He said: To God we belong and to Him we shall return. No, by God, I did not issue a fatwa on this, nor did I mean this, and I did not make it permissible except for the one in need. In another version: And I did not make permissible of it except what God has made permissible of dead animals, blood, and pork. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Hadrami that some men used to impose a dowry, then one of them might be in difficulty, so God said: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon after the obligation. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And there is no blame upon you for what you mutually agree upon, he said: The one who is satisfied pays her dowry and then gives her a choice. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Zaid regarding the verse, he said: If she gives you some of it, then it is permissible. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And whoever among you cannot afford means: whoever does not have the means to marry free women means free women: then from those whom your right hands possess of your believing slave girls then let him marry from the female slaves of the believers chaste, not fornicators meaning chaste, not fornicators in secret or in public nor taking lovers meaning lovers then when they have become chaste then if she marries a free man then commits adultery then upon them is half of that upon the free women of punishment he said: of flogging that is for him among you who fears hardship meaning adultery, so none of the free men may marry a female slave unless he is not able to marry a free woman and he fears hardship and that you be patient from marrying female slaves for that is better for you. And Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Mujahid, And whoever among you cannot afford it meaning: whoever among you cannot afford it marry chaste women meaning free women, then let him marry a believing slave girl and that you be patient about marrying slave girls is better for you and it is permissible. And Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on his authority that he said: Among the things that God has made easy for this nation is marrying Christian and Jewish slave girls even if he is wealthy. And Abd Al-Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on his authority that he said: Marrying slave girls of the People of the Book is not permissible, because God says: From among your believing girls. And Abd Al-Razzaq and Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan that "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade marrying a slave girl to a free woman and a free woman to a slave girl, and whoever can afford a free woman should not marry a slave girl." And Ibn Abi Shaybah and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: A free man should not marry more than one slave girl. And Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated something similar on the authority of Qatada. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muqatil, regarding his statement: And God knows best about your faith, some of you from others, he said: You are brothers, some of you from others. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi: Then marry them with the permission of their people, he said: With the permission of their masters, and give them their due compensation, he said: Their dowries. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The women who openly commit adultery and those who take lovers are those who have one lover. He said: The people of ignorance used to forbid what was apparent of adultery and consider what was hidden permissible, so God revealed: And do not approach immoralities - what is apparent of them and what is concealed. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ali, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Then when they are chaste, he said: Her chastity is her Islam. Ali said: Flog them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It is a strange hadith. Ibn Kathir said: Its chain of transmission is weak and an unknown person was not named, and something like it cannot be used as evidence. Abd Al-Razzaq and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The punishment for a slave who slanders a free man is forty. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: Adultery is cursing. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi, And those who follow their lusts he said: They are the Jews and Christians. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And those who follow their lusts he said: Adultery. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid, God wants to lighten your burden he said: In marrying a female slave and in everything in which there is ease. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Zayd, God wants to lighten your burden he said: He permitted you to marry female slaves, And man was created weak he said: If He did not permit it for him. Ibn Jarir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Sha'b on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Eight verses were revealed in Surat An-Nisa that are better for this nation than what the sun has risen and set upon: The first of them is "God desires to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those before you and to accept your repentance. And God is Knowing and Wise." The second is And God desires to accept your repentance, but those who follow their desires desire that you should deviate with a great deviation. The third is God desires to lighten your burden, and man was created weak. The fourth is If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance. The fifth is Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. The sixth is And whoever does evil or wrongs himself but then seeks forgiveness from God. The seventh is Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him. The eighth is "And those who believe in God and His messengers and make no distinction between any of them - those - He will give them their rewards. And ever is God, to those who have committed sins, Forgiving and Merciful."

Surat al-Nisa 4:28

Allah wants to lighten your burden, and man was created weak.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

28- God wants to lighten your burden, to make the rulings of the Sharia easy for you, and He has made it easy as He, the Most High, said: And He will remove from them their burden Al-A'raf - 157. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I was sent with the easy, tolerant Hanafi faith, And man was created weak, Tawus, Al-Kalbi and others said about women: He cannot be patient without them. Ibn Kaysan said: Man was created weak, his desires and lusts tempt him, and Al-Hasan said: It is that he was created from a despicable water, as explained by the Most High's statement: God is He who created you from weakness Ar-Rum - 54.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

28 God wants to make things easy for you Therefore, He has prescribed for you the easy, tolerant, pure Shari'ah, and has permitted you to make things difficult, such as allowing marriage to a female slave. And man was created weak He cannot be patient with desires nor endure the hardships of obedience. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him: Eight verses in Surat An-Nisa are better for this nation than what the sun rises and sets upon. These three are: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight, Whoever does evil will be recompensed for it, What will God do with your punishment?

Surat al-Nisa 4:29

O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent. And do not kill yourselves [or one another]. Indeed, God is to you ever Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly through what is forbidden in Islamic law, such as usury and usurpation except but that it be occurs in trade and in a reading in the accusative, that the money be trade money issued by mutual consent and good will, then you may consume it and do not kill yourselves by committing what leads to their destruction, whatever it may be in this world or the hereafter, based on the evidence Indeed, God is to you Merciful in preventing you from that.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: O you who have believed, they believed in God and His Messenger, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly, meaning: do not consume one another's wealth through what is forbidden to him, such as usury, gambling, and other things that God has forbidden you, except that it be trade, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent. As for consuming one another's wealth unjustly, it is through usury, gambling, defrauding, and injustice, except [in lawful] business, so that he may earn a thousand in a dirham if he is able.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muhammad ibn al-Fadl Abu al-Nu'man told us, he said, Khalid al-Tahhan told us, he said, Dawud ibn Abi Hind told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the words of God Almighty: Do not consume one another's wealth unjustly, he said: A man buys a commodity and returns it and returns a dirham with it.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abd al-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding a man who buys a garment from another man and says: If you are satisfied with it, take it, otherwise return it and return a dirham with it. He said: It is what God said: Do not consume one another's wealth unjustly.

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed to prohibit some of them from eating each other's food except by purchasing. As for Qira, it was prohibited by this verse, until it was abrogated by His statement in Surat al-Nur 24: There is no blame upon the blind or upon the lame or upon the ill or upon yourselves if you eat from your houses (al-Nur 24:61).

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Hamid told me, he said, Yahya bin Wazeh told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Waqid, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, they said about His statement: And do not consume one another's wealth unjustly except it be trade by mutual consent (al-Nur 24:61). A man would be embarrassed to eat with someone after this verse was revealed, but that was abrogated by the verse in Surat An-Nur, which says: There is no blame upon the blind or upon the lame or upon the ill or upon yourselves if you eat from your houses or the houses of your fathers or the houses of your mothers until His statement: all together or separately (al-Nur 24:61). So a rich man would invite a man from his family to eat, and he would say: I am really embarrassed! - and embarrassment means embarrassment - and he would say: The poor have more right to it than me! So it was made permissible for them to eat from that over which the name of God has been mentioned, and the food of the People of the Book was made permissible.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of these two statements is the statement of al-Suddi. This is because God Almighty has forbidden us from consuming our wealth unjustly, and there is no disagreement among Muslims that consuming that is forbidden to us, because God has never permitted us to consume wealth unjustly.

Since this is the case, there is no meaning to the statement of those who said: This was a prohibition against a man eating his brother's food as a hospitality in the manner in which he was permitted, and then that was abrogated, because all the scholars of the nation and its ignorant ones have transmitted: that hospitality of the guest and feeding the poor was among the praiseworthy actions of the people of polytheism and Islam for which God praised its people and encouraged them to do it, and that God did not forbid that in any era, rather God encouraged His servants and urged them to do it.

Since this is the case, it is outside the meaning of eating unjustly, and it is not abrogating or abrogated in isolation. Because abrogation only applies to what is abrogated, and the prohibition of it has not been proven, so it is permissible for it to be abrogated by permission.

Since this is the case, what we have said is correct: that the falsehood that God has forbidden us to consume wealth with is what we have described of what He has forbidden to His servants in His revelation or on the tongue of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace - and what contradicts it is an exception.

There is a difference in the reading of his saying: Except that it be a trade by mutual consent.

Some of them read it: Except that it is a trade in the nominative case, meaning: unless there is a trade, or: a trade occurs, with your consent, then it is permissible for you to eat it in that case with that meaning.

Surat al-Nisa 4:29

O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent. And do not kill yourselves [or one another]. Indeed, Allah is to you ever Merciful.

The doctrine of those who read it in this manner:

except that it is is complete here, and there is no need for a predicate, as I described. And most of the people of Hijaz and Basra read with this reading.

Others, who are the majority of the Kufians, read it as: Except that it is trade, in the accusative case, meaning: unless the money that you eat among yourselves is trade with mutual consent, then it is permissible for you to eat it there. So the money is implied in his statement: Except that it is, and trade is in the accusative case as a predicate.

Abu Ja'far said: We consider both readings to be correct and permissible to read, because they are widespread in the readings of the regions, with their meanings being similar. However, even if this is the case, reading it in the accusative case is more pleasing to me than reading it in the nominative case, because of the strength of the accusative case in two ways:

One of them: that in be there is a mention of wealth. The other: that if there was no mention of it in it, and then it was made singular with trade, which is indefinite, then it would be eloquent in the speech of the Arabs to put it in the accusative case, since it was built on a noun and a predicate. So if nothing appears with it except one indefinite noun, they put it in the accusative and nominative cases, as the poet said:

If there was a stab between them and a hug

Abu Ja'far said: In this verse there is a clarification from God Almighty of the denial of the words of the ignorant Sufis who deny seeking sustenance through trade and industry. God Almighty says: O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly except [in lawful] business by mutual consent, as we acquire it through it, as:

Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent, he said: Business is a provision from God's provisions, and lawful from God's lawful things, for whoever seeks it with sincerity and righteousness. We used to say: The honest and truthful merchant will be with the seven in the shade of the Throne on the Day of Resurrection.

As for his saying: By mutual consent, its meaning is as follows:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God Almighty: By mutual consent, in a trade sale, or a gift that one person gives to another.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: By mutual consent in trade, or a sale, or a gift that one person gives to another.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Al-Qasim, on the authority of Sulayman Al-Ja'fi, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Maymun bin Mihran, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The sale is by mutual consent, and the option is after the deal, and it is not permissible for a Muslim to cheat another Muslim."

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I said to Ata': Is wiping the area a sale? He said: No, until he is given the choice. The choice is given after the sale is due. If he wants to take it, he can take it, and if he wants to leave it, he can leave it.

Scholars differed about the meaning of mutual consent in trade.

Some of them said: It is that each of the two parties to the sale, after they have concluded the sale between them, has the choice of confirming the sale or cancelling it, or they separate from their place in which they agreed to the sale with their bodies, with their consent to the contract that they concluded between them before the annulment.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Muhammad bin Sirin, on the authority of Shuraih, he said: Two men had a dispute, one of them sold a cloak to the other, and he said: I sold this man a cloak, and I sought his satisfaction, but he was not satisfied!! He said: Give him his satisfaction as he pleased you. He said: I gave him dirhams, and he was not satisfied! He said: Give him his satisfaction as he pleased you. He said: I have satisfied him, but he was not satisfied! He said: The two parties to the sale have the option as long as they have not parted ways.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi al-Safar, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Shuraih, who said: The two parties to a sale have the option of cancelling the contract as long as they have not parted ways.

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Shuraih, similarly.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said: Muhammad told us, he said: Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Jabir, he said: Abu Al-Dhaha told me, on the authority of Shuraih, that he said: The two parties to a sale have the option as long as they have not parted ways. Abu Al-Dhaha said: Shuraih used to narrate something similar on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Husayn ibn Yazid al-Tahan told me, he said, Ishaq ibn Mansur told us, on the authority of Abd al-Salam, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Abu Hawshab, on the authority of Maymun, who said: I bought a Sabiri from Ibn Sirin, and he put a high bid on me, so I said: Do well! He said: Either take it or leave it. So I took it from him, and when I weighed the price, he put down the dirhams and said: Choose, either the dirhams or the merchandise. So I chose the merchandise and took it.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ismail bin Salem, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, that he used to say regarding the two sales: They have the option as long as they have not separated, but if they confiscate, then the sale is binding.

Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Ahmasi told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ubayd told us, he said, Sufyan ibn Dinar told us, on the authority of Dhubbayyah, he said: I was in the market and Ali, may God be pleased with him, was in the market, and a girl came to sell fruit for a dirham, and she said: Give me this. So he gave it to her, and she said: I do not want it, give me my dirham! But he refused, so Ali took it from him and gave it to her.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: That a man came to him who had bought a mule from another man and it was his property, then the buyer returned it before they parted, so he ruled that it was his property, and Abu Al-Dhaha testified before him that Shuraih had ruled in a similar case that he should return it to its owner. So Al-Sha'bi referred to Shuraih's ruling.

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Shuraih: that he used to say in the case of two sales, if the buyer claimed that he had made the sale obligatory for him, and the seller said: I did not make it obligatory for him, he said: Two just witnesses that you parted with mutual consent after the sale or the option, otherwise the seller's oath: that you did not part with the sale or the option.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Muhammad, he said, Shuraih used to say: Two just witnesses that you two parted with mutual consent after a sale and a choice, otherwise he should swear by God: you two did not part with mutual consent after a sale or a choice.

Humaid bin Mas'adah told us, Bishr bin al-Mufaddal told us, Ibn Awn told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Sirin, on the authority of Shuraih, that he used to say: Two just witnesses that they separated by mutual consent after a sale or a choice.

The reason for saying this article is:

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Ubaid God, he said, Nafi' told me, on the authority of Ibn Umar, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Every two sales, there is no sale between them until they separate, unless there is an option."

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Marwan bin Muawiyah told us, he said, Yahya bin Ayoub told me, he said, Abu Zur'ah, when he pledged allegiance to a man, would say to him: Give me a choice! Then he would say: Abu Hurairah said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Two people should not part except with satisfaction."

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O people of al-Baqi'! So they heard his voice. Then he said: O people of al-Baqi'! So they looked, until they knew that it was his voice. Then he said: O people of al-Baqi'! Two sales should not part except with satisfaction."

Ahmad bin Muhammad al-Tusi told me, he said, Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi told us, he said, Sulayman bin Muadh told us, he said, Samak told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, pledged allegiance to a man and then said to him: Choose. He said: I have chosen. He said: This is how the sale is done."

They said: Trade by mutual consent is what was as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, explained, giving each of the buyer and seller the option to confirm the sale of what they are trading between them, or to cancel it after the contract of sale between them and before parting ways, or what they parted from with their bodies by mutual consent after the sale was concluded in their meeting. So what was contrary to that, is not from the trade that was between them by mutual consent.

Others said: Rather, the agreement in trade is binding. The contract of sale is obligatory in what the two parties to the transaction have exchanged with each other with the consent of each one of them: what the other owns and the other owns, whether they parted from that meeting or not, whether they chose in the meeting or did not choose after the contract.

The reason for those who said this statement is that the sale is by word, just as the marriage is by word. There is no disagreement among the scholars about forcing one of the two parties to marry the other, whether they separated from the meeting in which it took place or not. They said: The same is the ruling on the sale. They interpreted the statement of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The two parties to a sale have the option as long as they have not separated, as meaning as long as they have not separated by word. Among those who said this statement are Malik ibn Anas, Abu Hanifa, Abu Yusuf, and Muhammad.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions in this regard, in our view, is the opinion of the one who said: The trade that is based on mutual consent between the two contracting parties, is when the two contracting parties depart from the meeting in which they agreed to conclude the contract of sale with their bodies, based on their mutual consent to the contract that took place between them, and based on each one of them giving the other the choice, due to the authenticity of the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, which states:

O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent. And do not kill yourselves [or one another]. Indeed, Allah is to you ever Merciful.

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ayoub told us, and Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The two parties to a sale have the option as long as they have not parted ways or it is a sale with an option. And perhaps he said: Or one of them says to the other, 'Choose.'

If this was authentically reported from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, then the statement of one of the two parties to the sale to the other: Choose, is not without being before the contract of sale, or with it, or after it.

If it was before, then that is a meaningless statement, because before the contract of sale, neither of the two parties to the sale owned from his partner what he did not own, so there is an understandable aspect to his giving his partner the choice in what he owned, and there is no one in them who is ignorant that he has the choice in giving his partner ownership of what he does not own in exchange for compensation that he can replace it with, so it is said to him: You have the choice in what you want to make of a sale or purchase.

Or it could be - since this meaning is invalidated - that each of them gives the other a choice with the contract of sale. The meaning of the choice in that case is similar to the meaning of the choice before it. Because it is a case in which what was his property before that has not been removed from one of them to his owner, so the choice has an understandable aspect.

Or it may be after the sale contract, as these two meanings are invalidated.

Since this is the case, it is correct that the other meaning of the statement of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) - I mean his statement: Unless they separate - is only separation after the contract of sale, just as the option was after it. Since this is correct, the statement of those who claim that its meaning is separation by the statement by which the sale is concluded is invalid. Since this is invalid, what we said is correct, that the option and separation are only two meanings by which the sale is completed after its contract, and the interpretation of those who said: The meaning of his statement: Except that it is a trade by mutual consent is: except that your eating of the money that some of you eat for others, by ownership from one of you from the one over whom you own it, by a trade that you exchanged among yourselves, and you parted from it by mutual consent after the contract of sale between you with your bodies, or by some of you giving the other a choice.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: And do not kill yourselves, and do not kill one another, while you are people of one faith, one call, and one religion. So the Most High made all the people of Islam from one another. And He made the killer among them a victim, in his killing him from among them, in the same way as his killing himself, since the killer and the victim are people of one hand against whoever opposes their faith.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not kill yourselves, meaning: the people of your religion.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah: And do not kill yourselves, he said: killing one another.

As for His statement, may He be glorified: Indeed, God has been Merciful to you, it means: God, the Blessed and Exalted, has always been Merciful to His creation, and out of His mercy toward you He has prevented some of you from killing others, O believers, by making it forbidden for you to shed the blood of others except by right, and by prohibiting some of you from consuming the wealth of others unjustly, except for trade that he owns with his consent and good will. Were it not for that, you would have perished and some of you would have perished among yourself through killing, looting, and usurpation.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains nine issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: in falsehood meaning without right, and the ways of that are many as we have explained, and we have already mentioned its meaning in Al-Baqarah. And from eating money in falsehood is the sale of the naked, which is that he takes the goods from you or rents an animal from you and gives you a dirham or more, on the condition that if he buys it or rides the animal, it is from the price of the goods or the rent of the animal, and if he leaves the purchase of the goods or the rent of the animal, then what he gives you is yours. This is not valid and is not permissible according to a group of jurists of the regions from the Hijazis and Iraqis, because it is a type of gambling, uncertainty, and risk, and eating money in falsehood without compensation or a gift, and that is invalid by consensus, and the sale of the deposit is annulled if it occurs in this manner before and after taking possession, and the goods are returned if they are still present, and if they are lost, their value is returned on the day of taking possession. It has been narrated from a group of people, including Ibn Sirin, Mujahid, Nafi' ibn Abd al-Harith, and Zayd ibn Aslam, that they permitted the sale of the deposit as we have described, and Zayd ibn Aslam used to say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, permitted it. Abu Omar said: This is not known from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. God's peace and blessings be upon him, from a correct source. Rather, Abd al-Razzaq mentioned it on the authority of al-Aslami on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, without a chain of transmission with him, and that is to give it in Arabic and then calculate its in Arabic from the price if he chooses to complete the sale. There is no disagreement about its permissibility from Malik and others. In the Muwatta' of Malik, on the authority of a trustworthy person with him, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, "that the Messenger of God, may God's peace and blessings be upon him, said:

Abu Omar said: People have spoken about his trustworthiness in this regard, and the most likely thing that has been said about him is that he took it from Ibn Lahi'ah or from Ibn Wahb from Ibn Lahi'ah because Ibn Lahi'ah heard it from Amr ibn Shu'ayb and narrated it from him. Ibn Wahb and others narrated it from Ibn Lahi'ah, and Ibn Lahi'ah is one of the scholars. It is said that his books were burned, so if he narrated from memory after that, he made mistakes. What he narrated from Ibn al-Mubarak and Ibn Wahb is correct in it, and some of them consider all of his hadith weak. He had extensive knowledge and narrated many hadiths, except that his condition with them is as we have described.

Second: The Almighty's saying: "Except that it be a trade by mutual consent between you." This is an isolated exception, meaning, but trade by mutual consent, and trade is buying and selling. This is like the Almighty's saying: And God has permitted trade and forbidden usury (al-Baqarah 2:275) based on what was mentioned above. Trade was read in the nominative case, meaning, unless trade occurs. Based on this, Sibawayh recited:

I would ransom my she-camel for the Banu Dhuhl ibn Shaiban if it was a day with grey stars.

This is called the complete kana because it is completed by its subject and does not need an object. Trade is read in the accusative case, so it is incomplete kana because it is not completed by the noun without the predicate, so its noun is implied in it. If you wish, you can estimate it as meaning, unless the money is trade money, so the noun is deleted and the noun to which it is added is placed in its place. This has been mentioned before, and from it is the saying of God Almighty: And if he is in hardship (al-Baqarah 2:280).

Third: The Almighty's saying: Trade. Trade in the language is an expression of exchange and of the reward that the Creator, glory be to Him, gives the servant in exchange for the righteous deeds that are some of His actions. God Almighty said: O you who have believed, shall I guide you to a trade that will save you from a painful punishment? (al-Saff 61:10) And God Almighty said: They hope for a trade that will never fail. (Fatir 35:29) And God Almighty said: Indeed, God has purchased from the believers their lives and their properties. (al-Tawbah 9:111) The verse. So He called all of that buying and selling by way of metaphor, likening it to contracts of purchase and sales by which purposes are achieved. They are of two types: the first is changing hands in the city without moving or traveling. This is waiting and hoarding, which those of high status have turned away from, and those with risks have shown no interest in. The second is the changing of money by traveling and transporting it to cities. This is more appropriate for people of chivalry and is more beneficial and useful, but it is more dangerous and more deceptive. It was narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The traveler and his money are, perhaps, I said, except for... What God has protected from danger. And say: In the Torah, O son of Adam, create a book that will create for you provision. At-Tabari: This verse is the clearest evidence of the corruption of the statement.

Fourth - I know that every exchange is a trade, regardless of the form of compensation, except that his saying in vain excludes from it every compensation that is not permissible according to Sharia, such as usury, ignorance, or the estimation of a corrupt compensation such as a hole, a pig, and other things. And also excluded from it is every permissible contract that does not have a compensation, such as a loan, charity, and a gift, not for reward. And contracts of donations are permissible with other evidence mentioned in their places, so these are two agreed-upon parties. And also excluded from it is your brother inviting you to his food. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the words of God Almighty: And do not consume one another's wealth unjustly except it be trade by mutual consent. So a man would be embarrassed to eat with someone else after this verse was revealed, so that was abrogated by the other verse in An-Nur, which says: There is no blame upon the blind or upon the lame or upon the ill or upon yourselves that you eat from your houses (al-Nur 24:61) until His words in separate groups (al-Nur 24:61). So a rich man would invite a man from his family to his food and he would say: I am inclined to eat from it - and inclination is embarrassment - and he would say: The poor has more right to it than I do, so he permitted them to eat from that over which the name of God has been mentioned, and he permitted the food of the People of the Book.

Fifth: If you buy something from the market and its owner tells you before buying it to taste it and you are free, then do not eat from it because his permission to eat is for the sake of buying. Perhaps no purchase will take place between you, and that eating will be doubtful. But if he described a quality to you and you bought it and did not find it to be of that quality, then you have the option.

Sixth - The majority of scholars are of the opinion that fraud in trade is permissible, such as a man selling a ruby for a dirham, which is worth a hundred, and that it is permissible for a true owner to sell his large amount of money for a small, trivial amount. There is no disagreement among scholars about this if the value of that is known, and it is permissible to give it as a gift if he gives it away. They differed about it if the value of that is not known. Some people said: Whether the value of that is known or not, it is permissible if he is a mature, free adult. A group said: Fraud if it exceeds a third is rejected, and only the close and common amount in trade is permissible, but not the outrageous and excessive amount. Ibn Wahb, one of the companions of Malik, may God have mercy on him, said this, and the first is more correct, "because of his saying, peace be upon him, in the hadith of the adulterous slave girl: So let him sell her even for a braid," and his saying, peace be upon him, to Umar:

Do not buy it - meaning the horse - even if he gives it to you for one dirham. And his saying, peace be upon him:

Let people be provided for by God from one another. His saying, peace be upon him:

The present is not sold to the absent. There is no distinction between the little and the much, whether it is a third or something else.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: By mutual consent from you meaning by satisfaction, except that it came from the verb mufa'ala since trade is between two people. The scholars differed regarding mutual consent. A group said: Its completion and certainty is by the separation of the bodies after the contract of sale, or by one of them saying to his companion: Choose, and he says: I have chosen, and that is also after the contract, so it is also certain even if they do not separate. This was said by a group of the Companions and the Successors, and this is what Al-Shafi'i, Al-Thawri, Al-Awza'i, Al-Layth, Ibn Uyaynah, Ishaq and others said. Al-Awza'i said: They have the option as long as they do not separate except in three sales: the sale of spoils by the Sultan, partnership in inheritance, and partnership in trade. So if he agrees with him in these three, then the sale is binding and they do not have the option in it. He said: The limit of separation is that each of them disappears from the other, and this is the opinion of the people of Ash-Sham. Al-Layth said: Separation is that one of them stands up. Ahmad ibn Hanbal used to say: They have the choice forever as long as they do not separate physically, and whether they say: We choose or do not say it, until they separate physically from their place. Al-Shafi'i also said this, and it is the correct opinion in this regard due to the hadiths that have been reported on this matter, and it is narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Umar, Abu Barzah, and a group of scholars. Malik and Abu Hanifa said: The completion of the sale is that the sale is concluded verbally, so the contract is confirmed by that and the choice is lifted. Muhammad ibn al-Hasan said the meaning of his statement in the hadith:

The two parties to a sale have the option of cancelling the contract as long as they have not parted ways. If the seller says: I have sold to you, then he has the right to take it back, unless the buyer says: The buyer has accepted. This is the opinion of Abu Hanifa and the text of the Maliki school of thought as well, as narrated by Ibn Khuwayz Mandat. It was said: He has no right to take it back. This was mentioned in Surat al-Baqarah, and the first scholars cited as evidence what was proven from the hadith of Samurah ibn Jundub, Abu Barzah, Ibn Umar, Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas, Abu Hurayrah, Hakim ibn Hizam, and others, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

The two parties to a sale have the option unless they part ways or one of them says to the other, Choose. Narrated by Ayoub on the authority of Nafi' on the authority of Ibn Umar. So his saying, peace be upon him, in this narration: Or one of them says to the other, "Choose, is the meaning of the other narration: Except for the sale of option. And his saying: Except that their sale is with option, and the like, meaning that one of them says after the sale is complete to the other: Choose to carry out the sale or cancel it. If he chooses to carry out the sale, the sale is completed between them even if they do not part ways. And Ibn Umar, who is the narrator of the hadith, if he made a sale to someone and wanted to carry out the sale, he would walk a little and then come back. And in the principles: Whoever narrates a hadith is more knowledgeable about its interpretation, especially the Companions, since they are more knowledgeable about what is said and more aware of the situation. And Abu Dawud and al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Abu al-Wadi' who said: We were on a journey with an army, and a man came with a horse, and one of us said to him: Will you sell this horse for this young man? He said: Yes, so he sold it and then spent the night with us. When morning came, our companion stood up to his horse and said to him: What do you have to do with the horse? Didn't you sell it to me? He said: I have no need for this sale. So he said: What is wrong with you? You sold me. The people said to them: This is Abu Barzah, the companion of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. So they went to him and he said to them:

Are you satisfied with the decision of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace? He said: Yes. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The two parties to a transaction have the option of cancelling it as long as they have not parted ways. I do not see you two parting ways. These two companions knew the source of the hadith and acted according to it. Rather, this was the practice of the companions. Salim said: Ibn Umar said: When we made a sale, each of us had the option as long as the two parties did not separate. He said: So Uthman and I made a sale, and I sold him my property in the valley for his property in Khaybar. He said: When I sold it, I began to step back, fearing that Uthman would want me to sell it before I left him. Al-Daraqutni narrated it. Then he said: The linguists differentiated between farqat unstressed and farqat heavy, so they made it with the lightening in speech and with the heavy in bodies. Ahmad Yahya Tha'lab said: Ibn al-A'rabi informed me on the authority of al-Mufaddal, who said: It is said farqat bayn al-Kalamayn unstressed, so they separated between two people stressed, so they separated. He made the separation in speech and the separation in bodies. The Malikis were veiled by what was previously explained in the verse on debt and by the Almighty's saying: Fulfill contracts (al-Ma'idah 5:1). These two had contracted, and in this hadith is the invalidation of the fulfillment of contracts. They said: And separation may be in speech, like a contract. Marriage and the occurrence of divorce, which God has called separation. God Almighty said: And if they separate, God will enrich each one from His abundance. (An-Nisa': 130) And God Almighty said: And do not be like those who have become divided. (Al Imran 3:105) And he, peace be upon him, said:

My nation will be divided," and he did not say with their bodies. Ad-Daraqutni and others narrated, "On the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, he said: I heard Shu'ayb say: I heard Abdullah ibn Amr say: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: 'Any man who buys a sale from another man, each of them has the option until they part from their place, unless it is a transaction with an option, in which case it is not permissible for one of them to separate from the other for fear that he will cancel it.'" They said: This indicates that the sale was completed between them before they parted, because cancellation is not valid except in sales that have already been completed. They said: The meaning of his statement, The two parties to the transaction have the option, is the two parties to the bargain have the option unless they conclude a contract. If they conclude a contract, the option is void. The answer is: As for what they have argued about separation by speech, what is meant by that is religions, as we have explained in Al-Imran, even if it is correct in some places, it is not correct in this place. Its explanation is to say: Tell us about the speech by which the meeting took place and the sale was completed. Was it the speech by which separation was intended or something else? If they said: It was something else, then they have made a mistake and come up with something that is not rational. Because there is no other statement than that, and if they said: It is that exact statement, it would be said to them: How is it permissible that the statement by which they met and by which their sale was completed be the statement by which they parted? This is the very essence of the impossible and corrupt statement. As for his saying: And it is not permissible for him to separate from his companion for fear that he will release him, its meaning, if it is correct, is that it is recommended, based on the evidence of his saying, peace be upon him:

Whoever forgives a Muslim, God will forgive him his misstep. "And by the consensus of the Muslims that this is permissible for the one who does it, contrary to the apparent meaning of the hadith, and by their consensus that it is permissible for him to leave him so that his sale is executed and he does not forgive him unless he wishes. And in what they have agreed upon regarding that, there is a rejection of the narration of the one who narrated "it is not permissible." If the meaning of this hadith is not encouragement, otherwise it is invalid by consensus. As for the interpretation of the two parties to the transaction as the two parties to the bargain, then it is a departure from the apparent meaning of the wording, and its meaning is that the two parties to the transaction after their contract have a choice as long as they are in their meeting, except for a sale in which one of them says to the other: Choose, so he chooses, then the choice is cut off between them, and if they do not separate, then if a choice is imposed, then the meaning is: except for a sale with a choice, then the choice remains after the separation of bodies. And the completion of this chapter is in the books of disagreement, and in the statement of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, I heard my father say: Evidence of the authenticity of his hadith, for al-Daraqutni said: Abu Bakr al-Naysaburi told us, Muhammad ibn Ali al-Warraq told us, he said: I said to Ahmad ibn Hanbal: Shu'ayb heard something from his father, he said: He says my father told me, he said: So I said: So his father heard from Abdullah bin Amr? He said: Yes, I think he heard from him. Al-Daraqutni said: I heard Abu Bakr al-Naysaburi say: He is Amr bin Shuaib Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-Aas. It has been confirmed that Amr bin Shuaib heard from his father Shuaib and that Shuaib heard from his grandfather Abdullah bin Amr. It has been confirmed that Amr bin Shuaib heard from his father Shuaib and that Shuaib heard from his grandfather Abdullah bin Amr.

Eighth - Al-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Ibn Omar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The honest, trustworthy Muslim merchant will be with the prophets, the truthful ones, and the martyrs on the Day of Resurrection. It is disliked for the merchant to swear an oath in order to promote and decorate the merchandise, or to pray for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, while displaying his merchandise, which is to say: May God bless Muhammad! How good this is. It is recommended for the merchant not to let his business distract him from performing the obligatory duties. So when the time for prayer comes, he should leave his business so that he will be among the people of this verse: Men whom neither trade nor sale distracts from the remembrance of God. (al-Nur 24:37) and it will come.

Ninth - In this verse, along with the hadiths that we mentioned, there is what refutes the statement of those who deny seeking sustenance through trade and industry from the ignorant Sufis, because God Almighty has forbidden eating it unjustly and permitted it through trade, and this is clear.

The Almighty's saying: And do not kill yourselves contains one issue - Al-Hasan read you kill as a multiplicity, and the people of interpretation agreed that what is meant by this verse is the prohibition of some people killing others, then its wording includes a man killing himself with the intention of killing out of greed for this world and seeking money by forcing himself to take risks that lead to destruction. It is possible that it was said and do not kill yourselves in a state of annoyance or anger, so all of this is included in the prohibition. Amr ibn al-Aas used this verse as evidence when he refused to wash himself with cold water when he became impure in the Battle of Dhat al-Salasil, fearing for himself from it, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, confirmed his evidence and laughed at him and did not say anything. Abu Dawud and others reported it, and it will come.

O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly but only [in lawful] business by mutual consent. And do not kill yourselves [or one another]. Indeed, Allah is to you ever Merciful.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Blessed and Exalted forbids His believing servants from consuming each other's wealth unjustly, that is, through types of earnings that are not lawful, such as types of usury and gambling, and other types of tricks that are similar to that, even if they appear in most of the legal rulings, which God knows that the one who practices them only wants to trick usury, so Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Al-Muthanna told me, Abdul-Wahhab told us, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding a man who buys a garment from another man and says: If you are satisfied with it, I will take it, otherwise I will return it and return a dirham with it, he said: It is what God the Almighty said about it: And do not consume one another's wealth unjustly. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali bin Harb Al-Mawsili told us, Ibn Fadil told us, on the authority of Dawud Al-Awdi, on the authority of Amer, on the authority of Alqamah, on the authority of Abdullah regarding the verse, he said: It is decisive and has not been abrogated and will not be abrogated until the Day of Resurrection. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: When God revealed, O you who believe! Do not consume one another's wealth unjustly, the Muslims said: God has forbidden us to consume one another's wealth unjustly, and food is the best of our wealth, so it is not permissible for any of us to eat at someone else's house, so how about the people? Then God revealed after that, There is no blame upon the blind, and Qatada said the same. And the words of God, Except that it be a trade by mutual consent, are read as trade in the nominative and accusative, and it is an interrupted exception, as if He is saying: Do not engage in forbidden means to acquire wealth, but do legitimate trades that are by mutual consent of the seller and buyer and use them to obtain wealth, as God, the Almighty, said, And do not kill the soul which God has forbidden, except by right, and as He said, They will not taste death therein except the first death. From this noble verse, Al-Shafi'i argued that a sale is not valid except with acceptance, because it indicates mutual consent explicitly, unlike a transaction, which may not necessarily indicate consent. The majority disagreed with Malik, Abu Hanifa, Ahmad and their companions on this, and they saw that just as statements indicate mutual consent, so too do actions indicate consent in some cases definitely. They validated the transaction with a transaction absolutely, and some of them said: It is valid in small things and in what people consider a sale, and this is a precaution considered by the scholars of the school, and God knows best. Mujahid said: Except if it is a trade by mutual consent from you, a sale or gift that one person gives to another. Ibn Jarir narrated it, then he said: Waki' told us, my father told us, on the authority of Al-Qasim, on the authority of Sulayman

Al-Ja'fi, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Maymun bin Mihran, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A sale is by mutual consent and the option is after the deal, and it is not permissible for a Muslim to cheat another Muslim. This is a mursal hadith. And the completion of the agreement is to prove the option of the meeting, as it was proven in the two Sahihis that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The two parties to a transaction have the option of resolving the dispute until they part ways. And in the wording of Bukhari: If two men make a sale, each of them has the option of resolving the dispute until they part ways. Ahmad, Al-Shafi'i and their companions and the majority of the early and later scholars held the opinion based on this hadith. This includes the legitimacy of the option of condition after the contract for three days according to what is clear in the condition of the sale, even for a year in a village or the like, as is well-known from Malik, may God have mercy on him. They validated the sale of Mu'atah absolutely, and this is a statement in the Shafi'i school of thought. Some of them said: The sale of Mu'atah is valid in small things in what people consider a sale, and this is the choice of a group of the companions, as is agreed upon. And his saying: And do not kill yourselves means by committing the prohibitions of God, engaging in His sins, and consuming your wealth among yourselves unjustly. Indeed, God is to you Merciful means in what He has commanded you to do and forbidden you from doing. Imam Ahmad said: Hasan bin Musa told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, Yazid bin Abi Habib told us, on the authority of Imran bin Abi Anas, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Jubair, on the authority of Amr bin al-Aas, may God be pleased with him, that he said when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him in the year of Dhat al-Salasil, he said: I had a wet dream on a very cold night, and I feared that if I performed ghusl I would die, so I performed tayammum and then led my companions in the dawn prayer. He said: When we came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, I mentioned that to him, and he said: O Amr, you led your companions in prayer while you were in a state of ritual impurity. He said: I said: O Messenger of God, I had a wet dream on a very cold night, and I feared that if I performed ghusl I would die, so I remembered the words of God Almighty: "And do not kill yourselves. Indeed, God is to you ever Merciful," so I performed tayammum and then led the prayer, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, laughed and did not say anything. This is how Abu Dawud narrated it from the hadith of Yahya bin Ayoub on the authority of Yazid bin Abi Habib. It was also narrated by Muhammad ibn Abi Salamah, on the authority of Ibn Wahb, on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah and Umar ibn al-Harith, both of them on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, on the authority of Imran ibn Abi Anas, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Jubayr al-Masri, on the authority of Abu Qais, the client of Amr ibn al-Aas, on his authority, and he mentioned something similar to it, and this - and

God knows best - is more likely to be correct. Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahman bin Muhammad bin Hamid al-Balkhi told us, Muhammad bin Salih bin Sahl al-Balkhi told us, Ubayd God bin Umar al-Qawariri told us, Yusuf bin Khalid told us, Ziyad bin Saad told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that Amr bin al-Aas led the people in prayer while he was in a state of ritual impurity. When they came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, they mentioned that to him, so he called him and asked him about it. He said: O Messenger of God, I feared that the cold would kill me, and God the Most High said: And do not kill yourselves (al-Baqarah 2:17), but the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, remained silent. Then Ibn Mardawayh included, with this noble verse, a hadith from al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever kills himself with an iron weapon, his weapon will be in his hand, stabbing his stomach with it on the Day of Resurrection in the fire of Hell, abiding therein forever. Whoever kills himself with poison, his poison will be in his hand, sipping it in the fire of Hell, abiding therein forever. Whoever throws himself from a mountain and kills..." The same, he will be thrown into the fire of Hell, abiding therein forever." This hadith is proven in the two Sahihs, and Abu al-Zinad also narrated it on the authority of al-A'raj, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a similar manner, and on the authority of Abu Qilabah, on the authority of Thabit ibn al-Dahhak, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever kills himself with something will be punished with it on the Day of Resurrection. The group included it in their books on the authority of Abu Qilabah. In the two Sahihs, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Jundub bin Abdullah Al-Bajali, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There was a man among those who came before you who had a wound, so he took a knife and slit his hand with it, and the blood did not stop until he died. God, the Almighty, said: 'My servant hastened to Me with his life, I have forbidden him Paradise.' That is why God, the Almighty, said: 'And whoever does that in aggression and injustice' meaning, whoever does what God has forbidden him, transgressing and being unjust in his doing, meaning knowing that it is forbidden and daring to violate it, 'We will drive him into the Fire.' The verse. This is a severe threat and a definite warning, so let every wise and intelligent person who listens and is a witness beware of it. God, the Almighty, said: 'If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins.' The verse means that if you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you into Paradise. That is why He said: 'And We will admit you to a noble entrance.' Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar said: Mu'ammil bin Hisham told us, Ismail bin Ibrahim narrated to us, Khalid bin Ayoub narrated to us, on the authority of Muawiyah bin Qurrah, on the authority of Anas, who said: What we have heard from our Lord, the Almighty, and then we did not give him from all the people and wealth is that he forgives us for what is less than the major sins, God says: "If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins" (al-Baqarah 2:17). There are hadiths related to this noble verse, so let us mention what is easy from them. Imam Ahmad said: Hisham narrated to us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Abu Ma'shar, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Qurtha' al-Dhabi, on the authority of Salman al-Farisi, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Do you know what Friday is? I said: It is the day on which God gathered your fathers together. He said: "But I know what Friday is. If a man purifies himself and does it well, then comes to Friday and listens until the imam finishes his prayer, it will be an expiation for him for what is between that and the next Friday as long as he avoids killing." Al-Bukhari narrated something similar from another chain of transmission on the authority of Salman. Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Abu Salih told us, Al-Layth told us, Khalid told me, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Abi Hilal, on the authority of Na'im Al-Mujmir, Suhaib, the freed slave of Al-'Atwari, told me that he heard Abu Hurairah and Abu Sa'id say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us one day, and he said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, three times. Then he leaned over, and each one of us leaned over, crying, and we did not know what he had sworn to. Then he raised his head, and there was a smile on his face, and he was more beloved to us than red camels, and he said: "There is no servant who prays the five prayers, fasts Ramadan, pays zakat, and avoids the seven major sins, except that the gates of Paradise will be opened for him. Then it will be said to him: Enter in peace." This is how Al-Nasa'i and Al-Hakim narrated it in his Mustadrak from the hadith of Al-Layth ibn Sa'd with it, and Al-Hakim also narrated it and Ibn Hibban in his Sahih from the hadith of 'Abdullah ibn Wahb from 'Amr ibn Al-Harith, from Sa'id ibn Abi Hilal with it. Then Al-Hakim said: It is authentic according to the conditions of the two sheikhs, and they did not include it.

Interpretation of these seven This is what was established in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Sulayman ibn Bilal on the authority of Thawr ibn Zayd, on the authority of Salim Abu al-Ghaith, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Avoid the seven deadly sins. It was said: O Messenger of God, what are they? He said, "Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, magic, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, fleeing on the day of battle, and slandering chaste, believing women who are unaware."

Another way from him Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Fahd bin A'waf told us, Abu Awana told us on the authority of Amr bin Abi Salamah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The major sins are seven: the first of them is associating partners with God, then killing a soul without right, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan until he grows up, fleeing from battle, accusing chaste women, and returning to the Bedouins after the migration." So the text on these seven as major sins does not negate everything else except for those who say that the title is understood, and it is weak when there is no evidence, especially when there is evidence in the explicit text on the lack of the meaning, as we will mention from the hadiths that include major sins other than these seven, including what Al-Hakim narrated in his Mustadrak where he said: Ahmad bin Kamil Al-Qadi told us by dictation, Abu Qilabah Abdul Malik bin Muhammad told us, Muadh bin Hani' told us, Harb bin Shaddad told us, Yahya bin Abi Katheer told us on the authority of Abdul Hamid bin Sinan, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umair, on the authority of his father, meaning Umair bin Qatada, may God be pleased with him, that he told him and he was a companion that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said during the Farewell Pilgrimage: "Behold, the friends of God are those who pray, who establish the five prayers that have been prescribed for them, and fast Ramadan and seek reward for their fasting, seeing that it is a duty upon them, and give the zakat of their wealth, seeking reward for it, and avoid the major sins that God has forbidden." Then a man asked him, saying: O Messenger of God, what are the major sins? He said: "Nine: associating partners with God, killing a believer unjustly, fleeing on the day of battle, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, disobeying Muslim parents, and making the Sacred House your Qiblah permissible, whether alive or dead. Then he said: No man dies who does not commit these major sins, establishes the prayer, and gives the zakat, except that he will be with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a house whose doors are shutters of gold." This is how Al-Hakim narrated it at length. Abu Dawud and Al-Tirmidhi narrated it in an abbreviated form from the hadith of Muadh bin Hani' with it. And Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in detail from his hadith. Then Al-Hakim said: All of his men are cited as evidence in the two Sahihs except Abdul Hamid bin Sinan. I said He is from Hijaz and is only known for this hadith. Ibn Hibban mentioned him in the Book of Trustworthy People. Al-Bukhari said: There is doubt about his hadith. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Sulayman bin Thabit Al-Jahdari, on the authority of Sallam bin Salam, on the authority of Ayoub bin Utbah, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Katheer, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umair, on the authority of his father, and he mentioned him, and Abdul Hamid bin Sinan was not mentioned in the chain of transmission. And God knows best.

Another hadith with the same meaning as the previous one Ibn Mardawayh said: Abdullah bin Ja'far told us, Ahmad bin Yunus told us, Yahya bin Abdul Hamid told us, Abdul Aziz bin Muslim bin Al Walid told us, on the authority of Al Mutalib bin Abdullah bin Hantab, on the authority of Ibn 'Amr, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ascended the pulpit and said, I do not swear, I do not swear. Then he came down and said, "Be glad, be glad. Whoever prays the five daily prayers and avoids the seven major sins will be called from the gates of Paradise: Enter." `Abdul Aziz said: I do not know of it. He said, "In peace." Al Mutalib said: I heard someone ask Abdullah bin 'Amr, did you hear the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mention them? He said, "Ya-Sin 36:disobeying parents, associating partners with God, killing a soul, accusing chaste women of adultery, consuming the wealth of orphans, fleeing from battle, and consuming usury."

Another hadith with the same meaning Abu Ja'far ibn Jarir said in his interpretation: Ya'qub told us, Ibn `Ulayyah told us, Ziyad ibn Mukhraq told us on the authority of Taisalah ibn Mayyas, who said: I was with the Najdat and I committed sins that I do not consider to be anything but major sins, so I met Ibn `Umar and said to him: I have committed sins that I do not consider to be anything but major sins, he said: What are they? I said: I committed such and such. He said: It is not one of the major sins. I said: And I committed such and such. He said: It is not one of the major sins. He said - with something that Taisalah did not name - he said: They are nine and I will count them for you: "Associating partners with God, killing a soul without right, fleeing from battle, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan unjustly, committing heresy in the Sacred Mosque, seeking sorcery, and making one's parents cry is disobedience." Ziyad said: And Taisalah said: When Ibn `Umar saw my separation, he said: Do you fear that you will enter the Fire? I said: Yes. He said: Do you want to enter Paradise? I said: Yes. He said: Are your parents alive? I said: I have my mother. He said: By God, if you speak to her gently and feed her, you will enter Paradise as long as you avoid the necessities.

Another path Ibn Jarir said: Sulayman ibn Thabit al-Jahdari al-Wasiti told us, Salim ibn Salam told us, Ayoub ibn Utbah told us, on the authority of Taysila ibn Ali al-Nahdi, who said: I came to Ibn Umar while he was in the shade of an arak tree on the Day of Arafah and he was pouring water over his head and face. I said: Tell me about the major sins? He said: There are nine. I said: What are they? He said: Associating partners with God and accusing a chaste woman of adultery. I said: Before murder? He said: Yes, despite it, and killing a believing soul, fleeing from battle, sorcery, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, disobeying Muslim parents, and blasphemy against the Sacred House, your Qiblah, whether alive or dead. This is how he narrated it from these two paths, without a chain of transmission. Ali ibn al-Ja'd narrated it from Ayyub ibn `Utbah, from Taysila ibn `Ali, who said: I came to Ibn `Umar on the eve of `Arafah, while he was under the shade of an arak tree, and he was pouring water over his head, so I asked him about the major sins. He said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: They are seven. I said: What are they? He said: Associating partners with God, accusing a chaste woman of adultery. I said: Before the blood money? He said: Yes, despite it, and killing a believing soul, fleeing from battle, sorcery, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, disobeying parents, and blasphemy against the Sacred House, your Qiblah, whether alive or dead." This is how al-Hasan ibn Musa al-Ashib narrated it from Ayyub ibn 'Utbah al-Yamani, and it is weak, and God knows best.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Zakariya bin Adi told us, Baqiyah told us, on the authority of Buhair bin Saad, on the authority of Khalid bin Ma'dan, that Abarham al-Sam'i told them, on the authority of Abu Ayyub, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever worships God without associating anything with Him, establishes prayer, pays zakat, fasts Ramadan, and avoids major sins, then Paradise is for him - or he will enter Paradise. A man asked him: What are the major sins? He said: Associating partners with God, killing a Muslim soul, and fleeing on the day of battle. Ahmad also narrated it, and al-Nasa'i from other chains of transmission on the authority of Baqiyah.

Another hadith Ibn Mardawayh narrated in his interpretation on the authority of Sulayman ibn Dawud al-Yamani - and he is weak - on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Hazm, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, wrote a book to the people of Yemen containing the obligatory duties, Sunnahs, and blood money, and he sent it with Amr ibn Hazm. He said: And in the book was: "The greatest of the major sins before God on the Day of Resurrection are: associating partners with God, killing a believing soul without right, fleeing in the way of God on the day of battle, disobeying one's parents, accusing a chaste woman, learning magic, consuming usury, and consuming the wealth of an orphan."

Another hadith that mentions false testimony: Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, 'Ubaydullah ibn Abi Bakr told me, he said: I heard Anas ibn Malik say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned the major sins, or was asked about the major sins, and he said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul, and disobeying one's parents. And he said: Shall I not inform you of the greatest of the major sins? He said: False speech - or false testimony. Shu'bah said: I think he said: false testimony. They both narrated it from the hadith of Shu'bah with this chain of transmission. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it through two other strange chains of transmission on the authority of Anas with a similar chain of transmission.

Another hadith It was narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakra on the authority of his father, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not inform you of the greatest of the major sins? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God. He said: Associating partners with God, and disobeying one's parents. He was reclining, then he sat up and said: And false testimony, and false speech. He kept repeating it until we said: If only he would stop.

Another hadith mentioning killing a child It is authentic in the two Sahih on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud who said: I said: O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? In another narration: Greater He said: To make a rival to God even though He created you. I said: Then what? He said: To kill your child for fear that he will eat with you. I said: Then what? He said: To commit adultery with your neighbor's wife. Then he recited: "And those who do not invoke with God another deity or kill the soul which God has forbidden, except by right, or commit unlawful sexual intercourse. And whoever should do that will meet a penalty. The punishment will be doubled for him on the Day of Resurrection, and he will abide therein humiliated, except for those who repent."

Another hadith mentioning drinking alcohol Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Ibn Sakhr told me that a man told him on the authority of Ammarah ibn Hazm that he heard Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas while he was in al-Hijr in Mecca, and a man asked him about alcohol, so he said: By God, it is a great sin in the sight of God for an old man like me to lie about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in this situation. So he went and asked him, then he came back and said: I asked him about alcohol, so he said: "It is the greatest of the major sins, and the mother of all indecencies. Drinking alcohol leaves the prayer and has intercourse with one's mother, maternal aunt, and paternal aunt." Strange from this perspective.

Another way It was narrated by Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh from the hadith of Abdul Aziz bin Muhammad Al-Darawardi from Dawud bin Salih from Salim bin Abdullah, from his father that Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq, may God be pleased with him, and Umar bin Al-Khattab and some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, may God be pleased with them all, sat after the death of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they mentioned the greatest of the major sins, but they did not have anything to conclude with, so they sent me to Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-Aas to ask him about that, and he informed me that the greatest of the major sins is drinking alcohol, so I went to them and told them, and they denied that, so they jumped to him until they came to him in his house, and he informed them that they had spoken to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that a king from the Children of Israel took a man and gave him the choice between drinking alcohol, or killing a person, or committing adultery, or eating pork, or killing him, so he chose to drink alcohol, and when he drank it, he did not refrain from anything he wanted from him, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to us in response, No one drinks alcohol except that it will not be accepted from him. "Prayer for forty nights, and no one dies with any of it in his bladder except that God forbids Paradise to him. If he dies within forty nights, he dies the death of the pre-Islamic era." This is a very strange hadith from this aspect, and this Dawud ibn Salih is al-Tammar al-Madani, a client of the Ansar. Imam Ahmad said: I see nothing wrong with him. Ibn Hibban mentioned him among the trustworthy, and I did not see anyone who criticized him.

Another hadith on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, in which the false oath is mentioned. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Firas, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The greatest of the major sins are associating partners with God, disobeying one's parents, or killing a soul - Shu'bah is the one who is in doubt - and the false oath. Al-Bukhari, Al-Tirmidhi, and Al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Shu'bah, and Al-Bukhari and Shaiban both added it on the authority of Firas.

Another hadith on the false oath Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu Salih, the scribe of Al-Layth, told us, Al-Layth bin Saad told us, Hisham bin Saad told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Zaid bin Muhajir bin Qunfudh Al-Taymi, on the authority of Abu Umamah Al-Ansari, on the authority of Abdullah bin Anis Al-Juhani, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The greatest of the major sins are associating partners with God, disobeying parents, and the false oath. No one who swears an oath by God and is patient and then inserts into it something the size of a mosquito's wing will have a mark on his heart until the Day of Resurrection." This is how Ahmad narrated it in his Musnad and Abd bin Hamid in his Tafsir, both on the authority of Yunus bin Muhammad Al-Mu'addib on the authority of Al-Layth bin Saad, and Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Abd bin Hamid, and he said: Hasan Gharib. This Abu Umamah Al-Ansari is Ibn Tha'labah, and his name is not known. He narrated hadiths on the authority of the Companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Our Sheikh, the preserver Abu Al-Hajjaj Al-Mizzi said: It was narrated by Abd Al-Rahman bin Ishaq Al-Madani on the authority of Muhammad bin Zaid, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi Umamah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abdullah bin Anis, and Abdullah bin Abi Umamah added. I said This is how it appears in the interpretation of Ibn Mardawayh and the Sahih of Ibn Hibban on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Ishaq, as our Sheikh mentioned, may God prolong his life.

Another hadith on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr on the cause of cursing one's parents. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Amr bin Abdullah Al-Awdi told us, Waki' told us on the authority of Mis'ar and Sufyan, on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Humayd bin Abd Al-Rahman, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, Sufyan traced it back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Mis'ar stopped it on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, he said: It is among the major sins for a man to curse his parents. They said: How does a man curse his parents? He said: A man curses a man's father, so he curses his father, and he curses his mother, so he curses his mother. Al-Bukhari narrated it on the authority of Ahmad bin Yunus, on the authority of Ibrahim bin Sa'd bin Ibrahim bin Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his uncle Humayd bin Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is among the major sins for a man to curse his parents. They said: How does a man curse his parents? He said: A man curses a man's father, so he curses his father, and he curses his mother, so he curses his mother. And Muslim narrated it in this way from The hadith of Sufyan, Shu'bah, and Yazid ibn al-Haad, all three of them on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim, with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a similar manner. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is authentic. It is proven in Sahih that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Insulting a Muslim is an act of immorality, and fighting him is an act of disbelief.

Another hadith on this subject Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Ibrahim Duha'im told us, Amr ibn Abi Salamah told us, Zuhair ibn Muhammad told us, on the authority of al-Ala ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Among the greatest major sins are the honor of a Muslim, and slander and insult. This is how this hadith was narrated. Abu Dawud included it in the Book of Etiquette in his Sunan on the authority of Ja'far ibn Musafir, on the authority of Amr ibn Abi Salamah, on the authority of Zuhair ibn Muhammad, on the authority of al-Ala, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Among the greatest major sins is for a person to slander a Muslim unjustly, and among the major sins are slander and insult. Ibn Mardawayh also narrated it on the authority of Abd God ibn al-Ala ibn Zubar, on the authority of al-Ala, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he mentioned something similar.

Another hadith about combining prayers without an excuse Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Naim bin Hammad told us, Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us on the authority of his father, on the authority of Hanash, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Whoever combines two prayers without an excuse has committed a major sin. This is how Abu Isa al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Abu Salamah Yahya bin Khalaf on the authority of Mu'tamir bin Sulayman, then he said: Hanash is Abu Ali al-Rahbi, who is Husayn bin Qays, and he is weak according to the people of hadith. Ahmad and others declared him weak. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin al-Sabah told us, Ismail bin Ulayyah told us on the authority of Khalid al-Hadha', on the authority of Hamid bin Hilal, on the authority of Abu Qatadah, meaning al-Adawi, who said: The letter of Umar was read to us: Among the major sins are combining prayers - meaning without an excuse - and fleeing from battle, and plunder. This is a sound chain of transmission. The point is that if the threat is for someone who combines two prayers, such as Dhuhr and Asr, by bringing them forward or delaying them, and also Maghrib and Isha, which are usually combined for one of the legitimate reasons, then if someone does it without any of those reasons, he has committed a major sin, so what do you think about abandoning the prayer altogether? For this reason, Muslim narrated in his Sahih on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, Between the servant and polytheism is abandoning the prayer. And in the Sunan, it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said, The covenant between us and them is the prayer, whoever abandons it has disbelieved. And he said, Whoever abandons the Asr prayer, his deeds have been nullified. And he said, Whoever misses the Asr prayer, it is as if he has lost his family and his wealth.

Another hadith in which there is despair of the mercy of God and security from the plan of God. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Amr bin Abi Asim al-Nabil narrated to us, my father narrated to us, Shabib bin Bishr narrated to us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was reclining when a man entered upon him and said: What are the major sins? He said: Associating partners with God, despairing of the mercy of God, despondency of the mercy of God, and security from the plan of God, and this is the greatest of the major sins. Al-Bazzar narrated it on the authority of Abdullah bin Ishaq al-Attar, on the authority of Abi Asim al-Nabil, on the authority of Shabib bin Bishr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that a man said: O Messenger of God, what are the major sins? He said: Associating partners with God, despairing of the mercy of God, and despondency of the mercy of God, the Almighty and Majestic. There is a problem with its chain of transmission, and it is most likely that it is a mursal, as something similar to that was narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud. Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told us, Hisham told us, Mutraf told us, on the authority of Wabrah ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Abu al-Tayyal, who said: Ibn Mas'ud said: The greatest of the major sins is associating partners with God, despairing of the mercy of God, losing hope in the mercy of God, and feeling secure from the plan of God. And thus he narrated it from the hadith of al-A'mash and Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Wabrah, on the authority of Abu al-Tayyal, on the authority of Abdullah, on his authority. Then he narrated it from several chains of transmission on the authority of Abu al-Tayyal, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, and it is sound to him without a doubt.

Another hadith contains bad thoughts about God. Ibn Mardawayh said: Muhammad ibn Ibrahim ibn Bandar told us, Abu Hatim Bakr ibn Abdun told us, Muhammad ibn Muhajir told us, Abu Hudhayfah al-Bukhari told us on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ajan, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The greatest of the major sins is bad thoughts about God Almighty. This is a very strange hadith.

Another hadith in which there is the Arabization after the migration has been mentioned previously in the narration of Amr ibn Abi Salamah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet. Ibn Mardawayh said: Sulayman ibn Ahmad told us, Ahmad ibn Rushdin told us, Amr ibn Khalid al-Harrani told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sahl ibn Abi Hathmah, on the authority of his father, who said: I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "The major sins are seven. Will you not ask me about them? Associating partners with God, killing a soul, fleeing on the day of battle, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, and Arabization after the migration." There is a problem with its chain of transmission, and its chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet is a grave mistake. The correct version is what Ibn Jarir narrated: Tamim ibn al-Muntasir told us, Yazid told us, Muhammad ibn Ishaq told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sahl ibn Abi Hathmah, on the authority of his father, who said: I was in this mosque, the mosque of Kufa, and Ali, may God be pleased with him, was addressing the people on the pulpit, saying: O people, the major sins are seven. The people listened, so he repeated it three times. Times, then he said: Why don't you ask me about it? They said: O Commander of the Faithful, what are they? He said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, fleeing on the day of battle, and becoming an Arab after the migration. So I said to my father: O father, how did becoming an Arab after the migration reach here? He said: O my son, what is greater than a man migrating until his arrow falls into the spoils and jihad becomes obligatory upon him, then that is removed from his neck, so he returns to being an Arab as he was.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Hashim told us, Abu Muawiyah told us, meaning Shaiban, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Hilal bin Yasaf, on the authority of Salamah bin Qais al-Ashja'i, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said during the Farewell Pilgrimage: "There are only four: Do not associate anything with God, do not kill the soul that God has forbidden except by right, do not commit adultery, and do not steal." He said: I am not more stingy with them than I was when I heard them from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then Ahmad also narrated it, as did al-Nasa'i and Ibn Mardawayh from the hadith of Mansur with a similar chain of transmission.

Another hadith was presented from the narration of Omar bin Al-Mughira on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Harm in a will is one of the major sins. The correct version is what was narrated by others on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Ibn Abi Hatim said: This is the correct version on the authority of Ibn Abbas from his statement.

Another hadith on this subject Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Ahmad ibn Abd al-Rahman told us, Ibad ibn Ibad told us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn al-Zubayr, on the authority of al-Qasim, on the authority of Abu Umamah, that some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned the major sins while he was reclining, and they said: Associating partners with God, consuming the wealth of an orphan, fleeing from battle, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, disobeying one's parents, telling lies, embezzlement, magic, and consuming usury. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Where do you place 'those who exchange the covenant of God and their oaths for a small price' until the end of the verse. There is weakness in its chain of transmission, but it is good.

Mentioning the sayings of the predecessors on this

What was narrated from Omar and Ali may God be pleased with them was mentioned in the aforementioned hadiths. Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Al-Hasan, that some people asked Abdullah bin Amr in Egypt, and they said: We see things in the Book of God Almighty that He commanded to be acted upon but not acted upon. So we wanted to meet the Commander of the Faithful about that, so he came and they came with him, and Omar may God be pleased with him met him and said: When did you come? He said: Since such and such. He said: With permission, did you come? He said: I do not know how he responded to him. He said: O Commander of the Faithful, some people met me in Egypt and said: We see things in the Book of God that He commanded to be acted upon but not acted upon. They wanted to meet you about that. He said: Gather them for me. He said: So I gathered them for him. Ibn Awn said: I think he said: In a hall. So he took the closest of them and said: I ask you by God and by the right of Islam upon you, have you recited the entire Qur'an? He said: Yes. He said: Have you counted it in your mind? He said: By God, no. He said: If he had said: Yes, he would have opposed him. He said: Have you counted it in your sight? Have you counted it in your speech? Have you counted it in your command? Then he followed them until he reached the last of them. He said: May Umar's mother be bereaved! Do you charge him to make people adhere to the Book of God? Our Lord knows that we will have sins. He said: And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins [Al-Bukhari and Muslim]. Then he said: Did the people of Madinah know? Or he said: Did anyone know what you have done? They said: No. He said: If they knew, I would have admonished you. The chain of transmission is good and the text is good, even though it is narrated by Al-Hasan from Umar, and there is an interruption in it, except that something like this is well-known, so its being well-known is sufficient. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abu Ahmad - meaning Al-Zubayri - told us, Ali ibn Salih told us, on the authority of Uthman ibn Al-Mughira, on the authority of Malik ibn Juwayn, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him. He said: The major sins are associating partners with God, killing a soul, consuming the wealth of an orphan, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, fleeing from battle, becoming Arab after emigrating, practicing magic, disobeying one's parents, consuming usury, separating from the group, and breaking a deal. It was previously reported from Ibn Masoud that he said: The greatest major sins are associating partners with God, despairing of God's mercy, losing hope in God's mercy, and feeling secure from the deception of God, the Almighty and Majestic. Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq and Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Alqamah, both of them on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to thirty verses of it, and from the hadith of Sufyan Al-Thawri and Shu'bah on the authority of Asim bin Abi Al-Najud, on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to thirty verses of it, then he recited If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Mundhir bin Shadhan told us, Ya'la bin Ubaid told us, Salih bin Hayyan told us on the authority of Ibn Buraidah, on the authority of his father, he said: The greatest major sins are associating partners with God, disobeying parents, preventing excess water after drinking, and preventing a stallion from approaching except for a fee.

In the two Sahihs, it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Extra water should not be withheld in order to withhold grass thereby. And in both of them it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "There are three whom God will not look at on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they will have a painful punishment: a man who has extra water in the desert and withholds it from a traveler." And he mentioned the rest of the hadith. And in the Musnad of Imam Ahmad, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, Whoever withholds extra water and extra grass, God will withhold His extra water from him on the Day of Resurrection. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Husayn bin Muhammad bin Shanbah Al-Wasiti told us, Abu Ahmad told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim, on the authority of Masruq, on the authority of Aisha, who said: What is taken from women of the major sins, Ibn Abi Hatim said: He means the words of God Almighty: On condition that they do not associate anything with God and do not steal the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, Ziyad bin Mukhraq told us, on the authority of Mu'awiyah bin Qurrah, who said: We came to Anas bin Malik and among what he told us was: I have not seen anything like what has reached us from our Lord Almighty, for which we did not give up all our family and wealth. Then he was silent for a while and then said: By God, when our Lord has charged us with something lighter than that, He has overlooked for us what is less than the major sins, so what do we have to do with them? And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden the verse.

Ibn Abbas's sayings about that

Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman from his father, from Tawus, who said: The major sins were mentioned to Ibn Abbas and they said: They are seven, so he said: They are more than seven and seven, he said: I do not know how many times he said it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Qubaysah told us, Sufyan told us, from Layth, from Tawus, who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: What are the seven major sins? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven. Ibn Jarir narrated it from Ibn Hamid, from Jarir, from Layth, from Tawus, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: What do you think of the seven major sins that God mentioned? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven. Abd Al-Razzaq said: Mu'ammarr told us, from Tawus, from his father, who said: It was said to Ibn Abbas: Are the major sins seven? He said: They are closer to seventy, and Abu Al-Aaliyah Al-Riyahi, may God have mercy on him, said the same. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us, on the authority of Qays ibn Sa'd, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: A man said to Ibn Abbas: How many major sins are there? Seven? He said: They are closer to seven hundred than seven, except that there is no major sin with seeking forgiveness, and no minor sin with persistence. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way from the hadith of Shibl. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, he said: Major sins are every sin that God seals with Hell, wrath, curse, or punishment. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali ibn Harb al-Mawsili told us, Ibn Fadil told us, Shabib told us on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Major sins are everything for which God has promised Hell, and Sa'id ibn Jubayr and al-Hasan al-Basri said this. Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, Ayoub told us on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told that Ibn Abbas used to say: Everything that God has forbidden is a major sin, and I mentioned the glance, and he said: It is a glance. He also said: Ahmad ibn Hazim told us, Abu Naim told us, Abdullah ibn Ma'dan told us on the authority of Abu al-Walid, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas about the major sins, and he said: Everything in which God is disobeyed is a major sin.

Sayings of the followers

Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Muhammad, who said: I asked Ubaydah about the major sins, and he said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden without right, fleeing on the day of battle, consuming the wealth of an orphan without right, consuming usury, and slander. He said: And they say: A Bedouin woman after the migration. Ibn Awn said: So I said to Muhammad: What about magic? He said: Slander brings about much evil. Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Ubaid al-Maharibi told me, Abu al-Ahwas Salam bin Salim told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umair, who said: The major sins are seven, and there is no major sin among them except that there is a verse in the Book of God about it.

Among them is associating partners with God: And whoever associates partners with God, it is as if he had fallen from the sky and was snatched by birds or the wind had blown him down 3:100. And Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies 3:100. And Those who consume interest cannot stand [on the Day of Resurrection] except as one stands who is being beaten by Satan into insanity 3:100. And Those who accuse chaste, unaware, believing women 3:100. And fleeing from battle O you who believe! When you meet those who disbelieve in battle 3:100. And becoming Arab after the migration: Indeed, those who turn back after guidance has become clear to them 3:100. And killing a believer: And whoever kills a believer intentionally, his recompense is Hell, wherein he will abide eternally 3:100. And Ibn Abi Hatim also narrated it in the hadith of Abu Ishaq on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair said something similar. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata' meaning Ibn Abi Rabah, who said: The major sins are seven: killing a soul, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, giving false witness, disobeying parents, and fleeing from battle. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Uthman ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Jarir told us on the authority of Mughirah, who said: It was said: Cursing Abu Bakr and Umar may God be pleased with them is one of the major sins. I said: A group of scholars have said that whoever curses the Companions is an unbeliever, and this is a narration on the authority of Malik ibn Anas may God have mercy on him. Muhammad ibn Sirin said: I do not think that anyone would disparage Abu Bakr and Umar while he loves the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him). Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Yunus told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Abdullah bin Ayyash told me, Zaid bin Aslam said regarding the statement of God the Almighty, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, among the major sins are: associating partners with God, disbelieving in the signs of God and His messengers, magic, killing children, and calling upon God to have a son or a female companion - and similar actions and words that are not compatible with any action. As for every sin that can be compatible with a religion and with which an action is accepted, God forgives evil deeds with good ones. Ibn Jarir said: Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us on the authority of Qatada, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse: God has only promised forgiveness to those who avoid the major sins. He mentioned to us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Avoid the major sins, be steadfast, and be glad. Ibn Mardawayh narrated through various chains of transmission on the authority of Anas and Jabir, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, My intercession is for the people of major sins among my nation, but there is weakness in its chain of transmission through all its chains of transmission, except what Abd al-Razzaq narrated: Mu'ammarr told us on the authority of Thabit, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, My intercession is for the people of major sins among my nation, for it is a sound chain of transmission

according to the criteria of the two sheikhs. Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi narrated it alone from this source on the authority of Abbas Al-Anbari, on the authority of Abdul Razzaq, then he said: This is a good and authentic hadith, and in the Sahih there is a witness to its meaning, which is the saying of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) after mentioning intercession: Do you think it is for the believing, righteous people? No, but it is for the sinful, polluted ones. The scholars of Usul and Fir' differed regarding the definition of a major sin. Some said: It is what is subject to a hadd in the Shari'ah, and some said: It is what is subject to a specific warning from the Qur'an and Sunnah, and other things were said. Abu Al-Qasim Abdul Karim bin Muhammad Al-Rafi'i said in his famous book Al-Sharh Al-Kabeer in the Book of Testimonies therein: Then the Companions may God be pleased with them and those who came after them differed regarding major sins and the difference between them and minor sins. Some of the Companions have different interpretations of a major sin: One of them is that it is a sin that requires a hadd. The second is that it is a sin for which the perpetrator is subject to a severe warning according to a text in the Qur'an or Sunnah, and this is what is most often found for them, and I am more inclined towards the first, but the second is more in line with what they mentioned when interpreting major sins. The third Imam Al-Haramayn said in Al-Irshad and other books: Every crime that indicates the perpetrator's lack of concern for religion and weak religious commitment invalidates justice. Fourth Judge Abu Saeed Al-Harawi mentioned that a major sin is every act that the Book has explicitly prohibited and every sin that requires a punishment in its type, such as killing or otherwise, and leaving every obligatory duty that is commanded immediately and lying in testimony, narration and oath. This is what they mentioned for the sake of precision. Then he said: Judge Al-Ruwayani separated and said: The major sins are seven: killing a soul without right, adultery, sodomy, drinking alcohol, stealing, taking money by force, and slander. In Al-Shamel, he added to the seven mentioned: false testimony, and the author of Al-Uddah added to them: consuming usury, breaking the fast in Ramadan without an excuse, a false oath, severing family ties, disobeying parents, fleeing from battle, consuming an orphan's money, betrayal in measuring and weighing, performing the prayer before its time, and delaying it after its time without an excuse, striking a Muslim without right, lying about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, intentionally, insulting his companions, withholding testimony without an excuse, taking a bribe, leading between men and women, slandering the ruler, and withholding zakat. Abandoning enjoining good and forbidding evil when able to do so, forgetting the Qur'an after learning it, burning an animal with fire, a woman refusing to have intercourse with her husband without reason, despairing of God's mercy, feeling secure from God's deception, and it is said: slandering the people of knowledge and the bearers of the Qur'an. Among the major sins are: zihar, eating pork and dead meat except out of necessity. Then Al-Rafi'i said: There is room for hesitation in some of these characteristics. I said: People have written books on major sins, including what our Sheikh, the hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Dhahabi, collected, which amounted to about seventy major sins. If it is said: A major sin is one for which the Lawgiver has threatened Hell specifically, as Ibn Abbas and others said, and what follows that, then a great deal of it has been collected. If it is said: everything that God has forbidden, then it is very much, and God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

Falsehood: What is not right, and its aspects are many, and among the falsehood are the sales that the Shari'ah has forbidden. Trade in the language is an expression of opposition, and this exception is disconnected: that is, but trade by mutual consent is permissible between you, or but trade by mutual consent is permissible for you. And His saying 29- by mutual consent is an attribute of trade: that is, occurring by mutual consent, and God Almighty only specified trade and not other types of exchanges because it is the most and most common of them, and trade is applied to the reward of deeds from God in a metaphorical manner, and from this His saying, the Most High: Shall I guide you to a trade that will save you from a painful punishment? And His saying, They hope for a trade that will never fail.

Scholars differed regarding mutual consent. A group said: Its completion is its obligation by the separation of bodies after the contract of sale, or by one of them saying to the other: Choose you both, in the authentic hadith: "The two parties to a transaction have the option of resolving the dispute as long as they have not separated or one of them says to the other: Choose." This is the view of a group of the Companions and Followers, and it was also said by Al-Shafi'i, Al-Thawri, Al-Awza'i, Al-Layth, Ibn 'Uyaynah, Ishaq, and others. Malik and Abu Hanifa said: The completion of the sale is to conclude the sale verbally, thus removing the option. They responded to the hadith with something that is useless. Trade has been read in the nominative case as if it were complete, and trade in the accusative case as if it were incomplete. His statement: And do not kill yourselves means: O Muslims, do not kill one another except for a reason proven by the Shari'ah, or do not kill yourselves by committing sins, or what is meant is the prohibition of a person killing himself in reality. There is nothing wrong with interpreting the verse to mean all the meanings. What indicates this is Amr ibn al-Aas's argument with it when he did not wash himself with cold water when he became ritually impure during the Battle of Dhat al-Salasil. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, decided to argue with him, and it is in Musnad Ahmad, Sunan Abi Dawud, and others.

29- The Almighty said: O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly, by what is forbidden, meaning: by usury, gambling, usurpation, theft, betrayal and the like, and it was said: it is corrupt contracts except that it be trade, the people of Kufa read trade in the accusative case as the predicate of was, meaning: except that the money is trade, and the others read it in the nominative case, meaning: except that trade takes place, by mutual consent, meaning with the good will of each one of you.

It was said: It is that each of the two contracting parties approves the other after the sale, so it is binding, otherwise they have the option unless they separate, as Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi informed us, Zahir bin Ahmad informed us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi informed us, Abu Musab informed us, Malik informed us, Nafi informed us, Abdullah bin Umar informed us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The two contracting parties, each of them has the option over the other, unless they separate, except for the sale of the option.

"And do not kill yourselves," Abu Ubaidah said: meaning do not destroy yourself, as He said: And do not throw yourselves with your own hands into destruction Al-Baqarah 2:195 and: Do not kill yourselves by consuming wealth unjustly.

It was said: He meant by it the killing of a Muslim himself. Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad al-Khal told us, Abu al-Abbas al-Asam told us, al-Rabi' told us, al-Shafi'i told us, Ibn Uyyaynah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, on the authority of Thabit bin al-Dahhak, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever kills himself with something in this world will be punished with it on the Day of Resurrection.

Abu al-Fadl Ziyad ibn Muhammad al-Hanafi told us, Abu Muadh Abd al-Rahman al-Muzani told us, Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Hammad al-Qadi told us, Abu Musa al-Zaman told us, Wahb ibn Jarir told us, my father told us, he said, I heard al-Hasan tell us, Jundub ibn Abdullah, may God be pleased with him, told us, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man came out from among those who came before you, an Arab, and he was alarmed by him, so he took out a knife and cut his hand with it, and the blood did not stop until he died. Then God Almighty said: My servant rushed to Me with his life, so I forbade him Paradise."

Al-Hasan said: Do not kill yourselves, meaning: your brothers, that is: do not kill one another, for God is ever Merciful to you. Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Sulayman bin Harb, I told Shu'bah, on the authority of Ali bin Mudrik, who said: I heard Abu Zur'ah bin Amr bin Jarir, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me during the Farewell Pilgrimage: Listen to the people, then he said: Do not return after me as disbelievers, striking one another's necks."

Tafsir al-Baidawi

29 O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly by means not permitted by the Shari'ah, such as usurpation, usury, and gambling. Except that it be trade by mutual consent is an intermittent exception, meaning, but trade by mutual consent is not prohibited, or intend that it be trade. And by mutual consent is an attribute of trade, meaning trade that results from the mutual consent of the parties involved, and trade is designated as one of the ways in which it is permissible to consume the wealth of others, because it is more common and easier for people of integrity, and it is possible that it is intended to mean transfer in general. It was said: What is meant by the prohibition is the prevention of spending money on what God does not approve of, and by trade is spending it on what He approves. The Kufians read trade in the accusative case based on the defective verb kana and the omission of the name, meaning, except that the trade or the direction is trade. And do not kill yourselves by cheapening as the ignorant people of India do, or by throwing oneself into destruction. It is supported by what was narrated: that Amr ibn al-Aas interpreted tayammum as fear of the cold, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not denounce him for it, or for committing what leads to killing it. Or for committing what humiliates and destroys it, for it is the real killing of the soul. It was said that what is meant by souls is whoever is of their religion, for the believers are like one soul. He combined in the recommendation the preservation of the soul and wealth, which is its sibling in that it is the reason for its existence, preserving them until the souls are perfected and their virtues are fulfilled, out of compassion for them and mercy of perfection, which he indicated by his saying: Indeed, God is ever Merciful to you, meaning He commanded what He commanded and forbade what He forbade out of His excessive mercy upon you. It was said: Its meaning is that He was merciful to you, O nation of Muhammad, when He commanded the Children of Israel to kill souls and forbade you from doing so.

Surat al-Nisa 4:30

And whoever does that out of aggression and injustice - We will drive him into a Fire, and that, for Allah, is easy.

Surat al-Nisa 4:30

And whoever does that out of aggression and injustice - We will drive him into a Fire, and that, for God, is easy.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And whoever does that that is, what he has been forbidden in aggression exceeding what is permissible and wrongfully to emphasize We will drive him We will put him into a Fire in which he will burn and that, for God, is easy easy.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of his saying: And whoever does that in aggression.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: And whoever kills himself, meaning: And whoever kills his believing brother, aggressively and unjustly, We will cast him into the Fire.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: I said to Ata': What do you think of his statement, And whoever does that in aggression and injustice - We will drive him into a Fire, in all of that, or in his statement, And do not kill yourselves? He said: Rather, in his statement, And do not kill yourselves.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: And whoever does what I have forbidden him from the beginning of this Surah until His saying: And whoever does that, from marrying someone whose marriage is forbidden, transgressing his limits, unjustly consuming the wealth of orphans, and unjustly killing a soul whose killing is forbidden without right.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Whoever unjustly consumes the property of his Muslim brother without his consent, and unjustly kills his believing brother, then We will cast him into the Fire.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement regarding this, in my opinion, is to say: Its meaning is: And whoever does what God has forbidden him, from His saying: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will (An-Nisa': 19) to His saying: And whoever does that, from marrying forbidden women, and preventing the forbidden woman from intercourse with her, and consuming wealth unjustly, and killing the forbidden woman who killed the believers, because all of that is something for which God has promised punishment to its people.

If someone says: What prevented you from making his statement that mean everything for which God threatened punishment from the beginning of the surah?

It was said: What prevented me from that is that each section of that was coupled with a threat up to His saying: For them We have prepared a painful punishment (An-Nisa': 18), and there is no mention of punishment after that for what God has forbidden in the verses that follow it up to His saying: Then We will cast him into a Fire. So his saying: And whoever does that - meaning what we said, which was not coupled with a threat, despite the consensus of all that God Almighty has threatened for all of that - is more appropriate than meaning what preceded in which the threat was coupled with the prohibition before that.

As for his saying: aggression, he means by it transgression of what God has permitted him to do, to what He has forbidden him to do, and injustice, meaning: doing that without God's permission, and doing what God has forbidden him to do. And his saying: Then We will cast him into a Fire, he says: We will bring him into a Fire in which he will be cast into and burned, and that is easy for God, meaning: casting the one who did that into the Fire and burning him in it, was easy and simple for God, because he is not able to refrain from what his Lord intended for him of evil. Rather, fulfilling a threat is difficult for the one who is threatened, for the one who, if he tries to fulfill it, is able to refrain from it. As for the one who is in the grip of his promise, it is easy for him to carry out His judgment upon him, and to fulfill His threat to him, and the matter that He intended for him is not difficult for him.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

That is an allusion to killing, because it is the closest masculine word. Ata' said: It was said: It refers to eating money unjustly and killing a soul, because the prohibition of them came in a consistent, narrated manner, then the threat was mentioned according to the prohibition. It was said: It is general for everything that was prohibited from the issues, from the beginning of the surah to the Almighty's saying: And whoever does that Al-Tabari said: That refers to what was prohibited from the last threat, which is the Almighty's saying: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you to inherit women by compulsion because everything that was prohibited from the beginning of the surah was linked to it and worshipped, except for His saying: O you who have believed, it is not lawful for you because there is no threat after it except His saying: And whoever does that out of aggression and aggression is exceeding the limit. Injustice is putting something in the wrong place. It was mentioned earlier and the threat was restricted by mentioning aggression and injustice to exclude from it the act of forgetfulness and error. He mentioned aggression and injustice despite the similarity of their meanings due to the difference in their words, and that is good in speech as he said:

And he found her words to be lies and falsehoods.

And the goodness of the conjunction is due to the difference in the two words. It is said: ba'dan disappearance and smash crushing. From this is the saying of Jacob: I only complain of my suffering and my grief to God (Yusuf 12:86). So this is good due to the difference in the wording. And nasihi means we touch him with its heat. And we have explained the meaning of combining these verses and the hadith of Abu Sa'id al-Khudri about the disobedient and the people of major sins for those upon whom the threat is carried out. So there is no meaning in repeating that. And al-A'mash and al-Nakha'i read nasihi with the opening of the nun, and that it is transferred from salli naran, meaning I burned it. And in the hadith, a roasted sheep. And whoever closes the nun is transferred with the hamza like ta'amt and ta'amt.

Mentioning the sayings of the predecessors on this

What was narrated from Omar and Ali may God be pleased with them was mentioned in the aforementioned hadiths. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Al-Hasan, that some people asked Abdullah bin Amr in Egypt, and they said: We see things in the Book of God Almighty that He commanded to be acted upon but not acted upon. So we wanted to meet the Commander of the Faithful about that, so he came and they came with him, and Omar may God be pleased with him met him and said: When did you come? He said: Since such and such. He said: With permission, did you come? He said: I do not know how he responded to him. He said: O Commander of the Faithful, some people met me in Egypt and said: We see things in the Book of God that He commanded to be acted upon but not acted upon. They wanted to meet you about that. He said: Gather them for me. He said: So I gathered them for him. Ibn Awn said: I think he said: In a hall. So he took the closest of them and said: I ask you by God and by the right of Islam upon you, have you recited the entire Qur'an? He said: Yes. He said: Have you counted it in your mind? He said: By God, no. He said: If he had said: Yes, he would have opposed him. He said: Have you counted it in your sight? Have you counted it in your speech? Have you counted it in your command? Then he followed them until he reached the last of them. He said: May Umar's mother be bereaved! Do you charge him to make people adhere to the Book of God? Our Lord knows that we will have sins. He said: And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins [Al-Bukhari and Muslim]. Then he said: Did the people of Madinah know? Or he said: Did anyone know what you have done? They said: No. He said: If they knew, I would have admonished you. The chain of transmission is good and the text is good, even though it is narrated by Al-Hasan from Umar, and there is an interruption in it, except that something like this is well-known, so its being well-known is sufficient. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abu Ahmad - meaning Al-Zubayri - told us, Ali ibn Salih told us, on the authority of Uthman ibn Al-Mughira, on the authority of Malik ibn Juwayn, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him. He said: The major sins are associating partners with God, killing a soul, consuming the wealth of an orphan, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, fleeing from battle, becoming Arab after emigrating, practicing magic, disobeying one's parents, consuming usury, separating from the group, and breaking a deal. It was previously reported from Ibn Mas'ud that he said: The greatest major sins are associating partners with God, despairing of God's mercy, losing hope in God's mercy, and feeling secure from the deception of God, the Almighty and Majestic. Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq and Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Alqamah, both of them on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to thirty verses of it, and from the hadith of Sufyan Al-Thawri and Shu'bah on the authority of Asim bin Abi Al-Najud, on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to thirty verses of it, then he recited If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Mundhir bin Shadhan told us, Ya'la bin Ubaid told us, Salih bin Hayyan told us on the authority of Ibn Buraidah, on the authority of his father, he said: The greatest major sins are associating partners with God, disobeying parents, preventing excess water after drinking, and preventing a stallion from approaching except for a fee.

In the two Sahihs, it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Extra water should not be withheld in order to withhold grass thereby. And in both of them it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "There are three whom God will not look at on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they will have a painful punishment: a man who has extra water in the desert and withholds it from a traveler." And he mentioned the rest of the hadith. And in the Musnad of Imam Ahmad, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, Whoever withholds extra water and extra grass, God will withhold His extra water from him on the Day of Resurrection. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Husayn bin Muhammad bin Shanbah Al-Wasiti told us, Abu Ahmad told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim, on the authority of Masruq, on the authority of Aisha, who said: What is taken from women of the major sins, Ibn Abi Hatim said: He means the words of God Almighty: On condition that they do not associate anything with God and do not steal the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, Ziyad bin Mukhraq told us, on the authority of Mu'awiyah bin Qurrah, who said: We came to Anas bin Malik and among what he told us was: I have not seen anything like what has reached us from our Lord Almighty, for which we did not give up all our family and wealth. Then he was silent for a while and then said: By God, when our Lord has charged us with something lighter than that, He has overlooked for us what is less than the major sins, so what do we have to do with them? And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden the verse.

And whoever does that out of aggression and injustice - We will drive him into a Fire, and that, for Allah, is easy.

Ibn Abbas's sayings about that

Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman from his father, from Tawus, who said: The major sins were mentioned to Ibn Abbas and they said: They are seven, so he said: They are more than seven and seven, he said: I do not know how many times he said it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Qubaysah told us, Sufyan told us, from Layth, from Tawus, who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: What are the seven major sins? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven. Ibn Jarir narrated it from Ibn Hamid, from Jarir, from Layth, from Tawus, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: What do you think of the seven major sins that God mentioned? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven. Abd Al-Razzaq said: Mu'ammarr told us, from Tawus, from his father, who said: It was said to Ibn Abbas: Are the major sins seven? He said: They are closer to seventy, and Abu Al-Aaliyah Al-Riyahi, may God have mercy on him, said the same. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us, on the authority of Qays ibn Sa'd, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: A man said to Ibn Abbas: How many major sins are there? Seven? He said: They are closer to seven hundred than seven, except that there is no major sin with seeking forgiveness, and no minor sin with persistence. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way from the hadith of Shibl. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, he said: Major sins are every sin that God seals with Hell, wrath, curse, or punishment. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali ibn Harb al-Mawsili told us, Ibn Fadil told us, Shabib told us on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Major sins are everything for which God has promised Hell, and Sa'id ibn Jubayr and al-Hasan al-Basri said this. Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, Ayoub told us on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told that Ibn Abbas used to say: Everything that God has forbidden is a major sin, and I mentioned the glance, and he said: It is a glance. He also said: Ahmad ibn Hazim told us, Abu Naim told us, Abdullah ibn Ma'dan told us on the authority of Abu al-Walid, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas about the major sins, and he said: Everything in which God is disobeyed is a major sin.

Sayings of the followers

Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Muhammad, who said: I asked Ubaydah about the major sins, and he said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden without right, fleeing on the day of battle, consuming the wealth of an orphan without right, consuming usury, and slander. He said: And they say: A Bedouin woman after the migration. Ibn Awn said: So I said to Muhammad: What about magic? He said: Slander brings about much evil. Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Ubaid al-Maharibi told me, Abu al-Ahwas Salam bin Salim told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umair, who said: The major sins are seven, and there is no major sin among them except that there is a verse in the Book of God about it. Among them is associating partners with God: And whoever associates partners with God, it is as if he had fallen from the sky and was snatched by birds or the wind had blown him down 3:100. And Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies 3:100. And Those who consume interest cannot stand [on the Day of Resurrection] except as one stands who is being beaten by Satan into insanity 3:100. And Those who accuse chaste, unaware, believing women 3:100. And fleeing from battle O you who believe! When you meet those who disbelieve in battle 3:100. And becoming Arab after the migration: Indeed, those who turn back after guidance has become clear to them 3:100. And killing a believer: And whoever kills a believer intentionally, his recompense is Hell, wherein he will abide eternally 3:100. And Ibn Abi Hatim also narrated it in the hadith of Abu Ishaq on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair said something similar. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata' meaning Ibn Abi Rabah, who said: The major sins are seven: killing a soul, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, giving false witness, disobeying parents, and fleeing from battle. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Uthman ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Jarir told us on the authority of Mughirah, who said: It was said: Cursing Abu Bakr and Umar may God be pleased with them is one of the major sins. I said: A group of scholars have said that whoever curses the Companions is an unbeliever, and this is a narration on the authority of Malik ibn Anas may God have mercy on him. Muhammad ibn Sirin said: I do not think that anyone would disparage Abu Bakr and Umar while he loves the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him). Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Yunus told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Abdullah bin Ayyash told us, Zaid bin Aslam said regarding the statement of God the Almighty, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, among the major sins are: associating partners with God, disbelieving in the signs of God and His messengers, magic, killing children, and calling upon God to have a son or a female companion - and similar actions and words that are not compatible with any action. As for every sin that can be compatible with a religion and with which an action is accepted, God forgives evil deeds with good ones. Ibn Jarir said: Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us on the authority of Qatada, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse: God has only promised forgiveness to those who avoid the major sins. He mentioned to us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Avoid the major sins, be steadfast, and be glad. Ibn Mardawayh narrated through various chains of transmission on the authority of Anas and Jabir, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, My intercession is for the people of major sins among my nation, but there is weakness in its chain of transmission through all its chains of transmission, except what Abd al-Razzaq narrated: Muammar told us on the authority of Thabit, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, My intercession is for the people of major sins among my nation, for it is a sound chain of transmission according to the criteria of the two sheikhs. Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi narrated it alone from this source on the authority of Abbas Al-Anbari, on the authority of Abdul Razzaq, then he said: This is a good and authentic hadith, and in the Sahih there is a witness to its meaning, which is the saying of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) after mentioning intercession: Do you think it is for the believing, righteous people? No, but it is for the sinful, polluted ones. The scholars of Usul and Fir' differed regarding the definition of a major sin. Some said: It is what is subject to a hadd in the Shari'ah, and some said: It is what is subject to a specific warning from the Qur'an and Sunnah, and other things were said. Abu Al-Qasim Abdul Karim bin Muhammad Al-Rafi'i said in his famous book Al-Sharh Al-Kabeer in the Book of Testimonies therein: Then the Companions may God be pleased with them and those who came after them differed regarding major sins and the difference between them and minor sins. Some of the Companions have different interpretations of a major sin: One of them is that it is a sin that requires a hadd. The second is that it is a sin for which the perpetrator is subject to a severe warning according to a text in the Qur'an or Sunnah, and this is what is most often found for them, and I am more inclined towards the first, but the second is more in line with what they mentioned when interpreting major sins. The third Imam Al-Haramayn said in Al-Irshad and other books: Every crime that indicates the perpetrator's lack of concern for religion and weak religious commitment invalidates justice. Fourth Judge Abu Saeed Al-Harawi mentioned that a major sin is every act that the Book has explicitly prohibited and every sin that requires a punishment in its type, such as killing or otherwise, and leaving every obligatory duty that is commanded immediately and lying in testimony, narration and oath. This is what they mentioned for the sake of precision. Then he said: Judge Al-Ruwayani separated and said: The major sins are seven: killing a soul without right, adultery, sodomy, drinking alcohol, stealing, taking money by force, and slander. In Al-Shamel, he added to the seven mentioned: false testimony, and the author of Al-Uddah added to them: consuming usury, breaking the fast in Ramadan without an excuse, a false oath, severing family ties, disobeying parents, fleeing from battle, consuming an orphan's money, betrayal in measuring and weighing, performing the prayer before its time, and delaying it after its time without an excuse, striking a Muslim without right, lying about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, intentionally, insulting his companions, withholding testimony without an excuse, taking a bribe, leading between men and women, slandering the ruler, and withholding zakat. Abandoning enjoining good and forbidding evil when able to do so, forgetting the Qur'an after learning it, burning an animal with fire, a woman refusing to have intercourse with her husband without reason, despairing of God's mercy, feeling secure from God's deception, and it is said: slandering the people of knowledge and the bearers of the Qur'an. Among the major sins are: zihar, eating pork and dead meat except out of necessity. Then Al-Rafi'i said: There is room for hesitation in some of these characteristics. I said: People have written books on major sins, including what our Sheikh, the hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Dhahabi, collected, which amounted to about seventy major sins. If it is said: A major sin is one for which the Lawgiver has threatened Hell specifically, as Ibn Abbas and others said, and what follows that, then a great deal of it has been collected. If it is said: everything that God has forbidden, then it is very much, and God knows best.

His saying 30- And whoever does that meaning: killing in particular or consuming people's money unjustly and killing out of aggression and injustice. It was said: It is a reference to everything that was forbidden in this Surah. Ibn Jarir said: It refers to what was forbidden from the last warning, which is the Almighty's saying: O you who believe, it is not lawful for you to inherit women against their will because everything that was forbidden from the beginning of the Surah was accompanied by a warning except for His saying: O you who believe, it is not lawful for you because there is no warning after it except His saying: And whoever does that out of aggression and injustice and aggression: exceeding the limit. Injustice: putting something in the wrong place. It was said: The meaning of aggression and injustice is one, and its repetition is for the purpose of emphasis as in the saying of the poet:

And he found her words to be lies and falsehoods.

The restriction on aggression and injustice excludes killing that was justified, such as retaliation, killing an apostate, and all other legal punishments, as well as killing by mistake. His statement, Then We will roast him is the answer to the condition: that is, We will cast him into a great fire. And that that is, roasting him in the fire, is easy for God because nothing is beyond His power. It was also read: We will roast him with the opening of the nun. This was narrated from Al-A'mash and Al-Nakha'i. According to this reading, it is derived from salā, and from it is a roasted sheep.

30- And whoever does that, meaning: what was previously mentioned of the forbidden things, out of aggression and injustice, so aggression is exceeding the limit, and injustice is putting something in the wrong place, We will drive him, We will put him in the Hereafter, into a Fire, in which he will be driven, and that is easy for God, easy.

30 And whoever does that refers to killing, or what was previously forbidden. Aggression and injustice is excessive transgression of the right and doing what is not deserved. It was said that he meant by aggression the transgression against others, and by injustice the injustice of the self by exposing it to punishment. Then we will cast him into a Fire We will put him into it. It was read with emphasis from salla, and with a fatha on the noon from salla, he prays. And from it is a prayed sheep, and he prays with the ya and the pronoun refers to God Almighty or to that from the point of view that he is the reason for the prayer. And that is easy for God there is no difficulty in it and no distraction from it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:31

If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden which are those for which there is a threat, such as murder, adultery, and theft. Ibn Abbas said: It is closer to seven hundred. We will remove from you your misdeeds minor sins through acts of obedience and admit you to a noble entrance with a damma or fatha on the meem, meaning an entrance or a place which is Paradise.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of the major sins that God Almighty promised His servants to avoid, as all their sins would be forgiven them.

Some of them said: The major sins that God Almighty said: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins, are what God forbade His servants from doing from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to the beginning of the thirtieth chapter of it.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat al-Nisa' to thirty of it.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Ibn Masoud, similarly.

Abu Hisham Al-Rafa'i told us, he said, Waki' told us, he said, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said, Alqamah told me, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: The major sins, from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to His saying, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden.

Al-Rafa'i told us, he said, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim, on the authority of Masruq, he said: Abdullah was asked about the major sins, he said: What is between the opening of Surat An-Nisa and the beginning of the thirtieth.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: The major sins are what is between the opening of Surat An-Nisa and thirty verses of it: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mughirah told us, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, that he said: The major sins, from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa to the thirtieth of it: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said: They used to think that the major sins were between the beginning of this Surah, Surat An-Nisa, to this place: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Adam Al-Asqalani told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Asim bin Abi Al-Najoud, on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, who said: The major sins, from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa to thirty verses of it. Then he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Misa'ar told us, on the authority of Asim bin Abi Al-Najoud, on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, he said, Abdullah said: The major sins are what is between the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' and the beginning of the thirtieth.

Others said: There are seven major sins.

Who said that?

Tamim bin Al-Muntasir told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Sahl bin Abi Hathmah, on the authority of his father, he said: I was in this mosque, the mosque of Kufa, and Ali was addressing the people from the pulpit, and he said: O people, the major sins are seven, and the people listened, so he repeated it three times, then he said: Will you not ask me about them? They said: O Commander of the Faithful, what are they? He said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, fleeing on the day of battle, and becoming an Arab after the migration. So I said to my father: O father, what is becoming an Arab after the migration? How did it come here? He said: O my son, what is greater than a man migrating, and when his share falls into the spoils and jihad becomes obligatory upon him, he removes that from his neck, and he returns to being an Arab as he was!!

Muhammad ibn Ubayd al-Maharibi told me, he said, Abu al-Ahwas Salam ibn Salim told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair, he said: The major sins are seven, and there is no major sin among them except that there is a verse in the Book of God about it: associating partners with God, among them is: And whoever associates partners with God, it is as if he had fallen from the sky (al-Hajj 22:31), and Those who consume the property of orphans unjustly, they are only consuming into their bellies fire (al-Nisa': 10), and Those who consume interest cannot stand [on the Day of Resurrection] except as one stands who is being beaten by Satan into insanity (al-Baqarah 2:275), and Those who accuse chaste, unaware, believing women (al-Nur: 23), and fleeing from battle: O you who believe, when you meet those who disbelieve advancing [in battle], do not turn your backs to them (al-Anfal 8:15), and becoming an Arab after the migration: Indeed, those who turn back after guidance has become clear to them (Muhammad 47:25), and killing a soul.

If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair al-Laythi, he said: The major sins are seven: associating partners with God: And whoever associates partners with God, it is as if he had fallen from the sky and was snatched by birds or the wind had blown him to a remote place. Killing a soul: And whoever kills a believer intentionally, his recompense is Hell. (An-Nisa': 93), consuming usury: Those who consume interest cannot stand [on the Day of Resurrection] except as one stands who is being beaten by Satan into insanity. (An-Nisa': 93), consuming the wealth of orphans: Indeed, those who devour the wealth of orphans unjustly. (An-Nisa': 93), slandering a chaste woman: Indeed, those who accuse chaste, unaware, believing women. (An-Nisa': 16), fleeing from battle: And whoever turns his back to them that Day, except to turn aside for battle or to withdraw to a company. (An-Anfal: 16), and the apostate Arab after his migration: Indeed, those who turn back after it has become clear to them... (An-Nisa': 93) Guidance verse.

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim narrated to us, he said: Ibn Ulayyah narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Muhammad, he said: I asked Ubaydah about the major sins, and he said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden unjustly, fleeing on the day of battle, consuming the wealth of an orphan unjustly, consuming usury, and slander. He said: And they say: A Bedouin woman after the migration. Ibn Awn said: So I said to Muhammad: What about magic? He said: Slander brings about much evil.

Abu Kuraib told us, Hisham told us, Mansour and Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah, that he said: The major sins are: associating partners with God, killing a soul unlawfully, consuming usury, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, consuming an orphan's wealth, fleeing from battle, and an Arab apostate after his migration.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah, something similar.

The reason for saying this article is:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Khalid told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Abi Hilal, on the authority of Naim Al-Mujmir, he said: Suhaib, the freed slave of

Al-Atwari, told me: "He heard from Abu Hurairah and Abu Saeed Al-Khudri saying: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us one day and said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul - three times - then he leaned over, and each one of us leaned over crying, not knowing what he had sworn about. Then he raised his head with a cheerful face, and he was more beloved to us than red camels, and he said: There is no servant who prays the five prayers, fasts Ramadan, pays zakat, and avoids the seven major sins, except that the gates of Paradise will be opened for him. Then it will be said: Enter in peace."

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata', he said: The major sins are seven: killing a person, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, giving false witness, disobeying one's parents, and fleeing on the day of battle.

Others said it is nine.

Who said that?

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ziyad ibn Mukhraq told us, on the authority of Taisalah ibn Mayyas, he said: I was with the Najdat, and I committed sins that I do not consider to be anything but major! So I met Ibn Umar and said: I have committed sins that I do not consider to be anything but major! He said: What are they? I said: Such and such. He said: It is not among the major sins - he said: for something that Taisalah did not name - he said: There are nine, and I will count them for you: Associating partners with God, killing a soul unlawfully, fleeing from battle, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan unjustly, committing heresy in the Sacred Mosque, practicing sorcery, and making one's parents cry out of disobedience. Ziyad said: And Taisalah said: When Ibn Umar saw my separation, he said: Do you fear that you will enter Hell? I said: Yes! He said: And would you like to enter Paradise? I said: Yes! He said: Are your parents alive? I said: My mother is with me. He said: By God, if you speak to her gently and feed her, you will enter Paradise as long as you avoid the causes.

Sulayman ibn Thabit al-Kharraz al-Wasiti narrated to us, he said: Salim ibn Salam narrated to us, he said: Ayoub ibn Utbah narrated to us, on the authority of Taisalah ibn Ali al-Nahdi, he said: I came to Ibn Umar while he was in the shade of an arak tree on the Day of Arafah, and he was pouring water on his head and face. I said: Tell me about the major sins? He said: There are nine. I said: What are they? He said: Associating partners with God, accusing a chaste woman of adultery. I said: Before killing? He said: Yes, despite it, killing a believing soul, fleeing from battle, sorcery, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, disobeying Muslim parents, and blaspheming against the Sacred House, your Qiblah, living and dead.

Sulayman ibn Thabit al-Kharraz told us, he said: Salim ibn Salam told us, he said: Ayoub ibn Utbah told us, on the authority of Yahya, on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair, on the authority of his father, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, similarly, except that he said: He began with the killing before the slander.

Others said: There are four.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam bin Salm told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Wabra, on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: The major sins are: associating partners with God, despairing of God's mercy, losing hope in God's mercy, and feeling secure from God's plan.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mutraf told us, on the authority of Wabra bin Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Abu al-Tayyil, he said, Abdullah bin Masoud said: The greatest of the major sins are: associating partners with God, despairing of the mercy of God, despondency of the mercy of God, and feeling secure from the plan of God.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Wabra bin Abd Al-Rahman, he said, Abdullah said: The major sins are: associating partners with God, despairing of God's mercy, feeling secure from God's plan, and losing hope in God's mercy.

Abu Kuraib and Abu al-Sa'ib told us, they said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, I heard Mutraf, on the authority of Wabra, on the authority of Abu al-Tayyil, he said, Abdullah said: The major sins are four: associating partners with God, despairing of God's mercy, losing hope in God's mercy, and feeling secure from God's plan.

Muhammad bin Amara Al-Asadi told me, he said, Abdullah told us, he said, Shaiban told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Wabra, on the authority of Abu Al-Tayyal, he said: I heard Ibn Masoud say: The greatest of the major sins is associating partners with God.

Muhammad bin Amara told me, he said, Abdullah told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Wabra, on the authority of Abu al-Tayfil, on the authority of Abdullah, something similar.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Wahb bin Jarir told me, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Abu Al-Tayyil, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: The major sins are four: associating partners with God, feeling secure from God's plan, despairing of God's mercy, and losing hope in God's mercy.

And he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Al-Qasim bin Abi Bazza, on the authority of Abu Al-Tayyal, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Al-Qasim Ibn Abi Bazza, on the authority of Abu Al-Tayyal, on the authority of Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud, something similar.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Abdul Aziz bin Rafi', on the authority of Abu al-Tayyib, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, who said: The major sins are four: associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden, feeling secure in God's plan, and despairing of God's mercy.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Al-Masoudi, on the authority of Furat Al-Qazzaz, on the authority of Abu Al-Tayyal, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: The major sins are: despairing of God's mercy, losing hope in God's mercy, feeling secure in God's plan, and associating partners with God.

Others said: Everything that God has forbidden is a major sin.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Major sins were mentioned in his presence, so he said: Everything that God has forbidden is a major sin.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Muhammad, he said: I was informed that Ibn Abbas used to say: Everything that God has forbidden is a major sin, and I mentioned the glance, he said: It is a glance.

Muhammad ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Mu'tamir told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Tawus, he said, a man said to Abdullah ibn Abbas: Tell me the seven major sins! He said, Ibn Abbas said: They are more than seven and seven, and I do not know how many times he said them.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Sulayman al-Taymi, on the authority of Tawus, he said: The major sins were mentioned to Ibn Abbas and they said: They are seven. He said: They are more than seven and seven! Sulayman said: I do not know how many times he said it.

Muhammad ibn Bashara told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far and Ibn Abi 'Uday told us, on the authority of 'Awf, he said: Abu al-'Aliyah al-Riyahi stood up from a circle I was in and said: Some people say: The major sins are seven, and I fear that the major sins are seventy or more than that.

Ali told us, Al-Walid told us, I heard Abu Amr telling, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That he was asked about the major sins: Are they seven? He said: They are closer to seventy.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Qais bin Saad, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, that a man said to Ibn Abbas: How many are the major sins? Are they seven? He said: Closer to seven hundred than to seven, except that there is no major sin with seeking forgiveness, and no minor sin with persistence.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Tawus, he said, a man came to Ibn Abbas and said: What do you think of the seven major sins that God mentioned? What are they? He said: They are up to seventy, closer to seven.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, he said: It was said to Ibn Abbas: Are there seven major sins? He said: They are closer to seventy.

Ahmad bin Hazim told us, Abu Naim told us, Abdullah bin Saadan told us, on the authority of Abu al-Walid, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas about major sins, and he said: Everything in which God is disobeyed is a major sin.

Others said: There are three.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, who said: The major sins are three: despairing of God's mercy, despondency of God's mercy, and feeling secure from God's deception.

Others said: Everything that is obligatory, and everything that God has threatened its people with Hell, is a major sin.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, he said: The major sins are every sin that God seals with fire, or wrath, or a curse, or punishment.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Hisham bin Hassan told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Was', he said, Saeed bin Jubair said: Every affirmative in the Qur'an is a major sin.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Mahzam al-Sha'ab, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Was' al-Azdi, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, who said: Every sin that God attributes to Hell is among the major sins.

Ali bin Sahl told us, Al-Walid bin Muslim told us, on the authority of Salim: He heard Al-Hasan say: Every affirmative action in the Qur'an is a major sin.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, he said: The obligatory sins.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, he said: The major sins are everything that requires God to make Hell obligatory for its people. And every action for which the prescribed punishment is carried out is among the major sins.

Abu Jaafar said: What we say about this is what is proven by the hadith from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that is what:

Ahmad ibn al-Walid al-Qurashi narrated to us, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far narrated to us, he said: Shu'bah narrated to us, he said: Ubaydullah ibn Abi Bakr narrated to me, he said: "I heard Anas ibn Malik say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned the major sins, or: he was asked about the major sins, and he said: associating partners with God, killing a soul, and disobeying one's parents. So he said: Shall I not inform you of the greatest of the major sins? He said: False statement, or he said: false testimony." Shu'bah said: I think he most likely said: false testimony.

Yahya bin Habib bin Arabi told us, Khalid bin Al-Harith told us, Shu'bah told us, Ubaidullah bin Abi Bakr told us, on the authority of Anas, "On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the major sins, he said: Associating partners with God, disobeying parents, killing a person, and speaking falsely."

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Yahya bin Katheer told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Ubayd God bin Abi Bakr, "On the authority of Anas, he said: The major sins were mentioned in the presence of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Associating partners with God, disobeying parents, and killing a soul. Shall I not inform you of the greatest of the major sins? False speech."

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Firas, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: The greatest of the major sins are: associating partners with God, disobeying one's parents - or: killing a soul - Shu'bah the doubter - and a false oath."

Abu Hisham Al-Rafai narrated, he said: Ubayd God bin Musa narrated, he said: Shaiban narrated, on the authority of Firas, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, he said: "A Bedouin came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: What are the major sins? He said: Associating partners with God. He said: Then what? He said: And disobeying parents. He said: Then what? He said: And a false oath." I said to Al-Sha'bi: What is a false oath? He said: It is when a person seizes a Muslim's property by swearing an oath in which he is lying.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ibn Abi Al-Sarri

Muhammad bin Al-Mutawakkil Al-Asqalani told us, he said, Yahya bin Saad told us, on the authority of Khalid bin Ma'dan, on the authority of Abu Ruhm, on the authority of Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever establishes the prayer, pays the zakat, fasts Ramadan, and avoids the major sins, Paradise is for him." It was said: What are the major sins? He said: Associating partners with God, disobeying one's parents, and fleeing on the day of battle."

Abbas bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Saad bin Abdul Hamid bin Jaafar told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Jaafar, on the authority of Ibn Abi Al-Zinad, on the authority of Musa bin Uqbah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Salman Al-Aghar, on the authority of his father Abu Abdullah Salman Al-Aghar, he said, Abu Ayoub Khalid bin Ayoub Al-Ansari Uqbi Badri said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'There is no servant who worships God, does not associate anything with Him, establishes prayer, pays zakat, fasts Ramadan, and avoids major sins, but that he will enter Paradise.' So they asked him: 'What are the major sins?' He said: 'Associating partners with God, fleeing from battle, and killing a soul.'"

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said: Ahmad ibn Abd al-Rahman narrated to us, he said: Ibad ibn Ibad narrated to us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn al-Zubayr, on the authority of al-Qasim, on the authority of Abu Umamah: "Some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, mentioned the major sins while he was reclining, and they said: Associating partners with God, consuming the wealth of an orphan, fleeing from battle, accusing a chaste woman of slander, disobeying one's parents, telling lies, embezzlement, magic, and consuming usury. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: So where do you place: 'Indeed, those who exchange the covenant of God and their oaths for a small price?' " to the end of the verse, (Al Imran 3:77).

Ubayd God ibn Muhammad al-Faryabi told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Muawiyah, on the authority of Abu Amr al-Shaibani, "On the authority of Abdullah, he said: I asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: What are the major sins? He said: To call upon a rival to God when He created you, to kill your child for the sake of food with you, or to commit adultery with your neighbor's wife. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited to us: "And those who do not invoke with God another deity or kill the soul which God has forbidden, except by right, and do not commit unlawful sexual intercourse" (al-Furqan 25:68).

This hadith was narrated to me by Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Zuhri, who said: Sufyan narrated to us, Abu Muawiyah Al-Nakha'i - who was in prison - heard it from Abu Amr, "On the authority of Abdullah bin Mas'ud: I asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I said: Which deed is the worst? He said: To make a rival to God when He created you, and to kill your child so that he may eat with you, or to commit adultery with your neighbor. And he recited to me: "And those who do not invoke with God another deity" (al-Furqan 25:68).

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct interpretation of major sins is that which is authentically reported from the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace), without what others have said, even though each of those whose statements we have mentioned has made an effort and gone to extremes in his own opinion, and his statement regarding its authenticity has a doctrine. So the major sins are: associating partners with God, disobeying parents, killing a soul whose killing is forbidden, false speech - and false testimony may be included in false speech - and accusing a chaste woman of adultery, and false oaths, and magic - and killing a soul whose killing is forbidden includes a man killing his son in order to eat with him - and fleeing from battle, and adultery with one's neighbor's wife.

Since this is the case, every report narrated from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding the meaning of major sins is correct, and some of it confirms others. That is because what was narrated from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: They are seven, then the meaning of his statement is: They are seven in detail, and the meaning of his statement in the report narrated from him is that he said: They are associating partners with God, killing a soul, disobeying one's parents, and false speech in general, since his statement: And false speech is open to various meanings, and that all of that is included in false speech.

As for the report of Ibn Masoud that Al-Faryabi narrated to me, as you mentioned, I think it is a mistake on the part of Ubayd God ibn Muhammad, because the reports that are consistent from the authentic sources are from Ibn Masoud from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the manner of the narration that Al-Zuhri narrated from Ibn Uaynah. And none of them said in his narration from Ibn Masoud that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about the major sins, so their transmission of what they transmitted of that from Ibn Masoud from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is more authentic than the transmission of Al-Faryabi.

Abu Jaafar said: Whoever avoids the major sins that God has promised to those who avoid them, that He will expiate all his other sins and admit him to a noble entrance, and performs the duties that God has imposed upon him, will find God fulfilling what He has promised him, and steadfast in fulfilling it.

As for his saying: We will remove from you your misdeeds, he means by it: We will remove from you, O believers, by your avoiding the major sins that your Lord forbids you, your minor sins, meaning: your minor sins, such as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: We will expiate for you your misdeeds, the minor ones.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Al-Hasan: Some people met Abdullah bin Amr in Egypt and said: We see things from the Book of God, which He has commanded to be acted upon, but they are not acted upon. So we wanted to meet the Commander of the Faithful about that. So he came and they came with him. Umar, may God be pleased with him, met him and said: When did you come? He said: Since such and such a time. He said: With permission, did you come? He said: I do not know how he responded to him. He said: O Commander of the Faithful, some people met me in Egypt and said: We see things from the Book of God, the Blessed and Exalted, which He has commanded to be acted upon, but they are not acted upon. So they wanted to meet you about that. So he said: Gather them for me. So I gathered them for him. Ibn Awn said: I think he said: In a hall. So he took the closest of them and said: I ask you by God and by the right of Islam upon you, have you recited the entire Quran? He said: Yes. He said: Have you counted it in your mind? He said: By God, no! He said: If he had said: Yes, his opponent would have said: Have you counted it in your sight? Did you count it in your speech? Did you count it in your tracks? He said: Then he followed them until he came to the last of them, and he said: May Umar's mother be bereaved! Do you charge him to make people adhere to the Book of God? Our Lord knows that we will have bad deeds. He said: And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance. Did the people of the city know - or did he say did anyone know - what you had done? They said: No! He said: If they had known, I would have been admonished by you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:31

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyyah told us, he said, Ziyad ibn Mukhraq told us, on the authority of Muawiyah ibn Qurrah, he said: We came to Anas ibn Malik, and among what he told us was: We have never seen anything like what our Lord has conveyed to us, and we did not go out for it with all our family and wealth! Then he was silent for a while, then he said: By God, our Lord has charged us with something easier than that! He has overlooked for us what is less than the major sins! So what do we have to do with them? Then he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse, God only promised forgiveness to those who avoid the major sins. And he mentioned to us, "that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Avoid the major sins, be steadfast, and be glad."

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said about five verses of Surat al-Nisa': They are dearer to me than the whole world: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins, and His statement: Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight, and if there is a good deed,

He multiplies it (al-Nisa': 40), and His statement: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills (al-Nisa': 48, 116), and His statement: And whoever does evil or wrongs himself but then seeks forgiveness from God will find God Forgiving and Merciful (al-Nisa': 110), and His statement: And those who believe in God and His Messengers and make no distinction between any of them - those will surely give them their rewards, and ever is God Forgiving and Merciful (al-Nisa': 152).

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Abu Al-Nadr narrated to me, on the authority of Salih Al-Mari, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Eight verses were revealed in Surat An-Nisa, which are better for this nation than what the sun rose and set upon: The first of them is: "God desires to make clear to you and guide you to the ways of those before you and to accept your repentance. And God is Knowing and Wise" (An-Nisa': 26). The second is: And God desires to accept your repentance, but those who follow their desires desire that you should deviate with a great deviation (An-Nisa': 27). The third is: God desires to lighten your burden, for man was created weak (An-Nisa': 28). Then he mentioned something similar to what Ibn Mas'ud said, and added to it: Then he went on to explain it at the end of the verse: And God is to those who commit sins Forgiving and Merciful.

As for his saying: And We will admit you to a noble entrance, the readings differed in its reading.

The majority of the people of Medina and some of the Kufians read it as: And We will enter you with a noble entrance with the opening of the mim, and the same is true of the Hajj: He will surely enter them with an entrance that pleases them (al-Hajj 22:59). So the meaning of: And We will enter you with an entrance, is that they will enter with a noble entrance. And it may be possible, according to the doctrine of those who read this reading, that the meaning of the entrance is the place and location. Because the Arabs may open the mim in this meaning, as the rajaz poet said:

In the morning of praise and wherever we go to bed

Some of them recited to me, as they had heard from the Arabs:

Praise be to God, good evening and good morning.
Good morning, my Lord.

And another one recited to me:

Praise be to God, good evening and good morning

Because it is from the verbs became and amsaa. And the Arabs do the same with the verbs that are built on four, they add the mim in such a case, so you say: I dragged him, I dragged him, so he is mudhraj. Then you interpret what came on af'al yaf'il as the same. Because yaf'il is from dakhul, even if it is on four, its origin is to be on yu'fa'il, yu'dakhul and yu'khrāj, so it is similar to yu'dharaj.

The majority of the Kufians and Basrans read it as madkhal with a damma on the mim, meaning: And We will admit you with a generous entry.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two readings is the reading of the one who reads it: And We will enter you into a noble entrance with a damma on the meem, for what we have described, that whatever is from the verb is built on four in fa'l, then its source is maf'al. And that akhla and dahraja are a verb from it on four. So the source of madkhal is more appropriate than maf'al, because that is more eloquent than the speech of the Arabs in the sources of what comes on af'al, as it is said: he stayed in a place so the place was pleasant for him, since what is meant by it is residence, and he stood in his place so he is in a spacious place, as the Most High said: Indeed, the righteous will be in a secure position (Ad-Dukhan 44:51), from qama yaqum. If what is meant by it is residence, it would have been read: Indeed, the righteous will be in a secure position as it was read: And say, My Lord, let me enter a truthful entrance and exit a truthful exit (Al-Isra 17:80), meaning entering and exiting. And we have not been informed of anyone who read: Madkhal Sadaq nor Makhraj Sadaq with a fatha on the meem.

As for the noble entrance, it is: the good and beautiful, honored by removing plagues and defects from it, and by removing worries and sorrows and the entry of turbidity into the life of whoever enters it, so God called it noble, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And We will admit you to a noble entrance, he said: Noble is the good in Paradise.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are two issues:

First: When God Almighty forbade major sins in this surah, He promised to reduce minor sins by avoiding them. This indicates that there are major and minor sins among sins. This is the view of the group of interpreters and the group of jurists, and that touching and looking are expiated by avoiding major sins, certainly by His promise of truth and His word of truth, not that it is obligatory for Him to do so. Similar to this is what was previously explained in accepting repentance in God Almighty's statement: Repentance is only for God. God Almighty forgives minor sins by avoiding major sins, but by adding another aspect to avoidance, which is performing the obligatory duties. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The five daily prayers, and Friday to Friday, and Ramadan to Ramadan, are expiations for what is between them, if one avoids major sins." Abu Hatim al-Basti narrated in his Sahih Musnad, "On the authority of Abu Hurayrah and Abu Sa'id al-Khudri, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sat on the pulpit and then said:

By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, he said three times, then he was silent, and each one of us fell down crying, saddened by the oath of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then he said: There is no servant who performs the five prayers, fasts Ramadan, and avoids the seven major sins, except that eight gates of Paradise will be opened for him on the Day of Resurrection, until they are like claps. Then he recited: "If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins." The Book and the authentic Sunnah have supported each other in expiating minor sins with certainty, like looking and the like. The Sunnah has made clear that what is meant by avoid is that you do not have to avoid all major sins, and God knows best. As for the scholars of the principles of jurisprudence, they said: It is not obligatory with certainty to expiate minor sins by avoiding major sins, but rather that is based on the preponderance of thought and the strength of hope, and the will is fixed. The evidence for that is that if we were to definitively definitively definitively definitively for the one who avoids major sins and complies with the obligatory duties to expiate his minor sins, it would be considered permissible for him, and it is definitively not permissible for him, and that is a violation of the bonds of the Shari'ah, and there is no minor sin according to us. Al-Qushayri Abd al-Rahman said: The correct view is that they are major sins, but some of them are greater. Some of them are affected by it, and the wisdom behind not distinguishing is that the servant should avoid all sins.

I said: And also, whoever looks at the sin itself, as some of them said: Do not look at the smallness of the sin, but look at whom you disobeyed - then all sins in this proportion are major. And in this manner the words of Judge Abu Bakr ibn al-Tayyib, Professor Abu Ishaq al-Asfaraini, Abu al-Ma'ali, Abu Nasr Abd al-Qushayri and others are derived. They said: Rather, some of them are called minor in relation to what is greater than them, just as adultery is called minor in relation to disbelief, and the forbidden kiss is minor in relation to adultery. And no sin, according to us, is forgiven by avoiding another sin, rather all of that is major and its perpetrator is in the will of God other than disbelief, because God Almighty said: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. (An-Nisa': 48) And they argued with the reading of those who read: If you avoid the major of what you are forbidden, on monotheism, and the major sin is polytheism. They said: And with regard to the plural, what is meant is the types of disbelief, and the verse that restricted the ruling, to which all these absolutes are referred, is God Almighty's saying: And He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. And they argued with what Muslim and others narrated. On the authority of Abu Umamah, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever usurps the right of a Muslim by swearing an oath, God has made Hell obligatory for him and has forbidden him Paradise. A man said to him: O Messenger of God, even if it is a small thing? He said: Even if it is a stick of arak. The severe threat has been given to the small as it has been given to the large. Ibn Abbas said: The major sin is every sin that God has sealed with Hell, wrath, curse, or punishment. Ibn Masoud said: The major sins are what God has forbidden in this Surah up to thirty-three verses, and the confirmation of that is His statement, the Most High: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden. Tawus said: It was said to Ibn Abbas: Are the major sins seven? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven, except that there is no major sin with seeking forgiveness, and no minor sin with persistence. It was narrated from Ibn Masoud that he said: The major sins are four: despairing of the mercy of God, despondency from the mercy of God, feeling secure from the deception of God, associating partners with God, as indicated in the Qur'an. It was narrated from Ibn Umar: They are nine: killing a person, consuming usury, and consuming the wealth of an orphan. ...and accusing a chaste woman, giving false witness, disobeying parents, fleeing from battle, sorcery, and atheism in the Sacred House. Among the major sins according to the scholars are: gambling, theft, drinking alcohol, cursing the righteous predecessors, rulers turning away from the truth, following whims, false oaths, despairing of God's mercy, and a person cursing his parents - such as cursing a man, and that man cursing his parents - and striving to spread corruption on earth - and other things that are numerous in number according to what is hoped to be explained in the Qur'an, and in the hadiths narrated by the imams. Muslim mentioned a large number of them in his book on faith, and people differed in their number and limitation due to the different reports on them. What I say is that many authentic and good hadiths have come on them, and they were not intended to be exhaustive, but some of them are greater than others in relation to what causes greater harm. So polytheism is the greatest of all of them, and it is that which is not forgiven, as God the Most High has explicitly stated on that, and after that is despairing of God's mercy, because in it is denying the Qur'an, as He says, and His saying is the truth: And My mercy encompasses all things (al-A'raf 7:156), and he says: He will not be forgiven. ... He has placed a wide stone on this if he believes in that, and therefore God Almighty said: Indeed, no one despairs of relief from God except the disbelieving people (Yusuf 12:87). And after despair, God Almighty said: And who despairs of the mercy of his Lord except those astray? (al-Hijr 15:56). And after that, he feels secure from God's plan, so he indulges in sins and relies on God's mercy without working. God Almighty said: Do they then feel secure from God's plan? But no one feels secure from God's plan except the losing people. (al-A'raf 7:99) And God Almighty said:

And that is your assumption which you assumed about your Lord that has ruined you, and you have become among the losers. (Fussilat 41:23) And after that, killing, because it involves the loss of souls and the annihilation of existence, and sodomy involves the severing of lineage, and fornication involves the mixing of lineages with water and wine, and it involves the loss of reason, which is the basis of accountability, and abandoning prayer and the call to prayer involves abandoning the manifestation of the symbols of Islam, and false testimony involves the shedding of blood, private parts, and money, and other things that are between harm, so every sin for which the Shari'ah threatens with punishment and makes it severe, or its harm to existence is great as we mentioned, is a major sin, and everything else is minor, so this links this chapter for you and regulates it, and God knows best.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And We will admit you to a noble entrance. Abu Amr and most of the Kufians read Madkhal with a damma on the mim, so it is possible that it is a source, meaning an entrance, and the object is omitted, meaning, And We will admit you to Paradise by an entrance. It is possible that it means a place, so it is a direct object. The people of Medina read it with a fatha on the mim, so it is possible that it is a source of dakhal, and it is accusative with an implied verb, and the meaning is, And We will admit you, so you will enter an entrance, and the speech indicates this. It is possible that it is a place name, so it is accusative as a direct object, meaning, And We will admit you to a noble place, which is Paradise. Abu Saeed bin Al-A'rabi said: I heard Abu Dawud Al-Sijistani say: I heard Abu Abdullah Ahmad bin Hanbal say: All Muslims are in Paradise, so I said to him: How? He said: God the Almighty says: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance, meaning Paradise. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

I have saved my intercession for the people of my nation who commit major sins. If God the Almighty forgives less than major sins and the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) did not intercede for major sins, then what sin remains for the Muslims? Our scholars said: Major sins, according to the Sunnis, are forgiven for those who give them up before death, according to what was mentioned above. It may also be forgiven for those Muslims who die while committing them, as God the Almighty said: And He forgives less than that for whom He wills. What is meant by that is the one who dies while committing sins. If what is meant is the one who repents before death, then there would be no distinction between polytheism and other things. The meaning of since the one who repents from polytheism is also forgiven. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud that he said: Five verses from Surat An-Nisa are dearer to me than the entire world: God the Almighty said: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, and His saying: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives. (An-Nisa': 48) and His saying: And whoever does evil or wrongs himself (An-Nisa': 110) and His saying: And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it. (An-Nisa': 11) 40] And the Most High said: And those who believe in God and His Messengers (An-Nisa': 125). Ibn Abbas said: Eight verses in Surat An-Nisa' are better for this nation than what the sun rises and sets upon: God wants to make clear to you, "And God wants to accept your repentance," God wants to lighten your burden, "If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins," the verse.

Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him. "Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight." (An-Nisa': 40) And whoever does evil or wrongs himself. "What would God do with your punishment?" (An-Nisa': 147) the verse.

Mentioning the sayings of the predecessors on this

What was narrated from Omar and Ali may God be pleased with them was mentioned in the aforementioned hadiths. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Al-Hasan, that some people asked Abdullah bin Amr in Egypt, and they said: We see things in the Book of God Almighty that He commanded to be acted upon but not acted upon. So we wanted to meet the Commander of the Faithful about that, so he came and they came with him, and Omar may God be pleased with him met him and said: When did you come? He said: Since such and such. He said: With permission, did you come? He said: I do not know how he responded to him. He said: O Commander of the Faithful, some people met me in Egypt and said: We see things in the Book of God that He commanded to be acted upon but not acted upon. They wanted to meet you about that. He said: Gather them for me. He said: So I gathered them for him. Ibn Awn said: I think he said: In a hall. So he took the closest of them and said: I ask you by God and by the right of Islam upon you, have you recited the entire Qur'an? He said: Yes. He said: Have you counted it in your mind? He said: By God, no. He said: If he had said: Yes, he would have opposed him. He said: Have you counted it in your sight? Have you counted it in your speech? Have you counted it in your command? Then he followed them until he reached the last of them. He said: May Umar's mother be bereaved! Do you charge him to make people adhere to the Book of God? Our Lord knows that we will have sins. He said: And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins [Al-Bukhari and Muslim]. Then he said: Did the people of Madinah know? Or he said: Did anyone know what you have done? They said: No. He said: If they knew, I would have admonished you. The chain of transmission is good and the text is good, even though it is narrated by Al-Hasan from Umar, and there is an interruption in it, except that something like this is well-known, so its being well-known is sufficient. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Sinan told us, Abu Ahmad - meaning Al-Zubayri - told us, Ali ibn Salih told us, on the authority of Uthman ibn Al-Mughira, on the authority of Malik ibn Juwayn, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him. He said: The major sins are associating partners with God, killing a soul, consuming the wealth of an orphan, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, fleeing from battle, becoming Arab after emigrating, practicing magic, disobeying one's parents, consuming usury, separating from the group, and breaking a deal. It was previously reported from Ibn Masoud that he said: The greatest major sins are associating partners with God, despairing of God's mercy, losing hope in God's mercy, and feeling secure from the deception of God, the Almighty and Majestic. Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq and Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Alqamah, both of them on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to thirty verses of it, and from the hadith of Sufyan Al-Thawri and Shu'bah on the authority of Asim bin Abi Al-Najud, on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, he said: The major sins are from the beginning of Surat An-Nisa' to thirty verses of it, then he recited If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse, and Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Mundhir bin Shadhan told us, Ya'la bin Ubaid told us, Salih bin Hayyan told us on the authority of Ibn Buraidah, on the authority of his father, he said: The greatest major sins are associating partners with God, disobeying parents, preventing excess water after drinking, and preventing a stallion from approaching except for a fee.

In the two Sahihs, it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Extra water should not be withheld in order to withhold grass thereby. And in both of them it is narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: "There are three whom God will not look at on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He purify them, and they will have a painful punishment: a man who has extra water in the desert and withholds it from a traveler." And he mentioned the rest of the hadith. And in the Musnad of Imam Ahmad, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, Whoever withholds extra water and extra grass, God will withhold His extra water from him on the Day of Resurrection. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Husayn bin Muhammad bin Shanbah Al-Wasiti told us, Abu Ahmad told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Muslim, on the authority of Masruq, on the authority of Aisha, who said: What is taken from women of the major sins, Ibn Abi Hatim said: He means the words of God Almighty: On condition that they do not associate anything with God and do not steal the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Ya'qub bin Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, Ziyad bin Mukhraq told us, on the authority of Mu'awiyah bin Qurrah, who said: We came to Anas bin Malik and among what he told us was: I have not seen anything like what has reached us from our Lord Almighty, for which we did not give up all our family and wealth. Then he was silent for a while and then said: By God, when our Lord has charged us with something lighter than that, He has overlooked for us what is less than the major sins, so what do we have to do with them? And he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden the verse.

Ibn Abbas's sayings about that

Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman from his father, from Tawus, who said: The major sins were mentioned to Ibn Abbas and they said: They are seven, so he said: They are more than seven and seven, he said: I do not know how many times he said it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Qubaysah told us, Sufyan told us, from Layth, from Tawus, who said: I said to Ibn Abbas: What are the seven major sins? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven. Ibn Jarir narrated it from Ibn Hamid, from Jarir, from Layth, from Tawus, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: What do you think of the seven major sins that God mentioned? He said: They are closer to seventy than to seven. Abd Al-Razzaq said: Mu'ammarr told us, from Tawus, from his father, who said: It was said to Ibn Abbas: Are the major sins seven? He said: They are closer to seventy, and Abu Al-Aaliyah Al-Riyahi, may God have mercy on him, said the same. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us, on the authority of Qays ibn Sa'd, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr: A man said to Ibn Abbas: How many major sins are there? Seven? He said: They are closer to seven hundred than seven, except that there is no major sin with seeking forgiveness, and no minor sin with persistence. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way from the hadith of Shibl. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, he said: Major sins are every sin that God seals with Hell, wrath, curse, or punishment. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali ibn Harb al-Mawsili told us, Ibn Fadil told us, Shabib told us on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Major sins are everything for which God has promised Hell, and Sa'id ibn Jubayr and al-Hasan al-Basri said this. Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, Ayoub told us on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, who said: I was told that Ibn Abbas used to say: Everything that God has forbidden is a major sin, and I mentioned the glance, and he said: It is a glance. He also said: Ahmad ibn Hazim told us, Abu Naim told us, Abdullah ibn Ma'dan told us on the authority of Abu al-Walid, who said: I asked Ibn Abbas about the major sins, and he said: Everything in which God is disobeyed is a major sin.

Sayings of the followers

Ibn Jarir said: Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, on the authority of Muhammad, who said: I asked Ubaydah about the major sins, and he said: Associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden without right, fleeing on the day of battle, consuming the wealth of an orphan without right, consuming usury, and slander. He said: And they say: A Bedouin woman after the migration. Ibn Awn said: So I said to Muhammad: What about magic? He said: Slander brings about much evil. Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad bin Ubaid al-Maharibi told me, Abu al-Ahwas Salam bin Salim told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Ubaid bin Umair, who said: The major sins are seven, and there is no major sin among them except that there is a verse in the Book of God about it. Among them is associating partners with God: And whoever associates partners with God, it is as if he had fallen from the sky and was snatched by birds or the wind had blown him down 3:100. And Indeed, those who devour the property of orphans unjustly are only consuming fire into their bellies 3:100. And Those who consume interest cannot stand [on the Day of Resurrection] except as one stands who is being beaten by Satan into insanity 3:100. And Those who accuse chaste, unaware, believing women 3:100. And fleeing from battle O you who believe! When you meet those who disbelieve in battle 3:100. And becoming Arab after the migration: Indeed, those who turn back after guidance has become clear to them 3:100. And killing a believer: And whoever kills a believer intentionally, his recompense is Hell, wherein he will abide eternally 3:100. And Ibn Abi Hatim also narrated it in the hadith of Abu Ishaq on the authority of Ubayd ibn Umair said something similar. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Shibl told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Ata' meaning Ibn Abi Rabah, who said: The major sins are seven: killing a soul, consuming the wealth of an orphan, consuming usury, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, giving false witness, disobeying parents, and fleeing from battle. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Uthman ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Jarir told us on the authority of Mughirah, who said: It was said: Cursing Abu Bakr and Umar may God be pleased with them is one of the major sins. I said: A group of scholars have said that whoever curses the Companions is an unbeliever, and this is a narration on the authority of Malik ibn Anas may God have mercy on him. Muhammad ibn Sirin said: I do not think that anyone would disparage Abu Bakr and Umar while he loves the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him). Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Yunus told us, Ibn Wahb told us, Abdullah bin Ayyash told me, Zaid bin Aslam said regarding the statement of God the Almighty, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, among the major sins are: associating partners with God, disbelieving in the signs of God and His messengers, magic, killing children, and calling upon God to have a son or a female companion - and similar actions and words that are not compatible with any action. As for every sin that can be compatible with a religion and with which an action is accepted, God forgives evil deeds with good ones. Ibn Jarir said: Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us on the authority of Qatada, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, the verse: God has only promised forgiveness to those who avoid the major sins. He mentioned to us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Avoid the major sins, be steadfast, and be glad. Ibn Mardawayh narrated through various chains of transmission on the authority of Anas and Jabir, with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet, My intercession is for the people of major sins among my nation, but there is weakness in its chain of transmission through all its chains of transmission, except what Abd al-Razzaq narrated: Muammarr told us on the authority of Thabit, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, My intercession is for the people of major sins among my nation, for it is a sound chain of transmission according to the criteria of the two sheikhs. Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi narrated it alone from this source on the authority of Abbas Al-Anbari, on the authority of Abdul Razzaq, then he said: This is a good and authentic hadith, and in the Sahih there is a witness to its meaning, which is the saying of the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) after mentioning intercession: Do you think it is for the believing, righteous people? No, but it is for the sinful, polluted ones. The scholars of Usul and Fir' differed regarding the definition of a major sin. Some said: It is what is subject to a hadd in the Shari'ah, and some said: It is what is subject to a specific warning from the Qur'an and Sunnah, and other things were said. Abu Al-Qasim Abdul Karim bin Muhammad Al-Rafi'i said in his famous book Al-Sharh Al-Kabeer in the Book of Testimonies therein: Then the Companions may God be pleased with them and those who came after them differed regarding major sins and the difference between them and minor sins. Some of the Companions have different interpretations of a major sin: One of them is that it is a sin that requires a hadd. The second is that it is a sin for which the perpetrator is subject to a severe warning according to a text in the Qur'an or Sunnah, and this is what is most often found for them, and I am more inclined towards the first, but the second is more in line with what they mentioned when interpreting major sins. The third Imam Al-Haramayn said in Al-Irshad and other books: Every crime that indicates the perpetrator's lack of concern for religion and weak religious commitment invalidates justice. Fourth Judge Abu Saeed Al-Harawi mentioned that a major sin is every act that the Book has explicitly prohibited and every sin that requires a punishment in its type, such as killing or otherwise, and leaving every obligatory duty that is commanded immediately and lying in testimony, narration and oath. This is what they mentioned for the sake of precision. Then he said: Judge Al-Ruwayani separated and said: The major sins are seven: killing a soul without right, adultery, sodomy, drinking alcohol, stealing, taking money by force, and slander. In Al-Shamel, he added to the seven mentioned: false testimony, and the author of Al-Uddah added to them: consuming usury, breaking the fast in Ramadan without an excuse, a false oath, severing family ties, disobeying parents, fleeing from battle, consuming an orphan's money, betrayal in measuring and weighing, performing the prayer before its time, and delaying it after its time without an excuse, striking a Muslim without right, lying about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, intentionally, insulting his companions, withholding testimony without an excuse, taking a bribe, leading between men and women, slandering the ruler, and withholding zakat. Abandoning enjoining good and forbidding evil when able to do so, forgetting the Qur'an after learning it, burning an animal with fire, a woman refusing to have intercourse with her husband without reason, despairing of God's mercy, feeling secure from God's deception, and it is said: slandering the people of knowledge and the bearers of the Qur'an. Among the major sins are: zihar, eating pork and dead meat except out of necessity. Then Al-Rafi'i said: There is room for hesitation in some of these characteristics. I said: People have written books on major sins, including what our Sheikh, the hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Dhahabi, collected, which amounted to about seventy major sins. If it is said: A major sin is one for which the Lawgiver has threatened Hell specifically, as Ibn Abbas and others said, and what follows that, then a great deal of it has been collected. If it is said: everything that God has forbidden, then it is very much, and God knows best.

His statement 31- If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins. That is, if you avoid the major sins which God has forbidden you from, We will remove from you your lesser sins. That is, your sins which are minor. The interpretation of the lesser sins here is necessary because the major sins were mentioned before them, and avoiding them was made a condition for the expiation of the lesser sins.

The scholars of Usul differed in determining the meaning of major sins and then in their number. As for determining them, it was said: All sins are major, and some of them are called minor in relation to what is greater than them, just as it is said: Adultery is minor in relation to disbelief, and the forbidden kiss is minor in relation to adultery. Something similar to this was narrated from Al-Isfarayini, Al-Juwayni, Al-Qushayri and others. They said: What is meant by major sins, avoiding which is a reason for expiating sins, is polytheism. They provided evidence for that by the reading of the one who read: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden from. And by the reading of the plural, what is meant is the types of disbelief. They provided evidence for what they said by the words of God Almighty: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. They said: This verse restricts His words: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden from. Ibn Abbas said: A major sin is every sin that God seals with fire, wrath, curse or punishment. Ibn Masoud said: The major sins are what God has forbidden in this Surah up to thirty-three verses. Saeed bin Jubair said: Every sin that God attributes to the Fire is a major sin. A group of scholars of the principles of jurisprudence said: The major sins are every sin for which God has prescribed a prescribed punishment or explicitly threatened. Others have been said, which there is no benefit in mentioning at length. As for the difference in their number, it has been said: They are seven, and it has been said: Seven hundred, and it has been said: Not limited, but some are greater than others, and what has been reported in that will come, God willing. His statement, And We will admit you to an entrance, meaning: a place of entry, which is Paradise, honorable, meaning: good and pleasing. Abu Amr, Ibn Kathir, Ibn Amir, and the Kufians read Madkhal with a damma on the meem. The people of Medina read it with a fatha on the meem, and both are place names, and it is permissible for it to be a verbal noun.

Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated, Al-Suyuti said with a sound chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Masoud regarding the words of God the Almighty: O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly, that he said: It is a decisive verse that has not been abrogated and will not be abrogated until the Day of Resurrection. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan regarding the verse: A man would be embarrassed to eat with someone after this verse was revealed, so the verse in An-Noor abrogated that: And there is no blame upon you if you eat from your houses, the verse. Ibn Majah and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Abu Saeed who said: The Messenger of God

(blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: Salé is only by mutual consent. Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Salih and Ikrimah regarding the words of God the Almighty: And do not kill yourselves, that they said: He forbade them from killing one another. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated something similar on the authority of Mujahid. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ata' bin Abi Rabah. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi: And do not kill yourselves, that he said: The people of your religion. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair regarding his statement, And whoever does that in aggression and injustice, meaning: deliberately transgressing without right, and that is easy for God, meaning: his punishment is easy for God. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: I said to Ata': What do you think of the statement of God, And whoever does that in aggression and injustice, We will drive him into a Fire, in all of that or in His statement, And do not kill yourselves? He said: Rather, in His statement, And do not kill yourselves. Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Anas bin Malik who said: What your Lord has asked of you is easy, If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Al-Tabarani, and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Shu'ab narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Everything that He forbade is a major sin, and At-Tarfa mentioned: meaning a glance. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority who said: Everything in which God is disobeyed is a major sin. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority who said: Everything for which God has promised Hell is a major sin. Ibn Jarir and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Sha'b from him that he said: Major sins are every sin that God seals with fire, wrath, curse or torment. Ibn Jarir narrated from Saeed bin Jubair what we mentioned earlier from him. Abd Al-Razzaq, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Sha'b from Ibn Abbas that he was asked about the major sins, are they seven? He said: They are closer to seventy. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from him that a man asked him, how many are the major sins, are they seven? He said: They are closer to seven hundred than seven, except that there is no major sin with seeking forgiveness, and no minor sin with persistence. Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Sha'b from him that every sin that a servant persists in is a major sin, but it is not a major sin that a servant repents from. It has been proven in the two Sahih and others on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Avoid the seven great destructive sins. They said: What are they, O Messenger of God? He said: "Associating others with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, magic, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, turning back on the day of battle, and accusing chaste, unaware, believing women of adultery." It has been proven in the two Sahih and others on the authority of Abu Bakrah who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not inform you of the greatest of the major sins? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God.

He said: Associating others with God, disobeying one's parents. He was reclining, then he sat up and said: Beware of false speech and false testimony. He kept repeating them until we said: If only he would stop. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Amr that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The major sins are: associating others with God, disobeying one's parents, killing a soul that Shu'bah doubted, and a false oath." Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: One of the greatest major sins is for a man to curse his parents. They said: How can a man curse his parents? He said: He curses a man's father, so he curses his father; he curses his mother, so he curses his mother. There are many hadiths that enumerate and specify major sins. Whoever wants to understand what has been reported on this matter should refer to the book Al-Zawaajir fi al-Kaba'ir, for it is comprehensive and comprehensive.

Know that what is in this verse about expiation of sins by merely avoiding major sins must be restricted to what was narrated by al-Nasa'i, Ibn Majah, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Khuzaymah, Ibn Hibban, al-Hakim who authenticated it, and al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan on the authority of Abu Hurayrah and Abu Sa'id that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sat on the pulpit and then said: "By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, there is no servant who prays the five daily prayers, fasts Ramadan, pays zakat, and avoids the seven major sins except that the eight gates of Paradise will be opened for him on the Day of Resurrection until they clap together." Then he recited: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins. Abu Ubaid narrated in his Fadha'il, Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hameed, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Al-Tabarani, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Sha'b on the authority of Ibn Masoud who said: There are five verses in Surat An-Nisa that I would not be pleased to have the world and everything in it for them. I have learned that when scholars come across them, they will recognize them: The Almighty's statement, If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, the verse, and His statement, Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight, the verse, and His statement, Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, the verse, and His statement, And if they had come to you, when they were wronging themselves, the verse, and His statement, And whoever does evil or wrongs himself, the verse.

31- The Almighty said: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, they differed regarding the major sins which God made avoiding as an expiation for the minor sins: Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Muhammad bin Muqatil told us, Al-Nadr told us, Shu'bah told us, Firas said: I heard Al-Sha'bi from Abdullah bin Omar, may God be pleased with them both, from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The major sins are: associating partners with God, disobeying parents, killing a soul, and a false oath."

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Musaddad told us, Bishr bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Al-Jariri told us, on the authority of Abdul Rahman bin Abi Bakra, on the authority of his father, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Shall I not inform you of the greatest of the major sins? Three times. They said: Yes, O Messenger of God. He said: Associating partners with God Almighty, and disobeying one's parents. He sat up, having been reclining, and said: And false speech! And false speech! He kept repeating it until we said: If only he would stop.

Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Salihi told us, I told Abu Saeed Muhammad bin Musa Al-Sayrafi, I told Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Abdullah Al-Saffar, I told Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Isa Al-Barti, I told Muhammad bin Kathir, I told Sufyan Al-Thawri, on the authority of Al-A'mash and Mansour, and Wasil Al-Ahdab, on the authority of Abu Wa'il, on the authority of Amr bin Shurahbil, on the authority of Abdullah, may God be pleased with them both, who said: "I said, O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest in the sight of God? He said: To make a rival to God when He created you. I said: Then what? He said: To kill your child for fear that he will eat with you. I said: Then what? He said: To commit adultery with your neighbor's wife. Then God Almighty revealed the confirmation of the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: "And those who do not invoke with God another deity or kill the soul which God has forbidden, except by right, and do not commit unlawful sexual intercourse" (Al-A'mash, Mansur, and Wasil Al-Ahdab, on the authority of Abu Wa'il, on the authority of Amr bin Shurahbil, on the authority of Abdullah, may God be pleased with them both, who said: I said, O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest in the sight of God? He said: To make a rival to God when He created you. I said: Then what? He said: To kill your son for fear that he will eat with you. I said: Then what? He said: To commit adultery with your neighbor's wife. Then God Almighty revealed the confirmation of the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: And those who do not invoke with God another deity or kill the soul which God has forbidden, except by right, and do not commit unlawful sexual intercourse.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Abdul Aziz bin Abdullah, Sulayman told me, on the authority of Thawr bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Al-Ghaith, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Avoid the seven great destructive sins. They said: O Messenger of God, what are they? He said: "Associating partners with God, magic, killing a soul that God has forbidden except by right, consuming usury, consuming the wealth of an orphan, turning back on the day of battle, and accusing chaste, believing women who are unaware."

Abdullah bin Masoud, may God be pleased with him, said: The greatest of the major sins are: associating partners with God, feeling secure from God's plan, despairing of God's mercy, and losing hope in God's mercy.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, on the authority of Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shureih, on the authority of Abu Al-Qasim Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Baghawi, on the authority of Ali bin Al-Jaad, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Saad bin Ibrahim, who said: I heard Jamid bin Abdul Rahman narrating on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: Among the major sins is for a man to curse his parents. They said: How can a man curse his parents? He said: A man curses the father of a man, so he curses his father and curses his mother.

On the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: A man asked Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, about the major sins: Are they seven? He said: They are closer to the seven hundred, except that there is no major sin if one seeks forgiveness, and no minor sin if one persists. He said: Everything by which God is disobeyed is a major sin, so whoever does any of them should seek forgiveness, for God will not abide in the Fire from this nation except one who has turned away from Islam, or denied an obligation, or denied predestination.

Abdullah bin Masoud said: What God Almighty forbade in this Surah until His saying: If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, is a major sin.

Ali bin Abi Talha said: It is every sin that God sealed with fire, wrath, curse, or punishment.

Ad-Dahhak said: God did not threaten him with a punishment in this world or a torment in the hereafter.

Al-Hasan bin Al-Fadl said: What God called in the Qur'an as great or tremendous is like His Almighty saying: Indeed, it was a great sin (An-Nisa' 2), Indeed, their killing was a great sin (Al-Isra' 31), Indeed, polytheism is a great injustice Luqman 13, Indeed, your plot is great Yusuf 28, This is a great slander An-Nur 16, Indeed, that was in the sight of God a great thing Al-Ahzab 53.

Sufyan al-Thawri said: Major sins are those in which there is injustice between you and the servants, and minor sins are those in which there is injustice between you and God the Most High, because God is Generous and Forgiving. He provided evidence for this with what Sheikh Abu al-Qasim Abdullah bin Ali al-Kirmani told us: I told Abu Tahir Muhammad bin Muhammad bin Mahmash al-Ziyadi: I told Abu Ja'far Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Sa'id: I told al-Husayn bin Dawud al-Balkhi: I told Yazid bin Harun: I told Hamid al-Tawil on the authority of Anas bin Malik, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A caller will call out from the depths of the Throne on the Day of al-Qiyamah 75: O nation of Muhammad,

If you avoid the major sins you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins and admit you to a noble entrance.

God the Almighty has forgiven you all, the believing men and women. Forgive the injustices you have committed and enter Paradise through My mercy."

Malik bin Mughul said: Major sins are the sins of the people of innovation, and minor sins are the sins of the people of Sunnah.

It was said: Major sins are the sins of those who consider it permissible, such as the sin of Satan, and minor sins are the sins of those who seek forgiveness, such as the sin of Adam, peace be upon him.

Al-Suddi said: The major sins are the major sins that God has forbidden, and the bad deeds, their preliminaries and their consequences, are what brings together the righteous and the wicked, such as a glance, a touch, a kiss and the like. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The eyes commit adultery, the hands commit adultery and the feet commit adultery, and the private parts confirm or deny that.

It was said: Major sins are what people consider insignificant, and minor sins are what they consider great and fear committing, as Abd al-Wahid al-Malihi informed us, on the authority of Ahmad ibn Abd God al-Naimi, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Yusuf, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ismail, on the authority of Abu al-Walid, on the authority of Mahdi, on the authority of Ghailan, on the authority of Anas, who said: You do deeds that are more insignificant in your eyes than a hair, even though we considered them, during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to be among the major sins.

It was said: The major sins are polytheism and what leads to it, and what is less than polytheism is the bad deeds. God Almighty said: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills An-Nisa' 48, 116.

And the Almighty said: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins. That is, from one prayer to another, from one Friday to another, and from one Ramadan to another.

Ismail bin Abdul Qahir told us, Abdul Ghafir bin Muhammad told us, Muhammad bin Isa Al-Jaludi told us, Ibrahim bin Muhammad bin Sufyan told us, Muslim bin Al-Hajjaj told us, Harun bin Asid Al-Ayli told us, Ibn Wahb told us, on the authority of Abu Sakhr, that Umar bin Ishaq, the freed slave of Zaidah, told him, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: The five daily prayers, and Friday to Friday, and Ramadan to Ramadan, are expiations for what is between them, if one avoids major sins.

The Almighty says: And We will admit you to a noble entrance, meaning: good, which is Paradise. The people of Medina read an entrance with the fat-ha on the meem here and in Hajj, and it is the place of entry. The rest read it with the damma on the source meaning entry.

31 If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden the major sins which God and His Messenger have forbidden you from, and the word major is read to mean the genus. We will remove from you your misdeeds We will forgive you your minor sins and erase them from you.

There is a difference of opinion regarding major sins, and what is most likely is that a major sin is any sin for which the Lawgiver has set a limit or for which a threat has been explicitly stated. It has also been said that its prohibition is known with certainty. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "They are seven: associating partners with God, killing a soul that God has forbidden, accusing a chaste woman of adultery, consuming the wealth of an orphan, usury, fleeing from battle, and disobeying one's parents." Ibn 'Abbas may God be pleased with him said: Major sins are closer to seven hundred than seven. It has been said that what is meant here are the types of polytheism, based on the statement of God the Most High: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. It has been said that the minor and major sins are in relation to what is above and below it. The major sin is polytheism, and the minor sin is self-talk, and between them are intermediaries that are true of both matters. If a person has two of them in his mind and his soul calls him to them such that he cannot control himself, then he refrains from the major one, what he has committed will be expiated for him because he deserves the reward for avoiding the major one. Perhaps this varies according to people and circumstances. Don't you see that the Almighty rebuked His Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, for many of his steps that were not considered a sin for anyone else, let alone that He would hold him accountable for them? And We will admit you with an honorable entrance into Paradise and what He promised of reward, or an entrance with honor. Nafi' read here and in Al-Hajj with the opening of the meem, and it also includes the place and the source.

Surat al-Nisa 4:32

And do not wish for that by which God has made some of you excel others. Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned. And ask God of His bounty. Indeed, God is ever, of all things, Knowing.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others in terms of this world or religion, lest it lead to envy and hatred. For men is a share reward of what they have earned because of what they have done of jihad and other things. And for women is a share of what they have earned of obeying their husbands and guarding their private parts. It was revealed when Umm Salamah said: If only we were men so that we could fight and have a reward like that of men. And ask with a hamza and without it of God of His bounty whatever you need and He will give it to you. Indeed, God is ever Knowing of all things. And from this is the place of the bounty and your asking.

God Almighty said: And do not wish. Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Umm Salamah that she said: Men fight and women do not, and we only have half the inheritance. Then God revealed: And do not wish for that by which God has made some of you excel others. And He revealed in it: Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: A woman came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Prophet of God, a man has the share of two females, and the testimony of two women is equal to that of a man. Is this how we deal with deeds? If a woman does a good deed, half a good deed will be written for her. Then God revealed: And do not wish for the verse.

Abu Jaafar said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Do not desire what God has given some of you over others.

He mentioned that this was revealed about women who wished to have the houses of men and to have what they have. So God forbade His servants from false wishes and commanded them to ask Him for His bounty, since such wishes cause their people to become envious and unjustly oppressive.

Mentioning the report as we mentioned:

Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, Muammil told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, we are not given an inheritance, and we do not fight in the way of God and get killed? Then this verse was revealed: And do not wish for that by which God has made some of you excel others.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Hisham told us, on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, men fight and we do not, and we only have half the inheritance! Then the verse was revealed: "And do not wish for that by which God has given some of you more than others. Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned," and the verse was revealed: Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women (al-Ahzab 33:35).

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others, meaning: A man should not wish and say: I wish I had so-and-so's wealth and family! So God, the Exalted, forbade that, but let him ask God from His bounty.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement, And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others, he said: The women's saying: If only we were men so we could fight and achieve what men achieve!

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others, the words of women wishing: If only we were men so we could fight! Then he mentioned a hadith similar to Muhammad ibn Amr's.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: "Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, do men go out to fight and we do not, and we only get half of the inheritance? Then this verse was revealed: 'And do not wish for what God has given us.'"

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammal told us, on the authority of an old man from the people of Mecca, regarding his statement: And do not wish for that by which God has given some of you more than others, he said: The women used to say: If only we were men, so we could fight as men fight, and go out in the way of God! Then God said: And do not wish for that by which God has given some of you more than others.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: You desire the wealth of so-and-so and the wealth of so-and-so! How do you know? Perhaps his destruction is in that wealth!

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah and Mujahid, that they said: It was revealed about Umm Salamah, the daughter of Abu Umayyah ibn Al-Mughira.

And he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', who said: It is the person who says: I wish I had so-and-so's wealth! He said: And ask God for His bounty, and the women's saying: I wish we were men so we could fight and achieve what men achieve!

Surat al-Nisa 4:32

And do not wish for that by which Allah has made some of you excel others. Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned. And ask Allah of His bounty. Indeed, Allah is ever, of all things, Knowing.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: None of you should wish for the stations of excellence that God has given to some.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated to us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated to us, Asbat narrated to us, on the authority of al-Suddi, regarding his statement: And do not wish for that in which God has given some of you more than others, for the men said: We want to have double the reward of women, just as we have two shares in the shares, so we want to have two rewards. The women said: We want to have a reward like the reward of men, for we cannot fight, and if fighting were prescribed for us, we would fight! So God revealed the verse and said to them: Ask God from His bounty, and He will provide you with deeds, and that is better for you.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Muhammad, he said: You were forbidden from wishful thinking, and you indicated what is better than it: And ask God of His bounty.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Aarem told us, he said, Hammad bin Zaid told us, on the authority of Ayoub, he said: When Muhammad heard a man wishing for worldly things, he would say: God has forbidden you from this: And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others, and He has guided you to something better than it: And ask God of His bounty.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the statement according to this interpretation is: Do not wish, O men and women, for the stations of excellence and degrees of goodness by which God has favored some of you over others. Let each one of you be satisfied with what God has apportioned to him as a share, but ask God for His favor.

Abu Ja'far said: The people of interpretation differed in their interpretation of that. Some of them said: The meaning of that is: For men is a share of what they have earned, of reward for obedience and punishment for disobedience, and for women is a share of that, similarly.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: "And do not wish for that by which God has given some of you more than others. Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned," the people of the Age of Ignorance did not give women or children anything inheritance, rather they would give the inheritance to those who work, benefit, and pay. But when He gave women their share and children their share, and gave the male twice the share of the female, the women said: If only He had made our shares in inheritance like the shares of men! And the men said: We hope that we will be preferred over women because of our good deeds in the Hereafter, just as we were preferred over them in inheritance! So God revealed: For men is a share of what they have earned, and for women is a share of what they have earned, meaning that a woman is rewarded for her good deeds tenfold, just as a man is rewarded. God the Most High said: And ask God of His bounty.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Hammad told us, he said, Abu Laila told me, he said, I heard Abu Hariz say: When the verse, For the male is equal to the share of two females (An-Nisa': 4) was revealed, the women said: Likewise, they have two shares of sins, just as they have two shares of inheritance! So God revealed: For men is a share of what they have earned, and for women is a share of what they have earned, meaning sins, And ask God, O women, of His bounty.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Men have a share of what they have earned from the inheritance of their dead, and women have a share of it. Those who said this were: Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: For men is a share of what they have earned, and for women is a share of what they have earned, meaning: what the parents and relatives leave behind. He said: For the male is equal to the share of two females.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Ikrimah or someone else, regarding his statement: For men is a share of what they have earned, and for women is a share of what they have earned, he said: In inheritance, they did not give women an inheritance.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the two opinions regarding the interpretation of the verse is the opinion of those who said: Its meaning is: Men have a share of God's reward and punishment for what they have earned and done of good or evil, and women have a share of what they have earned of that just as men do.

Rather, we said that this is more appropriate for the interpretation of the verse than the saying of those who said: Its interpretation is: Men have a share of the inheritance, and women have a share of it, because God, the Most High, has informed us that each group of men and women has a share of what they have earned. And the inheritance is not what the heir has earned, but rather it is money that God has bequeathed to him from his deceased without earning it, and earning is work, and earning is the profession. So it is not permissible for the meaning of the verse to be, and God has said: For men is a share of what they have earned, and for women is a share of what they have earned: Men have a share of what they inherit, and women have a share of what they have inherited.

Because if that were the case, it would have been said: Men have a share of what they have not earned, and women have a share of what they have not earned!!

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And ask God for His help and guidance to do what pleases Him from you in His obedience. So His grace in this place is His guidance and assistance, as:

Muhammad bin Muslim Al-Razi told us, Abu Jaafar Al-Nafili told us, Yahya bin Yaman told us, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Saeed: And ask God of His bounty, he said: Worship is not a matter of this world.

Muhammad bin Muslim told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told me, he said, Musa told us, on the authority of Layth, he said: His virtue is worship, it is not from worldly matters.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And ask God of His bounty, he said: It is not with the world's wealth.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And ask God from His bounty, He will provide you with deeds, and that is better for you.

Ibn Wakee' told us: My father told us: Israel told us, on the authority of Hakim bin Jubair, on the authority of a man he did not name, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask God for His bounty, for He loves to be asked, and among the best acts of worship is awaiting relief."

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: God is All-Knowing of what is best for His servants - in what He has apportioned to them of good, and in raising some of them above others in religion and in this world, and in other than that of His judgments and rulings concerning them - He says: He has knowledge. So do not wish for anything other than what He has decreed for you, but you must obey Him, submit to His command, be content with His judgment, and ask Him for His bounty.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has four issues:

First - Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Umm Salamah that she said:

Men may fight, but women may not. Rather, we have half of the inheritance. So God revealed, And do not wish for that by which God has made some of you excel others. Mujahid said: And He revealed in it, Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women. (al-Ahzab 33:35) Umm Salamah was the first woman to migrate to Madinah. Abu Isa said: This is a mursal hadith. Some of them narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh on the authority of Mujahid, in a mursal hadith that Umm Salamah said: This. Qatada said: The pre-Islamic period did not allow women or children to inherit. When they inherited and the male was given the share of two females, the women wished that their shares were like the shares of the men. And the men said: We hope that we will excel over the women because of our good deeds in the Hereafter, just as we excelled them in inheritance. So, And do not wish for that by which God has made some of you excel over others was revealed.

The second - His Almighty's saying: And do not wish. Wishing is a type of desire that is related to the future, just as longing is a type that is related to the past. So God Almighty forbade the believers from wishing because it involves attachment of the mind and forgetting the appointed time. The scholars differed as to whether this prohibition includes envy, which is that the great person wishes to have the condition of his companion even if he does not wish for his condition to disappear. The majority of scholars permit this, Malik and others, and it is what is meant by some of them in his saying, peace be upon him:

There is no envy except from two things: a man to whom God has given the Qur'an and he recites it during the hours of God and during the hours of the day, and a man to whom God has given wealth and he spends it during the hours of the night and during the hours of the day." The meaning of the Most High's statement, There is no envy, is that there is no greater and better envy than envy in these two matters. Al-Bukhari drew attention to this meaning when he titled this hadith Chapter on Enthusiasm in Knowledge and Wisdom. Al-Muhallab said: God the Most High has explained in this verse what it is not permissible to wish for, and that is what is of worldly interest and the like. Ibn 'Atiyyah said: As for wishing for righteous deeds, that is what is good. However, if a person wishes for God without linking his wish to anything that we have mentioned, then that is permissible and that is found in the hadith of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in his saying:

I would like to live then be killed

I said: This is the hadith that Al-Bukhari began his book on wishing for, in his Sahih, and it indicates wishing for good and righteous deeds and desiring them. It includes the superiority of martyrdom over all other righteous deeds, because he, peace be upon him, wished for it and not for anything else. This is due to its high status and the honor of its people, so God granted it to him, as He said:

The food of Khaybar still haunts me now, as if my aorta was cut. In Sahih.

The martyr is asked to make a wish, and he says, 'I wish I could return to the world so I could be killed in Your cause once again.' The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, wished for the faith of Abu Talib, the faith of Abu Lahab, and the leaders of Quraysh, even though he knew that it would not happen. He used to say:

And how I long for my brothers who will come after me and believe in me, though they have not seen me. All of this indicates that wishing is not forbidden if it is not a cause for envy and hatred. The wishing that is forbidden in the verse is of this type, so it includes a man wishing for the status of another in terms of religion or worldly life, so that what the other has will be taken away, whether you wish for it to come back to

And do not wish for that by which Allah has made some of you excel others. Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned. And ask Allah of His bounty. Indeed, Allah is ever, of all things, Knowing.

you or not. This is envy itself, which is what God Almighty condemned in His statement: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? (An-Nisa': 54). It also includes a man proposing to a woman who is proposed to by his brother, and selling to her, because it is a cause for envy and hatred. Some scholars disliked envy, and it is included in the correct prohibition, but it is permissible, as we have explained. May God guide us. Ad-Dahhak said: It is not permissible for anyone to wish for someone else's money. Have you not heard those who said: If only we had the like of what Qarun was given (al-Qasas 28:79) until he said: And those who wished were in his place yesterday (al-Qasas 28:82) when the earth swallowed him up. And with his house and his money, Had it not been that God had been gracious to us, He would have caused the earth to swallow us up. (al-Qasas 28:82) Al-Kalbi said: A man should not wish for his brother's money, nor his wife, nor his servant, nor his beast, but rather he should say: O God, provide me with the like of it. And it is like that in the Torah, and likewise His saying in the Qur'an: And ask God of His bounty. And Ibn Abbas said: God, the Exalted, forbade a man from wishing for mortal money and his family, and He commanded His believing servants to ask Him of His bounty. And from the evidence for the majority is the saying of the Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him:

The worldly life is for four types of al-Nas 114: A man to whom God has given wealth and knowledge, so he fears his Lord thereby, maintains ties of kinship thereby, and teaches God the right to the best of positions. A man to whom God has given knowledge but not wealth, so he is sincere in his intention and says, If I had wealth, I would know thereby what so-and-so does. So he is like his intention, so their reward is equal. The hadith was mentioned earlier. It was narrated by al-Tirmidhi and he declared it saheeh. Al-Hasan said: None of you should wish for wealth, for how does he know that it might lead to his destruction? This is only valid if he wishes it for the worldly life. However, if he wishes it for good, then the Shari'ah has permitted it, so the servant wishes it in order to reach his Lord thereby, and God does what He wills.

Third: The Almighty's saying: For men is a share of what they have earned, meaning clothing and punishment. And for women, this is what Qatada said. So the woman is rewarded for a good deed with ten times the like, just as for men. Ibn Abbas said: What is meant by this is inheritance and acquisition, according to this statement, meaning that the male gets the share of two females. So God Almighty forbade wishing in this manner because of the reasons for envy in it, and because God Almighty knows their interests better than they do, so He made the division between them unequal based on what He knows of their interests.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: And ask God of His bounty. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Ask God for His bounty, for it is obligatory to ask, and the best form of worship is to await relief. Ibn Majah also narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever does not ask God, He will be angry with him. This indicates that the command to ask God Almighty is obligatory. Some scholars took this meaning and organized it, saying:

God gets angry if you stop asking Him, and when a human being is asked, he gets angry.

Ahmed bin Al-Muadhdhal Abu Al-Fadl, the Maliki jurist, said well:

Seek sustenance from someone less than you, if there is a flood that prevents it

He who hates the one who leaves, you ask him for generosity, and he who is pleased with the one who asks

And if he said, his words were transmitted without a signature to a scribe

We have discussed this meaning in detail in the book Qumming Greed with Asceticism and Contentment. Saeed bin Jubair said, And ask God for His bounty. Worship is not a matter of this world. It was said: Ask Him for success in doing what pleases Him. Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: Ask your Lord until you are full, for if God Almighty does not make it easy, it will not be easy. Sufyan bin Uyaynah said: He did not command asking except to give.

Al-Kisa'i and Ibn Kathir read: And ask God of His bounty without a hamza in the entire Qur'an, the rest with a hamza, and ask God originally with a hamza, except that it was deleted for the sake of lightness, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Imam Ahmad said: Sufyan told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, men fight and we do not, and we get half of the inheritance. Then God revealed: And do not wish for that by which God has given some of you more than others. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abi Umar, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Umm Salamah that she said: I said: O Messenger of God, and he mentioned it, and said: Strange. Some of them narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid that Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, and he mentioned it. It was narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak from the hadith of

Al-Thawri from Ibn Abi Najih, from Mujahid who said: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, we will not fight and be martyred, nor will we cut off inheritance. So the verse was revealed, then God revealed: Never will I allow to be lost the work of any worker among you, whether male or female, the verse. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said: Sufyan ibn Uyaynah narrated this from Ibn Abi Najih with this wording. Yahya Al-Qattan and Waki' ibn Al-Jarrah narrated from Al-Thawri, from Ibn Abi Najih, from Mujahid, from Umm Salamah who said: I said: O Messenger of God. And something similar was narrated from Muqatil ibn Hayyan and Khasif. Ibn Jarir narrated from the hadith of Ibn Jurayj from Ikrimah and Mujahid that they said: It was revealed about Umm Salamah. Abd Al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us from an old man from the people of Mecca who said: This verse was revealed about the women saying: If only we were men, so we could fight as they fight, and conquer in the way of God, the Almighty and Majestic. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Ahmad bin Al-Qasim bin Atiyah told us, Ahmad bin Abdul Rahman told me, my father told me, Al-Ash'ath bin Ishaq told us, on the authority of Ja'far, meaning Ibn Abi Al-Mughira, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the verse, he said: A woman came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, a man has the share of two females, and the testimony of two women is equal to that of a man. So this is how we are with regard to deeds. If a woman does a good deed, half a good deed is written for her. So God revealed this verse: And do not wish for the verse, for it is justice from Me and I have done it. Al-Suddi said regarding the verse: The men said: We want to have double the reward of women, just as we have two shares in arrows. The women said: We want to have a reward like the reward of the martyrs, for we are not able to fight, and if fighting were written for us, we would fight. But God refused that, but He said to them: Ask Me for My bounty. He said: It is not for the worldly goods. Something similar to that has been narrated from Qatada. Ali bin Abi Talha said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the verse, he said: A man should not wish and say: I wish I had the wealth of so-and-so and his family, for God has forbidden that, but he should ask God for His bounty. Al-Hasan, Muhammad bin Sirin, Ata' and Ad-Dahhak said something similar to this, and this is the apparent meaning of the verse. What is proven in the Sahih does not contradict this: "There is no envy except in two cases: a man to whom God has given wealth and he spends it in the right way, and a man says: If I had what so-and-so has, I would do the same, so they are equal in reward." This is something other than what the verse has forbidden, because the hadith urges wishing for a blessing like this one, and the verse forbids wishing for the same blessing of this one, so He said: And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others, meaning in worldly matters, and likewise in religious matters as well, according to the hadith of Umm Salamah and Ibn Abbas. And thus, Ata' ibn Abi Rabah said: It was revealed regarding the prohibition of wishing for what belongs to so-and-so, and regarding women wishing to be men and fight in war. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Then he said, Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned. That is, each will be rewarded for his deeds according to his ability, whether good or evil. This is the statement of Ibn Jarir. It was said that what is meant by this is inheritance, that is, each will inherit according to his ability. Narrated by al-Tirmidhi on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Then he guided them to what is good for them, saying, And ask God of His bounty. Do not wish for what We have given some of you over others, for this is inevitable, and wishing will not avail anything, but ask Me of My bounty and I will give it to you, for I am Generous and Giver. Al-Tirmidhi and Ibn Mardawayh narrated from the hadith of Hammad ibn Waqid, I heard Isra'il on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Abu al-Ahwas, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Ask God of His bounty, for God loves to be asked, and the best form of worship is that which is bestowed upon you. Waiting for relief." Then Al-Tirmidhi said: This is how Hammad bin Waqid narrated it, and he is not a hafiz. Abu Na'im narrated it on the authority of Isra'il, on the authority of Hakim bin Jubayr, on the authority of a man, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The hadith of Abu Na'im is more likely to be authentic. This is also how Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Waki' on the authority of Isra'il. Then he narrated it on the authority of Qays bin Al-Rabi' on the authority of Hakim bin Jubayr, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask God for His bounty, for God loves to be asked, and the most beloved of His servants to Him is the one who loves relief. Then he said: Indeed, God is All-Knowing of all things. That is, He is All-Knowing of who deserves this world, so He gives him from it, and who deserves poverty, so He impoverishes him, and He is All-Knowing of who deserves the Hereafter, so He appoints him for its deeds, and who deserves disappointment, so He disappoints him from doing good and its causes. For this reason, he said: Indeed, God is All-Knowing of all things.

His saying 32- And do not wish. Wishing is a type of will related to the future, just as longing is a type related to the past. It contains the prohibition of a person wishing for what God has given to others over him, because that is a type of dissatisfaction with the portion that God has divided among His servants according to His will and perfect wisdom. It also contains a type of envy that is prohibited if it is accompanied by the desire for that blessing to be taken away from others.

Scholars have differed on whether envy is permissible or not. It is to wish that one was in a state like one's friend's without wishing for that person's state to go away. The majority of scholars are of the view that it is permissible, and they have cited as evidence the authentic hadith, "There is no envy except in two cases: a man to whom God has given the Qur'an and he recites it during the hours of God and during the hours of the day, and a man to whom God has given wealth and he spends it during the hours of the night and during the hours of the day." Al-Bukhari included a chapter on envy in knowledge and wisdom on it. The

And do not wish for that by which Allah has made some of you excel others. Men shall have a share of what they have earned, and women shall have a share of what they have earned. And ask Allah of His bounty. Indeed, Allah is ever, of all things, Knowing.

general wording of the verse requires that it is forbidden to wish for something that is preferable, whether it is accompanied by something that would make it a type of envy or not. What is mentioned in the Sunnah about the permissibility of that in certain matters is a specification of this generality. The reason for the revelation of the verse will be mentioned, but the consideration is the generality of the wording and not the specificity of the reason. His statement, Men have a share, etc., contains a specification after the generalization and a return to what is included in the reason for the revelation of the verse, which is that Umm Salamah said, "O Messenger of God, men go out to fight, but we do not go out to fight or fight and become martyrs. Rather, we have half the inheritance," so it was revealed. It was narrated by Abdur-Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi. Similar narrations have been narrated through different chains of narration with different wordings. The meaning of the verse is that God has given each group a share according to what His will and wisdom require. He expressed what each group of men and women has given as a share of what they have earned by way of a dependent metaphor, similar to the condition of each group requiring its share by its acquisition of it. Qatadah said: Men have a share of what they have earned of reward and punishment, and so do women. Ibn Abbas said: What is meant by this is inheritance and acquisition according to this statement, in the sense of what we have mentioned. His statement, And ask God of His bounty, is in apposition to His statement, And do not wish for it. The reasoning is mediated by His statement, For men is a share, etc. between the conjoined and the conjoined to, to confirm what is included in the prohibition. This command indicates the obligation to ask God, the Most High, of His bounty, as stated by a group of scholars.

32- The Almighty said: And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others the verse. Mujahid said: Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, men fight and we do not, and they have twice the inheritance as we do. If we were men, we would fight as they did and take from the inheritance what they took. So this verse was revealed.

It was said: When God Almighty gave the male the share of two females in inheritance, and the women said: We are more deserving and in greater need of the increase than the men, because we are weak and they are stronger and more able to seek a living, then God Almighty revealed: And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others.

Qatada and Al-Suddi said when the verse: For the male is equal to the share of two females was revealed, the men said: We hope that we will be preferred over women because of our good deeds in the Hereafter, so our reward will be double the reward of women, just as we were preferred over them in inheritance. So God Almighty said: For men is a share of what they have earned of the reward, and For women is a share of what they have earned.

Meaning: Men and women are equal in reward in the Hereafter, because a good deed is worth ten times its like, and men and women are equal in this, even though men are superior to women in this world.

It was said: Its meaning is that men have a share of what they have acquired from the matter of jihad, and women have a share of what they have acquired from obeying their husbands and guarding their private parts. That is, if men have the merit of jihad, then women have the merit of obeying their husbands and guarding their private parts.

God the Almighty said: And ask God of His bounty. Ibn Kathir and Al-Kisa'i read Wasalwa, Wasalwa and Wasal and Fasal if there is a Waw or Fa before the Seen without a hamza, and the movement of the Hamza was transferred to the Seen and the rest read the Seen with a sukoon and a hamza. God the Almighty forbade wishing because it leads to envy, and envy is wishing for the removal of a blessing from its owner and wishing it for oneself, and this is forbidden, and envy is wishing for oneself/like what one has, and this is permissible. Al-Kalbi said: A man should not wish for the wealth of his brother, nor his wife, nor his servant, but he should say: O God, provide me with the like of it, and it is like that in the Torah and the Qur'an. His statement: And ask God of His bounty Ibn Abbas said: And ask God of His bounty: meaning: from His provision. Saeed bin Jubair said: from His worship, so it is asking for success in worship. Sufyan bin Uyaynah said: He did not command asking except in order to give. Indeed, God is Knowing of all things.

32 And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others of worldly matters such as status and money, perhaps not having it is better and the reason for the prohibition is that it is a pretext for envy and hostility, expressing dissatisfaction with what God has apportioned for him, and that he desires to obtain something for him without asking for it, and this is reprehensible, because he wished for what was not destined for him in opposition to the wisdom of fate, and wishing for what was destined for him by earning is idleness and wasting luck, and wishing for what was destined for him without earning is lost and impossible. For men is a share of what they have earned, and for women is a share of what they have earned is an explanation of that, meaning that each of men and women has a preference and a share because of what they have earned and for its sake, so seek favor from God the Most High through work, not through envy and wishing, as the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said, Faith is not wishing. It was said that what is meant is the share of the inheritance and the preference of the heirs over one another in it, and making what was apportioned for each of them according to what is known of his condition that necessitates increase and decrease like what he has acquired. And ask God of His bounty meaning do not wish for what is for people, and ask God of His bounty by what will bring you closer to Him and guide you to it. Ibn Kathir and Al-Kisa'i read And ask God of His bounty and ask them, so ask those who are like them if it is a command directed to it, and before the seen is a waw or fa without a hamza and a hamza in the pause according to its origin and the rest with a hamza. Indeed, God is Knowing of all things so He knows what each person deserves and He bestows with knowledge and clarification. It was narrated that "Umm Salamah said: O Messenger of God, men go out to fight and we do not, and we only get half the inheritance. I wish we were men, so it was revealed."

Surat al-Nisa 4:33

And for everyone We have appointed heirs from what parents and near relatives leave, and those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share. Indeed, Allah is ever, over all things, Witness.

Surat al-Nisa 4:33

And for everyone We have appointed heirs from what parents and near relatives leave, and those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share. Indeed, God is ever, over all things, Witness.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And for each of the men and women We have appointed heirs a clan who give from what the parents and near relatives leave to them of wealth and those with whom you have made a covenant with an alif or less of your oaths plural of oath meaning an oath or hand, the allies with whom you made a covenant in the days of ignorance for support and inheritance so give them now their share their portions of the inheritance, which is one-sixth for God is ever, over all things, Witness Seeing, and from this is your situation, and this was abrogated by His statement {And those of kinship are nearer to one another}

The Almighty said: And those with whom you have made a covenant, the verse. Abu Dawud included in his Sunan, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Dawud ibn al-Husayn, who said: I was reading to Umm Sa'd bint al-Rabi', who was staying in the care of Abu Bakr, so I read: And those with whom you have made a covenant, and she said: No, but those with whom you have made a covenant, and it was only revealed about Abu Bakr and his son when he refused Islam, so Abu Bakr swore that he would not inherit from him, but when he converted to Islam, he ordered him to give him his share.

Tafsir al-Tabari

He, the Most High, means by His saying: And for each We have made heirs, and for each of you, O people, We have made heirs, meaning: heirs from among his paternal cousins, brothers, and all his relatives besides them. The Arabs call the cousin a mawla, and from this the poet said:

And a master we threw around him while he was immersed in our honor and the women were fast

He meant by that: And our cousin threw us around him, and from that is the saying of Al-Fadl bin Al-Abbas:

Hold on, cousins, hold on, loyalists, don't show us what was buried.

And in the same way as we said about that, the people of interpretation.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Abu Usama told us, he said, Idris told us, he said, Talha bin Masraf told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And to all We have appointed heirs, he said: heirs.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And for each We have appointed heirs of what the parents leave, he said: The heirs are the agnates, meaning: the heirs.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Muammil told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: with him, And for everyone We have appointed heirs, he said: The heirs are the clan.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement, And to all We have appointed protectors, he said: They are the guardians.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And for everyone We have appointed heirs, meaning: a clan.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And for everyone We have appointed heirs, he said: The heirs are the guardians of the father, or the brother, or the brother's son, or others from the agnates.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And for everyone We have appointed heirs. As for heirs, they are the people of inheritance.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And for each We have appointed heirs, he said: The heirs are the clan. They were the heirs in the pre-Islamic era, but when the non-Arabs entered upon the Arabs, they did not find a name for them, so God, the Blessed and Exalted, said: But if you do not know their fathers, then they are your brothers in religion and your heirs (al-Ahzab 33:5), so they were called: the heirs. He said: And the heir today is of two types: a heir who inherits and is inherited from, so these are the relatives, and a heir who inherits but does not inherit, so these are the freed slaves. And he said: Do you not see the statement of Zachariah: And indeed, I feared the heirs after me (Maryam 19:5), so the heirs here are the heirs.

What he means by his saying: What the parents and relatives left behind is what his parents and relatives left behind as an inheritance.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpretation of the statement is: For each of you, O people, we have made a clan to inherit from what his parents and relatives left of their inheritance.

Abu Jaafar said: The reading of this differed.

Some of them read it as: and those with whom you have made a covenant, meaning: and those with whom you have made a covenant, the oath between you and them. This is the general reading of the Kufians.

Others read it as: And those with whom you have made a covenant, meaning: And those with whom you have made a covenant, and their oaths are the oath between you and them.

Abu Jaafar said: What we say about this is that they are two well-known readings that are widespread in the readings of the Muslim countries with one meaning.

And in the indication of his saying: your oaths that they are the oaths of the contracting parties and those upon whom the oath is contracted, there is no need to indicate that by reading his saying: I contracted, I contracted. That is because those who read that: I contracted, said: The contract of an oath can only be between two parties, and we need an indication in the speech that this is the case. And they overlooked the place of indication of his saying: your oaths, that the meaning of that is your oaths and the oaths of those upon whom the oath is contracted, and that the contract is only a description of the oaths and not the contracting parties of the oath, until some of them claimed that if it is read: I contracted your oaths, then the speech needs a pronoun as a description to protect the speech, so that the meaning of the speech is: and those upon whom you contracted your oaths, departing from the aspect that we said in that, that the oaths are meant by it the oaths of the two parties.

As for your oaths, it is interpreted as: the oaths of these people, the oaths of these people, the oath.

They are close in meaning, even though the reading of the one who reads it as 'aqdat aymankum' without an alif is more correct in meaning than the reading of the one who reads it as 'aqdat', because of what we mentioned, the clear indication of the description of the oaths by the contract, that they are the oaths of the two parties, from the indication of that by something else.

As for the meaning of his saying: Your oaths have been bound, it is: He connected, strengthened, and confirmed. Your oaths, meaning: your covenants that you have bound one another to, so give them their share.

Then the people of interpretation differed about the meaning of the share that God commanded the people of the alliance to give to each other in Islam.

Some of them said: It is his share of the inheritance, because in the pre-Islamic era they used to inherit from each other, so God made it obligatory in Islam for some of them to share that oath with others, and similarly in Islam, in inheritance like what they had in the pre-Islamic era. Then that was abrogated by what was made obligatory for relatives and kin.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Waqid, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah and Al-Hasan Al-Basri, regarding His statement: "And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share. Indeed, God is ever, over all things, Witness." He said: A man would make an alliance with a man between whom there was no blood relation, so one of them would inherit from the other. Then God abrogated that in Al-Anfal, saying: "And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the Book of God. Indeed, God is Knowing of all things." (al-Anfal 8:75)

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, regarding the statement of God: And those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: A man would make a covenant with a man and inherit from him, and Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, made a covenant with a freedman and inherited from him.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And those with whom you have made a covenant of faith, give them their share, so a man would make a covenant with another: whichever of them dies, the other will inherit him. Then God revealed: And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the decree of God than the believers and the emigrants, unless you do to your relatives a kindness (al-Ahzab 33:6), meaning: unless they make a will to their relatives with whom they have made a will, then it is permissible for them from a third of the deceased's wealth. And that is what is known.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding His statement: "And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share. Indeed, God is ever, over all things, Witness." A man would make a covenant with another man in the days of ignorance and say: My blood is your blood, and my destruction is your destruction, you inherit from me and I inherit from you, you seek by me and I seek by you. So he gave him a sixth of all wealth in Islam, and then the heirs would divide their inheritance. This was later abrogated in Surat Al-Anfal, when God said: And those of kinship are closer to one another in the Book of God (al-Anfal 8:75).

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: And those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: In the days of ignorance, a man would make a covenant with another man and say: My blood is your blood, you inherit from me and I inherit from you, you seek by me and I seek by you. Then when Islam came, some of them remained, so they were commanded to be given their share of the inheritance, which was one-sixth, then that was abrogated by inheritance, so He said: And those of kinship are closer to one another (al-Anfal 8:75).

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj bin Al-Munhal told us, he said, Hammam bin Yahya told us, he said, I heard Qatada say, regarding His statement: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, that a man would make a covenant with another man in the Age of Ignorance and say: My destruction is your destruction, and my blood is your blood, and you inherit from me and I inherit from you, and you seek by me and I seek by you. So he gave him a sixth of all the wealth, then the people of inheritance would divide their inheritance. This was later abrogated in Al-Anfal, where He said: And those of kinship are closer to one another in the Book of God (al-Anfal 8:75), so the inheritances were given to those of kinship.

And for everyone We have appointed heirs from what parents and near relatives leave, and those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share. Indeed, Allah is ever, over all things, Witness.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ikrimah, he said: This was an oath that existed in the pre-Islamic era. A man would say to another man: You inherit from me and I will inherit from you, you support me and I will support you, you act rationally on my behalf and I will act rationally on your behalf.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Ad-Dahhak say regarding His statement: And those with whom you have made a covenant, that a man would follow another man and make a covenant with him: If I die, then you will have the same as some of my children inherit! This has been abrogated.

Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding His statement: "And for all We have appointed heirs of that which parents and near relatives leave. And those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share." For in the days of ignorance, a man would be joined to another man and would be his follower, so if the man died, the inheritance would go to his family and relatives, and his follower would remain and not have anything. So God revealed: And those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share. So he would be given from his inheritance. Then God revealed after that: And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the ordinance of God (al-Anfal 8:75).

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed regarding those whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, established brotherhood among the Muhajireen and Ansar, so some of them would inherit from others through that brotherhood. Then God abrogated that with the obligatory shares, and with His saying: And to each We have appointed heirs of that which parents and near relatives leave.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Abu Usamah told us, he said, Idris bin Yazid told us, he said, Talha bin Masraf told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, he said: When the Muhajireen came to Medina, the Muhajireen inherited from the Ansari without his relatives, because of the brotherhood that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had established between them. Then when this verse was revealed: And to each We have made heirs, it was abrogated.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And those with whom you have made a covenant, those with whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made a covenant, then give them their share, if there is no kinship that comes between them. He said: And that does not happen today. Rather, it was with a group between whom the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made a brother, and that has ceased. And this does not happen to anyone except the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He made a brotherhood between the Muhajireen and the Ansar, but today no one is made a brother.

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about the people who made a covenant with an oath, but they were commanded to give each other their shares of support, advice, and the like, without inheritance.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Abu Usama told us, he said, Idris Al-Awdi told us, he said, Talha bin Masraf told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And those to whom you have made a covenant, give them their share of victory, advice, and support, and a will is made for them, and the inheritance has been lost.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid: And those with whom you have made a covenant. He said: There was an oath in the pre-Islamic era, and in Islam they were commanded to give them their share of reason, advice, and support, but no inheritance.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, that he said regarding this verse: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share of aid, victory, and alliance.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: This was an alliance in the pre-Islamic era, but when Islam came, they were ordered to give them their share of support, loyalty, and consultation, and there was no inheritance.

Zakariya bin Yahya bin Abi Zaida told us, Hajjaj told us, Ibn Jurayj said: And those with whom you have made a covenant, Abdullah bin Katheer told me: He heard Mujahid say: It is the oath: You have made a covenant. He said: Then give them their share, he said: Victory.

Zakariya bin Yahya told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, Ibn Jurayj said, Ata' told me, he said: It is the oath. He said:

Then give them their share, he said: Reason and victory.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: They will have their share of victory, provision, and reason.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, something similar.

Al-Muthanna told us, Al-Hammani told us, Sharik told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed: And those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: They are the allies.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Ibad bin Al-Awam told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Muhammad bin Al-Husayn told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share. As for you have made a covenant, it means an oath, like a man in the pre-Islamic era who would descend among the people and they would swear an oath to him that he was one of them, and they would comfort him with themselves. If they had a right or a fight, he would be like them, and if he had a right or support, they would let him down. So when Islam came, they asked about him, and God refused except to make it stronger. And the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Islam has only made the alliance stronger.

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about those who adopted the children of others in the pre-Islamic era, so they were commanded in Islam to make a will for them upon death.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, on the authority of Aqeel, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, he said, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab told me: God said: And for all We have appointed heirs of what parents and near relatives leave, and those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab said: This verse was revealed about those who adopted men other than their sons and left them as inheritance, so God revealed it about them, and gave them a share in the will, and returned the inheritance to the heirs among the relatives and the agnates, and God refused to give the claimants an inheritance from those who claimed them and adopted them, but God gave them a share in the will.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings in interpreting his statement: and those with whom you have made a covenant, is the saying of those who said: and those with whom you have made a covenant on the alliance, and they are the allies. This is because it is known to all the people of knowledge of the days and report of the Arabs that the covenant of alliance between them was by oaths, covenants, and agreements, in the manner that we have mentioned from the narration in that regard.

Since God, the Most High, described only those whose oaths were made by what they made between them, not those who did not make a covenant between them by their oaths, and the brotherhood of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was between those who made brothers between him and him from the Muhajireen and the Ansar, it was not between them by their oaths, and likewise adoption, it was known that the correct statement in that is the statement of the one who said: It is the oath, and nothing else, for the reason we described.

As for his statement: Then give them their share, the more correct of the two interpretations is what everyone agrees upon regarding its established ruling, which is giving the people of the alliance that existed in the Age of Ignorance, excluding Islam, to each other their shares of support, advice, and opinion, excluding inheritance. This is due to the authenticity of the report "On the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: There is no alliance in Islam, and whatever alliance existed in the Age of Ignorance, Islam only made it more severe."

Abu Kuraib told us that, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Mus'ab ibn al-Muqaddam told us, on the authority of Isra'il ibn Yunus, on the authority of Muhammad ibn 'Abd al-Rahman, a freed slave of Talhah, on the authority of 'Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no oath in Islam, and every oath that was made in the Age of Ignorance, Islam only made it more severe. I would not be pleased to have red camels, and to have broken the oath that was made in Dar al-Nadwa."

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Shu'bah ibn al-Taw'am al-Dhabi: "Qais ibn Asim asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the oath, and he said: There is no oath in Islam, but adhere to the oath of the Age of Ignorance."

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mughirah told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Shu'bah bin Al-Taw'am, "on the authority of Qais bin Asim: that he asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the oath, he said: Whatever oath was taken in the pre-Islamic era, hold fast to it, and there is no oath in Islam."

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Wakee' told us, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn Jud'an, on the authority of his grandmother, on the authority of Umm Salamah: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no oath in Islam, and whatever oath there was in the pre-Islamic era, Islam only made it more severe."

Surat al-Nisa 4:33

And for everyone We have appointed heirs from what parents and near relatives leave, and those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share. Indeed, Allah is ever, over all things, Witness.

Humayd ibn Mas`adah told us, he said, Husayn al-Mu`allim told us, and Mujahid ibn Musa told us, he said, Yazid ibn Harun told us, he said, Husayn al-Mu`allim told us, and Hatim ibn Bakr al-Dhabi told us, he said, Abd al-A`la told us, on the authority of Husayn al-Mu`allim, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu`ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather: "That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in his sermon on the day of the conquest of Mecca: Fulfill an oath, for Islam only increases its strength, and do not make an oath in Islam."

Abu Kuraib and Abdah bin Abdullah Al-Saffar told us, they said: Muhammad bin Bishr told us, he said: Zakariya bin Abi Zaida told us, he said: Saad bin Ibrahim told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jubayr bin Mut`im: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no oath in Islam, and whatever oath was taken in the pre-Islamic era, Islam only made it more severe."

Humayd ibn Mas`adah and Muhammad ibn `Abd al-A`la narrated, saying: Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal narrated, saying: `Abd al-Rahman ibn Ishaq narrated, and Ya`qub ibn Ibrahim narrated, saying: Ibn `Ulayyah narrated, on the authority of `Abd al-Rahman ibn Ishaq, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Jubayr ibn Mut`im, on the authority of his father, on the authority of `Abd al-Rahman ibn `Awf: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'I witnessed the oath of the perfumed ones when I was a young boy with my paternal uncles, and I would not like to have red camels and break it.'" Ya`qub added in his hadith on the authority of Ibn `Ulayyah, saying: Al-Zuhri said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'Islam has not made an oath except that it has made it more severe.' He said: 'There is no oath in Islam.' He said: 'The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought together the Quraysh and the Ansar.'"

Tamim bin Al-Muntasir told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, he said: "When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered Mecca in the year of the conquest, he stood up and addressed the people and said: O people, whatever oath was made in the pre-Islamic era, Islam only made it more severe, and there is no oath in Islam."

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Yunus bin Bakir told us, he said, Muhammad bin Ishaq told us, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Khalid bin Mukhallad told us, he said, Sulayman bin Bilal told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin al-Harith told us, on the authority of Amr bin Shu`ayb, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Abu Ja`far said: If what we have mentioned about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is correct, and if there is a difference of opinion about the ruling of a verse, whether it is abrogated or not, it is not permissible to rule that it is abrogated - despite the difference of opinion among those who differ about it, and the necessity of its ruling and the negation of abrogation from it is a correct view - except with an argument that must be accepted, because we have explained in more than one place in our books the evidence for the correctness of the statement about that, then it is necessary that the correct statement about the interpretation of His statement: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, is what we have mentioned of the interpretation, which is that His statement: You have made a covenant is from the oath, and His statement: Give them their share is from support, assistance, advice and opinion, according to what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanded in the reports that we have mentioned about him, without the statement of those who said: The meaning of His statement: Give them their share is from the inheritance, and that this was a ruling then abrogated by His statement: And those of kinship are more worthy of one another in the Book of God (al-Anfal 8:10). 75], and without anything other than what we said in interpreting that.

If what we have said about this is correct, then the verse must be decisive and not abrogated.

Abu Ja`far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: So give those to whom you have pledged your oaths their share of support, advice, and opinion, for God is witness to what you do of that and of your other actions, observing all of that, preserving it, until He rewards all of you for all of that with its reward. As for the one among you who does good and follows My command and obeys Me, then with good, and as for the one among you who does evil and disobeys My command and prohibition, then with evil.

The meaning of his saying: witness is someone who testifies to that.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has five issues:

First - God Almighty has made clear that every person has heirs and clients, so let each one benefit from what God has allotted him of the inheritance and not wish for the money of others. Al-Bukhari narrated in the Book of Inheritance on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And for everyone We have appointed clients from what parents and near relatives leave and those with whom you have made a covenant (An-Nisa': 33). He said:

When the emigrants arrived in Medina, the Ansari would inherit from the emigrant without his kin, due to the brotherhood that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had established between them. When the verse, And to each We have appointed heirs, was revealed, he said: And those with whom you have made a covenant, Abu al-Hasan ibn Battal said: It appears in all the versions, And to each We have appointed heirs, he said: And those with whom you have made a covenant, and al-Tabari narrated it in his narration. It was narrated from the majority of the Salaf that the verse that abrogated the statement, And those with whom you have made a covenant, is the statement of God the Almighty in al-Anfal 8: And those of kinship are nearer to one another (al-Anfal 8:75). This was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Qatadah, and al-Hasan al-Basri, and it is what Abu Ubaid established in his book, The Abrogator and the Abrogated, and there is another statement in it that al-Zuhri narrated from Saeed ibn al-Musayyab, who said: God the Almighty commanded those who adopted other than their sons in the pre-Islamic period and inherited in Islam to give them a share in the will and to return the inheritance to the kin and the agnates. A group said: God the Almighty's statement, And those with whom you have made a covenant, Your oaths are firm and not abrogated. Rather, God commanded the believers to give the allies their shares of support, advice, and the like. Al-Tabari mentioned it on the authority of Ibn Abbas. And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share of support, advice, and provision. And a will is made for them, and the inheritance is gone. This is the opinion of Mujahid and Al-Suddi.

I said: Al-Nahhas chose it, and narrated it on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, and the abrogation is not correct, because the combination is possible, as Ibn Abbas explained in what Al-Tabari mentioned, and Al-Bukhari narrated it on his authority in the Book of Interpretation, and the inheritance of the womb will come in Al-Anfal, God willing.

The second - al in the speech of the Arabs and its meaning is comprehensiveness and generality. If it comes alone, then there must be an omission in the speech according to all grammarians, to the point that some of them permitted I passed by every example before and after and the estimation of the oath: And for each one We have made allies, meaning heirs. And those with whom you have made a covenant, meaning by swearing, according to Qatada. That is because a man would make a covenant with another man and say: My blood is your blood, my destruction is your destruction, my revenge is your revenge, my war is your war, my peace is your peace, you inherit from me and I inherit from you, you demand by me and I demand by you, you pay for me and I pay for you, so the ally would have a sixth of the ally's inheritance, then it was abrogated.

Third: The Almighty's saying: Mawla Know that the word mawla is a general term that is used in many ways. The freedman is called a mawla and the freedman is called a mawla. It is also said: the lower and the higher mawla. The supporter is called a mawla, and from this is the Almighty's saying: And that the disbelievers have no master (Muhammad 47:11). The cousin is called a mawla and the neighbor is called a mawla. As for the Almighty's saying: And to all We have appointed masters, he means a clan, because of his saying, peace be upon him:

And what the arrows left, then the first is the male agnatic "and among the agnatic relatives is the upper master, not the lower, according to the opinion of most scholars, because the concept regarding the freedman is that he is the one who bestows favors upon the freedman, like the one who created him, so he is entitled to his inheritance for this meaning. And Al-Tahawi narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Ziyad that the lower master inherits from the upper, and he provided evidence for it with what was narrated that a man freed a slave of his, then the freedman died and left only the freedman, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made his inheritance for the freed boy. Al-Tahawi said: There is no opposition to this hadith, so it is necessary to say it: And because if it is possible to prove the inheritance for the freedman on the assumption that he was like the one who was created for him, then he is similar to the father, and the lower master is similar to the son, and that requires equality between them in the inheritance, and the principle is that the connection is general. And in the hadith:

The master of the people among them. Those who disagreed with this, and they are the majority, said: Inheritance requires kinship, and there is no kinship. However, we have established the inheritance for the freedman by virtue of the favor bestowed upon the freedman, which requires that the favor be met with recompense, and this is not reflected in the case of the lower master. As for the son, he is the most deserving of being his father's successor and taking his place, and the freedman is not fit to take the place of his freedman. Rather, the freedman was bestowed a favor upon him, so the law met him by making him more deserving of his freed master, and this does not exist in the case of the lower master. Thus the difference between them is clear, and God knows best.

Fourth: The Most High said: "And those with whom you have made a covenant." Ali bin Kabsha narrated on the authority of Hamza: And those with whom you have made a covenant. With emphasis on the qaf for emphasis, and the well-known saying on the authority of Hamza is: And your covenanted right hands with a light qaf, and this is the reading of Asim and Al-Kisa'i, and it is a distant reading because the covenant can only be between two or more, so its root is fa'il. Abu Ja'far Al-Nahhas said: The reading of Hamza is permissible due to ambiguity in Arabic, in which the estimation is: And those with whom you have made a covenant, the oath, and it is transitive to two objects, and its estimation is: And your covenanted right hands for them the oath, then the lam was deleted, like the Most High said: And when they measure out to them (al-Mutaffifin 83:3), meaning they measure out to them, and the second object was deleted, as it is said: I measured out to you, meaning I measured out to you wheat, and the first object was deleted because it is connected in the connection.

Fifth - The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is, over all things, a witness. That is, He witnessed your contract with them, and He, the Almighty, loves loyalty.

Surat al-Nisa 4:33

And for everyone We have appointed heirs from what parents and near relatives leave, and those with whom you have made a covenant, so give them their share. Indeed, Allah is ever, over all things, Witness.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Saeed bin Jubair, Abu Saleh, Qatadah, Zaid bin Aslam, Al-Suddi, Al-Dahhak, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and others said, regarding His statement, And for each We have appointed heirs, meaning inheritors. And from Ibn Abbas in a narration: meaning a clan. Ibn Jarir said: The Arabs call the son of the paternal uncle a client, as Al-Fadl bin Abbas said:

Hold on, cousins, hold on, our loyalists, don't show us what was buried.

He said: What he means by his saying, from what the parents and near relatives leave behind, is from the inheritance of his parents and near relatives. So the interpretation of the statement is: And for all of you, O people, We have made a clan to inherit from what his parents and near relatives leave behind from their inheritance for him. And the saying of God Almighty: And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, meaning, and those with whom you have made a solemn oath, you and they, give them their share of the inheritance as you promised them in the solemn oaths. Indeed, God is a witness between you in those covenants and agreements. This was at the beginning of Islam, then it was abrogated after that and they were commanded to fulfill their covenant with those with whom they made the covenant, and not to create a new covenant after the revelation of this verse. Al-Bukhari said: Al-Salt bin Muhammad told us, Abu Usamah told us, on the authority of Idris, on the authority of Talhah bin Masraf, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And to each We have appointed heirs, he said: heirs, and those with whom you have made a covenant, when the Muhajireen came to Medina, the Ansari Muhajireen would inherit without his relatives because of the brotherhood that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had established between them. When And to each We have appointed heirs, was revealed, it was abrogated. Then He said, And to those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, of support, provision, and advice, and the inheritance had gone and a will was made for him. Then Al-Bukhari said: Abu Usamah heard Idris, and Idris heard from Talhah. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashj told us, Abu Usamah told us, Idris Al-Awadi told us, Talhah bin Masraf told me from Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, and those with whom you have made a covenant, the verse, he said: When the Muhajireen came to Medina, the Ansari Muhajireen would inherit without his relatives. By the brotherhood that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, established between them, so when the verse was revealed, And for each We have appointed heirs from that which parents and near relatives leave, it was abrogated. Then he said, And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, and Al-Hasan bin Muhammad bin Al-Sabah told us, Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj and Uthman bin Ata' on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said, And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, so before Islam, a man would make a covenant with another man and say: You inherit from me and I inherit from you, and the living would make alliances, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Every alliance that was in the pre-Islamic era or a contract that Islam came to, Islam only increases its strength, and there is no covenant or alliance in Islam, so this verse abrogated it, And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the Book of God, then he said, and it was narrated on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, Mujahid, Ata', Al-Hasan bin Al-Musayyab, Abu Salih, Sulayman bin Yasar, Al-Sha'bi, Ikrimah, Al-Suddi, Al-Dahhak, Qatadah, and Muqatil bin Hayyan, that they said: They are the allies. Imam Ahmad said: Affan told us, Sharik told us, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas - and he traced it back to the Prophet - who said: There was no oath taken in the pre-Islamic era, but Islam only made it more intense. Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Abu Kurayb told us, Mus'ab ibn al-Miqdam told us, on the authority of Isra'il ibn Yunus, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman, the client of the family of Talhah, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There is no oath in Islam, and every oath taken in the pre-Islamic era, Islam only made it more intense. I would not be pleased to have red camels and to break the oath that was taken in Dar al-Nadwa." This is the wording of Ibn Jarir. Ibn Jarir also said: Yaqub bin Ibrahim told us, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Ishaq, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Muhammad bin Jubayr bin Mut'im, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Awf, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I witnessed the oath of the perfumed ones when I was a young boy with my paternal uncles, and I would not like to have red camels and break it. Al-Zuhri said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Islam has not made an oath except that it has increased its strength. He said: And there is no oath in Islam. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought together the Quraysh and the Ansar. And thus Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Bishr bin al-Mufaddal, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Ishaq, on the authority of al-Zuhri in full. And Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, Hisham told us, Mughirah told me on the authority of his father, on the authority of Shu'bah bin al-Tawwam, on the authority of Qays bin `Asim: that he asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the oath. He said: Whatever oath was made in the pre-Islamic era, hold fast to it, and there is no oath in Islam. And thus Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Hisham. And Abu Kurayb told us, Waki' told us on the authority of Dawud bin Abi 'Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn Jud'an, on the authority of his grandmother, on the authority of Umm Salamah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no oath in Islam, and whatever oath was made in the pre-Islamic era, Islam only made it more severe. Abu Kuraib narrated to us, Yunus bin Bakir narrated to us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Ishaq, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered Mecca in the year of the conquest, he stood up and addressed the people and said: O people, no oath was made in the pre-Islamic era except for Islam to make it more severe, and no oath is made in Islam. Then he narrated it from the hadith of Husayn al-Mu'allim and Abd al-Rahman bin al-Harith, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on his authority. Imam Ahmad said: Abdullah bin Muhammad narrated to us, Ibn Numayr and Abu Usamah narrated to us, on the authority of Zakariya, on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Jubayr bin Mut'im, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: There is no oath in Islam, and no oath was made in the pre-Islamic era except for Islam to make it more severe. And thus Muslim narrated it on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad, who is Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah, with his chain of transmission similarly. And Abu Dawud narrated it on the authority of Uthman, on the authority of Muhammad bin Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Muhammad bin Bishr, Ibn Numayr and Abu Usamah, all three of them on the authority of Zakariya, who is Ibn Abi Zaydah, with his chain of transmission similarly. And Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Muhammad bin Bishr with it. And An-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Ishaq bin Yusuf Al-Azraq, on the authority of Zakariya, on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Nafi' bin Jubayr bin Mut'im, on the authority of his father with it. And Imam Ahmad said: Hisham told us, he said: Mughirah told us on the authority of his father, on the authority of Shu'bah bin Al-Taw'am, on the authority of Qays bin Asim that he asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the oath, so he said: Whatever oath was taken in the pre-Islamic era, adhere to it, but there is no oath in Islam. And Shu'bah narrated it likewise on the authority of Mughirah, who is Ibn Muqsim, on the authority of his father with it. Muhammad bin Ishaq said on the authority of Dawud bin Al-Hussain, he said: I used to recite to Umm Saad bint Saad bin Al-Rabi' with her grandson Musa bin Saad, and she was an orphan in the care of Abu Bakr, so I recited to her and those with whom you have made a covenant and she said: No, but and those with whom you have made a covenant she said: It was only revealed about Abu Bakr and his son Abd Al-Rahman when he refused to convert to Islam, so Abu Bakr swore that he would not inherit from him, so when he converted to Islam when he carried on Islam with the sword, God commanded that he be given his share, narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim, and this is a strange statement, and the correct one is the first, and that this was at the beginning of Islam, they would inherit by oath, then it was abrogated and the effect of the oath remained after that, even though they were commanded to fulfill the covenants and contracts, and the oath that they had contracted before that, and it was mentioned in the hadith of Jubayr bin Mut'im and other companions: There is no oath in Islam, and any oath that was in the pre-Islamic era, Islam only made it more severe, and this is a text in refutation of those who went to inheritance by oath today, as is the doctrine of Abu Hanifa and his companions, And a narration from Ahmad ibn Hanbal, and the correct opinion is the opinion of the majority, Malik, al-Shafi'i, and Ahmad in the well-known opinion from him, and for this reason the Almighty said: And for each We have appointed heirs of that which parents and near relatives leave meaning heirs from among his relatives from his parents and near relatives, they inherit from him without the rest of the people, as was proven in the two Sahih from Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Give the obligatory shares to those entitled to them, and whatever remains is for the closest male relative meaning divide the inheritance among those entitled to the obligatory shares whom God mentioned in the two verses on obligatory shares, and whatever remains after that give it to the agnates. And His statement, And those with whom you have made a covenant, meaning before this verse was revealed, then give them their share, meaning of the inheritance. So any oath made after that has no effect. It has been said that this verse abrogated the oath in the future and the ruling on the past oath as well, so there is no inheritance by it, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashj told us, Abu Usamah told us, Idris Al-Awdi told us, Talha bin Masraf told me on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: then give them their share, he said: of support, advice, and provision, and he should bequeath to him after the inheritance has gone. And Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Abu Kurayb on the authority of Abu Usamah, and something similar was narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Abu Malik. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: His statement, And those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: A man would make a covenant with another man, whichever of them died, the other would inherit him, so God Almighty revealed, And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the ordinance of God than the believers and the emigrants, unless you do to your relatives a kindness, meaning: unless they make a will to their relatives who have made a will, then it is permissible for them from a third of the deceased's wealth, and this is what is known, and thus more than one of the predecessors stated that it was abrogated by His statement, And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the ordinance of God than the believers and the emigrants, unless you do to your relatives a kindness, and Saeed bin Jubair said: Then give them their share, meaning of the inheritance. He said: Abu Bakr made a covenant with a freed slave, so he inherited from him, narrated by Ibn Jarir. Al-Zuhri said on the authority of Ibn al-Musayyab: This verse was revealed about those who adopted men other than their sons and inherited from them, so God revealed about them, and gave them a share in the will, and returned the inheritance to the freedmen in the womb and the agnates, and God refused that the claimants should have an inheritance from those who claimed them and adopted them, but He gave them a share in the will. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Jarir chose that what was meant by his saying, Then give them their share, was of support, advice, and assistance, not that what was meant was Then give them their share of the inheritance so that the verse would be abrogated, nor that it was a ruling then abrogated, but rather the verse indicated the fulfillment of the oath made on support and advice only, so it is decisive and not abrogated. What he said is questionable, for some oaths were for support and assistance, and some were for inheritance as narrated by more than one of the predecessors, and as Ibn Abbas said: The emigrant would inherit from the Ansari without His relatives and kin until it was abrogated, so how can they say that this verse is decisive and not abrogated? And God knows best.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 33- And for each We have appointed heirs from what parents and near relatives leave meaning: We have appointed for each person heirs who are his heirs, so for each a second object is placed before the verb to emphasize the comprehensiveness, and this sentence confirms the meaning of what preceded it: that is, so that each person may follow what God has apportioned for him from the inheritance, and not wish for what God has given others to do with more than him - and it has been said that this verse was abrogated by His saying after it and those with whom you have made a covenant and it has been said: the opposite as narrated by Ibn Jarir. The majority of scholars have said that what abrogated His saying and those with whom you have made a covenant is His saying, the Most High: And those of kinship are nearer to one another and the heirs are the plural of mawla, and it is used for the freedman and the freedman and the helper and the cousin and the neighbor and it has been said: what is meant here is the agnates: that is, for each We have appointed agnates who inherit what the obligatory shares leave. His saying, And those to whom you have made a covenant means those who are loyal allies: a man from the people of ignorance would make a covenant with another man, meaning he would form an alliance with him and thus he would be entitled to a share of his inheritance. Then it was established in the early days of Islam by this verse, then it was abrogated by His saying, And those of kinship are more worthy of one another. The reading of the majority is aqadat and it was narrated from Hamza that he read aqadat with a shaddah on the qaf for emphasis: meaning those to whom you have made a covenant with the oath, or whose covenants you have made your oaths. The meaning according to the reading of the majority is: And those to whom you have made a covenant with the oath, so give them their share meaning what you have given them by making an oath.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

33- The Almighty said: And for everyone We have appointed heirs meaning: And for every one of the men and women We have appointed heirs, meaning: a clan who gives from what the parents and near relatives leave behind, and the parents and near relatives are the inheritors, (And it was said: Its meaning is: And for everyone We have appointed heirs, meaning: inheritors, from what he left, meaning: from those he left behind, and what is in the sense of (from), then he explained the heirs and said: The parents and near relatives are the inheritors.)

And those with whom you have made a covenant, the people of Kufa read aqdat without an alif, meaning: you have made a covenant with them, and the others read: aqdat aymanukum. The covenant is the alliance and the treaty from ayn, the plural of yameen, from hand and oath, and that is because when they made an alliance, they would take each other's hand to fulfill and adhere to the covenant. Their covenant was that in the pre-Islamic period, a man would make a covenant with another man and say: My blood is your blood, my destruction is your destruction, my revenge is your revenge, my war is your war, my peace is your peace, you inherit from me and I inherit from you, you seek by me and I seek by you, you pay for me and I pay for you, so the ally would have a sixth of the ally's wealth, and that was established at the beginning of Islam, so that is what God Almighty said: Then give them their share, meaning: give them their share of the inheritance, then that was abrogated by God Almighty's saying: And those of kinship are closer to one another in the Book of God (al-Ahzab 33:6).

Ibrahim and Mujahid said: He meant, Give them their share of victory and support, but no inheritance. Based on this, this verse is not abrogated, because God Almighty said: Fulfill your contracts (al-Ma'idah 5:1). The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in a sermon on the day of the conquest of Mecca: Do not make an alliance in Islam, and whatever alliance was made in the Age of Ignorance, hold fast to it, for Islam has only made it more severe.

Ibn Abbas may God be pleased with him said: This verse was revealed about those whom the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) made brothers of the Muhajireen and Ansar when they came to Medina and they inherited from each other through brotherhood rather than through kinship. When the verse, And to each We have appointed heirs, was revealed, it was abrogated. Then He said, And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, of support, provision, and advice, and the inheritance had gone and he was to bequeath to them. Saeed bin Al-Musayyab said: They inherited from each other through adoption and this verse is about it, then it was abrogated by Indeed, God is ever, over all things, Witness.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

33 And for each We have appointed heirs of what the parents and near relatives leave meaning, for each inheritance We have appointed an heir to protect it and preserve it, and from what was left is a statement of each with the separation by the factor. Or for each dead person We have appointed an heir of what was left, on the basis that from the connection of the heirs. Because it is in the meaning of the inheritor, and in leaving the pronoun of each and the parents and near relatives is a resumption explaining the heirs, and in it the children are excluded, for the near relatives do not include them as they do not include the parents, or for each people We have appointed heirs of a share of what the parents and near relatives leave, on the basis that We have made the heirs of the description of each and the one referring to it is deleted, so the sentence is a subject and a predicate. And those with whom you have made a covenant the heirs of the allegiance, the ally would inherit a sixth of the wealth of his ally, so it was abrogated by His statement: And those of kinship are more worthy of one another. And from Abu Hanifa, may God have mercy on him: If a man converts to Islam at the hands of another and contracts to be kin and inherit from one another, it is valid and he inherits. Or the spouses on the basis that the contract is the marriage contract and it is a subject within the meaning of the condition and its predicate. So give them their share or accusative with an implied noun that is explained by what follows it like your saying: Zaid, hit him or conjoined with the parents, and his saying So give them is a sentence caused by the previous sentence, confirming it, and the pronoun refers to the clients. The Kufians read I have contracted meaning I have contracted their covenants, your oaths, so the covenants were deleted and the pronoun added to it was established in its place, then deleted as was deleted in the other reading. Indeed, God is, over all things, a witness a threat to prevent their share.

Surat al-Nisa 4:34

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

Surat al-Nisa 4:34

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what God has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what God would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, God is Most High and Most Great.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Men are in charge of women disciplining them and taking them by the hand by [right of] what God has given some of them to excel others that is, by His giving them preference over them in knowledge, reason, guardianship, and other things and by what they spend on them (of their wealth. So the righteous) among them are obedient obedient to their husbands and guard [the husband's] private parts and other things in the absence of their husbands by what God has guarded for them as God has guarded for them, as He has commanded their husbands to do with them and those on whose part you fear rebellion their disobedience to you, such that its signs have become apparent admonish them so make them fear God and leave them alone in their beds move away to another bed if they show rebellion and strike them a strike that is not severe if they do not return to abandonment but if they obey you in what is desired of them then seek not seek against them a way a way to strike them unjustly for God is ever High, Grand. Beware that He may punish you if you wrong them.

God Almighty said: Men are in charge of women. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan that a woman came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to seek redress from her husband for slapping her. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Retaliation. Then God revealed: Men are in charge of women. The verse: So she returned without retribution.

Ibn Jarir narrated from several chains of transmission on the authority of Al-Hasan, and in some of them, that a man from the Ansar slapped his wife, so she came seeking retaliation, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, made retaliation between them, so the following was revealed: And do not hasten with the Qur'an before its revelation is completed to you, and the following was revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women. Something similar was narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj and Al-Suddi.

Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ali, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with his wife, and she said to him: O Messenger of God, he hit me and left a mark on my face. The Messenger of God said: He has no right to do that. Then God revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, the verse. These are pieces of evidence that strengthen each other.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, Men are in charge of women, is that men are in charge of their wives, in disciplining them and taking them by the hand in what is due to them for the sake of God and for themselves, because God has given some of them more than others, meaning: because God has given men more than their wives: by giving them their dowries, spending their money on them, and providing for their needs. This is God's, the Most Blessed, the Most High, preference of them over them, and for this reason they became in charge of them, enforcing the command over them in what God has given them of their affairs.

And what we said about that, the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Men are in charge of women, meaning: they are leaders, and she must obey him in what God has commanded her to do in terms of obeying him, and obeying him means that she should be good to his family, protect his wealth, and favor him over her through his spending and his efforts.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Men are in charge of women, because God has given one more strength than the other, he said: The man is in charge of the woman, ordering her to obey God, and if she refuses, then he has the right to beat her, but not severely, and he has the advantage over her through his spending and his efforts.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Men are in charge of women, he said: They take them by the hand and discipline them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, I heard Sufyan say: Because God has favored some of them over others, he said: Because God has favored men over women.

It was mentioned that this verse was revealed about a man who slapped his wife, so the dispute was brought before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled that she should be punished.

The report mentioned that:

Muhammad ibn Bashar told us, Abd al-A'la told us, Sa'id told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said, al-Hasan told us: "A man slapped his wife, so she came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he wanted to take revenge on him, so God revealed: 'Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, because God has given one more [strength] than the other, and because they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth.' So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, called him and recited it to him, and said: 'I intended one thing and God intended something else.'"

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, because God has given one over the other and because they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth, he told us that a man slapped his wife, so she came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and then he mentioned something similar.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, he said: A man seized his wife, so she came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he wanted to restrain her from him, so God revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Jarir ibn Hazim, on the authority of Al-Hasan: "A man from the Ansar slapped his wife, so she came seeking retaliation, but the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, decided that retaliation should be taken between them, so this verse was revealed: 'And do not hasten with the Qur'an before its revelation is completed to you' (Ta-Ha 20:114), and this verse was revealed: 'Men are the maintainers of women, because God has given one more strength than the other.'"

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said: A man slapped his wife, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, wanted retaliation. While they were like that, the verse was revealed.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: As for Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, a man from the Ansar had a conversation with his wife, so he slapped her. Her family went and mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he told them: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women the verse.

Al-Zuhri used to say: There is no retaliation between a man and his wife for anything less than a soul.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, I heard al-Zuhri say: If a man wounds or injures his wife, there is no retaliation against him for that, but he is required to pay blood money, unless he attacks her and kills her, in which case he is killed for her.

As for his saying: And what they spent of their money, he means: And what they gave them as a dowry, and what they spent on them as maintenance, like:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Salih told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: He preferred her over him with his spending and his efforts.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, I heard Sufyan say: And what they spent of their wealth, what they brought as a dowry.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the statement is: Men are the maintainers of their women, because God has given them preference over them, and because they spend on them from their wealth.

What is the meaning of the source in His statement: because of what God has favored, and what is the meaning of the source in His statement: because of what they have spent.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: Then the righteous women, are those who are upright in religion and do good, such as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Abdullah bin Al-Mubarak told us, he said, I heard Sufyan say: The righteous women, they do good.

His saying: obedient, means: obedient to God and their husbands, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Qanitanat, he said: obedient.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Qanitat, he said: obedient.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Qanitanat means obedient.

Al-Hasan bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Qanitanat means: obedient to God and to their husbands.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of

Surat al-Nisa 4:34

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

Qatada, he said: Obedient.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: The obedient, the submissive.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said: I heard Sufyan say regarding His statement: obedient to their husbands, he said: obedient to their husbands.

We have previously explained the meaning of Qunut, that it is obedience, and we have provided evidence for the correctness of that, which makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

As for his saying: Guardians of the unseen, he means: Guardians of themselves when their husbands are absent from them, in their private parts and their money, and in what is obligatory upon them from the right of God in that and other things, such as:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Guardians of the unseen, meaning: Guardians of what God has entrusted to them of His right, and guardians of the unseen of their husbands.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Guarding the unseen as God has guarded, meaning: She guards her husband's money and her private parts until he returns, as God has commanded her.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: I said to Ata', what does his statement, guardians of the unseen mean? He said: Guardians of the husband.

Zakariya bin Yahya bin Abi Zaida told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj said: I asked Ata' about guardians of the unseen, he said: Guardians of wives.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, I heard Sufyan say: Guardians of the unseen, guardians of their husbands, when they are absent from their affairs.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Abu Ma'shar told us, he said, Sa'id bin Abi Sa'id Al-Maqburi told us, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of women is the woman who pleases you when you look at her, obeys you when you command her, and protects you in herself and your property when you are away from her." He said: Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, the verse.

Abu Ja'far said: This report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, indicates the correctness of what we said in interpreting that, and that its meaning is: righteous in their religion, obedient to their husbands, and protective of them in themselves and their wealth.

As for his saying: With what God has preserved, the readings differed in its reading.

The general reading in all Islamic countries is: By what God has preserved, raising the name of God, meaning: By God's preservation of them, since He made them thus, as:

Zakariya bin Yahya bin Abi Zaida told me, he said, Hajjaj told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj said, I asked Ata' about his statement: With what God has preserved, he said, he says: God has preserved them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said: I heard Sufyan say regarding his statement: By what God has preserved, he said: By God's preservation of it, that He made it thus.

Abu Ja'far Yazid bin Al-Qa'qa' Al-Madani read it as: By what God has preserved, meaning: By God's preservation of them in His obedience and in fulfilling His right by what He has commanded them to do in preserving the secrets of their husbands, like a man saying to another man: I have not preserved God in such and such, meaning: I have not observed Him nor feared Him.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct reading in this regard is what the Muslims have read in a way that eliminates the excuse of the one who hears it and establishes his argument against him, without what Abu Ja'far alone did and deviated from them. This reading is with the name of God in the nominative case: By what God has preserved, even though this is correct in Arabic and the speech of the Arabs, and it is ugly to put it in the accusative case in Arabic, because it is outside the well-known language of the Arabs.

This is because the Arabs do not delete the subject with verbal nouns, because if the subject is deleted with them, the verb does not have a known owner.

In the speech there is something omitted that is sufficient to mention due to the apparent meaning of the speech. Its meaning is: So the righteous women are obedient and guard the unseen as God has guarded, so be good to them and do good.

And it is the same in what was mentioned in the reading of Ibn Masoud.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Abi Hammad told us, he said, Isa al-Ama told us, on the authority of Talha bin Masraf, he said: In Abdullah's recitation: "The righteous women are devoutly obedient, guarding in the husband's absence what God would have him guard. So make amends to them. And those from whom you fear rebellion."

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: The righteous women are obedient and guard in the unseen what God has guarded, so be good to them.

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Then righteous women are obedient, guarding in the husband's absence what God would have them guard, so treat them well.

Ali bin Dawud told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Then righteous women are obedient, guarding in the husband's absence what God would have them guard, meaning: If they are like this, then treat them well.

The interpreters differed regarding the meaning of his statement: and those from whom you fear disobedience.

Some of them said: It means: and those whose disobedience you know.

The direction of the fear, in this place, to knowledge, in the saying of these people, is similar to the direction of the suspicion to knowledge, because their two meanings are close, since suspicion is doubt, and fear is coupled with hope, and they are both from the actions of a person in his heart, as the poet said:

Do not bury me in the desert, for I fear that if I die I will not taste it.

Meaning: I know, and as the other said:

I heard a word about fate saying something and I was not afraid. Oh my, you are a faultfinder.

Meaning: I did not think so.

A group of interpreters said: The meaning of fear in this context is fear that is the opposite of hope. They said: The meaning of that is: If you see from them something that you fear will cause them to rebel against you, such as looking at what they should not look at, entering and exiting, and you are suspicious of their affair, then admonish them and leave them alone. Among those who said that was Muhammad ibn Ka'b.

As for his saying: their disobedience, he means: their arrogance towards their husbands, and their disobedience towards their beds, and their disagreement with them in what they are obligated to obey, out of hatred and turning away from them.

The origin of the word nashuz is elevation. Hence, the word nashaz refers to a high place on the ground.

Advise them, meaning: remind them of God and make them fear His threat, regarding her committing what God has forbidden her to do, such as disobeying her husband in what He has obligated her to obey him in.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Mention of those who said: rebellion, hatred and disobedience to the husband.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And those from whom you fear disobedience, he said: Hatred of them.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And those from whom you fear disobedience, he said: The one from whom you fear disobedience. He said: Disobedience is disobeying him and the opposite.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: And those from whom you fear disobedience, that is the woman who is disobedient, and who belittles the rights of her husband and does not obey his command.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ruh told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj told us, he said, Ata' said: Disobedience is that you love to separate from him, and the man is like that.

Mentioning the narration of someone who said what we said about his statement: Advise them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Advise them, meaning: admonish them with the Book of God. He said: God commanded him, if she was disobedient, to admonish her and remind her of God and magnify His right over her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And those from whom you fear disobedience, admonish them, he said: If a woman rebels against her husband's bed, he says to her: Fear God and return to your bed! If she obeys him, then he has no power over her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: If a woman rebels against her husband, then let him admonish her with his tongue. He says: He orders her to fear God and obey Him.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Musa ibn Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi, who said: If a man sees a lightness in her eyesight, her entrance and exit, he should say to her with his tongue: I saw such and such from you, so stop! If she repents, he has no right over her. If she refuses, he should abandon her bed.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Then admonish them, he said: If a woman rises from her husband's

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

bed, then he says to her: Fear God and go back.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ata': Advise them, he said: with words.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: So admonish them, he said: with tongues.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr ibn Abi Qais, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, Advise them, he said: Admonish them with the tongue.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: So admonish them for their rebellion against you, O husbands. If they refuse to review the right in that and the duty that is upon them towards you, then abandon them by not having intercourse with them while you are sleeping with them.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: So admonish them and leave them alone in their beds, meaning: admonish them, and if they obey you, then leave them alone.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And leave them alone in their beds, meaning by leaving them alone: that the man and his wife be in one bed and not have intercourse with her.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Ata' bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: Abandonment is abandoning sexual intercourse.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: As for you fear their disobedience, then her husband must advise her, and if she does not accept, then he should forsake her in the bed. He says: He should lie down next to her, turn his back to her, and have intercourse with her, but not speak to her. This is how it is in my book: and have intercourse with her, but not speak to her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: He lies with her, and leaves her alone, and turns his back to her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: Do not have intercourse with them.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: And leave their talk about their abandoning your bed, until they return to sleeping with you.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib and Abu Al-Sa'ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Ubaid God, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds, that it is not to be left alone in speech, but rather the abandonment is in the matter of the bed.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Abu Hamza told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: And leave them alone in their beds, meaning: until they come to your beds.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: And leave them alone in their beds, in intercourse.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: He advises her, and if she accepts, then fine, otherwise he leaves her alone in the bed, and does not speak to her, without abandoning marriage to her, and that is difficult for her.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah: And leave them alone in their beds, speech and hadith.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: Do not approach them in their beds until they return to what you love.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Zuraiq Al-Tahawi told me, he said, Abu Bakr bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: Do not sleep with them.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: Desertion means not sleeping with her.

And he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Amer and Ibrahim, they said: Desertion in the bed, that he does not sleep with her on the bed.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mughirah told us on the authority of Ibrahim and Al-Sha'bi that they said regarding His statement: And leave them alone in their beds, they said: He should leave her alone until she returns to what he loves.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Ibrahim and al-Sha'bi, that they used to say: And leave them alone in their beds. They said: He should leave her alone in his bed.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Habban told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Muqsim: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: He left her alone in her bed: that he does not approach her bed.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Musa ibn Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi, who said: And leave them alone in their beds. He said: He admonishes her with his tongue, and if she repents, he has no right over her, and if she refuses, he leaves her bed.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Hasan and Qatadah, regarding his statement: Advise them and leave them alone, they said: If he fears her disobedience, he should admonish her. If she accepts, then fine, otherwise he should leave her bed.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatadah: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: You begin, O son of Adam, and admonish her, and if she refuses you, then leave her alone, meaning: her bed.

Others said: The meaning of his saying: And leave them alone in their beds, is to say to them words of abandonment when they leave you to sleep with them.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: He should leave her alone with his tongue, be harsh with her in his speech, and not refrain from having intercourse with her.

And he said, Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Desertion is only by speech: that he is harsh with her, and not by intercourse.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Mughirah told us, on the authority of Abu al-Dhaha regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: He leaves them alone with words, but he does not leave her alone with him until she returns to what he wants.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Abdul-Warith bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: He should not abandon her except at night, in the bed. He is not allowed to abandon her in speech or anything except in bed.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ya'la told me, on the authority of Sufyan, regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds, he said: In having intercourse with her, but he says to her: Come and do it, words that are harsh. So if she does that, he does not force her to love him, because her heart is not in her hands.

Abu Jaafar said: There is no meaning for abandonment in the speech of the Arabs except in one of three ways.

One of them: A man abandons a man's speech and conversation, which means rejecting and leaving him. It is said: So-and-so abandoned his family, abandoning them completely and deserting them.

The other: to talk a lot by repeating it like the speech of a mocker. It is said of it: So-and-so talked nonsense in his speech, if he talked nonsense and prolonged the speech, and that continued to be his nonsense and his nonsense. From it is the saying of Dhu al-Rummah:

He threw and missed, and fate is dominant, so he obeyed, and woe is his migration and war

The third: The camel's abandonment, if its owner ties it with the hajar, which is a rope tied around its waist and wrist, and from this is the saying of Imru' al-Qais: She saw death in Najaf al-Ghabit, so she almost found that hajar.

As for the speech that contains harshness and harm, it is ihjar, and it is said: So-and-so spoke ihjar in his speech, if he said ihjar, which is obscene speech, ihjar, ihjar and hajar.

Since there is no reason for desertion in speech except one of the three meanings, and the woman whose disobedience is feared, her husband is only commanded to admonish her so that she will return to obeying him in what is required of her by him of meeting him when he calls her to his bed, then it is not permissible for his admonition to be for that until the woman returns to the command of God and obeys her husband in that, then the husband is commanded to desert her in the matter for which he admonished her.

If that is the case, then the statement of the one who said: The meaning of his saying: And leave them alone in their beds, and leave their intercourse is invalid.

Or it could be - since this meaning is invalid - meaning: And abandon their speech because they have abandoned your beds. This also has no clear basis. Because God, the Most High, mentioned it, has informed us on the tongue of His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that it is not permissible for a Muslim to abandon his brother for more than three days. However, if that were permissible, then abandoning her in speech would not have a clear meaning. Because if she is turning away from him and rebellious towards him, then it is part of her pleasure that he does not speak to them or see her and she does not see him. So how can a man be ordered, in the case of his wife hating him and turning away from him, to abandon what would make her happy in abandoning him, such as abandoning intercourse with her, talking to her, and speaking to her? And he is ordered to beat her so that she will be deterred from what she is doing of abandoning his obedience when he calls her to his bed, and other things in which she is obliged to obey him.

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

Or - if these two meanings are invalid - its meaning is: And abandon your speech to them, meaning: Repeat your speech to them when you speak to them, by being harsh with them. If that is its meaning, then there is no reason to use abandonment as a metaphor for the names of rebellious women, I mean in the ha and the noon in His statement: And abandon them. Because if that meaning was intended by it, then the action would not have occurred. Rather, it is said: So-and-so abandoned his speech, and it is not said: So-and-so abandoned so-and-so.

Since there is in all of these meanings what we mentioned of the subsequent error, then the most correct of the sayings in that is that his saying: And leave them alone, directs its meaning to the meaning of tying with abandonment, based on what we mentioned from what the Arabs say about a camel if its owner ties it with a rope in the manner we described: he abandoned it, so he abandons it with abandonment.

If that is what is meant, then the interpretation of the statement is: And those women from whom you fear rebellion, admonish them regarding their rebellion against you. If they take heed, then you have no recourse against them. But if they refuse to return from their rebellion, then secure their safety in their beds, meaning: in their homes and houses in which they lie down and sleep with their husbands, as:

Abbas bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yahya bin Abi Bakr told us, on the authority of Shibl, he said, I heard Abu Qaza'ah narrating, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, "on the authority of Hakim bin Mu'awiyah, on the authority of his father: that he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: What are the rights of one of our wives over him? He said: He should feed her, clothe her, not strike her in the face, not insult her, and not abandon her except in the house."

Al-Hasan bin Arafa told us, he said, Yazid bin Harun told us, on the authority of Shu'bah bin Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Abu Qaz'ah, on the authority of Hakim bin Mu'awiyah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, "Buhaiz bin Hakim told us, on the authority of his grandfather, he said, I said: O Messenger of God, what do we do with our women and what do we leave? He said: Your field, so go to your field however you wish, but do not strike the face, do not insult, and do not abandon except in the house, and feed when you eat, and clothe when you clothe yourself. How can that be when some of you have gone to one another? Except with what is permissible for them."

And in a similar manner to what we said in the interpretation of that, several of the people of interpretation said.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: If a woman rebels against her husband, then he should admonish her verbally. If she accepts, then that is good. Otherwise, he should beat her, but not severely. If she returns, then that is good. Otherwise, it is permissible for him to take her and leave her.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Ubaid God, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And leave them alone in their beds and beat them, he said: He does that to her, and beats her until she obeys him in bed. Then if she obeys him in bed, then he has no right over her if she sleeps with him.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, Yahya ibn Bishr told us: that he heard Ikrimah say regarding His statement: And leave them alone in their beds and beat them, a beating that is not severe. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Beat them if they disobey you in what is right, a beating that is not severe.

Abu Ja'far said: All of those we mentioned said: They did not require desertion to have any meaning other than beating. And they did not require desertion, since it was one of the forms in which the beaten woman is when beaten, with the evidence of the report narrated by `Ikrimah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he ordered them to be beaten if they disobeyed their husbands in what is right, without his ordering their husbands to desert them, for the reason we described.

Abu Ja'far said: If someone thinks that what we have said in the interpretation of the report from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, which was narrated by `Ikrimah, is not as we have said, and it is correct that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, left the command of the man to abandon his wife if she disobeys him in what is right and commanded him to beat her before abandoning her, if it was evidence of the correctness of what we have said that the meaning of abandonment is what we have explained, then it would be necessary that there would be no meaning to God's command to her husband to admonish her if she is disobedient, since there was no mention of admonition in 'Ikrimah's report from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

The matter in this regard is contrary to what he thought. That is because his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace: If we disobey you in what is right, is clear evidence that it is not permissible for a man to beat his wife, except after admonishing her for her rebelliousness. That is, she should not be disobedient to him, except that he has previously commanded her or admonished her with what is right, as God has commanded.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: So admonish them, O men, for their disobedience. If they refuse to return to what is due to you, then bind them tightly in their homes and beat them until they return to what is due to them in obeying God in what is due to them of your rights.

The people of interpretation said: The type of beating that God permitted the husband of a rebellious wife to beat is non-severe beating.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: And beat them, he said: A beating that is not severe.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Abu Hamza told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, similarly.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: The beating is not severe.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And beat them, he said: A beating that is not severe.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And leave them alone in their beds and beat them, he said: Leave her alone in your bed, and if she accepts, then fine, otherwise God has given you permission to beat her, but not severely, and do not break any of her bones. If she accepts, then fine, otherwise you are permitted to pay a ransom from her.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Hasan and Qatadah, regarding his statement: And beat them, he said: A beating that is not severe.

And he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, Ibn Jurayj told us, I said to Ata': And beat them? He said: A beating that is not severe.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And leave them alone in their beds and beat them, he said: Leave her alone in your bed. If she refuses you, then beat her with a beating that is not severe, meaning: not shameful.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', he said: I said to Ibn Abbas: What is a non-severe beating? He said: The siwak and the like, he beats her with it.

Ibrahim bin Saeed Al-Jawhari told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', he said, I said to Ibn Abbas: What is a non-severe beating? He said: With a siwak and the like.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Habban bin Musa told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in his sermon: A non-severe beating, he said: The siwak and the like.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do not abandon women except in bed, and beat them with a beating that is not severe, meaning: not affecting.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ata': And beat them, he said: A beating that is not severe.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Habban told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Yahya bin Bishr told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And beat them, he said: If she returns to desertion, otherwise beat her, but not severely.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Musa ibn Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b, he said: She should leave her bed as long as she does not stop. If she does not stop, he should beat her, but not severely.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Al-Hasan: And beat them, he said: A beating that is not severe.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Habban told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, Abdul-Warith bin Saeed told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: A beating that is not severe, but does not leave a lasting effect.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God the Almighty means: If your women, whom you fear will rebel when you admonish them, obey you, O people, then do not abandon them in bed. If they do not obey you, then abandon them in bed and beat them. If they return to your obedience at that time and return to what is required of them, then do not seek a way to harm them and dislike them, and do not seek a way to what is not permissible for you of their bodies and wealth by making excuses. That is when one of you says to one of them while she is obedient to him: You do not love me, and you hate me, and he beats her or harms her for that. So God the Almighty said to the men:

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

If they obey you meaning: in their hatred of you, then do not wrong them, and do not force them to love you, because that is not in their hands, so beat them or harm them for it.

The meaning of his saying: So do not seek, is do not seek or ask, from the saying of the speaker: I sought the lost thing, if I sought it, and from it is the saying of the poet in describing death:

He wanted you and you didn't want him, until you found him as if you had made an appointment with him yesterday

Meaning: your request and what you ask for.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: But if they obey you, do not seek a way against them, he said: If they obey you, do not seek to cause them any harm.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Ubaid God, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: If she obeys him, then he has no right over her if she sleeps with him.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Ibn Jurayj told us, regarding his statement: So do not seek a way against them, he said: the causes.

He said: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Al-Thawri said regarding his statement: If she obeys you, he said: If she comes to bed and she hates him.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ya'la told us, on the authority of Sufyan, he said: If she does that, she will not be forced to love him, because her heart is not in her hands.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: If she obeys him and sleeps with him, then God says: But if they obey you, do not seek a way against them.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: If they obey you, do not seek a way against them, meaning: If they obey you, do not seek to cause them harm.

Abu Ja'far said: He says: God is exalted over all things, so do not seek, O people, a way over your wives - if they obey you in what God has obligated them to do to you - by raising your hands over their hands, for God is higher than you and over everything over you - than you over them, and greater than you and everything, and you are in His hand and grip, so fear God lest you wrong them and seek a way over them, while they are obedient to you, so your Lord will take revenge for them from you, who is higher than you and everything, and greater than you and everything.

It contains eleven issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: Men are in charge of women is a subject and predicate, meaning they are responsible for providing for them and defending them. Also, among them are the rulers and princes and those who fight, and this is not the case with women. It is said: in charge and in charge. The verse "was revealed about Sa'd ibn al-Rabi'. His wife, Habibah bint Zayd ibn Kharijah ibn Abi Zuhair, rebelled against him, so he slapped her. Her father said:

O Messenger of God, I spread it out, my daughter, and he slapped her. So he, peace be upon him, said: Let her take revenge on her husband. So she went away with her father to take revenge on him. So he, peace be upon him, said: Go back. This is Gabriel who came to me. So God revealed this verse. So he, peace be upon him, said: We wanted something and God wanted something else. And in another narration: I wanted something and God wanted nothing better. And the first ruling was overturned. It was said: In this rejected ruling, it was revealed: "And do not hasten with the Qur'an before its revelation is completed to you." (Ta-Ha 20:114) Ismail bin Ishaq mentioned: Hajjaj bin Al-Minhal and Arim bin Al-Fadl told us - and the wording is from Hajjaj - he said: Jarir bin Hazim told us. He said: I heard Al-Hasan say: "A woman came to the Prophet, peace be upon him, and said: My husband slapped me in the face. So he said: Retaliation is between you." So God, the Most High, revealed: And do not hasten with the Qur'an before its revelation is completed to you. And the Prophet, peace be upon him, held back until it was revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women. Abu Rawq said: It was revealed about Jamilah bint Abi and her husband Thabit bin Qais bin Shammas. Al-Kalbi said: It was revealed about Umairah bint Muhammad bin Maslamah and her husband Saad bin Al-Rabi'. It was said that the reason for it was the statement of Umm Salamah that was mentioned earlier. The reason for the arrangement is that they spoke about the preference of men over women in inheritance, so the verse Do not wish for the verse was revealed. Then the Almighty explained that their preference over women in inheritance is due to what men owe in terms of dowry and spending. Then the benefit of their preference goes back to them. It is said that men have a virtue in increasing their intellect and management, so He gave them the right to be guardians over them for that reason. It was said that men have an increase in strength in the soul and nature that women do not have because the nature of men is dominated by heat and dryness, so there is strength and intensity in it, while the nature of women is dominated by moisture and coldness, so there is a meaning of softness and weakness in it. So He gave them the right of guardianship over them for that reason and by His Almighty's statement: And for what they spend of their wealth.

The second - This verse indicates that men should discipline their women. If they preserve the rights of men, then the man should not treat them badly. The word qawwam is used to exaggerate the meaning of taking charge of something and taking control of it and preserving it through diligence. So the man's taking charge of women is to this extent, which is that he should manage and discipline her, keep her in her home and prevent her from appearing, and that she must obey him and accept his command as long as it is not a sin. The explanation for that is virtue, provision, reason, and strength in matters of jihad, inheritance, enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong. Some of them have taken into consideration the beard in the preference, but it is nothing, because the beard may be present and not have anything of what we mentioned. The response to this has already been mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Third: The scholars understood from the Almighty's saying: And what they spend from their wealth that if he is unable to provide for her, he is not her guardian, and if he is not her guardian, she has the right to annul the contract, because the purpose for which marriage was prescribed has disappeared. This is clear evidence from this perspective that the annulment of the marriage contract is proven in the event of insolvency in providing for her, and this is the school of Malik and al-Shafi'i. Abu Hanifa said: It is not annulled, based on the Almighty's saying: But if he is in hardship, then let there be postponement until it is easy for him to repay her (al-Baqarah 2:280). We have already discussed this in this surah.

Fourth: The Almighty's saying: Then righteous women are obedient and guard in [the husband's] absence. All of this is righteousness, and its purpose is to command obedience to the husband and to fulfill his right in his wealth and in herself in the husband's absence. In Musnad Abi Dawud al-Tayalisi, "On the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The best of women is the one who pleases you when you look at her, obeys you when you command her, and protects you in yourself and your property when you are away." He said: And he recited this verse: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women to the end of the verse. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Umar:

Shall I not tell you of the best thing that a man can treasure? A righteous woman, if he looks at her, she pleases him, if he commands her, she obeys him, and if he is absent from her, she guards him? Abu Dawud narrated: In the Mushaf of Ibn Mas'ud, it says: The righteous are devout and guard. This is a construction that is specific to the feminine. Ibn Jinni said: The broken form is more similar in wording to meaning, as it gives abundance, which is what is intended here. Ma in his statement: By what God has preserved is a source, meaning by God's preservation of them. It is correct for it to mean who, and the pronoun in preservation is an accusative pronoun. In Abu Ja'far's reading, By what God has preserved, it is accusative. An-Nahhas said: The nominative is clearer, meaning: guarding the absence of their husbands by God's preservation, assistance, and guidance. It was also said: By what God has preserved them in their dowries and companionship. It was also said: By what God has entrusted them with, in fulfilling the trusts to their husbands. The meaning of the accusative reading is: By God's preservation of them, meaning by their preservation of His command or religion. It was said in the estimation: And by what God has preserved, then the verb was made singular, as it was said:

I like accidents.

It was said: The meaning is by God's protection like I protected God.

Fifth: The Almighty's saying: And those on whose part you fear rebellion. "Allat" is the plural of allat, and it has already been mentioned. Ibn Abbas said: You fear means you know and are certain. It was said that it is in its proper form, and rebellion is disobedience, taken from nashaz, which is what is elevated from the ground. It is said: a man nashaza he rises if he was sitting and then stood up. From this is the saying of the Almighty: And when it is said, 'Rise,' then rise (Al-Mujadilah: 11), meaning rise up and get up to war or a matter of God Almighty's affairs. The meaning is: that you fear their disobedience and their arrogance towards what God has obligated upon them of obeying their husbands. Abu Mansur the linguist said: Nushuz is the hatred of each of the spouses for the other. It is said: Nashazat tanshaz so she is Nashiz without ha and Nashast tanshas which is bad for the relationship. Ibn Faris said: Nashazat the woman is difficult for her husband and her husband is Nashaz with her if he beats her and treats her harshly. Ibn Duraid said: Nashazat the woman, Nashast and Nashast have the same meaning.

Sixth: The Almighty's saying: So admonish them, meaning with the Book of God, meaning remind them of what God has obligated upon them of good companionship and beautiful treatment of the husband, and acknowledging the status he has over her. He says: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If I were to command anyone to prostrate to anyone, I would command a woman to prostrate to her husband." He said: She should not prevent herself from him, even if she is on the back of a camel. He said:

Any woman who spends the night away from her husband's bed will be cursed by the angels until morning. In one narration, until she returns and places her hand in his hand. And there is no such thing.

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: And leave them alone

Surat al-Nisa 4:34

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

in their beds. Ibn Masoud, Al-Nakha'i, and others read in the bed in the singular, as if it were a generic noun that replaces the plural. Abandonment in the beds means that he lies with her and turns his back to her and does not have intercourse with her, according to Ibn Abbas and others. Mujahid said: Avoid their beds. This statement can be interpreted as an omission, and it is supported by abandon them from abandonment, which means distance. It is said: He abandoned him, meaning he distanced himself and kept away from him. Its meaning is not possible except by not sleeping with her. Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Al-Sha'bi, Qatadah, and Al-Hasan Al-Basri said its meaning. Ibn Al-Mawfa narrated it, and this statement would be like saying: Abandon him for the sake of God. This is the origin of Malik.

I said: This is a good statement, because if the husband turns away from her bed, if she loves the husband, this will be difficult for her, so she will return to righteousness. But if she hates him, then her rebellion will appear, and it will become clear that the rebellion is from her. It was said: Abandon them from abandonment, which is ugly speech, meaning speak harshly to them and sleep with them for intercourse and other purposes. Sufyan said its meaning. It was narrated from Ibn Abbas: It was said: Meaning tie them up in their houses, from their saying: He abandoned the camel, meaning he tied it with the hajar, which is a rope by which a camel is tied. This is the choice of al-Tabari and he criticized all other statements. His statement in this regard is questionable, and Judge Abu Bakr ibn al-Arabi responded to him in his rulings, saying: What a slip of the tongue from a scholar of the Qur'an and Sunnah. What led him to interpret this is a strange hadith narrated by Ibn Wahb from Malik that Asma' bint Abi Bakr al-Siddiq, the wife of al-Zubayr ibn al-Awwam, used to go out until she was reprimanded for that. He said: And she and her co-wife were reprimanded. He tied the hair of one of them with the other and then beat them both severely. The co-wife was better at avoiding things, but Asma did not, so she was beaten more. She complained to her father Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, and he said to her: "O my daughter, be patient, for Al-Zubayr is a righteous man, and perhaps he will be your husband in Paradise. It has reached me that if a man is in a hurry with a woman, he will marry her in Paradise." So he saw the binding and the knot with the possibility of the wording with Al-Zubayr's action, so he proceeded with this interpretation. The limit of this estrangement according to the scholars is a month, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did when he confided in Hafsa, so she disclosed it to Aisha and they conspired against him, and it does not reach the four months that God set as a deadline as an excuse for the master.

Eighth - The Almighty's saying: And beat them. God commanded that women should begin with admonition, first, then with desertion. If that does not work, then beating, because that is what will make her right and make her fulfill his right. Beating in this verse is a non-severe disciplinary beating, which does not break a bone or disfigure a limb, such as a punch or the like, because the purpose of it is to reform and nothing else. So if it leads to death, then compensation is required. The same is said about a teacher beating his slave to teach the Qur'an, and in Sahih Muslim.

Fear God in dealing with women, for you have taken them as a trust from God, and you have made their private parts lawful for you by the word of God. You have a right over them that they should not let anyone you dislike enter your bed. But if they do, then beat them with a harm that is not severe. The hadith was narrated by Jabir in the long hadith about Hajj, meaning that they should not let anyone you dislike enter your homes from relatives or foreign women. This is what was narrated by al-Tirmidhi and authenticated by him. "On the authority of Amr ibn al-Ahwas, that he witnessed the Farewell Pilgrimage with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he praised God and extolled Him, and reminded and admonished, and he said:

Be careful with women, for they are prisoners with you, and you have no control over them except that, unless they commit a clear indecency. If they do, then leave them alone in bed and beat them, but not severely. If they obey you, then seek no way against them. Be careful, for you have rights over your women, and your women have rights over you. As for your rights over your women, they should not let anyone you dislike enter your homes, nor should anyone you dislike enter your homes. Be careful, for their rights over you are that you treat them well in their clothing and food." He said: This is a good and authentic hadith. His saying with a clear indecency means that they should let in someone whom their husbands dislike, and not anger them. What is meant by that is not adultery, for that is forbidden and the prescribed punishment is due. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Beat women if they disobey you in something good, but not severely. Ata' said: Ibn Abbas was killed. What is a non-severe beating? He said: With a toothpick or something similar. It was narrated that Omar, may God be pleased with him, beat his wife, and he was reprimanded for that, so he said:

I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: A man should not be asked why he beat his wife.

Ninth - The Almighty's saying: If they obey you meaning they stop being disobedient. Then seek no way against them meaning do not wrong them by word or deed. This is a prohibition against oppressing them after establishing the favor upon them and enabling them to discipline them. It was said: The meaning is do not force them to love you, for it is not up to them.

Tenth - The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is ever High and Great. This is an indication to the wives by lowering the wing and being gentle, meaning that if you have power over them, then remember God's power, for His hand is above all hands in power, so no one should be arrogant towards his wife, for God is watching. Therefore, it is good to describe here with highness and greatness.

Eleventh - If this is proven, then know that God Almighty did not command in anything in His Book to strike explicitly except here and in the great limits, so He equated their disobedience to their husbands with the disobedience of major sins, and He gave the husbands that instead of the imams and made it for them instead of the judges without witnesses or evidence, as a trust from God Almighty for the husbands over the women. Al-Muhallab said: He only permitted striking women because of their refusal to have intercourse with their husbands, and there was disagreement about the obligation to strike her in service, and analogy requires that if it is permissible to strike her in intercourse, then it is permissible to strike her in the service that is obligatory for the husband upon her in a reasonable manner. Ibn Khuwayz Mandad said: And rebellion cancels the maintenance and all marital rights, and it is permissible with it for the husband to strike her with a non-severe disciplinary strike, and preaching and desertion until she returns from her rebellion, and when she returns, her rights are restored, and likewise everything that requires discipline, then it is permissible for the husband to discipline her.

The situation differs in the etiquette of high and lowly conduct. The etiquette of high conduct is reproach, and the etiquette of lowly conduct is the whip. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

May God have mercy on the man who hangs up his whip and disciplines his family. He said:

Abu Jahm does not put his stick down from his shoulder, Bashar said.

The free man has a beard, but the stick is for the slave.

He is beardless, that is, he is blamed. Ibn Duraid said:

Blame is a permanent deterrent for the free man, but nothing can deter the slave except the stick.

Ibn al-Mundhir said: The scholars agreed that the husbands must provide for the expenses of their wives if they are all wronged, except for the rebellious and refusing wife. Abu Omar said: If a wife rebels against him after he has consummated the marriage, her expenses are no longer required of him unless she is pregnant. Ibn al-Qasim disagreed with the group of jurists regarding the expenses of the rebellious wife and made them obligatory. If the rebellious wife returns to her husband, her expenses are obligatory in the future. The expenses of a woman are not dropped from her husband for anything other than rebelliousness, neither sickness, nor menstruation, nor postpartum bleeding, nor fasting, nor Hajj, nor the absence of her husband, nor his withholding from her for a right or injustice other than what we have mentioned. And God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Men are in charge of women meaning that men are in charge of women, meaning that they are their leaders, their chiefs, their rulers and their teachers if they deviate, because God has given some of them more than others meaning that men are better than women, and men are better than women, and for this reason prophethood was specific to men, as well as the greatest kingship, as the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: A people will never succeed who entrust their affairs to a woman narrated by Al-Bukhari from the hadith of Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakra from his father, and so is the position of judge and other than that, and because of what they spend from their wealth meaning from the dowries, expenses and expenses that God has obligated upon them for them in His Book and the Sunnah of His Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), so men are better than women in themselves, and they have superiority and favor over her, so it is appropriate for him to be in charge of her, as God the Almighty said: And men have a degree over them (al-An'am 2:100). Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Men are in charge of women meaning princes, she must obey him in what he commands her to do. His obedience, and his obedience means being kind to his family and preserving his money. This is what Muqatil, Al-Suddi, and Al-Dahhak said. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: A woman came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, complaining that her husband had slapped her. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Retaliation. Then God Almighty revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women 7:13. So she returned without retaliation. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it through various chains of transmission on his authority. Qatada, Ibn Jurayj, and al-Suddi also transmitted this report. Ibn Jarir included all of that, and Ibn Mardawayh attributed it to him through another chain of transmission. He said: Ahmad ibn Ali al-Nasa'i told us, Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Hashemi told us, Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Ash'ath told us, Musa ibn Ismail ibn Musa ibn Ja'far ibn Muhammad told us, he said: My father told us, on the authority of my grandfather, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Muhammad, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ali, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with a woman of his. She said: O Messenger of God, her husband is so-and-so ibn so-and-so al-Ansari, and he slapped her and left marks on her face. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: He has no right to do that. Then God Almighty revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women 7:13. Literature, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I wanted one thing and God wanted something else. Al-Sha'bi said about this verse: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women by [right of] what God has given one over the other and what they spend from their wealth. He said: The dowry that he gave her. Don't you see that if he slandered her, it would not be on her behalf, and if she slandered him, she would be flogged. And the Almighty's statement: Then the righteous women meaning women, are obedient Ibn Abbas and others said: meaning obedient to their husbands, guarding [their] husbands in their absence Al-Suddi and others said: meaning they protect themselves and their wealth from their husbands in his absence. And His statement: by what God has preserved meaning what is preserved is what God has preserved. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Abu Salih told us, Abu Ma'shar told us, Sa'id ibn Abi Sa'id al-Maqburi told us on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of women is the woman who, when you look at her, pleases you, and when you command her, she obeys you, and when you are away from her, she protects you in herself and your property. He said: Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women to the end of it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Yunus ibn Habib, on the authority of Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Dhi'b, on the authority of Sa'id al-Maqburi, with the same wording. Imam Ahmad said: Yahya bin Ishaq told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Ubayd God bin Abi Ja'far: Ibn Qarath told him that Abd al-Rahman bin Awf said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If a woman prays her five prayers, fasts her month, guards her chastity, and obeys her husband, it will be said to her: Enter Paradise through whichever of the gates you wish." Ahmad alone transmitted it on the authority of Abd God bin Qarath on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Awf. God the Almighty said: And those women on whose part you fear rebellion meaning the women on whose part you fear rebellion against their husbands. Rebellion is rising up, so the rebellious woman is the one who rises up against her husband, abandons his command, turns away from him, and hates him. So when signs of rebellion appear in her, let him admonish her and frighten her with God's punishment for disobeying Him, for God has made the husband's right over her obligatory and has forbidden her from disobeying him because of his favor and favor over her. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If I were to command anyone to prostrate to anyone, I would command the woman to prostrate to her husband because of the greatness of his right over her. Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If a man calls his wife to his bed and she refuses him, the angels curse her until morning. Muslim narrated it, and its wording is: If a woman spends the night avoiding her husband's bed, the angels curse her until morning. That is why

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

God the Almighty said: And those on whose part you fear rebellion Advise them. And his saying, and leave them alone in their beds, Ali ibn Abi Talhah said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Abandonment means that he does not have intercourse with her, and lies with her on her bed and turns his back to her, and more than one person said the same. Others, including al-Suddi, al-Dahhak, Ikrimah, and Ibn Abbas in one narration, added: and he does not speak to her with that or talk to her. Ali ibn Abi Talhah also said, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: He advises her, and if she accepts, then he should leave her alone in the bed, and he should not speak to her without abandoning marriage with her, and that is severe for her. Mujahid, al-Sha'bi, Ibrahim, Muhammad ibn Ka'b, Muqsim, and Qatadah said: Abandonment means that he does not lie with her. Abu Dawud said: Musa ibn Ismail told us, Hammad ibn Salamah told us, on the authority of Ali ibn Zayd, on the authority of Abu Hurairah al-Raqashi, on the authority of his uncle, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, If you fear their disobedience, then leave them alone in their beds. Hammad said: He meant marriage. In Sunan and Musnad, on the authority of Muawiyah bin Haidah Al-Qushayri, he said: O Messenger of God, what are the rights of one of our wives over him? He said: That you feed her when you eat, clothe her when you clothe yourself, do not strike her in the face, do not insult her, and do not abandon her except in the house. And his saying: And beat them, meaning if they are not deterred by admonition or desertion, then you may beat them with a non-severe beating, as was proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Jabir on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said during the Farewell Pilgrimage: "And fear God with regard to women, for they are captives to you, and you have a right over them that they should not let anyone you dislike share your bed. But if they do that, then beat them with a non-severe beating, and they have a right over you to provide for and clothe them in a reasonable manner." And Ibn Abbas and others said the same: a non-severe beating. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: meaning without affecting her. The jurists said: It is that he does not break a limb in her or affect her in any way. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: He deserts her in bed, and if she accepts, then fine, otherwise God has permitted you to beat her with a non-severe beating, and do not break a bone of hers. But if she accepts, then fine, otherwise God has permitted you to pay a ransom from her. Sufyan ibn Uyaaynah said on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abdullah ibn Umar, on the authority of Iyas ibn Abdullah ibn Abi Dhibab, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Do not beat the female servants of God. Umar, may God be pleased with him, came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Women are angry with their husbands. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, granted permission to beat them. Many women came around the family of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, complaining about their husbands. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Many women have come around the family of Muhammad complaining about their husbands. They are not the best of you." Narrated by Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, and Ibn Majah. Imam Ahmad said: Sulayman ibn Dawud, meaning Abu Dawud al-Tayalisi, narrated to us, Abu 'Awana narrated to us, on the authority of Dawud al-Awdi, on the authority of 'Abd al-Rahman al-Sulami, on the authority of al-Ash'ath ibn Qays, who said: I visited 'Umar may God be pleased with him, and he took hold of his wife and beat her. He said: O Ash'ath, remember three things from me that I have memorized from the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him): Do not ask a man why he beat his wife, and do not sleep except on an odd number. And he forgot the third. Abu Dawud, al-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah narrated it in the same way from the hadith of 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi, on the authority of Abu 'Awana, on the authority of Dawud al-Awdi. And the words of God the Almighty: But if they obey you, seek no way against them mean that if a woman obeys her husband in all that he wants from her, which God has permitted him to do, then he has no way against her after that, and he does not have the right to beat her or desert her. And His words: Indeed, God is ever High, Great are a threat to men if they transgress against women without a reason, for God the High, the Great is their protector, and He will take revenge on whoever wrongs them or transgresses against them.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 34- Men are in charge of women because God has given some of them more than others. This sentence is a new sentence that includes a statement of the reason for which men deserve the increase, as if it was said: How did men deserve what they deserved when women did not share in it, so He said Men are in charge of women etc., and what is meant is that they defend them just as rulers and princes defend the care, and they also provide what they need of expenses, clothing, and housing. He used the exaggerated form in his statement are in charge of women to indicate their originality in this matter, and the ba in his statement because God has given some of them more than others is for causality and the pronoun in his statement some of them over others refers to men and women: meaning that they only deserved this advantage because God gave men more than women because He gave them more than others by having among them caliphs, sultans, rulers, princes, and conquerors, and other matters. His saying, and because of what they spent, meaning: because of what they spent of their money. What is a source or relative pronoun, and it is the same in his saying, because of what God has favored. "Man" is a partial pronoun, and what is meant is what they spent on spending on women, and what they paid as dowries from their money, and likewise what they spend in jihad and what is required of them in terms of reason.

A group of scholars have used this verse as evidence for the permissibility of annulling a marriage if the husband is unable to provide for his wife and clothe her. Malik, Ash-Shafi'i and others said the same. His statement, Then the righteous women means women, are obedient to God means obedient to God, fulfilling what is required of them of God's rights and the rights of their husbands, guarding the unseen means what is required of them when their husbands are away from them, such as guarding their lives and their wealth. The phrase by what God has guarded is a source: by God's guarding. The meaning is that they guard their husbands' unseen by God's guarding, assistance and guidance for them, or they guard for him by what He has entrusted them with, by fulfilling the trust to their husbands in the manner that God has commanded, or they guard for him by God's guarding for them by what He has commanded husbands to do regarding them of good treatment. It is permissible for ma to be a relative pronoun and the pronoun to be omitted. Abu Ja'far read by what God has guarded in the accusative case of the noble name. The meaning of by what they have preserved God is that they have preserved His command, or they have preserved His religion. The pronoun referring to them was omitted due to knowledge of it. Ma in this reading is a verbal noun or relative pronoun, like the first reading: that is, by what God has preserved, or by what they have preserved God with. His statement, and those on whose part you fear rebellion is addressed to the husbands. It was said that fear here is in its proper context, and it is a state that occurs in the heart when something unpleasant happens, or when it is thought that it will happen. It was also said that what is meant by fear here is knowledge. And rebellion is disobedience. The original meaning of its meaning in the language has been explained above. Ibn Faris said: It is said that a woman rebelled against her husband, and her husband rebelled against her: if he beats her and treats her harshly. Advise them means remind them of what God has obligated upon them of obedience and good treatment, and encourage them and frighten them. And abandon them in bed is said that he abandoned him: meaning he distanced himself from him. Beds: plural of bed, which is the place of lying down. That is, stay away from lying down with them and do not put them under the clothes that they put on you when lying down. It was said: It is for him to turn his back to her when lying down. It was said: It is a metaphor for not having intercourse with her. It was said: Do not spend the night with him in the house in which he lies down. And beat them meaning a non-severe beating. The apparent meaning of the Qur'anic system is that it is permissible for the husband to do all of these things when he fears rebellion. It has been said that he should not abandon her except after the preaching has lost its effect. If the preaching has no effect, then the effect has not been transferred to abandonment. If abandonment is sufficient for him, then it has not been transferred to beating. But if they obey you as they should and stop rebelling, then seek no way against them meaning: do not expose them to anything that they dislike, neither by word nor deed. It has been said that the meaning is: do not force them to love you, because it is not within their choice. Indeed, God is ever High and Grand referring to the husbands to lower their wing and be gentle: meaning: if you have power over them, then remember God's power over you, because it is above all power, and God is watching you.

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And do not wish for what God has given some of you over others, he said: A man should not wish and say, I wish I had the wealth of so-and-so and his family, for God, the Exalted, has forbidden that, but he should ask God for His bounty. For men is a share of what they have earned, meaning: of what the parents and close relatives leave, for the male is like the share of two females. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatadah that the reason for the revelation of the verse was that the women said, If only our shares in inheritance were made like the shares of men? The men said, We hope that we will be preferred over women by our good deeds in the Hereafter, just as we have been preferred over them in inheritance. The reason for the revelation has already been mentioned. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, And ask God of His bounty, he said, It is not for the sake of this world. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, And ask God of His bounty, he said, Worship is not from the affairs of this world. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Ask God for His bounty, for God loves to be asked. Al-Tirmidhi said: This is how Hammad ibn Waqid narrated it, and he is not a hafiz. Abu Nu'aym narrated it on the authority of Isra'il on the authority of Hakim ibn Jubayr on the authority of a man on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. The hadith of Abu Nu'aym is more likely to be authentic, and this is how it was narrated by Ibn Jarir and Ibn Mardawayh. Ibn Mardawayh also narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And for each We have appointed heirs, he said: heirs, and those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: When the Muhajireen came to Madinah, the Muhajireen inherited from the Ansari without his kin because of the brotherhood that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had established between them. When And for each We have appointed heirs, was revealed, it was abrogated. Then He said, And those with whom you have made a covenant, give them their share, of support, provision and advice. The inheritance had gone and a will was made for him. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on his authority, And for each We have appointed heirs, he said: a clan, and those with whom you have made a covenant, he said: If two men died, the other would inherit from him, then God revealed, And those of kinship are nearer to one another in the Book of God than the believers and the Muhajireen, unless you do to your relatives a kindness, he said: unless they make a will for their relatives who have made a will, then it is permissible for them from a third of the deceased's wealth, which is the usual amount. Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from him regarding the verse: Before Islam, a man would make a contract with another man, saying: You inherit from me and I inherit from you. The living would make alliances, so the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Every oath that was made in the days of ignorance or a contract that Islam brought about, Islam only makes it more severe. There is no contract or oath in Islam, so this verse abrogated it: 'Those of kinship are nearer to one another.'" Abu Dawud, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Mardawayh, and al-Bayhaqi narrated from him regarding the verse: A man would make an alliance with a man who was not related to him, so one of them would inherit from the other. This was abrogated in al-Anfal 8: 'Those of kinship are nearer to one another.' Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from al-Hasan: A man from the Ansar slapped his wife, so she came seeking retaliation, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) made retaliation between them, so the verse was revealed: And do not hasten with the Qur'an before its revelation is completed to you. So the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was silent, and the verse was revealed: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women. So the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: We intended one thing and God intended something else. Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar on the authority of Ali. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Men are in charge of women, meaning: they are leaders over them, so that she obeys him in what God has commanded her to do of obeying him, and obeying him means that she should be good to his family and guard his wealth, by what God has given her, His favor over her through his spending and effort, So righteous women are devoutly obedient, he said: obedient, guarding [their husbands'] secret, meaning if they are like this, then be good to them. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatadah, guarding [their husbands'] secret, he said: guarding the husband's secret with what God has entrusted to them of His right, and guarding the secret of their husbands. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid, who said: guarding the secret refers to husbands. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Suddi, who said: she guards her husband's money and her private parts until he returns, as God has commanded her. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And those women on whose part you fear desertion means: That woman is disobedient and belittles her husband's rights and does not obey his commands. So God commanded him to admonish her and remind her of God and to magnify His rights over her. If she accepts, then fine, otherwise he should forsake her in bed and not speak to her without abandoning marriage to her, and that is a severe punishment for her. If she returns, then fine, otherwise he should beat her, but not severely, but do not break a bone or injure her. But if they obey you, seek no way against them means: If they obey you, do not inflict harm on them. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And forsake them in bed means: Do not have intercourse with her. Abd Al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority: He should forsake her verbally, speak harshly to her, and not abandon intercourse. Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Abi Shaybah, and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ikrimah. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ata' that he asked Ibn Abbas about beating that was not severe, and he said: With a siwak and the like. At-Tirmidhi narrated and authenticated it, as did An-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah on the authority of Amr ibn Al-Ahwas that he witnessed the Farewell Sermon with the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), in which the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: "Beware, treat women well, for they are captives with you and you have no control over them except that, unless they commit a clear indecency. If they do, then leave them alone in bed and beat them that was not severe. But if they obey you, seek no way against them." Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Abdullah ibn Zam'ah that the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) said: Would one of you beat his wife as he beats a slave? Then he has intercourse with her at the end of the day.

34- The Almighty said: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women, the verse "was revealed about Sa'd ibn al-Rabi' who was one of the leaders and about his wife Habibah ibn Zayd ibn Abi Zuhairn, as Muqatil said, and al-Kalbi said: His wife Habibah bint Muhammad ibn Maslama, and that she spread out her garment on him and he slapped her, so her father went with her to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: My noble daughter spread it out for him and he slapped her, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Let her take revenge on her husband, so she went back with her father to take revenge on him, then Gabriel, peace be upon him, came and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Go back, Gabriel brought me something, so God revealed this verse, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We wanted something and God wanted something else, and what God wanted is better" and the retaliation was lifted.

God Almighty says: Men are in charge of women meaning: they are in charge of disciplining them. Qawwam and Qayyim have the same meaning, and Qawwam is more eloquent, and it is the one who is in charge of interests, management, and discipline.

Because God has favored some of them over others, meaning: men over women by increasing their intellect, religion, and guardianship. It was also said: by testimony, as God Almighty said: But if there are not two men, then a man and two women (al-Baqarah

2:282). It was also said: by jihad. It was also said: by acts of worship such as Friday and congregational prayers. It was also said: that a man marries four women and a woman is only permitted to have one husband. It was also said: that divorce is in his hand. It was also said: by inheritance. It was also said: by blood money. It was also said: by prophethood.

And what they spend of their wealth means: giving the dowry and maintenance. Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi told us, Abu Saeed Muhammad ibn Musa al-Sayrafi told us, he said: Abu Abdullah Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Saffar told us, Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Isa al-Barti told us, Abu Hudhayfah told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Dhiyyan, that Muadh ibn Jabal, may God be pleased with him, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If I were to command anyone to prostrate to anyone, I would command the woman to prostrate to her husband.

God Almighty says: Then righteous women are obedient, meaning: obedient. Guarding in the absence of their husbands, meaning: guarding their private parts in the absence of their husbands. It was also said: guarding their secrets. With that which God has guarded. Abu Ja'far read With that which God has guarded in the accusative case, meaning: they guard God in obedience. The general reading is in the subjunctive, meaning: with that which God has guarded them by bequeathing their rights to their husbands and commanding them to pay the dowry and maintenance.

It was said: They are guardians of the unseen by the protection of God. Abu Saeed Al-Sharafi told us, Abu Ishaq Al-Tha'labi told us, Abu Abdullah Ibn Fanjuwayh told us, Umar Ibn Al-Khattab told us, Muhammad Ibn Ishaq Al-Masuhi told us, Al-Harith Ibn Abdullah told us, Abu Ma'shar told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The best of women is a woman who, if you look at her, pleases you, and if you command her, she obeys you, and if you are absent from her, she protects you in her wealth and herself. Then he recited: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women.

"And those from whom you fear rebellion," their disobedience. The root of rebellion is arrogance and haughtiness, and from it comes the word nashz for a high place. Advise them, by frightening them with amusement, admonishing them with words. And leave them alone, meaning: if they do not desist from that with words, then leave them alone. In their beds, Ibn Abbas said: he turns his back to her in bed and does not speak to her. Another said: he withdraws from her to another bed. And beat them, meaning: if they do not desist with abandonment, then beat them with a beating that is not severe or shameful. Ata' said: beating with a toothpick. The hadith came from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in which he said: The right of a woman is that you feed her when you eat and clothe her when you clothe yourself, and do not strike her in the face, do not insult her, and do not desert her except in the house.

"If they obey you, seek no way against them," meaning:

Surat al-Nisa 4:34

Men are in charge of women by [right of] what Allah has given one over the other and what they spend [for maintenance] from their wealth. So the righteous women are obedient, guarding in [the husband's] absence what Allah would have them guard. And as for those on whose part you fear ill-treatment, admonish them and forsake them in the beds and beat them. But if they obey you, then do not oppress them. A way. Indeed, Allah is Most High and Most Great.

do not commit sins against them. Ibn Uyaynah said: Do not burden them with your love, for the heart is not in their hands. Indeed, God is Most High, Most Great, too exalted to burden His servants with what they cannot bear. The apparent meaning of the verse indicates that the husband combines admonition, desertion, and beating with her. Some of them went to its apparent meaning and said: If she shows rebellion, he combines these actions. He interpreted the fear in His statement, and those from whom you fear rebellion, as knowledge, like the statement of God the Almighty: But whoever fears from a testator deviation Al-Baqarah 2:182, meaning knowledge. Some of them interpreted the fear as fear, not as true knowledge, like the statement of God the Almighty: And if you fear treachery from a people Al-Anfal 8:58. He said: These actions are in order of crimes. If he fears her rebellion by showing signs of it from her, such as roughness and bad character, he admonishes her. If she shows rebellion, he deserts her. She insisted on hitting her.

34 Men are the protectors and maintainers of women They are in charge of them as governors are in charge of their subjects, and he explained that with two things: one is innate and the other is acquired. He said: Because God has given some of them more strength than others because of His preference of men over women by their perfect intellect, good management, and increased strength in deeds and acts of obedience. Therefore, they were singled out for prophethood, leadership, guardianship, and the establishment of rituals, and testimony in all matters of law, and the obligation of jihad and Friday prayers and the like, and the right to agnatic relationship and an increased share in inheritance and the right to separate. And because they spend from their wealth in marrying them, such as the dowry and maintenance. It was narrated that "Sa'd ibn al-Rabi', one of the leaders of the Ansar, was rebellious towards his wife, Habeeba bint Zaid ibn Abi Zuhair, so he slapped her, so her father took her to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and complained. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Let her take revenge on him. So it was revealed, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We intended one thing and God intended another thing, and what God intended is better." Then righteous women are obedient obedient to God and fulfill the rights of their husbands. Guardians of the unseen of the duties of the unseen, meaning they guard in the husbands' absence what must be guarded of the soul and money. It was narrated from him, peace and blessings be upon him, The best of women is a woman who, if you look at her, pleases you, and if you command her, she obeys you, and if you are away from her, she guards her money and herself for you.

And he recited the verse. And it was said of their secrets. By what God has preserved by God's preservation of them by commanding them to guard the unseen and urging them to do so with promises and threats and success in doing so, or by what God has preserved for them from them of the dowry and expenses and undertaking to guard them and defend them. And it was read By what God has preserved in the accusative case on the basis that ma is a relative pronoun, because if it were a source, then hafdh would not have been the subject. The meaning of the matter is that which preserves the right of God and His obedience, which is chastity and compassion for men. And those from whom you fear rebellion is their disobedience and their refusal to obey their husbands from rebellion. Advise them and leave them alone in their beds in their sleeping quarters, so do not bring them under the covers, or do not have sexual intercourse with them, which is a euphemism for sexual intercourse. It has been said that the beds are the ones where you spend the night, meaning do not separate from them. And beat them meaning a beating that is not severe or shameful. The three matters are in order and should be approached gradually. But if they obey you, seek no way against them by rebuking and harming them, and the meaning is, remove exposure to them and treat whatever they did as if it had never happened, for the one who repents from sin is as one who has no sin. Indeed, God is ever High and Grand so beware of Him, for He has more power over you than you do over those under your control, or that despite His high status, He overlooks your misdeeds and accepts your repentance, so you are more deserving of pardoning your wives, or that He is too high and arrogant to wrong anyone or diminish their rights.

Surat al-Nisa 4:35

And if you fear dissension between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them. Indeed, God is ever Knowing and Acquainted.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And if you fear if you know a breach a disagreement between them between the spouses, and the addition is for expansion, meaning a breach between them then send to them with their consent an arbitrator a just man from his family his relatives and an arbitrator from her family and the husband delegates his judgment in divorce and accepting compensation from him and she delegates her judgment in divorce, so they strive and order the wrongdoer to return or separate if they see fit, God Almighty said: If they meaning the two arbitrators desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them between the spouses, meaning He will enable them to do what is obedience from reconciliation or separation Indeed, God is ever Knowing of everything Aware of the inner as well as the outer.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying, And if you fear a breach between the two, and if you know, O people, a breach between them, is each of them being in conflict with the other, which is doing what is difficult for him of matters. As for the woman, it is rebellion and her failure to fulfill the right of God upon her which God has obligated her to do for her husband. As for the husband, it is his failure to keep her in a good manner or to release her with kindness.

Discord is a noun derived from the saying: So-and-so disturbed so-and-so, if each of them does to the other what is difficult for him in matters, then he disturbs him with discord and strife, and that may be enmity, as in:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, regarding his statement: And if you fear a breach between the two, he said: If he hits her and she refuses to return and she becomes angry with him, he says: his habit.

Rather, the word discord was added to al-bayn because al-bayn could be a noun, as God Almighty said: Indeed, the rift between you has been severed (al-An'am 6:94), according to the reading of those who read that.

As for his saying: Then send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, the people of interpretation differed regarding those addressed by this verse: Who is commanded to send the two arbitrators?

Some of them said: The one who is ordered to do this is the sultan to whom it is reported.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, Abdul Wahhab told us, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: He said about a woman who has been divorced by khul': He should advise her, and if she desists, fine. If she desists, fine. If not, beat her. If she desists, fine. If not, refer her case to the ruler, who will send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. The arbitrator from her family will say: Do such and such to her, and the arbitrator from his family will say: Do such and such to him. Whichever of them is the unjust, the ruler will return him and seize his hand. If she is rebellious, he will order him to divorce her.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told us, Yazid told us, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. He said: Rather, that is up to the ruler.

Others said: Rather, the one who is commanded to do this is the man and the woman.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, if he beats her. If she returns, then he has no right to have a claim on her. If she refuses to return and causes him trouble, then let him send an arbitrator from his people, and she sends an arbitrator from her people.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding what the two arbitrators are sent for, what the two arbitrators are permitted to judge between them, and how they are sent between them.

Some of them said: The spouses send them by proxy to look after each other. They do not have the right to do anything in their affairs except what they have been authorized to do, or each of them has authorized him to do, so they do what the one who has authorized them from the man and woman has authorized them to do in what it is permissible to authorize them to do, or to authorize the one who has authorized them to do that.

Who said that?

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Muhammad, on the authority of Ubaydah, he said: A man and his wife, between whom there was a dispute, came to Ali, may God be pleased with him, with each of them a group of people. Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: Send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. Then he said to the two arbitrators: Do you know what is upon you? If you see fit to unite, then unite, and if you see fit to separate, then separate. The woman said: I am satisfied with the Book of God, with what is upon me and upon me in it. The man said: As for separation, no. Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: You have lied, by God, you will not return until you acknowledge the same as you acknowledged.

Mujahid bin Musa narrated, Yazid narrated, Hisham bin Hassan and Abdullah bin Awn narrated, on the authority of Muhammad: A man and his wife came to Ali, may God be pleased with him, and with each of them were groups of people. Ali, may God be pleased with him, ordered them to send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family to look into it. When the two arbitrators came near him, Ali, may God be pleased with him, said to them: Do you know what is wrong with you? If you see fit to separate, separate, and if you see fit to come together, come together. Hisham said in his hadith: The woman said: I am satisfied with the Book of God for me and Ali. The man said: As for separation, no! Ali said: You have lied, by God, until you are satisfied with what I was satisfied with. Ibn Awn said in his hadith: You have lied, by God, you will not leave until you are satisfied with what I was satisfied with.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hisham told us, Mansour and Hisham told us, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaidah, who said: I witnessed Ali, may God be pleased with him, and he mentioned something similar.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated that Ahmad ibn al-Mufaddal narrated that Asbat narrated that al-Suddi said: If he abandons her in bed and beats her, and she refuses to return and resists him, then he should send an arbitrator from his family and she should send an arbitrator from her family. The woman should say to her arbitrator: I have put you in charge of my affairs. If you order me to return, I will return, and if you separate, we will separate. She should tell him about her situation, whether she wants maintenance or dislikes something, and she should order him to remove that from her and she should return, or she should tell him that she does not want a divorce. The man should send an arbitrator from his family to take charge of his affairs and tell him what he needs. If he wants her or does not want to divorce her, he should give her what she asked for and increase her maintenance. Otherwise, he should say to him: Take from her what I owe her and divorce her. So he should take charge of his affairs. If he wants, he may divorce her, and if he wants, he may keep her. Then the two arbitrators meet, and each one of them tells the other what he wants, and each one of them strives to do what he wants for the other. If the two arbitrators agree on something, it is permissible, whether they divorce or keep her. This is what God says: "Then send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them." If the woman sends an arbitrator and the man refuses to send an arbitrator, then he should not approach her until he sends an arbitrator.

Others said: The one who sends the two arbitrators is the Sultan, but he only sends them to know who is the oppressor and who is the oppressed, to make them do what is obligatory for each of them before the other,

not to differentiate between them.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abdul A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan - and this is the statement of Qatada - that they both said: The two arbitrators are only sent to reconcile and bear witness against the oppressor for his oppression. As for division, it is not in their hands and they do not have the power to do that, meaning: And if you fear a breach between the two, then send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, the verse, the two arbitrators are sent to reconcile. If they are unable to reconcile, they testify against the oppressor for his oppression, and it is not in their hands to cause division, nor do they have the power to do so.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Qays ibn Sa'd, he said: I asked about the two arbitrators, he said: Send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family, whatever the arbitrators decide is permissible, God the Most High says: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them. He said: The man's judgment regarding the husband and the woman's judgment regarding the woman will be separated, so each one of them will say to the other: Tell me what is in your heart. So when each one of them tells the other, the two arbitrators will meet and each one of them will take a covenant from the other: You will tell me what your friend told you, and I will tell you what my friend told me. So when they want reconciliation, God will cause it between them. So when they do that, each one of them will see what the other has revealed to him, and then they will know who is the unjust and the rebellious one, so they will come to him and judge him. If it is the woman, they will say: You are the unjust and disobedient one, he will not be supported until you return to the truth and obey God in it. If the man is the oppressor, they say: You are the oppressor who harms her. Do not let her enter a house until you provide for her and return to truth and justice. If she refuses, then she is the oppressor who is disobedient, and he takes from her what is hers, and it is lawful and good for him. If he is the oppressor who mistreats her and harms her, he divorces her, and nothing of her money is lawful for him. If he keeps her, he keeps her as God has commanded, and spends on her and is good to her.

Ibn Wakee' narrated, my father narrated, on the authority of Musa ibn Ubaydah, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ka'b al-Qurazi, who said: 'Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, used to send two arbitrators, one from his family and one from hers. The arbitrator from her family would say: 'So-and-so, what do you blame your wife for?' He would say: 'I blame her for such-and-such.' He would say: 'What if she gives up what you hate for what you love, will you fear God in dealing with her and treat her as you are entitled to in terms of spending on her and clothing her?' If he said: 'Yes,' the arbitrator from his family would say: 'So-and-so, what do you blame your husband so-and-so for?' He would say the same, and if she said: 'Yes,' he would bring them together. 'Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: 'The two arbitrators, by them God unites and by them He separates.'

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, he said: Al-Hasan said: The two arbitrators judge in the meeting, but they do not judge in the separation.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said: My father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And those from whom you fear ill-manneredness, admonish them, meaning the woman who rebels against her husband. Her husband has the right to divorce her after the two arbitrators order that, which is after she says to her husband: By God, I will not fulfill my oath to you, and I will allow anyone into your house without your permission! And the sultan says: We will not permit you to divorce her, until the woman says to her husband: By God, I will not bathe for you after sexual impurity, nor will I lead you in prayer! At that point the sultan says: Divorce the woman!

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And those from whom you fear desertion, admonish them, he said: Admonish her, and if she refuses and is overcome, then forsake her in her bed. If she also overcomes this, then beat her. If she also overcomes this, then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. If she also overcomes this and wants something else, then my father said - or my father used to say -: The arbitrators have no control over the separation. If they see injustice on the part of the husband, they say: You, so-and-so, are unjust, stop! If he refuses, they report that to the ruler. If they see that she is unjust, they say to her: You are unjust, stop! If she refuses, they report that to the ruler. The arbitrators have no control over the separation.

Others said: Rather, the two arbitrators are sent by the Sultan, and their ruling applies to the spouses in bringing them together and separating them.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, so this is the man and the woman, if what is between them becomes corrupt, then God the Almighty commanded that they send a righteous man from the man's people, and the same from the woman's people, so they see which of them is the wrongdoer. If the man is the wrongdoer, they keep his wife away from him and restrict him to maintenance, and if the woman is the wrongdoer, they restrict her to her husband and withhold maintenance from her. If they agree to separate or to reunite, then their decision is permissible. If they decide to reunite, and one of the spouses is satisfied and the other is not, then one of them dies, then the one who is satisfied inherits from the one who is not, and the one who is not satisfied does not inherit from the one who is satisfied. This is His statement: If they both desire reconciliation, he said: They are the two arbitrators, God will cause their reconciliation.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Ruh told us, he said, Aouf told us, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin: That the judge is from her people and the judge is from his people, they separate and bring together if they see that, Then send a judge from his people and a judge from her people.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of 'Amr ibn Murrah, he said: I asked Sa'id ibn Jubayr about the arbitrators, and he said: I was not born at that time! I said: I mean the arbitrator of discord. He said: They turn to the one from whom the compromise came. If he does so, otherwise they turn to the other. If he does so, otherwise they rule. Whatever they rule is permissible.

Abdul Hamid bin Bayan told us, he said, Muhammad bin Yazid told us, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Amer, regarding his statement: Then send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, he said: Whatever the two arbitrators decide is permissible.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughira, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ibrahim, who said: Whatever they rule on is permissible. If they separate them with three or two divorces, it is permissible. If they separate them with one divorce, it is permissible. If they rule that he be given a portion of his money, it is permissible. If they reconcile, it is permissible. If they put something aside, it is permissible.

Al-Muthanna told us, Habban told us, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of Al-Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding his statement: And if you fear a breach between the two, appoint an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, he said: Whatever the two arbitrators do is valid for them. If they divorce her three times, it is valid for them. If they divorce her once and divorce her for a fee, it is valid, and whatever they do is valid.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Katheer, on the authority of Abu Salamah bin Abd al-Rahman, he said: If the two arbitrators wish, they may separate, and if they wish, they may combine, they may combine.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said: Al-Hussein narrated to us, he said: Hisham narrated to me, on the authority of Hisin, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: That a woman rebelled against her husband, so they brought their dispute to Shuraih, and Shuraih said: Send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. So the two arbitrators considered their case and decided to separate them, but the man disliked that, so Shuraih said: So what were they doing today? And he accepted their statement.

And if you fear dissension between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. If they both desire reconciliation, Allah will cause it between them. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Acquainted.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of Ikrimah bin Khalid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Muawiyah and I sent two arbitrators. Muammar said: It reached me that Uthman, may God be pleased with them both, sent them and said to them: If you see fit to unite, then unite, and if you see fit to separate, then separate.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ruh bin Ubadah told us, he said, Ibn Jurayj told us, he said, Ibn Abi Malekah told me: Aqeel bin Abi Talib married Fatimah bint Utbah, and there was talk between them. She went to Uthman and mentioned that to him, so he sent for Ibn Abbas and Muawiyah. Ibn Abbas said: I will separate them! And Muawiyah said: I would not separate two old men from Banu Abd Manaf! So they went to them and they had reconciled.

Yahya ibn Abi Talib told me, Yazid told us, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And if you fear a breach between the two, appoint an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people, they will be just and two witnesses over them. This is when a man and a woman dispute and take a dispute to the ruler, he appoints two arbitrators over them: an arbitrator from the man's people and an arbitrator from the woman's people. They will be trustworthy with regard to both of them, and they will see which of them has caused the corruption. If it is from the woman, she is forced to obey her husband, and he is ordered to fear God and treat her well, and spend on her according to what God has given him, either keeping her in kindness or releasing her with kindness. If the wrongdoing is from the man, he is ordered to treat her kindly. If he does not do so, he is told: Give her her rights and set her free. The ruler is responsible for that from them.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings about His statement: Then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family, is that God addressed the Muslims with this, and commanded them to send arbitrators when there is fear of discord between the spouses to look into their matter, and He did not specify some of them with this command over others.

Everyone agreed that the mission of the arbitrators in this matter is not for anyone other than the spouses, and the Sultan who is the one who governs the affairs of the Muslims, or the one he has appointed in his place in this matter.

They differed about the spouses and the ruler, and who was commanded to be sent in that: the spouses, or the ruler? There is no indication in the verse that the command to do that is specific to one of the spouses, and there is no trace of it from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the nation differs about it.

Since the matter is as we have described, the most correct of the sayings is that it is specifically mentioned in the verse that everyone has agreed is specifically mentioned in it. Since that is the case, then it is necessary that the spouses and the ruler are among those included in the ruling of the verse, and the command in His saying: Then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family, since there was a difference between them: Are they meant by the command to do that or not? - and the apparent meaning of the verse included them - then it is necessary to say, since what we have described is correct, it is correct to say: If the spouses each send an arbitrator from their own side to look into their matter, and each of them had sent him from their own side in that, because of what he has over his partner and what his partner has over him, then his delegating that to him from his own side is permissible for him and against him.

If he delegated him some of it but did not delegate all of it, then what the judge did of what his partner delegated him to do is valid and permissible based on what he delegated him to do. This is if one of them delegated him what he is entitled to without what he owes.

If each of the spouses does not delegate what he has and what he owes, or what he has, or what he owes, except for both arbitrators, then only what they agree upon is permissible, not what one of them does alone.

If neither of them authorizes them to do anything, but rather sends them to look into the matter between them, to determine who is the oppressor and who is the oppressed, so that they may testify against them before the ruler if they need their testimony, then they are not allowed to do anything between them other than that, such as divorce, taking money, or anything else, and neither of the spouses is obligated to do anything of that.

If someone says: What is the meaning of the two arbitrators, since the matter is as you described?

It was said: There is disagreement about that.

Some of them said: The meaning of judgment is fair consideration, as Al-Dahhak bin Muzahim said in the report that we mentioned, which:

Yahya bin Abi Talib told us, on the authority of Yazid, on the authority of Juwaybir, on his authority: No, you are two judges who judge between them, in the manner that we explained from his statement.

Others said: The meaning of this is that they are the two judges, who decide between them what the spouses have delegated to them.

Abu Ja'far said: Whatever the case, neither of them has the right to rule between them to separate, nor to take money except with the consent of the one against whom the ruling is made, and otherwise there is no right that one of the spouses has over the other in the ruling of God, and that is what the man has to do with his wife in terms of maintenance and keeping her in a good manner, if he is the one who is unjust to her.

As for anything other than that, it is not for them, nor for anyone else, neither the sultan nor anyone else. This is because if the husband is the one who is unjust to the woman, then the imam has the way to take from him what is due to her from him of rights. And if the woman is the one who is unjust to her husband and is disobedient to him, then God has permitted him to take the ransom from her, and has made it up to him to divorce her, as we have explained in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Since this is the case, no one has the right to separate a man and a woman without the husband's consent, nor to take money from a woman without her consent to give it to her, except with a pretext that must be accepted from the origin or analogy.

If the Sultan sends two arbitrators, they are not permitted to rule between the spouses to separate them except by the husband's authorization to do so, nor are they permitted to rule to take money from the woman except with the woman's consent. This is indicated by what we have previously explained of what Ali ibn Abi Talib may God be pleased with him did, and by those who say what he said. But they are permitted to reconcile between the spouses, and to identify which of them is the oppressor and which is the oppressed, so that they may testify against him if the oppressed needs their testimony.

We said: They do not have the right to separate, for the reason we mentioned earlier. Rather, the ruler sends the two arbitrators if he sends them, if the spouses come to him and each one of them complains about the other, and he is confused about which of them is right and which is wrong. Because if he is not confused about which of them is right and which is wrong, then there is no reason for him to send the two arbitrators in a matter in which the ruling is known.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, If they both desire reconciliation, is that if the two arbitrators desire reconciliation between the man and the woman - I mean: between the spouses between whom there is fear of discord - He says, God will cause reconciliation between the two arbitrators and they will agree to reconciliation between them. That is if each of them is truthful in what he has revealed to the one sent to look into the matter of the spouses.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abu Hashim, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: If they both desire reconciliation, he said: As for it, it is not the man and the woman, but rather the two arbitrators.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them. He said: They are the two arbitrators. If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them, and that is the two arbitrators, and likewise every reformer whom God guides to the truth and what is right.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them, meaning the two arbitrators.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Ata' bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: If they both desire reconciliation, he said: If the two arbitrators desire reconciliation, they will make amends.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Abu Hashim, on the authority of Mujahid: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them, God will cause it between the two arbitrators.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: If they both desire reconciliation, he said: They are the two arbitrators if they advise both the woman and the man.

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be exalted, means: Indeed, God is All-Knowing, of what the two arbitrators wanted to do to reconcile the spouses and other things, All-Aware, of that and other matters of theirs and the matters of others. Nothing of it is hidden from Him. He protects them until He rewards each of them according to his reward, for goodness with goodness, and for evil with forgiveness or punishment.

It has five issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: And if you fear a breach between them The meaning of the breach has already been mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah, so it is as if each of the spouses takes a side other than the side of the other, i.e. a side other than the side of the other, and what is meant is if you fear a breach between them, so the source was added to the circumstance like you say: I like the moonlit night and the fasting of the day of Arafah. And in the revelation: Rather, the plotting of the night and the day (Saba': 33). And it was said: That between is treated as a noun and the circumstance was removed from it, since it means their state and their companionship, i.e. if you fear the separation of their companionship and company, then send and you fear the previous disagreement. Saeed bin Jubair said: The ruling is that he advises her first, and if she accepts, otherwise he abandons her, and if she accepts, otherwise he beats her, and if she accepts, otherwise the judge sends a guardian from his family and an arbitrator from her family to see who is the harm, and at that time the divorce takes place. And it was said: He has the right to beat before the advice, and the first is more correct due to the arrangement of that in the verse.

The second - The majority of scholars are of the opinion that the addressee of His statement: And if you fear is the rulers and princes, and that His statement: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them means the two arbitrators, according to Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and others, meaning that if the two arbitrators desire reconciliation, God will cause it between the spouses. It was said: What is meant is the spouses, meaning if the spouses desire reconciliation and truthfulness in what the two arbitrators have informed, God will cause it between them. It was also said: The addressee is the guardians. He says: If you fear meaning if you know of a disagreement between the spouses, then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. The two arbitrators can only be from the man's and woman's family, as they are more knowledgeable about the spouses' circumstances, and they must be people of justice, good judgment, and insight into jurisprudence. If no one from her family is found who is suitable for that, then two just and knowledgeable people are sent from among them, and that is if their situation is unclear and it is not known which of them has committed the wrong. However, if the wrongdoer is known, then the right is taken from his companion and he is forced to remove the harm. It was said: The arbitrator from the husband's family is alone with him and says to him: Tell me what is in your heart, do you desire her or not so that I may know what you mean? If he says: I have no need of her, take from her what you can and separate us from them, then it will be known that the rebellion is on his part. If he says: I love her, so satisfy her from my money as you wish and do not separate us from her, then let him assume that he is not rebellious and let the judgment be left to the woman and he says to her: Do you love your husband or not? If she says: Separate us and give him from my money what he wants, then it will be known that the rebellion is on her part. If she says: Do not separate us, but urge him to increase my expenses and be good to me. However, the rebellion is not on her part. If it becomes clear to them that the rebellion was on his part, they should turn to him with admonition, warning and prohibition, and that is what the Most High said: Then appoint an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family.

Third - The scholars said: This verse divided women rationally because they are either obedient or rebellious, and rebellion either returns to obedience or not. If the first is abandonment, then according to what Al-Nasa'i narrated that Aqeel bin Abi Talib married Fatima bint Utbah bin Rabi'ah, and when he entered upon her she would say: O sons of Hashim, by God my heart will never love you. Where are those whose necks are like silver ropes, whose noses are returned before their lips? Where is Utbah bin Rabi'ah bin

Shaibah bin Rabi'ah? He would remain silent about her until he entered upon her one day while he was tired, so she said to him: Where is Utbah bin Rabi'ah? He said: On your left in the fire when you enter, so she spread her clothes over her. So she came to Uthman and mentioned that to him, so he sent Ibn Abbas and Mu'awiyah, and Ibn Abbas said: I will separate them, and Mu'awiyah said: I will not separate between two old men from Banu Abd Manaf. So they went to them and found that they had closed their doors on them and fixed their matter. If they found that they had disagreed and not reconciled and their matter had worsened, they would strive to unite them and remind them of God and companionship. If they repent and return, they should leave them, and if they are not like that and see separation, they should separate them, and their separation is permissible for the spouses, whether the ruling of the judge of the country is in agreement with it or not, and the spouses are authorized to do that or not, and the separation in that is an irrevocable divorce. Some people said: They do not have the right to divorce unless the husband authorizes them to do that and they should know the imam, and this is based on the fact that they are two witness messengers, then the imam separates if he wants and orders the arbitrator to separate, and this is one of the two opinions of al-Shafi'i, and the Kufians said this and it is the opinion of Ata', Ibn Zayd, and al-Hasan, and Abu Thawr said this, and the first is correct and that the two arbitrators have the right to divorce without authorization, and it is the opinion of Malik, al-Awza'i, and Ishaq, and it was narrated from Uthman, Ali, and Ibn Abbas, and from al-Sha'bi and al-Nakha'i, and it is the opinion of al-Shafi'i because God Almighty said: Then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family and this is a text from God Almighty that they are two judges, not agents or witnesses, and the agent has a name in the Sharia and a meaning, and the meat has a name in the Sharia and a meaning, so if God makes clear to each one of them, then it is not appropriate for an outsider, so how can a scholar The meaning of one of them is greater than the other. Ad-Darqutni narrated from the hadith of Muhammad ibn Sirin from Ubaydah regarding this verse: And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. He said: A man and a woman came to Ali, with each of them a group of people. He ordered them to send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. He said to the two arbitrators: Do you know what is upon you? If you see fit to separate, separate. The woman said: I am satisfied with the Book of God in which I am responsible and guardian. The husband said: As for separation, no. Ali said: You have lied. By God, you will not leave until you acknowledge the same as you acknowledged. This is a sound and proven chain of transmission narrated from Ali through proven chains of transmission from Ibn Sirin from Ubaydah. Abu Omar said: If they were two agents or witnesses, he would not have said to them: Do you know what is upon you? Rather, he would have said: Do you know what you were entrusted with? This is clear. Abu Hanifa used as evidence the words of Ali may God be pleased with him to the husband: Do not leave until you are satisfied with what you are satisfied with. This indicates that his doctrine is that they cannot be separated except with the husband's consent, and that the agreed-upon principle is that divorce is in the hands of the husband or in the hands of the one to whom it is entrusted, and Malik and those who followed him made it a matter of the authority to divorce the master and the impotent.

Fourth: If the two arbitrators disagree, their statement is not implemented and nothing is binding on them except what they agree upon. Likewise, every two arbitrators who rule on a matter, if one of them rules for separation and the other does not rule for it, or one of them rules for money and the other refuses, then it is nothing until they agree. Malik said about the two arbitrators who divorce three times: One is binding and they do not have the right to separate with more than one irrevocable divorce. This is the saying of Ibn al-Qasim. Ibn al-Qasim also said: He is bound by the three if they agree upon them. This was said by al-Mughira, Ashhab, Ibn al-Majishun, and Asbagh. Ibn al-Mawaz said: If one of them rules for one and the other for three, then it is one. Ibn Habib narrated from Asbagh that this is nothing.

Fifth: Sending one person is sufficient, because God Almighty ruled that adultery requires four witnesses. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent Anis alone to the adulterous woman and said to him:

If she confesses, stone her. This is what Abd al-Malik said in the Mudawwana.

I said: If sending one is permissible, then if the spouses were to rule alone, it would suffice, and it is more permissible if they agree to that. God only addressed the rulers with sending, not the spouses. If the spouses send two arbitrators and one arbitrator, their ruling is enforced, because arbitration is permissible according to us, and the act of the arbitrator is enforced in every issue. This is if each of them is just, even if he is not just. Abdul Malik said: His ruling is invalid because they took risks that are not appropriate in terms of uncertainty. Ibn Al-Arabi said: The correct view is that it is enforceable, because if it was a proxy, then the agent's action is enforceable, and if it was arbitration, then they put it before themselves, and uncertainty does not affect it as it would affect the matter of proxy. The matter of judgment is based entirely on uncertainty, and it is not necessary for the one judged against to know what the ruling will lead to. Ibn Al-Arabi said: The issue of the two arbitrators was explicitly stated by God and He ruled upon it when discord appears between the spouses and there is a difference between them. It is a great issue on which the nation agreed upon its principle in sending, even if they differed in the details of what resulted from it. It is strange that the people of our country have forgotten the requirement of the Book and the Sunnah in that and said that they should be placed in the hands of a trustworthy person, and in this there is Objection to the text is not hidden from you, so do not consult the Book of God, nor do you suffice with analogies. I have been urged to do so in what he answered me to send two arbitrators in the event of discord except for one judge, nor to rule by oath with a witness except for another. May God not give me the power to implement the Sunnah as it should be, and do not be surprised at the people of our country for the ignorance that has overwhelmed them, but I am surprised by Abu Hanifa, who has no report of the two arbitrators, rather I am surprised twice by Al-Shafi'i, for he said: What resembles the apparent meaning of the verse is that it includes both spouses together, so that their situation is confused. He said: That is because I found that God, the Almighty, permitted the husband's disobedience to reconcile, and permitted their fear that they will not abide by the limits of God by khul', and that resembles that it is with the woman's consent and prohibited the husband from taking something from what he gave if he wanted to replace one wife with another. So when He ordered the two arbitrators in those between whom we fear discord, it indicates that their ruling is not the ruling of the spouses, so if that is the case, He sends an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family, and He does not send the two arbitrators except those who are secure with the consent of the spouses and their authorization to bring them together. Or they separate if they see that, and that indicates that the two arbitrators are agents for the spouses. Ibn Al-Arabi said: This is the end of al-Shafi'i's words, and his companions rejoice in it, and there is nothing in it that is worth paying attention to, nor does it resemble his position in knowledge. Judge Abu Ishaq undertook to respond to him, but he did not do him justice in most cases. As for his statement: What is apparently similar to the verse that they are in what is general for the spouses, this is not correct, rather it is his text, and it is one of the clearest and most obvious verses of the Qur'an, for God Almighty said: Men are the protectors and maintainers of women (al-Mawrid al-Mawrid: 10). And whoever fears disobedience from his wife, he should admonish her, and if she repents, otherwise he should abandon her in the bed, and if she is intimidated, otherwise he should beat her, and if she persists in her extremism, the two arbitrators should go to them. If this is not a text, then there are not two verses in the Qur'an, and let it not be a text that would be apparent. As for al-Shafi'i saying: It resembles the apparent, we do not know what resembles the apparent? Then he said: And permission was given in their fear that they would not abide by the limits of God by khul', and this is similar to being with the woman's consent, rather it must be so, and this is his text. Then he said: As for what was commanded by the two arbitrators, we know that their ruling is not the ruling of the spouses, and it must be other than that, by executing it on them without their choice, so the otherness is achieved. But if they execute on them what they agreed upon, then they do not rule contrary to their command, so the otherness is not achieved. As for his saying with the consent of the spouses and their authorization, then this is a clear mistake, because God, the Exalted, addressed other than the spouses if He feared discord between the spouses by sending the two arbitrators. And if the one addressed is other than them, how can that be with their authorization, and their ruling is not valid except with what they agreed upon? This is the face of fairness and investigation in responding to him. And in this verse is evidence of proving arbitration, and it is not as the Khawarij say that arbitration is not for anyone but God, the Exalted. This is a true statement, but they mean falsehood by it.

And if you fear dissension between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. If they both desire reconciliation, Allah will cause it between them. Indeed, Allah is ever Knowing and Acquainted.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

He mentioned the first case, which is if the aversion and rebellion are from the wife. Then he mentioned the second case, which is if the aversion is from the spouses. God Almighty said: And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. The jurists said: If a dispute occurs between the spouses, the judge should place them next to a trustworthy person who looks into their matter and prevents the unjust one from being unjust. If their matter becomes serious and their dispute lasts long, the judge should send a trustworthy person from the woman's people and a trustworthy person from the man's people to meet and look into their matter and do what they see as in the interest of what they see of separation or reconciliation, and the Lawgiver longs for reconciliation, and for this reason God Almighty said: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them. Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: God Almighty commanded that they send a righteous man from the man's people. And a man like him from the woman's family, so they look to see which of them is the wrongdoer. If the man is the wrongdoer, they keep his wife away from him and restrict him to maintenance. If the woman is the wrongdoer, they restrict her to her husband and prevent her from maintenance. If they agree to separate or reunite, then their matter is permissible. If they both decide to reunite and one of the spouses agrees and the other dislikes, then one of them dies, then the one who is satisfied inherits the one who is not satisfied, and the one who is reluctant does not inherit the one who is satisfied. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar informed us on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of Ikrimah ibn Khalid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: I and Muawiyah sent two arbitrators. Muammar said: It reached me that Uthman sent them and said to them: If you see that you should reunite, then reunite, and if you see that you should separate, then separate. He said: Ibn Jurayj informed us, Ibn Abi Malekah told me that Aqeel ibn Abi Talib married Fatimah bint Utbah ibn Rabi'ah. She said: Come to me and I will provide for you. Whenever he entered upon her, she would say: Where are Utbah ibn Rabi'ah and Shaiba ibn Rabi'ah? He said: On your left in the fire when you enter. So she tied her clothes around her and went to Uthman and mentioned that to him, so he laughed. Then he sent for Ibn Abbas and Mu'awiyah. Ibn Abbas said: I will separate them. Mu'awiyah said: I would not separate two old men from Banu Abd Manaf. So they went to them and found that they had locked their doors on them, so they returned. Abd al-Razzaq said: Mu'amar told us on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Sirin, on the authority of Ubaydah, who said: I witnessed Ali and a woman and her husband came to him with a group of people, so he brought out some as arbitrators and those as arbiters. Ali said to the two arbitrators: Do you know what is upon you? If you both see that you should combine, combine them. The woman said: I am satisfied with what God has decreed for me and against me. The husband said: As for separation, no. Ali said: You have lied. By God, you will not leave until you are satisfied with what God Almighty has decreed for you and against you. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Ya'qub on the authority of Ibn Ulayyah on the authority of Ayoub on the authority of Ibn Sirin on the authority of Ubaydah on the authority of Ali, similarly. He narrated it from another source on the authority of Ibn Sirin on the authority of Ubaydah on the authority of Ali, and the majority of scholars have agreed that the two arbitrators have the right to combine and separate, so Ibrahim al-Nakha'i said: If the two arbitrators wish to separate them with one divorce or two or three divorces, then it is a narration from Malik. Al-Hasan al-Basri said: The two arbitrators rule on combining, not on separation. Qatada and Zayd ibn Aslam said the same, and Ahmad ibn Hanbal, Abu Thawr and Dawud said the same. Their source is the saying of God Almighty: If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them, and he did not mention separation. However, if they are agents on behalf of the spouses, then their ruling on combining and separating is implemented without dispute. The Imams differed regarding the two arbitrators, are they appointed by the ruler, so they rule even if the spouses are not satisfied? Or are they agents on behalf of the spouses? There are two opinions, and the majority are on the first, because God Almighty said: Then appoint an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. He called them two arbitrators, and the nature of the arbitrator is to rule without the consent of the one ruled upon, and this is the apparent meaning of the verse. The new opinion from the Shafi'i school is the opinion of Abu Hanifa and his companions, the second of them is based on the statement of Ali may God be pleased with him to the husband when he said: As for separation, no. He said: You lied until you confess what you confessed to. They said: If they were judges, there would be no need for the husband's confession, and God knows best. Sheikh Abu Omar bin Abdul Barr said: The scholars agreed that if the two arbitrators differ in their statements, then the statement of the other is not taken into account. They agreed that their statement is valid in the case of reunion even if the spouses did not appoint them as agents, and they differed as to whether their statement is valid in the case of separation. Then it was reported from the majority that their statement is valid in this case also without an agent.

Fath al-Qadir

The meaning of sectarianism in Surat Al-Baqarah has already been mentioned, and its origin is that each one of them takes a side other than the side of his companion: that is, a side other than his side. Sectarianism was added to the circumstance to make it act as a direct object, like the Almighty's saying: Rather, it is the plotting of the night and the day, and the poet's saying:

Oh, you who thief the people of the house tonight

The address is to the princes and rulers, and the pronoun in His saying 35- between them refers to the spouses because what indicates them has been mentioned previously, which is the mention of men and women. Then send to the spouses an arbitrator to judge between them from among those who are suitable for that in terms of reason, religion, and fairness. God Almighty stipulated that the two arbitrators should be from among the spouses' families because they are more qualified to know their circumstances. If there is no one among the spouses' families who is suitable to judge between them, then the two arbitrators should be from outside them. This is if their situation is unclear and it is not clear which of them is the wrongdoer. However, if the wrongdoer is known, then the right is taken from him for his companion. The two arbitrators should strive to reconcile the matter as much as they can. If they are able to do so, they should work on it. If they are unable to reconcile their situation and see a way to separate them, then it is permissible for them to do so without an order from the ruler in the country or a delegation to separate from the spouses. Malik, Al-Awza'i and Ishaq said the same. It was narrated on the authority of Uthman, Ali, Ibn Abbas, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Nakha'i and Al-Shafi'i. Ibn Kathir narrated it on the authority of the majority of scholars. They said: Because God said, Then send an arbitrator from his people and an arbitrator from her people. This is a text from God, the Most High, that they are two judges, not agents or witnesses. The Kufians, Ata', Ibn Zayd and Al-Hasan, which is one of the two opinions of Al-Shafi'i, said: Separation is up to the Imam or the ruler of the country, not them, unless the spouses appoint them as their representatives or the Imam or the ruler orders them, because they are two messengers and witnesses, so separation is not up to them. This is indicated by his statement, If they both desire meaning the two arbitrators, to bring about reconciliation between the spouses, God will cause it between them, because it is limited to mentioning reconciliation, not separation. The meaning of If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them is: He will bring about agreement between the spouses so that they return to harmony and good treatment. The meaning of will: the sincerity of their intention to improve the situation between the spouses. It was said: the pronoun in His statement, God will cause them to reconcile refers to the two arbitrators, as in His statement, If they both desire reconciliation, meaning: He will cause the two arbitrators to reconcile their words and achieve their goal. It was said: both pronouns refer to the spouses: meaning if they desire to reconcile the discord between them, God will bring about harmony and agreement between them. If the two arbitrators disagree, their judgment is not enforced and it is not necessary to accept their statement without disagreement.

Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And if you fear a breach between them, he said: This man and woman, if what is between them becomes corrupt, God has commanded that you send a righteous man from the man's family and a man like him from the woman's family, and they will see which of them is the wrongdoer. If the man is the wrongdoer, they should keep his wife away from him and force him to provide for her. If the woman is the wrongdoer, they should force her to stay with her husband and prevent her from providing for her. If they agree to separate or to reunite, then their decision is permissible. If they both agree to reunite, and one of the spouses agrees and the other dislikes it, and then one of them dies, then the one who is satisfied inherits from the one who is disliked, and the one who dislikes does not inherit the one who is satisfied. If they both desire reconciliation, he said: They are the two arbitrators. God will cause their reconciliation, and likewise every reformer is guided to the truth and what is right. Al-Shafi'i narrated in Al-Umm, Abd Al-Razzaq in Al-Musannaf, Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan on the authority of Ubaidah Al-Salmani regarding this verse, he said: A man and a woman came to Ali with a group of people, so Ali ordered them to send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family, then he said to the two arbitrators: Do you know what is upon you? If you see fit to unite, then unite, and if you see fit to separate, then separate. The woman said: I am satisfied with the Book of God with what is upon me and upon me in it. The man said: As for separation, no. He said: You have lied, by God, until you acknowledge what you acknowledged. Abd Al-Razzaq, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Muawiyah and I sent two arbitrators, and it was said to us: If you see fit to unite, then unite, and if you see fit to separate, then separate. The one who sent them was Uthman. Abdul Razzaq, Abdul bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: The two arbitrators are sent only to reconcile and bear witness against the oppressor for his oppression. As for division, it is not in their hands. Abdul bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Qatada. Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ali, who said: If one of the arbitrators rules and the other does not, then his ruling is worthless until they meet.

35- The Almighty's saying: And if you fear a breach between them, meaning: a breach between the spouses, [and fear means certainty, and it was said: it means suspicion, meaning: if you think a breach between them.

And its summary is: If a discord appears between the spouses and their situation is unclear, and the husband does not forgive or separate, and the woman does not fulfill her right or pay the ransom, and they go out to do what is not permissible in word and deed, the Imam sends an arbitrator from his family to him and an arbitrator from her family to her, two free and just men, so that each of the two arbitrators may find out the opinion of the one he sent to, whether his desire is to connect or separate, then the two arbitrators meet and implement what their opinion agrees upon regarding goodness, and that is what the Almighty said: "Then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. If they both desire reconciliation," meaning: the two arbitrators, God will cause it between them, meaning: between the spouses, and it was said: between the two arbitrators. Indeed, God is Knowing and Acquainted. [Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Kisa'i informed us, and Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal informed us, and Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm informed us, and Al-Rabi' informed us, and Al-Shafi'i informed us, and Al-Thaqafi informed us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, on the authority of] Ubaidah, that he said regarding this verse: "And if you fear a breach between the two, send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. Her family," he said: A man and a woman came to Ali ibn Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, and each of them had a group of women. Ali, may God be pleased with him, ordered them to send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family. Then he said to the two arbitrators: Do you know what is upon you? If you see fit to unite, then unite. If you see fit to separate, then separate. The woman said: I am satisfied with the Book of God, as it is upon me and upon me. The man said: As for no separation, then no. Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: You have lied, by God, until you acknowledge the same as she acknowledged.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether it is permissible to send arbitrators without the consent of the spouses. The most correct of the two opinions is that it is not permissible except with their consent. The husband has the right to divorce without his consent, and the woman has no right to divorce her husband in exchange for her money except with her permission. This is the opinion of the people of opinion, because when the man said: There is no separation, no, Ali may God be pleased with him said: You have lied until you acknowledge the same as what is closest to you. So it is proven that the implementation of the order is contingent upon his acknowledgement and consent.

The second opinion: It is permissible to send two arbitrators without their consent, and it is permissible for the husband's arbitrator to divorce without his consent and for the woman's arbitrator to create without her consent, if they see what is best, like the judge who judges between two opponents even if it is not in accordance with their desires, and Malik said this. Whoever said this said: What is meant by what Ali may God be pleased with him said to a man who acknowledged that his consent is a condition is not what is meant by it, but rather what is meant is that the woman is content with what is in the Book of God. [The man said: As for separation, no, meaning: separation is not in the Book of God.] Ali said: You lied when you denied that separation is in the Book of God, but rather it is in the Book of God. [For the Almighty's saying: God will cause them to reconcile includes separation and other things, because reconciliation is that each one of them is released from sin, and this is sometimes by separation and sometimes by improving their condition in the relationship.

35 And if you fear dissension between them a disagreement between a woman and her husband, he implied it even if they were not mentioned, because what indicates them would occur. Dissension is added to the circumstance either to make it the object, like his saying: O thief of the house tonight, or to an agent, like his saying: Your day is fasting. Then send an arbitrator from his family and an arbitrator from her family So send, O judges, whenever their situation is unclear to you, to clarify the matter or to reconcile the two, a middle man who is suitable for governance and reconciliation from his family and another from her family, because relatives know the inner workings of conditions and are more likely to seek reconciliation. This is recommended, so if they are appointed from strangers, it is permissible. It was said that the address is to husbands and wives, and it was used as evidence for the permissibility of arbitration. It is more apparent that the appointment is to reconcile the two or to clarify the matter, and they should not undertake the union and separation except with the permission of the spouses. Malik said that they may seek a divorce if they find that it is right. If they both desire reconciliation, God will cause it between them. The first pronoun refers to the two arbitrators and the second to the spouses, meaning that if they intend reconciliation, God will bring about agreement between the spouses through their good efforts. Both are said to refer to the two arbitrators, meaning that if they intend reconciliation, God will bring about agreement between them so that their words will be in agreement and their goal will be achieved. And it is said to the spouses, meaning that if they desire reconciliation and the removal of discord, God will bring about love and harmony between them. This is a warning that whoever improves his intention in what he seeks, God will make his goal good. Indeed, God is Knowing and Acquainted with outward and inward matters, so He knows how to remove discord and bring about agreement.

Surat al-Nisa 4:36

And worship God and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, God does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And worship God alone and associate nothing with Him and be good to parents with good treatment by being kind and gentle and to relatives by blood relations and orphans and the needy and the neighbor who is a relative who is close to you in neighborhood or kinship and the neighbor who is a stranger who is far away from you in neighborhood or kinship and the companion at your side the companion in travel or business, and it was said the wife and the wayfarer the one who is stranded on his journey and those whom your right hands possess of slaves for God does not like anyone who is arrogant proud and boastful towards people about what he has been given.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And humble yourselves before God through obedience, and submit to Him through it, and single Him out for lordship, and sincerely submit to Him in submission and humility, by adhering to His command, and refraining from His prohibition, and do not make for Him in lordship and worship a partner whom you magnify as you magnify Him.

And to parents, do good, meaning, and He has commanded you to do good to your parents, meaning, to be dutiful to them. That is why the word goodness is in the accusative case, because He, the Most High, commanded us to be dutiful to our parents, in a way that encourages us.

Some of them said: Its meaning is: And be kind to your parents, and this is close in meaning to what we said.

As for his saying: and to the relatives, he means: He also commanded to treat the relatives, and they are the relatives of one of us on the side of his father or mother, those who are close to him by blood relationship from one of the two parties, as a kindness to his kinship.

As for his saying: and the orphans, they are the plural of orphan, which is the child whose father has died and perished.

And the poor is the plural of poor, which is someone who has been overcome by the humiliation of poverty and need, so he has become humble because of that.

God Almighty says: Treat these people kindly, be compassionate towards them, and adhere to My advice in treating them kindly.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: And the neighbor who is related to you and has kinship ties.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: and the neighbor who is a relative, meaning: the one between you and him is a kinship.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And the neighbor who is a relative, meaning: the one with a kinship.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And the neighbor who is a relative, he said: Your neighbor, he is your relative.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ikrimah and Mujahid, regarding his statement: And the neighbor who is a relative, they said: kinship.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And the neighbor who is a relative, he said: Your neighbor who is related to you.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the neighbor who is a relative, your neighbor who is a relative.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And the neighbor who is a relative, if he has a neighbor who is a relative, then he has two rights: the right of kinship and the right of the neighbor.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: And the neighbor who is a relative, he said: The neighbor who is a relative, is your relative.

Others said: Rather, he is a neighbor of yours.

Who said that?

Abdul Rahman told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Maimun bin Mihran, regarding his statement: And the neighbor who is a relative, he said: The man seeks to intercede with you through the neighborliness of your relative.

Abu Ja'far said: This statement contradicts the well-known speech of the Arabs. That is because the one described as having kinship in His statement: and the neighbor of kinship, is the neighbor and not anyone else. So the one who said this statement made him a neighbor of kinship. If the meaning of the statement was as Maymun ibn Mihran said, it would have been said: and the neighbor of kinship, and not and the neighbor of kinship. So then, if the neighbor was added to the kinship, it would be a commandment to be kind to the neighbor of kinship, not to the neighbor of kinship. As for and the neighbor with the definite article, it is not permissible for the neighbor to be anything other than an attribute of the neighbor. Since that is the case, the commandment from God in His statement: and the neighbor of kinship was to be kind to the neighbor of kinship, not to the neighbor of kinship. What Maymun ibn Mihran said about that was clearly wrong.

And worship Allah and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, Allah does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

Others said: The meaning of this is: And the neighbor who is your closest relative in Islam.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amara Al-Asadi told me, he said, Ubaidullah bin Musa told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Nawf Al-Shami: And the neighbor who is a relative, the Muslim.

Abu Ja'far said: This also has no meaning. That is because the interpretation of the Book of God, the Blessed and Exalted, is not permissible to be directed except to the most prevalent speech of the Arabs in whose language the Qur'an was revealed, which is well-known among them, not the more unusual that is customary, unless there is an argument to the contrary that must be accepted. Since that is the case, and it is known that the customary speech of the Arabs, when it is said: So-and-so is a relative, what is meant by it is: that he is close in blood to him, not close in religion, then directing it to kinship by blood is more appropriate than directing it to close in religion.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: And the distant neighbor with whom you have no kinship.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And the distant neighbor, the one with whom you have no kinship.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And the neighbor who is a stranger, meaning: the neighbor from a people who are a stranger.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And the distant neighbor, the one between whom there is no kinship, and he is a neighbor, so he has the right of neighborliness.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And the foreign neighbor, is the strange neighbor who is among the people.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the neighbor who is a stranger, is your neighbor from another people.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the distant neighbor, your neighbor with no kinship between you and him, the distant one in lineage and he is a neighbor.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ikrimah and Mujahid, regarding his statement: and the neighbor who is far away, he said: the one who is far away.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: and the distant neighbor, the one with whom there is no kinship or blood relation.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: And the neighbor who is a stranger, he said: from another people.

Others said: He is the polytheist neighbor.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amara Al-Asadi told me, he said, Ubaid God bin Musa told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Nawf Al-Shami: And the neighbor who is a stranger, he said: The Jew and the Christian.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions on this matter is the opinion of those who say: The meaning of the stranger in this context is the distant stranger, whether Muslim or polytheist, Jewish or Christian, based on what we have previously explained that the neighbor of near kinship is the neighbor of kinship and blood relationship. The neighbor of a stranger should be the distant neighbor, so that this is a commandment for all types of neighbors, near and far.

And then, in the speech of the Arabs, al-Janb means far away, as A'sha of Banu Qais said:

I came to Harith as a visitor because of ritual impurity, but Harith was stiff in his giving to me.

He means by his saying: from ritual impurity, from distance and estrangement. And from this, it was said: So-and-so avoided so-and-so, if he kept away from him, and avoided him, and he denied him his good, if he prevented him from it, and from this it was said to the one in a state of ritual impurity: he is in a state of ritual impurity, because he avoids prayer until he performs ritual ablution.

This means: the neighbor who is not related to you.

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of that.

Some of them said: He is a man's companion on his journey.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And the companion at the side, the friend.

Ibn Bashar told us, Yahya and Abd al-Rahman told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, who said: I heard Saeed ibn Jubayr say: The companion on the side means the companion on a journey.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: and the companion at your side, is your companion on a journey.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And the companion on the side, meaning the companion on a journey.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the companion at your side, is the companion on a journey, his home is your home, his food is your food, and his journey is your journey.

Sufyan told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ikrimah and Mujahid: And the companion at the side, they said: the companion on the journey.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Amer, on the authority of Ali and Abdullah, they said: And the companion at your side, is the good companion.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said, Salim told me, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: And the companion at your side, is your travel companion, who comes to you with his hand in your hand.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, reading on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Salim told us: that he heard Mujahid say: And the companion is at the side, and he mentioned something similar.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And the companion on the side, is the companion on a journey.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Dukayn told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, and the companion at your side means the good companion.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, regarding his statement: And the companion at the side, he said: The companion on a journey.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, similarly.

Others said: Rather, it is the man's wife who is with him at his side.

Who said that?

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Amer - or Al-Qasim - on the authority of Ali and Abdullah, may God be pleased with them: And the companion by your side, they said: It is the woman.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of some of his companions, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ali and Abdullah, similarly.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And the companion by your side, meaning: the one with you in your home.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Hilal, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila: that he said regarding this verse: and the companion at the side, he said: it is the woman.

Ibn Bashar told us: Abd al-Rahman told us: Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu al-Haytham, on the authority of Ibrahim: And the companion at your side, he said: the woman.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, al-Thawri said, Abu al-Haitham said, on the authority of Ibrahim: It is the woman.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Al-Haitham, on the authority of Ibrahim, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Suqah, on the authority of Abu al-Haytham, on the authority of Ibrahim, similarly.

Amr bin Bidaq told me, he said, Marwan bin Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Suqa, on the authority of Abu al-Haytham, on the authority of Ibrahim, similarly.

Others said: It is the one who sticks to you and accompanies you in the hope of benefiting you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:36

And worship Allah and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, Allah does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

Mention who said that.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said, Ibn Abbas said: And the companion by your side, the one who stays with you, and he also said: Your companion who accompanies you.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said: The companion at your side is the one who sticks to you, is at your side, and is with you at your side in the hope of your good and benefit.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct interpretation of this, in my opinion, is that the meaning of and the companion by the side is the companion to the side, as it is said: So-and-so is by the side of so-and-so, and to his side, and it is from their saying: So-and-so was by the side of so-and-so, so he is by his side, if he is by his side. And from that: the side of horses, if he leads some of them to the side of each other. This may include: the companion in travel, the woman, and the one who is cut off from the man who stays with him in the hope of benefiting him, because all of them are by the side of the one who is with him and close to him. And God Almighty has recommended all of them, because the right of the companion is obligatory upon the one who is accompanied, and:

Sahl ibn Musa al-Razi narrated to us, he said: Ibn Abi Fadik narrated to us, on the authority of so-and-so ibn Abdullah, on the authority of a trustworthy person with him: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was with a man from among his companions, and they were on two mounts. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered a thicket of tamarisk, and cut two tamarisks, one of which was crooked and the other straight. He came out with them, and gave the straight one to his companion, and took the crooked one for himself. The man said: O Messenger of God, may my father and mother be sacrificed for you, you have more right to the straight one than I do! He said: No, so-and-so. Every companion who accompanies another is responsible for his companionship, even for an hour of the day."

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Haywah, he said, Shurahbil bin Sharik told me, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Habli, on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: The best of companions in the sight of God, the Blessed and Exalted, is the one who is best to his companion. And the best of neighbors in the sight of God is the one who is best to his neighbor."

Abu Ja'far said: Since and the companion by your side is likely to mean what we mentioned: that it includes everyone who is by your side with a man by being a companion on a journey, or by marriage, or by being cut off from him and connected to him, and God, may

He be glorified and praised, did not single out some of them from what the apparent meaning of the revelation implies, then it is correct to say: all of them are meant by that, and God has commanded us to be kind to all of them.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The wayfarer is the traveler who passes by.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada and Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the wayfarer is the one who passes by you while he is traveling.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid and Qatadah, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And the wayfarer, he said: He is the one who passes by you, even if he was originally rich.

Others said: He is the guest.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: and the wayfarer, he said: The guest, he has a right while traveling and at home.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And the wayfarer, meaning the guest.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak: And the wayfarer, he said: the guest.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told us, Yazid told us, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, similarly.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement regarding this is that the wayfarer is the owner of the road, and the way is the road, and his son is his companion who travels on it. So he has the right over whoever passes by him in need and stranded by him, if his journey is not in disobedience to God, to help him if he needs assistance, to host him if he needs hospitality, and to carry him if he needs loads.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, He, the Most High, means: And those whom you possess from among your slaves. So He added the ownership to the right, just as one says: Your mouth spoke, your foot walked, and your hand struck, meaning: I spoke, walked, and struck. However, what each limb was described with from that, what it was described with was added to it, because it is thus, in common usage among people, without the rest of the limbs of the body. So it was known, by describing that limb with what it was described with from that, the intended meaning of the speech. Likewise, His saying: And what your right hands possess, because the slaves of one of us are under his hand, he only eats what our right hands take, and wears what they clothe him, and spends on what he likes to spend it on. So He added their ownership to the right hands for that reason.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And what your right hands possess, of what God has given you. God has commanded all of this.

Abu Ja'far said: What Mujahid meant by his statement: All of these are commanded by God: parents, relatives, orphans, the needy, the near neighbor, the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion at your side, and the wayfarer. So our Lord, may He be glorified and exalted, commanded all of these to His servants out of kindness to them, and He commanded His creation to preserve His commandment regarding them. So it is incumbent upon His servants to preserve God's commandment regarding them, and then to preserve the commandment of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Abu Jaafar said: What he means by his saying, may his praise be exalted: Indeed, God does not love the one who is arrogant, is that God does not love the one who is conceited.

And the arrogant: the artificial, from your saying: the man's maternal uncle, so he is arrogant, and from it the poet's saying:

If you are our master, then be our master, and if you are our uncle's, then go and be our friend.

And from it is the saying of Al-Ajjaj:

The uncle is a garment of the ignorant

As for the proud one, he is the one who boasts to the servants of God about the blessings that God has bestowed upon him, and the grace that He has extended to him, and he does not praise Him for what He has given him of His bounty, but rather he is arrogant and haughty about it, and he is proud and boastful about it to others, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: God does not love the one who is arrogant, he said: haughty, boastful, he said: counts what he has been given, and does not thank God.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Katheer told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Waqid

Abu Raja Al-Harawi, who said: You will not find a person who is ill-mannered except that you will find him arrogant and proud. And he recited: "And those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, God does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful." And you will not find a disobedient person except that you will find him tyrannical and wretched. And he recited: And dutiful to my mother, and He has not made me a wretched tyrant. (Maryam 19:32)

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It contains eighteen issues.

First - The scholars have agreed that this verse is one of the agreed-upon decisive verses, and nothing in it has been abrogated. This is also the case in all the books. If it were not so, it would have been known from the perspective of reason, even if the Book had not revealed it. The meaning of servitude has already passed, which is humility and need for the One who has the power and choice. So God the Most High commanded His servants to humble themselves before Him and be sincere in this. The verse is the basis for the purity of deeds for God the Most High and their cleansing from the impurities of hypocrisy and other things. God the Most High said: So whoever hopes for the meeting with his Lord - let him do righteous work and not associate in the worship of his Lord anyone. (al-Kahf 18:110) To the point that some scholars have said: Whoever purifies himself to cool off or fasts to protect his stomach and intends to draw closer to God, it is not permissible for him because he mixed the intention of drawing closer to God with a worldly intention, and God has nothing but pure deeds, as God the Most High said: Unquestionably, to God belongs pure religion. (al-Zumar 39:3) and God the Most High said: And they were commanded only to worship God, devoting their religion to Him alone. (al-Bayyinah 98:5) Likewise, if a man feels that he is bowing while he is an imam, he should not wait for him because His bowing while waiting for him is no longer sincere to God Almighty. In Sahih Muslim, it is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

God Almighty said: I am the most independent of partners from gratitude. Whoever does an action and associates someone else with me, I will leave him and his partner. Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Anas bin Malik, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

On the Day of Resurrection, sealed scrolls will be brought and placed before God Almighty. God Almighty will say to the angels, Throw this down and accept this. The angels will say, By Your glory, we have seen nothing but good. God Almighty will say, and He knows best, This was for someone other than Me, and I do not accept today from knowledge except that which was done for My sake. It was also narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak bin Qais Al-Fihri, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

God Almighty says: I am the best partner, so whoever associates a partner with Me, he is My partner. O people, make your deeds sincere for God Almighty, for God does not accept anything except what is sincere for Him. And do not say: This is for God and for the womb, for it is for the womb and God has nothing of it. And do not say: This is for God and for your faces, for it is for your faces and God Almighty has nothing of it.

And worship Allah and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, Allah does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

Question: If this is proven, then know that our scholars, may God be pleased with them, said: Shirk has three levels and all of it is forbidden. Its origin is believing in a partner with God in His divinity, which is the greatest Shirk, which is the Shirk of the Age of Ignorance, and it is what is meant by the Almighty's saying: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. Next in level is believing in a partner with God Almighty in action, which is the saying of those who say that something existing other than God Almighty is faced with creating an action and bringing it into existence, even if they do not believe that it is a god, like the Qadarites, the Magians of this nation, and Ibn Umar disavowed them as in the hadith of Gabriel, peace be upon him. Next in level is associating partners with God in worship, which is showing off, and it is to do something from the acts of worship that God has commanded to be done for someone other than Him. This is what the verses and hadiths were cited to show its prohibition, and it invalidates deeds and is hidden and not every ignorant fool knows it. May God be pleased with Al-Muhasibi, for he explained it in his book Al-Ri'ayah and explained its corruption of deeds. In Sunan Ibn Majah, on the authority of Abu Sa'id bin Abi Fadalah Al-Ansari, who was one of the Companions, he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's peace and blessings be upon him:

When God gathers the first and the last for the Day of Resurrection, a day about which there is no doubt, a caller will call out, "Whoever associated anyone with a deed he did for God Almighty, let him seek his reward from other than God, for God is the most independent of partners from association." And in it, "On the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, he said:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out to us while we were discussing the Antichrist and said: Shall I not tell you of what I fear for you more than the Antichrist? We said: Yes, O Messenger of God. He said: Hidden polytheism is when a man stands to pray and embellishes his prayer because of what he sees of a man looking at him. And in it: On the authority of Shaddad bin Aws, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

What I fear most for my nation is associating partners with God. I do not say that they worship the sun, the moon, or an idol, but rather actions for other than God and hidden desires. Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi Al-Hakim.

It will come at the end of the Cave, and it contains a statement of hidden desire. Ibn Lahi'ah narrated on the authority of Zaid bin Abi Habib, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about hidden desire, and he said:

Sahl ibn Abdullah al-Tustari may God be pleased with him said: Hypocrisy has three aspects: One of them is that he believes in the origin of his action for other than God and wants it to be known that it is for God. This is a type of hypocrisy and doubt in faith. The second is that he enters into something for God, but if someone other than God finds out about it, he is active. This is when he repents and wants to repeat everything he did. The third is that he enters into the action with sincerity and goes out with it for God, so he is known for that and is praised for it and is content with their praise. This is the hypocrisy that God has forbidden. Sahl said that Luqman said to his son: Hypocrisy is that you seek the reward for your action in this world, or the action of the people is for the Hereafter. It was said to him: What is the cure for hypocrisy? He said: Concealing the action. It was said to him: How is the action concealed? He said: Whatever action you are required to reveal, do not enter into it except with sincerity, and whatever you are not required to reveal, I would like for no one but God to see it. He said: And every action that people see, do not count it as an action. Ayoub al-Sakhtiyani said: He is not wise who loves to know his place in his action.

I said: The statement of Sahl and the third is that it is included in the work of sincerity and so on, if his tranquility and his happiness with them is to obtain his status in their hearts, so they praise him and glorify him and are good to him and he obtains what he wants from them of money or other things, then this is reprehensible, because his heart is overwhelmed with joy at their knowing about him, even if they knew about him after finishing. As for the one whom God has informed His creation about and he does not like them to know about him, he is happy with God's creation and His grace upon him, so they interpreted it as God's grace out of obedience, as God the Most High said: "Say: 'In the grace of God and in His mercy,' in that let them rejoice. It is better than what they accumulate." (Yunus 10:58) This was expanded upon and completed in the book Al-Ri'ayah by Al-Muhasibi, so whoever wants it, let him look at it there. He was asked "about the hadith of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: 'I keep the work secret and he knows about it and I am pleased with it.'" He said: He is pleased with it from the aspect of thanking God for which God made it apparent to him, or something like this. This is a sufficient summary of showing off and the sincerity of deeds. The reality of sincerity and praise to God has already passed in Al-Baqarah.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And to parents, do good. It was mentioned at the beginning of this surah that one of the ways of doing good is to free them, and the ruling on their righteousness will come in full in Subhan. Ibn Abi Ubla read l-hsan in the nominative case, meaning that it is obligatory to do good to them.

The rest in the accusative case, meaning do good to them. The scholars said: The people who are most deserving of thanks, goodness, commitment to righteousness, obedience to Him, and submission are those whom God has linked doing good to with His worship, obedience, and thanking Him with thanking Him, and they are the parents. God Almighty said: Be grateful to Me and to your parents. (Luqman 31:14) Shu'bah and Hisham al-Wasiti narrated on the authority of Ya'la ibn Ata' on the authority of his father, "on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-'As, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The pleasure of the Lord is in the pleasure of the parents, and His anger is in the anger of the parents."

Third: The Almighty's saying: And to relatives, orphans, and the needy. This has been discussed in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Fourth - The Almighty's saying: And the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger. As for the neighbor, God Almighty has commanded us to protect him, fulfill his rights, and to take care of his conscience in His Book and on the tongue of His Prophet. Do you not see that He, the Almighty, emphasized mentioning him after the parents and relatives? God Almighty said: And the neighbor who is a relative, meaning the relative, and the neighbor who is a stranger, meaning the stranger. Ibn Abbas said this, and it is also the case in the language, and from it, so-and-so is a foreigner, and so is the jinn, meaning distant. The linguists recited:

Do not deprive me of a reward for a crime, for I am a stranger among the domes.

Al-A'sha said:

I came to Harith visiting me for a crime, but he was frozen in my generosity.

Al-A'mash and Al-Mufaddal read al-jar and al-janb with the jim open and the nun silent. They are two dialects. It is said: janb and janb and ajnab and ajnabi if there is no kinship between them. Its plural is ajnab. It was said: on the assumption of deleting the complement, meaning al-jar is dhi al-janb meaning the one on the side. Nawf al-Shami said:

The Muslim neighbor and the Jewish or Christian neighbor.

I said: According to this, the recommendation to the neighbor is commanded and recommended, whether he is a Muslim or an infidel, and this is correct. Kindness may mean consolation, or it may mean good treatment, refraining from harm, and defending against it. Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Aisha, "On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

Gabriel kept recommending the neighbor to me until I thought he would make him an heir. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Shuraih that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

By God, he does not believe, by God, he does not believe, by God, he does not believe. It was said: O Messenger of God, who? He said: The one who does not feel safe from his neighbor's calamities. This is general for every neighbor, and the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him, emphasized leaving harm to him by swearing three times and that no one is completely safe from harming his neighbor. So the believer should beware of harming his neighbor and refrain from what God and His Messenger have forbidden and desire what they are pleased with and urge the servants to do. It was narrated on the authority of the Prophet, peace and blessings be upon him:

Neighbors are of three types: a wicked neighbor who has three rights, a neighbor who has two rights, and a neighbor who has one right. As for the neighbor who has three rights, the Muslim neighbor who is a relative has the right of neighborliness, the right of kinship, and the right of Islam. The neighbor who has two rights is the Muslim neighbor, so he has the right of Islam and the right of neighborliness. The neighbor who has one right is the infidel, so he has the right of neighborliness.

Fifth - Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Aisha, who said:

I said, O Messenger of God, I have two neighbors, so to which of them should I give a gift? He said, "To the one who is closest to you in door." A group of scholars went to the view that this hadith explains what is meant by the Almighty's saying, And the neighbor of kinship, that he is the one who lives close to you, and and the neighbor who is a stranger, that he lives far from you. They used this as evidence for the obligation of preemption for the neighbor, and supported it with his saying, peace be upon him:

The neighbor is more deserving of pre-emption. There is no argument in that. Aisha, may God be pleased with her, asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about whom her neighbors should begin with in giving gifts, and he told her that whoever is near his door is more deserving of it than anyone else. Ibn al-Mundhir said: This hadith indicates that the neighbor is not the one who is next to him. Abu Hanifa departed from the apparent meaning of this hadith and said: If the next to him abandons the right of pre-emption and the one next to him seeks it and he does not have a wall leading to the house or a road, then he has no right of pre-emption in it. The majority of scholars say: If a man makes a will for his neighbors, he gives to the next to him and others, except for Abu Hanifa, who differed from the majority of scholars and said: Only the next to him alone is given.

Sixth - People differed about the limit of neighbors. Al-Awza'i used to say: Forty houses on each side. Ibn Shihab said the same. It was narrated that a man came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: I have settled in the neighborhood of some people, and the one closest to me is the one who harms me the most. So the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) sent Abu Bakr, Umar and Ali to shout at the doors of the mosques: Except that forty houses are a neighbor, and he whose neighbor is not safe from his evil will not enter Paradise. Ali ibn Abi Talib said: Whoever hears the call to prayer is a neighbor. A group said: Whoever hears the call to prayer is a neighbor of that mosque. A group said: Whoever lives with a man in a neighborhood or city is a neighbor. God the Most High said: If the hypocrites do not desist (al-Ahzab 33:60) until His saying: Then they will not be your neighbors therein except for a little while (al-Ahzab 33:60). So God the Most High made their gathering in the city a neighbor, and the neighborhood has ranks, some closer than others, the lowest of which is the wife, as He said:

And worship Allah and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, Allah does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

Oh neighbor between me, you are divorced

Seventh: Among the ways to honor one's neighbor is what Muslim narrated: "On the authority of Abu Dharr, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Abu Dharr, if you cook a broth, increase its water and take care of your neighbors." So he, peace be upon him, urged good morals, because of the love, good companionship, and warding off need and corruption that result from them. A neighbor may be harmed by the stench of his neighbor's pot, and he may have children, which arouses desire in the weak among them, and the pain and expense become great for the one who is in charge of him, especially if the one in charge is weak or a widow, so the hardship becomes great and the pain and regret become intense from them. This was the punishment of Jacob when he parted from Joseph, peace be upon them, as it was said. All of this is prevented by sharing with them some of the cooking that is given to them. For this reason, he, peace be upon him, urged the neighbor who is close to him to give gifts, because he looks at what enters his neighbor's house and what exits it, so if he sees that, he likes to share in it. Also, he is the quickest to respond to his neighbor when he encounters a need in times of negligence and surprise, so he started with the one who is farthest from his door, even if his house is closer, and God knows best.

Eighth - The scholars said: When he, peace be upon him, said, Then increase its water, he pointed out the facilitation of the matter for the miser with a subtle warning, and he made the increase in what has no price, which is water. Therefore, he did not say, If you cook broth, then increase its meat, since that is not easy for everyone. And the speaker did well:

My destiny and the destiny of the neighbor are one and the same, and destiny is raised to him before me

And the little, despised thing is not guided, as the Prophet, peace be upon him, said:

Then look for a family of your neighbors and give them from it something good, meaning something that is given as a gift according to custom. Even if it is a small amount, it may not be given in that way. If only a small amount is available, then let him give it as a gift and not despise it. It is upon the one to whom the gift is given to accept it, based on his saying, peace be upon him:

O believing women, do not despise any of you for her neighbor, even if it is a burnt leg of a sheep. This was narrated by Malik in his Muwatta'. And we also restricted it to O believing women in the nominative case, not in the genitive case, and the meaning is: O believing women, as you say O noble men. So the vocative is omitted, and it is O you. And the women in the genitive case is the description of O you, and the believing women is the description of the women. And it was said about it: O believing women in the genitive case, and the first is more common.

Ninth - Honoring the neighbor is not to prevent him from planting a tree for him out of kindness to him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Let none of you prevent his neighbor from planting a tree in his house. Then Abu Hurairah said: Why do I see you turning away from it? By God, I will throw it between your sides. It was narrated as wooden and wooden in the plural and singular, and your shoulders was narrated with a ta and your sides with a no. The meaning of I will throw it is with the word and the story. Is this judged by the answer or by encouragement? There is a difference of opinion among the scholars. Malik, Abu Hanifa and their companions went to the fact that its meaning is encouragement to be dutiful to the neighbor and to be kind to him, and it is not obligatory, as evidenced by his saying, peace be upon him:

A Muslim's money is not permissible except with his own good will. They said: The meaning of his saying: Let none of you prevent his neighbor is like the meaning of his saying, peace be upon him:

If one of you asks his wife for permission to go to the mosque, he should not prevent her." This means, according to everyone, that it is recommended to do what the man sees as righteousness and goodness in that. Al-Shafi'i and his companions, Ahmad ibn Hānbal, Ishaq, Abu Thawr, Dawud ibn Ali and a group of the people of hadith said: That it is obligatory. They said: They assumed that Abu Hurairah understood from what he heard from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, the meaning of obligation. He would not have imposed on them anything other than obligation. This is the school of thought of 'Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, for he ruled against Muhammad ibn Maslamah for al-Dahhak ibn Khalifa in the Gulf that he should pass by him in the land of Muhammad ibn Maslamah. Muhammad ibn Maslamah said: No, by God. 'Umar said: By God, he will pass by him even if he is on your stomach. 'Umar ordered him to pass by him, and al-Dahhak did so. Malik narrated it in al-Muwatta'. Al-Shafi'i claimed in his book al-Radd that Malik did not narrate from any of the companions anything that differed from 'Umar in this matter, and he denounced Malik for narrating it and including it in his book and not taking it and rejecting it based on his opinion. Abu 'Umar said: It is not as al-Shafi'i claimed, because Muhammad ibn Maslamah's opinion in that was contrary to that. The opinion of Omar and the opinion of the Ansar also differed from the opinion of Omar and Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf in the story of al-Rabi' and his transfer - and al-Rabi' is the waterwheel - and if the companions differed, it is necessary to refer to the view and it indicates that the bloods, money and honor of Muslims are forbidden to each other except for what the soul is happy with in particular, so this is proven from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And it indicates whether the disagreement in that is the saying of Abu Hurayrah: Why do I see you turning away from it? By God, I will throw it at you, this or something similar. The first ones answered and said: Judging by the elbow is outside the Sunnah of the meaning of his saying, peace be upon him:

It is not permissible to take a Muslim's money except with his own free will," because this means ownership and consumption, not the facility of that, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, distinguished between them in the ruling, so it is not obligatory to combine what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, distinguished between them. Malik narrated that there was a judge in Medina who ruled with it called Abu al-Muttalib, and they cited as evidence from the hadith of al-A'mash, "On the authority of Anas, who said: A young boy from among us was martyred on the day of Uhud, so his mother began to wipe the dust from his face and say: Be happy, Paradise is yours, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to her:

How do you know? Perhaps he was speaking about what did not help him and preventing what did not harm him. Al-A'mash is not believed to have heard from Anas, and God knows best. This was said by Abu Omar.

Tenth - A hadith was reported in which the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gathered the neighbor's companions. It is the hadith of Muadh bin Jabal, who said:

We said, O Messenger of God, what are the rights of the neighbor? He said: If he borrows from you, lend him; if he seeks your help, help him; if he is in need, give him; if he falls ill, visit him; if he dies, follow his funeral procession; if good befalls him, please him and congratulate him; if a calamity befalls him, please him and console him. Do not hurt him with the dregs of your pot unless you scoop some of it for him; do not build high above him to overlook him and block the wind except with his permission. If you buy fruit, give him some as a gift; otherwise, bring it in secretly so that your children do not take any of it out to annoy their children. Do you understand what I am saying? But only a few of those upon whom God has mercy will fulfill the rights of the neighbor. This is a comprehensive hadith and it is a hasan hadith in its chain of transmission. Abu al-Fadl Uthman ibn Matar al-Shaibani is not acceptable.

Eleventh - The scholars said that the hadiths about honoring the neighbor came in an absolute and unrestricted manner, even to the infidel, as we explained. And in the hadith they said:

O Messenger of God, should we feed them from the meat of the sacrifice? He said: "Do not feed the polytheists from the sacrifice of the Muslims." His prohibition, may God bless him and grant him peace, against feeding the polytheists from the sacrifice of the Muslims may refer to the obligatory sacrifice of the covenant, which the ascetic is not permitted to eat from or feed to the rich. As for the non-obligatory sacrifice, which feeding to the rich is sufficient for him, it is permissible for the People of the Covenant to feed it. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Aisha when distributing the meat of the sacrifice:

Start with our Jewish neighbor." It was narrated that a sheep was slaughtered in the family of Abdullah bin Amr, and when he came, he said: Did you give a gift to our Jewish neighbor? Three times. "I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

Gabriel kept recommending the neighbor to me until I thought he would make him an heir.

Twelfth - The Almighty's saying: "And the companion at the side" meaning the companion in travel. At-Tabari attributed "that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was with a man from his companions and they were on two mounts. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered a thicket and cut off two sticks, one of which was crooked. He came out and gave the straight one to his companion. He said: O Messenger of God, you were more deserving of this. He said: No, so-and-so. Every companion who accompanies another is responsible for his companionship, even if it is for an hour of the day." And Rabi'ah bin Abi Abd al-Rahman said: Traveling is chivalry, and being at home is chivalry. As for chivalry in travel, it is giving provisions, rarely disagreeing with companions, and much joking in things that do not anger God. As for chivalry in home, it is being regular in the mosques, reciting the Qur'an, and having many brothers in God Almighty. And for some, Ibn Asad - and it was said that it was for Hatim al-Ta'i:

If my companion did not have a mount behind my camel, then I would not have carried my feet.

He did not have half of my provisions, so I had no provisions and no surplus.

We are partners in what we are in, and I see that he has a preference over me because of what he has gained from my preference.

Ali, Ibn Masoud, and Ibn Abi Laila said: And the companion at your side is the wife. Ibn Jurayj said: He is the one who accompanies you and stays with you in the hope of benefiting you. The first is more correct, and it is the saying of Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jubayr, Ikrimah, Mujahid, and Ad-Dahhak. The verse may include everyone in general, and God knows best.

Thirteenth - The Almighty's saying: And the wayfarer. Mujahid said: He is the one who passes by you, and the way is the road, so the traveler was attributed to him because he passes by him and sticks to him, and from being kind to him is giving to him, being kind to him, guiding him, and making him righteous.

Fourteenth - The Almighty's saying: And what your right hands possess. God Almighty commanded to be kind to the slaves, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, explained that. Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Al-Ma'rur bin Suwaid, who said: We passed by Abu Dharr in Ar-Rabdhah, and he was wearing a cloak and his slave was wearing a similar one. We said: O Abu Dharr, if you combined them, it would be a good garment. He said: There was a conversation between me and a man from my brothers, and she was a foreign slave, so I insulted him because of a slave girl, so he complained about me to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. I met the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said:

O Abu Dharr, you are a man in whom there is some ignorance. O Messenger of God, whoever curses men, they curse his father and mother. He said: O Abu Dharr, you are a man in whom there is ignorance. They are your brothers. God has placed them under your control, so feed them from what you eat and clothe them from what you wear. Do not burden them with what they cannot bear. But if you burden them, then help them. It was narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that he rode a mule one day and put his slave behind him. Someone said to him: Why don't you let him go so that he can run after your mount? He said: O Abu Hurairah, for two bunches of fire to run with me, burning me as they have burned, is more beloved to me than for my slave to run after me. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Abu Dharr that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever among your slaves does not agree with you, feed him from what you eat and clothe him from what you clothe yourself. Whoever among them does not agree with you, sell him and do not torture God's creation. And whoever agrees with you, agrees with you. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

The slave has his own food and clothing, and he is not required to do more work than he can bear. And he, peace be upon him, said:

Let none of you say, My slaves and My female slave, but let him say, My boy and My girl. This will be explained in Surat Yusuf, peace be upon him: So he urged masters to good morals and urged them to do so, and guided them to be kind and to follow the path of humility so that they would not see themselves as having an advantage over their slaves, since all are slaves of God and wealth is God's wealth, but He made some of them subservient to others, and made some of them possess others to complete the blessing and implement wisdom. So if he fed them less than what they eat and clothed them less than what they wear in description and amount, it is permissible if he fulfilled his duty upon him, and there is no disagreement about that, and God knows best. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr that when his servant came to him and entered, he said, Have you given the slaves their food? He said, No. He said, Then go and give them. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

It is enough of a sin for a man to withhold from those whose sustenance he possesses.

Fifteenth - It was proven that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Whoever beats his slave in a way that he did not commit or slaps him, his expiation is to free him. This means that he beats him in the amount of the prescribed punishment, and there is no prescribed punishment for him. It was reported from a group of the Companions that they exacted retribution for the servant from the son for beating him and freed the servant because retribution was not intended. And he, peace be upon him, said:

Whoever accuses his slave of adultery will be punished on the Day of Resurrection with eighty lashes." And he, peace be upon him, said:

A person with a bad temper will not enter Paradise. And he, peace be upon him, said:

Bad manners are a bad omen, good character is a source of growth, maintaining family ties increases one's lifespan, and charity wards off a bad death.

Sixteenth - Scholars differed on this matter as to which is better, the free man or the slave. Muslim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The righteous slave has two rewards. By the One in Whose Hand is the soul of Abu Hurairah, if it were not for jihad in the way of God, Hajj, and being dutiful to my mother, I would have loved to die a slave. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If the servant is sincere to his master and worships God well, he will have a double reward. He used this and similar examples of the servant's virtue as evidence because he is addressed from two directions: he is required to worship God and he is required to serve his master. This is what Abu Omar Yusuf bin Abdul Barr Al-Namri and Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Ahmad Al-Amri Al-Baghdadi Al-Hafiz went to.

He deduced from the superiority of the free man that he said: Independence in matters of religion and the world is only achieved by the free, and the slave is like the missing person due to his lack of independence, and like a tool that is controlled by force, and like an animal that is harnessed for the sake of righteousness.

For this reason, he was stripped of positions of degrees and most of the governorships, and his limits were less than the limits of the free, indicating the insignificance of his status. And the free man, even if he is required from one side, his duties in it are more and his suffering is greater, so his rewards are more. Abu Hurairah indicated this by saying: Were it not for jihad and pilgrimage, meaning were it not for the deficiency that befalls the slave due to the loss of these matters, and God knows best.

Seventeenth - Anas bin Malik narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

Gabriel kept advising me about the neighbor until I thought he would make him an heir. He kept advising me about women until I thought he would make it forbidden to divorce them. He kept advising me about the slaves until I thought he would give them a period of time, if they reached it they would be freed. He kept advising me about the siwak until I feared my mouth would become bare. He narrated until he almost did so. He kept advising me about praying at night until I thought that the best of my nation would not sleep at night. Abu al-Layth al-Samarqandi mentioned this in his interpretation.

Eighteenth - The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God does not love meaning He is not pleased with whoever is arrogant and boastful. So He, glory be to Him, denied His love and pleasure for someone of this description, meaning that the effects of His blessings are not apparent on him in the hereafter. In this is a kind of threat. The arrogant is the one who is haughty, meaning arrogant. The proud is the one who enumerates his virtues out of arrogance. Pride is extravagance and haughtiness. He mentioned these two characteristics specifically here because they lead their owners to be arrogant towards the poor relative and the poor neighbor and others mentioned in the verse, so God's command to be kind to them is neglected. Issam read, according to what Al-Mufaddal mentioned from him, and the neighbor on the side with the opening of the jim and the sukoon of the nun. Al-Mahdawi said that it is based on the deletion of the complement, meaning and the neighbor on the side, meaning on the side. Al-Akhfash recited:

People are next to each other and the prince is next to him

The side: meaning the one who is far from kinship, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty commands us to worship Him alone, with no partner, for He is the Creator, the Provider, the Benefactor, the Generous to His creation in all moments and situations. He is the One Who deserves that they worship Him alone and not associate anything with Him from His creation, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Muadh ibn Jabal, Do you know what God's right over His servants is? He said, God and His Messenger know best. He said, That they worship Him and not associate anything with Him. Then he said, Do you know what God's servants' right over God is if they do that? That He does not punish them. Then he recommended being kind to one's parents, for God the Almighty made them a reason for your emergence from nonexistence into existence. God the Almighty often links His worship with being kind to one's parents, as in His saying, Be grateful to Me and to your parents, and His saying, And your Lord has decreed that you worship none but Him, and to parents, good treatment. Then He added to being kind to them, being kind to one's male and female relatives, as mentioned in the hadith, Charity. "There is charity upon the poor, and charity upon the relative, and maintaining kinship ties." Then God the Almighty said: And orphans, because they have lost someone to look after their interests and spend on them, so God commanded us to be kind to them and show compassion towards them. Then He said: And the needy, and they are the needy among those with needs who do not find what will suffice them, so God the Almighty commanded us to help them with what will complete their sufficiency and remove their necessity. We will discuss the poor and the needy in Surat Bara'ah. And His statement: And the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, Ali bin Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And the neighbor who is a relative, meaning the one between whom you are related, and the neighbor who is a stranger, the one between whom you are not related. This was also narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, Maymun bin Mihran, Ad-Dahhak, Zaid bin Aslam, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and Qatadah. Abu Ishaq said on the authority of Nawf Al-Bakali regarding His statement: And the neighbor who is a relative, meaning the Muslim neighbor, and the neighbor who is a stranger means the Jew and the Christian. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim, and Jabir said: Al-Ja'fi, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ali and Ibn Mas'ud: The neighbor who is a relative means the woman. Mujahid also said in his statement: The neighbor who is a stranger means the companion in travel. Hadiths have been reported about recommendations regarding the neighbor, so let us mention what is easy from them, and God is the source of help.

The first hadith Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of `Umar ibn Muhammad ibn Zayd, that he heard his father Muhammad narrating on the authority of `Abdullah ibn `Umar: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Gabriel kept advising me to be kind to the neighbor until I thought he would make him an heir. They included it in the two Sahihis on the authority of `Umar ibn Muhammad ibn Zayd ibn `Abdullah ibn `Umar.

The second hadith Imam Ahmad said: Sufyan told us on the authority of Dawud ibn Shabur, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Gabriel kept advising me to be kind to my neighbor until I thought he would make him an heir. Abu Dawud and al-Tirmidhi narrated something similar from the hadith of Sufyan ibn Uyaynah, on the authority of Bashir Abu Ismail. Al-Tirmidhi added: and Dawud ibn Shabur, both on the authority of Mujahid, on his authority. Then al-Tirmidhi said: It is hasan gharib from this chain of transmission. Aisha and Abu Hurayrah narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on the authority of Mujahid.

The third hadith Ahmad also said: Abdullah bin Yazid told us, Haywah told us, Shurahbil bin Sharik told us that he heard Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Habli narrating on the authority of Abdullah bin Amr bin al-Aas on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: The best of companions in the sight of God is the best of them to his companion, and the best of neighbors in the sight of God is the best of them to his neighbor. And al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Ahmad bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abdullah bin al-Mubarak, on the authority of Haywah bin Shuraih on his authority, and he said it is good and strange.

The fourth hadith Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ubayya ibn Rafa'ah, on the authority of Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A man should not be satisfied without his neighbor. Ahmad alone transmitted it.

Hadith 5 Imam Ahmad said: Ali ibn Abdullah told us, Muhammad ibn Fadil ibn Ghazwan told us, Muhammad ibn Saad al-Ansari told us, I heard Abu Dhibya al-Kila'i, I heard al-Miqdad ibn al-Aswad say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to his companions, What do you say about adultery? They said, "It is forbidden. God and His Messenger have forbidden it, so it is forbidden until the Day of Resurrection." The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, For a man to commit adultery with ten women is lesser for him than for him to commit adultery with his neighbor's wife. He said, What do you say about theft? They said, God and His Messenger have forbidden it, so it is forbidden. He said, For a man to steal from ten houses is lesser for him than for him to steal from his neighbor. Ahmad is the only one to narrate it, and it has a corroborating report in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Ibn Mas'ud: I said, O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? He said, To make a rival to God even though He created you. I said, Then what? He said, To kill your child for fear that he will eat with you. I said, Then what? He said, That you commit adultery with your neighbor's wife.

Hadith 6 Imam Ahmad said: Yazid told us, Hisham told us, on the authority of Hafsah, on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, on the authority of a man from the Ansar who said: I left my family intending to visit the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and there he was standing and a man with him was facing him. I thought that they had a need. The Ansari said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood so long that I felt sorry for the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, because of the length of his standing. When he turned away, I said: O Messenger of God, this man stood with you so long that I felt sorry for you because of the length of his standing. He said: And you saw him? I said: Yes. He said: Do you know who he is? I said: No. He said: "That was Gabriel. He kept advising me to be kind to my neighbors until I thought that he would make them inherit." Then he said: If you had greeted him, he would have returned your greeting.

The Seventh Hadith Abd bin Hamid said in his Musnad: Ya'la bin Ubaid told us, Abu Bakr, meaning the Madani, told us, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: A man from the 'Awali tribe came and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Gabriel, peace be upon him, were praying where funeral prayers are performed. When he finished, the man said: O Messenger of God, who is this man that I saw with you? He said: And you saw him? He said: Yes. He said: "I have seen much good. This is Gabriel. He kept advising me to be kind to the neighbor until I saw that he would make him an heir." This is the only narration from this source and it supports the one before it.

The eighth hadith Abu Bakr al-Bazzar said: Ubayd God ibn Muhammad Abu al-Rabi' al-Harithi told us, Muhammad ibn Ismail ibn Abi Fadik told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Fadl told me on the authority of Ata' al-Khurasani, on the authority of al-Hasan, on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Neighbors are of three types: a neighbor who has one right, and he is the neighbor with the lowest right, a neighbor who has two rights, and a neighbor who has three rights, and he is the neighbor with the best right. As for the one who has one right, he is a polytheist neighbor who has no kinship, but he has the right of neighborliness. As for the one who has two rights, he is a Muslim neighbor, and he has the right of Islam and the right of neighborliness. As for the one who has three rights, he is a Muslim neighbor with kinship, and he has the right of neighborliness, the right of Islam, and the right of kinship." Al-Bazzar said: We do not know anyone who narrated on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Fadl except Ibn Abi Fadik.

The ninth hadith Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Imran, on the authority of Talhah ibn 'Abdullah, on the authority of 'Aishah, that she asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have two neighbors, so to which of them should I send a gift? He said: To the one who is closest to you in door. Al-Bukhari narrated it from the hadith of Shu'bah with it.

The tenth hadith Al-Tabarani and Abu Naim narrated on the authority of Abd al-Rahman, who added: He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, performed ablution and the people began to wipe themselves with his ablution water. He said: What makes you do that? They said: The love of God and His Messenger. He said: Whoever is pleased to love God and His Messenger, let him speak the truth when he speaks, and let him fulfill the trust when he is entrusted with it.

Hadith Eleven Ahmad said: Qutaybah told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The first two opponents on the Day of Resurrection will be neighbors. And the Almighty's statement: And the companion at your side, Al-Thawri said, on the authority of Jabir Al-Ja'fi, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ali and Ibn Mas'ud, they said: It is the woman. Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman Ibn Abi Laila, Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i, Al-Hasan, and Sa'id Ibn Jubayr in one of the narrations, something similar to that. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, and Qatadah said: It is the companion in travel. Sa'id Ibn Jubayr said: It is the righteous companion. Zaid Ibn Aslam said: It is your companion in the city and your companion in travel. As for the wayfarer, Ibn Abbas and a group said: It is the guest. Mujahid, Abu Ja'far Al-Baqir, Al-Hasan, Ad-Dahhak, and Muqatil said: It is the one who passes by you while traveling. This is more apparent, even if the one who said the guest meant the one passing by on the road, then they are the same. We will discuss the wayfarers in Surat Bara'ah, and trust in God and upon Him is His trust. The Taklan. And the Almighty's saying: And what your right hands possess is a commandment regarding slaves, because the slave is weak and a captive in the hands of the people. For this reason, it was proven that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to advise his nation during his death illness, saying: Prayer, prayer, and what your right hands possess, and he kept repeating it until his tongue could not utter it. Imam Ahmad said: Ibrahim bin Abi Al-Abbas told us, Baqiyah told us, Buhair bin Saad told us, on the authority of Khalid bin Ma'dan, on the authority of Al-Miqdam bin Ma'dikarib, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whatever you feed yourself is charity for you, whatever you feed your child is charity for you, whatever you feed your wife is charity for you, and whatever you feed your servant is charity for you. Al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Baqiyah, and its chain of transmission is sound, praise be to God.

On the authority of Abdullah bin Amr that he said to his servant: Have you given your slaves their food? He said: No. He said: Go and give them, for the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It is enough of a sin for a man to withhold the food of those he owns. Narrated by Muslim. On the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: The slave is entitled to his food and clothing, and he should not be charged with more work than he can bear. Also narrated by Muslim. On the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "When one of you is brought his food by his servant, and he does not seat him with him, then let him give him a morsel or two, or a meal or two, for he is the guardian of his freedom and his treatment." Narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim. Its wording is: "Let him seat him with him and let him eat. If the food is very small, then let him put a morsel or two in his hand." On the authority of Abu Dharr, may God be pleased with him. On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "They are your brothers, your servants, whom God has placed under your control. So whoever has his brother under his control, let him feed him from what he eats, and let him clothe him from what he wears, and do not burden them with what they cannot bear. But if you burden them, then help them." Narrated by both of them. And the words of God Almighty: Indeed, God does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful, meaning arrogant in himself, conceited, haughty, and proud before people, who sees himself as better than them, so he is great in himself, but in the sight of God he is insignificant, and hated by people. Mujahid said regarding His words: Indeed, God does not like anyone who is arrogant, meaning arrogant, boastful, meaning he counts what he has given, and he does not thank God Almighty, meaning he boasts before people about the blessings God has given him, and he is little thankful to God for that. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told me, Al-Husayn told us, Muhammad ibn Kathir told us, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Waqid Abu Raja' Al-Harawi, who said: You will not find someone who is bad in character except that you will find him arrogant and proud, and he recited: And those whom your right hands possess, the verse, and no one who is disobedient except that you will find him... A wretched tyrant, and he recited: And dutiful to my mother, and He has not made me a wretched tyrant. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Al-Awam bin Hawshab about Al-Mukhtaar Al-Fakhir, and he said: My father told us, Abu Naim told us on the authority of Al-Aswad bin Shaiban, Yazid bin Abdullah bin Al-Shakheer told us, he said: Mutraf said: I used to hear a hadith on the authority of Abu Dharr that I wanted to meet, so I met him and said: O Abu Dharr, it has reached me that you claim that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, told you: God loves three and hates three? He said: Yes, I do not think I would lie about my two close friends three times. I said: Who are the three whom God hates? He said: The arrogant, the proud. Do you not find it in the revealed Book of God? Then he recited the verse, Indeed, God does not love the arrogant and boastful. My father told us, Musa bin Ismail told us, Wahib bin Khalid told us, on the authority of Abu Tamimah, on the authority of a man from Balhajim, who said: I said: O Messenger of God, advise me. He said: Beware of letting your lower garment hang down, for letting your lower garment hang down is a sign of arrogance, and God does not love arrogance.

The meaning of worship has been explained above. And something is either a direct object: meaning do not associate anything with Him, without distinguishing between living and dead, inanimate and animal, or a source: meaning do not associate anything with Him, without distinguishing between major and minor, obvious and hidden polytheism. And His statement 36-goodness is a source for an omitted verb: meaning be good to your parents. Ibn Abi Ubla read it in the nominative case, and mentioning goodness to parents after the command to worship God and the prohibition of associating anything with Him indicates the greatness of their right, and similar to it is that you be grateful to Me and to your parents so God the Almighty commanded that they be grateful with Him. His statement and to the kin means the one with kinship, and he is the one who can be called kin even if he is distant. And the orphans and the needy their explanation has been presented, and the meaning is: And be good to the near of kin until the end of what is mentioned in this verse. And the neighbor of kinship meaning: the one who is close to his neighbor, and it was said: he is the one who has a close relationship with the neighbor in the house, And the neighbor who is a stranger the one who is far away and it is the opposite of the neighbor who is a near of kin, and what is meant is the one who is described as a neighbor even though his house is far away, and in that is evidence of the generality of neighbors by treating them well whether the houses are close together or far apart, and that neighborliness is a respected and commanded sanctity. In it is a refutation of those who think that the neighbor is specific to the one who is adjacent to him and not the one who is separated from him by a barrier, or specific to the near one and not the far, and it was said: what is meant by the neighbor who is a stranger here is the stranger, and it was said: he is the stranger who has no kinship between him and his neighbor. Al-A'mash and Al-Mufaddal read And the neighbor who is a stranger with a fatha on the jim and a sukoon on the nun: meaning the one on the side, which is the side, and Al-Akhfash recited:

And worship Allah and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, Allah does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

People are next to each other and the prince is next to him

It was said: What is meant by the close neighbor is the Muslim, and what is meant by the distant neighbor is the Jew or the Christian.

Scholars have differed regarding the amount to which the term neighbor applies and the right of its owner is established. It was narrated from Al-Awza'i and Al-Hasan that it is up to forty houses on each side. Something similar was narrated from Al-Zuhri. It was said: whoever hears the call to prayer. It was also said: if they are joined by a neighborhood. It was also said: whoever hears the call to prayer. It is better to refer to the meaning of neighbor to the Shari'ah. If there is something in it that requires its clarification and that he is a neighbor to such and such a number of houses, or a distance of land, then it is obligatory to act upon it. If there is nothing in it, then it is referred to its meaning in language or custom. There is nothing in the Shari'ah that indicates that a neighbor is someone who is between him and his neighbor a distance of such and such, nor is there anything in the Arabic language that indicates that. Rather, what is meant by neighbor in the language is: the neighbor, and it is applied to several meanings. It says in Al-Qamoos: The neighbor and the one who is neighbored, the one who protects her from being wronged, the protector, the one who seeks protection, the partner in business, the husband of a woman who is his neighbor, the vagina of a woman, what is close to the houses, the one who is like a neighbor, the divider and the ally, and the helper. Al-Qurtubi said in his interpretation: It was narrated that "a man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have settled in the neighborhood of a people, and the one who is closest to me in neighborliness is the one who harms me the most. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent Abu Bakr, Umar, and Ali to shout at the doors of the mosques: Beware, forty houses are neighbors, and he whose neighbor is not safe from his evil will not enter Paradise." End quote. If this had been proven, it would have sufficed for others, but he narrated it, as you see, without attributing it to one of the well-known books of hadith. Even though he was an imam in the science of narration, evidence cannot be established from what he narrates without a known chain of narration or transmission from a well-known book, especially since he often mentions weak hadiths as he does in his Tadhkirat. There is evidence in the Qur'an that living in a neighboring city is permissible. God Almighty said: If the hypocrites do not desist until His saying: Then they will not be your neighbors therein except for a little while, so He made their gathering in the city a neighboring city. As for the customs in the name of the neighbor, they differ according to the people of that neighborhood, and it is not correct to interpret the Qur'an based on common customs and simple terminology. His statement, and the companion at your side, it was said: it is the companion in travel, as stated by Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Jubair, Ikrimah, Mujahid, and Ad-Dahhak. Ali bin Abi Talib, Ibn Masoud, and Ibn Abi Laila said: it is the wife. Ibn Jurayj said: it is the one who accompanies you and sticks to you in the hope of benefiting you. It is not far-fetched that the verse includes all of these statements with additions. It is anyone who is truly a companion at your side: i.e. next to you, like someone who stands next to you in acquiring knowledge, learning a craft, or engaging in trade, or something similar. His statement, and the wayfarer, Mujahid said: it is the one who passes by you, and the way is the road, so the traveler was attributed to it because of his passing by it and sticking to it, so it is better to interpret it as someone who is on a journey, as the resident must treat him well. It was also said: it is the one who is stranded with him, and it was also said: it is the guest. His statement, and those whom your right hands possess, meaning: "And be good to ...

Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab Al-Iman narrated through various chains of narration on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, "and the neighbor who is a relative," meaning: the one with whom you are related, and the neighbor who is a stranger, meaning: the one with whom you are not related. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Nawf Al-Bakali who said: The neighbor who is a relative is the Muslim, and the neighbor who is a stranger is the Jew or the Christian. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab Al-Iman narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, and the companion at your side, he said: the travel companion. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr and Mujahid. Al-Hakim, Al-Tirmidhi in Nawader Al-Usul, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Zaid ibn Aslam, and the companion at your side, he said: he is your companion in the city, your travel companion and your wife who sleeps with you. Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ali who said: he is the woman. These and Al-Tabarani narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, and those whom your right hands possess, he said: Of what God has given you, so treat them well. God has recommended all of this. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Muqatil. It has been transmitted with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) regarding being dutiful to parents, maintaining kinship ties, being kind to orphans, being kind to neighbors, and fulfilling the needs of slaves. There are many hadiths that have been included in the books of Sunnah, and we do not need to elaborate on them here. Similarly, what has been transmitted in condemning arrogance, haughtiness and boasting is well-known.

36- The Almighty said: And worship God meaning: make Him One and obey Him, and do not associate anything with Him [Abu Hamid Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi told us, I told Abu al-Hasan Ali ibn Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Bishran, I told Ali Abu Ismail Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Saffar, I told Ahmad ibn Mansur al-Ramadi, I told Abd al-Razzaq, I told Muammar, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Amr ibn Maimun al-Awdi] on the authority of Muadh ibn Jabal, may God be pleased with him, who said: "I was riding behind the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Do you know, Muadh, what is the right of God over the people? I said: God and His Messenger know best. He said: His right over them is that they worship Him and do not associate anything with Him. Do you know, Muadh, what is the right of the people over God if they do that? I said: God and His Messenger know best. He said: The right of the people over God is that He does not punish them. I said: O Messenger of God, should I not give the people good report? He said: Let them work."

God Almighty says: And to parents, do good, being kind to them and compassionate towards them, and to relatives, meaning: be kind to relatives, and orphans and the needy, [Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Amr bin Zararah told us, Abdul Aziz bin Abi Hazim on the authority of his father on the authority of Sahl bin Saad, may God be pleased with him, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I and the one who takes care of an orphan will be in Paradise like this, and he pointed with his index and middle fingers and separated them slightly.]

[Muhammad bin Yaqub Al-Kisa'i told us, Abdullah bin Mahmud told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah Al-Khalal told us, Abdullah bin Mubarak told us, on the authority of Yahya bin Ayoub, on the authority of Abdullah bin Zahr, on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Al-Qasim] on the authority of Abu Umamah, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Whoever strokes the head of an orphan, and does not stroke it except for God, will have a good deed for every hair that his hand passes over. And whoever is kind to an orphan girl or boy, he and I will be in Paradise like these two," and he put a finger between his fingers.

The Almighty said: And the neighbor who is a relative meaning: the one who is related to you, and the neighbor who is a stranger meaning: the distant one with whom you have no kinship. [Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Abu Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shureih told us, Abu Al-Qasim Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz Al-Baghawi told us, Ali bin Al-Ja'd told us, Shu'bah on the authority of Abu Imran Al-Jawni, who said: I heard] Talhah say: Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: "O Messenger of God, I have two neighbors, so to which of them should I give a gift? He said: To the one who is closest to you in door."

Professor Imam Abu Al-Qasim Abdul Karim bin Hawazin Al-Qushayri told us, Abu Naim Abdul Malik bin Al-Hasan Al-Isfaryini told us, Abu Awana Yaqoub bin Ishaq told us, Yazid bin Sinan told us, Uthman bin Omar told us, Abu Amer Al-Khazzaz told us, on the authority of Abu Imran Al-Joni, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Samit, on the authority of Abu Dharr, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Do not belittle any good deed, even if it is meeting your brother with a cheerful face. And if you cook a broth, add more water to it and scoop some for your neighbors."

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Naimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Muhammad bin Munhal told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Umar bin Muhammad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Gabriel kept advising me about the neighbor until I thought he would make him an heir.

The Almighty's saying: And the companion at your side means: the companion on a journey. This was said by Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, and a group, Ikrimah, and Qatadah. Ali, Abdullah, and Al-Nakha'i said: It is the woman who is with him at his side. Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Zayd said: It is the one who accompanies you in the hope of benefiting you.

And worship Allah and associate nothing with Him, and to parents do good, and to relatives, orphans, the needy, the neighbor who is a relative and the neighbor who is a stranger, the companion by your side, the wayfarer, and those whom your right hands possess. Indeed, Allah does not like anyone who is arrogant and boastful.

And the wayfarer, it was said: he is the traveler because he is constantly on the road, and most of them: he is the guest. The master Imam Abu al-Qasim Abdul Karim bin Hawazin al-Qushayri told us, I told Abu Naim Abdul Malik bin al-Hasan al-Isfarayini, I told Abu Awana Yaqub bin Ishaq, I told Shu'ayb bin Amr al-Dimashqi, Sufyan bin Uyaynah told us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, that he heard Nafi bin Jubayr, on the authority of Abu Shuraih al-Khuza'i, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him be good to his neighbor, and whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him honor his guest, and whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him speak good, even if he were to remain silent."

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Musab told us, Malik told us, Saeed ibn Abi Saeed al-Maqburi told us, Abu Shuraih al-Kaabi told us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him honor his neighbor. Whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him speak good or remain silent. Whoever believes in God and the Last Day, let him honor his guest. His reward is a day and a night, and hospitality is three days. Whatever comes after that is charity. It is not permissible for a person to stay with him until he makes him uncomfortable."

The Almighty said: And those whom your right hands possess, meaning: the slaves, treat them well. Muhammad ibn al-Hasan al-Marwazi told us, Abu al-Abbas al-Tahhan told us, Abu Ahmad Muhammad ibn Quraysh told us, Ali ibn Abd al-Aziz al-Maliki told us, Abu Ubayd al-Qasim ibn Salam told us, Yazid told us, on the authority of Hammam, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Salih Abu al-Khalil, on the authority of Safina, on the authority of Umm Salamah, may God be pleased with her, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he used to say during his illness: Prayer and those whom your right hands possess, and he began to speak and his tongue did not utter it."

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Umar bin Hafs told us, my father told us, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Al-Ma'rur, on the authority of Abu Dharr, may God be pleased with him, who said: "I saw him wearing a cloak and his slave was wearing a cloak, so I said: If I were to take this and wear it, they would be a good suit, and I gave him another garment. He said: There was a conversation between me and a man, and there was a foreign slave girl, so I took advantage of her, so he mentioned me to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said to me: Did you take advantage of so-and-so? I said: Yes. He said: Did you take advantage of a slave girl? I said: Yes. He said: You are a man in whom there is ignorance. I said: At this moment of my old age? He said: Yes, they are your brothers whom God has placed under your control. So whoever God has placed his brother under his control, let him feed him from what he eats and clothe him from what he wears and not burden him with work that is beyond his ability, but if he burdens him with work that is beyond his ability, let him help him with it."

Imam Abu al-Husayn ibn Muhammad al-Qadi told us, Abu Tahir al-Ziyadi told us, Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn Umar ibn Hafs al-Tajir told us, Sahl ibn Ammar told us, Yazid ibn Harun told us, Sadaqah ibn Musa told us, on the authority of Farqad al-Sabkhi, on the authority of Marra al-Tayyib, on the authority of Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said, A person with a bad disposition will not enter Paradise.

"God does not love the arrogant and boastful." The arrogant is the haughty, and the proud is the one who boasts to people without right out of arrogance. He mentioned this after mentioning the rights, because the arrogant person prevents the right out of arrogance.

Hassan bin Saeed Al-Munai'i told us, Abu Tahir Al-Ziyadi told us, Muhammad bin Al-Hussein Al-Qattan told us, Ahmad bin Yusuf Al-Salami told us, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Hammam bin Munabbih, who said: Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, told us: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: While a man was strutting around in two garments, and he was pleased with himself, God caused the earth to swallow him up, and he will continue to sink into it until the Day of Resurrection.

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad, on the authority of Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Abdullah ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them both, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God will not look on the Day of Resurrection at the one who drags his garment out of arrogance.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

36 And worship God and do not associate anything with Him an idol or other, or any obvious or hidden association and to parents do good and do good to them. and to relatives and to the relative, and orphans and the needy and the neighbor who is a relative meaning the one whose neighbor is close. It was said that the one who has a neighbor is close and connected by reason or religion. It was read in the accusative case to magnify his right. and the neighbor who is far away, or the one who has no kinship. And from him, peace and blessings be upon him:

"Neighbors are three. A neighbor who has three rights: the right of neighborliness, the right of kinship, and the right of Islam. A neighbor who has two rights: the right of neighborliness and the right of Islam. A neighbor who has one right: the right of neighborliness, and he is the polytheist from the People of the Book." And the companion by your side is the companion in a good matter such as learning, behavior, craftsmanship, and travel, for he accompanied you and was by your side. It was also said that it was a woman. And the wayfarer is the traveler or the weak. And those whom your right hands possess male and female slaves. Indeed, God does not like anyone who is arrogant who is proud and disdainful of his relatives, neighbors, and friends and does not pay attention to them. Boasting who brags to them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:37

Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people and conceal what Allah has given them of His bounty - and We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment.

Surat al-Nisa 4:37

Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people and conceal what God has given them of His bounty - and We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those subject who are stingy with what is due to them and enjoin people to be stingy with it and conceal what God has given them of His bounty of knowledge and money, and they are the Jews, and the predicate of the subject for them is a severe threat and We have prepared for the disbelievers with that and other things a humiliating punishment of humiliation.

The Almighty said: Those who are stingy, the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: The scholars of the Children of Israel were stingy with what they had of knowledge, so God revealed: Those who are stingy and command people to be stingy, the verse.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Ishaq on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Kurдум ibn Zaid was an ally of Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, Usama ibn Habib, Nafi' ibn Abi Nafi', Bahri ibn Amr, Huyayy ibn Akhtab, and Rafa'ah ibn Zaid ibn al-Tabut. They used to come to some men from the Ansar and advise them, saying: Do not spend your money, for we fear that it will lead to poverty if it is lost. Do not rush to spend, for you do not know what will happen. So God revealed about them: Those who are miserly and enjoin miserliness on people, until His saying: And He is Knowing of them.

Abu Jaafar said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: God does not love the arrogant, the proud, the one who is stingy and orders people to be stingy.

Those may be in the nominative case, in response to what is in his saying: proud, of mention, and it may be in the accusative case as an adjective for who.

Stinginess in Arabic speech: A man prevents his beggar from what he has, while he has what is left over, as in:

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ibn Tawus, on the authority of his father, regarding His statement: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people, he said: Stinginess is for a person to be stingy with what is in his hands, and miserliness is to be miserly with what is in the hands of people. He said: He likes to have what is in the hands of people, whether lawful or unlawful, and is not content.

There is a difference in the reading of his saying: And they enjoin people to be stingy.

So I read it as the people of Kufa generally read: with the ba' and kha' open.

The people of Medina and some of the Basrans read it with a damma on the ba': with miserliness.

Abu Jaafar said: They are two eloquent languages with one meaning, and two well-known readings that do not differ in meaning, so whichever one the reader reads, he is correct in his reading.

It has been said that God Almighty meant by His saying: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people, those who concealed the name of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his description from the Jews and did not reveal it to the people, even though they found it written in their Torah and Gospel.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Abdul A'la told us, he said, Al-Mu'tamir bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Hadrami: Those who are miserly and order people to be miserly and conceal what God has given them of His bounty, he said: They are the Jews, they were miserly with what they had of knowledge and concealed it.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people to His statement: And God is ever Knowing of them, what is between that in the Jews.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his saying: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people, and they are the enemies of God, the People of the Book, they were stingy with God's right over them, and they concealed Islam and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, even though they find it written in their Torah and Gospel.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: As for those who are miserly and enjoin miserliness on people, they are the Jews, and conceal what God has given them of His bounty, the name of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. As for who are miserly and enjoin miserliness on people, they are miserly with the name of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they enjoin one another to conceal it.

Muhammad bin Muslim Al-Razi told us, he said, Abu Ja'far Al-Razi told me, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of `Arim, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Ja'far, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, regarding his statement: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people, he said: This is for knowledge, there is nothing in it for the world.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people, he said: These are the Jews. And he recited: And conceal what God has given them of His bounty, he said: They are stingy with what God has given them of provision, and they conceal what God has given them of the Book. If they are asked about something and what God has revealed, they conceal it. And he recited: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? Then they would not give the people so much as a speck on a date stone (An-Nisa': 53) because of their stinginess.

Ibn Humayd narrated that Salamah narrated on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Kurdam ibn Zayd, an ally of Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, Usamah ibn Habib, Nafi' ibn Abi Nafi', Bahri ibn Amr, Huyayy ibn Akhtab, and Rifa'ah ibn Zayd ibn al-Tabut, used to come to some men from the Ansar - and they used to mix with them and give them advice - from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they would say to them: Do not spend your wealth, for we fear that it will lead to poverty for you if it goes away, and do not rush to spend, for you do not know what will happen! So God revealed about them: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people and conceal what God has given them of His bounty, meaning: of the prophethood, which confirms what Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought, And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment, up to His saying: And God is Knowing of them.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the verse according to the first interpretation is: God does not love those who are arrogant and proud, who are stingy with explaining to people what God has commanded them to explain, of the name of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his description and attributes that He revealed in His books to His prophets, and they are knowledgeable about it, and they command people who know that as well as they do, to conceal what God has commanded them to clarify to him, and they conceal what God has given them of knowledge and understanding of that from those whom God has forbidden to conceal it.

As for the interpretation of Ibn Abbas and Ibn Zayd: Indeed, God does not love those who are arrogant and boastful, those who are stingy with people regarding the excess of what God has provided them of their wealth. Then all of their interpretations and the interpretations of others are the same.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings in this regard is what was said by those who said: God described these people, whose description He described in this verse, as being stingy in explaining to those who were ignorant of the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that it is true, and that Muhammad is a prophet sent by God, and other than that of the truth that God, the Most High, mentioned, had made clear in what He revealed to His prophets from His books. So he was stingy in explaining it to these people, and they ordered those who were in their situation in their knowledge of it to conceal it from ignorance of that, and not to explain it to the people.

Rather, we said: This statement is more deserving of the interpretation of the verse, because God, the Most High, described them as ordering people to be miserly, and we have not been informed of any nation that ordered people to be miserly as a matter of religion or morals. Rather, they consider it ugly and condemn its doer, and praise - even if they are naturally miserly and use it in themselves - their generosity and liberality, and consider it one of the noble deeds and encourage it. Therefore, we said: Their miserliness with which God described them was only miserliness with the knowledge that God had given them, so they were miserly with explaining it to people and concealing it, not miserliness with money, unless the meaning of that is: those who are miserly with their money that they spend in the rights of God and in His ways, and they order people from the people of Islam to stop spending on that. So their miserliness with their money, and their ordering people to be miserly, is in this sense - according to what we mentioned in the narration from Ibn Abbas - so there is an understandable reason for describing them as miserly and ordering them to be so.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And We have prepared, and We have made for those who deny the blessing of God that He bestowed upon them, of knowledge of the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, who deny him after they have known him, who conceal his description and attributes from the people whom God has commanded them to explain to him, a humiliating punishment, meaning: the humiliating punishment of the one who is punished for his eternity in it, as a provision for him in his afterlife, when he comes before his Lord and finds Him, because of his previous denial of the duty that God imposed upon him.

There are two issues:

The first: The Almighty's saying: Those who are stingy. Those is in the accusative case as a substitute for whoever in His saying whoever was. It is not an adjective because whoever and whatever are not described and are not described by them. It is permissible for it to be in the nominative case as a substitute for the implied word in Fakhour, and it is permissible for it to be in the nominative case and be conjoined with it. It is permissible for it to be the subject and the predicate is omitted, meaning those who are stingy will have such and such, or the predicate is Indeed, God does not wrong, even by the weight of an atom. (An-Nisa': 40) It is permissible for it to be in the accusative case with the implied I mean, so the verse is about the believers. So the verse comes with this interpretation that the stingy are deprived of the love of God, so do good, O believers, to those who are named, for God does not love those who have the characteristics that prevent doing good.

Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people and conceal what Allah has given them of His bounty - and We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment.

The second - the Almighty's saying: They are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people. The stinginess that is blameworthy in the Shari'ah is refraining from performing what God has obligated upon him, and it is like His saying: And let not those who are stingy with what God has given them of His bounty think (Al Imran 3:180) and the verse. The discussion of stinginess and its reality has already been mentioned in Al Imran, and the difference between it and miserliness is complete. What is meant by this verse, according to Ibn Abbas and others, is the Jews, for they combined arrogance and pride with stinginess with money and concealing what God revealed in the Torah of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. It was said: What is meant are the hypocrites whose spending and faith were out of caution, and the meaning is that God does not love every arrogant boaster, nor those who are stingy, according to what we mentioned of its grammar.

The Almighty said: And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment. The Almighty separated the threat of the stingy believers from the threat of the disbelievers by making the first a lack of love and the second a humiliating punishment.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, blaming those who are stingy with their wealth and do not spend it on what God has commanded them to do, such as being dutiful to parents, doing good to relatives, orphans, the needy, the near neighbor, the distant neighbor, the companion at your side, the wayfarer, and the slaves your right hands possess, and they do not pay God's right therein, and they also command people to be stingy. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, What disease is worse than stinginess? And he said, "Beware of stinginess, for it destroyed those who came before you. It commanded them to sever ties of kinship, so they sever ties, and it commanded them to commit immorality, so they committed immorality."

And the Almighty said: And they conceal what God has given them of His bounty. The miser is ungrateful for the blessings of God that are not apparent or evident, neither in his food nor in his clothing nor in what He gives and provides, as the Almighty said: "Indeed, man is ungrateful to his Lord. And indeed, he is, over that, a witness." That is, in his state and his characteristics. And indeed, he is intense in his love of good. And He said here: And they conceal what God has given them of His bounty. That is why He threatened them with His words: And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment. Disbelief is concealment and covering, so the miser conceals the blessings of God upon him and conceals them and denies them, so he is ungrateful for the blessings of God upon him. In the hadith: Indeed, when God bestows a blessing upon a servant, He loves for its effect to appear upon him. And in the prophetic supplication: And make us grateful for Your blessings, praising You for them, accepting them, and completing them for us. Some of the predecessors interpreted this verse as referring to the miserliness of the Jews in showing the knowledge they had of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and their concealment. That is why God the Almighty said: And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment. It was narrated by Ibn Ishaq on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Mujahid and others said the same. There is no doubt that the verse is likely to mean that. It appears that the context is about miserliness with money, even though miserliness with knowledge is included in that by way of priority, because the context is about spending on relatives and the weak. Likewise, the verse that follows it, which is His statement: Those who spend their wealth to be seen by people, for He mentioned the blameworthy misers, who are the misers. Then He mentioned the hypocritical spenders who intend by their giving to gain fame and to be praised for their generosity, and they do not intend thereby the face of God. In the hadith of the three who are the first to be lit by the Fire, who are: the scholar, the warrior, and the hypocritical spender with their actions, "The owner of the wealth will say: I did not leave anything that you would like to be spent on except that I spent it in Your cause. God will say: You lied. You only wanted it to be said: Generous, and it was said." That is, you have received your reward in this world, which is what you intended by your action. The hadith states that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Adi bin Hatim, Your father sought something and achieved it. In another hadith, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about Abdullah bin Jud'an: Will his spending and manumission benefit him? He said, No, he never said a single day in his life, 'O Lord, forgive me my sin on the Day of Judgment.' That is why God the Almighty said, And they do not believe in God or in the Last Day, meaning that what led them to do this ugly deed and to turn away from doing obedience in the proper manner was Satan, for he tempted them and gave them hope, and he accompanied them and made ugly things seem good to them. That is why God the Almighty said, And whoever has Satan as a companion - then he is an evil companion. That is why the poet said:

Do not ask about a person, but ask about his companion, for every companion follows the example of his companion.

Then the Almighty said: And what would harm them if they believed in God and the Last Day and spent from what God has provided for them? The verse, meaning, what would harm them if they believed in God and followed the praiseworthy path, and turned away from hypocrisy to sincerity and belief in God and hope for His promise in the Hereafter for those who do good deeds, and spent from what God has provided for them in the ways that God loves and is pleased with? And His statement, And God is All-Knowing of them, meaning, He is All-Knowing of their good and corrupt intentions, and All-Knowing of who among them deserves success, so He guides him, inspires him with righteousness, and enables him to do good deeds that will please Him, and who deserves to be let down and expelled from the greatest divine side, from whose door whoever is expelled has failed and lost in this world and the hereafter, God forbid.

His saying 37- Those who are stingy is in the accusative case instead of his saying whoever is arrogant or on the blood, or in the nominative case as the subject and the predicate is presented: that is, they will have such and such of punishment, and it is permissible for it to be in the nominative case instead of the hidden pronoun in his saying arrogant and proud and it is permissible for it to be in the accusative case based on the estimation of I mean, or in the nominative case as the predicate and the subject is estimated: that is, they are the ones who are stingy, and the sentence is in the accusative case as a substitute. The reprehensible miserliness in the Shariah is the refusal to perform what God has obligated. Those mentioned in this verse have added to what they have fallen into of miserliness, which is the worst of evil traits, something that is uglier than it and more indicative of the downfall of the soul of its doer, and his reaching the peak of vileness, which is that in addition to their miserliness with their money and their concealment of what God has bestowed upon them of His grace, they enjoin miserliness on people, as if they find in their hearts the generosity of others with their money a hardship and annoyance. There are no many of His servants like you. This is your money, and you have been miserly with it because you think that spending some of it in its proper places will diminish it. So why are you miserly with the money of others? Although this does not cause you any harm? Is this anything but the height of blame and the ultimate foolishness, vulgarity, ugly nature, and bad choice? The different readings of miserliness have already been mentioned. It has been said that what is meant by this verse are the Jews, for they combined arrogance, pride, miserliness with money, and concealment of what God revealed in the Torah. It has also been said that what is meant by it are the hypocrites, and it is clear that the wording is broader than that, more comprehensive, and more beneficial.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

37- Those who are stingy, stinginess in the speech of the Arabs: preventing the beggar from the excess of what he has, and in the Sharia: preventing what is due, and they order people to be stingy, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read with stinginess with the opening of the ba and the kha, and likewise in Surat Al-Hadid, and the others read with the damma of the ba and the sukoon of the kha, it was revealed about the Jews who were stingy in explaining the description of Muhammad and concealed it.

Saeed bin Jubair said: This is about concealing knowledge.

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, and Ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about Kurdam bin Zayd, Huyayy bin Akhtab, Rafa'ah bin Zayd bin al-Tabut, Usama bin Habib, Nafi' bin Abi Nafi', and Bahri bin Amr. They used to come to men from the Ansar and mix with them, saying, Do not purify your wealth, for we fear poverty for you, and you do not know what will happen. So God Almighty revealed this verse: And they conceal what God has given them of His bounty, meaning money. It was said that it means they are stingy with charity. And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment.

37- Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people instead of saying whoever, or it is accusative for blame or nominative for it, meaning they are those, or a subject whose predicate is omitted, the estimate of which is those who are stingy with what they have been given and enjoin stinginess on people with it. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read here and in Al-Hadid with stinginess with the opening of both letters, which is a language. And they conceal what God has given them of His bounty wealth and knowledge, so they are deserving of all blame. And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment The apparent in it is placed in the place of the implicit in order to indicate that whoever is like this is ungrateful for the blessing of God, and whoever is ungrateful for the blessing of God will have a punishment that humiliates him just as he humiliated the blessing with stinginess and concealment. The verse was revealed about a group of Jews who used to advise the Ansar: Do not spend your money, for we fear poverty for you. And it was said about those who concealed the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Surat al-Nisa 4:38

And those who spend their wealth to be seen by people and do not believe in Allah or the Last Day.
And he to whom Satan is a companion - then evil is he as a companion.

Surat al-Nisa 4:38

And those who spend their wealth to be seen by people and do not believe in God or the Last Day. And he to whom Satan is a companion - then evil is he as a companion.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And those in apposition to those before it who spend their wealth to be seen by people showing off to them and do not believe in God or in the Last Day like the hypocrites and the people of Mecca and whoever has Satan as a companion a companion who acts according to his command like these then what an evil companion he is.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And We have prepared for the disbelievers in God from among the Jews, whose characteristics God has described, a humiliating punishment, and those who spend their wealth to be seen by people.

And those is in the accusative case, in apposition to the disbelievers.

His saying: To show off to people, means: he spends it to show off to people, not in obedience to God or in His path, but in the path of Satan, and they do not believe in God or in the Last Day, meaning: they do not believe in the oneness of God, nor in the return to Him on the Day of Resurrection - on which deeds are rewarded - that it will happen.

Mujahid said: This is a characteristic of the Jews and a characteristic of the hypocrites who were polytheists, so they pretended to be Muslims out of fear of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the people of faith in him, while they persisted in their disbelief. This is more similar to the characteristic of the Jews, because the Jews believed in the Oneness of God and believed in resurrection and the Hereafter. Their disbelief was their denial of the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

And further, in God's separation between the description of those who do not believe in God or the Last Day, and the description of the other group whom He described in the verse before it, and He informed that they will have a humiliating punishment, with the separating and between them, what indicates that they are two descriptions of two types of people with different meanings, even though all of them are people who disbelieve in God. If both descriptions were descriptions of one type of people, it would have been said, God willing: And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment, "Those who spend their wealth to be seen by people," but He separated them with the and for what we have described.

If someone thinks that the inclusion of the letter waw is not objectionable in the conjunction of an adjective with an adjective for a single described thing in the speech of the Arabs, then even if that is the case, then the most eloquent thing in the speech of the Arabs, if that is what is intended, is to leave out the inclusion of the waw. And if another description is intended by the second, other than the first, then the waw is included. And directing the speech of God to the most eloquent and famous of the speech of the one in whose tongue His Book was revealed is more appropriate for us than directing it to the most objectionable of their speech.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, He, the Most High, means: Whoever has Satan as a friend and companion, who acts in obedience to him, follows his command, and abandons God's command in spending his money to show off to people in disobedience to Him, and denies the Oneness of God and the Resurrection after death, Evil is our companion, meaning: Evil is Satan as a companion.

The accusative case of the companion is because in sa'a there is a mention of Satan, as God Almighty said: What an evil substitute for the wrongdoers (al-Kahf 18:50). The Arabs do the same with sa'a and its counterparts, including the saying of Adi bin Zaid:

Do not ask about a person, but look at his companion, for the companion is imitated by the one he accompanies.

He means: companion, friend and companion.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are two issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: And those who spend their wealth to be seen by people the verse: The Almighty is in apposition to those who are stingy: Those who spend their wealth to be seen by people and it was said, it is in apposition to the disbelievers, so it is in the accusative case. And whoever saw the addition of the waw allowed the second to be, in his opinion, the predicate of the first. The majority said that it was revealed about the hypocrites because the Almighty said: To be seen by people and showing off is from hypocrisy. Mujahid: In the Jews, and al-Tabari weakened it, because the Almighty denied this group belief in God and the Last Day, and the Jews are not like that. Ibn Atiyyah said: The statement of Mujahid is directed towards exaggeration and obligation, since their belief in the Last Day is no belief from where it does not benefit them. And it was said: It was revealed about my food on the day of Badr, and they were the leaders of Mecca who spent on the people so that they would go out to Badr. Ibn al-Arabi said: And the spending for show is included in the rulings from the point that it does not count.

I said: This is indicated by the Book's statement, the Most High: Say, 'Spend willingly or unwillingly, it will never be accepted from you.' (al-Tawbah 9:53), and it will come.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And whoever has Satan as a companion - then evil is he as a companion. There is an implied meaning in the speech, and they do not believe in God or in the Last Day. So their companion is Satan. And whoever has Satan as a companion - then evil is he as a companion. And companion: the companion, meaning the friend and intimate, and it is a verbal noun from pairing. Adi bin Zaid said:

Do not ask about a person, but ask about his companion, for every companion follows the example of his companion.

The meaning is that Satan accompanied him in this world, and it is possible that the meaning is that Satan accompanied him in the fire, so he is an evil companion, meaning Satan is an evil companion, and it is an accusative of specification.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, blaming those who are stingy with their wealth and do not spend it on what God has commanded them to do, such as being dutiful to parents, doing good to relatives, orphans, the needy, the near neighbor, the distant neighbor, the companion at your side, the wayfarer, and the slaves your right hands possess, and they do not pay God's right therein, and they also command people to be stingy. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, What disease is worse than stinginess? And he said, "Beware of stinginess, for it destroyed those who came before you. It commanded them to sever ties of kinship, so they sever ties, and it commanded them to commit immorality, so they committed immorality."

And the Almighty said: And they conceal what God has given them of His bounty. The miser is ungrateful for the blessings of God that are not apparent or evident, neither in his food nor in his clothing nor in what He gives and provides, as the Almighty said: "Indeed, man is ungrateful to his Lord. And indeed, he is, over that, a witness." That is, in his state and his characteristics. And indeed, he is intense in his love of good. And He said here: And they conceal what God has given them of His bounty. That is why He threatened them with His words: And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment. Disbelief is concealment and covering, so the miser conceals the blessings of God upon him and conceals them and denies them, so he is ungrateful for the blessings of God upon him. In the hadith: Indeed, when God bestows a blessing upon a servant, He loves for its effect to appear upon him. And in the prophetic supplication: And make us grateful for Your blessings, praising You for them, accepting them, and completing them for us. Some of the predecessors interpreted this verse as referring to the miserliness of the Jews in showing the knowledge they had of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and their concealment. That is why God the Almighty said: And We have prepared for the disbelievers a humiliating punishment. It was narrated by Ibn Ishaq on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad, on the authority of Ikrimah or Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Mujahid and others said the same. There is no doubt that the verse is likely to mean that. It appears that the context is about miserliness with money, even though miserliness with knowledge is included in that by way of priority, because the context is about spending on relatives and the weak. Likewise, the verse that follows it, which is His statement: Those who spend their wealth to be seen by people, for He mentioned the blameworthy misers, who are the misers. Then He mentioned the hypocritical spenders who intend by their giving to gain fame and to be praised for their generosity, and they do not intend thereby the face of God. In the hadith of the three who are the first to be lit by the Fire, who are: the scholar, the warrior, and the hypocritical spender with their actions, "The owner of the wealth will say: I did not leave anything that you would like to be spent on except that I spent it in Your cause. God will say: You lied. You only wanted it to be said: Generous, and it was said." That is, you have received your reward in this world, which is what you intended by your action. The hadith states that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Adi bin Hatim, Your father sought something and achieved it. In another hadith, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about Abdullah bin Jud'an: Will his spending and manumission benefit him? He said, No, he never said a single day in his life, 'O Lord, forgive me my sin on the Day of Judgment.' That is why God the Almighty said, And they do not believe in God or in the Last Day, meaning that what led them to do this ugly deed and to turn away from doing obedience in the proper manner was Satan, for he tempted them and gave them hope, and he accompanied them and made ugly things seem good to them. That is why God the Almighty said, And whoever has Satan as a companion - then he is an evil companion. That is why the poet said:

Do not ask about a person, but ask about his companion, for every companion follows the example of his companion.

Then the Almighty said: And what would harm them if they believed in God and the Last Day and spent from what God has provided for them? The verse, meaning, what would harm them if they believed in God and followed the praiseworthy path, and turned away from hypocrisy to sincerity and belief in God and hope for His promise in the Hereafter for those who do good deeds, and spent from what God has provided for them in the ways that God loves and is pleased with? And His statement, And God is All-Knowing of them, meaning, He is All-Knowing of their good and corrupt intentions, and All-Knowing of who among them deserves success, so He guides him, inspires him with righteousness, and enables him to do good deeds that will please Him, and who deserves to be let down and expelled from the greatest divine side, from whose door whoever is expelled has failed and lost in this world and the hereafter, God forbid.

Surat al-Nisa 4:38

And those who spend their wealth to be seen by people and do not believe in Allah or the Last Day.
And he to whom Satan is a companion - then evil is he as a companion.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 38- And those who spend their wealth to be seen by people is in apposition to his statement those who are stingy. The reason for that is that the former people were excessive in their stinginess and in ordering people to do so and in concealing what God has given them of His bounty, and these people were excessive in spending their wealth in the wrong places just for show and reputation, as someone who wants people to hear that he is generous does, and he is arrogant towards others by doing so and is haughty towards them, in addition to what is added to this spending that brings him harm from not believing in God and the Last Day. His statement And whoever has Satan as a companion is an implied meaning in the speech, and the meaning is, they do not believe in God or the Last Day, so their companion is Satan. And whoever has Satan as a companion, then he is an evil companion. The companion is the companion, and he is the friend and confidant. The meaning is: whoever was with Satan in this world, he accompanied him in it, or he is a companion in the Fire, so Satan is an evil companion.

polytheists of Mecca. It was said that they are the hypocrites. "And he who has Satan as a companion, then an evil companion" is a warning that Satan has paired them and made them do that and made them look good, like His statement: "Indeed, the wasteful are brothers of the devils." What is meant is Satan and his helpers, both internal and external, and it is possible that it is a threat to them that Satan will pair them with them in the Fire.

38- And those who spend their wealth to be seen by people and do not believe in God or in the Last Day, the place of those who are in the accusative case, in apposition to those who are stingy, and it was said: it is in the genitive case in apposition to His statement: And We have prepared for the disbelievers It was revealed about the Jews, and Al-Suddi said: about the hypocrites, and it was said: about the polytheists of Mecca/ who agreed on the enmity of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace.

And whoever has Satan as a companion, as a friend and confidant, he is an evil companion, meaning: Satan is an evil companion. It is an accusative for explanation, and it was said: it is for cutting off the definite article by dropping the alif and lam as you say: What a good man Abdullah is, and as God Almighty said: What an evil substitute for the wrongdoers (al-Kahf 18:50) What an evil example (al-A'raf 7:177).

"And they do not believe in God or in the Last Day" to seek His pleasure and reward in spending, and they are the Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: What is there against those who spend their wealth to be seen by people and do not believe in God or the Last Day? If they believed in God and the Last Day, if they believed that God is One and has no partner, and were sincere in monotheism to Him, and were certain of the resurrection after death, and believed that God will reward them for their deeds on the Day of Resurrection, and spent from what God has provided for them, meaning: and paid the zakat on their wealth that God has provided for them and given them, willingly, and did not spend it to be seen by people, seeking mention and pride among the disbelievers in God, and false praise among people, and God is, of those whose attribute He described as spending their wealth to be seen by people hypocritically, while they are deniers of God and the Last Day, All-Knowing, meaning: He is All-Knowing of them and their deeds, and what they intend and want by spending what they spend of their wealth, and that they want thereby to be seen by, to be heard by, and to be praised by people, and He is their Guardian. Their deeds, nothing of them is hidden from Him, until He rewards them for them with their reward when they return to Him.

Ma is in the nominative case as a subject, and dha is its predicate, and dha means who. It is possible that ma and dha are one noun, so the first is to be estimated, and what is upon them and the second is to be estimated, and what is upon them "if they believed in God and the Last Day meaning they believed in the necessary existence and in what the Messenger brought of the details of the Hereafter and spent from what God has provided for them, and God is ever Knowing of them" its meaning has been presented in more than one place.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says, blaming those who are stingy with their wealth and do not spend it on what God has commanded them to do, such as being dutiful to parents, doing good to relatives, orphans, the needy, the near neighbor, the distant neighbor, the companion at your side, the wayfarer, and the slaves your right hands possess, and they do not pay God's right therein, and they also command people to be stingy. the Last Day and spent from what God has provided for them?" That is, what is it to them, or what consequence will befall them because of their belief and spending in the way of God? It is a rebuke to them for their ignorance of the place of benefit and their belief in something other than what it is, and an incitement to think to seek an answer for a reason that will lead them to knowledge of the great benefits and beautiful returns in it. And a warning that the one who is called to a matter that does not cause harm should respond as a precaution, so how about if it includes benefits? Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, God does not wrong anyone even the weight of an atom the smallest ant, by deducting it from his good deeds or adding it to his bad deeds. And if it is an atom a good deed from a believer, and in a reading with the nominative case, it was complete He multiplies it from ten to more than seven hundred, and in a reading {He multiplies it} with the emphasis and gives from Him from Him with the multiplication a great reward that no one can estimate.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: And what would be the harm to them if they believed in God and the Last Day and spent from what God has provided for them? For God does not deprive anyone of His creation who spent in His cause from what He has provided for him, of the reward for his spending in this world, nor of its reward on the Day of Resurrection, the weight of an atom, meaning: what it weighs and is according to its weight, but He rewards him for it and recompenses him for it, as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: that he recited: Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom, and if there is a good deed, He multiplies it. He said: For my good deeds to outweigh my bad deeds by the weight of an atom is more beloved to me than the world and everything in it.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: Some of the people of knowledge used to say: If my good deeds outweighed my bad deeds by the weight of an atom, that would be more beloved to me than if I had the entire world.

As for the atom, it was mentioned on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said about it, as follows:

Ishaq bin Wahb Al-Wasiti told me, he said: Abu Asim told us, he said: Shabib bin Bishr told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: the weight of an atom, he said: the head of a red ant.

Abu Jaafar said: Ishaq bin Wahb told me: Yazid bin Harun said: They claimed that this red atom has no weight.

In a manner similar to what we have said about this, the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is authentic.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna and Muhammad ibn

Bashar told us, Abu Dawud told us, Imran told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Anas: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God does not wrong the believer in a good deed, for he is rewarded with provision in this world, and he is recompensed for it in the Hereafter. As for the disbeliever, he is fed with it in this world, but when it is the Day of Resurrection, it will not be considered a good deed for him."

Musa bin Abdul Rahman Al-Masruqi narrated to us, Jaafar bin Awn narrated to us, Hisham bin Saad narrated to us, Zaid bin Aslam narrated to us, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, none of you is more fervent in his plea for the truth that he sees as being right, than the believers regarding their brothers when they see that they have been saved from the Fire. They say: O our Lord, our brothers, they used to pray with us, fast with us, perform Hajj with us, and strive with us, and the Fire has seized them! So God will say to them: Go, and whoever you recognize in his appearance, bring him out! And He will forbid their appearance to the Fire. So they will find a man whom the Fire has seized up to the middle of his shins, up to his knees, and up to his waist, so they will bring out from him many human beings. Then they will return and speak, and He will say: Go, and whoever you find in his heart a qirat's weight of goodness, bring him out! So they will bring out from him many human beings. Then they would return and speak, and he would continue to say that to them until he said: Go, and whoever you find in his heart an atom's weight of sin, bring him out. So when Abu Saeed narrated this hadith, he would say: If you do not believe me, then recite: "Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." So they would say: Our Lord, we did not leave any good in it.

Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Abdul Hakam told me, he said, my father and Shuaib bin Al-Layth told me, on the authority of Al-Layth, on the authority of Khalid bin Yazid, on the authority of Ibn Abi Hilal, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Others said about this, including:

Al-Muthanna narrated to me, saying: Muslim bin Ibrahim narrated to us, saying: Sadaqah bin Abi Sahl narrated to us, saying: Abu Amr narrated to us, on the authority of Zadan, saying: I came to Ibn Masoud and he said: When the Day of Resurrection comes, God will gather the first and the last, then a caller from God will call out: Whoever seeks injustice, let him come to his right and take it! He said: By God, a person will rejoice when the right he owes to his father, son, or wife is dissolved for him, and he will take it from him, even if he is young. The proof of that is in the Book of God, the Blessed and Exalted: And when the Trumpet is blown, there will be no kinship among them that Day, nor will they ask about one another (al-Mu'minun 23:101). It will be said to him: Give these people their rights - meaning: Give them their rights - and he will say: O Lord, from where, when the world is gone?

Surat al-Nisa 4:40

Indeed, Allah does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward.

Then God will say to His angels: O My angels, look at his righteous deeds and give them from them! If an atom's weight of good deeds remains, the angels say - and He knows best -: O our Lord, we have given every person his due, and if an atom's weight of good deeds remains for him, He says to the angels: Double it for My servant, and admit him by the grace of My mercy into Paradise. The proof of that is in the Book of God: "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." That is, Paradise, He gives it. And if his good deeds are exhausted and his bad deeds remain, the angels say - and He knows best -: Our God, his good deeds are exhausted and his bad deeds remain, and there are many claimants! So God says: Double their burdens for them, and write for him a record to the Fire. He said: Charity. Or a document to Hell. Charity is not sure which one he said.

And he narrated on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ubayd, on the authority of Harun ibn Antara, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Sa'ib, who said: I heard Zadhan say: Abdullah ibn Mas'ud said: The hand of the male and female slave will be taken on the Day of Resurrection, and a crier will call out over the heads of the first and the last: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right! The woman will rejoice that her right over her father, or over her son, or over her brother, or over her husband will be dissolved. Then Ibn Mas'ud recited: There will be no kinship among them that Day, nor will they ask about one another (al-Mu'minun 23:101). Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, will forgive whatever He wills of His right, but He will not forgive anything of the rights of the people. Then He will set up a place for the people and say: Give the people their rights! They will say: O Lord, the world has perished, from where will I give them their rights? He will say: Take from his righteous deeds, and give each person with a right his right according to the extent of his injustice. If he is a friend of God, and he is given an atom's weight of grace, He multiplies it for him until He admits him into Paradise with it. Then he recites to us: Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if he is a wretched servant, the angel says: O Lord, his good deeds have been exhausted, and there are still many seekers! He says: Take from their bad deeds and add them to his bad deeds, then write him a letter to the Fire.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the verse according to this interpretation of `Abdullah is: God does not wrong a servant who is owed an atom's weight before another servant of His in His Resurrection and on the Day of Meeting and above, so He leaves it upon him and does not take it for the wronged person from his wrongdoer, but rather He takes it from him for him, and He takes from every wrongdoer for every wronged person who followed him before him, And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it, meaning: And if he has a good deed, He multiplies it, meaning: He multiplies its reward and recompense for him, And gives from Himself a great reward, meaning: And He gives him from Himself a great reward, and the great reward is Paradise, according to what `Abdullah said.

Both interpretations have an understandable aspect, I mean the interpretation given by Ibn Mas'ud and the one given by Qatadah. We chose the first interpretation because it agrees with the report from the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), with the apparent meaning of the revelation indicating its authenticity, as it was in the context of the verse before it, in which God urged spending in obedience to Him, and condemned spending in obedience to Satan. Then He connected that to what He promised the hypocrites in their obedience to Him, saying: "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward."

There is a difference in the reading of his saying: And if it is good.

So I read it as the general reading of Iraq is: And if it is good, with the word good in the accusative case, meaning: And if the weight of an atom is good, He will multiply it.

The majority of the readers of Medina read it: And if there is goodness, raising the word goodness, meaning: And if there is goodness, according to what I mentioned from Abdullah bin Masoud regarding the interpretation of that.

As for his saying: He multiplies it, he came with the alif, and did not say: He doubles it, because what was meant by it in the saying of some of the Arab scholars was: He multiplies it many times over. If what was meant by it in his saying: He doubles that two times over, it would have been said: He doubles it with emphasis.

Then the people of interpretation differed about those whom God promised in this verse what He promised them in it.

Some of them said: They are all those who believe in God and in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. They based this on the following:

Al-Fadl bin Al-Sabah told us, he said, Yazid bin Harun told us, on the authority of Mubarak bin Fadala, on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Uthman Al-Nahdi, he said: I met Abu Hurairah and I said to him: I have heard that you say: A good deed is multiplied a million times! He said: What is so strange to you about that? By God, I heard him - meaning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace - say: God multiplies a good deed by two million times!

Others said: Rather, it is the immigrants in particular, not the Bedouins and Arabs. They based this on the following:

Muhammad bin Harun Abu Nasheet told me, he said, Yahya bin Abi Bakr told us, he said, Fadil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Atiyah Al-Awfi, on the authority of Abdullah bin Umair, he said: This verse was revealed about the Bedouins: Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof (al-An'am 6:60). A man said: What about the Muhajireen? He said: What is greater than that: "Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." And when God says about something: Great, then it is great.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions is the opinion of the one who said: This verse refers to the immigrants and not the Bedouins. This is because it is not permissible for there to be in the report of God or the report of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, something that contradicts one another. Since it is correct that God promised to whomever of His believing servants comes with a good deed a reward of ten times its like, and whoever comes with a good deed from them that He will multiply it for him, and the two reports that we mentioned from him, may God bless him and grant him peace, are correct, it is not permissible for one of them not to be general and the other explanatory, since his reports, may God bless him and grant him peace, corroborate one another. And since that is the case, it is correct that the hadith of Abu Hurairah means that the good deed will be multiplied for the emigrants from the people of faith by two thousand thousand good deeds, and for the bedouins among them by ten times the like, according to what Ibn Umar narrated from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and that his saying: Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof (al-An'am 6:60), means: whoever brings a good deed from the bedouin believers will have ten times the like thereof, and whoever brings a good deed from their emigrants will have it multiplied for him and God will give him from Himself a reward - meaning He will give it from Himself - a great reward. That is: a great reward for his good deed, and that great reward is Paradise, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, he said, Sadaqah bin Abi Sahl told us, he said, Abu Amr told us, on the authority of Zadan, on the authority of Ibn Masoud: And he will be given from Him a great reward, meaning: Paradise is given to him.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ibad bin Abi Saleh told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And he will be given from Him a great reward, he said: The great reward is Paradise.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And he will be given from Him a great reward, he said: A great reward, Paradise.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom means that He does not deprive them or reduce from their reward the weight of an atom, but rather He rewards them for it and recompenses them for it. What is meant by the statement is that God does not wrong little or much, as He said: Indeed, God does not wrong people at all (Yunus 10:44). The atom is the red ant, according to Ibn Abbas and others, and it is the smallest ant. It was also reported from him that it is the head of an ant. Yazid bin Harun said: They claimed that the atom has no weight, and it is narrated that a man placed bread until the atoms covered it, then he weighed it and it did not exceed the weight of the bread.

I said: The Qur'an and Sunnah indicate that an atom has a weight, just as a dinar and a half a dinar have a weight, and God knows best.

It was said: The mustard seed, as God Almighty said: "So let not a soul be wronged at all. Even if it be the weight of a mustard seed, We will bring it." (al-Anbiya 21:47) And something else was said, and in general it is an expression for the smallest and most trivial of things. In Sahih Muslim, "On the authority of Anas, he said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

God does not wrong a believer in the good deeds he does in this world and is rewarded for them in the Hereafter. As for the disbelievers, they are fed with the good deeds they did for God in this world, until when they reach the Hereafter, they will have no good deeds for which they will be rewarded.

God the Almighty said: "And if it is a good deed, He will multiply it" meaning He will increase its reward. The people of Hijaz read it as a good deed in the nominative case, while the general public read it as an accusative case. Based on this first, tak means happens so it is complete. Based on the second, it is incomplete, meaning that if you did it as a good deed. Al-Hasan read nadhifa'uha with the nun of majesty, while the rest read it with the ya', which is more correct because of his saying wa-yuta. Abu Raja' read yadhifa'uha while the rest read yadhifa'uha and they are two languages that mean multiplication. Abu Ubaidah said yadhifa'uha means He makes it many times over, and he multiplies it with the shaddah, making it double. min laduna means from Him. There are four languages in it: ولنا ولنا and ولنا. When they add it to themselves, they stress the nun, and it enters upon it from where it was from the inside to begin the goal. ولنا likewise, so when they are similar, it is good to enter from it. Therefore, Sibawayh said in laduna: it is the place that is the beginning of the goal: a great reward meaning Paradise. And in Sahih Muslim from the long hadith of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri - the hadith of intercession - and in it:

"Until the believers are delivered from the Fire, by Him in Whose Hand is my soul, there is none among you who will implore God more fervently to exact justice than the believers on the Day of Resurrection for their brothers who are in the Fire. They will say, 'Our Lord, they used to fast with us and pray and perform Hajj.' It will be said to them, 'Bring out those whom you recognized.' Their images will be forbidden to the Fire. They will bring out a great number of people, the Fire having been filled to the middle of the waterwheel and up to their knees. Then they will say, 'Our Lord, there is not left in it anyone whom You commanded us.' The Almighty and Majestic will say, 'Go back and bring out the weight of a dinar's worth of good.' They will bring out a great number of people. Then they will say, 'Our Lord, we have not left in it anyone whom You commanded us.' Then He will say, 'Go back and bring out the weight of half a dinar's worth of good.' They will bring out a great number of people. Then they will say, 'Our Lord, we have not left in it anyone whom You commanded us.'" Abu Sa'id ibn al-Khudri used to say, "If you do not believe me in this hadith, then recite if you wish, 'God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. But if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a reward.'" Great." He mentioned the hadith and it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud, "on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said:

The servant will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and will be made to stand and will be called out in front of all creation, "This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right over him, let him come to his right." Then he will say, Give these people their rights. The servant will say, O Messenger of God, from where will I be able to do so when the world has gone from me? Then God Almighty will say to the angels, Look at his good deeds and give them from them. If there remains an atom's weight of good deeds, the angels will say, O Lord, and He knows this better than they do. He has given every person with a right his right, and there remains an atom's weight of good deeds. Then God Almighty will say to the angels, "Multiply it for My servant and admit him into Paradise by the grace of My mercy and the confirmation of 'Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. If there is a good deed, He multiplies it.'" And if he is a wretched servant, the angels will say, Our God, his good deeds have been exhausted and his bad deeds remain, and there are many seekers left. Then God Almighty will say, Take from their bad deeds and add them to his bad deeds. Then they will write for him a letter to the Fire. So the verse, according to this interpretation, is about the opponents, and that God Almighty does not wrong the opponent by the weight of an atom from the opponent, so he takes from him, and He does not wrong the weight of an atom. An atom remains for him, but He rewards him for it and multiplies it for him. This is what God Almighty says: And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it. Abu Hurairah narrated that he heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

God, the Almighty, gives His believing servant two thousand thousand good deeds for one good deed. He recited, "God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." Ubaydah said, Abu Hurayrah said: And when God says, a great reward, who can estimate its value? It was previously reported from Ibn Abbas and Ibn Masoud that this verse is better than what the sun rises upon.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, informing us: He will not wrong any of His creation on the Day of Resurrection by the weight of a mustard seed or the weight of an atom, but

He will repay it to him and multiply it for him if it was good, as God Almighty said: And We will set up the just balances (al-An'am 2:17). God Almighty also said, informing us about Luqman, that he said: O my son, if it be the weight of a mustard seed and be in a rock or in the heavens or in the earth, God will bring it forth (al-An'am 2:17). God Almighty also said: "On that Day mankind will come forth in separate groups to be shown their deeds. So whoever does an atom's weight of good will see it. And whoever does an atom's weight of evil will see it." And in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Zaid bin Aslam from Ata bin Yasar, from Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the long hadith of intercession, in which it says: Then God Almighty will say, 'Go back, and whoever you find in his heart the weight of a mustard seed of faith, take him out of the Fire.' And in another version: The least, the least, the least of an atom's weight of faith, so take him out of the Fire and they will take out many people. Then Abu Saeed says: Read if you wish, Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom, the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja' told us, Isa bin Yunus told us, on the authority of Harun bin Antara, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Zadan, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: The male and female slave will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and a caller will call out over the heads of the first and the last: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right. The woman will rejoice that she will have a right over her father, mother, brother, or husband. Then he recited, There will be no kinship between them that Day, nor will they ask about one another. So God will forgive whatever He wills of His right, but He will not forgive anything of the rights of the people. Then a group of people will be set up and it will be called out: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right. He will say: O Lord, the world has perished, from where can I give them their rights? He will say: Take from his righteous deeds and give to everyone who has a right. His right is according to what he asks for. If he is a friend of God, then he is given an atom's weight of grace, which God will multiply for him until he enters Paradise with it. Then he recited to us, "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it." He said, Enter Paradise. And if he is a wretched slave, the angel will say, O Lord, his good deeds have run out and there remain many seekers. He will say, Take from their bad deeds and multiply them with his bad deeds, then cast him into the Fire. Ibn Jarir narrated it from another chain of transmission on the authority of Zadhan, with a similar wording. And some of this trace has a witness in the authentic hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu Nu'aym told us, Fadil told us, meaning Ibn Marzuq, on the authority of Atiyah al-Awfi, Abdullah ibn Umar told me, he said: This verse was revealed about the Bedouins, Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof. A man said: What about the Muhajireen, O Abu Abd al-Rahman? He said: What is better than that, "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from

Himself a great reward." Abu Zar'ah, Yahya bin Abdullah bin Bakir told us, Abdullah bin Lahi'ah told me, Ata bin Dinar told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding His statement: And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it. As for the polytheist, his punishment will be lightened on the Day of Resurrection and he will never leave the Fire. And evidence for this was provided by the authentic hadith that Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, your uncle Abu Talib used to protect you and support you, so did you benefit him in anything? He said: Yes, he is in the shallows of the Fire, and were it not for me, he would have been in the lowest depths of the Fire. This may be specific to Abu Talib and not to the infidels, as evidenced by what Abu Dawud Al-Tayalisi narrated in his Musnad: Imran told us, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Anas, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God does not wrong the believer in a good deed for which he is rewarded with provision in this world and is recompensed for it in the Hereafter. As for the infidel, he is fed with it in this world, so when the Day of Resurrection comes, he will have no good deed." Abu Hurairah, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Al-Dahhak said regarding His statement: And he will be given from Him a great reward: meaning Paradise. We ask God for His pleasure and Paradise. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Samad told us, Sulayman told us, meaning Ibn al-Mughira, on the authority of Ali ibn Zayd, on the authority of Abu Uthman, who said: It reached me on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that he said: It reached me that God, the Most High, gives His believing servant a thousand thousand good deeds for a single good deed. He said: So it was decreed that I set out for Hajj or Umrah, and I met him and said: I heard a hadith from you that you say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The servant will be rewarded for a good deed a thousand thousand good deeds. I said: Woe to you! No one sits with Abu Hurayrah more than me, and I did not hear this hadith from him. I took it upon myself to catch up with him, but I found that he had set out for Hajj, so I set out for Hajj in search of this hadith, and I met him and said: O Abu Hurayrah, God multiplies the good deed a thousand thousand good deeds. He said: O Abu Uthman, what amazes you about this, when God says: Who is it that will lend God a goodly loan so He may multiply it for him many times over? And He says: So what is the enjoyment of life? The world in the Hereafter except a little. "By Him in Whose Hand is my soul, I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "God multiplies a good deed by two thousand thousand good deeds." He said: This is a strange hadith, and Ali bin Zaid bin Jud'an has some objectionable hadiths. Ahmad also narrated it and said: Mubarak bin Fadala narrated to us on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, who said: I came to Abu Hurairah and said to him: I have heard that you say: A good deed is multiplied by one thousand thousand good deeds! He said: What is surprising to you about that? By God, I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God multiplies a good deed by two thousand thousand good deeds. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission and said: Abu Khallad and Sulayman bin Khallad al-Mu'addib narrated to us, Muhammad al-Rafa'i narrated to us on the authority of Ziyad bin al-Jassas, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, who said: No one sat with Abu Hurairah more than I did. He came before me on Hajj and I came after him, and the people of Basra narrated from him that he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, God multiplies a good deed by one thousand thousand good deeds. I said: Woe to you! No one sat with Abu Hurairah more than me, and I did not hear this hadith from him. I intended to catch up with him, but I found that he had set out on Hajj. So I set out on Hajj to meet him in this hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission, and he said: Bishr ibn Muslim told us, Ar-Rabi' ibn Ruh told us, Muhammad ibn Khalid Adh-Dhahabi told us, on the authority of Ziyad al-Jassas, on the authority of Abu Uthman, who said: I said: O Abu Hurairah, I heard my brothers in Basra claim that you say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God rewards for a good deed with a thousand thousand good deeds. Abu Hurairah said: By God, rather I heard the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God rewards for a good deed with a thousand thousand good deeds. Then he recited this verse: But the enjoyment of worldly life is but little compared to the Hereafter. And the Almighty's saying: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? God, the Almighty, says, informing us about the terror of the Day of Resurrection and the severity of its matter and its affair. So how will the matter and state be on the Day of Resurrection when..." A witness will come from every nation, meaning the prophets, peace be upon them, as God Almighty said: And the earth will shine with the light of its Lord, and the Book will be laid open, and the prophets and the witnesses will be brought (al-Baqarah 2:17). God Almighty also said: And the Day We will raise up from every nation a witness against them from among themselves (al-Baqarah 2:17). Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Yusuf told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Ubaydah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Recite to me. I said: O Messenger of God, should I recite to you, and was it revealed to you? He said: Yes, I like to hear it from someone other than myself. So I recited Surat al-Nisa until I came to this verse: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? He said: Enough for now. Then his eyes were shedding tears. He and Muslim also narrated it from the hadith of al-A'mash with it. It has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, so it is definitive from him. Ahmad narrated it from the chain of transmission of Abu Hayyan and Abu Razin on his authority. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Bakr ibn Abi al-Dunya told us. Al-Salt bin Masoud Al-Jahdari narrated to us, Fadil bin Sulaiman narrated to us, Yunus bin Muhammad bin Fadala Al-Ansari narrated to us on the authority of his father, he said: My father was one of those who accompanied the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them in Bani Thafar, and sat on the rock that is in Bani Thafar today, and with him were Ibn Masoud and Muadh bin

Jabal and some of his companions, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered a reader to read until he reached this verse: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], against these as a witness? So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, wept until his beard and sides shook, and he said: O Lord, this one has testified against the one I am among, so how about the one I have not seen? Ibn Jarir said: Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Zuhri narrated to me, Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Mas'udi, on the authority of Ja'far bin Amr bin Harith, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abdullah, who is Ibn Masoud, regarding this verse, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A witness over them as long as I am among them, but if.. As for what Abu Abdullah Al-Qurtubi mentioned in At-Tadhkirah where he said: Chapter on what came in the testimony of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on his nation, he said: Ibn Al-Mubarak informed us, a man from the Ansar informed us on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr that he heard Saeed bin Al-Musayyab say: There is no day in which his nation is not presented to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, morning and evening, so he knows them by their names and deeds, so he bears witness against them, God Almighty says: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? It is a trace and there is an interruption in it, for in it is an unknown man who was not named, and it is from the words of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab who did not raise it, and Al-Qurtubi accepted it and said after citing it: It has been mentioned that deeds are presented to God every Monday and Thursday, and to the prophets and fathers and mothers on Friday, he said: There is no contradiction, for it is possible that our Prophet is singled out for what is presented to him every day, and Friday is with the prophets, upon them be the best prayers and peace. And God Almighty says: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that The earth will be leveled with them, and they will not conceal from God a word. That is, if it split open and swallowed them because of what they saw of the horrors of the situation and what would befall them of disgrace, scandal, and rebuke, like His statement: On the Day when a man will see what his hands have put forth 3:100. His statement: And they will not conceal from God a word is information about them that they will acknowledge everything they have done and will not conceal anything of it. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Hakam told us, Amr told us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said to him: I heard God the Almighty say - meaning informing about the polytheists on the Day of Resurrection that they said - By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. And He said in the other verse: And they will not conceal from God a word. Ibn Abbas said: As for His statement: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, when they saw that none would enter Paradise except the people of Islam, they said: Come, let us deny it. So they said: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. So God sealed the matter of Their mouths, their hands and their feet spoke, and they do not conceal from God a word. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: Things differ from me in the Qur'an. He said: What is it? I doubt the Qur'an? He said: It is not doubt, but a difference. He said: Then tell me what differs from you in that. He said: I hear God say, Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists.' And He said, And they do not conceal from God a word. So they concealed. Ibn Abbas said: As for his saying: Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists,' when they saw on the Day of Resurrection that God does not forgive except the people of Islam and forgives sins and no sin is too great for Him to forgive nor does He forgive polytheism, the polytheists denied it and said, By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, hoping that He would forgive them. So God sealed their mouths, and their hands and feet spoke of what they used to do. Then those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word. Juwaybir said on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: Nafi' ibn Al-Azraq came to Ibn Abbas and said: O Ibn Abbas, what about the saying of God Almighty: On that Day those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word, and His saying: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, Ibn Abbas said to him: I think you got up from your companions and said: I will recite to Ibn Abbas the ambiguous verses of the Qur'an, so when you return to them, inform them. God the Almighty will gather the people on the Day of Resurrection in one place, and the polytheists will say: God does not accept anything from anyone except from the one who makes Him alone. They will say: Come, let us deny Him. He will ask them and they will say: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. He said: God will seal their mouths and make their limbs speak, and their limbs will testify against them that they were polytheists. At that time, they will wish that the earth had been leveled with them. And they will not conceal a word from God. Narrated by Ibn Jarir.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 40- God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. Mithqal is a noun derived from thaqaal, like measure from qadar, and it is in the accusative case as an adjective for a deleted object: meaning He does not wrong anything by the weight of an atom. And a dharrah is one of dhar. It is the small ant, and it was said: the opinion of the ant, and it was said: the mustard seed, and it was said: every part of the dust that appears when it enters from the sun through a window or other, an atom. The first is the linguistic meaning that the Qur'an should be interpreted upon. What is meant by the statement is that God does not wrong much or little: meaning He does not reduce their reward for their deeds, nor does He increase the punishment for their sins by the weight of an atom, let alone what is above it. His saying: And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it. The people of Hijaz read good in the nominative case. And those other than them read it in the accusative case, and the meaning according to the first reading is: if there is a good deed, on the basis that kan is the complete one and not the incomplete one, and according to the second reading: if you did it a good deed, He will multiply it, and it was said that the estimate is: if it is the weight of an atom, it is a good deed, and the pronoun of the weight was made feminine because it is added to the feminine, and the first is more appropriate. Al-Hasan read yudhifa'a with a noon, and the rest read it with a ya', and it is more likely because of His saying and He will give from Him a great reward, and the discussion of multiplication has already been presented, and what is meant is the multiplication of the reward for the good deed.

40- God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. Ibn Abbas put his hand in the dirt and then blew into it and said: Each one of these things is an atom, meaning that He does not wrong. Neither a little nor a lot] And he organized it: And what is wrong with them if they believed in God and the Last Day and spent? Indeed, God does not wrong anyone, meaning: He does not reduce or diminish the reward of his work by the weight of an atom, the weight of an atom, and the atom is the small red ant. It was said: The atom is the parts of the dust in the window and each part of it is an atom and it does not have a weight, and this is an example, meaning: God does not wrong anything, as He said in another verse: God does not wrong by the weight of an atom Yunus-44).

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Abu Kabir bin Muhammad Al-Muzni, I told Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Abdullah Al-Hafid, I told Al-Hussein bin Al-Fadl Al-Bajali, I told Affan, I told Hammam, I told Qatada, on the authority of Anas, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God does not wrong the believer in a good deed, for he is rewarded with provision in this world and recompenses for it in the Hereafter. He said: As for the disbelievers, they are fed with their good deeds in this world until when they reach the Hereafter, they do not have a good deed for which they can be given anything good."

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Abu Al-Tayyib Al-Rabi' bin Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Hatim Al-Bazzar Al-Tusi, I told Ahmad bin Muhammad bin Al-Hasan, that Muhammad bin Yahya told them, Abdul Razzaq told us, and Abu Saeed Abdullah bin Ahmad Al-Tahiri told us, my grandfather Abu Sahl Abdul Samad bin Abdul Samad bin Abdul Rahman Al-Bazzaz told us, I told Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Zakariya Al-Adhafri told us, Ishaq bin Ibrahim Al-Dabry told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, I told Muammar, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "When the believers are saved from the Fire and believe, then no one of you will argue with his companion about the truth that he has in this world more intensely than the believers argue with their Lord about their brothers who were admitted to the Fire. He said: They will say, 'Our Lord, our brothers used to pray with us, fast with us, and perform Hajj with us, and you admitted them to the Fire.' He said: He will say, 'Go and bring out those of them whom you recognize.' So they will go to them and recognize them by their appearances, but the Fire will not consume their appearances. Some of them will be taken by the Fire up to the middle of their shins, and some of them will... Whoever takes him up to his ankles, they will bring them out and say: Our Lord, we have been released from our command. He said: Then he will say: Bring out whoever has in his heart the weight of a dinar of faith, then whoever has in his heart the weight of half a dinar, until he says: Whoever has in his heart the weight of an atom. Abu Sa'id may God be pleased with him said: Whoever does not believe this, let him recite this verse: "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom, and if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." He said: They will say: Our Lord, we have been released from our command, so no one in whom there is good will remain in the Fire. Then God the Almighty will say: The angels have interceded, the prophets have interceded, the believers have interceded, and the Most Merciful of the merciful remains. He said: Then He will take a handful from the Fire, or he said: two handfuls, who have never done any good for God. They have been burned until they have become charcoal. They will be brought to a water called the Water of Life, which will be poured over them and they will grow as a seed grows in the silt of a torrent. He said: Then their bodies will emerge like pearls, and around their necks will be the seal. The freed ones of God will be told: Enter Paradise, and whatever you wish for or see of something will be yours. They will say: Our Lord, You have given us what You have not given to anyone in the worlds. He will say: Then you will have something better than that. They will say: Our Lord, what is better than that? He will say: My pleasure with you, so I will never be angry with you.

Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Abi Tawbah told us, Muhammad bin Ahmad bin al-Harith told us, Muhammad bin Yaqub al-Kisa'i told us, Abdullah bin Mahmoud told us, Ibrahim bin Abdullah bin al-Khalal told us, Abdullah bin al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Laith ibn Sa'd, Amer bin Yahya told us, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Ma'afari, then al-Jili, who said: I heard Abdullah bin Amr bin al-'As, may God be pleased with them both, say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God will select a man from my nation in front of all creation on the Day of Resurrection, and will spread out ninety-nine scrolls for him, each scroll as far as the eye can see. Then God will say: Do you deny any of this? Did the guardian scribes wrong you? He will say: No, my Lord. He will say: Do you have an excuse or a good deed? The man will be astonished. He will say: No, my Lord. He will say: Yes, you have a good deed with us, and you will not be wronged today.

Indeed, Allah does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward.

Then a card will be brought out for him, on which will be written: I bear witness that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger. He will say: Bring your weight. He will say: O Lord, what is this card with these scrolls? He will say: You will not be wronged. He said: Then the scrolls will be placed.” In one pan and the card in the other, the records flew away and the card became heavy. He said: Nothing is heavier than the name of God. And some people said: This is for opponents.

It was narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, may God be pleased with him: When the Day of Resurrection comes, God will gather the first and the last, then a caller will call out: Whoever seeks injustice, let him come and take his right. A person will be happy that his right over his father, son, wife, or brother will be dissolved, so he will take it from him even if he is young. The proof of that is in the Book of God Almighty: And when the Trumpet is blown, there will be no kinship between them that Day, nor will they ask about one another. And the servant will be brought and a caller will call out over the heads of the first and the last: “This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right over him, let him come and take his right.” And it will be said: Give these people their rights. He will say: O Lord, from where, when the world is gone. Then God Almighty will say to His angels: “Look at his righteous deeds and give them from them. If there remains an atom's weight of good deeds for him,” the angels will say: O our Lord, there remains an atom's weight of good deeds for him. He will say: Multiply it for My servant and admit him by the grace of My mercy into Paradise. The proof of this is in the Book of God Almighty: “Indeed, God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it.” And if a servant is wretched, the angels say: Our God, his good deeds have run out and there are still those who seek him? Then God Almighty says: Take from their bad deeds and add them to his bad deeds, then cast him into the Fire.

The meaning of the verse according to this interpretation is that God does not wrong the opponent by the weight of an atom from the opponent, but rather He takes it from him, and He does not wrong the weight of an atom that remains for him, but rather He rewards him for it and multiplies it for him. This is what God Almighty says: And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it. The people of Hijaz read good in the nominative case, meaning: And if there is a good deed, and the others read it in the accusative case, meaning: And if the weight of an atom is a good deed, He multiplies it, meaning: He makes it many times over. And He gives from Himself a great reward. Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, said: If God Almighty says a great reward, who can estimate its value?

does not reduce the reward nor increase the punishment for the smallest thing like an atom. It is a small ant. And every part of dust is called a mif'al from the word thaqal, and its mention indicates that even if its value is small, its reward is great. And if it is a good deed Even if it is a good deed, and the pronoun you is for the feminization of the predicate, or for adding the mithqal to a feminine. The nun was deleted without analogy, likening it to vowel letters. Ibn Kathir and Nafi' read good deed in the nominative case based on the perfect kana. He multiplies it He multiplies its reward. Ibn Kathir, Ibn Amir, and Ya'qub read He multiplies it and both of them have the same meaning. And He gives from Himself and He gives its owner from Himself as a favor in addition to what He promised in return for the work A great reward a generous gift, and He only called it a reward because it is a continuation of the reward and an addition to it.

So how will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these?

How will it be for the infidels when We bring from every nation a witness who will testify against them, and he is their prophet and We bring you O Muhammad as a witness over these

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: God does not wrong His servants by the weight of an atom, so how about them? When We bring from every nation a witness, meaning: someone who will testify against them regarding their deeds, and their belief in their messengers or their denial of them, and We bring you as a witness over these, meaning: and We bring you, O Muhammad, over these, meaning: over your nation, as a witness, meaning a witness, just as:

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated, Asbat narrated, on the authority of al-Suddi: How [will it be] when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you as a witness over these people? He said: The prophets will come on the Day of Resurrection, and among them are those who converted with him from his people, one, two, ten, or more than that, until the people of Lot, peace be upon him, will be brought, and none believed with him except his two daughters. It will be said to them: Did you convey that with which you were sent? They will say: Yes. It will be said: Who will bear witness? They will say: The nation of the Prophet, peace be upon him! It will be said to them: Bear witness, for the messengers were entrusted with you as a testimony, so to what do you bear witness? They will say: Our Lord, we bear witness that they have conveyed, just as they bore witness in this world to conveying. It will be said: Who bears witness to that? They will say: Muhammad, peace be upon him. Then Muhammad, peace be upon him, is called and testifies that his nation has been truthful and that the messengers have conveyed the message. This is what He says: And thus We have made you a just community that you will be witnesses over the people and the Messenger will be a witness over you (al-Baqarah 2:143).

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said, regarding his statement: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness? He said: Its Messenger, so he bears witness over them that he has conveyed to them what God sent him with to them, And We bring you as a witness over these. He said: Whenever the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to that, his eyes would overflow with tears.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Al-Hasan told us, on the authority of Yazid Al-Nahwi, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement: And a witness and what is witnessed (al-Buruj 85:3), he said: The witness is Muhammad, and what is witnessed is Friday. So that is his statement: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], over these as a witness?

Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Zuhri told me, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Al-Mas'udi, on the authority of Ja'far bin Amr bin Harith, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abdullah: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you as a witness over these people? He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A witness over them as long as I was among them. But when You took me up, You were the Observer over them, and You are Witness over all things." (al-Ma'idah 5:117)

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna narrated to us, Ibrahim ibn Abi al-Wazir narrated to us, Sufyan ibn Uyaynah narrated to us, on the authority of al-Mas'udi, on the authority of al-Qasim: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Ibn Mas'ud: 'Recite to me.' He said: 'Shall I recite to you, when it was revealed to you?' He said: 'I like to hear it from someone other than myself.' Ibn Mas'ud recited Surat al-Nisa until he reached: 'How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these?' He said: 'The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, wept, and Ibn Mas'ud held back.'"

Al-Mas'udi said: Ja'far bin Amr bin Harith told me, on the authority of his father: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: 'I am a witness over them as long as I am among them. But when You take me, You will be the Observer over them, and You are a Witness over all things.'"

The letter fa is opened due to the meeting of two quiescent letters, and if it is a circumstance of time and the factor in it comes, Abu al-Layth al-Samarqandi mentioned: Al-Khalil bin Ahmad told us, he said: Ibn Mani' told us, Abu Kamil told us, he said: Fadil told us, on the authority of Yunus bin Muhammad bin Fadala, on the authority of his father, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them in Bani Thafar, he told us, so he sat on the rock in Bani Thafar, and with him were Ibn Mas'ud and Mu'adh and some of his companions, so he ordered a reader to read until he came to this verse: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], over these as a witness? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was covered in tears until his cheeks were wet, so he said:

O Lord, this applies to those I am among, so how about those I have not seen? Al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me:

So how (will it be) when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these?

Read to me. I said: Should I read to you and it was revealed to you? He said: I like to hear it from someone else, so I recited to him Surat An-Nisa until I reached: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], over these as a witness? He said: Hold on. Then behold, his eyes were shedding tears. Muslim narrated it and said instead of saying: Hold on. So I raised my head or a man next to me nudged me, so I raised my head and saw his tears flowing. Our scholars said: The crying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was due to the greatness of what this verse included of the horror of the outcome and the severity of the matter, as the prophets are brought as witnesses over their nations regarding belief and denial, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, is brought on the Day of Resurrection as a witness. The reference in his saying over these is to the infidels of Quraysh and other infidels. The infidels of Quraysh were specifically mentioned because the duty of punishment is more severe for them than for others due to their stubbornness when they saw the miracles and the extraordinary things that God showed through his hands. The meaning is: How will the state of these infidels be on the Day of Resurrection? When We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], over these as a witness? Will they be punished or blessed? This is a question. Its meaning is rebuke, and it was said: It is a reference to all of his nation. Ibn Al-Mubarak mentioned that a man from the Ansar told us on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr that he heard Saeed bin Al-Musayyab say: There is not a day but that his nation is presented to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, morning and evening, and he recognizes them by their appearance and their deeds, and for that reason he bears witness against them. God Almighty says: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness meaning their prophet and We bring you as a witness over these and the position of how is accusative with an implied verb, the meaning is how will their state be as we mentioned, and the implied verb may replace if and the agent in if we bring and witness is a state. In the hadith, it is permissible for a student to read to the sheikh and present it to him, and the opposite is permissible, and its explanation will come in the hadith of Abi in Surat Lam Yakun, God willing.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, informing us: He will not wrong any of His creation on the Day of Resurrection by the weight of a mustard seed or the weight of an atom, but He will repay it to him and multiply it for him if it was good, as God Almighty said: And We will set up the just balances (al-An'am 2:17). God Almighty also said, informing us about Luqman, that he said: O my son, if it be the weight of a mustard seed and be in a rock or in the heavens or in the earth, God will bring it forth (al-An'am 2:17). God Almighty also said: "On that Day mankind will come forth in separate groups to be shown their deeds. So whoever does an atom's weight of good will see it. And whoever does an atom's weight of evil will see it." And in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Zaid bin Aslam from Ata bin Yasar, from Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the long hadith of intercession, in which it says: Then God Almighty will say, 'Go back, and whoever you find in his heart the weight of a mustard seed of faith, take him out of the Fire.' And in another version: The least, the least, the least of an atom's weight of faith, so take him out of the Fire and they will take out many people. Then Abu Saeed says: Read if you wish, Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom, the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja' told us, Isa bin Yunus told us, on the authority of Harun bin Antara, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Zadan, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: The male and female slave will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and a caller will call out over the heads of the first and the last: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right. The woman will rejoice that she will have a right over her father, mother, brother, or husband. Then he recited, There will be no kinship between them that Day, nor will they ask about one another. So God will forgive whatever He wills of His right, but He will not forgive anything of the rights of the people. Then a group of people will be set up and it will be called out: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right. He will say: O Lord, the world has perished, from where can I give them their rights? He will say: Take from his righteous deeds and give to everyone who has a right. His right is according to what he asks for. If he is a friend of God, then he is given an atom's weight of grace, which God will multiply for him until he enters Paradise with it. Then he recited to us, "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it." He said, Enter Paradise. And if he is a wretched slave, the angel will say, O Lord, his good deeds have run out and there remain many seekers. He will say, Take from their bad deeds and multiply them with his bad deeds, then cast him into the Fire. Ibn Jarir narrated it from another chain of transmission on the authority of Zadhan, with a similar wording. And some of this trace has a witness in the authentic hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu Nu'aym told us, Fadil told us, meaning Ibn Marzuq, on the authority of Atiyah al-Awfi, Abdullah ibn Umar told me, he said: This verse was revealed about the Bedouins, Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof. A man said: What about the Muhajireen, O Abu Abd al-Rahman? He said: What is better than that, "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." Abu Zar'ah, Yahya bin Abdullah bin Bakir told us, Abdullah bin Lahi'ah told me, Ata bin Dinar told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding His statement: And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it. As for the polytheist, his punishment will be lightened on the Day of Resurrection and he will never leave the Fire. And evidence for this was provided by the authentic hadith that Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, your uncle

Abu Talib used to protect you and support you, so did you benefit him in anything? He said: Yes, he is in the shallows of the Fire, and were it not for me, he would have been in the lowest depths of the Fire. This may be specific to Abu Talib and not to the infidels, as evidenced by what Abu Dawud Al-Tayalisi narrated in his Musnad: Imran told us, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Anas, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God does not wrong the believer in a good deed for which he is rewarded with provision in this world and is recompensed for it in the Hereafter. As for the infidel, he is fed with it in this world, so when the Day of Resurrection comes, he will have no good deed." Abu Hurairah, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Al-Dahhak said regarding His statement: And he will be given from Him a great reward: meaning Paradise. We ask God for His pleasure and Paradise. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Samad told us, Sulayman told us, meaning Ibn al-Mughira, on the authority of Ali ibn Zayd, on the authority of Abu Uthman, who said: It reached me on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that he said: It reached me that God, the Most High, gives His believing servant a thousand thousand good deeds for a single good deed. He said: So it was decreed that I set out for Hajj or Umrah, and I met him and said: I heard a hadith from you that you say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The servant will be rewarded for a good deed a thousand thousand good deeds. I said: Woe to you! No one sits with Abu Hurayrah more than me, and I did not hear this hadith from him. I took it upon myself to catch up with him, but I found that he had set out for Hajj, so I set out for Hajj in search of this hadith, and I met him and said: O Abu Hurayrah, God multiplies the good deed a thousand thousand good deeds. He said: O Abu Uthman, what amazes you about this, when God says: Who is it that will lend God a goodly loan so He may multiply it for him many times over? And He says: So what is the enjoyment of life? The world in the Hereafter except a little. "By Him in Whose Hand is my soul, I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "God multiplies a good deed by two thousand thousand good deeds." He said: This is a strange hadith, and Ali bin Zaid bin Jud'an has some objectionable hadiths. Ahmad also narrated it and said: Mubarak bin Fadala narrated to us on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, who said: I came to Abu Hurairah and said to him: I have heard that you say: A good deed is multiplied by one thousand thousand good deeds! He said: What is surprising to you about that? By God, I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God multiplies a good deed by two thousand thousand good deeds. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission and said: Abu Khallad and Sulayman bin Khallad al-Mu'addib narrated to us, Muhammad al-Rafa'i narrated to us on the authority of Ziyad bin al-Jassas, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, who said: No one sat with Abu Hurairah more than I did. He came before me on Hajj and I came after him, and the people of Basra narrated from him that he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, God multiplies a good deed by one thousand thousand good deeds. I said: Woe to you! No one sat with Abu Hurairah more than me, and I did not hear this hadith from him. I intended to catch up with him, but I found that he had set out on Hajj. So I set out on Hajj to meet him in this hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission, and he said: Bishr ibn Muslim told us, Ar-Rabi' ibn Ruh told us, Muhammad ibn Khalid Adh-Dhahabi told us, on the authority of Ziyad al-Jassas, on the authority of Abu Uthman, who said: I said: O Abu Hurairah, I heard my brothers in Basra claim that you say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God rewards for a good deed with a thousand thousand good deeds. Abu Hurairah said: By God, rather I heard the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God rewards for a good deed with a thousand thousand good deeds. Then he recited this verse: But the enjoyment of worldly life is but little compared to the Hereafter. And the Almighty's saying: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? God, the Almighty, says, informing us about the terror of the Day of Resurrection and the severity of its matter and its affair. So how will the matter and state be on the Day of Resurrection when..." A witness will come from every nation, meaning the prophets, peace be upon them, as God Almighty said: And the earth will shine with the light of its Lord, and the Book will be laid open, and the prophets and the witnesses will be brought (al-Baqarah 2:17). God Almighty also said: And the Day We will raise up from every nation a witness against them from among themselves (al-Baqarah 2:17). Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Yusuf told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Ubaydah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Recite to me. I said: O Messenger of God, should I recite to you, and was it revealed to you? He said: Yes, I like to hear it from someone other than myself. So I recited Surat al-Nisa until I came to this verse: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? He said: Enough for now. Then his eyes were shedding tears. He and Muslim also narrated it from the hadith of al-A'mash with it. It has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, so it is definitive from him. Ahmad narrated it from the chain of transmission of Abu Hayyan and Abu Razin on his authority. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Bakr ibn Abi al-Dunya told us. Al-Salt bin Masoud Al-Jahdari narrated to us, Fadil bin Sulaiman narrated to us, Yunus bin Muhammad bin Fadala Al-Ansari narrated to us on the authority of his father, he said: My father was one of those who accompanied the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them in Bani Thafar, and sat on the rock that is in Bani Thafar today, and with him were Ibn Masoud and Muadh bin Jabal and some of his companions, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered a reader to read until he reached this verse: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], against these as a witness? So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, wept until his beard and sides shook, and he said: O Lord, this one has testified against the one I am among, so how about the one I have not seen? Ibn Jarir said: Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Zuhri narrated to me, Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Mas'udi, on the authority of Ja'far bin Amr bin Harith, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abdullah, who is Ibn Masoud, regarding this verse, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A witness over them as long as I am among them, but if... As for what Abu Abdullah Al-Qurtubi mentioned in At-Tadhkirah where he said: Chapter on what came in the testimony of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on his nation, he said: Ibn Al-Mubarak informed us, a man from the Ansar informed us on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr that he heard Saeed bin Al-Musayyab say: There is no day in which his nation is not presented to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, morning and evening, so he knows them by their names and deeds, so he bears witness against them, God Almighty says: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? It is a trace and there is an interruption in it, for in it is an unknown man who was not named, and it is from the words of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab who did not raise it, and Al-Qurtubi accepted it and said after citing it: It has been mentioned that deeds are presented to God every Monday and Thursday, and to the prophets and fathers and mothers on Friday, he said: There is no contradiction, for it is possible that our Prophet is singled out for what is presented to him every day, and Friday is with the prophets, upon them be the best prayers and peace. And God Almighty says: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that The earth will be leveled with them, and they will not conceal from God a word. That is, if it split open and swallowed them because of what they saw of the horrors of the situation and what would befall them of disgrace, scandal, and rebuke, like His statement: On the Day when a man will see what his hands have put forth 3:100. His statement: And they will not conceal from God a word is information about them that they will acknowledge everything they have done and will not conceal anything of it. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Hakam told us, Amr told us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said to him: I heard God the Almighty say - meaning informing about the polytheists on the Day of Resurrection that they said - By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. And He said in the other verse: And they will not conceal from God a word. Ibn Abbas said: As for His statement: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, when they saw that none would enter Paradise except the people of Islam, they said: Come, let us deny it. So they said: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. So God sealed the matter of Their mouths, their hands and their feet spoke, and they do not conceal from God a word. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: Things differ from me in the Qur'an. He said: What is it? I doubt the Qur'an? He said: It is not doubt, but a difference. He said: Then tell me what differs from you in that. He said: I hear God say, Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists.' And He said, And they do not conceal from God a word. So they concealed. Ibn Abbas said: As for his saying: Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists,' when they saw on the Day of Resurrection that God does not forgive except the people of Islam and forgives sins and no sin is too great for Him to forgive nor does He forgive polytheism, the polytheists denied it and said, By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, hoping that He would forgive them. So God sealed their mouths, and their hands and feet spoke of what they used to do. Then those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word. Juwaybir said on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: Nafi' ibn Al-Azraq came to Ibn Abbas and said: O Ibn Abbas, what about the saying of God Almighty: On that Day those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word, and His saying: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, Ibn Abbas said to him: I think you got up from your companions and said: I will recite to Ibn Abbas the ambiguous verses of the Qur'an, so when you return to them, inform them. God the Almighty will gather the people on the Day of Resurrection in one place, and the polytheists will say: God does not accept anything from anyone except from the one who makes Him alone. They will say: Come, let us deny Him. He will ask them and they will say: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. He said: God will seal their mouths and make their limbs speak, and their limbs will testify against them that they were polytheists. At that time, they will wish that the earth had been leveled with them. And they will not conceal a word from God. Narrated by Ibn Jarir.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 41- How then, when We bring from every nation a witness? How is in the accusative case with an implied verb as is the opinion of Sibawayh, or its place is the nominative case of all as the subject as is the opinion of others, and the reference in His statement these is to the infidels, and it was said: to the infidels of Quraysh in particular. The meaning is: How will the state of these infidels be on the Day of Resurrection when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you as a witness over these? This question means rebuke and reprimand.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

41- The Almighty said: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness? [i.e.: How will it be and how will they act if We bring from every nation a witness] meaning: their prophet who will testify against them regarding what they did, and We bring you, O Muhammad, over these as a witness, a witness who testifies against all nations, against those who saw him and those who did not see him.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Sufyan, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Ubaidah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Recite to me. I said: O Messenger of God, should I recite to you when it was revealed to you? He said: Yes. So I recited Surat An-Nisa until I came to this verse: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? He said: Enough for now. So he turned to him and saw that his eyes were shedding tears.

41- How meaning how is the state of these infidels from among the Jews, Christians and others? When We bring from every nation a witness meaning their prophet who testifies to the corruption of their beliefs and the ugliness of their actions, and the agent in the circumstance is the subject and predicate of the horror of the matter and the greatness of the matter. And We bring you O Muhammad, over these as a witness you testify to the truthfulness of these witnesses because of your knowledge of their beliefs and the fact that your law contains the foundations of their principles. It was said that these refer to the infidels whose state is being inquired about. It was also said that it refers to the believers, as in the Almighty's saying: That you may be witnesses over the people and the Messenger may be a witness over you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:42

On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they will not conceal from Allah a word.

Surat al-Nisa 4:42

On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they will not conceal from God a word.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

On that Day the Day of Coming those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that that is, that the earth were leveled in the passive and active form with the deletion of one of the two ta's in the original, and with its assimilation into the seen {Tassawa} that is, that the earth were leveled with them so that they were dust like it due to the enormity of its horror as in another verse: {And the disbelievers will say, Oh, I wish I were dust.} And they will not conceal from God a word about what they did, and at another time they will conceal it and say, By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: On the Day when We bring from every nation a witness, and We bring you, O Muhammad, as a witness over your nation, those who disbelieve will wish, meaning those who denied the Oneness of God and disobeyed His Messenger, that the earth would be leveled with them.

There are different readings of this.

The people of Hijaz, Mecca and Medina generally read it as: If the earth were leveled with them, with a shaddah on the sin and the waw and a fathah on the ta', meaning: If the earth were leveled with them, then the second ta' was assimilated into the sin, meaning that they would like to become dust and be equal to the earth.

Others read it as: If the earth were leveled with them, with the ta' open and the seen softened. This is a general reading, the reading of the people of Kufa with the first meaning, except that they left the emphasis on the seen, and they argued that the Arabs hardly combine two emphasises in one letter.

Others read it as: If the earth were to be leveled with them, meaning: If God and the earth were to be leveled with them and they became dust like it by turning them into dust, as He does with those He mentioned that He does it to from among the animals.

Abu Ja'far said: All of these readings are close in meaning, and whichever one recites them, he is correct. Because whoever among them wishes to be dust on that Day, wishes to be so because God created him thus. Likewise, whoever wishes that God made him thus, has wished to be dust. However, even if this is the case, the reading that I like best in this regard is: If the earth were leveled with them, with the ta' open and the seen softened, out of dislike for combining two shaddahs in one letter, and to reconcile the meaning between that and His statement: And the disbeliever will say, 'Oh, I wish I were dust!' (An-Naba' 78:40). So God, the Most High, informed us about them that they wished they were dust, and He did not inform us that they said, Oh, I wish I were dust! (An-Naba' 78:40). So too is His statement: If the earth were leveled with them so they would be leveled. This is more pleasing to me, because it agrees with the meaning that He informed us about in His statement: Oh, I wish I were dust! (An-Naba' 78:40).

As for his saying: And they do not conceal from God a word, the people of interpretation interpreted it to mean: And God does not conceal from their limbs a word, even if their mouths deny it.

Who said that?

Ibn Humayd narrated, Hakam narrated, Amr narrated, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: I heard God say: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23), and He said in another verse: And they do not conceal from God a word. Ibn Abbas said: As for His statement: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23), when they saw that none would enter Paradise except the people of Islam, they said: Come, let us deny it! They said: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23)! So God sealed their mouths, and their hands and feet spoke, so they do not conceal a word from God.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: There are things that I disagree with in the Qur'an? He said: What is it? I have doubts in the Qur'an? He said: It is not doubt, but it is disagreement! He said: Then tell me what you disagree with. He said: I hear God say: Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists' (al-An'am 6:23), and He said: And they do not conceal from God a statement, and they concealed! Ibn Abbas said: As for his statement: Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists' (al-An'am 6:23), when they saw on the Day of Resurrection that God forgives the people of Islam and forgives sins, but does not forgive polytheism, and no sin is too great for Him to forgive, the polytheists denied and said: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23), hoping that He would forgive them, so He sealed their mouths, and their hands and feet spoke of what they used to do. Then: Those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger would wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Muslim bin Ibrahim told us, he said, Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Zubayr told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: Nafi' bin Al-Azraq came to Ibn Abbas and said: O Ibn Abbas, what about the words of God, the Most High: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word, and His words: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23)? Ibn Abbas said to him: I think you got up from your companions and said: I will recite to Ibn Abbas the ambiguous verses of the Qur'an, and when you return to them, tell them that God will gather the people on the Day of Resurrection in one place, and the polytheists will say: God does not accept anything from anyone except from the one who makes Him alone! They will say: Come, let us recite! He will ask them and they will say: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23). He said: He will seal their mouths and make their limbs speak, and their limbs will testify against them that they were polytheists. At that time, they will wish that the earth had been leveled with them, and they will not conceal a word from God.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they will not conceal from God a word, meaning: that the earth would be leveled with the mountains and the earth, upon them.

The interpretation of the verse according to this statement that we have narrated from Ibn Abbas: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth had leveled them and that they had not concealed a word from God, as if they wished that they had been leveled with the earth and that they had not concealed a word from God.

Others said: The meaning of this is: On that Day they will not conceal anything from God, and they will wish that the earth would be leveled with them. And none of their speech will be concealed from God, because He, glory be to Him, knows all of their speech and their affair. If they conceal it with their tongues and deny it, nothing of it will be hidden from Him.

The waw in 'aswa was closed because of the meeting of two quiescent letters, and it is permissible to break it. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read it with a fatha on the ta' and a shaddah on the seen, and Hamza and Al-Kisa'i did the same except that they lightened the seen. The rest closed the ta' and lightened the seen, in the passive form and the subject is not named and the meaning is if God would level the earth with them, meaning He would make them and the earth equal. Another meaning is: they wished that God would resurrect them and the earth would be level for them because they were taken from the dust. According to the first and second readings, the earth is the subject and the meaning is they wished that the earth would open up for them so they would sink into it. Qatada said: It was said: The Baa' means 'upon', i.e. if it were leveled for them, i.e. if it were split open and leveled for them, from Al-Hasan, the emphasis is on assimilation and the alleviation is on deletion of the Taa'. It was said:

They only wished for this when they saw the animals turning to dust and knew that they would abide eternally in the Fire. This is the meaning of the Almighty's saying: And the disbeliever will say, 'Oh, I wish I were dust' (An-Naba': 40). It was said: They only wished for this hadith. This nation testified for the prophets on what was mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah when the Almighty said: And thus We have made you a just community (al-Baqarah 2:143), the verse. Then the past nations will say: Among them are adulterers and thieves, but their testimony will not be accepted. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, will vouch for them. Then the polytheists will say: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists (al-An'am 6:23). So their mouths will be sealed and their feet and hands will bear witness to what they used to earn. This is the meaning of the Almighty's saying: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them meaning that it would swallow them up, and God knows best.

God the Almighty said: And they do not conceal from God a word. Al-Zajaj said: Some of them said: And they do not conceal from God a word is a new sentence because what they knew is clear to God and they are not able to conceal it. Some of them said: It is connected and the meaning is that he wishes that the earth were leveled with them and that they did not conceal from God a word because their lie was apparent. Ibn Abbas was asked about this verse and about God the Almighty's saying: And by God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. He said: When they saw that none would enter Paradise except the people of Islam, they said: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. So God sealed their mouths and their hands and feet spoke, so they do not conceal from God a word. Al-Hasan and Qatadah said: The other is situations in which this is in some of them and this is in some of them, and its meaning is that when it became clear to them and they were held to account, they did not conceal anything. This will be further explained in Al-An'am, God willing.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, informing us: He will not wrong any of His creation on the Day of Resurrection by the weight of a mustard seed or the weight of an atom, but He will repay it to him and multiply it for him if it was good, as God Almighty said: And We will set up the just balances (al-An'am 2:17). God Almighty also said, informing us about Luqman, that he said: O my son, if it be the weight of a mustard seed and be in a rock or in the heavens or in the earth, God will bring it forth (al-An'am 2:17). God Almighty also said: "On that Day mankind will come forth in separate groups to be shown their deeds. So whoever does an atom's weight of good will see it. And whoever does an atom's weight of evil will see it." And in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Zaid bin Aslam from Ata bin Yasar, from Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the long hadith of intercession, in which it says: Then God Almighty will say, 'Go back, and whoever you find in his heart

On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they will not conceal from Allah a word.

the weight of a mustard seed of faith, take him out of the Fire. And in another version: The least, the least, the least of an atom's weight of faith, so take him out of the Fire and they will take out many people. Then Abu Saeed says: Read if you wish, Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom, the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashja' told us, Isa bin Yunus told us, on the authority of Harun bin Antara, on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Zadan, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: The male and female slave will be brought on the Day of Resurrection and a caller will call out over the heads of the first and the last: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right. The woman will rejoice that she will have a right over her father, mother, brother, or husband. Then he recited, There will be no kinship between them that Day, nor will they ask about one another. So God will forgive whatever He wills of His right, but He will not forgive anything of the rights of the people. Then a group of people will be set up and it will be called out: This is so-and-so, son of so-and-so. Whoever has a right, let him come to his right. He will say: O Lord, the world has perished, from where can I give them their rights? He will say: Take from his righteous deeds and give to everyone who has a right. His right is according to what he asks for. If he is a friend of God, then he is given an atom's weight of grace, which God will multiply for him until he enters Paradise with it. Then he recited to us, "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it." He said, Enter Paradise. And if he is a wretched slave, the angel will say, O Lord, his good deeds have run out and there remain many seekers. He will say, Take from their bad deeds and multiply them with his bad deeds, then cast him into the Fire. Ibn Jarir narrated it from another chain of transmission on the authority of Zadhan, with a similar wording. And some of this trace has a witness in the authentic hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu Nu'aym told us, Fadil told us, meaning Ibn Marzuq, on the authority of Atiyah al-Awfi, Abdullah ibn Umar told me, he said: This verse was revealed about the Bedouins, Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof. A man said: What about the Muhajireen, O Abu Abd al-Rahman? He said: What is better than that, "Indeed, God does not wrong by the weight of an atom. And if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward." Abu Zar'ah, Yahya bin Abdullah bin Bakir told us, Abdullah bin Lahi'ah told me, Ata bin Dinar told me, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding His statement: And if it is a good deed, He multiplies it. As for the polytheist, his punishment will be lightened on the Day of Resurrection and he will never leave the Fire. And evidence for this was provided by the authentic hadith that Al-Abbas said: O Messenger of God, your uncle Abu Talib used to protect you and support you, so did you benefit him in anything? He said: Yes, he is in the shallows of the Fire, and were it not for me, he would have been in the lowest depths of the Fire. This may be specific to Abu Talib and not to the infidels, as evidenced by what Abu Dawud Al-Tayalisi narrated in his Musnad: Imran told us, Qatadah told us, on the authority of Anas, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God does not wrong the believer in a good deed for which he is rewarded with provision in this world and is recompensed for it in the Hereafter. As for the infidel, he is fed with it in this world, so when the Day of Resurrection comes, he will have no good deed." Abu Hurairah, Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubair, Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and Al-Dahhak said regarding His statement: And he will be given from Him a great reward: meaning Paradise. We ask God for His pleasure and Paradise. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Samad told us, Sulayman told us, meaning Ibn al-Mughira, on the authority of Ali ibn Zayd, on the authority of Abu Uthman, who said: It reached me on the authority of Abu Hurayrah that he said: It reached me that God, the Most High, gives His believing servant a thousand thousand good deeds for a single good deed. He said: So it was decreed that I set out for Hajj or Umrah, and I met him and said: I heard a hadith from you that you say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: The servant will be rewarded for a good deed a thousand thousand good deeds. I said: Woe to you! No one sits with Abu Hurayrah more than me, and I did not hear this hadith from him. I took it upon myself to catch up with him, but I found that he had set out for Hajj, so I set out for Hajj in search of this hadith, and I met him and said: O Abu Hurayrah, God multiplies the good deed a thousand thousand good deeds. He said: O Abu Uthman, what amazes you about this, when God says: Who is it that will lend God a goodly loan so He may multiply it for him many times over? And He says: So what is the enjoyment of life? The world in the Hereafter except a little. "By Him in Whose Hand is my soul, I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "God multiplies a good deed by two thousand thousand good deeds." He said: This is a strange hadith, and Ali bin Zaid bin Jud'an has some objectionable hadiths. Ahmad also narrated it and said: Mubarak bin Fadala narrated to us on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, who said: I came to Abu Hurairah and said to him: I have heard that you say: A good deed is multiplied by one thousand thousand good deeds! He said: What is surprising to you about that? By God, I heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God multiplies a good deed by two thousand thousand good deeds. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission and said: Abu Khallad and Sulayman bin Khallad al-Mu'addib narrated to us, Muhammad al-Rafa'i narrated to us on the authority of Ziyad bin al-Jassas, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, who said: No one sat with Abu Hurairah more than I did. He came before me on Hajj and I came after him, and the people of Basra narrated from him that he said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, God multiplies a good deed by one thousand thousand good deeds. I said: Woe to you! No one sat with Abu Hurairah more than me, and I did not hear this hadith from him. I intended to catch up with him, but I found that he had set out on Hajj. So I set out on Hajj to meet him in this hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it from another chain of transmission, and he said: Bishr ibn Muslim told us, Ar-Rabi' ibn Ruh told us, Muhammad ibn Khalid Adh-Dhahabi told us, on the authority of Ziyad al-Jassas, on the authority of Abu Uthman, who said: I said: O Abu Hurairah, I heard my brothers in Basra claim that you say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God rewards for a good deed with a thousand thousand good deeds. Abu Hurairah said: By God, rather I heard the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God rewards for a good deed with a thousand thousand good deeds. Then he recited this verse: But the enjoyment of worldly life is but little compared to the Hereafter. And the Almighty's saying: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? God, the Almighty, says, informing us about the terror of the Day of Resurrection and the severity of its matter and its affair. So how will the matter and state be on the Day of Resurrection when..." A witness will come from every nation, meaning the prophets, peace be upon them, as God Almighty said: And the earth will shine with the light of its Lord, and the Book will be laid open, and the prophets and the witnesses will be brought (al-Baqarah 2:17). God Almighty also said: And the Day We will raise up from every nation a witness against them from among themselves (al-Baqarah 2:17). Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Yusuf told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Ubaydah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Recite to me. I said: O Messenger of God, should I recite to you, and was it revealed to you? He said: Yes, I like to hear it from someone other than myself. So I recited Surat al-Nisa until I came to this verse: How will it be when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? He said: Enough for now. Then his eyes were shedding tears. He and Muslim also narrated it from the hadith of al-A'mash with it. It has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, so it is definitive from him. Ahmad narrated it from the chain of transmission of Abu Hayyan and Abu Razin on his authority. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Bakr ibn Abi al-Dunya told us. Al-Salt bin Masoud Al-Jahdari narrated to us, Fadil bin Sulaiman narrated to us, Yunus bin Muhammad bin Fadala Al-Ansari narrated to us on the authority of his father, he said: My father was one of those who accompanied the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them in Bani Thafar, and sat on the rock that is in Bani Thafar today, and with him were Ibn Masoud and Muadh bin Jabal and some of his companions, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered a reader to read until he reached this verse: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], against these as a witness? So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, wept until his beard and sides shook, and he said: O Lord, this one has testified against the one I am among, so how about the one I have not seen? Ibn Jarir said: Abdullah bin Muhammad Al-Zuhri narrated to me, Sufyan narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Mas'udi, on the authority of Ja'far bin Amr bin Harith, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Abdullah, who is Ibn Masoud, regarding this verse, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A witness over them as long as I am among them, but if... As for what Abu Abdullah Al-Qurtubi mentioned in At-Tadhkirah where he said: Chapter on what came in the testimony of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, on his nation, he said: Ibn Al-Mubarak informed us, a man from the Ansar informed us on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr that he heard Saeed bin Al-Musayyab say: There is no day in which his nation is not presented to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, morning and evening, so he knows them by their names and deeds, so he bears witness against them, God Almighty says: How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? It is a trace and there is an interruption in it, for in it is an unknown man who was not named, and it is from the words of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab who did not raise it, and Al-Qurtubi accepted it and said after citing it: It has been mentioned that deeds are presented to God every Monday and Thursday, and to the prophets and fathers and mothers on Friday, he said: There is no contradiction, for it is possible that our Prophet is singled out for what is presented to him every day, and Friday is with the prophets, upon them be the best prayers and peace. And God Almighty says: On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that The earth will be leveled with them, and they will not conceal from God a word. That is, if it split open and swallowed them because of what they saw of the horrors of the situation and what would befall them of disgrace, scandal, and rebuke, like His statement: On the Day when a man will see what his hands have put forth 3:100. His statement: And they will not conceal from God a word is information about them that they will acknowledge everything they have done and will not conceal anything of it. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Hakam told us, Amr told us, on the authority of Mutraf, on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said to him: I heard God the Almighty say - meaning informing about the polytheists on the Day of Resurrection that they said - By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. And He said in the other verse: And they will not conceal from God a word. Ibn Abbas said: As for His statement: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, when they saw that none would enter Paradise except the people of Islam, they said: Come, let us deny it. So they said: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. So God sealed the matter of Their mouths, their hands and their feet spoke, and they do not conceal from God a word. Abd al-Razzaq said: Muammar told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: Things differ from me in the Qur'an. He said: What is it? I doubt the Qur'an? He said: It is not doubt, but a difference. He said: Then tell me what differs from you in that. He said: I hear God say, Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists.' And He said, And they do not conceal from God a word. So they concealed. Ibn Abbas said: As for his saying: Then their only trial was that they said, 'By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists,' when they saw on the Day of Resurrection that God does not forgive except the people of Islam and forgives sins and no sin is too great for Him to forgive nor does He forgive polytheism, the polytheists denied it and said, By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, hoping that He would forgive them. So God sealed their mouths, and their hands and feet spoke of what they used to do. Then those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word. Juwaybir said on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: Nafi' ibn Al-Azraq came to Ibn Abbas and said: O Ibn Abbas, what about the saying of God Almighty: On that Day those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them, and they could not conceal from God a word, and His saying: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, Ibn Abbas said to him: I think you got up from your companions and said: I will recite to Ibn Abbas the ambiguous verses of the Qur'an, so when you return to them, inform them. God the Almighty will gather the people on the Day of Resurrection in one place, and the polytheists will say: God does not accept anything from anyone except from the one who makes Him alone. They will say: Come, let us deny Him. He will ask them and they will say: By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists. He said: God will seal their mouths and make their limbs speak, and their limbs will testify against them that they were polytheists. At that time, they will wish that the earth had been leveled with them. And they will not conceal a word from God. Narrated by Ibn Jarir.

Fath al-Qadir

42- On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read Tasawa with a fatha on the ta' and a shaddah on the seen. Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read it with a fatha on the ta' and a light seen. The rest read it with a damma on the ta' and a light seen. The meaning according to the first and second readings is that the earth is what is leveled with them: that is, they wished that the earth would open up for them so that they would sink into it. It was said that the ba' in His statement with them means on: that is, the earth would be leveled with them. According to the third reading, the verb is passive: that is, if God leveled the earth with them, He would make them and the earth equal so that they would not be resurrected. His statement and they will not conceal from God a word is in apposition to wish, meaning: On that Day, those who disbelieved will wish and on that Day they will not conceal from God a word, nor will they be able to do so. Al-Zajaj said: Some of them said and they will not conceal from God a word is a new sentence because what they know is clear to God and they are not able to conceal it. Some of them said: It is conjoined. The meaning is: They wish that the earth had been leveled with them and that they had not concealed a word from God because their lie had become apparent.

Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said:

Kurdam bin Yazid, an ally of Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, Usama bin Habib, Nafi' bin Abi Nafi', Bahri bin Amr, Huyayy bin Akhtab and Rifa'ah bin Zaid bin Al-Tabut, used to come to some men of the Ansar and advise them, saying: Do not spend your wealth, for we fear that it will lead to poverty if it is lost, and do not hasten to spend, for you do not know what will happen. So God revealed about them: Those who are stingy and enjoin stinginess on people until His saying: And God is Knowing of them. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that it was revealed about the Jews. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Mujahid. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated it on the authority of Qatadah. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas: God does not wrong by as much as an atom's weight. He said: The head of a red ant. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair regarding his statement, And if it is a good deed, the weight of an atom that is more than his bad deeds, He will multiply it. As for the polytheist, his punishment will be lightened because of it, and he will never leave the Fire. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me, Recite to me. I said, O Messenger of God, should I recite to you when it was revealed to you? He said, Yes, I would like to hear it from someone other than myself. So I recited Surat An-Nisa until I reached this verse, How will it be then, when We bring from every nation a witness and We bring you, [O Muhammad], as a witness over these? He said, Enough for now. Then behold, his eyes were shedding tears." Al-Hakim narrated it and authenticated it from the hadith of Amr bin Harith. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi from Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, If the earth were to be leveled with them, meaning: that the earth be leveled with the mountains and the earth over them. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Qatada regarding the verse, saying, They wish the earth were to be torn apart with them so that they would sink into it. Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And they do not conceal from God a statement, he said: with their limbs.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

42- The Almighty said: On that Day, meaning the Day of Resurrection, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them. The people of Medina and Ibn Amir read tasawa with a fatha on the ta' and a shaddah on the seen, meaning tasawa, so the second ta' was assimilated into the seen. Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read with a fatha on the ta' and a light seen, deleting the ta' of the verb, like the Almighty's saying: No soul speaks except by His permission (Hud 11:11). The rest read with a damma on the ta' and a light seen, meaning: if the earth were leveled with them and they and the earth became one thing.

Qatada and Abu Ubaidah said: It means if the earth were to crack open and they would sink into it and return to it, then the earth would be leveled with them, meaning: with them.

It was said: They wished they had not been resurrected because they were only moved from the dust, and the earth was level for them.

Al-Kalbi said: God Almighty says to the beasts, wild animals, birds, and wild beasts: Be dust, and the earth will be leveled with them. Then the unbeliever will wish that he were dust, as God Almighty said: And the unbeliever will say, 'Oh, I wish I were dust' An-Naba' 40.

And they do not conceal from God a word. Ata' said: They wished that the earth would level them and that they had not concealed the matter of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, nor his description. The others said: Rather, it is a new statement, meaning: And they do not conceal from God a word because what they did is not hidden from God and they are not able to conceal it. Al-Kalbi and a group said: And they do not conceal from God a word because their limbs bear witness against them.

Saeed bin Jubair said: A man said to Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both: I find things in the Qur'an that I disagree with. He said: Tell me what you disagree with. He said: There will be no kinship among them that Day, nor will they ask about one another (al-Mu'minun 23:101).

And some of them turned to others, asking questions (al-Tur 52:25). He said: And they did not conceal from God a word. "And God, our Lord, we were not polytheists" (al-An'am 6:23).

They concealed it and said: Or did He create the heaven? God Almighty said: And the earth after that He spread out. So He mentioned the creation of the heaven before the earth. Then he said: Do you indeed disbelieve in He who created the earth in two days? until His saying: obediently Fussilat 9-11.

In this verse, He created the earth before the heavens, and He said: And God is Forgiving and Merciful and And God is Exalted in Might and Wise. So it is as if He was and then passed away?

Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: There is no lineage between them in the first blast. God Almighty said: And the Trumpet will be blown, and all who are in the heavens and the earth will fall unconscious except whom God wills Az-Zumar (68). There will be no lineages at that time, and they will not ask each other questions. Then the last blast will be: They will turn to each other, asking each other questions. As for His statement: We were not polytheists, "nor will they conceal from God a word," God will forgive the sins of the people of Al-Akhsa, and the polytheists will say: Come, let us say, we were not polytheists. So He will seal their mouths and their hands will speak. At that point, it will be known that God does not conceal a word. And with Him: Those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger would wish that the earth were leveled with them. "He created the earth in two days," then He created the heavens, then He turned to the heavens and leveled them in two more days, then He spread out the earth. And spreading it means that He brought forth from it water and pasture, and He created the mountains and hills and what is between them in two more days. So He said: He created the earth in two days, so He made the earth and everything in it in four days, and He created the heavens in two days, and God was "Forgiving, Most Merciful" means: He has always been like this, so the Qur'an will not differ from you, for everything is from God.

Al-Hasan said: They are places. In a place they do not speak and you hear nothing but whispers. In a place they speak and lie and say: We were not polytheists, and we did not do any evil. In a place they confess to themselves, which is His saying: So they confessed their sin. In a place they do not ask questions, and in a place they ask for a return. The last of those places is that their mouths are sealed and their limbs speak, which is His Almighty saying: And they do not conceal from God a word.

42- On that Day, those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Messenger will wish that the earth were leveled with them. A statement of their condition at that time, meaning that those who combined disbelief and disobedience to the command, or the disbelievers and disobedient at that time, will wish that they were buried and the earth was leveled with them like the dead, or that they were not resurrected or were not created and that they and the earth were equal. And they will not conceal from God a word, and they will not be able to conceal it because their limbs will testify against them. It was said that the waw is for the condition, meaning that they will wish that the earth was leveled with them and their condition is that they will not conceal a word from God and they will not lie about Him by saying, By God, our Lord, we were not polytheists, as it was narrated that when they say, God has sealed their mouths, their limbs will testify against them, and the matter will become difficult for them and they will wish that the earth was leveled with them. Nafi' and Ibn 'Amir read Tasawa bihum on the basis that its root is tatasawa, so the ta' was assimilated into the seen. Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read tasawa without the second ta' and it is said sawatihu so tasawa.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Surat al-Nisa 4:43

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, God is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer that is, do not pray while you are intoxicated from drinking because the reason for its revelation was congregational prayer in a state of intoxication until you know what you are saying by sobering up nor in a state of major ritual impurity by penetration or ejaculation, and its accusative is in the state and it is applied to the singular and other except those passing through those who are traveling through a path that is, travelers until you wash yourselves then you may pray and the exception of the traveler because he has another ruling that will come, and it was said that what is meant is the prohibition of approaching the places of prayer, that is, the mosques, until you pass through them without staying and if you are ill an illness that is harmed by water or on a journey that is, travelers and you are major ritual impurity or in a state of minor ritual impurity or one of you comes from the privy it is the place prepared for relieving oneself, that is, he has passed urine or you have touched women and in the reading {touched} without an alif and both of them mean touching, which is touching with the hand, Ibn Omar said this and Al-Shafi'i agreed with it and he added touching with the rest of the skin, and from Ibn Abbas it is Intercourse and you do not find water with which to purify yourselves for prayer after seeking and searching, and this applies to those other than the sick then perform tayammum meaning after the time has entered clean earth pure earth, so strike with it twice and wipe over your faces and your hands including the elbows from it, and wiping is transitive by itself and by the letter Indeed, God is Forgiving and Forgiving

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said, O you who have believed, do not approach the verse. Abu Dawud, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Nasa'i and Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Ali, who said, Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf made us food, invited us and gave us wine to drink. The wine took its toll on us and the time for prayer came, so they brought me forward. I recited, Say, O you disbelievers, I do not worship what you worship, and we worship what you worship. Then God revealed, O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying.

K and Al-Faryani, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ali who said: This verse was revealed, nor one in a state of major ritual impurity regarding a traveler who is afflicted with major ritual impurity and performs tayammum and prays.

Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Al-Asla' bin Sharik, who said: I was tending the camel of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I became impure on a cold night. I was afraid that if I washed myself with cold water I would die or become ill. So I mentioned that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, the entire verse.

Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Al-Asla' who said: I used to serve the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I used to travel for him. One day he said to me: O Asla', get up and travel. I said: O Messenger of God, I have become ritually impure. The Messenger of God remained silent, and Gabriel came to him with the verse of dust. The Messenger of God said: Get up, Asla', and perform tayammum. He showed me the tayammum: a stroke for the face and a stroke for the hands up to the elbows. So I got up and performed tayammum, then I traveled for him.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Yazid bin Abi Habib that some men from the Ansar had doors in the mosque, and they would become ritually impure and not have water with them, so they would seek water but would not find a way out except in the mosque. So God revealed His words: And do not enter upon one who is ritually impure except when passing through.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid, who said: This verse was revealed about a man from the Ansar who was sick and could not stand up to perform ablution, and he did not have a servant to carry it to him. So he mentioned that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed: And if you are sick verse.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, who said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, were wounded and it spread among them, then they were afflicted with major ritual impurity, so they complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the entire verse was revealed: And if you are ill.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: O you who have believed, believe in God and His Messenger, do not approach prayer, do not pray, while you are intoxicated, which is the plural of drunk, until you know what you are saying, in your prayer, so that you can distinguish in it what God has commanded you to do or urged you to say in it, from what He has forbidden you and warned you against.

Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the drunkenness that God meant when He said: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated.

Some of them said: He meant drunkenness from drinking.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ata bin al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Ali: That he, Abd al-Rahman, and another man drank wine, so Abd al-Rahman led them in prayer and recited: Say, O you disbelievers, and he mixed it up, so the following was revealed: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hajjaj bin Al-Munhal told us, he said, Hammad told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Abdullah bin Habib: That Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf made food and drink, and invited a group of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they ate and drank until they became drunk, and they brought Ali forward to lead them in the Maghrib prayer, and he recited: "Say, 'O disbelievers, I do not worship what you worship, nor will you worship what I worship, nor will I worship what you worship, nor will you worship what I worship. To you be your religion, and to me mine.'" Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed this verse: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, before alcohol was forbidden, so God said: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, the verse.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Abu Razin, regarding his statement: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, he said: This was revealed while they were drinking alcohol. He said: This was before the prohibition of alcohol was revealed.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Abu Razin, he said: They used to drink after what was revealed in Surat Al-Baqarah, and after what was revealed in Surat An-Nisa, but when what was revealed in Surat Al-Ma'idah, they stopped drinking it.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And you are drunk until you know what you are saying, he said: They were forbidden to pray while they were drunk, then it was abrogated by the prohibition of alcohol.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, he said: They used to avoid getting drunk when attending prayers, then it was abrogated by the prohibition of alcohol.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Abu Wa'il, Abu Razin and Ibrahim, regarding His statement: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, and "They ask you about wine and gambling. Say, "In them is great sin and [yet, some] benefit for people. But their sin is greater than their benefit." (al-Baqarah 2:90), and His statement: You take from it an intoxicant and good provision. (al-Nahl 16:67), they said: This was before the prohibition of wine was revealed.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Do not approach prayer while you are drunk from sleep.

Who said that?

Waki' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Salamah ibn Nabit, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: Do not approach prayer while you are drunk. He said: It is not for someone who approaches it drunk from drinking, rather what is meant by it is the drunkenness of sleep.

Ahmad bin Hazim Al-Ghafari told us, Abu Naim told us, Salamah told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated. He said: He did not mean intoxication from alcohol, but rather he meant intoxication from sleep.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions regarding the interpretation of the verse is the interpretation of those who said: This is a prohibition from God to the believers from approaching prayer while they are intoxicated from drinking before wine was forbidden, due to the consistent reports from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that this is the case, a prohibition from God, and that this verse was revealed regarding those about whom it was mentioned that it was revealed.

If someone were to say to us: How can that be its meaning, when a drunkard, in a state of loss of his mind, is like a madman, in a state of loss of his mind, and you are one of those who consider it impossible to hold madmen accountable because they lack understanding of what is commanded and forbidden?

It was said to him: If the drunkard were in the same category as the insane, then his commands and prohibitions would not be permissible. But the drunkard is the one who understands what he does and leaves behind, but the drink has made his tongue and parts of his body heavy and numb, so that he is unable to perform his recitation in his prayer, and its obligatory limits in it, without losing his mind. So he is knowledgeable and understanding of what he is commanded and forbidden from, and he is unable to perform some of it because his body is numb from the drink. As for the one who has reached the point of not understanding what he does and leaves behind, then he has moved from drunkenness to madness and the meanings of the insane, and he is not the one addressed by the saying: Do not approach prayer, because that is the insane, rather the drunkard is addressed by it, and the drunkard is what we have described as his description.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Abu Jaafar said: The interpreters differed in their interpretation of that.

Some of them said: The meaning of this is: Do not approach prayer while you are drunk until you know what you are saying, and do not approach it except as passersby, meaning: unless you are passing through a road, i.e., traveling, until you wash yourself.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Bashar and Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, they said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu Majlaz, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: the traveler, and Ibn al-Muthanna said: while traveling.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of ritual impurity except when passing through, meaning: Do not approach prayer while you are in a state of ritual impurity if you find water. If you do not find water, then it is permissible for you to wipe the ground.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Ibad bin Abdullah - or: on the authority of Zur - on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him: And do not perform tayammum while you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through. He said: Unless you are traveling and you do not find water, then perform tayammum.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Salim al-Aftas, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: the traveler.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Abu Majlaz, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun ibn al-Mughira told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of al-Munhal ibn Amr, on the authority of Ibad ibn Abdullah, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: The following was revealed regarding travel: And do not perform tayammum when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through. The wayfarer is the traveler, if he does not find water he should perform tayammum.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Ibn Mujahid, on the authority of his father: And do not perform tayammum while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through. He said: The traveler, if he does not find water, then he performs tayammum, enters it and prays.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: It is a man who is on a journey and becomes in a state of major ritual impurity, so he performs tayammum and prays.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: Travelers, who cannot find water so they perform tayammum with clean earth, they cannot find water so they can wash themselves.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, he said: Travelers who cannot find water.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Misa'ar, on the authority of Bakir ibn Al-Akhns, on the authority of Al-Hasan ibn Muslim, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: unless they are travelers and do not find water, then they should perform tayammum.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Al-Hakam: And do not perform tayammum while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through. He said: The traveler who becomes ritually impure and does not find water, so he performs tayammum.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Salim Al-Aftas, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, and on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Al-Hakam, regarding his statement: Except those passing through, they said: The traveler who is in a state of major ritual impurity, who does not find water, so he performs tayammum and prays.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair: And do not perform ritual ablution while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, unless you are travelling.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Al-Hakam, something similar.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Abdullah bin Katheer, who said: We used to hear that he was on a journey.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, he said: He is the traveler who cannot find water, so he must perform tayammum and pray, so he performs tayammum and prays. He said: My father used to say this.

Others said that the meaning of this is, do not approach the place of prayer while you are drunk until you know what you are saying, and do not approach it while you are in a state of ritual impurity until you have washed yourself, except for those passing through, meaning: except for those passing through it to exit from it.

The people of this article said: Prayer was established in place of the prayer place and the mosque, since the Muslims' prayer at that time was in their mosques, and they did not fail to gather in them. So the prohibition of them coming close to prayer was sufficient to mention the mosques and the prayer place in which they prayed.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abdul Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Abdul Karim Al-Jazari, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah bin Abdullah, on the authority of his father, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: It is the passageway in the mosque.

Ahmad bin Hazim told us, he said, Ubaidullah bin Musa told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far al-Razi, on the authority of Zayd bin Aslam, on the authority of Ibn Yasar, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And do not approach the mosque while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, he said: Do not approach the mosque unless your path is in it, so pass by and do not sit.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed, regarding the one who is in a state of ritual impurity: He passes through the mosque while standing, not sitting, and he is not in a state of ritual purity. And he recited this verse: nor when you are in a state of ritual impurity except when passing through.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Nahshal, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: There is no problem for a menstruating woman or a person in a state of major ritual impurity to pass through the mosque as long as they do not sit in it.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu al-Zubayr told us, he said: One of us would pass through the mosque while he was in a state of ritual impurity.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: The one in a state of major ritual impurity passes through the mosque and does not sit in it.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abu Hamad told us, and Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, they both said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, he said: If he does not find a way except the mosque, he passes through it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Ghassan Malik bin Ismail told us, he said, Israel told us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding this verse: And do not enter upon yourself while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, until you have washed yourselves, he said: There is nothing wrong with a person in a state of major ritual impurity passing through the mosque, if he has no other way.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, the same.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Salim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: The one in a state of ritual impurity may pass through the mosque but not sit in it. Then he recited: And do not pray while you are in a state of ritual impurity, except when passing through.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Abdul Karim, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Ikrimah, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Al-Hammani told us, he said, Sharik told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Ubaid God, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, similarly.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: There is nothing wrong with a menstruating woman or a person in a state of ritual impurity passing through the mosque, but they should not sit in it.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, he said: It is permissible for a person in a state of ritual impurity to pass through the mosque.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Salih told us, he said, Al-Layth told me, he said, Yazid bin Abi Habib told me about the words of God: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, that some men from the Ansar had doors in the mosque, and they would become ritually impure and not have water with them, so they would want water but could not find a passage except into the mosque, so God Almighty revealed: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim: And do not pass through the mosque while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through. He said: He should not pass through the mosque, unless he finds no other way.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Ibn Mujahid, on the authority of his father: The one in a state of ritual impurity should not pass through the mosque, taking it as a path.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two interpretations of this is the interpretation of the one who interpreted it as: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, except for those passing through a road. This is because the ruling on the traveler if there is no water and he is in a state of major ritual impurity has been explained in His statement: And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the relieving himself or you have contacted women and find no water, then seek clean earth and clean earth, so it was known from this that if His statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through until you have bathed, was intended for the traveler, then repeating it in His statement: and if you are ill or on a journey would not have had an understood meaning, and the ruling on it had been mentioned before that.

Since this is the case, the interpretation of the verse is: O you who have believed, do not approach the mosques for prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying. And do not approach them while in a state of ritual impurity until you have washed yourself, except when passing through.

The passerby: the one who crosses it by passing through and crossing. It is said: I crossed this road, so I cross it by crossing and crossing. And from this it is said: So-and-so crossed the river, if he cut it and crossed it. And from this it is said of the strong camel for travel: she is a strong traveler, and a strong traveler, for her strength for travel.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: And if you are ill, from a wound or smallpox and you are in a state of ritual impurity, as:

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wazeh told us, Abu al-Munabbah al-Fadl bin Salim told us, on the authority of al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Masoud, regarding his statement: And if you are ill or on a journey, he said: The ill person for whom tayammum is permitted is the broken and the wounded. So if major ritual impurity befalls the broken person, he should perform ghusl, and his casts should not be removed. The wounded person's wounds should not be removed, except for a wound for which there is no fear.

Tamim bin Al-Muntasir told us, he said, Ishaq bin Yusuf Al-Azraq told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Ismail Al-Suddi, on the authority of Abu Malik, he said regarding this verse: And if you are ill or on a journey, he said: It is for the sick person who has a wound from which he fears that he will have to perform ghusl, but he does not perform ghusl. So he was permitted to perform tayammum.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asyat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And if you are ill, and illness is wounds. And the wound that one fears for from the water, if the light of its companion touches it, then he performs tayammum with clean earth.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Azza, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, regarding his statement: And if you are ill, he said: If he has wounds or sores, he should perform tayammum.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibrahim: And if you are ill, he said: from sores that are on the arms.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Ibrahim: And if you are ill, he said: sores on the arms.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Harun told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, who said: The one who has a wound that he fears will harm him should perform tayammum. Then he recited: And if you are ill or on a journey.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And if you are ill, and illness is when a man is afflicted with a wound, ulcer, or smallpox, and he fears for himself from the cold water and its harm, so he performs tayammum with earth as a traveler performs tayammum if he cannot find water.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muadh bin Hisham told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Asim - meaning Al-Ahwal - on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: that he was asked about [His saying]: The one with a bleed is afflicted with ritual impurity? He said: The knights of this verse are gone.

Others said about that, what:

Yunus told me that Ibn Wahb told us that Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the relieving himself or you have contacted women and you find no water, then perform tayammum, he said: The sick person is the one who does not find anyone to bring him water, nor is able to do so, nor does he have a servant or helper, so if he is unable to get water, nor does he have anyone to bring it to him, nor does he crawl to it, then he performs tayammum and prays when the time for prayer is due - he said: All of this is the statement of my father - if he is unable to get water and has no one to bring it to him, he does not abandon the prayer, and he is more excused than the traveler.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the verse is: If you are wounded or have sores, or a fracture, or an illness that prevents you from performing ritual ablution after sexual impurity, and you are residents and not travelers, then perform tayammum with clean earth.

As for his saying: or on a journey, he means: or if you are travelling and you are healthy and in a state of major ritual impurity, then perform tayammum with game. And likewise the interpretation of his saying: or one of you comes from the privy, he says: or one of you comes from the privy, having relieved himself while he is a healthy traveller, then let him also perform tayammum with earth.

Al-Gha'it: is the wide valleys that flow down. It was made a metaphor for relieving one's self, because the Arabs used to choose to relieve themselves in the fields, and this became common among them until it became prevalent among them. So everyone who relieved himself, which used to be relieved in the fields, where he relieved himself on the ground, was called a defecator. So-and-so came from the ghā'it, meaning: he relieved himself, which used to be relieved in the ghā'it on the ground.

It was reported on the authority of Mujahid that he said about al-Gha'it: the valley.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Or one of you came from the privy, he said: The privy is the valley.

Abu Jaafar said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Or did you touch women with your hands?

Then the people of interpretation differed about the touch that God meant by His saying: or you have touched women.

Some of them said: He meant sexual intercourse.

Who said that?

Humayd ibn Mas'adah narrated, Yazid ibn Zari' narrated, Shu'bah narrated, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: They mentioned touching, and some of the Mawali said: It is not intercourse. Some of the Arabs said: Touching is intercourse. He said: So I went to Ibn Abbas and said: Some of the Mawali and the Arabs differed about touching, and the Mawali said: It is not intercourse, and the Arabs said: It is intercourse. He said: Which of the two groups were you from? I said: I was one of the Mawali. He said: The Mawali group prevailed, because touching, sensing, and direct contact are intercourse, but God uses whatever He wills as He wills.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Qais, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, he said: I heard Sa'id ibn Jubayr narrating on the authority of Ibn Abbas: that he said: Or you have touched women, he said: It is sexual intercourse.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Wahb ibn Jarir told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, he said: I, Ata', and Ubaid ibn Umair differed regarding his statement: Or you have touched women. Ubaid ibn Umair said: It is sexual intercourse. And Ata' and I said: It is touching. He said: So we went to Ibn Abbas and asked him, and he said: The Mawali group prevailed, and the Arabs prevailed, it is sexual intercourse, but God protects and uses euphemisms.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Ata' bin Abi Rabah, and Ubaid bin Umair: They differed about touching. Saeed bin Jubayr and Ata' said: Touching is less than intercourse. Ubaid said: It is marriage. So Ibn Abbas came out to them and they asked him. He said: The two Mawla's were mistaken and the Arab was right. Touching is marriage, but God euphemizes and protects.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, he said: Saeed ibn Jubayr, Ata', and Ubaid ibn Umair met, and he mentioned something similar.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Uthma told us, he said, Saeed bin Bashir told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said, Saeed bin Jubair and Ata' said in Al-Tamās: Winking with the hand. And Ubayd bin Umair said: Intercourse. So Ibn Abbas came out to them and said: The two Mawla's were mistaken and the Arab was right, but he is chaste and uses a kunya.

Abu Kuraib and Yaqub bin Ibrahim told us that Ibn Abbas said: Touching means sexual intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Ibn Ulayyah and Abd al-Wahhab told us, on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Surat al-Nisa 4:43

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Touching, touching, and direct contact, means sexual intercourse, but God uses euphemisms as He wills.

Abdul Hamid bin Bayan told us, he said, Ishaq Al-Azraq told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Asim Al-Ahwal, on the authority of Bakr bin Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Touching is sexual intercourse, but God is generous and uses euphemisms for whatever He wills.

Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Abdul Hakam told me, he said, Ayoub bin Suwaid told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Bakr bin Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ibn Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi Wahshiyya, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: The Arabs and the Mawali differed about the Salamasa at the door of Ibn Abbas. The Arabs said: Intercourse. The Mawali said: By hand. He said: So Ibn Abbas came out and said: The Mawali group prevailed, touching is intercourse.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: We were at the door of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned something similar.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Yazid bin Harun told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: Some people sat at the door of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned something similar.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Or you have touched women, touching is intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Ibn Numayr told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abdul Malik bin Maysarah, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: The Mawali and the Arabs gathered in the mosque, and Ibn Abbas was in the Suffah. The Mawali agreed that touching was not intercourse, and the Arabs agreed that it was intercourse. Ibn Abbas said: Which group do you belong to? I said: From the Mawali. He said: You have prevailed.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Touching means sexual intercourse.

And on his authority, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Asim, on the authority of Bakr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, the same.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Hafs told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Habib, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: It is sexual intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Malik told us, on the authority of Zuhair, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Hafs told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Iyas, on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Or you have touched women, he said: sexual intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, who said: Intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Abd Al-A'la told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: Intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Malik told us, on the authority of Khasif, he said: I asked Mujahid and he said that.

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada and Al-Hasan, who said: Intercourse with women. Others said: God meant by that every touch, whether with the hand or any other part of the human body, and they made ablation obligatory for whoever touches any part of her body with something from his body that leads to it.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Mukhariq, on the authority of Tariq bin Shihab, on the authority of Abdullah, that he said something that means: Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Hilal, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, on the authority of Abdullah - or: on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, Mansur who was uncertain - he said: The kiss is from touching.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mukhariq, on the authority of Tariq, on the authority of Abdullah, he said: Touching is anything less than intercourse.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Al-Mughira, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said, Ibn Masoud said: Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: Kissing is from touching.

Abu Al-Sa'ib told us, he said, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, and Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Ibn Fadil told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Mas'ud, who said: Kissing is a form of touching, and ablution is required for it.

Tamim bin Al-Muntasir told us, he said, Ishaq told us, on the authority of Sharik, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, on the authority of Abdullah bin Masoud, similarly.

Ahmad bin Abda Al-Dhabi told us: Salim bin Akhdar told us: Ibn Awn told us, on the authority of Muhammad: I asked Ubaidah about his statement: Or you have touched women. He said: So he pointed with his hand like this - and Salim narrated it - and Abu Abdullah showed it to us, so he closed his fingers.

Yaqub and Ibn Wakee' told me, they said: Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Salamah ibn Alqamah, on the authority of Muhammad, he said: I asked Ubaidah about his statement: Or you have touched women, he pointed with his hand, so I wiped away what he meant, so I did not ask him.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ibn Awn, he said: They mentioned touching the private parts to Muhammad, and I think they mentioned what Ibn Umar said about that, so Muhammad said: I said to Ubaidah: His statement: Or you have touched women, and he said with his hand. Ibn Awn said with his hand, as if he was reaching for something to grip it.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Khalid told us, on the authority of Muhammad, he said, Ubaidah said: Touching with the hand.

Yaqub said: Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Muhammad, who said: I asked Ubaidah about this verse: Or you have touched women, so he pointed with his hand, and closed his fingers, until I knew what he meant.

Yunus bin Abdul-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ubayd God bin Umar told me, on the authority of Nafi': Ibn Umar used to perform ablution after kissing a woman, and he would see the ablution in it, and he would say: It is from touching.

Abdul Hamid bin Bayan told us, he said, Muhammad bin Yazid told us, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Amer, he said: Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Hamid told us, Yahya bin Wadh told us, Mahal bin Mahraz told us, on the authority of Ibrahim, who said: Touching with desire invalidates ablution.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Al-Hakam and Hammad, that they said: Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Ata', he said, Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Hafs told us, on the authority of Ash'ath, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of the companions of Abdullah, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Bayan, on the authority of Amer, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: Touching is less than intercourse.

Ibn Wakee' told us: Jarir told us, on the authority of Mugheerah, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Mugheerah, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of Abdullah, similarly.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Bishr told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Abu Ma'shar, on the authority of Ibrahim, he said, Abdullah said: Touching is anything less than intercourse. Then he recited: Or you have had contact with women and found no water.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Ibn Sirin, he said: I asked Ubaidah about: Or you have touched women, and he said with his hand like this, so I knew what he meant.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of his father, and Hassan bin Saleh, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Hilal bin Yasaaf, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah, who said: Kissing is a form of touching.

Ibn Wakee' told us, Malik bin Ismail told us, on the authority of Zuhair, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Abu Ubaidah: The kiss and the thing.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions on this matter is the opinion of the one who said: God meant by His statement, Or you have touched women, intercourse and not any other meaning of touch, due to the authenticity of the report "on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he kissed some of his wives and then prayed without performing ablution."

Ismail bin Musa al-Suddi told me that, he said, Abu Bakr bin Ayyash told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, she said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would perform ablution, then kiss, then pray without performing ablution.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Waki' told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Habib bin

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Abi Thabit, on the authority of Urwah, "On the authority of Aisha: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, kissed one of his wives, then went out to pray without performing ablution. I said: Who is she but you? She laughed."

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Hafs bin Ghayath told us, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of Zainab Al-Sahmiyyah, "On the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: that he would kiss and then pray, and he would not perform ablution."

Abu Zaid Umar ibn Shabah told us, he said, Shihab ibn Abbad told us, he said, Mandal told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Aisha, and on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ibrahim al-Taimi, "on the authority of Aisha, she said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would kiss me after ablution, then he would not repeat the ablution."

Saeed bin Yahya Al-Umawi told us, he said, my father told me, he said, Yazid bin Sinan told me, on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman Al-Awza'i, on the authority of Yahya bin Abi Katheer, on the authority of Abu Salamah, "On the authority of Umm Salamah: That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would kiss her while he was fasting, then he would not break his fast, nor would he perform ablution."

In the authenticity of the report we mentioned about the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, there is clear evidence that touching in this place is sexual touching, not all meanings of touching, as the poet said:

They walk with us whispering, if the bird is truthful, we will be with you, Lamisa.

He means: We are not touching you.

He mentioned that this verse was revealed about a group of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who were afflicted with ritual impurity and had wounds.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Jabir, on the authority of Hammad, on the authority of Ibrahim, regarding the sick person who is unable to perform ritual ablution after sexual impurity, or the menstruating woman, he said: Tayammum is sufficient for them. And he said: The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were injured and it spread among them, then they were afflicted with sexual impurity, so they complained about that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, so the following verse was revealed: And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the relieving himself, the entire verse.

Others said: It was revealed about a group of the Prophet's companions, may God bless him and grant him peace, who were in need of water and could not find any while they were travelling.

Who said that?

Ibn Abd al-A'la told us, he said, al-Mu'tamir ibn Sulayman told us, he heard Ubaydullah ibn Umar, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Qasim, "On the authority of Aisha, that she said: I was on a journey with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, until we were at Dhat al-Jaysh, and my necklace was lost. I informed the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ordered that it be searched for, but it was not found. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, stopped and the people stopped, and they spent that night. The people said: Aisha has detained the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace! She said: Abu Bakr came to me while the head of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was in my lap while he was sleeping, and he kept nagging me and pinching me and saying: Because of your necklace, you have detained the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace! I kept saying: I did not move for fear that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would wake me up, and it would hurt me, so I did not know what to do! When he saw that I did not turn to it, he set off. When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, woke up and wanted to pray but did not find any water, she said: Then God, the Most High, revealed the verse of tayammum. She said: Ibn Hudaibr said: This is not the first of your blessings, O family of Abu Bakr!

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Ibn Abi Malekah: "The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was on a journey, and Aisha lost her necklace, so he ordered the people to dismount, so they dismounted and they did not have any water with them. Abu Bakr came to Aisha and said to her: You have made things difficult for the people! Ayoub pointed with his hand, describing that he pinched her, and said: The verse of tayammum was revealed, and the necklace was found in the camel's watering place, so the people said: We have never seen a woman more blessed than her!"

Muhammad ibn Abdullah al-Hilali told me, he said, Imran ibn Muhammad al-Haddad told me, he said, al-Rabi' ibn Badr told me, he said, "My father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of a man from Bal'raj, called al-Asla', he said: I used to serve the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I would saddle him with saddles. One night he said to me: 'O Asla', get up and saddle me.' I said: 'O Messenger of God, I have become ritually impure!' He was silent for a while, then he called me and Gabriel, peace be upon him, came to him with the verse of the dust, and he described two afflictions to us.”

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Amr ibn Khalid told us, he said, Ar-Rabi' ibn Badr told me, he said, “My father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of a man from among us called Al-Asla', he said: I was serving the Prophet between...” and he mentioned an example, except that he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was silent, or he said: for a while, the doubt was from Amr, he said: And Gabriel, peace be upon him, came to him with the verse of the dust, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Get up, O Asla', and perform tayammum. He said: So I performed tayammum and then I traveled to him. He said: We traveled until we passed by some water, and he said: O Asla', touch your skin with this. He said: And he showed me tayammum, as his father showed it: a strike on the face, and a strike on the hands and elbows.”

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, saying: Hafsa bin Baghail narrated to us, saying: Zuhair bin Muawiyah narrated to us, saying: Abdullah bin Othman bin Khathim narrated to us, saying: Abdullah bin Ubaidullah bin Abi Malekah narrated to me: “That Dhakwan Abu Amr, Aisha's chamberlain, narrated to him: Ibn Abbas entered upon her during her illness and said: Be of good cheer, you were the most beloved of the women of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, loved nothing but perfume, and your necklace fell on the night of Abwa', so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, began to pick it up until he was at home, and the people woke up without water with them, so God revealed: Perform tayammum with good game, and that was because of you, and what God has permitted this nation of concession.”

Sufyan ibn Wakee' narrated, Ibn Numayr narrated, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha: She borrowed a necklace from Asma' and it was lost. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent men to look for it, and they found it. They were at the time of prayer and they did not have water with them, so they prayed without performing ablution. They complained about that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and God revealed the verse about tayammum. Asid ibn Hudayr said to Aisha: May God reward you with good, for by God, no matter what happens to you that you dislike, God has made it good for you and the Muslims!

Ahmad ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Wahb narrated to us, he said, my uncle Abdullah ibn Wahb narrated to me, he said, Amr ibn al-Harith informed me: Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Qasim narrated to him, on the authority of his father, “On the authority of Aisha, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that she said: My necklace fell in al-Baida' while we were entering Madinah. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stopped and dismounted. While the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sleeping in my lap, my father came and nudged me and said:

You have detained the people! Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, woke up and the morning came, so he looked for water but could not find it. Then the verse was revealed: “O you who believe, when you rise to prayer” (al-Baqarah 2:17). Asid ibn Hudayr said: God has blessed the people in you, O family of Abu Bakr! You are nothing but a blessing!”

Al-Hasan bin Shabib told me, he said, Ibn Uyaynah told us, he said, Abdullah bin Uthman bin Khathim told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi Malekah, he said: “Ibn Abbas entered upon Aisha and said: You were the most blessed of the Muslims, the most honorable of the Muslims! Your necklace fell off in Al-Abwa', so God revealed the verse of dry ablution concerning you!”

There is a difference in the reading of his saying: Or you have touched women.

This was read by most of the people of Medina, some of the Basrans and the Kufians: or you touched meaning: or you touched your women and they touched you.

The majority of the Kufi reciters read it as: Or you touched women, meaning: Or you, O men, touched your women. These are two readings with similar meanings, because a man does not touch his wife unless she touches him. So the secret in that indicates the meaning of touching, and touching indicates the meaning of touching by each of them to the other. So whichever of the two readings that reciter reads it with, he is correct, because their meanings are the same.

Abu Ja'far said: What he meant by his statement, may His praise be exalted: And you did not find water, or you touched women, so you sought water to purify yourselves with it but did not find it for a price or anything else, then perform tayammum, he says: then do it deliberately.

It is: you do from the saying of the speaker: I intended such-and-such - if you intended it and did it deliberately - so I am doing it. It may also be said from it: So-and-so intended it, so he is doing it, and I did it, and I did it lightly, and I did it lightly, and I did it, and I did it lightly, and I did it lightly, and I did it lightly. And from it is the saying of A'sha of Banu Tha'labah:

I went to Qais, and how many lands are there between them, from the important place of Dhi Shazan?

He means by his saying: I performed tayammum, I intended and meant.

It was mentioned that in Abdullah's reading: So they went to the plain.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Abdullah bin Muhammad told me, he said, Abdun told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, I heard Sufyan say regarding His statement: Then perform tayammum with clean earth, he said: Choose and deliberately use clean earth.

Surat al-Nisa 4:43

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

As for the plain, the people of interpretation differed about it.

Some of them said: It is the smooth land in which there is no vegetation or crops.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: A good plain, he said: one in which there are no trees or plants.

Others said: Rather, it is the flat earth.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: The plain is the level.

Others said: Rather, it is the soil.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, Al-Hakam bin Bashir told us, Amr bin Qais Al-Mala'i told us: The soil is the dirt.

Others said: Upper Egypt is the surface of the earth.

Others said: Rather, it is the face of the earth with its dust and dirt.

Abu Jaafar said: The most correct of these is the statement of the one who said: It is the surface of the earth that is free of plants, crops, and buildings, and its level. From this is the statement of Dhu al-Rummah:

As if at noon a tank is throwing a hose into the head bones

Meaning: hit the ground with it.

As for his saying: good, he means: pure from dirt and impurities.

The interpreters differed about the meaning of his saying: good.

Some of them said: It is permissible.

Who said that?

Abdullah bin Muhammad told me, he said, Abdul Razzaq told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said, I heard Sufyan say regarding His statement: good soil, he said: Some of them said: lawful.

Some of them said:

Abdullah told me, he said, Abdun told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said: I said to Ata': Then perform tayammum with clean earth. He said: Clean whatever is around you. I said: A bare place, not a flat surface. Will that suffice for me? He said: Yes.

The meaning of the words: If you do not find water, O people, and you are sick, or on a journey, or one of you has come from the toilet, or you have touched women, and you want to pray, then perform tayammum, meaning: then deliberately wipe the face of the pure earth, and wipe your faces and your hands.

Abu Jaafar said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He meant: So wipe your faces and hands with it, but He left out mentioning it, as the speech was sufficient to indicate it.

Wiping the face is for the person performing tayammum to strike the clean ground with his hands, or whatever takes its place, and wipe the dust that has stuck to his face. If the dust that has stuck to him is a lot, and he blows on it or shakes it off, that is permissible. If no dust sticks to his hands and he strikes the ground with his hands or one of them, then wipes his face with them or them, that is sufficient for him, because all the jurists agree that if the person performing tayammum strikes the ground - which is sandy ground - with his hands and nothing of it sticks to his hands and he performs tayammum with it, that is sufficient for him. No one who is allowed to consider a difference of opinion disagreed with that. Since that was a consensus among them, it was known that what is meant by striking the ground with the hands is to directly touch the ground with them, in the sense that God commanded to touch it with them, not to take dust from it.

As for wiping with the hands, the people of interpretation differed regarding the limit that God commanded wiping with the hands.

Some of them said: The limit of the shrouds is the forearms, and the person performing tayammum is not required to wipe the forearms beyond that.

Who said that?

Abu al-Sa'ib Salim ibn Janadah told me, he said, Ibn Idris told us, on the authority of Hisin, on the authority of Abu Malik, he said: Ammar performed tayammum, striking the dust with his hands once, then he wiped one hand over the other, then he wiped his face, then he struck another with his hands, and he kept twisting his hand over the other, but he did not wipe his arm.

Abu Al-Sa'ib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Khalid, he said: I saw Al-Sha'bi describing dry ablution to us: He struck the ground with his hands once, then shook them and wiped his face, then struck again, and began to twist his hands one over the other. He did not mention that he wiped his arms.

Hanad told us, he said, Abu Al-Ahwas told us, on the authority of Hisin, on the authority of Abu Malik, he said: Ammar bin Yasir placed his hands in the dirt, then raised them and blew on them, then wiped his face and hands, then said: This is how tayammum is done.

Ibn Hamid told us, Abu Tamila told us, Salam, the freed slave of Hafs, told us, I heard Ikrimah say: Tayammum consists of two strokes: one for the face and one for the hands.

Ali bin Sahl told us, Al-Walid bin Muslim told us, on the authority of Al-Awza'i, and on the authority of Saeed and Ibn Jabir: that Makhul used to say: Tayammum is striking the face and hands up to the elbow. Makhul interpreted the Qur'an in this regard: Then wash your faces and your hands up to the elbows (al-Ma'idah 5:6), and His statement regarding Tayammum: Then wipe your faces and your hands, and he did not make an exception in it as he made an exception in ablution: up to the elbows. Makhul said: God said: And the male thief, male or female, cut off their hands (al-Ma'idah 5:16), so the hand of the thief is cut off from the elbow joint.

Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Abdul Hakam told me, he said, Bishr bin Bakr Al-Tanisi told us, on the authority of Ibn Jaber: that he saw Makhul performing tayammum, striking the ground with his hands, then wiping his face and hands with them at one time.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: Tayammum is a strike on the face and hands.

The reason for those who said this article from the hadith is:

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Abdah and Muhammad ibn Bishr told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Arubah, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Saeed ibn Abd al-Rahman ibn Abza, on the authority of his father, "On the authority of Ammar ibn Yasir: that he asked the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about tayammum, and he said: Once for the hands and the face." And in the hadith of Ibn Bishr: that Ammar asked the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about tayammum.

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said, Ubayd ibn Sa'id al-Qurashi narrated to us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of al-Hakam, on the authority of Ibn Abza, he said: A man came to `Umar and said: I became ritually impure but could not find any water! `Umar said: Do not pray. `Ammar said to him: Do you not remember that we were on a journey during the time of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and we both became ritually impure. As for you, you did not pray, but I rolled in the dust and prayed. Then I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, and he said: It would have been sufficient for you, and he struck his sandals on the ground, blew into them, and wiped his face and hands once?

They said: God commanded in dry ablution to wipe the face and hands, so whatever he wipes of his face and hands in dry ablution is sufficient for him, unless something that must be accepted is prevented from doing so by a principle or analogy.

Others said: The limit of wiping that God commanded in dry ablution is to wipe the entire face and hands up to the elbows.

Who said that?

Imran bin Musa Al-Qazzaz told us, he said: Abdul-Warith bin Saeed told us, he said: Ayoub told us on the authority of Nafi': Ibn Umar performed tayammum at Marbad Al-Na'am, he struck a blow and wiped his face, and struck a blow and wiped his hands up to the elbows.

Ibn Abd al-A'la told us, he said, al-Mu'tamar told us, he said: I heard Ubayd God, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Abdullah, that he said: Tayammum is two wipes. A man strikes the ground with his hands, wiping his face with them, then he strikes them again and wipes his hands up to the elbows.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Yahya bin Ubaid God told us, he said, Nafi' told me, on the authority of Ibn Umar, regarding dry ablution, he said: A strike for the face, and a strike for the hands up to the elbows.

Abu Kuraib and Abu Al-Sa'ib told us, they said: Ibn Idris told us, on the authority of Ubaid God, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, he said: He used to say regarding wiping during dry ablution: up to the elbows.

Humayd ibn Mas'adah told us, Bishr ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Ibn `Awn li-Mal told us: I asked al-Hasan about tayammum, so he struck the ground with his hands and wiped his face with them, and struck his hands and wiped his arms with them, both the outside and the inside.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Aamer: that he said about this verse: Then wash your faces and your hands up to the elbows and wipe over your heads and your feet up to the ankles (al-Ma'idah 5:16), and he said about this verse: Then wipe over your faces and your hands therefrom (al-Ma'idah 5:6), he said: He was commanded to wipe in dry ablution, what he was commanded to wash in ablution, and he nullified what he was commanded to wipe in ablution: the head and the feet.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, and Ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Uday told me, all of them, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, regarding dry ablution, he said: A strike for the face, and for the hands up to the elbows.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mughirah, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: He ordered dry ablution, as he ordered washing.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Ayoub, he said: I asked Salim bin Abdullah about dry ablution, so he struck the ground with his hands once and wiped his face with them, then he struck the ground with his hands another time and wiped his hands up to the elbows.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Habib bin Al-Shaheed told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan: He was asked about dry ablution, so he said: One stroke with which he wipes his face, then another stroke with which he wipes his hands up to the elbows.

The reason why he said this statement is that tayammum is a substitute for ablution, and the person performing tayammum must reach with the dirt on his face and hands what he had to reach with the water on them in ablution. They based their argument on the following hadith:

Musa bin Sahl al-Ramli told me, he said: Naim bin Hammad told us, he said: Kharijah bin Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Ata', on the authority of Musa bin Uqbah, on the authority of al-A'raj, on the authority of Abu Juhaym, he said: I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, urinating, so I greeted him, but he did not respond to me. When he finished, he went to a wall and struck it with his hands, and wiped his face with them. Then he struck the wall with his hands and wiped his hands with them up to the elbows, then he returned my greeting.

Others said: The limit that God commanded that the soil should be used in dry ablution is the armpits.

Who said that?

Ahmad bin Abdul Rahman Al-Barqi told me, he said, Amr bin Abi Salamah Al-Tanisi told me, on the authority of Al-Awza'i, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, he said: Tayammum extends to the armpits.

The reason for those who said this is that God commanded wiping the hand in dry ablution, just as He commanded wiping the face. They agreed that he must wipe the entire face, so likewise the entire hand, and from the tip of the palm to the armpit is a hand. They based their argument on the following hadith:

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said: Saifi bin Rib'i narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Dhi'b, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ubayd God bin Abdullah, on the authority of Abu Al-Yaqzan, who said: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when Aisha's necklace broke. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stayed there until dawn broke, and Abu Bakr became angry with Aisha, so the permission was revealed to him, to wipe with sand. Abu Bakr entered and said to her: You are indeed blessed! A permission was revealed concerning you! So we struck our hands: one strike to our faces, and one strike with our hands to the shoulders and armpits.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard is that the limit for which the person performing tayammum is not sufficient to shorten his hands in wiping with dust is the palms of the hands to the forearms, due to the consensus of all that shortening that is not permissible. Then he has a choice regarding what is beyond that, if he wishes he can wipe the elbows, or if he wishes the armpits. The reason for which we gave him a choice regarding what is beyond the palms is that God did not set a limit for wiping that with dust in tayammum that it is not permissible to shorten. So whatever the person performing tayammum wipes from his hands is sufficient for him, except what is agreed upon, or evidence is established that shortening it is not permissible for him. And all have agreed that shortening the hands is not sufficient, so it is excluded by the Sunnah, and what is other than that is disputed. If there is a dispute about it, and the one wiping with his hands is included in the generality of the verse, then he is excluded from what is required of him in terms of that obligation.

The people of interpretation differed regarding the one in a state of major ritual impurity: is he among those who are permitted to perform tayammum if he does not find water or not?

A group of the people of interpretation from the Companions, the Followers, and those who came after them from the Khalaf said: The ruling on the one who is in a state of major ritual impurity with regard to what is required of him in performing tayammum if he does not find water is the same as the ruling on the one who has come from the toilet and all those who have broken their ablution for whom tayammum is a purification for their prayer. I have mentioned the statement of some of those who interpreted the statement of God, or you have touched women, or you have had sexual intercourse with them, and we have left out mentioning the rest because of the large number of those who said that.

The authors of this article argued that a person in a state of ritual impurity may perform tayammum if he does not find water during his journey, based on the consensus of the evidence on this, transmitted from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, which eliminates the excuse and removes doubt.

A group of the early scholars said: Nothing is sufficient for a person in a state of major ritual impurity except washing with water, and he is not permitted to pray with tayammum, as tayammum does not purify him. They said: Rather, tayammum was made a concession for someone who is not in a state of major ritual impurity. They interpreted the statement of God: "And do not approach the prayer place of the Muslims except by passing through it until he washes himself, and He did not permit tayammum for him. They said: The interpretation of His statement: "or you have touched women" is: or you have touched them with your hand, without the vagina, and without intercourse. They said: So we did not find that God permitted tayammum for a person in a state of major ritual impurity, rather He ordered him to wash himself, and not to approach the prayer except after washing himself. They said: And tayammum does not purify him for his prayer.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib and Abu As-Sa'ib narrated: Abu Mu'awiyah narrated on the authority of Al-A'mash on the authority of Shuqaiq who said: I was with Abdullah bin Mas'ud and Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari, and Abu Musa said: O Abu Abd Al-Rahman, tell me if a man becomes junub and cannot find water for a month, should he perform tayammum? Abdullah said: He should not perform tayammum even if he cannot find water for a month. Abu Musa said: What do you do with this verse in Surat al-Ma'idah 5: Then perform tayammum with clean earth (al-Ma'idah 5:6) Abdullah said: If they were permitted to do this, they would likely perform tayammum with earth if the water became cold for them! Abu Musa said to him: Is this why you disliked it? He said: Yes! Abu Musa said: Did you not hear Ammar's statement to Umar: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) sent me on an errand, and I became junub but could not find water, so I rolled around in the earth as an animal rolls around. He said: So I mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: It is sufficient for you to do this: and he struck his hands once, and wiped his face with them, and wiped his hands. Abdullah said: Didn't you see that Omar was not satisfied with what Ammar said?

Ibn Bashar told us, Abdur-Rahman told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Salamah, on the authority of Abu Malik, and on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abdur-Rahman ibn Abza, on the authority of Abdur-Rahman ibn Abza, who said: We were with Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God have mercy on him, when a man came to him and said: O Commander of the Faithful, we go a month or two without finding water! Umar said: As for me, if I did not find water, I would not pray until I find water. Ammar ibn Yasir said: Do you remember, O Commander of the Faithful, when we were in such and such a place, and we were herding camels, and did you know that we became ritually impure? He said: Yes! As for me, I rolled in the dirt, then we came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: If the earth was sufficient for you! He struck the ground with his hands, then blew into them, then wiped his face and arms? He said: Fear God, O Ammar! He said: O Commander of the Faithful, if you wish, I will not mention it! He said: No, but we will give you what you have been given.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad Ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Al-Hakam, he said: I heard Ibrahim in the shop of Muslim Al-A'war, so I said: What do you think if you do not find water and you are in a state of ritual impurity? He said: I will not pray.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct statement in this regard is that the person in a state of major ritual impurity is one of those whom God has commanded to perform tayammum if he cannot find water, and to pray, as He says: Or if you have had contact with women and cannot find water, then seek clean earth. We have explained then that the meaning of touch in this context is sexual intercourse, by transmitting the argument that no error is permitted in what it has transmitted, unanimously agreed upon, nor is forgetfulness, nor collusion, nor sympathy, that the ruling on the person in a state of major ritual impurity in this regard is the ruling on all those who have broken their ablution, so he must purify himself for his prayer, along with what has been narrated in this regard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the reports, some of which we have mentioned, and we have left out mentioning many of them, as what we have mentioned of them suffices for what we have not mentioned, and our dislike of lengthening the book by exhaustively discussing all of it.

The people of interpretation differed in their interpretation of His statement: But if you do not find water, then perform tayammum. Is this a command from God to perform tayammum whenever one is obliged to search for water, or is this a command from Him to perform tayammum whenever one is obliged to search for it while he is in a state of ritual impurity for which he must perform ablution with water, if water were available?

Some of them said: This is an order from the one who performs tayammum whenever he is required to perform the ritual ablution after the ritual ablution, whether he is in a state of ritual impurity or not.

Who said that?

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Al-Hajjaj, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Harith, on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that he used to say: Tayammum is for every prayer.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, Hisham told us, he said, al-Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of al-Harith, on the authority of Ali, similarly.

Abdullah bin Muhammad told me, he said, Abdun al-Marwazi told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, he said, Abd al-Warith told us, he said, Amer al-Ahwal told us, on the authority of Nafi': that he told him on the authority of Ibn Umar something similar to that.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Jabir bin Nuh told us, he said, Mujalid told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: One does not pray with tayammum more than one prayer.

Al-Muthanna told us, Suwaid told us, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada, who said: He performs tayammum for every prayer, and he interprets this verse: And you did not find water.

He said: Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said: Al-Faryabi told us, on the authority of Al-Awza'i, on the authority of Yahya bin Saeed, Abdul Karim, and Rabia bin Abi Abdul Rahman, they said: Tayammum is for every prayer.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, Abu Dawud told us, Imran al-Qattan told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of al-Nakha'i, who said: He performs tayammum for every prayer.

Others said: Rather, this is a command from God to perform tayammum after seeking water for those who are obligated to seek it if they are in a state of ritual impurity. As for those who are not in a state of ritual impurity after purifying themselves with soil, then the obligation of seeking it is obligatory for them, so they do not have to renew their tayammum, and they may pray with their first tayammum.

Who said that?

Humaid bin Mas'adah told us, Sufyan bin Habib told us, on the authority of Yunus, on the authority of Al-Hasan, who said: Tayammum is like ablution.

Ismail bin Musa Al-Saddi told us, he said, Omar bin Shakir told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: The person performing dry ablution prays with his dry ablution as long as he does not break his ablution. If he finds water, then he should perform ablution.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: A man would pray all the prayers with one ablution as long as he did not break his ablution. And the same applies to dry ablution.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: A man would pray all the prayers with one ablution.

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Abu Dawud told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, he said: He prays the prayers with dry ablution as long as he does not break his ablution.

Humayd bin Mas'adah told us, Sufyan bin Habib told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ata', who said: Tayammum is like ablution.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two opinions in this regard, in our view, is the opinion of those who say: The one praying must perform tayammum for every prayer, and he must seek water to purify it as an obligation, because God, the Most High, commanded everyone who stands for prayer to purify himself with water. If he does not find water, then he should perform tayammum. Then the one standing for prayer excluded whoever had performed ablution with water before standing for it, according to the Sunnah of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, unless he has broken his ritual impurity that invalidates his purity, in which case the obligation of ablution is dropped from him according to the Sunnah. As for the one standing for prayer, and his standing for it has already performed tayammum for a prayer before it, then the obligation of tayammum is binding on him according to the apparent meaning of the revelation, after he has sought water if he is in need of it.

Abu Ja'far said: By this, may His praise be exalted, He means: God has always been forgiving of the sins of His servants, and has left punishment for many of them as long as they do not associate partners with Him, just as He has forgiven you, O believers, for your standing up for the prayer that He has enjoined upon you in your mosques while you were drunk. Forgiving,

He says: He has always concealed their sins by not hastening their punishment for their transgressions, just as He concealed you, O believers, by not hastening your prayer in your mosques while you were drunk. He says: Do not return to the like of it, lest you be afflicted by your return to what I have forbidden you from.

It contains forty-four issues:

First: The Almighty's saying: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated. God Almighty singled out the believers with this address, because they were performing the prayer while they were drunk with wine and their minds were ruined, so they were singled out with this address, since the disbelievers did not do it while sober or drunk. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, who said:

When the prohibition of alcohol was revealed, Omar said: O God, give us a clear explanation about alcohol. Then the verse in Surat Al-Baqarah was revealed:

They ask you about alcohol and gambling. (Surat al-Baqarah 2:219). Omar was called and it was read to him. He said: O God, give us a clear explanation about alcohol. Then the verse in Surat An-Nisa was revealed:

O you who believe, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated. When the call to prayer was made, the announcer of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would call: Do not approach prayer while drunk. Omar was called and it was read to him. He said: O God, give us a clear explanation about alcohol. Then this verse was revealed: Will you then desist? (Surat al-Ma'idah 5:91). Omar said: We have desisted. Saeed bin Jubair said: People were following the way of their ignorance until they were ordered or forbidden, so they used to drink it at the beginning of Islam until this verse was revealed: "They ask you about wine and gambling. Say, 'In them is great sin and [yet, some] benefit for people.'" They said: We drink it for the benefit, not for the sin. A man drank it and came forward to lead them in prayer and recited: Say, 'O disbelievers, do I worship what you worship?'

Then this verse was revealed: O you who believe, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated. They said: It is not about prayer itself. So Omar said: O God, send down to us a clear statement about wine. Then this verse was revealed: Satan only wants to... (5:91) So Omar said: Stop! Stop! Then the crier of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went around: Beware! Wine has been forbidden, as will be explained in the verse, God willing. Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, who said:

Abdur-Rahman ibn Awf made us food, invited us, and gave us wine to drink. The wine was taken from us, and the time for prayer came, so they brought me forward. I recited, "Say, 'O disbelievers, I do not worship what you worship. '" And we worship what you are saying. Then God, the Most High, revealed, O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying. Abu 'Eisa said: This is a good and authentic hadith. The connection and arrangement with what came before it is that God, the Most High, said, And worship God and associate nothing with Him. (An-Nisa': 63)

Then he mentioned after faith the prayer, which is the head of worship, and therefore the one who abandons it is killed and its obligation is not dropped, and he completed the speech to mentioning its conditions without which it is not valid.

Second - The majority of scholars and a group of jurists agree that what is meant by drunkenness is drunkenness from wine, except for Al-Dahhak, who said: What is meant is drunkenness from sleep, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

If one of you becomes drowsy during prayer, let him lie down until sleep goes away from him, for he does not know, perhaps he will seek forgiveness and then curse himself." Ubaidah al-Salmāni said: And you are drunk, meaning if you are intoxicated, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

None of you should pray while he is urinating. In another narration, while he is holding his thighs together.

I said: The words of Ad-Dahhak and Ubaidah are correct in meaning, for what is required of the worshipper is to turn to God Almighty with his heart and to leave turning to anything else and to be free from everything that disturbs him, such as sleep, nausea, hunger, and everything that occupies the mind and changes the state. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

If dinner is served and the prayer is called, then start with dinner. So the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) took care to remove any distractions that might be attached to the mind, so that he would turn to worshipping his Lord with his heart free and his mind pure, so that he would be humble in his prayer and fall within this verse: "Indeed, the believers have succeeded. Those who are humble in their prayers" (al-Mu'minun 23:1-2), as will be explained. Ibn 'Abbas said: The words of God the Most High: O you who believe! Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated were abrogated by the verse of al-Ma'idah 5: When you rise to prayer, wash (al-Ma'idah 5:6), so they were commanded according to this statement not to pray while drunk, then they were commanded to pray in any case, and this was before the prohibition. Mujahid said: It was abrogated by the prohibition of alcohol, and 'Ikrimah and Qatadah said the same, and it is the correct view in the aforementioned hadeeth on the subject. It was narrated that 'Umar ibn al-Khattab may God be pleased with him said: The prayer was called, so the announcer of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) called out: Do not approach prayer while drunk. This was mentioned by al-Nahhas. According to the statement of al-Dahhak and 'Ubaidah, the verse is decisive and there is no abrogation in it. .

Third - The Almighty's saying: Do not come near. If it is said: Do not come near with the opening of the ra it means do not wear the action, and if it is with the ra with the closing of the ra it means do not come near it. The address is to the group of the righteous nation. As for the drunkard, if he is unable to discern due to his drunkenness, he is not addressed at that time because his mind has gone, but rather he is addressed to comply with what is required of him and to atone for what he neglected during his time of drunkenness of the rulings that were determined to be his responsibility before the drunkenness.

Fourth - The Almighty's saying: Prayer. The scholars differed about what is meant by prayer here. A group said: It is the well-known worship itself, which is the saying of Abu Hanifa. That is why he said: Until you know what you say. A group said: What is meant are the places of prayer, which is the saying of Al-Shafi'i, so he omitted the complement. The Almighty said: For the sake of God, monasteries, churches, and synagogues would have been demolished. (al-Hajj 22:40) So he called the places of prayer prayer. This interpretation is indicated by the Almighty's saying: Nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through. This necessitates the permissibility of passing through the mosque for the one in a state of major ritual impurity, but not praying in it. Abu Hanifa said: What is meant by the Almighty's saying: Nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, is the traveler who does not find water, so he performs tayammum and prays, and this will be explained. A group said: What is meant is the place of prayer together, because at that time they did not come to the mosque except for prayer and they did not pray except together, so they were intertwined.

Fifth - The Almighty's saying: And you were drunk is subject, predicate, and a sentence in the position of a state of to draw near. Sakārā is the plural of sakrān, like sakrān and kasālī. An-Nakha'i read sakrā with a fathah on the seen, like fa'lā, which is the broken form of sakrān. It is broken like sakrā because drunkenness is a disease that affects the mind, so it is used in the same way as sarāt and its root. Al-A'mash read sakrā like ḥablā, so it is a singular adjective. It is permissible to report with a singular adjective on behalf of a group, as they use it to report with a singular adjective on behalf of a group. Sakr is the opposite of sobriety. It is said: ḥakā yasakrān, from the root ḥamd yaḥamd, and sakrā 'aynu tasakrā means it was confused. From this is the Almighty's saying: Our eyes have only been intoxicated (al-Hijr 15:15). Sakrāt al-shaq means it has blocked it, so the drunkard has been cut off from what he had of mind.

Sixth - In this verse there is evidence, indeed a text, that drinking was permissible at the beginning of Islam until it led to drunkenness. Some people said: Drunkenness is forbidden in reason and is not permitted in any religion. They interpreted drunkenness in this verse as sleep. Al-Qaffal said: It is possible that what was permitted to them from the drink was what would move the nature to generosity, courage, and zeal.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

I said: This meaning is found in their poetry, and Hassan said:

We drink it and it leaves us kings

We have fully explained this meaning in Al-Baqarah. Al-Qaffal said: As for what causes the mind to slip until its owner becomes insane or unconscious, then it is not permissible to intend it. Rather, if it happens without intention, then it is lifted from its owner.

I said: This is correct, and its explanation will come in Al-Ma'idah, God willing, in the story of Hamza. When this verse was revealed, the Muslims used to avoid drinking during prayer times, but when they prayed the 'Isha' prayer, they would drink it. They continued to do so until its prohibition was revealed in Al-Ma'idah, in God Almighty's saying: Will you not then desist? (al-Ma'idah 5:91)

Seventh: The Almighty's saying: Until you know what you are saying meaning until you know it with certainty and without error. The drunkard does not know what he is saying, and for this reason Uthman ibn Affan, may God be pleased with him, said: The drunkard is not bound by his divorce. It was narrated from Ibn Abbas, Tawus, Ata', Al-Qasim, and Rabi'ah, and it is the saying of Al-Layth ibn Sa'd, Ishaq, Abu Thawr, and Al-Muzani. Al-Tahawi chose it and said: The scholars agreed that the divorce of the insane is not permissible, and the drunkard is insane like the obsessive, insane with obsessive thoughts. They do not differ that the divorce of someone who drinks hashish and loses his mind is not permissible, and so is the divorce of someone who is intoxicated by drinking. A group permitted his divorce, and it was narrated from Omar bin Al-Khattab, Muawiyah, and a group of the followers, and it is the opinion of Abu Hanifa, Al-Thawri, and Al-Awza'i, and there is a difference of opinion regarding it. Al-Shafi'i said: Malik obligated him to divorce and retaliation for wounding and killing, but he did not oblige him to marry and sell. Abu Hanifa said: The actions and contracts of the drunkard are all established like the actions of the sober, except for apostasy, for if he apostatizes, his wife is not separated from him except by good opinion. Abu Yusuf said: He is an apostate in his state of drunkenness, and this is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, except that he does not kill him in his state of drunkenness, nor does he ask him to repent.

Imam Abu Abdullah Al-Mazari said: We have narrated an odd narration that a drunkard is not obligated to divorce. Muhammad bin Abdul-Hakam said: He is not obligated to divorce or free a slave. Ibn Shas said: Sheikh Abu Al-Walid referred the dispute to the one who is confused but still has some of his mind, so he does not have the ability to mix on his own, so he makes mistakes and gets things right. He said: As for the drunk who does not know the earth from the sky, nor the man from the woman, there is no mixing, as he is like the insane in all his actions and conditions between him and people, and between him and God Almighty as well, except for the prayers whose time has passed. It was said: They are dropped from him, unlike the insane, because by introducing drunkenness to himself, he is like someone who deliberately neglects them until their time has passed. Sufyan Al-Thawri said: The limit of drunkenness is a disturbance of the mind. If he is instructed and mixes up his recitation and speaks in a way he does not know, he is to be flogged. Ahmad said: If his mind changes from a state of health, then he is a drunkard. Something similar was narrated from Malik. Ibn al-Mundhir said: If he mixes up his recitation, then he is drunk, based on the words of God Almighty: Until you know what you are saying. So if he is such that he does not know what he is saying, then he must go to the mosque for fear of contamination, and his prayer is not valid. If he prays, then he must make up for it. But if he is such that he knows what he is saying and he performs the prayer, then his ruling is the ruling of a sober person.

Eighth - The Almighty's saying: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity is in apposition to the position of the accusative clause in His saying: until you know meaning do not pray while you are in a state of major ritual impurity. It is said: you avoided, you became in a state of major ritual impurity, and you became in a state of major ritual impurity. The word junub is neither feminine nor dual nor plural because it is on the weight of the verbal noun like abd and qarab. And perhaps they lightened it and said: jaban and some people read it like that. Al-Farra' said: Janub is said to be a man and janab from major ritual impurity. And it was said: Janub is pluralized in a language as ajnab, like aq and aqnaq, and tanab and tanab. And whoever said janub for the singular said janab for the plural, like you say rakib and rakab. And the origin is al-fard, as if al-janub is far from the flow of water from the state of prayer. He said:

Do not deprive me of a reward for a crime, for I am a stranger among the domes.

A man who is in a state of major ritual impurity: major ritual impurity is the mixing of a man and a woman.

Ninth - The majority of the nation is of the opinion that the one in a state of major ritual impurity is one who is not pure from ejaculation or passing circumcision. It was narrated from some of the Companions that there is no ritual ablution except for ejaculation, based on the saying of the Prophet, peace be upon him:

Water is from water. Narrated by Muslim. And in Bukhari, on the authority of Abi bin Kaab, he said:

O Messenger of God, what if a man has intercourse with a woman and does not ejaculate? He said: He should wash away whatever part of him touched the woman, then perform ablution and pray. Abu Abdullah said: Washing is more cautious, but we only explained the latter because of their differences. Muslim included it in his Sahih with the same meaning, and he said at the end of it: Abu Al-Ala' bin Al-Shakheer said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would abrogate some parts of it just as the Qur'an abrogates some parts of it. Abu Ishaq said: This is abrogated. Al-Tirmidhi said: This ruling was in the beginning of Islam, then it was abrogated.

I said: This is the view of a group of scholars from the Companions, the Followers, and the jurists of the countries, and that ablution is obligatory at the meeting of the two circumcised parts. There was a disagreement among the Companions about this, then they returned to the narration of Aisha from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said:

If he sits between her four limbs and touches the circumcised part, then a full ablution is obligatory." Narrated by Muslim and in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Abu Hurayrah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: If he sits between her four limbs and then exerts himself on her, then a full ablution is obligatory. Muslim added, Even if he does not stop. Ibn al-Qassar said: The followers and those who came after them, after the disagreement of those before them, agreed to accept the hadith of If the circumcised part meets. If the consensus is correct after the disagreement, then it eliminates the disagreement. Al-Qadi Iyad said: We do not know of anyone who said it in disagreement with the Companions, except what was narrated from al-A'mash and after him Dawud al-Asbahani. It was narrated that 'Umar, may God be pleased with him, made people abandon accepting the hadith of Water from water because they differed and Ibn Abbas interpreted it as a wet dream, meaning that washing with water is only required from the emission of water in a wet dream. And if there is no emission, even if he sees that he is having intercourse, then there is no washing, and this is a matter of disagreement among all scholars.

Tenth - The Almighty's saying: Except for those passing through. It is said: I crossed the road, meaning I cut it from one side to the other. And I crossed the river, crossing. This is crossing the river, meaning its bank. And it is said: He crossed, with the dammah, and the crossing is what is crossed over from a ship or a bridge. This is the wayfarer, meaning the traveler on the road. And a camel that crosses travels: it is constantly traveled on and crosses the desert and the heat of the day due to its fast gait. And the poet said:

A woman with long, flowing hands, covering her hair through the hot winds, like a dyed nightingale

And the people died and he recited:

God's will overcomes everything and plays with patience and forbearance.

If we pass, then we will die, and if we disappear, then we will remain committed to our vows.

He says: If we die, we will say we are equals, and if we live, we must die, as if we had vows to come to it.

Eleventh - The scholars differed regarding his statement: Except for those passing through. Ali, may God be pleased with him, Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jubayr, Mujahid and Al-Hakam said: The traveler passing through is the traveler. It is not valid for anyone to approach the prayer while he is in a state of major ritual impurity except after performing ghusl, except for the traveler, who performs tayammum. This is the opinion of Abu Hanifa, because water is usually available in the city, so the city dweller performs ghusl if there is water, and the traveler performs tayammum if he does not find it. Ibn Al-Mundhir said: The people of opinion said about the traveler who is in a state of major ritual impurity, he passes by a mosque in which there is water, performs tayammum from earth, enters the mosque, draws water from it, then takes out the water from the tap. A group permitted the one in a state of major ritual impurity to enter the mosque, and some of them cited as evidence the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

The believer is not impure. Ibn al-Mundhir said: And we say the same. Ibn Abbas, Ibn Mas'ud, Ikrimah, and al-Nakha'i also said: A passerby is a person who passes by, and this is the opinion of 'Amr ibn Dinar, Malik, and al-Shafi'i. A group said: A person in a state of ritual impurity should not pass through the mosque unless he finds no alternative, so he becomes an orphan and passes through it. And this is what al-Thawri and Ishaq ibn Rahawayh said. Ahmad and Ishaq said regarding a person in a state of ritual impurity, if he performs ablution, there is no problem with him sitting in the mosque. This was narrated by Ibn al-Mundhir. Some of them narrated regarding the reason for the verse that some of the Ansar had doors opening onto the mosque, so if one of them became ritually impure, he was forced to pass through the mosque.

I said: This is correct and is supported by what Abu Dawood narrated on the authority of Jasra bint Dajajah who said: I heard Aisha, may God be pleased with her, say:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came and the faces of his companions' houses faced the mosque. He said: Turn these houses away from the mosque. Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered and the people did not do anything, hoping that a concession would be granted to them. So he came out to them and said: Turn these houses away from the mosque, for I do not permit a menstruating woman to use a curtain, unless she is in a state of ritual impurity. And in Sahih Muslim.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Blessed and Exalted forbids His believing servants from performing the prayer while intoxicated, such that the worshipper does not know what he is saying, and from approaching its places, which are the mosques for the ritually impure, unless he is passing from one door to another without lingering. This was before the prohibition of alcohol, as indicated by the hadith that we mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah when

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

God the Almighty says: They ask you about wine and gambling and the verse. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited it to Omar, and said: O God, make clear to us regarding wine with a satisfactory explanation. When this verse was revealed, he recited it to him and said: O God, make clear to us regarding wine with a satisfactory explanation. So they did not drink alcohol during the times of prayer. When the verse was revealed: "O you who have believed, indeed, wine, gambling, [sacrificing on] stone altars [to other than God], and divining arrows are but defilement from the work of Satan, so avoid it that you may be successful" until God the Almighty says: So will you not desist? Omar said: We have desisted, we have desisted. In the narration of Israel on the authority of Abu Ishaq on the authority of Amr bin Shurahbil on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab in the story of the prohibition of alcohol, he mentioned the hadith in which it says: Then the verse in An-Nisa was revealed: O you who believe! Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying. So the caller of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would call out when the prayer was called: Do not approach prayer while drunk. Abu Dawud's wording. They mentioned the reason for the revelation of this verse, as narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim: Yunus bin Habib told us, Abu Dawud told us, Shu'bah told us, Samak bin Harb told me: I heard Mus'ab bin Sa'd narrating on the authority of Sa'd, who said: It was revealed regarding four verses. A man from the Ansar made food and invited some of the Muhajireen and some of the Ansar, so we ate and drank until we got drunk, then we boasted, so a man lifted the jawbone of a camel and cut off Sa'd's nose with it, so Sa'd had a cut off nose, and that was before alcohol was forbidden, so the verse was revealed: O you who believe! Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated 10:10. The hadith in its entirety is in Muslim from the narration of Shu'bah, and the people of Sunan narrated it except Ibn Majah from various chains of transmission on the authority of Samak with it.

Another reason Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ammar told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abd God al-Dashtaki told us, Abu Ja'far told us on the authority of Ata' ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Salami, on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib, who said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf made us some food and invited us and gave us wine to drink. The wine took its toll on us, and the time for prayer came, so they brought forward so-and-so. He said: He recited: Say, O you disbelievers, I do not worship what you worship, and we worship what you worship. Then God revealed: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying. This is how Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it, and this is how al-Tirmidhi narrated it on the authority of Abd ibn Hamid, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman al-Dashtaki, and he said: It is good and authentic. Ibn Jarir narrated it on the authority of Muhammad ibn Bashir, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi, on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Ata' ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Ali: That he, Abd al-Rahman and another man drank wine, so Abd al-Rahman led them in prayer and recited Say, O you disbelievers, and he mixed it up, so Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated was revealed. Abu Dawud and al-Nasa'i narrated it in this way from the hadith of al-Thawri, and Ibn Jarir also narrated it on the authority of Ibn Hamid, on the authority of Jarir, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Sulami, who said: Ali was with a group of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the house of Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf, and they ate, so he brought them wine and they drank from it, and that was before wine was forbidden. Then the time for prayer came, so they brought Ali forward, and he recited to them Say, O you disbelievers, but he did not recite it as it should have been, so God Almighty revealed O you who believe, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated. Then he said: Al-Muthanna told me, Al-Hajjaj ibn al-Munhal told us, Hammad narrated to us on the authority of Ata' bin Al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Habib, who is Abu Abd Al-Rahman Al-Sulami: Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf made food and drink, then he called a group of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he prayed Maghrib with them, and he recited: Say, "O you disbelievers, I do not worship what you worship, and you worship what I worship, and I worship what you worship. To you be your religion, and to me mine." Then God, the Almighty, revealed this verse: O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse: Men used to come to prayer while they were drunk before alcohol was forbidden, so God said: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated, the verse, narrated by Ibn Jarir, and Abu Razin and Mujahid said the same. Abd Al-Razzaq said on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatadah: They used to avoid getting drunk when the time for prayers came, then it was abrogated by the prohibition of alcohol. Ad-Dahhak said about the verse: He did not mean drunkenness in alcohol, but rather he meant drunkenness in sleep. This was narrated by Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim. Then Ibn Jarir said: The correct meaning is drunkenness in drink. He said: The prohibition was not directed to the drunkard who does not understand the speech, because that is like the insane. Rather, the prohibition was addressed to the drunkard who understands the obligation. This is the gist of what he said, and more than one of the scholars of the principles of jurisprudence mentioned it, which is that the speech is directed to the one who understands the speech, not the drunkard who does not know what is being said to him, because understanding is a condition of obligation. It may be possible that what is meant is an allusion to the prohibition of drunkenness in general, because they are commanded to pray at the five times of the night and day, so the one who drinks alcohol is not able to perform the prayer at its times always, and God knows best. Based on this, it is like the saying of God Almighty: O you who have believed, fear God as He should be feared and do not die except as Muslims. This is the command for them to prepare for death as Muslims and to persevere in obedience for that reason. His saying, Until you know what you are saying, this is the best that can be said about the definition of a drunkard, that he is one who does not know what he is saying, because a drunkard is confused in his recitation and does not reflect and be humble in it. Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Samad told us, my father told us, Ayoub told us, on the authority of Abu Qilabah, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If one of you becomes drowsy while he is praying, then let him turn away and sleep until he knows what he is saying. Al-Bukhari alone transmitted it, not Muslim, and he and al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Ayoub. In some of the wordings of the hadith: Perhaps he will go and seek forgiveness and then curse himself. And his saying: And do not enter the mosque while you are in a state of ritual impurity, except when passing through, until you have washed yourselves. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ammar told us, Abd al-Rahman al-Dashtaki told us, Abu Ja'far al-Razi told us, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of 'Ata' ibn Yasar, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his saying: And do not enter the mosque while you are in a state of ritual impurity, except when passing through. He said: You pass by it and do not sit. Then he said: It was narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, Anas, Abu 'Ubaydah, Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, Abu al-Dhaha, 'Ata', Mujahid, Masruq, Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, Zayd ibn Aslam, Abu Malik, 'Amr ibn Dinar, al-Hakam ibn 'Utaybah, 'Ikrimah, al-Hasan al-Basri, Yahya ibn Sa'id al-Ansari, Ibn Shihab, and Qatadah, something similar to that. Ibn Jarir said: al-Muthanna told us, Abu Salih told us, al-Layth told me. Yazid bin Abi Habib narrated to us, on the authority of God the Almighty, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through, that some men from the Ansar had doors in the mosque, and they would become ritually impure and not have water with them, so they would go to the water and find no way out except in the mosque, so God revealed, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through. What bears witness to the correctness of what Yazid bin Abi Habib, may God have mercy on him, said is what was established in Sahih al-Bukhari: that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Close every door in the mosque except the door of Abu Bakr. He said this at the end of his life, may God bless him and grant him peace, knowing that Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, would succeed him and would need to enter the mosque a lot for important matters that would benefit the Muslims, so he ordered the doors leading to the mosque to be closed, except for his door, may God be pleased with him. Whoever narrated except for the door of Ali, as occurred in some of the Sunnahs, is mistaken, and what is correct is what was established in Sahih. From this verse, many imams have argued that it is forbidden for a person in a state of ritual impurity to remain in the mosque, but it is permissible for him to pass through, and the same applies to a menstruating woman or a woman in postpartum bleeding, in the same sense. However, some of them said: Their passing through is prohibited due to the possibility of contamination. Some of them said: If each of them is safe from contamination while passing through, it is permissible for them to pass through, otherwise not. It was proven in Sahih Muslim on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to me: Give me the veil from the mosque. I said: I am menstruating. He said: Your menstruation is not in your hand. And he has a similar narration on the authority of Abu Hurairah, which indicates that it is permissible for a menstruating woman to pass through the mosque, and a woman in postpartum bleeding is similar to her. And God knows best. Abu Dawud narrated from the hadith of Aflat ibn Khalifah al-Amiri, on the authority of Jasra bint Dajajah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I do not permit the mosque for a menstruating woman or a person in a state of ritual impurity. Abu Muslim al-Khattabi said: A group weakened this hadith and said: Aflat is unknown, but Ibn Majah narrated it on the authority of Abu al-Khattab al-Hijri, on the authority of Mahduj al-Dhuhli, on the authority of Jasra, on the authority of Umm Salamah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with it. Abu Zur'ah al-Razi said: They say: Jasra, on the authority of Umm Salamah, and the correct one is Jasra, on the authority of Aisha. As for what Abu 'Isa al-Tirmidhi narrated: on the authority of Salim ibn Abi Hafsah, on the authority of 'Atiyyah, on the authority of Abu Sa'id. Al-Khudri said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Ali, it is not permissible for anyone to become ritually impure in this mosque except me and you. This is a weak hadith that is not proven, because this Salim is abandoned, and his sheikh, Atiyah, is weak, and God knows best.

Another hadith on the meaning of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Al-Mundhir bin Shadhan told us, Ubaidullah bin Musa told us, Ibn Abi Laila told me on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, on the authority of Ali, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through. He said: He should not approach the prayer, unless he is a traveler who becomes in a state of major ritual impurity and cannot find water, then he should pray until he finds water. Then he narrated it from another chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Munhal bin Amr, on the authority of Zur, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, and he mentioned it. He said: It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas in one of the narrations, and Saeed bin Jubayr and Al-Dahhak, something similar to that. Ibn Jarir narrated, from the hadith of Wakee', on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of Al-Munhal, on the authority of Ibad bin Abdullah, or on the authority of Zur bin Hubaish, on the authority of Ali, and he mentioned it. He narrated it on the authority of Al-Awfi and Abu

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Majlaz: on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned it. He narrated it on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, and on the authority of Mujahid, and Al-Hasan bin Muslim, and Al-Hakam bin Utaybah, and Zaid bin Aslam, and his son Abd Al-Rahman, something similar to that. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj on the authority of Abdullah bin Katheer, who said: We used to hear that he was travelling. This statement is supported by the hadith narrated by Ahmad and the people of Sunnah from the hadith of Abu Qilabah from Umar ibn Bajdan, from Abu Dharr, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Pure soil is the purification of the Muslim, and if you do not find water, then ten years are enough. If you find water, then touch your skin with it, for that is better." Then Ibn Jarir said after narrating the two statements: The first statement is that of the one who said: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except those passing through, meaning except those passing through a road in it. This is because he has explained the ruling on the traveler if there is no water and he is in a state of major ritual impurity, in his statement: And if you are ill or on a journey, to the end. Thus, it was known that if his statement: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except those passing through until you have washed yourselves, had it been meant for the traveler, then repeating it in his statement: And if you are ill or on a journey would not have had an understood meaning, and the ruling on mentioning it had already been mentioned before. If that is the case, then the interpretation of the verse is: O you who have believed, do not approach the mosques for prayer while you are intoxicated, until you know what you are saying. And do not approach them also when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, until Wash yourself, except for those passing through. He said: The one who passes through is the one who passes by and cuts through. It is said from it: I crossed this road, so I cross it crossing and crossing. And from it it is said that someone crossed the river, if he crossed it and went beyond it. And from it it is said of the strong camel for journeys, she is the one who crosses the journeys because of her strength for cutting through journeys. And this is what he supported, is the saying of the majority, and it is apparent from the verse, and it is as if the Almighty forbade performing the prayer in an incomplete form that contradicts its purpose, and entering its place in an incomplete form, which is the major ritual impurity that distances the prayer, and its place as well, and God knows best. His saying, until you wash yourselves is evidence for what the three Imams, Abu Hanifa, Malik and Ash-Shafi'i, held, that it is forbidden for a person in a state of ritual impurity to remain in the mosque until he washes himself or performs tayammum, if there is no water or he is unable to use it in the proper manner. Imam Ahmad held that when a person in a state of ritual impurity performs ablution, it is permissible for him to remain in the mosque, because he and Sa'id ibn Mansur narrated in his Sunan with a saheeh isnaad that the Companions used to do that. Sa'id ibn Mansur said in his Sunan: 'Abdul-'Aziz ibn Muhammad, who is Ad-Darawardi, narrated to us on the authority of Hisham ibn Sa'd, on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam, on the authority of 'Ata' ibn Yasar, who said: I saw men from among the Companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sitting in the mosque while they were in a state of ritual impurity, if they performed ablution for prayer. This isnaad meets the conditions of a Muslim, and God knows best.

And his saying: And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have contacted women and you find no water, then seek clean earth.

As for the illness that permits tayammum, it is the one in which there is fear that using water will cause the loss of a limb or a body part or prolong the recovery. Some scholars have permitted tayammum merely due to illness, due to the generality of the verse. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abu Ghassan Malik bin Ismail told us, Qais told us, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his saying: And if you are ill, he said: It was revealed about a man from the Ansar who was ill and could not stand up to perform ablution, and he did not have a servant to give him water, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and mentioned that to him, so God revealed this verse. This is a mursal, and travel is well-known, and there is no difference between long and short journeys. His saying: Or one of you comes from the privy, privy is a secure place on the ground, and he used that as a metaphor for defecation, which is the minor impurity. As for his saying: Or you have contacted women, it was read as touched and touched, and there is a difference of opinion. The commentators and imams have two opinions on the meaning of this: One of them: That it is a metaphor for sexual intercourse, because God Almighty says: And if you divorce them before you have touched them and you have already specified for them a dowry, then half of what you specified. And God Almighty says: O you who have believed, when you marry believing women and then divorce them before you have touched them, then you have no waiting period to count for them. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed Al-Ashj told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement: or you have touched women, he said: sexual intercourse. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Mujahid, Tawus, Al-Hasan, Ubayd ibn Umair, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Qatadah and Muqatil ibn Hayyan, something similar to this. Ibn Jarir said: Humayd ibn Mas'adah narrated to me, Yazid ibn Zari' narrated to us, Shu'bah narrated to us on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: They mentioned touching, and some of the Mawali said: It is not intercourse, and some of the Arabs said: Touching is intercourse. He said: So I went to Ibn Abbas and said to him: Some of the Mawali and the Arabs differed about touching, and the Mawali said: It is not intercourse, and the Arabs said: It is intercourse. He said: Which of the two groups were you from? I said: I was from the Mawali. He said: The Mawali group prevailed. Touching, contact and direct contact: intercourse, but God euphemizes what He wills with what He wills. Then he narrated it on the authority of Ibn Bashir, on the authority of Ghundar, on the authority of Shu'bah, in a similar manner, then he narrated it from other chains of transmission, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr in a similar manner. And similarly, he said: Ya'qub told me, Hisham told us, Abu Bishr told us: Sa'id ibn Jubayr told us, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: Touching, touching, and direct contact: sexual intercourse, but God uses euphemisms as He wills. 'Abd al-Hamid ibn Bayan told us, Ishaq al-Azraq informed us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of 'Asim al-Ahwal, on the authority of Bakr ibn 'Abdullah, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, who said: Touching: sexual intercourse, but God is generous and uses euphemisms as He wills. It has been authenticated from more than one source, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas, that he said that. Then Ibn Jarir narrated it, on the authority of some of those from whom Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it. Then Ibn Jarir said, and others said: God Almighty meant by that every touch with a hand or other part of the human body, and they made ablution obligatory for everyone who touches something from her body with something from his body leading to it. Then he said: Ibn Bashir told us, 'Abd al-Rahman told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Mukhariq, on the authority of Tariq, on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, who said: Touching is less than sexual intercourse. And it has been narrated from multiple chains of transmission, on the authority of Ibn Masoud narrated something similar. He narrated from the hadith of Al-A'mash, from Ibrahim, from Abu Ubaidah, from Abdullah bin Masoud, who said: Kissing is a form of touching and requires ablution for it. Al-Tabarani narrated with his chain of transmission, from Abdullah bin Masoud, who said: A man performs ablution after direct contact, after touching with his hand, and after kissing. He used to say about this verse, Or you have touched women, meaning winking. Ibn Jarir said: Yunus told me, Ibn Wahb told us, Ubaidullah bin Umar told me, from Nafi': Ibn Umar used to perform ablution after kissing a woman, and he saw that it required ablution, and he said: It is a form of touching. Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Jarir also narrated: On the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Mukhariq, on the authority of Tariq, on the authority of Abdullah, who said: Touching is less than intercourse. Then Ibn Abi Hatim said: It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, Ubaydah, Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, Abu Ubaydah, meaning Ibn Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud, Aamer al-Sha'bi, Thabit Ibn al-Hajaj, Ibrahim al-Nakha'i, and Zayd Ibn Aslam, something similar to that. I said Malik narrated on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Salim Ibn Abdullah Ibn Umar, on the authority of his father, that he used to say: A man kissing his wife and feeling her with his hand is touching, so whoever kisses his wife and feels her with his hand, then he must perform ablution. Al-Hafiz Abu al-Hasan al-Daraqutni narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Umar Ibn al-Khattab something similar to that, but we narrated on his authority from another source: that he used to kiss his wife and then pray and not perform ablution, so the narration on his authority is different, so what he said about ablution, if it is authentic on his authority, is to be taken as recommended, and God knows best. The statement that ablution is obligatory after touching is the statement of Al-Shafi'i and his companions, Malik, and the well-known statement from Ahmad ibn Hanbal, may God have mercy on them. Nasser said about this statement: It has been read in this verse you touched and you touched. Touching is used in the Sharia to mean touching with the hand. God Almighty said: And if We had sent down to you a book on paper and they had touched it with their hands, meaning they touched it. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Ma'iz when he confessed to adultery, suggesting that he retract his confession: Perhaps you kissed or touched. In the authentic hadith: And the hand commits adultery by touching. Aisha, may God be pleased with her, said: "There is not a day without the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, going around to us, kissing and touching." From this is what is proven in the two Sahih, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade the sale of touching, and it refers to touching with the hand, according to both interpretations. They said: It is used in the language to mean touching with the hand, just as it is used to mean sexual intercourse. The poet said:

I touched his hand, asking for wealth

They also relied on the hadith narrated by Ahmad, who said: Abdullah bin Mahdi and Abu Saeed told us: Zaidah told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik bin Umair, and Abu Saeed said: Abdul Malik bin Umair told us, on the authority of Abdul Rahman bin Abi Laila, on the authority of Muadh, who said: A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, what do you say about a man who meets a woman whom he does not know, and he does not do anything to his wife except that he does it to her, except that he does not have intercourse with her? He said: So God Almighty revealed this verse: "Establish prayer at the two ends of the day and at the approach of the night. Indeed, good deeds do away with misdeeds. That is a reminder for those who remember." He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Perform ablution and then pray. Muadh said: So I said: O Messenger of God, is it for him specifically or for the believers in general? He said: Rather, for the believers in general. Al-Tirmidhi narrated it from the hadith of Zaydah, and he said: It is not connected. Al-Nasa'i narrated it from the hadith of Shu'bah, from Abd al-Malik bin Umair, from Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Laila, as a mursal. They said: So he ordered him to perform ablution, because he touched the woman but did not have intercourse with her. It was answered that it is disconnected between Ibn Abi Laila and Mu'adh, because he did not meet him. Then it is possible that he only ordered him to perform ablution and pray for repentance, as mentioned in the hadith of Abu Bakr: There is no servant who commits a sin and performs ablution and prays two rak'ahs except that God forgives him. The hadith is mentioned in Surat Al-Imran, when He says: Remember God and seek forgiveness for their sins verse. Then Ibn Jarir said: The more correct of the two opinions on this is the opinion of the one who said: God meant by His saying: Or you have touched women intercourse, not other meanings of touch, due to the authenticity of the report from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he kissed some of his wives, then prayed and did not perform ablution. Then he said: He told me. Ismail bin Musa Al-Suddi narrated that: Abu Bakr bin Ayyash informed us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would perform ablution, then kiss, then pray, and he would not perform ablution. Then he said: Abu Kurayb informed us, Waki' informed us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Habib, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, kissed one of his wives, then went out to pray and did not perform ablution. I said: Who is that but you? So she laughed, and thus Abu Dawud, Al-Tirmidhi, and Ibn Majah narrated it, on the authority of a group of their sheikhs, on the authority of Wakee', then Abu Dawud said: It was narrated on the authority of Al-Thawri that he said: Habib did not tell us except on the authority of Urwah Al-Muzani, and Yahya Al-Qattan said to a man: Tell me that this hadith is almost nothing, and Al-Tirmidhi said: I heard Al-Bukhari weaken this hadith, and he said: Habib bin Abi Thabit did not hear it from Urwah, and it occurred in the narration of Ibn Majah: on the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah, and Ali bin Muhammad Al-Tanafisi, on the authority of Wakee', on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Habib bin Abi Thabit, on the authority of Urwah bin Al-Zubayr, on the authority of Aisha, and more eloquent than that is what Imam Ahmad narrated in his Musnad: on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, and this is explicit in his being Urwah bin Al-Zubayr, and his saying: Who is it but you, so she laughed, testifies to that, but Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Ibrahim bin Mukhallad Al-Talaqani, on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Mughra, on the authority of Al-A'mash, he said: Our companions told us, On the authority of Urwah Al-Muzani, on the authority of Aisha, and he mentioned it, and God knows best. Ibn Jarir also said: Abu Zaid told us, Umar bin Shabah, on the authority of Shihab bin Ibad, Mandal bin Ali told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Aisha and on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Ibrahim At-Taymi, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, she said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, would kiss me after performing ablution, then he would not repeat the ablution. Imam Ahmad said: Waki' told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Abu Rawq

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Al-Hamadani, on the authority of Ibrahim At-Taymi, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, kissed and then prayed without performing ablution. Narrated by Abu Dawud and An-Nasa'i, on the authority of Yahya Al-Qattan. Abu Dawud added: And Ibn Mahdi, both of them on the authority of Sufyan Ath-Thawri, on his authority. Then Abu Dawud and al-Nasa'i said: Ibrahim al-Taymi did not hear from Aisha. Then Ibn Jarir also said: Sa'id ibn Yahya al-Umawi told us, my father told us, Yazid ibn Sinan told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman al-Awza'i, on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Katheer, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Umm Salamah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would kiss her while he was fasting, then he would not break his fast or perform ablution. He also said: Abu Kurayb told us, Hafs ibn Ghiyath told us, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of Zainab al-Sahmiyyah, on the authority of Aisha, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: that he would kiss her, then pray, and not perform ablution. Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Muhammad ibn Fadil, on the authority of Hajjaj ibn Artah, on the authority of Amr ibn Shu'ayb, on the authority of Zainab al-Sahmiyyah, on the authority of Aisha, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, with it. And the Almighty's saying: But if you find no water, then perform tayammum with clean earth. Many jurists have deduced from this verse that tayammum is not permissible for one who does not have water except after searching for water. So when he searches for it and does not find it, then tayammum is permissible for him. They have mentioned how to search in the books of branches, as is established in its place, as is in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Imran ibn Husayn: That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, saw a man isolated and not praying with the people, so he said: O so-and-so, what prevented you from praying with the people? Are you not a Muslim man? He said: Yes, O Messenger of God, but I was in a state of major ritual impurity and there was no water. He said: Use clean earth, for it will suffice you. For this reason, God Almighty said: But if you find no water, then perform tayammum with clean earth. So tayammum in the language is the intention. The Arabs say: May God make you tayammum. By preserving it, meaning your intention, and from it is the saying of Imru' al-Qais in poetry:

When she saw that death had come to her and that the pebbles beneath her feet were bloody

I went to the spring near Daraj, where the shade was pouring down on it, and its water was overflowing.

It was said that the soil is everything that rises on the surface of the earth, so it includes dirt, sand, trees, stones and plants, and this is the opinion of Malik. It was also said that it is what is of the same type as dirt, such as sand, arsenic and lime, and this is the opinion of Abu Hanifa. It was also said that it is only dirt, and this is the opinion of Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad ibn Hanbal and their companions. They provided evidence for this with the words of God the Almighty: Then it becomes a slippery ground meaning smooth, good dirt, and with what was established in Sahih Muslim, on the authority of Hudhayfah ibn Al-Yaman, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "We have been given preference over people in three things: Our rows have been made like the rows of angels, the entire earth has been made a place of prostration for us, and its soil has been made a means of purification for us if we cannot find water." In another version: And its soil has been made a means of purification for us if we cannot find water. They said: So purification is limited to dirt, in the context of gratitude, so if something else could take its place, it would have been mentioned with it. And the good here, it was said, is the permissible, and it was said: that which is not impure, as narrated by Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunan, except Ibn Majah. From the hadith of Abu Qilabah, on the authority of Amr ibn Bajdan, on the authority of Abu Dharr, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Good soil is the purification of the Muslim, and if he does not find water for ten years, then if he finds it, let him touch it to his skin, for that is better. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is good and authentic, and Ibn Hibban also authenticated it, and Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar narrated it in his Musnad, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, and Al-Hafiz Abu Al-Hasan Al-Qattan authenticated it, and Ibn Abbas said: The best soil is the soil of the field, narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim, and Ibn Mardawayh raised it in his interpretation, and his saying: Then wipe your faces and your hands Tayammum is a substitute for ablution in purification with it, not that it is a substitute for it in all of his limbs, rather it is sufficient to wipe the face and hands only by consensus, but the imams differed in the manner of Tayammum in statements: One of them, which is the new view of Al-Shafi'i: It is obligatory to wipe the face and hands up to the elbows with two strokes, because the word hands applies to what reaches the shoulders and what reaches the elbows, as in the verse on ablution. It is said and what is meant by them is what reaches the palms of the hands, as in the verse of theft: Then cut off their hands. They said: What is said here is more appropriate to what is restricted in the verse of ablution, due to the generality of purity. Some of them mentioned: What was narrated by Al-Daraqutni on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Tayammum is two strikes: a strike for the face, and a strike for the hands up to the elbows." But it is not authentic, because in its chains of transmission there are weak people, and the hadith is not proven by them. Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar, in a hadith, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, struck the wall with his hands and wiped his face with them, then he struck another strike and wiped his arms, but in its chain of transmission is Muhammad ibn Thabit Al-Abdi, and some of the hadith masters have declared him weak, and others of the trustworthy narrated it, so they stopped at the action of Ibn Umar. Al-Bukhari, Abu Zur'ah and Ibn 'Adi said: This is correct. Al-Bayhaqi said: This hadith is rejected. Al-Shafi'i provided evidence for what he narrated on the authority of Ibrahim ibn Muhammad, on the authority of Abu Al-Huwayrith Abd Al-Rahman ibn Mu'awiyah, on the authority of Al-A'raj, on the authority of Ibn Al-Sammah: that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) performed tayammum and wiped his face and arms. Ibn Jarir said: Musa bin Sahl al-Ramli told me, Na'eem bin Hammad told us, Kharijah bin Mus'ab told us, on the authority of Abdullah bin Ata', on the authority of Musa bin Uqbah, on the authority of al-A'raj, on the authority of Abu Juha'im, who said: I saw the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) urinating, so I greeted him, but he did not respond to me until he finished. Then he went to the wall and struck it with his hands, and wiped his face with them. Then he struck the wall with his hands and wiped his hands up to the elbows, then he returned my greeting. The second opinion is that it is obligatory to wipe the face and hands up to the palms of the hands with two strokes, and this is the opinion of al-Shafi'i in the past. The third opinion is that it is sufficient to wipe the face and hands with one stroke. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Al-Hakam, on the authority of Dhir, on the authority of Ibn 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abza, on the authority of his father, that a man came to 'Umar and said: I became ritually impure and could not find any water. 'Umar said: Do not pray. 'Ammar said: Do you not remember, O Commander of the Faithful, when you and I were on a military expedition and became ritually impure and could not find any water? As for you, you did not pray, and as for me, I rolled in the dirt and prayed. When we came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, I mentioned that to him, and he said: It would have been sufficient for you. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, struck the ground with his hand, then blew into it and wiped his face and hands with it. Ahmad also said: 'Affan told us, Abaan told us, Qatadah told us, on the authority of 'Azra, on the authority of Sa'id ibn 'Abd al-Rahman ibn Abza, on the authority of his father, on the authority of 'Ammar, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said regarding dry ablution: A strike for the face and hands.

Another way Ahmad said: Affan told us, Abdul Wahid told us, on the authority of Sulayman al-A'mash, Shaiqi told us, he said: I was sitting with Abdullah and Abu Musa, and Abu Musa said to Abdullah: If a man does not find water, he does not pray? Abdullah said: No. Abu Musa said: Do you not remember when Ammar said to Umar: Do you not remember when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent me and you with camels, and I became ritually impure and rolled in the dirt, and when I returned to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, I told him, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, laughed and said: It would have been sufficient for you to say this, and he struck the ground with his hands, then wiped both of his hands, and wiped his face once with one stroke? Abdullah said: No wonder, I did not see Umar satisfied with that. He said: Abu Musa said to him: How about this verse in Surat al-Nisa': But if you do not find water, then seek clean earth? He said: Abdullah did not know what he was saying, and he said: If we had permitted them to perform tayammum, one of them would have likely performed tayammum if the water had cooled on his skin. And God Almighty said in the verse of Al-Ma'idah 5: Then wipe your faces and your hands with it. Al-Shafi'i used this as evidence that tayammum must be done with pure soil, with some dust that sticks to the face and hands, as Al-Shafi'i narrated with his previous chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Al-Sammah: that he passed by the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was urinating, and greeted him, but he did not respond to him, until he went to a wall and scraped it with a stick that he had with him, and struck it with his hand, then wiped his face and arms. And His saying: God does not intend to place any difficulty upon you means in the religion that He has prescribed for you, but He intends to purify you, for this reason He permitted you, if you do not find water, to switch to tayammum with earth, and to complete His favor upon you that you may be grateful. For this reason this nation was singled out for the permissibility of tayammum, unlike all other nations, as is proven in the two Sahihs, on the authority of Jabir ibn Abdullah, may God be pleased with them both, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I have been given five things that were not given to anyone before me. I have been aided by terror for a distance of a month's journey. The earth has been made a place of prostration and purification for me, so whichever man of my nation is overtaken by the time of prayer, let him pray." In another version: "He has his own purification and place of prostration. Spoils have been made lawful for me, but they were not made lawful for anyone before me. I have been given intercession. The Prophet was sent to his people, but I was sent to all people." It was mentioned in the hadith of Hudhayfah in Muslim: "We have been given preference over people in three things. Our rows have been made like the rows of angels. The earth has been made a place of prostration for us, and its soil is a means of purification if we do not find water." And God, the Most High, said in this noble verse: "So wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, God is Forgiving and Pardoning." That is, among His pardon and forgiveness for you is that He has prescribed tayammum and permitted you to perform the prayer with it if you do not have water, as an extension and a concession for you. This is because this noble verse contains the sanctification of prayer from being performed in an imperfect state, such as drunkenness, until the person responsible for it wakes up and understands what is required of him. He says, or he is in a state of major ritual impurity until he performs ablution, or he has become impure until he performs ablution, unless he is sick or lacks water, then God Almighty has permitted dry ablution, and in this case it is mercy for His servants and compassion for them, and an expansion for them, and praise and thanks be to God.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Mention of the reason for the revelation of the legitimacy of tayammum We have only mentioned that here because this verse in An-Nisa' was revealed before the verse in Al-Ma'idah, and its explanation is that this was revealed before the prohibition of alcohol became inevitable, and alcohol was only prohibited shortly after Uhud, it is said: during the siege of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, of Banu Nadir. As for Al-Ma'idah, it is one of the last things to be revealed, especially its beginning, so it was appropriate to mention the reason here, and God is the Trustworthy. Ahmad said: Ibn Numayr told us on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha that she borrowed a necklace from Asma' and it was lost, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent men to look for it and they found it, and the time for prayer came upon them and they did not have water with them, so they prayed without performing ablution, so they complained about that to the Messenger of God, so God revealed the verse of tayammum, and Asid ibn Al-Hudayr said to Aisha: May God reward you with good, for by God, no matter what happened to you that you disliked happened except that God made it good for you and the Muslims.

Another way Al-Bukhari said: Abdullah bin Yusuf told us, Malik told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin al-Qasim, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, she said: We went out with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on one of his journeys, until when we were in al-Baida' or Dhat al-Jaysh, a necklace of mine broke, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stayed looking for it, and the people stayed with him, and they were not near any water and they had no water with them. So the people came to Abu Bakr and said: Do you not see what Aisha did? She stayed with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the people, and they were not near any water and they had no water with them? So Abu Bakr came and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had his head on my thigh, asleep, so he said: You have detained the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the people, and they are not near any water and they have no water with them? Aisha said: Abu Bakr rebuked me and said what God willed him to say, and he began to stab me in the side with his hand, and nothing prevented me from moving except the place of the head of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on my thigh. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood up when morning came without water, and God revealed the verse of tayammum, so they performed tayammum. Asid ibn al-Hudayr said: This is not the first blessing for you, O family of Abu Bakr. She said: So we sent the camel that I was riding and we found the necklace under it. Al-Bukhari also narrated it on the authority of Qutaybah and Ismail, and Muslim narrated it on the authority of Yahya ibn Yahya on the authority of Malik.

Another hadith Imam Ahmad said: Yaqub told us, my father told us, on the authority of Salih, who said: Ibn Shihab said: Ubayd God ibn Abdullah told me, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of Ammar ibn Yasir: That the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had a wedding with the first women of the army, and with him was his wife Aisha, and her necklace of Dhofar agate broke, so the people were held back in search of her necklace, and that was until dawn broke, and there was no water with the people, so God revealed to His Messenger the permission to purify themselves with good earth, so the Muslims stood with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and struck their hands on the ground, then raised their hands and did not take any of the earth, so they wiped their faces and hands up to the shoulders, and from the palms of their hands to the armpits. Ibn Jarir narrated: Abu Kurayb told us, Saifi told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Tha'lab, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Ubayd God, on the authority of Abu Al-Yaqzan, who said: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when Aisha's necklace broke. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stayed until dawn broke, and Abu Bakr became angry with Aisha, so permission to wipe with clean earth was revealed to him. Abu Bakr entered and said to her: You are blessed, and permission was revealed for you. So we struck our faces with our hands, and our hands up to the shoulders and armpits.

Another hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ahmad bin Ibrahim told us, Al-Hasan bin Ahmad bin Al-Layth told us, Muhammad bin Marzuq told us, Al-Abbas bin Abi Suwayyah told us, Al-Haitham bin Raziq Al-Maliki from Bani Malik bin Kaab bin Saad told me, and he lived for one hundred and seventeen years, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Asla bin Sharik, who said: I was saddling the she-camel of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I became impure on a cold night, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, wanted to set out on the journey, so I hated to saddle the she-camel of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while I was impure, and I feared that I would wash myself with cold water and die or become sick, so I ordered a man from the Ansar to saddle her, then I gathered stones and heated water with them and washed myself, then I caught up with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, and he said: O Asla, why do I see that your saddle has changed? I said: O Messenger of God, I did not saddle her, a man from the Ansar saddled her. He said: Why? I said: I was in a state of major ritual impurity and I feared that I would be deprived of it, so I ordered him to remove it, and I gathered stones and heated water with them and washed myself with it. Then God Almighty revealed: Do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying until His saying: Indeed, God is Forgiving and Forgiving. It was narrated from another source on his authority.

His statement 43- O you who have believed He made the address specific to the believers because they used to approach prayer while drunk, and as for the disbelievers, they do not approach it while drunk or otherwise. His statement Do not approach The linguists said: If it is said: Do not approach with the opening of the ra', it means do not engage in the action, and if it is with the damma of the ra', it means: Do not come near it. What is meant here is: the prohibition of engaging in prayer and attending it. A group of commentators said this, and Abu Hanifa went to it. Others said: What is meant are the places of prayer, and Al-Shafi'i said this: Based on this, it is necessary to estimate an added part, and this is strengthened by his statement: nor while in a state of ritual impurity except when passing through. A group said: What is meant is prayer and its places together, because at that time they did not come to the mosque except for prayer, and they did not pray except together, so they were intertwined. His saying, and you are drunk the sentence is in the accusative case as a state, and drunk is the plural of drunk, like lazy is the plural of lazy. An-Nakha'i read sakari with a fatha on the seen, which is the broken form of sakran. Al-A'mash read sakari like habla as a singular adjective. All scholars have said that what is meant by drunk here is drunkenness in wine, except Ad-Dahhak who said: what is meant is drunkenness in sleep. The reason for the revelation of the verse will be explained, and with it will be dispelled what contradicts the correct view of these sayings. His saying, until you know what you are saying this is the ultimate prohibition against approaching prayer while drunk: that is, until the effects of drunkenness disappear from you and you know what you are saying, because the drunk does not know what he is saying. This has been held by those who say that the divorce of the drunk does not take place, because if he does not know what he is saying, then the intention is negated. And Uthman bin Affan, Ibn Abbas, Tawus, Ata', Al-Qasim, and Rabia said the same. It is also the opinion of Al-Layth bin Sa'd, Ishaq, Abu Thawr, and Al-Muzani. Al-Tahawi chose it and said: The scholars agreed that the divorce of an imbecile is not permissible, and the drunkard is imbecile like the one who is obsessed. A group permitted his divorce to be valid, and this was narrated from Umar bin Al-Khattab, Mu'awiyah, and a group of the followers. It is the opinion of Abu Hanifa, Al-Thawri, and Al-Awza'i. Al-Shafi'i's opinion differed on this. Malik said: He is obligated to divorce and to retribution for wounds and murder, but he is not obligated to marry or sell. His statement, nor while he is in a state of major ritual impurity, is in apposition to the subject of the present clause, which is his statement, while you are intoxicated. The word junub is neither feminine nor dual nor plural because it is attached to the source like distance and proximity. Al-Farra' said: It is said that a man is junub and janab from major ritual impurity. It is also said that the plural of junub in a language is ajnab, like 'aq and 'aqnāq, and tanab and tanab. His statement, except when passing through, is an empty exception, meaning: Do not approach it under any circumstances except when passing through. What is meant here is travel, and the place of this empty exception is the accusative case as a state of the pronoun do not approach after restricting it to the second state, which is His statement, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, not to the first state, which is His statement, while you are intoxicated. So the meaning becomes: Do not approach the prayer while you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when traveling, in which case it is permissible for you to pray with tayammum. This is the statement of Ali, Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jubayr, al-Hakam, and others. They said: It is not permissible for anyone to approach the prayer while he is in a state of major ritual impurity except after bathing, except for the traveler, who performs tayammum, because water may be absent while traveling, but not when at home, in which case it is usually not absent. Ibn Mas'ud, 'Ikrimah, Al-Nakha'i, 'Amr ibn Dinar, Malik and Al-Shafi'i said: The wayfarer is the one who passes through the mosque. It was narrated from Ibn 'Abbas. According to this, the meaning of the verse is: Do not approach the places of prayer, which are the mosques, when you are in a state of major ritual impurity, unless you are passing through them from one side to the other. The first opinion has strength in that the prayer in it remains in its true meaning, and weakness in that the wayfarer is applied to the traveler, and its meaning is that he approaches the prayer when there is no water by performing tayammum, for this ruling applies to the present person if there is no water, just as it applies to the traveler. The second opinion has strength in that there is no difficulty in the meaning of his statement, except for those passing through, and weakness in that the prayer is applied to its places. In short, the first situation, I mean his statement,

And you are drunk strengthens the continuation of the prayer in its true meaning without estimating an addition, and what will come from the reason for the revelation of the verse strengthens that. And His saying except those passing through strengthens the estimation of the addition: that is, do not approach the places of prayer. It can be said: Some of the restrictions of the prohibition, I mean do not approach, which is His saying and you are drunk, indicate that what is meant by prayer is its true meaning, and some of the restrictions of the prohibition, which is His saying except those passing through, indicate that what is meant is the places of prayer, and there is no objection to considering each one of them with its restriction indicating it, and that would be like two prohibitions, each of them restricted by a restriction, and they are: do not approach the prayer which is the one with the remembrances and pillars while you are drunk, and do not approach the places of prayer while you are in a state of ritual impurity except while you are passing through the mosque from one side to the other, and the most that can be said about this is that it is a combination of the truth and the metaphor, and it is permissible according to a well-known interpretation.

Ibn Jarir said after narrating the two opinions: The first is the opinion of the one who said, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through, except for those who are passing through a road in it, and that is because he has explained the ruling on the traveler if there is no water and he is in a state of major ritual impurity in his statement, And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the relieving himself or you have contacted women and you find no water, then seek clean earth and clean earth, so it was known from that: that is, that his statement, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through until you have washed, if it had been intended for the traveler, he would not have mentioned it again in his statement,

And if you are ill or on a journey is an understood meaning. Its ruling has been mentioned before. If that is the case, then the interpretation of the verse is: O you who have believed, do not approach the mosques for prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying. And do not approach them while in a state of ritual impurity until you have washed yourself, except when passing through. He said: The one who passes through is the one who passes by and cuts through. It is said from it: I crossed this road, so I cross it crossing and crossing. And from it it is said: So-and-so crossed the river if he crossed it and crossed it. And from it it is said about the strong camel: It is a traveler because of its strength to travel. Ibn Kathir said: What he supported, meaning Ibn Jarir, is the opinion of the majority, and it is the apparent meaning of the verse. End quote. His saying until you wash yourself is the limit of the prohibition against approaching prayer or its places while in a state of ritual impurity. The meaning is: Do not approach it while in a state of ritual impurity until you wash yourself, except when you are passing through. His saying, And if you are ill. Illness is the body's departure from the limits of moderation and habit to crookedness and abnormality. It is of two types: common and mild. What is meant here is that he fears that he will be harmed or injured by using water, or that his body is weak and he is unable to reach a place of water. It was narrated from Al-Hasan that he purifies himself even if he dies. This is false and is refuted by the saying of God, the Most High, And He has not placed upon you in religion any hardship. And His saying, And do not kill yourselves. And His saying, God intends for you ease. His saying, or on a journey permits tayammum for the one who truly is called a traveler. The disagreement is explained in detail in the books of jurisprudence. The majority of scholars have said that it is not a condition that it be a journey of shortening, while some have said that it is necessary. The scholars have agreed on the permissibility of tayammum for the traveler. They differed regarding the resident. Malik and his companions, Abu Hanifa, and Muhammad said that it is permissible in the resident and on a journey. Al-Shafi'i said: It is not permissible for the resident who is healthy to perform tayammum unless he fears damage. His saying, or one of you comes from the privy is the low place and coming from it is a metaphor for impurity, and the plural is ghaytan and aghwat, and the Arabs used to go to this type of place to relieve themselves, concealing themselves from the eyes of people, then the impurity that comes out of a person from the places to relieve themselves, concealing themselves from the eyes of people, then the impurity that comes out of a person was called ghaytham by extension, and all the impurities that invalidate ablution are included in feces. His saying, or you have touched women Nafi', Ibn Kathir, Abu Amr, Asim and Ibn Amir read lamastum, and Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read lamastum. It was said that what is meant by it in the two readings is sexual intercourse, and it was said that what is meant by it is absolute direct contact, and it was said that it combines both matters. Muhammad bin Yazid Al-Mubarrad said: The first in the language is that lamastum means kissed and the like, and lamastum means: you covered.

Scholars differed on the meaning of this, and one group said: Touching here is limited to the hand, not sexual intercourse. They said: The one in a state of major ritual impurity has no way to perform tayammum, but rather he should perform ghusl or abandon prayer until he finds water. This was narrated on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab and Ibn Mas'ud. Ibn 'Abd al-Barr said: None of the jurists of the regions, the people of opinion and the bearers of the narrations, agreed with their statement on this issue. Also, the authentic hadiths refute and invalidate it, such as the hadith of 'Ammar, 'Imran ibn Husayn and Abu Dharr on the tayammum of the one in a state of major ritual impurity. A group said: It is sexual intercourse, as in His statement, Then you divorced them before you touched them, and His statement, And if you divorced them before you touched them, and this was narrated on the authority of 'Ali, Ubayy ibn Ka'b, Ibn 'Abbas, Mujahid, Tawus, al-Hasan, 'Ubayd ibn 'Umair, Sa'id ibn Jubayr, al-Sha'bi, Qatadah, Muqatil ibn Hibban and Abu Hanifah. Malik said: The one who touches her during sexual intercourse performs tayammum, and the one who touches her with the hand performs tayammum if he enjoys it. If he touches her without desire, then there is no ablution. Ahmad and Ishaq said the same. Al-Shafi'i said: If a man touches a woman's body with something from his body, whether by hand or any other part of the body, then purity is invalidated, otherwise it is not. Al-Qurtubi narrated this on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud, Ibn 'Umar, Al-Zuhri and Rabi'ah. Al-Awza'i said: If the touch is with the hand, purity is invalidated, but if it is not with the hand, it does not invalidate it, because of the statement of God the Almighty: And they touched it with their hands. They have presented evidence, each group claiming that its evidence indicates that the touching mentioned in the verse is what they have adopted, but this is not the case. The Companions and those who came after them differed about the meaning of the touching mentioned in the verse. Assuming that it is apparent in sexual intercourse, the reading narrated on the authority of Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i has been proven with the wording or you have touched and it is undoubtedly possible, and with the possibility, the possibility does not support the evidence. This ruling is widespread and establishes the general obligation, so it is not permissible to establish it with a possible meaning that has been disputed over its meaning. If you know this, then the authentic Sunnah has established the obligation of tayammum for the one who has abstained and does not find water, so the one in a state of major ritual impurity is included in the verse by this evidence, and assuming that he is not included, the Sunnah is sufficient for that. As for the obligation of ablution or tayammum for the one who touches a woman with his hand or any part of his body, it is not correct to say that based on this verse because of what you know of the possibility. As for what they used as evidence that a man came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Messenger of God, what do you say about a man who meets a woman he does not know? And a man does not do anything to his wife except that he has done something to her, except that he did not have intercourse with her, so God revealed: "Establish prayer at the two ends of the day and at the approach of the night. Indeed, good deeds do away with misdeeds. That is a reminder for those who remember." It was narrated by Ahmad, Al-Tirmidhi and Al-Nasa'i from the hadith of Mu'adh. They said: He ordered him to perform ablution because he touched the woman but did not have intercourse with her. It is clear to you that this hadith does not indicate the point of dispute, because the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) only ordered him to perform ablution so that he could perform the prayer that God mentioned in this verse, as there is no prayer without ablution. Also, the hadith is disconnected because it is narrated by Ibn Abi Layla from Mu'adh, and he did not meet him. If you understand this, then the basic principle is that this ruling is innocent, and it is not proven except by evidence that is free of impurities that would make it insufficient as evidence. Also, it has been proven from Aisha through various chains of narration that she said: "The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) used to perform ablution, then kiss, then pray without performing ablution." This hadith has been narrated with different wordings. It was narrated by Ahmad, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abu Dawud, An-Nasa'i and Ibn Majah. What was said that it was narrated by Habib ibn Abi Thabit from Urwah from Aishah and he did not hear it from Urwah, Ahmad narrated it in his Musnad from the hadith of Hisham ibn Urwah from his father from Aishah. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Layth from Ata' from Aishah. Ahmad also narrated it, as did Abu Dawud and An-Nasa'i from the hadith of Abu Rawq Al-Hamadani from Ibrahim At-Taymi from Aishah. Ibn Jarir also narrated it from the hadith of Umm Salamah. He also narrated it from the hadith of Zainab As-Sahmiyyah. The wording of the hadith of Umm Salamah is: "The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) used to kiss her while he was fasting and he did not break his fast or perform ablution." The wording of the hadith of Zainab As-Sahmiyyah is: "The Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) used to kiss her and then pray without performing ablution." Ahmad narrated it from Zainab As-Sahmiyyah from Aishah. His saying, and you did not find water. If this restriction refers to all of what was mentioned before after the condition, which is illness, travel, coming from the toilet, and touching women, then it is evidence that illness and travel alone do not justify tayammum. Rather, with the presence of one of the two reasons, there must be no water. So it is not permissible for a sick person to perform tayammum unless he does not find water, and it is not permissible for a traveler to perform tayammum unless he does not find water. However, this poses a problem because the healthy person, like the sick person, if he does not find water, performs tayammum, and likewise for the traveler, the lack of water is most common in his case. Even if it refers to the last two cases, I mean his saying, or one of you comes from the toilet or you have touched women, as some commentators have said, there is a problem in it, which is that whoever is described as sick or traveler is permitted to perform tayammum, even if he finds water and is able to use it. It has been said that this restriction refers to the others, although it is considered in the first two cases because it rarely occurs in them. You are aware that this is a weak statement and a cold interpretation. Malik and those who followed him said: God mentioned illness and travel as a condition for tayammum, considering the most likely for someone who does not find water, unlike the one who is present, as the most likely is its presence, therefore God, the Most High, did not specify it. It appears that illness in and of itself is a justification for tayammum, even if water is present if using it will cause harm to the person immediately or to the person's money, and the fear of loss is not considered, as God, the Most High, says: God intends for you ease and says: And He has not placed upon you in religion any hardship, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, says: Religion is ease and says: Make it easy and do not make it difficult and says: They killed him, may God kill them and says: I was commanded with the easy-going Shari'ah. So if we say that the condition of not having water applies to everyone, the reason for specifying illness is that it is permissible for him to perform tayammum while water is present and available if using it will harm him, so considering that condition is in his case if using it will not harm him, as in mere illness with no harm from using water there is what is suspected of his inability to seek, because the illness causes him a type of weakness. As for the reason for specifying the traveler, there is no doubt that traveling through the land is likely to cause a shortage of water in some places and not others. His saying, Then perform tayammum. Tayammum in the language means: intention. It is said: I intended something: I intended it, and I intended it deliberately, and I intended it with my arrow and spear: I intended it and not anyone else. Al-Khalil recited:

I shot him a spear, then I said to him, This is bravery, not playing with slides.

Imru Al-Qais said:

I went to her from Adhraat and her people are in Yathrib, the nearest of her houses, a high view

He said:

I went to the spring that is near the shade of the desert, and I was thirsty.

Ibn al-Sikkit said: His saying then perform tayammum means: intend, then the use of this word became widespread until tayammum became wiping the face and hands with dirt. Ibn al-Anbari said about their saying that a man has performed tayammum: its meaning is that he has wiped the dirt on his face. This is a confusion between the linguistic meaning and the legal meaning, because the Arabs do not know tayammum to mean wiping the face and hands, rather it is only a legal meaning, and the apparent meaning of the command is obligation, and there is consensus on that. There are many hadiths on this subject. His saying a surface means the surface of the earth, whether there is dirt on it or not, as stated by al-Khalil, Ibn al-A'rabi and al-Zajjaj. Al-Zajjaj said: I do not know of any disagreement among the linguists about it. God the Almighty said: And indeed, We will make that which is upon it a barren plain meaning: a rough land that does not grow anything. And God the Almighty said: Then it will become a slippery plain and Dhu al-Rummah said:

As if he were throwing it at the plain at noon, and hisfang was like a snout in the bones of the head.

It is called a plain because it is the end of the land to which one ascends. The plural of plain is ascents.

Scholars differed as to what is sufficient for tayammum. Malik, Abu Hanifa, al-Thawri and al-Tabari said that it is sufficient with all the surface of the earth, whether it is dirt, sand or stones. They interpreted the statement good to mean that which is pure and not impure. Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and their companions said that tayammum is only sufficient with dirt. They provided evidence for this with the statement of God the Almighty slippery ground meaning smooth, good dirt. They also provided evidence with the statement good and said that good is the dirt that grows. The meaning of good is divided. Some say it is pure as mentioned above, and some say it is that which grows as here, and some say it is permissible. The probable does not constitute an argument, and if there was nothing in the thing that is used for tayammum except what is in the Noble Book, then the truth would be what the first ones said. However, it was established in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Hudhayfah ibn al-Yaman, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "We have excelled the people in three things: Our rows have been made like the rows of the angels, the entire earth has been made a place of prostration for us, and its soil has been made a means of purification for us if we do not find water." And in another version: And its soil has been made a means of purification for us. This explains the meaning of the soil mentioned in the verse, or specifies its generality, or restricts its absoluteness. This is supported by what Ibn Faris narrated from the book of al-Khalil: "Tayammum from soil: means taking some of its dust." End quote. And hard stone has no dust. His saying, Then wipe your faces and your hands. This wiping is general and includes wiping with one or two strokes, and wiping up to the elbows and with two strokes, and what was mentioned about wiping up to the elbows or up to the wrists, and the Sunnah has explained it clearly. We have combined what was mentioned about wiping with one or two strokes and what was mentioned about wiping up to the wrists and up to the elbows in our explanation of Al-Muntaqa and other works of ours in a way that does not require anything else. His saying, Indeed, God is Pardoning and Forgiving. That is, He pardoned you and forgave you your shortcomings and had mercy on you by making things easy for you and being generous with you.

It was narrated by Abd ibn Humayd, Abu Dawud, al-Tirmidhi who authenticated it, al-Nasa'i, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, al-Hakim who authenticated it, and al-Dhiya' in al-Mukhtara on the authority of Ali ibn Abi Talib who said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf made us some food, invited us, and gave us wine to drink. The wine took its toll on us. The time for prayer came, so they brought me forward and I recited "Say, 'O disbelievers, I do not worship what you worship, and we worship what you worship.'" Then God revealed, 'O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying.'" Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on his authority that the one who led them in prayer was Abd al-Rahman. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah regarding the verse, saying: It was revealed about Abu Bakr, Umar, Ali, Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf, and Sa'd. Ali made them food and drink, so they ate and drank. Then he prayed the Maghrib prayer with them and recited Say, 'O disbelievers,' until he finished it, and he said, I have no religion and you have no religion. Then it was revealed. Abd ibn Humayd, Abu Dawud, An-Nasa'i, and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding this verse, saying: It was abrogated by Intoxicants and gambling al-Maisir. Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak regarding the verse, saying: It did not mean alcohol, but rather it meant sleep intoxication. Abd ibn Humayd narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And you are intoxicated, saying: Drowsiness. Al-Faryabi, Ibn Abi Shaybah in Al-Musannaf, Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ali regarding his statement, nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through al-Musannaf, he said: It was revealed regarding the traveler who becomes ritually impure and performs tayammum and prays. In another version, he said: He does not approach the prayer unless he is a traveler who becomes ritually impure and does not find water, so he performs tayammum and prays until he finds water. Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, saying: Do not approach the prayer while you are ritually impure if you find water, but if you do not find water, then it is permissible for you to wipe the ground. And Abd bin Hamid narrated on the authority of Mujahid who said: Neither a menstruating woman nor a person in a state of major ritual impurity should pass through the mosque. Rather, nor in a state of major ritual impurity, except when passing through was revealed for the traveler who should perform tayammum and then pray. And Ad-Daraqutni, At-Tabarani, Abu Nu'aym in Al-Ma'rifa, Ibn Mardawayh, Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan and Ad-Dhiya' in Al-Mukhtara narrated on the authority of Al-Asla' bin Sharik who said: I was saddling the she-camel of the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him), and I became ritually impure on a cold night. The Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) wanted to travel, so I hated to saddle the she-camel while I was ritually impure, and I feared that I would wash myself with cold water and die or become sick. So I ordered a man from the Ansar to saddle her, then I gathered stones and heated water with them and washed myself, then I caught up with the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) and his companions. He said: O Asla', why do I see your mount changed? I said: O Messenger of God, I did not saddle it; a man from the Ansar saddled it. He said: Why? I said: I became ritually impure and feared the cold would affect me, so I ordered him to move it and I gathered stones and heated water with them and washed myself with it, then God revealed: O you who believe until His saying: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through. Ibn Sa'd, 'Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, At-Tabarani and Al-Bayhaqi narrated from another chain of transmission on the authority of Asla' who said: "I was serving the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I would ride for him. One night he said to me: O Asla', get up and ride for me. I said: O Messenger of God, I became ritually impure. He remained silent for a while until Gabriel came with the verse of dust. He said: Get up, Asla', and perform Tayammum." The hadith. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from the path of 'Ata' Al-Khurasani from Ibn 'Abbas: Do not approach the prayer. He said: The mosques. 'Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated from the path of 'Ata' Al-Khurasani from him: nor when you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through. He said: Do not enter the mosque while you are in a state of major ritual impurity except when passing through. He said: Pass by it and do not sit. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud something similar. Abd al-Razzaq and al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on his authority that he used to permit the junub to pass through the mosque but not sit in it, then he recited the verse, nor when you are junub except when passing through. Al-Bayhaqi narrated something similar on the authority of Anas. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Ibn Jarir and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Jabir who said: One of us would pass through the mosque while he was junub, just passing by. Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his verse, and if you are ill, he said: It was revealed about a man from the Ansar who was ill and could not stand to perform ablution and he did not have a servant to help him, so he came to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and mentioned that to him, so God revealed this verse. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi

Hatim and al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his verse, and if you are ill, he said: It is a man who has a wound or an ulcer and is junub and fears that if he performs ablution he will die, so he performs tayammum. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i who said: The companions of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) were wounded and became widespread, then they were afflicted with major ritual impurity, so they complained about that to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him), so the verse and if you are ill was revealed. Abd Al-Razzaq, Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Tabarani, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated through various chains of narration on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud regarding his statement: or you have touched women, he said: Touching is less than intercourse, and kissing is part of it, and ablution is required for it. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar that he used to perform ablution after kissing a woman, and he said: It is touching. Ad-Daraqutni, Al-Bayhaqi and Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Umar who said: Kissing is part of touching, so perform ablution after it. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ali who said: Touching is intercourse, but God used a euphemism for it. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abdul bin Hameed, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated: Saeed bin Jubair said: We were in the room of Ibn Abbas, and with us were Ata bin Abi Rabah and a group of Mawali, Ubaid bin Umair and a group of Arabs, and we were discussing touching. Ata, Mawali and I said: Touching with the hand. Ubaid bin Umair and the Arabs said: It is sexual intercourse. So I went to Ibn Abbas and told him, and he said: The Mawali have prevailed and the Arabs have prevailed. Then he said: Touching, touching and direct contact leading to sexual intercourse are not what they are, but God calls whomever He wills by whatever He wills. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abdul bin Hameed, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in his Sunan on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The best land is the cultivated land.

43- The Almighty said: O you who believe, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated the verse, and what is meant by intoxication is intoxication from wine, according to most scholars, and that is because Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf, may God be pleased with him, made food and invited some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and brought them wine, so they drank it before wine was forbidden and became drunk, and then the Maghrib prayer came, so they brought a man to lead them in prayer, and he recited Say, O you disbelievers, Do I worship what you worship?, deleting /a like this until the end of the surah, and God Almighty revealed this verse, and after the revelation of this verse they avoided intoxication during prayer times until the prohibition of wine was revealed.

Ad-Dahhak bin Muzahim said: He meant by it the intoxication of sleep. He forbade prayer when overcome by sleep. Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir bin Ahmad told us, Abu al-Qasim Ja'far bin Muhammad bin al-Mughlis told us, Harun bin Ishaq al-Hamadani told us, 'Abdah bin Sulayman told us, on the authority of Hisham bin 'Urwah, on the authority of his father, on the authority of 'Aishah, may God be pleased with her, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If one of you feels sleepy while he is praying, then let him lie down until sleep goes away from him, for if one of you prays while he is drowsy, perhaps he will go and seek forgiveness and then curse himself."

The Almighty's saying: Until you know what you are saying, nor while you are in a state of major ritual impurity, is in the accusative case as a state, meaning: Do not approach prayer while you are in a state of major ritual impurity. It is said: a man in a state of major ritual impurity and a woman in a state of major ritual impurity, or men in a state of major ritual impurity and women in a state of major ritual impurity.

The root of Janabah is: distance. He is called Janab because he avoids the place of prayer, or because he avoids people and is far from them, until he performs ablution.

The Almighty said: Except for those passing through, until you have washed yourselves. They differed about its meaning. They said: [Except if you are traveling and cannot find water, then perform tayammum. The one in a state of major ritual impurity is prevented from praying until he has washed himself] unless he is traveling and cannot find water, then he prays with tayammum. This is the opinion of Ali, Ibn Abbas, Saeed bin Jubair, and Mujahid, may God be pleased with them.

Others said: What is meant by prayer is the place of prayer, like the Almighty's saying: And trade and prayers (al-Hajj 22:40), and its meaning is: Do not approach the mosque while you are in a state of ritual impurity except passing through it to exit from them, such as if someone sleeps in the mosque and becomes ritually impure or becomes ritually impure and the water is in the mosque or his path is over it, so he passes through it and does not stay. This is the saying of Abdullah bin Masoud, Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Ad-Dahhak, Al-Hasan, Ikrimah, An-Nakha'i and Az-Zuhri, and that is because some of the Ansar had doors leading to the mosque and they would become ritually impure and they had no water and no passageway except in the mosque, so they were permitted to pass through.

Scholars differed on this matter. Some of them permitted passing through it absolutely, which is the opinion of Al-Hasan, and Malik and Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on them, said the same. Some of them prohibited it absolutely, which is the opinion of the People of Opinion. Some of them said: He should perform tayammum to pass through it.

As for staying, it is not permissible according to most scholars, based on what we have narrated on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Facing these houses away from the mosque, for I do not permit the mosque for a menstruating woman or a person in a state of major ritual impurity. Ahmad permitted staying in it, but the hadith was weak because its narration is unknown, and Al-Muzani said the same.

It is not permissible for a person in a state of major ritual impurity to perform Tawaf, nor is it permissible for him to pray, nor is it permissible for him to recite the Qur'an. Abd al-Wahid ibn Ahmad al-Malhi told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Shuraih told us, Abu al-Qasim al-Baghawi told us, Ali ibn al-Ja'd told us, Shu'bah told us, Amr ibn Murrah told us, he said, I heard Abdullah ibn Salamah say: I entered upon Ali, may God be pleased with him, and he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would relieve himself and eat meat with us and recite the Qur'an, and nothing would prevent him or hinder him from reciting the Qur'an except major ritual impurity."

The ritual bath for major ritual impurity is required by one of two things: either the emission of semen or the meeting of the two circumcised parts, which is the penetration of the glans into the vagina even if it does not ejaculate. The ruling in the beginning was that whoever has intercourse with his wife and is lazy is not required to perform ritual bath, then it was abrogated.

Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us, Al-Rabi' told us, Al-Shafi'i told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ali bin Zaid, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, that Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari asked Aisha, may God be pleased with her, about the meeting of the two circumcised parts. Aisha said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If the two circumcised parts meet, or the circumcised part touches the circumcised part, then a full ablution is required.

God the Almighty said: And if you are ill, the plural of sick, meaning a sick person who is harmed by touching water, such as smallpox and the like, or if there is a wound on the place of his purification, and he fears that using water will cause damage or increase the pain, then he should perform tayammum even if water is available. If some of the parts of his purification are healthy and some are wounded, he should wash the healthy parts and perform tayammum for the wounded one, because Abu Tahir Umar ibn Abd al-Aziz al-Qashani told us: I am Abu Umar al-Qasim ibn Ja'far al-Hashemi, I am Abu Ali Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Amr al-Lulu'i, I am Abu Dawud Sulayman ibn al-Ash'ath al-Sijistani, I am Musa ibn Abd al-Rahman al-Antaki, I am Muhammad ibn Salamah, on the authority of al-Zubayr ibn Khurayq, on the authority of Jabir ibn Abd God, who said: "We went out on a journey and a stone struck one of us and injured his head, so he had a wet dream and asked his companions: Do you find a dispensation for me to perform tayammum? They said: We do not find a dispensation for you, and you are able to use water. So he performed ghusl and died. When we came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he was informed of that, and he said: They killed him, may God kill them. Why did they not ask, since they did not know? Healing the wound: The question is: It would have been sufficient for him to perform dry ablution and squeeze or bandage - the narrator is not sure - a rag over his wound, then wipe over it and wash the rest of his body.

The proponents of this opinion did not permit combining dry ablution with ritual washing. They said: If most of his limbs are healthy, he should wash the healthy part and not perform dry ablution on it. If most of them are injured, he should limit himself to dry ablution.

The hadith is an argument for those who require combining them.

The Almighty's statement: "or on a journey" means that if he is on a journey, whether long or short, and there is no water, then he should pray with tayammum and he does not have to repeat it, based on what was narrated on the authority of Abu Dharr, who said: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Pure earth is the ablution of the Muslim, even if he does not find water for ten years. So if he finds water, then let him touch it with its skin."

If the man is not sick or traveling, but he does not have water in a place where water is not usually lacking, such as if he is in a village whose water has been cut off, then he prays with tayammum and then repeats it if he is able to find water, according to al-Shafi'i. According to Malik and al-Awza'i, they do not have to repeat it, and according to Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him, he delays the prayer until he finds water.

The Almighty said: Or one of you comes from the privy, meaning if he relieves himself. Excrement is a name for a quiet part of the earth. It was the custom of the Arabs to go to the privy to relieve himself, so excrement was used as a metaphor for impurity. Or you have touched women, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read you have touched here and in Al-Ma'idah, and the rest read you have touched women.

They differed about the meaning of touch and contact. Some people said: sexual intercourse. This is the opinion of Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, Mujahid, and Qatadah. I used the term touch [for sexual intercourse because sexual intercourse does not occur except by touch].

Some people said: They are the meeting of two skins, whether by intercourse or otherwise. This is the opinion of Ibn Masoud, Ibn Omar, Al-Shaabi, and Al-Nakha'i.

The jurists differed regarding the ruling of the verse. A group of them said that if a man touches a part of his body with a part of a woman's body and there is no barrier between them, their ablution is invalidated. This is the opinion of Ibn Masoud and Ibn Omar, may God be pleased with them, and it was also said by Al-Zuhri, Al-Awza'i, and Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with them.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Malik, Al-Layth bin Saad, Ahmad and Ishaq said: If the touch was with lust, it invalidates the purity, but if it was not with lust, it does not invalidate it.

Some people said: Ablution is not invalidated by touching in any case. This is the opinion of Ibn Abbas, and it was also said by Al-Hasan and Al-Thawri.

Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him, said: It is not invalidated unless it spreads.

Those who do not require ablution by touching have argued that Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abu al-Nadr, the freed slave of 'Umar ibn 'Abdullah, on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn 'Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of 'Aisha, may God be pleased with her, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that she said: "I used to sleep in front of the Messenger of God, and my feet were in his direction. When he prostrated, he nudged me, so I would pull my feet back, and when he stood, I would stretch them out. She said: And there were no lamps in the houses at that time."

Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, on the authority of Zahir ibn Ahmad, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi, on the authority of Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Yahya ibn Sa'id, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Ibrahim ibn al-Harith al-Taymi, that Aisha, may God be pleased with her, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I was sleeping next to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I missed him during the night, so I touched him with my hand and placed my hand on his feet while he was prostrating and he was saying: 'I seek refuge in Your pleasure from Your wrath, in Your pardon from Your punishment, and in You from You. I cannot count Your praises. You are as You have praised Yourself.'"

Al-Shafi'i's statement, may God be pleased with him, differed regarding whether he touched a woman who is one of his mahrams, such as his mother, daughter, or sister, or touched a young foreign woman. The more correct of the two statements is that it does not invalidate ablution because she is not a place of desire, as if he touched a man.

His statement regarding the invalidation of ablution by touching differs into two opinions. One of them: It is invalidated because they share in the pleasure, just as they must perform ablution after intercourse. The second: It is not invalidated, based on the hadith of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, where she said: So I placed my hand on his feet while he was prostrating.

If he touches a woman's hair, teeth, or nails, his ablution is not invalidated in his opinion.

Know that the prayer of a person in a state of minor ritual impurity is not valid unless he performs ablution if he finds water, or performs dry ablution if he does not find water. Hassan bin Saeed Al-Munai'i told us, Abu Tahir Al-Ziyadi told us, Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Al-Hussein Al-Qattan told us, Ahmad bin Yusuf Al-Masli told us, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, Hammam bin Munabbih told us, Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The prayer of any one of you is not accepted if he is in a state of minor ritual impurity until he performs ablution.

The event is the exit of something from one of the two vaginas, whether it is visible or a trace, and the mind is overcome by madness or fainting in any case. As for sleep, the doctrine of Al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, is that it requires ablution, unless one sleeps while sitting and able to do so, in which case there is no ablution for them, as Abdul-Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib informed us, Abdul-Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib informed us, Abdul-Aziz Al-Khalal informed us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm informed us, Al-Rabi' informed us, Al-Shafi'i informed us, Al-Thiqat informed us, on the authority of Hamid Al-Tawil, on the authority of Anas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: "The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would wait for the evening prayer and sleep, I think he said while sitting, until their heads would shake, then they would pray and not perform ablution."

Some people went to sleep and ablution is required in all cases. This is the opinion of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, and Aisha, may God be pleased with her. This is what Al-Hasan, Ishaq, and Al-Muzani said. Some people went to the opinion that if he slept standing, sitting, or prostrating, then he does not have to perform ablution until he sleeps lying down. This is what Al-Thawri, Ibn Al-Mubarak, and the People of Opinion said.

They differed about touching the vagina by oneself or by someone else. A group of people said that it necessitates ablution, which is the opinion of Umar, Ibn Abbas, Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas, Abu Hurayrah, and Aisha, may God be pleased with them. Sa'id ibn al-Musayyab, Sulayman ibn Yasar, and Urwah ibn al-Zubayr said the same. Al-Awza'i, al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, and Ishaq also said the same. Likewise, a woman touches her vagina, except that al-Shafi'i, may God be pleased with him, said that it does not nullify ablution unless it is touched with the palm of the hand or the palms of the fingers.

They cited as evidence what Abu al-Hasan al-Sarakhsi told us, I told Zahir ibn Ahmad, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, I told Abu Mus'ab, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Abi Bakr ibn Muhammad ibn 'Amr ibn Hazm, that he heard 'Urwah ibn al-Zubayr say: I entered upon Marwan ibn al-Hakam and we mentioned what constitutes ablution, so Marwan said: Whoever touches his penis must perform ablution, so 'Urwah said: I did not know that, so Marwan said: Busrah bint Safwan told me that she heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: If one of you touches his penis, let him perform ablution.

A group of people said that it does not require ablution. This was narrated on the authority of Ali, Ibn Masoud, Abu al-Darda', and Hudhayfah. Al-Hasan said the same, and al-Thawri, Ibn al-Mubarak, and the people of opinion agreed with it.

They cited as evidence what was narrated on the authority of Talq bin Ali, may God be pleased with him, "that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man touching his penis, and he said: Is it anything but a part of you? And he narrated Is it anything but a part or a morsel of it."

And whoever made ablution obligatory from it said: This was abrogated by the hadith of Basra because Abu Hurairah also narrates: That ablution is required from touching the penis, and this is a late conversion to Islam, and the arrival of Talq bin Ali to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was at the beginning of the period of migration when he was building the mosque.

They differed about the removal of impurity from other than the private parts by bloodletting, cupping, and other things such as vomiting and the like. A group of people held that it does not require ablution. This was narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Omar and Abdullah bin Abbas, and this is what Ata', Tawus, Al-Hasan, and Saeed bin Al-Musayyab said, and Malik and Al-Shafi'i held this opinion.

A group of people believed that ablution is not required due to vomiting, nosebleeds, bloodletting, and cupping, including Sufyan al-Thawri, Ibn al-Mubarak, the People of Opinion, Ahmad, and Ishaq.

They agreed that a small amount of it and the exit of wind from other than the two passages does not require ablution. If a large amount of it required ablution, it would require a small amount of it, such as the vagina.

If you do not find water, then perform tayammum.

Know that tayammum is one of the characteristics of this nation. Hudhayfah, may God be pleased with him, narrated that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "We have been given three advantages over the al-Nas 114: Our rows have been made like the rows of angels, the entire earth has been made a place of prostration for us, and its soil has been made a means of purification for us if we do not find water."

And the beginning of tayammum was what Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us. Abu Ali Zahir ibn Ahmad al-Sarakhsi told us. Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi told us. Abu Musab told us, on the authority of Malik, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn al-Qasim, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her, the wife of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "We went out with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on one of his journeys, until when we were in al-Baida' or Dhat al-Jaysh, a necklace of mine broke. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stayed looking for it, and the people stayed with him, and they were not near any water and they had no water with them. So the people came to Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, and they said: Do you not see what Aisha did? She stayed with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the people with him, and they were not near any water and they had no water with them. So Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, came and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was sleeping and he said: You detained the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the people, and they were not near any water and they had no water with them. She said: So Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, rebuked me and said what God willed him to say, and he began to poke me in the side with his hand, and nothing prevented me from moving except the place of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace." Upon him be peace and blessings, on his thighs, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood up when morning came without water, so God Almighty revealed the verse of tayammum: Then perform tayammum. So Asid bin Hudhair, one of the leaders, said: This is not the first of your blessings, O family of Abu Bakr. Aisha, may God be pleased with us, said: So we sent the camel that I was riding and we found the necklace under it.

And Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Ubaid bin Ismail, I told Abu Usamah, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Aisha, may God be pleased with her: "She borrowed a necklace from Asma, and it was lost. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent some of his companions to look for it, and the time for prayer came upon them, so they prayed without performing ablution. When they came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, they complained about that to him, and the verse about tayammum was revealed. So Asid bin Hudhair said: May God reward you with good, for by God, no matter has ever befallen you except that God has made a way out for you from it and has made a blessing for the Muslims in it."

Perform tayammum, meaning: intend to use clean soil, meaning: pure, clean soil. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: Soil means dust.

O you who have believed, do not approach prayer while you are intoxicated until you know what you are saying or in a state of janabah, except those passing through, until you have bathed. And if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the privy or you have touched women and you do not find water, then seek clean earth. Then wipe over your faces and your hands. Indeed, Allah is Pardoning and Forgiving.

Scholars differed about what is permissible to perform tayammum. Al-Shafi'i, may God have mercy on him, said that it is specific to what is called soil, and that which has dust on the hand, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Its soil has been made a means of purification for us.

The people of opinion permitted tayammum with arsenic, gypsum, lime, and other layers of the earth, to the point that they said: If he strikes his hands on a rock with no dust on it or on the dirt, then blows into it until it all disappears, then wipes his face and hands with it, his tayammum is valid. They said: The surface of the earth is the face of the earth, because of what was narrated on the authority of Jabir, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The earth has been made a place of prostration and purification for me.

This is a summary, and the hadith of Hudhayfah regarding the specification of the soil is an explanation, and the explanation of the hadith eliminates the summary.

Some of them permitted tayammum with anything connected to the ground, such as trees, plants, and the like. He said: Sa'id is the name for what rises above the surface of the earth.

Intending to the dust is a condition for the validity of dry ablution, because God Almighty said: Then perform dry ablution, and dry ablution means intending, even if he stands in the wind and the dust hits his face and he intends, it is not valid.

God the Almighty said: "Then wipe your faces and your hands. Indeed, God is Pardoning and Forgiving." Know that wiping the face and hands is obligatory in tayammum, and they differed regarding its manner: Most scholars held that one should wipe the face and hands, including the elbows, with two strokes, striking the palms of one's hands on the dirt and wiping his entire face, and it is not necessary to reach the dirt below the hair, then striking another stroke and wiping his hands up to the elbows, because Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad bin Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm, Al-Rabi', Al-Shafi'i, Ibrahim bin Muhammad, on the authority of Abu Al-Huwayrith, on the authority of Al-A'raj, on the authority of Abu Al-Sammah, who said: "I passed by the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was urinating, so I greeted him, but he did not respond to me until he went to a wall and scraped it with a stick that he had with him, then he put his hands on the wall and wiped his face and arms, then he responded to me." This is evidence of the obligation of wiping the hands up to the elbows, just as it is obligatory to wash them in ablution up to the elbows, and evidence that tayammum is not valid unless dust sticks to the hands, because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, scraped the wall. With a stick, even if just beating was enough, it wouldn't have been enough.

Al-Zuhri said that he wipes his hands up to his shoulders, based on what was narrated on the authority of Ammar that he said: We performed tayammum up to the shoulders. This is a narration of his action, not a transmission from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, as it was narrated that he said: "I became ritually impure and rubbed myself in the dust, and when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked, he ordered him to wipe his face and hands."

A group of people said that tayammum is one strike for the face and hands, and this is the opinion of Ali and Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them, and this is what Al-Sha'bi, Ata' bin Abi Rabah, and Makhul said, and Al-Awza'i, Ahmad, and Ishaq went to it, and they cited as evidence what Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Adam, I told Shu'bah, Al-Hakam told us, on the authority of Dhir, on the authority of Saeed bin Abdul Rahman, on the authority of Abzi, on the authority of his father, who said: "A man came to Umar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, and said: I became ritually impure but I could not find water. Ammar bin Yasir said to Umar bin Al-Khattab: Do you not remember that we were on a journey, you and I, and you did not pray, and I rubbed myself together and prayed? I mentioned that to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: It would have been sufficient for you like this. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, struck the ground with his hands and blew into them, then wiped his face and hands with them."

Muhammad bin Ismail said: I am Muhammad bin Katheer on the authority of Shu'bah with his chain of transmission, so Ammar said to Umar, may God be pleased with him: "I was covered with a cloak and came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: 'The face and hands are sufficient for you.'"

The hadith is evidence that if a person in a state of ritual impurity does not find water, he should pray with tayammum. The same applies to a menstruating woman or a woman in postpartum bleeding if they become pure and do not have water.

Omar and Ibn Masoud may God be pleased with them said that the person in a state of major ritual impurity should not pray with tayammum, but rather delay the prayer until he finds water and then performs ghusl. They interpreted the words of God the Almighty: or you have touched women as referring to touching with the hand without intercourse. The hadith of Ammar may God be pleased with him is an argument, but Omar forgot what Ammar had mentioned to him and was not satisfied with his words. It was narrated that Ibn Masoud may God be pleased with him retracted his statement and permitted tayammum for the person in a state of major ritual impurity. The evidence for this is also: What Abdul Wahhab bin Muhammad Al-Khatib told us, Abdul Aziz bin Ahmad Al-Khalal told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Asamm told us, Al-Rabi' told us, Al-Shafi'i told us, Ibrahim bin Muhammad told us, on the authority of Ayyad bin Mansour, on the authority of Abu Raja' Al-Attardi, on the authority of Imran bin Husayn may God be pleased with them "that the Prophet (blessings and peace of God be upon him) commanded a man who was in a state of major ritual impurity to perform tayammum and then pray, and when he finds water, he should perform ghusl."

And Umar ibn Abdul Aziz told us, I told Abu al-Qasim ibn Ja'far al-Hashemi, I told Abu Ali al-Lulu'i, I told Abu Dawud al-Sijistani, I told Musaddad, I told Khalid al-Wasiti, on the authority of Khalid al-Hadha', on the authority of Abu Amr ibn Bajdan, on the authority of Abu Dharr, may God be pleased with them, who said: "The spoils of charity were collected in the presence of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: O Abu Dharr, spend it. So I went to al-Rabdhah, and I would become ritually impure, so I would spend five or six days. So I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: 'Pure earth is the ablution of a Muslim, even if it lasts for ten years. So if you find water, then let your skin touch it, for that is better.'"

Wiping the face and hands in tayammum is sometimes a substitute for washing the entire body for someone in a state of major ritual impurity, a menstruating woman, a woman in postpartum bleeding, or someone who has just given birth. Sometimes it is a substitute for washing the four limbs for someone who is in a state of minor ritual impurity. Sometimes it is a substitute for washing some of the parts of purity, such that there is an injury on some of the parts of his purity that he cannot wash. In this case, he must perform tayammum instead of washing it.

It is not permissible to perform tayammum for the obligatory prayer except after the time has begun, and it is not permissible to combine two obligatory prayers with one tayammum, because God Almighty said: When you rise to prayer, wash your faces until He said: And if you find no water, then seek clean earth Al-Bukhari and Muslim. The apparent meaning of the verse indicates the obligation of ablution or tayammum if one does not find water for each prayer, except that evidence has been established regarding ablution, as the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, prayed the prayers with one ablution on the day of the conquest of Mecca, so tayammum remained on its apparent meaning. This is the opinion of Ali, Ibn Abbas, and Ibn Umar, may God be pleased with them, and it was said by Al-Sha'bi, Al-Nakha'i, and Qatadah, and it was the opinion of Malik, Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad, and Ishaq.

A group of people said that dry ablution is like purification with water, and it is permissible to perform it before the time of prayer, and it is permissible to pray with it as many obligatory prayers as one wishes, as long as one does not break one's ablution. This is the opinion of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, Al-Hasan, Al-Zuhri, Al-Thawri, and the People of Opinion.

They agreed that it is permissible for a person to perform one tayammum with the obligatory prayer, as many voluntary prayers as he wishes, before and after the obligatory prayer, and to recite the Qur'an if he is in a state of major ritual impurity. If his tayammum is due to the excuse of travel and the lack of water, then it is a condition that he seek water, which is that he seek it from his companions and companions.

If he is in a desert with no barrier preventing his vision, he should look around him. If there is a barrier near a hill or wall preventing his vision, he should turn away from it, because God Almighty said: But if you do not find water, then perform tayammum. It is not said: He did not find water, except for someone who sought it.

According to Abu Hanifa, may God be pleased with him: Seeking water is not a condition. If he sees water but there is a barrier between him and the water, such as an enemy or a wild animal, preventing him from going to it, or the water is in the well and he does not have the means to draw water with him, then he is like someone who does not have it. He prays with tayammum and does not have to repeat it.

that tayammum does not remove ritual impurity. And whoever interprets prayer according to its places interprets those passing through as those who pass through it, and permits the one in a state of major ritual impurity to pass through the mosque. Al-Shafi'i may God be pleased with him said the same. Abu Hanifah may God be pleased with him said: It is not permissible for him to pass through the mosque unless there is water or a path in it. Until you wash yourselves is the ultimate prohibition against approaching while in a state of major ritual impurity, and the verse is an alert that the one praying should avoid what distracts him and occupies his heart, and purify himself from what it is necessary to purify himself from. And if you are ill with an illness that makes it difficult to use water, then the one who has it is like the one who does not have it. Or an illness that prevents him from reaching it. Or on a journey where you do not find it. Or one of you comes from the privy and breaks his ablution by the discharge of urine from one of the two passages, and the origin of excrement is the quiet place on the ground. Or you have touched women or you touch their skin with your skin, and this is what Al-Shafi'i used as evidence that touching invalidates ablution. It was said: Or you have sexual intercourse with them. Hamzah and Al-Kisa'i read here and in Al-Ma'idah you touched, and its use as a metaphor for sexual intercourse is less than touching. And you do not find water so you are not able to use it, since the one who is forbidden from it is like the one who does not have it. The reason for this division is that the one who is permitted to perform tayammum is either in a state of minor ritual impurity or in a state of major ritual impurity, and the condition that requires it is usually illness or travel. As for the one who is in a state of major ritual impurity, as mentioned above, his condition was limited to a statement, and as for the one who is in a state of minor ritual impurity, as mentioned above, his causes were mentioned, what happens intrinsically and what happens incidentally. He dispensed with detailing his conditions by detailing the condition of the one in a state of major ritual impurity and explaining the excuse in general, so it is as if it was said: If you are in a state of major ritual impurity, sick, on a journey, or in a state of minor ritual impurity and you have come from the toilet or you do not find water, then perform tayammum with clean earth and wipe your faces and hands. That is, deliberately do something clean from the surface of the earth. Therefore, the Hanafis said: If the one performing tayammum strikes his hand on a hard stone and wipes it, it is sufficient for him. Our companions said that some dirt must be attached to the hand, based on the Almighty's statement in al-Ma'idah 5: Then wipe your faces and hands with it, meaning some of it. Making min the beginning of the end is arbitrary, since nothing can be understood from something like that except partiality. The hand is the name of the limb up to the shoulder, and what was narrated that the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) performed tayammum and wiped his hands up to his elbows, and analogy with ablution is evidence that what is meant here is and your hands up to the elbows. "God is Forgiving and Forgiving." Therefore, He made the matter easy for you and permitted you.

Surat al-Nisa 4:44

Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They purchase error and wish you to go astray from the way.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They purchase error in exchange for guidance and want you to go astray from the path. You stray from the path so that you will be like them.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: Have you not seen? Ibn Ishaq narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Rifa'ah ibn Zayd ibn al-Tabut was one of the great Jews, and when he spoke to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he would twist his tongue and say: Listen to us, O Muhammad, so that we may understand you. Then he made a joke about Islam, so God revealed about it: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture, who purchase error?

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed regarding the meaning of the words of God Almighty: Have you not seen those who? Some people said: Its meaning is: Have you not been informed?

Others said: It means, did you not know?

Abu Ja'far said: The correct thing to say about that is: Did you not see in your heart, O Muhammad, knowledge, to those who were given a portion. That is because report and knowledge do not bring about seeing, but rather it is the seeing of the heart through knowledge. So that is as we said about it.

As for the interpretation of his saying: To those who were given a portion of the Scripture, it means: To those who were given a portion of the Book of God and learned it.

He mentioned that God meant by that a group of Jews who were around the time of the migration of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

He mentioned that:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They purchase error and wish to make you go astray from the way. They are the enemies of God, the Jews, they purchased error.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture until His saying: They distort words from their [proper] usages.

He said: It was revealed about Rifa'ah ibn Zayd ibn Al-Sa'ib the Jew.

Abu Kuraib narrated, he said: Yunus bin Bakir narrated, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, he said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit narrated, he said: Saeed bin Jubair or Ikrimah narrated, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: Rifa'ah bin Zaid bin al-Tabut was one of their leaders, meaning one of the leaders of the Jews. Whenever he spoke to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he would twist his tongue and say: Listen to us, O Muhammad, so that we may understand you! Then he attacked Islam and criticised it, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They purchase error until His saying: So they believe not, except a few.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Salamah told us, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on his chain of transmission, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Abu Ja'far said: What God Almighty means by His statement, They purchase misguidance, are the Jews who were given a portion of the Book, who choose misguidance, and that is: taking a path other than the truth, and riding a path other than the right path and righteousness, despite their knowledge of the intention of the path and the method of truth. And God meant by describing them as purchasing misguidance: their persistence in denying Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and their abandonment of belief in him, while they know that the true path is belief in him and confirming him with what they have found of his description in their books that they have.

As for His statement: And they want you to go astray from the path, by that He, the Most High, means: And these Jews, whom He, the Most High, described as having been given a portion of the Book, want you to go astray, you, O group of companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, who believe in him, to go astray from the path, He says: That you deviate from the straight path and the path of truth, so that you deny Muhammad and become astray like them.

This is a warning from God Almighty to His believing servants, not to seek advice from any of the enemies of Islam regarding any matter related to their religion, or to listen to any of their attacks on the truth.

The Almighty said: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture? to the Almighty's saying: Some of them believed in it and some of them turned away from it. The verse.

It was revealed about the Jews of Medina and its environs. Ibn Ishaq said: Rifa'ah ibn Zayd ibn al-Tabut was one of the great Jews. Whenever he spoke to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he would twist his tongue and say: Look, O Muhammad, so that we may understand you. Then he would criticize Islam and criticize it. So God Almighty revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? until His saying: a little. The meaning of buy is exchange, so it is in the accusative case as a state, and there is an omission in the speech, the meaning of which is that they buy misguidance for guidance, as God Almighty said: Those are the ones who have purchased misguidance for guidance. (al-Baqarah 2:16) Al-Qatabi and others said this. And they want you to go astray from the path is in apposition to it, and the meaning is that you go astray from the path of truth. Al-Hasan read: go astray with the opening of the letter dād, meaning from the path.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty tells us about the Jews - upon them be the continuous curses of God until the Day of Resurrection - that they buy misguidance in exchange for guidance, and turn away from what God has revealed to His Messenger, and abandon what they have in their hands of knowledge from the previous prophets in the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in order to buy with it a small price from the debris of this world, and they want you to go astray from the path meaning they wish you would disbelieve in what has been revealed to you, O believers, and abandon what you are upon of guidance and beneficial knowledge, and God knows best about your enemies meaning He knows them best and warns you against them, and sufficient is God as a protector, and sufficient is God as a helper meaning He is sufficient as a protector for whoever seeks refuge in Him and a helper for whoever seeks His help. Then the Almighty said: Of those who are Jews. "Of" in this is to clarify the type, like His saying: So avoid the uncleanness of idols. And His saying: They distort words from their places. That is, they interpret words in a way other than their interpretation, and they explain them in a way other than what God Almighty intended, intentionally and fabricatingly. And they say, 'We hear and disobey.' That is, they say, We hear what you said, O Muhammad, and we do not obey you in it. This is how Mujahid and Ibn Zayd explained it, and this is what is meant. This is more eloquent in their disbelief and stubbornness, and that they turn away from the Book of God after they have understood it, and they know what sin and punishment are upon them for that. And His saying: And listen, but you are not listened to. That is, listen to what we say, not to hear. It was narrated by Ad-Dahhak on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Mujahid and Al-Hasan said: And listen, but you are not accepted from them. Ibn Jarir said: The first is more correct, and it is as he said: This is mockery and disdain from them, upon them be the curse of God. And beware of their twisting of their tongues and their attack on the religion. That is, they give the impression that they are saying: They have heard you say, Ra'ina, but they only mean to be rash by insulting the Prophet. We have already discussed this in His statement, O you who believe, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' but say, 'Unzurna.' This is why God the Almighty said about these Jews who want to speak differently from what they show, to twist their tongues and attack the religion, meaning by insulting the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then God the Almighty said, "And if they had said, 'We hear and obey,' and 'Listen and unzurna,' it would have been better for them and more upright. But God has cursed them for their disbelief, so they do not believe except a little." That is, their hearts are driven away from goodness and far from it, so nothing beneficial to them enters them from faith. We have already discussed God the Almighty's statement, So little do they believe, and what is meant is that they do not believe with a beneficial faith.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 44- Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? This is a new statement, and the address is to all Muslims who can see. The portion is the fortune, and what is meant is the Jews who were given a portion of the Torah. His statement they buy is a circumstantial clause, and what is meant by buying is substitution, and its meaning has been explained previously. The meaning is that the Jews substituted misguidance, which is remaining in Judaism after the proof of the truth of the prophethood of our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had become clear. His statement and they want you to go astray from the path is in apposition to his statement they buy, participating in explaining the evil of their actions and the weakness of their choice: that is, they were not satisfied with what they brought upon themselves by substituting misguidance for guidance, but rather they wanted, along with their misguidance, to reach, through their concealment and denial, that you, O believers, go astray from the straight path, which is the path of truth.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

44- The Almighty said: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? meaning: the Jews of Medina. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, said: It was revealed about Rifa'ah bin Zaid and Malik bin Dakhshum. Whenever the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke, they would twist their tongues and criticize him. Then God Almighty revealed this verse: They buy they exchange misguidance meaning: for guidance, and they want you to go astray from the path meaning: from the path, O group of believers.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

44 Have you not seen those who have been given from the vision of sight, meaning have you not looked at them, or the heart, and the preposition to is used to include the meaning of completion. A portion of the Book a small portion of the knowledge of the Torah because what is meant are the Jewish rabbis. They purchase error they choose it over guidance, or they exchange it for it after they have mastered it, or have obtained it for themselves by denying the prophethood of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. It was said: They take bribes and distort the Torah. And they want you to go astray O believers. The path is the path of truth.

Surat al-Nisa 4:45

And Allah knows best about your enemies. And sufficient is Allah as a protector, and sufficient is Allah as a helper.

Surat al-Nisa 4:45

And God knows best about your enemies. And sufficient is God as a protector, and sufficient is God as a helper.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And God knows best about your enemies than you do, so He informs you of them so that you may avoid them. And sufficient is God as a protector to protect you from them. And sufficient is God as a helper to prevent you from their plots.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Then God, the Most High, informed us about the enmity of these Jews, whom He forbade the believers to seek advice from in their religion, so He, the Most High, said: And God knows best about your enemies. By that, He, the Most High, means: And God knows better than you about the enmity of these Jews towards you, O believers. He says: So stop obeying Me in what I have forbidden you from seeking advice from them in your religion, for I know what they are upon towards you of deceit, enmity, and envy, and that they only seek to cause you calamities, and they seek for you to stray from the path of truth and thus perish.

As for his statement: And sufficient is God as a Guardian, and sufficient is God as a Helper, he is saying: So, O believers, trust in God, rely on Him, and turn to Him, and to none other than Him, He will suffice you in your concern and grant you victory over your enemies. And sufficient is God as a Guardian, he says: And sufficient is God, your Lord, as a Guardian who looks after you and takes care of your affairs by protecting you and guarding against your enemies provoking you away from your religion or turning you away from following your Prophet. And sufficient is God as a Helper, he says: And sufficient is God as a Helper for you against your enemies and the enemies of your religion, and against whoever seeks to harm you and seeks to distort your religion.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: And God knows best about your enemies means you, so do not take them as your companions, for they are your enemies. It is possible that know best means all-knowing, as in the Almighty's saying: And it is easier for Him (al-Rum 30:27). A] Easy: And sufficient is God as a protector. The ba is an extra letter that was added because the meaning is: Be sufficient with God, for He is sufficient for you against your enemies as a protector and supporter. It is accusative for clarification, and if you wish, it is in the state.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty tells us about the Jews - upon them be the continuous curses of God until the Day of Resurrection - that they buy misguidance in exchange for guidance, and turn away from what God has revealed to His Messenger, and abandon what they have in their hands of knowledge from the previous prophets in the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in order to buy with it a small price from the debris of this world, and they want you to go astray from the path meaning they wish you would disbelieve in what has been revealed to you, O believers, and abandon what you are upon of guidance and beneficial knowledge, and God knows best about your enemies meaning He knows them best and warns you against them, and sufficient is God as a protector, and sufficient is God as a helper meaning He is sufficient as a protector for whoever seeks refuge in Him and a helper for whoever seeks His help. little do they believe, and what is meant is that they do not believe with a beneficial faith.

Fath al-Qadir

45- And God knows best about your enemies O believers, and what they want to do to you in terms of misguidance. The sentence is parenthetical. And God is sufficient as a protector for you. And God is sufficient as a supporter He supports you in times of war. So be content with His protection and support, and do not befriend anyone other than Him, nor seek support from him. The ba in His statement by God in both places is redundant.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

45- And God knows best about your enemies than you do, so do not seek their advice, for they are your enemies. And sufficient is God as a protector, and sufficient is God as a helper. Al-Zajaj said: Its meaning is to be satisfied with God as a protector, and be satisfied with God as a helper.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

45 And God knows best more than you do. About your enemies. He has informed you of the enmity of these people and what they want for you, so beware of them. And sufficient is God as a protector who looks after your affairs. And sufficient is God as a supporter who helps you, so trust in Him and be satisfied with Him instead of anyone else. The letter ba is added to the subject of kafa to emphasize the attributive connection with the additional connection.

Surat al-Nisa 4:46

Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages and say, "We hear and we disobey" and "Hear" while you do not hear and "Observe us" with a twist of their tongues and as a slander against the religion. But if they had said, "We hear and we obey" and "Hear and observe" it would have been better for them and more upright. But Allah has cursed them for their disbelief. So do not They believe except for a few.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Of those who are Jews are a people who distort change the words that God revealed in the Torah describing Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace from their places in which they were placed and they say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he orders them to do something We hear your saying and we disobey your command and listen, but we do not listen a state meaning a supplication, i.e. you did not hear and they say to him Ra'ina and he forbade addressing him with it and it is a word of abuse in their language twisting distorting with their tongues and attacking slandering the religion Islam and if they had said We hear and we obey instead of We disobey and listen only and look at us look at us instead of Ra'ina it would have been better for them than what they said and more upright more just than it but God has cursed them He has distanced them from His mercy for their disbelief, so they do not believe except a few of them like Abdullah bin Salam and his companions

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: Regarding the words of God, the Most High: Some of the Jews distort words, there are two interpretations. One of them is that its meaning is: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? "Some of the Jews distort words," so his words, some of the Jews, are related to some of those. And to this statement the majority of the Arab scholars from Kufa attributed his words, some of the Jews distort.

The other of them: that its meaning is: Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their places, so min is omitted from the speech, and it is sufficient to indicate it with his saying: among those who are Jews.

This is because if min was mentioned in speech, it would be part of min, so it is sufficient to indicate min on it. The Arabs say: Munna yaqool daha some of us says that, and Munna la yaqooluhu some of us does not say that, meaning: Munna yaqooluhu some of us says that, and Munna yaqooluhu some of us does not say it, so min is omitted because it is sufficient to indicate min on it, as Dhu al-Rummah said:

They remained, some of them with tears running down their faces, and others with tears streaming down their faces.

Meaning: And among them are those who shed tears, as God Almighty said: And there is not one of us but has a known position (al-Saffat 37:164). And to this meaning the majority of the Arab scholars from Basra directed the interpretation of his statement: Among those who are Jews are those who distort words, except that they said: The implied pronoun in that is the people, as if its meaning for them is: Among those who are Jews are people who distort words, and they say: Similar to the statement of An-Nabigha:

As if you were one of the camels of Bani Aqish, rattling behind his feet with a shan Meaning: As if you are a camel from the camels of Bani Aqish.

As for the grammarians of Kufa, they deny that the pronoun with min is except min or something similar.

Abu Ja'far said: The statement that I think is more correct in this regard is the statement of those who said: His statement, of those who are Jews, is connected to those who were given a portion of the Scripture, because both reports and descriptions are descriptions of one type of people, namely the Jews, whose description God described in His statement, Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? And thus came the interpretation of the people of interpretation, so there is no need in the speech, since the matter is thus, for there to be something left out in it.

As for the interpretation of his statement: They distort words from their proper places, he is saying: They change their meaning and alter their interpretation. Words is the plural of a word.

Mujahed used to say: He meant by the words the Torah.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: They distort words from their proper places, the Jews' alteration of the Torah.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

As for his saying: from its places, he means: from its places and faces, which are its faces.

By this, He, the Most High, means: Among those who are Jews, they say: We heard, O Muhammad, your words, and we disobeyed your command, as:

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of al-Qasim ibn Abi Bazza, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: We hear and disobey, he said: The Jews said: We hear what you say, but we do not obey you.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said: Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement, We hear and disobey, they said: We have heard, but we do not obey you.

Abu Ja'far said: This is report from God, may He be glorified, about the Jews who were around the migration of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, during his time: that they used to curse the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and hurt him with ugly words, and they would say to him: Listen to us but you will not be heard, like the one who says to the man who curses him: Listen, may God not make you hear, as:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: And listen, but you are not made to hear, he said: This is the statement of the People of the Book, the Jews, like a person saying: Listen, but you do not hear, as an insult to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and as a reviling and mockery of him.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Munjab, who said: Bishr bin Amara narrated to us, on the authority of Abu Rawq, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And listen, but you are not made to listen. He said: They say to you: And listen, but you are not made to listen.

It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid and Al-Hasan that they interpreted this to mean: Listen to what is not accepted from you.

If that was its meaning, it would have been said: And hear, but do not hear. But its meaning is: And hear, do not hear. But God Almighty said: They twist with their tongues and attack the religion. So He described them as distorting the words with their tongues and attacking the religion by insulting the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

As for the statement you mentioned about Mujahid: And listen to what is not heard, he says: What you say is not accepted, so it is as follows:

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: And listen without being made to listen, he said: Without being heard - Ibn Jurayj said, on the authority of Al-Qasim Ibn Abi Bazza, on the authority of Mujahid: And listen without being made to listen, what you say is not acceptable.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: And listen without being heard, he said: As you say, Listen without being heard from you.

Musa bin Harun told us, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, he said: Some of them used to say: And listen without being made to listen, like you say: Listen, without being humbled.

Abu Ja'far said: What he means by his saying: And pay attention to us is: pay attention to us, listen to us, understand from us and make us understand. We have explained the interpretation of that in Surat Al-Baqarah with its evidence, which is sufficient to not need to be repeated.

Then God, the Most High, informed us about them saying that to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with their tongues, meaning that they moved their tongues by distorting its meaning to something more abhorrent, and belittling the right of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and attacking the religion, as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told me, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, he said, Qatada said, the Jews used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: Pay attention to your hearing! They were mocking that, so it was considered ugly among the Jews to say: Pay attention to your hearing, "as a way of moving their tongues," and as a way of attacking the religion.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd ibn Sulayman told us: I heard Ad-Dahhak say regarding His statement: Ra'ina Liya bi-l-Sunnahim, that a man from the polytheists would say: Ra'ina Liya Liya! He twisted his tongue with that, meaning: he distorted its meaning.

Muhammad bin Saad told us, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages, to and they attack the religion, for they used to mock and twist their tongues at the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and attack the religion.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: And they warned us against their tongues and their attack on the religion, he said: They warned us against their tongues and their attack on the religion, he said: "They warned us against their tongues and their attack on the religion in order to invalidate it and call it a lie. He said: And the mistake in speech is the error in speech.

Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages and say, "We hear and we disobey" and "Hear" while you do not hear and "Observe us" with a twist of their tongues and as a slander against the religion. But if they had said, "We hear and we obey" and "Hear and observe" it would have been better for them and more upright. But Allah has cursed them for their disbelief. So do not They believe except for a few.

Al-Munjab narrated, he said: Bishr narrated to us, he said: Abu Rawq narrated to us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: "They distorted it with their tongues," he said: distorting it with lies.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: If these Jews, whose description God has described, had said to the Prophet of God: We have heard your words, O Muhammad, and we have obeyed your command, and we have accepted what you have brought us from God, and listen to us, and we will wait for what we say, and we will understand from you what you say to us, it would have been better for them and more upright, meaning: it would have been better for them with God, and more upright, meaning: more just and correct in speech.

It is from the word Isqamah from the saying of God: And I speak the most correct words (al-Muzzammil 73:6), meaning: And I speak the most correct words, as:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: And if they had said, 'We hear and obey, and listen and grant us respite,' it would have been better for them, he said: They say, 'Listen to us, for we have heard and obeyed, and grant us respite, so do not be impatient with us.'"

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Abu Tamila told us, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of Jabir, on the authority of Ikrimah and Mujahid, regarding his statement: And look at us, he said: Listen to us.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: And look at us, he said: Make us understand.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, And look at us, he said: Make us understand.

Abu Ja'far said: What Mujahid and `Ikrimah said, from their directing the meaning of and look at us to: listen to us, and Mujahid directing that to more understanding of us, we do not know of anything in the speech of the Arabs, except that he intended by directing it to more understanding of us, we waited for us to understand what you say - or: we waited for the transmission until you hear from us - so that would be an understood meaning, even if it is not an interpretation of the word or an explanation of it. And we do not know of look at us in the speech of the Arabs, except in the meaning: we waited and look at us, as for look at us in the meaning: we waited, from it is the saying of Al-Hutay'ah:

I have looked at you, if one day your pearls would be brought by my anointing and my effacement

As for unzurna, meaning: look at us, it is from the saying of Abdullah bin Qais al-Ruqayyat:

The phenomena of beauty and goodness are seen as the arak gazelles are seen.

Meaning: As the gazelle looks at the arak tree.

Abu Ja'far said: He means by that: But God, the Blessed and Exalted, disgraced these Jews whose characteristics He described in this verse, so He distanced them and kept them far from guidance and following the truth, because of their disbelief, meaning: because of their denial of the prophethood of His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought to them from their Lord of guidance and clear proofs, so they do not believe except a little, meaning: they do not believe in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought to them from their Lord, and they do not acknowledge his prophethood, except a little, meaning: they do not believe in the truth that you brought to them, O Muhammad, except a little faith, as:

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: They do not believe except a few, he said: They do not believe except a few.

Abu Jaafar said: We have explained the reason for that with its causes in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Of those who are Jews. Al-Zajjaj said: If you make of related to what came before, then you do not stop at his saying Nasir: And if you make it disconnected, then it is permissible to stop at Nasir. The meaning is that of those who are Jews, there are people who distort words, then it was deleted. This is the doctrine of Sibawayh, and the grammarians recited:

If I said what her people have, I would not be grateful for her generosity and smile.

They said: The meaning is if you said that there is no one among her people who is better than her, then it was deleted. Al-Farra' said that the deleted of means: of those who are Jews who distort. This is like the saying of God Almighty: And there is not one of us but has a known position (al-Saffat 37:164), meaning who has. And Dhu al-Rumma said:

They remained, some of them shedding tears and others shedding tears from their eyes in despair.

He wants some of them to shed tears, so he deleted the relative pronoun and Al-Mubarrad and Al-Zajjaj denied it because deleting the relative pronoun is like deleting part of the word. Abu Abd Al-Rahman Al-Salami and Ibrahim Al-Nakha'i read the speech. Al-Nahhas said: The speech in this is more appropriate because they only distort the speech of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from what they have in the Torah and they do not distort all of the speech. The meaning of distort is that they interpret it in a way other than its interpretation. God Almighty condemned them for that because they do it intentionally. It was said: From its places meaning the description of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And they say, 'We hear and disobey' meaning we hear your saying and disobey your command. And listen, but you are not heard. Ibn Abbas said: They used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, listen, but you do not hear. This is what they meant - may God curse them - and they appear to want to hear, but you are not heard, hated or harmful. Al-Hasan and Mujahid said its meaning is not heard from you, meaning accepted and not answered to what you say. Al-Nahhas said: If that were the case, then it would have been not heard from. He presented the statement in ra'ana and the meaning of liya bi'alsanathim means they twist. Their tongues turn away from the truth, meaning they incline them to what is in their hearts. The root of lay is fatl which is an accusative of the verbal noun, and if you wish it is an object of the verb, and its root is lawyā then the waw was assimilated into the ya. And stabbing is conjoined to it, meaning they stab the religion, meaning they say to their companions, If he were a prophet, he would have known that we are his descendants. So God Almighty made His prophet appear to be on that basis, and it was one of the signs of his prophethood, and He forbade them from this statement. The meaning of and more upright is more correct for them in opinion. So they do not believe except a little, meaning except a little faith by which they do not deserve the name of faith. It was said that its meaning is that they do not believe except a few of them, and this is far-fetched because God Almighty has informed us about them that He cursed them for their disbelief.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty tells us about the Jews - upon them be the continuous curses of God until the Day of Resurrection - that they buy misguidance in exchange for guidance, and turn away from what God has revealed to His Messenger, and abandon what they have in their hands of knowledge from the previous prophets in the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in order to buy with it a small price from the debris of this world, and they want you to go astray from the path meaning they wish you would disbelieve in what has been revealed to you, O believers, and abandon what you are upon of guidance and beneficial knowledge, and God knows best about your enemies meaning He knows them best and warns you against them, and sufficient is God as a protector, and sufficient is God as a helper meaning He is sufficient as a protector for whoever seeks refuge in Him and a helper for whoever seeks

His help. Then the Almighty said: Of those who are Jews. "Of" in this is to clarify the type, like His saying: So avoid the uncleanness of idols. And His saying: They distort words from their places. That is, they interpret words in a way other than their interpretation, and they explain them in a way other than what God Almighty intended, intentionally and fabricatingly. And they say, 'We hear and disobey.' That is, they say, We hear what you said, O Muhammad, and we do not obey you in it. This is how Mujahid and Ibn Zayd explained it, and this is what is meant. This is more eloquent in their disbelief and stubbornness, and that they turn away from the Book of God after they have understood it, and they know what sin and punishment are upon them for that. And His saying: And listen, but you are not listened to. That is, listen to what we say, not to hear. It was narrated by Ad-Dahhak on the authority of Ibn Abbas. Mujahid and Al-Hasan said: And listen, but you are not accepted from them. Ibn Jarir said: The first is more correct, and it is as he said: This is mockery and disdain from them, upon them be the curse of God. And beware of their twisting of their tongues and their attack on the religion. That is, they give the impression that they are saying: They have heard you say, Ra'ina, but they only mean to be rash by insulting the Prophet. We have already discussed this in His statement, O you who believe, do not say, 'Ra'ina,' but say, 'Unzurna.' This is why God the Almighty said about these Jews who want to speak differently from what they show, to twist their tongues and attack the religion, meaning by insulting the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then God the Almighty said, "And if they had said, 'We hear and obey,' and 'Listen and unzurna,' it would have been better for them and more upright. But God has cursed them for their disbelief, so they do not believe except a little." That is, their hearts are driven away from goodness and far from it, so nothing beneficial to them enters them from faith. We have already discussed God the Almighty's statement, So little do they believe, and what is meant is that they do not believe with a beneficial faith.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 46- Of those who are Jews Al-Zajjaj said: If you make it related to what came before, then you do not stop at his saying a supporter. And if you make it disconnected, then it is permissible to stop at a supporter. The estimate is: Of those who are Jews, there are people who distort, then it was deleted. This is the doctrine of Sibawayh, and similar to it is the saying of the poet:

If I said that her people do not have a better lineage or reputation than her.

They said: The meaning is: If you said that there is no one among her people who is better than her, then it was deleted. Al-Farra' said: What was deleted is the word from: meaning from those who were Jews who distort words, like his saying And there is none among us but has a known position meaning who has, and from this is the saying of Dhu al-Rummah:

They remained, and some of them had tears running down their cheeks.

Among those who are Jews are those who distort words from their [proper] usages and say, "We hear and we disobey" and "Hear" while you do not hear and "Observe us" with a twist of their tongues and as a slander against the religion. But if they had said, "We hear and we obey" and "Hear and observe" it would have been better for them and more upright. But Allah has cursed them for their disbelief. So do not They believe except for a few.

Any of his tears, and Al-Mubarrad and Al-Zajaj denied it, because deleting the relative pronoun is like deleting part of the word, and it was said: His saying of those who are Jews is an explanation of His saying those who were given a portion of the Scripture. Distortion is inclination and removal: meaning they incline it and remove it from its places and replace it with something else, or what is meant is that they interpret it in a way other than its interpretation and God Almighty condemned them for that, because they do it out of stubbornness and aggression, and in preference to worldly purposes. His saying And they say, 'We hear and disobey' means: We hear your words and disobey your command. And listen, but you are not listening, meaning: Listen, but you are not listening. It is possible that it is a supplication against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the meaning is: Listen, not you heard. It is possible that the meaning is: Listen, but you are not listening, which is disliked, or listen, but you are not listening, as an answer. We have already discussed Ra'ana. The meaning of twisting their tongues is that they distort them from the truth: that is, they incline them to what is in their hearts. The root of twisting is twisting, and it is in the accusative case as a source, and it is permissible for it to be an object of purpose. His saying, And as a slander against the religion, is connected to tilaan, meaning they slander the religion by saying: If he were a prophet, he would have known his lineage. So God Almighty informed His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, of that. And if they had said, 'We hear' your words, 'and we obey' your command, 'and listen' to what we say, 'and look at us,' meaning, if they had said this instead of saying, Ra'ina, "it would have been better for them," than what they said. And more upright, meaning more just and more appropriate than their first statement, which is their saying, We hear and we disobey, and listen but not listen, and look at us, because of what is in this of disobedience and bad manners, and the possibility of blame in Ra'ina. "But," they did not follow the good path and do what is better for them and more upright. For this reason, God has cursed them for their disbelief, so they do not believe except a little, meaning, except a little faith, which is faith in some of the books and not others, and in some of the messengers and not others.

46- Of those who are Jews, it was said: It is connected to His saying Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? "Of those who are Jews" and it was said: It is a new sentence, meaning: Of those who are Jews there are those who distort, like His Almighty saying "And there is not one of us but has a known position" As-Saffat-164 meaning: of those who have a known position, he means: a group, "distorting the words, changing the words from their places", meaning: the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: The Jews used to come to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and ask him about the matter, so he would tell them, and he would see that they would accept his words, so when they left him they would distort his words, "and say we hear, your words, and disobey, your command, and listen but not listen", meaning: listen from us and we will not hear from you, "not listen" meaning: not accepted from you, and it was said: They used to say to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace And peace be upon him: Listen, then they say to themselves: You have not heard, and watch us meaning: and they say watch us, meaning by it the attribution of rashness, twisting their tongues, distorting it, and attacking, defaming the religion, that his saying: and watch us is from the word watching, and they distort it, meaning by it rashness, "and if they had said: We hear and obey and listen and unturna", meaning: Look at us instead of their saying watch us, it would have been better for them and more upright, meaning more just and more correct, but God has cursed them for their disbelief, so none believe except a few except a few of them, and he is Abdullah bin Salam and those who converted to Islam with him from among them.

46 "Among those who are Jews are those who distort" A statement about those who were given a portion, for it includes them and others, and what is between them is an objection or a statement for your enemies or a connection to a supporter. That is, He supports you from those who are Jews and protects you from them, or a deleted predicate whose description is they distort. "The words from their places" That is, among those who are Jews are people who distort the words, that is, they turn them away from the places in which God placed them by removing them from them and establishing something else in them. Or they interpret them as they desire, so they turn them away from what God revealed in them. The word is read with a kasra on the kaf and a sukoon on the lam, the plural of a word, to lighten the word. "And they say, 'We heard'" Your statement. "And we disobeyed" Your command. "And listen but you are not heard" meaning you are called to you but you are not heard due to deafness or death, or listen but you are not answered to what you are called to, or listen but you are not heard speech that you are pleased with, or listen speech that you are not heard because your ear rejects it, so it is the object of action, or listen but you are not heard is something disliked from their saying "hear it" if someone insults him, but they only said it hypocritically. "And watch us" is to wait for us to speak to you or understand your speech. "Twisting their tongues by reciting it and diverting the speech to something similar to insulting, as they put ra'na which is similar to what they insult with in place of unzurna and ghayr musma'at in place of la asma'tu" which is disliked, or by reciting it and adding what they show of supplication and reverence to what they conceal of insult and disparagement out of hypocrisy. "And as a stab at the religion" mocking and ridiculing it. "And if they had said, We hear and obey, and listen and wait for us even if their saying was proven in place of what they said. It would have been better for them and more just. It would have been better for them to say that and more just. The verb must be omitted after law in such a case because it indicates that it is necessary and occurs in its proper place. But God has cursed them for their disbelief. But God has let them down and distanced them from guidance because of their disbelief. So they believe only a little. That is, except for a little faith that is not worthy of attention, which is belief in some of the verses and messengers. It is possible that little means nothing, as in His statement:

Few complain about the important thing that befalls them, except for a few of them who have believed or will believe.

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. And the command of Allah is ever to be done.

Surat al-Nisa 4:47

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. And the command of God is ever to be done.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed of the Qur'an confirming what is with you of the Torah before We obliterate faces erase what is in them of the eyes, nose, and eyebrows and turn them back and make them like the backs of the necks, a single board or curse them transform them into apes as We cursed erased the Sabbath-breakers among them and the command of God His decree is to be carried out. When it was revealed, Abdullah bin Salam converted to Islam, and it was said that it was a threat with a condition, but when some of them converted to Islam, it was lifted, and it was said that obliteration and transformation will occur before the Hour comes.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: O you who have been given the Scripture, the verse. Ibn Ishaq narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke to the chief rabbis of the Jews, among them Abdullah bin Suriya and Kaab bin Asid, and said to them: O group of Jews, fear God and submit, for by God you know that what I have brought to you is the truth. They said: We do not know that, O Muhammad. So God revealed about them: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, the verse.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: O you who have been given the Scripture, is the Jews from the Children of Israel, who were around the time of the migration of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. God said to them: O you to whom the Scripture has been sent down, so be given knowledge of it. Believe, meaning: believe in what We sent down to Muhammad of the Criterion, confirming what is with you, meaning: confirming what is with you of the Torah that We sent down to Moses, son of Imran, before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs.

The interpreters differed in their interpretation of this.

Some of them said: He obliterated it, he erased its traces until it became like the back of his head.

Others said: The meaning of this is that we will blind their sight and make them blind, but the report came out by mentioning the face, and what is meant by it is their sight, Then We will turn them on their backs, so we will make their sight from the front to the back of their necks.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told us, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe until his statement: before We obliterate faces, and obliterating them means that they become blind, and turn them on their backs, meaning that We make their faces in front of their backs, so that they walk backwards, and We make for one of them two eyes in the back of his head.

Abu Al-Aaliyah Ismail bin Al-Haitham Al-Abdi told me, he said, Abu Qutaybah told us, on the authority of Fadil bin Marzouq, on the authority of Atiyah Al-Awfi, regarding his statement: Before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs, he said: We place them on their backs, so they walk on their heels backwards.

Muhammad bin Amara Al-Asadi told me, he said, Ubaidullah bin Musa told us, he said, Fasil bin Marzouq told us, on the authority of Atiyah, in a similar manner, except that he said: To erase it: to return it to its back.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: Then We will turn them on their backs, he said: We will turn their faces before their backs.

Others said: Rather, the meaning of this is: before we blind a people from the truth, then we turn them back on their heels, into misguidance and disbelief.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: That We may obliterate faces and turn them on their backs, so that We turn them away from the path, from the truth, and turn them on their backs, he said: in misguidance.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: That We obliterate faces from the path of truth, and turn them back on their backs, into misguidance.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, reading, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, Al-Hasan said: We obliterate faces, he said: We obliterate them from the truth, and turn them back on their backs, on their misguidance.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn

Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: O you who have been given the Scripture to His saying: as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers, he said: It was revealed about Malik ibn al-Sayf and Rafa'ah ibn Zayd ibn al-Tabut, from Banu Qaynuqa'. As for that We obliterate their faces and turn them back, he said: We blind them to the truth and return them as disbelievers.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Al-Dahhak say regarding His statement: Before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs, meaning: that We turn them away from guidance and insight. He turned them on their backs, so they disbelieved in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what he brought.

Others said: The meaning of this is: before we erase their traces from their faces where they are, and the direction where they are, then we return them to their backs, from where they came from, initially from the Levant.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Before We obliterate faces and turn them back, he said: My father used to say: To the Levant.

Others said: The meaning of this is: Before We obliterate faces, so that We erase their traces and make them level, and return them to their backsides, by making faces where hair grows, just as the faces of monkeys grow hair, because the hair of the sons of Adam is on the backs of their faces. So they said: If He causes hair to grow on their faces, He has returned them to their backsides, by making them like the napes and backs of faces.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is the saying of the one who said: The meaning of his saying: Before We obliterate faces is before We obliterate their sight and erase their traces and make them like the backs of their necks, Then We turn them on their backs, so We make their sight in their backs, meaning by that: We make the faces in the backs of the faces, so its meaning is: We turn the faces into backs and the backs into faces, so they walk backwards, as Ibn 'Abbas, 'Atiyah and those who said that said.

We said that this is more correct because God, the Most High, addressed the Jews in this verse, describing their characteristics by saying: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They purchase error. Then He, the Most High, warned them by saying: O you who were given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back. The verse, His might and His hastening punishment for them, if they did not believe in what He commanded them to believe in. There is no doubt that when He commanded them to believe in it on that day, they were disbelievers.

Since this is the case, then the corruption of the statement of the one who said: The interpretation of that is: We blind it from the truth and return it to misguidance is clear. So what is the reason for returning someone who is in misguidance to it?! Only someone who is outside of it is returned to something. As for someone who is in it, there is no reason to say: We return him to it.

Since this is the case, and it is true that God has threatened those whom He mentioned in this verse with turning their faces back, it is clear that the interpretation of those who said: The meaning of this is: He threatens them with turning them back in their misguidance.

As for those who said: The meaning of that is: before we made the faces the place where hair grows like the faces of monkeys, then his statement is contrary to the statement of the people of interpretation. And it is sufficient that he departed from the statement of the people of knowledge from the Companions and the Followers and those who came after them from the dissenters, as evidence of his error.

As for the statement of those who said: Its meaning is: before We obliterate their faces in which they are, and return them to the Levant from their dwellings in the Hijaz and Najd, then - even if it is a statement that has a basis - it is far from what is indicated by the apparent meaning of the revelation. This is because what is known from the aspects in the speech of the Arabs is that they are the opposite of the backs, and the Book of God directs its interpretation to what is most prevalent in the speech of those in whose language it was revealed, until it indicates that it means something other than that from the aspects, which must be accepted.

As for obliteration, it means covering and concealing in a level manner. From this it is said: The road signs were obliterated, if they were covered and covered, buried and leveled with the ground, as Ka'b ibn Zuhair said:

From every sincere advice, if you sweat, its purpose is to erase the flags and become unknown

Meaning: obliterating the flags, burying the flags. And from that, the blind person whose radiance between his eyelids has become obliterated is called: obliterated blind, obliterated, as God Almighty said: And if We willed, We could have obliterated their eyes (Ya-Sin 36:66).

Abu Jaafar said: The ghar is the slit between the eyelids.

If someone says: If the matter is as you described in the interpretation of the verse, then what they were threatened with happened?

It was said: It was not, because a group of them believed, including: Abdullah bin Salam, Tha'laba bin Sa'ya, Asad bin Sa'ya, Asad bin Ubaid, Mukhairiq, and a group other than them, so he defended them with their faith.

What indicates that this verse was revealed about the Jews whose description we mentioned is:

Abu Kuraib narrated to us, he said: Yunus bin Bakir narrated to us, and Ibn Hamid narrated to us, he said: Salamah narrated to us, all of them, on the authority of

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. And the command of Allah is ever to be done.

Ibn Ishaq, he said: Muhammad bin Abi Muhammad, the client of Zaid bin Thabit narrated to me, he said: Sayyid bin Jubayr or Ikrimah narrated to me, "on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke to the leaders of the Jewish rabbis, among them Abdullah bin Suriya and Ka'b bin Asad, and he said to them: O group of Jews, fear God and submit, for by God, you know that what I have brought to you is the truth! They said: We do not know that, O Muhammad! And they denied what they knew, and persisted in disbelief, so God revealed about them: "O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs," the verse.

Abu Kuraib narrated that Jabir ibn Nuh narrated on the authority of Isa ibn al-Mughira who said: We discussed Ka'b's conversion to Islam in the presence of Ibrahim. He said: Ka'b converted to Islam during the time of Umar. He came intending to go to Jerusalem and passed by Madinah. Umar went out to him and said: O Ka'b, convert to Islam! He said: Do you not read in your book: The parable of those who were entrusted with the Torah and then did not take it on is that of a donkey carrying volumes (al-Jumu'ah: 5)? And I was entrusted with the Torah! He said: So he left him. Then he went out until he reached Horns. He said: He heard a man from its people sadly saying: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed confirming that which is with you before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs (al-Jumu'ah: 5). Ka'b said: O Lord, I have believed. O Lord, I have converted to Islam! For fear that the verse would befall him. Then he returned and came to his family in Yemen, then he brought them back as Muslims.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His statement, Or We curse them, or curse you, so we disgrace you and turn you into monkeys, as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers, meaning: as We disgraced those of your ancestors who transgressed on the Sabbath. This was said in the form of an address in His statement, With him, believe in what We have sent down, confirming what is with you, as He said, Until, when you were in the ships and they sailed with them with a good wind and they rejoiced in it (Yunus 10:122).

It may be possible that its meaning is: Before we obliterate faces and turn them back on their backsides, or we curse the people with faces, so he made the ha' and the mim in lamulah with him or we curse them a dowry, from mentioning the people with faces, since there was an indication of that in the speech:

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: O you who have been given the Scripture to his statement: Or we curse them as we cursed the Sabbath-breakers, meaning: we turn them into monkeys.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Hasan: Or we curse them as we cursed the people of the Sabbath, he said: Or we make them monkeys.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Or we curse them as we cursed the Sabbath-breakers, or we make them monkeys.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Or we curse them as we cursed the Sabbath-breakers, he said: They are all Jews, we curse these as we cursed those of them who were cursed from the Sabbath-breakers.

As for his saying: And the command of God was to be carried out, he means: And everything that God commanded to be was, created, and existing, and nothing was impossible for Him to create that He willed to create.

The command in this case: the commanded one is called the command of God, because it was by His command and by His command.

Meaning: God's command was carried out.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed. Ibn Ishaq said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke to the leaders of the Jewish rabbis, including Abdullah bin Suriya al-Awar and Ka'b bin Asad, and said to them:

O Jews, fear God and submit, for by God, you know that what I have brought to you is the truth. They said: We do not know that, O Muhammad. They denied what they knew and persisted in disbelief. So God Almighty revealed about them: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces, and We have revealed to you the truth.

The Almighty's saying: Confirming what is with you is in the accusative case as a state of before We obliterate faces. Obliteration is the removal of the trace of something. From this is the Almighty's saying: So when the stars are obliterated (Al-Murasilaat: 8).

Natams and Natams with a kasra on the m or a damma on it in the future tense are two languages. It is said in all of them Tasm, Yatasm, Yatasm meaning to obliterate the trace. Tasm means to erase. All of them are languages. From this is the Almighty's saying: Our Lord, obliterate their wealth (Yunus 10:88) meaning destroy it, according to Ibn Arafah. It is said: Tamathu so Tamathu is intransitive and transitive. God obliterated his sight and he is Mamus al-Basra if the trace of the eye is gone. From this is the Almighty's saying: And if We willed, We could have obliterated their eyes (Ya-Sin 36:66) meaning We blinded them.

Scholars differed about the intended meaning of this verse: Is it true that the face is made like the nape of the neck, so the nose, mouth, eyebrows and eyes are taken away, or is it an expression of misguidance in their hearts and the deprivation of success? Two opinions: It was narrated on the authority of Abi bin Kaab that he said: Before We obliterate before We lead you astray with a misguidance after which you will not be guided. He goes to the extent that it is a metaphor and that if they do not believe, this will be done to them as a punishment. Qatada said that its meaning is before We make the face like the nape of the neck, meaning that the nose, lips, eyes and eyebrows are taken away. This is its meaning according to the linguists. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Atiyah Al-Awfi: Obliteration means that the eyes in particular are removed and returned to the nape of the neck, so that is a return to the anus and it walks backwards. Malik, may God have mercy on him, said that the first time Kaab Al-Ahbar embraced Islam, he passed by a man at night while he was reciting this verse: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe. So he put his hands on his face and went backwards to his house, so he converted to Islam where he was and said: By God, I feared that if I reached my house my face would be obliterated. Abdullah bin Salam did the same when this verse was revealed and he heard it. He came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, before he came to his family and converted to Islam and said: O Messenger of God, I did not know that I would reach you until my face was turned to the back of my neck. If it is said: How was it permissible for him to threaten them with obliteration of their faces if they did not believe, and then they did not believe and he did not do that to them? It is said: When these people and those who followed them believed, the threat was lifted from the rest. Al-Mubarrad said: The threat remains and is awaited. He said: There must be obliteration and transformation among the Jews before the Day of Resurrection.

The Almighty said: Or We curse them meaning the people of the faces as We cursed the people of the Sabbath meaning We transform them into apes and pigs, according to Al-Hasan and Qatadah. It was said: It is a transition from addressing to speaking in the third person. And the command of God is done meaning it is existing and present. What is meant by the command is the commanded, so it is a source that takes the place of the object, so the meaning is that whenever He wills it, He brings it into existence. It was said: Its meaning is that every command that He informs of its existence is existing as it informs of it.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, commanding the People of the Book to believe in what was revealed to His servant and Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the great book in which is the confirmation of the report of their hands of glad tidings, and threatening them if they do not do so, by His saying: Before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs. Some of them said: Its meaning is before We obliterate faces, so obliterating them is turning them back and making their sight behind them, and it is possible that what is meant is: before We obliterate faces and do not leave them hearing, sight, or trace, and despite that We return them to the side of the backs. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, Before We obliterate faces and obliterating them means they become blind, Then We turn them on their backs meaning: We make their faces in front of their napes, so they walk backwards, and We make for one of them two eyes from the back of his neck. Qatada and Atiyya Al-Awfi said the same. This is more eloquent in punishment and humiliation, and it is an example that God gave them in turning them away from the truth and returning them to falsehood, and their turning away from the clear path to the paths of misguidance, they rush and walk backwards on their backs. This is like what some of them said regarding His statement, "Indeed, We have placed shackles on their necks, reaching to their chins, so their heads are up. And We have placed before them a barrier" the verse: This is an example that God gave them regarding their misguidance and preventing them from guidance. Mujahid said: Before We obliterate faces, meaning: from the path of truth, then We turn them on their backs, meaning in misguidance. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to this was narrated from Ibn Abbas and Al-Hasan. Al-Suddi said: We will turn them back on their heels, and prevent them from the truth. He said: We will return them as infidels and return them as monkeys. Ibn Zayd said: We will return them to the land of Ash-Sham from the land of Hijaz. It was mentioned that Ka'b Al-Ahbar converted to Islam when he heard this verse. Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Jabir bin Nuh told us, on the authority of Isa bin Al-Mughira, who said: "We discussed Ka'b's conversion to Islam in the presence of Ibrahim, and he said: Ka'b converted to Islam during the time of Umar. He came intending to go to Jerusalem, and passed by Madinah, and Umar went out to him and said: 'O Ka'b, convert to Islam.' " He said: Do you not read in your book: The example of those who were entrusted with the Torah and then did not uphold it is like that of a donkey carrying volumes and I was entrusted with the Torah? He said: So Umar left him and went out until he reached Homs, and he heard a man from its people sad and saying: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back the verse. Ka'b said: O Lord, I converted to Islam for fear that this verse would befall him, then he returned and came to his family in Yemen, then he brought them as Muslims. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it with another wording from another chain of transmission. He said: My father told us, Ibn Nufayl told us, Amr ibn Waqid told us on the authority of Yunus ibn Halbas, on the authority of Abu Idris A'idh God al-Khawlani, who said: Abu Muslim al-Jalili was Ka'b's teacher, and he blamed him for being slow to come to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: So he sent him to him to see if he was the one?

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. And the command of Allah is ever to be done.

Ka'b said: So I rode until I came to Madinah, and suddenly a man was reciting the Qur'an, saying: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have sent down confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back. So I hastened to the water and washed myself, and I was touching my face for fear of being obliterated, then I became a Muslim. And His statement: Or We curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers means those who transgressed on their Sabbath by means of a trick to hunt, and they were transformed into monkeys and pigs. Their story will be explained in detail in Surat Al-A'raf. And His statement: And the command of God is to be carried out means that when He commands something, it is not disobeyed or prevented. Then God the Almighty informed us that He does not forgive association with Him meaning that He does not forgive a servant who meets Him while associating partners with Him, but He forgives what is less than that meaning of the sins for whom He wills meaning of His servants. There are hadiths related to this noble verse, so let us mention what is easy from them:

The first hadith Imam Ahmad said: Yazid bin Harun told us, Sadaqah bin Musa told us, Abu Imran Al-Joni told us, on the authority of Yazid bin Babnous, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There are three registers with God: a register that God does not care about, a register that God does not leave out anything from, and a register that God does not forgive. As for the register that God does not forgive, it is associating partners with God. God the Almighty said: "Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him" (al-Baqarah 2:17), and He said: Indeed, whoever associates partners with God, God has forbidden Paradise to him. As for the register that God does not care about, it is the wrong done by the servant to himself in what is between him and his Lord, such as a day of fasting that he neglected or a prayer that he neglected. God forgives that and overlooks it if He wills. As for the register that God does not leave out anything from, it is the wrong done by the servants to one another, and retaliation is inevitable." Ahmad alone transmitted it.

The second hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar said in his Musnad: Ahmad bin Malik told us, Zaidah bin Abi Al-Raqdaq told us, on the authority of Ziyad Al-Numairi, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Injustice is of three types: injustice that God does not forgive, injustice that God forgives, and injustice that God will not leave alone. As for the injustice that God does not forgive, it is polytheism, and he said: 'Indeed, polytheism is a great injustice.' As for the injustice that God forgives, it is the injustice of the servants to themselves between themselves and their Lord. As for the injustice that He will not leave alone, it is the injustice of the servants to one another until some of them are in debt to others."

The third hadith Imam Ahmad said: Safwan bin Isa told us, Thawr bin Yazid told us on the authority of Abu Awn, on the authority of Abu Idris, who said: I heard Muawiyah say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Every sin, God may forgive it except for a man who dies as a disbeliever, or a man who kills a believer intentionally. And Al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Muhammad bin Muthanna on the authority of Safwan bin Isa on his authority.

The fourth hadith Imam Ahmad said: Hashim bin Al-Qasim told us, Abdul Hamid told us, Shahr told us, Ibn Ghanem told us that Abu Dharr told him on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "God says: O My servant, as long as you worship Me and hope in Me, then I will forgive you for whatever you have done. O My servant, if you meet Me with an earth full of sins, as long as you do not associate partners with Me, I will meet you with an earth full of forgiveness." Ahmad is the only one to narrate it from this source.

Hadith 5 Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Samad told us, my father told us, Husayn told us on the authority of Ibn Buraydah that Yahya ibn Ya'mar told him that Abu al-Aswad al-Dailami told him that Abu Dharr told him: I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: "There is no servant who says: There is no god but God, and then dies upon that, except that he will enter Paradise." I said: Even if he commits adultery and steals? He said: Even if he commits adultery and steals three times, then he said the fourth time: In spite of Abu Dharr's nose. Abu Dharr went out dragging his garment and saying: Even if Abu Dharr's nose is in spite of him. Abu Dharr used to narrate this and say: Even if Abu Dharr's nose is in spite of him. They both narrated it from the hadith of Husayn with it.

Another way for the hadith of Abu Dharr. Ahmad said: Abu Muawiyah told us, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Zaid bin Wahb, on the authority of Abu Dharr, who said: I was walking with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the lava field of Medina at night, and we were looking at Uhud, so he said, O Abu Dharr. I said, At your service, O Messenger of God. He said: "I would not like to have anyone who has gold with me for the third evening and I have a dinar of it, except a dinar that I am saving, meaning for a debt, except that I say with it among the servants of God like this," and he pushed to his right, in front of him, and on his left. He said: Then we walked, and he said: O Abu Dharr, the majority will be the minority on the Day of Resurrection, except for the one who says like this and like this, so he pushed to his right, in front of him, and on his left. He said: Then we walked, and he said: O Abu Dharr, stay where you are until I come to you. He said: So he went until he disappeared from me. He said: So I heard a commotion, so I said: Perhaps the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, appeared to him. He said: So I intended to follow him, then I remembered his saying: Do not leave until I come to you, so I waited for him until he came, and I mentioned to him what I heard, and he said: "That was Gabriel who came to me and said: Whoever dies from your nation without associating anything with God will enter Paradise." I said: Even if he committed adultery and stole? He said: Even if he commits adultery and steals. They included it in the two Sahihs from the hadith of Al-A'mash. Al-Bukhari and Muslim also narrated it, both of them on the authority of Qutaybah, on the authority of Jarir ibn 'Abd Al-Hamid, on the authority of 'Abd Al-'Aziz ibn Rafi', on the authority of Zayd ibn Wahb, on the authority of Abu Dharr, who said: "I went out one night and saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, walking alone, with no one with him. I thought that he disliked anyone walking with him. I started walking in the shade of the moon, then he turned and saw me, and said: 'Who is this?' I said: 'Abu Dharr, may God make me your ransom.' He said: 'O Abu Dharr, come here.' I walked with him for a while, and he said: 'Those who do much will be those who do little on the Day of Resurrection, except for the one to whom God gives goodness and He blows into it to his right and his left, in front of him and behind him, and does good with it.' I walked with him for a while, and he said to me: 'Sit here.' So he made me sit in a valley surrounded by stones, and he said to me: 'Sit here until I return to you.'" He said: So he went into the lava field so that I would not see him, and he stayed away from me for a long time, then I heard him approaching and he said: Even if he commits adultery and even if he steals. He said: When he came, I could not wait until I said: O Prophet of God, may God make me your ransom, whoever speaks on the side of the lava field, I did not hear anyone respond to you with anything. He said: "That was Gabriel who came to me from the side of the lava field and said: Give good report to your nation that whoever dies without associating anything with God will enter Paradise." I said: O Gabriel, even if he steals and even if he commits adultery? He said: Yes. I said: Even if he steals and even if he commits adultery? He said: Yes. I said: Even if he steals and even if he commits adultery? He said: Yes, even if he drinks alcohol."

The sixth hadith Abd bin Hamid said in his Musnad: Ubaidullah bin Musa told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila on the authority of Abu al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir, who said: A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, what are the two necessities? He said: Whoever dies without associating anything with God, Paradise is obligatory for him, and whoever dies associating anything with God, Hell is obligatory for him. He mentioned the rest of the hadith, and he is the only one to narrate it from this source.

Another path Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Al-Hasan bin Amr bin Khallad Al-Harrani told us, Mansour bin Ismail Al-Qurashi told us, Musa bin Ubaidah Al-Rabdhî told us, Abdullah bin Ubaidah told me on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There is no soul that dies without associating anything with God except that forgiveness is permissible for it. If God wills, He will punish it, and if He wills, He will forgive it. "Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills." Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la narrated it in his Musnad on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of his brother Abdullah bin Ubaidah, on the authority of Jabir: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Forgiveness will remain upon the servant as long as the veil is not removed. It was said: O Prophet of God, what is the veil? He said: Associating anything with God. He said: "There is no soul that meets God without associating anything with Him except that forgiveness is permissible for it from God, the Most High. If He wills, He will punish it, and if He wills, He will forgive it." Then the Prophet of God recited: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He wants.

The seventh hadith Imam Ahmad said: Abu Naim told us, Zakariya told us, on the authority of Atiyah, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever dies without associating anything with God will enter Paradise. He is the only one who transmitted it from this source.

The eighth hadith Imam Ahmad said: Hasan bin Musa told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, Abu Qabil told us on the authority of Abdullah bin Nasher from Bani Sari', who said: I heard Abu Abi Ham, the storyteller of the people of Ash-Sham, say: I heard Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out to them one day and said to them: Your Lord, the Almighty, has given me the choice between seventy thousand who will enter Paradise with pardon and without reckoning, and between what He has hidden for my nation. Some of his companions said to him: O Messenger of God, does your Lord hide that? So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered and then came out while saying Allahu Akbar and said: Indeed, my Lord has given me an increase for every thousand by seventy thousand, and what He has hidden is with Him. Abu Ruhm said: O Abu Ayyub, what do you think the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is hidden? The people ate it up with their mouths, and they said: What do you have to do with the hidden Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace? Abu Ayoub said: Leave the man alone. I will tell you about the secret of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as I think. Rather, I am certain that the secret of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is that he said: Whoever bears witness that there is no god but God alone, with no partner, and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, believing it with his tongue and his heart, will be admitted to Paradise.

Hadith 9 Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Al-Mu'ammal bin Al-Fadl Al-Harrani told us, Isa bin Yunus H told us, and Hashim bin Al-Qasim Al-Harrani told us in what he wrote to me, he said: Isa bin Yunus himself told us on the authority of Wasil bin Al-Sa'ib Al-Raqashi, on the authority of Abu Sura, the nephew of Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari, on the authority of Abu Ayyub, he said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have a nephew who does not refrain from what is forbidden. He said: What is his religion? He said: He prays and declares the Oneness of God Almighty. He said: Ask him for his religion, and if he refuses, then buy it from him. So the man asked him for that but he refused, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him, and he said: I found him stingy in his religion. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills.

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. And the command of Allah is ever to be done.

The tenth hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Amr bin Al-Dahhak told us, my father told us, Mastour Abu Hammam Al-Hana'i told us, Thabit told us on the authority of Anas, who said: A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I have not left out any need or needy person without attending to it. He said: Do you not bear witness that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is the Messenger of God? three times? He said: Yes. He said: Then that comes after all of that.

Hadith Eleven Imam Ahmad said: Abu Amer told us, Akram bin Ammar told us on the authority of Damdam bin Josh Al-Yamami, who said: Abu Hurairah said to me: O Yamami, do not say to a man: By God, God will not forgive you, or He will never let you enter Paradise. I said: O Abu Hurairah, this is a word that one of us says to his brother and friend when he is angry. He said: Do not say it, for I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There were two men among the Children of Israel: one of them was diligent in worship, and the other was extravagant with himself. They were brothers, and the diligent one would keep seeing the other commit a sin and would say: O this one, stop. He would say: Leave me by my Lord, have you sent a watcher over me? He said: Until one day he saw him committing a sin that he considered great, so he said to him: Woe to you, stop! He said: Leave me by my Lord, have you sent a watcher over me? He said: By God, God will not forgive you or will He never admit you to Paradise. He said: So God sent an angel to them and took their souls, and they met before him. He said to the sinner: Go and enter Paradise by My mercy, and He said to the other: Did you know? Did you have power over what is in My hand? Take him to the Fire. He said: By the One in Whose Hand is the soul of Abu al-Qasim, he uttered a word that destroyed his worldly life and his Hereafter." Narrated by Abu Dawud. From the hadith of Ikrimah bin Ammar, narrated to me by Damdam bin Josh.

The twelfth hadith Al-Tabarani said: Abu Sheikh told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Hasan bin Ajlan Al-Isfahani, on the authority of Salamah bin Shabib, on the authority of Ibrahim bin Al-Hakam bin Aban, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God Almighty said: Whoever knows that I have the ability to forgive sins, I will forgive him and I do not mind, as long as he does not associate anything with Me.

The Thirteenth Hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar and Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Hudbah bin Khalid told us, Sahl bin Abi Hazim told us, on the authority of Thabit, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever God promises a reward for a deed, He will fulfill it for him, and whoever He threatens with punishment for a deed, He has the choice. They are the only ones to narrate it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Bahr bin Nasr Al-Khawlani told us, Khalid - meaning Ibn Abd Al-Rahman Al-Khorasani told us, Al-Haitham bin Hammad told us, on the authority of Salam bin Abi Mut'i, on the authority of Bakr bin Abd God Al-Muzani, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: We, the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had no doubt about the one who killed a soul, or consumed the wealth of an orphan, or slandered chaste women, or gave false witness, until this verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. So the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, refrained from testifying. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Al-Haitham bin Hammad with it. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Abd Al-Malik bin Abi Abd Al-Rahman Al-Muqri told us, Abd God bin Asim told us, Salih - meaning Al-Mari told us, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: We had no doubt about the one for whom God has made Hell obligatory in the Book, until this verse was revealed to us: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He said: So when we heard it, we refrained from testifying and we waited for the matters to be decided. To God the Almighty. Al-Bazzar said: Muhammad bin Abdul Rahim told us, Shaiban bin Abi Shaiba told us, Harb bin Surayj told us on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar: He said: We used to refrain from seeking forgiveness for the people of major sins until we heard our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. And he said: I have delayed my intercession for the people of major sins from my nation until the Day of Resurrection. Abu Ja'far Al-Razi said on the authority of Al-Rabi', Mujbir told me on the authority of Abdullah bin Umar that he said: When the verse was revealed: Say, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves, do not despair of the mercy of God' to the end of the verse, a man stood up and said: And association with God, O Prophet of God? The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) thought about that and said: "God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin." Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it through various chains of narration on the authority of Ibn Umar. This verse in Surat At-Tanzil is conditional upon repentance. Whoever repents from any sin, even if he repeats it, God will accept his repentance. That is why He said: "Say, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves, do not despair of the mercy of God. Indeed, God forgives all sins.'" That is, on the condition of repentance. If it were not like that, then association would be included in it, and that is not correct because God has ruled here that He does not forgive association, and He has ruled that He forgives everything else for whomever He wills, that is, even if its doer does not repent. This is more hopeful than that from this perspective, and God knows best. His statement: And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin is like His statement: Indeed, association is a tremendous wrong. It is proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud that he said: I said: O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? He said: To make a rival for God while He created you. And he mentioned the rest of the hadith. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Ibrahim bin Al-Mundhir told us, Ma'n told us, Sa'id bin Bashir told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Imran bin Husain: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I will inform you of the greatest of the major sins: associating partners with God." Then he recited: And whoever associates partners with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin, and disobeying parents. Then he recited: "Be grateful to Me and to your parents. To Me is the final destination."

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 47- O you who have been given the Scripture God Almighty mentioned first that they have been given a portion of the Scripture, and here He mentioned that they have been given the Scripture. What is meant is that they have been given a portion of it, because they did not act upon everything in it, but rather distorted and changed it. His statement confirming is in the accusative case as a state. Obliteration: is the removal of the trace of something, and from this is When the stars are obliterated It is said: natams with a kasra on the meem and a damma on it, two languages for the future, and it is said: tams the trace, meaning he wiped it all away, and from this is Our Lord, obliterate their wealth meaning: destroy it, and it is said: he has obliterated his sight, and from this is And if We willed, We could have obliterated their eyes meaning We blinded them.

Scholars differed on the intended meaning of this verse. Is it true? That He makes the face like the nape, so He takes away the nose, mouth, eyebrow and eye, or is it an expression of misguidance in their hearts and depriving them of success? Some groups went with the first, and others went with the other. According to the first, what is meant by His statement, Then We will return it on its backs, is that We will make it a nape: that is, We will remove the traces of the face and its outline until it becomes in the form of the nape. It was said that after obliteration He will return it to the place of the nape, and the nape to its places. This is more closely related to the meaning indicated by His statement, Then We will return it on its backs. If it is said: How was it permissible for Him to threaten them with obliterating their faces if they did not believe and He did not do that to them? It was said: When these people and those who followed them believed, the threat was lifted from the rest. Al-Mubarrad said: The threat remains and is awaited. He said: There must be obliteration in the Jews, and it was abrogated before the Day of Resurrection. His saying, Or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. The pronoun refers to the people of faces. It was said that what is meant by cursing here is transformation, in order to liken it to the cursing of the Sabbath-breakers. Cursing the Sabbath-breakers was to transform them into monkeys and pigs. It was also said that what is meant is the curse itself, and they are cursed in every language. What is meant is that one of two things will occur: either obliteration or cursing. The cursing has occurred, but the first is strengthened by likening this curse to the Sabbath-breakers. His saying, And the command of God was to be done, means that it will inevitably exist, or what is meant by the command is the commanded thing. The meaning is that whenever He wills it, it will be, like His saying, His command, when He intends a thing, is only to say to it, 'Be,' and it is.

47- The Almighty said: O you who have been given the Scripture, addressing the Jews, Believe in what We have sent down, meaning: the Qur'an, confirming what is with you, meaning: the Torah. This is because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke to the Jewish rabbis: Abdullah bin Suriya and Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, and said: O group of Jews, fear God and submit, for by God you know that what I have brought to you is the truth. They said: We do not know that, and they persisted in disbelief, so this verse was revealed.

Before We obliterate faces, Ibn Abbas said: We make them like the hoof of a camel. Qatada and Ad-Dahhak said: We blind them, and what is meant by face is the eye. Then We return them on their backsides, meaning: We obliterate the face and return it to the nape. It was said: We make our faces hairless like the faces of monkeys, because the hair of humans grows in their backsides, not their faces. It was said: Its meaning is: We erase their traces and what is in them of nose, eye, mouth and eyebrow, and We make them like the nape. It was said: We place his eyes on the nape so he walks backwards.

It was narrated that when Abdullah bin Salam, may God be pleased with him, heard this verse, he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, before he came to his family, and his hand was on his face, and he converted to Islam and said: O Messenger of God, I did not think that I would reach you until my face was turned to the back of my head. Likewise, when Ka'b al-Ahbar heard this verse, he converted to Islam during the time of Umar, may God be pleased with him, and he said: O Lord, I have believed, O Lord, I have converted to Islam, for fear that the threat of this verse would befall him.

O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers. And the command of Allah is ever to be done.

If it is said: He threatened them with obliteration if they did not believe, but they did not believe and did not do that to them?

It was said: This threat will remain, and there will be obliteration and transformation among the Jews before the Day of Resurrection.

It was said: This was a threat on condition that N, but when Abdullah bin Salam and his companions converted to Islam, this was lifted from the rest.

It was said: He meant by it the Resurrection, and Mujahid said: He meant by his saying: We will obliterate faces that is: We will leave them in misguidance, so what is meant is obliterating the face of the heart, and turning away from the insights of guidance to their backs in disbelief and misguidance.

The root of the word tams is erasure, corruption, and transformation. Ibn Zayd said: We will erase their traces from their faces and the areas in which they are, and we will return them to their backs until they return to where they came from in the beginning, which is Ash-Sham. He said: That has already happened, and he interpreted it in the expulsion of Banu Nadir to Adhraat and Jericho in Ash-Sham, or we will curse them as we cursed the people of the Sabbath, so we will make them monkeys and pigs, and the command of God will be done.

meant by it is not the transformation of the image in this world. And whoever interprets the threat as changing the image in this world said that it is still anticipated or that its occurrence was conditional upon their belief, and a group of them believed. And the command of God to bring about something or His threat, or what He ruled or decreed, was done, effective and existing, so what you were threatened with will inevitably happen if you do not believe.

47 O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs before We erase the outline of their images and make them in the form of their backs, meaning the napes, or turn them back in this world or in the hereafter. The origin of obliteration is the removal of leaning signs, and it may be used in the sense of talis in removing an image and in general reversing and changing, and therefore it was said that its meaning is before We change faces and take away their prestige and their prominence and turn them small and backward, or return them to where they came from, which is the arms of Ash-Sham, meaning the expulsion of Banu Nadir, and close to it is the saying of those who said that what is meant by faces are the leaders, or before We obliterate faces by blinding the eyes from consideration and deafening the ears from listening to the truth by nature and turning them from guidance to misguidance. Or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers, or disgrace them by transformation as We disgraced the Sabbath-breakers, or transform them with a transformation like their transformation, or curse them on your tongue as We cursed them on the tongue of David. The pronoun refers to the people of faces or to those in the manner of turning away, or to the faces if what is meant by it is the prominent ones, and its conjunction with obliteration in the first meaning indicates that what is

Surat al-Nisa 4:48

Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, God does not forgive association i.e. association with Him, but He forgives what is less other than that of sins for whomever He wills forgiveness for him by admitting him into Paradise without punishment, and whomever He wills He punishes from the believers for his sins and then admits him into Paradise and whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a sin a sin great great.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty says: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him. Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari that he said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have a nephew who does not refrain from what is forbidden. He said: What is his religion? He said: He prays and declares the oneness of God. He said: Ask him for his religion, and if he refuses, then follow it from him. So the man asked him for that, but he refused. So he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him. He said: I found him stingy with his religion. So this verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, and that God does not forgive associating partners with Him, for God does not forgive associating partners with Him and disbelief, and He forgives what is less than that associating partners with Him for whomever He wills of the people of sins and crimes.

And since that was the meaning of the statement, then his saying: that he associates with Him, is in the accusative case because of the occurrence of forgives upon it, or if you wish, because of the loss of the preposition that would have lowered it if it had been apparent. That is to direct its meaning to: God does not forgive that he associates with Him, on the interpretation of the penalty, as if it was said: God does not forgive a sin with polytheism, or because of polytheism.

According to this interpretation, it is likely that an is a dowry in the accusative case, according to some Arab scholars.

He mentioned that this verse was revealed about people who doubted the matter of the polytheists when it was revealed: "O My servants who have transgressed against themselves, do not despair of the mercy of God. Indeed, God forgives all sins. Indeed, it is He who is the Forgiving, the Merciful." (al-Zumar 39:153)

The report mentioned that:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', he said, Mujbir told me, on the authority of Abdullah bin 'Umar, that he said: When the verse: O My servants who have transgressed against themselves (al-Zumar 39:53) was revealed, a man stood up and said: What about polytheism, O Prophet of God? The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, disliked that, so he said: "Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. And whoever associates partners with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin."

It was narrated on the authority of Ammar, who said: Ibn Abi Ja'far narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ar-Rabi', regarding His statement: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He said: Mujbir informed me, on the authority of Abdullah bin Umar, that he said: When this verse was revealed: O My servants who have transgressed against themselves (al-Zumar 39:153), a man stood up and said: What about association, O Prophet of God? The Prophet disliked that, so he said: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills.

Muhammad bin Khalaf al-Asqalani told me, he said, Adam told us, he said, al-Haytham bin Jamaaz told us, he said, Bakr bin Abdullah al-Muzani told us, on the authority of Ibn Umar, he said: We, the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had no doubt about the one who kills a soul, the one who consumes the wealth of an orphan, the one who witnesses falsehood, and the one who severs family ties, until this verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills, so we refrained from bearing witness.

This verse shows that every person who commits a major sin is subject to the will of God. If He wills, He will forgive him, and if He wills, He will punish him for it, as long as his major sin is not associating partners with God.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God, the Most High, means: And whoever associates with God in His worship other than His creation, has certainly invented a tremendous sin, meaning: He has fabricated a tremendous sin. And God, the Most High, made him a fabricator because he spoke falsely and slanderously by denying the Oneness of God and his acknowledgment that God has a partner from among His creation, a wife or a son. So the one who says that is a fabricator. And so is every liar, for he is a fabricator in his lie and fabricates it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:48

Indeed, Allah does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. And whoever associates others with Allah has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him. It was narrated that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited: Indeed, God forgives all sins (al-Zumar 39:53), and a man said to him:

O Messenger of God and polytheism! Then it was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. This is from the agreed-upon decisive verses about which there is no difference of opinion among the ummah. And He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills is from the ambiguous verses about which the scholars have spoken. Muhammad ibn Jarir al-Tabari said: This verse has made clear that every person who commits a major sin is subject to the will of God the Most High. If He wills, He will forgive his sin, and if He wills, He will punish him for it, as long as his major sin was not associating partners with God the Most High. Some of them said that God the Most High has made this clear by saying: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins. (An-Nisa': 31) So know that He wills to forgive minor sins for those who avoid major sins, but He will not forgive them for those who commit major sins. Some of the people of interpretation have said that this verse abrogates the one at the end of Al-Furqan. Zayd ibn Thabit said: Surat An-Nisa' was revealed six months after Al-Furqan. The correct view is that there is no abrogation, because abrogation in the reports is impossible. The explanation of combining the verses in this surah and in Al-Furqan will come, God willing. In Al-Tirmidhi, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, he said: There is no verse in the Qur'an that is more beloved to me than this verse: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He said: This is a good and strange hadith.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty says, commanding the People of the Book to believe in what was revealed to His servant and Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the great book in which is the confirmation of the report of their hands of glad tidings, and threatening them if they do not do so, by His saying: Before We obliterate faces and turn them on their backs. Some of them said: Its meaning is before We obliterate faces, so obliterating them is turning them back and making their sight behind them, and it is possible that what is meant is: before We obliterate faces and do not leave them hearing, sight, or trace, and despite that We return them to the side of the backs. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, Before We obliterate faces and obliterating them means they become blind, Then We turn them on their backs meaning: We make their faces in front of their napes, so they walk backwards, and We make for one of them two eyes from the back of his neck. Qatada and Atiyya Al-Awfi said the same. This is more eloquent in punishment and humiliation, and it is an example that God gave them in turning them away from the truth and returning them to falsehood, and their turning away from the clear path to the paths of misguidance, they rush and walk backwards on their backs. This is like what some of them said regarding His statement, "Indeed, We have placed shackles on their necks, reaching to their chins, so their heads are up. And We have placed before them a barrier" the verse: This is an example that God gave them regarding their misguidance and preventing them from guidance. Mujahid said: Before We obliterate faces, meaning: from the path of truth, then We turn them on their backs, meaning in misguidance. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Something similar to this was narrated from Ibn Abbas and Al-Hasan. Al-Suddi said: We will turn them back on their heels, and prevent them from the truth. He said: We will return them as infidels and return them as monkeys. Ibn Zayd said: We will return them to the land of Ash-Sham from the land of Hijaz. It was mentioned that Ka'b Al-Ahbar converted to Islam when he heard this verse. Ibn Jarir said: Abu Kurayb told us, Jabir bin Nuh told us, on the authority of Isa bin Al-Mughira, who said: "We discussed Ka'b's conversion to Islam in the presence of Ibrahim, and he said: Ka'b converted to Islam during the time of Umar. He came intending to go to Jerusalem, and passed by Madinah, and Umar went out to him and said: 'O Ka'b, convert to Islam.'" He said: Do you not read in your book: The example of those who were entrusted with the Torah and then did not uphold it is like that of a donkey carrying volumes and I was entrusted with the Torah? He said: So Umar left him and went out until he reached Homs, and he heard a man from its people sad and saying: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back the verse. Ka'b said: O Lord, I converted to Islam for fear that this verse would befall him, then he returned and came to his family in Yemen, then he brought them as Muslims. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it with another wording from another chain of transmission. He said: My father told us, Ibn Nufayl told us, Amr ibn Waqid told us on the authority of Yunus ibn Halbas, on the authority of Abu Idris A'idh God al-Khawlani, who said: Abu Muslim al-Jalili was Ka'b's teacher, and he blamed him for being slow to come to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: So he sent him to him to see if he was the one? Ka'b said: So I rode until I came to Madinah, and suddenly a man was reciting the Qur'an, saying: O you who have been given the Scripture, believe in what We have sent down confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back. So I hastened to the water and washed myself, and I was touching my face for fear of being obliterated, then I became a Muslim. And His statement: Or We curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers means those who transgressed on their Sabbath by means of a trick to hunt, and they were transformed into monkeys and pigs. Their story will be explained in detail in Surat Al-A'raf. And His statement: And the command of God is to be carried out means that when He commands something, it is not disobeyed or prevented. Then God the Almighty informed us that He does not forgive association with Him meaning that He does not forgive a servant who meets Him while associating partners with Him, but He forgives what is less than that meaning of the sins for whom He wills meaning of His servants. There are hadiths related to this noble verse, so let us mention what is easy from them:

The first hadith Imam Ahmad said: Yazid bin Harun told us, Sadaqah bin Musa told us, Abu Imran Al-Joni told us, on the authority of Yazid bin Babnous, on the authority of Aisha, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There are three registers with God: a register that God does not care about, a register that God does not leave out anything from, and a register that God does not forgive. As for the register that God does not forgive, it is associating partners with God. God the Almighty said: "Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him" (al-Baqarah 2:17), and He said: Indeed, whoever associates partners with God, God has forbidden Paradise to him. As for the register that God does not care about, it is the wrong done by the servant to himself in what is between him and his Lord, such as a day of fasting that he neglected or a prayer that he neglected. God forgives that and overlooks it if He wills. As for the register that God does not leave out anything from, it is the wrong done by the servants to one another, and retaliation is inevitable." Ahmad alone transmitted it.

The second hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar said in his Musnad: Ahmad bin Malik told us, Zaidah bin Abi Al-Raqqa told us, on the authority of Ziyad Al-Numairi, on the authority of Anas bin Malik, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Injustice is of three types: injustice that God does not forgive, injustice that God forgives, and injustice that God will not leave alone. As for the injustice that God does not forgive, it is polytheism, and he said: 'Indeed, polytheism is a great injustice.' As for the injustice that God forgives, it is the injustice of the servants to themselves between themselves and their Lord. As for the injustice that He will not leave alone, it is the injustice of the servants to one another until some of them are in debt to others."

The third hadith Imam Ahmad said: Safwan bin Isa told us, Thawr bin Yazid told us on the authority of Abu Awn, on the authority of Abu Idris, who said: I heard Muawiyah say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Every sin, God may forgive it except for a man who dies as a disbeliever, or a man who kills a believer intentionally. And Al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Muhammad bin Muthanna on the authority of Safwan bin Isa on his authority.

The fourth hadith Imam Ahmad said: Hashim bin Al-Qasim told us, Abdul Hamid told us, Shahr told us, Ibn Ghanem told us that Abu Dharr told him on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "God says: O My servant, as long as you worship Me and hope in Me, then I will forgive you for whatever you have done. O My servant, if you meet Me with an earth full of sins, as long as you do not associate partners with Me, I will meet you with an earth full of forgiveness." Ahmad is the only one to narrate it from this source.

Hadith 5 Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Samad told us, my father told us, Husayn told us on the authority of Ibn Buraydah that Yahya ibn Ya' mar told him that Abu al-Aswad al-Dailami told him that Abu Dharr told him: I came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: "There is no servant who says: There is no god but God, and then dies upon that, except that he will enter Paradise." I said: Even if he commits adultery and steals? He said: Even if he commits adultery and steals three times, then he said the fourth time: In spite of Abu Dharr's nose. Abu Dharr went out dragging his garment and saying: Even if Abu Dharr's nose is in spite of him. Abu Dharr used to narrate this and say: Even if Abu Dharr's nose is in spite of him. They both narrated it from the hadith of Husayn with it.

Another way for the hadith of Abu Dharr. Ahmad said: Abu Muawiyah told us, Al-A'mash told us, on the authority of Zaid bin Wahb, on the authority of Abu Dharr, who said: I was walking with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the lava field of Medina at night, and we were looking at Uhud, so he said, O Abu Dharr. I said, At your service, O Messenger of God. He said: "I would not like to have anyone who has gold with me for the third evening and I have a dinar of it, except a dinar that I am saving, meaning for a debt, except that I say with it among the servants of God like this," and he pushed to his right, in front of him, and on his left. He said: Then we walked, and he said: O Abu Dharr, the majority will be the minority on the Day of Resurrection, except for the one who says like this and like this, so he pushed to his right, in front of him, and on his left. He said: Then we walked, and he said: O Abu Dharr, stay where you are until I come to you. He said: So he went until he disappeared from me. He said: So I heard a commotion, so I said: Perhaps the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, appeared to him. He said: So I intended to follow him, then I remembered his saying: Do not leave until I come to you, so I waited for him until he came, and I mentioned to him what I heard, and he said: "That was Gabriel who came to me and said: Whoever dies from your nation without associating anything with God will enter Paradise." I said: Even if he committed adultery and stole? He said: Even if he commits adultery and steals. They included it in the two Sahihis from the hadith of Al-A'mash. Al-Bukhari and Muslim also narrated it, both of them on the authority of Qutaybah, on the authority of Jarir ibn 'Abd Al-Hamid, on the authority of 'Abd Al-'Aziz ibn Rafi', on the authority of Zayd ibn Wahb, on the authority of Abu Dharr, who said: "I went out one night and saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, walking alone, with no one with him. I thought that he disliked anyone walking with him. I started walking in the shade of the moon, then he turned and saw me, and said: 'Who is this?' I said: 'Abu Dharr, may God make me your ransom.' He said: 'O Abu Dharr, come here.' I walked with him for a while, and he said: 'Those who do much will be those who do little on the Day of Resurrection, except for the one to whom God gives goodness and He blows into it to his right and his left, in front of him and behind him, and does good with it.' I walked with him for a while, and he said to me: 'Sit here.' So he made me sit in a valley surrounded by stones, and he said to me: 'Sit here until I return to you.'" He said: So he went into the lava field so that I would not see him, and he stayed away from me for a long time, then I heard him approaching and he said: Even if he commits adultery and even if he steals. He said: When he came, I could not wait until I said: O Prophet of God, may God make me your ransom, whoever speaks on the side of the lava field, I did not hear anyone respond to you with anything. He said: "That was Gabriel who came to me from the side of the lava field and said: Give good report to your nation that whoever dies without associating anything with God will enter Paradise." I said: O Gabriel, even if he steals and even if he commits adultery? He said: Yes. I said: Even if he steals and even if he commits adultery? He said: Yes. I said: Even if he steals and even if he commits adultery? He said: Yes, even if he drinks alcohol."

The sixth hadith Abd bin Hamid said in his Musnad: Ubaidullah bin Musa told us on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila on the authority of Abu al-Zubayr, on the authority of Jabir, who said: A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, what are the two necessities? He said: Whoever dies without associating anything with God, Paradise is obligatory for him, and whoever dies associating anything with God, Hell is obligatory for him. He mentioned the rest of the hadith, and he is the only one to narrate it from this source.

Another path Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Al-Hasan bin Amr bin Khallad Al-Harrani told us, Mansour bin Ismail Al-Qurashi told us, Musa bin Ubaidah Al-Rabdhî told us, Abdullah bin Ubaidah told me on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "There is no soul that dies without associating anything with God except that forgiveness is permissible for it. If God wills, He will punish it, and if He wills, He will forgive it. "Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills." Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la narrated it in his Musnad on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of his brother Abdullah bin Ubaidah, on the authority of Jabir: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Forgiveness will remain upon the servant as long as the veil is not removed. It was said: O Prophet of God, what is the veil? He said: Associating anything with God. He said: "There is no soul that meets God without associating anything with Him except that forgiveness is permissible for it from God, the Most High. If He wills, He will punish it, and if He wills, He will forgive it." Then the Prophet of God recited: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He wants.

The seventh hadith Imam Ahmad said: Abu Naim told us, Zakariya told us, on the authority of Atiyah, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever dies without associating anything with God will enter Paradise. He is the only one who transmitted it from this source.

The eighth hadith Imam Ahmad said: Hasan bin Musa told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, Abu Qabil told us on the authority of Abdullah bin Nasher from Bani Sari', who said: I heard Abu Abi Ham, the storyteller of the people of Ash-Sham, say: I heard Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari say: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out to them one day and said to them: Your Lord, the Almighty, has given me the choice between seventy thousand who will enter Paradise with pardon and without reckoning, and between what He has hidden for my nation. Some of his companions said to him: O Messenger of God, does your Lord hide that? So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered and then came out while saying Allahu Akbar and said: Indeed, my Lord has given me an increase for every thousand by seventy thousand, and what He has hidden is with Him. Abu Ruhm said: O Abu Ayyub, what do you think the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is hidden? The people ate it up with their mouths, and they said: What do you have to do with the hidden Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace? Abu Ayoub said: Leave the man alone. I will tell you about the secret of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as I think. Rather, I am certain that the secret of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is that he said: Whoever bears witness that there is no god but God alone, with no partner, and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, believing it with his tongue and his heart, will be admitted to Paradise.

Hadith 9 Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Al-Mu'ammal bin Al-Fadi Al-Harrani told us, Isa bin Yunus H told us, and Hashim bin Al-Qasim Al-Harrani told us in what he wrote to me, he said: Isa bin Yunus himself told us on the authority of Wasil bin Al-Sa'ib Al-Raqashi, on the authority of Abu Sura, the nephew of Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari, on the authority of Abu Ayyub, he said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have a nephew who does not refrain from what is forbidden. He said: What is his religion? He said: He prays and declares the Oneness of God Almighty. He said: Ask him for his religion, and if he refuses, then buy it from him. So the man asked him for that but he refused, so he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him, and he said: I found him stingy in his religion. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills.

The tenth hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Amr bin Al-Dahhak told us, my father told us, Mastour Abu Hammam Al-Hana'i told us, Thabit told us on the authority of Anas, who said: A man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I have not left out any need or needy person without attending to it. He said: Do you not bear witness that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is the Messenger of God? three times? He said: Yes. He said: Then that comes after all of that.

Hadith Eleven Imam Ahmad said: Abu Amer told us, Akram bin Ammar told us on the authority of Damdam bin Josh Al-Yamami, who said: Abu Hurairah said to me: O Yamami, do not say to a man: By God, God will not forgive you, or He will never let you enter Paradise. I said: O Abu Hurairah, this is a word that one of us says to his brother and friend when he is angry. He said: Do not say it, for I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "There were two men among the Children of Israel: one of them was diligent in worship, and the other was extravagant with himself. They were brothers, and the diligent one would keep seeing the other commit a sin and would say: O this one, stop. He would say: Leave me by my Lord, have you sent a watcher over me? He said: Until one day he saw him committing a sin that he considered great, so he said to him: Woe to you, stop! He said: Leave me by my Lord, have you sent a watcher over me? He said: By God, God will not forgive you or will He never admit you to Paradise. He said: So God sent an angel to them and took their souls, and they met before him. He said to the sinner: Go and enter Paradise by My mercy, and He said to the other: Did you know? Did you have power over what is in My hand? Take him to the Fire. He said: By the One in Whose Hand is the soul of Abu al-Qasim, he uttered a word that destroyed his worldly life and his Hereafter." Narrated by Abu Dawud. From the hadith of Ikrimah bin Ammar, narrated to me by Damdam bin Josh.

The twelfth hadith Al-Tabarani said: Abu Sheikh told us, on the authority of Muhammad bin Al-Hasan bin Ajlan Al-Isfahani, on the authority of Salamah bin Shabib, on the authority of Ibrahim bin Al-Hakam bin Aban, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: God Almighty said: Whoever knows that I have the ability to forgive sins, I will forgive him and I do not mind, as long as he does not associate anything with Me.

The Thirteenth Hadith Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar and Al-Hafiz Abu Ya'la said: Hudbah bin Khalid told us, Sahl bin Abi Hazim told us, on the authority of Thabit, on the authority of Anas, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever God promises a reward for a deed, He will fulfill it for him, and whoever He threatens with punishment for a deed, He has the choice. They are the only ones to narrate it. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Bahr bin Nasr Al-Khawlani told us, Khalid - meaning Ibn Abd Al-Rahman Al-Khorasani told us, Al-Haitham binammad told us, on the authority of Salam bin Abi Mut'i, on the authority of Bakr bin Abd God Al-Muzani, on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: We, the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had no doubt about the one who killed a soul, or consumed the wealth of an orphan, or slandered chaste women, or gave false witness, until this verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. So the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, refrained from testifying. Ibn Jarir narrated it from the hadith of Al-Haitham binammad with it. Ibn Abi Hatim also said: Abd Al-Malik bin Abi Abd Al-Rahman Al-Muqri told us, Abd God bin Asim told us, Salih - meaning Al-Mari told us, Abu Bishr told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: We had no doubt about the one for whom God has made Hell obligatory in the Book, until this verse was revealed to us: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He said: So when we heard it, we refrained from testifying and we waited for the matters to be decided. To God the Almighty. Al-Bazzar said: Muhammad bin Abdul Rahim told us, Shaiban bin Abi Shaiba told us, Harb bin Surayj told us on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar: He said: We used to refrain from seeking forgiveness for the people of major sins until we heard our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. And he said: I have delayed my intercession for the people of major sins from my nation until the Day of Resurrection. Abu Ja'far Al-Razi said on the authority of Al-Rabi', Mujbir told me on the authority of Abdullah bin Umar that he said: When the verse was revealed: Say, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves, do not despair of the mercy of God' to the end of the verse, a man stood up and said: And association with God, O Prophet of God? The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) thought about that and said: "God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin." Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it through various chains of narration on the authority of Ibn Umar. This verse in Surat At-Tanzil is conditional upon repentance. Whoever repents from any sin, even if he repeats it, God will accept his repentance. That is why He said: "Say, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves, do not despair of the mercy of God. Indeed, God forgives all sins.'" That is, on the condition of repentance. If it were not like that, then association would be included in it, and that is not correct because God has ruled here that He does not forgive association, and He has ruled that He forgives everything else for whomever He wills, that is, even if its doer does not repent. This is more hopeful than that from this perspective, and God knows best. His statement: And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin is like His statement: Indeed, association is a tremendous wrong. It is proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud that he said: I said: O Messenger of God, which sin is the greatest? He said: To make a rival for God while He created you. And he mentioned the rest of the hadith. Ibn Mardawayh said: Ishaq bin Ibrahim bin Zaid told us, Ahmad bin Amr told us, Ibrahim bin Al-Mundhir told us, Ma'n told us, Sa'id bin Bashir told us, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Al-Hasan, on the authority of Imran bin

Indeed, Allah does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whom He wills. And whoever associates others with Allah has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin.

Husain: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "I will inform you of the greatest of the major sins: associating partners with God." Then he recited: And whoever associates partners with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin, and disobeying parents. Then he recited: "Be grateful to Me and to your parents. To Me is the final destination."

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 48- Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. This ruling includes all groups of infidels from the People of the Book and others, and is not limited to the infidels of the people of war, because the Jews said: Ezra is the son of God, and the Christians said: The Messiah is the son of God, and they said: The third of three. There is no disagreement among the Muslims that if a polytheist dies in his polytheism, he is not among the people of forgiveness that God has bestowed upon other than the people of polytheism according to what His will requires. As for the non-polytheists among the disobedient Muslims, they are included under the will of God, He forgives whomever He wills and punishes whomever He wills. Ibn Jarir said: This verse has made clear that every person who commits a major sin is subject to the will of God, the Almighty, if He wills He will punish him and if He wills He will pardon him, as long as his major sin was not associating partners with God, the Almighty. Its apparent meaning is that forgiveness from Him, the Almighty, is for whomever His will requires, out of His favor and mercy, even if that sinner does not repent. The Mu'tazilah restricted this to repentance. The Almighty said: If you avoid the major sins which you are forbidden, We will remove from you your lesser sins. This indicates that God Almighty forgives the sins of those who avoid major sins, so the one who avoids major sins is among those whose sins God has willed to be forgiven.

Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Dala'il narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: Rifa'ah bin Zaid bin Al-Tabut was one of the great Jews. Whenever he spoke to the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), he would twist his tongue and say: Listen to us, O Muhammad, so that we may understand you. Then he would criticize Islam and criticize it, so God revealed about him: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority regarding his statement: They distort words from their [proper] usages, meaning: They distort the limits set by God in the Torah. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement: They distort words from their [proper] usages, meaning: The Jews' alteration of the Torah. And they say, 'We hear and disobey,' they said: We hear what you say, but we do not obey you. And listen, but you are not listened to, he said: What you say is not accepted. A twist with their tongues, he said: A contradiction with which they twist their tongues. And listen and look at us, he said:

Make us understand, do not rush us. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And listen without being made to hear, that he said: They say, Listen, not You heard. Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim, and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Dala'il on the authority of Ibn Abbas, that he said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, spoke to the leaders of the Jewish rabbis, among them Abdullah bin Suriya and Ka'b bin Asad, and he said to them:

O Jews, fear God and submit, for by God you know that what I have brought to you is the truth. They said: We do not know that, O Muhammad, and God revealed about them, "O you who have been given the Scripture," the verse. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Before We obliterate faces, he said: Obliterating them means that they become blind. Then turn them on their backs, he said: We make their faces in front of their backs so that they walk backwards, and We make for one of them two eyes in the back of his head. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, Before We obliterate faces, he said: From the path of truth. Then turn them on their backs, he said: In misguidance. Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan something similar. Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated on the authority of Abu Ayyub Al-Ansari who said: "A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: I have a nephew who does not refrain from what is forbidden. He said: What is his religion?" He said: He prays and declares the oneness of God. He said: Ask him for his religion, and if he refuses, then buy it from him. The man asked him for that, but he refused. So he came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him. He said: I found him stingy with his religion, so the verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him 1:17. Ibn Ad-Durais, Abu Ya'la, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn 'Adi narrated with a sound chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn 'Umar.

He said: We used to refrain from seeking forgiveness for those who committed major sins until we heard from our Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills. He said: I have saved my supplication and intercession for the major sinners of my nation. So we refrained from much of what was in our hearts. Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar who said: "When the verse, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves' was revealed, a man stood up and said: What about association, O Prophet of God? The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, disliked that and said, 'God does not forgive association with Him'" 10:10. Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Abu Majlaz that this man's question was the reason for the revelation of the verse, God does not forgive association with Him. Abu Dawud narrated in his Naskh and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said regarding this verse: God has forbidden forgiveness for those who die as disbelievers, and He has deferred the people of monotheism to His will, so He has not made them despair of forgiveness. Al-Tirmidhi narrated and authenticated it on the authority of Ali, who said: The verse of the Qur'an that I love most is Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him the verse.

48- Indeed, God does not forgive that partners be associated with Him. Al-Kalbi said: It was revealed about Wahshi bin Harb and his companions. When he killed Hamza, he had promised him that he would be freed in exchange for killing him, but he did not fulfill that promise. When he arrived in Mecca, he and his companions regretted what they had done, so they wrote to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: We regret what we have done, and nothing prevents us from Islam except that we heard you say while you were in Mecca: And those who do not invoke with God another god (al-Furqan 25:68). We have invoked with God another god, killed the soul that God has forbidden, and committed adultery. Were it not for these verses, we would have followed you. Then the verse was revealed: Except for those who repent, believe, and do righteous work (al-Furqan 25:70-71). So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent them to them. When they read them, they wrote to him: This is a strict condition. We fear that we will not do righteous work. Then the verse was revealed: "Indeed, God does not forgive that He associates others with Him and forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills." So he sent it to them and they sent to him: We fear that we will not be among the people of His will. So the verse was revealed: Say, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves, do not despair of the mercy of God.' (al-Zumar 39:53). So he sent it to them and they entered Islam and returned to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he accepted it from them. Then he said to Wahshi: Tell me how you killed Hamza? So when he told him, he said: Woe to you, hide your face from me. So Wahshi went to Ash-Sham and remained there until he died.

Abu Majlaz said on the authority of Ibn Omar, may God be pleased with him, when the verse was revealed: Say, 'O My servants who have transgressed against themselves,' a man stood up and said: And polytheism, O Messenger of God? He was silent, then he stood up to him two or three times, and the verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him.

Mutraf bin Abdullah bin Al-Shakheer said: Ibn Omar, may God be pleased with him, said: We were during the time of Muhammad, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when a man died on a turban, we testified that he was among the people of Hell until this verse was revealed: Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him, but He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills, so we refrained from testifying.

It was narrated on the authority of Ali, may God be pleased with him, that this verse is the most hopeful verse in the Qur'an: And He forgives whatever is less than that for whomever He wills.

"And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a great sin." Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi told us, Ahmad ibn al-Hasan al-Hairi told us, Hajib ibn Ahmad al-Tusi told us, Muhammad ibn Hammad told us, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Sufyan, on the authority of Jabir, who said: "A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, what are the two necessities? He said: Whoever dies without associating anything with God will enter Paradise, and whoever dies associating anything with God will enter Hell."

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, Abu Muammar told us, I told Abdul Warith, on the authority of Al-Hussein, meaning: Al-Mu'allim, on the authority of Abdullah bin Buraidah, on the authority of Yahya bin Ya'mar, he told him that Abu Al-Aswad Al-Du'ali told him that Abu Dharr told him, he said: "I came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was wearing a white garment and he was asleep, then I came to him when he had woken up and he said: 'There is no servant who says: There is no god but God,' then he dies upon that but he will enter Paradise. I said: 'Even if he commits adultery and steals.' I said: 'Even if he commits adultery and steals?' He said: 'Even if he commits adultery and steals?' I said: 'Even if he commits adultery and steals?' He said: 'Even if he commits adultery and steals, in spite of Abu Dharr's nose.' Whenever Abu Dharr narrated this, he would say: 'Even if Abu Dharr's nose was in spite of Abu Dharr'."

48 "Indeed, God does not forgive association with Him" because He has decided that His punishment will be eternal and that the traces of his sin will not be erased, so he is not prepared for forgiveness, unlike others. "And He forgives what is less than that" meaning what is less than association, whether small or great. "For whomever He wills" as a favor and kindness to Him. The Mu'tazila linked it to the two verbs to mean that God does not forgive association with Him for whomever He wills, which is the one who does not repent, and He forgives what is less than that for whomever He wills, which is the one who repents. It contains a restriction without evidence, since the generality of the verses of threat to protection is not more appropriate than it, and it contradicts their doctrine, since linking the command to the will contradicts the necessity of punishment before repentance and forgiveness after it. So the verse, as it is an argument against them, is an argument against the Khawarij who claimed that every sin is association and that its perpetrator will remain in Hell forever. And whoever associates others with God has certainly fabricated a tremendous sin. He has committed something that is considered less sinful, and this is an indication of the meaning that distinguishes it from other sins. Fabrication, just as it is applied to speech, is also applied to action, as is invention.

Surat al-Nisa 4:48

Surat al-Nisa 4:49

Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Rather, it is God who purifies whom He wills, and they will not be wronged a thread.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? They are the Jews, when they said, We are the sons of God and His beloved. That is, the matter is not that they claim to be pure. Rather, God purifies He cleanses whom He wills through faith. And they are not wronged They do not reduce their deeds by a thread the size of a date seed shell.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

God Almighty said: Have you not seen those who purify themselves? The verse: Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The Jews used to bring their children forward to pray with them and offer their sacrifices, claiming that they had no sins or faults. Then God revealed: Have you not seen those who purify themselves? Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ikrimah, Mujahid, Abu Malik, and others.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Have you not seen, O Muhammad, in your heart those Jews who purify themselves and acquit themselves of sins and cleanse themselves?

The interpreters differed on the meaning by which the Jews praised themselves.

Some of them said: Their self-praise was their saying: We are the children of God and His beloved.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Rather, God purifies whom He wills, and they are not wronged a thread. They are the enemies of God, the Jews. They claimed to be pure with something they did not attain, so they said: We are the children of God and His beloved. And they said: We have no sins.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? He said: They are the Jews and Christians. They said: We are the children of God and His beloved. And they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Abu Tamila told us, on the authority of Ubaid bin Sulayman, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, who said: The Jews said: We have no sins except like the sins of our children on the day they are born! If they have sins, then we have sins! We are just like them! God Almighty said: See how they invent falsehood against God, and sufficient is that as a manifest sin.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? He said: The People of the Book said: None will enter Paradise except those who are Jews or Christians, and they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved, and they said: We are upon that which God loves. So God Almighty said: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Rather, God purifies whom He wills, when they claimed that they would enter Paradise, and that they were the sons of God and His beloved and the people of His obedience.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Rather, God purifies whom He wills, and they are not wronged a thread. It was revealed about the Jews. They said: We teach our children the Torah when they are young, so they will not have sins, and our sins are like the sins of our children. Whatever we do during the day will be expiated for us at night.

Others said: Rather, their self-praise was that they put their children before them to lead them in prayer, claiming that they had no sins.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: They purify themselves, he said: Jews, they used to put their children forward in prayer and lead them in prayer, claiming that they had no sins. So that is purification.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Al-A'raj, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: They used to put the boys before them in supplication and prayer, leading them in prayer, and they claimed that they had no sins, so that was a form of self-praise. Ibn Jurayj said: They are the Jews and Christians.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Hisayn, on the authority of Abu Malik, regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? He said: It was revealed about the Jews, they used to bring their children forward saying: They have no sins.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Abu Makin, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding His statement: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? He said: The People of the Book used to bring forward young boys who had not yet reached puberty to lead them in prayer, saying: They have no sins! So God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse.

Surat al-Nisa 4:49

Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Rather, it is Allah who purifies whom He wills, and they will not be wronged a thread.

Others said: Rather, their purification of themselves was their saying: Our children will intercede for us and purify us.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? That is because the Jews said: Our children have passed away, and they are close to God for us, and they will intercede for us and purify us! So God said to Muhammad: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? to and they will not be wronged a thread.

Others said: Rather, that was from them, as a recommendation from one to the other.

Who said that?

Yahya bin Ibrahim Al-Masoudi told me, he said, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Qais bin Muslim, on the authority of Tariq bin Shihab, he said: Abdullah said: A man goes out with his religion, then he returns with nothing of it! He meets a man who has no power to benefit or harm him, so he says: By God, you have enjoyed and enjoyed, and perhaps he will return without having met his need for anything, and God will be angry with him. Then he recited: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure?

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements is the statement of the one who said: The meaning of purifying the people whom God described as purifying themselves is that they described themselves as having no sins or faults, and that they are sons and beloved of God, as God informed us about what they used to say. Because that is the most obvious meaning, as God informed us about them that they only purified themselves and not others.

As for those who said: The meaning of this is: They put their children forward for prayer, then this is an interpretation whose validity cannot be known except through a reliable report that requires knowledge.

As for His statement, may He be glorified: Rather, God purifies whom He wills, it is a denial from God of those who purify themselves from the Jews and Christians, and absolve them from sins. God says to them: The matter is not as you claim, that you have no sins or faults, and that you are innocent of what God hates, but you are people of slander and lying about God. The one who is purified is not the one who purifies himself, but rather the one whom God purifies, and God purifies whomever He wills from among His creation, purifying him and absolving him from sins, by enabling him to avoid what He hates of His disobedience, and to do what pleases Him of His obedience.

We said that this is the case because God Almighty said: Look how they fabricate lies against God. He informed us that they fabricate lies against God by claiming that they are the sons of God and His beloved, and that God has purified them from sins.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, He, the Most High, means: And God does not wrong those about whom He has informed that they purify themselves or others of His creation, by depriving them of any of their rights in His not purifying them, and in the purification of those who have not purified themselves, and in the purification of those of His creation whom He purifies, nor does He put anything in the wrong place, but He purifies whomever He wills of His creation, and guides him, and disappoints whomever He wills of the people of His disobedience. All of that is up to Him and in His hand, and in all of that He does not wrong anyone - whether he purifies them or not - by a thread.

The interpreters differed about the meaning of the wick.

Some of them said: It is the dirt that comes out from between the fingers and the palms, if one of them is twisted with the other.

Who said that?

Sulayman ibn Abd al-Jabbar told me [he said, Muhammad ibn al-Salt told us] he said, Abu Kudayna told us, on the authority of Qabus, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: The wick is what comes out from between your two fingers.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Hamadani, on the authority of al-Taymi, he said: I asked Ibn Abbas about his statement: And they will not be wronged a thread, he said: What you twisted between your two fingers.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Yazid bin Dirham Abi Al-Ala', he said, I heard Abu Al-Aaliyah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they will not be wronged as much as a thread, he said: The thread is what comes out from between a man's fingers.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And they will not be wronged a thread, and a thread is that you rub your two fingers, and whatever comes out between them is that.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Husayn told us, on the authority of Abu Malik, regarding his statement: And they will not be wronged as much as a thread, he said: The thread is the dirt that comes out from between the hands.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, who said: The wick is what you twist your hands with, and dirt comes out.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansour, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And they will not be wronged a thread, he said: What you rub in your hands and it comes out between them.

Some people say: What is in the belly of the nucleus.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: a wick, he said: what is in the belly of the seed.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Talha bin Amr, on the authority of Ata', he said: The wick is what is in the belly of the seed.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Talha bin Amr told me: that he heard Ata bin Abi Rabah say, and he mentioned something similar.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said, Abdullah bin Katheer told me: He heard Mujahid say: The wick is what is in the crack of the date stone.

Muhammad bin Bashir told us, he said, Muhammad bin Saeed told us, he said, Sufyan bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: The wick, in the date pit.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us: Abd al-Razzaq told us: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And you will not be wronged even a thread, he said: The thread is what is in the crack of the date stone.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Hussein bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubaid bin Sulayman told us, who said: I heard Al-Dahhak say: The wick is the splitting of the date stone.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: The wick is what is in the belly of the seed.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, he said: The wick is what is in the crack of the seed.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And they will not be wronged a thread, the thread of the kernel.

Ibn Bashir told us, he said, Abu Amer told us, he said, Qurra told us, on the authority of Atiyah, he said: The wick is what is in the belly of the seed.

Abu Jaafar said: The origin of the word fatil is muftool, which was changed from mafool to fa'il, just as it was said: sarī and dahin from masru' and madhūn.

Since this is the case, and since God, the Most High, intended by His statement, And they will not be wronged as much as a thread, to inform us that He will not wrong His servants in the least of things that have no danger, so how about what has danger? And the dirt that comes out from between a man's fingers or from between his hands if he twists one of them over the other, like what is in the crack of a date pit and its inside, and similar things that are twisted, which have no danger or value, then it is necessary that all of that be included in the meaning of a thread, unless something comes out of that that must be accepted, which is indicated by the apparent meaning of the revelation.

It has three issues

The first - the Almighty's saying: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? This wording is general in its appearance, and none of the interpreters differed that what is meant is the Jews, and they differed in the meaning by which they claimed to be pure. Qatada and Al-Hasan said: That is their saying: We are the sons of God and His beloved, and His saying: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. Ad-Dahhak and As-Suddi said: Their saying: We have no sins, and whatever we did during the day was forgiven for us at night, and whatever we did at night was forgiven for us during the day, and we are like children in not having sins. Mujahid, Abu Malik and Ikrimah said: Their giving precedence to the young for prayer is because they have no sins, and this is far from the purpose of the verse. Ibn Abbas said: That is their saying: Our fathers who died intercede for us and purify us. Abdullah bin Masoud said: That is their praise of one another, and this is the best that has been said, for it is apparent from the meaning of the verse, and purification is: cleansing and absolution from sins.

Second - This verse and the Almighty's saying: So do not claim yourselves to be pure (al-Najm 53:32) require that one should belittle the one who praises himself with his tongue, and inform that the one who praises and is praised is the one whose actions are good and whom God the Almighty has purified. So there is no consideration for a person's self-praise, but rather the consideration is God's purification of him. In Sahih Muslim, "On the authority of Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Ata', he said: I named my daughter Barra, and Zainab bint Abi Salamah said to me: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade this name, so I named myself Barra. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Do not praise yourselves. God knows best who are the righteous among you. They said: What should we name her? He said: Name her Zainab. The Book and the Sunnah indicate that it is forbidden for a person to praise himself. This is similar to what has become widespread in these Egyptian lands of people praising themselves with descriptions that necessitate praise, such as Zaki al-Din, Muhyi al-Din, and the like. However, when the ugliness of those named by these names increased, it became apparent that these descriptions were out of step with their origins, and they became of no use.

Third: As for praising and commending others, in Bukhari, from the hadith of Abu Bakrah, "A man was mentioned in the presence of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he praised him and said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:49

Woe to you, you have cut off your friend's neck - he said it repeatedly - if one of you must praise someone, then let him say, "I think so-and-so" if he thinks that he is like that, and God will judge him, and no one can be praised before God. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade going to extremes in praising a man for something he does not have, lest he become arrogant and conceited and think that he is in reality in that position, which would lead him to neglect his work and not increase his virtue. Therefore, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, Woe to you, you have cut off your friend's neck. In another hadith:

You have cut off the man's back, as they described him with something he did not have. This is how scholars interpreted the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

Throw dirt in the faces of flatterers. What is meant by this are those who flatter people in their faces with falsehood and with what is not in them, so that they make that a commodity by which they eat the one being praised and tempt him. As for praising a man for what he has of good deeds and praiseworthy commands, so that it may be from him an encouragement to him in his likes and an incitement for people to follow his example in his likes, then he is not a flatterer, even if he has become a flatterer by what he has said of beautiful words about him. This goes back to intentions, and God knows the corrupter from the reformer. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, praised people in poetry, sermons, and speeches, and he did not throw dirt in the faces of flatterers, nor did he command that, like the saying of Abu Talib:

And a white man, with whose face the clouds are drawn, a support for orphans and a guardian for widows.

And as Al-Abbas and Hassan praised him in their poetry, and Kaab bin Zuhair praised him, and he also praised his companions, saying: You are few when you are greedy and many when you are afraid. As for his saying, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the authentic hadith:

Do not praise me as the Christians praised Jesus, son of Mary, and say: The servant of God and His Messenger. This means that do not describe me with attributes that I do not have, seeking thereby to praise me, as the Christians described Jesus with attributes that he did not have, and attributed to him that he was the son of God, and thus they disbelieved and went astray. This requires that whoever raises a person above his limit and exceeds his status with something that he does not have, then he is an aggressor and sinner, because if that were permissible for anyone, then the most deserving of that of creation would be the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

God the Almighty said: And they will not be wronged even a thread. The pronoun in they will not be wronged refers to those mentioned, from those who purify themselves and those whom God the Almighty purifies. Other than these two types, it is known that God will not wrong them from other than this verse. The wick is the thread in the slit of the date pit. This was said by Ibn Abbas, Ata', and Mujahid. It was also said that it is the shard that surrounds the pit between it and the unripe date. Ibn Abbas also said, as did Abu Malik and al-Suddi: It is what comes out between your two fingers or your two hands from dirt when you twist them. It is a fa'il with the meaning of maf'ul. All of this goes back to a metaphor for belittling and diminishing something, and that God will not wrong it at all. An example of this in belittling is God the Almighty's saying: And they will not be wronged even a speck (An-Nisa': 124). It is the dot in the back of the pit, from which the palm tree grows. The poet said, criticizing some kings:

Gather an army of thousands and invade, then do not spare the enemy a single bit.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Hasan and Qatada said: This verse, which is His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? was revealed about the Jews and Christians when they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved. Ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about their saying, We are the sons of God and His beloved, and about their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian.

Mujahid said: They used to put the boys before them in supplication and prayer, leading them in prayer, and they claimed that they had no sin. This is what Ikrimah and Abu Malik said, and Ibn Jarir narrated this. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? That is because the Jews said: Our sons died and they are close to us and they will intercede for us and purify us. So God revealed to Muhammad, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure?

The verse was narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad ibn Musaffa told us, Ibn Himyar told us on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, on the authority of Bashir ibn Abi Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas said: The Jews used to have their children pray with them, and they would bring their offerings and claim that they had no sins or faults, and they lied. God said: I do not purify one who has sin by another who has no sin. God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? Then he said: It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Abu Malik, As-Suddi, Ikrimah and Ad-Dahhak, something similar to that. Ad-Dahhak said: They said: We have no sins just as our children have no sins, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? about them. It was said: It was revealed in condemnation of flattery and self-praise. It was mentioned in the authentic hadith of Muslim on the authority of Al-Miqdad bin Al-Aswad, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered us to throw dirt in the faces of flatterers. In another hadith narrated in the two Sahih's on the authority of Khalid Al-Hadha' on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakra, on the authority of his father: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, heard a man praising another man, so he said: Woe to you, you have cut off the neck of your companion. Then he said: "If one of you must praise his companion, let him say: I think so, and he does not vouch for anyone before God. Imam Ahmad said: Mu'tamir told us on the authority of his father on the authority of Na'im bin Abi Hind who said: Umar bin Al-Khattab said: Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of Talhah bin Ubaidullah bin Kuraiz on the authority of Umar who said: What I fear most for you is a person's admiration for his own opinion. Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Shu'bah and Hajjaj told us, Shu'bah told us on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Ma'bad Al-Juhani who said: Mu'awiyah rarely narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: He rarely left these words on Friday to narrate them on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: "Whoever God wants good for, He gives him understanding of the religion. This wealth is sweet and green, so whoever takes it rightfully, He will bless it for him. Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." Ibn Majah narrated from him: "Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." On the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Ghundar, on the authority of Shu'bah, on his authority. This Ma'bad is the son of Abdullah bin Uwaim al-Basri al-Qadari. Ibn Jarir said: Yahya bin Ibrahim Al-Masoudi told us, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Qais bin Muslim, on the authority of Tariq bin Shihab, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: A man may go out with his religion and then return with nothing of it. He meets a man who has no power to benefit or harm him, and he says to him: By God, you are such and such. Perhaps he will return without having fulfilled his need for anything, and he has angered God. Then he recited: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse, and we will discuss this at length when God Almighty says: "So do not claim yourselves to be pure. He is most knowing of who fears Him." That is why God Almighty said: Rather, God purifies whom He wills, meaning that the reference in this is to God Almighty, because He is most knowledgeable of the truths of matters and their mysteries. Then God Almighty said: And they will not be wronged a thread, meaning that no one will be left with a reward equal to the amount of a thread. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata', Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and more than one of the Salaf said: It is what is in the crack of the seed. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: It is what you twist between your fingers, and both statements are close. And his saying, See how they invent lies against God means in their self-praise and their claim that they are the sons of God and His beloved, and their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, and their saying, The Fire will not touch us except for a few days and their reliance on the righteous deeds of their fathers, and God has ruled that the deeds of fathers do not compensate for the sons in anything in His saying, "That was a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you have earned" (al-An'am 2:10), then He said, And sufficient for that is a clear sin meaning, and sufficient for their action is a lie and apparent fabrication. And his saying, Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut [al-Jibt], as for Jibt, Muhammad ibn Ishaq said, on the authority of Hassan ibn Fa'id, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab that he said: Jibt is magic, and Taghut is Satan. And thus it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, Al-Dahhak, and Al-Suddi. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, and Atiyyah: Al-Jibt is the devil. Ibn Abbas added: In Abyssinian. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: Al-Jibt is polytheism. And on his authority: Al-Jibt is idols. And on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: Al-Jibt is the soothsayer. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab. And on the authority of Mujahid: Al-Jibt is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. And the scholar Abu Nasr Ismail bin Hammad Al-Jawhari said in his book As-Sahah: Al-Jibt is a word that refers to an idol, soothsayer, magician, and the like. And in the hadith: Birth omen, divination, and ways are from Al-Jibt. He said: This is not pure Arabic because the letter jim and the letter ta' come together in one word without a letter with a liqa. This hadith which was mentioned and narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Awf told us from Hayyan Abu al-'Ala', Qatan ibn Qubaysah told us from his father, who is Qubaysah ibn Mukhariq, that he heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Verily, divination, and superstition are from the jibt. Awf said: Divination is the driving away of birds, and divination is the line drawn on the ground, and the jibt, al-Hasan said: It is the devil. And thus Abu Dawud narrated it in his Sunan, and al-Nasa'i and Ibn Abi Hatim in their Tafsirs from the hadith of Awf al-A'abi with it. We have already discussed the taghut in Surat al-Baqarah in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it here. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ishaq ibn al-Dayf told us, Hajjaj told us from Ibn Jurayj, Abu al-Zubayr told me that he heard Jabir ibn 'Abdullah being asked about taghut, and he said: They are soothsayers upon whom the devils descend. And Mujahid said: The taghut is the devil in the form of a human being to whom they turn for judgment, and he is the one in charge of their affairs. Imam Malik said: Taghut is everything that is worshipped besides God the Almighty. And His statement, And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way,' means that they prefer the disbelievers over the Muslims because of their ignorance, lack of religion, and their disbelief in the Book of God in their hands. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to the people of Mecca and said to them: You are the people of the Book and the people of knowledge, so tell us about us and about Muhammad. They said: What are you and what is Muhammad? They said: We maintain kinship ties, slaughter sheep, give water to drink on milk, free the captives, and give water to the pilgrims. Muhammad is a faucet that severed our kinship ties, and the thieves of the pilgrims, Banu Ghafar, followed him. Are we better or is he? They said: You are better and more guided in your path. So God revealed: Have you not considered those who were given a share? This has been narrated from more than one source on the authority of Ibn Abbas and a group of the Salaf. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Abi Uday told us on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to Mecca, the Quraysh said: Do you not see this young man who has been cut off from his people? He claims that he is better than us, while we are the people of the pilgrimage, the people of the guardianship, and the people of the water supply? He said: You are better. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, your enemy is the one cut off. And the verse was revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say of those who disbelieve, "These are better guided than those who believe in the way. Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses, you will never find for him a helper." Ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who formed the confederates from Quraysh, Ghatafan, and Banu Qurayzah were Huyayy ibn Akhtab, Salam ibn Abi al-Haqiq Abu Rafi', al-Rabi' ibn al-Rabi' ibn Abi al-Haqiq, Abu Ammar, Wahwah ibn Amir, and Hudhah ibn Qays. As for Wahwah, Abu Ammar, and Hudhah, they were from Banu Wa'il, and the rest of them were from Banu al-Nadir. So when they came to Quraysh, they said: These are the rabbis of the Jews and the people of knowledge of the first Scriptures, so ask them, is your religion better or the religion of Muhammad? So they asked them and they said: Rather, your religion is better than his religion, and you are more guided than him and those who followed him. So God Almighty revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? until His Almighty saying: And We gave them a great kingdom. This is a curse on them and a statement that they will have no supporter in this world or in the Hereafter because they only went to seek support from the polytheists, and they only said that to them to attract them to support them, and they answered them and came with them on the Day of the Confederates until the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions dug the trench around Medina, and God spared them their evil: "And God repelled those who disbelieved in their fury; they did not attain any good. And God spared the believers the fighting, and ever is God Strong and Exalted in Might."

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 49- Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? is an expression of astonishment at their state. The commentators agreed that what is meant is the Jews. They differed on the meaning of what they claimed to be pure with. Al-Hasan and Qatadah said: It is their saying, We are the children of God and His beloved, and their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. Ad-Dahhak said: It is their saying, We have no sins and we are like children. It was also said that they said, Their fathers intercede for them. It was also said that it is the praise of some of them for others. The meaning of purification is cleansing and sanctification, so it is not far-fetched to say that it is true according to all of these commentaries and others. The wording includes everyone who purifies himself, rightly or wrongly, from the Jews and others, and this includes changing titles that include purification, such as Muhyi ad-Din, Izz ad-Din, and the like. His statement, Rather, God purifies whom He wills, meaning: that is up to Him, the Most High, for He knows who among His servants deserves to be purified and who does not. So let the servants leave the purification of themselves and entrust the matter of that to God, the Most High, for their purification of themselves is merely corrupt claims driven by self-love, seeking superiority, haughtiness and boasting. An example of this verse is the statement of God, the Most High, "So do not claim yourselves to be pure. He is most knowing of who fears Him." His statement, And you will not be wronged, meaning those who purify themselves, even a thread, which is the thread in the date pit. It was also said that it is the husk around the pit. It was also said that it is what comes out between your fingers or hands of dirt when you twist them. So it is a thread in the sense of twisted. What is meant here is a metaphor for something insignificant. The same is true of nor will they be wronged even as much as a speck, which is the dot on the back of the pit. Meaning: Those who praise themselves will be punished for their praise of themselves to the extent of this sin and will not be wronged by exceeding what they deserve. It is permissible for the pronoun to refer to whoever He wills, meaning: Those whom God praises will not be wronged in the least bit of what they deserve of reward.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

49- The Almighty said: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse, Al-Kalbi said: "It was revealed about some Jewish men, including Bahri bin Amr, Al-Nu'man bin Awfa, and Marhab bin Zaid. They brought their children to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Muhammad, is there any sin upon these people? He said: No. They said: We are just like them. Whatever we do during the day will be expiated for us at night, and whatever we do at night will be expiated for us during the day. So God Almighty revealed this verse."

Mujahid and Ikrimah said: They used to put their children first in prayer, claiming that they had no sins, and that was purification.

Al-Hasan, Ad-Dahhak, Qatadah and Muqatil said: It was revealed about the Jews and Christians when they said, We are the children of God and His beloved ones, "And they say, 'None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew or a Christian.'" Al-Baqarah 2:111 Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, may God be pleased with him, said: It is the praise of one another. Tariq ibn Shihab narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud who said: A man may go out from his home with his religion, and a man comes who has no power to harm or benefit himself, and he says, By God, you are such and such, and he returns to his home with nothing of his religion. Then he recited: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Al-Baqarah 2:111.

The Almighty says: Rather, God purifies meaning: He cleanses, absolves from sins, and reforms whoever He wills, and they will not be wronged a thread. This is the name for what is in the crack of the seed, and the qatmir is the name for the shell on the seed, and the naqeer is the name for the dot on the back of the seed. It was said: the fateel comes from fatal, which is what is placed between the two fingers of dirt when spinning.

49Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? meaning the People of the Book. They said, We are the children of God and His beloved. It was said, "Some of the Jews came with their children to the Messenger of God and said, 'Is there a sin upon these people?' He said, 'No.' They said, 'By God, we are only like them. Whatever we do during the day, it will be expiated for us at night, and whatever we do at night, it will be expiated for us during the day.'" In their meaning is the one who purifies and commends himself. Rather, God purifies whom He wills. It is a warning that His purification is what is taken into account, not the purification of others, for He is the All-Knowing of what is good and bad within a person. He has condemned them and purified those of His believing servants whom He approves of. The origin of purification is the negation of what is considered ugly in action or speech. Nor will they be wronged by being condemned or punished for their purification of themselves unjustly. A wick is the lowest and smallest injustice, and it is the thread in the crack of a seed that is used as an example of insignificance.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Look, O Muhammad, how these people of the Book who claim to be pure, who say: We are the sons of God and His beloved, and that no one will enter Paradise except those who are Jews or Christians, who claim that they have no sins, fabricate lies and falsehoods from speech, and invent them against God, and that is sufficient for them, he says: and that is sufficient for them with their saying that lie and falsehood against God, a manifest sin, meaning that He makes their lie clear to his listeners, and makes clear to them that they are wicked liars, as:

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? He said: They are the Jews and Christians. Look how they invent lies about God.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was amazed by that and said: Look how they fabricate lies against God in their saying, We are the sons of God and His beloved. It was said: Their self-praise, according to Ibn Jurayj, and it was narrated that they said: We have no sins except like the sins of our children on the day they were born. Fabrication is invention, and from it, so-and-so fabricated against so-and-so, meaning he accused him of something that was not in him, and fabricated something, I cut it off. And it is sufficient as a manifest sin is in the accusative case for clarification, and the meaning is the glorification of sins and their condemnation, and the Arabs use the same in praise and condemnation.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Hasan and Qatada said: This verse, which is His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? was revealed about the Jews and Christians when they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved. Ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about their saying, We are the sons of God and His beloved, and about their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian.

Mujahid said: They used to put the boys before them in supplication and prayer, leading them in prayer, and they claimed that they had no sin. This is what Ikrimah and Abu Malik said, and Ibn Jarir narrated this. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? That is because the Jews said: Our sons died and they are close to us and they will intercede for us and purify us. So God revealed to Muhammad, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse was narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad ibn Musaffa told us, Ibn Himyar told us on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, on the authority of Bashir ibn Abi Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas said: The Jews used to have their children pray with them, and they would bring their offerings and claim that they had no sins or faults, and they lied. God said: I do not purify one who has sin by another who has no sin. God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? Then he said: It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Abu Malik, As-Suddi, Ikrimah and Ad-Dahhak, something similar to that. Ad-Dahhak said: They said: We have no sins just as our children have no sins, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? about them. It was said: It was revealed in condemnation of flattery and self-praise. It was mentioned in the authentic hadith of Muslim on the authority of Al-Miqdad bin Al-Aswad, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered us to throw dirt in the faces of flatterers. In another hadith narrated in the two Sahihs on the authority of Khalid Al-Hadha' on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakra, on the authority of his father: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, heard a man praising another man, so he said: Woe to you, you have cut off the neck of your companion. Then he said: "If one of you must praise his companion, let him say: I think so, and he does not vouch for anyone before God. Imam Ahmad said: Mu'tamir told us on the authority of his father on the authority of Na'im bin Abi Hind who said: Umar bin Al-Khattab said: Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of Talhah bin Ubaidullah bin Kuraiz on the authority of Umar who said: What I fear most for you is a person's admiration for his own opinion. Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Shu'bah and Hajjaj told us, Shu'bah told us on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Ma'bad Al-Juhani who said: Mu'awiyah rarely narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: He rarely left these words on Friday to narrate them on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: "Whoever God wants good for, He gives him understanding of the religion. This wealth is sweet and green, so whoever takes it rightfully, He will bless it for him. Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." Ibn Majah narrated from him: "Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." On the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Ghundar, on the authority of Shu'bah, on his authority. This Ma'bad is the son of Abdullah bin Uwaim al-Basri al-Qadari. Ibn Jarir said: Yahya bin Ibrahim Al-Masoudi told us, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Qais bin Muslim, on the authority of Tariq bin Shihab, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: A man may go out with his religion and then return with nothing of it. He meets a man who has no power to benefit or harm him, and he says to him: By God, you are such and such. Perhaps he will return without having fulfilled his need for anything, and he has angered God. Then he recited: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse, and we will discuss this at length when God Almighty says: "So do not claim yourselves to be pure. He is most knowing of who fears Him." That is why God Almighty said: Rather, God purifies whom He wills, meaning that the reference in this is to God Almighty, because He is most knowledgeable of the truths of matters and their mysteries. Then God Almighty said: And they will not be wronged a thread, meaning that no one will be left with a reward equal to the amount of a thread. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata', Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and more than one of the Salaf said: It is what is in the crack of the seed. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: It is what you twist between your fingers, and both statements are close. And his saying, See how they invent lies against God means in their self-praise and their claim that they are the sons of God and His beloved, and their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, and their saying, The Fire will not touch us except for a few days and their reliance on the righteous deeds of their fathers, and God has ruled that the deeds of fathers do not compensate for the sons in anything in His saying, "That was a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you have earned" (al-An'am 2:10), then He said, And sufficient for that is a clear sin meaning, and sufficient for their action is a lie and apparent fabrication. And his saying, Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut [al-Jibt], as for Jibt, Muhammad ibn Ishaq said, on the authority of Hassan ibn Fa'id, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab that he said: Jibt is magic, and Taghut is Satan. And thus it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, Al-Dahhak, and Al-Suddi. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, and Atiyyah: Al-Jibt is the devil. Ibn Abbas added: In Abyssinian. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: Al-Jibt is polytheism. And on his authority: Al-Jibt is idols. And on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: Al-Jibt is the soothsayer. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab. And on the authority of Mujahid: Al-Jibt is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. And the scholar Abu Nasr Ismail bin Hammad Al-Jawhari said in his book As-Sahah: Al-Jibt is a word that refers to an idol, soothsayer, magician, and the like. And in the hadith: Birth omen, divination, and ways are from Al-Jibt. He said: This is not pure Arabic because the letter jim and the letter ta' come together in one word without a letter with a lifqa. This hadith which was mentioned and narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Awf told us from Hayyan Abu al-'Ala', Qatan ibn Qubaysah told us from his father, who is Qubaysah ibn Mukhariq, that he heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Verily, divination, and superstition are from the jibt. Awf said: Divination is the driving away of birds, and divination is the line drawn on the ground, and the jibt, al-Hasan said: It is the devil. And thus Abu Dawud narrated it in his Sunan, and al-Nasa'i and Ibn Abi Hatim in their Tafsirs from the hadith of Awf al-'Ala' rabi with it. We have already discussed the taghut in Surat al-Baqarah in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it here. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ishaq ibn al-Dayf told us, Hajjaj told us from Ibn Jurayj, Abu al-Zubayr told me that he heard Jabir ibn 'Abdullah being asked about taghut, and he said: They are soothsayers upon whom the devils descend. And Mujahid said: The taghut is the devil in the form of a human being to whom they turn for judgment, and he is the one in charge of their affairs. Imam Malik said: Taghut is everything that is worshipped besides God the Almighty. And His statement, And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way,' means that they prefer the disbelievers over the Muslims because of their ignorance, lack of religion, and their disbelief in the Book of God in their hands. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to the people of Mecca and said to them: You are the people of the Book and the people of knowledge, so tell us about us and about Muhammad. They said: What are you and what is Muhammad? They said: We maintain kinship ties, slaughter sheep, give water to drink on milk, free the captives, and give water to the pilgrims. Muhammad is a faucet that severed our kinship ties, and the thieves of the pilgrims, Banu Ghafar, followed him. Are we better or is he? They said: You are better and more guided in your path. So God revealed: Have you not considered those who were given a share? This has been narrated from more than one source on the authority of Ibn Abbas and a group of the Salaf. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Abi Uday told us on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to Mecca, the Quraysh said: Do you not see this young man who has been cut off from his people? He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, your enemy is the one cut off. And the verse was revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say of those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way. Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses, you will never find for him a helper." Ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who formed the

Then the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was amazed at their self-praise, so he said: 50- Look how they fabricate lies against God in saying that. Fabrication means invention, and from it someone fabricated against someone: meaning he accused him of something that is not in him, and Fariyyat means cutting something off. In His statement: And that is sufficient as a manifest sin there is an emphasis on the sin and its horror that is not hidden.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

Tafsir al-Baidawi

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Have you not seen those who were given the verse K Ahmad and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: When Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf came to Mecca, the Quraysh said: Do you not see this one who has been cut off from his people? He claims that he is better than us, and we are the people of the pilgrimage, the people of the custodianship, and the people of the water supply. He said: You are better. So it was revealed about them: Indeed, your enemy is the one cut off. And it was revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? To a supporter.

Ibn Ishaq narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who formed the confederates from Quraysh, Ghatafan, and Banu Qurayzah were Huyayy ibn Akhtab, Salam ibn Abi al-Haqiq, Abu Rafi', al-Rabi' ibn Abi al-Haqiq, Abu 'Amara, and Hudha ibn Qays. The rest of them were from Banu al-Nadir. When they came to Quraysh, they said: These are Jewish rabbis and people of knowledge of the first scriptures, so ask them: Is your religion better or the religion of Muhammad? So they asked them, and they said: Your religion is better than his religion, and you are better guided than him and those who follow him. Then God revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture until His saying: A great kingdom.

K and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The People of the Book said: Muhammad claimed that he was given what he was given in humility and he has nine wives and his only concern is marriage. So what king is better than this? So God revealed: Or do they envy people? The verse. Ibn Saad narrated on the authority of Umar, the freed slave of Afra, something similar but more simple than it.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Have you not seen in your heart, O Muhammad, those who were given a portion of the Book of God and learned it, believe in false gods and idols, meaning: they believe in false gods and idols, and disbelieve in God, and they know that believing in them is disbelief, and believing in them is polytheism.

Then the people of interpretation differed about the meaning of al-Jibt and al-Taghut.

Some of them said: They are two idols that the polytheists used to worship instead of God.

Who said that?

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, he said, Ayoub told me, on the authority of Ikrimah, that he said: Al-Jibt and Al-Taghut are two idols.

Others said: Al-Jibt are idols, and Al-Taghut are the translators of idols.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut. "Jibt" means idols, and Taghut means those who are in the presence of idols, interpreting lies about them in order to mislead people.

Some men claimed that the priest, Al-Jibt, and the tyrant, were a Jewish man named Kaab bin Al-Ashraf, who was the master of the Jews.

Others said: Al-Jibt is magic, and Al-Taghut is the devil.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Muhammad bin Abi Uday told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Hassan bin Fa'id, he said: Omar, may God have mercy on him, said: Al-Jibt is magic, and Al-Taghut is Satan.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Hassan bin Fa'id al-Absi, on the authority of Umar, similarly.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of someone who told him, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Al-Jibt is magic, and Al-Taghut is Satan.

Yaqub told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Zakariya told us, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, he said: Al-Jibt means magic, and Al-Taghut means Satan.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement, They believe in magic and the Taghut, he Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Qais, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: Al-Jibt is magic, and Al-Taghut is the devil and the soothsayer.

Others said: Al-Jibt is the magician, and Al-Taghut is the devil.

Who said that?

Yunus told us, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: My father used to say: Al-Jibt is the magician, and Al-Taghut is the devil.

Others said: Al-Jibt is the magician, and Al-Taghut is the priest.

Who said that?

Ibn Bashar told us, he said, Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, he said, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Abu Bishr, on the authority of Sayyid ibn Jubayr, regarding this verse: al-Jibt and al-Taghut, he said: al-Jibt is the magician, in the language of the Abyssinians, and al-Taghut is the soothsayer.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Rafi', he said: Al-Jibt is the magician, and Al-Taghut is the soothsayer.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-A'la told me, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Abu Al-A'la, that he said: The tyrant is the magician, and the Jabt is the soothsayer.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Abu Al-Aaliyah, regarding his statement: Al-Jibt and Al-Taghut, he said: One of them is magic, and the other is Satan.

Others said: Al-Jibt is the devil, and Al-Taghut is the priest.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: They believe in Jibt and Taghut, we used to say that Jibt is a devil and Taghut is a soothsayer.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, similarly.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, who said: Al-Jibt is the devil, and Al-Taghut is the soothsayer.

Others said: Al-Jibt is the priest, and Al-Taghut is the magician.

Who said that?

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, he said: Al-Jibt is the soothsayer, and Al-Taghut is the magician.

Ibn Bashar told us, Hammad bin Mas'adah told us, Aouf told us, on the authority of Muhammad, who said about al-Jibt and al-Taghut, he said: Al-Jibt is the soothsayer, and the other is the magician. Others said: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab, and al-Taghut is Ka'b bin al-Ashraf.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali, regarding Ibn Abbas's statement: They believe in Jibt and Taghut, "Taghut": Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, and Jibt: Huyayy bin Akhtab.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Juwaybir, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, he said: Al-Jibt is Huyayy ibn Akhtab, and Al-Taghut is Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Al-Jibt and Al-Taghut, he said: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab, and Al-Taghut is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf.

Others said: Al-Jibt is Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf, and Al-Taghut is Satan.

Who said that?

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: Al-Jibt: Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, and Al-Taghut: Satan, he was in the form of a human being.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct interpretation of they believe in idols and false gods is to say: They believe in two gods other than God, they worship them other than God, and they take them as gods.

This is because al-Jibt and al-Taghut are names for everything that is glorified by worship, obedience, or submission to someone other than God, regardless of who that glorified thing is, whether it is a stone, a human, or a devil. Since this is the case, and the idols that the people of ignorance worshipped were glorified by worship other than God, they were jibt and taghut. Likewise the devils that the infidels obeyed in disobeying God, and likewise the magician and the soothsayer whose words were acceptable regarding the people of polytheism. Likewise Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, because they were obeyed by the people of their religion, the Jews, in disobeying God and disbelieving in Him and His Messenger, so they were jibt and taghut.

I have explained the origin from which the tyrant was called taghut, so that there is no need to repeat it in this place.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: And they say to those who denied the Oneness of God and the message of His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: These, meaning by that: those whom God described as disbelievers, are more guided, meaning: more upright and more just, than those who believed, meaning: of those who believed in God and His Messenger and acknowledged what their Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, brought them, a way, meaning: a path.

Abu Ja'far said: This is only an example. The meaning of the statement is that God described those Jews who were given a portion of the Scripture, with their glorification of other than God in worship and submission to Him in obedience, in disbelief in God and His Messenger and disobedience to them, as they said: The people of disbelief in God are more deserving of the truth than the people of belief in Him, and that the religion of the people of denial of God and His Messenger is more just and correct than the religion of the people of belief in God and His Messenger.

He mentioned that this is a description of Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, and that he is the one who said it.

Mentioning the effects mentioned in what we said:

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna narrated, he said, Ibn Abi Uday narrated, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: When Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to Mecca, the Quraysh said to him: Are you the scholar and master of the people of Medina? He said: Yes. They said: Do you not see this young man who has been cut off from his people? He claims that he is better than us, while we are the people of the pilgrimage, the people of the custodianship, and the people of the water supply? He said: You are better than him. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, your enemy is the one cut off [al-Kawthar 3], and the verse was revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut, until His saying: You will not find for him a helper.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdul-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding this verse: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture? Then he mentioned something similar.

And Ishaq bin Shaheen told me, he said, Khalid Al-Wasiti told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, he said: Kaab bin Al-Ashraf came to Mecca, and the polytheists said to him: Judge between us and this cut-off faucet, for you are our master and the master of your people! Kaab said: By God, you are better than him! Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture? to the end of the verse.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya narrated, Abd al-Razzaq narrated, Muammar narrated, Ayoub narrated, on the authority of Ikrimah: Ka'b bin al-Ashraf went to the polytheists of Quraysh and sought their help against the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and ordered them to attack him, and he said: We are with you and will fight him. They said: You are People of the Book, and he is a People of the Book, and we are not sure that this is a plot from you! If you want us to go out with you, then prostrate to these two idols and believe in them. So he did. Then they said: Are we more guided or Muhammad? We slaughter camels, give milk to drink on water, maintain family ties, welcome our guests, and perform Tawaf around this House, while Muhammad has severed his family ties and left his country? He said: Rather, you are better and more guided! So the following was revealed about him: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say of those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in a way.'

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated, Asbat narrated, on the authority of al-Suddi: When the affair of the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and the Jews of al-Nadir happened, when he came to them seeking their help in the blood money of the two tribes of 'Amir, they intended to attack him and his companions. God informed His Messenger of what they intended to do. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) returned to Medina, and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf fled until he came to Mecca, and made a covenant with them regarding Muhammad. Abu Sufyan said to him: O Abu Sa'd, you are a people who read the Book and learn, and we are a people who do not know! So tell us, is our religion better or the religion of Muhammad? Ka'b said: Show me your religion. Abu Sufyan said: We are a people who slaughter camels, provide water for the pilgrims, welcome our guests, build the House of our Lord, and worship the gods that our fathers used to worship, and Muhammad commands us to abandon this and follow him! He said: Your religion is better than the religion of Muhammad, so remain steadfast in it. Don't you see that Muhammad claims that he was sent with humility, yet he marries as many women as he wants! We do not know of a kingdom greater than the kingdom of women!! That is when he says: "Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in false gods and taghut and say of those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way.'"

Al-Qasim narrated, Al-Husayn narrated, Hajjaj narrated, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: It was revealed about Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf and the infidels of Quraysh. He said: The infidels of Quraysh are more guided than Muhammad! Ibn Jurayj said: Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came, and Quraysh came to him and asked him about Muhammad. He belittled his matter and made it easy, and told them that he was astray. He said: Then they said to him: We ask you by God, are we more guided or is he? For you know that we slaughter camels, provide water for the pilgrims, maintain the House, and feed whatever the wind blows. He said: You are more guided.

Others said: Rather, this description is the description of a group of Jews, including Huyayy ibn Akhtab, who were the ones who said to the polytheists what God told them that they said to them.

The report mentioned that:

Ibn Humayd narrated, Salamah narrated, on the authority of Ibn Ishaq, on the authority of someone who narrated it, he said, Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad informed me, on the authority of Ikrimah or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who formed the confederates from Quraysh, Ghatafan and Banu Qurayzah were: Huyayy ibn Akhtab, Salam ibn Abi Al-Haqiq Abu Rafi', Ar-Rabi' ibn Ar-Rabi' ibn Abi Al-Haqiq, Abu Ammar, Wahwah ibn Amir, and Hudhahah ibn Qays. As for Wahwah, Abu Ammar and Hudhahah, they were from Banu Wa'il, and the rest of them were from Banu An-Nadir. When they came to Quraysh, they said: These are the rabbis of the Jews and the people of knowledge of the first books, so ask them: Is your religion better or the religion of Muhammad? So they asked them, and they said: Rather, your religion is better than his religion, and you are more guided than him and those who followed him! So God revealed about them: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut, until His saying: And We gave them a great kingdom.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated, Yazid narrated, Saeed narrated, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut, the verse. He said: It was mentioned to us that this verse was revealed about Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, Huyayy bin Akhtab, and two Jewish men from Banu Nadir, who met Quraysh during a season. The polytheists said to them: Are we more guided than Muhammad and his companions? We are the people of the custodianship and the water-carriers, and the people of the sanctuary? They said: No, you are more guided than Muhammad and his companions! And they knew that they were lying, but what drove them to do that was envy of Muhammad and his companions.

Others said: Rather, this is a description of Huyayy ibn Akhtab alone, and he is the one he meant by his saying: And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way.'

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture, to the end of the verse, he said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab came to the polytheists and said: O Huyayy, you are people of the Scripture, so are we better or Muhammad and his companions? So he said: We and you are better than them! So that is His statement: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture, to His statement: And whoever God curses - you will never find for him a helper.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the opinions on this matter is the opinion of those who said: This is report from God, may He be glorified, about a group of the People of the Book from among the Jews. It is possible that it was the group that Ibn 'Abbas named in the report that Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad narrated on the authority of 'Ikrimah or Sa'id, or it could be Huyayy and another person with him, either Ka'b or someone else.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: "Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture meaning the Jews believe in Jibt and Taghut." The people of interpretation differed in the interpretation of Jibt and Taghut. Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jubayr, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Jibt is the magician in the language of the Abyssinians, and Taghut is the soothsayer. Al-Farouq Omar, may God be pleased with him, said: Jibt is magic and Taghut is the devil. Ibn Masoud Al-Jibt and Taghut here are Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, Huyayy bin Akhtab and Ikrimah: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab and Taghut is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. His evidence is the Almighty's saying: They want to refer judgment to Taghut. Qatada Al-Jibt is the devil and Taghut is the soothsayer. Ibn Wahb narrated on the authority of Malik bin Anas: Taghut is that which is worshipped instead of God. He said: I heard someone say that Al-Jibt is the devil. An-Nahhas mentioned it. It was said: They are everything that is worshipped instead of God or obeyed in disobeying God. This is better. The origin of Al-Jibt is gypsum, which is that in which there is no good, so the ta' was replaced with the seen, as Qatrib said. It was said: The Jibt Iblis and the Taghut are guardians, and Malik's statement in this regard is good, and it is indicated by the words of God Almighty: Worship God and avoid Taghut (al-Nahl 16:36), and God Almighty said: And those who avoid Taghut, that they worship it (al-Zumar 39:17). Qatan bin Qubaysah bin Al-Mukhariq narrated on the authority of his father, who said that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

Paths, superstitions, and divination are from Jibt. Paths are deterrents, and divination is the line. Abu Dawood included it in his Sunan. It was said: Jibt is everything that God has forbidden, and Taghut is everything that makes a person transgress. And God knows best.

God the Almighty said: They say to those who disbelieve meaning the Jews say to the disbelievers of Quraysh, You are more guided in your path than those who believed in Muhammad. That is because Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf went out with seventy Jewish riders to Mecca after the Battle of Uhud to ally with Quraysh to fight the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ka'b stayed with Abu Sufyan, who treated him well. The Jews stayed in the homes of Quraysh, and they made a pact and pledged to unite to fight Muhammad. Abu Sufyan said: "You are a man who reads the Book and learns, and we are illiterate and do not know. So which of us is more guided in your path and closer to the truth, us or Muhammad?" Ka'b said: By God, you are more guided in your path than what Muhammad is upon.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Hasan and Qatada said: This verse, which is His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? was revealed about the Jews and Christians when they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved. Ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about their saying, We are the sons of God and His beloved, and about their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. Mujahid said: They used to put the boys before them in supplication and prayer, leading them in prayer, and they claimed that they had no sin. This is what Ikrimah and Abu Malik said, and Ibn Jarir narrated this. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? That is because the Jews said: Our sons died and they are close to us and they will intercede for us and purify us. So God revealed to Muhammad, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse was narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad ibn Musaffa told us, Ibn Himyar told us on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, on the authority of Bashir ibn Abi Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas said: The Jews used to have their children pray with them, and they would bring their offerings and claim that they had no sins or faults, and they lied. God said: I do not purify one who has sin by another who has no sin. God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? Then he said: It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Abu Malik, As-Suddi, Ikrimah and Ad-Dahhak, something similar to that. Ad-Dahhak said: They said: We have no sins just as our children have no sins, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? about them. It was said: It was revealed in condemnation of flattery and self-praise. It was mentioned in the authentic hadith of Muslim on the authority of Al-Miqdad bin Al-Aswad, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered us to throw dirt in the faces of flatterers. In another hadith narrated in the two Sahih on the authority of Khalid Al-Hadha' on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakra, on the authority of his father: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, heard a man praising another man, so he said: Woe to you, you have cut off the neck of your companion. Then he said: "If one of you must praise his companion, let him say: I think so, and he does not vouch for anyone before God. Imam Ahmad said: Mu'tamir told us on the authority of his father on the authority of Na'im bin Abi Hind who said: Umar bin Al-Khattab said: Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of Talhah bin Ubaidullah bin Kuraiz on the authority of Umar who said: What I fear most for you is a person's admiration for his own opinion. Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Shu'bah and Hajjaj told us, Shu'bah told us on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Ma'bad Al-Juhani who said: Mu'awiyah rarely narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: He rarely left these words on Friday to narrate them on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: "Whoever God wants good for, He gives him understanding of the religion. This wealth is sweet and green, so whoever takes it rightfully, He will bless it for him. Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." Ibn Majah narrated from him. "Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." On the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Ghundar, on the authority of Shu'bah, on his authority. This Ma'bad is the son of Abdullah bin Uwaim al-Basri al-Qadari. Ibn Jarir said: Yahya bin Ibrahim Al-Masoudi told us, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Qais bin Muslim, on the authority of Tariq bin Shihab, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: A man may go out with his religion and then return with nothing of it. He meets a man who has no power to benefit or harm him, and he says to him: By God, you are such and such. Perhaps he will return without having fulfilled his need for anything, and he has angered God. Then he recited: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse, and we will discuss this at length when God Almighty says: "So do not claim yourselves to be pure. He is most knowing of who fears Him." That is why God Almighty said: Rather, God purifies whom He wills, meaning that the reference in this is to God Almighty, because He is most knowledgeable of the truths of matters and their mysteries. Then God Almighty said: And they will not be wronged a thread, meaning that no one will be left with a reward equal to the amount of a thread. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata', Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and more than one of the Salaf said: It is what is in the crack of the seed. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: It is what you twist between your fingers, and both statements are close. And his saying, "See how they invent lies against God means in their self-praise and their claim that they are the sons of God and His beloved, and their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, and their saying, The Fire will not touch us except for a few days and their reliance on the righteous deeds of their fathers, and God has ruled that the deeds of fathers do not compensate for the sons in anything in His saying, That was a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you have earned (al-An'am 2:10), then He said, And sufficient for that is a clear sin" meaning, and sufficient for their action is a lie and apparent fabrication. And his saying, "Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut" [al-Jibt], as for Jibt, Muhammad ibn Ishaq said, on the authority of Hassan ibn Fa'id, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab that he said: Jibt is magic, and Taghut is Satan. And thus it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, Al-Dahhak, and Al-Suddi. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, and Atiyyah: Al-Jibt is the devil. Ibn Abbas added: In Abyssinian. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: Al-Jibt is polytheism. And on his authority: Al-Jibt is idols. And on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: Al-Jibt is the soothsayer. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab.

Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say to those who disbelieve, "These are better guided than those who believe in the way."

And on the authority of Mujahid: Al-Jibt is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. And the scholar Abu Nasr Ismail bin Hammad Al-Jawhari said in his book As-Sahah: Al-Jibt is a word that refers to an idol, soothsayer, magician, and the like. And in the hadith: Birth omen, divination, and ways are from Al-Jibt. He said: This is not pure Arabic because the letter jim and the letter ta' come together in one word without a letter with a lifqa. This hadith which was mentioned and narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Awf told us from Hayyan Abu al-'Ala', Qatan ibn Qubaysah told us from his father, who is Qubaysah ibn Mukhariq, that he heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Verily, divination, and superstition are from the jibt. Awf said: Divination is the driving away of birds, and divination is the line drawn on the ground, and the jibt, al-Hasan said: It is the devil. And thus Abu Dawud narrated it in his Sunan, and al-Nasa'i and Ibn Abi Hatim in their Tafsirs from the hadith of Awf al-A' rabi with it. We have already discussed the taghut in Surat al-Baqarah in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it here. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ishaq ibn al-Dayf told us, Hajjaj told us from Ibn Jurayj, Abu al-Zubayr told me that he heard Jabir ibn 'Abdullah being asked about taghut, and he said: They are soothsayers upon whom the devils descend. And Mujahid said: The taghut is the devil in the form of a human being to whom they turn for judgment, and he is the one in charge of their affairs. Imam Malik said: Taghut is everything that is worshipped besides God the Almighty. And His statement, And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way,' means that they prefer the disbelievers over the Muslims because of their ignorance, lack of religion, and their disbelief in the Book of God in their hands. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to the people of Mecca and said to them: You are the people of the Book and the people of knowledge, so tell us about us and about Muhammad. They said: What are you and what is Muhammad? They said: We maintain kinship ties, slaughter sheep, give water to drink on milk, free the captives, and give water to the pilgrims. Muhammad is a faucet that severed our kinship ties, and the thieves of the pilgrims, Banu Ghafar, followed him. Are we better or is he? They said: You are better and more guided in your path. So God revealed: Have you not considered those who were given a share? This has been narrated from more than one source on the authority of Ibn Abbas and a group of the Salaf. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Abi Uday told us on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to Mecca, the Quraysh said: Do you not see this young man who has been cut off from his people? He claims that he is better than us, while we are the people of the pilgrimage, the people of the guardianship, and the people of the water supply? He said: You are better. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, your enemy is the one cut off. And the verse was revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say of those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way. Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses, you will never find for him a helper." Ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who formed the confederates from Quraysh, Ghatafan, and Banu Qurayzah were Huyayy ibn Akhtab, Salam ibn Abi al-Haqiq Abu Rafi', al-Rabi' ibn al-Rabi' ibn Abi al-Haqiq, Abu Ammar, Wahwah ibn Amir, and Hudhah ibn Qays. As for Wahwah, Abu Ammar, and Hudhah, they were from Banu Wa'il, and the rest of them were from Banu al-Nadir. So when they came to Quraysh, they said: These are the rabbis of the Jews and the people of knowledge of the first Scriptures, so ask them, is your religion better or the religion of Muhammad? So they asked them and they said: Rather, your religion is better than his religion, and you are more guided than him and those who followed him. So God Almighty revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? until His Almighty saying: And We gave them a great kingdom. This is a curse on them and a statement that they will have no supporter in this world or in the Hereafter because they only went to seek support from the polytheists, and they only said that to them to attract them to support them, and they answered them and came with them on the Day of the Confederates until the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions dug the trench around Medina, and God spared them their evil: "And God repelled those who disbelieved in their fury; they did not attain any good. And God spared the believers the fighting, and ever is God Strong and Exalted in Might."

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 51- Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? This is an astonishment at their condition after the first astonishment, and they are the Jews.

The commentators differed on the meaning of Jibt: Ibn Abbas, Ibn Jubayr and Abu Al-Aaliyah said that Jibt means magic in the Ethiopian language and Taghut means soothsayer. It was narrated on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab that Jibt means magic and Taghut means Satan. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Masoud that Jibt and Taghut here are Kaab bin Al-Ashraf. Qatada said: Jibt means Satan and Taghut means soothsayer. It was narrated on the authority of Malik that Taghut means whatever is worshipped besides God and Jibt means Satan. It was also said that they are everything worshipped besides God or obeyed in disobeying God. The origin of Jibt is Jibs, which means that there is no path in it, so the letter Ta was replaced with the letter Seen, as stated by Qatirib. It was also said that Jibt means Satan and Taghut means his followers. His statement, And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way.' That is, the Jews say to the disbelievers of Quraysh, You are better guided than those who believe in Muhammad in the way, meaning, they are more upright in religion and more direct in the path.

51- The Almighty said: "Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut." They differed about them. Ikrimah said: They are two idols that the polytheists used to worship instead of God. Abu Ubaidah said: They are every deity worshipped instead of God. God the Almighty said: "Worship God and avoid Taghut" (al-Nahl 16:36). Omar said: Jibt is the soothsayer, and Taghut is the magician. Saeed bin Jubair and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: Jibt is the magician in the Ethiopian language, and Taghut is the soothsayer. It was narrated from Ikrimah: Jibt in the Ethiopian language is Satan.

Ad-Dahhak said: Al-Jibt is Huyayy ibn Akhtab, and Al-Taghut is Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf. His evidence is the Almighty's statement: They want to refer judgment to Taghut (An-Nisa': 60). Ahmad ibn Abdullah Al-Salihi told us, Abu Al-Husayn ibn Bishran told us, Ismail ibn Muhammad Al-Saffar told us, Ahmad ibn Mansur Al-Ramadi told us, Abd Al-Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Awf Al-Abdi, on the authority of Hayyan, on the authority of Qatan ibn Qubaysah, on the authority of his father, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Divination, knocking, and superstition are from Al-Jibt.

It was said: Al-Jibt is everything that God has forbidden, and Al-Taghut is everything that makes a person arrogant.

And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way.' The commentators said: Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf went out with seventy Jewish riders to Mecca after the Battle of Uhud to ally with Quraysh against the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to break the covenant that was between them and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ka'b stayed with Abu Sufyan, who treated him well. The Jews stayed in the homes of Quraysh, and the people of Mecca said: You are people of the Book, and Muhammad is the owner of the Book, and we are not sure that this is a plot from you. If you want us to go out with you, then prostrate to these two idols and believe in them. So they did that, and that is what God Almighty said: They believe in jibt and taghut.

Then Kaab said to the people of Mecca: Let thirty of you come and thirty of us come, so that we may cling to the Kaaba and make a covenant with the Lord of this House that we will strive to fight Muhammad. So they did.

Then Abu Sufyan said to Ka'b: You are a man who reads the Book and learns, and we are illiterate and do not know. So which of us is more guided, us or Muhammad?

Kaab said: Show me your religion.

Abu Sufyan said: We slaughter camels for the pilgrims, provide them with water, welcome guests, free those in distress, maintain family ties, live in peace with our Lord, and circumambulate around Him, and we are the people of the Sacred Sanctuary. Muhammad has left the religion of his fathers, severed family ties, and left the Sacred Sanctuary. Our religion is ancient, and Muhammad's religion is modern.

Ka'b said: By God, you are more guided in your path than Muhammad. Then God Almighty revealed: Have you not considered those who were given a portion of the Scripture? meaning: Ka'b and his companions. They believe in Jibt and Taghut meaning: the two idols. And they say to those who disbelieve Abu Sufyan and his companions, These are more guided than those who believe in their way Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, may God be pleased with them. A way is a religion.

51"Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut." It was revealed about the Jews who used to say that worshipping idols was more pleasing to God than what Muhammad called them to. It was also said that it was about Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf in a group of Jews who went to Mecca to ally with the Quraysh to fight the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. They said: You are people of the Scripture and you are closer to Muhammad than you are to us, so we do not feel secure from your plot, so prostrate to our gods until we are secure with you. So they did. Jibt was originally the name of an idol and was used for everything that was worshipped other than God. It was also said that its origin was Jibs, which is that which has no good in it, so its Seen was changed to a Ta. Taghut is used for every falsehood, whether it is an object of worship or something else. "And they say to those who disbelieve" for their sake and among them. "These" is a reference to them. "A better way than those who believe" is more upright in religion and more direct in path.

Surat al-Nisa 4:52

Those are the ones whom Allah has cursed, and he whom Allah curses - you will not find for him a helper.

Surat al-Nisa 4:52

Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses - you will not find for him a helper.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses, you will find no helper for him to prevent His punishment.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: He, may His praise be exalted, means: those, those whose description He described as having been given a portion of the Book and who believe in jibt and taghut, they are those whom God has cursed, meaning: God has disgraced them and distanced them from His mercy, because of their belief in jibt and taghut, and their disbelief in God and His Messenger out of their defiance of God and His Messenger, and because of their saying to those who disbelieved: These are better guided than those who believe in the way, "And he whom God curses," meaning: and he whom God disgraces and distances from His mercy, you will not find for him a helper, meaning: you will not find for him, O Muhammad, a helper who will help him from God's punishment and curse that will befall him, and who will repel that from him, just as:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, who said: Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf and Huyayy bin Akhtab said what they said - meaning their statement: These are more guided than those who believe in the way - and they knew that they were lying, so God revealed: Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses - you will never find for him a helper.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses - you will never find for him a helper.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Hasan and Qatada said: This verse, which is His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? was revealed about the Jews and Christians when they said: We are the sons of God and His beloved. Ibn Zayd said: It was revealed about their saying, We are the sons of God and His beloved, and about their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian.

Mujahid said: They used to put the boys before them in supplication and prayer, leading them in prayer, and they claimed that they had no sin. This is what Ikrimah and Abu Malik said, and Ibn Jarir narrated this. Al-Awfi said on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His saying, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? That is because the Jews said: Our sons died and they are close to us and they will intercede for us and purify us. So God revealed to Muhammad, Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse was narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad ibn Musaffa told us, Ibn Himyar told us on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah, on the authority of Bashir ibn Abi Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas said: The Jews used to have their children pray with them, and they would bring their offerings and claim that they had no sins or faults, and they lied. God said: I do not purify one who has sin by another who has no sin. God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? Then he said: It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Abu Malik, As-Suddi, Ikrimah and Ad-Dahhak, something similar to that. Ad-Dahhak said: They said: We have no sins just as our children have no sins, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they are pure? about them. It was said: It was revealed in condemnation of flattery and self-praise. It was mentioned in the authentic hadith of Muslim on the authority of Al-Miqdad bin Al-Aswad, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered us to throw dirt in the faces of flatterers. In another hadith narrated in the two Sahihs on the authority of Khalid Al-Hadha' on the authority of Abd Al-Rahman bin Abi Bakra, on the authority of his father: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, heard a man praising another man, so he said: Woe to you, you have cut off the neck of your companion. Then he said: "If one of you must praise his companion, let him say: I think so, and he does not vouch for anyone before God. Imam Ahmad said: Mu'tamir told us on the authority of his father on the authority of Na'im bin Abi Hind who said: Umar bin Al-Khattab said: Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of Musa bin Ubaidah on the authority of Talhah bin Ubaidullah bin Kuraiz on the authority of Umar who said: What I fear most for you is a person's admiration for his own opinion. Whoever says: I am a believer is an unbeliever, and whoever says: I am a scholar is ignorant, and whoever says: I am in Paradise is in Hell. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad bin Ja'far told us, Shu'bah and Hajjaj told us, Shu'bah told us on the authority of Sa'd bin Ibrahim, on the authority of Ma'bad Al-Juhani who said: Mu'awiyah rarely narrated on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: He rarely left these words on Friday to narrate them on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He said: "Whoever God wants good for, He gives him understanding of the religion. This wealth is sweet and green, so whoever takes it rightfully, He will bless it for him. Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." Ibn Majah narrated from him: "Beware of flattery, for it is slaughter." On the authority of Abu Bakr bin Abi Shaybah, on the authority of Ghundar, on the authority of Shu'bah, on his authority. This Ma'bad is the son of Abdullah bin Uwaim al-Basri al-Qadari. Ibn Jarir said: Yahya bin Ibrahim Al-Masoudi told us, my father told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Qais bin Muslim, on the authority of Tariq bin Shihab, who said: Abdullah bin Masoud said: A man may go out with his religion and then return with nothing of it. He meets a man who has no power to benefit or harm him, and he says to him: By God, you are such and such. Perhaps he will return without having fulfilled his need for anything, and he has angered God. Then he recited: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? The verse, and we will discuss this at length when God Almighty says: "So do not claim yourselves to be pure. He is most knowing of who fears Him." That is why God Almighty said: Rather, God purifies whom He wills, meaning that the reference in this is to God Almighty, because He is most knowledgeable of the truths of matters and their mysteries. Then God Almighty said: And they will not be wronged a thread, meaning that no one will be left with a reward equal to the amount of a thread. Ibn Abbas, Mujahid, Ikrimah, Ata', Al-Hasan, Qatadah, and more than one of the Salaf said: It is what is in the crack of the seed. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: It is what you twist between your fingers, and both statements are close. And his saying, See how they invent lies against God means in their self-praise and their claim that they are the sons of God and His beloved, and their saying, None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian, and their saying, The Fire will not touch us except for a few days and their reliance on the righteous deeds of their fathers, and God has ruled that the deeds of fathers do not compensate for the sons in anything in His saying, "That was a nation that has passed on. It shall have what it earned, and you shall have what you have earned" (al-An'am 2:10), then He said, And sufficient for that is a clear sin meaning, and sufficient for their action is a lie and apparent fabrication. And his saying, Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut [al-Jibt], as for Jibt, Muhammad ibn Ishaq said, on the authority of Hassan ibn Fa'id, on the authority of Umar ibn al-Khattab that he said: Jibt is magic, and Taghut is Satan. And thus it was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, Al-Dahhak, and Al-Suddi. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah, Mujahid, Ata', Ikrimah, Saeed bin Jubayr, Al-Sha'bi, Al-Hasan, and Atiyyah: Al-Jibt is the devil. Ibn Abbas added: In Abyssinian. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas also: Al-Jibt is polytheism. And on his authority: Al-Jibt is idols. And on the authority of Al-Sha'bi: Al-Jibt is the soothsayer. And on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Al-Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab. And on the authority of Mujahid: Al-Jibt is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. And the scholar Abu Nasr Ismail bin Hammad Al-Jawhari said in his book As-Sahah: Al-Jibt is a word that refers to an idol, soothsayer, magician, and the like. And in the hadith: Birth omen, divination, and ways are from Al-Jibt. He said: This is not pure Arabic because the letter jim and the letter ta' come together in one word without a letter with a lifqa. This hadith which was mentioned and narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, Awf told us from Hayyan Abu al-'Ala', Qatan ibn Qubaysah told us from his father, who is Qubaysah ibn Mukhariq, that he heard the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: Verily, divination, and superstition are from the jibt. Awf said: Divination is the driving away of birds, and divination is the line drawn on the ground, and the jibt, al-Hasan said: It is the devil. And thus Abu Dawud narrated it in his Sunan, and al-Nasa'i and Ibn Abi Hatim in their Tafsirs from the hadith of Awf al-'Ala' rabi with it. We have already discussed the taghut in Surat al-Baqarah in a way that makes it unnecessary to repeat it here. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ishaq ibn al-Dayf told us, Hajjaj told us from Ibn Jurayj, Abu al-Zubayr told me that he heard Jabir ibn 'Abdullah being asked about taghut, and he said: They are soothsayers upon whom the devils descend. And Mujahid said: The taghut is the devil in the form of a human being to whom they turn for judgment, and he is the one in charge of their affairs. Imam Malik said: Taghut is everything that is worshipped besides God the Almighty. And His statement, And they say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way,' means that they prefer the disbelievers over the Muslims because of their ignorance, lack of religion, and their disbelief in the Book of God in their hands. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Yazid al-Muqri told us, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Amr, on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Huyayy ibn Akhtab and Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to the people of Mecca and said to them: You are the people of the Book and the people of knowledge, so tell us about us and about Muhammad. They said: What are you and what is Muhammad? They said: We maintain kinship ties, slaughter sheep, give water to drink on milk, free the captives, and give water to the pilgrims. Muhammad is a faucet that severed our kinship ties, and the thieves of the pilgrims, Banu Ghafar, followed him. Are we better or is he? They said: You are better and more guided in your path. So God revealed: Have you not considered those who were given a share? This has been narrated from more than one source on the authority of Ibn Abbas and a group of the Salaf. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Abi Uday told us on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf came to Mecca, the Quraysh said: Do you not see this young man who has been cut off from his people? He claims that he is better than us, while we are the people of the pilgrimage, the people of the guardianship, and the people of the water supply? He said: You are better. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Indeed, your enemy is the one cut off. And the verse was revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in jibt and taghut and say to those who disbelieve, 'These are better guided than those who believe in the way. Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses, you will never find for him a helper." Ibn Ishaq said: Muhammad ibn Abi Muhammad told me on the authority of Ikrimah, or on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Those who formed the confederates from Quraysh, Ghatafan, and Banu Qurayzah were Huyayy ibn Akhtab, Salam ibn Abi al-Haqiq Abu Rafi', al-Rabi' ibn al-Rabi' ibn Abi al-Haqiq, Abu Ammar, Wahwah ibn Amir, and Hudhah ibn Qays. As for Wahwah, Abu Ammar, and Hudhah, they were from Banu Wa'il, and the rest of them were from Banu al-Nadir. So when they came to Quraysh, they said: These are the rabbis of the Jews and the people of knowledge of the first Scriptures, so ask them, is your religion better or the religion of Muhammad? So they asked them and they said: Rather, your religion is better than his religion, and you are more guided than him and those who followed him. So God Almighty revealed: Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? until His Almighty saying: And We gave them a great kingdom. This is a curse on them and a statement that they will have no supporter in this world or in the Hereafter because they only went to seek support from the polytheists, and they only said that to them to attract them to support them, and they answered them and came with them on the Day of the Confederates until the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions dug the trench around Medina, and God spared them their evil: "And God repelled those who disbelieved in their fury; they did not attain any good. And God spared the believers the fighting, and ever is God Strong and Exalted in Might."

Those are the ones whom Allah has cursed, and he whom Allah curses - you will not find for him a helper.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying 52- Those refers to those who say those whom God has cursed meaning: He has expelled them and removed them from His mercy. And whoever God curses, you will not find for him a helper to ward off from him the punishment and wrath of God that has befallen him.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

52- Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses - you will find for him no helper.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

52Those are the ones whom God has cursed, and he whom God curses - you will never find for him a helper. He prevents the punishment from him through intercession or otherwise.

Surat al-Nisa 4:53

Or do they have a share in the kingdom? Then they would not give the people a speck.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

*O*rrather do they have a share of the kingdom meaning they do not have anything of it even if it was then they would not give the people even a speck meaning something insignificant the size of a speck in the back of a date pit due to their extreme stinginess.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? Or do they have a portion of the kingdom? He says: They do not have a share in the kingdom, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? He said: If they had a share in the kingdom, then they would not have given Muhammad even a speck.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told us, Ibn Jurayj said: God said: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? He said: They have no share in the kingdom, [they have not given the people a speck], Then they would not give the people a speck. If they had a share and portion in the kingdom, they would not have given the people a speck, because of their stinginess.

The interpreters differed about the meaning of: the hollow.

Some of them said: It is the point on the back of the nucleus.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah told me, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: a small dot, he said: the dot on the back of the seed. Sulayman bin Abdul Jabbar told me, he said, Muhammad bin Al-Salt told us, he said, Abu Kadayna told us, on the authority of Qabus, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: the small dot is on the back of the seed.

Jaafar bin Muhammad Al-Kufi Al-Marwazi told me, he said, Ubaid God told us, on the authority of Israel, on the authority of Khasif, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, he said: The hollow is the middle of the seed.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Then they will not give the people even a speck. The speck is the middle of the pit.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi, regarding the statement: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? Then they would not give the people even a speck. He said: If they had a share in the kingdom, then they would not give Muhammad even a speck. The speck is the dot in the middle of a date pit.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Talha bin Amr told me: He heard Ata bin Abi Rabah say: The hollow is what is in the back of the date pit.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Al-Dahhak, he said: The hollow is the depression that is in the back of the seed.

Yaqoub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Hisin told us, on the authority of Abu Malik, he said: The hollow is what is in the back of the date stone.

Others said: The niqir is the seed that is in the middle of the nucleus.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God, a small amount, he said: The small amount is the seed in the middle of it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Then they will not give the people even a speck, he said: The speck is the date stone in the middle of it. Muhammad ibn Bashir told us, he said, Yahya ibn Saeed told us, he said, Sufyan ibn Saeed told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Mujahid, he said: The speck is in the date stone.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, Ibn Jurayj said, Abdullah bin Katheer told me: He heard Mujahid say: The hollow is the hollow of the seed that is in the middle of it.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us, who said: I heard Al-Dahhak bin Muzahim say: The hollow is the hollow of the seed that is in the middle of the seed.

Others said: The meaning of this is: the man tapped something with the tips of his fingers.

Who said that?

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Yazid bin Dirham Abi Al-Ala', he said, I heard Abu Al-Aaliyah: Ibn Abbas placed the tip of the thumb on the back of the index finger, then raised them and said: This is the hollow.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the statements on this matter is to say: God described this group of the People of the Book as being stingy with a small amount of something that is of no importance, even if they were kings and had power over great things.

Or do they have a share in the kingdom? Then they would not give the people a speck.

If that is the case, then what is more appropriate to the meaning of the dimple is that it is the smallest of the dimples. If that is more appropriate for it, then the dimple that is on the back of the seed is one of the small dimples, and this may include everything similar to it of dimples.

And he raised his saying: They do not give to people, and did not make it accusative with Idhan, and one of its rules is that future verbs are made accusative if the speech begins with it, because it is accompanied by Fa. And one of its rules if some of the conjunctions enter into it is that it is directed to begin with it once, and to transfer from it to something else another time. And this place is what was intended by Fa in it, to transfer from Idhan to what comes after it, and for the meaning of the speech to be: Or do they have a share, so they do not give to people even a speck then?

The Almighty said: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? That is, have they? The mim is the conjunction of share, a portion of the kingdom. This is in the form of denial, meaning that they do not have anything of the kingdom. If they had anything of it, they would not have given anyone anything of it due to their stinginess and envy. It was said: The meaning is, Rather, do they have a share? So am is disconnected, meaning that the first is being neglected and the second is being resumed. It was said: It is a conjunction to something omitted because they refused to follow Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The interpretation is: Are they more deserving of prophethood than the one you sent, or do they have a share of the kingdom?

Then they will not give people even a speck meaning they will not withhold rights. God the Almighty has informed us about them with what He knows about them. The speck is the dot on the back of a date pit. According to Ibn Abbas, Qatadah, and others, and also according to Ibn Abbas, the speck is what a man pecks with his finger as he pecks the ground. Abu Al-Aaliyah said: I asked Ibn Abbas about the speck, so he placed the tip of the thumb on the inside of the index finger, then raised them and said: This is the speck. The speck is the root of a piece of wood that is pecks and thrown into it, and the prohibition came in it, then it was abrogated. So-and-so is generous. The speck means the root. And if here it is cancelled and not working because the conjunction fa has entered it, and if it was in the accusative case it would be permissible. Sibawayh said: If in the agents of verbs is like I think in the agents of nouns, meaning it is cancelled if the speech does not depend on it. If it is at the beginning of the speech and what comes after it is future, it is in the accusative case like you say I visit you, and he says in response to you: If I honor you. Abdullah bin Anmah Al-Dhabi said:

I repeat, your donkey does not graze in our garden, so he returns, and the donkey's shackles are distressed

It is accusative because what precedes it is complete and occurs at the beginning of a sentence. If it occurs in the middle between two things, like when you say: Zaid then visits you, it is omitted. If the conjunction fa or the conjunction waw or the conjunction waw enters it, then it is permissible to use it or omit it. As for the use, it is because what comes after the waw resumes in the manner of connecting a sentence to a sentence, so it is permissible in other than the Qur'an, such as if it were not given, and in the revelation: and if they do not stay (al-Isra' 17:76), and in the Mushaf of Abu, and if they do not stay. As for the omission, it is because what comes after the waw only occurs after a sentence that is connected to it. The verb that makes the accusative according to Sibawayh is if it is similar to an, and according to Al-Khalil it is implied after if. Al-Farra' claimed that if it is written with an alif and that it is tanween. Al-Nahhas said: I heard Ali bin Sulayman say I heard Abu al-Abbas Muhammad bin Yazid say: I desire to cauterize the hand of someone who writes if with an alif, because it is like lan and an, and tanween does not enter into letters.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? This is a rhetorical question, meaning they do not have a share in the kingdom. Then He described them as miserly, saying: Then they would not give the people even a speck, meaning that if they had a share in the kingdom and control, they would not have given anyone, especially Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, anything, nor what would fill a speck, which is the dot in the pit according to Ibn Abbas and most of them. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: Say, 'If you possessed the treasures of the mercy of my Lord, then you would withhold for fear of spending' meaning fear that what is in your hands would be lost, although it is inconceivable that it would run out, but rather it is due to your miserliness and stinginess. For this reason God the Almighty said: And man is ever stingy meaning miserly. Then He said: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? He meant by that their envy of the Prophet, peace and blessings of God be upon him, for what God had granted him of great prophethood, and preventing them from believing in him was their envy of him because he was from the Arabs and not from the Children of Israel. Al-Tabarani said: Muhammad bin Abdullah Al-Hadrami told us, Yahya Al-Hamani told us, Qais bin Al-Rabi' told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, Or do they envy people? the verse, Ibn Abbas said: We are the people, less than the people. God Almighty said, And We gave the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom. That is, We made the tribes of the Children of Israel, who are from the descendants of Abraham, the prophethood, and We sent down to them the Scriptures and ruled over them with the Sunnah, which is wisdom, and We made kings from among them. Despite this, some of them believed in it, that is, in this giving and this blessing, and some of them turned away from it, that is, they disbelieved in it and turned away from it and sought to turn people away from it, and he is from them and of their kind, that is, from the Children of Israel. So they differed over them, so how about you, O Muhammad, when you are not from the Children of Israel? Mujahid said: And among them are those who believed in him, meaning in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and among them are those who turned away from him, so the unbelievers among them are the most vehement in denying you, and the most distant from the guidance and clear truth that you brought them. For this reason, He said, threatening them, And Hell is sufficient as a blazing fire, meaning that Hell is sufficient as a punishment for them for their unbelief, stubbornness, and disobedience to the books of God and His messengers.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 53- Or do they have a share in the kingdom? Am is disconnected, and the question is for denial, meaning they do not have a share in the kingdom.

Then they will not be given to the people even a speck.

The fa is for the causal clause of an omitted condition: that is, if they were given a share in the kingdom, so that the meaning of Am is to stop talking about the first and resume talking about the second. It was said: It is a conjunction to an omitted condition, and the estimate is: Are they more deserving of prophethood than the one you sent, or do they have a share in the kingdom, so then they will not be given to the people even a speck? Naqeer: the depression in the back of the pit, and it was said: what a man digs with his finger as he digs the ground. Naqeer is also: a piece of wood that is dug and thrown into it. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade Naqeer as proven in the two Sahihs and others. Naqeer: the origin, it is said: So-and-so is generous in Naqeer: meaning generous in origin. What is meant here is the first meaning, and what is meant by it is exaggeration in insignificance like the tinder and the wick. So here it is cancelled and not working because the conjunction fa entered it, and if it were in the accusative case it would be permissible. Sibawayh said: So in the factors of verbs is like I think in the factors of nouns that are cancelled if the speech does not depend on them. If it is at the beginning of the speech and what follows it is future, it is in the accusative case.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

53- Or do they have means: Do they have? The mim is a connection between share "portion of the kingdom" and this is by way of denial, meaning: They do not have anything of the kingdom and if they had anything of the kingdom, "Then they would not give the people even a speck", because of their envy and stinginess, and the speck is the dot that is on the back of the seed and from it the palm tree grows, and Abu Al-Aaliyah said: It is a man poking something with the tip of his finger as he pokes a dirham.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

53 "Or do they have a share of the kingdom? The word um" is disconnected and the meaning of the hamza is the denial that they have a share of the kingdom and the denial of what the Jews claimed that the kingdom would go to them. "Then they will not give the people even a speck" meaning if they had a share of the kingdom, then they will not give anyone anything equivalent to a speck, which is the hole in the back of a date pit. This is the exaggeration in explaining their stinginess, for if they are stingy with a speck even though they are kings, then what do you think of them if they are poor, humiliated and needy? It is possible that the meaning is the denial that they have been given a share of the kingdom by way of metaphor, and that they do not give the people anything. If it occurs after the waw and the fa' for the sake of singular association, it is permissible to cancel it and apply it, and for this reason it was read "then they will not give the people" in the accusative.

Surat al-Nisa 4:54

Or do they envy people for what Allah has given them of His bounty? But We had already given the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom.

Surat al-Nisa 4:54

Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? But We had already given the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Or rather they envy people meaning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace for what God has given them of His bounty of prophethood and the large number of women, meaning they wish for it to be taken away from him and they say that if he were a prophet he would be busy with women but We gave the family of Abraham his grandfather like Moses, David and Solomon the Scripture and wisdom and prophethood and conferred upon them a great kingdom so David had ninety-nine wives and Solomon had a thousand between free women and concubines

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: Or do they envy people, is that they envy those Jews who were given a portion of the Book, like:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Or do they envy people? He said: Jews.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, similarly. As for his statement: the people, the people of interpretation differed as to who God meant by it.

Some of them said: God meant Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in particular.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr told us, he said, Asbat told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Khalid, on the authority of Ikrimah, regarding his statement: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? He said: People, in this place, the Prophet is specifically mentioned.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told me, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? meaning Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, similarly.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? He said: People, Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Al-Dahhak say, and he mentioned something similar.

Others said: Rather, God meant the Arabs.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us: Yazid told us: Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? Those were the Jews, who envied this tribe of Arabs for what God had given them of His bounty.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the statements on this matter is to say: God rebuked the Jews whose characteristics He described in these verses, and He said to them regarding their saying to the polytheists who worshipped idols that they were more guided than Muhammad and his companions, knowing that what they said was a lie: Do you envy Muhammad and his companions for what God has given them of His grace?

We said that this is more correct, because what preceded His statement: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? preceded with the condemnation of those among the Jews who said about those who disbelieved: These are better guided than those who believe in the way. So attaching His statement: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? to their condemnation for that, and the praise of those who believed about whom what was said is more appropriate and more appropriate, unless there is evidence that its meaning is diverted from the meaning of that.

The people of interpretation differed in their interpretation of the grace that God informed us that He gave to those He mentioned in His statement: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His grace? Some of them said: That grace is prophethood.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? They envied this tribe of Arabs for what God had given them of His bounty. God sent a prophet from among them, so they envied them for that.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me,

Ibn Jurayj said: On what God has given them of His grace, he said: Prophethood.

Others said: Rather, the grace that God mentioned that He gave them is that He permitted what He permitted His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, of women, so that he could marry as many of them as he wished without number. They said: What he means by people is Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as I mentioned before.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? The verse. That is because the People of the Book said: Muhammad claimed that he was given what he was given in humility, and he has nine wives, and his only concern is marriage! What king is better than this! So God said: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? meaning: Muhammad, that he can marry as many women as he wants.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj who said, I heard Abu Muadh say, Ubayd ibn Sulayman told us, I heard Ad-Dahhak say regarding His statement, Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? That is because the Jews said, What is the matter with Muhammad that he was given prophethood as he claims, while he is hungry and naked, and has no concern except marrying women? So they envied him for marrying wives. And God permitted Muhammad to marry as many of them as he wished.

Abu Ja'far said: The more correct of the two interpretations is the statement of Qatada and Ibn Jurayj, which we mentioned before: that the meaning of fadl in this context is the prophethood with which God favored Muhammad and honored the Arabs, as He gave it to one man from among them and not to others, based on what we mentioned that the apparent meaning of this verse indicates that it is praise for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, may God have mercy on them, as we explained before. And marriage and the giving of women in marriage, even though it is from the favor of God, may His praise be exalted, which He gave to His servants, is not praise and commendation for them.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God, the Most High, means: Do these Jews - whose characteristics He described in these verses - envy people for what God has given them of His grace, because they are not from them? How can they not envy the family of Abraham, for We have given them the Book? By His statement, We have given the family of Abraham, He means that We have given the family of Abraham, meaning his family and followers of his religion, the Book, meaning the Book of God that He revealed to them, such as the Scrolls of Abraham and Moses and the Psalms, and all the other books that He gave them.

As for wisdom, it is what was revealed to them that was not a written book, and We gave them a great kingdom.

The interpreters differed about the meaning of the great king that God meant in this verse.

Some of them said: It is prophecy.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Or do they envy people, he said: Jews, for what God has given them of His bounty? But We had already given the family of Abraham the Scripture, and they were not among them, and wisdom, and We conferred upon them a great kingdom, he said: prophethood.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same, except that he said: kingship, the prophethood.

Others said: Rather, it is the permissibility of women. They said: God meant by that: Or do they envy Muhammad for what God has made permissible for him of women? God has made permissible the same as what He made permissible for him of them, for David and Solomon and other prophets, so how could they not envy them for that, and envy Muhammad, peace be upon him? Mention of those who said that:

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: We gave the family of Abraham, Solomon and David, wisdom, meaning: prophethood, and We gave them a great kingdom, in women. So why was it permissible for those, who were prophets, for David to marry ninety-nine women, and for Solomon to marry a hundred, but it was not permissible for Muhammad to marry as they did?

Others said: Rather, the meaning of his saying: And We gave them a great kingdom is what was given to Solomon, son of David. Those who said that mentioned:

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: And We gave them a great kingdom, meaning the kingdom of Solomon.

Others said: Rather, they were supported by angels.

Who said that?

Ahmad bin Hazim Al-Ghafari told us, Abu Naim told us, Israel told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Hammam bin Al-Harith: And We gave them a great kingdom, he said: They were supported by angels and soldiers.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in interpreting the verse, which is His statement: And We gave them a great kingdom, is the statement that was narrated on the authority of Ibn `Abbas, who said: He means the kingdom of Solomon. Because that is what is known in the speech of the Arabs, unlike the one who said that it is the kingdom of prophethood, and unlike the statement of the one who said that it is the permissibility of women and the kingdom over them. Because the speech of God that was addressed to the Arabs, it is not permissible to direct it except to the known meanings used among them, unless there is evidence or proof that it is otherwise, and it must be accepted.

Surat al-Nisa 4:54

Or do they envy people for what Allah has given them of His bounty? But We had already given the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has four issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: Or do they envy meaning the Jews the people meaning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in particular, according to Ibn Abbas, Mujahid and others, they envied him for his prophethood and his companions for their belief in him. Qatada said, The Arab people, the Jews envied them for their prophethood.

Ad-Dahhak: The Jews envied Quraysh because prophethood was among them, and envy is reprehensible and its owner is distressed.

And he consumes good deeds as fire consumes wood. Narrated by Anas on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Hasan said: I have never seen an oppressor more similar to the oppressed than an envious person. A constant soul, constant sadness, and a never-ending lesson. Abdullah ibn Masoud said: Do not be hostile to the blessings of God. He was asked: Who is hostile to the blessings of God? He said: Those who envy people for what God has given them of His grace. God Almighty says in some books: The envious is an enemy of My blessings, discontent with My judgment, and dissatisfied with My portion. And to Mansour al-Faqih:

Except tell those who are jealous of me, do you know who I have been rude to?

You have wronged God in His judgment if you are not satisfied with what He has given me.

It is said: Envy was the first sin committed against God in heaven, and the first sin committed against God on earth. As for in heaven, it was the envy of Satan toward Adam, and as for on earth, it was the envy of Cain toward Abel. And for Abu al-Atahiya among people:

Oh God, people do not treat me fairly, so how would it be if I treated them fairly and they wronged me?

If I had something, they would take it, and if I wanted to take something from them, they would prevent me.

If they are humbled by my generosity, they will not be grateful, and if I do not give them generosity, they will curse me.

If I am struck by a calamity, they laugh at it, and if I am blessed, they envy me.

I will prevent my heart from yearning for them and I will hide my eyes and eyelids from them

It was said: If you want to be safe from the envious person, then make your matter difficult for him. And for a man from Quraish:

They envied the blessing when it appeared, so they threw it with empty words.

If God bestows a blessing, it will not be harmed by what the enemies of blessings say.

He said it well

Be patient with the envy of the envious, for your patience will kill him.

Fire eats itself if it doesn't find anything to eat.

Some of the commentators said about the Almighty's statement: Our Lord, show us those who led us astray among the jinn and mankind so that we may place them under our feet so that they may be among the lowest (Fussilat 41:29) that what He meant by the one among the jinn was Iblis and the one among the mankind was Cain, because Iblis was the first to establish disbelief, and Cain was the first to establish murder, and the root of all of that was envy. The poet said:

The crow used to walk in a way that was similar to the way it used to be.

The cat envied him, so he started walking and a lizard bit him because of his inactivity.

The second - His Almighty saying: We have given Then the Almighty informed that He gave the family of Abraham the Book and wisdom and gave them a great kingdom. Hammam bin Al-Harith said: They were supported by angels. It was said: He means the kingdom of Solomon, according to Ibn Abbas. And also from him: The meaning is: Or do they envy Muhammad for what God has made lawful for him of women? So the great kingdom according to this is that He made lawful for David ninety-nine women and for Solomon more than that. Al-Tabari chose that what was meant was what Solomon was given of the kingdom and the permissibility of women. What was meant was to refute the Jews and respond to them in their saying: If he were a prophet, he would not have desired many women and prophethood would have distracted him from that. So the Almighty informed what David and Solomon had, and He rebuked them. The Jews admitted that Solomon had a thousand women, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to them:

A thousand women. They said: Yes, three hundred dowries, and seven hundred concubines, and David had a hundred women. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to them: A thousand with one man and a hundred with another man is more, or nine women. They were silent, and he had nine women at that time.

Third: It is said that Solomon, peace be upon him, had the most wives of the prophets, and the benefit of his many marriages is that he had the strength of forty prophets, and whoever is stronger has more wives. It is said that he meant by marriage the abundance of the clan because every woman has two tribes, a tribe from the father's side and a tribe from the mother's side, so whenever he married a woman, he turned the faces of the two tribes to himself, so she would be an aid to him against his enemies. It is said that whoever is more pious has more desire because whoever is not pious only enjoys looking and touching. Do you not see what was narrated from the hadith:

The eyes commit adultery and the hands commit adultery. So if looking and touching are a way of satisfying desire, intercourse will be less frequent. The pious person does not look or touch, so desire is combined within himself and he has more intercourse. Abu Bakr al-Warraq said: Every desire hardens the heart except intercourse, which purifies the heart. That is why the prophets used to do that.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? This is a rhetorical question, meaning they do not have a share in the kingdom. Then He described them as miserly, saying: Then they would not give the people even a speck, meaning that if they had a share in the kingdom and control, they would not have given anyone, especially Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, anything, nor what would fill a speck, which is the dot in the pit according to Ibn Abbas and most of them. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: Say, 'If you possessed the treasures of the mercy of my Lord, then you would withhold for fear of spending' meaning fear that what is in your hands would be lost, although it is inconceivable that it would run out, but rather it is due to your miserliness and stinginess. For this reason God the Almighty said: And man is ever stingy meaning miserly. Then He said: Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? He meant by that their envy of the Prophet, peace and blessings of God be upon him, for what God had granted him of great prophethood, and preventing them from believing in him was their envy of him because he was from the Arabs and not from the Children of Israel. Al-Tabarani said: Muhammad bin Abdullah Al-Hadrami told us, Yahya Al-Hamani told us, Qais bin Al-Rabi' told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, Or do they envy people? the verse, Ibn Abbas said: We are the people, less than the people. God Almighty said, And We gave the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom. That is, We made the tribes of the Children of Israel, who are from the descendants of Abraham, the prophethood, and We sent down to them the Scriptures and ruled over them with the Sunnah, which is wisdom, and We made kings from among them. Despite this, some of them believed in it, that is, in this giving and this blessing, and some of them turned away from it, that is, they disbelieved in it and turned away from it and sought to turn people away from it, and he is from them and of their kind, that is, from the Children of Israel. So they differed over them, so how about you, O Muhammad, when you are not from the Children of Israel? Mujahid said: And among them are those who believed in him, meaning in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and among them are those who turned away from him, so the unbelievers among them are the most vehement in denying you, and the most distant from the guidance and clear truth that you brought them. For this reason, He said, threatening them, And Hell is sufficient as a blazing fire, meaning that Hell is sufficient as a punishment for them for their unbelief, stubbornness, and disobedience to the books of God and His messengers.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 54- Or do they envy people for what God has given them of His bounty? The word or is disconnected and useful for transitioning from rebuking them with one thing to rebuking them with another: that is, rather, they envy people, meaning the Jews only envy the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, or they envy him and his companions for what God has given them of His bounty of prophecy, victory, and subjugation of enemies. His statement, We have already given the family of Abraham, this is an obligation on the Jews to what they acknowledge and do not deny: that is, what We have given Muhammad and his companions of Our bounty is not an innovation for the Jews to envy them for that, for they know what We have given the family of Abraham, and they are the ancestors of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. The interpretation of the Book, wisdom, and the great kingdom has already been presented. It was said: it is the kingdom of Solomon.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

54- Or do they envy people? meaning: the Jews, and they envy al-Nas 114: Qatada said: What is meant by the Arab people is their envy of the Jews for the prophethood, and for what God Almighty honored them with through Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. It was said: He meant Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions. Ibn Abbas, Al-Hasan, Mujahid and a group said: What is meant by the people is the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, alone. They envied him for what God had made lawful for him of women, and they said: He has no concern except marriage, which is what is meant by His statement: for what God has given them of His bounty. It was said: They envied him for the prophethood, which is what is meant by the bounty mentioned in the verse: And We gave the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom. He meant by the family of Abraham: David and Solomon, and by the Scripture: what God had sent down to them, and by the wisdom: prophethood. And We gave them a great kingdom. So whoever interprets the bounty as an abundance of women interprets the great kingdom in the case of David and Solomon, peace be upon them, as an abundance of women, for Solomon had a thousand women, three hundred free women and seven hundred concubines, and David had a hundred women, and at that time the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had only nine women. So when he said that to them, they remained silent.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

54 Or do they envy people? Rather, do they envy the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, or the Arabs, or all people? Because whoever envies people for their prophethood, it is as if he has deviated from the perfection of all people, and their guidance and their miserliness, and he denounced their envy as he condemned them for their miserliness, and they are the worst of vices, and as if, between them there is a connection and attraction. For what God has given them of His bounty meaning the prophethood, the book, victory, and honor, and He made the promised prophet from among them. We gave the family of Abraham who are the ancestors of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his cousins. The Book and wisdom prophethood. And We conferred upon them a great kingdom so it is not far-fetched that God would give him the same as He gave them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:55

So among them are those who believed in it, and among them are those who turned away from it. And sufficient is Hell as a Blaze.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And among them are those who believed in him in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace and among them are those who turned away turned away from him and did not believe and sufficient is Hell as a blazing fire as a punishment for those who do not believe

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: Among those who were given the Book, from the Jews of the Children of Israel, to whom He, may His praise be exalted, said: Believe in what We have sent down, confirming what is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back. "Whoever believes in it," he says: whoever believes in what We sent down to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, confirming what is with them, and among them is he who turns away from it, and among them is he who turns away from believing in it, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And among them were those who believed in it, he said: in what was revealed to Muhammad from the Jews, and among them were those who turned away from it.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Abu Ja'far said: This verse indicates that those who turned away from what God revealed to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, from the Jews of the Children of Israel who were around the migration of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, were only relieved of the threat God had threatened them with in His statement: "Believe in what We have revealed, confirming that which is with you, before We obliterate faces and turn them back or curse them as We cursed the Sabbath-breakers, and the command of God has been accomplished," in this world, and their punishment was delayed until the Day of Resurrection, because of the belief of those among them who believed, and that the threat to them from God to hasten the punishment in this world was only because of their position as a whole in disbelief in what was revealed to His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. So when some of them believed, they were released from the threat He had threatened them with in this world, and the punishment of those who persisted in denial was delayed until the Hereafter, so He said to them: Hellfire is sufficient for you.

He means by his saying: And Hell is sufficient as a blazing fire, and it is sufficient for you, O you who deny what was revealed to Muhammad, My Prophet and Messenger, Hell is a blazing fire, meaning: with the fire of Hell, which is blazing upon you - that is, it is kindled upon you. It was said: Blazing is originally mad, from sa'arat tas'aar, so it is mad, as God said: And when Hell is set ablaze (al-Takwir 81:2), but it was changed to fa'il, as it was said: a dyed hand, and a greased beard, meaning: dyed and anointed - and blazing is the fuel.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Fourth - The Almighty's saying: And among them are those who believed in him meaning the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because he was mentioned previously and he is the one who was envied. And among them are those who turned away from him he turned away and did not believe in him. It was said: The pronoun in him refers to Abraham and the meaning is: Among the family of Abraham are those who believed in him and among them are those who turned away from him. It was said: It refers to the Book, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: Or do they have a share in the kingdom? This is a rhetorical question, meaning they do not have a share in the kingdom. Al-Tabarani said: Muhammad bin Abdullah Al-Hadrami told us, Yahya Al-Hamani told us, Qais bin Al-Rabi' told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, Or do they envy people? the verse, Ibn Abbas said: We are the people, less than the people. God Almighty said, And We gave the family of Abraham the Scripture and wisdom and conferred upon them a great kingdom. That is, We made the tribes of the Children of Israel, who are from the descendants of Abraham, the prophethood, and We sent down to them the Scriptures and ruled over them with the Sunnah, which is wisdom, and We made kings from among them. Despite this, some of them believed in it, that is, in this giving and this blessing, and some of them turned away from it, that is, they disbelieved in it and turned away from it and sought to turn people away from it, and he is from them and of their kind, that is, from the Children of Israel. So they differed over them, so how about you, O Muhammad, when you are not from the Children of Israel? Mujahid said: And among them are those who believed in him, meaning in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and among them are those who turned away from him, so the unbelievers among them are the most vehement in denying you, and the most distant from the guidance and clear truth that you brought them. For this reason, He said, threatening them, And Hell is sufficient as a blazing fire, meaning that Hell is sufficient as a punishment for them for their unbelief, stubbornness, and disobedience to the books of God and His messengers.

Fath al-Qadir

And Ibn Jarir chose it 55- And among them meaning: the Jews is he who believed in him meaning: the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And among them is he who turned away from him meaning: turned away from him. It was said: The pronoun in is he refers to what was mentioned in the hadith of the family of Abraham. It was also said: The pronoun refers to Abraham. The meaning is: Among the family of Abraham is he who believed in Abraham, and among them is he who turned away from him. It was also said: The pronoun refers to the Book, and the first is more appropriate. And sufficient is Hell as a Blaze meaning: a blazing fire.

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The Jews said: Our fathers have passed away and they are close to God and will intercede for us and purify us. So God said to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that the Jews used to bring their children forward to pray with them and offer their sacrifices and they claimed that they had no sins or faults, and they lied. God said: I will not show one who has a sin by another who has no sin. Then God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim themselves to be pure? Abd Al-Razzaq, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Hasan that purification is their saying: We are the children of God and His beloved, and they said: None will enter Paradise except he who is a Jew or a Christian. Abd Al-Razzaq, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: And they will not be wronged even a thread, he said: The thread is what comes out from between the two fingers. In another wording on his authority: It is that you rub between your two fingers and whatever comes out from them is that. Saeed bin Mansour, Abdul bin Hameed and Ibn

Al-Mundhir narrated on his authority that he said: An-Naqeer is the hollow in the nucleus from which the palm tree grows. Al-Fateel is what is on the crack of the nucleus. Al-Qatmeer is the husk that is on the nucleus. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that he said: The fateel is what is in the crack in the belly of the nucleus. At-Tabarani and Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Al-Dala'il on his authority that he said: Huyayy bin Akhtab and Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf came to the Quraysh in Mecca and opposed them in fighting the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him). They said to them: You are the people of ancient knowledge and the people of the Book, so hide from us and from Muhammad. They said: What are you and what is Muhammad? They said: We slaughter the camels and give milk to drink on water, and we free the poor and give water to the pilgrims and maintain family ties. They said: What is Muhammad? They said: Sanub: meaning a weak individual, he severed our ties of kinship, and the thieves of the pilgrims, Banu Ghaffar, followed him, so they said: No, you are better than him and more guided in path, so God revealed: {Have you not seen those who were given a portion of the Scripture? They believe in Jibt and Taghut} the verse. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of Ikrimah as a mursal. It was narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas and Ikrimah with a different wording. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Al-Suddi on the authority of Abu Malik. Al-Bayhaqi narrated something similar in Al-Dala'il and Ibn Asakir in his history on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah. Abd Al-Razzaq and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: Jibt and Taghut are two idols. Al-Faryabi, Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Omar in the interpretation of Jibt and Taghut what we mentioned earlier on his authority. Ibn Jubayr and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Jibt is Huyayy bin Akhtab, and Taghut is Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Jibt means idols, and Taghut is the one who is in front of idols and they tell lies about them to mislead people. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: Jibt is the name of Satan in Abyssinian, and Taghut is the soothsayers of the Arabs. Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, Or do they have a share in the kingdom? He said: They do not have a share, and if they had a share, they would not have given the people even a speck. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated through various chains of narration on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: An-Naqeer is the dot on the back of a date pit. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated through Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said: The People of the Book said: Muhammad claimed that he was given what he was given in humility and he has nine wives and he has no importance except marriage, so what kingdom is better than this? So God revealed this verse, Or do they envy people? until His statement, a great kingdom, meaning the kingdom of Solomon. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi

Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, who said:
The people in this place are the Prophet in particular.
Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Qatada, who said:
They are this tribe of Arabs.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

55- God the Almighty said: And among them were those who believed in him, meaning: in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they were Abdullah bin Salam and his companions, And among them were those who turned away from him, turned away from him and did not believe in him, And sufficient is Hell as a Blaze, fuel, and it was said: the great king: the king of Solomon. Al-Suddi said: The ha in his saying And among them were those who believed in him and among them were those who turned away from him refers back to Abraham, and that is because Abraham planted one year, and the people planted, so the people's crops perished and the crop of Abraham, peace be upon him, flourished, so the people needed him, so he used to say: Whoever believes in Me, I will give to him, and whoever believes in Him, I will give to him, and whoever does not believe in Him, I will withhold from him.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

55 And among them from the Jews. Some believed in him in Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, or in what was mentioned from the hadith of the family of Abraham. And among them were those who turned away from him turned away from him and did not believe in him. It was said that its meaning is that among the family of Abraham were those who believed in him and among them were those who disbelieved, but that did not weaken his matter, so the disbelief of these people does not weaken your matter. And sufficient is Hell as a Blaze a raging fire with which they will be tormented, meaning that if they do not hasten the punishment, then what has been prepared for them from the blazing Hell has sufficed them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:56

Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment. Indeed, Allah is Exalted in Might and Wise.

Surat al-Nisa 4:56

Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment. Indeed, God is Exalted in Might and Wise.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire in which they will burn. Every time their skins are roasted through in which they are burned. (We will replace them with other skins) by returning them to their original state, not burned. That they may taste the punishment to experience its severity. Indeed, God is Exalted in Might nothing is beyond His power. Wise in His creation.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is a threat from God, the Most High, to those who persist in their denial of what God revealed to Muhammad, from the Jews of the Children of Israel and others from the rest of the infidels, and of His Messenger. God says to them: Indeed, those who denied what I revealed to My Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, of My signs - meaning: from the signs of His revelation and the revelation of His Book, which are His indications and proofs of the truthfulness of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace - and did not believe in it, from the Jews of the Children of Israel and others from the rest of the people of disbelief in Him, We will roast them in a Fire, meaning: We will cook them in a Fire in which they will roast - that is, they will be roasted in it - Whenever their skins are roasted, meaning: whenever their skins are roasted in it and burned, We will replace them with other skins, meaning: other than the skins that were roasted and roasted, as:

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Thawir, on the authority of Ibn Umar: Whenever their skins are cooked through, We will replace them with other skins. He said: When their skins are burned, We will replace them with white skins like paper.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: "Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins." He said: Every time their skins are burned, We will replace them with other skins.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said,

Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding His statement: Whenever their skins are roasted through, he said: We heard that it is written in the first book: The skin of one of them is forty cubits, his tooth is seventy cubits, and his stomach, if a mountain were placed in it, it would hold it. So when the fire consumes their skins, they will replace them with other skins.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, he said: It reached me on the authority of Al-Hasan: Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins. He said: We roast them seventy thousand times a day.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Abu Ubaidah Al-Haddad told us, on the authority of Hisham bin Hassan, on the authority of Al-Hasan, regarding his statement: Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins, he said: The fire roasts seventy thousand skins every day. He said: The thickness of the skin of the disbeliever is forty cubits, and God knows best which cubit.

Abu Ja'far said: If someone were to ask, saying: What is the meaning of the words of God, the Most High: Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins? Is it permissible for them to be replaced with skins other than the skins they had in this world, and thus be tormented therein? If that is permissible to you, then it is permissible for them to be replaced with bodies and souls other than the bodies and souls they had in this world, and thus be tormented. If you permit that, then it is necessary for you that those who are tormented in the Hereafter with Hell will not be those whom God has threatened with punishment for their disbelief in Him and their disobedience to Him, and that the torment has been lifted from the disbelievers!!

It was said: People differed about the meaning of that.

Some of them said: The torment only reaches the person who is not the skin and flesh, and the skin is burned so that the pain of torment reaches the person. As for the skin and flesh, they do not feel pain. They said: It is the same whether the unbeliever is given back the skin he had in this world or the skin of someone else, since the skins do not feel pain or torment him, but the one who is tormented is the soul that feels pain and is reached by the pain. They said: Since that is the case, it is not impossible that for every unbeliever in the Fire, at every moment and hour, an uncountable number of skins will be created, and that will be burned on him so that the pain of torment reaches his soul, since the skins do not feel pain.

Others said: Rather, the skins are in pain, as are the flesh and all other parts of the body of the sons of Adam. And if his skin or any other part of his body is burned, the pain of that reaches all of him. They said: The meaning of his statement: Whenever their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins is: We will replace them with unburned skins.

That is because they will be restored to new, and the first ones had been burned, so they were restored unburned, and that is why it was said: Other ones, because they are not the skins that they had in this world, which they disobeyed God and which are theirs. They said: This is similar to what the Arabs say to a goldsmith if he likes to make a ring from a manufactured ring, by changing it from its current formulation to another formulation: Make for me from this ring another ring, so he breaks it and makes for him from it another ring, and the ring made with the second formulation is the first, but when it is restored to a ring after it is broken, it is said: It is another one. They said: So the meaning of his saying: Whenever their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins, is that when the skins are burned and then returned new after being burned, it is said: They are other, according to that meaning.

Others said: The meaning of His statement, Whenever their skins are roasted through, is their garments. We replaced them with garments of other tar. So the garments of tar were made for them into skins, just as something specific to a person is called the skin between his eyes and his face, because of its specificity to him. They said: So too are the garments of tar about which God said in His Book, Their garments will be of tar, and the fire will cover their faces (Ibrahim 14:55), when they became clothing for them that would not leave their bodies, He made them into skins. So it was said: Whenever the tar burned and burned in their bodies, they were replaced with garments of other tar.

They said: As for the skins of the unbelievers of the people of Hell, they will not be burned, because in their burning - until they are returned - they will be annihilated, and in their annihilation they will be relieved. They said: And God, the Most High, has informed us about them: that they will not die, nor will their torment be lightened for them. They said: And the skins of the unbelievers are one of their bodies, and if it were permissible for a part of it to be burned and then annihilated and then returned after annihilation in Hell, that would be permissible for all of its parts. And if that were permissible, then it would be permissible for them to annihilate, then be returned and die, then be brought back to life, and God has informed us about them that they will not die. They said: And in His information about them that they will not die, there is clear evidence that no part of their bodies will die, and the skins are one of those parts.

As for the meaning of his statement: That they may taste the punishment, he is saying: We did that to them, so that they may feel the pain, distress, and severity of the punishment, because they used to deny and reject the signs of God in this world.

Abu Ja'far said: He says: God has always been mighty in His vengeance on whoever among His creation takes vengeance on Him. No one who wants to harm Him is able to prevent Him, nor is anyone who inflicts punishment on Him able to take revenge on Him. He is wise in His management and judgment.

The meaning of Islaa was mentioned at the beginning of the surah, and Humayd ibn Qays read Naslihim with the opening of the nun, meaning We roast them. It is said: a roasted sheep. And he put Nar in this reading by removing the preposition, meaning By fire.

"Whenever their skins are cooked," it is said: the thing was cooked, cooked, and so-and-so is mature in opinion, and his opinion is firm. The meaning in the verse is that the skins are replaced with other skins. If one of the heretics who criticizes the Qur'an says, "How is it permissible to torture a skin that did not disobey it?" He is told: The skin is neither a tormentor nor a punisher, but rather the pain is inflicted on the souls because it is the one that senses and knows. So changing the skins is an increase in the torment of the souls, as indicated by the Almighty's saying: "That they may taste the torment" and His saying: "Every time it subsides, We increase them in blazing fire." (Al-Isra': 97) So what is meant is the torture of bodies and the pain of souls. If He had made the skins, He would have said: That they may taste the torment. Fighter: The fire will eat them seven times a day. Al-Hasan: Seventy thousand times. Every time it will eat them, it will be said to them: Return. So they will return as they were. Ibn Omar: When they are burned, white skins will be replaced for them like paper. It was said: He meant by skins the garments, as God Almighty said: "And you will see the criminals, that Day, bound together in shackles. Their garments will be of pitch." (Ibrahim 14:49-50) They are called skins because they stick to their skins, adjacent to each other, just as the private part of a person is called his skin, which is between his eyes. Ibn Omar, may God be pleased with him, recited:

They blame me for Salem and I blame them and his skin between the eye and the nose is Salem

Every time the garments were burned, they were restored. The poet said:

Meanness has covered its skin with green, so woe to Tim because of its green garments.

So he referred to the skins as sarabils. It was said: The meaning is that we made the first skin new, just as you say to the goldsmith: Make for me another ring from this ring, so he breaks it and makes a ring for you from it. The crafted ring is the first one, except that the craftsmanship has changed, and the silver is the same. This is like the soul when it turns to dust and becomes nothing, then God revives it: "And like your covenant with a healthy brother of yours, then you see him after that sick and ruined, and you say to him, 'How are you?' He says: I am not the one you knew, so he is the same, but his condition has changed. So the saying of the speaker: "I am not the one you knew," and the saying of God the Almighty: changed it is a metaphor. Similar to it is the saying of God the Almighty: On the Day the earth will be replaced by another earth (Ibrahim 14:48), which is the same earth, except that its hills, mountains, rivers, and trees have changed, and its breadth has increased, and it has become equal to it, as will be explained in Surat Ibrahim, peace be upon him. And from this meaning is the saying of the poet:

Surat al-Nisa 4:56

Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment. Indeed, Allah is Exalted in Might and Wise.

The people are not the same as I knew them to be, and the house is not the same as I knew them to be.

Al-Sha'bi said: A man came to Ibn Abbas and said: Do you not see what Aisha did? She criticised her time and recited the two verses of Labid:

Those who lived in their care are gone, and I am left behind like the skin of a mangy dog.

They enjoy humiliation and shame, and their speaker is criticized even if he does not cause trouble.

She said: May God have mercy on Labid, so how would it be if he lived in our time? Ibn Abbas said: If Aisha criticized her time, she criticized the time of Ad, because in the treasury of Ad, a long time after they had perished, there was found an arrow, the longest of the spears of that time, written on it:

A country where we were its people, as people are people and the country is a country

The country remains as it is, except that its conditions and the conditions of its people have changed. Indeed, God is Exalted in Might, meaning nothing is beyond His power or escapes Him, Wise in His threats to His servants.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty tells us about the punishment in Hellfire for those who disbelieve in His signs and turn away from His messengers. He said, Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our signs verse, meaning, We will put them into a fire that will encompass all their bodies and parts. Then He told about the permanence of their punishment and torment, saying, Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment.

Al-A'mash said on the authority of Ibn Umar: When their skins are burned, they will be replaced with other skins, white like paper. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Yahya bin Yazid Al-Hadrami said that he heard about the verse, he said: The disbeliever will be given one hundred skins, between each two skins a color of punishment. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ali bin Muhammad al-Tanafisi told us, Hussain al-Ja'fi told us, on the authority of Za'idah, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding his statement: Whenever their skins are roasted through, the verse, he said: It roasts them seventy thousand times in a day. Hussain said: Fadil added to it, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of al-Hasan: Whenever their skins are roasted through, every time it roasts them and their flesh is eaten, it is said to them, Return, so they return. He also said: It was mentioned on the authority of Hisham bin Ammar, Saeed bin Yahya told us - meaning Sa'dan - Nafi', the client of Yusuf al-Salami al-Basri told us, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, he said: A man recited this verse in the presence of Umar: Whenever their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins, so Umar said: Repeat it to me, so he repeated it, and Muadh bin Jabal said: I have an interpretation of it: It is changed in an hour a hundred times. Omar said: This is what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Ibrahim, from Abdun ibn Muhammad al-Marwazi, from Hisham ibn Ammar. He narrated it from another chain of transmission with a different wording, saying: Muhammad ibn Ishaq narrated to us from Imran, Ibrahim ibn Muhammad ibn al-Harith narrated to us, Shaiban ibn Farukh narrated to us, Nafi' Abu Hurmuz narrated to us, Nafi' narrated to us from Ibn Umar, who said: A man recited this verse to Omar: Whenever their skins are roasted through the verse. Omar said: Repeat it to me, and then Ka'b said: I have the interpretation of this verse that I recited before Islam. He said: Bring it to me, Ka'b, and if you recite it as you heard it from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, we will believe you, otherwise we will not consider it. He said: I recited it before Islam: Whenever their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins one hundred and twenty times in one hour. Omar said: This is what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: It is written in the first book: The skin of one of them is forty cubits, his age is ninety cubits, and his stomach, if a mountain were placed in it, would be enough for it. So when the Fire consumes their skins, they will be replaced with other skins. And there is something more eloquent than this in the hadith. Imam Ahmad said: Waki' told us, Abu Yahya al-Tawil told us, on the authority of Abu Yahya al-Qattat, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The people of Hell will be so great in Hell that between the lobe of one of them's ear and his shoulder is a journey of seven hundred years. And his skin is seventy cubits thick, and his molar is like Mount Uhud." Ahmad is the only one to narrate it from this source. It was said that what is meant by his saying: Whenever their skins are cooked through is their garments. This was narrated by Ibn Jarir, but it is weak because it contradicts the apparent meaning. And His statement: And those who have believed and done righteous deeds - We will admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide forever. This is a report of the destination of the happy ones in the Gardens of Eden, in which rivers flow in all its valleys, places and corners, wherever they wish and wherever they want, and they will abide therein forever, not moving or departing, nor seeking to be moved from it. And His statement: Therein they will have purified spouses, meaning from menstruation, childbirth, harm, bad morals and imperfect qualities, as Ibn Abbas said: purified from filth and harm. And so said Ata', Al-Hasan, Ad-Dahhak, An-Nakha'i, Abu Salih, Atiyah and As-Suddi. Mujahid said: purified from urine, menstruation, phlegm, saliva, semen and children. Qatadah said: purified from harm and sins, and no menstruation or burdens. And His statement: And We will admit them to a deep shade, meaning a deep, abundant, plentiful, pleasant and elegant shade. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us, Abd al-Rahman told us, and Ibn al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Ja'far told us, they said: Shu'bah told us, he said: I heard Abu al-Dahhak narrating on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Indeed, in Paradise there is a tree in whose shade a rider can travel for a hundred years without crossing it: the Tree of Immortality."

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 56- "With Our signs It appears that some signs are not specified over others, and soon" is a word that is mentioned as a threat, as Sibawayh said. It is replaced by the letter seen. The meaning of "Nasli" was mentioned earlier in the beginning of the surah. What is meant is: We will put them into a great fire. Humayd ibn Qays read "Naslihim" with the letter noon open. His statement "Whenever their skins are cooked through" It is said: The thing is cooked through, cooked through, cooked through, and the meat is cooked through. So-and-so's opinion is cooked through: meaning it is firm. Meaning: Every time their skins were burned, God would replace them with other skins: that is, He would give them another skin that was not burned in place of every burned skin. This would be more severe in punishment for the person, because his feeling of the action of the fire on the skin that was burning is more severe than his feeling of its action on the burned skin. It was said that what is meant by the skins are the garments that He mentioned in His statement, Their garments of pitch. There is no reason to leave out the real meaning here, even though it is permissible to use the word skins to refer to garments metaphorically, as in the poet's statement:

Blame has clothed Tima with green skins, so woe to Tim for her green garments.

It was said that the meaning is: We restored the first skin new, and the meaning of the change rejects that. His statement, that they may taste the punishment, means: that they may obtain the full taste through that change. It was said that its meaning is: that the punishment may last for them and not be interrupted. Then he followed the description of the state of the unbelievers with a description of the state of the believers.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

56- The Almighty said: Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire, We will put them into a Fire, whenever their skins are roasted through, that is, burned. We will replace them with other skins, other than the burnt skins. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: They will be replaced with white skins like parchment.

It was narrated that this verse was recited in the presence of Omar, may God be pleased with him, and Omar, may God be pleased with him, said to the reciter: Repeat it, so he repeated it. Muadh ibn Jabal was with him, and Muadh said: I have its interpretation: It is changed in an hour once, so Omar, may God be pleased with him, said: This is how I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Hassan said: The fire eats them seventy thousand times every day. Every time it eats them, it is said to them, Go back, and they return as they were.

Abdul Wahid Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Naimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Muadh bin Asid told us, Al-Fadl bin Musa told us, Al-Fadhil told us, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The distance between the shoulders of the unbeliever is three days' journey for a fast rider.

Ismail bin Abdul Qahir told us, Abdul Ghafir bin Muhammad told us, Muhammad bin Isa Al-Jaludi told us, Ibrahim bin Muhammad bin Sufyan told us, Muslim bin Al-Hajjaj told us, Shureih bin Yunus told us, Hamid bin Abdul Rahman told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Saleh, on the authority of Harun bin Saad, on the authority of Abu Hazim, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with them, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The molar tooth of the unbeliever or the canine tooth of the unbeliever is like Uhud, and the thickness of his skin is the distance of three days' journey.

If it is said: How can He punish skins that were not in this world and did not disobey Him?

It is said that the first skin is repeated every time.

He said: Other skins because their description changed, just as you say: I made a different ring from my ring. The second ring is the same as the first, except that the manufacture and description changed. How many times does he leave his brother healthy, then after a while he sees him sick and dying and says:

I am not the same as I knew, and he is the same as the first, except that his description has changed.

Al-Suddi said: The skin is replaced with another skin of the flesh of the disbeliever, then the skin is returned to flesh, then another skin comes out of the flesh. It was said: The person is punished in the skin, not the other skin, as evidenced by the fact that he said: That they may taste the punishment, and he did not say: To taste. Abdul Aziz bin Yahya said: God Almighty will clothe the people of Hell with skins that do not feel pain, so it will be an increase in the punishment for them. Every time a skin is burned, He will replace it with another skin, as He said: Their garments will be of pitch (Ibrahim 14:50). So the garments will hurt them, but they do not feel pain. God Almighty says: "That they may taste the punishment. Indeed, God is Exalted in Might and Wise."

Surat al-Nisa 4:56

Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment.

Indeed, Allah is Exalted in Might and Wise.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

56 "Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our verses - We will drive them into a Fire" as a statement and confirmation of that. "Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins" by returning that same skin in another form, as you say: I replaced the ring with an earring, or by removing the trace of burning from it so that its sense of torment returns, as He said: "That they may taste the torment" meaning that its taste may last for them. It was said that another skin is created for them in its place, and the torment is in reality for the disobedient, perceptive soul, not for its perceptive instrument, so there is no objection. "Indeed, God is Exalted in Might", what He wants is not prevented from Him. "Wise", He punishes according to His wisdom.

Surat al-Nisa 4:57

And those who believe and do righteous deeds - We will admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide forever. They will have therein purified spouses, and We will admit them to deep shade.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(And those who believe and do righteous deeds - We will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide forever. They will have therein purified spouses) free from menstruation and all impurity and We will admit them to a deep shade permanent, which the sun will not remove, and it is the shade of Paradise.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He means by His saying, may He be glorified: And those who believe and do righteous deeds, is those who believe in God and His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and believe in what God revealed to Muhammad, confirming what they had from the Jews of the Children of Israel and all the nations other than them, and do righteous deeds, meaning: and they performed what God commanded them to do of His obligations, and avoided what God forbade them of His disobedience, and that is the righteous of their deeds, We will admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, meaning: God will admit them on the Day of Resurrection, gardens, meaning: orchards, under which rivers flow, meaning: rivers flow beneath those gardens, abiding therein forever, meaning: remaining therein forever without end or interruption, always for them therein forever, for them therein spouses, meaning: for them in those gardens whose description He described, purified spouses, meaning: free from impurities and doubts and menstruation and excrement and urine and pregnancy and spitting. And everything else that happens to the women of this world. We have mentioned the effects of that in what has passed before, and that makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

As for his saying: And We will admit them into a deep shade, he is saying: And We will admit them into a deep shade, as the Most High said: And an extended shade (al-Waqi'ah 56:130), and as:

Ibn Bashir told us, he said: Abd al-Rahman told us, and Ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said: Muhammad ibn Ja'far told us, they both said: Shu'bah told us, he said: I heard Abu al-Dahhak narrating, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: There is a tree in Paradise in whose shade a rider can travel for a hundred years without crossing it, the Tree of Immortality.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

And his saying in describing the people of Paradise: And We will admit them into a deep shade meaning dense, with no sun in it. Al-Hasan: He described it as being deep because nothing enters it that enters the shade of this world, such as heat, poisonous winds, and the like. Ad-Dahhak said: He means the shades of trees and the shades of their palaces. Al-Kalbi: Deep shade means permanent.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God Almighty tells us about the punishment in Hellfire for those who disbelieve in His signs and turn away from His messengers. He said, Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our signs verse, meaning, We will put them into a fire that will encompass all their bodies and parts. Then He told about the permanence of their punishment and torment, saying, Every time their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment. Al-A'mash said on the authority of Ibn Umar: When their skins are burned, they will be replaced with other skins, white like paper. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Yahya bin Yazid Al-Hadrami said that he heard about the verse, he said: The disbeliever will be given one hundred skins, between each two skins a color of punishment. Narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ali bin Muhammad al-Tanafisi told us, Hussain al-Ja'fi told us, on the authority of Za'idah, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of al-Hasan, regarding his statement: Whenever their skins are roasted through, the verse, he said: It roasts them seventy thousand times in a day. Hussain said: Fadil added to it, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of al-Hasan: Whenever their skins are roasted through, every time it roasts them and their flesh is eaten, it is said to them, Return, so they return. He also said: It was mentioned on the authority of Hisham bin Ammar, Saeed bin Yahya told us - meaning Sa'dan - Nafi', the client of Yusuf al-Salami al-Basri told us, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, he said: A man recited this verse in the presence of Umar: Whenever their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins, so Umar said: Repeat it to me, so he repeated it, and Muadh bin Jabal said: I have an interpretation of it: It is changed in an hour a hundred times. Omar said: This is what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Ibrahim, from Abdun ibn Muhammad al-Marwazi, from Hisham ibn Ammar. He narrated it from another chain of transmission with a different wording, saying: Muhammad ibn Ishaq narrated to us from Imran, Ibrahim ibn Muhammad ibn al-Harith narrated to us, Shaiban ibn Farukh narrated to us, Nafi' Abu Hurmuz narrated to us, Nafi' narrated to us from Ibn Umar, who said: A man recited this verse to Omar: Whenever their skins are roasted through the verse. Omar said: Repeat it to me, and then Ka'b said: I have the interpretation of this verse that I recited before Islam.

Surat al-Nisa 4:57

And those who believe and do righteous deeds - We will admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide forever. They will have therein purified spouses, and We will admit them to deep shade.

He said: Bring it to me, Ka'b, and if you recite it as you heard it from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, we will believe you, otherwise we will not consider it. He said: I recited it before Islam: Whenever their skins are roasted through, We will replace them with other skins one hundred and twenty times in one hour. Omar said: This is what I heard from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: It is written in the first book: The skin of one of them is forty cubits, his age is ninety cubits, and his stomach, if a mountain were placed in it, would be enough for it. So when the Fire consumes their skins, they will be replaced with other skins. And there is something more eloquent than this in the hadith. Imam Ahmad said: Waki' told us, Abu Yahya al-Tawil told us, on the authority of Abu Yahya al-Qattat, on the authority of Mujahid, on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The people of Hell will be so great in Hell that between the lobe of one of them's ear and his shoulder is a journey of seven hundred years. And his skin is seventy cubits thick, and his molar is like Mount Uhud." Ahmad is the only one to narrate it from this source. It was said that what is meant by his saying: Whenever their skins are cooked through is their garments. This was narrated by Ibn Jarir, but it is weak because it contradicts the apparent meaning. And His statement: And those who have believed and done righteous deeds - We will admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they will abide forever. This is a report of the destination of the happy ones in the Gardens of Eden, in which rivers flow in all its valleys, places and corners, wherever they wish and wherever they want, and they will abide therein forever, not moving or departing, nor seeking to be moved from it. And His statement: Therein they will have purified spouses, meaning from menstruation, childbirth, harm, bad morals and imperfect qualities, as Ibn Abbas said: purified from filth and harm. And so said Ata', Al-Hasan, Ad-Dahhak, An-Nakha'i, Abu Salih, Atiyah and As-Suddi. Mujahid said: purified from urine, menstruation, phlegm, saliva, semen and children. Qatadah said: purified from harm and sins, and no menstruation or burdens. And His statement: And We will admit them to a deep shade, meaning a deep, abundant, plentiful, pleasant and elegant shade. Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Bashir told us, Abd al-Rahman told us, and Ibn al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Ja'far told us, they said: Shu'bah told us, he said: I heard Abu al-Dahhak narrating on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Indeed, in Paradise there is a tree in whose shade a rider can travel for a hundred years without crossing it: the Tree of Immortality."

Fath al-Qadir

The interpretation of the gardens beneath which rivers flow has already been presented. His saying 57- They will have therein purified spouses meaning: from the impurities that are in the women of this world. And the thick, shady shade that is not entered by what enters the shade of this world of heat, poisons, and the like. It was said: it is the sum of the shade of trees and palaces. It was said: the shady shade: is the permanent one that does not disappear, and the derivation of the description from the word described is for emphasis, as it is said: a dark night.

Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Umar regarding his statement, Whenever their skins are roasted through, he said: When their skins are burned, We will replace them with white skins like parchment. Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated on his authority with a weak chain of transmission that he said: Whenever their skins are roasted through, the verse was recited to Umar, so Muadh said: I have an interpretation of it: It is changed one hundred times in an hour. Umar said: This is how I heard it from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Abu Nu'aym narrated in Al-Hilyah and Ibn Mardawayh that the speaker was Ka'b and that he said: It is changed one hundred and twenty times in one hour. Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud that the thickness of the skin of the disbeliever is forty-two cubits. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ar-Rabi' bin Anas regarding his statement, a shady shade, he said: It is the shade of the Throne that never moves.

57- "And those who believe and do righteous deeds - We will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide forever. They will have therein purified spouses, and We will admit them to deep shade." A shade that the sun will not burn and that neither heat nor cold will harm.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

57And those who believe and do righteous deeds - We will surely admit them to gardens beneath which rivers flow, wherein they abide forever. The mention of the disbelievers and their threat is mentioned before the mention of the believers and their promise because the discussion is about them, and the mention of the believers is incidental. Therein they will have purified spouses, and We will admit them to deep shade. Deep shade is not obligatory and is permanent and cannot be abrogated by the sun. It is a reference to the complete and permanent blessing. Shady is an adjective derived from shade to emphasize it, as in their saying: a shining sun, a dark night, and a day, a day.

Surat al-Nisa 4:58

Indeed, God commands you to render back trusts to whom they are due, and when you judge between people, to judge with justice. Indeed, God instructs you well. Indeed, God is Hearing and Seeing.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

God commands you to render trusts that is, the rights entrusted to you to their owners was revealed when Ali, may God be pleased with him, took the key to the Kaaba from Uthman ibn Talhah, the chamberlain, its custodian, by force when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Mecca in the year of the conquest and prevented him, saying: If I had known that he was the Messenger of God, I would not have prevented him. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ordered it to be returned to him and said: Here it is, eternal and everlasting. He was amazed by that, so Ali recited the verse to him, so he converted to Islam and gave it to his brother Shaybah upon his death, so it remained among his children. And even though the verse was mentioned for a specific reason, its generality is considered by the evidence of the plural And when you judge between people He commands you (to judge with justice. Indeed, God is Most Excellent) in it is the assimilation of the mim of na'ama into the indefinite noun described, meaning the best thing He admonishes you with it the fulfillment of the trust and the ruling with justice Indeed, God is All-Hearing of what is said All-Seeing of what is done.

God Almighty says: God commands you. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Al-Kalbi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, conquered Mecca, he called Uthman bin Talha. When he came to him, he said: Show me the key. So he brought it to him. When he stretched out his hand to it, Al-Abbas stood up and said: O Messenger of God, may my father and mother be sacrificed for you, collect it for me with the water-giving vessel. But Uthman withdrew his hand. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Give me the key, O Uthman. He said: Here is God's trust. So he stood up and opened the Kaaba, then he went out and circumambulated the House. Then Gabriel came down to him with the key. So he called Uthman bin Talha and gave him the key. Then he said: God commands you to return trusts to their owners until he finished the verse.

And Shu'bah narrated in his interpretation on the authority of Hajjaj on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: This verse was revealed about Uthman ibn Talhah. The Messenger of God took the key to the Ka'bah from him and entered the House with it on the day of the conquest. He came out reciting this verse. Then he called Uthman and gave him the key. And Umar ibn al-Khattab said: When the Messenger of God came out of the Ka'bah reciting this verse, may my father and mother be sacrificed for him, I had never heard him recite it before that. I said: The apparent meaning of this is that it was revealed in the interior of the Ka'bah.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Jaafar said: The people of interpretation differed as to who this verse refers to. Some of them said: It refers to the rulers of the Muslims.

Who said that?

Musa bin Abdul Rahman Al-Masruqi told me, he said, Abu Usama told us, on the authority of Abu Makin, on the authority of Zaid bin Aslam, he said: This verse was revealed: God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due, regarding the rulers.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Laith told us, on the authority of Shahr, he said: It was revealed specifically about the rulers: God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due, and when you judge between people to judge with justice.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Ismail told us, on the authority of Mus'ab bin Sa'd, he said: Ali, may God be pleased with him, said words in which he hit the nail on the head: It is the right of the imam to rule by what God has revealed, and to fulfill the trust. And if he does that, then it is the right of the people to listen, to obey, and to respond when called upon.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Jabir bin Nuh told us, he said, Ismail told us, on the authority of Mus'ab bin Sa'd, on the authority of Ali, something similar.

Muhammad bin Ubaid Al-Maharbi told me, he said, Musa bin Umair told us, on the authority of Makhul, regarding the statement of God: And those in authority among you, he said: They are the people of the verse before it: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due, to the end of the verse.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd told us, he said, my father said: They are the governors, he ordered them to return the trusts to their owners.

Others said: The Sultan ordered that they preach to the women.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, he said: He means the ruler, admonishing women.

Others said: The one who was addressed about the keys of the Kaaba was the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He ordered them to be returned to Uthman ibn Talha.

Who said that?

Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Husayn narrated to us, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: God commands you to render

Surat al-Nisa 4:58

Indeed, Allah commands you to render back trusts to whom they are due, and when you judge between people, to judge with justice. Indeed, Allah instructs you well. Indeed, Allah is Hearing and Seeing.

trusts to those to whom they are due, he said: It was revealed about Uthman ibn Talhah ibn Abi Talhah. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, took the key to the Kaaba from him and entered the House with it on the day of the conquest. He came out reciting this verse, so he called Uthman and gave him the key. He said: And Umar ibn Al-Khattab said when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out reciting this verse: May my father and mother be sacrificed for him! I had never heard him recite it before that!

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Al-Zanji bin Khalid told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, who said: He gave it to him and said: Help him.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these sayings in this regard, in my opinion, is the saying of the one who said: It is a speech from God to the rulers of the Muslims to return the trust to those they have been entrusted with in their spoils and their rights, and what they have been entrusted with of their affairs, with justice between them in the judgment, and division between them equally. Evidence for this is what he preached to the subjects, in: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, so he commanded them to obey them, and he recommended the shepherd to the flock, and he recommended the subjects to obey, as:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: My father said: They are the rulers. Ibn Zayd recited: You give the kingdom to whom You will and take the kingdom away from whom You will (Al Imran 3:26). We only say: They are the scholars who attend to the ruler. Don't you see that he ordered them and began with them, with the governors, and said: God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due? And the trusts are the spoils that He entrusted them to collect and distribute, and the alms that He entrusted them to collect and distribute. And when you judge between people, judge with justice the entire verse. So he ordered this to the governors. Then he turned to us and said: O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you.

As for what Ibn Jurayj said, that this verse was revealed about Uthman ibn Talhah, it is possible that it was revealed about him, and what was meant by it was every person entrusted with a trust, so it included the rulers of the affairs of the Muslims, and every person entrusted with a trust in religion or worldly matters. Therefore, the one who said: It meant paying off debts and returning people's rights, like the one who: you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, for He did not permit the wealthy or the poor to withhold them.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, on the authority of Al-Hasan: that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: Return the trust to the one who entrusted you, and do not betray the one who betrayed you.

Abu Ja'far said: The interpretation of the verse, if the matter is as we have described, is: God commands you, O group of rulers of the Muslims, to deliver to them what your subjects have entrusted to you of their spoils, their rights, their wealth, and their charity, as God commanded you to deliver everything of that to the one who has it, after it has come into your hands. Do not wrong its people, do not monopolize anything of it, do not put anything of it in the wrong place, and do not take it except from the one from whom God has permitted you to take it before it comes into your hands. And He commands you, when you judge between your subjects, to judge between them with justice and fairness. This is the judgment of God that He revealed in His Book and explained through the tongue of His Messenger. Do not transgress that and be unjust to them.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: O group of rulers of the Muslims, God is advising you with the best thing, and He is advising you with the best admonition in His command to you to return trusts to their owners, and to judge between people with justice. Indeed, God is All-Hearing, meaning: God has always been All-Hearing of what you say and utter, and He is All-Hearing of that from you when you judge between people and what you discuss with them, All-Seeing of what you do with regard to the rights of your subjects and their money that you have been entrusted with, and what you decide between them of your rulings: whether you judge with justice or injustice, nothing of that is hidden from Him, He is the Guardian of all of that, until He rewards your good-doer for his good, and your evil-doer for his evil, or He pardons with His grace.

There are two issues:

First - The Almighty's saying: Indeed, God commands you to render back trusts. This verse is one of the most important rulings that includes all of religion and law. There is a difference of opinion about who it was addressed to. Ali bin Abi Talib bin Zaid bin Aslam, Shahr bin Hawshab, and Ibn Zaid said: This is addressed to the rulers of the Muslims specifically, so it is for the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his men, then it includes those who come after them. Ibn Jurayj and others said: This is addressed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, specifically regarding the key to the Kaaba when he took it from Uthman bin Abi Talha, the chamberlain of Abd al-Dar, from his son, Shaybah bin Uthman bin Abi Talha, and they were both infidels at the time of the conquest of Mecca. Al-Abbas bin Abdul Muttalib requested it so that he could be added to the custodianship of the water supply. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered the Kaaba and broke the idols that were in it, and removed the station of Abraham, and Gabriel came down to him with this verse. Omar bin Al-Khattab said:

"The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) went out reciting this verse, and I had never heard it from him before. He called for Uthman and Shaibah and said, 'Take it, eternal and everlasting. None shall take it from you except an oppressor.'" It was narrated in Makki that Shaibah wanted not to give the key, but he gave it and said to the Prophet (peace be upon him): Take it with God's trust. Ibn Abbas said: The verse is specifically about rulers, in that they admonish women for their disobedience and the like, and return them to their husbands. What is more apparent in the verse about rulers is that it is general and applies to all people, so it includes rulers in what is entrusted to them in dividing wealth, returning injustices, and being just in governments. This is the choice of al-Tabari, and it also applies to people who are below them in preserving deposits, being cautious in testimonies, and other things, such as a man who rules in a case and the like. Prayer, zakat, and all other acts of worship are the trust of God Almighty. This meaning was narrated with a chain of transmission traceable to the Prophet (peace be upon him) from the hadith of Ibn Mas'ud, on the authority of the Prophet (peace be upon him), who said:

Killing in the way of God expiates all sins." Or he said: Everything except trust, trust in fasting, trust in hadith, and the worst of these are deposits. Abu Naim al-Hafiz mentioned this in al-Hilya. Among those who said that the verse is general in all matters are al-Bara' ibn 'Azib ibn Mas'ud, Ibn 'Abbas, and Ubayy ibn Ka'b. They said: Trust is in everything, in ablution, prayer, zakat, major ritual impurity, fasting, eating, weighing, and deposits. Ibn 'Abbas said: God did not permit the poor or the wealthy to keep a trust.

I said: This is a consensus, and they agreed that trusts are returned to their owners, the righteous and the wicked among them. Ibn al-Mundhir said: And trust is a source in the sense of the object, so it was collected and the direction of the system with what came before is that the Almighty informed about the concealment of the People of the Book of the description of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and their saying: Indeed, the polytheists are more guided in their path, so that was a betrayal on his part, so the speech was drawn to mentioning all trusts, so the verse is comprehensive in its system for every trust, and they are many in number as we mentioned, and their mothers in the rulings are: the deposit, the lost property, the pledge, and the loan. And Abi bin Ka'b narrated that he heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

Fulfill the trust of the one who entrusted you, and do not betray the one who betrayed you. Narrated by Al-Darqutni, and narrated by Anas and Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Its meaning was mentioned previously in Surat Al-Baqarah. "Abu Amana narrated that he heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say in his sermon in the year of the Farewell Pilgrimage:

The loan must be paid, the grant must be returned, the debt must be settled, and the guarantor must pay." Sahih. Narrated by Al-Tirmidhi and others, and Al-Darqutni added.

A man said: What about the covenant of God? He said: The covenant of God is the most deserving of being fulfilled. He said: According to this verse and the hadith regarding returning the deposit and that it is guaranteed in any case, whether it is something that is missed or not missed, whether there is transgression in it or not, Ata', Al-Shafi'i, Ahmad and Ashab. It was narrated that Ibn Abbas and Abu Hurairah may God be pleased with them guaranteed the deposit. Ibn Al-Qasim narrated on the authority of Malik that whoever borrows an animal or something else that is not missed and it is lost while he is with him, he is believed in its loss and is not liable for it except in the case of transgression. This is the opinion of Al-Hasan Al-Basri and Al-Nakha'i, and it is the opinion of the Kufians and Al-Awza'i. They said: The meaning of his saying, peace be upon him: The loan is to be returned, is like the meaning of the Almighty's saying: {Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due.} So if the trust is lost, the trustee is not required to pay its compensation because he is believed. The same is true of the loan if it is lost without transgression because he did not take a guarantee. But if it is lost due to his transgression, he is required to pay its value for his crime against it. It was narrated on the authority of Ali, Omar, and Ibn Masoud that there is no guarantee in the case of a loan. Al-Darqutni narrated on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

There is no guarantee for a trustee. Al-Shafi'i provided evidence for this.

Safwan said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he borrowed the armor from him: Is it a guaranteed loan or a returnable loan? He said: Rather, it is a returnable loan.

Second: The Almighty's saying: And when you judge between people, judge with justice. Ad-Dahhak said: With evidence for the plaintiff and an oath for the one who denies. This is addressed to the governors, princes, and rulers, and this includes in its meaning all of creation, as we mentioned in the fulfillment of trusts. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

The just will be on the Day of Resurrection on pulpits of light at the right hand of the Most Merciful, and both of His hands will be the right of those who are just in their judgment, with their families, and in what they are entrusted with. And He said:

Surat al-Nisa 4:58

Indeed, Allah commands you to render back trusts to whom they are due, and when you judge between people, to judge with justice. Indeed, Allah instructs you well. Indeed, Allah is Hearing and Seeing.

Each of you is a shepherd and each of you is responsible for his flock. The imam is a shepherd and is responsible for his flock. The man is a shepherd over his family and is responsible for them. The woman is a shepherd over her husband's house and is responsible for it. The slave is a shepherd over his master's property and is responsible for it. So each of you is a shepherd and each of you is responsible for his flock." So in these authentic hadiths, he made each of these shepherds and rulers according to their ranks, and likewise the scholar and ruler, because if he issues a fatwa, he rules and decides between what is permissible and what is forbidden, what is obligatory and recommended, what is valid and what is invalid, then all of that is a trust that is fulfilled and a judgment that is carried out. The discussion of blessings has already been presented in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Indeed, God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing. God the Almighty described Himself as All-Hearing, All-Seeing, hearing and seeing, as He the Almighty said: Indeed, I am with you both, hearing and seeing. (Ta-Ha 20:46) This is the path of hearing. The mind indicates this, as the selection of hearing and sight indicates their opposites, blindness and deafness, as the place that is capable of opposites cannot be devoid of one of them, and He the Almighty is sanctified from imperfections. It is impossible for perfect actions to be issued by someone who is characterized by opposites, such as creating hearing and sight from someone who has neither hearing nor sight. The nation agreed to exonerate Him the Almighty from contradictions, and this is also an auditory proof that is sufficient with the text of the Qur'an in a debate between those who are united by the word of Islam. The Lord, Blessed and Exalted, is exalted above what the imaginary imagine and the slanderers invent. Glory be to your Lord, the Lord of Might, above what they describe. (Saffat: 180)

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty informs us that He commands us to return trusts to their owners. In the hadith of Al-Hasan on the authority of Samurah, the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said, Return the trust to the one who entrusted you, and do not betray the one who betrayed you. Narrated by Imam Ahmad and the people of Sunnah. This includes all the trusts that are obligatory upon a person, from the rights of God the Almighty over His servants, such as prayers, zakat, fasting, expiations, vows, and other things that are entrusted to him and that the servants do not know about, and from the rights of the servants over one another, such as deposits and other things that they entrust to one another without any clear evidence of that. So God the Almighty commanded us to return them, so whoever does not do that in this world, it will be taken from him on the Day of Resurrection, as is proven in the authentic hadith that the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said, Rights should be returned to their owners, even to the point that a homeless sheep is avenged from a horned sheep. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Muhammad ibn Ismail al-Ahmasi told us, Waki' told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Abdullah ibn al-Sa'ib, on the authority of Zadan, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Mas'ud, who said: Martyrdom expiates every sin except trust. A man will be brought on the Day of Resurrection, even if he was killed in the cause of God, and it will be said: 'Return your trust.' He will say: 'How can I return it when the world is gone?' Then the trust will be presented to him in the depths of Hell, and he will fall into it and carry it on his shoulder. It will then descend from his shoulder, and he will fall after it forever and ever. Zadan said: So I went to al-Baraa' and told him, and he said: 'My brother has spoken the truth: God commands you to render trusts to whom they are due.' Sufyan al-Thawri said on the authority of Ibn Abi Laila, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the verse, he said: It is ambiguous for the righteous and the wicked. Muhammad ibn al-Hanafiyyah said: It is recorded for the righteous and the wicked. Abu al-'Aliyah said: Trust is what they were commanded to do and what they were forbidden from. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Saeed told us, Hafs bin Ghayath told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq, who said: Abi bin Ka'b said: It is a form of trust that a woman is entrusted with her private parts. Al-Rabi' bin Anas said: It is a form of trust between you and the people. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, God commands you to return trusts to their owners. He said: He said that it includes the admonition of the ruler to women, meaning on the day of Eid. Many commentators have mentioned that this verse was revealed regarding Uthman bin Talha bin Abi Talha, and the name of Abu Talha is Abdullah bin Abdul-Uzza bin Uthman bin Abdul-Dar bin Qusay bin Kilab Al-Qurashi Al-Abdari, the chamberlain of the Great Kaaba. He is the cousin of Shaiba bin Uthman bin Abi Talha, whose lineage has remained in the chamberlainship until today. This Uthman converted to Islam during the truce between the Treaty of Hudaibiyyah and the conquest of Mecca, he and Khalid bin Al-Walid and Amr bin Al-Aas. As for his uncle Uthman bin Talha bin Abi Talha, he was with him as the standard bearer of the polytheists on the day of Uhud, and he was killed as an unbeliever on that day. We only drew attention to this lineage because many commentators may confuse this with that. The reason for its revelation regarding him is when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, took the key to the Kaaba from him on the day of the conquest and then returned it to him. Muhammad ibn Ishaq said in the Battle of the Conquest: Muhammad ibn Ja'far ibn al-Zubayr told me on the authority of 'Ubayd God ibn 'Abd God ibn Abi Thawr, on the authority of Safiyyah bint Shaybah: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had settled in Mecca and the people were at peace, he went out until he came to the House, and he circumambulated it seven times on his mount, touching the corner with a staff in his hand. When he had finished his circumambulation, he called 'Uthman ibn Talhah and took from him the key to the Ka'bah, and it was opened for him. He entered it and found a dove made of sticks in it, so he broke it with his hand and threw it away. Then he stood at the door of the Ka'bah while the people had sought refuge in the mosque. Ibn Ishaq said: Some of the people of knowledge told me that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood at the door of the Ka'bah and said: "There is no god but God alone, with no partner. He fulfilled His promise, and aided His servant, and defeated the confederates alone. Beware, every act of deed, blood, or wealth that is claimed is under these two feet of mine, except for the custodianship of the House and the watering of the pilgrims." He mentioned the rest of the hadith in the sermon of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that day until he said: Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sat in the mosque, and Ali bin Abi Talib went to him with the key of the Kaaba in his hand, and said: O Messenger of God, combine for us the duties of guardianship and watering, may God's prayers and peace be upon you, so the Messenger of God, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, said: Where is Uthman bin Talha? So he was called to him, and he said to him: Here is your key, O Uthman, today is a day of loyalty and righteousness. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Qasim told me, Al-Hussein told us, on the authority of Hajjaj, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj regarding the verse, he said: It was revealed about Uthman bin Talha, the Messenger of God, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, took the key of the Kaaba from him, so he entered the house on the day of the conquest, and he came out reciting this verse: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, the verse, so Uthman was called to him and the key was given to him. He said: And Umar bin Al-Khattab said when the Messenger of God, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, came out of the Kaaba reciting this verse: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, my father and mother be sacrificed for him, I had never heard him recite it before that. Al-Qasim narrated to us, Al-Husayn narrated to us, Al-Zanji bin Khalid narrated to us on the authority of Al-Zuhri, who said: He gave it to him and said: Help him. Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Al-Kalbi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the words of God Almighty: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, he said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, conquered Mecca, he called for Uthman bin Talha, and when he came to him he said: Show me the key, so he brought it to him, and when he stretched out his hand to it, Al-Abbas stood up and said: O Messenger of God, may my father and mother be sacrificed for you, collect it for me with the water-carrier, so Uthman withdrew his hand, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Show me the key, O Uthman, so he stretched out his hand to give it to him, and Al-Abbas said the same as the first word, so Uthman withdrew his hand. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Uthman, if you believe in God and the Last Day, give me the key. He said: Here it is, by God's trust. He said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, stood up and opened the door of the Kaaba, and found in the Kaaba a statue of Abraham, peace be upon him, with arrows with which he was casting lots. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "What is the matter with the polytheists, may God fight them? What is the matter with Abraham and the arrows?" Then he called for a basin of water, took some water and dipped it in it, then dipped those statues in it, and brought out the station of Abraham, which was in the Kaaba, and stuck it to the wall of the Kaaba. Then he said: O people, this is the qiblah. He said: Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out and circumambulated the House for a circuit or two, then Gabriel came down to him, as we have been told, to return the key. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God commands you to return trusts to their owners, until he finished the verse. This is one of the well-known reports that this verse was revealed in this regard, and whether it was revealed in this regard or not, its ruling is general. For this reason, Ibn Abbas and Muhammad said: Ibn Al-Hanafiyyah: It is for the righteous and the wicked, meaning it is a command for everyone. His statement: And when you judge between people, judge with justice is a command from God Almighty to judge with justice between people. For this reason, Muhammad bin Ka'b, Zaid bin Aslam, and Shahr bin Hawshab said: This verse was only revealed about the rulers, meaning the judges between people. In the hadith: "God is with the ruler as long as he does not commit injustice. If he commits injustice, God leaves him to himself." In the athar: Justice for one day is like the worship of forty years. His statement: God is admonishing you with good things means He commands you to do them, such as fulfilling trusts, ruling with justice between people, and other than that from His commands and His perfect, great, comprehensive laws. And the Almighty's saying: Indeed, God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing means He hears your words and sees your actions, as Ibn Abi Hatim said: Abu Zur'ah told us, Yahya ibn Abdullah ibn Bakir told us, Abdullah ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Yazid ibn Abi Habib, on the authority of Abu al-Khair, on the authority of Uqbah ibn Amir, who said: I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, reciting this verse: All-Hearing, All-Seeing, meaning: He sees everything. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yahya ibn Abdak al-Qazwini told us, al-Muqri told us, meaning Abu Abd al-Rahman Abdullah ibn Yazid, Harmalah told us, meaning Ibn Imran al-Tujibi al-Misri, Abu Yunus told me, I heard Abu Hurayrah reciting this verse: Indeed, God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due, until His saying: "Indeed, God instructs you well. Indeed, God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing," and he put his thumb on his ear, and the one next to it on his eye, and he said: This is how I heard the Messenger of God recite it, and he put his two fingers. Abu Zakariya said: Al-Maqri described him to us, and Abu Zakariya placed his right thumb on his right eye, and the one next to it on his right ear, and he showed us and said: Like this and like this. Narrated by Abu Dawud and Ibn Hibban in his Sahih, and Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak, and Ibn Mardawayh in his Tafsir from the hadith of Abu

Indeed, Allah commands you to render back trusts to whom they are due, and when you judge between people, to judge with justice. Indeed, Allah instructs you well. Indeed, Allah is Hearing and Seeing.

Fath al-Qadir

This verse is one of the mother verses that includes many rulings of the Shari'ah, because it appears that the address includes all people in all people in all trusts, and it has been narrated from Ali, Zaid bin Aslam and Shahr bin Hawshab that it is an address to the rulers of the Muslims, and the first is more apparent, and its occurrence for a reason as will come does not contradict what is in it of generality, so the consideration is the generality of the wording and not the specificity of the reason as established in the principles, and the rulers are included in this address as a primary entry, so they must fulfill what they have of trusts and return injustices and seek justice in their rulings, and others from the people are included in the address, so they must return what they have of trusts and seek justice in testimonies and report. Among those who said that this address is general are: Al-Bara bin Azib, Ibn Masoud, Ibn Abbas and Ubay bin Kaab, and the majority of commentators chose it, including Ibn Jarir, and they agreed that trusts are returned to their owners: the righteous among them and the wicked, as Ibn Al-Mundhir said. And trusts is the plural of trust, and it is a source meaning the subject. His saying 58 - And when you judge between people, judge with justice meaning: And God commands you, when you judge between people, to judge with justice. Justice is determining the government according to what is in the Book of God, the Most High, and the Sunnah of His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, not ruling by mere opinion, because that is not right at all unless there is no evidence for that government in the Book of God or in the Sunnah of His Messenger. So there is no problem with the ijthad of opinion from the ruler who knows the ruling of God, the Most High, and what is closest to the truth when there is no text. As for the ruler who does not know the ruling of God and His Messenger or what is closest to them, he does not know what justice is, because he does not understand the argument if it comes to him, let alone judge with it between the servants of God. His saying Yes is a noun or a relative, and we have already discussed such a thing.

Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that when the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) conquered Mecca and took the keys of the Kaaba from Uthman ibn Talhah, Gabriel (peace be upon him) came down to return the key. The Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) called Uthman ibn Affan Talhah and returned it to him, and recited this verse. Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Asakir narrated on the authority of Ibn Jurayj that this verse was revealed about Uthman ibn Talhah when the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) took the key of the Kaaba from him, called him and gave it to him. Saeed ibn Mansur, Ibn Jarir, Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Abi Shaybah narrated on the authority of Ali, who said: It is the right of the Imam to rule according to what God has revealed and to fulfill the trust. If he does that, then it is the right of the people to listen to him, obey him and respond when called. Abu Dawud, Al-Tirmidhi, Al-Hakim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Fulfill the trust of the one who entrusted you, and do not betray the one who betrayed you. It has been proven in Sahih that the one who betrays when he is entrusted with something has a characteristic of hypocrisy.

58- The Almighty said: God commands you to render trusts to those to whom they are due. It was revealed about Uthman bin Talha, the chamberlain of Banu Abd al-Dar, who was the custodian of the Kaaba. When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered Mecca on the day of the conquest, Uthman closed the door of the house and climbed up to the roof. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked for the key. It was said that it was with Uthman. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asked him for it, but he refused and said: If I had known that he was the Messenger of God, I would not have denied him the key. Ali, may God be pleased with him, twisted his hand and took the key from him and opened the door. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered the house and prayed two rak'ahs in it. When he came out, al-Abbas asked him for the key, to give it to him and combine the watering and custodianship for him. God Almighty revealed this verse. The Messenger of God ordered that the key be returned to Uthman and apologize to him. Ali, may God be pleased with him, did that. Uthman said to him: You were forced and hurt, and then you came to be gentle. Ali said: God Almighty has revealed a Qur'an concerning you/ and he recited the verse to him. Then Uthman said: I bear witness that there is no god but God and I bear witness that Muhammad is the Messenger of God. The key was with him, and when he died he gave it to his brother Shaiba. The key and the custodianship will be in their children until the Day of Resurrection.

It was said: What is meant by the verse is all trusts. Abu Tahir Muhammad ibn Ali al-Zarrad told us, on the authority of Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn Idris al-Jurjani and Abu Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Ahmad al-Mu'allim al-Harawi, who said: Abu al-Hasan Ali ibn Isa al-Malini told us, on the authority of al-Hasan ibn Sufyan al-Nasawi, who said: Shaiban ibn Abi Shaibah told us, on the authority of Abu Hilal, on the authority of Qatada, on the authority of Anas, may God be pleased with him, who said: Whenever the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, addressed us, he said: There is no faith for one who has no trust, and no religion for one who has no covenant.

God the Almighty said: And when you judge between people, judge with justice. That is, with equity. God is indeed a blessing. That is, a blessing in the way He admonishes you. Indeed, God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing. Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi informed us, Abu Mansur Muhammad bin Muhammad bin Sam'an informed us, Abu Ja'far Muhammad bin Hamad bin Abdul Jabbar Al-Zayyat informed us, Hamid bin Zanjawayh informed us, Ibn Abbas informed us, Ibn Uyaynah informed us, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Amr bin Aws, that he heard Abdullah bin Amr bin Al-Aas, may God be pleased with him, tracing it back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "The just are with God on pulpits of light on the right of the Most Merciful, and both of His hands are right. They are those who are just in their judgment, their families, and what they are entrusted with."

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, on the authority of Abdul Rahman bin Abi Shuraih, on the authority of Al-Qasim Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz Al-Baghawi, on the authority of Ali bin Al-Jaad, on the authority of Fadil bin Marzouq, on the authority of Atiyah, on the authority of Abu Saeed, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The most beloved of people to God on the Day of Resurrection and the closest to Him in assembly is a just leader, and the most hated and most severely punished of them is an unjust leader.

admonishes you with is an accusative describing He admonishes you with or a nominative connected to it. The specific praise is omitted, which is what is commanded regarding fulfilling trusts and being just in governments. Verily, God is All-Hearing, All-Seeing of your words, your rulings, and what you do with trusts.

58 God commands you to render trusts to their owners is an address that includes those who are responsible and trusts, and it was revealed on the day of the conquest regarding Uthman bin Talha bin Abdul Dar when he closed the door of the Kaaba and refused to give the key for the Messenger of God to enter it and said: If I had known that he was the Messenger of God, I would not have prevented him, so Ali, may God be pleased with him, turned his hand and took it from him and opened it, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, entered and prayed two rak'ahs, and when he came out, Al-Abbas, may God be pleased with him, asked him to give him the key and to collect for him the water supply and the custodianship. So it was revealed and God commanded him to return it to him, so he commanded Ali, may God be pleased with him, to return it and apologize to him, and that became the reason for his conversion to Islam and the revelation was revealed that the custodianship would be in his children forever. And when you judge between people, judge with justice meaning that you judge with fairness and equality when you judge between those upon whom your command is carried out, or who are satisfied with your judgment, and because the ruling is the function of the governors, it was said that it was addressed to them. Verily, God admonishes you with it meaning, Verily, what He admonishes you with means, Verily, what He admonishes you with means, Verily, what He

Surat al-Nisa 4:59

O you who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to Allah and the Messenger, if you should believe in Allah and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final outcome.

Surat al-Nisa 4:59

O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, if you should believe in God and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final outcome.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you if they command you to obey God and His Messenger. If you disagree about anything, refer it to God and the Messenger during his lifetime and after his lifetime, to his Sunnah, that is, reveal it to him from both of them, if you believe in God and the Last Day. That is better for you than disagreeing and speaking according to one's own opinion, and better in outcome.)

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: O you who believe, obey God, the verse. Al-Bukhari and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: This verse was revealed about Abdullah bin Hudhafah bin Qais when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him on a military expedition. Thus, he narrated it in an abbreviated form. Al-Dawudi said: This is an illusion, meaning a slander, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, for Abdullah bin Hudhafah went out to an army and became angry, so he lit a fire and said: Crush in. Some people refused, while others thought that he would do so. He said: If the verse was revealed before, then how can it single out Abdullah bin Hudhafah for obedience without others? And if it was revealed after him, then it was said to them: Obedience is only in what is good, and what was said to them was that they did not obey him. Al-Hafiz Ibn Hajar responded that what was meant in his story was: If you dispute about something, then they disputed about complying with the command to obey and refraining in order to escape from the Fire, so it was appropriate to reveal in that what guides them to what they should do when they dispute, which is to refer to God and the Messenger. Ibn Jarir narrated that it was revealed in a story that happened to Ammar bin Yasir with Khalid bin Al-Walid, and Khalid was Amir, so Ammar gave refuge to a man without his permission, and they quarreled, so this verse was revealed.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: O you who believe, obey God, your Lord, in what He has commanded you and in what He has forbidden you, and obey His Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, for in your obedience to him is obedience to your Lord, and that is because you obey him because God has commanded you to obey Him, as:

Ibn Humayd narrated that Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-A'mash on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever obeys my emir has obeyed me, and whoever disobeys me has disobeyed God, and whoever disobeys my emir has disobeyed me. The commentators differed about the meaning of his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger.

Some of them said: This is an order from God to follow His Sunnah.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us: Amr told us: Hisham told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik, on the authority of Ata', regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger, he said: Obedience to the Messenger is following his Sunnah. Al-Muthanna told me: Ishaq told us: Ya'la bin Ubaid told us, on the authority of Abdul-Malik, on the authority of Ata': Obey God and obey the Messenger, he said: Obedience to the Messenger is following the Book and the Sunnah.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Abd al-Malik, on the authority of Ata', his example.

Others said: This is an order from God to obey the Messenger during his life.

Who said that?

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger, if he is alive.

Abu Ja'far said: The correct thing to say about this is: It is a command from God to obey His Messenger during his life in what he commanded and forbade, and after his death to follow his Sunnah. This is because God is general in the command to obey him, and did not specify one situation over another. It is general until it specifies what must be submitted to.

The people of interpretation differed regarding those in authority whom God commanded His servants to obey in this verse. Some of them said: They are the princes.

Who said that?

Abu Al-Sa'ib Salim bin Janadah told me, he said, Abu Mu'awiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: They are the rulers.

Al-Hasan bin Al-Sabah Al-Bazzar told us, he said, Hajjaj bin Muhammad told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, he said, Ya'la bin Muslim told me, on the authority of Sa'id bin Jubayr, on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, it was revealed about a man whom the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent on a military expedition.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Abdullah bin Muslim bin Hormuz, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That this verse was revealed about Abdullah bin Hudhafah bin Qais Al-Sahmi, when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him on a secret expedition.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Laith, he said: Muslima asked Maymun ibn Mihran about his saying: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: The leaders of the raids during the time of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement, O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said. My father said: They are the rulers. He said, and Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement, and those in authority among you, my father said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Obedience is obedience, and in obedience there is a trial. And he said: And if He had willed, He would have made the matter in the hands of the prophets, meaning: I have made the matter to them and the prophets with them. Do you not see when they ruled in the killing of John, son of Zakariya?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated, Asbat narrated, on the authority of al-Suddi: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. He said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent a detachment led by Khalid ibn al-Walid, and in it was Ammar ibn Yasir. They set out ahead of the people they were going to. When they reached close to them, they camped. Dhu al-Uyaynatain came to them and informed them. In the morning, they had fled, except for one man who ordered his family to gather their belongings. Then he walked in the darkness of the night until he reached Khalid's camp. He asked about Ammar ibn Yasir. He came to him and said: O Abu al-Yaqzan, I have become Muslim and testify that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger. When my people heard about you, they fled, and I have remained. Will my Islam benefit me tomorrow, or should I flee? Ammar said: Rather, it will benefit you, so stay. So he stayed. When morning came, Khalid raided and did not find anyone except the man, so he captured him and his money. When the report reached Ammar, he went to Khalid and said: Leave this man alone, for he has become a Muslim and is under my protection. Khalid said: Why are you granting him protection? They quarrelled and went to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He approved Ammar's protection and forbade him from granting protection to a leader a second time. They quarrelled before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Khalid said: O Messenger of God, are you letting this slave with no limbs insult me? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Khalid, do not insult Ammar, for whoever insults Ammar, God will insult him. Whoever hates Ammar, God will hate him. Whoever curses Ammar, God will curse him. Ammar became angry and stood up. Khalid followed him until he took hold of his garment and apologized to him, and he was satisfied with him. Then God revealed the verse: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you.

Others said: They are the people of knowledge and jurisprudence.

Who said that?

Sufyan bin Wakee' told me, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Ali bin Saleh, on the authority of Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Aqil, on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah.

He said, Jabir bin Nuh told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: Those among you who have knowledge of jurisprudence.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Laith told us, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: Those with understanding and knowledge. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh: And those in authority among you, he said: Those with understanding in religion and reason.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, meaning: the people of jurisprudence and religion.

Ahmad bin Hazim told me, he said, Abu Naim told us, he said, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Hisham, on the authority of Mujahid: And those in authority among you, he said: The people of knowledge.

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Hisham told us, he said, Abdul Malik told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Sa'ib, regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: Those with knowledge and understanding.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Amr bin Awn told us, he said, Hisham told us, on the authority of Abdul Malik, on the authority of Ata': And those in authority among you, he said: the jurists and scholars.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Hasan regarding his statement: And those in authority among you, he said: They are the scholars.

He said, and Abd al-Razzaq informed us, on the authority of al-Thawri, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: And those in authority among you, he said: They are the people of jurisprudence and knowledge.

Surat al-Nisa 4:59

O you who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to Allah and the Messenger, if you should believe in Allah and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final outcome.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, regarding his statement: And those in authority among you, he said: They are the people of knowledge. Do you not see that he says: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger and to those in authority among them, then those among them who are able to extract knowledge from it would have known about it (An-Nisa': 83).

Others said: They are the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Who said that?

Yaqub bin Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, he said, Ibn Abi Nujayh told us, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: Mujahid used to say: The companions of Muhammad. He said: And he might have said: Those with reason, understanding, and the religion of God.

Others said: They are Abu Bakr and Omar, may God have mercy on them.

Who said that?

Ahmad bin Amr Al-Basri told us, he said, Hafs bin Omar Al-Adani told us, he said, Al-Hakam bin Abaan told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: Abu Bakr and Omar.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the statements on this matter is the statement of those who said: They are the princes and governors, because of the authenticity of the reports from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, commanding obedience to the imams and governors in what is obedience to God and is in the interest of the Muslims, such as that which:

Ali bin Muslim Al-Tusi told me, he said, Ibn Abi Fadik told us, he said, Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Urwah told me, on the authority of Hisham bin Urwah, on the authority of Abu Saleh Al-Samman, on the authority of Abu Hurairah: The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: After me, there will be rulers over you, and the righteous will rule you according to their righteousness, and the wicked will rule you according to their wickedness. So listen to them and obey them in every place as long as it is in accordance with the truth, and pray behind them. If they do good, it is for you and for them, and if they do evil, it is for you and against them.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Yahya told us, on the authority of Ubayd God, he said, Nafi' told me, on the authority of Abdullah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: It is incumbent upon the Muslim person to obey in what he likes and dislikes, except if he is commanded to do something disobedient, for whoever is commanded to do something disobedient, then there is no obedience.

Ibn Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Khalid told me, on the authority of Ubaid God, on the authority of Nafi', on the authority of Ibn Umar, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, something similar.

Since it is known that there is no obligatory obedience to anyone other than God, His Messenger, or a just leader, and God has commanded in His words, Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, to obey those in authority over us, it is known that those whom He, the Most High, has commanded to be obeyed from among those in authority over us, are the imams and those who are Muslims who are in charge of them, not others among the people, even though it is obligatory to accept from everyone who commands to abandon disobedience to God and calls to obedience to God, and that there is no obedience obligatory to anyone in what he commands and forbids in which there is no proof of its obligation, except for the imams whom God has obligated His servants to obey in what they command their subjects to do that is in the interest of the general public, so it is obligatory to obey those whom they command with that, and likewise in everything that is not disobedience to God.

Since this is the case, it is known that the interpretation we have chosen is correct, rather than any other.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: If you, O believers, differ in any matter of your religion - you among yourselves, or you and your rulers - and you quarrel about it, refer it to God, meaning by that: seek knowledge of the ruling on that which you have quarreled about - you among yourselves, or you and your rulers - from God, meaning by that: from the Book of God, then follow what you find. As for His statement: and the Messenger, He says: If you do not find a way to knowledge of that in the Book of God, then seek knowledge of that also from the Messenger if he is alive, and if he is dead then from his Sunnah, if you believe in God and the Last Day, meaning: Do that if you believe in God, and the Last Day, meaning: in the Resurrection in which there is reward and punishment, for if you do what you are commanded to do of that, then you will have from God a great reward, and if you do not do that, then you will have a painful punishment. A group of the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Laith told us, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: But if you disagree about anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: If the scholars disagree, refer it to God and the Messenger. He said: He says: Refer it to the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger. Then Mujahid recited this verse: And if they had referred it to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, then those among them who are able to extract information from it would have known about it. (An-Nisa': 83)

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Laith, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Then refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: The Book of God and the Sunnah of His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Layth, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: Then refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: To God, to His Book, and to the Messenger, to the Sunnah of His Prophet.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Laith, he said: Muslima asked Maymun ibn Mihran about his statement: And if you disagree about anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: God is His Book, and His Messenger is His Sunnah, so it was as if he had fed him a stone.

Ahmad bin Hazim narrated to us, he said: Abu Naim narrated to us, he said: Jaafar bin Marwan informed us, on the authority of Maimun bin Mihran: If you disagree about anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: Referring to God means referring to His Book, and referring to His Messenger if he is alive. If God takes him to Himself, then referring to the Sunnah. Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: If you disagree about anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: Refer it to the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger, if you believe in God and the Last Day.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: If you dispute over anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, if the Messenger is alive, and to God, he said: to His Book.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, means by His saying: That, referring whatever you disputed about to God and the Messenger, is better for you with God in your afterlife, and more suitable for you in your worldly life, because that calls you to harmony and abandoning disputes and division, and has a better outcome, meaning: and is the most praiseworthy destination and outcome, and the most beautiful outcome.

We have previously shown that interpretation is the activation of the verb ta'awul, and that the saying of the speaker: ta'awul, taf'al, is from tawalahum: this matter led to such-and-such, meaning: it returned - with what makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

And in a similar manner to what we said about that, the people of interpretation said:

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the best interpretation, he said: the best reward.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: That is better and has a better outcome, meaning: That is better in reward and better in outcome.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And the best interpretation, he said: The consequence.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: That is better and the best outcome, he said: And the best consequence, he said: And the interpretation is the confirmation.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has three issues:

First: When He addressed the rulers in the previous verse and began with them, so He commanded them to fulfill the trusts and to judge between the people with justice, He addressed the subjects in this verse, so He commanded obedience to Him, the Almighty and Majestic, first, which is to comply with His orders and avoid His prohibitions, then to obey His Messenger secondly in what He commanded and prohibited, then to obey the princes thirdly, according to the majority, Abu Hurairah, Ibn Abbas, and others. Sahl ibn Abdullah al-Tustari said: Obey the ruler in seven matters: the minting of dirhams and dinars, weights and measures, rulings, Hajj, Friday, the two Eids, and jihad. Sahl said: If the ruler forbids a scholar from issuing a fatwa, then he is not allowed to issue a fatwa. If he issues a fatwa, then he is a sinner, even if he is an unjust ruler. Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad said: As for obeying the ruler, it is obligatory in that which is obedience to God, but it is not obligatory in that which is disobedience to God. Therefore, we said: It is not permissible to obey, assist, or honor the rulers of our time. It is obligatory to fight with them whenever they fight, and to rule from them, and to assume leadership and hisbah, and to establish that in accordance with the Shari'ah. If they lead us in prayer and they are immoral in terms of sins, then praying with them is permissible. But if they are innovators, then praying with them is not permissible unless they are afraid, in which case they pray with them out of taqiyya and the prayer is repeated.

I said: It was narrated on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, that he said: It is the right of the Imam to rule with justice and fulfill the trust. If he does that, then it is obligatory for the Muslims to obey him, because God Almighty commanded us to fulfill the trust and justice, then He commanded us to obey him. Jabir bin Abdullah and Mujahid said: And those in authority are the people of the Qur'an and knowledge, and this is the choice of Malik, may God have mercy on him. Similar to it is the statement of Ad-Dahhak, who said: He means the jurists and scholars of religion. It was narrated on the authority of Mujahid that they are the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, in particular. It was narrated on the authority of Ikrimah that it is a reference to Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them, in particular. Sufyan bin Uyaynah narrated on the authority of Al-Hakam bin Abaan that he asked Ikrimah about the mothers of children, and he said: They are free women, so what did they get away with? He said: By the Qur'an. I said: By what in the Qur'an? He said: God Almighty said: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And Umar was one of those in authority. He said: I have been freed even if it was a miscarriage. This meaning will come clearly in Surat Al-Hashr when God Almighty says: And whatever the Messenger has given you - take; and what he has forbidden you - refrain from. (al-Hashr 59:7) Ibn Kabsan said: They are those with reason and opinion who manage the affairs of the people.

O you who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to Allah and the Messenger, if you should believe in Allah and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final outcome.

I said: The most correct of these sayings are the first and second. As for the first, it is because the origin of the matter is from them and the judgment is up to them. The two Sahihs narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said:

O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you was revealed about Abdullah bin Hudhafah bin Qais bin Adi Al-Sahmi when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him on a military expedition. Abu Omar said:

Abdullah bin Hudhafah was known for his sense of humor. One of his jokes was that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, put him in charge of a military expedition. He ordered them to gather firewood and light a fire. When they had lit it, he ordered them to rush into it. He said to them: Did not the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, order you to obey me? He said: Whoever obeys my leader has obeyed me. They said: We have not believed in God and followed His Messenger except to be saved from the Fire. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, approved their action and said: There is no obedience to a creature in disobedience. The Creator said to God the Most High: And do not kill yourselves (An-Nisa': 29). It is a well-known hadith with a sound chain of transmission. Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Alqamah narrated on the authority of Umar ibn Al-Hakam ibn Thaaban that Abu Saeed Al-Khudri said: Abdullah ibn Hudhafah ibn Qays As-Sahmi was one of the companions of Badr and he was a joker. Az-Zubayr mentioned: Abdul-Jabbar ibn Saeed ibn Abdullah ibn Wahb told me on the authority of Al-Layth ibn Saad who said: It reached me that he loosened the belt of the Messenger of God's mount on one of his journeys until the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, almost fell. Ibn Wahb said: I said to Al-Layth: To make him laugh? He said: Yes, he was a joker. Maymun ibn Mihran, Muqatil, and Al-Kalbi said: Those in authority are the ones who led the raids. As for the second statement, its soundness is indicated by the statement of God the Most High: But if you disagree about anything, refer it to God. And the Messenger, "The Almighty ordered that the disputed matter be referred to the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. It is not for anyone other than the scholars to know how to refer to the Book and the Sunnah. This is indicated by the fact that asking scholars is obligatory and complying with their fatwas is necessary. Sahl ibn Abdullah, may God have mercy on him, said: People will continue to be fine as long as they respect the ruler and the scholars. If they respect these two, God will make their worldly and afterlife lawful. If they belittle these two, He will corrupt their worldly and afterlife. As for the three statements, they are specific, and the fourth statement is more specific than it. As for the fifth, the apparent meaning of the wording rejects it, even though the meaning is correct. For reason is the most ancient virtue, and for you is a source of manners. It is what God made the foundation of religion and the pillar of the world. So God made it obligatory to be charged with its perfection, and made the world governed by its rulings. The rational person is closer to his Lord, the Almighty, than all those who strive without reason. This meaning was narrated from Ibn Abbas. Some people claimed that what was meant by those in authority was Ali and the infallible Imams. If that were the case, his statement, "Refer it to God and the Messenger," would not have had any meaning. Rather, he would have said, Refer it to the Imam and those in authority. For his statement, according to these people, is the decisive one based on the Book and the Sunnah. This is a well-known statement that contradicts what the majority hold. The reality of obedience is compliance with an order, just as disobedience is its opposite, which is disobeying an order. Obedience is taken from the verb ata'a, meaning to submit, and disobedience is taken from the verb 'asa, meaning to be severe. The singular form of 'awlu, is not analogous to analogy, like women, camels, and horses. Each one is a collective noun and does not have a singular form from its word. It has been said about the singular form of 'kha'il, and this has been mentioned previously.

Second - The Almighty's saying: If you dispute over anything meaning you argue and differ, as if each one is taking away the other's argument and destroying it. Taking away means pulling. Disputing is the attraction of argument, and from this the hadith:

And I say, 'Why should the Qur'an dispute with me?'
Al-A'sha said:

I was leaning on the basil sticks and drinking fresh coffee, which was made of green leaves.

Al-Khudhal is the soft plant and Al-Khudhailah is the garden in something meaning of your religious matter then refer it to God and the Messenger meaning refer that ruling to the Book of God or to His Messenger by asking during his lifetime, or by looking into his Sunnah after his death, may God bless him and grant him peace. This is the statement of Mujahid, Al-A'mash and Qatadah, and it is correct. Whoever does not see this, his faith is flawed, because God the Almighty says: If you believe in God and the Last Day. It was said: The meaning is say God and His Messenger know best, so this is the response. This is like what Omar bin Al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him, said: Returning to the truth is better than persisting in falsehood. The first statement is more correct because of what Ali, may God be pleased with him, said: We have nothing but what is in the Book of God and what is in this document or an understanding given to a Muslim man. If it were as this speaker said, then the ijtihad that this nation was singled out for and the deduction that it was given would be invalidated. However, examples are struck and examples are sought until the truth emerges. Abu Al-A'aliyah said: This is the statement of God the Almighty: And if they had referred it to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those who are able to extract it would have known about it. Yes, what was from what God has kept to Himself and has not informed anyone of it. His creation, so that is what is said about it: God knows best. And Ali, may God be pleased with him, derived the minimum period of pregnancy - which is six months - from the Almighty's saying: And his gestation and weaning is thirty months (al-Ahqaf 46:15) and the Almighty's saying: And mothers shall nurse their children two complete years (al-Baqarah 2:233). So if we separate the two years from thirty months, six months remain, and there are many like it. And in the Almighty's saying: To the Messenger is evidence that his Sunnah, may God bless him and grant him peace, is to be acted upon and what is in it is to be complied with. He, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

What I have forbidden you, avoid it, and what I have commanded you, do of it as much as you can. Those who came before you were destroyed because of their excessive questioning and their disagreement with their prophets. Narrated by Muslim, and Abu Dawud narrated on the authority of Abu Rafi' on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

I do not want to find any of you reclining on his couch, and an order comes to him, whether I have ordered or forbidden, and he says, "We do not know. We have followed whatever we find in the Book of God." And "On the authority of Al-Arbadh bin Sariyah, that he attended the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as he was delivering a sermon to the people, and he was saying:

Does any of you think, while reclining on his couch, that God has not forbidden anything except what is in this Qur'an? But by God, I have commanded, preached, and forbidden things that are as great as the Qur'an or more."

Al-Tirmidhi narrated it from the hadith of Al-Muqaddam bin Ma'di Karib with the same meaning and said: A good and strange hadith. The decisive factor is the Almighty's saying: So let those beware who oppose the Prophet's command, lest some trial befall them (al-Nur 24:63), and the verse will come.

Third - The Almighty's saying: That is better meaning referring what you differed about to the Book and the Sunnah is better than disputing. And better in interpretation meaning a reference from al which means it became such and such. It was said: from alt something means you gathered it and fixed it, so interpretation is collecting the meanings of words that are unclear into a word that is not unclear. It is said: May God gather your matter for you meaning he gathered it. It is permissible for the meaning to be and better than your interpretation.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

Al-Bukhari said: Sadaqah bin Al-Fadl narrated to us, Hajjaj bin Muhammad Al-A'war narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ya'la bin Muslim, on the authority of Sa'd bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. He said: It was revealed about Abdullah bin Hudhafah bin Qais bin Adi when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him on a military expedition. The rest of the group narrated it in this way, except for Ibn Majah, on the authority of Hajjaj bin Muhammad Al-A'war. Al-Tirmidhi said: It is a good and strange hadith, and we do not know it except from the hadith of Ibn Jurayj. Imam Ahmad said: Abu Mu'awiyah narrated to us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Sa'd bin Ubaydah, on the authority of Abu Abd Al-Rahman Al-Sulami, on the authority of Ali, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent a military expedition and appointed a man from the Ansar over them. When they went out, he was angry with them for something. He said: So he said to them: Did not the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, command you to obey me? They said: Yes. He said: Gather firewood for me. Then he called for a fire and lit it. Then he said: I command you to enter it. The people intended to enter it. Then a young man among them said to them: "You have fled to the Messenger of God from the fire, so do not hasten until you meet the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. If he orders you to enter it, then enter it." They returned to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and told him. He said to them: "If you had entered it, you would never have left it. Obedience is only in what is right." They both included it in the two Sahihis from the hadith of Al-A'mash. Abu Dawud said: Musaddad told us, Yahya told us from Ubaydullah, Nafi' told us from Abdullah ibn Umar from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Hearing and obeying is obligatory for a Muslim in what he likes and dislikes, so long as he is not commanded to do something disobedient. If he is commanded to do something disobedient, then there is no hearing and no obedience." They both included it from the hadith of Yahya Al-Qattan. On the authority of Ubadah ibn al-Samit, he said: "We pledged allegiance to the

O you who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to Allah and the Messenger, if you should believe in Allah and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final outcome.

Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to hear and obey, in our ease and our difficulty, in our hardship and our ease, and in our preference for others. And that we would not dispute authority with those in authority. He said: 'Unless you see clear disbelief for which you have proof from God.'" They both reported it. In another hadith, on the authority of Anas, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Hear and obey, even if an Abyssinian slave is appointed over you whose head is like a raisin. Narrated by al-Bukhari. On the authority of Abu Hurayrah, may God be pleased with him, he said: My close friend advised me to hear and obey, even if he is an Abyssinian slave with mutilated limbs. Narrated by Muslim. On the authority of Umm al-Husayn, she heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, delivering a sermon during the Farewell Pilgrimage, saying: Even if a slave is appointed over you who leads you according to the Book of God, listen to him and obey him. Narrated by Muslim. In another version of his, he said: An Abyssinian slave with mutilated limbs. Ibn Jarir said: Ali ibn Muslim al-Tusi told me, Ibn Abi Fadik told us, Abdullah ibn Muhammad ibn On the authority of Hisham ibn Urwah, on the authority of Abu Salih al-Samman, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "After me, there will be rulers, the righteous will rule you according to their righteousness and the wicked will rule you according to their wickedness. So listen to them and obey them in everything that is in accordance with the truth, and pray behind them. If they do good, it is for you and for them, and if they do evil, it is for you and against them." On the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The Children of Israel were ruled by prophets. Whenever a prophet died, another prophet succeeded him. There will be no prophet after me, and there will be caliphs who will increase in number." They said: O Messenger of God, what do you command us to do? He said: Fulfill the pledge of allegiance to the first one, then the first one, and give them their rights, for God will ask them about what He has entrusted them with. Bukhari and Muslim On the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever sees something in his ruler and dislikes it, let him be patient, for no one separates from the community by an inch and dies except that he dies the death of the ignorant. Bukhari and Muslim On the authority of Ibn Omar, he heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: "Whoever withdraws his hand from obedience will meet God on the Day of Resurrection without any excuse, and whoever dies without having pledged allegiance around his neck will die the death of the Age of Ignorance." Narrated by Muslim. Muslim also narrated on the authority of Abd al-Rahman ibn Abd Rabb al-Kaaba, who said: I entered the mosque and saw Abdullah ibn Amr ibn al-Aas sitting in the shade of the Kaaba and the people were gathered around him. I went to them and sat next to him. He said: We were with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, on a journey and we stopped at a place. Some of us were fixing our tents, some were using water to clean ourselves, and some were in our huts. Then the announcer of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, called out: Prayer is congregational. So we gathered around the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: "There was no prophet before me except that it was incumbent upon him to guide his nation to the best of what he knew for them and warn them of the worst of what he knew for them. Indeed, your nation's well-being was made at its beginning, and its end will be afflicted with calamity and matters that you will disapprove of. Trials will come, some of which will be gentle with others. A tribulation will come and the believer will say: This is my destruction. Then it will be dispelled and a tribulation upon him to come and the believer will say: This is this. So whoever would like to be saved from the Fire and enter Paradise, let his death come to him while he believes in God and the Last Day, and let him do to the people what he would like to do." He said: So I approached him and said: I ask you by God, did you hear this from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace? So he put his hands to his ears and his heart and said: My ears heard it and my heart retained it, so I said to him: This is your cousin Muawiyah ordering us to consume our wealth among ourselves unjustly and kill ourselves, and God Almighty says: "O you who have believed, do not consume one another's wealth unjustly except it be trade by mutual consent. And do not kill yourselves. Indeed, God is to you ever Merciful." He said: So he was silent for a while, then he said: Obey him in obeying God, and disobey him in disobeying God, and the hadiths on this are many. Ibn Jarir said: Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn al-Fadl told us, Asbat told us on the authority of al-Suddi regarding his statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent a detachment led by Khalid ibn al-Walid and in it was Ammar ibn Yasir. They set out ahead of the people they were going to, and when they reached close to them they camped and Dhu al-Uyaynatain came to them and informed them. They had fled in the morning except for one man, so he ordered his family to gather their belongings, then he walked in the darkness of the night until he reached Khalid's army, and he asked about Ammar ibn Yasir, so he came to him and said: O Abu al-Yaqzan, I have become Muslim and I bear witness that there is no god but God and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, and when my people heard about you they fled, and I have remained. Will my Islam benefit me tomorrow, or should I flee? Ammar said: Rather, it is useful, so stay. So he stayed. When morning came, Khalid raided and did not find anyone except the man, so he captured him and took his money. The report reached Ammar, so he went to Khalid and said: Leave the man alone, for he has converted to Islam and is safe from me. Khalid said: And why are you protecting him? They quarrelled and went to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who granted Ammar security and forbade him from granting protection to a second time to a prince. They quarrelled before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Khalid said: Do you let this slave with no limbs curse me? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Khalid, do not curse Ammar, for whoever curses Ammar, God curses him, and whoever hates him, God hates him, and whoever curses Ammar, God curses him. Ammar became angry and stood up, and Khalid followed him, took hold of his garment and apologized to him, and he was satisfied with him, so God Almighty revealed His saying: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. This is how Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it on the authority of al-Suddi, without a chain of transmission. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it on the authority of al-Hakam ibn Zuhair on the authority of al-Suddi on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas, and he mentioned it in a similar manner, and God knows best. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas, And those in authority among you, meaning the people of jurisprudence and religion. Mujahid, Ata, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, and Abu Al-Aaliyah also said, And those in authority among you, meaning the scholars. It appears, and God knows best, that it is general for all those in authority, including princes and scholars, as mentioned above. God the Almighty said: Why do not the rabbis and the scholars forbid them from their sinful speech and their consumption of what is unlawful? And God the Almighty said: Then ask the people of the message if you do not know. And in the authentic hadith agreed upon on the authority of Abu Hurairah on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys me has disobeyed God, and whoever obeys my emir has obeyed me, and whoever disobeys my emir has disobeyed me. These are commands to obey scholars and emirs, and for this reason God the Almighty said: Obey God, meaning follow His Book, and obey the Messenger, meaning take his Sunnah, and those in authority among you, meaning in what they command you to do of obeying God, not in disobeying God, for there is no obedience to a creature in disobeying God, as mentioned in the authentic hadith: Obedience is only in what is right. And Imam Ahmad said: Abd al-Rahman told us, Hammam told us, Qatadah told us on the authority of Abu Maraya on the authority of Imran bin Husayn on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: There is no obedience in disobeying God. And His statement, And if you dispute over anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, Mujahid and more than one of the early Muslims said, meaning to the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger. This is a command from God, the Almighty, that everything that people dispute over from the fundamentals and branches of religion should be referred to the Book and the Sunnah, as God, the Almighty, said, And whatever you differ over, its judgment is to God, so whatever the Book and the Sunnah have judged and testified to as being correct is the truth, and what is more than the truth except misguidance. For this reason, God, the Almighty, said, If you believe in God and the Last Day, meaning refer disputes and ignorance to the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger, and refer to them for judgment in what has occurred between you. If you believe in God and the Last Day, indicating that whoever does not refer to the Book and the Sunnah in a dispute and does not refer to them in that matter is not a believer in God or the Last Day. His statement, That is better, meaning referring to the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger, and referring to them in resolving the dispute is better, and better in interpretation, meaning better in outcome and outcome, as As-Suddi and more than one other said. Mujahed said: The best reward is near.

Fath al-Qadir

When God, the Almighty, commanded the judges and governors to rule with justice when they judge between people, He commanded the people to obey them here. Obedience to God, the Almighty, is to comply with His commands and prohibitions, and obedience to His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, is in what He commanded and prohibited. Those in authority are the imams, sultans, judges, and everyone who has a legitimate authority, not a tyrannical authority. What is meant is to obey them in what they command and prohibit, as long as it is not a sin. There is no obedience to any creature in disobedience to God, as was proven from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Jabir ibn Abdullah and Mujahid said: Those in authority are the people of the Qur'an and knowledge, and Malik and Ad-Dahhak said the same. It was narrated from Mujahid that they are the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Kaysan said: They are the people of reason and opinion, and the first statement is more correct. His saying 59- If you dispute over anything, refer it to God and the Messenger. Disputing is attraction, and pulling is pulling, as if each one is seizing the argument of the other and pulling it, and what is meant is disagreement and argument. The apparent meaning of his saying over anything includes matters of religion and the world, but when he said refer it to God and the Messenger, it became clear that the disputed thing is specific to matters of religion and not matters of the world. Referring to God means referring to His Noble Book, and referring to the Messenger means referring to his pure Sunnah after his death. As for during his life, referring to him is his question. This is the meaning of referring to them. It was said that the meaning of referring is that they say: God knows best, and this is a weak statement and a weak interpretation. The referral in this verse is nothing but the referral mentioned in the saying of God the Most High: And if they had referred it to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those who are able to extract information from it would have known about it. His saying if you believe in God and the Last Day is evidence that this referral is obligatory for the disputants, and that it is the affair of those who believe in God and the Last Day. The indication in his saying that is to the referral that is commanded. Better for you and a better interpretation meaning: a reference, from the first to leads to such-and-such: meaning it came to it, and the meaning is: that this response is better for you and a better reference to which you can return. It is possible that the meaning is that the response is a better interpretation than your interpretation which you came to when you disputed.

Surat al-Nisa 4:59

O you who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to Allah and the Messenger, if you should believe in Allah and the Last Day. That is better and more suitable for final outcome.

Al-Bukhari, Muslim and others narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, that he said: It was revealed about Abdullah bin Hudhafah bin Qais bin Adi when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him on a military expedition, and his story is well-known. Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ata' regarding the verse, that he said: Obedience to God and the Messenger is following the Book and the Sunnah. And those in authority he said: Those with understanding and knowledge. Saeed bin Mansour, Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, that he said: And those in authority among you they are the princes, and in another version they are the commanders of the raiding parties. Ibn Abi Shaybah, Abd bin Humayd, Al-Hakim Al-Tirmidhi, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Hakim narrated - and he authenticated it - on the authority of Jabir bin Abdullah regarding his statement, And those in authority among you, he said: The people of knowledge. Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar from Mujahid. Ibn Abi Shaybah and Ibn Jarir narrated from Abu Al-Aaliyah something similar. Saeed bin Mansour, Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Mujahid regarding his statement, But if you disagree over anything, refer it to God and the Messenger, he said: To the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger. Then he recited, And if they had referred it to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, then those who investigate it would have known about it. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Maymun bin Mihran regarding the verse, he said: Referring to God means referring to His Book, and referring to His Messenger as long as he is alive, and when he dies, then to his Sunnah. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from Qatada and Al-Suddi. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated from Qatada regarding his statement, That is better and more suitable for final outcome, he said: That is better in reward and better in outcome. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated from Mujahid regarding his statement, And better in final outcome, he said: And better in recompense. There are many hadiths about obeying rulers, which are confirmed in the two Sahih and others, and are restricted to what is good, and that there is no obedience in disobedience to God.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

59- The Almighty said: O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. They differed about those in authority. Ibn Abbas and Jabir, may God be pleased with them, said: They are the jurists and scholars who teach people the principles of their religion. This is the saying of Al-Hasan, Ad-Dahhak, and Mujahid. Its evidence is the Almighty's saying: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, then those among them who are able to extract knowledge from it would have known about it. An-Nisaa' 83.

Abu Hurairah said: They are the princes and governors.

Ali bin Abi Talib, may God be pleased with him, said: It is the right of the imam to rule according to what God has revealed and to fulfill the trust. If he does that, then it is the right of the subjects to listen and obey.

Abu Ali Hassan bin Saad Al-Munai'i told us, Abu Tahir Muhammad bin Muhammad bin Mahmath Al-Ziyadi told us, Abu Bakr Muhammad bin Al-Hussein Al-Qattan told us, Ahmad bin Yusuf Al-Salami told us, Abdul Razzaq told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Hammam bin Munabbih, Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with him, said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys me has disobeyed God, and whoever obeys the ruler has obeyed me, and whoever disobeys the ruler has disobeyed me.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Musaddad told us, Yahya bin Saeed told us, on the authority of Ubaidullah, Nafi told us, on the authority of Abdullah, may God be pleased with them, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: "Hearing and obedience are required of a Muslim in what he likes and dislikes, as long as he is not commanded to commit a sin. If he is commanded to commit a sin, then there is no hearing and no obedience."

[Abu al-Hasan Abd al-Rahman Muhammad al-Darawerdi told us] I told Abu al-Hasan Ahmad ibn Muhammad ibn Musa ibn al-Salt I told Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abd al-Samad al-Hashemi I told Abu Musab on the authority of Malik ibn Anas on the authority of Yahya ibn Saeed I told us Ubadah ibn al-Walid ibn Ubadah that his father told him on the authority of Ubadah ibn al-Samit who said: "We pledged allegiance to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to hear and obey in ease and hardship, in prosperity and adversity, and to give preference to others over us, and not to dispute authority with those in authority, and to speak the truth wherever we are, not fearing the blame of any blamer for God's sake."

Abu Abdullah Abdul Rahman bin Ubaid God bin Ahmad Al-Qaffal told us, Abu Mansur Ahmad bin Al-Fadl Al-Boroujerdi told us, Abu Bakr bin Muhammad bin Hamdan Al-Sayrafi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf Al-Kadimi said, Abu Dawud Al-Tayalisi told us, on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Abu Al-Tiyah, on the authority of Anas, may God be pleased with him, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Abu Dharr, Listen and obey, even if it is an Abyssinian slave whose head is like a raisin.

Abu Uthman Saeed bin Ismail Al-Dhabi told us, Abu Muhammad after Al-Jabbar bin Muhammad Al-Jarrahi told us, Abu Al-Abbas told us, Muhammad bin Ahmad Al-Mahboubi told us, Abu Isa Al-Tirmidhi told us, Musa bin Abdul Rahman Al-Kindi told us, Zaid bin Al-Habbab told us, Muawiyah bin Saleh told us, Salim bin Aamer told us: I heard Abu Umamah, may God be pleased with him, say: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, deliver a sermon during the Farewell Pilgrimage, and he said: Fear God, pray your five prayers, fast your month, pay the zakat on your wealth, and obey those in authority over you, and you will enter the Paradise of your Lord.

It was said: What is meant are the commanders of the raiding parties. Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Naimi told us, Muhammad bin Yusuf told us, Muhammad bin Ismail told us, Sadaqah bin Al-Fadl told us, Hajjaj bin Muhammad, on the authority of Ya'la bin Muslim, on the authority of Saeed bin Jubair, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding the Almighty's statement: Obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you, he said: It was revealed about Ubayd God bin Hudhafah bin Qais bin Adi when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent him on a raiding party.

And Ikrimah said: He meant by the guardian of the matter Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them. Abu al-Muzaffar Muhammad ibn Ahmad al-Taymi told us, Abu Muhammad Abd al-Rahman ibn Uthman ibn al-Qasim told us, Khaythama ibn Sulayman ibn Haydara al-Atrabulsi told us, Amr ibn Abi Arzah in Kufa told us, Thabit ibn Musa al-Abid told us, on the authority of Sufyan ibn Uyaynah, on the authority of Abd al-Malik ibn Umair, on the authority of Rib'i, on the authority of Hudhayfah, may God be pleased with him, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I do not know how long I will remain among you, so follow the example of those who come after me, Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them both.

Ata' said: They are the Muhajireen and the Ansar and those who followed them in righteousness, as evidenced by the words of God Almighty: And the first forerunners among the Muhajireen and the Ansar 7:13. Abu Bakr Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Mahmoud told us, Abu Ishaq Ibrahim ibn Abdullah al-Khalal told us, Abdullah ibn al-Mubarak told us, Ismail al-Makki told us, al-Hasan told us, Anas ibn Malik told us, may God be pleased with them, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The example of my companions in my nation is like salt in food. Food is not good without salt." Al-Hasan said: It has gone bad, so how can we fix it?

The Almighty said: If you dispute, meaning: you differ, about anything of your religious affairs. Dispute is a difference of opinion, and its origin is from the word naza'; so it is as if the two disputants are pulling and forbidding each other. Refer it to God and the Messenger, meaning: to the Book of God and to His Messenger as long as he is alive, and after his death to their Sunnah. Referring to the Book and the Sunnah is obligatory if it is found in them. If it is not found, then the way to do it is through independent reasoning. It was said: Referring to God Almighty and the Messenger is to say about what one does not know: God and His Messenger know best. If you believe in God and the Last Day, that, meaning: referring to God and the Messenger, is better and more suitable in outcome, meaning: better in outcome and consequence.

59O you who have believed, obey God and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you. He means by them the leaders of the Muslims during the era of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and under his guidance, and this includes the caliphs, judges, and commanders of the secret police. He ordered the people to obey them after he ordered them to be just, indicating that it is obligatory to obey them as long as they are on the right path. It was said that they are scholars of Islamic law, based on the Almighty's statement: And if they had referred it to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those who draw conclusions from it would have known about it. "But if you dispute" you and those in authority among you. "About anything" of the matters of religion, and this supports the first view, since the imitator does not have the right to dispute the mujtahid in his ruling, unlike the subordinate, unless the address is said to those in authority in the manner of turning. "Refer it" so refer it. "To God" to His Book. "And the Messenger" by asking about it in his time, and referring to his Sunnah after him. Those who deny analogy used this as evidence and said: God Almighty made referring the dispute to the Book and the Sunnah, not analogy. It is answered that referring the disputed to what is explicitly stated is only by example and building on it, which is analogy. This is supported by the command to do so after the command to obey God and His Messenger, as it indicates that the rulings are three: confirmed by the Book, confirmed by the Sunnah, and confirmed by referring to them both by analogy. If you believe in God and the Last Day, for belief requires that. That, meaning the response, is better for you. And better in outcome, in consequence or better in interpretation than your interpretation without response.

Surat al-Nisa 4:60

Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in it. And Satan wishes to lead them far astray.

Surat al-Nisa 4:60

Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in it. And Satan wishes to lead them far astray.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And it was revealed when a Jew and a hypocrite were arguing, so the hypocrite called Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf to judge between them, and he called the Jew to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they went to him and he ruled in favor of the Jew, but the hypocrite was not satisfied. Then they went to Umar and the Jew mentioned that to the hypocrite, so he said to him, Is that so? He said, Yes, so he killed him. (Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut, the one who is very tyrannical, and he is Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, (and they were commanded to disbelieve in him) and not befriend him, and Satan wants to lead them far astray from the truth.

God Almighty said: Have you not seen those who claim that they believe in God, except goodness and reconciliation? Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated with a sound chain of transmission on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Abu Bazrah Al-Aslami was a soothsayer who used to judge between the Jews regarding matters over which they disputed. Some Muslims disputed with him, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they believe in God, except goodness and reconciliation.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ikrimah or Saeed on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Al-Jalas bin Al-Samit, Mu'tab bin Qushair, Rafi' bin Zaid, and Bishr were calling to Islam. Then some men from their people, the Muslims, called them to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a dispute that had occurred between them. So they called them to the soothsayers, the rulers of the Age of Ignorance. So God revealed about them: Have you not seen those who claim the verse?

Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Sha'bi who said: There was a dispute between a Jewish man and a hypocrite. The Jew said: I will bring you to the people of your religion, or the Prophet said: Because he knew that he would not take bribes in judgment. They disagreed and agreed to go to a soothsayer in Juhayna. Then this verse was revealed.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: Have you not seen, O Muhammad, in your heart, so that you may know, those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you of the Book, and those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed before you of the Books, they want to refer their dispute to the tyrant, meaning to the one they venerate, and issue from his words, and are satisfied with his judgment instead of the judgment of God, and they have been commanded to disbelieve in him, meaning: God has commanded them to deny what the tyrant to whom they refer brought them, so they abandoned the command of God and followed the command of Satan, and Satan wants to lead them far astray, meaning: Satan wants to turn these who refer to the tyrant from the path of truth and guidance, so he leads them far astray, meaning: he deviates from it with great injustice. It was mentioned that this verse was revealed about a hypocrite who invited a Jewish man to some soothsayers to judge between them in a dispute that was between them, while the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was among them.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abd al-Wahhab told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Aamir, regarding this verse: Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their judgment to false gods, he said: There was a dispute between a Jewish man and a hypocrite, so the hypocrite was calling for the Jews, because he knew that they would accept bribes, and the Jew was calling for the Muslims, because he knew that they would not accept bribes. So they agreed to refer their judgment to a soothsayer from Juhayna, so God revealed this verse about him: Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, until he reached and submit in [full, willing] submission.

Ibn al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Dawud told us, on the authority of Aamer, regarding this verse: Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you? He mentioned something similar, and added to it: So God revealed: Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, meaning the hypocrites, and what was revealed before you, meaning the Jews, wanting to refer judgment to the tyrant, meaning the soothsayer, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in him, this one was commanded in his book, and this one was commanded in his book, to disbelieve in the soothsayer.

Yaqub ibn Ibrahim told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of al-Sha'bi, he said: There was a dispute between a man who claimed to be a Muslim and a Jewish man, so the Jew said: I will bring you to the people of your religion - or he said: to the Prophet - because he knew that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would not accept bribes in judgment, so they disagreed, and agreed to go to a soothsayer in Juhayna. He said: Then the verse was revealed: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, meaning the Ansar, and what was revealed before you, meaning the Jew, they wish to refer judgment to Taghut, to the soothsayer, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in it, meaning the command of this one is in his book, and the command of that one is in his book. And he recited: But Satan wants to lead them far astray, and he recited: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves, to and submit in [full, willing] submission.

Muhammad ibn Abd al-A'la told us, he said, Mu'tamir ibn Sulayman told us, on the authority of his father, he said: A Hadrami claimed that a Jewish man had converted to Islam, and there was a dispute between him and a Jewish man about a right, so the Jew said to him: Go to the Prophet of God. He knew that he would pass judgment on him. He said: He refused, so they went to a soothsayer and sought his judgment. God said: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to seek judgment from false gods.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you, the verse, until he reached far astray. He mentioned to us that this verse was revealed about two men: a man from the Ansar called Bishr, and a man from the Jews, regarding a dispute that was between them regarding a right, so they disputed between themselves, so they went to a soothsayer in Madinah to judge between them, and they left the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. God, the Almighty, criticized that. He mentioned to us that the Jew was inviting him to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to judge between them, and he knew that the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would not be unjust to him. But the Ansari kept refusing him, claiming that he was a Muslim, and he called him to the soothsayer, so God, the Almighty, revealed what you hear, and He criticized that of the one who claimed to be a Muslim, and of the Jew who was from the People of the Book, and He said: Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, until His statement: turning away.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn narrated, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal narrated, Asbat narrated, on the authority of al-Suddi: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut false gods. He said: There were some Jews who had become Muslims, but some of them had become hypocrites. In the pre-Islamic period, if a man from Banu Nadir was killed, Banu Qurayzah would kill him, they would kill some of them because of him. So if a man from Banu Qurayzah was killed and Nadir killed him, they would give him sixty wasqs of dates as blood money. When some of Banu Qurayzah and Nadir became Muslims, a man from Banu Nadir killed a man from Banu Qurayzah, so they went to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, for judgment. The Nadir said: O Messenger of God, we used to give them blood money in the pre-Islamic period, and we do the same today. Qurayzah said: No, but we are your brothers in lineage and religion, and our blood is like your blood, but you used to overcome us in the pre-Islamic era. Then God brought Islam and revealed to them, reproaching them for what they had done, saying: And We ordained for them therein, 'A life for a life' (5:45). So He reproached them, then mentioned what An-Nadir had said: We used to give them sixty wasqs in the pre-Islamic era, and we would kill some of them but they would not kill us. So He said: Do they then seek the judgment of the pre-Islamic era? (5:50). So he seized An-Nadir and killed him along with his companion, so An-Nadir and Qurayzah boasted, so An-Nadir said: We are more honorable than you, and Qurayzah said: We are more honorable than you! They entered the city to Abu Burdah, the Aslami soothsayer, and the hypocrite from Qurayzah and An-Nadir said: Go to Abu Burdah, so he may scatter among us! The Muslims from Qurayzah and Nadir said: No, the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, is leaving us, so come to him! But the hypocrites refused and went to Abu Burdah and asked him. He said: Consider the morsel great, meaning: Consider the danger great. They said: You have ten awsuq.

He said: No, but one hundred wasqs, as blood money, for I am afraid that I will mobilize Nadir and Qurayza will kill me, or I will mobilize Qurayza and Nadir will kill me! But they refused to give him more than ten wasqs, and he refused to judge between them, so God Almighty revealed: They want to refer their case to Taghut - that is, Abu Burdah - while they have been commanded to disbelieve in him until His saying: and submit in full submission.

Others said: The tyrant, in this place, is Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Sa'd told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, regarding his statement: They want to refer their judgment to Taghut, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in him. "The Taghut" was a man from among the Jews who was called Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf. Whenever they were called to what God had revealed and to the Messenger to judge between them, they would say, Rather, we will refer your judgment to Ka'b! So that is what His statement: They want to refer their judgment to Taghut, the verse.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you,

Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in it. And Satan wishes to lead them far astray.

[O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you?

He said: A hypocrite and a Jewish man were arguing. The hypocrite said: Let us go to Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. The Jew said: Let us go to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. God, the Blessed and Exalted, said: Have you not seen those who claim the verse, and the one that follows it is also about them.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you? He mentioned something similar, except that he said: And the Jew said: Go with us to Muhammad.

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi' bin Anas, regarding His statement: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you to His statement: far astray, he said: There were two men from the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, between whom there was a dispute, one of them a believer and the other a hypocrite. So the believer invited him to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the hypocrite invited him to Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf, so God revealed: And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' you see the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion.

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: {Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer judgment to Taghut,} he said: A believer and a Jewish man were arguing, so the Jew said: Let us go to Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf. The believer said: Let us go to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. So God said: {Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you,} until His saying: {Aversion.} Ibn Jurayj said: {They claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you,} he said: the Qur'an, {and what was revealed before you,} he said: the Torah. He said: There will be truth between a Muslim and a hypocrite, so the Muslim will call him to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to refer judgment to him, but the hypocrite will refuse and call him to Taghut. Ibn Jurayj said: Mujahid said: Taghut is Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Al-Dahhak say regarding His statement: They want to refer their judgment to the tyrant, that is, Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf.

We have explained the meaning of the tyrant in other places, so we disliked repeating it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Yazid bin Zari' narrated on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind on the authority of Al-Sha'bi who said: There was a dispute between a hypocrite and a Jewish man, so the Jewish man invited the hypocrite to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, because he knew that he would not accept bribes. And the hypocrite invited the Jew to their rulers, because he did not know that they took bribes in their rulings, so when they disagreed, they agreed to have a soothsayer in Juhayna as a judge, so God Almighty revealed about that: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you meaning the hypocrite and what was revealed before you meaning the Jews wanting to refer their judgment to the tyrant until His saying and submit in full submission and Ad-Dahhak said that the Jewish man invited the hypocrite to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the hypocrite invited him to Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf who is the tyrant. Abu Salih narrated it on the authority of Ibn Abbas who said:

There was a dispute between a hypocrite called Bishr and a Jew. The Jew said: Let us go to Muhammad. The hypocrite said: Rather, go to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf - who is the one whom God called the Taghut meaning the one with tyranny. The Jew refused to dispute with him except to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. When the hypocrite saw that, he went with him to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of the Jew. When they left, the hypocrite said: He is not satisfied. Let us go to Abu Bakr. So he ruled in favor of the Jew, but he was not satisfied. Al-Zajaj mentioned it and said: Let us go to `Umar. They turned to `Umar and the Jew said: We went to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, then to Abu Bakr, but he was not satisfied. `Umar said to the hypocrite: Is that how he is? He said: Yes. He said: Wait until I come out to you. So he entered and took the sword and struck the hypocrite until he was cold and said: This is how I judge those who are not satisfied with the judgment of God and the judgment of His Messenger. The Jew fled and the verse was revealed, and "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: You are the Farooq." Gabriel came down and said: Umar distinguished between truth and falsehood, so he was called the Farooq. And on that all the verses were revealed until His saying: And they submit completely. And misguidance was erected in the meaning that is, they go astray. And similar to it is the saying of God the Most High: And God caused you to grow from the earth a plant (Nuh 71:17). This complete meaning has been presented. And Saddud is the name of the source according to Al-Khalil and the source is Sadd and the Kufians say: They are two sources.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a denial from God the Almighty to those who claim to believe in what God revealed to His Messenger and the earlier prophets, and yet he wants to resort to other than the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger in settling disputes, as mentioned in the reason for the revelation of this verse that it is about a man from the Ansar and a man from the Jews who were arguing, so the Jew kept saying: Between me and you is Muhammad, and the other said: Between me and you is Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, and it was said: It was about a group of hypocrites who had outwardly declared Islam, and they wanted to resort to the rulers of the Age of Ignorance, and other things were said, and the verse is more general than all of that, as it is a condemnation of those who deviated from the Book and the Sunnah and resorted to other falsehoods, which is what is meant by Taghut here, and for this reason He said: They want to resort to Taghut for judgment until the end. And His statement, They turn away from you with aversion, means they turn away from you with aversion like those who are arrogant about that, as God Almighty said about the polytheists: And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' they say, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing.' These are unlike the believers about whom God said, The only statement of the believers, when they are called to God and His Messenger to judge between them, is to say, 'We hear and we obey.' Al-Baqarah 2:177.

Then the Almighty said in condemning al-Munafiqun 63: How will it be when a disaster befalls them for what their hands have put forth? That is, how will it be for them when fate brings them to you in calamities that befall them because of their sins, and they need you for that? Then they come to you swearing by God, 'We intended nothing but goodness and reconciliation.' That is, they apologize to you and swear that we intended nothing by going to anyone other than you and arguing with your enemies except goodness and reconciliation, that is, moderation and compromise, not believing in the soundness of that government, as the Almighty informed us about them in His statement: "Then you will see those in whose hearts is disease hastening into them, saying, 'We fear that a misfortune may strike us.' But perhaps God will bring about victory or a decision from Him, and they will become, over what they concealed within themselves, regretful." Al-Tabarani said: Abu Zaid Ahmad bin Yazid Al-Hawti told us, Abu Al-Yaman told us, Safwan bin Omar told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Abu Barzah Al-Aslami was a soothsayer who used to judge between the Jews in matters over which they had a dispute. Some Muslims came to him, so God Almighty revealed: "Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer judgment to Taghut, although they have been commanded to disbelieve in it. Satan wishes to lead them far astray. And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' you see the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion. So how will it be when a disaster befalls them for what their hands have put forth? Then they come to you, swearing by God, We intended nothing but good and reconciliation.

Then the Almighty said: Those are the ones in whose hearts God knows what is in their hearts. This type of people are the hypocrites, and God knows what is in their hearts and will reward them for it, for nothing is hidden from Him. So be content with Him, O Muhammad, regarding them, for He knows their outward appearance and their inward appearance. That is why He said to him: So turn away from them, meaning do not scold them for what is in their hearts, admonish them, meaning forbid them from what is in their hearts of hypocrisy and hidden evil, and speak to them a powerful word to themselves, meaning advise them privately with powerful words that will deter them.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 60- Have you not seen those who claim is an astonishment to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the state of these people who claimed for themselves that they combined belief in what was revealed to the Messenger of God, which is the Qur'an, and what was revealed to the prophets before him, so they came with what refutes this claim and invalidates it from its origin and makes clear that they are not on any of that at all, which is their desire to resort to the tyrant, and they were commanded in what was revealed to the Messenger of God and those before him to disbelieve in it, and the explanation of the reason for the revelation of the verse will come, and with it its meaning becomes clear. The explanation of the tyrant and the difference in its meaning has been presented. His statement and Satan wants is connected to his statement they want and the two sentences are presented to explain the place of astonishment, as if it was said: What are they doing? So it was said: They want such and such, and Satan wants such and such. His saying misguidance is a source for the aforementioned verb with the additions deleted, like his saying And God caused you to grow from the earth as plants, or a source for a deleted verb indicated by the aforementioned verb, and the meaning is: And Satan wants to misguide them so that they go astray.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

60- The Almighty said: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their judgment to Taghut. The verse. Al-Sha'bi said: There was a dispute between a Jewish man and a hypocrite. The Jew said: We will refer our judgment to Muhammad, because he knew that he did not take bribes and was not biased in judgment. The hypocrite said: We will refer our judgment to the Jews, because he knew that they took bribes and were biased in judgment. So they agreed to go to a soothsayer in Juhayna and refer their judgment to him, / so this verse was revealed.

Jabir said: The tyrants to whom they referred their cases were one in Juhayna and one in Aslam, and in every neighborhood there was a soothsayer.

Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in it. And Satan wishes to lead them far astray.

Al-Kalbi said on the authority of Abu Salih on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "It was revealed about a hypocrite called Bishr. There was a dispute between him and a Jew. The Jew said: 'We will go to Muhammad.' The hypocrite said: 'Rather, go to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, whom God called the Taghut.' The Jew refused to dispute with him except before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. When the hypocrite saw that, he came with him to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in favor of the Jew. When they left him, the hypocrite stuck to him and said: 'Let us go to Umar, may God be pleased with him.' So they went to Umar, and the Jew said: 'This man and I disputed before Muhammad, and he ruled in my favor. He was not satisfied with his ruling and claimed that he would dispute before you.' Umar, may God be pleased with him, said to the hypocrite: 'Is that so?' He said: 'Yes.' He said to them: 'Wait a minute until I come out to you.' Umar entered the house and took the sword, wrapped it around himself, then went out and struck the hypocrite with it until he died. He said: 'This is how I judge between those who are not satisfied with the ruling of God and the ruling of His Messenger.' So this verse was revealed." Gabriel said: Omar, may God be pleased with him, distinguished between truth and falsehood, so he was called Al-Farouq.

Al-Suddi said: There were some Jews who converted to Islam and some of them were hypocrites. In the pre-Islamic era, if a man from Banu Qurayzah killed a man from Banu Nadir, he would be killed in return or take a blood money of one hundred wasqs of dates. If a man from Banu Nadir killed a man from Banu Qurayzah, he would not be killed in return and would be given a blood money of sixty wasqs. Nadir, who were allies of Aws, were more noble and numerous than Qurayzah, who were allies of Khazraj. When God brought Islam and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, migrated to Medina, a man from Nadir killed a man from Qurayzah, and they argued about that. Banu Nadir said: 'We and you had agreed that we would kill some of you and you would not kill some of us. Your blood money was sixty wasqs and our blood money was one hundred wasqs, so we will give you that. Khazraj said: This is something you did in the pre-Islamic era because of your large numbers and our small numbers, so you overpowered us. Today, we and you are brothers and our religion and your religion are one, so you have no superiority. Upon us, the hypocrites among them said: Go to Abu Burdah the Aslami soothsayer, and the Muslims from both groups said: No, rather go to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. But the hypocrites refused and went to Abu Burdah to judge between them. He said: Consider the morsel great, meaning the portion. They said: You have ten awsuq. He said: No, rather one hundred awsuq as blood money. But they refused to give him more than ten awsuq and he refused to judge between them. So God Almighty revealed the verse of retaliation, and this verse: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut, meaning the soothsayer or Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, while they have been commanded to disbelieve in it, and Satan wishes to lead them far astray.

60"Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut false gods. On the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both. (A hypocrite disputed with a Jew, so the Jew invited him to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the hypocrite invited him to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf. Then they both referred their case to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of the Jew. The hypocrite was not satisfied with his judgment and said: We will refer our case to Umar. The Jew said to Umar: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in my favor, but he was not satisfied with his judgment and he disputed with you. Umar, may God be pleased with him, said to the hypocrite: Is that so? He said: Yes. Stay where you are until I come out to you. So he entered and took his sword, then came out and struck the neck of the hypocrite with it until it cooled and said: This is how I judge for those who are satisfied with the judgment of God and His Messenger.) Then this was revealed. Gabriel said that Omar had distinguished between truth and falsehood, so he was called Al-Farooq. According to this, the tyrant is Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf, and in the same sense he is the one who rules by falsehood and gives preference for its sake. He was called that because of his extreme tyranny, or because he resembles Satan, or because resorting to him for judgment is resorting to Satan, since he is the one who carries it out, as He said: And they were commanded to disbelieve in it, and Satan wants to lead them far astray. It was read that they should disbelieve in it, on the basis that the tyrant is the plural of the Almighty's saying: Their allies are the tyrants who drive them out.

Surat al-Nisa 4:61

And when it is said to them, Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger, you see the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when it is said to them, Come to what God has revealed in the Qur'an of rulings (and to the Messenger to judge between you you see the hypocrites turning away turning away from you to someone other than you in aversion

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Have you not seen, O Muhammad, those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you from the hypocrites, and those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed before you from the People of the Book, they want to refer their judgment to the tyrant, And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed,' meaning by that: And when it is said to them, 'Come,' come to the judgment of God that He revealed in His Book, and to the Messenger to judge between us, "you see the hypocrites turning away from you, meaning by that: they refuse to come to you to judge between them, and they are prevented from coming to you likewise, turning away.

Ibn Jurayj said about this:

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' he said: The Muslim called the hypocrite to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, to judge, and he said: I saw the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion.

As for the interpretation of the statement of those who made the one who calls to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, the Jew, and the one who is called to him the hypocrite, based on what I mentioned of the statements of those who said in that interpretation of his statement: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, then it is based on what I explained before.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' you see the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a denial from God the Almighty to those who claim to believe in what God revealed to His Messenger and the earlier prophets, and yet he wants to resort to other than the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger in settling disputes, as mentioned in the reason for the revelation of this verse that it is about a man from the Ansar and a man from the Jews who were arguing, so the Jew kept saying: Between me and you is Muhammad, and the other said: Between me and you is Ka' b ibn al-Ashraf, and it was said: It was about a group of hypocrites who had outwardly declared Islam, and they wanted to resort to the rulers of the Age of Ignorance, and other things were said, and the verse is more general than all of that, as it is a condemnation of those who deviated from the Book and the Sunnah and resorted to other falsehoods, which is what is meant by Taghut here, and for this reason He said: They want to resort to Taghut for judgment until the end. Fath al-Qadir

61- And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' you see the hypocrites turning away from you with aversion. And aversion is a noun for the source, which is aversion according to Al-Khalil, and according to the Kufians, they are two sources: meaning they turn away from you with aversion.

61- And when it is said to them, 'Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger,' you see the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion. That is, they turn away from you in aversion.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

61And when it is said to them, Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger, Come" is read with a damma on the lam, as the lam of the verb was deleted arbitrarily, then the lam was added to the waw of the pronoun. "You saw the hypocrites turning away from you with aversion" is a source or a noun for the source, which is turning away, and the difference between it and the barrier is that it is not perceptible, while the barrier is perceptible, and they turn away is in the place of the state.

Surat al-Nisa 4:62

So how will it be when a disaster befalls them for what their hands have put forth and then they come to you swearing by God, We intended nothing but good and conciliation.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

How will they act when a disaster befalls them as a punishment for what their hands have put forth of disbelief and sins? That is, are they able to turn away and flee from it? No. Then they come to you in apposition to they turn away swearing by God that we intended in the trial to anyone other than you except good reconciliation and conciliation bringing together the two opponents by bringing the ruling closer without burdening them with the bitterness of the truth.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: So what about those who want to refer to the tyrant for judgment, while they claim that they believed in what was revealed to you before you, if a disaster befalls them, meaning: if a punishment from God befalls them, for what their hands have put forth, meaning: for their past sins, then they come to you swearing by God, meaning: then they come to you swearing by God falsely and falsely, We intended nothing but goodness and reconciliation. This is report from God, the Most High, about these hypocrites that lessons and punishments will not deter them from hypocrisy, and that if a punishment from God comes to them for referring to the tyrant for judgment, they will not repent or turn back, but they swear by God falsely and out of audacity towards God: We intended nothing by referring to Him for judgment except goodness from one another, and the truth in what we referred to Him for judgment.

That is, how would their situation be or how would they act if a calamity befalls them that is, from not seeking their help and what befalls them of humiliation in His statement: Then say, 'You will never go out with me, nor will you fight with me an enemy' (al-Tawbah 9:83) It was said: He means killing their companion for what their hands have put forth and the speech was completed and then he began to inform about their action, and that is because when Omar killed their companion, his people came to him asking for his blood money and they swore that we did not want by asking for his blood money anything but goodness and conformity with the truth. It was said: The meaning is that we did not want by justice from you in the trial anything but reconciliation between the opponents, and goodness by approximating in the ruling Ibn Kaysan justice and truth, similar to it and they will swear that we intended nothing but goodness Al-Zajaj said: Its meaning is that God knows that they are hypocrites. The benefit for us is: Know that they are hypocrites So turn away from them It was said: from punishing them and it was said: from accepting their apology and admonish them that is, fear them. It was said in public and say to them a far-reaching word that is Warn them with the most eloquent warning in secret and in public: Tell them, If you reveal what is in your hearts, I will kill you. Speech has reached eloquence, and an eloquent man conveys with his tongue the essence of what is in his heart. The Arabs say: A fool has reached meaning he reached the end of foolishness. It was also said that its meaning is that he conveys what he wants, even if he is a fool. It was also said that the words of God Almighty: How will it be when a disaster strikes them for what their hands have put forth? were revealed concerning those who built the Mosque of Harm. When God revealed their hypocrisy and ordered them to demolish the mosque, they swore to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in self-defense, We did not intend by building the mosque anything but obedience to God and conformity with the Book.

Fath al-Qadiri

His statement 62- How will it be when a disaster befalls them because of what their hands have put forth? is a statement of the consequences of their affair and what their situation has become: that is, how will their situation be when a disaster befalls them that is, at the time of its befalling, for they are helpless at that time and are not able to repel it. What is meant by because of what their hands have put forth is what they have done of sins, including resorting to the tyrant for judgment. Then they come to you apologizing for their action, and it is in apposition to befell them. His statement swearing is a state: that is, they came to you while they were swearing. We intended nothing but goodness and reconciliation. That is, we intended nothing by resorting to someone other than you except goodness, not evil, and reconciliation between the two opponents, not opposition to you. Ibn Kaysan said: Its meaning is that we intended nothing but justice and truth, like His statement and they will swear, we intended nothing but goodness.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

62- So how will it be when a disaster befalls them?

This is a threat, meaning: What will they do if a disaster befalls them, for what their hands have put forth, meaning: the punishment for their turning away. It was said: It is every disaster that befalls all the hypocrites in this world and the hereafter. The discussion ended here, then the discussion returned to what came before, informing about their action, so He said: Then they come to you, meaning: they seek judgment from the tyrant, Then they come to you, [they greet you and swear].

It was said: The calamity meant the killing of the hypocrite Omar, may God be pleased with him, then they came demanding his blood money, They swear by God that if we intended, we did not intend by turning away from him in the trial or by pleading to Omar, except for goodness and reconciliation, Al-Kalbi said: Except for goodness in speech, and reconciliation: correctness, and Ibn Kaysan said: truth and justice, similar to: They will swear that we intended only goodness, and it was said: it is the kindness of some of them to each other, and it was said: it is bringing the matter closer to the truth, not ruling on the matter of judgment, and reconciliation: is agreeing with the truth, and it was said: it is the reconciliation and bringing together the two opponents.

62 How would their situation be? If a calamity befalls them such as the killing of the hypocrite Omar or the vengeance of God Almighty. For what their hands have put forth of resorting to someone other than you and not being satisfied with your judgment. Then they come to you when they are afflicted to apologize, in apology to their affliction. It was said that they turn away and what is between them is an objection. They swear by God is a state. We intended nothing but good and reconciliation We intended by that nothing but the best way to decide and reconcile the two opponents, and we did not intend to contradict you. It was said that the owners of the murdered man came demanding his blood money and said that we intended nothing by resorting to Omar except for him to be good to our friend and reconcile between him and his opponent.

Surat al-Nisa 4:63

Those are the ones whose hearts God knows, so turn away from them and admonish them and speak to them a far-reaching word within themselves.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those are the ones whose hearts God knows of hypocrisy and their lies in their excuse so turn away from them by forgiving and admonish them frighten them with God and speak to them concerning themselves a far-reaching word) that will affect them, that is, admonish them so that they will return from their disbelief.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: those, are these hypocrites whose description I have described to you, O Muhammad, God knows what is in their hearts, in their resorting to the tyrant, and their abandoning resorting to you, and their turning away from you, from hypocrisy and deviation, even though they swear by God: We only wanted goodness and success, so turn away from them and admonish them, meaning: leave them alone and do not punish them in their bodies and bodies, but admonish them by frightening them with the wrath of God that will befall them, and His punishment that will descend upon their home, and warn them against the evil of what they are doing of doubting the command of God and the command of His Messenger, and speak to them a far-reaching word, meaning: command them to fear God and believe in Him and His Messenger and His promise and threat.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Those are the ones whose hearts God knows, so turn away from them and admonish them and speak to them a far-reaching word about themselves.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

This is a denial from God the Almighty to those who claim to believe in what God revealed to His Messenger and the earlier prophets, and yet he wants to resort to other than the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger in settling disputes, as mentioned in the reason for the revelation of this verse that it is about a man from the Ansar and a man from the Jews who were arguing, so the Jew kept saying: Between me and you is Muhammad, and the other said: Between me and you is Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf, and it was said: It was about a group of hypocrites who had outwardly declared Islam, and they wanted to resort to the rulers of the Age of Ignorance, and other things were said, and the verse is more general than all of that, as it is a condemnation of those who deviated from the Book and the Sunnah and resorted to other falsehoods, which is what is meant by Taghut here, and for this reason He said: They want to resort to Taghut for judgment until the end. And His statement, They turn away from you with aversion, means they turn away from you with aversion like those who are arrogant about that, as God Almighty said about the polytheists: And when it is said to them, 'Follow what God has revealed,' they say, 'Rather, we will follow what we found our fathers doing.' These are unlike the believers about whom God said, The only statement of the believers, when they are called to God and His Messenger to judge between them, is to say, 'We hear and we obey.' Al-Baqarah 2:177.

Then the Almighty said in condemning al-Munafiqun 63: How will it be when a disaster befalls them for what their hands have put forth? That is, how will it be for them when fate brings them to you in calamities that befall them because of their sins, and they need you for that? Then they come to you swearing by God, 'We intended nothing but goodness and reconciliation.' That is, they apologize to you and swear that we intended nothing by going to anyone other than you and arguing with your enemies except goodness and reconciliation, that is, moderation and compromise, not believing in the soundness of that government, as the Almighty informed us about them in His statement: "Then you will see those in whose hearts is disease hastening into them, saying, 'We fear that a misfortune may strike us.' But perhaps God will bring about victory or a decision from Him, and they will become, over what they concealed within themselves, regretful." Al-Tabarani said: Abu Zaid Ahmad bin Yazid Al-Hawti told us, Abu Al-Yaman told us, Safwan bin Omar told us on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Abu Barzah Al-Aslami was a soothsayer who used to judge between the Jews in matters over which they had a dispute. Some Muslims came to him, so God Almighty revealed: "Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer judgment to Taghut, although they have been commanded to disbelieve in it. Satan wishes to lead them far astray. And when it is said to them, "Come to what God has revealed and to the Messenger," you see the hypocrites turning away from you in aversion. So how will it be when a disaster befalls them for what their hands have put forth? Then they come to you, swearing by God, We intended nothing but good and reconciliation.

Then the Almighty said: Those are the ones in whose hearts God knows what is in their hearts. This type of people are the hypocrites, and God knows what is in their hearts and will reward them for it, for nothing is hidden from Him. So be content with Him, O Muhammad, regarding them, for He knows their outward appearance and their inward appearance. That is why He said to him: So turn away from them, meaning do not scold them for what is in their hearts, admonish them, meaning forbid them from what is in their hearts of hypocrisy and hidden evil, and speak to them a powerful word to themselves, meaning advise them privately with powerful words that will deter them.

Those are the ones whose hearts Allah knows, so turn away from them and admonish them and speak to them a far-reaching word within themselves.

Fath al-Qadir

So God belied them by saying 63- Those are the ones in whose hearts God knows what is in their hearts of hypocrisy and enmity towards the truth. Al-Zajjaj said: Its meaning is that God knows that they are hypocrites. So turn away from them i.e. from punishing them, and it was said: from accepting their apology. Advise them i.e. fear them from hypocrisy. And say to them in their souls i.e. in their own right, and it was said that its meaning is: say to them while you are alone with them and no one else is with them a powerful word i.e. exaggerate in admonishing them to the intended purpose and affecting them, by threatening them with the shedding of their blood, the taking of their women captive, and the plundering of their wealth.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

63- Those are the ones whose hearts God knows of hypocrisy, meaning: He knows that what is in their hearts is different from what is on their tongues, so turn away from them, meaning: from punishing them. It was said: So turn away from accepting their excuse and admonish them with the tongue, and say to them a powerful word. It was said: It is to frighten them with God, and it was said: To threaten them with killing if they do not repent. Al-Hasan said: The powerful word is to say to them: If you reveal what is in your hearts of hypocrisy, you will be killed because it reaches every level in their souls. Ad-Dahhak said: So turn away from them and admonish them in public and say to them a powerful word in private and in private. He said: It was said that this was abrogated by the verse on fighting.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

63 Those are the ones whose hearts God knows of hypocrisy, so concealment and false oaths will not save them from punishment. So turn away from them meaning from punishing them for the sake of keeping them alive or accepting their excuse. Advise them with your tongue and stop them from what they are doing. And speak to them within themselves meaning within themselves or in private with them, for advice in secret is more effective. An eloquent speech that will reach them and affect them. He ordered them to turn away from their sins and advise them and exaggerate in that by encouraging and intimidating, and that is required by the compassion of the prophets, peace be upon them. The connection of the circumstance with eloquent to the meaning of eloquent in their souls affecting them is weak because the object of the adjective does not precede the described, and the eloquent speech in origin is that which matches its intended meaning.

Surat al-Nisa 4:64

And We did not send any messenger except to be obeyed by God's permission. And if they, when they wronged themselves, had come to you, [O Muhammad], and asked forgiveness of God and the Messenger had asked forgiveness for them, they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And We did not send any Messenger except to be obeyed in what he commands and rules by God's permission by His command, not to be disobeyed and contradicted And if only, when they wronged themselves by resorting to the tyrant had come to you repentant and asked forgiveness of God and the Messenger had asked forgiveness for them in this there is a shift from the address in order to magnify his status they would have found God Forgiving of them Merciful to them

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: We did not send, O Muhammad, a messenger except that we imposed his obedience on those to whom we sent him. The Most High says: So you, O Muhammad, are one of the messengers whose obedience was imposed on those to whom we sent him.

This is a rebuke from God to the hypocrites who claimed that they believed in what was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding their disputes with the tyrant, turning away from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. God Almighty says to them: I have not sent a messenger except that I have imposed his obedience on those to whom I sent him. Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, is one of those messengers. Whoever abandons his obedience and acceptance of his judgment and resorts to the tyrant has disobeyed My command and neglected My obligation.

Then He, the Most High, said: Whoever obeys His messengers, obeys them only with His permission, meaning: with His decree and previous judgment in His knowledge and will, as:

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Except that he be obeyed by God's permission? It is obligatory for them that whoever God wants should obey them, and no one should obey them except by God's permission.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Shibl, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Abu Ja'far said: This is only an allusion from God Almighty to these hypocrites, that their abandonment of obedience to God and obedience to His Messenger and acceptance of His judgment is only because of those who preceded them from His abandonment and the overwhelming misery upon them, and if it were not for that, they would have been among those who He permitted to be satisfied with His judgment and hasten to obey Him.

Abu Ja'far said: By this, the Most High means: If these hypocrites, whose characteristics He described in these two verses, who, when they are called to the rule of God and the rule of His Messenger, turn away with aversion, because they have wronged themselves, by committing great sin in resorting to the tyrant, and turning away from the Book of God and the Sunnah of His Messenger when they are called to it, had come to you, O Muhammad, when they did what they did in their fate to the tyrant, satisfied with his rule rather than your rule, they had come to you repentant and turning back, and they had asked God to pardon them for the punishment of their sin by covering them up, and God had asked His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, for the same. And that is the meaning of His statement: So seek forgiveness from God and the Messenger seek forgiveness for them.

As for his statement: They would have found God Forgiving and Merciful, he is saying: If they had done that and repented from their sin, they would have found God Forgiving, meaning: returning to them from what they hate to what they love, Merciful to them, in leaving their punishment for the sin from which they repented.

Mujahid said: He meant by that the Jew and the Muslim who took their case to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: They wronged themselves to His statement: and submit in full submission, he said: This is about the Jewish man and the Muslim man who took their case to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf.

The Almighty said: And We did not send any Messenger "of is redundant for emphasis except that he should be obeyed in what he commanded and prohibited by God's permission" with God's knowledge. It was said: with God's guidance "And if only, when they were wronging themselves, they had come to you" Abu Sadiq narrated on the authority of Ali who said: A Bedouin came to us three days after we had buried the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and threw himself on the grave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and threw some of its dirt on his head and said: I said, O Messenger of God, so we heard your words, and you understood from God so we understood from you. And among what God revealed to you was "And if only, when they were wronging themselves" the verse, and I wronged myself and came to you seeking forgiveness for me, and it was called from the grave that you have been forgiven. The meaning of "they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful" is accepting of their repentance, and they are two objects and nothing else.

Surat al-Nisa 4:63

Those are the ones whose hearts Allah knows, so turn away from them and admonish them and speak to them a far-reaching word within themselves.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: "And We did not send any messenger except to be obeyed" meaning that obedience to him was imposed on those to whom He sent him. And His statement "by God's permission" Mujahid said: meaning that no one is to be obeyed except by My permission, meaning that no one is to be obeyed except by those whom I have granted permission to do so, like His statement: "And God had fulfilled His promise to you when you were killing them by His permission" meaning by His command, His decree, His will, and His giving you authority over them. And His saying, And if they, when they wronged themselves, the verse, the Almighty guides the disobedient and guilty, if they commit a mistake or disobedience, to come to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and seek forgiveness from God and ask Him to seek forgiveness for them, for if they do that, God will accept their repentance, have mercy on them and forgive them. For this reason, He said, And they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful. A group of them, including Sheikh Abu Nasr bin Al-Sabbagh, mentioned in his book Al-Shamel the famous story of Al-Utbi, who said: I was sitting at the grave of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a Bedouin came and said: Peace be upon you, O Messenger of God, I heard God say, And if they, when they wronged themselves, had come to you and asked forgiveness of God and the Messenger had asked forgiveness for them, they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful. I have come to you seeking forgiveness for my sin and interceding with you to my Lord. Then he began to say:

Oh, the best of those whose bones were buried in the bottom, and whose fragrance made the bottom and the hills fragrant

I would sacrifice myself for the grave in which you reside, in which there is chastity, generosity and kindness.

Then the Bedouin left, and my eyes overcame me, and I saw the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a dream. He said, O Atbi, catch up with the Bedouin and give him the good report that God has forgiven him.

And His statement, But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves, is that God Almighty swears by His noble and holy self that no one will believe until the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, judges in all matters. Whatever he judges is the truth that must be obeyed inwardly and outwardly. For this reason, He said, Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort from what you have judged and will submit in [full, willing] submission, meaning that if they make you judge, they will obey you inwardly and will not find within themselves any discomfort from what you have judged, and they will submit to it inwardly and outwardly, and they will submit to it completely without opposition, opposition, or dispute, as stated in the hadith, By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, none of you will believe until his desires are subservient to what you have brought. Al-Bukhari said: Ali bin Abdullah bin Jaafar told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, who said: Al-Zubayr argued with a man regarding a piece of land in the Harrah, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Zubayr, irrigate your land, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Ansari said: O Messenger of God, if he is your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, changed color, and he said: O Zubayr, irrigate your land, then hold back the water until it flows back to the walls, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave Al-Zubayr his full right in the explicit ruling when the Ansari made him remember, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, had advised them to do something that was broad for them. Al-Zubayr said: I do not think that this verse was revealed except regarding that: But no, by your Lord, they can have no faith until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute Al-Ansari 4:10. This is how Al-Bukhari narrated it here, I mean in the Book of Interpretation of his Sahih from the hadith of Muammar, and in the Book of Drinking from the hadith of Ibn Jurayj and Muammar also, and in the Book of Peace from the hadith of Shu'ayb ibn Abi Hamza, all three of them from Al-Zuhri, from Urwah, so he mentioned it, and its form is the form of sending, and it is connected in meaning, and Imam Ahmad narrated it from this source and he stated the sending, so he said: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Shu'ayb told us from Al-Zuhri, Urwah ibn Al-Zubayr told me that Al-Zubayr was saying that he was arguing with a man from the Ansar who had witnessed Badr to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the streams of Al-Harrah, and they were both watering from it, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Al-Zubayr, Water, then send water to your neighbor. So the Ansari became angry and said: O Messenger of God, what if he is your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) changed color, then he said: O Zubayr, give water to the people, then hold back the water until it returns to the walls. The Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) granted Zubayr his due. Before that, the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) had given Zubayr an opinion in which he wanted to grant him and the Ansari more freedom. When the Ansari made the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) understand, the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) granted Zubayr his due right in the explicit ruling. Urwah said: Az-Zubayr said: By God, I do not think that this verse was revealed except for that: "But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission." This is how Imam Ahmad narrated it. It is disconnected between Urwah and his father Az-Zubayr, for he did not hear it from him. What is certain is that he heard it from his brother Abdullah, for Abu Muhammad Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way in his interpretation, and he said: Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, al-Layth and Yunus informed me on the authority of Ibn Shihab, that Urwah ibn Az-Zubayr told him that Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr narrated to him on the authority of Al-Zubayr bin Al-Awwam that he argued with a man from the Ansar who had witnessed Badr with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the stream of Al-Harrah, with which they were both watering the palm trees. The Ansari said: Let the water flow, but Al-Zubayr refused. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Water, O Al-Zubayr, then send water to your neighbor. The Ansari became angry and said: O Messenger of God, is he your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) changed color, then he said: O Zubayr, water your land, then hold back the water until it flows back to the walls. The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) gave Zubayr his due. Before that, the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) had advised Zubayr to give him an opinion in which he wanted to be more lenient for him and the Ansar. When the Ansari remembered the Messenger of God (peace be upon him), he gave Zubayr his due in the explicit ruling. Zubayr said: I think this verse is about that: "But no, by your Lord, they can have no faith until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission." This is how it was narrated by An-Nasa'i from the hadith of Ibn Wahb with this chain of transmission. Ahmad and the entire group narrated it from the hadith of Al-Layth with this chain of transmission. The Companions of At-Atraf included it in the Musnad of Abdullah ibn Az-Zubayr. Imam Ahmad also included it in the Musnad of Abdullah ibn Az-Zubayr. And God knows best. It is very strange that Al-Hakim Abu Abdullah Al-Naysaburi narrated this hadith through the nephew of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of his uncle, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Al-Zubayr, on the authority of Al-Zubayr, and he mentioned it, then he said: Its chain of transmission is authentic, and they did not include it. I do not know anyone who narrated this chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Zuhri with the mention of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr except his nephew, and his narration is weak. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ali Abu Duhaime told us, Ahmad bin Hazim told us, Al-Fadl bin Dukayn told us, Ibn Uyaynah told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Salamah, a man from the family of Abu Salamah, who said: Al-Zubayr disputed with a man before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of Al-Zubayr. The man said: He only ruled in his favor because he is his cousin, so the verse But no, by your Lord, they will not believe was revealed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Amr bin Uthman told us, Abu Haywah told us, Saeed bin Abdul Aziz told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, regarding His statement But no, by your Lord, they will not believe he said: It was revealed about Al-Zubayr bin Al-Awwam and Hatib bin Abi Balta'ah, they disputed over water, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled that the upper one should be watered and then the lower one. This is a mursal, but it contains the benefit of naming the Ansari.

Another very strange reason was mentioned - Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus bin Abdul A'la narrated to us, Ibn Wahb told us, and Abdullah bin Lahi'ah told me on the authority of Abu Al-Aswad, who said: Two men disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled between them. The one against whom the ruling was made said: Refer us to Umar bin Al-Khattab. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. They went to him. When they came to him, the man said: O Ibn Al-Khattab, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in my favor on this. He said: Refer us to Umar bin Al-Khattab. He returned us to you. He said: Is that so? He said: Yes. Umar said: Stay where you are until I come out to you and I will rule between you. So he went out to her, his sword in his hand, and struck the one who said: Return us to Umar, and killed him. The other turned his back and came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, Umar killed my companion, by God, and if I had not defeated him, he would have killed me. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I did not think that Umar would dare to kill a believer. So God revealed: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you judge, the verse. So the blood of that man was forfeited and Umar was acquitted of his murder. God did not like to make that lawful after that, so He revealed: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it in the same way on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah on the authority of Abu al-Aswad, and it is a strange, mursal report, and Ibn Lahi'ah is weak, and God knows best.

Another way - Al-Hafiz Abu Ishaq Ibrahim bin Abdul Rahman bin Ibrahim bin Duhaime said in his interpretation: Shu'ayb bin Shu'ayb narrated to us, Abu Al-Mughira narrated to us, 'Utbah bin Damrah narrated to us, my father narrated to me that two men disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of the one who was right against the one who was wrong. The one against whom the ruling was made said: I am not satisfied. His companion said: What do you want? He said: Let us go to Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq. So they went to him, and the one in whose favor the ruling was made said: We have disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in my favor. Abu Bakr said: You are upon what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled. But his companion refused to be satisfied. So he said: Let us go to `Umar bin Al-Khattab. The one in whose favor the ruling was made said: We have disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in my favor, but he refused to be satisfied. `Umar bin Al-Khattab asked him and he said the same. So `Umar entered his house and came out with the sword in his hand drawn, and he struck the head of the one who refused to be satisfied and killed him. Then the verse was revealed: But no, by your Lord, they will not believe.

Those are the ones whose hearts Allah knows, so turn away from them and admonish them and speak to them a far-reaching word within themselves.

Fath al-Qadir

64- "And We did not send any Messenger from the word except that he should be obeyed in what he commanded and prohibited by the permission of God" with His knowledge, and it was said: with His guidance "and if only, when they wronged themselves by abandoning your obedience and resorting to other than you, they had come to you seeking intercession from you, disavowing their crimes and disobeying you and asked forgiveness of God" for their sins and beseeching you until you stood up as an intercessor for them and asked forgiveness for them. And He only said "and the Messenger asked forgiveness for them" in the manner of turning away with the intention of glorifying the status of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, "they would have found God Oft-Returning, Most Merciful" meaning: Much repentant towards them and merciful towards them.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

64- The Almighty said: And We did not send any Messenger except that he should be obeyed by God's permission meaning: by God's command because obeying the Messenger is obligatory by God's command. Al-Zajjaj said: to be obeyed by God's permission because God has permitted it and commanded it. It was said: except that he should be obeyed is a complete and sufficient statement, by God's permission, meaning: by God's knowledge and judgment, meaning: the occurrence of His obedience is by God's permission, And if they had, when they wronged themselves by resorting to the tyrant, come to you and ask forgiveness of God and the Messenger had asked forgiveness for them, they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

64 "And We did not send any messenger except to be obeyed by God's permission" because of His permission to obey him and His command to those sent to obey him, and it is as if He argued with that that whoever was not satisfied with his rule, even if he showed Islam, was a disbeliever who deserved to be killed, and His statement is that sending the messenger was only to be obeyed, so whoever did not obey him and was not satisfied with his rule did not accept his message, and whoever was like that was a disbeliever who deserved to be killed. "And if only, when they had wronged themselves" by hypocrisy or resorting to the tyrant. "They had come to you repenting from that, and it is the report of that and when" is related to it. "Then they sought forgiveness from God" by repentance and sincerity. "And the Messenger sought forgiveness for them" and they apologized to you until you stood up as an intercessor for them, and the address was modified to magnify his status and to draw attention to the fact that it is the right of the messenger to accept the apology of the repentant, even if his crime was great, and to intercede for him, and it is his position to intercede for major sins. They would have found God Forgiving and Merciful because they knew that He was accepting of their repentance and was gracious to them with mercy. If found was interpreted as happened, then Forgiving would be a state and Merciful would be a substitute for it or a state of the pronoun in it.

But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort or doubt about what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission to your judgment without opposition.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: No, by your Lord! The six Imams narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr, who said: Al-Zubayr argued with a man from the Ansar about the streams of Al-Harra. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Irrigate, O Zubayr, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Ansari said: O Messenger of God, if he is your cousin? His face changed color and he said: Irrigate, O Zubayr, then hold back the water until it flows back to the wall, then let the water flow to your neighbor. He gave Al-Zubayr his due. He had advised them to do something that was broad for them. Al-Zubayr said: "I do not think that these verses were revealed except in that regard: 'No, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute.'"

Al-Tabarani included in Al-Kabeer and Al-Hamidi in his Musnad on the authority of Umm Salamah who said: Al-Zubayr disputed with a man before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of Al-Zubayr. The man said: He only ruled in his favor because he was his cousin. Then the verse was revealed: No, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you their judge.

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab regarding his statement, No, by your Lord, the verse. He said, "It was revealed about Al-Zubayr bin Al-Awwam and Hatib bin Abi Bal'atah. They had a dispute over water, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled that the upper one should be given water, then the lower one."

And Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Abu Al-Aswad, who said: Two men disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled between them. The one against whom he ruled said: Refer us to Umar ibn Al-Khattab. So they came to him and the man said: "The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in my favor." He said: Refer us to Umar. He said: Is that so? He said: Yes. Umar said: Stay where you are until I come out to you and I will judge between you. So he went out to them, his sword drawn, and he struck the one who said: Refer us to Umar, and killed him. Then God revealed the verse: No, by your Lord, they will not believe. It is a strange mursal in its chain of transmission, Ibn Lahi'ah, and it has a corroborating narration by Rahim in his interpretation, on the authority of Utbah ibn Damrah, on the authority of his father.

And Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi who said: When the verse was revealed: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except for a few of them. Thabit bin Qais bin Shammah and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God prescribed for us, 'Kill yourselves,' so we killed ourselves. Thabit said: By God, if God had prescribed for us, 'Kill yourselves,' we would have killed ourselves. Then God revealed: And if they had done what they were advised, it would have been better for them and a firmer position.

And the Almighty's saying: And whoever obeys God Al-Tabarani and Ibn Mardawayh narrated with an acceptable chain of transmission on the authority of Aisha who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, you are dearer to me than my own self, and you are dearer to me than my children. When I am in the house and remember you, I cannot wait until I come and look at you. When I remember my death and your death, I know that when you enter Paradise, you will be raised with the prophets, and when I enter Paradise, I fear that I will not see you. So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to anything until Gabriel revealed to him this verse: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger

Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Masruq who said: The companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Messenger of God, we should not leave you, for if you had come, you would have been raised above us and we would not have seen you. Then God revealed: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger, the verse:

And he narrated on the authority of Ikrimah, who said: He came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Prophet of God, we have a glimpse of you in this world and on the Day of Resurrection we will not see you, for you are in Paradise in the highest ranks. So God revealed this verse, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: You are with me in Paradise, God willing. And Ibn Jarir narrated something similar from the mursal of Saeed bin Jubayr, Masruq, Al-Rabi', Qatadah, and Al-Suddi.

Abu Ja'far said: By His saying, No, what He, the Most High, meant is that the matter is not as they claim: that they believe in what was revealed to you, but they refer to the tyrant for judgment, and turn away from you when they are called to you, O Muhammad. And He, the Most High, resumed the oath and said, And your Lord, O Muhammad, will not believe, meaning: they will not believe in Me and you and in what was revealed to you, until they make you judge in what disputes between them, meaning: until they make you a judge between them in what is mixed up between them of their affairs, so His judgment is confused for them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:65

But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission.

It is said: a tree is quarreling, and the people quarreled, if they disagreed in speech and matter, a quarrel and a fight.

Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort over what I have decreed, meaning: they will not find within themselves any distress over what I have decreed.

Rather, its meaning is: Then do not make their souls feel embarrassed by what you have decided, that is: do not sin by denying what you have decided, and doubting your obedience, and that what you have decided between them is true and it is not permissible for them to contradict it, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: In difficulty regarding what you have decided, he said: doubt.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Hakam told us, on the authority of Anbasa, on the authority of Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of al-Qasim ibn Abi Bazza, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: in difficulty regarding what you have decided, he said: doubt. Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, he said, Isa told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort from what You have decided, he said: a sin, and they will submit in full submission, he said: and they will submit to Your judgment and ruling, in obedience from them, and in acknowledgment of Your prophethood in submission.

The interpreters differed about who this verse refers to, and about whom it was revealed?

Some of them said: It was revealed about Al-Zubayr ibn Al-Awwam and his opponent from the Ansar, who disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about some matters.

The novel mentioned that:

Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Yunus and al-Layth ibn Sa'id told me, on the authority of Ibn Shihab, that Urwah ibn al-Zubayr told him, that Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr told him, on the authority of al-Zubayr ibn al-Awwam, that he argued with a man from the Ansar who had witnessed Badr with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, regarding a watercourse in al-Harrah that they were using to irrigate their palm trees. The Ansari said: Let the water flow! But he refused. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Irrigate, Zubayr, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Ansari became angry and said: O Messenger of God, is he your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, changed color and he said: Irrigate, Zubayr, then hold back the water until it returns to the walls, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave Al-Zubayr his full right - Abu Ja'far said: The correct word is (he gave full right). The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had previously advised Al-Zubayr to give him an opinion in which he wanted to show mercy for him and for the Ansari. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, made the Ansari feel sorry for him, he gave Al-Zubayr his full right in the explicit ruling. Al-Zubayr said: I do not think this verse was revealed except in that regard: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute, the verse.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ismail bin Ibrahim told us, on the authority of Abd al-Rahman bin Ishaq, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, he said: Al-Zubayr argued with a man from the Ansar regarding a stream of the lava fields, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Zubayr, drink, then leave the water to flow. The one from the Ansar from Banu Umayyah said: Be just, O Prophet of God, even if he is your cousin! The face of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, changed until he knew that what he had said had upset him, then he said: O Zubayr, block the water to the walls - or: to the ankles - then leave the water to flow. He said: Then the verse was revealed: But no, by your Lord, they can have no faith until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves.

Abdullah bin Umair Al-Razi told me, he said, Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr told us, he said, Sufyan told us, he said, Amr bin Dinar told us, on the authority of Salamah, a man from the descendants of Umm Salamah, on the authority of Umm Salamah: that Al-Zubayr brought a dispute before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in favor of Al-Zubayr. When the man ruled in favor of Al-Zubayr, the man said: Is he your cousin?! Then God revealed: "But no, by your Lord, they can have no [true] faith until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission."

Others said: Rather, this verse was revealed about the hypocrite and the Jew, whose characteristics God described in His statement: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer their case to Taghut.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: "But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission," he said: This is the Jewish man and the Muslim man who took their case to Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, his example.

Yaqub told me, he said, Ibn Ulayyah told us, on the authority of Dawud, on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, something similar, except that he said: to the soothsayer.

Abu Ja'far said: This statement - I mean the statement of the one who said that it refers to the two who resorted to the tyrant, whose status God described in His statement: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you and what was revealed before you? - is more correct, because His statement: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute is in the context of the story of those about whom God began the report with His statement: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you? - and there is no indication that their story is interrupted, so attaching some of it to some of it - unless there is an indication that it is interrupted - is more correct.

If someone thinks that in what was narrated from Al-Zubayr and Ibn Al-Zubayr of his story and the story of the Ansari in the Battle of Al-Harrah, and the statement of the one who said in their story: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute, was revealed, what indicates the disconnection of the ruling of this verse and its story from the story of the verses before it, then it is not impossible that the verse was revealed in the story of those who sought judgment from the tyrant, and that it contains an explanation of what Al-Zubayr and his companion Al-Ansari sought judgment over, since the verse is a clear indication. Since that is not impossible, it is more appropriate to attach the meaning of some of that to some, as long as the meanings of the speech are consistent in one context, unless there comes an indication of the disconnection of some of that from some, in which case it is changed from the meaning of what came before it.

As for his saying: and they submit, it is in the accusative case, in apposition to his saying: Then they do not find within themselves, and his saying: Then they do not find within themselves, is in the accusative case, in apposition to his saying: Until they make you judge of what they dispute among themselves.

It has five issues:

First: Mujahid and others said: What is meant by this verse is those previously mentioned who wanted to seek judgment from the tyrant and it was revealed about them. Al-Tabari said: His saying so do not is a response to what was previously mentioned, meaning that the matter is not as they claim that they believed in what was revealed to you. Then he resumed the oath by saying: And your Lord does not believe. And others said: He only presented no before the oath out of concern for the negation and to demonstrate its strength, then he repeated it after the oath to emphasize the concern for the negation. It would have been appropriate to drop the second no and keep more of the emphasis by presenting the first. It would have been appropriate to drop the first and keep the meaning of the negation and the meaning of the emphasis would have been lost.

The word shajar means to be different and mixed, and from this comes the word shajar because of the difference in its branches. The sticks of the litter are called shajar because some of them are intertwined with others. The poet said:

My soul is your ransom, the spears are sharp, and the people are in distress, ready to meet

Tarafa said:

They are the rulers, the masters of guidance, and the messengers of the people in the wilderness.

A group said: It was revealed about Al-Zubayr with Al-Ansari, and the dispute was over water being given by a tongue. So he, peace be upon him, said to Al-Zubayr:

Irrigate your land, then send water to your neighbor's land. The opponent said: I see that you are favoring your cousin. The face of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) changed color. He said to Az-Zubayr: Irrigate, then hold back the water until it reaches the walls. Then the verse was revealed: No, by your Lord, they will not believe. The hadith is authentic and authentic. It was narrated by Al-Bukhari on the authority of Ali bin Abdullah on the authority of Muhammad bin Ja'far on the authority of Muammar, and Muslim narrated it on the authority of Qutaybah, both on the authority of Az-Zuhri. The people of this opinion differed regarding the Ansari man. Some of them said: He is a man from the Ansari from the people of Badr. Makki and An-Nahhas said: He is Hatib bin Abi Balta'ah. Al-Tha'labi, Al-Wahidi and Al-Mahdawi said: He is Hatib. It was also said: Tha'laba bin Hatib. Others said, but the first opinion is correct because he is not specified or named. Likewise in Al-Bukhari and Muslim it is said that he is a man from the Ansari. Al-Tabari chose that the verse was revealed regarding the hypocrite and the Jew, as Mujahid said. Then it includes the story of Az-Zubayr. Ibn Al-Arabi said: This is correct, because everyone who accuses the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) of a ruling is a disbeliever, but the Ansari made a mistake. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, turned away from him and excused his mistake, knowing that his certainty was correct, and that it was his own fault and not for anyone after the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. And whoever is not satisfied with the ruling of the ruler and criticizes it and rejects it, it is an apostasy that must be repented. But if he criticizes the ruler himself and not the ruling, then he is to be punished and he is to be pardoned. This will be explained at the end of Surat Al-A'raf, God willing.

But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission.

Second - If the reason for the revelation of this verse is what we mentioned in the hadith, then its understanding is that he, peace be upon him, took the path of reconciliation with Al-Zubayr and his opponent, so he said: Irrigate, O Al-Zubayr, because of his proximity to the water, then send the water to your neighbor, meaning be lenient with your right and do not take it all in full, and hasten to send the water to your neighbor.

So he urged him to forgive and make things easy. When the Ansari heard this, he was not satisfied with that and became angry, because he did not want to hold the water at all. At that point, he uttered the unjust, destructive, and degrading word, saying, If he was your cousin, with the open hamza of an as a denial, meaning, Do you rule over him because he is your relative? At that point, the face of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, changed color with anger at him, and he ruled for Al-Zubayr to get his right without forgiving him. Accordingly, it cannot be said: How did he rule in a case of usurpation, when he said:

The judge does not rule while he is angry. So we say: Because he is infallible in the case of someone who makes a mistake in conveying the message and rulings, based on the evidence of reason indicating truthfulness in what he conveys from God Almighty, so he is not like other judges. In this hadith is guidance for the judge to reconcile between the opponents, even if the truth appears and Malik prevents him. Al-Shafi'i's statement differed concerning it, and this hadith is clear evidence of permissibility. If they reconcile, otherwise he takes his right, and the one who has the right takes it, and the ruling is established.

Third - The companions of Malik differed about the method of sending the upper water to the lower one. Ibn Habib said: The owner of the upper one puts all the water in his wall and irrigates with it, until when the water reaches from the bottom of the wall to the ankles of the one standing in it, he closes the water inlet and diverts the excess water over the ankles to the one next to him, and he does the same with it until the flood reaches the farthest part of the wall. This is how Mutraf and Ibn al-Majshun explained it to me, and Ibn Wahb said the same. Ibn al-Qasim said: If the water reaches the ankles in the wall, he sends it all to the one below it and does not hold anything back in his wall. Ibn Habib said: The statement of Mutraf and Ibn al-Majshun is more beloved to me and they are more knowledgeable about that because Medina is their home and it was where the case was and where the work took place.

Fourth: Malik narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Abi Bakr that he was informed:

The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said about the flood of Mahzur and Mudhinib: Hold it up to the ankles, then let the higher one flow over the lower one. Abu Omar said: I do not know of this hadith being connected to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, from any source, and the most authentic of its chains of transmission is what Muhammad ibn Ishaq mentioned, on the authority of Abu Malik ibn Tha'labah, on the authority of his father:

The people of Mahzur came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled that if the water reached the ankles, the upper part should not be held back. Abd al-Razzaq mentioned, "On the authority of Abu Hazim al-Qurtubi, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, on the authority of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, he ruled regarding the Mahzur flood that it should be held back on every wall until it reached the ankles, then it should be released." And other floods likewise. Abu Bakr al-Bazzar was asked about the hadith of this chapter, and he said: I do not remember a hadith from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that is authentic. Ibn Umar said: In this meaning, even if it is not found in this wording, there is a hadith that is authentic and agreed upon as being authentic. It was narrated by Ibn Wahb on the authority of al-Layth ibn Sa'd and Yunus ibn Yazid, both on the authority of Ibn Shihab, that Urwah al-Zubayr told him that Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr told him on the authority of al-Zubayr that he argued with a man from the Ansar who had witnessed Badr with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, in the streams of al-Harrah, and they were both watering the palm trees with it. The Ansari said: Release the water, but he refused, so they argued before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he mentioned the hadith. Ibn Umar said, and his saying in the hadith: Let it be released. And in the other hadith: If the water reached the ankles, it should not be held back. The highest: "It bears witness to the statement of Ibn al-Qasim. From the point of view, if the highest had only sent what was more than the ankles, that water would not have been cut off in the shortest period of time and would not have ended where it would have ended if everyone had been sent. And in sending everyone after the highest had taken what reached the ankles, there is more general benefit and more advantage in what people have been made partners in. So the statement of Ibn al-Qasim is more appropriate in any case, if its origin was not the ownership of the lower one exclusively for him, for what was deserved by action, whether by correct ownership or by ancient entitlement and proven ownership, then each one has his right according to what was in his hand of that and according to the origin of his question, and success is from God."

Fifth - The Almighty said: Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort from what you have decided. That is, any distress or doubt. From this, the intertwined tree was called haraj and harajah and its plural is haraj. Ad-Dahhak said: That is, a sin in their denial of what you have decided. And they submit in submission that is, they obey your command in the judgment. Az-Zajaj said: In submission is a confirmed source. So if you say: I struck a strike, it is as if you said I have no doubt about it. Likewise, And they submit in submission that is, they submit to your judgment in submission, without any doubt entering into their souls.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty says: And We did not send any messenger except to be obeyed meaning that obedience to him was imposed on those to whom He sent him. And His statement by God's permission Mujahid said: meaning that no one is to be obeyed except by My permission, meaning that no one is to be obeyed except by those whom I have granted permission to do so, like His statement: And God had fulfilled His promise to you when you were killing them by His permission meaning by His command, His decree, His will, and His giving you authority over them. And His saying, And if they, when they wronged themselves, the verse, the Almighty guides the disobedient and guilty, if they commit a mistake or disobedience, to come to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and seek forgiveness from God and ask Him to seek forgiveness for them, for if they do that, God will accept their repentance, have mercy on them and forgive them. For this reason, He said, And they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful. A group of them, including Sheikh Abu Nasr bin Al-Sabbagh, mentioned in his book Al-Shamel the famous story of Al-Utbi, who said: I was sitting at the grave of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and a Bedouin came and said: Peace be upon you, O Messenger of God, I heard God say, And if they, when they wronged themselves, had come to you and asked forgiveness of God and the Messenger had asked forgiveness for them, they would have found God Forgiving and Merciful. I have come to you seeking forgiveness for my sin and interceding with you to my Lord. Then he began to say:

Oh, the best of those whose bones were buried in the bottom, and whose fragrance made the bottom and the hills fragrant

I would sacrifice myself for the grave in which you reside, in which there is chastity, generosity and kindness.

Then the Bedouin left, and my eyes overcame me, and I saw the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in a dream. He said, O Atbi, catch up with the Bedouin and give him the good report that God has forgiven him.

And His statement, But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves, is that God Almighty swears by His noble and holy self that no one will believe until the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, judges in all matters. Whatever he judges is the truth that must be obeyed inwardly and outwardly. For this reason, He said, Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort from what you have judged and will submit in [full, willing] submission, meaning that if they make you judge, they will obey you inwardly and will not find within themselves any discomfort from what you have judged, and they will submit to it inwardly and outwardly, and they will submit to it completely without opposition, opposition, or dispute, as stated in the hadith, By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, none of you will believe until his desires are subservient to what you have brought. Al-Bukhari said: Ali bin Abdullah told us, Muhammad bin Jaafar told us, Muammar told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Urwah, who said: Al-Zubayr argued with a man regarding a piece of land in the Harrah, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Zubayr, irrigate your land, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Ansari said: O Messenger of God, if he is your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, changed color, and he said: O Zubayr, irrigate your land, then hold back the water until it flows back to the walls, then let the water flow to your neighbor. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, gave Al-Zubayr his full right in the explicit ruling when the Ansari made him remember, and he, may God bless him and grant him peace, had advised them to do something that was broad for them. Al-Zubayr said: I do not think that this verse was revealed except regarding that: But no, by your Lord, they can have no faith until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute Al-Ansari 4:10. This is how Al-Bukhari narrated it here, I mean in the Book of Interpretation of his Sahih from the hadith of Muammar, and in the Book of Drinking from the hadith of Ibn Jurayj and Muammar also, and in the Book of Peace from the hadith of Shu'ayb ibn Abi Hamza, all three of them from Al-Zuhri, from Urwah, so he mentioned it, and its form is the form of sending, and it is connected in meaning, and Imam Ahmad narrated it from this source and he stated the sending, so he said: Abu Al-Yaman told us, Shu'ayb told us from Al-Zuhri, Urwah ibn Al-Zubayr told me that Al-Zubayr was saying that he was arguing with a man from the Ansar who had witnessed Badr to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the streams of Al-Harrah, and they were both watering from it, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Al-Zubayr, Water, then send water to your neighbor. So the Ansari became angry and said: O Messenger of God, what if he is your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) changed color, then he said: O Zubayr, give water to the people, then hold back the water until it returns to the walls. The Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) granted Zubayr his due. Before that, the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) had given Zubayr an opinion in which he wanted to grant him and the Ansari more freedom. When the Ansari made the Messenger of God (may God bless him and grant him peace) understand, the Prophet (may God bless him and grant him peace) granted Zubayr his due right in the explicit ruling. Urwah said: Az-Zubayr said: By God, I do not think that this verse was revealed except for that: "But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission." This is how Imam Ahmad narrated it. It is disconnected between Urwah and his father Az-Zubayr, for he did not hear it from him. What is certain is that he heard it from his brother Abdullah, for Abu Muhammad Abd al-Rahman ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in this way in his interpretation, and he said: Yunus ibn Abd al-A'la told us, Ibn Wahb told us, al-Layth and Yunus informed me on the authority of Ibn Shihab, that Urwah ibn Az-Zubayr told him that Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr narrated to him on the authority of Al-Zubayr bin Al-Awwam that he argued with a man from the Ansar who had witnessed Badr with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about the stream of Al-Harrah, with which they were both watering the palm trees. The Ansari said: Let the water flow, but Al-Zubayr refused. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Water, O Al-Zubayr, then send water to your neighbor. The Ansari became angry and said: O Messenger of God, is he your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) changed color, then he said: O Zubayr, water your land, then hold back the water until it flows back to the walls. The Messenger of God (peace be upon him) gave Zubayr his due. Before that, the Messenger of God (peace be upon him) had advised Zubayr to give him an opinion in which he wanted to be more lenient for him and the Ansar. When the Ansari remembered the Messenger of God (peace be upon him), he gave Zubayr his due in the explicit ruling. Zubayr said: I think this verse is about that: "But no, by your Lord, they can have no faith until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission." This is how it was narrated by An-Nasa'i from the hadith of Ibn Wahb with this chain of transmission. Ahmad and the entire group narrated it from the hadith of Al-Layth with this chain of transmission. The Companions of At-Atraf included it in the Musnad of Abdullah ibn Az-Zubayr. Imam Ahmad also included it in the Musnad of Abdullah ibn Az-Zubayr. And God knows best. It is very strange that Al-Hakim Abu Abdullah Al-Naysaburi narrated this hadith through the nephew of Ibn Shihab, on the authority of his uncle, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Abdullah ibn Al-Zubayr, on the authority of Al-Zubayr, and he mentioned it, then he said: Its chain of transmission is authentic, and they did not include it. I do not know anyone who narrated this chain of transmission on the authority of Al-Zuhri with the mention of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr except his nephew, and his narration is weak. Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Muhammad bin Ali Abu Duhaime told us, Ahmad bin Hazim told us, Al-Fadl bin Dukayn told us, Ibn Uyaynah told us on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Salamah, a man from the family of Abu Salamah, who said: Al-Zubayr disputed with a man before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of Al-Zubayr. The man said: He only ruled in his favor because he is his cousin, so the verse But no, by your Lord, they will not believe was revealed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Amr bin Uthman told us, Abu Haywah told us, Saeed bin Abdul Aziz told us, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, on the authority of Saeed bin Al-Musayyab, regarding His statement But no, by your Lord, they will not believe he said: It was revealed about Al-Zubayr bin Al-Awwam and Hatib bin Abi Balta'ah, they disputed over water, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled that the upper one should be watered and then the lower one. This is a mursal, but it contains the benefit of naming the Ansari.

But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission.

Another very strange reason was mentioned - Ibn Abi Hatim said: Yunus bin Abdul A'la narrated to us, Ibn Wahb told us, and Abdullah bin Lahi'ah told me on the authority of Abu Al-Aswad, who said: Two men disputed before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled between them. The one against whom the ruling was made said: Refer us to Umar bin Al-Khattab. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. They went to him. When they came to him, the man said: O Ibn Al-Khattab, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled in my favor on this. He said: Refer us to Umar bin Al-Khattab. He returned us to you. He said: Is that so? He said: Yes. Umar said: Stay where you are until I come out to you and I will rule between you. So he went out to her, his sword in his hand, and struck the one who said: Return us to Umar, and killed him. The other turned his back and came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, Umar killed my companion, by God, and if I had not defeated him, he would have killed me. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: I did not think that Umar would dare to kill a believer. So God revealed: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you judge, the verse. So the blood of that man was forfeited and Umar was acquitted of his murder. God did not like to make that lawful after that, so He revealed: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Mardawayh narrated it in the same way on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah on the authority of Abu al-Aswad, and it is a strange, mursal report, and Ibn Lahi'ah is weak, and God knows best.

Another way - Al-Hafiz Abu Ishaq Ibrahim bin Abdul Rahman bin Ibrahim bin Duhaime said in his interpretation: Shu'ayb bin Shu'ayb narrated to us, Abu Al-Mughira narrated to us, 'Utbah bin Damrah narrated to us, my father narrated to me that two men disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in favor of the one who was right against the one who was wrong. The one against whom the ruling was made said: I am not satisfied. His companion said: What do you want? He said: Let us go to Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq. So they went to him, and the one in whose favor the ruling was made said: We have disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in my favor. Abu Bakr said: You are upon what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, ruled. But his companion refused to be satisfied. So he said: Let us go to `Umar bin Al-Khattab. The one in whose favor the ruling was made said: We have disputed before the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he ruled in my favor, but he refused to be satisfied. `Umar bin Al-Khattab asked him and he said the same. So `Umar entered his house and came out with the sword in his hand drawn, and he struck the head of the one who refused to be satisfied and killed him. Then the verse was revealed: But no, by your Lord, they will not believe.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 65- No, by your Lord. Ibn Jarir said: His saying no is a response to what was mentioned previously, meaning that the matter is not as they claim that they believed in what was revealed to you and what was revealed before you, then he resumed the oath by saying and your Lord, they do not believe. It was said that he presented no before the oath out of concern for the negation and to show its strength, then he repeated it after the oath for emphasis. It was said that no is added to emphasise the meaning of the oath, not to emphasise the meaning of the negation. The meaning is: By your Lord, they do not believe, as in his saying: No, I swear by the positions of the stars. "Until they make you judge" meaning they make you a judge between them in all their affairs, and they do not judge anyone other than you. It was said that its meaning is that they seek judgment from you, and there is no resort to that "in what has occurred between them" meaning that it has differed between them and become mixed up, and from this comes the tree because of the difference in its branches, and from this comes the saying of Tarafa:

They are the rulers, the masters of guidance, and the people's guides in the matter of trees.

That is, the different, and from it the spears quarreled: that is, their disagreement. Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort from what you have judged. It was said: It is conjoined with an implied meaning to which the speech is directed: that is, then you judge between them, then they will not find. And difficulty: tightness, and it was said: doubt, and from it the intertwined tree was called: difficulty and difficulty, and its plural is difficulty, and it was said: difficulty: sin, that is, they will not find within themselves any sin by denying what you have judged. And they submit in submission that is: they obey your command and judgment in submission, and they do not disobey it in anything. Al-Zajjaj said: Submission is a confirmed source: that is, and they submit to your judgment in submission, and they do not enter into doubt or suspicion in it. It appears that this includes every individual in every ruling, as is supported by his saying,

And We did not send any Messenger except to be obeyed by God's permission. As for after his death, then the ruling of the Book and the Sunnah, and the ruling of the ruler with what is in them of imams and judges if he does not rule by mere opinion with the presence of evidence in the Book and the Sunnah or in one of them, and he understands the arguments of the Book and the Sunnah that come to him, by being knowledgeable of the Arabic language and what is related to it of grammar, morphology, meanings and rhetoric, knowing what he needs of the science of principles, perceptive of the pure Sunnah, distinguishing between the authentic and what is related to it, and the weak and what is related to it, fair, not biased towards any school of thought or sect, pious, not unfair or biased in his ruling, so whoever is like this is standing in the position of prophethood, translating from it and ruling by its rulings. This severe threat is one that makes the skin shudder and the heart tremble. First, the Almighty swore by Himself, confirming this oath with the letter of negation that they will not believe. He denied them faith, which is the capital of the righteous servants of God, until they achieve a goal, which is the arbitration of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Then the Almighty was not satisfied with that until He said, Then they will not find within themselves any discomfort from what I have judged. He added to the arbitration another matter, which is the absence of discomfort: that is, discomfort in their hearts. Mere arbitration and submission are not sufficient until it comes from the depths of the heart, with satisfaction, reassurance, a heart that is at peace, and a good soul. Then He was not satisfied with all of that, but rather He added to it His saying, and submit, meaning: they submit and obey outwardly and inwardly. Then He was not satisfied with that, but rather He added to it the confirmed source, saying, in submission. So faith is not established for a servant until this arbitration occurs from him and he does not find any discomfort in his heart with what has been judged upon him and submits to the judgment of God and His law, a submission that is not mixed with rejection or distortion of opposition.

Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Tabarani narrated with a chain of transmission that Al-Suyuti said is authentic on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Barzah Al-Aslami was a soothsayer who used to judge between the Jews in matters over which they had a dispute. Some Muslims came to him, so God revealed, Have you not seen those who claim? Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority that Al-Jalas bin As-Samit, before his repentance, along with Mu'aqib bin Qushayr and Rafi' bin Zayd, used to claim to be Muslims. Some men from their people, the Muslims, called them to the Messenger of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) in a dispute that had occurred between them. They called them to the soothsayers, the rulers of the Jahiliyyah, so the aforementioned verse was revealed. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding His statement, They want to refer their disputes to Taghut, that Taghut was a man from the Jews called Ka'b bin Al-Ashraf. Whenever they were called to what God had revealed and to the Messenger to judge between them, they would say, Rather, we will refer your disputes to Ka'b. So the verse was revealed. Ibn Jarir narrated something similar on the authority of Ad-Dahhak. Al-Bukhari, Muslim, the Sunan scholars, and others narrated on the authority of Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr: "Az-Zubayr argued with a man from the Ansari who had witnessed Badr with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, about a spring of water from the lava field, and they were both watering the palm trees with it. The Ansari said: Let the water flow freely."

But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission.

He passed by, but he refused, so the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: "O Zubayr, water your land, then let the water flow to your neighbor." The Ansari became angry and said: "O Messenger of God, what if he is your cousin?" The face of the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) changed color, and he said: "O Zubayr, water your land, then hold back the water until it returns to the walls, then let the water flow to your neighbor." The Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) granted Zubayr his due. Before that, the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) had advised Zubayr to do something in which he wanted to make things easier for him and the Ansari, but when the Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) made the Ansari angry, Al-Zubayr was given his right in the explicit ruling, so Al-Zubayr said: I do not think that this verse was revealed except in that regard: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute. Ibn Abi Hatim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated on the authority of Ibn Lahi'ah on the authority of Al-Aswad: The reason for the revelation of the verse was that two men disputed before the Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him), and he ruled between them. The one against whom the ruling was made said: Return us to Umar, so he returned them, and Umar killed the one who said: Return us, and the verse was revealed, so the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) declared the blood of the one killed to be null and void. Al-Hakim Al-Tirmidhi narrated it in Nawadir Al-Usul on the authority of Makhul, and he mentioned something similar, and he explained that the one whom Umar killed was a hypocrite, and they are both mursal, and the story is strange, and Ibn Lahi'ah is weak.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

65- The Almighty said: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge, the verse.

Abdul Wahid Al-Malhi told us, I told Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Nuaimi, I told Muhammad bin Yusuf, I told Muhammad bin Ismail, I told Abu Al-Yaman, I told Shuaib, on the authority of Al-Zuhri, I told Urwah bin

Al-Zubayr: "That Al-Zubayr, may God be pleased with him, used to narrate that he had a dispute with a man from the Ansari who had witnessed Badr before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, over a stream from the lava field that they were both watering. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to Al-Zubayr: Water, O Al-Zubayr, then send for your neighbor. The Ansari became angry and then said: O Messenger of God, what if he is your cousin? The face of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, changed color, then he said to Al-Zubayr: Water, then hold back the water until it reaches the walls. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, then granted Al-Zubayr his due. Before that, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had advised Al-Zubayr with an opinion that he intended to provide for him and the Ansari. When the Ansari made the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, remember that, he granted Al-Zubayr his due in an explicit ruling." Urwa said: Al-Zubayr said: By God, I do not think that this verse was revealed except for that: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves Al-An'am 2:17.

It was narrated that the Ansari who argued with Al-Zubayr was named Hatib bin Abi Balta'ah. When they left, he passed by Al-Miqdad and said: To whom is the judgment due? The Ansari said: He ruled in favor of his cousin. He twisted his jaw. A Jew who was with Al-Miqdad noticed him and said: "May God curse these people. They testify that he is the Messenger of God, then they accuse him of a judgment that he decides between them. By God, we committed a sin once during the life of Moses, peace be upon him. Moses called for repentance from it, and he said: "Kill yourselves." So we did, and our dead reached seventy thousand in obedience to our Lord until He was pleased with us. Thabit bin Qais bin Shammas said: By God, God knows that I am truthful, and if Muhammad had ordered me to kill myself, I would have done so. Then God revealed concerning Hatib bin Abi Balta'ah: But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you judge.

Mujahed and Al-Sha'bi said: It was revealed about Bishr the hypocrite and the Jew who brought their dispute to Umar, may God be pleased with him.

The Almighty said: So do not meaning: the matter is not as they claim, that they are believers, but they are not satisfied with your judgment. Then he resumed the oath. And your Lord does not believe. It is possible that no in his statement so do not is a connection, as in his statement so do not swear, until they make you a judge: meaning they make you a judge, in what has occurred between them, meaning: their affairs have differed and become mixed up and his judgment has become confusing to them. From this comes the word tree because its branches intertwine with each other. Then they do not find within themselves any discomfort, Mujahid said: doubt, and others said: tightness, from what you have judged, Ad-Dahhak said: sin, meaning: they sin by denying what you have judged, and submit in full submission, meaning: and they obey your command in obedience.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

65 "No, by your Lord meaning by your Lord, and no is added to emphasize the oath, not to show off, no in His statement, they will not believe because it is also added to affirm, like the Most High's statement, I swear by this city. until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute" concerning that which has been mixed up between them, and from that is the tree, because its branches are intertwined. "Then they will not find within themselves discomfort over what you have judged" distress over what you have judged, or over your judgment, or doubt because of it, for doubt is distress over its matter. "And they submit in [full, willing] submission" and obey you in their outward and inward submission.

Surat al-Nisa 4:66

And if We had prescribed for them, "Kill yourselves" or "Leave your homes," they would not have done it, except for a few of them. And if they had done what they were advised, it would have been better for them and a firmer position.

Surat al-Nisa 4:66

And if We had prescribed for them, Kill yourselves or Leave your homes, they would not have done it, except for a few of them. And if they had done what they were advised, it would have been better for them and a firmer position.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And if We had decreed upon them explanatory Kill yourselves or leave your homes as We decreed upon the Children of Israel they would not have done it meaning what was decreed upon them except a few of them in the nominative case as a substitute and in the accusative case as an exception and if they had done what they were advised of obeying the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace it would have been better for them and a firmer confirmation in fulfillment of their faith

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' and if We had imposed on these people who claim to believe in what was revealed to you, who resort to the tyrant, that they kill themselves and We commanded them to do so, or that they should leave their homes, emigrating from them to another home other than it, they would not have done it, meaning: they would not have killed themselves with their own hands, nor would they have emigrated from their homes, leaving them for God and His Messenger, in obedience to God and His Messenger, except a few of them.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: And if We had decreed upon them, 'Kill yourselves,' meaning Jews - or a word similar to it - and the Arabs, as the companions of Moses, peace be upon him, were commanded.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And if We had decreed upon them, 'Kill yourselves' or 'Leave your homes,' as the companions of Moses were commanded to kill each other with daggers, only a few of them would have done it. Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, he said, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: If We had decreed upon them, 'Kill yourselves' or 'Leave your homes,' only a few of them would have done it. Thabit ibn Qays ibn Shammās and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God decreed upon us, 'Kill yourselves,' so we killed ourselves! Thabit said: By God, if He had decreed upon us, 'Kill yourselves,' we would have killed ourselves! God revealed concerning this: And if they had done what they were instructed to do, it would have been better for them and a firmer position.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abu Zuhair told us, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Ishaq al-Sabi'i, he said: When the verse was revealed: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except for a few of them, a man said: If we had been ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who has spared us! When that reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said: Among my nation are men in whose hearts faith is more firmly established than firm mountains.

The Arab scholars differed about the reason for the nominative case in his saying: Except a few of them.

Some of the grammarians of Basra claimed that he raised little because he made it a substitute for the implied nouns in his saying: what they did, because the action is theirs.

Some grammarians of Kufa said: It was raised with the intention of repetition, as if its meaning is: they did not do it, only a few of them did it, as Amr ibn Ma'dikarib said:

Every brother who leaves his brother, by your father's life, except Al-Farqadhan

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of the sayings on this matter is to say: He raised the little in the meaning indicated by his saying: They did it only a few of them. That is because the meaning of the statement is: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves' or 'Leave your homes,' only a few of them would have done it. So it was said: They did it, as a report on those who were mentioned previously in his saying: Have you not seen those who claim that they have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? Then he excluded the little, raising what we mentioned, since the action was negated from it.

In the copies of the Sham'an, it is: They did it only a few of them. If it is read in this way, there is no blame on the reader in its parsing, because it is known in the speech of the Arabs, since the verb was occupied with what it contained as a metaphor for those who had been mentioned, then a few of them were excluded.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, God, the Most High, means: If these hypocrites who claim that they believe in what was revealed to you, but they refer to the tyrant for judgment and turn away from you, did what they are advised to do, meaning: what they are reminded of regarding obedience to God and adherence to His command, it would be better for them, in their immediate worldly life and their later afterlife, and more steadfast, and more stable for them in their affairs and more upright for them in them. This is because the hypocrite works with doubt, so his work is in vain, and his effort is wasted and becomes in vain, and because of his doubt he works with weakness and weakness. If he worked with insight, he would gain a reward for his work, and it would be a store for him with God, and he would be stronger for the work that he does, and his soul would be more steadfast, due to his belief in God's promise based on his obedience to Him and the work that he does. Therefore, someone said: The meaning of His statement: and more steadfast is confirmation, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: It would have been better for them and a stronger confirmation, he said: confirmation.

Because if he is a believer, his soul will be more firmly established, and his resolve in it will be more correct. It is similar to the words of God Almighty: And the parable of those who spend their wealth seeking the pleasure of God and to strengthen themselves (al-Baqarah 2:265).

We have explained this in its proper place, and it is sufficient to repeat it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The reason for its revelation is what was narrated that Thabit bin Qais bin Shammās boasted to a Jew, and the Jew said: By God, it was written for us to kill ourselves, so we killed, and the number of those killed reached seventy thousand. Thabit said: By God, if it was written for us to kill ourselves, we would have done so. And Ishaq al-Sabi'i said:

When the verse, And if We had decreed for them was revealed, a man said: If we were commanded, we would have done it. Praise be to God who has spared us. This reached the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Among my nation are men in whose hearts faith is firmer than the firm mountains. Ibn Wahb said: Malik said: The one who said that was Abu Bakr al-Siddiq, may God be pleased with him. And thus Makki mentioned that it was Abu Bakr, and al-Naqqash mentioned that it was Umar ibn al-Khattab, may God be pleased with him. It was mentioned on the authority of Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him, that he said: If this were decreed for us, I would have started with myself and my family. And Abu al-Layth al-Samarqandi mentioned:

Among those who said this were Ammar ibn Yasir, Ibn Masoud, and Thabit ibn Qays. They said: If God had commanded us to kill ourselves or leave our homes, we would have done so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Faith is more firmly established in the hearts of men than the firm mountains. If is a particle that indicates the impossibility of something because something else is impossible. So God, the Exalted, informed us that He did not prescribe this upon us out of kindness to us, lest our disobedience be revealed. How many things have we fallen short of, despite their lightness? How much more so with this matter, despite its heaviness! But by God, the emigrants left their homes empty and went out seeking a pleasant life. They did not do it, meaning killing and leaving, except a few of them. "A few" is a substitute for and, and the meaning is that no one did it except a few. The people of Kufa say: It is on repetition, what they did, what they did, except a few of them, and Abdullah bin Aamer and Isa bin Omar read except a few as an exception, and likewise it is in the copies of the people of Ash-Sham, the rest, with the nominative case, and the nominative case is better according to all grammarians. It was said: It is erected on the implication of a verb, the estimation of which is except that it is a few of them, and the nominative case became better because the word is more deserving of the meaning, and it also includes the meaning, and among the few were Abu Bakr, Omar, and Thabit bin Qais, as we mentioned, and Al-Hasan and Muqatil added Ammar and Ibn Masoud, and we mentioned them, And if they had done what they were advised, it would have been better for them, meaning in this world and the hereafter, and a firmer establishment, meaning on the truth.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about most people that if they were ordered to do what they are committing of prohibitions, they would not do it, because their bad natures are created to disobey the command, and this is from His knowledge, the Blessed and Exalted, of what was or was not, so how would it be? For this reason, the Almighty said: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told me, Abu Zuhair told us on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Subai'i, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it: Ja'far ibn Munir told us, Ruh told us, Hisham told us on the authority of Al-Hasan on the authority of Al-A'mash, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. "Kill yourselves" is the verse. Some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If our Lord had done so, we would have done so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was informed and said: Faith is more firmly established in the hearts of its people than the firm mountains.

And if We had prescribed for them, "Kill yourselves" or "Leave your homes," they would not have done it, except for a few of them. And if they had done what they were advised, it would have been better for them and a firmer position.

Al-Suddi said: Thabit bin Qais bin Shammās and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God has decreed killing upon us, so we killed ourselves. Thabit said: By God, if He had decreed upon us Kill yourselves, we would have done so. Then God revealed this verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: My father told us, Mahmud ibn Ghailan told us, Bishr ibn al-Sarri told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit told us on the authority of his uncle 'Amir ibn 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: When the verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except a few of them, was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If it had been revealed, Ibn Umm 'Abd would have been among them. My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Ismail ibn 'Ayyash told us on the authority of Safwan ibn 'Amr, on the authority of Shuraih ibn 'Ubayd, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pointed with his hand to 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah and said: If God had prescribed that, this would have been among those few, meaning Ibn Rawahah. That is why God, the Most High, said: And if they had done what they were instructed to do, meaning if they had done what they were commanded to do and left what they were forbidden, it would have been better for them, meaning than disobeying the command and committing the prohibition. And more firmly established, Al-Suddi said: meaning, more firmly believed. And then We would have given them from Us, meaning from Us, a great reward, meaning Paradise, and We would have guided them to a straight path, meaning in this world and the Hereafter. Then the Almighty said: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs, and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." Whoever does what God has commanded him to do and leaves what God and His Messenger have forbidden him to do, God the Almighty will make him dwell in the abode of His honor and make him a companion of the prophets, then of those who come after them in rank, who are the truthful ones, then the martyrs and the righteous whose inner and outer selves are good, then God the Almighty praised them and said: And excellent are those as companions. Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Hawshab told us, Ibrahim ibn Saad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: There is no prophet who falls ill but he is given the choice between this world and the Hereafter. And during the illness in which he died, he had a severe hoarseness, so I heard him say: With those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the truthful ones, the martyrs and the righteous. So I knew that he was given the choice. Muslim narrated it in the same way from the hadith of Shu'bah, on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim. This is the meaning of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in the other hadith: O God, the highest companion, three times, then he passed away, may the best prayers and peace be upon him.

Mention the reason for the revelation of this noble verse

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sad. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O so-and-so, why do I see you sad? He said: O Prophet of God, I have thought about something. He said: What is it? He said: We come to you in the morning and in the evening, looking at your face and sitting with you, and tomorrow you will be raised up with the prophets, but we will not be able to reach you. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him with anything. Then Gabriel came to him with this verse: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with the prophets upon whom God has bestowed favor Al-Baqarah 2:13. So he sent the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and gave him good tidings. This hadith was narrated in a mural form on the authority of Masruq, Ikrimah, Amir al-Sha'bi, Qatadah, and al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and it is one of the best in chain of transmission. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger the verse, and he said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We know that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, has a superiority over those who believe in him in the degrees of Paradise from those who follow him and believe in him, and how will they see each other when they gather in Paradise? Then God revealed this verse, and he said: meaning the Messenger of God, "The most high will descend to those who are below them, and they will gather in gardens and remember what God has bestowed upon them and praise Him, and the people of degrees will descend to them and they will strive to do for them what they desire and what they ask for, so they will be in a garden, rejoicing and enjoying it." It was narrated with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet from another source, and Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahim bin Muhammad bin Muslim told us, Ismail bin Ahmad bin Asid told us, Abdullah bin Imran told us, Fadil bin Ayyad told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of al-Aswad, on the authority of Aisha, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, you are more beloved to me than myself, and more beloved to me than my family, and more beloved to me than my children, and when I am in the house and I remember you, I cannot wait until I come to you and look at you, and when I remember my death and your death, I know that if you enter Paradise, you will be raised with the Prophets, and if you enter Paradise, I fear that I will not see you, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him. And he remained silent until the verse was revealed to him: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." And thus, Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Maqdisi narrated it in his book on the description of Paradise, on the authority of Al-Tabarani, on the authority of Ahmad bin Amr bin Muslim Al-Khalal, on the authority of Abdullah bin Imran Al-Abidi, on his authority. Then he said: I do not see any harm in its chain of transmission, and God knows best. Ibn Mardawayh also said: Sulayman bin Ahmad told us, Al-Abbas bin Al-Fadl Al-Asfati told us, Abu Bakr bin Thabit bin Abbas Al-Masry told us, Khalid bin Abdullah told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Amir Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That a man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I love you so much that I even mention you in the house and it is difficult for me, and I would like to be with you in the same degree. But the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him at all, so God, the Almighty, revealed this verse. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Ibn Hamid on the authority of Jarir on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, with no chain of transmission. It was confirmed in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of HaqI ibn Ziyad on the authority of Al-Awza'i on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Katheer on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd Al-Rahman on the authority of Rabi'ah ibn Ka'b Al-Aslami that he said: I used to spend the night with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I would bring him his ablution water and what he needed, and he said to me, Ask. So I said, O Messenger of God, I ask you to be my companion in Paradise. He said, Or something else? I said, That is it. He said, Then help me with yourself by prostrating frequently.

Imam Ahmad said: Yahya ibn Ishaq told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of Isa ibn Talhah, on the authority of Amr ibn Murrah al-Juhani, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God, and I prayed the five daily prayers, and I paid the zakat on my wealth, and I fasted the month of Ramadan. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever dies upon that will be with the prophets, the truthful ones, and the martyrs on the Day of Resurrection, and so on - and he raised his two fingers - so long as he does not disobey his parents. Ahmad alone transmitted this. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu Saeed, the freed slave of Abu Hashim, told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Zaban bin Fa'id, on the authority of Sahl bin Mu'adh bin Anas, on the authority of his father, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever recites a thousand verses in the way of God will be recorded on the Day of Resurrection with the prophets, the truthful, and the righteous martyrs. What excellent companions they are, God willing." Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, on the authority of Abu Saeed, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The truthful, trustworthy merchant is with the prophets, the truthful, and the martyrs. Then he said: This is a good hadith that we do not know except from this source, and Abu Hamza's name is Abdullah bin Jabir, a Basran sheikh. And greater than all of this is the glad tidings that are proven in the Sahih and Musnads and others through continuous chains of transmission on the authority of a group of the Companions, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man who loves a people but has not yet joined them, so he said: A person will be with those he loves. Anas said: The Muslims were never so happy as they were with this hadith. In a narration on the authority of Anas, he said: I love the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I love Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them, and I hope that God will send me with them even if I do not do as they did. Imam Malik bin Anas said, on the authority of Safwan bin Salim, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see the people of the chambers above them, just as you see a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, due to the difference in degrees between them. They said: O Messenger of God, those are the dwellings of the prophets, and no one else will reach them. He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed the messengers. They included it in the two Sahihis on the authority of Malik, and the wording is from Muslim. Imam Ahmad narrated it. Fazarah told us, Falih told me on the authority of Hilal, meaning Ibn Ali, on the authority of Ata, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see each other in Paradise just as you see - or you see - a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, in the difference in degrees. They said: O Messenger of God, are those prophets? He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed in the Messengers. Al-Hafiz Al-Dhiya' Al-Maqdisi said: This hadith meets the conditions of Al-Bukhari, and God knows best.

Al-Hafiz Abu al-Qasim al-Tabarani said in his great dictionary: Ali bin Abdul Aziz told us, Muhammad bin Ammar al-Mawsili told us, Afif bin Salim told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Utbah, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: A man from Abyssinia came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Ask and inquire. He said: O Messenger of God, you have been given preference over us with images, colors, and prophethood. Then he said: Tell me, if I believe in what you believe in and do what you do, will I be with you in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the whiteness of the black glows in Paradise from a distance of a thousand years. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever says: There is no god but God, will have a covenant with God for it, and whoever says: Glory be to God and praise be to Him, one hundred thousand good deeds and twenty-four thousand good deeds will be written for him." A man said: How will we perish after this, O Messenger of God? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man will come on the Day of Resurrection with deeds that if placed on a mountain would weigh him down, and then a blessing from God will arise, and it will almost exhaust all of that, unless God covers him with His mercy." And these verses were revealed: "Has there not been over man a period of time when he was not a thing worth mentioning? Indeed, We created man from a sperm-drop mixture that We may try him; and We made him hearing and seeing. Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or ungrateful." Until His saying: And when you look, you will see pleasure and great dominion. The Abyssinian said: And my eyes will see what your eyes will see in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. Then he wept until his soul passed away. Ibn Umar said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, lowering him into his grave with his own hands." There is something strange and strange about it, and its chain of transmission is weak. For this reason, God, the Most High, said: That is the bounty from God, meaning from God through His mercy, and He is the One Who qualified them for that, not through their deeds. And sufficient is God as Knower, meaning He knows who deserves guidance and success.

And if We had prescribed for them, "Kill yourselves" or "Leave your homes," they would not have done it, except for a few of them. And if they had done what they were advised, it would have been better for them and a firmer position.

Fath al-Qadir

66- If is a particle of impossibility, and that is a source or an explanatory particle, because we wrote means we ordered. The meaning is that if God, the Almighty, had written killing and leaving the homes for those Jews who were present, only a few of them would have done it, or if He had written that for the Muslims, only a few of them would have done it. The pronoun in His statement they did it refers to what was written, which was indicated by Our writing, or to the killing and leaving indicated by the two verbs. We have already explained the reason for unifying the pronoun in such a case. His statement except a few was read by the majority in the nominative case as a substitute. Abdullah bin Amir and Isa bin Omar read except a few in the accusative case as an exception, and this is how it is in the copies of the Sham'an, and the nominative case is better according to grammarians. His saying, And if they had done what they were advised to do, of following the Sharia and submitting to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, it would have been better for them in this world and the hereafter, and more steadfast in their determination to follow the truth, so that they would not be disturbed in the matter of their religion.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

66- The Almighty said: And if We had prescribed meaning: We had imposed and made obligatory, for them, 'Kill yourselves', as We commanded the Children of Israel, "or leave your homes, as We commanded the Children of Israel to leave Egypt, they would not have done it, meaning: We did not prescribe for them anything but obedience to the Messenger and acceptance of his rule, and if We had prescribed for them killing and leaving their homes, they would not have done it, except a few of them, it was revealed about Thabit ibn Qays, and he was one of the few whom God exempted. Al-Hasan and Muqatil said when this verse was revealed, Umar, Ammar ibn Yasir, Abdullah ibn Masoud, and some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, and they were few, and by God, if we were commanded, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men in whose hearts faith is firmer than the firm mountains.

Ibn Amir and the people of Ash-Sham read except a few in the accusative case as an exception, and this is how it is in the Mushaf of the people of Ash-Sham. It was said that there is an omission in it, meaning: except that it is a few of them. The others read a few in the nominative case as the subject pronoun in his saying they did it, meaning: except a few people who did it. And if they had done what they were advised to do, of obeying the Messenger and being satisfied with his ruling, it would have been better for them and a stronger confirmation, fulfilling and confirming their faith.

66"And if We had decreed upon them, 'Kill yourselves' they would have been exposed to being killed in jihad, or 'Kill them as the Children of Israel were killed' and 'An' is a source or an explanation because 'We wrote' is in the sense of 'We commanded'. "Or leave your homes" their exit when they were asked to repent from worshipping the calf, and Abu 'Amr and Ya'qub read 'An' kill' with a kasra on the 'nun' according to the original movement, or 'Akhraju' with a damma on the 'waw' for following and likening to the 'waw' of the plural in the words of God the Almighty: "And do not forget the bounty" and Hamzah and 'Asim read with a kasra on the original and the rest read with a damma on them making them like the hamzah connected to the verb. "They did it only a few of them" except a few people who are the sincere ones. Since He explained that their faith is not complete except by submitting with true submission, He pointed out the shortcomings of most of them and the weakness of their Islam, and the pronoun refers to what was written and indicated by 'We wrote', or to one of the sources of the two verbs - and Ibn 'Amir read with the accusative as an exception or as 'Except for a few'. And if they had done what they were instructed to do of obeying the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, willingly and willingly. It would have been better for them in their immediate and later lives. And a firmer establishment in their religion because it is more effective in acquiring knowledge and removing doubt, or in establishing the reward for their deeds. The verse is also among those revealed concerning the Jewish hypocrite. It was said that it and the one before it were revealed concerning Hatib ibn Abi Balta'ah, who argued with Zubayr over a jug they were using to water their palm trees. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Irrigate, Zubayr, then release the water to your neighbor. Hatib said: Because he is your cousin. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Irrigate, Zubayr, then hold back the water to the walls and take your due, then release it to your neighbor.

Surat al-Nisa 4:67

And then We would have given them from Ourselves a great reward.

Surat al-Nisa 4:67

And then We would have given them from Ourselves a great reward.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And then if they had been certain We would have given them from Us from Us a great reward which is Paradise.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: If they had done what they were advised to do, it would have been better for them, because We gave them, for doing what they were advised to do, of obeying Us and adhering to Our command, a reward, meaning: a great reward and recompense, and more steadfast in their resolve and opinions, and more powerful for them in their actions, because We guided them to a straight path, meaning: a path in which there is no crookedness, and it is the upright religion of God that He chose for His servants and legislated for them, and that is Islam.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

And if they did, We would have given them from Us a great reward meaning a garment in the Hereafter. It was said that the lam is the lam of the answer, and it indicates the reward, and the meaning is if they did what they were advised to do, We would have given them.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about most people that if they were ordered to do what they are committing of prohibitions, they would not do it, because their bad natures are created to disobey the command, and this is from His knowledge, the Blessed and Exalted, of what was or was not, so how would it be? For this reason, the Almighty said: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told me, Abu Zuhair told us on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Subai'i, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it: Ja'far ibn Munir told us, Ruh told us,

Hisham told us on the authority of Al-Hasan on the authority of Al-A'mash, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. "Kill yourselves" is the verse. Some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If our Lord had done so, we would have done so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was informed and said: Faith is more firmly established in the hearts of its people than the firm mountains. Al-Suddi said: Thabit bin Qais bin Shammās and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God has decreed killing upon us, so we killed ourselves. Thabit said: By God, if He had decreed upon us Kill yourselves, we would have done so. Then God revealed this verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: My father told us, Mahmud ibn Ghailan told us, Bishr ibn al-Sarri told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit told us on the authority of his uncle 'Amir ibn 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: When the verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except a few of them, was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If it had been revealed, Ibn Umm 'Abd would have been among them. My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Ismail ibn 'Ayyash told us on the authority of Safwan ibn 'Amr, on the authority of Shuraih ibn 'Ubayd, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pointed with his hand to 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah and said: If God had prescribed that, this would have been among those few, meaning Ibn Rawahah. That is why God, the Most High, said: And if they had done what they were instructed to do, meaning if they had done what they were commanded to do and left what they were forbidden, it would have been better for them, meaning than disobeying the command and committing the prohibition. And more firmly established, Al-Suddi said: meaning, more firmly believed. And then We would have given them from Us, meaning from Us, a great reward, meaning Paradise, and We would have guided them to a straight path, meaning in this world and the Hereafter. Then the Almighty said: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs, and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." Whoever does what God has commanded him to do and leaves what God and His Messenger have forbidden him to do, God the Almighty will make him dwell in the abode of His honor and make him a companion of the prophets, then of those who come after them in rank, who are the truthful ones, then the martyrs and the righteous whose inner and outer selves are good, then God the Almighty praised them and said: And excellent are those as companions. Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn

Abdullah ibn Hawshab told us, Ibrahim ibn Saad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: There is no prophet who falls ill but he is given the choice between this world and the Hereafter. And during the illness in which he died, he had a severe hoarseness, so I heard him say: With those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the truthful ones, the martyrs and the righteous. So I knew that he was given the choice. Muslim narrated it in the same way from the hadith of Shu'bah, on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim. This is the meaning of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in the other hadith: O God, the highest companion, three times, then he passed away, may the best prayers and peace be upon him.

Mention the reason for the revelation of this noble verse

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sad. They said: O Messenger of God, are those prophets? He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed in the Messengers. Al-Hafiz Al-Dhiya' Al-Maqdisi said: This hadith meets the conditions of Al-Bukhari, and God knows best.

Al-Hafiz Abu al-Qasim al-Tabarani said in his great dictionary: Ali bin Abdul Aziz told us, Muhammad bin Ammar al-Mawsili told us, Afif bin Salim told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Utbah, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: A man from Abyssinia came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Ask and inquire. He said: O Messenger of God, you have been given preference over us with images, colors, and prophethood. Then he said: Tell me, if I believe in what you believe in and do what you do, will I be with you in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the whiteness of the black glows in Paradise from a distance of a thousand years. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever says: There is no god but God, will have a covenant with God for it, and whoever says: Glory be to God and praise be to Him, one hundred thousand good deeds and twenty-four thousand good deeds will be written for him." A man said: How will we perish after this, O Messenger of God? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man will come on the Day of Resurrection with deeds that if placed on a mountain would weigh him down, and then a blessing from God will arise, and it will almost exhaust all of that, unless God covers him with His mercy." And these verses were revealed: "Has there not been over man a period of time when he was not a thing worth mentioning? Indeed, We created man from a sperm-drop mixture that We may try him; and We made him hearing and seeing. Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or ungrateful." Until His saying: And when you look, you will see pleasure and great dominion. The Abyssinian said: And my eyes will see what your eyes will see in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. Then he wept until his soul passed away. Ibn Umar said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, lowering him into his grave with his own hands." There is something strange and strange about it, and its chain of transmission is weak. For this reason, God, the Most High, said: That is the bounty from God, meaning from God through His mercy, and He is the One Who qualified them for that, not through their deeds. And sufficient is God as Knower, meaning He knows who deserves guidance and success.

The meaning of his saying: And We would have guided them, is that We would have guided them to the straight path.

Then He, the Most High, mentioned what He promised to those who obey Him and His Messenger, peace be upon him, of permanent honor and high stations with Him, saying: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous verse.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty's saying: And We have guided them to a straight path.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about most people that if they were ordered to do what they are committing of prohibitions, they would not do it, because their bad natures are created to disobey the command, and this is from His knowledge, the Blessed and Exalted, of what was or was not, so how would it be? For this reason, the Almighty said: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told me, Abu Zuhair told us on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Subai'i, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it: Ja'far ibn Munir told us, Ruh told us, Hisham told us on the authority of Al-Hasan on the authority of Al-A'mash, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. "Kill yourselves" is the verse. Some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If our Lord had done so, we would have done so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was informed and said: Faith is more firmly established in the hearts of its people than the firm mountains. Al-Suddi said: Thabit bin Qais bin Shammās and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God has decreed killing upon us, so we killed ourselves. Thabit said: By God, if He had decreed upon us Kill yourselves, we would have done so. Then God revealed this verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: My father told us, Mahmud ibn Ghailan told us, Bishr ibn al-Sarri told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit told us on the authority of his uncle 'Amir ibn 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: When the verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except a few of them, was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If it had been revealed, Ibn Umm 'Abd would have been among them. My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Ismail ibn 'Ayyash told us on the authority of Safwan ibn 'Amr, on the authority of Shuraih ibn 'Ubayd, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pointed with his hand to 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah and said: If God had prescribed that, this would have been among those few, meaning Ibn Rawahah. That is why God, the Most High, said: And if they had done what they were instructed to do, meaning if they had done what they were commanded to do and left what they were forbidden, it would have been better for them, meaning than disobeying the command and committing the prohibition. And more firmly established, Al-Suddi said: meaning, more firmly believed. And then We would have given them from Us, meaning from Us, a great reward, meaning Paradise, and We would have guided them to a straight path, meaning in this world and the Hereafter. Then the Almighty said: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs, and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." Whoever does what God has commanded him to do and leaves what God and His Messenger have forbidden him to do, God the Almighty will make him dwell in the abode of His honor and make him a companion of the prophets, then of those who come after them in rank, who are the truthful ones, then the martyrs and the righteous whose inner and outer selves are good, then God the Almighty praised them and said: And excellent are those as companions. Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Hawshab told us, Ibrahim ibn Saad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: There is no prophet who falls ill but he is given the choice between this world and the Hereafter. And during the illness in which he died, he had a severe hoarseness, so I heard him say: With those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the truthful ones, the martyrs and the righteous. So I knew that he was given the choice. Muslim narrated it in the same way from the hadith of Shu'bah, on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim. This is the meaning of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in the other hadith: O God, the highest companion, three times, then he passed away, may the best prayers and peace be upon him.

Mention the reason for the revelation of this noble verse

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sad. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O so-and-so, why do I see you sad? He said: O Prophet of God, I have thought about something. He said: What is it? He said: We come to you in the morning and in the evening, looking at your face and sitting with you, and tomorrow you will be raised up with the prophets, but we will not be able to reach you. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him with anything. Then Gabriel came to him with this verse: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with the prophets upon whom God has bestowed favor Al-Baqarah 2:13. So he sent the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and gave him good tidings. This hadith was narrated in a mural form on the authority of Masruq, Ikrimah, Amir al-Sha'bi, Qatadah, and al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and it is one of the best in chain of transmission. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger the verse, and he said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We know that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, has a superiority over those who believe in him in the degrees of Paradise from those who follow him and believe in him, and how will they see each other when they gather in Paradise? Then God revealed this verse, and he said: meaning the Messenger of God, "The most high will descend to those who are below them, and they will gather in gardens and remember what God has bestowed upon them and praise Him, and the people of degrees will descend to them and they will strive to do for them what they desire and what they ask for, so they will be in a garden, rejoicing and enjoying it." It was narrated with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet from another source, and Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahim bin Muhammad bin Muslim told us, Ismail bin Ahmad bin Asid told us, Abdullah bin Imran told us, Fadil bin Ayyad told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of al-Aswad, on the authority of Aisha, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, you are more beloved to me than myself, and more beloved to me than my family, and more beloved to me than my children, and when I am in the house and I remember you, I cannot wait until I come to you and look at you, and when I remember my death and your death, I know that if you enter Paradise, you will be raised with the Prophets, and if you enter Paradise, I fear that I will not see you, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him. And he remained silent until the verse was revealed to him: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." And thus, Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Maqdisi narrated it in his book on the description of Paradise, on the authority of Al-Tabarani, on the authority of Ahmad bin Amr bin Muslim Al-Khalal, on the authority of Abdullah bin Imran Al-Abidi, on his authority. Then he said: I do not see any harm in its chain of transmission, and God knows best. Ibn Mardawayh also said: Sulayman bin Ahmad told us, Al-Abbas bin Al-Fadl Al-Asfati told us, Abu Bakr bin Thabit bin Abbas Al-Masry told us, Khalid bin Abdullah told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Amir Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That a man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I love you so much that I even mention you in the house and it is difficult for me, and I would like to be with you in the same degree. But the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him at all, so God, the Almighty, revealed this verse. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Ibn Hamid on the authority of Jarir on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, with no chain of transmission. It was confirmed in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Haql ibn Ziyad on the authority of Al-Awza'i on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Katheer on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd Al-Rahman on the authority of Rabi'ah ibn Ka'b Al-Aslami that he said: I used to spend the night with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I would bring him his ablution water and what he needed, and he said to me, Ask. So I said, O Messenger of God, I ask you to be my companion in Paradise. He said, Or something else? I said, That is it. He said, Then help me with yourself by prostrating frequently.

Imam Ahmad said: Yahya ibn Ishaq told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of Isa ibn Talhah, on the authority of Amr ibn Murrah al-Juhani, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God, and I prayed the five daily prayers, and I paid the zakat on my wealth, and I fasted the month of Ramadan. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever dies upon that will be with the prophets, the truthful ones, and the martyrs on the Day of Resurrection, and so on - and he raised his two fingers - so long as he does not disobey his parents. Ahmad alone transmitted this. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu Saeed, the freed slave of Abu Hashim, told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Zaban bin Fa'id, on the authority of Sahl bin Mu'adh bin Anas, on the authority of his father, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever recites a thousand verses in the way of God will be recorded on the Day of Resurrection with the prophets, the truthful, and the righteous martyrs. What excellent companions they are, God willing." Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, on the authority of Abu Saeed, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The truthful, trustworthy merchant is with the prophets, the truthful, and the martyrs. Then he said: This is a good hadith that we do not know except from this source, and Abu Hamza's name is Abdullah bin Jabir, a Basran sheikh. And greater than all of this is the glad tidings that are proven in the Sahih and Musnads and others through continuous chains of transmission on the authority of a group of the Companions, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man who loves a people but has not yet joined them, so he said: A person will be with those he loves. Anas said: The Muslims were never so happy as they were with this hadith. In a narration on the authority of Anas, he said: I love the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I love Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them, and I hope that God will send me with them even if I do not do as they did. Imam Malik bin Anas said, on the authority of Safwan bin Salim, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see the people of the chambers above them, just as you see a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, due to the difference in degrees between them. They said: O Messenger of God, those are the dwellings of the prophets, and no one else will reach them. He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed the messengers. They included it in the two Sahihs on the authority of Malik, and the wording is from Muslim. Imam Ahmad narrated it. Fazarah told us, Fali'h told me on the authority of Hilal, meaning Ibn Ali, on the authority of Ata, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see each other in Paradise just as you see - or you see - a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, in the difference in degrees. They said: O Messenger of God, are those prophets? He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed in the Messengers. Al-Hafiz Al-Dhiya' Al-Maqdisi said: This hadith meets the conditions of Al-Bukhari, and God knows best.

Al-Hafiz Abu al-Qasim al-Tabarani said in his great dictionary: Ali bin Abdul Aziz told us, Muhammad bin Ammar al-Mawsili told us, Afif bin Salim told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Utbah, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: A man from Abyssinia came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Ask and inquire. He said: O Messenger of God, you have been given preference over us with images, colors, and prophethood. Then he said: Tell me, if I believe in what you believe in and do what you do, will I be with you in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the whiteness of the black glows in Paradise from a distance of a thousand years. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever says: There is no god but God, will have a covenant with God for it, and whoever says: Glory be to God and praise be to Him, one hundred thousand good deeds and twenty-four thousand good deeds will be written for him." A man said: How will we perish after this, O Messenger of God? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man will come on the Day of Resurrection with deeds that if placed on a mountain would weigh him down, and then a blessing from God will arise, and it will almost exhaust all of that, unless God covers him with His mercy." And these verses were revealed: "Has there not been over man a period of time when he was not a thing worth mentioning? Indeed, We created man from a sperm-drop mixture that We may try him; and We made him hearing and seeing. Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or ungrateful." Until His saying: And when you look, you will see pleasure and great dominion. The Abyssinian said: And my eyes will see what your eyes will see in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. Then he wept until his soul passed away. Ibn Umar said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, lowering him into his grave with his own hands." There is something strange and strange about it, and its chain of transmission is weak. For this reason, God, the Most High, said: That is the bounty from God, meaning from God through His mercy, and He is the One Who qualified them for that, not through their deeds. And sufficient is God as Knower, meaning He knows who deserves guidance and success.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be exalted, He means: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger, by submitting to their command, sincerely accepting their judgment, abiding by their orders, and refraining from what they have forbidden of disobeying God, then he is with those upon whom God has bestowed His guidance and success in obeying Him in this world from among His prophets, and in the Hereafter if he enters Paradise, and the truthful. Is it! the plural of truthful?

There is a difference of opinion regarding the meaning of the two friends.

Some of them said: The truthful ones are the prophets who believed in them and followed their path after them until they joined them. So the truthful one is a fa'il, according to the doctrine of those who said this statement, from truthfulness, just as a drunkard is said to be drunk, if he is addicted to that, and a drinker, and a liquor.

Others said: Rather, it is a noun of action from charity, and it has been narrated from the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, with a similar interpretation of the one who said that, which is:

Sufyan ibn Wake' narrated to us, he said: Khalid ibn Mukhallad narrated to us, on the authority of Musa ibn Ya'qub, he said: My aunt, Quraibah bint Abdullah ibn Wahb ibn Zam'ah, told me, on the authority of her mother, Karima bint Al-Miqdad, on the authority of Duba'ah bint Az-Zubayr, who was married to Al-Miqdad, on the authority of Al-Miqdad, he said: I said to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace: There is something I heard from you that I am in doubt about! He said: If any one of you has doubts about a matter, let him ask me about it. I said: Your statement about your wives: I hope for them after me the truthful ones. He said: Who do you consider the truthful ones? I said: Our children who die in infancy. He said: No, but the truthful ones are those who believe.

This is a report, if its chain of transmission is authentic, we would not find it permissible to attribute it to something else, even if some of what is in it is in its chain of transmission.

If that is the case, then what is more appropriate for the word Siddiq is that it means: the one whose words are believed by his actions. Since the word Fa'il in Arabic speech only comes, if it is taken from the verb, in the sense of exaggeration, either in praise or in blame, and from that is the saying of God Almighty in describing Maryam 19: And his mother was a friend (al-Ma'idah 5:75).

If that means what we have described, then it includes those who are described as those who give charity and those who give charity.

And the martyrs, the plural of martyr, is the one killed in the way of God. He was called that because he stood up to bear witness to the truth on the side of God until he was killed.

And the righteous, which is the plural of righteous, meaning anyone whose inner and outer character is righteous. As for the words of God Almighty: And excellent are those as companions, it means: And excellent are those whom He described and described, as companions in Paradise.

And the companion in one word means everyone, as the poet said:

Leave passion, then throw our hearts with the arrows of enemies, and they are friends

Meaning: They are friends.

As for the accusative of the companion, the Arabs differ on it.

Some of the grammarians of Basra thought that it was in the accusative case as a state, and said: It is like a man saying: Zaid honored a man, and he changed it from the meaning: Yes, the man, and said: Yes only occurs with a noun that has an alif and lam, or with an indefinite noun.

Some grammarians of Kufa believed that it was in the accusative case as an explanation, and denied that it was a state. He cited as evidence for that the fact that the Arabs say: Karama Zayd is one man and Hasan those are companions, and that the inclusion of man indicates that the companion is its explanation. He said: It has been reported from the Arabs: You are good men, which indicates that this is similar to his saying: And you are good companions.

Abu Jaafar said: This statement is more correct, for the reason we mentioned for its speakers.

It was mentioned that this verse was revealed because some people were saddened by the loss of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, fearing that they would not see him in the afterlife.

The novel mentioned that:

Ibn Hamid narrated that Yaqub al-Qummi narrated on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sad. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O so-and-so, why do I see you sad? He said: O Prophet of God, something I have thought about! He said: What is it? He said: We come to you in the morning and in the evening, looking at your face and sitting with you. Tomorrow you will be raised up with the prophets and we will not be able to reach you! The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him. Then Gabriel, peace be upon him, came to him with this verse: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." He said: So the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, sent for him and gave him good tidings.

Ibn Hamid told us, he said, Jarir told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Abu al-Dhaha, on the authority of Masruq, he said: The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: O Messenger of God, it is not appropriate for us to leave you in this world, for if you had come, you would have been raised above us and we would not have seen you! So God revealed: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger, the verse.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets. It was mentioned to us that men said: This is the Prophet of God, we see him in this world, but as for the Hereafter, he will be taken up and we will not see him! So God revealed: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger, up to His statement: as a companion.

Muhammad bin Al-Husayn told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor, the verse. He said: Some of the Ansar said: O Messenger of God, if God admits you to Paradise and you are at the highest point in it, and we long for you, what should we do? So God revealed: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger, the verse, he said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We know that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, has his superiority over those who believe in him in the degrees of Paradise, from those who follow him and believe in him, so how will they see each other when they gather in Paradise? So God revealed regarding that: It is said: The highest descend to those who are below them and they gather in its gardens, and they mention what God has bestowed upon them and praise Him, and the people of the highest degrees descend to them and they strive to do for them what they desire and what they supplicate for, so they are in his garden, rejoicing and enjoying it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has three issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger, when the Almighty mentioned the matter that if the hypocrites had done it when they were admonished by it and turned to Him, He would have bestowed blessings upon them. After that, He mentioned the reward of whoever does it. This verse is an interpretation of the Almighty's saying: Guide us to the straight path, "the path of those upon whom You have bestowed blessings," and it is what is meant in his saying, peace be upon him, upon his death.

O God, the highest companion. And in Bukhari, on the authority of Aisha, she said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say:

There is no prophet who falls ill except for good between this world and the Hereafter. "He was in the complaint in which he fell ill, and he was seized with severe hoarseness, so I heard him say: 'With those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous.' So I knew that it was good." A group said that this verse was revealed when Abdullah bin Zaid bin Abd Rabbih al-Ansari - who was shown the call to prayer - said: O Messenger of God, when you die and we die, you will be in the highest heavens, and we will not see you or meet you. He mentioned his grief over that, so this verse was revealed. Makki mentioned this from Abdullah, and that when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, died, he said: O God, blind me so that I do not see anything after him, so he went blind in his place. Al-Qushayri narrated that he said: O God, blind me so that I do not see anything after my beloved until I meet my beloved, so he went blind in his place. Al-Tha'labi narrated:

It was revealed about Thawban, the freed slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who loved him very much and could not bear to be away from him. One day he came to him and his color had changed and his body was thin, and sadness was evident on his face. He said to him: O Thawban, what has changed your color? He said: "O Messenger of God, I have no harm or pain, but when I do not see you I long for him and feel intense loneliness until I meet you. Then I remembered the Hereafter and feared that I would not see you there, because I knew that you would be raised with the righteous. If you enter Paradise, you will be in a position lower than your position, and if I do not enter, that will be when I will never see you again.” So God Almighty revealed this verse. Al-Wahidi mentioned it on the authority of Al-Kalbi and he attributed it to Masruq, who said:

The companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We should not leave you in this world, for if you leave us, you will be raised above us. So God, the Most High, revealed: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - they will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets. And in obeying God is obeying His Messenger, but He mentioned him to honor his status and to mention his name, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his family. They will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor. That is, they are with them in one home and one bliss, enjoying seeing them and being with them, not that they are equal to them in degree, for they differ, but they visit each other to follow and emulate them in this world, and everyone in it has been granted contentment with his situation and the belief that he is inferior has gone away. God, the Most High, said: And We will remove whatever is in their breasts of resentment. (al-A'raf 7:43) The friend is a fa'il: the one who goes to extremes in truthfulness or in belief, and the friend is the one who fulfills what he says with his tongue. It was said: They are the virtuous followers of the prophets who precede them in giving charity, like Abu Bakr Al-Siddiq. The derivation of the word friend and the meaning of the martyr were mentioned in Surat Al-Baqarah. What is meant here by the martyrs are Omar, Othman, Ali, and the righteous, all the companions, may God be pleased with them all. It was said that the martyrs are those killed in the way of God, and the righteous are the righteous of the nation of Muhammad, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace.

I said: The expression includes every righteous person and martyr, God knows best. Kindness is gentleness. A companion is called a companion because you find comfort in his company. From this comes the word rafa because some find comfort in others. It is permissible. And those are good companions. Al-Akhfash said: A companion is in the accusative case as a state, and it means companions. He said: “It is in the accusative case as a distinguishing feature, so it was found for that reason, so the meaning is that each one of them is a good companion, as God Almighty said: “Then We bring you forth as a child” (al-Hajj 22:5), meaning We bring forth each one of you as a child. God Almighty said: They look from a hidden corner (al-Shura 42:45). The meaning of this verse is seen in the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

The best companions are four. He did not mention God Almighty, so ponder that.

Second - In this verse there is evidence that he was different from Abu Bakr, may God be pleased with him.

This is because when God Almighty mentioned the ranks of His saints in His Book, He began with the highest of them, who are the prophets, then He mentioned the two truthful ones, and He did not make an intermediary between them. The Muslims agreed to call Abu Bakr al-Siddiq, may God be pleased with him, a truthful one, just as they agreed to call Muhammad, peace be upon him, a messenger. If this is proven and it is correct that he is the truthful one and that he is the second Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, then it is not permissible for anyone to come before him, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about most people that if they were ordered to do what they are committing of prohibitions, they would not do it, because their bad natures are created to disobey the command, and this is from His knowledge, the Blessed and Exalted, of what was or was not, so how would it be? For this reason, the Almighty said: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told me, Abu Zuhair told us on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Subai'i, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it: Ja'far ibn Munir told us, Ruh told us, Hisham told us on the authority of Al-Hasan on the authority of Al-A'mash, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. “Kill yourselves” is the verse. Some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If our Lord had done so, we would have done so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was informed and said: Faith is more firmly established in the hearts of its people than the firm mountains. Al-Suddi said: Thabit bin Qais bin Shammah and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God has decreed killing upon us, so we killed ourselves. Thabit said: By God, if He had decreed upon us Kill yourselves, we would have done so. Then God revealed this verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: My father told us, Mahmud ibn Ghailan told us, Bishr ibn al-Sarri told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit told us on the authority of his uncle `Amir ibn `Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: When the verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except a few of them, was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If it had been revealed, Ibn Umm `Abd would have been among them. My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Ismail ibn `Ayyash told us on the authority of Safwan ibn `Amr, on the authority of Shuraih ibn `Ubayd, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pointed with his hand to `Abdullah ibn Rawahah and said: If God had prescribed that, this would have been among those few, meaning Ibn Rawahah. That is why God, the Most High, said: And if they had done what they were instructed to do, meaning if they had done what they were commanded to do and left what they were forbidden, it would have been better for them, meaning than disobeying the command and committing the prohibition. And more firmly established, Al-Suddi said: meaning, more firmly believed. And then We would have given them from Us, meaning from Us, a great reward, meaning Paradise, and We would have guided them to a straight path, meaning in this world and the Hereafter. Then the Almighty said: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs, and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." Whoever does what God has commanded him to do and leaves what God and His Messenger have forbidden him to do, God the Almighty will make him dwell in the abode of His honor and make him a companion of the prophets, then of those who come after them in rank, who are the truthful ones, then the martyrs and the righteous whose inner and outer selves are good, then God the Almighty praised them and said: And excellent are those as companions. Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Hawshab told us, Ibrahim ibn Saad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: There is no prophet who falls ill but he is given the choice between this world and the Hereafter. And during the illness in which he died, he had a severe hoarseness, so I heard him say: With those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the truthful ones, the martyrs and the righteous. So I knew that he was given the choice. Muslim narrated it in the same way from the hadith of Shu'bah, on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim. This is the meaning of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in the other hadith: O God, the highest companion, three times, then he passed away, may the best prayers and peace be upon him.

Mention the reason for the revelation of this noble verse

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sad. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O so-and-so, why do I see you sad? He said: O Prophet of God, I have thought about something. He said: What is it? He said: We come to you in the morning and in the evening, looking at your face and sitting with you, and tomorrow you will be raised up with the prophets, but we will not be able to reach you. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him with anything. Then Gabriel came to him with this verse: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with the prophets upon whom God has bestowed favor Al-Baqarah 2:13. So he sent the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and gave him good tidings. This hadith was narrated in a mural form on the authority of Masruq, Ikrimah, Amir al-Sha'bi, Qatadah, and al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and it is one of the best in chain of transmission. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger the verse, and he said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We know that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, has a superiority over those who believe in him in the degrees of Paradise from those who follow him and believe in him, and how will they see each other when they gather in Paradise? Then God revealed this verse, and he said: meaning the Messenger of God, "The most high will descend to those who are below them, and they will gather in gardens and remember what God has bestowed upon them and praise Him, and the people of degrees will descend to them and they will strive to do for them what they desire and what they ask for, so they will be in a garden, rejoicing and enjoying it." It was narrated with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet from another source, and Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahim bin Muhammad bin Muslim told us, Ismail bin Ahmad bin Asid told us, Abdullah bin Imran told us, Fadil bin Ayyad told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of al-Aswad, on the authority of Aisha, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, you are more beloved to me than myself, and more beloved to me than my family, and more beloved to me than my children, and when I am in the house and I remember you, I cannot wait until I come to you and look at you, and when I remember my death and your death, I know that if you enter Paradise, you will be raised with the Prophets, and if you enter Paradise, I fear that I will not see you, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him. And he remained silent until the verse was revealed to him: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." And thus, Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Maqdisi narrated it in his book on the description of Paradise, on the authority of Al-Tabarani, on the authority of Ahmad bin Amr bin Muslim Al-Khalal, on the authority of Abdullah bin Imran Al-Abidi, on his authority. Then he said: I do not see any harm in its chain of transmission, and God knows best. Ibn Mardawayh also said: Sulayman bin Ahmad told us, Al-Abbas bin Al-Fadl Al-Asfati told us, Abu Bakr bin Thabit bin Abbas Al-Masry told us, Khalid bin Abdullah told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Amir Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That a man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I love you so much that I even mention you in the house and it is difficult for me, and I would like to be with you in the same degree. But the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him at all, so God, the Almighty, revealed this verse. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Ibn Hamid on the authority of Jarir on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, with no chain of transmission. It was confirmed in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Haql ibn Ziyad on the authority of Al-Awza'i on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Katheer on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd Al-Rahman on the authority of Rabi'ah ibn Ka'b Al-Aslami that he said: I used to spend the night with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I would bring him his ablution water and what he needed, and he said to me, Ask. So I said, O Messenger of God, I ask you to be my companion in Paradise. He said, Or something else? I said, That is it. He said, Then help me with yourself by prostrating frequently.

Imam Ahmad said: Yahya ibn Ishaq told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of Isa ibn Talhah, on the authority of Amr ibn Murrah al-Juhani, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God, and I prayed the five daily prayers, and I paid the zakat on my wealth, and I fasted the month of Ramadan. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever dies upon that will be with the prophets, the truthful ones, and the martyrs on the Day of Resurrection, and so on - and he raised his two fingers - so long as he does not disobey his parents. Ahmad alone transmitted this. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu Saeed, the freed slave of Abu Hashim, told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Zaban bin Fa'id, on the authority of Sahl bin Mu'adh bin Anas, on the authority of his father, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever recites a thousand verses in the way of God will be recorded on the Day of Resurrection with the prophets, the truthful, and the righteous martyrs. What excellent companions they are, God willing." Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, on the authority of Abu Saeed, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The truthful, trustworthy merchant is with the prophets, the truthful, and the martyrs. Then he said: This is a good hadith that we do not know except from this source, and Abu Hamza's name is Abdullah bin Jabir, a Basran sheikh. And greater than all of this is the glad tidings that are proven in the Sahih and Musnads and others through continuous chains of transmission on the authority of a group of the Companions, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man who loves a people but has not yet joined them, so he said: A person will be with those he loves. Anas said: The Muslims were never so happy as they were with this hadith. In a narration on the authority of Anas, he said: I love the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I love Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them, and I hope that God will send me with them even if I do not do as they did. Imam Malik bin Anas said, on the authority of Safwan bin Salim, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see the people of the chambers above them, just as you see a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, due to the difference in degrees between them. They said: O Messenger of God, those are the dwellings of the prophets, and no one else will reach them. He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed the messengers. They included it in the two Sahih on the authority of Malik, and the wording is from Muslim. Imam Ahmad narrated it. Fazarah told us, Falihi told me on the authority of Hilal, meaning Ibn Ali, on the authority of Ata, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see each other in Paradise just as you see - or you see - a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, in the difference in degrees. They said: O Messenger of God, are those prophets? He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed in the Messengers. Al-Hafiz Al-Dhiya' Al-Maqdisi said: This hadith meets the conditions of Al-Bukhari, and God knows best.

Al-Hafiz Abu al-Qasim al-Tabarani said in his great dictionary: Ali bin Abdul Aziz told us, Muhammad bin Ammar al-Mawsili told us, Afif bin Salim told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Utbah, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: A man from Abyssinia came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Ask and inquire. He said: O Messenger of God, you have been given preference over us with images, colors, and prophethood. Then he said: Tell me, if I believe in what you believe in and do what you do, will I be with you in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the whiteness of the black glows in Paradise from a distance of a thousand years. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever says: There is no god but God, will have a covenant with God for it, and whoever says: Glory be to God and praise be to Him, one hundred thousand good deeds and twenty-four thousand good deeds will be written for him." A man said: How will we perish after this, O Messenger of God? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man will come on the Day of Resurrection with deeds that if placed on a mountain would weigh him down, and then a blessing from God will arise, and it will almost exhaust all of that, unless God covers him with His mercy." And these verses were revealed: "Has there not been over man a period of time when he was not a thing worth mentioning? Indeed, We created man from a sperm-drop mixture that We may try him; and We made him hearing and seeing. Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or ungrateful." Until His saying: And when you look, you will see pleasure and great dominion. The Abyssinian said: And my eyes will see what your eyes will see in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. Then he wept until his soul passed away. Ibn Umar said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, lowering him into his grave with his own hands." There is something strange and strange about it, and its chain of transmission is weak. For this reason, God, the Most High, said: That is the bounty from God, meaning from God through His mercy, and He is the One Who qualified them for that, not through their deeds. And sufficient is God as Knower, meaning He knows who deserves guidance and success.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 69- And whoever obeys God and the Messenger is a renewed statement to explain the virtue of obeying God and the Messenger, and the reference in his statement those to the obedient as it indicates from with those upon whom God has bestowed favor by entering Paradise, and reaching what God has prepared for them. And the friend is the one who is excessively honest as the formula indicates, and it was said: they are the virtuous followers of the prophets. And the martyrs: those who have been proven to have martyrdom, and the righteous: the people of righteous deeds. And the companion is taken from kindness, which is gentleness, and what is meant by it is the one who accompanies you to be comfortable with his company, and from it is the companionship for the comfort of some of them with others, and it is erected as a distinction or a state as Al-Akhfash said.

Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, And if We had decreed upon them, 'Kill yourselves,' they are Jews, just as the companions of Moses were commanded to kill one another. Abd bin Hamid and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Sufyan that it was revealed about Thabit bin Qais bin Shammas. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Al-Suddi. It has been narrated through various chains of narration that a group of the Companions said: When the verse was revealed, If our Lord had done it, we would have done it. It was narrated by Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Al-Hasan. It was narrated by Ibn Abi Hatim on the authority of Amir bin Abdullah bin Al-Zubayr. It was also narrated on the authority of Shuraih bin Ubaid. Al-Tabarani, Ibn Mardawayh, Abu Nu'aym in Al-Hilyah, and Al-Dhiya' Al-Maqdisi in Sifat Al-Jannah, who authenticated it, narrated on the authority of Aishah, who said: "A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, you are dearer to me than my own self, and you are dearer to me than my children. When I am in the house and remember you, I cannot wait to come and see you. When I remember my death and your death, and I know that when you enter Paradise, you will be raised with the prophets, and when I enter Paradise, I fear that I will not see you. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him until Gabriel came down with this verse: 'And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor'" (Al-Tabaraani and Ibn Mardawayh narrated something similar on the authority of Ibn Abbas.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

69- The Almighty said: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets the verse, "was revealed about Thawban, the freed slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who loved the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, very much, but he could not be patient without him. One day he came to him and his color had changed, and sadness was evident on his face. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: What has changed your color? He said: O Messenger of God, I have no illness or pain, but when I do not see you I feel extremely lonely until I meet you. Then I remembered the Hereafter and I fear that I will not see you because you will be raised with the prophets, and if I enter Paradise I will be in a lower position than yours, and if I do not enter Paradise I will never see you. So this verse was revealed."

Qatada said: Some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: How will things be in Paradise when you are in the highest levels and we are below you? How will we see you? Then God Almighty revealed this verse.

And whoever obeys God in performing the obligatory duties, and the Messenger in the Sunnah, they will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets meaning they will not miss seeing the prophets and sitting with them, not because they are raised to the level of the prophets, and the truthful ones, who are the best companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the truthful ones are the ones who are most truthful, and the martyrs, it was said: they are those who were martyred on the day of Uhud, and it was said: those who were martyred in the way of God, and Ikrimah said: the prophets here are: Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the truthful ones are Abu Bakr, and the martyrs are Umar, Uthman, and Ali, may God be pleased with them, and the righteous ones: all the companions, may God be pleased with them, and excellent are those as companions, meaning: companions in Paradise, and the Arabs put the singular in place of the plural, like the Almighty's saying: Then We will bring you forth as children (Ghafir 40:67), meaning: children, and they will turn their backs, meaning: their backs.

And whoever obeys Allah and the Messenger - those will be with the ones upon whom Allah has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions.

Abdul Wahid bin Ahmad Al-Malhi told us, Abu Muhammad Al-Hasan bin Ahmad Al-Mukhalladi told us, Abu Al-Abbas Al-Sarraj told us, Qutaybah bin Saad told us, Hamad bin Zaid told us, on the authority of Thabit, on the authority of Anas, "A man said: O Messenger of God, what if a man loves a people but has not yet joined them? The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: A person will be with those he loves."

Ahmad ibn Abdullah al-Salihi and Abu Amr Muhammad ibn Abd al-Rahman al-Nasawi told us: Ahmad ibn al-Hasan al-Hairi told us, on the authority of Abu al-Abbas al-Asamm, on the authority of Abu Yahya Zakariya ibn Yahya al-Marwazi, on the authority of Sufyan ibn Uyaynah, on the authority of al-Zuhri, on the authority of Anas ibn Malik, may God be pleased with him, who said: "A man said, 'O Messenger of God, when will the Hour be?' He said, 'And what have you prepared for it?' He said, 'He did not mention much, except that he loves God and His Messenger.' He said, 'Then you will be with those you love.'" in the sense of astonishment, and companion is a distinction or a state, and it is not plural because it is said for the singular and the plural like a friend, or because it is intended and each one of them is an excellent companion. It was narrated that Thawban, the freed slave of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to him one day and his face had changed and his body had become thin. He asked him about his condition and he said: I have no pain, but when I do not see you I miss you and feel intense loneliness until I meet you. Then I remembered the afterlife and feared that I would not see you there because I knew that you would be raised with the prophets and if you were to enter Paradise you would be in a house lower than your house, and if I do not enter it will be a time when I will never see you again. So I came down.

69And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor. Further encouragement for obedience by promising to accompany the most honorable and greatest of creation. Of the prophets, the truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous. A statement of those or a state of them, or of his pronoun, dividing them into four according to their stations in knowledge and action, and urging all people not to fall behind them, and they are: The prophets who are victorious in perfect knowledge and action, exceeding the limit of perfection to the degree of completion. Then the truthful whose souls ascended sometimes by the levels of contemplation of the proofs and verses and other times by the stages of purification and spiritual exercises to the pinnacle of knowledge, until they became aware of things and reported about them as they are. Then the martyrs whose eagerness to obey and diligence in revealing the truth led them to sacrifice their lives in raising the word of God Almighty. Then the righteous who spent their lives in obeying Him and their money in pleasing Him. You can say that the prohibition on them is those who know God, and these either have reached the degree of seeing Him or are standing in the position of evidence and proof. The former either attain closeness with seeing Him so that they are like someone who sees something close, and they are the prophets, peace and blessings be upon them, first, so they are like someone who sees something far away, and they are the truthful ones. The others either have their knowledge through conclusive proofs, and they are the scholars who are firmly rooted in knowledge and are God's witnesses on earth, or it is through signs and convictions that their souls are reassured by, and they are the righteous ones. And excellent are those as companions in the sense of astonishment, companion

Surat al-Nisa 4:70

That is the bounty of God, and sufficient is God as Knower.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

That meaning that they are with those mentioned, the subject and predicate of which is the grace is from God He bestowed it upon them, not that they attained it through their obedience and sufficient is God as Knower of the reward of the Hereafter, meaning, so trust in what He has informed you of {and none informs you like the All-Aware}

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

As for his saying: That is the grace of God, he is saying: The fact that whoever obeys God and the Messenger is with those upon whom God has bestowed favor from among the prophets, the truthful, the martyrs, and the righteous, that is the grace of God, he is saying: That is God's gift to them and His grace upon them, not because they responded to that because of a precedent that preceded them.

If someone says: Was it not through obedience that they reached what they reached of His grace?

It was said to him: They did not obey him in this world except through his grace that he bestowed upon them, so he guided them to obey him, so all of that was done by him, may He be glorified and exalted.

And His statement: And sufficient is God as Knower, meaning: And sufficient for the servants is God who created them, Knowing of the obedience of the obedient among them and the disobedience of the disobedient, for nothing of that is hidden from Him, but He counts it for them and preserves it, until He rewards all of them, rewarding the good-doers among them with goodness, and the evil-doers among them with evil, and He pardons whomever He wills of the people of monotheism.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The third - the Almighty's saying: That is the bounty from God. The Almighty informed us that they did not attain the degree through their obedience, but rather they attained it through the bounty and generosity of God Almighty, contrary to what the Mu'tazila said: The servant only attains that through his actions. So when God Almighty bestowed His favors upon His friends with what He gave them of His bounty, and it was not permissible for anyone to praise himself for what he did not do, this indicates the invalidity of their statement, and God knows best.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty tells us about most people that if they were ordered to do what they are committing of prohibitions, they would not do it, because their bad natures are created to disobey the command, and this is from His knowledge, the Blessed and Exalted, of what was or was not, so how would it be? For this reason, the Almighty said: And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told me, Ishaq told me, Abu Zuhair told us on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of Abu Ishaq Al-Subai'i, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it: Ja'far ibn Munir told us, Ruh told us, Hisham told us on the authority of Al-Hasan on the authority of Al-A'mash, who said: When the verse And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' was revealed, a man said: If we were ordered, we would have done it, and praise be to God who spared us. This reached the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he said: Indeed, among my nation are men whose faith is more firmly established in their hearts than the firm mountains. "Kill yourselves" is the verse. Some of the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If our Lord had done so, we would have done so. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was informed and said: Faith is more firmly established in the hearts of its people than the firm mountains. Al-Suddi said: Thabit bin Qais bin Shammās and a Jewish man boasted, so the Jew said: By God, God has decreed killing upon us, so we killed ourselves. Thabit said: By God, if He had decreed upon us Kill yourselves, we would have done so. Then God revealed this verse. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated: My father told us, Mahmud ibn Ghailan told us, Bishr ibn al-Sarri told us, Mus'ab ibn Thabit told us on the authority of his uncle 'Amir ibn 'Abdullah ibn al-Zubayr, who said: When the verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' or 'Leave your homes,' they would not have done it, except a few of them, was revealed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: If it had been revealed, Ibn Umm 'Abd would have been among them. My father told us, Abu al-Yaman told us, Ismail ibn 'Ayyash told us on the authority of Safwan ibn 'Amr, on the authority of Shuraih ibn 'Ubayd, who said: When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, recited this verse, And if We had prescribed for them, 'Kill yourselves,' the verse, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, pointed with his hand to 'Abdullah ibn Rawahah and said: If God had prescribed that, this would have been among those few, meaning Ibn Rawahah. That is why God, the Most High, said: And if they had done what they were instructed to do, meaning if they had done what they were commanded to do and left what they were forbidden, it would have been better for them, meaning than disobeying the command and committing the prohibition. And more firmly established, Al-Suddi said:

meaning, more firmly believed. And then We would have given them from Us, meaning from Us, a great reward, meaning Paradise, and We would have guided them to a straight path, meaning in this world and the Hereafter. Then the Almighty said: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs, and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." Whoever does what God has commanded him to do and leaves what God and His Messenger have forbidden him to do, God the Almighty will make him dwell in the abode of His honor and make him a companion of the prophets, then of those who come after them in rank, who are the truthful ones, then the martyrs and the righteous whose inner and outer selves are good, then God the Almighty praised them and said: And excellent are those as companions. Al-Bukhari said: Muhammad ibn Abdullah ibn Hawshab told us, Ibrahim ibn Saad told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aisha, who said: I heard the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, say: There is no prophet who falls ill but he is given the choice between this world and the Hereafter. And during the illness in which he died, he had a severe hoarseness, so I heard him say: With those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the truthful ones, the martyrs and the righteous. So I knew that he was given the choice. Muslim narrated it in the same way from the hadith of Shu'bah, on the authority of Sa'd ibn Ibrahim. This is the meaning of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said in the other hadith: O God, the highest companion, three times, then he passed away, may the best prayers and peace be upon him.

Mention the reason for the revelation of this noble verse

Ibn Jarir said: Ibn Hamid told us, Yaqub al-Qummi told us, on the authority of Ja'far ibn Abi al-Mughira, on the authority of Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said: A man from the Ansar came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he was sad. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: O so-and-so, why do I see you sad? He said: O Prophet of God, I have thought about something. He said: What is it? He said: We come to you in the morning and in the evening, looking at your face and sitting with you, and tomorrow you will be raised up with the prophets, but we will not be able to reach you. The Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him with anything. Then Gabriel came to him with this verse: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with the prophets upon whom God has bestowed favor Al-Baqarah 2:13. So he sent the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and gave him good tidings. This hadith was narrated in a mursal form on the authority of Masruq, Ikrimah, Amir al-Sha'bi, Qatadah, and al-Rabi' ibn Anas, and it is one of the best in chain of transmission. Ibn Jarir said: Al-Muthanna told us, Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: And whoever obeys God and the Messenger the verse, and he said: The companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: We know that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, has a superiority over those who believe in him in the degrees of Paradise from those who follow him and believe in him, and how will they see each other when they gather in Paradise? Then God revealed this verse, and he said: meaning the Messenger of God, "The most high will descend to those who are below them, and they will gather in gardens and remember what God has bestowed upon them and praise Him, and the people of degrees will descend to them and they will strive to do for them what they desire and what they ask for, so they will be in a garden, rejoicing and enjoying it." It was narrated with a chain of transmission traceable back to the Prophet from another source, and Abu Bakr bin Mardawayh said: Abd al-Rahim bin Muhammad bin Muslim told us, Ismail bin Ahmad bin Asid told us, Abdullah bin Imran told us, Fadil bin Ayyad told us, on the authority of Mansur, on the authority of Ibrahim, on the authority of al-Aswad, on the authority of Aisha, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, you are more beloved to me than myself, and more beloved to me than my family, and more beloved to me than my children, and when I am in the house and I remember you, I cannot wait until I come to you and look at you, and when I remember my death and your death, I know that if you enter Paradise, you will be raised with the Prophets, and if you enter Paradise, I fear that I will not see you, so the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him. And he remained silent until the verse was revealed to him: "And whoever obeys God and the Messenger - those will be with those upon whom God has bestowed favor of the prophets, the steadfast affirmers of truth, the martyrs and the righteous. And excellent are those as companions." And thus, Al-Hafiz Abu Abdullah Al-Maqdisi narrated it in his book on the description of Paradise, on the authority of Al-Tabarani, on the authority of Ahmad bin Amr bin Muslim Al-Khalal, on the authority of Abdullah bin Imran Al-Abidi, on his authority. Then he said: I do not see any harm in its chain of transmission, and God knows best. Ibn Mardawayh also said: Sulayman bin Ahmad told us, Al-Abbas bin Al-Fadl Al-Asfati told us, Abu Bakr bin Thabit bin Abbas Al-Masry told us, Khalid bin Abdullah told us, on the authority of Ata bin Al-Saib, on the authority of Amir Al-Sha'bi, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: That a man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I love you so much that I even mention you in the house and it is difficult for me, and I would like to be with you in the same degree. But the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not respond to him at all, so God, the Almighty, revealed this verse. It was narrated by Ibn Jarir on the authority of Ibn Hamid on the authority of Jarir on the authority of Ata' on the authority of Al-Sha'bi, with no chain of transmission. It was confirmed in Sahih Muslim from the hadith of Haql ibn Ziyad on the authority of Al-Awza'i on the authority of Yahya ibn Abi Katheer on the authority of Abu Salamah ibn Abd

Al-Rahman on the authority of Rabi'ah ibn Ka'b Al-Aslami that he said: I used to spend the night with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I would bring him his ablution water and what he needed, and he said to me, Ask. So I said, O Messenger of God, I ask you to be my companion in Paradise. He said, Or something else? I said, That is it. He said, Then help me with yourself by prostrating frequently.

Imam Ahmad said: Yahya ibn Ishaq told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Ubayd God ibn Abi Ja'far, on the authority of Isa ibn Talhah, on the authority of Amr ibn Murrah al-Juhani, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, I bear witness that there is no god but God and that you are the Messenger of God, and I prayed the five daily prayers, and I paid the zakat on my wealth, and I fasted the month of Ramadan. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever dies upon that will be with the prophets, the truthful ones, and the martyrs on the Day of Resurrection, and so on - and he raised his two fingers - so long as he does not disobey his parents. Ahmad alone transmitted this. Imam Ahmad also said: Abu Saeed, the freed slave of Abu Hashim, told us, Ibn Lahi'ah told us, on the authority of Zaban bin Fa'id, on the authority of Sahl bin Mu'adh bin Anas, on the authority of his father, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever recites a thousand verses in the way of God will be recorded on the Day of Resurrection with the prophets, the truthful, and the righteous martyrs. What excellent companions they are, God willing." Al-Tirmidhi narrated on the authority of Sufyan al-Thawri, on the authority of Abu Hamza, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, on the authority of Abu Saeed, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The truthful, trustworthy merchant is with the prophets, the truthful, and the martyrs. Then he said: This is a good hadith that we do not know except from this source, and Abu Hamza's name is Abdullah bin Jabir, a Basran sheikh. And greater than all of this is the glad tidings that are proven in the Sahih and Musnads and others through continuous chains of transmission on the authority of a group of the Companions, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was asked about a man who loves a people but has not yet joined them, so he said: A person will be with those he loves. Anas said: The Muslims were never so happy as they were with this hadith. In a narration on the authority of Anas, he said: I love the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and I love Abu Bakr and Umar, may God be pleased with them, and I hope that God will send me with them even if I do not do as they did. Imam Malik bin Anas said, on the authority of Safwan bin Salim, on the authority of Ata bin Yasar, on the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see the people of the chambers above them, just as you see a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, due to the difference in degrees between them. They said: O Messenger of God, those are the dwellings of the prophets, and no one else will reach them. He said:

Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed the messengers. They included it in the two Sahihis on the authority of Malik, and the wording is from Muslim. Imam Ahmad narrated it. Fazarah told us, Falihi told me on the authority of Hilal, meaning Ibn Ali, on the authority of Ata, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The people of Paradise will see each other in Paradise just as you see - or you see - a shining star setting in the east or west horizon, in the difference in degrees. They said: O Messenger of God, are those prophets? He said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, they are men who believed in God and believed in the Messengers. Al-Hafiz Al-Dhiya' Al-Maqdisi said: This hadith meets the conditions of Al-Bukhari, and God knows best.

Al-Hafiz Abu al-Qasim al-Tabarani said in his great dictionary: Ali bin Abdul Aziz told us, Muhammad bin Ammar al-Mawili told us, Aff bin Salim told us, on the authority of Ayoub, on the authority of Utbah, on the authority of Ata', on the authority of Ibn Umar, who said: A man from Abyssinia came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, asking him. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: Ask and inquire. He said: O Messenger of God, you have been given preference over us with images, colors, and prophethood. Then he said: Tell me, if I believe in what you believe in and do what you do, will I be with you in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes, by the One in Whose Hand is my soul, the whiteness of the black glows in Paradise from a distance of a thousand years. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Whoever says: There is no god but God, will have a covenant with God for it, and whoever says: Glory be to God and praise be to Him, one hundred thousand good deeds and twenty-four thousand good deeds will be written for him." A man said: How will we perish after this, O Messenger of God? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "A man will come on the Day of Resurrection with deeds that if placed on a mountain would weigh him down, and then a blessing from God will arise, and it will almost exhaust all of that, unless God covers him with His mercy." And these verses were revealed: "Has there not been over man a period of time when he was not a thing worth mentioning? Indeed, We created man from a sperm-drop mixture that We may try him; and We made him hearing and seeing. Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or ungrateful." Until His saying: And when you look, you will see pleasure and great dominion. The Abyssinian said: And my eyes will see what your eyes will see in Paradise? The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Yes. Then he wept until his soul passed away. Ibn Umar said: "I saw the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, lowering him into his grave with his own hands." There is something strange and strange about it, and its chain of transmission is weak. For this reason, God, the Most High, said: That is the bounty from God, meaning from God through His mercy, and He is the One Who qualified them for that, not through their deeds. And sufficient is God as Knower, meaning He knows who deserves guidance and success.

Fath al-Qadir

70- That is the grace of God, and God is sufficient as Knower.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

70- That is the grace from God, and God is sufficient as Knower. That is, with the reward of the Hereafter. It was also said: with those who obeyed the Messenger of God and loved him. This shows that they did not attain that degree through their obedience, but rather they attained it through the grace of God Almighty.

Ahmad bin Abdullah Al-Salihi told us, Abu Bakr Ahmad bin Al-Hasan Al-Hiri told us, Hajib bin Ahmad Al-Tusi told us, Abdul Rahim bin Munib told us, Ali bin Ubaid told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Be close and aim straight, and know that none of you will be saved by his deeds. They said: Not even you, O Messenger of God? He said: Not even me, unless God covers me with His mercy and grace.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

70 That is a subject, referring to the reward, further guidance, and company of those who are blessed, or to the virtue and merit of those who are blessed. Favour is its description. From God is its predicate, or favour is its predicate, and from God is a state, and the factor in it is the meaning of reference. And God is sufficient as Knower of the reward of those who obey Him, or of the amounts of favour and the deservingness of those who deserve it.

Surat al-Nisa 4:71

O you who have believed, take your precaution and go forth in companies or go forth all together.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

O you who have believed, take your precautions against your enemy, that is, be on your guard against him and be alert for him and go forth rise up to fight him in groups dispersing one group after another or go forth all together together.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: O you who have believed, believe in God and His Messenger, take your precautions, take your shields and your weapons with which you protect yourself from your enemy to attack and fight them, and go forth to them steadfastly.

It is the plural of thaba, and thaba is the clan.

The meaning of the words: Go out to your enemy, group after group, armed.

And from the proof is the saying of Zuhair:

I may come to a place of honor, intoxicated, finding whatever I want.

The word thaba may be pluralized as thabain.

Or go forth all together, meaning: Or go forth all together with your Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to fight them. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna narrated to us, he said: Abdullah bin Saleh narrated to us, he said: Muawiyah narrated to me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Take your precautions and go forth in groups, he said: in groups, meaning scattered squadrons, or go forth all together, meaning: all of you.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Then go forth in companies, he said: In groups, little by little.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: Then go forth in groups, he said: Groups are groups.

Al-Husayn bin Yahya told us, he said: Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said: Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, similarly.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told me, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Then go forth in groups, meaning a group, which is a group, or go forth all together, with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Al-Dahhak say regarding His statement: Then go forth in companies, meaning: scattered groups.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has five issues:

First - The Almighty's saying: O you who have believed, take your precautions. This is an address to the sincere believers from the nation of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, and He commanded them to wage jihad against the infidels and go out in the way of God and protect the law. The aspect of the system and connection with what came before is that when He mentioned obedience to God and obedience to His Messenger, He commanded the people of obedience to revive His religion and raise His call, and He commanded them not to rush upon their enemy out of ignorance until they sense what they have and work out how to respond to them. This is proven for them, so He said: Take your precautions. So He taught them to directly engage in wars. This does not contradict trust, rather it is the exact position of trust, as mentioned in Al Imran and will come. And caution and caution are two languages, like the proverb and the proverb. Al Farra' said: Most speech is caution, and caution is also heard. It is said: Take your precautions. That is, beware. And it was said: Take the weapon cautiously because caution is with it, and caution does not ward off fate. It is:

The second - contrary to the Qadarites in their saying: Caution repels and prevents the plots of enemies, and if it were not so, there would be no meaning to their command to be cautious. It is said to them: There is no evidence in the verse that caution benefits anything from fate, but we have been commanded not to throw ourselves into destruction. From this is the hadith:

Tie it up and trust in God. Even if fate is going according to what He has decreed, and God does what He wills, what is meant by it is peace of mind, not that this is of any benefit from fate. Likewise, taking caution is also required. The evidence for that is that God Almighty praised the companions of His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, by saying: Say, 'Nothing will ever happen to us except what God has decreed for us.' (al-Tawbah 9:51) So if something other than what He has decreed for them had happened to them, then this statement would have had no meaning.

Third - The Almighty's saying: Then go forth in groups. It is said: Nafar yanfar with a kasra on the fa' nafiran. And the beast shuddered with a damma on the fa' nafuran, meaning: Rise up to fight the enemy. The imam called the people to shudder, calling them to go out to fight the enemy. Nafir is a name for the people who go forth, and its origin is from nafar and nafur, which means panic. From this is the Almighty's saying: And they turned on their backs in aversion (al-Isra' 17:46), meaning in aversion. And from this is the skin's swelling, and a man used a reed to clean his mouth, so his mouth swelled, meaning it became swollen. Abu Ubaid said: It is from nafar something from something, which is its distancing from it and distancing itself from it. Ibn Faris said: Nafar is a group of men from three to ten, and nafir is also like nafar and nafara, Al-Farra' narrated it with a ha'. And the day of nafar is the day when people go forth from Mina, and thabaat means scattered groups. And it is said: thabān, which is the plural of safety in the feminine and masculine. Amr ibn Kulthum said:

But on the day when we fear for them, they will become a strong and steadfast group.

The Almighty's saying: steadfastness is a metaphor for the raiding parties, the singular of which is a group of people and originally it was thaiba. The steadfastness of the army made them thaba thaba. And thaba is the middle of the basin to which the water returns, that is, it goes back. An-Nahhas said: Perhaps the weak in Arabic thought that they are one and that one of them is from the other and there is a difference between them. So the thaba of the basin is called in its diminutive form thawwayba because it is from thaba yathub and it is said in the thaba of the group: thabiyya. Someone else said: So the thaba of the basin has deleted the waw and it is the root of the verb, and the thaba of the group is weak in the lam from thaba yathbu like khalaykhu. It is possible that thaba means the group from the thaba of the basin because when the water returns it gathers, so on this basis the group is made diminutive of thawbiyya and one of the two yas is inserted into the other. It has been said that the thaba of the group is derived from thabat for a man if you praise him during his life and gather the good qualities of his memory, so it returns to the gathering.

Fourth - The Almighty's saying: Or go forth all together means the large army with the Messenger, peace be upon him. This was said by Ibn Abbas and others. The raiding parties do not go out except with the permission of the Imam so that he may spy on them and support them from behind them. Perhaps they need to ward him off. The ruling on raiding parties, their wealth, their rulings on armies, and the obligation to go forth will come in Al-Anfal and Bara'ah, God willing.

Fifth - Ibn Khuwaiz Mandad mentioned: It was said that this verse was abrogated by the Almighty's saying: Go forth, whether light or heavy, and by His saying: If you do not go forth, He will punish you. And because Go forth, whether light or heavy was abrogated by His saying: Then go forth in companies or go forth all together, and by His saying: It is not for the believers to go forth all together, it is more appropriate because the obligation of jihad was established by sufficiency, so when some Muslims closed the gaps, the obligation was dropped from the rest. What is correct is that both verses are decisive, one for the time when it is necessary to appoint everyone and the other when it is sufficient for one group and not another.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty commands His believing servants to be wary of their enemy, and this requires preparing for them by preparing weapons and equipment, and increasing the number by going out in the way of God thabat meaning group after group, division after division, and company after company, and thabab is the plural of thaba, and thaba can be pluralized as thabain. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: His statement: Then go out in companies meaning groups, meaning scattered companies, or go out all together means all of you, and this is also narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah, As-Suddi, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, Ata' Al-Khurasani, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and Khasif Al-Jazari.

And the Almighty's saying: And indeed, among you is he who tarries. Mujahid and more than one person said: It was revealed about the hypocrites. Muqatil ibn Hayyan said: He tarries means he stays behind from jihad. It is possible that what is meant is that he tarries himself and makes others tarry from jihad, as Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul - may God curse him - used to do. He tarries from jihad and discourages people from going out for it. This is the saying of Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Jarir. That is why the Almighty said, informing about the hypocrite that he says: If he tarries from jihad, Then if a disaster befalls you, meaning killing and martyrdom and the enemy overcomes you, because God has wisdom in that, He says, 'God has bestowed favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them,' meaning that I did not attend the battle with them, and that was considered one of God's favors upon him, and he did not know what reward he missed in patience or martyrdom if he was killed.

And if a bounty from God comes to you, meaning victory, triumph, and spoils, he will surely say, as if there had never been any affection between you and him, meaning as if he were not of your religion. Oh, I wish I had been with them; then I would have achieved a great victory, meaning that a share would be struck for me with them so that I would obtain it. This was his greatest intention and the ultimate goal of his desire.

Then God the Almighty said: So let those fight in the cause of God who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter meaning they sell their religion for a small worldly gain, and that is only because of their disbelief and lack of faith. Then God the Almighty said: And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious - We will give him a great reward meaning everyone who fights in the cause of God, whether he is killed or is victorious, has a great reward and abundant reward from God, as is proven in the two Sahihs: And God has guaranteed to the one who fights in His cause that if He takes him, He will admit him to Paradise or return him to the home from which he left with what he gained of reward or spoils.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 71- O you who have believed This is an address to the sincere believers, and an order to them to fight the infidels and go out in the way of God, and caution and caution are two languages like proverb and proverb. Al-Farraa said: Most speech is caution. And caution is also heard, it is said: Take caution, meaning beware, and it was said that the meaning of the verse is: The order is for them to take up arms cautiously, because caution is in it. His saying Then go forth Nafaru yanfaru with a kasra on the fa, nafaran, and the animal yanfaru with a damma on the fa, nafaran. The meaning is: Rise up to fight the enemy. Or Nafir is a name for the people who go forth, and its origin is from nafar and nafur, which means fright, and from it the saying of God the Almighty And they turned back on their heels in aversion meaning: fleeing. His saying Thabat is the plural of thabba: meaning a group, and the meaning is: go forth in scattered groups. His saying Or go forth all together means: gathered as one army. The meaning of the verse: The command for them to go forth in one of the two descriptions so that this would be more severe on their enemy and so that they would be safe from being snatched by the enemy if each one of them went forth alone or something like that. It was said: This verse was abrogated by the Almighty's saying: Go forth, whether light or heavy, and by His saying: If you do not go forth, He will punish you. The correct view is that both verses are decisive: one is at a time when everyone needs to go forth, and the other is when it is sufficient for some to go forth without others.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

71- The Almighty said: O you who have believed, take your precautions, meaning: your equipment and your weapons. Precaution and caution are one and the same, like the proverb and the proverb and the likeness and the likeness. Then go forth, go out in groups, meaning: in separate raids, raid after raid, and the group is groups in a division, the singular of which is thabba, "or go forth all together," meaning: all of you gathered with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

71 O you who have believed, take your precautions. Be alert and prepare for the enemies. Caution and caution are like trace and trace. It was said that what is warned with is like firmness and weapons. Then go forth. So go out to jihad. Standard are scattered groups, the plural of thabba from thabait on someone, thabbiyyah if you mention the scattered good qualities of someone, and it is also pluralized as thabeen to make up for what was deleted from its deficiency. "Or go forth all together" together as one group, and even though the verse was revealed about war, its wording should be generalized to the obligation to hasten to do all good deeds however you wish before it is too late.

Surat al-Nisa 4:72

And indeed, among you is he who tarries. But if a disaster befalls you, he says, "Allah has conferred favor upon me in that I was not present with them."

Surat al-Nisa 4:72

And indeed, among you is he who tarries. But if a disaster befalls you, he says, God has conferred favor upon me in that I was not present with them.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And among you are those who linger to delay the fighting, such as Abdullah bin Abi the hypocrite and his companions, and he made him one of them in terms of the apparent meaning, and the lam in the verb is for swearing But if a disaster befalls you such as killing or defeat he says, God has conferred favor upon me in that I was not present with them so he was afflicted.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is a description from God, the Most High, of the hypocrites. He described them to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his companions, and described them by their description, saying: And among you, O believers, meaning: from your number and your people, and whoever resembles you, and appears to be from the people of your call and your religion, and he is a hypocrite who delays from those of you who obey him from jihad and fighting your enemy when you go out to them, If a disaster befalls you, meaning: If you are defeated, or you are killed or wounded by your enemy, he says, 'God has conferred favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them,' so I am afflicted with wounds, pain, or killing, and his secret is he is staying behind from you, gloating over you, because he is among those who doubt the promise of God that He promised to the believers for what they have attained in His path of reward and recompense, and in His threat. So he is neither hopeful of reward, nor afraid of punishment.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: "And among you are those who delay. But if a disaster befalls you," to his statement: Then We will give him a great reward, what he explained about the hypocrites.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, similarly.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And among you is he who slows down from jihad and fighting in the way of God, but if a disaster befalls you, he says, 'God has conferred favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them.' He said: This is a false statement.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told us, Ibn Jurayj said: The hypocrite is slow to prevent the Muslims from fighting in the way of God. God said, But if a disaster befalls you, he said: By killing the enemy from among the Muslims, he said, 'God has conferred favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them,' he said: This is the saying of the one who is gloating.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: If a disaster befalls you, he said: Defeat.

The letter lam was included in his statement: to whom and it was opened because it is the letter lam that is included to confirm the report with in like the saying of the speaker: Indeed in the house there is someone who will honor you. As for the second letter lam in li-yabat'in, it was included to answer the oath. The meaning of the statement was: And among you, O people, there is someone who, by God, will be slow.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: And indeed, among you are those who linger meaning the hypocrites. Slowing down and slowing down are delays. You say: What delayed you from us? It is intransitive. It is also permissible to slow down so-and-so from such-and-such, meaning I delayed him, so it is transitive. Both meanings are intended in the verse. So, they would sit back from going out and others would sit back. The meaning is that among your intruders and your kind and among those who have shown their faith to you. So, the hypocrites are apparently from the number of Muslims by applying the rulings of the Muslims to them. The lam in His statement for whomever is a lam of emphasis, and the second is a lam of oath. From is in the accusative case, and its conjunction is for them to linger because it has the meaning of oath and report, from you. Mujahid, Al-Nakha'i, and Al-Kalbi read and indeed, among you are those who linger with a light vowel, and the meaning is the same. It was said: What is intended by His statement: And indeed, among you are those who linger is some of the believers because God addressed them with His statement: And indeed, among you. And God Almighty differentiated between the believers and the hypocrites with His statement: And they are not of you (al-Tawbah 9:56). This is The context and appearance of the speech reject this. Rather, they were brought together in the address on the basis of gender and lineage, as we have explained, not on the basis of faith. This is the opinion of the majority, and it is correct, God willing. And God knows best. This is indicated by his statement: If a disaster befalls you, meaning killing and defeat, he says, 'God has bestowed favor upon me,' meaning by sitting still. This can only come from a hypocrite, especially in that noble time. It is unlikely that a believer would say this. Look at this verse, which the imams narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, informing us about the hypocrites:

The most burdensome prayer for them is the 'Isha' and the Fajr prayer. If they only knew what was in them, they would come to them even if they had to crawl. The hadith in the narration: And if one of them knew that he would find a fat bone, he would attend it. He means the 'Isha' prayer. He says: If something from this world appeared that they could take and they were certain of it, they would rush to it. This is the meaning of His statement: And if bounty from God should come to you, meaning booty and victory. He will surely say, this hypocrite is the statement of a regretful, envious person, Oh, I wish I had been with them so I could attain a great attainment. "As if there had never been any affection between you and him." So the speech is about bringing things forward and delaying. It was said: The meaning is He will surely say, as if there had never been any affection between you and him, meaning as if he had not made a contract with you for jihad. It was said: It is in the accusative case as a state. Al-Hasan read Liyaqulun with a damma on the lam in the sense of from, because the meaning of his statement for whomever he is to be slowed down does not mean a specific man. Whoever opens the lam repeats and makes the pronoun singular in the wording of from. Ibn Kathir and Hafs from 'Asim read As if there had never been with a ta' in the wording of affection. Whoever reads with a ya' makes affection mean love. The hypocrite's statement Oh, I wish I had been with them so I could attain a great attainment. I was with them out of envy or regret for missing out on the spoils with doubt about the reward from God "so I win is the answer to the wish and for this reason it is in the accusative case and Al-Hasan read so I win" in the nominative case as if he wished to win, so it is as if he said: Oh, if only I could win a great victory. The accusative case is in the answer and the meaning is if I was with them I would win and the accusative case is implied because it is based on the interpretation of the source, the estimate is Oh, if only I had been present so I could win.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty commands His believing servants to be wary of their enemy, and this requires preparing for them by preparing weapons and equipment, and increasing the number by going out in the way of God thabat meaning group after group, division after division, and company after company, and thabab is the plural of thaba, and thaba can be pluralized as thabain. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: His statement: Then go out in companies meaning groups, meaning scattered companies, or go out all together means all of you, and this is also narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah, As-Suddi, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, Ata' Al-Khurasani, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and Khasif Al-Jazari.

And the Almighty's saying: And indeed, among you is he who tarries. Mujahid and more than one person said: It was revealed about the hypocrites. Muqatil bin Hayyan said: He tarries means he stays behind from jihad. It is possible that what is meant is that he tarries himself and makes others tarry from jihad, as Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul - may God curse him - used to do. He tarries from jihad and discourages people from going out for it. This is the saying of Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Jarir. That is why the Almighty said, informing about the hypocrite that he says: If he tarries from jihad, Then if a disaster befalls you, meaning killing and martyrdom and the enemy overcomes you, because God has wisdom in that, He says, 'God has bestowed favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them,' meaning that I did not attend the battle with them, and that was considered one of God's favors upon him, and he did not know what reward he missed in patience or martyrdom if he was killed.

And if a bounty from God comes to you, meaning victory, triumph, and spoils, he will surely say, as if there had never been any affection between you and him, meaning as if he were not of your religion. Oh, I wish I had been with them; then I would have achieved a great victory, meaning that a share would be struck for me with them so that I would obtain it. This was his greatest intention and the ultimate goal of his desire.

Then God the Almighty said: So let those fight in the cause of God who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter meaning they sell their religion for a small worldly gain, and that is only because of their disbelief and lack of faith. Then God the Almighty said: And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious - We will give him a great reward meaning everyone who fights in the cause of God, whether he is killed or is victorious, has a great reward and abundant reward from God, as is proven in the two Sahih: And God has guaranteed to the one who fights in His cause that if He takes him, He will admit him to Paradise or return him to the home from which he left with what he gained of reward or spoils.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 72- "And indeed, among you are those who will slow down." Slowing down and slowing down are delays. What is meant is: The hypocrites would sit back from going out and let others stay behind. The meaning is: Among your intruders and your kind and those who showed you their faith hypocritically are those who will slow down the believers and discourage them. The lam in his saying "for whomever" is a lam of emphasis. In his saying "will slow down is the lam of the oath, and whoever" is in the accusative case and its clause is connected. Mujahid, An-Nakha'i and Al-Kalbi read "will slow down" with a light sukoon. "If a disaster befalls you" of killing, defeat or loss of wealth. This hypocrite said: God has bestowed His favor upon me since I was not with them until what befell them befell me.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

72- The Almighty's saying: And among you are those who are slow to respond, was revealed about the hypocrites.

Rather, He said, from you because they were united with the people of faith in nationality and lineage and in showing Islam, not in reality in faith. Liyabatan means: let them delay, and let them be slow in jihad, and he is Abdullah bin Abi the hypocrite. The lam in liyabatan is the lam of the oath, and slowing down means delaying from a matter. It is said: What delayed you? That is: What delayed you from us? It is also said: He was slowed down meaning: He was killed and defeated, "He said: God has bestowed favor upon me" by being able to sit, since I was not a witness with them meaning: present in that raid, so that what happened to them would happen to me.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

72 "And indeed, among you is he who will slacken off." The address is to the army of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, the believers among them and the hypocrites. And those who slack off are their hypocrites who are slow and lagging behind in the face of glory. From bata'a means to slow down, which is intransitive. Or they discouraged others, as Ibn Abi discouraged people on the Day of Uhud. From bata'a, transferred from batu' like thaqa from thaqa. The first lam is for the beginning, and entered the name of in for the separation by the report. The second is the answer to an omitted oath, and the oath with its answer is the connection of "min" and what refers back to it is what is implied in li-yaba'tin. The estimate is: Indeed, among you is he who swears by God that he will slacken off.

If a disaster befalls you, such as killing or defeat, he said, the slow-moving one, God has been gracious to me in that I was not present with them as a witness, so that what befell them would befall me.

Surat al-Nisa 4:73

And if the lam of an oath you have been granted bounty from God such as victory and spoils they will surely say regretfully as if lightened and its subject is deleted, meaning as if there was not with the ya and the ta between you and him affection knowledge and friendship, and this goes back to his saying God has bestowed His favor upon me, which he interrupted between the saying and what it said, and it is ya for emphasis would that I had been with them so I would have attained a great attainment I would have taken a generous share of the spoils.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty says: And if bounty from God befalls you, and if God gives you victory over your enemy and you take from them booty, this one who slows down the Muslims from jihad with you in the way of God, the hypocrite, as if there was no love between you and him, will say, Oh, I wish I had been with them so I could have attained. What I took from the booty with them, a great attainment.

This is report from God Almighty about these hypocrites: that if they witness the war with the Muslims, it is to seek spoils, and if they stay away from it, it is because of the doubt in their hearts, and that they do not hope for reward for attending it, nor do they fear punishment from God for staying away from it.

Qatada and Ibn Jurayj used to say: The hypocrites who said when the Muslims were victorious said, I wish I had been with them, out of envy of them.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And if a favor from God comes to you, he will surely say, as if there had never been between you and him, 'Oh, I wish I had been with them so I could have achieved a great attainment.' He said: The words of an envious person.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, regarding his statement: And if there comes to you bounty from God, he said: The Muslims' victory over their enemy and they obtain the spoils, so that they will say: Oh, I wish I had been with them so I could have achieved a great victory, he said: The words of the envious person.

It was said that there is an inversion in the speech - and it was said that the meaning is: they will surely say as if there had never been any affection between you and him: that is, as if he had not made a contract with you for jihad. It was said that it is in the accusative case as a state. Al-Hasan read "liyaqulun" with a damma on the lam meaning from. Ibn Kathir and Hafs ibn Asim read "as if there had never been" with a ta' on the wording of affection. His saying "So I will win" in the accusative case as an answer to the wish. Al-Hasan read "So I will win in the nominative case."

hypocrites who slow him down, and the Muslims weakened him by attack and envy, as if there had never been any affection between you and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, since he did not seek your help so you would have achieved what they achieved, "Oh, would that I had been with them". It was said that it is connected to the first sentence, and it is weak, since parts of the sentence are not separated by what is not related to it in wording and meaning, and "like" is a lightened form of the heavy form, and its name is the pronoun of the matter, and it is deleted. Ibn Kathir and Hafs on the authority of Asim and Ruways on the authority of Yaqub read takun with a ta' to feminize the word of affection, and the vocative in ya litany is omitted, meaning: ya qawm. It was said ya atlaq to draw attention to the expansion, so fafuz is in the accusative case as a response to the wish, and it was read with the nominative case on the assumption that fafuz at that time, or in conjunction with kanat.

73- And if a bounty from God befalls you, victory and spoils, he will surely say, this hypocrite, and there is an advancement and delay in it, and his saying as if there had never been between you and him affection is connected to his saying but if a disaster befalls you," meaning: if a disaster befalls you, he said: God has bestowed favor upon me since I was not a witness with them, as if there had never been between you and him affection, meaning: knowledge.

Ibn Kathir, Hafs, and Yaqub read takun with a ta', and the rest with a ya': meaning: And if you are granted bounty from God, they will say: Oh, I wish I had been with them in that raid, so I would have achieved a great achievement, meaning: I would have taken a generous share of the spoils. His saying so I would have achieved is in the accusative case as an answer to the wish with the fa', just as you say: I wish I could stand up so that people would follow me.

God Almighty said: So let those fight in the cause of God to exalt His religion who exchange sell (the life of this world for the Hereafter. And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed) is martyred or overcomes triumphs over his enemy We will give him a great reward a generous reward.

Abu Ja'far said: This is an exhortation from God to the believers to wage jihad against His enemy from among the people of disbelief in Him, whether they are victorious or defeated, and to be lenient with the words of the hypocrites in the jihad against those polytheists who wage jihad against them, and that they have a high status with God in their jihad against them - whether they are defeated or victorious.

God, the Most High, says to them: So let them fight in the cause of God, meaning: in the religion of God and calling to it, and engaging in what the people of disbelief have been commanded to do, who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter, meaning: those who sell their life of this world for the reward of the Hereafter and what God has promised to the people of His obedience in it. And their selling it for it: their spending their money in seeking the pleasure of God, in jihad against those whom He has commanded to be jihaded from among His enemies and the enemies of His religion, and their sacrificing their lives for Him in that.

God Almighty has informed us of what they will get if they do it, saying: And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious - We will give him a great reward. He says: And whoever fights - in the pursuit of establishing God's religion and raising the word of God - the enemies of God, and is killed, he says: the enemies of God kill him, or he is victorious over them and is victorious over them, we will give him a great reward, he says: We will give him a great reward and recompense in the Hereafter. And what God Almighty has called great has no extent that the servants of God know its extent.

We have shown that the most common meaning of I bought in the speech of the Arabs is I sold, which makes it unnecessary to repeat it.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: So let those fight in the cause of God who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter, meaning: They sell the life of this world for the Hereafter.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: They sell the life of this world for the Hereafter. So, yashri means to sell, and yashri means to take, and the fools sold the Hereafter for the world.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

There are three issues

First: The Almighty's saying: So let him fight in the cause of God is addressed to the believers, meaning let him fight in the cause of God against the infidels who sell meaning sell, meaning give their souls and their wealth for God Almighty for the Hereafter meaning for the garment of the Hereafter.

The second - the Almighty's saying: And whoever fights in the way of God is a condition. And is killed or is victorious is in apposition to it, and the reward is We will give him a great reward. The meaning of And is killed and is martyred or is victorious is and is victorious and takes spoils. A group read And whoever fights, let him fight with a sukoon on the lam of the command, and a group read let him fight with a kasra on the lam of the command. So the Almighty mentioned the two extremes of the state of the fighter and was satisfied with the two extremes, as Ibn Atiyyah mentioned.

Third: The apparent meaning of the verse requires equality between those who were killed as martyrs or those who returned as victors. In Sahih Muslim, it is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurairah that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

God guarantees that whoever goes out in His cause, He will not send him out to jihad in My cause, believing in Me and confirming My messengers. He guarantees that I will admit him into Paradise or return him to the home from which he went out, having attained whatever reward or spoils he attained." He mentioned the hadith, in which it says, "On the authority of Abdullah bin Amr, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

There is no warrior who fights in the way of God and obtains booty except that they hasten to take two-thirds of their reward from the other, and one-third remains for them. If they do not obtain booty, their reward is complete. So his statement: "Getting whatever reward or booty they obtained" requires that one of the mujahideen who is not martyred has one of two options: either a reward if they do not obtain booty, or wealth and no reward, unlike the hadith of Abdullah bin Amr. Since this was the case, some people said: The hadith of Abdullah bin Amr is nothing because in its chain of transmission is Hamid bin Hani' who is not well-known. They preferred the first hadith over it because of its well-known nature. Others said: There is no contradiction or difference between them. And or in the hadith of Abu Hurayrah means and as the Kufians say. This is indicated by the narration of Abu Dawud, for he said in it:

From reward and spoils with the comprehensive waw. Some narrators of Muslim also narrated it with the

So let those fight in the way of Allah who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter. And whoever fights in the way of Allah and is killed or victorious - We will give him a great reward.

comprehensive waw. Hamid bin Hani', an Egyptian, heard Abu Abd al-Rahman al-Halabi and Amr bin Malik. Haywah bin Shuraih and Ibn Wahb narrated from him. The first hadith is to be understood as referring to mere intention and sincerity in jihad. That is what God has guaranteed for him, either martyrdom or returning him to his family as a rewarded and successful person. The second is to be understood as referring to when he intended jihad but with the aim of obtaining spoils. When his intention was divided, his reward was diminished. The Sunnah indicated that the one who gains spoils has a reward, as the Book indicated. So there is no contradiction. Then it was said: The decrease in the reward of the one who gains spoils is only because of what God opened up to him of this world, so he enjoyed it and removed from himself the hardship of his life. And whoever failed and did not obtain anything remained in his hardship of life and was patient in his condition, so his reward remained abundant, unlike the first. Similar to it is his statement in the other hadith:

Some of us died without eating anything from his reward - including Mus'ab bin Umair - and some of us had their fruits ripe and are still harvesting them.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty commands His believing servants to be wary of their enemy, and this requires preparing for them by preparing weapons and equipment, and increasing the number by going out in the way of God thabat meaning group after group, division after division, and company after company, and thabab is the plural of thaba, and thaba can be pluralized as thabain. Ali bin Abi Talha said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: His statement: Then go out in companies meaning groups, meaning scattered companies, or go out all together means all of you, and this is also narrated on the authority of Mujahid, Ikrimah, As-Suddi, Qatadah, Ad-Dahhak, Ata' Al-Khurasani, Muqatil bin Hayyan, and Khasif Al-Jazari.

And the Almighty's saying: And indeed, among you is he who tarries. Mujahid and more than one person said: It was revealed about the hypocrites. Muqatil bin Hayyan said: He tarries means he stays behind from jihad. It is possible that what is meant is that he tarries himself and makes others tarry from jihad, as Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul - may God curse him - used to do. He tarries from jihad and discourages people from going out for it. This is the saying of Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Jarir. That is why the Almighty said, informing about the hypocrite that he says: If he tarries from jihad, Then if a disaster befalls you, meaning killing and martyrdom and the enemy overcomes you, because God has wisdom in that, He says, 'God has bestowed favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them,' meaning that I did not attend the battle with them, and that was considered one of God's favors upon him, and he did not know what reward he missed in patience or martyrdom if he was killed.

And if a bounty from God comes to you, meaning victory, triumph, and spoils, he will surely say, as if there had never been any affection between you and him, meaning as if he were not of your religion. Oh, I wish I had been with them; then I would have achieved a great victory, meaning that a share would be struck for me with them so that I would obtain it. This was his greatest intention and the ultimate goal of his desire.

Then God the Almighty said: So let those fight in the cause of God who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter meaning they sell their religion for a small worldly gain, and that is only because of their disbelief and lack of faith. Then God the Almighty said: And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious - We will give him a great reward meaning everyone who fights in the cause of God, whether he is killed or is victorious, has a great reward and abundant reward from God, as is proven in the two Sahihs: And God has guaranteed to the one who fights in His cause that if He takes him, He will admit him to Paradise or return him to the home from which he left with what he gained of reward or spoils.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 74- So let him fight in the way of God This is an order to the believers, and the circumstance was placed before the subject to emphasize it. Those who buy means they sell, and they are the believers. The fa in his saying So let him fight is the answer to the condition, which is understood, meaning: If these previously mentioned, described among them, do not fight, then let the sincere ones who sacrifice their souls and sell the life of this world for the hereafter fight. Then he promised those who fight in the way of God that he will give them a great reward whose value cannot be measured, and that is that if he is killed, he will win martyrdom, which is the highest degree of rewards, and if he is victorious and triumphs, he will have the reward of one who fought in the way of God, along with what he has attained of elevation in this world and the spoils. The apparent meaning of this requires equality between the one who was killed as a martyr or who turned out to be a winner, and it may be said that the equality between them is only in giving the great reward, and it is not necessary for their reward to be equal, for something being great is one of the relative matters, some of which are great in relation to what is below it and insignificant in relation to To what is above it.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

74- The Almighty said: So let those fight in the cause of God who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter. It was said: It was revealed about the hypocrites, and the meaning of sell is: buy, meaning those who choose the world over the Hereafter, meaning: believe and then fight. It was said: It was revealed about the sincere believers, meaning: So let those fight in the cause of God who sell, meaning: sell the life of this world for the Hereafter and choose the Hereafter. And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed, meaning is martyred, or overcomes, "We will give him, in both versions, a great reward," and Abu Amr and Al-Kisa'i assimilate the Ba' into the Fa' wherever it is.

Abu al-Hasan Muhammad ibn Muhammad al-Sarakhsi told us, Zahir ibn Ahmad ibn Ahmad told us, Abu Ishaq al-Hashemi told us, Abu Mus'ab told us, Malik told us, Abu al-Zinad told us, al-A'raj told us, Abu Hurayrah told us that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "God has guaranteed to whoever strives in His cause, and nothing drives him out of his home except striving in His cause and believing in His word, that He will admit him into Paradise or return him to the home from which he left with whatever reward and spoils he has attained."

Abu Abdullah Muhammad bin Al-Fadl Al-Kharqi told us, Abu Al-Hasan Ali bin Abdullah Al-Taysifuni told us, Abu Abdul-Rahman Abdullah bin Omar Al-Jawhari told us, Ahmad bin Ali Al-Kashmihani told us, Ali bin Hajar told us, Ismail bin Jaafar told us, Muhammad bin Amr bin Alqamah, on the authority of Abu Salamah, on the authority of Abu Hurairah, may God be pleased with them both, that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "The example of the one who fights in the way of God is like the one who fasts and prays without slackening in prayer or fasting until God returns him to his family with what he returns with of booty and reward, or He takes him and admits him to Paradise."

74 "So let those fight in the cause of God who sell the life of this world for the Hereafter" meaning those who sell it for it. The meaning is that if these people are slow to fight, then let the sincere ones who sacrifice themselves in pursuit of the Hereafter fight, or those who buy it and choose it over the Hereafter, and they are the slow ones. The meaning is to urge them to abandon what has been reported about them. "And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious - We will give him a great reward He promised him a great reward whether he is victorious or is victorious, encouraging him to fight and denying their saying God has conferred favor upon me in that I was not a witness with them. Rather, He said is killed or is victorious" to draw attention to the fact that the mujahid should stand firm in battle until he honors himself with martyrdom or religion, with victory and triumph, and that his intention should not be to kill in particular, but rather to raise the word of truth and honor religion.

Surat al-Nisa 4:75

And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of Allah and for the oppressed among men, women and children who say, "Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors and appoint for us from Yourself a protector and appoint for us from Yourself a helper."

Surat al-Nisa 4:75

And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of God and for the oppressed among men, women and children who say, Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors and appoint for us from Yourself a protector and appoint for us from Yourself a helper.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And what is the matter with you that you fight not A question of rebuke, meaning there is nothing preventing you from fighting in the cause of God and in freeing the weak among men, women and children whom the infidels prevented from emigrating and harmed them. Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with him, said: My mother and I were among them. Those who say supplicating, O our Lord, take us out of this city Mecca whose people are oppressors with disbelief and appoint for us from Yourself from You a protector who will take care of our affairs and appoint for us from Yourself a helper who will protect us from them. And God answered their supplication and made it easy for some of them to leave and some of them remained until Mecca was conquered and the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, appointed Atab bin Asid, so he vindicated their oppressed against their oppressor.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means: And what is the matter with you, O believers, that you do not fight in the cause of God, and in the weak, He says: about the weak among you, of men, women, and children. As for the men, they had converted to Islam in Mecca, but their clans overpowered them by oppressing them, and they harmed them, and inflicted upon them torment and hardships in their bodies in order to tempt them away from their religion. So God urged the believers to rescue them from the hands of those who had overpowered them from among the infidels, so He said to them: What is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God, and about the weak among the people of your religion and nation whom the infidels had weakened and humiliated, seeking to tempt them and turn them away from their religion? Of the men, women, and children, the plural of child, meaning young boys, who say, 'Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors,' meaning that these oppressed men, women, and children say in their supplication to their Lord to save them from the trial of the polytheists who have hosted them: Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors.

The Arabs call every city a village - meaning: that which has wronged us and its people - and in this place, according to what the interpreters have explained, it is Mecca.

The word the oppressor was lowered because it is an attribute of the people, and the ha and alif in it refer to the village. This is what the Arabs do when an attribute of a noun precedes it, referring to a noun before it. Its inflection follows the inflection of the noun before it, as if it were an attribute of it. So you say: I passed by the generous man, his father.

And appoint for us from Yourself a protector, meaning that they also say in their supplication: O our Lord, appoint for us from Yourself a protector who will take care of our affairs by sufficing us from the trial of the people who disbelieve in You, "and appoint for us from Yourself a helper," meaning: "And appoint for us from Yourself someone who will support us against those who have wronged us from the people of this town, whose people are unjust, by turning us away from Your path, until You give us victory over them and make Your religion supreme."

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding the statement of God: Of the men, women, and children who say, 'Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors,' he said: He commanded the believers to fight on behalf of the weak believers, who were in Mecca.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shibl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: And the oppressed among men, women, and children - the young boys - who say, 'Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors,' Mecca, he commanded the believers to fight on behalf of the oppressed believers who were in Mecca.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: "And what is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God and for the oppressed among men, women, and children who say, 'Our Lord, bring us out of this city whose people are oppressors,'" meaning: And what is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God and for the oppressed? As for the city, it is Mecca.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn Al-Mubarak told us, on the authority of Uthman bin Ata, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And what is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God and for the oppressed? He said: And for the oppressed.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said, Abdullah bin Katheer told me that he heard Muhammad bin Muslim bin Shihab say, And what is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God and for the oppressed among men, women, and children? He said: In the cause of God and for the oppressed.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of al-Hasan and Qatadah, regarding His statement: We brought out from this town whose people were wrongdoers, they said: A man went out from the wrongdoing town to the righteous town, and death overtook him on the way, so he turned his chest toward the righteous town - and nothing escaped him except that - so the angels of mercy and the angels of punishment argued about him, so they were ordered to estimate the nearest of the two towns to him, and they found him closer to the righteous town by a handspan. Some of them said: God brought the righteous town closer to him, so the angels of mercy took his soul.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And the oppressed among men, women, and children, they are people who were in Mecca, unable to leave it to emigrate, so God excused them, so they are those. And his statement: Our Lord, bring us out of this city whose people are oppressors, it is Mecca.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of God and for the oppressed among men, women and children who say, "Our Lord, bring us out of this city whose people are oppressors, he said: And what is the matter with you that you do not do it? You fight for these weak and poor people who call upon God to bring them out of this city whose people are oppressors, but they have no power, so what is the matter with you that you do not fight until God makes these people and their religion safe? He said: And the city whose people are oppressors, is Mecca.

It has three issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying: And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of God? is an exhortation to jihad, which includes freeing the weak from the hands of the infidel polytheists who subject them to the same torment and tempt them away from the religion. So the Almighty made jihad obligatory to make His word supreme, to make His religion manifest, and to rescue the weak believers among His servants, even if that involves the loss of lives. Freeing prisoners is obligatory upon the Muslim community, either by fighting or with money, and that is more obligatory because it is less important than lives, which are less important than them. Malik said: It is obligatory upon the people to ransom the prisoners with all of their money. There is no disagreement about this, because he, peace be upon him, said:

So eat the captive. It has already been mentioned in Al-Baqarah. Likewise, say: They must console them, for consolation is less than ransom. If the captive is rich, can the ransom return to him or not? There are two opinions of the scholars, the most correct of which is the return.

The second - His Almighty's saying: and the oppressed is in apposition to the name of God Almighty, meaning and in the way of the oppressed, for the salvation of the oppressed is through the way of God. This is the choice of Al-Zajaj and Al-Zuhri said it. Muhammad bin Yazid said: I chose that the meaning be and in the oppressed, so it is in apposition to the way, meaning and in the oppressed to rescue them, so the two ways are different. And he means by the oppressed those who were in Mecca from the believers under the humiliation and harm of the infidels of Quraysh, and they are the ones meant by his saying, peace be upon him:

O God, save Al-Walid bin Al-Walid, Salamah bin Hisham, Ayyash bin Abi Rabi'ah, and the weak believers."

Ibn Abbas said: My mother and I were among the weak. In Bukhari, on his authority: Except for the weak among men, women and children. He said:

My mother and I were among those whom God excused. I was one of the parents and my mother was one of the women.

Third: The Almighty's saying: From this town whose people are oppressors. The town here is Mecca by consensus of the interpreters. And describing it as oppressive, even though the action is for the people, is due to the connection of the pronoun. This is like saying: I passed by the man whose house is spacious, whose father is generous, and whose maid is Hasna. Rather, the man was described with these words due to the verbal connection between them, which is the pronoun. So if you said: I passed by the generous man Amr, the question would not be permissible, because generosity belongs to Amr, and it is not permissible to make it an attribute of a man except with a connection, which is the ha'. This attribute is neither dual nor plural because it takes the place of the action, so the meaning is, whose people are oppressors. That is why He did not say the oppressors. And you say: I passed by two men whose fathers are generous, whose maids are Hasna, and men whose fathers are generous, whose maids are Hasna. And appoint for us from Yourself means from You, a protector means someone who will rescue us. And appoint for us from Yourself a helper means someone who will support us against them.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty urges His believing servants to strive in His cause, and to strive to rescue the weak in Mecca, men, women and children who are tired of staying there. For this reason, God the Almighty said: Those who say, 'Our Lord, bring us out of this city' meaning

And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of Allah and for the oppressed among men, women and children who say, "Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors and appoint for us from Yourself a protector and appoint for us from Yourself a helper."

Mecca, as God the Almighty said: And how many a city was stronger than your city which expelled you?

Then He described it by saying: "The oppressors were its people. And appoint for us from Yourself a protector and appoint for us from Yourself a helper." That is, subject to us from Yourself a protector and a helper. Al-Bukhari said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Sufyan told us from Ubaidullah, he said: I heard Ibn Abbas say: My mother and I were among the weak. Sulayman bin Harb told us, Hammad bin Zaid told us from Ayoub, from Ibn Malikah, that Ibn Abbas recited: Except for the weak among men, women and children. He said: My mother and I were among those whom God the Almighty excused.

Then the Almighty said: Those who believe fight in the cause of God, and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut. That is, the believers fight in obedience to God and seeking His pleasure, and the disbelievers fight in obedience to Satan. Then the Almighty incited the believers to fight His enemies by saying: "So fight the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak."

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 75- And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of God? is addressed to the believers who are commanded to fight by way of turning away. His statement and the oppressed is in the genitive case in apposition to the noble name, meaning: What is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God and the cause of the oppressed until you free them from captivity and relieve them of the effort they are in? It is permissible for it to be in the accusative case of specificity: meaning and specifically the oppressed, for they are among the greatest of those to whom the cause of God is true. Al-Zajjaj and Al-Azhari chose the first. Muhammad bin Yazid said: I chose for the meaning to be and among the oppressed, so it would be in apposition to the cause, and what is meant by the oppressed here are those believers who were in Mecca under the humiliation of the infidels, and they are those for whom the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to supplicate, saying: O God, save Al-Walid bin Al-Walid and Salamah bin Hisham and Ayyash bin Abi Rabi'ah and the oppressed believers as in the Sahih. It is not far-fetched to say that the wording of the verse is broader, and the consideration is based on the generality of the wording, were it not for its restriction by His saying: Those who say, 'Our Lord, bring us out of this city whose people are oppressors,' for it indicates that this is specific to the oppressed people living in Mecca, because the commentators have agreed that what is meant by the city whose people are oppressors is Mecca. His saying, of men, women, and children is a clarification of the oppressed.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

75- The Almighty said: And what is the matter with you that you fight not in the cause of God in obedience to God, He is rebuking them for abandoning jihad, and for the oppressed meaning: on behalf of the oppressed, and Ibn Shihab said: in the cause of the oppressed to free them, and it was said: in freeing the oppressed from the hands of the polytheists, and there was a group in Mecca, of men, women and children, who were suffering much harm from the polytheists, who were calling and saying, 'Our Lord, bring us out of this city whose people are oppressors', meaning: Mecca, the oppressor meaning: the polytheist, its people meaning the city whose people are polytheists, and the oppressor was lowered because it is an attribute of the people, so when the people returned to the city, it became as if the action belonged to them, as it is said: I passed by a man with a beautiful eye. And appoint for us from Yourself a protector meaning: someone who takes care of our affairs, and appoint for us from Yourself a helper meaning: someone who prevents the enemy about us, so God answered their prayer. When the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, conquered Mecca, he appointed Atab bin Asid over them, and God made him a supporter for them, defending the oppressed against the oppressors.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

75 And what is wrong with you is a subject and predicate. You do not fight in the way of God is a state and the factor in it is what is in the circumstance of the meaning of the verb. And the oppressed is in apposition to the name of God, the Most High, meaning and in the way of the oppressed, which is their liberation from captivity and their protection from the enemy, or on the way by deleting the added meaning and in the liberation of the oppressed, and it is permissible to put it in the accusative case for specificity because the way of God the Most High includes all the doors of goodness, and liberating the weak Muslims from the hands of the infidels is the greatest and most specific of them, of men, women and children is a statement of the oppressed, who are the Muslims who remained in Mecca to repel the polytheists, or who were too weak to emigrate, humiliated and tested, and the children were mentioned only to exaggerate the urging and to draw attention to the extreme injustice of the polytheists such that their harm reached the children, and that their supplication was answered because of their participation in the supplication so that they would participate in bringing down mercy and averting the calamity. It was said that what is meant by it are male and female slaves and it is the plural of child. Those who say, 'Our Lord, take us out of this city whose people are oppressors and appoint for us from Yourself a protector and appoint for us from Yourself a helper.' So God answered their prayer by making it easy for some of them to leave for Medina and by appointing for those who remained of them the best protector and helper by opening Mecca to His Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. He took charge of them and supported them, then appointed 'Atab ibn Asid over them, so he protected them and supported them until they became the most honored of its people. The city is Mecca and the oppressor is its description, and its masculinity is to masculinize what it is attributed to, because if the active participle or the passive participle is applied to someone other than the one to whom it belongs, it is like a verb that is masculine or feminine according to what it does.

Surat al-Nisa 4:76

Those who believe fight in the cause of God, and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut. So fight against the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak.

Surat al-Nisa 4:76

Those who believe fight in the cause of God, and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut. So fight against the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Those who believe fight in the cause of God, and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut Satan So fight the allies of Satan the supporters of his religion, defeat them because of your strength in God Indeed, the plot of Satan against the believers is ever weak feeble and cannot be resisted. The plot of God against the disbelievers is not resisted.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: He, the Most High, means: those who believed in God and His Messenger, and were certain of God's promise to the people of faith in Him, fight in the cause of God, meaning: in obedience to God and the path of His religion and His law that He legislated for His servants, and those who disbelieved fight in the cause of Taghut, meaning: those who denied the Oneness of God and denied His Messenger and what he brought to them from their Lord, fight in the cause of Taghut, meaning: in obedience to Satan and his path and method that he legislated for his allies from the people of disbelief in God. God says, strengthening the resolve of the believers in Him from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and inciting them against His enemies and the enemies of His religion from the polytheists: Fight, O believers, the allies of Satan, meaning by that: those who support him and obey his command, in opposition to the obedience of God, and denying Him, and supporting him, Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak, meaning by his plot: what he plotted against the believers, of forming his allies from the disbelievers in God against His Messenger and his allies who are the people of faith in Him. He says: Do not fear the allies of Satan, for they are only his party and supporters, and the party of Satan is people of weakness and feebleness.

God, the Most High, described them as weak because they do not fight in the hope of reward, nor do they abandon fighting out of fear of punishment. Rather, they fight out of zeal or envy of the believers for what God has given them of His bounty. The believers fight those among them who fight in the hope of the great reward of God, and abandon fighting if they abandon it out of fear of God's threat for abandoning it. So he fights with insight into what he has with God if he is killed, and what he will have of spoils and victory if he is safe. The disbeliever fights out of fear of being killed and despair of the Hereafter, so he is weak and fearful.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Those who believe fight in the cause of God meaning in His obedience: And those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut Abu Ubaidah and Al-Kisa'i said: Taghut is masculine and feminine. Abu Ubaidah said: It is masculine and feminine because they used to call the soothsayer and soothsayer Taghut. Hajjaj told us on the authority of Ibn Jurayj who said: Abu Al-Zubayr told us that he heard Jabir bin Abdullah and he was asked about the Taghut to which they used to resort for judgment, so he said: I was in one Juhayna and in one Aslam, and in every tribe there was one. Abu Ishaq said: The evidence that it is Satan is the Almighty's saying: "So fight the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak." That is, his deceit and the deceit of those who follow him. It is said that he meant by it the day of Badr when he said to the polytheists: No one can overcome you today from among mankind, and indeed, I am your protector. But when the two armies saw each other, he turned back on his heels and said: Indeed, I am disassociated from you. (al-Anfal 8:48) as will come.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty urges His believing servants to strive in His cause, and to strive to rescue the weak in Mecca, men, women and children who are tired of staying there. For this reason, God the Almighty said: Those who say, 'Our Lord, bring us out of this city' meaning Mecca, as God the Almighty said: And how many a city was stronger than your city which expelled you? Then He described it by saying: "The oppressors were its people. And appoint for us from Yourself a protector and appoint for us from Yourself a helper." That is, subject to us from Yourself a protector and a helper. Al-Bukhari said: Abdullah bin Muhammad told us, Sufyan told us from Ubaidullah, he said: I heard Ibn Abbas say: My mother and I were among the weak. Sulayman bin Harb told us, Hammad bin Zaid told us from Ayyoub, from Ibn Malikah, that Ibn Abbas recited: Except for the weak among men, women and children. He said: My mother and I were among those whom God the Almighty excused.

Then the Almighty said: Those who believe fight in the cause of God, and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut. That is, the believers fight in obedience to God and seeking His pleasure, and the disbelievers fight in obedience to Satan. Then the Almighty incited the believers to fight His enemies by saying: "So fight the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak."

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 76- Those who believe fight in the cause of God This is an encouragement to the believers and an activation for them that their fighting is for this purpose and not for any other purpose. And those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut meaning: the cause of Satan, or the soothsayers, or idols. The interpretation of Taghut here as Satan is more appropriate because of His statement: "So fight the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak" meaning: his deception and the deception of those who follow him from the disbelievers.

Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Then go forth in companies, he said: In groups, meaning scattered squadrons, or go forth all together, meaning: all of you. Abu Dawud narrated in his Naskh, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abi Hatim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on his authority that he said in Surat An-Nisa': Take your precautions and go forth in companies or go forth all together, abrogated by And it is not for the believers to go forth all together. Abd Ibn Humayd and Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, In companies, meaning: in small groups. And he narrated on the authority of Qatadah regarding his statement, Or go forth all together, meaning: If the Prophet of God (blessings and peace of God be upon him) goes forth, then no one has the right to stay behind him. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar from As-Suddi. Abd Ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid regarding his statement, And indeed, among you is he who carries to His statement, Then We will give him a great reward, what was in between regarding the hypocrites. Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Muqatil ibn Hibban regarding the verse, he said: According to what we have been informed, he is Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul, the leader of the hypocrites. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Saeed ibn Jubayr, So let him fight meaning fight the polytheists in the way of God in obedience to God, And whoever fights in the way of God and is killed meaning: the enemy kills him or is victorious meaning: the enemy of the polytheists is victorious We will give him a great reward meaning: a generous reward in Paradise, so he made the killer and the one killed from among the Muslims in the jihad against the polytheists share in the reward. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, in the way of God and for the oppressed he said: and for the oppressed. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of al-Zuhri who said: and the way of the oppressed. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on his authority through al-Awfi who said: the oppressed are Muslim people who were in Makkah and were unable to leave it. Al-Bukhari narrated on his authority who said: My mother and I are among the oppressed. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority who said: the people of the town whose people are oppressors are Makkah. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Aisha. Abd bin Hamid, Ibn al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: If you see Satan, do not fear him, but attack him. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak. Mujahid said: Satan used to appear to me during prayer, so I would remember the words of Ibn Abbas and attack him, and he would go away from me.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

76- The Almighty said: Those who believe fight in the cause of God meaning: in His obedience, and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut meaning: in obedience to Satan, so fight O believers, the allies of Satan meaning: his party and soldiers, who are the disbelievers, for the plot of Satan meaning his deceit, is weak as he did on the day of Badr when he saw the angels, he feared that they would seize him, so he fled and let them down.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

76 Those who believe fight in the cause of God in order to reach God, the Most High. Those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut in order to reach Satan. Then fight the allies of Satan When He mentioned the purpose of the two groups, He ordered His allies to fight the allies of Satan, then He encouraged them by saying: Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak meaning that his plot against the believers, in addition to the plot of God, the Most High, against the disbelievers, is weak, so do not pay attention to it, so do not fear His allies, for their reliance is on the weakest and most feeble thing.

Surat al-Nisa 4:77

Have you not considered those who were told, "Restrain your hands and establish prayer and give zakah?" But when fighting was decreed upon them, at once a party of them feared the people as they feared Allah or even more, and they said, "Our Lord, why have You decreed upon us fighting? Why do You not delay us for a short term?" Say, "The enjoyment of the Hereafter is for the sake of Allah, and the reward of the Hereafter is for the sake of Allah." This world is little, and the Hereafter is better for those who fear Allah. And you will not be wronged, even as much as a thread.

Surat al-Nisa 4:77

Have you not considered those who were told, Restrain your hands and establish prayer and give zakah? But when fighting was decreed upon them, at once a party of them feared the people as they feared God or even more, and they said, Our Lord, why have You decreed upon us fighting? Why do You not delay us for a short term? Say, The enjoyment of the Hereafter is for the sake of God, and the reward of the Hereafter is for the sake of God. This world is little, and the Hereafter is better for those who fear God. And you will not be wronged, even as much as a thread.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(Have you not seen those who were told, Restrain your hands from fighting the infidels when they asked for it in Mecca due to the infidels' harm to them? They were a group of the Companions. (And establish prayer and give zakah. But when fighting was prescribed for them, at once a party of them feared) they feared the people the infidels, that is, their punishment by killing as they feared the punishment of God or with a greater fear) than their fear of Him. The accusative of more severe is in the state and the answer to when indicated by when and what follows it, that is, the fear surprised them. And they said in fear of death, Our Lord, why did You prescribe fighting for us? If only You had delayed us for a short term? Say to them, The enjoyment of this world what is enjoyed in it or the enjoyment of it is little destined to perish and the Hereafter that is, Paradise is better for him who fears the punishment of God by abandoning His disobedience. And you will not be wronged with the ta' and the ya', you will reduce from your deeds a thread the size of a date pit's shell, so strive hard.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: Have you not seen those who were told, Restrain your hands? Al-Nasa'i and Al-Hakim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf and his companions came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Prophet of God, we were in glory while we were polytheists, but when we believed we became humiliated. He said: I have been commanded to pardon, so do not fight the people. When God moved him to Medina, He commanded him to fight, so they refrained. Then God revealed: Have you not seen those who were told, Restrain your hands? The verse

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: It was mentioned that this verse was revealed about a group of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, who had believed in him and confirmed his truthfulness before jihad was imposed upon them. Prayer and zakat were imposed upon them, and they were asking God to impose fighting upon them. When fighting was imposed upon them, it was difficult for them, and they said what God had informed them about in His Book.

The interpretation of His statement: Have you not seen those who were told, 'Restrain your hands,' has he not seen in your heart, O Muhammad, so that you learn, those who were told, from your companions when they asked you to ask your Lord to impose fighting upon them, Restrain your hands, so they held them back from fighting the polytheists and waging war against them, and establish prayer, meaning: and perform the prayer that God imposed upon you within its limits, and give zakat, meaning: and give zakat to its people whom God has made it for from your wealth, as a purification for your bodies and wealth, they disliked what they were commanded to do of restraining their hands from fighting the polytheists and that was difficult for them, but when fighting was prescribed for them, meaning: when the fighting that they had asked to be prescribed for them was prescribed for them, at once a party of them, meaning: a group of them, feared the people, meaning: they feared women to fight them, as they feared God or even more fearfully, or more fearfully, and they said in fear of the fighting that God imposed upon them: Why has fighting been prescribed for us? Why has fighting been imposed upon us? They are inclined to this world, and preferring ease and comfort in it, over the unpleasantness of meeting the enemy and the hardship of their war and fighting them, Why do you not delay us? He is telling about them, they said: Why do you not delay us, until a near term? meaning: until they die on their beds and in their homes.

And in a manner similar to what we said about this verse being revealed, the people of interpretation said.

The traces mentioned that, and the narration of the one who said it:

Muhammad bin Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaqiq narrated, I heard my father say, Al-Hussein bin Waqid narrated, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Abd Al-Rahman bin Awf and his companions came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: O Messenger of God, we were honored when we were polytheists, but when we became humiliated! He said: I have been commanded to forgive, so do not fight. When God moved him to Medina, he ordered fighting, so they refrained. Then God, the Blessed and Exalted, revealed: Have you not seen those who were told, 'Restrain your hands?' [Al-Bukhari and Muslim]

Al-Qasim narrated to us, he said, Al-Husayn narrated to us, he said, Hajjaj narrated to us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, on the authority of Ikrimah: Have you not considered those to whom it was said, 'Restrain your hands,' from the people, but when fighting was decreed upon them, at once a party of them, was revealed about some of the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. Ibn Jurayj said: His statement, And they said, 'Our Lord, why have You decreed upon us fighting? Why have You not delayed us for a short term?' He said: Until we die a death, which is the short term.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: Have you not considered those who were told, 'Restrain your hands and establish prayer,' and he recited until he reached: for a near term. He said: There were some people among the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, while he was in Mecca at that time before the migration, and they hastened to fight, so they said to the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace: Let us take pickaxes and fight with them the polytheists in Mecca! But the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade them from doing that, he said: I was not commanded to do that. But when the migration took place and the fighting was commanded, the people disliked that, so they did what you hear about it, so God, the Blessed and Exalted, said: "Say: The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God, and you will not be wronged a thread."

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: Have you not considered those to whom it was said, 'Restrain your hands and establish prayer and give zakat?' He said: They are people who converted to Islam before fighting was imposed on them, and all that was required of them was prayer and zakat, so they asked God to impose fighting on them. But when fighting was prescribed for them, at once a party of them feared the people as they feared God or even more feared. The verse, until for a near term, which is death. God said: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.'

Others said: This and the verses that follow it were revealed about the Jews.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told us, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid: Have you not considered those who were told, 'Restrain your hands and establish prayer,' to his saying: You would have followed Satan, except for a few, what is between that and the Jews.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: So when fighting was prescribed for them, at once a party of them to his saying: Why was fighting prescribed for us? God Almighty forbade this nation from doing what they did.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying: "Say: The enjoyment of this world is little," say, O Muhammad, to these people who said: Our Lord, why did You prescribe fighting for us? Why did You not delay us for a short term?: Your life in this world and your enjoyment of it are little, because it is fleeting and everything in it is fleeting. And the Hereafter is better, meaning: and the pleasures of the Hereafter are better, because it is everlasting and its pleasures are everlasting. And it was said: And the Hereafter is better, and the meaning of the statement is what was described - that it is meant by its pleasures - because the mention of the Hereafter in the way it was mentioned indicates the intended meaning, for him who fears God, meaning: for him who fears God by performing His obligations and avoiding His disobedience, so he obeys Him in all of that, and you will not be wronged a thread, meaning: and God will not reduce you from the rewards of your deeds a thread.

We have explained the meaning of wick previously, so there is no need to repeat it here.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

Amr bin Dinar narrated on the authority of Ikrimah on the authority of Ibn Abbas, "That Abd al-Rahman bin Awf and his companions came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Mecca and said: O Prophet of God, we were honored while we were polytheists, but when we believed, we became humiliated?" He said:

I have been commanded to pardon, so do not fight the people." So God Almighty did not transfer him to Medina. He commanded him to fight, so they refrained. Then the verse was revealed. An-Nasa'i included it in his Sunan, and Al-Kalbi said: Mujahid said: They are Jews. Al-Hasan said: It refers to the believers because of his saying they fear the people meaning the polytheists of Mecca as they fear God. So it is based on what humans are naturally prone to of fear, not on opposition. Al-Suddi said: They are people who converted to Islam before fighting was made obligatory, but when it was made obligatory, they hated it. It was said: It is a description of the hypocrites, and the meaning is that they fear being killed by the polytheists as they fear death from God. Or with greater fear meaning with them and in their belief.

I said: This is more similar to the context of the verse, because He said: And they said, 'Our Lord, why have You decreed upon us fighting? Why have You not postponed us for a short term?' That is, why not? And nothing follows it except action. And God forbid that this statement should come from a noble companion who knew that life spans are limited and provisions are divided. Rather, they were obedient, listening, and obeying God's commands. They saw reaching the Hereafter as better than staying in the present life, according to what is known from their conduct, may God be pleased with them. Unless the one who said it was one whose faith was not firmly established and whose heart was not open to Islam, for the people of faith differ in different ways. Some of them are complete and some are deficient, and that is the one whose soul is repelled by what he is commanded to do, in which hardship befalls him and in which severity overtakes him. And God knows best.

The Almighty said: "Say: The enjoyment of this world is little" beginning and predicate, and so on. And the Hereafter is better for him who fears God meaning sins. We have already discussed this in Al-Baqarah. The enjoyment of this world is its benefit and enjoying its pleasures, and He called it little because it does not last. And the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said:

My example and the example of the world are like that of a rider who said, A nap under a tree, then left it and departed. This meaning has been fully explained in Surat Al-Baqarah.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The believers in the beginning of Islam in Mecca were commanded to pray and give zakat, even if they were not in need of hardship. They were commanded to help the poor among them and to forgive and pardon the polytheists and to be patient for a while. They were burning with desire and wished that they were commanded to fight to get rid of their enemies. The situation at that time was not suitable for many reasons, including: their small number compared to the large number of their enemy, and the fact that they were in their country, which was a sacred country, the most honorable place on earth. So the command to fight there was not initially, as they say. For this reason, jihad was not commanded except in Medina, when it became their home, a fortress, and supporters. Despite this, when they were commanded to do what they wished for, some of them were alarmed by it and feared facing people with intense fear. And they said, 'Our Lord, why have You ordained fighting for us? Why have You not delayed us for a short time?' That is, why have You not delayed its obligation to another period? Because it involves bloodshed, orphaning children, and widowing women. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: And those who believe say, 'Why was it not revealed to you?' Surah So when a decisive Surah is revealed and fighting is mentioned in it verses, Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali bin Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz bin Abi Razmah and Ali bin Zanjah told us, they said: Ali bin Al-Hasan told us on the authority of Al-Hussein bin Waqid, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, and on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: that Abdul Rahman bin A'waf and his companions came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Mecca, and they said: O

Prophet of God, we were in glory while we were polytheists, but when we believed we became humiliated, he said: I have been commanded to forgive, so do not fight the people, so when God transferred him to Medina, He commanded him to fight, so they held back, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who were told, 'Restrain your hands' verse, and Al-Nasa'i, Al-Hakim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaqiq with it, and Asbat said, on the authority of Al-Suddi: They were only required to pray and give zakat, so they asked God to impose fighting on them, so when fighting was imposed on them, A party of them feared the people as they feared God or even more, and they said, 'Our Lord, Why did you prescribe fighting for us, if only you had delayed us for a near term?' which is death? God Almighty said: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.' Mujahid said: This verse was revealed about the Jews, narrated by Ibn Jarir. His statement: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.' That is, the Hereafter of the fearing God is better than his world. And you will not be wronged a thread. That is, of your deeds, but you will be given the fullest reward. This is a consolation for them from this world, an encouragement for them in the Hereafter, and an incitement for them to jihad. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim al-Dawraqi told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Hammad ibn Zayd told us on the authority of Hisham, who said: Al-Hasan recited: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little.' He said: May God have mercy on a servant who accompanies it according to that. The whole world, its beginning and its end, is like a man who slept and saw in his dream some of what he liked, then he woke up. Ibn Ma'in said: Abu Musahhar used to recite:

There is no good in this world for those who do not have a share of God in the eternal home.

If the world amazes men, then it is a brief pleasure and its end is near.

And the Almighty's saying: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in fortified towers, meaning that you are bound to die inevitably, and none of you will escape from it, as the Almighty said: Everything on it will perish, and the Almighty said: Every soul will taste death, and the Almighty said: And We have not granted to any human being before you immortality, meaning that everyone is bound to die inevitably, and nothing will save him from that, whether he struggled or not, for he has an inevitable term and a predestined place, as Khalid bin Al-Walid said when death came to his bed: I have witnessed such and such a situation, and there is not a limb of mine that does not have a wound from a stab or an arrow, and here I am dying in my bed, so may the eyes of the cowards not sleep. And His saying: Even if you were in fortified towers, meaning fortified, impregnable, high, and lofty. It was said that they are towers in the sky, Al-Suddi said, and this is weak. The correct view is that they are fortified, meaning that caution and fortification from death are of no avail, as Khalid said: Zuhair bin Abi Salma:

Whoever fears the causes of death will be overtaken by it, even if he seeks the causes of heaven with a ladder.

Then it was said: The constructed is the constructed, as he said: And a constructed palace. And it was said: Rather, there is a difference between them, which is that the constructed with emphasis is the long one, and with emphasis it is the one decorated with plaster, which is gypsum. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim mentioned here a lengthy story on the authority of Mujahid, that he mentioned that a woman among those who came before us was seized by labor pains, so she ordered her servant to bring her fire, so he went out and found a man standing at the door, so he said: What did the woman give birth to? He said: A slave girl, so he said: As for her, she will commit adultery with a hundred men, then her servant will marry her, and her death will be by the spider. He said: He thought back, so he cut the girl's belly with a knife and split it open, then he ran away, and he thought that she had died, so her mother sewed her belly together and she recovered and grew up and became the most beautiful woman in her town, so that hired man went as he went and entered the seas and acquired a lot of money, then he returned to his country and wanted to get married, so he said to an old woman: I want to marry the most beautiful woman in this town, so she said there is no one here more beautiful than so-and-so, so he said: Propose to her on my behalf, so she went to her and she agreed, so he entered her and she was very impressed, so she asked him about his situation and where he came from, so he told her his story and what happened to the girl, so she said: I am her and showed him the place of the knife, so that was confirmed, so he said: If you are her, then he told me two things that are necessary one of them that you committed adultery with a hundred men, so she said: Something of that happened but I do not know their number, so he said: They are a hundred, and the second that you will die One day, while they were there, the spider appeared on the ceiling and she said: Is this the one you are warning me about? By God, no one will kill her except me. So they brought her down from the ceiling, and she went to her and stepped on her with her big toe and killed her. Some of her poison flew out and fell between her nail and her flesh, and her foot turned black. That was her end, and she died. We mention here the story of the ruler of the city, who was Al-Satron, when Shapur schemed against him until he besieged him in it and killed everyone in it after a two-year siege. The Arabs said poems about that, including:

And the brother of Al-Hadar when he built it, and when the Tigris and Khabur were collected to it

He built it of marble and covered it with lime, so that the birds could nest in its peaks.

The hands of death did not give it to him, so the kingdom was lost to him, and his door is deserted.

When he entered upon Uthman, he began to say: O God, unite the nation of Muhammad. Then he recited the words of the poet:

I see that death does not leave a dear one and has not left a refuge or a square for Ad in the country

The people of the fortress spend the night while the fortress is closed, and the mountains come together in their peaks.

Ibn Hisham said: Khosrow Shapur Dhu al-Aktaf killed Satrun, the king of Hatra. Ibn Hisham said: The one who killed the ruler of Hatra was Sapur bin Ardashir bin Babak, the first king of the Sassanids, and he humiliated the kings of the Taifas, and returned the kingdom to the Chosroes. As for Sapur Dhu al-Aktaf, it was a long time after that, and God knows best. Al-Suhayli mentioned it. Ibn Hisham said: He besieged him for two years, because he had raided the lands of Sapur during his absence while he was in Iraq. The daughter of Satrun, whose name was al-Nadhira, came forward and looked at Sapur, who was wearing brocade clothes, and on his head was a crown of gold crowned with emeralds, rubies and pearls. She whispered to him that he would marry me if I would open the door of the fortress for him. He said: Yes. When evening came, Satrun drank until he was drunk, and he never slept except drunk. She took the keys to the door of the fortress from under his head and sent them with a slave of hers, so he opened the door. It is said that she showed them a talisman that was in the fortress that would not be opened until a dove and a hyena were taken and dyed. Her legs are menstruating with a blue virgin slave girl, then she is sent, and when she falls on the wall of the fortress, it falls, so he opens the door, and he does that, and Shapur enters, and kills Satrun, and takes over the fortress and destroys it, and he goes with her and marries her, and while she was sleeping on her bed at night, she began to toss and turn and not sleep, so he called for candles for her, and searched her bed and found in it a myrtle leaf, and Shapur said to her: This is what kept you awake, so what did your father do to you? She said: He used to spread brocade for me and dress me in silk, and feed me brains, and give me wine to drink, Al-Tabari said: He used to feed me brains and butter, and the honey of virgin bees, and the pure wine! And he mentioned that he used to see the brain of her leg, he said: So what did your father do to him?! You are the fastest to do that, then he ordered her to tie the horns of her head to the tail of a horse, so the horse ran until it killed her, and Adi bin Zaid Al-Abbadi says his famous verses about it.

O gloating one who is reproached by time, are you the one who is acquitted and granted salvation?

Or do you have a firm covenant from the days? Rather, you are an ignorant arrogant person.

Who saw death as immortal, or who is more afraid of being wronged?

Where is Khosrow, the king of Anushirvan, or where was Sapur before him?

The noble Banu al-Asfar, the kings of Rome, no one is

And His statement: And if good befalls them meaning fertility and provision of fruits, crops, children and the like, this is the meaning of the statement of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Suddi They say, 'This is from God', but if evil befalls them meaning drought, famine, a decrease in fruits and crops, or the death of children or production or something else as Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Suddi say, They say, 'This is from you' meaning from you and because of our following you and emulating your religion, as God the Almighty said about the people of Pharaoh: So when good comes to them, they say, 'This is from us', but if evil befalls them, they ascribe evil to Moses and those with him and as God the Almighty said: And among the people is he who worships God on the edge (al-Ma'idah 4:10). And this is what these hypocrites said who entered Islam outwardly but hated it in reality, and for this reason when evil befalls them they attribute it to their following the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Suddi said: And if good befalls them, he said: And good is fertility, their livestock and horses produce fruit, and their condition improves and their women give birth to boys, they say, 'This is from God.' But if evil befalls them, and evil is drought and harm to their wealth, they take Muhammad as a bad omen and say, This is from you, they say: Because we abandoned our religion and followed Muhammad, this calamity befell us, so God the Almighty revealed: Say, 'All is from God,' so His statement: Say, 'All is from God,' means everything is by God's decree and predestination, and it is effective for the righteous and the wicked, the believer and the disbeliever. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Say, 'All is from God,' meaning good and bad. Al-Hasan al-Basri said the same. Then the Almighty said, denouncing those who say this statement that is issued from doubt and suspicion, and lack of understanding and knowledge and much ignorance and injustice: What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word? He mentioned a strange hadith related to the Almighty's saying: "Say: All is from God." Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar said: Al-Sakn bin Saeed told us, Omar bin Yunus told us, Ismail bin Hammad told us, on the authority of Muqatil bin Hayyan, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: We were sitting with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when Abu Bakr and Omar came with two tribes of people and their voices were raised. Abu Bakr sat close to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Omar sat close to Abu Bakr. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Why did you raise your voices? A man said: O Messenger of God. Abu Bakr said: O Messenger of God, good deeds are from God and bad deeds are from ourselves. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: So what did you say, O Omar? He said: I said: Good and bad deeds are from God. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "The first to speak about it were Gabriel and Michael. Michael said: What you said, O Abu Bakr, and Gabriel said: What you said, O Umar." He said: "We will differ and the people of heaven will differ, and if the people of heaven differ, the people of earth will differ. So they will refer their case to Israfil, and he will judge between them that good and bad deeds are from God." Then he turned to Abu Bakr and Umar and said: "Remember my judgment between you. If God had wanted that no one should be disobeyed, He would not have created Iblis." Sheikh al-Islam Taqi al-Din Abu al-Abbas Ibn Taymiyyah said: This is a fabricated and invented hadith according to the consensus of the scholars. Then the Almighty said, addressing His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is the human race, so that the answer may be obtained: Whatever good befalls you is from God, meaning from God's grace, favor, kindness and mercy. And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, meaning from before you, and from your own deeds, as the Almighty said: "And whatever strikes you of disaster - it is for what your hands have earned. But He pardons much." As-Suddi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Zayd said: It is from yourself, meaning because of your sin. Qatada said about the verse It is from yourself as a punishment for you, O son of Adam, for your sin. He said and he mentioned to us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No man is afflicted with the scratch of a stick, nor a stumble, nor a twitch of a vein except for a sin, and what God forgives is more. This which Qatada sent has been narrated in a connected form in Sahih: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, no worry, nor grief, nor fatigue befalls a believer, not even the prick he receives from a thorn, except that God expiates some of his sins because of it. Abu Salih said: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, meaning because of your sin, and I am the One who decreed it for you. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Ammar told us, Sahl, meaning Ibn Bakkar, told us, Al-Aswad ibn Shaiban told us, Uqbah ibn Wasil, the nephew of Mutraf, told me, on the authority of Mutraf ibn Abdullah, who said: What do you want from fate? Is the verse in Surat An-Nisa' not sufficient for you: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God,' but if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you,' meaning from yourself? By God, they were not entrusted to fate, and they were commanded and to it they will return. This is a strong and powerful statement in refuting the Qadarites and the Jabarites as well. And there is another place for its expansion. And the Almighty's saying: And We have sent you to mankind as a Messenger meaning that you convey to them the laws of God and what God loves and is pleased with, and what He hates and rejects. And sufficient is God as Witness meaning that He sent you and He is also a witness between you and them, and He knows what you convey to them and what they respond to you with from the truth out of disbelief and stubbornness.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 77- Have you not considered those who were told, 'Restrain your hands' the verse, it was said: They are a group of companions who were ordered to stop fighting in Mecca after they hastened to it. Then when it was prescribed for them in Medina, they refrained from fighting without doubt in religion, but rather out of fear of death and fear of the horror of being killed. And it was said: It was revealed about the Jews, and it was said about the hypocrites who converted to Islam before fighting was prescribed, but when it was prescribed, they hated it. This is more similar to the context of his saying: And they said, 'Our Lord, why did You prescribe fighting for us? Why did You not delay us for a short term?' and his saying, And if good befalls them the verse. And it is unlikely that something like this would have come from the companions. His saying like the fear of God is an attribute of a deleted source: meaning fear like the fear of God, or a state: meaning: You fear them, resembling the people of fear of God, and the source is added to the object: meaning like their fear of God. His saying, or more fearful is conjoined with like the fear of God in the accusative case, or conjoined with the preposition and the noun in the accusative case together, so it is in the accusative case like the one it is conjoined to, or for variety, meaning that the fear of some of them is like the fear of God and the fear of some of them is more intense than it. His saying, And they said, is in apposition to what is indicated by his saying, When a party of them, meaning, when fighting was decreed upon them, a party of them suddenly came out of fear of the people, and said, 'Our Lord, why did You decree fighting upon us? Why did You not delay us?' That is, why did You not delay us? They wanted a respite until another time close to the time in which fighting was decreed upon them. So God, the Exalted, commanded him to answer them, so He said, Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little,' quickly perishing and not lasting for its owner, and the reward of the Hereafter is better for you than the little enjoyment, for him who fears God, among you and desires the everlasting reward, and you will not be wronged a thread, meaning, a small, insignificant thing. The interpretation of the thread was presented shortly. If you are saving your wages and not deducting anything from them, how can you be averse to that and busy yourself with the enjoyment of this world despite its littleness and cessation?

Tafsir al-Baghawi

77- The Almighty said: Have you not considered those who were told, 'Restrain your hands'? The verse: Al-Kalbi said: "It was revealed about Abd al-Rahman ibn Awf al-Zuhri, al-Miqdad ibn al-Aswad al-Kindi, Qudamah ibn Maz'un al-Jumahi, Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas, and a group who were suffering a lot of harm from the polytheists in Mecca before they migrated, and they would say, 'O Messenger of God, give us permission to fight them, for they have harmed us.' So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would say to them, 'Restrain your hands, for I was not commanded to fight them.'"

And establish prayer and give zakat. When they migrated to Medina and God commanded them to fight the polytheists, this was difficult for some of them. God Almighty said: So when fighting was prescribed for them, at once a party of them feared the people, as they feared God, meaning: as they feared God, or even more, "more fearful," it was said that its meaning is more fearful, "and they said, 'Our Lord, why have You prescribed fighting for us?'" Jihad, Why have You not delayed us for a short term? meaning: death, meaning: Why have You not left us until we die at our appointed times?

They differed about those who said that. It was said: It was said by a group of hypocrites because his saying, Why was fighting prescribed for us? is not appropriate for believers.

It was said: It was said by a group of believers who were not firmly grounded in knowledge. They said it out of fear and cowardice, not belief. Then they repented, and people of faith differ in their faith.

It was said: They were a people who were believers, but when fighting was imposed on them, they became hypocrites out of cowardice and stayed away from jihad. Say: O Muhammad, the enjoyment of this world meaning: its benefit and enjoyment is little, and the Hereafter meaning: the reward of the Hereafter is better and more excellent, for him who fears God polytheism and disobedience to the Messenger, and you will not be wronged a thread Ibn Kathir, Abu Ja'far, Hamza and Al-Kisa'i read it with a ya', and the rest read it with a ta'.

Abu Saleh Ahmad bin Abdul Malik Al-Mu'adhin told us, Abu Ishaq Ibrahim bin Mu'awiyah Al-Saydalani told us, Al-Asamm told us, Abdullah bin Muhammad bin Shakir

Have you not considered those who were told, "Restrain your hands and establish prayer and give zakah?" But when fighting was decreed upon them, at once a party of them feared the people as they feared Allah or even more, and they said, "Our Lord, why have You decreed upon us fighting? Why do You not delay us for a short term?" Say, "The enjoyment of the Hereafter is for the sake of Allah, and the reward of the Hereafter is for the sake of Allah." This world is little, and the Hereafter is better for those who fear Allah. And you will not be wronged, even as much as a thread.

told us, Muhammad bin Bishr Al-Abdi told us, Misa'ar bin Kadam told us, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Qais bin Abi Hazim, Al-Mustawrid bin Shaddad told us, he said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: The world in comparison to the Hereafter is like what one of you puts his finger in the sea, so let him see what he brings back.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

77"Have you not considered those who were told, 'Restrain your hands' meaning from fighting. "And establish prayer and give zakah" and busy themselves with what you have been commanded to do. "But when fighting was prescribed for them, at once a party of them feared the people as they feared God" they feared the disbelievers that they would kill them just as they feared God that He would send down His punishment upon them. "If is an answer to the surprise answer to what and a party is the subject of them and its description is and they fear" in the sense that they fear the people like the people who fear God from Him. "Or a greater fear" is in apposition to it if you make it a state, but if you make it a source then no. The comparative if it places what follows it in the accusative case is not of its type, but rather it is in apposition to the name of God, the Most High, meaning: and like the fear of God, the Most High, or like a greater fear than Him, assuming "O God" unless you make the fear inherent in fear like their saying: "very, very" meaning they fear the people with a fear like the fear of God, the Most High, or a fear more intense than the fear of God, the Most High. And they will say, 'Our Lord, why have You decreed fighting upon us? Why have You not delayed us for a short term?' This was an extension of the period of abstention from fighting out of fear of death. It is possible that they did not say it out loud, but rather said it to themselves, so God Almighty spoke about them. Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little.' It is fleeting, "and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God. And you will not be wronged a thread." That is, you will not be deprived of the slightest bit of your reward, so do not desire it, or of your appointed terms. Ibn Kathir, Hamza, and Al-Kisa'i read nor will they be wronged because of the precedence of the third person.

Surat al-Nisa 4:78

Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you are in fortified towers. And if good befalls them, they say, This is from God. But if evil befalls them, they say, This is from you. Say, All is from God. So what is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word?

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you are in towers fortified high so do not fear fighting for fear of death. And if good befalls them meaning the Jews fertility and abundance they say, This is from God. But if evil befalls them) drought and calamity as happened to them when the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina they say, This is from you O Muhammad, meaning because of your bad luck. Say to them, All of the good and the bad are from God from Him. Then what is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand meaning that they come close to understanding a statement that is given to them? What is an interrogative of astonishment at the extreme of their ignorance and the denial of the approach of the action is more severe than its denial

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Wherever you are, death will overtake you and you will die, even if you were in fortified towers. He says: Do not be afraid of death, and do not flee from fighting, and be weak in meeting your enemy, out of caution for yourselves from being killed and dying, for death is facing you wherever you are, and it will reach yourselves wherever you are, even if you fortify yourself against it with impregnable fortresses.

The interpreters differed about the meaning of his statement: Even if you were in fortified towers. Some of them said: He means fortified palaces.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And if you were in fortified towers, he said: in fortified palaces.

Ali bin Sahl told me, Muammil bin Ismail told us, Abu Hammam told us, Katheer Abu al-Fadl told us, on the authority of Mujahid, who said: There was a woman among those who came before you, and she had a hired hand, and she gave birth to a slave girl. She said to her hired hand: Find us a fire. He went out and found a man at the door, and the man said to him: What did this woman give birth to? He said: A slave girl. He said: As for this slave girl, she will not die until she has prostituted herself with a hundred, and her hired hand marries her, and she will die by the spider. He said: The hired hand said to himself: So I want this after she has prostituted herself with a hundred!! So he took a blade and entered and cut open the girl's belly, and she was treated and recovered, and she dispersed, and she was prostituting herself. She came to one of the seashores, and stayed there prostituting herself. The man stayed for as long as God willed, then he came to that seashore with a lot of money, and he said to a woman from the people of the seashore: Find me a woman who is the most beautiful woman in the village so I can marry her! She said: Here is a woman who is one of the most beautiful people, but she is prostituting herself. He said: Bring her to me. So she came to her and said: A man has come who has a lot of money and he said such and such to me, so I said such and such to him. She said: I have given up prostitution, but if he wants I will marry him! He said: So he married her, and she fell in love with him. While he was with her one day, he told her about his affair, and she said: I am that girl! - and she showed him the tear in her stomach - and I used to prostitute myself, I do not know how many, or more or less! He said: He told me: Her death will be by a spider. He said: So he built a tower for her in the desert and built it. While they were one day in that tower, there was a spider in the ceiling, and she said: This will kill me? No one will kill it but me! So she moved it and it fell, so she went to it and put her big toe on it and crushed it, and its poison spread between her nail and the flesh, and her leg turned black and she died. Then this verse was revealed: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in fortified towers.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: Even if you were in fortified towers, he said: fortified palaces.

Others said: The meaning of this is: palaces in the sky.

Who said that?

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you are in lofty towers, and they are white palaces in the lowest heaven, built.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman bin Saeed told us, he said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of al-Rabi', regarding his statement: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in lofty towers, he said: Even if you were in palaces in the sky.

The Arabs differed about the meaning of the word building.

Some of the people of Basra said: Al-Mushaidah means the tall one. He said: As for Al-Mushaid, with a light pronunciation, it means the decorated one.

Another of them said something similar to that, except that he said: Al-Mushayd with a light pronunciation is that which is made of gypsum, and gypsum is plaster.

Some of the people of Kufa said: "Al-Mushayd and Al-Mushayd, their origin is the same, except that what is stressed from it is stressed for itself, and the verb in it is in the plural, like their saying: These are dyed clothes, and slaughtered sheep, so why is it stressed? Because it is a plural in which the verb is separated. And likewise, fortified palaces, because there are many palaces in which construction is repeated, and for this reason it is said: "Fortified towers," and from it is His saying: And the doors were closed (Yusuf 12:23), and as it is said: I broke the stick, if you made it into pieces, meaning: a piece after a piece. And in that, lightening may be permissible, so if it is made singular from that one, and the verb is repeated in it and is repeated frequently in a plural of it, then it is permissible for them to stress and lighten, so it is said from it: This is a torn garment and cut skin, because the verb is repeated in it and is frequent in cutting and tearing. If the action is not repeated frequently or repeatedly, they do not permit it except with a light pronunciation, such as their saying: I saw a slaughtered ram, and they do not permit it as: slaughtered, because slaughtering is not repeated as a tear in a garment.

Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you are in fortified towers. And if good befalls them, they say, "This is from Allah." But if evil befalls them, they say, "This is from you." Say, "All is from Allah." So what is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word?

They said: This is why it was said: A built palace, because it is one, so it was made like their saying: A slaughtered ram. They said: It is permissible in the palace to say: A built palace with emphasis, because of the repetition of construction and building in it, and this is not permissible in the case of a slaughtered ram, for what we mentioned.

Abu Ja'far said: What is meant by His, the Most High's, saying: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God,' and if they are granted ease, victory, and conquest and obtain spoils, they say, 'This is from God,' meaning: from God and His decree. And if evil befalls them, he says: and if they are afflicted with hardship in life, defeat from an enemy, wounds, and pain, they say to you, O Muhammad: This is from you, because of your error in planning.

This is report from God Almighty about those about whom He said to His Prophet: Have you not considered those who were told, 'Restrain your hands?'

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Sa'd and Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, they said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah, regarding his statement: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God.' But if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you.' He said: This is in prosperity and adversity.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, the same.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God.' But if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you.' So he recited until he reached: And We have sent you, [O Muhammad], as a messenger to mankind. He said: These verses were revealed concerning war. So he recited: O you who have believed, take your precautions and either go forth in companies or go forth all together. So he recited until he reached: And if evil befalls them, they say, This is from Muhammad. He planned badly and looked badly! How good was his planning and his looking.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, may His praise be exalted, meant by His saying: "Say: All is from God," is that say, O Muhammad, to those who say, when something good happens to them: This is from God, and when something bad happens to them: This is from you: All of that is from God, not me or anyone else. From Him is ease and hardship, from Him is victory and triumph, and from Him is victory and defeat, as:

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada: "Say: All is from God," blessings and calamities.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement: All is from God, victory and defeat.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah bin Saleh told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his saying: Say, 'All is from God.' So what is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a statement? He said: The good and the bad are from God. As for the good, He has bestowed it upon you, and as for the bad, He has tested you with it.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: What is the matter with these people? What is the matter with these people who, if something good befalls them, say: This is from God, and if something bad befalls them, say: This is from you. "They can hardly understand a word," he said: They can hardly know the truth of what you are telling them, that everything that befalls them of good or evil, or harm, hardship, or ease, is from God, and no one other than Him has the power to do that, and no one is afflicted with evil except by His decree, and no one attains ease and blessing except by His will.

This is an announcement from God to His servants that the keys to all things are in His hand, and no one else owns anything of them.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

It has four issues

The first - the Almighty's saying: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you is a condition and a reward, and ma is redundant. This address is general, even if what is meant is the hypocrites or the weak believers who said: Why do you not delay us for a short term? That is, until we die at our appointed times. This is more similar to the hypocrites, as we mentioned, because of their saying when the people of Uhud were afflicted, they said: If they had been with us, they would not have died or been killed. (Al Imran 3:156) God responded to them: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in lofty towers. This was said by Ibn Abbas in the narration of Abu Salih from him. One of the towers is a tower, which is a tall building or a great palace. Tarafa said, describing a she-camel.

It is like a Roman tower, surrounded by gypsum, bricks and stones.

Talha bin Sulayman read yadrakum with the kaf raised and the fa' omitted, which is rare and only occurs in poetry, such as his saying:

Whoever does good deeds, God will reward them.

He wanted to thank God.

Scholars and commentators differed about what was meant by these towers. Most said, and it is the most correct, that he meant the towers in the fortresses that are built on the earth, because they are the ultimate goal of human beings in fortification and protection, so God gave them an example of them. Qatada said: In fortified palaces. Ibn Jurayj and the majority said: And from this is the saying of Amir ibn Tufayl to the Prophet, peace and blessings of God be upon him: Would you like a fortified and protected fortress? Mujahid said: The towers are the palaces. Ibn Abbas: The towers are the fortresses, roofs and castles. The meaning of fortified is elongated, as Al-Zajaj and Al-Qatabi said. Ikrimah: Decorated with gypsum, which is plaster. Qatada said: Fortified, fortified and fortified are the same. From this is and a fortified palace (Al-Had: 45) and the emphasis is for emphasis. It was said: fortified is elongated and fortified is covered with gypsum. It is said: He built the building and praised its mention. Al-Suddi said: What is meant by the towers are towers in the lowest heaven that are built. This statement was narrated by Makki on the authority of Malik, who said: Do you not see the words of God Almighty: And the heaven with the mansions (al-Buruj 85:1) He has placed in the heaven mansions (al-Furqan 25:61) And We have certainly placed in the heaven mansions (al-Hijr 15:16). Ibn Al-Arabi also narrated it on the authority of Ibn Al-Qasim on the authority of Malik. Al-Naqqash narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas that he said: In lofty towers means in palaces from a hadith. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is what the apparent meaning of the wording gives.

The second - This verse responds to the Qadarites regarding the appointed times, because God Almighty said: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in fortified towers. Thus He informed them that when the appointed times are over, the soul must leave the body, whether that be killing, death, or something else that God has made it customary for it to end. The Mu'tazila said: If the murderer had not killed the one who was killed, he would have lived. The men preceded them in Al Imran and will come, so they agreed with this statement of theirs with the infidels and hypocrites.

Third: Taking and building lands to protect money and lives, which is the way of God with His servants. This is the clearest evidence to reject the statement of those who say, trust is abandoning the causes, because taking lands is one of the greatest and most important causes, and we have been commanded to do so, and the prophets took them and dug several trenches around them to increase the protection. It was said to Al-Ahnaf, what is the ruling on the wall? He said, to deter the foolish until the wise man comes and protects him.

Fourth: If we go down to the statement of Malik and al-Suddi that they are the constellations of the sky, then the constellations of the heavens are twelve constellations constructed from the rising, and they are the great planets. The planets are called constellations because of their appearance from the constellations that appear and rise, and from this is His saying, And do not display yourselves like that of the times of the former ignorance (al-Ahzab 33:33). God Almighty created them as mansions for the sun and the moon, and determined them in them and arranged the times upon them, and made them southern and northern as a guide to interests and a sign of the qiblah, and a way to obtain the hours of the night and the hours of the day to know the times of the night prayer and other conditions of livelihood.

God the Almighty said: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God.' That is, if the hypocrites are afflicted with fertility, they say, This is from God. "But if evil befalls them," that is, drought and famine, they say, This is from you, that is, it befell us because of your bad luck, your companions. It was said: Good means safety and security, and bad means illnesses and fear. It was also said: Good means wealth and bad means poverty. It was also said: Good means blessing, victory, and booty on the Day of Badr, and bad means affliction, hardship, and killing on the Day of Uhud. It was also said: Good means prosperity, and bad means hardship. These are the sayings of the commentators and scholars of interpretation - Ibn Abbas and others - regarding the verse. And that it was revealed about the Jews and the hypocrites, because when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to them in Medina, they said: We have not ceased to know the deficiency in our fruits and farms since this man and his companions came to them. Ibn Abbas said: The meaning of from you is due to your bad management. And it was said: from you due to your bad luck as we mentioned, meaning due to your bad luck that has befallen us. They said it as a way of purification. God Almighty said: "Say: All is from God" meaning hardship and ease, victory and defeat are from God, meaning by God's decree and destiny. Then what is the matter with these people meaning the hypocrites that they can hardly understand a word meaning what is the matter with them that they do not understand that all is from God.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The believers in the beginning of Islam in Mecca were commanded to pray and give zakat, even if they were not in need of hardship. They were commanded to help the poor among them and to forgive and pardon the polytheists and to be patient for a while. They were burning with desire and wished that they were commanded to fight to get rid of their enemies. The situation at that time was not suitable for many reasons, including: their small number compared to the large number of their enemy, and the fact that they were in their country, which was a sacred country, the most honorable place on earth. So the command to fight there was not initially, as they say. For this reason, jihad was not commanded except in Medina, when it became their home, a fortress, and supporters. Despite this, when they were commanded to do what they wished for, some of them were alarmed by it and feared facing people with intense fear. And they said, 'Our Lord, why have You ordained fighting for us? Why have You not delayed us for a short time?' That is, why have You not delayed its obligation to another period? Because it involves bloodshed, orphaning children, and widowing women. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: And those who believe say, 'Why was it not revealed to you?' Surah So when a decisive Surah is revealed and fighting is mentioned in it verses, Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ibn bin Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz bin Abi Razmah and Ali bin Zanjah told us, they said: Ali bin Al-Hasan told us on the authority of Al-Hussein bin Waqid, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, and on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: that Abdul Rahman bin Awf and his companions came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Mecca, and they said: O Prophet of God, we were in glory while we were polytheists, but when we believed we became humiliated, he said: I have been commanded to forgive, so do not fight the people, so when God transferred him to Medina, He commanded him to fight, so they held back, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who were told, 'Restrain your hands' verse, and Al-Nasa'i, Al-Hakim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaiq with it, and Asbat said, on the authority of Al-Suddi: They were only required to pray and give zakat, so they asked God to impose fighting on them, so when fighting was imposed on them, A party of them feared the people as they feared God or even more, and they said, 'Our Lord, Why did you prescribe fighting for us, if only you had delayed us for a near term?' which is death? God Almighty said: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.' Mujahid said: This verse was revealed about the Jews, narrated by Ibn Jarir. His statement: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.' That is, the Hereafter of the fearing God is better than his world. And you will not be wronged a thread. That is, of your deeds, but you will be given the fullest reward. This is a consolation for them from this world, an encouragement for them in the Hereafter, and an incitement for them to jihad. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim al-Dawraqi told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Hammad ibn Zayd told us on the authority of Hisham, who said: Al-Hasan recited: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little.' He said: May God have mercy on a servant who accompanies it according to that. The whole world, its beginning and its end, is like a man who slept and saw in his dream some of what he liked, then he woke up. Ibn Ma'in said: Abu Musahhar used to recite:

Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you are in fortified towers. And if good befalls them, they say, "This is from Allah." But if evil befalls them, they say, "This is from you." Say, "All is from Allah." So what is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word?

There is no good in this world for those who do not have a share of God in the eternal home.

If the world amazes men, then it is a brief pleasure and its end is near.

And the Almighty's saying: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in fortified towers, meaning that you are bound to die inevitably, and none of you will escape from it, as the Almighty said: Everything on it will perish, and the Almighty said: Every soul will taste death, and the Almighty said: And We have not granted to any human being before you immortality, meaning that everyone is bound to die inevitably, and nothing will save him from that, whether he struggled or not, for he has an inevitable term and a predestined place, as Khalid bin Al-Walid said when death came to his bed: I have witnessed such and such a situation, and there is not a limb of mine that does not have a wound from a stab or an arrow, and here I am dying in my bed, so may the eyes of the cowards not sleep. And His saying: Even if you were in fortified towers, meaning fortified, impregnable, high, and lofty. It was said that they are towers in the sky, Al-Suddi said, and this is weak. The correct view is that they are fortified, meaning that caution and fortification from death are of no avail, as Khalid said: Zuhair bin Abi Salma:

Whoever fears the causes of death will be overtaken by it, even if he seeks the causes of heaven with a ladder.

Then it was said: The constructed is the constructed, as he said: And a constructed palace. And it was said: Rather, there is a difference between them, which is that the constructed with emphasis is the long one, and with emphasis it is the one decorated with plaster, which is gypsum. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim mentioned here a lengthy story on the authority of Mujahid, that he mentioned that a woman among those who came before us was seized by labor pains, so she ordered her servant to bring her fire, so he went out and found a man standing at the door, so he said: What did the woman give birth to? He said: A slave girl, so he said: As for her, she will commit adultery with a hundred men, then her servant will marry her, and her death will be by the spider. He said: He thought back, so he cut the girl's belly with a knife and split it open, then he ran away, and he thought that she had died, so her mother sewed her belly together and she recovered and grew up and became the most beautiful woman in her town, so that hired man went as he went and entered the seas and acquired a lot of money, then he returned to his country and wanted to get married, so he said to an old woman: I want to marry the most beautiful woman in this town, so she said there is no one here more beautiful than so-and-so, so he said: Propose to her on my behalf, so she went to her and she agreed, so he entered her and she was very impressed, so she asked him about his situation and where he came from, so he told her his story and what happened to the girl, so she said: I am her and showed him the place of the knife, so that was confirmed, so he said: If you are her, then he told me two things that are necessary one of them that you committed adultery with a hundred men, so she said: Something of that happened but I do not know their number, so he said: They are a hundred, and the second that you will die One day, while they were there, the spider appeared on the ceiling and she said: Is this the one you are warning me about? By God, no one will kill her except me. So they brought her down from the ceiling, and she went to her and stepped on her with her big toe and killed her. Some of her poison flew out and fell between her nail and her flesh, and her foot turned black. That was her end, and she died. We mention here the story of the ruler of the city, who was Al-Satron, when Shapur schemed against him until he besieged him in it and killed everyone in it after a two-year siege. The Arabs said poems about that, including:

And the brother of Al-Hadar when he built it, and when the Tigris and Khabur were collected to it

He built it of marble and covered it with lime, so that the birds could nest in its peaks.

The hands of death did not give it to him, so the kingdom was lost to him, and his door is deserted.

When he entered upon Uthman, he began to say: O God, unite the nation of Muhammad. Then he recited the words of the poet:

I see that death does not leave a dear one and has not left a refuge or a square for Ad in the country

The people of the fortress spend the night while the fortress is closed, and the mountains come together in their peaks.

Ibn Hisham said: Khosrow Shapur Dhu al-Aktaf killed Satrun, the king of Hatra. Ibn Hisham said: The one who killed the ruler of Hatra was Sapur bin Ardashir bin Babak, the first king of the Sassanids, and he humiliated the kings of the Taifas, and returned the kingdom to the Chosroes. As for Sapur Dhu al-Aktaf, it was a long time after that, and God knows best. Al-Suhayli mentioned it. Ibn Hisham said: He besieged him for two years, because he had raided the lands of Sapur during his absence while he was in Iraq. The daughter of Satrun, whose name was al-Nadhira, came forward and looked at Sapur, who was wearing brocade clothes, and on his head was a crown of gold crowned with emeralds, rubies and pearls. She whispered to him that he would marry me if I would open the door of the fortress for him. He said: Yes. When evening came, Satrun drank until he was drunk, and he never slept except drunk. She took the keys to the door of the fortress from under his head and sent them with a slave of hers, so he opened the door. It is said that she showed them a talisman that was in the fortress that would not be opened until a dove and a hyena were taken and dyed. Her legs are menstruating with a blue virgin slave girl, then she is sent, and when she falls on the wall of the fortress, it falls, so he opens the door, and he does that, and Shapur enters, and kills Satron, and takes over the fortress and destroys it, and he goes with her and marries her, and while she was sleeping on her bed at night, she began to toss and turn and not sleep, so he called for candles for her, and searched her bed and found in it a myrtle leaf, and Shapur said to her: This is what kept you awake, so what did your father do to you? She said: He used to spread brocade for me and dress me in silk, and feed me brains, and give me wine to drink, Al-Tabari said: He used to feed me brains and butter, and the honey of virgin bees, and the pure wine! And he mentioned that he used to see the brain of her leg, he said: So what did your father do to him?! You are the fastest to do that, then he ordered her to tie the horns of her head to the tail of a horse, so the horse ran until it killed her, and Adi bin Zaid Al-Abbadi says his famous verses about it.

O gloating one who is reproached by time, are you the one who is acquitted and granted salvation?

Or do you have a firm covenant from the days? Rather, you are an ignorant arrogant person.

Who saw death as immortal, or who is more afraid of being wronged?

Where is Khosrow, the king of Anushirvan, or where was Sapur before him?

The noble Banu al-Asfar, the kings of Rome, no one is mentioned of them.

And the brother of Al-Hadar, when he built it, and when the Tigris and Khabur were brought to it

Rashad Marmara and Jalla Kalasa, for the birds in its peaks and nests

He was not afraid of death, so the kingdom was lost to him, and his door was deserted.

And remember the Lord of the valleys when He honored you one day, and for guidance there is reflection.

His secret is his money and the abundance of what he owns, while the sea is exposed and the As-Sudair

His heart was filled with fear and he said: What a blessing it is for a living person to live until death.

Then they became like dried leaves, and the wind and the hornet blew them away.

Then after the farmer, the king, and the nation, they were buried there.

And His statement: And if good befalls them meaning fertility and provision of fruits, crops, children and the like, this is the meaning of the statement of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Suddi They say, 'This is from God', but if evil befalls them meaning drought, famine, a decrease in fruits and crops, or the death of children or production or something else as Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Suddi say, They say, 'This is from you' meaning from you and because of our following you and emulating your religion, as God the Almighty said about the people of Pharaoh: So when good comes to them, they say, 'This is from us', but if evil befalls them, they ascribe evil to Moses and those with him and as God the Almighty said: And among the people is he who worships God on the edge (al-Ma'idah 4:10). And this is what these hypocrites said who entered Islam outwardly but hated it in reality, and for this reason when evil befalls them they attribute it to their following the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Suddi said: And if good befalls them, he said: And good is fertility, their livestock and horses produce fruit, and their condition improves and their women give birth to boys, they say, 'This is from God.' But if evil befalls them, and evil is drought and harm to their wealth, they take Muhammad as a bad omen and say, This is from you, they say: Because we abandoned our religion and followed Muhammad, this calamity befell us, so God the Almighty revealed: Say, 'All is from God,' so His statement: Say, 'All is from God,' means everything is by God's decree and predestination, and it is effective for the righteous and the wicked, the believer and the disbeliever. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Say, 'All is from God,' meaning good and bad. Al-Hasan al-Basri said the same. Then the Almighty said, denouncing those who say this statement that is issued from doubt and suspicion, and lack of understanding and knowledge and much ignorance and injustice: What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word? He mentioned a strange hadith related to the Almighty's saying: "Say: All is from God." Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar said: Al-Sakn bin Saeed told us, Omar bin Yunus told us, Ismail bin Hammad told us, on the authority of Muqatil bin Hayyan, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: We were sitting with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when Abu Bakr and Omar came with two tribes of people and their voices were raised. Abu Bakr sat close to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Omar sat close to Abu Bakr. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Why did you raise your voices? A man said: O Messenger of God. Abu Bakr said: O Messenger of God, good deeds are from God and bad deeds are from ourselves. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: So what did you say, O Omar? He said: I said: Good and bad deeds are from God. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "The first to speak about it were Gabriel and Michael. Michael said: What you said, O Abu Bakr, and Gabriel said: What you said, O Umar." He said: "We will differ and the people of heaven will differ, and if the people of heaven differ, the people of earth will differ. So they will refer their case to Israfil, and he will judge between them that good and bad deeds are from God." Then he turned to Abu Bakr and Umar and said: "Remember my judgment between you. If God had wanted that no one should be disobeyed, He would not have created Iblis." Sheikh al-Islam Taqi al-Din Abu al-Abbas Ibn Taymiyyah said: This is a fabricated and invented hadith according to the consensus of the scholars.

Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you are in fortified towers. And if good befalls them, they say, "This is from Allah." But if evil befalls them, they say, "This is from you." Say, "All is from Allah." So what is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word?

Then the Almighty said, addressing His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is the human race, so that the answer may be obtained: Whatever good befalls you is from God, meaning from God's grace, favor, kindness and mercy. And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, meaning from before you, and from your own deeds, as the Almighty said: "And whatever strikes you of disaster - it is for what your hands have earned. But He pardons much." As-Suddi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Zayd said: It is from yourself, meaning because of your sin. Qatada said about the verse It is from yourself as a punishment for you, O son of Adam, for your sin. He said and he mentioned to us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No man is afflicted with the scratch of a stick, nor a stumble, nor a twitch of a vein except for a sin, and what God forgives is more. This which Qatada sent has been narrated in a connected form in Sahih: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, no worry, nor grief, nor fatigue befalls a believer, not even the prick he receives from a thorn, except that God expiates some of his sins because of it. Abu Salih said: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, meaning because of your sin, and I am the One who decreed it for you. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Ammar told us, Sahl, meaning Ibn Bakkar, told us, Al-Aswad ibn Shaiban told us, Uqbah ibn Wasil, the nephew of Mutraf, told me, on the authority of Mutraf ibn Abdullah, who said: What do you want from fate? Is the verse in Surat An-Nisa' not sufficient for you: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God,' but if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you,' meaning from yourself? By God, they were not entrusted to fate, and they were commanded and to it they will return. This is a strong and powerful statement in refuting the Qadarites and the Jabarites as well. And there is another place for its expansion. And the Almighty's saying: And We have sent you to mankind as a Messenger meaning that you convey to them the laws of God and what God loves and is pleased with, and what He hates and rejects. And sufficient is God as Witness meaning that He sent you and He is also a witness between you and them, and He knows what you convey to them and what they respond to you with from the truth out of disbelief and stubbornness.

Fath al-Qadir

And His saying 78- Wherever you may be, death will overtake you is a beginning statement, and in it is an urging for those who sit back from fighting for fear of death, and a statement of the corruption of what mixed with him from the jinn and overwhelmed him from fear, for if death is to happen, it is inevitable.

He who does not die by the sword dies by something else

Buruj is the plural of Burj, which is a tall building. Al-Mushaidah is the elevated one from Shad al-Qasr, meaning he raised it and covered it with shield, which is plaster. The answer to lawla is omitted because what precedes it indicates it.

There is a difference of opinion about what these towers are. Some say: they are the fortresses on the earth, and some say: they are palaces. Al-Zajaj and Al-Qutaibi said: The meaning of constructed is long, and some say: its meaning is covered with gypsum, and some say: what is meant by constructed towers are towers in the lowest heaven that are built. This was narrated by Makki from Malik, and he said: Do you not see his saying: And the heaven with the constellations, "He placed in the heaven constellations," And We have certainly placed in the heaven constellations, and it was said: what is meant by the constructed towers here are palaces of iron. Talhah ibn Sulayman read death will overtake you in the nominative case, estimating the fa, as in his saying:

Their leader said, Dock and let's do it.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

78- The Almighty said: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you meaning: death will overtake you. It was revealed about the hypocrites who said about the dead of UHud 11: If they had been with us, they would not have died or been killed. So God responded to them by saying: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in fortified towers, and towers are fortresses and castles, and fortified is raised and extended. Qatada said: It means in fortified palaces. Ikrimah said: plastered, and plaster is gypsum. And if good befalls them, it was revealed about the Jews and the hypocrites, and that is because they said when the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came to Medina: We have not ceased to know the decrease in our fruits and farms since this man and his companions came to us.

God the Almighty said: And if good befalls them meaning: the Jews they say, 'This is from God' for us. But if evil befalls them meaning: drought and high prices they say, 'This is from you' meaning: from the bad luck of Muhammad and his companions. It was said that what is meant by good is victory and booty on the day of Badr, and what is meant by evil is killing and defeat on the day of Uhud. They say, This is from you meaning: you are the one who led us to it, O Muhammad. So based on this, this is from the saying of the hypocrites. Say to them, O Muhammad, All is from God meaning: good and evil are all from God. Then He reproached them for their ignorance and said: What is the matter with these people meaning: the hypocrites and the Jews, that they can hardly understand a word meaning: they do not understand a word. It was said that the hadith here is the Qur'an, meaning: they do not understand the meanings of the Qur'an.

His saying: What is wrong with these people? Al-Farra' said: This word was used so frequently in speech that they thought that the lam was connected to it and that they were one letter, so they separated the lam from what came after it in some cases, and connected it in some cases. The connection is the reading, and it is not permissible to stop on the lam because it is a lowering lam.

78 Wherever you may be, death will overtake you. It was read with the nominative case, deleting the fa as in his saying:

Whoever does good deeds, God will thank them. Or as a subject, and wherever it is connected to do not wrong. "Even if you were in lofty towers" in palaces or high fortresses, and towers are originally houses on the edges of palaces, from tabarrujt a woman if she appeared. It was read mushaydah with a kasra on the ya' describing it with the description of its doer, like their saying: a female poet's poem, and mushaydah from shed al-qasr if he raised it. And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God,' and if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you.' Just as good and evil fall on obedience and disobedience, they fall on blessing and affliction, and they are what is meant in the verse, that is: If a blessing such as fertility befalls them, they attribute it to God, the Most High, and if a affliction befalls them such as drought, they attribute it to you and say, It is only because of your bad luck, as the Jews said: Since Muhammad entered Medina, its fruits have decreased and its prices have risen. Say, 'All is from God.' That is, He expands and contracts according to His will. What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a statement that they are being admonished with, which is the Qur'an? If they understood it and pondered its meanings, they would know that everything is from God Almighty, or a statement like animals that do not understand, or an event from the vicissitudes of time, so they think about it and know that the One who contracts and expands is God Almighty.

Surat al-Nisa 4:79

Whatever good befalls you is from Allah, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. And We have sent you, [O Muhammad], to mankind as a messenger, and sufficient is Allah as Witness.

Surat al-Nisa 4:79

Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. And We have sent you, [O Muhammad], to mankind as a messenger, and sufficient is God as Witness.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Whatever good befalls you O man is from God it came to you as a favor from Him and whatever evil befalls you a calamity is from yourself it came to you as you committed the sins that deserve it and We have sent you O Muhammad to mankind as a messenger an emphatic state and sufficient is God as Witness of your message

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, is that whatever befalls you, O Muhammad, of ease, blessings, well-being, and safety, is from God's grace upon you, which He bestows upon you as a kindness from Him to you. As for His saying: Whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, he means: Whatever hardship, difficulty, harm, and misfortune befalls you, is from yourself, meaning: because of a sin by which you deserved it, which your soul earned, as:

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. As for from yourself, he says: from your sin.

Bishr bin Muadh narrated to us, he said: Yazid narrated to us, he said: Saeed narrated to us, on the authority of Qatada: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, a punishment, O son of Adam, for your sin. He said: It was mentioned to us that "the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: A man is not afflicted with the scratch of a stick, nor a stumble of a foot, nor a twitch of a vein, except for a sin, and what God forgives is more."

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, he said: The good is what God opened for him on the day of Badr, and what he received of spoils and victory, and the evil is what befell him on the day of Uhud, that his face was bruised and his front tooth was broken.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said,

Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, "Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada: 'Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself,'" he said: because of your sin, then he said: everything is from God, the blessings and the calamities.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Ishaq told us, he said, Abd al-Rahman ibn Sa'd and Ibn Abi Ja'far told us, they said, Abu Ja'far told us, on the authority of al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu al-'Aliyah, his saying: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, he said: This is in good and evil deeds.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah, the same.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, he said: A punishment for your sin.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding His statement: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, because of your sin, as He said to the people of Uhud 11: Or when a disaster befell you, although you had inflicted twice as much, you said, 'From where is this?' Say, 'It is from yourselves.' (Al Imran 3:65), because of your sins.

Yunus Qala' told me, Sufyan told us, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Salih, regarding his statement: And whatever evil befalls you is because of yourself, he said: Because of your sin, and I decreed it upon you.

Muhammad bin Bashar told us, Yahya told us, on the authority of Sufyan, on the authority of Ismail bin Abi Khalid, on the authority of Abu Salih, regarding his statement: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, and I am the one who decreed it upon you.

Musa bin Abdul Rahman Al-Masruqi told me, he said, Muhammad bin Bishr told us, he said, Ismail bin Abi Khalid told me, on the authority of Abu Saleh, something similar.

Abu Jaafar said: If someone says: What is the reason for the inclusion of min in His statement: Whatever good befalls you and Whatever evil befalls you?

It was said: The Arabs differed on this.

Some Basra grammarians said: Min was inserted because Min is good with negation, such as: No one came to me. He said: The introduction of the predicate with "fa" is because ma is like min.

Some grammarians of Kufa said: Min was inserted with ma just as it is inserted with in in the sentence of a reward, because they are both letters of a reward. Likewise, it is inserted with min if it is a reward, so the Arabs say: Man yazrak min ahad fatakrāmuh just as you say: In yazrak min ahad fatakrāmuh. He said: And it was left with ma and min so that it is known by its insertion with them that they are a reward. They said: And if it is inserted with them, it is not deleted, because if it is deleted, the verb raises two things. That is because ma in his statement: Whatever bad thing befell you was raised by his statement: Assabaka. So if min was deleted, his statement: Assabaka was raised by the bad thing, because its meaning is: If a bad thing befalls you. So it is not permissible to delete min for that reason, because a verb that is on the pattern of fa'il or yaf'ul does not raise two things. And that was permissible with min because it is similar to adjectives, and it is in the position of a noun. As for in, "min" is inserted with it and is excluded, but it is not excluded with ay, because it is parsed and the parsing is made clear in it. Ma was included because the i'rab does not appear in it.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, means by His saying, And We have sent you as a messenger to mankind, is that We have made you, O Muhammad, a messenger between Us and the creation, to convey to them the message with which We have sent you, and you are only responsible for conveying and delivering the message to whomever you have sent. If they accept what you have been sent with, then it is for themselves, and if they reject it, then it is against them. And sufficient is God over you and over them, as a witness. He says: God, the Most High, is sufficient for you as a witness over you in conveying what He has commanded you to convey of His message and revelation, and over whomever you have sent to in their acceptance of what you have sent to them, for your affair and their affair are not hidden from Him, and He will reward you for conveying what He has promised you, and He will reward them for what they have done of good and evil, rewarding the doer of good for his good, and the doer of evil for his evil.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. That is, whatever befell you, O Muhammad bin Khasab, of prosperity, health, and safety, is by God's grace and kindness to you, and whatever befell you of drought and hardship, is because of a sin you committed for which you were punished. The address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and his nation is meant. That is, whatever befell you, O people, of fertility and abundance of provision, is from God's grace upon you, and whatever befell you of drought and scarcity of provision, is from yourselves, meaning that it befell you because of your sins. This was said by Al-Hasan, Al-Suddi, and others, as the Almighty said: O Prophet, when you divorce women (al-Talaq 65:1). It has also been said that the address is to man, and what is meant by it is the species, as the Almighty said: By time, indeed, mankind is in loss (At-Asr: 1-2), meaning that people are in loss. Do you not see that He made an exception from them, saying: Except those who believe. And an exception is only made from a group or a community.

According to this interpretation, His statement, What befell you is a new beginning. It was said: There is an omission in the speech, the meaning of which is they say, and accordingly the speech is connected, and the meaning is: What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a statement until they say: Whatever good has befallen you is from God? And it was said: The interrogative alif is implied, and the meaning is: Is it from yourself? And similar to it is the saying of God Almighty: And that is a blessing which You bestow upon me (Ash-Shu'ara': 22), and the meaning is: Or is that a blessing? And similarly is the saying of God Almighty:

And when he saw the moon rising, he said, 'This is my Lord.' (al-An'am 6:77) Meaning, Is this my Lord? Abu Khurash Al-Hudhali said:

They threw me and said, O Khuwaylid, you did not take heed. I said, and I denied the faces, They are they.

He wanted to say more important, so he implied the question mark, which is common and will come. Al-Akhfash said, What means which. It was said: It is a condition. Al-Nahhas said: The correct statement of Al-Akhfash is that it was revealed regarding a specific thing, such as drought, and this is not one of the sins at all. If it were one of them, it would have been whatever bad thing I have suffered. Abd al-Wahhab ibn Mujahid narrated on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, Ubayy, and Ibn Mas'ud. Whatever good thing befalls you is from God, and whatever bad thing befalls you is from yourself, and I have written it for you. This is a reading of the interpretation. Some of the people of deviation have attributed it to the Qur'an, and the hadith with that on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud and Ubayy is disconnected because Mujahid did not see Abdullah or Ubayy. According to the statement of those who said, The good thing is the conquest and the spoils on the day of Badr, and the bad thing is what befell them on the day of Uhud, they were punished when the archers who the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had ordered to protect his back and not move from their place were defeated. They saw the defeat of the Quraysh and the Muslims taking their money as spoils, so they left their ranks. Khalid ibn al-Walid, who was with the infidels that day, looked and saw the back of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had been the archers were exposed, so he took a detachment of horsemen and turned until he was behind the Muslims and attacked them. There was no archer behind the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, except the one with the banner. He kept the will of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, so he stood until he was martyred in his place, as was explained in Al Imran. Then God Almighty revealed a verse similar to this, which is His statement, the Most High: Or when a disaster struck you meaning the day of Uhud and you had inflicted double its amount meaning the day of Badr you said, 'From where is this?' Say, 'It is from yourselves' (Al Imran 3:165). It is not permissible for the good here to be obedience and the bad to be disobedience as the Qadarites said, because if that were the case, then what I inflicted would be as we have mentioned, since it means action according to them and earnings according to us. Rather, the good and obedience and the bad to be disobedience are in something like His statement: Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof, and whoever brings an evil deed will not be recompensed except the like thereof (Al-An'am: 160). As for this verse, it is as we explained it before, of fertility and drought, ease and hardship, in the manner that came. In the verse of Al-A'raf, which is the Almighty's saying: And We seized the people of Pharaoh with years of drought and a loss of fruits that perhaps they might be reminded (al-A'raf 7:130) with years means drought year after year, withholding rain from them, so their fruits decreased and their prices rose. But when good comes to them, they say, 'This is for us.' But if evil befalls them, they ascribe an evil omen to Moses and those with him. (al-A'raf 7:131) meaning, they consider them a bad omen and say this is because we follow you and obey you. So God responded to them by saying: Behold, their omen is only with God. (al-A'raf 7:131) meaning that the bird of blessing and the bird of bad omen, whether good or evil, benefit or harm, are from God, the Almighty, and no creature has any control over them. So likewise is the Almighty's saying in what He informed us about them that they attribute it to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, where He said: And if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you.' Say, 'All is from God.' Just as He said: Behold, their omen is only with God. (al-A'raf 7:131) And as God the Almighty said: And whatever befell you on the day the two armies met was by God's permission. (Aal 'Imran: 131) 166] That is, by God's decree, destiny, and knowledge, and the verses of the Book bear witness to one another. Our scholars said: And whoever believes in God and the Last Day does not doubt that everything is by God's decree, destiny, will, and desire, as God Almighty said: And We test you with evil and with good as trial (Al-Anbiya': 35) and God Almighty said: And when God intends evil for a people, there is no repelling it, and they have no protector besides Him (al-Ra'd 13:11).

Question: Some of the ignorant people of the Sunnah have argued about this verse and used it as evidence, just as the Qadarites have argued about it and used it as evidence. The reason for their argument is that the Qadarites say: The good here is obedience and the bad is disobedience. They said: And disobedience has been attributed in the Almighty's saying: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself to man and not to God Almighty. So this is the reason for their attachment to it and the reason for others' attachment to it is the Almighty's saying: All is from God. They said: He attributed the good and the bad to himself and not to his creation. This verse is only related to the ignorant from both groups, because they based it on the fact that the bad deed is the sin, and it is not so for what we have explained, and God knows best. And if the Qadarites said: Whatever good befalls you meaning of obedience is from God, then this is not their belief because their belief on which they based their doctrine is that the good deed is the action of the doer of good and the bad deed is upon the wrongdoer. Also, if they had an argument in it, he would have said: Whatever good deed I have attained and whatever bad deed I have attained, because He is the doer of both the good deed and the bad deed, so it is not attributed to Him except by His action for them, not by the action of someone else. This statement was stated explicitly by Imam Abu al-Hasan Shabib ibn Ibrahim ibn Muhammad ibn Haidera in his book called Haz al-Ghalasim fi Ifham al-Mukhasim.

The Almighty says: And We have sent you to mankind as a Messenger is a confirmed source, and it is possible that the meaning is having a message. "And sufficient is God as a witness" is an accusative of clarification, and the ba is redundant, meaning sufficient is God as a witness to the truthfulness of the message of His Prophet and that he is truthful.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The believers in the beginning of Islam in Mecca were commanded to pray and give zakat, even if they were not in need of hardship. They were commanded to help the poor among them and to forgive and pardon the polytheists and to be patient for a while. They were burning with desire and wished that they were commanded to fight to get rid of their enemies. The situation at that time was not suitable for many reasons, including: their small number compared to the large number of their enemy, and the fact that they were in their country, which was a sacred country, the most honorable place on earth. So the command to fight there was not initially, as they say. For this reason, jihad was not commanded except in Medina, when it became their home, a fortress, and supporters. Despite this, when they were commanded to do what they wished for, some of them were alarmed by it and feared facing people with intense fear. And they said, 'Our Lord, why have You ordained fighting for us? Why have You not delayed us for a short time?' That is, why have You not delayed its obligation to another period? Because it involves bloodshed, orphaning children, and widowing women. This verse is like the Almighty's saying: And those who believe say, 'Why was it not revealed to you?' Surah So when a decisive Surah is revealed and fighting is mentioned in it verses, Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali bin Al-Hussein told us, Muhammad bin Abdul Aziz bin Abi Razmah and Ali bin Zanjah told us, they said: Ali bin Al-Hasan told us on the authority of Al-Hussein bin Waqid, on the authority of Amr bin Dinar, and on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: that Abdul Rahman bin Awf and his companions came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in Mecca, and they said: O Prophet of God, we were in glory while we were polytheists, but when we believed we became humiliated, he said: I have been commanded to forgive, so do not fight the people, so when God transferred him to Medina, He commanded him to fight, so they held back, so God revealed: Have you not seen those who were told, 'Restrain your hands' verse, and Al-Nasa'i, Al-Hakim and Ibn Mardawayh narrated it from the hadith of Ali bin Al-Hasan bin Shaqiq with it, and Asbat said, on the authority of Al-Suddi: They were only required to pray and give zakat, so they asked God to impose fighting on them, so when fighting was imposed on them, A party of them feared the people as they feared God or even more, and they said, 'Our Lord, Why did you prescribe fighting for us, if only you had delayed us for a near term?' which is death? God Almighty said: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.' Mujahid said: This verse was revealed about the Jews, narrated by Ibn Jarir. His statement: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little, and the Hereafter is better for him who fears God.' That is, the Hereafter of the fearing God is better than his world. And you will not be wronged a thread. That is, of your deeds, but you will be given the fullest reward. This is a consolation for them from this world, an encouragement for them in the Hereafter, and an incitement for them to jihad. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Ya'qub ibn Ibrahim al-Dawraqi told us, Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Hammad ibn Zayd told us on the authority of Hisham, who said: Al-Hasan recited: Say, 'The enjoyment of this world is little.' He said: May God have mercy on a servant who accompanies it according to that. The whole world, its beginning and its end, is like a man who slept and saw in his dream some of what he liked, then he woke up. Ibn Ma'in said: Abu Musahhar used to recite:

There is no good in this world for those who do not have a share of God in the eternal home.

If the world amazes men, then it is a brief pleasure and its end is near.

And the Almighty's saying: Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, even if you were in fortified towers, meaning that you are bound to die inevitably, and none of you will escape from it, as the Almighty said: Everything on it will perish, and the Almighty said: Every soul will taste death, and the Almighty said: And We have not granted to any human being before you immortality, meaning that everyone is bound to die inevitably, and nothing will save him from that, whether he struggled or not, for he has an inevitable term and a predestined place, as Khalid bin Al-Walid said when death came to his bed: I have witnessed such and such a situation, and there is not a limb of mine that does not have a wound from a stab or an arrow, and here I am dying in my bed, so may the eyes of the crows not sleep. And His saying: Even if you were in fortified towers, meaning fortified, impregnable, high, and lofty. It was said that they are towers in the sky, Al-Suddi said, and this is weak. The correct view is that they are fortified, meaning that caution and fortification from death are of no avail, as Khalid said: Zuhair bin Abi Salma:

Whoever fears the causes of death will be overtaken by it, even if he seeks the causes of heaven with a ladder.

Then it was said: The constructed is the constructed, as he said: And a constructed palace. And it was said: Rather, there is a difference between them, which is that the constructed with emphasis is the long one, and with emphasis it is the one decorated with plaster, which is gypsum. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim mentioned here a lengthy story on the authority of Mujahid, that he mentioned that a woman among those who came before us was seized by labor pains, so she ordered her servant to bring her fire, so he went out and found a man standing at the door, so he said: What did the woman give birth to? He said: A slave girl, so he said: As for her, she will commit adultery with a hundred men, then her servant will marry her, and her death will be by the spider. He said: He thought back, so he cut the girl's belly with a knife and split it open, then he ran away, and he thought that she had died, so her mother sewed her belly together and she recovered and grew up and became the most beautiful woman in her town, so that hired man went as he went and entered the seas and acquired a lot of money, then he returned to his country and wanted to get married, so he said to an old woman: I want to marry the most beautiful woman in this town, so she said there is no one here more beautiful than so-and-so, so he said: Propose to her on my behalf, so she went to her and she agreed, so he entered her and she was very impressed, so she asked him about his situation and where he came from, so he told her his story and what happened to the girl, so she said: I am her and showed him the place of the knife, so that was confirmed, so he said: If you are her, then he told me two things that are necessary one of them that you committed adultery with a hundred men, so she said: Something of that happened but I do not know their number, so he said: They are a hundred, and the second that you will die One day, while they were there, the spider appeared on the ceiling and she said: Is this the one you are warning me about? By God, no one will kill her except me. So they brought her down from the ceiling, and she went to her and stepped on her with her big toe and killed her. Some of her poison flew out and fell between her nail and her flesh, and her foot turned black. That was her end, and she died. We mention here the story of the ruler of the city, who was Al-Satrun, when Shapur schemed against him until he besieged him in it and killed everyone in it after a two-year siege. The Arabs said poems about that, including:

And the brother of Al-Hadar when he built it, and when the Tigris and Khabur were collected to it

He built it of marble and covered it with lime, so that the birds could nest in its peaks.

The hands of death did not give it to him, so the kingdom was lost to him, and his door is deserted.

When he entered upon Uthman, he began to say: O God, unite the nation of Muhammad. Then he recited the words of the poet:

I see that death does not leave a dear one and has not left a refuge or a square for Ad in the country

The people of the fortress spend the night while the fortress is closed, and the mountains come together in their peaks.

Ibn Hisham said: Khosrow Shapur Dhu al-Aktaf killed Satrun, the king of Hatra. Ibn Hisham said: The one who killed the ruler of Hatra was Sapur bin Ardashir bin Babak, the first king of the Sassanids, and he humiliated the kings of the Taifas, and returned the kingdom to the Chosroes. As for Sapur Dhu al-Aktaf, it was a long time after that, and God knows best. Al-Suhayli mentioned it. Ibn Hisham said: He besieged him for two years, because he had raided the lands of Sapur during his absence while he was in Iraq. The daughter of Satrun, whose name was al-Nadhira, came forward and looked at Sapur, who was wearing brocade clothes, and on his head was a crown of gold crowned with emeralds, rubies and pearls. She whispered to him that he would marry me if I would open the door of the fortress for him. He said: Yes. When evening came, Satrun drank until he was drunk, and he never slept except drunk. She took the keys to the door of the fortress from under his head and sent them with a slave of hers, so he opened the door. It is said that she showed them a talisman that was in the fortress that would not be opened until a dove and a hyena were taken and dyed. Her legs are menstruating with a blue virgin slave girl, then she is sent, and when she falls on the wall of the fortress, it falls, so he opens the door, and he does that, and Shapur enters, and kills Satrun, and takes over the fortress and destroys it, and he goes with her and marries her, and while she was sleeping on her bed at night, she began to toss and turn and not sleep, so he called for candles for her, and searched her bed and found in it a myrtle leaf, and Shapur said to her: This is what kept you awake, so what did your father do to you? She said: He used to spread brocade for me and dress me in silk, and feed me brains, and give me wine to drink, Al-Tabari said: He used to feed me brains and butter, and the honey of virgin bees, and the pure wine! And he mentioned that he used to see the brain of her leg, he said: So what did your father do to him?! You are the fastest to do that, then he ordered her to tie the horns of her head to the tail of a horse, so the horse ran until it killed her, and Adi bin Zaid Al-Abbadi says his famous verses about it.

Whatever good befalls you is from Allah, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. And We have sent you, [O Muhammad], to mankind as a messenger, and sufficient is Allah as Witness.

O gloating one who is reproached by time, are you the one who is acquitted and granted salvation?

Or do you have a firm covenant from the days? Rather, you are an ignorant arrogant person.

Who saw death as immortal, or who is more afraid of being wronged?

Where is Khosrow, the king of Anushirvan, or where was Sapur before him?

The noble Banu al-Asfar, the kings of Rome, no one is mentioned of them.

And the brother of Al-Hadar, when he built it, and when the Tigris and Khabur were brought to it

Rashad Marmara and Jalla Kalasa, for the birds in its peaks and nests

He was not afraid of death, so the kingdom was lost to him, and his door was deserted.

And remember the Lord of the valleys when He honored you one day, and for guidance there is reflection.

His secret is his money and the abundance of what he owns, while the sea is exposed and the As-Sudair

His heart was filled with fear and he said: What a blessing it is for a living person to live until death.

Then they became like dried leaves, and the wind and the hornet blew them away.

Then after the farmer, the king, and the nation, they were buried there.

And His statement: And if good befalls them meaning fertility and provision of fruits, crops, children and the like, this is the meaning of the statement of Ibn Abbas, Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Suddi They say, 'This is from God', but if evil befalls them meaning drought, famine, a decrease in fruits and crops, or the death of children or production or something else as Abu Al-Aaliyah and Al-Suddi say, They say, 'This is from you' meaning from you and because of our following you and emulating your religion, as God the Almighty said about the people of Pharaoh: So when good comes to them, they say, 'This is from us', but if evil befalls them, they ascribe evil to Moses and those with him and as God the Almighty said: And among the people is he who worships God on the edge (al-Ma'idah 4:10). And this is what these hypocrites said who entered Islam outwardly but hated it in reality, and for this reason when evil befalls them they attribute it to their following the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. Al-Suddi said: And if good befalls them, he said: And good is fertility, their livestock and horses produce fruit, and their condition improves and their women give birth to boys, they say, 'This is from God.' But if evil befalls them, and evil is drought and harm to their wealth, they take Muhammad as a bad omen and say, This is from you, they say: Because we abandoned our religion and followed Muhammad, this calamity befell us, so God the Almighty revealed: Say, 'All is from God,' so His statement: Say, 'All is from God,' means everything is by God's decree and predestination, and it is effective for the righteous and the wicked, the believer and the disbeliever. Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: Say, 'All is from God,' meaning good and bad. Al-Hasan al-Basri said the same. Then the Almighty said, denouncing those who say this statement that is issued from doubt and suspicion, and lack of understanding and knowledge and much ignorance and injustice: What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word? He mentioned a strange hadith related to the Almighty's saying: "Say: All is from God." Al-Hafiz Abu Bakr Al-Bazzar said: Al-Sakn bin Saeed told us, Omar bin Yunus told us, Ismail bin Hammad told us, on the authority of Muqatil bin Hayyan, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: We were sitting with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when Abu Bakr and Omar came with two tribes of people and their voices were raised. Abu Bakr sat close to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and Omar sat close to Abu Bakr. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Why did you raise your voices? A man said: O Messenger of God. Abu Bakr said: O Messenger of God, good deeds are from God and bad deeds are from ourselves. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: So what did you say, O Umar? He said: I said: Good and bad deeds are from God. The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "The first to speak about it were Gabriel and Michael. Michael said: What you said, O Abu Bakr, and Gabriel said: What you said, O Umar." He said: "We will differ and the people of heaven will differ, and if the people of heaven differ, the people of earth will differ. So they will refer their case to Israfil, and he will judge between them that good and bad deeds are from God." Then he turned to Abu Bakr and Umar and said: "Remember my judgment between you. If God had wanted that no one should be disobeyed, He would not have created Iblis." Sheikh al-Islam Taqi al-Din Abu al-Abbas Ibn Taymiyyah said: This is a fabricated and invented hadith according to the consensus of the scholars. Then the Almighty said, addressing His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and what is meant is the human race, so that the answer may be obtained: Whatever good befalls you is from God, meaning from God's grace, favor, kindness and mercy. And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, meaning from before you, and from your own deeds, as the Almighty said: "And whatever strikes you of disaster - it is for what your hands have earned. But He pardons much." As-Suddi, Al-Hasan Al-Basri, Ibn Jurayj and Ibn Zayd said: It is from yourself, meaning because of your sin. Qatada said about the verse It is from yourself as a punishment for you, O son of Adam, for your sin. He said and he mentioned to us that the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: No man is afflicted with the scratch of a stick, nor a stumble, nor a twitch of a vein except for a sin, and what God forgives is more. This which Qatada sent has been narrated in a connected form in Sahih: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, no worry, nor grief, nor fatigue befalls a believer, not even the prick he receives from a thorn, except that God expiates some of his sins because of it. Abu Salih said: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, meaning because of your sin, and I am the One who decreed it for you. Narrated by Ibn Jarir. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad ibn Ammar told us, Sahl, meaning Ibn Bakkar, told us, Al-Aswad ibn Shaiban told us, Uqbah ibn Wasil, the nephew of Mutraf, told me, on the authority of Mutraf ibn Abdullah, who said: What do you want from fate? Is the verse in Surat An-Nisa' not sufficient for you: And if good befalls them, they say, 'This is from God,' but if evil befalls them, they say, 'This is from you,' meaning from yourself? By God, they were not entrusted to fate, and they were commanded and to it they will return. This is a strong and powerful statement in refuting the Qadarites and the Jabarites as well. And there is another place for its expansion. And the Almighty's saying: And We have sent you to mankind as a Messenger meaning that you convey to them the laws of God and what God loves and is pleased with, and what He hates and rejects. And sufficient is God as Witness meaning that He sent you and He is also a witness between you and them, and He knows what you convey to them and what they respond to you with from the truth out of disbelief and stubbornness.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 79- And if good befalls them This and what follows is specific to al-Munafiqun 63: that is, if a blessing befalls them, they attribute it to God Almighty, and if a calamity or misfortune befalls them, they attribute it to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace. God responded to them by saying, Say, 'All is from God.' It is not as you claim. Then He attributed ignorance and lack of understanding to them, saying, What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word? That is, what is wrong with them like this? His saying, Whatever good befalls you is from God. This address is either to all people who are fit for it, or to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, as an allusion to his nation: that is, whatever fertility, prosperity, health, and safety befalls you is from God by His grace and mercy, and whatever hardship, affliction, and difficulty befalls you is from yourself because of a sin you committed and were punished for. It was said that this is from the speech of those who do not understand a hadith: that is, they say, Whatever good befalls you is from God. It was said that the interrogative alif is implied: that is, is it from yourself? And similar to it is the saying of God, the Most High, And that is a blessing which You bestow upon me, meaning: or that is a blessing. And similar to it is His saying, "So when he saw the moon rising, he said: This is my Lord," that is, is this my Lord? And from this is the saying of Abu Khurash al-Hudhali:

They threw me and said, O Khuwaylid, you did not take heed. I said, and I denied the faces, They are they.

Meaning: more important, more important, and this is contrary to what appears, and the Noble Book has mentioned what indicates the meaning of this verse, such as the Almighty's saying: And whatever strikes you of disaster - it is for what your hands have earned; but He pardons much, and His saying: Or when disaster strikes you, although you had inflicted double it, you say, 'From where is this?' Say, 'It is from yourselves.' It may be thought that His saying: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, contradicts His saying: Say, 'All is from God,' and His saying: And whatever befell you on the day the two armies met was by permission of God, and His saying: And We test you with evil and with good as trial, and His saying: And when God intends ill for a people, there is no repelling it, and they have no protector besides Him, but this is not the case. Combining is possible, as is established in its proper contexts. His saying, And We have sent you as a messenger to mankind is a clarification of the generality of his message, may God bless him and grant him peace, to everyone, as is indicated by the emphasis of the source and the generality of the people. Similar to it is his saying, And We have not sent you except as a mercy to mankind, and his saying, O mankind, indeed I am the Messenger of God to you all, and And sufficient is God as Witness to that.

Surat al-Nisa 4:79

Whatever good befalls you is from Allah, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. And We have sent you, [O Muhammad], to mankind as a messenger, and sufficient is Allah as Witness.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

79- The Almighty said: Whatever good befalls you, good and blessing, "is from God. And whatever evil befalls you," a calamity or something you dislike, is from yourself, meaning: your sins, and the address is to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, but what is meant is someone else, similar to the Almighty's saying: And whatever strikes you of disaster - it is for what your hands have earned (al-Shura 42:30). The people of predestination cling to the apparent meaning of this verse, and they said: God Almighty denied the evil from Himself and attributed it to the servant, so He said: And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, and they have no connection to it, because what is meant by the verse is not the good deeds of earning nor the evil deeds of obedience and disobedience, but what is meant by them is what befalls them of blessings and trials, and that is not from their actions, as evidenced by the fact that He attributed it to others and did not attribute it to them, so He said: What befell you, and it is not said in obedience and disobedience, It befell me, rather it is said: I was afflicted with it, and it is said in blessings, It befell me, as evidenced by the fact that He did not mention it. Reward or punishment, as God Almighty said: So when good comes to them, they say, 'This is ours,' but if evil befalls them, they ascribe evil to Moses and those with him (al-A'raf 7:131). And when He mentioned the good and bad deeds of earning, He attributed them to Himself, and promised reward and punishment for them, saying: Whoever brings a good deed will have ten times the like thereof, and whoever brings an evil deed will not be recompensed except the like thereof (al-An'am 6:16).

It was said: The meaning of the verse is: Whatever good befell you of victory and triumph on the day of Badr was from God, meaning: from the grace of God, and whatever evil befell you of killing and defeat on the day of Uhud was from yourself, meaning: because of your own sin of disobeying the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace.

If it is said: How can we reconcile His statement, Say, 'All is from God,' with His statement, Then from yourself, it is said: His statement, Say, 'All is from God,' means: fertility and drought, victory and defeat are all from God, and His statement, Then from yourself, means: whatever evil befalls you from God is because of your own sin as a punishment for you, as God Almighty said, And whatever strikes you of disaster - it is for what your hands have earned. (al-Shura 42:30) This is indicated by what Mujahid narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas, may God be pleased with them both, that he recited, And whatever evil befalls you - it is from yourself, and I have written it down for you.

Some of them said: This verse is connected to what preceded it, and the statement in it is implied, meaning: What is the matter with these people that they can hardly understand a word? They say: Whatever good befalls you is from God, and whatever evil befalls you is from yourself. "Say: All is from God." And We have sent you, O Muhammad, to mankind as a messenger, and sufficient is God as a witness, of your sending and your truthfulness. It was said: And sufficient is God as a witness that all good and evil are from God Almighty.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

79Whatever good befalls you O human being. It is from God meaning a favor from Him, for everything a person does in terms of obedience is not equivalent to the blessing of existence, so how can it necessitate anything else? That is why the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "No one will enter Paradise except by the mercy of God the Most High. It was said: Not even you? He said: Not even me." And whatever evil befalls you of affliction. It is from yourself because it is the cause of it, as it is brought about by sins. This does not contradict the words of God the Most High: "Say: All is from God", for all is from Him in creation and delivery. However, the good is kindness and gratitude, and the evil is recompense and vengeance, as Aisha may God be pleased with her said: "No Muslim is afflicted with fatigue or exhaustion, or a thorn that pricks him, or even the lace of his sandal breaking, except for a sin. And God forgives more." As you can see, the two verses do not constitute an argument for us or the Mu'tazila. And We have sent you to mankind as a messenger is a state intended to emphasize if the preposition is attached to the verb, and to generalize if it is attached to it, i.e. a messenger to all mankind, as in the Almighty's saying: And We have not sent you, [O Muhammad], except as a mercy to mankind. It is permissible to put it in the accusative case as a verbal noun, as in His saying: And not outside of the false speech. "And sufficient is God as Witness" of your message by putting miracles in the accusative case.

Surat al-Nisa 4:80

Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God, and whoever turns away - then We have not sent you over them as a guardian.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

(Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God. But whoever turns away) turns away from your obedience, then do not worry about it We have not sent you over them as a guardian a guardian of their deeds, but rather as a warner. And to Us is their affair, so We will recompense them. This was before the command to fight.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: This is an excuse from God to His creation regarding His Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace. God Almighty says to them: Whoever among you, O people, obeys Muhammad has obeyed Me by obeying him, so listen to his words and obey his command, for whatever he commands you to do is from My command, and whatever he forbids you from doing is from My prohibition. So let none of you say: Muhammad is only a human being like us who wants to do better than us.

Then He, the Most High, said to His Prophet: "And whoever turns away from your obedience, O Muhammad, then turn away from you, for We did not send you over them as a 'guardian', meaning: a guardian of what they do and an accountant, but rather We sent you to explain to them what was revealed to them, and sufficient are We as guardians of their deeds, and as accountants for them."

This verse was revealed, as mentioned, before he was commanded to wage jihad, and as follows:

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, I asked Ibn Zayd about the statement of God: So We have not sent you over them as a guardian, he said: This is the first thing He sent him. He said: Your duty is only to convey the message (al-Shura 42:48). He said: Then after this He came with His command to fight them and be harsh with them until they submit.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God, but whoever turns away - then We have not sent you over them as a guardian.

God Almighty says: Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God. God Almighty knows that obeying the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, is obedience to Him. In Sahih Muslim, "On the authority of Abu Hurairah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said:

Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys me has disobeyed God. Whoever obeys the emir has obeyed me, and whoever disobeys the emir has disobeyed me." In another narration: And whoever obeys my emir, and whoever disobeys my emir.

God Almighty says: And whoever turns away meaning turns away We have not sent you over them as a guardian meaning as a guardian and monitor of their actions. You are only responsible for conveying the message. Al-Qutbi said: An accountant. So God abrogated this with the verse of the sword and commanded him to fight whoever disobeys God and His Messenger.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty informs us about His servant and Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that whoever obeys him has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys him has disobeyed God. This is only because he does not speak from his own desires. It is only a revelation that is revealed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys me has disobeyed God, and whoever obeys the ruler has obeyed me, and whoever disobeys the ruler has disobeyed me. This hadith is proven in the two Sahihis on the authority of Al-A'mash. And His statement: And whoever turns away - then We have not sent you over them as a guardian. That is, you are not responsible for him. You are only responsible for conveying the message. Whoever follows you will be happy and saved, and you will have a reward equivalent to what he has achieved. Whoever turns away from you will be disappointed and lose, and you are not responsible for anything in his affair, as came in the hadith: Whoever obeys God and His Messenger has been guided, and whoever disobeys God and His Messenger will only harm himself.

And His statement: And they say, 'We obey,' God Almighty informs us about the hypocrites that they show agreement and obedience. But when they go forth from you, that is, they go out and hide from you, a party of them conceals something other than what you say, that is, they conceal it among themselves at night, other than what they revealed to you. So God Almighty said: And God records what they conceal, that is, He knows it and writes it down for them according to what He commands His recording guardians who are entrusted with the servants. The meaning of this threat is that God Almighty informs us that He knows what they conceal and conceal among themselves, and what they agree upon at night of disobeying and disobeying the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, even if they showed him obedience and agreement, and He will reward them for that, as God Almighty said: And they say, 'We believe in God and the Messenger, and we obey,' the verse. And His statement: So turn away from them, that is, pardon them and be patient with them and do not hold them accountable, and do not reveal their affairs to the people, and do not fear them either. And put your trust in God, and God is sufficient as a guardian, supporter, and helper for whoever puts his trust in Him. And I turn to Him. of the kaf.

Fath al-Qadir

His saying 80- Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God in it that obedience to the Messenger is obedience to God, and in this there is a call to the honor of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the high status and loftiness of his position that cannot be measured or reached, and its reason is that the Messenger does not command except what God has commanded, and does not forbid except what God has forbidden. And whoever turns away that is, turns away We have not sent you over them as a guardian that is, a guardian of their deeds, you are only responsible for conveying the message.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

80- The Almighty said: Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God, and that is because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to say: Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever loves me has loved God. Some of the hypocrites said: This man only wants us to take him as a lord, just as the Christians took Jesus, son of Mary, as a lord. So God, the Almighty, revealed: Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God, meaning: Whoever obeys the Messenger in what he commands has obeyed God, and whoever turns away, from obeying him, We have not sent you, O Muhammad, over them as a guardian, meaning: a protector and a watcher, but rather all their affairs are up to God, the Almighty. It was said: God, the Almighty, abrogated this with the verse of the sword, and He ordered him to fight whoever disobeyed God and His Messenger.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

80Whoever obeys the Messenger has obeyed God because he, peace and blessings be upon him, is in fact a messenger, and the command is God, the Most High. It was narrated that "he, peace and blessings be upon him, said: Whoever loves me has loved God, and whoever obeys me has obeyed God. He said: The hypocrites have committed polytheism and he forbade it, he only wants us to take him as a lord as the Christians took Jesus as a lord so it was revealed. "And whoever turns away" from obeying him. "We have not sent you over them as a guardian" to preserve their deeds and hold them accountable for them. You are only responsible for conveying the message and for Us is the reckoning, and it is a state

Surat al-Nisa 4:81

And they say, We obey. But when they leave you, a party of them plots something other than what you say. And God records what they plot. So turn away from them and rely upon God. And sufficient is God as Disposer of affairs.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And they say that is, the hypocrites, when they come to you, We command you in obedience to you. But when they go forth they go out from you, a party of them plots something other than what they say to you in your presence, by assimilating the ta' into the ta' and leaving it out, that is, they conceal something other than what they say to you in your presence, of obedience, that is, your disobedience. And God records He orders the writing of what they plot in their records so that they may be punished for it. So turn away from them with forgiveness and put your trust in God trust in Him, for He is sufficient for you. And sufficient is God as Disposer of affairs entrusted to Him.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: By that, the Most High means by His saying: And they say, 'We obey,' meaning: the group about whom God informed that when fighting was prescribed for them, they feared people as they feared God or even more. They say to the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he commanded them to do something: Your command is obedience, and we have obedience to you in what you command us to do and forbid us from doing. Then when they go forth from you, meaning: when they leave you, O Muhammad, a party of them will stay at night other than what you say, meaning by that, the Most High: other than a group of them at night who you say to them.

Every action done at night is a plot, including the enemy's plot, which is to attack them at night. This is the saying of Ubaidah bin Hammam:

They came to me and I was not satisfied with what they spent the night with, and they brought me something strange

I will marry their orphan, but can a free man marry a free man?!

He means by his saying: I was not satisfied with what they planned at night, meaning: what they decided and resolved to do. From this is the saying of Al-Nimr bin Tulub Al-Akli:

You came to reproach me at night, listen! Foolishly, blame accuses you, so sleep.

God Almighty says: And God records what they conceal, meaning by that Almighty: God records what they change of their intentions at night in the books of their deeds that His angels record. And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And they say, 'We obey,' but when they leave you, a party of them will say something other than what you say, he said: They change what the Prophet of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had promised.

Muhammad bin Abdullah bin Buzaie told me, he said, Yusuf bin Khalid told us, he said, Nafi' bin Malik told us, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: A group of them did not say what you say, he said: Other than those, what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, he said, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And they say, 'Obedience,' but when they leave you, a group of them says something other than what you say. He said: Other than those, what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said.

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told us, Ahmad ibn al-Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: "And they say, 'We obey,' but when they leave you, a party of them will say something other than what you say. And God records what they plan." He said: These are the hypocrites who say, when they are present with the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and he orders them to do something, they say, We obey. But when they leave him, a party of them will change what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, says. And God records what they plan. He said: What they say.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, who said, Ibn Abbas said, his statement: And they say, 'We obey,' but when they depart from you, a party of them will say something other than what you say, he said: They change what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And they say, 'We obey,' but when they leave you, a party of them will say something other than what you say, and they are people who used to say in the presence of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, We believe in God and His Messenger, so that their blood and property would be safe. But when they left the presence of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, they would say something other than what they said in his presence, so God criticized them and said, A party of them will say something other than what you say, meaning they would change what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin

Surat al-Nisa 4:81

And they say, "We obey." But when they leave you, a party of them plots something other than what you say. And God records what they plot. So turn away from them and rely upon God. And sufficient is God as Disposer of affairs.

Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Al-Dahhak say regarding His statement: A group of them have a house other than what you say, they are the people of hypocrisy.

As for raising obedience, it is by the omitted word that is indicated by the apparent meaning of the statement, which is: Your command is obedience, or: From us is obedience.

As for his saying: A group's house, the ta' of house is moved with a fatha in all the readings of Medina, Iraq, and all other readings, because it is a lam of action.

Some of the Iraqi readers would pronounce it silently, then merge it with the letter taa, because they are similar in their point of articulation.

Abu Jaafar said: The correct reading in this regard is to omit the assimilation, because they - I mean the ta' and the ta' - are two different letters. If this is the case, then omitting the assimilation is the more eloquent of the two languages among the Arabs, and the other language - I mean the assimilation in this regard - is permissible and reported.

Abu Ja'far said: God Almighty says to Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace: So turn away, O Muhammad, from these hypocrites who say to you in what you command them: Your command is obedience, but when they leave you they disobey what you command them to do and change it to what you forbade them from doing, and leave them to what they are doing of misguidance, and be satisfied with me as a vengeance against them, and trust, O Muhammad, in God, meaning: and you entrust your matter to God, and trust in Him in your affairs, and entrust them to Him, and God is sufficient as a Disposer of affairs, meaning: and God is sufficient for you - that is: and God is sufficient for you - as a Disposer of affairs, that is: in what He commands you, and a Guardian for it, and a Defender of you and a Supporter.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty said: "And they say, 'We obey,' but when they go forth from you, a party of them will camp other than what you say. And God records what they plot." That is, our command is obedience. Obedience in the accusative case is permissible, meaning we obey in obedience. This is the reading of Nasr bin Asim, Al-Hasan and Al-Jahdari. This is about the hypocrites according to the opinion of most of the commentators, that is, they say when they are with you: our command is obedience, or we obey in obedience. Their statement is not beneficial because the one who does not believe in obedience is not truly obedient because God Almighty did not realize their obedience with what they showed. If it were obedience without belief in reality, He would have ruled it for them. So it is proven that obedience is by belief with its existence. And when they go forth, that is, they leave, a party of them will camp. So he mentioned the group because it is in the meaning of men. The Kufians assimilated the ta' into the ta' because they are from the same point of articulation. Al-Kisa'i considered this ugly in the verb, but according to the Basrans it is not ugly. The meaning of house is false and deceptive. It was said: other, substitute and distortion. That is, they changed the words of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, in what he entrusted to them and ordered them to do. The word al-Tabtib means to change, and from this is the saying of the poet:

They came to me, and I was not satisfied with what they had planned, and they came to me with something reprehensible.

I will marry their orphan, and will a free man marry a free man?

last:

My verse is that Abdul Malik may God kill him, an ungrateful slave.

A man decides a matter at night. God Almighty said: When they plan what is not pleasing to Him (An-Nisa': 108). The Arabs say: He decided a matter at night, if he decided it. The night was specifically mentioned because it is a time when he is free. The poet said:

They decided their plan at night, and when morning came, they started to make noise.

From this is the house of fasting and the houses: the water stays at night, and the houses: the matter its owner stays at night concerned about it. Al-Hudhali said:

And I make its paragraph a provision if the houses of a difficult matter are afraid

And the night and the night is that the enemy comes at night and spends the night doing something if he does it at night, as it is said: he remained during the day and the night of something is estimated. If it is said: then what is the wisdom in starting it by mentioning all of them and then saying the night of a group of them it is said: it only expresses the state of one who knows that he will remain in his disbelief and hypocrisy and forgives one who knows that he will return from that. And it is said: it only expresses the state of one who witnessed and was confused about his matter, as for one who heard and remained silent, he did not mention him, and God knows best. And God writes down what they spend the night meaning He records it in their records of deeds to reward them for it. Al-Zajaj said: the meaning is that He sends it down to you in the book. And in this verse is evidence that mere saying does not benefit anything as we mentioned, for they said: obedience and they uttered it, and God did not verify their obedience nor did He rule for them that it is valid because they did not believe in it. So it is proven that the obedient one cannot be obedient except by believing in it with its existence.

God the Almighty says: "So turn away from them and rely upon God, and sufficient is God as Disposer of affairs. Will they not then reflect upon the Qur'an?" God the Almighty says: So turn away from them meaning do not tell Ad-Dahhak by their names, meaning the hypocrites. It was said: Do not punish them. Then He ordered him to rely upon Him and trust in Him for victory over his enemy. It was said: This was abrogated by God the Almighty's saying: O Prophet, strive against the disbelievers and the hypocrites (al-Tawbah 9:73). Then He criticized the hypocrites for turning away from reflecting upon the Qur'an and thinking about it and its meanings. To reflect upon something is to think about its consequences. In the hadith:

Do not turn your backs on one another means that none of you should turn his back on another. The people turned their backs, and their affair went on until its end. Tadbeer means that a person tadbeer his affair as if he is looking at what his end will be. This verse and the Almighty's saying: Do they not then reflect upon the Qur'an, or are there locks upon their hearts? (Muhammad 47:24) indicate the necessity of reflecting upon the Qur'an in order to know its meaning. This was a response to the corruption of the statement of those who said: Nothing is to be taken from its interpretation except what was proven from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they forbade it from being interpreted in a way that is permissible in the Arabic language. It is evidence of the command to look and reason and invalidate imitation, and it is evidence of establishing analogy.

God the Almighty said: And if it had been from other than God, they would have found within it much discrepancy. That is, disparity and contradiction, according to Ibn Abbas, Qatadah, and Ibn Zayd. This does not include the difference in the words of the recitations, the words of the proverbs and the indications, and the lengths of the chapters and verses. Rather, what is meant is the difference of contradiction and disparity. It was said: The meaning is that if what you are reporting was from God, it would be different. It was said: There is no speaker who speaks much except that much discrepancy is found in his speech, either in the description and wording, or in the existence of the meaning, or in contradiction, or in falsehood. So God the Almighty revealed the Qur'an and commanded them to ponder it, because they do not find in it any discrepancy in its arrangement, or any rejection of its meaning, or any contradiction or falsehood in what they report of the unseen and what they conceal.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty informs us about His servant and Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that whoever obeys him has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys him has disobeyed God. This is only because he does not speak from his own desires. It is only a revelation that is revealed. Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ahmad bin Sinan told us, Abu Muawiyah told us, on the authority of Al-A'mash, on the authority of Abu Salih, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: Whoever obeys me has obeyed God, and whoever disobeys me has disobeyed God, and whoever obeys the ruler has obeyed me, and whoever disobeys the ruler has disobeyed me. This hadith is proven in the two Sahihs on the authority of Al-A'mash. And His statement: And whoever turns away - then We have not sent you over them as a guardian. That is, you are not responsible for him. You are only responsible for conveying the message. Whoever follows you will be happy and saved, and you will have a reward equivalent to what he has achieved. Whoever turns away from you will be disappointed and lose, and you are not responsible for anything in his affair, as came in the hadith: Whoever obeys God and His Messenger has been guided, and whoever disobeys God and His Messenger will only harm himself.

And His statement: And they say, 'We obey,' God Almighty informs us about the hypocrites that they show agreement and obedience. But when they go forth from you, that is, they go out and hide from you, a party of them conceals something other than what you say, that is, they conceal it among themselves at night, other than what they revealed to you. So God Almighty said: And God records what they conceal, that is, He knows it and writes it down for them according to what He commands His recording guardians who are entrusted with the servants. The meaning of this threat is that God Almighty informs us that He knows what they conceal and conceal among themselves, and what they agree upon at night of disobeying and disobeying the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, even if they showed him obedience and agreement, and He will reward them for that, as God Almighty said: And they say, 'We believe in God and the Messenger, and we obey,' the verse. And His statement: So turn away from them, that is, pardon them and be patient with them and do not hold them accountable, and do not reveal their affairs to the people, and do not fear them either. And put your trust in God, and God is sufficient as a guardian, supporter, and helper for whoever puts his trust in Him. And I turn to Him.

Fath al-Qadir

This was abrogated by the verse of the sword 81 - And they say, 'Obedience' in the nominative case as the predicate of a deleted subject: meaning our command is obedience, or our affair is obedience. Al-Hasan, Al-Jahdari, and Nasr bin Asim read it in the accusative case as a source: meaning we obey obedience. This is about the hypocrites according to the opinion of most of the commentators: meaning they say when they are with you obedience So when they go out from you meaning: they leave you A group of them has visited a house meaning: a group of these speakers visited something other than what you tell them and command them to do, or something other than what they tell you of obedience to you, and it was said that its meaning is: they changed, altered, and distorted your statement regarding what you entrusted them with, and the overnight stay means the change, and from it is the saying of the poet:

They came to me, and I was not satisfied with what

Surat al-Nisa 4:81

And they say, "We obey." But when they leave you, a party of them plots something other than what you say. And God records what they plot. So turn away from them and rely upon God. And sufficient is God as Disposer of affairs.

they spent the night with, and they came to me with an unacceptable matter.

It is said that a man ponders the matter at night, and from this is the saying of God Almighty: When they plotted by night that which does not please Him of speech. "And God records what they plot" meaning: He records it in their records of deeds to punish them for it. Al-Zajjaj said: The meaning is: He sends it down to you in the book. His saying So turn away from them meaning: Leave them alone until you can take revenge on them. It was said that its meaning is: Do not reveal their names, and it was said that its meaning is: Do not punish them. Then He commanded him to put his trust in Him and have confidence in Him for victory over his enemy. It was said that this was abrogated by the verse of the sword.

Al-Nasa'i, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Abi Hatim, Al-Hakim who authenticated it and Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunan narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas: "Abdur-Rahman ibn Awf and his companions came to the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) and said: O Prophet of God, we were in glory while we were polytheists, but when we believed we became humiliated. He said: I have been commanded to forgive, so do not fight the people. When God moved him to Madinah, He commanded him to fight, but they refrained. Then God revealed: 'Have you not seen those who were told, "Restrain your hands?"' 1:100. 'Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatadah in their interpretation of the verse something similar. 'Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Mujahid: It was revealed about the Jews. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding His statement: 'But when fighting was prescribed for them, at once a party' 1:100, he said: God forbade this nation from doing what they did. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Suddi regarding His statement: 'Until a near term,' he said: It is death. And they narrated something similar to it on the authority of Ibn Jurayj. And Abd ibn Humayd, Ibn Jarir and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatada, In fortified towers, he said: In fortified palaces. And Ibn al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Ikrimah. And Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated something similar on the authority of Abu al-Aliyah, he said: They are palaces in the sky. And Abd ibn Humayd and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated something similar on the authority of Sufyan. And Abd al-Razzaq and Ibn al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement, And if good befalls them, he said: A blessing, And if evil befalls them, he said: A calamity, "Say: All is from God," he said: Blessings and calamities. And Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Abu al-Aliyah, regarding his statement, And if good befalls them, he said: This is in prosperity and adversity. And regarding his statement, Whatever good befalls you, he said: This is in good and bad deeds. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, Say, 'All is from God,' meaning: The good and the bad are from God. As for the good, He bestowed it upon you, and as for the bad, He tested you with it. Regarding his statement, And whatever evil befalls you, he said: What befell him on the Day of Uhud, that his face was wounded and his front tooth was broken. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on his authority regarding his statement, And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, he said: This was on the Day of Uhud, meaning: Whatever calamity befell you, it was because of your sin, and I have decreed it for you. Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Mujahid that Ibn Abbas used to recite, And whatever evil befalls you is from yourself, and I have decreed it for you. Mujahid said: This is how Ubayy and Ibn Mas'ud read it. Ibn Al-Anbari narrated something similar to this statement of Mujahid in Al-Masahif. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Al-Awfi on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And they say, 'We obey.' He said: They are people who used to say in the presence of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, We believe in God and His Messenger, so that their blood and property would be safe. But when they went out from the presence of the Messenger of God, a party of them went to sleep, meaning: They went against what they said in his presence, so God criticized them. Ibn Jarir narrated on his authority that he said: Other than those, what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, said.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

81- And they say, 'We obey' meaning: the hypocrites say with their tongues to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace: We have believed in you, so command us, and your command is obedience. The grammarians said: meaning He commanded us and our business is to obey you. Then when they come forth, they go out, a party of them will plot something other than what you say, Qatada and Al-Kalbi said: Plant means: other than and instead of what the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, entrusted to them, and tabyyat can mean substitution. Abu Ubaidah and Al-Qutaybi said: Its meaning is: they said and estimated at night other than what they gave you during the day, and everything that is estimated at night is tabyyat. Abu Al-Hasan Ibn Al-Akhfash said: The Arabs say for something when it is estimated, Qad batyat, likening it to estimating the verses of poetry. And God writes meaning: confirms and preserves what they plot what they forge, change and estimate. Ad-Dahhak said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: meaning what they conceal of hypocrisy so turn away from them, O Muhammad, and do not punish them. It was said: Do not tell their names. The Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade telling the names of the hypocrites. And put your trust in God, and God is sufficient as a Disposer of affairs. That is, take Him as a disposer of affairs, and God is sufficient as a disposer of affairs and a supporter.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

81 And they say when you command them to do something. Obedience means our command or from us to obey, and its origin is the accusative as a source and its nominative to indicate steadfastness. So when they leave you they go out. Then a party of them has committed a sin meaning they have fabricated something other than what you say, or what she said to you of acceptance and guarantee of obedience, and spending the night is either from spending the night because matters are managed at night, or from the house of poetry, or the built house because it is arranged and managed. Abu Amr and Hamza read the house of a party with assimilation because of their proximity in the exit. And God records what they spend the night He records it in their records for recompense, or in the sum of what is revealed to you so that you may know their secrets. So turn away from them pay little attention to them or avoid them. And put your trust in God in all matters, especially their affair. And God is sufficient as a Disposer of affairs He will suffice you from their harm and will take revenge on you from them.

Surat al-Nisa 4:82

Do they not then consider the Qur'an carefully? Had it been from other than Allah, they would surely have found therein much discrepancy.

Surat al-Nisa 4:82

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Do they not then reflect ponder the Qur'an and the wonderful meanings it contains and if it had been from other than God, they would surely have found within it much discrepancy contradiction in its meanings and variation in its arrangement

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His saying: Do they not ponder the Qur'an? Do not those who spend the night ponder over what you say to them, O Muhammad, is the Book of God, so that they may know God's proof against them in obeying you and following your command, and that what you have brought them of revelation is from their Lord, because its meanings are consistent, its rulings are in agreement, some of it supports others in belief, and some of it testifies to others in verification. If that were from someone other than God, its rulings would differ, its meanings would contradict each other, and some of it would reveal the corruption of some, as:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, his statement: Do they not then consider the Qur'an carefully? Had it been from other than God, they would surely have found within it much discrepancy. That is, God's statement does not differ, and it is the truth, there is no falsehood in it, even though people's statement differs.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: The Qur'an does not contradict some parts of it, nor does it contradict some parts of it. Whatever people are ignorant of, it is only due to the shortcomings of their minds and their ignorance! And he recited: And if it had been from other than God, they would have found within it much discrepancy. He said: So it is incumbent upon the believer to say: All is from God, and to believe in what is ambiguous, and not to compare some parts with others. And if he is ignorant of a matter and does not know it, he should say: What God said is true, and he should know that God did not say a statement and then contradict it. He should believe in the truth of what came from God.

Yahya bin Abi Talib told me, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Juwaybir told us, on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, regarding his statement: Do they not then reflect upon the Qur'an? He said. Focus upon means to look into it.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

God Almighty says: Do they not then consider the Qur'an carefully? Had it been from other than God, they would surely have found therein much discrepancy.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says, commanding them to ponder the Qur'an and forbidding them from turning away from it and from understanding its precise meanings and eloquent words, and informing them that there is no difference, confusion, or contradiction in it because it is a revelation from the Wise, the Praiseworthy, so it is the truth from the truth. For this reason, the Almighty said: Do they not then ponder the Qur'an, or are there locks upon their hearts? Then He said: And if it had been from other than God, meaning if it had been fabricated and invented, as some of the ignorant polytheists and hypocrites say in their inner selves, they would have found in it discrepancy, meaning much confusion and contradiction. That is, this is free from difference, for it is from God, as the Almighty said, informing about those firmly rooted in knowledge when they said, We believe in it, all is from our Lord, meaning its clear and ambiguous verses are true. For this reason, they returned the ambiguous verses to the clear verses and were guided, and those in whose hearts is deviation returned the clear verses to the ambiguous verses and went astray. For this reason, the Almighty praised those firmly rooted in knowledge and condemned those who deviated. He said: Imam Ahmad: Anas bin Ayyad narrated to us, Abu Hazim narrated to us, Amr bin Shuaib narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: My brother and I sat in a gathering in which I would not have liked to have red camels. My brother and I came and saw an old man from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, at one of his doors. We did not want to separate them, so we sat in a room when they mentioned a verse from the Qur'an and argued about it until their voices rose. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out angry until his face turned red, throwing dirt at them and saying: "Easy, O people, for this is how the nations before you were destroyed, because of their differences with their prophets and their contradiction of the books with one another. The Qur'an was not revealed to contradict one another, rather it was revealed to confirm one another. So whatever you know of it, act upon it, and whatever you do not know of it, refer it to its scholar." And this is how it was also narrated on the authority of Abu Mu'awiyah, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out one day while the people were talking about predestination. It was as if pomegranate seeds were being burst in his face from anger. He said to them: Why do you strike some parts of the Book of God with others? This is how those who came before you perished. He said: "I have never been more envious of a gathering in which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was present and I did not witness it than I was of that gathering that I did not witness it." Ibn Majah narrated it from the hadith of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, with a similar wording.

Ahmad said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Hammad ibn Zayd told us on the authority of Abu Imran al-Joni, who said: Abdullah ibn Rabah wrote to me, narrating on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr, who said: I migrated to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, one day, and we were sitting when two people differed about a verse, and their voices rose, so he said: The nations before you were destroyed only because of their differences in the Book. Muslim and al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Hammad ibn Zayd.

His saying: And if there comes to them report of security or fear, they spread it around, is a denunciation of those who rush into matters before they are confirmed, so they inform about them, divulge them, and spread them, even though they may not be true. Muslim said in the introduction to his Sahih: Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Ali ibn Hafs told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Khabib ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Hafs ibn Asim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: It is enough of a lie for a man to narrate everything he hears. Abu Dawud also narrated it in the Book of Etiquette of his Sunan on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Husayn ibn Ashkab, on the authority of Ali ibn Hafs, on the authority of Shu'bah, with a chain of transmission. Muslim also narrated it on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Hisham al-Anbari and Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi, and Abu Dawud also included it on the authority of Hafs ibn Amr al-Namari, all three of them on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Khabib, on the authority of Hafs ibn Asim, with a mursals chain of transmission. In the two Sahih, on the authority of al-Mughirah ibn Shu'bah: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade gossip, meaning talking a lot about what people say without verifying, pondering, or clarifying. In Sunan Abu Dawud, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: What a bad mount a man is, they claim. In Sahih, Whoever narrates a hadith while he knows that it is a lie, then he is one of the liars. Let us mention here the hadith of Umar ibn al-Khattab, whose authenticity is agreed upon, when he was informed that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had divorced his wives, so he came from his house until he entered the mosque and found the people saying that, so he could not wait until he asked permission to see the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and asked him, Have you divorced your wives? He said, No. So I said, God is Great. And he mentioned the hadith in full. And in Muslim, I said, Have you divorced them? He said, No. So I stood at the door of the mosque and called out at the top of my voice. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not divorce his wives, and this verse was revealed, "And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, then those among them who can extract it would have known about it." So I was the one who extracted that information, and the meaning of extract it is that they extracted it from its mines. It is said that a man extracted a spring if he dug it and extracted it from its bottom. And his statement, You would have followed Satan, except for a few, Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: He means the believers. Abdul Razzaq said, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada: You would have followed Satan, except for a few, meaning all of you. He cited as evidence for supporting this statement the words of Al-Tirmah bin Hakim in praise of Yazid bin Al-Muhallab:

I smell the dew of many clubs, but I have few faults and faults

It means that he has no faults or flaws.

Fath al-Qadir

The hamza in His statement 82- Do they not then reflect? is for denial, and the fa' is for connecting to something understood: that is, do they turn away from the Qur'an and not reflect on it? It is said that you reflected on something: you thought about its consequences and pondered it, then it is used for every reflection, and contemplation: is that a person contemplates his matter as if he is looking at what its consequences will lead to, and this verse and the statement of God Almighty Do they not then contemplate the Qur'an, or are there locks upon their hearts? indicate the necessity of contemplating the Qur'an in order to know its meaning. Meaning: If they had contemplated it properly, they would have found it to be harmonious and not contradictory, correct in meaning, strong in structure, and reaching the highest levels of eloquence. And if it had been from other than God, they would have found within it much discrepancy, meaning: disparity and contradiction. This does not include the difference in the amounts of verses and chapters, because what is meant is the difference of contradiction and disparity and the lack of conformity with reality. This is the nature of human speech, especially if it is long and its speaker is concerned with informing about the unseen, because nothing of it is found to be correct and conform to reality except a rare little.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

82- The Almighty's saying: Do they not then reflect upon the Qur'an? meaning: Do they not think about the Qur'an? Contemplation is looking at the end of the matter, and contemplating everything is its end. Had it been from other than God, they would have found within it much discrepancy, meaning much disparity and contradiction, as Ibn Abbas said. It was said: They would have found within it, meaning: in the information about the unseen, what was and what will be, much discrepancy. Do they not think about it and know - by the absence of contradiction in it and the truth of what it informs - that it is the speech of God Almighty, because what is not from God is not free from contradiction and difference.

Surat al-Nisa 4:82

Do they not then consider the Qur'an carefully? Had it been from other than Allah, they would surely have found therein much discrepancy.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

82 Do they not then reflect upon the Qur'an? Reflect upon its meanings and consider what is in it? The root of contemplation is looking at the backs of something. If it had been from other than God meaning, if it had been the speech of humans as the infidels claim. They would have found in it much discrepancy in terms of contradiction in meaning and disparity in composition. Some of it is eloquent and some of it is weak, some of it is difficult to oppose and some of it is easy, some of its future report matches reality and some of it does not, and the mind agrees with some of its rulings and not others, as indicated by induction due to the deficiency of human power. Perhaps it is mentioned here to draw attention to the fact that the difference in the rulings that preceded it is not due to a contradiction in the ruling, but rather due to the difference in circumstances in the ruling and interests.

Surat al-Nisa 4:83

And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those among them who investigate it would have known about it. And were it not for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

And when there comes to them a matter about the Prophet's expeditions, may God bless him and grant him peace, of what they have achieved of security of victory or fear of defeat they broadcast it they spread it. It was revealed to a group of hypocrites or to the weak believers who used to do that, so the hearts of the believers would weaken and the Prophet would be harmed. And if they had referred it that is, the report to the Messenger and to those in authority among them that is, those with opinion among the senior Companions, that is, if they had kept silent about it until they were informed about it they would have known about it whether it is something that should be broadcasted or not those who deduce it follow it and seek its knowledge, and they are the broadcasters among them from the Messenger and those in authority and had it not been for the grace of God upon you through Islam and His mercy to you through the Qur'an you would have followed Satan in what he commands you of immoralities except a few

Tafsir al-Suyuti

The Almighty said: And when there comes to them a verse Muslim narrated on the authority of Omar bin Al-Khattab who said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, had withdrawn from his wives, I entered the mosque and found the people poking with pebbles and saying: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, has divorced his wives. So I stood at the door of the mosque and called out at the top of my voice: He has not divorced his wives. So this verse was revealed: And when there comes to them a matter of security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those among them who are able to investigate it would have known about it. So I was the one who investigated that matter.

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: And when there comes to them report of security or fear, they spread it around, and if this group that had gone to bed had something other than what the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, a report of security, then the ha' and the mim in His statement: And when there comes to them, are from mentioning the group that had gone to bed, He, the Most High, says: And when report comes to them about a raiding Muslim company that they have become safe from their enemy by defeating them, or fear, he says: or their fear of their enemy by their enemy being afflicted by them, they spread it around, he says: they spread it and disseminated it among the people before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and before the arrival of the raiding companies of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the ha' in His statement: they spread it around, is from mentioning the matter. Its interpretation is that they spread the matter of security or fear that had come to them.

It is said: So-and-so spread this report, and spread it. From this is the saying of Abu Al-Aswad:

He spread it among the people until it was as if there was a fire lit in the high places with holes.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it, meaning: they hasten to spread it and diffuse it.

Muhammad bin Al-Hussein told us, Ahmad bin Mufaddal told us, Asbat told us, on the authority of Al-Suddi: And if there comes to them report of security or fear, they spread it around, meaning: If there comes to them report that they are safe from their enemy, or that they are afraid of them, they spread the report around until their enemy hears about them.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, regarding his statement: And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it, meaning: they spread it and spread it widely.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Husayn told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And if there comes to them report of security or fear, they spread it around. He said this in the report, if a group of Muslims went out to war and informed the people among themselves and they said: The Muslims suffered such and such from their enemy, and the enemy suffered such and such from the Muslims, so they spread it around among themselves, without the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, being the one who informed them. Ibn Jurayj said: Ibn Abbas said, They spread it around, he said: They announced it and spread it around.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said regarding his statement, They spread it, he said: They disseminated it. He said: And those who spread it were al-Nas 114: either hypocrites, or others who were weak.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Hussein bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: They spread it and circulated it, and they are the people of hypocrisy.

Abu Ja'far said: What He, the Most High, meant by His statement: And if they had referred it, the matter that

Surat al-Nisa 4:83

And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those among them who investigate it would have known about it. And were it not for the grace of Allah upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few.

befell them from their enemy and the Muslims, to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to those in authority over them - meaning: and to their leaders - and remained silent and did not spread the report that came to them, until the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, or those in authority over them, were the ones who would take charge of the report about that, after they had established its authenticity or length, and they would correct it if it was authentic, or invalidate it if it was false, because those among them who extract it would know it, meaning: because the truth of that report that came to them, those who search for it and extract it, from them, meaning: those in authority, and the ha' and the mim in His statement: from them, are from the mention of those in authority, meaning: because those in authority would know that from those in authority who extract it.

And whoever extracts something that was hidden from the sight of the eyes or from the knowledge of the hearts, then it is for him: extracted. It is said: he extracted the well, if he extracted its water, and he extracted it, and the extract is the water extracted from the ground, and from it the saying of the poet:

Close to his land, his enemies cannot reach him, he is a stubborn, stubborn man

Meaning: Nabatean, extracted water.

And the people of interpretation said something similar to what we said about that.

Who said that?

Muhammad ibn al-Husayn told me, he said, Ahmad ibn Mufaddal told us, he said, Asbat told us, on the authority of al-Suddi: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger and to those in authority among them, he says: And if they had been silent and referred the hadith back to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to those in authority among them so that he would speak about it, those who extract it would have known it, meaning: from the report, and they are those who investigate the report.

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger and to those in authority among them, he says: to their scholars, those among them who investigate it would have known it, those who investigate it and are concerned with it would have known it.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger, so that he would be the one to inform them, and to those in authority among them, jurisprudence in religion and reason.

Al-Qasim told us, Al-Hussein told us, Hajjaj told me, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliyah: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, knowledge, who deduce it from among them, they would have followed it up and investigated it.

Abu Kuraib told us, he said, Ibn Idris told us, he said, Laith told us, on the authority of Mujahid: For those of them who seek to deduce it from Him, he said: Those who ask about it and feel it out.

Muhammad bin Amr told me, he said, Abu Asim told us, on the authority of Isa, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, regarding his statement: They deduce it, he said: Their saying: What was it? What did you hear?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abu Hudhayfah told us, he said, Shabl told us, on the authority of Ibn Abi Nujayh, on the authority of Mujahid, the same.

Ibn Wakee' told us, he said, my father told us, on the authority of Abu Ja'far, on the authority of Al-Rabi', on the authority of Abu Al-'Aaliyah: Those who deduce it, he said: They sense it.

Muhammad bin Saad told me, he said, my father told me, he said, my uncle told me, he said, my father told me, on the authority of his father, on the authority of Ibn Abbas: For the knowledge of those among them who seek to deduce it, he said: For the knowledge of those among them who seek to discern it.

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn bin Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd bin Sulayman told us: I heard Al-Dahhak say regarding His statement: They deduce it from them, he said: They follow it.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said about His statement, And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it, until he reached, and to those in authority among them, he said: The rulers who are in charge of war against them, who think and consider what report comes to them: Is it true or false? Is it false so they invalidate it, or is it true so they verify it? He said: This is in war, and he recited, and they broadcast it, and if they had done otherwise, and referred it back to God, to the Messenger, and to those in authority among them, the verse.

Abu Ja'far said: By that, may His praise be glorified, He means: Had it not been for the favor of God upon you, O believers, through His grace, guidance, and mercy, and had He not saved you from what He has afflicted these hypocrites with, who say to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he commands them to do something: Obedience, and when they leave him, a group of them does something other than what he says, you would have been like them, and you would have followed Satan, except for a few, just as those whose description He has described followed him.

And He addressed with His Most High's words: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, those whom He addressed with His Most High's words: O you who have believed, take your precautions and go forth in companies or go forth all together (An-Nisa': 17). Then the people of interpretation differed regarding the few whom He excluded in this verse: Who are they? And from what attributes did He exclude them?

Some of them said: They are the infers among those in authority. He excluded them from his statement: For His knowledge is for those among them who infer it, and he denied that they know by inferring what others among the infers know of the report that comes to them of security or fear.

Who said that?

Bishr bin Muadh told us, he said, Yazid told us, he said, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, he said: It is only: Those who extract it from among them know it - except for a few of them - and had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan.

Al-Hasan bin Yahya told us, he said, Abd al-Razzaq told us, he said, Muammar told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few, he said: you would have all followed Satan. As for his statement: except for a few, it is like his statement: those who seek to extract it from among them would have known it, except for a few.

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Suwaid bin Nasr told us, he said, Ibn al-Mubarak told us, reading, on the authority of Saeed, on the authority of Qatada: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few, he said, he says: you would have all followed Satan. As for except for a few, it is like his saying: those who extract it from among them would have known it, except for a few.

Al-Qasim told us, he said, Al-Hussein told us, he said, Hajjaj told us, on the authority of Ibn Jurayj, something similar to it - meaning something similar to what Qatada said - and he said: They would have known it except for a little.

Others said: Rather, they are the group that God described as saying to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, Obedience, and when they left him, they planned something other than what they said. The meaning of the statement is: And when something came to them about security or fear, they spread it around, except for a few of them.

Who said that?

Al-Muthanna told me, he said, Abdullah bin Saleh told us, he said, Muawiyah told me, on the authority of Ali bin Abi Talha, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, his statement: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few, is at the beginning of the verse about the hypocrites, he said: And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. What is meant by a few are the believers, like the statement of God the Almighty: Praise be to God, who has sent down upon His Servant the Book and has not made therein any crookedness * [[right]] (al-Kahf 18:1-2) He says: Praise be to God, who sent down the Book as justice and uprightness, and has not made therein any crookedness.

Yunus told me, he said, Ibn Wahb told us, he said, Ibn Zayd said: This verse is presented and followed, it is: They spread it, except for a few of them, and had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, neither few nor many would have been saved.

Others said: Rather, this is an exception to His statement: You would have followed Satan. They said: Those who were excluded were people who did not intend to do what the others intended to do, which was to follow Satan. So God recognized those whom He saved from that and the place of His grace towards them, and He excluded the others who did not do what the others did.

Who said that?

It was narrated on the authority of Al-Husayn ibn Al-Faraj, who said: I heard Abu Muadh say: Ubayd ibn Sulayman told us: I heard Ad-Dahhak ibn Muzahim say, regarding His statement: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few, he said: They are the companions of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace. They had told themselves about matters of Satan's matters, except for a group of them.

Others said that the meaning of this is: And had it not been for the grace and mercy of God upon you, you would all have followed Satan. They said: His statement, except a few, was used as an exception in the wording, and it is evidence of all and comprehensiveness, and that had it not been for the grace and mercy of God upon them, no one would have been saved from misguidance. So His statement, except a few, was made evidence of comprehensiveness, and they cited as evidence for that the statement of Al-Tirmah bin Hakim, in praise of Yazid bin Al-Muhallab:

I smell a lot of generosity, but few faults and faults

They said: The apparent meaning of this statement is describing the praised one as having faults and defects, and it is known that its meaning is that he has no faults or defects. Because whoever describes a man as having faults, even if he describes the faults he has as few, is only criticizing him and not praising him. But that is based on what we have described of denying all faults from him. They said: Likewise, his statement: You would have followed Satan, except for a few, means: You would all have followed Satan.

Abu Ja'far said: The most correct of these statements in my opinion is the statement of the one who said: On my authority, except for a little of the broadcasting. He said: The meaning of the statement is: And if something of security or fear comes to them, they broadcast it except for a little, even if they refer it back to the Messenger.

And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those among them who investigate it would have known about it. And were it not for the grace of Allah upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few.

We said that this is more correct, because the statement on this matter is not without one of the statements we mentioned. And it is not permissible for it to be from his saying: You would have followed Satan, because whoever God has favored with His favor and mercy, it is not permissible for him to be from the followers of Satan.

It is not permissible to interpret the meanings of the Book of God in a way other than what is most commonly understood from the apparent meaning of the discourse in the speech of the Arabs. We have a way to interpret that in the most common sense of the speech of the Arabs, so we direct it to the meaning that was directed to it by those who said: The meaning of that is: You would all follow Satan. Then he claimed that his saying: Except a few is evidence of encompassing everyone. This is despite it being outside the interpretation of the people of interpretation.

Likewise, there is no reason to direct that to an exception from his statement: For the knowledge of those among them who deduce it, because if the knowledge of that is returned to the Messenger and to those in authority among them, and the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, explains it to those in authority among them after it is clear to them, then everyone who deduces its reality is equal in his knowledge of that, so there is no reason to exclude some of those among them who deduce it, and to single out some of them with his knowledge, while all of them are equal in his knowledge.

Since there is no statement on this except what we have said, and these three statements include what we have explained of the defect, it is clear that the correct statement on this is the fourth, which is the statement that we have decided is correct in terms of the exception from broadcasting.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: And when there comes to them information about security "if" has the meaning of a condition and it is not rewarded with it even if ma is added to it, and fi is rarely used. Sibawayh said: What Ka'b ibn Zuhair said is good:

And if you wish, you can send it out from the sunset, active and terrified.

It means that the good does not make a definite judgment - if - as it was not made a definite judgment in the verse and it was mentioned at the beginning of Al-Baqarah and the meaning is that if they heard something about matters in which there was security such as the victory of the Muslims and the killing of their enemy or fear which is the opposite of this they would spread it meaning they would divulge it and show it and talk about it before they knew its truth so it was said: This was from the weakness of the Muslims, from Al-Hasan, because they would divulge the matter of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and they would think that there was nothing wrong with them in that and Al-Dahhak and Ibn Zayd said: It is about the hypocrites so they were forbidden from that because of what would befall them of lying in spreading rumors.

God the Almighty said: And if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them meaning, they would not have spoken of it or divulged it until the Prophet (peace and blessings of God be upon him) was the one who spoke of it and divulged it. Or those in authority, who are the people of knowledge and jurisprudence, according to Al-Hasan, Qatadah and others. As-Suddi and Ibn Zayd: the governors. And it was said: the commanders of the raiding parties. The ones who extract it among them would have known about it meaning, they would have extracted it. Meaning, they would have known what should be divulged and what should be concealed. Extraction is derived from the verb istanabat al-ma' meaning to extract it. The Nabataeans are called Nabataeans because they extract what is in the earth. Extraction in the language means extraction, and it indicates independent reasoning when there is no text or consensus, as mentioned above.

The Almighty's saying: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy is raised by the beginning according to Sibawayh, and it is not permissible for the report to appear according to him. The Kufians say: You would have followed Satan, except for a few is raised in this verse. There are three sayings. Ibn Abbas and others said: The meaning is that they spread it except for a few of them. It was not spread or diffused. A group of grammarians said this: Al-Kisa'i, Al-Akhfash, Abu Ubaid, and Abu Hatim Al-Tabari. And in: The meaning is for his knowledge that they deduce from them except for a few of them, according to Al-Hasan and others. Al-Zajaj chose it. He said: Because this deduction is known to most, because it is a question of report. Al-Farra' chose the first. He said: Because the knowledge of the raids, if it appears, its knowledge is derived and others, and the broadcasting is in some and not in others. Al-Kalbi said about him: Therefore, I found the exception from the broadcasting to be good. Al-Nahhas said: These are two sayings based on metaphor, meaning that there is an advancement and delay in the speech. A third saying without metaphor: The meaning is: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, that He sent among you a Messenger who established the proof among you, you would have disbelieved and associated others with God, except for a few of you, because he was monotheist and in it. Fourth statement: Al-Dahhak said: The meaning is that you would have followed Satan except a few, meaning that the companions of Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, told themselves about a matter from Satan except a few, meaning those whose hearts God tested for piety. According to this statement, his statement except a few is an exception to his statement you would have followed Satan. Al-Mahdawi said: Most scholars rejected this statement, because if it were not for God's grace and mercy, all people would have followed Satan.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

The Almighty says, commanding them to ponder the Qur'an and forbidding them from turning away from it and from understanding its precise meanings and eloquent words, and informing them that there is no difference, confusion, or contradiction in it because it is a revelation from the Wise, the Praiseworthy, so it is the truth from the truth. For this reason, the Almighty said: Do they not then ponder the Qur'an, or are there locks upon their hearts? Then He said: And if it had been from other than God, meaning if it had been fabricated and invented, as some of the ignorant polytheists and hypocrites say in their inner selves, they would have found in it discrepancy, meaning much confusion and contradiction. That is, this is free from difference, for it is from God, as the Almighty said, informing about those firmly rooted in knowledge when they said, We believe in it, all is from our Lord, meaning its clear and ambiguous verses are true. For this reason, they returned the ambiguous verses to the clear verses and were guided, and those in whose hearts is deviation returned the clear verses to the ambiguous verses and went astray. For this reason, the Almighty praised those firmly rooted in knowledge and condemned those who deviated. He said: Imam Ahmad: Anas bin Ayyad narrated to us, Abu Hazim narrated to us, Amr bin Shuaib narrated to us, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: My brother and I sat in a gathering in which I would not have liked to have red camels. My brother and I came and saw an old man from the companions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, at one of his doors. We did not want to separate them, so we sat in a room when they mentioned a verse from the Qur'an and argued about it until their voices rose. Then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out angry until his face turned red, throwing dirt at them and saying: "Easy, O people, for this is how the nations before you were destroyed, because of their differences with their prophets and their contradiction of the books with one another. The Qur'an was not revealed to contradict one another, rather it was revealed to confirm one another. So whatever you know of it, act upon it, and whatever you do not know of it, refer it to its scholar." And this is how it was also narrated on the authority of Abu Mu'awiyah, on the authority of Dawud bin Abi Hind, on the authority of Amr bin Shuaib, on the authority of his father, on the authority of his grandfather, who said: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, came out one day while the people were talking about predestination. It was as if pomegranate seeds were being burst in his face from anger. He said to them: Why do you strike some parts of the Book of God with others? This is how those who came before you perished. He said: "I have never been more envious of a gathering in which the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, was present and I did not witness it than I was of that gathering that I did not witness it." Ibn Majah narrated it from the hadith of Dawud ibn Abi Hind, with a similar wording.

Ahmad said: Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi told us, Hammad ibn Zayd told us on the authority of Abu Imran al-Joni, who said: Abdullah ibn Rabah wrote to me, narrating on the authority of Abdullah ibn Amr, who said: I migrated to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, one day, and we were sitting when two people differed about a verse, and their voices rose, so he said: The nations before you were destroyed only because of their differences in the Book. Muslim and al-Nasa'i narrated it on the authority of Hammad ibn Zayd.

His saying: And if there comes to them report of security or fear, they spread it around, is a denunciation of those who rush into matters before they are confirmed, so they inform about them, divulge them, and spread them, even though they may not be true. Muslim said in the introduction to his Sahih: Abu Bakr ibn Abi Shaybah told us, Ali ibn Hafs told us, Shu'bah told us, on the authority of Khabib ibn Abd al-Rahman, on the authority of Hafs ibn Asim, on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, on the authority of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, who said: It is enough of a lie for a man to narrate everything he hears. Abu Dawud also narrated it in the Book of Etiquette of his Sunan on the authority of Muhammad ibn al-Husayn ibn Ashkab, on the authority of Ali ibn Hafs, on the authority of Shu'bah, with a chain of transmission. Muslim also narrated it on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Hisham al-Anbari and Abd al-Rahman ibn Mahdi, and Abu Dawud also included it on the authority of Hafs ibn Amr al-Namari, all three of them on the authority of Shu'bah, on the authority of Khabib, on the authority of Hafs ibn Asim, with a mural chain of transmission. In the two Sahih, on the authority of al-Mughirah ibn Shu'bah: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, forbade gossip, meaning talking a lot about what people say without verifying, pondering, or clarifying. In Sunan Abu Dawud, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: What a bad mount a man is, they claim. In Sahih, Whoever narrates a hadith while he knows that it is a lie, then he is one of the liars. Let us mention here the hadith of Umar ibn al-Khattab, whose authenticity is agreed upon, when he was informed that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, had divorced his wives, so he came from his house until he entered the mosque and found the people saying that, so he could not wait until he asked permission to see the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and asked him, Have you divorced your wives? He said, No. So I said, God is Great. And he mentioned the hadith in full. And in Muslim, I said, Have you divorced them? He said, No. So I stood at the door of the mosque and called out at the top of my voice. The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did not divorce his wives, and this verse was revealed, "And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, then those among them who can extract it would have known about it.” So I was the one who extracted that information, and the meaning of extract it is that they extracted it from its mines. It is said that a man extracted a spring if he dug it and extracted it from its bottom. And his statement, You would have followed Satan, except for a few, Ali ibn Abi Talhah said on the authority of Ibn Abbas: He means the believers. Abdul Razzaq said, on the authority of Muammar, on the authority of Qatada: You would have followed Satan, except for a few, meaning all of you. He cited as evidence for supporting this statement the words of Al-Tirmah bin Hakim in praise of Yazid bin Al-Muhallab:

And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, those among them who investigate it would have known about it. And were it not for the grace of Allah upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few.

I smell the dew of many clubs, but I have few faults and faults

It means that he has no faults or flaws.

Fath al-Qadir

His statement 83- And if there comes to them report of security or fear, they broadcast it. It is said: he broadcasted something and broadcasted it: if he disclosed it and made it known. These are a group of weak Muslims who, if they heard something about the Muslims that contained security, such as the victory of the Muslims and the killing of their enemy, or that contained fear, such as the defeat of the Muslims and their killing, they broadcast it, thinking that there is nothing wrong with that. His statement, And if they had referred it to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, and they are the people of knowledge and sound minds to whom they refer in their affairs, or they are the rulers over them, then those who extract it from them would have known of it, meaning: they would have extracted it through their planning and sound minds. The meaning is that if they had left broadcasting the report until the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was the one who broadcasted it or those in authority among them were the ones who took charge of that, because they know what should be disclosed and what should be concealed. And the deduction is taken from the word istanabatt al-ma' meaning to extract it. Nabat: The extracted water is the first thing that comes out of the well when it is dug. It was said that these weak people used to hear the rumours of the hypocrites against the Muslims and they would spread them, thus causing corruption. His statement, And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, except for a few. That is, had it not been for the grace of God upon you by sending His Messenger and revealing His Book, you would have followed Satan and remained in your disbelief except for a few of you, or except for a few of you following. It was said that the meaning is: They spread it except for a few of them, for it was not spread or diffused. This was said by Al-Kisa'i, Al-Akhfash, Al-Farra', Abu Ubaidah, Abu Hatim, and Ibn Jarir. It was said that the meaning is because those who extract it knew it except for a few of them. This was said by Al-Zajaj.

Abd bin Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Qatada, And if it had been from other than God, they would have found within it much contradiction. He said: The word of God does not differ and it is the truth and there is no falsehood in it, but the word of people differs. Abd bin Hamid, Muslim and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas on the authority of Umar bin Al-Khattab who said: When the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, withdrew from his wives, I entered the mosque and found the people poking themselves with pebbles and saying: The Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, divorced his wives. So I stood at the door of the mosque and called out at the top of my voice: He did not divorce his wives. Then this verse was revealed: “And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it. But if they had referred it back to the Messenger or to those in authority among them, the ones who are able to investigate it would have known about it.” So I was the one who investigated that information. Ibn Jarir and Ibn Al-Mundhir narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding the verse, he said: This is about informing when a Muslim army goes on a raid and informs the people about it, and they say: The Muslims have killed such and such from their enemy, and the enemy has killed such and such from the Muslims, so they spread it among themselves without the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, telling them about it. Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ad-Dahhak, And when there comes to them, he said: They are the people of hypocrisy. Ibn Jarir narrated on the authority of Abu Muadh something similar. Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abi Hatim narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbas regarding his statement, And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, he said: Then the speech was interrupted. His statement, except a few, is at the beginning of the verse informing about the hypocrites. He said, And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they spread it around, meaning about the few believers.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

83- The Almighty said: And when there comes to them information about security or fear, they broadcast it, that is because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, used to send out raiding parties, and when they were victorious or defeated, the hypocrites would rush to inquire about their situation, and they would spread it and talk about it before the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, did /thus weakening the hearts of the believers. So God Almighty revealed: And when there comes to them meaning: the hypocrites information about security meaning: conquest and spoils or fear killing and defeat they broadcast it they spread it and diffuse it, and if they had referred it back to the Messenger meaning: if they had not told it until the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, was the one who told it and to those in authority among them meaning: those with opinion among the Companions such as Abu Bakr, Umar, Uthman and Ali, may God be pleased with them, then those who extract it from them would have known about it meaning: they extract it and they are the scholars, meaning: they knew what should be concealed and what should be divulged. And deduction means extraction. It is said: To extract water means to extract it. Ikrimah said: They extract it, meaning: they are keen on it and ask about it. Ad-Dahhak said: They follow it, meaning those who heard that report from the believers and the hypocrites. If they had referred it back to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to those with opinion and knowledge, those who extract it from them would have known it, meaning they would have loved to know it as it really is.

And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, all of you, except a few. If it is said: How did He exclude the few, and had it not been for His grace, all would have followed Satan? It is said: It goes back to what came before it. It is said: Its meaning is that they spread it out except for a few who did not divulge it. By the few he meant the believers. This is the statement of Al-Kalbi and the choice of Al-Farra'. He said: Because if knowledge of the secret is revealed, its knowledge is derived and others, and divulging it may be in some and not others. It is said: Because those who deduce it from among them knew it except a few. Then His statement: And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy, you would have followed Satan, is a complete statement.

It was said: God's grace is Islam, and His mercy is the Qur'an. He says, If it were not for that, you would have followed Satan, except for a few. They are people who were guided before the coming of the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and the revelation of the Qur'an, such as Zayd ibn Amr ibn Nufayl, Waraqa ibn Nawfal, and a group other than them.

The verse is evidence of the permissibility of analogy, as some knowledge is attained through recitation and narration, which is the text, and some knowledge is attained through deduction, which is analogy to the meanings contained in the texts.

83 And if there came to them report of security or fear of what necessitated security or fear. They broadcast it they spread it as some of the weak Muslims used to do if they heard report of the expeditions of the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, or the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, informed them of what was revealed to him of a promise of victory, or a threat from the infidels, they broadcast it because of their lack of resolve. The ba is an additional letter or to include the meaning of speaking. And if they had referred it that is, if they had referred that report. To the Messenger and to those in authority among them to his opinion and the opinion of his senior companions who were insightful in matters, or the princes. For his knowledge they would have known what they were told in whatever way it is mentioned. Those who deduce it from among them they extract its measures through their experiences and insights. It was said that they heard the rumours of the hypocrites and spread them, so they would have a bad effect on the Muslims. If they had referred it to the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and to those in authority among them so that they could hear it from them and wonder if it would have been spread, then those who deduce it from the Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and those in authority would have known about it, meaning: they would have extracted its knowledge from their side. The origin of deduction is the extraction of Nabat: which is water, which comes out of the well when it is first dug. And had it not been for the grace of God upon you and His mercy by sending the Messenger and revealing the books. You would have followed Satan and disbelief and misguidance. Except a few meaning except a few of you whom God favored with a sound mind that guided them to the truth and right path, and protected them from following Satan, like Zayd ibn Amr ibn Nufayl and Waraqa ibn Nawfal. Or except a few followers, rarely.

So fight in the cause of God. You are not charged except with yourself. And urge on the believers. Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve. And God is stronger in violence and stronger in punishment.

Surat al-Nisa 4:84

So fight in the cause of God. You are not charged except with yourself. And urge on the believers. Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve. And God is stronger in violence and stronger in punishment.

Tafsir al-Jalalayn

Fight O Muhammad in the way of God, you are not charged except with yourself so do not worry about them lagging behind you, meaning: Fight even if you are alone, for you are promised victory and urge the believers urge them to fight and encourage them to do so perhaps God will restrain the violence of the war of those who disbelieve, and God is more severe in violence than them and more severe in punishment than them. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, I will go out even if I am alone so he went out with seventy riders to Badr the Lesser, so God restrained the violence of the disbelievers by casting terror into their hearts and preventing Abu Sufyan from going out as mentioned in Al Imran.

Tafsir al-Suyuti

Tafsir al-Tabari

Abu Ja'far said: What He meant by His Most High's words: "So fight in the cause of God. You are not charged with anything except yourself," is that you strive, O Muhammad, against the enemies of God among the polytheists, in the cause of God, meaning: in His religion that He has prescribed for you, which is Islam, and fight them in it with yourself.

As for his saying: You are only charged with yourself, it means: God does not charge you with what He has imposed upon you in terms of jihad against His enemy and your enemy, except what He has charged you with, not what others have charged you with. That is, you are only subject to what you have acquired, not what others have acquired, and you are only subject to what you have been charged with, not what others have been charged with.

Then he said to him: And urge the believers, meaning: and urge them to fight those whom you have ordered to fight with you, perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve, meaning: perhaps God will restrain the fighting of those who disbelieve in God and deny His oneness and reject your message, from you and from them, and their harm.

We have previously explained that may from God is obligatory, which makes it unnecessary to repeat it in this place.

And God is more severe in punishment and more severe in retaliation, meaning: God is more severe in punishment of His enemy than the disbelievers in Him, than they are in you, O Muhammad, and your companions, so do not refrain from fighting them, for I am watching them with punishment, retaliation, and chastisement, to weaken their plot, weaken their strength, and make the truth prevail over them.

And the word tankil is derived from the saying: I punished so-and-so, so I punish him with tankil, if I inflicted pain on him, as in:

Bishr bin Muadh told us, Yazid bin Zari' told us, Saeed told us, on the authority of Qatada, regarding his statement: and more severe punishment, meaning punishment.

Tafsir al-Qurtubi

The Almighty's saying: So fight in the cause of God This fa is related to His saying: And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious, We will give him a great reward. "So fight in the cause of God" means for this reason, fight. It was said: It is related to His saying: And what is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God? "So fight" as if this meaning is: Do not abandon jihad against the enemy and seeking victory over them for the weak believers even if you are alone because victory has been guaranteed to him. Ibn Atiyah said: This is the apparent meaning of the wording, except that it has never come in any report that fighting was made obligatory for him but not for the nation for a period of time. So the meaning, and God knows best, is that it is addressed to him in the wording, and it is an example of what is said to each person in particular, meaning you, O Muhammad, and to each one of your nation, the saying to him: So fight in the cause of God, you are only responsible for yourself. For this reason, every believer should strive even if he is alone. Among that is the saying of the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace:

By God, I will fight them until my forelock is separated." And Abu Bakr's saying at the time of apostasy: If my right hand opposes me, I will fight it with my left. It was said that this verse was revealed during the season of Badr al-Sughra, for when Abu Sufyan returned from Uhud, he made an appointment with the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, for the season of Badr al-Sughra. When the appointed time came, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out to it with seventy riders, but Abu Sufyan did not attend and no fighting took place. This is in the meaning of what Mujahid said, as mentioned previously in Al Imran. The point of arrangement in this and the connection with what came before is that he described the hypocrites as being confused and spreading rumors, then he ordered the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, to turn away from them and to be serious in fighting in the way of God, even if no one helped him in that.

The Almighty said: You are not charged except with yourself. "You are charged" is in the nominative case because it is a future tense and it is not in the subjunctive mood because it is not the cause of the first. Al-Akhfash claimed that it is permissible to make it in the subjunctive mood. Except yourself is the predicate of what its agent is not named, and the meaning is that you are not obligated to do the actions of anyone other than yourself and you are not held accountable for them.

There are three issues:

The first - the Almighty's saying, And urge the believers, meaning urge them to jihad and fighting. It is said, I urged someone to do something, if you ordered him to do it. And someone urged someone to do something, and he devoted himself to it, and he persevered, have the same meaning.

The second - the Almighty's saying: Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve is a desire, and desire from God Almighty is obligatory, although desire has come in the speech of the Arabs as an obligation, including the Almighty's saying: And the one I hope will forgive me my sin on the Day of Judgment (Ash-Shu'ara': 82). And Muqbil said:

My opinion of them is that they are in Tanufah, competing for the prizes of proverbs.

God Almighty says: And God is more severe in attack meaning in power, greater in authority, and more capable of attacking what He wants. And more severe in punishment meaning in punishment. According to Al-Hasan and others, Ibn Duraid said: God struck him with a punishment, meaning He struck him with something that He punished him with. He said: And I punished the man with a punishment from punishment, and punishment is the thing that is inflicted on a person. He said:

And throw a whip at their backs

Third: If someone says: We see the infidels in distress and hardship, and you say: If 'asa means certainty, then where is that promise? It is said to him: This promise has existed, and its existence is not necessarily continuous and permanent. So whenever it exists, even for a moment, for example, then the promise has been fulfilled. So God restrained the infidels' distress at Badr al-Sughra, and they broke their covenant of war and fighting. And God spared the believers the fighting. (al-Ahzab 33:25) and at al-Hudaybiyah also from what they sought of treachery and seizing the opportunity. So the Muslims became aware of them, so they went out and took them captive. This was while the ambassadors were walking among them in the peace treaty, and this is what is meant by the Almighty's saying: And it is He who restrained their hands from you. (al-Fath 48:24), as will come. And God cast terror into the hearts of the parties, and they turned away without killing or fighting, as the Almighty said: And God spared the believers the fighting. And the Jews left their homes and their wealth without the believers fighting them. So all of this is distress, and God restrained the believers, even though a large number of Jews and Christians entered under the jizyah, humiliated, and they left the fighting, humiliated. So He restrained... May God protect the believers from their wrath, and praise be to God, Lord of the Worlds.

Tafsir Ibn Kathir

God the Almighty commands His servant and Messenger Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, to directly fight himself, and whoever refrains from doing so, then he is not responsible for it. That is why He said, You are only charged with yourself. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Muhammad ibn Amr ibn Nabih told us, Hakam told us, Al-Jarrah Al-Kindi told us on the authority of Abu Ishaq, who said: I asked Al-Bara' ibn Azib about a man who encounters a hundred enemies and fights, and is he among those about whom God said, And do not throw yourselves with your own hands into destruction? He said: God the Almighty said to His Prophet, "Then fight in the cause of God. You are not charged with anyone but yourself, and urge the believers on." Imam Ahmad narrated it on the authority of Sulayman ibn Dawud, on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Ayyash, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, who said: I said to Al-Bara': Is a man who attacks the polytheists among those who throw himself into destruction? He said: No, God sent His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Then fight in the way of God; you are not charged except with yourself. This only concerns spending. And Ibn Mardawayh narrated it in this way on the authority of Abu Bakr ibn Ayyash and Ali ibn Salih, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Baraa' with it. Then Ibn Mardawayh said: Sulayman ibn Ahmad told us, Ahmad ibn Al-Nadr Al-Askari told us, Muslim ibn Abd Al-Rahman Al-Jarmi told us, Muhammad ibn Himyar told us, Sufyan Al-Thawri told us, on the authority of Abu Ishaq, on the authority of Al-Baraa', who said: When the verse "Then fight in the way of God; you are not charged except with yourself. And urge the believers on," was revealed to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, he said to his companions: My Lord has commanded me to fight, so fight. A strange hadith.

And his saying: And he urged the believers means to fight and encouraged them to do so, as he (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said to them on the day of Badr while he was straightening the rows: Stand up for a Paradise whose width is that of the heavens and the earth. Many hadeeths have been narrated encouraging this, including what al-Bukhari narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayrah who said: The Messenger of God (peace and blessings of God be upon him) said: "Whoever believes in God and His Messenger, establishes prayer, pays zakaah, and fasts Ramadan, God will have a right to admit him into Paradise, whether he migrates in the cause of God or remains in the land in which he was born." They said: O Messenger of God, should we not give people good report of that? He said: "Indeed, in Paradise there are one hundred levels that God has prepared for those who strive in the cause of God, between each two levels is like the distance between the heaven and the earth. So if you ask God for something, then ask Him for al-Firdaws, for it is the middle of Paradise and the highest part of Paradise, and above it is the Throne of the Most Merciful, and from it flow the rivers of Paradise.” And something similar has been narrated from the hadeeth of ‘Ubadah, Mu’adh and Abu al-Darda’. On the authority of Abu Saeed Al-Khudri that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: “O Abu Saeed, whoever is satisfied with God as his Lord, Islam as his religion, and Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, as his Messenger and Prophet, Paradise is guaranteed for him.” Abu Saeed was amazed by that and said: Repeat it to me, O Messenger of God. So he did, and then the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: And another by which God will raise the servant one hundred degrees in Paradise, between each two degrees is like the distance between the heavens and the earth. He said: What is it, O Messenger of God? He said: Jihad in the way of God. Narrated by Muslim. And His statement: Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve means that by inciting them to fight, their resolve will be aroused to confront the enemy and defend the territory of Islam and its people, and to resist and be patient with them. And the statement of God, may He be exalted, And God is mightier in assault and more severe in punishment means that He is able to defeat them in this world and the hereafter, as God, may He be exalted, said: “That is so. And if God had willed, He could have taken vengeance upon them, but that He may test some of you by means of others.”

So fight in the cause of God. You are not charged except with yourself. And urge on the believers. Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve. And God is stronger in violence and stronger in punishment.

And His statement: Whoever intercedes with a good intercession will have a share of it meaning whoever strives for something and good results from it will have a share of it, and whoever intercedes with an evil intercession will have a share of it meaning he will bear the burden of that matter which resulted from his striving and intention, as is proven in the Sahih from the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, that he said: Intercede and you will be rewarded, and God decrees through the tongue of His Prophet what He wills. And Mujahid bin Jabr said: This verse was revealed regarding people’s intercessions for one another. And Al-Hasan Al-Basri said: God the Most High said: Whoever intercedes and did not say who intercedes. And His statement: And God is ever, over all things, a Guardian. Ibn Abbas, Ata’, Atiyyah, Qatadah, and Matar Al-Wariq said: A Guardian means a Preserver. And Mujahid said: A Witness, and in a narration from him: A Reckoner. And Sa’id bin Jubayr, As-Suddi, and Ibn Zayd said: Able. Abdullah bin Katheer said: Al-Muqit is Al-Wasib. Ad-Dahhak said: Al-Muqit is Al-Razzaq. Ibn Abi Hatim said: My father told us, Abdul Rahim bin Mutraf told us, Issa bin Yunus told us, on the authority of Ismail, on the authority of a man, on the authority of Abdullah bin Rawahah, and a man asked him about the statement of God Almighty: And God is ever, over all things, a Guardian. He said: He is a Guardian for every person according to his deeds.

And his saying: And when you are greeted with a greeting, greet in return with one better than it, or return it equally, meaning if a Muslim greets you, then respond to him with something better than the greeting he greeted, or respond to him with something similar to what he greeted. So the increase is recommended, and the reciprocity is obligatory. Ibn Jarir said: Musa bin Sahl al-Ramli told us, Abdullah bin al-Sarri al-Antaki told us, Hisham bin Lahiq told us, on the authority of Asim al-Ahwal, on the authority of Abu Uthman al-Nahdi, on the authority of Salman al-Farisi, who said: A man came to the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: Peace be upon you, O Messenger of God. So he said: “And upon you be peace and the mercy of God.” Then another came and said: Peace be upon you, O Messenger of God, and the mercy of God. So the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said to him: “And upon you be peace and the mercy of God and His blessings.” Then another came and said: Peace be upon you, O Messenger of God, and the mercy of God and His blessings. So he said to him: And upon you. The man said to him: O Prophet of God, may my father and mother be sacrificed for you, so-and-so and so-and-so came to you and greeted you, and you responded to them more than you responded to me. So he said: You did not leave anything for us. He said: God the Almighty said: “And when you are greeted with a greeting, greet in return with one better than it, or at least return it i.e., the same. We will return it to you.” This is how Ibn Abi Hatim narrated it in a suspended form, saying: It was mentioned on the authority of Ahmad ibn al-Hasan al-Tirmidhi that Abdullah ibn al-Sarri Abu Muhammad al-Antaki told us. Abu al-Hasan said, and he was a righteous man: Hisham ibn Lahiq told us, and he mentioned it with his chain of transmission similarly. Abu Bakr ibn Mardawayh narrated it: Abdul-Baqi ibn Qani’ told us, Abdullah ibn Ahmad ibn Hanbal told us, my father told us, Hisham ibn Lahiq Abu Uthman told us, and he mentioned it similarly. I did not see it in al-Musnad, and God knows best.

This hadith indicates that there is no increase in the greeting of peace beyond this description, “Peace be upon you and the mercy of God and His blessings,” because if more than that had been prescribed, the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, would have increased it. Imam Ahmad said: Muhammad ibn Katheer, the brother of Sulayman, told us on the authority of Katheer, Ja’far ibn Sulayman ibn Awf told us, on the authority of Abu Raja’ al-Attardi, on the authority of Imran ibn Husayn, that a man came to the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, and said: “Peace be upon you, O Messenger of God,” so he responded to him, then he sat down and said: Ten, then another came and said: “Peace be upon you and the mercy of God, O Messenger of God,” so he responded to him, then he sat down and said: Twenty, then another came and said: “Peace be upon you and the mercy of God and

His blessings," so he responded to him, then he sat down and said: Thirty, and Abu Dawud narrated it in the same way on the authority of Muhammad ibn Katheer, and it was included by al-Tirmidhi, al-Nasa'i and al-Bazzar from his hadith, then al-Tirmidhi said: Hasan Gharib from this chain of transmission. And in the chapter on the authority of Abu Saeed, Ali, and Sahl bin Hanif, and Al-Bazzar said: This has been narrated on the authority of Al-Bani, may God bless him and grant him peace, from various sources, this is the best of them in chain of transmission. And Ibn Abi Hatim said: Ali bin Harb Al-Mawsili told us, Hamid bin Abdul Rahman Al-Ru'asi told us on the authority of Al-Hasan bin Salih, on the authority of Samak, on the authority of Ikrimah, on the authority of Ibn Abbas, who said: Whoever from among God's creation greets you, then return it to him even if he is a Zoroastrian, because God says: Then greet with something better than it or return it. And Qatada said: Then greet with something better than it, meaning for the Muslims, or return it, meaning for the People of the Covenant. And this revelation is questionable, as was mentioned previously in the hadith, that what is meant is that he should respond with something better than what he greeted him with. So if the Muslim reaches the limit of what is prescribed in greeting, he should respond to him like what he said. As for the People of the Covenant, they should not initiate the greeting nor should they be increased, rather he should respond to them with what was established in the two Sahih on the authority of Ibn Umar, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "If the Jews greet you, one of them only says: 'Death be upon you,' so say: 'And upon you.'" In Sahih Muslim on the authority of Abu Hurairah, that the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: God's Messenger (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: Do not initiate greetings to Jews and Christians, and if you meet them on the road, force them to the narrowest part of it. Sufyan al-Thawri said, on the authority of a man, on the authority of al-Hasan al-Basri, who said: Greeting is voluntary and responding is obligatory. What he said is the opinion of all scholars, that responding is obligatory upon the one who greets him, and he is sinful if he does not do so, because he has disobeyed the command of God in His saying: Then greet with something better than it or return it equally. It came in the hadith narrated by Abu Dawud on the authority of Abu Hurayrah, who said: The Messenger of God (may God's peace and blessings be upon him) said: "By the One in Whose Hand is my soul, you will not enter Paradise until you believe, and you will not believe until you love one another. Shall I not guide you to something which, if you do it, you will love one another? Spread peace among yourselves."

His saying: God, there is no god but He is a statement of His Oneness and His uniqueness in divinity for all creatures, and it includes an oath in His saying: He will surely gather you together on the Day of Resurrection, about which there is no doubt. This lam is used to introduce an oath, so His saying: God, there is no god but He is a statement and an oath that He will gather the first and the last on one plain, and He will reward every worker for his work. And His saying: And who is more truthful than God in statement? That is, no one is more truthful than Him in His statement, His report, His promise, and His threat, for there is no god but Him and no lord but Him.

Fath al-Qadir

The Fa' in His statement 84- Then fight It was said: It is related to His statement And whoever fights in the cause of God etc.: meaning for this reason, then fight. It was also said: It is related to His statement And what is the matter with you that you do not fight in the cause of God? So fight. It was also said: It is the answer to an omitted condition indicated by the context, which is: If the matter is what was mentioned about not obeying the hypocrites, then fight, or if they single you out and leave you, then fight. Al-Zajaj said: God commanded His Messenger, may God bless him and grant him peace, to wage jihad even if he fought alone, because He has guaranteed him victory. Ibn Atiyyah said: This is the apparent meaning of the wording, except that it has never been reported that fighting was made obligatory for him but not for the nation. So the meaning, and God knows best, is that it is addressed to him in wording, and in meaning to him and his nation: that is, you, O Muhammad, and every one of your nation, it is said to him, "Fight in the way of God. You are not charged except for yourself." That is, you are not charged except for yourself, and you are not obligated to do the actions of anyone other than yourself. This is a resumption confirming what came before it, because the obligation to do one's own actions is one of the reasons for him to directly fight alone. Do not be charged was read with the subjunctive mood indicating prohibition, and it was read with the letter nun. His statement, and incite the believers, that is, he urged them to fight and jihad. It is said, I incited so-and-so to such-and-such, if you commanded him to do it. And inciting so-and-so to do something, devote himself to it, and persevere in it have the same meaning. His saying, Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve, is a hope for the believers that the violence of those who disbelieve will be restrained from them, and hope from God, the Almighty, is obligatory, for it is a promise from Him, and His promise will inevitably come to pass. And God is more severe in violence, meaning more powerful and greater in authority. And more severe in punishment, meaning more severe in punishment. It is said: I punished the man severely, from punishment, which is torment. Munkal is the thing that is inflicted on a person.

Tafsir al-Baghawi

84- The Almighty said: So fight in the cause of God, you are not charged except with yourself, and that is because the Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, made an appointment with Abu Sufyan after the Battle of Uhud during the season of Badr Al-Sughra in Dhul-Qi'dah. When the appointed time came, he called the people to go out, but some of them disliked him, so God Almighty revealed: So fight in the cause of God, you are not charged except with yourself, meaning: Do not abandon jihad against the enemy and victory for the weak believers, even if you are alone, for God has promised you victory and has rebuked them for abandoning the fight. The fa' of the Almighty's saying: So fight is an answer to His saying: And whoever fights in the cause of God and is killed or is victorious, We will give him a great reward, so he fought, and urged the believers, to fight, meaning he urged them to jihad and encouraged them to receive the reward, so the Messenger of God, may God bless him and grant him peace, went out with seventy riders, and God spared them from fighting, so He, may He be glorified and exalted, said: Perhaps God, meaning: perhaps God, will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve, meaning: the fighting of those who disbelieved, the polytheists, and perhaps from God Obligatory, And God is more severe in punishment, meaning: more powerful and greater in power, and more severe in punishment, meaning: more severe in punishment.

Surat al-Nisa 4:84

So fight in the cause of God. You are not charged except with yourself. And urge on the believers. Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieve. And God is stronger in violence and stronger in punishment.

Tafsir al-Baidawi

84Then fight in the cause of God lest they become discouraged and leave you alone. You are not tasked with anything but yourself except your own actions. It does not harm you to oppose them and stay behind, so go forward to jihad even if no one helps you, for God will support you, not the soldiers. It was narrated that "he, peace and blessings be upon him, called the people in the Battle of Badr al-Sughra to go out, but some of them disliked him, so it was revealed. So he, peace and blessings be upon him, went out, and with him were only seventy, not looking back on anyone." It was read La takalluf in the jussive mood, and La nakalluf with the nun in the active voice, meaning we do not task you with anything but your own actions, not I do not task anyone but yourself, because of his saying: And urge the believers to fight, since you are only responsible for their matter with the incitement. Perhaps God will restrain the violence of those who disbelieved meaning Quraysh, and he did so by casting terror into their hearts until they returned. And God is more severe in violence than Quraysh. And more severe in punishment in torment than them, and it is a rebuke and threat to those who do not follow him.
