. The Basrans said: Qiyama is the plural of qiyamah like daimah and daim, meaning God made it a value for things. Abu Ali made this statement wrong and said: It is a verbal noun like qiyam and qawwam and its origin is qawm, but it was anomalous in returning to the ya' as is confirmed by their saying: jiyad in the plural of jawad and the like. And qawman, qawwam, and qiyama mean steadfastness in the good state and permanence in that. Al-Hasan and Al-Nakha'i read al-lati as a plural of al-lati, and the general reading of al-lati is in the wording of the group. Al-Farra' said: The most common in the speech of the Arabs is women al-lati and wealth al-lati and also other than wealth, as mentioned by Al-Nahhas.

Surat al-Nisa 4:5

And do not give the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Seventh - The Almighty's saying: And provide for them therein and clothe them. It was said: Its meaning is, make a provision for them or impose a tax on them therein. This is for those whose expenses and clothing a man is obligated to provide for, such as his wife and his younger daughters. So this was evidence of the obligation of the child's expenses on the child and the wife's expenses on her husband. In Al-Bukhari, "On the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The best charity is that which is left by the rich. The upper hand is better than the lower hand. And start with those whom you support. The woman says, "Either feed me or divorce me." The slave says, Feed me and employ me. The son says, Feed me. To whom will you leave me?" They said, "O Abu Hurairah, did you hear this from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace?" He said, No, this is from Abu Hurairah's pocket! Al-Muhallab said: Spending on one's family and children is obligatory by consensus, and this hadith is evidence for that.

Eighth - Ibn al-Mundhir said: They differed regarding the maintenance of children who have reached puberty and have no money or earnings. A group said: The father must provide for his male children until they reach puberty, and for women until they marry and he consummates the marriage with them. If he divorces her after consummation or dies, then her father has no responsibility for her maintenance. If he divorces her before consummation, then she is responsible for her maintenance.

Ninth - There is no maintenance for the grandfather's son, this is the opinion of Malik. A group said: He should spend on his son's son until they reach puberty and menstruation. Then there is no maintenance for him if they are of legal age, and this applies equally to males and females as long as they do not have money, and this applies equally to his son or his son's son, even if they are of lower status, as long as they do not have a father below him who is able to spend on them. This is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i. A group made maintenance obligatory for all children and adults, men and women, if they do not have money that would make them independent of their father's maintenance, based on the apparent meaning of his saying, peace be upon him, to Hind:

Take what is sufficient for you and your child in a reasonable manner. And in the hadith of Abu Hurairah:

The son says, Feed me to whomever you leave me. This indicates that only the one who has no power to earn or work says that, and the one who has reached the age of maturity does not say that because he has reached the age of striving for himself and earning for himself, as evidenced by the words of God Almighty: Until they reach the age of marriage (An-Nisa': 6) and the verse. So he made reaching the age of marriage a limit in that, and "In His words: The woman says, 'Either you feed me or you divorce me'" does not separate due to insolvency, and the woman must be patient, and the maintenance is his responsibility, according to the ruling of the judge. This is the saying of Ata' and Az-Zuhri, and the Kufians agreed with it, adhering to the words of God Almighty: But if he is in hardship, then let there be postponement until he is able to do so (al-Baqarah 2:280). They said: So it is obligatory to wait until he becomes able to do so, and the words of God Almighty: And marry those among you who are single (al-Nur 24:32). They said: So God Almighty encouraged the marriage of the poor, so poverty cannot be a reason for separation while he is encouraged to marry with it. They have no proof in this verse, as will be explained in its place. The hadith is explicit in the matter of disagreement. It was said: The address is to the guardian of the orphan to spend on him from his money that is under his supervision, based on what was mentioned previously of disagreement in adding money. The guardian spends on the orphan according to his money and his condition. If he is young and his money is abundant, he should appoint a wet nurse and wet nurses for him and be generous with him in spending. If he is old, he should provide him with soft clothing, delicious food and servants. If he is less than that, then according to his needs. If he is less than that, then rough food and clothing according to his need. If the orphan is poor and has no money, then the imam must take care of him from the public treasury. If the imam does not do so, then it is the duty of the Muslims, the most special to him, and his mother is the most special to him, so she must breastfeed him and take care of him and she does not have recourse to him or anyone else. This has already been mentioned in Al-Baqarah when he said: Mothers shall breastfeed their children (al-Baqarah 2:233).

Tenth - The Almighty said: And speak to them a kind word. He meant to soften the speech and make a beautiful promise. There is a difference of opinion about the kind word. It was said: Its meaning is to pray for them: May God bless you, surround you and do for you, and I am watching over you, and this precaution will benefit you. It was said: Its meaning is to promise them a good promise, meaning if you are guided, we will give you your money. And the father says to his son: My money is yours to return, and you, God willing, will own it if you master your guidance and know how to act.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty forbids enabling fools to dispose of the money that God has made for people to maintain, that is, to support their livelihoods from trade and other things. From here, the guardianship is taken from the fools and they are divided into categories. Sometimes the guardianship is for young age, because the young person is deprived of expression, and sometimes the guardianship is for madness, and sometimes for bad management due to a lack of reason or religion, and sometimes for bankruptcy, which is when debts surround a man and his money is too tight to pay them, so if the creditors ask the ruler to guardianship him, he is guardianship over him. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, in his saying And do not give the foolish your wealth, he said: They are your children and women. Ibn Masoud, Al-Hakam bin Uyaynah, Al-Hasan and Ad-Dahhak said the same: They are women and children. Saeed bin Jubayr said: They are orphans. Mujahid, Ikrimah and Qatadah said: They are women. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Hisham bin Ammar told us, Sadaqah bin Khalid told us, Uthman bin Abi Al-Atika told us on the authority of Ali bin Yazid. On the authority of Al-Qasim, on the authority of Abu Umamah, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The only foolish women are those who obey their guardians. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it at length. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was mentioned on the authority of Muslim bin Ibrahim, Harb bin Surayh told us, on the authority of Muawiyah bin Qurrah, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah: And do not give your property to the foolish. He said: They are the servants, and they are the devils among mankind. And His statement: And provide for them therein and clothe them and speak to them words of kindness. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Do not take your wealth and what God has given you and made for you a livelihood and give it to your wife or children and then look at what is in their hands, but keep your wealth and improve it and be the one who spends on them from their clothing, provisions and livelihood. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Shu'bah told us on the authority of Firas, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abu Burdah, on the authority of Abu Musa, he said: Three people call upon God and He does not answer them: A man who had a wife of bad character and did not divorce her, a man who gave his wealth to a fool, and God said: And do not give your wealth to fools, and a man who owed a man money and did not testify against him. Mujahid said: And speak to them a kind word, meaning in righteousness and kinship. This noble verse includes kindness to the family and those under guardianship by action in spending on clothing and provisions, kind words and improving morals. God the Almighty said: And test the orphans, Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Al-Hasan, Al-Suddi and Muqatil bin Hayyan: That is, test them until they reach the age of marriage. Mujahid said: It means the age of maturity. The majority of scholars said that puberty in a boy is sometimes due to a dream, which is when he sees in his sleep that which brings forth the gushing water from which the child is born. In Sunan Abi Dawud, on the authority of Ali, he said: I memorized from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, There is no puberty after a wet dream, nor is there fasting from day to night. In another hadith, on the authority of Aisha and other companions, may God be pleased with them, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: "The pen is lifted from three: from the boy until he reaches the age of maturity, from the sleeper until he wakes up, and from the insane person until he recovers," or completes fifteen years. They took that from the hadith established in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: I presented myself to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Uhud when I was fourteen years old, but he did not allow me. I presented myself to him on the day of the Trench when I was fifteen years old, and he allowed me. When this hadith reached Umar ibn Abdul Aziz, he said: This is the difference between the young and the old. They differed about the growth of coarse hair around the vulva, which is the hair, does it indicate puberty or not? There are three opinions. In the third, there is a distinction between Muslim boys, in which case it does not indicate that due to the possibility of treatment, and the boys of the People of the Covenant, in which case it is considered puberty in their case because it is not hastened to impose the jizya on them. He does not treat it, and the correct view is that it is puberty for everyone because this is an innate matter in which people are equal and the possibility of treatment is remote. Then the Sunnah indicated that in the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad on the authority of Atiyah al-Qurazi, may God be pleased with him, who said: We were presented to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Qurayzah, and whoever had hair was killed and whoever did not have hair was released, so I was among those who did not have hair and I was released. The four scholars of Sunan narrated it in a similar manner, and Al-Tirmidhi said: It is good and authentic, and it was only like that because Sa'd ibn Mu'adh had ruled that the fighters should be killed and the children should be taken captive. Abu 'Ubayd al-Qasim ibn Salam said in the Book of al-Gharib: Ibn 'Ulayyah told us on the authority of Ismail ibn 'Umayyah, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yahya ibn Haban, on the authority of 'Umar, that a young man had slandered a girl in his hair, so 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: Look at him and he did not find hair, so he averted the punishment from him. Abu 'Ubayd said: He slandered her, meaning he accused her, and slander is to say that he did it to her while he is lying, but if he is truthful then it is slander. Al-Kumait said in his poetry:

It is ugly for someone like me to describe a girl either out of admiration or out of curiosity.

And the Almighty said: If you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. Saeed bin Jubair said: He means righteousness in their religion and preservation of their property. And likewise it was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan Al-Basri and more than one of the Imams. And likewise the jurists said: When the boy reaches puberty and is reforming his religion and his money, the guardianship is lifted from him and his money that is in the hands of his guardian is given to him in his own way. And His statement: And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up God the Almighty forbids eating the money of orphans without a necessary need extravagantly and hastily meaning hastening before they reach puberty. Then God the Almighty said: And whoever is rich, let him abstain whoever is not in need of the orphan's money, let him abstain from it and not eat anything from it. Al-Sha'bi said that it is like carrion and blood to him. And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Ashja' told us, Abdullah bin Sulayman told us, Hisham told us on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha, And whoever is rich, let him abstain was revealed regarding the money of the orphan. And Al-Ashja' and Harun bin Ishaq told us, they said: Abdah bin Sulayman told us on the authority of Hisham on the authority of the authority of Aisha, "And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation ... The guardian of the orphan who takes care of him and takes care of him if he is in need, he should eat from it. My father told us, Muhammad bin Saeed Al-Asbahani told us, Ali bin Masaher told us on the authority of Hisham on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha, she said: This verse was revealed about the guardian of the orphan: "And whoever is rich, let him abstain. And whoever is poor, let him eat within reason," according to his care for him. Al-Bukhari narrated it on the authority of Ishaq on the authority of Abdullah bin Numayr on the authority of Hisham on his authority. The jurists said: He may eat the lesser of two things: the wages of his peers or the amount of his need. They differed as to whether he should be returned if he becomes wealthy. There are two opinions one of them No, because he ate for the wages of his work and he was poor. This is the correct opinion according to the companions of Al-Shafi'i, because the verse permitted eating without compensation. Ahmad said: Abdul-Wahhab told us, Hussain told us on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather: A man asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I do not have any money, and I have a guardian for an orphan? He said: Whoever takes care of your orphan, without being extravagant, wasteful, or hoarding money, and without saving your money - or he said - redeeming your money with his money. Husayn was not sure. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Sa'id al-Ashja' told us, Abu Khalid al-Ahmar told us, Husayn al-Maktab told us, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have an orphan who has money but he has nothing. Should I eat from his money? He said: In a reasonable manner, not extravagantly. Abu Dawud, al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah narrated it from the hadith of Husayn al-Mu'allim, and Ibn Hibban narrated it in his Sahih and Ibn Mardawayh in his Tafsir from the hadith of Ya'la ibn Mahdi, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Sulayman, on the authority of Abu 'Amir al-Khazzaz, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Jabir, that a man said: O Messenger of God, how should I beat my orphan? He said: I would not strike your son with it unless you protect your property with his property or take money from him. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, Ath-Thawri told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of al-Qasim bin Muhammad, who said: A Bedouin came to Ibn Abbas and said: There are orphans in my care and they have camels and I have camels, and I am generous with my camels and I am poor, so what is permissible for me from their milk? He said: If you seek its lost one and enjoy its mange and lubricate its trough and give it water to drink, then drink without harming the offspring, and do not neglect the milking. Malik narrated it in his Muwatta' on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed with it. And with this statement, which is not paying the substitute, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Ikrimah, Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, Atiyah al-Awfi and al-Hasan al-Basri say: The second Yes, because the orphan's money is forbidden, and it is only permitted out of need, so its substitute is returned, like eating someone else's money for someone in need. Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Ibn Khaithama told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan and Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha bin Mudrib, who said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: I have placed myself in the same position with regard to this money as the guardian of an orphan. If I am rich, I abstain, and if I am in need, I borrow, and if I am wealthy, I pay it back.

And do not give the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Another way Sa'id ibn Mansur said: Abu al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of al-Bara', who said: 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: I have placed myself in relation to God's wealth in the position of the guardian of an orphan. If I am in need, I take from it, and if I am wealthy, I return it, and if I am rich, I abstain. A sound chain of transmission. Al-Bayhaqi narrated something similar to that from Ibn 'Abbas, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way from 'Ali ibn Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, meaning a loan. He said: And it was narrated from 'Ubaydah, Abu al-'Aliyah, Abu Wa'il, Sa'id ibn Jubayr in one of the narrations, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, and al-Suddi something similar to that, and it was narrated from al-Suddi from 'Ikrimah from Ibn 'Abbas regarding his statement: And let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: He eats with three fingers. Then he said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Ibn Mahdi told us from Sufyan from al-Hakam from Muqsim from Ibn 'Abbas: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: He eats from his wealth to support his orphan so that he does not need the wealth of the orphan. He said: It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Maymun ibn Mihran in one of the narrations and the ruling is similar to that, and Aamer al-Sha'bi said: He should not eat from it unless he is forced to do so, just as he is forced to eat dead meat. If he eats from it, he should make up for it. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Ibn Wahb said: Nafi' ibn Abi Na'im al-Qari told us: I asked Yahya ibn Sa'id al-Ansari and Rabi'ah about the statement of God the Most High: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable (al-Baqarah 2:14), and they said: That is in the case of an orphan, if he is poor, he should spend on him according to his poverty, and the guardian should not have anything from it. This is far from the context, because he said: And whoever is rich, let him abstain meaning from the guardians. And whoever is poor meaning among them let him eat in moderation meaning in the best way as He said in the other verse And do not approach the property of an orphan except in a way that is best until he reaches maturity meaning do not approach it except to improve it, then if you need it, eat from it in moderation. And His statement: And when you have handed over their property to them meaning after they have reached puberty and you have seen them mature, then at that time hand over their property to them. So when you hand over their property to them then have witnesses over them This is a command from God Almighty to the guardians to bear witness over the orphans when they have reached puberty and handed over their property to them so that some of them do not deny or reject what they have taken and received. Then He said: And sufficient is God as a Reckoner meaning and sufficient is God as a Reckoner, Witness, and Watcher over the guardians when they look after the orphans and when they hand over the property, is it complete and plentiful or is it deficient, shortchanged, and misleading in its accounts and its affairs? God knows all of that, and that is why it was proven in Sahih Muslim that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O Abu Dharr, I see that you are weak, and I love for you what I love for myself. Do not be in charge of two people, and do not be lenient with the wealth of an orphan."

Fath al-Qadir

This is a reference to the rest of the rulings related to orphans' money. The command to pay their money to them was mentioned in the Almighty's saying: And give the orphans their property. Here, the Almighty made it clear that the money of a fool or a minor is not permissible to be given to him. The meaning of foolishness in language was mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Scholars differed about who these fools are. Saeed bin Jubair said: They are orphans; do not give them your money. An-Nahhas said: This is one of the best things said about the verse. Malik said: They are young children; do not give them your money lest they spoil it and you are left with nothing. Mujahid said: They are women. An-Nahhas and others said: This statement is not correct; the Arabs say safa'ih or safaihat. They differed about the reason for adding the money to those being addressed, even though it is for the fools. It was said: He added it to them because it is in their hands and they are the ones looking after it, like His saying, So greet yourselves and His saying, So kill yourselves meaning: Let some of you greet others and let some of you kill others. It was also said: He added it to them because it is of the same type as their money, since money was originally made common among creation. It was also said: What is meant is the money of those being addressed in reality, and this is what Abu Musa al-Ash'ari, Ibn Abbas, al-Hasan, and Qatadah said. The intended meaning is to prohibit giving it to those who do not know how to manage it, such as women and children, and those who are weak in understanding and do not find ways to benefit from money, nor avoid ways to harm it that destroy it and waste it. His statement 5- which God has made a means of support for you The first object is omitted, and the meaning is which God has made for you, and values is the reading of the people of Medina and Abu Amir, and others read Qiyaman and Abdullah bin Omar read Qawam, and Qiyam and Qawam: what makes you stand, it is said: So-and-so is the support of his family and the support of his house, and he is the one who maintains his affairs: that is, he fixes them, and when the qaf was broken in Qawam, they replaced the waw with a ya. Al-Kisa'i and Al-Farra' said: Qiyaman and Qawam mean Qiyaman, and it is accusative as a source: that is, do not give the fools your money that improves your affairs, so you can maintain it. Al-Akhfash said: The meaning is that it is standing for your affairs, so he went to it being a plural. The Basrans said Qiyam is the plural of Qiyamah like Dima and Daym: that is, God made it a value for things. Abu Ali Al-Farisi made a mistake in this statement and said: It is a source like qiyam and qawam. The meaning is that it is the improvement and stability of the situation. As for the statement of those who said that what is meant is their money according to what the apparent addition requires, the meaning is clear. As for the statement of those who said that it is the money of orphans, the meaning is that it is from the same type of money that supports your livelihood and improves your situation. Al-Hasan and Al-Nakha'i read that which He made. Al-Farra' said: Most of the words in the speech of the Arabs are women who and money that, and likewise other than money, Al-Nahhas mentioned it. His statement and provide for them therein and clothe them means: make for them a provision therein or assign them a tax for them. This is for those whose expenses and clothing are obligatory from wives, children and the like. As for the statement of those who said that the money is the money of orphans, the meaning is trade in it until you profit and spend them from the profits, or make for them from their money a provision that they spend on themselves and clothe themselves with. This verse has been used as evidence for the permissibility of placing the fools under guardianship, and the majority said the same. Abu Hanifa said that a sane adult is not to be placed under guardianship, and he also used it as evidence for the obligation of providing for relatives, and the disagreement on this is well-known in its context. His statement, And speak to them a kind word, it was said that you should pray for them: May God bless you, protect you, and do for you. It was also said that its meaning is: Promise them a good promise, say to them: If you are guided, we will give you your money. And the father says to his son: My money will go to you, and you will, God willing, own it, and so on. What is apparent from the verse is what is called a good word, as it guides to good manners with family and children or with sponsored orphans. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in what was authentically reported from him: The best of you is the best to his family, and I am the best of you to my family.

Surat al-Nisa 4:5

And do not give the foolish your property which Allah has made a means of support for you, but provide for them from it and clothe them and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

5- The Almighty said: And do not give the foolish your property which God has made a means of support for you. They differed about these foolish people. Some people said: They are women. Ad-Dahhak said: Women are among the most foolish of the foolish. Mujahid said: He forbade men from giving their money to women while they are foolish, whether they are wives, daughters or mothers. Others said: They are children. Az-Zuhri said: He says, do not give your foolish child your property which is your means of support after God the Almighty, lest he spoil him. Some of them said: They are women and children. Al-Hasan said: They are your foolish wife and your foolish son. Ibn Abbas said: Do not take your property which God has given you and made for you a livelihood and give it to your wife or children so that they are the ones who support you, then look at what is in their hands. Rather, keep your property and fix it and be the one who spends on them in their livelihood and provision. Al-Kalbi said: If a man knows that his wife is foolish and corrupt and His son is a fool and a corrupt person, so he should not give either of them power over his money and corrupt it. Saeed bin Jubair and Ikrimah said: It is the orphan's money as it is with you, meaning do not give it to him and spend on him until he reaches adulthood. He only added to the guardians and said: your money because they are its support and its managers.

The foolish person whose guardian is not allowed to give him his money is the one who deserves to be placed under guardianship, and that is if he is a spendthrift with his money or corrupts his religion. So the Most High said: And do not give to the foolish meaning: those who are ignorant of the right place, your money which God has made a means of support for you.

Ibn Amir recited qayman without an alif, while others recited qiymān, which originally was qawwaman, but the waw was changed to a ya because of the kasra of what preceded it. It is the essence of the matter and that by which the matter is based. Here he meant the basis of your livelihood by which you live. Ad-Dahhak said: By it the Hajj, jihad, and righteous deeds are established, and by it the necks are freed from the Fire.

And provide for them therein/meaning: feed them, and clothe them, for those whose care and maintenance you are obligated to provide for. He said therein and did not say: from it, because he meant: make provision for them therein, for provision from God is a gift without limit, and from the servants it is a temporary, limited procedure. And speak to them a kind word is a beautiful phrase. Ata' said: If you win, I will give you, and if you gain, I will make a share for you. It was said: It is a supplication. Ibn Zayd said: If he is not one of those whose maintenance you are obligated to provide for, say to him: May God keep you and us healthy, may God bless you. It was said: A gentle word that will please their souls.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

5 And do not give your wealth to the foolish is a prohibition for guardians not to give their wealth to those who are not wise and waste it. The wealth was attributed to the guardians because it is at their disposal and under their authority, which is appropriate for the previous and later verses. It was said that it is a prohibition for everyone to go to the money that God Almighty has granted him and give it to his wife and children, then look at their hands. He called them fools in contempt of their minds and in disdain for making them protectors of themselves, which is more appropriate for His statement: which God has made for you a means of support meaning that you stand up and are revived by it. According to the first, it is interpreted as being of the same type as what God has made for you a means of support, and what is used for standing up was called standing up for emphasis. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read qayyima with its meaning, like 'awdh meaning 'iyyadh. And it was read qawwaman which is that which is used for standing up. And provide for them therein and clothe them. Make it a place for their provision and clothing by trading in it and obtaining from its benefits what they need. And speak to them kind words. A beautiful set of words that will please their souls. Kind is what the Shari'ah or reason recognizes as good, and evil is what one of them rejects because it is ugly.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is God as Accountant.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And test test the orphans before puberty in their religion and their conduct in their affairs until they reach the age of marriage that is, they become eligible for it by puberty or the age, which is the completion of fifteen years according to Al-Shafi'i and if you perceive see in them sound judgment righteousness in their religion and their wealth then release their property to them and do not consume it O guardians extravagantly without right and hasten to spend it that is, rush to spend it for fear that they will grow up of sound judgment and then you will be obliged to hand it over to them and whoever is rich, let him abstain that is, let him abstain from the orphan's money and refrain from eating it and whoever is poor, let him eat from it according to what is reasonable according to the wages for his work and when you release to them that is, to the orphans their property, have witnesses over them that they have received it and are innocent so that there will be no disagreement and you will refer to the evidence, and this matter is guidance and sufficient is God Baa is redundant Haseeban the preserver of the deeds of His creation and their accountant

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: And test the orphans, and test the minds of your orphans in their understanding, their righteousness in their religion, and their improvement of their money, as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and al-Hasan regarding his statement: And test the orphans, they said, he says: Test the orphans.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for test the orphans, it means test their minds.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And test the orphans, he said: their minds.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And test the orphans, he said: Test them.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement, And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage, he said: Test him in his opinion and his mind, how he is. If he knows that he has seen maturity in him, his money is given to him. He said: And that is after the wet dream.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously demonstrated that the meaning of affliction is testing, to the point where it is sufficient not to repeat it.

As for his saying: When they reach the age of marriage, he means: When they reach puberty, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Until they reach the age of marriage, until they reach puberty.

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Until they reach the age of marriage, he said: at puberty.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Until they reach the age of marriage, he said: the age of puberty.

Abu Jaafar said: What he means by his saying: If you perceive in them sound judgment, is if you find in them and recognize, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: If you perceive in them sound judgment, he said: you recognize them.

It is said: I found goodness and kindness from someone - with an extended alif - insan and I found him to be friendly, with a short alif, if I became familiar with him.

It was mentioned that in Abdullah's reading: If you sense from them guidance, meaning: you sensed, i.e. you found.

The interpreters differed about the meaning of guidance that God mentioned in this verse.

Some of them said: The meaning of maturity in this context is reason and righteousness in religion.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: If you perceive in them sound judgment, meaning intelligence and righteousness.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: If you perceive in them sound judgment, meaning: righteousness in his mind and religion.

Others said: The meaning of this is: improvement of their religion and improvement of their money.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

Who said that?

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Mubarak, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: Guidance in religion, righteousness, and preservation of wealth.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: If you perceive in them sound judgment, in their situation, and reform in their money.

Others said: Rather, it is the mind, in particular.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: We do not give the orphan his money, even if he takes hold of his beard, and even if he is an old man, until we see that he has become mature and wise.

Ibn Bashir told us, Yahya told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid: You have seen from them sound judgment, he said: reason.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu Shabrama told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: I heard him say: A man may grab his beard even though he has not reached maturity.

Others said: Rather, it is righteousness and knowledge of what is good for him.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: If you perceive in them sound judgment, he said: righteousness and knowledge of what is good for him.

Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate of these sayings, in my opinion, to mean maturity in this context is reason and the improvement of one's wealth, because everyone agrees that if he is like that, he is not one of those who deserves to be placed under guardianship over his wealth, and to have what is in his hand taken away from him, even if he is immoral in his religion. And since that is the consensus of everyone, then the same is the ruling for him if he reaches maturity and has wealth in the hands of his father's guardian, or in the hands of a ruler who has been in charge of his wealth since his childhood. It is obligatory for him to hand over his wealth to him, if he is sane, an adult, in charge of his wealth, and not corrupt, because the meaning by which he deserves to be in charge of his wealth that is in his hand is the meaning by which he deserves to be prevented from his wealth that is in the hands of a guardian, so there is no difference between them.

And in their consensus that it is not permissible to possess what is in his hand while his mind is sound and what is in his hand is in good condition, and the clear evidence that it is not permissible to prevent his hand from what is his in such a situation, even if it was in someone else's hand before that, there is no difference between them. And whoever differentiates between that, the statement in that is reversed to him, and he is asked about the difference between them from an origin or an equivalent, so he will not say a statement about one of them except that he will impose the same on the other.

Since what we have described is a consensus among all, it is clear that the maturity by which the orphan deserves, if he reaches maturity, his money is given to him, as we said about his sound mind and the improvement of his money.

Abu Jaafar said: By this, the Almighty means the guardians of the orphans' money. God says to them: When your orphans reach puberty, and you perceive in them reason and good management of their money, then give them their money and do not withhold it from them.

As for his saying: And do not eat it excessively, he means: without what God has permitted you, such as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and al-Hasan: And do not consume it excessively, meaning: Do not be excessive in it.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not eat it excessively, he said: He eats excessively.

The root of extravagance is: exceeding the permissible limit to what is not permissible. This may be due to excess, or due to negligence. However, if it is due to excess, the language used in it is to say: he was extravagant, he was extravagant, and if it is due to negligence, then the expression derived from it is: he was extravagant, he was extravagant, it is said: I passed by you and was extravagant, meaning: I forgot about you and missed you, as the poet said:

They gave Hanida eight hundred dirhams, and there was no extravagance in their giving.

What he means by his saying: And no extravagance, no error in it, is that they hit the places of giving and do not miss them.

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty means by His saying: And immediately to take the initiative.

It is a source of the saying: I took the initiative in this matter and hastened.

Rather, what He, the Most High, means by this are the guardians of the orphans' money. He says to them: Do not consume their money extravagantly - meaning what God has permitted you to eat - and do not hasten to bring them up and make them mature, lest they reach maturity and you be obliged to hand it over to them, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: Extravagance and haste, meaning: eating the orphan's money, rushing him to reach maturity, and preventing him from his money.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and al-Hasan: And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, meaning: Do not be extravagant with it and do not rush into it.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And they hastened to grow up and take their money.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about his statement: Extravagance and waste, he said: This is for the guardian of the orphan to eat. They made it so that he could eat with him, if he did not find anything he would put his hand with it, so he would go and delay it, saying: I will not give him his money, and you began to eat it, desiring to eat it, because if you did not give it to him you would have a share in it, and if you gave it to him you would have no share in it.

The position of that in his saying: that they grow up is in the accusative case because of the initiative, because the meaning of the statement is: Do not eat it in the initiative of their growing up.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: And whoever is rich, is the guardian of the orphans' money over their money, so let him refrain from eating it with his money - without extravagance and hastening to grow it - with what God has permitted him to eat it with, such as:

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abu Ahmad told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash and Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, he said: By being rich from his own wealth, until he is independent of the orphan's wealth.

And he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding his statement: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, with his wealth.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Layth, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, he said: From his own wealth, and whoever among them is poor and in need of it, let him eat in moderation.

Abu Jaafar said: Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the good that God Almighty permitted the guardians of their wealth to consume, if they were people of poverty and need for it.

Some of them said: This is a loan that he borrows from his own money, then pays it back.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Wakee' told us, on the authority of Sufyan and Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha bin Mudrib, he said: Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, said: I have placed the wealth of God Almighty in my position as the wealth of an orphan. If I am rich, I abstain, and if I am poor, I eat in moderation, and if I am wealthy, I pay it back.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Atiyah told us, on the authority of Zuhair, on the authority of Al-Ala' bin Al-Musayyab, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: It is a loan.

Muhammad ibn Abd al-A'la told us, he said, al-Mu'tamir told us, he said, I heard Yunus, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaydah al-Salmani, that he said regarding this verse: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, he said: Whoever spends from the orphan's money, it will be considered a loan to him.

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Salamah ibn Alqamah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, he said, I asked Ubaydah about his statement: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, he said: It is only a loan. Don't you see that he said: And when you hand over their property to them, have witnesses over them? He said: I thought that he said it based on his own opinion.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Muhammad, on the authority of Ubaydah, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, and it is a loan on him.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Salamah bin Alqamah, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, he said: Reasonable is a loan. Do you not see his statement: And when you hand over their property to them, have witnesses over them?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaydah, like the hadith of Hisham.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, meaning a loan.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat within reason. He said: If he is rich, then it is not permissible for him to eat anything from the orphan's money, and if he is poor, then let him borrow from him, and if he finds it easy, then let him give him what he borrowed from him, and that is eating within reason.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard my father mention, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: He eats a loan in a reasonable manner.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: It is the loan, whatever he takes from it he pays it back when he becomes able, meaning his saying: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Hisham al-Dastawai, he said, Hammad told us, he said, I asked Saeed bin Jubair about this verse: And whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, he said: If he takes from his wealth an amount equal to his sustenance as a loan, then if he becomes able after that, he pays it back, and if death comes to him and he is not able, he releases him from the orphan, and if he is a minor, he releases him from his guardian.

Humayd ibn Mas'adah told us, Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: So let him eat a loan.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, he said: It is a loan.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Abi Qais, on the authority of Ata ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of al-Sha'bi: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation. He said: He should not eat it unless he is forced to do so, just as he is forced to eat carrion. If he eats some of it, he should make up for it.

Humayd ibn Mas'adah told us, Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Then let him eat in moderation, he said: A loan.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abdullah Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: So let him eat in moderation, he said: An advance from the money of his orphan.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, and on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, Then let him eat in moderation, they said: It is a loan. Al-Thawri said: Al-Hakam also said it. Do you not see that he said: Then when you give them their money, have witnesses over them?

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: It is the loan, whatever he takes from it he pays it back when he becomes wealthy, And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-A'aliyah: Then let him eat in moderation. He said: The loan. Do you not see his saying: Then when you have given them their property?

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Abu Wa'il, he said: A loan.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: If the guardian is in need or poor and does not find anything, he should eat from the orphan's money and write it down. If he becomes wealthy, he should pay it back. If he does not become wealthy until death approaches him, he should call the orphan and make lawful what he has eaten from him.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ibn Abi Nujayh told us, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, from the orphan's money, without extravagance, and without making him pay for what he ate from it.

Those who said this differed on the meaning of: eating that in a reasonable manner.

Some of them said: He should eat his food with his fingertips, and not wear any of it.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abu Ahmad told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said, he told me who heard Ibn Abbas say: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, he said:

with the tips of his fingers.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Abdullah Al-Ashja'i told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of someone who heard Ibn Abbas say, and he mentioned something similar.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: "And whoever is rich, let him abstain. And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation." He said: So whoever is rich, whoever is in charge of an orphan's money, let him abstain from eating it. And whoever is poor, whoever is in charge of an orphan's money, let him eat with it with his fingers, not being excessive in eating, nor wearing it.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Harami bin Amara told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Amara, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding the orphan's money: Your hand is with their hands, and do not make a skullcap out of it.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Ata' and Ikrimah, they said: Place your hand with his hand.

Others said: Rather, what is known in this regard is that he should eat what satisfies his hunger and wear what covers his private parts.

Who said that?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mughira told us, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: The good is not wearing linen or garments, but what satisfies hunger and covers the private parts.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: It was said: What is known is not wearing linen and fine clothes, but what is known is what satisfies hunger and covers the private parts.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, something similar.

Ali bin Sahl told us, Al-Walid bin Muslim told us, Abu Ma'bad told us: Makhul was asked about the guardian of an orphan, what should he eat in moderation if he is poor? He said: His hand with his hand. It was said to him: What about clothing? He said: He wears from his clothes, but as for taking from his money for himself, no.

Abu Kuraib narrated that Al-Ashja'i narrated to us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding his statement: Then let him eat in moderation, he said: What satisfies hunger and covers the private parts. But he wore linen clothing and fine linen.

Others said: Rather, that is what is known, eating a date and drinking the water of his livestock, by his taking care of that. As for gold and silver, he is not allowed to take anything from them except as a loan.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated, he said: Muammar narrated, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of al-Qasim bin Muhammad, he said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: I have in my custody the money of orphans. He asked his permission to take from it, so Ibn Abbas said: Do you not seek out their lost property? He said: Yes! He said: Do you not enjoy their scabies? He said: Yes! He said: Do you not wet their watering place? He said: Yes! He said: Do you not spend too much time with them on the day of their arrival? He said: Yes! He said: Then take from their milk! Meaning: from their milk.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, he said: Abd al-Razzaq narrated, he said: Ath-Thawri narrated, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of al-Qasim bin Muhammad, he said: A Bedouin came to Ibn Abbas and said: I have orphans in my care, and they have camels, and I have camels, and I am generous with my camels and I am poor, so what is permissible for me from their milk? He said: If you seek its lost one, and enjoy its mange, and lubricate its trough, and give it water to drink, then drink without harming the offspring, nor depriving it of milk.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdul-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, regarding this verse: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, he said: From the surplus of the messengers and dates.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abd Al-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Abu Al-A'la regarding the guardian of an orphan's money, he said: He eats from the livestock and dates, because he is in charge of it, but he does not eat from the money. And he said: Do you not see that he said: Then when you give them their money?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard Dawud, on the authority of Rafi' Abu Al-Aliyah, he said: The guardian of the orphan was permitted to take from the messengers and eat from the dates, but as for the gold and silver, they must be returned. Then he recited: And when you have given them their property, do you not see that he said: It must be given?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Aouf told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, that he said: Their wealth at that time was only palm trees and livestock, so they were given permission if one of them was in need to take from the messengers.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Ismail bin Salem told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation, he said: If he is poor, he should eat dates, drink milk, and receive the blessings of God.

Bishr ibn Muadh narrated to us, Yazid narrated to us, Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation. It was mentioned to us that "the uncle of Thabit ibn Rifa'ah - and Thabit was an orphan in his care at that time - from the Ansar, came to the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Prophet of God, my nephew is an orphan in my care, so what is permissible for me from his wealth? He said: To eat in moderation, without protecting your wealth with his wealth, and not to take from his wealth as a surplus.” The orphan would have a wall of palm trees, and his guardian would take care of its maintenance and watering, and would take from its dates, or he would have livestock, and his guardian would take care of its maintenance, or he would take care of its treatment and provision, and would take from its shears, its branches, and its udders. As for the freeholds of the wealth and the principal of the wealth, he would not have the right to consume it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd ibn Sulayman told us: I heard Ad-Dahhak say regarding His statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, meaning riding an animal and serving a servant. So if he takes a loan from his money when he is rich, then he must repay it, and he is not allowed to eat anything from his money.

Others among them said: He may eat from all the money, if he is responsible for it, even if it consumes the money, and there is no obligation on him to make up for it.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib narrated that Ismail bin Subaih narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Uwais, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed and Rabi'ah, both of them, on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Muhammad, who said: Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, was asked about what is appropriate for the guardian of an orphan. He said: If he is rich, then let him abstain, and if he is poor, then let him eat in moderation.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Yahya bin Ayoub told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ajlan, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, on the authority of his father: that Umar bin Al-Khattab used to say: What is permissible for the guardian of an orphan is permissible for the one in authority: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Al-Fadl bin Atiyah told us, on the authority of Ata bin Abi Rabah, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: If he is in need, let him eat according to what is reasonable, and if he becomes able after that, then he does not have to make up for it.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Al-Hussein bin Waqid told us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, who said: God Almighty mentioned the wealth of orphans and said: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable. What is reasonable is that he should fear God in his orphan.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibrahim: that he did not see any judgment against the guardian of the orphan if he ate while he was in need.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim: So let him eat in moderation, in the case of the guardian. He said: There is no obligation on him to make up for it.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, that he said regarding this verse: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: If the guardian of the orphan works on it, he will eat according to what is reasonable.

Bishr bin Muhammad told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: Al-Hasan used to say: If he is in need, he should eat from the money in moderation, as food from God to him.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Ibn Uyyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, he said: “A man said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: I have an orphan in my care, so should I beat him? He said: What you used to beat is your son. He said: Should I take from his wealth? He said: In a reasonable manner, not to hoard wealth, nor to protect your wealth from his wealth.”

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of al-Zubayr bin Musa, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, the same.

Muhammad bin Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', that he said: He places his hand with their hands and eats with them, according to the amount of his service and the amount of his work.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, she said: The guardian of the orphan, if he is in need, should eat in moderation, because he takes care of his money.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said, and I asked him about the statement of God Almighty: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, he said: If he is rich, let him refrain, and if he is poor, let him eat within reason. He said: He ate with his hand with them, because he was in charge of their money and protected it, eating from what they ate from it. And if he was rich, he refrained from it and did not eat anything from it.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is the saying of the one who said: The good that God Almighty meant in His saying: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, is eating the orphan's money when necessary and in need of it, in the manner of borrowing from him. As for in any other manner, it is not permissible for him to eat it.

This is because everyone agrees that the guardian of an orphan does not own the money of his orphan except to take care of his interests. Since it was unanimously agreed upon by them that he is not its owner, and it was not permissible for anyone to consume the money of someone other than him, whether the owner of the money was an orphan or a mature adult, and if he transgressed and consumed it by eating or otherwise, he must guarantee it to the one who consumed it, by unanimous agreement of all, and the guardian of an orphan has the same right as anyone else in that he does not own the money of his orphan, so his ruling is the same in what he is obligated to do with it if he eats from it, his right is the same as anyone else's, and if he differs from him in that he has the right to borrow from him when he needs it, it is sufficient for him to borrow from him when he needs what he borrows from him, if he is a guardian of what is in his interests.

There is no meaning in what was said by those who said: What is meant by what is known in this context is the guardian of an orphan eating from the orphan's money, because he is responsible for it in return for his work and effort. Because the guardian of an orphan may hire himself out to him to take care of his affairs, if the orphan is in need of that, for a known wage, just as he hires other workers for him, and just as he buys someone to help him, whether the guardian is rich or poor.

And since this is the case, and God Almighty has indicated by His saying: And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat within reason, that eating the orphan's money is only permitted to whomever among his guardians permits it in a state of poverty and need, and the state in which the guardians are allowed to hire themselves out to the orphans, with the orphans' need for workers, is not limited to a state of wealth or a state of poverty, it is known that the meaning in which it is permitted to them from the money of their orphans in all their states is not the meaning in which it is permitted to them in one state and not another.

And whoever rejects what we have said, from among those who claim that the guardian of an orphan has the right to eat the money of his orphan when he needs it, other than as a loan, based on this verse, it is said to him: Is it agreed that what you said is the interpretation of His statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable?

If he says: No!

He was asked: What is your proof that this is its interpretation, when you know that he does not own his orphan's money?

If he said: Because God allowed him to eat it!

He was asked: Is he allowed to eat it absolutely or with a condition?

If he said: On one condition, which is that he eats it in a reasonable manner.

He was asked: What is that known fact? You know that those who said it from the Companions, the Followers, and those who came after them from the Successors, say that it is eating it as a loan or an advance?

It is also said to them: Have you seen the guardians of their money from the insane and the mentally ill, the guardians of their money, that they eat from their money when they need it other than as a loan, not as compensation for their taking care of it, as you said that about the money of orphans, so you permitted it to them?

If they say: That is theirs, they have left the entire argument.

And if they say: That is not for them.

It was said to them: What is the difference between their money and the money of orphans, when the ruling on their guardians is the same: that they are guardians of the money of others? They will not say anything about one of them without being obligated to do the same about the other.

They also ask about the person under guardianship: Can the person in charge of his money eat his money when he needs it? Similar to our question about the money of the insane and the mentally ill.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And if you, O group of guardians of the orphans' money, give the orphans their money, then have them bear witness over them, meaning: then have the orphans bear witness that they have received it from you and given it to them, as:

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: So when you hand over their property to them, have witnesses over them, meaning: If an orphan's property is given to him, then let him give it to him with witnesses, as God Almighty has commanded him.

Abu Jaafar said: God Almighty says: And God is sufficient as a witness to the orphan's guardian's giving him his orphan's money, such as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And sufficient is God as a Reckoner, meaning: a witness.

It is said: I think that what I have, meaning it is enough for me. It was heard from the Arabs: I think you are among the black ones, meaning: among water and dates. The one who is considered high-born among men, and the one who is considered is the one who is sufficient.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains seventeen issues.

First: The Almighty's saying: And test the orphans. Testing is a test, and it has been mentioned before. This verse is addressed to everyone in explaining how to pay their money. It was said that it was revealed about Thabit bin Rifa'ah and his uncle. Rifa'ah died and left behind his son who was young. Thabit's uncle came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: My nephew is an orphan in my care, so what is permissible for me from his money, and when should I pay him his money? Then God Almighty revealed this verse.

Second: The scholars differed regarding the meaning of testing. It was said: It is for the guardian to contemplate the morals of his orphan and listen to his intentions, so that he may gain knowledge of his nobility, and the knowledge of striving for his interests and controlling his money, and neglecting that. If he sees good, our scholars and others said: There is nothing wrong with giving him something from his money that allows him to dispose of it. If he grows it and looks after it well, then the test has taken place and it is obligatory for the guardian to hand over all of his money to him. If he looks after it poorly, then it is obligatory for him to keep his money with him. There is no scholar who says that if the boy is tested and found to be of sound mind, guardianship is lifted from him, and that his money must be given to him and he must be given free rein to dispose of it, based on the Almighty's saying: Until they reach the age of marriage. A group of jurists said: The minor is not free from one of two things: either he is a boy or a girl. If he is a boy, he should be given back the supervision of the household expenses for a month, or he should be given something small to dispose of, so that he knows how to manage and dispose of it, and he should also look after it so that he does not destroy it. If he destroys it, the guardian is not liable. If he sees him being careful, he should hand over his money to him and have him bear witness to it. If she is a girl, he should return to her what is given to the mistress of the house in terms of managing her house and looking into it in spinning and examining the spinners in paying the cotton and its wages and completing the spinning and its quality. If he sees her to be of sound mind, he should also hand over her money to her and have him bear witness to it. Otherwise, they should remain under guardianship until they become adults. Al-Hasan, Mujahid and others said: Test them in their minds, their religion and the development of their money.

Third: The Almighty's saying: Until they reach the age of marriage meaning puberty, as the Almighty said: And when the children among you reach puberty (al-Nur 24:59) meaning puberty and the state of marriage. Puberty occurs with five things: three that men and women share, and two that are specific to women, which are menstruation and pregnancy. As for menstruation and pregnancy, the scholars did not differ that it is puberty, and that the obligatory duties and rulings become due with them, and they differed regarding the three. As for puberty and age, Al-Awza'i, Al-Shafi'i and Ibn Hanbal said: Fifteen years is puberty for one who has not reached puberty, and this is the saying of Ibn Wahb, Asbagh, Abdul-Malik bin Al-Majishun, Omar bin Abdul-Aziz and a group of the people of Madinah, and Ibn Al-Arabi chose it, and the prescribed punishments and obligations become due for those who have reached this age. Asbagh bin Al-Faraj said: What we say is that the age of puberty at which the prescribed duties and punishments become due is fifteen years, and this is what I like best and prefer, because it is the age at which one participates in jihad and for those who attend the fighting. He cited as evidence the hadith of Ibn Umar when he was presented on the day of the Trench when he was fifteen years old and was allowed to go, but he was not allowed to go on the day of Uhud because he was fourteen years old. Narrated by Muslim. Abu Umar ibn Abd al-Barr said: This is for one whose birthplace is known. As for one whose birthplace is unknown or who denies it, then the action in this case is based on what Nafi' narrated on the authority of Aslam on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab may God be pleased with him that he wrote to the commanders of the armies: Do not impose the jizya except on one who has been granted compensation. Uthman said about a young man who stole: Look, if his apron has turned green, then cut it off. And 'Atiyyah al-Qurazi said: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) presented the Banu Qurayzah and whoever had hair he killed according to the ruling of Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, and whoever had no hair he took as a slave. I was among those who had no hair and he let me go." Malik, Abu Hanifah and others said: No judgment is given to someone who has not yet reached puberty until he reaches what no one reaches until he has reached puberty, which is seventeen years. Then the hadd is due on him if he does what the hadd is due on him. Malik said once: He reaches puberty when his voice becomes deep and his nose becomes swollen. Another narration from Abu Hanifa: Nineteen years, which is the most common. He said about a girl: She reaches puberty at seventeen years, and she must be examined. Al-Lulu'i narrated from him: Eighteen years. Dawud said: He does not reach puberty by age unless he has had a wet dream, even if he reaches forty years. As for the growth of hair, some of them said: It is used as evidence of puberty. It was narrated from Ibn al-Qasim and Salim, and Malik said it once, and al-Shafi'i in one of his two opinions, and Ahmad, Ishaq, and Abu Thawr said the same. It was said: It is puberty, unless it is ruled by it in the case of the infidels, so whoever has hair is killed and whoever does not have hair is considered among the children. Al-Shafi'i said in the other opinion, based on the hadith of Atiyya al-Qurazi. Greenery and down are not taken into consideration, but the ruling is based on the hair. Ibn al-Qasim said: I heard Malik say: The practice in my opinion is based on the hadith of Umar ibn al-Khattab: If the razors were applied to him, I would have punished him. Asbagh said: Ibn al-Qasim said to me: I prefer that the punishment not be carried out on him except by the combination of growth and puberty. Abu Hanifa said: No ruling is established by puberty, and it is not puberty or evidence of puberty. Al-Zuhri and Ata' said: There is no punishment for someone who has not had a wet dream. This is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, and Malik once leaned towards it, and some of his companions said it. It appears that puberty and age are not considered. Ibn Al-Arabi said: If the hadith of Ibn Umar is not evidence for age, then every number of years they mention is a claim, and the age that the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) permitted is more valid than a sunnah that he did not consider and for which there is no evidence in the Shari'ah. Likewise, the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) considered puberty in Banu Qurayzah. So who is my excuse for someone who left two matters that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) considered, and interprets them and considers what the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) did not consider verbally, and God did not make for it in the Shari'ah?

I said this is what he said here, and he said the opposite in Surat Al-Anfal, since he did not refer to the hadith of Ibn Umar there, and our scholars interpreted it, and that its implication is the difference between someone who is able to fight and is given a share when he is fifteen years old, and someone who is not able to fight and is not given a share and is given to his dependents, and this is what Umar ibn Abdul Aziz understood from the hadith. And God knows best.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: If you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. That is, if you see and perceive, and from this is the Almighty's saying: He perceived a fire on the side of the mountain (al-Qasas 28:29), that is, he saw and perceived.

Al-Azhari said: The Arabs say, Go and see if you see anyone, meaning, see. Al-Nabigha said:

....On a tame and lonely basis

He wanted a wild bull to see if he could see a hunter so he could beware of him. It was said: I perceived, "I sensed," and I found have the same meaning, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: If you perceive in them sound judgment, meaning you know. The original meaning is absertam. The reading of the common people is rashdan with a damma on the ra and a sukoon on the sheen. As-Salami, Isa, Al-Thaqafi, and Ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with them, read rashdan with a fatha on the ra and the sheen. They are two dialects. It was said: rashdan is a source of rashd. "rashdan" is a source of rashd, and so is ar-rashad, and God knows best.

Fifth: Scholars differed in the interpretation of rashd. Al-Hasan, Qatada, and others said: Goodness in mind and religion. Ibn Abbas, Al-Suddi, and Al-Thawri said: Goodness in mind and preservation of wealth.

Saeed bin Jubair and Al-Sha'bi said: A man may take hold of his beard even if he has not reached maturity, so he should not give the orphan his money even if he is old until he is certain that he has reached maturity. Ad-Dahhak said the same: An orphan should not be given money even if he has reached the age of one hundred until he is certain that he will put his money in good condition. Mujahid said: Maturity means in terms of reason only. Most scholars agree that maturity does not come about except after puberty, and that if he is not mature after reaching maturity, even if he is old, the guardianship does not go away from him. This is the view of Malik and others. Abu Hanifa said: A free adult should not be placed under guardianship if he has reached the age of men, even if he is the most wicked and wasteful of people, if he is sane. This is what Zafar bin Al-Hudhayl said, and this is the view of An-Nakha'i. They cited as evidence for this what Qatada narrated on the authority of Anas that Hubban bin Munqidh used to buy something while his knot was weak, so it was said:

O Messenger of God, put him under guardianship, for he is buying and his contract is weak. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, summoned him and said: Do not sell. He said: I will not be patient. He said to him: So if you sell, say, 'No deception, and you have the option of three days.' They said: "When the people asked him to place him under guardianship because of the fraud in his actions, and he did not do so, peace be upon him, it was established that placing him under guardianship is not permissible. They have no proof for this, because it is specifically for that, as we explained in Surat Al-Baqarah, and others are different from it. Al-Shafi'i said: If he is corrupting his wealth and religion, or if he is corrupting his wealth but not his religion, he is placed under guardianship. If he is corrupting his religion and improving his wealth, then there are two views: One of them is to place him under guardianship, which is the choice of Abu Al-Abbas Ibn Shuraih. The second is that he is not placed under guardianship, which is the choice of Abu Ishaq Al-Marwazi. The most apparent view of Al-Shafi'i's school of thought: Al-Tha'labi said: What we mentioned about placing the fool under guardianship is the view of Uthman, Ali, Al-Zubayr, Aisha, Ibn Abbas, Abdullah Ibn Ja'far, may God be pleased with them, and from the followers Shuraih, and the jurists said the same: Malik, the people of Medina, Al-Awza'i, the people of Ash-Sham, Abu Yusuf, Muhammad, Ahmad, Ishaq, and Abu Thawr. Al-Tha'labi said: Our companions claimed consensus on this issue.

Sixth - If this is proven, then know that paying money is subject to two conditions: proof of maturity and reaching puberty. If one of them is present without the other, then it is not permissible to hand over the money. This is also the text of the verse, which is the narration of Ibn al-Qasim, Ashab, and Ibn Wahb on the authority of Malik in the verse. It is the opinion of the majority of jurists except Abu Hanifa, Zufar, and al-Nakha'i, who dropped proof of maturity at reaching twenty-five years of age. Abu Hanifa said: Because he is a grandfather.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

This indicates the weakness of his statement, and the weakness of what Abu Bakr al-Razi used as evidence in his rulings on the Qur'an regarding the use of the two verses as mentioned above, because this is from the category of the absolute and the restricted, and the absolute is returned to the restricted by agreement of the scholars of the principles of jurisprudence. What is the benefit of his being a grandfather if he is not a grandfather, i.e., a fortune teller?

However, our scholars stipulated that the husband should consummate the marriage with the girl upon reaching puberty, and then the test of maturity occurs. Abu Hanifa and Al-Shafi'i did not see this and saw the test in the male and female as mentioned above.

Our scholars differentiated between them by saying: The female is different from the boy because she is veiled, does not experience matters, and does not appear for the sake of virginity, so it is based on the existence of marriage, and through it all objectives are understood. The male is different, because through his behavior and interaction with people from his early childhood until he reaches puberty, he is tested, and his mind is completed by puberty, so he achieves his goal. What Al-Shafi'i said is more correct, because the act of intercourse itself by inserting the glans does not increase her maturity if she is aware of all her affairs and objectives, and is not wasteful of her money. Then our scholars added and said: After her husband enters, a period of time must pass in which she practices the conditions. Ibn Al-Arabi said: The scholars mentioned many sayings regarding its definition, including five years, six, and seven years in the case of the father. They set one year after the entry of the orphan girl who has no father or guardian, and they set a life sentence for the one under her guardianship until her maturity is proven. There is no evidence for all of this, and setting years in the case of the father is difficult, and setting a year in the case of the orphan girl is even more difficult. As for the continuation of the guardianship over the woman over whom she is under guardianship until her maturity is proven, and the guardian removes her from it, or the judge removes her from it, this is apparent in the Qur'an, and the intended meaning of all of this falls under the statement of God Almighty: "If you perceive in them maturity," so it is necessary to consider maturity, but its perception differs according to the different conditions of the mature person. So know it and act upon it, and avoid arbitrariness for which there is no evidence.

Seventh - They differed regarding what the father did during that period. It was said: It is considered to be rejected because of the continuation of the guardianship, and what she did after that is considered permissible. Some of them said: What she did during that period. It was said: It is considered to be rejected because of the continuation of the guardianship, and what she did after that is considered permissible. Some of them said: What she did during that period is considered to be rejected unless it is proven to be correct, and what she did after that is considered to be approved until it is proven to be foolish.

Eighth - They differed regarding paying money to the person under guardianship, does it require the authority or not? A group said: It must be referred to the authority, and his maturity must be proven to him, then his money is given to him. A group said: That is left to the discretion of the guardian without the need to refer it to the authority. Ibn Atiyah said: The correct view regarding guardians of our time is that it is not necessary to refer it to the authority and prove his maturity to him, because it was preserved from the collusion of guardians to make the boy mature, and to acquit the person under guardianship due to his foolishness and lack of education at that time.

Ninth: If the money is given to him while he is of sound mind, then he returns to foolishness with apparent extravagance and lack of management, then the guardianship returns to him, and according to Al-Shafi'i in one of his two opinions. Abu Hanifa said: He does not return, because he is an adult of sound mind, based on the permissibility of his admission in cases of prescribed punishments and retaliation. Our evidence is the words of God the Almighty: And do not give to the foolish your property which God has made a means of support for you. And God the Almighty said: But if the one upon whom the right is is foolish or weak or is unable to dictate himself, then let his guardian dictate with justice. (al-Baqarah 2:282) He did not differentiate between the person under guardianship being foolish or that this happened to him after the release.

Tenth: The guardian may do with the orphan's money what the father would have done in terms of trade, merchandise, buying and selling. He must pay zakat from all of his money: property, crops, livestock, and fitrah. He must also pay blood money for crimes, the value of damaged items, the maintenance of the parents, and all other necessary rights. He may marry him off and pay the dowry on his behalf, buy him a female slave to be his concubine, and make peace with him and him in a manner that is considered appropriate. If the guardian settles some of the creditors and there remains a remainder of the money that will pay off the debt owed by him, the guardian's action is permissible. If the remainder of the money is lost, the guardian does not owe the remaining creditors anything, nor does he owe those who collected it. If the creditors collect all of the money and then other creditors come, if he was aware of the remaining debt or the deceased was known for the remaining debt, the guardian shall guarantee for these creditors what would have been due to them in the settlement, and he shall have recourse to those who collected their debt thereby. If he was not aware of this and the deceased was not known for the debt, the guardian does not owe anything. If the guardian pays the debt of the deceased without witnesses, he shall be liable. If he testifies and time passes until the witnesses die, then nothing is required of him. It has already been mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah, when God Almighty says: And if you mix with them, then they are your brothers (al-Baqarah 2:220), from the rulings of the guardian in spending and other matters, which is sufficient, and praise be to God.

Eleventh - The Almighty's saying: And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, lest they grow old. He does not mean that eating their money without extravagance is permissible, so that there would be evidence for it, but rather what is meant is do not eat their money, for it is extravagance. So God Almighty forbade the guardians from eating the money of orphans except in a manner that is permissible for them, as will be explained. Extravagance in language means excess and exceeding the limit. It was mentioned previously in Al Imran and extravagance is a mistake in spending, and from it is the saying of the poet:

They gave Hanida eight hundred dirhams, and there was no extravagance in their giving.

That is, they do not make mistakes in the scholars' positions. Another said:

And their speaker said, while the horses were beating them, You have been extravagant. So we replied, We have been extravagant.

Al-Nadr ibn Shumayl said: Extravagance is wastefulness, and extravagance is heedlessness. The meaning of extravagance will be explained further in Al-An'am, God willing. And hastening means to hasten their adulthood, which is the state of puberty. And hastening and taking the initiative are like fighting and combat, and it is conjoined with israfan. And that they grow up is in the accusative case of hastening, meaning do not take advantage of the money of your ward and eat it and say I hasten his adulthood so that he does not grow up and take his money, according to Ibn Abbas and others.

Twelfth - The Almighty said: And whoever is rich, let him abstain. The verse explains what is permissible for them from their money. He ordered the rich to withhold and permitted the poor guardian to eat from the money of his guardian in a reasonable manner. It is said: A man abstained from something and refrained from it. Abstaining from something means leaving it. From this is the Almighty's saying: And let those who do not find the wherewithal for marriage abstain. (al-Nur 24:33) Abstinence means refraining from what is not permissible and must not be done. Abu Dawud narrated from the hadith of Husayn al-Mu'allim, "On the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, that a man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said:

I am poor, I have nothing, and I have an orphan. He said: Give to your orphan the money, but do not be extravagant, wasteful, or greedy.

Thirteenth - The scholars differed about who is addressed and what is meant by this verse. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Aisha, regarding the words of God the Almighty: "And whoever is poor, let him eat within reason." She said: It was revealed about the guardian of the orphan who takes care of him and takes care of him. If he is in need, it is permissible for him to eat from it. In another narration: According to his wealth within reason. Some of them said: What is meant is the orphan. If he is rich, he should be generous with him and his wealth should be spared. If he is poor, he should spend on him within reason. This was said by Rabi'ah and Yahya Saeed. The first is the opinion of the majority and it is the correct opinion because the orphan is not addressed regarding the disposal of his wealth due to his youth and foolishness. And God knows best.

Fourteenth - The majority differed on what is eating in a known manner? Some people said: It is a loan if he needs it and it is repaid if he becomes wealthy. This was said by Umar ibn al-Khattab, Ibn Abbas, Ubaydah, Ibn Jubayr, al-Sha'bi, Mujahid, and Abu Aliyah. It is the opinion of al-Awza'i: He should not borrow more than he needs. Umar said: I have placed myself in the position of a guardian with regard to the wealth of God in the position of a guardian with regard to the wealth of an orphan. If I become wealthy, I will abstain, and if I become poor, I will eat in moderation. If I become wealthy, I will pay it back. Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak narrated from Asim from Abu Aliyah: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation. He said: A loan. Then he recited: And when you hand over their property to them, bring witnesses over them. A second opinion narrated from Ibrahim, Ata', al-Hasan al-Basri, al-Nakha'i, and Qatadah: There is no repayment on the poor guardian regarding what he eats in moderation because that is the right of supervision, and the jurists agreed on this. Al-Hasan said: It is food from God to him, and that is because he eats what satisfies his hunger and wears what covers his private parts and does not wear linen or fine clothing. The evidence for the correctness of this opinion is the consensus of the nation that the imam who oversees the Muslims is not obligated to pay for what he eats in moderation because God the Almighty has imposed his share in God's money, so they have no argument in the statement of Omar: If you are able, I will pay it. It has been narrated from Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Sha'bi that eating in moderation is like benefiting from the milk of livestock, employing slaves, and riding beasts if it does not harm the principal of the money, such as comforting the mangy, searching for lost animals, plowing the pond, and harvesting dates. As for the assets and principal of the money, the guardian is not allowed to take them. All of this is excluded from the statement of the jurists: He takes according to the wages for his work, and a group said that this is what is known, and there is no judgment against him, and anything more than that is forbidden. Al-Hasan bin Saleh bin Hayy - and it is said Ibn Hayyan - distinguished between the guardian of the father and the ruler. The guardian of the father may eat in moderation, but the guardian of the ruler has no way to the money in any way, and this is the third statement. A fourth statement was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, who said: He is not allowed to take a loan or anything else. He went to the view that the verse was abrogated, abrogated by the Almighty's statement: O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent. (An-Nisa': 29) This is not business. Zaid bin Aslam said: The permission in this verse was abrogated by the Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly (An-Nisa': 10), and Bishri bin Walid narrated on the authority of Abu Yusuf who said: No, perhaps this verse was abrogated by the Almighty's saying: O you who believe! Do not consume one another's wealth unjustly except [in lawful] business by mutual consent. And a fifth opinion - which is the difference between residence and travel - is that if he is residing with him from the city, then if he needs to travel for it, then he may take what he needs, and not acquire anything, said Abu Hanifa and his two companions Abu Yusuf and Muhammad. And a sixth opinion - Abu Qilabah said: So let him eat in moderation from what he earns from the produce, but as for the mature money, then he may not take anything from it as a loan or otherwise. Seventh statement: Ikrimah narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation. He said: If he is in need and compelled. Al-Sha'bi said: Likewise, if it is like blood or pork, then it is taken from him. If he finds it, then it is sufficient. Al-Nahhas said: This is meaningless, because if he is compelled by this compulsion, then he can take what sustains him from the money of his orphan or someone else, near or far. Ibn Abbas also said: What is meant is that the guardian should eat in moderation from his own money so that he does not need the money of the orphan, so the rich man is chaste with his wealth, and the poor man is stingy with himself so that he does not need the money of his orphan. Al-Nahhas said: This is one of the best things narrated in the interpretation of the verse, because people's money is forbidden and nothing of it is permissible except with conclusive evidence.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

I said: Al-Kaya al-Tabari chose this statement in his Ahkam al-Quran, saying: Some people who imagined from the sword, based on the verse, imagined that the guardian can eat from the child's money an amount that does not reach the level of extravagance, and this is contrary to what God the Almighty commanded in His saying: And do not consume one another's wealth unjustly except it be trade by mutual consent. This is not realized in the case of the orphan's money. His saying: And whoever is rich, let him abstain refers to eating his own money and not the orphan's money. Its meaning is: Do not eat the orphan's money with your money, but rather limit yourself to eating your own money, as indicated by His saying the Almighty: "And do not consume their wealth along with your wealth. Indeed, that is a great sin." (An-Nisa': 2) And it is clear from His saying the Almighty: And whoever is rich, let him abstain; and whoever is poor, let him eat within reason. The limitation to what is sufficient is clear so that there is no need to eat the orphan's money. This is the complete meaning of the verse. We have found clear verses that prohibit eating the money of others without their consent, especially with regard to the orphan. We have found this verse to be open to meanings, so interpreting it according to the clear verses is necessary. If someone who supports the doctrine of the Salaf says: Judges take their wages for their work for Muslims, so why shouldn't the guardian be like that if he works for an orphan? Why doesn't he take wages according to his work? He is told: I know that none of the Salaf permitted the guardian to take from the money of a child when the guardian was rich, unlike the judge. This is a difference between the two issues. Also, what the jurists and judges who are in charge of the affairs of Islam take does not have an owner, and God has made the lost money for categories with descriptions, and the judges are among them, and the guardian only takes the money of a specific person through his work without his consent, and his work is unknown and his wages are unknown, and this is far from being deserved.

I said: Our Sheikh, Imam Abu al-Abbas, used to say: If the orphan's wealth is a lot and needs a great person to take care of it, such that the guardian is distracted from his needs and duties, then he is required to pay for his work. But if it is insignificant and does not distract him from his needs, then he should not eat anything from it. However, it is recommended for him to drink a little milk and eat a little food and butter, without it being harmful to him or making it too much for him, rather it is according to what is customary to be lenient in it. Our Sheikh said: What you mentioned about the wage and obtaining a little of dates and milk, each one of them is well-known, so it is appropriate to interpret the verse according to that, and God knows best.

I said: It is better to avoid it, God willing.

As for what the judge of the division takes and calls it a fee and the loot of his followers, I do not know of any justification or solution for it, and they are included in the generality of the Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming into their bellies fire (An-Nisa': 10).

Fifteenth - The Almighty said: So when you hand over their property to them, bring witnesses against them. God the Almighty commanded to bring witnesses as a warning of protection and to remove accusations. This bringing witnesses is recommended according to a group of scholars, because the word of the guardian is the word of the trustee, because he is trustworthy. A group said: It is obligatory, and this is the apparent meaning of the verse, and he is not trustworthy so his word is accepted, like the agent if he claims that he has returned what was given to him or the depositor, but he is a trustee for the father, and when the father entrusts him, his word is not accepted against anyone else. Do you not see that if the agent claimed that he had paid Zaid what he ordered him to do out of justice, his word is not accepted except with evidence? The same applies to the guardian. Omar bin Al-Khattab may God be pleased with him and Ibn Jubayr saw that this bringing witnesses is only for the guardian to pay in his ease what he borrowed from the orphan's money when he was poor. Ubaidah said: This verse is evidence of the obligation to make up for the debt of the one who ate. The meaning is: So if you borrow or eat, bring witnesses if you are in debt. The correct view is that the wording includes this and others.

It appears that what is meant is that if you spend something on the person under guardianship, then have witnesses, so that if a dispute occurs, it is possible to establish evidence, because any money received as a trust with witnesses is not released from it except by having witnesses to its payment, according to the Almighty's saying: Then have witnesses. So if it is paid to him without witnesses, then there is no need for witnesses to pay it if he received it without witnesses, and God knows best.

Sixteenth - Just as the guardian and guarantor must protect the orphan's money and invest it, so too must he protect the child's body. He protects the money by controlling it, and he protects the body by keeping it close. This meaning has already been mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah. It was narrated that a man said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

There is an orphan in my care. Should I eat from his money? He said: Yes, but not because I have money and I do not have enough money to support myself. He said: O Messenger of God, should I hit him? He said: I would not hit your son because of it. Ibn al-Arabi said: Even if it is not proven in a chain of transmission, no one will find a reliable source for it.

Seventeenth - The Almighty's saying: And sufficient is God as a Reckoner. That is, sufficient is God as a reckoner of your deeds and a rewarder for them. In this is a warning to every denier of the truth. The ba is redundant and is in the nominative case.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty forbids enabling fools to dispose of the money that God has made for people to maintain, that is, to support their livelihoods from trade and other things. From here, the guardianship is taken from the fools and they are divided into categories. Sometimes the guardianship is for young age, because the young person is deprived of expression, and sometimes the guardianship is for madness, and sometimes for bad management due to a lack of reason or religion, and sometimes for bankruptcy, which is when debts surround a man and his money is too tight to pay them, so if the creditors ask the ruler to guardianship him, he is guardianship over him. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, in his saying And do not give the foolish your wealth, he said: They are your children and women. Ibn Masoud, Al-Hakam bin Uyaynah, Al-Hasan and Ad-Dahhak said the same: They are women and children. Saeed bin Jubayr said: They are orphans. Mujahid, Ikrimah and Qatadah said: They are women. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Hisham bin Ammar told us, Sadaqah bin Khalid told us, Uthman bin Abi Al-Atika told us on the authority of Ali bin Yazid. On the authority of Al-Qasim, on the authority of Abu Umamah, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The only foolish women are those who obey their guardians. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it at length. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was mentioned on the authority of Muslim bin Ibrahim, Harb bin Surayh told us, on the authority of Muawiyah bin Qurrah, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah: And do not give your property to the foolish. He said: They are the servants, and they are the devils among mankind. And His statement: And provide for them therein and clothe them and speak to them words of kindness. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Do not take your wealth and what God has given you and made for you a livelihood and give it to your wife or children and then look at what is in their hands, but keep your wealth and improve it and be the one who spends on them from their clothing, provisions and livelihood. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Shu'bah told us on the authority of Firas, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abu Burdah, on the authority of Abu Musa, he said: Three people call upon God and He does not answer them: A man who had a wife of bad character and did not divorce her, a man who gave his wealth to a fool, and God said: And do not give your wealth to fools, and a man who owed a man money and did not testify against him. Mujahid said: And speak to them a kind word, meaning in righteousness and kinship. This noble verse includes kindness to the family and those under guardianship by action in spending on clothing and provisions, kind words and improving morals. God the Almighty said: And test the orphans, Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Al-Hasan, Al-Suddi and Muqatil bin Hayyan: That is, test them until they reach the age of marriage. Mujahid said: It means the age of maturity. The majority of scholars said that puberty in a boy is sometimes due to a dream, which is when he sees in his sleep that which brings forth the gushing water from which the child is born. In Sunan Abi Dawud, on the authority of Ali, he said: I memorized from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, There is no puberty after a wet dream, nor is there fasting from day to night. In another hadith, on the authority of Aisha and other companions, may God be pleased with them, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: "The pen is lifted from three: from the boy until he reaches the age of maturity, from the sleeper until he wakes up, and from the insane person until he recovers," or completes fifteen years. They took that from the hadith established in the two Sahihns on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: I presented myself to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Uhud when I was fourteen years old, but he did not allow me. I presented myself to him on the day of the Trench when I was fifteen years old, and he allowed me. When this hadith reached Umar ibn Abdul Aziz, he said: This is the difference between the young and the old. They differed about the growth of coarse hair around the vulva, which is the hair, does it indicate puberty or not? There are three opinions. In the third, there is a distinction between Muslim boys, in which case it does not indicate that due to the possibility of treatment, and the boys of the People of the Covenant,

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

in which case it is considered puberty in their case because it is not hastened to impose the jizya on them. He does not treat it, and the correct view is that it is puberty for everyone because this is an innate matter in which people are equal and the possibility of treatment is remote. Then the Sunnah indicated that in the hadith narrated by Imam Ahmad on the authority of Atiyah al-Qurazi, may God be pleased with him, who said: We were presented to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of Qurayzah, and whoever had hair was killed and whoever did not have hair was released, so I was among those who did not have hair and I was released. The four scholars of Sunan narrated it in a similar manner, and al-Tirmidhi said: It is good and authentic, and it was only like that because Sa'd ibn Mu'adh had ruled that the fighters should be killed and the children should be taken captive. Abu 'Ubayd al-Qasim ibn Salam said in the Book of al-Gharib: Ibn 'Ulayyah told us on the authority of Ismail ibn 'Umayyah, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yahya ibn Haban, on the authority of 'Umar, that a young man had slandered a girl in his hair, so 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: Look at him and he did not find hair, so he averted the punishment from him. Abu 'Ubayd said: He slandered her, meaning he accused her, and slander is to say that he did it to her while he is lying, but if he is truthful then it is slander. Al-Kumait said in his poetry:

It is ugly for someone like me to describe a girl either out of admiration or out of curiosity.

And the Almighty said: If you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. Saeed bin Jubair said: He means righteousness in their religion and preservation of their property. And likewise it was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan Al-Basri and more than one of the Imams. And likewise the jurists said: When the boy reaches puberty and is reforming his religion and his money, the guardianship is lifted from him and his money that is in the hands of his guardian is given to him in his own way. And His statement: And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up God the Almighty forbids eating the money of orphans without a necessary need extravagantly and hastily meaning hastening before they reach puberty. Then God the Almighty said: And whoever is rich, let him abstain whoever is not in need of the orphan's money, let him abstain from it and not eat anything from it. Al-Sha'bi said that it is like carrion and blood to him. And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Ashja' told us, Abdullah bin Sulayman told us, Hisham told us on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha, And whoever is rich, let him abstain was revealed regarding the money of the orphan. And Al-Ashja' and Harun bin Ishaq told us, they said: Abdah bin Sulayman told us on the authority of Hisham on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha, "And whoever is poor, let him eat in moderation ... The guardian of the orphan who takes care of him and takes care of him if he is in need, he should eat from it. My father told us, Muhammad bin Saeed Al-Asbahani told us, Ali bin Masaher told us on the authority of Hisham on the authority of his father on the authority of Aisha, she said: This verse was revealed about the guardian of the orphan: "And whoever is rich, let him abstain. And whoever is poor, let him eat within reason," according to his care for him. Al-Bukhari narrated it on the authority of Ishaq on the authority of Abdullah bin Numayr on the authority of Hisham on his authority. The jurists said: He may eat the lesser of two things: the wages of his peers or the amount of his need. They differed as to whether he should be returned if he becomes wealthy. There are two opinions one of them No, because he ate for the wages of his work and he was poor. This is the correct opinion according to the companions of Al-Shafi'i, because the verse permitted eating without compensation. Ahmad said: Abdul-Wahhab told us, Hussain told us on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather: A man asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I do not have any money, and I have a guardian for an orphan? He said: Whoever takes care of your orphan, without being extravagant, wasteful, or hoarding money, and without saving your money - or he said - redeeming your money with his money. Husayn was not sure. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Sa'id al-Ashja' told us, Abu Khalid al-Ahmar told us, Husayn al-Maktab told us, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have an orphan who has money but he has nothing. Should I eat from his money? He said: In a reasonable manner, not extravagantly. Abu Dawud, al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah narrated it from the hadith of Husayn al-Mu'allim, and Ibn Hibban narrated it in his Sahih and Ibn Mardawayh in his Tafsir from the hadith of Ya'la ibn Mahdi, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Sulayman, on the authority of Abu 'Amir al-Khazzaz, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of Jabir, that a man said: O Messenger of God, how should I beat my orphan? He said: I would not strike your son with it unless you protect your property with his property or take money from him. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, Ath-Thawri told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of al-Qasim bin Muhammad, who said: A Bedouin came to Ibn Abbas and said: There are orphans in my care and they have camels and I have camels, and I am generous with my camels and I am poor, so what is permissible for me from their milk? He said: If you seek its lost one and enjoy its mange and lubricate its trough and give it water to drink, then drink without harming the offspring, and do not neglect the milking. Malik narrated it in his Muwatta' on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed with it. And with this statement, which is not paying the substitute, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Ikrimah, Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, Atiyah al-Awfi and al-Hasan al-Basri say: The second Yes, because the orphan's money is forbidden, and it is only permitted out of need, so its substitute is returned, like eating someone else's money for someone in need. Ibn Abi Al-Dunya said: Ibn Khaithama told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan and Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Haritha bin Mudrib, who said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: I have placed myself in the same position with regard to this money as the guardian of an orphan. If I am rich, I abstain, and if I am in need, I borrow, and if I am wealthy, I pay it back.

Another way Sa'id ibn Mansur said: Abu al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of al-Bara', who said: 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: I have placed myself in relation to God's wealth in the position of the guardian of an orphan. If I am in need, I take from it, and if I am wealthy, I return it, and if I am rich, I abstain. A sound chain of transmission. Al-Bayhaqi narrated something similar to that from Ibn 'Abbas, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way from 'Ali ibn Abi Talhah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his statement: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, meaning a loan. He said: And it was narrated from 'Ubaydah, Abu al-'Aliyah, Abu Wa'il, Sa'id ibn Jubayr in one of the narrations, Mujahid, al-Dahhak, and al-Suddi something similar to that, and it was narrated from al-Suddi from 'Ikrimah from Ibn 'Abbas regarding his statement: And let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: He eats with three fingers. Then he said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Ibn Mahdi told us from Sufyan from al-Hakam from Muqsim from Ibn 'Abbas: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: He eats from his wealth to support his orphan so that he does not need the wealth of the orphan. He said: It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Maymun ibn Mihran in one of the narrations and the ruling is similar to that, and Aamer al-Sha'bi said: He should not eat from it unless he is forced to do so, just as he is forced to eat dead meat. If he eats from it, he should make up for it. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Ibn Wahb said: Nafi' ibn Abi Na'im al-Qari told us: I asked Yahya ibn Sa'id al-Ansari and Rabi'ah about the statement of God the Most High: And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable (al-Baqarah 2:14), and they said: That is in the case of an orphan, if he is poor, he should spend on him according to his poverty, and the guardian should not have anything from it. This is far from the context, because he said: And whoever is rich, let him abstain meaning from the guardians. And whoever is poor meaning among them let him eat in moderation meaning in the best way as He said in the other verse And do not approach the property of an orphan except in a way that is best until he reaches maturity meaning do not approach it except to improve it, then if you need it, eat from it in moderation. And His statement: And when you have handed over their property to them meaning after they have reached puberty and you have seen them mature, then at that time hand over their property to them. So when you hand over their property to them then have witnesses over them This is a command from God Almighty to the guardians to bear witness over the orphans when they have reached puberty and handed over their property to them so that some of them do not deny or reject what they have taken and received. Then He said: And sufficient is God as a Reckoner meaning and sufficient is God as a Reckoner, Witness, and Watcher over the guardians when they look after the orphans and when they hand over the property, is it complete and plentiful or is it deficient, shortchanged, and misleading in its accounts and its affairs? God knows all of that, and that is why it was proven in Sahih Muslim that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "O Abu Dharr, I see that you are weak, and I love for you what I love for myself. Do not be in charge of two people, and do not be lenient with the wealth of an orphan."

Fath al-Qadir

His saying: 6- And test the orphans Testing: The test. Its investigation has been presented above. They differed on the meaning of testing. It was said: It is for the guardian to examine the morals of his orphan to know his nobility and good behavior, so he gives him his money when he reaches the age of marriage and sees maturity in him. It was said: The meaning of testing: That he gives him some of his money and orders him to dispose of it until he knows the truth of his situation. It was said: The meaning of testing: That he returns to him the expenses of the house to know how to manage it, and if she is a girl, what is returned to the mistress of the house in managing her house is returned to her. What is meant by reaching the age of marriage is reaching puberty, as God the Almighty says: And when the children among you reach puberty and among the signs of puberty are hair growth and reaching fifteen years. Malik, Abu Hanifa and others said: A person who has not reached puberty is not judged to have reached puberty until after seventeen years have passed. These signs include males and females, and pregnancy and menstruation are specific to females. His statement, If you perceive means: if you see and perceive, and from this is his statement, He perceived a fire from the side of the mountain. Al-Azhari said: The Arabs say, Go and perceive, do you see anyone? meaning: perceive. It was said: here it means find and learn: meaning if you find and learn from them guidance. The majority read Rashdan with a damma on the ra' and a sukoon on the sheen. Ibn Mas'ud, Al-Salami, and Isa Al-Thaqafi read it with a fatha on the ra' and the sheen. It was said that they are two dialects. It was said: with a damma it is the source of guidance and with a fatha it is the source of guidance.

Scholars differed about the meaning of maturity here. Some said: It is soundness in mind and religion, and some said: In mind only. Saeed bin Jubair and Al-Shaabi said: The orphan's money is not given if he is not seen as mature, even if he is an old man. Ad-Dahhak said: Even if he reaches the age of one hundred. The majority of scholars agree that maturity does not occur except after puberty, and that if he is not seen as mature after reaching puberty, the guardianship does not lift from him. Abu Hanifa said: A free adult is not placed under guardianship, even if he is the most immoral and wasteful of people. Al-Nakha'i

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

and Zufar said the same. The apparent meaning of the Qur'anic system is that their money is not given to them except after they reach the goal of marriage, restricting this goal to seeing maturity. So the two matters must be combined, so the money of orphans is not given before puberty, even if they are known to be mature, nor after puberty except after seeing maturity. What is meant by maturity is its type, which is related to managing one's money well, not being wasteful with it, and putting it in its proper place. His statement, And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, lest they grow up. Extravagance in the language means: excess and going beyond the limit. An-Nadr ibn Shumayl said: Extravagance and wastefulness, and haste is the initiative lest they grow up is in the accusative case with His statement, hastily. That is, do not consume the money of orphans extravagantly or hastily because of their age, or do not eat for the sake of extravagance and hastily, or do not consume it extravagantly and hastily because of their age and say, We spend the money of orphans on what we desire before they reach maturity so they snatch it from our hands. His statement, And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat within reasonable limits. God, the Almighty, explained what is permissible for them from the money of orphans, so He commanded the rich to abstain and save the money of the boy for him and not take it from him, and He permitted the poor to eat within reasonable limits.

Scholars differed about what is meant by eating in moderation? Some people said: It is a loan if needed and it is repaid when God makes it easy for him. This is what Umar ibn al-Khattab, Ibn Abbas, Ubaydah al-Salmi, Ibn Jubayr, al-Sha'bi, Mujahid, Abu al-Aaliyah, and al-Awza'i said. Al-Nakha'i, Ata', al-Hasan, and Qatadah said: There is no obligation on the poor to make up for what he eats in moderation. This is more consistent with the Qur'anic system, as the permissibility of eating for the poor indicates that it is permissible for him to do so without a loan. What is meant by moderation is what is commonly known among people. So he should not indulge in luxury with the orphans' money and go to extremes in enjoying food, drink, and clothing, and he should not neglect to satisfy his need and cover his private parts. The address in this verse is to the guardians of orphans who are responsible for their well-being, such as the father, the guardian, and their trustees. Some scholars said: What is meant by the verse is the orphan: if he is rich, he should be generous with his money and refrain from spending on him, and if he is poor, he should spend on him according to what he obtains. This statement is extremely flawed. His saying: So when you give them their money, have witnesses over them meaning: If the requirement for payment has been fulfilled and you give them their money, have witnesses over them that they have received it from you so that accusations may be removed from you and you may be safe from the consequences of the lawsuits issued by them. It was said: The permissible witnessing is what the guardians spent on them before they reached maturity, and it was said that it is to return what they borrowed to their money. The apparent structure of the Qur'an is the permissibility of having witnesses over what was given to them from their money, and it includes spending before maturity, and giving to all of them after maturity. And sufficient is God as a Reckoner meaning: He is a reckoner of your deeds and a witness over you in everything you do, and among that is your treatment of orphans in their money, and in it is a great threat, and the ba is redundant, meaning God is sufficient.

Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And do not give your wealth to the foolish, meaning: Do not take your wealth and what God has given you and made for you as a livelihood, and give it to your wife or daughter, then be forced to use what is in their hands. Rather, keep your wealth and make it good, and be the one who spends on them in clothing, providing for them and providing for them. He said: His statement, maintaining means maintaining your livelihood. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority, on the authority of Al-Awfi, regarding the verse, saying: Do not give authority to the foolish among your children over your wealth and order him to provide for him from it and clothe him. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority, saying: They are your children and women. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Umamah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The foolish women are only those who obey their guardians. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: They are the servants, and they are the devils among mankind. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: Women and children. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Hadrami: That a man deliberately gave his money to his wife and she used it unlawfully, so God said: And do not give your wealth to the foolish. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr who said: They are the orphans and women. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah who said: It is the orphan's money that you have with you, he says: Do not give it to him and spend on him until he reaches maturity. Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And provide for them he said: Spend on them. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid: And speak to them words of kindness he said: They were commanded to speak to them words of kindness and kinship. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And speak to them words of kindness he said: A number you count them. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And test the orphans, meaning test the orphans when they are puberty, and if you perceive in them sound judgment, in their condition and in their wealth, then release their property to them and do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, meaning consume the orphan's wealth in haste before he reaches puberty and stand between him and his wealth. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Aisha who said: This verse was revealed about the guardian of the orphan, "And whoever is rich, let him abstain. And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable," according to what he is responsible for. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated, and he authenticated it, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And whoever is rich, let him abstain, he said, because of his wealth. "And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable," he said: He eats from his wealth to sustain himself so that he does not need the orphan's wealth. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: It is a loan. Abd bin Hamid and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: If he is poor, he takes from the surplus milk and from the surplus food but does not exceed that, and from the clothes that cover his private parts. If he becomes able to do so, he pays it back, but if he is unable, he is absolved. Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Saad, Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Nasa'i, Ibn Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan through various chains of transmission on the authority of Umar bin Al-Khattab who said: I have treated myself with regard to God's wealth as the guardian of an orphan. If I am rich, I abstain, and if I am in need, I take from it in a reasonable manner, and if I am able, I pay it back. Ahmad, Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Majah and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that a man asked the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and said: I do not have the wealth of a guardian of an orphan. He said: Eat from the wealth of your orphan, but do not be extravagant, wasteful, hoarding wealth, and do not protect your wealth with his wealth. Abu Dawud and An-Nahhas both included in An-Nasikh and Ibn Al-Mundhir on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable, he said: It was abrogated by Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans the verse.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

6- The Almighty said: And test the orphans, the verse was revealed about Thabit bin Rifa'a and his uncle, because Rifa'a died and left his son Thabit who was young, so his uncle came to the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, and said: My nephew is an orphan in my care, so what is permissible for me from his money and when should I give him his money? So God Almighty revealed this verse And test the orphans Test them in their minds, religion and their ability to keep their money, until they reach the age of marriage, meaning: the age of men and women, and if you perceive, you see, in them sound judgment, the commentators said that it means: intelligence, righteousness in religion, keeping money and knowledge of what is good for it. Saeed bin Jubair, Mujahid and Al-Sha'bi said: His money should not be given to him even if he is an old man until you perceive that he has reached sound judgment.

The test varies according to their circumstances. If he is someone who deals in the market, the guardian should give him a small amount of money and look into his dealings. If he is someone who does not deal in the market, he should test him in his household expenses, spending on his slaves and his wages. The woman should be tested in the matter of her home, preserving her belongings, spinning and spinning. If he sees his good management and his dealings in matters repeatedly, his heart will be overcome by his wisdom, then the money should be given to him.

Know that God Almighty has made the removal of guardianship from a minor and the permissibility of giving money to him conditional on two things: reaching puberty and maturity. Puberty occurs with one of four things, two of which are shared by men and women, and two of which are specific to women:

What men and women share is one of them: age, and the second is wet dreams. As for age, if the newborn completes fifteen years, he is deemed to have reached puberty, whether he is a boy or a girl, because Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib told me, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told me, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told me, Al-Rabi' told me, Al-Shafi'i told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Uyaynah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Omar, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Omar, may God be pleased with them both, who said: I was presented to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the year of Uhud, when I was fourteen years old, and he rejected me. Then I was presented to him in the year of the Trench, when I was fifteen years old, and he approved me. Nafi' said: So I told this hadith to Omar bin Abdul Aziz, and he said: This is a difference between fighting and offspring, and he wrote that the fifteen-year-old should be assigned to fighting, and the one who had not reached that age should be assigned to offspring. This is the opinion of most scholars.

Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him, said: A girl reaches puberty when she reaches the age of seventeen, and a boy reaches puberty when he reaches the age of eighteen.

As for wet dreams, the emission of semen, whether it was due to a wet dream, intercourse, or something else, benefited me. If I find that after completing nine years of age, whichever of the two, it is ruled that he has reached puberty, based on the Almighty's saying: And when the children among you reach puberty, let them ask permission. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Muadh regarding the jizya when he sent him to Yemen: Take a dinar from every adult.

As for pubic hair: which is the growth of coarse hair around the vulva: it is puberty in the children of polytheists, as it was narrated on the authority of Atiyah al-Qurazi, who said: I was among the captives of Qurayzah, and they would look and whoever had hair growing would be killed, and whoever had not grown hair would not be killed, so I was among those who had not grown hair.

Surat al-Nisa 4:6

And test the orphans until they reach the age of marriage. Then if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up. And whoever is rich, let him abstain, and whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is acceptable. And when you release their property to them, So bring witnesses against them, and sufficient is Allah as Accountant.

Is this considered puberty in the children of Muslims? There are two opinions on this, one of them: It is puberty like the children of infidels, and the second: It is not puberty because it is possible to trace the births of Muslims by referring to their fathers, but in the case of infidels, their births are not traced, and the word of their fathers is not accepted in this case because of their infidelity, so the sprouting, which is a sign of puberty, is considered puberty in their case.

As for what is specific to women: menstruation and pregnancy. If a woman menstruates after completing nine years, she is deemed to have reached puberty. Likewise, if she gives birth, she is deemed to have reached puberty six months before giving birth, because that is the shortest period of pregnancy.

As for maturity: it is that he be righteous in his religion and his money. Righteousness in religion means that he avoids obscenities and sins that destroy justice. Righteousness in money means that he is not extravagant. Extravagance means that he spends his money on things that do not bring him worldly praise or reward in the Hereafter, or that he does not manage it well, so he is cheated in sales. If the boy reaches puberty and he is corrupt in his religion and not righteous in his money, he remains under guardianship, his money is not given to him and his actions are not carried out.

According to Abu Hanifa may God be pleased with him, if he is a reformer of his money, the guardianship over him is removed, even if he is corrupting his religion. If he is corrupting his money, he said: It is not given to him until he reaches twenty-five years of age, but his actions before that are valid. The Qur'an is an argument for those who remain under guardianship, because God the Almighty said: "Until they reach the age of marriage. Then, if you perceive in them sound judgment, release their property to them." He commanded that the money be given to them after reaching puberty and seeing sound judgment. The immoral person is not of sound mind after reaching twenty-five years of age, and he is a corrupter of his money by consensus, not of sound mind. Therefore, it is not permissible to give him money before reaching this age.

If he or she reaches adulthood, the guardianship over him or her is lifted, and the money is given to him or her, whether he or she is a man or a woman, married or unmarried.

According to Malik, may God have mercy on him: If she is a woman, the money is not given to her unless she marries. If she marries, it is given to her, but her actions are not valid except with the husband's permission, unless she grows up and becomes experienced.

If the boy reaches maturity and the guardianship is removed from him, then he returns to being foolish, he should be placed under guardianship. If he returns to being a spendthrift, he should be placed under guardianship. If he returns to being a corrupter of his religion, then there are two options: First, guardianship is placed upon him again if he reaches maturity with this characteristic. Second, it is not placed under guardianship because the ruling of permanence is more protective than the ruling of the beginning.

According to Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him: There is no restriction on a free, sane, adult man under any circumstances. The evidence for establishing restriction from the agreement of the Companions, may God be pleased with them, is what was narrated on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah on the authority of his father Abdullah bin Jaafar, who bought a salty land for sixty thousand dirhams. Ali said: I will go to Uthman and restrict you. So Ibn Jaafar went to Al-Zubayr and informed him of that. (Al-Zubayr said: I am your partner in your sale. Ali went to Uthman and said: Restrict this one.) Al-Zubayr said: I am his partner. Uthman said: How can I restrict a man in the sale of his partner in Al-Zubayr? So that was an agreement from them on the permissibility of restriction until Al-Zubayr contrived to push it away.

God Almighty says: And do not consume it O group of guardians extravagantly without right, and hasten that is, to hasten that they grow up and that is in the accusative case, meaning: do not hasten their growth and maturity, lest they reach maturity and you be obliged to hand it over to them. Then He explained what is permissible for them from their money, saying: And whoever is rich, let him abstain that is, let him abstain from the orphan's money, not depriving him of it, little or much. Abstinence is abstaining from what is not permissible. And whoever is poor in need of the orphan's money, which he protects and cares for, let him eat/in moderation.

Muhammad ibn al-Hasan al-Marwazi told us, Abu Sahl Muhammad ibn Umar al-Sajzi told us, Imam Abu Sulayman al-Khattabi told us, Abu Bakr ibn Dasa al-Tammar told us, Abu Dawud al-Sijistani told us, Hamid ibn Mas'adah told us, Khalid ibn al-Harith told them, Husayn, meaning the teacher, told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, may God be pleased with him, "A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I am poor and I have nothing, and I have an orphan." He said: Eat from the wealth of your orphan, but do not be extravagant, hasty, or greedy.

They differed as to whether he is obligated to make up for it. Some of them said that he should make up for it if he becomes wealthy, which is what is meant by his statement, Then let him eat in moderation. A moderation is a loan, meaning: he borrows from the orphan's money if he needs it, then if he becomes wealthy he pays it back. This is the statement of Mujahid and Saeed bin Jubair. Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, said: I have placed myself in the same position with regard to God's money as an orphan: if I am rich I abstain, and if I am poor I eat in moderation, then if I am wealthy I pay it back.

Al-Shaabi said: He does not eat it unless he is forced to eat it, just as he is forced to eat carrion.

Some people said: There is no judgment against him.

Then they differed about how to eat in a reasonable manner. Ata' and Ikrimah said: He eats with the tips of his fingers, and does not go to excess, nor does he cover himself with it, nor does he wear linen or fine clothes, but rather what satisfies hunger and covers the private parts.

Al-Hassan and a group said: He eats from the fruit of his palm trees and the milk of his livestock in a reasonable manner and he is not required to make up for it. As for gold and silver, no. If he takes something from it, he must return it.

Al-Kalbi said: It is well-known that he rides an animal and serves a servant, and he has the right to eat some of his money.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Mus'ab told us, Malik told us, Yahya ibn Sa'id told us, he said, I heard al-Qasim ibn Muhammad say: A man came to Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, and said: I have an orphan who has camels. May I drink from the milk of his camels? He said: If you want to take his lost camels and treat them with scabies and clean their trough and give them water to drink on the day they come back, then drink without harming the offspring or hindering the milking.

Some of them said: It is known that he takes from all his money according to the amount of his standing and the wages of his work, and there is no judgment on him, and this is the opinion of Aisha and a group of scholars.

The Almighty says: So when you hand over their property to them, have witnesses over them. This is a command of guidance, not an obligation. It is a command for the guardian to have witnesses over the payment of the money to the orphan after he has reached maturity, so that the accusation against him is removed and the dispute is ended. And sufficient is God as Accountant, as an Accountant, a Rewarder, and a Witness.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

6 And test the orphans Test them before they reach puberty by following up on their conditions in terms of religious integrity, and guidance in controlling money and managing it well, by entrusting him with the preliminaries of the contract. And from Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him, that he should give him what he disposes of. Until they reach the age of marriage Until they reach the age of puberty by having a wet dream, or complete fifteen years according to us, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him: When the boy completes fifteen years, his rights and obligations are written down and the prescribed punishments are carried out on him. And eighteen according to Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him. And reaching the age of marriage is a metaphor for puberty, because he is fit for marriage according to him. If you perceive in them sound judgment If you see sound judgment in them. And it was read as ahastum meaning you sensed. Then hand over their property to them without delaying beyond the age of puberty. The verse is structured with the conditional an if as a response to idha if, which includes the meaning of condition. The sentence is the ultimate test, as if it was said, And test the orphans until they reach puberty and are entitled to have their property handed over to them on the condition that they are seen to be mature. This is evidence that it is not given to them unless they are seen to be mature. Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him, said: If they exceed the age of puberty by seven years, which is a significant period in changing circumstances, since the child is able to distinguish after that and is commanded to worship, the money is given to them even if they are not seen to be mature. And do not consume it extravagantly and hastily, lest they grow up extravagantly and hastening their growth, or because of your extravagance and hastening their growth. And whoever is rich, let him abstain from eating it. And whoever is poor, let him eat according to what is reasonable according to his need and the wages of his effort. The expression of abstinence and eating according to what is reasonable indicates that the guardian has a right to the boy's money. It was narrated from him, peace and blessings be upon him, that a man said to him, 'There is an orphan in my care, may I eat from his money?' He said, 'Eat according to what is reasonable, neither hoarding money nor protecting your wealth with his money.' The inclusion of this division after his saying, And do not eat it indicates that it is a prohibition for guardians to take and spend on themselves the money of orphans. So when you hand over their money to them, have witnesses over them that they have received it, as this is more effective in eliminating suspicion and further from dispute. The obligation of guarantee and its apparent meaning indicates that the guardian is not to be believed in his claim except with evidence, which is the preferred view according to us and is the school of Abu Malik, may God have mercy on him, in contrast to Abu Hanifa. And sufficient is God as a Reckoner as an Accountant, so do not disobey what I have commanded you and do not exceed what I have set for you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:7

For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, and for women is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, be it little or much - an obligatory share.

Surat al-Nisa 4:7

For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, and for women is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, be it little or much - an obligatory share.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed in response to what was the case in the days of ignorance, which was not allowing women and children to inherit: For men children and relatives is a share a portion of what the parents and close relatives leave the deceased and for women is a share of what the parents and close relatives leave, whether it is little meaning the money or much God made it an obligatory share definitively handed over to them

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: For men is a share. Abu Sheikh and Ibn Hibban narrated in the Book of Inheritance on the authority of Al-Kalbi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The people of the Age of Ignorance did not give inheritance to daughters or young males until they reached maturity. Then a man from the Ansar called Aws bin Thabit died and left two daughters and a young son. Then his cousins Khalid and Artafa, who were his relatives, came and took all of his inheritance. Then his wife came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him. He said: I do not know what to say. Then the verse was revealed: For men is a share of what the parents leave.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By this, the Almighty means: The males of the dead man's children have a share of his inheritance, and the females have a share of it, from what he left behind, whether little or much, a fixed, obligatory, known, and temporary share.

He mentioned that this verse was revealed because the people of the pre-Islamic era used to give inheritance to males and not females, as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: They did not give women an inheritance, so this verse was revealed: And women shall have a share of what parents and close relatives leave.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Husayn narrated to us, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: It was revealed about Umm Kahlah and the daughter of Kahlah, Tha'laba and Aws ibn Suwayd, and they were from the Ansar. One of them was her husband and the other was her son's paternal uncle. She said: O Messenger of God, my husband died and left me and his daughter, and we did not inherit! Her son's paternal uncle said: O Messenger of God, do not ride a horse, do not carry a burden, and do not kill an enemy, so that she may earn money and you do not earn money! So this was revealed: For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, and for women is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, whether it be little or much - an obligatory share.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, he said: Women did not inherit from their fathers in the pre-Islamic era, and the elderly would inherit, but the young would not inherit, even if he was male. So God Almighty said: For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, up to His statement: a prescribed share.

Abu Ja'far said: His statement, a prescribed share, is in the accusative case, as an adjective for an indefinite noun, because it is used as a source, like someone saying, You have a right that is due from me. If a proper noun were in place of his statement, a prescribed share, it would not be permissible to put it in the accusative case. It is not said, You have a right to me of a dirham. So his statement, a prescribed share, is like his statement, a prescribed share and an obligation, just as it is said, I have a dirham as a gift that has been received.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has five issues:

First: When God Almighty mentioned the matter of orphans, He connected it to the mention of inheritances, and the verse was revealed about Aws bin Thabit Al-Ansari, who died and left behind a wife called Kajah and three daughters from her. Two men, the sons of the deceased's paternal uncle and his executors, called Suwaid and Urfajah, took his money and did not give his wife or daughters anything. In the pre-Islamic era, they did not give inheritance to women or children, even if they were male, and they said:

It is not given except to those who fought on horseback, thrust with a spear, strike with a sword and seize the spoils. Umm Kajah mentioned that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he called them and they said: O Messenger of God, her son does not ride a horse, nor does he carry a camel, nor does he attack an enemy. So he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Go away so that I may see what God wills for me regarding them. So God revealed this verse in response to them, and to invalidate their words and their actions in their ignorance, for the young heirs should have been more entitled to the money than the adults, due to their failure to act and consider their interests, so they reversed the ruling and invalidated the ruling, and they went astray with their whims and erred in their opinions and actions.

Second: Our scholars said: In this verse there are three benefits: First: Clarification of the reason for inheritance, which is kinship. Second: Generality of kinship, regardless of whether it is near or far. Third: Generalization of the prescribed share, and this is clarified in the verse of inheritance. So in this verse there was a preparation for the ruling, and a nullification of that corrupt opinion until the clear clarification occurred.

Third: It was proven that when Abu Talha gave his money in charity - to Bayraha - and mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said to him:

He gave it to the poor of your relatives. Anas said: They were closer to him than me. Abu Dawud said: It was reported to me on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Ansari that he said: Abu Talha al-Ansari is Zayd ibn Sahl ibn al-Aswad and ibn Haram ibn Amr ibn Zayd Manat ibn Adi ibn Amr ibn Malik ibn al-Najjar. Hassan ibn Thabit ibn al-Mundhir ibn Haram meet on the third father, who is Haram. And Ubay ibn Ka'b ibn Qays ibn Ubayd ibn Yazid ibn Mu'awiyah ibn Amr ibn Malik ibn al-Najjar. Al-Ansari said: There are six fathers between Abu Talha and Abu. He said: Amr ibn Malik brings together Hassan and Ubay ibn Ka'b. Abu Umar said: In this is what determines the kinship. Whatever is in this number and the like, and whatever is less than that, it is more likely that the name of kinship be attached to it.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Of whatever is little or much thereof, a prescribed share. God Almighty established a share for the daughters in the inheritance, but did not specify how much it was. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent word to Suwaid and Urfajah not to distribute anything from the wealth of Aws, for God had given his daughters a share, but did not specify how much it was until I see what our Lord reveals. So the following verse was revealed: God instructs you concerning your children (An-Nisa': 1) until the Almighty's saying: The great success (An-Nisa': 13). So he sent word to them: Give Umm Kujjah an eighth of what Aws left, and his daughters two-thirds, and you the value of the money.

Fifth - Our scholars have used this verse as evidence in dividing what is left behind according to the obligatory shares if it has changed from its condition, such as a bathroom, a house, an olive threshing floor, or a house whose benefits are no longer available due to the approval of the people with shares in it. Malik said: It is divided even if there is nothing in the share of any of them that can be used, based on the statement of God the Almighty: Of whatever is little or much, a prescribed share. This is the statement of Ibn Kinanah, and Al-Shafi'i said the same. Abu Hanifa said something similar: Abu Hanifa said about a small house between two people, and one of them asked for the division and his companion refused: It is divided for him. Ibn Abi Laila said: If there are among them those who do not benefit from what is divided for them, then it is not divided. And every division that causes harm to one of them without the other is not divided, and this is the statement of Abu Thawr. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: It is the more correct of the two statements, and Ibn Al-Qasim narrated it from Malik as Ibn Al-Arabi mentioned. Ibn Al-Qasim said: "I see that everything that is not divided, such as houses, homes, and bathrooms, and in dividing it there is harm and it is not beneficial if divided, should be sold and there is no pre-emption in it," because of his saying, peace be upon him:

Pre-emption is for everything that is not divided. If the prescribed punishments are imposed, then there is no pre-emption. So, peace be upon him, he made pre-emption for everything in which it is possible to carry out the prescribed punishments, and he made pre-emption conditional on what is not divided and in which it is possible to carry out the prescribed punishments. This is the evidence of the hadith.

I said: And the evidence for this statement is what Al-Daraqutni included in his hadith from Ibn Jurayj, who told me on the authority of Siddiq bin Musa, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Bakr, on the authority of his father, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

There is no reproach on the heirs except what is subject to division. Abu Ubaid said: It is that a man dies and leaves something, if it is divided among his heirs it would be harmful to all of them or to some of them. He says: It is not divided. This is like a jewel, a dove, a cloak, and the like. Reproach is separation. It is said: I divided the thing if I separated it. And from this is the saying of God the Almighty: Those who divided the Qur'an into parts (al-Hijr 15:91) and God the Almighty said: Not causing harm (An-Nisa': 12) so He denied harm. Likewise, "He, peace be upon him, said: There is no harm nor reciprocating harm." Also, the verse does not address division, but rather the verse requires the obligation of the share and portion for the young and old, whether it is little or much, in response to the ignorance. He said: For men is a share and For women is a share. This is very clear. As for revealing that share, it is only taken from another proof, which is that the heir says: A share has been made obligatory for me by the saying of God the Almighty, so enable me to have it. His partner says to him: As for enabling you to specialize, it cannot lead to harm. Between you and me, there is corruption of money, changing the form, and reducing the value, so the preference is given. It is more apparent that the division is dropped in what nullifies the benefit and reduces the money, along with what we have mentioned as evidence, and God is the Grantor of success.

Al-Farra' said: A prescribed share is like saying an obligatory portion or an obligatory right. It is a noun in the sense of a source, and for this reason Al-Zajaj made it in the accusative case: it was in the accusative case as a state. That is, these people have shares in the state of the obligation. Al-Akhfash said: That is, God made that a share for them. And the prescribed is the estimated and obligatory.

Surat al-Nisa 4:7

For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, and for women is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, be it little or much - an obligatory share.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Saeed bin Jubair and Qatada said: The polytheists used to allocate the money to the adult men and not bequeath anything to the women or children, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and close relatives leave Al-Baqarah 2:17, meaning everyone is equal in the ruling of God Almighty, they are equal in the origin of inheritance, even if they differ according to what God has prescribed for each of them in terms of what he attributes to the deceased by kinship, marriage, or loyalty, for it is a bond like the bond of lineage. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Harasa on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil on the authority of Jabir who said: Umm Kujah came to the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I have two daughters whose father has died and they have nothing, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and near relatives leave (al-Baqarah 2:17). This hadith will come under the verses on inheritance in another context, and God knows best. As for His statement: And when the division is attended (al-Baqarah 2:17), it was said that what is meant is: When the division of the inheritance is attended by relatives who are not heirs, and orphans and the needy, then a share of the estate should be given to them, and that this was obligatory at the beginning of Islam, and it was said that it is recommended. They differed as to whether it was abrogated or not, according to two opinions. Al-Bukhari said: Ahmad bin Hamid told us, Ubaydullah al-Ashja'i told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of al-Shaibani on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when the division is attended by relatives, orphans and the needy. He said: It is decisive and not abrogated. Narrated Saeed from Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Hussain narrated to us, Ibad bin Al-Awam narrated to us from Al-Hajjaj from Al-Hakam from Muqsim from Ibn Abbas who said: It is established and acted upon. Al-Thawri said from Ibn Abi Nujayh from Mujahid regarding this verse, he said: It is obligatory on the people of inheritance as long as they are happy with it. This is how it was narrated from Ibn Masoud, Abu Musa, Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakr, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Sha'bi and Al-Hasan. Ibn Sirin, Saeed bin Jubair, Makhul, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Al-Zuhri and Yahya bin Ya'mar said: It is obligatory. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu Saeed Al-Ashja, from Ismail bin Aliyah, from Yunus bin Ubaid, from Ibn Sirin who said: Ubaidah had a will and ordered a sheep to be slaughtered and fed the people of this verse and said: If it were not for this verse, this would have been from my money. Malik said in what is narrated from him in the interpretation in a collected volume from Al-Zuhri: That Urwah gave from Mus'ab's money when he divided his money. Al-Zuhri said: It is decisive. Malik said: On the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: It is an obligatory right that souls are content with.

It was mentioned that it was an order to give them a will.

Abdul Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us, Ibn Abi Malekah told me: Asma bint Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr al-Siddiq and al-Qasim ibn Muhammad told him that Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr divided the inheritance of his father Abd al-Rahman and Aisha while they were alive. They said: He did not leave in the house a poor person or a relative except that he gave him from his father's inheritance. They said: And he recited: And when relatives are present at the division, al-Qasim said: So I mentioned that to Ibn Abbas, and he said: What he got, that is not for him, rather that is for the will. And this verse is about the will, meaning that the deceased should make a will for them. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim.

Mention of those who said that this verse was completely abrogated

Sufyan al-Thawri said, on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Sa'ib al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, And when the division is present, he said: It is abrogated. Ismail ibn Muslim al-Makki said, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, it was abrogated by the verse that follows it, God instructs you concerning your children. Al-Awfi said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, that was before the inheritance laws were revealed, so God revealed the inheritance laws after that and gave each person with a right his right, so charity was made on what the deceased had named. They were narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata', on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, the verse on inheritance abrogated it, giving each person his share of what the parents and relatives left behind, whether it was little or much. Asid bin Asim told us, Saeed bin Aamer told us, on the authority of Hammam, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, that he said: It is abrogated. Before the obligatory duties, whatever a man left of money he gave from it to the orphan, the poor, the needy, and the relatives if they were present at the division. Then after that, the inheritance abrogated it, so God gave each person his right, and the will became a bequest from his money that he can bequeath to his relatives wherever he wishes. Malik said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: It is abrogated, abrogated by the inheritance and the will. Thus it was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Abu al-Sha'tha', al-Qasim ibn Muhammad, Abu Salih, Abu Malik, Zayd ibn Aslam, al-Dahhak, Ata' al-Khurasani, Muqatib ibn Hayyan, and Rabi'ah ibn Abi Abd al-Rahman that they said: It is abrogated. This is the doctrine of the majority of jurists, the four imams, and their companions. Ibn Jarir chose here a very strange statement, the gist of which is that the meaning of the verse, according to him, is And when the division is present, that is, when the relatives of the deceased are present at the division of the bequest's money, provide for them from it and speak to the orphans and the needy when they are present, a kind word. This is the gist of what he attempted after lengthy expression and repetition, and there is some consideration in it, and God knows best. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when the division is present, meaning the division of the inheritance. This is what more than one person said. The meaning is this, not what Ibn Jarir may God have mercy on him followed. Rather, the meaning is that when these poor relatives who do not inherit, orphans, and needy attend the division of a large sum of money, their souls will yearn for some of it when they see this one taking and that one taking, and they are desperate and have nothing to give. So God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful, commanded that something from the middle be given to them as an act of righteousness towards them, charity towards them, kindness to them, and a remedy for their brokenness. As God, the Most High, said, Eat of its fruit when it bears fruit and give its due on the day of its harvest. And He condemned those who transfer money secretly for fear that the needy and destitute will find out about them. He also informed us about the companions of Paradise, When they swore to harvest it in the morning, meaning at night. And he said: So they set out, whispering, 'Not a poor person will enter it upon you today.' So God will destroy them, and for the disbelievers the like thereof. Whoever denies God's right over him, He will punish him in the most precious thing he owns. That is why it is stated in the hadith: Charity does not mix with wealth except that it spoils it. That is, withholding it will be the reason for the complete destruction of that wealth. And God the Almighty says: And let those fear who, if they were to leave behind them, would be harmed. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: This is about a man who is about to die, and a man hears him making a will that would harm his heirs, so God the Almighty commanded the one who hears him to fear God and guide him and direct him to what is right. He should look after his heirs as he would have liked to do with his heirs if he feared that they would be lost. This is what Mujahid and others said. It is proven in the two Sahihs that when the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) entered upon Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas to visit him, he said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and I have no heir except a daughter. Should I give two-thirds of my wealth in charity? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: What about a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is better for you to leave your heirs rich than to leave them poor, begging from people. In Sahih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. The jurists said: If the heirs of the deceased are rich, it is preferable for the deceased to take a third in his will, and if they are poor, it is preferable for him to reduce a third. It was said: What is meant by the verse is that they should fear God in handling the wealth of orphans: And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, lest they grow old. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of

Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It is a good statement that is supported by what follows it of the threat against unjustly consuming the wealth of orphans, meaning as you would like your offspring to be treated after you, so treat people with their offspring when you take charge of them. Then inform them that whoever unjustly consumes the wealth of orphans is only consuming fire into his belly. For this reason, he said: Indeed, those who consume the wealth of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies. "A Fire and they will burn in a Blaze" meaning if they eat the money of orphans without a reason, then they will eat a fire that will rage in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection. In the two Sahihs, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Bilal, on the authority of Thawr ibn Zayd, on the authority of Salim Abu al-Ghaith, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Avoid the seven deadly sins. It was said: O Messenger of God, what are they? He said: "Associating partners with God, magic, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, turning away on the day of battle, and accusing chaste, believing, unaware women." Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ubaydah told us, Abu Abd al-Samad Abd al-Aziz ibn Abd al-Samad al-Ami told us, Abu Harun al-Abdi told us, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said: We said: O Messenger of God, what did you see on the night of your Isra'? He said: "He took me to a group of God's creation, many of them men, each of them has lips like the lips of a camel, and men are assigned to them to remove the bark of one of them, then a rock of fire is brought and thrown into the mouth of one of them until it comes out from beneath him, and they are surrounded and screaming. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: These are those who eat the wealth of orphans unjustly. They are only eating fire into their bellies and they will burn in a blazing fire." Al-Suddi said: The one who eats the wealth of an orphan will be resurrected on the Day of Resurrection with flames of fire coming out of his mouth, ears, nose and eyes. Everyone who sees him will recognize him for eating the wealth of an orphan. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Uqbah bin Makram told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Ziyad bin Al-Mundhir told us, on the authority of Nafi' bin Al-Harith, on the authority of Abu Barzah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: On the Day of Resurrection, people will be raised from their graves, their mouths blazing with fire. It was said: O Messenger of God, who are they? He said: "Did you not see that God said: 'Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly'" the verse. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Abu Zur'ah, on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram, and Ibn Hibban included it in his Sahih on the authority of Ahmad bin Ali bin Al-Muthanna on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram. Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Ja'far told us, Ahmad bin 'Issam told us, Abu 'Amir al-'Abdi told us, Abdullah bin Ja'far al-Zuhri told us, on the authority of 'Uthman bin Muhammad, on the authority of al-Muqbari, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The wealth of the weak is most forbidden: the woman and the orphan.” That is, I advise you to avoid their wealth. It was mentioned earlier in Surat al-Baqarah on the authority of ‘Ata’ bin al-Sa’ib, on the authority of Sa’id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When the verse, Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly was revealed, the one who had an orphan went and separated his food from his food and his drink from his drink, and he would keep the excess for him until he ate it or spoiled it. This was difficult for them, so they mentioned this to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed, “And they ask you about orphans. Say, ‘Improvement for them is best.’” The verse, he said: So they mixed their food with their food and their drink with their drink.

Surat al-Nisa 4:7

For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, and for women is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, be it little or much - an obligatory share.

Fath al-Qadir

When God the Almighty mentioned the ruling on the wealth of orphans, He connected it to the rulings on inheritance and how to divide it among the heirs. God the Almighty mentioned women separately after mentioning men, and He did not say that men and women have a share, to indicate their originality in this ruling, and to refute what was the case in the days of ignorance regarding not granting women an inheritance. In mentioning kinship, there is a clarification of the reason for inheritance, while generalizing what is true of the term kinship without specifying it. His statement 7- of what is little or much is a substitute for his statement of what is left by repeating the accusative, and the pronoun in his statement of it refers to what is substituted for. His statement a share is in the accusative case as a state or as a source or as a specification, and the reason for the revelation of this verse will be mentioned, God willing. God the Almighty has summarized in these places the amount of the prescribed share, then He revealed His statement God commands you concerning your children so the inheritance of each individual is made clear.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

7- The Almighty said: Men shall have a share of what parents and close relatives leave. The verse: It was revealed about Aws bin Thabit Al-Ansari/ He died and left behind a woman called Umm Kahah and three daughters from her. Two men, the sons of the deceased's paternal uncle and his executors, Suwaid and Urfajah, took his money and did not give his wife or daughters anything. In the pre-Islamic era, they did not give inheritance to women or children, even if the child was a male. They only gave inheritance to men, and they said: We do not give except to those who fought and seized the spoils. Umm Kahah came and said: O Messenger of God, Aws bin Thabit died and left behind daughters, and I am his wife, and I do not have anything to spend on them. Their father left behind good money, which is with Suwaid and Urfajah, and they did not give me or my daughters anything and they are in my care, neither feeding them nor giving them water. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called them and said: O Messenger of God, her son does not ride a horse nor carry a load. And he does not hurt an enemy. So God the Almighty revealed, For men meaning: for the males of the children of the deceased and his relatives a share a portion of what the parents and close relatives left of the inheritance, and for women for the females among them, a share of what the parents and close relatives left, whether it be little meaning: of money, or much of it an obligatory share, in the accusative case for separation. And it was said: He made that a share and established the inheritance for them, but did not specify how much it was. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent to Suwaid and Urfajah not to separate from the wealth of Aws ibn Thabit anything, for God the Almighty made for his daughters a share of what he left, but did not specify how much it was until I see what is revealed about them. So God the Almighty revealed, God instructs you concerning your children and when it was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent to Suwaid and Urfajah to pay Umm Kujjah an eighth of what he left and to his daughters two-thirds, and the rest of the money is for you.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

7 For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave, and for women is a share of what parents and close relatives leave meaning those who inherit by kinship. Whether it is little or much is a substitute for what was left by repeating the factor. A prescribed share is in the accusative case because it is a confirmed source like the Almighty's saying: A duty from God or a state since the meaning is: A prescribed share has been established for them, or on the specificity meaning I mean a fixed share that is obligatory for them, and in it is evidence that if the heir turns away from his share, his right is not forfeited. It was narrated that Aws ibn al-Samit al-Ansari left behind his wife Umm Kahah and three daughters. He married his two cousins, Suwaid and Urfatha, or Qatada and Urfajah, and took his inheritance from them according to the custom of the Jahiliyyah, for they did not inherit women and children and said: Only those who fight and defend the estate inherit. Umm Kahah came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the al-Fadikh Mosque and complained to him. He said: Go back until I see what God wills. So it was revealed, and he sent to them: Do not separate anything from the wealth of Aws, for God has given them a share, and he did not clarify until he clarified. So, God commands you was revealed, and he gave Umm Kahah an eighth, the daughters two-thirds, and the rest to the paternal uncle. This is evidence of the permissibility of delaying clarification after stopping the speech.

Surat al-Nisa 4:8

And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Surat al-Nisa 4:8

And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when the division is attended of the inheritance the relatives the relatives who do not inherit and the orphans and the needy, give them from it something before the division and speak O guardians to them if the heirs are minors with an appropriate speech nicely by apologizing to them that you do not own it and that it is for minors. This was said to be abrogated and it was said not, but people were negligent in leaving it, and according to it it is recommended, and according to Ibn Abbas it is obligatory.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the ruling of this verse. Is it definitive or abrogated?

Some of them said: It is decisive.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Shaibani, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: It is decisive, and it is not abrogated, meaning his statement: And when the relatives are present at the division the verse.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Al-Ashja'i told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Shaibani, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim and Al-Sha'bi, they said: It is decisive.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: It is obligatory, whatever the souls of the people of inheritance are content with.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Al-Ashja'i told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, he said: It is obligatory upon the people of inheritance, as long as their souls are content with it.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Al-Ashja'i told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim and Al-Sha'bi, they said: It is decisive, it is not abrogated.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Yahya bin Abd al-Rahman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, and al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: It is obligatory upon the people of inheritance, as long as their souls are content with it.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, Hisham told us, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: He was asked about the statement of God, And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness, Saeed said: People take this verse lightly. He said: They are two guardians, one of them inherits and the other does not. The one who inherits is the one who was commanded to provide for them - he said: give to them - he said: The one who does not inherit is the one who was commanded to speak to them words of appropriate kindness. It is decisive and not abrogated.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mughirah told us, on the authority of Ibrahim, something similar to that, and he said: It is decisive and not abrogated.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: It is proven, but people have become stingy and miserly.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Mansour and Al-Hasan told us: It is decisive and not abrogated.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Ibad bin Al-Awam told us, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: It is a standing order that is acted upon.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, give them from it, what their souls desire, a necessary right.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Abu Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Al-Hasan and Al-Zuhri, they said regarding His statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it, he said: It is decisive.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hisham narrated to us, he said, Mansur informed us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Yahya bin Ya'mar, he said: There are three clear Medinan verses that people have abandoned: this verse, the verse on seeking permission: O you who have believed, let those whom your right hands possess ask permission of you (al-Nur 24:58), and this verse: O mankind, indeed We have created you from male and female (al-Hujurat 49:13). Bishr bin Mu'adh narrated to us, he said, Yazid narrated to us, he said, Sa'id narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, he said, Al-Hasan used to say: It is established.

Others said: It is abrogated.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Bashir and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, they said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed that he said regarding this verse: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, he said: This verse was a division before inheritance, so when God revealed inheritance to those entitled to it, He made the will for the relatives who grieve but do not inherit.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Qura bin Khal told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: I asked Saeed bin al-Musayyab about this verse: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, he said: It is abrogated.

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, he said: This was before the obligatory duties and the division of inheritance, but when the obligatory duties and inheritances came, they were abrogated.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, he said: The verse on inheritance abrogated it.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Al-Ashja'i told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, similarly.

Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when relatives and orphans are present at the division, the verse to His saying: with kind speech, and that was before the obligatory duties were revealed. Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed the obligatory duties after that, and gave each person with a right his right, and made charity in what the deceased had named.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, who said: The inheritance abrogated it.

Others said: It is a decisive verse and not abrogated, but the meaning of that is: And if he attends the division, meaning the division of the deceased's money by his will to whomever he had bequeathed it to. They said: And he was commanded to make his will in his money to whomever God Almighty named in this verse.

Who said that?

Saeed bin Yahya Al-Umawi narrated, he said: Ibn Al-Mubarak narrated, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ibn Abi Malekah, on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abdul Rahman, he divided his father's inheritance while Aisha was alive, and he did not leave anyone in the house without giving to them, and he recited this verse: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it.

Al-Qasim said: I mentioned that to Ibn Abbas, and he said: He did not get it right! This is only a will, meaning that the deceased should make a will for his relatives.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj told us, he said, Ibn Abi Malekah told me: that al-Qasim bin Muhammad told him, that Abdullah bin Abd al-Rahman bin Abi Bakr divided, and he mentioned something similar.

Imran bin Musa Al-Saffar told us, he said, Abdul-Warith bin Saeed told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, regarding his statement: And when the division is attended by relatives, orphans, and the needy, he said: He was commanded to bequeath a third of it to his relatives.

Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Abd Al-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, he said: That is only when making a will in a third of it.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: And when the relatives, the orphans, and the needy are present at the division, then provide for them from it, he said: It is the will from the people.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said, about his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, he said: The division is the will. When a man made a will, they would say: So-and-so is dividing his wealth. So he said: Provide them from it. He said: Make a will for them. He said to the one who was making a will: And speak to them words of kindness, so if you did not make a will for them, then speak to them something good.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is the saying of those who said: This verse is decisive and has not been abrogated, and what is meant by it is the will for the relatives of the testator, and what is meant by orphans and the poor is that they should be told a good word.

We said that this is more correct than anything else, because we have explained in more than one place in this book of ours and others that any of the rulings of God, the Blessed and Most High, which He established in His Book or made clear on the tongue of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, it is not permissible to say that it abrogates another ruling, or is abrogated by another ruling, except for the two rulings, one of which was ruled to be abrogating and the other to be abrogated, each of them negates the other, and it is not permissible for the ruling to be combined with them at one time in any way, even if it is permissible to divert it to something other than abrogation, or to establish that one of them is abrogating and the other is abrogated, an argument that must be accepted.

Surat al-Nisa 4:8

And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

And since that is the case, since we have demonstrated in more than one place, and the saying of God Almighty: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it, it is possible that what is meant by it is: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division of the wealth of a person who has divided his wealth by will, provide for them from it - meaning: So make a will for your relatives who do not inherit from you from it, and speak to the orphans and the needy with appropriate speech, as He said in another place: It is prescribed for you, when death approaches any of you, if he leaves wealth, to make a bequest to parents and relatives according to what is acceptable - a duty upon the righteous (al-Baqarah 2:180), and it is not abrogated by the verse of inheritance, no one has the right to refer it to it being abrogated by the verse of inheritance, since there is no evidence that it was abrogated by it from the Book or the established Sunnah, and it is possible from the interpretation that we have explained.

Since this is the case, the interpretation of his statement: And when the division is present, the division of the testator's wealth by will, his relatives, and the orphans and the needy, then provide for them from it, is saying: So divide it for them by will, meaning: So bequeath to the relatives from your wealth, and speak to them, meaning the others, who are the orphans and the needy, a kind word, meaning pray for them with good, as Ibn Abbas and all those whose statement we mentioned before said.

As for those who said: The verse was abrogated by the verse on inheritance, and those who said: It is decisive, and what is commanded is the heirs of the deceased, then they directed his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it, meaning: Give them from it, and speak to them a kind word, and we have mentioned some of those who said that, and we will mention the rest of those who said that from those we did not mention:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, God Almighty commanded the believers when dividing their inheritance to maintain ties of kinship and orphans from the will, if he had made a will. And if he did not make a will, then he should maintain ties of kinship with them from their inheritance.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when the relatives are present at the division the verse, meaning: at the division of the inheritance.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah: that his father gave him from the inheritance of al-Mus'ab, when he divided his money.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Aouf told us, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, who said: They used to give them a share when dividing.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us - he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Matar, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan: that Abu Musa ordered that when the division of the inheritance was attended, they should give to: the relatives, the orphans, the needy, and the poor neighbors.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Yahya bin Saeed and Ibn Abi Uday and Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Yunus bin Jubayr, on the authority of Hattan bin Abdullah al-Raqashi, he said: Abu Musa swore by this verse: And when the division is attended by relatives, orphans, and the needy.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad and Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Yunus bin Jubayr, on the authority of Hattan, on the authority of Abu Musa, regarding this verse: And when the division is present, the verse, he said: Abu Musa ruled on it.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Al-Ala' bin Badr, regarding the inheritance when it was divided, he said: They used to give from it the coffin and the thing that was too embarrassing to be divided.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abd Al-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan and Saeed bin Jubair, they used to say: That is when dividing the inheritance.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Hasan, they said: They bow and say a well-known word, in this verse: And when the division is present.

Then those who said: This verse is decisive, and that the division for relatives, orphans, and the poor is obligatory for the people of inheritance, differed, if some of the people of inheritance are minors, then the inheritance is divided among them by the guardian of his money.

Some of them said: The guardian of his money does not have the right to divide anything from his money or his will, because he does not own any of the money, but he should say to them something good. They said: The one whom God has commanded to say something good to them is the guardian of the orphan's money if he divides the orphan's money between himself and the orphan's partners, unless the guardian of his money is one of the heirs, in which case he gives them from his share, and gives them to whomever he has authority over from their shares in his money. They said: As for the money of the minor, the one whose money is in charge of him, it is not permissible for the guardian of his money to give them anything from it.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Sa'id, he said: I asked Sa'id ibn Jubayr about this verse: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it. He said: If the deceased had left something in his will for them, then their will should be carried out for them, and if the heirs are adults, then they should submit to them, because if they are minors, their guardian will say: I do not own this money and it is not mine, but it is for the minors. So that is what He said: And speak to them words of kindness.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, regarding this verse: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, give them from it and speak to them words of kindness. He said: They are two guardians, and they will not inherit, and a guardian does not inherit. As for the one who inherits, he is given, and as for the one who does not inherit, speak to him words of kindness.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told me, on the authority of Al-Hasan and Saeed bin Jubair, they used to say: That is when dividing the inheritance. If the inheritance is for someone who has reached puberty, then he may clothe himself from it or feed the poor and needy. And if the inheritance is for young orphans, then the guardian says: It is for young orphans, and he speaks to them in a kind manner.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Saad, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: If they were adults, they would submit, and if they were young, they would apologize to them.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Sulayman al-Shaibani, on the authority of Ikrimah: And when the relatives are present at the division, he said: Ibn Abbas used to say: If he is in charge of something like that, he should give in to the relatives of the deceased. And if he does not do that, he should apologize to them and say something nice to them.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated to us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated to us, Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of kindness. This is of three types: As for one type, a will is made for them, so they are present and take their will. As for the second, they are present and divide if they are men, so it is appropriate for them to give. As for the third, the heirs are minors, so their guardian stands up when the division is made among them, and says to those who are present: Your right is a right, and your kinship is kinship, and if I had a share in the inheritance I would give it to you, but they are minors, so if they grow up they will recognize your right. This is the well-known statement.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Saeed, that he said: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, give them from it and speak to them words of kindness. He said: If the heir is at the division, and there is a vessel or a thing that cannot be divided, then let him give them a share. And if the inheritance is for orphans, then let him speak to them words of kindness.

Others among them said: This is obligatory in the money of young and old, for relatives, orphans, and the poor. If the heirs are old, they are responsible for giving them that when dividing, and if they are young, their guardian is responsible for giving them that.

Who said that?

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim narrated to us, he said, Ibn Ulayyah narrated to us, on the authority of Yunus, regarding His statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it, he narrated on the authority of Muhammad, on the authority of Ubaydah: that he was given a will, so he ordered a sheep to be slaughtered and food to be prepared, for the sake of this verse, and he said: If it were not for this verse, this would have been from my money. He said: And Al-Hasan said: It was not abrogated, they used to attend and give something and old clothes. Yunus said: Muhammad ibn Sirin was given a will - or he said: orphans - so he ordered a sheep to be slaughtered, and food to be prepared as Ubaydah had done.

Mujahid bin Musa narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Hisham bin Hassan informed us, on the authority of Muhammad: That Ubaidah divided the inheritance of orphans, and he ordered a sheep to be bought with their money, and food to be prepared, and he said: If it were not for this verse, I would have liked it to be from my money. Then he recited this verse: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it, the verse.

Abu Ja'far said: It is as if those who said the statement we mentioned on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Sa'id ibn Jubayr, and those who said: Then the inheritance is to be divided among the relatives, the orphans, and the poor, interpreted his statement: So provide for them from it, as meaning give them from it. It is as if those who said what Ubaydah and Ibn Sirin said, interpreted his statement: So provide for them from it, as meaning feed them from it.

They differed in the interpretation of his saying: And speak to them a kind word.

Some of them said: It is an order from God Almighty, the guardians of orphans, to say to their relatives, orphans, and the poor, if they are present at their division of the money of the one they are in charge of, between them and their partners among the heirs in it, to apologize to them, in the manner we mentioned previously regarding the apology, such as:

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: And speak to them a kind word, he said: He is the one who does not inherit, he was commanded to speak to him a kind word. He said: He says: This money belongs to people who are absent, or to young orphans, and you have a right to it, and we do not have the right to give you anything from it. He said: This is the kind word.

Surat al-Nisa 4:8

And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Others said: Rather, the one who is commanded to say the good word that God Almighty commanded to be said to him is the man who makes a will about his money, and the good word is to pray for them to have provision and wealth and what is similar to that of good words, and we have also mentioned those who said that previously.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has four issues:

First: God the Almighty made it clear that whoever is not entitled to anything as an inheritance and is present at the division, and is from relatives or orphans or the poor who do not inherit, should be honored and not deprived, if the money is a lot, and an apology to them if it is real estate or a little does not accept a lump sum, and if it is a gift from a little, then there is a great reward in it, a dirham precedes a hundred thousand, so the verse according to this statement is decisive, said Ibn Abbas. And a group of the followers complied with that: Urwah ibn al-Zubayr and others, and Abu Musa al-Ash'ari ordered it, and it was narrated from Ibn Abbas that it was abrogated, abrogated by the statement of God the Almighty: {God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females} Saeed ibn al-Musayyab said: It was abrogated by the verse of inheritance and will. Among those who said that it was abrogated are Abu Malik, Ikrimah, and Ad-Dahhak, and the first is more correct, as it explains the entitlement of the heirs to their share, and the desirability of sharing for those who do not have a share among those who are present. Ibn Jubayr said: People neglected this verse. Al-Hasan said: [It is the second], but people were stingy. And in Al-Bukhari, on the authority of Abbas, regarding the words of God Almighty: And when there are present at the division those of kin, orphans, and the needy, he said:

It is a decisive verse and not abrogated. In another narration, he said: Some people claim that this verse was abrogated. No, by God, it was not abrogated! But it is one of the things that were neglected: two guardians: a guardian who inherits and that who provides, and a guardian who does not inherit and that who speaks in what is right and says: You have no hope that I will give you. Ibn Abbas said: God commanded the believers when dividing their inheritances to connect with their relatives, their orphans and their poor from the will. If there was no will, then connect with them from the inheritance. An-Nahhas said: This is the best that has been said about the verse, that it should be on the basis of recommendation and encouragement to do good and thank God Almighty. A group said that this donation is obligatory on the basis of obligation, the heirs give to these categories what they are happy with, such as utensils, old clothes and light things. This statement was narrated by Ibn Atiyyah and Al-Qushayri. The correct view is that this is on the basis of recommendation, because if it were obligatory, it would be an entitlement to the estate and a share in the inheritance, known to one of the two parties and unknown to the other. This contradicts wisdom and is a cause of dispute and division. A group went to the view that the addressees and intended in the verse are the dying who divide their wealth by will, not the heirs. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab and Ibn Zayd. So if the sick person wants to divide his wealth by will and there are those who do not inherit, he should not deprive him. And this - and God knows best - applies where the will was obligatory and the verse of inheritance was not revealed. The first is correct and is what is relied upon.

Second: If the inheritor is a minor and does not dispose of his money, then a group said: The guardian of the minor inheritor should give from the money of his ward an amount he sees fit. It was said: He should not give, but rather he should say to those present at the division: I do not have any of this money, it is for the orphan, and when he reaches maturity, I will make it your right. This is the well-known opinion. This is if the deceased did not bequeath anything to him, then if he bequeathed, what he bequeathed should be given to him. Ubaidah and Muhammad ibn Sirin saw that the provision in this verse is to make food for them to eat, and they did that by slaughtering a sheep from the estate. Ubaidah said: If it were not for this verse, this would be from my money. Qatada narrated on the authority of Yahya ibn Ya'mar who said: Three decisive verses that people have neglected: This verse, the verse of asking permission: O you who have believed, let those whom your right hands possess ask permission of you (al-Nur 24:58), and His statement: O mankind, indeed We have created you from male and female (al-Hujurat 49:13).

Third: The Almighty's saying: From it. The pronoun refers back to the meaning of division, as it means money and inheritance, as the Almighty said: Then he extracted it from his brother's vessel (Yusuf 12:76), meaning the watering place, because the measure is masculine. From this is the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

And beware of the supplication of the oppressed, for there is no veil between him and God." So he repeated, reminding of the meaning of supplication. Likewise, his saying to Suwaid bin Tariq al-Ja'fi when he asked him about wine:

It is not a medicine, but a disease. So he returned the pronoun to mean the drink. And there are many similar examples. It is said: He divided the money with him, they divided it, and they divided it. The noun is division, and the division is feminine. The division is the source of the verb I divided the thing, so it was divided. The place is divided, like a council. And time divided them, so they divided, meaning it separated them, so they dispersed. And division is separation, and God knows best.

Fourth: The Almighty said: And speak to them a kind word. Saeed bin Jubair said: It is said to them: Take, may you be blessed. It was also said: Say with the provision, I wish it was more than this. It was also said: There is no need for an excuse with the provision. Yes, if nothing is given to them, then the least you can do is say something nice and some kind of apology.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Saeed bin Jubair and Qatada said: The polytheists used to allocate the money to the adult men and not bequeath anything to the women or children, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and close relatives leave Al-Baqarah 2:17, meaning everyone is equal in the ruling of God Almighty, they are equal in the origin of inheritance, even if they differ according to what God has prescribed for each of them in terms of what he attributes to the deceased by kinship, marriage, or loyalty, for it is a bond like the bond of lineage. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Harasa on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil on the authority of Jabir who said: Umm Kujah came to the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I have two daughters whose father has died and they have nothing, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and near relatives leave (al-Baqarah 2:17). This hadith will come under the verses on inheritance in another context, and God knows best. As for His statement: And when the division is attended (al-Baqarah 2:17), it was said that what is meant is: When the division of the inheritance is attended by relatives who are not heirs, and orphans and the needy, then a share of the estate should be given to them, and that this was obligatory at the beginning of Islam, and it was said that it is recommended. They differed as to whether it was abrogated or not, according to two opinions. Al-Bukhari said: Ahmad bin Hamid told us, Ubaydullah al-Ashja'i told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of al-Shaibani on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when the division is attended by relatives, orphans and the needy. He said: It is decisive and not abrogated. Narrated Saeed from Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Hussain narrated to us, Ibad bin Al-Awam narrated to us from Al-Hajjaj from Al-Hakam from Muqsim from Ibn Abbas who said: It is established and acted upon. Al-Thawri said from Ibn Abi Nujayh from Mujahid regarding this verse, he said: It is obligatory on the people of inheritance as long as they are happy with it. This is how it was narrated from Ibn Masoud, Abu Musa, Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakr, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Sha'bi and Al-Hasan. Ibn Sirin, Saeed bin Jubair, Makhul, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Al-Zuhri and Yahya bin Ya'mar said: It is obligatory. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu Saeed Al-Ashja, from Ismail bin Aliyah, from Yunus bin Ubaid, from Ibn Sirin who said: Ubaidah had a will and ordered a sheep to be slaughtered and fed the people of this verse and said: If it were not for this verse, this would have been from my money. Malik said in what is narrated from him in the interpretation in a collected volume from Al-Zuhri: That Urwah gave from Mus'ab's money when he divided his money. Al-Zuhri said: It is decisive. Malik said: On the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: It is an obligatory right that souls are content with.

It was mentioned that it was an order to give them a will.

Abdul Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us, Ibn Abi Malekah told me: Asma bint Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr al-Siddiq and al-Qasim ibn Muhammad told him that Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr divided the inheritance of his father Abd al-Rahman and Aisha while they were alive. They said: He did not leave in the house a poor person or a relative except that he gave him from his father's inheritance. They said: And he recited: And when relatives are present at the division, al-Qasim said: So I mentioned that to Ibn Abbas, and he said: What he got, that is not for him, rather that is for the will. And this verse is about the will, meaning that the deceased should make a will for them. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim.

Mention of those who said that this verse was completely abrogated

Sufyan al-Thawri said, on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Sa'ib al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, And when the division is present, he said: It is abrogated. Ismail ibn Muslim al-Makki said, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, it was abrogated by the verse that follows it, God instructs you concerning your children. Al-Awfi said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, that was before the inheritance laws were revealed, so God revealed the inheritance laws after that and gave each person with a right his right, so charity was made on what the deceased had named. They were narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata', on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, the verse on inheritance abrogated it, giving each person his share of what the parents and relatives left behind, whether it was little or much. Asid bin Asim told us, Saeed bin Aamer told us, on the authority of Hammam, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, that he said: It is abrogated. Before the obligatory duties, whatever a man left of money he gave from it to the orphan, the poor, the needy, and the relatives if they were present at the division. Then after that, the inheritance abrogated it, so God gave each person his right, and the will became a bequest from his money that he can bequeath to his relatives wherever he wishes. Malik said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: It is abrogated, abrogated by the inheritance and the will. Thus it was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Abu al-Sha'tha', al-Qasim ibn Muhammad, Abu Salih, Abu Malik, Zayd ibn Aslam, al-Dahhak, Ata' al-Khurasani, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, and Rabi'ah ibn Abd al-Rahman that they said: It is abrogated. This is the doctrine of the majority of jurists, the four imams, and their companions. Ibn Jarir chose here a very strange statement, the gist of which is that the meaning of the verse, according to him, is And when the division is present, that is, when the relatives of the deceased are present at the division of the bequest's money, provide for them from it and speak to the orphans and the needy when they are present, a kind word. This is the gist of what he attempted after lengthy expression and repetition, and there is some consideration in it, and God knows best. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when the division is present, meaning the division of the inheritance. This is what more than one person said. The meaning is this, not what Ibn Jarir may God have mercy on him followed. Rather, the meaning is that when these poor relatives who do not inherit, orphans, and needy attend the division of a large sum of money, their souls will yearn for some of it when they see this one taking and that one taking, and they are desperate and have nothing to give. So God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful, commanded that something from the middle be given to them as an act of righteousness towards them, charity towards them, kindness to them, and a remedy for their brokenness. As God, the Most High, said, Eat of its fruit when it bears fruit and give its due on the day of its harvest. And He condemned those who transfer money secretly for fear that the needy and destitute will find out about them. He also informed us about the companions of Paradise, When they swore to harvest it in the morning, meaning at night. And he said: So they set out, whispering, 'Not a poor person will enter it upon you today.' So God will destroy them, and for the disbelievers the like thereof.' Whoever denies God's right over him, He will punish him in the most precious thing he owns. That is why it is stated in the hadith: Charity does not mix with wealth except that it spoils it. That is, withholding it will be the reason for the complete destruction of that wealth. And God the Almighty says: And let those fear who, if they were to leave behind them, would be harmed. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: This is about a man who is about to die, and a man hears him making a will that would harm his heirs, so God the Almighty commanded the one who hears him to fear God and guide him and direct him to what is right. He should look after his heirs as he would have liked to do with his heirs if he feared that they would be lost. This is what Mujahid and others said. It is proven in the two Sahih's that when the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) entered upon Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas to visit him, he said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and I have no heir except a daughter. Should I give two-thirds of my wealth in charity? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: What about a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot.

Surat al-Nisa 4:8

And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is better for you to leave your heirs rich than to leave them poor, begging from people. In Sahih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. The jurists said: If the heirs of the deceased are rich, it is preferable for the deceased to take a third in his will, and if they are poor, it is preferable for him to reduce a third. It was said: What is meant by the verse is that they should fear God in handling the wealth of orphans: And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, lest they grow old. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It is a good statement that is supported by what follows it of the threat against unjustly consuming the wealth of orphans, meaning as you would like your offspring to be treated after you, so treat people with their offspring when you take charge of them. Then inform them that whoever unjustly consumes the wealth of orphans is only consuming fire into his belly. For this reason, he said: Indeed, those who consume the wealth of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies. "A Fire and they will burn in a Blaze" meaning if they eat the money of orphans without a reason, then they will eat a fire that will rage in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection. In the two Sahih's, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Bilal, on the authority of Thawr ibn Zayd, on the authority of Salim Abu al-Ghaith, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Avoid the seven deadly sins. It was said: O Messenger of God, what are they? He said: "Associating partners with God, magic, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, turning away on the day of battle, and accusing chaste, believing, unaware women." Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ubaydah told us, Abu Abd al-Samad Abd al-Aziz ibn Abd al-Samad al-Ami told us, Abu Harun al-Abdi told us, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said: We said: O Messenger of God, what did you see on the night of your Isra'? He said: "He took me to a group of God's creation, many of them men, each of them has lips like the lips of a camel, and men are assigned to them to remove the bark of one of them, then a rock of fire is brought and thrown into the mouth of one of them until it comes out from beneath him, and they are surrounded and screaming. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: These are those who eat the wealth of orphans unjustly. They are only eating fire into their bellies and they will burn in a blazing fire." Al-Suddi said: The one who eats the wealth of an orphan will be resurrected on the Day of Resurrection with flames of fire coming out of his mouth, ears, nose and eyes. Everyone who sees him will recognize him for eating the wealth of an orphan. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Uqbah bin Makram told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Ziyad bin Al-Mundhir told us, on the authority of Nafi' bin Al-Harith, on the authority of Abu Barzah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: On the Day of Resurrection, people will be raised from their graves, their mouths blazing with fire. It was said: O Messenger of God, who are they? He said: "Did you not see that God said: 'Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly' the verse. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Abu Zur'ah, on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram, and Ibn Hibban included it in his Sahih on the authority of Ahmad bin Ali bin Al-Muthanna on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram. Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Ja'far told us, Ahmad bin 'Issam told us, Abu 'Amir al-'Abdi told us, Abdullah bin Ja'far al-Zuhri told us, on the authority of 'Uthman bin Muhammad, on the authority of al-Muqbari, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The wealth of the weak is most forbidden: the woman and the orphan." That is, I advise you to avoid their wealth. It was mentioned earlier in Surat al-Baqarah on the authority of 'Ata' bin al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When the verse, Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly was revealed, the one who had an orphan went and separated his food from his food and his drink from his drink, and he would keep the excess for him until he ate it or spoiled it. This was difficult for them, so they mentioned this to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed, "And they ask you about orphans. Say, 'Improvement for them is best.' " The verse, he said: So they mixed their food with their food and their drink with their drink.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement: 8- And when the relatives are present at the division What is meant by the division here are those other than the heirs, and likewise the orphans and the needy. God the Almighty has made it lawful that if they are present at the division of the estate, they will have a share of it, so the dividers will give them some of it. Some people have said that the verse is decisive and that the command is for encouragement. Others have said that it was abrogated by the Almighty's statement, God instructs you concerning your children and the first is more likely, because what is mentioned in the verse for relatives other than the heirs is not part of the inheritance so that it can be said that it was abrogated by the verse on inheritance, unless you say that the relatives mentioned here are the heirs, then there is a reason for the abrogation. A group said: This giving of the inheritance to a non-inheritor from the relatives is obligatory to the extent that the heirs are satisfied with it, and this is the meaning of the real command, so the recommendation is not resorted to except for its counterpart, and the pronoun in his saying from it refers to the divided thing indicated by the division, and it was said: It refers to what was left. The well-known statement: is the beautiful statement in which there is no from for what came to them of giving of the inheritance or harm.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

8- The Almighty said: And when there are present at the division, meaning: the division of inheritances, relatives, who do not inherit, and orphans and the needy, provide for them from it, meaning: give them from the money before the division, and speak to them a kind word.

Scholars differed regarding the ruling on this verse. Some people said: It is abrogated. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab and Al-Dahhak said: This was before the verse on inheritance, but when the verse on inheritance was revealed, the inheritances were given to those entitled to them, and this verse was abrogated.

Others said: It is a court ruling, and this is the opinion of Ibn Abbas, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Nakha'i, and Al-Zuhri. Mujahid said: It is obligatory on the inheritors as long as they are happy with it.

Al-Hasan said: They used to give the coffin, the vessels, the inherited clothing, the belongings, and the thing that was embarrassing to divide. If some of the heirs were children, they would differ about it. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him and his father, and others said: If the heirs were adults, they would submit to them, and if they were children, they would apologize to them. The guardian and trustee would say: I do not own this money, it is only for the children. If I had any of it, I would give it to you. If they grow up, they will know your rights. This is the saying about what is right.

Some of them said: This is a right that is obligatory in the money of young and old. If they are old, then it is up to them to give, and if they are young, then it is up to their guardian to give. Muhammad bin Sirin narrated that Ubaydah al-Salmi divided the money of orphans and ordered a sheep to be slaughtered and made food for the people of this verse, and he said: If it were not for this verse, this would have been from my money.

Qatada said on the authority of Yahya bin Ya'mar: Three clear Medinan verses that people have abandoned: this verse, the verse on seeking permission, O you who have believed, let those whom your right hands possess ask your permission (al-Nur 24:58), and the Almighty's saying, O mankind, indeed We have created you from male and female (al-Hujurat 49:13).

Some of them said - and this is the most correct opinion - that this is recommended and desirable, not obligatory and mandatory.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

8 And if the relatives are present at the division who do not inherit and the orphans and the needy, then provide for them from it so give them something from the divided amount to please their hearts. And as charity towards them, and it is an order recommended for the adult heirs. It was said that it is an order of obligation, then there was a difference of opinion regarding its abrogation and the pronoun for what was left out or indicated by the division and speak to them a kind word which is to pray for them and to be content with what they were given and not to show them favors.

Surat al-Nisa 4:8

And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, provide for them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness.

Surat al-Nisa 4:9

And let those fear who, if they left behind them a weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And let him fear that is, let him fear for the orphans who, if they were to leave behind them that is, were close to leaving behind weak offspring that is, after their death fear for them that they would be lost. So let them fear God in the matter of the orphans and let them do to them what they would like to be done to their offspring after them and let them speak to the one who is about to die words of sound judgment correct, by ordering him to give in charity less than a third of his share and leave the remainder for his heirs and not leave them dependent.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of that.

Some of them said: Let him fear, that is, let those who attend a testator who is making a will about his money fear that he will order him to distribute his money as a will from him among those who will not inherit from him, but let him order him to keep his money for his son, as if he were the testator, and he would be pleased if those who attend him would urge him to preserve his money for his son, and not to leave them dependent despite their weakness and inability to act and deceive.

Who said that?

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them to the end of the verse. This is about a man who is about to die and he hears him make a will that would harm his heirs, so God Almighty commanded the one who heard him to fear God and guide him and direct him to what is right, and to look after his heirs as he would have liked to have done for his heirs if he feared their loss.

Ali told us, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: {And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them}, meaning the one who is about to die and it is said to him: Give in charity from your wealth, free a slave, and give from it in the cause of God. So they were forbidden to order him to do that, meaning that whoever among you is present at death, he should not order him to spend his wealth on freeing slaves, or in charity, or in the cause of God, but he should order him to declare his wealth and what he owes of debts, and to bequeath from his wealth to his relatives who do not inherit, and to bequeath to them a fifth or a quarter. He said: Doesn't one of you dislike, if he dies and leaves behind weak children - meaning young ones - to leave them without wealth, so that they become dependents on people? So you should not order him to do what you would not be pleased with for yourselves or your children, but say the truth about that.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, he said, meaning: Whoever is present at a death, let him command him to be just and kind, and forbid him from injustice and oppression in his will, and let him fear for his family what he would fear for his family if death befell him.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, he said: If the will of a dead person is present, then command him with what you would command yourself with to draw closer to God, and fear in that what you would fear for his weak ones, if you left them behind you. He says: So fear God and speak a word of appropriate justice, if he deviates.

Muhammad bin Al-Husayn narrated to us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal narrated to us, Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: "And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice." A man is about to die, and people are present when he is making a will. They should not say to him: Make a will of all your wealth, and put some for yourself, for God will provide for your family. And they should not let him make a will of all his wealth. He says to those who are present: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them. He says: Just as one of you fears for his family if he dies - leaving them small and weak, with nothing - that they will be lost after him, so let him fear that for the family of his Muslim brother, and they will say to him words of appropriate justice.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Habib, he said: Al-Hakam bin Utaybah and I went to Saeed bin Jubair, and we asked him about the statement of God, And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, the verse. He said: He said: A man is about to die, and the one who is about to die says to him: Fear God, connect with them, give to them, be good to them. If they were the ones who were ordered to make a will, they would have loved to leave it for their children.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, he said: The orphans come to them and say: Fear God, connect with them, and give to them. If they were them, they would love to leave for their children.

Surat al-Nisa 4:9

And let those fear who, if they left behind them a weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear Allah and speak words of appropriate justice.

Yahya ibn Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, the verse, he said: If one of you is about to die when making a will, he should not say: Free from your wealth, and give in charity, thus distributing his wealth and leaving his family destitute. Rather, order him to write down his wealth, whether it is debt or what he owes, and to allocate a fifth of his wealth to his relatives, and to leave the rest for his heirs.

Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayb, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding His statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them 2:100, he said: This is when the money is distributed, and those who are present say: You have reduced it, give so-and-so more. So God Almighty says: And let those fear who, if they left behind them, so let those fear, and let them say about them what one would like to be said about his child in justice if he increased: Save your child.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: And let those who are present when the testator is making a will fear, who, if they left behind weak offspring and feared that they would be lost due to their weakness and childhood, will forbid him from making a will to his relatives, and order him to keep his money and preserve it for his children, and if they were relatives of the testator, they would be pleased for him to make a will to them.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Basharr narrated, Abd al-Rahman narrated, Sufyan narrated, on the authority of Habib, who said: Al-Hakam ibn Utaybah and I went and came to Muqsim and asked him, meaning about the verse: And let those fear who, if they left behind them a weak offspring, the verse. He said: What did Saeed ibn Jubayr say? We said: So-and-so. He said: But it is a man who is about to die, and someone who is about to die says to him: Fear God and keep your wealth, for no one has more right to your wealth than your children. If the one who is making the will were a relative of theirs, they would have liked him to make the will for them.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, he said, Muqsim said: They are the ones who say: Fear God and keep your money, so if he was a relative of theirs, they would have loved for him to make a will for them.

Muhammad ibn Abd al-A'la told us, he said, al-Mu'tamir ibn Sulayman told us, on the authority of his father, he said: A Hadrami claimed and recited: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, he said: They said: It is appropriate for the one who makes a will to order the will to be made to its people, just as if his offspring were in that position, he would like to make a will for them, even if he is the inheritor, so that does not prevent him from ordering them to do what is due from him, for if his children were in that position, he would like to urge him to do it, so let him fear God, so let him order him to make a will, even if he is the inheritor, or something like that.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is that God has commanded the guardians of orphans to treat them kindly with regard to themselves and their wealth, and not to consume their wealth extravagantly and hastily until they grow up, and to be to them as they would like the guardians of their young children to be to them after them, by treating them kindly, if they were the ones who died and left their children orphaned as young children.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them, meaning by that the man who has not died and has young, weak children, fears for them poverty and loss, and fears that those who succeed them will not treat them well after him. He says: If he has children like his who are weak and orphans, then let him treat them well, and not consume their wealth extravagantly and wastefully for fear that they will grow old. So let them fear God and speak words of sound judgment.

Others said: The meaning of this is: "And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice." God will suffice them in the matter of their offspring after them.

Who said that?

Ibrahim bin Atiyah bin Radeh bin Atiyah narrated, he said: My uncle Muhammad bin Radeh narrated to me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Saybani, he said: We were in Constantinople during the days of Maslamah bin Abdul Malik, and among us were Ibn Muhairiz, Ibn Al-Daylami, and Hani bin Kulthum. He said: We began to discuss what would happen at the end of time. He said: I became very fed up with what I heard. He said: I said to Ibn Al-Daylami: O Abu Bishr, I wish that I would never have a child! He said: He struck my shoulder with his hand and said: O son of my brother, do not do that, for there is no soul that God has destined to come out of the loins of a man except that it comes out, if He wills and if he refuses. He said: Shall I not guide you to a matter that if you live to see it, God will save you from it, and if you leave your children behind you, God will protect them for you? He said: I said: Yes! He said: Then he recited this verse: "And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice."

Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate interpretation of the verse is the statement of the one who said: The interpretation of that is: "And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear poverty for them if they had divided their wealth during their lifetime, or divided it as a will from them to their relatives, orphans, and the needy, and left their wealth for their children for fear of poverty for them after them, despite their weakness and inability to demand it. So let them command whoever is present when he is bequeathing his wealth to his relatives - and to the orphans and the needy and other than that - to be just, and let them fear God and speak a sound word, which is that they should inform him of what God has permitted him to make of bequests, and what He has chosen for the testators from among the people of faith in God, His Book, and His Sunnah."

We said that this interpretation of the verse is more appropriate than any other interpretation, because of what we mentioned before: that the meaning of His statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, give them from it and speak to them words of appropriate kindness, and when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, then bequeath to them what we have shown from the evidence.

So if this is the interpretation of His statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division verse, then it is necessary that the statement of God Almighty: And let those fear who, if they were to leave behind them, be a discipline from Him to His servants in the matter of the will, with what He has permitted them to do, since that was after the verse before it regarding the ruling on the will, and the most apparent meaning of it is what we have said, so attaching its ruling to the ruling of what preceded it is more appropriate, with the confusion of their meanings, than directing its ruling to someone else with what is not similar to it.

In the sense of what we said in the interpretation of His statement: And let them speak a sound word, the one we mentioned said in the beginning of the interpretation of this verse, and Ibn Zayd used to say the same.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement, "And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice," he said: He says words of appropriate justice, mentioning this poor person and benefiting him, and the heir of the one who pays the debt does not wrong this orphan or harm him, but he is a young person who cannot defend himself, so look at him as you would look at your children if they were young. And appropriate speech is justice and correctness.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are two issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: And let him fear. The alif was deleted from let him fear because it is part of the command. According to Sibawayh, it is not permissible to omit the lam of the command based on analogy to prepositions except in cases of poetic necessity. The Kufians permitted the deletion of the lam with the jazm, and everyone recited:

Muhammad, sacrifice yourself every time you are afraid of something.

He wanted to redeem and the object of fear is omitted because the speech indicates it and fear is the answer to if.

The estimation is that if they had repeated, they would have feared. It is permissible to delete the lam in the answer to if. The scholars differed in their interpretation of this verse. A group said: This is an admonition to the guardians, meaning, do to the orphans what you would like to be done to your children after you. This was said by Ibn Abbas. And with this, God the Almighty said: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly. A group said: What is meant is all people. He ordered them to fear God in dealing with orphans and people's children, even if they are not in their care, and to speak to them correctly as each one of them wants to do to his child after him. And from this is what Al-Shaibani narrated. He said: We were in Constantinople in the army of Maslama bin Abdul Malik. One day we sat with a group of scholars, among them Ibn Al-Daylami, and they remembered the horrors of the end of time. So I said to him: O Abu Bishr, I would like not to have a child. He said to me: What is the matter with you? There is no soul that God has decreed to come out of a man except that it comes out whether he likes it or not. But if you want to be safe, then fear God in other than them. Then he recited the verse. In another narration: Shall I not guide you to a matter that if you live to see it, God will save you from it, and if you leave behind a child, God will protect them for you? I said: Yes! Then he recited this verse: And let those fear who, if they were left behind, to the end.

I said: And from this meaning is what Muhammad bin Ka'b Al-Qurazi narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

Whoever gives charity well will cross the Sirat, and whoever fulfills the need of a widow, God will compensate for his estate." A third statement was made by a group of commentators: This is about a man who is about to die and someone who is present with him when he makes his will says to him: God will provide for your child, so look after yourself and bequeath your wealth in the way of God and give charity and free slaves until he consumes most of his wealth or it consumes it and that harms his heirs. So they were forbidden from doing that, so it is as if the verse is saying to them: Just as you fear for your heirs and descendants after you, so fear for the heirs of others and do not make them waste their wealth. Ibn Abbas, Qatadah, As-Suddi, Ibn Jubayr, Ad-Dahhak and Mujahid said: Saeed bin Jubayr narrated from Ibn Abbas that he said: If a man is about to make his will, he should not say: Bequeath your wealth, for God the Almighty will provide for your child. Rather, he should say: Give something forward and leave it for your child. This is what God the Almighty says: So let them fear God. Muqsim and Hadrami said: It was revealed regarding the opposite of this, which is that someone who is present with the dying person says: Keep for your heirs and keep for your child, for no one has more right to your wealth. From your children, and he forbids him from making a will, and this will harm the relatives and everyone who deserves to be bequeathed to. So it was said to them: Just as you fear for your offspring and are pleased that they are treated well, so be firm in your statement regarding the poor and orphans and fear God in harming them. These two statements are based on the time when the will was obligatory before the revelation of the verse of inheritance. It was narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair and Ibn Al-Musayyab. Ibn Atiyyah said: These two statements do not apply to all people, rather people are of two types, one of which is suitable for one and the other for the second. That is because if a man leaves behind independent and wealthy heirs, it is good to recommend making a will and to urge him to give priority to himself. But if he leaves behind weak, neglected and poor heirs, it is good to recommend leaving them and being cautious, because his reward for intending that is like his reward for the poor, so the consideration is only for the weak and he must be inclined towards him.

Surat al-Nisa 4:9

And let those fear who, if they left behind them a weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear Allah and speak words of appropriate justice.

I said: This detail is correct, "because he, peace be upon him, said to Saad:

If you leave your heirs rich, it is better than leaving them poor, begging from people." If a person does not have children, or if he is rich and independent of his father in himself and his wealth, then he is safe for him. So it is better for a person then to put his wealth before his father so that he does not spend it after him on what is not good, and then the burden of it will be upon him.

Second: The Almighty's saying: And let them speak a just word. The just word means justice and correctness in speech, meaning order the sick person to give out of his money what is due from him of the obligatory rights, then he should bequeath to his relatives an amount that will not harm his young heirs. It was said: The meaning is to say to the dead person a just word, which is to prompt him with There is no god but God, not to order him to do that, but to say to it himself so that he hears from him and is prompted. Thus, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Teach them to die by saying, There is no god but God. He did not say, Order them, because if he had ordered that, he might have become angry and denied it. It was said that what is meant is the orphan, that they should not scold him or treat him lightly.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Saeed bin Jubair and Qatada said: The polytheists used to allocate the money to the adult men and not bequeath anything to the women or children, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and close relatives leave Al-Baqarah 2:17, meaning everyone is equal in the ruling of God Almighty, they are equal in the origin of inheritance, even if they differ according to what God has prescribed for each of them in terms of what he attributes to the deceased by kinship, marriage, or loyalty, for it is a bond like the bond of lineage. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Harasa on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil on the authority of Jabir who said: Umm Kujah came to the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I have two daughters whose father has died and they have nothing, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and near relatives leave (al-Baqarah 2:17). This hadith will come under the verses on inheritance in another context, and God knows best. As for His statement: And when the division is attended (al-Baqarah 2:17), it was said that what is meant is: When the division of the inheritance is attended by relatives who are not heirs, and orphans and the needy, then a share of the estate should be given to them, and that this was obligatory at the beginning of Islam, and it was said that it is recommended. They differed as to whether it was abrogated or not, according to two opinions. Al-Bukhari said: Ahmad bin Hamid told us, Ubaydullah al-Ashja'i told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of al-Shaibani on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when the division is attended by relatives, orphans and the needy. He said: It is decisive and not abrogated. Narrated Saeed from Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Hussain narrated to us, Ibad bin Al-Awam narrated to us from Al-Hajjaj from Al-Hakam from Muqsim from Ibn Abbas who said: It is established and acted upon. Al-Thawri said from Ibn Abi Nujayh from Mujahid regarding this verse, he said: It is obligatory on the people of inheritance as long as they are happy with it. This is how it was narrated from Ibn Masoud, Abu Musa, Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakr, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Sha'bi and Al-Hasan. Ibn Sirin, Saeed bin Jubair, Makhul, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Al-Zuhri and Yahya bin Ya'mar said: It is obligatory. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu Saeed Al-Ashja, from Ismail bin Aliyah, from Yunus bin Ubaid, from Ibn Sirin who said: Ubaidah had a will and ordered a sheep to be slaughtered and fed the people of this verse and said: If it were not for this verse, this would have been from my money. Malik said in what is narrated from him in the interpretation in a collected volume from Al-Zuhri: That Urwah gave from Mus'ab's money when he divided his money. Al-Zuhri said: It is decisive. Malik said: On the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: It is an obligatory right that souls are content with.

It was mentioned that it was an order to give them a will.

Abdul Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us, Ibn Abi Malekah told me: Asma bint Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr Al-Siddiq and al-Qasim ibn Muhammad told him that Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr divided the inheritance of his father Abd al-Rahman and Aisha while they were alive. They said: He did not leave in the house a poor person or a relative except that he gave him from his father's inheritance. They said: And he recited: And when relatives are present at the division, al-Qasim said: So I mentioned that to Ibn Abbas, and he said: What he got, that is not for him, rather that is for the will. And this verse is about the will, meaning that the deceased should make a will for them. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim.

Mention of those who said that this verse was completely abrogated

Sufyan al-Thawri said, on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Sa'ib al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, And when the division is present, he said: It is abrogated. Ismail ibn Muslim al-Makki said, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, it was abrogated by the verse that follows it, God instructs you concerning your children. Al-Awfi said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, that was before the inheritance laws were revealed, so God revealed the inheritance laws after that and gave each person with a right his right, so charity was made on what the deceased had named. They were narrated by Ibn Mardawayh. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata', on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, the verse on inheritance abrogated it, giving each person his share of what the parents and relatives left behind, whether it was little or much. Asid bin Asim told us, Saeed bin Aamer told us, on the authority of Hammam, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, that he said: It is abrogated. Before the obligatory duties, whatever a man left of money he gave from it to the orphan, the poor, the needy, and the relatives if they were present at the division. Then after that, the inheritance abrogated it, so God gave each person his right, and the will became a bequest from his money that he can bequeath to his relatives wherever he wishes. Malik said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: It is abrogated, abrogated by the inheritance and the will. Thus it was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Abu al-Sha'tha', al-Qasim ibn Muhammad, Abu Salih, Abu Malik, Zayd ibn Aslam, al-Dahhak, Ata' al-Khurasani, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, and Rabi'ah ibn Abi Abd al-Rahman that they said: It is abrogated. This is the doctrine of the majority of jurists, the four imams, and their companions. Ibn Jarir chose here a very strange statement, the gist of which is that the meaning of the verse, according to him, is And when the division is present, that is, when the relatives of the deceased are present at the division of the bequest's money, provide for them from it and speak to the orphans and the needy when they are present, a kind word. This is the gist of what he attempted after lengthy expression and repetition, and there is some consideration in it, and God knows best. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when the division is present, meaning the division of the inheritance. This is what more than one person said. The meaning is this, not what Ibn Jarir may God have mercy on him followed. Rather, the meaning is that when these poor relatives who do not inherit, orphans, and needy attend the division of a large sum of money, their souls will yearn for some of it when they see this one taking and that one taking, and they are desperate and have nothing to give. So God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful, commanded that something from the middle be given to them as an act of righteousness towards them, charity towards them, kindness to them, and a remedy for their brokenness. As God, the Most High, said, Eat of its fruit when it bears fruit and give its due on the day of its harvest. And He condemned those who transfer money secretly for fear that the needy and destitute will find out about them. He also informed us about the companions of Paradise, When they swore to harvest it in the morning, meaning at night. And he said: So they set out, whispering, 'Not a poor person will enter it upon you today.' So God will destroy them, and for the disbelievers the like thereof. Whoever denies God's right over him, He will punish him in the most precious thing he owns. That is why it is stated in the hadith: Charity does not mix with wealth except that it spoils it. That is, withholding it will be the reason for the complete destruction of that wealth. And God the Almighty says: And let those fear who, if they were to leave behind them, would be harmed. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: This is about a man who is about to die, and a man hears him making a will that would harm his heirs, so God the Almighty commanded the one who hears him to fear God and guide him and direct him to what is right. He should look after his heirs as he would have liked to do with his heirs if he feared that they would be lost. This is what Mujahid and others said. It is proven in the two Sahihis that when the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) entered upon Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas to visit him, he said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and I have no heir except a daughter. Should I give two-thirds of my wealth in charity? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: What about a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is better for you to leave your heirs rich than to leave them poor, begging from people. In Sahih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. The jurists said: If the heirs of the deceased are rich, it is preferable for the deceased to take a third in his will, and if they are poor, it is preferable for him to reduce a third. It was said: What is meant by the verse is that they should fear God in handling the wealth of orphans: And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, lest they grow old. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It is a good statement that is supported by what follows it of the threat against unjustly consuming the wealth of orphans, meaning as you would like your offspring to be treated after you, so treat people with their offspring when you take charge of them. Then inform them that whoever unjustly consumes the wealth of orphans is only consuming fire into his belly. For this reason, he said: Indeed, those who consume the wealth of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies. "A Fire and they will burn in a Blaze" meaning if they eat the money of orphans without a reason, then they will eat a fire that will rage in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection. In the two Sahihs, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Bilal, on the authority of Thawr ibn Zayd, on the authority of Salim Abu al-Ghaith, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Avoid the seven deadly sins. It was said: O Messenger of God, what are they? He said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:9

And let those fear who, if they left behind them a weak offspring, would fear for them. So let them fear Allah and speak words of appropriate justice.

“Associating partners with God, magic, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, turning away on the day of battle, and accusing chaste, believing, unaware women.” Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ubaydah told us, Abu Abd al-Samad Abd al-Aziz ibn Abd al-Samad al-Ami told us, Abu Harun al-Abdi told us, on the authority of Abu Sa’id al-Khudri, who said: We said: O Messenger of God, what did you see on the night of your Isra’? He said: “He took me to a group of God’s creation, many of them men, each of them has lips like the lips of a camel, and men are assigned to them to remove the bark of one of them, then a rock of fire is brought and thrown into the mouth of one of them until it comes out from beneath him, and they are surrounded and screaming. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: These are those who eat the wealth of orphans unjustly. They are only eating fire into their bellies and they will burn in a blazing fire.” Al-Suddi said: The one who eats the wealth of an orphan will be resurrected on the Day of Resurrection with flames of fire coming out of his mouth, ears, nose and eyes. Everyone who sees him will recognize him for eating the wealth of an orphan. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Uqbah bin Makram told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Ziyad bin Al-Mundhir told us, on the authority of Nafi’ bin Al-Harith, on the authority of Abu Barzah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: On the Day of Resurrection, people will be raised from their graves, their mouths blazing with fire. It was said: O Messenger of God, who are they? He said: “Did you not see that God said: ‘Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly’” the verse. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Abu Zur’ah, on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram, and Ibn Hibban included it in his Sahih on the authority of Ahmad bin Ali bin Al-Muthanna on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram. Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Ja’far told us, Ahmad bin ‘Issam told us, Abu ‘Amir al-‘Abdi told us, Abdullah bin Ja’far al-Zuhri told us, on the authority of ‘Uthman bin Muhammad, on the authority of al-Muqbari, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “The wealth of the weak is most forbidden: the woman and the orphan.” That is, I advise you to avoid their wealth. It was mentioned earlier in Surat al-Baqarah on the authority of ‘Ata’ bin al-Sa’ib, on the authority of Sa’id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When the verse, Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly was revealed, the one who had an orphan went and separated his food from his food and his drink from his drink, and he would keep the excess for him until he ate it or spoiled it. This was difficult for them, so they mentioned this to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed, “And they ask you about orphans. Say, ‘Improvement for them is best.’” The verse, he said: So they mixed their food with their food and their drink with their drink.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 9- And let those fear who, if they left behind are the guardians, as a group of commentators have stated, and in it is an admonition to them to do with the orphans in their care what they would like to be done with their children after them. A group said: What is meant is all people who were commanded to fear God with regard to orphans and the children of people even if they were not in their care. Others said: What is meant by them is those who attend the deceased at his death. They were commanded to fear God and to say to the dying person a sound word from their guidance to get rid of the rights of God and the rights of the children of Adam, and to the will of closeness that brings one closer to God Almighty, and to refrain from squandering his money and prohibiting his heirs from doing so, just as they fear for their heirs after them if they left them poor and dependent, begging from people. Ibn Atiyah said: People are of two types, it is appropriate for one of them to be told at his death what is not appropriate for the other, and that is because if a man leaves behind his heirs who are independent and wealthy, it is good to recommend to The will, and it is carried on that he presents it to himself, and if he leaves behind weak, bankrupt heirs, it is good to recommend leaving them and taking precautions, for his reward for intending that is like his reward for the poor. Al-Qurtubi said: This detail is correct. His saying if they left is the relative clause, and the fa in his saying then let them fear is to arrange what comes after it on what comes before it, and the meaning is: And let those whose description and condition fear that if they are about to leave behind them weak offspring, and that is when they are dying, they fear for them to be lost after them due to the loss of their sponsor and their earner, then he commanded them to fear God, and to speak the right word to the dying, or to their children after them according to what was mentioned previously.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

9- The Almighty said: And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, young children, fear for them, poverty. This is about a man who is about to die, and those present with him say: Look after yourself, for your children are your heirs and they will not avail you at all. Give yourself something, free someone, give charity, and give so-and-so such-and-such, until he has used up most of his wealth. So God Almighty forbade them from that, and commanded them to order him to look after his children and not to increase his will to more than a third, and not to be unfair to his heirs, as if this speaker were the testator who would be pleased to be urged by those present with him to preserve his wealth for his children, and not to leave them dependent despite their weakness and inability.

Al-Kalbi said: This address is to the guardians of orphans. He says: Whoever is in the care of an orphan should be kind to him and do to him what he would like to be done to his offspring after him.

God Almighty says: So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice. That is, justly. Rightly means just and correct in speech, which is to command him to give in charity less than a third and leave the rest for his children.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

9 And let those fear who, if they left behind them weak offspring, would fear for them. He ordered the guardians to fear God Almighty and be pious to Him in the matter of orphans, so they do to them what they would like to be done to their weak offspring after their death, or for those present at the time of the will to fear their Lord, or to fear for the children of the sick person and have compassion for them as they would for their children, so they do not let him harm them by diverting the money from them, or for the heirs to have compassion for those present at the division of the weak relatives, orphans, and the poor, imagining that if they were their children, they would remain behind them weak like them. Is it permissible to deprive them? Or for the testators to look at the heirs and not be extravagant in the will, even if it is within its scope. He made the connection for those in the meaning of and let those fear whose condition and description are such that if they were about to leave behind weak offspring, they would fear for them being lost. In arranging the matter in this manner, there is an indication of the intended meaning and reason for it, and He sent on To have mercy and to love for the children of others what he loves for his own children and to threaten the one who disobeys with the condition of his children. So let them fear God and speak words of appropriate justice. He commanded them to fear God, which is the ultimate fear, after He commanded them to do so, taking into account the beginning and the end, since the first is of no benefit without the second. Then He commanded them to say to the orphans what they say to their own children, with compassion and good manners, or to the sick person what will prevent him from being extravagant in his will and wasting the right of the heirs, and remind him of repentance and the word of testimony, or to those present at the division a beautiful excuse and a good promise, or to say in the will what does not lead to exceeding the third and wasting the heirs.

Surat al-Nisa 4:10

Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will burn in a Blaze.

Surat al-Nisa 4:10

Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will burn in a Blaze.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly without right are only consuming into their bellies that is, filling them with fire because it leads to it and they will burn in the active and passive form, they will enter a blazing fire a severe fire in which they will burn.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying, Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly, he says: without right, are only consuming into their bellies fire on the Day of Resurrection, by consuming the property of orphans unjustly in this world, the fire of Hell, and they will burn by consuming it, in a Blaze, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Those who unjustly consume the property of orphans are only consuming fire into their bellies. He said: If a man unjustly consumes the property of an orphan, he will be resurrected on the Day of Resurrection with flames of fire coming out of his mouth, ears, nose, and eyes. Whoever sees him will recognize him as having consumed the property of an orphan.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, Abd al-Razzaq narrated, Muammar narrated, Abu Harun al-Abdi narrated, on the authority of Abu Saeed al-Khudri, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, narrated to us about the night he was taken on the Night Journey. He said: I looked and saw people with lips like the lips of camels, and someone was appointed to hold them by their lips and put in their mouths rocks of fire coming out of their lower backs. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: These are the ones who consume the property of orphans unjustly. They are only consuming fire into their bellies.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Indeed, those who consume the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming into their bellies fire, and they will be burned in a Blaze, he said: My father said: This is for the people of polytheism, when they did not give them an inheritance, and they consumed their property.

As for his saying: And they will burn in a Blaze, it is taken from the word sala, and sala means to be scorched by fire, and that is to be warmed by it, as Al-Farazdaq said:

And the dog of the neighborhood fought to get away from the fire of his family to lie down in it, and the fire was sheltering him

As Al-Ajaj said:

Prayer mats

Then he used it for anyone who took charge of a matter, such as war, fighting, dispute, or other, as the poet said:

I was not from its gardens, God knows, and today I am its sea

He made the intensity of war and the harm of fighting the same as directly experiencing the harm and heat of fire.

There are different readings of this.

The majority of the people of Medina and Iraq read it as: And they will burn in a Blaze with the opening of the ya according to the interpretation that we mentioned.

Some Meccans and some Kufians read it as: and they will burn with a damma on the yaa, meaning: they will burn.

From their saying: A roasted sheep, meaning: roasted.

Abu Ja'far said: The fat-ha is more appropriate than the damma, because all the reciters agree on the fat-ha of the ya' in His statement: None shall enter it except the most wretched (al-Layl 92:5a), and because His statement: Except he who is destined for Hellfire (al-Saffat 37:63) indicates that the fat-ha is more appropriate than the damma.

As for the blazing fire, it is the intense heat of Hell. From this it was said: the war became intense when it became intense. It is actually blazing, then it was changed to the blazing fire, just as it was said: a dyed hand and a greasy beard. It is actually dyed, then it was changed to the active participle.

The interpretation of the statement is: And they will enter a blazing Fire, meaning: a blazing fire with intense heat.

We only said that this is the case, and God Almighty said: And when Hell is set ablaze (al-Takwir 81:12), so He described it as being raging.

Then He, the Most High, informed us that those who eat the wealth of orphans will receive it, and it is like that. So the Blaze in this place is an attribute of Hell, as we have described.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has three issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly It was narrated that it was revealed about a man from Ghatafan called Marthad bin Zaid, who was in charge of his nephew's property while he was a young orphan, and he ate it, so God revealed this verse about him, as stated by Muqatil bin Hayyan. For this reason, the majority said: What is meant are the guardians who devour what was not permissible for them from the orphan's property. Ibn Zaid said: It was revealed about the infidels who did not leave women or children inheritance, and taking money in all its forms was called consuming, because what was intended was consuming, and with it most things were destroyed. And He specifically mentioned stomachs to show their deficiency, and to denounce them for being the opposite of good morals, and what was eaten was called fire because of what it leads to, like the Almighty's saying: Indeed, I see myself pressing wine (Yusuf 12:36) meaning grapes. And it was said: Fire meaning forbidden, because forbidden causes fire, so God called it by its name. And Abu Saeed Al-Khudri narrated that he said:

The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, told us about the night he was taken on the Night Journey. He said: "I saw a people with lips like the lips of camels, and someone was assigned to them who would take hold of their lips and then place a rock of fire in their upper parts, coming out from their lower parts. I said: 'O Gabriel, who are these?' He said: 'They are those who unjustly consume the wealth of orphans.'" The Book and the Sunnah indicate that consuming the wealth of an orphan is a major sin. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Avoid the seven deadly sins, and it was mentioned in it: and consuming the orphan's wealth.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And they will be roasted in a Blaze. Ibn 'Amir and 'Aasim read in the narration of Ibn 'Abbas with a damma on the ya' on the name of what its agent is not named, from God roasted him in the Fire istalahu, God the Almighty said: I will roast him in Hellfire (al-Muddaththir 74:26). Abu Haywah read with a damma on the ya', a fatha on the sad, and a shaddah on the lam from tasalliyyah tasalliyyah due to the frequent occurrence of the action one time after another. Its evidence is the Almighty's saying: Then they will roast him in Hellfire (al-Haqqah 69:31). From this is their saying: I roasted him one time after another. And tasalliyyat means I warmed myself in the fire. He said:

I endured the heat of their war as one endures the chills of a cold.

The rest read it with the opening of the ya' from sali an-nar yusulahu salatu wa salan. God Almighty said: None shall burn therein except the most wretched (al-Layl 92:15). And salan is heating up by being close to the fire or by touching it. From this is the saying of Al-Harith Ibn Ibad:

I was not from its gardens, God knows, and I am in its heat today

The fire: the burning coal.

Third: This is a verse of warning, and there is no argument in it for those who disbelieve in sins. What the Sunnis believe is that this will be effective for some of the sinners, so they will be burned and die, unlike the people of Hell who will neither die nor come back to life. So it is as if this combined the Book and the Sunnah so that the report of them would not be contrary to its informant, falling by the will of some of them, due to the Almighty's saying: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. (An-Nisa': 48) And this is the saying regarding everything that comes to you from this meaning. Muslim narrated in his Sahih, "On the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

As for the people of Hell, who are its people in it, they will neither die in it nor live. Rather, there are people who were afflicted by Hell because of their sins - or he said because of their transgressions - so God caused them to die a complete death until they were charcoal. Then intercession was permitted, and they were brought in groups and spread out on the rivers of Paradise. Then it was said, "O people of Paradise, pour out your blood over them," so they would grow as a seed grows in the silt of a torrent. A man from the people said, "It is as if the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had been herding his flocks in the desert."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Saeed bin Jubair and Qatada said: The polytheists used to allocate the money to the adult men and not bequeath anything to the women or children, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and close relatives leave Al-Baqarah 2:17, meaning everyone is equal in the ruling of God Almighty, they are equal in the origin of inheritance, even if they differ according to what God has prescribed for each of them in terms of what he attributes to the deceased by kinship, marriage, or loyalty, for it is a bond like the bond of lineage. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Harasa on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil on the authority of Jabir who said: Umm Kujah came to the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I have two daughters whose father has died and they have nothing, so God revealed: Men shall have a share of what parents and near relatives leave (al-Baqarah 2:17). This hadith will come under the verses on inheritance in another context, and God knows best. As for His statement: And when the division is attended (al-Baqarah 2:17), it was said that what is meant is: When the division of the inheritance is attended by relatives who are not heirs, and orphans and the needy, then a share of the estate should be given to them, and that this was obligatory at the beginning of Islam, and it was said that it is recommended. They differed as to whether it was abrogated or not, according to two opinions. Al-Bukhari said: Ahmad bin Hamid told us, Ubaydullah al-Ashja'i told us on the authority of Sufyan on the authority of al-Shaibani on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And when the division is attended by relatives, orphans and the needy. He said: It is decisive and not abrogated. Narrated Saeed from Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Hussain narrated to us, Ibad bin Al-Awam narrated to us from Al-Hajjaj from Al-Hakam from Muqsim from Ibn Abbas who said: It is established and acted upon. Al-Thawri said from Ibn Abi Nujayh from Mujahid regarding this verse, he said: It is obligatory on the people of inheritance as long as they are happy with it. This is how it was narrated from Ibn Masoud, Abu Musa, Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakr, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Sha'bi and Al-Hasan. Ibn Sirin, Saeed bin Jubair, Makhul, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Al-Zuhri and Yahya bin Ya'mar said: It is obligatory. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Abu Saeed Al-Ashja, from Ismail bin Aliyah, from Yunus bin Ubaid, from Ibn Sirin who said: Ubaidah had a will and ordered a sheep to be slaughtered and fed the people of this verse and said: If it were not for this verse, this would have been from my money. Malik said in what is narrated from him in the interpretation in a collected volume from Al-Zuhri: That Urwah gave from Mus'ab's money when he divided his money. Al-Zuhri said: It is decisive. Malik said: On the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: It is an obligatory right that souls are content with.

Surat al-Nisa 4:10

Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will burn in a Blaze.

It was mentioned that it was an order to give them a will.

Abdul Razzaq said: Ibn Jurayj told us, Ibn Abi Malekah told me: Asma bint Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr al-Siddiq and al-Qasim ibn Muhammad told him that Abdullah ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Bakr divided the inheritance of his father Abd al-Rahman and Aisha while they were alive. They said: He did not leave in the house a poor person or a relative except that he gave him from his father's inheritance. They said: And he recited: And when relatives are present at the division, al-Qasim said: So I mentioned that to Ibn Abbas, and he said: What he got, that is not for him, rather that is for the will. And this verse is about the will, meaning that the deceased should make a will for them. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim.

Mention of those who said that this verse was completely abrogated

Sufyan al-Thawri said, on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Sa'ib al-Kalbi, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, And when the division is present, he said: It is abrogated. Ismail ibn Muslim al-Makki said, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, it was abrogated by the verse that follows it, God instructs you concerning your children. Al-Awfi said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, regarding this verse, And when the relatives are present at the division, that was before the inheritance laws were revealed, so God revealed the inheritance laws after that and gave each person with a right his right, so charity was made on what the deceased had named. They were narrated by Ibn

Mardawayh. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata', on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when relatives, orphans, and the needy are present at the division, the verse on inheritance abrogated it, giving each person his share of what the parents and relatives left behind, whether it was little or much. Asid bin Asim told us, Saeed bin Aamer told us, on the authority of Hammam, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, that he said: It is abrogated. Before the obligatory duties, whatever a man left of money he gave from it to the orphan, the poor, the needy, and the relatives if they were present at the division. Then after that, the inheritance abrogated it, so God gave each person his right, and the will became a bequest from his money that he can bequeath to his relatives wherever he wishes. Malik said, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: It is abrogated, abrogated by the inheritance and the will. Thus it was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Abu al-Sha'tha', al-Qasim ibn Muhammad, Abu Salih, Abu Malik, Zayd ibn Aslam, al-Dahhak, Ata' al-Khurasani, Muqatil ibn Hayyan, and Rabi'ah ibn Abd al-Rahman that they said: It is abrogated. This is the doctrine of the majority of jurists, the four imams, and their companions. Ibn Jarir chose here a very strange statement, the gist of which is that the meaning of the verse, according to him, is And when the division is present, that is, when the relatives of the deceased are present at the division of the bequest's money, provide for them from it and speak to the orphans and the needy when they are present, a kind word. This is the gist of what he attempted after lengthy expression and repetition, and there is some consideration in it, and God knows best. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And when the division is present, meaning the division of the inheritance. This is what more than one person said. The meaning is this, not what Ibn Jarir may God have mercy on him followed. Rather, the meaning is that when these poor relatives who do not inherit, orphans, and needy attend the division of a large sum of money, their souls will yearn for some of it when they see this one taking and that one taking, and they are desperate and have nothing to give. So God, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful, commanded that something from the middle be given to them as an act of righteousness towards them, charity towards them, kindness to them, and a remedy for their brokenness. As God, the Most High, said, Eat of its fruit when it bears fruit and give its due on the day of its harvest. And He condemned those who transfer money secretly for fear that the needy and destitute will find out about them. He also informed us about the companions of Paradise, When they swore to harvest it in the morning, meaning at night. And he said: So they set out, whispering, 'Not a poor person will enter it upon you today.' So God will destroy them, and for the disbelievers the like thereof. Whoever denies God's right over him, He will punish him in the most precious thing he owns. That is why it is stated in the hadith: Charity does not mix with wealth except that it spoils it. That is, withholding it will be the reason for the complete destruction of that wealth. And God the Almighty says: And let those fear who, if they were to leave behind them, would be harmed. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: This is about a man who is about to die, and a man hears him making a will that would harm his heirs, so God the Almighty commanded the one who hears him to fear God and guide him and direct him to what is right. He should look after his heirs as he would have liked to do with his heirs if he feared that they would be lost. This is what Mujahid and others said. It is proven in the two Sahihs that when the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) entered upon Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas to visit him, he said: O Messenger of God, I have wealth and I have no heir except a daughter. Should I give two-thirds of my wealth in charity? He said: No. He said: Then half? He said: No. He said: What about a third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is better for you to leave your heirs rich than to leave them poor, begging from people. In Sahih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: If people reduced their share from a third to a quarter, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third, and a third is a lot. The jurists said: If the heirs of the deceased are rich, it is preferable for the deceased to take a third in his will, and if they are poor, it is preferable for him to reduce a third. It was said: What is meant by the verse is that they should fear God in handling the wealth of orphans: And do not consume it extravagantly or hastily, lest they grow old. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas. It is a good statement that is supported by what follows it of the threat against unjustly consuming the wealth of orphans, meaning as you would like your offspring to be treated after you, so treat people with their offspring when you take charge of them. Then inform them that whoever unjustly consumes the wealth of orphans is only consuming fire into his belly. For this reason, he said: Indeed, those who consume the wealth of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies. "A Fire and they will burn in a Blaze" meaning if they eat the money of orphans without a reason, then they will eat a fire that will rage in their bellies on the Day of Resurrection. In the two Sahihs, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Bilal, on the authority of Thawr ibn Zayd, on the authority of Salim Abu al-Ghaith, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Avoid the seven deadly sins. It was said: O Messenger of God, what are they? He said: "Associating partners with God, magic, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, turning away on the day of battle, and accusing chaste, believing, unaware women." Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ubaydah told us, Abu Abd al-Samad Abd al-Aziz ibn Abd al-Samad al-Ami told us, Abu Harun al-Abdi told us, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said: We said: O Messenger of God, what did you see on the night of your Isra'? He said: "He took me to a group of God's creation, many of them men, each of them has lips like the lips of a camel, and men are assigned to them to remove the bark of one of them, then a rock of fire is brought and thrown into the mouth of one of them until it comes out from beneath him, and they are surrounded and screaming. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: These are those who eat the wealth of orphans unjustly. They are only eating fire into their bellies and they will burn in a blazing fire." Al-Suddi said: The one who eats the wealth of an orphan will be resurrected on the Day of Resurrection with flames of fire coming out of his mouth, ears, nose and eyes. Everyone who sees him will recognize him for eating the wealth of an orphan. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Uqbah bin Makram told us, Yunus bin Bakir told us, Ziyad bin Al-Mundhir told us, on the authority of Nafi' bin Al-Harith, on the authority of Abu Barzah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: On the Day of Resurrection, people will be raised from their graves, their mouths blazing with fire. It was said: O Messenger of God, who are they? He said: "Did you not see that God said: 'Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly'" the verse. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Abu Zur'ah, on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram, and Ibn Hibban included it in his Sahih on the authority of Ahmad bin Ali bin Al-Muthanna on the authority of Uqbah bin Makram. Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Ja'far told us, Ahmad bin 'Issam told us, Abu 'Amir al-'Abdi told us, Abdullah bin Ja'far al-Zuhri told us, on the authority of 'Uthman bin Muhammad, on the authority of al-Muqbuli, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The wealth of the weak is most forbidden: the woman and the orphan." That is, I advise you to avoid their wealth. It was mentioned earlier in Surat al-Baqarah on the authority of 'Ata' bin al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: When the verse, Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly was revealed, the one who had an orphan went and separated his food from his food and his drink from his drink, and he would keep the excess for him until he ate it or spoiled it. This was difficult for them, so they mentioned this to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed, "And they ask you about orphans. Say, 'Improvement for them is best.'" The verse, he said: So they mixed their food with their food and their drink with their drink.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 10- Those who devour the property of orphans is a resumption that includes the prohibition of oppressing orphans from guardians and trustees. His saying oppressively is in the accusative case: meaning eating oppressively, or in the accusative case: meaning oppressing them. His saying They only consume fire into their bellies means: what is a cause of the fire, expressing the effect of the cause, and the interpretation of such a verse has been presented. And his saying And they will be roasted is the reading of Asim and Ibn Amir with the damma of the yaa for what its agent is not named. Abu Haywah read with the damma of the yaa and the fatha of the sad and the shaddah of the lam from the prayer by the frequency of the action one time after another. And the rest read with the fatha of the yaa from the one who prayed the fire he prays, and the roasting is the heating by being close to the fire or directly touching it, and from it is the saying of Al-Harith Ibn Abbad:

Surat al-Nisa 4:10

Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will burn in a Blaze.

I was not from its gardens, God knows, and I am now in its heat

And the fire: burning embers.

Abu Al-Sheikh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The people of the pre-Islamic era did not give inheritance to daughters or children until they reached adulthood. A man from the Ansar called Aws bin Thabit died and left behind two daughters and a young son. His two cousins, who were his relatives, came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and took his entire inheritance. His wife came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the verse was revealed. The Messenger of God sent to them and said: Do not move anything from the inheritance, for something has been revealed to me that has confused me. The male and female have a share. Then after that, And they consult you concerning women was revealed, and then, God instructs you concerning your children was revealed. So he called for the inheritance, and gave the woman one-eighth, and divided what remained for the male as the share of two females. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding the verse, he said: It was revealed about Umm Kulthum, the daughter of Umm Kahla or Umm Kahla, and Tha'laba bin Aws and Suwaid, who were from the Ansar. One of them was her husband and the other was her son's paternal uncle. She said: O Messenger of God, my husband died and left me and his daughter, and we did not inherit from his wealth. Her son's paternal uncle said: O Messenger of God, he should not ride a horse, nor should he kill an enemy, nor should he earn money on it, nor should he earn anything. So it was revealed. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the words of God the Almighty: And when the division is present, he said: It is decisive and not abrogated. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Khattab bin Abdullah regarding this verse, he said: Abu Musa ruled according to it. Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding the verse, he said: It is obligatory on those who are entitled to inherit, as long as they are content with it. Abd Al-Razzaq and Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan and Al-Zuhri, they said: It is decisive as long as they are content with it. Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan with a chain of transmission that he authenticated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: He should be given a share of the wealth, and if he was negligent in his wealth, he should apologize to them. This is a well-known statement. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Aisha that it was not abrogated. Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated that this verse was abrogated by the verse on inheritance. Abu Dawud in his Naskh, Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab who said: It was abrogated. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair who said: If they are adults, they should be given a share of the wealth, and if they are young, they should apologize to them. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan regarding the verse: And let those fear who, if they were to leave behind them, he said: This is about a man who is present at a man's death and hears him make a will that would harm his heirs. So God commanded the one who hears him to fear God and guide him and direct him to what is right, and to look after his heirs as he would like to look after his heirs if he feared that they would be lost. Similar to this has been narrated through various chains of narration. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abu Ya'la, al-Tabarani, Ibn Hibban in his Sahih, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Barzah on the authority of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) who said: "On the Day of Resurrection, a group of people will be raised from their graves, their mouths blazing with fire. It was said: O Messenger of God, who are they? He said: Have you not seen that God says: 'Those who unjustly consume the property of orphans are only consuming fire into their bellies'? Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri who said: The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) told us about the night he was taken on the Night Journey. He said: "I looked and saw a group of people with lips like the lips of camels, and someone was assigned to them to take hold of their lips and put rocks of fire in their mouths and throw them into the mouths of one of them until they came out from their bottoms, and they were bellowing and screaming. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: These are: 'Those who unjustly consume the property of orphans are only consuming fire into their bellies, and they will burn in a Blaze.'" Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, who said: This verse was for the polytheists when they did not give them inheritance and consumed their wealth.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

10- The Almighty said: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly Muqatil bin Hayyan said: It was revealed about a man from Ghatafan, called Marthad bin Zaid, who took over the money of his nephew who was a young orphan and ate it, so God the Almighty revealed about him: Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly: unlawfully and without right, they are only consuming fire into their bellies, informing about his end, meaning that his consequence will be like that, and they will burn in a Blaze, the general reading is with the opening of the Ya, meaning: they will enter it. It is said: He will burn in the Fire, God the Almighty said: Except for he who is destined for Hellfire As-Saffat - 163, and Ibn Amir and Abu Bakr read with the closing of the Ya, meaning: they will enter the Fire and be burned, similar to the Almighty's saying: Then We will drive him into a Fire

An-Nisaa' - 30 I will drive him into Hellfire

Al-Muddaththir - 26. In the hadith, the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said: "I saw On the night of the Night Journey, I saw a people with lips like the lips of camels, one of them was hanging over its nostril and the other over its belly, and the keepers of the Fire were feeding them embers and rocks of Hell. I said: O Gabriel, who are these? He said: Those who devour the property of orphans unjustly.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

10 "Those who unjustly consume the property of orphans" are unjust, or they are on the verge of injustice. "They only consume into their bellies" filling their bellies. "Fire" is what leads to the Fire and leads to it. On the authority of Abu Burdah, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God will raise up a people from their graves whose mouths will be blazing with fire." It was said: Who are they? He said: Haven't you seen that God says: "Those who unjustly consume the property of orphans only consume into their bellies Fire And they will burn in a Blaze And they will enter a Fire, and what a Fire!" Ibn Amir and Ibn Ayyash read on the authority of Asim with a damma on the ya' and lightened. It was read with emphasis. It is said that he suffered the heat of the fire, and he grilled it, and I cooked it, and I threw it into it, and the Blaze is a fa'il with the meaning of maf'ul from s'arat an-naar if you ignite it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from God. Indeed, God is ever Knowing and Wise.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

God commands you (in) the matter of your children as mentioned for the male among them like the portion of two females if they are together with him then he gets half of the wealth and they get half, and if he has one then she gets a third and he gets two thirds, and if he is alone he gets the wealth and if they are i.e. the children women only more than two then they get two thirds of what he left the deceased and likewise the two because it is for the two sisters by His saying {then they get two thirds of what he left} so they are more deserving and because the daughter gets a third with the male then with the female it is more deserving {and more} it was said it is a connection and it was said to dispel the illusion of an increase in the share by increasing the number because it was understood that the two daughters get two thirds from making the third for the one with the male and if the newborn is one and in a reading with the nominative it was complete then she gets a half and for his parents i.e. the deceased and it is substituted for them for each one of them a sixth of what he left if he had a child male or female and the point of the substitute is to indicate that they do not share in it and the son's child is attributed to the son and the grandfather to the father But if he has no child and his parents inherit him alone or with a husband then his mother with a damma on the hamza and a kasra to avoid moving from a damma to a kasra due to its heaviness in both places a third meaning a third of the money or what remains after the husband and the rest is for the father but if he has brothers meaning two or more males or females then his mother has a sixth and the rest is for the father and nothing is for the brothers and the inheritance of whoever mentioned what was mentioned after the execution of a bequest he bequeaths in the construction of the subject and the object of it or the payment of a debt upon him and the bequest is given precedence over the debt even if it is delayed from him in fulfilling it to take care of it your fathers and your sons subject and predicate you do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit in this world and the hereafter, thinking that his son is more beneficial to him so he gives him the inheritance and the father is more beneficial and vice versa, and only God knows about that so He has imposed on you the inheritance (an obligation from God. Indeed, God is Knowing) of His creation Wise in what He has planned for them, meaning He has not ceased Characterized by that

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty says: God instructs you. The six imams narrated on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Abu Bakr visited me in Banu Salamah while we were walking. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, found me unable to understand anything. He called for water and performed ablution, then sprinkled it on me. I regained consciousness and said: What do you command me to do with my wealth? Then the verse was revealed: God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females.

Ahmad, Abu Dawud, Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Jabir that he said: The wife of Sa'd ibn Al-Rabi' came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, these are the two daughters of Sa'd ibn Al-Rabi'. Their father was killed with you as a martyr at Uhud, and their uncle took their wealth and left them no wealth, and they will not marry unless they have wealth. He said: God will decide on that, and the verse of inheritance was revealed. Al-Hafiz Ibn Hajar said: Those who said that the verse

It was revealed in the story of Saad's two daughters, but it was not revealed in the story of Jabir, especially since Jabir did not have a son at that time. He said: The answer is that it was revealed in both matters together, and it is possible that the beginning of it was revealed in the story of the two daughters, and the end of it is his saying: And if a man leaves as an heir as descendants in the story of Jabir, and what Jabir meant by his saying: "So it was revealed: God commands you concerning your children," meaning the mention of as descendants connected to this verse. End.

A third reason was mentioned. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Suddi who said: The people of the Age of Ignorance did not give inheritance to slave girls or weak boys. A man did not inherit from his children except those who were able to fight. Then Abd al-Rahman, the brother of Hassan the poet, died and left behind a woman called Umm Kahah and five daughters. The heirs came to take his money. Umm Kahah complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so God revealed this verse: If there are more than two women, then they shall have two-thirds of what he left. Then He said about Umm Kahah: "And they shall have a quarter of what you left, if you have no children. But if you have children, then they shall have an eighth."

K and there was another aspect in the story of Saad bin Al-Rabi', so Judge Ismail included in Ahkam Al-Qur'an on the authority of Abdul Malik bin Muhammad bin Hazm that Amra bint Hizam was married to Saad bin Al-Rabi' and he was killed on her behalf at Uhud and he had a daughter from her, so she came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking for her daughter's inheritance, so in it was revealed: They ask you about women, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: God commands you, God commands you, "concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," meaning: Your Lord commands you if a deceased person among you dies and leaves behind male and female children, then his inheritance is for his male and female children, combined among them, for the male among them what is equal to the share of two females, if he has no heir other than them, and it is the same for his young children and the older ones for his females, in that all of that is shared among them, for the male what is equal to the share of two females.

He raised his statement: like with the attribute, which is the lam in his statement: for the male, and did not make it accusative with his statement: God commands you, because the command, in this place, is a covenant and notification in the sense of saying, and saying does not apply to the names that are reported. So it is as if it was said: God, the Most High, says to you: In your children, for the male among them is the equivalent of the share of two females.

Abu Ja'far said: It has been mentioned that this verse was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as a clarification from God of the obligatory ruling regarding the inheritance of one who died and left behind heirs, as explained. Because the people of ignorance did not divide the inheritance of the deceased to any of his heirs after him, from his young children who did not encounter the enemy or fight in wars, nor to the women among them. They used to specify in that the fighters and not the offspring. So God, may He be glorified and praised, informed us of what the deceased left behind among those he named and assigned an inheritance to them in this verse, and at the end of this surah, and He said about the young children of the deceased and their elders and their females: They have the inheritance of their father, if he had no heir other than them, for the male is like the share of two females.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: "God commands you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females." The people of the Age of Ignorance did not give inheritance to female slaves or young boys. A man would not inherit from his children except those who were able to fight. Then Abd al-Rahman, the brother of Hassan the poet, died, and left behind a woman called Umm Kajah, and he left behind five sisters. The heirs came to take his money, and Umm Kajah complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. So God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed this verse: But if there are women more than two, they shall have two-thirds of what he left, and if there is only one, she shall have half. Then He said about Umm Kajah: "And for them is a fourth of what you left if you have no child. But if you have a child, they shall have an eighth." (An-Nisa': 12)

Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females." That is because when the inheritance laws were revealed in which God imposed what He imposed for the boy, the girl, and both parents, the people or some of them disliked them and said: The woman is given a quarter and an eighth, and the daughter is given half, and the young boy is given, and none of these people fight the people and does not seize the spoils!! Keep quiet about this hadith, perhaps the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) will forget it, or we will tell him and he will change it. Some of them said: O Messenger of God, should we give the girl half of what her father left behind, and she does not ride a horse or fight the people, and we give the boy the inheritance and he does not provide anything?! They used to do that in the pre-Islamic era, they would not give the inheritance except to those who fought, they would give it to the oldest, then the oldest.

Others said: Rather, this was revealed because the money was for the child before it was revealed, and the parents had the right to bequeath, so God Almighty abrogated that with this verse.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid or Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: God instructs you concerning your children, he said: The money was for the child, and the will was for the parents and the closest relatives, then God abrogated from that what He liked, so He made for the male the share of two females, and He made for the parents, each one of them a sixth with the child, and for the husband a half and a quarter, and for the wife a quarter and an eighth.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females." He said: Ibn Abbas used to say: There was money, and the bequest was for the parents and relatives, then God, the Blessed and Exalted, abrogated from that what He liked, so He made for the male what is equal to the share of two females. Then he mentioned something similar.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

It was narrated on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, what:

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna narrated to us, saying: Wahb ibn Jarir narrated to us, saying: Shu'bah narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Munkadir, saying: I heard Jabir ibn Abdullah say: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to me while I was sick. He performed ablution and sprinkled some of his ablution water on me. I regained consciousness and said: O Messenger of God, only those who are distantly related inherit from me, so what about the inheritance? Then the verse of inheritance was revealed."

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said, Muhammad ibn Al-Munkadir told me, on the authority of Jabir, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, visited me while they were walking in Banu Salamah, and they found me unconscious. So he called for water and performed ablution, then sprinkled it on me. I regained consciousness and said: O Messenger of God, what should I do with my money? Then this verse was revealed: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females."

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: If they are, if the ones left behind are women more than two, and what he means by his saying: women, is the daughters of the deceased, more than two, he says: more in number than two, then for them are two-thirds of what he left behind, he says: then for his daughters are two-thirds of what he left behind from his inheritance, without the rest of his heirs, if the deceased did not leave behind a male child with them. And the Arab scholars differed about the meaning of his saying: If they are women.

Some of the grammarians of Basra said something similar to what we said: If the abandoned ones were women, and this is also the saying of some of the grammarians of Kufa.

Others of them said: Rather, the meaning of that is, if the children are women, and he said: God only mentioned the children and said: God commands you concerning your children, then he divided the will and said: If they are women, and if the children [are women, and if the children are one], a translation from him of that about the children.

Abu Ja'far said: The first statement that we have narrated from the Basrans we have narrated it from is more correct in my opinion. Because if his statement, And if they were, meant children, it would have been said, And if they were, because children include both males and females. If that is the case, then it is said, They were, not Be.

Abu Ja'far said: What he meant by his saying, And if there was, [and if] the one left behind was one daughter, then she gets half, is that this one gets half of what the deceased left behind from his inheritance, if there was no other male or female child of the deceased with her.

If someone says: This is the obligation of one woman or more than two, so where is the obligation of two?

It was said: Their duty according to the transmitted Sunnah is the transmission of inheritance in which there is no doubt.

As for his saying: and for his parents, he means: and for the parents of the deceased, for each one of them is a sixth, of his estate and what he left behind of his money, whether the mother or the father are equal in it, neither of them gets more than a sixth, if he had a child, whether the child is male or female, one or many.

If someone were to say: If this is the interpretation, then it is necessary that the father and the one daughter should not be given more than one-sixth of his inheritance from his deceased son. If you say this, this is a statement that contradicts what the nation unanimously agrees upon, that they give the remainder of the deceased's estate - with the one daughter after she takes her share of it - to his entire father!

It was said: The matter in that is not as you thought, but rather each of the parents of the deceased is entitled to a sixth of his estate with his child, whether the child is male or female, one or many, a specified share from God for him. If something is added to that, the rest of the half is protected with the single daughter if there is no one else and no other daughter of the deceased, then it is added a second time because of the closeness of the deceased's agnates to him, since the ruling on everything left by the shares of the inheritance is for the closest and closest agnates of the deceased, according to the ruling on that for her on the tongue of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. And the father is the closest agnate of his son and the most entitled to him, if his son of the deceased has no son.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His statement: But if he has no children, if the deceased has no child, male or female, and his parents inherit him, without any other inheriting children, then his mother has a third, meaning: then his mother has a third of all of his estate and what he leaves behind after him.

If someone says: Who has the other two-thirds?

He was told: Father.

If he said: With what?

I said: That he is the closest of the deceased's relatives to him, and therefore he left out mentioning the name of the one who has the remaining two-thirds, since it was made clear on the tongue of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his servants: that every deceased person and his closest agnates are more deserving of his inheritance, after giving those with the prescribed shares their shares of his inheritance.

This is the reason why the mother was given what she was given, if the deceased did not leave behind an heir other than his parents, because the mother is not an agnate in the case of the deceased. So God, the Most High, explained to His servants what He had ordained for her from the inheritance of her deceased son, and He left out mentioning who has the remaining two-thirds of it with her, since He had already informed them in the course of His explanation to them who has the remainder of the estate of money after the people of the shares have taken their shares and their prescribed shares. His explanation of that was sufficient for them to not repeat His ruling with everyone for whom He had divided a right from the inheritance of the deceased, and named a share for him from it.

Abu Jaafar said: If someone were to say: What is the meaning behind mentioning the ruling of parents with brothers, and leaving out mentioning their ruling with one brother?

I said: The difference in their ruling with the brothers in the group and the single brother, so in God's clarification to His servants regarding what they inherit from their dead son with his brothers, there was no need and sufficiency for their ruling regarding what they inherited from him to change from what they had, nor did the dead have a brother nor an heir other than them. Since it was known to them that every person who is entitled to a right by God's decree for him, his right that his Lord, the Most High, decreed for him, does not transfer from what He decreed for him to someone else, except by God transferring that from him to the one to whom he transferred it from among His creation. So in His, the Most High, imposing on the mother what He imposed, if her dead son had no heir other than his father, nor a brother, there was clear evidence for creation that that imposition - which is one-third of her dead son's wealth - is a right that is obligatory for her, until that imposition is changed by an imposition for her. So when God, the Most High, changed what He imposed for her from that with the brothers in the group, and left it changed with the single brother, it was known from that that her imposition is not changed from what He imposed for her except in the case in which the one whose obedience is obligatory for the servants changed it, and not in other cases.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the number of brothers that God Almighty meant in His saying: If he has brothers.

A group of the Companions of the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) and those who followed them in righteousness, and after them the scholars of Islam in every era, said: God, the Most High, meant by His statement: But if he has brothers, then to his mother is a sixth, whether the brothers were two or more, whether they were females or females, or two males or males, or one of them was male and the other female. Many of those who said this argued that the nation said this about the statement of God, the Most High, on the tongue of His Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him), so the nation of His Prophet transmitted it in a widespread manner that cut off the excuse for its occurrence and dispelled doubt about it from the hearts of creation and its arrival.

It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, that he used to say: Rather, God Almighty meant by His saying: If he has brothers, a group, the minimum of which is three. He used to deny that God Almighty would deprive the mother of her third with the father by having less than three brothers. So he used to say regarding two parents and two brothers: The mother gets one third, and whatever remains goes to the father, as the scholars said regarding two parents and one brother.

He mentioned the narration about it:

Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Abdul-Hakam told me, he said, Ibn Abi Fadik told us, he said, Ibn Abi Tha'lab told me, on the authority of Shu'bah, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That he entered upon Uthman, may God be pleased with him, and said: Why do the two brothers return the mother to one-sixth, when God only said: If he has brothers, and two brothers in the language and speech of your people are not brothers? So Uthman, may God have mercy on him, said: Can I overturn a matter that was before me, which people inherited and which continued in the provinces?

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, in my opinion, is that what is meant by his saying: If he has brothers, is two or more brothers of the deceased, according to what the companions of the Messenger of God said, not what Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said, because the nation transmitted the inheritance of the correctness of what they said about that from the proof, and their denial of what Ibn Abbas said about that.

If someone says: How is it said about the two brothers brothers, when you know that in the language of the Arabs there is an example for the two brothers that does not resemble the example of the brothers in their language?

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

It was said: Even if that is the case, it is her nature to reconcile the two statements so that their meanings are close, even if they differ in some aspects. Since that is the case, and it was widespread in their speech, used widely in her speech: She struck the heads of Abdullah and Amr, and she hurt their backs. That was more widespread in her speech than to say: She hurt their backs, even though it was said: She hurt their backs, as Al-Farazdaq said:

With the longing and passion in our hearts

The heart that is infatuated will be healed, but if that is what is said, then it is more explicit than that: with what is in our hearts, as the Most High said: If you both repent to God, then your hearts have indeed become corrupt (al-Tahrim 66:4).

So when what I described, of removing everything that was in a human being as one if he added to one of them another from another human being so that they became two from two, with the expression of the whole, was more eloquent in her speech and more famous in her words, and the two brothers were two persons, each one of them not his companion, from two different souls, their meanings were more similar to the meaning of what was in a human being from his limbs as one with no second, so he removed their two with the expression of the two limbs that I described, so it was said brothers in the meaning of the two brothers, just as it was said backs in the meaning of two backs, and mouths in the meaning of two mouths, and hearts in the meaning of two hearts.

Some grammarians said: It is called brothers because the minimum number for a group is two. This is because it is the joining of one thing to another, and they became one after they were two individuals, so they were made plural to show that two is a group.

Abu Ja'far said: Even if this is the case in meaning, it is not a reason that indicates the permissibility of excluding what has been used in speech and widely used on the tongues of the Arabs to dualize it with an example and an image other than the example of three or more of it and its image. Because whoever says: Your two brothers stood up, there is no doubt that he has known that each of the two brothers is an individual, one of them was joined to the other, so they became all together after they were separate. However, even if the matter is thus, the Arabs do not permit in their speech to say: Your two brothers stood up, so their saying stood up, which is a word for reporting on all, is reported on the two brothers, and they are in the wording of two. Because everything that has been used in speech on their tongues is known to them with an example and an image, if someone changes it from what they have known about them, they reject it. Likewise, the two brothers, even if they are together, one of them is joined to the other, they have an example in logic and an image, other than the example of three of them or more and their image. So it is not permissible to change one of them to the other except with an understood meaning. Since that is the case, there is no statement more valid than what we have said before.

Abu Jaafar said: If someone says: Why is the mother's share less than a third due to the deceased's brothers being with her, two or more?

It was said: Scholars differed on this.

Some of them said: The mother is less than that, but not the father, because the father is responsible for their expenses, but not their mother.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: "But if he has no child and his parents inherit from him, then his mother gets a third. But if he has brothers, then his mother gets a sixth." They harmed the mother and they do not inherit, and one brother does not exclude her from the third, but what is above that excludes her. The scholars were of the view that they only excluded their mother from the third because their father is responsible for their marriage and their expenses, not their mother.

Others said: Rather, the mother reduced the sixth, and it was limited to one sixth, to help the brothers of the deceased with the sixth from which they withheld their mother.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The sixth that the maternal brothers withheld from them, they only withheld their mother from it so that it would be for them without their mother.

It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that this statement is different, and that is:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Dinar, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muhammad, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Kalala is the one who has neither a child nor a parent.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct thing to say about this is that God Almighty imposed one-sixth for the mother, along with the brothers, because He knows best what is in the best interests of His creation. It may be possible that this was because He obligated fathers to their children, and it may be possible that it was for something else. This is not something we are charged with knowing, but rather we are commanded to act upon what we know.

As for what was narrated on the authority of Tawus on the authority of Ibn Abbas, it is a statement that contradicts what the nation is upon. This is because there is no disagreement among all of them: that there is no inheritance for a dead brother with his father, so their consensus on the contrary is sufficient evidence of its corruption.

Abu Ja'far said: God, the Most High, means by His statement: After any bequest he may have made or debt, that what God, the Most High, has divided for the deceased's children, males and females, and for his parents from his estate after his death, He only divides it for them according to what He divided for them in this verse after paying off the debt of the deceased that he died while he was owed from his estate, and after executing his will in its chapter after paying off all of his debt. So God, the Most High, did not make anything for any of the deceased's heirs, nor for anyone to whom he bequeathed anything, except after paying off his debt from his entire estate, because He encompasses all of that. Then He made the people of the bequests, after paying off his debt, partners with his heirs in what remained of what he bequeathed to them, as long as it did not exceed a third of it. If it exceeded a third of it, He gave them the choice to approve what exceeded a third of it or return it to his heirs: if they liked, they could approve the increase to a third of it, or if they wished, they could return it. As for what was from that to a third, it is binding on them.

And in all that we have said, the nation is in agreement. A report has been narrated from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding this, which is:

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, Yazid bin Harun told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Harith Al-Awar, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: You read this verse: After any bequest he may have made or debt, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled on the debt before the bequest.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Yazid bin Harun told us, he said, Zakariya bin Abi Zaida told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Harith, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, similarly.

Abu Al-Sa'ib told us, he said, Hafs bin Ghayath told us, he said, Ash'ath told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Harith, on the authority of Ali, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, the same.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun bin Al-Mughira told us, on the authority of Ibn Mujahid, on the authority of his father: After a will he bequeaths or a debt, he said: He begins with the debt before the will.

Abu Jaafar said: The reading of this differed.

The people of Medina and Iraq generally read it as: He recommends it or a debt.

Some of the people of Mecca, Syria and Kufa read it as He recommends it meaning something whose doer is not named.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two readings is the reading of the one who reads it: after any bequest he may have made or debt according to the doctrine of what its doer has been named, because the entire verse is a report about the one whose doer has been named. Do you not see that he says: And for his parents, to each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child? Likewise, what is more correct in his saying: He bequeaths it or debt, is to be a report about the one whose doer has been named, because the interpretation of the statement: And for his parents, to each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child - after any bequest he may have made or debt - is paid from it.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: your fathers and your sons, are those whom God has commanded you to do concerning them - regarding the division of the inheritance of your dead among them according to what He has named for you and explained in this verse - your fathers and your sons, you do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit, meaning: Give them their rights from the inheritance of their dead which I have commanded you to give them, for you do not know which of them is nearer and more beneficial to you in your immediate worldly life and your later life.

The interpreters differed in their interpretation of His statement: You do not know which of them is closer to you in benefit.

Some of them said: He means by that which of them is closest to you in benefit in the Hereafter.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Your fathers and your sons - you do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit, meaning: The most obedient of you to God, from among the fathers and sons, will be the highest in rank on the Day of Resurrection, because God Almighty intercedes for the believers on behalf of one another.

Others said: The meaning of this is that you do not know which of them is more beneficial to you in this world.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Which of them is closest to you in benefit, in this world.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: You do not know which of them is closer to you in benefit, some of them said: in the benefit of the Hereafter, and some of them said: in the benefit of this world. And others said about that what we have said.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: You do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit, he said: Which of them is better for you in religion and in this world, the father or the son who inherit from you, no one else entered upon you, he imposed inheritances on them, he did not bring others to share with them in your wealth.

Abu Ja'far said: What he meant by His, the Most High, saying: A duty from God, "But if he has brothers, then to his mother is a sixth," is a duty, meaning: specific, fixed shares that God has specified for them.

He put his statement: an obligation in the accusative case as a source of his statement: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," an obligation, so he removed an obligation from the meaning of the statement, since its meaning was what I described.

It may be permissible for it to be in the accusative case as a departure from his statement: If he has brothers, then his mother has a sixth, "an obligation," so the obligation is in the accusative case as a departure from his statement: If he has brothers, then his mother has a sixth, just as you say: it is a gift to you, and it is a charity from me to you.

As for His statement: Indeed, God is All-Knowing, All-Wise, He, may His praise be exalted, means: God has always had knowledge of what is good for His creation, O people, so abide by what He commands you, and He will make your affairs good for you. Wise, He says: He has always had wisdom in His management, and He is like that in what He divides for some of you from the inheritance of others, and in what He judges between you of rulings. His ruling does not enter into any defect or error, because it is the ruling of He from whom the places of benefit in the beginning and the end are not hidden.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains thirty-five issues:

First - The Almighty's saying: God commands you concerning your children. In this verse, the Almighty explained what He summarized in His saying: For men is a share and For women is a share. This indicates the permissibility of delaying the explanation beyond the time of the question. This verse is a pillar of the religion, a mainstay of the rulings, and a mother of the mothers of verses, for the obligations are of great value to the extent that they constitute a third of knowledge, and it was narrated that they constitute half of knowledge, and they are the first knowledge to be taken away from people and forgotten. It was narrated by Al-Daraqutni, "On the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said:

Learn the obligatory duties and teach them to people, for it is half of knowledge and it is the first thing to be forgotten and it is the first thing to be taken away from my nation." It was also narrated on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Learn the Qur'an and teach it to people, learn the obligatory duties and teach them to people, learn knowledge and teach it to people, for I am a man who will be taken away, and knowledge will be taken away and tribulations will appear until two people will differ over an obligatory duty and will not find anyone to decide between them. If this is proven, then know that the obligatory duties were the bulk of the knowledge of the Companions and the greatness of their debates, but the people wasted it. Mufraf narrated on the authority of Malik that Abdullah ibn Mas'ud said: Whoever does not learn the obligatory duties, divorce, and Hajj, how can he be superior to the people of the desert? Ibn Wahb said on the authority of Malik: I used to hear Rabi'ah say: Whoever learns the obligatory duties without knowing them from the Qur'an, how quickly will he forget them. Malik said: And he spoke the truth.

Second: Abu Dawood and Al-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-Aas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Knowledge is of three types, and anything other than that is superfluous: a decisive verse, an established Sunnah, or a just obligation. Al-Khattabi Abu Sulayman said: The decisive verse is the Book of God the Most High: and He stipulated that it be decisive, because there are verses that are abrogated and are not acted upon, but rather what abrogates them is acted upon. The established Sunnah is the established Sunnah that came from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him). His saying: or a just obligation has two possible interpretations: One of them is that it is from justice in the division, so it is equal to the shares and portions mentioned in the Book and the Sunnah. The other interpretation is that it is derived from the Book and the Sunnah and from their meaning, so this obligation is equal to what was taken from the Book and the Sunnah, since it is in the meaning of what was taken from them explicitly. Ikrimah narrated that Ibn Abbas sent to Zayd ibn Thabit asking him about a woman who left her husband and her parents. He said: The husband gets half and the mother gets a third of what remains. He said: Do you find it in the Book of God, or do you say it based on my opinion? He said: I say it based on my opinion, I do not prefer a mother over a father. Abu Sulayman said: This is from the category of adjusting an obligation if there is no explicit text in it. This is because he considered it as stipulated, which is the Almighty's saying: And his parents inherit him, then his mother shall have a third. So when he found that the mother's share was a third, and the rest of the money was two-thirds for the father, he compared the remaining half of the money after the husband's share to the whole money if there was no son with the parents or a share was missing, so he divided it between them into three, with the mother receiving a share and the father receiving two shares, which is the remainder. This was more just in the division than giving the mother from the remaining half a third of all the money, and the father what was left, which is a sixth, so he preferred her over him, so she would have, although she was preferred in the original inheritance, more than the father, who was preferred and preferred in the original. This is more just than what Ibn Abbas went to, which was to provide a third for the mother, and reduce the father's right by returning it to a sixth, so he abandoned his statement and the majority of the jurists went to Zaid. Abu Omar said: Abdullah bin Abbas may God be pleased with him said about a husband and parents: The husband gets half, the mother gets a third of all the wealth, and the father gets what remains. He said about a woman and parents: The woman gets a quarter, the mother gets a third of all the wealth, and the rest goes to the father. This is what Shuraih al-Qadi, Muhammad bin Sirin, and Dawud bin Ali said. Abu al-Hasan Muhammad bin Abdullah al-Fardhi al-Masri, known as Ibn al-Labban, differed from them in both issues, and claimed that it was an analogy to Ali's statement about the shared estate. He said in another place: This has also been narrated from Ali. Abu Omar said: What is well-known and popular from Ali, Zaid, Abdullah, the rest of the Companions, and most scholars is what Malik prescribed. And among their arguments against Ibn Abbas is that if the parents share in the inheritance, and there is no one else with them, then the mother gets a third and the father gets two thirds. Likewise, if they share in the half that is left over from the husband, then they are likewise in it at a third and two thirds. This is correct in terms of reasoning and analogy.

Third: The narrations differed regarding the reason for the revelation of the verse on inheritance. Al-Tirmidhi, Abu Dawud, Ibn Majah, and Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah that the wife of Sa'd ibn Al-Rabi' said:

O Messenger of God, Sa'd died and left behind two daughters and his brother. His brother took what Sa'd left behind, and women are married for their money.

He did not answer her in that session. Then she came to him and said: O Messenger of God, what about Sa'd's two daughters? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Call his brother for me. So he came and said to him: Give his two daughters two-thirds and his wife one-eighth, and you will have what remains. The wording of Abu Dawud. In the narration of Al-Tirmidhi and others, then the verse of inheritance was revealed. He said: This is a sound hadith. Jabir also narrated that he said:

The Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) and Abu Bakr visited me in Banu Salamah while they were walking. They found me unconscious. He called for water, performed ablution, and sprinkled some of it on me. I regained consciousness. I said: What should I do with my money, O Messenger of God? Then the verse was revealed: God instructs you concerning your children. [Bukhari and Muslim] Both of them were included in the two Sahihs. At-Tirmidhi included it, and it says: "I said: O Prophet of God, how should I divide my money among my children?" He did not answer me at all. Then the verse was revealed: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females." [Bukhari and Muslim] He said: A good and sound hadith. In Bukhari, on the authority of Ibn Abbas:

That this was revealed because the money was for the son, and the will was for the parents, so this was abrogated by these verses. Muqatil and Al-Kalbi said: It was revealed about Umm Kujjah, and we have mentioned her. Al-Suddi said: It was revealed because of the daughters of Abd Al-Rahman bin Thabit, the brother of Hassan bin Thabit. It was said: The people of the pre-Islamic era did not inherit except those who encountered wars and fought the enemy, so the verse was revealed to clarify that every young person had his share, and it is not far-fetched that it was obligatory for everyone, and that is why its revelation was delayed, and God knows best. Al-Kaya Al-Tabari said: It was mentioned in some of the narrations that what we did in the pre-Islamic era of not inheriting the young person was in the early days of Islam until this verse abrogated it, and it was not proven to us that the Shariah included that, rather the opposite was proven, because this verse was revealed about the heirs of Saad bin Al-Rabi', and it was said: It was revealed about the heirs of Thabit bin Qais bin Shammas. The first is more correct according to the people of transmission. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, took back the inheritance from the uncle. If that had been established before in our law, he would not have taken it back. It has never been established in our law that a boy was not given the inheritance until he fought on horseback and defended the women.

I said: And the judge Abu Bakr Ibn al-Arabi said the same: The revelation of this verse indicates a wonderful point, which is that what the people of ignorance used to do in taking money was not a law that was approved and acknowledged in the beginning of Islam, because if it had been a law that was approved, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would not have ruled that the uncle of the two girls return what he had taken from their money, because when rulings are passed and abrogation comes after them, it only affects the future, so it does not invalidate what came before, but rather it was an injustice that was lifted, as Ibn al-Arabi said.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: God commands you concerning your children. The Shafi'i is said: The Almighty's saying: God commands you concerning your children is in reality referring to the children of the loins. As for the son's child, it is only included in it metaphorically. So if he swears that he has no child and he has a son, he has not broken his oath. And if he makes a will for the son of so-and-so, his son's child is not included in it. Abu Hanifa says: It is included in it if he does not have a son of the loins. And it is known that the words do not change because of what they said.

Fifth: Ibn al-Mundhir said: When God Almighty said: God instructs you concerning your children, then what is required according to the apparent meaning of the verse is that the inheritance should be for all children, believers and disbelievers alike. So when it was proven that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

A Muslim does not inherit from a non-Muslim. It is known that God wanted some children and not others, so a Muslim does not inherit from a non-Muslim, nor does a non-Muslim inherit from a Muslim, according to the apparent meaning of the hadith.

I said: When God Almighty said: In your children, this included the captive in the hands of the infidels, for he inherits as long as it is known that he was alive as a Muslim. All scholars said the same, except for al-Nakha'i, who said: He does not inherit from the captive. However, if it is not known that he was alive, then his ruling is the ruling of the missing person. The inheritance of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was not included in the generality of the verse, because he said:

We do not bequeath what we leave as charity." This will be explained in Maryam, God willing. Likewise, the intentional killer of his father, grandfather, brother, or uncle is not included according to the Sunnah and the consensus of the nation, and he does not inherit anything from the money of the one he killed or from his blood money, as was explained previously in Al-Baqarah. If he killed him by mistake, he does not inherit anything from the blood money, and he inherits from the money according to Malik, but he does not inherit anything from the money or from the blood money according to Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Sufyan, and the people of opinion, as was explained previously in Al-Baqarah. Malik's statement is more correct, and Ishaq and Abu Thawr said the same. It is the statement of Sa'id ibn Al-Musayyab, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, Mujahid, Al-Zuhri, Al-Awza'i, and Ibn

Al-Mundhir, because the inheritance of the one whom God Almighty inherits is established in His Book and is not excluded from it except by the Sunnah or consensus. Everything that is disputed about is referred back to the apparent meaning of the verses that contain inheritances.

Sixth: Know that inheritance was due in the beginning of Islam for reasons, including oaths, migration, and contracts. Then it was abrogated as will be explained in this surah when God Almighty says: And for each We have appointed heirs (An-Nisa': 33), God willing. And the scholars agreed that if there are children with someone who has a specified share, he is given it, and whatever remains of the money for the male is like the share of two females, "because of his saying, peace be upon him:

"Attach the obligatory shares to their people." Narrated by the Imams. He means the obligatory shares mentioned in the Book of God the Most High: They are six: half, quarter, eighth, two-thirds, and sixth. Half is the share of five: the daughter of the loins, the daughter of the son, the full sister, the sister of the father, and the husband, and all of that if they are separated from someone who prevents them from him. The quarter is the share of the husband with the barrier, and the share of the wife and wives with his absence. The eighth is the share of the wife and wives with the barrier. The two-thirds is the share of four: the two or more of the daughters of the loins, the daughters of the son, and the full or paternal sisters, and all of these if they are separated from someone who prevents them from him. The third is the share of two categories: the mother in the absence of a child, and the son's child, and the absence of two or more of the brothers and sisters, and the share of two or more of the mother's child. This is one-third of all the money. As for one-third of what remains, that is for the mother in the case of a husband or wife and parents, so the mother has one-third of what remains, and its explanation has been presented. In the cases of the grandfather with the brothers, if there is someone with a share with them, and one-third of what remains is more deserving. For him. And the sixth is the share of seven: the parents, the grandfather with the son, the son's son, the grandfather and grandmothers if they are together, the son's daughters with the daughter of the loins, the paternal sisters with the full sister, and one of the mother's children, whether male or female. All of these shares are taken from the Book of God, the Most High, except for the share of the grandmother and grandmothers, which is taken from the Sunnah. The reasons for these shares in inheritance are three things: established lineage, concluded marriage, and loyalty of emancipation. The three things may come together, such as a man being the woman's husband, her master, and her cousin. Or two things may come together in him, no more, such as being her husband and her master, or her husband and her cousin, in which case he inherits in two ways and he gets all the money if he is alone: half by marriage and half by loyalty or lineage. And such as if the woman is the man's daughter and his master, in which case she also gets all the money if she is alone: half by lineage and half by loyalty.

Seventh: There is no inheritance except after paying the debt and the will. If the deceased dies, the specified rights are taken from his estate, then what is required for his shroud and burial, then the debts according to their ranks, then the third and the wills are taken, and what is similar to them according to their ranks as well, and the remainder is an inheritance among the heirs. Their total is seventeen. Ten are from men: the son and the son's son, even if he is lower, the father and the father's father, which is the grandfather, even if he is higher, the brother and the nephew, the uncle and the son of the uncle, the husband, and the freed slave. Seven inherit from women: the daughter and the son's daughter, even if he is lower, the mother and the grandmother, even if she is higher, the sister and the wife, and the freed slave. Some of the scholars have organized them and said:

And the heirs, if you want to include them with the females and the female heirs with them

Ten males and seven females

I have confined them to the system of the son, the son's son, and the cousin.

And the father is one of them, and he is the grandfather from the close brother

The son of the closest brother, the uncle, the husband, the master, and then the mother

And then the son, daughter, wife, grandmother and sister

And the freed woman, I mean the freed woman, take her to you for a confirmed waiting period.

Eighth - When God Almighty said: In your children, it includes every child who was present or a fetus in his mother's womb, near or far, male or female, except for the unbeliever, as mentioned above. Some of them said: This is literally in the nearest, metaphorically in the distant. Some of them said: It is literally in all of them because it is from generation, except that they inherit according to the degree of closeness to Him. God Almighty said: O children of Adam (al-A'raf 7:25) and "He, peace be upon him, said:

I am the master of the sons of Adam," he said.

O sons of Ishmael, shoot, for your father was an archer. However, the custom of applying this to the nearest persons prevailed in this reality. If there is a male among the offspring of the loins, then the son's son gets nothing. This is what the people of knowledge have agreed upon. If there is no male among the offspring of the loins, and there are sons of the loins, then the daughters of the loins are given to them up to two-thirds, then the remaining third is given to the son's son if they are equal in number, or if the male is lower than the daughters above him, for the male is like the share of two females. This is the opinion of Malik, Al-Shafi'i, and the people of opinion. And this is what most of the people of knowledge from the Companions, the Followers, and those after them said, except what is narrated from Ibn Mas'ud, who said: If the male among the offspring of the loins is opposite the female, it is returned to her, and if he is lower than her, it is not returned to her, taking into account the words of God Almighty: But if there are women, more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left. So he did not give to the daughters, even if they were many, except two-thirds.

I said: This is how Ibn al-Arabi mentioned this detail from Ibn Masoud, and what Ibn al-Mundhir and al-Baji mentioned from him: that what is left over from the daughters of the loins is for the sons of the son without the daughters of the son. And they did not make a distinction, and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated it from Abu Thawr, and something similar was narrated by Abu Omar. Abu Omar said: Ibn Masoud disagreed with that and said: If the daughters complete two-thirds, then the remainder is for the sons of the son without their sisters, and without the daughters of the son above them and below them. And this is what Abu Thawr and Dawud ibn Ali went to, and something similar was narrated from Alqamah, and an argument from those who held this view is the hadith of Ibn Abbas, "from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Divide the wealth among those who are entitled to inheritance according to the Book of God, and whatever is left over from the inheritance is for the nearest male relative." Narrated by al-Bukhari, Muslim and others.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse, the one after it, and the verse that concludes this surah are verses on the science of inheritance, which is derived from these three verses and from the hadiths that were reported on that, which are like an explanation of that. Let us mention what is related to the explanation of that. As for establishing the issues, setting up the differences of opinion and evidence, and the arguments between the imams, their place is in the books of rulings, and God is the source of help. It was reported that there is encouragement to learn the obligatory duties, and these specific obligatory duties are among the most important of them. Abu Dawud and Ibn Majah narrated from the hadith of Abd al-Rahman ibn Ziyad ibn An'am al-Ifriqi from Abd al-Rahman ibn Rafi' al-Tanukhi from Abdullah ibn Amr may God be pleased with him that the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: "Knowledge is of three types, and anything other than that is superfluous: a clear verse, an established Sunnah, or a just obligatory duty." And from Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: O Abu Hurayrah, learn the obligatory duties and teach them, for they are half of knowledge, and they will be forgotten, and they are the first thing to be taken away from my nation. Narrated by Ibn Majah, and its chain of transmission is weak. It was narrated from the hadith of Ibn Mas'ud and Abu Sa'id, and each of them is questionable. Ibn 'Uyaynah said: The obligatory duties are called half of knowledge because all people are tested with them. Al-Bukhari said when interpreting this verse: Ibrahim ibn Musa told us. Hisham narrated that Ibn Jurayj told them, he said: Ibn Al-Munkadir told me, on the authority of Jabir Ibn Abdullah, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Abu Bakr visited me in Banu Salamah while we were walking, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, found me unable to understand anything, so he called for water and performed ablution with it, then sprinkled it on me and I regained consciousness. I said: What do you command me to do with my money, O Messenger of God? Then the verse was revealed: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females." Muslim and Al-Nasa'i narrated it likewise from the hadith of Hajjaj Ibn Muhammad Al-A'war from Ibn Jurayj with it, and all the group narrated it from the hadith of Sufyan Ibn Uyaynah from Muhammad Ibn Al-Munkadir from Jabir.

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Another hadith from Jabir on the reason for the revelation of the verse Ahmad said: Zakariya bin Adi told us, Ubaidullah - he is Ibn Amr al-Raqi - told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil, on the authority of Jabir, who said: The wife of Saad bin al-Rabi' came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, these are the two daughters of Saad bin al-Rabi'. Their father was killed with you as a martyr on the day of Uhud, and their uncle took their wealth and left them no wealth, and they will not marry unless they have wealth. He said: He said: God will decide on that. So the verse of inheritance was revealed, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent to their uncle and said: Give the two daughters of Saad two-thirds, and their mother one-eighth, and whatever remains is for you. Abu Dawud, al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is not known except from his hadith. It appears that the first hadith of Jabir was revealed because of the last verse of this surah, as will come, because at that time he only had sisters, and he did not have daughters, and he was only inheriting as a kalalah. However, we mentioned the hadith here following al-Bukhari, may God have mercy on him, because he mentioned it here, and the second hadith from Jabir is more similar to the revelation of this verse, and God knows best.

God the Almighty says: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," meaning He commands you to be just with them. The people of the Age of Ignorance used to give all the inheritance to the males without the females. So God the Almighty commanded equality between them in the basis of inheritance, and made a difference between the two categories, giving the male the share of two females. This is because the man needs the expense of spending, the cost, the suffering of trade and earning, and the endurance of hardships. So it was appropriate that he be given twice what the female gets. Some intelligent people have deduced from God the Almighty's saying: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," that God the Almighty is more merciful to His creation than a mother is to her child, since He commanded the parents to be kind to their children, so it was known that He is more merciful to them than they are to them, as came in the authentic hadith in which he saw a woman from the captives separated from her child, so she began to go around to look for her child. When she found him from the captives, she took him, held him to her chest, and breastfed him. The Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said to his companions, Do you think that this woman would throw her child into the fire when she is able to do so? They said, No, O Messenger of God. He said, By God, God is more merciful to His servants than this woman is to her child. Al-Bukhari said here: Muhammad ibn Yusuf narrated to us on the authority of Warqa', on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The wealth was for the child, and the will was for the parents, but God abrogated what He liked of that, so He made for the male the share of two females, and He made for the parents each one of them a sixth and a third, and He made for the wife an eighth and a quarter, and for the husband a half and a quarter. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," that is when the obligatory duties were revealed in which God imposed what He imposed for the male and female child and both parents. The people or some of them disliked it and said: The woman is given a quarter or an eighth, and the girl is given half, and the young boy is given, and none of these fights the people or seizes the spoils. Keep quiet about this hadith, perhaps the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) will forget it, or we will tell him and he will change it. Some of them said: O Messenger of God, the girl is given half of what her father left, and she does not ride a horse or fight the people, and the boy is given the inheritance but he does not provide anything. They used to do that in the pre-Islamic era, they would not give the inheritance except to those who fought the people and they would give it from the oldest to the oldest. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir as well. And his saying, If there are more than two women, then for them is two-thirds of what he left. Some people said: His saying, above is redundant, and its meaning is if there are two women, as in his saying, Then strike above the necks. This is not accepted here or there. For there is nothing redundant in the Qur'an that is of no benefit, and this is impossible. Then his saying, Then for them is two-thirds of what he left. If what they said was meant, he would have said: Then for them is one-third of what he left. The fact that the two-thirds are for the two daughters is only derived from the ruling on the two sisters in the last verse, for God Almighty ruled in it for the two sisters with two-thirds. And if the two sisters inherit two-thirds, then the two daughters inherit two-thirds by the first way. It was mentioned previously in the hadith of Jabir that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled for the two daughters of Sa'd ibn al-Rabi' with two-thirds, so the Book and the Sunnah indicate that. Also, he said, And if there is only one, then for her is half. So if the two daughters had half, he would have stated that also, so when he ruled for one on her own, it indicates that the two daughters are in the ruling on three, and God knows best. And the Almighty said: And for his parents, to each one of them a sixth until the end, the parents have two conditions in inheritance one of them is that they come together with the children, so each one of them is given a sixth, if the deceased has only one daughter, then half is given to her, and the parents are given a sixth to each one of them, and the father takes the other sixth by agnatic relationship, so in this case the two are combined for him between the prescribed share and agnatic relationship. The second case is that the parents are alone in the inheritance, so in this case a third is given to the mother, and the father takes the remainder by pure agnatic relationship, and he has taken twice what was given to the mother, which is two thirds, so if there is a husband or wife with them - in this case - the husband takes half and the wife a quarter. Then the scholars differed about what the mother takes after the husband and wife are given, with three opinions: one of them that she takes a third of the remainder in both cases, because the remainder is as if it is the entire inheritance for them. And God has given her half of what He gave to the father. She takes one-third of the remainder and the father takes two-thirds. This is the opinion of Omar and Othman, and the most correct of the two narrations from Ali. Ibn Masoud and Zaid bin Thabit say the same, and it is the opinion of the seven jurists, the four imams, and the majority of scholars. The second is that she takes one-third of all the money, based on the generality of his statement, But if he has no child and his parents inherit him, then his mother has a third. The verse is more general than whether she has a husband or wife or not, and this is the opinion of Ibn Abbas. Something similar was narrated from Ali and Muadh bin Jabal. Shuraih and Dawud al-Dhahiri say the same. Abu al-Husayn Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn al-Labban al-Basri chose it in his book al-Ijaz fi Ilm al-Fara'id, and this is questionable, rather it is weak, because the apparent meaning of the verse is that if he takes over the entire estate, but here the husband or wife takes the prescribed share and the remainder remains as if it were the entire estate, so she takes a third of it as mentioned above. The third opinion is that she takes a third of all the money in the case of the wife specifically, so she takes a quarter, which is three out of twelve, and the mother takes a third, which is four, so five remains for the father. But in the case of the husband, she takes a third of the remainder so that she does not take more than the father if she takes a third of the money, so the issue is six: for the husband, half, three, for the mother, a third of the remainder after that, which is a share, and for the father, the remainder after that is two shares. This is narrated from Ibn Sirin, and it is a statement composed of the first two statements, agreeing with each of them in form, and it is also weak, and the correct one is the first, and God knows best.

The third case of the parents is their meeting with siblings, whether they are from both parents, the father or the mother. They do not inherit anything with the father, but they still prevent the mother from a third to a sixth, so she is given a sixth if they are present. If there is no heir other than her and the father, the father takes the remainder. The ruling on the two brothers in what we have mentioned is like the ruling on brothers according to the majority. Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Shu'bah, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he entered upon Uthman and said: The two brothers do not prevent the mother from a third. God the Most High said: But if he has brothers, so the two brothers are not brothers in the language of your people. Uthman said: I cannot change what was before me, and it continued in the regions and people inherited from it. There is a question about the authenticity of this narration, because Malik ibn Anas spoke about this Shu'bah. If this had been authentic from Ibn Abbas, his companions who were experts in it would have adopted it, and what has been transmitted from them is contrary to it. Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi al-Zinad narrated from Kharijah ibn Zayd from his father that he said: Brothers are called brothers. I have devoted a separate section to this issue. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abd al-Aziz ibn al-Mughira told us, Yazid ibn Zurai' told us from Saeed, from Qatada, his statement, But if he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, harmed the mother and they do not inherit, and one brother does not prevent her from a third, but what is above that prevents her. The people of knowledge were of the view that they only prevented their mother from a third because their father is responsible for their marriage and their expenses, not their mother. This is a good statement. But it was narrated from Ibn Abbas with a sound chain of transmission that he believed that the sixth that they withheld from their mother would be for them. This is an odd statement narrated by Ibn Jarir in his interpretation, and he said: Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The sixth that the maternal brothers withheld from them, they only withheld their mother from it so that it would be for them without their father. Then Ibn Jarir said: This statement is contrary to the entire ummah. Yunus told me, Sufyan told us, Amr told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Muhammad, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: The Kalalah is the one who has no children or parents.

His saying, After any bequest he may have made or debt, the scholars of the past and present agreed that debt takes precedence over a bequest, and this is understood from the meaning of the noble verse when one looks closely. Ahmad, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah and the commentators narrated from the hadith of Abu Ishaq on the authority of Al-Harith bin Abdullah

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Al-A'war, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, who said: You read, After any bequest he may have made or debt, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled that debt comes before a bequest, and that the maternal lineage inherits from the maternal lineage but not from the paternal lineage. A man inherits from his brother through his father and mother but not from his brother through his father. Then Al-Tirmidhi said: We do not know it except from the hadith of Al-Harith, and some scholars have spoken about it. I said But he was a memorizer of the inheritance laws and took care of them and of calculations, and God knows best.

And His saying, Your fathers and your sons - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit, meaning that We only imposed it for the fathers and the sons, and We made them equal in the basis of inheritance, contrary to what was the case in the pre-Islamic era and contrary to what was the case at the beginning of Islam, whereby the money was for the son and the parents had the will, as mentioned above from Ibn Abbas. God only abrogated that to this one and imposed it for these and for those according to their status, because a person may receive a benefit in this world or the hereafter or both from his father that he does not receive from his son, and it may be the opposite. Therefore, He said, Your fathers and your sons - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit, meaning that the benefit is expected and hoped for from this one as it is expected and hoped for from the other, so for this reason We imposed it for this one and that one, and We made the two categories equal in the basis of inheritance, and God knows best.

His saying, A duty from God, meaning that what we have mentioned about the details of inheritance and giving some heirs more than others, is a duty from God that He has ruled and decreed, and God is All-Knowing, All-Wise, who puts things in their proper places and gives each person what he deserves according to his ability. That is why He said, Indeed, God is All-Knowing, All-Wise.

Fath al-Qadir

This is a detailed explanation of what was summarized in the Almighty's saying: For men is a share of what parents and near relatives leave Al-Baqarah 2:177. This was used as evidence for the permissibility of delaying the explanation beyond the time of need. This verse is a pillar of the religion, a mainstay of the rulings, and a mother of the mothers of verses because it includes what is important from the science of inheritance. This science was the most important science of the Companions and the subject of their most frequent debates. After the complete explanation of what the words of God include of inheritance, some of the virtues of this science will be mentioned, God willing. His saying 11- God instructs you concerning your children meaning: in explaining their inheritance. They differed as to whether the children of children are included or not. The Shafi'i's said: They are included metaphorically, not literally. The Hanafis said: The word children includes them literally if there are no children of the loins. There is no disagreement that the children of sons are like sons in inheritance in their absence. This disagreement is only in the meaning of the word children for their children in their absence. The word children includes whoever among them is a disbeliever, and is excluded by the Sunnah. Likewise, the intentional killer is included, and is also excluded by the Sunnah and consensus. The hermaphrodite is included in it. Al-Qurtubi said: The scholars agreed that he inherits from where he urinates. If one of them urinates, then from where he came first. If the urine came out of them without one of them coming first, then he gets half the share of the male and half the share of the female. It was said: He is given the lesser of the two shares, which is the share of the female. Yahya bin Adam said this, and it is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i. This verse abrogates what was in the early days of Islam regarding inheritance by oath, migration and contract. The scholars have agreed that if there is someone with the children who has a specified share, it should be given to him, and whatever remains of the money for the male is like the share of two females, according to the authentic hadith in the two Sahihs and others with the wording: Give the shares to those entitled to them, and whatever the shares remain is for the closest male relative, unless he is dropped with them, such as maternal brothers. His statement, For the male is like the share of two females is a new sentence to explain the will regarding the children, so it is necessary to estimate a pronoun referring to them: And God commands you concerning your children: for the male among them is like the share of two females. What is meant is when there are males and females together. As for when there is one, the male gets the entire inheritance, the female gets half, and two or more get two-thirds. His saying, If there are more than two women, then for them is two-thirds of what he left, meaning: If there are children, and the feminine is in consideration of the report, or daughters, or newborns, women with no males with them, more than two: meaning more than two, on the condition that more is a description of women, or it is a second report, then then for them is two-thirds of what he left, the deceased is indicated by the context. The apparent meaning of the Qur'anic system is that two-thirds is the share of three daughters or more, and no share is specified for two daughters. For this reason, scholars differed regarding their share. The majority of scholars held that if they were separated from their sons, they would have two-thirds. Ibn Abbas held that their share would be half. The majority argued by analogy with two sisters, for God Almighty said concerning them, But if there are two, then for them are two-thirds. So they included the two daughters with the two sisters in their entitlement to two-thirds, just as they included the sisters, if they were more than two, with the daughters in sharing two-thirds. It was said that the verse indicates that the two daughters have two-thirds, because since one daughter had one-third with her brother, the two daughters, if they were separated, had two-thirds. This is how Ismail ibn Ayyash and al-Mubarrad argued with this argument. Al-Nahhas said: This argument is wrong according to the people of insight, because the difference is in the two daughters if they are alone from the sons, and also for the opponent to say if he leaves two daughters and a son then the two daughters get half, this is evidence that this is their obligation, and it is possible to support what the majority have argued with that when God Almighty imposed half for the one daughter if she is alone with His saying, And if there is only one, then for her is half, the obligation of the two daughters if they are alone was greater than the obligation of one, and the analogy with the two sisters required limiting the two daughters to two-thirds. It was said: Above is redundant, and the meaning is: And if there are two women like His saying, Then strike above the necks, meaning the necks, and this was rejected by Al-Nahhas and Ibn Atiyah who said: It is wrong, because circumstances and all nouns are not permitted in the speech of the Arabs to be added for something other than a meaning. Ibn Atiyah said: Because his saying above the necks is the eloquent one, and above is not redundant, but rather it has a precise meaning, because the blow to the neck must be above the bones in the joint, not the brain, as Duraid ibn al-Sammah said: Lower than the brain, and raise above the bone, and this is how I used to strike the necks of heroes. End quote. Also, if the word above was redundant, as they said, he would have said, For them are two-thirds of what he left, and he would not have said, For them are two-thirds of what he left. The clearest evidence for the majority is what was narrated by Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, Abu Dawud, al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, Abu Ya'la, Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Hibban, al-Hakim, and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan on the authority of Jabir, who said: The wife of Sa'd ibn al-Rabi' came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, these are the two daughters of Sa'd ibn al-Rabi'. Their father was killed with you as a martyr at Uhud, and their uncle took their wealth and left them no wealth, and they will not marry unless they have wealth. He said: God will decide on that. Then the verse of inheritance was revealed: God instructs you concerning your children al-Baqarah 2:17. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent to their uncle and said: Give the daughters of Sa'd two-thirds and their mother one-eighth, and whatever remains is yours. They narrated it through the chains of narration of Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Aqil on the authority of Jabir. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is not known except from his hadith. His saying, And if there is only one, then for her is half. Nafi' and the people of Medina read one in the nominative case, as if it was complete, meaning: if one was found or one was born.

The rest read it in the accusative. An-Nahhas said: This is a good reading, meaning if the one abandoned or born was only one. His saying, And for his parents, to each one of them is a sixth, meaning: to the parents of the deceased, and it is a metaphor for something not mentioned, and this is permissible because the speech indicates it, and to each one of them is a sixth is a substitute for his saying, and for his parents, by repeating the agent for emphasis and detail. Al-Hasan and Na'im bin Maysarah read the sixth with a sukoon on the dal, and likewise read a third and a quarter up to a tenth with a sukoon, and it is the language of Banu Tamim and Rabi'ah, and the majority read it with a damma, and it is the language of the people of Hijaz and Banu Asad in all of them. What is meant by the parents is the father and the mother, and the dual is based on the word father for emphasis.

Scholars differed on the grandfather, is he in the same position as the father, so that the brotherhood is dropped or not? Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq held that he is in the same position as the father, and none of the companions disagreed with him during his caliphate. They differed on that after his death, and Ibn Abbas, Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr, Aisha, Muadh bin Jabal, Ubayy bin Kaab, Abu Al-Darda, Abu Hurairah, Ata, Tawus, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Abu Hanifa, Abu Thawr, and Ishaq said the same as Abu Bakr. They cited as evidence the words of God the Almighty: The religion of your father Abraham, and His words: O children of Adam, and His words, may God bless him and grant him peace: Shoot, O children of Ishmael. Ali bin Abi Talib, Zaid bin Thabit, and Ibn Masoud held that the grandfather should be inherited along with the brothers from both parents or from the father, and that no one should be deducted from the third with them, and no one should be deducted from the sixth with those who have a fixed share, according to Zaid, Malik, Al-Awza'i, Abu Yusuf, Muhammad, and Al-Shafi'i. It was said that the grandfather should be shared with the brothers up to the sixth. And nothing is reduced from the sixth with those with fixed shares and others, and this is the opinion of Ibn Abi Layla and a group. The majority of scholars are of the view that the grandfather excludes the sons of brothers, and Al-Sha'bi narrated on the authority of Ali that he treated the sons of brothers in the division as brothers. The scholars agreed that the grandfather does not inherit anything with the father, and the scholars agreed that the grandmother gets a sixth if the deceased has no mother, and they agreed that the father does not exclude the grandmother, the mother of the mother.

They differed about the inheritance of the grandmother while her son is alive. It was narrated from Zaid bin Thabit, Uthman and Ali that she does not inherit while her son is alive. Malik, Ath-Thawri, Al-Awza'i, Abu Thawr and the people of opinion said the same. It was narrated from Umar, Ibn Mas'ud and Abu Musa that she inherits with him. It was also narrated from Ali and Uthman. Shuraih, Jabir bin Zaid, Ubaydullah bin Al-Hasan, Sharik, Ahmad, Ishaq and Ibn Al-Mundhir said the same. His statement if he has a child refers to both males and females, but if the male is present among the children alone or with a female, then the grandfather only gets one-sixth. If the female is present, then the grandfather gets one-sixth by fixed share and he is an agnate except for one-sixth. The children of the son of the deceased are like the children of the deceased. His statement if he has no child means: nor a son's son, based on the consensus mentioned above, and his parents inherit from him separately from the other heirs, as the majority of scholars have stated, that the mother does not take one-third of the estate unless the deceased has no heir other than the parents. However, if there is one of the spouses with them, then the mother only gets one-third of the remainder after the two spouses present. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the mother has a third of the original with one of the spouses, and this necessitates giving the mother precedence over the father in the matter of a spouse and parents, with the agreement that he is better than them when they are alone without one of the spouses. His saying, But if he has brothers, then his mother has a sixth. The generality of brothers indicates that there is no difference between brothers from both parents or one of them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Scholars have unanimously agreed that two brothers replace three or more in excluding the mother up to one-sixth, except for what is narrated from Ibn Abbas, who made two like one in not excluding. They have also unanimously agreed that two sisters or more are like two brothers in excluding the mother. His statement, after any bequest he may have bequeathed or debt, Ibn Kathir, Ibn Amir, and Asim read the word yusawsi with a fatha on the sad. The rest read it with a kasra, and Abu Ubaid and Abu Hatim chose the kasra because the deceased was mentioned before this. Al-Akhfash said: Confirmation of that is his statement, 'they bequeath' and 'you bequeath'.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the reason for giving precedence to a will over a debt, even though it is given precedence over it by consensus. It was said: The intention is to give precedence to the two matters over the inheritance without intending to arrange them in order. It was also said: Because a will is less binding than a debt, it was given precedence out of concern for it. It was also said: It was given precedence because it occurs frequently, so it became like a binding matter for every deceased person. It was also said: It was given precedence because it is the portion of the poor and needy, and the debt was delayed because it is the portion of a creditor who demands it with force and authority. It was also said: Because a will arises from the deceased, it was given precedence, unlike a debt, which is fixed and paid, whether mentioned or not. It was also said: It was given precedence because it resembles an inheritance in that it is taken without compensation, so it may be difficult for the heirs to pay it, unlike a debt, whose souls are reassured by paying it. This will is restricted by the Almighty's saying, without causing harm, as will come, God willing. His saying, Your fathers and your sons, you do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit. It was said that the predicate of his saying, your fathers and your sons, is understood, meaning they are the ones to whom the oath is made. It was also said that the predicate is his saying, You do not know, and what follows it, and nearer, is the predicate of his saying, which of them, and in benefit is a specification: meaning you do not know which of them is nearer to you in his benefit in supplication for you and charity on your behalf, as in the authentic hadith, or a righteous son who supplicates for him. Ibn Abbas and Al-Hasan said: The son may be better and intercede for his father. Some commentators said: If the son is of a higher degree than his father in the Hereafter, he asks God to raise his father to Him, and if the father is of a higher degree than his son, he asks God to raise his son to Him. It was also said that what is meant is benefit in this world and the Hereafter, as Ibn Zayd said. It was also said that the meaning is: You do not know who is more beneficial to you than your fathers and sons, the one who made a will among them and exposed you to the reward of the Hereafter by carrying out his will, so he is nearer to you in benefit, or the one who left the will and spared you the worldly benefits? This was strengthened by the author of Al-Kashshaf, who said: Because the sentence is parenthetical, and it is the right of the parenthesis to emphasize what it interrupts, and it is appropriate for him to say: A duty from God in the accusative case as a confirmed source, since the meaning of He enjoins you is He imposes upon you. Makki and others said: It is an emphatic state, and the agent enjoins you. The first is more appropriate: Indeed, God is Knowing of the division of inheritances, Wise He ruled on its division and explained it to its people. Al-Zajaj said: Knowing of things before their creation, Wise in what He decrees and carries out of them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

11- The Almighty said: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females." The verse: Know that inheritance in the pre-Islamic era was based on masculinity and strength, so men would inherit without women and children, so God nullified that by saying: For men is a share of what parents and close relatives leave. The verse, and it was also in the pre-Islamic era and the beginning of Islam by alliance, God the Almighty said: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share. (An-Nisaa': 33) Then inheritance became by migration, God the Almighty said: And those who believed and did not emigrate - you have no guardianship over them at all until they emigrate. (al-Anfal 8:72) So all of that was abrogated and inheritance became based on one of the three matters: lineage, marriage, or loyalty. The meaning of lineage is that relatives inherit from each other, due to the Almighty's saying: And those of kinship are closer to one another in the Book of God. (al-Ahzab 33:6), and the meaning is By marriage: one of the spouses inherits from the other, and by allegiance: the emancipator and his agnates inherit from the emancipated. So we will mention, with the help of God Almighty, a brief section explaining who among the relatives inherits. And how the heirs inherit, so we say:

If a person dies and has money, he begins by preparing him, then paying off his debts, then executing his wills, and whatever is left is divided among the heirs. Then the heirs are divided into three categories: Some inherit by the obligatory share, some by agnatic kinship, and some by both. Those who inherit by marriage do not inherit except by the obligatory share, and those who inherit by loyalty do not inherit except by agnatic kinship. As for those who inherit by kinship, some inherit by the obligatory share, such as daughters, sisters, mothers, grandmothers, and mother's children. Some inherit by agnatic kinship, such as sons, brothers, brothers' sons, paternal uncles and their sons. Some inherit by both, such as the father who inherits by agnatic kinship if the deceased has no son. If the deceased has a son, the father inherits by the obligatory share, and if the deceased has a daughter, the father inherits by the obligatory share and takes the remainder after the daughter's share by agnatic kinship, and the same applies to the grandfather. The one who has agnatic kinship is the one who takes all the money when alone and takes what is left over from the obligatory share holders.

The total number of heirs is seventeen: ten men and seven women. Among the men: the son and the son's son, even if they are distantly related; the father and the paternal grandfather, even if they are distantly related; the brother, whether he is from the same father and mother, or from the same mother; the son of the brother, whether he is from the same father and mother, or from the same father, even if they are distantly related; the paternal uncle, whether he is from the same father and mother, or from the same father, and their sons, even if they are distantly related; the husband and the freed slave. Among the women: the daughter and the son's daughter, even if they are distantly related; the mother and the grandmother, the mother's mother and the father's mother; the sister, whether she is from the same father and mother, or from the same father or mother; the wife and the freed slave.

Six of these are not subject to the prohibition of others: parents, children, and spouses, because there is no intermediary between them and the deceased.

There are four reasons for deprivation of inheritance: difference of religion, slavery, murder, and blindness due to death.

By difference of religion, we mean that the infidel does not inherit from the Muslim and the Muslim does not inherit from the infidel, because Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Kisa'i Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us, Al-Rabi' told us, Al-Shafi'i told us, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ali bin Hussein, on the authority of Amr bin Othman, on the authority of Usamah bin Zaid, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The Muslim does not inherit from the infidel, nor does the infidel inherit from the Muslim.

As for the infidels, they inherit from each other despite their different religions, because all infidelity is one religion, as God Almighty says: And those who disbelieve are allies of one another (al-Anfal 8:73).

Some of them went to the view that the difference of religions in disbelief prevents inheritance so that a Jew does not inherit from a Christian nor a Christian from a Zoroastrian. This is what Al-Zuhri, Al-Awza'i, Ahmad and Ishaq went to, based on the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: People of two different religions do not inherit from each other. The others interpreted it as referring to Islam with disbelief, so it is all one religion, so inheriting from one another does not establish inheritance between people of two different religions.

The slave does not inherit from anyone, nor does anyone inherit from him, because he does not own property. There is no difference between the serf, the freed slave, the freed slave, and the mother of the child.

Murder, whether intentional or accidental, prevents inheritance, as narrated by Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: The murderer does not inherit.

By blindness of death we mean that if the two heirs die blindly, whether by drowning in water or a building collapsing on them, and it is not known which of them died first, then neither of them inherits from the other. Rather, the inheritance of each of them goes to the one of his heirs who was certainly alive after his death.

The limited shares in the inheritance are six: half, quarter, eighth, two-thirds, third, and sixth.

Half is a three-fold share: the share of the husband in the absence of a child, the share of one daughter of the loins or the daughter of the son in the absence of a child of the loins, and the share of one sister of the father and mother or of the father if there is no child of the father and mother.

The quarter is the husband's share if the deceased had a child, and the wife's share if the deceased had no child.

The price: the wife's share if the deceased had a child.

Two-thirds is the share of two daughters of the loins and above, and of two daughters of the son and above in the absence of a son of the loins, and the share of two sisters of the same father and mother or of the father and above.

The third is a three-fold share: the mother's share if the deceased has no son or two sisters or brothers, and if not, in two cases: one of them is a husband and two parents, and the second is a wife and two parents, then the mother has a third of what remains after the husband's or wife's share, and the share of the two or more children of the mother, male and female alike, and the grandfather's share with the brothers if there is no one in the case who has a share, and the third is better for the grandfather than sharing with the brothers.

Surat al-Nisa 4:11

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

As for the sixth, it is a seven-fold share: the father's share if the deceased had a son, the mother's share if the deceased had a son or two brothers or sisters, the grandfather's share if the deceased had a son and with the brothers and sisters if there is a person entitled to a share in the matter, and the sixth is better for the grandfather than sharing with the brothers, the grandmother's share and the grandmothers' share and the share of one of the mother's children, male or female, the son's daughters' share if the deceased had one daughter from the loins to complete / two-thirds, and the father's sisters' share if the deceased had one sister from the father and mother to complete the two-thirds.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, I told Wahib, I told Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Give the obligatory shares to those entitled to them, and whatever remains is for the closest male relative.

The hadith is evidence that some heirs exclude others, and exclusion is of two types: exclusion by deficiency and exclusion by deprivation:

As for the exclusion of deficiency, it is that the son and the son's son exclude the husband from half to a quarter, the wife from a quarter to an eighth, and the mother from a third to a sixth, and likewise the two or more brothers exclude the mother from a third to a sixth.

The reason for the exclusion of deprivation is that the mother excludes the grandmothers, and the children of the mother - who are the brothers and sisters of the nations - are excluded by four: by the father and the grandfather, even if he is high, and by the son and the son's son, even if he is low, and the children of the father and mother are excluded by three: by the father, the son, and the son's son, even if they are low, and they are not excluded by the grandfather according to the doctrine of Zayd ibn Thabit, and it is the opinion of Umar, Uthman, Ali, and Ibn Mas'ud, may God be pleased with them, and Malik, al-Shafi'i, al-Awza'i, and Ahmad, may God have mercy on them, said the same.

The father's children exclude these three and the brother of the father and mother. Some people said that all brothers are excluded by the grandfather as they are excluded by the father, and this is the saying of Abu Bakr al-Siddiq, Ibn Abbas, Muadh, Abu al-Darda', and Aisha, may God be pleased with them. Al-Hasan, Ata', Tawus, and Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on them, said the same.

The closest agnates exclude the one who is further away from the agnatic lineage. The closest of them is the son, then the son's son, even if he is farther down, then the father, then the paternal grandfather, even if he is farther up. If there is a brother or sister from the father and mother or the father's side with the grandfather, they share in the inheritance. If there is no grandfather, then the brother from the father and mother, then the brother from the father, then the sons of the brothers, the closest of them being given priority, whether he is from the father and mother or from the father. If they are equal in degree, then the one from the father and mother is more deserving, then the paternal uncle from the father and mother, then the paternal uncle, then their sons in the order of the sons of the brothers, then the paternal uncle, then the paternal uncle of the grandfather in this order.

If there is no blood relative and the deceased is responsible for the inheritance, then the inheritance goes to the freedman. If he is not alive, then it goes to the agnates of the freedman.

Four males are agnates of the females: the son, the son's son, the brother of the father and mother, and the brother of the father. Even if he dies leaving behind a son and a daughter, or a brother and a sister of the father and mother or of the father, then the money is divided between them, with the male receiving the share of two females, and it is not imposed on the daughter and sister.

Likewise, the son of the son is agnatic to the females of his degree, and to those above him if he does not take anything from the two-thirds, even if he dies leaving two daughters and a daughter of a son, then the two daughters get two-thirds and nothing goes to the daughter of the son. If there is a son of a son in her degree or a son of a son of a son below her, then the remainder between them is for the male like the share of two females.

The sister of the father, mother and father is an agnate with the daughter, even if he died leaving a daughter and a sister, half goes to the daughter and the remainder goes to the sister. If he died leaving two daughters and a sister, then the two daughters get two-thirds and the remainder goes to the sister.

The evidence for this is what Abd al-Wahid al-Malhi told us, I am Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Nuaimi, I am Muhammad ibn Yusuf, I am Muhammad ibn Ismail, I am Adam, I am Shu'bah, I am Abu Qais, he said: I heard Hudhayl ibn Shurahbil say: Abu Musa was asked about a daughter, a son's daughter, and a sister, so he said: The daughter gets half and the sister gets half. Go to Ibn Mas'ud and he will follow me. So Ibn Mas'ud was asked and he was informed of what Abu Musa said, so he said: Then you have gone astray and I am not among those who are guided. I rule in it as the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled: The daughter gets the class and the son's daughter gets a sixth to complete two-thirds, and whatever remains is for the sister. So we went to Abu Musa and informed him of what Ibn Mas'ud, may God be pleased with him, said, so he said: Do not ask me as long as this scholar is among you.

We returned to the interpretation of the verse: They differed about the reason for its revelation. Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi informed us, Ahmed bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi informed us, Muhammad bin Yusuf informed us, Muhammad bin Ismail informed us, Abu Al-Walid informed us, Shu'bah informed us, Muhammad bin Al-Munkadir: I heard Jabir say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to visit me while I was sick and out of my mind. He performed ablution and poured some of his ablution water over me, and I regained my senses. I said: O Messenger of God, to whom does the inheritance belong? Only my distant relatives inherit from me? Then the verse of inheritance was revealed.

Muqatil Al-Kalbi said: It was revealed about Umm Kajah, the wife of Aws bin Thabit, and his daughters.

Ata' said: "Saad bin al-Rabi' al-Naqeeb was martyred on the day of Uhud and left behind a wife, two daughters and a brother. The brother took the money, so Saad's wife came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with Saad's two daughters and said: 'O Messenger of God, these are Saad's two daughters, and Saad was killed as a martyr on the day of Uhud. Their uncle took their money, and they will not marry unless they have money.' The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Go back, perhaps God will decide on that.' Then the verse, 'God instructs you' was revealed, and so on. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called their uncle and said to him: 'Give Saad's two daughters two-thirds and their mother one-eighth, and whatever remains is yours.' This was the first division of inheritance in Islam."

The Almighty said: God instructs you concerning your children meaning: He enjoins upon you and imposes upon you concerning your children, meaning: concerning your children if you die, for the male is the share of two females. But if there are meaning: the children left behind, more than two women meaning: two daughters or more. More than is a connection, like the Almighty's saying: Then strike upon the necks (al-Anfal 8:12).

For them are two-thirds of what he left, and if there is only one, meaning the daughter, "the general reading is in the accusative case as a predicate of the verb 'kan', and the people of Medina raised it to mean: if there is only one, "for her is half and for his parents," meaning for the parents of the deceased, as a metaphor for something not mentioned, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child, meaning that the father and mother each have a sixth of the inheritance if there is a child or a son's child and the father is the one who has a fixed share, but if he has no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read for his mother with a kasra on the hamza because of the difficulty of the damma after the kasra, and the others read with a damma on the basis of the original, if he has brothers, two or more males or females, then for his mother is a sixth, and the remainder goes to the father if there is a father with her, and the brothers do not have an inheritance with the father, but they block the mother from a third to a sixth.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The maternal brothers do not deprive from a third to a sixth unless there are three of them. He was the only one to say this, and he said: Because God Almighty said: But if he had brothers, then to his mother is a sixth, and two people are not called brothers, so we say that the collective noun may be used for the dual because the collective is adding one thing to another and it is present in two people as God Almighty said: For your hearts have become hardened (al-Tahrim 66:4). The heart was mentioned in the collective form, and added to the two people.

The Almighty said: After any bequest he may have made or debt. Ibn Kathir, Ibn Amir, and Abu Bakr read yusawi with a fatha on the sad for what the doer is not named, and likewise the second. Hafs agreed with the second, and the others read with a kasra on the sad because the deceased was mentioned before, as evidenced by the Almighty's saying: After any bequest he may have made, and you bequeath.

Ali ibn Abi Talib may God be pleased with him said: "You recite the will before the debt, and the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) began with the debt before the will." This is a consensus that the debt comes before the will. The meaning of the verse is the collection, not the order, and the statement that the inheritance is delayed after the debt and the will together, meaning: after the will, whatever it was, or the debt if it was, then the inheritance is delayed after each one of them.

Your fathers and your sons, meaning: those who inherit you, your fathers and your sons, you do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit, meaning: you do not know that they are more beneficial to you in religion and in this world. Some of you think that the father is more beneficial to him, and I know who is more beneficial to you, and I have managed your affairs in a way that is in your best interest, so follow him. Abdullah ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The most obedient of you to God Almighty, from fathers and sons, will be the highest in rank on the Day of Resurrection. God Almighty intercedes for the believers for one another. If the father is higher in rank in Paradise, his son will be raised to him, and if the son is higher in rank, his father will be raised to him so that their eyes may be comforted by that, an ordinance from God, meaning: what He has decreed of inheritances, Indeed, God is Knowing, of the affairs of the servants, Wise, by establishing rulings.

Allah instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females. If there are more than two, for them is two-thirds of what he left; if there is only one, for her is half. And for his parents, for each one of them is a sixth of what he left if he had a child. But if he had no child and his parents inherit him, then for his mother is a third. But if there are If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth, after any bequest he may have made or debt. Your fathers and your children - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit - an obligation from Allah. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Wise.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

11 God commands you He orders you and enjoins upon you. Concerning your children concerning their inheritance, which is a summary of its details. For the male is equal to the portion of two females meaning that each male is counted as having two females when the two categories are combined, so his share is doubled. The specification of the male by specifying his portion is because the intention is to clarify his superiority, and to draw attention to the fact that doubling is sufficient for preference, so they are not deprived completely, and they share the same aspect. The meaning is for the male among them, so it was deleted because it is known. If they are women meaning that if the children are pure women with no male with them, the pronoun is feminine, so the pronoun is feminine in consideration of the report or in interpretation of the newborns. More than two is a second report, or an attribute of the women, meaning women more than two. For them are two-thirds of what the deceased among you left behind, and the meaning indicates it. And if there is only one, then for her is half meaning if the newborn is only one. Nafi' read it with the nominative case on the perfect kana, and there was a difference of opinion regarding the two. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said that their ruling is the ruling on one, because God Almighty made two-thirds for what is above them. The rest said that their ruling is the ruling on what is above them, because when God Almighty explained that the share of the male is like the share of two females if there is a female with him, which is two-thirds, this required that their share be two-thirds. Then when this suggested that the share would increase with the increase in number, He rejected that by saying: If there are women more than two. This is supported by the fact that since the one daughter deserved a third with her brother, then it is more appropriate that she deserves it with a sister like her. And the two daughters are closer in kinship than the two sisters, and two-thirds were assigned to them by God Almighty's saying: For them are two-thirds of what he left. "And for his parents" and for the parents of the deceased. "For each one of them" is a substitute for it by repeating the operator and its benefit is to specify that each one of them deserves a sixth, and the detail after the generality is for emphasis. "A sixth of what he left if he had any" meaning the deceased. "A child" is male or female, but the father takes one-sixth with the female by the obligatory share, and what remains from those with obligatory shares also by agnatic kinship. "If he has no child and his parents inherit him" only. "For his mother is a third" of what he left. The father's share was not mentioned, because when he assumed that the heirs are only his parents and specified the mother's share, it was known that the remainder is for the father. It is as if he said: For them is what he left in thirds. Based on this, she should have, where one of the spouses is with them, one-third of what remains of his obligatory share, as the majority said, not one-third of the money, as Ibn Abbas said, because it leads to giving preference to the female over the male who is equal to her in proximity, which is contrary to the position of the Shari'ah. "If he has brothers, then for his mother is a sixth" by his divorce, indicating that the brothers want her from one-third to one-sixth, even if they do not inherit with the father. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, that they take the sixth from which they withheld the mother, and the majority are of the opinion that what is meant by brothers is a number of those who have brothers without considering the third, whether they are brothers or sisters, and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: The mother does not withhold from the third less than three nor the pure sisters, taking the apparent meaning. Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read for his mother with a kasra on the hamza following the kasra that preceded it. After any bequest he may have bequeathed or debt is related to what preceded it from the division of all inheritances, meaning these shares are for the heirs after what was from a bequest or debt, and he only said with the or of permission without the waw to indicate that they are equal in obligation and are presented before the division together and individually, and he presented the bequest before the debt, and it is later in the ruling because it is similar to the inheritance and is difficult for the heirs and everyone is encouraged to do it, and the debt is either rare. Ibn Kathir, Ibn Amir, and Abu Bakr read with a fatha on the sad. Your fathers and your children - you do not know which of them is nearer to you in benefit. That is, you do not know who is more beneficial to you than those who inherit from you from your ancestors and descendants in your immediate and future lives, so seek in them what God has commanded you to do, and do not deliberately favor some and deprive others. It was narrated that one of the offspring was of a higher status than the other in Paradise and asked to be raised to him so he was raised through his intercession. Or from your heirs among them or from those among them who made a will and exposed you to the reward by carrying out his will, or from those who did not make a will and saved you his money, then this is a confirmed objection to the matter of division or implementation of the will. A duty from God is a confirmed source, or a source that God commands you because it means He commands you and imposes upon you. Indeed, God is Knowing of interests and ranks. Wise in what He has decreed and predestined.

Surat al-Nisa 4:12

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they have made or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you have made or Debt. And if a man or woman is to be inherited by a distant relative and he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if they are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have made or a debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from Allah. And Allah is Knowing and Forbearing.

Surat al-Nisa 4:12

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they have made or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you have made or Debt. And if a man or woman is to be inherited by a distant relative and he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if they are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have made or a debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from God. And God is Knowing and Forbearing.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child from you or from someone else But if they have a child, then for you is a quarter of what they leave after any bequest they may have bequeathed or debt and the son's child is included with the child in this by consensus And for them that is, the wives, whether they are multiple or not (A quarter of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child) from them or from someone else Then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you may have bequeathed or debt and the son's child is like the son in this by consensus And if there is a man who inherits an adjective and the predicate Kalalah that is, he has no father or child Or a woman who inherits as a Kalalah And for him that is, the deceased has as a Kalalah A brother or sister that is, from the mother, and Ibn Masoud and others read it For each one of them is a sixth of what he left But if there are that is, the brothers and sisters from the mother More than that that is, from one Then they share in a third in which the male and female are equal After any bequest he may have bequeathed or debt. Harmful) a state of the pronoun wasith meaning that it does not cause harm to the heirs by bequeathing more than a third wasith a confirmed source to bequeath to you from God, and God is Knowing of what He has planned for His creation of obligations Forbearing in delaying punishment for those who disobey Him, and the Sunnah has specified the inheritance of those mentioned to those who do not have an obstacle such as killing, difference of religion, or slavery.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And for you, O people, is half of what your wives leave behind, after their death of wealth and inheritance, if they have no child, on the day of their death, neither male nor female. But if they have a child, that is, if your wives have a child, male or female, then for you is a quarter of what they leave behind, of wealth and inheritance, as an inheritance for you from them, after any bequest he may have made or debt, meaning: That is for you as an inheritance from them, from what remains of their estates and wealth, after paying off their debts that they owe when they die, and after carrying out their permissible bequests if they made them.

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be exalted, means: And for them is a fourth of what you leave behind if you have no child. And for your wives, O al-Nas 114: a fourth of what you leave behind after your death of wealth and inheritance, if one of you dies and has no children, male or female. But if you have children, he says: If one of you dies and has a child, male or female, whether the child is one or many, then for them is an eighth of what you leave behind, he says: Then for your wives at that time from your wealth and your estate that you leave behind after your death, is an eighth after paying off your debts that the death event occurred to you and that are owed to you, and after executing your permissible wills that you bequeathed.

Rather, it was said: After any bequest you may have made or any debt, so the mention of the bequest was mentioned before the mention of the debt, because the meaning of the statement is: Indeed, what I have imposed on whoever among you has imposed it in these verses is for him after the removal of the remaining of these two from the wealth of the deceased among you, from a bequest or a debt. Therefore, it is the same to mention the bequest before the debt, and to mention the debt before the bequest, because the meaning of that did not mean removing the two things: the debt and the bequest from his wealth, so mentioning the debt is more appropriate to begin with than mentioning the bequest.

Abu Jaafar said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Even if a man or woman inherits as a result of his relatives.

Then the reading differed in the reading of that.

This is read by most Muslims: And if a man leaves behind a distant relative, meaning: if a man leaves behind a distant relative.

According to this statement, Kalala is a noun derived from their saying: The lineage crowned him with a crown and a kalalat, meaning: the lineage was attached to him.

Some of them read it: And if a man inherits as a kalaalah, meaning: because a man inherits as a kalaalah, meaning: someone who is kind to him by lineage, such as a brother or sister.

The people of interpretation differed regarding the Kalala.

Some of them said: It is everything except the father and the son.

Who said that?

Al-Walid bin Shuja' Al-Sakuni told us, he said, Ali bin Mashair told me, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: Abu Bakr, may God have mercy on him, said: I have seen an opinion regarding Kalala. If it is correct, then it is from God alone, with no partner for Him. If it is wrong, then it is from me and from Satan, and God is innocent of it: Kalala is everything except the child and the parent. So when 'Umar, may God have mercy on him, became caliph, he said: I am ashamed before God, the Blessed and Exalted, to contradict Abu Bakr in an opinion he saw.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Asim Al-Ahwal told us, he said, Al-Sha'bi told us: Abu Bakr, may God have mercy on him, said about the kalalah: I will say my opinion about it, and if it is correct, then it is from God: it is what is less than a son and a father. He said: Then when Umar, may God have mercy on him, came, he said: I am ashamed before God to contradict Abu Bakr.

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Asim Al-Ahwal, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: that Abu Bakr and Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with them, said: The Kalala is the one who has neither a child nor a parent.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Imran bin Hudayr, on the authority of Al-Sumait, he said: Omar was a wealthy man, and one day he went out and he was saying with his hand like this, moving it, except that he said: A time came upon me and I did not know what Kalala was, and Kalala is everything except the child and the parent.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Amer, on the authority of Abu Bakr, who said: Kalala is everything except the child and the parent.

Yunus told me, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Muhammad, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Kalala is the one who has neither a child nor a parent.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I heard Ibn Jurayj narrating, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muhammad, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The Kalala is the one who has neither a child nor a parent.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Hanafiyyah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Kalala is everything except the child and the parent.

Ibn Bashar and Ibn Wakee' told us, they said: Abd al-Rahman told us, he said: My father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim ibn Abd, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim ibn Abd al-Saluli, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Kalala is everything except the child and the parent.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And if a man or woman leaves no children or relatives, he said: The one who leaves no children or relatives is the one who leaves no children or parents.

Muhammad bin Ubaid Al-Maharbi told me, he said, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim bin Abd, he said: I have never seen them except that they agreed that whoever dies and leaves neither a son nor a parent, he is a kalalah.

Tamim bin Al-Muntasir told us, he said, Ishaq bin Yusuf told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim bin Abd, he said: I have never seen them except that they agreed that the kalalah is the one who has neither a son nor a father.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim ibn Abd, he said: Kalala is everything except the child and the parent.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Ibn Fadil told us, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim ibn Abd, he said: I knew them and they were saying: If a man leaves neither a son nor a father, he inherits as a kalalah.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And if a man or woman leaves no children or kin, and the kin are those who have no children or parents, neither father nor grandfather, nor son nor daughter, so these are the brothers from the mother.

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Al-Hakam, he said regarding Kalala: What is less than a child and a parent.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: Kalala is anyone who has no father or son inheriting from him, and anyone who has no father or son inherits as Kalala, from their men and women.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammal told us, on the authority of Qatada, al-Zuhri, and Abu Ishaq, he said: The Kalala is the one who has neither a son nor a father.

Surat al-Nisa 4:12

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they have made or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you have made or Debt. And if a man or woman is to be inherited by a distant relative and he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if they are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have made or a debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from Allah. And Allah is Knowing and Forbearing.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Muhammad told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, Qatada, and Abu Ishaq, similarly.

Others said: Kalala is anyone who has no children. This is the statement of Ibn Abbas, and it is the report that we mentioned before from the narration of Tawus on his authority: that the brothers from the mother inherited one-sixth with the parents.

Others said: Kalala is everything except the father.

Who said that?

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Sahl bin Yusuf told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, he said: I asked Al-Hakam about Kalala, he said: It is what is below the father.

The Arabs differed about the noun that governs the Kalala.

Some of the Basrans said: If you wish, you can make kalalah the predicate of kan, and make yurath an attribute of the man. If you wish, you can make kan dispense with the predicate, such as waqa'a, and you can make kalalah the accusative of the state, meaning: kullah is inherited, just as one says: strikes while standing.

Some of them said that his saying: Kalalah is the predicate of was, and that the inheritor is not the Kalalah, but rather the inheritor is the Kalalah.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, in my opinion, is that the word kalalah is in the accusative case, as it derives from the phrase is inherited, and the predicate of was is is inherited. Although the word kalalah is in the accusative case as it derives from the phrase is inherited, it is not in the accusative case as a state, but as a source of the meaning of the statement. Because the meaning of the statement is: And if a man inherits his dependent as kalalah, then he left out mentioning his dependent, as it is sufficient to indicate the phrase is inherited to him.

Scholars differed about the term Kalalah.

Some of them said: The inherited kalalah is the deceased himself, and he is called that if he is inherited by someone other than his father and son.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding my statement about Kalala, he said: The one who leaves neither a father nor a son.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Sulayman al-Ahwal, on the authority of Tawus, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: I was the last person to see Umar, may God have mercy on him, and I heard him say: What I said is the truth. I said: What did you say? He said: The Kalala is the one who has no children.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father and Yahya bin Adam told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Salim bin Abd, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Kalala is the one who has neither a child nor a parent.

Others said: Kalala are the heirs who inherit from the deceased, if they are brothers or sisters or others, if they are neither a child nor a parent, based on what we have mentioned about their differences in this regard.

Others said: Rather, the kalalah includes the dead and the living together.

Who said that?

Yunus told me that Ibn Wahb told us that Ibn Zayd said: Kalala is the dead person who has no children or parents, or the living person, they are all Kalala. This one inherits through Kalala, and this one inherits through Kalala.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard, in my opinion, is what these people have said, which is that the kalalah are those who inherit from the deceased, other than his children and father. This is due to the authenticity of the report we mentioned on the authority of Jabir ibn `Abdullah, who said: I said, O Messenger of God! Only kalalah inherit from me, so what about the inheritance? And what:

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Amr ibn Sa'id, he said, we were with Humayd ibn `Abd al-Rahman in the slave market, he said: He got up from us and then returned, and said: This is the last of the three from Banu Sa'd who told me this hadith, they said: Sa'd fell seriously ill in Mecca, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to visit him, and said: O Messenger of God, I have a great deal of wealth, and I have no heir except for my descendants, so should I bequeath all of my wealth? He said: No.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ishaq bin Suwaid told us, on the authority of Al-Ala bin Ziyad, he said: An old man came to Umar, may God be pleased with him, and said: I am an old man, and I have no heir except for the Bedouin kalalah whose lineage is distant. Should I bequeath a third of my wealth? He said: No.

This report has proven the correctness of what we said about the meaning of Kalala, which is the heirs of the deceased without the deceased's descendants, except for his father and son.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: And he has a brother or sister, is for the man who inherits as a result of a brother or sister, meaning: a brother or sister from his mother, as in:

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', on the authority of al-Qasim, on the authority of Sa'd, that he used to recite: And if a man leaves no descendants, whether male or female, and has a brother or a sister, Sa'd said: On his mother's side.

Muhammad bin al-Muthanna told us, Abd al-Rahman told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', who said: I heard al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah say: I read to Sa'd: And if a man leaves no descendants, whether male or female, and has a brother or a sister, Sa'd said: On his mother's side.

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Wahb bin Jarir told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Ata', on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah bin Qanif, he said: I read to Sa'd, and he mentioned something similar.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Ya'la bin Ata' told us, on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Rabi'ah, he said: I heard Sa'd bin Abi Waqqas recite: And if a man leaves no descendants but has a brother or a sister from his mother.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid bin Zari' told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And he has a brother or a sister, these brothers from the mother: if there is one, then he gets one-sixth, and if there are more than that, then they share in one-third, and their males and females are equal in it.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And if a man or woman inherits as a kalalah and he has a brother or a sister, then these brothers from the mother are partners in the third, whether male or female.

Abu Ja'far said: His statement, For each one of them is a sixth, if the brother or sister is alone, and there is no other brother or sister from his mother, then he is entitled to a sixth of his brother's inheritance from his mother. If a brother and sister are together, or two brothers with no third with them from their mother, or two sisters likewise, or a brother and sister with no other with them from their mother, then each one of them is entitled to a sixth of their brother's inheritance from their mother. If they are more than that, meaning: if the brothers and sisters from the mother of the deceased who is inherited as a kalalah are more than two, then they are partners in a third, meaning: the third that was prescribed for the two of them if there is no other from their mother is an inheritance for them from their deceased brother who is inherited as a kalalah, a partnership between them, if they are more than two up to the number of their heads, no male among them is preferred over a female in that, but it is shared equally among them.

If someone says: How was it said: And he has a brother or sister, and it was not said: They have a brother or sister, and before that a man or a woman was mentioned, so it was said: And if a man or a woman inherits as a result of his or her inheritance?

It was said: It is the custom of the Arabs, when they mention two nouns before the predicate, and connect one of them to the other with or, then bring the predicate, they sometimes add the predicate to them, and sometimes to one of them. And if they add to one of them, it is the same to them whether they add that to whichever of the two nouns they mentioned they add it. So they say: Whoever has a boy or a girl, let him be good to him, meaning: let him be good to the boy - and let him be good to her, meaning: let him be good to the girl - and let him be good to them both.

As for his saying: For each of them is a sixth, and the mention of the brother and sister has already been made in conjunction with one of them with the other, and the indication that what is meant by the meaning of the speech is one of them in his saying: He has a brother or a sister, then that is only permissible, because the meaning of the speech is that for each of the two mentioned is a sixth.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His statement: After a bequest he made, is: This which was imposed on the deceased's brother, the heir, as a kalalah, and his sister or his brothers and sisters from his inheritance and estate, is only for them after paying the debt of the deceased that he owed on the day the event of death occurred from his estate, and after carrying out his permissible bequests that he bequeathed during his life to whomever he bequeathed them to after his death, as:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: After a bequest he made or a debt, and the debt is the most deserving of all the money, so it is paid on behalf of the deceased's trust, then the bequest, then the heirs divide their inheritance.

As for his saying: not causing harm, He, the Most High, means: after a bequest he makes, not causing harm to his heirs in their inheritance from him, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: not causing harm, he said: in the inheritance of his family.

Al-Qasim told me, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: not causing harm, he said: in the inheritance of his family.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: Not causing harm, a commandment from God, and God, Blessed and Exalted be He, hated causing harm in life and at death, and forbade it, and presented it in it, so harm is not permissible in life or death.

Surat al-Nisa 4:12

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they have made or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you have made or Debt. And if a man or woman is to be inherited by a distant relative and he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if they are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have made or a debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from Allah. And Allah is Knowing and Forbearing.

Nasr bin Abdul Rahman Al-Azdi told me, he said, Ubaidah bin Hamid told us, and Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, all of them, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding this verse: "Not causing harm. It is a commandment from God, and God is Knowing and Forbearing." He said: Harm in a commandment is one of the major sins.

Ibn Abi Al-Shawarib told us, he said, Yazid bin Zart told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Harm in a will is one of the major sins.

Humaid bin Mas'adah told us, Bishr bin al-Mufaddal told us, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Injustice in a will is one of the major sins.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday and Abd Al-A'la told us, they said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Harm and injustice in a will are among the major sins.

Musa bin Sahl al-Ramli told me, he said, Ishaq bin Ibrahim Abu al-Nadr told us, he said, Umar bin al-Mughira told us, he said, Dawud bin Abi Hind told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Harm in a will is one of the major sins."

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu Amr al-Taimi told us, on the authority of Abu al-Dhaha, he said: I entered with Masruq upon a sick person, and he was making a will. He said: Masruq said to him: Be just and do not go astray.

Not harmful was used as an exception to the statement: It is recommended.

As for his saying: A will, its accusative is from his saying: "God commands you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," and all the rest of what he commanded regarding the two. Then he said: A will from God, as a source from his saying: He commands you.

Some Arabists said: This is an accusative of his saying: For each of them is a sixth, "a will from God," and he said: It is like your saying: You have two dirhams for your family's expenses.

Abu Ja'far said: What we have said is correct, because God, may He be glorified, began mentioning the division of inheritances in these two verses by saying: God commands you, then He concluded that by saying: A command from God, informing that all of that is a command from Him to His servants, so putting His saying: a command in the accusative case as a source of His saying: He commands you is more appropriate than putting it in the accusative case as an explanation of His saying: For each of them is a sixth, for what we have mentioned.

And what is meant by His Most High's saying: A testament from God, is a covenant from God to you regarding what is due to you from the inheritance of those who have died among you. And God is Knowing, meaning: God is All-Knowing of the interests and harms of His creation, and who among the relatives and kinsmen of those who have died among you deserves to be given from his inheritance, and who among them is deprived of that, and the amount that each of them who deserves a share is entitled to, and other matters and interests of His servants. Forbearing, meaning: He is Forbearing with His creation, and He is patient in not hastening to punish them for their injustice to one another, in giving the inheritance to the people of strength and power from the children of the deceased, and the people of wealth and strength among them, without the people of weakness and inability from his young children and their females.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they may have bequeathed or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you may have bequeathed or debt. And if a man or a woman leaves no descendants but has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if there are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have bequeathed or debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from God. And God is Knowing and Forbearing."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: And for you, O men, is half of what your wives leave if they die without child. But if they have a child, then for you is a quarter of what they leave after any bequest or debt. It was previously mentioned that debt takes precedence over bequest, and after it is bequest, then inheritance. This is a matter agreed upon by scholars, and the ruling on sons' children, even if they are descendants, is the ruling on biological children. Then He said: And for them is a quarter of what you leave, to the end. Whether in the quarter or the eighth, the wife, two wives, three wives, or four wives share in it. And his saying: After a bequest etc. The discussion of it is as mentioned above, and the Almighty's saying: And if a man leaves behind descendants Kalala is derived from the word i'kal, which is what surrounds the head from its sides, and what is meant here is the one who inherits from his edges, not his ancestors or descendants, as Al-Sha'bi narrated on the authority of Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq that he was asked about Kalala, and he said: I say about it according to my opinion, if it is correct then it is from God, and if it is wrong then it is from me and Satan, and God and His Messenger are innocent of it, Kalala is the one who has no children or parents, so when Umar took office he said: I am ashamed to contradict Abu Bakr in an opinion he saw, narrated by Ibn Jarir and others. Ibn Abi Hatim said in his interpretation: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid told us on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Sulayman al-Ahwal, on the authority of Tawus, who said: I heard Ibn Abbas say: I was the last person to see Umar, and I heard him say: What I said, what I said, what I said, is the truth. He said: The kalalah is the one who has no children or parents. And this is what Ali and Ibn Masoud said, and it was authenticated from more than one source on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Zayd ibn Thabit, and this is what al-Sha'bi, al-Nakha'i, al-Hasan, Qatadah, Jabir ibn Zayd and al-Hakam say, and this is what the people of Medina, the people of Kufa and Basra say, and it is the opinion of the seven jurists and the four imams and the majority of the early and later generations, indeed all of them. More than one person has narrated the consensus on it, and a hadith with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet has been reported on it. Abu al-Husayn ibn al-Labban said: It has been narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas what contradicts that, which is that he is the one who has no children, and the correct opinion on his authority is the first, and perhaps the narrator did not understand what he meant. And the Almighty's saying: And he has a brother or a sister meaning from the mother as it is in the reading of some of the predecessors, including Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas, and Abu Bakr al-Siddiq interpreted it in this way as narrated by Qatadah from him: "For each one of them is a sixth. But if there are more than that, then they share in a third." The mother's brothers differ from the rest of the heirs in several ways: One they inherit with the one they have named, which is the mother. Second their males and females are equal in inheritance. Third they do not inherit unless their deceased leaves as a distant relative, so they do not inherit with a father, grandfather, son, or son's son. Fourth they are not increased beyond a third, even if their males and females are many. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Yunus told us on the authority of Al-Zuhri, he said: Umar ruled that the inheritance of brothers from the mother among them is for the male like the female, Al-Zuhri said: I do not think that Umar ruled that until he learned about it from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, because of this verse in which God Almighty said: But if there are more than that, then they are partners in a third. The scholars differed on the common issue, which is a husband, a mother or grandmother, and two of the mother's children and one or more of the children of the parents, so according to the majority of the opinion, the husband gets half, the mother or grandmother gets a sixth, and the mother's child gets a third, and the father's and mother's children share in it according to the common amount between them, which is the mother's brothers, and this issue occurred during the time of the Commander of the Faithful, Umar, so he gave the husband half, the mother a sixth, and made a third for the children of the mother, so the children of the parents said to him: O Commander of the Faithful, suppose our father was a donkey, are we not from one mother? So he made a partnership between them, and it was authenticated from him and from Uthman, and it is one of the two narrations from Ibn Masoud, Zaid bin Thabit and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Shuraih Al-Qadi, Masruq, Tawus, Muhammad bin Sirin, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Omar bin Abdul Aziz, Ath-Thawri and Sharik say this, and it is the school of Malik, Al-Shafi'i and Ishaq bin Rahawayh, and Ali bin Abi Talib did not make a partnership between them, but rather he gave a third to the children of the mother, and nothing to the children of the parents, and in this case because they are agnates. And Wakee' bin Al-Jarrah said: There is no disagreement about that from him. This is the opinion of Abi bin Ka'b and Abi Musa Al-Ash'ari. It is the well-known opinion from Ibn Abbas. It is the school of thought of Al-Sha'bi, Ibn Abi Laila, Abu Hanifa, Abu Yusuf, Muhammad bin Al-Hasan, Al-Hasan bin Ziyad, Zafar bin Al-Hudhayl, Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal, Yahya bin Adam, Na'eem bin Hammad, Abu Thawr and Dawud bin Ali Al-Dhahiri, and Abu Al-Hussain bin Al-Labban Al-Fardii, may God have mercy on him, chose it in his book Al-Ijaz. His saying: After a bequest he may have made or a debt that is not harmful, meaning that his bequest should be based on justice, not on harm, injustice, or unfairness, such that he deprives some of the heirs, reduces them, or increases them beyond what God has decreed for them of the obligatory share. Whoever strives to do that is like someone who opposes God in His wisdom and His division. And for this reason Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu al-Nadr al-Dimashqi al-Faradisi told us, Umar ibn al-Mughira told us, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Harm in a will is one of the major sins. And Ibn Jarir narrated it in the same way from this Umar ibn al-Mughira, who is Abu Hafs al-Basri who lived in al-Masisah. Abu al-Qasim Ibn Asakir said: He is known as the Mufti of the Poor, and more than one of the Imams narrated from him. Abu Hatim al-Razi said about him: He is a sheikh. And Ali ibn al-Madini said: He is unknown and I do not know him, but al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Ali ibn Hajar on the authority of Ali ibn Musahhir, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, with a chain of transmission ending with him: Harm in a will is one of the major sins. And Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in the same way from Abu Sa'id al-Ashja, on the authority of A'idh ibn Habib, on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, and Ibn Jarir narrated it from a hadith of a group of hadith masters

Surat al-Nisa 4:12

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they have made or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you have made or Debt. And if a man or woman is to be inherited by a distant relative and he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if they are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have made or a debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from Allah. And Allah is Knowing and Forbearing.

on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, with a chain of transmission ending with him. And in Some of them: Ibn Abbas reads without harm. Ibn Jarir said: The correct one is the one that stops, and for this reason the imams differed regarding the acknowledgment to the heir, is it valid or not? There are two opinions one of them it is not valid because it is a suspicion that he may have bequeathed to him with the formula of acknowledgment. It has been proven in the authentic hadith that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God has given every person with a right his right, so there is no bequest to an heir. This is the school of Malik, Ahmad ibn Hanbal, Abu Hanifa, and the old opinion of al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on them. He went in the new opinion that the acknowledgment is valid. This is the doctrine of Tawus, Ata, Al-Hasan and Omar bin Abdul Aziz, and it is the choice of Abu Abdullah Al-Bukhari in his Sahih. He argued that Rafi bin Khadij recommended that the Fazariyyah should not reveal what was closed to them. He said: Some people said that his admission is not permissible due to the bad opinion of the heirs about him. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Beware of suspicion, for suspicion is the falsest of speech. And God the Most High said: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due. He did not specify an heir or anyone else. End of what he mentioned. So whenever the admission is correct and in accordance with what is in reality, this disagreement occurs in it. And whenever it is a trick and a means to increase some of the heirs and decrease others, it is forbidden by consensus and by the text of this noble verse: "Not to cause harm, a commandment from God. And God is Knowing and Forbearing." Then God the Most High said:

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 12- And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child The address here is to men. What is meant by child is the child of the loins or the child of the child, based on the consensus we have presented: But if they have a child, you have a quarter of what they leave This is agreed upon. The scholars did not differ that the husband is entitled to half if there is no child, and if there is a child, even if it is less, a quarter. His statement after a bequest etc. The discussion of it is as mentioned above. His statement "And for them is a quarter of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, they have an eighth of what you leave" This share with the child and the share without the child is reserved for one of the wives and shared by more than one, there is no disagreement about that, and the discussion of the will and debt is as mentioned above. His saying, And if a man leaves behind ascendants, what is meant by the dead man is the dead man, and is inherited is in the passive form of watraa not awratha and it is the predicate of kana and kalalah is a state of the pronoun is inherited meaning: he is inherited while he is a person with ascendants, or that the predicate is kalalah and is inherited is an attribute of a man, meaning if a man leaves behind ascendants who has no son or father, and is inherited is read with a light and heavy vowel, so kalalah is a direct object or a state, and the direct object is omitted, meaning he is inherited, and what is meant is the state of him being a person with ascendants, or it is a direct object for him, meaning because of ascendants. Ascendants are a source of the word takalluhu surrounded by lineage, meaning it surrounded him, and it is called al-ikleel because it surrounds the head. He is the dead person who has no son or father, this is the saying of Abu Bakr al-Siddiq, Umar, Ali and the majority of scholars, and the author of the book al-Ayn, Abu Mansur al-Lughawi, Ibn Arafah, al-Qutaibi, Abu Ubaid and Ibn al-Anbari said the same. It has been said that it is a consensus. Ibn Kathir said: The people of Medina, Kufa and Basra say the same, and it is the saying of the seven jurists, the four imams, the majority of the predecessors and successors, and all of them. More than one person has narrated the consensus, and a hadith attributed to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) has been reported on this matter. Abu Hatim and Al-Athram narrated on the authority of Abu Ubaidah that he said: Kalalah is anyone who has no father, son or brother inheritors, so he is considered a Kalalah among the Arabs. Abu Umar ibn Abd al-Barr said: Abu Ubaidah mentioned the brother here with the father and son in the condition of Kalalah, which is a baseless mistake, and no one else mentioned him in the condition of Kalalah. What is narrated on the authority of Abu Bakr and Umar that Kalalah is only for those who have no children, they have retracted from it. Ibn Zayd said: Kalalah is the living and the dead together, and they called the kinship Kalalah because they surround the dead from all sides and are not from him and he is not from them, unlike the son and father, who are two sides of him, so if they are gone, the lineage surrounds him. It was said that Kalalah is taken from Kalal, which means exhaustion, so it is as if the inheritance goes to the heir from a distance and exhaustion. Ibn al-A'rabi said: The Kalala are the distant cousins. In short, whoever reads yuyrith kalalah with a doubled kasra on the ra', which is some of the Kufians, or with a light ra', which is al-Hasan and Ayoub, made the Kalala the kinship. And whoever reads yuyrith with a fatha on the ra', which is the majority, it is possible that the Kalala is the dead person, and it is possible that it is the kinship. It has been narrated from Ali, Ibn Mas'ud, Zaid ibn Thabit, Ibn Abbas, and al-Sha'bi that the Kalala is anyone other than the son and the father among the heirs.

Al-Tabari said: The correct view is that the Kalala are those who inherit from the dead person other than his son and father, due to the authenticity of the hadith of Jabir: "So I said: O Messenger of God, only the Kalala inherit me, so should I bequeath all of my money? He said: No." End quote. It has been narrated from Ata' that he said: The Kalala is the money. Ibn al-Arabi said: This is a weak statement that has no basis. The author of al-Kashshaf said: The Kalala applies to three: the one who does not leave behind a son or a father, the one who is neither a son nor a father among those who are left behind, and the kinship from other than the son and the father. End quote. His saying, or a woman is connected to a man restricted by what it is restricted by: that is, or a woman who inherits as a kalaalah. His saying, and he has a brother or a sister, Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas read it from the mother, and we will mention who transmitted that from him. Al-Qurtubi said: The scholars agreed that the brothers here are the brothers through the mother. He said: There is no disagreement among the people of knowledge that the inheritance of brothers through the father and mother or through the father is not like this, so their consensus indicates that the brothers mentioned in the Almighty's saying, And if there are brothers, whether male or female, then the male will have the share of two females, are the brothers through both parents or through the father. The pronoun was used singularly in His saying, and he has a brother or a sister, because what is meant is each one of them, as is the custom of the Arabs when they mention two names that are equal in ruling. They may mention the pronoun referring to them singularly, as in the Almighty's saying, And seek help through patience and prayer, and indeed, it is difficult, and His saying, They hoard gold and silver and do not spend it in the way of God. And they may mention it in dual form, as in His saying, Whether he is rich or poor, God is more worthy of both of them. We have already presented a longer discussion of this than what is mentioned here. His statement, If they are more than that, then they are partners in the third, refers to his statement, and he has a brother or sister, meaning: more than the single brother or sister by one, and that is if there are two or more, two males or two females or a male and a female. This has been used as evidence that the male is like the female among maternal siblings, because God shared among them in the third, and did not mention the superiority of the male over the female as He mentioned in the case of sons and siblings from both parents or from the father. Al-Qurtubi said: This is a consensus. The verse indicates that if the issue is completed by maternal siblings, they are older than siblings from both parents or from the father, and that is in the issue called the donkey share, which is if the deceased leaves behind a husband, a mother, two maternal siblings, and siblings from both parents, then the husband gets half, the mother gets a sixth, the two maternal siblings get a third, and the siblings from both parents get nothing. The reason for this is that the condition under which brothers from the mother inherit is found, which is that the deceased is a kalaalah, and this is supported by the hadith: Give the obligatory shares to those entitled to them, and whatever remains is for the nearest male relative. This is in the two Sahihis and others. We have established the evidence of the verse and the hadith on this in the treatise that we called Al-Mabahith

Al-Durriya fi Al-Mas'ala Al-Ham'ariyya. There is a well-known disagreement among the Companions and those who came after them on this issue. His statement, After a bequest he may have bequeathed or a debt, is discussed as mentioned above. His statement, Not causing harm, that is, he bequeaths while not causing harm to his heirs in any way, such as acknowledging something that is not against him or bequeathing a bequest for no purpose other than harming the heirs. Or he bequeaths to an heir absolutely or to someone else more than a third and the heirs do not approve of it, and this restriction, I mean his saying: not causing harm refers to the will and the debt mentioned, so it is a restriction for them. So whatever acknowledgements of debts or wills that are forbidden to him, or whose owner has no intention other than harming his heirs, is void and rejected, and nothing is executed from it, neither a third nor less than that. Al-Qurtubi said: The scholars agreed unanimously that a will to an heir is not permissible. This restriction, I mean not causing harm, is a restriction for all of the above from the will and the debt. Abu Al-Su'ud said in his interpretation: The restriction is specific to this situation because the heirs are likely to be negligent in their right. His saying a will from God is in the accusative case as a source: that is, he bequeaths to you that as a will from God, like his saying an obligation from God. Ibn 'Atiyyah said: It is valid for something harmful to be done in it. Meaning: That harm befalls it or because of it, so He befalls it figuratively, so the will is in this case the object, because the active participle is based on the state or because it is negated in meaning. Al-Hasan read a will from God in the accusative case with the active participle added to it, like his saying: O thief of the people of the house tonight. And the fact that this will is from God Almighty is evidence that He has commanded His servants with these details mentioned in the inheritance laws, and that every will from His servants that contradicts it is preceded by God's will, such as the wills that include favoring some heirs over others or that include harm in some way.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

12- The Almighty said: "And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they may have made or debt." This is regarding the inheritance of husbands. And for them is a fourth, meaning: the wives are a fourth, "of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you may have made or debt." This is regarding the inheritance of wives. If a man has four wives, then they share in a quarter and an eighth.

The Almighty said: And if a man or a woman leaves behind ascendants, ascendants, and the structure of the verse is: And if a man or a woman leaves behind ascendants, and it is an accusative of the source, and it was said: as a predicate of what its agent was not named, and its interpretation is: If a man leaves behind his money ascendants.

They differed about the Kalala. Most of the

Surat al-Nisa 4:12

And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a fourth of what they leave after any bequest they have made or debt. And for them is a fourth of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you have made or Debt. And if a man or woman is to be inherited by a distant relative and he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth. But if they are more than that, then they are partners in a third after any bequest he may have made or a debt that does not cause harm. A bequest from Allah. And Allah is Knowing and Forbearing.

companions held that the Kalala is the one who has neither a child nor a father. It was narrated on the authority of Al-Ubayy who said: Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, was asked about the Kalala, so he said: I will say something about it based on my opinion. If it is correct, then it is from God, and if it is wrong, then it is from me and the devil. I see that it is everything except the father and the father. When Umar, may God be pleased with them both, became caliph, he said: I am too shy before God to reject something that Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, said.

Tawus said that the Kalala is the one who has no children, and this is one of the two narrations from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, and one of the two sayings from Omar, may God be pleased with him. Those who said this argued with the words of God Almighty: "Say: God gives you a ruling concerning Kalala. If a man dies and leaves no child," and its explanation among the general public is taken from the hadith of Jabir ibn Abdullah, because the verse was revealed about him and he did not have a father or son on the day it was revealed, because his father Abdullah ibn Haram was killed on the Day of Uhud, and the verse of Kalala was revealed at the end of the life of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so the matter of Jabir became an explanation of the meaning of the verse because it was revealed about him.

They differed as to who is the Kalala a name for? Some of them said: It is a name for the deceased, and this is the opinion of Ali and Ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with them, because he died without losing both sides, so each column is a lineage. Some of them said: It is a name for the heirs, and this is the opinion of Saeed bin Jubair, because they crown the deceased from his sides, and there is no one in the column of lineage, like a crown surrounding the head and the middle of the head is a mole, and this is indicated by the hadith of Jabir, may God be pleased with him, where he said: Only Kalala inherits me, meaning: I am inherited by heirs who are neither a son nor a father.

Al-Nadr bin Shumayl said: Kalala is the name for money. Abu Al-Khair said: A man asked Uqba about Kalala, so he said: Are you not surprised that this man asks me about Kalala, and nothing has made things difficult for the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as much as Kalala has made things difficult for them.

Omar, may God be pleased with him, said: There are three things that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have loved for us to have been among them than the world and what is in it: kalalah, the caliphate, and the doors of usury.

Ma'dan bin Abi Talha said: "Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, gave a sermon and said: I will not leave anything after me that is more important to me than kalalah. I did not consult the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about anything as I consulted him about kalalah, and he was not harsh with me about anything as he was harsh with me about kalalah, until he stabbed me in the chest with his finger and said: O Umar, is not the verse of summer at the end of Surat An-Nisa sufficient for you? If I live, I will pass judgment on it with a judgment that will be passed by those who read the Qur'an and those who do not read the Qur'an."

And say to him: Is not the verse of summer sufficient for you? He meant: God Almighty revealed two verses about kalalah, one of them in the winter, which is at the beginning of Surat An-Nisa, and the other in the summer, which is at the end of it, and it contains a clarification that is not in the verse of winter, and that is why He referred to it.

The Almighty said: And if he has a brother or a sister, then for each one of them is a sixth, meaning the brother and sister from the mother by agreement. Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas read: And he has a brother or a sister from the mother, and he did not say for them with the mention of the man and the woman before, according to the custom of the Arabs when they mention two names and then inform about them, and they are equal in ruling, perhaps it is added to one of them, and perhaps it is added to both of them, like the Almighty's saying: And seek help through patience and prayer, and indeed, it is difficult. (al-Baqarah 2:153)

If they are more than that, then they are partners in one-third. There is consensus that if the mother's children are two or more, they share one-third, male and female. Abu Bakr al-Siddiq may God be pleased with him said in his sermon: "Behold, the verse that God revealed at the beginning of Surat al-Nisa' regarding the inheritance, He revealed it regarding the child and the parent. The second verse is regarding the husband, wife, and siblings from the mother. The verse with which he concluded Surat al-Nisa' is regarding siblings from the father and mother. The verse with which he concluded Surat al-Anfal is regarding relatives, some of them are closer to others in the Book of God. "After a bequest he may have bequeathed or a debt, not causing harm to the heirs by exceeding one-third in the bequest." Al-Hasan said: It is to bequeath a debt that is not owed to him. A bequest from God, and God is Knowing and Forbearing. Qatada said: God disliked causing harm in life and at death, and He forbade it and presented it in it.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

12 "And for you is half of what your wives leave if they have no child. But if they have a child, then for you is a quarter of what they leave" meaning a child who inherits from her womb, or from the loins of her sons, or her sons' sons, and whether they are descended, male or female, from you or from others. "After any bequest they may have bequeathed or debt. And for them is a quarter of what you leave if you have no child. But if you have a child, then for them is an eighth of what you leave after any bequest you may have bequeathed or debt." A man is entitled, by right of marriage, to twice what a woman is entitled to, as in lineage. This is the analogy for every man and woman who share in the same direction and proximity. No exception is made except for the children of the mother, the freedman, and the freedwoman. The one and the number of them are equal in the quarter and the eighth. And if it is a man meaning the deceased. It is inherited meaning whoever inherits from him is inherited from the attribute of a man. Kalalah is the predicate of kan or yuzurtu is its predicate, and Kalalah is a state of the pronoun in it, which is he who did not leave a child or a parent. Or an object for it, and what is meant by it is a kinship that is not from the side of the father and the child. It is possible that a man is the heir and inherits from whom he inherits, and a kalalah is one who has neither a father nor a son. It was read yuyriith in the active form, so the dead man and kalalah have three meanings. The first is a predicate or a state, the second is an object for it, and the third is a direct object. It is originally a source meaning exhaustion. Al-A'sha said:

I swore that I would not mourn her death or her loss until I met Muhammad.

It was borrowed for a kinship that is not partial, because it is a kala a provision in addition to it, then it was used to describe the deceased and the heir in the sense of someone who has a kala a provision like when you say: So-and-so is from my kinship. Or a woman is in apposition to man. And for him means for the man, and his ruling was sufficient over the ruling of the woman because the apposition indicates that they share it. A brother or sister means from the mother, and this is indicated by the reading of Abu and Sa'd ibn Malik And for him a brother or sister, and that he mentioned at the end of the surah that the two sisters get two-thirds and the brothers get all, and this is not appropriate for the mother's children, and that what is estimated here is the mother's share, so it is appropriate for her children. For each one of them is a sixth, but if there are more than that, then they are partners in a third, making the male and female equal in the division because the indication is by pure femininity, and the meaning of the verse is that they do not inherit that with the mother and grandmother, just as they do not inherit with the daughter and the son's daughter, so the consensus was specific to it. After a bequest he has bequeathed or a debt that is not harmful meaning that is not harmful to his heirs by exceeding a third, or intending to harm by the bequest without seeking closeness to God and acknowledging a debt that is not binding on him, and it is a state of the subject of the verb to bequeath mentioned in this reading and indicated by his saying to bequeath in the passive form in the reading of Ibn Kathir, Ibn Amir, and Ibn Ayyash on the authority of Asim. A bequest from God is a confirmed source or accusative with not harmful as a direct object, and this is supported by the fact that it was read not harmful with the addition, meaning that a bequest from God, which is a third or less by increase, or a bequest from Him for the children by extravagance in the bequest and false acknowledgment. And God is Knowing of harm and other things. Forbearing He does not hasten to punish him.

Surat al-Nisa 4:13

These are the limits set by Allah. And whoever obeys Allah and His Messenger - He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein. And that is the great attainment.

Surat al-Nisa 4:13

These are the limits set by God. And whoever obeys God and His Messenger - He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein. And that is the great attainment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those the mentioned rulings regarding the matter of orphans and what follows the limits of God His laws that He has set for His servants so that they may act upon them and not transgress them and whoever obeys God and His Messenger in what He has ruled He will admit him with the letter ya and the letter nun as a shift (to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein eternally. And that is the great attainment)

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his saying: These are the limits of God. Some of them said: He means by it: These are the conditions of God.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: These are the limits of God, meaning: God's conditions.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: That is obedience to God.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: These are the limits of God, meaning: obedience to God, meaning the inheritances that God has named.

Others said: The meaning of this is: This is God's law and command.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: These are the duties of God.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is what we have explained, which is that the boundary of everything is what separates it from other things. Therefore, the boundaries of a house and the boundaries of land are called boundaries, because they separate what they are bounded by from other things.

Likewise, his statement: These are the limits of God, means: This is the division that your Lord has divided for you, and the obligations that He has imposed for your living from your dead in this verse, as He imposed and explained in these two verses, the limits of God, meaning: the divisions between obedience to God and disobedience to Him in your division of the inheritances of your dead, as Ibn Abbas said. And the reason for abandoning obedience to God, and what is meant by that is the limits of God, is that it is sufficient for those addressed to know that in the meaning of the speech from mentioning it. And the evidence for the correctness of what we said in that is his statement: And whoever obeys God and His Messenger, and the verse that follows it: And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger.

The interpretation of the verse is: This division that your Lord has divided among you, O people, upon which your Lord has divided the inheritances of your dead, chapters by which He has distinguished for you between His obedience and disobedience, and limits for you to which you must adhere and not transgress, so that He may know among you those who obey Him from those who disobey Him, in what He has commanded you to do regarding the division of the inheritances of your dead among you, and in what He has forbidden you from doing regarding it.

Then He, the Most High, informed us of what He had prepared for each group of them, saying to the group of people who obeyed Him in that: And whoever obeys God and His Messenger in doing what He commanded him to do, and adhering to what He set for him in the division of inheritances and other things, and avoiding what He forbade him from doing in that and other things, He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow.

His statement: He will admit him to gardens, meaning: orchards with rivers flowing beneath their plants and trees, abiding therein forever, meaning: remaining therein forever, never dying therein, never perishing, and never leaving therein, and that is the great attainment.

He says: And God will admit them into the gardens that He described as He described them, the great victory, meaning: the great success.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: These are the limits set by God, and whoever obeys God and His Messenger will enter it the verse, he said: Regarding the inheritances that were mentioned before.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: These are the limits of God, which He has set for His creation, and His obligations among them of inheritance and division, so abide by them and do not go beyond them to anything else.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Thirty-Five - The Almighty said: These are the limits set by God. And those means these, meaning these are the rulings of God that He has made clear to you so that you may know them and act upon them. And whoever obeys God and His Messenger regarding the division of inheritances, so he approaches it and acts upon it as God Almighty has commanded him, He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow. A sentence in the accusative case as an attribute of gardens.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

That is, these obligations and measures that God has made for the heirs according to their closeness to the deceased, their need for him, and their loss of him when he is not there, are the limits of God, so do not transgress or exceed them. That is why He said, And whoever obeys God and His Messenger, that is, in them, so He did not add some of the heirs nor subtract some of them by trickery or means, but rather He left them to the ruling of God, His obligation, and His division. "He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein. That is the great attainment. And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits, He will admit him to a Fire, to abide therein. And he will have a humiliating punishment," that is, because he is not what God has decreed and opposes God in His ruling. This only comes from dissatisfaction with what God has divided and decreed, and that is why He will punish him with humiliation in the painful, lasting punishment. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Ash'ath ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, A man may do the deeds of the good people seventy times. A year, so if he bequeaths something in his will, his evil deeds will be sealed and he will enter Hellfire. And a man may do the deeds of the evildoers for seventy years, then he is just in his will, and his good deeds will be sealed and he will enter Paradise." He said: Then Abu Hurairah said: Read if you wish, "These are the limits set by God, and whoever obeys God and His Messenger, He will admit him to Gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein. And that is the great attainment. And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits, He will admit him to the Fire, to abide therein. And he will have a humiliating punishment." Abu Dawud said in the chapter on harm in a will in his Sunan: Abdah ibn Abdullah told us, Abd al-Samad told us, Nasr ibn Ali al-Hadani told us, al-Ash'ath ibn Abdullah ibn Jabir al-Hadani told us, Shahr ibn Hawshab told me that Abu Hurairah told him that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A man or a woman may work in obedience to God for sixty years, then death comes to them, and they are harmed in their will, so Hellfire is obligatory for them. And he said: Abu Hurairah read to me from here: "After a bequest he has bequeathed or a debt that is not harmful, a bequest from God, and

God is All-Knowing, All-Forbearing. These are the limits set by God. And whoever obeys God and His Messenger - He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally. That is the great attainment. And thus it was narrated by Al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah from the hadith of Ibn Abdullah bin Jabir Al-Hadani with it. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is good and strange, and the chain of transmission of Imam Ahmad is more complete and perfect.

Fath al-Qadir

And the reference in his saying 13- "those" is to the previous rulings and he called them limits because they are not permissible to exceed and it is not permissible to transgress them and whoever obeys God and His Messenger in the division of inheritances and other legal rulings as is indicated by the generality of the wording He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

13- These are the limits of God, meaning: what was mentioned of the limited obligations, "And whoever obeys God and His Messenger - He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally. And that is the great attainment."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

13 Those refers to the rulings that were presented regarding orphans, wills, and inheritances. The limits of God are His laws, which are like the limited limits that may not be exceeded. "And whoever obeys God and His Messenger - He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally. And that is the great attainment."

Surat al-Nisa 4:14

And whoever disobeys Allah and His Messenger and transgresses His limits - He will put him into the Fire to abide eternally therein, and he will have a humiliating punishment.

Surat al-Nisa 4:14

And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits - He will put him into the Fire to abide eternally therein, and he will have a humiliating punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits - He will put him in both ways into a Fire to abide eternally therein, and he will have in it a humiliating punishment with humiliation. The pronouns in the two verses were taken into account, the word {whoever} and in {eternally} its meaning is

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger in doing what they commanded him to do of dividing inheritances as they commanded him to divide them among themselves and other than that of God's obligations, disobeying their command to what they forbade him from, and transgresses His limits, meaning: and transgresses the chapters of His obedience that He, the Most High, made a separation between them and His disobedience, to what He forbade him from doing of dividing the inheritances of their dead among their heirs and other than that of His limits, He will put him into a Fire to abide therein, meaning: remaining in it forever, never dying and never coming out of it, and for him is a humiliating punishment, meaning: and for him is a humiliating punishment, whoever is punished with it will be disgraced.

And in a similar manner to what we said in the interpretation of that, the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits, the verse, is about the inheritances mentioned before. Ibn Jurayj said: And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger, he said: whoever commits sins for which God will punish him.

If someone says: Will he who disobeys God and His Messenger in the division of inheritance be eternally in Hell?

It was said: Yes, if he combined their disobedience in that with doubt that God imposed on him what He imposed on His servants in these two verses, or he knew that and deviated from God and His Messenger in their command, according to what Ibn Abbas mentioned from the statement of those who said when the words of God, the Blessed and Exalted, were revealed to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females" to the end of the two verses: Does the one who does not ride a horse, nor fight the enemy, nor seize spoils, inherit half of the wealth or all of the wealth? In denunciation of God's division of what He divided from the inheritance of the people of inheritance among them according to what He divided in His Book, and he contradicted His ruling in that and the ruling of His Messenger, in denunciation of their ruling, as those whose affair Ibn Abbas mentioned from among the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, of the hypocrites about whom this verse was revealed and in their likes, denounced it, so he is among those who will remain in Hell forever, because by denouncing God's ruling in that, he becomes a disbeliever in God and outside the religion of Islam.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

And his saying: And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger means in the division of inheritances, so he does not divide it or act in accordance with it, and transgresses His limits meaning he disobeys His command, He will cast him into the Fire to abide eternally therein. And if disobedience means disbelief, then eternity is its door, and if it means major sins and transgressing the commands of God Almighty, then eternity is borrowed for a period of time, as you say: God made his kingdom eternal. And Zuhair said:

And there is no immortal except for the mountains of Rawasia

This meaning has been mentioned in more than one place. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read nadkhalhu with a nun in both places, meaning an addition to Himself, glory be to Him. The rest read it with a ya both of them, because the name of God Almighty was mentioned previously, meaning God will admit him.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

That is, these obligations and measures that God has made for the heirs according to their closeness to the deceased, their need for him, and their loss of him when he is not there, are the limits of God, so do not transgress or exceed them. That is why He said, And whoever obeys God and His Messenger, that is, in them, so He did not add some of the heirs nor subtract some of them by trickery or means, but rather He left them to the ruling of God, His obligation, and His division. "He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein. That is the great attainment. And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits, He will admit him to a Fire, to abide therein. And he will have a humiliating punishment," that is, because he is not what God has decreed and opposes God in His ruling. This only comes from dissatisfaction with what God has divided and decreed, and that is why He will punish him with humiliation in the painful, lasting punishment. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Ash'ath ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Shahr ibn Hawshab, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, A man may do the deeds of the good people seventy times. A year, so if he bequeaths something in his will, his evil deeds will be sealed and he will enter Hellfire. And a man may do the deeds of the evildoers for seventy years, then he is just in his will, and his good deeds will be sealed and he will enter Paradise." He said: Then Abu Hurairah said: Read if you wish, "These are the limits set by God, and whoever obeys God and His Messenger, He will admit him to Gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein. And that is the great attainment. And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits, He will admit him to the Fire, to abide therein. And he will have a humiliating punishment." Abu Dawud said in the chapter on harm in a will in his Sunan: Abdah ibn Abdullah told us, Abd al-Samad told us, Nasr ibn Ali al-Hadani told us, al-Ash'ath ibn Abdullah ibn Jabir al-Hadani told us, Shahr ibn Hawshab told me that Abu Hurairah told him that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A man or a woman may work in obedience to God for sixty years, then death comes to them, and they are harmed in their will, so Hellfire is obligatory for them. And he said: Abu Hurairah read to me from here: "After a bequest he has bequeathed or a debt that is not harmful, a bequest from God, and God is All-Knowing, All-Forbearing. These are the limits set by God. And whoever obeys God and His Messenger - He will admit him to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide eternally. That is the great attainment. And thus it was narrated by Al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah from the hadith of Ibn Abdullah bin Jabir Al-Hadani with it. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is good and strange, and the chain of transmission of Imam Ahmad is more complete and perfect.

Fath al-Qadir

And thus his saying 14- And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger Nafi' and Ibn Amir read We will admit him with a noon. The rest read it with a lower yaa. His saying And for him is a humiliating punishment means: And for him after he is admitted to the Fire is a punishment whose nature is unknown.

Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Jabir who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called me and I said: What do you command me to do with my wealth, O Messenger of God? So it was revealed. We have already mentioned that the reason for the revelation was the question of the wife of Sa'd ibn al-Rabi'. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of al-Suddi who said: The people of the Jahiliyyah did not give inheritance to slave girls or weak boys. A man would not inherit from his children except those who were able to fight. Then Abd al-Rahman, the brother of the poet Hassan, died and left behind a wife called Umm Kahah and five slave girls. The heirs took his wealth. Umm Kahah complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so God revealed this verse: "But if there are more than two women..." Then He said about Umm Kahah: And for them is a fourth of what you leave. Sa'id ibn Mansur, al-Hakim and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud who said: When 'Umar ibn al-Khattab took us on a path and we followed it, we found it easy. He was asked about a woman and two parents and he said: The woman gets a quarter, the mother gets a third of what remains, and what remains is for the father. Abdul Razzaq and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Zaid bin Thabit something similar. Ibn Jarir, Al-Hakim who authenticated it and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he entered upon Uthman and said: Two brothers do not prevent the mother from receiving a third. God said: But if he has brothers, and two brothers are not brothers in the language of your people. So Uthman said: I cannot prevent what was before me and has passed on in the regions and people have inherited it. Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Zaid bin Thabit that he said: The Arabs call two brothers brothers. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, Abd bin Hamid, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Al-Jarud, Al-Daraqutni and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ali who said: You read this verse: After a bequest he may have bequeathed or a debt, and the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) ruled on the debt before the bequest, and that the notables of the mother's children inherit from him, but not the children of the maternal uncles. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Your fathers and your sons - you know not which of them is nearer to you in benefit, meaning: The most obedient of you to God from among your fathers and sons will be the highest of you in rank with God on the Day of Resurrection, because God, the Exalted, will intercede for the believers for one another. Abd Ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, Nearer to you in benefit, he said: In this world. Sa'eed Ibn Mansur, Abd Ibn Humayd, Al-Darimi, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Saad Ibn Abi Waqqas that he used to recite, and he has a brother or a sister. Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi that none of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, inherited anything from the maternal siblings along with the grandfather. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Shihab that 'Umar ruled that the inheritance of maternal siblings among them is for the male like the female. He said: I do not think that 'Umar ruled that until he learned it from the Messenger of God, and for this verse in which God says, But if there are more than that, then they are partners in a third. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Hamid, al-Nasa'i, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Harm in a will is a major sin. Then he recited: not harmful. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi narrated it on his authority with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. In its chain of transmission is Umar ibn al-Mughira Abu Hafsa al-Masisi. Abu al-Qasim ibn Asakir said: He is known as the Mufti of the Poor, and more than one of the Imams narrated on his authority. Abu Hatim al-Razi said about him: He is a sheikh. He said: Ali ibn al-Madini: He is unknown, I do not know him. Ibn Jarir said: The authentic, mawquf hadith is the same. The men in the chain of transmission of this mawquf hadith are the men of the Sahih, for al-Nasa'i narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Ali ibn Hajar on the authority of Ali ibn Musahhir on the authority of Dawud ibn Abi Hind on the authority of Ikrimah on his authority. Ahmad, Abd ibn Humayd, Abu Dawud, al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, Ibn Majah who also narrated it and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) said: "A man may do the deeds of good people for seventy years, then if he makes a will, he is unfair in his will, and his deeds end with evil, so he enters the Fire. A man may do the deeds of evil people for seventy years, then he is just in his will, and his deeds end with good, so he enters Paradise." Then Abu Hurayrah said: Read if you wish, These are the limits set by God until His saying, A humiliating punishment. In its chain of transmission is Shahr ibn Hawshab, and there is a well-known discussion about him. Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Anas that the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) said: Whoever cuts off the inheritance of his heir, God will cut off his inheritance from Paradise on the Day of Resurrection. Al-Bayhaqi narrated it in al-Shu'ab on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace). Ibn Abi Shaybah and Sa'id ibn Mansur narrated it on the authority of Sulayman ibn Musa, who said: The Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) said, and he mentioned something similar. It has been proven in the two Sahih and others from the hadith of Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to visit him during his illness and said: I have a lot of wealth and none of my heirs is my daughter. Should I give two-thirds in charity? He said: No. He said: Half? He said: No. He said: A third? He said: A third, and a third is a lot. If you leave your heirs rich, it is better than leaving them poor, begging from people. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from Mu'adh ibn Jabal who said: God has given you a third of your wealth as charity, adding to your good deeds: meaning the will. In the two Sahih, it is narrated from Ibn 'Abbas who said: I wish that people would reduce the amount of a third to a quarter, because the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A third is a lot. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from Ibn 'Umar who said: A third was mentioned in a will in the presence of 'Umar, so he said: A third is moderate, neither stingy nor excessive. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from 'Ali who said: For me to bequeath a fifth is more beloved to me than a quarter, and for me to bequeath a quarter is more beloved to me than a third, and whoever bequeaths a third will not leave anything behind.

Surat al-Nisa 4:14

And whoever disobeys Allah and His Messenger and transgresses His limits - He will put him into the Fire to abide eternally therein, and he will have a humiliating punishment.

Benefit: It was reported in encouraging people to learn the obligatory duties and teach them what Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi reported in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Learn the obligatory duties and teach them to the people, for I am a person who will be taken away, and knowledge will be taken away and tribulations will appear until two people will differ about an obligatory duty and will not find anyone to rule on it." And they reported it on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Learn the obligatory duties and teach them, for it is half of knowledge, and it will be forgotten, and it is the first thing to be taken away from my nation. Narrations on encouraging people to learn the obligatory duties were reported on the authority of Umar, Ibn Masoud, and Anas, as well as a group of the Tabi'un and those who came after them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

14- And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits - He will put him into the Fire to abide eternally therein, and he will have a humiliating punishment. The people of Medina and Ibn Amir read We will enter him into Gardens and We will enter him into the Fire. In Surat Al-Fath We will enter him and We will punish him, and in Surat Al-Taghabun We will disbelieve and We will enter him, and in Surat At-Talaq We will enter him with the letter nun in them, and the others read it with the letter ya.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

14 And whoever disobeys God and His Messenger and transgresses His limits - He will put him into a Fire to abide eternally therein, and he will have a humiliating punishment. The pronoun is singular in enters, and immortals is plural for the word and meaning. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read we will enter with a nun, and immortals is an implied state, like saying: I passed by a man with a falcon, hunting with it tomorrow, and likewise immortal, and they are not descriptions of Paradise and Hell, otherwise the pronoun would have been made explicit because they are not related to the one for whom they are.

Surat al-Nisa 4:15

And those of your women who commit adultery, bring against them four witnesses from among you. And if they testify, then confine them to houses until death takes them or God ordains for them a way out.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And those who commit lewdness adultery [and from Sheikh Mahmoud Al-Rankousi that what is meant by it is lesbianism because the verses mentioned in the punishment for adultery came in Surat An-Nur. Dar Al-Hadith] of your women, bring against them four witnesses from among you meaning from your Muslim men and if they testify against them then confine them imprison them in houses and prevent them from mixing with people until death takes them meaning His angels or until God appoints for them a way a way to leave it, they were commanded to do that at the beginning of Islam, then He appointed for them a way by flogging the virgin a hundred times and banishing her for a year and stoning the married woman, and in the hadith when he explained the punishment he said: Take from me, God has appointed for them a way Narrated by Muslim

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And those who commit lewdness, and the women who commit adultery, that is: commit adultery, from among your women, and they are chaste, married or unmarried, then bring to witness against them four men from among you, meaning: bring to witness against them what they have committed of lewdness four men from among your men, meaning: from among the Muslims, and if they testify, against them, then confine them to houses, meaning: then imprison them in houses, until death takes them, meaning: until they die, or God appoints for them a way out, meaning: or God appoints for them a way out and a path to salvation from what they have committed of lewdness.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Abu Hisham Al-Rifai Muhammad bin Yazid told us, he said, Yahya bin Abi Zaida told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: "And those of your women who commit adultery, bring against them four witnesses from among you. And if they testify, confine them to houses," he ordered them to be confined to houses until they die, or God appoints for them a way out, he said: the prescribed punishment.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And those of your women who commit lewdness, he said: Adultery. He was ordered to punish them when four witnesses testify against them until they die, or God appoints for them a way, and the way is the prescribed punishment.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And those of your women who commit lewdness to or God appoints for them a way, so if a woman committed adultery, she would be confined to the house until she died. Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed after that: The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes (al-Nur 24:2), and if they were married, then stone them. This is the way that God appointed for them.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Or God will make for them a way, God has made for them, which is flogging and stoning.

Bishr bin Muadh told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And those who commit immorality, until he reached: or God appoints for them a way, this was before the limits, so they were both harmed by word, and by imprisoning the woman. Then God appointed a way for them, so the way for the one who was chaste was a hundred lashes and then stoned, and the way for the one who was not chaste was a hundred lashes and exile for a year.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Ata' bin Abi Rabah and Abdullah bin Katheer said: The obscenity is adultery, and the way is the prescribed punishment, stoning and flogging.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated, Asbat narrated, on the authority of al-Suddi: And those of your women who commit lewdness, bring against them four witnesses from among you to or God appoints for them a way, these are those who have been married and chaste. If a woman committed adultery, she would be confined to the house, and her husband would take her dowry, which would be his. This is what God said: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women by compulsion, nor prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality adultery. And live with them in kindness (An-Nisa': 9), until the prescribed punishments came and abrogated them, so she was flogged and stoned, and her dowry was an inheritance, so the way was flogging.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us, who said: I heard Al-Dahhak bin Muzahim say regarding His statement: Or God will make for them a way, he said: The punishment, the punishment abrogated this verse.

Abu Hisham Al-Rifai told us, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid: Or God will make for them a way, he said: One hundred lashes, for the perpetrator and the perpetrator.

Surat al-Nisa 4:15

And those of your women who commit adultery, bring against them four witnesses from among you. And if they testify, then confine them to houses until death takes them or Allah ordains for them a way out.

Al-Rafa'i told us, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of Warqa', on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Skin.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, Muadh bin Hisham told us, my father told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan bin Abdullah Al-Raqashi, on the authority of Ubadah bin Al-Samit, that whenever the revelation came down to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he would lower his head, and his companions would lower their heads. When it was over, he raised his head and said: God has made a way for them, the married woman for the married woman, and the virgin for the virgin. As for the married woman, she is flogged and then stoned, and as for the virgin, she is flogged and then banished.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan bin Abdullah, on the authority of Ubadah bin al-Samit, he said: The Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Learn from me, God has made a way for them. For a married woman, she is to be flogged one hundred times and stoned to death, and for a virgin, she is to be flogged one hundred times and banished for a year."

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan bin Abdullah, the brother of Banu Ruqash, on the authority of Ubadah bin As-Samit: Whenever the revelation came down to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he would be distressed by it and his face would turn red. Then God revealed to him one day, and he encountered that. When he was relieved, he said: Take from me, God has made a way for them: the married woman for the married woman, a hundred lashes and then stoning, and the unmarried woman for the unmarried woman, a hundred lashes and then exile for a year.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about his statement: "And those of your women who commit lewdness, bring against them four witnesses from among you. And if they testify, confine them to houses until death takes them or God ordains for them a way," he said, he says: Do not marry them until death takes them, and he did not expel them from Islam. Then this was abrogated, and the way was made to make a way for them. He said: So he made the way for her if she committed adultery while she was married, she was stoned and expelled, and he made the way for the virgin a hundred lashes.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Until death takes them or God ordains for them a way out, he said: flogging and stoning.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan Ibn 'Abdullah Al-Raqashi, on the authority of 'Ubadah Ibn Al-Samit, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Take from me, God has made a way for them, the married woman for the married woman and the virgin for the virgin. The married woman is to be flogged and stoned, and the virgin is to be flogged and banished.

Yahya bin Ibrahim Al-Mas'udi told me, he said, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Muslim Al-Basri, on the authority of Ubadah bin Al-Samit, he said: We were sitting with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when his face turned red, as if he did when revelation came down to him, and he was overcome by something like fainting because of the weight of that, and when he regained consciousness he said: Take from me, God has made a way for them, the virgins are to be flogged and exiled for a year, and the previously married are to be flogged and stoned.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings in the interpretation of his statement: Or God will make for them a way, is the saying of the one who said: The way that God, the Most High, has made for the married previously married is stoning, and for the unmarried, a hundred lashes and exile for a year, because of the authenticity of the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he stoned and did not flog, and the consensus of the argument that cannot be accepted in what I have transmitted, unanimously agreed upon, error, forgetfulness and lying, and the authenticity of the report from him that he ruled for the unmarried with a hundred lashes and exile for a year. So in what is authentic from him of his leaving out the flogging of the adulterers he stoned in his time, there is clear evidence of the weakness of the report that was narrated from Al-Hasan, from Hattan, from 'Ubadah, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The way for the married previously married is flogging and stoning.

It was mentioned that this verse in Abdullah's reading is: And those of your women who commit immorality. The Arabs say: I did something great, and something great, and I spoke something ugly, and ugly words.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has eight issues.

First - When God Almighty mentioned in this Surah being kind to women and delivering their dowries to them, and the matter led to mentioning their inheritance alongside the inheritances of men, He also mentioned being harsh upon them regarding the immorality they commit, so that the woman does not imagine that it is permissible for her to abandon chastity.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And those who "allātī" is the plural of allā, and it is an indefinite feminine noun, and it is definite and it is not permissible to remove the alif and lam from it for the sake of indefiniteness, and it is not complete except by connecting it, and there are three languages for it as mentioned above, and also the plural of allātī is by deleting the ya and keeping the masra, and the la'i with the hamza and keeping the ya, and the la with the kasra of the hamza and deleting the ya, and the la with the deletion of the hamza. If you make the plural plural, you say in allātī: al-lawātī and in la'a: al-lawāṭī. It has been narrated from them al-lawātī by deleting the ya and keeping the kasra, as Ibn al-Shajari said. Al-Jawhari said: Abu Ubaid recited:

Of those who claimed that their mothers had grown old

Al-Lawa, with the omission of the ta' and the diminutive of al-Laytiya, with the fatha and shaddah, said the rajaz poet.

After all this and all this and all

Some poets added the letter of address to that, and the letters of address do not enter into what contains the definite article except in our saying: O God alone, so it is as if he likened it to Him in that the definite article was not separated from it. He said:

For you, who has captured my heart, and you are stingy with your love for me

It is said: He fell into Al-Latiya and Al-Layti, which are two names of the calamity.

Third: The Almighty's saying: They commit an immorality. The immorality in this context is adultery, and the immorality is the ugly act, and it is a source like the consequence and well-being. Ibn Masoud read the immorality with the preposition ba.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: From among your women is an addition in the meaning of Islam and a clarification of the state of the believing women, as He said: And bring to witness two witnesses from among your men (al-Baqarah 2:282) because the unbeliever may be from the women of the Muslims by lineage and this ruling does not apply to her.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: Then bring four witnesses against them from among you, meaning from among the Muslims. So God made the testimony for adultery in particular four, to make it more severe for the claimant and to cover up for the servants. And the amendment of the witnesses to four in adultery is a fixed rule in the Torah, the Gospel and the Qur'an. God Almighty said: And those who accuse chaste women and do not produce four witnesses - flog them with eighty lashes (al-Nur 24:4) and He said here: Then bring four witnesses from among you against them. Abu Dawud narrated "on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah who said: The Jews came with a man and a woman from among them who had committed adultery, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Bring me the two most knowledgeable men from among you. So they brought him the two sons of Suriya and asked them: How do you find the matter of these two in the Torah? They said: We find in the Torah that if four testify that they saw his penis in her vagina like the tip of a kohl container, they are to be stoned. He said: What prevents you from stoning them? They said: Our authority has gone and we dislike killing. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called for witnesses, and they came and testified that they saw his penis in her vagina like the tip of a kohl container. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered that they be stoned." Some people said: The witnesses in adultery were only four so that two witnesses would be required for each. One of the adulterers is like the rest of the rights, since a right is taken from each one of them, and this is weak, because the oath is included in money and the stain is included in the blood money, and neither of them has any role here.

Sixth: The witnesses must be male, because he said, from among you, and there is no disagreement about this among the nation. They must be just, because God Almighty stipulated justice in sales and returns, and this is greater and therefore more appropriate. This is from applying the absolute to the restricted by evidence, as mentioned in the principles of jurisprudence. They must not be dhimmis, even if the ruling is on a dhimmi woman. This will come in Al-Ma'idah. Abu Hanifa's reliance on his saying, four from among you, is that if the husband is one of the witnesses in the slander, he does not swear an oath. This will be explained in Al-Noor, God willing.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: And if they testify, confine them to houses. This is the first punishment for adultery, and this was at the beginning of Islam, as stated by Ubadah ibn al-Samit, al-Hasan, and Mujahid, until it was abrogated by the harm that came after it, then that was abrogated by the verse of light and by stoning for married women. A group said, rather, the harm was the first, then it was abrogated by confinement, but the recitation was delayed and brought forward, as stated by Ibn Furak. This confinement and confinement in houses was at the beginning of Islam before the criminals became numerous, but when they became numerous and their strength was feared, a prison was built for them, as stated by Ibn al-Arabi.

Eighth - The scholars differed as to whether this imprisonment was a prescribed punishment or a threat of a prescribed punishment. There are two opinions: One of them is that he threatened a prescribed punishment, and the second is that it was a prescribed punishment, as stated by Ibn Abbas and Al-Hasan. Ibn Zayd added: And they were prevented from marriage until they died as a punishment for them when they sought marriage without a valid reason. This indicates that it was a prescribed punishment, rather more severe, except that the ruling was extended to a limit, which is harm in the other verse, despite the difference in the two interpretations of which came first, and both of them were extended to a limit, which is harm in the other verse, despite the difference in the two interpretations of which came first, and both of them were extended to a limit, which is "his saying, peace be upon him, in the hadith of Ubadah ibn Al-Samit:

Surat al-Nisa 4:15

And those of your women who commit adultery, bring against them four witnesses from among you. And if they testify, then confine them to houses until death takes them or Allah ordains for them a way out.

"Take from me, take from me. God has made a way for them: the virgin for the virgin, one hundred lashes and exile for a year, and the married woman for the married woman, one hundred lashes and stoning." This is similar to the words of God the Almighty: Then complete the fast until the night (al-Baqarah 2:187). When night comes, the ruling on fasting is lifted because its purpose has ended, not because it has been abrogated. This is the statement of the later scholars of the principles of jurisprudence, for abrogation only occurs in two opinions that are in conflict in every respect and that cannot be combined. Combining them is possible between imprisonment and reproach, and flogging and stoning. Some scholars have said: The harm and reproach remain with flogging, because they do not contradict each other, but rather they are applied to one person. As for imprisonment, it has been abrogated by consensus. The earlier scholars' use of abrogation in such a case is permissible, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The ruling at the beginning of Islam was that if a woman's adultery was proven by just evidence, she would be confined to a house and not allowed to leave it until she died. That is why He said, And those of your women who commit adultery, meaning adultery, "- bring against them four witnesses from among you. If they testify, confine them to houses until death takes them or God ordains for them a way." So the way that God ordained is the one that abrogated that. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The ruling was like that until God revealed Surat An-Nur, and abrogated it with flogging or stoning. And it was also narrated from Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Hasan, Ata' Al-Khurasani, Abu Salih, Qatadah, Zaid bin Aslam, and Ad-Dahhak, that it was abrogated, and this is a matter that is agreed upon. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Saeed told us, from Qatadah, from Al-Hasan, from Hattan bin Abdullah Al-Raqashi, from Ubadah bin As-Samit, who said: Whenever the revelation came down to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it affected him and he was distressed by that. His face turned red, so one day God Almighty revealed to him, and when he was relieved, he said: "Take from me, God has made a way for them: the married woman for the married woman, and the virgin for the virgin. The married woman gets one hundred lashes and is stoned, and the virgin gets one hundred lashes and is exiled for a year." Muslim and the Sunan scholars narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan, on the authority of Ubadah ibn As-Samit, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and its wording is: "Take from me, take from me, God has made a way for them: the virgin for the virgin gets one hundred lashes and is exiled for a year, and the married woman for the married woman gets one hundred lashes and is exiled for a year." Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith. And thus Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi narrated it on the authority of Mubarak ibn Fadal, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattan bin Abdullah al-Raqashi, on the authority of Ubadah, that whenever the revelation came down to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it was evident on his face. So when the verse, or God will appoint for them a way, was revealed, and when the revelation was lifted, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, "Take, take, God has appointed for them a way. For a virgin with a virgin, one hundred lashes and exile for a year. For a married woman with a married woman, one hundred lashes and stoning." Imam Ahmad also narrated this hadith on the authority of Wakee' ibn al-Jarrah, who told us al-Fadl ibn Dahlam, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Qubaysah ibn Harith, on the authority of Salamah ibn al-Muhabbak, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, "Take from me, take from me. God has appointed for them a way. For a virgin with a virgin, one hundred lashes and exile for a year. For a married woman with a married woman, one hundred lashes and stoning." And thus Abu Dawud narrated it at length from the hadith of al-Fadl ibn Dahlam, then he said: He is not a hafiz, he was a butcher in Wasit.

Another hadith Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Abbas bin Hamdan told us, Ahmad bin Dawud told us, Amr bin Abdul Ghaffar told us, Ismail bin Abi Khalid told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Masruq, on the authority of Abu Ka'b, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The two virgins are to be flogged and exiled, the two previously married women are to be flogged and stoned, and the two old men are to be stoned. This is a strange hadith from this source. Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, on the authority of his brother Isa bin Lahi'ah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Surat An-Nisa was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no imprisonment after Surat An-Nisa. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said that according to this hadith, the punishment of flogging and stoning should be combined with flogging for a married adulterer. The majority of scholars said that a married adulterer should only be stoned without flogging. They said: Because the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) stoned Ma'iz, the Ghamidiyah, and the two Jews, and did not flog them before that, so this indicates that stoning is not obligatory, but rather it was abrogated according to their statement. And God knows best. And the words of God the Most High: And those of you who commit it, punish them both means those who commit an immoral act, punish them both. Ibn 'Abbas may God be pleased with him, Sa'eed ibn Jubayr, and others said: That is, by cursing, insulting, and beating with sandals. And the ruling was thus until God abrogated it with flogging or stoning. 'Ikrimah, 'Ata', al-Hasan, and 'Abdullah ibn Katheer said: It was revealed regarding a man and a woman who commit adultery. Al-Suddi said: It was revealed regarding young men before they get married. Mujahid said: It was revealed about two men who committed - not by pronoun, and it seems that he meant sodomy - and God knows best. The people of Sunnah have narrated from the hadith of Amr ibn Abi Amr, on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever you see doing the deed of the people of Lot, kill the one who does it and the one to whom it is done. And His statement: But if they repent and amend means they desist and stop what they were doing and their deeds become good and righteous, then turn away from them means do not rebuke them with ugly words after that, because the one who repents from sin is like the one who has no sin. Indeed, God is ever Forgiving and Merciful. It has been proven in the two Sahih: If the female slave of one of you commits adultery, let him flog her the prescribed punishment and not reproach her meaning then do not reproach her for what she did after the prescribed punishment, which is expiation for what she did.

Fath al-Qadir

When God, the Almighty, mentioned in this Surah the kindness to women and the delivery of their dowries to them and their inheritance with men, He mentioned the severity towards them in what they commit of immorality so that they do not think that it is permissible for them to abandon chastity. 15- And those who is the plural of that according to the meaning, not the wording. There are different versions of it: those who are with the proof of the taa and the yaa, and al-Lat with the deletion of the yaa and keeping the kasra to indicate it, and al-Lai with the hamza and the yaa, and al-laa with the kasra of the hamza and deletion of the yaa. It is said in the plural of the plural al-lawati and al-liwati and al-lawat and al-liwa. The immorality: the ugly deed, and it is a source like al-'afiyah and al-'aqibah, and Ibn Mas'ud read al-fahishah. What is meant by it here is adultery specifically, and committing it and directly doing it. What is meant by His saying from your women is the Muslim women, and likewise from you is meant the Muslims. His saying, So keep them in houses. This was in the beginning of Islam, then it was abrogated by the saying of God Almighty, The adulterer and the adulteress, flog them. Some of the people of knowledge said that the mentioned imprisonment and the harm remain with the flogging, because there is no contradiction between them, rather combining them is possible. His saying, Or God will make for them a way out is what is in the authentic hadith of Ubadah from the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Take from me, God has made for them a way out, for the unmarried with the unmarried, one hundred lashes and a year's exile. The hadith.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

15- The Almighty said: And those of your women who commit lewdness, meaning: adultery, - bring against them four witnesses from among you, meaning: from among the Muslims, and this is addressed to the rulers, meaning: demand against them four witnesses, and it is a statement that adultery is not proven except by four witnesses. And if they testify, then confine them, so imprison them, in houses until death takes them or God ordains for them a way out, and this was in the beginning of Islam before the revelation of the limits. If a woman committed adultery, she was confined to the house until she died, then it was abrogated in the case of a virgin with flogging and exile, and in the case of a married woman with flogging and stoning.

Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad al-Khal told us, Abu al-Abbas al-Asam told us, al-Rabi' told us, al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, told us, Abdul Wahhab told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Ubadah bin al-Samit, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Take from me, take from me: God has made a way for them, a virgin for a virgin, one hundred lashes and exile for a year, and a married woman for a married woman, one hundred lashes and stoning." Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, said: A trustworthy person told me that al-Hasan used to intervene between him and Ubadah Hattat al-Raqashi, and I do not know whether Abdul Wahhab intervened between them and he dropped my letter or not.

Our Sheikh, the Imam, said: The hadith is authentic. It was narrated by Muslim bin Al-Hajaj, on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna, on the authority of Abdul-A'la, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattat bin Abdullah, on the authority of Ubadah. Then flogging was abrogated for the married woman, but stoning remained according to most scholars.

A group said that he combined them. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he flogged Shuraha al-Hamdaniyyah one hundred times on Thursday, then stoned her on Friday. He said: I flogged her according to the Book of God and stoned her according to the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Most scholars agree that a previously married woman is not flogged with stoning, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, stoned Ma'iz and the woman from Ghamidiyah and did not flog them.

According to Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him: Banishment has also been abrogated with regard to the virgin. Most scholars agree that it is proven. Nafi' narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them both, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, beat and banished her, and that Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, beat and banished her, and that Umar, may God be pleased with him, beat and banished her.

Surat al-Nisa 4:15

And those of your women who commit adultery, bring against them four witnesses from among you. And if they testify, then confine them to houses until death takes them or Allah ordains for them a way out.

They differed as to whether keeping oneself in the house was a prescribed punishment that was abrogated, or whether it was confinement to make the prescribed punishment apparent? There are two opinions.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

15 And those of your women who commit lewdness meaning they do it. It is said that he committed lewdness, came to her, covered her, and overwhelmed her if he did it. Lewdness is adultery, to increase its ugliness and heinousness. Then bring to witness against them four of you so ask those who accused them to bring four believing men to testify against them. If they testify, then confine them to houses so confine them to houses and make them a prison for them. Until death takes them death takes their souls, or the angels of death take them. It was said: It was said that this was their punishment in the early days of Islam, then it was abrogated by the prescribed punishment. It is possible that what was meant by it was the recommendation to confine them after they were flogged so that what happened due to going out and being exposed to men would not happen to them. The prescribed punishment was not mentioned, as the Almighty said: The adulterer and the adulteress "or God will appoint for them a way" such as specifying the prescribed punishment that saves from imprisonment, or marriage that makes fornication unnecessary.

Surat al-Nisa 4:16

And those of you who commit it, punish them. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them. Indeed, God is ever Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And those two with a light and heavy nun who commit it meaning the immorality of adultery or sodomy among you meaning the men then harm them by cursing and beating them with sandals but if they repent from it and amend their actions then turn away from them and do not harm them for God is ever Forgiving to those who repent and Merciful to them, and this is abrogated by the hadd if it is meant for adultery and likewise if it is meant for sodomy according to al-Shafi'i, but the one who is harmed is not stoned according to him even if he is married, rather he is flogged and banished, and the intention of sodomy is more evident based on the duality of the pronoun, and the first said that he meant the adulterer and the adulteress, and this is refuted by their clarification by who connected to the pronoun of men and their sharing in harm, repentance, and turning away, and it is specific to men because of what was mentioned in women about imprisonment.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: and those among you who commit it, is the man and woman who commit it. He said: they commit the immorality. The ha' and the alif in His statement: they commit it refer back to the immorality in His statement: and those among your women who commit the immorality. The meaning is: and those among you who commit the immorality, then punish them.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of his saying: And those of you who commit it, punish them both.

Some of them said: They are the two virgins who have not been married, and they are not those meant in the verse before it. They said: His statement: And those of your women who commit lewdness, means the married women who have been married. And His statement: And those of you who commit it, means the two virgins who are not married.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: He mentioned the female slaves and the young men who were not married, and he said: And those of you who commit it, punish them both.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And those of you who commit it the two virgins, then punish them both.

Others said: Rather, what he meant by his saying: And those of you who commit it are the two adulterous men.

Who said that?

Abu Hisham Al-Rafa'i told us, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: And those of you who commit it, punish them both, he said: The two men who committed it, do not use a euphemism.

Muhammad bin Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And the two of you who commit it, the two adulterers.

Others said: Rather, he meant by that both the man and the woman, except that he did not mean a virgin without a previously married woman.

Who said that?

Abu Hisham Al-Rafa'i told us, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata': And those of you who commit it, punish them both, he said: The man and the woman.

Muhammad bin Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Al-Hussein told us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, they said: And those of your women who commit lewdness, until His saying: or God appoints for them a way, so he mentioned the man after the woman, then he gathered them both together and said: "And those of you who commit it, punish them both. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them. Indeed, God is ever Accepting of repentance and Merciful."

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ata and Abdullah bin Katheer said, his statement: And those two of you who commit it, he said, this is for both the man and the woman.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in interpreting his statement: And those of you who commit it, is the statement of the one who said: It refers to the two unmarried virgins who commit adultery, and one of them is a man and the other is a woman, because if the intention of that was to clarify the ruling on adulterers among men, as was the intention of his statement: And those of your women who commit adultery, to clarify the ruling on adulteresses, it would have been said: And those of you who commit it, then harm them, or it would have been said: And the one of you who commits it, as was said in the previous one: And those who commit adultery, so he mentioned them all, and did not say: And the two who commit adultery.

Likewise, the Arabs do when they want to explain a threat or a promise for an action. They cite the names of its people by mentioning all or one, because one indicates its kind. They do not cite them by mentioning two. So they say: Those who do such-and-such will have such-and-such, and He who does such-and-such will have such-and-such, but they do not say: The two who do such-and-such will have such-and-such, unless it is an action that can only be done by two different people, like adultery that can only be done by a male adulterer and a female adulteress. If that is the case, it is said that the two are mentioned, meaning the doer and the done to. But if it is mentioned by mentioning the two, meaning two people in an action that each of them may do alone, or in an action in which they are not involved, then that is not known in their speech.

Surat al-Nisa 4:16

And those of you who commit it, punish them. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them. Indeed, Allah is ever Forgiving and Merciful.

Since this is the case, then the corruption of the statement of the one who said: And those of you who commit it meant the two men, and the correctness of the statement of the one who said: It meant the man and the woman.

Since this is the case, it is known that they are not those whose ruling was previously stated in His statement: and those who commit immorality, because these are two, and those are a group.

Since this is the case, it is known that imprisonment was a punishment for married women until they died before a way was made for them, because it is more severe in punishment than harm, which is reprimand, rebuke, insult, and reproach, just as the way that was made for them, which was stoning, was more severe than the way that was made for virgins, which was a hundred lashes and exile for a year.

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the harm that God Almighty made a punishment for those who commit the indecency, before He made a way for them from it.

Some of them said: This harm is harm by word and tongue, such as reproach and rebuke for the obscenity they committed.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: So they hurt them both, he said: They both hurt each other verbally.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Then punish them, but if they repent and reform, then turn away from them. So if a girl or a boy committed adultery, they would be scolded and given two camels until they stopped doing that.

Others said: That harm was verbal harm, but it was an insult.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: So they harmed them, meaning: insulted them.

Others said: Rather, that harm was done by tongue and hand.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And those of you who commit it, punish them both. So if a man committed adultery, he was punished by being taunted and beaten with sandals.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is that it is said that God Almighty commanded the believers to harm the two adulterers mentioned, if they committed that while they were Muslims. Harm can befall any harm that befalls a person, whether from a bad word spoken by the tongue or an action. The verse does not state which of these things the believers were commanded to do on that day, nor is there any report of it from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from a single report or a group report that would require their occurrence to cut off the excuse.

The people of interpretation differ on this. It is possible that it was harm by the tongue or hand, and it is possible that it was harm by both. There is no benefit in knowing which of these was, in religion or in this world, and there is no harm in being ignorant of them, since God, the Most High, has abrogated that with His decisive law by what He has imposed as a ruling on His servants in them and in those that came before them. As for what He has imposed as a ruling on them in them, it is what He has imposed in Surat al-Nur 24:2 in His saying: The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes. As for what He has imposed in those that came before them, it is stoning, which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in them. The people of interpretation are all unanimously agreed that God, the Most High, has made a way for the people of immorality, the adulterers and adulteresses, with the limits that He has ruled for them.

A group of interpreters said: God Almighty abrogated His statement: As for the adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes (al-Nur 24:2), His statement: And those of you who commit it, punish them both.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And those of you who commit it, punish them both, he said: All of that was abrogated by the verse in An-Nur with the prescribed punishment.

Abu Hisham told us, he said, Yahya told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: And those of you who commit it, punish them both the verse, he said: This was abrogated by the verse in Surat An-Nur with the prescribed punishment.

Ibn Hamid told us, Abu Tamila told us, Al-Husayn ibn Waqid told us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, they said regarding His statement: And those of you who commit it, punish them both (al-Nur 24:2), that was abrogated by the verse on flogging, so He said: The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes (al-Nur 24:2).

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And those of you who commit it, punish them both. Then God revealed after this: As for the adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes (al-Nur 24:2). If they were married, they were stoned according to the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And those of your women who commit adultery the verse, the limits came and abrogated it.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us, who said: I heard Al-Dahhak say: This verse abrogated the punishment.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Abu Sufyan told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada: So keep them in the houses the verse, he said: It was abrogated by the prescribed punishments. And His statement: And those of you who commit it, it was abrogated by the prescribed punishments.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And those of you who commit adultery, punish them both, the verse, then this was abrogated, and the way for her was made if she committed adultery while married, to be stoned and expelled, and the way for the male was made to be one hundred lashes.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: So keep them in the houses until death takes them, he said: It was abrogated by the prescribed punishments.

As for His statement: If they repent and reform, then turn away from them, what He, the Most High, means by this is: If they repent from the immorality they committed and return to obeying God between them, and reform, meaning: and reform their religion by returning to repentance from their immorality and doing what pleases God, then turn away from them, meaning: then pardon them and refrain from the harm that I had ordered you to harm them with as punishment for what they committed of immorality, and do not harm them after their repentance.

As for his saying: Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful, it means: God has always returned to His servants to what they love if they return to what He loves from them of His obedience, Merciful to them, meaning: Possessor of mercy and compassion.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has seven issues

The first - the Almighty's saying: Al-Ladayna Al-Ladayna, and the analogy would have been to say: Al-Ladayna, like Rahyaan, Musfayan, and Shajyan. Sibawayh said: The Ya' was deleted to differentiate between the established nouns and the vague nouns. Abu Ali said: The Ya' was deleted to make it easier, as confusion has been avoided in Al-Ladayna, because the Noon is not deleted, and the Noon of the dual in established nouns may be deleted with the addition in Rahyaak and Mustafa al-Qawm, so if the Ya' was deleted, the singular would be confused with the dual. Ibn Kathir read Al-Ladayna with a shaddah on the Noon, which is the language of Quraysh, and his reason is that he made the shaddah a replacement for the Alif of Dha, as will be explained in Surat Al-Qasas when the Almighty says: These two are proofs (al-Qasas 28:32). There is another language in it, Al-Ladhana, with the deletion of the Noon. This is the saying of the Kufians. The Basrans said: The Noon was deleted because of the length of the noun in the connection. Similarly, Hadhanaan and Fadhanaka Burhanan read it with a shaddah in both of them, and the rest read it with a light shaddah. Abu Amr stressed that these two are proofs alone and that which is raised by the beginning. Sibawayh said: The meaning is in what is recited to you, those who commit it, meaning the indecency from you. The fa' entered in fa'adhuhuma because the speech has a meaning of command, because when al-la was connected to the verb, the meaning of the condition was established in it, so nothing specific would happen to it. So when the condition and ambiguity were established in it, it ran the course of the condition, so the fa' entered and what preceded it was not known in it from the concealment, just as what preceded it does not work in the condition. So when it was not appropriate to conceal the verb before them so that they would be raised by the beginning, this is the choice of Sibawayh. The accusative is permissible on the assumption of concealing a verb, and this is the choice if there is a meaning of command and prohibition in the speech, like your saying: the two with you, so honor them.

Second: The Almighty's saying: And they hurt them both. Qatada and Al-Suddi said: Its meaning is rebuke and expression. A group said: It is cursing and rudeness without reproach. Ibn Abbas: Insulting with the tongue and harming with sandals. Al-Nahhas said: Some people claimed that it was abrogated. I said: It was narrated by Ibn Abi Nujayh on the authority of Mujahid, who said: And those who commit immorality and who both commit it were in the beginning, then the verse in An-Nur abrogated them. Al-Nahhas said: It was said, and it is more appropriate: It is not abrogated and that it is obligatory to discipline them with rebuke and to say to them: You have committed immorality and transgression and disobeyed the command of God, the Almighty.

Third: The scholars differed in the interpretation of the Almighty's saying: And those who and His saying: And those who have. Mujahid and others said: The first verse is about women in general, chaste and unchaste, and the second verse is about men in particular. The dual form of the wording explained the two types of men, those who are chaste and those who are not. The punishment for women is imprisonment and the punishment for men is harm. This is a statement that the wording requires, and the text of the speech fulfills the halves of adultery. It is supported from the wording by His saying in the first: Of your women and in the second: Of you. An-Nahhas chose it and narrated it from Ibn Abbas. As-Suddi, Qatadah and others said: The first is about chaste women, meaning: And those who are chaste among men entered with them in the sense, and the second is about the man and the virgin woman. Ibn Atiyyah said: The meaning of this statement is complete except that the wording of the verse makes it difficult to understand. Al-Tabari and his father Al-Nahhas preferred it and said: The predominance of the feminine over the masculine is far-fetched because it does not take the thing to a metaphor and its meaning is correct in reality. It was said: The detention was for the adulterous woman and not the man, so the woman was specifically mentioned in the detention and then they were combined in the harm. Qatada said: The woman was detained and they were both harmed, and this is because the man needs to strive and earn.

Surat al-Nisa 4:16

And those of you who commit it, punish them. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them. Indeed, Allah is ever Forgiving and Merciful.

Fourth - The scholars also differed in their statement based on the hadith of Ubadah, which is a statement of the rulings on adultery, as we have explained. Ali bin Abi Talab said based on it, and there is no difference of opinion about that, and that he flogged Shuraha al-Hamdaniyyah one hundred times and stoned her after that, and he said: I flogged her according to the Book of God and stoned her according to the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Hasan al-Basri, al-Hasan bin Salih bin Hayy, and Ishaq said this statement. A group of scholars said: Rather, the married woman is to be stoned without flogging. This is narrated from Umar, and it is the statement of al-Zuhri, al-Nakha'i, Malik, al-Thawri, al-Awza'i, al-Shafi'i, the People of Opinion, Ahmad, and Abu Thawr, holding fast to the fact that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, stoned Ma'iz and al-Ghamidiyah and did not argue with them. And based on his statement, may God bless him and grant him peace, to Anis:

He did not mention flogging. If it had been permissible, he would not have been silent about it. It was said to them: He was silent about it because it is proven in the Book of God Almighty. It is not impossible to be silent about it because of its fame and the explicit mention of it in the Qur'an, because the words of God Almighty: The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes (al-Nur 24:2) include all adulterers, and God knows best. This is demonstrated by the action of Ali, who took it from the caliphs, may God be pleased with them, and he was not criticized for it. It was said to him: You acted according to the abrogated and abandoned the abrogating, and this is clear.

Fifth - They differed about denying the virginity with flogging. What the majority agreed upon is that it should be denied with flogging. This was said by the Rightly-Guided Caliphs: Abu Bakr, Umar, Uthman, and Ali. It is the saying of Ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them all. It was also said by Ata', Tawus, Sufyan, Malik, Ibn Abi Laila, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, and Abu Thawr. Hammad ibn Abi Sulayman, Abu Hanifa, and Muhammad ibn Al-Hasan said to leave it out. The evidence for the majority is the hadith of Ubadah mentioned above, the hadith of Abu Hurayrah, and Zayd ibn Khalid, the hadith of Al-Aseef, in which it says:

The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, I will judge between you according to the Book of God. As for your sheep and your female slave, he will be returned to you, and his son will be flogged one hundred times and he will be exiled for a year." Narrated by the imams. Those who did not see his denial provided evidence.

In the hadith of Abu Hurairah about the nation, in which he mentioned flogging without prohibition, and Abd al-Razzaq mentioned on the authority of Muammar on the authority of al-Zuhri on the authority of Saeed bin al-Musayyab, who said: Umar banished Rabi'ah bin Abi Umayyah bin Khalaf to Khaybar for drinking alcohol, so he joined Heraclius and became a Christian. Umar said: I will not banish a Muslim after this. They said: If banishment was a punishment for God Almighty, Umar would not have left it after that. Then the text in the book is only flogging, and adding to the text is abrogation, so it is necessary to abrogate the decisive with a single report. The answer: As for the hadith of Abu Hurairah, it is only about female slaves, not free men. It has been authenticated on the authority of Ubayd God bin Umar that he beat his female slave for adultery and banished her. As for the hadith of Umar and his saying: I will not banish a Muslim after him, he means regarding alcohol - and God knows best - because Nafi' narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar:

"The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, struck and was driven away, and Abu Bakr struck and was driven away, and Umar struck and was driven away." Narrated by al-Tirmidhi in his Jami' and al-Nasa'i in his Sunan on the authority of Abu Kurayb Muhammad ibn al-Ala' al-Hamadani on the authority of Abdullah ibn Idris on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Umar on the authority of Nafi'. Al-Daraqutni said: Abdullah ibn Idris was the only one to narrate it, and no trustworthy person narrated it on his authority except Abu Kurayb. It has been authentically reported on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he denied it, so no one has to speak to him. Whoever contradicts the Sunnah, I will argue with him. And God is the Grantor of success.

As for their saying: Addition to the text is abrogation, this is not acceptable, but rather it is an addition of another ruling to the original. Then he added ablution with wine based on a report that was not authentic regarding water, and he stipulated poverty in relation to relatives, and other things that are not explicitly stated in the Qur'an. This meaning has already been mentioned in Al-Baqarah and will come.

Sixth: Those who advocate banishment did not differ on banishing a free male, but they differed on banishing a male or female slave. Among those who saw banishment in both cases was Ibn Umar, who flogged a female slave of his for adultery and banished her to Fadak. Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr, Al-Thawri, Al-Tabari, and Dawud said the same. Al-Shafi'i's opinion differed on banishing a slave. Once he said: Ask God for guidance on banishing a slave. Once he said: Banish him for half a year. Once he said: Banish him for a year to a place other than his place. Al-Tabari said the same. His opinion also differed on banishing a female slave, with two opinions: Malik said: Banish the man, but not the woman or the slave. Whoever is banished is imprisoned in the place to which he is banished. He is banished from Egypt to Al-Hijaz, Shaghab, Aswan, and the like, and from Medina to Khaybar and Fadak. And Umar ibn Abdul Aziz did the same. Ali was banished from Kufa to Basra. Al-Shafi'i said: The minimum period of that was one day and one night. Ibn al-Arabi said: The origin of the banishment was that the sons of Ismail unanimously agreed that whoever commits an act in the sanctuary should be banished from it, so it became a custom among them that they followed. For this reason, people established a custom that if someone commits an act, he should be banished from his country. This continued in the pre-Islamic era until Islam came and approved it in the case of adultery in particular. Those who did not see the banishment of the slave cited the hadith of Abu Hurayrah about the female slave as evidence, and because banishing him is a punishment for his owner that prevents him from his benefits during the period of his banishment, and this does not suit the conduct of the Shari'a, as no one but the offender should be punished. Also, Friday prayers, Hajj, and Jihad, which are rights of God the Most High, were dropped from him because of the master, so banishment is the same, and God knows best.

If a woman is absent, this may be a reason for her to fall into the cause for which she was brought out, which is immorality. And in the absence of a stranger, this may be a reason for her to uncover her private parts and ruin her condition, because the basic principle is that she is forbidden from leaving her house, and her prayer in it is better. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Leave the women alone and they will be obliged to stay in the pilgrimage. This resulted in the specification of the generality of the hadith of exile to the interest that is known to be considered, and it is disputed among the scholars of the principles of jurisprudence and the theorists. A group deviated and said: The flogging and stoning are combined for the old man, and the young man is flogged, adhering to the wording of the old man in the hadith of Zayd ibn Thabit that he heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

If an old man and an old woman commit adultery, stone them both to death. Narrated by Al-Nasa'i. This is invalid because in another hadith he called them the previously married.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: But if they repent meaning from the immorality and reform meaning the actions that follow that then turn away from them meaning stop harming them and taunting them. This was before the punishments were revealed.

When the limits were revealed, this verse was abrogated. What is meant by turning away is not emigration, but rather abandoning turning away. In that is contempt for them because of the previous sin, and according to the ignorance in the other verse, God is Forgiving, meaning He turns His servants away from sins.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The ruling at the beginning of Islam was that if a woman's adultery was proven by just evidence, she would be confined to a house and not allowed to leave it until she died. That is why He said, And those of your women who commit adultery, meaning adultery, "- bring against them four witnesses from among you. If they testify, confine them to houses until death takes them or God ordains for them a way." So the way that God ordained is the one that abrogated that. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The ruling was like that until God revealed Surat An-Nur, and abrogated it with flogging or stoning. And it was also narrated from Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Hasan, Ata' Al-Khurasani, Abu Salih, Qatadah, Zaid bin Aslam, and Ad-Dahhak, that it was abrogated, and this is a matter that is agreed upon. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Saeed told us, from Qatadah, from Al-Hasan, from Hattat bin Abdullah Al-Raqashi, from Ubadah bin As-Samit, who said: Whenever the revelation came down to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it affected him and he was distressed by that. His face turned red, so one day God Almighty revealed to him, and when he was relieved, he said: "Take from me, God has made a way for them: the married woman for the married woman, and the virgin for the virgin. The married woman gets one hundred lashes and is stoned, and the virgin gets one hundred lashes and is exiled for a year." Muslim and the Sunan scholars narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattat, on the authority of Ubadah ibn As-Samit, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and its wording is: "Take from me, take from me, God has made a way for them: the virgin for the virgin gets one hundred lashes and is exiled for a year, and the married woman for the married woman gets one hundred lashes and is exiled for a year." Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith. And thus Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi narrated it on the authority of Mubarak ibn Fadalah, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Hattat ibn Abdullah al-Raqashi, on the authority of Ubadah, that whenever the revelation came down to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it was evident on his face. So when the verse, or God will appoint for them a way, was revealed, and when the revelation was lifted, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, "Take, take,

Surat al-Nisa 4:16

And those of you who commit it, punish them. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them. Indeed, Allah is ever Forgiving and Merciful.

God has appointed for them a way. For a virgin with a virgin, one hundred lashes and exile for a year. For a married woman with a married woman, one hundred lashes and stoning.” Imam Ahmad also narrated this hadith on the authority of Wakee’ ibn al-Jarrah, who told us al-Fadl ibn Dahlam, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Qubaysah ibn Harith, on the authority of Salamah ibn al-Muhabbak, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, “Take from me, take from me. God has appointed for them a way. For a virgin with a virgin, one hundred lashes and exile for a year. For a married woman with a married woman, one hundred lashes and stoning.” And thus Abu Dawud narrated it at length from the hadith of al-Fadl ibn Dahlam, then he said: He is not a hafiz, he was a butcher in Wasit.

Another hadith Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Abbas bin Hamdan told us, Ahmad bin Dawud told us, Amr bin Abdul Ghaffar told us, Ismail bin Abi Khalid told us, on the authority of Al-Sha’bi, on the authority of Masruq, on the authority of Abu Ka’b, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The two virgins are to be flogged and exiled, the two previously married women are to be flogged and stoned, and the two old men are to be stoned. This is a strange hadith from this source. Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Lahi’ah, on the authority of his brother Isa bin Lahi’ah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Surat An-Nisa was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no imprisonment after Surat An-Nisa. Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal said that according to this hadith, the punishment of flogging and stoning should be combined with flogging for a married adulterer. The majority of scholars said that a married adulterer should only be stoned without flogging. They said: Because the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) stoned Ma’iz, the Ghamidiyah, and the two Jews, and did not flog them before that, so this indicates that stoning is not obligatory, but rather it was abrogated according to their statement. And God knows best. And the words of God the Most High: And those of you who commit it, punish them both means those who commit an immoral act, punish them both. Ibn ‘Abbas may God be pleased with him, Sa’eed ibn Jubayr, and others said: That is, by cursing, insulting, and beating with sandals. And the ruling was thus until God abrogated it with flogging or stoning. ‘Ikrimah, ‘Ata’, al-Hasan, and ‘Abdullah ibn Katheer said: It was revealed regarding a man and a woman who commit adultery. Al-Suddi said: It was revealed regarding young men before they get married. Mujahid said: It was revealed about two men who committed - not by pronoun, and it seems that he meant sodomy - and God knows best. The people of Sunnah have narrated from the hadith of Amr ibn Abi Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever you see doing the deed of the people of Lot, kill the one who does it and the one to whom it is done. And His statement: But if they repent and amend means they desist and stop what they were doing and their deeds become good and righteous, then turn away from them means do not rebuke them with ugly words after that, because the one who repents from sin is like the one who has no sin. Indeed, God is ever Forgiving and Merciful. It has been proven in the two Sahihs: If the female slave of one of you commits adultery, let him flog her the prescribed punishment and not reproach her meaning then do not reproach her for what she did after the prescribed punishment, which is expiation for what she did.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 16- And those of you who commit it Al-Ladhi is the dual of Al-Ladhi, and the standard would have been to say Al-Ladhiyan like Rahiyan. Sibawayh said: The ya’ was deleted to differentiate between possible nouns and vague nouns. Abu Ali said: The ya’ was deleted for ease. Ibn Kathir read Al-Ladhiyan with a shaddah on the noon, which is the language of Quraysh, and there is another language in it, which is Al-Ladha with the deletion of the noon, and the rest read it with a light noon. Sibawayh said: The meaning is in what is recited to you, those of you who commit it: meaning the indecency, and the fa’ was included in the answer because there is a meaning of a condition in the speech. What is meant by two here is the adulterer and the adulteress, in general. It was said: The first verse is specifically about women, whether they are married or not, and the second is specifically about men. The dual form was used to explain the two types of men: the married and the unmarried. The punishment for women is imprisonment and the punishment for men is harm. An-Nahhas chose this and narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Al-Qurtubi narrated it on the authority of Mujahid and others and he approved of it. As-Suddi, Qatadah and others said: The first verse is about married women and married men are included with them, and the second verse is about the man and the virgin woman. At-Tabari preferred it but An-Nahhas weakened it and said: The predominance of the feminine over the masculine is far-fetched. Ibn Atiyyah said: The meaning of this statement is complete, except that the wording of the verse is confusing. It was said: The adulterous woman was kept, not the man, so the woman was mentioned specifically in the keeping, then they were combined in the harm. Qatadah said: The woman was kept and they were both harmed. The commentators differed in the interpretation of harm. Some said: rebuke and reproach, and it was said: cursing and rudeness without reproach, and it was said: attacking with the tongue and hitting with sandals. Some people went to the view that harm is abrogated like imprisonment, and it was said: it is not abrogated as mentioned previously in imprisonment. His statement, But if they repent meaning: from the immorality and reform the work later then turn away from them meaning: leave them and refrain from harming them, and this was before the revelation of the limits according to what was mentioned previously from the disagreement.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

16- The Almighty said: And those of you who commit it, meaning: the man and the woman, and the ha refers to the immorality. Ibn Kathir read al-ladhayna, al-ladhayna, hataan, and hadhaan with a shaddah on the nun for emphasis, and the people of Basra agreed with him in fadhanak and the others with a light fadhanak, Abu Ubaid said: Abu Amr specified fadhanak with a shaddah because of the few letters in the name fa'adhuhuma Al-Ata' and Qatada said: So they insulted them with the tongue: Did you not fear God? Were you not ashamed before God when you committed adultery? Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them, said: Insult them and curse them, Ibn Abbas said: It is with the tongue and the hand, and he is insulted by insulting and hitting with sandals.

If it is said: Imprisonment was mentioned in the first verse and harm was mentioned in this verse, so how is the connection between them made?

It was said: The first verse is about women and this one is about men, and this is the saying of Mujahid. It was also said: The first verse is about the previously married woman and this one is about the virgin.

But if they repent from the immorality and reform their actions afterwards, then turn away from them do not harm them, for God is ever Forgiving and Merciful.

All of this was before the revelation of the limits, so they were abrogated by the punishment of stoning and flogging. As for flogging in the Qur'an, God Almighty said: The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes (al-Nur 24:2). Stoning is in the Sunnah. Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us. Abu Ali Zahir ibn Ahmad al-Sarakhsi told us. Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi told us. Abu Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Utbah ibn Mas'ud, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah and Zayd ibn Khalid al-Juhani, may God be pleased with them both, that they told him: "Two men disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. One of them said: 'Judge between us, O Messenger of God, according to the Book of God.' The other, who was the most knowledgeable of them, said: 'Yes, O Messenger of God, judge between us according to the Book of God, and allow me to speak.' He said: 'Speak.' He said: 'My son was a caretaker of this man, and he committed adultery with his wife. They informed me that my son should be stoned, so I ransomed myself from him with a hundred sheep and a female slave of mine. Then I asked the people of knowledge." They told me that my son should be flogged one hundred times and exiled for a year, but that his wife should be stoned. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, I will judge between you according to the Book of God. As for your sheep and your slave girl, they will be returned to you." He flogged his son one hundred times and exiled him for a year, and ordered Anis al-Aslami to go to the other man's wife. If she confessed, he would stone her. She confessed, so he stoned her.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Ibn Ismail told us, Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah told us, Ibrahim bin Saad told me, Saleh told us, Ibn Shihab told us, Ubaid bin Abdullah bin Utbah bin Masoud told us, Ibn Abbas said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, said: God Almighty sent Muhammad, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with the truth and revealed the Book to him. Among what God Almighty revealed was the verse of stoning, so we read it, understood it, and memorized it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stoned, and we stoned after him. I fear that if a long time passes, someone will say: By God, we do not find the verse of stoning in the Book of God Almighty, and they will go astray by abandoning an obligation that God Almighty revealed. Stoning in the Book of God Almighty is a right upon those who commit adultery if they are married, whether men or women, if evidence is established, or there is pregnancy or a confession.

The general punishment for adultery is that if the adulterer is married - that is, the one who has four characteristics: sanity, maturity, freedom, and being married through a valid marriage - then his punishment is stoning, whether he is a Muslim or a non-Muslim, which is what is meant by the previously married woman mentioned in the hadith. The proponents of the opinion hold that Islam is one of the conditions of being married, and that a non-Muslim is not to be stoned. It has been authentically reported from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he stoned two Jews who committed adultery, and they were both married.

If the adulterer is not married, that is, if these descriptions are not met, then: If he is not an adult or is insane, then there is no punishment for him. If he is a free, sane adult, but he was not married through a valid marriage, then he is to be flogged one hundred times and banished for a year. If he is a slave, then he is to be flogged fifty times. There are two opinions regarding banishing him. If we say that he is to be banished, there are two opinions, the most correct of which is half a year, just as he is to be flogged fifty times for half the punishment for a free man.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

16 And those of you who commit it means the adulteress and the adulterer. Ibn Kathir read and those with emphasis on the nun and the extension of the alif, and the rest read it with emphasis without emphasis. So hurt them with rebuke and reprimand, and it was said with reproach and flogging. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them so stop harming them, or turn away from them by closing your eyes and covering them. Indeed, God is ever Forgiving and Merciful The reason for the command to turn away and leave the blame. It was said that this verse was revealed before the first one and that the punishment for adultery was harm, then imprisonment, then flogging. It was said that the first one was in lesbianism and this one was in sodomy, and the adulteress and the adulterer were in adulterers.

Surat al-Nisa 4:16

And those of you who commit it, punish them. But if they repent and amend, then turn away from them. Indeed, Allah is ever Forgiving and Merciful.

Surat al-Nisa 4:17

Indeed, repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. It is those to whom God will turn in forgiveness. And God is Knowing and Wise.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Repentance is only due to God that is, which He has decreed for Himself to accept by His grace for those who do evil disobedience in ignorance a state, i.e. ignorantly, since they disobeyed their Lord and then repent shortly before they reach the point of death for those, God will turn in forgiveness He will accept their repentance and God is Knowing of His creation Wise in what He does with them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He means by His statement, may He be glorified: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance, is that repentance is not for any of His creation except for those believers who do evil in ignorance, and then repent soon, meaning: God does not return to any of His creation to what He loves of pardoning him and absolving him of his past sins, except for those who commit what they commit of their sins out of ignorance and they are believers in their Lord, then they return to obeying God and repenting from it to what God has commanded them to do of regretting it and seeking forgiveness and not returning to the like of it before death descends upon them. And that is the soon thing that God, may He be glorified, mentioned when He said: and then repent soon.

And in a similar manner to what we said in the interpretation of that, the people of interpretation said.

However, they differed on the meaning of his saying: in ignorance.

Some of them said something similar to what we said about it, and he went to the fact that his evil deed is the ignorance that he meant.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah: that he used to narrate: that the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: Every sin that a servant commits is out of ignorance.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: For those who do evil in ignorance, he said: The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gathered and saw that everything that is disobeyed is ignorance, whether it is intentional or otherwise.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: For those who do evil in ignorance, he said: Everyone who disobeys his Lord is ignorant until he refrains from his disobedience.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance, he said: Everyone who commits a sin against God, that is from him out of ignorance until he turns away from it.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance, as long as he disobeys God, he is ignorant.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Fadil bin Ghazwan told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Nadr, on the authority of Abu Saleh, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance, he said: Whoever does evil is ignorant, and evil is done out of his ignorance.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Husayn told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Whoever disobeys God is ignorant until he stops his disobedience. Ibn Jurayj said: And Abdullah Ibn Kathir informed me, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Whoever commits a sin is ignorant when he committed it. Ibn Jurayj said: And Ata' Ibn Abi Rabah said something similar to it to me.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about the statement of God: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after, he said: Ignorance is that every person who does something that disobeys God is ignorant forever until he desists from it. And he recited: Have you known what you did with Joseph and his brother when you were ignorant? (Yusuf 12:89), and he recited: And unless You turn away their plot from me, I will incline toward them and be among the ignorant (Yusuf 12:33). He said: Whoever disobeys God is ignorant until he desists from his disobedience.

Others said: The meaning of his saying: For those who do evil in ignorance is that they do it intentionally.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Mujahid: They do evil out of ignorance, he said: Ignorance means intention.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance, he said: Ignorance means intentional.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Repentance is only for those who do evil in this world.

Surat al-Nisa 4:17

Indeed, repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. It is those to whom Allah will turn in forgiveness. And Allah is Knowing and Wise.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of Al-Hakam bin Abaan, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance, he said: The entire world is ignorance.

Abu Ja'far said: The most appropriate of these sayings to interpret the verse is the saying of those who said: Its interpretation is: Repentance is only for God for those who do evil, and their evil deed is the ignorance that they were ignorant of, whether they were intentionally sinful, or ignorant of what God has prepared for its people.

This is because it is not found in the speech of the Arabs that the one who does something intentionally is called ignorant of it, unless it is meant that he is ignorant of its extent of benefit and harm, in which case it is said: He is ignorant of it, meaning his ignorance of its meaning of its benefit and harm. But if he is knowledgeable of the extent of its benefit and harm, intending it, then it is not permissible because of his intention to say: He is ignorant of it, because the one who is ignorant of something is the one who does not know it or recognize it when he comes to it, or [the one] who knows it, so its doer is likened, since what he did was wrong, to the ignorant who does something while he is ignorant of it, so he misses the point of hitting the mark, so it is said: He is ignorant of it, even if he is knowledgeable of it, because he did something that only the ignorant of it do.

Likewise, the meaning of his statement: They do evil in ignorance is said about them: They do evil in ignorance, even if they came to it knowing the extent of God's punishment of its people, intentionally doing it, while knowing that it was forbidden for them, because their action was one of the actions that only comes from great ignorance for which God will punish its people in this world and the Hereafter. So it was said about the one who came to it knowing about it: he came to it in ignorance, meaning that he did the action of the ignorant about it, not that he was ignorant.

Some Arabists have claimed that its meaning is that they were ignorant of the nature of the punishment in it, so they did not know it as a scholar would know it, even if they knew it was a sin. Therefore, it was said: They do evil out of ignorance.

Abu Ja'far said: If the matter were as the one who said this statement said, then it would be necessary that there would be no repentance for one who knows the essence of what he is in. This is because God, the Most High, said: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon, and not for others. So it is necessary for the one who said this statement that there should be no repentance for the scholar who did evil while knowing the essence of what he is in, and then repented soon. This is contrary to what is proven from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that God may accept the repentance of every repentant person, and his statement: The door of repentance is open as long as the sun has not risen from the West, and contrary to the statement of God, the Most High: Except for those who repent, believe and do righteous work (al-Furqan 25:70).

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed about the meaning of close in this place.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: Then they repent in their health before their illness and before their death.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Then they repent soon, and soon before death is as long as he is healthy.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Nadr, on the authority of Abu Saleh, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then they will repent soon, he said: in life and health.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Then they repent before seeing the Angel of Death.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then they will repent soon, and soon is between him and looking at the Angel of Death.

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, he said, I heard Imran bin Hudayr say, Abu Majlaz said: A man remains in repentance until he sees the angels.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Abu Ma'shar, on the authority of Muhammad bin Qais, he said: The near is that which no sign of the signs of God Almighty has been revealed about, and death has descended upon it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. And he has the right to repent between him and seeing the Angel of Death, so if he repents when he sees the Angel of Death, then that is not his right.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Then they repent before death.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of al-Dahhak, Then they will repent soon, he said: Everything before death is soon.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of Al-Hakam bin Abaan, on the authority of Ikrimah: Then they will repent soon, he said: The entire world is soon.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Then they repent soon, before death.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, he said: It was mentioned to us that when Iblis was cursed and looked at, he said: By Your glory, I will not leave the heart of the son of Adam as long as the soul is in him. So the Blessed and Exalted said: By My glory, I will not prevent him from repenting as long as the soul is in him.

Ibn Bashir told us, Abu Dawud told us, Imran told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: We were with Anas bin Malik and Abu Qilabah was there. Abu Qilabah said: When God Almighty cursed Satan, he asked him for a glance, and he said: By Your glory, I will not leave the heart of the son of Adam! God Almighty said: By My glory, I will not prevent him from repenting as long as the soul is in him.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, he said: When God, the Blessed and Exalted, cursed Satan, he asked him for a reprieve, so He granted him a reprieve until the Day of Judgment. He said: By Your glory, I will not leave the heart of the son of Adam as long as the soul is in him! He said: By My glory, I will not withhold repentance from him as long as the soul is in him.

Ibn Bashir told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Awf told us, on the authority of al-Hasan, he said: It has reached me that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: When Satan saw that Adam was hollow, he said: By Your glory, I will not leave his stomach as long as the soul is in him! God, the Blessed and Exalted, said: By My glory, I will not prevent him from repenting as long as the soul is in him.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Ala bin Ziyad, on the authority of Abu Ayoub Bashir bin Kaab: "That the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling."

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ubadah ibn al-Samit: that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, and he mentioned something similar.

Ibn Yashar told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Awf, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: It reached me that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God, the Blessed and Exalted, accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is the saying of the one who said: Its interpretation is: Then they repent before their death, in the state in which they understand the command and prohibition of God Almighty, and before they overcome themselves and their minds, and before the state of their preoccupation with the anguish of the death rattle and the grief of the gurgling, so they do not know the command and prohibition of God, nor do they understand repentance, because repentance is not repentance except from one who regrets what he did in the past, and resolves to refrain from repeating it, and he understands the regret, and chooses to refrain from repeating it. But if he is preoccupied with the anguish of death, and overwhelmed by the grief of the death rattle, then I do not think that he is except overcome by regret for his sins. Therefore, whoever said: Repentance is acceptable, as long as the servant is not gurgling with himself, if the person in that state is rational and understands with the understanding of the intelligent and intelligent, and then repents from his sins and returns from his straying from his Lord to His obedience, he will be, God willing, among those who enter into the promise of God which He promised to those who repent to Him from their crimes soon, by His saying: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: Then those, are those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after, God will forgive them, unlike those who did not repent until their mind was overcome and the death rattle overwhelmed them, so they said, not understanding what they were saying: I have repented now, deceiving their Lord and being hypocritical in their religion.

The meaning of his saying: God accepts their repentance is that He grants them the ability to return to His obedience, and accepts their return to Him and the repentance they have committed for their sins.

As for his statement: And God is All-Knowing, All-Wise, it means: God, may His praise be glorified, has always been All-Knowing of the people among His servants who turn to Him in obedience after they have turned away from Him, who have turned to Him after turning away, and of other matters of His creation, All-Wise, in His repentance for those among them who repent from disobeying Him, and in other matters of His management and decree, and no defect enters into His actions, nor is there any error or slip mixed with them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are four issues in them.

First: The Almighty's saying: Repentance is only for God. It was said: This verse is general for everyone who commits a sin. It was also said: Only for those who are ignorant, and repentance is for everyone who commits a sin in another place. The Ummah agreed that repentance is obligatory for believers, based on the Almighty's saying: And repent to God, all of you, O believers. It is valid for a sin while continuing on another one of a different type - contrary to the Mu'tazila in their saying. He who persists in sin is not repentant, and there is no difference between one sin and another. This is the doctrine of the people of the Sunnah. If the servant repents, then God, the Exalted, has the choice. If He wills, He will accept it, and if He wills, He will not accept it. Accepting repentance is not obligatory upon God by way of reason, as the opponent said, because one of the conditions of what is obligatory is that it be of a higher rank than the one obligated upon. The Truth, the Exalted, is the Creator of creation and their Owner, and the One who commands them, so it is not correct for Him to be described as having something obligatory upon Him. He is exalted above that, but He, the Exalted, has informed us, and He is the Truthful in His promise, that He accepts repentance from the disobedient among His servants, by His saying, the Exalted: And it is He who accepts repentance from His servants and pardons misdeeds. (al-Shura 42:25)

Indeed, repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. It is those to whom Allah will turn in forgiveness. And Allah is Knowing and Wise.

His statement: Do they not know that it is God who accepts repentance from His servants? (al-Tawbah 9:104) and His statement: And indeed, I am Forgiving to whoever repents. (Ta-Ha: 82) So His, glory be to Him, informing us of things that He has made obligatory upon Himself necessitates the obligation of those things. The belief is that nothing is obligatory upon Him rationally, but as for what is heard, it appears that He accepts the repentance of the repentant. Abu al-Ma'ali and others said: These apparent meanings only give a preponderance of opinion, not a certainty that God the Most High will accept repentance. Ibn 'Atiyyah said: Abu al-Ma'ali and others disagreed on this meaning. So if we assume a man who has repented sincerely and completely, Abu al-Ma'ali said: It is most likely that his repentance will be accepted. Another said: It is certain that God the Most High will accept his repentance, as He has informed us about Himself, the Majestic and Almighty. Ibn 'Atiyyah said: My father, may God have mercy on him, was inclined towards this statement and preferred it, and I say the same. God the Most High is more merciful to His servants than to violate the meaning of His statement, And He is the One who accepts repentance from His servants, and His statement, And indeed, I am the Forgiving. If this is established, then know that there is an omission in His statement, on God, and it is not according to its apparent meaning. Rather, the meaning is regarding the grace and mercy of God towards His servants. This is similar to the statement of the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, to Mu'adh:

Do you know what the right of the servants over God is? He said: God and His Messenger know best. He said: That He will admit them into Paradise. All of this means: by His grace and mercy, by His true promise and His truthful word. Its evidence is the statement of God the Almighty: He has prescribed mercy for Himself (Al-An'am: 12), meaning He promised it. It was also said: On here means with and the meaning is the same, the estimate is with God, meaning He promised and does not break His promise, that He accepts repentance if it is with its conditions that correct it, and there are four: regret in the heart, abandoning the sin immediately, and resolving not to return to it, and that it be out of shame before God the Almighty and not before anyone else. If one of these conditions is missing, the repentance is not valid. It was said that among its conditions are: confessing the sin and frequently seeking forgiveness. Many of the meanings of repentance and its rulings were mentioned in Al Imran, and there is no disagreement as far as I know that repentance does not cancel a punishment. For this reason, our scholars said: When the male and female thief and the slanderer repent and the testimony is established against them, the punishments are carried out on them. It was also said: On means from, meaning that repentance from God is only for those who, Abu Bakr ibn Abdus said this, and God knows best. In the prohibition, we will discuss sincere repentance and the things from which one repents.

Second: The Almighty's saying: For those who do evil in ignorance. The evil in this verse and Al-An'am that whoever among you does evil in ignorance (al-An'am 6:54) includes disbelief and sins. Everyone who disobeys his Lord is ignorant until he refrains from his sin. Qatada said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, agreed that every sin is in ignorance, whether it was deliberate or out of ignorance. This was said by Ibn Abbas, Qatada, Ad-Dahhak, Mujahid, and As-Suddi. It was narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak and Mujahid that they both said: Ignorance here means deliberate. Ikrimah said: All worldly matters are ignorance, meaning those that are specific to him and are outside of the obedience of God. This statement is consistent with the Almighty's saying: The life of this world is only play and amusement. (Muhammad 47:36) Al-Zajaj said: His saying in ignorance means their choosing transient pleasure over lasting pleasure. It was said: in ignorance means that they do not know the nature of the punishment. This was mentioned by Ibn Furak. Ibn Atiyyah said: His statement is weak and he was refuted.

Third: The Almighty's saying: Then they will repent soon. Ibn Abbas and Al-Suddi said: Its meaning is before illness and death. It was narrated on the authority of Al-Dahhak that he said: Everything that was before death is soon. Abu Majlaz, Al-Dahhak also, Ikrimah, Ibn Zayd and others said: Before seeing the angels and the marketplace, and before a person overcomes himself. Muhammad Al-Warraaq spoke well when he said:

Offer yourself a repentance before death and before tongues are silenced

Take the initiative to close the souls, for they are a treasure and a gain for the repentant and good person.

Our scholars, may God have mercy on them, said: Repentance is valid at this time, because hope remains and regret and the determination to abandon the action are valid from it. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gargling. He said: This is a good and strange hadith. The meaning of as long as he is not gargling is as long as his soul does not reach his throat, so it is like something that he gargles with. This was said by Al-Harawi.

It was said: The meaning is that they repent shortly after committing the sin, without persistence. And the one who hastens to health is better and more likely to achieve his hope than righteous deeds. And death is far away, as he said.

Where is the place of distance except spatially?

Saleh Al-Mari narrated on the authority of Al-Hassan, who said: Whoever reproaches his brother for a sin for which he has repented to God, God will test him with it. Al-Hassan also said:

When Satan descended, he said: By Your glory, I will not leave Adam as long as the soul is in his body. God Almighty said: By My glory, I will not withhold repentance from the son of Adam until his soul gurgles.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: God only accepts the repentance of one who does evil in ignorance and then repents, even if it is before the Angel sees his soul before the death rattle. Mujahid and more than one said: Everyone who disobeys God, by mistake or intentionally, is ignorant until he desists from the sin. Qatada said on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah that he used to narrate that the companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to say: Every sin that a servant commits is out of ignorance. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatada, he said: The companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) gathered and saw that everything that God is disobeyed with is out of ignorance, whether it was intentional or otherwise. Ibn Jurayj said: Abdullah ibn Kathir told me on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Everyone who commits a sin against God was ignorant when he committed it. Ibn Jurayj said: Ata ibn Abi Rabah told me something similar. Abu Saleh said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Out of his ignorance he committed evil deeds. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then they will repent soon, meaning: What is between him and looking at the Angel of Death. Ad-Dahhak said: Whatever is less than death is near. Qatada and As-Suddi said: As long as he is healthy, and it is narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: Then they will repent soon, meaning as long as he is not gurgling. Ikrimah said: The entire world is near.

Mentioning the hadiths on that

Imam Ahmad said: Ali bin Ayyash and Issam bin Khalid told us: Ibn Thauban told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Makhul, on the authority of Jubayr bin Nufayr, on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not at the point of death. Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Thabit bin Thauban, and Al-Tirmidhi said: Hasan Gharib. It appears in Sunan Ibn Majah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, but this is a mistake. Rather, he is Abdullah bin Umar bin Al-Khattab.

Another hadith On the authority of Ibn Umar, Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Muammar told us, Abdullah ibn al-Hasan al-Khurasani told us, Yahya ibn Abdullah al-Babalti told us, Ayoub ibn Nahik al-Halabi told us, I heard Ata ibn Abi Rabah, he said: I heard Abdullah ibn Umar, I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There is no believing servant who repents a month before death except that God accepts it from him and less than that, and a day and an hour before his death, God knows his repentance and sincerity towards Him except that He accepts it from him."

Another hadith Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi said: Shu'bah told us on the authority of Ibrahim ibn Maymunah, a man from Milhan called Ayyub told me: I heard Abdullah ibn Umar say: Whoever repents a year before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents a month before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents a week before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents a day before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents an hour before his death, he will be forgiven. So I said to him: God said: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. He said: I am only telling you what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. And this is how Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi, Abu Umar al-Hawdi, and Abu Amir al-Aqdi narrated it on the authority of Shu'bah.

Another Hadith Imam Ahmad said: Husayn ibn Muhammad narrated to us, Muhammad ibn Mutraf narrated to us, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani, who said: Four companions of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) gathered, and one of them said: I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant before he dies by a day. The other said: Did you hear this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him)? He said: Yes. He said: And I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant before he dies by half a day. The third said: Did you hear this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him)? He said: Yes. He said: And I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant before he dies by a morning. The fourth said: Did you hear this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him)? He said: Yes. He said: And I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling with his own breath. Sa'id ibn Mansur narrated it on the authority of al-Darawardi, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani, and he mentioned something similar to it.

Another hadith Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Ishaq

Surat al-Nisa 4:17

Indeed, repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. It is those to whom Allah will turn in forgiveness. And Allah is Knowing and Wise.

bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Imran bin Abdul Rahim told us, Uthman bin Al-Haitham told us, Aouf told us on the authority of Muhammad bin Sirin, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of His servant as long as he is not gurgling.

Hadiths on this subject are mursals.

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Basharr told us, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Awf, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: It has reached me that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling. This is a good mural on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, may God have mercy on him. Ibn Jarir also said, may God have mercy on him: Ibn Basharr told us, Muadh bin Hisham told us, my father told me, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Al-Ala bin Ziyad, on the authority of Abu Ayyub Bashir bin Ka'b, that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling. Ibn Basharr told us, Abdul A'la told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Ubadah bin As-Samit, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, and he mentioned something similar.

Another trace Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Basharr told us, Abu Dawud told us, Imran told us on the authority of Qatada, who said: We were with Anas bin Malik and Abu Qilabah was there, so Abu Qilabah spoke and said: When God Almighty cursed Satan, he asked him for a glance, so he said: By Your glory and majesty, I will not leave the heart of the son of Adam as long as the soul is in him, so God Almighty said: By My glory, I will not prevent him from repenting as long as the soul is in him. This was mentioned in a hadith with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad on the authority of Amr ibn Abi Amr and Abu al-Haytham al-Atwari, both of them on the authority of Abu Sa'eed on the authority of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), who said: "Satan said: 'By Your glory, I will continue to mislead them as long as their souls are in their bodies.' God the Almighty said: 'By My glory and majesty, I will continue to forgive them as long as they seek My forgiveness.'" These hadiths indicate that whoever repents to God the Almighty while hoping for life, then his repentance is accepted. This is why God the Almighty said: "Then those will God accept their repentance. And God is Knowing and Wise." But when despair of life occurs, and the angel is seen, and the soul chokes in the throat and the chest becomes constricted, and it reaches the throat, and the soul gurgles as it ascends to the gills, then no repentance is accepted at that time, and there is no time for escape. This is why God the Almighty said: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' This is like what God the Almighty said: But when they saw Our punishment, they said, 'We believe in God alone.' The two verses, and as God Almighty ruled that the people of the earth will not repent if they see the sun rising from the West in His statement: The Day some of the signs of your Lord come, no soul will benefit from its faith if it did not believe before or earned good through its faith 10:13. And His statement, nor those who die while they are disbelievers means that if the disbeliever dies in his disbelief and polytheism, his regret and repentance will not benefit him, and no ransom will be accepted from him even if it fills the earth. Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said, nor those who die while they are disbelievers They said: It was revealed about the polytheists. Imam Ahmad said: Sulayman bin Dawud told us, he said: Abd Al-Rahman bin Thabit bin Thauban told us, he said: My father told me on the authority of Makhul that Umar bin Na'im told him on the authority of Usamah bin Salman that Abu Dharr told them that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of His servant or forgives his servant as long as the veil is not removed. It was said: And what is the removal of the veil? He said, That the soul should depart while it is a polytheist. That is why God Almighty said, For them We have prepared a painful punishment, meaning a severe, lasting, painful punishment.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 17- Repentance is only for God is a resumption to clarify that repentance is not accepted in all cases as is indicated by his statement Forgiving and Merciful, but rather it is only accepted from some and not others as the Qur'anic system has explained here. So his statement Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance is a subject whose predicate is his statement for those who do evil in ignorance. His statement for God is related to what the predicate is related to of stability, or it is related to an omitted word that occurred as a state according to those who allow the state, which is a circumstance, to be presented before its moral factor. It was said that the meaning is: Repentance is only for the grace of God and His mercy towards His servants. It was said that the meaning is: Repentance is only obligatory for God, and this is according to the doctrine of the Mu'tazila because they impose obligations on God, the Almighty, including accepting the repentance of the repentant. It was said that here on means with, and it was said that it means from.

The Ummah has agreed that repentance is obligatory upon the believers, based on the Almighty's saying: And repent to God, all of you, O believers. The majority of scholars are of the view that it is valid for one sin without another, contrary to the Mu'tazila. It has been said that his saying upon God is the predicate. His saying for those who do is related to what the predicate is related to or to an omitted word that is a condition. Evil here means bad deeds. His saying in ignorance is related to an omitted word that is a description or a condition: that is, they do them while being ignorant or ignorant. Al-Qurtubi narrated on the authority of Qatada that he said: The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, agreed that every sin is done in ignorance, whether it is deliberate or out of ignorance. It was narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak and Mujahid that ignorance here means deliberate. Ikrimah said: All worldly matters are ignorance, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: The life of this world is only play and amusement.

Az-Zajaj said: Its meaning is due to their ignorance of choosing transient pleasure over lasting pleasure. It was said that its meaning is that they do not know the nature of the punishment. This was mentioned by Ibn Furak and weakened by Ibn Atiyyah. His statement, Then they repent soon means: before death comes to them, as is indicated by his statement, until death comes to one of them. This is what Abu Majlaz, Ad-Dahhak, Ikrimah and others said. What is meant is before seeing the angels and a person being overcome by himself. The word min in his statement, soon is for partiality: that is, they repent some time soon, which is except for the time of death. It was said that it means before illness, but this is weak and even false, based on what we have mentioned. It was also narrated by Ahmad, At-Tirmidhi who classed it as hasan, Ibn Majah, Al-Hakim who classed it as saheeh, and Al-Bayhaqi in Ash-Shu'ab on the authority of Ibn 'Umar on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling. It was said that its meaning is: they repent shortly after committing the sin, without persistence. His statement, Then those, God will turn in mercy is a promise from Him, the Most High, that He will turn in mercy to them after clarifying that repentance for them is limited to them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

17- The Almighty said: Repentance is only with God. Al-Hasan said: It means the repentance that He accepts, so upon means with, and it was said: from God, for those who do evil in ignorance, Al-Qatada said: The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, agreed that everything that God is disobeyed with is ignorance, whether it was intentional or not, and everyone who disobeys God is ignorant. Al-Mujahid said: What is meant by the verse is intentional. Al-Kalbi said: He was not ignorant that it was a sin, but he was ignorant of its punishment. It was said: The meaning of ignorance is their choice of fleeting pleasure over lasting pleasure.

Then they repent soon. It was said that it means before evil encompasses his good deeds and nullifies them. Al-Suddi and Al-Kalbi said: Soon means that he repents in his health before his death illness. Al-Ikrimah said: Before death. Ad-Dahhak said: Before seeing the Angel of Death.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, on the authority of Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shuraih, on the authority of Abu Al-Qasim Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abdul Azim Al-Baghawi, on the authority of Ali bin Al-Jaad, on the authority of Ibn Thauban, who is Abdul Rahman bin Thabit bin Thauban, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Makhul, on the authority of Jubayr bin Nufayr, on the authority of Abdullah bin Umar, may God be pleased with them both, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God Almighty accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling.

And Abd al-Wahid ibn Ahmad al-Malhi told us, Abu Mansur Muhammad ibn Muhammad ibn Sam'an told us, Abu Ja'far Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Abd al-Jabbar al-Rayyani told us, Hamid ibn Zanjawayh told us, Abu al-Aswad told us, Ibn Lahī'ah told us, on the authority of Abu al-Haytham, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, may God be pleased with them both, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The devil said: By Your glory, O Lord, I will not cease to mislead Your servants as long as their souls are in their bodies. So the Lord said: By My glory, majesty, and exalted position, I will not cease to forgive them as long as they seek My forgiveness."

God Almighty says: Then God will forgive them, and God is Knowing and Wise.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

17 Repentance is only for God meaning that accepting repentance is like what is inevitable for God according to His promise to whoever repents to Him if He accepts his repentance. For those who do evil in ignorance committing it foolishly, because committing a sin foolishly and ignoring it, and that is why it is said that whoever disobeys God is ignorant until he abandons his ignorance. Then they repent soon from a short time, meaning before death comes, as God the Almighty says: Until, when death approaches one of them and the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: God accepts the repentance of His servant as long as he has not yet reached the gurgling point and He called it soon because the duration of life is short, as God the Almighty says: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little'. Or before a seed is planted in their hearts and it is sealed, making it difficult for them to return, and of is for partiality, meaning they repent in any part of the short time, which is before the power of death descends upon them, or evil is made attractive. Then God will turn to them in forgiveness. He promised to fulfill what He promised and wrote upon Himself by saying: Repentance is only for God. "And God is Knowing." He knows of their sincerity in repentance. Wise. The Wise does not punish the repentant.

Surat al-Nisa 4:18

And there is no repentance for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, "Indeed, I repent now," nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. For them We have prepared a painful punishment.

Surat al-Nisa 4:18

And there is no repentance for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, Indeed, I repent now, nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. For them We have prepared a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds sins until, when death approaches one of them and he begins to die he says upon seeing what he is in Indeed, I repent now then that does not benefit him and is not accepted from him nor for those who die while they are disbelievers if they repent in the Hereafter when they witness the punishment, it will not be accepted from them for those We have prepared We have prepared a painful punishment painful

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Repentance is not for those who commit evil deeds and are persistent in disobeying God, until, when death approaches one of them, meaning: when one of them is in a state of death, and sees the angels of his Lord coming to him to take his soul, he says - and his soul is overcome, and his understanding is prevented, by his preoccupation with the anguish of his death throes and his gurgling - I have repented now, meaning: So this has no repentance with God, the Blessed and Exalted, because he said what he said in a state other than repentance, as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Ya'la bin Nu'man, he said, he told me that he heard Ibn 'Umar say: Repentance is extended as long as one does not drink. Then Ibn 'Umar recited: But repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' Then he said: Is the attendance anything other than the market?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' he said: If death is evident in him, God will not accept his repentance.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Nadr, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' So there is no repentance for this with God.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, I heard Ibrahim ibn Maymun narrating, on the authority of a man from Banu al-Harith, who said, a man from among us told us, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr, that he said: Whoever repents a year before his death, his repentance will be accepted, until he mentioned a month, until he mentioned an hour, until he mentioned a lapse. A man said: How can this be, when God Almighty says: But repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' 'Abdullah said: I will tell you what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibrahim bin Muhajir, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: It was said: Repentance is extended as long as one is not held back.

The people of interpretation differed about who was meant by his saying: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.'

Some of them said: The hypocrites are rich with it.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. He said: The first verse was revealed about the believers, and the middle one was revealed about the hypocrites, meaning: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds, and the second one was revealed about the disbelievers, meaning: nor for those who die while they are disbelievers.

Others said: Rather, he meant the people of Islam.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sufyan, who said: We have been informed about this verse: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' He said: They are the Muslims. Do you not see that he said: nor for those who die while they are disbelievers?

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about the people of faith, but it was abrogated.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I repent now,' nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed after that: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. (An-Nisa': 48, 116), so God, the Exalted, forbade forgiveness for those who died while they were disbelievers, and He postponed the people of monotheism to His will, so why did He not make them despair of forgiveness?

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the statements in this regard, in my opinion, is what Al-Thawri mentioned that he heard that it was in Islam. That is because the hypocrites are disbelievers. If he meant the hypocrites, then his statement, nor those who die while they are disbelievers, would not have had an understood meaning, since they and those before them were in one meaning: that they are all disbelievers. There is no reason to differentiate their rulings, and the meaning for which it is invalid that there is repentance for them is one. In God's differentiation between their names and attributes, by calling one of the two categories a disbeliever, and describing the other category as people of evil, and not calling them disbelievers, there is what indicates the separation of their meanings. In the correctness of that being so, there is the correctness of what we said and the invalidity of what contradicts it.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And there is no repentance for those who die as disbelievers. So the position of those is in the accusative case, because it is conjoined with His statement: for those who do evil deeds.

And His statement: For them We have prepared a painful punishment, means: These are the ones who die while they are disbelievers, for them We have prepared a painful punishment, because they are further from repentance, because they die in disbelief. Like:

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Nadr, on the authority of Abu Saleh, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And those who die while they are disbelievers, those are further from repentance.

The Arab scholars differed about the meaning of: We have prepared for them.

Some Basrans said: The meaning of we prepared is we prepared from equid. He said: Its meaning is: we prepared.

Some Kufians said: We prepared and we prepared, their meaning is the same.

The meaning of his saying: We have prepared for them, is that we have prepared for them, a painful torment, meaning: painful and hurtful.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Fourth - The Almighty's saying: And repentance is not God Almighty denied that the ruling on those who repent includes those who are on the verge of death and are in a state of despair, as was the case with Pharaoh when he was in the midst of the water and drowning, and what he showed of faith did not benefit him, because repentance at that time is of no benefit, because it is a state of the removal of the obligation. This is what Ibn Abbas, Ibn Zayd, and the majority of the commentators said. As for the disbelievers, they die in their disbelief, so there is no repentance for them in the Hereafter, and the reference is to them in the Almighty's saying: For them We have prepared a painful punishment which is eternity, even if the reference in His saying is to everyone, then it is a punishment with no eternity with it. This is on the basis that the sins are less than disbelief, meaning that repentance is not for the one who committed sins less than disbelief and then repented at death, nor for the one who died as a disbeliever and repented on the Day of Resurrection. It has been said that the sins here are disbelief, so the meaning is that repentance is not for the disbelievers who repent at death, nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: The verse was revealed in The believers: Repentance is only for God. The second is for al-Munafiqun 63: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds. That is, the repentance of those who persisted in their actions is accepted. Until, when death approaches one of them, that is, the time of death, the moment of ecstasy, and seeing the Angel of Death, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' There is no repentance for this, so He mentioned the repentance of the disbelievers, and the Most High said: "Nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. For them We have prepared a painful punishment." That is, a painful, permanent punishment. And it has been mentioned before.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: God only accepts the repentance of one who does evil in ignorance and then repents, even if it is before the Angel sees his soul before the death rattle. Mujahid and more than one said: Everyone who disobeys God, by mistake or intentionally, is ignorant until he desists from the sin. Qatada said on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah that he used to narrate that the companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to say: Every sin that a servant commits is out of ignorance. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of Qatada, he said: The companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) gathered and saw that everything that God is disobeyed with is out of ignorance, whether it was intentional or otherwise. Ibn Jurayj said: Abdullah ibn Kathir told me on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Everyone who commits a sin against God was ignorant when he committed it. Ibn Jurayj said: Ata ibn Abi Rabah told me something similar. Abu Saleh said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Out of his ignorance he committed evil deeds. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then they will repent soon, meaning: What is between him and looking at the Angel of Death. Ad-Dahhak said: Whatever is less than death is near. Qatada and As-Suddi said: As long as he is healthy, and it is narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Al-Hasan

Surat al-Nisa 4:18

And there is no repentance for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, "Indeed, I repent now," nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. For them We have prepared a painful punishment.

Al-Basri said: Then they will repent soon, meaning as long as he is not gurgling. Ikrimah said: The entire world is near.

Mentioning the hadiths on that

Imam Ahmad said: Ali bin Ayyash and Issam bin Khalid told us: Ibn Thauban told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Makhul, on the authority of Jubayr bin Nufayr, on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not at the point of death. Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Thabit bin Thauban, and Al-Tirmidhi said: Hasan Gharib. It appears in Sunan Ibn Majah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, but this is a mistake. Rather, he is Abdullah bin Umar bin Al-Khattab.

Another hadith On the authority of Ibn Umar, Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Muammar told us, Abdullah ibn al-Hasan al-Khurasani told us, Yahya ibn Abdullah al-Babalti told us, Ayoub ibn Nahik al-Halabi told us, I heard Ata ibn Abi Rabah, he said: I heard Abdullah ibn Umar, I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There is no believing servant who repents a month before death except that God accepts it from him and less than that, and a day and an hour before his death, God knows his repentance and sincerity towards Him except that He accepts it from him."

Another hadith Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi said: Shu'bah told us on the authority of Ibrahim ibn Maymunah, a man from Milhan called Ayyub told me: I heard Abdullah ibn Umar say: Whoever repents a year before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents a month before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents a week before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents a day before his death, he will be forgiven, and whoever repents an hour before his death, he will be forgiven. So I said to him: God said: Repentance is only for those who do evil in ignorance and then repent soon after. He said: I am only telling you what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. And this is how Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi, Abu Umar al-Hawdi, and Abu Amir al-Aqdi narrated it on the authority of Shu'bah.

Another Hadith Imam Ahmad said: Husayn ibn Muhammad narrated to us, Muhammad ibn Mutraf narrated to us, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani, who said: Four companions of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) gathered, and one of them said: I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant before he dies by a day. The other said: Did you hear this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him)? He said: Yes. He said: And I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant before he dies by half a day. The third said: Did you hear this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him)? He said: Yes. He said: And I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant before he dies by a morning. The fourth said: Did you hear this from the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him)? He said: Yes. He said: And I heard the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) say, God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling with his own breath. Sa'id ibn Mansur narrated it on the authority of al-Darawardi, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani, and he mentioned something similar to it.

Another hadith Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Imran bin Abdul Rahim told us, Uthman bin Al-Haitham told us, Aouf told us on the authority of Muhammad bin Sirin, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of His servant as long as he is not gurgling.

Hadiths on this subject are mursals.

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Awf, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: It has reached me that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling. This is a good mural on the authority of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, may God have mercy on him. Ibn Jarir also said, may God have mercy on him: Ibn Bashir told us, Muadh bin Hisham told us, my father told me, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Al-Ala bin Ziyad, on the authority of Abu Ayyub Bashir bin Ka'b, that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling. Ibn Bashir told us, Abdul A'la told us, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Ubadah bin As-Samit, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, and he mentioned something similar.

Another trace Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us, Abu Dawud told us, Imran told us on the authority of Qatada, who said: We were with Anas bin Malik and Abu Qilabah was there, so Abu Qilabah spoke and said: When God Almighty cursed Satan, he asked him for a glance, so he said: By Your glory and majesty, I will not leave the heart of the son of Adam as long as the soul is in him, so God Almighty said: By My glory, I will not prevent him from repenting as long as the soul is in him. This was mentioned in a hadith with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad on the authority of Amr ibn Abi Amr and Abu al-Haytham al-Atwari, both of them on the authority of Abu Sa'eed on the authority of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), who said: "Satan said: 'By Your glory, I will continue to mislead them as long as their souls are in their bodies.' God the Almighty said: 'By My glory and majesty, I will continue to forgive them as long as they seek My forgiveness.'" These hadiths indicate that whoever repents to God the Almighty while hoping for life, then his repentance is accepted. This is why God the Almighty said: "Then those will God accept their repentance. And God is Knowing and Wise." But when despair of life occurs, and the angel is seen, and the soul chokes in the throat and the chest becomes constricted, and it reaches the throat, and the soul gurgles as it ascends to the gills, then no repentance is accepted at that time, and there is no time for escape. This is why God the Almighty said: And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now.' This is like what God the Almighty said: But when they saw Our punishment, they said, 'We believe in God alone.' The two verses, and as God Almighty ruled that the people of the earth will not repent if they see the sun rising from the West in His statement: The Day some of the signs of your Lord come, no soul will benefit from its faith if it did not believe before or earned good through its faith 10:13. And His statement, nor those who die while they are disbelievers means that if the disbeliever dies in his disbelief and polytheism, his regret and repentance will not benefit him, and no ransom will be accepted from him even if it fills the earth. Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, and Al-Rabi' bin Anas said, nor those who die while they are disbelievers They said: It was revealed about the polytheists. Imam Ahmad said: Sulayman bin Dawud told us, he said: Abd Al-Rahman bin Thabit bin Thauban told us, he said: My father told me on the authority of Makhul that Umar bin Na'im told him on the authority of Usamah bin Salman that Abu Dharr told them that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God accepts the repentance of His servant or forgives his servant as long as the veil is not removed. It was said: And what is the removal of the veil? He said, That the soul should depart while it is a polytheist. That is why God Almighty said, For them We have prepared a painful punishment, meaning a severe, lasting, painful punishment.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying 18- And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds is an explicit statement of what was understood from the restriction of repentance in what came before to those who did evil in ignorance and then repented recently. His saying until, when death approaches one of them until is a particle of beginning, and the sentence mentioned after it is the end of what came before it, and the presence of death is the presence of its signs and the patient reaching the state of the context and his fate is overcome by himself and preoccupied with its exit from his body, and it is the time of the gurgling mentioned in the previous hadith, which is his soul reaching his throat, as Al-Harawi said. And his saying He said, I have repented now means: at the time of the presence of death. His saying nor those who die while they are disbelievers is connected to the relative pronoun in his saying for those who do evil deeds meaning: repentance is not for those nor for those who die while they are disbelievers, although there is no repentance for them at all, but they mentioned it as an exaggeration in explaining the non-acceptance of the repentance of those who are at death's door, and that its existence is like its non-existence.

Al-Bazzar, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And those who commit lewdness, that he said: If a woman committed lewdness, she would be confined to her house. If she died, she would die, and if she lived, she would live, until the verse was revealed in Surat An-Nur, The adulterer and the adulteress, flog them. So God made a way for them. So whoever did something, he would be flogged and released. This has been narrated from him through various chains of narration. Abu Dawud narrated in his Sunan on his authority, on his authority, Al-Bayhaqi regarding his statement, And those of your women who commit lewdness, up to his statement, a way, then he combined them both and said, And those of you who commit it, punish them both. Then this was abrogated by the verse of flogging. A group of the Tabi'un said that it was abrogated. Abu Dawud and Al-Bayhaqi narrated it on the authority of Mujahid. Abd Ibn Hamid and Abu Dawud narrated it in his Naskh, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated it on the authority of Qatadah. Al-Bayhaqi narrated it in his Sunan on the authority of Al-Hasan. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Saeed Ibn Jubayr. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Al-Suddi. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God, And those among you who commit it, he said: When a man committed adultery, he was humiliated by being taunted and beaten with sandals. Then God revealed after this verse, The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes, if they were married, they were stoned according to the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid, And those among you who commit it, he said: The two men who committed it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, And those among you who commit it, meaning the two virgins. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ata', he said: The man and the woman. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding the statement of God, Repentance is only for God, the verse, he said: This is for the believers. And regarding the statement, And repentance is not for those who do evil, he said: This is for the hypocrites, nor for those who die while they are disbelievers, he said: This is for the polytheists. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Al-Rabi. Abd Al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated from Qatada who said: The companions of Muhammad (peace be upon him) gathered and decided that everything that was disobeyed intentionally or otherwise was done out of ignorance. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Abu Al-Aaliyah that the companions of Muhammad (peace be upon him) used to say: Every sin that a servant committed was done out of ignorance. Ibn Jarir narrated from Al-Kalbi from Abi from Salih from Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God interpretation of the meaning: "Whoever does evil is ignorant of his evil deeds because of his ignorance. "Then they repent soon." He said: In life and health. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from him who said: Near is what is between him and seeing the Angel of Death. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Shu'ab from Ad-Dahhak who said: "Everything before death is near for him. Repentance is what is between him and seeing the Angel of Death. So if he repents when he sees the Angel of Death, then he does not have that right." Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Al-Hasan who said: Near is what has not yet reached his gurgling point. Many hadiths have been reported about accepting the repentance of the servant as long as he is not gurgling, which Ibn Kathir mentioned in his interpretation, including the hadith we mentioned earlier.

Surat al-Nisa 4:18

And there is no repentance for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, "Indeed, I repent now," nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. For them We have prepared a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

18- And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds, meaning: sins, until, when death approaches one of them, and he falls into the throes of death, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now,' which is the state of the market when his soul is taken away, and the faith of a disbeliever or a sinner is not accepted. God Almighty said: So their faith did not benefit them when they saw Our punishment. (Ghafir 40:85) Therefore, Pharaoh's faith did not benefit him when he was drowned. "Nor those who die while they are disbelievers. For those We have prepared," meaning: We have prepared and made ready, a painful punishment.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

18 And repentance is not for those who do evil deeds until, when death approaches one of them, he says, 'Indeed, I have repented now,' nor for those who die while they are disbelievers. He made an analogy between those who repent until death approaches from the wicked and the disbelievers, and those who die in disbelief in denying repentance to exaggerate the lack of consideration for it in that case, and it is as if he said, and the repentance of these and the lack of repentance of these are the same. It was said that what is meant by those who do evil are the disobedient believers, and by those who do evil deeds are the hypocrites because of the multiplication of their disbelief and evil deeds, and by those who die are the disbelievers. For them We have prepared a painful punishment, confirming the non-acceptance of their repentance, and clarifying that the punishment has been prepared for them, and their punishment is not incapable of Him whenever He wills, and the preparation is from the equipment, which is the equipment, and it was said that its origin is we prepared, so the first dal was replaced with a ta.

Surat al-Nisa 4:19

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God makes therein much good.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women that is, themselves against compulsion with the fat-ha and the damma are two languages, meaning those who forced them to do so were in the pre-Islamic period inheriting the wives of their relatives. If they wished, they could marry them without a dowry, or marry them off and take their dowry, or prevent them until they ransom themselves with what they inherited or die and they inherit from them, so they were forbidden from that. And that you prevent them that is, prevent your wives from marrying others by keeping them, and you have no desire for them to harm them in order to take away part of what you have given them of the dowry unless they commit a clear immorality with the fat-ha and kasra of the ya, meaning it is clear or it is clear, meaning adultery or rebellion, then you may harm them until they ransom themselves from you and divorce them and live with them in kindness that is, in general terms in speech, spending, and spending the night but if you dislike them then be patient. Perhaps you dislike a thing and God has placed much good in it And perhaps He will place that in them by granting you from them a righteous child.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, and Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wished, he could marry her, and if they wished, they could marry her off. They had more right to her than her family. Then this verse was revealed.

Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated with a good chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Umamah ibn Sahl ibn Hanif, who said: When Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, and they had that in the pre-Islamic era. So God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. And there is a corroborating verse on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Jarir.

Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Faryabi and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Adi bin Thabit on the authority of a man from the Ansar who said: Abu Qais bin Al-Aslat died. He was one of the righteous men of the Ansar, so his son Qais proposed to his wife, but she said: I only consider you a son and you are one of the righteous men of your people. So she came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him. He said: Return to your home. Then this verse was revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred.

Ibn Saad narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi who said: If a man died leaving behind a wife, his son had more right to marry her if he wished if she was not his mother, or he could marry her to whomever he wished. When Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, his son Mahsan arose and inherited the marriage to his wife but did not bequeath her any of the money. She came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him. He said: Go back, perhaps God will reveal something about you. Then this verse was revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married. And this verse was revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will.

He also narrated on the authority of Al-Zuhri, who said: This verse was revealed about some people from the Ansar. When a man died, the most powerful person in control of his wife was his guardian, who would keep her until she died.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: I said to Ata', And the wives of your sons who are from your loins. He said: We used to say that it was revealed about Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he married the wife of Zayd ibn Haritha. The polytheists said about that: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins was revealed, and And He did not make your adopted sons your sons was revealed, and Muhammad was not the father of any of your men was revealed.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means [by His saying]: O you who have believed, O you who have believed in God and His Messenger, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, meaning: it is not lawful for you to inherit the marriage of the women of your relatives and your fathers against their will.

If someone says: How did they inherit from them? And what is the reason for prohibiting their inheritance? You have learned that women are inheritors just as men are inheritors!

It was said: This is not part of the meaning of their inheritance if they died and left behind wealth, but rather it is because in the pre-Islamic era, if one of them had a husband who died, his son or relative had more right to her than anyone else, and to herself. If he wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if he wanted to prevent her from marrying anyone else and not marrying her until she died. So God Almighty forbade that to His servants, and prohibited them from marrying the wives of their fathers, and forbade them from preventing them from marrying.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Asbat bin Muhammad told us, he said, Abu Ishaq - meaning: Al-Shaibani - told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women by compulsion, nor to prevent them from having children in order to take away part of what you have given them, he said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if they wanted to marry her, they could do so, and if they wanted to do so, they could not marry her, and they had more right to her than her family, so this verse was revealed regarding that.

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

Ahmad bin Muhammad al-Tusi told me, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Salih told us, he said, Muhammad bin Fadil told me, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, on the authority of his father, he said: When Abu Qais bin al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, and that was the case for them in the pre-Islamic era, so God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Waqid, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, they said regarding His statement: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality, that is, a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, and he would prevent her from marrying until we died or her dowry was returned to him, so God ruled against that, meaning that God forbade you from that.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Sulayman al-Taymi, on the authority of Abu Majlaz, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, he said: The Ansar used to do that. If a man's intimate friend died, his intimate friend would inherit his wife, and he would have more right to her than her guardian.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Husayn narrated to us, Hajjaj narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata' Al-Khurasani, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the statement of God, O you who believe! It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, the verse, he said: If a man's father or his intimate friend died, he had more right to his wife. If he wished, he could keep her, or detain her until she ransomed herself from him with her dowry, or she died and he took her money. Ibn Jurayj said: Ata' bin Abi Rabah informed me that in the days of ignorance, if a man died and left behind a woman, his family would detain her for the sake of a child who would be among them. So this verse was revealed, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, the verse, Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: If a man's father died, he had more right to his wife. He could marry her if he wished if she was not her son, or he could marry her to his brother or his nephew if he wished. Ibn Jurayj said, and Ikrimah said: It was revealed about Kabisha bint Ma'n ibn Asim, from the Aws. Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died and his son deviated from her. She came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Prophet of God, I did not inherit from my husband, nor did I leave anyone to marry! So this verse was revealed.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, he said: If a man died, his eldest son was more entitled to his wife, he could marry her if he wished if he was not her son, or he could marry her to whomever he wished, his brother or his nephew.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, similar to what Mujahid said.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, he said, I heard Amr bin Dinar say the same.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told me, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: As for his statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, then in the days of ignorance, a man's father, brother, or son would die, and if he died and left behind a wife, if the heir of the deceased came first and threw his garment over her, he had more right to marry her with the dowry of his companion, or to marry her and take her dowry. If she came first and went to her people, they had more right to her.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj who said, I heard Abu Muadh say, Ubayd ibn Sulayman Al-Bahili told us, I heard Ad-Dahhak say about His statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, that when a man's close friend died in Madinah and left a wife, the man would throw his garment over her and inherit her marriage, and he had more right to her. And that was considered marriage among them. If he wanted, he could keep her until she ransomed herself from him. And this was in the case of polytheism.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, he said: Inheritance was among the people of Yathrib in Medina here. A man would die and his son would inherit his father's wife as he would inherit his mother. She could not refuse. If he liked to take her, he would take her as his father had taken her. If he disliked her, he would leave her. If he was young, she would be kept for him until he grew up. If he liked, he could have intercourse with her, and if he liked, he could leave her. This is the statement of God Almighty: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will.

Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, that there were men from the people of Medina, when one of their intimates died, he would throw his garment over his wife, thus inheriting her marriage, and no one else would marry her, and he would keep her with him until she ransomed herself from him with a ransom, so God Almighty revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will.

Ibn Wakee' told me, he said, my father told me, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ali ibn Badhima, on the authority of Muqsim, he said: In the pre-Islamic era, if a woman's husband died and a man came and threw his garment over her, he was the one most entitled to her. He said: Then this verse was revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the verse according to this interpretation is: O you who believe, it is not lawful for you to inherit from your fathers and relatives by marrying their women against their will. So he left out mentioning fathers and relatives and marriage, and directed the speech to the prohibition of inheriting from women, being satisfied with the addressees knowing the meaning of the speech, since its meaning was understood by them.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: It is not permissible for you, O people, to inherit women's estates against their will. He said: This was said thus because they were preventing their wives during their lifetimes, and they were reluctant to prevent them, until they died, then they would inherit their money.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, he said: When a man died and left behind a female slave, his close friend would throw his garment over her and prevent her from seeing people. If she was beautiful, he would marry her, and if she was ugly, he would keep her until she died and then he would inherit from her.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, regarding his statement: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, he said: It was revealed about some people from the Ansar, who, when a man among them died, would give his guardian control over his wife, and he would keep her until she died and then inherit from her, so it was revealed about them.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions regarding the interpretation of the verse is the opinion we mentioned from those who said: Its meaning is: It is not permissible for you to inherit the women of your relatives, because God, may He be glorified and praised, has made clear the inheritances of those who are entitled to inheritance, so that is for those who are entitled to it, whether they dislike their inheriting it from the men or women who inherit from it, or they are pleased with it.

Thus, it is known that He, the Most High, did not prohibit His servants from inheriting women from what He made for them as an inheritance from them, and that He only prohibited them from being coerced into inheriting, meaning prohibiting the inheritance of their marriage, since their deceased whom they inherited had been the owner of their affairs in marriage, as a man owns the benefit of what he rented of houses and lands and everything else that has benefits.

God Almighty made clear to His servants that what a man owns of his wife's private parts has a different meaning than what one of them owns of the benefits of other possessions that may be rented. If the owner of his wife's private parts dies, what he owned of his wife through marriage does not belong to his heirs after him, just as they do of the things that he owned through purchase, gift, or rent after his death, by inheriting that from him.

As for the Almighty's saying: And do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, the people of interpretation differed in its interpretation.

Some of them said: Its interpretation is: And do not prevent them, meaning: O group of heirs of deceased men, do not prevent their wives from marrying whomever they want to marry, until they die, so that you may take some of what you gave them, meaning: so that you may take from their money when they die, what your deceased inheritors had given them of their dowries.

Among those who said this are a group of people, some of whom we have mentioned, including Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, and Ikrimah.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: O people, do not prevent your women, keeping them back to cause them harm, while you have no need for them, and harming them so that they may ransom themselves from you with what you have given them of their dowries.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And do not prevent them, he says: Do not oppress them, in order that you may take away some of what you have given them, meaning, a man has a woman and he is reluctant to be with her and she has a dowry due from him, so he harms her so that she may redeem herself.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And do not prevent them, he said: It is not permissible for you to keep your wife away from harm until she redeems herself from you. He said, and Muammar told us, he said, and Samak bin al-Fadl told me, on the authority of Ibn al-Baylamani, he said: These two verses were revealed, one of them regarding the matter of the pre-Islamic era, and the other regarding the matter of Islam.

Surat al-Nisa 4:19

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Muammar, he said, Samak bin Al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Al-Baylamani, regarding his statement: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying, he said: These two verses were revealed: one of them in the pre-Islamic era, and the other in the matter of Islam.

Abdullah said: It is not permissible for you to inherit women in the pre-Islamic era, nor to prevent them from marrying in Islam.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed: And do not prevent them, he said: Do not detain them.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not prevent them from marrying you in order to take away part of what you gave them. As for preventing them, he says: harm them so that they may ransom themselves from you.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd ibn Sulayman told us: I heard Adh-Dahhak say regarding His statement: And do not prevent them, he said: Preventing them is when a man dislikes his wife and harms her until she redeems herself from him. God Almighty said: And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another? (An-Nisa': 21).

Others said: The meaning of the prohibition of preventing women from marrying in this verse is their guardians.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, that they marry their wives, like the prevention in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Others said: Rather, what is prohibited is the husband of a woman after he separates from her. They said: This was an act of the Age of Ignorance, so it was prohibited in Islam.

Who said that?

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: The practice of 'Adhl among the Quraysh in Mecca was that a man would marry a noble woman, perhaps she would not agree with him, so he would separate from her on the condition that she would not marry again except with his permission. He would bring witnesses and write that down for her and have her testify. Then when a suitor proposed to her, if she gave him permission and satisfied him, he would give her permission, otherwise he would prevent her. He said: This is the saying of God: And do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them Al-An'am 2:11.

Abu Jaafar said: We have previously explained the meaning of 'adl and its origin, with evidence for that.

The first of these statements that we mentioned as correct in interpreting His statement: And do not prevent them from marrying you in order to take away part of what you have given them, is the statement of the one who said: God, may He be glorified and exalted, forbade the husband of a woman from making things difficult for her and harming her, while he is averse to her company and loves to separate from her, so that she may ransom herself from him with part of what he gave her as a dowry.

We said that this is more correct, because no one can prevent a woman from marrying except one of two men: either her husband by making things difficult for her and keeping her to himself while he is against her, harming her by doing so, so that he can take from her what he gave her by her ransoming herself from him by doing so, or her guardian to whom she is entitled to marry.

If there is no way for anyone other than them to prevent her from marrying, and it is known that the guardian is not one of those who gave her anything, then it is said that he prevented her from marriage: he prevented her in order to take away some of what he gave her. It was known that the one whom God Almighty meant by His prohibition against preventing her from marrying is her husband, who has the way to prevent her from marrying in order to harm her so that she may ransom herself from him.

If this is true, and it is known that God Almighty did not give anyone a way to his wife after he separated from her and she became separated from him, so that he would have a way to prevent her from marrying him, so that she could redeem herself from him for his preventing her, whether she committed an immorality or not, and God Almighty has permitted husbands to prevent their wives from marrying him if they committed an obvious immorality until they redeem themselves from him, then it is clear from this the error of the interpretation interpreted by Ibn Zayd, and the interpretation of the one who said: The prohibition of preventing her in this verse refers to the guardians of the widowed, and the correctness of what we said about it.

His saying: And do not prevent them is in the accusative case, in apposition to his saying: That you inherit women against their will. Its meaning is: It is not permissible for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them.

And it is also what was mentioned in the letter of Ibn Masoud.

If it was said: It is in the position of a jussive mood as a prohibition, it would not be a mistake.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: It is not permissible for you, O believers, to prevent your women from marrying you, to harm them, while you are reluctant to be with them, and they are obedient to you, so that you may take away some of what you have given them of their dowries, unless they commit a clear immorality, in which case it is permissible for you to harm them so that they may ransom themselves from you.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of the obscenity that God Almighty mentioned in this place.

Some of them said: It means adultery. He said: If a man's wife commits adultery, it is permissible for him to prevent her and harm her, so that she may ransom herself from him with what he gave them as her dowry.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Ash'ath told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding the virgin who commits adultery, he said: She should be lashed one hundred times, banished for a year, and what she took from her should be returned to her husband. And the interpretation of this verse is: And do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ata al-Khurasani - regarding a man who commits an indecent act with his wife: he takes what he brought to her and takes her out, so that abrogated the limits.

Ahmad bin Mani' told us, he said, Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, he said: If a man sees something indecent from his wife, then he should not harm her or make things difficult for her until she divorces him.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, Muammar told me, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Abu Qilabah - regarding a man who finds out about his wife committing an immoral act, and he mentioned something similar.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Unless they commit a clear immorality, which is adultery. So if they do that, then take their dowries.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: Abdul Karim told me: He heard Al-Hasan Al-Basri:

Unless they commit an immorality, he said: Adultery. He said: And I heard Al-Hasan and Abu Al-Shatha' say: If she does, it is permissible for her husband to ask her for a divorce, so she can ransom herself.

Others said: The clear indecency, in this case, is rebellion.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Unless they commit a clear immorality, which is hatred and rebellion. So if she does that, then he is permitted to pay her ransom.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, he said, Anbasa told us, on the authority of Ali ibn Badhima, on the authority of Muqsim, regarding his statement: And do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you gave them, unless they commit indecent acts, according to the recitation of Ibn Masoud. He said: If she disobeys you and harms you, then it is permissible for you to take back what she took from you.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mufraf bin Tarif, on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim: Unless they commit a clear indecency, he said: The indecency here is rebellion. So if she is rebellious, it is permissible for him to take her divorce from her.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Unless they commit a clear immorality, he said: It is rebellion.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ata' bin Abi Rabah said: Unless they commit a clear immorality. If they do, then: If you wish, you may keep them, and if you wish, you may release them.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj who said, I heard Abu Muadh say, Ubayd ibn Sulayman told us, I heard Ad-Dahhak ibn Muzahim say about His statement, Unless they commit a clear immorality, He said: Our Lord, Blessed and Exalted be He, is just in His judgment, so He turned to the women and said, Unless they commit a clear immorality, and immorality means disobedience and rebellion. So if that is on her part, then God has commanded him to beat her and has commanded him to leave her. But if she does not abandon disobedience and rebellion, then there is no blame upon him after that if he takes a ransom from her.

Abu Ja'far said: The first thing that has been said in the interpretation of His statement: Except that they commit a clear indecency, is that it means every indecency: from obscene language towards her husband, harming him, and fornication with her private parts. This is because God, the Most High, made His statement, Except that they commit a clear indecency, general, meaning every clear and apparent indecency. So every husband of a woman who commits an indecency of the indecencies that are fornication or rebellion, he has the right to prevent her according to

Surat al-Nisa 4:19

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

what God has stated in His Book, and to make things difficult for her until she redeems herself from him, whatever meanings of indecency she has committed, after it is clear and apparent, according to the apparent meaning of the Book of God, the Most High, and the authenticity of the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, such as that which:

Yunus bin Sulayman al-Basri told me, he said, Hatim bin Ismail told us, he said, Ja'far bin Muhammad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jabir: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fear God with regard to women, for you have taken them as a trust from God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you by the word of God. You have a right over them that they should not allow anyone you dislike to share your bed. If they do that, then beat them, but not severely. They have a right over you to provide for them and clothe them in a reasonable manner.

Musa bin Abdul Rahman Al-Masruqi narrated to us, he said: Zaid bin Al-Habbab narrated to us, he said: Musa bin Hubaydah Al-Rabdhī narrated to us, he said: Sadaqah bin Yasar narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Umar: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O people, women are prisoners among you. You have taken them as a trust from God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you by the word of God. You have rights over them, and they have rights over you. Among your rights over them is that they not let anyone share your bed, and that they not disobey you in what is right. If they do that, then they are entitled to their sustenance and clothing in a reasonable manner."

So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed us that it is the husband's right over his wife that she not let anyone share his bed, and that she not disobey him in what is right, and that what is due to her of sustenance and clothing is only due to him if she fulfills what is due to her of rights, by not letting anyone share his bed, and by not disobeying him in what is right.

It is known that the meaning of the Prophet's saying, may God bless him and grant him peace: It is your right over them that they not allow anyone to share your bed, is that they should not allow anyone to have intercourse with them except you.

If what we have narrated about this is correct from the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), then it is clear that if a woman's husband allows his wife to have intercourse with someone other than him and allows someone else to have intercourse with her, then he has the right to prevent her from clothing and sustenance in a reasonable manner, just as he has the right to prevent her from that if she disobeys him in what is reasonable. And if that is his right, then it is known that he is not preventing her - by preventing her from what he has the right to prevent her - a right that is obligatory upon him. For this reason, then it is clear that if she redeems herself from her husband in that case, and her husband takes from her what she gave him, then he did not take that from a forbidden act of obstruction, rather he took what he took from her from a permissible act of obstruction. For this reason, then it is clear that he is included in the exception of God, the Blessed and Exalted, who made an exception from those who prevent them by saying: And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality.

If this is correct, then the statement of the one who said: Unless they commit a clear immorality is clearly corrupt. It was abrogated by the prescribed punishments, because the prescribed punishment is the right of God, the Most High, upon the one who commits the immorality that is adultery. As for preventing a woman from marrying in order to redeem herself from her husband with what he gave her or some of it, it is a right for her husband, just as his preventing her and making things difficult for her if she rebels against him in order to redeem herself from him is a right for him. The ruling of one does not invalidate the ruling of the other.

Abu Ja'far said: The meaning of the verse is: "It is not lawful for you, O you who believe, to prevent your women from marrying, restricting them, or depriving them of their provision and clothing in a reasonable manner, in order to take away part of what you have given them of your dowries, unless they commit an immorality of fornication or lewdness against you, or they differ with you in what is due from them to you." This is clear and obvious. Then it is permissible for you to restrict them and restrict them, in order to take away part of what you have given them of dowry if they ransom themselves from you thereby.

The reading of his saying: Mubbinah differed.

Some of them read: Mubayyinah with the opening of the Ya, meaning that it has been made clear to you, declared and made evident.

Some of them read it as Mubayyinah with a kasra on the ya, meaning that it is clear and obvious to people that it is obscene.

These are two readings that are widely used in the readings of the Islamic countries. Whichever one the reader reads, he is correct in his reading, because if the person commits an immoral act, it is clearly apparent, and if it is apparent, then it is by the person committing it that it is apparent. So it is not clearly apparent unless it is clear, and it is not clear unless it is clear. Therefore, I saw that the reading, whichever one the reader reads, is correct.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: And live with them in kindness, is: And treat your women, O men, and befriend them in kindness, meaning what He has commanded you to do in terms of companionship, which is to keep them and fulfill their rights that God, the Most High, has imposed upon you for them, or to release them from you with kindness, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And live with them in kindness, meaning: And mix with them.

This is what Muhammad bin Al-Hussein said, and it is their Creator, from the ten, which is companionship.

Abu Ja'far said: By this, the Most High means: Do not prevent your wives in order to take away some of what you have given them, without suspicion or rebellion on their part, but live with them in kindness even if you dislike them, for perhaps you will dislike them and keep them, and God will make for you - in your keeping them despite your disliking them - much good, in the form of children He will provide for you from them, or your kindness to them after your disliking them, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God makes therein much good, he said: Perhaps God will make therein much good.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Muhammad bin Al-Hasan told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: And God will place therein much good, he said: The child.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And God will place much good in it, and much good means that he will be kind to her, so the man will be blessed with her child, and God will place much good in her child.

The letter ha in his statement: And God will place therein much good, according to the statement of Mujahid that we mentioned, is a metaphor for the source of you hate, as if the meaning of the statement according to him is: If you hate them, then perhaps you will hate something and God will place in its hatred much good.

Even if the interpretation of the statement was: Perhaps you dislike a thing and God places in that thing which you dislike much good, it would be permissible and correct.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains eight issues:

First - The Almighty's saying: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. This is connected to what was previously mentioned about wives, and the intent is to negate injustice and harm to them, and the address is to guardians. And that is in the nominative case with it is not lawful for you to inherit women. And against is a source in the place of a state, and the narrations and statements of the commentators differed regarding the reason for its revelation. Al-Bukhari narrated:

On the authority of Ibn Abbas: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them. He said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wished, he could marry her, and if they wished, they could marry her off. They had more right to her than her family. So this verse was revealed about that. Abu Dawud narrated it with the same meaning. Al-Zuhri and Abu Majlaz said: It was their custom that when a man died, his son from another woman or his closest agnate would throw his garment over the woman, so he would have more right to her than herself and her guardians. If he wished, he could marry her without a dowry except the dowry that the deceased had given her. If he wished, he could marry her off to another man and take her dowry and not give her anything. If he wished, he could prevent her from marrying in order to ransom herself from him with what she had inherited from the deceased, or she would die and he would inherit from her. So God revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. The meaning is: It is not lawful for you to inherit them from their husbands, so you become their wives. It was said: If the heir was the first to throw a garment over her, he had more right to her, and if she was the first to go to her family, she had more right to herself, as stated by al-Suddi. It was also said: If a man had an old woman and his soul yearned for a young woman, he would hate to part with the old woman for her money, so he would keep her and not come near her until she ransomed him with her money or died, so he would inherit her money. So this verse was revealed and the husband was ordered to divorce her if he hated her company and not to keep her against his will. This is what God the Almighty said: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. The purpose of the verse is to abolish what they were doing in their ignorance and not to make women like money, inheriting from men as money is inherited. Under duress with a damma on the kaf is the reading of Hamzah and al-Kisa'i, the rest with a fatha, and they are two dialects. Al-Taqbi said: Under duress with a fatha means compulsion, and under duress with a damma means hardship. It is said: He spat that out willingly or unwillingly, meaning willingly or under duress, and the address is to the guardians.

It was said that if the husbands of women imprison them due to bad treatment, out of greed for her inheritance, or they ransom themselves with some of their dowries, this is more correct and was chosen by Ibn Atiyah. He said: The evidence for that is the Almighty's saying: Unless they commit an immorality. And if she commits an immorality, then the guardian does not have the right to imprison her until he takes her money, according to the consensus of the nation. Rather, that is for the husband, as will be explained in the issue after this.

Surat al-Nisa 4:19

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

The second: The Almighty's saying: So do not prevent them The prevention has already been mentioned, unless they commit a clear immorality. People differed about the meaning of immorality. Al-Hasan said: It is adultery. If a virgin commits adultery, she is to be flogged one hundred times and exiled for a year, and she returns to her husband what she took from him. Abu Qilabah said: If a man's wife commits adultery, there is nothing wrong with him harming her and making things difficult for her until she redeems herself from him. Al-Suddi said: If they do that, then take their dowries. Ibn Sirin and Abu Qilabah said: It is not permissible for him to take a ransom from her unless he finds a man on her stomach. The Almighty said: Unless they commit a clear immorality. Ibn Mas'ud, Ibn Abbas, Al-Dahhak and Qatadah said: The clear immorality in this verse is hatred and rebellion. They said: If she is rebellious, it is permissible for him to take her money, and this is the school of Malik. Ibn Atiyah said: However, I do not remember any text for him on the indecency in the verse. Some people said: Indecency is vulgarity with the tongue and bad treatment in word and deed, and this is in the meaning of rebellion. Some scholars permit taking money from a rebellious wife by way of khul', but they see that it should not exceed what he gave her, based on the words of God Almighty: So that you may take away some of what you gave them. Malik and a group of scholars said: The husband has the right to take from the rebellious wife everything she owns. Ibn Atiyah said: Adultery and fornication are companions of rebellion and harm to the husband, and all of that is an indecency that permits taking money. Abu Omar said: The statement of Ibn Sirin and Abu Qilabah is nothing in my opinion because the indecency may be the beginning and the harm, and from this the indecent person is called: indecent and indecent. And if he finds out about her indecency, he has the right to curse her, and if he wishes, he may divorce her. But if he harms her until she redeems herself from him with what is hers, he has no right to do that, and I do not know of anyone who said that he has the right to harm her and mistreat her until she divorces him if he finds her committing adultery, other than Abu Qilabah, and God knows best. And God Almighty said: But if you fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God (Al-Baqarah 2:229) meaning in good treatment and fulfilling the husband's rights and his fulfilling her rights, There is no blame upon them for that by which she redeems herself (Al-Baqarah 2:229) and God Almighty said: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease (An-Nisa' 4:4). These verses are the basis of this chapter. Ata' Al-Khurasani said: If a man committed an indecency with his wife, he would take from her what he had brought to her and take her out, so that was abrogated by the limits. A fourth statement: Unless they commit a clear indecency, unless they commit adultery, in which case they will be confined to their homes. This was before the abrogation, and this is in the meaning of the words of Qu Ata', and it is weak.

Third: If we accept the statement that what is meant by the address in the case of obstruction is the guardians, then its understanding is that whenever it is proven that a guardian is obstructing the marriage, the judge should look into the matter of the woman and her husband, except for the father in the case of his daughters, for if there is good in his obstruction, then there is no objection, according to one statement, and that is by the address and suitors. And if his obstruction is proven, then there are two statements in the Maliki school of thought: that he is like all guardians, the judge marries whomever he wants to marry from his daughters and requests it, and the other statement - he should not be exposed to it.

Fourth: It is possible that ta'adhlhunna is a jussive mood for prohibition, so the waw is a conjunction of a sentence cut off from the first. It is also possible that it is an accusative in apposition to that you inherit, so the waw is a joint verb that is connected to a verb. Ibn Mas'ud read nor that you are adahlunna, so this reading strengthens the possibility of the accusative and that adahl is something that is not permissible according to the text.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: Mubeenah with a kasrah on the ya', as read by Nafi' and Abu Amr, and the rest with a fathah on the ya', and Ibn Abbas read it with a kasrah on the ba' and a sukoon on the ya', from the word abana to make something clear, it is said: he made the matter clear by himself, and ibnatuhu he made it clear and baynatuhu he made it clear, and all of these readings are eloquent languages.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: And live with them in kindness meaning according to what God has commanded of good treatment. The address is to everyone, as everyone has companions, whether a husband or a guardian. However, what is meant by this command is mostly husbands, and it is like the Almighty's saying: Then keep them in kindness (al-Baqarah 2:229). This means fulfilling her right of dowry and maintenance, and not frowning at her without a sin, and being open in speech, neither rude nor harsh nor showing inclination towards anyone other than her. And companionship: mixing and mingling, and from this is the saying of Tarafa:

If her intentions are far-fetched once, then she is still in the company of a beloved companion.

The beloved made a group like a mixture and a drowning person. And he lived with him, and the people lived with him and they were together. So God, the Almighty, commanded that women be treated well if they are engaged to him so that there is a bond between them and their companionship is perfect, because it is more soothing for the soul and more enjoyable for life. This is obligatory for the husband and is not required of him in the judiciary. Some of them said: It is that he should dress up for her as she dresses up. Yahya bin Abdul Rahman Al-Hanthali said: I came to Muhammad bin Al-Hanafiyyah and he came out to me in a red cloak and his beard was dripping with musk. I said: What is this? He said: My wife threw this cloak over me and anointed me with perfume, and they desire from her what we desire from them. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: I like to adorn myself for my wife as I like her to adorn herself for me. This is included in the two that we mentioned. Ibn Atiyyah said: And the meaning of the verse is referred to. The saying of the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him:

So enjoy it even though it is crooked. That is, do not treat her badly even though it is crooked, because it is what creates discord and discord, which is the reason for divorce.

Seventh: Our scholars have used the Almighty's saying: And live with them in kindness as evidence that if a woman is not satisfied with one servant, then he must serve her as much as she needs, such as the daughter of the caliph or king and the like for whom one servant is not sufficient, and that is treating her in kindness. Al-Shafi'i and Abu Hanifa said: He is only required to have one servant, and that is sufficient for her to serve herself, and there is no woman in the world who does not have one servant who is sufficient for her. This is like a fighter who has several horses, so he is not given a share of more than one horse, because he cannot fight except on one horse. Our scholars said: This is wrong, because like the daughters of kings who have many services, one servant is not sufficient for them because they need to wash their clothes, fix their beds, and so on, in order to do what one person cannot do. This is clear, and God knows best.

Eighth - The Almighty's saying: If you dislike them meaning because of their ugliness or bad character without committing an immoral act or rebellion. This encourages tolerance, for perhaps the matter will lead to God granting her righteous children. That is raised by maybe and that and the verb is a source.

I said: And from this meaning is what was mentioned in Sahih Muslim, "On the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

A believing man should not hate a believing woman. If he dislikes one characteristic of her, he will be pleased with another." Or someone else said. The meaning is: He should not hate her with a complete hatred that would lead him to separate from her. That is, he should not do that, but rather forgive her bad deeds for her good deeds and overlook what he dislikes for what he loves. Makhul said: I heard Ibn Umar say: A man seeks advice from God the Almighty and He chooses for him, but he becomes angry with his Lord, the Almighty and Majestic, and he does not believe that he should consider the outcome, but he finds that He has chosen for him. Ibn al-Arabi said: Abu al-Qasim ibn Habib told me in al-Mahdiyah on the authority of Abu al-Qasim al-Siyuri on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Abd al-Rahman, where he said: Sheikh Abu Muhammad ibn Abi Zayd was of knowledge and religion in status and knowledge. He had a wife who treated him badly and she would limit his rights and hurt him with her tongue. He would be asked about her and he would be reprimanded for being patient with her. He would say: I am a man upon whom God has completed His blessings in my physical health, my knowledge, and what my right hand possesses. Perhaps she has sent a punishment for my sin, so I fear that if I separate from her, a punishment more severe than her will befall me. Our scholars said: This is evidence of the undesirability of divorce despite its permissibility. It was narrated on the authority of The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God does not dislike anything that He has permitted except divorce and eating. God will fill the intestines with something when they are full."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Muqatil told us, Asbat ibn Muhammad told us, Al-Shaibani told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas - Al-Shaibani said: Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai mentioned it, and I do not think he mentioned it except on the authority of Ibn Abbas - O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. He said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if they wanted to do so, they could not do so, so they had more right to her than her family. Then this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. This is how Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Shaibani, whose name was Sulayman ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ikrimah, and on the authority of Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai, whose name was Ata', a blind Kufan, both of them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, as mentioned above. Abu Dawud said: Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Thabit Al-Marwazi told us, Ali bin Hussein told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from getting married in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. This is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, but he would prevent her from getting married until she died or her dowry was returned to him. So God, the Most High, ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Abu Dawud was the only one to narrate it, and more than one person narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas in a similar manner. Waki' said on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ali bin Badhimah, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: If a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic period, and a man came and threw a garment over her, he was more entitled to her, so this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ali bin Abi Talha narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, that he said: When a man died and left behind a female slave, his intimate friend

Surat al-Nisa 4:19

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

would throw his garment over her and prevent her from seeing people. If she was beautiful, he would marry her, and if she was ugly, he would keep her until she died and inherit from her. Al-Awfi narrated on his authority: When a man from the people of Medina had a close friend, he would throw his garment over his wife, and he would inherit her marriage, and no one else would marry her, and he would keep her with him until she ransomed herself from him with a ransom. Then God revealed, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Zaid bin Aslam said about the verse: When a man from the people of Yathrib died during the pre-Islamic era, his wife would be inherited by whoever would inherit his money, and he would prevent her from marrying him until he inherited her, or he would marry her to whomever he wanted. The people of Tihamah would treat their women badly until they divorced her, and he would stipulate that she would not marry anyone except whomever he wanted until she ransomed herself from him with some of what he gave her. So God forbade the believers from that. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Musa bin Ishaq told us, Ali bin Al-Mundhir told us, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, on the authority of his father, who said: When Abu Qais bin Al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, and they did that during the pre-Islamic era, so God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Muhammad bin Fadil with it. Then he narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: Ata' informed me that when a man died and left a wife, his family would keep her away from the boy who would be among them, so the verse was revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will 1:73. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: When a man died, his son had more right to his wife, and he could marry her if he wished if she was not his son, or he could marry her to whomever he wished, his brother or his nephew. Ibn Jurayj said: Ikrimah said: It was revealed about Kabisha bint Ma'n ibn 'Asim from the Aws, whose father Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, and his son deviated from her, so she came to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I did not inherit from my husband, nor did I leave anyone to marry, so God revealed this verse. Al-Suddi said on the authority of Abu Malik: When a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic era, his guardian would come and throw a garment over her. If he had a young son or brother, he would detain her until he grew up or died, so that he could inherit from her. If she escaped and went to her family and he did not throw a garment over her, she would be saved. So God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Mujahid said about this verse: A man would have an orphan girl in his care and he would take care of her affairs, so he would detain her in the hope that his wife would die and he would marry her or marry her to his son. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Then he said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, Abu Majlaz, Ad-Dahhak, Az-Zuhri, Ata' al-Khurasani, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. I said: So the verse includes what the people of the pre-Islamic era did, and what Mujahid and those who agreed with him mentioned, and everything that had a type of that, and God knows best. And His statement, And do not prevent them from marrying you in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning do not harm them in their relationship, so that they leave you what you gave them as a dowry or part of it or a right of hers over you, or something like that in a way that oppresses and persecutes her. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement, And do not prevent them, he said: Do not oppress them in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning the man, who has a wife and he is reluctant to be with her, and she owes him a dowry, so he harms her in order to ransom her. Ad-Dahhak and Qatadah said the same, and Ibn Jarir chose it. Ibn Al-Mubarak and Abdul-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, he said Samak bin Al-Fadl told me on the authority of Ibn Al-Baylamani, he said: These two verses were revealed, one in the pre-Islamic era, and the other in the Islamic era. Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak said: He meant His statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will in the pre-Islamic era, and do not prevent them in Islam. And his statement, unless they commit a clear indecency, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Muhammad bin Sirin, Saeed bin Jubayr, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata Al-Khurasani, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Qilabah, Abu Salih, As-Suddi, Zaid bin Aslam, and Saeed bin Abi Hilal said: He means by that adultery, meaning if she commits adultery, then you have the right to take back from her the dowry that you gave her, and to quarrel with her until she leaves it to you and divorces her, as God the Almighty said in Surat al-Baqarah 2:And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God Al-Baqarah 2:11. Ibn Abbas, Ikrimah, and Ad-Dahhak said: Clear indecency is rebellion and disobedience. Ibn Jarir chose that it includes all of that, including adultery, disobedience, rebellion, foul language, and other than that. He means that all of this permits quarreling with her until she clears him of her right or some of it and he separates from her, and this is good, and God knows best. It was mentioned previously in what Abu Dawud narrated alone on the authority of Yazid al-Nahwi on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. He said: That is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, and he would prevent her from marrying until she died, or her dowry was returned to him, so God ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: This requires that the entire context was about the pre-Islamic period, but the Muslims were forbidden from doing it in Islam. Abd Al-Rahman bin Zaid said: The practice of 'Adl among the Quraysh in Mecca was that a man would marry a noble woman, and perhaps she would not agree with him, so he would separate from her on the condition that she would not marry except with his permission. He would bring witnesses and write that down for her and have her testify. Then, if the suitor proposed to her, if she gave him permission and satisfied him, he would give her permission, otherwise he would prevent her. He said: This is what His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, is the verse. Mujahid said about His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, it is like 'Adl in Surat Al-Baqarah. And the Almighty said: And live with them in kindness meaning, be kind to them in your words, and improve your actions and appearances according to your ability as you would like from them, so do the same to them, as the Almighty said: And they women have rights similar to those of men over them, according to what is equitable. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of you is the best to his family, and I am the best of you to my family. And among his morals, may God bless him and grant him peace, was that he was pleasant to deal with, always cheerful, he would joke with his family, be kind to them, and give them generously, and he would make his wives laugh, to the point that he would race Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, to endear himself to her by doing so. She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, raced me and I won, and that was before I carried the meat, then I raced him after I carried the meat and he won, so he said: This for that. And his wives would gather every night in the house of the one with whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would spend, and sometimes he would eat dinner with them, then each one would go to her home, and he would sleep with one of his wives in one garment, removing the cloak from his shoulders and sleeping in the lower garment, and when he prayed the evening prayer, he would say: He would enter his home and chat with his family for a while before going to sleep, thus keeping them company, may God bless him and grant him peace. God Almighty said, There has certainly been for you in the Messenger of God an excellent pattern. The rulings on treating women and what is related to the details of that are found in the books of rulings, and praise be to God.

And the Almighty's saying: But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God has placed therein much good. That is, perhaps your patience, while keeping them and their disliking it, will be much good for you in this world and the hereafter, as Ibn Abbas said about this verse: It is that He will be kind to her and will be blessed with a child from her, and in that child there will be much good. And in the authentic hadith: "A believing man should not hate a believing woman. If he is displeased with one aspect of her, he will be pleased with another."

And the Almighty said: "And if you wish to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount [of wealth], do not take from it anything. Would you take it by falsehood and manifest sin?" That is, if one of you wants to separate from a woman and replace her with another, then he should not take anything from what was the dowry of the first, even if it was a great amount of money. We have already discussed the great amount in Surat Al Imran in a way that is sufficient to avoid repeating it here. This verse indicates that it is permissible to give a large sum of money as a dowry. Umar ibn al-Khattab had forbidden giving a large sum of money as a dowry, then he changed his mind about it, as Imam Ahmad said: Ismail told us, Salamah ibn Alqamah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa' al-Sulami, who said: I heard Umar ibn al-Khattab say: Do not exaggerate in giving a dowry to women, for if it were a source of honour in this world or piety before God, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have been the first among you to do so. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not give a dowry to any of his wives, nor did he give a dowry to any of his daughters of more than twelve ounces. A man would be tested by his wife's dowry until he would have enmity towards her in his heart and would say: I have been burdened with the burden of giving a water skin to you. Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunnah narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa', whose name was Haram ibn Musayyab al-Basri. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith.

Another chain of transmission on the authority of Omar Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Abu Khaithama told us, Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told us, my father told us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, Muhammad bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Al-Mujalid bin Saeed, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Omar bin Al-Khattab ascended the pulpit of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O people, why do you exaggerate in the dowries of women? The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and his companions used to give charity among themselves as four hundred dirhams, and less than that. If exaggeration in that was piety towards God or a sign of honor, you would not have preceded them in it. So do not know of a man who increases the dowry of a woman over four hundred dirhams. He said: Then he got down, and a woman from Quraysh intercepted him and said: O Commander of the Faithful, you forbade people from increasing the dowry of women over four hundred dirhams. He said: Yes. She said: Haven't you heard what God revealed in the Quran? He said: What is that? She said: Haven't you heard God say: And if you have given one of them a great amount Al-Madinah 14:1-20? He said: O God, forgive me, all people are more knowledgeable than Omar. Then he returned, mounted the pulpit and said: I had forbidden you to increase the dowries of women to more than four hundred dirhams, so whoever wishes may give from his money whatever he likes. Abu Ya'la said: I think he said: Whoever is content with it, let him do so. Its chain of transmission is good and strong.

Another way Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ishaq ibn Ibrahim told us on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Qais ibn Rabi', on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Salami, who said: Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not exaggerate in the dowries of women. A woman said: That is not for you, O Umar. God says: And if you have given one of them a great amount - of gold. He said: And it is like this in the recitation of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them. Umar said: A woman argued with Umar and she defeated him.

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

Another chain of transmission from Umar in which there is an interruption Az-Zubayr ibn Bakkar said: My uncle Mus'ab ibn 'Abdullah told me on the authority of my grandfather who said: 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab said: Do not increase the dowries of women, even if they are the daughter of Dhi Al-Ghusah - meaning Yazid ibn Al-Hussain Al-Harithi - and whoever increases, the increase shall be put into the public treasury. A tall woman with a flat nose said: What is that for you? He said: Why? She said: Because God said: And you have given one of them a great amount (Al-An'am 2:10). 'Umar said: A woman did well and a man made a mistake. That is why he said something strange: And how can you take it when you have gone in unto one another? That is, how can you take the dowry from a woman when you have gone in unto her and she has gone in unto you? Ibn 'Abbas, Mujahid, As-Suddi and others said: He meant sexual intercourse. It has been proven in the two Sahihs that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to the two men who had cursed each other after they had finished their curse: "God knows that one of you is lying. Is there any of you who will repent?" He said it three times. The man said: O Messenger of God, what is wrong with me? - Meaning, I did not believe her - he said, "You have no money. If you told the truth about her, then it is for what you made lawful for yourself from her vagina, and if you lied about her, then it is further from you than her." In Sunan Abi Dawud and others, on the authority of Basra bin Aktam, that he married a virgin woman in her chamber, and she became pregnant from adultery, so he came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so he ruled in her favor with the dowry, and separated them, and ordered that she be flogged, and said, "The child is your slave. The dowry is in return for sexual intercourse." That is why God, the Most High, said, And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another?

God the Almighty said: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Saeed bin Jubair that what is meant by that is the contract. Sufyan Ath-Thawri said on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: Keeping in kindness or releasing with kindness. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Yahya bin Abi Katheer, Ad-Dahhak, and As-Suddi. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas regarding the verse: It is His saying, You have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God. For the word of God is the testimony of faith in the sermon. He said: Among what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave on the night of his Isra' was that he said to him, I have made it unlawful for your nation to propose to you until they testify that you are My servant and Messenger. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. In Sahih Muslim on the authority of Jabir in the sermon of the Farewell Pilgrimage, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in it, And be advised to treat women well, for you have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

God the Almighty said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married Al-Baqarah 2:17. God the Almighty forbids the wives of fathers to honor them, and to respect and honor them, so that they are forbidden to the son as soon as the marriage contract is concluded with her. This is a matter that is agreed upon. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Malik bin Ismail told us, Qais bin Ar-Rabi' told us, Ash'ath bin Suwar told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of a man from the Ansar, who said: When Abu Qais - meaning Ibn Al-Aslat - died, and he was one of the righteous people of the Ansar, his son Qais proposed to his wife, and she said: I only consider you a son, and you are one of the righteous people of your people, but I will go to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and ask his advice. So she went to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Abu Qais has died, and he said: Good. Then she said: His son Qais proposed to me, and he is one of the righteous people of his people. I only considered him a son, so what do you think? He said to her, Go back to your home. He said: Then the verse, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, was revealed. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told us, Husayn told us, Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, he said: It was revealed about Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat Khalaf over Umm Ubayd God bint Sakhra, who was married to al-Aslat, his father, and about al-Aswad ibn Khalaf, who was married to the daughter of Abu Talha ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Uthman ibn Abd al-Dar, who was married to his father Khalaf, and about Fakhitah, the daughter of al-Aswad ibn al-Muttalib ibn Asad, who was married to Umayya ibn Khalaf, so Safwan ibn Umayya left her as his wife. Al-Suhayli claimed that marrying the fathers' wives was practiced in the pre-Islamic era, and that is why he said, except for what has already happened, just as he said, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already happened. He said: Kinanah ibn Khuzaymah did that. He married his father's wife, and she bore him his son, Al-Nadr ibn Kinanah. He said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, She was born from marriage, not from fornication. He said: This indicates that it was permissible for them to do that. If he meant that they considered it a marriage among themselves, Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Mukhrami told us, Qarad told us, Ibn Uyyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The people of the Jahiliyyah used to forbid what God had forbidden except for the father's wife and having two sisters together. Then God the Most High revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married and and that you have two sisters together. This is what Ata' and Qatadah said, but there is a problem with what al-Suhayli narrated from the story of Kinanah, and God knows best. In any case, it is forbidden in this verse, and it is extremely hideous. That is why God the Most High said: Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful, and an evil way. And He said: And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed. And He said: "And do not approach adultery. Indeed, it was an immorality and an evil way." So He added here and hateful, meaning hatred, meaning it is a great matter in itself, and it leads to the son hating his father after he marries his wife, because it is most likely that whoever marries a woman hates the one who was her husband before him, and that is why it was forbidden. The mothers of the believers are over the nation because they are mothers because they are the wives of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he is like a father. In fact, his right is greater than the right of fathers by consensus. In fact, his love takes precedence over the love of souls, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ata' ibn Abi Rabah said about his statement, and detestable, meaning that God detests him, and an evil path, meaning that it is a bad path for those who follow it among the people. Whoever takes it after this has apostatized from his religion, so he is to be killed and his money becomes spoils for the public treasury. As narrated by Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunan through various chains of transmission on the authority of Al-Bara' ibn 'Aazib, on the authority of his maternal uncle Abu Burdah - and in another narration: Ibn 'Umar, and in another narration: on the authority of his paternal uncle - that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him to a man who married his father's wife after him, to kill him and take his money. Imam Ahmad said: Hisham told us, Ash'ath told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of Al-Bara' bin Azib, who said: My uncle Al-Harith bin Amr passed by me, and he had a banner that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had tied for him, so I said to him: O uncle, where did the Prophet send you? He said: He sent me to a man who had married his father's wife, and he ordered me to strike his neck.

Question The scholars have agreed that it is forbidden for a woman to have sexual intercourse with her father through marriage, ownership, or doubt. They differed regarding someone who has sexual intercourse with her with lust without intercourse, or looks at what he would not be permitted to look at of her if she were a foreign woman. Imam Ahmad, may God have mercy on him, said that she is also forbidden because of that. Al-Hafiz Ibn Asakir narrated in the biography of Khadij al-Himsi, the freed slave of Muawiyah, that he bought a beautiful white slave girl for Muawiyah. He brought her to him naked, and in his hand was a stick. He began to lower it towards her private parts, and said: This is the private parts. If he had private parts, he would take her to Yazid ibn Muawiyah. Then he said: No, call for me Rabia ibn Amr al-Jarsi, who was a jurist. When he entered upon him, he said: I brought her naked, and I saw this and that in her, and I wanted to send her to Yazid. He said: Do not do that, O Commander of the Faithful, for she is not suitable for him. Then he said: Yes, what you saw. Then he said: Call for me Abdullah ibn Mas'adah al-Fazari. So I called him, and he was very dark-skinned. He said: Here is this. May God bless your son with it. He said: This Abdullah bin Mas'adah was given by the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his daughter Fatima, so she raised him, then freed him. Then after that, he was with Mu'awiyah among the people against Ali, may God be pleased with him.

Fath al-Qadir

This is connected to what was mentioned previously about wives, and the purpose is to deny injustice to them, and the address is to the guardians, and the meaning of the verse becomes clear by knowing the reason for its revelation, which is what Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas in his saying 19- O you who believe, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. He said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if they wanted to do so, they could not do so, so they had more right to her than her family. So it was revealed. And in a wording of Abu Dawud on his authority regarding this verse: A man would inherit a woman from a relative of his, but he would prevent her from marrying him until he died or her dowry was returned to him. And in a wording of Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim on his authority: If she was beautiful, he would marry her, and if she was ugly, he would keep her until she died and he would inherit her. This reason has been narrated in different words. The meaning of It is not lawful for you to inherit women against your will is: It is not lawful for you to take them by way of inheritance, claiming that you are more entitled to them than others, and to keep them for yourselves. It is not lawful for you to prevent them from marrying someone other than you so that you can take their inheritance if they die, or so that they can give you their dowries if you give them permission to marry. Al-Zuhri and Abu Majlaz said: It was their custom that if a man died and had a wife, his son from another woman or his closest agnate would throw his garment over the woman, so he would have more right to her than herself and her guardians. If he wished, he could marry her without a dowry except the dowry that the deceased had given her. If he wished, he could marry her to another man and take her dowry and not give her anything. If he wished, he could prevent her so that she would ransom herself from him with what she inherited from the deceased, or she would die and he would inherit from her. So the verse was revealed. It was said: The address is to the husbands of women if they kept them with bad treatment in the hope of their inheritance, or ransom them with some of their dowries, and Ibn Atiyyah chose this. He said: The evidence for that is his statement, Unless they commit an immorality. If she commits an immorality, then the guardian does not have the right to detain her until she takes her wealth, according to the consensus of the nation. Rather, that is up to the husband. Al-Hasan said: If a virgin commits adultery, she is to be flogged one hundred times, banished, and what she took from him is returned to her husband. Abu Qilabah said: If a man's wife commits adultery, then there is nothing wrong with him harming her and making things difficult for her until she redeems herself from him. Al-Suddi said: If they do that, then take their dowries. Some people said: Immorality is vulgarity with the tongue, and bad treatment in word and deed. Malik and a group of scholars said: The husband has the right to take from the rebellious woman everything she owns. All of this is on the basis that the address in His saying, And do not prevent them is to the husbands, and you have learned from what we have presented in the reason for revelation that the address in His saying, And do not prevent them is to the one addressed by His saying, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, so the meaning is: And it is not lawful for you to prevent them from marrying, so that you may take away some of what you have given them, meaning: what He gave them from whom you inherit, unless they commit a clear immorality, it is permissible for you to withhold them from husbands, and what is in this of oppression is not hidden, with the impermissibility of withholding someone who has committed an immorality from marrying and refraining from adultery. Just as making His saying, And do not prevent them an address to the guardians contains this oppression, so too making His saying, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will an address to the husbands contains an apparent oppression, in addition to its contradiction to the reason for revelation of the verse that we mentioned. It is better to say that the address in His saying, It is not lawful for you is to the Muslims: meaning, it is not permissible for you, Muslims, to inherit women against their will, as The Jahiliyyah used to do this, and it is not permissible for you, Muslims, to prevent your wives: that is, to think that they are with you while you do not desire them, but rather for the purpose of taking some of what you gave them as a dowry to ransom them from imprisonment and remaining under you, and in your contract with your hatred for them unless they commit a clear immorality it is permissible for you to divorce them for some of what you gave them. His statement clear Nafi', Abu Amr, Ibn Amir, Hafs, Hamzah, and Al-Kisa'i read it with a kasra on the ya'. The rest read it with a fatha. Ibn Abbas read mubinah with a kasra on the ba' and a sukoon on the ya' from aban al-shay', so it is mubin. His saying, And live with them in kindness, that is, in the manner known in this Shari'ah and among its people of good treatment. This is addressed to husbands or to something more general, and this differs according to the husbands' wealth, poverty, high status, or low status. But if you dislike them, for some reason, without committing an immoral act or rebellion, then perhaps the matter will end in what you like, the dislike going away and being replaced by love, and in that there will be much good in continuing the companionship and having children. So the reward for this is omitted and indicated by its cause: that is, if you dislike them, then be patient, for perhaps you dislike a thing and God makes therein much good. Or

O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, and do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them unless they commit a clear immorality. And live with them in kindness. For if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and Allah makes therein much good.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

19- O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, was revealed about the people of Medina who were in the pre-Islamic period and at the beginning of Islam. If a man died and he had a position, his son from another woman or a relative from his clan would come and throw his garment over that woman and over her tent, so he became more entitled to her than herself and anyone else. If he wanted, he could marry her without a dowry except the first dowry that the deceased had given her, or if he wanted, he could marry her to someone else and take her dowry, or if he wanted, he could prevent her and prevent her from marrying husbands, harming her so that she would redeem herself from him with what she had inherited from the deceased, or she would die and he would inherit from her. If the woman went to her family before her husband's guardian threw his garment over her, she had more right to herself. They remained like this until Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat al-Ansari died and left his wife Kabisha bint Ma'n al-Ansariyya, and his son from another woman called Hisn arose, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan said: His name was Qais ibn Abi Qais, so he threw his garment over her and inherited her marriage, then he left her. And he did not spend on her, he tried to harm her so that she would ransom herself from him, so Kabishah came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, Abu Qais died and inherited my marriage to his son, so he does not spend on me, nor does he consummate the marriage with me, nor does he release me. So he said: Stay in your house until God's command comes to pass concerning you. So God Almighty revealed this verse: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women by compulsion.

Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read: Karhan with a damma on the kaf, here and in At-Tawbah. The rest read it with a fatha. Al-Kisa'i said: They are two dialects. Al-Farra' said: Karhan with a fatha means what he was forced to do, and with a damma means what was from himself in terms of hardship.

And do not prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them. That is, do not prevent them from having husbands in order to make them bored and ransom themselves with some of their money. It was said that this is addressed to the guardians of the deceased, but the correct view is that it is addressed to the husbands.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: This is about a man who has a wife and he is reluctant to be with her, and she owes him a dowry, so he harms her so that she may redeem herself and return to him what he gave her as a dowry. God Almighty forbade that, then He said: Unless they commit a clear immorality. Then it is permissible for you to harm them so that they may redeem themselves from you.

They differed about the indecency. Ibn Masoud and Qatada said: It is rebellion. Some of them said, and this is the saying of Al-Hasan: It is adultery, meaning: If a woman rebels or commits adultery, it is permissible for the husband to ask her for a divorce. Ata' said: If a man committed an indecency with his wife, he would take from her what he had given her and expel her, but God Almighty abrogated that with the prescribed punishments.

Ibn Kathir and Abu Bakr read Mubinah and Mubinat with the opening of the yaa, and the people of Medina and Basra agreed with Mubinat and the rest with the closing of it.

And live with them in kindness. Al-Hasan said: He returned to the beginning of the speech, meaning, And give the women their dowries as a free gift. "And live with them in kindness." Living with them in kindness means being brief in speech, spending the night, and spending time with them. It was said: It means that he treats her as she treats him. But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God makes therein much good. It was said: It is a righteous child, or that God will be kind to her.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

19 O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. When a man died and had male relatives, he would throw his garment over his wife and say: I have more right to her. Then if he wished, he could marry her with her original dowry, or if he wished, he could marry her to someone else and take her dowry, or if he wished, he could prevent her from marrying so that she would redeem herself with what she inherited from her husband. They were forbidden from doing that. It was said: It is not lawful for you to take them by way of inheritance, marrying them against their will or under duress. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read kharhan with the dammah in its places, and they are two dialects. It was said that the dammah means hardship, and the dammah means what is forced upon him. And do not prevent them in order to take away some of what you have given them is in apposition to that you inherit, and la is to emphasize the negation, meaning do not prevent them from marrying. The origin of adh is to restrict. It is said that the hen adh with its eggs. It was said that the address was to the husbands, they used to imprison women without need or desire until they inherited from them or divorced them with their dowries. It was said that the speech ended with his saying by force then he addressed the husbands and forbade them from preventing them from marrying. Unless they commit a clear indecency such as rebellion, bad treatment, and lack of chastity. The exception from the most general of the circumstance or the object is estimated as Do not prevent them in order to ransom themselves except when they commit an indecency, or do not prevent them for a reason unless they commit an indecency. Ibn Kathir and Abu Bakr read clearly here and in Al-Ahzab and At-Talaq with the opening of the ya and the rest read it with the closing of the ya in them. And live with them in kindness with fairness in action and generality in speech. But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God makes therein much good meaning do not leave them because of self-loathing, for it may dislike what is better in religion and more good, and it may like what is the opposite. Let your attention be toward what is best for religion and most conducive to goodness. Perhaps the root cause is a cause, so replace it. The meaning is that if you dislike them, then be patient with them, for perhaps you dislike something that is good for you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:20

And if you desire to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. Would you take it back by slander and manifest sin?

Surat al-Nisa 4:20

And if you desire to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. Would you take it back by slander and manifest sin?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And if you wish to replace one wife with another that is, take her in place by divorcing her and you have given one of them) that is, the wives a great amount a large sum of money as a dowry (then do not take from it anything. Would you take it by falsehood) injustice and manifest sin manifest, and the accusative of them is in the state

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His saying: And if you wish to replace one wife with another, and if you wish, O believers, to marry a woman in place of your wife, then divorce her, and you have given one of them, meaning: and you have given the one you wish to divorce of the dowry, a great amount.

A qintar is a large sum of money. We have previously mentioned the difference of opinion among the people of interpretation regarding its amount, and the correct statement regarding that, according to us, is: So do not take anything from it. It was said: So do not harm them if you want to divorce them so that they may ransom themselves from you with what you have given them, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And if you wish to replace one wife with another, divorcing one woman in place of another, then nothing of the divorced woman's money is permissible for him, even if it is a lot.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by the words of God Almighty: Do you take back what you have given them of their dowries? is: unjustly, without right, "and a manifest sin," meaning: and a sin that has made clear to the one who takes it that he is unjust by taking it from the one from whom he took it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains six issues:

First: Because the previous verse mentioned the ruling on separation caused by the woman, and that the husband has the right to take money from her after that, by mentioning the separation caused by the husband, and he explained that if he wanted a divorce without disobedience or bad treatment, then he does not have the right to ask her for money.

Second: Scholars differed if the spouses wanted to separate and there was disobedience and bad treatment from them. Malik, may God be pleased with him, said: The husband has the right to take from her if she caused the separation, and his causing it is not taken into consideration. A group of scholars said: It is not permissible for him to take the money unless she is the only one who is disobedient and demands it for that.

Third: The Almighty's saying: And you have given one of them a great amount. The verse is evidence of the permissibility of exaggeration in dowries, because God Almighty does not give an example except for what is permissible. Omar, may God be pleased with him, gave a sermon and said:

Do not exaggerate in women's dowries, for if it were a source of honour in this world or piety before God, the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) would have been the first among you to do so. He never gave a dowry to any of his wives or daughters of more than twelve ounces. A woman stood up and said: O Umar, God gives us and deprives us! Does not God, the Exalted, say: And if you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. So Umar said: A woman did well and Umar made a mistake. In another narration, Umar lowered his head and then said: All people are more knowledgeable than you, O Umar. In another narration: A woman did well and a man made a mistake. And he refrained from denouncing it. Abu Hatim al-Busti narrated in his Sahih Musnad on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa' as-Salmayn who said:

Omar addressed the people and mentioned it until he said: twelve ounces, and he did not mention: then a woman stood up to him until the end. And he included it in his Sunan on the authority of Abu Al-Ajfa and added after his saying: ounces, and that a man burdens his wife's charity until she becomes an enemy in his heart for him, and he says: I have burdened you with the rope of the waterskin - or the rope of the waterskin - and I was an Arab man by birth, I do not know what the rope of the waterskin or the rope of the waterskin was. Al-Jawhari said: The rope of the waterskin is a language for the rope of the waterskin. Another said: And it is said that the rope of the waterskin is its handle that it is attached to, he says I was burdened with you until the rope of the waterskin, and the rope of the waterskin is its water, it flowed to you until you traveled and needed the rope of the waterskin, and it is its water in travel. And it is said: Rather, the rope of the waterskin is to say: I set up for you and took the trouble until I sweated the rope of the waterskin, which is its flow. And it was said: They used to stock up on water and pour it on the camels, taking turns with it, so it would split. On the back, so he explained the two words: sweat and leech. Al-Asma'i said: The sweat of the water skin is a word that means intensity. He said: I do not know what its origin is. Al-Asma'i said: I heard Ibn Abi Tarfa, who was one of the most eloquent people I have seen, say: I heard our two sheikhs say: I encountered from so-and-so the sweat of the water skin, meaning intensity. And he recited to me by Ibn al-Ahmar:

She is not a slanderer, and her forgiveness is like the sweat of the water-skin on the lazy camel.

Abu Ubaid said: He meant that he hears a word that annoys him and is not an insult, and its owner will be held accountable for it, and it has reached him like the vein of a water skin, so he said: Like the vein of the leg, because the hair cannot hold it, then he said: On the sedentary, and its meaning was that the water skin was hung on the sedentary during their travels, and this meaning is similar to what Al-Farraa used to narrate, he claimed that they were in the deserts during their travels, they would stock up on water and hang it on the camels, taking turns, so that was tiring and hard on the back. Al-Farraa used to make this an explanation of the hanging of the water skin with the letter lam. Some people said, the verse does not allow exaggeration in dowries, because the metaphor of the qintar is only for the sake of exaggeration, as if he said: And you have been given this great amount that no one else is given, and this is like the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Whoever builds a mosque for God, even if it is the size of a sparrow's nest, God will build for him a house in Paradise. It is known that no mosque is the size of a sparrow's nest. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Ibn Abi Hadrad when he came to ask him for help with his dowry and asked him about it. He said: Two hundred. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, became angry and said:

As if you were cutting gold and silver from the width of a free woman or a mountain." Some people concluded from this that it is forbidden to exaggerate in dowries, and this is not necessary. The Prophet's (peace and blessings of God be upon him) denunciation of this married man was not a denunciation for the sake of exaggeration and excessive dowries, but rather the denunciation was because he was poor in this situation, so he needed to seek help and ask, and this is disliked by consensus. Umar gave Umm Kulthum bin Ali a dowry from Fatimah may God be pleased with them of forty thousand dirhams. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Uqbah bin Amir that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to a man:

Would you be pleased if I marry you to so-and-so? He said: Yes. And he said to the woman: Would you be pleased if I marry you to so-and-so? She said: Yes. So he married one of them to the other. The man consummated the marriage with her and did not set a dowry for her or give her anything. He was one of those who witnessed al-Hudaybiyyah and had a share in Khaybar. When death approached him, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married me to so-and-so and I did not set a dowry for her or give her anything. I call you to witness that I gave her from her dowry my share in Khaybar. So she took her share and sold it for one hundred thousand. The scholars agreed that there is no limit to the maximum dowry, based on the Almighty's statement: And you have given one of them a great amount. They differed about the minimum amount, and it will come in the statement of God, the Almighty: That you seek with your wealth (al-Nisa': 24). The statement about the limitation of the statement about the limitation of the great amount has already been made in Al-Imran. Ibn Muhaisin read: And you have given one of them with the letter one of them connected to the letter one of them. And in a language, including the statement of the poet:

And you hear from under the dust a widow

And the other says

If I don't fight, cover me with a burqa.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: So do not take anything from it. Bakr bin Abdullah Al-Muzani said: The husband does not take anything from the woman who has been divorced by khul', because the Almighty said: So do not take, and made it an abrogator of the verse in Surat Al-Baqarah. Ibn Zayd and others said: It was abrogated by the Almighty's saying in Surat al-Baqarah 2: And it is not lawful for you to take anything of what you have given them. (al-Baqarah 2:229) The correct view is that these verses are decisive and there is no abrogating or abrogated in them, and all of them are built upon each other. Al-Tabari said: They are decisive and there is no meaning to Bakr's saying that if she meant the gift, the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) permitted Thabit to take from his wife what he gave her: slander is a source in the place of the state, and sin is conjoined with it, clear is from its description.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Muqatil told us, Asbat ibn Muhammad told us, Al-Shaibani told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas - Al-Shaibani said: Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai mentioned it, and I do not think he mentioned it except on the authority of Ibn Abbas - O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. He said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if they wanted to do so, they could not do so, so they had more right to her than her family. Then this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. This is how Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Shaibani, whose name was Sulayman ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ikrimah, and on the authority of Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai, whose name was Ata', a blind Kufan, both of them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, as mentioned above. Abu Dawud said: Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Thabit Al-Marwazi told us, Ali bin

And if you desire to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. Would you take it back by slander and manifest sin?

Hussein told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from getting married in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. This is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, but he would prevent her from getting married until she died or her dowry was returned to him. So God, the Most High, ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Abu Dawud was the only one to narrate it, and more than one person narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas in a similar manner. Waki' said on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ali bin Badhimah, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: If a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic period, and a man came and threw a garment over her, he was more entitled to her, so this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ali bin Abi Talha narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, that he said: When a man died and left behind a female slave, his intimate friend would throw his garment over her and prevent her from seeing people. If she was beautiful, he would marry her, and if she was ugly, he would keep her until she died and inherit from her. Al-Awfi narrated on his authority: When a man from the people of Medina had a close friend, he would throw his garment over his wife, and he would inherit her marriage, and no one else would marry her, and he would keep her with him until she ransomed herself from him with a ransom. Then God revealed, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Zaid bin Aslam said about the verse: When a man from the people of Yathrib died during the pre-Islamic era, his wife would be inherited by whoever would inherit his money, and he would prevent her from marrying him until he inherited her, or he would marry her to whomever he wanted. The people of Tihamah would treat their women badly until they divorced her, and he would stipulate that she would not marry anyone except whomever he wanted until she ransomed herself from him with some of what he gave her. So God forbade the believers from that. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Musa bin Ishaq told us, Ali bin Al-Mundhir told us, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, on the authority of his father, who said: When Abu Qais bin Al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, and they did that during the pre-Islamic era, so God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Muhammad bin Fadil with it. Then he narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: Ata' informed me that when a man died and left a wife, his family would keep her away from the boy who would be among them, so the verse was revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will 1:73. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: When a man died, his son had more right to his wife, and he could marry her if he wished if she was not his son, or he could marry her to whomever he wished, his brother or his nephew. Ibn Jurayj said: Ikrimah said: It was revealed about Kabisha bint Ma'n ibn 'Asim from the Aws, whose father Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, and his son deviated from her, so she came to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I did not inherit from my husband, nor did I leave anyone to marry, so God revealed this verse. Al-Suddi said on the authority of Abu Malik: When a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic era, his guardian would come and throw a garment over her. If he had a young son or brother, he would detain her until he grew up or died, so that he could inherit from her. If she escaped and went to her family and he did not throw a garment over her, she would be saved. So God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Mujahid said about this verse: A man would have an orphan girl in his care and he would take care of her affairs, so he would detain her in the hope that his wife would die and he would marry her or marry her to his son. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Then he said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, Abu Majlaz, Ad-Dahhak, Az-Zuhri, Ata' al-Khurasani, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. I said: So the verse includes what the people of the pre-Islamic era did, and what Mujahid and those who agreed with him mentioned, and everything that had a type of that, and God knows best. And His statement, And do not prevent them from marrying you in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning do not harm them in their relationship, so that they leave you what you gave them as a dowry or part of it or a right of hers over you, or something like that in a way that oppresses and persecutes her. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement, And do not prevent them, he said: Do not oppress them in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning the man, who has a wife and he is reluctant to be with her, and she owes him a dowry, so he harms her in order to ransom her. Ad-Dahhak and Qatadah said the same, and Ibn Jarir chose it. Ibn Al-Mubarak and Abdul-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, he said Samak bin Al-Fadl told me on the authority of Ibn Al-Baylamani, he said: These two verses were revealed, one in the pre-Islamic era, and the other in the Islamic era. Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak said: He meant His statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will in the pre-Islamic era, and do not prevent them in Islam. And his statement, unless they commit a clear indecency, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Muhammad bin Sirin, Saeed bin Jubayr, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata Al-Khurasani, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Qilabah, Abu Salih, As-Suddi, Zaid bin Aslam, and Saeed bin Abi Hilal said: He means by that adultery, meaning if she commits adultery, then you have the right to take back from her the dowry that you gave her, and to quarrel with her until she leaves it to you and divorces her, as God the Almighty said in Surat al-Baqarah 2: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God Al-Baqarah 2:11. Ibn Abbas, Ikrimah, and Ad-Dahhak said: Clear indecency is rebellion and disobedience. Ibn Jarir chose that it includes all of that, including adultery, disobedience, rebellion, foul language, and other than that. He means that all of this permits quarreling with her until she clears him of her right or some of it and he separates from her, and this is good, and God knows best. It was mentioned previously in what Abu Dawud narrated alone on the authority of Yazid al-Nahwi on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. He said: That is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, and he would prevent her from marrying until she died, or her dowry was returned to him, so God ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: This requires that the entire context was about the pre-Islamic period, but the Muslims were forbidden from doing it in Islam. Abd Al-Rahman bin Zaid said: The practice of 'Adl among the Quraysh in Mecca was that a man would marry a noble woman, and perhaps she would not agree with him, so he would separate from her on the condition that she would not marry except with his permission. He would bring witnesses and write that down for her and have her testify. Then, if the suitor proposed to her, if she gave him permission and satisfied him, he would give her permission, otherwise he would prevent her. He said: This is what His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, is the verse. Mujahid said about His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, it is like 'Adl in Surat Al-Baqarah. And the Almighty said: And live with them in kindness meaning, be kind to them in your words, and improve your actions and appearances according to your ability as you would like from them, so do the same to them, as the Almighty said: And they women have rights similar to those of men over them, according to what is equitable. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of you is the best to his family, and I am the best of you to my family. And among his morals, may God bless him and grant him peace, was that he was pleasant to deal with, always cheerful, he would joke with his family, be kind to them, and give them generously, and he would make his wives laugh, to the point that he would race Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, to endear himself to her by doing so. She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, raced me and I won, and that was before I carried the meat, then I raced him after I carried the meat and he won, so he said: This for that. And his wives would gather every night in the house of the one with whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would spend, and sometimes he would eat dinner with them, then each one would go to her home, and he would sleep with one of his wives in one garment, removing the cloak from his shoulders and sleeping in the lower garment, and when he prayed the evening prayer, he would say: He would enter his home and chat with his family for a while before going to sleep, thus keeping them company, may God bless him and grant him peace. God Almighty said, There has certainly been for you in the Messenger of God an excellent pattern. The rulings on treating women and what is related to the details of that are found in the books of rulings, and praise be to God.

And the Almighty's saying: But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God has placed therein much good. That is, perhaps your patience, while keeping them and their disliking it, will be much good for you in this world and the hereafter, as Ibn Abbas said about this verse: It is that He will be kind to her and will be blessed with a child from her, and in that child there will be much good. And in the authentic hadith: "A believing man should not hate a believing woman. If he is displeased with one aspect of her, he will be pleased with another."

And the Almighty said: "And if you wish to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount [of wealth], do not take from it anything. Would you take it by falsehood and manifest sin?" That is, if one of you wants to separate from a woman and replace her with another, then he should not take anything from what was the dowry of the first, even if it was a great amount of money. We have already discussed the great amount in Surat Al Imran in a way that is sufficient to avoid repeating it here. This verse indicates that it is permissible to give a large sum of money as a dowry. Umar ibn al-Khattab had forbidden giving a large sum of money as a dowry, then he changed his mind about it, as Imam Ahmad said: Ismail told us, Salamah ibn Alqamah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa' al-Sulami, who said: I heard Umar ibn al-Khattab say: Do not exaggerate in giving a dowry to women, for if it were a source of honour in this world or piety before God, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have been the first among you to do so. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not give a dowry to any of his wives, nor did he give a dowry to any of his daughters of more than twelve ounces. A man would be tested by his wife's dowry until he would have enmity towards her in his heart and would say: I have been burdened with the burden of giving a water skin to you. Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunnah narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa', whose name was Haram ibn Musayyab al-Basri. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith.

Another chain of transmission on the authority of Omar Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Abu Khaithama told us, Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told us, my father told us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, Muhammad bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Al-Mujalid bin Saeed, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Omar bin Al-Khattab ascended the pulpit of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O people, why do you exaggerate in the dowries of women? The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and his companions used to give charity among themselves as four hundred dirhams, and less than that. If exaggeration in that was piety towards God or a sign of honor, you would not have preceded them in it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:20

And if you desire to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. Would you take it back by slander and manifest sin?

So do not know of a man who increases the dowry of a woman over four hundred dirhams. He said: Then he got down, and a woman from Quraysh intercepted him and said: O Commander of the Faithful, you forbade people from increasing the dowry of women over four hundred dirhams. He said: Yes. She said: Haven't you heard what God revealed in the Quran? He said: What is that? She said: Haven't you heard God say: And if you have given one of them a great amount Al-Madinah 14:1-20? He said: O God, forgive me, all people are more knowledgeable than Omar. Then he returned, mounted the pulpit and said: I had forbidden you to increase the dowries of women to more than four hundred dirhams, so whoever wishes may give from his money whatever he likes. Abu Ya'la said: I think he said: Whoever is content with it, let him do so. Its chain of transmission is good and strong.

Another way Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ishaq ibn Ibrahim told us on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Qais ibn Rabi', on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Salami, who said: Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not exaggerate in the dowries of women. A woman said: That is not for you, O Umar. God says: And if you have given one of them a great amount - of gold. He said: And it is like this in the recitation of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them. Umar said: A woman argued with Umar and she defeated him.

Another chain of transmission from Umar in which there is an interruption Az-Zubayr ibn Bakkar said: My uncle Mus'ab ibn 'Abdullah told me on the authority of my grandfather who said: 'Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not increase the dowries of women, even if they are the daughter of Dhi Al-Ghusah - meaning Yazid ibn Al-Hussain Al-Harithi - and whoever increases, the increase shall be put into the public treasury. A tall woman with a flat nose said: What is that for you? He said: Why? She said: Because God said: And you have given one of them a great amount (Al-An'am 2:10). 'Umar said: A woman did well and a man made a mistake. That is why he said something strange: And how can you take it when you have gone in unto one another? That is, how can you take the dowry from a woman when you have gone in unto her and she has gone in unto you? Ibn 'Abbas, Mujahid, As-Suddi and others said: He meant sexual intercourse. It has been proven in the two Sahih's that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to the two men who had cursed each other after they had finished their curse: "God knows that one of you is lying. Is there any of you who will repent?" He said it three times. The man said: O Messenger of God, what is wrong with me? - Meaning, I did not believe her - he said, "You have no money. If you told the truth about her, then it is for what you made lawful for yourself from her vagina, and if you lied about her, then it is further from you than her." In Sunan Abi Dawud and others, on the authority of Basra bin Aktam, that he married a virgin woman in her chamber, and she became pregnant from adultery, so he came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so he ruled in her favor with the dowry, and separated them, and ordered that she be flogged, and said, "The child is your slave. The dowry is in return for sexual intercourse." That is why God, the Most High, said, And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another?

God the Almighty said: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Saeed bin Jubair that what is meant by that is the contract. Sufyan Ath-Thawri said on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: Keeping in kindness or releasing with kindness. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Yahya bin Abi Katheer, Ad-Dahhak, and As-Suddi. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas regarding the verse: It is His saying, You have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God. For the word of God is the testimony of faith in the sermon. He said: Among what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave on the night of his Isra' was that he said to him, I have made it unlawful for your nation to propose to you until they testify that you are My servant and Messenger. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. In Sahih Muslim on the authority of Jabir in the sermon of the Farewell Pilgrimage, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in it, And be advised to treat women well, for you have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

God the Almighty said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married Al-Baqarah 2:17. God the Almighty forbids the wives of fathers to honor them, and to respect and honor them, so that they are forbidden to the son as soon as the marriage contract is concluded with her. This is a matter that is agreed upon. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Malik bin Ismail told us, Qais bin Ar-Rabi' told us, Ash'ath bin Suwar told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of a man from the Ansar, who said: When Abu Qais - meaning Ibn Al-Aslat - died, and he was one of the righteous people of the Ansar, his son Qais proposed to his wife, and she said: I only consider you a son, and you are one of the righteous people of your people, but I will go to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and ask his advice. So she went to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Abu Qais has died, and he said: Good. Then she said: His son Qais proposed to me, and he is one of the righteous people of his people. I only considered him a son, so what do you think? He said to her, Go back to your home. He said: Then the verse, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, was revealed. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told us, Husayn told us, Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, he said: It was revealed about Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat Khalaf over Umm Ubayd God bint Sakhra, who was married to al-Aslat, his father, and about al-Aswad ibn Khalaf, who was married to the daughter of Abu Talha ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Uthman ibn Abd al-Dar, who was married to his father Khalaf, and about Fakhitah, the daughter of al-Aswad ibn al-Muttalib ibn Asad, who was married to Umayya ibn Khalaf, so Safwan ibn Umayya left her as his wife. Al-Suhayli claimed that marrying the fathers' wives was practiced in the pre-Islamic era, and that is why he said, except for what has already happened, just as he said, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already happened. He said: Kinanah ibn Khuzaymah did that. He married his father's wife, and she bore him his son, Al-Nadr ibn Kinanah. He said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, She was born from marriage, not from fornication. He said: This indicates that it was permissible for them to do that. If he meant that they considered it a marriage among themselves, Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Mukhrami told us, Qarad told us, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The people of the Jahiliyyah used to forbid what God had forbidden except for the father's wife and having two sisters together. Then God the Most High revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married and and that you have two sisters together. This is what Ata' and Qatadah said, but there is a problem with what al-Suhayli narrated from the story of Kinanah, and God knows best. In any case, it is forbidden in this verse, and it is extremely hideous. That is why God the Most High said: Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful, and an evil way. And He said: And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed. And He said: "And do not approach adultery. Indeed, it was an immorality and an evil way." So He added here and hateful, meaning hatred, meaning it is a great matter in itself, and it leads to the son hating his father after he marries his wife, because it is most likely that whoever marries a woman hates the one who was her husband before him, and that is why it was forbidden. The mothers of the believers are over the nation because they are mothers because they are the wives of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he is like a father. In fact, his right is greater than the right of fathers by consensus. In fact, his love takes precedence over the love of souls, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ata' ibn Abi Rabah said about his statement, and detestable, meaning that God detests him, and an evil path, meaning that it is a bad path for those who follow it among the people. Whoever takes it after this has apostatized from his religion, so he is to be killed and his money becomes spoils for the public treasury. As narrated by Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunan through various chains of transmission on the authority of Al-Bara' ibn 'Aazib, on the authority of his maternal uncle Abu Burdah - and in another narration: Ibn 'Umar, and in another narration: on the authority of his paternal uncle - that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him to a man who married his father's wife after him, to kill him and take his money. Imam Ahmad said: Hisham told us, Ash'ath told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of Al-Bara' bin Azib, who said: My uncle Al-Harith bin Amr passed by me, and he had a banner that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had tied for him, so I said to him: O uncle, where did the Prophet send you? He said: He sent me to a man who had married his father's wife, and he ordered me to strike his neck.

Question The scholars have agreed that it is forbidden for a woman to have sexual intercourse with her father through marriage, ownership, or doubt. They differed regarding someone who has sexual intercourse with her with lust without intercourse, or looks at what he would not be permitted to look at of her if she were a foreign woman. Imam Ahmad, may God have mercy on him, said that she is also forbidden because of that. Al-Hafiz Ibn Asakir narrated in the biography of Khadij al-Himsi, the freed slave of Muawiyah, that he bought a beautiful white slave girl for Muawiyah. He brought her to him naked, and in his hand was a stick. He began to lower it towards her private parts, and said: This is the private parts. If he had private parts, he would take her to Yazid ibn Muawiyah. Then he said: No, call for me Rabia ibn Amr al-Jarsi, who was a jurist. When he entered upon him, he said: I brought her naked, and I saw this and that in her, and I wanted to send her to Yazid. He said: Do not do that, O Commander of the Faithful, for she is not suitable for him. Then he said: Yes, what you saw. Then he said: Call for me Abdullah ibn Mas'adah al-Fazari. So I called him, and he was very dark-skinned. He said: Here is this. May God bless your son with it. He said: This Abdullah bin Mas'adah was given by the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his daughter Fatima, so she raised him, then freed him. Then after that, he was with Mu'awiyah among the people against Ali, may God be pleased with him.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 20- And you have given one of them a great amount has been explained previously in Al Imran, and what is meant by it here is a lot of money, so do not take anything from it. It was said: It is a decisive statement, and it was said: It was abrogated by the statement of God Almighty in Surat Al Baqarah: And it is not lawful for you to take anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God and it is preferable that all of it is decisive, and what is meant here is the one who is not divorced by Khula', it is not permissible for her husband to take anything from what he has given her. His statement: Would you take it by slander and manifest sin? The question is for denial and rebuke. The sentence confirms the first sentence which includes the prohibition.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

20- And if you wish to replace one wife with another, he meant by the husband and the wife and there was no previous rebellion or immorality on her part, and you have given one of them a great amount, which is a large sum of money, as a dowry, then do not take from

Surat al-Nisa 4:20

And if you desire to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. Would you take it back by slander and manifest sin?

it, from the great amount, anything that you would take, a question with the meaning of rebuke, slander and manifest sin, their being in the accusative case from two aspects, one of them by removing the preposition, and the second by implication, its estimation: you will incur slander and sin in taking it. Then he said:

Tafsir al-Baidawi

20 And if you wish to replace one wife with another divorce a woman and marry another. And you have given one of them meaning one of the wives, the pronoun is plural because he meant sex by husband. A qintar a lot of money. So do not take anything from it meaning from the qintar. Would you take it by slander and manifest sin? A question of denial and rebuke, meaning would you take it slandering and sinning, and it is possible to use the accusative case as a reason as in your saying: I stayed away from the war out of cowardice, because the taking was due to their slander and committing sins. It was said that if a man among them wanted a new wife, he would slander the one under him with an immorality until he forced her to ransom herself from him with what he gave her so that he could spend it on marrying the new woman, so they were forbidden from that. Slander is the lie that slanders the one who is lied to, and it may be used in the word do falsehood and therefore it was interpreted here as injustice.

Surat al-Nisa 4:21

And how can you take it while you have gone in to one another and they have taken from you a solemn covenant?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

The question is for rebuke and denial in His statement: And how do you take it meaning in what way and you have come and connected some of you to others through intercourse stipulated for the dowry and they have taken from you a firm covenant a strong pledge, which is what God has commanded of keeping them in kindness or releasing them with kindness.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His statement: And how do you take it? is how you take from your women what you gave them of their dowries, if you wanted to divorce them and replace them with others as husbands, and you have gone in unto one another, so you have touched one another and touched one another.

This is a statement that is not expressed in the form of a question, but rather in the sense of denial and harshness, as when a man says to another: How can you do such and such, and I am not satisfied with it?, in the sense of threat and warning.

As for leading to something, it is reaching it by directly doing so, as the poet said:

[Blen] Yes, it led to [every] book whose course began from the inside out.

He means that corruption and wear have reached the beads. What he means by penetration in this place is intercourse in the vagina.

The interpretation of the statement, if that is what it means: How do you take what you have given them, when some of you have had sexual intercourse with others?

A group of interpreters said something similar to what we said.

Who said that?

Abdul Hamid bin Bayan Al-Qanad told me, he said, Ishaq told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Bakr bin Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Consummation is direct contact, but God, the Generous, uses euphemisms for whatever He wills.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Bakr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ifdaa' is sexual intercourse, but God uses a euphemism.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Bakr bin Abdullah Al-Muzni, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ifdaa is sexual intercourse.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And some of you have gone in to one another, he said: intercourse with women.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And how do you take it when you have gone in to one another, meaning intercourse.

Abu Ja'far said: That is, what you have entrusted them with upon yourselves, of a covenant and acknowledgment from you of what you have acknowledged upon yourselves, of keeping them in a good manner, or releasing them with kindness.

In the old marriage contract of Muslims, as far as we have been informed, it was said to the one getting married: By God, you must either keep her in kindness or let her go with kindness!

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant. The solemn covenant that men took from women was: to keep them in kindness or to release them with good treatment. And it was in the marriage contract of the Muslims: God has commanded you to keep them in kindness or to release them with good treatment.

The people of interpretation differed regarding the covenant that God Almighty meant when He said: And they took from you a firm covenant.

Some of them said: It is keeping her in a good way or releasing her with kindness.

Who said that?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And they took from you a firm covenant, he said: Keeping her in kindness or releasing her with kindness.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, similarly.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: It is what God Almighty has taken from men for women, so that they may keep her in kindness or release her with good treatment. He said: And that was taken at the time of the marriage contract.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for and they took from you a solemn covenant, it is that a man marries a woman and her guardian says, We have married her to you in trust from God, on condition that you keep her in a good manner or release her with kindness.

Surat al-Nisa 4:21

And how can you take it while you have gone in to one another and they have taken from you a solemn covenant?

Amr bin Ali told us, he said, Abdul A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: The solemn covenant that God took from women was: to keep [them] in kindness or to release them with good treatment. And it was in the Muslim contract when they married: I swear by God upon you, that you shall keep [them] in kindness and release them with good treatment.

Amr bin Ali told us, he said, Abu Qutaybah told us, he said, Abu Bakr al-Hudhali told us, on the authority of al-Hasan and Muhammad bin Sirin, regarding his statement: And they took from you a firm covenant, he said: Keeping her in kindness or releasing her with kindness.

Others said: It is the word of marriage with which the vagina is made permissible.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And they took from you a solemn covenant, he said: The word of marriage with which he made their private parts permissible.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Hashim al-Makki, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And they took from you a solemn covenant, he said: His statement: I married.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, he said, Anbasa told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi: And they took from you a firm covenant, he said: It is their saying: I have acquired the right to marry.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Salim Al-Aftas, on the authority of Mujahid: And they took from you a solemn covenant, he said: The word of marriage.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: And they took from you a solemn covenant, he said: The covenant is marriage.

Amr bin Ali told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, Sufyan told us, Salim Al-Aftas told me, on the authority of Mujahid: And they took from you a solemn covenant, he said: The word of marriage, his saying: I married.

Others said: Rather, what I mean is the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: You have taken them as a trust from God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

Who said that?

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir and Ikrimah: And they took from you a solemn covenant, they said: You took them with the trust of God, and you made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi': And they took from you a solemn covenant. The solemn covenant is: you took them with the trust of God, and you made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in interpreting this is the saying of those who said: The covenant meant in this verse is what is taken for the woman from her husband at the marriage contract of a covenant to keep her in good faith or release her with kindness, and the man acknowledged it. Because God, may He be glorified and praised, commanded men to do this with regard to their women.

We have explained the meaning of the covenant previously, so there is no need to repeat it here.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the ruling on this verse: Is it definitive or abrogated?

Some of them said: It is a decisive matter, and it is not permissible for a man to take anything of what he gave her if he wants to divorce her, unless she is the one who wants the divorce.

Others said: It is a legal ruling, and it is not permissible for him to take anything of what he gave her from her under any circumstances, whether she wanted the divorce or he did. Among those who narrated this statement is Bakr bin Abdullah Al-Muzni.

Mujahid bin Musa told us, Abd al-Samad told us, Uqbah bin Abi al-Sahba' told us: I asked Bakr about a woman who has been divorced by khul', does he take anything from her? He said: No, And they have taken from you a solemn covenant.

Others said: Rather, it is abrogated, abrogated by His statement: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits set by God (al-Baqarah 2:229).

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And if you wish to replace one wife with another to His statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: Then he made a concession after that and said: "And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God. But if you fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God, then there is no blame upon them for that by which she ransoms herself" (al-Baqarah 2:229). He said: So this abrogated that.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is the saying of the one who said: It is a decisive and not abrogated ruling, and it is not permissible for the man to take anything of what he gave her, if he wants to divorce her without any rebellion on her part or any suspicion that she brought.

This is because the abrogating rulings are those that negate the opposite rulings, as we have explained in all our books. And in His statement, And if you wish to replace one wife with another, there is no negation of the ruling in His statement, But if you fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God, there is no blame upon them for that by which she ransoms herself (al-Baqarah 2:229). Because what God has forbidden to a man in His statement, And if you wish to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount, do not take from it anything, is taking what he gave her from her if he is the one who wants to divorce her. As for what He has permitted him to take from her in His statement, There is no blame upon them for that by which she ransoms herself (al-Baqarah 2:229), it is if she is the one who wants to divorce him and he is reluctant to do so, with some of the meanings that we have mentioned in other places.

The ruling of one of the two verses does not negate the ruling of the other.

Since this is the case, it is not permissible to rule that one of them is abrogating and the other is abrogated, except with an argument that must be accepted.

As for what Bakr bin Abdullah Al-Muzani said: that the husband of the woman who has been divorced by khul' is not entitled to take what she gave him in exchange for his separation from her, if she was the one who requested the separation and he was reluctant, then this is not correct, because of the authenticity of the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he ordered Thabit bin Qais bin Shammās to take what he had given to his wife and separate from her when she requested to separate from him and the rebellion was on her part.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Fifth - The Almighty's saying: And how would you take him? The verse is an explanation for preventing taking while being alone. Some of them said: Ifdaa is with her under one blanket, whether he has intercourse or not. Al-Harawi narrated it and it is the saying of Al-Kalbi. Al-Farraa said: Ifdaa is for a man and a woman to be alone and for him to have intercourse with her. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Al-Suddi and others said: Ifdaa in this verse is intercourse. Ibn Abbas said: But God is generous and uses a euphemism. The root of ifdaa in the language is mixing, and the mixed thing is called fidda. The poet said:

I said to her, O Atami, you have my camel, and the dates in my bag, and raisins.

It is said: The people are in chaos, that is, mixed together, with no ruler over them. And the meaning of afdhā is khalā even if there is no congregation. Is the dowry determined by the presence of seclusion or not? Our scholars differed on this with four opinions: Seclusion is established. It is not established except by intercourse. It is established by seclusion in the house of the gift, distinguishing between his house and her house. The correct opinion is that it is established by seclusion absolutely, and Abu Hanifa and his companions said the same. They said: If he is alone with her in a valid seclusion, the full dowry and waiting period are required, whether he has intercourse with her or not, based on what was narrated by Al-Daraqutni on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Thawban, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever uncovers a woman's veil and looks at her, the dowry is due." Umar said: If he closes a door and lowers a curtain and sees a private part, the dowry is due, and she must observe the waiting period, and she is entitled to inherit. Ali said: If he closes a door and lowers a curtain and sees a private part, the dowry is due. Malik said: If he stays with her for a long time, such as a year or something similar, and they agree that there will be no intercourse, and she demands the entire dowry, then she is entitled to it. Al-Shafi'i said: There is no waiting period for her and she is entitled to half the dowry. This has already been mentioned in Al-Baqarah.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: And they took from you a solemn covenant. There are three opinions about this. It was said: It is "his saying, peace be upon him:

Fear God in dealing with women, for you have taken them as a trust from God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you by the word of God. This was said by Ikrimah and Al-Rabi' Al-Thani. The Almighty's saying: "Either keep [her] in an acceptable manner or release [her] with good treatment." This was said by Al-Hasan, Ibn Sirin, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, and As-Suddi. Third: The marriage contract. The man's saying: I have married and I own you. The marriage contract was said by Mujahid and Ibn Zayd. Some people said: The solemn covenant is the child. And God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Muqatil told us, Asbat ibn Muhammad told us, Al-Shaibani told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas - Al-Shaibani said: Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai mentioned it, and I do not think he mentioned it except on the authority of Ibn Abbas - O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. He said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if they wanted to do so, they could not do so, so they had more right to her than her family. Then this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. This is how Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Shaibani, whose name was Sulayman ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ikrimah, and on the authority of Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai, whose name was Ata', a blind Kufan, both of them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, as mentioned above. Abu Dawud said: Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Thabit Al-Marwazi told us, Ali bin Hussein told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from getting married in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. This is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, but he would prevent her from getting married until she died or her dowry was returned to him. So God, the Most High, ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Abu Dawud was the only one to narrate it, and more than one person narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas in a similar manner. Waki' said on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ali bin Badhimah, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: If a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic period, and a man came and threw a garment over her, he was more entitled to her, so this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ali bin Abi Talha narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, that he said: When a man died and left behind a female slave, his intimate friend would throw his garment over her and prevent her from seeing people. If she was beautiful, he would marry her, and if she was ugly, he would keep her until she died and inherit from her. Al-Awfi narrated on his authority: When a man from the people of Medina had a close friend, he would throw his garment over his wife, and he would inherit her marriage, and no one else would marry her, and he would keep her with him until she ransomed herself from him with a ransom. Then God revealed, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Zaid bin Aslam said about the verse: When a man from the people of Yathrib died during the pre-Islamic era, his wife would be inherited by whoever would inherit his money, and he would prevent her from marrying him until he inherited her, or he would marry her to whomever he wanted. The people of Tihamah would treat their women badly until they divorced her, and he would stipulate that she would not marry anyone except whomever he wanted until she ransomed herself from him with some of what he gave her. So God forbade the believers from that. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Musa bin Ishaq told us, Ali bin Al-Mundhir told us, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, on the authority of his father, who said: When Abu Qais bin Al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, and they did that during the pre-Islamic era, so God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Muhammad bin Fadil with it. Then he narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: Ata' informed me that when a man died and left a wife, his family would keep her away from the boy who would be among them, so the verse was revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will 1:13. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: When a man died, his son had more right to his wife, and he could marry her if he wished if she was not his son, or he could marry her to whomever he wished, his brother or his nephew. Ibn Jurayj said: Ikrimah said: It was revealed about Kabisha bint Ma'n ibn 'Asim from the Aws, whose father Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, and his son deviated from her, so she came to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I did not inherit from my husband, nor did I leave anyone to marry, so God revealed this verse. Al-Suddi said on the authority of Abu Malik: When a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic era, his guardian would come and throw a garment over her. If he had a young son or brother, he would detain her until he grew up or died, so that he could inherit from her. If she escaped and went to her family and he did not throw a garment over her, she would be saved. So God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Mujahid said about this verse: A man would have an orphan girl in his care and he would take care of her affairs, so he would detain her in the hope that his wife would die and he would marry her or marry her to his son. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Then he said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, Abu Majlaz, Ad-Dahhak, Az-Zuhri, Ata' al-Khurasani, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. I said: So the verse includes what the people of the pre-Islamic era did, and what Mujahid and those who agreed with him mentioned, and everything that had a type of that, and God knows best. And His statement, And do not prevent them from marrying you in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning do not harm them in their relationship, so that they leave you what you gave them as a dowry or part of it or a right of hers over you, or something like that in a way that oppresses and persecutes her. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement, And do not prevent them, he said: Do not oppress them in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning the man, who has a wife and he is reluctant to be with her, and she owes him a dowry, so he harms her in order to ransom her. Ad-Dahhak and Qatadah said the same, and Ibn Jarir chose it. Ibn Al-Mubarak and Abdul-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, he said Samak bin Al-Fadl told me on the authority of Ibn Al-Baylamani, he said: These two verses were revealed, one in the pre-Islamic era, and the other in the Islamic era. Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak said: He meant His statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will in the pre-Islamic era, and do not prevent them in Islam. And his statement, unless they commit a clear indecency, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Muhammad bin Sirin, Saeed bin Jubayr, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata Al-Khurasani, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Qilabah, Abu Salih, As-Suddi, Zaid bin Aslam, and Saeed bin Abi Hilal said: He means by that adultery, meaning if she commits adultery, then you have the right to take back from her the dowry that you gave her, and to quarrel with her until she leaves it to you and divorces her, as God the Almighty said in Surat al-Baqarah 2: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God Al-Baqarah 2:11. Ibn Abbas, Ikrimah, and Ad-Dahhak said: Clear indecency is rebellion and disobedience. Ibn Jarir chose that it includes all of that, including adultery, disobedience, rebellion, foul language, and other than that. He means that all of this permits quarreling with her until she clears him of her right or some of it and he separates from her, and this is good, and God knows best. It was mentioned previously in what Abu Dawud narrated alone on the authority of Yazid al-Nahwi on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. He said: That is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, and he would prevent her from marrying until she died, or her dowry was returned to him, so God ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: This requires that the entire context was about the pre-Islamic period, but the Muslims were forbidden from doing it in Islam. Abd Al-Rahman bin Zaid said: The practice of 'Adl among the Quraysh in Mecca was that a man would marry a noble woman, and perhaps she would not agree with him, so he would separate from her on the condition that she would not marry except with his permission. He would bring witnesses and write that down for her and have her testify. Then, if the suitor proposed to her, if she gave him permission and satisfied him, he would give her permission, otherwise he would prevent her. He said: This is what His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, is the verse. Mujahid said about His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, it is like 'Adl in Surat Al-Baqarah. And the Almighty said: And live with them in kindness meaning, be kind to them in your words, and improve your actions and appearances according to your ability as you would like from them, so do the same to them, as the Almighty said: And they women have rights similar to those of men over them, according to what is equitable. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of you is the best to his family, and I am the best of you to my family. And among his morals, may God bless him and grant him peace, was that he was pleasant to deal with, always cheerful, he would joke with his family, be kind to them, and give them generously, and he would make his wives laugh, to the point that he would race Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, to endear himself to her by doing so. She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, raced me and I won, and that was before I carried the meat, then I raced him after I carried the meat and he won, so he said: This for that. And his wives would gather every night in the house of the one with whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would spend, and sometimes he would eat dinner with them, then each one would go to her home, and he would sleep with one of his wives in one garment, removing the cloak from his shoulders and sleeping in the lower garment, and when he prayed the evening prayer, he would say: He would enter his home and chat with his family for a while before going to sleep, thus keeping them company, may God bless him and grant him peace. God Almighty said, There has certainly been for you in the Messenger of God an excellent pattern. The rulings on treating women and what is related to the details of that are found in the books of rulings, and praise be to God.

Surat al-Nisa 4:21

And how can you take it while you have gone in to one another and they have taken from you a solemn covenant?

And the Almighty's saying: But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God has placed therein much good. That is, perhaps your patience, while keeping them and their disliking it, will be much good for you in this world and the hereafter, as Ibn Abbas said about this verse: It is that He will be kind to her and will be blessed with a child from her, and in that child there will be much good. And in the authentic hadith: "A believing man should not hate a believing woman. If he is displeased with one aspect of her, he will be pleased with another."

And the Almighty said: "And if you wish to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount [of wealth], do not take from it anything. Would you take it by falsehood and manifest sin?" That is, if one of you wants to separate from a woman and replace her with another, then he should not take anything from what was the dowry of the first, even if it was a great amount of money. We have already discussed the great amount in Surat Al-Imran in a way that is sufficient to avoid repeating it here. This verse indicates that it is permissible to give a large sum of money as a dowry. Umar ibn al-Khattab had forbidden giving a large sum of money as a dowry, then he changed his mind about it, as Imam Ahmad said: Ismail told us, Salamah ibn Alqamah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa' al-Sulami, who said: I heard Umar ibn al-Khattab say: Do not exaggerate in giving a dowry to women, for if it were a source of honour in this world or piety before God, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have been the first among you to do so. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not give a dowry to any of his wives, nor did he give a dowry to any of his daughters of more than twelve ounces. A man would be tested by his wife's dowry until he would have enmity towards her in his heart and would say: I have been burdened with the burden of giving a water skin to you. Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunnah narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa', whose name was Haram ibn Musayyab al-Basri. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith.

Another chain of transmission on the authority of Omar Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Abu Khaithama told us, Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told us, my father told us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, Muhammad bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Al-Mujalid bin Saeed, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Omar bin Al-Khattab ascended the pulpit of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O people, why do you exaggerate in the dowries of women? The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and his companions used to give charity among themselves as four hundred dirhams, and less than that. If exaggeration in that was piety towards God or a sign of honor, you would not have preceded them in it. So do not know of a man who increases the dowry of a woman over four hundred dirhams. He said: Then he got down, and a woman from Quraysh intercepted him and said: O Commander of the Faithful, you forbade people from increasing the dowry of women over four hundred dirhams. He said: Yes. She said: Haven't you heard what God revealed in the Quran? He said: What is that? She said: Haven't you heard God say: And if you have given one of them a great amount Al-Madinah 14:1-20? He said: O God, forgive me, all people are more knowledgeable than Omar. Then he returned, mounted the pulpit and said: I had forbidden you to increase the dowries of women to more than four hundred dirhams, so whoever wishes may give from his money whatever he likes. Abu Ya'la said: I think he said: Whoever is content with it, let him do so. Its chain of transmission is good and strong.

Surat al-Nisa 4:21

And how can you take it while you have gone in to one another and they have taken from you a solemn covenant?

Another way Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ishaq ibn Ibrahim told us on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Qais ibn Rabi', on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Salami, who said: Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not exaggerate in the dowries of women. A woman said: That is not for you, O Umar. God says: And if you have given one of them a great amount - of gold. He said: And it is like this in the recitation of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them. Umar said: A woman argued with Umar and she defeated him.

Another chain of transmission from Umar in which there is an interruption Az-Zubayr ibn Bakkar said: My uncle Mus'ab ibn 'Abdullah told me on the authority of my grandfather who said: 'Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not increase the dowries of women, even if they are the daughter of Dhi Al-Ghusah - meaning Yazid ibn Al-Hussain Al-Harithi - and whoever increases, the increase shall be put into the public treasury. A tall woman with a flat nose said: What is that for you? He said: Why? She said: Because God said: And you have given one of them a great amount (Al-An'am 2:10). 'Umar said: A woman did well and a man made a mistake. That is why he said something strange: And how can you take it when you have gone in unto one another? That is, how can you take the dowry from a woman when you have gone in unto her and she has gone in unto you? Ibn 'Abbas, Mujahid, As-Suddi and others said: He meant sexual intercourse. It has been proven in the two Sahihs that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to the two men who had cursed each other after they had finished their curse: "God knows that one of you is lying. Is there any of you who will repent?" He said it three times. The man said: O Messenger of God, what is wrong with me? - Meaning, I did not believe her - he said, "You have no money. If you told the truth about her, then it is for what you made lawful for yourself from her vagina, and if you lied about her, then it is further from you than her." In Sunan Abi Dawud and others, on the authority of Basra bin Aktam, that he married a virgin woman in her chamber, and she became pregnant from adultery, so he came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so he ruled in her favor with the dowry, and separated them, and ordered that she be flogged, and said, "The child is your slave. The dowry is in return for sexual intercourse." That is why God, the Most High, said, And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another?

God the Almighty said: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Saeed bin Jubair that what is meant by that is the contract. Sufyan Ath-Thawri said on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: Keeping in kindness or releasing with kindness. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Yahya bin Abi Katheer, Ad-Dahhak, and As-Suddi. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas regarding the verse: It is His saying, You have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God. For the word of God is the testimony of faith in the sermon. He said: Among what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave on the night of his Isra' was that he said to him, I have made it unlawful for your nation to propose to you until they testify that you are My servant and Messenger. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. In Sahih Muslim on the authority of Jabir in the sermon of the Farewell Pilgrimage, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in it, And be advised to treat women well, for you have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

God the Almighty said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married Al-Baqarah 2:17. God the Almighty forbids the wives of fathers to honor them, and to respect and honor them, so that they are forbidden to the son as soon as the marriage contract is concluded with her. This is a matter that is agreed upon. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Malik bin Ismail told us, Qais bin Ar-Rabi' told us, Ash'ath bin Suwar told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of a man from the Ansar, who said: When Abu Qais - meaning Ibn Al-Aslat - died, and he was one of the righteous people of the Ansar, his son Qais proposed to his wife, and she said: I only consider you a son, and you are one of the righteous people of your people, but I will go to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and ask his advice. So she went to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Abu Qais has died, and he said: Good. Then she said: His son Qais proposed to me, and he is one of the righteous people of his people. I only considered him a son, so what do you think? He said to her, Go back to your home. He said: Then the verse, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, was revealed. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told us, Husayn told us, Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, he said: It was revealed about Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat Khalaf over Umm Ubayd God bint Sakhra, who was married to al-Aslat, his father, and about al-Aswad ibn Khalaf, who was married to the daughter of Abu Talha ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Uthman ibn Abd al-Dar, who was married to his father Khalaf, and about Fakhitah, the daughter of al-Aswad ibn al-Muttalib ibn Asad, who was married to Umayya ibn Khalaf, so Safwan ibn Umayya left her as his wife. Al-Suhayli claimed that marrying the fathers' wives was practiced in the pre-Islamic era, and that is why he said, except for what has already happened, just as he said, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already happened. He said: Kinanah ibn Khuzaymah did that. He married his father's wife, and she bore him his son, Al-Nadr ibn Kinanah. He said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, She was born from marriage, not from fornication. He said: This indicates that it was permissible for them to do that. If he meant that they considered it a marriage among themselves, Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Mukhrami told us, Qarad told us, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The people of the Jahiliyyah used to forbid what God had forbidden except for the father's wife and having two sisters together. Then God the Most High revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married and and that you have two sisters together. This is what Ata' and Qatadah said, but there is a problem with what al-Suhayli narrated from the story of Kinanah, and God knows best. In any case, it is forbidden in this verse, and it is extremely hideous. That is why God the Most High said: Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful, and an evil way. And He said: And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed. And He said: "And do not approach adultery. Indeed, it was an immorality and an evil way." So He added here and hateful, meaning hatred, meaning it is a great matter in itself, and it leads to the son hating his father after he marries his wife, because it is most likely that whoever marries a woman hates the one who was her husband before him, and that is why it was forbidden. The mothers of the believers are over the nation because they are mothers because they are the wives of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he is like a father. In fact, his right is greater than the right of fathers by consensus. In fact, his love takes precedence over the love of souls, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ata' ibn Abi Rabah said about his statement, and detestable, meaning that God detests him, and an evil path, meaning that it is a bad path for those who follow it among the people. Whoever takes it after this has apostatized from his religion, so he is to be killed and his money becomes spoils for the public treasury. As narrated by Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunan through various chains of transmission on the authority of Al-Bara' ibn 'Aazib, on the authority of his maternal uncle Abu Burdah - and in another narration: Ibn 'Umar, and in another narration: on the authority of his paternal uncle - that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him to a man who married his father's wife after him, to kill him and take his money. Imam Ahmad said: Hisham told us, Ash'ath told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of Al-Bara' bin Azib, who said: My uncle Al-Harith bin Amr passed by me, and he had a banner that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had tied for him, so I said to him: O uncle, where did the Prophet send you? He said: He sent me to a man who had married his father's wife, and he ordered me to strike his neck.

Question The scholars have agreed that it is forbidden for a woman to have sexual intercourse with her father through marriage, ownership, or doubt. They differed regarding someone who has sexual intercourse with her with lust without intercourse, or looks at what he would not be permitted to look at of her if she were a foreign woman. Imam Ahmad, may God have mercy on him, said that she is also forbidden because of that. Al-Hafiz Ibn Asakir narrated in the biography of Khadij al-Himsi, the freed slave of Muawiyah, that he bought a beautiful white slave girl for Muawiyah. He brought her to him naked, and in his hand was a stick. He began to lower it towards her private parts, and said: This is the private parts. If he had private parts, he would take her to Yazid ibn Muawiyah. Then he said: No, call for me Rabia ibn Amr al-Jarsi, who was a jurist. When he entered upon him, he said: I brought her naked, and I saw this and that in her, and I wanted to send her to Yazid. He said: Do not do that, O Commander of the Faithful, for she is not suitable for him. Then he said: Yes, what you saw. Then he said: Call for me Abdullah ibn Mas'adah al-Fazari. So I called him, and he was very dark-skinned. He said: Here is this. May God bless your son with it. He said: This Abdullah bin Mas'adah was given by the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his daughter Fatima, so she raised him, then freed him. Then after that, he was with Mu'awiyah among the people against Ali, may God be pleased with him.

Fath al-Qadir

And his saying 21- And how do you take it? is a denial after a denial that includes the reason that necessitates preventing taking: which is intercourse. Al-Harawi said: It is if they are in one blanket, whether they have intercourse or not. Al-Farraa said: Intercourse is when a man and a woman are alone, even if they do not have intercourse. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Al-Suddi said: Intercourse in this verse means sexual intercourse. The root of intercourse in the language is mixing. A mixed thing is called a space, and people are said to be chaos and a space: meaning mixed, with no leader over them. His statement, And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, is connected to the sentence before it: that is, while some of you have had intercourse with others, and they have taken from you a solemn covenant, which is the marriage contract. From this is the statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: For you have taken them with the trust of God and made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

Surat al-Nisa 4:21

And how can you take it while you have gone in to one another and they have taken from you a solemn covenant?

It was said: It is the statement of God Almighty: Then keep them in kindness or release them with good treatment. It was said: It is the children.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

21- And how do you take it?, by way of exaggeration, and some of you have gone in unto others, he meant by it sexual intercourse, but God is modest and uses a euphemism, and the root of going in is: reaching something without an intermediary.

And they have taken from you a solemn covenant.

Al-Hasan, Ibn Sirin, Al-Dahhak and Qatadah said: It is the guardian's saying at the time of the contract: I have married you both to each other on the basis of what God has taken for women from men, of keeping them in kindness or releasing them with kindness. Al-Sha'bi and Ikrimah said: It is what was narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Fear God with regard to women, for you have taken them as a trust from God Almighty and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God Almighty.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

21 And how do you take it when some of you have had sexual intercourse with others? Denial of taking back the dowry, when he had touched her and consummated the marriage and the dowry was determined. And they have taken from you a solemn covenant a firm pledge, which is the right of companionship and joking, or what God has made binding upon them regarding them by His saying: Either keep [her] in an acceptable manner or release [her] with good treatment or what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, referred to by saying: You have taken them as a trust from God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you by the word of God.

Surat al-Nisa 4:22

And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And do not marry those meaning those whom your fathers married of women, except but what has already occurred of your doing that, then it is pardoned for it meaning marrying them was an immorality ugly and hateful a cause of hatred from God, which is the most intense hatred and an evil an evil way a path. That is

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: It has been mentioned that this verse was revealed about a people who used to take the wives of their fathers as wives. Islam came while they were doing that, so God, the Blessed and Exalted, forbade them from continuing to do that, and pardoned them for what they had done in their ignorance and polytheism. He did not hold them accountable for it, if they feared God in their Islam and obeyed Him in it.

Mentioning the report that was narrated about that:

Muhammad bin Abdullah Al-Mukhrami told me, he said, Qurad told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah and Amr told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The people of ignorance forbade what was forbidden except the father's wife, and marrying two sisters at the same time.

He said: Then God revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, and And that you marry two sisters together, Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, the verse, he said: The people of ignorance used to forbid what God forbade, except that a man would take a wife from his father, and they would marry two sisters, so from there God said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, he said: It was revealed about Abu Qais ibn Al-Aslat, who had left behind Umm Ubayd bint Sakhr, who was married to Al-Aslat, his father, and about Al-Aswad ibn Khalaf, who had left behind Ana bint Abi Talha ibn Abd Al-Uzza ibn Uthman ibn Abd Al-Dar, who was married to his father Khalaf, and about Fakhita bint Al-Aswad ibn Al-Muttalib ibn Asad, who was married to Umayya ibn Khalaf, so Safwan ibn Umayya had left behind her, and about Manzur ibn Zaban, who had left behind Malika bint Kharija, who was married to his father Zaban ibn Sayyar.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Hussein narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: I said to Ata' bin Abi Rabah: A man marries a woman, then does not see her until he divorces her, is she permissible for his son? He said: She is a mursal. God the Most High said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married. He said: I said to Ata': What does He mean by except what has already occurred? He said: Sons used to marry the women of their fathers in the pre-Islamic era.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married the verse, meaning: every woman your father or son married, whether he consummated the marriage or not, she is forbidden to you.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the meaning of his saying: Except what has already happened.

Some of them said: Its meaning is: But what has already happened, leave it. They said: It is an isolated exception.

Others said: The meaning of this is: And do not marry as your fathers married, meaning: Do not marry as you did, as they married in corrupt ways that are not permissible in Islam, Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way, meaning: The marriage of your fathers that they used to marry only in their ignorance, was an immorality and hateful and an evil way - except for what you did in your ignorance of marriage, which it is not permissible to initiate in Islam, for it is forgiven for you. They said: His statement: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, is like someone saying to a man: Do not do what I did, and do not eat what I ate, meaning: Do not eat as I ate, and do not do as I did.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Do not marry women whom your fathers married through permissible marriages, except for what they have already done in the past, through fornication, according to them. Their marriage to you is permissible, but they were not wives to them. Rather, what your fathers and they did of that was an indecency, hateful, and evil way.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, the verse, he said: adultery, Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way, so here he added hatefulness.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this, according to what the people of interpretation have said in its interpretation, is that its meaning is: Do not marry women as your fathers married, except what has already happened from you and passed away in the pre-Islamic era, for it was an indecency and detestable and an evil way. So his saying: of women is connected to his saying: and do not marry, and his saying: what your fathers married is in the sense of a source, and his saying: except what has already happened is in the sense of a discontinuous exception, and it is better in its place: but what has already happened and passed away, for it was an indecency and detestable and an evil way.

Surat al-Nisa 4:22

And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way.

If someone says: How can this statement be in agreement with the statement of the people of interpretation whose statement you mentioned, and you know that those whose statement you mentioned in this regard only said: This verse was revealed in prohibition of marrying the wives of one's fathers, and you mention that they were only prohibited from marrying their own marriage?

It was said to him: We only said that this is the interpretation that agrees with the apparent meaning of the revelation, since what is in the speech of the Arabs is for other than the sons of Adam, and that if what was intended by that was the prohibition of the wives of the fathers, without all the other marriages of their fathers that were forbidden from the beginning in Islam by the prohibition of God, the Most High, it would have been said: And do not marry those whom your fathers married of women except what has already occurred, but that is what is known in the speech of the Arabs, since it was for the sons of Adam, and what is for other than them, and He did not say: And do not marry those whom your fathers married of women. As for the statement of God, the Most High: And do not marry those whom your fathers married of women, then what is included in what is what was from the marriages of their fathers that they used to marry in their ignorance. So it was forbidden for them in Islam by this verse to marry the wives of the fathers and every marriage other than that that God, the Most High, the Most High, prohibited from the beginning in Islam, which the people of ignorance used to marry in their polytheism.

The meaning of the statement: Except what has already passed, "Except what has already passed," It was an immorality, is that your marriage that has passed from you is like the marriage of your fathers that was forbidden to you from the beginning, like it in Islam after I forbade it to you. Immorality, he says: a sin, and hateful and an evil way, meaning an evil path and method, what you used to do in your ignorance of the marriages that you used to marry.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has four issues

First: The Almighty's saying: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married. It is said: People used to marry their father's wife with her consent after the revelation of the Almighty's saying: O you who believe, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, until this verse was revealed: And do not marry those whom your fathers married. So it became forbidden in all cases because marriage is based on sexual intercourse and marriage. If the father married a woman or had intercourse with her without marriage, she is forbidden to his son, as will be explained, God willing.

Second: The Almighty's saying: What you have married. It was said: What is meant by it are women. It was said: The contract: That is the corrupt marriage of your fathers that contradicts the religion of God, since God has perfected the aspect of marriage and detailed its conditions, and this is the choice of Al-Tabari in whoever is related to you marry. And what you have married is a source. He said: If its meaning was and do not marry the women whom your fathers married, then the place of what would have been from. So the prohibition on this basis was that they should not marry like the corrupt marriage of their fathers. The first is more correct, and what is in the meaning of which, and the evidence for it is that the Companions received the verse with that meaning, and from it they inferred the prohibition of sons marrying the wives of their fathers. There were tribes among the Arabs who were accustomed to the son of a man succeeding his father's wife, and this practice was necessary among the Ansar, and it was permitted among the Quraysh with consent. Don't you see that Amr ibn Umayya succeeded his father's wife after his death, and she gave birth to Musafir and Abu Mu'ayt, and she had Abu al-Ays and others from Umayya, so the Umayyads were the brothers of Musafir and Abu Mu'ayt and her uncles, and among them Safwan ibn Umayya ibn Khalaf married after his father his wife Fakhita bint al-Aswad ibn al-Muttalib ibn Asad, and Umayya had been killed, and among them Manzur ibn Zaban succeeded Malika bint Kharjah, who was married to his father Zaban ibn Sayyar, and among them Hisn ibn Abi Qays married his father's wife Kabisha bint Ma'n. Al-Aswad bin Khalaf married his father's wife. Al-Ash'ath bin Suwar said: Abu Qais died and he was one of the righteous Ansar. His son Qais proposed to his father's wife and she said: I promise you a son, but I will go to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to consult him. So she went to him and informed him, and God revealed this verse. There was one among the Arabs who married his daughter, and he was Hajib bin Zarara. He was a Magian and did this deed. Al-Nadr bin Shumayl mentioned this in the Book of Disgraces. So God forbade the believers from what their fathers had done in this way of life.

Third: The Almighty's saying: Except what has already passed means what has passed and gone. The predecessors: those who came before from your fathers and relatives. This is an isolated exception, meaning but what has already passed, avoid it and leave it. It was said that except means stay away, meaning after it has passed, as the Almighty said: They will not taste death therein except the first death (al-Dukhan 44:56), meaning after his first death. It was said: Except what has already passed meaning nor what has passed, as the Almighty said: And it is not for a believer to kill a believer except by mistake (An-Nisa': 92) meaning nor by mistake. It was said: In the verse there is an inversion, the meaning of which is: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married. Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way, except what has already passed. It was said: In the verse there is an implication of His saying: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, for if you do, you will be punished and held accountable, except what has already passed.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Indeed, it was an indecency and hateful and an evil way. He followed it with severe, successive condemnation, and this is evidence that it was an act that went from ugliness to extreme. Abu al-Abbas said: I asked Ibn al-A'rabi about the marriage of makt and he said: It is when a man marries his father's wife if he divorced her or died and this man is called al-Dayzan. Ibn Arafah said: When the Arabs married their father's wife and she bore him children, the child was called al-Muqti. The root of makt is hatred from maktahu he hates him and he is mamktuhu hated and makt hated. So the Arabs used to say to a man about his father's wife: makt hated. So God called this marriage makt because it is hatred that befalls its doer. It was said: What is meant by the verse is the prohibition of a man having intercourse with a woman with whom his fathers had intercourse, except for what the fathers had committed in the pre-Islamic period of fornication with women, not by way of marriage, for it is permissible for you to marry them, and to have intercourse with what your fathers had committed in the marriage contract, by way of fornication. Ibn Zayd said this. Accordingly, the exception is connected and is the basis that fornication is not forbidden, as will be explained, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Muqatil told us, Asbat ibn Muhammad told us, Al-Shaibani told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas - Al-Shaibani said: Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai mentioned it, and I do not think he mentioned it except on the authority of Ibn Abbas - O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. He said: When a man died, his guardians had more right to his wife. If one of them wanted to marry her, he could do so, and if they wanted to do so, they could not do so, so they had more right to her than her family. Then this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. This is how Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Mardawayh, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Shaibani, whose name was Sulayman ibn Abi Sulayman, on the authority of Ikrimah, and on the authority of Abu Al-Hasan Al-Sawai, whose name was Ata', a blind Kufan, both of them on the authority of Ibn Abbas, as mentioned above. Abu Dawud said: Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Thabit Al-Marwazi told us, Ali bin Hussein told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from getting married in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. This is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, but he would prevent her from getting married until she died or her dowry was returned to him. So God, the Most High, ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Abu Dawud was the only one to narrate it, and more than one person narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas in a similar manner. Waki' said on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ali bin Badhimah, on the authority of Muqsim, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: If a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic period, and a man came and threw a garment over her, he was more entitled to her, so this verse was revealed: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ali bin Abi Talha narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, that he said: When a man died and left behind a female slave, his intimate friend would throw his garment over her and prevent her from seeing people. If she was beautiful, he would marry her, and if she was ugly, he would keep her until she died and inherit from her. Al-Awfi narrated on his authority: When a man from the people of Medina had a close friend, he would throw his garment over his wife, and he would inherit her marriage, and no one else would marry her, and he would keep her with him until she ransomed herself from him with a ransom. Then God revealed, O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Zaid bin Aslam said about the verse: When a man from the people of Yathrib died during the pre-Islamic era, his wife would be inherited by whoever would inherit his money, and he would prevent her from marrying him until he inherited her, or he would marry her to whomever he wanted. The people of Tihamah would treat their women badly until they divorced her, and he would stipulate that she would not marry anyone except whomever he wanted until she ransomed herself from him with some of what he gave her. So God forbade the believers from that. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Musa bin Ishaq told us, Ali bin Al-Mundhir told us, Muhammad bin Fadil told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Umamah bin Sahl bin Hanif, on the authority of his father, who said: When Abu Qais bin Al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, and they did that during the pre-Islamic era, so God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Muhammad bin Fadil with it. Then he narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: Ata' informed me that when a man died and left a wife, his family would keep her away from the boy who would be among them, so the verse was revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will 1:13. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: When a man died, his son had more right to his wife, and he could marry her if he wished if she was not his son, or he could marry her to whomever he wished, his brother or his nephew. Ibn Jurayj said: Ikrimah said: It was revealed about Kabisha bint Ma'n

Surat al-Nisa 4:22

And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way.

ibn 'Asim from the Aws, whose father Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, and his son deviated from her, so she came to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, I did not inherit from my husband, nor did I leave anyone to marry, so God revealed this verse. Al-Suddi said on the authority of Abu Malik: When a woman's husband died in the pre-Islamic era, his guardian would come and throw a garment over her. If he had a young son or brother, he would detain her until he grew up or died, so that he could inherit from her. If she escaped and went to her family and he did not throw a garment over her, she would be saved. So God revealed: It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will. Mujahid said about this verse: A man would have an orphan girl in his care and he would take care of her affairs, so he would detain her in the hope that his wife would die and he would marry her or marry her to his son. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Then he said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah, Abu Majlaz, Ad-Dahhak, Az-Zuhri, Ata' al-Khurasani, and Muqatil ibn Hayyan. I said: So the verse includes what the people of the pre-Islamic era did, and what Mujahid and those who agreed with him mentioned, and everything that had a type of that, and God knows best. And His statement, And do not prevent them from marrying you in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning do not harm them in their relationship, so that they leave you what you gave them as a dowry or part of it or a right of hers over you, or something like that in a way that oppresses and persecutes her. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement, And do not prevent them, he said: Do not oppress them in order to take away part of what you have given them, meaning the man, who has a wife and he is reluctant to be with her, and she owes him a dowry, so he harms her in order to ransom her. Ad-Dahhak and Qatadah said the same, and Ibn Jarir chose it. Ibn Al-Mubarak and Abdul-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, he said Samak bin Al-Fadi told me on the authority of Ibn Al-Baylamani, he said: These two verses were revealed, one in the pre-Islamic era, and the other in the Islamic era. Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak said: He meant His statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will in the pre-Islamic era, and do not prevent them in Islam. And his statement, unless they commit a clear indecency, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Muhammad bin Sirin, Saeed bin Jubayr, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata Al-Khurasani, Ad-Dahhak, Abu Qilabah, Abu Salih, As-Suddi, Zaid bin Aslam, and Saeed bin Abi Hilal said: He means by that adultery, meaning if she commits adultery, then you have the right to take back from her the dowry that you gave her, and to quarrel with her until she leaves it to you and divorces her, as God the Almighty said in Surat al-Baqarah 2: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them unless both fear that they will not be able to keep within the limits of God Al-Baqarah 2:11. Ibn Abbas, Ikrimah, and Ad-Dahhak said: Clear indecency is rebellion and disobedience. Ibn Jarir chose that it includes all of that, including adultery, disobedience, rebellion, foul language, and other than that. He means that all of this permits quarreling with her until she clears him of her right or some of it and he separates from her, and this is good, and God knows best. It was mentioned previously in what Abu Dawud narrated alone on the authority of Yazid al-Nahwi on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying in order to take away part of what you have given them, unless they commit a clear immorality. He said: That is because a man would inherit a woman who was a relative of his, and he would prevent her from marrying until she died, or her dowry was returned to him, so God ruled against that, that is, He forbade it. Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: This requires that the entire context was about the pre-Islamic period, but the Muslims were forbidden from doing it in Islam. Abd Al-Rahman bin Zaid said: The practice of 'Adl among the Quraysh in Mecca was that a man would marry a noble woman, and perhaps she would not agree with him, so he would separate from her on the condition that she would not marry except with his permission. He would bring witnesses and write that down for her and have her testify. Then, if the suitor proposed to her, if she gave him permission and satisfied him, he would give her permission, otherwise he would prevent her. He said: This is what His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, is the verse. Mujahid said about His statement, And do not prevent them in order to take away part of what you have given them, it is like 'Adl in Surat Al-Baqarah. And the Almighty said: And live with them in kindness meaning, be kind to them in your words, and improve your actions and appearances according to your ability as you would like from them, so do the same to them, as the Almighty said: And they women have rights similar to those of men over them, according to what is equitable. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of you is the best to his family, and I am the best of you to my family. And among his morals, may God bless him and grant him peace, was that he was pleasant to deal with, always cheerful, he would joke with his family, be kind to them, and give them generously, and he would make his wives laugh, to the point that he would race Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, to endear himself to her by doing so. She said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, raced me and I won, and that was before I carried the meat, then I raced him after I carried the meat and he won, so he said: This for that. And his wives would gather every night in the house of the one with whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would spend, and sometimes he would eat dinner with them, then each one would go to her home, and he would sleep with one of his wives in one garment, removing the cloak from his shoulders and sleeping in the lower garment, and when he prayed the evening prayer, he would say: He would enter his home and chat with his family for a while before going to sleep, thus keeping them company, may God bless him and grant him peace. God Almighty said, There has certainly been for you in the Messenger of God an excellent pattern. The rulings on treating women and what is related to the details of that are found in the books of rulings, and praise be to God.

And the Almighty's saying: But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing and God has placed therein much good. That is, perhaps your patience, while keeping them and their disliking it, will be much good for you in this world and the hereafter, as Ibn Abbas said about this verse: It is that He will be kind to her and will be blessed with a child from her, and in that child there will be much good. And in the authentic hadith: "A believing man should not hate a believing woman. If he is displeased with one aspect of her, he will be pleased with another."

And the Almighty said: "And if you wish to replace one wife with another and you have given one of them a great amount [of wealth], do not take from it anything. Would you take it by falsehood and manifest sin?" That is, if one of you wants to separate from a woman and replace her with another, then he should not take anything from what was the dowry of the first, even if it was a great amount of money. We have already discussed the great amount in Surat Al Imran in a way that is sufficient to avoid repeating it here. This verse indicates that it is permissible to give a large sum of money as a dowry. Umar ibn al-Khattab had forbidden giving a large sum of money as a dowry, then he changed his mind about it, as Imam Ahmad said: Ismail told us, Salamah ibn Alqamah told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa' al-Sulami, who said: I heard Umar ibn al-Khattab say: Do not exaggerate in giving a dowry to women, for if it were a source of honour in this world or piety before God, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have been the first among you to do so. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not give a dowry to any of his wives, nor did he give a dowry to any of his daughters of more than twelve ounces. A man would be tested by his wife's dowry until he would have enmity towards her in his heart and would say: I have been burdened with the burden of giving a water skin to you. Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunnah narrated it through various chains of transmission on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin on the authority of Abu al-Ajfa', whose name was Haram ibn Musayyab al-Basri. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a good and authentic hadith.

Another chain of transmission on the authority of Omar Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Abu Khaithama told us, Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told us, my father told us on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, Muhammad bin Abdul Rahman told me on the authority of Al-Mujalid bin Saeed, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Omar bin Al-Khattab ascended the pulpit of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and said: O people, why do you exaggerate in the dowries of women? The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) and his companions used to give charity among themselves as four hundred dirhams, and less than that. If exaggeration in that was piety towards God or a sign of honor, you would not have preceded them in it. So do not know of a man who increases the dowry of a woman over four hundred dirhams. He said: Then he got down, and a woman from Quraysh intercepted him and said: O Commander of the Faithful, you forbade people from increasing the dowry of women over four hundred dirhams. He said: Yes. She said: Haven't you heard what God revealed in the Quran? He said: What is that? She said: Haven't you heard God say: And if you have given one of them a great amount Al-Madinah 14:1-20? He said: O God, forgive me, all people are more knowledgeable than Omar. Then he returned, mounted the pulpit and said: I had forbidden you to increase the dowries of women to more than four hundred dirhams, so whoever wishes may give from his money whatever he likes. Abu Ya'la said: I think he said: Whoever is content with it, let him do so. Its chain of transmission is good and strong.

Another way Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ishaq ibn Ibrahim told us on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Qais ibn Rabi', on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Salami, who said: Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not exaggerate in the dowries of women. A woman said: That is not for you, O Umar. God says: And if you have given one of them a great amount - of gold. He said: And it is like this in the recitation of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them. Umar said: A woman argued with Umar and she defeated him.

Another chain of transmission from Umar in which there is an interruption Az-Zubayr ibn Bakkar said: My uncle Mus'ab ibn `Abdullah told me on the authority of my grandfather who said: `Umar ibn Al-Khattab said: Do not increase the dowries of women, even if they are the daughter of Dhi Al-Ghusah - meaning Yazid ibn Al-Hussain Al-Harithi - and whoever increases, the increase shall be put into the public treasury. A tall woman with a flat nose said: What is that for you? He said: Why? She said: Because God said: And you have given one of them a great amount (Al-An'am 2:10). `Umar said: A woman did well and a man made a mistake. That is why he said something strange: And how can you take it when you have gone in unto one another? That is, how can you take the dowry from a woman when you have gone in unto her and she has gone in unto you? Ibn `Abbas, Mujahid, As-Suddi and others said: He meant sexual intercourse. It has been proven in the two Sahihis that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to the two men who had cursed each other after they had finished their curse: "God knows that one of you is lying. Is there any of you who will repent?" He said it three times. The man said: O Messenger of God, what is wrong with me? - Meaning, I did not believe her - he said, "You have no money. If you told the truth about her, then it is for what you made lawful for yourself from her vagina, and if you lied about her, then it is further from you than her." In Sunan Abi Dawud and others, on the authority of Basra bin Aktam, that he married a virgin woman in her chamber, and she became pregnant from adultery, so he came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so he ruled in her favor with the dowry, and separated them, and ordered that she be flogged, and said, "The child is your slave. The dowry is in return for sexual intercourse." That is why God, the Most High, said, And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another?

Surat al-Nisa 4:22

And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way.

God the Almighty said: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, and Saeed bin Jubair that what is meant by that is the contract. Sufyan Ath-Thawri said on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: Keeping in kindness or releasing with kindness. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, Yahya bin Abi Katheer, Ad-Dahhak, and As-Suddi. Abu Ja'far al-Razi said on the authority of al-Rabi' ibn Anas regarding the verse: It is His saying, You have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God. For the word of God is the testimony of faith in the sermon. He said: Among what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave on the night of his Isra' was that he said to him, I have made it unlawful for your nation to propose to you until they testify that you are My servant and Messenger. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. In Sahih Muslim on the authority of Jabir in the sermon of the Farewell Pilgrimage, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in it, And be advised to treat women well, for you have taken them with the trust of God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God.

God the Almighty said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married Al-Baqarah 2:17. God the Almighty forbids the wives of fathers to honor them, and to respect and honor them, so that they are forbidden to the son as soon as the marriage contract is concluded with her. This is a matter that is agreed upon. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Malik bin Ismail told us, Qais bin Ar-Rabi' told us, Ash'ath bin Suwar told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of a man from the Ansar, who said: When Abu Qais - meaning Ibn Al-Aslat - died, and he was one of the righteous people of the Ansar, his son Qais proposed to his wife, and she said: I only consider you a son, and you are one of the righteous people of your people, but I will go to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and ask his advice. So she went to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: Abu Qais has died, and he said: Good. Then she said: His son Qais proposed to me, and he is one of the righteous people of his people. I only considered him a son, so what do you think? He said to her, Go back to your home. He said: Then the verse, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, was revealed. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told us, Husayn told us, Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement, And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred, he said: It was revealed about Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat Khalaf over Umm Ubayd God bint Sakhra, who was married to al-Aslat, his father, and about al-Aswad ibn Khalaf, who was married to the daughter of Abu Talha ibn Abd al-Uzza ibn Uthman ibn Abd al-Dar, who was married to his father Khalaf, and about Fakhitah, the daughter of al-Aswad ibn al-Muttalib ibn Asad, who was married to Umayya ibn Khalaf, so Safwan ibn Umayya left her as his wife. Al-Suhayli claimed that marrying the fathers' wives was practiced in the pre-Islamic era, and that is why he said, except for what has already happened, just as he said, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already happened. He said: Kinanah ibn Khuzaymah did that. He married his father's wife, and she bore him his son, Al-Nadr ibn Kinanah. He said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, She was born from marriage, not from fornication. He said: This indicates that it was permissible for them to do that. If he meant that they considered it a marriage among themselves, Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Mukhrami told us, Qarad told us, Ibn Uwaynah told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The people of the Jahiliyyah used to forbid what God had forbidden except for the father's wife and having two sisters together. Then God the Most High revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married and that you have two sisters together. This is what Ata' and Qatadah said, but there is a problem with what al-Suhayli narrated from the story of Kinanah, and God knows best. In any case, it is forbidden in this verse, and it is extremely hideous. That is why God the Most High said: Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful, and an evil way. And He said: And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed. And He said: "And do not approach adultery. Indeed, it was an immorality and an evil way." So He added here and hateful, meaning hatred, meaning it is a great matter in itself, and it leads to the son hating his father after he marries his wife, because it is most likely that whoever marries a woman hates the one who was her husband before him, and that is why it was forbidden. The mothers of the believers are over the nation because they are mothers because they are the wives of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he is like a father. In fact, his right is greater than the right of fathers by consensus. In fact, his love takes precedence over the love of souls, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ata' ibn Abi Rabah said about his statement, and detestable, meaning that God detests him, and an evil path, meaning that it is a bad path for those who follow it among the people. Whoever takes it after this has apostatized from his religion, so he is to be killed and his money becomes spoils for the public treasury. As narrated by Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunan through various chains of transmission on the authority of Al-Bara' ibn 'Aazib, on the authority of his maternal uncle Abu Burdah - and in another narration: Ibn 'Umar, and in another narration: on the authority of his paternal uncle - that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him to a man who married his father's wife after him, to kill him and take his money. Imam Ahmad said: Hisham told us, Ash'ath told us, on the authority of Adi bin Thabit, on the authority of Al-Bara' bin Azib, who said: My uncle Al-Harith bin Amr passed by me, and he had a banner that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had tied for him, so I said to him: O uncle, where did the Prophet send you? He said: He sent me to a man who had married his father's wife, and he ordered me to strike his neck.

Question The scholars have agreed that it is forbidden for a woman to have sexual intercourse with her father through marriage, ownership, or doubt. They differed regarding someone who has sexual intercourse with her with lust without intercourse, or looks at what he would not be permitted to look at of her if she were a foreign woman. Imam Ahmad, may God have mercy on him, said that she is also forbidden because of that. Al-Hafiz Ibn Asakir narrated in the biography of Khadij al-Himsi, the freed slave of Muawiyah, that he bought a beautiful white slave girl for Muawiyah. He brought her to him naked, and in his hand was a stick. He began to lower it towards her private parts, and said: This is the private parts. If he had private parts, he would take her to Yazid ibn Muawiyah. Then he said: No, call for me Rabia ibn Amr al-Jarsi, who was a jurist. When he entered upon him, he said: I brought her naked, and I saw this and that in her, and I wanted to send her to Yazid. He said: Do not do that, O Commander of the Faithful, for she is not suitable for him. Then he said: Yes, what you saw. Then he said: Call for me Abdullah ibn Mas'adah al-Fazari. So I called him, and he was very dark-skinned. He said: Here is this. May God bless your son with it. He said: This Abdullah bin Mas'adah was given by the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his daughter Fatima, so she raised him, then freed him. Then after that, he was with Mu'awiyah among the people against Ali, may God be pleased with him.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 22- And do not marry those women whom your fathers married is a prohibition of what was done in the days of ignorance of marrying the wives of their fathers if they died, and it is a start in explaining who is forbidden to marry from women and who is not forbidden. Then the Almighty explained the reason for the prohibition of it, saying: Indeed, it is an immorality and hateful and an evil way. These three descriptions indicate that it is one of the most severe and ugliest of prohibitions, and the days of ignorance called it marriage of hatred. Tha'lab said: I asked Ibn al-A'rabī about marriage of hatred, and he said: It is when a man marries his father's wife if he divorced her or died, and this is called dhaima, and the root of hatred is hatred, from maqtahu yamqtuhu maqtan, so it is hated and hated. His statement, except what has already passed is a discontinuous exception, meaning: but what has already passed, avoid it and leave it. It was said: except means after: meaning after what has passed. It was said: the meaning is nor what has passed. It was said: it is a connected exception from his statement, what your fathers married indicating exaggeration in the prohibition by making the statement related to the impossible: meaning if you are able to marry what has already passed, then marry, for nothing else is permissible for you. His statement, and an evil way is like bad in blame and action, and the specific blame is omitted: meaning, an evil way is the way of that marriage. It was said: it is like all other verbs, and it contains a pronoun that refers back to what precedes it.

Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Umamah ibn Sahl ibn Hunaif who said: When Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat died, his son wanted to marry his wife, as they had done in the pre-Islamic era. So God revealed: {It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will.} Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah who said: This verse was revealed regarding Kabisha bint Mu'ammār ibn Ma'n ibn 'Asim from the Aws tribe who was married to Abu Qais ibn al-Aslat. When he died, his son treated her badly. She came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: I neither inherited from my husband nor did I leave anything for him to marry. So this verse was revealed. Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Baylamani regarding His statement: {It is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will, nor to prevent them from marrying.} He said: These two verses were revealed, one concerning the pre-Islamic era and the other concerning Islam. Ibn al-Mubarak said: {That you inherit women against their will} in the pre-Islamic era, and that you should not prevent them from marrying in Islam. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Malik regarding his statement, And do not prevent them, he said: Do not harm your wife in order to ransom herself from you. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid, And do not prevent them, meaning: that they marry their husbands, like the Adhl in Surat Al-Baqarah. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Zayd who said: The Adhl among the Quraysh in Mecca was: a man would marry a noble woman, perhaps she would not agree with him, so he would leave her on the condition that she would not marry except with his permission. He would bring witnesses and write that down for her and have them testify. Then if a suitor proposed to her, if she gave him permission and satisfied him, he would give her permission, otherwise he would prevent her. We have already mentioned from Ibn Abbas in explaining the reason for what you know. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Except if they commit a clear immorality, he said: Hatred and rebellion. If she does that, then he is permitted to pay ransom from her. Abd bin Hamid narrated something similar from Qatadah. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Ad-Dahhak as well. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan who said: The immorality here is adultery. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Qilabah and Ibn Sirin something similar. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding his statement, And live with them in kindness, he said: Mix with them. Ibn Jarir said: Some narrators corrupted it, and it means: Treat them. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Her right over you is good companionship, clothing, and reasonable provision. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muqatil, And live with them in kindness, meaning, treat them in kindness. But if you dislike them - perhaps you dislike a thing, so he divorces her and she marries a man after him, and God gives him a child from her, and God places much good in her marriage. Ibn Jarir and

And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. Indeed, it was an immorality and hateful and an evil way.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The great good is that he is kind to her, so she is blessed with a child, and God places much good in her child. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi something similar. Abd Ibn Hamid narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan something similar to what Muqatil said. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And if you wish to replace a wife the verse, he said: If you hate your wife and you like another, so you divorce this one and marry that one, then give this one her dowry even if it is a great amount. Saeed bin Mansour and Abu Ya'la narrated. Al-Suyuti said with a good chain of transmission: Omar forbade people from giving women more than four hundred dirhams in their dowries. A woman from Quraysh objected to him and said: Haven't you heard what God revealed, And if you have given one of them a great amount? He said: O God, forgive me, all people are more knowledgeable than Omar. He ascended the pulpit and said: O people, I forbade you from giving women more than four hundred dirhams in their dowries, so whoever wishes may give his money as he wishes. Abu Ya'la said: I think he said: Whoever is content with it, let him do so. Ibn Kathir said: Its chain of transmission is good and strong. This story has been narrated with different wordings, this is one of them. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Ifda' is intercourse, but God uses a euphemism. Abd bin Hamid narrated from Mujahid something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Ibn Abbas regarding the statement of God, And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: The solemn covenant is to keep [your wives] in an acceptable manner or to release them with kindness. Abd Al-Razzaq, Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated from Qatadah something similar and said: The marriage contract was taken from him: God commands you to keep [your wives] in an acceptable manner or to release them with kindness. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Ibn Abi Malekah that when Ibn Umar married, he would say: I have married you for what God has commanded, to keep [your wives] in an acceptable manner or to release them with kindness. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from Anas bin Malik something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from Ibn Abbas something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from Ikrimah and Mujahid regarding the statement of God, And they have taken from you a solemn covenant, he said: You took them as a trust from God and made their private parts lawful for you with the word of God. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Ibn Abbas that he said: It is a man's saying: I own her. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: The word of marriage by which their private parts become lawful. Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Tabarani and al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan regarding the verse: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, that it was revealed when Ibn Abi Qays al-Aslat wanted to marry his father's wife after his death. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of al-Dahhak: Except what has already occurred, except what was in the pre-Islamic era. Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ahmad, al-Hakim who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of al-Baraa who said: I met my maternal uncle who was carrying the banner. I said: Where are you going? He said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) sent me to a man who married his father's wife after him, and he ordered me to strike his neck and take his money.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

22- The Almighty said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, the people of the pre-Islamic era used to marry their fathers' wives. Al-Ash'ath bin Suwar said: Abu Qais died and he was one of the righteous Ansar, so his son Qais proposed to his father's wife and she said: I have taken you as a son and you are one of the righteous people of your people, but I will go to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to consult him. So she went to him and informed him, so God Almighty revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married except what has already occurred, it was said: after what has already occurred, and it was said: its meaning is but what has already occurred, meaning: what happened in the pre-Islamic era is forgiven, It was an immorality, meaning: it was an immorality, and was in it is a connection, and immorality is the ugliest of sins, and hateful, meaning: it causes God's hatred, and hatred is the most intense hatred, and an evil way, and that is an evil way. The Arabs used to say to a man's son From his father's wife Muqit, and among them were Al-Ash'ath bin Qais and Abu Mu'ayt bin Abi Amr bin Umayya.

Muhammad ibn al-Hasan al-Marwazi told us, Abu Sahl Muhammad ibn Amr al-Sajzi told us, Imam Abu Sulayman al-Khattabi told us, Ahmad ibn Hisham al-Hadrami told us, Ahmad ibn Abd al-Jabbar al-Attardi told us, on the authority of Hafs ibn Ghiyath, on the authority of Ash'ath ibn Suwar, on the authority of Adi ibn Thabit, on the authority of al-Bara' ibn Azib, who said: My maternal uncle passed by me with a banner, so I said: Where are you going? He said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent me to a man who had married his father's wife, to bring him his head.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

22And do not marry those whom your fathers married And do not marry those whom your fathers married, and what was mentioned below from is because it is intended to describe it, and it was said that from is a source of meaning from the source women explaining what was married in both ways. Except what has already occurred is an exception from the necessary meaning of the prohibition, and it is as if it was said: And you deserve punishment for marrying what your fathers married except what has already occurred, or from is for exaggeration in the prohibition and generalization like his saying:

There is no fault in them except that their swords have dents from the clashing of the battalions.

The meaning is: Do not marry your fathers' wives except what has already occurred, if you are able to marry them. It was said that the exception is disjunctive and its meaning is: But what has already occurred, then there is no blame for it because it is established. Indeed, it was an immorality and detestable is the reason for the prohibition, meaning that marrying them was an immorality in the sight of God, which He did not permit for any nation, and it is detestable to people of honor. That is why a man's son from his father's wife is called the detestable. "And evil is the way" is the way of the one who sees it and does it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Forbidden to you are your mothers to marry them, and this includes grandmothers from the father's or mother's side and your daughters and this includes sons, even if they are descended and your sisters from the father's or mother's side and your paternal aunts meaning the sisters of your fathers and grandfathers and your maternal aunts meaning the sisters of your mothers and grandmothers and your brother's daughters and your sister's daughters and this includes their children and your mothers who breastfed you before completing two years with five breastfeedings as explained in the hadith and your sisters through breastfeeding and this includes the daughters from her, and they are those who were breastfed by a woman with whom he had sexual intercourse, and the paternal aunts and maternal aunts and the daughters of the brother and the daughters of the sister from her, according to the hadith: What is forbidden through breastfeeding is forbidden through lineage. Narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim. And the mothers of your wives and your stepdaughters the plural of stepdaughter is the daughter of the wife from another man who are in your guardianship you raise her, a description that matches the majority, so it has no meaning of your women with whom you have gone in that is, you have had intercourse but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you in marrying their daughters if you separate from them and the wives the husbands of your sons who are from your loins unlike those whom you have adopted, so you may marry their wives and that you marry two sisters by blood or breastfeeding through marriage, and it is attributed to them according to the Sunnah between her and her paternal aunt or maternal aunt, and it is permissible to marry each one separately and own them both and have intercourse with one except but what has already occurred in the pre-Islamic era of marrying them some of what was mentioned, so there is no blame upon you in that indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful to you in that.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Almighty means: It is forbidden for you to marry your mothers, so He left out mentioning marriage, being satisfied with the indication of the speech about it.

Ibn Abbas used to say about this:

Abu Kurayb narrated to us, he said: Ibn Abi Zaydah narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Thawri, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Raja', on the authority of Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Seven are forbidden by blood relation, and seven by marriage. Then he recited: Forbidden to you are your mothers until he reached: And that you marry two sisters at the same time, except for what has already occurred. He said: And the seventh: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Raja', on the authority of Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Seven are forbidden by blood relation, and seven by marriage. Then he recited: Forbidden to you are your mothers until His saying: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess.

Ibn Bashar told us again, he said, Abu Ahmad al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Raja', on the authority of Umair, the freed slave of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Tha'lab, on the authority of al-Zuhri, something similar.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Habib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Seven types of lineage and seven types of marriage are forbidden to you: Your mothers are forbidden to you verse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said: My father told us, on the authority of Ali ibn Salih, on the authority of Samak ibn Harb, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, he said: God forbade seven types of blood relations and seven types of marriage relations. Then he recited: And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters, the verse.

Ibn Humayd told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Amr ibn Salim, a freed slave of the Ansar, he said: Seven are forbidden by blood relation, and seven by marriage: Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, and your sister's daughters. And by marriage: "Your mothers who have suckled you, and your foster sisters, and the mothers of your wives, and your stepdaughters under your guardianship born of your women to whom you have consummated the marriage - but if you have not consummated the marriage, there is no blame upon you; and the wives of your sons who are from your loins, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred." Then he said: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, and And do not marry those women your fathers married.

Abu Ja'far said: All of those whom God Almighty has named and made clear their prohibition in this verse are prohibited, and it is not permissible to marry them to whom God has prohibited that from men, by consensus of the entire nation. There is no difference between them in that, except in the case of the mothers of our women whom their husbands have not consummated the marriage with, for there is a difference of opinion among some of the early Companions in their marriage: If the daughter is separated before the husband has consummated the marriage with her, are they among the ambiguous ones, mothers of those in whom it is stipulated that consummation be made with their daughters?

All scholars, past and present, said: It is one of the ambiguous matters, and is it forbidden for a man to marry a woman whose mother he married? Whether he had intercourse with his wife whom he married or not. They said: The condition of intercourse is with the stepdaughter and not the mother. As for the mother of the woman, she is divorced by prohibition. They said: Even if it were permissible for the condition of intercourse in His statement: And your stepdaughters under your guardianship from your women to whom you have consummated intercourse, to refer back to His statement: And the mothers of your women, it would be permissible for the exception in His statement: And chaste women except those your right hands possess to be from all forbidden things by His statement: Forbidden to you, the verse.

They said: And in the consensus of all that the exception in that is only what follows it in his saying: and chaste women, the clearest evidence is that the condition in his saying: of your women with whom you have consummated the marriage, is what follows it in his saying: and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women with whom you have consummated the marriage, not the mothers of our women.

It was narrated on the authority of some of the predecessors that he used to say: It is permissible to marry the mothers of our women with whom we have not consummated the marriage, and their ruling in this regard is the ruling on stepdaughters.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday and Abd al-A'la told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Khalas bin Amr, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, regarding a man who married a woman and then divorced her before consummating the marriage with her. Can he marry her mother? He said: She is like a stepdaughter.

Humayd bin Mas'adah told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Sa'id told us, Qatada told us, on the authority of Khalas, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: She is like a stepdaughter.

Humayd told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, Qatada told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, on the authority of Zaid bin Thabit, that he used to say: If she died while he was with him and he took her inheritance, he would dislike to leave a husband for her mother. And if he divorced her before consummating the marriage with her, then if he wanted to he could do so.

Ibn Bashir told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, on the authority of Zaid bin Thabit, who said: If a man divorces his wife before consummating the marriage with her, there is nothing wrong with him marrying her mother.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, he said, Ibn Jurayj said, Ikrimah bin Khalid told me: Mujahid said to him, And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women, meaning that both of them are included.

Abu Ja'far said: The first statement is more correct, I mean the statement of the one who said: The mother is among the ambiguous. Rather, God did not stipulate that they should be allowed to have intercourse with their daughters, as He stipulated with the mothers of stepdaughters, although that is also a consensus from the Proof of God, which cannot be contradicted in what it has brought and is agreed upon. A report on this has also been narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but there is a problem with its chain of transmission, which is as follows:

Al-Muthanna narrated to us, saying: Habban bin Musa narrated to us, saying: Ibn al-Mubarak informed us, saying: Al-Muthanna bin al-Sabah informed us, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: If a man marries a woman, it is not permissible for him to marry her mother, whether he has consummated the marriage with the daughter or not. And if he marries the mother but does not consummate the marriage with her and then divorces her, then if he wishes he may marry the daughter.

Abu Jaafar said: This is a report, even if there is something in its chain of transmission, because the consensus of the argument for the validity of the statement about it is sufficient, and there is no need to prove its validity with anything else.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Ibn Jurayj, he said to Ata': A man marries a woman whom he has not seen or had intercourse with until he divorces her, is her mother permissible for him? He said: No, she is a mursal. I said to Ata': Did Ibn Abbas recite: And the mothers of your wives with whom you have consummated the marriage? Qan. No, she is doubtful. Hajjaj said, I said to Ibn Jurayj: What do you think? He said: It is as if he said: No! No!

As for the stepdaughters, it is the plural of stepdaughter, which is the daughter of a man's wife. He restricted her to stepdaughter because he raised her, but she is actually a foster child, which was converted to stepdaughter, just as it is said: she is a slain woman from a slain woman. It may also be said of a woman's husband: he is the stepson of his wife's son, meaning: he is his tutor, just as it is said: he is an expert, an expert, a witness, and a martyr.

The interpreters differed regarding the meaning of his statement: Of your women with whom you have consummated the marriage.

Some of them said: The meaning of entering into this place is sexual intercourse.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Of your women with whom you have consummated the marriage, and consummation means marriage.

Others said: Entering this place means abstraction.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim narrated, Al-Husayn narrated, Hajjaj narrated, Ibn Jurayj said, I said to Ata': His statement, those with whom you have had sexual intercourse, what does it mean to have sexual intercourse with them? He said: That she is presented to him, so he uncovers her, touches her, and sits between her legs. I said: What if he does that in her family's house? He said: It is the same, and damn it! Her daughter has been forbidden to him. I said: Is the stepdaughter forbidden to someone who does this to her mother? Is it not forbidden to me from my female slave if I do it to her mother? He said: Yes, it is the same. Ata' said: If a man uncovers his female slave and sits between her legs, he is forbidden to her mother and her daughter.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions in my opinion in interpreting this is what Ibn 'Abbas said, that the meaning of entering is sexual intercourse and marriage. However, its meaning is not devoid of one of two things: Either it is according to the apparent and commonly known meanings of entering among people, which is reaching her by being alone with her, or it is in the meaning of sexual intercourse. And in the consensus of all that the seclusion of a man with his wife does not make her daughter forbidden to him if he divorces her before touching her and having sexual intercourse with her, or before looking at her vagina with lust, there is what indicates that the meaning of this is reaching her by sexual intercourse.

Since this is the case, it is known that the correct interpretation of this is what we have said.

As for his statement: But if you have not consummated the marriage with them, there is no blame upon you, he is saying: If you, O people, have not consummated the marriage with the mothers of your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship and have intercourse with them until you divorce them, there is no blame upon you, he is saying: There is no blame upon you in marrying one of your stepdaughters who is like that.

As for his saying: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, he means: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins.

It is the plural of Halila which means his wife.

It was said: A man's wife is called his wife because she is permitted to share the same bed with him.

There is no disagreement among all scholars that it is forbidden for a man to marry his son's wife, whether he has consummated the marriage with her or not.

If someone says: What do you say about the wives of our foster children? God Almighty only forbade the wives of our children from our loins.

It was said: The wives of the sons through breastfeeding and the wives of the sons through the loins are equal in prohibition. And he said: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, and its meaning is: And the wives of the sons of those whom you gave birth to, not the wives of your sons whom you adopted, as:

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: I said to Ata': His statement: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, he said: We were told, and God knows best, that it was revealed about Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he married the wife of Zayd ibn Haritha. The polytheists said about that, so the following was revealed: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, and the following was revealed: And He has not made your adopted sons your sons (Surat al-Ahzab 33:4), and the following was revealed: Muhammad is not the father of any of your men (Surat al-Ahzab 33:40).

As for his saying: And that you marry two sisters together, its meaning is: It is forbidden for you to marry two sisters together, so that is in the nominative case, as if it was said: And marrying two sisters together.

Except what has already passed, but what has already passed from you, God is Forgiving of the sins of His servants if they repent to Him for them, Merciful to them in what He has imposed on them of obligations, and He has made things easy for them and has not burdened them beyond their capacity.

He, the Most High, informs us of this: He is Forgiving of whoever married two sisters during his ignorance, before He prohibited it, if he feared God, the Blessed and Most High, after He prohibited it for him, and obeyed Him by avoiding it. He is Merciful to him and to others among His creation who obey Him.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains: twenty-one issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: Forbidden to you are your mothers and your daughters the verse, meaning marrying your mothers and marrying your daughters. So God Almighty mentioned in this verse what is permissible of women and what is forbidden, just as He mentioned the prohibition of the permissibility of the father, so God forbade seven by lineage and six by breastfeeding and marriage, and the continuous Sunnah included a seventh, which is the combination of a woman and her paternal aunt, and the consensus stated it and the narration was confirmed from Ibn Abbas, who said: Seven are forbidden by lineage and seven by marriage, and he recited this verse. Amr bin Salem, the client of the Ansar, said something similar. He said: The seventh is the Almighty's saying, And the chaste women, so the seven forbidden women by bloodline, mothers, daughters, sisters, paternal aunts, maternal aunts, brother's daughters, sister's daughters, and the seven forbidden women by marriage and breastfeeding: mothers by breastfeeding, sisters by breastfeeding, mothers of women, stepdaughters, wives of sons, and combining two sisters. The seventh is, And do not marry those whom your fathers married, Al-Tahawi said. All of this is from the decisive and agreed upon, and it is not permissible to marry one of them by consensus except the mothers of those whose husbands have not consummated the marriage, for the majority of the early Muslims held that the mother is forbidden by the contract with the daughter, and the daughter is not forbidden except by consummation with the mother. This is the saying of all the imams of fatwa in the regions. A group of the early Muslims said: The mother and the stepdaughter are the same, neither of them is forbidden except by consummation with the other.

They said: The meaning of his saying and your wives' mothers is those with whom you have consummated the marriage. And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your wives with whom you have consummated the marriage. They claimed that the condition of consummation refers to both mothers and stepdaughters. It was narrated by Khalas on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, and it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Jabir, and Zayd ibn Thabit. It is the opinion of Ibn al-Zubayr and Mujahid. Mujahid said: Consummation is intended in both incidents, and the opinion of the majority is contrary to this, and the ruling and fatwa are based on it. The people of Iraq were strict about it until they said: If he had intercourse with her through fornication, or kissed her, or touched her with lust, her daughter would be forbidden to him. According to us and to al-Shafi'i, she is only forbidden by a valid marriage, and what is forbidden does not forbid what is permissible, as will come. The hadith of Khalas does not constitute evidence, and its narration from the people of knowledge of hadith is not valid. What is correct from him is like the opinion of the group. Ibn Jurayj said: I said to 'Ata': Can a man marry a woman and then not see her? He does not have intercourse with her until he divorces her or her mother becomes permissible to him? He said: No, it is not a mursal, whether he had intercourse with her or not. I said to him: Did Ibn Abbas read: And the mothers of your wives and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have gone in. He said: No. Saeed narrated on the authority of Qatada on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the words of God Almighty: And the mothers of your women, he said: It is ambiguous and is not permissible by the contract with the daughter. Malik narrated likewise in his Muwatta' on the authority of Zaid bin Thabit, and in it: Zaid said: No, the mother is ambiguous and there is no condition in it, but the condition is in the stepdaughters. Ibn al-Mundhir said: This is the correct view because all the mothers of women are included in the words of God Almighty: And the mothers of your women. This statement is supported by the fact that if the two predicates differ in the agent, their description is not the same, so it is not permissible according to grammarians to say: I passed by your women and fled from Zaid's elegant women, on the condition that elegant women are a description of your women and Zaid's women. Likewise, the verse does not allow all those to be a description of it all because the two predicates differ, but it is permissible in the meaning of I mean. Al-Khalil and Sibawayh recited:

There are two groups of people in it who spend their wealth.

Khuwayrbīn means to break, meaning I mean, and they spend: they break Nafaqah, he broke his head, and it came explicitly from the hadith of Amr bin Shuaib on the authority of his father on the authority of Jeddah, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

If a man marries a woman, it is not permissible for him to marry her mother, whether he has consummated the marriage with the daughter or not. If he marries the mother but does not consummate the marriage with her, then divorces her, then if he wishes he may marry the daughter. Narrated in the two Sahihs.

Second: If this is established and proven, then know that prohibition is not an attribute of objects, and objects are not a source or a source for permission or prohibition, but rather the obligation to command and prohibit is related to the actions of those charged with the obligation of movement and stillness. But since objects are a source of actions, the command, prohibition, and ruling are added to them and are metaphorically attached to them in the sense of alluding to the place of the action by which it is permissible.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Third: The Almighty's saying: "Your mothers." The prohibition of mothers is general in every case and is not specific in any way. That is why scholars call it the ambiguous, meaning there is no door in it or a path to it because the prohibition is blocked and strong. Likewise, the prohibition of daughters and sisters and those mentioned from the respected ones and mothers is the plural of mother. It is said: mother and mother have one meaning, and the Qur'an came with them. Its explanation was presented in Al-Fatihah. It was said: The origin of mother is mother on the weight of fa'ala like qabra and humra for two birds, so it was dropped and returned in the plural. The poet said:

My mother is Khandaf and my father is Al-Daws

It was said: The origin of mother is nation, and they recited:

And I accepted it on behalf of a nation of yours that you always return to in all calamities.

Its plural is Amat. Al-Ra'i said:

The noble horses of Mundhir and Muharraq were safe and their paths were clear.

Mother is the name of every female who has a birth right over you, which includes the mother, her mothers, her grandmothers, the father's mother, and his grandmothers, even if they are distant. Daughter is the name of every female who has a birth right over you. Or you may say: Every female whose lineage goes back to you by birth, by one or more degrees. This includes the daughter of the loins, her daughters, and the daughters of sons, however far they descend. Sister is the name of every female who is your neighbor in your lineage or in one of them. Daughters is the plural of daughter, and the root is binah, and the one used is bint and bint. Al-Farra' said: The ba' of bint was broken so that the kasrah indicates the ya', and the alif of sister was made a damma to indicate the deletion of the waw, because the root of sister is brothers, and the plural is sisters. Aunt is the name of every female who shares with your father or grandfather his lineage or one of them. Or you may say: Every male whose lineage goes back to you, his sister is your aunt. An aunt may also be from the mother's side, and she is the sister of your mother's father. A maternal aunt is the name of every female who shares with your mother in her lineage or in one of them. Or you may say: Every female whose lineage goes back to you by birth, her sister is your maternal aunt. The paternal aunt may be your father's sister, and the brother's daughter is the name for every female of your brother's through birth or directly, as well as the sister's daughter. These are the seven forbidden ones by lineage. Nafi' read - in the narration of Abu Bakr bin Abi Uways - with a shaddah on the kha' of brother if it contains the alif and lam with the movement transferred.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: And your mothers who breastfed you. It is similar in prohibition to what we mentioned. "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

What is forbidden by breastfeeding is forbidden by lineage. "Abdullah read: 'and your mothers who' without the 'ta', like the Almighty's saying: 'and those who have despaired of menstruation' (al-Talaq 65:4)." The poet said:

Those who did not veil themselves seek to gain reward, but rather kill the innocent and ignorant.

I breastfed you. So if a woman breastfeeds a child, she is forbidden to him because she is a slave, and her daughter because she is his sister, and her sister because she is his maternal aunt, and her mother because she is his grandmother, and the daughter of her husband, the owner of the milk, because he is his sister, and his sister because she is his maternal aunt, and his mother because she is his grandmother, and the daughters of her sons and daughters because they are the daughters of his brothers and sisters.

Fifth: Abu Naim Ubayd God ibn Hisham al-Halabi said: A king was asked about a woman who is accompanied by her foster brother. He said: Yes. Abu Naim said: Malik was asked about a woman who got married and her husband consummated the marriage with her, then another woman came and claimed that she had breastfed her. He said: They should be separated, and whatever she took from his is hers, and whatever remains is his, he is not liable for anything. Then Malik said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about something like this and he ordered that. They said: O Messenger of God, she is a weak woman. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Is it not said that so-and-so married his sister?

Sixth: Prohibition by breastfeeding only occurs if breastfeeding occurs within two years, as mentioned in Al-Baqarah. There is no difference between a little or a lot of breastfeeding in our view if it reaches the intestines, even if it is just one suck. Al-Shafi'i considered two conditions for breastfeeding: one of them is five breastfeedings, based on the hadith of Aisha who said:

Among what God revealed was ten known breastfeedings that forbid, then they were abrogated by five known breastfeedings, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died. This is one of the things that is recited from the Qur'an, and the evidence for it is that it is proven that ten were abrogated by five. If the prohibition was connected to less than five, then that would be an abrogation of the five, and no single report or analogy is acceptable on this, because it is not abrogated by them. In the hadith of Suhaila:

Breastfeed him five times, and he will be forbidden to marry. The second condition is that it be within the two years. If it is outside of those two years, he will not be forbidden to marry, based on the Almighty's statement:

Two complete years for whoever wishes to complete the nursing (al-Baqarah 2:233). There is nothing after completion and perfection. Abu Hanifa considered six months after two years, and Malik considered a month and the like. Zafar said: As long as milk is sufficient and he is not weaned, it is breastfeeding, even if three years have passed. Al-Awza'i said: If he is weaned for a year and his weaning continues, then there is no breastfeeding after that. Al-Layth bin Sa'd was the only one among the scholars who said that breastfeeding an adult causes prohibition, and this is the saying of Aisha, may God be pleased with her. It was narrated from Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari, and it was narrated from him what indicates his return from that, which is what Abu Haseen narrated from Abu Atiyah, who said: A man came with his wife from Medina, and she gave birth and her breast swelled, so he began to suck it and spit it out, and a sip of it entered his stomach. He asked Abu Musa, and he said: She is separated from you, and go to Ibn Mas'ud and inform him, so he did, and he turned with the Bedouin until Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari said: A breastfeeding woman, you see this disheveled man, only what is prohibited from breastfeeding is what grows flesh and bone. Al-Ash'ari said: Do not ask about anything while this scholar is among you, so his saying: Do not ask me indicates that He went back on that and Aisha used as evidence the story of Salim, the freed slave of Abu Hudhayfah, who was a man, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Sallah bint Suhayl:

Breastfeed him. This was included in Al-Muwatta' and others, and a group of people considered ten breastfeedings, holding fast to the fact that what was revealed was: ten breastfeedings, and it was as if the abrogator had not reached them. And Dawud said: It is not forbidden except by three breastfeedings, and he used as evidence the saying of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace:

A single suckling or two sucklings do not forbid the marriage. Narrated by Muslim. It was narrated on the authority of Aisha and Ibn al-Zubayr. Ahmad, Ishaq, Abu Thawr, and Abu Ubaid said the same. This is an adherence to the evidence of the speech, which is disputed. Other than these, the imams of fatwa held that a single suckling forbids if it is fulfilled, as we mentioned, adhering to the lesser amount that is called suckling. This was supported by what was found in practice in Madinah and by analogy with marriage by marriage, on the grounds that it is an incidental meaning that requires the perpetuation of the prohibition, so the number is not required for it, like marriage by marriage. Al-Layth bin Sa'd said: The Muslims agreed that a little or a lot of suckling forbids in the cradle what breaks the fast. Abu `Umar said: Al-Layth did not find any disagreement on that.

I said - and the most correct thing in this chapter is what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

One suckling or two sucklings do not forbid. Narrated by Muslim in his Sahih. He explains the meaning of the Almighty's statement: And your mothers who breastfed you, meaning they breastfed you three times or more. However, it can be interpreted as meaning if it is not certain that it reached the infant's stomach, "because He said: ten known sucklings and five known sucklings." Describing them as known is only to guard against what is imagined or doubted about reaching the stomach. The evidence of his statement indicates that if the sucklings are not known, they do not forbid, and God knows best. Al-Tahawi mentioned that the hadith of the one who suckled and the two sucklings is not proven because he sometimes narrates it, it is not proven because Ibn al-Zubayr sometimes narrates it from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and sometimes he narrates it from Aisha, and sometimes he narrates it from his father. Such confusion invalidates it. It was narrated from Aisha that only seven sucklings forbid, and it was narrated from her that she ordered her sister Umm Kulthum to breastfeed Salim ibn Abdullah ten times, and the same was narrated from Hafsa, and three times, and five times, as al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, said. It was narrated on the authority of Isaac.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: And your mothers who suckled you was used as evidence by those who denied the milk of the stallion, namely Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, and Abu Sulaymah bin Abd Al-Rahman. They said: The milk of the stallion does not prohibit anything from the man. The majority said: The Almighty's saying: And your mothers who suckled you indicates that the stallion is a father because the milk is attributed to him, as it was produced because of his son. This is weak, because the son was created from the semen of the man and the woman together, and the milk is from the woman and did not come out of the man. The man had nothing but intercourse, which was a cause for the water to come out of him. If the son was separated, God created the milk from him, without it being attributed to the man in any way. Therefore, the man had no right to the milk, but rather the milk was hers. This cannot be taken from analogy to the water and the saying of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace:

What is forbidden by breastfeeding is what is forbidden by lineage. It requires prohibition by breastfeeding, and the reason for the attribution of breastfeeding to the man does not appear as the reason for the attribution of water to him and breastfeeding from her. The best basis for this is the hadith of al-Zuhri and Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her:

That Aflah, the brother of Al-Qais, came to ask permission to see her, and he was her foster uncle, after the veil was revealed. She said: "I refused to give him permission. When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came, she told him, and he said: 'Let him come in to you, for he is your uncle, may your right hand be covered with dust.'" Abu Al-Qais was the husband of the woman who breastfed Aisha, may God be pleased with her. This is also one report. It is possible that Al-Fah was with Abu Bakr, and that is why he said: Let him come in to them, for he is your uncle. In short, the statement about it is problematic, and knowledge is with God, but it is acted upon, and caution in prohibiting it is better, although the statement of God Almighty: And lawful for you are all beyond that (An-Nisa': 24) strengthens the statement of the opponent.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Eighth - The Almighty said: And your sisters by breastfeeding which is the sister from the father and mother, and she is the one who was breastfed by your mother with the milk of your father, whether she breastfed her with you or she gave birth before or after you, and the sister from the father without the mother, and she is the one who was breastfed by your father's wife, and the sister from the mother without the father, and she is the one who was breastfed by your mother with the milk of another man, then he mentioned the prohibition by marriage, so the Almighty said: And the mothers of your women and the marriage is four: the mother of the woman and her daughter, the wife of the father, and the wife of the son, so the mother of the woman is forbidden by the mere valid marriage contract with her daughter, as mentioned above.

Ninth: The Almighty's saying: And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have consummated the marriage. This is independent in itself, and His saying: from your women to whom you have consummated the marriage does not refer to the first group, but rather it refers to the stepdaughters, as it is the closest mentioned, as mentioned previously. The stepdaughter is the daughter of a man's wife from another man. She was called that because he raises her in a room, so she is raised by him in the sense of a passive participle. The jurists agreed that the stepdaughter is forbidden to her mother's husband if he consummates the marriage with the mother, even if the stepdaughter is not in his guardianship. Some of the earlier scholars and the people of the apparent meaning deviated and said: The stepdaughter is not forbidden to him unless she is in the guardianship of the one who is married to her mother. If she is in another country and he leaves the mother after consummation, then he may marry her. They used the verse as evidence and said: God Almighty forbade the stepdaughter on two conditions: One of them is that she is in the guardianship of the one who is married to her mother. The second is consummation with the mother. If one of the two conditions is not present, then the prohibition does not exist. They used as evidence the saying of peace be upon him:

If my stepdaughter was not in my custody, it would not be permissible for me, for she is my foster brother's daughter." So the condition of custody was mentioned, and they narrated from Ali ibn Abi Talib that this was permissible. Ibn al-Mundhir and al-Tahawi said: As for the hadith from Ali, it is not proven because the narration of Ibrahim ibn Ubayd from Malik ibn Aws from Alij, and this Ibrahim is not known. Most of the people of knowledge have received it with rejection and disagreement. Abu Ubayd said: And he rejects it. His saying:

Do not offer me your daughters or your sisters." So he was general and did not say: those in my guardianship, but he made them equal in prohibition. Al-Tahawi said: Adding them to the guardianship is only according to what is most likely to happen to stepdaughters, not that they are not prohibited if it is not like that.

Tenth - The Almighty said: But if you have not consummated the marriage with them meaning the mothers, there is no blame upon you meaning in marrying their daughters if you divorce them or they die. The scholars agreed that if a man marries a woman and then divorces her or she dies before consummating the marriage with her, it is permissible for him to marry her daughter. They differed on the meaning of consummating the marriage with the mothers by which stepdaughters are forbidden. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Consummation is sexual intercourse, and this is the opinion of Tawus, Amr ibn Dinar, and others. Malik, al-Thawri, Abu Hanifa, al-Awza'i, and al-Layth agreed that if he touches her with lust, her mother and daughter are forbidden to him, and she is forbidden to the father and son, and this is one of the two opinions of al-Shafi'i. They differed about looking. Malik said: If he looks at her hair or her chest or any of her beauty for pleasure, her mother and daughter are forbidden to him. The Kufians said: If he looks at her vagina for lust, it is like touching for lust. Al-Thawri said: It is forbidden if he looks at her vagina intentionally or touches her, and he did not mention lust. Ibn Abi Layla said: She is not forbidden by looking until he touches, and this is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i. The evidence that prohibition occurs by looking is that it involves a type of enjoyment, so it is similar to marriage, since rulings are related to meanings, not words. It may be possible to say that it is a type of meeting through enjoyment, since looking is meeting and encounter, and in it there is enjoyment between lovers. Poets have exaggerated in this and said:

Doesn't the night bring Umm Amr and us together?
That is how we will be judged.

Yes, and you see the crescent as I see it, and the day rises above it as it rises above me.

So how about looking, sitting, talking and enjoying?

Eleventh - The Almighty said: And the wives of your sons. The word hala'il is the plural of halila, which means wife. She was called halila because she is permissible with the husband wherever he is, so she is an active participle with him, meaning an active participle. Al-Zajaj and some people said that it is from the word halal, so she is halila, meaning permissible. It was said: because each one of them untie the garment of the other.

Twelfth - The scholars agreed on the prohibition of what fathers have contracted with their sons and what sons have contracted with their fathers, whether there was intercourse with the contract or not, due to the Almighty's saying: And do not marry those women whom your fathers have married and His saying: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins If one of them marries an invalid marriage, it is forbidden for the other to contract with her as it is forbidden with a valid marriage, because invalid marriage is either: it is agreed upon as invalid or disputed. If it is agreed upon as invalid, it does not require a ruling and its existence is like its absence. If it is disputed, then what is related to it from the prohibition is related to the valid marriage, because it is possible that it is a marriage, so it falls under the general wording, and if the prohibition and the permissibility conflict in the vagina, then investigation is preferred, and God knows best. Ibn al-Mundhir said: All the scholars of the countries who are known to have heard him agree that if a man has intercourse with a woman through an invalid marriage, she is forbidden to his father and son and to his grandfathers and his children. The scholars agreed, and this is the issue:

Thirteenth - The contract of purchase of a female slave makes her forbidden to his father and son. So if a man buys a female slave and touches or kisses her, she becomes forbidden to his father and son. I do not know of any disagreement about this, so it is obligatory to make it forbidden in submission to them. Since they disagreed about making it forbidden by looking without touching, this was not permissible due to their disagreement. Ibn al-Mundhir said: There is no authentic report from any of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that contradicts what we have said. Yaqub and Muhammad said: If a man looks at a woman's vagina with lust, she becomes forbidden to his father and son, and her mother and daughter are forbidden to him. Malik said: If he has intercourse with the female slave or sits with her in a position for that purpose, even if he does not penetrate her, or kisses her, or touches her or touches her with pleasure, she is not permissible for his son. Al-Shafi'i said: It is only forbidden by touching, and she is not forbidden by looking without touching, and this is the opinion of al-Awza'i.

Fourteenth - They differed about whether intercourse by fornication is forbidden or not. Most of the scholars said: If a man has intercourse with a woman by fornication, it is not forbidden for him to marry her because of that. Likewise, his wife is not forbidden to him if he commits fornication with her mother or her daughter. It is sufficient for him that the punishment is carried out on him, then he enters his wife. And whoever commits fornication with a woman and then wants to marry her mother or her daughter, she is not forbidden to him because of that. A group said: She is forbidden to him. This statement was narrated from Imran bin Husayn, and it was said by Al-Sha'bi, Ata', Al-Hasan, Sufyan Al-Thawri, Ahmad, Ishaq, and the people of opinion. It was narrated from Malik that fornication forbids the mother and daughter and that it is like what is permissible, and this is the statement of the people of Iraq. The correct view of Malik and the people of Hijaz is that fornication has no ruling because God Almighty said: And the mothers of your women, and the one with whom he committed fornication is not one of his mothers, nor is her daughter one of his stepdaughters. This is the view of al-Shafi'i and Abu Thawr, because when the dowry in fornication, the obligation of the waiting period, inheritance, the attribution of the child, and the obligation of the prescribed punishment were lifted, it was lifted that he should be ruled according to the ruling of permissible marriage. Al-Darqutni narrated from the hadith of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man who committed adultery with a woman and wanted to marry her or her daughter. He said: "The forbidden does not make the permissible forbidden. Only what is forbidden by marriage is forbidden." And the evidence for the other opinion is the Prophet's, may God bless him and grant him peace, report on the authority of Jurayj and his saying:

Boy, who is your father? He said: So-and-so the shepherd. This indicates that adultery is forbidden just as lawful intercourse is forbidden. The mother of the adulterer and her daughters are not permissible for the fathers of the adulterer or his sons. This is the narration of Ibn al-Qasim in al-Mudawwana. It is also used as evidence that the woman created from the semen of the adulterer is not permissible for the adulterer through her mother, which is the well-known fact. He, peace be upon him, said:

God does not look at a man who looks at the vagina of a woman and her daughter, and he does not distinguish between what is permissible and what is forbidden. He, peace be upon him, said:

God does not look at the one who uncovers a woman and her daughter. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: This is why we said that kissing and all forms of enjoyment spread the prohibition. Abdul Malik Al-Majshun said that it is permissible, and this is correct, based on the Almighty's saying: And it is He who created from water a human being and made him [a relative of] lineage and marriage. (al-Furqan 25:54) meaning by valid marriage, as will be explained in Al-Furqan. The basis for relying on the hadith on these two issues is that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, narrated on the authority of Jurayj that he attributed the son of fornication to the fornicator, and God confirmed his attribution by breaking the custom of the boy uttering testimony for him, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed us of this on the authority of Jurayj in the context of praising him and showing his honor. So that attribution was correct by the confirmation of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and by the information of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about that, so the sonship and its rulings were established.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

If it is said: Accordingly, the rules of sonship and fatherhood must apply, including inheritance, guardianship, and other things. Muslims have agreed that there is no inheritance between them, so why is that relationship not valid?

The answer is that this is the reason for what we mentioned, and whatever rulings were agreed upon by consensus, he excluded and the rest remains based on the original evidence, and God knows best.

Fifteenth - The scholars also differed on this issue regarding the issue of sodomy. Malik, Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa and their companions said that marriage is not forbidden due to sodomy. Al-Thawri said: If he plays with a boy, his mother becomes forbidden to him. This is the opinion of Ahmad ibn Hanbal. He said: If he sodomizes his wife's son, father or brother, his wife becomes forbidden to him. Al-Awza'i said: If he sodomizes a boy and a daughter is born to the fornicator, it is not permissible for the fornicator to marry her because she is the daughter of the one he has consummated the marriage with. This is the opinion of Ahmad ibn Hanbal.

Sixteenth - The Almighty's saying: Those from your loins is a specification to exclude from it everyone whom the Arabs adopted who was not from their loins. And when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, married the wife of Zayd ibn Haritha, the polytheists said: He married the wife of his son, and peace be upon him, he had adopted him, as will be explained in Al-Ahzaab. And the wife of the son through breastfeeding was forbidden - even if he was not from the child - by consensus based on his saying, peace be upon him:

Breastfeeding forbids what is forbidden by lineage.

Seventeenth - The Almighty's saying: And that you marry two sisters together is in the nominative case in apposition to your mothers are forbidden to you and the two sisters is a word that everyone knows by marriage and by right hand possession, and the nation agreed on prohibiting marrying them together in one marriage contract because of this verse and his saying, peace be upon him:

Do not offer me your daughters or sisters." They differed regarding the two sisters who are owned by the right hand, so all scholars went to the view that it is not permissible to combine them in the ownership of intercourse, although it is permissible to combine in ownership by consensus, and likewise the woman and her daughter in one deal. They differed regarding the marriage contract on the sister of the slave girl who he had intercourse with, so Al-Awza'i said: If he had intercourse with his slave girl who is owned by the right hand, it is not permissible for him to marry her sister, and Al-Shafi'i said: The right hand does not prevent the marriage of the sister. Abu Omar said: Whoever made the marriage contract like a purchase permitted it, and whoever made it like intercourse did not permit it, and they agreed that it is not permissible to contract on the sister of the wife, according to the saying of God Almighty: And that you combine two sisters meaning the two wives by the marriage contract, so stand on what they agreed upon and what they differed upon, and the truth will become clear to you, God willing, and God knows best.

Eighteenth - The people of the apparent meaning deviated and said: It is permissible to combine two sisters who are owned by the right hand in intercourse, just as it is permissible to combine them in ownership. They provided evidence for what was narrated from Uthman regarding the two sisters who are owned by the right hand. A verse forbade them and a verse made them void. It was mentioned by Abd al-Razzaq. Muammar told us on the authority of al-Zuhri on the authority of Qubaysah ibn Dhu'ayb that Uthman ibn Affan was asked about the two sisters who are owned by the right hand. He said: I neither command you nor forbid you. A verse made them lawful and a verse made them void. So the questioner went out and met a man from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Muammar said: I think he said Ali. He said: What did you ask Uthman about? So he told him what he had asked him and what he had given him a fatwa about, so he said to him: But I forbid you, and if I had a way against you and you did it, I would have made you an example. Al-Tahawi and Al-Darqutni mentioned on the authority of Ali and Ibn Abbas something similar to what Uthman said, and the verse that made them permissible is the saying of God Almighty: And lawful for you are all beyond that. None of the imams of fatwa paid attention to this statement, because they understood from the interpretation of the Book of God the opposite, and it is not permissible for them to distort the interpretation. Among those who said that from the Companions were: Omar, Ali, Ibn Masoud, Uthman, Ibn Abbas, Ammar, Ibn Omar, Aisha, and Ibn Al-Zubayr. These are the people of knowledge of the Book of God, so whoever disagrees with them is being arbitrary in his interpretation. Ibn al-Mundhir mentioned that Ishaq ibn Rahawayh forbade combining them through intercourse, and that the majority of scholars disliked that and included Malik among those who disliked it. There is no disagreement about the permissibility of combining them through ownership, and the same applies to a mother and her daughter. Ibn Atiyyah said: It comes from the statement of Ishaq that the one who combines them through intercourse should be stoned. The dislike can be inferred from the statement of Malik: If he has intercourse with one of them and then has intercourse with the other, he should stop until he forbids one of them, so no punishment is required of him. Abu Omar said: As for the statement of Ali that he made it a deterrent and did not say that he should punish him with the punishment of an adulterer, this is because whoever interprets a verse or a Sunnah and does not consider himself to have intercourse with something forbidden is not an adulterer by consensus, even if he is mistaken, unless he claims something about it that his ignorance cannot be excused. The statement of some of the Salaf about combining two sisters through right hand ownership: He took them into his possession by a verse and forbade them by a verse is known and preserved. How should the punishment of an adulterer be punished for doing something that contains such strong doubt? And God is the Grantor of success.

Nineteenth - The scholars differed if he had intercourse with one woman and then wanted to have intercourse with the other. Ali, Ibn Umar, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Al-Awza'i, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Ishaq said: He is not permitted to have intercourse with the second woman until he makes the vagina of the other forbidden by removing her from his possession by selling or freeing her, or by marrying her. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: There is a second opinion of Qatada, which is that if he had intercourse with one woman and wanted to have intercourse with the other, he should intend to make the first forbidden to himself and not approach her, then he should refrain from them until he has purified the first forbidden woman, then he should have intercourse with the second. And in it is the saying of a third - which is if he has two sisters, he should not approach one of them. This is what Al-Hakam and Hammad said, and the meaning of that was narrated from Al-Nakha'i and the school of Malik: If a man has two sisters by ownership, he may have intercourse with whichever of them he wants, and refraining from the other is entrusted to his trustworthiness. If he wants to have intercourse with the other, he must forbid himself the vagina of the first by an act he does of removing ownership: either by marriage, sale, emancipation for a period, writing, or long-term service. If he has intercourse with one of them and then jumps on the other without forbidding the first, he should refrain from them, and it is not permissible for him to approach one of them until he forbids the other, and he did not entrust that to his trustworthiness, because he is accused of someone who has had intercourse and was not accused before since he had only had intercourse with one. The school of Kufians in this matter is Al-Thawri and Abu Hanifa and his companions, that if he has intercourse with one of his two slave girls, he should not have intercourse with the other. If he sells the first or marries her and then she returns to him, he should refrain from the other and he may have intercourse with her as long as her sister is in the waiting period from divorce or death. As for after the expiration of the waiting period, not until He owns the vagina of the one who has intercourse with someone else, and the meaning of that was narrated from Ali, may God be pleased with him. They said: Because the ownership that prevented intercourse with the female slave at the beginning is present, so there is no difference between her returning to him and her remaining in his possession. The statement of Malik is good, because it is a valid prohibition in the present case and it is not necessary to take into account the money, and it is enough for him if her vagina is forbidden to him by sale or marriage that she is forbidden to him in the present case. They did not differ about emancipation because he does not dispose of it in any case. As for the woman who has been freed by a contract, she may be unable to do so and she returns to his possession. If a man has a female slave whom he has intercourse with, then he marries a sister, then in the school of thought there are three opinions about the third marriage - in Al-Mudawwana it is said that he should stop them both if the marriage contract is concluded until one of them is forbidden, with dislike for this marriage because it is a contract in a place where intercourse is not permissible. This indicates that the right hand ownership does not prevent marriage, as mentioned previously from Al-Shafi'i. And in the same chapter there is another opinion: that the marriage is not concluded, and this is the meaning of the statement of Al-Awza'i. Ashhab said in the Book of Istibra': The marriage contract for one woman is a prohibition of the vagina of the female slave.

Al-Muwaffiyah twentieth - The scholars agreed that if a man divorces his wife with a divorce in which he has the right to take her back, he does not have the right to marry her sister or four others until the waiting period of the divorced woman ends. They differed if he divorces her with a divorce in which he does not have the right to take her back. A group said: He does not have the right to marry her sister or a fourth until the waiting period of the one he divorced ends. It was narrated from Ali and Zaid bin Thabit, and it is the school of thought of Mujahid, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Al-Nakha'i, Sufyan Al-Thawri, Ahmad bin Hanbal and the people of opinion. A group said: He has the right to marry her sister and four others. It was narrated from Ata, and it is the more authentic of the two narrations from him. It was also narrated from Zaid bin Thabit, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Hasan, Al-Qasim, Urwah bin Al-Zubayr, Ibn Abi Laila, Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr and Abu Ubaid said the same. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: I do not think it is anything but the statement of Malik, and we say the same.

Twenty-one - The Almighty's saying: Except what has already occurred may mean the same as His saying Except what has already occurred in His saying: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. It may also mean an additional meaning, which is the permissibility of what has already occurred, and that if the combination occurred in the pre-Islamic era, the marriage was valid, and if in Islam the choice was made between the two sisters according to what Malik and al-Shafi'i said, without conducting the contracts of the infidels according to the requirements of Islam and the requirements of the Sharia, and whether he concluded a single contract with them in which he combined them or combined them in two contracts, and Abu Hanifa invalidates their marriage if he combined them in one contract. Hisham bin Abdullah narrated on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Hasan that he said: The people of the Age of Ignorance knew all of these forbidden things that were mentioned in this verse except for two: one of them is marrying the father's wife, and the second is marrying two sisters at the same time. Don't you see that he said: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred and And do not marry two sisters at the same time, except what has already occurred and he did not mention in the rest of the forbidden things except what has already occurred, and God knows best.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse is the verse of the prohibition of kinship and what follows it from breastfeeding and kinship, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us on the authority of Sufyan bin Habib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Seven kinship and seven kinship are prohibited to you, and he recited Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters the verse, and Abu Saeed bin Yahya bin Saeed told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Raja' on the authority of Umair, the client of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Seven kinship and seven kinship are prohibited, then he recited Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, and your sister's daughters so they are kinship. The majority of scholars have proven the prohibition of the woman created from the sperm of the adulterer to him by the generality of the Almighty's saying: and your daughters because she is a daughter, so she is included in the generality as is The doctrine of Abu Hanifa, Malik and Ahmad ibn Hanbal. It has been reported from al-Shafi'i that she is permissible because she is not a legitimate daughter. Just as she is not included in the words of God Almighty: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," she does not inherit by consensus, so too she is not included in this verse, and God knows best. And God Almighty's words: And your mothers who breastfed you and your foster sisters, meaning just as your mother who gave birth to you is forbidden to you, so is your mother who breastfed you. For this reason, it is proven in the two Sahih from the hadith of Malik ibn Anas from Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr ibn Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Hazm, from Amra bint Abd al-Rahman, from Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Breastfeeding forbids what birth forbids, and in a wording of Muslim: Breastfeeding forbids what lineage forbids, and some jurists said: Everything that is forbidden by lineage is forbidden by breastfeeding except in four cases. Some of them said: Six cases are mentioned in the books of branches and investigation that nothing is excluded from that, because there are some of them by lineage. Some of them are only forbidden due to marriage, so nothing is rejected in the hadith at all, praise be to God, and He is trustworthy. Then the imams differed regarding the number of forbidden breastfeedings. Some of them went to the view that mere breastfeeding is forbidden due to the generality of this verse, and this is the view of Malik, and it is narrated from Ibn Umar, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Urwah bin Al-Zubayr, and Al-Zuhri went to it. Others said: Less than three breastfeedings are not forbidden, because of what was proven in Saheeh Muslim on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Neither one suckling nor two sucklings are forbidden. Qatada said, on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Harith, on the authority of Umm Al-Fadl, she said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Neither one suckling nor two sucklings are forbidden, nor one suckling nor two sucklings. In another wording: Neither one licking nor two lickings are forbidden. Narrated by Muslim. Among those who went to this view are: Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal, Ishaq bin Rahawayh, Abu Ubaid, and Abu Thawr, and it is Narrated on the authority of Ali, Aisha, Umm al-Fadl, Ibn al-Zubayr, Sulayman ibn Yasar, and Sa'id ibn Jubayr, may God have mercy on them. Others said: Less than five breastfeedings do not make a marriage forbidden, as it was proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr, on the authority of 'Ummrah, on the authority of 'Aishah, may God be pleased with her, who said: Among what was revealed in the Qur'an was ten known breastfeedings make a marriage forbidden, then it was abrogated by five known breastfeedings, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, died while they were among what was recited in the Qur'an. 'Abd al-Razzaq narrated on the authority of Mu'ammara, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of 'Urwah, on the authority of 'Aishah, something similar to that. In the hadith of Sahlah bint Suhayl, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered her to breastfeed Salim, the freed slave of Abu Hudhaifah, five times, and 'Aishah used to order whoever wanted to enter upon her to breastfeed five times, and this is what al-Shafi'i and his companions said. Then it should be known that breastfeeding must be at a young age, less than two years, according to the majority opinion. And as we have already discussed this issue in Surat al-Baqarah, when He said: They shall breastfeed their children for two complete years, for whoever desires to complete the breastfeeding. Then they differed as to whether the milk of stallions is forbidden, as is the opinion of the majority of the four imams and others, or is breastfeeding only specific to the mother, and does not extend to the father's side, as is the opinion of some of the predecessors? There are two opinions, the clarification of all of this is in the book of the great rulings. And his saying, "And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have gone in. But if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you." As for the mother of the woman, she becomes forbidden as soon as the contract is made with her daughter, whether he has gone in to her or not. As for the stepdaughter, who is the daughter of the woman, she is not forbidden as soon as the contract is made with her mother until he has gone in. If he divorces the mother before going in to her, it is permissible for him to marry her daughter. For this reason, he said, "And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have gone in. But if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you" in marrying them. This is specific to the stepdaughters alone. Some of them understood the pronoun to refer to the mothers and stepdaughters, so he said: Neither the mother nor the daughter becomes forbidden as soon as the contract is made with the other until he has gone in to her, based on his saying, But if he has not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us, Ibn Abi Uday and Abd al-A'la told us on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Khalas ibn Amr, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, regarding a man who married a woman and divorced her before consummating the marriage with her. Can he marry her mother? He said: She is like a stepdaughter. Ibn Bashir told us, Yahya ibn Sa'id told us on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Zayd ibn Thabit, who said: If a man divorces his wife before consummating the marriage with her, there is no harm in marrying her mother. In a narration on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Zayd ibn Thabit, he used to say: If she dies with him and he takes her inheritance, he dislikes leaving a legacy to her mother. So if he divorces her before consummating the marriage with her, then if he wishes, he may do so. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ishaq told us on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Abu Bakr ibn Hafs told me on the authority of Muslim ibn Uwaimir al-Ajda', that Bakr ibn Kinanah told him that his father married him to a woman in Ta'if. He said: So he did not I had intercourse with her until my uncle died, leaving her mother behind. Her mother had a lot of money. My father said: Would you like her mother? I asked Ibn Abbas and told him the story. He said: Marry her mother. I asked Ibn Umar, and he said: Do not marry her. I told my father what they had said. He wrote to Muawiyah and told him what they had said. Muawiyah wrote: I do not make permissible what God has forbidden, nor do I forbid what God has made permissible. You and I have many other women. But he did not forbid me or give me permission. My father turned away from her mother and did not marry her. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Samak ibn al-Fadl, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: The stepdaughter and the mother are equal, there is no problem with her if he has not consummated the marriage with the woman. In its chain of transmission is an unknown man who was not named. Ibn Jurayj said: Ikrimah ibn Khalid told me that Mujahid said to him: And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship, meaning by them both consummation. This statement, as you see, was narrated on the authority of Ali, Zayd ibn Thabit, and Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubair and Ibn Abbas, and Muawiyah hesitated about it. Abu al-Hasan Ahmad bin Muhammad bin al-Sabuni from the Shafi'i went to him in what al-Rafi'i transmitted from al-Abbadi. It was narrated from Ibn Mas'ud something similar, then he went back on it. Al-Tabarani said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim al-Dabari told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us from al-Thawri, from Abu Farwa, from Abu Amr al-Shaibani, from Ibn Mas'ud: That a man from Banu Kamkh from Fazara married a woman and saw her mother and she pleased him. He asked Ibn Mas'ud, who ordered him to separate from her, then he married her mother, so he married her and she bore him children, then Ibn Mas'ud came to Medina and was asked about that, and he was informed that she was not permissible for him, so when he returned to Kufa he said to the man: She is forbidden to you, so he separated from her. The majority of scholars are of the opinion that a stepdaughter is not forbidden by the marriage contract with the mother, unlike the mother, who is forbidden by the mere contract. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ja'far bin Muhammad bin Harun bin Azra told us, Abd al-Wahhab told us from Saeed, from Qatada, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he used to say: If a man divorces a woman before consummating the marriage with her or she dies, her mother is not permissible for him. It was narrated that he said: She is ambiguous, so he disliked her. Then he said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud, Imran bin Husayn, Masruq, Tawus, Ikrimah, Ata, Al-Hasan, Makhul, Ibn Sirin, Qatadah, and Al-Zuhri. This is the doctrine of the four imams and the seven jurists, and the majority of jurists, both ancient and modern, and praise and thanks be to God. Ibn Jarir said: The correct view is that of those who said: The mother is among the ambiguous, because God did not stipulate consummation with them as He stipulated with the mothers of stepdaughters, although this is also a consensus of the proof that it is not permissible to contradict what it came with and agreed upon. This was also narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, a report, but there is a problem with its chain of transmission, which is what Al-Muthanna told me, Habban bin Musa told us, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, Al-Muthanna bin Al-Sabah told us on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If a man marries a woman, it is not permissible for him to marry her mother, whether he has consummated the marriage with the daughter or not. If he marries the mother but does not consummate the marriage with her and then divorces her, then if he wishes he may marry the daughter." Then he said: This report, even if there is something in its chain of transmission, the consensus of the evidence for the validity of the statement about it makes it unnecessary to cite other evidence for its validity. As for the statement of God Almighty: And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship, the majority are of the opinion that the stepdaughter is forbidden whether she is in the guardianship of the man or not. They said: This address was made in a general manner and has no meaning, like the statement of God Almighty: And do not compel your girls to prostitution if they desire chastity. In the two Sahihs, it is narrated that Umm Habibah said: O Messenger of God, marry my sister, the daughter of Abu Sufyan, and in a wording of Muslim, 'Azza bint Abu Sufyan. He said: Do you like that? She said: Yes, I am not your exclusive wife, and I like someone who shares in my sister's goodness. He said: Then that is not permissible for me. She said: We have been told that you want to marry the daughter of Abu Sufyan. Salamah said: The daughter of Umm Salamah? She said: Yes. He said: "If she were not my stepdaughter in my care, she would not be permissible for me. She is the daughter of my brother through breastfeeding. Thuwaybah breastfed me and Abu Salamah, so do not offer me your daughters or sisters." And in a narration by al-Bukhari: If I had not married Umm Salamah, she would not have been permissible for me. So he made the criterion for prohibition the mere fact that he married Umm Salamah, and he ruled that it was prohibited for that reason. This is the doctrine of the four imams, the seven jurists, and the majority of the successors and predecessors. It has been said: A stepdaughter is not prohibited unless she is in the care of a man. If she is not like that, then she is not prohibited. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Ibrahim ibn Musa told us, Hisham told us - meaning Ibn Yusuf - on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Ibrahim ibn Ubayd ibn Rafa'ah told me, Malik ibn Aws ibn al-Hadathan told me: I had a wife who died, and she had given birth to a child for me, so I was upset with her. Ali ibn Abi Talib met me and said: What is the matter with you? I said: The woman died. Ali said: She has a daughter. ? I said: Yes, and she is in Taif. He said: Was she in your custody? I said: No, she is in Taif. He said: Then marry her. I said: Where is the statement of God, And your stepdaughters who are in your laps? He said: She was not in your lap, but rather if she is in your lap, this is a strong chain of transmission that goes back to Ali ibn Abi Talib according to the conditions of Muslim, and it is a very strange statement, and this is what Dawud ibn Ali al-Zahiri and his companions went to. Abu al-Qasim al-Rafi'i narrated it from Malik, may God have mercy on him, and Ibn Hazm chose it, and our Sheikh, the hafiz Abu Abdullah al-Dhahabi, told me that he presented this to Sheikh Imam Taqi al-Din Ibn Taymiyyah, may God have mercy on him, and he found it difficult and hesitated about it, and God knows best. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ali ibn Abdul Aziz told us, al-Athram told us, from Abu Ubaidah, his statement, who are in your laps, he said: In your houses, and as for the stepdaughter who is in the possession of the right hand, Imam Malik ibn Anas said, from Ibn Shihab:

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Umar ibn al-Khattab was asked about a woman and her daughter who is in the possession of the right hand, is one of them having intercourse with the other? Umar said: I do not like it. To tell them both means that I have intercourse with them both through my right hand, and this is disconnected. Sanid bin Dawud said in his interpretation: Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Tariq bin Abdul Rahman, on the authority of Qais, who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: Can a man have intercourse with a woman and her daughter who are his slaves? He said: One verse made them permissible and another forbade them, and I would not do it. Sheikh Abu Omar bin Abdul Barr, may God have mercy on him, said: There is no disagreement among the scholars that it is not permissible for anyone to have intercourse with a woman and her daughter from whom the right hand belongs, because God has forbidden that in marriage. He said: And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women. And the right hand belongs to them as a consequence of marriage, except for what was narrated from Omar and Ibn Abbas, and none of the imams of fatwa or those who followed them agreed on that. Hisham narrated from Qatada: The stepdaughter and the daughter of her daughter are not suitable even if she is lower with many bellies, and Qatada said the same from Abu Al-Aaliyah, and the meaning of his saying those with whom you have consummated the marriage is that you have married them, as Ibn Abbas and more than one said. Ibn Jurayj said from Ata': It is that she is presented to him so he uncovers and searches and sits between her legs. I said: What do you think if he does that in her family's house? He said: It is the same, and it is sufficient for him that her daughter has been forbidden to him. Ibn Jarir said: And there is consensus Everyone agrees that a man's seclusion with a woman does not make her daughter forbidden to him if he divorces her before touching her or looking at her vagina with lust, which indicates that the meaning of that is reaching her through intercourse.

And the Almighty's saying: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins meaning, the wives of your sons whom you gave birth to from your loins are forbidden to you, thus precluding the adopted sons whom they used to adopt in the pre-Islamic era. As the Almighty said: And when Zaid had no longer any need for her, We married her to you in order that there should be no blame upon the believers concerning the wives of their adopted sons Al-An'am 2:14. Ibn Jurayj said: I asked Ata' about His saying: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins. He said: We were told - and God knows best - that when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, married Zayd's wife, the polytheists in Mecca spoke about that, so God Almighty revealed: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, and And He has not made your adopted sons your sons, and Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, was revealed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Muhammad ibn Abi Bakr al-Muqaddami told us, al-Jarh ibn al-Harith told us on the authority of al-Ash'ath, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muhammad: that these verses are vague: And the wives of your sons, and And the mothers of your women, then he said: It was narrated on the authority of Tawus, Ibrahim, al-Zuhri, and Makhul, something similar to that. I said The meaning of ambiguous is general in the case of the one who has been consummated with and the one who has not been consummated with, so she is forbidden as soon as the contract is made with her, and this is agreed upon. If it is said: So how is the wife of his son forbidden from breastfeeding as is the opinion of the majority, and some people narrate it as a consensus and not from his lineage, then the answer is from his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace: What is forbidden from breastfeeding is forbidden as is forbidden from lineage and the saying of God the Almighty: And that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred verse. That is, it is forbidden for you to marry two sisters together, and likewise in the case of possession by the right hand, except for what you did in your ignorance, for we have pardoned and forgiven it. This indicates that there is no duality in what will come and no exception in what has occurred, as He said: They will not taste death therein except the first death verse. This indicates that they will never taste death therein. The scholars from the Companions, the Followers, and the Imams, past and present, have agreed that it is forbidden to marry two sisters together, and whoever converts to Islam and has two sisters, it is better for him to keep one of them and divorce the other without fail. Imam Ahmad said: Musa ibn Dawud told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Abu Wahb al-Jishani, on the authority of al-Dahhak ibn Fayruz, on the authority of his father, who said: I converted to Islam and I had two sisters with me, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered me to divorce one of them. Then Imam Ahmad, al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, and Abu Dawud and al-Tirmidhi also narrated it on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, both on the authority of Abu Wahb al-Jishani. Al-Tirmidhi said: His name is Daylam ibn al-Hawsha', on the authority of al-Dahhak ibn Fayruz al-Daylami, on the authority of his father, on his authority. And in a wording of al-Tirmidhi. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Choose whichever of them you wish. Then al-Tirmidhi said: This is a hasan hadith. Ibn Majah also narrated it with another chain of transmission, saying: Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Abd al-Salam ibn Harb told us, on the authority of Ishaq ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Farwah, on the authority of Abu Wahb al-Jayshani, on the authority of Abu Khurash al-Ra'ini, who said: I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I had two sisters whom I had married during the pre-Islamic era. He said: When you return, divorce one of them. I said: It is possible that this Abu Khurash is al-Dahhak ibn Fayruz, and it is possible that it is someone else, so Abu Wahb narrated it on the authority of two people on the authority of Fayruz al-Daylami, and God knows best. Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Yahya bin Muhammad bin Yahya told us, Ahmad bin Yahya

Al-Khawlani told us, Haitham bin Kharijah told us, Yahya bin Ishaq told us on the authority of Ishaq bin Abdullah bin Abi Farwa, on the authority of Raziq bin Hakim, on the authority of Kathir bin Murrah, on the authority of Al-Daylami, who said: I said: O Messenger of God, I have two sisters. He said: Divorce whichever one you wish. The Daylami mentioned first is Al-Dahhak bin Fayruz Al-Daylami. Abu Zur'ah Al-Dimashqi said: He was a companion of Abdul-Malik bin Marwan. The second is Abu Fayruz Al-Daylami, may God be pleased with him, and he was among the princes in Yemen who were responsible for killing Al-Aswad Al-Ansi, the prophet, may God curse him. As for combining two sisters in one's possession, it is also forbidden due to the generality of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Musa ibn Ismail told us, Hammad ibn Salamah told us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abi Unbah or Utbah, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, that he was asked about a man who marries two sisters at the same time, and he disliked it, so he said to him - meaning the questioner: God the Almighty says: Except what your right hands possess. Ibn Mas'ud, may God be pleased with him, said to him: And your camel from what your right hand possesses. This is the well-known view from the majority, the four imams and others, although some of the early Muslims hesitated about it. Imam Malik said, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Qubaysah ibn Dhu'ayb: A man asked Uthman ibn Affan about two sisters whom the right hand possesses, can he marry them at the same time? Uthman said: One verse has made them permissible and another has forbidden them, and I would not do that. So he left him and met a man from the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and asked him about that, and he said: If I had any say in the matter and I found someone doing that, I would make him an example. Malik said: Ibn Shihab said: I think he was Ali ibn Abi Talib. He said: I was told something similar from Al-Zubayr ibn Al-Awwam. Ibn Abd Al-Barr Al-Namri may God have mercy on him said in the book Al-Istidhkar: Qubaysah ibn Dhu'ayb was given the nickname of Ali ibn Abi Talib because he was a companion of Abd Al-Malik ibn Marwan, and they found mentioning Ali ibn Abi Talib may God be pleased with him burdensome. Then Abu Omar said: Khalaf ibn Ahmad told me, reading to him: Khalaf ibn Mutraf told them: Ayoub ibn Sulayman, Saeed ibn Sulayman, and Muhammad ibn Umar ibn Lubabah told us: Abu Zayd Abd Al-Rahman ibn Ibrahim told us: Abu Abd Al-Rahman Al-Muqri told us on the authority of Musa ibn Ayoub Al-Ghaffiqi: My uncle Iyas ibn Amir told me: I asked Ali ibn Abi Talib and said: I have two sisters from those whom my right hand possesses, one of them was a concubine and she bore me children, then I desired the other, so what should I do? Ali may God be pleased with him said: You free the one you had intercourse with, then you have intercourse with the other. I said: Some people say: Rather, marry her, then have intercourse with the other. Ali said: What do you think if her husband divorces her or dies, does she not return to you? Because it is safer for you to free her. Then Ali took my hand and said to me: What is forbidden to you from what your right hand possesses is what is forbidden to you in the Book of God, the Almighty, of free women, except for a number, or he said: except for four, and what is forbidden to you from breastfeeding is what is forbidden to you in the Book of God of lineage. Then Abu Omar said: This hadith is about a journey. If a man from the farthest west or east to Mecca did not find anyone else, his journey would not be in vain. I said: It has been narrated from Ali similar to what was narrated from Uthman. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Muhammad bin Abbas told us, Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Mubarak Al-Mukhrami told us, Abdul Rahman bin Ghazwan told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ali bin Abi Talib said to me: A verse has forbidden them and a verse has permitted them - meaning the two sisters - Ibn Abbas said: What is forbidden to me is my kinship to them, but what is forbidden to me is not their kinship to one another, meaning the slave girls. And the pre-Islamic era used to forbid what they forbade except for the father's wife and combining two sisters. Then when Islam came, God revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred "And that you marry two sisters together, except what has already occurred" meaning in marriage. Then Abu Omar said: Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal narrated, Muhammad bin Salamah narrated to us, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, who said: What is forbidden of slave women is what is forbidden of free women, except for a number. And something similar was narrated from Ibn Masoud and Al-Sha'bi. Abu Omar said: A statement similar to what Uthman said was narrated from a group of the Salaf, including Ibn Abbas, but they differed upon them, and none of the jurists of the regions, the Hijaz, Iraq, or what is beyond them in the East, the Levant, or the West paid attention to it, except for those who deviated from their group by following the apparent meaning and denying analogy. And those who do that have abandoned what we have agreed upon, and the group of jurists agree that it is not permissible to marry two sisters by right hand possession in intercourse, just as it is not permissible in marriage. Muslims have agreed that the meaning of His statement, Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, to the end of the verse, is that marriage and right hand possession are the same for all of them. So it should be the same, by analogy and consideration, when combining two sisters, mothers of women, and stepdaughters. This is also the case with the majority of them, and they are the argument that is used as evidence by those who disagree with it and deviate from it. And the statement of God Almighty, And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, means that chaste foreign women, who are married, except those your right hands possess, means except those you possess through captivity, for it is permissible for you to have intercourse with them if you have purified them, for the verse was revealed regarding that. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, Sufyan al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, on the authority of Abu al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said: We captured women from the captives of Awtas, and they had husbands, so we disliked having intercourse with them while they had husbands, so we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this verse was revealed: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, so we made their private parts lawful for us. This is how al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Ahmad ibn Mani' on the authority of Hisham, and al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri and Shu'bah ibn al-Hajjaj, all three on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, and Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Ash'ath ibn Suray on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, and Muslim narrated it in his Sahih on the authority of Shu'bah on the authority of Qatadah, both of them on the authority of Abu al-Khalil Salih ibn Abi Maryam, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, and he mentioned it. This is how Abd al-Razzaq narrated it on the authority of Mu'mar, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri. It was narrated from another chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Alqamah Al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri. Imam Ahmad said: Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu Alqamah, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, that the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, captured female captives on the day of Awtas, who had husbands from the polytheists. It was as if some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, refrained and felt guilty for having sexual intercourse with them. He said: So this verse was revealed concerning that: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is how Muslim, Abu Dawud and Al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Saeed bin Abi Arubah. Muslim added: and Shu'bah. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Hammam bin Yahya, all three of them on the authority of Qatadah with a similar chain of transmission. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a hasan hadith, and I do not know that anyone mentioned Abu Alqamah in this hadith except what Hammam mentioned on the authority of Qatadah - this is what he said - and Saeed and Shu'bah followed him, and God knows best.

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Al-Tabarani narrated from the hadith of Ad-Dahhak from Ibn Abbas: It was revealed about the captives of Khaybar, and he mentioned a hadith similar to that of Abu Saeed. A group of the Salaf held that the sale of a female slave is a divorce for her from her husband, taking into account the generality of this verse. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, from Shu'bah, from Mughirah, from Ibrahim, that he was asked about a female slave who is sold and has a husband. He said: Abdullah used to say: Her sale is her divorce. And he would recite this verse: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. Sufyan narrated it likewise from Mansur, Mughirah, and Al-A'mash from Ibrahim from Ibn Mas'ud, who said: Her sale is her divorce, and it is disconnected. Sufyan Ath-Thawri narrated it from Khalid, from Abu Qilabah, from Ibn Abbas said: Her sale is her divorce. If a female slave is sold and has a husband, then her master has more right to her private parts. Saeed narrated it from Qatadah, who said: Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Jabir ibn Abdullah, and Ibn Abbas said: Her sale is her divorce. Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub ibn Ulayyah told me on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The divorce of a female slave is six: selling her is her divorce, freeing her is her divorce, giving her as a gift is her divorce, acquitting her is her divorce, and divorcing her husband is her divorce. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of al-Zuhri on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab regarding his statement, and chaste women, he said: They are those who have husbands, God has forbidden marriage to them except those whom your right hand possesses, so selling them is her divorce. Muammar said: Al-Hasan said the same, and Saeed ibn Abi Urubah narrated it in this way, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of al-Hasan regarding his statement, and chaste women, except those whom your right hands possess, he said: If she has a husband, then selling them is her divorce. Awf narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan: The sale of a female slave is her divorce, and his sale is her divorce. This is the saying of these predecessors, and the majority have disagreed with them in the past and present, and they saw that the sale of a female slave is not a divorce for her because the buyer is a representative of the seller, and the seller had removed this benefit from his ownership and sold her as if she had been taken away from him. They relied in that on the hadith of Barirah, which was narrated in the two Sahihs and others, for Aisha, the mother of the believers, bought her and completed her emancipation, and her marriage to her husband Mughith was not annulled, rather the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave her the choice between annulment and remaining, and she chose annulment and her story is well-known. If the sale of a female slave was her divorce as these people said, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would not have given her the choice. When he gave her the choice, it indicated the continuation of the marriage, and that what is meant by the verse is only the captives, and God knows best. It has been said: What is meant by his saying, and chaste women, means the chaste ones are forbidden to you until you have taken possession of their chastity through marriage, witnesses, dowries, and a guardian, one, two, three, or four. This was narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Abu al-Aaliyah, Tawus, and others. Umar and Ubaydah said, and chaste women, except for the four, are forbidden to you, except for those whom your right hands possess.

God the Almighty said: The Book of God upon you meaning this prohibition is a Book that God has written upon you, so adhere to His Book, do not go beyond its limits, and adhere to His law and what He has imposed. Ubaydah, Ata' and As-Suddi said regarding His statement: The Book of God upon you meaning the four. Ibrahim said: The Book of God upon you meaning what He has forbidden you. God the Almighty said: And lawful for you are all beyond that meaning whatever is forbidden to you except for what was mentioned, they are lawful for you, as was said by Ata' and others. Ubaydah and As-Suddi said: And lawful for you are all beyond that meaning less than the four, and this is far-fetched, and the correct statement is that of Ata' as mentioned above. Qatadah said: And what is beyond that is lawful for you meaning what your right hands possess. This is the verse that was used as evidence by those who argued for the permissibility of marrying two sisters at the same time, and the statement of those who said: One verse permitted them and another verse forbade them. And the statement of God Almighty: That you seek with your wealth, chaste, not fornicating meaning that you may obtain with your wealth from wives to four, or concubines as many as you wish in the lawful way. That is why He said: chaste, not fornicating. And the Almighty's saying: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. That is, just as you enjoy them, give them their dowries in return for that, as the Almighty said: And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another? And as the Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. And as He said: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them. The generality of this verse has been used as evidence for temporary marriage, and there is no doubt that it was permissible at the beginning of Islam, then abrogated after that. Al-Shafi'i and a group of scholars said that it was permitted then abrogated twice. Others said: More than that. Others said: It was only permitted once, then abrogated once, then abrogated, and was not permitted after that. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and a group of the Companions that it is permissible out of necessity. This is also a narration on the authority of Imam Ahmad. Ibn Abbas, Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, and al-Suddi used to recite: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their due compensation as an obligation. Mujahid said: It was revealed regarding temporary marriage, but the majority are of a different opinion. The main evidence is what is established in the two Sahihs on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Ali ibn Abi Talib, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade temporary marriage and the meat of domestic donkeys on the day of Khaybar. This hadith has established wordings that are in the Book of Rulings. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Sabra bin Ma'bad Al-Juhani, on the authority of his father, that he fought with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of the conquest of Mecca, and he said, "O people, I had given you permission to enjoy women, but God has forbidden that until the Day of Resurrection. So whoever has any of them, let him set her free, and do not take anything of what you have given them." And in a narration by Muslim: In the Farewell Pilgrimage, and he has words that are in the Book of Rulings, and the words of God Almighty: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation, from the interpretation of this verse on the marriage of pleasure for a specified period, he said: There is no blame upon you if the period expires if you agree upon an increase in it, and an increase for the reward, Al-Suddi said: If he wishes, he may satisfy her after the first obligation, meaning the reward that he gave her for his enjoyment of her before the expiration of the period between them, so he said: I will also enjoy you with such and such, so he increased before he cleansed her womb on the day the period expires, and this is the words of God Almighty: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Al-Suddi said: If the period has expired, he has no right to her, and she is innocent of him and she must purify what is in her womb, and there is no inheritance between them, so neither of them inherits from the other. Whoever says this first opinion makes its meaning like His statement, And give the women their dowries as a free gift Al-Masjid an-Nabawi, meaning if you set a dowry for her and she releases you from it or part of it, then there is no blame on you or her for that. Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Al-A'la told us, Al-Mu'tamir ibn Sulayman told us on the authority of his father, he said: Al-Hadrami claimed that men used to set a dowry, then perhaps one of them would encounter hardship, so he said: There is no blame upon you, O people, for what you agree upon after the obligation. Meaning, if she sets aside something from it for you, then it is permissible for you. Ibn Jarir chose this opinion. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And there is no blame upon you for what you agree upon after the obligation and the agreement is that he pays her dowry and then gives her the choice, meaning in staying or separating. God Almighty says: Indeed, God is All-Knowing, All-Wise. It is appropriate to mention these two descriptions after the legislation of these prohibitions.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 23- Your mothers are forbidden to you meaning: marrying them. God the Almighty has explained in this verse what is permissible and what is forbidden from women, so He has forbidden seven by bloodline, and six by breastfeeding and marriage. The continuous Sunnah has included the prohibition of marrying a woman and her paternal aunt, and a woman and her maternal aunt, and there has been consensus on this. So the seven forbidden women by bloodline are mothers, daughters, sisters, paternal aunts, maternal aunts, brother's daughters, and sister's daughters. And those forbidden by marriage and breastfeeding are: mothers by breastfeeding, sisters by breastfeeding, mothers of women, stepdaughters, wives of sons, and marrying two sisters. These are six, and the seventh is married women of fathers, and the eighth is marrying a woman and her paternal aunt. Al-Tahawi said: All of this is from the agreed upon decisive evidence, and it is not permissible to marry any of them by consensus except the mothers of women whose husbands have not consummated the marriage with them, for the majority of the early Muslims held that the mother is forbidden by the marriage contract with the daughter, and the daughter is not forbidden except by consummation with the mother. Some of the early Muslims said: The mother and the stepdaughter are the same, neither of them is forbidden except by consummation with the other. They said: The meaning of his statement and the mothers of your women is: those with whom you have consummated the marriage, and they claimed that the condition of consummation refers to both mothers and stepdaughters. It was narrated by Khalas from Ali ibn Abi Talib. It was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Jabir, Zaid ibn Thabit, Ibn al-Zubayr, and Mujahid. Al-Qurtubi said: The narration of Khalas from Ali does not constitute evidence, and his narration is not valid according to the people of hadith, and what is correct from him is like the statement of the group. The answer to their statement that the restriction of entry refers to mothers and stepdaughters is that this is not permissible in terms of syntax. The explanation is that if the two predicates differ in the factor, their description is not the same, so it is not permissible in terms of syntax. The explanation is that if the two predicates differ in the factor, their description is not the same, so it is not permissible according to grammarians to say: I passed by your women and I liked Zayd's elegant women, on the condition that elegant is a description of all of them. Likewise in the verse it is not permissible for those with whom you entered to be a description of all of them, because the two predicates are different. Ibn al-Mundhir said: The correct opinion is that of the majority regarding the inclusion of all the mothers of women in His statement: and the mothers of your women. What indicates what the majority have said is what was narrated by Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan, through two chains of transmission, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "If a man marries a woman, it is not permissible for him to marry her mother, whether he has consummated the marriage with her or not. If he marries the mother but does not consummate the marriage with her, then he divorces her, then if he wishes he may marry the daughter." Ibn Kathir said in his interpretation, providing evidence for the majority: A report has been narrated on this matter, but its chain of transmission is questionable. So he mentioned this hadith and then said: Although this report has what is in its chain of transmission, the consensus of the evidence on the validity of the statement about it makes it unnecessary to cite other evidence for its validity. He said in al-Kashshaf: They agreed that the prohibition of women's mothers is ambiguous, while the prohibition of stepdaughters is not, according to the apparent meaning of the words of God Almighty. The claim of consensus is refuted by the disagreement of those who came before. Know that the word mothers includes their mothers, grandmothers, the father's mother, and grandmothers, even if they are descendants, because they are all mothers to whoever is born to her, even if they are descendants. The term daughters includes the daughters of sons, even if they are descended. Sisters refer to a sister from both parents or one of them. An aunt is the name of every female who shares with your father or grandfather in both or one of their origins. An aunt may be from the mother's side, and she is the sister of the mother's father. An aunt is the name of every female who shares with your mother in both or one of her origins. An aunt may be from the father's side, and she is the sister of your father's mother. A brother's daughter is the name of every female who has a birth to your brother through direct contact and through direct contact, even if she is distant. The same applies to a sister's daughter. His statement, and your mothers who breastfed you, is absolute and restricted by what is mentioned in the Sunnah about breastfeeding being within two years, except in the story of the breastfeeding of Salim, the freed slave of Abu Hanifa. The apparent structure of the Qur'anic text establishes the ruling on breastfeeding by what is true of the term breastfeeding linguistically and legally, but it has been restricted to five breastfeedings in authentic hadiths. Research into establishing and verifying that takes a long time, and we have covered it in our books and established what is true in many of the discussions of breastfeeding. His saying, and your foster sisters A foster sister is the one who was breastfed by your mother with your father's milk, whether she breastfed her with you or with those before you or after you of brothers and sisters. A maternal sister is the one who was breastfed by your mother with the milk of another man. His saying, and your wives' mothers We have already discussed the consideration of consummation and its absence. The forbidden women by marriage are four: a woman's mother and her daughter, the father's wife, and the son's wife. His saying, and your stepdaughters A stepdaughter is the daughter of a man's wife from another man. She is called that because he raises her in his lap, so she is a verbal foster child in the sense of a passive participle. Al-Qurtubi said: The jurists agreed that a stepdaughter is forbidden to her mother's husband if he consummates the marriage with her mother, even if the stepdaughter is not in his lap. Some of the earlier scholars and the people of the apparent meaning differed and said: A stepdaughter is not forbidden unless she is in the lap of a married man. If she is in another country and he leaves his mother, then he may marry her. This has been narrated from Ali. Ibn al-Mundhir and al-Tahawi said: This has not been proven from Ali because its narrator is Ibrahim ibn Ubayd from Malik ibn Aws ibn al-Hadathan from Ali, and this Ibrahim is not known. Ibn Kathir said in his interpretation after narrating this from Ali: This is a strong chain of transmission proven to Ali ibn Abi Talib according to the conditions of Muslim. Al-Hujur is the plural of Hujr. The most correct view is that they are in the custody of their mothers under the protection of their husbands as is most common. It was said that what is meant by al-Hujur is the houses: i.e. in your houses, as al-Athram narrated from Abu Ubaydah. His statement, But if you have not consummated the marriage with them, there is no blame upon you means in marrying stepdaughters, and it is an explicit statement of what is indicated by the meaning of what precedes it.

Scholars differed about the meaning of consummation that makes stepdaughters forbidden: It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Consummation means sexual intercourse. This is the opinion of Tawus, Amr ibn Dinar and others. Malik, al-Thawri, Abu Hanifa, al-Awza'i, al-Layth and al-Zaydiyyah said: If the husband touches the mother out of lust, her daughter becomes forbidden to him. This is one of the two opinions of al-Shafi'i. Ibn Jarir al-Tabari said: And in the consensus of all is that a man's seclusion with his wife does not make her daughter forbidden to him if he divorces her before touching her and before looking at her vagina out of lust, which indicates that the meaning of that is reaching her through sexual intercourse. End quote. Al-Qurtubi narrated the consensus in this way, saying: The scholars agreed that if a man marries a woman and then divorces her or she dies before consummating the marriage with her, it is permissible for him to marry her daughter. They differed about looking. Malik said: If he looks at her hair or her chest or any of her beauty for pleasure, her mother and daughter become forbidden to him. The Kufians said: If he looks at her vagina with lust, it is like touching with lust. Al-Thawri said the same without mentioning lust. Ibn Abi Laila said: She is not forbidden by looking until he touches, and this is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i. What should be relied upon in such a disagreement is looking at the meaning of penetration in Islamic law or language. If it is specific to intercourse, then there is no reason to include anything else in it, such as touching, looking, or other things. If its meaning is broader than intercourse, such that it applies to anything in which some type of enjoyment occurs, then the basis for the prohibition is that. As for the stepdaughter who is owned by the right hand, it was narrated on the authority of Omar ibn Al-Khattab that he disliked that. Ibn Abbas said: One verse permitted them and another verse forbade them, and I would not do it. Ibn Abd al-Barr said: There is no disagreement among scholars that it is not permissible for a man to have intercourse with a woman and her daughter whom he owns, because God has forbidden that in marriage. He said: And the mothers of your wives and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from among your women. And according to them, the right hand is subordinate to marriage, except for what was narrated from Umar and Ibn Abbas. None of the imams of fatwas or those who followed them agree on that. End quote. His statement: And the wives of your sons. Al-Hala'il is the plural of halila, which means wife. She was named thus because she is permissible with the husband wherever he is, so it is fa'ila in the sense of fa'ila. Al-Zajaj and some people said that it is from the word halal, so it is halila in the sense of muhalilila. It was said: because each of them untie the garment of the other. The scholars have agreed on the prohibition of what fathers have contracted with their sons and what sons have contracted with their fathers, whether there is intercourse with the contract or not, based on the statement of God the Almighty: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married and His statement: And the wives of your sons.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

The jurists differed on whether the contract is invalid, does it require prohibition or not? As explained in the books of branches. Ibn al-Mundhir said: All scholars of the countries from whom knowledge is preserved agreed that if a man has intercourse with a woman through an invalid marriage, she is forbidden to his father, son, and grandfathers. They agreed that the contract of purchasing a female slave does not make her forbidden to his father and son. So if he buys a female slave and touches or kisses her, she is forbidden to his father and son. I do not know of any disagreement about it, so it is obligatory to prohibit it, in submission to them. Since they differed on her being forbidden by looking without touching, this was not permissible due to their disagreement. He said: There is no authentic report from any of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that contradicts what we have said. His saying: those from your loins is a description of the sons: that is, without those whom you have adopted from the children of others, as they used to do in the Age of Ignorance. From this is the saying of the Most High: "And when Zaid had no longer any need for her, We married her to you in order that there should be no blame upon the believers concerning the wives of their adopted sons when they have no longer any need for them." From this is the saying of the Most High: And He has not made your adopted sons your sons. From this is: Muhammad is not the father of any of your men. As for the wife of the son from breastfeeding, the majority have held that she is forbidden to his father. It has been said that it is a consensus, even though the son from breastfeeding is not from the children of the loins. Its basis is what is authentically reported from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: What is forbidden by breastfeeding is forbidden by lineage. There is no dispute that the children of the children, even if they are lower in line, are like the children of the loins in the prohibition of marrying their women to their fathers.

Scholars have differed as to whether fornication entails prohibition or not. Most scholars said: If a man has sexual intercourse with a woman through fornication, it is not forbidden for him to marry her. Similarly, his wife is not forbidden to him if he commits fornication with her mother or daughter. It is sufficient for him to be subject to the prescribed punishment. Likewise, according to them, it is permissible for him to marry the mother of the woman he committed fornication with and her daughter. A group of scholars said: Fornication entails prohibition. This was reported from Imran ibn Husayn, al-Sha'bi, Ata', al-Hasan, Sufyan al-Thawri, Ahmad, Ishaq, and the people of opinion. It was also reported from Malik, and the correct view from him is like the view of the majority. The majority cited as evidence the words of God the Almighty: and the mothers of your wives and His words: and the wives of your sons. The woman who has been fornicated with cannot be considered one of their women or the wives of their sons.

Ad-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Aisha that she said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man who committed adultery with a woman and wanted to marry her or her daughter. He said: 'The forbidden does not make the permissible forbidden.'" The prohibitionists cited as evidence what was narrated in the story of Juraij, which is confirmed in Sahih, in which he said: 'O boy, who is your father?' He said: 'So-and-so the shepherd.' Thus, the son attributed himself to his father through adultery, and this is a weak argument. They also cited as evidence the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: 'God will not look at a man who looks at the private parts of a woman and her daughter and does not distinguish between the permissible and the forbidden.' The response to this is that this is absolute and is restricted by the evidence that has been reported indicating that the forbidden does not make the permissible forbidden.

They differed on whether sodomy entails prohibition or not. Al-Thawri said: If he sodomizes a boy, his mother is forbidden to him. This is the opinion of Ahmad ibn Hanbal, who said: If he sodomizes his wife's son, father, or brother, his wife is forbidden to him. Al-Awza'i said: If he sodomizes a boy and a daughter is born to the one he has consummated the marriage with, it is not permissible for the one who has been sodomized to marry her because she is the daughter of the one he has consummated the marriage with. It is clear what is in the opinion of these people of weakness and fallacy that descends from the opinion of those who say that unlawful intercourse entails prohibition to varying degrees, due to the unsuitability of what those people have relied on of doubts based on what these people have claimed that sodomy entails prohibition. His statement and that you marry two sisters together means: It is forbidden for you to marry two sisters together, so it is in the nominative case in apposition to the previous prohibitions, and it includes marrying them together through marriage and intercourse through the right hand. It was said: The verse is specific to combining in marriage, not in right-hand possession. As for intercourse with ownership, there is no right to marriage, and the nation has unanimously agreed to prohibit combining them in the marriage contract.

They differed regarding the two sisters who are owned by the right hand. All scholars held that it is permissible to have intercourse with them together through ownership, and they agreed that it is permissible to have intercourse with them together only through ownership. Some of the Salaf hesitated regarding having intercourse with two sisters through ownership, and this will be explained later. They differed regarding the permissibility of concluding a marriage contract with the sister of a slave girl who is owned by ownership. Al-Awza'i said: If he has intercourse with his slave girl through ownership, it is not permissible for him to marry her sister. Al-Shafi'i said: The right hand does not prevent marriage to a sister. The Zahiris held that it is permissible to have intercourse with two sisters who are owned by the right hand, just as it is permissible to have intercourse with them together through ownership. Ibn Abd al-Barr said, after mentioning what was narrated from Uthman ibn Affan about the permissibility of having intercourse with two sisters through ownership: A similar statement by Uthman was narrated from a group of the Salaf, including Ibn Abbas, but they differed upon them and none of the jurists of the regions in the Hijaz, Iraq, or what is beyond it in the East, Syria, or Morocco paid attention to it, except for those who deviated from their group by following the apparent meaning and denying analogy. And he who deliberately did that left it. And the group of jurists agree that it is not permissible to combine two sisters by right hand possession in intercourse, just as it is not permissible in marriage. And the Muslims have agreed that the meaning of His statement, Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, to the end of the verse, is that marriage by right hand possession is the same for all of these. So it must be by analogy and consideration to combine two sisters, mothers of women, and stepdaughters. And this is what it is according to the majority of them, and it is the argument that is used as evidence by those who disagree with it and deviate from it, and God is the Praiseworthy.

And I say: Here is a problem, which is that it has been established that marriage is said of the contract only, and of intercourse only, and the disagreement over whether one of them is real and the other is metaphorical, or whether they are both real is well-known. If we take this prohibition mentioned in this verse, which is His saying, Your mothers are forbidden to you to the end, to mean that the contract is forbidden to them, then there is no indication in His saying, the Most High, And that you marry two sisters to the end of it, of the prohibition of marrying two slave women in intercourse through ownership. And what happened from the consensus of the Muslims that His saying, Your mothers, your daughters, your sisters to the end, is equal in it, free women and slave women and the contract, and ownership does not necessitate that the subject of the disagreement, which is marrying two sisters in intercourse through right ownership, be like the subject of the consensus. And mere analogy in such a situation does not constitute evidence because of the objections that come against it. And if we take the prohibition mentioned in the verse to mean intercourse only, that is not correct because of the consensus on the prohibition of the marriage contract on all of the mentioned from the beginning of the verse to the end of it, so there remains only to take the prohibition in The verse prohibits the marriage contract, so the one who says that it is forbidden to have intercourse with two sisters through ownership needs evidence, and it does not benefit him that this is the opinion of the majority, because the truth is not known through men. If he brings it pure and free from any impurity, then that is fine and well, otherwise the original is permissibility. It is not correct to interpret marriage in the verse to mean both of its meanings, I mean the contract and intercourse, because it is a case of combining the literal and the metaphorical, which is forbidden, or a case of combining the two meanings of the common, and there is a well-known disagreement in the principles, so ponder this.

Scholars have differed regarding whether a man has intercourse with his slave woman through ownership and then wants to have intercourse with her sister through ownership. Ali, Ibn Umar, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Al-Awza'i, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Ishaq said: He is not permitted to have intercourse with a second woman until he makes the vagina of the other forbidden by removing her from his ownership through selling or freeing her or by marrying her. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: There is a second opinion by Qatada, which is that he intends to make the first forbidden to himself and does not approach her, then he refrains from her until the forbidden woman is purified, then he has intercourse with the second woman. There is a third opinion, which is that he does not approach either of them. This is what Al-Hakim and Hammad said. The meaning of that was narrated from Al-Nakha'i. Malik said: If he has two sisters by ownership, he may have intercourse with whichever one he wishes, and refraining from the other is entrusted to his trust. If he wants to have intercourse with the other, he must forbid himself the vagina of the first by doing something he does, such as removing the ownership, marrying, selling, manumission, writing, or long-term service. If he has intercourse with one of them and then jumps on the other without forbidding the first, he must refrain from them and it is not permissible for him to approach one of them until he forbids the other, and he does not entrust that to his trust because he is accused. Al-Qurtubi said: The scholars have agreed that if a man divorces his wife with a divorce in which he has the right to take her back, he does not have the right to marry her sister until the divorced woman's waiting period expires. They differed about whether he divorces her with a divorce in which he does not have the right to take her back. A group said: He does not have the right to marry her sister or a fourth until the waiting period of the one he divorced expires. This was narrated from Ali, Zaid ibn Thabit, Mujahid, Ata', Al-Nakha'i, Al-Thawri, Ahmad ibn Hanbal, and the People of Opinion. A group said: He can marry her sister and marry a fourth wife for someone who has four wives and has divorced one of them with an irrevocable divorce. This was narrated from Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Hasan, Al-Qasim, Urwah bin Al-Zubayr, Ibn Abi Laila, Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr and Abu Ubaid. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: I do not think it is anything other than the statement of Malik. It is also one of the two narrations from Zaid bin Thabit and Ata'. His statement except what has already occurred may mean what was mentioned previously in the statement of God the Almighty: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred. It may also mean another meaning, which is that what has already occurred is permissible and that if the combination occurred in the pre-Islamic era, the marriage was valid, but if it occurred in Islam, he was given the choice between the two sisters. The first possibility is correct.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

23- The Almighty said: Your mothers are forbidden to you the verse. In this verse, God Almighty explained the forbidden things because of the relationship, and the total forbidden things in the Book of God Almighty are fourteen: seven because of lineage, and seven because of the relationship.

As for the seven by reason, two of them are by breastfeeding, four by marriage, and the seventh is the chaste women, who are those with husbands.

As for the seven by lineage, the Almighty said: Forbidden to you are your mothers, which is the plural of mother, and includes grandmothers, even if they are ascending, from the mother's side and the father's side, your daughters, the plural of daughter, and includes the daughters of sons, even if they are descended, your sisters, the plural of sister, whether she is from the father's side and the mother's side or from one of them, your paternal aunts, the plural of paternal aunt, and includes all the sisters of your fathers and grandfathers, even if they are ascending, your maternal aunts, the plural of maternal uncle, and includes all the sisters of your mothers and grandmothers, and the daughters of a brother and the daughters of a sister, and includes the daughters of the sons of a brother and sister, even if they are ascending. The gist of it is that what is forbidden to a man are his ascendants and descendants, and the descendants of his first ascendants and the first descendants of every origin after him, and the ascendants are the mothers and grandmothers, and the descendants are the daughters and daughters of sons, and the descendants of his first ascendants are the sisters and daughters of brothers and sisters, and the first descendants of every origin after him are the paternal aunts and maternal aunts, even if they are ascending.

As for those forbidden by breastfeeding, the Almighty says: And your mothers who breastfed you and your foster sisters.

In sum Maryam 19: What is forbidden by breastfeeding is what is forbidden by lineage. Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn

Ahmad, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Musab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Dinar, on the authority of Sulayman ibn Yasar, on the authority of Urwah ibn al-Zubayr, on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: What is forbidden by breastfeeding is forbidden by birth.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us: Abu Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr, on the authority of Umrah bint Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that she told her that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was with her and that she heard the voice of a man asking permission to enter Hafsa's house. Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: I said: O Messenger of God, if so-and-so were alive - her paternal uncle through breastfeeding - would he enter upon me? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes, breastfeeding prohibits what birth prohibits.

The prohibition of breastfeeding is established on two conditions, one of which is that it should be before the child completes two years, based on the Almighty's saying: Mothers shall breastfeed their children for two complete years (al-Baqarah 2:233).

On the authority of Umm Salamah, may God be pleased with her, she said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Nothing is forbidden by breastfeeding except that which causes the intestines to open. And on the authority of Ibn Masoud, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: There is no breastfeeding except that which makes the bone grow and the flesh to grow. And this only occurs during childhood.

According to Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him: The period of breastfeeding is thirty months, based on the Almighty's saying: And his gestation and weaning is thirty months (al-Ahqaf 46:15). According to most scholars, this is the minimum period of pregnancy, and the maximum period of breastfeeding, and the minimum period of pregnancy is six months.

The second condition is that there must be five separate breastfeedings. This is narrated on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, and Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr said the same, and Al-Shafi'i, may God Almighty have mercy on him, agreed with it.

Most scholars have said that a little or a lot of breastfeeding is forbidden, which is the opinion of Ibn Abbas and Ibn Omar. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab said the same, and Sufyan Al-Thawri, Malik, Al-Awza', Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak, and the people of opinion agreed with him.

Those who held that a small amount does not prohibit have argued that this is what Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salhi told us, Abu Saeed Muhammad ibn Musa al-Sayrafi told us, Abu al-Abbas al-Asam told us, Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Abd al-Hakam told us, Anas ibn Ayyad told us, Sham ibn Urwah told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who narrated that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A single suckling or two sucklings do not prohibit. This is how some of them narrated this hadith, and Abdullah ibn Abi Malikah narrated it on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this is the correct version.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr ibn Muhammad ibn 'Umar ibn Hazm, on the authority of 'Umrah bint 'Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of 'Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, may God be pleased with her, that she said: Among what was revealed in the Qur'an were ten known breastfeedings that forbid marriage, then they were abrogated by five known breastfeedings, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, died while they were among what was recited in the Qur'an.

As for the forbidden women by marriage, his saying: And the mothers of your women / and its sum Maryam 19: that whoever contracts a marriage contract with a woman, the mothers of the married woman and her grandmothers are forbidden to the man who marries, even if they are higher in breastfeeding and lineage, by the same contract.

And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have gone in.

Stepdaughters is the plural of rabibah, which is a woman's daughter. She was called rabibah because he raised her. His statement, in your guardianship, means: in your upbringing. It is said: So-and-so is in the guardianship of so-and-so if he is in his upbringing. You have gone in with them, means: you have had intercourse with them.

The daughters of the married woman and the daughters of her sons are also forbidden to him, even if they are lower in breastfeeding and lineage after consummating the marriage with the married woman. Even if he leaves the married woman before consummating the marriage with her or she dies, it is permissible for him to marry her daughter and it is not permissible for him to marry her mother because God Almighty has made it absolute the prohibition of mothers and said in the prohibition of stepdaughters:

But if you have not consummated the marriage with them, there is no blame upon you, meaning: in marrying their daughters if you separate from them or they die. Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: A woman's mother is not forbidden except by consummating the marriage with her daughter, like a stepdaughter.

And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, meaning: the wives of your sons, the singular of which is: halila, and the male is halil, they were called that because each one of them (is lawful for his companion, and it was said: they were called that because each one of them) is permissible where his companion is permissible from the solution which is the descent, and it was said: each one of them loosens the garment of his companion from the solution which is against reason.

The summary is that the wives of his sons and the sons of his sons are forbidden to a man, even if they are lower in breastfeeding and lineage, by the same contract. He only said from your loins to show that the wife of an adopted child is not forbidden to the man who adopted him, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The fourth of the forbidden women by marriage: the wife of the father and grandfather, even if they are distantly related. It is forbidden for the son and the son's son by the same contract, whether the father is through breastfeeding or lineage, because God Almighty says: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married. This has been mentioned previously.

Every woman who is forbidden to you by a marriage contract is forbidden by intercourse with someone who is owned by the right hand, and intercourse with the suspicion of marriage, even if he has intercourse with a woman/with the suspicion of marriage or a slave girl who is owned by the right hand, then the mother of the woman who is intercourse with and her daughter are forbidden to the one who has intercourse, and the woman who is intercourse with is forbidden to the father of the one who has intercourse and to his son.

If he commits adultery with a woman, the scholars differed concerning it. A group of people said that the mother of the person with whom he committed adultery and her daughter are not forbidden to the adulterer, but the adulteress is forbidden to the father of the adulterer and his son. This is the opinion of Ali, Ibn Masoud, and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them. Saeed Ibn Al-Musayyab, Urwah, and Al-Zuhri said the same, and Malik and Al-Shafi'i, may God Almighty have mercy on them, agreed with it.

Some people went to the prohibition, this is narrated on the authority of Imran bin Husain and Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with them, and Jabir bin Zaid and Al-Hasan said the same, and it is the opinion of the people of opinion.

If he touches a woman lustfully or kisses her, is that considered as entering into the marriage in order to prove the prohibition of marriage by marriage? Likewise, if he touches a woman lustfully, is that considered as intercourse in making the stepdaughter forbidden? There are two opinions on this, the most correct of which, and the opinion of most scholars, is that it proves the prohibition. The second opinion is that it is not proven, just as looking lustfully is not proven.

Surat al-Nisa 4:23

Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, your sister's daughters, your foster mothers, your foster sisters, your wives' mothers, your stepdaughters under your guardianship, born of your wives to whom you have gone in - but if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. The wives of your sons who are from your fathers, your backbones, and that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

God Almighty says: And that you marry two sisters together. It is not permissible for a man to marry two sisters together, whether they are brothers by blood or by breastfeeding. If he marries a woman and then divorces her irrevocably, it is permissible for him to marry her sister. Likewise, if he owns two sisters by right of possession, it is not permissible for him to have intercourse with them together. If he has intercourse with one of them, it is not permissible for him to have intercourse with the other until he forbids the first to himself.

Likewise, it is not permissible to marry a woman and her paternal aunt, or a woman and her maternal aunt, because Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi informed us, Zahir ibn Ahmad informed us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi informed us, Abu Mus'ab informed us, Malik informed us, Abu al-Zinad' informed us, al-A'raj informed us, Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with them, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A woman and her paternal aunt, or a woman and her maternal aunt, may not be married at the same time.

The Almighty says: Except what has already occurred. This means: But what has passed is forgiven, because they used to do it before Islam. Ata' and Al-Suddi said: Except what happened with Jacob, peace be upon him, for he brought together Leah, the mother of Judah, and Rachel, the mother of Joseph, and they were sisters. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

23 Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, and your sister's daughters. What is meant is not the prohibition of their being, but rather the prohibition of marrying them, because this is most of what is meant by them, and because it is what comes to mind, like the prohibition of eating from His statement: Forbidden to you is dead meat, and because what comes before and after it is about marriage. Your mothers include whoever gave birth to you or gave birth to your son, no matter how high, and your daughters include whoever gave birth to her or gave birth to her son, no matter how low, and your sisters include sisters from the three aspects. And the same goes for the rest. The paternal aunt is every female whose child is from the child of a male child of yours, and the maternal aunt is every female whose child is from the child of a female child of yours, whether close or distant. The daughters of the brother and the daughters of the sister include those who are near and distant. And your mothers who suckled you and your foster sisters. God gave supplication the status of lineage, so He called the wet nurse a mother and the wet nurse a sister, and He ordered it based on lineage by considering the wet nurse and the father of the child who gave him milk. The Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: What is forbidden by breastfeeding is forbidden by lineage.

Excluding a man's son's sister and his brother's foster mother from this principle is not correct, because their prohibition by lineage is by marriage, not by lineage.

And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship [born] of your women to whom you have gone in. He first mentioned those forbidden by lineage, then those forbidden by breastfeeding, because they have a bond like that of lineage, then those forbidden by marriage, because their prohibition is contrary to the interests of marriage. Stepdaughters are the plural of stepdaughter. The stepchild is the son of a woman from another, and he is named after him because he raises him as he raises his son in most cases. Fa'il means maf'ul, and the ta' was added to it because it became a name from your women related to your stepdaughters, and those related to it are a description of it that restricts the wording, and the ruling by consensus is a matter of the system, and it is not permissible to connect it to mothers also because if you connect it to stepdaughters, it is introductory, and if you connect it to mothers, that is not permissible, rather it must be a clarification of your women, and one word does not bear two meanings according to the majority of writers, except if you make it for connection like his saying:

If you try to commit adultery with a lion, then I am not from you and you are not from me Meaning that the mothers and daughters of women are connected to them, but the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) distinguished between them and said about a man who married a woman and divorced her before consummating the marriage with her, There is no problem with him marrying her daughter, but it is not permissible for him to marry her mother. Most scholars agreed with this, but it was narrated that Ali may God be pleased with him restricted the prohibition to them. It is not permissible for the second relative pronoun to be an attribute of the two women because their factors are different. The benefit of his saying in your laps is to strengthen and complete the reason. The meaning is that if you consummate the marriage with your mothers while they are in your custody or about to, the resemblance between them and your children is strengthened and they become more deserving of being treated like them, not restricting the prohibition. This is what most scholars agreed with. It was narrated from Ali may God be pleased with him that he made it a condition. Mothers and stepdaughters include those who are near and far. His saying you consummated the marriage with them means that you consummated the marriage with them, which is a euphemism for sexual intercourse. What affects the prohibition of marriage is what is not adultery, such as intercourse based on suspicion or possession by right hand. According to Abu Hanifa, touching the married woman and the like is like consummation. But if you have not consummated the marriage with them, there is no blame upon you is explicit after notification to prevent analogy. And the wives of your sons are their wives. The wife is called a wife because she is permissible or permissible with the husband. Those from your loins is a precaution against adopted children, not the son's children. And that you marry two sisters is in the nominative case in apposition to the forbidden women. It appears that the prohibition is not limited to marriage, because the forbidden women listed as forbidden in marriage are also forbidden in the possession of the right hand. Therefore, Uthman and Ali, may God be pleased with them, said: A verse has forbidden them and a verse has permitted them, meaning this verse. And his saying: Or what your right hands possess, Ali, may God be pleased with him, preferred the prohibition, and Uthman, may God be pleased with him, preferred the permissibility. Ali's statement is more apparent because the verse of permissibility is specific to other than that, and because of his saying, peace and blessings be upon him: Whenever the permissible and the forbidden come together, the forbidden prevails. "Except for what has already occurred" is an exception to the necessary meaning, or it is interrupted in meaning, What has already occurred is forgiven, according to His statement: Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of God upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, God is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And forbidden to you are the chaste women that is, those who have husbands of women that you marry them before they leave their husbands, whether they are free Muslims or not except those whom your right hands possess of female slaves through captivity, then you may have intercourse with them even if they have husbands in the land of war after they have been purified by the Book of God in the accusative case as a source, that is, He has written that (upon you. And lawful) in the active and passive form for you are all that is beyond that that is, other than what is forbidden to you of women that you seek you seek women with your wealth as a dowry or a price in marriage married not committing fornication fornicators and whatever of them you enjoy you enjoy then give them their dowries their dowries that you have prescribed for them (as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you agree upon) you and they after the obligation of reducing it or some of it or adding to it for God is ever Knowing of His creation Wise in what he planned for them

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And the chaste women, the verse. Muslim, Abu Dawud, Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: We captured female captives from the captives of Awtas who had husbands, and we disliked having intercourse with them while they had husbands. So we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the verse was revealed: And the chaste women, except those whom your right hands possess. He said: Except what God has given you as booty, so we made their private parts lawful for them.

Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: It was revealed on the day of Hunayn when God conquered Hunayn. The Muslims had intercourse with women from among the People of the Book who had husbands. When a man wanted to have intercourse with a woman, she would say, I have a husband. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about that, and God revealed the verse: And the chaste women among the women.

God Almighty said: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Muammar bin Sulayman on the authority of his father who said: A Hadrami claimed that some men used to impose a dowry, then perhaps hardship would overtake one of them, so this was revealed: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: The chaste women are forbidden to you, except those whom your right hands possess.

The interpreters differed regarding the chaste women that God meant in this verse.

Some of them said: They are the women who have husbands and are not taken captive, and the right hand possession is the captives who were separated from their husbands by captivity, so they became permissible for whoever they became by right hand possession, without a divorce from her warring husband.

Mention of who said:

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: All women who have a husband, committing adultery with them, except for those who are taken captive.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Atiyah told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Hasin, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Every woman who has a husband is forbidden to you, except for a female slave whom you own and who has a husband in a land of war, then she is permissible to you if you purify her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: What you have taken as captives. If a woman is taken captive and she has a husband among her people, then there is no problem with having intercourse with her.

Yunus told me: Ibn Wahb told us: Ibn Zayd said about

His statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Every chaste woman who has a husband is forbidden to you, except for the captives your right hand possesses who are chaste and have a husband, so she is not forbidden to you because of him. He said: My father used to say that.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Utbah bin Saeed Al-Himsi told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Makhul, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Captives.

The authors of this article relied on the report that was narrated that this verse was revealed about those who were taken captive from Awtas.

The novel mentioned that:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Alqamah Al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri: "The Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent an army to Awtas, and they encountered an enemy, and they captured female captives who had husbands from among the polytheists, and the Muslims felt guilty about having intercourse with them, so God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed this verse: 'And chaste women, except those your right hands possess,' meaning: They are lawful for you once their number has expired."

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abdul A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Salih Abu Al-Khalil: that Abu Alqamah Al-Hashemi told, that Abu Saeed Al-Khudri told: "The Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent out a raiding party on the day of Hunayn, and they captured a tribe of the Arabs on the day of Awtas, and they defeated them and captured some of their captives. Some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were afraid to have intercourse with them because of their husbands, so God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: 'And chaste women, except those your right hands possess'" of them, so that is permissible for you.

Ali bin Saeed Al-Kinani told me, he said, Abdul Rahim bin Sulaiman told us, on the authority of Ash'ath bin Suwar, on the authority of Uthman Al-Batti, on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: "When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, took the people of Awtas as captives, we said: O Messenger of God, how can we have intercourse with women whose lineages and husbands we know? He said: Then this verse was revealed: 'And chaste women, except those your right hands possess.'"

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, [on the authority of Abu al-Khalil], "on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, he said: We captured women from the captives of Awtas who had husbands, and we were reluctant to have intercourse with them while they had husbands, so we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this was revealed: 'And chaste women, except those your right hands possess,' so we made their private parts lawful for us."

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Saeed, he said: It was revealed on the day of Awtas, when the Muslims captured female captives who had husbands in polytheism, so He said: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, meaning: except what God has given to you as booty. He said: So we made their private parts lawful for them.

Others who said: The chaste women who have husbands in this context said: Rather, they are every woman who has a husband, forbidden to anyone other than her husband, unless she is a slave woman who was bought by a buyer from her master, then she is permissible for her buyer, and her master's sale of her to her nullifies the marriage between her and her husband.

Who said that?

Abu Al-Sa'ib Salim bin Janadah told me, he said, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Every married woman is forbidden to you, unless you buy her, or what your right hand possesses.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim: that he was asked about a female slave who was sold while she had a husband? He said: Abdullah used to say: Her sale is her divorce, and he would recite this verse: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Every married woman is forbidden to you except what you bought with your money, and he used to say: The sale of a female slave is her divorce.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab, regarding his statement: And chaste women, he said: They are those who have husbands, God has forbidden marriage to them, except for what your right hand possesses, so selling her is divorcing her. Muammar said: Al-Hasan said the same.

Ibn Bashir told us: Abd al-A'la told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: If she has a husband, then her sale is her divorce.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: that Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Jabir ibn Abdullah, and Anas ibn Malik said: Her sale is her divorce.

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: that Abi bin Ka'b, Jabir, and Ibn Abbas said: Her sale is her divorce.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Omar bin Ubaid told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: Abdullah said: The sale of a female slave is her divorce.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, Mughirah and al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: The sale of a female slave is her divorce.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The divorce of a female slave is six: selling her is her divorce, freeing her is her divorce, giving her as a gift is her divorce, acquitting her is her divorce, and divorcing her husband is her divorce.

Ahmad bin Al-Mughira Al-Himsi told me, he said, Uthman bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Isa bin Abi Ishaq, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Abi bin Ka'b, that he said: The sale of a female slave is her divorce.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, on the authority of Awf, on the authority of al-Hasan, he said: The sale of a female slave is her divorce, and his sale is her divorce.

Humayd ibn Mas'adah told us, Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Khalid told us, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, who said: Abdullah said: Her buyer has more right to her private parts, meaning the female slave is sold and she has a husband.

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: The divorce of a female slave is her sale.

Hamid told us, Sufyan bin Habib told us, Yunus told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan: that Abi said: Her sale is her divorce.

Ahmad told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: If a female slave is sold and she has a husband, then her master has more right to her private parts.

Humayd told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu Ma'shar, on the authority of Ibrahim, who said: Her sale is her divorce. It was said to Ibrahim: What about his sale? He said: That is something we do not say anything about.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of and chaste women in this context is: the chaste ones. They said: The interpretation of the verse is: The chaste women are also forbidden to you, except those whom your right hands possess among them by marriage, dowry, Sunnah, and witnesses, from one to four.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, who said: He says: Marry women of your choice, two, three, or four. Then He forbade what was forbidden of lineage and marriage, then He said: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. He said: So he returned to the beginning of the Surah, to four, and He said: They are also forbidden except with a dowry, a Sunnah, and witnesses.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah, he said: God has made four things permissible for you at the beginning of the surah, and has forbidden marriage to any free woman after the four except what your right hand possesses. Muammar said, and Ibn Tawus told me, on the authority of his father: Except what your right hand possesses. He said: So marrying you to what your right hand possesses, he says: God has forbidden adultery, it is not permissible for you to have intercourse with a woman except what your right hand possesses.

Ali bin Saeed bin Masrouq Al-Kindi told me, he said, Abdul Rahim bin Sulaiman told us, on the authority of Hisham bin Hassan, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, he said, I asked Ubaidah about the statement of God Almighty: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, this is God's decree upon you, he said: Four.

Ali bin Saeed told me, he said, Abdul Rahim told us, on the authority of Ash'ath bin Suwar, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah, on the authority of Umar bin Al-Khattab, similarly.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Yaman told us, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Ja'far, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: The four, and anything after that is forbidden.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I asked Ata' about it, and he said: God has forbidden female relatives. Then he said: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, meaning: He has forbidden more than four of them.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi. And the chaste women, he said: The fifth is forbidden, like the forbiddenness of mothers and sisters.

It was mentioned that he said: What is meant by chaste women in this context are the chaste Muslims and People of the Book.

Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Habib bin Al-Shaheed told me, he said, Atab bin Bashir told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: and chaste women, he said: the chaste, rational woman, whether Muslim or from the People of the Book.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, on the authority of some of his companions, on the authority of Mujahid: And chaste women, except those whom your right hands possess, he said: The chaste.

Others said: The chaste women in this place are those with husbands, but what God has forbidden from them in this verse is adultery with them, and He has permitted them by saying: Except those your right hands possess through marriage or ownership.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: and chaste women, he said: He forbade adultery.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And chaste women he said: He forbade adultery, that a woman should marry two husbands.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Every married woman is forbidden to you, except for the four who are married with evidence and a dowry.

Ahmad bin Othman told us, Wahb bin Jarir told us, my father told us, I heard Al-Nu'man bin Rashid narrating, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab: that he was asked about the chaste women, he said: They are those who have husbands.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: Those with husbands from among the Muslims and the polytheists. And Ali said:

Those with husbands from among the polytheists.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And chaste women, he said: Every married woman is forbidden to you.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told me, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Makhul, something similar.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Al-Salt bin Bahram, on the authority of Ibrahim, something similar.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, to and lawful for you are those beyond that, meaning women who have husbands, it is not permissible to marry them. He says: Do not deceive or transgress, so as to rebel against her husband. And every woman who is not married except with proof and a dowry is one of the chaste women whom God has forbidden, except those your right hands possess, meaning those women whom God has made lawful, and that is what He has made lawful of free women, two, three, or four.

Others said: Rather, they are the women of the People of the Book.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Isa bin Ubaid told us, on the authority of Ayoub bin Abi Al-Awja, on the authority of Abu Majlaz, regarding his statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, he said: The women of the People of the Book.

Others said: Rather, they are free women.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Hammad bin Mas'adah told me, he said, Sulayman told us, on the authority of Azra, regarding his statement: And chaste women, he said: Free women.

Others said: The chaste women are the chaste women who have husbands, and both types are forbidden except through marriage or by right of possession.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Aqil told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, and he was asked about the statement of God: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, the verse, he said: We see that in this verse, He forbade chaste women who have husbands from marrying them with their husbands - and chaste women, the chaste ones - and they are not permissible except through marriage or the possession of the right hand. And chastity is of two types: chastity of marriage, and chastity of chastity, in the case of free women and slave women. God has forbidden all of that, except through marriage or the possession of the right hand.

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Others said: This verse was revealed about your women who migrate to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they have husbands, and some Muslims marry them, then their husbands come as immigrants, so the Muslims are forbidden from marrying them.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Habib bin Abi Thabit told me, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, he said: Women used to come to us and then their husbands would migrate, so we prevented them, meaning by his saying: And chaste women except those whom your right hands possess.

Ibn Abbas and others mentioned that they were confused about the interpretation of that.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Murrah, who said, a man said to Sa'id ibn Jubayr: Did you not see Ibn 'Abbas when he was asked about this verse: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, and he did not say anything about it? He said: He did not know it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Abd al-Rahman bin Yahya told us, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: If I knew someone who could explain this verse to me, I would rush to him, His statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, to His statement: And those you have enjoyed from them, to the end of the verse.

Abu Ja'far said: As for the chaste women, they are the plural of muhsana, which is the woman whose vagina has been protected by a husband. It is said: A man protected his wife, so he protected her with protection, and she was protected, so she protected with protection, if she was chaste, and she is a chaste woman, chaste, as al-'Ajjaj said:

A protector from the protectors of Mels from harm and from the gnats of the nightingale

It is also said, if she is chaste and protects her vagina from immorality: She has protected her vagina, so she is chaste, as God the Most High said: And Mary, the daughter of Imran, who guarded her chastity (al-Tahrim 66:12), meaning: she protected it from suspicion and prevented it from immorality. The fortresses of cities and villages are called fortresses because they protect those who want to attack them and their people, and because they protect what is beyond them from those who seek to attack them from their enemies. That is why the armor is called a strong armor.

Since the origin of chastity is what we mentioned about prevention and protection, then it is clear that the meaning of his saying: and chaste women, and the women who are forbidden are forbidden to you except those whom your right hands possess.

And since that is its meaning, and chastity may be by freedom, as the Most High said: And chaste women from among those who were given the Scripture before you (al-Ma'idah 5:5), and it may be by Islam, as the Most High said: But if they are chaste, then upon them is half of that upon the chaste women of the punishment (An-Nisa': 25), and it may be by chastity, as the Most High said: And those who accuse chaste women but do not produce four witnesses (al-Nur 24:4), and it may be by husband, and the Most High did not specify a chaste woman over a chaste woman in His statement: And chaste women, then it is obligatory that every chaste woman, whatever the meanings of chastity may be, be forbidden to us by fornication or marriage, except what our right hands possess of them by purchase, as the Book of God, the Most High, has permitted us, or marriage according to what God's revelation has made general for us.

What God Almighty has permitted us to marry from among the free women: the four, except for those who are forbidden to us by lineage and marriage, and from the female slaves: those whom we have taken captive from the enemy, except for those whose meaning matches the meaning of what is forbidden to us from among the free women by lineage and marriage, for they and the free women are in agreement in what is permissible and forbidden by that meaning, and except for those whom we have taken captive from among the People of the Book and they have husbands, for the captivity makes them permissible for whoever takes them captive after they have been purified, and after taking out the right of God Almighty which He has made for the people of the five of them.

As for fornication, God Almighty has forbidden it from all of them. He has not permitted it from a free woman, a slave woman, a Muslim woman, or a disbelieving polytheist woman.

As for the female slave who has a husband, she is not permissible for her owner except after her husband divorces her, or his death and the expiration of her waiting period from him. As for her master selling her, it does not require separation between her and her husband or making her permissible for the buyer, due to the authenticity of the report "On the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: that he gave Barrah the choice when Aisha freed her, between staying with her husband to whom her masters had married her when she was a slave, or separating from him. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not make Aisha's freeing her a divorce for her." If her freeing and the loss of Aisha's ownership of her were a divorce, then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have given her the choice between staying with her husband and separating from him, and the freeing would have required separation, and the loss of Aisha's ownership of her would have required divorce. So when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave her the choice between what we mentioned and staying with her husband and separating from him, it was known that he did not give her the choice between that except when the marriage contract was established as it was before the loss of Aisha's ownership of her. It was similar to emancipation - which is the removal of the ownership of the owner of the female slave who has a husband from her - sale, which is the removal of the ownership of her owner from her, since one of them was removal by sale, and the other by emancipation, in that separation is not required between her and her husband by either of them or by one of them, [and divorce is not required by either of them or by one of them], even though they differ in other meanings: that she has the option in emancipation in the situation with her husband and separation, for the reason of leaving the meaning of the sale, and that is not for her in the sale.

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to say: How could the exception from his statement: and chaste women be meant to include those beyond four, from five to those above them through marriage, and the women married through it are not owned?

It was said to him: God Almighty did not specify in His saying: Except what your right hands possess, the slaves, not the slaves owned by the marriage contract, but rather He included in His saying: Except what your right hands possess, both meanings - I mean the possession of the slave, and the possession of enjoyment through marriage - because all of that is owned by our right hands. As for the former, it is the possession of enjoyment, and as for the latter, it is the possession of use, enjoyment, and disposal of what is permissible for its owner from it. And whoever claims that God Almighty meant by His saying: and chaste women, chaste and unchaste, other than those we mentioned first, by the exception in His saying: Except what your right hands possess, some of the possessions of our right hands and not some other than what we indicated is not meant by it, should be asked for proof for his claim from the origin or equivalent. He will not say a statement about that except that he will be obligated to say something similar in the end.

If one of them is weak in his argument with the hadith of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, that this verse was revealed about the captives of Autas.

It was said to him: The captives of Autas were not taken as slaves or slaves without Islam. This is because they were polytheists who worshipped idols, and the proof has been established that the women of idolaters are not permissible as slaves without Islam, and that if they converted to Islam, Islam would separate them from their husbands, whether they were captives or immigrants. However, if they were captives, they would be permissible if they converted to Islam by purification. So there is no proof for the one who argues that the chaste women he meant by his statement: and chaste women are those who had husbands from the captives and not others, based on the report of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri that this was revealed regarding the captives of Autas. Because even though it was revealed regarding them, it was not revealed regarding the permissibility of having intercourse with them as slaves in particular, and not regarding the other meanings that we mentioned. Although the verse was revealed regarding a meaning, it includes what it was revealed regarding it and others, so its ruling is applicable to everything it includes, based on what we have explained regarding generality and specificity in our book, Kitab Al-Bayan 'an Usul Al-Ahkam.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means: A Book from God upon you. He brought out the Book as a source without its wording. This is permissible because God Almighty's statement: Your mothers are forbidden to you, to His statement: The Book of God upon you, means: God wrote the prohibition of what He prohibited of that and the permissibility of what He permitted of that for you, a Book.

And what we said about that, the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, who said: The Book of God is upon you, he said: What He has forbidden you.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I asked Ata' about it, and he said: The Book of God upon you. He said: He is the One who prescribed the four upon you, that you should not increase them.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Muhammad bin Sirin, he said: I said to Ubaydah: And the chaste women, except those your right hands possess, are the decree of God upon you, and Ibn Awn pointed with his four fingers.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, he said: I asked Ubaidah about his saying: The Book of God is upon you, he said: Four.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: The Book of God is upon you, the four.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement, The Book of God upon you, he said: This is the command of God upon you. He said: He means what He forbade them from these and what He permitted them. And he recited: And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, to the end of the verse. He said: The Book of God upon you, that He wrote, and His command that He commanded you with. The Book of God upon you, is the command of God.

Some Arabists claimed that his saying: The Book of God is upon you is in the accusative case as an inducement, meaning: The Book of God is upon you, adhere to the Book of God.

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

And the one who said that is not widespread in the speech of the Arabs. That is because it is almost never made accusative by the letter with which it tempts, [if you delay the temptation and bring forward the tempted]. You almost never say: Your brother is against you, and your father is beneath you, even if that is permissible.

What is more appropriate for the Book of God is that it be understood in the manner known by the tongue of the one in whose tongue it was revealed. This, along with what we have mentioned of the interpretation of the people of interpretation, is the meaning of what we have said, and the opposite of what was directed at it by those who claimed that it was erected in a manner of enticement.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: And what is less than one-fifth is permissible for you to seek with your money in the form of marriage.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And what is beyond that is lawful for you, less than four, that you may seek with your wealth.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah Al-Salmi: And what is beyond that is lawful for you, meaning: what is less than four.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: And He has made lawful for you what is beyond that: from among your relatives whom He has named as forbidden to you.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I asked Ata' about it, and he said: And what is beyond that is lawful for you, he said: What is beyond that is the kinship, that you seek with your wealth, the verse.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: And He has made lawful for you what is beyond that: the number of chaste women and slave women who are lawful for you.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And what is beyond that is lawful for you, he said: What your right hands possess.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is what we have explained. It is that God, the Most High, has made clear to His servants those forbidden by bloodline and marriage, then those forbidden by chaste women. Then He, the Most High, has informed them that He has made lawful for them everything except these forbidden things explained in these two verses, that we should seek Him with our wealth in marriage and through the possession of the right hand, not through fornication.

If someone says: We know the permissible women who are behind the forbidden women through lineage and in-laws, so what are the permissible ones among the chaste women and the forbidden ones among them?

It was said: It is less than five, from one to four - according to what we mentioned from Ubaydah and al-Suddi - of the free women. As for those who are not married, then it is not a number limited to the right hand possession. We only said that this is so, because His statement: And what is beyond that is lawful for you, is general in every woman whom we are permitted to seek with our money. So directing the meaning of this to some of them is not more appropriate than others, unless there is an argument that this is so, which must be accepted. And there is no argument that this is so.

There is a difference in the reading of his saying: And what is beyond that is lawful for you.

Some of them read it as: And He has made lawful for you with the opening of the alif from He has made lawful meaning: God has prescribed for you, and made lawful for you what is beyond that.

Others read it as: And what is beyond that is lawful for you, based on his saying: Your mothers are forbidden to you, and What is beyond that is lawful for you.

Abu Jaafar said: What we say about this is that they are two well-known readings that are widespread in the reading of Islam, and they do not differ in meaning. So whichever one the reader reads, he is correct.

As for the meaning of his statement: And beyond that, he means: What is forbidden to you is beyond these, that you seek with your wealth, he says: that you seek and seek with your wealth, either by purchasing with it, or by marrying with a known dowry, as God Almighty said: And they disbelieve in what is beyond it (al-Baqarah 2:91), meaning: in what is beyond it and what is other than it.

As for the position of that in his statement: that you seek with your wealth, it is raised, as a translation of what in his statement: and what is beyond that is lawful for you, in the reading of those who read and it is lawful with a damma on the alif, and it is accusative based on that in the reading of those who read that:

and it is lawful with a fatha on the alif.

It may be possible to put it in the accusative case in both readings, meaning: And He has made lawful for you what is beyond that for you to seek. So when the prepositional lam was deleted, it was connected to the verb before it and put in the accusative case.

It may be possible that it is in the accusative case, in this sense, since the lam in this position is known to be needed in the speech.

Abu Ja'far said: By His saying, may His praise be glorified, chaste, He means chaste by seeking what is beyond what is forbidden to you of women with your money, not fornicators, meaning: not fornicators, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: married, he said: married, not fornicators, he said: fornicators with every fornicatress.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Chaste means married, not fornicating, fornication is adultery.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Chaste, not fornicators, meaning: Chaste, not adulterers.

The statement in the interpretation of his saying: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their due compensation as an obligation.

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his saying: Then what you have enjoyed of them.

Some of them said: Its meaning is: And whatever of them you marry and have sexual intercourse with, meaning: of the women, then give them their due compensation as an obligation, meaning: their dowries, a known obligation.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation, meaning: If a man among you marries a woman, then marries her once, then her entire dowry is obligatory, and enjoyment is marriage, and this is His statement: And give the women their dowries as a free gift (An-Nisa': 4).

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: Then what you have enjoyed of them, he said: It is marriage.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And what you have enjoyed of them, marriage.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Then what you have enjoyed of them, he said: He meant marriage.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement, And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their due compensation as an obligation, the verse, he said, "This is marriage, and there is nothing in the Qur'an except marriage. If you take her and enjoy her, then give her her compensation, the dowry. If she gives you something from it, then it is permissible for you. God imposed a waiting period on her, and imposed inheritance for her." He said: And enjoyment here is marriage, if he consummates the marriage with her.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: What you enjoyed from them is a reward for enjoying pleasure, not an absolute marriage in the form of marriage that is with a guardian, witnesses, and a dowry.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: "And whatever you enjoy of them for a specified term, give them their due compensation as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation." This is enjoyment: The man marries the woman on condition for a specified term, and two witnesses testify, and he marries with the permission of her guardian. If the term expires, he has no right to her, and she is free from him. She must purify what is in her womb, and there is no inheritance between them, neither of them inherits from the other.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And what you have enjoyed of them, he said: meaning temporary marriage.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yahya bin Isa told us, he said, Nasir bin Abi Al-Ash'ath told us, he said, Ibn Habib bin Abi Thabit told me, on the authority of his father, he said: Ibn Abbas gave me a copy of the Qur'an and said: This is according to my father's reading. Abu Kuraib said: Yahya said: So I saw the copy of the Qur'an with Nasir, in it: Then whatever you have enjoyed of them is for a specified term.

Humayd ibn Mas'adah narrated, Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal narrated, Dawud narrated, on the authority of Abu Nadrah, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas about the pleasure of women. He said: Do you not read Surat al-Nisa? I said: Yes! He said: So what do you read in it: Then what you have enjoyed of them for a specified term? I said: No! If you had read it like this, I would not have asked you! He said: It is like this.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abd Al-A'la told me, he said, Dawud told me, on the authority of Abu Nadrah, he said: I asked Ibn Abbas about temporary marriage, and he mentioned something similar.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Nadrah, he said: I recited this verse to Ibn Abbas:

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Then whatever you have enjoyed of them. Ibn Abbas said: For a specified term. I said: I do not recite it like that! He said: By God, God revealed it like that! Three times.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Dawud told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Umair: Ibn Abbas read: Then whatever you have enjoyed of them shall be for a specified term.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, and Khallad bin Aslam told us, he said, Al-Nadr told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, something similar.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said: Abd al-A'la told us, he said: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: In the reading of Abi bin Ka'b: Then what you have enjoyed of them for a specified term.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of al-Hakam, who said: I asked him about this verse: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess to this place: And those you have enjoyed from them, is it abrogated? He said: No. al-Hakam said: And Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: If Umar, may God be pleased with him, had not forbidden mut'ah, none would have committed adultery except the wretched.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Isa bin Omar Al-Qari Al-Asadi told us, on the authority of Amr bin Murrah: that he heard Saeed bin Jubair recite: And as for those of them whom you have enjoyed for a specified term, give them their due compensation.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two interpretations of this is the interpretation of the one who interpreted it: And those of them whom you have married and had sexual intercourse with, give them their due compensation, because the proof has been established that God has forbidden the enjoyment of women in a manner other than valid marriage or valid ownership, on the tongue of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Abdul Aziz bin Omar bin Abdul Aziz, he said, Al-Rabi' bin Sabra Al-Juhani told me, on the authority of his father: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Enjoy these women." And enjoyment in our time was marriage.

We have demonstrated that temporary marriage other than a valid marriage is forbidden in other places in our books, so there is no need to repeat it here.

As for what was narrated on the authority of Abi bin Kaab and Ibn Abbas regarding their reading: Then what you have enjoyed of them for a specified term, this is a reading that is contrary to what came in the copies of the Qur'an of the Muslims. It is not permissible for anyone to add to the Book of God Almighty something that was not brought by a definitive report. The excuse is for someone whose contradiction is not permissible.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is that there is no blame upon you, O husbands, if you are overcome by hardship after you have imposed on your wives their wages as a duty, in what you have agreed upon of reduction and release, after the duty that you have previously imposed on them what you had imposed.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of his father, he said: A Hadrami claimed that some men used to impose a dowry, then one of them might be afflicted with hardship, so God said: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation.

Others said: The meaning of this is: There is no blame upon you, O people, in what you and the women you have enjoyed for a specified term have agreed upon, if the term you set between you and them for separation has expired, that they increase the term and you increase the reward and the obligation, before they purify their wombs.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And there is no blame upon you for that upon which you mutually agree after the obligatory duty, if he wishes, he may satisfy her after the first obligatory duty - meaning the wage he gave her for his enjoyment of her - before the expiration of the period between them, and he says: I will also enjoy from you such and such, and he increases before he purifies her womb, then the period expires. This is His saying: in that upon which you mutually agree after the obligatory duty.

Others said: The meaning of this is: There is no blame upon you, O people, for what you and your women agree upon after you give them their wages for your enjoyment of them in terms of residence and separation.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation, and the agreement is that he pays her her dowry and then gives her a choice.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is that there is no blame upon you for what your women have given you of their dowries after the obligatory portion.

Who said that?

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And there is no blame upon you for that which you mutually agree upon after the obligation, he said: If I set aside something of it for you, then it is permissible for you.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements is the statement of the one who said: The meaning of that is: There is no blame upon you, O people, for what you and your women agree upon after giving them their wages for the marriage that took place between you and them, of reducing what was due to them from you, or releasing them, or delaying and putting it away. This is similar to the statement of God, the Most High: "And give the women their bridal-gifts as a free gift. But if they give up willingly to you any of it, then take it in enjoyment and ease." (An-Nisa': 4)

As for what Al-Suddi said, it is a meaningless statement, because the statement that it is permissible to have intercourse with a woman without marriage or right of possession is corrupt.

As for his saying: Indeed, God is All-Knowing, All-Wise, it means: Indeed, God has knowledge of what is best for you, O people, in your marriages and other matters of yours and the affairs of all His creation, Wise in what He manages for you and for them, and in what He commands you and forbids you, and no flaw or error enters into His wisdom.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are fourteen

First: The Almighty's saying: And chaste women is in apposition to the forbidden things and those mentioned before. And fortification means protection, and from it the word fort because one is protected in it, and from it the Almighty's saying: And We taught him the making of coats of mail for you to protect you from your violence (al-Anbiya 21:80) meaning to protect you, and from it the word horse for a mare with a kasra on the ha because it prevents its owner from destruction. And the horse with a fatha on the ha is the chaste woman because she prevents herself from destruction, and the woman fortified is she shouted so she is a horse, like she became junub so she is a coward. Hassan said about Aisha, may God be pleased with her:

Razan's horse is not worth a dime and becomes hungry from the meat of the ignorant

The source is immunity with the letter ha' open and the fortress is like the flag, so what is meant by chaste women here are those who have husbands. It is said: a chaste woman, meaning married, and chaste, meaning free. From this, Chaste women from among the believers and chaste women from among those who were given the Scripture (al-Ma'idah 5:5) and chaste, meaning chaste. God Almighty said: Chaste, not fornicators and He said: Chaste, not fornicators. And chaste, chaste, and horse, meaning chaste, meaning abstaining from immorality, and freedom prevents a free woman from what slaves do. God Almighty said: And those who accuse chaste women (al-Nur 24:4) meaning free women. The custom of slave women in the pre-Islamic period was adultery, do you not see the statement of Hind bint Utbah to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when she pledged allegiance to him: Does a free woman commit adultery? The husband also prevents his wife from marrying someone else, so the construction H S N means prevention, as we have explained. Chastity is used in Islam because it is a protector and a preventer, and it was not mentioned in the Book but it was mentioned in the Sunnah, and from this, the statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Faith is a bond to killing. And from this is what Al-Hudhali said:

This house is not like it used to be, O Umm Malik, but chains have surrounded necks.

The poet said:

She said, Come on, let's talk. I said, May God and Islam not refuse you.

And from it is the saying of Sahim:

Gray hair is enough for a person to be prevented by Islam

Second: If this is proven, then the scholars differed in the interpretation of this verse. Ibn Abbas, Abu Qilabah, Ibn Zayd, Makhul al-Zuhri, and Abu Saeed al-Khudri said: What is meant by chaste women here are the captives who have husbands in particular, meaning they are forbidden except for what the right hand possesses through captivity from the land of war, for those are permissible for the one to whom they fall, even if she has a husband. This is the opinion of al-Shafi'i that captivity severs the bond of kinship, and Ibn Wahb and Ibn Abd al-Hakam said the same, and they narrated it from Malik. Ashhab said the same. This is indicated by what Muslim narrated in his Sahih from Abu Saeed al-Khudri:

That the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) sent an army to Awta on the day of Hunayn. They encountered the enemy, fought them, and were victorious over them, and captured captives from them. Some of the companions of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) were reluctant to have intercourse with them because of their polytheist husbands, so God the Almighty revealed about that: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. That is, they are lawful to have intercourse with once their waiting period has expired. This is a clear and authentic text that the verse was revealed because the companions of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) were reluctant to have intercourse with the women who had been released from slavery and had husbands, so God the Almighty revealed in response to them: Except those your right hands possess. Malik, Abu Hanifah and his companions, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad,

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Ishaq, and Abu Thawr said the same, and it is the correct view, God the Almighty willing. They differed about how to purify them. Al-Hasan said: The companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) would purify the captives by one menstrual period, and this was narrated from the hadith of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri about the captives of Awtas:

A pregnant woman should not be cohabited with until she gives birth, nor a menstruating woman until she menstruates. He did not give the bed of the previous husband any effect, so it could be said that the captive woman is owned, but she was a wife whose marriage was terminated, so she observes the waiting period of female slaves, according to what was reported from Al-Hasan bin Salih, who said: She must observe the waiting period of two menstrual periods if she has a husband in the land of war. All scholars saw her waiting period and the waiting period of the one who does not have a husband as one, in that both are one menstrual period. The well-known view of the Maliki school is that there is no difference between the two spouses being taken captive together or separately. Ibn Bakir narrated from him that if they were both taken captive and the man was kept, he would remain married to them. He saw in this narration that keeping him is keeping what he owns, because he has become a covenant and his wife is among what he owns, so he should not be prevented from her. This is the view of Abu Hanifa and al-Thawri, and Ibn al-Qasim said the same and narrated it from Malik. The first is correct for what we mentioned, and because God Almighty said: Except what your right hands possess, so he referred to the right hand's possession and made it the influential factor, so the ruling is related to it in terms of generality and justification together: either what the evidence specified and in the verse is a second view, said by Abdullah bin Masoud, Saeed bin al-Musayyab, al-Hasan bin Abi al-Hasan, Ubayy bin Kaab, Jabir bin Abdullah and Ibn Abbas in the narration of Ikrimah: that what is meant by the verse are those with husbands, meaning that they are forbidden except for a man to buy a female slave with a husband, because selling her is her divorce and giving her in charity is her divorce and inheriting her divorce and the husband's divorce is her divorce. Ibn Masoud: If a female slave is sold and she has a husband, then the buyer is entitled to her private parts, and the same applies to a female captive. All of that leads to separation between her and her husband. They said: If that is the case, then the sale of the female slave must be a divorce for her, because the private parts are forbidden to two people in one situation by consensus of the Muslims.

Killing: This is refuted by the hadith of Barrah, because Aisha, may God be pleased with her, bought Barrah and freed her, then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave her the choice, and she had a husband. And in their consensus that Barrah had the choice under the husband of Mughith after Aisha bought her and freed her, there is evidence that the sale of a female slave is not her divorce, and on that is a group of jurists of the regions from the people of opinion and hadith, and there is no divorce for her except divorce. And some of them have argued with the generality of his statement: Except what your right hands possess and by analogy with the captives, and what we mentioned from the hadith of Barrah makes it specific and refutes it, and that this is only specific to captives according to the hadith of Abu Saeed, and it is correct and true, God willing. And in the verse, there is the statement of al-Thawri on the authority of Hammad on the authority of Ibrahim, Ibn Masoud said in his statement, God Almighty: And chaste women, except what your right hands possess, he said: Those with husbands from among the Muslims and the polytheists. And Ali ibn Abi Talib said: Those with husbands from among the polytheists. In Al-Muwatta', on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, and the chaste women are those who have husbands, and this goes back to the fact that God forbade adultery. A group said: The chaste women in this verse refer to the chaste, meaning that all women are forbidden, and the name of chastity is given to those among them who have a husband or who do not have a husband, since the laws themselves require that.

Except what your right hands possess. They said: It means by marriage or purchase. This is the saying of Abu Al-Aaliyah, Ubaidah Al-Salmi, Tawus, Saeed bin Jubair, and Ata'. Ubaidah narrated it from Umar. So they included marriage under the right hand, and the meaning of the verse according to them is in the words of God the Almighty: Except what your right hands possess. That is, you possess their chastity through marriage and you possess their neck through purchase. So it is as if they are all right hands and anything other than that is adultery. This is a good saying. Ibn Abbas said: And the chaste women are the chaste Muslims and People of the Book. Ibn Atiyyah said: With this interpretation, the meaning of the verse goes back to the prohibition of adultery. Al-Tabari narrated that a man said to Saeed bin Jubair: Did you not see Ibn Abbas when he was asked about this verse and he did not say anything about it? Saeed said: Ibn Abbas did not know it. He also narrated from Mujahid that he said: If I knew someone who could explain this verse to me, I would rush to him on camels' flanks. His saying, and chaste women until his saying, wise. Ibn Atiyyah said: I do not know how this statement was attributed to Ibn Abbas, nor how Mujahid arrived at this statement?

Third: The Almighty's saying: The Book of God is upon you is an accusative of the confirmed source, meaning these women have been forbidden a Book from God upon you. The meaning of Forbidden upon you is The Book of God is upon you. Al-Zajaj and the Kufians said: It is an accusative of enticement, meaning adhere to the Book of God or upon you is the Book of God. There is a consideration in what Abu Ali mentioned, because enticement does not allow the accusative to precede the letter of enticement, so it is not said: Zaid upon you or Zaid below you, rather it is said: Upon you is Zaid and below you is Umar. What he said is correct on the condition that it is accusative with upon you. However, if the verb is deleted, it is permissible, and it is permissible to raise it to mean This is the Book of God and His obligation. Abu Haywah and Muhammad ibn al-Sumaiqa' read God has written upon you as a past tense verb attributed to the name of God Almighty, and the meaning is God has written upon you what He related of the prohibition. Ubaydah al-Salmani and others said: His saying The Book of God is upon you is an allusion to what is established in the Qur'an from the Almighty's saying: Two, three, and four. There is a flaw in this, and it is more apparent that His saying: The Book of God is upon you is only an allusion to the prohibition that separates people from what the Arabs used to do.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: And lawful for you are all beyond that. Hamzah, Al-Kisa'i, and Asim read in the narration of Hafs And lawful for you in response to Forbidden for you. The rest read with the fat-ha in response to the Almighty's saying: The Book of God is upon you. This requires that no woman is forbidden except for what is mentioned, and it is not like that, for God Almighty has forbidden on the tongue of His Prophet whoever is not mentioned in the verse, so it is added to it. God Almighty said: And whatever the Messenger has given you, take; and what he has forbidden you, refrain from. (al-Hashr 59:7) Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Ibn Shihab said: We see that the aunt of her father and the aunt of her father are in that position. It has been said that the prohibition of marrying a woman and her aunt and her maternal aunt is derived from the verse itself, because God Almighty has forbidden marrying two sisters, and marrying a woman and her aunt is in the same sense as marrying two sisters, or because the aunt is in the same sense as the mother and the aunt is in the same sense as the father. The first is correct because the Book and the Sunnah are like one thing, so it is as if he said: I have made permissible for you what is beyond what we have mentioned in the Book, and what I have completed the explanation with on the tongue of Muhammad, peace be upon him. And Ibn Shihab's statement: We see that the aunt of her father and the aunt of her father are in that position, he only reached that because he carried the aunt and the paternal aunt in generality and he achieved that because the aunt is the name of every female who shares with your father in his two origins or one of them, and the aunt is likewise what we have explained. And in Munsif Abi Dawud and others, "On the authority of Abu Hurayrah, he said that the Messenger of God, peace and blessings be upon him, said:

A woman should not be married to her paternal aunt, nor should an aunt marry her brother's daughter, nor should a woman marry her maternal aunt, nor should an maternal aunt marry her sister's daughter. An older woman should not be married to a younger woman, nor should a younger woman marry an older woman. Abu Dawud also narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, "On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

He disliked marrying a paternal aunt and a maternal aunt, or two paternal aunts and two maternal aunts. The narration "does not marry" by raising the letter 'ayn' on the report regarding the permissibility, which includes the prohibition of that. This hadith is agreed upon to be acted upon in prohibiting marrying those mentioned in it. The Khawarij permitted marrying two sisters, or a woman, her paternal aunt, and her maternal aunt. Their disagreement is not taken into account because they have deviated from the religion and left it, and because they are in opposition to the established Sunnah. And his saying:

It is not permissible to combine two paternal aunts and two maternal aunts. Some scholars were confused and perplexed by its meaning, until they interpreted it as something far-fetched or impermissible. They said: The meaning of between the two paternal aunts is metaphorically, i.e. between the paternal aunt and her niece. So it was said to them: Two paternal aunts, just as it was said: The Sunnah of the two Umars, Abu Bakr and Umar. He said: And between the two maternal aunts is the same. An-Nahhas said: This is an arbitrary act that is hardly heard of. It also includes the fact that it is a repeated statement for no benefit, because if the meaning is that it is forbidden to combine between the paternal aunt and her niece, and between the two paternal aunts, meaning the paternal aunt and her niece, then the statement becomes a repeated statement for no benefit. Also, if it were as he said, it would have to be between the maternal aunt, but that is not the case with the hadith, because the hadith

He forbade marrying a paternal aunt and a maternal aunt. The wording of the hadith means that one should not marry two women, one of whom is the paternal aunt of the other and the other is the maternal aunt of the other. An-Nahhas said: This is taken to mean something correct. A man and his son marry a woman and her daughter. The man marries the daughter and the son marries the mother, and each of them has a daughter from these two wives. The father's daughter is the paternal aunt of the son's daughter and the son's daughter is the paternal aunt of the father's daughter. As for marrying two maternal aunts, this requires that they be two women, each of whom is the paternal aunt of the other. This is when a man marries the daughter of a man and the other marries his daughter, and each of them has a daughter. The daughter of each of them is the paternal aunt of the other. This is what God has forbidden through the tongue of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which is not in the Qur'an.

Fifth: If this is established, then the scholars have concluded a good contract regarding those who are forbidden to combine them. Mu'tamir bin Sulayman narrated on the authority of Fadil bin Maysarah on the authority of Abu Hariz on the authority of Al-Sha'bi who said: Every two women, if a male takes the place of one of them, it is not permissible for him to marry the other, so combining them is invalid. I said to him: Who is this from? He said: From the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Sufyan Al-Thawri said: Its interpretation according to us is that it is from the lineage, and it is not in the position of a woman and her husband's daughter, and he may combine them if he wishes. Abu Omar said: This is according to the doctrine of Malik, Al-Shafi'i, Abu Hanifa, Al-Awza'i, and all the jurists of the regions from the people of hadith and others, as far as I know, they do not differ on this principle. Some of the Salaf disliked that a man should marry a man's daughter and his wife together because if one of them were male, it would not be permissible for him to marry the other. The scholars' view is that there is nothing wrong with that, and that what is taken into consideration is lineage and nothing else, such as marriage. Then some of the reports mentioned the reason for prohibiting marrying two men together, which is what marriage leads to in terms of severing close ties of kinship, which is what happens between co-wives in terms of hatred and evils due to jealousy. Ibn Abbas narrated that he said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

"The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade a man from marrying a woman while he was his paternal aunt or maternal aunt, and said: If you do that, you will sever your ties of kinship." This was mentioned by Abu Muhammad al-Asili in Fawa'idah, Ibn Abd al-Barr, and others, and from the mursals of Abu Dawud. "On the authority of 'Isa ibn Talhah, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade a woman from marrying while she was married to her sisters for fear of severing ties." Some of the early Muslims rejected this reason and forbade marrying a woman and her relative, whether she was a paternal cousin or paternal aunt, or a maternal uncle or maternal aunt. This was narrated on the authority of Ishaq ibn Talhah, 'Ikrimah, Qatadah, and 'Ata' in the narration of Ibn Abi Nujayh. Ibn Jurayj narrated from him that there was nothing wrong with that, and this is correct. Hasan ibn Hasan ibn 'Ali married the daughter of Muhammad ibn 'Ali and the daughter of 'Umar ibn 'Ali on one night, so he married the two daughters of his paternal uncle. 'Abd al-Razzaq mentioned this. Ibn 'Uyaynah added: So their women did not know which of them to go to. Malik disliked this, but it was not forbidden in his view. In the hearing of Ibn al-Qasim: Malik was asked about the two daughters of his paternal uncle, can they be married together? He said: I do not know of it as forbidden. It was said to him: Do you dislike it? He said: Some people avoid it. Ibn al-Qasim said: It is permissible and there is nothing wrong with it. Ibn al-Mundhir said: I do not know of anyone who has invalidated this marriage. They are included in the generality of what is permitted by marriage, not excluded from it by the Book, the Sunnah, or consensus. The same applies to marrying two paternal cousins and two maternal aunts. Al-Suddi said about the words of God the Almighty: And lawful to you are all beyond that meaning marriage without intercourse. It was said: The meaning is: And lawful to you are all beyond those of your mahram relatives. Qatada said: He meant by that the right hand in particular.

Sixth: The Most High said: That you seek with your wealth is a word that includes marriage and purchase, and that is in the accusative case instead of what and according to Hamza's reading it is in the nominative case. It is possible that the meaning is because or that, so the lam or ba is deleted and it is in the accusative case. Chaste is in the accusative case as a state and its meaning is chaste from fornication. Not fornicators means not fornicators. Fornication is adultery, and it is taken from saffah meaning pouring and flowing water, and from it is the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he heard the drums at a wedding:

This marriage is neither fornication nor secret marriage. It has been said that his statement, chaste, not fornicators, has two possible meanings: One of them is what we mentioned, which is chastity through the marriage contract, meaning seek the benefits of the private parts with your money through marriage, not through fornication. So the verse has a general meaning in this sense. It is possible to say, chaste, meaning chastity is a description of them, and its meaning is to marry them on the condition of chastity in them. The first meaning is more appropriate, because whenever it is possible to make the verse general and to relate to its implications, then it is more appropriate. And because the implication of the second meaning is that it is not permissible to marry fornicators, and this is contrary to consensus.

Seventh: His Most High's saying: With your wealth. God permitted sexual intercourse with wealth, but He did not specify. So if it is obtained without wealth, then it is necessary that the permission not occur with it, because it is based on the permitted condition, such as if he had contracted for wine or pigs or something that is not permissible to own. Ahmad's statement that emancipation is a dowry is refuted because in it I am handing over wealth, but rather it is the loss of ownership without her being entitled to the delivery of wealth to her. What the master owned from him was not transferred to her, but rather it was dropped. So if the husband did not hand over anything to her and she did not deserve anything from him, but rather he destroyed his ownership with it, then it is not a dowry. This is clear with the Almighty's saying: And give women and that is a command that requires an obligation, and giving manumission is not valid. And the Almighty's saying: But if they give up willingly to you anything of it, then take it (An-Nisa': 4) and that is impossible in manumission, so there remains that the dowry is nothing but money because the Almighty said: with your wealth and those who said that differed about the amount of that, so Al-Shafi'i relied on the generality of the Almighty's saying: with your wealth in the permissibility of the dowry being little or much, and this is correct and it is supported by his saying, peace be upon him, in the hadith of the gifted woman:

Even if it is an iron ring" and "his saying, peace be upon him:

Marry the unmarried woman three times. It was said: What is the relationship between them, O Messenger of God? He said: What the families agree upon, even if it is a branch of arak. Abu Saeed Al-Khudri said:

We asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the dowry of women, and he said: It is what their families have agreed upon. Jabir narrated that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Al-Daraqutni included them in his Sunan. Al-Shafi'i said: "Everything that can be the price of something, or can be a wage, can be a dowry." This is the opinion of the majority of scholars, and a group of the people of hadith from the people of Madinah and elsewhere, all of them permitted dowries of little or much money. This is the opinion of Abdullah ibn Wahb, the companion of Malik, and Ibn al-Mundhir and others chose it. Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab said: If he gave her a whip as a dowry, it would be permissible for him. He married his daughter to Abdullah ibn Wada'ah for two dirhams. Rabi'ah said: Marriage is permissible for one dirham. Abu al-Zinad said: Whatever the families agree upon. Malik said: The dowry cannot be less than a quarter of a dinar or three dirhams by measure. Some of our companions said in their al-Sharh 94: It is more similar to that, because the private parts are a limb and the hand is a limb that is permissible for a certain amount of money, which is a quarter of a dinar or three dirhams by measure. Some of our companions said in their al-Sharh 94: "It seems that the most similar thing to that is the cutting off of the hand, because the private parts are a limb and the hand is a limb that is permissible for a certain amount of money, which is a quarter of a dinar." Or three dirhams by measure, so Malik returned the portion to him by analogy to the hand. Abu Omar said: Abu Hanifa preceded him in this, so he compared the dowry to the cutting off of the hand, and the hand, in his view, is not cut off except for a gold dinar or ten dirhams by measure, and there is no dowry in his view less than that. And on that is the group of his companions and the people of his school of thought, and it is the opinion of most of the people of his country regarding cutting off the hand, not for the least dowry. Al-Darawardi said to Malik: If he says there is no dowry less than a quarter of a dinar, you have sweated in it, O Abu Abdullah, meaning you have followed the path of the people of Iraq. Abu Hanifa provided evidence for that with what Jabir narrated that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

There is no dowry less than ten dirhams. Narrated by Al-Daraqutni, and in its chain of transmission is Mubashar bin Ubaid, who is rejected. It was narrated on the authority of Dawud Al-Awdi, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ali, peace be upon him: The dowry should not be less than ten dirhams. Ahmad bin Hanbal said: Ghiyath bin Ibrahim taught Dawud Al-Awdi, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ali: There is no dowry less than ten dirhams, so it became a hadith. Al-Nakha'i said: The minimum is forty dirhams. Sa'id bin Jubayr: Fifty dirhams. Ibn Shabramah: Five dirhams. Al-Daraqutni narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him: There is no dowry less than five dirhams.

Eighth - The Almighty's saying: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their due compensation as an obligation. Enjoyment is pleasure and compensation is dowries. The dowry is called compensation because it is the compensation for enjoyment. This is a text that states that the dowry is called compensation, and this is evidence that it is in exchange for sexual intercourse, because what is in exchange for benefit is called compensation. The scholars differed regarding what is contracted upon in marriage: what is it: the woman's body, the benefit of sexual intercourse, or the solution? There are three opinions, and the apparent sum is that the contract requires all of that. And God knows best.

Ninth: The scholars differed in the meaning of the verse. Al-Hasan, Mujahid and others said: The meaning is that if you benefit from and enjoy intercourse with women through a valid marriage, give them their dowries, meaning their dowries. So if he has intercourse with her once, then the full dowry is due if it was specified, or the dowry of her peers if it was not specified. If the marriage was invalid, then the narration differed from Malik regarding the invalid marriage. Is he entitled to the dowry of her peers, or the specified dowry if it was a valid dowry? He said once: The specified dowry, and this is the apparent meaning of his school of thought, because what they have agreed upon is certain, and the dowry of the one who prays is an effort, so it must be referred back to what we are certain of, because money is not due in doubt. The reason for his saying: The dowry of her peers is that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Any woman who marries without the permission of her guardian, her marriage is invalid, but if he consummates the marriage with her, she is entitled to a dower like that of her peers for what he has made permissible of her vagina." Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: "It is not permissible to interpret the verse as permissible for mut'ah, because the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) forbade mut'ah marriage and prohibited it, and because God the Most High said: "Then marry them with the permission of their people" (An-Nisa': 25). It is known that marriage with the permission of the people is the lawful marriage with a guardian and two witnesses, and mut'ah marriage is not like that. The majority said: What is meant is mut'ah marriage that existed in the early days of Islam. Ibn Abbas, Ubayy and Ibn Jubayr read: Then give them their due compensation for whatever you enjoy of them for a specified term. Then the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) forbade it. Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab said: The verse on inheritance abrogated it, since there was no inheritance in mut'ah. Aisha and al-Qasim ibn Muhammad said: "Its prohibition and abrogation are in the Qur'an, and that is in the words of God the Most High: "And those who guard their private parts, except from their wives or those their right hands possess, for indeed, they will not be blamed.” (al-Mu’minun 23:70)

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Mut’ah is not marriage nor is it a right hand possession. Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, who said:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade temporary marriage. He said: It was only for them, but when marriage, divorce, waiting period, and inheritance were revealed between the husband and the wife, they were abrogated. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he said: The fast of Ramadan abrogated all fasting, and zakat abrogated all charity, and divorce, waiting period, and inheritance abrogated temporary marriage, and the sacrifice abrogated all slaughtering. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas’ud that he said: Temporary marriage was abrogated, abrogated by divorce, waiting period, and inheritance. Ata’ narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Temporary marriage was nothing but a mercy from God, the Most High, with which He showed mercy to His servants, and had it not been for ‘Umar’s prohibition of it, none would have committed adultery except the wretched.

Tenth - Scholars differed on how many times it was permitted and abrogated. In Sahih Muslim, “On the authority of Abdullah, he said:

We were on military expeditions with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and we had no women with us. So we said: Should we not castrate ourselves? Abu Hatim al-Basti said in his Sahih: His saying to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: “Should we not castrate ourselves?” is evidence that mut’ah was forbidden before I permitted them to enjoy it. If it had not been forbidden, their question about this would have had no meaning. Then he permitted them during the conquest to marry a woman for a garment for a period. Then he forbade it in the year of Khaybar, then he permitted it in the year of the conquest, then he forbade it after three days. So it is forbidden until the Day of Resurrection. Ibn al-Arabi said: As for mut’ah on women, it is one of the strange things in the Shari’ah, because it was permitted in the early days of Islam, then it was forbidden on the day of Khaybar, then it was permitted in the conquest of Awtas, then it was forbidden after that and the matter was settled on the prohibition. It has no sister in the Shari’ah except the issue of the qibla, because abrogation occurred to it twice and then it was settled after that. Another of those who collected the chains of narrations about it said: It requires making it permissible and forbidden seven times. Ibn Abi ‘Umrah narrated that it was in the early days of Islam, and Salamah ibn al-Akwa’ narrated that it was in the year of Awtas. From Ali’s narration:

It was prohibited on the day of Khaybar. According to the narration of Al-Rabi’ bin Seerah:

It was permitted on the day of the conquest.

I said: All of these paths are in Sahih Muslim, and in other hadiths on the authority of Ali, who forbade it in the Battle of Tabuk. It was narrated by Ishaq bin Rashid on the authority of Al-Zuhri on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Ali on the authority of his father on the authority of Ali, and Ishaq bin Rashid was not followed in this narration on the authority of Ibn Shihab. Abu Omar, may God have mercy on him, said it. And in the Musannaf of Abu Dawud from the hadith of Al-Rabi’ bin Sabra:

It was prohibited during the Farewell Pilgrimage. Abu Dawood said that this is the most authentic narration on this matter. Amr said on the authority of Al-Hasan: Mut’ah was never permissible except three times during the Umrah of Compensation, and it was not permissible before or after it. This was also narrated on the authority of Sabra. So these are seven situations in which Mut’ah was permissible and forbidden. Abu Ja’far al-Tahawi said: All of those who narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that she was on a journey, and that the prohibition came to her on that journey after that, so she was prevented from it, and none of them reported that she was in a city. And the same was narrated from Ibn Mas’ud. As for the hadith of Sabra, in which the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, permitted her to do so during the Farewell Pilgrimage, it is outside of all its meanings. We have considered this wording and did not find it except in the narration of ‘Abd al-‘Aziz ibn ‘Umar ibn ‘Abd al-‘Aziz specifically. Ismail ibn ‘Ayyash narrated it from ‘Abd al-‘Aziz ibn ‘Umar ibn ‘Abd al-‘Aziz, and he mentioned that this was during the conquest of Mecca and that they complained to him about celibacy, so he permitted them to do so. It is impossible for them to complain to him about celibacy during the Farewell Pilgrimage, because they had performed the pilgrimage with women, and marrying women in Mecca was possible, and they were not then as they were during the previous conquests. It is possible that since it was the custom of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to repeat such a thing during his campaigns and in the general places, he mentioned its prohibition during the Farewell Pilgrimage, for the people to gather so that those who had not heard it could hear it, so he emphasized that so that it would not remain. A suspicion for someone who claims to analyze it, and because the people of Mecca used it a lot.

Eleventh - Al-Layth bin Saad narrated on the authority of Bakir bin Al-Ashja on the authority of Ammar, the freed slave of Al-Shuraib, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas about Mut’ah, is it fornication or marriage? He said: Neither fornication nor marriage. I said: What is it? He said: Mut’ah is as God the Almighty said. I said: Is there a waiting period for it? He said: Yes, it is a menstrual period. I said: Do they inherit from each other? He said: No. Abu Omar said: The scholars of the past and present did not differ that Mut'ah is a marriage for a specified period in which there is no inheritance, and separation occurs at the end of the period without divorce. Ibn Atiyah said: Mut'ah was for a man to marry a woman with two witnesses and the permission of the guardian for a specified period and on the condition that there is no inheritance between them, and he gives her what they agreed upon. When the period expires, he has no right to her and he purifies her womb because there is no right to the child without a doubt. If she does not bear children, she is permissible for someone else. In the book of Al-Nahhas: There is a mistake in this and that the child is not attributed to Mut'ah marriage.

I said: This is what is understood from the words of Al-Nahhas. He said: The pleasure marriage is that he says to her: I will marry you one day - or something similar to that, on the condition that there is no waiting period for you, no inheritance between us, no divorce, and no witness to testify to that. This is adultery itself and it was never permitted in Islam. Therefore, Omar said: If a man who has married for pleasure is brought to me, I will hide him under the stones.

Twelfth - Our scholars differed if he entered into a temporary marriage, whether he should be punished and the child should not be attributed to him, or whether the punishment should be waived due to doubt and the child should be attributed to him, according to two opinions, but he should be punished and aggravated. If the child is attributed to the temporary marriage today, according to the opinion of some scholars, with the opinion that it is forbidden, then how can he not be attributed at that time when it was permitted? This indicates that the temporary marriage was subject to the ruling of a valid marriage and differs from it in the term and inheritance. Al-Mahdawi narrated from Ibn Abbas that the temporary marriage was without a guardian or witnesses, and in what he narrated it is weak because of what we mentioned. Ibn Al-Arabi said: Ibn Abbas used to say that it was permissible, then it was proven that he returned from us, so the consensus was reached on its prohibition, so if someone did it, he should be stoned according to the well-known school of thought. In another narration from Malik: He should not be stoned because the temporary marriage is not forbidden. However, the principle is different for our scholars, which is strange and they are unique in it, without the rest of the scholars, which is that what is forbidden by the Sunnah, is it like what is forbidden by the Qur'an or not? From the narration of some of the Medinans on the authority of Malik that they are not equal, and this is weak. Abu Bakr al-Tartusi said: No one permitted temporary marriage except Imran bin Husayn, Ibn Abbas, some of the Companions, and a group of the people of the house. And in the statement of Ibn Abbas, the poet says:

I say to the caravan when the time for resting is approaching us, O friend, would you like the fatwa of Ibn Abbas?

In the egg of the license of soft edges, your abode will be until the people refer

And all the scholars and jurists from the Companions, the Followers, and the righteous predecessors are of the opinion that this verse was abrogated and that temporary marriage is forbidden. Abu Omar said: The companions of Ibn Abbas from the people of Mecca and Yemen all consider temporary marriage permissible according to the doctrine of Ibn Abbas, and all the rest of the people forbade it. Omar said: Al-Zuhri said: The women's hatred for it increased. The poet said:

The narrator said, when his session was prolonged, O friend, would you like to have a fatwa from Ibn Abbas?

As presented

Thirteenth - The Almighty's saying: Their wages includes money and other things, so it is permissible for the dowry to be benefits in kind. The scholars differed on this, so Malik, Al-Muzani, Al-Layth, Ahmad, Abu Hanifa and his companions forbade it. However, Abu Hanifa said: If he marries on that basis, then the marriage is permissible and he is like someone who did not name it for her, and she is entitled to a dowry like hers if he consummates the marriage with her. If he does not consummate the marriage with her, then she is entitled to a temporary marriage. Ibn Al-Qasim disliked it in the book of Muhammad, and Asbagh permitted it. Ibn Shas said: If it occurs, it is valid according to the opinion of most of the companions, and it is the narration of Asbagh from Ibn Al-Qasim. Al-Shafi'i said: The marriage is valid and he must teach her what he stipulated for her. If he divorces her before consummation, then Al-Shafi'i has two opinions on it: One of them is that she is entitled to half the wage for teaching that surah, and the other is that she is entitled to half the dowry like hers. Ishaq said: The marriage is permissible. Abu Al-Hasan Al-Lakhmi said: The opinion that all of that is permissible is better. Renting and Hajj are like other wealth that can be owned, bought and sold. Malik disliked this because it is preferable for the dowry to be immediate, and the rental and Hajj are in the sense of deferred. The people of the first opinion argued that God the Almighty said: with your wealth and the realization of wealth is that which is related to desires and is considered for benefit and the benefit of the neck in the rental and the benefit of teaching for knowledge is not all wealth. Al-Tahawi said: The common principle is that if a man hires a man to teach him a surah from the Qur'an and he names it for a dirham, it is not permissible because rentals are not permissible except for one of two meanings, either for a specific job like sewing a garment and the like, or for a known time. And if he hires him to teach a surah, then that is a rental not for a known time nor for a known job nor for a known job, but he hired him to teach, and it may be understood by a little or a lot of teaching in a little or a lot of times. Likewise, if he sells him his house on the condition that he teaches him a surah from the Qur'an, it is not permissible for the meanings that we mentioned in the rental. And if the teaching does not own benefits or the essence of the money, it is proven by consideration that merchandise is not owned by it, and God is the Grantor of success. Those who permitted this cited the hadith of Sahl ibn Sa'd in the hadith of the gift, in which he said:

Go, for I have given her to you with what you have of

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise the Qur'an. In another narration he said: Go, for I have given her to you in marriage, so teach her from the Qur'an. They said: In this there is evidence of the conclusion of the marriage contract and the delay of the dowry, which is the education. This is according to what appears from his saying:

With what you have of the Qur'an, for the ba' is for compensation, as you say: Take this with this, meaning in exchange for it. And his saying in the other narration: So he taught her is a text in the command to teach, and the path testifies that this is for the sake of marriage. And no attention should be paid to the saying of those who said that this was to honor the man for what he had memorized of the Qur'an, meaning for what he had memorized, so the ba' is in the meaning of the lam, for the second hadith clearly states the opposite in his saying: So they taught him of the Qur'an. And there is no proof in what was narrated from Abu Talhah that he proposed to Umm Sulaym and she said: If he becomes Muslim, I will marry him, so he becomes Muslim and she marries him, and he does not know the dowry that was more honorable than her dowry, her dowry was Islam, for that is specific to him, and also nothing from it reaches them, unlike teaching and other benefits. And Shu'ayb, peace be upon him, married his daughter to Moses, peace be upon him, on the condition that he would tend sheep for him as her dowry, as will be explained in Surat al-Qasas. And it was narrated from the hadith of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to a man from among his companions:

O so-and-so, are you married? He said: No, I do not have what to get married with. He said: Do you not have Qul Huwa Allahu Ahad? He said: Yes. He said: A third of the Qur'an. Do you not have Ayat al-Kursi? He said: Yes. He said: A quarter of the Qur'an. Do you not have If the Earthquake Befalls You? He said: Yes. He said: A quarter of the Qur'an. Get married, get married?

I said: Al-Darqutni has included the hadith of Sahl from the hadith of Ibn Masoud, and in it there is an addition that clarifies what Malik and others have used as evidence, and in it there is: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Who will marry her? The man stood up and said: I will, O Messenger of God. He said: Do you have any money? He said: No, O Messenger of God. He said: Do you recite anything from the Qur'an? He said: Yes, Surat Al-Baqarah and Surat Al-Mufasssal. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I have married her to you on the condition that you recite to her and teach her, and if God provides for you, I will compensate her. So the man married her on that basis. This is a text - if it is authentic - that education is not a dowry. Al-Daraqutni said: It was narrated by Utbah ibn Al-Sakin alone and his hadith is rejected. "Fardiya" is an accusative of the source in the place of a state or imposed.

Fourteenth - The Almighty said: And there is no blame upon you for that upon which you mutually agree after the obligation meaning, an increase or decrease in the dowry, for that is permissible upon mutual agreement after the obligation has been established, and what is meant is the woman being released from the dowry, or the man paying the entire dowry if he divorced before consummation. Those who say that the verse is about temporary marriage said that this is an indication of what they agreed upon of increasing the period of temporary marriage in the beginning of Islam, for a man would marry a woman for a month in exchange for a dinar, for example, and when months passed, he might say: Give me more time and I will give you more dowry. So it is clear that that was permissible upon mutual agreement.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This noble verse is the verse of the prohibition of kinship and what follows it from breastfeeding and kinship, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abd al-Rahman bin Mahdi told us on the authority of Sufyan bin Habib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Seven kinship and seven kinship are prohibited to you, and he recited Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters the verse, and Abu Saeed bin Yahya bin Saeed told us, Abu Ahmad told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ismail bin Raja' on the authority of Umair, the client of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Seven kinship and seven kinship are prohibited, then he recited Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, your paternal aunts, your maternal aunts, your brother's daughters, and your sister's daughters so they are kinship. The majority of scholars have proven the prohibition of the woman created from the sperm of the adulterer to him by the generality of the Almighty's saying: and your daughters because she is a daughter, so she is included in the generality as is the doctrine of Abu Hanifa, Malik and Ahmad ibn Hanbal. It has been reported from al-Shafi'i that she is permissible because she is not a legitimate daughter. Just as she is not included in the words of God Almighty: "God instructs you concerning your children: for the male, what is equal to the share of two females," she does not inherit by consensus, so too she is not included in this verse, and God knows best. And God Almighty's words: And your mothers who breastfed you and your foster sisters, meaning just as your mother who gave birth to you is forbidden to you, so is your mother who breastfed you. For this reason, it is proven in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Malik ibn Anas from Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr ibn Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Hazm, from Amra bint Abd al-Rahman, from Aisha, the Mother of the Believers, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Breastfeeding forbids what birth forbids, and in a wording of Muslim: Breastfeeding forbids what lineage forbids, and some jurists said: Everything that is forbidden by lineage is forbidden by breastfeeding except in four cases. Some of them said: Six cases are mentioned in the books of branches and investigation that nothing is excluded from that, because there are some of them by lineage. Some of them are only forbidden due to marriage, so nothing is rejected in the hadith at all, praise be to God, and He is trustworthy. Then the imams differed regarding the number of forbidden breastfeedings. Some of them went to the view that mere breastfeeding is forbidden due to the generality of this verse, and this is the view of Malik, and it is narrated from Ibn Umar, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Urwah bin Al-Zubayr, and Al-Zuhri went to it. Others said: Less than three breastfeedings are not forbidden, because of what was proven in Saheeh Muslim on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Neither one suckling nor two sucklings are forbidden. Qatada said, on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Harith, on the authority of Umm Al-Fadl, she said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Neither one suckling nor two sucklings are forbidden, nor one suckling nor two sucklings. In another wording: Neither one licking nor two lickings are forbidden. Narrated by Muslim. Among those who went to this view are: Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal, Ishaq bin Rahawayh, Abu Ubaid, and Abu Thawr, and it is Narrated on the authority of Ali, Aisha, Umm al-Fadl, Ibn al-Zubayr, Sulayman ibn Yasar, and Sa'id ibn Jubayr, may God have mercy on them. Others said: Less than five breastfeedings do not make a marriage forbidden, as it was proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr, on the authority of 'Umarah, on the authority of 'Aishah, may God be pleased with her, who said: Among what was revealed in the Qur'an was ten known breastfeedings make a marriage forbidden, then it was abrogated by five known breastfeedings, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, died while they were among what was recited in the Qur'an. 'Abd al-Razzaq narrated on the authority of Mu'ammarr, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of 'Urwah, on the authority of 'Aishah, something similar to that. In the hadith of Sahlah bint Suhayl, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered her to breastfeed Salim, the freed slave of Abu Hudhaifah, five times, and 'Aishah used to order whoever wanted to enter upon her to breastfeed five times, and this is what al-Shafi'i and his companions said. Then it should be known that breastfeeding must be at a young age, less than two years, according to the majority opinion. And as we have already discussed this issue in Surat al-Baqarah, when He said: They shall breastfeed their children for two complete years, for whoever desires to complete the breastfeeding. Then they differed as to whether the milk of stallions is forbidden, as is the opinion of the majority of the four imams and others, or is breastfeeding only specific to the mother, and does not extend to the father's side, as is the opinion of some of the predecessors? There are two opinions, the clarification of all of this is in the book of the great rulings. And his saying, "And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have gone in. But if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you." As for the mother of the woman, she becomes forbidden as soon as the contract is made with her daughter, whether he has gone in to her or not. As for the stepdaughter, who is the daughter of the woman, she is not forbidden as soon as the contract is made with her mother until he has gone in. If he divorces the mother before going in to her, it is permissible for him to marry her daughter. For this reason, he said, "And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women to whom you have gone in. But if you have not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you" in marrying them. This is specific to the stepdaughters alone. Some of them understood the pronoun to refer to the mothers and stepdaughters, so he said: Neither the mother nor the daughter becomes forbidden as soon as the contract is made with the other until he has gone in to her, based on his saying. But if he has not gone in to them, there is no blame upon you. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us, Ibn Abi Uday and Abd al-A'la told us on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Khalas ibn Amr, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, regarding a man who married a woman and divorced her before consummating the marriage with her. Can he marry her mother? He said: She is like a stepdaughter. Ibn Bashir told us, Yahya ibn Sa'id told us on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, on the authority of Zayd ibn Thabit, who said: If a man divorces his wife before consummating the marriage with her, there is no harm in marrying her mother. In a narration on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Sa'id, on the authority of Zayd ibn Thabit, he used to say: If she dies with him and he takes her inheritance, he dislikes leaving a legacy to her mother. So if he divorces her before consummating the marriage with her, then if he wishes, he may do so. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ishaq told us on the authority of Abd al-Razzaq, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: Abu Bakr ibn Hafs told me on the authority of Muslim ibn Uwaimir al-Ajda', that Bakr ibn Kinanah told him that his father married him to a woman in Ta'if. He said: So he did not I had intercourse with her until my uncle died, leaving her mother behind. Her mother had a lot of money. My father said: Would you like her mother? I asked Ibn Abbas and told him the story. He said: Marry her mother. I asked Ibn Umar, and he said: Do not marry her. I told my father what they had said. He wrote to Muawiyah and told him what they had said. Muawiyah wrote: I do not make permissible what God has forbidden, nor do I forbid what God has made permissible. You and I have many other women. But he did not forbid me or give me permission. My father turned away from her mother and did not marry her. Abd al-Razzaq said: Mu'ammarr told us, on the authority of Samak ibn al-Fadl, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: The stepdaughter and the mother are equal, there is no problem with her if he has not consummated the marriage with the woman. In its chain of transmission is an unknown man who was not named. Ibn Jurayj said: Ikrimah ibn Khalid told me that Mujahid said to him: And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship, meaning by them both consummation. This statement, as you see, was narrated on the authority of Ali, Zayd ibn Thabit, and Abdullah ibn Al-Zubayr, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubair and Ibn Abbas, and Muawiyah hesitated about it. Abu al-Hasan Ahmad bin Muhammad bin al-Sabuni from the Shafi'i went to him in what al-Rafi'i transmitted from al-Abbadi. It was narrated from Ibn Mas'ud something similar, then he went back on it. Al-Tabarani said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim al-Dabari told us, Abd al-Razzaq told us from al-Thawri, from Abu Farwa, from Abu Amr al-Shaibani, from Ibn Mas'ud: That a man from Banu Kamkh from Fazara married a woman and saw her mother and she pleased him. He asked Ibn Mas'ud, who ordered him to separate from her, then he married her mother, so he married her and she bore him children, then Ibn Mas'ud came to Medina and was asked about that, and he was informed that she was not permissible for him, so when he returned to Kufa he said to the man: She is forbidden to you, so he separated from her. The majority of scholars are of the opinion that a stepdaughter is not forbidden by the marriage contract with the mother, unlike the mother, who is forbidden by the mere contract. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ja'far bin Muhammad bin Harun bin Azra told us, Abd al-Wahhab told us from Saeed, from Qatada, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he used to say: If a man divorces a woman before consummating the marriage with her or she dies, her mother is not permissible for him. It was narrated that he said: She is ambiguous, so he disliked her. Then he said: Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud, Imran bin Husayn, Masruq, Tawus, Ikrimah, Ata, Al-Hasan, Makhul, Ibn Sirin, Qatadah, and Al-Zuhri. This is the doctrine of the four imams and the seven jurists, and the majority of jurists, both ancient and modern, and praise and thanks be to God. Ibn Jarir said: The correct view is that of those who said: The mother is among the ambiguous, because God did not stipulate consummation with them as He stipulated with the mothers of stepdaughters, although this is also a consensus of the proof that it is not permissible to contradict what it came with and agreed upon. This was also narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, a report, but there is a problem with its chain of transmission, which is what Al-Muthanna told me, Habban bin Musa told us, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, Al-Muthanna bin Al-Sabah told us on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If a man marries a woman, it is not permissible for him to marry her mother, whether he has consummated the marriage with the daughter or not. If he marries the mother but does not consummate the marriage with her and then divorces her, then if he wishes he may marry the daughter." Then he said: This report, even if there is something in its chain of transmission, the consensus of the evidence for the validity of the statement about it makes it unnecessary to cite other evidence for its validity. As for the statement of God Almighty: And your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship, the majority are of the opinion that the stepdaughter is forbidden whether she is in the guardianship of the man or not. They said: This address was made in a general manner and has no meaning, like the statement of God Almighty: And do not compel your girls to prostitution if they desire chastity. In the two Sahihs, it is narrated that Umm Habibah said: O Messenger of God, marry my sister, the daughter of Abu Sufyan, and in a wording of Muslim, 'Azza bint Abu Sufyan. He said: Do you like that? She said: Yes, I am not your exclusive wife, and I like someone who shares in my sister's goodness. He said: Then that is not permissible for me. She said: We have been told that you want to marry the daughter of Abu Sufyan. Salamah said: The daughter of Umm Salamah? She said: Yes. He said: "If she were not my stepdaughter in my care, she would not be permissible for me. She is the daughter of my brother through breastfeeding. Thuwaybah breastfed me and Abu Salamah, so do not offer me your daughters or sisters." And in a narration by al-Bukhari: If I had not married Umm Salamah, she would not have been permissible for me. So he made the criterion for prohibition the mere fact that he married Umm Salamah, and he ruled that it was prohibited for that reason. This is the doctrine of the four imams, the seven jurists, and the majority of the successors and predecessors. It has been said: A stepdaughter is not prohibited unless she is in the care of a man. If she is not like that, then she is not prohibited. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Ibrahim ibn Musa told us, Hisham told us - meaning Ibn Yusuf - on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, Ibrahim ibn Ubayd ibn Rafa'ah told me, Malik ibn Aws ibn al-Hadathan told me: I had a wife who died, and she had given birth to a child for me, so I was upset with her. Ali ibn Abi Talib met me and said: What is the matter with you? I said: The woman died. Ali said: She has a daughter. ? I said: Yes, and she is in Taif. He said: Was she in your custody? I said: No, she is in Taif. He said: Then marry her. I said: Where is the statement of God, And your stepdaughters who are in your laps? He said: She was not in your lap, but rather if she is in your lap, this is a strong chain of transmission that goes back to Ali ibn Abi Talib according to the conditions of Muslim, and it is a very strange statement, and this is what Dawud ibn Ali al-Zahiri and his companions went to. Abu al-Qasim al-Rafi'i narrated it from Malik, may God have mercy on him, and Ibn Hazm chose it, and our Sheikh, the hafiz Abu Abdullah al-Dhahabi, told me that he presented this to Sheikh Imam Taqi al-Din Ibn Taymiyyah, may God have mercy on him, and he found it difficult and hesitated about it, and God knows best. Ibn al-Mundhir said: Ali ibn Abdul Aziz told us, al-Athram told us, from Abu Ubaidah, his statement, who are in your laps, he said: In your houses, and as for the stepdaughter who is in the possession of the right hand, Imam Malik ibn Anas said, from Ibn Shihab: Umar ibn al-Khattab was asked about a woman and her daughter who is in the possession of the right hand, is one of them having intercourse with the other? Umar said: I do not like it. To tell them both means that I have intercourse with them both through my right hand, and this is disconnected. Sanid bin Dawud said in his interpretation: Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Tariq bin Abdul Rahman, on the authority of Qais, who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: Can a man have intercourse with a woman and her daughter who are his slaves? He said: One verse made them permissible and another forbade them, and I would not do it. Sheikh Abu Omar bin Abdul Barr, may God have mercy on him, said: There is no disagreement among the scholars that it is not permissible for anyone to have intercourse with a woman and her daughter from whom the right hand belongs, because God has forbidden that in marriage. He said: And the mothers of your women and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship from your women. And the right hand belongs to them as a consequence of marriage, except for what was narrated from Omar and Ibn Abbas, and none of the imams of fatwa or those who followed them agreed on that. Hisham narrated from Qatada: The stepdaughter and the daughter of her daughter are not suitable even if she is lower with many bellies, and Qatada said the same from Abu Al-Aaliyah, and the meaning of his saying those with whom you have consummated the marriage is that you have married them, as Ibn Abbas and more than one said. Ibn Jurayj said from Ata': It is that she is presented to him so he uncovers and searches and sits between her legs. I said: What do you think if he does that in her family's house? He said: It is the same, and it is sufficient for him that her daughter has been forbidden to him. Ibn Jarir said: And there is consensus Everyone agrees that a man's seclusion with a woman does not make her daughter forbidden to him if he divorces her before touching her or looking at her vagina with lust, which indicates that the meaning of that is reaching her through intercourse.

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

And the Almighty's saying: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins meaning, the wives of your sons whom you gave birth to from your loins are forbidden to you, thus precluding the adopted sons whom they used to adopt in the pre-Islamic era. As the Almighty said: And when Zaid had no longer any need for her, We married her to you in order that there should be no blame upon the believers concerning the wives of their adopted sons Al-An'am 2:14. Ibn Jurayj said: I asked Ata' about His saying: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins. He said: We were told - and God knows best - that when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, married Zayd's wife, the polytheists in Mecca spoke about that, so God Almighty revealed: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins, and And He has not made your adopted sons your sons, and Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, was revealed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Muhammad ibn Abi

Bakr al-Muqaddami told us, al-Jarh ibn al-Harith told us on the authority of al-Ash'ath, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Muhammad: that these verses are vague: And the wives of your sons, and And the mothers of your women, then he said: It was narrated on the authority of Tawus, Ibrahim, al-Zuhri, and Makhul, something similar to that. I said The meaning of ambiguous is general in the case of the one who has been consummated with and the one who has not been consummated with, so she is forbidden as soon as the contract is made with her, and this is agreed upon. If it is said: So how is the wife of his son forbidden from breastfeeding as is the opinion of the majority, and some people narrate it as a consensus and not from his lineage, then the answer is from his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace: What is forbidden from breastfeeding is forbidden as is forbidden from lineage and the saying of God the Almighty: And that you marry two sisters together, except for what has already occurred verse. That is, it is forbidden for you to marry two sisters together, and likewise in the case of possession by the right hand, except for what you did in your ignorance, for we have pardoned and forgiven it. This indicates that there is no duality in what will come and no exception in what has occurred, as He said: They will not taste death therein except the first death verse. This indicates that they will never taste death therein. The scholars from the Companions, the Followers, and the Imams, past and present, have agreed that it is forbidden to marry two sisters together, and whoever converts to Islam and has two sisters, it is better for him to keep one of them and divorce the other without fail. Imam Ahmad said: Musa ibn Dawud told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Abu Wahb al-Jishani, on the authority of al-Dahhak ibn Fayruz, on the authority of his father, who said: I converted to Islam and I had two sisters with me, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered me to divorce one of them. Then Imam Ahmad, al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, and Abu Dawud and al-Tirmidhi also narrated it on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, both on the authority of Abu Wahb al-Jishani. Al-Tirmidhi said: His name is Daylam ibn al-Hawsha', on the authority of al-Dahhak ibn Fayruz al-Daylami, on the authority of his father, on his authority. And in a wording of al-Tirmidhi. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Choose whichever of them you wish. Then al-Tirmidhi said: This is a hasan hadith. Ibn Majah also narrated it with another chain of transmission, saying: Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Abd al-Salam ibn Harb told us, on the authority of Ishaq ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Farwah, on the authority of Abu Wahb al-Jayshani, on the authority of Abu Khurash al-Ra'ini, who said: I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I had two sisters whom I had married during the pre-Islamic era. He said: When you return, divorce one of them. I said: It is possible that this Abu Khurash is al-Dahhak ibn Fayruz, and it is possible that it is someone else, so Abu Wahb narrated it on the authority of two people on the authority of Fayruz al-Daylami, and God knows best. Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Yahya bin Muhammad bin Yahya told us, Ahmad bin Yahya Al-Khawlani told us, Haitham bin Kharijah told us, Yahya bin Ishaq told us on the authority of Ishaq bin

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

Abdullah bin Abi Farwa, on the authority of Raziq bin Hakim, on the authority of Kathir bin Murrah, on the authority of Al-Daylami, who said: I said: O Messenger of God, I have two sisters. He said: Divorce whichever one you wish. The Daylami mentioned first is Al-Dahhak bin Fayruz Al-Daylami. Abu Zur'ah Al-Dimashqi said: He was a companion of Abdul-Malik bin Marwan. The second is Abu Fayruz Al-Daylami, may God be pleased with him, and he was among the princes in Yemen who were responsible for killing Al-Aswad Al-Ansi, the prophet, may God curse him. As for combining two sisters in one's possession, it is also forbidden due to the generality of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Musa ibn Ismail told us, Hammad ibn Salamah told us, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abi Unbah or Utbah, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, that he was asked about a man who marries two sisters at the same time, and he disliked it, so he said to him - meaning the questioner: God the Almighty says: Except what your right hands possess. Ibn Mas'ud, may God be pleased with him, said to him: And your camel from what your right hand possesses. This is the well-known view from the majority, the four imams and others, although some of the early Muslims hesitated about it. Imam Malik said, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Qubaysah ibn Dhu'ayb: A man asked Uthman ibn Affan about two sisters whom the right hand possesses, can he marry them at the same time? Uthman said: One verse has made them permissible and another has forbidden them, and I would not do that. So he left him and met a man from the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and asked him about that, and he said: If I had any say in the matter and I found someone doing that, I would make him an example. Malik said: Ibn Shihab said: I think he was Ali ibn Abi Talib. He said: I was told something similar from Al-Zubayr ibn Al-Awwam. Ibn Abd Al-Barr Al-Namri may God have mercy on him said in the book Al-Istidhkar: Qubaysah ibn Dhu'ayb was given the nickname of Ali ibn Abi Talib because he was a companion of Abd Al-Malik ibn Marwan, and they found mentioning Ali ibn Abi Talib may God be pleased with him burdensome. Then Abu Omar said: Khalaf ibn Ahmad told me, reading to him: Khalaf ibn Mutraf told them: Ayoub ibn Sulayman, Saeed ibn Sulayman, and Muhammad ibn Umar ibn Lubabah told us: Abu Zayd Abd Al-Rahman ibn Ibrahim told us: Abu Abd Al-Rahman Al-Muqri told us on the authority of Musa ibn Ayoub Al-Ghafiqi: My uncle Iyas ibn Amir told me: I asked Ali ibn Abi Talib and said: I have two sisters from those whom my right hand possesses, one of them was a concubine and she bore me children, then I desired the other, so what should I do? Ali may God be pleased with him said: You free the one you had intercourse with, then you have intercourse with the other. I said: Some people say: Rather, marry her, then have intercourse with the other. Ali said: What do you think if her husband divorces her or dies, does she not return to you? Because it is safer for you to free her. Then Ali took my hand and said to me: What is forbidden to you from what your right hand possesses is what is forbidden to you in the Book of God, the Almighty, of free women, except for a number, or he said: except for four, and what is forbidden to you from breastfeeding is what is forbidden to you in the Book of God of lineage. Then Abu Omar said: This hadith is about a journey. If a man from the farthest west or east to Mecca did not find anyone else, his journey would not be in vain. I said: It has been narrated from Ali similar to what was narrated from Uthman. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Muhammad bin Abbas told us, Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Mubarak Al-Mukhrami told us, Abdul Rahman bin Ghazwan told us, Sufyan told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Ali bin Abi Talib said to me: A verse has forbidden them and a verse has permitted them - meaning the two sisters - Ibn Abbas said: What is forbidden to me is my kinship to them, but what is forbidden to me is not their kinship to one another, meaning the slave girls. And the pre-Islamic era used to forbid what they forbade except for the father's wife and combining two sisters. Then when Islam came, God revealed: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married, except what has already occurred "And that you marry two sisters together, except what has already occurred" meaning in marriage. Then Abu Omar said: Imam Ahmad bin Hanbal narrated, Muhammad bin Salamah narrated to us, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, who said: What is forbidden of slave women is what is forbidden of free women, except for a number. And something similar was narrated from Ibn Masoud and Al-Sha'bi. Abu Omar said: A statement similar to what Uthman said was narrated from a group of the Salaf, including Ibn Abbas, but they differed upon them, and none of the jurists of the regions, the Hijaz, Iraq, or what is beyond them in the East, the Levant, or the West paid attention to it, except for those who deviated from their group by following the apparent meaning and denying analogy. And those who do that have abandoned what we have agreed upon, and the group of jurists agree that it is not permissible to marry two sisters by right hand possession in intercourse, just as it is not permissible in marriage. Muslims have agreed that the meaning of His statement, Forbidden to you are your mothers, your daughters, your sisters, to the end of the verse, is that marriage and right hand possession are the same for all of them. So it should be the same, by analogy and consideration, when combining two sisters, mothers of women, and stepdaughters. This is also the case with the majority of them, and they are the argument that is used as evidence by those who disagree with it and deviate from it. And the statement of God Almighty, And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, means that chaste foreign women, who are married, except those your right hands possess, means except those you possess through captivity, for it is permissible for you to have intercourse with them if you have purified them, for the verse was revealed regarding that. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, Sufyan al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, on the authority of Abu al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, who said: We captured women from the captives of Awtas, and they had husbands, so we disliked having intercourse with them while they had husbands, so we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and this verse was revealed: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, so we made their private parts lawful for us. This is how al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Ahmad ibn Mani' on the authority of Hisham, and al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri and Shu'bah ibn al-Hajjaj, all three on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, and Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Ash'ath ibn Suray on the authority of Uthman al-Batti, and Muslim narrated it in his Sahih on the authority of Shu'bah on the authority of Qatadah, both of them on the authority of Abu al-Khalil Salih ibn Abi Maryam, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, and he mentioned it. This is how Abd al-Razzaq narrated it on the authority of Mu'mar, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri. It was narrated from another chain of transmission on the authority of Abu Al-Khalil, on the authority of Abu Alqamah Al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri. Imam Ahmad said: Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of Abu Alqamah, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, that the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, captured female captives on the day of Awtas, who had husbands from the polytheists. It was as if some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, refrained and felt guilty for having sexual intercourse with them. He said: So this verse was revealed concerning that: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is how Muslim, Abu Dawud and Al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Saeed bin Abi Arubah. Muslim added: and Shu'bah. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Hammam bin Yahya, all three of them on the authority of Qatadah with a similar chain of transmission. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is a hasan hadith, and I do not know that anyone mentioned Abu Alqamah in this hadith except what Hammam mentioned on the authority of Qatadah - this is what he said - and Saeed and Shu'bah followed him, and God knows best.

Al-Tabarani narrated from the hadith of Ad-Dahhak from Ibn Abbas: It was revealed about the captives of Khaybar, and he mentioned a hadith similar to that of Abu Saeed. A group of the Salaf held that the sale of a female slave is a divorce for her from her husband, taking into account the generality of this verse. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, from Shu'bah, from Mughirah, from Ibrahim, that he was asked about a female slave who is sold and has a husband. He said: Abdullah used to say: Her sale is her divorce. And he would recite this verse: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. Sufyan narrated it likewise from Mansur, Mughirah, and Al-A' mash from Ibrahim from Ibn Mas'ud, who said: Her sale is her divorce, and it is disconnected. Sufyan Ath-Thawri narrated it from Khalid, from Abu Qilabah, from Ibn Mas'ud, who said: If a female slave is sold and has a husband, then her master has more right to her private parts. Saeed narrated it from Qatadah, who said: Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Jabir ibn Abdullah, and Ibn Abbas said: Her sale is her divorce. Ibn Jarir said: Yaquub ibn Ulayyah told me on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The divorce of a female slave is six: selling her is her divorce, freeing her is her divorce, giving her as a gift is her divorce, acquitting her is her divorce, and divorcing her husband is her divorce. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us on the authority of al-Zuhri on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab regarding his statement, and chaste women, he said: They are those who have husbands, God has forbidden marriage to them except those whom your right hand possesses, so selling them is her divorce. Muammar said: Al-Hasan said the same, and Saeed ibn Abi Urubah narrated it in this way, on the authority of Qatadah, on the authority of al-Hasan regarding his statement, and chaste women, except those whom your right hands possess, he said: If she has a husband, then selling them is her divorce. A'waf narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan: The sale of a female slave is her divorce, and his sale is her divorce. This is the saying of these predecessors, and the majority have disagreed with them in the past and present, and they saw that the sale of a female slave is not a divorce for her because the buyer is a representative of the seller, and the seller had removed this benefit from his ownership and sold her as if she had been taken away from him. They relied in that on the hadith of Barirah, which was narrated in the two Sahih and others, for Aisha, the mother of the believers, bought her and completed her emancipation, and her marriage to her husband Mughith was not annulled, rather the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave her the choice between annulment and remaining, and she chose annulment and her story is well-known. If the sale of a female slave was her divorce as these people said, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would not have given her the choice. When he gave her the choice, it indicated the continuation of the marriage, and that what is meant by the verse is only the captives, and God knows best. It has been said: What is meant by his saying, and chaste women, means the chaste ones are forbidden to you until you have taken possession of their chastity through marriage, witnesses, dowries, and a guardian, one, two, three, or four. This was narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Abu al-A'aliyah, Tawus, and others. Umar and Ubaydah said, and chaste women, except for the four, are forbidden to you, except for those whom your right hands possess.

God the Almighty said: The Book of God upon you meaning this prohibition is a Book that God has written upon you, so adhere to His Book, do not go beyond its limits, and adhere to His law and what He has imposed. Ubaydah, Ata' and As-Suddi said regarding His statement: The Book of God upon you meaning the four. Ibrahim said: The Book of God upon you meaning

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

what He has forbidden you. God the Almighty said: And lawful for you are all beyond that meaning whatever is forbidden to you except for what was mentioned, they are lawful for you, as was said by Ata' and others. Ubaydah and As-Suddi said: And lawful for you are all beyond that meaning less than the four, and this is far-fetched, and the correct statement is that of Ata' as mentioned above. Qatada said: And what is beyond that is lawful for you meaning what your right hands possess. This is the verse that was used as evidence by those who argued for the permissibility of marrying two sisters at the same time, and the statement of those who said: One verse permitted them and another verse forbade them. And the statement of God Almighty: That you seek with your wealth, chaste, not fornicating meaning that you may obtain with your wealth from wives to four, or concubines as many as you wish in the lawful way. That is why He said: chaste, not fornicating. And the Almighty's saying: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. That is, just as you enjoy them, give them their dowries in return for that, as the Almighty said: And how can you take it while you have gone in unto one another? And as the Almighty said: And give the women their dowries as a free gift. And as He said: And it is not lawful for you to take back anything of what you have given them. The generality of this verse has been used as evidence for temporary marriage, and there is no doubt that it was permissible at the beginning of Islam, then abrogated after that. Al-Shafi'i and a group of scholars said that it was permitted then abrogated twice. Others said: More than that. Others said: It was only permitted once, then abrogated once, then abrogated, and was not permitted after that. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and a group of the Companions that it is permissible out of necessity. This is also a narration on the authority of Imam Ahmad. Ibn Abbas, Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, and al-Suddi used to recite: And for those of them whom you have enjoyed, give them their due compensation as an obligation. Mujahid said: It was revealed regarding temporary marriage, but the majority are of a different opinion. The main evidence is what is established in the two Sahihs on the authority of the Commander of the Faithful, Ali ibn Abi Talib, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade temporary marriage and the meat of domestic donkeys on the day of Khaybar. This hadith has established wordings that are in the Book of Rulings. In Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Sabra bin Ma'bad Al-Juhani, on the authority of his father, that he fought with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the day of the conquest of Mecca, and he said, "O people, I had given you permission to enjoy women, but God has forbidden that until the Day of Resurrection. So whoever has any of them, let him set her free, and do not take anything of what you have given them." And in a narration by Muslim: In the Farewell Pilgrimage, and he has words that are in the Book of Rulings, and the words of God Almighty: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation, from the interpretation of this verse on the marriage of pleasure for a specified period, he said: There is no blame upon you if the period expires if you agree upon an increase in it, and an increase for the reward, Al-Suddi said: If he wishes, he may satisfy her after the first obligation, meaning the reward that he gave her for his enjoyment of her before the expiration of the period between them, so he said: I will also enjoy you with such and such, so he increased before he cleansed her womb on the day the period expires, and this is the words of God Almighty: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Al-Suddi said: If the period has expired, he has no right to her, and she is innocent of him and she must purify what is in her womb, and there is no inheritance between them, so neither of them inherits from the other. Whoever says this first opinion makes its meaning like His statement, And give the women their dowries as a free gift Al-Masjid an-Nabawi, meaning if you set a dowry for her and she releases you from it or part of it, then there is no blame on you or her for that. Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn Al-A'la told us, Al-Mu'tamir ibn Sulayman told us on the authority of his father, he said: Al-Hadrami claimed that men used to set a dowry, then perhaps one of them would encounter hardship, so he said: There is no blame upon you, O people, for what you agree upon after the obligation. Meaning, if she sets aside something from it for you, then it is permissible for you. Ibn Jarir chose this opinion. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And there is no blame upon you for what you agree upon after the obligation and the agreement is that he pays her dowry and then gives her the choice, meaning in staying or separating. God Almighty says: Indeed, God is All-Knowing, All-Wise. It is appropriate to mention these two descriptions after the legislation of these prohibitions.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 24- And chaste women is in apposition to the forbidden things mentioned. The root of the word tahsan is tam'ha', and from it is the saying of the Most High to protect you from your violence meaning to protect you, and from it is the word horse with a kasra on the ha for a horse because it protects its owner from destruction. And the word horse with a fatha on the ha is the chaste woman because she protects herself, and from it is the saying of Hassan:

Razan's horse is not worth a dime and becomes hungry from the meat of the ignorant

The source is immunity with the letter ha open. What is meant by chaste women here are those who have husbands. Chastity has been mentioned in the Qur'an for several meanings, this is one of them. The second refers to a free woman, as in the Almighty's saying: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry chaste women and His saying: And chaste women from among the believers and chaste women from among those who were given the Scripture before you. The third refers to a chaste woman, as in the Almighty's saying: Chaste, not fornicators, "Chaste, not fornicators." The fourth refers to a Muslim woman, as in the Almighty's saying: Then when they have become chaste.

Scholars have differed in their interpretation of this verse, I mean His statement, and chaste women, except those whom your right hands possess. Ibn Abbas, Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, Abu Qilabah, Makhul and Al-Zuhri said: What is meant by chaste women here are the captives who have husbands in particular, meaning they are forbidden to you except those whom your right hands possess by captivity from the land of war, for those are permissible even if they have a husband. This is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i: meaning that captivity breaks the bond of marriage. This is what Ibn Wahb and Ibn Abd Al-Hakam said, and they narrated it from Malik. This is what Abu Hanifa and his companions, Ahmad, Ishaq and Abu Thawr said. They differed in how she should be purified, as is recorded in the books of branches. A group said: The chaste women in this verse are the chaste ones, and this is what Abu Al-Aaliyah, Ubaidah Al-Salmani, Tawoos, Saeed bin Jubair and Ata' said, and Ubaidah narrated it from Umar. The meaning of the verse according to them is: All women are forbidden except those whom your right hands possess, meaning you own their bond of marriage and you own their necks by buying them. Ibn Jarir al-Tabari narrated that a man said to Saeed bin Jubair: Did you not see Ibn Abbas when he was asked about this verse and he did not say anything about it? He said: Ibn Abbas did not know it. Ibn Jarir also narrated on the authority of Mujahid that he said: If I knew someone who could explain this verse to me, I would have driven camels to him. The meaning of the verse, and God knows best, is that there is no concealment in it. That is, and forbidden to you are the chaste women: that is, the married women, whether they are Muslims or non-Muslims, except those whom your right hands possess. As for captives, they are permissible even if they have a husband, or by purchase, they are permissible even if they are married, and the marriage contract that was upon them is annulled by their leaving the possession of their master who married them. The reason for the revelation of the verse will be mentioned, God willing, and consideration is given to the generality of the wording, not the specific reason. al-Muhsanat has been read with a fatha or kasra on the sad. The fatha indicates that the husbands have protected them, and the kasra indicates that they have protected their private parts from other than their husbands or their husbands have protected them. His statement, The Book of God upon you is in the accusative case as a source: that is, God has prescribed that upon you as a Book. Al-Zajaj and the Kufians said: It is in the accusative case of temptation: i.e. adhere to the Book of God, or upon you is the Book of God. Abu Ali al-Farisi objected to him that temptation does not allow the accusative to be presented, and this objection is only directed against the statement of those who said: It is in the accusative case of upon you mentioned in the verse. It was narrated from Ubaydah al-Salmani that he said: His statement the Book of God upon you is an allusion to the statement of God the Almighty two, three, and four, which is far-fetched, rather it is an allusion to the prohibition mentioned in His statement forbidden to you until the end of the verse. His statement and lawful to you are all beyond that, Hamzah, al-Kisa'i, and Asim in the narration of Hafs read and permitted in the passive form, and the rest read it in the active form in apposition to the implied verb in His statement the Book of God upon you, and it was said in His statement forbidden to you. The difference between the two verbs does not detract from that, and it indicates that it is permissible for them to marry anything other than those mentioned, and this is general and specific to what was authenticated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the prohibition of combining a woman and her paternal aunt and a woman and her maternal aunt. He who said: The prohibition of combining the two mentioned women is taken from this verse, because it prohibited combining two sisters, so what is similar in meaning is in its ruling, which is combining a woman and her paternal aunt or a woman and her maternal aunt, and likewise the prohibition of marrying a female slave for those who are able to marry a free woman, as will come, because it specifies this generality. His statement, that you seek with your wealth is in the accusative case as a reason: meaning, what is forbidden is forbidden to you and what is permitted is permitted to you so that you seek with your wealth the women whom God has granted you and do not seek with it what is forbidden, so that the state of being chaste is lost, meaning chaste from fornication, not fornicators meaning not fornicators. As-Saffah adultery is adultery. It is derived from the word saffah pouring of water, meaning its pouring and flowing. It is as if the Almighty ordered them to seek women with their money for the purpose of marriage, not for the purpose of fornication. It was said that His statement, that you seek women with your money is a substitute for what is in His statement, what is beyond that, meaning, and it is permissible for you to seek them with your money. The first is more appropriate, and the Almighty meant by the money mentioned what they pay as dowries for free women and prices for female slaves. His statement, and for what you have enjoyed of them, give them their due compensation, "ma" is a relative pronoun that has the meaning of a condition, and the fa in His statement, so give them is because the relative pronoun includes the meaning of a condition, and the antecedent is omitted: meaning, give them their due compensation for it.

Scholars differed about the meaning of the verse. Al-Hasan, Mujahid and others said: The meaning is: Whatever you have benefited from and enjoyed sexual intercourse with women through lawful marriage, give them their dowries, meaning their bridal gifts. The majority said: What is meant by this verse is the temporary marriage that existed in the early days of Islam. This is supported by the reading of Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Ibn Abbas and Sa'id ibn Jubayr: And whatever you have enjoyed from them for a specified term, give them their dowries. Then the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) forbade it, as is authenticated from the hadeeth of 'Ali who said: The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) forbade temporary marriage and the meat of domesticated donkeys on the day of Khaybar. It is in the two Saheehs and others. In Saheeh Muslim from the hadeeth of Sabrah ibn Ma'bad al-Juhani from the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) that he said on the day of the conquest of Makkah: "O people, I had permitted you to enjoy women, but God has forbidden that until the Day of Resurrection. So whoever has any of them, let him set her free and do not take anything of what you have given them." In a wording of Muslim, it is said that this was during the Farewell Pilgrimage, so this is the abrogating verse. Saeed bin Jubair said: It was abrogated by the verses of inheritance, as there is no inheritance in Mut'ah. Aisha and Al-Qasim bin Muhammad said: Its prohibition and abrogation are in the Quran, and that is the saying of God the Almighty: And those who guard their private parts * Except from their wives or those their right hands possess, for indeed, they will not be blamed. The woman married for Mut'ah is not from their wives or from those their right hands possess, for indeed, it is the custom of the wife to inherit and be inherited from, and the woman enjoyed is not like that. It was narrated from Ibn Abbas that he said that Mut'ah is permissible and that it is still valid and has not been abrogated. It was narrated from him that he changed his mind when he was informed of the abrogator. A group of the Rafidis said that it is permissible, but their statements are not to be taken into account. Some of the later scholars have exhausted themselves by talking a lot about this issue and strengthening what those who permit it have said, but this is not the place to show the invalidity of his statement.

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

We have discussed at length and refuted the false doubts that those who permit it have held onto in our explanation of Al-Muntaqa, so please refer to it. His statement, an obligation, is in the accusative case as a source of emphasis or as a state: that is, imposed. His statement, And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation, that is, of an increase or decrease in the dowry, for that is permissible upon mutual consent. This is according to those who say that the verse is about lawful marriage. As for the majority who say that it is about temporary marriage, the meaning is mutual consent to increase or decrease the duration of temporary marriage, or to increase or decrease what he paid to her in exchange for enjoying her.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

24- The Almighty's saying: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, meaning: those who have husbands. It is not permissible for anyone else to marry them before they leave their husbands. This is the seventh of the women who are forbidden due to a reason.

Abu Saeed Al-Khudri said: It was revealed about women who used to migrate to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they had husbands, and some Muslims would marry them. Then their husbands came as migrants, so God forbade the Muslims from marrying them. Then He made an exception and said: Except those whom your right hands possess. That is, the female captives who were taken captive and had husbands in the land of war, so it is permissible for their owner to have intercourse with them after they have been purified, because by captivity the marriage between her and her husband is annulled.

Abu Saeed Al-Khudri said: On the day of Hunayn, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent an army to Awtas, and they captured female captives who had husbands from among the polytheists. They were reluctant to have intercourse with them, so God Almighty revealed this verse.

Ata' said: He meant by his saying, except what your right hands possess, that his female slave would be in the marriage of his slave, so it is permissible for him to take her away. It was said: He meant by chaste free women, and its meaning is: that more than four of them are forbidden except what your right hands possess, for there is no limit upon you regarding female slaves.

The Almighty's saying: The Book of God is upon you, is in the accusative case as a source, meaning: God has prescribed the Book of God upon you. It was also said: It is in the accusative case as an inducement, meaning: Adhere to the Book of God upon you, meaning: God Almighty has imposed it.

God the Almighty said: And lawful to you are all beyond that. Abu Ja'far, Hamza, Al-Kisa'i, and Hafs read halal with a damma on the first letter and a kasra on the ha', based on His statement: It has been forbidden to you. The others read it with the accusative, meaning: God has made lawful to you all beyond that, meaning: everything other than that which you mentioned of the forbidden things, that you seek, ask, with your wealth, meaning: marry with a dowry or buy with a price, in chastity, meaning: married and chaste, not fornicators, meaning: not adulterers, taken from the word safu to pour water and subbuhu, which is semen. Then whatever you have enjoyed from them, they differed in its meaning. Al-Hasan and Mujahid said: He meant whatever you have benefited from and enjoyed from intercourse with women through a valid marriage, then give them their dowries, meaning: their dowries. Others said: It is a temporary marriage, which is that a man marries a woman for a period of time, and when that period expires, she is separated from him without divorce, and her womb is purified and there is no inheritance between them. This was permissible at the beginning of Islam, then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade it.

Ismail bin Abdul Qahir told us, Abdul Ghafir bin Muhammad Al Farsi told us, Muhammad bin Isa Al Jaludi told us, Ibrahim bin Muhammad bin Sufyan told us, Muslim bin Al Hajjaj told us, Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Numayr told us, my father told us, Abdul Aziz bin Umar told us, Al Rabi bin Sabra Al Juhani told us, his father told him that he was with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: "O people, I had given you permission to enjoy women, but God Almighty has forbidden that until the Day of Resurrection. So whoever has any of them, let him set her free and do not take anything of what you gave them."

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of Abdullah and al-Hasan, the sons of Muhammad ibn Ali, on the authority of their father, on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with them, "that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade temporary marriage with women on the day of Khaybar, and the eating of the meat of domesticated donkeys."

This is what most scholars have said: that temporary marriage is forbidden, and the verse has been abrogated.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, believed that the verse was decisive, and permitted temporary marriage. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Nadrah, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, about temporary marriage, and he said: Do you not read in Surat An-Nisa': Then whatever you have enjoyed of them "for a specified term", I said: I do not read it like this, Ibn Abbas said: This is how God revealed it, three times.

It was said that Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, changed his mind about that.

Salim narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Omar that Omar bin Al-Khattab ascended the pulpit, praised God and extolled Him, and said: What is the matter with men who engage in this temporary marriage, while the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade it? I will not find a man who engages in it without stoning him. He said: The destruction of temporary marriage is marriage, divorce, waiting period, and inheritance.

Al-Rabi' bin Sulayman said: I heard Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, say: I do not know of anything in Islam that was made permissible, then forbidden, then made permissible, then forbidden, except for temporary marriage.

The Almighty says: Then give them their dowries meaning: their bridal-money, "as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation." So whoever interprets what came before it as a temporary marriage means that they if they make a contract for a period of time with money.

If the term is completed, then if the woman wishes, she may extend the term and the man may increase the reward. If they do not agree, he may separate from her. Whoever interprets the verse as meaning enjoyment through a valid marriage, said that what is meant by His statement, And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon, of releasing the dowry, ransoming, and compensation, Indeed, God is Knowing and Wise.

Chapter on the amount of dowry and what is recommended of it

Know that there is no limit to the maximum dowry, as God Almighty says: And if you have given one of them a great amount, do not take back from it anything. The recommended thing is that it should not be exaggerated. Omar ibn al-Khattab said: Do not exaggerate in the dowry of women, for if it were an honor in this world and a source of piety before God, the first of you to do it would have been the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. I do not know that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, married any of his wives or married any of his daughters for more than twelve ounces.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us: Zahir ibn Ahmad told us: Ja'far ibn Muhammad al-Mufliis told us: Harun ibn Ishaq told us: Yahya ibn Muhammad al-Harithi told us: Abd al-Aziz ibn Muhammad told us: Yazid ibn Abdullah ibn al-Hadi told us: Muhammad ibn Ibrahim told us: Abu Salamah said: I asked Aisha, may God be pleased with her, how much was the dowry of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his wives? She said: The dowry of his wives was twelve ounces and a nasha. She said: Do you know what a nasha is? I said: No. She said: Half an ounce, so that is five hundred dirhams. This was the dowry of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to his wives.

As for the minimum dowry, they differed on it: A group of people held that there is no minimum limit, rather whatever is permissible to be sold or a price is permissible to be a dowry, and this is the opinion of Rabi'ah, Sufyan al-Thawri, al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Ishaq. Umar ibn al-Khattab said: Three handfuls of raisins are a dowry. Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab said: If he gave her a whip as a dowry, it is permissible.

Some people said: It is estimated by the amount of theft, which is the opinion of Malik and Abu Hanifa, except that the amount of theft according to Malik is three dirhams and according to Abu Hanifa it is ten dirhams.

The evidence that it is not estimated is what Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, he said: Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Musab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Sahl ibn Sa'd al-Sa'idi, may God be pleased with him, "A woman came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I have given myself to you. So she stood for a long time, and a man stood up and said: O Messenger of God, marry her to me if you have no need for her. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do you have anything to give her as a dowry? He said: I have nothing but this lower garment. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If you give her, you will sit without a lower garment. So he looked for something, and he said: I do not find it. So he said: Look for even an iron ring. So he looked but did not find anything, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do you have something from the Qur'an with you? He said: Yes, Surah such and such and Surah such and such - he named the surahs - so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I have married her to you for what you have from the Qur'an."

Surat al-Nisa 4:24

And chaste women, except those your right hands possess. This is the decree of Allah upon you. And lawful to you are all beyond that, that you may seek with your wealth, in chastity, not in fornication. So whatever of them you have enjoyed, give them their dowries as an obligation. And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Indeed, Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise

It is evidence that there is no limit to the minimum dowry, because he said: Seek something, which indicates that any amount of money is permissible. He said: Even an iron ring, and an iron ring has no value except for a small, insignificant amount.

The hadith is evidence that teaching the Qur'an is to be made a dowry, which is the opinion of al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him. Some scholars have said that it is not permissible, which is the opinion of the people of opinion. Any work for which it is permissible to be hired, such as building, sewing, and other work, is to be made a dowry. Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him, did not permit making the benefit of a free man a dowry, and the hadith is evidence for those who permitted it after God Almighty informed us about Shu'ayb, peace be upon him, when he married his daughter to Moses, peace be upon them, for work, and he said: I want to marry you to one of these two daughters of mine on condition that you hire me for eight years al-Qasas 27.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

24 And the chaste women those who have husbands, the most chaste of them is marriage or husbands. Al-Kisa'i read with a kasra on the sad in all of the Qur'an because they have protected their private parts. Except what your right hands possess means what your right hands possess of those who were taken captive and have infidel husbands, so they are permissible for the captors, and marriage is lifted by the captivity "according to the saying of Abu Sa'id, may God be pleased with him: We captured captives on the day of Awtas and they had infidel husbands, so we hated to have intercourse with them, so we asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the verse was revealed and we made them permissible." And it was also mentioned by Al-Farazdaq in his saying:

And a woman whom our spears have married is lawful for whoever consummates the marriage with her, she has not been divorced.

Abu Hanifa said: If both spouses were taken captive, the marriage would not be annulled and they would not be permissible for the captor. The generality of the verse and the hadith is an argument against him. The Book of God upon you is a confirmed source, meaning God has written upon you the prohibition of these in a book. God has written is read in the plural and nominative, meaning these are the obligations of God upon you. God has written is in the form of a verb. And lawful for you is in apposition to the implied verb that made the Book of God the object. Hamza, Al-Kisa'i, and Hafs from Asim read it in the passive form in apposition to I have forbidden. "What is beyond that" is other than the eight prohibitions mentioned. He specifically mentioned in the Sunnah what is in the meaning of the mentioned, such as all the prohibitions of breastfeeding, and combining a woman with her paternal aunt and maternal aunt. That you seek with your wealth, chaste and not fornicators. The object of the verb to seek means that you are permitted to do what is beyond that, meaning that you seek women with your wealth by spending on their dowries, or their prices if you are chaste and not fornicators. It is permissible that the object of seek is not estimated, as if it was said that you want to spend your wealth chaste and not fornicators, or a substitute for what is beyond that, a substitute for inclusion. The Hanafis used it as evidence that the dowry must be money. There is no argument in it. Chastity is purity, as it protects the soul from blame and punishment, and fornication is adultery from saffah which is the ejaculation of semen, as it is its purpose. And what you have enjoyed from them means what you have enjoyed from the married women, or what you have enjoyed from them of intercourse or a contract with them. Then give them their dowries their dowries, as the dowry is in exchange for enjoyment. Obligatory is a state of wages meaning imposed, or a description of a deleted source, meaning giving an imposed or an emphatic source. And there is no blame upon you for that which you mutually agree upon after the obligation in what is added to or reduced by mutual consent, or in what they both agree upon in terms of maintenance, accommodation, or separation. It was said: The verse was revealed regarding the temporary marriage that lasted for three days when Mecca was conquered, then it was abrogated, because it was narrated that the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, permitted it, then he said: "O people, I had commanded you to enjoy these women. Now, God has forbidden that until the Day of Resurrection." It is a temporary marriage with a known time, and it was called this because its purpose is merely to enjoy the woman, or to give her what she gives. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, permitted it, then he went back on it. Indeed, God is Knowing of what is in the best interests. Wise in what He has legislated of rulings.

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And God knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And whoever among you cannot afford that is, the wealth to marry chaste free women believing women this is the most common practice and has no meaning then from those whom your right hands possess he marries (from among your believing girls. And God knows best about your faith) so be satisfied with its outward appearance and entrust the secrets to Him, for He knows best her preference and there is a nation that prefers a free woman in it. This is familiarity with marrying female slaves some of you that is, you and they are equal in religion, so do not disdain marrying them then marry them with the permission of their people their masters and give them give them their dowries their bridal-gifts according to what is acceptable without delay or reduction chaste chaste in state not fornicators committing adultery openly nor taking lovers lovers who commit adultery with them secretly and when they are chaste they are married. In the reading {chaste} in the active form they are married and if they come (For adultery (for them is half of that for free virgins if they commit adultery) of punishment the prescribed punishment, so they are flogged fifty times and banished for half a year, and slaves are measured against them. And he did not make chastity a condition for the obligation of the prescribed punishment, to indicate that there is no stoning for them at all. That i.e. marrying slave girls when there is no time for marriage is for him who fears the hardship of adultery, and its origin is hardship, and it is called adultery because it is the cause of it by the prescribed punishment in this world and the punishment in the Hereafter from among you unlike the free men who do not fear it, so it is not permissible for him to marry her. And likewise for the one who is able to marry a free woman, and this is what Al-Shafi'i said. And he excluded with his statement {from among your believing girls}: the disbelieving women, so it is not permissible for him to marry her even if he does not have time and fears and that you be patient from marrying slave girls is better for you lest the child become a slave and God is Forgiving and Merciful by expanding on that.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of: length that God Almighty mentioned in this verse. Some of them said: It is grace, wealth, and spaciousness.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it, he said: Riches.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it, he said: whoever does not have the means.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it, he said: whoever among you cannot afford it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it, he said: Abu Bakr means wealth.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it, he said: The means are spacious.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And whoever among you cannot afford it, as for his saying: affordable, it means an abundance of money.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it, the verse, he said:

Adequately means he cannot find what he can afford to marry a free woman.

Others said: The meaning of length in this context is: passion.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Abdul-Jabbar bin Omar told me, on the authority of Rabia: that he said regarding the statement of God: And whoever among you cannot afford it, he said: Affection is desire. He said: He marries a female slave if his desire is in her.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said, Rabi'ah was somewhat lenient in it. He used to say: If he fears for himself if he loves her - meaning the slave girl - even if he is able to marry someone else, then I think he should marry her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Hammad bin Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir: He was asked about a free man marrying a slave girl, so he said: If he is wealthy, then no. It was said: What if love of the slave girl falls into his heart? He said: If he fears hardship, then let him marry her.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ubaidah, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: A free man should not marry a slave woman unless he finds one, and Ibrahim used to say: There is nothing wrong with it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj told us, he said: I heard Ata' say: We do not dislike a wealthy man today marrying a female slave, if he fears that he will be miserable because of her.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions on this matter is the opinion of the one who said: The meaning of length in this context is abundance and wealth, because of the consensus of all that God, the Blessed and Exalted, did not forbid anything except the marriage of slave girls to a free woman. He permitted what He forbade of that when the forbidden thing overwhelms him, in order to satisfy his pleasure. So since that was the consensus of all except the marriage of slave girls to a man of means, then the same prohibition applies to the marriage of slave girls to a man of means: it is not permissible for him because of the overwhelm of his desire for her. Because that, with his means to a free woman, is for satisfying pleasure and desire, and it is not a case of necessity that is lifted by a concession, like a dead animal for the one in need who fears his own destruction, so he is permitted to eat it in order to revive himself with it, and similar to that of the forbidden things that God permitted His servants to eat in a case of necessity and fear for their own destruction from it, what He forbade them from in other cases. God Almighty did not permit a servant to do something forbidden in order to satisfy his pleasure. And the consensus of all is that if a man is overcome by his desire for a free woman or a slave woman, she is not permissible for him except through marriage or purchase in accordance with what God has permitted, which clarifies the corruption of the statement of those who said: The meaning of length, in this context, is: desire, and he permitted the one who has the length for a free woman to marry slave women.

The interpretation of the verse - since the matter is as we have described - is: And whoever among you does not find the means to marry free women, let him marry from those whom your right hands possess.

The root of length is to bestow favors. It is said: He was long upon him, he is long, he is long in favor, and he was long, he is long in length, which is the opposite of shortness.

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by that is: And whoever among you, O people, is not able to afford it, meaning among the free men, to marry chaste women, and they are the free women, the believers who have believed in the oneness of God and in what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought of the truth.

And similar to what we said about chaste women, the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: To marry chaste women, he said: To marry free women, so let him marry from the female slaves of the believers.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: That he should marry free, believing women from among those whom your right hands possess, he said: The free women means the free women, so let him marry the believing slave woman.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for your girls, they are your female slaves.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: That he should marry free, believing women, from among those whom your right hands possess of your believing girls. He said: As for the one who does not find what it takes to marry a free woman, he should marry a slave woman.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement, And that he should marry free, believing women, or from those whom your right hands possess of your believing slave girls, he said: He does not find what he can afford to marry a free woman, so he marries this slave woman, so that he may be chaste with her, and her family will provide for him with her expenses. And God has not permitted that to anyone, unless he does not find what he can afford to marry a free woman and provide for her, and it is not permitted to him unless he fears hardship.

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hisham Al-Dastawai, on the authority of Amer Al-Ahwal, on the authority of Al-Hasan: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade a slave woman to be married to a free woman, and a free woman to be married to a slave woman. Whoever finds the means to marry a free woman should not marry a slave woman."

Abu Jaafar said: The reading of this differed.

A group of Kufian and Meccan reciters read it as: that he marries chaste women with a kasra on the sad along with all the other similar verses in the Qur'an, except for His statement: and chaste women, except those your right hands possess (An-Nisa': 24). They opened the sad in it and directed its interpretation to the fact that they are chaste with their husbands, and that their husbands are the ones who have chastised them. As for the rest of what is in the Qur'an, they interpreted it with a kasra on the sad to mean that women are the ones who have chastised themselves with chastity.

The majority of the readers of Medina and Iraq read all of this with the fat-ha, meaning that some of them were protected by their husbands, and some of them were protected by their freedom or their conversion to Islam.

Some of the predecessors read all of that with a kasra, meaning that they were chaste and protected themselves. This reading - I mean with a kasra for all of them - was mentioned on the authority of Alqamah, despite the difference in the narration from him.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct view in our opinion regarding this matter is that they are two widely-used readings in the readings of the regions, with the same meaning. So whoever recites them both, he is correct, except for the first letter of Surat An-Nisa': 24, which is His statement: And chaste women, except those your right hands possess, for I do not seek refuge in the kasra in its sad, because the readings of the regions agree on its fatha. If the reading with the kasra was widely-used as it was with the fatha, then it would have been correct to read it in the same way, because of what we mentioned about the influence of ihsan in the meanings that we explained. So the meaning of that, if it was kasra, would be: And chaste women are forbidden to you, except those your right hands possess, meaning that they have protected themselves with chastity.

As for girls, they are the plural of girl, and they are the young women. Then every female slave of young age is called a girl, and a male slave is called a boy.

Then the scholars differed about marrying non-believing girls. Did God mean by His saying: Of your believing girls that it is forbidden for them to be other than the believing girls, or is that from God as a discipline for the believers?

Some of them said: This is from God Almighty, as evidence of the prohibition of marrying the female slaves of polytheists.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: From among your believing girls, he said: It is not appropriate for him to marry a Christian slave girl.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: From among your believing girls, he said: It is not appropriate for a free Muslim man to marry a female slave from among the People of the Book.

Ali bin Sahl told us, Al-Walid bin Muslim told us, I heard Abu Amr, Saeed bin Abdul Aziz, Malik bin Anas, and Abu Bakr bin Abdullah bin Abi Maryam say: It is not permissible for a free Muslim or a Muslim slave to marry a Christian female slave, because God says: From among your believing girls, meaning by marriage.

Others said: This is from God as guidance and encouragement, not as prohibition. Among those who said this are a group of people from Iraq.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mughira, he said, Abu Maysarah said: As for the People of the Book, they are like free women.

Among them is Abu Hanifa and his companions, and they based their statement on the words of God: "Lawful to you are all good things. The food of those who were given the Scripture is lawful for you and your food is lawful for them. And chaste women from among the believers and chaste women from among those who were given the Scripture before you, if you have given them their due compensation." (al-Ma'idah 5:5) They said: God has made chaste women of the People of the Scripture lawful in general, so no one has the right to single out a slave girl or a free woman from among them. They said: The meaning of His words: your believing girls is not the polytheists who worship idols.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions on this matter is the opinion of the one who said: It is evidence of the prohibition of marrying female slaves of the People of the Book, for they are not permissible except through right hand possession. This is because God, the Most High, has permitted the marriage of female slaves with conditions, so unless the conditions that He mentioned in them are met, it is not permissible for a Muslim to marry them.

If someone says: Does the verse in Al-Ma'idah indicate that they are permissible to marry?

It was said: The one in the table, it was made clear that its ruling is specific to their chaste women, and that it is meant by it their free women and not their slave girls, His statement: from among your believing girls, and neither of the two verses negates the ruling of the other, rather one of them clarifies the ruling of the other. And one of them would only negate the ruling of the other, if it were not permissible for their two rulings to be combined in a valid manner. As for the two of them, it is permissible for their two rulings to be combined in a valid manner, it is not permissible to rule for one of them that it negates the ruling of the other, except by an argument that must be accepted from a report or analogy. And there is no report or analogy for that. And the verse is subject to what we said: And chaste women from among the free women of those who were given the Scripture before you, not their slave girls.

Abu Jaafar said: This is from the word mukhār which means to advance.

The interpretation of this is: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of your believing girls. So let some of you marry from others, meaning: So let this one marry this one's girl.

Some of you are raised by the interpretation of the speech and its meaning, since his saying: Then from what your right hands possess, is in the interpretation: then let him marry from what your right hands possess, then some of you was returned to that meaning, so it was raised.

Then He, the Most High, said: And God knows best about your faith, meaning: God knows best about the faith of those among you who believe in God and His Messenger and what he brought from God, and believe in all of that, among you.

He says: Let him among you who cannot afford a free woman marry one of your believing girls. Let this poor man who cannot afford a free woman marry one of this wealthy man's believing girls who have shown faith and made it known. And entrust their secrets to God. If that is known, it is up to God and not you. And God knows best what is in your secrets and what is in their secrets.

Abu Ja'far said: By His Most High's words, Then marry them, He means marry them. By His words, With the permission of their people, He means with the permission of their masters and their command to you to marry them and with their approval. By His words, And give them their due compensation, He means give them their dowries, as:

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And give them their wages, he said: the dowry.

What he means by his saying: in a reasonable manner is what you have agreed upon, which is permissible for you and permitted for you to make as a dowry for them.

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: chaste, is chaste, not fornicators, not flirting, nor taking lovers, meaning: nor taking friends for fornication.

It was mentioned that this was said in this way, because the adulteresses were, in the pre-Islamic era, among the Arabs: those who openly committed adultery, and those who took the lovers: those who had confined themselves to the lover and the friend, to commit adultery with them secretly without announcing it.

Mention who said that.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement, Chaste, not fornicators nor taking lovers, meaning: marry them chastely, not fornicators in secret or in public, nor taking lovers, meaning: lovers.

Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his statement: not fornicators, the fornicators who openly commit fornication, nor those who take lovers, the one who has one lover. He said: The people of ignorance forbade what was apparent of fornication, and permitted what was hidden, saying: As for what was apparent of it, it is baseness, but as for what was hidden, there is no harm in that. Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: And do not approach immoralities - whether apparent or concealed (Al-An'am: 51).

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told me, he said, Mu'tamir told us, he said, I heard Dawud narrating, on the authority of Amer, he said: Adultery is of two types: she commits adultery with a lover and does not commit adultery with anyone else, and the woman is a slave, then he recited: Chaste, not fornicators nor taking lovers.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for the chaste women, they are the chaste ones. So let the slave woman marry with the permission of her family, chaste. The chaste women are the chaste ones - not fornicators - and fornicators are those who openly commit adultery, and do not take a friend.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: nor those who take lovers, he said: A lover is taken by a man, and a woman takes a lover.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Chaste, not fornicators nor taking lovers. Fornicators are prostitutes who hire themselves out to someone they may have. And the one with one lover is the one who has one lover. So God forbade them from marrying all of them.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj who said, I heard Abu Muadh say, Ubayd ibn Sulayman narrated to us who said, I heard Ad-Dahhak ibn Muzahim say regarding His statement, Chaste, not fornicators nor taking paramours, as for the chaste, they are the free women, meaning: marry a free woman. As for the fornicators, they are those who are declared without a dowry. As for taking paramours, they are the women who have one lover and keep him secret. God has forbidden that.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Ismail bin Salim told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, who said: Adultery has two ugly faces, one of which is more evil than the other. As for the one who is more evil: it is the fornicator, who is depraved with the one who has intercourse with her. As for the other: it is the one with a cheek.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Chaste, not fornicators nor taking paramours, he said: The fornicator is the one who meets a woman and commits adultery with her, then he leaves and she leaves. And the paramour is the one who stays with her in disobedience to God and she stays with him, so that is the paramour.

Abu Jaafar said: The reading of this differed.

Some of them read it: If they become chaste, with the alif open, meaning: if they become Muslim, then their private parts are forbidden from what is forbidden by Islam.

Others read it as: If they are chaste, meaning: If they get married, then they are forbidden from having sexual intercourse with their husbands.

Abu Jaafar said: The correct thing to say about this, in my opinion, is that they are two well-known readings that are widespread in the lands of Islam, so whichever one the reader recites, his recitation is correct.

If someone thinks that what we said about that is not permissible, since they have different meanings, and that reading in both ways is only permissible in cases where the meanings agree, then he has been negligent.

This is because, although the two meanings differ, one does not ward off the other. Because God has made the punishment obligatory on the Muslim nation, through the tongue of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace.

The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If one of your female slaves commits adultery, let him flog her. This is the Book of God, and let him not slander her. Then if she repeats it, let him flog her. This is the Book of God, and let him not slander her. Then if she repeats it, let him flog her. This is the Book of God, and let him not slander her. Then if she commits adultery a fourth time, let him flog her. This is the Book of God, and let him sell her even for a rope of hair."

And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Implement the prescribed punishments on those whom your right hands possess.

He did not specify a woman with a husband or someone who was not married. The prescribed punishments are obligatory for the masters of female slaves to implement against them if they commit adultery, according to the Book of God and the command of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

If someone says: What do you say about what he told you?

Ibn Bashar said, Abd al-Rahman told us, Malik ibn Anas told us, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah and Zayd ibn Khalid: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a female slave who commits adultery but is not married. He said: Flog her. If she commits adultery, flog her. If she commits adultery again, flog her. If she commits adultery again - and he said it the third or fourth time - then sell her even for a braid of hair." And braid is hair.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah and Zayd ibn Khalid: that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked, and he mentioned something similar.

He explained that the punishment that must be carried out according to the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on female slaves is what was before their marriage. As for what was required of them according to the Book, is it after their marriage?

It was said to him: We have explained that one of the meanings of ihsan is Islam, and that another is marriage, and that ihsan is a word that includes various meanings. And there is no narration from the one who narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he was asked about the female slave who commits adultery before she is married, stating that the one about whom the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked is the one who commits adultery before marriage. So that would be an argument for someone who argues that the ihsan for which the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prescribed the punishment for female slaves for adultery, is Islam without marriage, nor that it is marriage without Islam.

Since there is no clarification on this, the correct statement is: Every female slave who commits adultery, her master must carry out the prescribed punishment on her, whether she is married or not, according to the apparent meaning of the Book of God and what is established from the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, except for those who are excluded from the obligation of the prescribed punishment among them, because of what must be accepted.

Since this is the case, it is clear that what we have chosen from the reading of his statement: Then if he is chaste.

Abu Ja'far said: If someone thinks that in the words of God Almighty: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of your believing girls, there is evidence that His words: Then when they have become chaste, mean: marry them, since He mentioned that after describing them as believers by saying: from among your believing girls, and he thought that that could not bear any meaning other than the meaning of marriage, with what preceded that of describing them as believers, then he has thought wrong.

It is not impossible in the speech that the meaning of this is: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of your believing slave girls. So if they believe, But if they commit an immorality, upon them is half of that upon free women of the punishment. So the report begins with what is required of them in terms of the punishment if they commit an immorality after their belief, after explaining what is not permissible for a believing man to marry them, and who is permissible for him to marry among them.

If this is not impossible in speech, then it is not permissible for anyone to interpret its meaning as marriage without Islam, because of what was mentioned above of God describing them as believers.

However, what we choose for those who read: chaste women, not adulterers with the opening of the sad in this place, is to read: if they are chaste, then they commit an immorality with the closing of the alif.

For those who read: Muhsinat with a kasra on the sad, they can read: فدا اھسان: with a fatha on the alif, so that the reader's reading will agree on one meaning and one context, due to the proximity of his saying: Muhsinat to his saying: فدا اھسان. If he differed from that, it would not be a mistake, but the meaning of the reading is what I described.

The interpreters differed in their interpretation of this, similar to the difference in the reading of it.

Some of them said: The meaning of his saying: If they become chaste, is if they become Muslims.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Buzai'e told me, he said, Bishr bin al-Mufaddal told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Abu Ma'shar, on the authority of Ibrahim: that Ibn Mas'ud said: Her Islam is her chastity.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Jarir bin Hazim told me: Sulayman ibn Mihran told him, on the authority of Ibrahim ibn Yazid, on the authority of Hammam ibn al-Harith: An-Nu'man ibn Abdullah ibn Muqrin asked Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, saying: Did my slave woman commit adultery? He said: Flog her fifty lashes. He said: She was not chaste! Ibn Mas'ud said: Her chastity is her Islam.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim: that al-Nu'man ibn Muqarrin asked Ibn Mas'ud about a female slave who committed adultery and did not have a husband, so he said: Her Islam is her chastity.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim: that Al-Nu'man said: I said to Ibn Mas'ud: My slave girl committed adultery? He said: Flog her. I said: She was not chaste! He said: Her chastity is her Islam.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Alqamah, he said, Abdullah used to say: Her chastity is her Islam.

Abu Kuraib told us, Hisham told us, Ismail bin Salem told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, who said, Abdullah said: The chastity of a nation is its Islam.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, Mughirah told us, on the authority of Ibrahim that he used to say: If they become chaste, meaning: if they become Muslims.

Abu Hisham told us, Yahya bin Abi Zaida told us, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, who said: Chastity is Islam.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Bard bin Sinan, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, he said: Umar, may God be pleased with him, flogged virgin slave girls from the slave girls of the emirate for adultery.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: If they become chaste, he said: If they become Muslims.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Salim and Al-Qasim, they said: Her chastity is her Islam and her purity in His statement:

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

So when they are chaste.

Others said: The meaning of his saying: Then if they are chaste, is if they get married.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Then if they are chaste, meaning: if they marry a free man.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Hisin told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he used to recite: When they are chaste, meaning when they are married.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mugheera, on the authority of Ikrimah: Ibn Abbas used to recite: And when they are chaste, meaning: they get married.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard Laith, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: The chastity of a female slave is for a free man to marry her, and the chastity of a male slave is for him to marry a free woman.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Amr Ibn Murrah: that he heard Sa'id Ibn Jubayr say: A female slave should not be beaten if she commits adultery, as long as she does not marry.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding his statement: Then when they are chaste, he said: The husbands have chaste them.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Then when they are chaste, he said: The husbands have chaste them.

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ayyadh ibn Abdullah told me on the authority of Abu al-Zinad: that al-Sha'bi told him, that Ibn Abbas told him: that he had a female slave of his who had committed adultery, and he said: I have made her chaste.

Abu Ja'far said: This interpretation is based on the reading of those who read: If he is chaste with a damma on the alif, and based on the interpretation of those who read: If he is chaste with a fatha on it. We have explained the correct statement and reading in this regard according to us.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: If they commit an immorality, is that if your girls - who are your female slaves - commit an immorality, which is adultery, after they have been married or have been married, then upon them is half of the punishment upon free women, meaning: then upon them is half of the punishment upon free women, if they committed adultery before being married to husbands.

The punishment that God Almighty mentioned in this place is the prescribed punishment, and that half that God made as a punishment for those female slaves who commit adultery if they are married: fifty lashes, and exile for six months, which is half a year. Because what is required of a free woman if she commits adultery before Islam with her husband is one hundred lashes and exile for a year. So half of that is fifty lashes, and exile for half a year. And that which God made as a punishment for married female slaves if they commit adultery, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then upon them is half of the punishment upon the free women....

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: But if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon free women of the punishment, fifty lashes, and no exile or stoning.

If someone says: How is it said: Then they shall receive half of the punishment of free women? And is flogging to be imposed on anyone?

It was said: The meaning of this is: Their bodies must be flogged half of what is required of the bodies of chaste women, just as it is said: I have to pray one day's prayer, meaning: I have to pray one day's prayer, and I have to perform Hajj and fast, and the same. Likewise: The punishment is upon him, meaning he must be able to carry out the punishment himself so that it is carried out on him.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty means by His saying: That, that which I have permitted, O people, of marrying your believing girls for those among you who cannot afford to marry chaste believing women. I have permitted it for those among you who fear hardship, but not for others who do not fear hardship.

Some of them said: It is adultery.

Mention who said that.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said: I heard Layth, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: For whoever among you fears hardship, he said: Adultery.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Al-Awam, on the authority of someone who told him, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he said: The one who marries a female slave is not prevented from committing adultery except a little.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The curse is adultery.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ubayd ibn Yahya told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Ata' ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Cursedness is adultery.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: The one who marries a female slave is not prevented from committing adultery except a little, That is for whoever among you fears hardship.

Abu Salamah told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, something similar.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Fadil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Atiyah, regarding his statement: That is for whoever among you fears hardship, he said: Adultery.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Hammad told us, he said, Fadil told us, on the authority of Atiyah Al-Awfi, the same.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: For whoever among you fears hardship, he said: Adultery.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Ubaidah told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi and Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, they said: Cursedness is adultery.

Ahmad bin Hazim told us, Abu Naim told us, Fadil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Atiyah: That is for whoever among you fears hardship, he said: Hardship is adultery.

Others said: The meaning of this is: the punishment that he inflicts, which is the prescribed punishment.

Abu Jaafar said: The correct statement regarding his statement: That is for whoever among you fears hardship, is for whoever among you fears harm to his religion and body.

Abu Jaafar said: "That is because "'ant" is what harms a man. It is said: "I have harmed so-and-so," if something harms him in religion or in this world. From this is the saying of God, the Most High: "And they wish you had suffered" (Al Imran 3:118). It is also said: "I have harmed so-and-so," if he has caused me harm. It has also been said: "'ant" means destruction.

Those who interpreted this as adultery said: Adultery is harmful to religion, and it is a type of hardship.

Those who directed it to sin said: All sins are harmful to religion, and they are from hardship.

Those who directed him to the punishment that he suffered from in his body from the hadd, they said: The hadd is harmful to the body of the person being punished in his worldly life, and it is from the hardship.

God has included in His statement: For him among you who fears hardship, all meanings of hardship. And adultery encompasses all of that, because it requires punishment for its perpetrator in this world, as it causes hardship to his body, and he acquires sin and harm in his religion and his world. The people of interpretation, who are its people, have agreed that this is its meaning. Even though it is in its essence a pleasure and the satisfaction of desire, by leading to hardship, it is attributed to it and described by it, since it was the cause of hardship.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God Almighty means: And that you be patient, O people, about marrying female slaves, is better for you, "and God is Forgiving," to you. Marrying female slaves means that you marry them in a manner that is permissible for you and permitted you to do, and what you have done in the past in that, if you reform your affairs between you and God, Merciful to you, since He has permitted you to marry them when you are poor and do not have the means to marry a free woman.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: And that you be patient is better for you, he said: about marrying a female slave.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard Laith, on the authority of Mujahid: And that you be patient is better for you, he said: about marrying female slaves.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And that you be patient is better for you, meaning: And that you be patient and do not marry a female slave so that your children become slaves, then that is better for you.

Muhammad bin Amr told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And that you be patient is better for you, meaning: And that you be patient about marrying female slaves is better for you, and it is permissible.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And that you be patient is better for you, meaning: And that you be patient about marrying them - meaning marrying female slaves - is better for you.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Fadil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Atiyah, regarding his statement: And that you be patient is better for you, he said: That you be patient and not marry female slaves is better for you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj told us, he said, Ibn Tawus told us, on the authority of his father: And that you be patient is better for you, he said: That you be patient about marrying a female slave is better for you.

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And that you be patient is better for you, he said: And that you be patient with regard to the nation is better for you.

And that in his saying: and that you be patient is in the nominative case with good, meaning: and patience from marrying female slaves is better for you.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains twenty-one issues:

First: The Almighty said: And whoever among you cannot afford it The verses indicate that the Almighty made marriage easy, which is marrying a female slave for the one who cannot afford it. Scholars differed on the meaning of length into three opinions: The first: spaciousness and wealth, as stated by Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubayr, As-Suddi, Ibn Zayd, and Malik in Al-Mudawwana. It is said: He was tall, he is tall, in generosity and ability, and so-and-so is a man of length, meaning he has ability in his wealth with the opening of the taa and length with the damma of the *taa in the opposite of shortness, and what is meant here is the ability to pay the dowry according to the majority of scholars, and this is what Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, and Abu Thawr say. Ahmad bin Al-Mu'adh dhal said: Abdul Malik said: The length is everything that is used to enable marriage, whether in cash, goods, or a debt on a debt. He said: And everything that can be sold or rented is a length. He said: And neither the wife, nor two wives, nor three are lengths. He said: I heard that from Malik, may God be pleased with him. Abdul Malik said: Because the wife cannot be married with or he cannot reach anyone else because she is not money. Malik was asked about a man who marries a slave woman and he is someone who has the means to do so. He said: I think that they should be separated. It was said to him: He fears hardship. He said: The whip is used to strike her. Then he made it lighter after that. The second opinion: The free woman is tall. Malik's opinion differed regarding whether a free woman is tall or not. He said in Al-Mudawwana: A free woman is not a hero who is prevented from marrying a slave woman if he does not have the means to marry another and fears hardship. He said in the book of Muhammad what indicates that a free woman is like tallness. Al-Lakhmi said: This is the apparent meaning of the Qur'an and something similar to this was narrated from Ibn Habib. Abu Hanifa said: This indicates that whoever has a free woman is not permitted to marry a slave woman even if he does not have the means and fears hardship, because he is seeking lust and he has a woman. Al-Tabari said this and provided evidence for it. Abu Yusuf said: Tallness is when a free woman is under him. If a free woman is under him, then he has the means and it is not permitted for him to marry a slave woman. The third opinion - Tallness is patience and endurance for whoever loves a slave woman and desires her until he is unable to marry anyone else. He may marry a slave woman if he does not control her desire and fears that he will seek her, even if he finds the means to marry a free woman. This is the opinion of Qatada, Al-Nakha'i, Ata' and Sufyan Al-Thawri. So the Almighty's statement: For whoever fears hardship according to this interpretation is in the description of not having the means. According to the first interpretation, marrying a slave woman is It is subject to two conditions: lack of financial means and fear of hardship. It is not valid unless both are met. This is the text of the Maliki school of thought in the Mudawwana, narrated by Ibn Nafi', Ibn al-Qasim, Ibn Wahb, and Ibn Ziyad. Mutraf and Ibn al-Majishun said: It is not permissible for a man to marry a female slave, nor are they to marry each other unless both conditions are met, as God Almighty said, and Asbagh said the same. This statement was narrated on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah, Ibn Abbas, Ata', Tawus, Al-Zuhri, and Makhul. Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr, Ahmad, and Ishaq said the same. Ibn Al-Mundhir and others chose it. If the dowry is available but there is no maintenance, Malik said in the Book of Muhammad: It is not permissible for him to marry a slave girl. Asbagh said: That is permissible, because the maintenance of the slave girl is on her family if he does not take her into his care. There is a fourth statement regarding the verse: Mujahid said: What God has made easy for this mother is the marriage of a slave girl and a Christian woman, even if he is wealthy. Abu Hanifa also said the same. He did not stipulate fear of hardship if there is no free woman under him. They said: Because every money with which one can marry a slave girl can be used to marry a free woman. So the verse, according to this, is a basis for the permissibility of marrying a slave girl in general. Mujahid said: Sufyan takes it, and that is because I asked him about marrying a slave girl, so he told me on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Ubadah ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: If a free woman marries a slave girl while she is a slave girl, the free woman has two days and the slave girl has one day. He said: And he did not see. Ali has no problem with this statement, and the evidence for this statement is the generality of the Almighty's statement: And lawful to you are all beyond that and His statement: And whoever among you cannot afford it until His statement: The punishment is for him who fears hardship because of the Almighty's statement: Then marry such women as seem good to you, two or three or four; but if you fear that you will not be just, then one. And everyone has agreed that a free man may marry four, and if he fears that he will not be just, they said: And likewise he may marry a slave girl even if he has the means and is not afraid of hardship. And it has been narrated from Malik regarding the one who has the means for a free woman that he may marry a slave girl even if he is able to afford the length of a free woman, and that is weak from his statement. And he said another time: It is not clearly forbidden, and I permit it. And the correct view is that it is not permissible for a free Muslim to marry a non-Muslim slave girl under any circumstances, nor is it permissible for him to marry a Muslim slave girl except with the two conditions stipulated as we have explained, and hardship is adultery. If he does not have the means and does not fear hardship, then it is not permissible for him to marry a slave girl, and that is if he has the means and fears hardship. And if he is able to afford the length of a free woman of the Book, which is the issue:

Second: Can he marry a female slave? Our scholars differed on this. It was said: He can marry a female slave, because a Muslim female slave cannot marry a non-Muslim female slave, so a believing female slave is better than a free polytheist, and Ibn al-Arabi chose this view. It was also said: He can marry a woman of the People of the Book, because even though the female slave is better than her in her faith, the non-Muslim is better than her in her freedom, and she is a wife. Also, her child will be free and not enslaved, while the child of the female slave will be a slave, and this is what the people of the school of thought agree on.

Third: The scholars differed regarding a man who marries a free woman while he is not aware of her. A group said: The marriage is valid. This is what Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Al-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr and the People of Opinion said. It was narrated from Ali. It was said: The free woman has the choice if she knows, then in what does she have the choice? Al-Zuhri, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Malik, Ahmad and Ishaq said: It is to stay with him or separate from him. Abdul Malik said: It is to confirm the marriage of the slave woman or annul it. Al-Nakha'i said: If he marries a free woman while he is a slave woman, he must separate from the slave woman unless he has a child from her. If he does not separate them, he must annul the marriage of the slave woman because it is something that is permitted out of necessity, like a dead body. If the necessity is lifted, the permissibility is lifted.

Fourth: If there are two slave girls under him and the free woman knows about one of them but does not know about the other, then she has the choice. Don't you see that if a free woman marries a slave girl and she agrees, then another slave girl marries another and she disapproves, then she has the right to do so? Likewise, if she does not know about the two slave girls and knows about one, Ibn al-Qasim said: Malik said: We only gave the free woman the choice in these matters because of what the scholars before me said, meaning Saeed ibn al-Musayyab, Ibn Shihab, and others. Malik said: Had it not been for what they said, I would have considered it permissible, because it is permissible in the Book of God. If a free woman is not enough for him and he needs another and is not able to pay her dowry, it is permissible for him to marry a slave woman until he reaches four by marriage according to the apparent meaning of the Qur'an. Narrated by Ibn Wahb from Malik. Ibn al-Qasim narrated from him: His marriage is invalid. Ibn al-Arabi said: The first is more correct in evidence, and so is the Qur'an. For whoever is satisfied with the established cause is satisfied with the effect that is arranged for it, and she has no choice because she knows that he has the right to marry four and she knows that if he is not able to marry a free woman, he will marry a slave woman, and God, the Most High, did not stipulate for her as she stipulated for herself, and her knowledge is not considered in the stipulations of God, the Most High. This is the ultimate investigation in this matter and fairness in it.

Fifth: The Almighty's statement, the chaste women, meaning free women, is indicated by the division between them and the slave girls in His statement, from among your believing girls, which includes them. They therefore permitted marriage to the slave girls of the People of the Book and forbade the prostitutes from among the believing women and the People of the Book. This is the statement of Ibn Maysarah and As-Suddi. The scholars differed regarding what is permissible for a free man who cannot afford to marry and fears hardship from marrying slave girls. Malik, Abu Hanifa, Ibn Shihab Az-Zuhri, and Al-Harith Al-Ukli said that he is allowed to marry four. Hamad bin Abi Sulayman said that he is not allowed to marry more than two slave girls. Ash-Shafi'i, Abu Thawr, Ahmad, and Ishaq said that he is not allowed to marry more than one slave girl. This is the statement of Ibn Abbas, Masruq, and a group. They provided evidence for this by the statement of the Almighty, That is for whoever among you fears hardship. This meaning is removed by one marriage.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: Then from those whom your right hands possess, meaning that he may marry someone else's female slave. There is no disagreement among scholars that he is not permitted to marry his own female slave due to the conflict and difference in rights.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying, Of your young girls, meaning your female slaves, which is the plural of fatah. The Arabs say boy for a male slave and girl for a female slave. In the authentic hadith:

Let none of you say, 'My slave' or 'My slave girl', but let him say, 'My young man' and 'My young woman'. And we will come to the end of the story. The word boy and girl are also used for free people in early youth, but for slaves, they are used in youth and old age.

Eighth - The Almighty's saying: The believing women

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

This clarifies that it is not permissible to marry a female slave of the People of the Book. This description is a condition according to Malik and his companions, Al-Shafi'i and his companions, Al-Thawri, Al-Awza'i, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Al-Zuhri, Makhul and Mujahid. A group of scholars, including the People of Opinion, said: Marrying a female slave of the People of the Book is permissible. Abu Omar said: I do not know of any predecessors in their saying, except Abu Maysarah Amr bin Shurahbil, for he said: The female slaves of the People of the Book are like free women among them. They said: His saying believing women is by way of a superior description and it is not a condition that no one else is permissible. This is similar to the Almighty's saying: But if you fear that you will not be just, then one. If he fears that he will not be just and marries more than one, it is permissible, but it is better for him not to marry. Likewise here it is better for him not to marry except a believing woman, and if he marries a non-believing woman, it is permissible. They argued by analogy with free women, because since his saying believing women in free women did not prevent marriage to women of the Book, so his saying believing women in slave women did not prevent marriage to slave women of the Book. Ashhab said in Al-Mudawwana: It is permissible for a Muslim slave to marry a slave woman of the Book, so the prohibition, according to him, is that the husband is preferred in freedom and religion together, and there is no disagreement among the scholars that it is not permissible for a Muslim to marry a Zoroastrian or pagan woman. If it is forbidden by consensus to marry them, then so is intercourse with them by the right of ownership in Yemen, by analogy and consideration. It was narrated from Tawus, Mujahid, Ata' and Amr ibn Dinar that they said: There is nothing wrong with marrying a Zoroastrian slave woman by right of ownership, and this is an odd and abandoned saying that none of the jurists of the countries paid attention to. They said: It is not permissible to have intercourse with her until she becomes Muslim. The statement on this issue has been presented in full in Al-Baqarah, and praise be to God.

Ninth: The Almighty's saying: And God knows best about your faith. The meaning is that God knows the inner aspects of things, but you know their outer aspects. You are all children of Adam, and the most honorable of you in the sight of God is the most righteous of you. So do not be reluctant to marry female slaves when necessary, even if she has recently been captured, or is mute, or something similar. The wording indicates that perhaps the faith of a female slave is better than the faith of some free women.

Tenth - The Almighty's saying: Some of you are from others is a subject and a predicate, like your saying Zaid is in the house. The meaning is that you are the children of Adam. It was said: You are believers. It was said: There is an inversion in the speech, the meaning is: And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then let some of you marry from others: This one is the girl of this one and this one is the girl of this one. So some of you, according to this estimation, are raised by their action, which is, Let him marry. The purpose of this speech is to pave the way for the souls of the Arabs who used to find strange the child of a slave girl and taunt him and call him a hybrid. So when the law came with the permissibility of marrying her, they knew that this hybridization had no meaning, and that the slave girl had degraded, so it was not permissible for a free man to marry her except in cases of necessity, because it would lead to the child's weakness, and the slave girl is not always available to the husband, because she is busy serving her master.

Eleventh - The Almighty's saying: Then marry them with the permission of their people, meaning with the authority and permission of their masters, and likewise the slave does not marry except with the permission of his master. Because the slave is owned and has no control and his entire body is absorbed, but the difference between them is that if the slave marries without his master's permission, then if the master approves of it, it is permissible. This is the doctrine of Malik and the people of opinion, and it is the opinion of Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Ata bin Abi Rabah, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Shuraih, and Al-Sha'bi. If the female slave marries without the permission of her family, it is annulled and is not permissible with the master's hiring, because the lack of femininity in the sperm prevents the conclusion of the marriage contract at all. A group said: If the slave marries without his master's permission, his marriage is annulled. This is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, Al-Awza'i, and Dawud bin Ali. They said: The master's approval is not permissible if he is not present, because the invalid contract is not valid. If he wants to marry, he should accept it according to his tradition. The Muslim scholars have agreed that it is not permissible for a slave to marry without his master's permission. Ibn Umar used to consider the slave an adulterer and punish him. This is the opinion of Abu Thawr. Abd Al-Razzaq mentioned on the authority of Abdullah bin Umar on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar that he took a slave of his who married without his permission and beat him with the prescribed punishment. And he separated them and invalidated her dowry. He said: Ibn Jurayj informed us on the authority of Musa ibn Uqbah that he informed him on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar that he considered the marriage of a slave without the permission of his guardian to be adultery and he considered the punishment for it and punished those who married them. He said: Ibn Jurayj informed us on the authority of Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn Uqayl who said: I heard Jabir ibn Abdullah say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Any slave who marries without the permission of his master is a fornicator. And on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him: It is an unlawful marriage. If it is a marriage with the permission of his master, then divorce is in the hands of the one who makes the vagina permissible. Abu Umar said: This is the doctrine of a group of jurists in the regions of Hijaz and Iraq. There is no disagreement about Ibn Abbas that divorce is in the hands of the master. Jabir ibn Zayd and a group followed him in this, and according to the scholars it is an anomaly that should not be taken into account. I think that Ibn Abbas interpreted in this the saying of God Almighty: "God sets forth an example: a slave owned by someone who has no power over anything." (al-Nahl 16:75) The scholars agreed that the marriage of a slave is permissible with the permission of his master. If he marries invalidly, then al-Shafi'i said: If he did not consummate the marriage, then she is not entitled to anything. If he did consummate the marriage, then he is owed the dower if he is freed. This is the correct view of his doctrine, and it is the view of Abu Yusuf and Muhammad. He is not owed a dower until he is freed. Abu Hanifa said: If he consummates the marriage, then she is entitled to the dower. Malik and al-Shafi'i said: If a slave is between two men and one of them gives him permission to marry, then he marries, then the marriage is invalid. As for the female slave, if..." She gave permission to her family to marry her and they gave permission, it is valid. If she does not perform the contract, she appoints someone to perform it for her.

Twelfth - The Almighty's saying: And give them their dowries is evidence of the obligation of the dowry in marriage, and that it is for the female slave according to what is reasonable meaning according to the Sharia and Sunnah, and this requires that they are more entitled to their dowries than the masters, and this is the school of Malik. He said in the Book of Mortgages: The master does not have the right to take the dowry of his female slave and leave her without a dowry. Al-Shafi'i said: The dowry is for the master, because it is compensation, so the female slave does not have the basis of the permission to benefit from the slave, and it was only mentioned because the dowry became obligatory because of her. Judge Ismail mentioned in his rulings: Some Iraqis claimed that if he marries his female slave to his male slave, then there is no dowry, and this is contrary to the Book and the Sunnah, and he elaborated on it.

Thirteenth - The Almighty's saying: Chaste meaning chaste. Al-Kisa'i read Chaste with a kasra on the sad in all of the Qur'an, except in the Almighty's saying: And chaste women and the rest read with the accusative in the plural of the Qur'an. Then he said: Not fornicators meaning not adulterers, meaning those who openly commit adultery because the people of ignorance had fornicators in public and they had banners erected like the banner of a veterinarian. Nor those who take secret lovers friends in fornication, the singular of which is khadan and khadayn and he is the one who takes you as a companion. A man is a khadna if he takes secret lovers, on the authority of Abu Zayd. It was said that fornication is the one who openly commits adultery, meaning the one who rents herself out for that purpose. The one with the secret lover is the one who commits adultery in secret. In fornication: the one who is given away, and the one with the secret lover is the one who commits adultery with one person. The Arabs used to criticize the publicity of adultery, but did not criticize the taking of secret lovers. Then Islam removed all of that, and in that was revealed the Almighty's saying: And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed (al-An'am 6:151) on the authority of Ibn Abbas and others.

Fourteenth - The Almighty's saying: And when they become chaste. The reading of Asim, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i is with a fatha on the hamza, and the rest with a damma on it. So with a fatha it means they have submitted to Islam, and with a damma it means they have married. So if a Muslim slave woman commits adultery, she is flogged with half the flogging of a free woman, and her conversion to Islam is her chastity. The majority say: Ibn Mas'ud, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Zuhri, and others. Based on this, a non-Muslim woman is not to be punished if she commits adultery, and this is the saying of Al-Shafi'i as mentioned by Ibn Al-Mundhir. Others said: Her chastity is marrying a free woman. So if a Muslim slave woman who has not been married commits adultery, then there is no punishment upon her. This was said by Sa'id bin Jubayr, Al-Hasan, and Qatadah. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Abu Al-Darda', and Abu Ubaid said the same. He said: In the hadith of Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, he was asked about the punishment of a slave woman, so he said: The slave woman threw the scalp from behind the house. Al-Asma'i said: The scalp is the skin of the head. Abu Ubaidah said: And he did not mean the fur itself, so how can she throw the skin of her head from behind the house? But this is an example. What they meant by fur is the veil, meaning that she does not have a veil or a veil and that she goes out to every place her family sends her to, and she is not able to refrain from that, so she is where she is not able to refrain from immorality, such as tending sheep, paying taxes, and the like. So it is as if he saw that there is no punishment for her if she commits immorality, for this reason. And a group said: Her chastity is marriage, except that the punishment is obligatory for the unmarried Muslim slave woman according to the Sunnah, as in Sahih al-Bukhari and Muslim, that it was said:

O Messenger of God, if a female slave commits adultery and is not married, then the punishment is obligatory upon her. Al-Zuhri said: The married woman is punished by the Qur'an and the unmarried Muslim woman is punished by the hadith. Judge Ismail said regarding the statement of those who said, Then if they become chaste, they become Muslims after that because the mention of faith has already been made of them in the words of God the Almighty: From among your believing girls. As for those who said, Then if they become chaste, they marry, and that there is no punishment upon the female slave until she marries, then they went to the apparent meaning of the Qur'an and I think they did not know this hadith. The matter with us is that if a female slave commits adultery and is chaste, she is flogged by the Book of God, and if she commits adultery and is not chaste, she is flogged by the hadith of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and she is not stoned because stoning is not divided in half. Abu Omar said: The apparent meaning of the statement of God the Almighty requires that there is no punishment upon a female slave, even if she is Muslim, except after marriage, then the Sunnah came with flogging her even if she is not chaste, so that was an additional clarification.

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

I said: The believer's back is a fever that cannot be violated except with certainty, and there is no certainty with disagreement, were it not for what came in the authentic Sunnah about flogging in that. And God knows best. Abu Thawr said, as Ibn al-Mundhir mentioned: Even if they disagreed about stoning her, then they are to be stoned if they are married, and if there is consensus, then consensus is more appropriate.

Fifteenth - The scholars differed about who should carry out the punishment on them. Ibn Shihab said: The Sunnah has been established that the slave and the slave woman should be punished by their families for adultery, unless their matter is brought to the ruler, then no one has the right to interfere with him, and this is required by his saying, peace be upon him:

If one of your female slaves commits adultery, then let him punish her with the prescribed punishment. And Ali, may God be pleased with him, said in his sermon:

O people, carry out the prescribed punishment on your slaves, whether they are chaste or unmarried. A female slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, committed adultery and he ordered me to flog her. She had recently given birth, and I feared that if I flogged her I would kill her. So I mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Well done. Narrated by Muslim, with a chain of transmission traceable back to him, and attributed to al-Nasa'i, who said in it: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Carry out the prescribed punishments on those whom your right hands possess, whether they are chaste or unmarried.'" This is a text on the masters carrying out the prescribed punishments on slaves, whether they are chaste or unmarried. Malik, may God be pleased with him, said: The master punishes his slave for adultery, drinking alcohol, or slander if witnesses testify to that in his presence. He does not cut off his hand for theft, but rather the imam cuts off his hand. This is the opinion of al-Layth. It was narrated from a group of the Companions that they carried out the prescribed punishments on their slaves, including Ibn 'Umar and Anas, and none of the Companions disagreed with them. It was narrated from Ibn Abi Layla that he said: I saw the remnants of the Ansar flogging their female slaves if they committed adultery in their gatherings. Abu Hanafi: The ruler imposes the prescribed punishments on male and female slaves, not the master, in the case of adultery and other prescribed punishments. This is the opinion of Al-Hasan ibn Hayy. Al-Shafi'i said: The master punishes him for every punishment and cuts off his hand, and he cited as evidence the hadiths that we mentioned. Al-Thawri and Al-Awza'i said: He punishes him for adultery, and this is what the hadiths require. And God knows best. We have already discussed the exile of slaves in this surah.

Sixteenth - If a female slave commits adultery and is then freed before her master punishes her, he has no way to punish her, and the ruler will flog her if it is proven to him. If she commits adultery and then marries, her master has no right to flog her either, because of the husband's right, as that might harm him. This is the Maliki school of thought if the husband is not the master's property. If he was, then it would be permissible for the master to do so, because their right is his right.

Seventeenth - If the slave confesses to adultery and his master denies it, then the punishment is obligatory on the slave because of his confession, and no attention is paid to what the master denies. This is agreed upon by the scholars, as well as the freed slave, the mother of the child, the freed slave, and the partially freed slave. They also agreed that if a female slave commits adultery and is then freed, she is punished with the punishment for female slaves. If she commits adultery without knowing about the manumission and then finds out after being punished, the full punishment for a free woman is carried out on her. This was mentioned by Ibn al-Mundhir.

Eighteenth - They differed regarding the master's pardon of his male or female slave if they committed adultery. Al-Hasan used to say: He has the right to pardon. Other than Al-Hasan said: He has no choice but to carry out the punishment, just as the ruler has no right to pardon a punishment if he knows about it. Likewise, the master has no right to pardon his female slave if the punishment is due on her. This is according to the school of thought of Abu Thawr. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: And we say the same.

Nineteenth - The Almighty said: Then upon them is half of the punishment of the free women meaning flogging. What is meant by the free women here are the virgins, because the previously married woman is subject to stoning, and stoning is not partial. Rather, the virgin is called free even if she is not married, because chastity is with her, just as it is said: a sacrifice is said to be sacrificed, and just as it is said: a cow is aroused before it arouses. And it is said: the free women are the married women because they are subject to flogging and stoning in the hadith, and stoning is not partial, so they are subject to half the flogging. The benefit of reducing their punishment is that they are weaker than the free women. And it is said: they do not reach their goal as the free women reach it. And it is said: because the punishment is required according to the degree of the blessing. Do you not see that God the Almighty said to the wives of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: O wives of the Prophet, whoever among you commits a clear immorality, the punishment will be doubled for her twofold (al-Ahzab 33:30). So since their blessing was greater, He made their punishment more severe, and likewise the slave women, since their blessing was less, their punishment is less. The verse specifically mentions the punishment for female slaves, but does not mention the punishment for male slaves. However, the punishment for male slaves and female slaves is the same: fifty lashes for adultery, for slander, and for drinking alcohol, forty, because the punishment for female slaves was reduced due to the reduction in slavery, so male slaves were included in that on the grounds of being owned, just as female slaves were included under "His saying, peace be upon him: Whoever frees a share of his in a slave." This is what scholars call analogy in the meaning of the original, and from it is the saying of God Almighty: And those who accuse chaste women (al-Nur 24:4), the verse, so that definitely includes chaste men, as will be explained in Surat An-Nur, God willing.

Al-Muwaffiyah twentieth - The scholars agreed that selling a female adulterer is not an obligation upon her master, even if they chose that for him, "because of his saying, peace be upon him:

If one of your female slaves commits adultery and her adultery is proven, let him flog her with the prescribed lashes and not reproach her. Then if she commits adultery a third time and her adultery is proven, let him sell her even for a rope of hair. Narrated by Muslim on the authority of Abu Hurayrah. The people of the apparent meaning said that it is obligatory to sell her after the fourth time, including Dawud and others, based on his statement: "Then let him sell her" and his statement: Then sell her even for a braid of hair. Ibn Shihab said: I do not know if it was after the third or the fourth, and the braid is the rope. So if he sells her, her adultery will be known because it is a defect and it is not permissible to conceal it. If it is said: If the intended meaning of the hadith is to keep the adulteress away and it is obligatory for her seller to make known her adultery, then no one should buy her because she is one of those whom we have been commanded to keep away, then the answer is that she is property and should not be lost because of the prohibition on wasting money and not let her go free because that would tempt her to commit adultery and enable her to do so. Nor should she be imprisoned permanently because that would deprive her of her benefit for her master, so nothing remains but to sell her. Perhaps the second master will protect her by having intercourse with her or he will be very careful and prevent her from that. In short, when... The angel changes, the circumstances change, and God knows best.

Twenty-one - The Almighty said: And that you be patient is better for you meaning patience in celibacy is better than marrying a slave girl, because it leads to enslaving the child and lowering the self, and patience in good morals is better than vulgarity. It was narrated on the authority of Omar, may God be pleased with him, that he said: As for a free man who marries a slave girl, he has enslaved half of his eye and his child becomes a slave, so patience in avoiding that is better so that the child does not become enslaved. Saeed bin Jubair said: Marrying a slave girl is not like adultery until recently. God Almighty said: And that you be patient is better for you meaning marrying slave girls. In his Sunan, Ibn Majah narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim, who said: "I heard Anas bin Malik say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

Whoever wants to meet God in a state of purity and purity, let him marry free women." Abu Ishaq al-Tha'labi narrated it from the hadith of Yunus ibn Murad, who was a servant of Anas, and he added: "Abu Hurairah said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Free women are the well-being of the home, and slave women are the destruction of the home - or he said - the corruption of the home."

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: And whoever among you cannot afford meaning the means and ability to marry free, believing women meaning free, chaste, believing women. Ibn Wahb said: Abdul-Jabbar told me on the authority of Rabia: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry free, believing women Rabia said: The means is desire, meaning he marries a slave girl if his desire is in her. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir. Then he began to criticize this statement and reject it. Your right hands possess from among your believing slave girls meaning marry from among the believing slave girls whom the believers own. That is why He said from among your believing slave girls. Ibn Abbas and others said: So let him marry from among the slave girls of the believers. This is what As-Suddi and Muqatil ibn Hayyan said. Then he objected by saying, And God knows best about your faith, some of you from others, meaning He knows the truths of matters and their secrets, and you, O people, only have the outward appearance of matters. Then, Then marry them with the permission of their people, which indicates that the master is the guardian of his female slave, and she does not marry except with his permission. Likewise, he is the guardian of his male slave, and he does not have the right to marry without his permission, as came in the hadith, Any male slave who marries without the permission of his masters is a fornicator, meaning an adulterer. If the owner of the female slave is a woman, he marries her to someone who marries the woman with her permission, as stated in the hadith: A woman does not marry a woman, nor does a woman marry herself, for the adulteress is the one who marries herself. And the Almighty's saying:

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

And give them their dowries equitably, meaning, pay their dowries equitably, meaning willingly, and do not withhold anything from them, looking down on them because they are owned female slaves. And the Almighty's saying: Chaste, meaning, chaste from adultery, not engaging in it. That is why He said, Not fornicators, and they are the fornicatrices who do not prevent anyone who wants to commit adultery with them. And the Almighty's saying: Nor taking lovers, Ibn Abbas said: The fornicators are the open fornicators, meaning the fornicatrices who do not prevent anyone who wants to commit adultery with them. And taking lovers means close friends, and this is how it was narrated from Abu Hurairah, Mujahid, Ash-Sha'bi, Ad-Dahhak, Ata' Al-Khurasani, Yahya bin Abi Katheer, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and As-Suddi, they said: Close friends. And Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: He means As-Siddiq. Ad-Dahhak also said, nor those who take lovers, meaning those who have one lover and acknowledge him. God has forbidden that. He means marrying her off as long as she is like that.

And the Almighty's saying: And if they are chaste, then upon them is half that upon chaste women of the punishment. The reciters differed about ahsan. Some of them recited it with a damma on the hamza and a kasra on the sad, in the passive voice of an unspecified agent. Another recited it with a fatha on the hamza and the sad, as an intransitive verb. Then it was said: The meaning of the two recitations is the same, and they differed about it with two opinions one of them that what is meant by chastity here is Islam. This was narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, Ibn Omar, Anas, Al-Aswad bin Yazid, Zar bin Hubaish, Saeed bin Jubayr, Ata', Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Al-Sha'bi and Al-Suddi. Al-Zuhri narrated something similar on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab, and it is disconnected. This is the opinion that Al-Shafi'i stated explicitly in the narration of Al-Rabi'. He said: We only said that, based on the Sunnah and the consensus of most of the people of knowledge. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated a hadith with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) on this matter. He said: 'Ali ibn al-Husayn ibn al-Junayd told us, Ahmad ibn 'Abd al-Rahman ibn 'Abdullah told us, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Abu 'Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of 'Ali ibn Abi Talib, who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: Then if he is chaste, he said: Her chastity is her Islam and her chastity, and he said: What is meant by it here is marriage. He said: 'Ali said: Flog them.' Then Ibn Abi Hatim said: It is a rejected hadeeth. I said Its chain of transmission is weak, and it contains someone who was not named, and the like of it cannot be used as evidence. Al-Qasim and Salim said: Her chastity is her Islam and her chastity. It was said: What is meant by it here is marriage, and this is the opinion of Ibn 'Abbas, Mujahid, 'Ikrimah, Tawus, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, al-Hasan, Qatadah and others. Abu 'Ali al-Tabari transmitted it in his book al-Idah on the authority of al-Shafi'i, as narrated by Abu al-Hakam ibn 'Abd al-Hakam on his authority. Laith bin Abi Saleem narrated on the authority of Mujahid that he said: The chastity of a female slave is for a free man to marry her, and the chastity of a male slave is for him to marry a free woman. Ibn Abi Talhah narrated the same on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Both were narrated by Ibn Jarir in his Tafsir. Ibn Abi Hatim mentioned it on the authority of Al-Sha'bi and Al-Nakha'i. It was said: The meaning of the two readings is different. Whoever reads: Ahsan with a damma on the hamza, what he means is marriage, and whoever reads it with a fatha on it, what he means is Islam. Abu Ja'far bin Jarir chose this in his Tafsir and confirmed and supported it. What is more apparent - and God knows best - is that what is meant by chastity here is marriage, because the context of the verse indicates it where God the Almighty says: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of your believing slave girls (Surat Al-A'raf 2:170). And God knows best. The context of the entire verse is about believing girls, so it is clear that what is meant by His statement: And when they are chaste is that they get married, as Ibn Abbas and those who followed him explained. Both opinions have a problem with the majority of scholars, because they say that if a female slave commits adultery, she is to be flogged fifty times, whether she is a Muslim or a non-Muslim, married or a virgin, even though the meaning of the verse requires that there is no punishment for a female slave who is not chaste and commits adultery. Their answers to this differed, but the majority of scholars said: There is no doubt that the explicit statement takes precedence over the implied statement. There are general hadiths about carrying out the punishment on female slaves, so we have given them precedence over the implied statement of the verse. Among these is what Muslim narrated in his Sahih on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he gave a sermon and said: O people, carry out the prescribed punishment on your slaves, those who are chaste among them and those who are not. A female slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, committed adultery, so he ordered me to flog her. She had recently given birth, so I feared that if I flogged her I would kill her. So I mentioned that to the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: "You did well. Leave her until she is restored." And according to Abdullah bin Ahmad, on the authority of someone other than his father: If she is arrogant, her prescribed punishment is fifty. And according to Abu Hurairah, he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "If the female slave of one of you commits adultery and her adultery is proven, then let him flog her the prescribed punishment and not slander her. Then if she commits adultery a second time, then let him flog her the prescribed punishment and not slander her. Then if she commits adultery a third time and her adultery is proven, then let him sell her, even for a rope of hair." And according to Muslim: If she commits adultery three times, then let him sell her the fourth time. And Malik narrated on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, on the authority of Sulayman bin Yasar, on the authority of Abdullah bin Ayyash bin Abi Rabi'ah. Al-Makhzoumi said: Omar bin Al-Khattab ordered me to flog some young men from Quraysh, and we flogged fifty of the slave girls of the emirate for adultery.

The second answer The answer of those who said that if a female slave commits adultery and is not married, then there is no punishment upon her, but she is flogged as a discipline, and this is what was narrated from Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him. This is what Tawus, Saeed bin Jubair, Abu Ubaid Al-Qasim bin Salam, and Dawud bin Ali Al-Zahiri went with in a narration from him, and their support is the meaning of the verse, which is one of the meanings of the condition, and it is an argument according to most of them, so it is presented over the generality according to them, and the hadith of Abu Hurairah and Zaid bin Khalid, may God be pleased with them, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a female slave who commits adultery and is not married? He said: If she commits adultery, then flog her, then if she commits adultery again, then flog her, then sell her even for a braid. Ibn Shihab said: I do not know after the third or fourth time, and they included it in the two Sahihs. And according to Muslim, Ibn Shihab said: The braid is the rope. They said: So no number was set for it as it was set for the chaste woman, and as it was set in the Qur'an as half of the punishment for chaste women, so it was necessary to reconcile the verse and the hadith with that, and God knows best - and clearer than that is what Saeed bin Mansour narrated from Sufyan, from Misa'ar, from Amr bin Murrah, from Saeed bin Jubair, from Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no punishment for a slave woman until she becomes chaste - or until she marries - and when she marries with a husband, then half of what is for chaste women is due. Ibn Khuzaymah narrated it from Abdullah bin Imran Al-Abbadi from Sufyan with it as a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, and he said that it was incorrectly traced back to the Prophet, and it is only from the words of Ibn Abbas. Al-Bayhaqi narrated it likewise from the hadith of Abdullah bin Imran and said the same as Ibn Khuzaymah said. They said: The hadith of Ali and Umar are individual cases, and the hadith of Abu Hurayrah from him has answers: One of them is that it is applied to the married slave woman, reconciling it with this hadith. The second is that the word hadd in his saying let him flog her the hadd was inserted by some of the narrators, as evidenced by the third answer, which is that this is from the hadith of two companions and that is from the narration of Abu Hurayrah only, and what was from two is more deserving of precedence than the narration of one, and also al-Nasa'i narrated it with a chain of transmission according to the conditions of Muslim from the hadith of 'Ibad ibn Tamim from his uncle, who had witnessed Badr, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If a female slave commits adultery, flog her, then if she commits adultery again, flog her, then if she commits adultery again, flog her, then if she commits adultery again, sell her even for a braid of hair." The fourth It is not far-fetched that some of the narrators used the word hadd in the hadith to mean flogging, because when flogging was believed to be a hadd, or that he used the word hadd to mean discipline, just as he used the hadd to mean a type of a sick person who committed adultery, such as a date-palm tree with one hundred palm fronds, and to flog someone who committed adultery with his wife's female slave if she gave him permission to do so, one hundred, and that is only a punishment and discipline according to those who see it, such as Ahmad and others from the Salaf. The real punishment is to lash a virgin one hundred times, and to stone a previously married woman or a sodomite. And God knows best. Ibn Jarir narrated in his Tafsir: Ibn al-Muthanna told us, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Murrah that he heard Sa'id ibn Jubayr say: A female slave should not be flogged if she commits adultery as long as she does not marry. This is a sound chain of transmission on his authority, and a strange view if he meant that a female slave should not be flogged at all, as if he took the meaning of the verse and the hadith did not reach him. And if he meant that she should not be flogged as a punishment, and he does not deny flogging her as a form of discipline, then it is like the saying of Ibn 'Abbas may God be pleased with him and those who followed him in that, and God knows best.

The third answer The verse indicates that a married female slave is punished with half the punishment of a free woman. As for before marriage, the generalities of the Book and Sunnah include her with a hundred lashes, such as the Almighty's saying: The adulterer and the adulteress, flog each of them with a hundred lashes. And the hadith of Ubadah ibn al-Samit: "Learn from me, learn from me, God has made a way for them: a virgin with a virgin, a hundred lashes and exile for a year, and a married woman with a married woman, a hundred lashes and stoning her." The hadith is in Sahih Muslim and other hadiths. This statement is the well-known one from Dawud ibn Ali al-Zahiri, and it is extremely weak, because if God Almighty ordered that a married female slave be flogged with half the punishment of a free woman, which is fifty lashes, then how can her ruling before marriage be more severe than after marriage, and the principle of the Shari'ah in this regard is the opposite of what he said? And this street, peace be upon him, was asked by his companions about the female slave who committed adultery and was not married, so he said: Flog her, and he did not say: One hundred, so if her ruling was as David claimed, it would have been necessary to explain that to them, because they only asked about that because the ruling of one hundred lashes after marriage was not explained for female slaves, otherwise what is the benefit in their saying: And she was not married because there is no difference between them if the verse had not been revealed, but when they knew the ruling of one of the two rulings, they asked about the ruling of the other, so he explained it to them, as in the two Sahihs that when they asked him about praying for him, he mentioned it to them, then he said: "And peace is what you have known," and in another version, when God revealed His saying: "O you who believe, pray for him and greet him with peace," they said: We know this peace upon you, so how do we pray for you and mention the hadith and this is how this question is.

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

The fourth answer Regarding the meaning of the verse, Abu Thawr's answer is more strange than Dawud's statement in several ways, as he says: If they become chaste, then upon them is half of what upon the chaste married women, which is stoning. This is not halved, so the chaste slave woman must be stoned if she commits adultery. As for before becoming chaste, she must be flogged fifty times. So he made a mistake in understanding the verse, and he disagreed with the majority in the ruling. Rather, Abu Abdullah al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said: The Muslims did not differ that there is no stoning upon a slave for adultery, because the verse indicated that upon them is half of what upon the chaste women of punishment, and the alif and lam in chaste women are for the covenant, and they are the chaste women mentioned at the beginning of the verse: And whoever among you cannot afford to marry chaste, believing women, meaning only free women without referring to marrying someone else, and his saying: half of what upon the chaste women of punishment indicates that what is meant by the punishment that can be halved is flogging, not stoning, and God knows best. Ahmad narrated a text in refutation of Abu Thawr's doctrine from the narration of Al-Hasan bin Saeed from his father: Safiyya had committed adultery with a man from the Hamsa tribe, and she gave birth to a boy. The adulterer claimed him, and they disputed before Uthman, who referred them to Ali bin Abi Talib. Ali said: I will rule in their case according to the ruling of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: the child belongs to the bed, and the adulterer is stoned, and their lashes are fifty by fifty. It was said: Rather, what is meant by the concept is to draw attention to the higher over the lower, meaning that female slaves are half the free women in the punishment even if they are chaste, and there is no stoning upon them at all, neither before nor after marriage. Rather, they are subject to lashing in both cases according to the Sunnah. This was said by the author of Al-Iksah. He mentioned this from Al-Shafi'i in what Ibn Abd Al-Hakam narrated from him, and Al-Bayhaqi mentioned it in the book of Sunan and Athar. It is far from the wording of the verse, because we only benefited from the halving of the punishment from the verse and not from anything else, so how can we understand from it the halving in what is other than it? He said: Rather, what is meant is that in a state of chastity, no one can carry out the punishment upon her except the imam, and her master is not permitted to carry out the punishment upon her. This is the case, and it is a statement in the school of Ahmad, may God have mercy on him. As for before marriage, he has that right, and the punishment in both cases is half the punishment of a free woman. This is also far-fetched, because there is nothing in the wording of the verse that indicates it. If it were not for this, we would not know what the ruling on female slaves is in halving, and they would have to be included in the generality of the verse in completing the punishment of one hundred, or stoning them as proven in the evidence for it. It was mentioned previously from Ali that he said: O people, implement the punishment on your slaves, those of them who are married and those who are not. The generality of the hadiths mentioned above does not include a distinction between the married woman and others, due to the hadith of Abu Hurairah, which the majority used as evidence: If the female slave of one of you commits adultery, and her adultery is proven, then let him flog her the prescribed punishment, and let him not blame her. Summary of the verse: If she commits adultery, there are opinions: One of them is that she is flogged fifty times before marriage and after it. And is she to be banished? There are three opinions: One of them is that she is to be banished from him. The second is that she is not banished at all, and the third is that she is banished for half a year, which is half the banishment of a free woman. This difference of opinion is in the Shafi'i school of thought. As for Abu Hanifa, he believes that banishment is a discretionary punishment and is not part of the full punishment, but rather it is the opinion of the imam. If he wishes, he may do it, or he may leave it, for men and women. According to Malik, banishment is only for men, but not for women, because that is contrary to their protection, and nothing has been reported about banishment for men or women. Yes, the hadith of Ubadah and the hadith of Abu Hurairah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled that whoever committed adultery and was not married should be banished generally and that the punishment should be carried out on him. Narrated by Al-Bukhari, and this is specific in meaning, which is that the purpose of banishment is protection, and that is missing in the banishment of women, and God knows best. The second is that if a female slave commits adultery, she is to be lashed fifty times after marriage and is to be flogged as a discipline that is not limited to a specific number. What Ibn Jarir narrated from Saeed bin Jubair that she is not to be flogged before marriage has already been mentioned. If he meant banishment, then it is a doctrine of interpretation, otherwise it is like the second opinion. The other opinion is that she should be flogged one hundred times before marriage, and fifty times after it, as is well-known from Dawud. The weakest opinion is that she should be flogged fifty times before marriage, and stoned after it. This is the opinion of Abu Thaur, and it is also weak. God Almighty knows best. And the Almighty said: This is for him among you who fears hardship meaning that marriage to female slaves is only permitted with the above conditions for the one who fears for himself falling into adultery, and finds it difficult to be patient with intercourse, and is hard because of all of that, then he may marry a female slave, and if he refrains from marrying her and struggles with himself to refrain from adultery, then it is better for him because if he marries her, his children will come as slaves to her master, unless the husband is an Arab, then his children from her will not be slaves according to an old statement by Al-Shafi'i, and for this reason he said: And that you be patient is better for you, and God is Forgiving and Merciful. From this noble verse, the majority of scholars have deduced in the permissibility of marrying female slaves that it is necessary not to have a long life in marrying free women and from fear of hardship because of the corruption of children's slavery in marrying them, and because of the baseness in them in turning away from free women to them, and the majority of scholars differed with Abu Hanifa and his companions in stipulating the two matters, and they said: Whenever a man is not married to a free woman, it is permissible for him to marry a believing female slave and a woman of the Book as well, whether she is Whether he is free or not, and whether he fears hardship or not, and their basis for what they have gone to is the Almighty's saying: And chaste women from among those who were given the Scripture before you meaning the chaste women, and this includes free women and slave women, and this verse is general and this also is clear in indicating what the majority said, and God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 25- And whoever among you cannot afford to marry free, believing women tawf means wealth and plenty, as stated by Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubayr, As-Suddi, Ibn Zayd, Malik, Ash-Shafi'i, Ahmad, Ishaq, Abu Thawr and the majority of scholars. The meaning of the verse is: Whoever among you cannot afford wealth and plenty of money to be able to marry free, believing women, then let him marry from among your believing girls. It is said: he was tall, he is tall in generosity and ability, and so-and-so is tall: meaning he is able in his wealth. Tawf with dammah is the opposite of short. Qatada, An-Nakha'i, Ata' and Ath-Thawri said: Tawf means patience. The meaning of the verse according to them is that whoever loves a slave girl to the point that he cannot marry anyone else, then he may marry her if he cannot control himself and fears that he will commit adultery with her, even if he has the means to marry a free woman. Abu Hanifa said, and it was narrated from Malik: The length of a free woman is not permissible for him to marry a slave woman, and for someone who does not have a free woman, it is permissible for him to marry a slave woman even if he is rich. Abu Yusuf said the same, and Ibn Jarir chose it and provided evidence for it. The first statement is the one that matches the meaning of the verse, and anything other than it is not without difficulty. A man is not permitted to marry a slave woman unless he is not able to marry a free woman due to the lack of what he needs to marry her, such as a dowry and other things. He used as evidence his statement, from among your believing girls that it is not permissible to marry a female slave of the People of the Book. The people of Hijaz said the same and the people of Iraq permitted it. The letter fa was included in his statement, from among those whom your right hands possess to include the meaning of a condition in the subject. His statement, from among your believing girls is in the accusative case as a state, so you know that a free man is not permitted to marry a female slave except on the condition that he is not able to marry a free woman. The second condition is what God the Almighty will mention at the end of the verse, when He says, This is for whoever among you fears hardship. It is not permissible for a poor person to marry a female slave unless he fears hardship for himself. What is meant here is a female slave owned by someone else. As for a man's own female slave, there is consensus that he is not permitted to marry her while she is under his ownership due to the conflict and difference in rights. Girls is the plural of fatah, and the Arabs say for a male slave boy and for a female slave girl. In the authentic hadith, Let none of you say 'my slave' or 'my female slave', but let him say 'my boy' and 'my girl'. His statement, And God knows best about your faith is a consolation for whoever marries a female slave if the two mentioned conditions are met: that is, you are all children of Adam, and the most honorable among you in the sight of God is the most righteous of you. So do not be reluctant to marry female slaves when necessary, for perhaps the faith of some female slaves is better than the faith of some free women. The sentence is parenthetical. His statement, Some of you are from others, is a subject and predicate, and its meaning is: that they are connected in lineage because they are all children of Adam, or connected in religion because they are all people of one religion and their book is one and their prophet is one. The purpose of this is to prepare the souls of the Arabs, because they used to find the children of female slaves strange, consider them small and look down on them. Then marry them with the permission of their people, meaning with the permission of those who own them, because their benefits are theirs and no one else may benefit from them except with the permission of the one who owns them. His statement, And give them their dowries according to what is acceptable in the Shari'ah, means: pay them their dowries according to what is acceptable in the Shari'ah. This was used as evidence by those who said that the female slave has more right to her dowry than her master, and Malik held this view. The majority held that the dowry belongs to the master, and he only attributed it to them because paying it to them is paying it to their master because they are his property. His statement, Chaste, means: chaste. Al-Kisa'i read muhsanat with a kasra on the sad in all of the Qur'an except in His saying and chaste women and the rest read it with a fatha in all of the Qur'an. His saying not fornicators means not publicizing fornication. And the friends are the companions, and the two friends are the mukhadan: meaning the companion. It was said that the one with the two cheeks is the one who commits fornication in secret, so it is the opposite of the musaha, which is the one who openly commits fornication. It was said that the musaha is the one who is given freely, and the one with the two cheeks is the one who commits fornication with one person. The Arabs used to criticize the publicization of fornication but did not criticize the taking of friends, then Islam removed all of that, God said And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed. His saying and when you are chaste Asim, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read it with a fatha on the hamza. The rest read it with a damma, and what is meant by chastity here is Islam. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud, Ibn Omar, Anas, Al-Aswad bin Yazid, Zar bin Hubaish, Saeed bin Jubair, Ata, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Suddi, and it was narrated on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab with an interrupted chain of transmission, which is what Al-Shafi'i stated explicitly, and the majority of scholars agreed with it. Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Darda', Mujahid, Ikrimah, Tawus, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and others said: It means marriage. It was narrated on the authority of Al-Shafi'i, and according to the first opinion, there is no punishment for a female non-Muslim slave girl. According to the second opinion, there is no punishment for a female slave who has not married. Al-Qasim and Salim said: Her chastity is her Islam and her chastity. Ibn Jarir said: The meaning of the two readings is different. Whoever reads Ahsan with a damma on the hamza, it means marriage, and whoever reads it with a fatha on the hamza, it means Islam. Some people said: The chastity mentioned in the verse means marriage, but the punishment is obligatory on a Muslim slave girl if she commits adultery before she marries according to the Sunnah, and Al-Zuhri said the same. Ibn Abd al-Barr said: The apparent meaning of the words of God the Almighty indicates that there is no punishment for a female slave, even if she is Muslim, except after marriage. Then the Sunnah came to flog her even if she is not married, and that was an additional clarification. Al-Qurtubi said: The back of a Muslim is a fever that cannot be violated except with certainty, and there is no certainty with disagreement were it not for what came in the authentic Sunnah about flogging. Ibn Kathir said in his interpretation: And what is most apparent, and God knows best, is that what is meant by chastity here is marriage, because the context of the verse indicates it where God the Almighty says: And whoever among you cannot afford it until His saying: But if they are chaste, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half that upon chaste women of the punishment so the entire context is about believing girls, so it is clear that what is meant by His saying But if they are chaste is: they get married as Ibn Abbas and those who followed him interpreted it. He said: And each of the two opinions is problematic according to the doctrine of the majority, because they say: If a female slave commits adultery, then upon her is fifty lashes, whether she is Muslim or a non-Muslim, married or a virgin, although the meaning of the verse indicates that there is no punishment for a female slave who is not chaste. Their answers to this differed, then he mentioned that some of them answered and they are the majority by giving precedence to the explicit hadiths over this concept, and some of them worked on the meaning of the verse, and said: If she commits adultery and is not married, then there is no punishment for her, but she is flogged as a discipline. He said: This is what was narrated from Ibn Abbas, and Tawus, Saeed bin Jubair, Abu Ubaid, and Dawud al-Dhahiri went to it in a narration from him, so these people gave precedence to the meaning of the verse over the generality, and they answered about the hadith of Abu Hurairah and Zaid bin Khalid in the two Sahihs and others, "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about the female slave: If she commits adultery and is not married, he said: If she commits adultery, flog her, then if she commits adultery again, flog her, then if she commits adultery again, then flog her, then sell her even for a braid," that what is meant by flogging here is discipline, and this is harshness, and it has also been proven in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Abu Hurairah, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "If the female slave of one of you commits adultery, then let him flog her the prescribed punishment and not reproach her. Then if she commits adultery again, let him flog her the prescribed punishment," the hadith. Muslim narrated from the hadith of Ali who said: "O people, carry out the prescribed punishment on your slaves, whether they are married or not. A female slave of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) committed adultery and he ordered me to flog her." The hadith. As for what was narrated by Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Khuzaymah, and Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "There is no prescribed punishment for a female slave until she is married to a husband. If she is married to a husband, then she is subject to half of the punishment for married women." Ibn Khuzaymah and Al-Bayhaqi said: It is wrong to attribute it to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), and the correct thing to do is to attribute it to the woman. His statement, But if they commit an immorality, immorality here refers to adultery, then upon them is half of that for free, chaste women, meaning free, virgin women, because the woman who has been married is subject to stoning and it is not divided. It was said that what is meant by chaste women here are married women, because they are subject to flogging and stoning, and stoning is not divided, so they are subject to half of the flogging they are subject to. What is meant by punishment here is flogging. The punishment for female slaves is less than that for free women because they are weaker. It has also been said that they do not achieve their goal as free women do. It has also been said that the punishment is due according to the degree of blessing, as in the Almighty's saying: The punishment will be doubled for her, twofold. God, the Almighty, did not mention slaves in this verse, and they are included with female slaves by analogy. Just as male and female slaves are subject to half the punishment for adultery, so too are they subject to half the punishment for slander and drinking. The reference in His saying: This is for he among you who fears hardship is to marrying female slaves. Hardship is falling into sin, and its origin in the language is the breaking of a bone after it has been mended. Then it was used as a metaphor for every hardship. But to be patient about marrying female slaves is better for you than marrying them: that is, your patience is better for you because marrying them leads to enslavement of the child and lowering of the soul.

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

25- The Almighty said: And whoever among you cannot afford, meaning: abundance and ease, to marry free, believing women, Al-Kisa'i read free with a kasra on the sad wherever it was, except for His statement in this surah: and free women, and the others read with a fatha on all of them, then from what your right hands possess of your slave girls, your female slaves, the believing women, meaning: whoever cannot afford the dowry of a free, believing woman, then let him marry a believing slave girl.

It is evidence that it is not permissible for a free man to marry a slave woman except under two conditions: one of them is that he cannot find a free woman's dowry, and the second is that he fears hardship for himself, which is adultery, because God Almighty says at the end of the verse: That is for whoever among you fears hardship, and this is the statement of Jabir, may God be pleased with him, and it was said by Tawus and Amr ibn Dinar, and Malik and al-Shafi'i agreed with it.

The proponents of the opinion permitted a free man to marry a female slave unless she is a free woman in his marriage. As for a slave, it is permissible for him to marry a female slave even if he is a free woman or a female slave in his marriage. According to Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him, it is not permissible if she is a free woman under him, as he says about a free man.

And in the verse there is evidence that it is not permissible for a Muslim to marry a female slave of the People of the Book because He said: Then from among your believing girls whom your right hands possess, He permitted marriage to a female slave on the condition that she be a believer, and He said in another place: "And the food of those who were given the Scripture is lawful for you and your food is lawful for them. And chaste women from among the believing women and chaste women from among those who were given the Scripture" (al-Ma'idah 5:5), meaning: free women. He permitted marriage to a female slave of the People of the Book on the condition that she be free, and the people of opinion permitted a Muslim to marry a female slave of the People of the Book, and by consensus it is permissible to have intercourse with her if the right hand possesses her.

And God knows best about your faith, meaning: Do not object to the inner meaning of faith and accept the outward meaning, for God knows best about your faith.

Some of you are from others, it was said: some of you are brothers to each other, and it was said: all of you are from one soul, so do not disdain marrying female slaves, marry them, meaning female slaves, with the permission of their people, meaning their masters, and give them their dowries, their bridal gifts, according to what is acceptable, without delay or harm, chaste, chaste in marriage, not fornicators, meaning not adulterers, nor taking lovers, meaning lovers with whom you commit adultery in secret. Al-Hasan said: Fornication is that whoever calls her follows him, and having lovers, meaning: she is exclusive to one person and does not commit adultery except with him, and the Arabs used to forbid the first and permit the second, then when they are chaste, Hamza, Al-Kisa'i, and Abu Bakr read with the fatha on the alif and the sad, meaning: they guard their private parts, and Ibn Mas'ud said: they have submitted, and the others read: ahsan with the damma on the alif and the kasra on the sad, meaning they marry, then if they commit an immorality, meaning: Adultery: Then upon them is half that upon free, virgin women meaning: what is upon free, virgin women if they commit adultery, of punishment meaning: the prescribed punishment. So the slave is flogged fifty times if he commits adultery. Is he banished? There are two opinions on this. If we say that he is banished, then he is banished for half a year according to the most correct opinion, and there is no stoning for slaves.

It was narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Ayyash bin Abi Rabia that he said: Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, ordered me to flog a group of young men from Quraysh fifty times for adultery.

There is no difference in the punishment for a slave between one who is married and one who is not married, according to most scholars. Some of them said that there is no punishment for a slave who is not married if he commits adultery, because God Almighty said: But if they are married, then upon them is half that upon free women. This was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, and Tawus said the same.

The meaning of chastity for others is Islam, and if what is meant by it is marriage, then what is meant by it is not that marriage is a condition for the obligation of the punishment on him, but what is meant by it is to draw attention to the fact that even if the slave is chaste through marriage, then there is no stoning for them, rather his punishment is flogging, unlike the free man. / The punishment of the slave woman is established by this verse, and the explanation that it is by flogging is in the report, which is what Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, I Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I Muhammad bin Yusuf, I Muhammad bin Ismail, I Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah, Al-Layth told me, on the authority of Saeed, meaning Al-Maqburi, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with them, who said: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "If the slave woman of one of you commits adultery and her adultery is proven, then let him flog her the prescribed punishment and not reproach her. Then if she commits adultery a third time and her adultery is proven, then let him sell her even for a rope of hair."

Surat al-Nisa 4:25

And whoever among you is not able to marry free, believing women, then from those whom your right hands possess of believing girls. And Allah knows best about your faith, some of you from others. So marry them with the permission of their people and give them their compensation according to what is acceptable, [as] chaste, not fornicators nor taking [other] slave girls. And if they are married, then if they commit an immorality, then upon them is half of that upon the free women of the punishment. That is for him among you who fears hardship, but to be patient is better for you. And Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.

God Almighty says: That, meaning: marrying a female slave when there is no time for marriage, is for him among you who fears hardship, meaning: adultery, meaning the hardship due to the overwhelming desire, and that you be patient, about marrying female slaves while remaining chaste, is better for you, so that the child will not be created a slave, and God is Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

25 And whoever among you cannot afford it means and ascend and its origin is virtue and increase. To marry free, believing women in the accusative case with length. Or with an implied action describing it, meaning whoever among you cannot afford it to marry free, meaning free women. His statement, according to His statement: And from what your right hands possess of your believing slave girls means the believing slave girls. So the apparent meaning of the verse is an argument for Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, in prohibiting the marriage of a slave girl to whoever possesses what would make it a dowry for a free woman, and prohibiting the marriage of a female slave of the People of the Book absolutely. Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him, interpreted the length of the free, believing women as his owning their bed, on the basis that marriage is intercourse, and he interpreted His statement, from your believing slave girls as the best. He also carried it in his saying: Chaste believing women. Some of our companions also carried it on the restriction and the prohibition of marrying a female slave for those who are able to marry a free woman of the Book but not a believing woman, in order to avoid mixing with the infidels and befriending them. The objectionable thing in marrying a female slave is the slavery of the child, and what it entails of humiliation and diminishing the husband's right. And God knows best about your faith. So be satisfied with the outward appearance of faith, for He knows the secrets and the differences between you in faith. There are many a female slave who prefers a free woman in it, and it is your right to consider the superiority of faith, not the superiority of lineage. What is meant is to make them familiar with marrying female slaves and to prevent them from being averse to it, and this supports it. Some of you are from others. You and your slaves are related in your lineage from Adam and your religion is Islam. Then marry them with the permission of their people. He means their masters, and considering their permission is absolute and does not indicate it, on the condition that they have the right to conduct the contract themselves, so the Hanafis use it as evidence. And give them their dowries. That is, pay them their dowries with the permission of their people! So he deleted that because it was mentioned earlier, or to their masters, so the added word was deleted because it was known that the dowry is for the master because it is a compensation for his right, so it must be paid to him. Malik, may God be pleased with him, said: The dowry is for the female slave, going to the apparent in a good way without delay, harm, or reduction. Chaste chaste. Not fornicators not openly committing fornication. Nor taking lovers friends in secret. And if they become chaste by marriage. Abu Bakr and Hamzah read it with the opening of the hamzah and the sad, and the rest read it with the damma of the hamzah and the kasra of the sad. If they commit an immorality adultery. Then upon them is half that upon the chaste women meaning free women. Of the punishment of the prescribed punishment, because God Almighty said: And let a group of the believers witness their punishment which indicates that the punishment of a slave is half the punishment of a free man, and that he should not be stoned because stoning is not half. That meaning marrying female slaves. For whoever among you fears hardship for whoever fears falling into adultery, which is basically the breaking of a bone after it has been mended, borrowed for every hardship and harm, and there is no harm greater than committing the sin of committing the most heinous of abominations. It was said: What is meant by it is the prescribed punishment, and this is another condition for marrying female slaves. And that you be patient means that your patience in not marrying female slaves while remaining chaste is better for you. The Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, said: Free women are the well-being of the home, and female slaves are its destruction. "And God is Forgiving" for whoever is not patient. Merciful by allowing him permission.

Surat al-Nisa 4:26

Allah wants to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those before you and to accept your repentance. And Allah is Knowing and Wise.

Surat al-Nisa 4:26

God wants to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those before you and to accept your repentance. And God is Knowing and Wise.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

God wants to make clear to you the laws of your religion and the interests of your affairs and guide you to the ways of those before you of the prophets in what is permissible and what is forbidden, so follow them and turn to you in forgiveness to return you from the disobedience to Him that you were doing to His obedience and God is Knowing of you and Wise in what He has planned for you.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: God wants to make clear to you, what He has permitted and forbidden, and guide you to the ways of those before you, meaning: and to guide you, the ways of those before you, meaning: the ways of those who came before you from the people of faith in God and His prophets, and their methods in what He has forbidden you from marrying mothers, daughters, sisters, and all that He has forbidden you in the two verses in which He has explained what He has forbidden of women, and to accept your repentance, meaning: God wants to return you to His obedience in that, from what you were upon of disobeying Him in your doing that before Islam, and before He revealed what He revealed to His prophet about that, upon you, to overlook for you your repentance for what came before from you of the ugly things that came before your return and repentance, and God is Knowing, meaning: God is the One with knowledge of what is good for His servants in their religions and their worldly affairs and other than that of their affairs, and what they do and leave of what He has permitted or forbidden for them, He has preserved all of that for them. Wise in His management of them, in His management of them in what He has directed them to. The Arab scholars differed over the meaning of His statement: God wants to make clear to you.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: God wants this in order to make it clear to you. He said: This is like what He said: And I have been commanded to be just between you (al-Shura 42:115) with a kasra on the lam, because its meaning is: I have been commanded to do this for that reason.

Others said: The meaning of this is: God wants to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those who came before you. They said: It is the custom of the Arabs to follow up between ki and lam ki and an, and to put each one of them in the place of each one of its sister with arda and amrta. So they say: I ordered you to go, and to go, and I wanted you to go, and to go, as God the Most High said: And we have been commanded to submit to the Lord of the worlds (al-An'am 6:71), and He said in another place: Say, 'Indeed, I have been commanded to be the first of those who submit' (al-An'am 6:14), and as He said: They want to extinguish the light of God (al-Saff 61:8), then He said in another place: They want to extinguish (al-Tawbah 9:32). They based their explanation of an with amrta and amrta to the meaning of ki, and the explanation of ki with that to the meaning of an, to request arda and amrta to be in the future, and that the past does not work with them, so you do not say: I ordered you to stand, nor I wanted that you stood. They said: Since an can be with the past tense in other than I wanted and I ordered, they attributed to it the meaning of the future in a way that is not accompanied by a past tense verb in any case, such as kay and lam which is in the meaning of kay. They said: And thus the Arabs sometimes combined them in one letter, so their speaker said in the plural:

I wanted you to fly away with my water skin and leave it in the barren wilderness

He combined them, because their meanings are the same and their words are different, as the other said:

Money may be earned by a rough, unruly person without effort or compromise.

So he combined ghayr and la to emphasize the negation. They said: It is only permissible to put an in place of kay, and kay in place of an, in places where the bringer of that is not accompanied by a past verb or something other than the future. As for what is accompanied by a past verb or something other than the future, that is not permissible. According to them, it is not permissible to say: I thought he would stand, nor: I think he would stand, meaning: I think he would stand, because an, which is used with doubt, is with the past participle of the verb. It is said: I think Zayd has stood, and with the future, and with nouns.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions in this regard, in my opinion, is the opinion of those who said that the lam in His statement, God wants to make clear to you, means: God wants to make clear to you, because of what I mentioned as the reason for those who said that this is the case.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: "God wants to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those before you and to accept your repentance. And God is Knowing and Wise."

That is, to clarify to you the matter of your religion and the interests of your affair, and what is permissible for a ruler and what is forbidden for you. This indicates the impossibility of an incident being devoid of the rule of God Almighty, and from this is His statement, the Most High: We have neglected nothing in the Book (al-An'am 6:38) as will come, and after this He said: God desires to lighten your burden (An-Nisa': 28). So this came with the first with the lam. Al-Farra' said: The Arabs alternate between the lam of ki and an, so they bring the lam that has the meaning of ki in the place of an in Iradat and Imarta, so they say: I wanted to do something and I wanted to do something because they are asking for the future. It is not permissible to say I thought to do something because you say I thought that I had stood up. In the revelation: And I was commanded to do justice between you (al-Shura 42:15), And we were commanded to submit to the Lord of the worlds (al-An'am 6:71), They want to extinguish the light of God with their mouths (al-Saff 61:8), They want to extinguish the light of God (al-Tawbah 9:32). The poet said:

I want to forget her, but Laila seems to me in every way

He wants me to forget. Al-Nahhas said: Al-Zajaj made a mistake in this statement and said: If the lam had the meaning of that, then another lam would have entered upon me, just as you say, I came to honor me, then you say, I came to honor me, and he recited to us:

I wanted people to know that these are Qais Al-Wafid witnesses' trousers.

He said: The meaning is that He willed it to make it clear to you. An-Nahhas said: The matter went beyond this until some of the reciters called it the lam of an. It was said: The meaning is that God wants this in order to make it clear to you.

And guides you to the ways of those before you, meaning the people of truth. It was said that the meaning of guides you is that He shows you the ways of those before you, the people of truth and the people of falsehood. Some of the people of insight said that this indicates that everything that God prohibited for us before this verse was prohibited for those before us. An-Nahhas said: This is wrong because the meaning could be that He shows you the matter of those who were before you who avoided what was prohibited, and it could be that He shows you as He showed to those of the prophets who were before you, so it does not refer to this specifically. It is said that His statement God wants is the beginning of the story, meaning that God wants to show you how to obey Him. And guides you makes you know the ways of those before you that when they abandoned it, how I punished them, and if you do that, I will not punish you, but I will accept your repentance. And God is Knowing of those who repent, Wise in accepting repentance.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty informs us that He wants to make clear to you, O believers, what is lawful for you and what is forbidden for you, of what was mentioned previously in this Surah and others, and guides you to the ways of those before you, meaning their good ways and following His laws that He loves and is pleased with, and turns to you, meaning from sin and forbidden things, and God is Knowing and Wise, meaning in His law, destiny, actions and words. And

His statement, and those who follow their desires want you to deviate with a great deviation, meaning the followers of the devils among the Jews, Christians and fornicators want you to deviate from the truth to falsehood with a great deviation. God wants to lighten your burden, meaning in His laws, commands and prohibitions and what He has decreed for you. For this reason, He permitted female slaves with conditions, as Mujahid and others said, and man was created weak, so lightening the burden was appropriate for him due to his weakness in himself and the weakness of his resolve and ambition. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail told us, Wakee' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, And man was created weak, meaning in the matter of women. Wakee' said: His mind goes away when they happen. And Moses, peace be upon him, said to our Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him, on the Night of the Isra' when he passed by him returning from the Lote Tree of the Limit, and he said to him: What has He enjoined upon you? He said: He commanded me to perform fifty prayers every day and night. So he said to him: Go back to your Lord and ask Him to reduce it, for your nation cannot bear that, for I have tested the people before you with what was less than that and they were unable to do so, and your nation is weaker in hearing, sight and hearts. So he went back and reduced it to ten. Then he went back to Moses and continued like that until five remained, the hadith.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 26- God wants to make clear to you The lam here is the lam of ki that follows an. Al-Farra' said: The Arabs alternate between the lam of ki and an, so they bring the lam that has the meaning of ki in place of an in I wanted and I ordered, so they say: I wanted to do something and I wanted to do something, and from this is: They want to extinguish the light of God with their mouths, And I was commanded to be just between you, And we were commanded to submit to the Lord of the worlds, and from this:

I want to forget her, but Laila seems to me in every way

Al-Zajaj narrated this statement and said: If the lam had the meaning of that, then another lam would have been added to it, as you say: I came so that you may honor me, then you say: I came so that you may honor me, and he recited:

I wanted people to know that they are Qais's pants and the delegations are witnesses.

It was said: The lam is redundant to emphasize the meaning of the future, or to emphasize the intention of clarification, and the object of yābīn is omitted: that is, to make clear to you what is hidden from you of good. It was said: The object of yābīd is omitted: that is, God wants this to make clear to you, and the Basrans said this and it was narrated from Sibawayh. It was said: The lam by itself is a nasb for the verb without implying an, and it and what follows it are the object of the previous verb, and it is like the previous statement of al-Farra'. Some of the Basrans said: His saying yābīd is interpreted as a source raised by the beginning like: It is better for you to hear about al-Mu'aydi than to see him. The meaning of the verse is: God wants to make clear to you the interests of your religion and what is permissible for you and what is forbidden for you. And guide you to the ways of those before you meaning: their ways, and they are the prophets and their followers so that you may follow their example. And turn to you in repentance meaning: He wants to turn to you in repentance, so repent to Him and make up for what you have neglected by repentance, and He will forgive you your sins.

Surat al-Nisa 4:26

Allah wants to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those before you and to accept your repentance. And Allah is Knowing and Wise.

sins, or guides you to what prevents you from sins and urges you to repent, or to what is an expiation for your misdeeds. And God is Knowing of them, Wise in their placement.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

26- The Almighty's saying: God wants to make clear to you, meaning: to make clear to you, like the Almighty's saying: And I have been commanded to be just between you (al-Shura 42:15), meaning: to be just, and His saying: And we have been commanded to submit to the Lord of the worlds (al-An'am 6:71), and He said in another place: And I have been commanded to submit (Ghafir 40:66).

The verse: God wants to make clear to you, that is, to clarify to you the laws of your religion and the interests of your affairs. Ata' said: He makes clear to you what brings you closer to Him. Al-Kalbi said: He makes clear to you that patience in not marrying female slaves is better for you. And guide you and directs you, the ways of those before you, in prohibiting mothers, daughters and sisters, for they were. It was said: And guide you to the pure religion, which is the religion of Abraham, peace be upon him. And turn to you and forgive you for what you did before He made clear to you. It was said: He returns you from the disobedience you were in to obeying them. It was said: He guides you to repentance. And God is Knowing of the interests of His servants in the matter of their religion and their worldly affairs. Wise in what He managed of their affairs.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

26 God wants to make clear to you what He has commanded you to worship Him with, of what is permissible and what is forbidden, or what is hidden from you of your interests and the goodness of your deeds, and to make clear is the object of wants, and the lam was added to emphasize the meaning of the reception necessary for the will, as in the saying of Qays ibn Sa'd:

I wanted people to know that these are Qais's trousers and the delegations are witnesses.

It was said that the object is omitted, and that to make clear is an object for it, meaning that He wants the truth for its sake. And guides you to the ways of those before you the methods of those who came before you from the people of guidance so that you may follow their paths. And turns to you and forgives you your

Surat al-Nisa 4:27

And God wants to accept your repentance, but those who follow their lusts want you to deviate greatly.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And God wants to accept your repentance He repeated it to build on it and those who follow their desires the Jews and Christians or the Magians or the fornicators want you to deviate greatly to deviate from the truth by committing what was forbidden to you so that you become like them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By this, the Most High means: God wants to make you return to His obedience and repentance, so that He may pardon you for your past sins, and overlook what you did in your ignorance, such as considering permissible what was forbidden to you, such as marrying the wives of your fathers and sons, and other things that you considered permissible and did, which were not permissible for you to do of the sins of God. And those who follow their lusts means: and those who seek the pleasures of this world and the desires of their souls in it want you to deviate from the command of God, the Blessed and Most High, so that you transgress against Him by doing what He has forbidden to you and committing His sins, a great deviation, a great injustice and deviation from Him.

The interpreters differed regarding those whom God described as following desires.

Some of them said: They are the adulterers.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And those who follow their lusts want you to deviate greatly, he said: adultery, that you should deviate greatly, he said: they want you to commit adultery.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And those who follow their lusts want you to deviate greatly, that you be like them, committing adultery as they commit adultery.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: And those who follow their lusts desire - he said: adultery, that you should deviate with a great deviation - he said: The people of Islam commit adultery as they commit adultery. He said: It is like the form of: They wish that you would indulge so that they would indulge (al-Qalam 68:9).

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yahya bin Abi Zaidah told us, on the authority of Warqa', on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And those who follow their lusts want you to incline, he said: adultery, to commit adultery, he said: to commit adultery.

Others said, rather they are the Jews and Christians.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And those who follow their lusts want you to deviate greatly, he said: They are the Jews and Christians, to deviate greatly.

Others said: Rather, they are the Jews in particular, and their desire was for the Muslims to follow their desires in marrying their father's sisters, and that is because they make their marriage permissible, so God Almighty said to the believers: And those who make the marriage of their father's sisters permissible want you to deviate from the truth and consider them permissible as they made them permissible.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Everyone who follows a desire in his religion other than what is permitted to him.

Who said that?

Yunus bin Abdul A'la told me, he said: Ibn Wahb told us, he said: I heard Ibn Zayd say about His statement: And those who follow their desires want the verse, he said: The people of falsehood and the people of desires in their religion want you to deviate greatly in your religion, following the command of their religion, and abandoning the command of God and the command of your religion.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is the saying of the one who said: The meaning of this is: And those who follow their own desires from the people of falsehood and seek adultery and marrying sisters from fathers, and other things that God has forbidden, want you to deviate from the truth, and from what God has permitted you to do, so that you transgress from obeying Him to disobeying Him, and you become like them in following your own desires in what God has forbidden, and abandoning His obedience, a great deviation.

We said that this is more correct, because God the Almighty was general in His statement: And He wants those who follow their desires, so He described them as following their own blameworthy desires, and He described them as general, without describing them as following some of the blameworthy desires. Since that is the case, then the most appropriate meaning of the verse is what its apparent meaning indicates, not its hidden meaning, which has no evidence from origin or analogy. Since that is the case, then included in those who follow their desires are the Jews, Christians, adulterers, and everyone who follows falsehood. Because everyone who follows what God has forbidden is following his own desires. Since that is the most appropriate interpretation of the verse, then the correctness of what we have chosen to say in interpreting it is necessary.

Surat al-Nisa 4:27

And God wants to accept your repentance, but those who follow their lusts want you to deviate greatly.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

His Most High saying: And God wants to accept your repentance is subject and predicate, and that is in the accusative case with wants, and likewise God wants to lighten is in the accusative case with wants, and the meaning is: He wants your repentance, that is, He accepts it, so He overlooks your sins, and He wants to lighten your burden. It was said: This is in all the rulings of the Shari'ah, and this is correct. It was also said: What is meant by lightening is marrying a female slave, that is, since We know your weakness in being patient with women, We lightened your burden by permitting female slaves. This was said by Mujahid, Ibn Zayd, and Tawus. Tawus said: There is no human being weaker in anything than in the matter of women. There was a difference of opinion regarding the identification of those who follow desires. Mujahid said: They are the fornicators. As-Suddi said: They are the Jews and Christians. A group said: They are the Jews in particular, because they wanted the Muslims to follow them in marrying their paternal sisters. Ibn Zayd said: This is general, and this is the most correct. Inclination: Deviation from the path of equality, so whoever is on it wants his likes to be on it, so that shame does not surround him.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty informs us that He wants to make clear to you, O believers, what is lawful for you and what is forbidden for you, of what was mentioned previously in this Surah and others, and guides you to the ways of those before you, meaning their good ways and following His laws that He loves and is pleased with, and turns to you, meaning from sin and forbidden things, and God is Knowing and Wise, meaning in His law, destiny, actions and words. And His statement, and those who follow their desires want you to deviate with a great deviation, meaning the followers of the devils among the Jews, Christians and fornicators want you to deviate from the truth to falsehood with a great deviation. God wants to lighten your burden, meaning in His laws, commands and prohibitions and what He has decreed for you. For this reason, He permitted female slaves with conditions, as Mujahid and others said, and man was created weak, so lightening the burden was appropriate for him due to his weakness in himself and the weakness of his resolve and ambition. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail told us, Wakee' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, And man was created weak, meaning in the matter of women. Wakee' said: His mind goes away when they happen. And Moses, peace be upon him, said to our Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him, on the Night of the Isra' when he passed by him returning from the Lote Tree of the Limit, and he said to him: What has He enjoined upon you? He said: He commanded me to perform fifty prayers every day and night. So he said to him: Go back to your Lord and ask Him to reduce it, for your nation cannot bear that, for I have tested the people before you with what was less than that and they were unable to do so, and your nation is weaker in hearing, sight and hearts. So he went back and reduced it to ten. Then he went back to Moses and continued like that until five remained, the hadith.

Fath al-Qadir

27- And God wants to accept your repentance. This is a confirmation of what was understood from His saying And accept your repentance previously. It was said: The first means guidance to acts of obedience, and the second means doing the causes for them. It was said: The second is to clarify the complete benefit of His will, glory be to Him, and the complete harm of what those who follow desires want. It is not meant by it merely the will to repent so that it would be a matter of repetition for emphasis. It was said: This will is from Him, glory be to Him, in all the rulings of the Shari'ah. It was said: Only in marrying a female slave.

There is a difference of opinion regarding the identification of those who follow lusts. Some say they are the fornicators, others say they are the Jews and Christians, others say they are the Jews in particular, and others say they are the Magians because they wanted Muslims to follow them in marrying their father's sisters. The first is more appropriate. Deviation is deviation from the path of equality. What is meant by lusts here is what the Shari'ah has forbidden and less than what it has permitted. Deviation is described as great in comparison to the deviance of someone who has rarely committed a sin.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

27- And God wants to accept your repentance, if you fall short in the matter of His religion. And those who follow their lusts want you to deviate from the truth, a great deviation by doing what He has forbidden you. They differed about those described as following lusts. Al-Suddi said: They are the Jews and Christians. Some of them said: They are the Magians because they permit the marriage of sisters and the daughters of a brother and sister. Mujahid said: They are the fornicators who want you to deviate from the truth and commit adultery as they do. It was said: They are all the people of falsehood.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

27 And God wants to accept your repentance He repeated it for emphasis and exaggeration. And He wants those who follow their desires meaning the wicked, for following desires means obeying them. As for the one who engages in what the Shari'ah has permitted of them and not anything else, he is following them in reality, not them. It was said: the Magians. It was also said: the Jews, for they consider paternal sisters, brother's daughters, and sister's daughters permissible. That you deviate from the truth by agreeing with them in following desires and making permissible what is forbidden. A great deviation in addition to the deviation of one who committed a sin rarely but not permissible for him.

Surat al-Nisa 4:28

Allah wants to lighten your burden, and man was created weak.

Surat al-Nisa 4:28

God wants to lighten your burden, and man was created weak.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

God wants to lighten your burden make the rulings of the Sharia easy for you and man was created weak he cannot be patient with women and desires

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be exalted, means: God wants to lighten your burden, God wants to make it easy for you, by allowing you to marry believing girls if you are unable to afford a free woman, and He created man weak, meaning: He made that easy for you if you are unable to afford a free woman, because He created you weak, unable to refrain from intercourse with women, and having little patience for it, so He permitted you to marry your believing girls when you feared hardship for yourselves, and you did not find enough time for a free woman, lest you commit adultery, due to your lack of patience in refraining from intercourse with women.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: God wants to make it easy for you in marrying a female slave, and in everything that is easy.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abu Ahmad Al-Zubayri told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father: And man was created weak, he said: in the matter of sexual intercourse.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father: And man was created weak, he said: in the matter of women.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father: And man was created weak, he said: in matters of women. Man is not weaker in anything than in matters of women.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement, God wants to lighten your burden, he said: He permitted you to marry these female slaves, when you were forced to have them, and man was created weak, he said: If He had not permitted him to do so, it would have been nothing but the first matter, if he did not find a free woman.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: And man was created weak is in the accusative case as a state, and the meaning is that his desires attract him and his lust and anger make him weak, and this is the most severe of weaknesses, so it needs to be mitigated. Tawus said: This is in the matter of women in particular. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: And man was created weak meaning that God created man weak, meaning that he cannot be patient without women. Ibn al-Musayyab said: Eighty years have passed over me and one of my eyes has gone and I am blind with the other, and my companion is blind and deaf - meaning his penis - and I fear the temptation of women. And similarly, on the authority of Ubadah ibn al-Samit, may God be pleased with him, Ubadah said: Do you not see that I do not get up except for a short time and I do not eat except what I like - Yahya said: meaning soft and warm, and my companion died a long time ago - Yahya said: meaning his penis - and it would not please me to be alone with a woman who is not permissible for me and to have what the sun rises upon for fear that Satan will come to me and stir it up against me, for he has neither hearing nor sight!

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty informs us that He wants to make clear to you, O believers, what is lawful for you and what is forbidden for you, of what was mentioned previously in this Surah and others, and guides you to the ways of those before you, meaning their good ways and following His laws that He loves and is pleased with, and turns to you, meaning from sin and forbidden things, and God is Knowing and Wise, meaning in His law, destiny, actions and words. And His statement, and those who follow their desires want you to deviate with a great deviation, meaning the followers of the devils among the Jews, Christians and fornicators want you to deviate from the truth to falsehood with a great deviation. God wants to lighten your burden, meaning in His laws, commands and prohibitions and what He has decreed for you. For this reason, He permitted female slaves with conditions, as Mujahid and others said, and man was created weak, so lightening the burden was appropriate for him due to his weakness in himself and the weakness of his resolve and ambition. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail told us, Wakee' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, And man was created weak, meaning in the matter of women. Wakee' said: His mind goes away when they happen. And Moses, peace be upon him, said to our Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him, on the Night of the Isra' when he passed by him returning from the Lote Tree of the Limit, and he said to him: What has He enjoined upon you? He said: He commanded me to perform fifty prayers every day and night. So he said to him: Go back to your Lord and ask

Him to reduce it, for your nation cannot bear that, for I have tested the people before you with what was less than that and they were unable to do so, and your nation is weaker in hearing, sight and hearts. So he went back and reduced it to ten. Then he went back to Moses and continued like that until five remained, the hadith.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 28- God wants to lighten your burden with what was mentioned about the permission given to you, or with everything that would lighten your burden. And He created man weak helpless and unable to control himself and restrain himself from his desires in fulfillment of the right of the obligation, so from this perspective he is in need of lightening. For this reason God Almighty wanted to lighten his burden.

Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Seven are forbidden by bloodline and seven by marriage. Then he recited: Forbidden to you are your mothers until His saying: and sister's daughters. This is from bloodline, and the rest of the verse is from marriage, and the seventh is: And do not marry those women whom your fathers married. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn al-Mundhir and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Imran ibn Husayn regarding His statement: and your wives' mothers, he said: It is ambiguous. And these narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: It is ambiguous. If a man divorces his wife before consummating the marriage with her or she dies, her mother is not permissible for him. And these narrated except al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Ali regarding a man who marries a woman then divorces her, or she dies before consummating the marriage, is her mother permissible for him? He said: She is like a stepdaughter. And these narrated on the authority of Zayd ibn Thabit that he used to say: If she dies while he is with him and he takes her inheritance, he dislikes to take over her mother's estate, but if he divorces her before consummating the marriage with her, there is no problem with him marrying her mother. Abd al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said regarding the statement, and your wives' mothers and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship, what is meant by both of them is consummation. Abd al-Razzaq, Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr who said: The stepdaughter and the mother are the same, there is no problem with them if the woman has not been consummated. Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated with a saheeh chain of transmission on the authority of Malik ibn Aws ibn al-Hadathan who said: I had a wife who died, and she had given birth to a child for me, so I was grieved over her. Ali ibn Abi Talib met me and said: What is the matter with you? I said: The woman died. Ali said: Does she have a daughter? I said: Yes, and she is in Taif. He said: Was she in your guardianship? I said: No. He said: Then marry her. I said: So where is the statement of God, and your stepdaughters who are in your guardianship? He said: She was not in your guardianship.

We have already mentioned the statement of those who said: It is a sound chain of transmission according to the conditions of Muslim. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Consummation means sexual intercourse. Abd Al-Razzaq narrated in Al-Musannaf, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Ata' who said: We used to say that when Muhammad (peace be upon him) married the wife of Zayd, the polytheists in Mecca spoke about that, so God revealed: And the wives of your sons who are from your loins and And He has not made your adopted sons your sons and Muhammad is not the father of any of your men was revealed. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And that you marry two sisters together he said: He means in marriage. Abd bin Hamid narrated on his authority regarding the verse, he said: That is in the case of free women, but as for slaves, there is no problem. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated something similar from him through another chain of transmission. Malik, Ash-Shafi'i, Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd Bin Hamid, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Uthman Bin Affan that a man asked him about two sisters whom the right hand possesses, whether he may marry them together. He said: One verse has made them permissible and another has forbidden them, and I would not do that. So he left him and met a man from the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. I think he was Ali Bin Abi Talib. He asked him about that and he said: If I had any authority and then I found someone who did that, I would make him an example. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ali that he was asked about a man who had two female slaves, sisters, and he had intercourse with one of them and wanted to have intercourse with the other. He said: Not until he expels her from his possession. It was also said: What if he marries her to his slave? He said: Not until he expels her from his possession. Abdul Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abdul bin Hamid, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud that he was asked about a man who marries two slave sisters and he disliked it. It was said that God says: Except those whom your right hands possess, so he said: And your camel also from those whom your right hand possesses. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Abi Salih on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib who said regarding two slave sisters: One verse has made them permissible and another has forbidden them, and I do not command or forbid, nor do I make permissible or forbid, and neither I nor my family do that. Ahmad narrated on the authority of Qays who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: Can a man have intercourse with a woman and her daughter who are his slaves? He said: One verse has made them permissible and another has forbidden them, and I would not do that. Abdul Razzaq and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on his authority regarding two sisters who are owned by the right hand: One verse has made them permissible and another has forbidden them. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abdul bin Hamid and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar who said: If a man has two slave girls who are sisters and he has intercourse with one of them, he should not approach the other until he removes the one he has intercourse with from his possession. Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Muqatil bin Sulayman who said: God said about the wives of fathers, except what has already passed, because the Arabs used to marry the wives of their fathers. Then He forbade blood relations and marriage, so He did not say except what has already passed, because the Arabs did not marry blood relations and marriage. And He said about two sisters, except what has already passed, because they used to marry both of them together, so He forbade marrying both of them together except what had already passed before the prohibition. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Merciful, because of the intercourse between two sisters before the prohibition. Ahmad, Muslim, Abu Dawud, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Nasa'i and others narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent an army to Awtas on the day of Hunayn. They encountered an enemy and fought them, but they were victorious over them and captured some of their captives. It seemed that some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, were reluctant to have intercourse with them because of their polytheist husbands, so God revealed about that, and chaste women, except those your right hands possess, meaning: except what God has given you as booty. Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that this was the reason for the revelation of the verse. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, al-Hakim who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, and chaste women, he said: Every woman who has a husband commits adultery, except for a woman who is taken captive. Al-Faryabi, Ibn Abi Shaybah, and al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ali and Ibn Masoud regarding his statement,

And chaste women, except those whom your right hands possess. He said: On polytheist women if they are taken captive, then they are permissible for him. Ibn Mas'ud said: Polytheist women and Muslim women. Ibn Jarir narrated from Ibn Mas'ud that he said: If a female slave is sold and she has a husband, then her master has more right to her private parts. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And chaste women, he said: Those who have husbands. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Anas bin Malik something similar. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated from Ibn Mas'ud something similar. Sa'id bin Mansour, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: And chaste women, he said: The chaste, sane Muslim woman or one of the People of the Book. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from him regarding the verse that he said: It is not permissible for him to marry more than four, and whatever exceeds that is forbidden to him like his mother and sister. And Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah regarding his statement, and chaste women, he said: He says, marry such women as seem good to you, two, three, or four, then He forbade what is forbidden of lineage and marriage, then He said, and chaste women, then He returned to the beginning of the Surah and said: They are also forbidden, except for the one who marries with a dowry, a year of marriage, and witnesses. And Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ubaydah who said: God has made four permissible for you at the beginning of the Surah, and He has forbidden marriage to any chaste woman after the four except what your right hand possesses. And Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Chastity is of two types: chastity of marriage, and chastity of modesty." So whoever reads it as al-muhsinat with a kasra on the sad, they are the chaste ones, and whoever reads it as al-muhsinat with a fatha, they are the married ones. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father said this is a strange hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And lawful to you are all beyond that, he said: Beyond this lineage. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: Less than four. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ata', he said: Beyond the kinship. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement, And lawful to you are all beyond that, he said: What your right hands possess. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Ubaydah Al-Salmani. Abd Ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, Chaste, not fornicators, he said: Not adulterers. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And give them their dowries, he said: If a man among you marries a woman and then marries her once, then her entire dowry is due, and enjoyment is the marriage, which is His statement, And give the women their dowries. Al-Tabarani and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Mut'ah was practiced in the early days of Islam, and they used to recite this verse: And whatever you have enjoyed of them is for a specified term. So a man would come to a town where he did not know anyone, and he would marry as much as he thought would satisfy his needs, in order to preserve his property and improve his affairs. Until this verse was revealed: Forbidden to you are your mothers, which abrogated the first verse and Mut'ah was forbidden. Its confirmation in the Qur'an is: Except from their wives or those their right hands possess, and everything other than this vagina is forbidden.

Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Anbari in Al-Masahif and Al-Hakim narrated and authenticated that Ibn Abbas read: Then what you have enjoyed of them is for a specified term. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ubayy bin Ka'b that he read it likewise. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid that this verse is about temporary marriage. Ibn Jarir also narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi and the hadiths about permitting temporary marriage and then prohibiting it, and was it abrogated once or twice? They are mentioned in the books of hadith. Ibn Jarir narrated in his Tahdheeb, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Al-Tabarani and Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: What did you do? The riders took your young men and the poets said about her. He said: What did they say? I said: They said:

I say to the Sheikh when his session was prolonged: O friend, would you like to have a fatwa from Ibn Abbas?

Would you like to have a tender, young lady who will be your abode until the people's source?

